Reporting on: new ideas for higher education ... a 'new depression' ... questions about Ph.D. production

■ New Options: It is time to change the "historic degree structure" of colleges and universities, says the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, and to introduce a whole new set of options for education beyond the high school. In a report that is sure to help stimulate the growing movement for academic reform, the commission has put its considerable prestige behind these ideas:

—Students are spending too much time in college. Requirements for the bachelor's degree could be cut from four years to three "without sacrificing educational quality," the commission says, while another year or two could be saved on the way to the Ph.D. and to medical practice.

—High school graduates should be given more opportunities to postpone or bypass formal college work, to "stop-out" from college for job experience, and to change directions in college.

—Much greater use should be made of two relatively new degrees: the Master of Philosophy, for those planning to teach in high schools, community colleges, and the lower division in colleges; and the Doctor of Arts, as the standard degree for "non-research" college teachers.

—The expansion of college-level tests and off-campus instruction can lead to college degrees earned without actual college residence.

Some colleges already are moving toward such reforms. In one effort, 17 institutions have received federal funds to create a "university without walls," in which students of various ages will be given wide flexibility for independent study and "self-direction."

The commission's proposals could have an important side benefit. If they were put into effect, it says, higher education could expect to save several billions of dollars a year by 1980.

■ Financial Woes: The extent of higher education's crisis in finance has been outlined in dramatic fashion by the Carnegie Commission. Based on a study of 41 colleges and universities of different types, the panel has concluded that about two-thirds of all institutions today (1,540) are "in financial difficulty" or are headed in that direction. The situation is seen as the worst in history, amounting to what the study terms a "new depression."

For many institutions, the crisis has gone beyond mere "belt-tightening" and has led to cuts in important services. Clark Kerr, the commission's chairman, says the institutions' greatest need may be to restore public confidence.

■ Ph.D. Excess? By the end of this decade, some experts say, our graduate schools may be turning out at least twice as many doctorate-holders as they did in 1969. That might sound like something to cheer about, but educators are worried. They look at the drop in federal support for graduate study and wonder whether it isn't time the universities began holding back on new programs. A few private universities, in fact, already have announced plans to curtail graduate enrollments, and federal budget-makers are said to be thinking along similar lines.

"The watchword for the 1970's will no doubt be to limit and even reduce the number of doctoral programs," says a knowledgeable U.S. official, "and improve the quality of those that remain." Some educators, however, urge the universities to proceed cautiously at this point, lest they end up unable to satisfy the nation's need for highly educated professionals.

■ In Brief: Most institutions say they do not discriminate against women in administrative and faculty positions, reports the American Association of University Women. But a survey by the association finds that women seldom have major policymaking responsibilities or top-level positions on the faculty . . .

A hundred scholars from nine nations, including the U.S., have formed an International Committee on the University Emergency. Purpose: "To protect the rights of teachers and students to study together in peace and freedom" . . .

Projections of college enrollments point to worrisome trends for private institutions. One study suggests that the private-college share of enrollments may drop to only 15 per cent by 1985, compared with about 25 per cent now . . .

An association of 274 state colleges and universities has, in effect, withdrawn its endorsement of a code of principles on academic freedom and tenure. The group called for more stress on faculty responsibility and competence . . .

A committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association has proposed that financial need be made the basis for athletic scholarships. Possible effects would be reduced expenses for athletic departments and a more even distribution of athletic talent among institutions . . .

The National Labor Relations Board, which conducts collective-bargaining elections and guards against unfair labor practices, has extended its jurisdiction to most private colleges.

Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at the College honored two members of the faculty, Dr. Nathan Altshuler, chairman of the Department of Anthropology, and Dr. Richard Maxwell Brown, Professor of History.

Dr. Altshuler, whose field of study is cultural anthropology, has been elected an honorary member of the Society and Dr. Brown, noted expert of violence, has been awarded the Phi Beta Kappa Award for the Advancement of Scholarship.

Both men were cited at the annual meeting of the chapter on December 5 in the Raleigh Tavern where the Society was founded in 1776. Twenty nine members of the senior class were initiated as new members at that time.

New members-elect of Alpha of Virginia, Phi Beta Kappa, from the class of 1971, their majors and hometowns are; Alexandria, Va.—Lynn Marie Greenwood, Sociology; Elizabeth Respass Vail, Biology; Arlington, Va.—Jerry Allen Coyne, Biology; Leandro Crescendo Area, Biology; Ellen Louise Wagner, Elementary Education; Baltimore, Md.—Virginia Ann Klemkowski, Psychology; Beverly Ann Sauer, English; Billerica, Mass.—Robin Wallace Rosser, Chemistry; Blacksburg, Va.—Donald Morris Pulliam, Physics; Canton, Ga.—Lynn Emery Johnston, Psychology; Colonial Heights, Va.—Patsy Lee Anderson, English; Columbia, S. C.—

Gregory Berke Sampson, Sociology; Fort Worth, Tex.—Patricia Louise Russell, Fine Arts; Hampton, Va.—Norman Familant, economics; Hopewell, Va.—Rebecca Lynn Beach, government; Hyattsville, Md.—Thomas Sinclair Rees, history; Lakehurst, N. J.—Virginia Anne Vogel, psychology; Lathrup Village, Mich.—Jeannine Dorothy Morrison, sociology; Newport News, Va.—Penelope Ann Cherry, Business administration; Norfolk, Va.—Jane Carolyn Mason, mathematics; David Allen Whiman, anthropology; Raleigh, N. C.—David Freeman Silver, chemistry; Rochester, N. Y.—Marie Renee Hanson, biology; Snow Hill, Md.—Rebecca Ann Laws, history; Springfield, Va.—Kathleen Louise Coles, history; Thompsonville, Conn.—Kenneth Albert King, Jr., English; Vienna, Va.—Virginia Darnell Hoose, biology; Warren, Ohio—Paula Ann Barran, German; Webster, S. D.—Richard Charles Mohs.

Sancetta Appointed Graduate Dean

Dr. Anthony L. Sancetta, a member of the faculty since 1948, has been appointed Associate Dean for Graduate Studies of the College's School of Business Administration.

Dr. A. L. King has served as Associate Dean for Undergraduate Studies and Dr. Sancetta had earlier been director of Graduate Studies.

Total graduate business course registrations have risen from 338 last fall to 659 this fall, excluding students not taking courses for degree credit.

The graduate programs have been established at four off-campus locations, with a total of 377 registrations. The degree programs are offered at the Virginia Associated Research Campus at Newport News; Fort Eustis, Fort Monroe and Langley Air Force Base.

Dr. Sancetta, a native of Cleveland, holds degrees from Western Reserve and Columbia Universities. He is a specialist in managerial economics, finance and trade regulation.

Team Finds Old James River House

An important archaeological find which provides a tangible link with Virginia residents during the early colonial period has been uncovered by an archaeological team from the College.

Dr. Norman Barka and Dr. Ben McCary, with assistant Leverette Gregory, and students, have uncovered the foundations of a 17th century house, on one of the first plantations settled along the southside of James River in Prince George County.

The find is significant because it is extremely difficult to locate the foundations of 17th century houses and few have been unearthed, and because it is possible to closely identify the occupants of the area during the 17th century.

The archaeologists believe they have evidence of a plantation home built sometime between 1640 and 1660. From historical accounts of the period they believe the house may have been the home of George or Richard Pace.

George Pace married Sarah Maycock, the daughter of Samuel Maycock, who founded Maycock Plantation on the James in 1618/19. It was one of the earliest plantations in the area. Samuel Maycock was a Cambridge scholar and a gentleman of birth and a member of the Governor's Council in Virginia. He was massacred by the Weanoc Indians on March 22, 1622, along with three men who were working with him on his plantation.

Symposium to Assess Revolution Theories

The National Endowment for the Humanities has awarded the Institute of Early American History and Culture a matching grant of $21,000 in support of a symposium on the American Revolution planned for March 8-12.

The Institute, a center for historical study and publication, is sponsored jointly by the College and Colonial Williamsburg.

The Institute's director, Stephen G. Kurtz, stated that in anticipation of the forthcoming bicentennial celebrations forty of the most distinguished scholars of the Revolution from the United States, Britain, and Canada have been invited to assess its causes and effects.

"Our hope," said Dr. Kurtz, "is that the meaning and nature of the American Revolution will be clearer because of the renewed interest the bicentennial will develop, but we can also anticipate that commercial interests will operate in a way which will obscure the truth and significance of our Revolutionary tradition.

"Historians have a duty to interpret what we now know about the ideals and aspirations of the nation's founders in the hope that our perspective on contemporary problems can be made clearer. The symposium intends to provide them a forum to do so. Interpretive essays delivered at the symposium will be published far enough in advance of the bicentennial to influence the direction scholarship and publishing plans will take."

The opening and closing sessions of the symposium will feature public lectures by Professor Bernard Bailyn of Harvard University on the night of March 8 and by Professor Edmund S. Morgan of Yale University on the morning of March 12. Panel discussions during the intervening days will analyze essays prepared by Professors Jack P. Greene, The Johns Hopkins University, on the origins of the American Revolution; William G. McLoughlin, Brown University, on the relation of religion to the Revolution; John W. Shy, University of Michigan, on the internal effects of the military conflict; James Henderson, Oklahoma State University, on the Revolution's impact upon American political behavior; Richard Maxwell Brown, The College of William and Mary, on changing attitudes toward violence during the Revolutionary era; and Professor Rowland Berthoff and John M. Murrin, Washington University, on the effects of the Revolution upon American social life and institutions.

Among the participants in the four-day symposium will be representatives of leading research institutions—The American Antiquarian Society, The John Carter Brown Library, The Clements Library, The Smithsonian Institution, The Massachusetts Historical Society, and The State Historical Society of Wisconsin—and observers from the publishing and news worlds—Dan Lacy, senior vice president, McGraw-Hill Book Company; William J. Lamb, president, Educational Broadcasting Corporation; Max Lerner, the New York Post; and Edward P. Morgan news commentator, American Broadcasting Company.

Matching support for the grant from the National Endowment has been pledged by The American Antiquarian Society of Massachusetts, The Elis Olsson-Chesapeake Foundation of Virginia, and by Atheneum Publishers of New York City who will publish the symposium essays for the Institute.

Both The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and The College of William and Mary, joint sponsors of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, will act as hosts to the symposium participants during their stay.

Students are Named To College Committees

Students have been selected by President Davis Y. Paschall to serve with members of the faculty and administration on seven all-college committees and four committees of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Appointments were made from a list of nominees submitted by the President of the Student Association. They are serving for the duration of the current academic session. Six of the committee appointments to all-college committees were initiated last year for the first time. Appointments to the Admissions Committee are new this year.

All-College committee appointments are as follows: Arts and Lectures—Larry Raiken, '71, Orange, N. J., and Calvin Remsberg, '72, Alexandria; Athletics—Glen Conrad, '71, Radford, and Mark Wilson '71, Richmond; Discipline—Nancy Terrill '71 and William A. Stiles, Jr., '71, both of McLean; Scheduling—Craig Windham '71, Chevy Chase, Md., and Barbara Bledsoe, '72, Prince George; Scholarships and Student Employment—Janet Thompson, '73, Vienna, and Tamara Lucas, '73, Richmond; Student Recreation—Michael Graham, '73, Annapolis, Md., and Thomas Hege, '73, Chevy Chase, Md.; Admissions—Henry Tucker, '72, Norfolk, and Francis Alice Jones, '71, Marion.

Appointments to Committees of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences are as follows: Athletics for Women—Cindy Wieboldt, '72, North Garden, and Margaret Walsh, '73, Washington, D. C.; Foreign Studies—Madeleine Carney, '73, McLean, and Paul Supan, '73, Hampton; Honors—Anita Coles, '72, Springfield, and Kenneth King, '71, Thompsonville, Conn.; Library—Margaret Martin, '71, Rocky Mount, and Ellis Johnson, '71, Boykins.

Swindler Publishes Second Court Volume

The second volume of a two-part definitive study of the Supreme Court and the Constitution, written by Professor William F. Swindler of the Marshall Wythe School of Law has been released by the Bobbs-Merrill Company of New York.

The volume is entitled "Court and Constitution in the 20th Century." The first volume, published past year, was sub-titled "The Old Legality, 1889-1932," and covered the period of constitutional history from the last decade of the 19th century to the coming of the New Deal. The current volume, "The New Legality, 1932-1968," analyzes issues and judicial conflicts from the years of the depression to the end of the Chief Justiceship of Earl Warren.

In the new volume Professor Swindler traces the constitutional revolution which began with the crisis of confrontation between the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the old "Laissez-faire" court. Between the about-face of the court under Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes at that time, and the state of constitutional thought as it was at the time of Chief Justice Warren's retirement, the author documents three distinct periods in a continuing story of constitutional change.

The first period covers the reversal of position of the court during the New Deal era, when it shifted from a rigidly limited concept of legislative power in state and national government to a wide-ranging definition of the law-making authority. This, Professor Swindler concludes, led logically to the second period, in which precedents in law based upon the earlier narrow concept, has to be overturned and replaced by new interpretations based upon the broad concept.

This trend of decisions introduced the third period, which reached its climax in the Warren Court and was dramatized in the division of the court into "activists" led by Justices William O. Douglas and Hugo L. Black, and the advocates of "restraint," led by the late Justice Felix Frankfurter and the present Justice John M. Harlan. The "activists" see the Constitution as self-enforcing, while the Frankfurter-Harlan group continues to support a broad view of legislative power provided that the legislature rather than the court elects to use the power.

Five on Leave For COSIP Work

Five members of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences are undertaking research projects during the second semester during the College Science Improvement Program (COSIP), funded by the National Science Foundation.

The major curriculum study and enrichment program in the departments of economics, government, psychology, sociology and anthropology, was begun in 1968.

Glen D. Shean, associate professor of psychology will study the reaction of schizophrenics to different kinds of emotional stimuli and will spend most of his time in England at the Maudsley Hospital of the University of London.

Clyde A. Haulman, assistant professor of economics, will be at Duke University doing research on demography and population studies. Dr. Haulman is particularly interested in the economic aspects of internal migration and hopes in the future to begin a study of the labor movements in the Tidewater area, expanding on work that has already been done in this field.

Roger W. Smith, assistant professor of government, will be working on the manuscript of a study of unconscious guilt in politics, a political and psychological study. He is the editor of a book "Guilt, Man and Society," a collection of twelve essays, including one of his own which is to be published in February by Anchor Books.

Ellen Rosen Bauer, assistant professor of psychology will begin a study of protein deficiency and emotionality in rats.

Elaine M. Themo, assistant professor of sociology, will conduct research on the attitudes of political legitimacy as a key to urban rioting.

NSF to Sponsor 13th Summer Institute

The College has been awarded a grant of $68,984 by the National Science Foundation for the 1971 Summer Institute in Science and Mathematics for Secondary School Teachers.

Dr. Benjamin R. Cato, Jr., associate professor of mathematics, will be director. Associate director will be Richard R. Prosl, associate professor of mathematics. The Institute will be held June 21-August 13.

This is the thirteenth consecutive Summer Institute in Science and Mathematics at the College, funded by the National Science Foundation.

Approximately 50 secondary school teachers will participate. Many of them will be returning to complete work on a Masters in Teaching of Science degree.

Committee Begins Search for New President

A 12-MEMBER committee of students, faculty, alumni and members of the Board of Visitors has begun its search for the 24th President of the College. Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32 will step down from that post at the end of August.

The search committee has been asked to propose a minimum of two nominations for the presidency. Final selection of a new President is the responsibility of the Board of Visitors.

The committee appropriately held its first meeting in historic surroundings—the Blue Room of the Sir Christopher Wren Building.

Members of the committee include Mrs. Pamela Pauly Chinnis '46 of Alexandria, who is serving her second term as president of the Society of the Alumni; and John E. Hocutt '35 of Newark, Delaware, who is in his second term as the Society's vice president.

Four other alumni are on the committee, serving as designates of the Board of Visitors. They are Ernest Goodrich, Rector of the Board; R. Harvey Chappell, Jr., Vice Rector; Frank W. Cox, Secretary and Dr. George Sands. Also representing the Board on the search committee is Frederick Deane, Jr., a Richmond banker.

Faculty representatives are Dr. Warner Moss, professor of government and director of the Marshall-Wythe Institute; and Dr. Leonard G. Schiffrin, head of the economics department; and Dr. Charles F. Marsh, former Dean of the Faculty who later served as President of Wofford College. Dr. Marsh, currently a lecturer in the School of Business Administration, represents faculties of the professional schools in the search effort.

Students on the committee are Miss Win Legerton of Atlanta, a senior who is president of the Student Association; and Robert H. Ranson of Hawthorne, New York, a sophomore who is vice president of the SA.

Dr. W. Melville Jones, retiring vice president for academic affairs at William and Mary, is serving as coordinator for the committee.

Meanwhile, a nine-member search committee has been named to propose a successor to Dr. Jones, who also retires at the end of August.

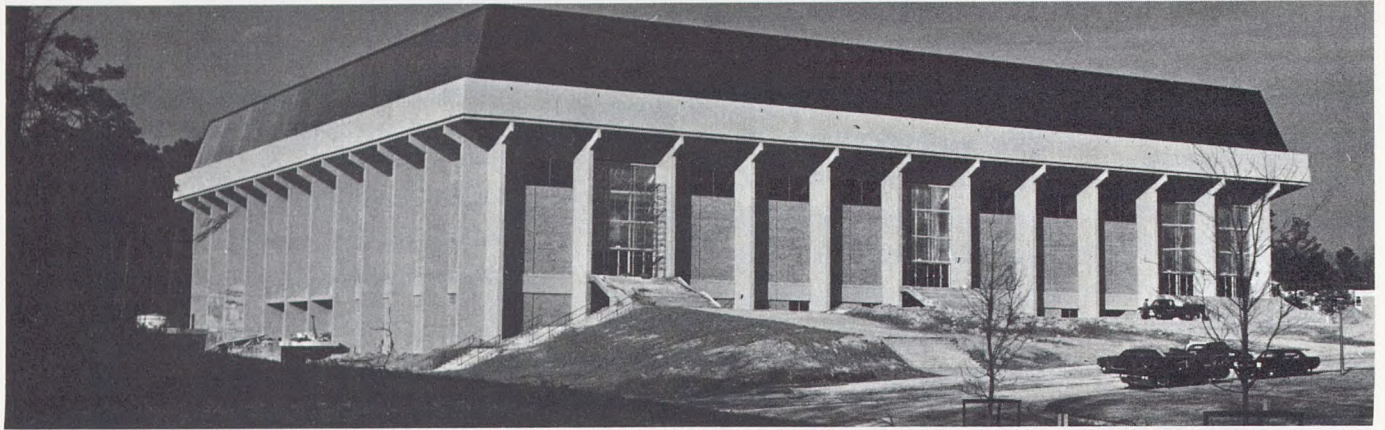

The committee, headed by Dr. Harold L. Fowler, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences, includes Deans James P. Whyte, Law; Richard Brooks, Education and D. J. Herrmann, Continuing Studies; Professors Richard M. Brown, History; Leland E. Traywick, Business Administration; and John L. McKnight, Physics; and James F. Almand and Miss Charlotte W. Sandquist, who are chairmen of the Men's and Women's Honor Councils.

The latter search committee has been asked to propose either two or three nominations for the position being vacated by Dr. Jones.

Santa Claus
Out of Uniform

BY

BOUNCING ebulliently across campus, coat unbuttoned, a slight paunch protruding over his belt, his round jolly face exuding optimism and unabridged joy in what he's doing, Alex Kallos looks like Santa Claus out of uniform. Like Santa Claus, he has a constituency of kids—older ones who make up the student body at the College of William and Mary. Dr. Kallos is a professor of modern languages by title; by spirit and dedication he is one of those rare individuals who are the very soul of a good liberal arts institution.

He can glower occasionally like Scrooge, usually at the beginning of a course. He takes a half hour at the first class to explain the rules of the game so the students will know exactly what's expected of them. He calls it his "how to be happy and successful in my course" lecture. Then he invites the dissillusioned to leave. No one has left in 26 years of teaching.

But as firmly as he believes in discipline in the classroom, Dr. Kallos believes the professor must create a pleasant atmosphere for learning. This is what he is so good at—the ability to foster an open interchange of ideas between students and professor, yet maintain strict and demanding standards.

"The teacher has a strong obligation to give exams and let the student know where he stands as the course progresses," he says. "It's most unfair to let the student flounder until the end of the course in a sea of uncertainty and then shock him with the knowledge that he is in danger of failing."

Essentially he says, what really counts at William and Mary is what the professor does in the classroom. He should know. After 22 years of teaching at William and Mary, he is still considered by students as one of the most dynamic and best professors on campus.

He came to William and Mary in 1949 for an interview. He had three other offers, and William and Mary was to be one of several visits to institutions, but he was unprepared to resist the reception he received in Williamsburg. When he stepped off the train after an all-night trip from Philadelphia, he asked some students if they would tell him how to get to William and Mary. "No," they answered, "but we will show you."

If the friendliness of that first encounter impressed him, the sternness of Dean Sharvey Umbeck assured that he wouldn't visit those other institutions. After an interview with the chairman of the Department of Modern Languages, he entered Dean Umbeck's office prepared for another grilling. Umbeck didn't ask a single question; instead he reached into his desk drawer, pulled out a contract, peered at Dr. Kallos with his big black eyes, and commanded: "Sign here." Intimidated, Dr. Kallos obeyed immediately.

Dr. Kallos is one of those outgoing omnipresent individuals on campus whom everybody knows, but nobody knows much about. He was born in Vienna in 1914. His father was a journalist and economist who wrote a newspaper column on economic theory; his mother was a linguist who translated children's books from English to German. By the time he was six, he could speak three languages and had an appreciation of theatre and opera which is as natural to the Viennese as baseball is to Americans.

After high school, Dr. Kallos took a job in a bookstore, specialized for three years at the Vienna Commercial Academy in booklore, and attended a People's University at night. He also enrolled in the Max Rheinhardt theatre seminars and acted in a number of plays by Gorky, Shakespeare, Schiller, and other playwrights over the next five years. The training on the stage was invaluable, he says, because it enabled him to convey better his own thoughts and gave him a better understanding of mankind and other nationalities. To this day, he says, he abhors parochialism and supernationalism, so often based on a lack of understanding of other people.

He studied at the university for nine years and picked up about the "equivalent of a double B.A. degree." He left Austria in 1938 and went to France for two years where he continued his studies and worked as a teacher and translator in Paris. In 1940, he went to America, selecting Philadelphia to settle because it had a large German community, a good university with an excellent modern languages department, and a cultured environment.

All of that had to wait, however, because Uncle Sam had other ideas. Drafted into the Army almost as soon as he arrived in America, he trained at Fort Meade, Maryland, in Georgia, and at Fort Edwards near Boston, and then was sent back overseas to serve in intelligence in Italy and Sicily. Discharged in 1945 at the rank of master sergeant, he returned to Philadelphia and entered the University of Pennsylvania in the masters program in foreign languages. He also took a position as chairman of the Department of Languages of the Veterans Accelerated Program, designed to help returning veterans who needed a few more courses to qualify for college on the GI Bill.

Dr. Kallos fit the bill perfectly for the William and Mary opening when he finished up his master's degree. The modern languages department was looking for someone with an M.A. degree who could teach both German and French. There was one stipulation to the job; the individual who accepted it had to agree to return to school eventually and study for his Ph.D. Dr. Kallos managed the Ph.D. without ever leaving the College for an extended period of time. He took all of the courses during the summers at the University of Michigan, under his old department chairman who taught there during the summer months, and at the University of Pennsylvania, where he received the Ph.D. Magna Cum laude in 1956. In fact, in 22 years he has been away from William and Mary for only one academic year—on a leave of absence to serve as a Fulbright Exchange Professor in Germany.

Dr. Kallos believes the most successful student is the one who balances his studies with student activities. He practices what he preaches. He has probably served on more committees and been involved in more student activities than nearly any professor on campus. On a given Sunday afternoon, he may be impossible to catch as he hurries to as many as three different student events in the space of a few hours. For 18 years, he was chairman of the Publications Committee. His admonition to student editors: print anything you want, discuss any topic you want, no matter how controversial, but don't attack individuals and don't use vulgarity. For the past five years, he has been a faculty member of Omicron Delta Kappa, and for the past two the official faculty advisor to the leadership fraternity.

Dr. Kallos is coordinator of German and Russian in the Modern Languages Department. He supervises the majors and offerings and assigns teaching schedules to the faculty in those areas. He assigns his own classes, and one might expect him to take only upper division courses, but he insists on teaching some freshmen and sophomore students each semester. “The most experienced teachers should teach the beginners,” he says, “because it is so important that they start off on the right track.” In addition, this year he began a new course—“Modern German Literature in English Translation.” Two years in preparation, it is an interdisciplinary course for all kinds of majors. He has 41 students in two sections of the class.

Dr. Kallos sees as many students outside of the classroom as inside. His colleagues have kiddingly labeled him “Uncle Alex” and “Big Daddy Kallos.” He pleads guilty. “That chair,” he says, pointing to one next to his desk, “is always filled.” He counsels them on personal as well as academic problems, insists that they husband their energies, yet play as hard as they study, and, perhaps most important in Dr. Kallos' view, maintain a sense of humor.

In 22 years, Dr. Kallos has had a number of attractive offers from other universities, but two years ago, after turning down an attractive contract from a prestige southern university, he decided to stay until the end of his teaching career at William and Mary. “I've been here more than two decades,” he says, “and, all parties willing, I plan to remain 14 years more.”

He almost broke that vow last spring—the most unhappy period since he came to William and

Mary. “Students had become so politicized and so intense that the atmosphere was poisonous,” he says. “For the first time since I can remember they had lost their sense of humor and balance. Students simply could not keep their minds on their work, they were so upset and hysterical—even those who were normally calm and deliberate.”

That balance and sense of humor returned to William and Mary last fall, among students and faculty alike. In fact, says Dr. Kallos, the fall semester was the best in his career at William and Mary. “I have never seen freshmen who are as intelligent, diligent, attentive, and pleasant as those on campus this year.” Moreover, he adds, they have a marvelous sense of humor, and people have begun to talk again.

Dr. Kallos resents the philosophy that every university or college must be the same. “William and Mary,” he says, “has a special task and tradition—the teaching of liberal arts.” One of his patron saints is Jefferson—“that marvelous combination of the democrat and the elite.” It was Jefferson who so aptly captured the essence of William and Mary in his description of “good minds learning under great ones.” That tradition still lives at the College, in the person of professors such as Alex Kallos.

FOOTBALL:

Tangerine Bowl Performance

Ends Indians' Second

Season Under Lou Holtz

The 1970 season for William and Mary's football Indians ended with the Southern Conference championship and the first post-season Bowl invitation in 22 years.

Despite a fairly closely matched first half, the Indians were trampled 42-10 by the unbeaten University of Toledo in the December 28 Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla. Hundreds of alumni attended the game, many traveling in a special train from Richmond.

The Southern Conference title was earned with a one-point victory over the University of Richmond, a win which came in the last seconds of the traditional Thanksgiving week game. The Indians had earlier defeated Davidson, by a single point, and VMI (24-10), losing only to the Citadel (7-16) among Conference games.

The Indians' final record was 5-6. Besides the Southern Conference wins, the team brought down Ohio Wesleyan and Connecticut. It lost to West Virginia, Miami of Florida, Cincinnati, Virginia and Virginia Tech.

The 1970 season was the second for Head Coach Lou Holtz, who had been an assistant coach at William and Mary in 1961-63. His first season at the helm left the Indians with a 3-7 record. Between his first and second terms at William and Mary, he had served on the staffs of the University of Connecticut, the University of South Carolina and Ohio State University.

There were a number of '25 faces mixed with the reunion Class of 1925 at Homecoming last October for a happy meeting of many old friends. Wish you could have been there for it was a gay and most enjoyable weekend.

In fact, Stanley Gay himself was among those at a lively supper party on Friday night given by David and Dottie Powers at their attractive home in Queen's Lake near Williamsburg. Stanely must be living in a time capsule for he is just as you remember him. David and Dottie keep busy with personal and community projects, a grand pair.

On Saturday Billy and Emlie Person gave a beautiful "brunch" before the football game for a number of friends to start the day's festivities. Among the first to greet me was Alice Person, straight, willowy, and looking much as ever. She is associated with the various family enterprises. Ramon Andrews and his lovely Gay were there from Richmond. Exchanged greetings with Charlotte Shipman (Mrs. Gardiner Brooks) of Williamsburg, Eddie Islin from Newport News, and a number of others I wish I could recall. But it will always be easy to remember

Billy and Emlie and such a happy occasion.

After the football game, an event merely mentioned in passing, we returned to the Lodge and shared the hospitality of many old friends of the Class of '25. Later at the alumni dinner were Rolfe Kennard and Dele adding one more to their unbroken Homecoming attendance record; Judge Ted Dalton and Mary; Carroll Quaintance proving there is no generation gap in dancing if you have the steam; Robert Duncan of Williamsburg—all contributed to a very pleasant evening.

A note from Hawk and Ettabelle Northington, taking life easy at Silver Spring, Md. While Ettabelle is busy with community projects, Hawk applies the scientific approach to inside straights.

Trixie Johnson is at home in Emporia, not far from Lawrenceville where Maude Purdy (Mrs. R. F. Lynch) has returned to her native heath.

Handsome, personable Tommy Jordan has made it big in the heavy equipment and barge business in New Orleans. And going strong.

From Richmond a beautiful card with a beautiful name—Lee Antoinette Paulus. Remember her?

And cards from Harry and Evelyn Wilkins of Eastville, the land of real salt oysters; and Jack and Mary Holladay of Carrollton, Va.

This mish-mash of Homecoming recollections and holiday greeting will seem a bit stale by the time it is printed, but even so, I wish every member of the class a full year of good health and contentment. And a special thanks to all those who so generously contributed to the W&M Fund.

26

Cooper D. Ponton and his wife, Virginia Melton, are in Scarsdale, N. Y. where they have lived for the past 30 years. He is now retired and writes that they expect to attend his 45th reunion this year. Their daughter, Lisa Ponton, graduated from the College in 1960.

This report has to be in Billsville Dec. 31. What a time to have homework to be done! But at least it gives me a chance to thank those of you who sent me Christmas greetings and to wish a really good 1971 to all our classmates.

Had such an interesting letter from Art Matsu. After 25 years on the faculty at Rutgers Univ., he fell in love with Phoenix, Ariz., and has lived there about 15 years, in real estate investment. Art says it's "The Valley of the Sun" and pictures of the countryside really look beautiful. Carl Andrews, Yel Kent and "Goofy" Magnus have stopped in at different times to see him and they thought it was fabulous too!

I am sure all of you know that Art made the first Sports Hall of Fame last year. And Frank Hopkins won the coveted Alumni Medallion. They have brought much honor to the Class of '27.

For my money, no football has ever been as exciting as "Matsu to Davis" and I bet many of you agree with me!

Ed Taylor wrote that Max Brockenbrough (Houghland) and her nice husband Wright have come down from N. Y. state to spend the winter in Urbanna. She says they have a fabulous view of the Rappahanock, and she loves it. We are going to have a get-together soon—Fax Griffith Nefzger is nearby, Max has been in touch with her and we'll try to get her too. We might even persuade Pattie Hunter Clarke to come over from Whaleyville.

Max was secretary-treasurer of our class and my dear roommate. Their son, Wright Jr., is an architect in Williamsburg.

Gladys Van Volkenburgh is a wonderfully busy beaver! She says life begins at sixtyish and she really proves it. She retired in 1962 after 16 years service on the State Board of Education, now she is in her second four year term as Secretary of the Board of Directors of Virginia State College in Petersburg, plus being a library trustee and active in 2 churches! She is Mrs. R. Page Morton, has one daughter and lives in Charlotte Court House,—write again, Gladys, please. It was good to hear from you.

Tom Yates is treasurer of Bernardi Bros. in Harrisburg, Pa., a subsidiary of the Lionel Corp. He retires March 1, and he says he looks forward to our BIG reunion in 1972! Good for you, Tom, we're all going to plan on seeing you there.

Now, a request from Art Matsu which I hope someone can come up with. In 1926 he was one of the inventors of the revue "Minus Mary"—all male cast, remember? Art helped name the show—and a catchy title it was!—and designed the program. He would like so much to have a copy of the program as a treasured memento. Does anyone have one? If so, send it to Art at 1800 North Central Ave., Phoenix, Ariz. 85013—he will be delighted to have it.

Well, that's all, folks, and though it'll be March before you get this—Bonne Année!

Lucile Eastham Michie of Charlottesville, Va. is now Chief Psychologist for the Charlottesville Public Schools. Recently she received the nomination through Radio Station WCHV as "The Man of the Day"! This award carries a certificate and a dinner for two at Charlottesville's well known Gas Light Restaurant where a red carpet and all other "royal" treatment is accorded one.

Melba Gravely Finch of Richmond, Va. is still teaching at Thomas Jefferson High School. Last July she travelled in England, Scotland and Wales with her daughter Carole; and in August travelled to Tokyo and Hong Kong with Medical Society of Virginia's "Orient Adventure."

Edwin L. Lamberth of Norfolk, Va. is still fighting the battle of the schools as Superintendent. Has been in this position since 1960. Dot '29 his wife, makes a home for him and son, Dr. E. L. Lamberth, Jr., resident physician at Norfolk General. Their daughter, Donna, is now Mrs. D. H. Nash of Honolulu.

First of all, happy New Year to you all. We wish to thank you for the many Christmas cards from class members. Our list of those sending cards is increasing each year and they help us to keep in touch with you.

We know you will be saddened to learn of the passing of Hanson C. (Bob) Wescott, whose death is reported under Vital Statistics in this issue.

An article in The Roanoke Times reports that Mrs. Page Vaughan Wright, Executive Director of the Roanoke Valley Red Cross Chapter for more than 33 years will retire early in 1971. She said that she felt no other work than hers here with the Red Cross could be more rewarding or more interesting.

Mrs. Betsy Price Green is in library work with the Henrico County School System. Betsy and her husband, "Dauba," have a daughter and son, who are both married.

Mrs. Mildred Dudley Anderson reports that her husband is a professor in the University of California. They live in Riverside.

So good to hear from Mrs. Elizabeth Liz Duke Rueger, Jr., who we have not heard from for a long time. Her daughter, Betty Lou, married a W&M boy and they have two children. Liz says she hopes to be able to join our Homecoming class in the future. She is living in Richmond.

Arthur P. Henderson of Portsmouth has been in the newspaper business since graduation and currently is Business Editor of the Norfolk Ledger-Star. He is a biographer in the new Who's Who In America. He will also be in World's Who's Who in Finance and Industry. Arthur and his wife toured the west in July and had a chat with Nyle Miller at Topeka, Kans.

Mrs. Charlotte Miley Allen had hoped to return for Homecoming but had other conflicts. They are living in the country about ten miles from Durham, N. C., where her husband is in the insurance business.

Mrs. Hazel Saunders Weaver, Cathedral City, Calif. reports that her husband, Sam, has retired from practice of medicine after 40 years. They have converted "this desert retreat" into home and are away from congestion, smog and noise.

A card from Caleb and Kay Cushing says they will be back in their church, Greene Memorial, soon after extensive renovation where they are both Ministers of Music.

Boyd Carter and wife, Eileen, Columbia, Mo. went by train to Williamsburg and spent a delightful four days there with members of his family. His brother, J. D. Carter, retired from the College in 1965.

E. Raymond Lewis was very disappointed that he was unable to attend Homecoming but a week later he and his wife, Lelia, spent a wonderful weekend in Williamsburg and enjoyed visiting around the College. He expects to be back for Homecoming this fall.

Long Christmas letters came in from Joe James, Millwood, and Billy Bickers from American University Hospital, Beirut, Lebanon. The Bickers plan to return to Richmond in 1971 and no doubt will be seeing them often in the future.

Contributions from the class to The William and Mary Fund have been rolling in and just in case you have not heard and want to make plans ahead, the 1971 Homecoming date is October 23. Do keep your letters coming as we are always glad to hear from you.

It seems as though I saw more than 22 of the green and white Class of '30 buttons being sported around campus during the 1970 Homecoming activities, but the register in Phi Beta showed 22 signed in. The one coming the greatest distance was Dr. Simon M. Shubitz and his wife, Helene. They came across the country from N. Hollywood, Calif., where they live and Simon practices medicine. I have received many compliments on the Class Directories gotten together by the Alumni Office and want to pass along the appreciation of all of us to those who did the work. We picked up some additional information of those listed as "Missing": Irene Holland Bennett's (Mrs. Dalton Young) address is 3701 25th St. N. Arlington, Va.; Dorothy Lee Glenn's (Mrs. Ben Shook) is 1043 Hess Terrace, Las Cruces, N. M.; Swain Wool lives at 502 W. 122nd St. Apt. 42, New York City; Sara Ann Brewster (Mrs. Gene Edwards) on Main St. Weston, W. Va.; Millison Elias Finney can be found in Belle Haven, Accomack Co., Va.; Elizabeth Wood Price (Green) lives in Martinsburg, W. Va.; Ruth Whitehead is Mrs. Hubert Morrison of Covington, Va.; and Wilford Collison Files is now at 105 Mill Rd., Hampton, N. H. The information pertaining to Betsy Nicholson is true for Peggy Nininger Bailey. Peggy and her husband, whom she "won" in a math class, were back. He was her professor before he was her husband. He is listed in Who's Who in the North West and is a former President of the Indiana Manufacturing Association. Betsy Nicholson is Mrs. R. S. Marshall of Alexandria, Va.

Sally Copenhaver Southworth is teaching in Richmond but is looking forward to retiring soon. Sally, you will find many members of our class are enthusiastic members of that group. Dr. Robert P. Price is chairman of the Dept. of Psychology at United States International University, San Diego, Calif. and regrets that his duties kept him from being with us in October. A most interesting letter from John Ely in West Orange, N. J. has given me the following information. Wilford Files, popularly known on campus as "Shorty" is now respectfully known as the Rev. Wilford Files, rector of the Episcopal Church in Hampton, N. H. John and Shorty roomed together for three semesters in the home of Bishop John B. Bentley, then assistant rector of Bruton Parish. Under the encouragement and sponsorship of the Rt. Rev. Bentley, Bishop of Alaska, Shorty entered the ministry and served with him in missionary work in Alaska for over 25 years. Shorty and his wife, Ann, have one son, W. C. Files, Jr., who after receiving his education in the New England area returned to live and work in Ft. Yukon. Shorty was John's best man when he and Betty Hugo ('31) were married.

The Class of 1932 news is very short. Ruth Eyre Starkey has completed 40 years service with the United Church Board for World Ministries. She has served on the Executive Staff as Assistant Purchasing Agent, as Personnel Director and as Associate Regional Secretary for the Pacific. Ruth will retire to her native state of Massachusetts in the spring.

Jane Gilliam has completed 34 years of teaching in the high schools of Virginia, and is now living in Phenix, Va.

33

Macon F. Fears of Drakes Branch, Va. is chairman of Southside Virginia Community College Board with one campus in Charlotte County and another in Brunswick County.

Alice Castator Schuchert of Pittsburgh, Pa. writes that she and her husband returned from a 7-week visit to Europe last fall and on their return decided no castle over there looked as good as "ye old homestead."

A. Rufus Tonelson of Norfolk, Va. writes that his son, Louis, '68 is presently working on Master's Degree at the College and was married in January of this year to Anita Shapiro.

Helen Glass Clifton of Bluefield, W. Va. writes that she is a housemother for the third year at the University of Kentucky in a residence hall for freshman boys.

34

Frances Spindle Harris of Richmond, Va. writes that she enjoyed travelling to South America last Christmas (1969). This past summer she had another interesting trip. Left New York on Giant 747 Jet and landed in England (London). She thought it a wonderful experience. After touring on the continent by boat, train, bus and plane, and seeing the Passion Play, she arrived home just in time to begin the busy and interesting life of a school teacher.

Elise Barnes Hardy and her husband took a Virginia State Bar Association "Orient Adventure" in October and visited Tokyo, Hongkong and Bangkok. While in Hongkong, she bumped into Hebe Ruggieri Redden, which explains why we haven't had Hebe's address! Hebe's husband is on leave from the University of Virginia School of Law, and last year served in Saigon as a legal advisor to Vietnam. Currently, they are in Hongkong. Hebe was a Fulbright Professor of American Literature at the University of Saigon. Elise's husband, Jim, who is a lawyer with Southern Railway Co., in Washington, recently supervised the transfer of a sizeable number of law books from Southern's Library to William and Mary. The Law library used to be the main library when Elise and Harriet Council took their library science courses for their degree in library science.

In December, Judge Gregory Lagakos of Philadelphia was honored at a formal dinner at the Royal Greek Embassy in Washington, D. C. and was presented the insignia of the Commander of the Royal Order of the Phoenix, by his Excellency the Ambassador of Greece to the United States. Judge Lagakos had previously been awarded the Gold Cross of the Royal Order of King George I, and granted the title of "Eminent Archon Jurist" by His Holiness Patriarch Athenagoras I, for his services to the Church. Gregory has a long record of civic activities and has brought honor to our class of 1935.

Laura Coleman Meagher and her husband Richard, have had numerous exhibits of their work in Virginia and elsewhere, and this year had a husband and wife art exhibit in Roanoke. After graduating from William and Mary, Laura took a degree in art history at the Sorbonne and did studio work in Paris. She has also studied in art schools in Colorado, Ogunquit, Maine and Richmond, Virginia. She is a former art critic of the Richmond New Leader, and is now teaching art in North Cross School in Roanoke County, while her husband is an architect and past president of the Roanoke Fine Arts Center, and past president of Virginia Chapter, American Institute of Architects.

Robert Ranson retired from the Army January 1970 as Lieut. Colonel, and is now a field supervisor for Selective Service.

Rose Mary Codell Brooks has moved in the past year to a recently restored and remodeled 1840 home in the country ten miles from Winchester, Ky. Her son is a sophomore at Vanderbilt and her daughter is a junior at Hannah More Academy in Maryland.

Judy Thomas Boyden and her husband, Ken, have recently retired to Daytona, Fla., after a most interesting life abroad. Ken was an Agricultural Credit Advisor with the Foreign Aid Program. From 1961 to 1964, they were in Taiwan, and while there Judy taught in the Chinese Officers Language School. In 1964, they went to Malawi, Africa, a former British colony where many British officials were training the Africans to take over the government. There Judy worked in the African Hospital and for the Red Cross. Judy and Ken were able to travel to many countries either on R and R or en route to their post. Now they are enjoying golf in Florida.

Harriet Council Mead's home town, Orlando, Florida, played host to William and Mary's football team in the Tangerine Bowl in December, and the Park Plaza was the meeting place for many William and Mary familiar faces . . .

Anne Reynolds Wood writes from Washington that she and Ed had a month in Europe this Fall and attended the Passion Play. She is doing volunteer work for Alphi Chi Omega as District Alumnae Chairman for Delaware, Maryland, D. C., Virginia and North Carolina.

Marion Carliss Beavers and husband, Ken, are busy building a cottage in North Carolina. Their home is in Florida.

Bud Tulin has retired from the U. S. Air Force after twenty-eight years of active duty. He is attending Indiana University completing requirements for his Master's Degree, then will move to East Norwalk, Conn., next summer.

Dr. Maurice Nance has been named Vice President, Medical and Regulatory Affairs, Pharmaceuticals, Smith Kline & French (Philadelphia). Congratulations!!

T. Edward Temple is Commissioner of Administration for Governor Holton and considered an outstanding educator and public servant. Last May he was selected Grand Marshall for the 30th annual Nelson County Day Parade.

Winnie Nelson Fisher visited Williamsburg this Fall on the way back from Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands. Her oldest daughter is married and lives in Richmond. The other two daughters are college students in California. Winnie and Bob reside in Woodside, Calif.

Frances Maddrey Healey has moved from Williamsburg to Norfolk where she is now Placement Officer at Old Dominion University.

Joseph Marino writes from Colonis, New Jersey, that he retired from coaching football at the end of 1969 after thirty-one years.

Peg Sheahan is a busy professor teaching at Marymount College in New York and traveling around various parts of the world.

Keep the letters coming.

Helene Stein Brandon is enjoying the freedom one finds after retiring from teaching. She and Tom were at Homecoming.

George E. Anner is still at University of Illinois (Urbana-Champaign Campus) where he is Professor of Electrical Engineering.

Edythe Dank Lever writes she is assisting in her husband's office now—medicine paper work is so involved his secretary needs an assistant. They have traveled in the Caribbean and were hoping to go to Rome and Florence last November. Son Andrew teaches instrumental music in the Port Chester, N. Y., also conducts. Lawrence graduated cum laude from Cornell in June and is now at the Cornell University Law School.

Joan Thompson Hicks and husband, Bruce, were both on leave of absence from University of Illinois for the fall term, so that he could develop computer aided instruction at the University of British Columbia. She writes Vancouver is really a beautiful city.

Last April, M. Gill Piquette was selected to do a special job for her agency, The Foreign Agricultural Service, U.S.D.A. She is the Equal Employment Opportunity Coordinator—trouble shooter for all cases of discrimination because of race, color, creed, sex and natural origin. What a challenge, Gill, but we are sure you can handle it efficiently.

Margileth Meyer Anderson has acquired two daughters-in-law recently. Son Joe has been in service and will continue work on his Ph.D. in economics, married last May. In August, David, who is a senior at Oklahoma University, pre-med, was married.

From Lakewood, California comes a plea from Jack Lemanski. He would like to hear from anyone in the classes of '38 to '42 who live in the southern California area. How about contacting him at 5425 Graywood Ave., Lakewood, 90712?

Christmas brought cards from several faithful classmates—Margie Beggs Brice, Mildred Albee Babb, Jane Robertson

Litzenberg. Jane Speakman Hauge had a grand trip this past fall to the British Isles with her father, so missed Homecoming. She was very impressed, as I am sure all of us were, with the President's Ten Year Report.

Greetings came from Tobago from Jim Knox and his wife, Peg. They spent the winter sailing around the Caribbean, returned to West Vancouver in February and by the time you read this they will be in Europe.

Dotty Kincaid Portz writes that she is practicing law in Solon, Ohio and really enjoys it. She relayed the news that Beth Bowden College is back in the Wilmington Del. area, living at Box 22-C, R.D. #2, Hockessin, Del. 19707.

Sympathy from all the class is extended to Nancy Adams Barr, whose husband, Charles, died last September. She is working at the Lexington Clinic, where she has worked and substituted the last several years.

When you read this in the March Gazette how about dropping me a line telling of your activities so we can keep track of each other?

Not quite the swinger it was last year, but reports indicate that the '39ers managed to uphold their "reunion" reputation. Jordan Sizemore's records of the big bands, Margaret Krueger's famous homemade bread and chicken salad, Peggy Prickett Miller's shrimp dish, and good ole' Smithfield ham at the after-game party in the Hospitality Room, and the "Recovery Room" Sunday morning all contributed to '39 traditions established at last year's gala.

On the grand tour for Carnegie-Mellon this fall I've had reunions with Jan Kennedy, Peggy and Miley Miller, and Barbie and Charles Carter. So though I missed the big event, I did have a chance to catch up with old friends.

Dot Hosford Smith and Herb planned to take his mother to Hawaii for the Christmas holidays.

Kendall Beavers and Marion Corliss Beavers of Tallahassee, Fla. are brand new grandparents for the first time. They write they are building a hideaway cottage near Franklin, N. C.

Frances Hiden Fitzhugh of McLean, Va. writes that her Navy Captain husband retired last July; eldest son, Gill, a W&L University graduate is now an Ensign on submarine; Philip is a senior at W&M; Grayson is a junior at W&L University; and fourth son, Woody, is a freshman at Hampden Sydney College. She stays busy with church work and playing in their greenhouse with camellia plants.

James M. Bailey of Brenau College in Gainesville, Ga. was selected to appear in the 1970 edition of "Outstanding Educators of America." He is presently head of the History Department at Brenau.

FACT OR FANCY?

IN THE SPRING a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of . . . love, baseball, vacation, new clothes. The fact of it is that you'll get nearly as many different opinions as you have young men. It's probably not too fanciful to suppose that young galahads think sometimes of love, other times of baseball or vacation, and always of clothes. If you know a man like that, tell him about us, and tell him to "Dress Right. Your Clothes Never Stop Talking About You." And when you sum that all up, you have fact, not fancy! So, come visit us in our new home—The Newest Old Store in the Oldest New City.

Evelyn Robinson Funk (Mrs. John B.) is listed in Who's Who of American Women this year (Vol. 7). Congratulations, Evelyn—I'm glad your friends told us the good news.

Had such a nice letter from Len Owen who had planned to go to Homecoming but at the last minute couldn't attend because of the death of his mother-in-law. Since his write-up in the Colonial Re-echo he has a third grandchild. They have two children still single and in preparation for an expanding family and large get-togethers he is remodeling his house.

Herbert W. Brockett of 172 Borrmann Rd., East Haven, Conn. has been named general manager of Central Guard Service, Inc. where he is now responsible for all operations of the 285-man organization in all phases of security management.

Benjamin W. Letson has been appointed division superintendent of Alleghany County, Virginia schools where he heads a 3200 pupil system. Ben and his wife, Sarah Burton, live on Route 5 in Covington.

Alfred Alley also received the Legion of Merit on his retirement from the USAF. He and his family are now in Fair Oaks, California and Al is working on his Master's Degree in English at Sacramento State College and eventually wants to teach on the junior college level.

My Christmas cards brought lots of news. David and Barbara Milligan Molyneux have moved from Dansville, N. Y. to Myrtle Beach, S. C. Their daughter presented them with their first grandchild and their son is in the Coast Guard stationed in Duluth, Minn.

Jean Clarahan Bratton writes from Avon, Conn. that her youngest child, Chris, is at Carlton College in Minn., son, Dan, is a senior at Knox and daughter, Anne and husband and little girl are in Binghamton, so they see them quite often.

Rosa Ellis Long's family are very involved. Son, Bob, is a high school junior, selecting a college; daughter, Jaqui, graduated from Russell Sage College in May and is at home with son, Jason, while her husband is in Viet Nam; son, Mike, is studying electronics at Erie County Community College and son, Bill is on leave of absence from Syracuse University to work with the National Student Association in Washington in drug studies. Rosa went to Wyoming with 32 girl scouts in August, has started working as Public Relations director for Girl Scouts and plans an Easter trip to Mexico.

John and Marion Milne Barba went around the world in September in 24 days, spending a fantastic 10 days with son, John, in the Peace Corps in Nepal. Father and son trekked for three days in the Himalayas while Marion rested at a country lodge on an island reached by raft with a staff of 19 Gurkas to wait on her alone! Their daughter, Margaret, is living in Marion's old room at the Kappa House and graduates in June.

Ginny Claudon Allen's son, Jeff, is at University of Denver having spent the summer managing the Antiques of Georgetown Shop. Her daughter, Pam, will graduate from Boston University and is thinking of teaching abroad. She and Pam worked at the American Arts this summer and Ginny has been immersed in studying science-fiction and comparative religion, reviewing her French and writing Zen poems—a busy, busy girl!

Jane Harden Hanson wrote that Tim broke his leg in four places jumping ashore at the conclusion of the Newport-Bermuda yacht race so has 8 inches of steel holding his leg together. Their daughter, Kim, graduates in June from Bryn Mawr and will go on to law school at William and Mary, She's "a towering 4'10" and the image of her pappy." Daughter, Jenny, is an accomplished horse woman and will go to boarding school next year.

I know all join in sending sympathy to Shirley Sheain Battison on the death of her husband, Bill, just 10 days after they'd attended Homecoming.

Ginny Brenn Steele writes the biggest thrill she had at Homecoming was seeing Louise ElyNestle for the first time since graduation. Ginny's daughter Georgia, is a freshman at Purdue.

Peggy Prickett Miller and Frank are up to their necks in their retirement venture—Bestline, Inc. Frank has retired from the Army and they are back in their home in Annandale, Va. Three of their sons are at West Point—Dick, a Major is a physics instructor; Bob is a second classman and Jerry is a yearling; the fourth, Brink is a Captain and doing graduate work in mechanical engineering at University of Ill. Daughter, Maile and her Captain husband are stationed in Germany; Peggy, jr. is a freshman at William and Mary; and lastly, Polly is at home, a sophomore in high school. The Millers have six granddaughters!

Homecoming was delightful, as always. I am sorry that I could not be there for the entire weekend, but I loved every minute and thoroughly enjoyed being invited to join in some of the Class of 1940's reunion festivities. Hopefully, our 30th reunion next year will be as great.

Congratulations to two of our classmates who were honored at Homecoming. Bob Hornsby, a business executive and member of Williamsburg City Council, was awarded an alumni medallion for services and loyalty to the College and Paul Kormic LaPolla was reelected to the Alumni Board of Directors.

I received a letter from Kormic too late for the last Gazette in which he said that he and Joann love living in La Jolla, Calif. Paula, their oldest child, will graduate in June from Hunter in New York City, Susan is a senior at Judson Boarding School in Scottsdale, Ariz. and Mark, who is ten, is at home. Kormic is Vice President of CRM Books and Director of Psychology Today Book Club.

Bob Kern, Assistant Manager of Consolidated Accounting with the Anaconda Co. in New York City, wrote a long, newsy letter. He, his wife, Gene, and two of their children visited Williamsburg in July and enjoyed a tour of the new campus with Jim Kelly. They also had a visit with Dean Lambert. Their older daughter, Barbara, lives and works in Boston having graduated from Endicott Jr. College in Beverly, Mass. in 1968. She studied medical secretarial science and now works in Boston City Hospital. Daughter, Patte, graduated in June from Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City and son, Mike, is a junior in high school. Bob and Gene spent a week in Bermuda to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

Aura Schroeder (Emery) is teaching Jr. High French (7th and 8th grades) in Scituate, Mass. and is planning a trip to Paris in April with daughter, Robin, aged 11.

A note from Dick Earle relates that they had a big church wedding in November when their daughter Carolyn Ann was married to Phillip Stoltz. And next June their oldest son, Raymond, will be married in the same church.

Dorothy Y. Judd is co-author of the new Spanish series published by American Book Co.—Espanol: lengua y cultura—textbooks, workbooks and tapes for secondary schools.

Peg Gildner (Coale) is still manager of employee news publications and community relations at The Aerospace Corp. in Los Angeles, where she has been since November, 1960. Peg became a grandmother when daughter, Penny, presented a grandson on Thanksgiving day, 1969. Peg has had a continuing career in the public relations field since 1947 and is listed in "Who's Who of American Women."

Beverly Boone (Jones) writes "never having been ill a day in my life, 1970 certainly has been a dandy. I picked up a virus in Texas last Christmas, spent nine months in the hospital and finally am now home, learning to walk with a walker. Expect to be as good as new by the New Year." Our best wishes for a speedy and complete recovery, Bev.

Happy New Year to each and everyone and remember me when you make your New Year's resolutions—I dearly love to get mail.

One of our class members, James L. Creekman, Jr., was in October awarded the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit and commended for exceptionally meritorious service as Director of Electronic Intelligence, Deputy Chief of Staff and Chief of Staff, Army Electronics Command since July, 1967. Jim has now retired as a Colonel in the Army and almost immediately started a new career as business administrator of the township of Holmdel in New Jersey, an interest he held during his work toward a degree in business administration at the College of William and Mary. . . .

We have received much news of our classmates' children, which I am forced to abbreviate with reluctance.

Elizabeth Douglas (Conwell) writes that she is teaching in elementary school in Swarthmore, Pa. Their five children include a married son in the Navy and another son in the Army.

Mary Ruth Black (Dowling) is a learning consultant for the Girl Scouts and a member of the Board. She has also been conducting some experimental workshops for the Nutrition Department of the Maryland State Department of Health. Daughter Lynne is a freshman at the College this year.

Pat Leonhard (Morell 44X and her husband, Bill, of our own class, write from the American Embassy in San Francisco, Calif., that Bill was transferred to the State Department two years ago, and they have spent two years in the Republic of China. They expect to spend another two years there.

Jean Outland (Chrysler) writes with excitement that the Chrysler Museum, founded by her husband in 1958 in Provincetown, Mass., is being given and moved to Norfolk, Virginia. They expect it to be open within six months, complete with all collections and the art reference library, which has been Jean's special interest.

Mary Figley (Willoughby) La Canada,

Calif. reports that when #1 daughter was married last summer in California, the wedding was attended by Ruth Rapp (Thayer), Bill and Pat Howard (Parry), and Louis C. Willoughby and Jane Austin (Willoughby), uncle and aunt of the bride.

Here's a quote from a note from Doris Berg-Johnsen (Kuhl), Kinnelon, N. J.: "Now that most of our children are married or off to school (or Vietnam), I've started a boutique. Most fun of all was shopping for exciting gifts in Europe when Carl and I were abroad.

Margaret Kelly (Dunham) is starting a new job as intern-teacher at the Mass. Hospital School for crippled children. She is also taking courses at Tufts College toward a master's degree in education. Son Nelson is spending an academic year abroad at the U. of Madrid.

Alice Walton (Swift) reports from Westport, Conn. of the activities of two sons—Bill now in law school and son Richard who had recently finished a National Science Foundation program in physics.

Annette Carter (Laird) of Rose Valley, Pa. has just finished writing a different kind of tour book, giving experiences she and her husband had (and photographed) showing notable and unspoiled places which have been preserved in the Middle Atlantic area. Title will be: Exploring from Chesapeake Bay to the Poconos—A Wayfarer's Guide. Publication by J. B. Lippincott Co. is scheduled for May, 1971.

Greetings from the gentle city. It was great going to the Yule Log ceremony at the College. Also took part in the Grand Illumination of the city which starts at the Capitol and ends in front of Dr. Paschall's house.

Pernie Weeks (Callahan) was voted "Teacher of the Year" in Warrenton, Va. and was presented with an engraved plaque. She is working towards her master's degree at the Univ. of Va.

Jane Enberg (Kindel) is living in Denver, Colo. One son is in the Air Force, another graduated from electronics school, and her daughter is in fourth grade.

Bob Sanderson is the director of the International Gallery in Memphis. He recently made arrangements for the showing of "American Navies of the Revolutionary War" at the Naval Academy museum in Annapolis. The same exhibit

Nancy Wescott (Larsen) writes that daughter, Sandy, was married in October and son, Bob, finished his Navy tour the following month. Another son, Henry, is in college in Montreal.

William C. Remick retired from the Navy in July in Norfolk and is working as Director, Campaign Headquarters for the Hon. Wm. C. Whitehurst.

Marguerite Shields (Clark) is doing graduate work and received an EPDA fellowship from Hampton Institute. She works with emotionally disturbed children and finds it very challenging.

Would like to hear from the rest of the class of 1943.

Honora Thompso recently visited three weeks in Morocco and Portugal. Pauline Hubler was at '45 reunion. First time in 25 years says Matilda Gentile Lewis and Clard have a son, Peyton at The College, another in graduate school at U.N.C. Winfred E. Jester of Cranford, N. J. is still a special agent for the F.B.I. His wife, Jayne (Ohio U.) teaches. Their son is a Freshman at V.P.I. Jean Bulette Boggs of Charlotte and her doctor husband, Larry are still great travelers. Their sons toured W. Europe and they themselves had the "sobering experience" of seeing Russia, Poland, Roumania, Hungary, and E. Germany. This Fall they went to a med seminar in the Orient. Jean Boyd McIntyre has moved to Norfolk from the Beach, notes that Freshman Betsy loves the College almost as much as Mom does.

Went to the Cold opening of the fantastic new Gym. (No Heat) You ex-basketball players and fans wouldn't believe! Hope some of you were listening to the W.M.—Richmond game. Two touchdowns in the last few minutes and a Southern Conference championship and Bowl game! The band gave a touching tribute to Dr. Paschall at the Tangerine Bowl. Hope you all were watching. At the Tri Delt Christmas luncheon here were Harry and Grace Cox's Ginny, Pat and Dot Harper's Penny, Nancy and Web Chandler's Deal and our Lesney. Nostalgic, huh? The new sorority complex is started—back near DuPont and the new gym. Hear that Aud Hudgins Thompson was at the Bowl game. Dot Agurt Edmunds' mortor board daughter is headed for law school. More news next issue—if you'll send it!

dren are at the University of Toronto, and to keep things normal at home, they have taken an AFS student from Germany for the year. She informed me of Joan Kennington Murphy's sudden death this past summer from a coronary. Polly Krotts Wright and Mel have three members of their fine family in colleges in California. Beverly Bose Dean and Fred have their second child, Woody, in his senior year at VPI, and their married daughter teaches in the Federal program "Project Advance" at Christiansburg High School, Virginia.

Had a phone conversation with Lucile Burbank Carlton at Alexandria in December. Her husband passed away in the fall and she continues to serve as Head Librarian at Thomas Edison High School in Fairfax County, and teaches evening classes for the Northern Virginia Extension Center of the University of Virginia. Virginia Stephens Daniel, living in Bethesda, is the mother of three boys—the oldest of which is at the University of North Carolina. Jinx's husband is a Sports-caster for WRC-NBC.

Julia Bristow lives in Norfolk, but spends most of her weekends at her cottage in Nags Head, N. C. She is still the Life Science Editor of Approach Magazine, the naval aviation safety review. Edie Harwood Smith writes from Westfield, N. J., that her daughter, Wendy, was married this past June, and that her son became an Eagle Scout at 15!

Richard Bicks spent part of last summer in Florence, Italy, with his family renting a villa. He is currently a Clinical professor of medicine at the University of Tennessee, and Chief of the Baptist Hospital in Memphis. Harriet Irvin Rutland was in Charleston, S. C., in November for the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and enjoyed the hospitality of Joan Kable Griffith and Jo Parker Flint. Harriet is a contractor specializing in adaptive uses of the 1850 and '60 buildings in the Central Texas area where she lives.

That trusty telephone in the Washington area gave me an opportunity to talk to Nancy Grube Williams. She tells me the plans for the 25th reunion this fall are on the fire as she and Fritz Zepht have worked on Class gift suggestions and have begun the proper arrangements. Please remember to save an October weekend for Williamsburg and count on making it a happy time for us all.

Where were you on October 10th? Even though it was not our major reunion, it was great to see some old friends. Jean McCreight Clarke and C. E. ('48) were there. Their son Stewart is a student at William and Mary. Jean substitutes at the high school level in Richmond.

Dotty Baitsell O'Connor writes from New Haven, Conn. that her daughter, Susan, is one of the precedent-breakers as a sophomore at Yale. Dotty's husband is Yale's Budget Director. Not to be outdone, Dotty is the Yale girl's Field Hockey and Tennis coach.

Mary Daffron Cheap and Jimmie have a new avocation—traveling. Their oldest of seven children graduated from college this year. The youngest is in second grade. In between trips, Mary's interests are in gourmet cooking and ballet.

Charlotte Ann Webb is working in Washington for Representative Crand of Illinois.

Joan Shanahan Symmes and her husband, former Ambassador Harrison Symmes, Jr., were asked to leave Amman, Jordan as a result of the political flare-ups in May, 1970.

News of Pat Dancy Hall came on a Christmas card. Pat and her two children are back in Durham, N. C. Bly is a freshman in college and Steve is 14. Pat went back to school and has her Masters degree in social work, and is now working as a psychiatric social worker at the Veterans Hospital in Durham.

From American University in Washington, D. C. comes news of Jo Hubbell. She has been coordinator of graduate studies for the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation at American Univ. Last spring, she was granted a sabbatical leave to pursue a piece of individual research. While on leave, Jo was invited to be a consultant to a study on the revision of the physical education curriculum for the state of Pennsylvania.

GINNA LEWIS GLASS writes from Switzerland that she is now a partner in husband Bill's Swiss marketing company. Bill and three partners are now owners of a Swiss bank. Ginna and Bill's oldest of three sons graduates from Phillips Exeter this year.

Dr. Dick Margolis is serving as a consultant to the Head Start program in St. Louis, Mo. from the American Academy of Pediatrics.

A change of name and address came in the Christmas mail from Jane McDowell Lynch. Mr. and Mrs. E. Carlyle Lynch were married in Williamsburg in November, where Jane's daughter is a sophomore at William and Mary. Their new address is Rt. 1, Box 404, Broadway, Va. Jane's husband Carlyle is a teacher, writer and a master craftsman, designing and making beautiful furniture.

Sally Phillips Mileur's family is now four. Her nephew Billy has joined them. Sally's youngest, Ann, is 16 months.

Gene Purdum is working for a professional engineering company in St. Petersburg, Fla., designing concrete-and-steel apartments and condominiums. Of Gene's four children, one is in college and three in high school.

Dr. Wallace P. Rowe recently received the Meritorious Service Medal of the National Institutes of Health. This Medal is given to commissioned officers of the Public Health Service for excellence of service. Wallace is chief of the Laboratory of Viral Diseases at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. He was awarded the Medal for his distinguished research in virology including the discovery of the adenovirus and cytomegalo-viruses, characterization of the adenovirus-SV40 hybrid phenomenon and the defectiveness of mouse sarcoma viruses. Wallace was cited not only for his own research achievements, but also for the training of numerous young virologists who are serving in all parts of the world. Other awards received by Wallace are the Eli Lilly Award in 1960, the Mary Scott Newbold Lectureship in 1961, and the Ester Langer-Bertha Teplitz Award in 1966. The Rowes and their two children live in Monrovia, Md.

Iona, Spain where they have an enviable assignment. They are spending the year there teaching in a program sponsored by Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. Students in the 11th grade are living with a Spanish family and have courses in English and math from American teachers, and Spanish language, culture and history from Spanish instructors.

Jean Owens Groves and Jack ('49) are presently stationed at the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE), the military portion of the NATO Alliance. They expect to spend another 18 months there before returning to the US. Oldest daughter, Linda Lee, is now a junior at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind.

Ed Gouldin writes from Humboldt, Tenn. that he and his wife spent their 25th anniversary traveling through Canada to Alaska in their Dodge Motor Home. It was the realization of a long time dream and every bit as wonderful as they had hoped—the scenery was gorgeous and the people wonderful. They covered 11,000 miles in seven weeks, up the Alaska Highway to Alaska and home by way of the inland waterway to Prince Rupert.

Thornton G. (Corky) Wampler writes that he and his family are now living in Pulaski, Virginia where he is Secretary of the Pulaski Furniture Corporation and Director of Purchases, having joined that firm in January 1969.

Dr. Howard G. Armstrong recently moved to Tallahassee, Florida as part of a three-man partnership, and finds it great golf country! For 17 years he was a general practitioner in Newark, Delaware.

Nancy Holland Blanford writes that George ('43) is now Southwestern Zone Manager for National Accounts, National Gypsum Co. They moved from New Orleans to Fort Worth, Texas last July.

Andy and Mary Jane Keen Williams recently moved from Wilmington, Del., to Berwyn, Pa. Their daughter, Carol, is a sophomore at William and Mary this year. Before leaving Delaware they had a nice visit with the Howie Atwaters of Lancaster, Pa.

Another William and Mary alumna with a daughter at the Alma Mater is Peggy Pennewell Hedstrom whose daughter, Scotty, is in the freshman class this year. The Hedstroms have another daughter plus a new son born on Sept. 18, 1969 at Maxwell AFB, Alabama.

Christine Rentsch Bryant and Bob ('46) live in New Brighton, Minn., where Bob is on the faculty at United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities. They have three children, John 17, Miriam 11, and Mark 5. Chris keeps busy as a volunteer worker with the Campfire Girls.

Martha Adams, who is at State College, Pa., writes that she saw Rachel Lyne Jorquenson ('45) and husband, Bill, on "entrance" day, at Penn State College where their son is a student.

Edward Buxton notes that he has been busy all summer and fall working on the "estate." His sister, Jean Page Moffett, an alumna of William and Mary, is librarian at Rappahannock County High School, Washington, Va.

Many thanks for all the cards and news for this issue. But don't get slack just because I am not fussing. We had a grand Christmas and saw our oldest daughter off to her first formal. I didn't know it would be such a thrill.

O. B. Root and Mim are still in Huntington Beach, California. His company was sold but he is staying on as the West Coast manager of the new company.

Nancy Kurtz Faulk and family sent a picture Christmas card of the entire family and what a good looking crew. Nancy and George went to Homecoming but were disappointed at the lack of the class of 50 present. Nancy was appointed to the Board of visitors in May and gets to Williamsburg quite often.

Skippy Beecher Scrymgeour and Bruce are back in Oakton and love being back. Ruth Barnes Chalmers and Dave are in Calgary, Canada but were spending Christmas in Aspen. They have become avid skiers since moving north. They find Canada a pleasant place to live. They managed to be in Quebec at the time of all the separatist kidnappings which must have been very exciting.

Liz and Bob Shuman were among those who didn't make it to Homecoming. However, they were the recipients of a phone call from Dick Duncan in the wee small hours telling what they had missed.

Joanne and Dick Scofield also went to Homecoming and remarked how young everybody looked. Nancy Kurtz Faulk said everybody else looked the same but Jo and Dick looked younger. . . .

Nicky Dillard Dewing is now working part time at Woodies in the Williamsburg shop. She and Jay were in California about the time I was in Virginia this past summer. Nicky had a pleasant visit in Carmel with Dr. and Mrs. Pomfret. Nicky's oldest son will be going to college this fall.

The Blair MacKenzies are off again. Blair has joined the State University System in New York as Associate in Instructional Development Unit in the Dept. of Educational Communications and also will begin work on his PhD.

Sue Hines Davis and Randy enjoyed seeing a basketball game at the new convocation center at William and Mary.

Woody Wayland and Yvonne have moved to New York and forgive me but I have lost their new address that I was going to pass along.

Patsy Jones Warner wrote that they were in Williamsburg in the spring and had applied for Sally. She mentioned that Tut Bartzen brought lots of news from Homecoming but neither one gave me any of it.

Jeanette K. Bailey and Louis, '49, are in New York City where Jeanette has returned to teaching. She teaches 1st grade at Grace Church School where their daughters attend 8th, 6th and 4th grades. They spent Christmas 1969 in Williamsburg.

Mary Lou Hoover Hale is in Orange, Texas where she is practicing psychiatry and marriage counseling. They have two children by adoption.

Phyllis DeHaven Jones is in Kenitna, Morocco. She and Stanley arrived in August and will be there about two years. Stanley is a Commander in the Navy.

Janice Nairn Wetmore is living in Haddon Heights New Jersey and was good enough to send along Ken Schmallerberger's address who was among the missing on our class list.

William E. Appleby is an inspector with the Virginia State Health Dept. in Northern Neck. He lives where the Potomac empties into the Chesapeake. Sounds like a great place for sailing. His wife is from Cape Town, South Africa.

Edmund C. Burke is living in Middletown, New Jersey. He went to Homecoming with wife Betty and daughter Allyson. Also Ward and Mary Ann Donohue and Buddy and Martha Lex. Ned spent most of the time in the hospital as he was stung by a bee and happens to be allergic to bee stings. Our condolences.

Howard Willard Wiseman is living in Maplewood, New Jersey where he is still Curator for the New Jersey Historical Society. He spent part of the summer on the island of Malta tracing his ancestors.

Commander Ralph M. Chinn has assumed interim command of the U.S. Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center in Atlanta. Ralph is a licensed psychologist in civilian life. He is a veteran of 26 years in the active and reserve Navy. He was one of 125 officers chosen from throughout the country to participate in the Navy's 22nd Global Strategy Conference. Ralph lives on a farm in Ellenwood, Georgia.

Walter A. Hunt was appointed director of instruction for Roanoke County Schools. Prior to this appointment he was principal at Andrew Lewis High School.

Joe Brinkley has been appointed to the staff of the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation in New York City. Joe has been active in many non-profit organizations and was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the Foundation. Before joining Sloan he was vice president of corporate and trustee affairs of the American Farm School in Greece.

Hilly Wilson has been elected vice president of the American Society of Corporate Secretaries, Inc. He is a vice president-secretary and general counsel of McCormick & Co., Inc. in Baltimore.

Russ Chambliss has been named vice president-sales of the Oxford Paper Co., in Rumford, Me. He formerly worked in sales with the Union-Camp Corp. at Franklin, Va. and had also served as sales manager of Eastex, Inc.

John S. Kellington recently became the pastor of the Basic United Methodist Church in Waynesboro, Va. He has held a number of pastorates in Virginia, including Trinity Church at Cape Charles, Henderson at Callao, and the Buckroe Beach United Methodist Church.

LTC Maury F. Goad is now with Headquarters, U. S. Army Air Defense Command. This is his second tour of duty at Colorado Springs, and he still hopes that someday he will be stationed closer to Williamsburg.

Elaine Compton Baker '49 and Jim are still in Rawalpindi, Pakistan. He is Country Publications Officer with USIS Pakistan and as such edits PANORAMA, a monthly USIS magazine. Elaine is the librarian at the International School of Islamabad where their two sons, Jim, 15, and Glenn, 12, are in the 9th and 7th grades. Their most exciting event recently was a trip in summer of 1970 to East Africa. En route their plane was hijacked to Cairo, and then they ended up in Rome for two days but finally got to Nairobi and the game parks of Kenya and Tanzania.

Ina Saville Grundmann wrote that she made a lovely and long-awaited summer car trip complete with six children, one dog, and one recumbent husband (damaged disc) to see her parents at their beautiful cattle ranch at Pagosa Springs, Colo. Al's parents flew in from Birmingham and joined them for two weeks. From there they went to Greeley to leave their oldest daughter to the "throes of being a very green, very scared, and very homesick" U C Freshman.

Again I am reminding you that this is our 20th Reunion year. I do hope that you will start now to making plans to be in Williamsburg for the big event. We are looking forward to going, and I hope to see you there. In the meantime, let me hear from you.

"Donnie" Spotts Gilbert is moving to Bath, O. and has enjoyed the company of Peggy Brice Devan and her family.

Anne Nelson Harnden is in Farmington, Mich. after two years in Brazil.

George Ritzel is an associate and Vice President of Richard G. Duncan Associates Insurance Company in Richmond, Va.

Ruth Hasemeyer Cofer went camping in Canada this summer. She is busy as leader of a Cadette Girl Scout troupe and eventually is planning a Scout trip to Williamsburg. Ruth is still singing with the Savoy Opera Company.

Katharine Shaver Gaertner has moved to Charlottesville, Va., and is working part-time at the University of Virginia Hospital Center in the Subsidiary Nursing Department. Husband, Paul, is with Virginia National Bank as Personnel Officer.

David Rittenhouse in September was elected a Vice President of the Delaware Trust Company in Wilmington, Del.

Ginnie Gary Lupton's husband, Ed, has been in Viet Nam since last February and is due home, which is temporarily Newport News, this coming February (1971). Ed's new assignment will be recruiting duty in Dallas, Tex. Ginnie went to Homecoming and chatted with Bernie and Darrel High Wittkamp and Betty Ann Wills Wallace.

Ginny Campbell Furst continues to be a successful real estate career woman in Kenilworth, Illinois. She, Bill, and their two children planned to spend Christmas in Colorado with Ginny's sister and hoped to ski while there.

Dave and Lee Bradley Wakefield's daughter spent the month of July in Brazil with Bruce and Camille Grimes Henderson's family. The Hendersons plan to be in the states again this June.

Nancy Ruth Adair, husband, and two children moved from Atlanta, Ga. to Amherst, N. H. in November. They enjoyed hearing the William and Mary Choir while in Atlanta. Nancy has seen Anne Howard Green, now in Columbia, S. C. and Sally Cook who is teaching in California.

John Dalton remains very active as a member of the House of Delegates of Virginia in Richmond. His committee assignments deal with courts of justice, labor, mining and mineral resources, and appropriations. The latter determines mainly the amount of money going to Virginia colleges from the State Government. He also has been appointed to the Board of Trustees of the Jamestown Foundation, which will afford him several trips to the Williamsburg area. The Daltons completed building their new home and moved the day before Thanksgiving.

Many thanks for additional cards and notes from "Rite" Oldfield Luckett from Toronto, Jim and Barbara Schwartz Smith, Carmen Romeo, Jim and Bev Simonton Kelly, Emmy Ketterson Smith, Dot Hagberg Bower, and Anne Hines Fuller.

We are saddened by the death of Dr. Robert Giles (Bob) in August.

The Woolstons had a Merry Christmas despite the fact that three of the children had the mumps! Best wishes for a good year to each of you.

We, the women anyway, are occupied by getting our children to their piano lessons, not to mention two choir practices for them and one for the adults each week. The going to and fro includes school and church programs that at least for the younger set are mandatory. There are dance lessons for one child weekly, and birthday parties scattered throughout the year. How anyone ever lived without a second car, and how wonderful it would be to have the excuse to stay at home if there were no second car! Our own family specialty, if it may be called that, is music, which has led us to the purchase of a new conservatory grand piano.

Washington-Lee High School Class of 1950 held a 20 year reunion of which I was part, as was Joyce Springer Darnton, who was there with her husband, Don. The Darntons are residents of Blacksburg, Virginia and are very much involved in the academic community there. Don being on the faculty and a part of the administration at VPI. Terry and Jim Carter were in attendance at the reunion also. They have continued to make Williamsburg their home. We looked in vain for other William and Mary faces at the reunion which was a dinner-dance at the Washington Golf and Country Club in Arlington.

John Robbins who lives in Virginia Beach, has, since 1954 been a math teacher at Princess Anne High School, and has served in an administrative capacity at Union Kempsville High School, also in Virginia Beach. At present, he is Assistant Principal for instruction at Virginia Beach Junior High School. In 1963 he received a Master of Education degree Hope this new year is proving a happy and prosperous one for you all. Let me hear from more of you more often.

Allan B. Roby, Jr., has been named to a new post in the investment department at Connecticut General Life Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn. Allan, as secretary in the investment departments, will have accounting and review responsibilities for all of the company's investment operations. Allan is a fellow of the Society of Actuaries. He, his wife, and three children live in West Hartford.

Larry Phillips will manage the Lynchburg offices of Wheat and Co., Inc.—a member of the New York and American Stock exchanges.

John Herrmann, Jr., received his PhD in chemistry at Case Western Reserve University last fall.

Frederick B. Malvin was promoted to Commander last summer and is looking forward to another tour of duty in the Norfolk area as Personnel Officer for Commander Naval Air Force, U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

Ann Callihan Hines and two other Suffolk women were so concerned that their children and others were not exposed to art and sciences in the lower grades that on a voluntary basis they are visiting schools in the Suffolk area in a program which they hope will keep art alive for the youngsters. Ann attended the Norfolk Art Museum's training program and is now an art docent visiting fourth and sixth grades as a representative of the Museum's Traveling Art and Science program which prepares the child for a visit to the museum. Ann has also worked with retarded children and was on the board of the Tri-County Mental Retarded Association. She and Quimby have four children.

Norm "Mo Mo" Moomjian of New York City appears in the New York Times ads on all the city transit buses.

Wayne C. Marshall moved to New Jersey from Long Island to become Director of Admissions and Financial Aid at N. J.'s new four year Liberal Arts and Science College, Ramapo College. While living in Long Island Wayne was director of admissions at C. W. Post College.

Christmas is over, and you were most generous with your news. Just received three notices that David Camp received a $1000 award last May for excellence in undergraduate teaching from the University of Rhode Island. He is associate professor of psychology there and lives in North Kingstown, R. I. Funds for the grant are from the Standard Oil of Indiana Foundation, and recipients are chosen by a student-faculty-administration group. Wish there were space to put in his citation. David earned his doctorate from Brown University, and went to U. R. I. in 1964 as an assistant professor. His special fields of study are animal and human learning and sensory psycho-physiology.

Clarence Leeds, now Dean of Faculty at Simon's Rock College in Massachusetts, spoke at the meeting of the European Council of International Schools in Lugano, Switzerland, on November 4. The conference represented more than 100 schools and colleges in the United States, Europe, and the Near East. His topic was "The Early College—An Idea Whose Time Has Come." Clarence has twice served as educational consultant to India under the United States Agency for International Development, at Benaras Hindu University, Kurukshetra University. During his eleven years in Berkshire County, Massachusetts, he has served as Chairman of the Mathematics Department and Dean of Students at Berkshire School, taught undergraduate course at Berkshire Community College and graduate courses for teachers for the Massachusetts Department of Education. He is the author of several books on mathematics now in use in the United States and abroad. Before joining Simon's Rock in 1968, he spent one year as writer and curriculum consultant at Stanford University. He did graduate work at Columbia, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, and Princeton. Dean Leeds was recently notified by Commissioner of Education, Neil Sullivan, that the Massachusetts Board of Education had elected him to membership in the Professional Standards Advisory Committee.

Art Gingold has been included in the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Kenneth Matthews, now principal of the Joseph P. Saunders Elementary School in Newport News, Va., again had an article published in Instructor magazine. This one, "Our Program Was a Dual One," was in the June/July issue, and describes a summer program for fourth, fifth, and sixth graders at Saunders Elementary School, in which they studied Tidewater Virginia, past, present, and future. The purpose was cultural and educational.

Polly Geil Scott contributed to an article on drug education published in the August/September issue of Instructor. Polly teaches fourth grade at Quarles Elementary School, Winchester, Va.

Len and Karen Jacob Franseen have finished a year at Syracuse University, Len on his Masters in Business and Karen on her B.S. They have now returned to Virginia (after twelve years) with their three daughters, ages 11, 10, and 7. Len is at the Pentagon.

A. L. and Sue Davis Addington and three year old son moved to Valdosta, Ga. in August. A. L. received his Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Tennessee in 1969 and has accepted a job at Valdosta State College as director of Business Administration—Economics Division.

Saw Davis and Polly Stadel Wrinkle and two boys (7 and 4 years) at a Children's Theater production here. Davis is Branch Manager of the Barber-Colman Company.

Ross and Gail Morgan Filion and two children are still in New Jersey, and Ross is commuting to Philadelphia, where he is Assistant Director of Research in the children's services in a Mental Health clinic. Gail works around 4½ hours per week for a literary journal.

Jay Schreiber is a buyer of young boys wear in Kirkwood, Mo. Alex Fakadej—sporting a mustache and goatee—has just returned from taking his boards in pediatric neurology in Los Angeles. He, Carolyn Scheele, and four daughters live in Morgantown, W. Va.

Dig and Margaret Mullins Ansty have moved from New York City to Cranston, R. I., where Dig has a new job. They have gone from apartment living to a Cape Cod house.

J. T. Christie, wife, and five children are living in Newark, Del.

Marion Hurd is living in Hightstown, N. J., and working in sales and marketing for the College Book division of McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. She travels in the fall and spring to colleges in New Jersey to sell professors their books and plays golf in her spare time.

Diane Montague Belford and two children are in Ft. Campbell, Ky. while husband Bob is in Korea. She was expecting him home for three weeks, December 27. Meanwhile, she's involved with Scouts and their horse. She said that Bill and Bobbie Ramsey Brooks were to move into a new house in Chapel Hill, N. C., in August.

Bill Armbruster, after a year at the Naval War College, is assigned to the War College staff as assistant intelligence officer. He and Betty expect to leave Newport, R. I., in June, 1971. Bill has also earned an M.S. in International Relations from George Washington University.

Eve Mapp Davis was co-chairman of a very successful church bazaar last November. She has resumed piano lessons, as well as her usual golf and sewing activities.

Nicky Macy Pease is in Berkeley Heights with husband and two children (ages 9 and 7). Her husband is designing a system to regulate and forecast telephone equipment sales for the Bell Laboratories of A.T.&T.

I think my mailbag at Christmas must have been second in size only to that of Santa Claus! You were very generous with your cards and letters. I just hope the same spirit prevails throughout 1971.

Promotions, appointments, awards, and of course, babies continue to distinguish our fellow classmates. Gracie (Munson) Nichols was elected Democratic Committeewoman in her ward in St. Charles, Mo. in the August primary election. She says this kept her pretty busy along with the activities of Michael, Scott, and John. Husband, Nick, is in his second year of teaching at Lindenwood College. Don Snyder was elected to serve as an economic officer in the Economic and Financial Research Department of the North Carolina National Bank in Charlotte. And at the same bank, Bill Kuzewicz ('62) was promoted to trust officer in the Personal Loan Department. Bill Garrett, an employee of the Engineering Department of the Tidewater Telephone Company, has been named Treasurer of Caroline County. Bill Sterling, who was awarded his Doctor of Philosophy Degree in August from the University of Iowa, has been appointed an Assistant Professor of art at Arizona State University. Prior to Bill's appointment, he taught at Lawrence University in Wisconsin. And congratulations to "Chip" Mason who was included in the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America. His brokerage firm, Mason & Co., merged with Legg & Co. of Baltimore, and Chip is President of the new firm of Legg, Mason and Company. Karen (Thomas) Liske is still receiving honors. This time it is "Mother of the Year" so far as I'm concerned! She sent me a Christmas card picturing her five beautiful children. She, Ed, and all those children have moved back to San Antonio from Albuquerque. Her husband is Chairman of Neurology at the School of Aerospace Medicine where he teaches and does clinical research.

"Doctoring" seems to be the most prevalent profession for the husbands of former William and Mary coeds. Nancy (Simmons) Manson writes that her husband, Dick, has a fellowship this year in Washington, D. C. in pediatric ophthalmology. Prior to this, he was the ophthalmologist at the Military Academy at West Point. Stu Sell ('58) is in pathological research at the University of California in San Diego. Ann (Perkins—'60) Charney is living in Delmar, Calif. where her husband is in educational psychiatry. They live on a ranch and have a new baby.

It is always exciting to receive mail with a foreign postmark, and this past Christmas was no exception. Mary Ann (Curtis) Williams and family spent their second consecutive Christmas in Belgium, although it was in their 17th house! As always, it was a busy year for the Williams. Most of time, it seems, they were on the road. In May they bought a camper and spent the summer camping in Belgium, Germany, and Italy. In the fall they visited Copenhagen, Denmark, Sweden, and Southern Germany where they enjoyed the October Fest and the Passion Play. And if this wasn't enough to last anyone a lifetime, they attended a learn-to-ski week in Garmisch over Thanksgiving and ended up the year with a four-day visit to London. My only question is, when do you get to Washington? Mary Ann and Charlie aren't the only ones savoring the life outside the U. S. Judy (Dickerson—'60) and Bill Bullock were sent by Lockheed on a six-month assignment to Paris which I know was a marvelous experience for them. I only regret we couldn't make contact with each other in London where I spent a brief but exciting four days in November. Sue (Singer) Christiansen and family are still in Ottawa, Ontario where Jerry is assigned to the U. S. Embassy. I don't know how exciting it is there, but I heard from Major Ken Mink who is stationed in "Bad Kreuznach" with the Division Headquarters of the 8th Infantry Division as the Division Inspector General.

A little closer to home in Alexandria, Va. are Ed and Barbara (Brant) Knight. Ed is still in the Legislative Reference Service at the Library of Congress as a research economist, and Barbara is an assistant professional lecturer in political theory at George Washington University. Barbara mentioned that they had visited Alice (Roberts) Gordon and Dick in Bristol. They have two children, and Alice is doing court reporting. Also in my area are Anne (Brown) and George Lanman. They have moved back to their East Coast home in Maclean, Va., and George is stationed at the Pentagon.

Bill and Becky (Fauber—'60) Becker are living in Annandale, N. J. Bill is Operations Research Manager with M & M candy. Becky has not been idle. She and seven other ex-teacher-housewives organized a Day School for Retarded Children in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. The Shell Oil Foundation gave the organizers a national service award and donated $500 to their ambitious and worthy project.

This should bring you up to date on lots of your friends' activities. I hope I'll hear from you soon.

Fran and John Pforr, '60, have fast become acclimated to their new home in the Seattle area. They live across the lake in Bellevue, Washington's fourth largest city. John enjoys having nights and weekends off, both rare occasions in his previous schedule with the Secret Service. Fran does volunteer work at the Museum of History and Industry in Seattle, conducting tours for groups of school children. In January she planned to begin communications courses at the University of Washington. They hope to explore their new habitat by skiing and camping.

In Bill Nicolai's Christmas letter we find that he continues to enjoy an exciting life in New York City. Since September he has become a sales promotion expert for U. S. Plywood, starting out in their good graces since he was interviewed by a William and Mary alumnus. (That does help, you know!) He plans several business trips this year and hopes to drop in on some of you. During last summer he enjoyed two European trips, London and Paris, as a guide. Bill sends the news that Maynard and Caroline French Walters have returned to the States for the first time in four years. Their four-year-old Lee is quite bilingual. Bill sent news of others, too, but his own handwriting simply escapes me. Next year I hope he'll type his class news. Please forgive me, any of you whose news I omit because I cannot read your writing. I can read most typewriting.

Bama McNeill Steinman is working for Southern Bell as a representative in their commercial division. Her husband Art works for Technical Advisors, a computer service. They live in Ft. Lauderdale.

Last March, Owen Knopping left the office of Regional Counsel, Newark, N. J., and moved from Maplewood, N. J., to Wynnewood, Pa., to become associated with the Philadelphia law firm of Fox, Rothschild, O'Brien and Frankel.

Major Herman Schmidt is on his second tour in Vietnam as an advisor. He hopes to return to William and Mary in the fall to complete his Masters of Business Administration and then remain to instruct in the R.O.T.C. Department. His wife, Mary Ann Venner, '64, is living in Williamsburg.

John and Nancy Engel Barlow, '63, and daughters Karyn and Laura are in Augsburg, Germany, where John is Chief of Pediatrics at the 30th Field Hospital. For seventeen months before that, they had lived in Frankfurt.

Captain Clarence Knight is serving in the Army in the Staff Judge Advocate's office at Long Bien, Vietnam. His wife is staying in Enid, Okla., with daughter Christine Elizabeth until his return in May.

Don Snook is now assistant director of Thomas Jefferson University Hospital and is also working toward a Masters in Education at St. Joseph's College. Judy (Murdock), '63, is teaching in the nursery school where their two daughters are enrolled, Trinity, the largest nursery school in the country. They live in Audubon, Pa.

Last year Marshall Barry received his Ph.D. in Economics from Northwestern University, and last summer he attended an African Studies Institute there on a fellowship.

In July, Ken Lounsbury entered private law practice in San Diego.

Pat Singleton Parker and Joe moved last May from Durham, N. C., to Norwood, Mass. Joe has joined the staff at the New England Deaconess Hospital in Boston.

Susie Hadden Sekelsky and family recently moved from Elizabeth to Bernardsville, N. J.

In the fall, Joan Shaw Perry and her husband moved from Cleveland, Ohio, to Syracuse, N. Y., where her husband is on the faculty of Syracuse University in the speech department. Connie Bowen Camp had moved to Shaker Heights shortly before, which made Joan regret leaving that area.

Allan Brownfeld's book, Dossier on Douglas, was published last June. Two new works he expects to have published by now are a book concerning student unrest, to be published by the National Education Association, and an article, "The Irrelevance of American Politics," for The Yale Review. Allan's name has been included in the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

The Gunns made their annual New Year's Eve trip to Springfield for Jane and Paul Bahn's party. We enjoyed seeing Carol Noble Braun again, but the party was not the same without her husband Dick. He is a Major, serving his second tour in Vietnam, this time as an intelligence officer with the First Marine Division in Da Nang. Carol brought their girls over the morning after—Cindy, eight; Leslie, three; and Susie, almost two.

Now let us hear from more of you in 1971.

Major Mike Lyle left the ROTC Department at Lehigh University last June, after completing his Master's in Education, for Vietnam where he is assigned as the Headquarters Detachment Commander for the US Army Advisory Group in Danang. Meanwhile Carol and their three children, one of whom was born after Mike departed, live in Louisville, Ky. Calvin Wheaton has completed training at Delta Air Lines flying school and is assigned to the Miami pilot base as a second officer. He and his wife Paula live in Virginia Beach. Dr. Don DuVall, president of the 1970 graduating class of the dental school, College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, has been appointed an instructor in the department of fixed prosthodontics, which deals with artificial replacement of missing parts of the mouth and jaws. Don served in the Navy for three years.

Carl Stevens Laise has been named the first education officer employed by The Mariners Museum, Newport News, and will serve as liaison with youth groups ranging from elementary through college levels. Carl completed three years of graduate work in philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania and has taught at Muhlenberg College, University of Pennsylvania, Drexel Institute of Technology and Cedar Chest College.

The Bob Diederichs are back in New Jersey, this time in Belle Mead. In June Bob was transferred back to Penneco's home office as a product manager for paint chemicals. There is some traveling involved with this new position. Elena Ruddy McMarlin writes that she and Stacy, '61, a dermatologist in the military, hope to return East from San Francisco in August, when Stacy completes his current assignment. The McMarlins expect number five in the spring.

David C. Lundquist of Chalfont, Pennsylvania has been promoted to manager of the group special case division of Prudential Insurance Company's Central Atlantic home office. Ed Kirby has joined the Promotion Qualification program at North Carolina National Bank and is assigned as a credit analyst. After his discharge from the USN Supply Corps in 1968, Ed was a security analyst in San Francisco. In September Rev. David Post became Executive Director of Koinonia Foundation, an ecumenical center for human and spiritual growth located on a 50 acre estate near Baltimore. It offers programs for people of all ages and faiths.

Bill and Dorothy (Guild) Tompkins are in Columbia, S. C. where Bill is stationed at Fort Jackson. Bill is an internist and Dorothy a pediatrician at the Fort Jackson Hospital. Peggy, age 1, accompanied her parents to San Francisco where they spent a day visiting Vida Kenk ('61), a teacher at San Jose State College. Doug and Callie (Dean) Woodring remain in Ann Arbor, where Callie is busy with three children and Doug teaches and does research at University of Michigan's zoology department. He has a new graduate student, Jim Simpson ('69).

Joe ('61) and Ilene (Epperson) Blink live in Braintree, Mass. with their two boys, Andy, 7, and Billy, 4, after several years in Providence, R. I. where Joe worked on a Ph.D. in physics at Brown University and Ilene taught special education. Joe is a radiation physicist at University Hospital, Boston, and the Blinks would enjoy hearing from W&M types in the area. Bill and Jeanne (Wilkinson, '63) Shuler live in Livermore, Calif., where Bill works for the Strategic Weapons Group at the Lawrence Radiation Lab, having received his Ph.D. from William and Mary in 1968. Nicholas and Patricia (Wade) Temple live in Jupiter Inlet Colony, Fla., where Nick is in the mariculture business (raising pompano). Marty and Maggie (Bounds) Evans have moved to Irving, Texas with two children, John and Peggy, after two years in the Seattle, Washington area.

The rest of the column comes primarily from Ann (Smith) Hughes Theta letter, which was missed last year. Jim and Ann live in Vienna, Va. with young Jimmy; Jim works for a UHF television station in D. C. as an account executive, handling sales of TV time. E. J. and Susan Griggs Braman moved to Wiesbaden, Germany last summer and expect to remain there until July 1973 unless there is some major change in the NATO forces. E. J., in the Air Force, had served previously in Vietnam. Jane (Wright) Knotts and Jim have bought a house in Dover, Del. Jane is on the Jr. Board of the Dover Hospital and very active in fund raising projects.

In Portsmouth, Va. Peggy (Hargroves) Bartlett and Richard were expecting a baby in December. They have one child, Rich, 5. Richard has his own law firm and enjoys being his own boss. Dorcas (Miller) Lounsbury writes that Ken left the San Diego city government to enter private practice in June, but later accepted an offer to be city attorney of Escondido, Calif. Dorcas is busy with their daughter's activities and the League of Women Voters. Lynn (Eads) Black and John remain in Brownsville, Texas with two daughters, Sara, 4, and Kiley, 1. They stay busy with his law practice and local activities. Kay (Christian) Sills and Art are settled in St. Joseph, Mich., where Art works with the Trashmasher Division of Whirlpool. They have one son, Buddy, 2, and expect a child in early 1971.

Dorcas (Brown) Bankes and Paul have moved to a new home in Bryn Mawr, Penn. and are involved in gardening projects, sailing and the New Democratic Coalition. Their daughters are Heather, in the first grade, and Jessica, 3. Pril (Nash) Brown and Seab live in Wayne, Penn. with their St. Bernard, Lolita. Pril teaches nursery school and Seab, with Wyeth Labs, is planning a month's business trip to Korea and Japan. Bunny (Becker) Harrington and Will reside in Terre Haute, Ind., where Will teaches sculpture at Indiana State University and spends his spare time working on his own large sculptures. Bunny works as a social worker for a State Psychiatric Hospital doing pre-admission studies and after care for six counties.

Sue (Oakley) Nelson and Larry live in Alexandria, Va. where Larry's architecture firm is located. Sue is working on her masters in education. Their daughter is Kara. Cynthia Isemann teaches elementary school in Arlington. Jane (Lawson) Hall, Frank, and their daughters Laura, 3, and Susanah, 1, remain in Chapel Hill, N. C.

Margie (Heiney) Stouffer and John, a Navy Lt. Cdr.—soon to be Cdr.—live in McLean. John is attached to the Pentagon and recently earned his masters in international relations. Their children are Marion, in the first grade, and Willie, 3. Linnea (Barnes) Sandstrom and Dick live in Annandale, Va. with Inga Lisa, 3, and Richard Eric, 1. Dick is controller of the C. L. Barnes furniture stores and Linnea now has her real estate license and works out of her home. She is also active in working on a local drug program.

Martha (Walton) High and Jack live in McLean with Lance, 4, and Martha Elizabeth, 14 mos. Martha is active in local Theta alumnae activities and Jack is still with Univac working in sales on an Air Force project. Donna (Floyd) Fales and Gordon remain in Miami where Gordon is Manager of Services for Eastern Airlines. The boys are Emerson 3, and Floyd, 14 mos. Polly (Scott) Bartlett and Gil live in Williamsburg where Gil is busy with his law practice and Polly with son Edward, 14 mos. Wilbur Johnson has been named to the head football coaching position at Guilford College at Greensboro, N. C. Anne Marshall Bippus has joined the faculty of Lynchburg College as assistant professor of education and director of the L. C. Reading Center. Prior to accepting her new position, Anne served as reading consultant for the Williamsburg-James City County Public Schools and was with the School of Continuing Studies at the College of William and Mary. David Adams is now serving as assistant professor of political science at the University of Denver. He is teaching his specialty, Southeast Asian politics, and other courses related to non-Western political life. Bill Kron was recently appointed Chairman of the science department at Avon Old Farms School in Avon, Conn. Alan Scott is continuing for another year as Director of the Oakland Student Center at Oakland University at Rochester, Michigan. Al commented that Oakland University just gained its independence from Michigan State University this summer and he invites William and Mary graduates in the Detroit area to visit the Oakland campus. Glen McCaskey, Jerry Van Voorhis and H. Mason Sizemore have been included in the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Joan Lee Ben Halima illustrated an English textbook for Tunisian schools which has been published by Oxford U. Press for use in Tunis where she and Sassi now live with their sons, Mhamed (4) and Raouf (3). Joan has left her office job with The Ford Foundation and is doing translations and painting at home and taking a course in literary (classical) Arabic.

John and Helen Swayne Mertz, their daughter Kim and two dogs are in Guatemala City, Guatemala, where John is serving as a Second Secretary for the U. S.

Embassy. Dennis and Elizabeth Tiedeman Wight are at Fort Lewis, Wash., where Dennis is in medical residency. Their daughters are two and four years old. Liz comments that this is the first time in a while they have had the same address for two years in a row! Russ and Connie Cone Johnson, and their two daughters, live at Stone Mountain Georgia. Russ is Manager of Data Processing at the D. M. Weatherly Company and in their spare time he and Connie are Amway distributors.

Lesley Ward Winingder received her MED in counseling from Georgia State University in June. She is serving as an officer in the William and Mary Alumni Club in Atlanta and asks alumni in that area to please contact her. Doug and Suzanne Kibler Arthur have settled in their hometown of Strasburg, Va., where Doug is practicing law. Their son Clay is two and one half. Francine League Vaughan, and Joe moved to Woodberry Forest, Va., in the summer of 1969. Joe is with the English department and heads the reading section of Woodberry Forest School. Kitty Canady Owen and Bob spent the summer following their May wedding, visiting friends along the East Coast. Kitty and Bob have moved to Honolulu, Hawaii, where Bob will serve a two year shore duty with the Submarine Staff. They invite friends visiting the Islands to come to see them.

Frances McCampbell Ring, her husband Stewart, now a Commander in the USN, and their two daughters, ages five and three, are settled in Brussels, Belgium for three years, where Stewart is attached to the Defense Advisers Staff, NATO. Before leaving for Belgium, Fran and her children spent a weekend with Gene and Babs Beaumont Anderson and their children, Brent (4) and Ashley (18 months). Babs and Gene have permanently moved from Simsbury, Conn., to Clearwater, Fla. Frances graciously invited William and Mary travelers in Europe to visit her in Brussels.

Rhea Neuroth Baldino writes that her husband John, '62, got his MA in school administration and is now president of the York Education Association (York Co., Va.) and campaigned for Virginia Education Association District B president. Rhea is still teaching French and plans to spend some time with friends in France next summer. A few years ago John and Rhea bought a farm in Toano, Va., and have built a new house and stable. As a spare time "hobby-business", Rhea breaks and trains thoroughbred yearlings for racing. She has two horses of her own that she shows and hunts with whenever she has time.

Last spring George and Carolyn Simpson Bassett vacationed in Charlestown, S. C. and stopped in Williamsburg on their way home to New Jersey. In Williamsburg they visited Chuck and Pat Rice. Pat has been taking art classes from Twentieth Century Gallery in addition to looking after their 3 sons. George saw Peter Derks, who reported that his wife Fran Marshall was working towards a Masters in education. # There's more to the past than meets the eye.

In Colonial Williamsburg, you get more than a glimpse of the past. You can hear it and taste it, too, just the way it was.

Take a vacation from the present. You'll feel the eighteenth century come to life as you talk with cobblers and bakers and candlemakers, or enjoy dinner in taverns that began building their reputations over 200 years ago.

You'll be stirred by the lively tunes of drum and fife, and soothed by strolling minstrels. There's so much going on in the eighteenth century. Come visit us soon and get a real taste of the past.

Many thanks to Wynne Whitehurst for sending on the Chi O newsletter. I have included all of it in a slightly "censored" form! Starting with Wynne, last year she taught in a private day school in Knoxville. She has moved back to Williamsburg and is currently working for the College as the DuPont Head Resident, i.e. house-mother. Wynne is also studying for her Masters in student personnel.

Anne Bradstreet Smith is a social worker in York County and is living in Williamsburg. (In fact, she, Linda Freeman Holmes, Sharon Reeder, and Ginger Graef all live in the same building.) In addition to the social work, which she loves, Anne has a group therapy class and attends night courses at William and Mary. Les is in his last year of law school and is considering the F.B.I. for the future.

Jan Ernstmeyer Brodie and Glenn moved to San Francisco in August and then moved in January to Hawaii. Glenn is a lieutenant in the Navy.

According to the newsletter, Peggy Rior-don Sims had the honor of being the first Chi O mother. Peggy and Kirby are living in Birmingham, Ala.

Toni Biordi is working for A.T.&T. in D. C. and loves it. She has had several promotions and is now an executive secretary, which is a management position.

Missy Galloway Parker and Andy have moved to Ohio, where Andy will practice law. Missy taught only first semester, as she was expecting a child in February.

Sharon Reeder is a social worker in James City County and shares an apartment in Williamsburg with Ginger Graef. Ginger is teaching at Tabb in Poquoson.

Living in Blacksburg are Ellen Cooper Mathena and her husband Randy. Randy is working for a company based in Richmond and Ellen is working for V.P.I.

Linda Marsh Stewart is living in Canton, Mass. while Jim is in Vietnam. They hope to be assigned to the D. C. area when Jim returns from his year's tour next September.

Gayle Harper Duncan and Bill were married in Richmond on January 23rd. Gayle is teaching at Carver High in Newport News and Bill is in law school at William and Mary.

Carolyn Lawhorne Parker is teaching in Chesterfield County while Mike attends dental school in Richmond at MCV.

Ann Nelms has moved to Washington (into Gayle Harper's old Georgetown apartment) and is teaching elementary art in Alexandria.

Janet Berglund is in St. Louis working in the computer field. Working in Norfolk as a systems analyst is Janet Ackroyd.

Kathy Friedman continues to work on the Hill for Senator Charles Percy of Illinois.

Linda Freeman Holmes is teaching in Newport News again this year while Bob is in his second year of law school at William and Mary.

Gale Dehn Paisley and Larry are living in McLean. Gale is working for Univac in Washington.

Judy Chase Kahn and Bob are in San Francisco, where Bob is stationed in the JAG and is studying for the California bar exam.

Lydia Bulynko Jesuele and Sal have been busy getting Sal's law practice established in Fort Lee, N. J. Lydia is working as a probation officer.

Kaye Pitts is in her second year of teaching in Richmond. SuSu Williams has moved to San Francisco, where she is working for an insurance agency.

Mary Ruth Price married Eddie Oates on August 15th, with Ginger Graef and Ann Nelms as attendants.

Carrington Salley is in her second year of law school at the University of South Carolina.

Linda Kalen Trice and Joe are living in Richmond. Linda is teaching and Joe is in accounting school.

Doug Volz has been appointed a field claim representative in the Richmond office of the State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company.

Billy Dunn writes that he arrived in Vietnam on September 30. Billy spent two weeks in Long Binh and then went on to Tuy Hoa—a base on the coast off the South China Sea. After three months of helping to establish a supply account in Long Binh, Billy was transferred to the 3rd MASH (Mobile Army Surgical Hospital—"Yes, like the one in the movie," Billy says) located in the Delta.

Also in Vietnam is Henry Schutz. Henry completed the 58 day Ranger training course at Ft. Benning before leaving.

A Christmas card from Bobbie Henry Todd said that Bob is now in the Department of Personnel for the State. He is the State Recruiter which entails going to all the colleges in Virginia and interesting Seniors in working for the State. Bobbie is still working in the Data Processing division of the State and is currently processing the Census Tapes for Virginia.

Frosty Hoskins is working for A.T.&T. in Piscataway, N. J. and has recently moved to an apartment in New Brunswick.

Bob McLaughlin and his wife Vickie have been stationed at Fort Knox, Ky. for Bob's Reserve active duty. Bob's assignment will end in March, and they then plan to return to Alexandria. Vickie is expecting their first child in March.

Barb Johnson has returned from Spain and is currently helping to open an office of Lan Chile Airlines in Boston. Barb is living with my Boston roommate, Marty McGuire, who is still working for Massachusetts Investors Trust. Marty, by the way, came to see us when she was home for Christmas and said she still loves Boston and hopes to take a trip to Europe this summer.

Linda Phillips Kaplan writes from Williamsburg that she and Kappie became the proud parents of Robert R., Jr. on November 16th.

In January '70, Natalie Hill married Dr. Joe Zung, former Chemistry professor at William and Mary. They live in Rolla, Mo., where Dr. Zung is teaching and they had their first child last fall.

Suzanne Fauber Butler and Ty are living in Macon, Ga. where Suzanne is teaching in Mount de Sales School and Ty is in his first year at Mercer University's School of Law.

Brian Lamm received his Master's in Business Administration last August from American University, and is currently working for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation as a financial analyst. Brian is living in Falls Church.

Robert S. Emerson, who received his master of business administration degree from the College of William and Mary in 1968, has been appointed an assistant credit officer of Marine Midland Grace Trust Company of New York. He began at the bank in 1968 as a management trainee and has been assigned to the credit department since 1969. He earned his bachelor of science degree in 1964 from the University of North Carolina. A Navy veteran, he is married and lives in Manhattan.

Effective December 1, 1970, Melvin M. Overman was elected treasurer of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, having served previously as director of the company's financial budgets and profit planning. Overman has been affiliated with the company since 1965, when he became staff auditor in internal auditing. Promoted to senior systems analyst in 1967 and to senior budget analyst in 1969, he became manager of the shipyard's budgets and profits analysis planning department when it was established in 1969. In June 1970, he was named director of budgets and financial systems. Overman holds bachelor of science and master of science degrees in business administration from V.P.I. and a master of business administration from the College of William and Mary. Overman, his wife Hilda, and their two children live at 690 Village Green Parkway in Newport News.

Sharon Fischer Manning, who received her undergraduate degree in 1965 from Western Maryland College, and her graduate degree in mathematics in 1967 from the College of William and Mary, is currently IBM marketing representative in Denver, Colo.

'Morning Glories' Now Retired

After Top Level Positions

By S. DEAN OLSON

"W E WERE morning glories," says Bill Pullen '20 of himself and of his brother Dr. T. G. Pullen, who graduated from William and Mary in 1917.

By the time Bill was thirty, he was assistant to the president of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, one of the largest insurance companies in America, with responsibility for the northern half of the United States and all of Canada. By the time his brother was 22, he had been named principal of Hampton High School, a formidable position for one recently out of the Marine Corps with only a couple of years of teaching and administration behind him.

Bill Pullen eventually became President and Chairman of the Board of USF & G, and Dr. Pullen served as State Superintendent of Public Education for 23 years in Maryland, which included supervision over all community and state colleges as well as elementary and secondary education. He left that position in 1964 to become President of the University of Baltimore until his retirement in 1969.

Retirement is a questionable label to apply to either of the Pullens. Bill is 71 and T. G. is 72, but both remain vigorously active. Dr. Pullen works out of a downtown Baltimore office which was given to him for life by the teachers of Maryland in appreciation for his many years of service. He is active in university and public fund-raising, currently heading up a million dollar industrial and commerce health appeal to provide money for the health needs of Baltimore city. Since he left the presidency, he has served as chairman of the executive committee of the governing board of the University of Baltimore.

Bill Pullen lives in Hollywood, Florida. A life-time history enthusiast, he is working on studies documenting the genealogy of Virginia families. He once bet a friend he could take any family with ties in Virginia since 1700 and develop a genealogy that would be both distinguished and disreputable. His friend suggested Jesse James, whose antecedents had lived in four different locations in Virginia. Bill won the bet: Jesse's cousins included Dolly Madison, wife of the President, and Governor Woodson of Missouri, the first Missouri Governor to post a reward for Jesse James. Pullen published a monograph on the study in 1966. He is still answering letters prompted by the monograph, and the study has been expanded into a book which will soon be published.

Both Pullens remember the influence of Lyon G. Tyler, who was President of William and Mary during their years at the College. Bill lived for a year in a wing of the President's House, and established a close relationship with Dr. Tyler who was a distinguished historian and encouraged Bill's interest in genealogy and history. They corresponded for years after Bill left William and Mary to earn his law degree and climb up the ladder of success in the business world.

T. G. Pullen remembers Dr. Tyler as a man who believed that public education, even on the college and university level, should be cheap enough so that any individual with the "get up and go" could attend. The nature of democracy, Dr. Pullen says, requires that education be available at every phase that touches a man's life. He loves the "rough and tumble" intellectual life, believes that institutions don't make scholars, scholars make institutions, and says that intellectual stimulation may be greater in a semi-practical world, where a student both works and goes to school, than in a purely isolated ivory tower. He says for every kid who can afford to be in a university, there is one outside with equal ability and preparation who couldn't afford to go. He predicts that some day a constitutional case will be made of the high cost of higher education. "Some institutions," he says, "are pricing themselves out of business."

W. E. Pullen '20

Dr. Pullen contends that any public institution or function must be open to all people in a democracy, and he did his best to put that philosophy into practice during his administration as state superintendent in Maryland. The community college system was established and expanded; high school was extended to the 12th year; the state public library system was established; a program for handicapped children was established, the building program for schools was broadened and teachers' salaries were upgraded to one of the highest levels in the nation.

At the University of Baltimore, he says, he served during a transitional period. "We strengthened and buttressed the existing programs and moved into some new fields." One of the new fields was a day law program to go along with the night program. In 1969, Dr. Pullen hired away Dean Joseph Curtis of the William and Mary law school to head up the law program at Baltimore.

Dr. Pullen's name is well enshrined in Maryland. Buildings at three state colleges and a junior high school near Washington are named for him. He is in the process of giving away much of his extensive library, part of which has been given to Swem Library at William and Mary.

Ironically, despite their divergent careers, the Pullen brothers had offices only a few blocks apart in Baltimore for more than two decades—broken briefly by company business and service by Bill Pullen during World War II as a major and lieutenant colonel in the Pentagon as chief of the insurance division of the War Department.

Although they never meddled in each other's business, Dr. Pullen says he "prods the heck out of Bill, and he does the same to me." Both Pullens contend their finest success came neither in business nor in education: the Bill Pullens have been married 48 years and the T. G. Pullens 49 years.

Sociology Majors Become D.C.'s Youngest Center Houseparents

BY LOUISE LAGUE

*Reprinted from The Washington
Daily News*

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wurzbacher, both 23, have a most unusual family.

They live at 1713 S-st nw with seven retarded young men, ages 17 to 23. The men have been released recently from Forest Haven, the D. C. Department of Welfare's center for the retarded. The S-st home is a halfway house where they can become adjusted to society while working at their first paying jobs or while training for jobs. Many have been in institutions for years.

The Wurzbachers are their house parents. Both have shoulder length hair and degrees in sociology from William and Mary College. They are honest, serious soft spoken people who live in one room in the basement of the house, amidst pop posters, paperbacks and textbooks, a television and record player. One half of the room holds a bed and two dressers, the other half a couch and some chairs.

The upper three floors of the house, simply furnished and spotlessly clean, belong to the residents. They clean the place themselves after work, and wash the dishes after dinner. The Wurzbachers cook breakfast and dinner and take charge of counseling.

They are the third set of houseparents in the home's five year history, and never has the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration hired houseparents so young. They have had the job since July.

Formerly, Mark Wurzbacher '69 was a social science analyst in the division of mental retardation at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. "I was doing a good job," he said. "They kept promoting me and giving me more responsibility. I was working nights and weekends. It was very confining."

His tiny wife, the former Christine Nielsen '69, was working as a secretary for a temporary help employment agency. "It just wasn't fun. I need a challenge, I need to do more."

It was she who found the job advertised on a government employment agency bulletin board. There had been few applicants. "They were impressed that we were so young and had had some experience. We took the job full of grandiose ideas. There were so many things we wanted to do."

The going has been rough. "They had trouble placing us in their lives," said Christine Wurzbacher. "They had known nothing but authority figures all their lives. It was months before they called us Mark and Christine. They called us Mr. and Mrs. Wurzbacher or nothing at all."

"At first they tested us," Mr. Wurzbacher said, "to see if we knew what the rules and regulations were. The worst crisis happened at the start, there was one boy who gave me a very bad time on purpose. One night I hit him and the house went into an uproar. A social worker came in to straighten it out. We apologized to each other, and the crisis died out.

Now, the crises are small. "The authority figure problem is still bad," said Mr. Wurzbacher. "We want them to treat us as friends, we're all about the same age. But they are used to not speaking frankly and not telling on each other. Only two of them will come to us with problems. The rest of the time, we have to handle crises as they come up."

For the young couple the past four months of commitment have been a terrible strain. "We have all the problems of any nine people living in one house. It's a 24 hour a day job," said Mr. Wurzbacher. "One of us has to be here all the time. We can only go out together between nine and three, and all our friends work then."

Few of the grandiose ideas are left. "We thought the way to teach responsibility was to give responsibility. Once we asked them to make their own lunch and they rebelled.

The Welfare people said we couldn't do that because it makes them feel unloved. The fellows themselves are resistant to change. So what we're trying to do is teach them responsibility without giving them any."

The Wurzbachers would like to try a positive reinforcement system in the house where residents earn privileges in return for good behavior. The welfare department has shown signs of support.

"It would be even more of a strain on us," said Mr. Wurzbacher, "but it might be worthwhile, just to see some improvement, just to be able to help."

The Wurzbachers will not be renewing their contract after this year. Both want to go back to school for masters degrees. "It has been, tho," Mark Wurzbacher sighed, "a learning experience."

This 45-pound satellite

the face of the earth

*If you want to know where it is—a meter or a world away—
Cubic has the system!*

CUBIC'S SECOR, the surveying satellite developed for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, keeps introducing changes in the cartographer's art. For example, the system places the Ryukyu Islands a half-mile southwest of where we thought they were. To make such discrete measurements, SECOR employs electronic trilateration. As the satellite makes its pass, signals bounce between its 7-pound transponder and 4 portable Cubic ground stations. When the data is correlated, one station, whose position is only generally known, is located with new precision.

Since 1964, the ground stations have leapt across the Pacific toward Hawaii in the first part of a globe-girdling program. With each satellite pass, stations receive information from 10,000 data points—and tens of thousands of correlations are used for each distance measured. Trilateration is the key to a number of Cubic's significant systems developments. SECOR is more proof that if you want to know where it is—land, sea or space—Cubic has the system.
