BOTETOURT STATUE PURCHASED BY W.&M. PRESIDENT AND FACULTY 1797

Stood Originally On Piazza of Old House of Burgesses Building Reconstructed Recently By Mr. Rockefeller.

HAYWARD WAS SCULPTOR

Shurtleff of Restoration Compiled This Interesting Information.

Norborne Berkeley, Baron de Botetourt, who served as Governor of Virginia from 1768 to 1770, was one of the most beloved of the royal governors. His death on October 15, 1770, was the occasion for universal mourning in the Colony for the loss of "the best of Governors and the best of Men." Lord Botetourt was honored with a splendid funeral and was buried in a vault in the chapel of the College of William and Mary, of which he had been a generous benefactor.

The General Assembly of the Colony voted a fund for a memorial statue on July 30, 1771, and William Nelson, President of the Council, (the acting Governor) sent to England for it. It was made by Richard Hayward under the direction of the merchant, John Norton, and arrived in Virginia in May 1773. It was placed on the piazza of the Capitol where it stood for some years.

It is significant of the great regard the Virginians felt for Lord Botetourt that throughout the period that the Capitol remained in Williamsburg, regular sums of money were appropriated, when money was scarce indeed, to clean the statue. After the capitol was removed to Richmond the funds were evidently not appropriated. However in 1783 the statue was still in good condition, but by 1797, or before, it was mutilated and its head was broken.

About this time the president and professors of William and Mary College bought the statue for $100.00. It was removed to the College and in 1801 was repaired.

It remained there until the war between the States, when for a short time it was placed for safe keeping in the grounds of the Eastern State Hospital. It was returned to the College grounds where it stands before the Christopher Wren Building.

The pertinent records of this historic statue, (which may be the oldest

ASHTON DOVELL, '08, PAYS SPLENDID TRIBUTE TO DR. CHANDLER ALUMNI DAY

Says He Cherished a Great Ideal, Was Devoted to the College and Gave His Life to It.

We have been called here by a genuine impulse of the heart. Few periods of our lives can be called to mind with such ease and directness as the years spent in school and college. The events of that period and the thoughts we indulged in are clothed with a freshness that will never fade.

I feel that the honor bestowed upon me is very high and I hope that you will envision the keen sincerity and true motives which underlie my words of welcome to the scenes of our early endeavors to acquire a more complete education.

This was to have been his day, but the giant of the Class of '92 has gone to the undiscovered country. Students and friends have compiled a volume of letters bearing witness to their love and devotion, and which he was never privileged to read.

Born with a vision, he cherished a great ideal, and although he was called away before it was fully attained, his effort to reach it made his life worth while and his generation richer through his efforts. It is a splendid thing to cherish a great ideal, it is glorious to die for one. For greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend. This Jack Chandler did. He walked from these halls in '92 cherishing the hope, the ideal, that someday he would return to contribute his bit to the shaping of the future destiny the larger usefulness of this College. This hope was realized, and for fifteen years he poured out his talents and his energies on the altar of his devotion—he literally gave his life for his friend, and then, with a hero's courage, he waited the approach of the inevitable hour, and went to the undiscovered country.

If you would know the man, look up the monument, builded by his own hands, and which towers about this campus, a testimonial to a devotion which has had no parallel save in that of President Ewell.

BRYAN INSTALLATION EXERCISES OCTOBER 20th

The date for the ceremony of inducting Mr. John Stewart Bryan into office as the nineteenth president of the College of William and Mary in Virginia has been set tentatively for Saturday, October 20. President Roosevelt is expected to attend the exercises, at which time will be conferred upon him the LL. D. degree.

With the president's attendance, the dedication of the Duke of Gloucester Street, which has been reconstructed to its Colonial appearance, and the installation exercises, this should be one of the outstanding occasions in the history of the College and of Williamsburg.

The September Gazette will carry full details of the program.

DUKE ELECTED BURSAR AND BUSINESS MANAGER OF COLLEGE LAST JULY

Alumnus of William and Mary of the Class of '23, Well equipped for Office.

Chas. J. Duke, Jr., an alumnus of William and Mary was appointed Bursar and Business Manager of the College this summer and assumed his duties in July.

Mr. Duke graduated in 1923 with a B. S. degree and through his business activities since that time he comes well equipped for one of the most important positions in the College administration.

Starting in the real estate and insurance business in Portsmouth in 1924 he organized Welton, Duke and Hawks, Inc., in 1928 which has developed into one of the largest insurance agencies in the state.

In 1928 he was appointed by Governor Byrd to the Board of Visitors of the College to fill a vacancy caused by the death of his father, a prominent citizen of Norfolk County. As a member of the Board, Mr. Duke took an active part in its duties, serving on the discipline committee of the Board and on the finance committee where he secured a full knowledge of the finances of the College.

During Dr. Chandler's last illness he spent a great deal of time at the College attending to its business so that he assumed his position with a very comprehensive grasp of his duties as Bursar and Business Manager.

Homecoming Day for this year has been set for November 17th. The football game with Washington and Lee will feature a program to be made up by the Alumni Office with the assistance of the College administration, student organizations and the citizens of Williamsburg.

An effort was made last year to make this day the occasion that it deserves and it was declared a success by those who came back here.

Details of the program for November 17th will appear in the September and October issues of the Alumni Gazette.

Mark the date now and make your plans to be with us.

PHI BETA KAPPA AFTER LAPSE OF SEVENTY YEARS REVIVED HERE IN 1851

Professor Smead and Totten Were Responsible for Reestablishment of Alpha Chapter.

Though Phi Beta Kappa was founded at William and Mary and is 158 years old on December 5th of this year it has been active at William and Mary for only 56 years of this long period. Five years after its organization here it passed out on account of unsettled conditions due to the Revolutionary War. For 70 years the parent chapter, Alpha, was inactive. Reestablished here in 1851 it lasted 10 years, becoming inactive when the College closed for the War Between the States. The Alpha was reestablished again in 1893.

The following letter written by Professor M. I. Smead of William and Mary to an official of the fraternity tells of its reestablishment here in 1851:

William and Mary College
Williamsburg, Va. Aug. 6, 1852
Dear Sir:

I have the honor to announce to you the organization of the Phi Beta Society in this College.

You are doubtless already aware that the parent Society, established here in December 1776, was suspended in January 1781. Owing to the troubles of the time it was apprehended that the College would be dissolved, and the Society at its last meeting sealed up its papers and placed them in safe keeping for future use. Those papers have been carefully preserved.

In the summer of 1849 I addressed a letter to Mr. William Short Philadelphia, the last President and only surviving member of the original Society, requesting his permission and authority to revive it in this institution. He signified his ardent wish that it should be done and commissioned, Rev. Totten and myself, now Professors of William & Mary, but alumni of Union College and members of the branch there established, to re-organize the present Society. The legality of this proceeding rests upon Article 24th of the original

To Be Presented At Special Meeting of Alumni Association for Service and Loyalty, To W. & M.

REGULATIONS ADOPTED

Bridges, Hodges and R. M. Newton, Committee on Alumni Selections.

The Alumni Medallion for Service and Loyalty to the College is now being made by the Medallic Art Company of New York and the Alumni Office will receive the Medallions sometime in October.

Under the regulations for the award of the Medallion adopted at the annual meeting of the Alumni Association here in June, President Joseph Healey has appointed a committee of Mr. Herbert L. Bridges, chairman; Dr. W. T. Hodges and R. M. Newton to make nominations for the Award to the Board of Managers. Any alumnus of the College may also make nominations to the Board.

The Medallions will be presented to the alumni selected on November 17, Homecoming Day, at a special meeting of the Alumni Association.

The rules and regulations for the award adopted by the Alumni Association are as follows:

The College of William and Mary Alumni Medallion Awards are conferred upon alumni who through good deeds have served their Alma Mater.

Conferment of the Award is not based upon those considerations which usually determine the giving of honorary degrees. Hence, the attainment of eminence in a special field is not of itself a controlling qualification for the Award.

Service of alumni faculty members and officers of administration, unless such service is over and above the duties which the position entails, does not in itself qualify such individuals for the Award.

The Awards are presented to the alumni by the President of the College, or someone designated by him, at Commencement each June.

Nominations for the Award may be made at any time by any alumnus of the College of William and Mary. These nominations are considered and voted on by a committee, appointed by the president of the Alumni Association. Those alumni who are to receive

Alumni Associations Express Regret At Dr. Chandler's Death

WHEREAS, it has pleased Almighty God in his divine wisdom to take from this life and our midst, Julian A. C. Chandler, LL. D., distinguished alumnus and president of our beloved Alma Mater, the College of William and Mary in Virginia, and

WHEREAS, the death of such a man at this time in the midst of his great and generous work is an irreparable loss to the College and to us all, and while words are inadequate to express or convey our gratitude for his great work, nevertheless to the State, the College and mankind, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Club and be sent to the Faculty and Board of Visitors of the College, the Alumni Association of the College and to the family of Dr. Chandler.

C. F. HEFLIN,
Secretary.

Old College Land Plat Book Given To Library By Attorney

Mr. Geo. E. Haw, an attorney of Richmond, Va., recently left with the Library at William and Mary, "to be held until claimed by the rightful owners or the Virginia State Library", a book of much interest to the College. The book contains the original plats of surveys made of land in King William County in 1791 and 1792 belonging to the College.

The Charter of the College granted William and Mary 10,000 acres of land lying between the Pamunkey and Mattaponi rivers which is now King William County, and 10,000 acres south of the James River. The College leased these lands, usually in plats of 100 acres or more, and the rent was paid in tobacco. The usual rental was 500 pounds of tobacco per 100 acres.

The plat book presented by Mr. Haw is a most interesting one. It contains 77 plats, totaling 12,594 acres surveyed by John Fox. The plats are very neatly drawn and are as distinct as if made yesterday.

A description of each plat names the boundary lines, the land holders abutting these lines and many varieties of oaks, gums and other trees are mentioned as intersection points of lines.

The plat book shows that these lands had been surveyed before and the acreage of each plat of both surveys is listed to show "what gained by this survey." In nearly every case the survey of John Fox showed more acreage than the old survey.

The chain carriers on the survey of each parcel of land are listed on the plat.

John Fox, who surveyed these lands for the College, is an ancestor of Mr. Joe Fox of Ayletts, King Will-

OUR NINETEENTH PRESIDENT

The appointment of a president to William and Mary has nearly always been an event of great interest, not only to the alumni of the College but to others in many sections of the country. But never was there more interest in the event than there was this summer when the death of Dr. Chandler left a vacancy that all knew would be hard to fill.

The Board of Visitors of the College is to be congratulated, not only upon its choice for the presidency but for acting upon the matter with as little delay as possible.

The choice of Mr. John Stewart Bryan met with universal approval. His appointment was hailed by the state and national press as a most fitting and happy one. He is splendidly equipped to direct the destinies of William and Mary in this new era of her history. He is a high type, cultured Virginia gentleman with a vision that extends far beyond the confines of his native state.

Mr. Bryan comes to William and Mary at a most auspicious time. The restoration of Williamsburg, the dream of Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, which has been turned into a reality through the patriotism and generosity of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is nearly complete. The plant of the College, a group of splendid new buildings blending harmoniously with the ancient Wren Building, the Brafferton and the president's house, will be complete within a year.

That Mr. Bryan will consolidate the gains made by Dr. Chandler and carry William and Mary on to a realization of the dreams that her alumni and friends have for her is almost a certainty.

We welcome you, Mr. Bryan, to an old College that is greatly beloved by her sons and daughters and which we know also has a secure place in your fine heart.

DR. J. A. C. CHANDLER

Julian Alvin Carroll Chandler entered William and Mary in the fall of 1889. He was a rosy cheeked, chubby country boy not yet seventeen years of age. Daily he had walked or ridden to a country school in Caroline county, and when he entered college he had had seven years in Latin, four in Mathematics, two in Greek and had read all of Shakespeare's plays and Walter Scott's novels.

This was the basic education of one of the most successful educators of modern times. On account of this advanced preparation he applied for entrance into some classes beyond the freshman grade and was so classified. In after years he often told with a chuckle that he had not studied formal English grammar before coming to college and Dr. John Leslie Hall, that great English scholar and professor at William and Mary, would not hear to his escaping that terror of all William and Mary students, due English, the dry rules of English grammar. Thereupon, the youthful, future president of William and Mary offered to take the entrance examination on this dreaded subject and made it.

For three years he pursued the classics at William and Mary under the "Seven Wise Men", as the faculty of that day was respectfully and affectionately called. He took his A. B. degree in '91 and while instructing at the College the next year took his Master's degree.

And then he left his Alma Mater for other fields, destined to return at the prime of his life to repay her one thousand fold for the lessons she had taught him.

We find him a few years later teaching in Baltimore and pursuing his favorite muse, History, at Johns Hopkins where he received his Doctor's degree in 1896.

From this date until 1909 he was adding to his preparation for his great mission in life by writing, editing and teaching.

As a boy in Caroline county his eyes beheld daily a shrine in his father's yard, the country doctor's office where the immortal Jackson had passed over the river after Chancellorsville.

Whether Jackson was his hero or not, there was a striking resemblance between the genius of the one to that of the other. The genius of Jackson overcame obstacles and seeming impossibilities in war that were no more formidable than those that Dr. Chandler faced and overcame many times in his career as an educational executive.

And in the end, he too, fell upon the breastworks as the result of his service to a cause that he loved.

In 1909, at the age of 37, his great opportunity came. His administration of the public schools of Richmond, Virginia, was a marvel of achievement. By his sound judgment of values and

ALBUM OF LETTERS

An album of one hundred and seventy-five letters of congratulation and appreciation addressed to Dr. J. A. C. Chandler for the fifteenth anniversary of his presidency of William and Mary and which was to have been presented to him on Alumni Day last June by the Alumni Association, was presented to Herbert G. Chandler for himself and his brothers.

As the letters were from some of the most prominent people in the country and from scores of alumni, it will be of great historic interest in the years to come and Mr. Chandler and his brothers have very graciously donated the album to the College Library where it will be preserved for future generations.

The album will be available at the library to alumni of the College and friends of Dr. Chandler who wish to peruse it.

his dynamic energy he advanced the Richmond school system fifty years in a decade.

Among Dr. Chandler's many fine qualities his sense of humor was a predominant one. It charmed his friends and disarmed his foes. Mr. Caspar W. Hodges, founder of the World Book Company and one of his earliest life long friends, said of him: "He always had a sense of humor. I have seen him achieve his ends and defeat his enemies by this fine quality. Small of stature was he but I have seen him stand off giants with that smile of his."

On July 1, 1919 Dr. Chandler came back to William and Mary, succeeding Dr. Lyon G. Tyler who resigned that year after an administration of 31 years and who had steered the College with fine courage through a most difficult period.

And thus began the last lap of a quarter of a century of achievement by one man hardly equalled anywhere even in this age of miracles.

But he had hardly begun when death stalked into his home and took away his charming wife. This was a stark tragedy and from then on he threw himself into his work with utter disregard for the consequences to his health. It is hardly any exaggeration to say that he averaged fifteen hours a day for fifteen years in his great service to his Alma Mater.

What he achieved is here for all to see and those with vision know that he has placed William and Mary where she may now go forward to the fulfilment of her destiny.

Death stalked him for a year or more before his end came. The malady that had fastened itself upon him ravaged his body but his indomitable spirit continued to flame and he directed the affairs of the College almost to the end.

Between his transfer from a Richmond hospital to one in Norfolk he spent his last days on the campus in the president's house and held a faculty meeting. It was his last conference with his colleagues, some of whom came here with him in 1919.

Upon his death bed in Norfolk the College was always in his mind.

When his suffering took his mind into that twilight zone so close to death his unconscious words were of the College.

Towards the end he came from the shadows of death to say: "I must get up and dress. This is commencement day at College."

One week before the day that the alumni and his friends had planned to celebrate his fifteenth anniversary as president of William and Mary he was laid to rest beside his wife in Hollywood.

To those who knew him and loved him his memory will always be an inspiration. His name will be linked forever with the great of his Alma Mater.

F. SHIELDS McCANDLISH

Fairfax Shields McCandlish, a distinguished lawyer of Fairfax County, and an alumnus of William and Mary, died August 22 at Fairfax at the age of 52. Mr. McCandlish was a native of Middlesex County and took his A. B. degree here in 1901 where in addition to excellence in academic work he was an outstanding athlete being a member of both the varsity football and baseball teams. He was also a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, a Mason and a Phi Beta Kappa.

Mr. McCandlish's father was a distinguished member of the Bar of Eastern Virginia and his ancestors on both sides, the McCandlishes, Montagues and Shields sent their sons to William and Mary for many generations.

His maternal grandfather, Col. E. B. Montague, and his uncle, Thomas P. McCandlish, the distinguished Latin scholar and professor at William and Mary, were both graduates of the College.

He is survived by his widow and three children; two sisters, Mrs. W. D. Evans and Miss Nannie McCandlish, and one brother Edgar McCandlish, who is also an alumnus of William and Mary.

CLASS OF '34—GEOGRAPHICAL DISTRIBUTION

The geographical distribution of the 189 members of the Class of '34 who graduated here last June shows that 123 of the total number are residents of the state of Virginia. Of these 123 Virginians 63 were from Virginia cities and 60 were from the rural sections. Among the cities Norfolk led with 22 and Williamsburg was second with 11. Southampton led the counties with 6 graduates.

Of the remaining 66 graduates, 63 represent 12 states and the District of Columbia. Porto Rica, Hanolulu and the Canal Zone, each had one representative.

TUCK FOR GOVERNOR

William M. Tuck, '17, State Senator from Halifax County, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor of the state in 1937.

In a statement to a state paper in July Senator Tuck expressed himself as follows: "I am highly gratified to know that some of my friends have considered me for such a responsible and honorable position in the service of the state. I have heretofore given no consideration to the matter and I am at this time in no sense a candidate. There no doubt are many others in the state whose qualifications, experience, service and familiarity with the affairs of the commonwealth entitle them to superior consideration.

"It is greatly to be desired that factionalism, groupism and sectionalism may be avoided in selecting one to fill this important office and that the most highly qualified and suitable man be chosen regardless of the faction or group to which he belongs or the county, city or section from which he may come."

PERMANENT CLASS OFFICERS

The first class at William and Mary to elect a permanent secretary was the Class of 1933. Raymond Carroll of Norfolk, Va., was chosen for the position and during the past year he and Charles P. McCurdy, Jr., president of the class, have done splendid work in keeping up with the members of the class and in cooperating with the Alumni Office.

The Class of 1934, with Otis Southern as its president followed suit and chose Miss Ruth Wilson of Norfolk, Va. as its permanent secretary.

On Alumni Day here in June other classes adopted this system with the result that there are now four more classes with permanent officers.

The Class of '92 elected R. W. Powell of Newport News, president and E. E. Worrell of Richmond, secretary.

Fairmount White of Newport News was elected president of the Class of '23 with Mrs. Maurice Tonkin of Hilton Village as secretary.

Bailey L. Tucker of Richmond was made permanent secretary of the Class of '25 and Hampton Richardson of Fine Creek Mills, Va. was chosen by the Class of '31.

The permanent organization of these six classes is a step forward in alumni work at William and Mary, and it is expected that others will be added to the list this year.

To the Class of '09,
Greetings:

It is with the deepest regret that I find that I shall not be able to meet the Class of '09 in its reunion. Time, space, and money prevent. I am, however, meeting with you in spirit. I have opened the alumni bulletin to our class roll and gone down the list recalling faces, many that I have not seen in the past twenty-five years.

Good luck and best wishes to you all. I promise to try to be with you at the next one, even if it is the fiftieth anniversary.

Yours truly,
Selden Richard Warner.

BOARD OF VISITORS TRIBUTE TO DR. CHANDLER

At a meeting of the Board four months ago, called for the specific purpose of seeking to advise Dr. Chandler to take a protracted rest, he said, "I have at best only a short time here, and I will be happier if I spend that period in carrying forward my heart's desire—which is the welfare of William and Mary."

Today the Board assembled for its first meeting since Dr. Chandler's death, realizes both the fullness of his achievements and the void that his passing has left in the lives of his fellow laborers. It is as if the dynamo that transfused the College of William and Mary with light and power had stopped. Nothing but the inexorable fact of his death could have made intelligible the amazing miracle of his life. Out of the seemingly inexhaustible resources of his energy, courage and imagination, a magnificent school of learning was resurrected and enshrined. The student body was multiplied nearly ten fold, and the furthest borders of the Commonwealth were brought into intimate touch with this College.

Lastly he instituted new and effective standards for the admission of students and for their continuance in College.

These were but steps toward the end he held singly in view; that end was deeper, richer, and fuller education.

To that purpose he dedicated his every energy, and for its advancement he laid down his life.

So we find ourselves—like flickering temporal torches, irradiated by the steady glow of a life which having accomplished its noble task shineth more and more into the perfect day.

By association, we, too, have been made participators in an enlarging activity; we, too, have been swept along by the enriching stream of creative energy whose powers were harnessed by Dr. Chandler to the service of William and Mary. But neither the splendor nor the multitude of students can make a college, for it is the vitalizing and transforming spirit alone that differentiates quality from mere mass.

This spirit Dr. Chandler recognized and sought to serve, it was his gift and his capacity to capture for his beloved College the fleeting and evanescent and transform them into the permanent and indestructible.

Even the immediate presence of the transitoriness and uncertainty of human life can not impair the evidence given by this College of the renewing and imperishable power of service for others, a power that springs here at William and Mary as it sprang in 1892 in the heart of Dr. Chandler, from the inherited and cultivated tendencies that lie deep in the being of the students themselves.

In this manifestation of power we are established and strengthened anew, and in meeting our daily tasks or envisaging the future of William and Mary—we can, recalling the example of Dr. J. A. C. Chandler—thank God and take courage.

Resolved that these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this Board, and that a copy be sent to the family of Dr. Chandler.

BOTETOURT STATUE PURCHASED BY W. & M. PRES. AND FACULTY 1779

On Monday the 15th instant, about One O'Clock in the Morning departed this Life, universally lamented throughout this Colony, his Excellency the Right Honourable NORBORNE Baron de BOTETOURT, his Majesty's Lieutenant Governor General and Commander in Chief of the Colony and Dominion of Virginia, and Vice Admiral of the same.

Truly and justly to express the many great virtues and amiable Qualities which adorn'd this noble Lord, as well in his public as private Character, would demand the Skill of the ablest Penman. Suffice it then to inform such Parts of the World as were strangers to his transcendent Merits, that Virginia, in his Fall, sorely laments the Loss of the best of Governors, and the best of Men. Let his distant Relations and Friends be told that we have all anticipated, and shall to the latest Period, share their Grievances and deep Afflictions; and we condole with them, with the Warmth of the most tender Affection.

Resolved, That the Treasurer pay for the Statue to be erected to the Memory of Lord Botetourt out of the public Money in the Treasury.

The following Paragraph of a Letter from his Grace the Duke of Beaufort to the Gentlemen appointed to take Care of the late Lord Botetourt's Effects in this Country was produced by the President, and read, viz.

"The very great Honour the General Assembly do Lord Botetourt by their wishing to preserve to future Ages, the Esteem they had for him, gives me infinite Satisfaction and pleasure; and I must thro' you, Gentlemen, beg Leave to present my sincere Thanks for this Testimony of their remembrance of Lord Botetourt, and to assure them that I will give their Agent in England all the Assistance in my Power, to render their Wishes effectual that the Statue may be like; tho' I fear it must be in some Measure imperfect as there is no Portrait of Lord Bote-tourt that has been taken within the last five and twenty or thirty Years; but there is a Medal in Wax that is reckoned tolerable like, that shall be communicated to the Person employed by the Assembly."

Upon which the House expressed great Satisfaction that what had been done for the Honour of Lord Botetourt's Memory was so well received by his Grace.

London, the 10th March 1772

Dear Hatley:

I have fixed an Artist to execute the Statue for L. Botetourt since the Duke of Beaufort came to town, his name is Havard and lives in Piccadilly, he's to be finished in 12 months completely with iron Rails packages and to be put into ship for 700 pounds I shall, send the Design to Mr. Nicholas framed by Capt. Robertson, also 4 Medallions done by Gossette an exceedingly good likeness of L. Botetourt which I have bought and send as presents, one for Mr. President Nelson, 1 for the Treasurer, 1 for the Speaker, and 1 for yourself.

John Norton. London, the 6 Aug. 1772.

Dear Hatley:

The statue of Lord Botetourt is in forwardness, I carried Mrs. Horrocks to see it, she thinks with me, there will be a great resemblance of His Person, the famous Gossett, who did the small pieces I sent over, has been kind enough to give me his Assistance in that respect, the artist has luckily hit on a Block of fine Marble and 'tis the general Opinion of those who have seen the figure, that it will be well perform'd, which will give me great satisfaction, as I have it much at Heart.

Williamsburg, the Capitol of Virginia, Tuesday, April 29th, 1777.

"In the Capitol is a fine marble statue of the late Governor Botetourt, as large as life, in the attitude of an orator, a roll of parchment in one hand as an emblem of their Charter, and the cap of Liberty in the other. It is mounted on a pedestal and surrounded with iron balustrades. On the front of the pedestal is his Excellency's arms and this inscription:

"The Right Honourable Norborne Berkley, Baron of Botetourt. His Majesty's late Lieutenant and Governor General of the Colony and Dominion of Virginia." On the right of the pedestal is this inscription: Deeply impressed with the warmest sense of gratitude for his Excellence the Right Honourable Lord Botetourt's prudent and wise administration, and that the remembrance of those many public and social virtues which so eminently adorned his illustrious character might be transmitted to the latest posterity, The General Assembly of Virginia on the 20th, of July Anno Domini 1771, Resolved with one united voice, to erect this Statue to his Lordship's memory."

This underneath: "Let wisdom and justice preside in any Country, the people will rejoice and must be happy." On the left of the pedestal is the following inscription: "America, behold your Friend, who leaving his native country, declined those additional Honours which she had there in store for him, that he might heal your wounds and restore tranquility to this extensive Continent. With what zeal and anxiety he pursued these glorious objects Virginia thus bears her grateful testimony."

On the back of the pedestal is the figure of Britannia with her spear and shield, America with her bow and quiver, each holding an olive branch over an altar, with this Motto, "Concordia." It is looked upon as a masterly piece of statuary, and what is very remarkable, not in the least defaced tho' exposed to the public, such veneration had the people for this great man."

Among the improvements which our little town can boast, is the removal of Lord Botetourts statue to the college. It was purchased by the president & professors for $100.00 and is placed in the center of the College walk facing the town. His head has been very dexterously stuck on, with an iron plug by the bishop and Mr. Moody in conjunction. . . . His nose which was broken almost flat to his face as if it had been cut off in the Indies has been scientifically renewed by Mr. Madison and the parts of the pedestal which were dispersed, have been collected together and it now cuts a very handsome figure indeed. It has already become in some measure a rendezvous to the curious, and should the statuaries improve in the art of mending arms and legs and noses it will be very worthy of a visit when you return.

Sept. 4th-27th, 1781.

Took a walk to town with a number of our gentlemen, and took a view of the town, as it is the metropolis of Virginia. There are some very elegant buildings, such as the College, Palace, Capitol or State House, in which is erected a statue of Marble, the image of Gov. Berkeley, Governor of the State of Virginia, etc. (From: Journal of Lt. William Feltman, 1781-2. 1st Pa. Bg't.)

Works of Art being so rarely met with in this country, I must here make mention of a beautiful white marble statue, which I saw in one of its lower rooms, and which had been placed there to the memory of one of Virginia's former Governors, Norborne Berkeley, Baron de Botetourt. Directly opposite the Capitol and at the western end of the same Street, stands the College.

In the hall of the capitol stands a maimed statue of Lord Botetourt, one of the regal governors of Virginia, erected at the public expence, in memory of his Lordship's equitable and popular administration. During the war, when party rage was at its highest pitch, and every thing pertaining to royalty obnoxious, the head and one arm of the statue were knocked off; it now remains quite exposed, and is more defaced every day. Whether the motto "Resurgo rege favente", inscribed under the coat of arms, did or did not help to bring upon it its present fate, I cannot pretend to say; as it is, it certainly remains a monument of the extinction of monarchical power in America.

The collegial buildings, I find, are a large house appropriated to the students with a handsome yard in front, on either side of which is another house, nearly as large, for the use of the professors. None is worth the honour of a description. I was pleased, however, with the fine statue in the center of the yard, which is a figure of Lord Botetourt.

I arrived at Williamsburg at noon . . . I first took a hasty stroll upon the spacious green in front of William and Mary College, the oldest literary institution in America except Harvard University. The entrance to the green is flanked by stately live oaks, cheering the visitor in winter with their evergreen foliage. In the center of the green stands the mutilated statue of Lord Botetourt, the best beloved of the colonial governors. This statue was erected in the old capitol in 1774, and in 1797 it was removed to its present position. I did not make a sketch of it, because a student at the college promised to hand me one made by his own pencil before I left the place. He neglected to do so, and therefore, I can give nothing pictorially of "the good Governor Botetourt," the predecessor of Dunmore.

I drove past, with a tearful eye, noting that the mossy coat of old Botetourt was unscathed.

March 1862

At the end of the large street, one came upon a place of a beautiful appearance, ornamented by a marble statue, and surrounded with buildings of a famous college, founded by the English government when Virginia was her well-loved colony. The college had been also changed into a hospital and the wounded filled it even to the steps of the peristyle.

ALUMNI MEDALLION NEARLY READY; AWARDED HOMECOMIN DAY, NOV. 17th

ceive the Awards are selected by this committee, subject to the approval of the Board of Managers of the Alumni Association.

For the guidance of those who may desire to make nominations, the following general principles have been set forth by the Alumni Association:

The Alumni Association, having created the Alumni Award to honor those who through good deeds have served their Alma Mater, hereby adopts the following general principles of eligibility:

1. The Award may be given to any person who is eligible for membership in the Alumni Association and who renders such "meritorious" service to the college or any of its alumni organizations as may seem sufficient to entitle him to this honor.

2. By "meritorious" service is meant unusual service in the form of faithful and continued effort in maintaining class or other alumni organizations, active participation in alumni or college affairs, making or securing donations, or assisting in expanding the usefulness, influence, and prestige of the college. It is understood that such services are rendered in excess of duties for which remuneration is received.

3. Recommendations for the Award may be made at any time to the Alumni Association through its Committee on Awards; but the Award is granted only by the Association in its absolute discretion.

The number of awards given the first year may be greatly in excess of the number that will be given at subsequent Commencements.

Constitution, which declares that any number of members shall be competent to act whenever it is necessary for the preservation of the Society. Furnished therefore with the requisite authority and with the papers above alluded to, we have executed our trust; on the 1st of July the society held its annual meeting and appointed an orator for the next anniversary.

Thus, after a suspension of three score years and ten, the ancient Alpha of William & Mary has resumed its functions; and the increasing prosperity of the College leads us to believe that the wished for day has at length dawned, in which the confident hope, recorded by the last members at the close of their proceedings, is destined to receive its accomplishment. It is expressed in the following words:

"The members present at the last meeting, thinking it most advisable that the papers should not be removed, determined to deliver them sealed into the hands of the College Steward, to remain until the desirable event of the Society's resurrection— And this deposit they make in the sure and certain hope that the Fraternity will one day rise to life everlasting & glory immortal!"

versity, taking his Ph. D. in Colonial history in 1896.

As a teacher, editor, author of textbooks, and as Superintendent of Schools of the City of Richmond, he rendered signal services, but his life-work was accomplished as President of the College of William and Mary, July 1, 1919 to May 31, 1934. Within this short time he lived many years. With bold imagination, restless energy and fine power of persuasion he set the College upon a path of physical expansion and development unequalled in its history. He lived to see the College housed in a new plant and the ancient buildings restored. The Alumni Association gratefully records its appreciation of his remarkable achievements, and will ever cherish the memory of a loyal member and friend.
