DR. AMOS R. KOONTZ, '10 President Alumni Association, Reviews Homecoming Day Parade.

Dr. Amos R. Koontz, '10, a distinguished alumnus of William and Mary and president of the Alumni Association, presents herewith a very timely message to the alumni.

Dr. Koontz has given unstintingly of his time to alumni affairs and under his administration alumni work at William and Mary has taken on new life.

"Now that our new Alumni Gazette is definitely established, may I in this third issue, address a brief message to the sons and daughters of William and Mary? I may say at the outset that my chief reason for wishing to do so is to enlist the support of every one of you for the work that the Alumni Association is trying to accomplish.

"Many of you will ask 'What are we trying to accomplish?' Let me enumerate briefly some of the tangible things that we are attempting: To maintain an alumni office where data with regard to all alumni will be collected and properly filed; to aid in keeping the alumni in contact with the college; in our capacity as a cor- (Continued on page 3)

William and Mary Alumnus of Allentown, Pennsylvania, Elected to U. S. Congress.

Another William and Mary alumnus is going to the U. S. Congress, thus bringing the number of United States Congressmen educated at William and Mary to about 70. The alumnus who adds his name to this distinguished list is Oliver Walter Frey, of the class of 1915 and now a resident of Allentown, Pa.

Mr. Frey is well remembered by the alumni of that period. He was most active in student affairs and is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

The writer met alumnus Frey at a Commencement here several years ago. It was his first visit since graduation and he expressed great joy at being back at his Alma Mater again. (Continued on page 2)

C. C. C. Camp on W&M Property Is Converting 900 Acres Into Park

A C. C. Camp was established on William and Mary property several weeks ago. The workers in this camp about 300 in number, will be engaged for several months. The College owns about 900 acres of wooded property and this will be converted into a park.

A number of rustic bridges will be constructed over the numerous streams in these woods and many paths, winding in and out, will be made.

Altogether, it is quite a big park project and when finished will be a very delightful place.

At the seventh annual convention of the Virginia Inter-Collegiate Press Association held in Richmond in October, the William and Mary Literary Magazine was awarded second prize. The Ring-tum-Phi of Washington and Lee took first prize.

The annual convention of District III of the American Alumni Council will meet at William and Mary on January 26th and 27th.

IT'S UP TO YOU

The first two issues of the Alumni Gazette were sent out to the entire William and Mary alumni group, about 5500. Responses from alumni in various sections of the country would indicate that the sentiment of our alumni is for such a publication.

However, it costs money to get this paper printed and mailed to 5500 people and while this third issue will be sent out to all alumni, it is very doubtful if after this issue we can mail it to any except members of the Alumni Association.

The response to this issue in the way of new memberships will determine the matter.

Membership to date in the Alumni Association is about 475 or 8 1-2 per cent of our total number of alumni.

Alumni dues are $3.00 per year. Life Memberships, $50.00.

The Alumni Catalogue alone is worth the price of alumni dues. In addition to the catalogue you get an etching of the Wren Building and the Alumni Gazette for 12 months.

This is something for your money.

DR. KOONTZ EXPRESSES THANKS FOR HOMECOMING

The recent Homecoming Day at William and Mary was an outstanding success. I wish to express the thanks of the Alumni Association to three groups who contributed greatly to the success of the occasion: namely, alumni of William and Mary residing in Williamsburg, the citizenry of Williamsburg in general, and the students of the College. It was largely due to the enthusiastic efforts and generous contributions of these groups that such an enjoyable day was furnished for the visiting alumni, their families and friends. To them we extend our sincerest thanks.

I wish also to take advantage of this occasion to express publicly to Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, President of the College, the thanks of the Alumni for the generous policy he has held consistently towards alumni affairs. His continued encouragement and help (in many ways) has constantly been one of the greatest assets of our Association. (Continued on page 4)

I. T. Wilkinson, 1909, In General Assembly

Former William and Mary Football Man to Represent Lunenburg County, Virginia.

Isham T. Wilkinson, '09, once a stalwart guard and tackle on the William and Mary football team will represent Lunenburg County in the next General Assembly. Wilkinson was in the manufacturing business in Richmond for years but returned to his native heath in time to qualify for the primary of last August when he defeated C. F. Blackwell for this legislative position.

Wilkinson entered William and Mary in 1903, staid until June 1906, dropped out but returned for the session of 1908-09. He was a powerful guard on the football team of 1908 and contributed largely to a thrilling defeat of 21 to 18 handed Richmond College that fall.

Thanksgiving 1933! A day that will go down in football history at William and Mary and a team that will take its place with the greatest of all time at the College.

A mere handful of loyal supporters of the team thought they could defeat Richmond College with the best team in its history. Football fans put the odds at 3 to 1 against the Indians and there was plenty of money to back this opinion, and the boys on the team of '33 accepted the under dog role but got down to work for the game with a determination and solemn spirit that to those who were watching them boded ill for their ancient rivals. During the last two days of practice they tore up all the tackling dummies on the field. And on Thanksgiving afternoon in the Richmond City Stadium they just substituted Spiders for those dummies.

A few minutes after the kick-off it looked like the same old story of the past two Thanksgivings, William and Mary fumbling on their own 35-yard line. Richmond took the ball but (Continued on page 4)

DR. CHANDLER'S RADIO SPEECH OF 1930 AGAIN IS PRESENTED TO ALUMNI

President of William and Mary Spoke On Past History and Present Aims And Achievements of Famous Old College.

SPEECH GIVEN OVER W R V A

The following is an address delivered by Dr. J. A. C. Chandler over WRVA Radio Station on March 28, 1930. It is such a concise statement of the past history, present achievements and aims of the College that we thought it would be of much interest to the alumni.

"To those who do not recall at the moment the history of the College of William and Mary in Virginia, I will state that the institution was chartered on February 8, 1692, old style; or February 19, 1693, new style. You sometimes hear men speak of the College of William and Mary as William's and Mary's College, but when King William and Queen Mary, of England, granted to the College its charter they designated that its name should be THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY IN VIRGINIA, and under that name it has operated for 237 years. It is the only college in America to secure a royal charter. The college has been in continuous operation as an educational institu- (Continued on page 3)

When the Danville Ministerial Association in session last September accused President Roosevelt of "corrupt practices" because of his activity for repeal of the 18th Amendment, a good William and Mary alumni divine came to his rescue. President Roosevelt's champion was Rev. Norville E. Wicker, '19, rector of the Church of Epiphany, Episcopal, Danville, Virginia.

Rev. Wicker replied to his brethren in the Association as follows:

"It is a matter of deepest regret to me that the ministers have allowed their enthusiasm for a cause to lead them to impugn motives of the President of the United States." (Continued on page 4)

Fires Have Swept Halls of Wren Building Three Times Since 1695

Three times in the history of William and Mary have fires swept the halls of the Wren Building. The first fire occurred in 1705 just ten years after the building was erected. In 1859 another fire devastated this building and some of the college's most precious records were destroyed. The last fire occurred in 1862 during the Peninsula Campaign of the Civil War.

After the fire of 1859 there was a gathering of William and Mary alumni in Williamsburg. The address of Judge Robert Armistead, a graduate of the College in 1831 and the grandfather of Judge Frank Armistead, '99, made on that occasion has been preserved and we are glad to present it in this issue of the Gazette.

"Sad are we at the more sad misfortune of the loss by fire on the 8th Inst., of our old College building, its valuable and antique Library, Chemical and Physiological apparatus, and which we thus must sadly announce to the Alumni. Yes, that building so intimately identified with the proudest recollections of the past and at the font of whose literary streams were quaffed and imbibed those principles of our heroes and statesmen, which compelled the Revolutionary struggle and laid the platform (Continued on page 3)

THE FIGHTING VIRGINIANS

Football brings some high moments and great thrills to alumni and students and to the players themselves and William and Mary has had her share of these great days since the first football team was organized here in 1893. But it took forty years to bring the supreme moment in our football history so far. It happened Thanksgiving afternoon of the present year of Our Lord in the Richmond City Stadium when 16000 people saw our boys wearing the Green, Gold and Silver, rise from an under dog position to heights seldom achieved in similar situations.

Against a Richmond University team, rated the best in their history, our boys threw themselves with all they had and for sixty full minutes of play worked together like a clock and showed a fierceness and persistency in both offensive and defensive play that has probably not been seen on a gridiron in the entire country this year.

Playing together as they did and as hard as they did against odds recognized before the game by everyone was a splendid expression of the loyalty of the team to their Alma Mater and a sincere proof of the character and courage of the individual men who represented William and Mary on the gridiron this fall.

Ten years ago, the Boston papers, trying to find some expression that would typify the wonderful fight one of our teams put up against Harvard, named the team The Fighting Virginians. This title was cinched Thanksgiving afternoon and a glorious luster added to it.

The Gazette doffs its hat in all honor and congratulations to Captain Quirk and his team-mates, to Coach Kellison, his assistant, Tom Dowler, and to Billy Gooch, Athletic Director.

A GUARD OF HONOR

Your attention is called to the message of Dr. Amos R. Koontz, '10, President of the Alumni Association, in this issue. It is a clarion call to the alumni of William and Mary to rally around her banner through the Association.

From the very beginning of the organization alumni work here has been supported by a few hundred loyal and enthusiastic alumni. The time has come for others to join the group and help to carry on. The foundation has been laid, the building is going on and up, but more craftsmen are needed to perfect the structure and to tend it year in and year out.

William and Mary, in its new period of development which started fifteen years ago, is practically completed physically, and the inner or spiritual growth is fast catching up. Scholastic requirements are more exacting than ever and the spirit of the student body is fine. In athletics our colors have been carried to higher and higher triumphs. And so all that is needed to make the picture a perfect and happy one is a flourishing Alumni Association with a large and active membership.

If the Association is sufficiently supported it can accomplish a great deal for the College in a moral way. It is William and Mary's Guard of Honor and it is an honor to be the guard of so sacred a shrine.

Loyalty to some cause or organization is a fine thing in this life. It is an anchorage for the soul and satisfaction and contentment come into one's heart from knowledge of having served that cause. Therefore to love one's Alma Mater is not quite enough. It is serving her in some concrete way that counts. One way is through membership in the Alumni Association.

Daniel Webster's loyalty to Dartmouth should be an inspiration to all college men and women. It is recorded that when he appeared before the Supreme Court to represent his Alma Mater in the famous case that was threatening the very existence of the college he concluded a masterful argument with this impassioned outburst: "I know not how others may feel but when I see my Alma Mater, like Caesar in the senate house, surrounded by those who would reiterate staps upon stab I would not for this right arm, have her turn to me and say, 'And thou too, my son?'"

Few if any William and Mary men or women would raise their hands against her and thousands would raise their hands for her if the occasion arose. The writer believes that the occasion is here, that the natural love and loyalty of her alumni should lead them to join hands with the group of a few hundred of their fellow alumni who have stood guard at the gates these many years and swell their ranks until the Guard of Honor is two thousand strong.

DEDICATION

We have made a book which we fondly dedicate to our sweethearts, for it is theirs. In them we found our inspiration; to them we turn for praise. Ever loyal, ever true, they will say it is good. And then the critics may come but we shall be Gentlemen Unafraid; for we shall have the delightful satisfaction of knowing that Bright Eyes will look with approval upon our work; that Red Lips will utter kind words for it; and that Dainty Hands will carefully attend to it that Posterity shall not lose the fruits of our labor.

COMMENTS

In the 1902 Colonial Echo, there appears one sheet of heavy dark gray paper and across the page, two large letters L and K. The L is in purple and K in yellow. On the following page is an explanation pointing out that the Order of Loyal Knights was a secret society founded at William and Mary in 1898 and that its purpose was to secure to non-fraternity men in the college their full rights and privileges. The following statement reveals the hope and plans of the Order: "Since the establishment of the Order we have succeeded in organizing a chapter at our sister College, the State Female Normal School at Farmville, which has grown so rapidly that today it is the one bright star that keeps bright the society of that institution."

Another interesting contribution to the 1902 Colonial Echo is an historical poem entitled, Child Hood's Pilgrimage, filling thirteen pages of the Echo. The name of the author is not divulged.

It was said that Dr. Young was rather gruff, never talked much and usually grunted when spoken to. On one occasion he took the team on a northern trip and Lewis was slated to pitch. It was a tough assignment and Dr. Young instructed Lewis to put on extra sweaters to increase his size and thereby awe the opposing batters. Lewis started out garbed thusly but at the end of the inning was very uncomfortable and complained to Young. Nothing doing yet but after more innings Lewis was insistent that he be allowed to shed a sweater. Young gave permission to take off one. When Lewis got to the box he proceeded to shed and to the amazement of the opposition he shed sweaters until there were four laying on the ground.

The epidemics of bed dumping in Brafferton, Ewell, and Taliaferro.

The student in Brafferton, who on a bleak winter day and the temperature in the drafty halls of the Brafferton was at freezing, disrobed in his room and sans bathrobe or any other protection went down into the basement to a shower bath. A fellow student observing him, seized upon this opportunity to go into his room, lock the door from the inside and dropped out of a window (first story) to the ground, and awaited events. After the bath the student came bounding back up the steps in a great hurry to get to the warmth of his room! Finding himself locked out and exposed to the terrific cold he shivered and knocked and altogether raised a great racket. Finally his tormentor crawled back through the window and let him in.

The great small-pox scare at W. & M. in the middle of a cold winter, 1906-07 when one lone student contracted a mild case of the disease and all students living in the Brafferton, Ewell and Taliaferro were promptly quarantined and guards posted at nights at all avenues of escape. And the Northern Neck bunch who finally escaped one night when the ground was covered with snow and ice and it was bitterly cold. Bound for Norfolk they planned to take the early morning local at Grove Station. Being afraid to walk through Williamsburg even after midnight, they struck out through the fields in the rear of the campus and after sliding down hills over the snow and ice on their suit cases struck the C. & O. tracks and followed them through the night to Grove Station arriving between 2 and 3 a. m. The station agent admitted them and they slept on mail bags around a red hot stove until daybreak. A. G. Harwood, '08, living across from the station, took them to breakfast and later in the day they reached Norfolk and in a few days went back to the Rappahannock on the state boat, Commodore Maury.

While they were at home, Dr. James Southall Wilson, '04, and some students quarantined in the Brafferton formed an organization called the Knights of the Yellow Flag which lasted for several years.

tion except that it was closed for a short period during the Revolutionary War, and a longer period during the War Between the States. It was closed in 1881 on account of financial reasons, but was reopened in 1888 with the assistance of the State of Virginia.

The Main Building of the College was designed by Sir Christopher Wren, according to the best historical evidence, and its corner-stone was laid in August, 1695, in the presence of the Governor and Council of the State.

In 1705 on the night on which the citizens of Williamsburg and the students of the College celebrated the accession to the throne of England of Queen Anne, the building was consumed by fire, but the brick walls remained and the building was restored under the direction of Governor Spotswood. As restored, it was a two-story building with a third story of dormers. This Main Building, which is now called the Wren Building, after Sir Christopher Wren, is being restored through the beneficence of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at a cost of practically one-half million dollars. When the building is restored it will be a replica of the Spotswood-Wren Building as it looked in 1732, after the chapel was built, and will be furnished in keeping with that period.

On the left hand, as you enter the campus, is a brick building laid in Flemish bond, two stories, with dormers above, in Georgian architecture, known as the Brafferton Building. This was constructed in 1723 from a gift made to the College by Sir Robert Boyle, and was named after his estate—BRAFFERTON—in the North Riding of Yorkshire, England. This building was used as a home and school for Indians. After the Revolutionary War the Chancery Court of London took away from the College the whole of the Brafferton estate in England, now valued at 100,000 pounds.

On the right hand, as you enter the campus, is another building, similar in style and architecture to the Brafferton, which has always been known as the President's House. In this house has lived every President of the College. It was built by James Blair, the founder of the College, the man who went to England as the Commissary of the Bishop of London, and who, through his eloquence, secured the charter of the College from King William and Queen Mary.

As you proceed up the walk to the Wren Building, with the President's House on the right, and the Brafferton building on the left, you come to the statue of Lord Botetourt, a work of the sculptor Hayward, of London, in 1773. Lord Botetourt was one of the most popular of the Royal Governors of the Colony, and though he several times dissolved the Assembly, his gentlemanly bearing and genial manners kept for him the friendship of the people. He was a familiar figure among college students and professors, and he often entertained them at the Governor's Palace. It is said that much of his popularity was due to the fact that at eleven or twelve o'clock at night, in the poorly lighted streets of Williamsburg, he would be found with the students, serenading the ladies of the city. On his death the House of Burgesses voted to his memory the monument that now stands on the front campus.

The three buildings, the Wren, the Brafferton, and the President's House, constitute the oldest college group in America, though Harvard, as an institution of learning, is nearly sixty years older than the College of William and Mary.

In the earlier days of the College of William and Mary, before the Revolutionary War, the attendance at the College averaged about sixty young men per session, while to-day its enrollment is 1501, of whom 840 are young men and 661 are young women. In that period a few Indians attended (fourteen according to Herbert B. Adams) the College, as well as sons of many of the great planters of the Colonial period. Horse racing and cock fighting were common amusements among the students, and the pranks that were played upon the professors and the president were more frequent than the pranks usually played by the students of an American secondary school of to-day.

To the College in 1749 came a youth seventeen years of age, who appeared before the Professor of Mathematics, who by virtue of his office was Surveyor General of the College. He stood his examination for his surveyor's license and upon receiving it proceeded to the wilds of the Shenandoah Valley to survey for Lord Fairfax. As a surveyor in the wild western lands he became familiar with the headwaters of the Potomac and Ohio Rivers, and because of his knowledge of this territory he was designated, when a mere youth, by Governor Dinwiddie to proceed against the French who had established a fort near where Pittsburg now stands. This young man was George Washington. Through his success as a surveyor an opportunity was opened to him to serve his country.

The first honorary degree to be granted by William and Mary was to the distinguished author, newspaper man and scientist of the age—Benjamin Franklin. It was an honorary M. A. granted in 1755. In this year George Washington stood for election to the House of Burgesses from Frederick County, and his election cost him quite a large sum for that day, spent in furnishing drinks to the voters, in accordance with the usual custom of that time. In this same year, however, the College of William and Mary passed the first college prohibition law, forbidding students to indulge in strong drink, excepting, however, such spirituous liquors as were furnished at their meals. They could not drink between meals or frequent any taverns.

In this period one of the graduates of the College was Thomas Jefferson. One of the students was James Monroe.

In the midst of the Revolutionary War there was organized on December 5, 1776, the well-known honorary scholastic fraternity—PHI BETA KAPPA—which exists now in more than one hundred institutions in the United States.

On December 4, 1779, the College of William and Mary made a decided contribution to American education. Fifty years before it had become a standard college under the English system, having a president and six professors, being the first standard college in America. Now in 1779, it advanced the American idea of a university. It took the name of a university for a while and established five distinct schools, among them the School of Modern Languages, and the School of Law, the first in America and a School of Medicine. The elective system and also the honor system were instituted. The first professor of Law was the famous George Wythe, who was the first man in America ever to declare a law of any assembly unconstitutional. In 1780 there came to study under him for a short time a young man then an officer in the Revolutionary War—John Marshall—who afterwards became Chief Justice of the United States, and following his teacher declared certain acts of Congress unconstitutional.

The history of the College of William and Mary is too long for further recital. I will say, however, that the College has educated

- 3 Presidents of the United States
- 4 Signers of the Declaration of Independence
- 4 Members of the Supreme Court of the U. S.
- 3 Speakers of the House of Representatives

- 30 U. S. Senators
- 67 Members of the House of Representatives
- 16 Governors of Virginia
- 15 Governors of other States
- 11 Cabinet Officers
- Not less than:
- 100 Judges of the various courts

This is an enviable record for any college that up to 1888 had never had an attendance beyond 140.

The College now has 81 members of its teaching staff; 1501 students; grounds and buildings valued at three and one-half million dollars. Its whole surroundings, because of the historic atmosphere of Williamsburg and the Peninsula, are the source of inspiration to its students.

The restoration work which is being financed by Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., under the direction of Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, is bringing prominently before the country at large the fact that this great American nation of ours is indebted for many of the fundamental principles that underlie it to those leaders who were trained at the College of William and Mary. The founding of the College at Middle Plantation resulted in the founding of Williamsburg and determined the political center of Virginia, and when Williamsburg became the capital of the Colony it also became a miniature copy of the English Court.

The 18th Century was, in a sense, the golden age of the College of William and Mary. The 19th Century was a period of decline, but within the last decade of the 19th Century and during the 30 years of the 20th Century, there has been a period of revival and progress, so that today the College of William and Mary is one of the most largely-attended colleges in the whole South, with students from all parts of the Nation. It emphasizes the traditions of the olden days but the College does not live in the past. It is endeavoring to use these traditions as the basis for training for useful service in the present and for creating a vision of greater service to Virginia and the Nation in the future. Virginia and the Nation are advancing every day in educational progress and the College of William and Mary is hopeful that it may contribute its full part in that progress."

porate body, to aid in financing various college projects; to maintain a monthly alumni publication; to establish a meritorious service award through which alumni performing distinguished service for their Alma Mater, or in the world of affairs, may be given some form of recognition; and to increase the Alumni Endowment Fund until it is a sum from which an adequate income may be derived to carry on the work of the Alumni Office.

"We have been very fortunate in securing the services of one of our ablest and most devoted alumni, Mr. Charles A. Taylor, Jr., '09, as Alumni Secretary. It is his task to carry out the above program, a great deal of which has been started as a result of his initiative.

Recently an alumnus (a friend and classmate of mine,) when asked why he did not join the Alumni Association, countered "What good is an Alumni Association anyway?" The question is well asked. Clearly it is not our duty, or at all within our province, to formulate the academic policy of the College. That is the President's task. What then is our function? The concrete objectives mentioned above might be considered an adequate raison d'être for us. But I believe that there is a more fundamental and important reason for having an organization of the alumni; and that is, to foster and direct into proper channels the William and Mary spirit.

That there is such a thing as the William and Mary spirit no-one will deny, but I doubt if any alumnus could define it. I recently heard a celebrated English scholar give a course of five lectures on Early English Poetry. In his introductory lecture he stated that in the course of his lectures he would try to show that there was such a thing as an English spirit that had run through all the centuries of England's history. Through the five lectures the subject was not specifically mentioned again until towards the close of the last lecture, when he said: "I think I have shown that there is such a thing as the English spirit and that is something that Americans can not only understand, but can share in." Even five lectures could hardly do justice to the William and Mary spirit. Only a long and detailed chronicle of the history of the College could make a stranger understand fully the import of that spirit. But every William and Mary man understands it, and a few others share in it. Although indefinable and intangible, it is no less existent than the ancient bricks of the old Wren Building itself. It is representative of all the fine traditions of the Old College. It is not a temporary or current affair, but like the English spirit, runs continuously through the centuries. It is because I take pride in this spirit, and am interested in the everlasting continuity of it, that I have belonged to the Alumni Association since graduation, and enjoy taking part in its affairs. No alumnus can afford to hold himself aloof because of some momentary disgruntlement.

The affairs of the Alumni Association are participated in most enthusiastically by a fairly large group of William and Mary men and women. Those who are not in that group are missing an opportunity that would prove a service to the College and afford a very great pleasure for themselves."

of our principles upon which rests the whole structure of our liberal government, now lies in smoldering ruins.—Whom but one of her Alumni was the first President of our Continental Congress? To whom but to Thomas Jefferson is this once happy and now widespread Union indebted for the adopted draft of our Federal Constitution? Also to John Marshall, Spencer Roane, Catesby Jones, Lewis Warrenton, Chervan—the brave defender of Sandusky, and to General Scott who now stands at the head of the victorious army of the Union who with unequal numbers successfully met the serried hosts of Mexico on the summit of Cerro Gerdo. These names were all her sons. Who but one of her sons introduced the Resolution of 1778-79 in the Virginia Legislature which ever since and ever will be the republican faith against the encroachments of federal power? She has supplied largely the catalogue of Presidents and made the history of whom all are justly proud, and points with growing pride at her illustrious Jefferson who himself acknowledged that within her walls he imbibed the principles he possessed and practiced in after life. The illustrious Washington in his letter of acceptance as Chancellor of the institution in thrilling terms tells the deep interest in her behalf he felt, and which moved his mighty heart.

The hosts of heroes and statesmen cluster around her memory, which illustrious memories are enshrined with beauty in the hearts of her countrymen.

Fellow alumni of the College and friends of our Cause, we as a committee implore you in behalf of your Alma Mater. The building burned, is but a fragment of her existence and a part of us have met around her consecrated walls in behalf of ourselves, her Sons and our country to pledge our heart and our means to repair, if possible, this injury and rebuild and construct upon her present site a building the last of which shall be more glorious than the first. This to accomplish we invite (we will not say beg) your hearty cooperation and your aid on this behalf. This done, her library and apparatus supplied, we then ask her destiny to be entrusted to her Alumni and with her bounds enlarged, the greetings of joy and gladness will be responded to by every heart and her walls will echo and re-echo with joyous sound of the footsteps of her numerous attendants."

the Council will attend the meeting. The director of District III, which comprises the states of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, is Mrs. Vivienne Breckenridge of Sweet Briar College. The convention is meeting at William and Mary at the invitation of the Alumni Office.

Dr. Sidney B. Hall, '16, Superintendent of Public Instruction in Virginia, spoke at a Convocation at the College on November 10th. His subject was "The New Public School Curricula and Its Effect on Teacher Training."

The Class of '33 is the first in the history of the College to elect a permanent secretary. Ray Carroll, of Norfolk, Virginia, was chosen for the position and he will compile records of the class from time to time and be a point of contact between the class and the Alumni Office.

To date about 50 of the class have become members of the Alumni Association.

Chas. P. McCurdy, Jr., of Washington, D. C., was president of the Class and cooperated splendidly with the Alumni Office during his term.

Governor John Garland Pollard who was expected to resume his position here as Dean of the Marshall Wythe School of Government and Citizenship when his term as governor expired has been appointed head of the Veterans' Appeal Board by President Roosevelt and will assume the duties of this position around January 1st.

HOMECOMING DAY OF NOV. 18th PROVED TO BE MOST SUCCESSFUL IN HISTORY

alties soon had a touchdown. William and Mary received the next kickoff and Palese standing one yard back of his own goal line received it and running through the whole Davidson team placed it on their 20 yard line, a run of 80 yards that electrified the crowd. William and Mary was leading at the half 7-6, but Davidson scored in the second half and won the game.

But not even the loss of this game could dampen the spirits of over 1200 students, the alumni, and the people of Williamsburg. They were together in spirit and in homage to the old College and the Homecoming was declared the greatest ever.

Certainly no living graduate has ever seen a greater reunion here and more real William and Mary spirit.

The parade, representing over 40 cars and floats, Marines and the Drum and Bugle Corps of Newport News, is said by the oldest residents of the City to have been the largest and most colorful in their memory.

The Party given by the Williamsburg alumni that night was a thrilling climax to the day. Old grads and their wives, young grads and their sweethearts and alumnae and Dr. Chandler gathered for this great get-together. There was jollity and happiness, singing and cheering, reminiscing and Henry Billups with his broad grin of greeting.

It was a great reunion and there will be more to come.

Resol: That an Advertisement be forthwith published in the Virg: Gazette to desire all Surveyors, who did not settle their Accounts with the Burser of the College in April last to come and settle the same by the last of October, or that they may depend on having their Bonds sued, and their Commissions superseded.

Resol: That the Feathers which are laying waste in the College be disposed of, and that the Money arising be applied towards furnishing an Infirmary.

Resol: That Emmanuel Jones be appointed Librarian.

AUGUST 31, 1761

Resol: That Mrs. Isabella Cocke be appointed Housekeeper of the College, in the Place of Mrs. Martha Bryan, who has resign'd.

Resol: Unanimously that the Thanks of this Society be given to Mrs. Bryan for the faithful Discharge of her Office in the College.

Resol: That Daniel Wolstenholme, Esqr. be desired to receive of his Majesty's Collectors in Maryland the Duties of exported Tobacco due by a Royal Grant to the College of Wm. & Mary.

APRIL 27, 1763

This Society agrees that Mr. John Clough may be Collector of the Rents to the Brafferton Estate, provided it is agreeable to their Agents, Messrs. Capel and Osgood Hanbury, Merchants in London.

MAY 6, 1763

Order'd That Mr. Rose, Writing Master at the College be desired to attend his School every Evening from the 1st April to the 1st Oct., (Saturday and Sunday excepted) between the Hours of 5 and 7 o'clock.

MAY 10, 1763

Whereas John H. S. has lately behaved himself in a very impudent and unheard of Manner to the Masters of the Grammar School and when call'd upon by the President and Masters to give his reason for the same, he not only insolently behaved himself to them, but likewise absolutely refus'd to comply with the stated Rules of the College, unless agreeable with his own Opinion: He was then desired to leave College, but he absolutely refus'd to do it unless he was regularly expelled. As this is a piece of Behaviour that ought to be discouraged, and which deserves our severest Animadversion and Punishment, We do hereby declare the said John H. S. to be publicly expell'd the College, and strictly charge all the young Gentlemen belonging to us not to entertain or associate with the said S. in the Limits of the College under Pain of Severe Punishment: And we likewise order the said S. immediately to quit College, or we shall be under the disagreeable Necessity of having him punished by a Civil Magistrate.

JULY 23, 1763

Resol: That the Majority of this Society are of Opinion that Mrs. Isabella Cocke has behaved much amiss in her Office of Housekeeper, not only in contempt of the unanimous Resolves of this Society, dated Feb. 7, 1763 but likewise in other Respects; therefore they think proper to desire her to finish her year, and provide herself with some other Place.

Resol: That an Advertisement be inserted in the Gazette to desire a Man capable of managing the Housekeepers' Business in the College to apply to the President and Masters.

Resol: That you John W. James M. C. and Walter J. (on account of injurious Behaviour on Tuesday Night last to a Family in Town) are ordered to betake yourselves immediately to your Friends in the Country with such Letters, etc. as shall be deliv'd to you by the Society for them; and that you do not presume to appear in College, or the Town (after Tomorrow) until the 10th Day of Nov. next, when you are to return, and make such Farther Submission as the Society shall think proper; otherwise you will be look'd upon as expell'd the College.

NOVEMBER 8, 1763

Resol: That Mrs. Garret be appointed Housekeeper of the College in the Place of Mrs. Cocke.

Resol: That Mr. Nicholson be allow'd the usual Salary of Housekeeper for his Trouble from the Time Mrs. C. was removed to this date.

DECEMBER 9, 1763

Resol: That an Usher be advertised for.

Resol: That an Addition of 10 pounds Sterling be made to the Assistant Usher's Salary.

Resol: That the Tenants of the College Lands shall not be permitted to alienate or sell the whole, or any Part of their Lots without the Leave of the President and Masters, attested by the Seal of the College.

Resol: That William T., a Scholar in the College be expell'd the College.

Whereas William T. lately a Student of this College, some time since in Company with others was concerned in an Act of no small Violence and Outrage in this Town, and for this apprehensive of the Punishment he so justly deserv'd, deserted the College, and his Duty therein and ever since refuses to return and submit himself to the Discipline the President and Masters thought proper to direct. We in Order to discourage and prevent as much as lies in our power such very bad Behaviour in others for the Future, do in this publick Manner expel the said T. from our Society, and strictly forbid all our young Gentlemen from entertaining or associating with him under Pain of a most severe Animadversion and Punishment.

CHARTER DAY

Plans are in the making for the National Celebration of our Charter Day, February 19th. Alumni Clubs are urged to have meetings that night and wherever there are enough alumni for a gathering they are requested to join in this celebration.

The entire program will be announced in the January Gazette.

ALUMNI PERSONALS AND COMMUNICATIONS

Dr. Sidney B. Hall, '16, Supt. of Public Instruction in Virginia, was elected president of the William and Mary Alumni Club in Richmond at a recent meeting of the Club.

Other officers elected were: Malcolm Bridges, '25, Vice-President, W. Stirling King, '26, Treasurer, and John Branch Green, '28, Secretary.

Sol. W. Rawls, '10, was recently appointed to the Virginia Highway Commission to succeed T. Walke Truxton, of Norfolk, Virginia.

The Fraternity Month for October, a magazine printed in the interest of Greek letter fraternities, carries a fine picture of Winton S. Graham, a student here in 1926-27 with the following explanation: Twice a captain is the rank of Phi Kappa Tau's Winton S. Graham, who is cadet captain at West Point and also track captain. His military rank is fourth out of a group of 350. Graham is from Big Stone Gap.

COMMUNICATIONS

The Gazette is very interesting to me but in order to make it more interesting, I suggest you put Henry Billups on the editorial staff!

Henry F. Tompkins, '10.

A friend sent me a copy of the last issue of the Gazette. I can't do without it so please put me on your mailing list, (check enclosed for membership.)

Dr. Yates M. Barber, '06, Macclesfield, N. C.

Herewith three iron men to pay for one year's alumni dues — don't overlook the catalogue of all the old alumni as I got a little homesick reading so many old familiar names. I thought it was a h— of a come down for a star football player to be editing the Gazette but then I was Freshmen Class Historian and now look at me; and Kirkmyer selling gas burners!

I tried to help the outdoor plumbing by burning part of it; I suppose with all the improvements none now recalls the many gorgeous specimens of Chic Sales genius.

Attorney, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

ALUMNI DEATHS

Floyd J. Berl, '22, a prominent young business man of Wilmington, Delaware, died suddenly November 18th at his home.

While at William and Mary, Mr. Berl was president of his class and a member of Kappa Sigma.

He is survived by his wife, two children, and three brothers, one of whom is city solicitor for Wilmington.

Raymond Montague Tulin, a graduate of the Class of '25 and a resident of Norfolk, Virginia, passed away on November 2nd. Mr. Tulin was an honor graduate of the College and was prominent as a writer while a student here.

Rev. Lawrence Brent, '19, a clergyman of the Episcopal Church at Upperville, Virginia, and very prominent there, met a tragic death in Richmond, Virginia, on November 18th, when he fell from a third story window of the Westmoreland Club. Mr. Brent came from a prominent family of Northern Neck Virginia, many of whom were educated at William and Mary.

could not gain an inch in 4 downs. The fiercest defensive work ever put up by any William and Mary team started right there and it didn't let down until the final whistle. And in this first quarter with their backs to their own goal line they started an offensive equally as fierce. Palese carried the ball 46 yards, running through the whole Richmond team and would have made a touchdown but stumbled and fell when he was partially tackled.

In the second quarter Richmond kicked from their own 5-yard line and William and Mary blocked it and recovered but could not go that five yards for a touchdown.

Richmond kicked out again. On the third play "Stumpy" Bryant ran 47 yards for a touchdown and victory.

In the second half William and Mary continued their superb and almost perfect playing. Only once in the entire game did Richmond get within William and Mary's 36-yard line and that was when William and Mary fumbled on the initial kick-off.

Bryant was the individual star of the game though every man on the team played brilliantly and fiercely. Bryant's punting was superb, one punt going 78 yards and placing Richmond in a position that gave us our touchdown. Palese, one of the most brilliant backs in the country, was hurt in the second quarter and did not get in the game again. Shade, heady quarterback, also had to leave the game on account of injuries. The ferocity of William and Mary's attack took Chaltain, the brilliant Spider back out in the third quarter. Dobson also had to go out.

It was a great game and the team of '33 will be long remembered at William and Mary.

The morning after the game a set of goal posts adorned the front campus gate carrying a dummy marked. "The Remains of Richmond!"

Nor would it be fitting for me to omit the name of the man who organized the Homecoming Day activities, arranged the program and without whom the day would have been just another day on the calendar, instead of the red letter day that it proved to be. I refer, of course, to Mr. Charles A. Taylor, Jr., Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association, to whom the thanks of every alumnus are due for the work he is doing in alumni affairs.

AMOS R. KOONTZ, President, The Alumni Association of the College of William and Mary in Virginia.
