Sorority Court was the scene of near-chaos as the week-long formal sorority rush came to an end. The portion of bedlam shown on this month's cover is the "Grand Rush" when sisters and pledges meet for the first time after the final parties. For a look at the excitement and lavishness of these final parties, alumni (especially alumnae) should check the story beginning on page 6.

THE LONELIEST OF MEN

MEMBER AMERICAN ALUMNI COUNCIL

THE College of William and Mary has known some dark moments in her long life of service to Virginia, the nation, and mankind. Yet in each of these critical times there has been a persistent belief among her faculty, students, alumni, and thoughtful friends that has guided the College, protected her birthright, and insured her future.

In the early 1700's the College was located in a wilderness called Middle Plantation situated on the high ground between the York and James rivers. Her only companion in this forest primeval aside from the "deere and Indian" was the Church of Bruton Parish, which is said to have stood in some form since 1674. At this time Governor Nicholson was looking for a new capital, the move made necessary by the burning of the statehouse at Jamestown. His primary requirement seems to have been to find a place "freer from the annoyance of muskettoes". However, Queen Anne had a more important consideration, for in the preamble to the Act passed in the fourth year of her reign, 1705, when Williamsburg was founded, is this pronouncement, "It will prove highly advantageous and beneficial to his Majesty's Royal College of William and Mary to have the conveniences of a town near the same." Thus did the Capitol come to Williamsburg; and with it the great minds of the 17th century that brought vitality and dynamic scholarship to the College.

Following the Revolution the Capitol of Virginia moved to Richmond and with this move went the College's greatest asset. There was some talk of moving the College of William and Mary to Richmond. In fact every member of the College faculty, save one (Professor of Law, James Semple) favored the move as well as the Board of Visitors. However, the move was checked by Mr. Jefferson and his political ally Joseph C. Cabell. Both feared that the move of the College to Richmond would prove too much of a rival for the new university being built at Charlottesville.

Yet, even in the quiet little eastern Virginia village of Williamsburg it appeared that the College of William and Mary would survive and flourish. Thomas R. Dew became her president in 1836 and under his leadership the College enjoyed new life and new direction. But the fates had another string to pluck and with the firing on Fort Sumter, the students, the faculty, and even Lord Botetourt removed themselves, the doors of the College were closed and the campus became a battlefield.

Following the War Between the States President Benjamin S. Ewell returned to the campus. What feelings he must have had as he stood, hat in hand, on the front campus viewing the ruins of the Wren Building. With vigor and resourcefulness, he set out to restore the College. From all over the nation, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, war-ravaged Virginia, and even England came gifts. The Wren Building was rebuilt and classes resumed but not for long. The effort and costs to rebuild had been too much, the endowment was gone. The professors were dismissed, the students sent home, and only the old president remained.

Thus, as William and Mary had begun as a dream in the heart of one man, again her destinies were entrusted to one individual, their Majesty's College had run a complete cycle from dream to dream and all that could be heard was the tolling of the bell and all that could be observed was the grey-haired president making the rounds of a watchman.

It is difficult when reading of President Ewell not to reflect on the thoughts that must have occupied his every waking hour. He was an old man and if suddenly he should have joined the "great majority" in all probability his beloved College would also have perished. This haunting thought was certainly the underlying factor in the intensity of his correspondence. Hardly a day passed that he did not write one more letter hoping that this one might bring the answer to his hope that "some northern man will immortalize himself by reendowing William and Mary College, and that it will be again as useful as it has been in the past."

History has given us many individuals to serve as examples of the unfortunate conditions of mankind. Most surely this president of the forgotten College of William and Mary was the loneliest of men. He was sworn before God and man to perpetuate her heritage; yet he lacked the power and support to accomplish his task; but so long as he lived and carried the true spirit of the College within his heart, there was hope.

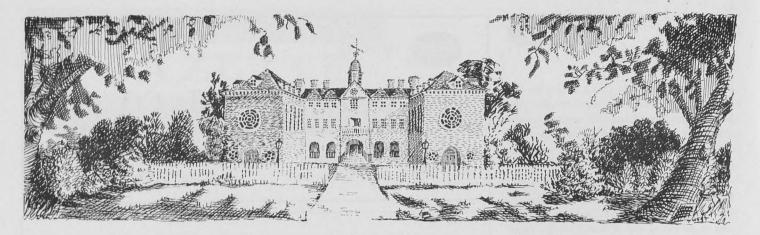

We are proud to have served the financial needs of The College of William and Mary-faculty, alumni, and studentssince 1897. Two convenient locations-Duke of Gloucester Street and 120 Monticello Avenue.

On the Campus

By Sandy McNair

T HAPPENS EVERY SPRING: Scholarship winners were announced, speeches given, "student apathy" overcome briefly, and quarrels among various campus factions aired as the usual warm, wet spring hit the William and Mary campus and left its traditional wake of daydreaming, cut classes and "jockeying" on the corner.

Five scholars from the College received Woodrow Wilson Fellowships to bring the College's total since the establishment of the graduate awards in 1945 to 24, first in the South for a college of its enrollment. Recipients of the fellowships were Lion Gardiner Miles of William'sburg, a history major; Vida Kenk of Alexandria, a biology major; Roger Earls of Norton, a mathematics major; Evelyn Stearns of Arlington, a chemistry major; and Kenneth Simonsen of Sound Beach, New York, a philosophy major.

Gail Dorset, a Latin major from Clayville, received a three-year, $6,600 National Defense Graduate Fellowship; she plans to work for her doctorate in Latin at the University of Washington. Mary Beatty, a French major from Barboursville, was named the Draper Scholar for 1961-62; she will study medieval English at Somersville College of Oxford University. Bill Bryant, sports writer for the Alumni Gazette and active in many phases of publications work, received the newly-established Rex Smith Scholarship at the College for outstanding journalists. This scholarship has been established in memory of William D. Smith, Jr., who attended the College from 1916 until 1918. He began his journalistic career in 1919 with the Detroit News. During his lifetime he was the editor of Newsweek and the Chicago Sun. The scholarship is awarded on the basis of academic achievement, demonstrated journalistic competence, participation in the College's publication activities and the choice of journalism as a career.

A re-creation of the famed Stamp Act Debate highlighted the annual Marshall-Wythe Debate Tournament held at William and Mary in the first part of February. Hosting seems to have its problems as well as its joy because the usual high flying College team finished low in the tournament which was won by the University of Florida. The Debate Squad also participated in meets at Dartmouth, Pittsburgh, and Brooklyn College.

Cultural highlights of the second semester have included the New York Pro Musica, Dave Brubeck, novelist Marguerite Yourcenar, a William and Mary production of Blithe Spirit, the Marshall-Wythe Symposium, a recital by Dr. Frederick Truesdell, acting head of the music department, and a student-written play which went to the Yale Drama Festival.

The 1961 Marshall-Wythe Symposium deals with Challenge and Opportunity in Africa. Among speakers heard so far are Professor Michael Flack of the University of Pittsburgh, Dr. Guy Johnson of the University of North Carolina, and Dr. L. Gray Cowan of Columbia University.

An honorary scholastic society for freshman women, Alpha Lambda Delta, received its local charter, and 38 coeds were invited to join. Initiation and installation ceremonies will be April 28. Ten students from Chile visited the campus for two weeks under auspices of the Institute in International Education; teas, dancing, and informal Spanish lessons enlivened their visit.

Two students, Bob Wachs and Scott Glenn, saw their first play, which they had co-authored, produced at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Auditorium and then sent to the Yale Drama Festival. There Are Lies Like Truth attracted a crowd of over 500 to its single night stand.

The plans for the construction of a new men's dormitory were released. The dorm, scheduled for completion in late 1961, will be a brick and glass structure "more modern than Phi Beta Kappa" and will be located on the old CCC field. It is the first step in fulfillment of the Master Plan for expansion.

The Choir, under "Pappy" Fehr's skilled direction, made two appearances on the NBC Great Choirs program; they also sang before a meeting of diplomats from 22 of the newer nations in Williamsburg. The Backdrop Club, campus theatrical group, dropped plans to do an original musical because of technical difficulties and decided on the smash hit Finian's Rainbow instead.

Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity kidnapped all the sorority housemothers and held them for ransom to kick off the Campus Chest Week drive. Penny-Coed nights in which coeds could stay out an extra hour, a Carnival, dance and the Variety Show highlighted the weekend, through which Student Government raised over $1000 for Eastern State Hospital, the American Cancer Society and CARE.

Enrollment figures for the first semester showed the Williamsburg campus at 2,342 day students and 1,471 extension and evening students. The Colleges of William and Mary reached a new peak of 12,614 for the first semester.

And then there are many signs that the so-called campus apathy is abating. Enterprising coeds living in Landrum dormitory, tired of sliding through the mud of their favorite short cut and despairing of a proposed sidewalk ever being built, took to snitching bricks from other construction projects and built their own crude but effective sidewalk, gaining publicity in the Richmond and Newport News papers as well as the Flat Hat.

The student move for a Thanksgiving vacation next year, first suggested in a Flat Hat editorial, came to naught when President Paschall was forced to turn it down because Student Government presented their petition for this vacation after the calendar had already been prepared. Male students staged a very minor riot in the cafeteria protesting that the food was not like mother's product. The rumble apparently gained little because few people knew the purpose of the riot, which consisted mainly of dropping or throwing some dishes.

Al Volkmann, Flat Hat Editor-in-Chief, announced the inauguration of a new editorial policy on the paper, with emphasis shifting from campus to national and international affairs. This move, which gained him a feature story in a local daily, has so far resulted in editorials on the Peace Corps, Campus Conservatism, which Volkmann espouses, American morality, Zionism, the House Un-American Activities Committee, and Kennedy's economic and other policies.

The Royalist, literary magazine, came out with a long satirical poem by former Royalist editor Norm Burnett in which he attacked the Flat Hat. Student Government also jumped on the bandwagon temporarily, but was soon sidetracked by a running battle of its own against the Women Students' Cooperative Government Association.

Student Government President Dave Bottoms had appointed a committee to investigate the functions of WSCGA, which had already been investigated by the Flat Hat and were in the process of being investigated by a WSCGA group. The Flat Hat had suggested editorially that WSCGA be completely revised and the WSCGA committee was looking into possible changes when President Bottoms entered the fray. Against the almost unanimous opinion of the female members of the Student Assembly, Bottoms insisted that WSCGA had a divisive influence on the campus; having already been bested by one WSCGA chairman (he is engaged to last year's chairman of the executive council, Laurie Schaffer), he drew at best a tie in his latest foray.

The Student Government had scheduled a special meeting to evaluate the goals, purposes and powers of their group, but were forced to postpone it because of midsemester exams. During the WSCGA wrangle, one male member of the assembly suggested that it was a case of a powerless organization, Student Government, trying to curb another organization with at least a semblance of power, WSCGA. Meanwhile the upcoming student body elections brought forth the usual rash of candidates with their views on what was wrong with Student Government and the campus in general, and their own proposals for strengthening student government and defeating "student apathy."

However, this apathy wasn't too apparent during the first two weeks of February, as the fraternities and sororities held their formal rush (see story, page 6). Amid sorority pleas for a return to first semester rush, fraternity views that second semester rush was preferable, and a Flat Hat editorial saying that the basic fault was not in rush but in the fraternity system, 219 slightly bewildered but apparently happy freshmen pledged. One hundred and twenty men, approximately half the rushees, shook fraternities, while 99 coeds, over half the rushees, pledged sororities.

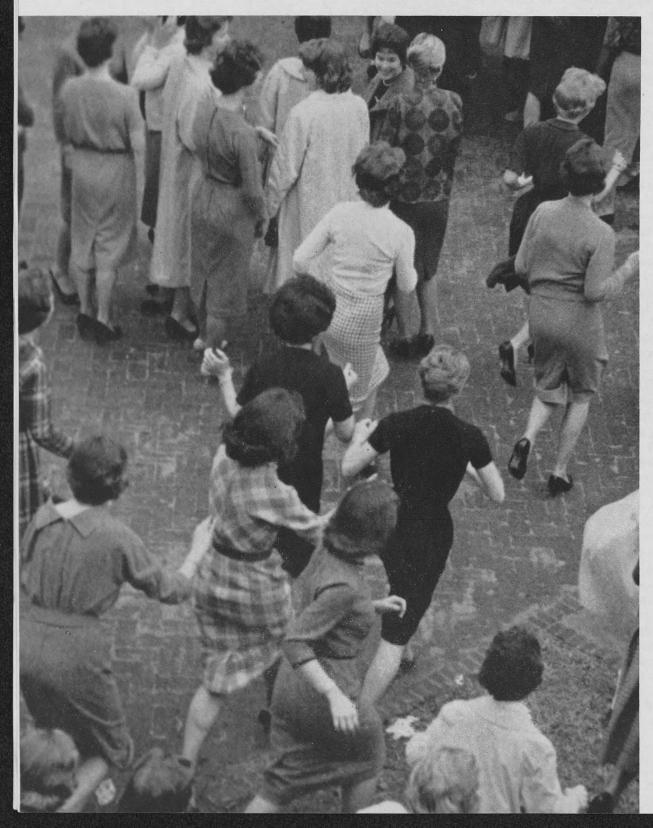

Other signs that "student apathy" had gone into temporary seclusion were the reappearance of football, baseball and frisbee players (all amateur of course) in front of the men's dorms and the general rapid exodus from Williamsburg for home or Florida's sunny shores after the rigors of midsemester exams.

Lavish parties and high excitement In heaven, hell and points in between lead up to this exultant climax of sorority rush.

The "Dream Cake" party was Phi Mu's final appeal to the girls going through rush. House and sisters both sparkled to entice the 160 girls who participated in rush.

Lovely mermaids at the bottom of the sea do their part to make Delta Delta Delta's final "Poseidon Party" a success for all of the participants, rushees, and spectators.

AMID shrieks of delight from the participants and amazed stares from onlooking male students, the 99 new sorority women met their "sisters" in the traditional Sorority Court Screaming Hour Saturday afternoon the 18th of February. Issuance and acceptance of bids earlier that day had marked the end of a week of traditional parties and frantic worrying about missed studies and cut classes.

The final rush parties on Friday are elaborate skits and scenes, during which each house is lavishly decorated and sisters beautifully costumed to lure the rushees. This year, as pictures on this and the next page show, was no exception as gaiety and color abounded in Sorority Court.

> "The Teahouse of the Crescent Moon" at the Gamma Phi Beta house lent an Oriental air to the sorority rush finale.

The Chi Omega "Rainbow Party" featured these lovely lasses calculated to make rushees breathless and a balloon ceiling which had already made sisters breathless—not with excitement alone!

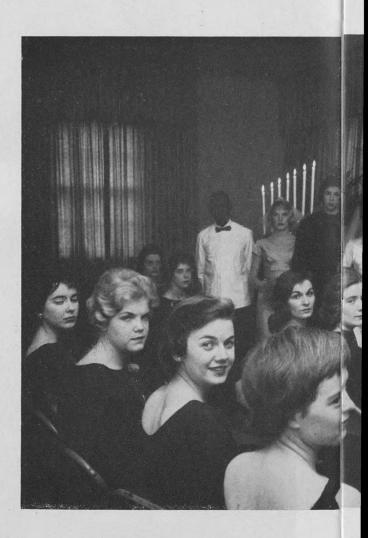

Alpha Chi Omega symbolically made their last party take place in "Heaven and Hades"—a sign of things to come for pledges? Or past for sisters?

The "Little Lost Angel" was the guiding spirit of the Pi Beta Phis' final bid to the 160 girls going through rush.

Kappa Kappa Gamma wooed and won its pledges with a "Peter Pan in Kappa Neverland" party featuring certified pirates and other assorted heroes and villains calculated to thrill and chill.

In a lovely "Winter Wonderland" were the Kappa Deltas and the rushees attending their final party at the House.

Rushees attending Kappa Alpha Theta's final party this year were spectators at the 1961 Theta "Wedding Party."

American Economic Foundation awards were presented to Dr. Paschall, General Wedemeyer, Dr. Wood and Mrs. Potter.

President Paschall Receives National Award

D^{R.} Davis Y. Paschall was the recipient of one of the American Economic Foundation awards on March 27, 1961 in Philadelphia. The new William and Mary president was recognized for his tireless and successful efforts in furthering the teaching to our young people of a clear understanding of citizenship economics and the moral responsibilities inherent in the exercise of our American freedoms.

The award was the result of a program of teacher citizenship training instituted while Dr. Paschall was Superintendent of Public Instruction for the Commonwealth of Virginia.

The President's concept of citizenship education was the subject of a speech delivered to a meeting of the Virginia Manufacturers Association. Excerpts of his widely distributed remarks are reprinted in the following article.

EDUCATION FOR CITIZENSHIP Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, '32

tial.

A MERICA'S most vital need is a high level of informed intelligence as a basic for electoral judgment and action. Our government is representative in form, and its safest guarantee of sincere and responsible leadership lies in an informed rank and file as will enable them to:

- (a) choose leaders wisely, and
- (b) scrutinize their programs intelligently.

Such a need is not new, but is inherent in the nature of our government, and was recognized by Jefferson when he said, "I know of no safe depository of the ultimate powers of society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it away from them, but to inform their discretion by education."

This establishes a major responsibility for our educational system at all levels, and particularly in those studies that involve an understanding of the basic principles underlying our form of government and our economic way of life.

Such a responsibility recognizes that American destiny is already being moulded in the classroom. The hope or the disillusionment; the glory or the despair; the statesman or the demagogue; the patriot not enlightmust be protected at all costs if freedom is to endure.

is to endure. In all modesty, but with a high sense of pride, I submit that the College of William and Mary is particularly fitted and obligated to render a memorable service in this future development of basic principles that is so essential to our Commonwealth and nation. The fact that the lives and character of so many of our Founding Fathers were moulded at its ancient campus constitutes a poignant reminder to those of us who now traverse its hallowed ground that our heritage of freedom, which they bestowed, can be preserved only by those sacrifices that question: What has made America great, and what are the forces that would destroy this greatness? Its full and intelligent answer in the minds and hearts of our young people will, above all else, this answer lies our greatest hope for the

In writing of the Greeks and Romans, one of our classical scholars summed up the story in these words:

"In the end, more than they wanted freedom, they wanted security, they wanted a comfortable life and they lost it all—security and comfort and freedom . . . When the Athenians finally wanted not to give to society but for society to give to them, when the freedom they wished for was freedom from responsibility, then Athens ceased to be free. . . ."

As the late President Lowell of Harvard said, "A civilization is seldom murdered; it commits suicide." Rome fell, not suddenly, but through slow attrition of the inner strength and vigor and self-reliance of its people. Those who do not listen to history are, indeed, condemned to repeat it. Someone has said that such history has witnessed the rise and fall of nations in the following steps:

The people go from bondage to spiritual faith

- From spiritual faith to great courage
- From courage to liberty
- From liberty to abundance
- From abundance to selfishness

THE GIFT OUTRIGHT

R OBERT Frost's "The Gift Outright" will have its place in history as the first poem to form a part of a Presidential Inaugural Ceremony. It was given an additional human interest by the poet's struggle to read it in spite of the glare and the snow and the sharp wind that ruffled his grey hair.

The poem was well-known to lovers of poetry and Mr. Kennedy had selected it and requested Mr. Frost to read it. It already had a place in the records of the College of William and Mary. It was read publicly for the first time as the Phi Beta Kappa poem at the annual exercises of Alpha Chapter on December 5, 1941, together with two other short poems. All three poems were first printed in the Spring 1942 issue of The Virginia Quarterly Review. In this issue also is printed Mr. Frost's comments on the poems: "At Williamsburg I read first the one about my right to Time Out for considering, then the one about considering humanitarianism, On a Moth Seen in Winter, and last the one about meditating my country, The Gift Outright." "The poem exactly as submitted to you," he adds in his letter to the editor, "has been in the possession of the Jones Library at Amherst for six or seven years."

Dr. James Southall Wilson, '04

Mr. Frost came from Washington to Charlottesville by train and spent the night in our home on the Lawn at the University of Virginia. The next morning we drove to Williamsburg. On his return, he was much interested in the sight of deer hunters at stands along the John Tyler Highway on the road to Richmond where he took the train North.

In the story of a great poem, especially one of the historic importance of this one, every change made in the printing of the verse by the poet himself is of interest. It is therefore worth noting here that in the first printing of "The Gift Outright" the last line read:

"Such as she was, such as she might become."

Those who heard Mr. Frost recite the poem at the Inaugural will remember that he first spoke the last line:

"Such as she was, such as she would become";

and then he repeated it in the form Mr. Kennedy is said to prefer;

"Such as she was, such as she will become."

Might, would, will: we must await the next edition of Frost's "Collected Poems" before we know the poet's final choice.

A Championship Team Enjoys Sweet Victory

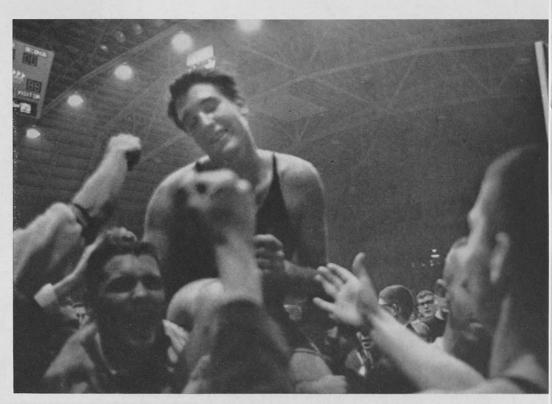

State Champions

Runner-Up Southern Conference

Alumni Gazette

Mighty Jeff Cohen climaxed a brilliant four-year career at William and Mary which saw him score 2,003 points, gather in 1,675 rebounds, participate in every one of the 103 games W&M played.

 $T_{\rm HIS}$ past winter witnessed the culmination of an era in Southern Conference basketball history, an era to which a pair of William and Mary men contributed some of the most spectacular and colorful chapters.

For with the 41st annual SC tournament in early March, there passed from the scene those few remaining survivors of four full seasons of varsity competition, a career stint now impossible under the freshman ineligibility ruling adopted by the conference three years ago.

William and Mary's last representatives to that distinguished convention of indefatigable veterans: graduating seniors Jeff Cohen and Bev Vaughan. Their combined contribution to Tribe statistics: 3,188 points and 2,321 rebounds. Their value to the Indians: inestimable.

Cohen, of course, fashioned something of an era by himself. He started in every W&M game during that quadrennium, and in 103 outings amassed 2,003 points and 1,679 rebounds. The former figure, reached in a brilliant 1961 tourney performance, makes him one of six players in Virginia cage history and one of 25 in major college annals to crack the 2,000point barrier.

In that memorable display at Richmond, Cohen rammed through 102 points in three games to shatter the meet scoring record of 85 set in 1951 by Pittsburgh Pirate infielder and former Duke All-America Dick Groat.

For the 1960-61 campaign, Cohen finished with a point production average of 23.96 on 575 markers, plus a 17.7 rebounding average on 424 recoveries. His attainment in the latter category put him third in national standings, while his scoring put him in the nation's top 20.

Cohen was named, at the conclusion of his Richmond exploit and personal farewell, to the all-SC tournament first team for a fourth consecutive year, the only league player to procure such an honor. He was also, once again, cited as Most Valuable Player in Virginia ranks.

The 6-7, 230-pound Los Angeles citizen, the second highest career scorer and greatest rebounder in Tribe history, was an early draft choice of Honolulu in the new American Basketball League, and was assured an early draft position when the National Basketball Association gets down to business. Which road he'll take is unknown.

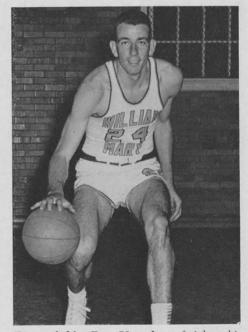

Vaughan, though not the prolific scorer and rebounder of Cohen's stature, nonetheless proved himself one of the SC's most dramatic operatives. His career story of courage and determination remains a distinct challenge to his successors.

This 6-5, 190-pounder, a product of Woodrow Wilson High School in Portsmouth, Va., seemed a target for hardship throughout his four seasons. Early in his freshman year, an automobile accident landed him in the hospital, but he returned to play in 23 games. Injuries plagued him his sophomore season and he battled a severely broken nose for much of the 1959-60 campaign.

This winter saw him overcome his greatest challenge, a serious siege of pneumonia which was supposed to have sidelined him for the full season. But it didn't. Instead, he regained his earlier poise, averaged 13.5 in scoring and rebounded well in 17 outings.

Remarked Coach Bill Chambers: "Bev certainly underwent great hardships, but it never discouraged him a bit. He was a tireless worker and always gave everything he had. This sort of young man makes coaching a rewarding and pleasant occupation." Vaughan has also been drafted, by Washington of the ABL.

Cohen and Vaughan were key figures as the Indians tripped Furman 86-84 in triple overtime, then shocked eighthranked West Virginia 88-76 to gain a berth in the SC tournament finals. And Cohen scored 38 points, Vaughan 11 in the 93-82 loss to an inspired George Washington club in the grand finale.

"It would be virtually impossible," observed Chambers, "to assess the value of these men to our basketball program. Their greatness was the backbone of our efforts in so many games. It can be said, however, that replacing them will be an extraordinary task."

The Indians concluded their season with a 14-10 overall record, 9-6 in regular season conference play. Several games stand out.

One would be the 105-84 rout of Richmond in the Blow Gym season-ender, at a site where the Tribe went undefeated this winter. In that bout, Cohen scored an incredible 49 points, a new school record, and hauled in 31 rebounds for good measure. His labors were rewarded by the capacity crowd with a thunderous standing ovation.

Another would be the victory over West Virginia, a decision which ended the Mountaineers' six-year grip on SC titles. It was doubtless one of the finest team demonstrations in William and Mary annals.

It was a fruitful season. It was a fruitful four years.

Over on the turf of Cary Field, the sharp slap of leather pads and muffled quarterback signals bore evidence to the 1961 springtime football interlude, which ended March 25 with a 14-0 triumph by the Greens over the Whites.

It was, from the outset, an offensively dull, defensively impressive preview of the Indians who next fall face one of their most profound challenges.

"We wanted very much to improve our defensive ability during this spring practice," said Coach Milt Drewer, "and I think that the intrasquad game demonstrated our success in this mission. As a matter of fact, our staff feels that our general objectives have been satisfied quite well.

"The spirit and ruggedness displayed out there during March," Drewer continued, "were better than in my previous four years. The boys seem to have a new sense of competitiveness and drive and I think that we have learned from these drills significant lessons to help us next September."

Prominent names on March 25 for the Green-shirts were fullback H. C. Thaxton, a rising senior, with 51 yards in 12 carries; Roger Hale, senior co-captain, with 22 yards rushing and 18 yards pass receiving on three grabs; and junior quarterback Dan Driscoll, who connected on five passes for 40 yards.

Following up a third-quarter safety, both Hale and Thaxton plunged over from one yard out for touchdowns to give the Greens their victory.

For the Whites, the new names were brightest, those of the rising sophomores whose zest and fight made this the session it was. Soph halfback Charlie Weaver, a 155-pound spright, rushed for 24 yards and caught six passes for another 57; soph fullback Doug Weis added 29 yards overland; and sophomore quarterback Dan Henning picked up 31 yards on five pass completions.

Perhaps under the shadow of basketball and football, but nonetheless important segments of W&M's athletic program, the four spring sports also began activity in late March.

In baseball, Coach Joe Agee's young men will be out to surpass last spring's 6-15 record, which, despite its lacklustre status, did mark an improvement.

The Tribe diamondeers face a 19game schedule and must overcome considerable game inexperience to do truly well, for this is a club of strong potential but distinct sophomore flavor.

With pitchers Dave Fiscella and Bruce Hobbs, both seniors, the Ageemen appear to have good mound strength, but there are only four other lettermen in camp; junior infielder Bob Irby, senior catcher Dick Coyle and senior Bob Stoy with junior Paul Berghaus in the outfield.

This will be a rebuilding year for the Indian trackmen of Coach Harry Groves, whose lads have always fared well in SC competition.

Chief strength will lie in the high hurdles, where defending conference titlist Bob Diederich returns, along with runnerup Jerry Saunders. The sprints and 440 should be handled quite adequately by Dale Bickert. Bart Partch and John Bahm in the hop-step-jump, plus Kirk Gooding and Stacy McMarlin in the discus also look like reliable points.

All told, the Indians claim ten lettermen on hand, plus a strong sophomore contingent from last season's once-beaten frosh outfit.

In golfing action, it will be hard to better last season's 10-1-1 dual match record, but not impossible. Five lettermen return: Dave Mance, Chip Ingram, Jeff Graham, Jeff Udell and Bill Bolton.

Promising non-lettermen are Joe Cunningham, Doug Kielkopf, Dan Dickerson and Dan Driscoll.

On the courts, Coach Dave Nusz looks for improvement over last year's 6-7 dual match record, a hope based on five returning letter-winners: Art Vandroff, Jim Gandy, Jim Caserta, Tom Fridlinger and Remy Aronoff.

Promising non-lettermen, up from a strong frosh club, are Jim Delaney, Chico Herrick, Charles Rice and Steve Parker. Of these, both Herrick and Parker have been making especially strong bids for first-line singles duty.

This past winter also witnessed William and Mary's finest record in swimming since the late 1930's, with this years' Tribe tankmen posting a 6-5 dual meet mark.

Coach Dudley Jensen's aquanauts downed Little Eight titlist Norfolk W&M 53-42 in the final outing to cap a season which saw eight school records broken. "It was," appraised Jensen, "a most successful year from all standpoints."

One of those standpoints would be W&M's fifth place finish in the annual Southern Conference meet, held at nearby Fort Eustis. The Indians scored more points there than in any previous meet.

A 400-yard freestyle relay team of cocaptain Dave Kurland, junior flash Chris Herr and sophs Turk Despard and Mort Aulls broke one SC record with a 3:35.6 time, naturally winning the event.

Kurland also wound up second in both the 50- and 100-yard freestyle competition, setting SC records in both, although his mark in the former came in the preliminaries and his standard in the latter was later broken. Herr also copped a second, in the 220, while Aulls took home a third place in the 100-yard freestyle.

In a dual meet against powerful Virginia Military, the 20-year-old Herr posted yet another conference record by swimming the 220-yard freestyle in 2:12.4.

It was, as Jensen said, a most successful year. And next season, with only co-captains Kurland and Dave Diehr graduated, it could be better. Rising seniors Glenn Mann and Herr will be the 1961-62 cocaptains.

G EORGE A. Downing has parlayed his two William and Mary degrees into a career of national prominence on the National Labor Relations Board. His A.B. from the College (1923) and his LL.B. (1925) as well as practical experience he received while working his way through as a legal stenographer for Henley, Hall, Hall and Peachy have combined to place Downing at the top rank of his chosen profession.

Downing, after working his way through the College, stayed on in Williamsburg to take his law degree and taught freshman English for a year. While in school he was active in many phases of student life; he was elected a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa and Sigma Upsilon. After receiving his law degree the outstanding young man practiced law in Florida with the firm of Jackson, Dupree and Cone for eight years, and then took a position as Office Attorney with the Home Owner's Loan Corporation in Tampa. In 1935 he was named attorney for the HOLC Regional Office in Atlanta, Georgia.

In 1929 Downing married Lucia Mae Ingerson, of Bemus Point, New York. The couple has three sons, Alan, John Marshall and David. Downing was appointed regional attorney for the U.S. Department of Labor in Atlanta in 1940 and kept that position until 1948, when he was named trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board in Washington. He was admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court in 1942.

As trial examiner for the NLRB, Downing hears unfair labor practices cases arising under the Taft-Hartley Act and prepares reports (initial decisions) for the five man board. He has heard some 150 such cases, including a number which have gone on to the Supreme Court.

The most widely known case in which Downing has participated is the unfair labor practice case involving the Kohler Company of Sheboygan, Michigan. The hearing ran for over a year, the testimony exceeded 20,000 pages and the exhibits numbered well over 1,000. Downing's report was issued in 1957 and the Board's decision in 1960; the case is now pending in the courts, and one phase is presently before the Supreme Court.

When he is not deep in a case, Downing loves to retire to his Alexandria home, a little over a mile from Mount Vernon, with views of both the Potomac and Mount Vernon. His recreational interests include gardening, bridge and chess. He reports ruefully and a little proudly, that he loses consistently to his son Alan in chess, and names his wife as his favorite bridge partner.

From selfishness to complacency From complacency to apathy From apathy to dependency From dependency to bondage.

What then are the basic pertinent guidelines and salient truths for youth to grasp? Realizing that freedom of America is entwined with its economic solvency, help them understand the vital economic contrasts between freedom and slavery, individual initiative and centralized, bureaucratic planning, democracy and dictatorship.

Let them explore the value of our great American institutions and what they cost in "blood, sweat, and tears."

Help them to know and have faith in the basic ideals upon which this democratic republic is built.

Teach them the fallacy in thinking that socialism is humanitarianism under the guise of benevolent paternalism of government.

Reverse the trend of thinking that the U. S. dollar is indestructible; that a country can spend itself into prosperity, and that the old virtues of thrift are outmoded.

Help them to see that true Americanism is not materialism. Rather that it is the great initiative and incentive of a people to provide a better way of life for posterity which has brought us to world prominence, and that the wellsprings of our vitality are deeper than the economic or political system—they lie in the ethical and spiritual foundations which enable us today to fight the professedly atheistic enemy in its acknowledged worship of Baal.

Show them unhesitatingly what Communism is now doing in the Western Hem'sphere, in Asia and Africa in encouraging false hopes by propaganda, and then promoting the violence that is inevitably born of disillusion.

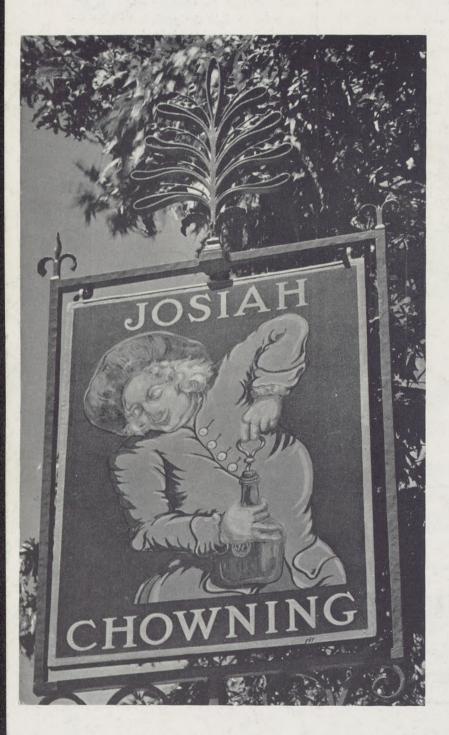

Help them intelligently to take sides for freedom; to know that ideals cannot be compromised without devastating consequence; and that neutrality is most often in today's world a cowardly camouflage for compromising appeasement.

Revitalize as a sharp wind along their spines the tingle of patriotism in a just pride and love of country, and a deep respect for the noble sacrifice of those who paid the supreme cost that we might live in freedom.

All of these teachings and many others are inherent in this development.

In the third volume of Plato's "Republic" there is a moving description of one of the great moments in human history. Socrates is talking to his pupil, Glaucon, and Socrates is trying to tell Glaucon that one of the great missions of any intellectual in this world is to build what Socrates called a "City of God." In trying to explain to Glaucon what he means by this concept, this City of God, he has Glaucon all the more confused, and Glaucon turns to him and says, "Socrates, I do not believe that such a City of God, as you describe, exists anywhere on earth." And Socrates answers him saying, "Glaucon, whether such a City of God exists in Heaven or ever will exist on earth, the wise man will pattern himself after the manner of that City, having nothing to do with any other, and in so looking upon it, he will set his own house in order.'
