ALUMNI: YOUR HELP IS NEEDED

Shortly after they receive this copy of their Alumni Gazette, alumni of William and Mary will also receive a rather lengthy questionnaire. The questionnaire has been designed to serve two related purposes. One is to obtain more current information on all former students of William and Mary; the other is to obtain alumni views regarding certain aspects of the College and higher education today.

Information provided in parts of the questionnaire will make it possible for the Society of the Alumni and the College to develop more valuable and up-to-date permanent records of William and Mary's former students, utilizing computer-based methods of retrieval.

The answers to other questions asked on the form will provide the College with information of importance to the extensive "Self-Study" to be conducted during 1972-1973 under the direction of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, William and Mary's regional accrediting agency. As President Graves has noted, "The Self-Study provides us with an exceptional opportunity to make an in-depth review and re-evaluation of our purpose, programs, procedures and productivity, both from the standpoint of efficient and effective use of our resources and from the standpoint of the calibre and quality of our performance."

This undertaking is expected to produce several dividends for both the College and its alumni. The information will provide the basis for the institution's first comprehensive Alumni Directory. It will also assist in the initiation of a more effective career placement program which will serve seniors, graduate students, and young alumni. Finally, more informative records will also make it possible for the Alumni Society and administration to identify alumni with professional expertise and particular talents and interests which may be of special help to William and Mary.

Obviously the cooperation of each alumnus is required for this effort. Alumni are asked to take the ten or fifteen minutes required to complete the questionnaire as soon as it arrives and return it to the College within a day or two of its receipt.

YOUR EFFORT SHOULD BE CONSIDERED AS ANOTHER TANGIBLE CONTRIBUTION TO WILLIAM AND MARY.

A strong activist spirit continues on the campuses as students seek economic power and more academic influence

A NEW KIND of student movement appears to be developing on the nation's campuses. Contrary to some past predictions that the unrest of the 1960's would give way to widespread apathy and withdrawal, an activist spirit among college students is still very much alive. But the spirit seems to be different now. It is aggressive, though not violent. It has wide support, yet its goals and techniques are diverse. It indicates, most of all, that students remain concerned about what is happening on the campus and in the world, and that they are still seeking ways to change both for the better.

That is the overriding impression gained by reporters for The Chronicle of Higher Education after visits to eight major universities, public and private, from New York to California. People strongly disagree about the nature of the new activism—and where it may be headed—but there is no mistaking the intensity of feeling among many students. Here are some of the things they have on their minds:

► The students want economic power. They want more control over their own lives, and they have found that one way to help assure that is to provide their own alternatives to established institutions. Thus, student-run cooperatives and other businesses have been set up on or near many campuses. "Co-ops are a means of getting people together to feel their potential power as a community," says a student editor at Duke University. "We're trying," says a student government leader at the University of Wisconsin, "to build a base of community trust."

► The students want real influence in campus decision-making. In most cases, though, they still don't have it, and they know it. "Student proposals are still constantly being shot down," laments a junior at the University of Michigan. Similar complaints elsewhere are leading to organized campaigns for effective student participation in campus governance. On a broader scale, some student leaders are pushing for the "unionization" of students in place of traditional student governments.

► The students want to help the communities around them, provide social services, keep tabs on government activities, and generally help protect the public interest. They are doing all of these things, frequently involving people from outside the campuses. Free schools, free clinics, and student-run research corporations are part of the effort. The research groups, inspired largely by Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate, are tackling such issues as environmental quality, health care, race and sex discrimination, community housing, resource planning, and occupational safety.

► The students want a say in electoral politics—despite many disappointments in 1968—and their interest seems to be increasing steadily as the 1972 campaign progresses. The 18-year-old vote, of course, will give extra weight to student opinion this year. Voter-registration drives have done well on many campuses. As one student leader in Berkeley sees it, students now have a chance for "really effective block voting" for candidates who support their goals. In some areas, students are especially interested in local elections, while in Washington, D.C., a National Student Lobby is working on student goals at the federal level.

The campuses also continue to have a strong undercurrent of anti-war sentiment, although it is less volatile than it used to be. Recruiting by the military hasn't stopped drawing protests, either, and there is some talk of more mass demonstrations against the war this year. Other big student concerns include the rights of minorities (notably blacks, women, and homosexuals), the legalization of marijuana, and the unionization of non-academic university employees.

At some institutions, meanwhile, the new activism is accompanied by increased attention by students to their academic work. "You get the feeling," says a dean at the University of Wisconsin, that "students are much more interested in this thing called education now."

■ Employment Woes: The job market for prospective June graduates apparently won't be much better than it was last year, when it was the worst in at least two decades. Surveys of employers last fall had suggested that improvement was possible. But a later report from the College Placement Council showed that actual job offers were trailing the 1971 pace for students expecting to earn bachelor's degrees. The outlook was brighter, however, for holders of advanced degrees.

■ Financial Risk: "Deferred tuition" has suffered a setback. This is the controversial plan to let students pay for their education by pledging a fixed percentage of their future income for up to 30 or 40 years. But the Ford Foundation, which expressed great interest in the idea a year ago, has concluded that most institutions simply can't afford the risk in financing such loans. Alternative proposals are being studied.

The College

One obvious sign of the times is the changing national attitude toward young men and women who have reached college age. The 18-year-old has the right to vote across the land, and in normally cautious Virginia, the General Assembly this year granted 18-year-olds just about every legal right formerly reserved for those 21 years and older.

These events have legal and political significance, and they also have their impact on college campuses. For some years, students have asked for a greater measure of personal freedom at William and Mary and elsewhere, and they have also sought an effective voice in policy-making.

So it was this spring, after the 18-year-old measures passed the legislature, that William and Mary adopted a policy of "self determination" as to the hours during which a dormitory resident may be out of the building. Under the new policy, effective next fall, "each student living in a residence hall will have self-determination as to his or her freedom of movement in and out of his or her own hall, and self-determination as to the hours of such movement."

Students will be encouraged, but not required, to "sign out" in case they need to be reached unexpectedly, and steps will be taken to develop improved residence hall governing organizations. The freshman counsellor organization will be expanded and improved to help new students adjust adequately to the new situation. A new system of security for the residence halls, using keys, electric cards or some other device, will be installed, so that buildings can be locked against intruders without interfering with the ability of residents to leave or return.

The entire concept of college-operated residence halls is under scrutiny throughout the nation, and many experts have suggested that institutions should "get out of the housing business," in order to concentrate on improving educational activities. It is optional now for juniors and seniors to live off-campus, but Williamsburg has few accommodations of quality with low-budget rentals.

New Infirmary Being Built

Work began this spring on a new infirmary for the College, with completion expected during 1973.

The new facility, which will have 18 beds and emphasize diagnostic and outpatient service, will be located west of the old fraternity lodge complex. The company's base bid for the project was $456,654, lowest of nine submitted.

A full-time director of health services will be named to replace part-time physicians.

English to Retire in September

Robert T. English, Jr., Vice President for Business Affairs at the College, will retire September 30.

English became Bursar of the College in 1960, and Vice President in January, 1970.

A Native of Richmond, he was business manager at Richmond Professional Institute (now Virginia Commonwealth University) for eight years prior to joining William and Mary. Before that, he was with private business firms and the State Auditor of Public Accounts.

A national search has been begun for a successor, under the direction of Carter O. Lowance, Executive Vice President.

Ex-Justice Clark Heads Court Panel

Retired Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark headed a distinguished panel of state and federal jurists who heard arguments in the Invitational Moot Court Tournament at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law on March 4.

Teams of student lawyers from the Universities of Maryland, North Carolina and Richmond, joined with the host law school in the tournament, which was inaugurated by the moot court board of the William and Mary Student Bar Association. The Marshall-Wythe team took the honors in the tournament.

Joining Justice Clark were Justices Harry L. Carrico and George M. Cochran of the Virginia Supreme Court; Judge John D. Butzner, Jr., of the U.S. Court of Appeals (Fourth Circuit); and Judges Walter E. Hoffman, Richard B. Kellam and Robert R. Merhige, Jr., of the United States District Courts.

Flowerdew Plantation Work Underway

Flowerdew Hundred Plantation, on the south side of the James River, the historic home of Sir George Yeardley, Governor and Captain General of Virginia, may prove to be one of the most exciting archaeological sites in the country.

This is the appraisal of anthropologists and archaeologists from the College who have undertaken a project which they expect will yield a wealth of valuable information about life in Virginia during the 1600's.

Mr. and Mrs. David A. Harrison, III, of New York and Prince George present owners of the property, are supporting the work at the Plantation through a gift to the college anthropology department.

Dr. Nathan Altshuler, chairman of the department of anthropology, and Dr. Norman Barka, associate professor of anthropology, are directing the project. Leverette Gregory, assistant in the anthropology department, is managing on-site field excavation work.

The home of Governor Yeardley from 1618 until his death in 1627, the plantation covered 1,000 acres. He called it Flowerdew Hundred as a compliment to his wife, Temperance Flowerdew, of Norfolk, England.

In 1621, on a point of land now known as Windmill Point, Yeardley erected the first windmill in America. In 1624 twelve dwellings, three storehouses, four tobacco houses, and one windmill were on the plantation.

Archaeological survey work carried out last year by Dr. Barka, Dr. Ben McCary, formerly in the Modern Languages Department at the college, and Leverette Gregory, has thus far located fourteen seventeenth-century sites on the plantation site. In July, the team excavated the substantial stone foundations of a 40 by 24 foot building, probably dating to the second or third decade of the 17th century.

There are many indications of other buildings coming off this building said Barka, possibly row houses. The opportunity exists, he maintains, to uncover at Flowerdew plantation, a well preserved early 17th century English village, transplanted and adapted to the Virginia scene.

Because little is known of this period in Colonial history, and sites of this period, such as Jamestown, have suffered heavily from erosion, the well preserved areas at Flowerdew are of particular value to the archaeologist.

Democratic Architect Subject of Book

An English architect who believed that architects should follow the Golden Rule and thus created houses for the Queen of Romania and the poorest worker with the same care, is the subject of a biography by a member of the Fine Arts Department faculty.

"M. H. Baillie Scott and the Arts and Crafts Movement—Pioneers of Modern Design," by Professor James D. Kornwolf, is the first biography of the architect. It was published this spring by The Johns Hopkins Press, as one of a series of books on nineteenth century architecture.

During the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, Baillie Scott is believed to have built hundreds of houses and furnishings in Britain and abroad, which, together with work by other leading English Arts and Crafts architects, greatly influenced the early work of architects such as Frank Lloyd Wright. Although fire and damage during World War II destroyed all the records of Baillie Scott, Kornwolf, by working with journals and unpublished information, has been able to trace three hundred of his buildings.

"His architecture for the rich and for the poor is very similar in design quality," explains Kornwolf, adding that while one man might have a plain chair and a wealthier man an intricately decorated one, both chairs would be built with the same quality of design, materials, and construction.

"Baillie Scott more or less created the living room," believes Kornwolf. Because Baillie Scott opposed Victorian stuffiness, he wished to do away with such rooms as the parlor and the sitting room, calling them "rooms for company that never came."

Baillie Scott's emphasis upon high quality material and workmanship in architecture made him very influential in the Arts and Crafts Movement from 1895 until World War I. "The program of the Arts and Crafts amounted to a thorough overhaul of architectural and interior design," says Kornwolf.

Proponents of the Arts and Crafts were among the first since the revolutions of the late eighteenth century to evidence a concern for the environment. A. W. N. Pugin, with his concern about the 'ugliness' of industrial towns, John Ruskin, with his interest in historical preservation and ethics in architecture, and William Morris, founder of the Movement, are responsible for arousing a similar interest in late nineteenth century America. It was at the turn of the century that magazines such as "House Beautiful" and "House and Garden" were conceived in America, patterned on the Arts and Crafts oriented English magazine, "The Studio."

Another Blue Room On Campus

By S. DEAN OLSON

Dr. Jay Chambers counsels a student

Outwardly, the appearance is entirely unimpressive. The building is a few decades overdue for a facelifting, and when you enter the basement area where the Center for Psychological Counseling Services is located, the depressive, dingy hall puts you in the appropriate mood to see a psychologist. But the atmosphere immediately changes in the offices of the Counseling Center where the staff has repainted and refurbished. The showpiece is the "Blue Room," named for the color of its walls. The furnishings are limited, but they are anything but austere. Orange curtains blend, more or less, with the blue walls, a bright red carpet, and multicolored pillows on the floor.

This is the encounter room, group therapy room, or rap room. Whatever you want to call it, the blue room suggests the change in attitudes toward not only psychological counseling on campus, but, in a limited way, the change in philosophy of the students of the early Seventies.

In the past two years, says Dr. Jay Chambers, director of the Psychological Counseling Center, the number of students who come to the Center has doubled, but, he says, this does not indicate less stability or more emotional agitation. In earlier years, he says, psychological counseling was viewed as a response to a medical or mental problem, but today students see it as a learning experience, as a way of learning more about themselves. Chambers also noted an increase in interest when the activism of the late 60s began to die down.

"Many students have decided that a purely social approach to problems is too limited and they have begun to examine themselves more," he says, "In the era of activism stress was on curing social ills. Now, partly as a result of frustration, students have altered their approach. If they can't change the world as quickly as they would like, they say, at least they can look at themselves and see what they can do there."

Chambers sees the trend as a good thing and believes it will continue and that in the long run it will bring benefits to society as well as to individuals.

"Students are looking at themselves as people in a more realistic way," he says. "They are seeing their emotional problems as a result of learning and experience, and so they realize they can do something about their problems through more learning and experience. They come to see us not for treatment, but to get help in learning about themselves. I feel we are engaged in collaborative research with the students—we are in an intensive learning process.”

For many students, the process centers around the encounter-sensitivity sessions in the blue room. Two members of the staff work with groups of 10 students over a period of a semester in the encounter sessions, which are scheduled once a week for a period of two hours.

The sessions stress relationships with people on a more open, honest basis than is usually possible on a social level or, for instance, in a dormitory situation. Since many emotional problems are directly connected with the way we get along with other people, the sessions encourage the participants to open up and reveal their feelings and problems.

“Oftentimes,” says Chambers, “we feel something strongly, but we can’t afford, emotionally, to think about it, let alone talk about it. In group situations, we encourage risk taking—to risk revealing private problems to see if a certain reaction takes place, a reaction we may fear. Often, it does not, and we learn that we can be more honest rather than put up a front. Then we don’t have to bear the strain of role-playing in our daily lives. We learn we can get along better by being ourselves.”

Chambers says the majority of students who come to the Center are troubled, but not many are crisis cases. The Center gets its heaviest load from mid-semester up to finals, and although many of the problems are precipitated by academic pressures, the students do not come to talk about academic problems. Chambers compares it to the emotional casualties of war. Many of them, he says, occur during the period before combat, rather than during combat itself, because of the anxiety factor. The anxiety of the period after mid-term, when students realize they have fallen behind in their work or some related factor, brings out underlying personality problems.

Chambers says many of the problems stem from the fact that personal relationships with other people are unsatisfactory. The students who come to the center may be suffering from alienation, an identity crisis (what do I believe in, what do I want out of life), or from the confrontation with independence and autonomy in their lives for the first time. Many, he says, are away from home for the first time in their lives; they are still dependent on their parents for subsistence, yet they are in an environment in which they must make their own decisions.

All four of the staff members, including Dr. Chambers, divide their time between the Psychological Services Center and teaching in the psychology department. Two of the members, including Dr. Chambers, are three-quarters time in the Center, one is one-half time, and one is a quarter time. This gives the Center approximately one full-time staff member per 2000 students at William and Mary, about half the national norm. Although the Center is understaffed, Dr. Chambers says William and Mary has many advantages over other schools.

“We can work more effectively with our students due to their excellent motivation,” he says, “and at William and Mary we do not have many of the problems that exist at the big universities.”

Dr. Chambers has been director of the Center since 1970 when he returned to William and Mary for a second time. Born in Kentucky where his father was an economics professor at Morehead College, he moved with his family to Ohio and then to Washington, D. C., in 1933, when his father joined the Roosevelt Administration as chief accountant for the Treasury Department. After high school, Chambers went to Muskingum College for a year, but decided that he wasn’t getting what he wanted out of college so he dropped out, returned to Washington and played the trombone and trumpet for a year in a dance band.

When the war came along, Chambers joined the Marine Corps and spent three years in the Pacific with an infantry battalion that fought on Guam, Okinawa, and Eniwetok. In combat, he took an interest in psychology, wondering why some men held up under combat conditions and others went to pieces. When he returned to the United States (after spending a short time with the initial occupation force in Japan), he entered George Washington University and won his degree in psychology in 1948.

Since jobs were scarce, Chambers and a buddy pooled their resources and started a logging company in the Northern Virginia and Washington area. In 1950, Chambers sold his share of the company and returned to school at the University of Kentucky where he received his doctorate in clinical psychology in 1954. He joined the faculty at his old college, Muskingum, as a one-man psychology department, and stayed there for two years when he came to Williamsburg with Eastern State Hospital, and as a part-time faculty member at William and Mary.

In 1958, a friend asked him to head up a new psychological research foundation in Georgia which collected data from different hospitals and worked on research regarding “need conflicts.” After six years, he went to Kentucky State Hospital as chief psychologist, with the dual responsibility as a faculty member at Centre College in Danville, Kentucky. The position offered him the opportunity to study college drop-out problems and to set up a psychological counseling services center at the college. Working with both a state hospital and with college students, it also convinced him that college level counseling offered the best opportunity to be effective in his work. In 1966, he accepted a position as clinical psychologist in student health services at Florida State University where he remained until 1970, when his former colleague, Dr. Stanley Williams, chairman of the Department of Psychology at William and

May 1972

Mary, asked him to return to William and Mary as director of Psychological Counseling Center.

Trust and confidence are essential to the Center's function, and Dr. Chambers says that his staff works from the outset to warrant the confidence of the students. When he talks with students, he does so without taking notes, and the Center keeps no records of conversations of individuals who come to the Center for help. The same holds true for the group therapy sessions.

"In group situations," he says, "It's up to the group to establish confidence. One of the first things we discuss is the confidentiality of the conversations in order that the participants will be willing to take risks that are necessary in the sessions."

Dr. Chambers' views and the conduct of the Center represent the new philosophy in counseling. There used to be a time, he says, when mental problems were looked upon as something one was born with. Now, however, they are seen as a result of experience, and students realize that through intensive "collaborative research" they can deal with personal problems and resolve them.

A Love Affair with Williamsburg

From an address fifty years later by J. Wilfred Lambert, Vice President for Student Affairs

Shortly after I graduated from Leesburg High School ex-Governor Westmoreland Davis talked with me about my college plans. He had been my good friend and mentor for as long as I could remember. His association with William and Mary was very special, since, when he was Governor, he had been responsible for appointment of the Board of Visitors that in turn appointed J. A. C. Chandler President of the College in 1919, and Dr. Chandler, of course, was the man who, under the influence of Governor Davis, initiated the growth and development that has culminated in the College today.

Governor Davis called Dr. Chandler and made an appointment for me to see him. I recall very well my trip to Williamsburg. I came from Washington to Old Point Comfort on the night steamer and then to Williamsburg by the C & O Railroad. My interview with Dr. Chandler was very brief and consisted of my telling him the subjects I had had in high school, the grades I had made, and my desire for a college education. I explained, quite incidentally, that I needed a job. Dr. Chandler's response was "Can you wait tables?" I told him I had never done so but I was willing to try. "Well", he said "I'll give you a job in the dining hall, at least you can eat. Now what else can you do?" I told him that ever since I was 12 I had worked in a printing office and so without the slightest hesitation he called Mr. L. B. Ferguson, the proprietor of the Ferguson Print Shop downtown. His side of the conversation went about as follows: "Ferguson, I have a boy in my office who needs a job. I want you to give him work. Yes, I'll send him down to see you." I marvelled at Dr. Chandler's directness and I noted that he did not ask if a job was available or if Mr. Ferguson wanted to hire me. I said to myself, "He didn't even say please." Nevertheless, Mr. Ferguson gave me a job and when I returned to College to enroll as a freshman in 1924 I reported to Mr. Ferguson before I had registered.

Williamsburg and the College in 1924 bore little resemblance to Williamsburg today. At the College only two of the present academic buildings were in existence: the Wren Building and the Marshall-Wythe Hall, the old library. The Wren Building was only two stories tall and the library was no more than half its present size. Of dormitories there were five on the main campus; Jefferson which was built, I believe, in 1919; Tyler, which is still standing; Ewell and Taliaferro on Jamestown Road, and the newly erected Monroe where I lived in 1924. There was one other building occupied by men and it was called the Institute. It was located approximately where Matthew Whaley School is now and it had been the Williamsburg Female Institute. It housed the roughest, wildest group of college men I have even known. Hazing was a common practice in 1924 and no freshman ever had the courage to visit the Institute alone. The students were known to have rolled cannon balls down the stairway from the third floor* and there were several reports of guns fired in the building. My knowledge of the structure is very limited. I avoided it like the plague.

Williamsburg itself was very different. There was a grass plot down the middle of Duke of Gloucester Street. Matthew Whaley School was on the site of the Palace. Where the Capitol stands there was a marker and the foundations of the old Capitol. The site of the Raleigh Tavern was a vacant lot. The business district was located approximately opposite the 1770 Court House, although there were a number of businesses near the College. To start with the Duke of Gloucester Street at the College corner there was, of course, the College Shop and next to it the pool room; then the Norfolk Cafe and the Kandy Kitchen. The Imperial Theatre next door. Person Ford Agency was located further down the block and on the corner was Mrs. Binn's Store. I have little recollection of what was on the other side of the street. The Methodist Church had not yet been built. The house on the corner was the Stringfellow Electric Shop. It had an English basement and some years later Steve Sacalis opened an ice cream parlor. There were some residences on the street but I don't remember any business houses until you came to Casey's Store in the next block.

Downtown opposite the Court House there were the bank, the post office, the barber shop, a movie house, and one or two other places. The Baptist Church, a neoclassical structure with a great many steps and tremendous columns was just below the Powder Magazine. The Colonial Hotel, our only hotel, was on the site of Chownings. It had a beautiful long veranda overlooking the Court House green. In later years Pat Paschall was the night clerk there. To come back up town, in the second block there was Mr. Douglas' bakery. It was located very near the stump seat which Colonial Williamsburg has made out of a large tree which shaded the porch of the Douglas home. I shall have more to say about it later.

Obviously, I cannot give you as complete and accurate a picture of Williamsburg as Polly Stryker can, and you may question the reliability of a freshman whose principal interests were the College but the point of my description is that in those days the College and the City had an intimate relationship and I am confident that I knew more about the City and its inhabitants than any College freshman today does.

It may be evidence of my interests, but I remember particularly well the good food that we enjoyed in Williamsburg. Now I am not talking about the Norfolk Cafe or the Kandy Kitchen, which I visited seldom, or even the Colonial Hotel. The only meals I ever had there were when relatives visited the College and took compassion on my because I weighed only slightly more than 125 pounds, but at the dining hall we ate well and I cannot remember complaints other than the sporadic whining of some students who would have complained under any circumstances. We had family service and unlimited servings. The three meals were hardly distinguishable in amount and nobody needed to leave the table hungry. Breakfast was hearty and more abundant than we have today. There were no "snap, crackle, and pop" modern substitutes. For lunch we usually had meat and three vegetables. Dinner was not markedly different except that we had a dessert. Salads were not a part of lunch or dinner until well into my sophomore year; they were considered effete and a little fancy. We sometimes had what was called light bread for lunch but always biscuits for breakfast and rolls for dinner. Toast was considered appropriate for the sick room. We had milk twice a day and coffee twice a day but no other beverages. Looking back, I am compelled to consider our menu limited but it seems to have been well prepared and served in quantity. Perhaps this was because Dr. Chandler took his meals in the dining hall. In later years Pat Paschall was his waiter. Dr. Chandler's appetite was enormous and his taste impeccable. Smithfield ham was available for his table at every meal. He knew as much about cooking as most of those in the kitchen and had his own private recipes for some dishes.

Lambert at Commencement

As a young administrator

At a convocation today

But the food in the dining hall was only incidental to what was available in Williamsburg. I have already mentioned Mr. Douglas' bakery. He baked an enormous fruit tart which sold for a nickel and would, I suppose, by today's standard be considered highly satisfying. It was not unusual for us to eat one before going to dinner. Down on Jamestown Road beyond where Lenny Graves lives there was a woman who baked pies which she sold for 15¢ or 20¢. I know you could buy a quarter of a pie for 5¢ and that too was very satisfying. Over on Prince George Street about where Chunky Rodgers has his shop John Brown sold oysters. His place was a fairly small shack but there was a counter that would accommodate three or four for whom John shucked oysters to order. On the counter there was a bottle of ketchup and a bottle of pepper sauce. We gourmets took the oysters straight. A few hearty souls would sprinkle the oysters with pepper sauce, this hastened your swallowing of the viand. I think he charged 10¢ or 15¢ a dozen, and I recall once eating 4 dozen oysters-before dinner! There was one other place we sometimes liked to visit and that was Brenner's Hot Peanuts. This was a tiny shop located on the Parish House side of Casey's Store. I don't recall that Mr. Brenner sold anything else but peanuts and a nickel bag was enough for two students. I estimate that it was more than twice as large as the little bags that are sold for 25¢ at football games. The sidewalk in front of Brenner's shop was covered with peanut hulls and they made a beautiful crackling sound when you walked on them. But this is not the end of our off-campus eating places. Behind the College Shop Bob Wallace had the Pocahontas Tea Room. His chef was Peter Epps. Now Peter had been the chef at the College hotel across from the Brafferton before the dining hall was erected. He was competent and he was friendly and he was always ready to do a little cooking for students. If we happened to be on the shores of Lake Matoaka where fishing was prohibited and a fish jumped up on the bank we had no choice except to take it to Peter, who for 25¢ would clean it, fry it, and hand it out the back door to us. Or, if in our very frequent walks around Williamsburg we were attacked on some country road by a vicious chicken we had no alternative save to kill it in self-defense, and for 25¢ Peter saw to it that we had a midnight snack of fried chicken and cold biscuits which somehow found their way into the bag with the chicken. Bob Wallace certainly knew of Peter's moonlighting but he was a good citizen and tolerant of the students. Peter was the father of 7 sons and 2 daughters. Four of the sons, Fred, Lloyd, George, and Alfred and one of the daughters, Mamie, were all working at the College at one time. Fred was the father of the current Fred and his two brothers, Roland and Warren.

We were well acquainted with the townspeople. I have already mentioned Mr. Ferguson, but I knew Mr. Archie Brooks and his children, Gardiner, Julian, Margaret, and Claudia and, of course, Gardiner was the father of our present G. T. Mr. Shipman was the station agent and got us into town and out again. Mr. Person had the Ford Agency and I think that his family has the longest history of any family business currently in Williamsburg. You may know something of how he looked if you look at Billy Person. If you want to know how he walked, watch Waverly.

I think the rectory of Bruton Parish Church was next to the Cole Shop. In any event, the Assistant Rector, John Bentley, now the retired Bishop Bentley, lived on the third floor and many of us visited him there after Sunday night services. I knew Pat Peachy and Vernon Geddy very well.

I have already spoken of the close relationship between the citizens of the town and the College. Aside from the interest which Williamsburgers have always had for the College in their midst, the fact that many professors lived in town strengthened the relationship. Dr. Hall, who was Professor of English and the grandfather of Channing Hall, lived on Scotland Street. And here again is that ubiquitous Pat Paschall—he fired the furnace at the Hall house. Professor Castaneda, who taught Spanish, lived near the Bracken House on Francis Street. Dr. King, the College physician, lived between the Allen Byrd House and the corner. Dr. Geiger, the Professor of Philosophy, lived on Richmond Road. In the upstairs front room of Mrs. Field's house on Henry Street I taught Professor Branchi English and he taught me Italian. Next door lived Professor Babcock who taught English. His son, Huckleberry Finn, dug a hole to China in the front yard. His class in Journalism, of which I was a member, revived the Virginia Gazette in 1926.

Because I lived for one and a half years on Jamestown Road I knew that section pretty well. I lived at 312 Jamestown Road and now live next door at 314 which may be evidence that in nearly 50 years I have made little progress.

If you begin at the College Bookstore the houses ran like this: the first house was the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity; next to it was the home of Dr. Hoke, Dean of the College; and next to him lived Mr. Bridges, the Registrar. Dr. Gelsinger, who taught English, was his next door neighbor and next to Dr. Gelsinger was the Sigma Nu Fraternity House. Beyond Chandler Court the house which is now occupied by David Holmes was the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity House. Their neighbors were the Kappa Sigmas where I lived and my present home was occupied by Dr. Rowe, the Professor of Mathematics. The Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity was his neighbor to the west. There were few homes on Jamestown Road beyond what is now Griffin Avenue but what was originally Texas Avenue.

Over on Richmond Road on the corner was a house that Dr. Hall had built and it was the residence of Dr. William A. Hamilton, Marshall-Wythe Professor of Government. The sorority houses had not been built and a little home next to the Western Union office was occupied by Mr. Creasy. Farther up the street were two buildings owned by the College and rented to the faculty. One was a sort of Bachelor's Hall and when Dr. Guy joined the faculty in 1925 he lived there along with Professor Ecker in History, Professor Faithful in Psychology, and a man who taught Biology whose name escapes me.

Our association with the citizens is best shown by the fact that we were welcome in their homes. When I came to the College I brought a letter from an alumnus in the Class of 1896 which was my introduction to the Morecock girls. They had been very popular in the 90's and continued popular until World War II. If students on a Sunday afternoon stroll saw a home that looked particularly interesting they felt free to go to the door and introduce themselves. The relationship was greatly enhanced by the fact that many a family had a little ice cream or some fresh berries or a piece of chocolate cake left over from Sunday dinner and courtsey, of course, impelled them to invite us to share their dessert.

I am going to conclude this with a very personal story that impressed upon me the cordial relationship which existed between town and gown. In September, 1926, at the beginning of my third and final year at the College I went to the College Infirmary with a very severe pain in my side. Dr. King quickly diagnosed it as appendicitis and said I would have to go to Richmond for an operation, and could I get up there. I told him I could, although I didn't know how. The early morning train had already passed through Williamsburg, the second train was in mid afternoon, there was only one bus a day and it was doubtful that I could have survived the bouncing ride it offered, but in any event I had Dr. King's instructions to go to St. Luke's Hospital and tell Dr. Stuart McGuire that Dr. King had sent me. I was puzzled and frustrated but I went down to Person's Garage and sought out Billy and asked him if he was busy. The question was a foolish one. Billy was never busy, at least not too busy to help a friend in need. Recognizing my plight, he offered to drive me to Richmond. I was more seriously ill than I thought and I spent nearly three weeks in the hospital, but Dr. King came to see me and Vernon Geddy wrote me a note, so did Bat Peachy. Bob Wallace sent me a whole carton of cigarettes which really was a luxury for one in my condition. One morning the nurse on my floor came in to tell me that there was an old lady from Williamsburg in the hospital who had learned that a student from the College was there. She asked if she might come to see me and I was flattered and pleased at her interest. It was one of the Smith sisters who lived in what we called the Audrey House but what is now known as the Brush Everard House. We spent a pleasant hour or so together. I am happy to say that she returned from the hospital and lived for many years thereafter. I cite this incident because it so well typifies the friendliness which existed between the College and the town. The incident is one which is as fresh in my memory today as it was in 1926.

I don't think my experiences as a student were noticeably different from those of a good many other students of my day. We found Williamsburg a happy place. Its citizens were cordial and interested in us and it never occurred to us that town and gown might be opposed to one another. With the passing of years the fundamental relationship has remained very much the same. There have been times when the townspeople have been at odds with the students or the faculty or even the administration. There have been times when those of us at the College have lost patience with the town but our differences have simply been expressions of the right to disagree and have not sunk deeply into our respect and liking for one another. Our community of interests and unity of objectives have been stronger than the occasional differences of opinion, and it is events such as this that enhance and nourish that unity. Understanding grows with communication and with the growth of understanding comes respect and appreciation. Williamsburg is the kind of community in which these virtues flourish and grow strong.

African Room Opens in Washington Hall

The newly established "African Room" on the first floor of Washington Hall makes an attractive adjunct to the African Studies program in the Anthropology Department.

It houses part of the African collection of Dr. George W. Harley, 1894-1966, a medical missionary to Liberia.

Dr. and Mrs. Harley went to Africa in 1926 and established a mission in Ganta in the hinterland of Liberia. When they retired in 1960 they moved to Lancaster County where Mrs. Harley still resides. For their many contributions to the people of Liberia, Dr. and Mrs. Harley received from President Tubman the highest decorations given by that country to foreigners.

As a medical doctor Harley from the beginning had the trust of the people and learned much of their culture. He was soon publishing in the field of anthropology as well as medicine and earned his PhD at Hartford Seminary. He later received an honorary Doctor of Humanities degree from Duke University.

The new African Room which affords students and faculty an opportunity to enjoy a quiet, pleasant atmosphere for work or study is the result of the complete overhaul of a drab, utilitarian laboratory.

The room has been painted white and complemented with draperies and furnishings in earth tones varying from pale beige to rich russet. Comfortable chairs around a large table, provide an ideal setting for seminars or small meetings. The handsome table is an old laboratory table, laboriously refinished. A great deal of work was also put into preparing old display cases from the laboratory for their new role. They are now filled with examples of African culture which include jewelry, masks and utensils.

A comfortable grouping of contemporary furniture in another corner of the room invites quiet study or contemplation.

Large display panels have been set up along one wall for pictorial displays.

The carpeted museum is just off the main corridor of classrooms in Washington, but once inside the visitor will find it is a world removed. The Cinderella transformation of the old classroom is indeed an amazing feat that has created an academic atmosphere that combines charm and comfort in a sensitive manner.

Two of our Young Alumnae in Washington

At the White House

A 1966 alumna, Miss Judy Beth Entler, has joined President Nixon's writing and research staff at the White House.

Miss Entler's appointment was announced in March. Her work in the Executive Office Building includes writing letters for the President's signature, analyzing mail, preparing mail summaries for President Nixon and special research projects for presidential speechwriters.

Her current assignment is the newest in a series of writing and public relations posts she has held since her graduation.

At the University of South Carolina, where she earned her master's degree in journalism in 1968, she was an assistant to the Dean and a part-time writer for the South Carolina Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism.

Later, she became press assistant to Congressman William C. Wampler of Virginia's Ninth district, both during his campaign and after he was elected.

Prior to joining the White House staff, she was a writer and consultant with the public relations firm of Wagner and Baroody in Washington.

Miss Entler, who is from Bristol, Va., was associate editor of the Flat Hat and president of Pi Delta Epsilon journalistic honorary organization.

With Kissinger in Peking

Top White House national security advisor Henry Kissinger considers a William and Mary alumna one of his two "most indispensable women."

She is Diane Catherine Matthews '64x, who is Kissinger's business secretary. Miss Matthews and the other "indispensable," Miss Julianne Pineou, his personal secretary, were subjects of a cover article in the March issue of Ladies Home Journal.

The reason for the article was not that the two young women work for one of Washington's most colorful bachelors, but because of their role in President Nixon's springtime visit to Communist China.

They were the first American women to visit, in an official capacity, the Red Chinese nation. The trip took place in October, 1971 when Kissinger met with Premier Chou En-lai to pave the way for the Nixon visit.

"It was a working trip for them," Kissinger reported. "After watching my staff men struggling on the July trip (an earlier Kissinger journey to China) to take full notes of my twenty hours of conversation with Premier Chou En-lai, I could see we would need my two virtuoso stenographers on the second visit. Between them, Julie and Dianne took a complete record of thirty-five hours of talk.

"The fact that they are charming and beautiful may also have entered my mind when I was planning who I wanted to accompany me in October," he added.

The October visit lasted ten days. Miss Matthews also was with her boss on his first "mystery" trip to Peking in July, but got only as far as Pakistan from which he "vanished into China.

She describes in the Journal article the numerous exotic dishes during their meals and the various sights they saw while relaxing. She and her colleague also posed formally with Kissinger, wearing gowns they had made from fabrics brought back from Peking.

Their observations on people they met in China were mixed, but they enthusiastically attempted to talk with Chinese when the opportunity arose.

"Reaching out and understanding is important," Miss Matthews said. "When we first arrived in Peking, we rode through the streets without drawing back the curtains on our car. Soon, we had them wide open. We'd start waving and smiling, and some of the people, particularly the children and the women, would wave back."

Miss Matthews attended William and Mary in 1960-1962, and then attended a secretarial school. A native of Virginia Beach, she has worked for Kissinger for two years.

"Mo Mo" slices Chateaubriand for the camera

New Yorker Moomjian and the Copain

By S. DEAN OLSON

In the classic restaurant scene from The French Connection, the tough New York cop played by Gene Hackman—shivers in the cold with a stale pizza while across the street, an elegant French smuggler and his companion leisurely work their way through a delicate Chateau Briand nurtured by a $26 bottle of exquisite wine. For a time, it seems that crime really does pay.

Fortunately the maitre'd who slices the Chateau Briand for Fernando Rey (the smuggler) in the movie also owns the restaurant, the Copain, and since he is a good William and Mary graduate, he made sure that the law triumphs in the end. Hackman has been back to the restaurant several times since the movie was completed, and Norman "Mo Mo" Moomjian, class of '55, who owns The Copain, made certain the service and the meal were every bit as good as that afforded Hackman's arch enemy in the movie.

Moomjian, who has owned the Copain since 1962, has become somewhat of a celebrity in his own right since the movie was released. Since it is headed for the top ten among all-time moneymakers, the movie will eventually show to at least 20 million people worldwide. The restaurant scene lasts several minutes, and for much of that time either the canopy with the name Copain, or Moomjian himself, are visible.

Johnny Carson lives in the vicinity of the Copain, and the night he had Hackman on his show, the restaurant scene came in for a discussion. An extraordinary coincidence, said Carson, since he had eaten at the Copain the night before he saw the movie. Moreover, in features on the French Connection in Life Magazine and in American Cinematography the Copain comes in for a mention, and in an upcoming issue, the New York Magazine will feature the restaurant in an article on how such establishments are affected after they appear in movies.

All of the notoriety, of course, had done nothing to hurt business at the Copain, but Moomjian, who has been given mild acclaim for his Alfred Hitchcock-like cameo role in the movie, notes that business has been good ever since he took over the restaurant 10 years ago. It's a matter of degree, however. Before he had a steady business from eight o'clock until closing time at midnight, in line with the continental dining habits of his customers; now, customers are standing on the sidewalks waiting to get in when the restaurant opens at 6 p.m.

Moomjian, a native New Yorker, credits his southern exposure with much of the success of the Copain. He came to William and Mary in 1951 on a basketball scholarship, and during his next four years he worked at a couple of restaurants in Williamsburg and for the Restoration. Be sure, his superiors admonished him, to greet your customers in a friendly manner and give them all the personal attention possible. Personal care is one of the hallmarks of the Copain, Moomjian says. "We have a small restaurant with room for only 70, and we emphasize a friendly intimate atmosphere, which is not something you can get all over New York."

After graduating from William and Mary in 1955, Moomjian returned to New York and ran a catering business for a couple years before he was drafted by the Army. Following his service obligation, he returned again to New York, worked at an office job for a year, and then decided that the "restaurant business was in my blood." He quit the office job and went to work for various hotels and restaurants until 1962 when he bought the Copain.

The proprietor in more normal circumstances

An established restaurant of 16 years, the Copain nevertheless had been affected seriously by financial problems when Moomjian took over. In less than a year, however, Moomjian was able to revise the systems that had gotten the restaurant into trouble, and with a ready made clientele of William and Mary friends in the New York area, he has been doing well ever since.

Moomjian, who obviously has a habit of making sound decisions, almost made a bad one when director Bill Friedkin asked to use his restaurant in The French Connection. "I thought it was going to be another cops and robbers movie," says Moomjian, "and I didn't want that kind of image connected with the Copain." Friedkin, who had eaten in the restaurant and thought it was perfect for the movie because of the atmosphere and setting, convinced him, however, that the crook in The French Connection had elegant tastes, and the movie would indeed flatter the restaurant. Moomjian finally agreed, on the condition that the canopy showing the restaurant's name be visible and that his own staff be used in the scene.

Other than the atmosphere, the Copain's main attraction to Friedkin was the visibility from the street of the restaurant's dining room. Hackman seems especially pathetic when the camera zeroes in on him from inside the restaurant where the two crooks sup on their splendid meals.

Moomjian noted that the scene took a full day to complete, and the actors went through four takes—which meant four bottles of that $26 wine and four servings of Chateau Briand. Luckily, notes Moomjian, the staff was more than willing to help the actors dispose of any of the extra wine.

The Copain is a favorite meeting place of New York alumni. Active in alumni work, Moomjian helps coordinate New York area meetings with his former roommate, Gordon Vliet, executive secretary of the Alumni Society. The Copain will probably be remembered for The French Connection, but to Moomjian, it is more appropriately known as the unofficial headquarters of the alumni chapter in New York.

Gala Choir Reunion Festival

For years, former members of the Choir have talked about a reunion of their own.

Choir alumni have now begun planning for an Alumni Choral Festival May 5, 1973. That is the time for the Choir and Chorus annual spring performance, and it also is on the eve of the retirement of Dr. Carl "Pappy" Fehr after 30 years as the director of the William and Mary Choir.

Agamemnon Vassos '57 is reunion coordinator. Vassos resides at 364 Jonathan Court, Newport News, Va. 23602. Miss Janet Hartley '72 is the Choir's current alumni secretary.

Howard H. Hyle '48, one of the originators of the choral reunion-festival, said he is "so glad to hear that what's been talked about for years is now coming to fruition, especially since Pappy retires next June. I'm especially happy because it will give me the chance to sing with my daughter."

A 'New' Alumni Gazette

The Society's publication, the Alumni Gazette, has been published as a quarterly magazine ever since October, 1938 but as the photograph above shows, it has had many faces.

Beginning next fall, if plans go well, the Gazette will have another new face. It will also come out monthly during the College session.

The Society's Board of Directors in a special March meeting approved conversion of the Gazette to a more regular and up-to-date medium packaged in what is called a "mag-paper." The term refers to a combination of the best aspects of a magazine with the ease of production and economy of a newspaper.

The Gazette was first issued as a monthly newspaper, in a traditional format, in September, 1933, shown at upper left in the photograph. It was designed to be as traditional in appearance as the Virginia Gazette, Williamsburg's venerable weekly newspaper.

The new concept, which takes advantage of the best in offset printing, allows the Society to reach alumni more frequently and with more news and reports of interest to them, while reducing the total cost of this portion of the Society's program. Funds will thus be available for new projects by the Society.

Alumni Society

Takes New

Initiatives

The Society of the Alumni might count 1972 as a major turning point in its 129-year history.

In early February, the Society's offices moved from relative obscurity to a building which ultimately will be called The Alumni House. The offices initially occupied two vacant apartments in the Bright House (the former Kappa Alpha house) next to Cary Field, and later this year when other apartments become available, the Society will have additional space.

The move to the Bright House was the culmination of several years of study by the Board of Directors and the College's Board of Visitors. A plan devised by John F. Morton '58 of Metairie, Louisiana, a newly elected Alumni Board member, would convert apartments into facilities for various activities and could lead to construction of additional wings.

Across Richmond Road from the Bright House, construction is proceeding on a new in-town motor hotel with such features as underground parking and conference facilities, which is expected to complement use of the Bright House for alumni affairs. The motor hotel is being privately developed.

The Society is renting the Bright House from the College, so that William and Mary's budget suffers no loss in revenue formerly earned through rental of faculty-staff apartments. In return, the College maintains the building and supplies utilities and heat.

Not long after the move was made, the Alumni Board held a rare March meeting. Board meetings are customarily in December and June, with no formal provision for decision-making at other times.

First action by the Board in March was to elect Gordon C. Vliet '54 to the post of Executive Secretary of the Society, succeeding James S. Kelly '51, who held the post for 18 years. Kelly is now Assistant to the President.

Vliet became Director of Alumni Affairs, a newly created position, in June, 1966 after working since graduation with his family's business in Alma, Michigan. Vliet was a Rotary Foundation Fellow for study at the University of Exeter, England, in 1957-58 and is a Navy veteran. After his return to William and Mary, he met and married Lee Wadkins '68.

The Board authorized conversion of the Alumni Gazette from a quarterly magazine to a more regular magazine-newspaper type of publication and began implementing with the newly established College Development Office a plan to modernize alumni records by using computer-based methods of information retrieval.

OCT. 13-14

A FUN WEEKEND FOR ALL !!!

FRESHEST ADVICES

Stephen A. MacDonald is living in Norfolk, Va. and enjoying travelling. Recently he had a wonderful trip to Texas and Louisiana. His daughter, Mrs. Virginia St. Clair MacDonald Baxter of the Class of '40 is living in Montgomery, Ala.

17

After retiring from the History Department at Ohio State University where he taught for 37 years, Henry H. Simms held three other positions and is now retired and living in Louisville, Ky.

20

On February 1st of this year Major M. Hillard retired from the bench as Circuit Court Judge in Chesapeake, Va. His retirement marks the end of a 40-year career in politics which carried him to both houses of the Virginia General Assembly and one of the Chesapeake's two high court benches.

21

The Reverend Morris W. Derr, D. D. is retired and resides in Allentown, Pa. and officiates in the Diocese of Bethlehem when called upon by the Bishop.

22

Dr. Paul C. Pearson of Warsaw, Va. has been awarded a rare fellowship in The Royal Society of Health which entitles him to attend any international medical assembly. He attributes being a recipient partially to the fact that both he and his wife are from a lineage of Richmond Castle, a noted castle of England which is over 1000 years old.

24

Jesse Choate Phillips
4213 Orchard Hill Road
Harrisburg, Pa. 17110

Virginia Cowles Isley (Mrs. G. Herbert Smith) and her husband recently returned from revisiting Rome and Venice and this time extended their trip to include Athens and the Greek Islands. Another happy event was the marriage of their granddaughter last August after her graduation from St. Mary's Junior College. She and her husband live in Winston-Salem where he attends Wake Forest and she goes to Salem College. The Smiths live at 1436 Maryland Avenue, Charlotte, N. C. 28209. Thank you, Virginia, for being the first of our class to make a memorial gift to the W&M Fund—a fine precedent which I hope many of us will keep in mind.

Hugh Hancock and his charming Alice did a complete circuit of the U. S. and the Far East last October and November. After a visit with their younger daughter and her husband in San Francisco, they took off for a few days in Honolulu on their way to Sydney, Australia, for a week of exciting sightseeing with Alice's cousin. From there they went to Djakarta, Hong Kong, and Tokyo, returning by way of Fairbanks, Alaska, to New Jersey for a visit with their other daughter and her family. What a wonderful trip. Welcome home.

Ed Johnson, Arlington, Va., still follows a demanding schedule. Having recently retired after a distinguished career as Judge of the Maritime Court, Washington, he now serves on the faculty of the School of Commerce of the University of Virginia.

While I do not have the final figures or list of contributors to The 1971 William and Mary Fund, it looks like we can continue to be proud that percentage-wise our class is still among the top ten. My personal thanks to all you regular supporters. With the induction of Thomas A. Graves, Jr. as 24th President, William and Mary enters a new era of excellence. Get to know him. He is a friendly, personable, able man who inspires confidence he can accomplish anything he sets out to do. What solid satisfaction comes from being a part of this effort through our contributions to The William and Mary Fund.

I hope all of you have been spared the flu this winter and leave you with this warning from our local paper.

*Beware of the bug called the flu,
You meet him that day you will rue,
With fever and cough
He can carry you off
Then it's "goodbye forever" for you.*

Mrs. E. Sclater Montague
(Suzanne Garrett)
3625 Chesapeake Avenue
Hampton, Virginia 23361

I enjoyed hearing from Elizabeth Kent (Lazo) who started with the Class of '25, took time out and finished in '26. She wrote asking for Anita Rucku Cottrell's address. I get a kick out of getting classmates together who have lost touch. So—more of you write to me.

So sorry to hear from Elizabeth Franklin that her husband, Richard Alfriend, Jr., died in October.

Sam F. Burke is Executive Secretary for the Georgia High School Association and Chairman of the National High School Football Rules Committee.

Asher L. Baker, M. D. of Portland, Conn. retired from practice in April of this year.

Norman H. Neblett of Victoria, Va. was elected President of South Central Board of Realtors for 1972.

Mrs. A. Brinkley Trammell
(Wilhemina Swann)
700 Ridgecrest Circle
Denton, Texas 76201

The Washington Star, Jan. 3, 1972 carried an article on the retirement of Stanley King who has been a fulltime U. S. magistrate in the Alexandria division of U. S. District Court for eastern district of Virginia, dealing with both major and minor criminals.

Stanley received his law degree from George Washington University after graduating from William and Mary. He had attended the University of Virginia for two years before coming to Williamsburg.

He is retiring a little early and looking forward to a Caribbean cruise with his wife before making any future plans.

It was nice to have a note from Helen Singleton (Lambert) filling us in on the years between when she left William and Mary and now. Although she finished only two years of William and Mary, during the years she taught she continued her education and graduated from Old Dominion University in 1959. She retired last June after teaching 38½ years in the Norfolk County and Norfolk City Schools.

Helen relayed the news that Louise Love (Jones) and her husband are living in Buffalo Junction, Va. where she visited them this summer. As you are active in the Alumni Association in Norfolk do share with us any news you may have of other Alumni there.

Nettie Heywood (Rowe) has also retired after 38 years as an English teacher and has made good use of her leisure traveling in the United States, Canada and ten European countries.

Eldon (Cutie) Christopher retired as Superintendent of Schools in Tappahannock, Va. in 1969. Since then he continues to be active in Church, Boy Scouts, the Rotary Club, with hunting horseback riding, sailing and fishing as favorite pastimes.

Elizabeth (Liz) Smith (Moss) has't had many spare minutes since graduating. She taught Home Economics and Chemistry in a Norfolk County High School later becoming Head Dietitian for Portsmouth General Hospital.

Her marriage to Johnson Moss, also of our class, moved her home to Richmond where she has been active as a Red Cross Gray Lady at McGuire Veterans Hospital; in the Community Fund; First Baptist Church activities, particularly the Women's Missionary Union and the State Board of the Women's Missionary Union. Her hobbies are Furniture and Interior Decorating.

"Liz's" and Johnson's first grandson is a Freshman attending William and Mary.

If any of you are travelling through Petersburg let me remind you that Watkins Booth is an attorney there. His address is Route 1, Box 174, Petersburg, Va., 23803.

Elizabeth R. Boggs who did most of her teaching in Maury High School in Norfolk is now retired and living at "The Hermitage", Onancock, Va. 25417.

Elizabeth Heath (Towler) writes she is now retired but keeps active in the A.A.U.W. and D.A.R.s. I'll bet her six grandchildren have kept her physically busy and on her toes keeping up with their activities also. She is very interested in antiques.

Lester Warren is Sales Manager for Curtis Motor Company Incorporated in Newport News. How fortunate to be so close to our Alma Mater and be able to watch it grow! He is a Past-President of the Warwick Ruritan Club and wears their pin for 21 years of perfect attendance. He is a back yard fruit grower and an amateur collector of coins and medals.

Mrs. John Marshall
(Kitty Myrick)
801 River Road
Newport News, Va. 23601

James Curtis Jenkins of McLean, Va. writes that he spent a pleasant year doing about 6 months of consultant work with a management consultant firm. He says it keeps one young.

Leonard L. Born of Belvidere, Cal. writes that visiting classmates all would be welcome for a libation on short notice and a nostalgic chat.

Margaret Holman McCoy and her husband, Henry, who has retired after almost forty years with Aetna Life and Casualty Co. have moved back to Richmond and hope to attend some of the alumni events. Their son graduated from The Citadel and is with Seaboard Coastline Railroad in Miami.

A portrait of the late Marjorie Carter, a former professor, was presented to the Valdosta College library by some of her fellow professors. This information was sent to me by Julia Howard Day of Atlanta.

William B. (Bill) Bolton
1103 Princess Anne Street
Fredericksburg, Virginia

Eliza Hunter Trainham has retired from the State Department of Education, sold her home in Marshall, Va., and is now living in a townhouse apartment in Newport News. Dorothy Chalkley Cocks wrote that Elizabeth Epes is in a nursing home in Blackstone. A letter from Mrs. George R. Mapp, Jr. (Sue) from Machipongo, Va. A letter from Ruth James Turner from Atlanta, Ga. Just received a card from Mary and Allan Cook from Vero Beach, Fla. Was happy to receive a Christmas Card from my fellow debator, Stanley A. Fein; a card from Dorothy Bundy Turner in Waynesboro. She has received a visit from Bauman Mundie and his wife, Louise Lane, '30. A nice note from Ed and Kitty Hill of Plymouth, N.C. A card from Robert R. Jones of Richmond; one from Jim Ellis of Orange, Va.; a nice card from Mary Land Gill. Mary, like myself, is already looking forward to the next reunion. A card from Elizabeth Glenn Hartman; a nice note from May B. Reilly of Petersburg; a card from Bill and Mary Thompson at Virginia Beach. A letter from Georgia Sherry Bryden of Oreland, Pa. Georgia is still teaching. A card from John B. and Betsy Green from Richmond; a card from Harold (Doc) Glenney of Pottstown, Pa. a card from Arthur and Dorothy Rogers of Williamsburg; a card from Lucille E. Michie. Lucille says she will retire at the end of this school year. A nice letter from Virginia Wills Beirne. Virginia said she had visited Lois Wilson, '29 and had gone on a cruise with her to the Greek Isles and Turkey. Last year Virginia went to France. She does get around!

Thomas G. Burke of Cleveland, O. writes that Tom Burke, Jr., '56 and wife Fay Jones, '57 and family who have been living in Sydney, Australia since 1969 are moving to Melbourne. He is with GE.

R. K. T. Larson was a judge at the finish line at the Russian-American Indoor track meet at the Richmond Coliseum March 17. He also has been busy raising funds for the new textured running track at Cary Field. He also is active with the University of Missouri business journalism program and with the professional development in the Society of American Travel Writers and the Society of American Business Writers. He recently was awarded a handcrafted pewter plate of appreciation by the Norwegian Government for assisting in services to seamen. Several of his collected paintings were in the exhibit of 20th Century American Folk Artists' work in New York.

Your class agent, Bill Bolton, was elected Chairman of the Housing Advisory and Appeals Board, President of the Fredericksburg Bar Association, and re-elected President of the Peoples Bank of Spotsylvania. Received a note from Dr. J. D. Carter from Williamsburg. Doctor Carter was my French instructor while at William and Mary.

Thanks again to each and every member of the class who has written. If you will send the news to me, I shall send it on to the Alumni Office.

Francis Shepherd Davis had a recent visit from Chris Lantz Tull. Chris has been teaching at the U. of Hawaii in Honolulu for the past twelve years. She has now retired and returned to the mainland.

S. Douglas Fleet of Richmond is chairman of the Board of Trustees of Hampden-Sydney College. He is a former Executive Vice President of the Albemarle Paper Company and Vice President of its subsidiary, Ethyl Corp.

Willie Lee Rogers Smith now has a new position. She is a resource teacher in Junior High School. This will be her last year of teaching and will retire next month.

A long note from Helen Bristow Ralls says her husband retired January 1. They plan on attending Homecoming in the near future. Her husband attended Wentworth Military Academy and were at his class reunion there recently. They have a lawyer son living in San Francisco and a daughter in Denver. Helen, we hope you and your husband will be back to the College for a visit soon.

Our giving to The William and Mary Fund shows more contributions for 1971 and more money contributed. Keep up the good work and let's everyone give to the '72 Fund.

Keep those letters coming in and we'll pass them along for the whole class.

Mildred Jane Moore Nixon's main interest these days, like so many of us, is grandchildren. Midge is ahead of most of us having an even dozen and in '72 hopes to make her score a baker's dozen. She and her husband, Eugene, have five children. He is a retired Episcopal minister who founded the parochial school in Columbia, S. C. He is also retired from the Air Force with rank of Colonel. Midge left William and Mary during her junior year to be married and finished her education after three sons, receiving her degree from the University of N. C. in '42. Their daughter, Jane, is following in her mother's footsteps, returning to the same school to complete her college work which was interrupted by marriage and three children, and youngest of whom is just a year. Her record of A's and B's also follows her mother's and makes her parents very proud and happy. The Nixons live in Mount Dora, Fla.

Clara Ione Smith Potter is another of our class to leave the College before graduation and continue her education elsewhere. She graduated from the U. of Va. with a BS in Nursing, served as Public Health Nurse for New Kent for six years, and has now retired from the position of school nurse for George Wythe High School in Richmond. She and her husband, Charles, live at Chestnut Grove, New Kent, Va. They had a four-weeks tour of Frankfurt, Heidelberg, Vienna, Venice, Nice, Monte Carlo, Rome, Paris, and Amsterdam in the summer of '71. Their son, Richard, and his wife, Pam, were stationed in Frankfurt and accompanied them.

Lawrence Fay Brewster, "Bruce", retired in 1969 after being professor of History at East Carolina. He is presently engaged in organizing the archives of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina at Wilmington, N. C. He lives at 1205 Oakview Drive, Greenville, N. C.

Elizabeth Moore Dunlap lives in Lexington, Va., where she teaches chemistry at the high school. She recently had a bout with surgery at Duke University Hospital but was home recovering nicely when I talked to her in February.

Following student days at William and Mary, Channing Glenn completed work on the M. D. degree which he received from the Medical College of Virginia in 1933.

After completing his internship in St. Louis, Mo., he accepted a commission in the Army for service as medical officer in the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC). His first duty station was the four National Parks CCC camps at Yorktown, Virginia. Later he was selected for assignment as medical officer at Headquarters, Sub-District 16 and transferred to Petersburg, Virginia.

For a short time after completing his tour in the CCC, Chan engaged in private practice in Petersburg. In 1938 he moved to Elizabethtown N. C. and established himself in general practice with emphasis on obstetrics. He continued this practice until about eight years ago when he experienced a series of coronaries and had to take life easier. At present he is doing limited office-only practice, and keeps busier than he probably should. Prior to this change, Chan achieved a record of 3100 babies delivered. His wife, formerly Dorothy Lowe and who is a registered nurse, assists him in the office.

Chan and Dorothy have three children. Anne is an instructor in Nursing in a hospital in Charlotte, N. C.; Clare is a school teacher; and Dick is Branch Manager and Assistant Vice-President in a banking chain. All are married and each has two children.

Gardening and playing the electronic organ are Chan's hobbies and main sources of relaxation. His address is Box 278, Elizabethtown, N. C., 28337.

Insurance has been the field of endeavor of William A. Trombley since leaving William and Mary. Until 1948 he worked as a group insurance executive for companies covering the eastern seaboard. For the next 20 years, he was in charge of group insurance sales in eastern United States for the Home Life Insurance Company of New York, retiring in 1968 as Senior Regional Group Manager in this company.

He spent most of 1960 and 70 as consultant to a major life insurance company, and in 1970 became Vice-President of the Professional Compensation Planners in New York City. His company specializes in employee benefits programs, group insurance, and pension plans.

Bill is married to Eva Atkinson, '47. Their son, William H. is Educational Editor with the Los Angeles Times, and also teaches journalism at the University of California, Los Angeles, Calif.

Bill served on the Committee of the National Life Underwriters, Washington, D. C. to recommend changes in group insurance laws. He is a member of the National Life Underwriters Association; the Country Club, Chevy Chase, Maryland; and Saint Bartholomew's Church, Park Avenue, New York City.

He has made many interesting trips to Europe with Eva to cover fashion showings. Eva is co-owner of the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers located in New York City. His address is 122 East 42nd Street, New York, N. Y., 10017.

For several years after graduation from William and Mary, Edwyne Parker taught school in Norfolk County and in the City of Norfolk. In April of 1935 she married Prentis P. Smith. They have two sons and a daughter. The oldest, James, married Armanda Hicks of West Virginia, has a four-year old son, and works as a Quality Assurance Engineer in Ocean Research for the Bay Bridge Plant of Westinghouse. Benjamin received the B.S. degree in chemistry from William and Mary in 1960 and the PhD degree from Georgia Tech in 1966. He is presently employed as a chemist at the Naval Weapons Laboratory, Dahlgren, Virginia, and in 1971 was named one of the outstanding young men of America. Their daughter, Elizabeth, is married to S. R. Schultz and lives near them in Newport News.

In 1952, when there was a critical need for teachers, Edwyne decided to help and began the second phase of her teaching career. In 1961 she was selected for membership in the Omicron Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma National Honorary Society for Women Teachers. She continued teaching until 1965 when she and Prentis retired because of impaired health.

They live at 28 East Governor Drive, Newport News, Va. 23602.

After William and Mary, Milton Salasky received the M. D. degree from the Medical College of Virginia, and completed four years of hospital training. The Army borrowed him for the next four years, most of which was spent in California, though his first duty station was Kirtland Air Force Base, Albuquerque, N. M. At the close of the war, he returned to Norfolk and continued the practice of medicine in which he is still active.

During his tour in California, he met and married Shirley Greenberg of San Francisco. They have three sons. The oldest is in the building business, the second will graduate from Tufts University in English in June 1972, and the third is a sophomore at Rhode Island School of Design. Michael has applied for entrance to the Marshall School of Law after graduation from Tufts, which, if it materializes, will partly satisfy Milton's desire that his children attend William and Mary.

Milton and Shirley enjoy travel and have followed this interest considerably. Milton continues, as a hobby, his interest in numismatics, a subject he became interested in when his children were small.

(For the uninitiated like me, numismatics is the study of coins, tokens, medal, paper money, and objects closely resembling them in form and purpose, says Merriam Webster.) He also attends most of the William and Mary football games, and finds class reunions exhilarating. He recommends class reunions to everyone as a good tonic.

Milton sends greetings to his William and Mary classmates. He remembers four years of very pleasant association with them and the College of William and Mary which he is proud to have been a part of. His address is 501 Medical Towers Building, Norfolk, Va., 23507.

Once when an advertising agency man happened to say to an elderly sign carrier, "Well, I see you are in the advertising business too," the old fella replied "Yeah, and it's hell when the wind blows!"

But Herbert T. Lorentzen didn't know that when he started his thirty-four year stint on Madison Avenue with Young & Rubicam, Inc. After a few years he moved on to Needham & Grohmann which, incidentally, handled the Colonial Williamsburg account, among others.

He left that agency in 1949 to become Executive Vice President of Birmingham, Castleman & Pierce, Inc. It was during his association there that he and his wife, Caroline, made several trips to Beverly Hills to launch both radio and television shows from Hollywood. Herb served two terms on the Standing Committee of the American Association of Advertising Agencies and was in Who's Who in Advertising.

Six years ago the wind really blew and Herb joined Pouch Terminal as Secretary of the Corporation. This is a pier and warehouse complex on Staten Island.

As for community activities, Herb is a former Trustee of Dwight School for Girls, the Englewood School for Boys, the Englewood Hospital Association and former Governor of the Englewood Field Club.

He was President of the Board of Trustees of the Englewood Library when the new poly-sided building was planned and $1,550,000. raised for its construction.

After serving several terms on the Vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal Church (550 families), he was elected Warden of the Parish in 1954. His brochure "A Call for Tomorrow" received wide distribution. During the summer of 1957 he worked for Billy Graham. So perhaps some of Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin's talks with Herb and the letters he wrote him after college, urging him to enter the ministry, eventually rubbed off in spots.

Herb's wife, Caroline, has been President of the Englewood-Ridgewood Junior League and the Garden Club of Englewood. She has attended their national conferences as a delegate. As President of the Hospitality Shop at the Englewood Hospital, she turned a small coffee shop into a large restaurant operation.

Caroline and Herb are "living on the level" in a Royal Barry Wills house they built in 1948. They have three children. Anne is a travel agent in New York, Elizabeth a music teacher in Cincinnati and Herb Jr. runs a health food shop on Cape Cod.

By the way, if anyone has an extra copy of a 1931 Colonial Echo, or knows of one for sale, do write Herb at 145 Walnut Street, Englewood, N. J. 07631. He lost his.

It is of interest to us in Southside Virginia to read in The Petersburg Progress Index of the many wonderful activities of the Reverend William L. Scearce of Washington Street United Methodist Church. His devotion to his ministry is a testimony to his character. During his forty years of ministry Mr. Scearce has had nine churches. His first was in the Richmond Circuit. He has performed 400 weddings, conducted 1000 funeral services and accepted over 11,000 persons into the Church. He received his BA in English from the College in '32 and his divinity degree from Duke University. Even though he will be retiring from the ministry he does not plan to be inactive.

A note from Mack G. Britton of Orlando, Fla. says he is retiring and expects to spend some of this year travelling in Europe.

Helen McHardy Walker of Norfolk retired in '71 from her job as Director of Carolton Oaks School and spent the fall in Italy and Spain. She is still one of the trustees of the school.

Elizabeth Vernon Hope Urban of Virginia Beach is back from a research trip to Northern Ireland and is currently working on an historical novel.

Dr. R. A. Torrens of Santurce, Puerto Rica recently had a son graduate from the College and is now in Tulane Law School.

33

Ethel E. Houston (Hartman) of Falls Church, Va. writes that her husband died from heart failure. She is working for Fairfax House, a county facility for emotionally disturbed adolescent boys. Her daughter, Judith, moved to La Jolla, Calif., her husband's home, where she is an interior designer and he a journalist. Craig, Ethel's son, and his wife are seniors at the College. They married last June and spent the summer in Europe.

Ann Garrett Scott of Annapolis, Md. after spending months in bed with arthritis has now after two operations returned to the active world. She is now walking again and attending business at their bookstore, The Scott Book Center.

Elizabeth Sparks Dow of Monkton, Md. and her husband, Wallace, have been on an expedition to the Seychelle Islands in the Indian Ocean, then to Zanzibar and finally on safari in Kenya. Recently they were pony-trekking with a group of friends in Ireland.

Gertrude Frost Movshin of East Orange, N. J. is assisting with Spanish in her husband's operation, The Academy of Languages.

Rhoda Pratt Hanson of Miles City, Mont. will be travelling with her husband who is on a three-man US committee with Australia and New Zealand working on the lamb imports question (trying to equalize it, making lamb available where it is now). There will be meetings in Canberra, Australia so she hopes to see Alice Herzberg Galea who teaches English there. She has lived on Malta most of her life but since her husband's death in Australia. Rhoda had several delightful meetings with Rachel Black Smith in Paris. Rhoda has been taking groups of people to Europe for the last seven years. She writes that her cousin Betty Pratt Wolff of Bass River, Mass. sometimes tells her of hearing word of Frog de Bordenave, and her daughter is married to Warren Baxter's son.

34

John A. Penello of Severna Park, Md. was appointed in December '71 by President Nixon to be a member of the National Labor Relations Board for a five-year term. Since its beginning in 1937 he has been serving this board.

Helyn Lewis Janson of Orlando, Fla. retired in June '68 after 43 years of teaching in Virginia, D. C. and Florida. She received her MA degree from Columbia Teachers' College in 1940.

Frances Culbreth Deane of Charlottesville, Va. attended the graduation of their youngest daughter, Lyn, from Stanford University last June. She was graduated "with great distinction" and elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Lyn was a student at William and Mary in 1967-1968. While in California she visited Marcia Smith Petersen, '34, and her family at Carmichael, near Sacramento, and Dr. and Mrs. J. Paul Leonard at Walnut Creek. He was a professor of education at the College in the early 30's.

Florence Jackson Blocker of Williamsburg, Va. is now living in one of the lovely apartments at Village Green on Jamestown Road. She thinks she will like the change as soon as she recovers from the strain of moving from such a large house.

Catherine Blanton Seay of Norfolk writes that her daughter, Ann Seay Duncan, '67 is teaching art in Lake Taylor Junior High School there.

Mary Turpin Acree of Newton, Va. has been postmaster for the past 28 years.

Reuben C. Harvey of Danville, Va. has two sons at the College of whom he is very proud—Peyton is majoring in psychology and Dan in English Graduate School.

Elizabeth Young Clark of Bluefield, W. Va. was selected to have her name appear in 1971 Outstanding Educators of America honoring America's leading college and university educators. Presently she is Professor of English at Bluefield College.

Lillian Carmine Sterling of Gloucester County, Va. went to Mexico last summer with her husband, Lester, Sr. where they attended the graduation of their daughter, Carolyn, '67 who received a Master's Degree in Education.

Albert M. Orgain, III has recently been promoted to Agency Vice President of The Insurance Company of Virginia.

Ruth Proudman Biermann of Piqua, O. writes of their children, three of whom graduated from Ohio State University. Alan went on to his PhD at the Univ. of California at Berkeley and is now teaching Computer Science at A.S.U. Helen also received her Master's at Berkeley and now with her husband is at Humboldt State College in Calif. Barbara is married to an attorney and has two girls and is hopeful of graduating from Stetson Univ. in Florida after having her first two years at Indiana University before her marriage.

Bernard B. Brugh of Landover, Md. and his wife, Christine Hudson, '35, welcomed their ninth grandchild about a year ago.

Ann Northington Westlow of Richmond has spent a busy year as Grand Royal Matron of the Amaranth of Virginia.

Christian W. Sorensen of Cranford, N. J. has retired from the Post Office of that City after thirty-two years service. He plans to travel state-wide and Europe, and then settle down in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. His son and daughter are both married.

Andrew A. Amatruđa's daughter, Jean, is married to James F. Flint, M. D., cardiologist fellow at University of Pennsylvania and his son, John, is taking his residency at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Helen Perkins Biddle's son, William Biddle III, an Amherst graduate, has teaching fellowship in English at Boston University. Her younger son, David Perkins, is a senior at Babson College. She visited Betty Chapin Howe and ran into Arabelle Hubbard and Mack Russell.

A. Addison Roberts, president of the Reliance Insurance Company, has been elected to the Board of Trustees of Temple University. He is an alumnus of Temple's School of Law.

Roland B. Hall's daughter, Judy Anderson '64, has just completed her first year in western Germany at a large army post with husband Lieutenant Bill Anderson and fifteen-month-old Betsy.

Pauline Cornett Brown's husband Dr. Paul E. Brown is now District Superintendent of United Methodist Church at Oak Ridge, Tenn. They have four children and two grandchildren—Paul, Jr. is taking his residency in medicine. Elizabeth Ann is Director of Christian Education in Arlington Methodist Church and Miriam and Sam are both in college. Pauline is serving as Christian Social Relations Chairman of W. S. C. S. for the Holston Conference.

Profuse apologies for lack of letters in past several months, but let's hope this will make up somewhat for the silence.

Christmas cards and notes sent in to the Alumni Office are the salvation of class secretaries and from them I've garnered the following bits and pieces of news of our classmates.

Pearl Reid writes that both daughters are at the University of Kansas and that she and her husband spent a week in Texas last fall. Her golf game suffered as a result of back muscles wrenched in water skiing. Anyway, that's one good excuse.

Em and Bill Heydt are now spending their summers at Hemlock Farms in Hawley, Pa. Daughter Sue, Tyler School of Art graduate, is working and living in New York City. Son Billy, home after two years Army service in Greece, is now working in a bank. Sherry is a junior at Montclair High School.

Em enclosed some interesting material about Joan Anderson Howe, whose work is gaining her a reputation in the art field. Joan is the daughter of famous illustrator and landscape painter, Victor C. Anderson and is a third generation artist. She and her husband now divide their time between a 200 year old farm house in Altamont, N. Y. and a modern home in Marathon, Fla., near Key West. Joan has exhibited in several galleries and from what I see of her painting in the brochure, I like it (and Joan, I'm not just saying that). Next time I'm in Rockport, Mass., I'll stop in Stevens Art Gallery to see the real thing.

Lorimer Walker is now Science Coordinator for the Department of Science at Putnam Valley School in New York.

Alma Van Blarcom Walker continues to teach in first grade. Their four children are married and settled in Ohio, Indiana and New York City.

The Frank P. Miller's four sons are currently serving at the U. S. Military Academy in West Point, N. Y. Major Frank D. Jr., is an instructor in the Physics Department while Captain Brink P. teaches in Mechanics. Cadet Jerry K. is a second classman (Junior) and Cadet Robert M. is a first classman (senior). That's quite a record!

Other Miller news: Frank, Sr. top Producer for Bestline Products in 1970, spending lots of time on the road. He's also on the Corporate Staff which means further responsibility and challenge. Peggy joins him from time to time and in November and December he is on home ground. Polly still at home, a junior in high school and Peggy, Jr. enjoying Sophomore year at William and Mary.

Arthur B. Hanson, Major General,

U.S.M.C.R. has been designated by the Secretary of the Navy, Melvin B. Laird a member of the Reserve Forces Policy Board. Congratulations Tim.

Maurine (Reenie) Stuart Dulen saw Sally Robinson, '44 and Mary Elizabeth Smith Sadler at the PiBetaPhi Convention in San Antonio, Tex. last summer.

Barbara Brown Heimerl writes that her husband retired from NASA Structures Division, end of 1969. Their older son, John, is with radio station WRAR, Tappahanock, Va. and younger son, Robert, is a senior at The American School in Tehran, Iran and is living with the family of a former schoolmate, Yahid Tabatabai (AFS student from Tehran at York High in Yorktown, Va. 70-71)

Rhea Mirmelstein Wolfram's son Michael (Harvard '67, U. Texas Law School) is serving as clerk to Federal Judge on 5th Circuit Court of Appeals and lives in Montgomery, Ala. with his wife Amy who has her master's in nuclear physics. Son Steve, also Harvard (cum laude) is attending Harvard Law School. Son Richard is a sophomore at Trinity College in Connecticut.

H. Lee Shirmberg has been named a Fellow in the Society for Technical Communications. He is currently serving as Assistant to the President and had been a Director for four years.

Beth Barnard Nichels (Mrs. Samuel B.) is an architectural instructor with the Richmond Technical Center.

Helen Gibson Chapman has been teaching in Europe for the past 12 years in the U. S. Air Force dependent schools. She lives in London.

Elaine and Bill Walker continue their busy lives—Bill trekking into New York City, Elaine presiding over her media center with no scheduled classes. Their offsprings are off and running everywhere and doing lots of exciting things, but space doesn't permit the details.

Marjorie Bowman Fowler of Brooksville, Fla. is working with her husband teaching remedial reading in the junior high school there.

Always good hearing from you all. Keep in touch. Have a good year.

"printers to discriminating users"

3d and Canal Streets

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Frances Pollard Owens and husband, Gordon, spent three weeks touring the Yucatan Peninsula, colonial towns and Mexico City. Their son, Douglas, received a degree of Juris Doctor from the University of Michigan and is now in Olympia, Wash. where he is working in the State House of Representatives.

Lucie Dreyer Hitchcock is working as manager of cafeterias for local schools in Springfield, Vt. She and husband, Raymond, have a married son who is Staff Forester in St. Paul, Minn. and a married daughter living in Vermont. The Hitchcocks have five grandchildren.

Gervais Wallace Brekke and Nils spent a weekend with us in February. Bob and I hope to attend the wedding of Betty Boyd Parsons and Bob's son, Vance, in March and we are looking forward to seeing Kitty Britton Norton and Larry in the spring when they come east to meet their first grandchild due the first of March.

Jack L. Giannini, Colonel, USAF (Ret.) is now associated with William D. Stiehl in the general practice of law in Belleville, Ill.

Sterling T. Strange, Jr. of Columbia, S. C. has been promoted to general adjuster by Gay and Taylor, one of the nation's leading insurance claims adjusting firms. He joined this firm in 1958.

Reporting from Clarksville, Md.—Tabb Taylor (May) says their son, Edward, is a junior at the College of William and Mary. He holds the James Barson Hope Scholarship for 1971-72.

Nancy Jordan (Parker) writes from Norfolk, including news of several classes. Archer D. Farmer, '30, retired as Director of the Norfolk Health Dept. Bureau of Laboratories. The new director is Harry A. Snyder, '34, and I am now his Assistant Director.

Edgar J. Fisher, Jr., our classmate, has received glowing tributes recently on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care, which he has directed for 23 of the 25 years. The Petersburg Progress Index described at some length the many accomplishments of the Council, which began with a one-man staff and an annual budget of $4,000 in 1948 and is now a $150,000 operation with a full-time staff of nine persons, operating out of the Council's homey antebellum office on Richmond's historic Linden Row. Many other health councils in other states have modeled their health councils after this one, and look to Virginia's for leadership. Ed sees many hopeful signs for the future and says, "We're placing a lot more general practitioners and specialists in small communities. The faithful old country doctor is not driving his buggy into oblivion. He's coming back strong in a sports car."

Chuck Butler writes from Manila in the Philippines, after having been inspired by the December issue of the Gazette. His news is somewhat on the tragic side, as he describes a brutal kidnapping and murder which involved his family last November 1, when he was on a business trip to the United States. His wife, Connie, was seriously injured by a shotgun blast. Luckily, his daughter, Susie, who was held by the kidnapers, was not injured, but one of their servants was brutally murdered. The long and involved story was featured in news media around the world. Chuck writes that, hopefully, Connie will be out of the hospital by April the first. We will be thinking of you and your fine family, Chuck, and holding good thoughts for your future.

Dick Davis of Portsmouth, Va. has been elected Chairman of the Board and Executive Committee of the American National Bank.

Greetings from the Gentle City.

Joe and I attended the inauguration of our new president, Dr. Graves. It was a most interesting event with representatives from 105 colleges and universities in the procession.

Heard from Mary Louise Lowell (Williams) the day after I turned in my column last time. She is teaching school in Pennsylvania. Her husband is a structural engineer. Son, Jim, was at William and Mary for a couple of years, but transferred to the University of Hartford.

Elizabeth Ann Douglass (Munves) is still teaching nutrition in the New Jersey School of Medicine. Son, David, and daughter, Ann, are thinking about coming to William and Mary.

Hensley Woodbridge was promoted last year to Professor of Foreign Languages at the Southern Illinois University.

Virginia Kner Smith of Pittsburgh, Pa. writes that she was proud to receive the "outstanding alumna" award for the Pittsburgh Chi Omega Alumnae Association last April.

Louise B. Forsyth of Quincy, Mass. was elected as the first woman moderator of the Bethany Congregational Church in its 140th year. She also was the first woman elected president of the Massachusetts School Counselors Association. She is named in the seventh edition of WHO'S WHO of AMERICAN WOMEN.

Hope with spring coming along you'll sit down, have a cup of coffee, and write some news to your class secretary.

Ciao.

Greetings, classmates. Christmas did not bring an avalanche of newsy notes, but here goes.

Bobbie Widmer Dinwoodie and Dave live in Chester Springs, Pa. They have two married daughters, one in high school and a new grandchild.

Eleanor Haupt Bolen and Waldean of Clemson U. chaperoned a student tour to Europe last summer, have a college-age daughter.

Louise Leath, a librarian in Baltimore was in Italy last March.

Marge Gibbs had a great weekend in Williamsburg for the Board meeting. Said she was the only grey head in crowd of thousands at the Jethro Tull concert at William and Mary Hall. Kids from all over the state are flocking to events held in the Hall. Les Hooker is head of operating the Hall, a mammoth job. Marge was at Bucknell for Parent's Weekend. Has a sophomore son. She saw Gwen Evans Wood. Theo Kelsey Dean also has a son there.

Joe Markowitz and Ollie Foster both have newly married daughters. Marge had recently talked to Walt Hackett. He lives in East Hampton, N. Y. Is in the auto business.

Joyce Remsburg Shank is living in Guam, husband a colonel. She was recently selected "Woman of the Year" for A.F.B. and SAC. She has a second daughter at the College. Jean Bulette Boggs is listed in current "Who's Who of American Women" as is her W&M Roommate, Anne Peebles.

Bill Ditto lives in Greensboro. Was in Japan last summer for World Scouting Jamboree.

News of Freddy Steely Woodward! Lives in Glen Ellyn, Ill. Her daughter was a Theta at Illinois, is married. Son is a freshman at Colorado State, Ft. Collins. Freddy is selling real estate, is active in Infant Welfare, C.D.H. Auxiliary, Republican Party, and bridge club.

Jack Carter is as busy as usual. Was in Canada giving lectures at Trent U. Peterborough, Ontario, and visiting upper schools. Their Christie is at the College and Janet at the University.

Rolf and I will chaperone our last Tri-Delt dance on March 11. Our daughter is a senior. Son is a senior at Norfolk Academy. Hopeful of getting in either the University or the College.

Marge Talle Merriman writes that Jack has given up his law practice temporarily. They are in the islands living at a slower pace—sailing, etc. Have one child with them. They have two college-age and one working. They are hoping to spend the summer in England.

Nancy Mapp Collins writes that prior to last fall Mike had been working toward his Ph D. at Chapel Hill, planning to teach English. When Nancy and Mike were married, they decided to take a year off so that they could see the country. They travelled from Maine to California, and are now living in Coronado. Nancy writes that it is certainly a small world in that they have discovered that her freshman year roommate, Suzanne Hinson Chase, lives in the same apartment complex. Suzanne's husband, Mike, is overseas with the Navy and will be back in the Spring. Suzanne is keeping busy with classes in night school.

I had a fun visit with Barb Johnson last weekend in between her flights. Barb is working with Lan Chile Airlines in Boston and frequently flies to exciting places such as Rome, Naples, Madrid, Norway, Chile and many others. Barb has also become very involved in a volunteer project of cultural exchange with Latin America.

Bob and Bobbie Henry Todd are still living in Richmond where the "now-bearded" Bob is a job recruiter for the State. Bobbie is working as a computer programmer.

Living in Madison, Wisconsin are Jim and Bobbi Vail Rhem. Jim received his Masters degree from the University of Wisconsin in May and is now working toward his doctorate.

Dan Farlin is assigned to the 3576th pilot training wing, Vance Air Force Base, as a T-38 instructor pilot.

Tuck and Susan Small Spaulding are living in Missouri where they are associated with a Christian Science youth organization.

Bruce Gillespie is presently working for the Staford County School System teaching chemistry and working on a Masters degree in education at the University of Virginia.

Bob Works is in his third year of teaching and coaching at Minneapolis Near North Side.

Judy Knott is working at the State Department. Living with Judy are Cheryl Anderson and Judy Banks. Cheryl is studying art education at Howard University and Judy is teaching Spanish and Italian at Fairfax High School.

Linda Sundin Bevins and Bob are living in Misenheimer, N. C. Bob will graduate from Pfeiffer College in June.

Living in Charlottesville are Tim and Karen Arnold McPherson. Tim will receive his law degree from the University of Virginia in June and plans to practice in Northern Virginia.

Mike Poole writes that duty called again barely six months after he had returned from Vietnam. In October he received orders to leave Fort Hood, Tex. for an assignment with the Military Assistance Command, Vietnam. Mike arrived in Vietnam in early December and has been assigned as an advisor to the Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, located in the former imperial capital of Vietnam, Hue. Mike says Hue is a lovely old city with a moat and thick, high walls. The interior is a labyrinth of canals, lakes, parks and narrow streets. Mike writes that he is thoroughly enjoying his time there since he is free to mix with the people, and he finds his work a challenge—something he says he didn't have in the stateside Army.

Betty Collins Bakun writes that she and Bill returned to Norfolk following graduation. Betty taught for two years at a private school, one year of third grade and the other of sixth grade. Then in June Betty retired to prepare for the arrival on November 7th of William D. Bakun III, whom they call "Trip." Betty writes that Bill is still teaching social studies in Norfolk at a junior high school and will receive his Masters in June.

Marty McGuire has begun a new job with a small investment firm in Boston.

Vickie and Bob McLaughlin celebrated the first birthday of their daughter, Heather, on March 11th. Bob is teaching Science and coaching football at Parker Gray Middle School in Alexandria.

About a week ago I was at a tennis tournament in Bethesda, Maryland, and who should I sit right next to but Ellen Mauck Lessy! Ellen is a computer programmer for the Mitre Corporation in McLean and her husband, Roy, is an attorney.

Ellen also passed on the news that Helen Rhea Gretz is working for the City Department of Laboratories in New York City. Helen's husband, Bill, is with Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

Living in Boston is Peter Smith.

JoAnne Walthall is doing estimating work for one of the major department stores in Manhattan.

Charlie and Marilyn Kron Dent are living in New Hampshire, while Charlie is working for a radio station in Boston.

Carolyn and Ned Armstrong are living in Northern Virginia, where Ned is working for the Hecht Company.

Rick O'Neil has married Bill Singleton's sister. (Sorry not to be more specific.)

Living in Arlington are Brad and Sandy Barrick Bierman. Brad is writing a magazine for airplane enthusiasts and Sandy is teaching history at Wakefield High School.

Doug and I are living in Old Town, as I have mentioned in previous class letters. I am a City Planner and Doug is Director of Federal Marketing of Compress in Washington. Summer will once again bring sailing every weekend in Annapolis and much tennis.

Unfortunately, I don't have as much news this time as usual. Please don't be modest or bashful . . . or whatever you're being! Write!

Two long letters, sharing news of many classmates, arrived from Marion Lang Van Dam and Dot Johnson Blom, both of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. The Bloms' oldest daughter Laurie attends the U. of Delaware. Dot had heard from "Tine" Stultz Emerson, whose husband Paul does research work on noise pollution at N. C. State. They live in Raleigh, N. C. and their son Paul won a music camp scholarship sponsored by the N. C. Federation of Music Clubs. Kay Tomlinson Bartlett wrote from Broomall, Pa. that she and Bart vacationed for 4 weeks in the great Northwest and saw Canada end to end. Bette Freeman Fee works at Trinity U. Her son and daughter attend private schools in San Antonio. Mary Jeanne Keiger Hansen and her mother of Oklahoma City visited last year in Va. for Garden Week, in Miss. for the Natchez Pilgrimage, and attended the U. D. C. Convention in Atlanta. Pat Riker Pimbley teaches at a practical nursing school in Los Alamos and is taking an anthropology course at the U. of Mexico. Their son attends a college in Kansas and their daughter is 15. Mary Jane Chamberlain Howard's oldest son, a Princeton graduate, is studying for his master's degree at the U. of Richmond. Two sons are attending Princeton, and their daughter is in high school.

The Van Dams saw Betty Aurell Schutz, Mary Gladot Jones Vliet and Hallie Vaughan Rennie Martin '44 when Ted attended the wedding of Phyllis Ebling Travel's daughter in Washington, D. C. in July. Phyllis' husband Saxe retired as Assistant Director of the F.B.I. in Dec. Betty and Henry '44 had a trip to Los Vegas and San Francisco in Nov. Marion also had a visit with Mary Raney Begor in Bowie, Md., where Mary is teaching high school math. Her son Diggs is at VPI, Bob attends a Maryland college and Judy is in high school. Jeanne Boyle Herbert wrote that she, Tom, and 3 sons had moved into a new home in Creve Coeur, Miss. Ruth Schmitz Kerns and her daughter Ginny '70 have both received their master's degree, and Ginny's husband has earned his doctorate. The Kerns live in Fort Wayne, Ind. Betty Willcox D'Agostino and her husband are innkeepers at the Cranbury Inn in Cranbury, N. J. They enjoy frequent trips to their farm in New Hampshire. Son Pete is at Yale, and daughter Laurie attends Lake Forest College. Betsy Yow Pearce and Bob are stationed at Okinawa but look forward to seeing more of their 3 children and grandchildren when orders bring them home.

Sunny Trumbo Williams '44 visited here in Jan. when she was a guest speaker at an Emporia Club meeting. Jeanne Schoenewolf Preston and I met for lunch in Hopewell, Va. at her daughter's, Peggy Preston Fanney '69. Jeanne and Page had just returned from New York where they had a visit with Nancy Speakes Tibbetts and Colby. The Tibbetts' son Bill is at Princeton, Mike is in graduate school and daughter Nancy is in high school. Their oldest daughter Barbara, her husband and 2 year old son visited them during the holidays.

Her one-artist shows appeared at VCU, the Jewish Community Center, the Art

*If you want to know where it is—a meter or a world away—
Cubic has the system!*

CUBIC'S SECOR, the surveying satellite developed for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, keeps introducing changes in the cartographer's art. For example, the system places the Ryukyu Islands a half-mile southwest of where we thought they were. To make such discrete measurements, SECOR employs electronic trilateration. As the satellite makes its pass, signals bounce between its 7-pound transponder and 4 portable Cubic ground stations. When the data is correlated, one station, whose position is only generally known, is located with new precision.

Since 1964, the ground stations have leap-frogged across the Pacific toward Hawaii in the first part of a globe-girdling program. With each satellite pass, stations receive information from 10,000 data points—and tens of thousands of correlations are used for each distance measured. Trilateration is the key to a number of Cubic's significant systems developments. SECOR is more proof that if you want to know where it is—land, sea or space—Cubic has the system. Susie Parsons Cosgrove and Cliff are enjoying living in Lake Forest, Ill. where he is with Hunter Publishing Co. and Business Manager for a new magazine called Pro-Quarterback. Gloria Gruber Blakelock writes from Dayton, Ohio, that their son, a graduate of the U. S. A. F. Academy is a Lt. in Air Intelligence in Thailand. Daughter Bonnie is married, 15 year old Laurie keeps her and Ralph busy going to horse shows, and their youngest daughter is 9 year old Bambi.

Mary Schafhirt Barnes and husband Jack, an army Major General, are living in Taiwan where he is Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group. Jack is a graduate of West Point, son John graduated from Annapolis, and Brian is at the Air Force Academy. How is that for variety! Daughter Kathy is married and teaching in N. J.

Sheila Keanne Gibbons-Fly has been living in Malibu, Calif. for 11 years. She is Assistant Administration Analyst on the Chancellor's Staff at UCLA. Her husband is head of the Camera Department at CBS-TV in Studio City. Their children are Tom 16, Bill 14, and Elizabeth, 12 years old.

Carolyn Hughes Opitz and husband have been retired from the Navy for 2½ years and live in Carson City, Nev. Their son Frank is in the Navy. Liz and Sallie are both married and Anne attends Willametta U. The Opitz are the proud grandparents of a 2 year old grandson.

Mary Lou Manning Thorburn of Fairfield, Conn. has daughter Pam as a third-year student at the College.

Hope to hear from many of you during the summer.

The Beal's, Frank and Pat Martin Beal '46, have a 3rd graduate in the family. Frank Beal III, class of 1970. Frank and Pat are in Maitland, Fla., handy to Disney World.

From St. Petersburg, Florida Gene Purdum writes that he is busy designing condominiums and apartments for all us

"northerners" who are moving to the Sunshine State. Gene's oldest daughter was married last May. That leaves two entering college in the fall and one in high school.

Aubrey Mason of Lynchburg, Va. has been named general chairman for the 1972 Piedmont Heart Association, Inc.

As for the Marlatts, we are packing up for a move to Atlanta, Ga. this summer. The Coca-Cola Export Corporation is leaving New York, so look for a new address for your secretary next issue.

I hope you have all marked October 14, 1972 on your calendar in big red letters, or rather gold, green and gray letters. It is our 25th Reunion at Homecoming. Watch for a mailing about it.

Congratulations to several of our classmates who have moved up to positions of prominence lately. First of all, we'd like to say "Well done!" to William R. Murphy of Manassas who was recently elected to the General Assembly of Virginia.

We've also received word that Fredrick B. Price of Washington, D. C. has been elected State Counsel, Maryland and D. C., of Lawyers Title Insurance Corporation. Fred received a B.A. degree from the College of William and Mary in 1948 and a bachelor of civil law from our Alma Mater in 1949.

Charles R. Hopkins, Jr. has been named Executive Vice-President and Actuary of Estate Life Insurance Company of Roanoke, Va. Charles has been in the insurance business for 23 years, seven of them with Estate Life.

Jay McQuat Hyle writes that her husband Buck has been promoted to General Manager of Poly-Corr Division—Inland Container Corporation in Indianapolis, Ind. Jay herself is Republican Precinct Committeeman. One of their daughters is a sophomore at Miami of Ohio and the second is a senior in Lawrence High School.

Julian Irvin of Richmond, Va., formerly with Irvin and Wolfe, is a partner in the new firm of Haskins and Sells, which merged with Irvin and Wolfe last October.

Macy Diggs Sankey writes that her husband Jim is now Assistant to the Vice-President of Production of Goodyear International Corporation, a position which includes a lot of traveling—like Europe, Africa, and South America! Macy says they've moved back to Hudson, O. after two years in Tennessee starting a factory and building a home. Their oldest son graduated in June from Miami University in Oxford, O. and was drafted in November. Their second son is finishing his second year at the College of William and Mary.

A note from Mary Ellen Bovie tells us that she has remarried and her new husband is Thomas Reid. Her daughter Susan is a junior at Blackburn College in Carlinville, Ill. and her son Peter is a sophomore at the University of Colorado in Boulder.

Also a note from Edward Buxton that he has been visiting his sister, Jean Page Moffett, who is a graduate in library science at the College of William and Mary. Her husband, William F. Moffett is judge of Rappahannock County, Va.

Kay Chiles Larson Neer teaches art at St. Stephens School, Alexandria, does illustrated ads for the Why Not? Shop, and tries to keep up with sports. Her eldest son, Mike Neer, an all-time Washington and Lee basketball player and All American College high jumper, now a Navy ensign, is an assistant basketball coach at the U.S. Naval Academy and a recruiter of court talent; Tom Neer is a freshman player at Randolph-Macon, and a third son, John, is prepared for varsity play at St. Stephens. Her husband, Casper Neer, designed the prize-winning square in the heart of Old Towne, Alexandria. Daughter Brooke, Bradford Junior College graduate, is an emerging artist-designer.

Larry Barron has joined the Permutit Company of Paramus, N. J. as waste treatment marketing manager. He will assume full direction in marketing Permutit equipment and systems for water pollution control and waste water treatment. Larry had formerly been with Monsanto Enviro-Chem Systems where he was area development manager of industrial water pollution control. Eva and Larry live at 665 Suffern Road, Teaneck, N. J. where Eva teaches English at the high school.

Bruce and Jean Sturtevant Bugbee are living in Gettysburg, Pa. Bruce served with the Navy for three months in the Mediterranean area and was promoted to Commander, USNR. He was elected recently as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Adams County Community Action Agency, and has been Historical Consultant to the Historic Mint of Long Island, Ltd., for a series of 109 medals dealing with the American Revolution.

Elaine Campton Baker and Jim write that they and two sons 13 and 16 are back to normal in Islamabad, Pakistan again after being evacuated to Kabul, Afghanistan during the Indo-Pak War. They were unharmed and only slightly inconvenienced during the war (by blackouts each night and occasional air raids). They were evacuated to Kabul on December 15 and returned December 28, after spending Christmas in Afghanistan.

Major Robert J. Heckel of Willingboro, N. J. is the recipient of the Defender of Freedom Award given by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge for an excellent essay, "What Is An American." The award was $1000 and an enclosed George Washington Honor Medal. Congratulations, Bob.

I had a Christmas note from Bill Low too late for the last issue and now I have even more to add to it. Bill hosted the William & Mary basketball team in Houston and held a reception. He said 50 or more attended the game, alums that is. Bill represented William and Mary this past fall at Dr. Norman Hackerman's inauguration as President of Rice. He is president of the Houston Alumni group.

Ronald Moore received a grant from the Faculty Research Grants Committee of the University of Tennessee which enabled him to travel to England for 5 and 1/2 weeks this past summer. Ronald has two children a daughter in the fourth grade and a son in the seventh. They live at Signal Mountain, Tenn.

James Harris, Jr. lives in Vienna, Va. He is Contracting Officer for Weapon Systems, Naval Air Systems Command. He has been with the Navy since 1956. Jim has three daughters.

Walter Stamm is District Manager for Doulton and Company. He has been with them for twenty-one years. Walter lives in Mentor, O.

A. Page Coleman is Manager of Finance and Administration for General Electric's Agency & Distributor Sales Division. He lives in Armonk, N. Y.

Frances Saunders Tyree is still living in Roanoke. Her husband, Dick is Archdeacon and Administrative assistant of their diocese. Frances teaches 3rd grade. They have a daughter at Radford and a son in high school and a son in junior high.

Robert Rawlings is living in Kensington, Conn. He is a Materials Control Manager for the Stanley Works in New Britain, Conn.

Dorothy Smith Wilson and Preston are living in Stuttgart, Germany where Preston is Director of Education for the General Education Development program for the Department of the Army in Europe.

That is all for this time. The Morrisons have had a busy winter with Bob spending or rather making many trips to Venezuela. We have managed to work in a few ski trips on the side. Let's hear what you have been doing.

My Christmas is always made happier each year by your cards, letters, and pictures. I only wish that I could share them with all of you. This Christmas, Helen Mason Boyle wrote from Dallas, Tex. that she and Bob bought a thirty-five year old house in May 1971, and after having some work done on it, moved in August. They had previously lived nearby, so the children did not have to change schools. The three children are now all in school, so Helen has been substituting in kindergarten and may go into full time teaching of kindergarten.

Teddy Nicas Maddox, Jim, and their two children live in the small town of Jeffersonville, Ga., where Jim has his law practice. Their daughter Angela is thirteen and is in the eighth grade, and son Jimmy is eleven and in the sixth grade.

Betty Hicks Wagner wrote that she had joined Psychological Consultants in Richmond where they live. Her work involves vocational guidance, executive evaluation, etc. which she says is fascinating and something in which she has always been interested. This along with three teens and one almost a teen plus her home, church, and college duties keep her busy. Bev and I always enjoy seeing Betty and Allan at Homecoming each year.

"Tink" Bell Rehlaender wrote that they had to miss Homecoming because they moved in September to a village about ten minutes from Lausanne, Switzerland. They are now settled in a three-hundred year old villa with a magnificent view of Lake Geneva and the Alps (Mt. Blanc in particular). Jim, Sr. was appointed Director of General Products, Philip Morris Europe as well as continuing as Manager Director Clark Cum. He travels considerably but enjoys his job. Jim, Jr. is attending the College; Anne, age 16, attends International Girls School in Lausanne, and Jeff, age 7, attends the village school. They are totally immersed in French, as English is rarely spoken. Tink's note ended by saying that they will look forward to seeing their college friends because Switzerland is a favorite tourist place with its beautiful country, excellent shops, and superb skiing. Their address is Le chateau, 1030 Bussigny, Suisse.

Lucy Keen Bertram wrote a long letter bringing us up to date on her. After her marriage in 1952, she and Jack lived in Wilmington, Del. where he worked with Dupont. Then they went to New York City for five years while Jack worked on his master's and doctorate in Electrical Engineering. In August 1958 he joined IBM. They moved to Saratoga, Calif., in 1961. They were transferred back to New York in 1963 where they lived until they were transferred back to California again 1965. They lived in Los Altos, Calif. until 1968 when they were transferred to New York again. They lived for a while in White plains and are now living Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. Their son David attends Hackley School in Tarrytown where he played soccer this fall and is now on the freshman basketball team. Many of us got to meet David when he flew down to be with his mother at Homecoming. He is quite a handsome and mature young man. Lucy stays busy as a housewife and mother, does some volunteer work, and enjoys cooking and gardening as hobbies.

I am sure that you would want me to send our deepest sympathy to Maggie Slayton Glauber who wrote me of the death of her husband, Jim, who died in July at Walter Reed Hospital of a heart attack two days after open heart surgery. Many of you will remember that Maggie met Jim while we were in college, and he was stationed at Ft. Eustis. She is still living at 8407 Crossley Place, Alexandria, Va. 22308.

Elaine Compton Baker and Jim and their two sons, Jimmy and Glenn, live in Islamabad, East Pakistan, where Jim works for the USIA. He edits "Panorama," a forty page "Life"-sized magazine which is distributed to 22,000 Pakistanis each month. They returned to the U. S. last May after having completed a two-year tour there. On their way home they had enjoyable visits in Stockholm and London. Jim worked two weeks at USIA in Washington, and then joined Elaine and the boys for a visit with his family in Portsmouth, Va. They then traveled across the country in a station wagon and camped along the way in an 18-foot trailer. This was quite an eventful trip for them. They ended their trip with a few days spent in Los Angeles and San Francisco. They flew back to Pakistan through the Pacific, stopping in Hong Kong for three days. They arrived in Islamabad on September 4, a few days before school opened, to begin their second two-year tour. Elaine works as full-time librarian at the International School of Islamabad. Their sons, sixteen and thirteen years of age, go to school there.

Let me hear from you, and if you pass through Roanoke Rapids during the summer, please come by to see me or at least give me a call.

The Norfolk Ledger-Star recently carried an article about a newly appointed judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court in Virginia Beach. Fred Aucamp holds that position, which he says is not an easy one. It is the first time Norfolk has had a fulltime judge in that court. Fred was not a native Virginian when he came to William and Mary, but after serving in the Army following graduation, he chose to come back to William and Mary for Law School, and then to set up his law practice in Virginia Beach. In his new capacity, he feels he will find a greater personal satisfaction and be able to serve his community better.

Discover a new world at Williamsburg Inn.

In our new Providence Hall rooms the hustle and bustle fades away and a new world begins. It's a private world of bowling greens, tennis courts, and Robert Trent Jones golf courses that come right to the windows of these special rooms set apart from the Williamsburg Inn by a landscaped curtain of green. All together a world apart, adjacent to the eighteenth-century sights and sounds of the Historic Area. And very, very near.

Greetings, once again! I hope Bud Fisher will be an example to all! To quote him, "Pretty slim pickings in the last Alumni Gazette, so am sending along some news." Thank you, Bud! Bud is starting his second year with the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress. Prior to that, he taught political science for three years at Queens College in Manhattan, N. Y. He was in California this past summer to present two papers at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara. He had a book published by the Free Press last January; PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS: POWER AND POLICY. Bud and his wife, Alice, and 2 year old daughter, are enjoying suburbia (4108 Southend Rd., Rockville, Md., 20853) after ten years in New York City.

Hugh MacMahon is in the private practice of Neurology in Seattle, Wash., with a teaching affiliation at the U. of Washington, School of Medicine. He and his wife, Rosalie, and two children (daughter 12 years and son, 9 years have a new address: 17063 16th Ave. S.W., Seattle, Wash., 98166.

Bruce Ramage has been transferred to the Los Angeles area with Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. He and his wife, Carolyn Norglut, '57 and two children live at 16713 Mt. Cachuma Circle, Fountain Valley, Calif., 92708. Carolyn is teaching the 4th grade.

Will Sweeney, CPCU, is Vice President of Thomson and Peck, Inc. in New Haven, Conn. He and his wife, Margo, have two children; a daughter, 8 years and a son, 5 years.

Ed and Binnie Watkins are in Seoul, Korea. They will be there until '73, with the Joint U. S. Military Assistance Group, where Ed is with the Army Section, Plans Division. They are enjoying their tour and are doing sightseeing on the side. However, Ed misses the choral activities he had in Washington, D. C.; he sang with the Paul Hill Chorale.

Lois Ludwig Foster writes that contrary to the Colonial Reece, she is not in Stuttgart, Germany, but in Springfield, Va. (7101 Galgate Dr.) Her husband's orders were changed after she and her two children had their shots, passports, etc.!

Herb and Ginger Portney Klapp had hoped to go to Homecoming but they moved the following week instead! After 14 years in the Washington, D.C. suburbs (Herb is a sales engineer with Picker Medical Corp.) they moved to the Eastern Shore of Maryland into an old farmhouse they have been restoring for the past year. (Corsica Point, Centreville, Md., 21617) They are right on the water so have all the boating, fishing, crabbing and hunting they want, plus lots of land for farming and gardening. They have three children; Michael, 13, Karen, 9, and David, 6.

Shelia Eddy Baker writes that she and husband, 'Bud', attended only the Friday night dinner of Homecoming and thoroughly enjoyed it. They live in Fredericksburg, Va., where her husband is a lawyer and Shelia does historic preservation and restoration work with Historic Fredericksburg, Inc. They have two sons, ages 6 and 10.

Elaine Pratt Carlin tells us that they have moved again! Her husband, Jack, is District Sales Manager for United Farm Agency. They bought a 50 acre farm, complete with a old farm-house that they are remodeling, in Salisbury Center, N. Y. (Box 78).

A note from Betty Schindler Hower tells us that she is working at the National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C. Among other things, she acquires information on what changes have occurred during the week and publishes a report for the guides. (Betty started at the Zoo as a guide.)

Keep those cards and letters coming!

This seems to be the quiet period of the year so far as news is concerned. I hope I'll hear from more of you before the next issue.

I have received some exciting news, however, concerning a few of our classmates. Larry Peccatiello (58), continuing his football career, has been named linebacker coach of the Houston Oilers and John Grantier has been elected first vice president of John Coult's Library Services Ltd., a Canadian book wholesaling company. Frances Gilliam Slocumb is combining her career of housewife and mother with attending graduate school in psychology at the College of William and Mary. Frances is in her second year. She and husband, Travis, who is with NASA are living in Hampton, Va.

At Christmastime I received a note

OME SHOPS make a big effort to specialize in order to appeal to a certain type of customer. For some, that's good; but, not for us. Our aim is to serve the entire family from Dad to Baby Jane with clothing, accessories, gifts and a variety of household needs. And yet, because of our pursuit of versatility, you also will find in many of our departments a selection of items that the specialty shops feature. So, whether you're a conservative, middle-of-the-roader, or a real swinger, Williamsburg Department Store is right for you. Remember, "Dress Right. Your Clothes Never Stop Talking About You."

In February we had a weekend visit from David and Lynn Andrew Ellenson. They drove up from Charlottesville to bid farewell before moving to Israel for a year and a half. David has completed his Masters in Religion at the University of Virginia, and will be studying in Israel as a student of the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati. David and Lynn will spend the first six months learning the Hebrew language and then in September David will begin his courses. They will be living in Jerusalem and are most thrilled about this exciting experience.

Sallie Stemple has completed her Masters in English at North Carolina and is now working as a lobbyist for the National Pediatrics Association.

Tom and Jane DeFrees Massey have returned from their Peace Corps assignment in South Africa and are living in Charlottesville. Tom is in his first year of law school at the University of Virginia.

Also in Charlottesville are Joyce and Pat Stoner. They are managing a dinner theater, the Albermarle Playhouse.

Completing his Ph D. studies in English at Boston University is Andy Glassman.

Hi all! Just can't resist beginning with my news first. Was accepted to be a stewardess with Pan American World Airways last December. Completed 4 weeks of training in Miami, Fla. on February 25, and now am based at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York. Have been having a great time meeting girls from all over the world! My roommate is from Ankara, Turkey, and one of these days I hope to get a flight there.

Had another nice letter from Barbara Pate Glacel still in Schweinfurt, Germany. She wrote that Kit Smith is teaching in St. Croix, Virgin Islands. Mary Ellen Allen and Bill Turville, '69 are in New Jersey now. Ginny Kerns was married at the end of last summer to Rob Dirks. They are living in Normal, Ill. where he is an anthropology professor at Illinois State University. Thank you for the news, Barbara.

Cathy Coleman and Lt.jg Ted Zychowski are in Charleston, S. C. Ted is in the U. S. Navy Supply Corps and is stationed aboard the USS Orion (AS-18).

Bob Wagner is studying English at the University of Pennsylvania.

Caroline Vaiden Armstrong wrote that Ken is at the University of Tennessee Medical Units College of Medicine in his second sixth-month term. Caroline has returned from Scotland and is working for American Express Space Bank, taking reservations towards an MAT in social studies and hopes to teach this fall.

Caroline also wrote that Jean Muench is in Ghana teaching math, science, and P.E. for the Peace Corps.

Al Buckpitt recently completed basic training in the Army.

In Dousman, Wisc. Jim Larson is teaching at Lad Lake Treatment Center for Emotionally Disturbed Boys.

With Travelers Insurance Company—Commercial Lines Casualty Property Dept. in New York City is Stephen Van Hook.

Bobby Childers is a First Lieutenant in the Army stationed at Ft. Story, Virginia Beach.

After taking some library science courses at Old Dominion University, Jay Dech is presently looking for a position in Hampton, Va.

With Sandy Borden at the Foster Children for Richmond Social Service Bureau are Carol Graham, Linda Bailey, Ann Dudley, Jean Kossoff and Daralyn Gordon.

Charlene Baldwin received her Master's degree from Emory University last June, 1971 and is presently employed by the Norfolk Public Library as a branch librarian.

Barry Carter writes that he is in an Airborne Battalion at Fort Benning, Ga. Barry has also been active in a small theatre group there.

Kathy Asplund Munson is working in the Pentagon for the Assistant Chief of Staff for the Communications—Electronics. Her husband Mike is a company commander in Vietnam.

Joanne Deacon married Captain Jim Egolf last June and they are living in Ottawa, Canada.

Have a pleasant spring!

"All right now, cousins, more of the heavy sounds, the superstars. Gonna whip some Donny Osmond on ya!" Each day, Williamsburg's enraptured teenybopper-dom tunes in to their "fave" jock, Gary Stevens, on WMBG radio. The font of this audio bliss is Steve "swing thing" Abramson, whose mixture of bouncy bubblegum music and banal bantering have made him the 'Burg's top disc jockey over the past year. Forced into an incognito existence by the intense popularity, Steve is taking a vacation from classes at the College this semester. Meanwhile, he is searching for an appropriate job to satisfy the requirements of his newly-won C.O. draft status (how about Armed Services Radio?). Steve tells me that Williamsburg is really hopping with entertainment now that William and Mary Hall is complete. He expounded at great lengths over the recent appearance of "Buffalo Bob" Smith from the old Howdy Doody Show ("they even gave out free bubblegum!").

Robert Thomas Riddle is stationed in Turkey serving four years in the Air Force. After a "horrendous" training period, Jim Duff is stationed at Ft. Lee in Petersburg. Rob Jolly is in Coast Guard O.C.S. at Yorktown. Rob writes, "Mark Rosenthal is out in California taking Navy basic training and eating it up! I expect they'll make him an Admiral before the year is out." Ken Drescher is a 2nd Lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

After deciding that the tradition of sending Xmas cards did not quite jibe with modern ecological consciousness, Lindy Keiser, her husband, Mike, and a friend formed the Recycled Paper Products Co. of Chicago. They found stores eager to sell their original cards, which were made from paper recycled from old milk cartons and cups.

William Martin is a first year med student at the Medical University of South Carolina. In Kansas City, Ken Neeley is preparing for the Methodist ministry at St. Paul's School of Theology. Elizabeth Wood Delk teaches second grade in Smithfield, Va., while husband Roddy practices law. Martin Oakes is doing graduate work in Zoology at the University of Texas. Suzanne Streagle was awarded a sociology fellowship at Brown University. Studying for a Masters in Library Science at the University of Michigan is Pat Russell. John Floyd is a student of German Literature at Vanderbilt. And Wayne Fore is a student at the Woodrow Wilson Department of Government and Foreign Affairs at U. Va.

Received a news-filled letter from Linda Deyerle Locklier. She informs us that Linda Rae Gordon Stagg is teaching English to women inmates in Richmond while husband Paul plans to return to school. Ann Walters Lohr and spouse Steve work for accounting firms in Richmond and live near "their lake" north of the city. In Madison, Wisc., Lee Britton works in computer systems for the city government and fights driving in "the horrible weather." After taking some elementary education courses, Ginger Miller plans to journey down under to Australia and take up teaching. Linda Mimms Murray teaches Spanish in Williamsburg; Diane Acree teaches in a small town near San Antonio, Tex. Stephanie Peat is a systems analyst for the government in Washington, D. C. Joanne Hickox works for the city of Newport News. Marti Garland teaches elementary school in Maryland. Bev Diggle is an English teacher in Williamsburg. And Margie Brown is a management trainee with United Virginia Bank in Richmond while working on her M.A. in business at the University of Richmond. As for Linda, she and husband John live in a tiny Tennessee town, half way between East Tennessee State University and a school built by the W.P.A. on the ski mountains of North Carolina, where she teaches science to 124 junior high students.

Finally, believe it or not, I hear that Sarah Mays, Nancy Terrill and Stephen Puryear are now tobacco-chewing drivers for Nuttall's Taxi Cab Co. in Williamsburg. Have a good summer (and write me about it)!
