Cubic has the system!*

CUBIC'S SECOR, the surveying satellite developed for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, keeps introducing changes in the cartographer's art. For example, the system places the Ryukyu Islands a half-mile southwest of where we thought they were. To make such discrete measurements, SECOR employs electronic trilateration. As the satellite makes its pass, signals bounce between its 7-pound transponder and 4 portable Cubic ground stations. When the data is correlated, one station, whose position is only generally known, is located with new precision.

Since 1964, the ground stations have leap-frogged across the Pacific toward Hawaii in the first part of a globe-girdling program. With each satellite pass, stations receive information from 10,000 data points—and tens of thousands of correlations are used for each distance measured. Trilateration is the key to a number of Cubic's significant systems developments. SECOR is more proof that if you want to know where it is—land, sea or space—Cubic has the system. The magnificent candelabrum and rose bowl shown on the cover were presented to the College on its 275th Anniversary Charter Day by the Master of the Drapers' Company of London. The Company's Coat of Arms is set into the silver piece on one side, and the College's on the other. The gift, designed for the occasion by the noted London silversmith Leslie Durbin, is appropriately engraved.

English Heritage Evoked During Charter Event

By Ross Weeks Jr.

WILLIAM and Mary paid its respects last month to its deep English roots in a 275th Anniversary Charter Day Convocation that left several things to remember in the future.

The 2½ hour program recalled from several angles the royal founding of the College and the ultimate severance from England in the War of Independence. But the event symbolized a continuing effort to re-establish certain of the links with Great Britain to the advantage of present day students and faculty.

Queen Elizabeth II, who greeted students from the Wren balcony in 1957 during her visit to the College, dispatched greetings on the occasion of the Anniversary which were announced to the campus community by her Ambassador, Sir Patrick Dean.

The Drapers' Company, one of London's historic Guilds, presented a beautiful sterling silver rosebowl and candelabrum especially created and crafted for the 275th Anniversary (see cover illustration).

The Rt. Rev. and Rt. Hon. Robert Wright Stopford, Lord Bishop of London and titular successor to the College's first Chancellor, presented a marble detail from St. Paul's Cathedral, London, obtained during its restoration following World War II. St. Paul's is one of Sir Christopher Wren's most notable buildings, and the gift from Bishop Stopford permits William and Mary's Wren Building to house a symbolic tie with the English works of the famed architect.

Bishop Stopford and Ambassador Dean were recipients of honorary degrees along with Hugh Farmar, Clerk (executive director) of the Drapers' Company. Farmar was instrumental in 1955 in setting up the Drapers' exchange scholarship program under which a William and Mary student spends a year in England, and an English student spends a year at the College.

Each of the visiting British officials—including Anthony Packe, Master of the Drapers—received from the College an anniversary medallion struck for the occasion by the Alumni Office. The bronze piece, with a replica of a William and Mary coin on one side and the College coat of arms on the other, will be given during the 275th Anniversary Year to certain specially designated persons.

For the future, the 275th Anniversary program was the focal point for at least three innovations.

The Society of the Alumni announced that it would begin this fall a program of faculty Alumni Fellows. Under the program, announced at Charter Day by Judge Dixon L. Foster, President of the Society, up to five outstanding faculty members would be designated Alumni Fellows and receive appropriate recognition and stipends.

The Society, through Judge Foster, also presented the newly created Chain of Office for the Senior Class President. The Chain includes links bearing the names of all Senior Class Presidents since the practice of having class officers was begun in 1897. Hanging from it is a medallion bearing the College coat of arms.

Chancellor Alvin Duke Chandler announced during the program that the Endowment Association, which he heads, will allocate funds for up to ten Heritage Fellows among the faculty. The program would be similar to the Chancellor Professorships which provide stipends for those who are chosen.

Vernon L. Nunn, the College's treasurer-auditor, who is a member of the Class of 1925, was awarded the 1968 Thomas Jefferson Award in recognition of his "significant service through his personal activities, his influence and his leadership." He has been with the College since 1930, and has been treasurer-auditor since 1961.

The Charter Day weekend actually began February 8 with a highly successful coast-to-coast alumni meeting over telephone, originating from the Blue Room of the Wren Building. About 1,500 alumni in 23 separate meetings heard the program, but technical difficulties prevented alumni at these meetings from responding to greetings from Williamsburg. The program included a special lecture by Dr. Harold L. Fowler on the personalities of King William III and Queen Mary II, greetings from President Paschall, Judge Foster, Bishop Stopford and Ambassador Dean.

A month earlier, at an alumni-sponsored reception for Virginia's General Assembly, Governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. '36x, received a gavel crafted from wood in an oak tree that grew in the Wren Yard in 1693, and which achieved a nickname as the "charter oak" until it was felled in 1941.

The Congress of the United States received a proposed joint resolution in honor of the anniversary from Virginia's delegation in the House of Representatives. The Virginia General Assembly, at a commemorative meeting in Williamsburg February 3, adopted a joint resolution marking the occasion.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan '35, greetings were sent by President Lyndon B. Johnson and the U. S. Post Office Department took under advisement a plea for a commemorative postage stamp.

The anniversary event culminated nine months of planning by a committee headed by Dr. W. Melville Jones, Dean of the College. The anniversary year began in full swing after February 10, with several special activities, including a fall fine arts festival, symposia, and conferences.

Greetings From Queen Elizabeth II

I am happy to send my greetings to the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg on the occasion of the celebration of the 275th Anniversary of its Foundation. Since the grant of a Royal Charter to the College in the then Colony of Virginia in 1693 by King William and Queen Mary, its links with my country have remained close. I recall with pleasure my own visit to the College just over ten years ago. I am pleased to learn that the College is honouring on this occasion, together with my Ambassador, the Lord Bishop of London, since his predecessors were for nearly a century successively Chancellors of the College. I wish the College the best of fortune in the coming years, and am confident that its connections with the United Kingdom will continue as friendly and as fruitful as they have proved in past years.

Greetings From President Johnson

The founders of this Nation were men of faith and vision who believed that education and national progress are inextricably linked. The College of William and Mary stands as a vigorous expression of that belief and a symbol of its wisdom.

Its story is one of leadership and support through constructive involvement in national life. It has survived disaster, risked loss for principle, and risen, every time, to new heights.

As the College observes the 275th anniversary of the signing of its charter, the Nation can look with confidence to a sustained tradition of graduating men and women who are alive to the spirit of Virginia and attuned to the needs of American life.

I am proud to salute the officers, faculty and students of William and Mary on this historic occasion.

H. CON. RES. 615 IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

90th CONGRESS
2d Session

January 22, 1968

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Whereas the people of the United States of America throughout their history have recognized the importance to democracy of an educated citizenry, and to that end have encouraged a public policy of support of education for all of its people and the development, within the several States, of centers of advanced learning as beneficial to the general welfare; and

Whereas at the time of its independence the United States of America already was endowed with certain centers of learning established upon the initiative of the people of the several Colonies or as part of the policy of colonial growth encouraged by the then sovereign of the said Colonies; and

Whereas, on February 8, 1693, a royal charter was granted by Their Majesties King William III and Queen Mary II of England, to found and establish "a certain place of universal learning" in the "good arts and sciences" to be known forever thereafter as the College of William and Mary in Virginia; and

Whereas, subsequent to the independence of the said United States of America, His Excellency Thomas Jefferson, then Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia and thereafter a distinguished President of the United States of America, on December 4, 1779, led the same College of William and Mary in Virginia to a reorganization of its curriculum with the particular objective of creating therein a course of study preparing students for the service of the new State and Nation, to wit, by introducing pioneering courses in law, the several natural sciences, and the several modern languages; and

Whereas the said College of William and Mary in Virginia has throughout its history educated men who have contributed to the commonweal of three centuries, so that it is truly and often said that the history of the Colleges forms a significant part of the history of the Nation, the same including the first President and fifteen Members of the Continental Congress, three Presidents of the United States, a Chief Justice and three Associate Justices of the United States, thirteen Cabinet members, twenty-nine Senators, three Speakers, and fifty-five Members of the House of Representatives, twenty-two Governors of Virginia, twenty-two judges of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, an uncounted number of members of the General Assembly of Virginia, as well as leaders in the government of a number of other States of the Union; and

Whereas today it continues in this tradition of education of men and women for useful citizenship in public and private pursuits, continuing to adapt its course of studies to the growing needs of community, Commonwealth, and Nation: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the United States (the Senate concurring), That the Congress on this occasion sends hearty congratulations and greetings to the College of William and Mary on the occasion of its two hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary, recognizing the contributions it has made to the well-being of the people of Virginia and the United States, and extending the hope of the people of the United States that the College of William and Mary will continue to grow and prosper in the centuries yet to come.

General Assembly Resolution

On the Two Hundred Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the founding of the College of William and Mary

Whereas, At the request of the Assembly of Their Majesties' Colony of Virginia, King William and Queen Mary were pleased to grant a charter creating the College of William and Mary in Virginia on the eighth day of February in the year one thousand six hundred and ninety-three, the present year being the two hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the same; and

Whereas, the oldest academic building in the United States, now known as the Sir Christopher Wren Building, was begun in the year sixteen hundred and ninety-five, and on two different occasions during the colonial period provided meeting facilities for the Speaker of the House and the General Assembly; and

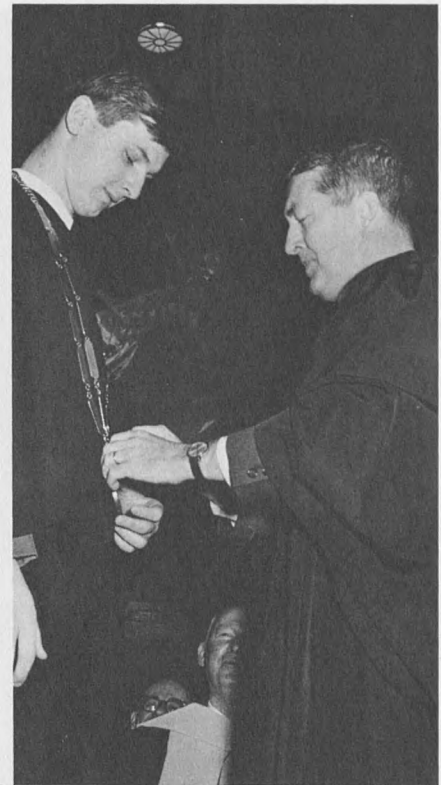

Whereas, In the struggle for independence and in the creating of a new Commonwealth and a new Nation, the men associated with the College of William and Mary wrought imaginatively and heroically many of the documents which have become the fundamental articles of our political faith as a republic; and

Whereas, Through the vision and leadership of the second Governor of this Commonwealth, His Excellency, Thomas Jefferson, the curriculum of the College of William and Mary was modernized and enlarged to meet the changing needs of the new Commonwealth and Nation through the establishment of chairs of Law and of Natural and Social Sciences; and

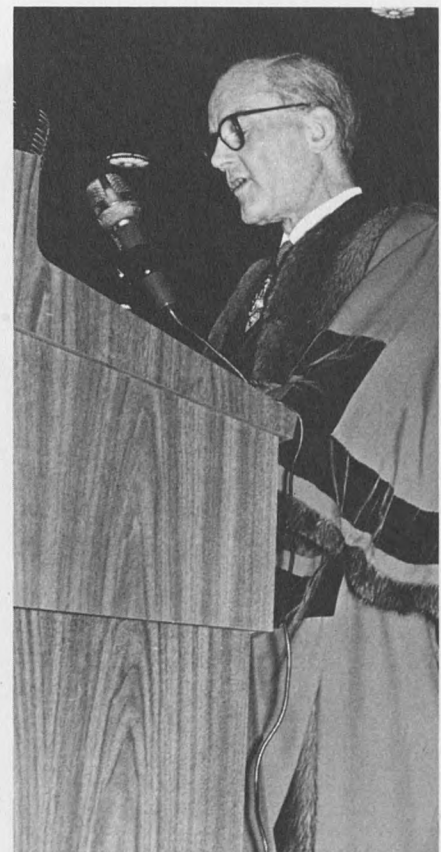

Whereas, Both in war and in peace the students and faculty of the said College of William and Mary have zealously and effectively served the Commonwealth and Nation in public office, in military service, and in the many arts and crafts of daily life, responding in each age to new educational challenges and needs; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Delegates, the Senate of Virginia concurring, That the General Assembly of Virginia hereby recognizes and commends the two hundred and seventy-five years of service and accomplishment of the said College of William and Mary in Virginia, and records the expressed hope that the College will continue to grow and prosper in the highest sense of its cherished heritage.

TO THE POINT

About The Desirability Of William And Mary

By RUSSELL KIRK

THIS MONTH, the second oldest institution of higher learning in these United States celebrates the 275th anniversary of its founding: the College of William and Mary, at Williamsburg. Unlike Harvard (a few years older), William and Mary had to struggle for survival most of its years, until the state of Virginia assumed its support and direction in 1906.

Virtually ruined during the Revolution, virtually ruined again during the Civil War, the College of William and Mary sometimes had only a tiny handful of students, by contrast with its present 4,000. John Randolph of Roanoke (who studied briefly at the college, and found it a poor place in the years after the Revolution) wrote in 1814 that in colonial times William and Mary had been "a seminary of learning, under able classical masters."

Certainly the college schooled great Virginians. Here studied three Presidents of the United States: Jefferson, Monroe and Tyler; here, too, studied John Marshall and that great man of law, George Wythe, and Peyton Randolph, first president of the Continental Congress. George Washington was the college's first American chancellor. Here, in 1776, the Phi Beta Kappa Society was founded.

Although nowadays William and Mary really is a university, with the oldest school of law in America and modern graduate schools of business, education and marine science — plus a great synchrotron and a graduate branch at Newport News — it preserves its ancient harmony and humane scale. It was meant to raise up Christian gentlemen, and it still does, together nowadays with Christian young ladies.

Twice this commentator has delivered Marshall-Wythe lectures to the college. Such guests as your servant are lodged in the simple beauty of one of the old buildings, next door to the oldest college hall in the country — the handsome brick edifice said to have been designed by Sir Christopher Wren which somehow has survived repeated conversion to unacademic uses and long periods of neglect.

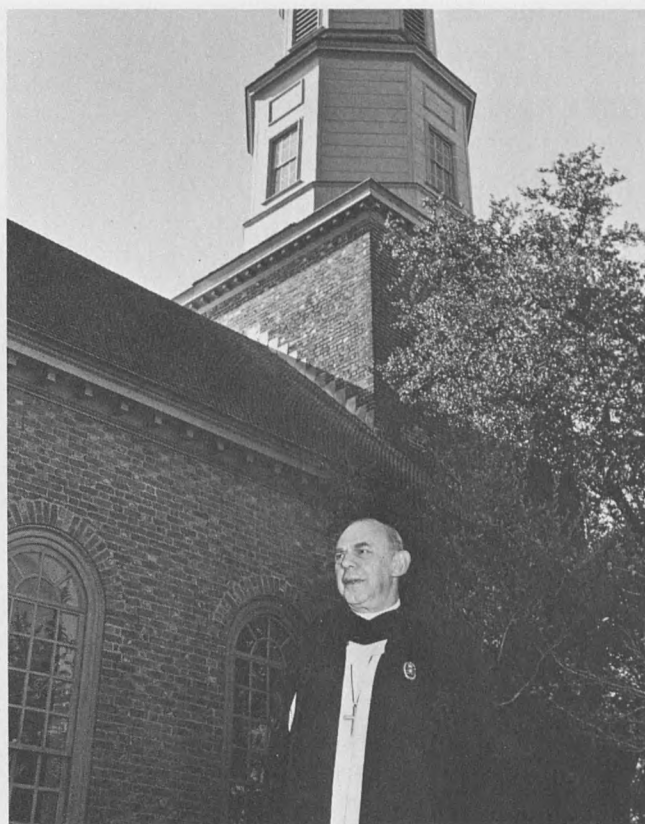

What a contrast, this college, to Behemoth State University, with its grim utilitarian campus and its unhappy student multitudes who mutter, "Don't fold or spindle us!" (No, there isn't really a Behemoth State; but the modern mass campus is legion and growing more unpleasant every month.) For William and Mary looks straight upon old Williamsburg, so splendidly restored by Rockefeller money, where everything is charming and cheerful.

Any genuine college of liberal arts and sciences should be a place of dignity, tradition, quiet and academic leisure (a very different thing from academic idleness). In these matters, the advantages of William and Mary are great. Had I to make the choice, I had rather dwell in Williamsburg than in Cambridge, Mass.

Very English in its patrimony, William and Mary also represents the old culture of the Southern states. Like the Old Dominion, the college retains its character and its courtesy in good-natured defiance of the age of automation and the secular city.

The College

THE GREEKS are no more.

Favorite habitats of thousands of William and Mary students for some two decades, the "Corner Greek's" and the "Middle Greek's" on Duke of Gloucester Street were both closed during 1967 to make room for enlarged gift shops and a new, modern cafeteria to be opened during 1968. The "Middle Greek's" became the new location for Madison's gift shop, the College Shop moved into Madison's old place of business. Both the old College Shop and "Corner Greek's" will be remodeled for the new cafeteria to serve Williamsburg's increasing flow of visitors and students, as well.

Alumni Director Gordon C. Vliet '54, whose memories of the Greeks are as rich as anyone's, was among the dozens who successfully purchased mementos at an auction in December. A complete booth set from the "Corner Greek's" now graces his office in Ewell Hall.

Anniversary Fever

Across the campus by late winter, William and Mary organizations went headlong into preparations for events and observations tied together under the umbrella of the College's 275th Anniversary. (For coverage of the major beginning events of this Anniversary year, see the special section in this month's Gazette.)

Among the speakers of considerable note who are being brought to the campus during the spring phase of the Anniversary, are Howard K. Smith, the ABC-TV news commentator; C. Vann Woodward, Yale expert in the history of the Southern Negro; and Eugene Genovese, also a scholar in the field of Negro development. A special fall Fine Arts Festival is in the planning stages. Mortar Board has the opportunity to observe its own 50th anniversary in the spring, and in the fall will come the 50th anniversary of the admission of coeds to William and Mary. The long-projected publication of the history of the William and Mary Theatre was thought to be near, following completion of the manuscript late last year by Miss Althea Hunt, professor and director emeritus. Faculty were preparing for major symposia on the manifestations of English tradition in America, and on the role of higher education for the future.

New Schools

The Board of Visitors in January established the new School of Continuing Education, to serve as the framework for management of the Extension Division, with its enrollment of 6,000 off-campus and the Evening College, with an enrollment of 500, as well as of the new Peninsula Graduate Center (Virginia Associated Research Center), with an enrollment of about 250. Dr. Donald J. Herrmann, professor of education and a veteran faculty member, was named Dean.

Meanwhile, Dr. Charles L. Quittmeyer became Dean of the new School of Business Administration on February 1, the date the Department of Business Administration was elevated to School status. Dr. Algin B. King was named Assistant Dean, and Dr. A. L. Sancetta became Director of Graduate Studies in the School.

Sitar Virtuoso

William and Mary's 800-seat Phi Beta Kappa Hall was the scene in January for a performance by Pandit Ravi Shankar, India's virtuoso of the sitar, the complicated classical instrument some 600 years old. His improvisational concert drew a full audience of 809, but if an auditorium with 5,000 seats had been available, it would also have been filled. The William and Mary Concert Series sponsored the program, and all season tickets were sold, well before the fall session opened; some went to persons who obtained them only to hear Shankar.

Sun Never Sets . . .

William and Mary's English heritage will root even more firmly this fall with the beginning of a junior-year-abroad program at Exeter University. The 15-member group from Williamsburg will spend the entire academic year in residence at Exeter, which is one of England's newest universities (formally chartered in 1956, but with antecedents to 1901).

Arrangements for the program, only the second year-abroad arrangement in Virginia, were begun last summer by Dean W. Melville Jones during a visit to England. During the same visit, he helped establish the College's first English alumni chapter and to arrange for the 275th Anniversary Charter Day Convocation program.

Since 1952, William and Mary has sent individual students to English universities. Several years ago, single exchanges were started with Exeter. In 1966, a faculty exchange was begun with Exeter, and at the same time a student exchange was begun with St. Andrew's in Scotland.

The international outlook of William and Mary grows each year. During the current session, some 36 international students are studying at the College, a half-dozen from England.

Library Bequests

Some $4,500 has been made available to establish the initial library for a new Department of Religion, to be established in September. One gift was made by J. Edward Zollinger '27, a member of the Board of Visitors; and the second was a bequest of Frank S. Phillips '25.

The non-denominational department will initially include a single professor, who will be appointed in the spring. Establishment of the new program was thought to be a "real contribution to a liberal arts education for those students who elect to take its offerings."

Construction Program

Equipment and labor shortages continued in the winter to plague William and Mary's history-making building program. By February, seven of the 12 new men's fraternity units were completed and occupied, but the other five were not expected to be ready at least until March. The new Life Sciences Building for biology and psychology was not ready, as scheduled, by January; its opening date was uncertain. Both these projects were originally projected for completion last September, but weather and the exigencies of war collaborated to delay them.

The partial conversion of the Old

Library into the law school was, however, completed by December. Work proceeded on schedule on the first phase of the new Mathematics and Computer Center building, being constructed first as a basement and first floor building and, if funds become available, to become a three story-and-basement structure.

Plans for the new men's physical education center were at a standstill by February pending allocation of additional funds for its construction by the Virginia General Assembly, meeting in Richmond. The first bid opening for the building last summer found the College with about $2,500,000 less on hand than the lowest construction price. The architectural plans were ordered reworked to effect economies, an additional revenue bond sale was authorized, and extra funds were asked from the State.

Virginia's legislature appeared ready in 1968 to ask voters to approve the sale of $81,000,000 in bonds to finance educational and hospital construction projects over the next two years.

Professor Roseberg with a student

Faculty Profile:

*Soap to Marble
Brings Roseberg
Sculpting Honors*

By S. Dean Olson

CARL ROSEBERG, William and Mary's gifted sculptor, has achieved enough honors and awards to fill a couple of typewritten pages, but he's never at a loss for new fields to conquer. A couple of years ago, he spent six months carving on an 800-pound piece of lignum-vitae wood from Panama under a financial grant from the Society of the Alumni. Last summer he studied bronze and aluminum casting at the Tyler School of Art at Temple University. This summer he plans to launch into a 400-pound piece of Italian marble.

Whatever the medium—wood or marble carving, welding, metal casting or wax—Roseberg has probably been there or soon will be. He began as a child in soap carving, studied designing at the University of Iowa, painting under the great American artist Grant Wood and printmaking under the noted Mauricio Lasansky, and eventually settled in sculpture because it is "something you can get ahold of." But not a single medium of sculpture as many artists are content with, but the entire breadth of the field.

Roseberg has his reasons for spreading his talents. For one thing, he believes many sculptors are too restrictive, concentrating their talents on a single area. But more important, Professor Roseberg has taught art at William and Mary for the past 20 years, and to teach, he believes, a teacher must "work in all the materials to do a proper job."

By one stretch of the imagination, much of Roseberg's brilliant work could be considered a figment of the imagination. He prefers to work in abstract art because, he explains, it is more challenging and requires greater creativity than realistic art. Realistic art, according to Roseberg, is basically a reflection of the actual object, but abstract art is a "figment of the imagination" in the sense that it demands different ways of viewing an object.

The philosophy guides Professor Roseberg in his art classes as well. He will teach and advise his budding sculptors on method and approach, but he demands the initial creative effort be theirs. And for some that's not easy.

"Sculpture for those who have little or no background in art," he says, "is like trying to play basketball without having ever seen the game. I encourage them to look at publications and see what has happened so they can get a 'feeling' for art. But they have to develop their own ideas, and then as they do the sculpture they develop the skill. They learn by doing because they have to."

The difficult task is often the "actual doing and creating." What of those with no talent? "I don't think there is anyone with no talent," he says, "there are those with more talent than others."

Since Roseberg arrived at William and Mary in 1947, 600 or 700 students have probably passed through his classes in sculpture, a sizable number because sculpture students require individual attention. A few have gone into art as a vocation, but the majority continue on in other fields. However, he explains, art courses pay intangible rather than tangible dividends because they provide a "better understanding and a greater appreciation of art." The next time a student attends an exhibit, Roseberg says, "he can appreciate that experience."

The increase in public interest in art in the United States can be explained at least partly in this fashion. Colleges and universities have greatly broadened their art programs over the past decade and more students than ever are taking art classes. At William and Mary, for instance, Professor Roseberg recalls that only 40 or 50 students were enrolled annually in the art survey course when he arrived at the College; this year more than 250 are enrolled in the course, which has been taught by the combined faculty of the Fine Arts Department.

One of Roseberg's most memorable students was Joseph Lonas, a war veteran who attended William and Mary when Roseberg first came to the College. After studying sculpture under Roseberg, Lonas followed the master's footsteps to the University of Iowa for a master of fine arts degree. He was chosen for a Fulbright Scholarship and studied in Germany where the Government invited him to stay on under one of its grants. Today he lives in Berlin, recognized as one of Germany's brightest young artists.

Lonas learned his early technique from a man who can never remember when he wanted to be anything other than an artist. "Besides," explains Roseberg who began his art as a schoolboy in Vinton, Iowa, "I had a reputation to uphold as the best drawer in the second grade."

From Vinton, Roseberg went to the University of Iowa to learn to become a commercial artist. He immediately found himself at a disadvantage because he had attended a small high school, and many of his classmates from larger schools were doing things in art that "I never knew existed." But he had an advantage as well; he had learned as a boy to work with his hands.

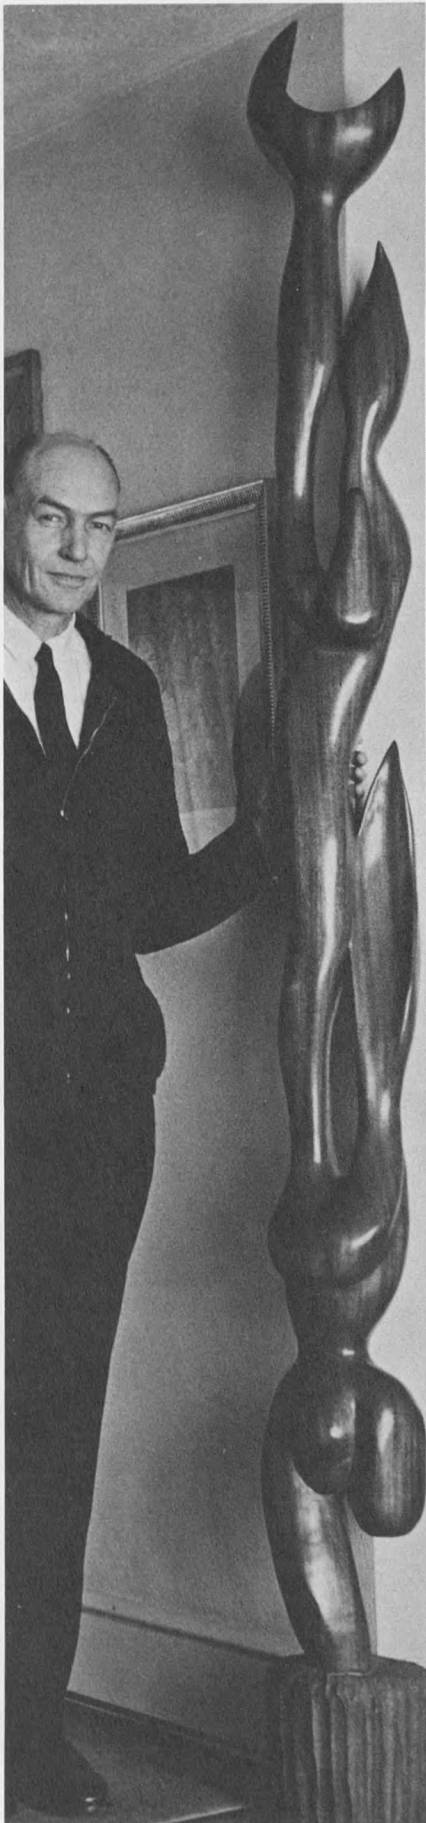

"In those days," he recalls, "kids did a lot more with their hands. For instance, there was no such thing as an airplane kit, you did all the work yourself if you wanted to build an airplane." Many of his students today, Roseberg says, come into his classes at a disadvantage because they have never worked in any mechanical way with their hands; many don't even know how to use a saw or hammer.

Roseberg received a bachelor of fine arts degree at Iowa, the first man to receive that degree under a new program, and as a result, he says, he obtained some very fine training which would have been unavailable otherwise. He immediately went on to graduate school, but his master's work was interrupted by the war in which he served as a photo intelligence officer for the Navy on Guam keeping track of Japanese airfields. A commander in the Naval Reserve in air intelligence, Roseberg completes 26 years of Reserve duty this June.

Roseberg studied painting for nearly five years in college and for more than a year under Grant Wood and James Lechay. He still dabbles in painting when he has time, and is frequently called upon for his designing talents. He created a special service medallion for the Marshall-Wythe Law School and drafted the roll titles for the Colonial Williamsburg film, "The Colonial Naturalist." During the 275th anniversary year, his work will be seen on a medallion which will be presented to distinguished persons for outstanding services and loyalty to the College.

Roseberg often designs a piece of sculpture on paper before he begins the work. Other times, depending on the medium or material in which he works, the form gradually develops as he sculpts. An industrious, soft-spoken Midwesterner of Swedish background, he puts no time limit on his sculptures, but rarely lets up once he begins a work. "There is always the challenge of getting it finished," he says, but then recalls one piece, a gigantic nine-foot combination of welding and wood carving called the "Last Judgement," which took nine years to complete because of its complexity.

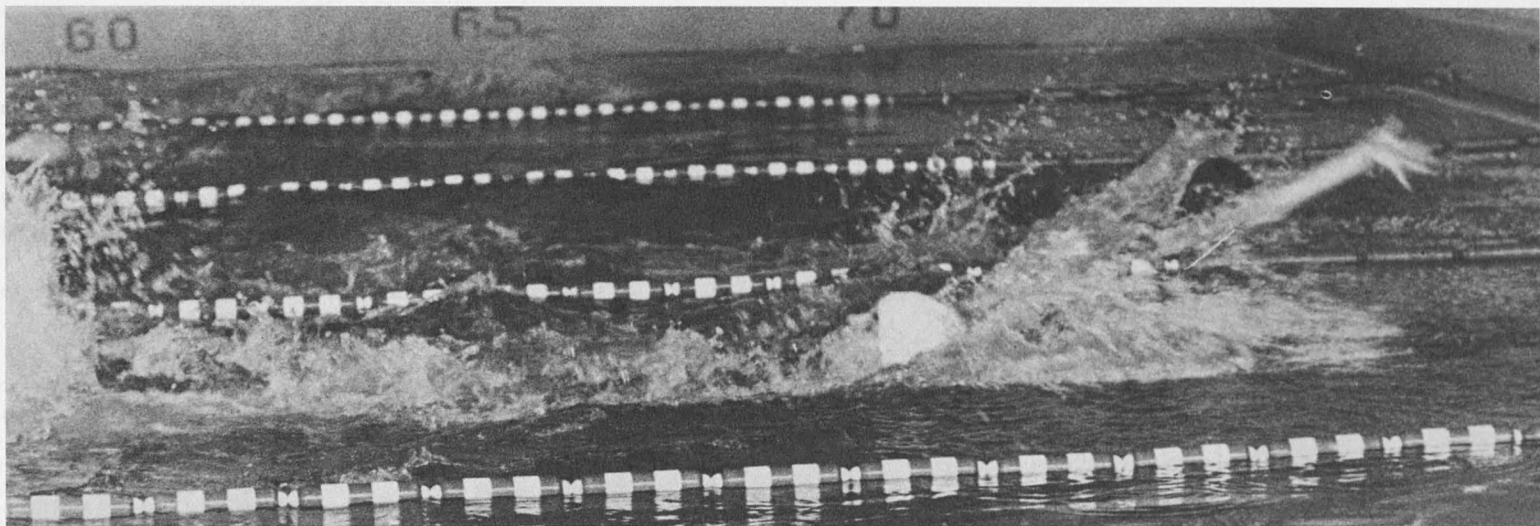

During the past two decades, Roseberg's work has been exhibited throughout the United States. He was one of only 50 living American sculptors invited to exhibit at the New York World's Fair in 1964 and has been awarded three "Certificate of Distinction" awards from Virginia Museum Biennials. His work was displayed in the 3rd International Exhibition at Fairmont Park in Philadelphia, the 53rd annual exhibit of Western Artists in Denver, the 12th National Ceramic Exhibition and Traveling Show, and on 17 occasions at the National Artists Exhibition in New York City. He also was invited to display his work in 1957 at the Outstanding Alumni Exhibit at the State University of Iowa, and was on the original board of the "Twentieth Century Gallery" and helped establish the gallery. Only last February he received recognition from the American Institute of Architects which gave him its "Award of Honor Certificate" and displayed his work in a private showing at the Virginia Chapter of AIA in Richmond.

In 1964 Roseberg received a Ford Foundation Grant and was selected the same year for the Advancement of Scholarship Faculty Award by the Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. In 1965 under a Fulbright grant, he was leader of 20 visiting professors who attended a summer institute in India. That same year he received a more sentimental honor; he was invited to deliver the commencement address at his high school in Vinton, Iowa.

Roseberg's teaching interests are as broad as his sculpturing abilities. At William and Mary, he teaches at various times history of sculpture, oriental art history, ancient art history, renaissance sculpture art history, modern art history, beginning and advanced sculpture, and third year problems in sculpture. He and his Fine Arts colleagues moved this year into their brand new quarters in Andrews Hall. Roseberg says he has about four times as much room as in the old power plant where he previously taught his sculpture classes. His section has a storage room, a foundry, a room for beginning students, a room for advanced students, and a room for plaster casting. Even better, he adds, it has heat, good lighting, and no holes in the roof like the old building where students often had to put on their boots when it rained because of the water on the floor.

Athletics:

The "Little Sports" Welcomed by Men's Athletic Department and Students, Too

THREE TIMES a week during the late afternoons, the Associate Dean of William and Mary puts aside his books and papers in his Brafferton Office and heads across campus to Blow Gymnasium. For the next hour and a half, clad in a mask, padded glove, jacket and gym sneakers, and wielding a sabre or foil, he and a campus chaplain do battle with some 20 others on the gymnasium floor.

The scene depicts neither a routine confrontation with the Board of Visitors nor a campus uprising by a group of irascible students. Dr. John H. Willis, Jr., rather, is doing something he wanted to do since he arrived at William and Mary—try to revive collegiate fencing.

Dr. Willis talks enthusiastically of the golden days of the 30s and 40s when fencing was, if not king, at least a prince at William and Mary. Tucker Jones, the athletic director and one of the leading fencing figures in the country, coached the Indians to several Southern Conference fencing titles, but that era passed with his death.

Dr. Willis, with the help of an associate coach, the Rev. Joseph E. Trimble, III, Curate at Bruton Parish Church, is trying to revive the glory of that era. Though admittedly a formidable task, they approach the job with impressive credentials. Mr. Trimble, who serves as a campus minister, fencer at the University of Virginia, city. Dr. Willis, an intercollegiate fencer at the University of Virginia, did "graduate study" in the sport with two world masters. While attending a language institute in Paris, he studied for a year under a French master who was master of arms of the Garde Republican. Later at Columbia University, he studied with America's great sabre master, George Santelli, while fencing several Olympic veterans in the New York area.

Their initial desire is to establish fencing on the club level, which they hope later will lead to intercollegiate competition. The response has been gratifying. More than 20 candidates turned out this year, although, Dr. Willis notes, only three had any previous experience. This means long arduous hours of practice before the can take a team into competition.

"Fencing is an extremely challenging sport," Dr. Willis explains. "You can't take a raw recruit and turn him into a skilled competitor over night."

Be that as it may, Dr. Willis and Mr. Trimble are anything but discouraged.

By mid-winter, team members had learned some of the elementary moves on the foil, as well as the épée and sabre.

The sport has received a warm welcome from Howard M. Smith and his staff in the men's physical education department. Smith, who has encouraged a variety of new sports at William and Mary as head of the men's p.e. program, feels fencing provides an outlet for the less aggressive athlete not involved in contact sports. The Department provided all the necessary equipment except for the padded glove which team members were asked to buy themselves as an indication of their commitment.

If fencing goes the route of several other new sports at William and Mary, it may not be long before it is on a firm footing. In recent years, both soccer and lacrosse have graduated from club sports to intercollegiate competition.

Joseph Agree, an assistant professor of physical education who finds time to coach both soccer and golf, tells of the growth of soccer into a full-fledged sport.

Starting as a club sport, soccer was in its infant stages when Agree took over three years ago. Thirty boys were out, few with any experience, when Agree was told to "go out and find a field to play on." He found an empty lot near James Blair Terrace by Eastern State Hospital; the sport survived its first year on the club level and then grew to a varsity sport, although the team failed to win a game until this year when it finished second in the northern Division of the Southern Conference behind West Virginia, the Conference champ. Agree recalls that first victory vividly.

"You'd thought we had won the World Cup," he says.

Lacrosse is another late comer that began on the club level and developed into intercollegiate competition. The team has a new coach, Jim Carpenter, an instructor in physical education, who coached the club to its first "non-losing" season last year. Playing Amherst, the University of Richmond, Randolph Macon, and Georgetown, the lacrossers lost three but managed to tie Georgetown.

Sailing, still a club sport at William and Mary, probably had the most unconventional genesis. A few years ago several students interested in sailing placed an ad in Yachting Magazine reading "Old School-New Club Needs Sailboat." A Maryland man who was moving to California read the ad and gave the College his sailing boat for the club to use.

Some 30 students belong to the club today, though according to one member it still has a "tenuous existence" because of financial and transportation problems. A member of the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association, the club competes against Old Dominion, Duke, The Citadel, South Carolina, and the College of Charleston. Team members—who have acquired two more small sailing craft, one of which was given them by Professor Frank Evans of the English Department—sail out of Yacht Haven on the York River.

Professors Bruce Goodwin and Steven Clement of the Geology Department serve as advisors to the club which solves some of its financial problems with the same ingenuity with which it got started. The Club has earned enough money washing cars to buy a small Penguin sailing craft.

All of these sports fit into a group the coaches call "non-revenue" sports—meaning they don't bring in any money, but provide plenty of exercise and fun for the participants. Others in this category are gymnastics, swimming, golf, wrestling, tennis, baseball, and cross-country and indoor and outdoor track.

Few of the sports offer any financial assistance to the participants, forcing the coaches who recruit to sell William and Mary on institutional appeal alone. Harry Groves, who coaches indoor and outdoor track and cross-country running, has probably been as successful at it as any coach in the country who operates on a limited budget. In 12 years at William and Mary his teams have won 13 Southern Conference and 12 Virginia titles.

To minimize expenses, the non-revenue teams often travel together. During the 1967 spring vacation, for instance, the baseball and tennis teams made a swing south together. The host institution usually provides free college housing and meals for the visiting teams, which reciprocate when the host team returns the visit.

"This way," says H. Lester Hooker, athletic director who doubles as baseball coach, "our only expenses are for the bus." A couple years ago Hooker tried to take the golf team as well as the baseball and tennis teams on a combined trip but that didn't work so well. The golfers had so much equipment that there was no place for the players to sit on the bus.

Whatever the minor handicaps, however, the players never seem to mind. With some 13 different sports to choose from, they can always move on to another field. Which is one reason for the wide-ranging program.

"We try to offer enough different sports," explains Howard Smith, "for everyone to satisfy his desire to participate."

Read Goode's idea led to an extra $250,000 in business in a single year.

His idea was Greg Porter.

While Read F. Goode was still in college, he worked with Gregory Porter for a prominent Richmond investment firm. Greg stayed with the brokerage firm, but Read entered the insurance business with New England Life.

Several years later, when each was established in his own field, Read had an idea which he believed could benefit them both, and benefit their clients, too. He suggested that he and Greg cooperate, whenever possible, to offer balanced financial programs to their clients. Greg agreed.

Together, they analyze a prospect's needs, with Read setting up the fixed dollar portion through insurance, and Greg handling the variable dollar portfolio through investments.

The idea has proved abundantly productive. In the last 12 months, Read's new business from this source alone has totalled more than $250,000—an impressive portion of an equally impressive $1,535,000 total.

"This is typical of what I hoped to be able to do when I chose the insurance field," says Goode. "I wanted a business in which initiative and ideas paid off. I wanted opportunity, with a large measure of freedom, and I've certainly found it here."

R. Gregory Porter, III (Virginia Polytechnic Institute '64) and New England Life's Read F. Goode, (University of Richmond '65)

Read Goode's choice of a life insurance career was ideal for him. And his choice of New England Life has given him the added advantages of the prestige, resources and reputation of the oldest mutual life insurance company in America.

Could such a career be as rewarding for you? A sound (and simple) first step is to send for New England Life's Personality Aptitude Analyzer, which can give us both a preliminary opportunity to find out if this business and this company are right for you.

Not everyone qualifies—in fact, less than half of the men who take our Personality Aptitude Analyzer are urged to investigate a career with us further.

But for those who do qualify, we offer a substantial training salary, an exceptional training program, and the kind of freedom to grow as you want, with the kind of people you want to do business with.

Interested? Write to George G. Joseph, CLU, Sr. V.P., New England Life, 501 Boylston St., Boston, Massachusetts 02117.

"Convivial Ghosts" in London

Join First Overseas Chapter

AT 4:25 P.M. Eastern Standard Time last November 11, a telegram arrived in Williamsburg with an unusual message.

"Convivial ghosts Compton, Wren, Blair, join much alive group London inaugural dinner first overseas alumni chapter. Sending greetings, President, Dean, Alumni Office, and all at or from College. Morpurgo President."

The communication gave word of the November 10 beginning of William and Mary's first overseas alumni chapter, in London, England. It followed the visit in June of Dean W. Melville Jones to help English alumni get together for the first time.

November's meeting was held at the National Book League, Dr. J. E. Morpurgo's firm. The report follows:

"Dr. J. E. Morpurgo, the President, was in the Chair and the function was attended by ten alumni. Messages were exchanged with Dr. D. Paschall and cables were received from Dean Jones and the Alumni Office. All present were of the opinion that the evening had been an unqualified success, but expressed a plea, in order that the chapter may expand, for all William and Mary alumni living in Britain and anyone knowing of alumni resident in Britain, to get in touch with the chapter Secretary—Malcolm Robinson, Radley College, Abingdon, Berkshire, England."

Enthusiasm of the group has been strong enough to have had a meeting in February to hear the tape of the February 8 cross-country telephone program in honor of the 275th Anniversary.

Special Anniversary Gifts Boost Fund

A special category of donors to the William and Mary Fund helped greatly in boosting the Fund's total to more than $80,000 in contributions in 1967. The group, listed on this page, were known as Anniversary Donors and are hereby specifically recognized. Their gifts were of $125 or larger, in recognition of the 125th Anniversary of the Society of the Alumni. The Anniversary Donor program, so beneficial to the College at this time in its history, will continue in 1968.

Freshest Advices

Trixie H. Johnson, a Government and History teacher at Greensville County High School in Emporia, Va. was selected as the State Teacher of the Year for 1968. She was chosen from nominees submitted by school division superintendents throughout the state. She has taught at the high school since 1929.

25

Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse of Nahant, Mass. writes that she recently went to Seattle, Wash. where she attended the Episcopal Convention for the Diocesan Altar Guild of Massachusetts. She is Chairman of the Board of Library Trustees of the Nahant Public Library which is planning to celebrate the 150th anniversary of its founding in 1969. She and her 12-year-old grandson visited EXPO '67 last summer and she is looking forward to showing him Williamsburg and the College in a year or so.

C. William Cleaton of South Hill, Va. was re-elected last fall to the House of Delegates for his eleventh term. He has been a member of the Finance Committee for the past 20 years.

Conley R. Addington of Coral Gables, Fla. last May during the commencement exercises of Newberry College, Newberry, S. C., had the honor of having the Honorary Doctorate of Commercial Science conferred upon him. This was a fitting climax to his teaching career. Last year he retired from the University of Miami in Coral Gables after serving there for 25 years as a professor and chairman of the Accounting Department.

Frank Snowden Hopkins has made a number of speeches for the Department of State during the past year—at the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania State University, Valparaiso University, Wittenberg College, and San Diego State College as well as to a number of clubs and civic groups. He has likewise participated in staff seminars at the Hudson Institute, Rand Corporation, and Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. His favorite subject is long-range educational planning for the less developed countries, focussing on the period 1975-2000. Frank has also recently had an article published in the American Sociologist on "The United States in the Year 2000: A Proposal for the Study of the American Future." He has accepted an invitation from the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa to assist the committee which is planning the Phi Beta bicentennial in 1976.

Leonard Born of Belvedere, Calif. writes that their only son came home well and with three citations after a year of combat duty in Viet Nam for which his parents are grateful.

Dorothy Chalkley Cocke writes that in January 1967 she married Guy Eldridge Cocke of "Greenwood" in Fluvanna County, Va. She writes that she is looking forward to her 40th reunion next year.

W. J. Bullock of Kannapolis, N. C. has been superintendent of schools there since 1931.

Last October Bill Bolton heard from Judson Lifsey (Mrs. B. H. Parker) of 5421 Estero Blvd., Ft. Meyers Beach, Fla. 33931. Judson has moved to Ft. Meyers Beach and is working as a librarian in Lee County. Last summer she made a trip from Los Angeles to Olympia, Washington, then, to Victoria, Vancouver, Lake Louise, Banff, Calgary, to the Yellowstone Park and then Chicago. Her roommate on the trip was Trixie Johnson, '24.

Bill was greatly pleased to learn that Irene Priddy Brown received an award from the Kiwanis Club of Newport News as a city employee who had contributed more than her share toward making the city one to be proud of. The award was given at a dinner at the Warwick Yacht and Country Club in October.

We spent a most pleasant weekend at the College during Homecoming. The only bad part was our defeat in the football game by old rival Richmond. The class dinners and dinner dance were all well attended and it was good to see so many old friends in attendance. As usual, the Homecoming parade was "out of this world." There was a fine turnout of alumni at the annual meeting of the Society, after which we were served a delicious box luncheon in front of Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

We are sorry there is no news on file from classmates since the last issue of the magazine. We had hoped to have numerous items of interest to report. So, please, while this issue is before you, write us about what you have been doing since we last heard from you. A good response to this appeal will bring news of interest which your classmates are anxious to hear. Here's for a full column of news in the next issue.

Virginia Isabelle Crigler of Charlottesville, Va. writes that her niece, Susan Crigler of Hampton, Va., has been accepted at the College as a freshman in September 1968.

Herbert T. Lorentzen of Englewood, N. J. has been elected Secretary of the Pouch Terminal, Inc. Prior to his association with Pouch Terminal early in 1966 he had been in the advertising agency business, having served as Executive Vice President of Birmingham, Castleman and Pierce, Inc.

Herbert G. Stewart is minister of music of West End Methodist Church in Portsmouth, Va. "The Star of Bethlehem," a Christmas cantata composed by him was presented during the Christmas season.

32

T. Sutton Jett of Silver Springs, Md. who headed the National Capitol Parks region since 1961 retired in January after 38 years with the National Park Service.

35

Robert H. McEwan, '38, reports his son, Robert, Jr., is a KA at University of the South, while his daughter, Amy attends Brenau College in Gainesville, Ga. and is a Tri Delt pledge.

Joan Thompson (Hicks) is a library cataloger at the Univ. of Illinois. Her son, Jim, is with the Air Force in Turkey; other son, Bruce, is at Roosevelt Univ. in Chicago. She will be visiting in Williamsburg in January.

Anne Thompson's son is a senior at the College of William and Mary.

Margie Beggs Brice can't believe that it is almost time for another class reunion for us. Neither can I but nevertheless that is the situation, so start planning to gather in Williamsburg for Homecoming '68.

Ida Ann Plotnick Schreiber's son, David Leslie, is a senior at the University of Tennessee. He attended summer session 1967 at William & Mary.

Edythe Dank Lever is still teaching English to foreign students and doing tax sketches and paints. Her elder son, Andy, is working on his master of Music in Orchestral conducting at New England Conservatory in Boston. Younger son, Larry, is a sophomore at Cornell University, member of Sigma Mu and has just made first trombonist of the Cornell Symphony Orchestra. Congratulations!

Dorothy Hosford Smith and husband, Herb, spent a short time in the East at Christmas, visiting his family in Pennsylvania. They will make their annual trip to Arizona to visit high schools during Claremont College semester break.

Peggy Prickett Miller is very busy in Annandale, Va. She is teaching fifth grade at Ft. Belvoir, participating in a pilot experiment in team teaching with two other fifth grade teachers. Husband, Frank, is back from Vietnam and is presently Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff of Logistics, Doctrines, Systems and Readiness. Son, Dick, returned from Vietnam, while son, Brink, will be there until summer.

Torsten E. Peterson of Hopewell, Va. who is a lawyer there has been elected to Homecoming actually was last year, but I should report that our class made its usual good showing in spite of not being a reunion year. Frank and I looked in on the latter part of '41's class dinner Friday night with Ben and Jane Brandt Wild in order to hear the entertaining quartet, "The Down County Four," of which Leslie Wild is a member. Saw lots of old friends there who we hadn't laid eyes on in years!

We watched the parade next morning with Scrib and Ginny Claudon Allen, their daughter Pam (a freshman), and Bill and Ruth Ann Holzmueller Mahood whose daughter, Donnie Chancellor, was in the Homecoming Court. We lunched at Phi Bete, watched Richmond slaughter our football team and then thoroughly enjoyed the delightful dinner-dance at the Lodge, sitting with the Allens, Wilds, Jack and Ann Terrell Garrett, and Bud and Frances Davis Matheny. Bud is coach at Old Dominion in Norfolk, formerly the Norfolk Division. Walt and Betty Carter Zable were there and Mary and Merritt Roster, Leah and T. Waller, John and Marion Milne Barba, Otto and Ann Boysen, Ken Beavers, Johnny Rinklin, Bill Arthur, Herb Young, Sid Brooks, Fred Howard whom I hadn't seen in eons, Cecil Brown, Sam Walker, Bill and Maureen Stuart Dulin, Charlie Smeltzer, Peggy Layman Hall, Jean George Sykes, George and Dede Allen Bunch, Bob and Jean Stigall Abernathy, Cormack Appollo, Steve Lenzie, Frank Cuzio, Dinny Forward Pate, Al and Janet Wood Chestnut, Nils and Gervais Wallace Brekke whose daughter, Linda, was married this summer, and Betsy Hooper Ramsey. Did I miss anyone?

I had a grand letter from Al Alley shortly before Christmas. Al is probably my most faithful correspondent tho I fear I neglect my end by not replying often other than in the Gazette. Al spent the month of June at the Air University at Montgomery, Alabama and took a quick trip to Richmond to see his brother and others of his family. In August Al was selected as SAC nominee for the Robert P. Taylor Award, which is an award for the best Base Chaplain in the Air Force. Tho Al didn't win the award it was still quite an honor as SAC is the largest command in the Air Force.

Al is teaching in the Music Dept. at Yuba College to get his credential in California. He is singing in the last concert in the series presented at the college in January.

Our Christmas cards brought some most welcomed notes. Frank and Jean Clarahan Bratton are enjoying their move to New England from Minnesota and live at 40 West Main St., Avon, Conn. (P.O. Box 544). Their son, Dan, is at Rochester Institute of Technology and their older daughter, Anne, is teaching in Westwood High School near Boston and lives in Cambridge. Chris is at home and a sophomore in High School. They hope to take her to Williamsburg while she's still young enough to travel with her family.

Marion Barba writes that they had a great Homecoming weekend as it was then that they celebrated Bonnie's engagement to Bruce Petersen of Washington and Iowa whom they all love. Now she's knee-deep in wedding preparations for June. Also—Margaret, their younger daughter, is on cloud 9 as she was elected secretary-treasurer of the freshman class at The College.

Fran Grodecoeur notes that she's still busy travelling. She saw Barbara Waistcoat Carter while on a Buffalo trip. They live in a charming farm house filled with antiques.

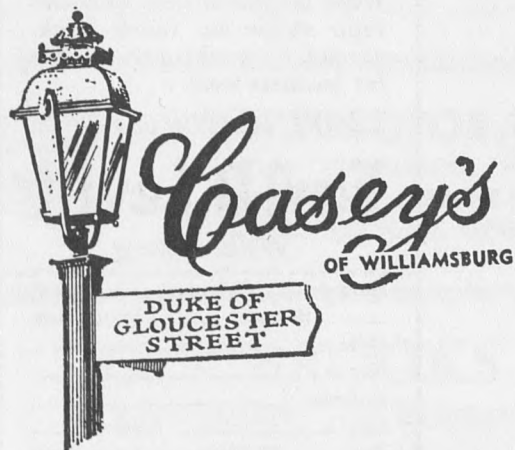

A card from Rosa Ellis Long reports about their family. Jaquie is enjoying Russell Sage College and is on Dean's list in Sociology. Bill 16, hopes to visit Russia this summer. Mike is sophomore in Technical High School and Bob graduates from 8th grade in June. Her husband is back skiing and playing tennis so has recovered from his heart attack. Rosa spends "her all" for Girl Scouts and finds it a real challenge and fun.

Yvonne Johnson Jenkins says that Kathy graduates from William and Mary in June, Jeanne want to transfer at the end of this year, and Bruce is progressing beautifully at Vanguard School.

Bobby Milligan Molyneux writes from Dansville, N. Y., that her '62" son started at Alfred University this year and she's gone back to the Guidance Office in the High School because she found herself "talking to the walls."

Hope Hunt White says they're still at Ft. Meade. Their son, John, graduates from the Citadel and will be commissioned in the Regular Army. He's covering himself with honors—DMS Outstanding Cadet at Summer Camp and Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. Geoff is playing Virginia Brenn Stelle and children accompanied her husband, Dick, other coaches, wives and children to Pasadena for the Indiana University—USC Rose Bowl football game. Dick is on the athletic staff at Indiana. Their team put up a good fight before losing to USC.

We had a very happy New Year's Eve with the Garretts and most of their family here for dinner. Their daughter, Terry, was away for her first Christmas as she's in Chicago at the United Airlines Training center for Airline Hostesses.

Things here are mostly back to normal after a rather confused holiday. In February I shall be flying to Knoxville to be with Bambi after No. 2 grandchild is born. We're all very excited about the coming event.

I do so appreciate hearing from each of you and do hope the New Year will bring letters from more and more of you.

Our off-spring seem to dominate the news in this letter, and that's fine—let us hear from more of you as to where your children are and what they are doing.

Ruth Rapp Taylor writes that their son Rob has recently married to a Pi Phi. He will be Air Force bound in June, having been deferred to get his Masters at the University of Southern California. Bruce is a freshman at the University of California at Los Angeles. Last March the Thayers drove 8000 miles through all of Mexico, as far as the road went in Yucatan, and then by a little boat to Isla Mujeres in the Caribbean. They found Mexico tremendously interesting and exciting, and the people were friendly and delightful.

Peggy Peck Latham's daughter Sue was married in December and will be living in Pensacola, Florida for several months while her new husband attends the Naval Officers' Flight Navigation School. Daughter Nancy is at Knox College as a Junior and Steve is a High School sophomore. The Lathams recently sold their country house where they had lived for a number of years but Ralph still has a project—a new vacation house near their present home.

Betty Blair Hilton writes from Toronto that she recently attended a National Council of Churches meeting in Detroit as a representative from Canada. Their older daughter is a senior, and their older son a freshman at the University of Toronto. They have a daughter in High School and one in the 6th grade.

Ginny Markell Brown's son is in the Navy, stationed in Morocco; their older daughter is at West Virginia University, and is engaged to be married; and their younger daughter is a senior in High School.

Jane Scofield Middleton's news was rain-smudged, but I did manage to decipher that one of their children was at the University of Maine.

Both Ella Dickerson Hurt and Kay Hoover Dew wrote that they were back in Williamsburg for Homecoming, and enjoyed seeing many of their friends from both our class and the class of 1942.

We congratulated Jim Davis for his recent promotion from vice president and secretary of the Bank of Delaware, to vice president in charge of the banking department. Jim is also director of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce, and a member of its executive committee. Their Christmas card, with a picture of the family today and ten years ago, shows that the Davises have borne up well—they look just great. And they have three fine looking teen-agers.

Franklin L. Clark of Cartersville, Ga. writes that his bride of 26 years, Marie Bogue, '40, are back in the Southland. He Kitty Britton Norton of Richmond, Va. writes that son, Dave, married last August is a law student at the University of Virginia; daughter, Wendy, is a freshman at Sweet Briar College; and son, Rick is in Junior High. In November I made a quick trip with Bill to Cleveland and while there managed to chat briefly on the phone with Kay Butterfield Emmert ('42) and to visit, also briefly, Dot Lindquist Swan. Both the Emmerts and the Swans are boating enthusiasts and both Kay and Dot are working. Kay is a substitute teacher, and Dot helps out in her Doctor-husband's office. The Swans daughter, a Pi Phi at Lawrence University is being married this summer. Their son is a sophomore at the University of Cincinnati.

The twenty-fifth reunion was an outstanding success for all who attended. Old friends began to gather on Thursday evening with exchange of news and pictures to the wee hours. On Friday many enjoyed catching up with news of the college and a tour of the new campus conducted by Jim Kelly, the Alumni Secretary.

A new program for alumni in the form of seminars conducted by members of the faculty was appreciated by many. I attended the one presented by the Philosophy Department exploring the new theology declaring the death of God. Everyone agreed this was a welcomed bit of intellectual stimulus.

Our thanks to the Alumni Association for the delicious reunion dinner. The program for the evening was presented by our President, Malcolm Sullivan. This was the first reunion for Sully, who came from Chicago with his attractive wife.

Chet Baker started a roll call of the Class of 1942. Chet has been living in Williamsburg, except for five years in the Army, since he came as a freshman in 1938. He is a lawyer and is always around to welcome returning alums.

Doris Berg-Johnsen Kuhl received the prize for the most children, six, and she seemed the least changed—still blond and beautiful.

Joe Brichter was gracious with an invitation to visit him at Virginia Beach.

Connie Curtis Laws took time out from her busy schedule as a teacher at Norfolk Academy to attend the Homecoming activities.

Eleanor Ely Mackey is active in civic affairs among which is the Presidency of the United Nations Association in Hutchinson, Kansas. She had no mike fright as she has been taking a speech course and her husband runs a radio station where she helps out with program planning.

Jane Fergusson Perkins came from Massachusetts with enthusiasm for the college as her daughter graduated from William and Mary last year. She has a great capacity for remembering classmates and events from twenty-five years past.

Mildred Anne Hill Fisher and Ed Fisher were a familiar couple coming from Richmond to meet old friends. Ed has worked with many associations connected with health and medicine in Virginia and has been nationally recognized for his direction of the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care.

Anne ("Bunny") Fitzhugh White left her job as an art supervisor in Pittsburgh schools to make her second Homecoming.

Paul Gantt would be considered one of the outstanding alumni from this class with many honors as a lawyer, author and lecturer. He celebrated our reunion by wearing a silver tie to the dinner. The next day someone remarked that he was wearing a gold tie—looking forward to the fiftieth reunion, no doubt!

Bernie Goldstein added his humor to the gay weekend. He works with the Virginia State Department of Rehabilitation and offered to be of assistance to anyone who needed rehabilitating.

Two of the group are now high school principals, Bill Goodlow in Richmond and Don Griffin in Norfolk.

Dot Griffin Williams teaches sociology in Suffolk High School.

Dot Hogshire Harper enjoys civic work in Norfolk.

Claire Hulcher McMullan has four daughters who keep her busy but she must be doing some traveling for she told me the lovely material for her dress was bought in Bermuda.

Another Richmonder, Foster Jennings, is a Certified Public Accountant of some note.

Lucile ("Wogs") Jennings is a successful Real Estate Broker in Kingsport, Tennessee and a busy traveler.

One of the most outstanding couples were Art and Jinny Keeney. Both are successful doctors and they have three children.

Margaret Kelly Dunham came from Boston where her two children keep her busy with scouting and trailering.

Captain Vince Lascara is now stationed in Pennsylvania. Navy life seems to have agreed with him as he has changed very little except for a touch of grey. He and Betty have two boys and two girls.

The class should get lots of legal advice as there were several lawyers. Burt Morewitz was one of that number now living in Hampton, Va.

Harlie Masters received the prize for the most grandchildren, four. He and his wife, Marie, welcomed anyone who would be traveling in Pennsylvania in the Phoenixville area. They also have a daughter in her junior year at William and Mary.

The prize for the greatest sense of humor should go to Mack Moncure who says he is a good old fashioned country lawyer in Stafford County.

Beatrice Monell Cole was most enthusiastic about her many activities which include assisting her husband, an orthodontist, sponsoring musicians for the symphony, judging flower arrangements as a National Judge and maintaining four homes and two fleets of boats in the New York area.

Charlotte Mooers Stevens was most modest about her many accomplishments among which is a full time job as a teacher of English at the Collegiate School in Richmond.

Nat Nichols Pearson was awarded a prize for coming the greatest distance for Homecoming. One incentive being a visit to her most attractive daughter who is a sophomore at William and Mary.

It was good to know that this Phi Beta Kappa is working in the California School system.

Pat Nichols Curcru was a most gracious hostess and greeter for the reunion class. Her enthusiasm was inspiring and her beaming from the rostrum as vice-president of the class was most welcomed. Pat has a son who is a graduate of William and Mary, married to a William and Mary girl, and she has one grandson.

Jean Outland Chrysler lives in New York and has enjoyed cataloging over 20,000 entries for an art museum which has been established by her husband.

Nancy Parker is a microbiologist and declared that the class seemed to be well preserved.

Frances Poarche Langston won the prize for being married the longest.

Edith Rathbun Bell teaches high school in Brunswick County, and aren't they lucky to have a William and Mary Phi Beta Kappa? One of her three daughters is a freshman at William and Mary.

Good to see Colonel Ben Read back from his third active participation in war. He returned from Vietnam this summer. He and Fran had the hard luck of having an accident on the way to attend the reunion dinner. No one was hurt. Their daughter is a senior at William and Mary. Ben is now serving on the Joint Chief of Staff at the Pentagon.

John Rinklin said he felt no older than he did in 1942 and he looked just the same. Life in New York seems to agree with him and his family of five children.

Nat Rogers Mabry was another alum to have a freshman daughter at William and Mary.

Jerry Rose, a little greyer than the 1942 annual shows, is a dentist in Alexandria, Va.

From time to time we hear from the Robbins twins, Sam and Bob, as Class Agents. It was good to see them back on campus, also a little grey but still suave and personable.

Ann Seward Lawlor is librarian in Richmond schools and has a daughter on Broadway.

Dick Simonson is retired from the Air Force and is now Executive Director of the William and Mary Foundation. He has a daughter in her junior year at William and Mary.

Betty Smith Elliott reminded us of the college Varsity shows. She is busy in Raleigh, N. C. appearing on a daytime show for women over WRNL-TV.

Helen Talle Koteen was awarded a prize for being the latest married. She is an Art Instructor at Marjorie Webster Junior College in Washington, D. C.

Mary Triplett Garland has a daughter in the Freshman Class at William and Mary.

Cleo Tweedy Stuart has been lost for years, but I think she got straight with the Alumni office this year. Her husband has retired from the Army and they have located in Long Island where she teaches physical education.

Annette Warren Sirmon should be awarded for having done the greatest amount of good for her fellow man. She has been a worker in child welfare for the past twenty-five years. She lived in Alaska for a while where she met her husband. They are now located in Alexandria, Va.

Bill Way came from the hills of western Pennsylvania to join the celebration. He is in the office supply business.

Regina Williams is a bachelorette and a dental assistant in Norfolk, Va.

Colonel James L. Creekman, Jr. of Eatontown, N. J. is Director of Electronics Intelligence in the Army Electronics Command. He received the Legion of Merit for "exceptionally meritorious conduct" in his duty as Deputy Director of the Defense Language Institute in Washington prior to his assignment to Fort Monmouth. He and his wife live on the post and have two sons, Jim, a junior at the University of Virginia and John, a student at Monmouth Regional High School.

Sid Wein is a general suregon in Passaic, New Jersey.

As Gus Winder put it, "the last shall be first." He works for RCA in New Jersey.

This is the roll call for the class reunion. I am sure the group enjoyed this gathering of the clan for the class of 1942. In most cases our classmates were a little greyer, a little heavier, and a lot wiser. Those who were absent were missed. The next milestone will be the Thirtieth. Make your plans!

Homecoming was later (but greater—or as great!) Prayers were answered as to the weather—especially for those hula girls on the floats—tho' not for the football enthusiasts.

The dance, at the convention hall—room of the Lodge, was elegant. The band was aided by Steve Lenzi leading the '42 football team in song. Among them were Ramsey, Vanderwyhe, and Freeman.

Speaking of singing, we almost talked Bill Smith, Johnny Entwistle, and Joe Markowitz into doing "Brush Your Teeth." Remember it? I don't know which of those three looked younger. Their wives looked great too. You're welcome, Marilyn! It was really fun watching the Homecoming parade near Smitty, Joe and Johnny. Quite a few of their old girls' daughters were on the floats, and they were trying to spot them. Jean Schoenwolf Preston was quite proud to see her daughter, Merle, the freshman, in Homecoming Court—I'll brag on the Tri-Delts with the Queen and first place in floats!

We rented the Brick House Shop with Ruthie Weimer Tiller and K. T. and were joined by Fran L. Brunner and Bob, and Joan Kable Griffith and Max. The Brunners, Griffiths, and Williams seventeen-year-old daughters came along and had a ball together (also interviews). They may never get into the College, but they had six extra boys for the Saturday night dance—no small achievement. There were lots of high school senior football prospects there for the weekend. Incidentally, I don't believe that bright girls aren't cute. I've never seen so many attractive girls. Nancy Outland Chandler's freshman daughter, Deal, tells me the boys are "great," too.

Jane and Bill Anderson came up with children from Virginia Beach for the day. Remember Betty Smith (in all those plays)? She's a T.V. gal in Raleigh, N. C., has a daughter at St. Mary's, and is really attractive. I particularly enjoyed meeting Rick Lapolla's brother, Paul, (new on the Board.) I'm sorry '44's member wasn't elected. Do you all pay your alumni dues, and did you vote? Please don't be prejudiced—against women.

The seminars for alums were very interesting. The one I attended, "Is God Dead?" was very lively. We were such a vocal group the Prof didn't have a chance to tell us much.

Saw Gervais Wallace Brekke and Karl, Gladys Wallace Goldsmith and Tarry, Helen Marshall and her husband, Ginny Gould Swinke and Ray, Helen Talle Koteen and Bob, Connie Curtis Laws and Pay, the Foster boys and wives. Dixon's a Judge! Dan Blocker, Herb Young, and Marion Pate Macon (and Jimmy and baby) were some of the Williamsburg folk returning. The Donalds (Lois Spartley), Kings, Hubbards (Mary Alsop), and Mary Hamner and her husband were back having a great time. These William and Mary people "hold up real well" as one person put it.

Marge Gibbs didn't get there, but sent a newsy Christmas card. She'd seen Pris Schumacher Beringer and Marshall, Jane Rhone Tabin and Jim at Jane's beautiful home near Princeton. There too were Joe and Mitzi Markowitz. Pris's husband is a dean at a New York University. Their son is a sophomore at the College. Jane has a son at Rutgers, one at Hun School, and a fourteen month old! In her spare time, she runs a bookstore for her father in Princeton and dabbles in real estate. Whatta gal!

Bebe Nelson Judge writes from New Jersey that she is teaching nursery school, going to night school, summer school and "leading the square life to the hilt." It sounds delightful.

Dorie Wiprud Diggs writes from New Jersey that her Martha will be a freshman next year. Congratulations.

Jean Bulette Boggs writes that she and Larry had a trip to the Middle East last April and May and this was a follow-up of one to Spain, Portugal, Gibraltar and Morocco in October 1965. She says she "got sand in her shoes" while she was an assistant editor of Holiday Magazine in 1951-52 and while they lived in Europe for 18 months in 1952 and '53. They have two children, Randall and David eager 9th graders, and Elizabeth, a happy 4th grader.

Some of you characters please send me some news.

We've heard from . . . Gloria Gruber Blakelock. Husband, Ralph, was transferred back to Dayton, Ohio. New address—6407 Imperial Woods Road, Dayton. They flew to Hawaii in November and report that son, Randy, is a fourth classman at the Air Force Academy and Bonnie is a senior at the University of New Mexico. Gloria was alum rush chairman for the Thetas in their California area and Bonnie the rush chairman for the Delta Gamma chapter at her school. Mother and daughter, therefore, rushed against each other! The Blakelocks were host to Abner Pratt while still in California—he was on an inspection trip for the government. They plan a trip back to California in March to attend the Assistance League Ball at Santa Anita and Gloria is now involved in organizing an A. L. in the Dayton area.

. . . Kay Bartlett. Sympathy from the entire class on the loss of their fifteen year old son. Kay's oldest daughter attends a Colorado college and the three younger children are still at home.

. . . Mary Schafhirt Barnes. Husband, Jack (soon to become a brigadier general) is advisor to the commanding general of the Vietnamese 2nd Corps. The Barnes attended his 25th year reunion at West Point last June and celebrated their silver wedding anniversary. Their son, an Annapolis graduate, elevated them to grandparent status during the year.

. . . Sunny Manewal Murray. Son, Ken, is a Dartmouth student and Leslie, their daughter, is taking honors courses in her high school and continues her avid interest in horses.

. . . Bette Freeman Fee. Moved into a larger home in San Antonio recently.

. . . Ruth Schmitz Kerns. Began work on her masters in library science at the Indiana University—Purdue regional campus and is assistant librarian at the Indiana Institute of Technology. Daughter, Ginny, at William and Mary, pledged Kappa, to Ruth's delight.

. . . Lynn Bell Andrews. Children, Jenny and Lamar, are students at the University of Alabama and the youngest, Fran, is still at home. They reside at 4328 Old Brook Trail, Birmingham, Ala. 35243.

. . . Dinny Lee McAlinden. The biggest news she and Joe had several days before the Christmas holidays was the doctor's "all's well with Mary Anne." Their young daughter graduated from a cast to splints months ago for correction of a hip problem—but now needs nothing more than special shoes for a short while. Everyone is overjoyed with her marvelous improvement. Dinny continues to be a photography pro in their Hopewell, N. J. area.

. . . Flossie Metius Johnson. Their oldest son, Russ, is a Muhlenberg freshman; Doug, tremendously talented in the music field; and Cindy, the apple of Flossie's eye.

. . . Mary Jane Chamberlain Howard and her family visited the Bloms last fall en route to enroll their oldest son in Princeton. They vacationed at Fort Lauderdale during the Christmas holidays and attended the college swim forum. All their children are championship swimmers.

. . . The Bloms vacationed in Illinois and Virginia last summer and traveled to New England country during October.

We've also heard from several other '45 members but take the liberty of keeping that news for the next Gazette issue. A big thank you to all who provided your class secretaries with information for our '45 letter!

Christmas came early for me this year—word from a few heretofore silent classmates!

I want to thank George Brunk for writing; he is now the Dean of the Eastern Mennonite Seminary, Harrisonburg, Va. After graduating from William and Mary in 1946 he received his Doctors Degree in Theology at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond. He has traveled around the world recently in his work, and attended the Mennonite World Conference in Amsterdam, Holland. Now that he has returned to Virginia, he hopes to keep in closer touch with our class.

A Chicago newspaper had this charming item in a social column—Mary Baker Flynn was being treated to a birthday lunch by her WBBM-TV's Ace Newsman, Fahey Flynn, at the Pick Congress Irish Tipperary Room. On the menu was the delectable offering, "Mary Flynn Stew," an old Irish recipe. So what do you think they both ordered?

A pleasant surprise came from an almost neighbor—Frank Davis. He is an Account Executive at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith in Toledo, Ohio. It's nice to know people read the Gazette and then let us hear from them.

In regard to my request for news of participants of the Work-Study Program, I got a most appreciated letter from Bettie Marie Ellett Lile concerning her brother, Edwin Willard Ellett (Ned). After leaving William and Mary, Ned was in the Coast Guard, continued his schooling at V.P.I. and received his degree in Veterinary Medicine at the University of Georgia. He has since taught at Oklahoma State University and is now Head of the Small Animal Clinic at Texas A&M College. He has written many articles for publication in professional journals and college textbooks, and has appeared on programs for Veterinarian meetings in various parts of the United States. Aside from this professional success, he is married to the former Lois Way of Nebraska and they have a boy aged three.

Betty Marie gave us some personal news also—her daughter is 17 and a senior in high school. She must resemble her mother as Carole was a finalist in the Miss Teenage Arkansas Contest. Betty Marie and her husband are building a new home in Little Rock that is a copy of Raleigh Tavern outside, following Williamsburg authenticity as much as possible throughout. Her mother, planning to live near on the same lot, is building a copy of the Brush-Everard House—so it sounds like an attractive project there.

One of my Barrett Dormitory friends from Summer School was a Mary Baldwin gal named Bettie Lee Reynolds. She has just moved to 2306 Danbury Lane, Hudson, Ohio 44236, as her husband is Vice President at Roadway Express. She is new to the snow belt, so if there are any William and Mary people looking for company or alumni support, give her a call.

The Christmas card from Annie B. Bruce Saunders and Dick tells of a wonderful European tour this summer while Dick attended the International Textile Machinery Show in Switzerland. Beverly Bose and Fred Deans write from Roanoke that their daughter is a junior at Radford College and their younger son is enjoying a small Bluefield college. Brenda Cahill Godfrey, from Gorham, Me., sent pictures of a beautiful big house that contains five teenagers! Their older daughter is pleased with her first year at the University of Toronto.

A brief review of the work done by the Fred Frechette Motion Picture Productions sounds most interesting. Pennsylvania Railroad films, Appalachian Power Company productions, work for Presbyterians, Blue Cross, and many more, have kept Fred exceptionally busy this year. His film, Double Entry, done for the United Givers Fund of Richmond, won a Chris Award at the Columbus Film Festival. But I bet if any of you War Workers would drop him a note, he'd be happy to receive it.

An early warm Spring to you all!

Homecoming Weekend appeared to be a great success this year in spite of the fact that it was later in the fall than usual. Since our class picture was taken after a number of us had departed for the football game, it does not show the good turnout which we had for the occasion.

Although I know I missed seeing several people, please forgive, Tom and I did get to all events, and here is a brief rundown of some of the happenings my memory recalls. Across the hall in our motel, we had the pleasure of visiting with Jackie (Armor) Barnes, Millie (Draper) Lipps, and Tina (Jones) Carr, whose daughter is a freshman at the College. Down the hall a bit we ran into Julia (Nowitzky) Dill and Mary Schutze.

At the social hours we really had a grand time. Betty Jane (Taylor) Hopkins left her orchards in Indiana to join us. Dulcie (Daniels) Valusek, Jean (Lamb) O'Neil, Margie (Oak) Jolly, Jean McCreight) Clarke and husband C. E., and Jane McDowell were a few of the "beautiful people" with whom we enjoyed talking. At our class dinner we met Marthann (Phillips) Mileur and Edith Horn who were staying at the home of Nancy (Miller) Johnston who is fortunate enough to live in Williamsburg.

Saturday glissened with sunlight and gaiety. The parade was inspiring: luncheon under the tents, delicious; the game, stimulating; and then the really big social hour. Through the sea of faces we found our Williamsburg contingent. Muriel (Ingram)

Mayfield, Helen Strickler and husband, and Carolyn (Thomas) McGregor who is a lovely Williamsburg hostess. We also spied Henry Shook, Aubrey Mason, and Beau Chapell representing the gentlemen of the class. Space does not permit me to enumerate the wonderful friends we met from classes above and below ours, but they were none the less delightful.

At the dinner dance that night our scintillating table was composed of Jane Ann (Segnitz) Kinne and her fascinating photographer husband, Russ, whose company we enjoyed all weekend; Nancy (Easley) Cox, whom I have been anxious to see for years, and Fletcher who were accompanied by the Ken Goulds from Richmond; and Marilyn (Woodberry) Brown and her charming surgeon husband, Pep.

Ah, happily found my notes after relying on my somewhat dim memory for the above. Dan Goldenberg has his own business in Massachusetts specializing as a food broker in industrial soap and chemicals. He sees Zella (Loew) Mervis and Stan who is a patent attorney for the Polaroid Company. The Garland Isaacs from Richmond were enjoying the weekend as well as Eleanor Weber Ellis from St. Louis, Mo. I saw Fran (Moore) Carter's name on the guest list, but never did see her personally.

Clever girl that I am, I waited until this issue to announce my retirement as official Class Secretary. I like to go out in a "blaze of glory." Reason one: a dirth of news to print. Reason two: substitute teaching in the Mathematics Department at high school takes a great deal of my time. Perhaps some kind soul will take up the fallen banner and keep our class on record. Please write the Alumni Office if you are so inclined. It has been my pleasure, and I heartily thank all of you who have kept me informed over the years.

In closing let me express the feelings of our reunion group in a short phrase—Bert Rance, where were you?

There's very little news of the class of 1948 this time, even with Christmas and the annual greetings from some of you.

The Rev. Philip S. Lambdin has been named minister of Christian Education at Messiah Lutheran Church in South Williamsport, Pa. where he will not only be in charge of the schools of the congregation, but will also assist in the total ministry of the church. A graduate of Hamma Divinity School in Springfield, Ohio, Philip was ordained in May 1952. He was formerly assistant pastor at St. Luke Church, Silver Spring, Md.; then became pastor of Anville-Hill Parish of the Central Pennsylvania Synod; and later served as pastor of Epiphany Church, Harrisburg.

Christmas greetings this year came from Ed Griffin, who is still enjoying life in Germany with his wife Alison and daughters Amy and Jan; Gloria and Richard Jacker in New York City; and Ruth Richmond and Jim Austin in Tampa, Fla. Ruth writes that they often see Elaine O'Hare and Paul West who also live thereabouts and have two children the same age as theirs.

March 1968

Greetings also came from Norma Burgess and Jim Schrader in Hampton, Va., and Marie Stevens and Surry Harrison in Newport News, Va. Marie had news of Margaret Smithwick Clay, Marty Hoffman Scott, and Jane Bryan Alverson. Jane's 16-year old daughter, April, won a National Sewing Contest last year—the prizes included a new car, fur stole, and cash!

Fletcher Cox, Jr. of Richmond, Va., editor of Rural Virginia magazine, has been elected President of the Associated Business Editors of Virginia.

Allan R. Jones of Alexandria, Va., a former reporter for The Richmond Times-Dispatch, who is now on the staff of U. S. Senator William B. Spong, Jr., received a national award for reporting and writing in the property and casualty insurance field.

The Christmas mail brought the following news: Elaine Campton (Baker) wrote from Ankara, Turkey, where they are halfway through their current three year tour with the USIS that they are enjoying that country tremendously and have been using every opportunity to take trips. Jim and Elaine and their two boys have been camping in many parts of Turkey this year and in addition had a marvelous trip through Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Austria, southern Germany and northern Italy.

Lou Hostetter (Winder) and husband Gus were in Williamsburg for Homecoming (Gus's 25th) but didn't see any familiar faces from the class of '49. Their daughter Elaine is in first grade now.

Lynn Graves (Whitaker) writes that their oldest boy is now 17, is very sports-minded and has recently acquired his driving license. Lynn and Bill also have a teen-age daughter and another boy in third grade. They have recently built a vacation cabin not far from their home.

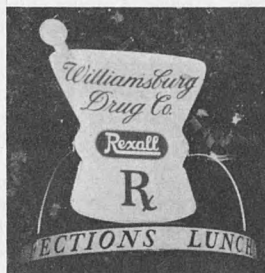

Mary Wilcox (Rietman) sent lots of news with her Christmas card. All of their children are in school now and she and Jerry are enjoying dancing lessons. She keeps in touch with Joan Stout (Neighbors) who lives in Arlington. Joan and her husband have recently been on a trip to San Francisco and Las Vegas. Joan had seen Ginger Hawkins (Smith) and her family this past summer and also hears from Tuga Wilson (Clements) who lives in Pittsburgh.

Jackier Freer (Clark) and Dale have a daughter who's now a sophomore at William and Mary. Bonnie Green (Loflin) and family of five children live in Rye, N. Y.

Stellie Tankard is going to graduate school full time and teaching two classes besides. She and a friend spent most of last summer on a Mediterranean trip. She especially enjoyed seeing the Greek islands and ruins from various periods of history. Before returning home, they joined an archeological cruise which stopped at a number of ports on the Black Sea.

Edith Sherman (MacDonald) writes that their life has been hectic but fun since the birth of their baby girl last March. They have two teen-age boys and a ten year old daughter too and Edith keeps busy juggling everybody's schedule.

Virginia Parthenis (Elmendorf) sent me an article from the Pittsburg Press announcing the promotion of Jack Hoey to General Sales Manager of Peoples Natural Gas Company. The Hoeyes live with their family of four children in suburban Pittsburgh.

William Jolly, who has been an instructor in the Evening College and Management Center of the Richmond Professional Institute, has been named Director of Personnel of the Virginia Employment Commission. He is continuing as a part-time instructor at RPI. The Jollys live in Petersburg and have a teen-age son and daughter and a younger son.

Many thanks to all who remembered to send me a card.

Had a nice letter from Jan Oblender Atwater. She and Howe had recently seen Pat Jones Warner and Bill in New York. The next week they met Eegie Grant Hart and Ed and had quite a time reminiscing. As you may know Obi's daughter Charlotte is a freshman at William and Mary this year.

A card from Bob Harper and Barbara giving news that they are in Columbia, S. C. Bob is Process Superintendent of the new nylon plant in Camden (DuPont). He said Bob Massey also works there.

Ruth Barnes Chalmers sent word that Dave has been a Vice President of Oxy Petroleum. They expect to be in Europe for a year then perhaps in California.

Liz and Bob Shuman are still in Rockville, Md. Liz said they got together with Skippy Deavers Allen and Binx and Patty and Lou Lutz.

Nancy Kurtz Falk and George have moved in a new house but still live in the Washington area. They see Nick Dillard Dewing and Jay quite often. Nicky and Jay will be in Newport for nine months while Jay is in school. Nancy also sees Eddie King who has opened another antique shop and Carol Roman Gardner who is active in Politics. They saw Buddy and Lulu Jones and Jean Canoles Bruce and Jack at the beach last summer.

Skippy Beecher Scrymgeour and Bruce are having Christmas together this year. Bruce is back from the Middle East and awaiting orders.

Marcia and Kirk Kirkpatrick are in Atlanta. They like it much better than when Kirk was in Viet Nam last year. In fact they like Atlanta.

Anne Waring Brown and Linc are busy in Springfield. Linc is traveling all over for Page Communications. We are hoping for a return visit this year.

Had a long note from Blair MacKenzie from Nigeria. They had quite an eventful year. They were transferred to Lagos in August (the capitol) so travelers take note. Wish space allowed me to say more about it.

Joan Meadors Hawkins and Buddy are still very busy in Ohio. Joan is teaching and doing a thousand other things. Seems like none of us ever have time to sit down and take a deep breath.

Joanne and Dick Scofield are all settled in their newly remodeled house close to Lake Erie. It sounds like a grand place.

Also had cards from Janet Pierce Waller, Harriet Burden Mathews, Woody Wayland and Millie Johnson Woodling and Pete.

This fall we went to Los Angeles to the William and Mary Alumni cocktail party. I was a stranger, Finally ran into Obi Root and Mim. We had seen them at the beach last summer. Then we ran into Mary Belford (forgive me for not remembering your married name). Mary said Martha Belford Root had gotten herself into some volunteer deal and couldn't get up for the party. We hope to see more people we know at the next one so you in California come on out.

Herb Chandler has been named regional underwriting manager in the Detroit office of Royal-Glove Insurance. Herb has been with Globe since 1951.

Kenneth E. Schmalenberger has been named Branch Manager of the Philadelphia sales office of Geigy Dyestuffs, a division of Geigy Chemical Corporation. Ken lives in Medford Lakes, New Jersey with his wife Helen and three children.

Robert C. Fraser of Baltimore, Md. has recently been appointed Director of Public Relations for Martin Marietta Corporation.

Many thanks for all your notes. Now lets have a different crew come forth with lots of news this spring.

Ed Grimsley, a columnist and special writer for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, spoke to our woman's club in October, and his speech was as clever, humorous, and interesting as his newspaper columns are. He and I had a chat afterwards. He has recently written a book, Coming Through Awry, which includes material taken from his newspaper articles. He is president of the Richmond professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism society. He has won several awards for his coverage of urban affairs. On January 6, 1968, he received the award for first place in the column writing competition for metropolitan dailies which was presented at a banquet of the Virginia Press Association during their annual winter convention being held in Richmond.

Paul Webb has compiled a 175-88 record in the eleven years he has been the basketball coach at Randolph-Macon College in Ashland.

Peery Lewis, better known to us as "Bitsy," has been appointed vice president of Data Processing by the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company. He joined Boston Mutual in 1965 as director of electronic data processing. He lives in Weston, Mass., at 18 Tyler Rd. with his wife and two children. He is a Fellow of the Life Office Management Institute.

Major Robert B. Barton received the U. S. Air Force Commendation Medal at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, for meritorious service as a weapons system logistics officer at Johnston Island, Calif. He is now at Wright-Patterson as an operations staff officer with the Air Force Logistics Command which provides equipment services to insure that all U. S. missiles and aircraft are constantly ready. He is married to the former Joan R. Blois from Canada.

Roberta Lamont (Redding) '52 and Chuck live in Falls Church, Va., where he stays busy as Community Relations Director for the C. & P. Telephone Co. of Washington. They had a wonderful trip to Expo in June and spent the rest of their vacation motoring through Quebec, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia. I got to talk with them a few minutes at Homecoming as Bobbi had come back for her reunion.

Bev and I took our eleven year old son Tom with us to Homecoming and left our six and seven year old daughters with my parents in Wakefield. Our day began early as we met some alumni friends we had known when we lived in Franklin and Wakefield and visited with them and others while we waited for the Jamestown Ferry and crossed the river. We parked and registered at the new Phi Beta Kappa Hall on Jamestown Road, walked to see the parade, and then showed Tom the Campus. We stopped by the music department which is now in the renovated old Phi Bete and saw "Pappy" Fehr. We had hoped to get the Alumni meeting but never made it because we saw too many old friends along the way.

In spite of the wind we got to eat our box lunch outside with the other returning alumni in front of the new Phi Bete. Bev had attended the University of Richmond so he enjoyed seeing them win the football game! After the game we enjoyed visiting and going to dinner with my sister Sue Reese (Glasco) '59, her husband Gene (has a M.E. from the College and is now principal of the Kempville, Va. Elementary School near Va. Beach where they live), and a cousin of ours.

Here are some of the people we saw and talked with during the day: Jackie Jones (Myers) '52 and Averette; Mary K. Langan '52; Ebbie Shelton (Rice) and husband; Wendell Haynie '52 and wife; Ellie Seiler (Flagg) '50 and Jay '50; Barb Campbell (Borst) '50 and Bob; Bev Simonton (Kelly) '52 and Jim; Jane Dill (Gleason); Betty Hicks (Wagner) and Allan; Ann Litts (Lucas) and Bill; Jeanne Ann Harrup (Cogle) '50, Dennis, '50 and their two daughters; Ed Extract; and Harrison Tyler '49 plus quite a few of the alumni we had known in Franklin.

You should try to get back to Homecoming because you would enjoy seeing your college friends again and the always changing campus. We have gone back enough for my husband who did not attend college there to feel at home now and enjoy seeing faces that are familiar instead of strange as they were when I first dragged him back! So here's hoping we'll see you at the next one and definitely four years from now at our 20th reunion.

My sophomore year roommate, Millie Johnson (Woodling), Pete, and their oldest child, Kerry, visited us a short while during the Christmas holiday. They were in Petersburg for the funeral of her father who had died suddenly while on a Christmas visit with his oldest daughter Alice in New York state. Millie and her family were traveling by air to Pennsylvania to be with Pete's family for the holiday when this happened. They left their younger son and daughter there and came on to Virginia. They are now back in Friendswood, Texas, where they live, and which is near where Pete works with

Alumni Gazette

NASA. Millie is looking forward to having her sister Alice who is also a graduate of the College, and her family live near her as Alice's husband has been transferred by his company to Houston which is near them.

Some of you answered my plea for mail for which I am thankful. I received a few Christmas cards and letters though most were from the old faithfuls, which I will share with you next time. I'm gradually learning to save a little mail for next time so that you will have something to read in each issue. You could change this if more of you would let me hear from you from time to time. Why not write to me in '68! Also, don't forget to contribute to the William and Mary Fund this year. Let's help meet the goal of our class.

Please, please excuse the absence of '52 news recently. I have been working for my husband's business (seven days a week . . . quite a taskmaster!) and only now am trying to catch up. This column will feature brief highlights of our classmates' recent doings, with some of the "Freshest Advices" saved for later.

Talented "Jeep" Friedman has been combining teaching at Bogota, N. J. High with his show biz engagements which have taken him world-wide and onto many T V shows. If you have not seen him on "Merv" or "Johnny C.," Jeep has an L P comedy record—believe it's done under the stage name of David Masters.

Next, a note from Jerry Patterson's dad telling us that Jerry is practicing dermatology in Royal Oak, Mich. and that he and Liz (Beard) have 3 children—Bruce, Beth and Dan.

Postcarding from France was Warren Windom who is a "gentleman farmer" in St. Francois, Grasse, and spends his summers in Spain. Warren has 2 children.

Pat Reeves has been named regional group insurance manager in Philadelphia for the American United Life Ins. Co. and we all wish him well.

Another new jobber is Dan Myers who has formed a 3-partner law firm in Manhattan, Kans. after getting his law degree from Kansas U. and serving as an administrative assistant and executive secretary to the Governor. Dan has 3 small Myrerses.

Pat Murphy Rowe married Lonnie Coulter, Dec. 3, 1966 and can be found in Easton, Pa. these days. Best wishes, Pat.

Lucky Jeanne Vester Olsen is spending her second year in the Netherlands where Ray has an assignment at the Hague.

Frances Anne Brown Stocking pens from Arcadia, Calif. about adding a foster daughter to her own Carol and Tom. And her brother, Dan Brown, is now practicing medicine in Williamsburg. Attention, ailing alums!

All Ann Arbor, Mich. citizens are proud of "Rusty" Davis Schumacher's role in helping her church obtain a home to provide temporary shelter for the homeless, while helping them to self-sufficiency. Many of our cities could follow this example.

Bobbe Lamont Redding still in Falls Church. Chuck is now General Public Relations Supervisor for Community Relations of the C. & P. Telephone Co. They have a son, Steve.

March 1968

A small typewritten un-authored note announces that John Barry is now in England completing a degree at Oxford.

Dickie Lewis now has a fellow barber in Fairfax. Haynie Trotter writes he is now practicing law there following two years of Army duty and three of law school.

Did your plea for Alumni donations from Bob Landen contain the same cartoon emphasizing his four children??? Hope all donated with a smile (and money)! Incidentally, Bob is now an Associate Professor and head of the History Department at Virginia Tech.

Gordon Mason is now a practicing ophthalmologist in Johnson City, Tenn., (where our Atlanta Falcons train).

Parke and Evelyn Moore Musselman and 3 children enjoy life in Bethlehem, Pa. where Parke is Credit and Consultant Manager at Bethlehem Fabricators Inc. Both are active in PTA, Scouts, etc. and Evelyn is halfway to her Masters at Lehigh.

Walt and Vi Marsland Raymond are now residing in the London suburb of Hampstead after being caught up in the exodus of American personnel from France.

To Bob and Peggy Blair Hackler in Anderson, Ind., please see first paragraph and many apologies!

Have a note that Genevra Gaskins Burgess has moved to Silver Springs, Md.

Also to be found in D. C. suburbia, is Marcia McClellan Eliff in Annandale. John has been appointed Secretary on the Board of Directors for W. T. Galliber & Bros. Inc.

Highlights from Edee Moser Buzzell's year of travel . . . '66 saw them in Puerto Rico, all over the U. S., Fontainebleau in France, London . . . you name it! In accompaniment were the little Buzzells, Susie, Bobby, Barbara and Billy, and Edee also mentioned having a Swedish "mother's helper." All are now at home in Wellesley, Mass.

Ron Barner is now Dean of Students at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, and is also Vice President for Student Affairs. The Barnes newsletter mentioned visiting Ralph and Madge Cushing Francis in Louisville and Jay and Marge Brown in D. C. Ron's duties and interests have also taken him to Tougaloo College in Mississippi, St. Louis University and back to the University of Iowa from whence he came. Both hold student seminars at their home and continue actively in church work and civil rights. Lisa and Tim have been joined by a foster sister from Hong Kong, adding to the enrichment of the Barnes family life.

How I envy Ken Livingstone—he has owned a sailplane since '64 and is now involved with Aviation Insurance Associates. He's also North American Representative for the Siren Co. of Versailles, France.

Bob Stone, on leave of absence from Drexel Institute in Philadelphia, is working toward his Ph.D. at Oklahoma State. Bob was lucky in obtaining a National Science Faculty Fellowship to help him toward his new degree. With all these advanced degrees being awarded our classmates, I'm beginning to feel somewhat backward!

You must have noted that our class agent, Bill Allison, was one of the candidates for the Society Board. He and wife, "Bobbie" Bowman, and their four children live in Wellesley, Mass. Bill is a vice president in the Boston office of Aubrey G. Langston and Company.

In June Dr. Raymond Kimbrough received the faculty promotion of Senior Research Chemist at Georgia Institute of Technology.

J. David Potts of Manila, Philippines was promoted to Major in the active U. S. Army Reserve. He and his wife, Adele are pleased that their tour of duty has been extended one year—until March 1969—in Manila.

Bill Harris writes that they moved into their new home in western Henrico County, Va.

Major Ernest Cooke is at Tan Son Nhut Air Base in Saigon until April to serve in the field of meteorological analysis. His wife and two children are at home in Omaha.

Caroline Young Petrequin and Scott have been busy remodeling their farmhouse in Bedford, Ohio. Scott travels for Mohawk Paper Mills mainly between Albany and Chicago and is very active in their Presbyterian Church. The Petrequins visited with Debbie Young Canfield and her family from Connecticut this last summer. Caroline has added that Martha Parker Stanley lives in Etters, Pa., Dot Smith Dashiell and four children are at Ft. Monroe, Va., while husband Jack is in Vietnam. The Jim Shatynskis and four children are in Dallas, Texas, where Jim is Grand Knight in the Knights of Columbus.

Emmy Ketterson Smith and husband, Dan, have three children and have moved to New Hampshire where Dan teaches at the University. The Smiths love the New England weather and have bought a lake house.

Carmen Romeo who is in Waynesboro, Va., mentioned a miniature summer reunion with the "Wally" Wilseys, the John Krogs, and Joyce Miller Tipton and her husband. Wally is with the United Fruit Company in Boston; the others with General Electric.

Ed and Ginnie Gary Lupton's Army duty in Honolulu will be completed this summer. Ed has been promoted to Lt. Colonel and flies with the Airborne Command Post. He has been to such places at Bangkok, Japan, Okinawa, Vietnam, and the Philippines. Thirteen-year-old Gary caught an octopus on his first deep scuba dive (60 feet).

Al and Marvie Walter Pacchioli are now living in the suburban Philadelphia area.

"Bebe" Fisher Arbuckle's husband, Bob, has been elected to the International Pony of America's Board of Directors.

Tyler Deierhoi, who received his Ph.D. at William and Mary, also got his Bachelor of Arts Degree at Richmond University, his Masters Degree and Ph.D. at Duke University and now is teaching History at the University of Chattanooga.

"Bobbie" Castle Kohin is an instructor of Physics at State College at Worcester, Mass.

Major Brian Kent has been transferred to the Office of Legislative Affairs in the Navy Department in Washington, D. C.

Dot Hagberg Bower wrote that her husband now is a full professor and has helped develop a new computer language and system. Dick taught last fall at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The Bowers in the spring visited St. Martin in the Dutch West Indies and last summer visited Expo via Bar Harbor with their three children.

The Philadelphia area was able to view the William and Mary Choir on television on Christmas Day. The program was excellent and the scenes of the campus reminiscent of such good years at school.

Christmas greetings came from Marilyn Zaiser Ott; "Shan" Duis Carico; Bev Simonton Kelly and Jim; Carol Myers Miffin; "Boots" Crovo Wickham; Bruce and Camille Grimes Henderson in Sao Paulo, Brazil; Jim and Barbara Schwartz Smith; Chris and "Cadsie" Forman Moe; and Anne Hines Fuller.

News was bountiful this past Christmas. It was grand to receive long, printed newsletters from some of you summing up a year's activities.

Bette and Bill Dunker are to remain North Carolina residents but they are moving back to Greensboro from Hickory. Bill's job, which is the reason, is with the North Carolina Hospital as Specialist for Automated Business Systems. Daughter, Jan, swam on the city team last summer, and has a love of horses and riding as well. The Dunks are planning a spring visit to Williamsburg, bringing Jan, who is 21 years old, and leaving two younger ones at home.

Another move for the Crenier's! Sandy and Pete and their two children have returned to an area where they had lived before; that is, the Los Angeles area. In July, Pete became Administrative Assistant to the Western Regional Manager of his company, which, we assume is still the Scott Paper Co. Before coming to Palos Verdes, they lived in Hawaii. They planned to be in Florida during December, and will do some family visiting on the same trip.

Anne and Reynolds Legge are still in Winchester and very much involved in civic affairs such as hospital auxiliary, Girl Scouts, historical society. Reynolds has put two years and hard work into the Powhatan School Board as President, but there were rewards of progress and accomplishment.

These moving people! The Miffins, Carol and Tom, have done it again. This time they have landed in southern California, and are living right on the ocean. The description of the view is unbelievable. They watch ocean liners and sailboats, see a view of Santa Monica and Santa Catalina and even far out islands 100 miles away when the weather's clear. The sights to see are no small attraction, either! Things like Marineland, Knotts Berry Farm, Disneyland, Sequoia and King's Canyon National Parks are a few. I hesitate to include the address for fear of a stampede.

The ever-faithful correspondence of the Barnes family is encouraging to a class secretary. Ron is now Vice President of Student Affairs at the University of North Dakota. Betsy and Ron host a discussion group meeting of students every other Sunday evening in their home. Discussion topics center mostly on social, moral and civic issues of the day. They are in the midst of activity and keep what sounds like an impossible schedule of commitments.

Margaret Bowdoin Hall is currently playing the supporting role of Sally Cato in the Broadway musical "Mame." She is formerly of Richmond, Virginia and has a lot of theatrical success to her credit.

William A. Brink in December was named Manager of Whitney Blake Company's newly formed electrical division. He and his wife, the former Barbara Crosset, and their two daughters, Sandy and Julia, live in North Haven, Conn.

Our own activities, have, in the past two years, widened in range and increased in number. My nine-year old has taken up violin with enthusiasm, while I spend more time with the church choir, and other church activities, and continue to be on the executive committee of the P.T.A.

Best wishes for a good year in 1968!

Rufus Gordon graduated from the Medical College of Virginia last June and won the National award in the American Medical Association student exhibit contest held in Los Angeles. He is interning at Mercy Hospital in Springfield, Ohio. Rufus is married to Jo Ann Abbott '57 and they have three children.

Otto Lowe is now with Goodbody and Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Ginny Hungerford Moore is living in Essexville, Mich., and she and Allen have four children, three boys and a girl. Ginny writes that her doctor husband has a very large general practice there. Ginny has become extremely active in the Bay City Players and has starred in Madwoman of Chailot and played a dumb blonde in Everybody Loves Opal.

Fred Malvin is now the Commanding Officer of the U.S. Naval Facility, San Salvador, Bahamas. The base deals mainly with oceanographic research and missile tracking.

Stan and Florence Bain have returned to Malaysia. They are in Kuching, Sarawak. They spent last summer in Seattle where Stan studied with the Summer Institute of Linguistics at the University of Washington.

Pat McClure Caplice is still in New Jersey, but has moved north to Ridgewood. Mike was promoted to Data Processing Headquarters in White Plains, N. Y. Pat writes that the whole family has joined the N. J.-N. Y. branch of the Vermont Green Mountain Hiking Club and nearly every weekend they go off on an 8 to 10 mile hike.

Barbara Coogan received her Masters in Guidance from the University of Virginia. She is teaching in Norfolk. On a vacation she visited with Joan Earnshaw Donohue in San Diego and Bernie Hartwig in San Francisco.

Martha Briggs writes that Mary Ann Taliaferro visited her for two weeks last summer. Mary Ann is teaching at a junior high in Denver.

The Harrells spent Thanksgiving with Bob and Vi Forrest and their three children in Washington, Pa. Bob is still teaching at Washington and Jefferson and is the choir director for his church.

Thanks to everyone for writing. Let me hear from the rest of you.

Greetings and Happy New Year!

A nice letter, which arrived just too late for the last deadline, came from Donald Comiter, M.D. Following graduation from the University of Chicago School of Medicine in 1960, Donald had a one year surgical internship at the University of Florida Teaching Hospital in Gainesville, Fla. Following this, he completed the Urology training program at the Jefferson Medical College Hospital in Philadelphia in 1965. He then served in the U.S. Navy as Chief of Urology at the U.S. Naval Hospital, Charleston, S. C. Upon release from active duty last September, Donald opened an office for the practice of Urology at 2323 N.E. 26 Avenue, Pompano Beach, Fla. 33026. He adds that Pompano Beach is delightful and he would like to see any Alumni who might be passing through the area.

John Fay joined the Metropolitan National Bank of Richmond, Va., last October, as Installment Loan Officer. Besides Banking, John has been active in civic and charitable endeavors, including serving as Treasurer and State Director of the Richmond Jaycees.

Robert Smith is presently serving as President of the Hampton, Va., Rotary Club as well as operating his business of florist and funeral director in the same city.

Barton Tayer, practicing orthodontics in Brookline and Framingham, Mass., also teaches orthodontics at Boston University Graduate School of Dentistry. He was recently elected to be a Town Meeting Member by his precinct in Brookline.

I always look forward to a Christmas letter from the Penas. This past summer, Mario received the degree of Master of Education from Florida Atlantic University. His wife, Hloy (Patsalides '57) served as a special events director for a camp in Highlands, N. C. and was joined there by their daughter, Popita.

A note from Dot Chapman (Sullivan) tells us that she and her three daughters have spent the past year with her parents in W. Va., while her husband, Patrick, has been in Vietnam. They are looking forward to his return in March and are planning to make their home in Colorado.

Doralie Hultquist (Rafferty) writes that after having two boys they are thrilled with their new daughter. Her husband, Bob, an airlines pilot, is at present attending Captains school on the #727.

Elle Lundberg (Martling) and John are enjoying their new assignment—West Point. So are their three children; Lynn, 9, Johnny and Susan, 2½

Sally Ives (Coons) writes that they had a busy year. They added a third son to their family last March and in September moved to Baltimore, where husband, Ken, is Marketing Director of Hotel Corporation of America Foods. Being nearer to Williamsburg, they had a grand time attending their first Homecoming last November and were delighted to see, among others, Tribble King and Trish Kizzia (Landen). Sally and Ken have also enjoyed getting together with Jean Wyckoff (Mercker), Pat Wells (McDonnell), Sue Colclough (Crouch) and their respective husbands.

Meta Fooks (Rickard) writes that her husband, Dan, returned from Vietnam just in time for Christmas. His new orders are for the Pentagon so they plan to be in Virginia house hunting in January and are looking forward to renewing old acquaintances in that area. They have two children; Ann, 5, and Paul, 2.

That's all for now. Keep the news coming!

It was great receiving our new class directory and catching up on some of you we don't hear about otherwise. Keep the news coming!

Mary Ripley Barry wrote that among those she saw at Homecoming were John and Nancy Ramsey Thompson (all the way from Ontario), Bud and Lynn Wescott Johnson, Lud and Pam Cartin Johnson, Art and Ann Leone Robertson, Gene and Jo Kline Caylor, Fred and Bobbie Hobbie Aucamp, Bill Bickler and his wife, Pete and Sue Thackston Clark, Joe and Kathy Christian Young, Spense and Marge Muller Smith, Phil and Marilyn Colclough, Lowe and Sue Journee Lunsford, Rex and Judy "B" Behymer Baltas, Bob and Carolyn Meachum Hawxhurst, Jack and Mary Talmadge Kaylor.

Pete Kalison and his wife and two daughters have recently been transferred by Monsanto Co. of St. Louis, Mo.

Bob Davis, president of the Chicago Alumni Chapter, represented the College on the occasion of Notre Dame University's anniversary commemoration.

Bill Hammack is a Major, U.S.M. and is stationed at Camp Carroll, Vietnam.

Congratulations to Cliff Eriksen who has recently been appointed Headmaster of the Chapel Hill School, Waltham, Mass. effective June 1968. He and his wife Elsa have one son, Timothy, two years old.

travel agency organization, in October in Cambridge, Mass. Formerly she was advertising and public relations manager of Nexus in Canton, Mass.

Army Lieutenant Colonel Daniel K. Byrne received the Legion of Merit in ceremonies at Ft. Eustis, Va., October 19. He was cited for "exceptionally meritorious service during the period August 1966 to July 1967 while serving as commanding officer of the 36th Transportation Battalion in Vietnam." Col. Byrne has also received the Bronze Star Medal.

Walter L. Lawrence is one of eight business and professional leaders named to the Richmond Advisory Board by the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan National Bank. This Advisory Board has been set up to advise management on its expansion program and to develop additional business for the bank, among other things. Walt is Vice-President and General Manager of Lawrence Chrysler-Plymouth Corporation, and Vice-President of Lawrence Motor Company, Inc., and Southside Dodge, Inc., here in Richmond.

Smokey Sherman, wife Maren, and two children—David 2, and Jane, 5—are living in Oakland, Me. 04863 (RFD 2) now. Smokey graduated from Boston University Law School in 1966, and is now a bona fide lawyer. He still flies in the Marine Corps Reserves every month and will be in Yuma, Ariz., for two weeks in January, flying the A4B. He saw Pete Neufeld in Boston for a drink while Pete was managing Something Different. He said that Linda Lavin is the female star—small world. He also heard that Chip Archer has moved to Medford, Mass., in connection with his job.

Bill McCray just informed me that Harry Cornell and family have moved to Valhalla, N. Y. Harry is working in New York City for a chemical company, in the systems department. Bob Doughtie is still in the Air Force and in Okinawa. Bud Mooney is living in Washington, D. C., and working with a consultant firm there—as is Don Snyder. The Snyders have bought a house in Silver Springs, Md.

Otto and Patsy Wescott Lowe and three children moved to Short Hills, N. J., in August. Otto is with Goodbody and Company, a Wall Street brokerage firm. Nan Rosenbaum wrote from Chesapeake, Va., that Tom Lightner and wife visited this summer before going to Germany for two years. Tom is a major now.

Frank and Betsy Stafford Elliott and three sons moved into a house on October 21, after living in an apartment for three months. Frank was asked in November to become director of personnel for staff development, and works out of the administrative offices in Fairfax, Va.

Mary Aleese Shaw Schreiber and Jay are expecting baby #4 in January. They have Scott, 7½, Karen, six, and Lynne, 3½. Mary Aleese said they went to Expo last summer and saw Nancy and Jim Vernon and twins, who still reside in Canada.

Barbara Teagarden Thomason and Scott finally had a girl, las July 30, after four boys. Barbara said she sees Judy Watts Andrews and her daughter Sarah fairly often, and that Norma Adams Barnes and Herb live there in Falls Church also. Norma has twin girls and is expecting #3 in January. Polly Geil Scott and Fred and two daughters moved from Stanuton, Va., to Winchester, Va., last summer. Polly is teaching there.

Pattie Lynn Adams Slaughter and Bill are back in Syracuse, N. Y., from Spokane, Wash., so that Bill can complete his residency in Orthopedics. They have two girls—Mason Anne and Sarah Booth—and have bought their first home.

Paige Cubbison Artzt wrote that she and husband Norbert are living in South Miami, where they both are associate professors at Miami-Dade Junior College. The Junior College is divided into two campuses, with their division's enrollment being 8000. They have three boys—Eric, 4½, Jamie, 2½, and Joel, 5 months. Paige teaches European and American survey courses in history. Norbert teaches English literature.

Ruth Cox Page and husband John have bought an 18th century house in Bethlehem, Conn., and are restoring it. Ruth is working for the Connecticut Historical Society in Hartford, and John is director of the Litchfield Historical Society.

Catherine Bache Kaski and two sons are still living in Richmond, while Eddit was named manager of the Louisville Colonels, a farm team for the Boston Red Sox.

Thanks to all of you who wrote!

Your replies to my plea were wonderful and I thank you one and all. In my befuddled state, I went off and left some of them at home so you'll get in the next issue!

Dr. William and Lynn McDaniels Jackson have moved to Indianapolis where Bill has assumed a position as Senior biochemist with Eli Lilly and Co. A news release tells that Dr. Edmund L. Barnette, assistant professor of counselor education, joined the faculty of Arkansas State University this fall. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Alabama. Suzie Watters Jones, her 4th grade pianist Julie, and 2nd grade football player Frank, are in Falls Church while Bob is in Vietnam for his second tour of duty where he commands a platoon of small planes and pilots in the Mekong Delta. He becomes Major Jones next month. Susie is secretary for a general contracting firm and book-keeper for a garage and so stays busy. Roney Chesson and John Morton while awaiting their new arrival sent a Christmas card which John had drawn of one of Virginia's oldest churches; my sister, who is especially fond of this church, received their card, framed, as a stocking present!

Jack and Joyce Hayter Ferratt enjoyed the additional "bundle" named Bruce to help Brion get ready for Santa. Jack has done some traveling with the Corps of Engineers while Joyce has been making curtains, gardening, and happily preparing for the holidays. Phyllis Garris and Bob Powers have moved East again since Bob received his M.A. from the Post Graduate School in Monterey, Calif. Five year old Bruce keeps them busy at 4016 Forrest-hills Drive, Portsmouth 23703. They enjoyed the Navy-William and Mary game, one which Phyllis won't let Bob forget! Kathy Hickam Prout writes from Dallas that this May Bill will get his M.A. from S.M.U. in History and then they move to the Air Force Academy where he will be an instructor. "Skipper" is a first grader and Stuart an energetic 2½.

Tom and Gay Barnes Law, Lisa (1st grade), Michael (Kindergarten), and Mark ("Tiger") sent Christmas greetings from Raleigh, N. C. In November, Tom assumed the minister of St. Paul's Christian Church. Their large parsonage gives Gay excuse to buy new curtains. Their address: 3404 Edgemont Dr., Raleigh 27609. On a recent drive along the Garden State Parkway near the Metuchen exit, I wondered out loud about Bill Ryan and returned to find a nice long letter. Bill is now in New York City in the College Production Department of Holt, Rinehart, and Winston. He is delighted with his change and hopes to do some writing on a book but wonders if New York with all its interesting diversions is the place to do it. His address is 30 W. 74th St., New York 10023.

Dave and Barbara Cassady Marshall have recently moved East to Buxboro, Mass. Mal and Judy Davis have also moved and this time from their avant garde rural life to what they term the "normal" rush of the City—to be exact at 1730 Corcoran Street, N.W., #A., Washington 20008 this being amidst embassy row and D. C.'s claim to Hippie fame! Mal seems very excited with his position as United Campus Christian Minister at George Washington University, loves the city and thrives on its activity all which must agree with him as he's become a handsomely skinny 160 lbs. Mal, we won't recognize you! Roby Schrom '60 and Ray Schmidt enjoy being in Madison, Wisconsin where Ray teaches Western Civ, Doug is in kindergarten, and Roby recently retired from work at the University for the "leisure life" of housewifery. That's it for now—happy Spring.

Homecoming 1967 was a fun-filled occasion for Pat and me. It was the first time we had returned in five years. With pad and pencil in hand at the parade, I was able to gather this information.

In Corner Greeks were Dino Baltas, who has two children and Bill Harrison, who is with the Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis stock brokerage firm in Washington, D. C.

Also standing there were Jim and Bea McCay Osbon. Jim is with IBM in Richmond. Bob Stoy is an assistant principal in Alexandria, and he and Mary have a two-year-old boy named Berkeley.

Ron and Lil Cloyes Clark seemed to be enjoying themselves with a group of Lambda Chi's. Ron is managing an insurance agency. Ken and Kay Elmore Rice were in the group. Ken is with the operations office for Bankamericard Center at the First Merchants Bank. They have two boys—five and two and a half.

Mike Glass is an attorney in New York for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

After the parade and while walking down Richmond Road, we saw Tom Farrington, who is practicing law in Maryland. He has one girl. With him was Bev Vaughn, who is the head coach in basketball at Christopher Newport College in Newport News.

The cocktail party at the Lodge after the football game was filled with 1960 graduates. Jim and Dana Brinkley were among them. Jim is with Chip Mason's firm and they have three children—Rob, 7½; Doug, 3; and Susan, 2.

Jack Pace is the current bachelor around town in Newport News, where he is a car dealer. Don Pons is a systems engineer with the Newport News Shipyard. As part of his military service, he served one year in Viet Nam.

Dean and Missey Griggs Sackett, Joe and Anne Chard Ryon, Harry and Nancy Grubbs Bordner, and Pat and I attended the alumni dinner dance at the Lodge. It was a lovely affair. We were joined later in the evening by David and Lynn Carr and Johnny and Willy Aliotti. Johnny is working for the Virginia National Bank and they have two boys ages six and three.

This past September Jack White joined the faculty of the University of Georgia as an assistant professor, where he is busily conducting research in low temperature physics and teaching 175 students in the introductory course.

Stuart E. Duncan and Carol Krider are living in Chattanooga, Tenn. where Stu has recently formed a partnership for the practice of law under the firm name of Duncan and Bowen.

I send many thanks to all those who mailed Christmas cards to me. If your information hasn't appeared in this issue, I haven't forgotten it. But information gets sparse during the cold winter months, so I've saved some of your news. It will appear in the next issue. Happy hibernating!

the Dental Wives Auxiliary. Connie's former roommate, Emily McWhirt Powell, Mal, and children Betsy and Douglas live in Newport News. Connie also writes that Di Titolo Alexandria and Joe have moved to Laurel, Maryland, with their two children Kathy and Stephen.

In their annual newsletter Nancy Hagy Chiles and Bob send greetings and news of their activities in New Bern, N. C. Last spring Nancy was elected District Alumnae Chairman for Alpha Chi Omega's District IV (North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Tennessee), a position involving a bit of travel. Last June, Nancy's brother Hamilton was graduated from Virginia Military Institute and now is a mining engineer for Bethlehem Steel in Barrackville, W. Va. During the summer Nancy and Bob enjoyed visits from Marianne and Nat Withers and children Rick and Anne, plus Pat and Bill Gardener. In the fall Nancy came out of retirement to edit a series of papers on the Zodiacal Light for the University of Hawaii.

Kenneth Harry Simonsen received a Master of Arts degree from the University of Colorado last August.

Madeleine McDonnell was awarded a study grant from Florida State University in the field of education and social work.

Sue and Art Burgess and son Bob moved in the fall to our neighborhood, Greenfield, and are only two houses away from us. Sue teaches Latin but finds time for bridge and our local garden club.

Elena Ruddy McMarlin and her two children, David and Laurra, are in Spain with Elena's parents while Stacy is with the 173rd Abn. now in Dak To, Vietnam, until May.

Vida Kenk, a 1961 Phi Beta Kappa Scholar and Biology major, is an Assistant Professor of Biology at San Jose State College. She received her Ph.D. from Harvard in September 1966.

New Year's weekend found Stirling, Nancy, and me back in Springfield, outside Washington, visiting Jane and Paul Bahn and their three children. It was the Bahn's turn to hold the New Year's Eve party, which was the best ever. A highlight of the evening, morning rather, was a Hopi Indian rain dance delightfully performed by Carol Noble Braun's husband Dick.

in the Central laboratories, Saint Paul, Minn. President Johnson has appointed Robert Brenton Betts as a Foreign Service Officer; Bob, who received an M.A. from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, will be assigned to a position with an Embassy or Consulate in one of the 119 countries with which the U.S. maintains diplomatic relations or with the State Department. Dennis F. Thompson has been appointed Instructor in Government at Harvard University where he completed requirements for his Ph.D. A specialist in political theory, Dennis is the author of "Rational Propaganda" in "Public Policy" and is a contributor to the "New Republic," the "British Journal for the Philosophy of Science," and the "Philosophical Quarterly."

Pril (Nash) Brown and Seaf continue to lead an interesting life in Tokyo; Pril is teaching a nursery school class of 3-year-olds for two hours a day and enjoys studying Oriental antiques. They planned a Hong Kong-Taiwan vacation in January and will return to the U.S. in August on home leave. Donna (Floyd) Fales and Gordon still live in New York City. Gordon is working for American Airlines and Donna is on the tennis circuit and doing volunteer work for the International Center. A fellow tennis player is Mrs. Chico Herrick, the former Carole Loop from Los Angeles; the Herricks live in Arlington now. Robert L. Harris has formed a law partnership of Harris and Tuck in Richmond. Wayne Cokely was visiting in Spain in August on TDY from the Army in Germany.

Lew Detch has returned from Brazil to the University of Wyoming. Donna (Moran) DePue and Richard are living in Richmond where Richard is Sales Representative for Large Lamps at General Electric. Last Fall GS sent him to the Lighting Institute in Cleveland. Peggy (Hargroves) Bartlett and Richard are still in Portsmouth with their son; Richard is an attorney and Ed and I enjoyed seeing them last year at the Virginia Trial Lawyers Convention in Roanoke. Polly (Scott) Bartlett and Gil are living in Williamsburg where Gil is attending Law School. John and Lynn (Eads) Black and daughter Sara Curran are living in Brownsville, Texas, having survived the hurricane season when they were without water for two days and electricity for six days. Lynn teaches school two hours daily. Both are active in church work.

Mary Ruth (O'Halloren) Wiley and Tom, Tommy and Chuck lead an active life in Austin, Tex., where Tom works on his Ph.D. part-time and was recently elected 1st Vice President of the Austin Real Estate Board. The Wileys travel quite extensively: to Oak Ridge, Tenn. last summer for a seminar where they visited with Judy (Leeds) Kernell and Lee and their two boys; and next summer a cross country trip which will carry them to the South, up the coast to Canada and back through the mid West. Mary Ruth extends an invitation to visit to anyone attending the Hemis Fair in San Antonio. Martha (Walton) High and Jack and son Lance live in Arlington where Martha is busy as secretary and Pan Hel Rep. for the Northern Virginia Thetas and is Vice President and in charge of parish activities for the women of her church. Jack is still with UNIVAC working on a new computer language for the 1108 computer.

Paul and Dorcas (Brown) Bankes continue to live in the Philadelphia area with Heather and Jessica Davis and are in the process of house hunting closer to Paul's office; Paul is now with a two man law firm. Pat (Chastain) Howe and King moved to Wake Forest in January from Connecticut. Susan Griggs teaches school in Virginia Beach. Jane (Lawson) Hall and Frank live in Chapel Hill, N. C. Frank finished his Masters at Syracuse last June and is now Assistant to the Director of North Carolina Prisons in Raleigh. Jane is teaching in the Chapel Hill school system. Bunny (Becker) Harrington and Will were married in Roanoke October 14 in an original "do-it-yourself" wedding. They rewrote the wedding service, hand-blocked wedding invitations and selected untraditional music. Bunny had lots of time on her hands due to recuperation from an automobile accident. Will is an Army officer, assigned to Worms, Germany.

In September Bob Diederich was promoted to Southern Regional Sales Manager in Atlanta for this company but before he, Judy and Joanna arrived he was reassigned as sales manager in Detroit. After much confusion and having had to cancel plans to attend Homecoming due to the quick transfers the Diederichs are now getting settled in Detroit. Ann (Smith) Hughes is still working in Postmaster General O'Brien's office, but Jim has changed his allegiance to ABC where he is Account Executive (advertising sales) for WMAL in Washington. Among their travels, the Hughes made the scene at EXPO last summer on a busman's holiday with Ann on official business armed with a press pass, guest passes and all courtesies which meant no standing in lines. Ann wrote an article on the Philatelic Booth at the U.S. Pavilion which was published in Linn's Weekly Stamp News. They are now anticipating a trip to Mexico City and Acapulco.

Cynthia Isemann is teaching in Arlington. Dave and Jane (Miller) '63 Smith are living in Connecticut and expect their first child this Spring. Jimmy and Janie (Wright) Knotts live in Williamsburg with Jane teaching and Jimmy teaching and coaching. Dorcas (Miller) Lounsbury writes that she and Kenny are enjoying their new home in San Diego with Annie and Dan. Ken is an attorney with the city government and lately has been involved with the prosecution of locally sold obscene literature. Sue Oakley was recently engaged to Larry Nelson, whom she met in Germany. Larry is an architect in Arlington and a graduate of the University of Idaho, his home state. Dick and Linnea (Barnes) Sandstrom are expecting a baby in May. They live in Falls Church and Dick is an Office Manager in the C. L. Barnes Furniture Co. Linnea reports that she sees Pat (Graves) Ballard and Wayne, who also live in the area with their son. Wayne is in the insurance business.

Art and Kay (Christian) Sills live in Mt. Pleasant, Mich., where Art is working on his Master's and Kay is teaching. John and Margie (Heiney) Stouffer expect a baby in the near future. John was recently assigned to his own command, the Claud Jones DEL De 1033, home port in Pearl Harbor. Margie and Marion are living with her parents in McLean and plan to find a home in the Pearl Harbor area.

Steve Tatem and his wife, Diane, and son, Stewart, age 14 months, are stationed at Ft. Knox. Steve has one more year in the Army and then hopes to practice law in Dallas or Houston.

Ed and I regretted missing Homecoming this year and hope any Gazette type news will be relayed to us before the next issue goes to press. I appreciate the messages from Christmas cards. Please keep the news coming! A special thanks this time to Ann (Smith) Hughes, who again generously shared her Theta newsletter.

Glen McCaskey, who is still working for the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia, was overseas this summer to study the nature and methods of tourism development in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Romania, particularly along the Adriatic and Black Sea coasts. He was also able to spend some time in Turkey, Greece, Hungary (for the 50th Anniversary of the Russian Revolution in Budapest), Czechoslovakia and Austria. Glen was in Washington this summer when the Education bill was before Congress and ran into Steve Segal in the Capital. Steve is a C.P.A. in D. C. John Meaghar is still working for one of the Representatives from New York. He and Laura Youngblood, '65, have a son now. Glen reports that Dick Rutherford is still in Philadelphia working for Strawbridge and Clothier.

Donna Nunn Webb and George and their little girl, Laurie, now live in Nierstein, a small wine town on the Rhein near Mainz, Germany. George graduated from OCS last January and was sent to Germany for a two year tour. He is communications officer for the 12th Engineer Battalion.

Betty Risser Heenan writes that John is a systems analyst with North American Aviation located in El Segundo and they still live in West Los Angeles. Doug Wood writes that he is still at Little Creek, but only until early March, when he will be relieved of active duty in the Navy. He is taking night school courses at Old Dominion in preparation for an MBA program when he gets out of the Navy. Doug reports that John Howell is also living in Virginia Beach while working as the sales representative in that area for Humble Oil. Barry and Sandy Pingue Leach are in Fredericksburg. Barry also works for Humble Oil but is currently completing 6 months active duty in the Army.

George and Carolyn Simpson Bassett have bought a home in Northfield, a small southern town just five miles from the ocean. George changed jobs about a year ago and is now with Upjohn Company as a pharmaceutical salesman. Carolyn reports that Diane and Paul Sheppard are still in Princeton where Paul hopes to complete his work for his Ph.D. by summer. Diane is working as a secretary for three ministers. They enjoy camping and spent a week in the Smokies this past summer.

Beky Hanmer is employed as a program analyst with the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration in Washington. She received her M.A. in Government from American University in June 1967. John Renick is studying at Trinity Evangelical Divinity School in Deerfield, Ill., for a Master of Theology in church history, having received his Bachelor of Divinity in June from Grace Seminary in Indiana. His wife, Linda Cooke, '65, is teaching Latin and English in the North Chicago Community High School. During the past year, John served as the first chairman of the newly formed William and Mary Christian Alumni Fellowship (non-affiliated with the College or the Society of Alumni). Bill Simpson has received his Ph.D. in chemistry research from the University of Pennsylvania and is now doing post Doctorate research at the Franklin Institute research laboratories in Philadelphia. Robin Reighley, who is still in the Navy, was transferred to Bermuda in January.

Ann Boland writes that her husband, W. Robert Boland, M.A. '63, has finished the Ph.D. degree in Mathematics at the University of Colorado. He is now Assistant Professor of Mathematics at Drexel Institute of Technology in Philadelphia. Jim Scott returned from Greenland in May and is now stationed, along with his wife Barbara Riley, '65, at ADC Headquarters in Colorado Springs. He will complete his Air Force obligation in May. Barbara and Jim saw much of the West this summer and are planning to ski this winter. John Riley spent an evening with John and I before Thanksgiving. He is presently with Dan River Mills in Danville, Va.

Susan Bunch Allen and Jeff have moved to Suffern, N. Y. Jeff is employed by General Foods in White Plains as a product assistant. Bob and Lucy Lawler Huggett are still living in La Jolla, California. Bob was away most of the summer on one of the Scripps' cruises to the South Pacific. He will take his Ph.D. qualifying exams in the spring. Lucy is still working for the University. They were excited about flying home to Virginia for the holidays.

Phillip Myers-Reid left William and Mary for London the summer of 1960 and lived there for several years, doing stage plays in the West End. In 1962 he received the Thespians' Club Award for Best Actor of the season. Currently Phillip is on the faculty of the University of North Carolina, is the author of three novels and some thirty short stories, and returns to London once each year to do a play in repertory. At Christmastime, he visited his fiancée, Princess Vicary, in Greece.

We received a long and welcomed letter from Karl Zavitkovsky, who is presently a Captain in the Marine Corps. At Christmas he was home on 30 days leave from Vietnam before returning for a 6 months tour extension. His work there has been involved in "the other war, that is the pacification/civic action program" and his involvement caused him to want to finish his active service commitment in Vietnam. Currently, Karl is coordinator of civic action activities for the 1st Marine Aircraft Wing stationed in the DaNang area. He writes of having interesting contacts with all levels of Vietnamese society. "Although I'm far from fluent, I've learned enough Vietnamese to converse and make myself understood. My evenings are often spent teaching English classes for the Vietnamese/American Association in the city of DaNang." He claims an immunity to any type of food poisoning! After he gets out of the Marines in June, Karl plans to spend another 2 years in Vietnam with A.I.D. For anyone who might want to Another long very interesting letter arrived from Lynn Cooper. Lynn was in our class at William and Mary then graduated from Mount St. Mary's College in Los Angeles. Having lived since college in Florida, Texas and California, Lynn claims to have lost her "roaming spirit" and is settling in New England—Roslindale, Mass., to be exact. Lynn works as a private secretary and research assistant for the director of new product development of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation in Boston. She did resume her wandering for two weeks this fall to spend her vacation in Luxembourg and Germany. Right now, Lynn is planning her wedding to Robert Means Hutton, which will take place in May. Bob is a graduate of Boston U. and U. of Massachusetts.

I wish I could write all of you who sent cards and letters at Christmas. Thank you very much!

from Vietnam last November. Stationed in Alabama, Bob is now in helicopter training until April when they plan to leave for Germany.

It was good to talk with Gail Blake Wright and David who were here for the holidays. Still living in Columbus, Mississippi, Gail is teaching school while David works in real estate. Gail mentioned that Pam and Al Elthridge have just returned from Newport, R. I., and are now living in Woodbridge, Va. Vee Jones Davis and Guy write from Richmond. After teaching third grade for three years, Vee has retired to be a housewife and mother to son, Gary Russell, now three months old. Guy teaches U. S. History and coaches eighth grade football and J.V. basketball at Henrico High School. Vee mentions that Polly Bean Long left last July to join her husband Bill, in the Army in Germany; they plan to stay there another year and a half.

From Wilmington, N. C., Diana Weisbrod Grant writes of the arrival of daughter, Carolyn Elisabeth, September 8. Husband John, in the Coast Guard, was promoted to Lt.j.g. last August; they are planning to retire from the service in another year and settle in North Carolina.

After receiving his wings and attending eight weeks of Navigation School in Corpus Christi, Tex., husband Tom and Joy Walker Brown are now in Norfolk for four months, then to Pax River, Maryland, and final destination Jacksonville, Fla. for three years.

After a summer in California, Shirley Minnick is now teaching English in grades second through sixth in a Lutheran parochial school in Bayamon, Puerto Rico. She lives with a Puertorican family and loves it.

Sue Trice Fieglein sends greetings from Houston, Tex. Husband, Mike is in school at the University of Houston, while Sue is a mathematician for the TRW Systems, on contract for the Manned Spacecraft Center. Son, Hank, was born last March.

Karen Patrick Martin writes from St. Simons Island, Ga., where husband, Ralph, has had his Navy duty extended until June, 1969. In addition to keeping up with the hectic vocabulary of daughter, Candy, Karen has taken up painting and golf.

Doug and Joy Vess, now in a new apartment in Franklin, Va., send news of Susan Stitt, who is now Director of the Museum of Albemarle, North Carolina. Susan has been awarded a fellowship by the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities to study at Old Salem, a restored colonial community near Winston-Salem; she is the first intern under this study restoration and museology program through Salem College.

Ann and Tom Ackiss are still living in Springfield, Virginia. Ann teaches grade school, while Tom has temporarily resigned his architectural career to serve with the Army at Fort Belvoir.

I had the pleasure of attending the marriage ceremony of Marcia Ballard to Tom Scott on December 22 at Bruton Parish in Williamsburg; members of the wedding party included Bobbie Mulchay and Joanne Arnett Murphy. After a honeymoon to Florida and the Bahamas Marcia and Tom have returned to Richmond, where they both teach mentally handicapped children.

After a year's Army service in Thailand, Joanne and Paul Murphy were transferred to Ft. Meade, Md., where Joanne did substitute teaching while Paul completed his tour of duty. During February they were most pleased to have the opportunity to take an extended vacation and tour of Europe.

News of Ed Horton comes from Yolanda

Harrell, '55 Class Secretary. Ed is now a vice president in Horton's Firestone Dealers in Westfield, N. J.; he has been spending his spare time with flying lessons.

Peter Grantz sends New Year's greetings from Los Angeles where he is a substitute teacher for the L. A. City Schools.

John Saile writes from Shaker Heights, Cleveland, O., where he has lived since graduation. He seems to be having an exhausting, but exciting life as vice president and general manager of Cleveland's "biggest and best" beer distributorship; John also mentions two trips to Europe and one to South America on business—what a pleasurable business!

It was such a joy to see Gretchen Scherer over the holidays. After an extended vacation in Hawaii last fall, Gretchen was home in D. C. for Christmas. She is now doing graduate studies in San Francisco.

Patty Vaught sends the best of New Year's wishes from Spain, where she is teaching English at the Briam Institute in Madrid, as well as touring the country. She intends to be there through May, and then take her second spin around Europe.

After receiving his M.Ed. from William and Mary in 1966, Paul Mattox is now serving with the Big Red 1 in Vietnam since June 1967. Also in Vietnam with the Army Finance Corps, is Ed Johnson, who left in December; Judy has remained in Washington and works for AID.

Upon receiving his Ph.D. from the University of Virginia in 1967, Tom Willett has been appointed an Instructor in Economics at Harvard University. Tom is a contributor to "Statistical Abstract of Virginia" (Vol. II) and to the Journal of Economic History.

I enjoyed hearing from Dick Shepard, '65; Dick is now pursuing Ph.D. studies in Clinical Psychology at Florida State University. He completed his Masters work in Criminology and Corrections.

What a treat it was to hear from Glen McCaskey, '63, now back in Philadelphia after a few months' leave of absence from The Franklin Institute. From September to November Glen traveled through eastern Europe and the Balkans in a self-study program on tourism. In addition to career pursuits, I know he had a most pleasurable vacation.

I am looking forward to hearing from many more of you before the next issue's deadline. Have a happy 1968.

Many of our classmates are seeing the world courtesy of Uncle Sam. Kent and Rusty (Rollings) Stevens are living in Sasebo, Japan. Kent is stationed aboard the minesweeper Woodpecker. They are living in a typical Japanese house in a completely Japanese neighborhood. Kent is scheduled to receive orders back to the States sometime soon. Tricia (Davis) and Bill Cleveland are living in Waialua, a small town on the north shore of Oahu, Hawaii. Bill is stationed there with the U.S. Army. Tricia hopes to do some substitute teaching before the year is out. Bill and Mary Hurley and their son John returned to the United States from Germany early this spring. Bill has been the intelligence officer for an armored cavalry squadron running border operations over 200 miles of the East German-West German interzonal boundaries and the West German-Czechoslovakian borders. After thirty days leave in the States, Bill went to Ft. Benning and then on to Panama for training in Jungle Warfare. He is now assigned to the 1st Brigade of the 101st Airborne Division, Vietnam. Tom Boyd is also in Vietnam. Tom went to OCS after graduation and was commissioned in August of 1966. After spending a year at Ft. Bragg, he went to Saigon where he is currently serving as a supply officer. Tom will return to the States in August and marry Joan De Vane of Tar Heel, N. C.

(Lt.) Allan Goodman received orders to Edwards Air Force Base in California last fall. He is doing some work on his Masters while there. Pam (Wendell) and Bill Fleming have enjoyed their two year tour of duty in Norfolk, Va. Pam has been teaching high school English and doing some professional modeling. She met Bill in Germany at Christmas after he finished a six months' Mediterranean cruise. They then toured Austria, Switzerland, and Italy. Bill is getting out of the Navy this spring, and they will go to Miami Beach for four months while he takes a flight training course in preparation for becoming a commercial pilot.

1968 finds many of our number still in school or supporting spouses who are still in school. Howard Busbee received his J.D. (law) degree from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in August, 1967. He is presently a candidate for the Master of Law and Taxation degree to be awarded in June, 1968. Howard has passed the CPA and Virginia Bar examinations and was admitted to practice last summer. Upon graduation in June he will accept a position with Lybrand, Ross Brothers, and Montgomery, a national public accounting firm, in Lynchburg, Va. Howard's wife, Mary, is teaching school at Magruder in York County.

Priscilla (Brown) and Charles Holman left Norfolk last August after Charlie graduated from Old Dominion. They are now living in Atlanta, Ga., where Charlie is attending the Law School of Emory University. Priscilla is working at the National Communicable Disease Center.

Nibs Smith is in New Orleans attending Tulane University. This is her first year in a two-year program leading to a degree in social work. Pat McMahon is also going to school in the south-land. She is in her senior year at Emory University Law School and plans to receive her J.D. in June. She is an associate editor on the law review staff and teaches a freshman law school writing course. Last summer Pat worked as a law clerk to the Southeast Regional Council of the Internal Revenue Service.

Trilby Busch has completed her Master's Degree in English at Ohio University. She is now working toward a Ph.D. and is teaching some undergraduate English courses.

Margie (Hodges) and Micky Furr are living in Knoxville, Tenn., where Micky is doing graduate work at the University of Tennessee. Margie is working in a library. Ann (Singleton) and Matt Beebe are still in Columbia, S. C. Matt spent last summer doing field work in geology and hopes to have his thesis finished by June. Ann is the purchasing agent for Richmond County. She is also teaching a course at night for the Rural Recreation Department—the course is entitled Slimnastics!

David Rector was promoted to Captain in the regular Army while stationed in Vietnam. He returned to Richmond this winter to join his wife, Anne (Stone), and new son.

Mary Chichester received her M.A. from Columbia and is working in Boston for the Jewish Family Service. Richard Morrison has left his position with Price Waterhouse and Co. as a public accountant and has joined the controller's office staff at American University in Washington, D. C. Richard's official title is assistant contract administrator. Jean (Ball) Bugg and John have moved to New Orleans, but I have no news of what they are doing. Susie Ellis and her husband are living in New York City.

Laura (Youngblood) Meagher writes that they have moved into a new apartment to accommodate an energetic toddler. John Meagher is still working for Congressman Pirnie. Mary Lynn Sigmon, Ann Gerth, and Nancy Broyhill also have jobs on Capitol Hill. Raoul and Mary Fran (Kahle) Lemat are still in the Washington area, the proud parents of a one year old girl. Jim and Babs (Lewis) Korman are also living in D. C.

Kathy (Power) Fallis and Stan are now in Denver, Colorado. Stan received his masters from the University of Utah last June and is presently working for a public accounting firm. Micki (Leef) and Pete Stout visited Kathy and Stan last fall on their way to Utah.

Roslyn (Reams) and Win Luther are living in Richmond. Win returned from Vietnam last fall and is now a civilian. He is working for VEPCO. Roslyn, Kim Routh, and Janet Thurman had an opportunity to get together at Ellen Reynold's wedding. Ellen and her husband Dirk van Meeteren Brouwer are living in New York City. Dirk is doing graduate work at night at New York University, and is an insurance broker in the marine cargo field by day. Ellen is continuing with her job at the Virginia State Travel Service.

Everett W. Holland, Jr. of Greenbelt, Md. writes that he is presently teaching math at Laurel Senior High in Laurel, Md. and working towards his Master's Degree.

First Lieutenant George B. Chappell, Budget Analyst in the Army Surgeon General's Office of the Comptroller has been promoted to the rank of Captain. He and his wife Joan live in Alexandria, Va.

I'm happy to say that the holidays brought, along with many good things, a lot of news from the Class of '66.

Joan Lowry Coates is teaching economics and government at Denbigh High School in Newport News while her husband, Jim, a lieutenant in the Army, is stationed in Cam Rhan Bay, Vietnam. In October, Joan flew to Hawaii where she met Jim for a six-day vacation.

Charles Moore is attending Grace Theological Seminary in Winona Lake, Ind., where he also studied last year. During the summer months he served as a camp staff worker in North Carolina.

William Moore is attending Dallas Theological Seminary for the second year. During the summer he worked toward his Master of Arts in philosophy at Southern Methodist University.

Randy Lanford is attending Westminster Theological Seminary.

Flossie Bishop is teaching first grade at Robert E. Lee Elementary School in Hampton, Va., and at the same time working on a master's degree in education at William and Mary.

Penny Sanford Kidd is teaching the third grade at Norge Elementary School, near Williamsburg, after teaching last year in Henrico County.

Becky Buchanan writes that she is enjoying her teaching and is keeping busy serving with Penny Kidd on the Williamsburg-James City County Salary Committee.

Donald Neily is serving with the Peace Corps and is now teaching in Sierra Leone, West Africa, after training at Dartmouth and Syracuse Universities.

Lindsey Wittmus Lytle writes that she, her husband David, and their new daughter, Courtney Gayle, are living in New Haven, Conn., where he is a student at Yale Law School. They plan to be in Washington, D. C. for the summer, where David will be working for a law firm.

Marie Brewer writes that she is still working for the Library of Congress, and is living now in Hyattsville, Md., with Kathy Ingram and Mary Baker. Kathy works for Congressman Satterfield of Richmond, and Mary is working at the National Institute of Health.

Joy Cheatham is teaching fourth grade in Alexandria, and is living with Mary Charles White (Class of 1967).

Bruce Griffin is in Vietnam, serving with the 18th Surgical Hospital. Bob Clapp is a teaching assistant at the University of Maryland.

John Jacobsen is serving with the U. S. Coast Guard on the Lorain County. He writes that William Anderson is a Second Lieutenant in the Marines, now serving in Vietnam, while his wife, Sue Ellen Bowman Anderson, and their daughter, are living in Richmond.

Bruce (Woody) Caine is also a lieutenant in the Army, and is stationed in Germany.

Chester Cahoon writes that he and his wife, Mary Ann, are living in Chesapeake, Virginia. Chester works for the Virginia National Bank in Norfolk.

Jim Breedon, Bill Weiland, Ron Hodges and Gary Reese are all in their second year of Law School at the University of Virginia. Jim spent last summer running a boys' camp in Maine.

Paulette Johnstone reports that she has spent the year since graduation working on a master's degree in Political Science at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. She is currently finishing up her thesis and looking for a job in Washington, D. C.

Isaac Freeman writes that he is employed as Administrative Assistant and Field Representative in charge of the district office of United States Congressman William Wampler in Bristol, Va. He has been placed on the Board of Directors of the Southwest Tuberculosis and Respiratory Association, and is serving as chairman of the Bristol Young Republican Club and as Ninth District Chairman of the Virginia Young Republican Federation.

Nancy Neet Artman and her husband, Rob, are in Laos where they're teaching English to 422 junior-high students in the French Technical School in the provincial capital, Savannakhet. They also teach at the Lao-American Association, which has an English Language program sponsored by the U. S. Information Agency. Nancy and Rob find the work (they're employed by the International Voluntary Services) both rewarding and disillusioning—but worthwhile.

Nancy also writes that Mary Sherman Taube is working on her Master of Science degree in physics at the University of Florida, where her husband, John, is also a graduate student.

Laurette Harvey finished a year at the University of California at Berkeley, getting her California teaching certificate. She is now teaching high school history in San Diego.

Susan Word is teaching art in Alexandria.

Bill Berghous completed his Master of Education at the University of Arizona, and is teaching English outside of Williamsburg while waiting to start officers' training at Fort Eustis.

Nicky Glakas is an ensign in the Navy, stationed in St. Petersburg, Fla., where his wife Katy teaches.

Bob Bland is a First Lieutenant in the army, stationed in Germany and commanding a company of 193 men.

Isobel Thubron is teaching social geography at the University of Newcastle, England, and is doing research on the migration of business executives through Europe. Isobel plans to obtain her M.Litt. this year.

Richard and Bonnie Muddiman Newlon are in Tucson, Ariz., where Richard is taking two degrees: a bachelor's degree in architecture and a master's degree in urban planning. Bonnie is enrolled in the same master's program, while at the same time as a Local Public Agency trainee in the Urban Renewal department of the City of Tucson where she is working on the Pueblo Center Redevelopment Project. Bonnie says that her job is equivalent to that of an administrative intern: she's getting paid for learning their entire administrative organization and function.

Steve and Ann Jeffries Critchfield are living in Athens, Ga., where Steve is a graduate student in Business Administration at the University of Georgia.

Betsy Reed Godsman and her husband Jim are living in White Plains, N. Y., where Jim works for General Foods.

Sharon Ketcham Kuechle is living in Groton, Conn., where her husband John is stationed aboard the polaris submarine Abraham Lincoln.

Grace Guin is living in Washington, D. C. after spending a year in New York City. Grace works for Woodward and Lothrop department store as an interior decorator.

Suzanne Jones Lucas graduated from Radford College last August and is the Art teacher in Christiansburg, Va. High School.

Lynn Efrid Burnet of Patrick A. F. B., Florida, writes that she is working for Civil Service. Her husband, Bob, VPI '66, is assigned to the Titan III complex at Cape Kennedy. They love the Florida weather!

Many thanks to those of you who wrote—I'm hoping to hear from the rest of you this spring.

I saw fewer of you than expected over the Christmas holidays, so I hope more of you will continue to keep in touch.

A correction for the December issue: Mary Nuernberger is in her second trimester in the Graduate School of Social Work at the University of Pittsburgh, not at Penn State.

I am still discovering more of you around the Washington area. Jim Harris is working for the Department of the Army and getting ready to go into basic training at Ft. Leonardwood, Mo., from where he will go on to A.I.T. and O.C.S.

Alice Boone Riecks and her husband Church ('66) are also in D. C., and Alice Rae is doing graduate work in library science at the University of Maryland. Rebecca Jones is working here, too, though I don't know what she is doing. Susan Cooke is living in Georgetown and working as a museum aid at the National Gallery of Art.

Jennifer Riley is in graduate school at Gallaudet College, the only college in the world for the deaf. She says that out of a total college enrollment of 1000, there are approximately 25 hearing students, all grads. Jennifer is busy earning her Master's of Science in Nursery Education for the deaf and is also working toward certification in Audiology.

Jeff Gaber, previously stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va., is now with the 1st Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Texas. He tells me that Tron Brekke is working hard in law school at South Carolina and still recuperating from spending a very wet Christmas vacation around the Washington area.

Jeff also mentioned that Chuck Sievers, at Ft. Sill, Okla. awaiting orders for flight school, plans to be married to Ann Roberts ('68) on June 15. Betsy Walker Trautman ('68) and husband Tom are at Camp Wolters, Tex., where Tom is in flight school.

From Houston, Tex., Mary Eve Ward writes that she has a challenging and most enjoyable job with Social Security. She mentions the abundance of good-looking tall Texans and a Houston version of Georgetown called Market Square, so I gather she is keeping quite busy.

Also in Houston is Gay Northway Grubb, working on her Masters in pharmacology at the University of Houston. Her husband, John, who earned his Masters from the University of Texas last summer, is with Shell Oil Company.

Lenora Owre is another enjoying Texas, writing from Texas Technological College in Lubbock, where she is working on a Master's in Psychology. She holds a two year government traineeship in psychology, with a specialization in vocational rehabilitation.

Further west are Emily Moriarity Hall and husband, Buzz, living in Sacramento, Calif., where Buzz is stationed as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Force.

Dickey Barron Sopchak writes from Albany, N. Y. She and Mike ('65) were married in Tunis last July, when Mike completed two years in the Peace Corps, and spent a month travelling in Europe. Dickey is a statistician for the New York State Identification and Intelligence Systems and Mike is in Albany Law School.

Annabelle Eaton is in Somalia, Africa, in the Peace Corps and loves every minute of it.

Louise Hudgins Williams spent the summer working for NASA, Langley Research Center, and after a November 25 wedding, is now living in Hampton, Va., and working on her Master's of Science in Physics at Old Dominion College. Her husband is working at the Newport News Shipyard as a Polaris Field Engineer for Sperry Gyroscope Company, a division of Sperry Rand. Louise writes that Karen Gelotte is teaching fourth grade in Baltimore County. She hears that Diane Rawl is keeping herself very busy in New Delhi, where her father is Air Attache. Diane is studying art and the Hindi language at the University of New Delhi.

John Robinson is in Madison, Wis., in graduate school at the University of Wisconsin. He is studying for a Master's degree in Spanish, planning to complete his requirements in August of this year.

Kathy Parkinson writes from New Brunswick, N. J., where she is a computer analyst for Johnson and Johnson. She says that Susan Benbow is in systems analysis for J & J, and Axel Lischum is in nearby Whippany, working for Western Electric.

Barbara Stansbury Macubbin is teaching music in Champaign, Ill., while Bob works toward his Ph.D. at the University of Illinois. They plan to move back to Williamsburg sometime this year.

Chuck Oliver is currently teaching social studies in Crozet, Va. (near Charlottesville). After a June wedding (Carol O'Connor, Mary Washington, '68), he plans to begin graduate work in school administration at U. Va.

Bill Binns and his wife Betty are living in Richmond where Bill is employed as a management trainee by the Bank of Virginia. Betty is a registered nurse at St. Mary's Hospital, and both are thoroughly enjoying their work. Bill has completed four months of active duty with the Army National Guard at Ft. Campbell, Ky., and Ft. Sill, Okla.

Cis Roton Perrow writes a news-filled letter from Wollaston, Mass., where she is teaching school while her husband finishes college. Cis says that Carolyn Grant is doing graduate work in art in Connecticut. Pat Cullen is teaching physical education in Stafford County, Va., and Sandy Reese and Diane Giangrande are teaching in Martinsville, Va. Linda Fombell Harkins and her daughter, Lura Michelle, are living in Norfolk while husband Tony is out at sea. Sharon McGhee is living in Woodbridge, Va., where she is teaching school, and Susan Bruch is teaching in Williamsburg.

Jack Lowery was home (Arlington) from Ft. Dix, N. J., at the end of December and spent several days in the sun and warm weather in Jamaica. He thoroughly enjoyed his basic and advanced infantry training at Ft. Dix, and is presently in O.C.S.

Charles S. McCandlish, Jr. is presently working on his doctorate at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. He has an assistantship.

Keep me posted on where you are and what you're doing and please stop by and visit if you are ever in the Falls Church area.

is the sum of many parts: The Wren Building is the oldest and most revered. But, in later years, alumni recall other places that project clear images of their own—Cary Field, a fraternity or sorority house, the sunken garden, Washington 100, Phi Beta, O.D. 4th, many others. SIMILARITY

IN SOME WAYS, a good clothing store is like a beauty parlor. The objectives are much the same—spruce you up, bring out the best in you, even make you feel better. At the Williamsburg Shop, the customer's transformation, however, is sartorial rather than tonsorial. Our store, of course, offers numerous other pleasant experiences above and beyond its department for ladies' and gentlemen's wear. Try our sections devoted to gifts, notions, housewares, footwear and luggage. Above all, remember: "Dress right, you can't afford not to. Your clothes never stop talking about you."

Tranquilizer

Two centuries ago Williamsburg's visitors enjoyed gay social events, excellent music, delights of the ballroom and theatre, and sports. The tempo of that day lives on in Virginia's colonial capital and today's visitors find inspiration in historic buildings and gardens, concerts, militia musters, colonial carriage rides, and activities reminiscent of that colorful period. They also relax on one of America's great golf courses, called "a masterpiece" by Golf Magazine. Designed by Robert Trent Jones, the Williamsburg Inn's Golden Horseshoe Golf Course is magnificent in the Spring. Come back to the College this year and see for yourself.

Communications

(Editor's Note: Some years ago, the Gazette ended the long practice it had followed of publishing selected letters from readers about subjects of general interest to alumni. The Society of the Alumni receives thousands of letters each year, and beginning with this issue of the alumni magazine, we will begin again to share some of them. The first letter comments on an article in the December, 1967 Gazette; the second recalls the establishment of the student-waiter service and actually, it was written to President Davis Y. Paschall, who passed it along.)

Sirs:

I read with great interest S. Dean Olson's profile on Dr. J. T. Baldwin in the December Gazette.

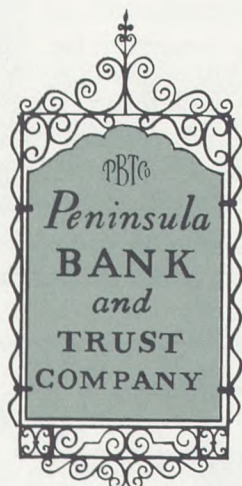

No profile on Dr. Baldwin is complete without some mention of him as an outstanding teacher and warm friend.

Now that I am engaged in the practice and teaching of medicine, my fond hope is that my own students can remember me as I remember him.

Sincerely,
Gerald A. Schneider, M.D. '56

of those years. Unless I could find some work at the College my prospects for returning for the ensuing session were slim indeed, and Goodwin and Nourse were anxious to complement their resources. We talked with Brown and suggested that he apply for the stewardship. He seemed surprised but interested and said he would talk with Mrs. Brown about it and let us hear from him within a day or so. We said to him that he and Mrs. Brown were experienced in providing meals, in school and college life standards and requirements, and in financing Brown's pursuit of a degree. We felt sure that they would enjoy the support of the student body and faculty.

A few days later Brown said he would apply for the position provided the three of us and perhaps one or more additional students would join him as "monitors," for our room and board—one for the supervision of laundry services, one for dormitory care, and all for mess hall services, either as supervisors or waiters as situations required. At that time he wasn't sure that he could afford or find paid waiters. We heartily agreed and at that time he added D. P. Lohr, an Academy freshman, to the group. It so happened that from the first day we became and continued to be table waiters. Later several Negro waiters were employed and we became a happily integrated force.

So, for the first time as was known, William and Mary students became mess hall waiters. Many of the students boarded in town but the mess hall boarders were a representative cross-section of the student body. The reaction of students, faculty and townspeople was generally favorable, even laudatory, although a few students protested that it was inappropriate and unseemly for their classmates, friends and social associates to serve them as waiters, the editor of the Flat Hat among them by means of an editorial! The system was soon agreeably accepted and there was never an unpleasant incident in or out of the mess-hall resulting therefrom. This veritable "windfall" in large measure enabled me to go onto the B.A. degree and high honors and I am sure assisted Goodwin (later Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, who died in January—Ed.), Nourse and Lohr as it has done hundreds of students since that time. Goodwin became Bishop; Nourse transferred to Cornell and was graduated in agriculture and became an outstanding county agent in Fauquier County where he died early in life; Lohr's career is unknown to me. I became Commissioner of Public Welfare in Virginia. So, if my immodesty for saying so may be pardoned, it would seem that the inaugurators of this worthy priority of the College did pretty well for their baby!

I have been told that in 1910-11 there were student waiters at VPI, but I have never verified that. It was many years before the University of Virginia and other colleges followed suit. I was waited on by a student at Harvard in 1923-24.

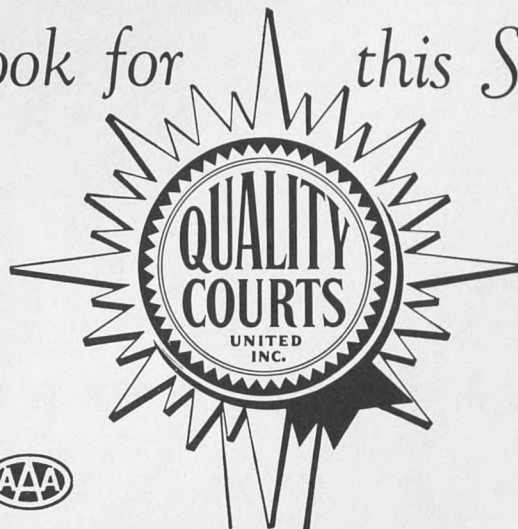

In several conversations, Bishop Goodwin and I have agreed that this service was one of the most rewarding and satisfying experiences of our student days, even of our lives.
