Institute of Early American History and Culture Established College and "Colonial Williamsburg Incorporated" to Pool Research

Representatives of the College of William and Mary, the second oldest institution of higher learning in the United States, and Colonial Williamsburg, which administers the restoration of this historic Virginia city by Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., have just consummated first steps of a plan that will establish Williamsburg as a major center for the study of early American history.

After several months of preliminary exploration, during which increasing emphasis on colonial American history and the origins of American institutions has been noted in the field of education and in the armed services, the two Williamsburg institutions are pooling their historical research resources in a broad program of research and publication through an Institute of Early American History and Culture. Members of the Advisory Committee of Historians of Colonial Williamsburg and the editorial board of the William and Mary Quarterly have just held a conference in which these groups were merged and this new program was launched with enthusiastic approval.

WIDE RANGE OF RESEARCH

The results of this joint endeavor should make restored Williamsburg an outstanding center for the study of a wide range of significant work concentrated in the field of colonial history dealing with the American heritage in all its rich and varied aspects. For the present this unique collaboration will be carried on as an informal association of common elements in the two institutions. Research will be continued and stimulated as a means of encouraging significant studies of American history in the colonial period and in the formative era of the Republic.

BOARD OF HISTORIANS

The Institute program will be developed under the general direction of an advisory board whose members comprise outstanding historians in the field of colonial American history, previously identified in an advisory capacity with the College and with Colonial Williamsburg. This group which has now merged its interests in the new endeavor includes: Samuel Eliot Morison and Arthur Schlesinger from Harvard University; Thomas J. Wertenbaker of Princeton University; Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch; Earl Gregg Swem and Richard L. Morton, of the College of William and Mary; and Hunter Dickinson Farish of Colonial Williamsburg.

Also L. W. Labaree of Yale, Julian Boyd of Princeton, Thomas P. Abernethy of the University of Virginia, Curtis Nettels of the University of Wisconsin, Stanley Pargellis of the Newberry Library, Chicago, Randolph G. Adams of the William L. Clements Library of the University of Michigan, Louis Wright of the Huntington Library, Pasadena, and John E. Pomfret of the College of William and Mary.

Before his death last year, Charles M. Andrews, dean of historians in this field and a member of the Colonial Williamsburg Advisory Committee of Historians, expressed great interest in the proposed plan of unifying the work of William and Mary and Colonial Williamsburg in the field of colonial history.

Through its research and publication policy, the Institute will endeavor to keep before the American people a clear knowledge and understanding of the development of this nation in its progress toward political, economic, and social democracy. Its work will reflect the significance of scholarly researches in this field and also have ramifications dealing with the sound interpretation of the American heritage at other levels, particularly in the schools of the country.

While its immediate objectives are undertaken, the Institute will project a long-range program that will relate its studies to the reawakened interest in American history so that in due course its contributions to American life will express the conviction that every American will be a better citizen by virtue of certain knowledge of the early years and of the founders of this nation's development.

WREN BUILDING TO BE HOME

Headquarters of the Institute will be maintained in the Wren Building of the College of William and Mary, the oldest college building in the United States. However, for the present, the Institute will be housed in the Goodwin Building, the administrative offices of Colonial Williamsburg.

The Institute will conduct historical studies in the broad field of colonial American history, including subjects identified with early Williamsburg and its environs as already projected in the historical publications of Colonial Williamsburg. In addition, it will assume direction of a number of grants-in-aid to talented young historians who wish the opportunity of undertaking research in the early American field. For many years Colonial Williamsburg has attracted a succession of scholars who were engaged in some aspect of research in this field. These studies, interrupted by the war, will be resumed.

AMERICANA LIBRARY PROPOSED

In Williamsburg, more than anywhere else in the United States, will be an opportunity for better understanding the backgrounds of colonial Virginia and of colonial America. Even more than in the decade past, Williamsburg will become a center of eighteenth century cultural interests, carrying on such activities as the revival of early music in this country as exemplified in the programs offered at the concerts given by Ralph Kirkpatrick in the restored Governor's Palace.

Ultimately, there will be in Williamsburg one of the finest collections of early Americana in all forms. While many items are no longer available, the Institute will obtain photostat and film collections of the records dealing with this period of history. Present also in this book collection will be a complete library of all pertinent materials and studies in a field that has attracted some of the best minds in American historical literature. Much of this library has been forming independently at the College and in the collections of Colonial Williamsburg. Under the guidance of the Institute these large collections will be brought together in the historic Wren Building. Thus, restored Williamsburg will become a veritable laboratory for the study of early American history as well as a center of great interest for its art, architecture, crafts, and broad culture touching every aspect of the lives of early Virginians and their relationships to the life and leaders of other American colonies.

MAGAZINE TO CHANGE POLICY

One of the channels through which the new Institute will immediately take form will be the William and Mary Quarterly, which for fifty years has been devoted entirely to Virginia history.

Dr. Earl Gregg Swem, who has been editor of the Quarterly for twenty-three years, will retire this year as Librarian of the College. Beginning with the January, 1944, issue, he will be succeeded by Dr. Richard Lee Morton, head of the Department of History of the College. Under Dr. Morton's direction the Quarterly will become a magazine of early American history, institutions, and culture. He will be assisted by an editorial board whose members also are now serving in an advisory capacity to the Institute.

FIRST ISSUE ALREADY PLANNED

Among contributors to the first number of the new series of the Quarterly are Dr. Charles McLean Andrews, who before his recent death was dean of historiographers in this field of research, Dr. Labaree of Yale, Dr. Wright of the Huntington Library, and Dr. Frank W. Craven of New York University. During the period before his death Dr. Andrews was greatly interested in the new rôle of the Quarterly and wrote several articles for its pages. The first number will contain an article from his pen entitled, "On the Writing of Colonial History," and a later number will contain a second article entitled, "On the Preservation of Historical Manuscripts." The first number of the Quarterly will contain also an article by Dr. Labaree on the significance of Dr. Andrews' work and that article will precede the complete Andrews bibliography, also assembled by Dr. Labaree. The William and Mary Quarterly will become an important element in the Institute as a scholarly medium of publication for many of its special studies.

CHARTER DAY OBSERVED

251st Anniversary Celebrated

Charter Day, observing the 251st anniversary of the granting of the Charter, February 8, 1692-3, by King William and Queen Mary to Their Majesties College in Virginia, was celebrated with appropriate exercises in the Auditorium of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall at the College on Tuesday, February 8, at 11 o'clock, A.M.

The occasion was marked by the first full academic procession of this College year and the customary reading of the Charter.

The Charter Day address, the Sixteenth Annual James Gould Cutler Lecture, was delivered by Lindsay

Rogers, Burgess Professor of Public Law in Columbia University. His subject was "Constitutional Aspects of American Foreign Policy."

Dr. Rogers, a graduate of Baltimore City College and Johns Hopkins University and a member of the Maryland bar, is among the foremost men in the field of Political Science in America. He has been a lecturer at Johns Hopkins and the University of California; has edited professional journals and has written numerous books and articles.

Almost two and a half years have elapsed since Pearl Harbor. As has been said many times before, education and war do not mix. The colleges have had to engage in all sorts of make-shifts in order to meet the burdens thrust upon them by the war. However, the College of William and Mary has been able to thread its way through a succession of adjustments and at this time is in good shape.

The pattern has changed but little since the beginning of the first semester. The Navy Chaplains School and the Army Specialized Training Unit are still with us. Both are somewhat reduced in size. The enrollment of civilian students is somewhat smaller; the chief factors in the decrease being the graduation of thirty seniors at the end of the first semester and the induction of forty-odd boys in the services. In the fall there were 230 boys, principally freshmen. Today there are 205 boys of the same age level. Owing largely to the efforts of the Work-Study Office, the College has been able to attract boys from practically every county in Virginia.

The theory under which this College is now working is that unless there is a flow of young men from every class, and unless educational training is accessible to every class, this country will readily crystallize into a "have" group and a "have-not" group. So long as there are colleges to which a boy might apply, regardless of the size of his father's pocketbook, and have some assurance of earning his way the democratic process has justified itself. If, however, any group of boys is denied the opportunity of a college education it is bound to result in an indictment of our educational system. At the present time over eighty per cent of our men students are working during their spare hours. The difference between the amount they contribute to their college education and the amount that they are able to earn is made up through the award of scholarship assistance. At the beginning of the second semester scholarship aids varying from $50 to $200 were awarded to 100 boys.

The faculty of the College is at about normal strength in spite of the fact that a large number has withdrawn for the military service or for other types of war work. The death of Dean Kremer J. Hoke, dean of the Summer School and chairman of the Department of Education, has been a great loss to the College. Dean Hoke gave to the College through his activities in behalf of Virginia education and Southern education, a national prestige. Through his work the College of William and Mary never lost contact with the schools and the schoolmen of Virginia. On February 1, Professor J. R. L. Johnson of the Department of English, retired from active teaching. He, too, has been connected with the College for many years.

The present faculty consists of the group that antedated Pearl Harbor plus the group that was appointed in order to teach subjects required by the Army. This latter group of men and women will be here temporarily. They have fitted in in every way in the College community, and our acknowledged success in handling the teaching requirements of the Army is due in large measure to their spirit of loyalty and cooperation.

For purposes of more searching discussion and inquiry than is possible in the general monthly meetings of the faculty, especially in matters relating to the curriculum, degree requirements, research, and postwar planning, the faculty of the College in December adopted a divisional form of organization. There has been established a Division of Humanities, a Division of Social Science, a Division of Natural Science, and a Division of Teacher Education. Every department in the College is represented in one of these four divisions. Several of the divisions have already undertaken programs that promise well for the future. For example, the Social Science Division has worked out a comprehensive program of research on the impact of the war on the Peninsula and the Hampton Roads area. This Division is also studying the place of international relations in the postwar curriculum, and a little later on will review our program in the field of Business Administration. The College certainly has a unique opportunity to build up a strong program in this field. The majority of our men students are undoubtedly earmarked for the profession of business, and the College has a clear responsibility for offering a first-class education in this field.

The Librarian and the Library Committee have been most active during the past year in discussing a program for the future development of the Library. At their suggestion the various departments have submitted to the Library a list of books which seem necessary to advance the book collections of the College on a par with those of the best liberal arts colleges of the country. In December the General Education Board made a grant of $15,000 to the College on condition that the College would match this grant. Thus the Library will have at its disposal during the next several years the sum of $30,000, in addition to the usual Library appropriations, in order to fill in necessary gaps and to bring to the teachers and students alike every aid to education that books can give.

In December, also, a fusion of the historical activities of the College and the Restoration took place. Henceforth the two institutions will unite in the publication of the William and Mary Quarterly, in the publication program of the Williamsburg Restoration, in a program of grants-in-aid for research to talented young historians, and in building up a magnificent historical library. The Board of the William and Mary Quarterly and the Advisory Committee of Historians of the Williamsburg Restoration have united to form an Institute of Early American History and Culture. It is hoped that out of this cooperation the College will advance to first rank in research in the early American field.

Throughout the period of the war the College has managed to avoid the frightening financial deficits that have overtaken many institutions. So far we have been able to show a modest surplus at the end of each fiscal year. So far, also, we have been able to go forward with our program of debt reduction. So far we have been able, through various improvements, to prevent our physical plant from depreciating. We have been fortunate in times like these to be able to renovate our kitchens and dining hall, to renovate Tyler Hall, and to redecorate Old Dominion. Although no formal fund-raising activities have been undertaken, those who are solicitous of the welfare of the College have made their interest known by extraordinary gifts. The number of memberships in the Friends of the College has continuously increased during the war period.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Cover—

The Ewell Memorial Gates on Richmond Road at Armistead Avenue (Library in rear), a gift from Mrs. Beverley Bland Munford. Erected in the summer of 1932 and dedicated shortly thereafter.

The gates consist of two red brick pillars on top of which are iron statues of King William and Queen Mary. The figures are approximately 4 1/2 feet tall. These statues were imported from France and are considered very valuable. Wrought iron gates connect the two pillars. In the center is the College seal and above an eagle poised for flight.

Quarter-Millennium Fund Invested—

Vernon Meredith Geddy, '17, Chairman of the Committee on the Quarter-Millennium Celebration in 1943, reports that $1,711.60 was subscribed by alumni for this purpose prior to the suspension of the campaign, due to war.

Pending completion of the project after the cessation of hostilities, $1,500.00 of the amount subscribed has been invested in Series "G" United States War Savings Bonds and the balance, $211.60, is on deposit in the Savings Department, Peninsula Bank & Trust Company, Williamsburg.

Do You Know—

An Alumni Committee is working out a plan for a memorial to the late Leigh Tucker Jones, '26Bs, former professor of Physical Education at the College? Martha Barksdale, '21, Williamsburg, is Chairman of the Committee which is composed of Margaret Holman, (McCoy), '27, "Locust Bend," Lee, Virginia, and H. Greyson Daughtrey, '30, 1011 Colley Avenue, Norfolk. Subscriptions may be sent to any member of the committee.

Waves at W & M—

Several enlisted WAVES have entered the United States Navy Chaplains Training School here. Graduation from the six weeks course qualifies them for the rating of Specialist (W) Third Class. This rating for welfare services as a Chaplain's Assistant is newly opened to members of the Women's Reserve. A prerequisite for this particular branch of service, following preliminary training, is ability to play the piano or organ well.

For Shame—

After laughing over it, you tucked that story back into your mind and forgot to send it for the collection of William and Mary anecdotes; though you really meant to do it!

Lift the veil again and bring forth, for the enjoyment of the present and future generations, that "hilarious ole one" and mail it immediately to the Alumni Office, Box 154, Williamsburg.

Paintings Grace Ships—

Paintings of two former presidents of the College are being sent to the two Liberty Ships named for James Blair and Lyon Gardiner Tyler. The water color paintings are the work of Professor Thomas L. Thorne of the Department of Fine Arts, and show the Sir Christopher Wren Building of the College. A pen portrait of the president has been worked into a cartouche with the seal of the College and applied in the corner of the picture in the 18th century manner.

GRADUATION EXERCISES

Three in One Week

FORTY SEVEN ARMY CADETS RECEIVE CERTIFICATES

A colorful and impressive military-academic procession opened a series of three week-end graduation programs.

In the Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Auditorium at 7:30 P.M., Friday, January 28th certificates of graduation were presented by President Pomfret and General Kilpatrick to 47 cadets of the Army's Specialized Training Unit in basic engineering.

Brigadier General John R. Kilpatrick, Commanding the Hampton Roads Port of Embarkation, made the address and music was furnished by the Navy Chaplains Choir.

Brief talks were made by President Pomfret and by Major Carl A. Schaubel, the new commanding officer of the ASTU at William and Mary.

The invocation was offered by Chaplain C. A. Neyman, Commander of the United States Navy Training School for Chaplains at William and Mary, and Chaplain J. F. Robinson, Lieutenant-Commander USN, pronounced the benediction.

THIRTY-TWO BACCALAUREATE DEGREES AWARDED AT MID-SEMESTER

The small number of graduates and the few guests expected made it possible to revive an old custom when, for the first time in many years, graduation exercises were held in the Wren Chapel at 2 P.M., Saturday, January 29th.

Professor Graves Glenwood Clark, of the Department of English, delivered the commencement address on the subject, "Fear Not Nor Be Afraid."

Thirty two degrees were awarded to members of the mid-semester graduating class. Most of these students completed a four year college course in three and a half years.

President Pomfret presented diplomas to 22 women and 10 men. Only three men were present to receive their sheep skins; the others having already left for military duty. Music was furnished by the College choir and Rev. A. F. Ward of the Williamsburg Baptist Church offered invocation and pronounced the benediction.

Under the accelerated program degrees have been awarded to graduates five times within the past twelve months; January, 1943, June, 1943, August, 1943, September, 1943 and January, 1944.

TWENTY-SIX GRADUATED FROM NAVY CHAPLAINS SCHOOL

At 7 P.M., Sunday, January 30th, in formal exercises held in the Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Auditorium, Captain C. A. Neyman, Commander of the United States Navy Training School for Chaplains presented diplomas to seventeen chaplains and nine specialists who had completed the training preliminary to active duty.

The graduation address was delivered by Chaplain R. E. Bishop, USN, recently returned from overseas duty, and a special musical program was rendered by the Choir of the Chaplains School.

THE ALGERNON SYDNEY SULLIVAN AWARDS

College Presents Three Each June

Since 1926, the College of William and Mary has been one of 15 colleges and universities presenting the Algernon Sydney Sullivan awards. The award consists of a copper medallion, an engraved certificate and a volume "Algernon Sydney Sullivan" by Anne Middleton Holmes. Recipients are chosen yearly from the graduating class of each college and university, which also has the privilege of honoring one other person conspicuously helpful to and associated with the institution in its effort to encourage and preserve a high standard of morals.

Algernon Sydney Sullivan was born the fifth of April, 1826 in Madison, Indiana, the son of Jeremiah Sullivan and Charlotte Rudesel Cutler. Both of his parents were from Virginia. Jeremiah Sullivan was born in Harrisonburg, Rockbridge County, while Charlotte Rudesel Cutler was a native of Richmond. Jeremiah Sullivan attended the College of William and Mary, his studies having been interrupted during the War of 1812. The war over, he completed his courses at the college and returned to Harrisonburg where he read law under George Harrison, receiving in 1816 his license from the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Declining the opportunity of a law partnership in his native city, the young attorney turned westward, settling at Madison, on the Ohio River and in the new State of Indiana. Here he soon brought Thomas and Margaret Sullivan, his parents, and here in 1818 he married Charlotte Rudesel Cutler.

Algernon Sydney Sullivan was the second son of eleven children born to Jeremiah and Charlotte Sullivan. He received his early education in Madison and at the age of 17 entered Hanover College, completing two years' studies in one. He next attended Miami University, receiving his degree in 1845, establishing a reputation as a brilliant student. Young Sullivan returned to Madison from college to read law under the guidance of his father, then a justice of the Indiana Supreme Court.

On completion of his law studies in 1849, he moved to Cincinnati where he soon became active in civic affairs. Early in January, 1851, Sullivan married Mary Slocum Groesbeck; the marriage being short-lived due to her untimely death the following September.

Sullivan continued to establish his law practice and at the same time became identified with political affairs, first as a Whig, then as a Republican and later as a Democrat. In 1856, Sullivan married Mary Mildred Hammond, member of a prominent Winchester, Virginia family.

Following the financial crash in 1857 which saw Sullivan's small fortune wiped away, the young lawyer moved to New York in the spring of that year where he established himself. In 1870, he was named an assistant district attorney for the City of New York. After serving three years, he resigned and returned to private practice. In 1879, he established the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, an internationally known law firm.

He rapidly became prominent in the legal profession though he never became wealthy. It is said of him that the low fees he charged were often "out of proportion to the amount of labor involved as well as to the client's income" and that his attention to the affairs of the poor was gratis. He served for ten years as public administrator for the City of New York, instituting many reforms and reducing the charges upon the estates he administered.

Sullivan became identified with many civic and welfare organizations in New York City prior to his death December 4, 1887. His death was a shock to the entire city.

Following the death of Algernon Sydney Sullivan, a Citizens' Memorial Committee was formed in New York. Among the memorials to Sullivan is a drinking fountain in Van Courtlandt Park. In 1913, the committee established in the American Numismatic Society a fund for purchasing medals designed by either American or foreign artists.

In 1925, the committee consulted with the George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tennessee, in regard to establishing "a permanent award for character, to encourage the development in others of those qualities exhibited in the life of Algernon Sydney Sullivan." Learning that such an award would be considered of value in educational circles, the committee invited the New York Southern Society to become its associate in establishing it in Peabody College. The committee later delegated to the society its entire responsibility for perfecting the plan of offering the award to other institutions.

The award is now perpetual and is in use in the Universities of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Kentucky; Mercer University, Washington and Lee University, George Peabody College for Teachers, the College of William and Mary, Antioch, Hampden-Sydney, Davidson, Rollins, St. Johns' and Judson. The late President J. A. C. Chandler of the College of William and Mary was an ardent supporter of the award when the idea was first formulated and the enthusiastic coöperation of both faculty and students has been consistent since the first award was made in 1926.

WILLIAM TAYLOE MURPHY, '21x

An Alumnus You Should Know

Blond, five feet eleven inches tall and weighing close to two hundred pounds, Virginia's Treasurer is the sole receiving agent for all revenues of the Commonwealth. His name is signed to approximately 200,000 checks a month, though he rarely sees but one—the one made out to him.

He is the other half of the "checks and balances" authorized by the Constitution, and though he has accounts in one hundred and sixty of Virginia's banks, from one end of the state to the other, he only checks out from four. He can't make out a check on the Commonwealth, but nobody else can sign one.

A farmer, country banker, former automobile man and member of the House of Delegates, representing Lancaster and Richmond Counties during the sessions of 1940-42, Mr. Murphy was appointed to the treasurer-ship of the Commonwealth, by Governor Darden, in the spring of 1942. This newest addition to the Commonwealth's financial family is the only one to come into office from the legislature halls.

In addition to his regular duties and those as chairman of the Sinking Fund Commission with the responsibility of administering the public debt and investing the assets of various special funds; serving as a member of the Finance Board and a Trustee of the Virginia Retirement System as well as the Board of State Canvassers, he worked out all the details of Governor Darden's debt retirement plan, which took months to complete, and through which, in 1942, the Commonwealth was enabled to pay off her century-old debt. His off-hours and week-ends are spent trying to figure out the problems of his five hundred acre farm on the Potomac River—and problems they have been. The drouth got his tomatoes last summer, the war got his gun shells this winter. But, during the hunting season, on any off-days, look for him behind a duck blind. He manages to get his limit.

From his office on the second floor of the Finance Building, through which he likes the wind to sweep even in winter, this ruddy financier from the Northern Neck pulls on his pipe and manipulates figures like chessmen across the board. Usually the results of his figuring mean added savings to the Commonwealth and, with the idea complete, he starts pressing buttons. His staff of twenty is divided into three sections. First, bank accounts and auditing; second, receipts and disbursements; third, public debt and trust funds.

When a warrant, or check (the familiar cardboard) goes to the Treasurer from the Comptroller it is complete save for the signature of the Treasurer and the name of the paying bank. The name of one of the four paying banks is stamped in and finally the signature is added by one of the three facsimile signature machines. It is a dull day that doesn't see each machine turn out at least a thousand checks.

Born at Mount Holly, Westmoreland County, Virginia, on May 6, 1901, Mr. Murphy's ambition was to be a lawyer but at the age of 18, after having completed two years of college, the death of his father caused him to leave William and Mary and take over the operation of the home place.

Looking back with a grin, he claims he has had a most uneventful life, "Trying to keep the wolf from the door," and though he doesn't recall any memorable incidents in his career, he does acknowledge his chief asset is one Katherine Griffin—the black haired school teacher fresh from the May Day Court at Sweet Briar, whom he persuaded to marry him twenty years ago. Two other assets are daughter Anne, freshman at Westhampton College, and son, Tayloe, Jr., who is learning to play the trombone.

Mr. Murphy is a member of the Ruritan and Rotary Clubs, the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity and the Episcopal Church.

PARAGRAPHS FROM "OVER THERE"

Excerpts from Letters of Alumni

"I am not permitted to write what part of the world I am serving in nor even to talk about the weather except in very general terms. Many fields of possible interest are taboo. I can, however, tell you that it has been my privilege to lead into active operations against the enemy a great many ships largely officered and partly manned by men whose educational background was no more military in nature than that afforded by colleges like William and Mary. I have met William and Mary men among them, and I do not doubt there are others of whose association with the college I am not informed. I am happy to state that these men who such a short time ago had no idea of following the sea have proven themselves fine seamen and gallant fighters when the going was tough."

MALTA—

"The past few months have been of exceptional interest to us in Malta, where for another brief interval we felt we were the pivot of war events. From our terrace I watched the invasion flotilla that momentous day. The Oxford (University) Society provided a large number of contacts with service people brought to our part of the world with the tide of war, but I can never quite get used to losing these new friends. The constant arrivals and departures make the house seem like a railway station. I do wish some William and Mary people would turn up.

"Life for us is gradually becoming easier and the siege conditions are beginning to fade from memory.

"My husband is organizing Army Vocation training schools where courses have just been started to fit soldiers for postwar reconstruction jobs. He is very keen on this work and is kept quite busy and out of reach of home. The long evenings I spend trying to write an account of our life in wartime Malta, slow progress on a novel, and rapid work on a separate series of short essays.

"To my friends at W & M, please convey my best regards, good wishes for 1944, and to those who are in the Forces, best of luck."

Yours sincerely,

ENGLAND—

"This will let you know that the October 1943 issue of the ALUMNI GAZETTE reached me in November after being forwarded to me from Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. It was a pleasure to receive this magazine, especially as it brought me up to date on my fellow alumni. I am looking forward impatiently to the succeeding copies which I hereby request be sent me in care of the address below. I am now serving overseas here in England, having received a technician 4th grade rating (from a corporal) shortly before coming over. This is not a bad country but doesn't compare with ours. Everyone has been very hospitable and kind to us. Haven't met any fellow graduates as yet, but am constantly on alert for one. On my few days off have traveled to Bath, Bristol, Southampton, Exeter, and to the Cheddar Caves. But still waiting for my London trip. Are we having a basketball team this year? Best regards to all my faculty friends and alumni."

"I went down on a destroyer and got caught in a hurricane—some fun!

"Spent about a week or eight days on the Island and found it very interesting. As you probably remember it was settled by the same people who settled Jamestown and, as a matter of fact, St. George Tucker lived in Bermuda before he came to Virginia. I visited his home in the town of St. George and met a Miss Tucker who is a direct descendant. The second colony was saved by an expedition from England that was shipwrecked on Bermuda before they were able to reach Virginia. After being wrecked they rebuilt their ship and captured a great number of wild hogs on Bermuda. This unexpected supply of pork was supposed to have saved the day at Jamestown. The hogs are thought to

ASTU IMPRESSIONS OF WILLIAM AND MARY

By VERNON M. SMITH, ASTU
Basic Engineering—2

(Private Smith is from Baltimore, Maryland, and previous to entering the Army was a student at St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland.)

During the 250-year period of her existence, the College of William and Mary has gathered about her a host of rich traditions. The myriad "firsts," of which she is so proud, and the many services she has performed to society, have now added to their number that of being host to a unit of the Army Specialized Training Program.

In 1942, the war had begun to affect the college community, and, by the end of the year, it was evident that 1943 would bring a small male enrollment. The faculty was depleted by calls from the armed services, and the situation in general showed the strain of the war. But the quality of an institution is only the more evident under strain, and William and Mary proved no exception to this rule.

The requirements of the Army program were exact. Housing had to be provided; wartime courses in mathematics, English, history, geography, physics, chemistry, and engineering drawing were necessary. Here began the transition from the conventional, peacetime college to an accelerated, educational assembly line for the training of a select group of the Army's young men.

Brown and Tyler Halls, with minor alterations, became Army barracks, and, at the rate of four men to a room, were soon filled. Another story is the conversion of Blow Gym. Some 200 beds, in regular rows, covered the floor of the main gymnasium, and proved a veritable maze to the unwary visitor. The reception room and the handball courts of the gym became, "The Blue Room," and "Handball Hall," respectively, housing groups of trainees.

To the writer, an admirable aspect of William and Mary's adjustment to the new program lies in the academic department. The somewhat critical attitude toward the policy of recruiting instructors from the fine arts and other departments is not shared by all. Quite in keeping with certain contemporary views concerning education, the effect of having an "instructor-student" lead a mathematics class is that the student, for the first time, perhaps, indulges in some honest-to-goodness, original thinking. The value of knowledge acquired in this manner is unquestionable. The associations of the development of scientific principles, thus gained, are ever-present, and bring about a clear understanding of pertinent problems.

The faculty have applied themselves to the task of presenting the required material. The acceleration of the courses has increased the usual number of students who have difficulty with one or another subject. Here,

By HERMAN J. OBERMAYER, ASTU
Basic Engineering—2

(Private Obermayer is from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and previous to entering the Army was a student at Dartmouth College, Hanover, New Hampshire.)

The men in the ASTP have gripes like men in every other branch of the Army: they gripe about their food; they gripe about the teachers, the girls, the South; they gripe because they do not have the opportunity to be soldiers and fight, then again because there is too much military discipline and life is too GI. Gripping is part of every man's nature, especially the soldier's. Soon after a soldier learns that profanity is acceptable language in the barracks, he learns that a happy soldier is one who gripes—and from then on he never stops. Some people worry about these gripes; others totally ignore them while a few try to look at them objectively and determine those for which there is justification.

During those first weeks in August, our criticisms of the College were numerous, for we felt very much like queer Buck Rogers' characters from Mars who had suddenly descended upon a new world. For at least three months all the men had been toughened and hardened by Army routine, had been taught to shoot and fight and kill, and had almost forgotten that such things as liberal arts colleges, the humanities, and culture existed in their world too. The change was a sudden one for both the College and the Army, which easily lent itself to strained and belligerent relations. Many of our original criticisms have been rectified, but as our conditions steadily improve, we develop and loudly voice new gripes, which are also corrected as time passes.

In August there were only eighty coeds in Williamsburg, most of whom seemed to believe that evil lurked in the eyes of every soldier who pleasantly smiled at them and said "Hello." But, in October, all was changed with the arrival of the regular student body and there followed an almost civilian round of parties and dances and hayrides, while today the Quartermaster laundry at Fort Eustis regularly washes GI handkerchiefs stained with coeds' lipstick. When Sorority Row learned that a soldier can be a gentleman without having a bar on his shoulder, our criticism of the coeds came to an end.

Those who are prone to criticize William and Mary most loudly are the former college students who knew and loved another alma mater and find that the human neck is capable of sporting only one "Old School Tie." To these men Army training falls short of their former ideal of a college, while to the trainees who never attended college before entering the Army this is a new and wonderful opportunity; their gripes are fewer, their work more earnest, their goals less fixed.

The College of William and Mary tried to welcome us with traditional Southern hospitality, but its job was

EIDSNESS IS RECIPIENT OF STATE HONOR

Sanitary Engineer of Board of Health Is Winner of Fuller Award

The George Warren Fuller award for meritorious service in the water works field in Florida has been presented to Frederick Arnold Eidsness, '36Bs, sanitary engineer of the State Board of Health.

The award, a "living memorial" for the late, international known sanitary engineer, water supply and sewerage expert who died in 1934, is given annually by each section of the American Water Works Association. The presentation was made to Mr. Eidsness at the Florida Section's second wartime conference and the seventeenth annual meeting held in Fort Lauderdale.

George Warren Fuller, in whose memory the award was established, was active in erecting or revising some of the world's largest and most important water systems.

The memorial is primarily designated for water works employees for outstanding performance in improving water works service or for proficiency of work at water works training schools sponsored or conducted in cooperation with the American Water Works Association or any of its Sections.

The award is not frequently presented to individuals who are not directly connected with the operation of water works, and it is the first time it has been received by someone in the State Board of Health.

Eidsness earned the award by his outstanding work with water problems in the State as they relate to public health, in helping to adjust wartime problems confronting water works.

In connection with water supply and treatment activities of the Bureau, Mr. Eidsness did a particularly outstanding job in organizing and coordinating the water and sewage short course held last June as a co-operative effort of the University of Florida, the Florida Section of the American Water Works Association and the Florida State Board of Health.

He has been active in the Florida Section of the AWWA and was elected chairman of the section for the coming year.

Eidsness, who has been with the State's Bureau of Sanitary Engineering for the past two years, is on leave of absence from the Mathieson Alkali Works, Inc., New York City.

He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Omicron Delta Kappa fraternities.

Indians Compile Impressive Record

Excluding 1943, when varsity football competition was abandoned, the Voyles-coached Indians won 29 games, lost 7, tied 3 in four years. They totaled 851 points and limited the opposition to 274 points.

The Indians captured Old Dominion championships in 1940, 1941, and 1942. Voyles' first W&M team defeated Richmond, 7-0, to earn a tie for second place in the State race in 1939.

W&M finished in a tie for third place in the Southern Conference in 1940, advanced to the runner-up spot in 1941 and clinched the title in 1942.

In 1941 and 1942 the Indians beat Dartmouth. Navy and Oklahoma also bowed to W&M in 1942. The team was undefeated in college competition in 1942, losing only to North Carolina Preflighters.

Past records of the Indians during Voyles' regime follow:

Year	Won	Lost	Tied	PF	PA
1939	6	2	1	158	95
1940	6	2	1	185	60
1941	8	2	0	253	64
1942	9	1	1	255	55
Totals	29	7	3	851	274

ALASKA—

"My tour in Alaska started with nothing short of a few thrills as we left Seattle a year ago in September headed for the largest outpost the Navy had at that time on the Aleutian chain, a place about which little was known—Dutch Harbor. We were ten officers from all parts of the United States assigned duty there. On the way up in a Navy freighter we experienced torpedo wakes, submarine contacts and even had our ship so badly rammed by a destroyer that we thought she was gone.

"But we arrived safely. It was a beautiful day and I remember standing on the quarterdeck looking at Dutch Harbor for the first time, the buildings, the mud, but most of all the people and the dock. We seemed to be the first new faces they had seen in months. They were bearded and dirty and it was impossible to tell from what they had on whether they were Army, Navy, or civilian. It didn't take long to get used to it all and to change our way of living and dress so that we, too, looked like typical 'Aleutes.'

"And then the weather set in. On all sides the tall, treeless, rocky peaks became snowcapped. Then with the aid of winds and williwaws, frequently as strong as eighty m.p.h., or more, the snow buried the valleys. Sometimes one cannot stand up outside; we have had airplanes wrecked on the fields, men blown off cliffs, roofs blown off. I have seen heavy piles of lumber picked up and scattered for yards. It is the wind and not the Jap that is our greatest enemy.

"During one of these snowstorms we had an alert. Yes, we had quite a few then. I remember once staying in dugouts and shelters for weeks.

"All the time, against these odds we were putting in installations to the westward, planning for the day when we would make the push. And when it came I was still in Dutch Harbor. That was like being back of the controls—way back. First came Attu and then Kiska. Being in the Communications Department I saw all the reports that came through. It was nice to know what was really going on and that our boys were doing a good job."

ENGLAND—

"The train arrived in Liverpool Street Station about 10 o'clock that night I had my first pass to London. Soldiers in almost every kind of uniform were hurrying to and from the trains. Some were loaded down with pack, helmet and rifle, and there were others, like myself, on pass.

"I did not know where I wanted to go; so I just followed the crowd. When I got upstairs I found nothing but dark corridors. I followed one which led to the street, and it was not until then that I realized what total blackout meant. . . . There I was in total darkness that seemed to close in on me. I stumbled around until a tall American soldier with a New England accent came to my rescue. He directed me to a Red Cross Club where I found food and a bed.

"The next two days are ones that I shall never forget, because it was then that I learned of places of interest other than Piccadilly Circus. I took advantage of one of the tours offered by the American Red Cross. An experienced guide took about fifty of us on a very hurried but interesting trip over the city. We visited the following: Saint Paul's, Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, Houses of Parliament, No. 10 Downing Street, London Bridge, the Tower of London and the one place every Yankee knows about, Piccadilly Circus.

"I was tired when I got back to camp, but I was very much enlightened by my visit. . . . I understood better why the English spirit cannot be broken. In the year that they stood alone, the English must have heard the walls of St. Paul's and Westminster whisper, 'Carry on—they cannot beat you.'"

May Fielder (Haven) and I worked in the same office for a while, till her husband was transferred away. Mary

GREETINGS

PEANUTS

Alice Barnes (Fox) was here for a time but was evacuated a year or more ago. Margaret Ripperton (Young), whose home is in Honolulu, is also on the mainland with her husband. There may be other William and Mary graduates living here but the only ones I know are Bobby Feldwisch and Peggy Longley (McCurdy).

"The changes in Honolulu have become so much a part of our lives that it is hard to remember what a peaceful town it used to be. However, the effects of war which seem to impress newcomers most strongly are the ten o'clock curfew (we are going to request that late permission be granted on Saturday nights at the next meeting of the City Fathers), the barbed wire, bomb shelters with victory gardens or flowers growing over them, pill boxes in front yards, going to parties in the afternoon in order to get home before blackout or curfew, having to carry a territorial identification card at all times, and school children going to work in the pineapple fields to help out with the labor shortage. Hardly a change, but a striking aspect of Hawaii is the farce moonlight makes of blackout.

"The differences which impress islanders probably more than newcomers are the great secret which ship movements have become—formerly everyone met and dispatched boats with pomp and ceremony, the rise in price of flower leis (any day now I'm going to take up sitting on a sidewalk at Waikiki making leis for two dollars to fifty-five apiece—the same leis used to be twenty-five cents to one-fifty), groups of girls going to parties in jeeps, recons (reconnaissance cars), large trucks, the hordes of people swarming everywhere, and the multitude of jewelry stores and photograph studios which have appeared like mushrooms.

"In all, Honolulu is not too different from any other 'boom town' war center and people here complain about the usual things: the problem of finding a place to live, the terrific rental once a place is found, the high cost of food, standing in line, and crowded busses—at almost any time of the day.

"Please remember me to everybody I know in Williamsburg."

Greetings everyone. Things are really picking up for the 1939 Column. It's grand hearing from all of you and it's nicer being able to pass all the news on to several interested class members (that several numbers very near 250 or more, if I remember correctly).

Eleanor Jane Chase, '39x, thanks for writing (I admire that handsome WAVES stationery). Eleanor Jane is now S-2/c, stationed in Washington after her boot training at Hunter College. Her address is Nebraska Hall, H.H. 221, Arlington Farms, Arlington. She wrote that Jeanne Thomas Sheridan, '39Ba, is now in the WAC, having had her basic training at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Jeanne, we know that your home address is 1009 Grove Street, Clark's Summit, Pennsylvania—but we would like to know your new address. Let's hear from you!

Emily Petuske (Hampstead), '39Ba, is back at her job in Quantico now that the Sergeant, radioman and gunner in the Army Air Forces is stationed at Avon Park, Florida. Best wishes to Emily and David, who were recently married.

Ensign Bradshaw Pulley, '39Ba, is in the supply corps of the Navy and is stationed at Norfolk.

Margaret Fay Brickett (Miller), '39Ba, is in our midst again after a "quiet" trip from Kansas with her two boys. According to Peggy they packed everything in the car but the refrigerator and stove. Oh yes, travelling is a joy! Lt. Col. Miller is at Camp Pickett while Peggy remains in Washington. Her address there is 1543 Foxhall Road, Washington, D. C.

Edward Themak, Jr., '39Ba, deserves a special award for his grand record of correspondence in this new year. He suddenly took pity on this secretary, who is greying rapidly as a result of not hearing from her class members, and wrote two—hear ye, two, letters to bolster her morale. (ED. NOTE: The Alumni office also had a long interesting letter from Ed recently) Jane MacDonald (Themak), '39Ba, and Ed are living at 32 North Ferry Street, Schenectady (5), New York. Since August of 1942 Ed has been quite ill but expects to be back to work in about six months, and is at present writing a few editorials for the paper. Jane in the past year or so has worked for the OPA, has given her time and talents to the local blood donor center, and has even worked in a broken rib (the result of a New York wintry blast). After all that she worked on the office staff of WGY and is now with the General Electric Company in the Electronics advertising and publicity department.

Captain James Keillor, Jr., '39x, and Mrs. Keillor are also in Schenectady. Jimmy is with the local Army Service Forces Depot. A grand get-together for all of them since Jimmy was the Themak's best man.

Lieutenant Darrell Watson, '42Ba, and Lieutenant Huntington Curtis, '42Bs, were also in that vicinity for awhile but have since been assigned to new posts.

Kate Waller Barrett Alfriend, '39Ba, is working with the C.I.O. in New York City and lives at the Spelman House.

Herbert Armstrong Krueger, '39Ba, discharged from the Army because of injuries sustained at Tunisia, has been appointed as Probation and Patrol Officer for the counties of Buchanan, Dickenson, Lee and Wise with headquarters at Wise.

Many thanks to all of you for writing. Please keep it up. Let's hear from more of you—and more often—and let's keep in touch with each other. Best of everything to all of you for 1944.

FRANCES L. GRODECOEUR, '39Ba,
Permanent Secretary,
810 Howard Street,
Monongahela, Pennsylvania.

It is Doctor Otto T. Boysen now. Otto was awarded his M.D. from the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia on January 6th. Congratulations, Otto!

Alfred Lineir Alley, '40Ba, now at Bruton Parrish in Williamsburg, dropped us a card to check in. He said that Capt. John Stuart Hudson, '40Ba, PBK, and Mrs. Hudson, together with Lt. Caldwell Cason, '40Ba, and Mrs. Cason (see Marriage column), stopped by to see him recently and had lunch with him. Also, Robert Rawl, '41, and Dorothy Sease (Rawl), '40Bs, also visited our Alma Mater town. Al contends that none of these trackmen wanted to run that preacher a race.

In December Eldon Langbauer, a Lt. (jg), was still down in the Caribbean and has not yet had the chance to see his new son (see Birth column).

Ensign Marjorie Barnes, '40Ba, reports that she is enjoying the Navy "tho' there are times when I pine for a flower in my hair." She admits that that is something to worry about in the midst of a war. Marjie is still in Pascagoula, Miss. (Box 591).

Ensign Frances G. Jourdan, '40Bs, was on temporary duty in Washington, D. C., and had an opportunity to see Frances Kuhn, '40Bs, while she was there. Frances is returning to New York shortly.

Louise Eppinger (Nuernburger), '40Ba, was bragging about having seen Arthur "Bud" Metheny, '40Bs, when he played ball in the World Series at Cleveland for the Yanks.

Willetha Holmes (Slaughter), '40Ba, and her daughter are expecting to leave Dallas, Texas, for home in Newburgh, N. Y., since her husband, a lieutenant, will be leaving to train for transport work.

Lee Phillips (Teasenfitz), '40Ba, writes that she is back in Hammonton, N. J., while her husband is with the Army in Italy.

Lieutenant Paul J. Post, '40, wrote us a long letter just before Christmas from Patsu 2-1, Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, Calif., wherever that may be. He is still working in aviation maintenance for the Navy at Advanced Base Units as well as at main Base Fleet Units. Paul is proud that the Navy Air Force has come such a long way since December 7, 1941, as have the Marine Air Force. Paul said the planes are ever improving as are the qualified aviators and ground crews. There is no stopping the paving of the Roads to Tokio. Hope your GAZETTES continue to reach you, Paul. You certainly do your part in contributing the news.

Peggy McDermott (Hudson), '40x, one of our Class's new proud mothers, is now living in Montgomery, Ala., where she and her husband both fly. Marshall is a civilian flying instructor for an Army Primary School, and Peggy holds a C.A.A. private pilot's license. Their address is 1112 So. McDonough St.

Lt. Sam Y. Walker, '40Bs, sent you all a grand letter from the USS President Jackson, c/o Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, Calif. Sam had just borrowed the GAZETTE from Larry Pettet, '41Ba, and was pleased to get news of Paul Post, Eldon Langbauer, and others. Just to show what a small world this really is: I had mentioned Lenny Goldberg being seen in London; then, Sam met him out there in "the smelly old south Pacific" and Johnny Adams was not far away in November. Sam had a letter from Gordon Hanna, '40Bs, who has been out there for two stretches totalling about twenty months. Gus said he had met Sonny Almand out there too, now Supply Officer of the Boreas. Sam ran into Bruce McDonald a while back. The news that Ted McGowan is now a Major in the Army somewhere in Africa had reached him in the Pacific. He was sorry to hear that football had to be dropped for the duration, but said we could bet that the boys who beat it out on the gridiron are doing as good a job wherever they are now.

Elizabeth Cook (Bassett), '40Ba, wrote in a long letter. She and her son are lucky enough to still be with her husband, a lieutenant-colonel with the Headquarters of the Airborne Command at Camp MacKall, N. C. Her address is Box 163, Pinehurst, N. C. When the Bassetts were in New York last fall they visited Christine Cowan (Halsey), '40Ba. Jean Clarahan (Bratton), '40Ba and her husband are at Pomeroy, Ohio. Jane Groggins (Beard), '40Bs, and her Lt.-husband were in Pittsburg, California, when Elizabeth wrote. Connie Hoge (Smith), '40x, was in Roswell, New Mexico, with her husband who is in the Army Air Corps. Connie has a little boy born a year ago last September. Elizabeth said to tell all W.&M.'ers that their latch string was always out and to look for the Bassetts in Boxwood Court.

Lt. Seymour Shwiller, '40Bs, PBK, sent in a gem of a letter and in two pages told us about thirteen W.&M. people and accounted for himself since graduation. Right after we finished college, he and Joseph Berman, '40Ba, now a 1st Lieutenant at General MacArthur's Headquarters in Australia, took a trip to California and saw some of the people we met in Williamsburg when they made shots for the Howards of Virginia. Seymour went into the Army in August '41, after trying the Navy's V-7 course, and has been in the Air Corps since. He went to Harvard and M.I.T. and lived in the same house with Vince Lusardi. He saw his wife, Carolyn Moses (Lusardi), '40Ba, when she was in Boston on a visit. Also, Barbara Kemp, '41Ba, Don Reed, '41, PBK, Bob Neslow, '41, and Malcom Sullivan, '42. Seymour has been in school of one kind or another for twenty-four months . . . and he thought his school days were over when he left W.&M.

Lenny Goldberg, '39, is a Marine Lieutenant in the Southwest Pacific, and has seen Rocky Carneal, Jim Pye, and others out there. John Adam, '40Bs, has been with the Marines in the S.W. Pacific since October, '42. John wrote to Seymour that he was in fine shape. Seymour says he himself is in poor shape having lost twenty-five pounds since getting into the Army. Hank Kibel, '40Ba, was a midshipman at Columbia University in December, and is probably commissioned by this time.

Virginia James Claudon, '40Ba, is working in the Physio-Therapy Department of the New Army General Hospital at Palm Beach. Residence: 311 Wildermere Road, West Palm Beach, Florida.

Kathryn Anne Sherman, '40x, is with the Passenger Service Department, American Export Air Lines, Incorporated, at LaGuardia Field, New York.

This letter comes from Albuquerque, New Mexico, where I'm still with the Army and beginning to wonder if they ever have heard of the EAST coast. The town and surrounding country is rather desolate and a bit hard to get used to, but other things compensate for that. Feel as if Lady Luck was really with me when I landed here on the 13th of November and found both an apartment near the base and a job, all in a matter of three days! I'm working at the Post Exchange Office and find the work keeping me busy enough so that time passes quickly. We should be leaving here April 8th, the date of Don's graduation, and hope for a short furlough home before going on to our next base. But enough of my travelogue, and on to the news.

Had a Christmas card from Lieut. (j.g) Richard Whiting, which gave news of his having a furlough in California, and at the time the card was written, he was back on his way out into the Pacific, again. "Dick" certainly has been faithful about writing me notes from hither and yon, and keeping me posted as much as the censors will allow.

June Lucas (Clancy) and Susan spent their Christmas with Stu, who fortunately came in from his convoy duty in time to spend the holidays with them. Am awaiting to hear more from June and her activities, as promised, though I know that Susan keeps her on the run most of the day, and letters are hard to write.

Are You Pestered by Life Insurance Agents?

A certain man of affairs complained that he was "pestered by life insurance agents."

To this a friend replied, "You should feel flattered. Their 'pestering' you indicates that you are regarded as prosperous, in sound health, and disposed to respect your responsibilities. Don't start worrying until the life insurance boys begin to pass you by."

Aleutians in March of 1942 and then being sent back to Fort Benning, Georgia for advanced officer's training. He must have seen plenty of action, when his outfit made the initial landing at Amchitka, in the Aleutians, and he says he found things far from dull. His job seemed to cover a multitude of things from Adjutant to Intelligence Officer, in his battery. When I received his letter, the first of December, he was about to leave to spend Christmas with his family, and then on his way again to the north.

Just before I left Laguna Beach, where I wrote my last letter, I had a letter from Margaret Mitchell (Mollenkopf), '41Bs, who was staying at Balboa Island, a few miles from me. It seems that her husband in the Classification Center there at Santa Ana, Western Flying Training Command Headquarters, along with Mr. Henneman, formerly of our Psychology Department, classifying the boys going through there at Santa Ana. "Mickey," herself was working in the Civilian Personnel Office of the Headquarters, WFTC, and suddenly found Carolyn Armitage Pruitt, '43x, in the office one day looking for a job!

Dorothy Carneal, '41Ba, is Laboratory Technician at the Hercules Powder Company, Radford.

Edna Louise Klinge, '41Ba, is with the Central Administrative Services as a classification analyst. Residence: 9005 Fairview Road, Silver Spring, Maryland.

Clifton Holland Kreps, Jr., '41Ba, PBK, resigned as Assistant Economist for the 4th Regional War Labor Board on September 1, 1943, to accept a fellowship in Economics at Duke University. His address is Box 289, College Station, Durham, North Carolina.

A letter from Griffin C. Callahan, now Reverend Callahan, was most interesting in news and point of view. His churches (four) at Ronceverte and White Sulphur, West Va. and other duties are keeping him much on the go these days. He has visited one of the German Internment Camps nearby and found conversation with the men there interesting and enlightening. "Griff" sends best wishes to fellow alumni.

Found some news about Saunders Mann Almond. I met his cousin, and we had quite a chat. Sonny has been transferred to the Atlantic fleet, now, I believe, and has also recently been promoted to Lieutenant, senior grade.

Incidentally, I've had request from a boy in the Army, for news of Bernie Rang and Ed Quist, so send it on its way, if you have any.

And now, that's all the news, and since my pot of coffee has dwindled from six to zero cups, and tomorrow is another working day, I'll say Cheerio and do write. I'll receive all your letters or cards, forwarded from home, so be unpatriotic and "overburden the mails."

MARJORIE GILDNER (COALE), '41,
Permanent Class Secretary, Class of '41,
33 Forest Road,
Springfield, Delaware County,
Pennsylvania.

Here's a belated wish for a happy 1944, and may the year bring us closer to the time when we can all get back together again for "that class reunion!"

Our president, Charles Malcolm Sullivan, '42Ba, dutifully lets us hear from him from time to time. This time "Sully" reports that he is on a YMS, a minesweeper . . . locale not mentionable. Sully said that he ran into Thomas Frederick Crane, '42Ba, who is also on a YMS.

A pleasant surprise . . . received a V-mail letter (first one to date!) from 1st Lieutenant John Thomas Mougey, '42x. Tom wrote such an interesting letter that I want to quote part of it. He said, "It's been so long since I've been in touch with the little magic city and environment that I hope you'll forgive me for not having written. I ran into Joe Lawlor, '41, and Davey Jones, '41, the other night and we set about a fast and furious breeze fanning about ye olde alma mammy. It's a small world considering I carry the label "somewhere in North Africa." Brought back many fond memories; hence the letter to get in the know again . . . been a long time since I last saw a copy of the GAZETTE. . . . With best wishes to all the rest of the '42 gang." Thanks a million, Tom, for writing to us. It was grand hearing from you!

Lt. Frederick A. Gage, '42Ba, when last heard from was somewhere in England.

Dorothy Jean Ross, '42Ba, star writer to this column (and without inducement!), tells of a grand three week vacation to Chateau Frontenac in Quebec. Now, she is back to earth and has taken a new job as assistant to the head of the Library of the School of Commerce of N. Y. University. Jean writes that Jane Alden (Malinasky), '42Ba, has left Boston and is with her family, now stationed in Charleston, S. C. Caroline Cook (Ball), '42Ba, is with her husband in Boston, or was when this was written.

I can always count on a card from Belvin Herman Robin, '42Ba! He says that he is in a medium bombardment outfit (B-25) receiving crew training in the wilds of South Carolina, and knows that it won't be too long before he is moved. Thanks for letting us hear so regularly from you!

Mary Henderson (Merritt), '42Ba, writes that she, Roy Merritt, '42Bs, and baby daughter, Linda, are now living in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Roy is in the Coast Guard as Specialist 1st Class, teaching everything from all sorts of physical education to blinker, semaphore, etc. He is stationed in the main office in Boston, but travels all over New England and gets home on week ends. Nice hearing from you, Mary!

Ann Seward (Lawlor), '42Ba, when last heard from was in Scottsville, Kentucky while her husband was on maneuvers.

Florence Roslyn Yachnin, '42Ba, takes time out from teaching and studying to write that she had been down to Williamsburg, and to tell how surprised she was at all the changes that have taken place.

I want to thank Edith Debow (Woolley), '43x, for writing in to tell us all about her husband, Vincent D. Woolley, '42x. "Bud" worked for the Solvay Process Co., and he and his family, including young son, Robert Spencer, lived in Hopewell, Virginia before he entered the service. Now Bud is at Miami Beach with the Army Air Corps. Please let us hear from you again, Edie!

Lt. Huntington Woodman Curtis, '42Bs, PBK, not only sent a Christmas card, but also some news. Hunt said, "Met 1st Lt. Darrell Arthur Watson, '42Ba, in Schenectady, Sgt. Augustus Milton Winder, '42Ba, in North Carolina, Ensign Margaret Marie Lucas, '42Ba, PBK, in Norfolk. The army really makes one a tourist!" Hunt is an instructor in Airborne Equipment at Camp Murphy, Florida.

Virginia Smith (Strange), '42Ba, writes that she and her husband have been living in Brunswick, Georgia for five months as Tom has been stationed at Glyuco. Thanks for your Christmas card and note, Jinny!

Janice Elizabeth Harvey, '42Ba, starts the new year right, by keeping in touch with this column, to say that she is doing social work at the Hillside Children's Center in Rochester, N. Y. Jan says that it's a grand job and she likes it a lot.

Elinor Marion Derr, '42x, is teaching at a Junior High School in Williamsport, Penna. and managing the cafeteria there. Residence: 5 Upland Road, Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

Catherine Bidelspacher, '42x, is with an Airlines Company in Buffalo, New York.

Charlotte Mooers (Stevens), '42Ba, has spent the last few months moving from Augusta, Georgia to Washington, D. C. and now back to Augusta. Ah, the life of an army wife!

The trials and tribulations of editing a column such as this are varied nowadays as the whole class seems constantly on the go, and I do have difficulties reaching you. If you could only get that "urge" to drop me a card at least twice a year, it would help tremendously!

At present, I am visiting my family in Canton, Ohio and also recuperating from an appendix operation, but a week or so will find me on my way to my temporary home in Hollywood, California.

If it's news you want—keep writing!
Best of luck!

Hello All!

As I begin to write I have that snowed-under feeling that you and I used to have when we bravely faced a tremendous stack of notes to prepare for a "final." This time, however, I have on my desk your letters and postcards, newspaper clippings, wedding invitations, and numerous notations that I have made from time to time; believe me, it is a real thrill too. Your Christmas cards and letters were greatly appreciated, and I am champing at the bit to get started with the news that has been written in.

Curtain, Spotlight, Action, Camera! Here goes, with a salute to our most recent graduate from the Midshipman's School at Annapolis, Ensign Harold Baker King, '43Bs. And did you know that there is a Mrs. King now? (For details, see the Marriage Column.) Ev and Hal pulled a unique trick! They honeymooned in Williamsburg. Hal reported to Little Creek, Virginia after receiving his commission, and I believe he was either to remain there or go to Florida. Mrs. King, when last contacted, was patiently waiting to join him, if possible.

I was so glad to get your letter, Edith DeBow (Woolley), '43x. Edie is a busy housekeeper now, and is kept even busier with an eleven months old son, Robert Spencer, who, Edie says, is a "blond-headed, blue-eyed rascal." She and her husband, Vincent D. Woolley, '42x, lived in Hopewell until September when "Bud" went into the Army. He was working in the Solvay Process Company there, but is now in the Army Air Corps at Miami Beach, Florida.

Virginia Mae Bunce, '43Ba, writes that she is working in the Aerodynamics Department of Republic Aviation Corporation in Farmingdale, Long Island, "the proud maker of the 'Thunderbolt' pursuit plane," to quote "Ginny." Doesn't that sound exciting? "Ginny" is called an Engineering Aide or Computer, but her work is in the nature of statistical analysis, and she loves it. I see that Murfel Elizabeth Fisher, '43Ba, is enjoying hard work too. Hers is further study, however, at Cornell Law School, and she says that Virginia Blance Till, '43Ba, is an advanced student in the Law School also.

Virginia Kirk Knerr, '43Bs, is working on a job evaluation program at the Cramp Shipbuilding Company in Philadelphia. She says that her psychology and sociology are being put to use, "but definitely." Phyllis Elizabeth Hantz, '43Ba, is working for the same company, but she is an Expeditor in the Procurement Department. Oh dear, I almost forgot to tell you that "Ginny" also said in her letter that her wedding date had been set for December 18. I haven't heard about it since, but she had planned to have Eleanor Mabry, Anne Ballard (Stires) and Jacqueline Phillips, as three of her attendants.

Joan Wallace, '43Ba, was working at Wanamaker's in Philadelphia, but rumor had it that she went into some other work. Where are you now, Joan? Elizabeth Emma Stetser, '43Ba, is a full-fledged teacher, holding down an English-science-civics position at the Emelea Pusey Warner Junior High School in Wilmington, Delaware. With classes in three subjects, it is needless to say that she stays busy. In spite of the hard work, however, Elizabeth says that her dubious outlook on the teaching profession was unnecessary, for she loves it.

Nancy Fairbank, '43Bs, is a Student Physical Therapy Aide with the Army Medical Corps, Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C. I know that your work is not only interesting, Nancy, but that in such work, you can make a real contribution to the war effort. After a year's training, Nancy will graduate as a second lieutenant in the Medical Corps. She says that Mary Moncure, '42Bs, and Cleo Tweedy, '42Bs, are in the same field too; Mary received her commission the first of the year; Ann is located at Northington General Hospital, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Cleo is training in Utica, New York. Nancy writes that William Hunter Seawell, '43Bs, is teaching chemistry and physics in Portsmouth; Bill is married now, you know. Mary Holm Olsen, '43Bs, is living at 4440 W. 66th Street, Cleveland, Ohio. Nancy Virginia Spellman, '43x, is working in New York. Thanks for all the news, Nancy Fairbank.

Harvey Frederick Marriner, '43Ba, is in the South Pacific, and John Frank Korczowski, '43Bs, is on a PT boat in that theater too. I haven't heard from Henry Van Amburgh Joslin, '43x, himself, but at a recent bridge game in Washington, I met his sister who informed me that Van is a Captain now in the Marines. He was sent from Camp Pendleton, California to one of the Pacific bases. It was good to hear about you, Van.

And from "Somewhere in the Pacific," I have received a letter from Howard Marston Smith, Jr., '43Bs. After graduating from Midshipman's School at Columbia, Ensign Smith volunteered for extra hazardous duty and was sent to Camp Bradford, Virginia as a member of BJ Unit No. 3. (Incidentally, BJ stands for Beach Jumpers!) From there, he "jumped" to a Pacific base. Smitty sounded really enthusiastic about his activities!

Let's see if I can't give you some of the news from our "Mr. President," for I had another grand letter from "Buck." He is on the U.S. Atlantida, (c/o Fleet P.O., New York). His assignment brings him to Yorktown quite frequently, so he has been able to keep an eye on things back at school. Cecil Linwood Griffin, Jr., '43Ba, and Harry Ross Kent, '43Bs, have graduated from the Mine Warfare School at Yorktown, but I haven't heard where they are stationed. Phoebe Thomson Faris, '43Ba, is working for the British Embassy here in Washington; She called me several nights ago, and said that she had just run into "Cice" (Griffin) in one of the stores here. In the excitement, unfortunately, she didn't find out where he was headed. Besides "Cice," "Buck" wrote that he had also seen several others on his various trips to Williamsburg; George Thomas Blanford, '43Ba, Robert Howell Blanford, '43Ba, Gilbert Cecil Reveille, Jr., '43Ba, James William Fleming, '43Ba, Richard J. Alfriend, III, '43Ba, and Hughes Wescott Cunningham, '43Ba. I heard from Bob a few days ago, and he tells me that after graduating from Midshipman's School at Northwestern, he was assigned to the U.S.S. LCI

(L) 484 (c/o Fleet P.O., New York); and for further information (just call me "encyclopedia"), LCI stands for Landing Craft Infantry. Bob is on a training ship which trains other men for LCI's and he says his work is "great."

Thank you for your letter, James William Fleming, '43Ba. Jim wrote from "Somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico." Honestly, I am certainly kept guessing, with all these letters written from such indefinite localities! Jim is assigned to a Patrol craft out of St. Petersburg, Florida. He said that he had seen Jean Jordan (Steele), '43Ba, and Beverley Brock Steele, in Tampa. I believe that William Mortimer Grover, Jr., '43Ba, graduated from the Northwestern School in the December 22nd class.

I wish that all of you could have been with me several Sundays ago, for we had a real William and Mary reunion here in Washington. Lieutenant (j.g.) Royal B. Embree had open house for us. I am sure that the others who went are as grateful to the Embrees as I for such a delightful time. I had a real picnic, gleaning news, while everyone talked at the same time. Lt. Embree had seen "Scotty" in Rhode Island, where the latter was taking advanced training in some undisclosed field. James Joseph Ward, '43Ba, was taking the same training.

Before I go further I must tell you the hard luck that one of our gang ran into. Not long ago, who should walk into my office (Signal Corps, Arlington Hall Station), but Joseph Herman Solomon, '43Ba. Joe has had a medical discharge from the Army due to asthma. He almost fooled the G.I. doctors, though, for it wasn't until he had sailed from San Francisco aboard a troop transport headed for New Guinea, that he was caught up with. Joe told me himself, that a special Coast Guard ship was dispatched to return him to the States. Joe was in the Signal Corps, and since he liked his work very much, he is now continuing it in great style as a civilian employee here in Washington. That was a tough break, but he is as enthusiastic as ever. He also told me that Dudley Woods, was aboard the same ship headed for New Guinea. Dudley is in the Signal Corps, too.

Miriam Guthrie Boone, '43Ba, writes that on the sixth of January she began work with the Pennsylvania Railroad in Pittsburgh as a "Cadet Reservationist." From there she will go to Philadelphia for further training, which includes a tour of the Pennsylvania lines, so perhaps some of you will run into her. Margaret Anne Webb, '43Bs, finds her work in home economics fun. She teaches at two schools near Salisbury, Maryland. Anne visited Williamsburg in the fall; in spite of the transportation problem, so many people seem to have got back. Jayne Taylor, '43Ba, was down from Massachusetts in January.

Genevieve Disston Rile, '43Ba, is a librarian in the Temple University Library. Ella Waldron Allen, '43Ba, is librarian of the South Norfolk Elementary School, and enjoys "finding books for 800 boys and girls each week." Josephine Elizabeth Wood, '43Bs, is teaching biology at the Mt. Vernon High School, Alexandria, Virginia. Also following this profession, is Carolyn Ruth Watson, '43Bs, who is teaching physical education at the Woodmere Elementary and Junior High School, Woodmere, New York.

Sadie Louise Seymour, '43Ba, writes that she is with the Office of Price Administration in Wilmington, North Carolina. Her title is Assistant Price Clerk, and it requires a thorough knowledge of "ceiling prices," and all the regulations involved.

I had a card not long ago from Kathryn Verran Brown, '43Ba, and she told me that she and Patricia Marjorie Hurlbert, '43Ba, were having a gay time in New York City. Kitty is in the Editorial Department of a publishing company and Patty is taking a business course at Packard in preparation for a job that she has lined up for spring. Also taking a turn in the big city, is Jane Cummins, '43Ba, who ventures to admit that she is "crazy about New York." Jane is in the Pricing Department of the Western Electric Company. She said that she had run into Eugene Glassman, '43Ba, several times, and believes that he is working in New Jersey.

I was glad to receive a letter several weeks ago from Mrs. Newell S. Irwin, Jr. She was Annie Virginia Bruce, '42Bs, you know. She wrote to tell me what "Red" (Newell Sanders Irwin, '43Ba) was doing in the Navy now. He spent two months in the Destroyer Pool N.O.B., Norfolk, attending gunnery school. When he was assigned, his ship turned out to be The Irwin, D.D. No. 794, and he reported to San Pedro, California. That is real distinction for you! "Red" is Torpedo Officer now, having attended Fleet Torpedo School, San Diego, California, after reporting to the west coast. Annie also told me that Eleanor Brooks (Stackhouse), '43Ba, was teaching history, director of Junior school girls' athletics, and dramatic club coach at Moorestown Junior School, Merchantville, New Jersey, as well as keeping house for "hubby." I'd say that she has her hands full. Thanks so much for writing, Annie, and say "hello" to "Red" for all of us.

Elizabeth Alden Jones, '43Bs, finds her work fascinating in the Publicity, Special Events, and Education Department of Station WBBM, which is Chicago's outlet for the Columbia Broadcasting System. Another interesting occupation is that of Jean Brooks Oberg, '43Bs, who is Assistant Engineer at Chance-Vought in East Hartford, Massachusetts.

From Baltimore, Robert J. Faulconer, '43Bs, writes that he is in the Naval Reserve V-12 medical program, in his first year of medicine at Johns Hopkins. Bob said that Charles Webster Massey, '43Bs, is in the A.S.T.P. (Army Specialized Training Program), studying medicine at the Medical College of Virginia. The last I heard of Elizabeth Anne Douglass, '43Bs, was that she is an energetic dietician at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, and that after her course ends there, she plans to go into the Army as a Nurse.

Suzanne Zihlman (Wilkinson), '43Ba, has joined the ranks in Washington too. She is with the Navy Department; I was amazed to run into her as I went into a movie last week, for the last time I heard from her she was way out in Nebraska, I believe.

Elizabeth Costendader, '43Ba, is Public Opinionanalyst, State Department, Washington, D. C.

Corinne Myers, '43Ba, is working with the Labor Relations Department, United States Steel Company at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Jane Clayton Rile, '43Ba, is doing secretarial work in Wilmington.

Muriel Elizabeth Shelley, '43x, is teaching dancing at the Henkel Studio, Newport News.

Marion Kennedy Smith, '43Ba, has completed training in the Traffic School, American Air Lines and is now located in their New York City office.

Jane Elizabeth Williams, '43Ba, is employed as an Engineer in the Bureau of Coast and Geodetic Survey, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C. Residence: H 227 Nebraska, Arlington Farms, Arlington, Virginia.

And last but not least for the latest report on Thomas W. Miller, '43Ba, Tom resigned from the Marines sometime ago, and has been inducted in the Army, reporting to Fort Meade. Recently, however, he was sent to Fort Jackson, South Carolina, where he assists the officer in charge of functions connected with radio, entertainment, etc. That is right up Tom's alley, isn't it? Miss Hunt's training will prove invaluable.

Well, that about winds up your "Jergen's Journal." Again let me thank each one of you who has written such grand letters. I wish that it were possible to answer each one of them, but that would be a little more than I could handle. I shall expect to hear from all of you who have not written in, now; do keep the letters coming. Although I am a little late, let me wish you success through the year, and particularly to those in the service the very best of luck.

Until next time,

Sincerely,

JACQUELINE FOWLKES,
Permanent Secretary Class of '43,
1721 Park Avenue,
Richmond, 20, Virginia.

Faculty—

Kremer J. Hoke, Dean of the Summer School of the College, on February 6, in a Richmond hospital, after a brief illness following a heart attack.

An outstanding figure in the field of Education in Virginia and the South, as well as a nationally known curriculum authority, Dr. Hoke had been a member of the faculty of the College of William and Mary since 1920. From 1920 until 1938 he served both as Dean of the College and also as Director of the Summer Session. Since 1938 he had been Dean of the Summer School and Head of the Department of Education.

Other duties at the College included Chairman of the Division on Teacher-Training; Chairman of the Curriculum Committee and Chairman of the Degree Committee.

He was a member of Φ Δ Κ and PBK fraternities and also held membership in many local, state and national education organizations and had served on numerous committees and boards. He was a communicant of Bruton Parish Church and served as a vestryman for a number of years.

Prior to coming to William and Mary, Dr. Hoke was connected with the Richmond Public School system from 1907 to 1916, first as Principal and later as Assistant Superintendent. From 1916 to 1920 he was Superintendent of Schools in Duluth, Minnesota, where his national fame as an educator began.

He was the author of Placement of Children in the Elementary Grades, published in 1915 as a United States bulletin, and, together with Guy M. Wilson, was the author of How to Measure.

Born in Emmitsburg, Maryland, November 19, 1878, Dr. Hoke was educated at Mount St. Mary's College, receiving the B.A. degree; at the University of Virginia; and at Columbia University where he was awarded the Ph.D. degree. The honorary degree of D.C.L. was conferred upon him in 1938 by Mount St. Mary's College.

Surviving are his widow and two sons, Lieutenant George Bland Hoke, '35, USNR, and Ensign Robert Hoke, USNR.

Alumni On State Honor Roll

Among the several chosen on the Virginia Honor Roll for 1943 by the Richmond Times-Dispatch were two William and Mary graduates: James Branch Cabell, '98Ba, PBK, among whose earliest literary compositions were his freshman English themes for Dr. John Lesslie Hall, was cited as "one of the most distinguished novelists Virginia has ever produced." He was included in this year's honor list on the basis of a newly published book, The St. Johns: A Parade of Diversities.

Paul Neyron Derring, '17Ba, PBK, was honored as the "most trusted and most beloved man on the V.P.I. campus" and as the "best-known and best-loved citizen of Blacksburg." Blinded by a firearms accident at the age of 12, Mr. Derring's quiet strength of character, his wise and far-seeing intelligence, his uncanny knowledge of human nature, and his robust sense of humor and reputation as a "straight-shooter" have combined to make him a friend and confidant of both the faculty and students at V.P.I., where he is YMCA secretary, and the citizens of Blacksburg.

Spar Officer

Among the SPAR officers commissioned at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Connecticut, on December 15, 1943, was Ensign Louise Cowie (Angelo), '38x. Her sister, Betty Cowie, '36Bs, is an officer candidate in the WAVES.

Hoke, deceased; and the appointment of Sharvy G. Umbeck as Acting Assistant Dean of Men, to succeed Dr. Armacost.

Dr. Armacost received his B.A. degree at Dickinson College and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University. He has been a member of the Department of Education since 1937, and since 1943 has been Acting Dean of Men. He is a native of Maryland, and taught in the public schools of Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Dr. Umbeck received his B.A. degree at Elmhurst College and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Chicago. He has been Assistant Professor of Sociology at William and Mary since 1938, and has served as coach for the varsity tennis team, and as Chairman of the Committee on Student Aid.

War Memorial

The Department of Fine Arts has been authorized by President John E. Pomfret to design and carry out a memorial panel to the honored dead of the College of William and Mary during the present war.

The design for the memorial will be in the form of a framed panel; the frame to be marbled in the manner of eighteenth century examples, and the panel to have the names of all faculty and alumni who have sacrificed their lives for their country. The college coat-of-arms will be placed at the top of the panel with a suitable inscription.

It is planned to have this memorial placed in the Wren Building in the very near future. Names will be added as quickly as definite information is secured by the Alumni Office.

the faculty has cooperated beyond the requirements of their office. Giving unstintingly of their free time, they have conducted coach classes, attendance optional, for those who are interested.

There is a certain pride acquired by the soldier assigned to the ASTP here at William and Mary. Not only because he has been screened and selected for specialized training, but also because he has become a part of the college. While circumstances prevent his being able to call her his alma mater, there is born in him a respect for the college community, and for the warm reception tendered him by the civilian students and faculty. The purpose and principles of the institution are felt in varying degrees by even the most cynical of the pseudo case-hardened soldiers. The result of such impressions cannot but be in accordance with the best traditions of William and Mary.

To be in the ASTP, is an honor; to attend the College of William and Mary, is an added honor; to put the "William" back in "William and Mary," is a pleasure.

a difficult one, for never before had it been asked to specialize in the sciences and to train engineers. The Army asked the College to do it; it in turn accepted the challenge. The criticisms were even louder when they found the professors' list of failures resembled the class rolls.

During the first two terms that the ASTP was stationed at William and Mary the physical education program brought forth gripes from the strong and the weak alike. When the Unit started here in August, as well as at the end of each term, the men were given a series of physical fitness examinations designed to test most of the important muscles of the body. The department however, failed to take into consideration the results of these tests and every man was forced to take the same physical training, regardless of his talents, physical deficiencies, or scores in the strength tests. This like many of our other difficulties has been recognized and a change planned.

Under the stress of war the liberal arts college as well as the Army has been forced to do many things which are incongruous with their spirit and aims. Certainly no two things stand further apart than war and the humanities, yet the ASTP has tried and succeeded in bringing them together. Always when two things so different are combined the first product is crude and rough, but as time goes on the finished product becomes smoother and smoother and smoother.
