Cubic SECOR satellite surveyor makes first direct coast-to-coast measurement of U.S.

Cubic's SECOR, world's most precise satellite tracking system, recently completed the first direct "single-leap" distance measurement across the United States, from San Diego, Calif., to Herndon, Va. In only 10 seconds, the distance between these points was determined to be 3,628,300.5 meters, or 2,254.5 miles.

More important than actual distance computation was SECOR's ability to accomplish this historic feat. SECOR uses a satellite 600 miles in space to plot and measure the earth with amazing speed and surveying accuracy.

"... a first order geodetic tool..."

After initial tests, SECOR won the highest praise of the surveying and mapping profession.

Army officials noted, "SECOR has the full capability of a first order geodetic tool?" In present operations, Cubic's all-weather SECOR system is successfully measuring distances between points of land separated by broad expanses of ocean.

29,000 "ranges" in six minutes...

During a typical satellite pass of six minutes duration, SECOR's four Cubic-built ground stations make approximately 29,000 measurements or "ranges" with 95% success. Within the SECOR satellite, a miniature 7-lb. Cubic transponder acts as a receiver-transmitter.

Tests prove that SECOR can extend control over distances exceeding 2000 miles with geodetic accuracy.

SECOR's far-reaching applications...

Data gathered by Cubic's SECOR will have lasting importance in the fields of geodesy, global navigation and satellite navigation. SECOR will have a role of major importance in space and defense programs requiring distance measurements with pinpoint accuracy. Information about the earth's shape and gravitational field is also being obtained.

SECOR is a product of Cubic Corporation, leader in the field of electronic measuring systems.

The Lucky Ones

THE FRESHMEN who register for classes in September truly can be called the lucky ones. They got into William and Mary.

For every new student at the college this fall approximately nine others applied but were not admitted. William and Mary, because of the increasingly heavy demand for admissions and limited classroom and dormitory space, is most selective in picking students.

It is most difficult for students in certain categories to be admitted than others. Even bright students may be turned away. For example, according to a survey by the National Merit Scholarship Corp., William and Mary is the eighth hardest college in the United States for women students to gain admission.

The problem of admissions is a complex one. Two general ratios govern the college's admissions policy. The Board of Visitors has specified that 70 per cent of the student body will be Virginians, because William and Mary is a state-supported institution, and the board has recommended that 60 per cent of the enrollment be men in order to maintain a social balance. It is, therefore, particularly difficult for out-of-state women to be admitted and relatively easy for Virginia men.

The college also works to achieve a representative geographic distribution. William and Mary now enrolls students from every city and county in Virginia and students from every region of the nation. As a result, only students with the very top overall high school record are accepted although others are qualified for admission.

Some exceptions—and there are precious few of them—are made for alumni-related men and women. (Ten per cent of the class of 1968 are sons and daughters of alumni.)

In turning down students "we try to stay away from the word 'reject' and explain that, in most cases, it is a reflection on our space situation rather than any deficiency of the applicant," explains Dean of Admissions Robert P. Hunt.

In selecting students Hunt and the admissions staff attempt to find students who give the best indication of achievement at William and Mary. "Our judgment is based strongly on the applicants' high school grades, performance on the scholastic aptitude test of the College Entrance Examination Board and the personal evaluation of secondary school officials." A broad range of extra curricular activities is desirable.

The scores on the standardized scholastic aptitude test are all important. Scores on the two-part test—verbal and mathematical—range from 200 to 800 on each section. The national average is 500 and at William and Mary the average of past freshmen has been between 550 and 600.

But William and Mary President Davis Y. Paschall believes there is a danger in relying too heavily on aptitude test scores. "I am not yet to be convinced that there is a guaranteed high positive correlation between success in college and a high college entrance examination board score. On the contrary," Dr. Paschall said in a recent speech to Virginia school superintendents, "there is much evidence that some students who score low do succeed in college."

Hence, at William and Mary, grades earned at high school and the opinion of school counselors are important factors in picking students who are emotionally capable of functioning in college and who really want to learn.

"Letters of recommendation from alumni," said Dean Hunt, "are helpful in some cases and are reviewed carefully, but are not really necessary since more detailed information is received through the mechanics of the admissions process. Sometimes, when conflicting information on an applicant is received, a local alumnus will be contacted for a personal evaluation."

The personal interview of prospective students along with letters of recommendation are becoming things of the past. Members of the admissions staff just do not have enough time to conduct individual conferences unless there are some special problems. "Ninety-five per cent of the students we admit," Dean Hunt reported, "we don't see."

High school students and their parents are invited to visit the campus and are given an orientation in groups on the college's admissions procedures and general information about William and Mary. Group tours of the campus are conducted.

In order to help speed the process of the thousands of applications received by the college, the admissions staff has reorganized and a new early decision admissions plan for especially strong academic students has been adopted.

Assisting Dean Hunt are Rex Tillotson, who for 10 years was director of admissions at Lynchburg College, as director of admissions for men and Miss Harriet Reid, who served for 10 years as director of counselors in the Fairfax County school system, as director of admissions for women. Tillotson joined the staff last spring and Miss Reid previously served as an assistant to Dean Hunt. Jerry Van Voorhis acts as an assistant dean.

The early decision plan was established a year ago to enable students who have outstanding academic qualifications and who have listed William and Mary as their first choice of a college to apply for admission by November 1 of their senior year rather than December 1, the usual deadline. Under the early decision plan, applicants must take the scholastic aptitude test in the spring of their junior year. Students accepted under the plan are notified by November 15 and are required to signify their intention to enroll by paying a non-refundable deposit by December 1.

The plan reduces the burden of the admissions process for applicants who are considered highly desirable by the college and who fully intend to matriculate at William and Mary. Last year approximately 1,200 applications were filed under the early decision plan and about 40 per cent of the freshman class was filled. Students not accepted under the plan are re-evaluated fully under the regular admissions process.

"Capable sons and daughters of alumni are encouraged to apply for admission under this plan and should write during the summer months preceding their child's final year in secondary school for application and other material," Dean Hunt suggested.

Normally, applicants for the freshman class are notified by the college of their acceptance or rejection by April 1 and are asked to file notice of intention to enroll by May 1. Qualified students not immediately accepted are placed on a waiting list, if they desire, and are admitted as students accepted first decline to enroll at William and Mary in favor of other institutions.

To make room for as many freshmen as possible—around 750 are expected this September—the college discourages transfer students except from the two community colleges associated with William and Mary, Christopher Newport College at Newport News and Richard Bland College at Petersburg. Students with a Williamsburg mailing address are not accepted as dormitory students.

At William and Mary, the admissions problems—difficult as they are to please everyone and maintain academic excellence—is only half the story. "We must all be as concerned," Dr. Paschall has said, "with what happens to these students after admissions as we are with admission."

A Daughter At W&M

Vicki and Vic Raschi

BASEBALL parks were a second home to Vic Raschi, but to his daughter they were just a place to roller skate.

Vic, '49, was probably William and Mary's greatest baseball player and a star pitcher with the New York Yankees.

His daughter, Victoria, now a sophomore at William and Mary, recalled this spring that as a child she just didn't like America's favorite pastime.

"I think I hated it because I didn't understand what was happening," Vicki said. "I enjoy it now."

Vicki entered William and Mary because, as she explained, "my parents met at William and Mary."

Vic, who as a sophomore pitched William and Mary to a state championship in 1941, is married to Sally Joann Glen, '44. He left William and Mary to serve in the armed forces during the Second World War and completed his college work after the war by attending only first semesters so he could play professional ball in the spring.

During Vic's six years with the Yankees the team won the American League pennant five successive years. Vic was one of the Big Three on the mound—Allie Reynolds, Ed Lopat and Raschi.

In 1950 Vic was the champion pitcher of the league, winning 21 games and losing eight for a .724 average.

"I don't remember any records my father may have made," Vicki commented. "All the plaques and awards are in my room at home in Conesus, N. Y., but I don't remember what they are."

In 1954 Vic moved to St. Louis where he played one season. He finished his baseball career in 1956 after a year with Kansas City.

He coached for a short time but soon gave up the last link with baseball to devote his time to several business enterprises.

"Father still likes to watch games, however," Vicki reported, "and he always points out the mistakes."

Vic is especially interested in his son William, now a Little Leaguer. But, according to Vicki, he doesn't plan a baseball career.

The one thing Vicki remembers most about her childhood is the moving the family did to keep together. "We always moved to Florida about Christmas for spring training," she recalled. "At Easter we moved back to Rochester and in May we moved to New York City.

"Usually we lived in the same neighborhood each year in each place and I always went to the same school—so the moving wasn't really so bad."

But baseball was dull. "Mother and I went to the most important home games, but not all of them," Vicki reported. "We did not see the out-of-town games and I always had to miss the World Series."

Yankee Stadium, as far as Vicki was concerned, was just a good place to roller skate.

Now Vicki, who attended her father's graduation February 4, 1949, is attending the same college her parents did. And the little girl who found baseball puzzling is majoring in Latin.

BECAUSE of a lag in the construction of new academic buildings, William and Mary has been forced to use every available classroom space more effectively than other Virginia institutions. According to a study by the State Council of Higher Education, the College has the smallest amount of teaching space per full-time student and the least number of student stations. But, the study revealed, William and Mary utilizes its available space more frequently and more efficiently than any other resident, four-year institution in the state. Marshall-Wythe room 203 is an example of a busy William and Mary classroom.

Marshall-Wythe 203 is in use at least 14 hours a day, typical of the heavy schedule of most William and Mary classrooms. Four different academic departments use M-W 203.

An average day starts at 8 a.m. with three hour-long economics classes, followed by a history lecture at 11, a noon hour Spanish class, a class in government at 1 p.m. and an hour and a half economics class. In the evening a three-hour economics class meets in the room. Late in the afternoon and after 10 p.m., when no classes are scheduled, the room is a study hall.

The New Voice of William and Mary

By Donna Lynch '65

WILLIAM and Mary radio, which had its beginnings nearly 27 years ago as a special course in speech, has grown into a major campus station serving the College community and listeners across Virginia.

The voice of William and Mary—station WCWM-FM—is on the air nine hours a day during the academic year and, in addition, provides commercial stations with tape-recorded programs of music, information and sports news. The tape network, a project which has gained new prestige for the College, now includes 21 stations in the state.

WCWM broadcasts from modern studios in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall and is operated by students under the guidance of James Sawyer, faculty director of radio and television.

Officially the station started broadcasting September 28, 1959, although there was earlier, sporadic programming over closed circuits on campus. WCWM, therefore, is Williamsburg's first radio station.

The station transmits on a non-directional signal of 10 watts power and is heard at 89.8 megacycles only on campus and in the city of Williamsburg.

Plans are being made, however, to extend the station's broadcast range and to convert its signal for AM reception in College dormitories.

Next fall the College hopes to be able to use a transmitter and tower expected to be operated by the York County school system. Although arrangements are incomplete, the York County facilities could be utilized to boost WCWM's signal into Newport

News and Hampton.

The College already has installed broadcast converters in two dormitories which pick up WCWM's FM signal and resends it for AM radios inside the building. The installation of additional converters would enable more students with standard radio sets to receive the College station. Certain technical problems, however, need to be worked out.

WCWM's broadcast day begins at 3 p.m. and continues until midnight. The music is varied, ranging from rock and roll to classical. News, campus announcements and weather forecasts are given regularly. The first play-by-play sportscasts were presented during the past year when freshman home basketball and varsity home baseball games were broadcast.

In addition to maintaining its campus schedule, WCWM prepares three special recorded programs which are mailed each week to subscribing Virginia stations. The tape network programs are "I've Been Wondering," an interview program with William and Mary faculty members; "William and Mary Presents," a program of concert music given on the campus; and "Spotlight," a report on College athletics by Barry Franklin, director of sports publicity.

"I've Been Wondering" is moderated by Sawyer who chats with faculty members on topics ranging from space science to the control of field mice. The 15-minute program is broadcast by WEAM in Arlington, WFLS in Fredericksburg, WTID in Newport News, WSSV in Petersburg, WRVA in Richmond, WHYE in Roanoke, WHPL in Winchester and the campus station at Randolph-Macon College.

"William and Mary Presents" is a half-hour program taken from concerts by the College band, the Choir, Chorus, Chamber Players and recitals by students and faculty members. Sometimes a lecture or interpretive reading is presented. "William and Mary Presents" may be heard on stations WDDY in Gloucester, WMNA in Gretna, WFMC in Harrisonburg, WEAM in Arlington, WSSV in Petersburg and WRVA in Richmond.

"Spotlight," a five-minute report on intercollegiate athletics, is broad-

Although the William and Mary network is new, the College's service to Virginia began in 1938 when, under the direction of Miss Althea Hunt, now professor emerita of fine arts, a weekly program was broadcast from the campus over WRNL in Richmond. The program was prepared by students in a special course designed "to stimulate interest in better speech over the microphone and to aid students to develop a more critical attitude toward radio programs and speech. . . ."

The program on WRNL lasted for 16 years and included lectures, plays, quiz shows, music and discussions from William and Mary. One of the more outstanding features was a series of 21 dialogues on vocational guidance broadcast in 1943.

Interest in the radio show later waned and then stopped. The fire which in December 1953 burned old

Phi Beta Kappa Hall destroyed the College's radio equipment. A few years later students began a campus station which transmitted a signal over the campus' central heating system pipes.

This venture, at the urging of Charles Woodliff, the first faculty director of radio, was licensed by the Federal Communications Commission and was installed in the new Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

WCWM, now a mature campus radio station, is serving not only the William and Mary campus, but is now presenting new insights to the College by reporting its activities to all Virginians over network stations.

On Virginia Radio

William and Mary football is scheduled to be broadcast throughout Virginia this fall over a special network arranged by WRGM in Richmond. Consult local listings for time and late changes.

Network stations, in addition to WRGM, include:

Dr. Robert T. Siegel, dean of graduate studies, diagrams the cyclotron magnet at the Space Radiation Effects Laboratory which was punched full of holes at his suggestion. The holes will increase the effectiveness of the cyclotron.

Improves $10 Million Cyclotron —With Drill

A WILLIAM AND MARY physics professor has persuaded the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to drill holes in a $10 million piece of equipment.

The holes notched in a massive magnet, will improve the effectiveness of the synchrocyclotron at NASA's new Space Radiation Effects Laboratory at Newport News, according to Dr. Robert T. Siegel who conceived the unusual modification.

"Basically," Dr. Siegel explained, "the holes make a precision correction in the magnetic field of the cyclotron" and thereby "expands the usefulness of the machine."

Dr. Siegel, research professor of physics and dean of graduate studies, suggested the modification after a year's study and calculation. He was assisted in perfecting the scientific proposal by Dr. Herbert Funsten, research associate professor of physics.

Dr. Siegel is a member of the scientific advisory board of the Virginia Associated Research Center which assists NASA's Langley Research Center in the technical development of research programs to be carried out with the synchrocyclotron.

The pock marks drilled in the 3,000-ton magnet correct the accuracy to one part in 10,000. With a smooth surface as originally designed, the accuracy was one part to 200.

The holes were drilled to a depth of five-eighths of an inch and up to two inches in diameter. More than 1,000 holes were made in the two circular surfaces of the $10 million magnet, the main component of the $13 million cyclotron.

The cyclotron will be used initially for research in Project Apollo, the United States effort to put a man on the moon. It also will be used for basic research by graduate students at the Virginia Associated Research Center, the state agency which will operate and maintain the Space Radiation Effects Laboratory under a government contract. William and Mary is one of three state institutions which govern VARC and the first VARC students are attending classes on the Williamsburg campus.

Essentially, the cyclotron will accelerate nuclear particles to extremely high velocities and, in effect, create space radiation under laboratory conditions. The magnet is used to contain the swirling nuclear particles which they are being accelerated by high radio frequency waves. The radiation produced is safely contained within a 21-foot-thick concrete shield.

Dr. Siegel's modification had to be made before the cyclotron could be tested. The cyclotron is expected to be turned on for shake-down tests this fall.

The holes, Dr. Siegel explained, weaken the magnetic field in measured spots and therefore make the magnet's power more precise and useable in suspending the nuclear particles. The placement of the holes had to be measured to one-one thousandth of an inch to achieve the corrected magnetic field required.

Dr. Siegel's modification gives some idea of the scope and import of William and Mary's new look to science to meet the needs of a scientific age.

'Pappy' Gooch

THE grand old man of athletics at the College, William S. "Pappy" Gooch Jr., was named the recipient of the 1965 Thomas Jefferson Award.

It is men like "Pappy," J. B. Woodward Jr., rector of the College board, said, "who have made the William and Mary tradition." The presentation was made Charter Day.

"Pappy" joined the College in 1928 as director of athletics and in 1939 he became business manager of athletics.

The award, the third grant by the Robert Earll McConnell Foundation of Hobe Sound, Fla., recognizes a member of the College community who best exemplifies in his personal life the ideals of Jefferson. Previous recipients have been Dr. Dudley W. Woodbridge, dean emeritus of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, and Dr. William G. Guy, chairman of the chemistry department.

And 'Pappy' Febr

MEMBERS of the William and Mary Choir joined in a loud chorus of tribute to Dr. Carl A. "Pappy" Febr on his 20th anniversary as director of the choir.

Graduate and undergraduate members of the choir honored "Pappy-It's-Always-Febr-Weather" Febr at a surprise banquet April 8 at the Campus Center. A scrapbook of personal notes written by former members of the choir was among the presentations.

Dr. Febr, who came to William and Mary in 1945, was named professor of music in 1961. Under his direction, the William and Mary Choir has been heard nationally, produced several recordings, presented at least two campus concerts annually and made spring concert tours to Eastern cities.

Paintings Given

A 1942 graduate, Mrs. Jean Outland Chrysler, has given the College a collection of contemporary American paintings which will be housed in the projected fine arts wing of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. The collection includes abstract drawings, oils and water colors.

Miss Childress, who was named Miss William and Mary in 1963, lived in Highland Springs, outside Richmond, and worked for the Life Insurance Co. of Virginia as editor of the firm's magazine Lifco.

Swem Library

PLANS are being made for the opening of the Earl Gregg Swem Memorial Library late this summer. The College's entire collection of books and manuscripts, housed in the old library and stored in a dozen attics and basements on campus, will be transferred to the Swem Library.

Meanwhile, construction has started on a $250,000 bookstore on James-town Road and is expected to be completed this fall.

Graduation Speaker

VIRGINIA Senator A. Willis Robertson accepted a return invitation to address a graduating class at William and Mary.

Senator Robertson, who spoke at the 1956 commencement, spoke June 6 at exercises concluding the College's 272nd academic year. Robertson holds an honorary degree from William and Mary.

Dr. Ernest Gordon, dean of the Princeton University Chapel, delivered the baccalaureate sermon.

Approximately 550 students received degrees this June.

Research Grants

FOURTEEN faculty research grants totaling $15,000 have been awarded for studies this summer. The grants were made possible, in part, by alumni contributions.

Recipients are J. M. Roherty, C. L. Taylor and D. B. Pettengill of the government department; W. L. Godshalk, L. W. Smith and W. F. Davis of the English department; L. H. Johnson, R. B. Sherman and D. O. Orlow of the history department; E. H. Rhyne and H. H. Weidmen of the sociology department; J. W. Jones, J. R. Beeler and J. A. Moore of the department of modern languages.

Two Appointments

TWO secondary school superintendents have been given key posts at the College. Edward E. Brickell Jr., superintendent at Franklin, will become administrative assistant to President Davis Y. Paschall June 30 and R. O. Nelson, superintendent at Newport News, will hold professorship in education beginning with the 1965 academic year.

Brickell will succeed John H. Willis Jr. in the president's office. Willis remains on the College faculty as an assistant professor of English. Brickell was graduated from William and Mary in 1950.

Nelson's appointment was made to strengthen the College's graduate programs in school administration. For the past year Nelson has been teaching a night course for Tidewater school superintendents.

Athletics

A MINOR PHENOMENON on the William and Mary spring sports scene has been the showmanship of the Tribe's new baseball mentor, Maynard Weber, a graduate student on sabbatical from his position as assistant principal at a New Jersey elementary school.

"He's William and Mary's answer to Bill Veeck," was one fan's perceptive observation as another season dawned on the College's consistently hard-luck baseball crew.

Last fall, Weber instituted off-season practices. This spring, he lined up a rigorous 27-game schedule, as compared to only 14 the year before. In between fall and spring, he put together "Weber's Folly," a batting cage suspended from the ceiling of Blow Gym and constructed from 66 feet of aluminum piping and many yards of netting.

"Attack that ball," came the coach's cry during pre-season drills, as he combed the infield and outfield offering advice and orders.

A month of preparations preceded opening day, when Weber had lined up a promotional parade featuring a marching band, a "baseball queen" and assorted other publicity tricks.

It rained on opening day.

Several days later, the Indians managed to get their season launched. They out-hit University of Rochester in two tilts, but lost both, the first due to errors afield, the second due to erratic pitching.

The spirit Weber had instilled in his players, along with the rare enthusiasm generated on campus for the neglected sport, lingered on, however, a credit to the coach's own limitless spirit and enthusiasm.

At season's end, the Indians had managed a 4-20 record, 3-8 in the Southern Conference.

Weber is proud of being a baseball addict, and feels it should be fun to play and fun to watch. "We're going to show the spectators a lively brand of baseball," he promised in March.

And Weber's a man of his word—despite the poor season.

Baseball may have a new status at the College, but track remains William and Mary's kingpin on the spring scene, thanks to the tireless coaching efforts of Harry Groves.

The Tribe thinclads opened their outdoor season with a twin win over visiting Williams and Springfield in a triangular meet.

Chief among the Indians again this spring is distance ace Jimmy Johnson, who has established himself as one of the nation's premier collegiate milers.

During the NCAA indoor championships in March, the crew-cut junior from Norfolk covered the mile in 4:10.5, nailing down fifth place in the finals and posting, naturally enough, a brand new William and Mary record in the event. He had picked up the Southern Conference indoor mile title earlier.

Later in March, at the U. S. Track and Field Federation indoor meet, Johnson was clocked at 9:18.2 in the two-mile event, good enough for seventh.

Odds are that the Tribe mainstay will better both marks during outdoor competition.

"WRITE ALL the superlatives you can think of, and say I said them," Bill Chambers told the sportswriters after his team's heart-breaking, double-overtime loss to West Virginia in the Southern Conference basketball tournament finals.

The sportswriters obliged.

The Indians, riding the momentum of a late-season surge, had fallen before the Mountaineers 70-67, thus ending the winter campaign with a 12-13 record. West Virginia mentor George King remarked after the game: "Chambers did a great job in getting his boys ready. But then, I expected that. He's been doing a tremendous coaching job for years."

Two W&M operatives ranked first and second among SC tournament scorers—senior Martin Morris with 67 points and junior Walter Wenk with 61. Both were named to the all-tourney first team, while sophomore Ben Pomeroy, who contributed 41 markers in the three-game set, was a second team choice. Pomeroy also captured 30 rebounds in the series.

When the Indians returned home to Williamsburg, an estimated 500 townspeople and students greeted them.

College is costly enough without high insurance premiums . . . yet students should be insured. Life of Virginia now offers a way to give students ten thousand dollar coverage, for only thirty dollars a year, with no medical examination. Both full-time college students up to age 27 and high-school seniors who will be in college within six months are eligible. And the insured may convert to permanent insurance at any time the Student Life Plan is in force, without evidence of insurability. 40

Mrs. F. D. Henderson
(Barbara Clawson)
Box 17, Irvington, Va.

This is the first time I can remember when I've sat down to write the newsletter without some news from the Alumni Office or one or more letters from you people to pass along.

After doing a bit of scrounging I learned that Dr. and Mrs. Merritt Foster vacationed at the Dorando Beach Hotel in San Juan, Porto Rico, in February, and found themselves rooming next door to Herbert Kelly, '43, and his wife! Herb is a lawyer in Newport News and Merritt is a psychiatrist in Richmond.

Kay Hoover Dew, '41, who lives in nearby Kilmarnock, has taken on a new job this winter. She's been elected president of the Community Library, which is an up-and-coming organization doing a great and much-needed service in this area.

One Sunday in January, George Roller, '38, and his wife spent a long-awaited day with us. Frank saw a lot of George when they were in England during the war so there was much reminiscing. The Rollers have a very attractive son and daughter and live in Richmond, where George is with a wholesale hatchery business. They told us that Sid Jaffe lives in Chicago, where he has a large frozen food business. Would like to hear from you, Sid.

Last month Frank and I spent a weekend in the Washington area and had the pleasure of being guests of Red, '38, and Margie Hoskins Bloxom, '39, at a dinner party at their home in Arlington. The following week Jack and Ann Terrell Garrett were down from Mechanicsburg visiting us for a few days. They saw Irvington in the most beautiful snow and we tramped over to their neighboring property where they plan to start building a home—for summers and ultimately retirement—come spring. From here they stopped at Williamsburg to see their son and then on to Cheatham Annex for a few days' relaxation before heading home. It was such fun seeing them again.

Joan Jarrett Woods of Lincoln, Ill., was scheduled to represent the College on February 6 at the Centennial Anniversary Convocation at Lincoln College.

This will probably be the last Gazette to reach you before Homecoming next fall and our 25th Reunion. You'll be receiving a letter from the Alumni Office by September about all festivities and Lodge reservations, so I do hope you'll all be there and we have a record turnout. Please let me hear from you before then.

(Sunny Williams)
904 Jamestown Crescent
Norfolk 8, Va.

The deadline snuck up on me. Rolf gave me a typewriter for Christmas so I could do my duty by all of you.

Incidentally, I got a beautifully engraved invitation to Charter Day and it was a thrill to attend the ceremonies on campus. I sat with Louise and Johnny Hollis (who were in Williamsburg for a meeting of the Virginia Bar Association). I had seen Louise at Jean Schoenwolf Preston's at a luncheon where she gathered some William and Mary gals. Ruthie Weimer Tillar had come from Emporia, Jeanne McHugh Richardson, Hannah Leonard Merrick and Betty Lyons Lascara were among the Navy wives present. Martha Macklin Smith (top woman golfer in the area) was trying to get some information on the class of '45 reunion plans.

I'm sure Lois Sprattley Donald will join us. I called her in Charlotte, N. C., after the Southern Conference basketball game and she was all gung-ho for some cheerleaders. Also there for the tournament were Jo Parker Flint and Donnie Pepper Ware and their husbands.

The best basketball player in this area is Gary Laws, son of Connie Curtis Laws. We're all still hoping he'll choose William and Mary.

We should be mighty proud of our excellent coaches and the teams they have produced at William and Mary. Another thing we can thank the College for is the consideration given children of alumni. With the huge number of applications for admission this is something for which we should be extremely thankful.

As to social news, Dickie Alfriend's engagement was announced recently. Cec Griffin has returned as a Navy captain.

I'm on Norfolk's art committee with Nancy Otland Chandler's husband, Webster. Frank Ritter is a newly appointed member.

Mildred Sheffield has her own decorating shop here in Norfolk. Ann Hitch Kilgore, the mayor of Hampton, was the lone female on a Navy-civilian trip on the America recently.

Sandbridge, on the Atlantic below Virginia Beach, is becoming a William and Mary hangout. Donald Taylor, Jean Preston, Cec Griffin, Ed Lambeth, Betsy and Norman Hornsby, Connie Curtis Laws are among those of us who own homes or lots there. Dorothy Nelson and Bebe Nelson Judge and Ed Judge are down every summer. Dick Veltz is another Sandbridge enthusiast. Ann Smith Goldston and her husband are both doctors in Richester, Minn., but she comes to Virginia Beach in the summer.

Nancy Keen Norman is still in Canberra, Australia, and she hopes to be back in the United States in November. Dale Myers is a lawyer in Roanoke. Louis Spratley Donald, now in Charlotte, has been seeing William and Mary folks—Jean Bulette Boggs and Dorothy Scarborough Howell.

Muriel Koch Ernstmeier writes from Seattle that her husband's orders as 13th District Chaplain recently took them to live in Washington and that they are enjoying the magnificent mountains. They have three daughters. Last summer the Ernstmeyers toured Japan, Okinawa, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

Let me hear more news, classmates.

Ruth Schmitz Kerns, bless her, gathers together her news once a year and sends her "annual report from Fort Wayne" for our '45 letter. Kay Leavey Hite and her family left their Hawaiian residence last summer and vacationed in San Francisco and Vancouver. Ruth Kenyon Jolly remains a Philadelphian and Mary and Red Wood bought a lake cottage last summer. The Kappa Kappa Gamma convention at Sun Valley provided Ruth with a wonderful week as delegate from the Fort Wayne chapter, of which she is now vice president.

Willie Anne Boschen Wright and Jack had planned to visit the Fair last summer, but after a busy winter decided that beach-combing at Nags Head, N. C., was the better vacation. They tentatively plan a trip to New York this year with their children. John will be in college next fall, having applied at VPI and several of the other engineering schools.

Judy Fisher Allen, still a Texan, spent August, 1964, at Cape Cod with her family. She reports that her son is a college sophomore interested in the ministry and her two daughters are high school students.

The annual holiday letter from Martha Macklin Smith is again filled with golfing

The arrival of a recent Gazette led Gloria Gruber Blakelock to her typewriter with news of several persons not heard from in several years. Gloria's family, of Arcadia, Calif., include four children—Bonnie, a freshman at the University of New Mexico and a Delta Gamma pledge; Randy, a high school sophomore; Laurie, eight; and Bambi (short for Gloria Ann), age 2. Gloria's husband, Ralph, is Los Angeles branch manager of Frigidaire Sales Corp. division of General Motors. Two days after writing her letter Gloria and Ralph were taking off for a Hawaiian trip to celebrate their 20th anniversary.

She notes that Jane Rohn Tobish has built a beautiful home in the Princeton locale and says Jeanne Schoenwolf Preston's daughter, Page, has been accepted at William and Mary for the next academic year. Pris Schumacher Beringer, says Gloria, teaches music. Pris' husband is a department head at Columbia University and their son recently has been in France. Audrey Hudgins Thompson plans a California vacation about now. Another west coast vacationer may be Dorothy Agurk Edmunds, who visited with Pat Casey Clay in Washington during the year. Gloria also mentions Margaret Ann Fellows Daniels, who was associated with one of the Los Angeles newspapers.

An air letter bearing the stamp of the Republic of Kenya arrived just after the last deadline and Edith McChesney Ker sent a bit of news from her home on the other side of the world. Ginny Baureithel Leopold has been in Stroudsburg, Pa., for several years where her husband is pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church. They and their 10-year-old twin daughters moved into a lovely new parsonage recently. Dee Dumas Coburn sends long and clever poems each Christmas about the activities of their brood of four. Red is a construction engineer and the entire Coburn family do as much camping as they can each summer.

More from Edie, "I hesitate saying anything about ourselves, after having a whole letter in the Gazette a year ago! We continue to be busy with heavier bookings for the entire firm than ever before. Don and I have just returned from a two-week safari and leave in a few days again. Except for the few days between safaris we will be out until the middle of April. But life isn't always under canvas and we have a good four months each year in Nairobi. We belong to an excellent repertory theatre club whose productions are equal to Broadway or London and which is our favorite form of amusement, and I help out as much as I can at the East African Wild Life Society. Last May we took a wonderful three-week cruise to Cape Town and back, and in October my cousin visited us for a month. It was the first time I had seen a relative or close friend from home in two and a half years and our tongues never stopped wagging! Our next big project is a trip to the States and around the world in the spring of '66."

Ruth Sinclair Veasey enjoyed a Florida vacation in January. Small Smith Turner became the "mother of the groom" when her stepson married in Towanda, Pa., last December. Small and Charlotte Mooers Stevens had a quickie visit together a year ago in Richmond when the Turners were en route home from Florida. Nancy Westcott Larsen was at the Chi O convention at the Greenbriar last year and Edie Harwood Smith keeps active in her local Chi O group. Jane Eversmann Furman in Katonah, N. Y., sent a lovely Christmas note and so did Betty Hotopp van Aken from Somerset, N. J. Janet Ginsberg Waisbrot welcomed 1965 in the Virgin Islands with her doctor husband and three children.

A very avid correspondence has developed between Hasbrouck Heights (the home of your secretaries) and Hopewell—both in New Jersey. Happy to report that Dinny Lee McAlinden will guest-write the letter following the October reunion. She and Joe plan to attend our 20th anniversary celebration—so all you 45ers, please seek Dinny out and report on your life circa 1965. We have so many in our class from whom no one has heard in years. It might be fun to have one whole letter filled with new names! More about the reunion, of course, direct from the alumni office.

Dinny has returned to her photography, having been the recipient of a dark room and its necessary ingredients as a Christmas gift. Until a few months ago her picture taking and developing were a hobby, but then someone suggested a free lance opportunity and she crossed over into the professional field. She was most excited about doing Joe's job pictures—including some fabulous ones from Venezuela, where he's been the past several months.

Dorothy Clare Hoadley Burnett had the unique opportunity to observe Russian education last fall while on a trip to Moscow with her husband. Moscow University, she reported, "is extremely modern, well equipped and well staffed. All Soviet students live in dormitories near the academic building, but non-Soviets are housed 10 miles away."

All kindergarten, elementary and high school students are taught the same subjects at the same time and all children are required to attend school until the age of 16. But, she added, "judging by the number of children we saw on the streets during school hours, the truant officer must be an unknown factor."

In summary, Dorothy reports: "When I returned to my own country and talked to my own children, I was very thankful that they attend American schools. Good, bad or indifferent, our schools are still the best I've seen anywhere."

Thanks for the report, Dorothy.

In closing—a big, big thank you to you who send us news of yourselves and your friends. Won't more of you take pencil, typewriter, even an old Williamsburg quill pen in hand and help us fill our '45 column?

The column is a little short of news this time, and I'm requesting assistance from all of you. How about taking time out and writing me all the latest?

Many thanks to Barbara Brown Harman for sending all the tidbits culled from her Christmas cards. She received a long letter from Anne LeHew Legge, '54, whose husband, Reynolds, is an ophthalmologist in Winchester. The Legges have three children now with the addition of a baby girl born last July. Their other children are Helen, seven, and Ray, three. Marilyn Zaiser Ott lives in Augusta, Ga., where Jim is employed by Proctor and Gamble. Their twin boys, Michael and David, were born on their parents' ninth wedding anniversary, June 25. The Otts also have a daughter, Carolyn, seven. Marilyn also wrote that the last she heard from Jane Kesler Upshur was that Jane planned to go back to medical school.

Mary Lou Riggan Baird lives in Norfolk and she and Ed bought a two-story brick Dutch colonial on the water. Barbara also heard from Helen Male Katz who lives in Larchmont, N. Y. Helen has two children, Marge, three, and David, 20 months. Eleanor Greene Jollay sent a note from Florida and apologized to Barbara for not being able to send any fruit from their two orange trees. Barb's comment, "Imagine being able to walk out into the yard and choose which orange to juice this morning."

Joyce Springer Darnton, '54, spent last summer in Seattle. The trip was connected with Don's position with the University of Ohio in Athens. Joyce is an instructor in the mathematics department. While in Seattle the Darntons traveled to a different spot each weekend including Victoria, Mt. Rainer, San Juan Islands, Vancouver, Lake Chalan and the Olympic Peninsula. Shirley Haabestad Hollen, '54, lives in East Brunswick, N. J. The Hollens have two boys, Ken, first grade, Jim, kindergarten, and baby Debbie, 16 months. Barbara also writes that she and Arlie plan a trip east this summer. They hope to take in the World's Fair and spend a few days at Nags Head, N. C.

A special announcement just came from Jane Ottaway Dow announcing the arrival of Thomas Anthony, born February 12. Bea Verra Wissel told me that Babs Newberry Shebell and Pete, '54, had a little girl in November or December. This makes three girls and one boy for them. Bea also informed me that June Shearer Simpson and Jerry, '54, have moved to upper New York state after living a year on Long Island. Bea was delighted to run into Jean Vester Olsen, '52, at a party. Jean lives in Morris Plains, N. J., and she and her husband have done quite a lot of traveling. When I talked to Bea, she was looking forward to having her boys back in school after their four-week bout with the chicken pox.

From Stan and Florence Bain in Sarawak comes the news that Stan has again been appointed district missionary in Nanga Entuloh. Their major event of the year was a visit in November from Flo's father and step-mother, Judge and Mrs. McKay.

Lt. Frederick Bage Malvin has recently been transferred to Moffett, Calif., where he serves as a navigator in the Navy Air Force.

Ann Zimmerman Kulp writes that she is enjoying her "retirement" from guidance counseling now that she has a daughter, Karen Jane, born November 20. She reports also that there are several other alumni in her area. Sally Dahm Elfelt and Jim live near them but expect to be transferred to Newport, R. I., soon. In addition to taking care of her four children, Sally managed to serve on the board of directors of a local cooperative kindergarten and is now taking a course in conversational French. Betty Stafford Elliott, '58, and Frank have moved to the area from Lynchburg. Frank is a guidance counselor at Lee High School in Fairfax County. They have two sons—David, three, and Michael, born September 4.

Floyd W. Craig, Jr., has joined Carlton Yarn Mills in Salisbury, N. C., as director of personnel and purchasing. He and his wife, the former Dorothy Gray, have a three-year-old daughter Laura.

Carolyn Guess writes from Spenard, Alaska, that her husband Eugene is a member of the Alaska State Legislature House of Representatives. He is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and vice chairman of the House Commerce Committee. They plan to come to Homecoming in October.

Again I must say a special thank-you to Barbara Brown Harman, who supplied most of this column's news. I'd be delighted to hear from the rest of you.

56

Jane, '57, and Jim Kaplan write that they had their fourth baby, third son, on October 18, and named him James Peter. They frequently see and hear from several other alumni. Sylvia Evans and Don McRae are the parents of their second daughter, Mary Evans, born the same day as the Kaplan's baby. When Jim was transferred from Palos Verdes to Los Altos, Sandy and Pete Crenier bought their house. Jane plays in a bridge club with Barbara

I hope you will have responded to my first letter by the time you read this so that the fall issue may get us caught up with many of you.

Talked with Claudia Gardner Hepner, who lives in nearby New Hartford and is working on her master's in history at Trinity College. She and husband Phil, who is an engineer at Hamilton Standard, are busy fixing up an old New England house.

Claudia had news of Tom and Ann Dodds Shaw. Tom has just finished six months in a hematology lab in Minnesota and they were heading for the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where Tom will complete his residency in pathology. Their two children, Seth Thomas, three, and Susan, one, keep Ann busy, as well as do golf and the League of Women Voters.

Sue Fryer Ward and her husband Archie are living in Clinton, Md., with their two girls, aged three and one. Archie is a chaplain and works with the patients at the St. Elizabeth Hospital in Washington, D. C. Living in Bon Air are Richard and Sue Gabriel Menke. Dick is an engineer who works for Reynolds in Richmond.

Congratulations to Willafay and Virgil McKenna who gave Quinn a sister, Elizabeth Conroy, on January 16. Virg is teaching in the psychology department at William and Mary.

Received a nice letter from Carolyn Scheele Fakadej, '58, saying they will be leaving the Charlottesville area around July 1. Alex will have completed his residency in neurology at that time and then he is scheduled to serve in the Air Force as a neurologist for at least two years. Their two daughters, Maria and Anna, keep Carolyn busy as well as do a lecture series in foreign affairs at the University and tutoring a child in reading. Last summer, Penn, Stuart & Miller of Abingdon announced that Jackson S. White, Jr., had been named an associate of the law firm.

Jane Brummitt Rush catches us up on her news from Rochester, N. Y. In 1958 she married Robert E. Rush, who runs a typesetting shop with his father. There are two Rush children—six-year-old Margaret Reynolds and four-year-old R. David.

That's it for now. Have a wonderful summer, but please do keep in touch.

It seems I hear from fewer people since I have been in Richmond than when I lived in Florida. Bill and Bobbie Ramsey Brooks just announced the arrival of Susan Ramsey on February 28, 1965. Ed and Ginny Wachob Shine are in Richmond.

They have a son and a daughter, and expect a third child in August. Ginny said that Stew '56, and Pat King Sell are still in England but plan to return in June of this year. Stew and Pat have a girl and are expecting another child in July.

That's all my news for this issue. Please drop me a postcard at least. We would all like to hear from you.

Sterry Kimball and Larry Davis live in South River, N. J. Larry is an engineer with DuPont in the photo products department and Sterry teaches second grade.

Garret Etgen received his Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina last June. From July to August he spent at Ft. Bliss, Tex., in the Army. He was scheduled to return to the Washington, D. C., area and work for N.A.S.A.

In October, Sarah Derry Callahan and her husband moved from Denver to Pueblo, Colo., where her husband is executive vice president and managing officer of Fremont Savings and Loan Association.

Dr. Lawrence Verbit recently moved to Binghamton, N. Y., where he is assistant professor of chemistry. His wife Ruth is Stephen Ross's sister.

Carla Warner Tinker and Gordon have moved to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where Gordon is stationed with the Navy. Their daughter Andrea is almost two.

In September, Malcolm H. Davis, Jr., assumed the duties of itinerant campus minister of the Vermont Congregational Conference of the United Church of Christ. In this position he serves as campus minister to three small state teachers' colleges, where he also has limited teaching responsibilities. He lives in Burlington, Vt.

Raymond A. "Chip" Mason's stock brokerage firm, Mason and Co., has purchased a seat on the New York Exchange for a reported $205,000. Chip lives in Newport News where his firm is located with a branch in Williamsburg. Larry Phillips, '55, manages the Williamsburg office.

Chiles T. A. Larson has been named assistant director in charge of public relations for the Virginia Division of Industrial Development and Planning. Previously, Chiles, who lives in Richmond with his wife Kathryn Duncan and their two daughters, was an information officer in the state's Division of Public Relations and Advertising which promotes Virginia's tourist attractions.

Selena Dovel Swanson lives in Rangoon, Burma, where her husband is working with the American Embassy. They plan to be there two years before the Navy sends them elsewhere.

Lloyd Webb Diamond writes from Shreveport where Tony is art director of an advertising agency and Lloyd teaches third grade in a private Episcopal school with 14 highly intelligent children to cope with only to return home to first grader,

This issue finds me extremely happy! Five long letters in answer to my plea have caused this elation. Do keep writing.

Betty Edge Garcia writes from Kirkwood, Mo. Since her marriage in 1958 to Mike, she has lived in Yorktown, West Virginia, New York and now Missouri. Her husband's work with the Monsanto Company International has taken him to Central and South America, Canada, and all parts of the United States.

The Garcias have three children, Fran, Michael and Beth. Fran is in nursery school, Michael is 2½, and Beth is 16 months old. Betty is active in the Pi Phi alumnae group and has found five William and Mary alumnae there.

Twyla Willey Hunter had a second daughter, Martha Byrd, in September. Rita Friede is married with a family; Nancy Gwilliam has also taken her vows. But no one knows their husband's names or any other essentials. Send me a card, ladies!

The next letter I received, postmarked from Altaville, Calif., was from Michael Gaffney Bennett. She is living in Calaveras County of Mark Twain fame with husband Donald and son Timothy Scott, age 8 months.

Esther Grikle is now Mrs. George Nanny and is living in San Francisco. Diane Skelly works for a travel agency, but she is leaving in June to begin her training for the Peace Corps. She'll be working in Tunisia.

Steve, '61, and Abbe Furst Dunning have left Ft. Lewis, Wash., and are moving to Washington, D. C., where Steve is attending law school. They have one child, Andrew Scott, 1½ yrs.

Nancy Hogan Learned is married to a naval commander and is living in Honolulu. They have two daughters, Kristin Marie, 1½ and Jane Gray, born this past October.

Willia Lanford Shaw, '59, and her husband Alan are still in Renforth, New Brunswick, Canada. They have one little girl, Laura, age 1½.

Dr. Wilma Fowler Bergfeld sends her news from the Cleveland Clinic Hospital in Ohio. She and her husband are both interning at the clinic, and on August 9, 1964, a daughter was born to them.

Billie Howland Steffie, '61, and physician husband Arthur are also in Cleveland, Ohio. Billie is teaching school. Marga Larson Bales is another member of our class in the Cleveland area.

Nancy Read McNichols and her husband are living in Spain where he is an officer on one of the Polaris submarines. Their first child was born in February.

The fourth letter came from "way down South." Annette Massey Kearney writes from Lake Worth, Fla. She and hubby Ed and son Michael, moved from Massachusetts last May. Ed is with I.T.T. and a new plant was opened in West Palm Beach, Fla. Annette seems quite fond of the climate; she is going to have her hands full this May as they are moving to West Palm Beach and the arrival of the second Kearney is expected. Best wishes to you, Annette!

Now let's hop to the other extremity of our seacoast. Glen Cayward sends news from Fitchburg, Mass., where he is still reporting news events for the Worcester, Mass., Telegram and Gazette. In February he was promoted to the position of Bureau Chief of the Leominster Bureau of the company. Also, on February 3 he and Kathy became the parents of Kristina Sue, their first child.

Effective on February 15, John Pffor has been appointed a special agent with the United States Secret Service. He is now assigned to the Baltimore office. Congratulations, John!

I send many, many thanks to Betty Edge Garcia, Michael Gaffney Bennett, Dr. Wilma Fowler Bergfield, Annette Massey Kearney, and Glen Cayward. I certainly enjoyed hearing from all of you.

Nancy Van Schreeven received her M.A. in art history from Harvard University last year, and is doing graduate work at Oxford. Her engagement has been announced to Michael Gordon of Spokane, Wash., who is a third-year Rhodes Scholar at Oxford. A summer wedding is planned.

Ensign Ed Kirby stopped by to see us on his way to an assignment in Georgia after completing OCS School in Newport, R. I.

Bill Allen is working as a waiter in Berchtesgaden, Germany, to make more money to study German. Bill got out of the Navy in August and during his two months of traveling around Europe he ran into Sue Oakley and Judy Case in Munich at the October fest, and saw Hartlee Campbell in Rome. Then he studied German two months at the Goethe Institute. Bill says he skis a lot and on a recent ski trip he met Don and Harriet Hunter Hardy. Don is stationed in Augsburg with the communications section of the Army. They have a small son, R. D. Hardy, III.

In Richmond, Billy George was transferred March 1 from the Actuarial Division of the Life Insurance Company of Virginia and made Administrative Trainee of the Policyowners Service Division. In this position he will assist the department head in planning and organizing certain activities of the division to provide prompt, efficient and economical service to policyholders, field representatives, and certain other home office departments. Bill joined the company in 1959 as a summer employee. Bob and Cretia Carrico Irby and two children live in Richmond. Perry Ellis is working at Miller and Rhoads.

Ann and Pete Siegenthaler, Atlanta, Ga., are proud parents of a son, Craig Peter. Doug and Callie Dean Woodring are still living in New Jersey where Doug is working on his Ph.D. in Biology and Callie is taking a couple of Education courses at Rutgers and also teaching.

Jackie Dreher and Sara Linder, '61, living in New York City with two other girls, are teaching on Long Island.

Sue Williams Krost has been appointed publicity manager for Congoleum-Nairn, national manufacturer of floor coverings, in Kearny, N. J. She was formerly director of youth activities for Thalheimer Bros. Department Store in Richmond. She and Lee are living in East Brunswick, N. J.

Phyllis Atwood Gauker writes that she and John were married in Monterrey, Mexico, last August. They live in the vicinity of Williamsburg, where John is a surveyor. Phyllis commutes daily to Richmond, where she teaches high school music. She and John plan to move to the West Indies this summer, although the State Supervisor of Music Education invited her to teach the summer music theory class at the Virginia Music Camp at Massanetta Springs.

Maurice Duke was awarded a Master of Arts degree in January from the University of Iowa.

JoAnn Rossman Simonson studied in Bologna, Italy, in 1962-63 on a Fulbright Award, and she received a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship for graduate study for 1964-65. In addition, she was awarded an Andrew Mellon Fellowship at the University of Pittsburgh, which is one of the most attractive awards available to students in music.

Bill Allen writes from Berchtesgaden, Germany, that he is working as a waiter in a hotel for American servicemen, which is also a ski resort. When he got out of the Navy in August, he began a two-months' tour of Europe, visiting Copenhagen, Paris, Munich, Rome, Florence, Milan, Venice, Pisa, Vienna and many other cities. He then studied German for two months at the Goethe Institute in Degersdorf. Although he tremendously enjoys his job and skiing much of the time, he plans to return to studying German this year.

Bill Blaine has returned to Florida, after living in Europe nine months. He was in Paris on a French Government Scholarship, awarded him by the Atlanta School of Art, where he studied printmaking under the famous Stanley William Hayter. He is a teacher in the Fernandina Beach Junior High School, and also teaches three evening art classes for adults in painting. He is exhibiting prints in Atlanta, Jacksonville and Charlotte. Bill has been represented twice in the Southeastern Annual Exhibition for paintings, once receiving an honorable mention. While in Europe, Bill toured London, Holland, Spain and France. In the fall of 1965 he plans to enroll at Syracuse University to do graduate work toward a Master of Fine Arts degree.

Donna Floyd Fales and Gordon spent the Summer in Europe traveling and hitting the tennis circuit. Gordon, now out of the Coast Guard, is job hunting and Donna, Susie McAnally Palmer wrote from Williamsburg that she and her husband Tom are beginning to eagerly anticipate June 1966 when Tom will become a "fledging lawyer." He is studying at the Marshall Wythe School of Law. Their daughter Dayle, is a "busy, intelligent and curious three year old already."

Joan Lee has been living in Bonn, Germany, for two years. She studied linguistics at the University there last year on the Fulbright program and is presently working as an editorial assistant to the German Fulbright Commission. She likes her job very much and also enjoys the traveling she is able to do. In early March, Joan is looking forward to seeing Dr. Carl Dolmetsch (English) in Berlin at the Annual Fulbright Meeting. Recently Alan Burger, '61, on leave from his Army post at Wurzburg, visited in Bonn. He is looking forward to getting out of the Army soon, but meanwhile, has learned "hundreds of great folk songs and guitar accompaniments," and gives concerts in his spare time. Stuart Wheeler, '61, is planning a trip to Europe this spring. Joan says she is starved for news from William and Mary alumni and would like to see anyone coming to Germany. Does anyone need a guide this summer? Write me and I will send you Joan's address.

Page Jones was married on August 18 to Hardy B. Traylor, a graduate of East Carolina College. Page writes that she is teaching eighth grade history at Colonial Heights Junior High in Ettrick, where she and her husband live. Hardy is with the All-State Insurance Company in Richmond. Page reports that Troilen Gaaney was married to William E. Seward in June 1963 and Troilen is now teaching sixth grade in Petersburg.

Rosi Pabb and Bart are living in Oxen Hill, Md. Bart recently got out of the Navy and is devoting full time to graduate work on a master's degree in business administration at American University. Meanwhile, Rosi is teaching high school. This past summer they had a wonderful vacation in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Alex White is a second lieutenant in the Air Force and is Base Fuels Officer at Charleston A.F.B., S. C. He graduated "Distinguished Graduate" from O.T.S. last July and married Sandra Lee Hunter of LaSalle, Ill., on August 1. Sandra is a registered nurse and is working at Baker Hospital in Charleston.

Bruce Goldwasser, who started out with our class, graduated from Rutgers University in 1963. He did social work for the State of New Jersey for a year and is now a freshman at Rutgers Law School in Newark. He hopes to use his social work background in the practice of law, perhaps in the field of legal aid or civil rights. Bruce is engaged to be married this June to Nancy Koorse, an alumna of Alfred University.

Sue and Dick Coyle called us last week to say they are the happy and proud parents of a baby boy, whom they named after Dick.

The following is very old news. Second lieutenants Arnold and Ronald Jones were assigned to a student battalion at Ft. Benning, Ga., in October, 1964. Arnie is executive officer of his company and Ronnie is assistant S-3 for the battalion. Both twins are married and have one child. Arnie's wife is Patty O'Doherty, '64.

From the Alumni Office come several news items. Rosalee Johnson is living in Washington, D. C., is a television promotion writer for CBS-TV. Richard O. Bassuener is a second lieutenant in the Army now stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C. Alan R. Scott is also in the Army, stationed in Eugene, Ore. Glen E. McCaskey is living in Philadelphia and is a member of the public affairs department of the Franklin Institute, which is responsible for the information services of the education and research organization. Steven E. Segal of Coral Gables, Fla., was awarded a Master of Business Administration degree from the University of Miami in January. Judy Harrison was married November 28, 1964, at Bruton Parish to Norris Hall Richardson. They are living at Pine Hall in Mathews County and both teach at York High School, Yorktown. Judy teaches English, and Norris, math. Living on the water, they spend much of their time sailing their 505 and kite.

Lucy Lane Scruggs and David are living in Marion, Mass., a few miles from Cape Cod. David works with Acushnet Process Co. Their daughter Emily is three.

Stephen E. Blankinship has joined Chemstrand Research Center, Inc., as an associate chemist. After graduation from the College, he studied spectroscopy at Lehigh University; he is a member of the American Chemical Society. He and his wife live in Raleigh, N. C.

I have talked to Bucky Reigelman, among many others, who has helped to supply the majority of this news column. Bucky is now doing graduate work in the communications school under the University of Pennsylvania. His fiance, Sandy Dail, is teaching English in Robert Frost Junior High School in Fairfax County.

Bucky relates the Susan Stitt and Alois Tinsman Baldwin and Fred are also in Philadelphia. Susan is doing graduate work in American civilization at the University of Pennsylvania. Fred Baldwin is in his first year at the Philadelphia Divinity School and Alois is working hard as both housewife and secretary.

There is an amazingly long list of those in our class working toward master's degrees. Doug Berryman is at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh studying architecture. Kay Burdett is under a full scholarship at Rutgers where she is in the Political Science School. Pete Crow is at the Missouri Journalism School, while Shauneen Cruise is working on her Master's in English at Northwestern. Abroad is Pete Davidson at Exeter. Gary Workman is studying toward his Ph.D. in chemistry at Rochester University; he is also teaching. Russell Gill is working toward his Ph.D. in English at Harvard. Sandy Heagy is continuing her English at Duke, while further south are Ed Kinsinger and Dave Pond, both at the University of South Carolina. Ed is working toward his Master's in Math, while Dave is studying chemistry; Dave is under a teaching scholarship as well. Don Lefelar can be found, we hope, at the Union Theological Seminary in New York. Another Ph.D. man is Steve Mosier, who is under a teaching assistantship at Iowa State in the Physics School; his wife, Susie Spindle, '63, is teaching French. Kenny Olshansky is at the Medical College of Virginia. Roger Swaggler is studying economics at Ohio State, while his wife, Carol Anne Wylie is teaching high school math. Cam Walker is also working toward her Ph.D. in history at Yale. In addition she lectures in the underclass seminars. Karen Back is in graduate school at Emory in biology, while Bill Black is at Duke. In Law School are Dick Thomasson, Pete Stout and Tom Meadows. Dick is at the University of North Carolina, Pete at Richmond, and Tom at Washington and Lee.

Those in Law School also number many. Roger Thomasch is at Duke Law School. Bill Hutchinson and Gordon Pehrsons at Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor, Tony Steinmeyer at Harvard, and Walter Vinyard at Columbia. Jerry Gimmell and Lucy Humner are both at Georgetown Law School; Jerry is living in Chevy Chase, Md., while Lucy is living at home in Arlington. Those in Virginia include Blake Newton who is in Law School at the University of Virginia. The following have remained at William and Mary: Stuart P. Davis, Mike Lesniak and Bill Cleveland. Also at William and Mary doing their graduate work are Laidler Freeman, who is working on her Master's in Psychology, as well as Bill Redd and Bob Sizemore, who is in the School of Education.

From graduate school to those captured by the armed services the number seems to have dwindled. Jim Bennett is a second lieutenant in the 101st Airborne stationed at Ft. Campbell, Ky. A letter from Bill Morley informs us that he has completed the Basic Adjutant General Course at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. and is now at Camp Casey, Korea. Bob Joynt left before Christmas for Newport, R. I., to tackle the O.C.S. Fred DeQuoy tells me that he completed his six-month Jump School at Ft. Benning and is now with the Old Guard at Ft. McNair, a branch of Ft. Meyer. Steve Merrill and Don Beck, both tackled basic training at Ft. Lee. Steve is now stationed in San Francisco, while Don is in the state of Washington. Rumor says that Ash Woolridge and Dan Armour are both at Ft. Knox. Mike Flattery can be found at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex., under the base's officer program. Dick Goodwin left in December for the service under the Army ROTC program. Dave Mims has also been taken in by the Army. Is Bob Manuel at Ft. Knox? Sally Barnett Almand and Lou are stationed with the Army in Germany.

The business world has enveloped many of our classmates. Carol Forsythe and Joan Thompson are both working for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington. Ethlyn Abbott and Marg Holland, both living in Arlington, are with President Johnson's War on Poverty. Bob Casey works for the Health Department in Baltimore, Md.; while Sammy Sadler and Bill Lambert are with the Health Department in North Carolina. Janet Faulstitch is a receptionist at the Theta Chi National Headquarters where she also helps to put out the fraternity handbook. Joe Barnes and Jim Bjorkholm are under the administrative trainee program for J. C. Penney in Richmond. John Tugman left early last summer to travel around the world while writing newspaper articles for the Northern Virginia Sun. Bob Soleau, of course, has been seen on television with the Pittsburgh Steelers. Bob returned to William and Mary this spring to work on his Master's in Education and to coach as well. Judy Davis is with the Executive Trainee Program of the State Department in Washington. Also with the State Department is Melissa Hall, who is with the personnel branch there. On Capitol Hill we can find Ed Johnson, who works for Senator Everett Dirksen. Bev Van Oot Williams and Ronny are now new parents. Ronny works for Proctor and Gamble. Ed Horton is a sales representative for Friden, Inc., business machines in Alexandria. He also informs me that Betsy Goin is based in Seattle, Wash., as a stewardess for United Airlines. Karen Rackley lives in Hampton and works for NASA at the Langley Research Center. Phil Van Kirk, also in that area, is a salesman for a business firm in Norfolk. And Marcia Ballard has moved back to the Washington area from Houston, Tex.

Well, that covers everything, except for the teachers, and here again is another long list. Tom McCullough is teaching history at a junior college in Baltimore, Md. Also in Maryland, are Ann Jett, who is teaching English, and Bill Pippin, who is tackling the seventh grade on the Eastern Shore. In New Jersey, Toby Sindt is teaching English and drama at Blair Academy. Al Insley is in West Virginia teaching and coaching high school track. In Lincolnton, N. C., Mike Hatcher is teaching music to grades one through 12. And in St. Louis, Mo., Nancy Ratz Viets teaches eighth grade Algebra.

Those teaching abroad include Elaine Hoover, who is teaching college English in Medellin, Colombia, for the Peace Corps. And Karen Patrick, Gretchen Scherer, and Cathy Parsons are still teaching in France under an assistantship with the French government. Karen writes that she spent Christmas in Venice, Austria and Greece. Gretchen spent her vacation in Spain. Gretchen also writes that she lives in a boarding house which allows no male visitors. This is France?

Those keeping the state of Virginia educated are a large group. In Richmond, there is Vee Jones, Mary Grafton London, Jim Holdren and Gene Birdsong. Vee writes that she is teaching the third grade at Highland Park School and that Mary Grafton teaches art at her school and two other schools in the area. Jim Holdren teaches both math and chemistry at Thomas Jefferson in addition to coaching track and cross-country. Gene Birdsong teaches elementary school in Richmond. By the way, she and Max Tongier, '62, are engaged and are planning a summer wedding. Martha Ann Smith lives in Richmond and teaches fourth grade in Henrico County.

In Smithfield, Jim Roy is teaching at Smithfield High School and coaching basketball. Polly Cherry is living at home in Charlottesville and teaching fifth grade. Ann Lyon teaches the primary grades in Norfolk.

In the Northern Virginia area, the number of teachers from William and Mary seems to be the greatest. Perhaps the pay scale has something to do with it. At Robert Frost Junior High School in Fairfax County are Kathy O'Connor, who teaches math, Priscilla Hegeman, Molly Butler and Sandy Dail, all teaching English. Fran Edwards, who is engaged to Bob Manuel, teaches elementary school in Fairfax. Jimmie Luben Angell and husband, Joe, also teach in the county. Carol Jones is with me at Fort Hunt High School where she teaches English and is a sponsor for the freshmen class. At Marshall High School, also in Fairfax, are Tom Ward, who teaches history, Alice Hall and Linda Lawrence, who both teach ninth grade English. Also there is Everett Cloud, who is the husband of Cathy Carr. At Mt. Vernon High School in Fairfax are Patty Vaught and Pat Parker. Patty teaches German and Pat teaches physical education and coaches. Teaching elementary school are Joy Walker and Val Rosado. Joy is in Alexandria while Val is at Custis Elementary school in Arlington County. And Margaret Ann Holland lives in Falls Church and works in the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Chaos continues to hover above Apartment 640 for my three roommates and myself. Bobby Mulcahey is in the midst of planning her second trip to Europe. Alice Hall and Joanne Arnett are both in the midst of planning their weddings. Alice is engaged to Andy Horne and will be married this summer. Joanne is marrying Paul Murphy from W&L University; the date is June 26, in Birmingham, Ala. I am anticipating a trip to Spain this summer to take some graduate courses there and to tour the country.

Correction

Mathematics is an exact science, so H. Page Williams, class agent for the class of 1916, is quick to point out. Twelve of the 23 located members of his class contributed to the 1964 Alumni Fund—and that's not 34 per cent participation, as incorrectly reported in the March Alumni Gazette. With better than 50 per cent participation the class of 1916, not the class of 1925, was top in percentage of participation.

William Bancks made the original of this unusual scalloped bowl, circa 1690-1700; it is particularly charming when piled high with fruits, for it is perfect design. The CW54 Strawberry Bowl is a good example of the imaginative selection of gifts and ideas available at Craft House for the person who deserves the very best. Come to Williamsburg and shop for Williamsburg Reproductions and Adaptations at one of America's most unusual stores.
