Tranquilizer

Two centuries ago Williamsburg's visitors enjoyed gay social events, excellent music, delights of the ballroom and theatre, and sports. The tempo of that day lives on in Virginia's colonial capital and today's visitors find inspiration in historic buildings and gardens, concerts, militia musters, colonial carriage rides, and activities reminiscent of that colorful period. They also relax on one of America's great golf courses, called "a masterpiece" by Golf Magazine. Designed by Robert Trent Jones, the Williamsburg Inn's Golden Horseshoe Golf Course is magnificent in the Spring. Come back to the College this year and see for yourself.

The Honors: A Challenge To Excellence

New Program,
 With New Ideas
 In Old Surroundings

IN THE fall of 1965, a group of 39 College freshmen was enrolled in a special new program which is not geared to becoming much larger. It is a curriculum-within-a-curriculum, aimed at satisfying the intellectual thirsts of the most capable and ambitious undergraduates.

The 39 freshmen were no experimental group, for the beginnings of this new program at William and Mary reached back to 1957 when the Departmental Honors Program was started for upperclass students. The difference in 1965 was that selected students could undertake Honors work at every class level.

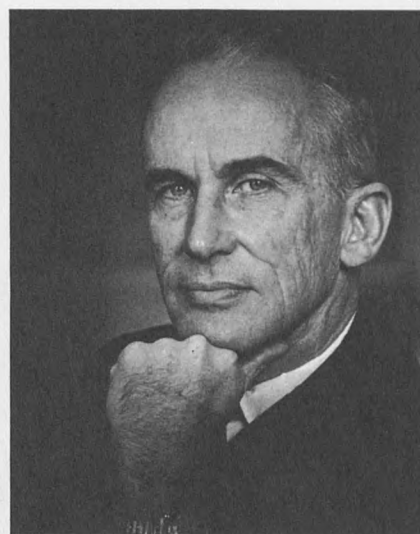

Now in its second year, the Honors Program embraces both General Honors during the freshman and sophomore years, and Departmental Honors at the upperclass level, the latter with specialization within one's concentration.

To develop and direct the four-year Honors Program, the College turned to a former Rhodes Scholar who had been on the faculty of the University of Miami in Florida for 17 years, 50-

"The colloquia have given me one of the most exciting, most disrupting experiences—in both intellectual and personal respects—I have had. They combined the interaction of a teacher familiar with a particular field and a small group of students, in informal and pressureless atmosphere, and the introduction of pertinent and vital questions. Within the framework of discussion and reading, I have derived a genuine pleasure in learning and thinking, in the processes of education."

year-old Dr. R. Carlyle Beyer, who accepted appointment as Professor of History and Director of Honors at William and Mary. A lean, greying scholar, Dr. Beyer is an articulate and well regarded spokesman for academic excellence on the campus.

In 1966, the former College Bookstore on the ground floor of New Taliaferro dormitory was renovated as The Honors Center, with a "commons room" lounge for Honors students, an Honors classroom and offices. There, removed from the traffic of classroom buildings, the students in the program can become well-acquainted and develop a common sense of purpose and "esprit de corps."

Dr. Beyer hopes that the example of excellence and intellectual enthusiasm among Honors students will be felt about the campus at large, "contributing significantly to the fulfillment of the College's academic objectives."

The 39 in the 1965 entering class were among 152 new students (in an entering class of 734) who were invited to apply for the Honors Program on the basis of qualifications contained in their entrance credentials. To the group of 39 was added a handful more the following February on the basis of recommendations from the faculty. That class of Honors students expanded to a total of 50 in September, 1966.

Another 39-member group was selected from the class which entered last fall.

During the first two years, Honors students enroll each semester in a selected colloquium in place of one course in the normal curriculum. The colloquia are informal "conversational" classes on such broad themes as "The Nature of Man and the Varieties of Human Experience." In addition each semester, underclass students enroll in a small departmental honors class whose subject matter is related to the overall theme used in the colloquia. Last spring, for example, the departmental classes discussed readings in "humanization and dehumanization" under an anthropologist, "creativity and rebellion" under a psychologist and "images of modern man" under an English instructor.

The colloquia, Dr. Beyer says, aim to encourage scholarship, disciplined thinking, the art of productive conversation and ability to think and study across departmental lines.

Upon entering their junior year, Honors Students continue their work into concentrations, with emphasis on independent study and preparation of an Honors thesis.

The program has led to some experimentation in educational technique, since the faculty which teach in the Honors Program are free to gear their work to satisfying the particular and individual needs of their students. Among the experiments is the use of ungraded classes.

Another is the offering of a colloquium in science and the scientific method for the non-science student.

The Honors Program is viewed as a way of offering individualized and challenging work for exceptional students, at a time when higher education has been forced to have larger and more impersonal classes.

TONY AND Judith Suber Hannold are hardly in a league with Cornelius Vanderbilt or J. P. Morgan, but they do own a railroad and that places them in a class of their own among William and Mary alumni.

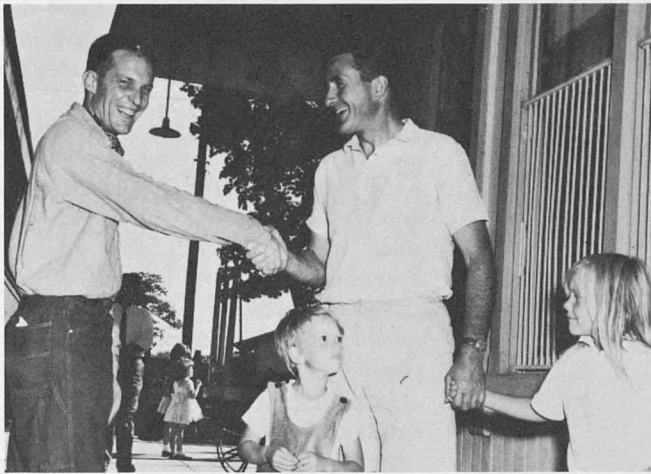

What was once the depot and headquarters for the 90-year-old Narragansett Pier Railroad in Peace Dale, Rhode Island, is now an enchanting home for the Hannold family—and still the office for the “working” freight line which hauls payloads six days a week and, on summer Sundays, excursion passengers on the storied “High Society Route.”

The Hannolds made their purchase in March, 1965 when Tony, long a railroad enthusiast, was in the insurance field in Philadelphia. They were living then in what had once been a dilapidated old farmhouse in a suburban community, which was their first major renovation project.

The six-mile-long railroad has a crew of four men who handle freight work and maintenance. The Narragansett Pier Railroad brings rock salt into South County for highways in the winter, along with fuel oil, coal, gas, building materials, and chemicals for a fertilizer plant. In the opposite direction—from Point Judith to the road’s connection at Kingston Jct. with the New York & New Haven—fish meal and oil are shipped.

Rolling stock for the Narragansett Pier includes two locomotives, two Boston & Maine coaches built near the turn of the century and restored to mint condition by the Hannolds and volunteer rail enthusiasts; a private car built in 1885 for the Inter-Colonial Railroad in Canada; and an open car built from an old flatcar. Four buildings along the route have been kept up with a few aesthetic changes made by the Hannolds.

At one time or another, Tony is engineer, track man, locomotive repair man, car knocker, paper hanger, carpenter, plumber and sometimes even president; Judith has had her share of scraping, sanding, painting, puttying, poster-making, advertising, ticket-selling and answering the phone.

They met while at William and Mary, when Tony majored in business and Judith in art.

"We've always had a passion for old things, but this is the biggest old thing we've tackled," she said.

Their Narragansett Pier Railroad, around the turn of the century, carried a number of elegant private cars owned by wealthy travellers who left them at the Narragansett Pier to sport in the surf or vacation at Newport, Rhode Island. The railroad's posit on made it a short cut in that golden age, and the business kept 52 employes at work until a decline beginning in 1911, when a holding company leased the line as part of a power struggle. World War I, mill failures and the Depression further weakened the railroad until a brief boom in the 1940s. A holding company bought the road to use as a tax loss and finally, passenger service was abandoned in 1952. A major customer purchased it to insure transportation for its shipments and proceeded to refurbish the equipment and track. But a major shipper went bankrupt in 1963, and it was left for the Hannolds to write the next chapter in the Narragansett Pier Railroad's history.

By 1966, traffic had been developed and efficiencies introduced to put the road back in the black. With the aid of volunteers of the Narragansett-Seaview Railway Historical Society, the railroad is continuing its efforts to "bring back the days when passengers could ramble behind clanging bell and haunting whistle" through the woodlands in nostalgic visits to railroading's legendary past. ❀

Liberal Arts in Virginia

By Davis Y. Paschall

THE LIBERAL arts constitute the brilliant thread of continuity of education itself from classical times through the period of settlement of this nation to the present. The phrase is derived from the Latin origins, "artes liberalis"—the word "artes" meaning "to make" or "to shape," and the word "liberalis" coming from "liber" meaning "free."

Thus, the term, "artes liberalis" has been translated as "activities worthy of the free" as distinguished from those appropriate for a slave. Since it has historically been used in connection with the preparation of such activities, it has been associated with education, and may be conceived as "education worthy of free men"—a class or political distinction in classical times, an intellectual or social distinction in colonial times and, I suggest, a democratic essential in modern times.

The liberal arts have, it seems to me, signified those subjects or disciplines which, upon study and assimilation, cement the foundations of personal character, public duty and responsibility, and the individual's commitment to certain values that transcend economic and vocational satisfactions.

I suggest that liberal arts, for us, connotes the value gleanings of western man in his long, arduous gropings for release from the shackles of barbarism. It embodies the discernible fabric of our civilization emanating from the humane landmarks of the past that must become a dynamic, motivating force in the lives of our students if the hand of tomorrow is to be restrained in releasing the power that would return us to the cave.

Perhaps another way of defining liberal arts is to describe one bearing the hallmarks of its mastery:

He is one who has tempered the steel of his knowledge of forces that destroy with the wisdom of those that save, and casts his lot with the latter.

He is one who has delved deeply in the purifying crucibles of ageless literature and philosophy in search of a satisfying answer to two ancient queries: Who am I? and Why this Universe?

He is one who has nurtured the wisdom to discern certain questions that defy reason and logic because their answers as yet reside in the realm of faith.

He is one who has acquired the "wherewithal" to manipulate others to his own ends, but at the same time a sense of values that refuses to permit it.

He is one who harbors a sense of moral responsibility for the formulas he devises and the instruments of destruction he invents.

He is one who recognizes the imperfections of government as a responsibility to his own initiative in dealing with them intelligently.

He is one who appreciates the aesthetic experience; articulates his ideas; and thinks conceptually on those matters that merit deliberation and reason.

He is one who perceives in the nuclear arena of the days now upon us the Damocles sword that lurks in the emulation of the tactics and ideologies of a professedly atheistic enemy whereby one may become his own betrayal victim in action, belief and success.

He is one so steeped in the knowledge and values of a broad general education as to enable him to build the skills of future specialization without losing the perspective of the good life.

For those who would say that such hallmarks are too ideal for attainment, I would suggest that those who delved in good liberal arts discovered long ago that nothing in the history of man is more practical than an ideal.

Virginia can be proud of the long-standing tradition of liberal arts. There are certain tasks, or perhaps challenges, to a preservation and strengthening of this important core of our higher education which must now be analyzed. Without reference to priority of importance, I suggest the following as worthy of our best efforts:

1. We must safeguard strong undergraduate programs under the quickening impact of graduate work. We all recognize the need for more advanced programs in some of our institutions, and this trend need not affect adversely the undergraduate years if we will consciously be alert to the dangers of the development. I refer to those situations where the library resources of the undergraduate program are sacrificed upon the graduate altars; graduate students replace experienced faculty members in the freshman and sophomore classrooms; salary differentials favor the graduate faculty; and general education requirements for the undergraduate are subtly influenced to serve more advanced programs, thus becoming means to a concentration or specialty rather than liberating ends in themselves. I am confident we can avoid these dangers in Virginia if we maintain forthright vigilance and muster the resources to have a strong program at both levels. The commendable support of higher education in

President Davis Y. Paschall (at left), significantly honored last month by presentation of the College's Thomas Jefferson Award, delivered these timely remarks last fall at the Governor's Conference on Education. The points he made before an audience of several thousand have since been widely praised.

Virginia in recent years encourages this confidence.

2. We have observed more and more students in the last decade coming to college who are better prepared than ever before. They now master knowledge in the later years of secondary schools that was standard "fare" a generation ago for the first years of college. This is a widely recognized tribute to those who operate and teach in the public schools of Virginia. These students win advanced standing upon entering college and feel they can rightly skip their first years because with better preparation many are already under the spell, the lure, the beckoning, the obsession of graduate work that invites a quick rush to a specialty.

In the sense of better preparation for college this is good. In another sense, however, it raises the very pertinent question as to whether the undergraduate program is to be sacrificed between the mills of acceleration at the beginning and the pressure of graduate specialty at the end. If liberal arts are to be preserved, I suggest that this situation warrants our early attention. Instead of minimizing the basic courses of the beginning college years in a wild rush to propel the student into early specialization, we must re-think their import and their challenge to the students who are now coming to college.

This task is vital because the type of intellectual activity characteristic of liberal arts studies requires time—time for assimilation, dialogue and contemplation as well as time for the human organism to mature to the point of exercising critical reflection and enlightened intuition. It has been demonstrated that one can develop skills and memorize facts at an early age, but it has not been demonstrated that he can at such age do equal justice to abstract ideas, ethics, art and literature. We must, therefore, be prepared to afford time for liberal arts, and not hastily propel one's summer into winter. Rather than permit the undergraduate degree to become "commonplace," we must now resolve to find ways to make it unique.

3. Closely related to the aforementioned task is the urgent necessity to reconstitute the curriculum pattern to reflect a reversal of the trend toward greater proliferation of courses at the undergraduate years. Compare a college catalogue of a given institution thirty years ago with the catalogue today. What was once an American History course is now three or four courses. Similarly, what was once a historian recruited for the faculty is now an Early American History man, or a pre-Civil War man, or a Far-East man, or a Near-East man. What I am trying to say is that liberal arts disciplines themselves have, through a rationalization of new knowledge, tended to become over-specialized at the undergraduate years. Somehow we must face up to the task of conceiving a program that will avoid the pitfall of being merely "survey" on one hand, and over-specialized on the other. Many of our honors programs have achieved this, but these are as yet limited to a relatively small number of students. Their concept of a synthesis of knowledge tends to breed wisdom, the hallmark of a liberal education. Such a synthesis or interdisciplinary approach, if distributed in part, at least, throughout the undergraduate—and ideally into the graduate years—would provide the surest means of directing the mastery of sensational new knowledge into the perspective of the wisdom of the race. It might well become the strong, stabilizing factor in the accelerating tempo of modern life, and the surest safeguard against man's becoming enslaved to the "tools of the modern trade."

4. Every disciple of the liberal arts recognizes the philosophical justification inherent in the action of the

The College

CHARTER DAY 1967, the 274th anniversary of the chartering of the College, featured the dedication of the new Robert Andrews Hall of Fine Arts which was erected to complement the 10-year-old Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The Rev. Robert Andrews, an Episcopal clergyman who was Bursar and a member of the faculty in the 18th century, was the first American professor to teach a course of study which included the Fine Arts.

Speaker for the February 11 Charter Day was John Walker, Director of the National Gallery of Art, who discussed the arts from President Jefferson's time to the current Administration. Subsequently, at dedication of Robert Andrews Hall, Leslie Cheek Jr., Director of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, was the main speaker.

Both Mr. Walker and Mr. Cheek were awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Fine Arts.

Jay Winston Johns of Charlottesville, retired business executive from the Pittsburgh area, was awarded the honorary Doctor of Laws degree. Mr. Johns restored the home of President James Monroe, "Ash Lawn," and inaugurated the Stonewall Jackson Memorial, Inc. in Lexington. He was a founder of the Virginia Museum and is widely known for his efforts to preserve places and buildings of historical significance.

President Davis Y. Paschall was named recipient of the 1967 Thomas Jefferson Award for having most exemplified the ideals and outlook of the distinguished alumnus. The award is given each year to an outstanding member of the College community under a fund set up by Robert Earll McConnell Foundation.

The Robert Andrews Hall of Fine Arts, which faces the new Earl Gregg Swem Library with a facade much like that of Phi Beta Kappa Hall, cost $729,000 to erect. Included are studios for all phases of the creative arts, a 224-seat lecture room and a 56-seat lecture room, as well as a striking two-story exhibit hall in the entrance. The hall contained a special collection,

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law faculty will select recipients of the medallion, which honors George Wythe, first professor of law, and John Marshall, an early alumnus. The first recipient has not been announced.*

Thirty Years of Art in Virginia, loaned by the Virginia Museum.

Mrs. Jean Outland Chrysler '42 gave the College several valuable paintings just prior to Charter Day, her newest gift of art works in the recent past which now form a collection named for her.

A new dining hall to be opened this spring on the New Campus was designated the William and Mary Commons, to indicate its intended use as more than merely a cafeteria. Space will be available in the hexagonal-shaped structure for various social functions, private luncheons and dinners and other events.

In other news of the winter months:

Hugh Haynie '50 returned to the campus in February to appear as the first speaker in a new Journalism Forum series inaugurated by Pi Delta Epsilon, the journalistic honorary.

Alumni Secretary and Director of Development, Jim Kelly '51 was elected president of the Williamsburg Chamber of Commerce.

Former director of the Counseling Center and professor of psychology, Dr. Richard B. Brooks, was appointed Dean of the School of Education effective September 1, succeeding Dr. Howard K. Holland, who asked to be permitted to devote full time to teaching and research.

The papers of 35 years of public service by former Sen. A. Willis Robertson of Lexington, who received an honorary degree from the College in 1965, were given to the College Library at the end of 1966. He was, among other things, chairman of the Senate's Committee on Banking and Currency and the 35 boxes of papers, letters and manuscripts covering his political career were felt to be of great value to historians studying the era.

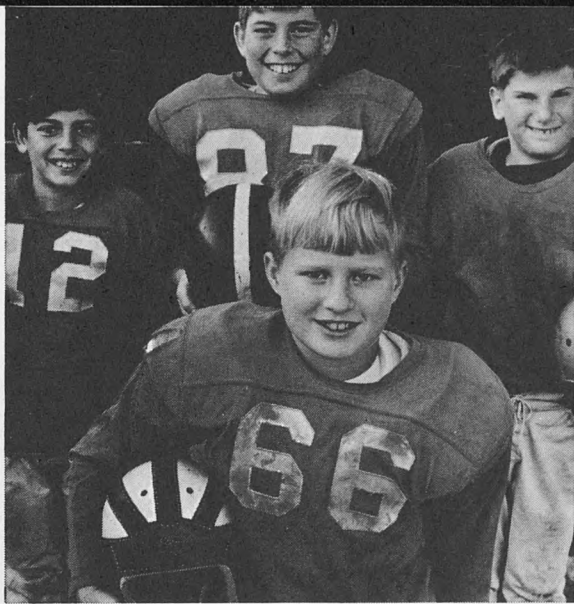

Carl Dolmetsch's book "The Smart Set: An Anthology" was praised in national periodicals. The volume is a collection of writings which appeared in Mencken's erstwhile magazine "The Smart Set." Dolmetsch is associate professor of English.

Dr. Anthony Esler of the History Department published his study of the Elizabethan era, "The Aspiring Mind of the Elizabethan Younger Generation."

Pappy Fehr's 70-voice College Choir will embark in April on a three-day concert tour through Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey.

Among the scheduled appearances are: Alexandria, Groveton High School, April 19 at 8:00 P.M.; Aberdeen, Md., High School, April 20 at 8:00 P.M.; Wilmington, Del., Friends School, April 21 at 8:30 P.M. and West Orange, N. J. High School, April 22 at 8:15 P.M.

The Wilmington concert is sponsored by alumni in that area.

Athletics

By Steve Row

THE WILLIAM and Mary track program received unexpected recognition in the early winter when the College Board of Visitors presented Head Track Coach Harry Groves with a special resolution commending the many track teams coached by Groves, saying that "these successes of the track team, including cross country and other phases of the sport, can be attributed in large measure to the excellent leadership given the program by Harry R. Groves, whose untiring efforts, conscientious devotion and inspirational association with William and Mary track men constitute a distinctive record in the best tradition of the College." The citation was presented to Groves by College President Davis Y. Paschall, and is believed to be the first time that the Visitors have formulated such a resolution for an athletic team.

What may have prompted the Board to recognize the College track program—certainly the most successful single sports program at the College—was the fantastic efforts by the cross country team in the state, conference, and regional competition after the 1966 season. Paced by distance stars Terry Donnelly and George Davis, and backed up by Chop Jordan, Joe Philpott, Juris Luzins, Steve Larson, Dick Widell, and Ned Hopkins, the varsity team finished first in all three meets—including the tough NCAA Region 3 meet usually dominated by powerful Tennessee.

The future for the track team is just as bright, with another outstanding group of freshmen ready for varsity competition next year. This year's frosh, led by Jim McDuffie, Ted Wood, Eric Smith, Mike Wallace, Larry Bryant, and John Derrick retained the W&M State cross country title by winning the State Freshman Meet with a low score of 25 points.

For Coach Groves, this award was long in coming. Ever since coming to the Reservation in 1955, the Temple graduate has been molding a track power—not only in the State, but also in the Southern Conference and this part of the country. In 1965, considered by many the top year as a whole for the track program, the Indians won five of six major crowns: the State cross country, State and Conference indoor, and State and Conference outdoor championships. This year, with the State and Conference (and regional) cross country titles already won, and predicted success in defending the others, the track teams may surpass last season's efforts. The Indians have competed on the national level in recent years, too, and this year they finished 18th in the team standings in the NCAA National Cross Country Championships held in Lawrence, Kansas.

What is most impressive about the winners molded by Groves is that he has nowhere near the same funds with which to work in recruiting, updating facilities, and so forth as football or basketball. The latest addition to the program was a banked board track one-eleventh mile in length which can be installed in the north end zone of Cary Field and used as an indoor track. It has allowed William and Mary to host "indoor" track meets outdoors, and thus increase the indoor season schedule.

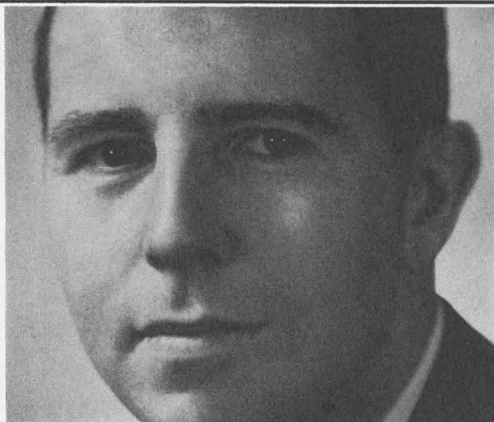

The track program at the college, already established as a winner in the score books, now has received the formal recognition it deserves. For Harry Groves, the award was especially sweet, and it marked a plateau of sorts from which the Indian track program can advance to higher levels.

Winter Roundup

Through exam time, the winter sports had gotten into full swing at the College. Basketball, under the first-year leadership of Warren Mitchell, had a respectable 8-6 record, with a Conference record good enough for third place at the halfway mark. Their most impressive win was a 100-78 win over annual foe Hampden-Sydney. Sparked by junior Ron Paneton, who led the Tribe in scoring for the past ten games and who was averaging close to 20 points per game over-all, the Indians were set for the second half of play against all Southern Conference opponents. The SC Tournament is March 3-5 at Charlotte.

In other sports, the indoor track team was 1-0, Chet Witten's gymnastics team was 1-0 through the middle of January, and the wrestlers

'Look Mommy, There Goes Mrs. Gulliver'

By SEENA HAMILTON '45

LAST SUMMER as I waded my way through hundreds of children in the registration area of a Chicago hotel, ready to launch my third children and teen age sightseeing program for the American Medical Association, I heard a little girl whisper to her mother, "Look, Mommy, there goes Mrs. Gulliver."

That innocent remark made me acutely aware of just how far Gulliver's Trails, a mere idea conceived of six years ago, had taken me down a totally new road.

Ever since leaving William and Mary, my efforts had been directed toward the writing field. I had run the gamut from my first job as copy girl on the New York Daily News to radio and TV news writer and eventually to magazines as editor. It was a career also sprinkled with work as a public relations consultant and much free lance writing. Marriage to a New York internist (Dr. S. K. Fineberg) and motherhood (one son, Bryan, now 11) never changed the happy path I was on. When I thought of Gulliver's Trails, I didn't think that would, either.

Had I dreamed back in the summer of 1960 that one day I would be virtually commuting across the continent to handle the sightseeing activities of hundreds of youngsters a day in more than one city at a time, I might never have had the courage to get started. All I had envisioned in those peaceful days 25,000 children ago, was a small, very select supervised sightseeing service in New York City. Such a service would enable visitors a chance to offer their children a day on the town seeing the sights with other girls and boys while parents pursued their more adult interests. I did not think of it as a full time occupation. I fully intended to continue my writing career and find an experienced bureau to run Gulliver for me. At that time, I was editor of a leading hotel and travel trade magazine. I often lectured on the subject of how to increase family travel and was involved in the efforts of city hotels to win the family tourist market during weekends and summers. Providing activities for children, would, I felt, offer city hotels some of the attractions of a resort, eliminating for so many parents the problem of what to do with the children all day long in the city. I became so enchanted with the possibilities that

I decided to start Gulliver's Trails. Local hotelmen were enthusiastic and a travel bureau said they would handle the myriad details with which I was totally unfamiliar.

We started with the slogan, "You take the holiday...we take the children," and we did, I might add, in great style, picking them up in Rolls-Royces. I can still see those shuddering chauffeurs as candy-coated fingers explored every nook and cranny of those luxurious limousines. Unfortunately, as Gulliver grew we grew out of Rolls Royces and into more prosaic buses. Today we use these limousines only for special V.I.P. tours.

My early dream of running Gulliver part time was shattered when I realized that running children's tours properly required a unique approach. Newspapers and magazines began to talk about the unusual service and I became deeply involved in trying to make Gulliver as good as we said it was. I also had to learn in a hurry. I found that there were no guidelines and it was rather a shock to discover that in effect, I was a pioneer. I learned that guidebooks describing the attractions of a city never grasped the way a child's mind approaches what he sees, and that the obvious facts and standard sightseeing techniques would not sustain their interest.

My staff (primarily college students, an intrepid breed) and I discovered that children love the unusual and facts in the extreme...the tallest, the biggest, the smallest, and even the goriest. We started to adapt a program geared to their interests. Today when we take youngsters to the Egyptian Wing of a museum, we restrain ourselves on the "cradle of civilization" lecture, and get right to the mummies. Gulliver guides tell them just how to make a mummy, and then tell their now captive audience other pertinent facts about the rich Egyptian culture.

The problem of mixing age groups is not as difficult as one might think. When groups are small, everybody goes together. Teenagers are given a more sophisticated explanation than the younger children. When groups become bus loads we balance age groups and gear our approach accordingly. We still may use the same points of interest, but we change our viewpoint. We have had eight years olds fascinated by the Stock Exchange once we have explained it in terms of cokes and candy bars. We explain that if you invest a nickel in these companies and if everybody buys the items they make, your nickel might become a dime. Of course we have sometimes had to restrain would-be plungers with the sobering thought that if everybody went on a diet and stopped eating candy, their nickel might be lost. One youngster decided after this discussion that banks were safer, after all.

Gulliver's special attitudes meant training a corps of young guides who possessed stamina (they must be ready to climb the steps of every tower whose top we reach); friendliness (we maintain discipline while still considering each child as if he were a visiting relative); ingenuity (having answers to such questions as how much is Manhattan worth in dollars today?), and an assortment of anecdotal facts that make the mustiest of historic homes come alive (like the story of the daughter of the owner of Fraunces Tavern being bribed to poison Washington's peas, and what she did about it).

After employing hundreds of guides per summer (our primary period of operation), I have developed a healthy admiration for young college students. They do a great job, work hard and have a willingness that is almost unbelievable. Most school teachers seem slightly uncomfortable operating on a free-wheeling basis and tend to want peace and order to a rather rigid degree. Young people establish a quick rapport, and those we employ in many cities, have won lavish praise from grateful parents as well as downright affection from their young charges.

From a first summer when we escorted perhaps thirty youngsters ranging from six to twelve, we have reached the point where we may sometimes escort as many as five hundred youngsters a day ranging from six to 17. The big jump came when convention groups holding meetings in New York began asking us to take over three and four day children's programs. I still recall my cold panic the first time I saw a hundred and sixty youngsters gathered in a hotel ballroom waiting for their Gulliver adventure. My knees never stopped shaking that day, and my guides were not too calm, either. By 1964, when that daily number approached five hundred on a given day, my staff had learned to anticipate large numbers and in fact to be rather excited by the challenge. That summer they actually began to complain that just one bus load was too easy.

As well as things have gone, there are times of crisis that make me wonder what I ever did to make me undertake such an insane business. There was one evening we had four hundred children out for an evening in Greenwich Village. The last fifteen reservations were more than we should have allowed, but the youngsters begged to go. We told them that we would not be able to take them to one of the popular teen-age clubs on the tour, but assured them that there would be an adequate substitute. If they agreed, they could come along. They all said it didn't matter a bit, but when the time came to take those 15 to the other club, we called out their names and they never answered the call. There we stood on those narrow streets, looking for 15 youngsters who just couldn't remember their names. Happily, the club squeezed everyone in, but my nerves barely held up. At another convention, the group obtained tickets to a top Broadway hit, and never showed us the tickets until the day of the show. When we looked at them, they were mistakenly for a matinee instead of the evening performance. We pleaded cajoled and cried and finally the theater found room for one hundred youngsters. Some stood in the aisles or sat on bridge chairs, but they saw the show.

Gulliver . . .

By 1965, the conventions with whom we had worked in New York asked us to follow them around to other cities. We accepted that challenge, and last year set up programs in Chicago, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C. for some of the groups.

We've even gotten involved with the grownups, handling women's programs and sometimes the hospitality functions for the entire convention. Actually, our service today serves many functions. We are open for individual reservations in New York five days a week from June through September, but we accept special charter reservations or groups on a year round basis. Now we are embarking on European tours for teenagers. This latter program began when parents began asking us if we could plan something more than the usual European tour and when airlines approached me about developing unusual programs for students. Our European schedule will include special receptions where youngsters will have the opportunity of meeting and getting to know European youngsters; theaters where they will take backstage tours and meet the performers, resort stopovers with time to relax and participate in sports and recreation, and a sightseeing scheduled geared to study programs.

Cubic SECOR satellite surveyor makes first direct coast-to-coast measurement of U.S.

Cubic's SECOR, world's most precise satellite tracking system, recently completed the first direct "single-leap" distance measurement across the United States, from San Diego, Calif., to Herndon, Va. In only 10 seconds, the distance between these points was determined to be 3,628,300.5 meters, or 2,254.5 miles.

More important than actual distance computation was SECOR's ability to accomplish this historic feat. SECOR uses a satellite 600 miles in space to plot and measure the earth with amazing speed and surveying accuracy.

"... a first order geodetic tool..."

After initial tests, SECOR won the highest praise of the surveying and mapping profession.

Army officials noted, "SECOR has the full capability of a first order geodetic tool." In present operations, Cubic's all-weather SECOR system is successfully measuring distances between points of land separated by broad expanses of ocean.

29,000 "ranges" in six minutes...

During a typical satellite pass of six minutes duration, SECOR's four Cubic-built ground stations make approximately 29,000 measurements or "ranges" with 95% success. Within the SECOR satellite, a miniature 7-lb. Cubic transponder acts as a receiver-transmitter.

Tests prove that SECOR can extend control over distances exceeding 2000 miles with geodetic accuracy.

SECOR's far-reaching applications...

Data gathered by Cubic's SECOR will have lasting importance in the fields of geodesy, global navigation and satellite navigation. SECOR will have a role of major importance in space and defense programs requiring distance measurements with pinpoint accuracy. Information about the earth's shape and gravitational field is also being obtained.

SECOR is a product of Cubic Corporation, leader in the field of electronic measuring systems.

For additional information about SECOR, write to: Chief Scientist, Cubic Corporation, Department D-143, San Diego, Calif. 92123.

W. H. Deierhoi of Richmond, Virginia writes that after 47 years in the Richmond Public Schools he retired in 1960 from the office of Assistant Superintendent. At present he is the State Director for the National Retired Teachers Association and President of the Richmond Chapter of the American Association and President of the Richmond Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Francis West Cooke who died in January of 1966 in Winter Haven, Florida had retired in 1964. Following graduation he taught for several years in Virginia high schools and then volunteered for service in the U. S. Army. After World War I he entered the University of Illinois from which he received his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in Physics. He devoted his life to teaching and taught Physics at Agnes Scott College, Presbyterian College of S. C., Illinois College, Minnesota State College at St. Cloud, Northern Michigan University, and Davis and Elkins College. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Harriet Wirick Cooke, a son, Robert F. Cooke at the University of Michigan, a brother, Giles B. Cooke, '23, and a niece, Anna Dorsey Cooke, '59.

17

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., President of the University of Baltimore, addressed the third general meeting of the 57th annual convention of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers in Austin, Texas last November.

Jesse Rawls Byrd retired in 1964 after following a career of teaching and public school administration. He was Superintendent of Williamsburg Public Schools from 1928-1953 and Superintendent of the Williamsburg and James City County schools from 1953-1964. The school board members designated him as Superintendent Emeritus at the time of his retirement and have since named a new elementary school for him. He is currently working on a history of public schools in the system in which he worked for many years.

Alf J. Mapp, who passed away on July 23, 1966 has had many tributes paid to him. In one editorial it was stated that while he was superintendent of the Portsmouth, Virginia public schools from 1950-1965, was the most trying in the history of the city's educational system. Those years encompassed both the accommodation to the Supreme Court's desegregation decree and the expansion of school facilities to care for the post-war population explosion. That the epoch passed relatively smoothly, without unpleasantness in race relations or strain from overcrowding, is evidence of Mr. Mapp's administrative skill and vision.

The Reverend Morris W. Derr, formerly rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Latonia, Kentucky, was made the Rector

30

Emeritus on his retirement on June 1, 1966. Since then he has joined the staff of the Episcopal Theological Seminary where he is acting chaplain and consultant to the students. He received his honorary DD degree at the commencement in May 1964.

23

Elizabeth Eades is librarian at Deerfield Academy in Deerfield, Massachusetts for the next two years. The academy will move into a fine new building in late 1967.

Theresa G. Glenn of Canoga Park, California writes that she is still teaching in the Los Angeles City schools. Her 89-year-old mother, a retired school teacher, lives with her daughter and son-in-law. She received her BS degree when Theresa received her BA—and received her MA here in 1928.

of Dick Besnier were 1-2. The freshmen of both the wrestling and swimming teams showed impressively in their opening meets. The frosh wrestlers were 2-0, and the swimmers 3-0-1. Dudley Jensen's varsity swimmers were 2-2. The freshman basketball team coached by former W&M Star Larry Paffrath, was 6-2, and was paced by forward Bob Sherwood, who averaged over 30 points per game for the first half of the season.

Spring review

Coach Les Hooker's baseball team opens its season March 18 against Earlham at home, and that contest is followed by three more home contests, as the Indians seek to improve on last year's record. Long a sport that was noted for its dearth of victories, Hooker took a veteran line-up last season and molded it into a Conference contender. This season he will have many returnees, including the possible return of All-Conference catcher Chuck Albertson (1965), who sat out the 1966 season due to spring football practice. Other returnees who are expected to help the Indian cause on the diamond include pitcher John King, infielders Jim Rama and Bart Steib, and outfielder John Bane.

Tennis will be under Paul McLaughlin, the fall soccer coach, and top man returning from last year's 11-2 team will be junior Bob Blair from Suffolk. Golf, under Joe Agee, had one of its best years, staying in the top three in the Conference. This year Carl Christianson will head the returnees.

Other Sports News

William and Mary football coach Marv Levy, whose 1966 team tied for the SC championship, added another of his goals he had wanted since coming to the Reservation in 1964—a sixth full-time assistant coach. Bob Ross, assistant under former W&M great Vito Ragazzo at VMI in 1966, joins the Indian coaching staff as backfield coach, thus relieving Levy of that job he has had the past two years. Ross is a 1959 VMI grad, where he played football and basketball.

Construction on William and Mary's field house, hopefully to be completed by January, 1968, had not started by February. Several home games that had been scheduled for William and Mary in the 1967-68 season (including VPI, Virginia, Davidson, and West Virginia) have now either been rescheduled for neutral courts, or have been moved back to the opponents' home court.

Lacrosse has been added to the roster of sports at the College, though for the present it will not be a varsity-level sport. Athletic Director Les Hooker explained that "lacrosse will be on the club level until that time when we can fully assume the total expense of having it on the varsity level. This is similar to the situations of wrestling, gymnastics, and more recently, soccer—sports that have just now assumed varsity standing. We hope that enough money will be coming so that sometime in the near future lacrosse will be a varsity sport." Hooker also indicated that crew has been given some consideration as a College sport, but that no means for financing it are available at present.

given by the William and Mary Theatre. Forty years ago in December he was a member of the cast of "The Goose Hangs High," the Theatre's first production.

Marjorie E. Carter of Valdosta, Georgia and a member of the faculty of Valdosta State College represented the College of William and Mary at the inauguration of the new president there in November.

Frank S. Hopkins is still on duty in Washington in the State Department's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. He heads an organization called the Office of U. S. Programs and Services, with 110 employees, which is concerned with American hospitality to official foreign visitors and with academic support of exchanges of students, teachers and professors. He is making plans to retire from the Foreign Service in another year.

It was wonderful to receive so many pretty Christmas cards from classmates from all over the country—so many in fact, that space will not permit listing the names of the senders here. We wish more of you had written notes on them so we would have more news for you in this issue.

Virginia Harper Meeks writes that Jack Jr. is out of the service and back in Columbus. Their daughter is also working there. The twin sons are sophomores at Denison University—one a physics major and the other a chemistry major. Frances Ford Brenner and her husband were in Columbus last summer to attend the wedding of their nephew, Beverly Ford Sydnor's son, to the daughter of friends of theirs. It was the first time they had seen each other since graduation.

Bob Wescott writes that his flying activities have dropped off due to the advent of cold weather. Now he has to shovel walks—not quite as interesting, to be sure.

Clarence P. Jones, Jr. is enjoying a good life as a physician in Newport News, Virginia with his wife, Selma, who received her M.A. in Education degree in 1960. He received his M.D. at the Medical College of Virginia in 1934.

Mildred Moore Nixon of Eustis, Florida writes that after three sons and twelve years she finished at the University of South Carolina in 1942 magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa.

31

Hazel Storch Wilhelm of Woods Hole, Massachusetts is engaged in the practice of Pediatrics. She visited the College about a year ago and at that time attended a College band concert which she relates was superb.

Ann Meehan is working as an administrative assistant in the Theatre and Speech Department at Smith College.

Willoughby Patton of Yonkers, New York writes that early this year the David McKay Company published her juvenile adventure book laid in Florence in the time of Lorenzo de'Medici. She spent May and June of 1965 in Florence winding up the research for this and had a wonderful time there.

33

The class will be sad to learn of the death of the son of F. W. Hull, Laurence F. Hull, who had made an outstanding record at Worcester Polytechnic Institute in Massachusetts.

Osborne Christensen of Salisbury, Maryland is the current President of the Maryland Gynecologic Society.

Rhoda Pratt Hanson and her husband often travel to sundry sheep and wool meetings throughout the country. Rhoda had a marvelous trip to the Scandinavian countries in December—also had a gay time in Paris.

34

Edith Manning Shimkin of Urbana, Illinois has recently been appointed an associate of the Center for Russian Language and Area Studies of the University of Illinois.

Nathaniel H. Kates of Newton Center, Massachusetts as sixth leading agent in the country for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York, he has qualified for the industry's Million Dollar Round Table for 13 consecutive years. His son, Kenneth, a 1966 graduate of NYU has gone into the business with him.

Ruth Jackson McClure of Pittsburgh and her husband Bob are wintering in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Joseph Lee May, Jr. of Fairfax, Virginia retired from the U.S. Air Force in 1963 and went into the real estate business and is now a broker realtor. He is married to the former Virginia Lee Jarrell and they have one son at Old Dominion College and three in Fairfax High School.

Helen Perry Homes and her children along with her two sisters went to Europe last summer for a seven-weeks tour, visiting eleven countries.

Liberal Arts...

recent General Assembly and the Governor in establishing a system of Community Colleges. They will serve not only to provide a broadened base of opportunity for boys and girls in this State to attend college, but will also offer general as well as technical education. The success of this timely venture will, in my opinion, be gauged, "in the long run," more on the quality of the general education program offered and maintained than on any other factor. Those institutions in the State providing graduate education must, therefore, turn quickly to the task of preparing teachers for these two-year colleges, and aid them in every consultative way possible.

5. The quality of liberal arts in Virginia yesterday and today rests primarily on the quality of teaching. The teachers we remember are those who brought us through the stages of critical thinking to the threshold of our own minds; and opened doors to new thought processes, and inspired learning as a thrilling and rewarding adventure in the realm of ideas. Let us, then, deliberately cultivate the soil that nurtures the great teacher and foster, as we are now doing, those incentives and encouragements that will keep him happily in Virginia.

6. We can on this occasion pay tribute to those private institutions of higher learning in Virginia which have struggled to continue as citadels of liberal arts. In many respects, they are the last fortresses of protection of the best in the liberal arts tradition, and should be encouraged in every way short of interference.

If we are to survive as a free nation, then I submit that we must liberally educate for more than survival. If we are now capable of reaching into space, then I submit that we must liberally educate for true worthiness in moving among the stars. If we have now ensnared the rays of the sun, then we must liberally educate for illuminating the dark recesses of our lives. If we are to resolve the destiny of mankind, then we must liberally educate for a worthy immortality. This is the challenge of liberal arts that promotes an education worthy of free men.

Emily Sneed McGuire of Arlington is doing library work in the Arlington Public Library System. Her daughter is in the sophomore class and oldest son, a Cornell University graduate is now on Peace Corps Architectural project, Tunisia.

Cecil Wray Doss of Rocky Mount, Virginia is now supervisor of Operational and Auxillary Services and is on the Franklin County School Board.

William J. Harman of Eau Gallie, Florida writes that he received his Master's degree in Education from the University of Florida in 1965, also his son-in-law received his at the same time. Then one year later his wife, Betty Philips Harman, '37 was awarded her Master's in Education also at the same time their daughter, Linda Harman, received hers. They both achieved scholastic honors. He and Betty are employed by the School Board of Brevard County—she is Reading and he in Mathematics.

Carl Buffington is now director of communications at Richardson-Merrell, Inc. responsible for the company's internal and external communications program.

Hester White is medical librarian at Greenville Hospital in Greenville, Pa.

Betty Bartel Williams is secretary to the Sales Manager, Eaton Yale & Towne Inc. Richmond, Indiana. She writes that she enjoyed a 5 week trip to the Orient last Spring, visiting Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Macao, Singapore, Bangkok, Manila and Honolulu.

Gretchen Kimmel Price sends word from Spartanburg, S.C. that she and her husband celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary in August. Their eldest son, George III, graduated from Washington & Lee University, School of Commerce and is now with Norwich Pharmacal Co. The youngest, Jim, is a junior at Wofford College.

Heard from Joan Thompson Hicks at Christmas. She reports that her son, Jim, is taking courses at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., while his brother, Bruce, is at Roosevelt University. She belongs to a discussion group at the University of Illinois which publishes a paper on the Vietnam situation.

Dorothy Kincaid Portz says she sees Ruth Broughton Auping occasionally. Dottie is taking law courses at Western Reserve and lives in Solon, Ohio.

Small world! A friend of Jane Speakman Hauge's son brought his roommate from Duke over to call during Thanksgiving and he turned out to be the son of Helen Strange Patterson, '40.

Kaye Pierce Towers of Des Moines, Iowa writes that last June they had a trip to Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Georgia for a reunion with her roommate, Ione Murphy who is Assistant Dean of Women there, and attended the Commencement of the Class of 1966. Their older son's fiancée was a graduate—they were married in December. Both sons are seniors at Rockhurst College.

By the time this is printed Lee, Wylie and I will have returned from a trip to Hawaii to meet our elder son, Ryland, who is on duty in Korea. We expect to spend part of his mid-tour leave with him there, then return for a week or more in California.

Bradshaw Pulley was recently re-elected president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Elbert Slaughter (top Southern news reporter) writes that Homecoming was fine and that the following were present: Lucy (Ruffin) and Preston Green, Joe Kennedy and his wife, Deede (Allen) and George Bunch ('38), Herb Krueger and wife, Margaret Frances (Davis) and Bud Metheny ('40), Maureen (Stewart) and Bill Dulin, Jordan Sizemore, Bradshaw Pulley, John and Peggy (Duval) Winston, Ray Dudley and Frederick "Bus" Brown.

Anthony P. Wagener, Jr., has recently completed his 25th anniversary with the Sherwin-Williams Company where he is Assistant Supervisor of Organic Pigment Development. Tony and Lucille and their family are located in Chicago.

Mrs. Emily Petuske Hampstead of 1318 Lincoln, Norman, Oklahoma, represented the College of William and Mary at the Inauguration of Dr. Grady Coulter Cothen as President of Oklahoma Baptist University, November 5, 1966.

Frances Hiden Fitzhugh writes that she and husband, Captain Mayo M. Fitzhugh, Jr., U. S. Navy, are living in McLean, Virginia. Their oldest of four sons is a sophomore at Washington and Lee. The other three boys are in Langley High School. PTA, Church work, McLean Babe Ruth Baseball league (Fran is secretary and treasurer, Mayo President) are some of the activities which keep her busy.

While in Harrisburg last month on business, I had a good evening with Gwen Evans Wood and her family in their delightful home overlooking the city.

Peggy Prickett Miller is back in the states with the family while husband Miley is in Vietnam.

Mildred Mode Hughes of Somerset, England wrote that she and Martha Barksdale had dinner together last fall—Martha has since given her the names of a William and Mary professor and one student who are in nearby Devon. She hopes to entertain them in her home soon.

I'm happy to say that the Christmas mail brought many messages for me to pass along.

Al Alley's fine letter says he's enrolled in a painting class and is teaching a remedial English course on Beale Air Force Base for the local college. This summer Al and his family took a trip to Dallas and this fall they bought an attractive duplex at South Lake Tahoe.

Jack Hudson notes that his current plan is to retire next summer and embark on a business venture in Michigan, but he still thinks that when they "really" retire it will be back in Virginia. We do hope so, Jack!

Hope Hunt White and family are home, after four lovely years in Germany, living at 2694-D Mapes Rd., Ft. Meade, Md. 20755. Their son, John, is a junior at the Citadel and Geoff a high school sophomore and avid athlete. Hope says she saw Bob and Joan Jarrett Woods in September in Illinois and they are happily house building.

Sally Bell Wainwright's son, Curt, hopes to finish VPI next summer and JL is at University of Virginia so they're lonely with both boys away.

Jean Clarahan Bratton is moving to Simsbury, Connecticut and looking forward to being back east tho' they've enjoyed Northfield, Minn. Their daughter, Anne, is at Brown University for an MAT program.

Janet Amundson Hughes has joined the ranks of us grandparents via the birth of one David, Jr. (13 months) and prospects of another in June. Her son David is at Temple Law School. Linda, her older daughter, is at Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia becoming an LPN, and Pat is still in school. Janet is president of the Board of Education so "never a dull moment." She and her husband, Dr. Harold Hughes, live in Cape May, N. J.

Jane Harden Hanson and Tim have moved to 10 Stanmore Court, Potomac Maryland. Their daughter, Kim, has been accepted at Bryn Mawr and they look forward to learning about being parents in the college years. She frequently sees Jinny Smith Strange and Jinny Claudon Allen.

Vince and Carolyn Moses Luzardi's oldest daughter, Jean-Carolyn, is a senior this year at William and Mary. Luther and Yvonne Johnson Jenkins's two daughters, Kathy and Jeanne, are both at the College and son, Bruce, is doing wonderfully at Vanguard School which was written up in Nov. 14 Look Magazine.

Jane Brandt Wild's daughter, Leslie, who is a freshman at College belongs to the "Down County Four," a folk singing quartet that take engagements in the area and sing at some school functions. They were in a movie taken at Chownings Tavern as part of a college TV program which includes Yale, U. of Cal. and two others so they were pretty excited about it. "Natch," I'd say!

Rosa Ellis Long's daughter, Jaqui, has changed to Russell Sage College in Troy, N. Y. and seems happier. Rosa was re-elected president of the Girl Scouts Council of Buffalo and Erie County for another three years and attended the National G.S. Convention in Detroit in October.

Marion Milne Barba brought me up to date with their "young set." Bonnie, after graduation from Holyoke spent two months touring Europe. She now lives and works in N.Y. and has a wonderful job as "Management Interne" with the Federal Bureau of Housing and Urban Development. John Jr. is a sophomore at Princeton and Margaret a high school senior waiting to hear from "her" colleges in the spring. Marion and John attended the Builder's Convention in Chicago in December and in January have a trip to St. Thomas and the islands.

Bobby Milligan Molyneux's daughter, Sue, is in college studying Art Education and son, Bill, is a senior in High School in Danville, N. Y.

An interesting news release from the Alumni Office announced the graduation December 9 of Jack Garrett from the Advanced Management Program of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration as a member of the "golden" 50th AMP Class.

Incidentally the Garretts are now in the process of building a lovely water-front home nearby and we watch its progress with eager interest, looking forward to the day when they'll be full-time neighbors.

Our Christmas was, we all agree, the nicest one to date. Bambi, John and our grandson, Mark, from Knoxville, were with us and also John's parents, so we had a mighty happy celebration.

One of the real joys of Christmas was hearing from so many of you, with your enthusiastic comments on our reunion, and your reinforcement of a feeling expressed in Williamsburg that there just wasn't enough time together as a class. We'll make a note of that in planning for our 30th!

Odds and ends from that big week-end. Aura Schroeder Emery returned to Boston on the same plane as the Kennedy brothers and then, once home, had the delightful experience of watching the TV coverage of their arrival and "there I was on the 6 PM news deplaning, with the end of my '41 reunion pennant poking out of a bag!!" Trying to name all who returned for our reunion would be impossible (and dangerous, lest some one be omitted) but I'll stick my neck out and say how wonderful it was to see so many from California, including Chuck (and Tillie) Gondak, Bill (and Pat) Parry, Ruth Rapp, Bobby Feldwisch, and Mary Kay Edinger. Dot Lindquist Swan passed up the reunion for a 25th wedding anniversary trip to Portugal.

A long letter from David Camp brings us up-to-date on his activities. He is currently Chairman of the Chemistry Department at Sewanee, a small, liberal arts college in Tennessee. Dave was married in 1948, and received his PhD from the Univ. of Rochester in 1950. The Camps have two sons: Paul, nearly 18 and Tommy, 15. Dave frequently sees Edgar Darden, who lives in Oak Ridge and who received his PhD in biology from the Univ. of Tennessee some five or six years ago. Mr. Harrison, who taught English when we were in college, is now Chairman of the English Department at Sewanee. Thanks so very much for your letter, Dave, and we'll look for you at our 30th!

Priscilla Watson is married to a doctor, and they have three children, the oldest being 22 and out of college, one is in college at Northern Michigan University, and their youngest is eleven.

Bernie Ransone, a Professor of Political Science at the University of Alabama, had the pleasure and privilege of representing The College at the inauguration of the new President of Judson College.

Word has just been received that our inimitable Steve Lenzi has been honored as the "Italian of the Year" by the Branford (Conn.) Elks Club. Now we know you are really special. Congratulations.

Mary Ellen Lokey and John Geddes of Darien, Connecticut are pleased that their daughter, Barbara, will be a member of the freshman class next fall.

I seem to have missed the deadline for the December issue which contained homecoming news, but it was so much fun I must report. Jim and I joined the Class of 1941 for their twenty-fifth reunion dinner on Friday night and it was one of the most pleasant evenings imaginable.

There were many familiar faces and such an enthusiastic and high spirited crowd. Chuck Gondak came from California with his family, making it a vacation for all. Those of you who think you can't come without your husband take note that Ruth Rapp Thayer (even more glamorous than in yesteryear) attended every function and seemed to have a glorious time even though her family was unable to come from California with her.

In checking the registration at Phi Beta Kappa, I could find only a few from our class. It was good to see John Rinklin, Joe Brickter, Ed Goodloe, Dot Hogshire Harper and Dot Vogel. They were all looking forward to our twenty-fifth reunion next October.

One of our number is serving actively in a combat zone for the third time. This is Ben Read who is now Commanding Officer of the Twelfth Marine Artillery Regiment, Third Marine Division in Viet-Nam. Before going overseas last July he was presented the Navy Commendation Medal for work at Headquarters Marine and also received his Masters degree in Business Administration from George Washington University.

A note from Regina Williams that she is working as a dental assistant in Norfolk, Va. Margaret Meinhard Steinbrecher is working with a research project at the University of Rochester now that her two children are in high school. I checked the year book to find that Louise Wallace Richards was originally from Burkeville, Virginia and she is now enjoying the sands of San Pedro, California. Louise Gordon Tucker tells me that she and her husband attended the dedication of the Tucker-Coleman room in the new library last fall.

We were glad to hear from Malcolm Sullivan who lives in Northbrook, Illinois and works as Management Supervisor for the Seven-Up Company account with J. Walter Thompson Co. We plan to see you next October, Sully.

At long last a note from my buddy, Nat Nichols Pearson, to tell me that her youngest daughter is now at William and Mary. A check gave me the information that this lass from California is a chip off the old block and getting along famously at our alma mater.

R. C. Flowers of Wyomissing, Pennsylvania has been a practicing orthodontist for 18 years in Reading and Lebanon. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Dental School in 1943.

Betty Mordan Jamesson of Kenmore, New York writes that her son is a freshman at Clarkson College of Technology in Potsdam, New York and is a National Merit Scholar and treasurer of his class.

Margaret Kelly Dunham of Stoughton, Massachusetts wrote a lovely Christmas letter which told of the activities of her 14-year-old son and 13-year-old daughter, her husband and herself. They look forward to having any alumni visit them at their home.

I have checked and rechecked the 1942 annual and expect every one of you for our 25th reunion. You will be missed if you don't show.

Ira B. Dworkin of Flemington, New Jersey writes that after serving for two years in the New Jersey Attorney General's Office, assigned as trial counsel to the State's Bureau of Children's Services, he has now been appointed a Referee of Formal Hearings in the State Workmen's Compensation Courts. It is the only judgeship in New Jersey based upon open competitive civil service examination. After a month of training, he has been assigned to sit in various Central Jersey counties. He has to master forensic medicine as well as the statutes and regulations regarding workmen's compensation law and finds it very interesting and challenging.

Betty Kirst and Bill Baumann of Oak Park, Illinois write that he made a 210-yard hole-in-one at the River Forest Country Club last July.

Julian Carter Sizemore of Halifax, Virginia writes that his son, Richard is a member of the freshman class at the College.

Robert and Betty Buntin Matthews of Shellyville, Kentucky writes that Bob has been elected chairman of the Southern Association of Attorneys General and is on the executive council of the National Association of Attorneys General.

William B. Tarry, Jr. of Oxford, North Carolina is currently practicing medicine. He and his wife, the former Peyton Clements of Durham, have four children.

Frances Jarvis Smith of Mountain Lakes, New Jersey writes that she is teaching in the Mountain Lakes Public Schools. Seventh and Eighth Grade English and Composition Classes are her domain. Her four children are growing up. Jeff, the oldest will graduate from Annapolis in June and Peg, the next is a junior this year at Madison; Bob is a high school senior; and Cindy is an 8th grader.

Jane Williams Mahoney of Canton, Ohio is lecturing in Astronomy at Hoover-Price Planetarium and conducting classes there for all ages.

Dyckman W. Vermilye has joined the headquarters staff of the American Personnel and Guidance Association in Washington, D. C. as Director in the area of professional information, publications and professional relations.

Jersey writes that her husband who is still in cigar manufacturing recently joined Consolidated Cigar Corporation as a vice president. Their children are Dagmar, a junior at the University of Wisconsin, who studied last year at the University of Grenoble, France; Linda, a junior at Stanford University, who spent her sophomore year at Stanford-in-France; Christie, 16, is a junior in Plainfield High School; and Carl, Jr. who is in 8th Grade of Junior High.

Laura Quinn Rivero of Scotch Plains, New Jersey writes that learning is still a favorite pastime. Presently she is enrolled in a Ford Foundation Course in IBM Computer Programming at Rutgers University. She is looking forward to another career as her family responsibilities lessen.

Helen Black Truesdell of Mars, Pennsylvania and her husband Bob are enjoying life with their two children, Marcy, 17, who is a senior and head cheerleader; and Bob, 15, captain of the Junior High football team. They visited Williamsburg in April last year for the luncheon honoring Martha Barksdale.

Robert J. Faulconer of Norfolk, Virginia is now Director of Laboratories and Chief of Pathology at DePaul Hospital.

Jane Rile Roberts of Wilmington, Delaware writes that her son, Bruce, is a National Merit Scholarship winner and entered Dartmouth College last September. In June of last year he was named by President Johnson as one of the 121 Presidential Scholars of 1966. Doug, the eighth grader, is actively pursuing his hobbies of figure skating and model rocketry. Besides doing volunteer hospital work Jane is chiefly involved in playing the violin in the Wilmington Symphony.

Virginia Curtis Patterson of Falls Church, Virginia had a delightful tour of Italy with her husband Joe last year. Joe is a Navy captain in Washington.

Viola Mary Woodward Patterson is excited about the publication of the book Yankee Rebel: The Civil War Journal of Edmund DeWitt Patterson, by the University of North Carolina Press. The book contains the writings of her husband's grandfather and reviewers have hailed it as one of the most literate of Civil War diaries. She writes that she helped with the editing of the work and as a literary agent in its publication. The Pattersons, of 3 Davis Avenue, West Newton, Massachusetts, retain the original manuscript.

A mail-box filled with news for this issue—here goes:

Daphne and John Crum enjoyed Williamsburg last fall and report that daughter, Jean, is now a sophomore at the University of New Hampshire.

March 1967

Mildred Foster Lewis writes that her two oldest girls are in college, one at Furman University and the other at the University of South Carolina. All four children are ardent surfers but Millie says she confines her activities to substitute teaching and Tri Delt alum activities.

Sunny Manewal Murray's new address is 1506 Melrose Circle, Richardson, Texas, 75080. Ken retired from the Navy last year and is with the Graduate Research Center of the Southwest. Their son, Rip, is a sophomore at Dartmouth and daughter, Leslie, has just started high school.

Mary Schafhirt Barnes is now in real estate, associated with J. Rupert Mohler in Washington, D. C.

New address for Betsy Yow Pearce . . . Stu. Det. U.S.A.W.C., Carlisle Barracks, Pa., 17013. They left their three children and grandchild in Alabama when Bob was transferred but write of several visits back and forth since. Bob feels he will be stationed either in Washington or Vietnam by next Christmas.

Mary Rainey Begor also has a new address . . . 1211 Wilmont Terrace, Bowie, Md., 20715. Mary is teaching Math in high school.

Flossie Metius Johnson put all three of her brood to work this summer while in the Poconos and ran her own "hotel" when it came to meal time. Russ worked at the hotel, Randy as a handyman and Cindy ran a baby-sitting service. Russ heads for college in September. Flossie continues to teach her ballet classes once a week and does substitute teaching.

Dinny Lee McAlinden's Christmas card was a lovely drawing of their home in Hopewell, N. J. taken from a photograph Dinny did last winter during a snow storm. She enclosed a picture of her two, Jimmy and Mary Ann—charming children. Jimmy attends nursery school with George Gallup III of the "poll" family—both "the biggest little boys in the school," says Dinny. Joe continues to spend at least one week each month in Texas where he has opened another office in Texas City.

College is costly enough without high insurance premiums . . . yet students should be insured. Life of Virginia now offers a way to give students ten thousand dollar coverage, for only thirty dollars a year, with no medical examination. Both full-time college students up to age 27 and high-school seniors who will be in college within six months are eligible. And the insured may convert to permanent insurance at any time the Student Life Plan is in force, without evidence of insurability. For information on Student Life Plan, Call a Life of Virginia representative today.

Winifred Gill Geesey who were Chi O's at William and Mary met again working with the Burlingame P.T.A. Both have received the Honorary Life Membership award—an honor presented to those active in youth work in their community.

Alf J. Mapp, Jr. (200 Maryland Avenue, Portsmouth, Va., 23707) announces the second American printing of his second book Frock Coats and Epaulets, released last year. Book club distribution is in both the United States and the British Commonwealth. His third book America Creates Its Own Literature was published in October by Rand McNally. Congratulations!

Martha Macklin Smith is teaching school and sent her usual holiday letter again with a picture of three handsome sons.

Ruth Schmitz Kerns' daughter, Ginny, is a William and Mary freshman this year and Ruth did six weeks of Head Start work during the past summer, now is associated with one of the Fort Wayne junior high schools.

Betty and Henry Schutz sent a marvelous travelogue letter at holiday time briefing all of us on their wonderful 20th anniversary celebration in Europe last spring. Henry is a sophomore at William and Mary—Carolyn a freshman at Madison.

Last but certainly not least is a brief resume of Gloria Hanners Peters' latest accomplishment, taken from a newspaper interview late in 1966. She graduated 5th in her class of 95 at the Seton Hall University School of Law, took her bar exams in July and is attached to the Essex County Prosecutor's Office as assistant clerk of the Grand Jury. Mother of five children, she credits her family for her success. Her oldest daughter is a freshman at Carleton College in Minnesota. Congratulations to you, Gloria!

Edith McChesney Ker of Nairobi, Kenya writes that she and her husband had a sensational 3-months round-the-world trip last year (April-June). They rented cars in the U. S. and Canada and had a wonderful time in the Canadian Rockies and the western parks. They visited Hawaii, Japan, Hong Kong (hotel-bound there in floods—22 inches of rain in 24 hours!) Bangkok, Sydney, New Zealand, Melbourne and then home. It was Don's fourth trip to the States but the first time he really saw the country. She wrote "Now he sound like he founded the 'See America First' movement.

A most welcomed letter from Fred Frechette will start of this report of well seasoned news. Tommy Smith, who now has five children, lives in Smyrna, Georgia (Apt. E-4, 382 Church Street). He is with Lockheed Aircraft, and is also active as a teacher of investments. Tommy has visited Dr. Charles Marsh, who is now president of Wofford College. Apparently, Dr. Marsh plans to return to Williamsburg upon his retirement in a few years. Tommy has also visited with another Florida resident, Jean Morgan.

Fred, whose impressive letterhead reads "Motion Picture Productions," has dealings regularly with Fred Flannery, a Williamsburg accountant who is chairman of the James City County Board of Supervisors, and Dick Duncan, who operates his own insurance agency in Richmond. John Pearson, who began with our class in 1942, is now holding a fine position in the Virginia State Police and the rank of Major.

I enjoyed hearing from Annie B. (Bruce) Saunders in October, from 309 W. Morgan Street, Wadesboro, N. C. Her honor student son is now in his first year at Davidson College, while her thirteen year old daughter keeps things hopping at home. Her husband, Dick, is manager of a new Textile Dyeing and Finishing Mill there; Annie B. sounds busy with community and social activities.

In October, a sad tale came from Polly Krotts Wright saying she and Mel could not come to the Reunion. She then enclosed a perfectly handsome picture of six children to explain why. Their oldest son is in St. Mary's College, two are in high school, four in grammar school, and one is at home. And Polly still does not have a single hair out of place, I bet.

Are you keeping a running count of the class offspring in colleges now? Bev and Fred Deans have a daughter, Debbie, in her second year; Rita Koppelman Dinner has a Sophomore son at William and Mary; Elaine Hall Rankin (now living at 10 Glendale Road, Kennebunk, Maine) has a daughter here also, in the class of 1970. Ruth Paul Katherman is still teaching Psychology at York Junior College and plans to attend graduate school part time at Millersville (Pa.) State College.

Virginia Stephens Daniel is living in Bethesda, Md., married to a sportscaster, WTOP, Washington. They have three sons, aged 14, 11 and 10. Jan Freer Scantlebury moved from Wisconsin last year to Nashville, Tennessee, where her husband is now sales manager of Alcoa. Her address is 182 Carnation Parkway.

Betty Marie Ellett Lile is even more southerly at this point, living in Little Rock with a University of Arkansas fan. They were in Williamsburg this past August however.

A note from Harriet Irvin Rutland tells of her hobby of restoring old houses, while living in one built in 1859 that serves as a house museum. Harriet has been studying at Texas University, and was one of the frightened participants in the Tower sniper incident last August in Austin.

My friend, Brenda Cahill Godfrey, is still living in Gorham, Maine. She and John have six children; he is Manager of the Portland Branch of Connecticut General Life Insurance Company. They were in Williamsburg this past June to enjoy their first return trip.

Janet Hilton Antolick, husband Albert, and their three children have lived in Palo Alto, California for almost five years and like the area very much. Arthur is a high school sophomore, Judy, an 8th grader, and Carol is in the 4th grade. She writes that Arthur made Eagle rank in Boy Scouts last year.

From Bangkok to Germany, from California to Maryland, comes news this month of our far-flung classmates, and their notable achievements. Brevity—a plea of the editor—has resulted in condensation of some of your notes.

Congratulations to James (Jim) L. Bray, an associate professor of education and psychology at Salem College, in Winston-Salem, N. C. who recently had his fourth play, "The Counting People," published. The play won second prize in a national contest for professional playwrights. Last summer Jim was a co-ordinator for the N. C. Governor's School, a summer program for gifted high school students in North Carolina. He is also served as chairman of the Department of Fine Arts for the summer school.

In October, Bruce C. Maples of Geneva, New York, represented the College of William and Mary at the inauguration of Dr. Albert Edward Holland as President of Hobart and William Smith Colleges.

Two class members have recently received fine positions in their fields.

Kenneth R. McGinn is now Chairman of the English Department at St. Andrew's School in Boca Raton, Florida, he noted on his fund envelope.

Helen G. Stapf accepted a position last fall as Chief of the Histology Department of the Greater Baltimore Medical Center. This hospital, dedicated by Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1965, is one of the most modern and unique in the nation, Helen said.

Lois Willis Vorhis, now living in Bangkok with her children while her husband is in Vietnam, is teaching in a private Thai school for girls. Bangkok life is very much like suburbia, Lois believes, with scouts, cubs, and girl guides taking up quite a bit of her time. Next July, the Vorhises expect to be back at their permanent address at 4813 Bradford Dr., Annandale, Virginia.

Nancy Holland Blanford writes that they recently moved from Tampa, Fla., to 4301

James Dr., Metairie, La., (outside New Orleans) where George (1943) has a new assignment as market development representative with National Gypsum Co. They look forward to seeing any alumni in the area.

Sylvia Lagerholm Vaughn out in San Mateo, Calif. sent an interesting account of the family historical tour of the east coast last summer, which included her first visit back to William & Mary since 1949. She and Orville (1943) reminisced with Bill and Jane Spencer Smith in Grosse Pointe; Tom and Patty Restrick; and John and Jeanne Lamb O'Neill in Baltimore. After returning to San Francisco they had visits from Dave Henritze, of Atlanta, and Ralph Pasek, Minneapolis—and all of them looked wonderful, Sylvia said.

Ruth Richmond Austin wrote that she and Jim and the children are settled once more in Tampa, Fla. after being "homeless" for six months after a tornado last April. Their new address is 11526 Arca Rd., Tampa.

Christmas cards this year brought us up to date on Ed and Alison Griffin, still in Germany with Stars And Stripes; Jim and Norma Burgess Schrader in Hampton, Va.; Surry and Marie Stevens Harrison, in Newport News, Va.; and Gloria and Richard Jacker of New York, who were spending the Christmas holidays in the Virgin Islands.

Jim are living in Louisville, Kentucky where he is 2nd vice president of the Commonwealth Life Insurance Company and the director of the General Agents.

This was also an eventful year for the LaViolettes. Paul was invited to give a paper at the Second International Oceanographic Congress in Moscow in June, but the trip was cancelled due to a diplomatic situation that arose when the Russians refused to allow an American oceanographic ship to enter Leningrad. The paper was given instead two months later in Tokyo at the 11th Pacific Science Congress.

Jeannette and Louis Bailey are living in New York City and hope anyone who comes to the city will call them. Jeannette is busy with three daughters, 8, 7, 5. The two older girls are studying ballet. They live in the Village and can walk to school, church and work. Lou is Advertising Director of Drug News Weekly, the newest Fairchild business paper. He hopes to complete his LLM in Trade Regulation at NYU Law School in June.

Jeanne Campton Baker and Jim are with the U. S. Information Service in Ankara, Turkey.

Nellie May Bering of Arlington, Virginia writes that she is involved with two projects—member of a task force to prepare guidelines for refreshing training (Back-to-Work) for inactive medical technologists. With the severe shortages in health manpower this is one of the projects supported by H.E.W. to return qualified women to the field after a refresher course. Also, as a member of the American Association of Junior Colleges—National Health Council Committee on Health Technology Education—she prepares and develops guidelines which will assist junior college faculties and health professionals to develop programs.

Dorothy Wollon Spaulding of McLean, Virginia has written the history of St.

Paul's Church in Washington, D. C. It should be published early this year.

Max Staszkesy of Chadds Ford, Pennsylvania is now Assistant Manager of the Sun Life of Canada's Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Chestnut Branch. He has been with this firm for about 13 years. During that time he has always been leader of sales for his branch and qualified for the Top Company Sales Club, and has the honor of receiving the National Quality Award for ten consecutive years.

Captain Ward Boston, Jr., USN writes that after a nice sojourn in Paris, he arrived in Naples, Italy for a three-year tour as Staff Legal Officer for Com. Fair. Med. Emma, his wife, and three children are with him.

Marvin Bleiberg of Fairfax, Virginia was elected a member of the Toxicology Society last year.

Norris and Elaine Akehurst Moses of Richmond, Virginia wrote that last year while Norris was serving as President of the Richmond Chapter of the Administrative Management Society he sat at a head table at a meeting which consisted of him as President; J. Malcolm Bridges, '25, Executive Director of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, the speaker; and Anne Boos, '40, President of Manpower, Inc. of Richmond.

Geraldine and Albert Clark of Northumberland County, Virginia, their three teen-age sons, and two daughters fly wherever they travel. Geraldine is the queen of Virginia's Flying Farmers, a group of 32 owners of private planes, she acts as hostess at the monthly "fly-ins" held by the organization at various landing fields. The Clarks live at Summerfield, a farm of between 200 and 300 acres where they raise grain and have a landing field for the plane.

Robert E. Bjorhus has been named second vice president of the group department at The Travelers Insurance Companies, Hartford, Connecticut.

Christmas brought lots of mail but there are many who just never write. Please put me on your list for 67.

Sue and Randy Davis went to Homecoming with Jean and Jack Bruce. They also went to the game in Lexington with Shirley Green May and Billy. They stopped in Waynesboro and saw Betty Lu and Knox Ramsey.

Marcia Kirkpatrick was in Suffolk most of last year waiting for Kirk to return from Viet Nam. He got back just before Christmas and they are now at Fort McPherson in Atlanta.

Ruth Barnes Chalmers and Dave have moved into their new house in Houston. It sounds more like an athletic club. Ruthie is playing golf now in addition to tennis.

Joanne and Dick Scofield spent last summer moving and remodeling an old house just a block from Lake Erie.

Nancy Kurtz Falck sent a picture of the three girls and new boy, Andrew. Nancy sent word that Jeanne Bambforth is teaching 11th grade American History this year. Ed and Joan King have opened a very attractive Antique shop and Jeanne Payne Lewis was in Arlington for a visit last summer.

Liz and Bob Shuman are still in Rockville and like all the above mentioned they are also parents of a teenager this year. It seems to be the thing to do. Yvonne and Woody Wayland are now living in Richmond. Now maybe I will be informed as to what is going on in the Richmond area. There are probably more of you there and I get less information than from any place else.

Nicky Dillard Dewing and Jay are really enjoying living in Springfield. It seems that everybody, Sue Davis, Nicky and Nancy filled their cards with information about Marcia and Kirk. Kirk please note we are all glad to see you back.

Pat Jones Warner and Bill had a nice visit from Nancy Holland Blanford and George this past summer.

A long letter from Skippy Beecher Scrymgeour told that Skip had turned to antiques too. She has had two shows, or exhibits at shows and really likes doing it. At the time of her letter Bruce was in Baharain for a couple of months. They are living in St. Petersburg.

Shirley Lyonds Hardwick has had a very busy year. Her parents were over for a nice six months visit. Shirley sent a snapshot of her sailors, Charles and Elizabeth. It looks like a bit colder sailing in England than in California.

The Rev. Jere Bunting will assume duties as rector of Christ Church in Christchurch, Virginia in January. Jere is married to Catherine Jones of Urbanna and they have four children.

Donald C. McGraw, Jr. has been made vice president of marketing for McGraw Hill Publications. He lives at Tyvan Hill Farm in Morristown, New Jersey with his wife and four children.

Milly Woodling and Pete are kept busy in Houston. Milly is in two garden clubs and has two camp fire groups. Kerry, their oldest daughter is on the swimming team and doing quite well. Mary Kay Langdon and husband visited Milly and they also saw Billie and Jack Place in Roanoke on vacation last summer.

Gale and Ed Pierce sent a picture of their handsome son. Janet Pierce Waller and John sent a picture of their two from Leesburg.

Harriet Burden Mathews is getting used to living in Colorado. They live in Littleton.

Jean and Buddy Boudreau are still in San Jose and I have lost their address.

Joan Meadors Hawkins and Buddy are beginning to feel like North Olmstead, Ohio is home. Joan is teaching 6th grade and involved in everything. They seem quite busy.

Anne Waring Brown and Linc have added their 4th daughter, Becky. We are really looking forward to a visit from them this year.

My news for the last issue was late because the deadline notice from the Alumni Office did not reach me. I hope you liked the 15th reunion picture though. Now that you have had time to study that and try to figure out who the people are, I'll tell you about the part I attended.

We missed those of you who could not make it, and I hope you will start planning in your mind now that you will be there in five more years for our 20th reunion. I think that you will find that if you return to be with and see your college friends with your husband and wife that it will mean a lot to both of you. Maybe our children will be old enough in 1971 to share the reunion with us, too. Who knows, they may even be students at W&M! Ross Goble and his freshman daughter at our class dinner this year!

Bev. and I arrived in Williamsburg on Friday afternoon and registered at the new Phi Bete. Then we set out for the Brick House Tavern, the headquarters of our class, where we had reservations. From the time we parked there, we were seeing familiar faces. Because we had missed the morning's activities, we hurried to get to the Sunken Garden to see the Sunset Parade which was a colorful ceremony featuring the Queen's Guard and a memorial service for departed Alumni. The only name read at this service from our class was that of Don Fields who I'm told was killed in an automobile accident this year.

Our class dinner was held in a small room with five large tables. Ten could sit at a table, and all of the tables were filled. Dr. Paschall and Harry Wilkins, the President of the Society of the Alumni, came by and welcomed us back for our reunion. Our own Jim Kelly who along with Gordon Vliet did a marvelous job setting up this whole weekend for all of the returning alumni, also welcomed us after he was introduced and thanked for a job well done by Norman Hornsby, husband of "B. G." Graves. After a dinner of more talking than eating, all of us returned for another social hour in the basement lounge of the Brick House Tavern.

We got to part of the annual alumni meeting and were so proud when it was announced that a member of our class, Betty Hicks Wagner of Richmond, had been elected to the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. I saw and talked with so many as we stood in line for our box lunch which we later enjoyed under the '51 tent along with the other reunion tents that had been set up in front of the new Phi Bete. Coffee or lemonade or cold beer found on a table under the tent rounded out the delicious lunch, and a good time was had by all. We had our group pictures taken and then off to see the game which we won. After this we walked back to the Brick House Tavern where the clan was gathering again, and much to our sorrow, here's when Bev. and I had to leave. I hope someone will write and fill me in on the rest of the weekend.

Now I hope I can tell you all who came. I tried to talk to all I saw to get information about them plus getting all who were at the dinner to sign the sheets which I took to each table, and then I wrote to Jim to send me the names of all of those who registered at Phi Bete. I'll save the information for a while and will give just the names now. Here goes: Dr. "Mike" Warfield; Dick and Marian Anzolut; Dr. Jim Campbell and his wife, Dr. Ruth Williams Campbell; Robert and Miriam Godfrey; Jan and Dave Klinger; Martha Schilt Stewart and Bob; Bernie and Pat Nolan; Thomas and Josephine Brummer; Betsy Graves Hornsby and Norman; Gwen Batten Perkins and Perk; Jan Laskey Smith (came all the way from California); Ross Goble; Bob Finn; Joe Kilgore; Virginia Crosby Underhill and T. A.; Ralph E. Hart; Betty Hicks Wagner and Allan; Rolfe Kernard; Don Taylor and family; Nancy Ramseur; Yvette Hickey Anthony; "Tink" Bell Rehlaender and Jim; Stevie Bartlett St. Clair and Walt; Fran and George Lyon; Connie O'Connor Morgan and Bert; Hugh Moore; Nancy Clark Galena and Paul; Bobbie Lamont Redding and Chuck; Jim and Barbara Smith; Ed. Extract; Janice Quick Pickrell; Anne Staples Hobson; B. J. Walsh Washington and Sam; Charlie Craig; Peggy Jones Raney and husband; Marian Hough Cawling and her doctor husband Lawrence; Phoebe Martin Harcum and Rae; Lucille Gerber King and Ronnie; Nan Jones Hodges; Ann Litts Lucas and Bill; George Munford; Don and Connie Lawrence; Marjorie Brown Neal; Ann Menefee Schroeder and Bill; Bob and Jessie Wilkins Parker;

A FULL SERVICE BANK

We are proud to have served the financial needs of The College of William and Mary—faculty, alumni, and students—since 1897. Three convenient locations—Duke of Gloucester St.; 120 Monticello Ave., and James-York Office, corner Peniman Rd. and Wickre St.

Williamsburg, Virginia

Member Federal Reserve System and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Bev. Simonton Kelly and Jim; Carol Raymond DeSamper and Hugh; Billie Potts Place and Jack; and I also saw Herb Bate-man, Ed. and Dotsie Dunbar; Hugh Haynie; Sue Hines Davis and Randy; Jean Anne and Dennis Cogis; and Daryl and Dr. Bernie Wittkamp.

I'll end this reunion story with a laugh on me. As a young student led Bev. and me through the band room of the music department in search of Pappy Fehr's office I remarked that I had played in the college band at one time. The student answered by saying that his father had played in the band also, and I laughed and asked when his father had graduated. He then told me that he had graduated in 1936, and I hastened to tell him that I was in the class of '51!

Again, it was great seeing so many of you at Homecoming and I missed those of you who couldn't make it. Here's hoping to see you in '71!

I hope all of you got a class directory which was compiled for our reunion year. The Alumni Office deserves a big vote of thanks from all of us. I've enjoyed reading about all of you. Now I hope you'll let me hear from you from time to time to let the class know what you're doing from now until the next reunion time. Also, don't forget the William and Mary Fund!

I thank each of you for coming to the rescue with your thoughtful cards and notes at Christmas time. The best of the coming year to all.

Jerry and Ann Johnson Harris in October sent a letter which just missed the last Gazette. They were in Tokyo, Japan, taking a tour which they immensely enjoyed.

Norman Risjord's news came from the University of Wisconsin where he is an associate professor of History, specializing in the early national period of American History. His book on Jeffersonian politics, The Old Republicans, has been published. He jokingly said this book fulfills a long-standing promise to Jack Wolf and Joe Burke, (PiKa roommates) to produce the "world's dullest text book." Norman in 1964-5 won an award as the "best teacher" in the University and last year his American Survey lectures were broadcast on the state radio network. Re-runs will be used this year. Adults may take notes on these radio lectures and then attend a bi-monthly quiz section. This has proved to be an interesting experiment in adult education. After receiving a PhD. in History from the University of Virginia in 1960, Norm taught four years at De Pauw University in Indiana. He is married and has two sons.

The Carmen Romeos are finally settled as of last spring in their new colonial home in Waynesboro, Virginia. They are busy with the four children and are active in church affairs. Carmen was helping with the "Y" building fund drive when spare time from General Electric permitted.

Ginny Campbell Furst spent her Christmas away from home for the first time in 12 years. The Fursts headed for the ski slopes of Michigan for a week.

Anna Inge Jump's card came from Glendale, California, where she and her actor husband, Gordon, now live. Gordon has had several television parts and is a regular on the "Get Smart" show. He recently completed a tour with the "Funny Face" company. Anna is Media Director of an advertising agency and has time for acting and singing. She added that Pat Brown was recently married and lives in Columbus, Georgia, and that "Jeep" Friedman has a comedy album due out soon.

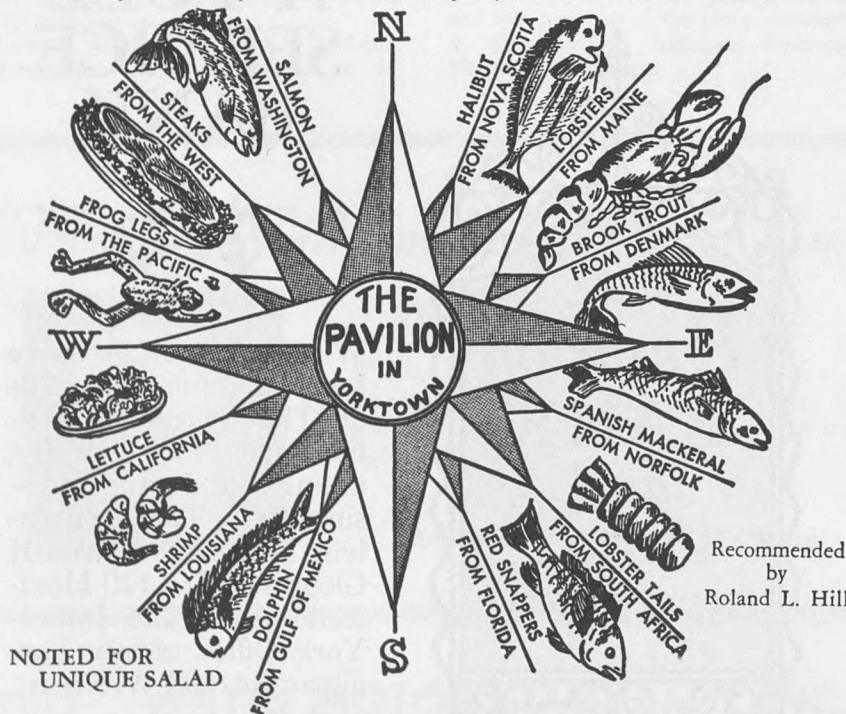

Emmy Ketterson Smith's card showed a picture of Dan and their three children. They had visited with the Petrequis and last March saw "Bumpy" Bozarth Davis and her four children in Williamsburg. The Davis family is now in Fairfax, Virginia, where Bob is with the office of The Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon and "Bumpy" is substitute teaching.

Ed and Ginnie Gary Lupton are still in Hawaii. Ed has made a small sail boat and enjoys Scuba diving in his spare time. Their Brownie daughter, Karen, met President and Mrs. Johnson when they recently visited Hawaii. Ginnie said that Betty Gayle Henley became Mrs. William Jeter in Richmond, Virginia, in June.

From Chicago came Johnny and Lee Granger Munger's letter filled with news and addresses. As are the rest of us, they are involved in a round of activities with their three children. In July, one of 27 Russian English teachers touring our country, while taking a summer course at Georgetown University, was a weekend

In October he presided at a luncheon conference sponsored by the Pullman Foundation for high school guidance counselors. He also has conducted seminars for the U. S. Office of Education. Lee listed the whereabouts of several: Beth Morrison Affeldt in Randolph, Wisconsin; Brad and Nona Schulse Besse in Lexington, Massachusetts; Joanne Stengel Johnson in Alameda, California; Lin Crandell Kelly in Oakville, Ontario; Marjorie Lee Shuler who is teaching 5th grade in Gainesville, Georgia; George Southwell in North Tonawanda, New York; and John and Carol Butters Marsh in New Haven, Connecticut as of this coming June. John will be on the staff at Yale Medical School.

Anne Nelson Harnden and husband live in Dearborn, Michigan, where Jim works for Ford Motor Company and also teaches courses at the local community college. They have seen "Bebe" Hammond Brown who lives in Farmington, Michigan.

Having missed Homecoming at William and Mary, we made it to Penn State's Homecoming last October, to visit old friends on the faculty there. The weather was good and the game exciting.

Marthanne Hodges Luzader is living in Shawnee Mission, Kansas. Having gotten her twins to the age of all-day school, she has found time to write and report on her activities for the past few years. The Luzader family was in Cincinnati until last August. Marthanne's husband is a consulting actuary with Nelson and Warren. She is interested in knowing of other people from the College in that part of the country.

Bob Lawrence, who is in the field of city planning, has held posts in Richmond and Atlanta, and has now been given the job of planning the redevelopment of the Berkley section in Norfolk hoping to win a "Model Cities" planning grant.

In November, a new book by Peggy Wells Stiles came out, entitled, Darkness Over the Land. It is the story of a German boy in the city of Munich, during World War II. She uses the pen name of Martha Bennett Stiles.

Gilbert Parmele of New York City writes that they are awaiting the arrival of an heir in April. Their one child, Jack, is attending kindergarten.

Rene A. Henry, Jr. of San Anselmo, California received $50 and an engraved plaque from the San Francisco Bay Area Publicity Club for a campaign for the Simpson Timber Company research and idea house.

For ourselves, we have taken up music as a family. Jay and I sing in the regular choir at church where we have a fine direc-

Scott Stone writes that he has had a busy year with sideline businesses of house-building and custom made picture framing besides his lumber company. Scott was honored at a banquet in Birmingham, Alabama as one of 31 nominees for the Four Outstanding Young Men of Alabama. Scott was chosen by his home town of Hartselle as its Outstanding Young Man. Scott also writes that they have had visits from Dr. Robert Sessions and his family from Marietta, Georgia and Bob "Scud" Hamel and his family. Sessions and his wife attended a Medical Convention in Tokyo, Japan this fall and Scud is with Merrill Lynch in Pensacola, Florida. The Stones have three children, a daughter in second grade, a boy, 6, and a girl, 4.

Bill Mathes' letter was such a delight to read I wish you all could see it. His first novel has been accepted for publication and will be released around August or September by the Delacorte Press. It is called Minotaur, Minotaur. He hopes everyone in the class of '55 will buy and read a copy—especially buy. Bill is also doing assignments for the Saturday Review and Book Week of the World Journal Tribune. Bill's other exciting news is his new son.

Bernice Magruder Sherwood, John, and Steven, 15 months old, have been living in the Los Angeles area for about a year and a half. John is establishing his own company for the design and manufacture of church furnishings. The Sherwoods saw Shan Duis Carico and Dave this fall. They live in Manhattan Beach. Bernice also heard from Joan Evans Swanson who wrote that she and Andy have moved into their new home which they designed and built at Queens Lake in Williamsburg. Betty Holladay Bellaire and Marc are now in Florida for a year's stay in connection with his business.

Janie Ottaway Dow writes that Pete has switched jobs and is now working on the Plymouth Advertising Account for Young and Rubican. Carol Kent Carlson's Christmas note said that her husband Luis has received his Master's in school psychology and is now working at the Los Angeles City School Advisement Service. They plan to move north of San Francisco soon. Martha Briggs writes that Betty Marsh Christian, Dianna Marsh's sister is living in Port Washington and has a baby girl about a year old.

Pat McClure Caplice and family are awaiting transfer orders from I.B.M., but still don't know where they will be going. Pat has been learning Braille so that she can transcribe books for the blind.

Betty Ann Holladay Bellaire, husband Marc, and their two children are for a year or so in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Marc is painting. He was honored, she writes, with a one-man show at the Norfolk, Virginia Museum last year, and with one at Contempora Galleries in Fort Lauderdale this year. They have an apartment on a beautiful canal near the ocean with a 26-foot sailboat at their back door—right

SIMILARITY

IN SOME WAYS, a good clothing store is like a beauty parlor. The objectives are much the same—spruce you up, bring out the best in you, even make you feel better. At the Williamsburg Shop, the customer's transformation, however, is sartorial rather than tonsorial. Our store, of course, offers numerous other pleasant experiences above and beyond its department for ladies' and gentlemen's wear. Try our sections devoted to gifts, notions, housewares, footwear and luggage. Above all, remember: "Dress right, you can't afford not to. Your clothes never stop talking about you."

I hope the New Year has been, and will be, good to all! Christmas cards saved the day, again!

First, the cards with pictures. I wish you all could see the handsome offspring the members of our class are producing! Dave and Sue (Colclough) Crouch sent a picture of their son, Neal, about 3 yrs. Sue keeps busy with Neal plus teaches Sunday School. Bob and Doralie (Hultquist) Rafferty sent a picture of themselves and their two sons sitting on the fireplace of their new home. Marty and Barbara (Luhring) Miller sent a picture of their four children; a daughter 8 yrs. and three sons whose ages are 6, 4, and 2 yrs. Ken and Sally (Ives) Coons sent a picture of their two sons who are 5 and 3 years. The Coonses were preparing for hectic Holidays as they had just moved into a new house. Roland and Sue (Whaley) Howard sent a picture of their three daughters. Sue mentioned seeing Stu Sell and Judy (Bell) Skinker during the past year in Pittsburgh. The Howards also saw Jim Thomson, who is head of the Math Dept. in South Norfolk High School. Jim and Jane (Thompson) sent a picture of themselves with their four children; a daughter and three sons. The Kaplans were almost transferred back east but Jim was made regional sales manager for Cornell-Dubilier instead—covering eleven western states plus Alaska and Hawaii. Jane has seen Betsy (Swain) Thune and her three children, as her husband is stationed in the Navy near them.

Don't get me wrong, the cards without pictures were grand too—they all had nice notes! Meta (Fooks) Rickard wrote that her two children are keeping her busy while she awaits her husband's return from Vietnam this summer. (Dot Chapman) Sullivan writes that she and her husband were in Wash., D. C. last Nov. and had a nice visit with Rod and Jean (Wyckoff) Mercker and John and Pat (Wells) McDonnell. Dot and her two daughters will move to W. Va. in March while her husband serves a year's duty in Vietnam. A note from Elle (Lundberg) Martling tells us that they are in Indiana this year while John is studying for his M.A. at Purdue. After graduation in June, the Martling clan (two girls and a boy) will move to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. For those who remember Dottie (Rector) Turmail, I had a note saying that this year she is making costumes for a repertory company based in NYC and also painting primitives on barn wood for an antique shop in Wash., D. C.

Clyde Waring Brockett, Jr. of Athens, Ohio is presently writing a research article on the State of Church Music in 17th Century Virginia.

A voice from the past, not heard from in ten years, was Jim Brown's. To bring us up to date, in a nutshell: After graduation Jim spent 2 yrs. in the Army. He joined Allied Chemical Corp. in sales in 1959 and was married the same year. In 1963 he joined National Starch and Chemical Corp. and was transferred to Minneapolis for three years. He was recently moved to the Chicago office as district manager. He and his wife have three children—Peter 6, Heidi 4, and Allyson 2. Their address is: 1822 Northland, Highland Park, Ill. Jim says he keeps in touch with Al Grieco who lives in Newark, N. J. and that he can't go through NYC without a pleasant and gracious dinner at Copain Restaurant. Jim met Ted Williamson, who is an agent with Connecticut Mutual in Chicago. He also ran into Mark Andrews, who works in Chicago.

Can you believe it's been 10 years? That seemed to be the recurrent thought in the Christmas notes this year. Plan now to attend our fall reunion.

Larry and Anne Heister, '60, Babcock and their four children are back at Cape Kennedy where Larry is heading up Lockheed's Industrial Relations office on the Polaris/Poseidon Program. Home is Orange Court, Rockledge, Florida.

Larry mentioned that Jack Bair is married and living in Dallas, Texas.

Nice letter from Phebe Hoff Van Valen saying that she and husband Leigh have their Ph.D.'s in zoology from Columbia University. They moved from New York City to Chicago in December where Leigh became Assistant Professor of Anatomy at the U. of Chicago and Phebe took on the same rank in biology at the U. of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus.

Newt and Sally Quarton Newton and two girls have moved to Detroit where Newt is with Chrysler Corporation in their Patent Dept.

A darling picture arrived of Libby Craig Miller's three children—Julie 6, Don 4, and baby Ian. She and Mac are in their fourth year at Eaglebrook School in Mass. where Mac teaches one class in American History in addition to his administrative duties.

Kay Jordan Renner and family are now in Springfield where Joe is with American Airlines. She says that Tom and Carol Simmerman Luter and their two boys live right down the road.

Jack and Judy Welton Feinberg and daughter Susan are in Mesa, Arizona for two years where Jack is serving as an internist with the Air Force.

Gini Anding LaCharité and husband received their Ph.D.'s in Romance Languages from the University of Pennsylvania in 1966 and they have joined the Professorial staff of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

John Bain is Processing Manager for Chubb & Son, Inc. insurance company in Chicago.

Jo Ann Thompson Walberg and two children live in Hampton, where her husband is an aeronautical engineer with N.A.S.A.

Jan Charbonnet Crocker has recently been appointed Mu Province Director of Alumnae for Kappa Kappa Gamma covering six states and 38 alumnae associations. She just finished serving as President of the local alumnae for two years. She is also on the Board of the Jacksonville Junior League.

Janie Hutton Hurst writes that she and Bob and their three children are in Fairfax where Bob is a partner in the law firm of Rust and Hurst. She adds that Tom and Mary Jo Milan Rink are in Annandale where Tom is associated with the education unit of IBM. Letty Sheild Best and husband Steve are in Springfield where Steve works for a law firm. Harry and Bobbie Shaw Thomas live in Alexandria where Harry practices law.

James McHugh of Zanesville, Ohio is the current president of the Muskingum County Automobile Dealers Association. He is a partner in the firm of McHugh-Hills, Inc., local Volkswagen dealer. He followed the footsteps of his grandfather and father in the automobile business.

It is either feast or famine, I suppose, but no complaints about news this issue. Thank you, thank you!

While attending a kindergarten party (regression) in December, I saw Jo Anne Bortz Young and husband, who is completing his orthopedic surgery residency at M.C.V. this year. They have two boys, eight months and three years of age. In September, Arch Turrentine was finishing his tour at the American Embassy in Bonn and was expecting to be assigned to N.A.S.A. for tour under the State Department's Scientific Exchange program.

Jerry and Carole Waller, '60, Welborn are in Atlanta, Georgia, where Jerry has been with Shell Oil Company since Spring, 1966. They have a little boy, Chip, around two years old. Hewlett Hurd Barnes left her job as general assignment reporter and feature writer with the Waynesboro newspaper in August, and joined the publications office at the local DuPont plant. She edits the plant newspaper, conducts plant tours, and does fashion shows, using mostly French and Italian creations made of DuPont fibers. She has two sons, Trey, seven years, and George, four years old.

Ginny Kendall Cooper, husband Bruce, and three children, Kim, six years, Kenny, four years, and Carrie, almost one year, live in Palo Alto, California, where they have bought a New England-type home—a rarity there. Bruce works for Kliklok, a packaging firm, and they are both very active in church work. Ginny said that Jim and Jane Thompson Kaplan and four children live near, in Los Altos, and that Terry and Hig Slaughter are in Salinas.

Nancy Mowlds King and family have been in France for the past two years and were to return to the States in November. They'll be at the Air Force Academy in Colorado for the next couple of years. Joni Waller Coleman, her husband Dave, and two little girls visited Ginny for a few days enroute from Hawaii, where they've been for the past three years, to the University of Wisconsin in Madison. Dave will be working on his Ph.D. in Adult Education.

Bill, '57, and Betty Wright Fraher Armbruster moved to Colorado Springs, where Bill is an intelligence analyst with North American Air Defence Command. Virginia Coomes Hofmeister and husband Ron, now a captain with the Army, were at Ft. Lewis, Washington, in August. Ron was to begin a year in Vietnam soon, while Virginia stays at her home in Abingdon.

Jean Ventura Dickson wrote that husband Wallace was elected to the Virginia House of Delegates last November. Jean is on the Arlington Democratic Committee, and they have three children, ages two, four, and six years. Jane Mathes Dick and husband John (Penn State, '54) are in greater Los Angeles (Buena Park), where John is chief of space medicine on the Air Force's manned orbital lab project with the Douglas Aircraft Company. Jane wrote that last summer Mike and Lina Linton Williams and one and a half year old son Chris moved to Newtown, Connecticut, where Mike has accepted a teaching position.

Gail Morgan Filion works part-time doing "editorial type stuff," while Ross teaches Saturday mornings in New York City—advanced high school students—and researches the rest of the week at Princeton. Eleanor House Pemberton said that she and four and a half year old son will Teresa Barreto Purvis and husband have been in Phoenix, Arizona, for eight years, where Darwin is Controller of the Community Development Division of Del E. Webb Corporation. They have two sons, David five and a half, and Christopher two years old. Before David, Teresa was an Air Force secretary.

Albert D. Kowalak joined the Rose Polytechnic Institute in Terre Haute, Indiana, last fall as an instructor after receiving his Ph.D. from V.P.I. He earned his M.S. degree there in 1963. Bill and Pattie Lynn Adams Slaughter, '59, wrote from Fairchild A.F.B. in Spokane, Washington, that she and Bill will be going back to Syracuse next fall with their two girls, Mason and Sarah Booth, born in April, six weeks early, for Bill's orthopedic residency.

This report will cover a goodly number of months and good letters from you. Bill Morris, his wife, Julia, and four year old son, Willard are in Kensington, Maryland where for the past three years Bill worked in public health as a staff member in voluntary tuberculosis associations but with a grant from H.E.W. to complete his Master's degree in Public Health Administration can now be found at the University of Southern California; he says some of his friends will be amused to know that while in the Army he went through paratrooper training and received his silver "wings" and that he bought a fine guitar for a very low price in Mexico and he and Julie have been singing folk songs together ever since.

Lynn McDaniels Jackson writes from Houston, Texas where she has a job with Manpower and Bill, a bio-chemist, is doing research at M. D. Anderson Cancer and Tumor Research Hospital. Lynn says Carolyn Bacon, in Austin, was campaigning for the reelection of Senator John Tower and if he won (and I don't know) she is now in Washington; JoAnn Ferrell Pratt is in Berkeley, California where her husband is working on his PhD in Chemistry—they have a daughter, Susan Rounds. Barclay Bell Nakhleh married Ziad in Beirut, Lebanon in 1963 and is now in the Washington area where she does some substitute teaching and recently saw June Roberts Clarke at George Washington High School; Don Harris visited Barclay's in-laws in Beirut and has now moved back to California (Office of the Chaplain, U.S. Coast Guard Base, Government Island, Alameda, California); June related that Mike and Evelyn Avery Richardson are in the Washington area where Mike is a pharmaceutical salesman.

Stuart Duncan represented William and Mary at the inauguration of Dr. William Henry Masterson as President of the University of Chattanooga. Sarah Callahan Derry wrote ages ago that she, Sam, Anne, and Nancy have moved to Kansas City where Sam is executive Vice-President of Commerce Savings and Loan Association. Also a while back Lynn Everard Bear wrote from Clarksville, Tennessee where Tom is teaching business courses at Austin Peay State College and working toward his PhD in economics at Vanderbilt; their daughters, Laurie (4½) and Wendy 2 have begun picking up a Southern accent. Lynn says Lois Reid is back at Duke completing her PhD dissertation in Math; Ruth Cox Page '58 and John are settled in Hartford where John is director of the Litchfield Historical Society and Ruth is working with the Connecticut Historical Society.

Dana Brenner Brinkley writes that Mason and Co. has added H. C. Thaxton, Nick St. George, and Ed Jenkins to its ranks. Anne Brown Lanman writes from 1341 Mayflower Dr., McLean, Va. to say it's nice being back on Virginia soil while her husband serves a tour of duty at the Pentagon. Larry Miller is working as a vocational counselor in connection with the Rehabilitation Center in Honolulu, illustrating and writing brochures in his spare time. Pat Muddiman Callahan received her M.A. from the University of Alabama where her husband, Neal, got his M.B.A.; they have moved to Richmond now where Neal is with Reynolds Metals Co. Susan Chapman and David Middleton and sons Jon and Chris are enjoying their Yorktown home which Dave designed and which was completed this past year.

From Dallas, Jane Harris Jacobson whose husband, M. J., is a pilot with Delta Airlines, says getting settled and keeping up with five year old Nolan keeps her busy. Dot Upton Seyler writes from Delmar, N. Y., to say she is completing requirements for her PhD degree in English Literature at the New York State University Sylvia, Jr. is in Vietnam, Linda Haskell '60 and their children are at 2973 Pangborn Road, Decatur, Georgia 30033. Lloyd Webb Diamond writes from Shreveport, Louisiana, that she, Tony (Art Director of an Advertising Agency), John, 7, and Robert, 3, are happy in their lovely new home and would like to hear from any alumni coming through. Joseph Ponc is a member of the Department of History at York Junior College.

Joyce Hayter, Jack, and Brion Ferratt have a new Cape Cod house in Annandale which means much work for many hands. The John Mortons spent the Christmas holidays in Richmond with little Elizabeth and John. Suzie Watters and Bob Jones are at Fort Knox where Bob is instructing in the Armor School, Julie is a third grader, Frank in the first, and Suzie is a nurse's aide at the hospital. Cass City, Michigan has new residents with Barbara Cassady and Dave Marshall who enjoy their new location.

Wish I could have fulfilled Bev Harris Jenkins' wish for some New Year's Hoppin' John! Mal and Judy Davis have become addicted to Vermont and apparently to their wonderful though seemingly hectic service to the colleges around Burlington.

Thank you for your cards and notes. Sue Marshall Sheldon writes, "since the death of my husband, Charles Sheldon '58 in Viet Nam in April 1966, I have returned to the Gloucester-Williamsburg area to stay. I have two children, Kenny 7, and a daughter, Keith 6. We are residing temporarily with my mother in Gloucester."

Patricia Foushee Jacobs of Greenville, North Carolina and her husband, Harold, are busy with the Jaycees and Jay-cettes and like Greenville very much. She has been an advisor for the local Chi Omega Chapter at East Carolina College.

While our four month old son, Pat Anthony, is taking a nap, I have an hour or so to give you all the news. Little Pat keeps me moving constantly (as all you mothers know), but a more delightful Christmas present we couldn't have had.

To those who sent Christmas cards, I send you many thanks. But there are still so many from whom I haven't heard in six years. Just a postcard would be fine!

Back in October Esther Tribble Nanny wrote a long letter from San Francisco, California, where she married a San Franciscan. She has been on the West Coast since 1962 and is currently back in school at San Francisco State getting her teaching credentials.

Diane Skelly is in the Peace Corps and is in Morocco teaching the natives practical things to help their economy. Jane Michael Gaffney Bennett lives in Modesto, California, where her husband is a probation officer. They have two children. Pat Bayer Borghi calls Los Altos, California home. She and her three children visited Esther for the first time since the days of William and Mary where they were roommates.

Carol Sue Roberts and husband Forrest are at Fort Bragg caring for two year old Dianna. Carol Sue's current hobby is flying; last year she received her private license, and she has begun working on her commercial license.

Mary Louise Fisher sent greetings from Boston, Massachusetts. She worked for Harvard for five years and then decided to go back to school. With a teaching fellowship at Boston University, she is working for her M.A. in Economics. She sent word about a number of our classmates.

Bonnie Hines, who is at George Washington University, is in her second year of law school. Reya Rhine was married in September to Walter Maxymuk and they are residing in Philadelphia. James McMahon is working as a civilian in Saigon and Paul Dinsmore is there also with the Army. Thanks, Fish, it was a pleasure hearing from you.

Mary Welsh Doyle and Jim bought a home last May in the Chicago area. Their oldest son, Martin, began school this past September.

Nancy Freeman Russell wrote from Suffolk where she and Bill are permanently located. Bill has recently bought his own insurance agency, and Nancy has the perfect teaching position—teaching French at the high school from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. She is also doing much volunteer work. They have two blonde little boys—Douglas, four years old and Daryl, two years old.

Suzie Arbie Mason has two girls; she is president of the Kappa alumns in Newport News and is doing Junior League work.

Jackie Goode Legg has two children, and Dana Brenner Brinkley has two boys and a girl. All husbands are associated with Mason and Company. Nick St. George has also joined the firm. Best wishes to you, Nick.

Audrey Murray Harris and Bob are in Petersburg with their two children, Bobby and Laura. Many thanks to you, Nancy. I enjoyed your letter.

More Christmas greetings came from Lynn Carr Ladd and Dave, Gail Erikson Anderson and Ross, Jo Day Pescosolido and Rich, and Sally Williams Merrick and Frank.

Ben and Chris Harms Dulaski have been living in Kabul, Afghanistan since last February ('66) and will be there another year. They find the living great although a bit isolated—180 miles to Peshawar, Pakistan and 1200 to Teheran. Ben is with the State Department and they are enjoying a chance to travel and sightsee.

To all who sent word, again I thank you. Happy Easter!

is in charge of the Saigon Port. Fox writes that Loye Bechtold owns a few night clubs in Saigon and one in Bangkok. Fox invites all to stop by for a visit at 305 Phan Thanh Gian, Saigon, Vietnam.

Mike Glass punctuates his greetings with the premonition that on his tombstone will be engraved, "He read the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966 more than anyone else—and understood it less."

Patty Moore Myers, Marvin, David, and Betsy are enjoying their own house in Atlanta. Patty writes that Julie and Bill Darrow were there until last September, when they moved to New Hampshire where Bill is going to graduate school.

Dian Keel Recchuiti and Fran sent news along with the announcement of the arrival of Laura Loraine in October. Fran is practicing law and Dian enjoys her retirement. They write that a son was born October 16 to Steve Lovell. Martha Dietrich Guthrie is in Richmond with her two children while Tom is in Vietnam.

Janice Morris Martin sends greetings from Lynchburg. After teaching school for three years, she was married in June of 1965 and her son Blaine was born last April 24. Her husband, a V.P.I. graduate, is a state bank examiner. Janice writes that Becky Reasor Pennington and Buddy are also living in Lynchburg, where Becky is teaching school. Sue Hubbard Cardozo is living in Texas and has a little boy.

Paul Verkuil's wife Fran writes that Paul received his law degree last June from the University of Virginia. He has accepted a job with Cravath, Swaine and Moore, a New York law firm. Paul and Fran have a daughter, Tara Aldridge.

In answer to my plea for news of the death of Betty Taylor Morris, Linda Schneider Peterson writes that Betty died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage in January of 1966. May Neate wrote Linda that Betty's husband Ed is an R.O.T.C. instructor somewhere in Wisconsin and has his two boys with him. May is living in San Francisco and working as a biologist. Linda's husband Chris is a lieutenant aboard the U.S.S. Okinawa, which has recently left Norfolk for its new home port in San Diego. Linda keeps busy with three-year-old Todd and baby Mark. Kay Barchey Ogline and Fred have two children, Freddie and Michelle. Linda also reports that Sandy Dean Barringer lives in Cambridge, Massachusetts, where Dick is working on his doctorate. They have two boys, Greg and Ian.

Bill Nicolai was writing his annual newsletter while vacationing in San Juan, Puerto Rico. He enjoys his new job with Young and Rubicam Advertising and his new apartment nearby. Recently Bill has appeared on a television quiz program and two televised interviews.

Anne Alford Van Volkenburg writes from Dallas that Betty Anne Lewis Lasley and Rex are in Albuquerque, where Betty Anne teaches dancing and Rex is earning his master's degree at the University of New Mexico.

Mary Fuller Osborne and Ed are living in Ann Arbor while Ed works on his master's degree at the University of Michigan.

Barbara Daughtrey Hylton, Dick, Lisa, and Rick are at Robins Air Force Base in Georgia. Dick received his D.D.S. degree from the Medical College of Virginia last June.

Bob and Rosalyn Kilgore are living in Seattle, where they are becoming more interested in social work through their contact with the Lummi Indians. Bob is a supervisor of junior boys in the detention center of a juvenile court.

Dave and Laurie Shaffer Bottoms, '60, are in Atlanta, where Dave is practicing law with the firm of King and Spalding. Although daughter Sarah keeps Laurie busy, she is doing graduate work in English at Emory.

Ronald Audet teaches English at Woodrow Wilson High School in Portsmouth. During his summer vacations he travels in Europe and does graduate work at the College, spending two months last summer at the N.D.E.A. Institute.

Danny and Stuart Richardson Dopp and Michael, age 2, returned from Germany in August after the Army disapproved Dany's resignation; he left for Vietnam in November after Jungle Warfare School and is with the First Division. Stuart and Michael are living in Alexandria, awaiting the birth of a baby in February. Sue Oakley and Cynthia Isemann are both teaching in the Northern Virginia schools after Sue's return from Germany. Janie Wright and Jimmy Knotts are living in Williamsburg and have bought a new home; Janie is president-elect of the local Virginia Education Association and Jim reports a winning high school football team. John and Lynn Eads Black and Sara live in Brownsville, Texas; John continues to practice with a law firm and Lynn is very active in community work as secretary-treasurer of Pan-hellenic, treasurer of the women of her church, and an officer in the Bar Auxiliry. John is a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Kenny and Dorcas Miller Lounsbey and children are still in San Diego and have bought a four-bedroom house there; Kenny has received a promotion to the Civil Division of the Office of the City Attorney. William E. Blaine, III of Syracuse, New York is a second year candidate for an MFA degree from the Syracuse University. He was given a teachers' assistantship by the university and teaches four undergraduate classes in the Department of Fine Arts. Bill and Dabney are at home at 222 Kellogg Street, Syracuse, New York. Priscilla Nash Brown and her husband are living at 20-19, 2-Chome, Uehara, Shibuya-ku, Tokyo, Japan, telephone number: 467-5782. They hope that they will have all the alumni over there calling them.

John Meagher is still with Congressman Pirnie (32nd district, New York) as his legislative aide. Laura has been working at the Library of Congress as a searcher-cataloger. They are expecting a baby in the spring.

Ann Leigh Hardy worked as a copywriter for WDBJ Radio in Roanoke until the fall of 1963 when she moved to Richmond where she is continuity manager of WRVA Radio. Robert and Anne West Chapman of Colonial Heights, Virginia wrote that they were expecting their second child during the Christmas season; Bob is teaching a night class at Virginia State College in addition to his regular job. A. Thomas and Page Carter Hayden Young are living in Newport News, where Tom is a mission adviser on the Lunar Orbiter Project at NASA at Langley; Page was a social worker for the Newport News Welfare Department before the birth of Blair, but is now a full time wife and mother. After teaching Spanish in Newport News for several years, Dorothy Fitchett is working on a master's degree in government at the University of Arizona, Tucson.

Robert E. and Jo Anne Welch Gallamore spent two and one-half years at Harvard University where Bob studied for his doctorate in public administration. They were in Alexandria for ten months while Bob worked for the Bureau of the Budget. The Gallamores and their ten month old son Christopher plan to return to Harvard in February so that Bob can finish his dissertation. Fred A. Codding, who graduated from Georgetown University Law School in June 1966 and was admitted to the Virginia Bar, is now the law clerk for the Chief Judge of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals; the Coddings (the former Judy Hawkins '63) live in Alexandria. W. Pennock and Sydney Seville Laird are living in Philadelphia with their seven month old baby; Penn, who was graduated in Pediatrics from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School last May and is interning at Children's Hospital, will enter the Navy in July 1968.

I am sure that we all welcome the recent success of efforts to get the Gazette out on schedule and hope it continues. You may want to help get the "freshest advices" into our column by observing that my tentative deadlines for succeeding issues will be: May issue, March 11; October issue, August 1. Would love to hear from you in time to include your news in the next issue!

Only the classes having reunions at Homecoming this year had extended deadlines for reporting news gathered there and so even though John and I attended, I was not as diligent as usual in collecting news for this column. However, here are a few items I learned. Bart and Emily Varter Barbee returned to Alexandria in September and bought an old town house which they are restoring. Bart is working as personnel manager for Equitable Life Insurance Company. Bart reported that Tom Vice is still in Los Angeles with Chubb & Son, but had no other news from him. Robin and Sue Reighley, and daughter, Stephanie, are living in Arlington while Robin is completing his Naval tour at David Taylor Model Basin. Jim Delaney is working for his father's accounting firm in New York. Karl Zavitkovsky was leaving for Viet Nam at the end of October. He is in the Marine Corps. Tricia Lee White and Charlie, '61, have been living in Alexandria with their children, Laurie and Jeffrey, since Charlie returned from Viet Nam this summer and was stationed at the Pentagon. Tommy and Pam Lytle have bought a house in Springfield. Tommy has also recently returned from Viet Nam and will be stationed at Ft. Meade, Md., until he gets out of the Army this spring.

Christmas cards and letters that must have been prompted by New Year's resolutions provided lots of news and much pleasure this year. Thank you all for your greetings. Roger and Sarah Larkin Bové moved to Charleston, S. C., in January where Roger will be on shore duty for the Navy. Carolyn Soresi Meket wrote that Terry is working for Stouffer Foods and they expect to be transferred from Lake Bluff, Illinois, back to Cleveland in early 1967. They are expecting a third little Meket in March. Carolyn received word from Judy Linton Heald and John that they are expecting their first child in April. Charlie and Martha Jordan Layson '65 live in Millersburg, Ky., where Charlie farms his father's farm. Barbara Riley Scott, '65, wrote that her husband, Jim, is now doing a year's tour of duty with the Air Force in Thule, Greenland. Meanwhile, Barbara is teaching third graders in Fairfax County. Glen McCaskey's card was postmarked Philadelphia, but he didn't mention what he is doing these days.

Charlene Stafford Gravely and John, and son, David, have moved to Virginia Beach and enjoy being only 5 minutes from the beach. Tom and Keven Farley Richardson are now stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga. Tom spent his last tour of duty in Korea. Carole Steiner wrote that she married Jeffrey Sund, a graduate of Dartmouth, in November 1963. They lived in Norfolk, where he was in the Navy and Carole taught German at Virginia Beach. Their daughter Catherine Leslie was born in February 1966 while they were stationed in Charleston, S. C. Presently, Carole and Jeff live in a suburb of Philadelphia, where he is employed by the Mobil Oil Corp. in their executive training program. Carole reports having run into Diane Bassinger Chesson in Charleston, where Diane's husband Ralph was stationed on a submarine. Also, Carole sends word that Ellen Connor is teaching math in Panama, after having taught at the dependents' school on Okinawa last year.

Doug Wood wrote that he stayed on at the College after graduation for a year's graduate work in early American history. He then went to OCS at Newport, R. I., and is presently serving as a Lt. jg at Virginia Beach. Doug ad his wife, Juliana, to whom he was married in December, 1964, invite anyone passing through Va. Beach to stop and see them. Doug and Juliana see Sue Patterson Burke, '64, and Dick often. Dick is working for the American Institute of Biological Sciences in Washington and he and Sue expect their first child in January. Lucy Lawler Huggett and Bob now live in La Jolla, California, where Bob is in graduate school. Lucy has been working in one of the biology labs there since early November.

Being out here in sunny, southern California, at this writing, not only have I missed the snow and cold weather of the east coast, but I'm afraid I've missed a lot of news about our class. Letters and Christmas cards have brought some news, but I am still hoping to hear from more of you.

A letter from Carolyn Muddiman Patterson arrived just in time to miss the last issue. After leaving her history major at William and Mary, Carolyn went on for her master's degree at the University of Alabama. She then married Abe Patterson, '63 of VMI. While Abe is in medical school at the University of Virginia, Carolyn is on the faculty there as well as at the Medical School Department of Pediatrics. She serves as Director of the Deaf Education Program, working with impaired hearing and deaf children from ages 3-18. Carolyn also mentions that she and Abe are expecting their first child this spring.

Carol Anne Wylie Swagler just missed the last deadline, too. Carol Anne and Roger are living in Columbus, Ohio, where Roger is on a teaching assistantship at Ohio State and working on his Ph.D. in economics as well. Carol Anne was recently promoted from statistician to Management Analyst with the Department of Defense Construction Supply Center. She also tried her hand at gardening and then interior decorating; the last I heard she was interested in locating kennels for old English sheep dogs! They visited Keven Farley Richardson in Hudson last July; Keven was planning a trip to the Far East in September to visit husband Tom. The Swaglers were then visited by Don and Mary Ann Lefelar; Don is taking his intern year from the seminary at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio.

A letter from Nancy Ratz Viets relates that she is considering work in the Peace Corps. Marcia Eaton is teaching high school English at Lake Luzerne in upstate New York. Marcia writes that Janet and Wally are in Fairfax, Virginia where Wally is serving with the Navy while Janet teaches 3rd grade. After vacationing out West, Jim Meek is now continuing his graduate studies at the University of North Carolina. Fredna Ross is in Germany working in the University of Maryland extension offices.

Lindsey Stringfellow served in the Red Cross for nine months in Long Bienh, Viet Nam as a recreation aide; she was recently promoted, however, to the position of Program Director with a staff of nine under her.

Carol Evans Tetu writes from San Rafael, California, just a short distance north of San Francisco. She and son Mike are there while husband Bob serves his time with the Army in Viet Nam. Carol says that Bob enjoys his job in Cu Chi flying the "Bird Dog: 1-19" with a primary mission of visual reconnaissance and adjustment of artillery fire.

Carol also writes that Joey Krider Delano has been in Europe following husband Kent from port to port; Kent is a Navy jet pilot. Molly Butler Thomasch and Roger are in Durham, North Carolina, where Roger is continuing his graduate studies while Molly teaches. Betty and John Heenan, '63 are living in Los Angeles and expecting their first child in June.

Bill Corley writes from Washington, D. C., where he has been serving as an Army Administrative Officer at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in the Pathology Service. He is anticipating a change of Army hospitals, however, at the end of March when he leaves to serve as an Administrative officer in the largest hospital in Viet Nam.

Bill also relates that Jim Bennett is now an Army career man stationed with the supply service in Atlanta, Georgia. Don Beck, Steve Merrill, and Dan Armour have all returned from Army tours in the West Pacific area. Phil Van Kirk is working with IBM in Raleigh, North Carolina. Beth Child is still in Germany working as a librarian with the U. S. Special Services. Vee Jones Davis is teaching in Richmond; as are Gene Birdsong Tongier and Max as well. And Pete "Monk" Raihofer is with the Francis I. du Pont Co. on Wall Street.

A card from Joanne Arnett Murphy relates that husband, Paul, is in Sotthip, Thailand, with the Army for a year. Joanne is living with another Army wife in Alexandria, Virginia, and teaching in Oxon Hill, Maryland.

Joanne writes that Marcia Ballard has a lovely apartment in Richmond and is working for a public relations firm. Alice Hall Horne and Andy are in Richmond also, and expecting their first child in April. Maynard and John Randolph are in Camp Lejeune, and also expecting their first child this spring.

Letters from Bobbie Mulcahey tell of a continued teaching career and putting up with the antics of roommate Patty Vaught. Bobbie writes of a visit from Karen Patrick Martin and new daughter, Mary Candace, born in October; Karen and Ralph will be moving to Sea Island, Georgia, where Ralph will be serving with the Navy for the next two years. Ann Lyon Ackiss and Tom have also invaded the Washington, D. C., scene, moving from Cambridge, Massachusetts, to Springfield, Virginia. And Cam Walker, taking a leave from graduate studies at Yale and her Ph.D., is now teaching history in Knoxville, Tennessee.

As for myself—I am continuing my new career in the dental field and have been working as a Dental Assistant in Lake-wood. But the East Coast beckons and I am planning to return to the chaos of the D. C. area in April or May. I thank all of you who contributed to the news in this issue, and I hope to hear from more of you for the next issue.

A special thank you to those who sent Christmas cards and letters with news of the class of '65. Please continue to write.

Joanne Taylor reports that she is teaching senior government and journalism at Hampton High School. She enjoyed a two month journalism workshop at the University of Tennessee last summer. Joanne reports that Peggy Coddington Barker, her husband Jim, and daughter, Lisa, are living in Lompoc, California. Jim instructs Minutemen crews at Vandenberg Air Force Base. Jill Blevins Beattie and her husband Guy are subject to orders of yet another service, the Navy. Mary Wilson Land and Rose Ella Sutherland are still living in Richmond.

Ensign Jan Mozeleski, commissioned by his father Capt. Mitchell Mozeleski when we graduated, has been aboard the USS Charles P. Cecil, a destroyer, for more than a year. He is presently on duty with the Seventh Fleet, and when his ship returns to port he will have completed a tour around the world.

Jean Stern, writing from Kayseri, Turkey, indicates that she is enjoying her work as a Peace Corps Volunteer engaged in a Rural Community Development project. Jean tells us that Virginia Moyer is teaching English with the Peace Corps in Eskisehir province in Turkey. Pete Bradley is serving as advisor to English teachers in Mashad, Iran.

Far less removed from the Wren Building and Corner Greeks, is Joyce Hoskins. Joyce is teaching the seventh grade in Williamsburg.

Sally Wells Quigley and her husband

David are living in White Plains, New York. Sally is programing for A.T. and T., while David is manager of general accounting at the New York University Medical Center.

Suzanne Frazer Wilson and her husband George are continuing their graduate work at Cornell, Suzanne in anthropology and George in philosophy.

Roslyn (Reams) and Win Luther hope to spend a week in Hawaii this spring when Win will be due some leave from his Vietnam service. Roslyn is now living with her parents in Richmond.

Alan Baxter has joined the faculty of Nottingham Academy, (Colora, Maryland) his high school alma mater, as an instructor of English and dramatics. Alan is living in Silver Spring, Maryland.

Jodi Russell Horton and her husband Kit are living in New York City where Kit works for the Educational Buildings Division of CIT Financial Corporation. Jodi is employed by the Baker Furniture Company.

Harriett Baer married a fellow Peace Corps Volunteer in New Delhi, India. Harriet and Jim Madden are now teaching English literature in the high school at Sanwar, India.

Bonnie Burnett Kendall is studying for her PhD in Psychology on a National Science Foundation grant at the University of New Hampshire. Her husband, Don, is taking a year off to do some writing. They are living in Newcastle, New Hampshire.

Laura Youngblood Meagher thoughtfully sent me a copy of a round-robin letter full of news about Kappa graduates. After a rather challenging experience teaching in a private grade school in Woodbridge, Virginia, Laura is working at the Library of Congress. Her first job was to write brief annotations for 3,200 juvenile books! Husband John is still with Congressman Pirnie

(New York) as his legislative aide. Susie Ellis graduated from Northwestern after transferring from William and Mary. She is now working for the J. Walter Thompson ad agency in New York City. Mary Fran (Kahle) and Raoul Lamont are living in the D.C. area. Raoul works at the Library of Congress.

The following information was received in response to a joint request for contributions to the William and Mary Fund and alumni information. Unfortunately, the list was not impressive! Bill Hurley and his wife Mary are living in Germany where Bill is serving as executive officer of an armored cavalry troop. His duties include training exercises and border patrols along the East-West German and Czechoslovakian lines. Ginny Whitener worked on her Master's thesis in Lawrence, Kansas, last summer, and then she returned to the University of Kansas for further graduate study in psychology. Diane Rassiga is employed by the Civil Service Commission as an investigator in the Washington, D. C. area; however, she hopes to soon return to graduate school to obtain her M.A. in psychology. Pat McMahon is in the midst of her second year of law school at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia. She is currently serving as a Justice on the Honor Court. Jo Ellen Kirssin spent the summer in Palo Alto, California, living with Glenne Hines Young and working as a research assistant in the Behavioral Research Laboratory at the Veterans Administration Hospital. In the fall she returned to Williamsburg to continue working toward a M.A. in psychology. Paulette (Odom) and Scott Blankenship have left Richmond for Newport News. Paulette is teaching at York High School and Scott is working as a sales representative of the Shell Oil Company. Michael B. Pratt is attending Pharmacy School at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Portsmouth, Va. After his wedding, Rich Krammer began working for American Cyanamid, selling chemicals to the rubber industry in the New Jersey-New York area. He is also going to graduate school at Rutgers in the evening with hopes of getting his MBA.

Finally, a few more bits and pieces. Peggy Jo Korty is a PhD candidate in physiology at the University of Michigan, a program of study that should occupy her for four years. Isabella Lam, also at the University of Michigan, is a PhD candidate in chemistry. Olivia Lam is studying textile design in Philadelphia. Tommy Vaughn has returned to the United States after a tour of duty in Korea. Henry George continues his graduate work in business at the University of Virginia. # I've worked hard for success but I've never been a slave to my job --

says Thomas L. Thorkelson, C.L.U., Santa Ana, California

"I'm the kind of guy who likes to be independent. That's what attracted me to the insurance business. As a Mass Mutual agent I have the freedom I crave. I can organize my working hours to allow me to spend time with my family in our cabin in the High Sierras and to accept various speaking engagements across the country. I'm able to devote hours each week to serving as a bishop in the Mormon church. I have time for the Santa Ana Junior Chamber of Commerce and our local Boys' Club, and to teach an insurance course at Santa Ana College. I'm not a slave to my job in any sense of the word.

"But don't get me wrong. When I work, I work hard. I prefer to see clients right here in my office. I've found that this gives me much more time to be of service to them. I feel my first duty is to show my clients what life insurance can do and how important it is to an over-all financial plan. Once this is done I help them set up a suitable plan to fit their own individual needs. This involves more than advising them on types and amounts of life insurance. Quite often I find this means calling in their lawyer to advise them on related matters, or suggesting they contact a broker about investing extra cash they may have on hand."

Tom Thorkelson is a 1954 Business Ad graduate of the University of Southern California who has been a Mass Mutual agent for seven years. He earned the Chartered Life Underwriter Designation from the American College of Life Underwriters during his first three years in the business—qualified for the industry's National Quality Award for the past three years—has been a member of the Million Dollar Round Table for the past six years—and is a member of our Company's Inner Circle, the exclusive group of those who place $2 million or more of new individual life insurance in a year.

He is one of the highly skilled group of professionals representing Mass Mutual, a Company over a century old, with $3 billion in assets. If you're looking for the kind of freedom in your career Mr. Thorkelson has found in his, write a personal letter to: Charles H. Schaaff, President, Mass Mutual, Springfield, Massachusetts. He is always interested in hearing from a good man.

Now Enjoy In Your Home Or Office
SPRINGTIME AT WILLIAM AND MARY
In Superb Sparkling Watercolors

by PAUL ANDREWS

Yes! Right now you can enjoy an exciting and colorful new idea in decorating your family room, library, student's room, office—A gift to delight the eye and stir the spirit!

What better time . . . the most nostalgic season of the year . . . to treat yourself, or someone near you, to a rare gift that recalls the splendor of William & Mary in the Springtime in all its brilliance . . . so universal in its beauty and appeal that even friends of the college will be delighted to own these expertly rendered watercolors—with unmatched spontaneity and freshness only possible with watercolors.

Artist Paul Andrews was chosen to do the series because of his unusually fine, free technique which has won him national recognition as an award-winning watercolorist. His style and a special familiarity and fondness for this subject have enabled him to capture in these four paintings the very essence of William & Mary.

Each full-color scene, measuring 11" x 14" is masterfully hand rendered (NOT a printed reproduction) on the finest watercolor paper, signed, and matted on heavy stock ready for framing.

The very low price of $9.95 per set of four (or $3.00 each) is possible only as an introductory offer by the COLLEGE WATERCOLOR GROUP, a gathering of expert watercolorists who seek to create the widest possible appreciation for the medium of watercolors—and to introduce you, reacquaint you, or renew your delight in the marvelous, spontaneous, and refreshing world of watercolors.

So at a fraction of the actual value of this rare set, we make this initial offer—with full money-back return privileges. For a perfect gift to yourself—to a student, graduate, or friend alike—FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY, RETURN THE NO-OBLIGATION COUPON TODAY.
