A Turning Point

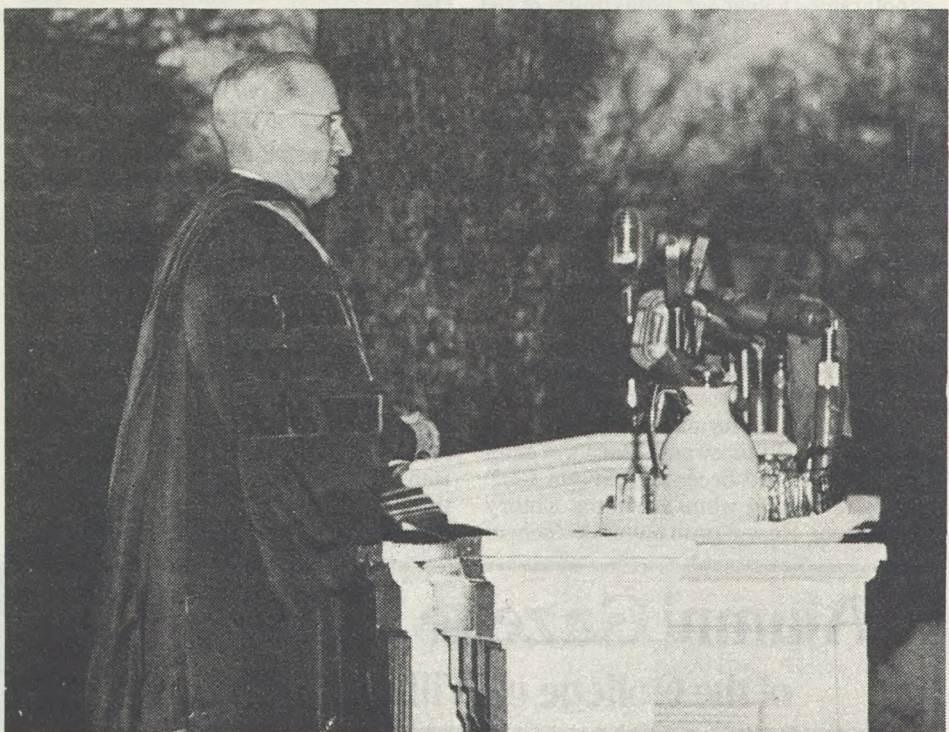

The Society of the Alumni, while learning that it was coming close to reaching the $300,000 "New Era" fund effort (see inside pages), and would probably attain the goal by January 31, also pondered the future of its fundraising efforts at the Board of Directors' December meeting. Dr. Guy Daugherty '34 and Hugh S. Haynie '51 (at left) listen intently to a discussion of whether the Society should leave fundraising to the College administration, depending on the College for a Society operating budget, and retain its independence and autonomy. The Board ultimately agreed that fundraising for the College had to be centralized to further benefit the College, and negotiations on a Society budget are now underway.

Black Dreyfus Affair

In 1906, a gang on horseback rode through Brownsville, Tex., shooting at lighted windows and killing one man. Townspeople blamed black soldiers stationed at Fort Brown. Ultimately, President Theodore Roosevelt ordered 167 of them dishonorably discharged without trial. Two years ago, author John D. Weaver '32 revived the incident in a book "The Brownsville Raid: The Story of America's Black Dreyfus Affair." Weaver, whose father was official reporter for hearings in Brownsville after the raid, contended that the shootout was staged by local vigilantes in an effort to force out the black encampment. Last September 28, on the basis of Weaver's investigations, the Department of the Army called the incident a gross injustice and changed the discharges to "honorable." Now an effort is underway in Congress to provide benefits for widows and heirs, since apparently only one of the 167 is still alive at the age of 86.

The Man From Missouri

Although the late Harry S. Truman was a legend for being the last United States president without a college degree, William and Mary "oldsters" can claim differently. The College legitimately places the former president among the ranks of illustrious alumni on the basis that Truman received an honorary degree during ceremonies in Wren Courtyard on April 2, 1948. Pictured left, Truman was on campus to celebrate the one-time only Canadian-American Day sponsored by the College. His remarks on "Good Neighbor" policies were particularly appropriate because Truman shared the platform with Governor William M. Tuck, who had tried to edge the "buck-stopper" off the Virginia presidential ballot. When one political reporter artlessly asked about coolness between the two, Tuck pointed to his academic regalia and replied, "We can't fight in these clothes."

Parents Come Through

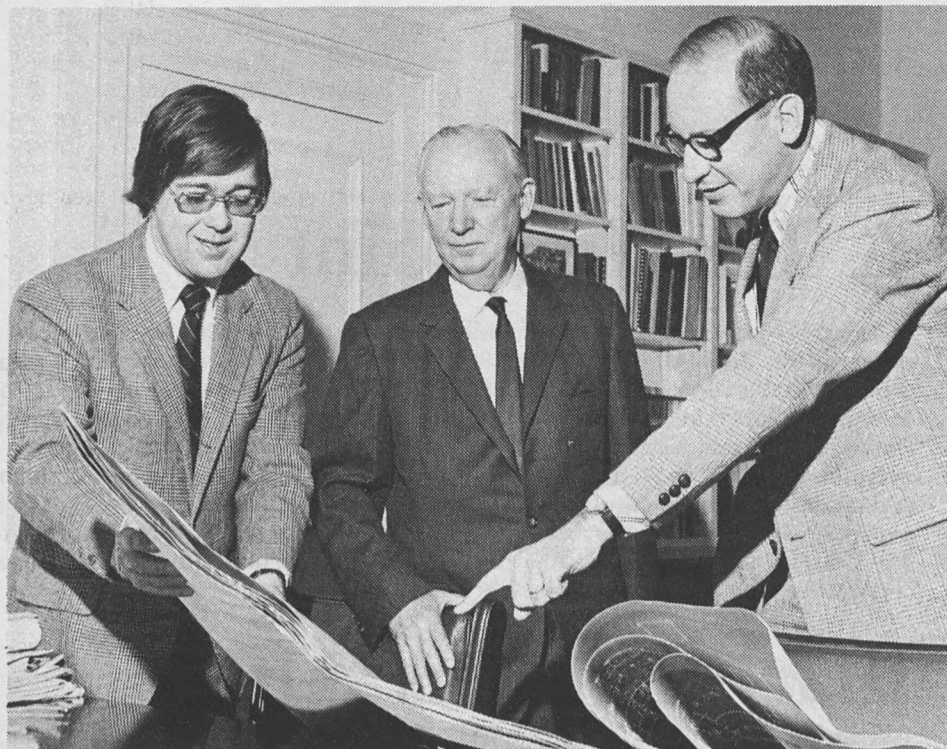

The newly formed Association of Parents began its first fundraising effort among members late in November and by mid-January, nearly 450 parents had responded with checks and pledges totaling more than $30,000. A final accounting will await a follow-up solicitation now underway headed by Alfred W. Craft of Virginia Beach, president of the Association. The greatest response was obtained during a telethon, when about 70 volunteers placed 2,278 calls to seek a commitment to the Parents Fund — they accounted for about two-thirds of the total sum thus far recorded. Income to the Parents Fund, administered by the Office of College Development, will be used to support financial aid programs, special on-campus projects and efforts by student organizations in the local community.

Experimental Semester

Academic calendars across the nation are undergoing change. At one time, the student could count on being required to attend classes from September to mid-January, and from February until late May or early June. Not so any more. In an effort to take better advantages of the 12 months available each year, colleges have come up with numerous schedule sequences. One popular scheme is the 4-1-4 calendar which uses January as a one month semester between two normal ones. Such a calendar change was considered at William and Mary several years ago, but not adopted. The matter is under study once more, and the 80-student Project Plus, left, lead the way this January with its own interim semester. Those subjects not offered in normal curriculum, but studied at leisure during the break included poetry-prose workshops, guitar, auto mechanics, survival, and cooking.

Alumni House to feature the 'Pat and Agnes Paschall Library'

A $10,000 gift from J. Edward Zollinger '27 of Fort Lauderdale will lead to establishment of the Paschall Library at the Alumni House, it was announced in late December by W. Brooks George '32 of Richmond, chairman of the Society of the Alumni's "New Era" fund campaign.

That and other significant gifts helped raise the "New Era" campaign total to over $240,000 and inspired confident efforts to reach the $300,000 goal set for 1972. The "New Era" income will be used to extensively renovate the Alumni House, which formerly was a faculty apartment building; to upgrade and expand services to alumni; and to sustain normal operations.

Bids for the first phase of the renovation effort were being sought in mid-January and plans were approved by the State Art Commission. The architectural plans were drawn up under supervision of John Morton '58 of Metairie, Louisiana, now a member of the Society's Board. Only interior renovation is planned, although an outside comfort station will be constructed.

The Zollinger gift provides that the first floor library-lounge be named the "Pat and Agnes Paschall Library," in honor of the President Emeritus and his wife, both alumni. Chairman George and President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., both issued statements praising Zollinger for his continuing significant support of the College and the well-deserved tribute he made to Dr. and Mrs. Paschall. Dr. Paschall urged alumni to emulate Zollinger's support for the society.

It was announced earlier that the gift of Frank Pulley of Roanoke will enable dedication of a room to Vernon L. Nunn '25, retired Treasurer of the College. In addition, a gift from Art Bretnall '34 of Garden City, N. Y., will sponsor the Records Office headquarters.

Dr. Guy Daugherty '34 of Rochester, Minn., chairman of the board's Fund Committee, reported there were more than 1,200 class agents working on a direct mail campaign and 350 volunteers working in the Virginia person-to-person effort in metropolitan areas. He said the Society was "most appreciative of the time and efforts expended by these very loyal alumni and friends who have worked so diligently for the Society and for the Alumni House project."

The 1972 "New Era" effort, which closes its books January 31, may be the last fundraising effort sponsored by the Society of the Alumni.

In preparation for a major development campaign now under discussion by the Board of Visitors, it became apparent that the independent Society of the Alumni was not the most effective agency through which large sums of money could be raised for the College. This conclusion was suggested by the experience of other colleges and universities, and by a team of consultants which visited the campus last spring. Centralized fundraising by a single administrative office appeared to be preferable to more limited campaigns by unrelated groups.

The Society's Board, at its December meeting, endorsed in concept a centralized fundraising system "in order to meet pressing financial needs of the College" so long as the College, in turn, would provide funds to be used by the Society to continue to expand services to members as an independent and autonomous organization. Officials of the Alumni Society and College administration are currently negotiating on a College-funded budget for the Society's operations and growth for future years. The Board of the Society will again meet in March to discuss the matter further.

The endorsement, if implemented, would make the new Office of College Development responsible for soliciting alumni on an annual basis and in other ways. That office has begun discussions among various elements of the larger College community of a $6,000,000 fund effort to begin late in 1974 culminating in 1976. The funds would go to a variety of priority activities for which State funds are insufficient or unavailable.

In other action at its December meeting, the Board re-elected its officers and authorized an Associate Membership status in the Society for friends who are not alumni. It also voted to accept the petition for a charter from the Portsmouth Chapter. A number of recommendations were made to the College as part of an in-depth study of admissions policies now underway. It agreed to contact alumni chapters and groups throughout the country as part of a self-study of the Society to lead to restructuring its operations.

Order of the White Jacket rolls include illustrious alumni

The newly formed Order of the White Jacket began the new year with 102 members and a full-fledged effort to recruit membership from all former campus waiters. They should write M. Carl Andrews, 2814 Crystal Spring Ave. S.W., Roanoke, Va., 24014, who was elected the OWJ's first president.

The OWJ formed at last year's Homecoming weekend and voted to meet the Thursday night preceding each Homecoming. Membership was specifically made available to men students who worked as waiters in the old college dining hall; men students who have worked in the cafeteria system; and men students who served regularly as substitutes in the old dining halls. Dues were fixed at a minimum of $10.

Other officers elected for 1973 were Arthur A. Matsu of Phoenix, Ariz., first vice president; Dr. Lee B. Todd, Quinwood, W. Va., second vice president; and Dwight C. Brown of Arlington, secretary-treasurer. Honorary co-chairmen are former Gov. Mills E. Godwin and President Emeritus Davis Y. Paschall.

A 25-member Board of Directors was also elected: Richard L. Baker, Clarence M. Bussinger, Andrew J. Christensen, T. C. Clarke, Russell A. Collins, Melvin C. Davis, Francis R. Elliott, Lawrence M. Gilman, Dr. C. H. Hamlin, M. F. Hastings, Rev. Carter H. Harrison, L. Quinby Hines, Arthur W. James, Dr. W. O. Morris, Harvey G. Pope, Rev. W. Josselyn Reed, Lawrence P. Shaffer, Col. Seymour Shwiler, H. Mason Sizemore, William G. Thompson, E. D. Trice, Dr. Harrison R. Wesson, John N. Wolbert, J. Thomas Yates and Walter J. Zable.

Educational Foundation seeks more funds for athletics

A $75,000 goal has been set for 1973 for the annual fundraising effort of the William and Mary Educational Foundation, the agency which supports the intercollegiate athletic program. Barry Fratkin '64, the Foundation's newly designated executive secretary, is administering the effort in cooperation with the Office of College Development.

The commitment was set by the Foundation Board after the College authorized the award of 30 full football grants-in-aid in 1973, 14 more than last year. The Southern Conference allows members to grant up to 30 such scholarships a year for a maximum of 100 at any one time. William and Mary's total number, by College policy, is not to exceed 75 at any given time.

Athletic Director Ben Carnevale said, in announcing the availability of 30 grants for 1973, that he is studying long-range expansion of Cary Field seating capacity to 25,000, lighting to permit night games with higher projected attendance, and laying Astro-Turf on the playing field.

Meanwhile, Football Coach Jim Root described a marathon recruiting effort which was underway to attract top athletes to the College. Some 400 prospects had been interviewed by year's end.

College GOP presidents move up

Two recent alumni have achieved the distinction of being the youngest persons to attain the positions they hold.

Robert Irvin '70 was sworn in on January 4 as the youngest member of the Georgia State Legislature. A student at Emory Law School and 24 years of age, Bob was elected overwhelmingly as a Republican from Atlanta's suburban 23rd district. Irvin, editor of the Flat Hat and president of William and Mary's Young Republicans, had become active in GOP circles in Atlanta while attending Emory Law School. He will drop out of law school this spring until the Legislature adjourns, and complete his degree next summer.

William A. (Andy) Alford '72, now 22 years old, became the youngest press assistant in Congress, when he took that job in January in the office of Rep. Robert W. Daniel. Congressman Daniel, a Republican, succeeded veteran Fourth District Rep. Watkins Abbitt of Appomattox, after Abbitt retired from active office last year. Alford also is a former president of the W&M Young Republicans and was vice chairman of the Virginia College Republican Federation.

Board of Visitors approves new 'student-service' orientation

A greatly expanded program of services to students will be inaugurated as the result of prolonged study and discussions which culminated in approval by the Board of Visitors at its January meeting.

The Board approved final details of a major reorganization of the student affairs activity on campus. The new structure eliminates the traditional separation of men and women students with deans for each, and instead divides the program along functional lines.

The innovative approach will put great emphasis on such activities as career counseling, year-round efforts to help new students (freshmen and transfers) make a successful transition into the College community, special retreats, short courses, seminars and the like which students feel are helpful, and special assistance to various extracurricular organizations.

One major thrust of the reorganization will be establishment of an office of residential life — with the aim of improving on-campus housing, living conditions, and governance. At the same time, another office — a part of the College's Office of Business Affairs — will be specifically responsible for maintenance and upkeep of residence halls.

The new student affairs organization was developed by W. Samuel Sadler '64, now Dean of Men but to become Dean of Students later this year, in consultation with Dr. James Livingston, former head of the Department of Religion, who is on leave in England this year. Dr. Livingston will become Dean of the Undergraduate Program next summer.

Carson Barnes, Jr., who is now Dean of Students, has accepted the newly established position of Director of Special Programs with offices at the Virginia Associated Research Campus in Newport News. The special programs activity will concentrate on offering a variety of non-credit programs for adults in the Tidewater area. It succeeds the former School of Continuing Studies, disestablished last fall. Barnes accepted the post at a time when he had threatened legal action against the College because he had been notified that Sadler was to replace him as Dean of Students.

The new organization calls for four Associate Deans of Students reporting to Dean Sadler: Associate Dean for Residential Life, Associate Dean for Career Counseling, Associate Dean for Student Development (freshmen and transfers), and Associate Dean for Administration and Special Programs. In addition, the Director of the Campus Center, Warren J. Green, will report to Dean Sadler. His assistant, Kenneth E. Smith, Jr., was promoted to Associate Director of the Campus Center and Director of Student Activities.

Joel C. McGurk, Assistant Dean of Men for Housing since 1968, will become Director of College Residences in the business office. The contract of Wallace C. Elliott, Associate Dean of Students under Barnes, will not be renewed. Miss Carolyn Moseley, Assistant Dean of Women, has under consideration the offer to become Associate Dean of Students for Administration and Special Programs.

The stage for reorganization was set when J. Wilfred Lambert, Vice President for Student Affairs, announced his retirement at the end of this summer. The longtime Dean of Women, Dr. Birdena Donaldson, has also reached the mandatory retirement age and will step down this summer.

Alumni — go abroad!

The May 12-19 Alumni Trip to London, sponsored by the Society, has drawn 60 registrants so far. The United Kingdom Chapter of the Society is making plans for a meeting in conjunction with the American visitation and will entertain the travelers.

The Alumni Pick-a-Trip plan (details available from the Alumni House) also includes a June 23-30 trip to Hawaii, for which 18 have registered so far. Twelve alumni visited Acapulco January 14-21.

David Jones

David Jones worked up the hard way

David H. Jones, who takes over the chairmanship of the Department of Philosophy next fall, belies the popular stereotype of a professor in his insulated ivory tower.

A Navy veteran who served as a sonarman on two minesweepers during the period of the Korean war, Jones helped pay his way through graduate school at Harvard by working in a meatpacking plant and driving a hardware delivery truck. At William and Mary, he mixes scholarship and teaching with an activist's interest in the American Civil Liberties Union, an activity that is not unlikely to embroil a participant in controversy.

Jones pursues all of his interests with equal capability. Respected by his students and faculty colleagues alike, he was the unanimous recommendation of the philosophy department to succeed long-time, popular department head Frank MacDonald as chairman when the chairmanship came up for rotation this year. Last Fall, when the Faculty Research Committee had some 25 applicants for three coveted faculty fellowships, the Committee tapped Jones

The fellowship enabled the recipients to take a semester's sabbatical to pursue full-time a research project. Jones used his sabbatical to prepare the draft of a new book on the philosophical theory of responsibility, an area of scholarship that has fascinated him since he studied under Professor John Rawls at Harvard, whose own book on the theory of justice was selected by the New York Times as one of the five outstanding books of 1972.

Jones is a midwestern native who moved with his family to Arizona at the age of six and then returned to Missouri in 1954 after he and his brother were discharged from the Navy. Both entered the University of Missouri at Kansas City. His brother eventually opted for the Kansas City Institute of Art, but David stayed on and received his degree in philosophy and religion in 1958. Despite a scholarship offer at the University of Chicago, he decided to enter graduate school at Harvard where he financed his way through to a masters and Ph.D. with the help of the GI Bill, his wife, The Harvard loan office and several odd jobs.

In a popular department, Jones is one of the more popular professors. He teaches ethics, philosophy of the mind and of the social sciences, and an honors colloquium, course areas that provide Dr. Jones with excellent insights into the mind of modern youth.

"The language and issues have shifted drastically," he says. "This generation is much more aware of the depth of the problems in society."

A past chairman of the Peninsula Chapter of the ACLU, Jones feels the image of the organization is badly misconstrued by the public.

"The ACLU goes to bat for unpopular causes," he says, "but the truth is, they have helped defend the rights of the ex-

Howard Hyle — a positivist

By his own example, Howard Hyle '48 gives credence to his contention that alumni have more to give to their alma mater than just money. In the past six years, Hyle, a Coca Cola executive, has served two terms on the Board of the Directors of the Society of the Alumni. His second term ended last December, but Hyle continues in the service of William and Mary as a member of the Endowment Association.

Hyle involved himself primarily in fund raising as a member of the Society Board. For the best part of his tenure, he served as chairman of the Fund Committee and assisted in the formulation of a five-year plan specifying the aims and objectives of the fund-raising effort. When he came on the Board, the Society was raising some $65,000 annually; the goal of the current campaign is approximately $300,000.

In addition, Hyle was an early advocate of the computerization of alumni records, because, he believes, "the business of giving money to your alma mater is just one part of what alumni can do to help William and Mary." He adds that "the skills and ideas" of some 20,000 College alumni are "the great wealth that the College has never mined."

Now that the computerization of alumni records is underway, Hyle feels that the College is in an excellent position to bring trème right as well as the hippies and anti-war people. The ACLU tries to be even handed."

In a disagreement between administrators and students in 1969 over dormitory regulations, Jones served as a faculty counselor at the request of several students who were temporarily suspended. During a period of high tension over the Vietnam War, he counseled students who were subject to the draft and had moral, ethical and religious qualms about the war.

Neither activity won universal approval, and, in fact, led to an accusation in a newspaper that certain professors were teaching a course in draft dodging and the suggestion by a chagrined father of two Vietnam veterans that he was something less than a patriot.

The charges dismayed Jones more than anything else. Even if the isolation of the ivory tower existed, Jones is not the kind to retreat from involvement in society's affairs.

Howard H. Hyle

this wealth of experience to the development of the College, and at a particularly appropriate time "with the New Era, the new president and the new administration."

Hyle himself is an example of the kind of assets William and Mary has at its disposal among alumni. Promoted to the position of a national sales promotion manager at the age of 31 at Coca-Cola, Hyle has developed skills which have proven helpful to the College from eleven different positions at Coca Cola — in sales, advertising, merchandising, and planning including a stint with McCann-Erickson, the Coca Cola ad agency, and post-graduate study at Harvard, Stanford and the University of Southern California. Currently he is on the president's staff in charge of environmental planning.

A native of Maryland, Hyle entered William and Mary in the early '40s but his education was interrupted by the War. Sent to Europe in 1944, he was captured shortly after his company crossed the German border in November. For the next five months, Hyle was shifted from prison camps in Hanover and Berlin to Furstenberg on the Polish border where the approaching Soviet Army liberated him and 25,000 other Allied soldiers.

When he returned to William and Mary, Hyle demonstrated the savvy that would help him in business. He not only paid his own way through school, but made more money in his senior year than he would in his first years out in the business world. Hyle worked as a cashier and waiter at the cafeteria, ran his own magazine business, managed a dormitory, and graded papers for a professor.

Fraternities and sororities at William and Mary — they're all Greek and loving it!

BY HARRIETT STANLEY

Although the sorority-fraternity epitaph has long been written, the Greek system is still a working part of student life at William and Mary. Reflecting the turmoil of the sixties, College fraternities and sororities suffered membership declines, but were able to hold ranks. Though rather different in appearance, Greek organizations at William and Mary are as strong as ever, and the latest statistics actually indicate an upsurge in interest.

Numerous theories have been advanced to explain this situation, which is counter to all national trends. Assistant Dean of Men Joel McGurk feels that "Greeks had the will to survive." But Inter-Fraternity Council president Mark Mollica views the explanation in broader terms, emphasizing that "in the last few years, fraternities and sororities adapted to the people instead of expecting the people to change to fit them."

William and Mary Greeks in 1973 hardly resemble the fraternal organizations of years ago. Dress codes, scholarship expectations, and "standards boards" are out as the various houses seek to accommodate and encourage individuality. Additionally, Greek membership is not the time-consuming activity that it once was. Houses are looked upon by students as eating clubs and residential arrangements that differ from dormitories primarily in that they are smaller. As sophomore Nancy Tienken, a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, put it, "The House is home — someplace to go after a long day of classes, club meetings, sports, work, or whatever. It's the place where my friends are — people who are interested in me and in what I've been doing. So we all play bridge, or watch t.v. or eat dinner together, and then go our separate ways to study. Greeks at William and Mary aren't just clubs. They're you and a lot of other people like you.

The typical "frat man" stereotype is nearly inapplicable to either fraternities or sororities at the College. There are academically, as well as athletically oriented fraternities and sororities. There are politically liberal and politically conservative houses. There are "Southern" houses, "freak" houses, and "musical" houses. Yet the system's real strength stems from the fact that nearly every house encompasses numerous facets of student life.

There are several basic differences between William and Mary Greeks and Greeks on other campuses, and these may be the key to why fraternities and sororities thrive here. Housing arrangements are chief among these.

All 12 fraternities reside in a housing complex made up of "town-house" type dormitories holding 33 men. Officially, these are College residence halls, but the organizations are responsible for furnishing the lounge and party areas. Most fraternity members are required to live in the house in order to meet minimum financial obligations. On the other hand, sororities occupy smaller, residential type houses that accommodate from 15 to 18 women. Only seniors are able to live in the sorority houses, while underclass members are housed in dormitories.

The fraternity arrangement has put a number of fraternities in financial straits. Mark Mollica noted that "the bigger houses tend to get bigger and the smaller houses tend to get smaller" because all rooms must be filled. Yet in the past two years there has been an increasing willingness for all houses to adopt the attitude that "we're all in this together," and to really sell the Greek system to doubters. This cooperation may be the single most important factor in maintaining strong fraternities at William and Mary.

The women though, have not only escaped the financial burden of new houses, but have used residential arrangements to broaden their base in the women constituency. Assistant Dean of Women Carolyn Moseley pointed out that "the women learned from the men's mistakes" in reference to the unanimous decision of sororities not to occupy new housing units adjacent to the fraternity complex near Lake Matoaka. Mary Mann, president of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, spoke for the majority when she said, "we didn't want to incur the isolationism that has hurt Greeks on so many other campuses."

Independence is also characteristic of College fraternities and sororities. Each of the campus organizations is a local chapter of a national parent organization, but the ties with national are usually formalities. William and Mary chapters have adapted to campus norms, rather than to nationally prescribed programs. This is particularly true with restrictive membership clauses. William and Mary Greeks rarely even acknowledge them. College administrators, as well as Greek members, see this detachment as a positive force in William and Mary's Greek system.

Rush, the method by which sororities and fraternities select members, and vice-versa, is held during the first two weeks of the spring semester. Although formal and encumbered by petty restrictions in past years, both men's and women's Rush has loosened up considerably from just a few years ago. For men, the result has been a drastic decrease in the number of broken shakes and pledges. Sororities are also bidding more and more members via the informal Rush system, whereby freshmen and upperclassmen delay making a decision about sororities until late in the freshman year or beyond. Like fraternities sororities are also experiencing a resurgence of interest.

Not to be overlooked when assessing College Greeks is their long history of existence at the College. Paradoxically enough, it has been just this deep-rootedness that has slowed to change with the times.

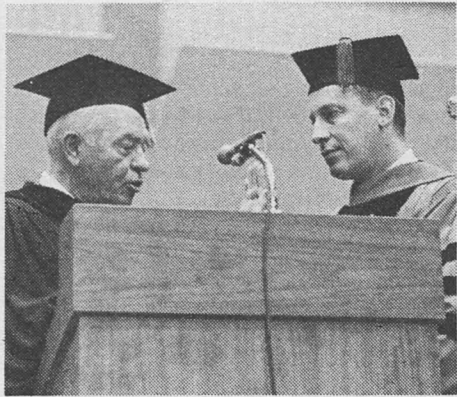

Although in the past fraternities were the sole social outlets for College students, this is no longer true. With the relaxation of automobile restrictions, establishment of a College Pub, and Student Association backed movies and concerts, the campus has become more mobile. The Saturday night party, per se, is gone.

Greeks responded to this new situation, though, by creating new avenues of student involvement. Local families have been adopted, a community pre-school is staffed by fraternity members, and informal get-togethers are much more frequent.

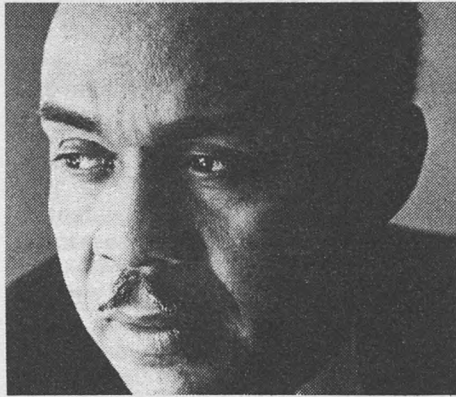

This functionality is probably the dominant feature shared by all Greek houses on campus today. William and Mary Greeks are blue-jeaned and informal. Their styles are different and their outlooks more pragmatic than Greeks before them. But all will agree that there is something beneath the surface, and it is this 'something' that insures their future. Margee Walsh, president of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, put this attitude into words. "Even with all the hassle, money, and time involved, Greek organizations provide an answer to nearly everyone's need for fellowship. Call it sisterhood, brotherhood, friendship, or whatever — with all the pressure here, Greek organizations partially, substantially fill these needs for a lot of kids."

H. Page Williams of Raleigh, N. C. writes that he is now 76 years old, has served as Class Agent for many years and served on the Alumni Board. He is still going strong — nearly shot his age in golf the other day. He enjoys bird hunting and duck shooting. His three children are all university graduates, and six grandsons.

Carolyn Kelly (Mrs. Morris D. Brewster) is alive and well and living at 714 Cloverdale Road, Wilmington, Del. 19805, and enjoying life with characteristic gusto. Although her own children and thirteen grandchildren provide interest and excitement aplenty, she has many lively interests of her own.

In 1971 Cado and her husband revisited Italy then met her two daughters in London, Mrs. Carolyn Berl Potts and Mrs. Floyd Berl Sabo, and the four of them had a fine time doing the English countryside, Scotland and Ireland. Since early '72 granddaughter Carolyn Potts Kinney has been in London where her husband is studying at the London School of Economics, so an excellent reason for several recent visits. The Brewster's son, David and his wife Susan, not long ago provided a happy occasion for a kitchen champagne party when they concluded purchase of a new house. David is deputy attorney-general for the state of Delaware.

As befits a history major, Cado spends much of her spare time doing historical research and participating in the activities of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants and the Pilgrim John Howland Society. As with many of us, collecting genealogical material is her dedicated hobby although, as usual, the children couldn't care less.

"Impossible-but-true" note: When she recently received her fifty-year KAO pin her children said "Oh mother, it can't be so." But the members of '24, with a 50th reunion breathing down our necks, know it was no mistake. While few of us are going in for long range projects, let's plan on making our fiftieth something worth remembering.

R. Lomax Wells, M.D. wants to know if there are any William and Mary Alumni living in Naples, Fla. Retired from the position of General Medical Director of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, which position he held from 1944 to 1970, he and his wife have moved to Naples. They plan to spend October through June 15th there and the summers at their home in South Bethany, Del.

Leah James, 4003 Mayfair Avenue, Chattanooga, Tenn., shares the news of her retirement from Professional Social work and is enjoying home making, church work, and traveling. She has bought a travel trailer and with her sister Ruth James Turner '28 has visited Mexico, Nova Scotia, Virginia and Florida. I'm sure we all remember Ruth too for the line of communication she kept open between the piano and our feet many evenings in Jefferson Gym.

A pleasant surprise can bring the warmth of a Christmas Season to you any time during the year. This happened to me when a note from Harry Blair '29 arrived enclosing a snapshot of a William and Mary group of which I was one. Harry was drummer for the William and Mary Indian Seranaders when we were Seniors. He has retired after 36 years with General Motors and is living at 5931 Copperwood Lane, Dallas, Tex.

Do make a New Year Resolution to share your interests and activities with the rest of us.

Hope you had a fun Christmas and are looking forward to an exciting twelve months ahead.

To all my former classmates and teachers, best wishes for the new year. I am glad to say we have news from many of the Class of 1928. As usual, our class is contributing generously to The William and Mary Fund and is supporting the College in many ways.

Received an announcement from my old friend Robert Randolph Jones of Richmond that Sherwood Adams Jones had joined his firm. Received a nice letter from Bill Thompson, Jr., and his wife Mary of Virginia Beach. Bill and Mary had been on a trip to Switzerland and tell me they are anxious for the next reunion. A nice letter from Elizabeth Glenn Hartman of Arlington — Elizabeth has retired as office manager of the Lewis Hotel-Motel School. She was planning to attend the Mardi Gras. Dorothy Bundy Turner writes from Waynesboro that she was spending a quiet Christmas since her daughter, also named Dorothy Bundy, with her husband, Dr. Clifton Potter of Lynchburg College, and their son were spending the year at Oxford University. Heard from my old friend J. Allan Cook of Silver Spring, Md. Allan and his wife, Mary, have recently returned from a visit to England and Paris and were planning to spend several months in Florida. Allan, too, is much interested in the next reunion. Likewise, John B. and Betsy Green of Richmond, who mentioned that our next reunion would be our 45th.

Mary Land Gill of Petersburg writes that after being a classroom teacher, a school board member, a visiting teacher, and a Director of Guidance, she has retired from school work and has entered the business world. In September, she left for a month's tour of Europe. Mary hopes that many, many of our class will be on hand for the next reunion.

Received Christmas cards from the following: Miriam Silberger Goodman of Washington, D.C., Helen Moore of Sparta, Va., May Reilly of Petersburg, and Georgia Sherry Bryden of Oreland, Pa. Received a nice note from Ed Hill and his wife Kathryn Topping Hill from Plymouth, N.C. Received a nice letter from Irene Priddy Brown of Newport News. Irene had had to spend some time in the hospital but has recovered. She says she gets to Williamsburg once or twice a week for lunch. Heard from Mary Bullock of Norfolk; Mary has retired from the Norfolk Public School system. She sent a contribution to The William and Mary Fund which I am sending to the Alumni Office. Heard from Lucille Eastham Mickie of Shadwell. Lucille retired as Chief Psychologist for the Charlottesville schools but is doing some part-time work. A card was received from M. H. Omohundro, Jr., from Ethiopia. Received a call from my old friend Logan C. Harding of Hopewell, also a letter and card. Logan retired in June with nearly 42 years of professional service. He received his first view of his portrait, unveiled by his great niece, Alice Ann Harding, at Patrick Copeland Elementary School in Hopewell where he was principal for 25 years. Concluding the special program on Logan Harding Day, a Reading Garden, plotted on the school grounds, was dedicated to him. He is past president of the Hopewell Education Association and headed the VEA Department of Elementary School Principals.

Also a card from my old friends Arthur (Chunky) Rodgers and his wife, Dorothy, from Williamsburg. Chunky was not in the Class of '28 but was there at the same time. I believe he was in the Class of '29. Jeff Carey of Jacksonville came by the office, but unfortunately I was not in. To all that have written, my deep thanks and I do hope that each and everyone of you are planning to attend our next reunion.

schools, while Robert, Jr., a KA at Suwanee, graduated from Florida Tech. U., taught chemistry for a year, now is trying to become an M.D. Thanks for the picture of the Rotarians, Robert — congratulations on your 24 years perfect attendance!

Edythe Dank Lever and Shelby enjoyed a trip through Portugal and Spain last May. Last fall she worked on the election campaign of her local congressman and found it an educational experience. I can vouch for that.

M. Gill Pigouette had a wonderful time last fall renewing her friendship with Dr. Shiva Dua, Principal, Kalinde College, New Delhi, India. Dr. Dua came 10,000 miles to visit Gill, whom she had known in India during the time she (Gill) was in India for the U.S. government (1955-1960).

Belated congratulations to George E. Anner, who in May received the everitt Award For Teaching Excellence — in the College of Engineering at the University of Illinois at Urbana. He is Professor of Electrical Engineering.

Jane Speakman Hauge reports she and Nick were so impressed with the visit of Dr. Graves to the Wilmington (Del.) alumni in November.

The Baltimore alumni are organizing and hope to have Dr. Graves visit them too. I'm looking forward to it.

Mildred Albee Babb visited in Hawaii with her son, daughter-in-law and new granddaughter in July. She and daughter, Kathy, took in all the sights on Oahu — scenic and historic, along with snorkeling and swimming and spoiling her first grandchild. Daughter, Ellen, and husband Walt, presented her with her second grandchild, another girl, in October, and since they live close by she plans on watching this grandchild grow.

Dorothy Kincaid Portz sends word that she has been made Vice-Mayor of Solon, Ohio!! Congratulations! She says her chief job is to preside at the Council meetings. When she began people crowded into the meetings just to see how a woman would manage. With her legal training I'll bet she showed them!

Received a Christmas card from Peg and Jim Knox, again spending the winter in Mexico.

George H. Bunch of Lynchburg, Va., was appointed last year as manager of staffing and benefits at the nuclear power generation division headquarters of the Babcock & Wilcox Company's power generation group in Lynchburg.

Several of you have asked about plans for our reunion this year. I hope to have something definite to report in our next letter. Meanwhile, start making your plans to come to Williamsburg in October. Send me suggestions for our class activities. And remember to send me news about yourself.

40 Mrs. Franklin D. Henderson
(Barbara Clawson)
Box 17
Irvington, Va. 22480

This month's news was collected and written by Ann Terrell Garrett.

Our good neighbor, Bobbie Clawson Henderson, gave me her notes and asked me to write the class letter this month since she is busy planning a home wedding for daughter Ann on December 31. We wish them the very best!

We were saddened by a note from Betty Knoll Smith telling of the recent death of Conna Truxton Robertson. Our love and deepest sympathy to Conna's family.

Betty wrote that she and Ruth Strumminger Greenbert are both interior designers and often meet in New York decorating markets.

Al Alley wrote, that like many of us, he is finding retirement busy. He got his masters in English in June, and is now at University of Sacramento getting a teaching credential. In addition, he is "Non-Stipendiary Vicar" of St. Clement's Episcopal Mission at Rancho Condovalva. Son Billy is a freshman at University of Sacramento, where he sings with the university chorus and the Sacramento German club chorus.

For the first time since World War II John and Marion Milne Barba were not at Homecoming this fall. We missed them and were distressed when we heard why they were not there. Marion suffered a stroke August 24th. She is now at Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation, learning to walk again with a cane. She wrote she is working hard, making progress, and has much to be thankful for. We admire your spirit, Marion, and wish you well! Their son John is home from Nepal and is "batching it" with "big John." Marion can now get home for weekends. Their daughter Margaret married a William and Mary classmate from Ohio last summer.

The Allens, Ginny Claudon and Scrib, have had a traveling year — from the Bahamas to Europe to the mid-west, to D.C. for the holidays and on to Palm Beach for a family reunion. They are enjoying tennis these days, and Ginny is busy with a history course and painting on commission. Son Jeff is at the University of Colorado taking a para-medical course and daughter Kim is teaching kindergarten at Tucson.

The Longs, Rosa Ellis and Ed, are also on the go. Rosa took a three weeks bus-camping trip with thirty-two scouts and Canadian Guides. Now she and Jaqui are planning to go to England and Scotland with one hundred-thirty Girl Scouts this summer. Meanwhile Ed has been on a round of Osteopathic conventions. Mike works for Buffalo Electric and is a ski instructor at Kissing Bridge. Bill is in Colorado studying carpentry, and Bob is at NYSU. Jaqui, her husband and little one live in New York.

Ben and Jane Brandt Wild are traveling around too — off to the Great Rockies this fall, then to the Bahamas this winter and hopefully on to Homecoming this fall. They were expecting their family home for the holidays.

Thea and Sally Bell Wainwright wrote they were looking forward to a happy Christmas with son Curt coming home from Vietnam.

Gene and Hope Hunt White were also expecting their boys home for Christmas — "Captain John" from Ft. Hood and Geoff from the University of Hawaii.

Kathleen Joan Taylor Parlin wrote that she is supervising student teachers from New York State University College at Oneonta and finds it most interesting work. Their youngest daughter, Kathleen, is entering Middlebury College in Vermont this month.

Frank and Jean Clarahan Bratton moved in May to Marion, Va. (Myers St., Box 345). Jean had just returned from a happy visit with their daughter Anne and her new baby girl. Don is working in Minneapolis, and Chris is a junior at Carleton.

David and Bobbie Milligan Molyneux have also recently moved. They are at 7615 Coteswood Drive, Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Charlotte Bagot White wrote they are all well and busy. She is still working, and Bud has two jobs — painting and real estate. Lynne graduated from KU last May and is in Dallas with Sears management program. Frank is a sophomore at KU. Gary graduates from high school in '73, and Lisa is a sophomore.

A couple of notes from 39ers — Yvonne Johnson Jenkins wrote their two girls are living near them in the Philadelphia area, Jeanne working at University of Pennsylvania and her husband working on his Ph.D. there. Bruce is at prep school, and Luther has moved from the Bristol plant to the city office. Dede Allen Bunch wrote that she and George are fine, both working hard. Jane is at East Carolina and Ned at Christopher Newport. Susan, Jeff and their three children are living in Barrington, R.I.

Our family is fine, all near enough to get home for an occasional week-end and bring the grandchildren. Such fun getting them all together! We are enjoying country living, but it is busier than we had thought it would be. Jack has just gone to work for T. Waller — opened a branch office in Kilmarnock of Cecil Waller Co. He is absolutely fascinated with it, and since he is the only stockbroker here, seems to be answering a neighborhood need. I've been busy with children's theatre, and find it fun to be working with children again. We live just up the creek from Tides Inn, so when you come to Irvington, come to see us. The latch string is always out for the Class of '40!

Hutchinson, Kan. 67501

As the William and Mary Fund envelopes pour in, we accumulate a lot of juicy news from our classmates! First to contribute is Mary Ruth Black (Dowling), writing from Severna Park, Md. She says she is now Vice President of the Girl Scouts of Central Maryland and will be a delegate at the Girl Scout National Council meeting in Dallas. Daughter Lynne is a junior at the College, and daughter Dana is a junior in high school. Dana attended the summer high school band school at the College of William and Mary the last two summers.

Camilla McCormick (Wilkerson) says that she has been moving "from pillar to post" these last three years, but hopes now to be settling down in Hamilton, Mont. She says Montana has a booming population, a new constitution, and is a real bee-hive. Camilla is serving as Local Program Chairman of the Ravath County League of Women Voters.

Col. Ben S. Read is now retired from the United States Marine Corps and living in Alexandria, Va. He has been appointed Deputy Director for Procurement Maintenance, Small Business Administration, Washington, D.C. (Doesn't sound like much of a retirement, Ben!)

Roy B. Merritt and Mary Henderson (Merritt) are still living in Chestnut Hill, Mass. Roy reports that he is the only high school teacher on a special state committee on Arts for children. First grandchild born in November of 1971. Congratulations, Merritts! Tabb Taylor (May) writes from Clarksville, Md., that their son, Edward Scott May ('73), was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa on December 5, 1972.

A note from Frances Sterne (Herndon) includes news of several classmates. Frances is living in Sanford, Fla. She says she corresponds with Mary Win Summerfield, who lives in Reno, Nev., and works for a foundation there. Jean Bulette (Boggs) is very active in community affairs in Charlotte, N.C., where her husband is a doctor. She does a lot of traveling, and is President of the Debutante Ball this year.

Another of Frances' correspondents is Margaret Alexander (Craig) who, she says, is now a grandmother and one of the head librarians in Portsmouth, Va.

As Frances concludes her note, she reports that their son graduated from Yale and is about to receive his MBA from Rutgers, which he is getting at night while a chemical engineer for American Cyanamid in New Jersey.

Added to the list of husbands retiring is Virginia Sims (Wilkinson)'s husband, Dr. Walter Wilkinson, of Huntington, W. Va. They are spending the winter in Tequesta, Fla.

And your secretary can report happily that all Mackey children were present for the holidays in Hutchinson, Kan. Martha arrived from London, where she is studying radio and television. Doug came from the University of Kansas, where he is working on a Ph.D. and teaching English. Marilyn and Rob were present also. City Commissioner David handed out the presents, and Librarian Eleanor did the cooking! Seasons greetings to all classmates!

Happy New Year!

Since we write in every other issue, I must tell you that Homecoming was great — weather, parade, football game! Among your friends there were Fosters (Dixon and Merritt), Jean Boyd McIntyre, Macons, Max and Joan Kable Griffith, Gibbs, Mary Hamner and J. B., Kings, Lois Spratley Donald and Doug, Don Griffin, Herb Young and Jane, Gervais Wallace Brekke and Nils, Jean Cox Phillips and Bill, Patty Wattles Spiegel and husband, and lots of the W&M football players of '41 and '42!

Fran Loesch Brunner and Bob and the Griffiths stayed with us at Sandbridge afterward and then the Brunners went to Tides Inn. We all went swimming there — outdoors. So you know Virginia had great weather. The highlight of Homecoming was seeing all the Thetas having lunch with Mrs. Stringfellow

(one beautiful ninety plus lady). Among them were Nancy Norris Foster, Jean B. McIntyre, Carol Talbot Eglehoff, Bland Devany (still in WACs) and the former Isabel Clark. "Mama String" remembered everyone, their relatives, boy friends, and past escapades!

Lots of great cards and letters — Luella Fitzgerald Anderson still lives in Marysville, Ky. She has had lots of interesting trips and further education. Dorie Wiprud Diggs still in Wilmington. Her W&M daughter, Sarah, is married — a senior at VCU. Since our graduation each year I've received a wonderful family picture of the Loesch family — Fran has also taken up the family custom — Suzy Parsons Cosgrove did a lovely hand drawn card — is liking Lake Forest, Ill. — Still buying and selling antiques, husband edits a magazine. Nancy Keene Norman lives in Sydney, Australia with her professor husband. Gin Tunstall also lives in Australia.

Eleanore Reuby Volonte (after ten years in Arlington) is in Madison, N.J. Her husband is with Bell Labs, has a senior daughter at Drew. Also in Madison live Bebe and Ed Judge. Jay Sadler lives in Litchfield, Conn., and runs an architectural design firm (residences). He has collaborated with Desmond Guinnis of Dublin on Mr. Jefferson, Architect which is to be published in the spring by Viking.

Fran Pendleton Elliott lives in Winchester, Mass. Her son graduated from Yale and now is a Supply Officer on Polaris Sub, daughter at Brown. Eleanor Ramsdell Van Scherpe and husband celebrated 25 years of marriage and with Standard Oil with three weeks in Hawaii. They have three children one married, one in high school and a twelve-year-old. She's interested in KiWi (ex-American Airline stewardess).

Saw Emily Snyder Alexander and Jim at Homecoming. Kay is a senior — Kappa Kappa

Ask about our free trial offer.

Signing up for Army ROTC in college is not a major commitment. We suggest that you give it a try. Take the Basic Course during your freshman and sophomore years. See what it's all about. You'll find that it's only a few hours a week.

That's not going to get in the way of classes, study, sports or other activities. At the end of your sophomore year you'll know for sure if you want to continue.

If you decide to go on with the ROTC Advanced Course, you'll be paid $100 a month during your last two years of school, although you'll have to agree to complete the program and accept a commission, if offered.

You'll be earning your degree and commission at the same time. It's even possible for you to go on to graduate school. Then serve as an officer later.

You will also find it to be a very attractive offer for a profession after you complete your education.

And, you may be interested in the Army ROTC Scholarship Program. Scholarships are available for one, two, three or four years.

For complete information you may contact the Professor of Military Science, Room 1, Blow Gymnasium, The College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

Gamma, Mortar Board, President's Aide, doing honors work in architecture. Son Jim is a freshman at Hampden-Sydney.

Ann James May and George are still in Amherst. She is an editor, doing biographical sketches of everyone who has ever attended Amherst. Son (Amherst '70) back from Vietnam — Columbia Law School, and Cynthia is Skidmore, '73.

Winifred Jester has moved from Cranford, N.J., to Virginia Beach. Has a son at Virginia Wesleyan and a Senior son at Hargrave (a W&M hopeful). Incidentally, for you out-of-staters our University of Virginia has gone coed. Heard that 40 percent of their Frosh were women. This has helped W&M. The College has a really outstanding group of Freshman men! Noted in Freshman book that B. J. and Mike Stousland have a son in '76. Met Louise and Johnny Hollis's soph son at a great Lambda Chi Fiftieth Anniversary party at Homecoming. My first visit to fraternity complexes — real nice setup. The girls voted not to move into the complex built for them — prefer the old houses.

Susan Whitehead Byars lives in Dunedin, Fla., and has a married daughter and one a senior at St. Mary's in Raleigh. Her cousin, Dick Alfriend's wife Rachael did a feature article recently on some Norwegian recipes I have (all fattening unfortunately).

Esther Mermelstein Weinberg writes from Baltimore that son Steven is statistician for W&M's Lacrosse team. US News and World Report in its article on Christmas department store business quoted Ebie Berkely's husband, Robert Harrison, President of Wanamaker's. Also read name of Bob Longacre, President of A&P in business magazines.

Mary Lou Taylor McGoodwin still in Portland, a new grandmother. Connie Curtis Laws' son Gary a December groom — honeymooning at Sandbridge. Margaret Alexander Craig and Mary Berkeley Porter live in Portsmouth. Were at Tri-Delt Christmas luncheon as was Ginny Cox (Harry Cox's new W&M graduate).

Big news in Norfolk: A new Rembrandt! Gift of Jean Outland Chrysler and her husband Walter. Only one of the thousands of paintings and artifacts they've given to our museum. I'm head of Norfolk's Art Committee, the Vice Chairman is Webster Chandler, Nancy Outland Chandler's husband.

Hope to get to McLean soon where Jane Craig Beaver and Bob have moved. Rolf will go hunting with Bob and Carter Chinnis, Pam Pauly Chinnis's husband, so I'll have more news next time.

Mrs. Donald R. Rutter
(Mary Keeney)
1001 Pontiac
Lafayette, Indiana 47905

Greetings and best wishes for 1973! Hope the holidays were happy for you. We spent a lovely Thanksgiving in Louisville, Ky., with my entire family, including my brother, Dr. Arthur H. Keeney (Art) '42, and his wife Dr. Virginia Tripp (Jinny) Keeney, '42. Their children were there from California, New Jersey and Conn., plus our four, all from Indiana, and our grandson (oh, the pain). While in Louisville, enjoyed a visit with Mary Minton Creagor Eitel, and did some real catching up. She had recently had a visit from Nora Spann Chandler and Joe, from Rye, N. Y.

Mary Minton attended an alumni gathering in Louisville, visiting with Bob and Mary Stanton Willis Doll, Betty Buntin and Bob Matthews, Hugh Haynie, '50, the illustrious cartoonist for the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Dixie and Nancy McFadden Walker, '49.

A note from Mary Watson Walker '48, who is back in Coronado after 5½ years in North Alabama. She keeps busy with Hospital Auxiliary, D. A. R., full time job, and one husband, and two Scottish Terriers.

Ann Dudley Brower Turner, writes from Raleigh N.C. that she has four children — Jim, a sr. at Wake Forest; Dida, a jr. at Wake Forest, spending this semester in Venice; Frank, a sr. at Ravenscraft in Raleigh, and captain of the football team; and Ruthie, a fifth grader at Ravenscraft.

John L. (Jack) Neale, '50, and Gloria du Busc Neale, in Huntington, W. Va., celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary, Feb. 15, the same day Jack was made President of the American Benefit Corp., dealing in Employee Benefit Plans, Group, Pension, and Actuarial Insurance Consultants. Congratulations, Jack! They have four daughters, Susan — married to a marine officer; Nancy, a new college graduate; Martha, a freshman in Marshall Union, and Laura, a Soph. in high school.

Andy and Mary Jane Keen Williams write from Berwyn, Pa., that they have a daughter, Carol, at William and Mary, a senior majoring in Fine Arts.

Tom and Jean Louise Black Oakley are in Ship Bottom, N. J. Tom '49, has been named to Gov. Cahill's Board for Home Improvement as well as being appointed a Trustee of the Ocean County College Foundation.

A short note from Herb Tucker, says he is now living in Williamsburg doing research on the Tucker Collection.

I am now busy learning the ropes of a new job, that of Executive Director of our Girl Scout Council. It's a challenging position and one I am enjoying.

Also enjoyed a note from my roommate, Pat Snyder Smith and Warren (Smitty), from York, Pa., hoping we can get together at our 25th reunion this fall. I echo this wish very strongly, for Pat and all of you. Start planning now to be in Williamsburg October 20, 1973. Don and I are planning to be there — Hope to see many of you.

Thank you all for remembering me this Christmas and I will try to get everything in this letter. Woody and Yvonne Wayland are enjoying living in New Jersey. Think I had mentioned before that they have just recently been transferred there.

Joan and Buddy Hawkins are still in North Olmstead, Ohio. Buddy had a coronary in May but is not able to go back to work full time. Joan has been involved in some experimental educational programs. Their daughter Jane is at the University of Ohio.

Pat Jones Warner and Bill report that they occasionally see Joe and Nancy Parker and another William & Mary alum living there and working for the same company as Bill is Hugh Watson.

Obi and Mim Root are enjoying living in the San Francisco area in spite of the cold weather.

Anne and Linc Brown are still enjoying New Jersey life. Oldest daughter Bev is at Duke. Linc, Anne and Bev had a fantastic trip to Europe this past August.

Liz and Bob Shuman were among other expecting a son home from college this Xmas.

Nicky and Jay Dewing and Nancy and George Falck are the proud co-owners of a Columbia 28 (a sailboat for you non sailors). Nicky has recently seen Marcia and Kirk Kirkpatrick who are at Fort Eustis. Nancy's daughter Laurie is a freshman at William and Mary.

Joanne and Dick Scofield also have a daughter in college now. Milly Johnson Woodling and Pete still enjoy Houston and promise a trip west. Everybody promises but nobody comes.

Skippy Beecher Scrymgeour and Bruce have gone into the antique business in Oakton, Va. They have done shows in Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York.

Ned Renzi has recently moved to Salinas. He retired from Arabian American Oil after 20 years in Saudi, Arabia. Ned is presently in the real estate business. If you get towards Bakersfield look us up.

Shirley Lyonds Hardwick was in New Orleans for five weeks this summer and in the process missed seeing Jeanne Bambforth when she was in London. Shirley doesn't see Sue Green Ulander as much since they moved from the London area (Sue that is).

Ruth and Dave Chalmers spent Christmas in Calgary this year. I usually get a letter from Florida or Hawaii. Their son David is at the University of Denver. Ruth and Dave were among others who visited Europe this past summer.

Sue and Randy Davis seem to get to Williamsburg more than anybody. We are proud that Randy was re-elected president of the alumni board. They have three in college now so Sue is able to travel a bit with Randy.

Howard Wisemand spent August touring castles and manor homes in England and Scotland. They live in Maplewood, New Jersey.

Had a nice long letter from Bill Martin, who is living in Clearwater Florida. They have two boys and two girls. They had made a trip to Williamsburg this past summer and also managed to visit Doct White in Stanleytown, Va. Bill is director of Procurement for Honeywell, Inc., Tampa Division.

It is really wonderful when one of you after about 20 years decides to sit down and write a letter. I hope I got all the cards in and didn't chop up things too much but thank you all for sending me so much news that it was hard to get in. That is sure better than too little.

Sue Johnson (Sommers) included a note with Christmas greetings to say that John has been transferred to Bethlehem Steel's New York office. Therefore the family moved in March to Darien, Connecticut. This means three hours commuting on Penn Central each day! Their oldest boy is about to start deciding which college.

I'm glad Harry DeSampers is Class Agent this year because that way, we are sure to hear from him, and he even threw in some news.

He, too, is a resident of Connecticut, only in his case, it's Simsbury where he works for Oxford Chemicals as their technical sales representative for the state. Harry and his wife, Rosemary, have temporarily retired from civic life but with a real record of accomplishment it seems. Rosemary was nominated as an Outstanding Young Woman of America, then awarded Outstanding Civic Leader of America the following year. Harry was named to Outstanding Young Men of America.

The DeSampers occasionally visit with Pete Creniers in Stamford.

Bette Bodley (Dunker) is still in Greensboro, N.C., but moving into another, larger house. The oldest daughter is a Junior in high school, still very much interested in horses; she even has a job caring for one! Bette is President of P.T.A. this year.

The Legges are moving too. For them, it's an accomplished fact. On November 30, they moved into a half-finished hilltop house, one that suits Anne and Reynolds and at least two out of three of the children! It's rustic and easy to care for. It has a view of mountains and orchards in the Winchester vicinity.

Hope you all had a merry Christmas. It came — ready or not — and went too rapidly and I had an exam at V.C.U. on December 20. I was not ready. Was looking in the yearbook Contemporary Authors 1972, and just happened to open the book to Gini Anding LaCharite's biography in it. She had published The Poetics and The Poetry of Rene Char in 1968 and is working with husband Raymond on the translation of Bonaventure Des Perier's Novel Pastimes and Merry Tales. Contemporary Authors said that Gini did graduate study at the University of Besancon on a Fulbright in 1957-1958, earned her M.A. in 1965 at the University of Pennsylvania and her Ph.D. in 1966. They are living in Lexington, Ky, where she has been associate professor of French since 1969. (She was a lecturer at the University of North Carolina 1966-1969.) She was chosen Outstanding Faculty Woman 1970-1971 at the U. of Ky. Sounds great — glad I found the information, but it would have been nicer if someone had written it to me.

Jack and Margie Willard Duer, from Belle Haven, Va., have children almost college age. John IV is a junior at the Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va. Read is a sophomore at the Gunston School in Centreville, Md., and Julie is a seventh grader at Broadwater Academy. Jack is on the Board of Directors of many local and state organizations. He was recently appointed by the Governor as his Chairman of the Virginia Trucks and Ornamental Station. They both are active in politics — not always on the same side, however. Margie does volunteer hospital work and is in the garden club, but their present joy is flying.

chairman (chairperson?) for their annual Garden Week. It will climax the week-end of April 28-29, 1973. Last year over 1000 people came. It certainly seems to be well organized. Anne and John have two sons, ages nine and six.

Ed Walton has opened a new law office for his law firm-Simmonds, Coleburn, Towner, and Carmen in Fairfax, Va. He was a delegate to the 1972 GOP National Convention and recently completed a two year term as Fairfax County GOP Chairman.

Jim Rosenbaum opened a medical laboratory in October in Portsmouth, Va., — the Eastern Biological Laboratories, Inc. He has a pathologist on call, a lab supervisor and five technicians on staff. Nan (Maurer) is Volunteer Director of the Teacher's Aide Program at the Consolidated Parochial School for this year and they have just completed building a beach house at Sandbridge, Va.

Carol Norstrom Wray is in Honolulu where her husband is a patent attorney. Carol is active on the Hawaii State Board of Republican Women and works part-time. She said that Bill Armbruster is there in the Navy, and that Bill Dunn is an attorney there. Bobby Ramsey Brooks has a part-time job in Periodicals at one of the University of North Carolina libraries. Alex Fakadej spent two months on the HOPE ship in Natal, Brazil. Frank Elliott, in Springfield, Va., directed the music for their community Christmas pageant, "The Littlest Wiseman." Betsy (Stafford) sang in the choir and their six year old son John was one of the wisemen's attendants. In August, Frank became assistant principal at Robert E. Lee High School.

Thank you to those who wrote. The rest of you try it-you'll like it.

Since there is abundant news this time including the annual Theta newsletter (for which I am grateful to Ann Smith Hughes), I will limit information here to news that didn't appear in the recent Homecoming Colonial Re-Echo.

Florence McNeill Steinman is momentarily expecting her first child. Her husband Art works for Deltona Corp. and they enjoy the small town atmosphere of Crystal River, Fla. after living in Ft. Lauderdale.

Sue Robertson Shephard has been selected to appear in the 1972 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America," as a result of much civic, charitable and church work in Virginia Beach where Sue, Bill and three children live.

John and Judy Linton Heald ('63) and two daughters moved from Arlington to Helena, Mont. in October 1971. John is the IBM systems engineering manager for Montana.

Dr. Joel M. Williams Jr. has joined the staff of Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico to work with the chemistry materials science division. Joel received his Ph.D. degree in organic chemistry from Northwestern University. He and his wife Mary have two children, Catherine and Michael.

Nate Howard has been named Vice President in the Corporate Finance Department of White, Weld & Co., specializing in new business for companies in regulated industries. Previously Nate had been with Halsey Stuart & Co., Inc. Nate also received his law degree from W&M. Dorcas Miller Lounsbury and Ken and two children have moved to South Lake Tahoe, Calif where Ken is city attorney. Pril Nash Brown and Seab expect their first child in Feb. Also expecting are Cynthia Isemann Buxton and Don — in June. Don has been on sea duty assignment since summer out of Brooklyn Naval Yard, and Cynthia has kept their apartment in Alexandria. She plans to "retire" from teaching early this year. Jane Lawson Hall and Frank live in Chapel Hill with their two daughters; Jane is active in local politics and works with the cooperative school the girls attend. Margie Heiney Stouffer and John and two children left in December for a two year tour of duty in Greece; they will live in Athens while John commands a ship in the squadron. Donna Floyd Fales and Gordon are busy raising three children in Miami and building a new house. Michael Friedman of Baltimore, Md. writes that he has given up his own business and is now in charge of a chain of shoe stores in the Baltimore area. His oldest son, Alan, is four, and Bradley was just 2.

To everyone, a happy and fulfilling 1973 . . . and hopefully you made a resolution to write to your class secretary this year!

Last August, deSaussure McFadden McCutchen received the first M.A. degree in history ever offered at Georgia College; before enrolling there she attended Bryn Mawr and Winthrop Colleges. She and her husband and daughter now reside in Milledgeville, Ga.

Holding a bachelor of civil law degree from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, Robert P. Wolf recently joined the legal department of Reynolds Metals Company as an attorney. He is engaged in general corporate law and also serves as general counsel for the legal department.

Karen Rackley continues work toward her Ph.D. in statistics at Harvard University. She also serves as the freshman advisor, a resident tutor, and is department chairman of the Faculty-Student Information Committee.

Francine Fowler Handy and family have moved to California. She has retired from hospital lab work to take care of her daughter Jessica, a year old. Her husband, Jonathan, completed his Masters degree in Public Health at the University of Michigan and now works for the Monterey Health Department.

Fredrica Dudley Burgess, now in Seattle, is teaching English for the 7th and 10th grades at Lakeside School.

Thomas Domino received his M.S. from George Washington University in Personnel Management in 1966. He now works for the Army project manager as Chief of procurement and production for army attack helicopters at the Aviation Systems Command in St. Louis, Mo.

Mary E. Green, living in Cambridge, Mass., is working as a financial analyst for the United Brands Company.

Howard Roger Hardy, wife Karen along with Jennifer 4½, Kimberly 2½ and Roger a year old, are all enjoying the weather and beautiful living in Westlake Village, Southern California.

Once again thanks to Jackie Crebbs Peter for the Chi Omega Alum news. She writes that Marge Holland, amidst many travels and exciting friends, is working for U.S. Plywood and continues to live in New York City. Bonnie Agnor Tinsley and Barry live in Bloomington, Ill., where he is an Assistant Professor at Illinois State University; Bonnie is the Veteran's Advisor for the University. Laidler Freeman Campbell and Peter are in Vancouver, British Columbia. Peter is a practicing psychiatrist and works with an adolescent treatment unit, while Laidler is being a mother to young Robin. Mary Ann Venner Schmidt and Herm now have a new addition to their family, William Hunter. They have also moved to their newly built house in Williamsburg. Joanna Jeffries Johnson and Jimmy are once again living in Raleigh, N.C., where he is with IBM. Jackie writes that the Peters are doing well and entertaining everyone that comes to Williamsburg. Some interesting news — she played at David Brinkley's wedding at Carters Grove Plantation last summer. They also made trips to Michigan, as well as Portugal and Spain.

Welcome back to Patty Vaught who has recently returned from three years of California living in Berkeley. She is now in the Washington area and works as a legal secretary, as well as planning graduate studies in modern languages.

Joanne Arnett Murphy and Paul have recently returned from Australia where he was on a 3 month study for the Management Consultant firm, Cresap, McCormick and Paget, Inc. They have also bought a house in Bronxville, N.Y., which they are redecorating. Their son, Spencer, is two years old.

It was great to see Gail Blake Wright over the Christmas holiday. She and her husband, David, and children, Rollin and Scott, have moved from Alabama back to Virginia. They are temporarily in Richmond where David works for the Shelton-Witt Construction Company.

Kathleen Carr Lang writes that she and her husband Nick returned to Washington, D. C.

from Yugoslavia at the beginning of 1971. In Washington Kathleen worked as an editor for a college guide. This fall Kathleen and Nick moved to Bloomington, Ind., where their son Jess was born in September, and where Nick has begun a Ph.D. program in political science at Indiana University.

John Gerace completed dental internship in July, 1972, and is presently assigned to the dental clinic at Fort Clayton, Panama Canal Zone. Robert Jenkins was graduated from Wake Forest University School of Law in May, 1972, and is now an associate in the law firm of Carter and Faircloth in Fayetteville, N.C.

William Heins writes that after teaching music at James Blair High School in Williamsburg for three years following graduation, he received a Master of Music degree in choral conduction from Indiana University in June, 1971. Presently Bill is teaching music in the Fort Wayne, Ind., Community School System, where his wife Anita teaches English and reading.

James Smart and his wife Tally are at Fort Riley, Kan., where Jim is a member of the Judge Advocate General's Corps, and is serving as a prosecutor for court-martials at Fort Riley.

Bill Berghaus has been appointed director of continuing education and community services at Lord Fairfax Community College, Middletown, Va. Bill received his Master's degree in Educational Administration from the University of Arizona, and is presently taking advanced graduate work through the extension division of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. For the past two years Bill has served as coordinator of admissions and records at Lord Fairfax.

Judy Hein Harrell and Alan ('67) are living in Lynchburg where Alan is Systems Services Manager for the local branch of National Cash Register. John and Marilyn Day Benedict ('67) are living in St. Louis where John is a Field Manager with the Ford Motor Company. John and Marilyn are sponsors for the youth group at their church, which they find a very rewarding experience, and are enjoying living in St. Louis.

Lynn and Sallie Moore Daggett Dievendorf ('69) are living at Fort Bragg, N. C., where Lynn is a Captain, assigned as medical plans and operations officer for John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance. They have one son, Lynn Jr., who is a year old.

Grace Guin is living in Washington, D. C., designing offices and professional and commercial interiors with Stern Office Furniture, Inc. Also in Washington is Jim Dryden, who is a senior dental student at Georgetown University Dental School, and who was in the top 5 percent of his class during his junior year. Upon graduation in May, Jim hopes for a dental internship in the U. S. Public Health Service or with the Veterans Administration.

Donald Howell, his wife Sue, and their three children will soon be moving to Atlanta where Donald will be Southeast Regional Sales

Lynn Hodgson is a marine botanist. After getting her master's at University of Washington in Seattle Lynn "had a fabulous camping trip through Alaska for a month." This January Lynn plans on earning her Ph.D. at University of Maine.

Tom Finton wrote another nice letter enclosing news of our classmates —

Gary Fisher is still in Germany with the U.S. Army.

Dave Winn and his wife are in Fredericksburg where they are teaching. Dave should earn a master's in Latin from W&M in about two more summers.

Kenny and Betty Beecher Moore are in Orange, Va. Kenny is with the telephone company and Betty is teaching.

Tom Finton spent last year "in that famous Asian paradise called Vietnam working in several different communications positions at the same time." Tom returned to the states last February and spent last summer at the Univ. of North Carolina in television and motion picture production.

I saw Barbara Pate Glacel and Jim Husband briefly in Frankfurt before Christmas. Barbara and her husband, Bob planned on skiing in St. Moritz, Switzerland. Jim Husband will be finished with the Army March 1.

Had some more Chi Omega news via Barbara Rhonda Curry is doing human relations work in Louisville, Ky. Lin Stocker is still with Bell Labs in New Jersey.

Susan Burgess Johnson in Elizabeth City, N.C. is teaching 8th Grade earth-space science and is SCA sponsor at the junior high school. Her husband Stewart should finish his duty with the Coast Guard and return to the Norfolk area in June. Susan wrote that she would like to start an alumni chapter in Elizabeth City - Can any of you help??

Kathy Netzley completed a Master's of Science degree at Ohio State last June. Presently Kathy attends medical school at Medical College of Ohio in Toledo.

Having completed a year's course and passing a test in November, Mark Eric Ruddell is certified as medical technologist.
