High on the list of the nation's leading contractors in the defense effort, Cubic Corporation stresses diversification through civilian and industrial application of unique electronic capabilities in its growing program of research, development and production.

Cubic precision tracking systems

- AGAVE: Radar acquisition aid for Project Mercury
COTAR: Range safety on the Pacific Missile Range
DOETS: Missile evaluation on the Eglin Gulf Test Range
ELSSE: Range safety on the Atlantic Missile Range
ITS: Instrumentation for the White Sands Missile Range
MATTS: Weapons-meet scoring on the Eglin Gulf Test Range
MIDAS: Missile evaluation at the Naval Ordnance Test Station
MOPTAR: Air traffic measurement for the Federal Aviation Agency
SECOR: Satellite surveying in Project Transit

Cubic data-handling equipment

- Data storage

Analog/digital data transmission

Cubic Industrial Division products

- ELECTROTAPE: Precision electronic surveying equipment
DIGITAL INSTRUMENTS: Voltmeters, ohmmeters, systems
VOCAMETER: The talking meter
TEST EQUIPMENT: Primary standard wattmeter, klystron power supply transistor curve tracer, waveform generator, peak-power test set Cubic's electronic tracking systems determine the position of aircraft, missiles, drones, satellites and space vehicles with precision unavailable by other means. Multi-target and omni-directional systems are a unique capability of the firm.

By the end of 1960 all three Military Services, the civilian space agency (NASA) and the civilian aviation agency (FAA) will be relying on Cubic products in programs of major significance. Foreign markets will play an increasingly important role in Cubic operations, with negotiations well advanced for Cubic tracking systems on foreign ranges around the world.

In serving the industrial market to broaden the base of its activities, Cubic has developed and marketed Electrotape surveying equipment, which can measure distances as great as 50 miles with an accuracy of ± 1 inch. Cubic Digital Systems are specified as superior instrumentation in both government and industrial applications, and the unique Talking Meter demonstrates the years-ahead engineering effort that goes into an ever-expanding line of Industrial Division products

Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, William and Mary's 23rd president, knows the college from many viewpoints. As a student he worked in the cafeteria and library. He was married to Agnes Winn in the Wren Chapel. He served as an ex-officio member of the Board of Visitors when he was State superintendent of public instruction. For a picture and word portrait of the Paschall family, see page 4.

A New President— A New Spirit

There is a new spirit—one that is enthusiastic and meaningful—on the William and Mary campus.

It is exemplified by Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, the college's 23rd president. He knows and loves William and Mary well. He attained his bachelor's and his master's degrees in history and government from William and Mary. As a student he worked in the college library and waited on tables in the cafeteria. In later years he was married in the Wren Chapel to a former fellow William and Mary student, Agnes Winn. His daughter, Elizabeth, currently is a member of the freshman class.

After a distinguished career in secondary education in Virginia's Department of Education he was appointed in 1957 superintendent of public instruction. As such he also served as an ex-officio member of the William and Mary Board of Visitors.

This past Summer he was called to accept the presidency of his Alma Mater. He took the oath of office August 16, succeeding Alvin Duke Chandler who assumed the duties of chancellor.

Already Dr. Paschall is well known in Williamsburg. He has been welcomed onto the campus and into the community by students, faculty members and townspeople alike.

He frequently is seen about the campus, talking with professors and gardeners, chatting with students about Saturday's football game or leading a pep rally. In town he has been observed ordering a pizza pie or waiting behind a newspaper for his turn in the barber's chair. And he is a popular speaker at Williamsburg civic groups.

Dr. Paschall's cheerfulness, his enthusiasm, his interest in all things William and Mary seem endless. In turn, his sincere, dedicated mood is reflected in William and Mary's new college spirit.

President Paschall humbly has taken on the exciting and challenging job of heading the Williamsburg campus. His feelings about his assignment are contained in a statement issued when he took his oath of office.

It reads:

It is with a deep sense of humility that I undertake the duties of this office. To serve my Alma Mater in this capacity is not only an exceptionally high honor, but also the most cherished opportunity of my life.

Editorial

"The illustrious past of this college is exceeded only by its present potential for future greatness in the cause of higher education which is so increasingly important to this Commonwealth and nation.

"It possesses those attributes that make for quality—a fine faculty and administrative staff, an excellent student body, a dedicated Board of Visitors and a host of loyal alumni.

"Dr. Alvin D. Chandler, in his capacity as president, has made an enviable record of progress. His many accomplishments and his high sense of devotion to duty constitute for me an inspiration and stimulus to hard work and worthy endeavor in carrying forward the excellent program that I find at his hands.

"I pledge to him in his new capacity as chancellor my wholehearted support in the further development of the college and particularly in the contribution it can make to the larger William and Mary system.

"My family joins me in the cherished opportunity for service in the college community as well as in the larger Williamsburg community for which we have had a deep affection for many years."

Homecoming

On Friday and Saturday, October 14 and 15, well over 2,000 alumni returned to the William and Mary campus for the largest Homecoming-class reunion in the history of the college. This successful event saw alumni returning to class, playing in a golf tournament, attending class dinners, football games and class parties. At the annual meeting checks totaling $7,000 were presented to the College along with the Alumni Medallion. Citations for the Alumni Medallions were presented to Jay Wilfred Lambert. For a long and distinguished term of service to your Alma Mater you have won the respect of your fellow-alumni as a distinguished and sympathetic teacher and an able administrator.

Suzanne Garrett Montague—Because of your belief in and support of our even greater College of William and Mary, it is my pleasure to present to you, for service and loyalty, the Alumni Medallion.

IN August a William and Mary graduate took the oath of office as president of the college he once attended. Dr. Davis Young Paschall, '32, formerly Virginia's superintendent of public instruction, then became William and Mary's 23rd president, succeeding Alvin Duke Chandler. Dr. Paschall knows and loves the college which has been so much a part of his life. As an undergraduate he worked in the dining hall and library; later he earned his master's degree in history at William and Mary. He was married to the former Agnes L. Winn, '31, in the Wren Chapel. He always has been associated with the college; before assuming the presidency, he served as an ex-officio member of the Board of Visitors. His arrival again on the Williamsburg campus has been welcomed by faculty members, townspeople and students alike. "His general friendliness and cooperation," the Flat Hat commented editorially, "has inspired us with a new sense of school spirit."

Elizabeth before school started was able to help her mother with some of the many household chores.

Some of Philip Paschall's favorite pastimes are playing basketball and tinkering with a rather "blaring" hi-fi sound system.

A William and Mary family—Elizabeth, or "Tish" as she prefers, is a freshman living in Jefferson Hall; Mrs. Paschall was a student leader during her undergraduate years; Dr. Paschall was an outstanding student, and Philip is a possible future student.

On the Campus

GROWTH—not only in size, but in greatness—is the key word as The College of William and Mary in Virginia embarks on its 268th year.

Since the College unveiled its first, tentative draft of a long-term master plan of development in August, 1959, crucial steps have been taken which will bring William and Mary closer to the realization of her hopes for the future.

The first and most tangible result of the continuous revision process to which the master plan is subject was the execution of a physical site plan of development, which already has been approved by the State Art Commission and approved in principle by the Board of Visitors.

The plan outlines a 10-year building program which would increase the amount of land occupied by the William and Mary campus from 100 acres to about 225 acres, and provides for the construction of a $3,000,000 library, a women's gymnasium, three men's and three women's dormitories, a science building, a fine arts building, a field house, and apartments for faculty members and married students.

This program, considered by the Board of Visitors in May, foresaw 2,900 resident students by 1970. Graphic evidence of the rapidity with which the William and Mary development picture deepens and broadens, however, was provided late in August, when the Board instructed Chancellor Alvin Duke Chandler of the Colleges of William and Mary and President Davis Y. Paschall of the College of William and Mary in Virginia to make plans for the enrollment at the Williamsburg institution, of no less than 4,900 resident day students by 1968. This is more than twice the planned 1960-61 enrollment of 2,300 resident students.

The Board also called for Williamsburg enrollments of 1,400 evening college students, 3,000 extension program students, and 2,200 summer school students, compared with 1959-60's 580 evening college, 1,630 extension, and 1,050 summer school students.

It is assumed that, with this enormous increase in enrollment, the building program will have to be accelerated, or, in any case, revised. Already on tap for construction in the next two years are a new men's dormitory and a women's gymnasium, for which funds have been appropriated by the General Assembly. The new million-dollar campus center building opened in April, 1960, and funds were appropriated by the legislature for the construction of language laboratories and for architect's plans for a new science building.

But the new library, for which a goal of $3,000,000 has been set, continues to be the top priority. Approximately 40 per cent of the needed funds has been received to date, including $1,000,000 allocated conditionally by the General Assembly, which expects the College to raise the rest. Detailed presentations on the library have been submitted by the Office of Development to a large number of philanthropic foundations, and eventual favorable action on these presentations is awaited.

In the meantime, a massive "grass roots" canvass of alumni and friends of the College, in support of the library fund, will get under way. You will be hearing about this—directly from the Office of Development and/or from personal canvassers—this fall.

The new library will be not only the heart of the educational program at William and Mary; it will be the heart of the physical campus. Located behind what is now the rear of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, the library will be the dominant structure in an academic court of six classroom buildings, and will be in the approximate center of the campus as the College moves west toward Matoaka Lake.

But while plans are being developed for the long-range future of the College, members of the faculty and administration are dealing with an even more immediate, annual task—the education of more than 1,500 returning students, 100 new transfer and graduate students, and 675 freshmen.

The 400 men and 275 women in the Class of 1964 are perhaps the most select group of freshmen ever to enroll at William and Mary, having been chosen from a total of over five thousand young men and women who submitted completed applications—an acceptance ratio of less than one in seven.

The new students and the returnees will be greeted by a campus which has been much changed and refurbished since last June. The campus center has undergone a number of corrective changes and will be in full operation for the first time this September. A $40,000 pedestrian tunnel, linking the northern and southern segments of the campus beneath heavily-traveled Jamestown Road, is nearly complete, and a small parking area has been installed near the women's dormitories.

The exteriors of three of the smaller men's dormitories—Morris House, Old Infirmary, and Taliaferro Hall—have been painted, and all plumbing has been replaced in Taliaferro, Monroe, and Old Dominion men's dormitories. Brown Hall, formerly a women's dormitory, will be used for men this year, and additional spaces for 40 women have been leased at a nearby apartment house development where 100 coeds have been accommodated in the past.

With the freshman class will come also some 37 new faces on the faculty and administrative staff. These include: Nathan Altshuler, assistant professor of sociology; Donald L. Ball, instructor in English; Adam Bors, Jr., instructor in modern languages; Garry M. Brodsky, acting assistant professor of philosophy; Hertha Anna Bronsen, instructor in modern languages; Maureen Cay, instructor in modern languages; Capt. James M. Clark, assistant professor of military science; George W. Crawford, associate professor of physics; William F. Davis, Jr., instructor in English; Dante DeFalco, lecturer in men's physical education; Peter Derks, assistant professor of psychology; Gerard Dube, instructor in English; Lt. Col. Thomas Arthur Duke, Jr., professor of military science; Joseph M. Garrison, Jr., instructor in English; Frederick James Glover, associate professor of economics; William A. R. Horwood, assistant professor of men's physical education.

Roderick Airth Ironside, assistant professor of education; Wallace Jackson, instructor in English; R. D. H. Jones, instructor in mathematics; James D. Lawrence, Jr., assistant professor of physics; Mont Linkenauger, lecturer and trainer in men's physical education; Robert Quinn MacLeay, assistant professor of physics; Rosemary MacLellan, instructor in business administration; Richard E. Neel, assistant professor of economics; Richard Bruce Otis, instructor in modern languages; Joan Mary Pattison, instructor in women's physical education; Robert A. Pedigo, assistant professor of biology; William T. Reece, associate professor of business administration; Thomas L. Reynolds, professor of mathematics; Rona Joan Sande, instructor in women's physical education; James W. Sawyer, instructor in fine arts (television and radio); Richard B. Sherman, assistant professor of history; Frederick D. Truesdell, associate professor of music; William C. Turner, assistant professor of mathematics; Eugenia Wasylikiwsky, instructor in modern languages; Fred Wilson Weiler, assistant professor of mathematics; and Lucy Brook Woods, assistant dean of women.

Some very familiar faces, however, will be missing from the campus, among them those of five department heads. Wayne F. Gibbs, chairman of the department of business administration and a member of the faculty for 34 years, has retired, as have Dr. S. Donald Southworth, head of the department of economics, who came to the College in 1927, and Dr. Andrew C. Haigh, head of the department of music.

Algin B. King, professor of business administration, will be acting head of that department for one year, and Dr. Hibbert D. Corey, professor of economics and business administration, will head the economics department, also for one year. Dr. Frederick D. Truesdell, former assistant professor at Washington State University who holds B. M. and M. M. degrees in composition and an M. M. in piano from the University of Michigan, and an A. M. D. from the University of Rochester, will be acting head of the music department.

Dr. Robert C. Yates, head of the department of mathematics, resigned to accept a post at the new University of South Florida, and will be replaced by Dr. Thomas L. Reynolds, who will serve as acting head of the department. Dr. Reynolds was a professor of mathematics at Millsaps College for ten years, and earned his B. S. from Guilford College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina.

Lt. Col. James M. Cake has completed his tour as professor of military science and tactics at William and Mary and has been reassigned by the U. S. Army. He has been replaced by Lt. Col. Thomas A. Duke, Jr.

Along with the new faces, students will be greeted by new courses in ancient languages, economics, chemistry, mathematics, physics, psychology, and sociology. Other courses in the fields of economics, government, and philosophy have been revised and strengthened in depth.

All in all, it would appear that the College is in for an interesting year—although it will have to move quickly indeed to match the activity of the 1959-60 session.

One important move taken recently was the creation of the Institute of Law, Government and Citizenship by a grant of money from the Friends of the College to the Endowment Association in August. The grant stipulates that the Institute is to be established as the continuation of the old Marshall-Wythe School of Government and Citizenship, being financed for the present from private funds. Although the old School of Government and Citizenship ceased operations in 1942, its program has been continued in the form of the Marshall-Wythe Symposium (begun in 1938) and the several activities supported by the Cutler Foundation grant of 1926. It is anticipated that the Institute will operate only a token program until additional supporting funds are obtained—a goal of 1960-61.

William and Mary also has launched a project designed to develop, from the several hundred John Marshall items already in the possession of the College, a full-scale scholarly editorial project. The Institute of Early American History and Culture will cosponsor this project, estimated to cover a period of five to ten years, and the Institute will assume responsibility for canvassing for the necessary funds to finance the undertaking, estimated at about $300,000. William and Mary's collection of Marshall materials is believed to be the largest single group in existence.

Other projects of the College have included its cooperation in planning and organizing the Republic Steel Corporation's employee-education program in American political organization; inauguration of the Virginia Business Index Report, an indexing of state business and economic activity undertaken as a statewide service by the College Bureau of Business Research; the annual Tidewater Tax Conference for attorneys, businessmen and accountants from the Tidewater area; and the creation of a new degree—master in teaching of science.

Enrollments in the Evening College, extension program, and summer session were among the largest ever. During the 1960 summer session, 14 special meetings, seminars and workshops designed for special students and interest groups were held at the College. A total of 450 junior high school and high school bandmen and twirlers attended the 1960 Summer Band School; 88 high school teachers from 17 states attended the second annual institute of science and mathematics.

An Improved Ball Club

POSSESSED of a backfield leaving little to be desired but also a line leaving much to conjecture, there was an air of guarded optimism about Milt Drewer and his William and Mary training camp as the Indians drilled with early morning dew underfoot and afternoon sun searing from above for their crucial inaugural September 17 in Williamsburg against Virginia Military Institute's defending Southern Conference champions.

"This ought to be an improved ball club," observed Drewer, whose 1960 Tribesmen, the first ones recruited wholly by his regime, must face a rugged campaign trail this fall in trying to improve upon last season's record of four wins and six losses.

"We have serious depth problems at fullback, tackle and center," he continued, "but I have every hope they will be alleviated considerably before the season starts. We have one group of really good individuals who should be able to stabilize the team at the beginning and another group of young and eager men, willing to learn. These two groups working together should produce a well-knit unit as soon as they get some game experience under their belts."

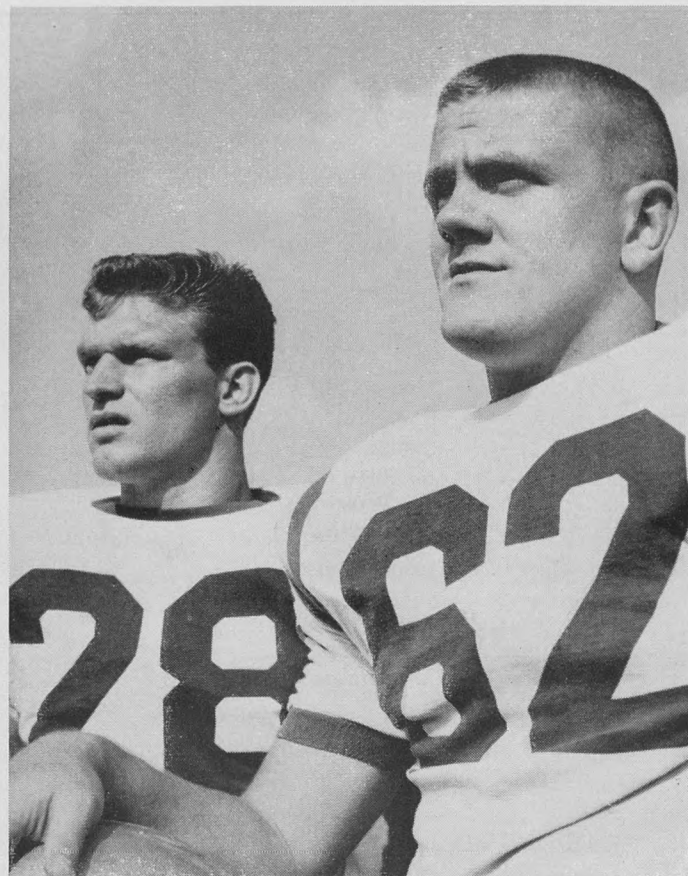

Glancing over to the heavily trod area behind Cary Field where his eight backfield lettermen and their ball-carrying cohorts were running through formations, Drewer prophesied, "This will be a sound, versatile backfield capable of a strong attack both in the air and on the ground. And they should be able to do the job defensively, too, since the added experience of eight veterans should correct the mistakes, particularly in pass defense, which hurt us last fall."

At quarterback, the Indians have three lettermen back in fold: Bob Stoy, Calvin Cox and Dan Barton. All are good runners and passers, skillful ball-handlers. In addition, Cox and Barton are excellent punters and Barton's toe has a well-developed talent for place-kicking. A sophomore, Dan Driscoll, shows good promise but may have to be content with an understudy's role.

Cox was fifth among Southern Conference passers last autumn and seventh in total offense with 563 yards and six touchdown tosses, the favorite terminal for these airborne forays being Roger Hale, the heralded Hopewell scatback. Hale, senior co-captain Jim Porach, Jon Stephenson and Walt Scott give the Indians a plethora of lettered experience at half-back. Hale and the sprightly Stephenson are the elusive running sort, while Porach and Scott provide the power factor, with Hale and Porach the likely starters. Hale finished the 1959 season leading the varsity in pass receiving, punt returns, kickoff returns and scoring (36 points), while ending up second in the race for rushing yardage laurels. Varsity returnee Jim Leffew and soph Bob Irby should provide the support behind Stephenson and Scott.

Although fullback letterman H. C. Thaxton must be ranked among the Southern Conference's finest, there is little experience behind him in the reserve corps. Thaxton is a bull-dozing runner and tough tackler, but sophomores Arnie Jones and Buck Gale must carry the substitute load.

Along the forward wall, the Indians appear well-manned at end and guard, but question marks exist at tackle and center. Letterman Joe Poist and varsity returnee Ernie Phillips are the likely starters on the flanks, while returnees Dennis O'Toole and Gerald File should be engaged in a continuous healthy struggle with bright sophs Ron Jones, Tom Wing and Edwin Jean for second team berths. Says Drewer, "There should be considerably improved play on the ends this fall."

In senior co-captain Wayne Woolwine, Dave Gatti and Eric Erdossy, all lettermen, William and Mary has three of the area's finest guards. Woolwine is a bruiser, picked to second team All-SC honors last fall, while Erdossy and Gatti are both fast, tough men. With a pair of outstanding sophomores in reserve, Bob Soleau and Chuck Puskar, both of whom looked good in spring practice, this should be the Tribe's strongest position in the line.

Letterman Loye Bechtold should be able to hold his own with the best at tackle, but behind him and letterman Wayne Barber, there is much missing in the way of experience. Varsity returnee Calvin Whealton and sophs Martin Nosal and Bryan Pritchard are three men with potential, but also with little game savvy.

Focusing on the pivot, letterman Mike Pokorny performed at guard last season, but he and soph John Gravely, an ex-fullback, have been shifted to center in an attempt to ease the situation there. Sophomore Ron Williams, a star for last year's freshman crew, should also see considerable action.

One of the toughest schedules in recent memory confronts the Tribesmen this autumn, imposing a considerable challenge upon even an "improved ball club." William and Mary can count on encouragingly strong team speed, offensive potential, end play and defensive backfield play. But a series of ten demanding Saturday afternoons can also be counted upon, from the familiar setting of Cary Field to the bayous of Louisiana.

One of the finest home schedule offerings in some time was also initiated when the Indians entertained V.M.I. at Cary Field. The crack Keydets join George Washington University and Virginia Tech in trips to the Reservation, while the Tribe travels to Norfolk against the University of Virginia and to Richmond against the hometown Spiders in a pair of transferred home contests. "We decided to play in Richmond and Norfolk in an effort to offer our alumni and branch colleges in those two cities the opportunity to see us in action," explains Drewer.

After an early season highlighted by a strong Old Dominion flavor, the Tribesmen take on The Citadel and Furman of the SC on road trips, along with two member schools of the nail-tough Southeastern Conference, Tulane and Vanderbilt, plus independent Florida State. The road ahead:

We have truly hit the jackpot for this issue with first-hand news from several we all like to hear from. From Louisville, Ky., Jinny Keeney wrote in late spring, "Art and I have just returned from a five weeks' lecture tour to seven South American medical centers in Brazil Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, and Peru. Art was invited by the Pan-American Association of Ophthalmology to make the lectures this year. . . . Last September I resigned from the last of my work in our Children's Hospital Eye Clinic, and have enjoyed a year as "professional" wife, mother and local PTA president. Am also working on a project on medical history in the Kentucky mountain area, under the guidance of one Arthur Keeney." The Keeneys and their children spent two weeks this past summer at Dennis, on Cape Cod.

From Ginny Doepke Myers, Camp Hill, Penna., we hear that her husband, George, has been made president of the Lemoyne Trust Co. Congratulations to you both! They have three children, Melissa (11), Sally (9), and George Jr. (6). Ginny served as president of their PTA this past year. The Myers family spent their summer vacation this year at Jefferson, Maine, on Lake Damariscotta. Ginny also writes, "George and I visited Williamsburg a year ago in May . . . saw Marion Pate Macon and Dr. Baldwin, now head of the Biology Dept. . . . He wine and dined us and took us on a field trip to Norfolk. . . . We visited the same old haunts and saw the same (?) ole gals sun-bathing on Barrett Roof!"

William L. Slater now lives in La Habra, California, and works as a Research Chemical Engineer for Texaco. He has been granted, as inventor or co-inventor, four U. S. patents and many foreign patents in the fields of chemical processing and equipment design.

Eleanor Ely Mackey and family visited briefly in State College, Penna., this past July and later flew to Kansas for a month's visit with Eleanor's mother. Eleanor wrote that earlier in the summer Ginny (Doepke) and George Myers had stopped with the children to see the Mackeys in Worcester, Mass. Apparently the Mackeys were travelling through New Jersey and trying in vain to reach us by phone at the same time we were in Massachusetts and unable to get in touch with them! Hope you all had a pleasant, conventional (!) summer. We certainly did here and are happy to start the fall with an unconventional letter—one with actual news, that is.

We received a wonderful letter from Dee Hampton (Mrs. Harry Simpson, 1153 Midwood Drive, Rahway, N. J.) She and Bud (who is with Standard Oil) have a nine year old son, Robert, the type who is interested in everything! Dee therefore keeps very busy as a Cub Scout Den Mother and school Class Mother. She works for the Junior League, Woman's Club, and the P.T.A. as well. The Simpsons enjoyed a visit in July with "Sis" Jerry Vassar, her husband Ding (a Captain in the Air Corps) and their three girls who were en route to Fort Benning, Ga. (633 Gibson Drive). Dee and "Sis" hadn't seen each other for eight years, so there was much happy chatter as they went over the pages of old Colonial Echoes together. The Simpsons still hear from Eleanor King Bowman, '41 and Cleo Tweedy Stuart, '42. Dee also sees Dorothy Hope Baum, '46 at the Junior League meetings. Dee and "Sis" will both be present for Homecoming in October, this being the sixth year in a row for the Simpsons, 'cause they always have such a good time. Classmates, take note!

A change of address card came in from Marian Ross Karrick, formerly of Alexandria. Please write her c/o Lt. Col. S. N. Karrick, Jr., Student Detachment, U.S. Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa. Emily Snyder Alexander, Jim and their two children will move to that very same address in September.

Jerry Hyman was married July 5th to the former Isabelle Pack of Riverdale, N. Y. Mrs. Hyman was graduated from Vassar College and received her M.A. degree from Columbia. Best wishes to you both!

Dixon Foster was elected President of the Chesapeake Banking Co. on July 11th to fill the position formerly held by the late Senator Robert Norris since 1920. Congratulations, Dick!

Jack Carter and Jim Kelly, through some fine detective work, were able to locate H. E. Bruce Simmons. Bruce has been living in South America for 10 years, mostly in Quito, Ecuador and Lima, Peru as an Airline Captain with Pan American Grace Airways (Panagra). His address is 7145 S.W. 95th St., Miami 56, Florida.

After selling their home and building business in Waukegan, Illinois, Ann Singer Banes and her family, which includes five children, moved to Phoenix, Arizona. 327 East Monte Way is located at the foot of South Mountain, and with back yard adjacent to a golf course, and the warm dry climate the Banes seem very happily situated. Ann ran into Betty Sue Nunn Gray at a Pi Phi meeting there. Her husband is with Motorola and they have four children. Betty Sue had seen Mac Kaemeale Quinto who was in Phoenix early this year.

Bob Horowitz had a trip to Panama in May and plans to go to London in September to purchase a sailboat and if he has enough time off he plans to try to sail it back. He lives in San Francisco and commutes to Lockheed's Missile and Space Division at Palo Alto.

We have a long lost address. It is for Billy Long Bralls, (Mrs. Ralph) at 6722 Bobby Boyar, Canoga Park, California. Would like to have other news of her. As of now we know she has two girls and two boys.

A very outstanding alumnus is Bill Hubard who lives in Roanoke and is a past president of the Roanoke Chapter, W. and M. Alumni Association. Bill has just been named Father of the Year, and was pictured with his family with an interesting write-up in the Roanoke World-News, June 7, 1960. Our apologies to all who were dismayed by the longish absence of the '49 column—unfortunately there were circumstances "beyond our control" and we shall now hasten to bring you up to date on our extensive backlog of news.

First, a delightful letter from Audrey (Allein) Hoitsma, who tells of her visit with Penny (Allenbaugh) Goodsill, husband Stan, and two girls now living at 186 Sawmill Road, Stamford, Conn. Audrey had also been in touch with Sallie (Adams) McBride who had moved to Vestal, N.Y., where George is an instructor in the IBM school. As for the rest of Audrey's news I take the liberty of quoting directly; "Marie (Blair) Alaly and Bob were transferred to California, and their address is 7414 Dunbarton Avenue, Los Angeles. Carol (Achenbach) Taylor and Warren moved to another house in Atlanta, where Carol has a fantastic list of activities—television appearances, choral work, to name a few. Received a birth announcement from Pat Arnold Adams and Bob of their fourth child, second son, named Bruce Arnold. As for us, last spring we bought some property on a lake in New Hampshire—it's just over an hour from Andover so we felt fortunate to find what we wanted. Lou had already accepted a National Science Foundation grant for a summer institute at Bowdoin College in Maine, so we weren't able to spend the entire summer. We'd love to see anyone there in summer and, as enticement, we're in marvelous antique country and there are always good auctions every week. Don't believe I've written since the Mikulas became our next door neighbors last year. We are in the same dorm—Lou housemasters one side and Tom the other. They are both math instructors and coached one of the football teams here together."

Another faithful correspondent from whom we hear at least once a year is Diana (Wedel) Riley, whose girls are now 5 and 4 respectively. Had a long letter, too, from Jane Oblender Atwater. She and Howe had lived in Minnesota for seven years, but are now in Lancaster, Pa. where Howe is vice-president of a furniture store. They have a girl, Charlotte 10, and two boys, Ricky 8 and Pierce, 4. Howe is ranked # 2 in the central Pa. Lawn Tennis Association, and Jane # 7. Also, Howe is ranked # 7 in the Middle States Lawn Tennis Assoc., with Vic Seixas # 1. Jane manages to see Dot Ferenbaugh, executive with TIME in New York, now and then, and visits there with Trinka Robinson Moore and family. An SOS herewith for Anne Hirsch, also, whom Jane has been trying to track down for some time, and our thanks to Jane for a fine, newsy letter. Information gathered through newspaper and press clippings include the following: Robert E. Baxter has been appointed as an advertising account executive for Cargill, Wilson and Acree Inc. of Richmond. John McCrary Jr., assistant professor of Psychology at Dartmouth College, has been awarded a Danforth Foundation Teacher Study Grant for the 1960-61 academic year. Richard D. Carter has been appointed manager of information services at the Westinghouse steam division, in Lester, Pennsylvania, and resides at 211 Fairview Road, Springfield with his wife, two daughters, and son, Richard Jr. Patsy Bering is pursuing a successful career in the field of medical technology, assisting Dr. Oscar Hunter, chief pathologist for Doctor's Hospital in Washington. She is also president-elect of the American Society of Medical Technologists, and lives in an apartment in Arlington, where she relaxes with her hobbies of photography and hi-fi music.

Ed Wayland, who lives in Longview, Washington with his wife Yvonne and daughter Kathryn, works for the Reynolds Metals Co. as an engineer. He was elected state vice-president of the Washington State Junior Chamber of Commerce for 1960-61.

As for the Barrons, we are finally well settled in our Teaneck, New Jersey house, and happy to be in home territory again. Have had pleasant re-unions with Alice (Baxley) Anthony, and Babs (Griffin) Whitaker who has her hands full with the young twins. Lack of response to my perennial appeal for news forces me into an Earl Wilson/Stewart Alsop type reporter. In this capacity I assume only the responsibility for writing up X number of inches to fill out the column. Come on, let's have some help on the next issue.

October 14 and 15 are dates I trust many of you have reserved for a return to Williamsburg. If the publicity the Society is putting out is any indication, this year's Homecoming and 10th reunion for '50 should be in the finest tradition. Joanne and I have already started looking through the year book to "bone up" on a few names and faces. In further preparation for our return to the "Burg", I am even considering going on a diet to dispose of a few extra pounds I have accumulated since last seeing most of you. (Can't stop prosperity!) I caution you though, this diet is only in the planning stage. I'm reserving the right to junk the whole idea and come just as I am. The B W and I look forward to seeing you all in Williamsburg and having a grand time.

Got a corker of a news release from the University of Georgia concerning Dr. Jack Payne. Jack is head of the Department of Bacteriology at the University and has received the M. G. Michael Award for distinguished research. Awards and grants are apparently not new to Jack as the article goes on to say he has been the recipient of several National Science Foundation grants and is currently working on a grant from the Atomic Energy Commission. Not bad, Jack!

Elbert Clarke has advised the Society of his change of address from Lawrenceville, Va. to Waynesboro, Va. Valley living apparently agrees with the Clarkes—Elbert occupies himself as an accountant and Mrs. Clarke (Lorene Thomas) cares for two daughters as well as for their new home which was recently featured as a Home of the Week. It's nice to hear of the Clarkes.

An issue or so ago I reported my then recent discovery that Randy Elliot was a resident of Cleveland. Subsequently, I called Randy only to find that he had moved his company, The Centrifix Corp., (Randy is President) lock, stock and barrel to Houston, Texas. Randy, sorry I missed you in Cleveland. Drop a line and fill me in on all the why's and wherefor's of your move to Texas.

We had a nice surprise a few weeks back. T. Marston Taylor, a friend of many in '50, dropped in for a visit while her husband, Pat, was in town on business. Needless to say, T and Joanne talked furiously for several hours, Another summer's been 'n' gone, and where were you with your letters??? Here is what we have accumulated since the last column.

Our not-too-distant "bit" about the wanderings of Bill Wilson has been supplemented by a magnificent clipping from the Albany, N. Y. Times-Union entitled "Artist Has Soul of an Adventurer". (Now how many of you K A's suspected you were harboring an adventurer in your midst in the good ol' days?) Bill's doings are chronicled to include a trip to Europe, being a member of a yacht crew which attempted to salvage parts of an old passenger-freight ship, working in New Zealand (this locale brings Bill's wife Freda into the story, since they were married in Auckland), becoming the owner of a 28-foot sloop which wrecked on a reef, and then returning to the states to eventually take up the task of being a sculptor, painter and teacher at State University College of Education in Albany. Completing the Wilson household are Roberta, Larry, Roderick, (children) and Henry (dog) and George (cat).

Miss Virginia Prichard who has worked during the summer term for the last two years for Dean Lambert at William and Mary will sail from New York on September 2 for Rome, Italy where she will teach English in a private school.

Had a most enjoyable afternoon chat with a fellow Penningtonian who turned out to be classmate Mary Alyce (Harvey) Tuska. She, Jim, and 2 year old Jeanette have just moved into their recently-finished new home, and it's so nice to have someone to reminisce with. Jim is with R C A in nearby Princeton.

Life with the Smiths returns to fairly normal now that we have weathered through the production of our first "annual" Horse Show for the Jaycees. Never knew how much work went with this Lone Ranger bit, but a good time was had by all, and now we are being drawn into kindergarten-type activities (for Heidi) and creeper-type activities (for Laurie). How about some news of your children?

Kay Gilman was married recently. I didn't receive any details except that she is living in Long Beach, California.

Births are the big news this time. Marthanne Hodges Luzader had twins recently. Again, no details.

Charlotte Henderson Lewis had a baby girl on June 23. It was a girl, named Laura Ellen. The Lewis' are moving in the next few days to a new home in McLean, Virginia. Jim is an attorney with an Arlington law firm.

The Cary Scates have their third addition now, I understand.

ANNA Belle (Koenig) Nimmo believes in the wise advice: "May ye live each day of your life." And the William and Mary alumna of 1945 certainly has lived up to one of her favorite quotations.

Her interests—she calls them her "loves"—form an unusual combination which she has managed to blend together skillfully during the past 15 years: the theater, horses, travel, writing and painting.

After graduation the theater came first. She appeared in the initial season of "The Common Glory" as the Widow Huzzitt, the female comic lead in the outdoor drama, and then after the Summer had passed she headed to New York to study more drama. She appeared in a Town Hall review, some off-Broadway productions and out-of-town shows. In 1949 Anna Belle met Joseph W. Nimmo, then stage manager and set designer for a Summer stock show in Johnstown, Pa. They were married that Winter.

After continuing in the theater for a while, the Nimmos moved to Colorado where Anna Belle's love for horses began to take over. In 1954 she and her husband settled near Denver, purchased some Appaloosa colts and raised alfalfa.

Three years ago the Nimmos became partners in a business venture—"The Hitching Post," a shop which carries Western clothing and saddlery. And they began to collect old horse-drawn buggies, stagecoaches and a Concord wagon, which, in time, they displayed in a museum behind their store.

The hobby of gathering ancient buggies became a business during Colorado's centennial year of 1959 when the carriages were special attractions at Pioneer Village, a miniature Western town erected in Denver for the celebration.

Last Summer the Nimmos opened a Western Store at Magic Mountain, a new million dollar amusement park not too far from Denver. Their 19th Century buggies are set up in a free museum, along with the hearse that carried Carrie Nation to her grave.

And between her busy careers Anna Belle has had time for travel, a little writing and her collection of paintings.

When she was in New York pur-

Anna Belle Nimmo '45

suing her acting career she took time to visit Guatemala and Cuba. And while in Colorado she traveled about "the beautiful Southwest" with her husband who then was a salesman.

Anna Belle the author is another facet of her life. She has had an original monologue published and with her father co-authored the book "Knock on Our Door." An article by Anna Belle also appeared in the first issue of "Colorado Sportsman," a magazine she reported "died utterly after the first issue."

The Nimmos are fond of painting and, whenever possible, add to their collection. They possess "Breathless Pace," a work by the magnificent American artist Horsep Pushman, a friend of Anna Belle's.

The Nimmos have one nine-year-old son, Taun Franklin Nimmo. Taun, explains Anna Belle, is an Indian name meaning "Little Chief Wet Cloud."

Anna Belle somewhat unconsciously divides her post-William and Mary years into two periods, the "Eastern Period" when she was following the trail to Broadway's footlights and the "Western Period" when she rides the sagebrush trail.

After all this succession of activity, writes Anna Belle, "Next year I'm going to be ready for a rest." But that seems unlikely for someone who lives each day of her life to the fullest.

Greetings once again. We managed to scrape together a little news over the summer, so here goes. . . .

A letter from Sue (Whaley) Howard tells us that in June she and Roland and daughter, Wendy, visited Sue's home in Westfield, N. J. and while there, attended the wedding of Luise Klingelhofer and Peter Dyke. Bev (Greene) Adcock traveled up from Raleigh, N.C. to be an attendant in the wedding. Sue tells us that Jim Thomson is teaching mathematics in Jacksonville, Fla. Larry Babcock and his wife are also living in Jacksonville. The Howards had a visit at their home in Corning, N.Y. from Fahy (Baker) and Warren Lowe. Sue and Roland are looking forward to a new addition to their family this fall.

A letter from Pat Wells tells us that she and her sister had a wonderful tour through Europe this summer. They visited Elle (Lundberg) Martling and husband, John, and two children in Naples, Italy. The Martlings were planning to return to the 'States' in July. Pat heard from Tribble King that she and a friend took a trip out West this summer, stopping in Denver, Colo. to visit Dot Chapman.

A letter from Joanne (Napolino) Bickel tells us that after the middle of September she and Alex will be moving from Washington and will reside at 7 Briar Lane, New Haven, Conn., where Alex will resume his regular position as instructor at Yale.

A very welcome letter from Rita (Englebert) Cordill tells us that Rita and Roland and son, Chris, moved from Berkeley, Calif. last March to Phoenix, Ariz. Having received a graduate degree in business administration at the U. of Cal., Roland is a management trainee with American Airlines in Phoenix. The Cordills plan to be in Phoenix for at least a year. Rita has extended an invitation to any W&Mite in their area to come join them in their swimming pool (which is mighty nice when the thermometer reaches 108°) at their home at 4400 North 21st St., # 7.

Harry and I had a most enjoyable visit from Jean (Wyckoff) and Rod Mercker this summer. Rod and "Wyck" were spending part of their vacation in NYC, on Cape Cod and in Nantucket, so stopped off to see us during their travels. They also visited with Randy and Mary Alice Hoes and their son in Wayland, Mass. The Merckers are enjoying their new home in Wheaton, Md., and at this point find it a real challenge to keep one step ahead of the weeds in their garden. All you "homeowners" can sympathize, I'm sure! Rod is working with NIH in Bethesda, and Wyck is enjoying her position with the American Alumni Council in Washington. The Alumni Council had their annual convention in D.C. in July, and Wyck enjoyed seeing Jim and Bev Kelly there.

Our Alumni Office tells us that Gerald Schneider and Allen "Buddy" Gardner received in June, their degrees of Doctor of Medicine from G.W. Medical School in Washington. Also, Gary Joachim received his medical degree from the Chicago Medical School in June. Gary plans to do his internship at Bellevue Hospital in NYC, specializing in internal medicine.

Barton H. Tayer of Brooklyn, New York received his DMD degree from Tufts University School of Dental Medicine in June 1960.

It's that time again, and by hook or crook, I'll get this letter together. Many, many thanks to those of you who have written this summer—it certainly has been a great help.

Cammie (Day) Montague writes that she and Dave are still in Charlottesville and will be there until January, when he will graduate from the U. Va. Law School. They then plan to go to Hampton until April, when the Army will take them and their daughter, Suzanne Stewart, to Texas. Pat (Kelley) Whitfield and Windy are leaving, or have left, Mt. Clemens, Michigan, to go to Laon, France. (Windy is an Air Force pilot.) They have two daughters, ages one and two. Diane (Montague) and Jim Morsey, with son Scott Leigh, returned to the U.S. last May and are stationed at Ft. Eustis. Jim is now a captain in the Transportation Corps. Strangely enough, Anne (Lee '57) and John Bruen have moved just a few doors up from them. (Diane's address is TOCC 61-1, Transportation School, Ft. Eustis, Va.) Sally (Gearhart) and Robert Somerville will begin teaching for the third year in September. Bob is teaching fifth grade in a Chardon, Ohio, public school. Sally is teaching college preparatory math in Burton, Ohio, public schools, and will receive her M.A. in library science at Kent State University, in Kent, Ohio, in August, '61. In spite of all these towns mentioned, they live only in Chardon. Lina Linton will be teaching in California next year, and Eve Mapp taught remedial reading in Virginia Beach during summer school. Bobbie Ramsey sailed for Europe July 21st. She sent a post card of the Alps—said she liked England best, but they didn't "dig a Southern accent." Jack Herring is in Richmond working for Ernst & Ernst Accounting Firm. John Graham graduated in November of '59 from O.C.S. at Newport, R.I., and is now serving as an Ensign, U.S.N.

Art Gingold dropped a note just after my last letter was sent in in May. After June '58 he worked with an accounting firm for a while, then came Our Country's call, and in January, '59, he attended Naval O.C.S. In April '59 he was commissioned as Ensign. After six more months of training—this time in Athens, Georgia, to be a supply officer—he was assigned as supply officer, in November, to the new Navy destroyer, U.S.S. Lester (DE-1022), with the home port at Newport, R.I. He had been there six months in May with trips all around the North Atlantic, six wild weeks in the Caribbean, and plans for a couple of months in Northern Europe this fall. John Morton has been leading a busy life too. In May he was elected president of the American Institute of Architects chapter at Tulane. He also received a $400 honorable mention award in a national home design competition sponsored by Edison Electric Institute. His design was of a two bedroom, two bath home, with full house power, for Southeastern U.S. This brought a $200 companion award from the Tulane School of Architecture also. John's plan was one of 191 submitted from fifteen accredited schools of architecture. Congratulations! More degrees are being piled on our classmates. Ruth Cox received her master's degree this June in Early American History from the U. of Delaware. Marion Murray finished for an M.S. at Harvard Medical Center, and is going to Madison, Wisconsin, to work on a three-year Ph.D. program in neurophysiology.

Gail and Ross Filion are at this time planning to move to Princeton. Willie and Verg

McKenna ('57) will be there also working on a Ph.D. Verg got an M.A. at Swarthmore and taught a year at Clarendon. Melissa Smith was at W&M this summer taking an advanced studies course in history. Bev Wilson was there, relaxing from her graduate studies at the U. of California. Ed Walton is out of the Army and finished W&M last year. Sue Davis and Carol Sue Williams, who spent last year teaching school in one of Texaco Oil Company's colonies in Venezuela, were spending the summer traveling our eastern sea-coast. They love South America—roar over to the Caribbean almost every week-end to boat and water-ski. Mary Anne Breeze is no longer in California, but working in Hawaii. Dave Shepardson is working for the Marketing Division of Reynolds Metals in Richmond. Liz (Mitchell) and Phil Day have moved to New Philadelphia, Ohio, for about two years. They were hoping to rent a house in Dover, New Philadelphia's twin city, where Liz will teach for her third year—with a combination third and fourth grades. Phil has been made the new and first assistant manager of the Chamber of Commerce there at New Philadelphia—whose C. of C. was in second place of all the U.S. last year. Bev (Burgess) and Bob Burchette were moved to Richmond on July 1st by the Telephone Company and have bought a home. Hew (Hurt) Barnes is living in Waynesboro, Va., now. Virginia Coomes is planning a Texas vacation to visit her sister. Alice Perry and Ray Linker were married August 6 at 4 p.m., in Wren Chapel, and will settle in Wrightsville Beach, N. C., where Ray is from. Mary Dunham married Attorney Daniel R. Minnick (Dickerson College '54, Dickerson Law School) on August 6, at noon in the Wren Chapel. (Busy day.) Dan is the Assistant United States Attorney for the middle district of Pennsylvania. After a northern honeymoon they will live in Scranton, Pa. Anne Shoosmith and Jim McInnes ('56) have announced wedding plans for November. Bob Bradley married Gertrude Kratschmann on June 4 in the Panzer Kasern Chapel, Böblingen, Germany, and has re-enlisted in the Army for another year, to end in July, 1961. Margaret Mullins and "Dig" Ansty are to be married in October, and plan a Bermuda honeymoon. Ginny (Kendall) and Bruce Cooper are expecting to be parents on December 24. Bruce has been dairy packaging salesman since January with the entire state of Wisconsin as his sales territory. Ginny will quit her job as church secretary in October. She said she had been filling a few "singing dance jobs in the area" last spring also. Sounds busy. Anne (Walker) Elliot had a baby girl, Karen Gregory, on June 23, and Cissy (Smith) Spivey ('56) had a boy, Don, Jr., a few days earlier. Jane Lee and Phil Dinman had a baby girl, Shannon Lee, the first week in July. Mary Aleese (Shaw) and Jay Schreiber became parents of a boy, Scott Patrick, on July 14. Faye (Jones) Burke ('57) was in Bedford, Va., this summer while Tom was in camp. They have a girl and are expecting another child.

Just heard that Wiley Herring is in charge of shore patrol in Sascho, Japan. He graduated from OCS at Newport in December, 1958, and was sent there as an Ensign. After many harrowing experiences tracking AWOL's and such, he became a Lieutenant j.g.

Summer is pretty well shot now, and believe me from all the activities I've heard going on among our classmates, they must be, too. Europe has claimed a good representation of them . . . Marsha Schwartz, Corky McCorquedale, Lucy Corr, Joyce Hayter, C. J. Adams, Diana Jacobs (a flying trip to France for Barbara Beasley's wedding in Paris and a little traveling of her own), Barry Martin who's meeting up with Gabe Wilner, buying a car, and really covering territory . . . incidentally, Barry's teaching assistantship at the U. of Washington in Seattle has been renewed while he studies for his doctorate in American History.

Roney (Chesson) Morton had to leave John in New Orleans on her trip to Richmond where she visited with Bev Harris (AXO) who's riding around in a cute foreign car, Ann August who's home from Boston for the summer, Sue Reese who still loves Virginia Beach; of the Class of '58 she saw Bev (Burgess) and Bob Burchette, Ginny (Fleshman) Gada who'll be teaching 1st grade this fall, Melissa Smith who was studying in Billsburg and looking forward to a trip to the Virgin Islands, BiJi Nunn who taught Summer School Middle East at the College, Frank Elliott who's studying and Betsy (Stafford) Elliott who's been working this summer at Eastern State.

A letter from Judy Neisuler, now Mrs. Harvey A. Levine and who transferred Jr. year to Russell Sage in Troy, NY, is delighted with their latest addition, Deborah Anne. Another first addition came to Penny (Witzmann) and Bob Nelson in July, Lori Jean. Penny and Bob were in Petersburg for a while but have returned to New Jersey.

News of several promotions came my way. . . Robert Hedgepeth was named Relief Supervisor in Sealtest Food's Washington plant, and Diane Rievinus was promoted to Asst. Registrar at the Museum of Modern Art here in the City. Congratulations.

Joan (English) and John McIntire are still in Richmond where John has another year at MCV Dental School. Joan saw Kathy (Brubaker) and Jim Hoover who have a wonderful old house in Harrisonburg. Another Richmonder, Bev Harris, has been a substitute clerk at MCV this summer before returning to teaching. She says Peggy Grant plans to teach 3rd grade again this fall in Henrico County. She saw Edna Gregory portraying Widow Huzzit in "The Glory". Word also that Ginny (Anderson) and Jack Pollard are living in Roanoke and Ginny is teaching 1st grade. Jane (Boorman) and Chip Archer have moved to Havelock, N.C.

Bev Harris (KKG) told me of her wedding plans for August 13th to Ed Jenkins; they'll set up house in Newport News. Barb (Tomblor) Corey who was in her wedding also took a trip to California to see Jane Harris and then on to New York to meet Tom; she says Diane Voegelin who's been in NY this year is in Norfolk for the summer; good news of Sarah Derry's engagement to Samuel Edward Callahan with an August wedding planned and future home in Denver.

Sue Singer, now Mrs. Geryld Krogfus, the wife of an American vice-consul in Perth, Australia was described in an Australian newspaper as "a young, vivacious American eager to catch her first glimpse of Melbourne—her first Australian port." The voyage to that port was their honeymoon, having been married in Charleston, South Carolina on July 9, 1960.

I spent a terrific day on Beacon Hill in Boston with Lynn McDaniels, Patty Jo Divers, and Joanne Farrell. They are all having the times of their lives, and no wonder, they're in a terrific location for it. However, Patty Jo is moving to D.C. and will be rooming with Anne Brown and Gracie Munson. Also more good news, Patty Jo is engaged to Ralph Hinkle '58 who has recently gone out to California.

Lt. Bill Meuse is now located with the 574th Ordnance Co. at Bussac, France. Which reminds me, I've not heard too much from the men in our class. Where are you and what are you doing these days?

I had the pleasure of going to the M.S. America recently with Jay Rutherford and Mike Glass '62 for a Bon Voyage party for Barbara Cassady who sailed for Le Havre. From there she goes to Brussels, Belgium where she'll be located at the American Embassy. All you European travelers are welcomed to look her up, you lucky ones! Brother, I bet she has a grand time, 2 years of it, no less!

I welcome much more news. There are still many of you from whom I've not heard a peep. I love mail and we'd all like to know what's up these days.

This picture illustrates "gay times" of the eighteenth century as might have taken place at Williamsburg. The modern counterpart is one of the Old Virginia Weekends, to be featured this winter at Williamsburg Inn and Lodge.

Three types of special weekend are available: the Hobby-craft Weekend, Colonial Weekend, and Williamsburg Homes Weekends. Each of them feature special activities, banquets, sightseeing, sports activities, and fine accommodations.

The package prices for these are $25 per person at the Williamsburg Lodge and The Motor House and $30 per person at the Williamsburg Inn, double occupancy. This includes two nights' lodging, all activities, special parties, admittance to the exhibition buildings, Saturday luncheon, and the famous Groaning Board banquet.

Write to Mary Thompson, Reservation Manager, Colonial Williamsburg, for complete information concerning these special Williamsburg weekends, available December 16-18 and each weekend during January and February.
