Budget Crisis Continues

Cold Complicates College Finances

This has been one of the coldest winters in history in Williamsburg, and the north air that has emanated from the State Capitol in Richmond has done nothing to warm life up for William and Mary.

For the first time in years, lasting snowfall has blanketed the campus of the College. That's nice to look at, but the freezing temperatures -- as low as five degrees on some days -- that keep the snow on the ground have also boosted William and Mary's energy bills, adding to an already serious financial crunch that has been with the College since 1972 and seems to worsen with each succeeding year.

To combat the rising energy costs, the College lowered thermostats to 65 degrees in classrooms, offices, and dormitories -- even before Jimmy Carter did it in the White House; reduced lighting, and closed non-essential parts of some buildings like the Campus Center, William and Mary Hall, Blow and Adair gyms.

Those measures, however, were more in the form of damage control rather than an answer to the more consuming problem of how to operate on a budget that is even less than the minimal funding appropriated to the College by the last General Assembly.

The State has already taken back $541,000, or five per cent of William and Mary's approximately $11,000,000 appropriation, in a reversion necessitated last fall when it became obvious to Governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. '36 that tax receipts would not match expenditures, resulting in a state budget deficit that is prohibited by law. That reduction is even more severe than it appears, since much of the operating budget is tied up in salaries, which cannot be cut. As a result, most departments lost 20 per cent of the money they thought they had to run their operations for the rest of the fiscal year.

That reversion made up some of the gap, but still left the State facing a $120 million shortfall when the General Assembly convened for its off-year session in January to decide how to solve the problem -- with increased taxes, more budget cuts, or a combination of both.

In preparation for the General Assembly session, Governor Godwin has asked State agencies, including the College, to come up with a plan to cut another 2½ per cent from their budgets. For M&O funds, this would translate into an additional 10 per cent cut, presenting departments with an almost impossible situation.

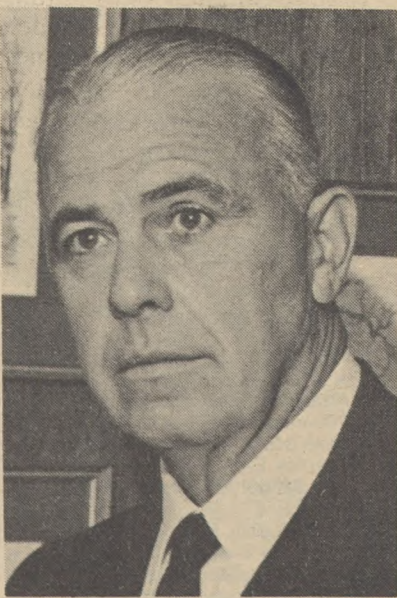

This was the kind of gloom the Board of Visitors faced when it met at the College in January. Administrators pointed out that the five per cent reversion, coupled with the dumping on the College of costs the State previously absorbed and the possible withholding by the state of other "special" revenue, could result in a $250,000 deficit for the College

Resident Scholar Ford Speech Writer Joins College

Milton Friedman, special assistant to President Gerald R. Ford, will become Resident Scholar in American Politics at the College for the spring semester.

Friedman has served as the senior Ford speech writer since Mr. Ford became vice president. His duties included foreign policy, and he accompanied the President and Secretary of State Kissinger to Peking, Helsinki, Vladivostok and other state visits abroad.

James C. Livingston, dean of the Undergraduate Program, said that Friedman will meet with various classes, seminars and informal student groups engaged in the study of American government and politics. He will also serve as a resource for students who are conducting research on the Presidency and the Executive Branch of government.

During his period of residency at William and Mary, Friedman will continue work on a book on the federal government, which will advance two concepts that he believes will make the political process more responsive. He will draw from his experiences on the White House staff, as a professional staff member for the U.S. Senate, and as a journalist.

Friedman, who led the team which developed the 1976 State of the Union message for President Ford, was instrumental last spring in making arrangements for the College's Washington Program study of Executive Branch operations, in association with College officials.

Before joining the Senate's professional staff, Friedman wrote a syndicated column and served as a foreign correspondent. He worked as a reporter for news services and metropolitan newspapers, including the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

A native of Portsmouth, Va., he attended the former Norfolk Division of William and Mary. He also attended The George Washington University and the Washington School of Psychiatry.

He will begin his residency at William and Mary early in February, following a West Coast vacation after President-elect Carter's inauguration.

Wrestling Team Captures Delaware Invitational

The William and Mary wrestling team captured first place in the Delaware Invitational Meet, defeated Western Maryland, George Mason, Gettysburg and Bucknell in individual meets and lost to Rhode Island and powerful Maryland during an 11-day holiday road trip.

The Tribe lost to Maryland 27-12 on the final leg of the trip and Steers commented, "I wish we had opened with Maryland. They have a great team and I think we really could have challenged them".

Individually, the Indians have been led by Tom Dursee, a 118 lb. junior (21-4), Jim Hicks, senior, 134 lbs. (15-3), Bob Pincus, senior, 126 lbs., (17-5) and Bob Stark, senior, 177 lbs. (17-4-1).

William and Mary has taken top honors in two other tournaments, in addition to the Delaware meet. The Tribe won the Monarch Open in Norfolk and was first in the Indian Invitational in Williamsburg.

CHARACTER: This small, liberal and modern university places emphasis, in its undergraduate, graduate and professional programs, on the development of the student as a whole individual. The criterion of excellence in teaching and learning, in class and out of class, is at the heart of the educational process. With such objectives and a limited enrollment, the College strives to provide its students with a quality education, and through them to make a significant contribution to the Commonwealth of Virginia and to the nation.

HISTORY: Chartered February 8, 1693 by King William III and Queen Mary II as the second college in the American colonies, to train young men and Clergy for the Church of England. Severed formal ties with Britain in 1776. Became State-supported in 1906 and coeducational in 1918. Achieved modern university status in 1967. Phi Beta Kappa and the Honor System of conduct are among the College's contributions to higher education tradition.

INSTRUCTIONAL FACULTY: 398 in arts and sciences, marine science, education, business administration, law.

ENROLLMENT: 6,011 full-time of whom approximately 4,339 are undergraduates. 70% of undergraduates are Virginia residents by College policy.

STUDENT STATISTICS: Students from 50 states and 16 foreign countries; 1190 total mean SAT score in current freshman class; 30% of students received financial aid totalling $1,500,000 (excludes G.I. Bill and guaranteed student loans) in 1975-76. 1,200 employed part-time and received $750,000 (approx.) during academic sessions.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS: Curricular reorganization giving emphasis to individual opportunities, interdisciplinary study, ungraded pass-fail options, experimental seminars; self-determination policy in residential halls; new forms of non-credit education opportunities; foreign language houses, an unstructured adjunct to conventional classroom instruction.

DEGREES: A.B., B.S., B.B.A., M.A., M.S., M.B.A., M.Ed., M.A.Ed., Ph.D., J.D., Ed.D., L.&T.M.

Biologists Serve Community

The Plant Rescue Consultants

"Wheresoever we landed upon this river, we saw the goodliest woods of beech, oak, cedar, cypress, walnuts, sassafras, and vines in great abundance, hanging in great clusters on many trees. . . and all the grounds bespred with many sweet and delicate flowers of diverse colors and kinds."

In 1607, when he traveled up the James, Captain John Smith was in awe of the life he found thriving on the banks of Virginia's primary waterway. There was no sign of gold, the treasures he had been sent to find. Instead, the riches were growing above the ground, thick and green and beautiful.

Today, many of the "sweet and delicate flowers" Smith treasured are commonly referred to as "weeds." Instead of being appreciated, they are indiscriminately yanked up or chopped down. In their place grow lawns and crabgrass, amidst driveways and patios.

But isn't beauty, after all, in the eyes of the beholder? Donna Ware, a William and Mary biologist John Smith would have been proud of, says the "beholder" is often deprived of the chance to understand and appreciate the understated beauty of a natural setting for a home. Bulldozers too often sweep away standing plantlife before the homeowner can evaluate the environment best suited for a new house.

To the typical contractor, cutting down trees and underbrush is synonymous with cutting expenses. So it is a rare occasion when a builder offers customers an opportunity to choose which trees will stay and which will yield to the bulldozer when construction commences.

Yet Ware, caretaker of the College's herbarium, says it's not necessarily the contractor's fault. Most modern Americans don't know how to selectively pick and choose which trees and shrubs must go, and which are worth saving.

As a result, she says a number of relatively rare species of flowers, shrubs and trees are being destroyed by bulldozers every year. It could indeed be possible that some of the species Smith praised in 1607 may be extinct today.

Plants--not just trees and shrubs but weeds as well--can be educational, practical and aesthetically pleasing. Strong dense roots, for instance, can prove invaluable as a ground cover to halt runaway erosion. The natural garden can, in fact, produce a variety of fruits and herbs that are guaranteed to add variety to any menu. And probably most importantly, natural settings can teach children and remind adults to respect the environment.

Ware admits that it's "more expensive and more time-consuming" to construct a home in the midst of natural trees and shrubs, but says the results are well worth the trouble.

That's why she's offered to serve as a "plant rescue consultant" to future homeowners and concerned contractors. By touring the property before the bulldozers arrive, she can help select which plants will create the best natural setting for a particular home and family.

Ware and other William and Mary biologists plan to expand the "plant rescue" program to offer one more alternative to destroying unusual species of plants. Several acres of campus land have been set aside as a haven for all types of greenery, from delicate ferns to 150-year-old birch trees.

Located across from Millington Hall on the banks of a stream leading from Crim Dell Pond to Lake Matoaka, the plant refuge will surround one of the most traveled paths on campus. "We'll have all types of plants that are rare in this area, but we'll also include plants that are pleasant to look at--like wildflowers and dogwoods."

Plans for the wild plant refuge call for a five-tiered amphitheatre designed to fit natural contours and encompass a stream flowing under a small lecture platform. Student geologists under the direction of Professor Gerald Johnson have surveyed the site and handed over the maps to a local landscape architect, Ralph E. Griswold. Together, they have systematically decided which plants currently on the property should be thinned or transplanted to make room for new arrivals.

The Board of Visitors formally approved the refuge, specifying that the area will not be used for future construction. Instead it will be devoted to the collection and study of native Virginia plants in a natural habitat.

Once the refuge is open, Ware will make her plant consulting services readily available to contractors and highway crews in the Williamsburg area. If she finds plants of rare distribution, she'll send a crew of student biologists to the site to carefully transplant the species to an appropriate place at the refuge.

Ware says that most people would be amazed at the variety of plant life that exists in a "natural" setting. When she and her husband Stewart, associate professor and chairman of the biology department, built their present home in a Williamsburg sub-division, they were careful to leave the plants on their property as unharmed as possible.

"It fascinates me how diversified plant life is on an ordinary half-acre lot," said Ware. She recently counted 22 species of trees, 11 kinds of shrubs, four types of vines and four species of orchids in her own back yard. The list doesn't include the grasses and weeds--some of the most beautiful inhabitants of the lot--which would be almost too numerous to count. All are native to the property, and most are not available at the typical nursery or greenhouse.

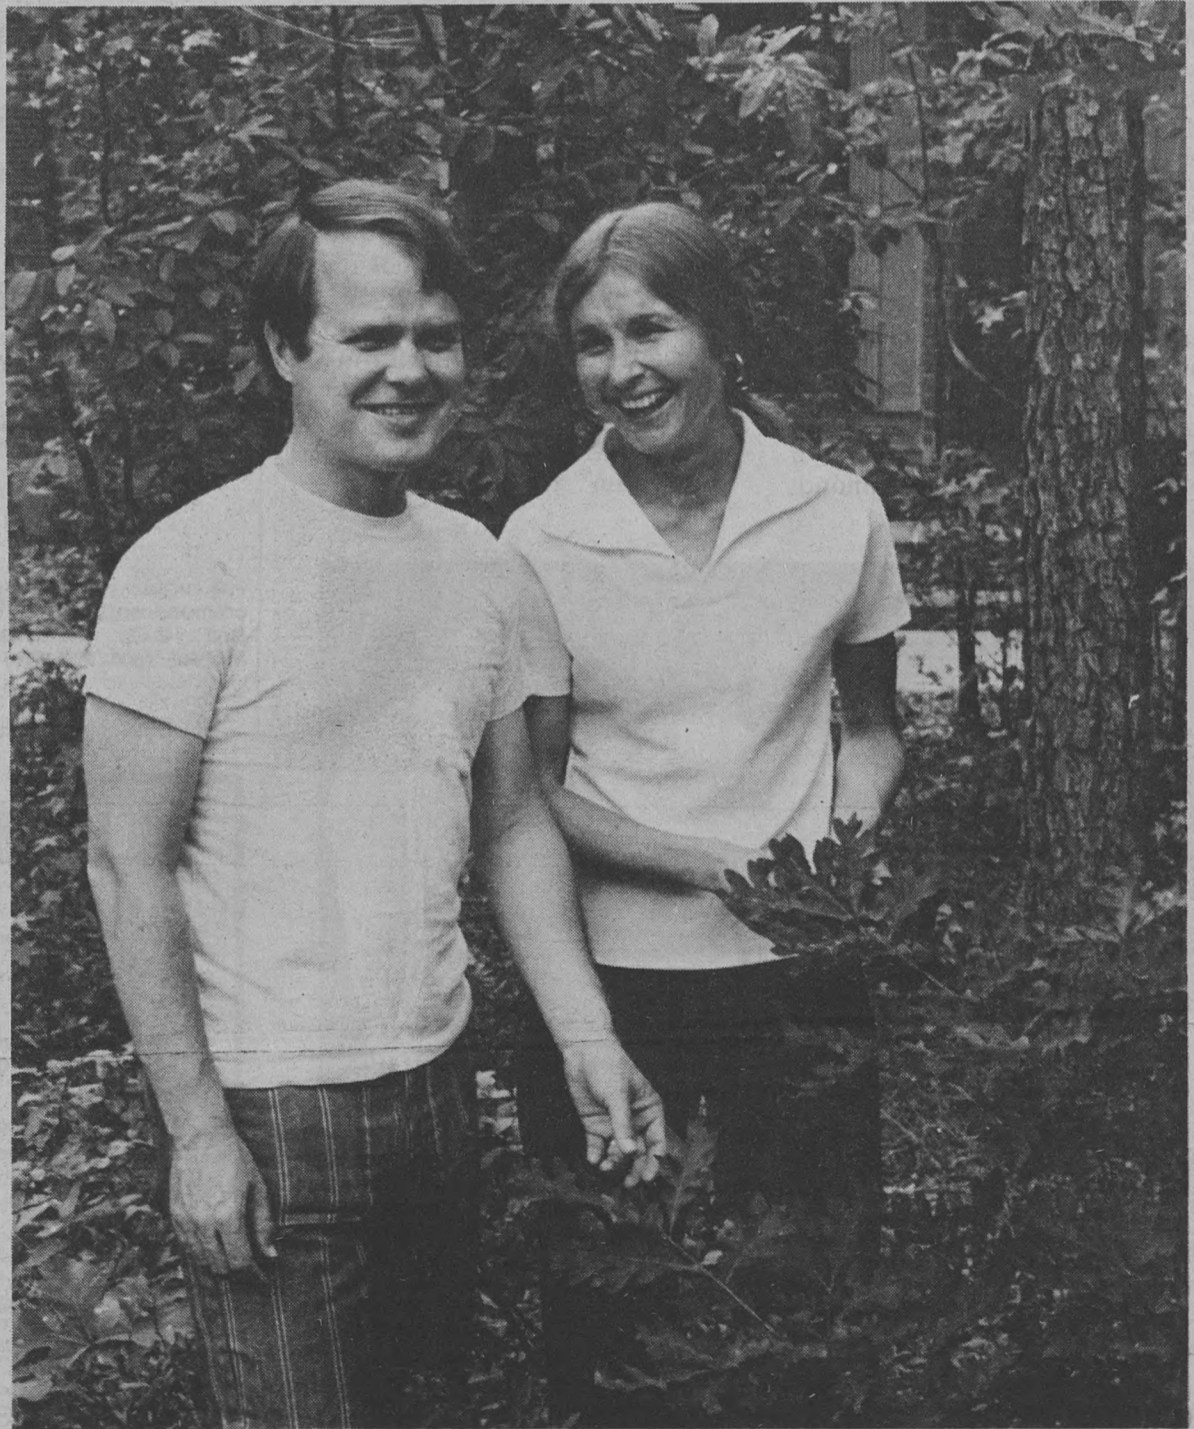

Of course Donna and Stewart Ware are not your average home gardeners. They study and categorize plants for a living, and are among a special breed of botanists who enjoy venturing through the underbrush in search of a rare find.

Together on trips across the country and separately on their day-to-day ventures with the biology department, the Wares are always searching for buried treasure--that rare plant that's been lost in the underbrush since the beginning of time.

It's not surprising that Donna Ware believes "that you make your best find when you least expect it."

"And you never know--it just could be in your own back yard."

In addition, according to President Graves, "not the least of our concerns is the uncertainty of the possibility of an additional 2½ percent reversion of funds, which would make the current picture even gloomier."

The President immediately slapped a temporary moratorium on all spending by the College, except for the most absolutely essential items. This will allow the administration to analyze the seriousness of the situation, and to get a more specific perspective of the fiscal potential for the remainder of the current budget year.

Designed to further the nation's excellence in humanistic scholarship, the NEH fellowships offer stipends of $20,000 for a full year.

McGiffert is particularly interested in the idea of the covenant in the 17th century Anglo-American Puritan thought.

McGiffert graduated cum laude from Harvard with a B.A. in American History and Literature. He studied subsequently at Union Theological Seminary in New York, received a B.D. in American Church History from the Yale Divinity School, and was awarded his Ph.D. in American Studies from Yale University. He has been editor of the William and Mary Quarterly and professor of history at the College since 1972.

From nearly 3,000 books published during the past year for school personnel, the American School Board Journal editors have picked 11 as "books you shouldn't pass up" and tagged them as recommended reading for 1977.

On the list is Robert's Rules of Disorder: A Guide to Mismanagement, by Robert Maidment of the School of Education. The journal says: "Here's a book on management--usually a dull and tedious topic--that not only is well written, bright and informative, but actually fun to read."

From Romanticism To Pragmatism Attitudes Shift Among College Students

As college students in the early 1970's, my friends and I were caught up in the romanticism of being "college students." The label seemed to suggest to us ivy-covered classroom buildings, enjoyable hours spent studying interesting courses we took just because we wanted to, and, of course, lots of fun. An easy life - right? Well, if William and Mary freshmen are any kind of indication, the life of a college student isn't easy these days.

The idealism, activism, and self-confidence of the decade of the 1960's, as well as some of the foolish romanticism of the early 1970's, have been replaced by a hardheaded practicality on the part of these students about what they face when they leave college in four years. I talked this year with several groups of freshmen just after they had completed their first semester exams, and found that a few things had changed in the four years since I had entered college.

The first thing that struck me was the practicality, even cynicism, with which these freshmen view their college education. As one commented:

"A college degree and a dime will get you a cup of coffee these days. Sure, college is a good experience in terms of the people you meet, the friends you make and the fun you have. But you have to be a little more practical now and think ahead as to what your degree will mean four years from now."

Freshmen are very aware of the economic problems of the world around them, and for that reason are concerned about taking courses that they think will be more useful to them than the traditional liberal arts curriculum. While not all of them plan to concentrate in business or education, many freshmen plan to include business and education courses in their course of study.

From my experience with them, William and Mary students have usually been notoriously grade-conscious, and this year's freshmen are no exception. The freshmen I talked with have their share of complaints about the amount of time they spend with their books, but they also feel that it's something they must do in order to stay ahead of everyone else. More than half of those I talked with expressed a desire to go into some type of professional or graduate school after William and Mary, and feel that good grades are the ticket for getting there.

Active in student life at William and Mary, Nancy Turrentine served as senior class president during her final year. A 1976 graduate, she is currently employed by the Office of the Dean of Students at the College. Drawing on her past and present experience in student life, she took a look at the changing student mood at the College for the Gazette.

One coed told me, "I can't say I especially enjoy spending hours and hours each day studying, but it's a very competitive atmosphere around here and you really feel you have to do it to keep up with everyone else".

Their concern with making good grades and the time they feel they must spend with their books has a direct effect on their attitudes in other areas. The freshmen I talked with have very little desire to become involved in campus activities. "Campus politics don't interest me one bit," announced one freshman, "besides, who has the time?" These freshmen felt that their involvement either in student political organizations, like the Student Association, or in service groups were, if not exactly a waste of their valuable time, then a luxury they simply could not afford.

"I'm not really too concerned with trying to change this campus any - I can't see how it will help me or the campus at all", noted one freshman.

The freshman unconcern over campus politics carries over into national politics as well. When asked about their interest in the November presidential election, a few of them said that they had followed the election closely and had cast their ballot in November, but the majority of them were clearly unconcerned or not interested. All of the freshmen admitted that they did enjoy the excitement of having the nationally televised presidential debate at William and Mary. Many of the freshmen said that they had gone to see the candidates at William and Mary Hall, and some had volunteered their services to do some of the legwork involved with the planning and execution of the debate. But the excitement of the event had little to do with a personal excitement over the candidates themselves.

"I guess everyone today is a little cynical about politics and how much they should mean to the individual these days," said one coed, "and I just find it hard to get excited about something that seems so remote from my own life here at school".

If William and Mary freshmen study hard, then they also have a desire to play hard, too. A majority of the freshmen women participated in sorority rush this fall, and when asked about that, they usually cited the social opportunities they felt that the Greek system offered them.

"I knew it would be rough academically, and I also knew that I would need a release from the books sometimes. Joining a sorority seemed to be a chance to have some fun and to meet some people, and that is what it has been for me," said one coed.

Dormitory programs also seem to have wide support from the freshmen. Activities like dorm-sponsored programs, lectures, and parties are the type of activities that freshmen seem to enjoy and benefit from. None of them complained that there was not enough to do on campus, but instead that "I just don't feel like I have the time to take advantage of everything I would like".

So another freshman class has weathered the trial of its first set of college examinations and in one sense its members are no longer freshmen - they are now young veterans of the college scene. In talking with them and comparing their attitudes to those of my classmates of a few years ago, I found them to be of a more practical and realistic turn of mind than students of previous years. They are entering college at a time when the value of a four-year college degree is being questioned, and they desire the type of educational environment in which they receive a good groundwork in many of the liberal arts fundamentals. At the same time they would like to gain some knowledge of subjects which will specifically help them when they leave college. In some ways, they are like the eternal image of the college student - fun-loving and with little concern of the world outside their college experience. But they are also ambitious and realistic and they feel that studying hard now will pay off for them later.

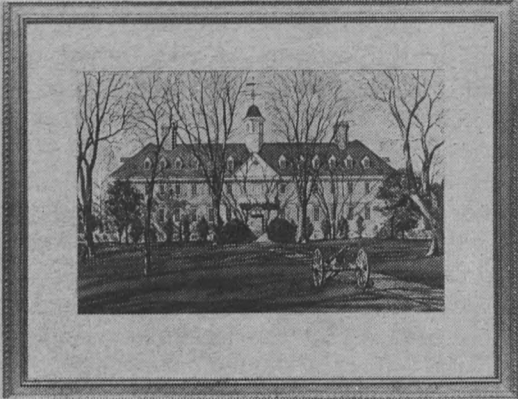

Basically what this year's freshmen are doing is looking out for their own best interests, and as one student put it, "I guess college students today make dull newspaper and magazine copy compared to those student activities of the 1960's. But if we don't look out for ourselves, then who will?"

by Nancy Turrentine

"A college degree and a dime will get you a cup of coffee. . ."

Aims for SC Tournament

Tribe Builds Steam for Play-offs

Midway through the season, William and Mary's basketball team is building steam for a championship finish.

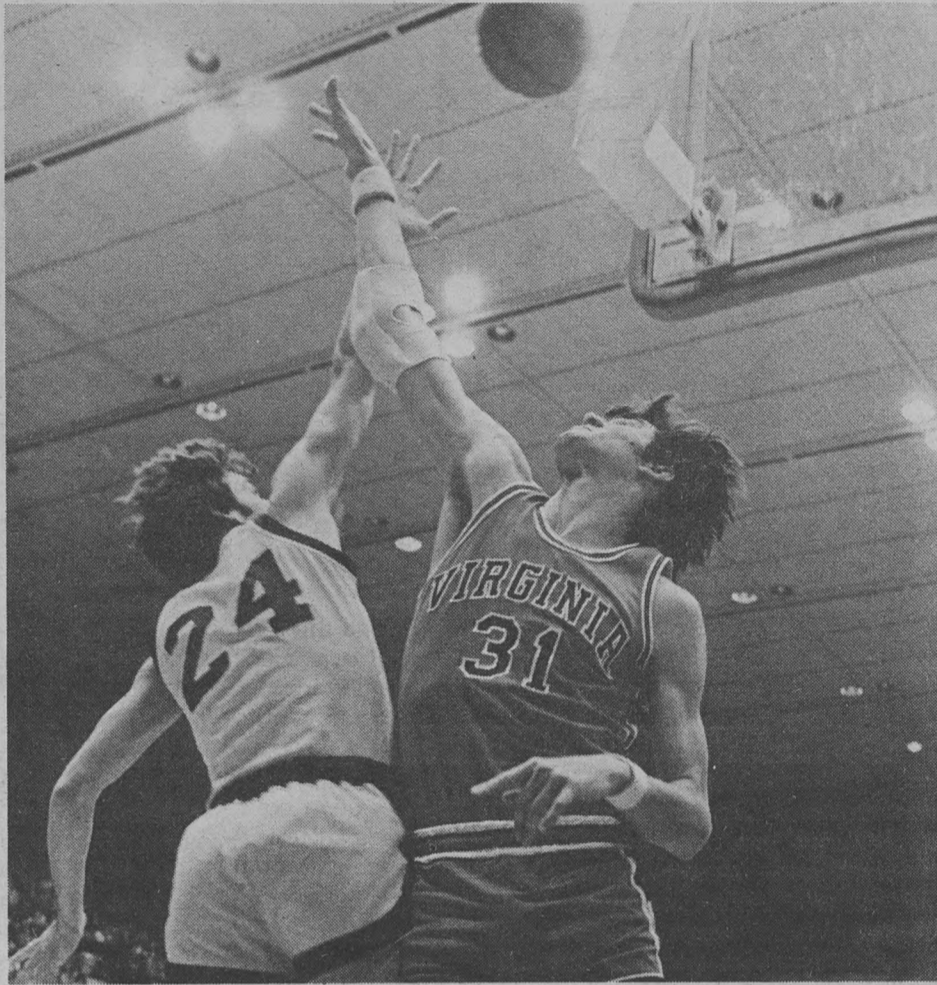

"Our goal is to win the Southern Conference Tournament (in Roanoke, March 4-5) and get into the NCAA playoffs," says Coach George Balanis whose Indians had won 10 of their first 16 games by late January.

Except for some poor foul shooting and strong finishes by the opposition, the Indians could possibly be nationally ranked. Two of their losses were to top ten teams Wake Forest, whom they took into overtime before losing, and to UCLA which defeated William and Mary at Pauley Pavilion 59-55 in the final seconds after the Indians had led for most of the game. A third loss came in overtime to Furman when the Indians missed three of eight crucial free throws.

The UCLA game was part of a Christmastime tour of California and Hawaii for the Tribe which won two of five games, with victories over Santa Barbara in California 78-69 and Temple 68-65 in the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu.

The losses came against Hawaii 63-60, UCLA, and powerful Illinois 73-64 during a game in which the Indians hit on only 20 of 40 foul shots.

The road-weary Indians returned home for a revenge 68-63 victory over Appalachian State, which had beaten William and Mary early in the season, and then split a two-game road trip to Virginia and VMI. The Tribe staged a strong second half comeback to defeat Virginia 71-65, the first state team to perform such a feat in the Cavaliers' University

Hall. The next night, however, the Indians had to take on VMI, which has lost only one game this season, in the Keydets' rickety old gymnasium. The result was disastrous: a 92-79 Southern Conference loss to the Lexington team.

The Indians then traveled to Richmond and downed the arch-rival Spiders 67-62 and returned home to post two more victories: over Southern Conference foe East Carolina 79-54 and over Queens College of New York 91-41, setting a record for holding the opposition to the fewest number of points in William and Mary Hall.

William and Mary has been led by the sparkling play of 6-11 senior center Matt Courage, the teams top scorer, who is finally realizing the potential he brought to the College as a 16-year-old freshman five years ago. Matt ran into problems after his junior year and laid out a season. With an increased maturity and dedication to the game, Courage has looked like a bonafide pro prospect with his performance this season.

The Tribe has been hurt by injuries and other problems early in the season. Star sophomore guard Billy Harrington suffered back problems and Ron Satterwaite, expected to be an All-American candidate after three exceptional years at the College, ran into concentration problems but has cleared those up and appears now to be headed for an excellent season.

The other mainstay in the Tribe lineup is junior forward John Lowenhaupt, the team's second leading scorer with a 14.1 average. Lowenhaupt has an uncanny talent for being in the right place at the right time. He executes and rebounds almost perfectly and defensively Balanis feels the "Hop" is one of his top talents.

Lowenhaupt is already one of the top ten all-time scorers at the College with more than 1100 career points. Only 6-5, he has also pulled down more than 400 rebounds to rank among the best in that category as well.

Friends Away From Home

When you're 2,500 miles from home and about to face a firing squad it's nice to see a few friendly faces in the crowd.

Although they knew that those fans were there, the William and Mary basketball team found that their presence wasn't quite enough as the Tribe lost to eighth-ranked UCLA 59-55 in Pauley Pavilion.

Two hours before the Indians took the court against the Bruins, a large and optimistic group of William and Mary alumni gathered at the Holiday Inn Bel-Air to wish them well.

Among the familiar faces on hand were former W&M players Gary Byrd and Tom Pfingst. Both have moved to the beach area south of LA and seem to have adapted well to the rigors of life in the sun and sand.

While Byrd (Class of '75) was the youngest W&M grad in the group of 150 or so, it remained for Ruth Rapp Thayer, who returned to Williamsburg in October for the 35th reunion of the Class of '41, to comment on the College.

"It was so much smaller and quaint back then," Mrs. Thayer said of the school. "Some things haven't changed, though, like the academic atmosphere and the older buildings."

Mrs. Thayer recalled how she was all set to go to Wellsley College until she visited Williamsburg. "That was in '37," she said. "They had begun the restoration a few years before and I fell in love with the place."

David Hunter (Class of '64) remembered when he was considered a "big" guard on the basketball team in the early '60s. "I was 5-11 or so," he said. "I went there from home in Pennsylvania because I wanted to play big-time sports at a small school with a good academic program."

"I remember some of those games in Blow Gym that used to get so wild. Davidson and West Virginia wouldn't even come in there."

"Most of the grads from out there I've talked to have been looking forward to this game for quite a while. It's good to be able to see the team right here in our backyard."

Bill Hurley, a track star who graduated in 1965, has tried to keep up with Indian sports since he left Williamsburg. He admits it hasn't been easy.

"Maybe we'll get a score or two if they run all the Southern scores," he said. "Usually we don't know a thing unless we get a newsletter or the team does something very outstanding."

Hurley was co-captain of the track team his senior year and recalls running the quarter-mile, mile relay and 880 relay on the old cinder track at Cary Field Stadium. "I tried to help raise money out here for the new facility," he said.

"We had great teams back then and I understand they still do. I'm not at all ashamed to tell people around here I'm a William and Mary man."

After the way the Indians played Thursday, no one would be.

Class Note Draws Notice

A class note by Mrs. J. Stuart White in the 1925 section of the December Alumni Gazette drew the attention of the Richmond News Leader recently.

Mrs. White noted that John F. Kennedy's famous inaugural speech line "Ask not . . ." had a familiar ring to it, then recalled the words of the William and Mary Citizenship Creed -- 1922: "My Duties as a Citizen - Not to think alone of what my government can do for me, but more about what I can do for it."

Commented the News Leader: ". . . the more one searches, the more likely he is to discover that

Anniversary Activities Begin

Activities pointing to the anniversary of the establishment of the chair of law and "police" under the leadership of Governor Thomas Jefferson on December 4, 1779 began with the inauguration of the annual George Wythe Lecture Series on December 3, 1976.

Professor Francis A. Allen, former dean of the University of Michigan Law School and current president of the Association of American Law Schools, delivered the inaugural address on the subject, "The Prospects for University Law Training." The text of the inaugural address, given in the Moot Courtroom of the Marshall-

Roberts Named to Fill Term of Zollinger

A. Addison Roberts '34, recently retired chief executive officer and chairman of the board of the Reliance Insurance Company of Philadelphia, has been named by Governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. to the College's Board of Visitors.

Roberts will fill the unexpired term of J. Edward Zollinger, who died in November at his home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Roberts received an honorary LL.D. degree from William and Mary in 1974. Earlier he received the Alumni Medallion from his Alma Mater. He is a past member of the board of the Alumni Society and currently serves on the board of trustees of the Endowment Association, the President's Council, and the Development Council for the Campaign for the College.

He is a graduate of Temple University Law School and a trustee of Temple. He established the Nannie Wilkins Robert Scholarship Fund at William and Mary in his mother's memory.

OWJ Elects New Secretary

Andrew J. Christensen '34, 1932 Avon Rd., Roanoke, Virginia 24015, has succeeded Dwight C. Brown '32 as secretary-treasurer of the Order of the White Jacket.

Christensen retired last year after a career of teaching and 20 years with the Shenandoah Life Insurance Home Office.

Information on OWJ and other correspondence should now be directed to Christensen instead of Brown.

Wythe School of Law to a gathering of law students, faculty and townspeople, is to be published in an early issue of the American Bar Association Journal.

The lecture series was begun in 1976 in observance of the 250th anniversary of the year of Wythe's birth, and was prefaced by a luncheon program in the Great Hall of the Wren Building at which E. M. "Tiny" Hutton, administrative assistant to Representative Thomas N. Downing and a long-time student of Wythe's life and career, gave a short talk on the subject of America's first professor of law.

Also at the luncheon, a special presentation was made by R. Harvey Chappell, Jr. '48, president-elect of the Virginia State Bar, of a facsimile volume reproducing one of the early colonial codes of Virginia. The presentation was made to Dean William B. Spong for deposit in the special collections of the law library.

The luncheon program was also the occasion for formal announcement of preliminary plans for the Law School bicentennial, including the early implementation of two projects which are expected to come to full fruition in 1979, if funds are available.

One of these is the commissioning of a series of scholarly volumes placing the establishment of the law program in the context of related developments in law and legal institutions in colonial and post-Revolutionary Virginia. The second is a systematic plan to search out and acquire copies of the several hundred books which made up the original law library of Thomas Jefferson, to be assembled into a special collection in the library of the new Law School building which is expected to be occupied in 1979.

Alumnus Gives College Chair

A chair of special distinction now awaits visitors to President Graves' office.

Joseph Steele, '76, has presented to the College the blue wing chair used by President Gerald R. Ford during his visit to the campus for the October 22 Presidential Debate. The chair was part of the furnishings for President Ford's dressing room in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Steele, who manages the Carolina Furniture store in Williamsburg, was responsible for decorating the dressing rooms for the two candidates in PBK and the sitting room in Andrews Hall ing committee for the Law School, explained that the publications series will aim at documenting the processes by which the English common law became an "Americanized" common law and thus logically required the establishment of a law school to teach this new form of law. The studies will also illustrate the remarkably close relationship between these developments and various eighteenth century alumni of the College such as three generations of the Randolph family, the efforts of Jefferson and Wythe in the revising of the English laws during the Revolutionary period, the annotated edition of the Law Notes of John Marshall as one of the first students in the new program, and the history of the law curriculum itself from 1779 to 1861, particularly under the leadership of St. George Tucker and his successors.

The reconstruction of the Jefferson law library is a project for which private funds will be sought, after which selected specialists in antiquarian books will be commissioned to locate the titles and acquire them.

where Mrs. Ford watched the televised debate.

In accepting the gift, President Graves termed it "a generous reminder of an historic occasion."

Alumni Publish Several Books

Patricia Givens Johnson '63 has published her second book, WILLIAM PRESTON AND THE ALLEGHENY PATRIOTS, concerning contributions of frontiersmen of Southwest Virginia and the New River Valley to the American Revolutionary cause. This is a sequel to JAMES PATTON AND THE APPALACHIAN COLONISTS, '73, McClure Press, also by Mrs. Johnson.

Dr. William H. Redd '64 announces that Random House has published his first book, TAKE CHARGE: A PERSONAL GUIDE TO BEHAVIOR MODIFICATIONS, presenting recent developments in behavioral psychotherapy and treatment, a good background for discussion of the controversy over psychological intervention, written for the educated layperson.

Dr. Richard L. Steele, MA '71 has had his book, THOMAS WOLFE: A STUDY IN PSYCHOANALYTIC LITERARY CRITICISM, published by Dorrance & Co. The book investigates the psychological development, personality, dynamics and psychic structure of Wolfe, based primarily on his predominantly autobiographical novel Look Homeward, Angel.

Stephen Ashby MacDonald of Norfolk, Va., writes, "The dear old College is making progress. I am happy that the fund raising effort is being successful. The College has always been short of the funds needed. The stage is set, alumni. Won't you help the old school that helped you?"

18

Rawls Byrd of Williamsburg, Va., writes that on his retirement from superintendency of Williamsburg - James City County Public Schools in 1964 a new elementary school was named for him. Among his retirement activities have been, writing a book on "History of Williamsburg Public Schools", and founding The Middle Plantation Club, made up chiefly of retired and semi-retired business and professional men. The latter has for its purpose that of "promoting and providing for members socialability, good fellowship and recreational activities". He lives near the campus and is interested in many College activities and attends a number of them - especially football and basketball games.

Caroline Baytop Sinclair has been devoting much of her considerable talents to bicentennial affairs and researching the local history of Gloucester County. She has prepared a biography of the Baytop brothers, John Fax, Jr. and Thomas Whiting, which will be published next spring with the roster of Revolutionary soldiers of that area. Congratulations, Caroline, on a fine contribution to the bicentennial program.

A note from Benjamin Rosser (Pete) James 3714 Lerch St., Chattanooga, Tenn. 37411, says he is 82 yrs. young, still in love with William and Mary and enjoys every item he reads about it. Congratulations, Pete, on reaching that eighty year plateau a little ahead of most of us. What did you think of the political debate at W&M? Drop me a note and tell me more about yourself.

Attended the W&M-Navy game at Annapolis in October. What a game! What a win! What a day! Billy Person, Rolfe Kennard, and his Bedelia, were seated nearby and, like most of us, were carrying the ball on every play. Would like to have joined the group for celebration at a local hotel but had an anniversary celebration of my own in Baltimore. A great day.

In November the children of Bedelia and Rolfe Kennard gave a memorable party at one of the country clubs near Washington to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. Since Rolfe and Del are very popular, I suspect the club was bulging. Warmest congratulations to a delightful pair. Drop them a note to 6021 Inwood Street, Cheverly Md. 20785. They'll be glad to hear from you on their return from an extended trip abroad.

Maude Purdy (Mrs. Robert F. Lynch) of Lawrenceville and her sister Julia are busy Xmas shopping for the latter's grandchildren who live at Myrtle Beach where the girls will spend the holidays.

In keeping with the bicentennial year, Carter Harrison, dressed in Colonial costume, addressed a meeting of some one hundred fifty members of the Carter and Harrison clans on the history of those illustrious families during the revolutionary period. Would like to have a copy Carter.

A delightful Xmas letter from Hawk and Etta Belle Northington from their home in Leisure World near Washington, says they are both up and doing but, like most of us, are not doing quite as much quite as fast. They spent last winter in Florida but found three months a bit too long to be away from the old homestead. Hawk has become a dedicated gardener and got itchy to get back and put his hand to the hoe. Etta Belle passed up a chance to join a group to Ireland and a trip down the Shannon River on a converted barge but I'll be looking for a card from Dublin this year.

Am sorry to report that Col. David Powers is in Walter Reed Hospital undergoing radium treatments. I am sure I speak for all of us in sending our greetings and sincere wishes for a complete recovery to a fine classmate.

The Christmas Season has gone and the New Year will soon arrive. We sincerely hope you spent a happy Christmas with your loved ones and that the year 1977 will bring you success and happiness.

Eustace Moncure writes from Blackstone that he and Jewel celebrated their forty-seventh anniversary in June by taking a most enjoyable Rhine River trip.

Sue Ferratt George Welch, who lives in Norfolk, echoes the sentiments of many who said our Class Reunion was a wonderful experience.

Leah James has just enjoyed a second reunion, that of the four members of her family who all graduated from William and Mary.

We enjoyed a delightful trip to the Canary Islands the first week in November. There were over two hundred in our party of Acca Temple Shriners and their wives. The country was very interesting and each island was different, from black sand beaches to rugged mountain peaks, where the roads wound around the mountain cliffs. They were certainly built for one way traffic, but were used for traffic going in both directions. The bus driver leaned on his horn most of the time.

One island grows bananas, a small sweet variety, while another grows grapes in pure volcanic ash. Several volcanoes are still mildly active. We found the return trip by way of the Azores very interesting.

Stirling King called and said he and Katherine had taken the same trip with the Rotarians in October.

We are now looking forward to a trip to London in May.

Acca Temple and the University of Richmond sponsored the first Acca Temple Shrine Bowl game in November and there was quite a bit of interest shown. We were delighted that the first game could be between the University and William and Mary. We hope after next year, when the University already has a date with Maryland, the annual game can be between William and Mary and Richmond. Our class members will remember when it was the Thanksgiving classic in Richmond and most of our student body traveled to Richmond by train for the big day.

Our best wishes for a Happy New Year to the Alumni Staff, the members of the Class of 1926, and other friends.

I am so pleased that I have much news for you. You will remember that I spoke of Warren H. Russell of Arlington visiting this office. Regretfully I was away at the time and did not get to see Warren. He told my secretary that he once lived in this building. I have heard from him and Warren says he moved away from here around 1919. Warren has had some difficulties with his health but is recovering nicely. He wrote that Buck Whitley, also from Arlington, is in Brazil where his wife is connected with the project of establishing and developing a system of nursing schools throughout that country. Buck's address is Brazil is: CAIXA POSTAL 832, 88000 Florianopolis SC, Brazil.

Was glad to receive a Christmas card from George Morecock of Norfolk.

Received a note from Elizabeth the widow of Charles Hayden Russell. Also a nice letter from Eulalie and Meb Davis. They spent the month of September in the "Far East" visiting Singapore, Bali, Java, Hong Kong and Japan and they refueled in South Korea where they were treated royally. They also refueled in Alaska. They leave in latter January for Netherland, West Indies.

Received a note from Elna Spittler Burner of Luray who says she is looking forward to the 50th reunion in 1978. Also received a note from Eustace Moncure and Jewel Mason Moncure of Blackstone. Last June Eustace and Jewel had a delightful time with the William and Mary-University of Kentucky group on the Rhine River Cruise and Lucerne-Amsterdam. They hope to make another William and Mary trip. Eustace and Jewel attended several of the football games this fall.

Received a Christmas card from B. Seibert Simpkins of Christiansburg, a note from Whitfield Roberts in Richmond. Heard from Marvin L. Crowder of Clarksville. Marvin, with his family, enjoyed a trip to Hilton Head Island where they played the famous Harbour Town Golf Course. Marvin is looking forward to the next reunion.

Received a letter from Malvern H. Omohundro of Richmond. Malvern and his wife were on a 7 week tour of northern Europe during the fall and missed homecoming. Malvern says he will be glad to help in any way he can with the 50th reunion.

Received a Christmas card from May B. Reilly of Roanoke, also a card from Irene Priddy Brown of Newport News. Irene has made several trips abroad the past few years.

Received a card from Elizabeth Glenn Hartman of Arlington. Elizabeth says she is looking forward to seeing her friends at the reunion in 1978. Received a nice note from Frances Gordon of Springfield. Was delighted to hear from two fellow members of the William and Mary debate team of 1927 and 1928, Stanley A. Fein and his wife Mollie of Brooklyn, N.Y. and Dr. M. Weldon Thompson of Lynchburg, Va. Weldon traveled in England last summer as well as Scotland and Spain and plans to go back to England in March. Weldon says that he will be happy to serve on a committee for the 50th reunion. Speaking again of the debate team of which Stanley, Weldon and I were members, I hope you recall that we debated, among others, the University of Sydney Australia and the University of Oxford of England and defeated both.

Received a letter from Lucile Michie (Mrs. J. Tevis Michie) of Charlottesville. Lucile Eastham Michie, says that Tevis had emergency surgery in September and still returns to the hospital monthly. Lucile has a part-time job as school psychologist for Fluvanna County. Governor Godwin appointed her to the Virginia Board of Psychology in July. In addition to this, Lucile is working for the William and Mary Fund. She really leads a busy schedule.

Received a card from Bill Thompson and Mary of Virginia Beach who were kind enough to say that they missed me at homecoming.

Received a nice note from Thelma Stinnett who with her husband, Dick, lives less than 50 miles from here at Brandy Station. Thelma says that Dot and Ed Lambert from Norfolk spent several days with her; that she had lunch with Virginia Floyd Beirne who lives near Orange. This lunch was just before Virginia left to spend the summer in London. She sees Dr. Delmar Weaver who lives in Culpeper. Dr. Weaver took his pre-med at William and Mary from '26-'28. Thelma and her husband, Dick Griffith, still go to Florida for two weeks in February and March and stay at Ft. Lauderdale.

I was quite pleased to get a card from the Alumni Gazette Staff in Williamsburg. I always have a feeling of nostalgia when I see anything from William and Mary.

My letter to Tom and Min Burke was returned by the mailman. Can someone give me their correct address? I would like very much to receive suggestions for members of the committee for our 50th reunion, also suggestions for a chairman. As your last President (summer of 1928), I will try to coordinate with the Alumni Office our plans for the 50th reunion.

A card and letter from Ed and Kitty Hill of Plymouth, N.C. They spent some time last year in Florida at St. Simons Island, Lauderdale and other places and plan on returning there early in the year. At the Alumni meeting there were three generations of their family represented; Ed and Kitty, their daughter from Orange, a member of the Class of 1953 and one of the daughter's sons who will get his degree this spring. Last fall Ed and Kitty played in the Alumni Golf Tournament in Williamsburg with Dr. Lee Todd and Carl Andrews of the Class of '27. Ed and Kitty both wish to help with the reunion. They suggest that we all make reservations to stay at the same place in Williamsburg, preferably The Lodge. Perhaps Trudi Neese will advise us what to do about this.

A letter from Dorothy Bundy Turner of Waynesboro, Va. Dorothy has recently made a trip to New Orleans. Her daughter, Dorothy Bundy Turner Potter and son-in-law Dr. Clifton W. Potter, Jr. of Lynchburg College have just published a book on the history of Lynchburg. Dorothy is looking forward to the reunion in 1978.

A letter from Rose Mountcastle Flannery of Mesa, Ariz. Rose and her husband, Vern, spend their winters in Mesa as Tour Directors for the Val Vista Senior Citizens Club and as such are very busy arranging, prompting and conducting tours. Among other places to Anaheim, San Diego and Tijuana, Mexico. In January, they will take 35 on a 16 day Trans-Panama-Caribbean Fly Cruise and in March they will take a large group on a 15 day 4 island tour of Hawaii. They also take tours to such places as Nogales, Mexico, Las Vegas, Nevada and Death Valley Calif. Rose says she is anxiously looking forward to our 50th reunion.

I wish to thank each and everyone of you who wrote and sent me Christmas cards. That really made my Christmas. I wish also to thank Trudi Neese and our other friends of the Alumni Office, also Gordon Vliet and Jim Kelly who have always assisted us in planning for reunions - and a Happy New Year to you all.

The absence of news in the past few issues of the Gazette is not because I had forgotten you or deserted you, it was because you had not sent in any news. . . The last letter asked for help in planning a 50th reunion in 1980 and the silence has been terrific.

At homecoming in October I regret that Elsie Beebe Swezey reports she saw more Delaware people she knew than her own former classmates. She promises to come back more often and re-acquaint herself with more of us before the big day in 1980.

Ned Bradford was there without Dot but reports she is improving and hopes to be with him next year. She has had a series of eye operations, and we hope the last one will be the last.

Lucille Burke Smith and her husband Armstrong '29 have both had serious illnesses in 1976 but both looked well and said they felt good. Lucille had a heart attack (no doubt because she loves Smitty so much) and he had major surgery for correction of an aneurism. What hearts!

It was a nice surprise to see Carl Gillespie and his wife, Betty Ambler '32. Their son is taking over more and more of Carl's law practice so they will have more and more traveling time.

Edward Trice and his wife Bernice were there. They and Joe and I are the loyal ones. It is good to see them, the Trices, always.

John C. Swanson, President of Swanson Motors, Inc. Danville, Va., has been elected to serve as the representative of the Cadillac Dealers of District two on the Washington Zone Dealer Council for a two year term. John is currently the Virginia Director of the National Automobile Dealers Association, Chairman of the Washington Zone Oldsmobile Dealers Council, and is a member of the Oldsmobile Atlantic Regional Council. No wonder we don't see him at Homecoming!

Elizabeth W. Lanier, Betty, has had a busy two years of retirement. When she was not traveling she was working as President of the Episcopal Church Women at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Petersburg, Va. She has also assumed an office in the Teacher's Honorary Society, Delta Kappa Gamma, as a State Representative.

Billey Bayliss Kenney must be ahead of all of us in the grandma dept. She is expecting her 4th Great Grandchild in Feb. Can anyone else boast of as much? She will be with her daughter in Atlanta for Christmas and hopes to buy an apartment there in a Senior Citizen's Complex.

Evelyn and Earl Garrett are suffering from the same thing most of us are. Our grandchildren are getting away from us as well as the children. Their daughter, Clara, is an elementary school librarian and has used the illustrations from the children in her classes for a book "The Wreck of the Old '97". I hope we can find a copy of it.

In October Dr. Albert Cornell was elected Fellow in the American College of Gastro-Enterology at the annual meeting in Montreal Canada. Perhaps you saw him when he was interviewed on CBS TV 6 o'clock News, Oct. 22nd N.Y. city on the subject of "Swine Flu Vaccine".

DeEtte Jones Mitchell is preparing some apartments for sale in the Orlando, Fla., area. If some of you are looking for Florida property this may be your opportunity. She is fortunate in having her mother live with her, but it has its responsibilities too. She has just had a bad fall.

Alice Harwood Marshall and her husband Jack seem to enjoy the homefires, literally these cold days. Jack had some surgery, too, but is now feeling fine again.

I'm not sure if we ever noted the retirement of Bill Savage after 46 years in education in the Suffolk-Nansemond area. He retired as Associate Superintendent of the merged districts after serving since 1949, as Superintendent of the Suffolk system. In 1962, he was named "First Citizen of Suffolk-Nansemond County" by the Cosmopolitan International Club. Congratulations, Bill, for your life of service to your community and to its young people.

If you have not read the article in December, 1976 Gazette, Pages 7-8, please do so. It has news about our Yelverton O. Kent and we're proud of him.

A bulletin from New York University Graduate School of Business Administration announces the establishment of the "Charles Simon Award" for meritorious service to the school and the university. In presenting the award Dean William R. Dill noted that "few individuals have served the school and university with more zeal and in more ways". Charles Simon is a partner of Salmon Brothers, the investment banking house. He lives in Long Beach, N.Y. and is a charter member and past President of the Money Marketeters of New York University. He helped to make it a unique professional organization. He has provided key personal backing for the establishment of a major financial research center at the school. He has funded scholarships for deserving students.

John W. Tuthill, former ambassador to the European Economic Community and to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, has been named President of the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies. Set up in 1947 by the Student Council of Harvard University, the Seminar is held at the 250-year-old rococo Chateau Schloss Leopoldskron, outside of Salzburg, Austria. John plans to retire at the end of this year as Director General of the Atlantic Institute for International Affairs in Paris, a post he has held since 1969. He will be taking an apartment in Washington and will be spending more time in this country.

Dwight C. Brown of Arlington, Va. has finished his term as Secretary-Treasurer of the Order of the White Jacket, and is now 3rd Vice President for 1977.

A note from (Red) Nash Lindsey says he is enjoying the "good life" of retirement and is busy following the Arkansas Razorback football team.

Henry Weaver was recently appointed to the National Board of Medical College of Pennsylvania. He is one of the first four male members of the Board of the former Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania.

A happy new year to all of the class.

34 Bernard B. Brugh 6130 Osborne Road Landover, Md. 20785

As we hear, scatteringly, from our classmates, we rejoice that so many of them are finding joy and gratification in travel; for example, Lillian Carmine Sterling tells us that she and her husband, Lester, traveled the U.S.A. from coast to coast this past summer, visiting in the New England States, then to Albuquerque, N.M. to visit their daughter, Carolyn Sterling Rilee, '67, thence to Reno, Nev., Lake Tahoe, Sacramento and San Francisco. Not to be outdone, Helen Combs Johnson, accompanied by her son, Michael T. Johnson who received his doctorate from W. and M. in June, 1976, took a vacation in Ireland, Italy and the Greek Islands. Helen Lewis Janson made a fascinating trip to New Mexico, and later to Tangier Island. Frances Spindle Harris enjoyed a trip to Bermuda and likens it to Hawaii which she had visited earlier. Ruth Proudman Bierman, her husband, Dave, daughter Barbara and granddaughter Lisa recently made a rewarding trip to Egypt and the Holy Land.

Robert C. Vaden, Jr. lets us know that he keeps very busy, indeed, as a member of the Pittsylvania County Independence Bicentennial Commission, Board of Directors of United Virginia Bank/Peoples of Gretna, and the Huguenot Society of the Founders of Manakin. Although he didn't mention it, our fond hope is that Bob still finds time for playing the piano, something he does exceedingly well.

Elizabeth Young Clark represented W. and M. at the inauguration of Dr. Gilley as president of Bluefield State College this past October. We can think of no one better suited to represent W. and M. at such a function.

Mary Talman Lamb writes that her husband, Pat, suffered a stroke in December, 1974 and that while he is paralyzed on his right side, he is doing great. Our love and best wishes go to both of them.

Ralph Levine reminds us that he is still living in Brookline, Mass. It was our extreme pleasure to be seated, during the Alumni Dinner Dance at Homecoming this past October, at the same table with Ralph and his very attractive wife. He told us then that he was still actively engaged in his business and that he was enjoying it.

We are especially pleased that our classmate, Andy Christensen has been elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Order of the White Jacket effective January 1, 1977. He succeeds Dwight C. Brown, '32, who has done an outstanding job in this position. We know of no one better qualified for or more interested in this demanding office than Andy.

Those of us who are left of the Class of '34, and we are many, need more than ever the pleasure and the inspiration we should and can get from each other and from our College. It is our fond hope our column in the Gazette will contribute, perhaps in a small way, to this pleasure and inspiration. Won't you help us by letting us hear from you, from time to time? In this vein, we wish to share with you a bit of inspiration from Frances Spindle Harris, and we quote:

"Life is beautiful; birthdays are blessings that open up the way to the everlasting beauty of God's eternal day".

38 Mrs. Margaret Heatwole Lockwood Box 526 Williamsburg, Va. 23185

Happy New year!! Each year gets us closer to our 40th Reunion. (I can't wait!)

By way of the mighty William and Mary Fund I have some personal notes to report. Hester E. Whaite, of Greenville, Penna., reports that she hopes to move back to Virginia in 1977. Good for you. Hess. Welcome her back with a letter, each of you who slaved with her in Library Science on the second floor of the old Library.

Miss Gill Piquette of Washington, D.C., is the editor of the Central High School (Washington, D.C.) Alumni Record and from what we can see she is doing a crackerjack job. She gets letters! Hint, hint. She is Equal Employment Opportunity and Federal Women's Program Coordinator, and has received awards for Foreign Agricultural Service (India) and Minority Program Development and Group Counseling.

I got a nice letter from Annabel Hopkins Mitchell, and she and her husband and going to Florida soon.

Christmas is always beautiful here in Williamsburg. I went to see the beautiful big balsam tree that is decorated so cleverly in the Great Hall of the Wren Building. They really should make a Christmas card for us from the color photo that appeared on the first page of the Richmond Times Dispatch last week.

My grateful appreciation to those of you who have sent in money to help purchase one of the pieces from the Presidential debates. My next column will include a full report on giving and the piece of furniture.

40 Mrs. Franklin D. Henderson (Bobby Clawson) Box 186, Irvington, Va. 22480

My apologies for having no letter in the November issue but the deadline was right after our return from Europe and I had no news. Happily between Homecoming and our Christmas cards I do have some bits to pass along.

Homecoming, though it might seem long ago, is still well worth mentioning. Thanks to Jack and Ann Garrett's efforts and planning we had a good crowd back, enjoyed entertaining in our hospitality room which they manned so faithfully - Miss Wynn-Roberts and Dr. Fowler were among our guests. Classes '39 and '40 had a joint class dinner Friday night at the Cascades and Saturday night we attended '41's dinner, complete with Gene Ellis's old movies. Other class members back for the weekend were: Charlie Roberts, Len and Alice Owen, Dinny Forwood and Ed Wetter, Dan Bradley, Otto and Anne Boyer, Bill and "Jimmy" Elliott St. John, Tweed and Kitty Edge Bryant, Elden Langbauer, Louise Epingner and Elden Nuernberger, T. and Leah Waller, Betty and Walt Zable, Carolyn Moses and Vince Lusardi, Gervais Wallace and Nils Brekke, Maureen and Charley Quittmeyer, Ruth Ann Holzmueller and Bill Mahood.

Alfred Alley's annual Christmas letter says that he "still labors as the non-stipendary Vicar of St. Clement's Church in nearby Rancho Cordova. His hobby is preparing gourmet meals. His son, Billy, graduated from Sacramento State University with a Music Degree in May and spent June in Germany as soloist with the Sacramento German Choral Society. He's now studying privately with a former Italian opera tenor who thinks Billy has great potential as an opera singer.

Carolyn Lusardi reports that she and Vince have had a good year. Carolyn was very busy with Virginia's Bicentennial celebration as she had served on the State Committee and they had been planning for the past five years. Vince retired from business and then was elected Mayor of Brookneal. It was good for him to continue with some headaches.

Ginny Claudon Allen has spent a tedious year with a "creamed back", in a brace, in traction and then at Mayo's. She's now exercising very gently, and we do hope she'll soon be fit again. Scrib is now Vice President in charge of Fuel Oil for the National Oil Jobbers Council (a trade association of owners of their own companies distributing American fuel oil and gasoline). Daughter Pam is now working in Minneapolis and taking courses for Civil Engineering or architecture at night. Son Jeff is Assistant Manager of the Eastern Mountain Store in Burlington, Vermont. After Christmas Ginny will help her mother and father celebrate his 94th birthday in Palm Beach, then join Scrib in Sarasota for a weekend in Clearwater.

Jane Brandt Wild and Ben have been very busy furnishing their mountain home in Estes Park the last three winters. They still play at Cape Code in the summer.

Rosa Ellis Long's son, Bob, graduated cum laude from Potsdam in May. She attended the Episcopal National Convention which she thought magnificent.

Jean Clarahan Bratton writes that she's still working at Northwestern and living in Wilmette. Her younger daughter, Chris, left in September to spend a year in France.

One of the very nicest things to result from attending Homecoming was the marriage of Elizabeth Jane Cook Bassett (Cookie) and Arthur Caldwell Cason in September. "Cookie" went back for her first reunion last year and that's where she and "Casey" (we knew him as Caldwell) got together again. They were married in Burton Parish Church which they had attended while they were in college. Casey is retired from the Navy but working for a consulting firm in the Washington area. His daughters, Nancy and Linda with their families live in Manassas, Va.; Jim who is with the State Department is in Venezuela with his family; Susan is in Hawaii and Bill is in California. Cookie became an instant grandmother when she said "I do". Her two sons and their respective wives are living in Florida, Bradenton and Ft. Lauderdale. We all wish you both the very best of everything!

Phyllis Farley Peeso sent news for the Gazette. She and her husband have lived in Stamford, Conn., Pensacola, Florida, back to Stamford and now, Norwalk, Conn., for the past four years, since her marriage in 1948. Jim is a research engineer. Their one offspring, Bruce, graduated from Ohio University in Athens, Ohio with BFA degree in '73. He is a professional artist and has received awards at shows in the New England area. He lives in Waterbury, Conn.

We are glad to know that Robert Lansburgh is class agent for our class and chairman of the William and Mary Fund for the State of Texas.

We are proud indeed that Walt and Betty Carter Zable are serving as Co-chairmen of the William and Mary Fund in 1976-77. Betty and Walt live in San Diego where she has been an active civic worker for such groups as the Children's Hospital and the opera-symphony.

The day before Christmas Frank and some of our family and I went to Williamsburg to see the decorations and especially the Bicentennial Christmas tree in the Great Hall of the Wren Building. It was fun picking out the different ornaments of Americana from across the country. Now while I am writing this letter our woods are beautiful with a couple of inches of snow that began to fall when I started. A little late for a white Christmas but still very seasonable.

I'm delighted to have so much news to send at this time, but please don't rest on your laurels. I shall be needing more and more. A Happy New Year to you all.

42 Paul H. Gannt 302 East Joppa Road Towson, Md. 21204

Why do I receive so many letters which tell me the most interesting stories and end up "but do not publish it". So far I have adhered to the "Code" and honored these requests but . . .

You can see from the title of this column that I have moved to Towson which is a most interesting city of about 100,000, ten miles north of Baltimore. It has Towson State University (why is William and Mary not a university?) and Goucher College (which is a famous women's college, or in today's parlance discriminates against men).

Had a most interesting letter from Joyce Mathes Malcolm. Her husband is teaching four courses at two junior colleges. Joyce is City Commissioner for Cultural Arts for Escondido, Calif. Joyce is a busy gal. She and her husband both work for the Escondido Historical Society and are about to open a museum. In addition Joyce is a volunteer for the American Cancer Society with some hospital visitations.

44 Mrs. David E. Edmunds (Dorothy Agurk) 709 Harbor Island Clearwater, Fla. 33515

By the time you read this it will be almost time for valentine greetings but I happen to be writing this New Year's weekend, and so I send you best wishes for 1977.

Lu Fitzgerald Anderson, Maysville, Ky., sent news via Christmas card that son Randy, a CPA with Browning Division of Emerson, is now living in Maysville also, with his R.N. wife, and Lu's other son, George, is a D.M.D. in Richmond, Ky., with his wife serving as head pharmacist in the hospital there. Lu spent some time in Cleveland, Ohio last fall, renewing her acquaintance with the town where she was stationed as a WAVE during the war. While there she went through Cleveland Clinic, and managed to spend a day and night visiting with Marion Commery Boyce. "Com" is quite a golfer, with many trophies to prove it, and reportedly drives to Florida every winter for golf-she'd better call me this year! Lu also reported on the excellent progress of an Art Club she organized five years ago. They just had a First Annual Sale. Lu's work consists of needlepoint, crocheted and knitted articles--quite a change from teaching math.

Gloria Gruber Blakelock '45, and husband Ralph have retired to Sanibel, Fl. from Dayton, Ohio, and after March 1st will be at 907 King's Crown Road, 33957.

Priscilla Schumacher Beringer reports that husband, Marshall, keeps busy with research and teaching, and she has seventeen piano students again this year--lucky students to have a teacher with Priscilla's talent and flair! The Berlingers' son, and family, are now living in nearby Rye, and Marshall's father, still well and active at 93, is an inspiration to them all, so their "cup runneth over".

Jeanne Schoenwolf Preston '45 and Page plan to sail their boat to Florida in the Fall of '77. We'll have the welcome mat out!

Fran Pendleton Elliott writes that her husband and children are the doers at this point--her husband was recently honored by being made a member of the National Academy of Engineering, her son graduated with an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School in June, and her daughter is in Grad School at M.I.T.

We seem to have numerous authors in our class. Reported on Jay Sadler in the September letter. . . In addition to a busy residential architecture practice, he has one wife, 3 children, 2 dogs--and 3 books in print. Had a nice long letter in November from William O. Morris, Professor of Law since 1957, West Virginia University Law Center, Morgantown, W.V. He wrote saying that he has had five books published in the last five years: Dental Litigation, The Law of Domestic Relations, Statutes and Cases on Domestic Relations, The Veterinarian in Litigation, and The Dentist in Litigation. He also has to his credit almost four dozen other articles and publications, and in the past year traveled to about twenty universities from Australia to Austria, delivering presentations on the subject of Professional Malpractice, covering about 50,000 miles. He served as legal advisor and consultant to the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency from 1962-67, as Visiting Professor of Law at many universities in the U.S. (including the University of Florida and Stetson in St. Petersburg), as well as in Germany, Norway and London, England--and much, much more! Whew! Glad to hear from you, Bill.

Homecoming has been pretty well covered by reporters from other classes, but I want to add a few notes of my own. We enjoyed visiting with many members of our class including Lois Spratley Donald and Doug who live in Charlotte, N.C., where Doug works for Exxon. They do a lot of traveling for the company but find time to vacation at Sanibel and Captiva. Harvey Pope and Ann were telling of plans for a trip to Palm Springs, and of Harvey's recent golfing feat, a hole-in-one! Talked with Mary Alsop Hubbard and husband Jim who live in Baltimore, and Mary and J.W. Burton who live in Richmond. We had a wonderful time with the Rolf Williams, Ruth Weimer Tillar '45 and Cato from Emporia, Joan Kable Griffith '45 and Max, Wayne and Marge Retzke Gibbs, Jane Craig Beaver and Bob, and Jean Boyd McIntyre Lacy and Ben. We wound up the weekend with brunch at Christiana Campbell's, celebrating Debbie McIntyre's ('77 or '78) birthday, with most of the aforementioned group, then David and I flew to Front Royal for a short visit with the Lacys, and had a very interesting tour of Ben's packing house and orchards. Homecoming this year will be October 28 and 29th--if you haven't been to one, make plans. You're missing a great time.

Recently, my most faithful correspondent, Sunny Trumbo Williams, reported that when she went to a Navy League Luncheon on the new nuclear ship, Virginia, the young officer across the table from her said his mother was Gloria Hall. Small World. She also reported on Willie Anne Baschen Wright's ('45) exhibition of paintings in Virginia Beach, quoting the paper as saying that Willie Anne is one of the top 4 or 5 women artists in the state. Thanks, Sonny.

I, too, have been busy. Since the last newsletter, I have become more involved than ever, and besides being president of our country Historical Society, have been appointed to the County Historical Commission, the County Arts Council, elected to the Girl's Club Board, and am serving as co-chairman of the forthcoming Clearwater Fun 'n Sun Art and Folk Festival to be held March 19 and 20th. Time will tell if I can do justice to all of it. Wish me luck.

In the meantime, WRITE.

Do you still want to hear about the Reunion? What Reunion?, you're probably thinking. When? Where? It has been awhile! But, here's the report!

For two days in October our 1946 yearbook came alive. The people, the faces and voices were all in the right place--Williamsburg. The weather was cloudy. Then, the drizzle began. By nightfall, there was a grand, thumping, pouring rain, which was fine and fitting, too, somehow. Traditional.

My husband and youngest daughter, Hilary were guests, as were George and Doris Brandt Bauer of Allison and "Nicky" Nycum Moore in their lovely cottage on the James. I would have been happy to have spent the whole weekend there, but on the 30th Reunion--the main event! We rode the ferry to Williamsburg, signed in at the '46 booth, had coffee and doughnuts, picked up our copy of the Colonial Re-Echo, and began alternately mingling and being tourists. The best attended affair by the '46'ers as a group was the cocktail party. There were about 60 present. Keith Gamble Duncan and Helen Strickler McConnell had transformed a big, bare conference room into a setting just for us. There were huge blow-ups of pictures from our '45 and '46 yearbooks on the walls; tables were spread with copies of the Flat Hat, "duc" hats, Royalists, gold and green pom-poms and of course, the ubiquitous white straw hats as souvenirs. Everyone was very merry and great whoops of laughter would go up as old friends were recognized! After the Patrick Henry get-together, we slogged our way to the Lodge for the banquet. We enjoyed being seated by Mary Baker Flynn and husband from Chicago. After dinner we watched, with interest, the presentation of awards, one of which went to Pam Pauly Chinnis.

Our weekend in Williamsburg ended too soon--we had to leave before the now-famous cancelled parade. But, it was a fine Reunion. Now, if you will get out the Gazette for November, and turn to the page with the '46 picture, I will identify the group!! Starting with the first row, left to right: Doris Brandt Bauer, Mary Baker Flynn, Marcia Leverage Balzereit, Keith Anne Gamble Duncan, Daphne Andrews Crum. Second row: Sue Claypool Vukich, Jacqueline Adams McNolly, Martha Humbert Riley, Bette Cutshall Allman, Barbara Nycum Moore. Third row: Bill Hubbard, Jane Fessler Brick, Jan Freer Scantlebury, Dale Clark. Top row: Tom Duncan and Walter Moncure Acree. You knew who they were all along, didn't you? Others whom I talked with or saw across the crowded room were Fred Frechette and Caroline, Mac and Pris Fuller Downs, whose son Carthy was married in December; Dottie Hamner, Betty Lawson Sallada, and of course, many, many others. We all wished everybody could have made it!

Here's some Christmas card news and notes for you.

"Henzie" Kapler Margraf, teaching 6th grade in Tuckerton, N.J., says it takes more time and energy each year to "whip them into shape"! "Henzie's" family is scattered. Her son, Joe, wife and baby son are in Texas, where he has a teaching assistantship at Texas A. and M., and is enrolled in a doctoral program. Her daughter Nancy and husband are both teachers in Iowa; and son Tom is a Junior at Indiana State, majoring in Communications.

Richard L. Baker of Moorestown, N.J., couldn't make it to Homecoming, but sent his best wishes to the Class, via a note, delivered by his daughter Ginny and her husband, both of whom are graduates of the College.

Shirley Dixon Whitbeck of Norfolk attended the first Alumni College, and recommends it to everybody! Shirley's oldest son, Bill, graduated from William and Mary in Aug. of '76.

Betty Relph Samuel of Ft. Worth Texas met Joyce Remsburg Shank for lunch in Austin one day last summer. Joyce's husband, a Colonel in the Air Force, has been transferred to that city. "B.J.'s" husband was there to work on the Governor's Tax Study. "B.J." has joined the happy Grandmother Group!

"Nicky" Nycum Moore is eagerly awaiting for membership in that same club, by way of daughter Kathy! Kathy and her husband Michael are now living and farming near "Nicky" and Allison. Their oldest daughter Pam and hubby are not too far away; Nan is in Atlanta; and son "Nick" is a basketball playing high school senior.

Bobbie Volkert Harrison's oldest daughter Connie is a senior at Texas Christian U., son Gordan is a Senior in high school, busy deciding which college to go to; and youngest daughter, Tricia is a high school Junior.

If those of you at Homecoming whom I didn't get to see would drop me a line it would really help to complete the picture of our 30th Reunion. That's all for now. So long until Spring!

Just after I sent the last column in I had a nice letter from George and Kate Hughes. George is now coaching the Rough Riders football team in Ottawa, Canada. Their football season is from June until November so they still get to Norfolk in time to see some football games in the states. George and Kate have three children, George, Kathy and Susan.

Howard Wiseman was in Williamsburg in October - same time as the Ford & Carter debate. Must have been fun.

Nancy Kurtz Falck's daughter Laurie graduated from William & Mary last spring. They have to other daughters in college and Andrew is in the 5th grade so I guess Nancy has a few more years of P.T.A. Jeanne Bambforth was down for Laurie's graduation. Nancy & George and Nicky and Jay Dewing sail together alot. Jay was in Switzerland for 6 months with S.A.L.T. and Nicky and family spent 6 weeks in the spring, then Nicky went back for 6 weeks in the fall. Sounds like a pretty good way to spend a year.

Obi Root and Mim have been very busy this past year. Obi is now manager of distribution for the Electronics Group at Raychem. Obi and Mim have two grandchildren now.

Skippy Beecher Scrymgeour and Bruce keep busy with their antique business.

Jo and Dick Scofield have a new sailboat (looks like our whole class is becoming sailing enthusiasts). Dick is now Marketing Director for the Forging Industry Association.

Liz and Bob Shuman were in Richmond in October. Their son, Bob graduated magna cum lauda from leHigh. Their son Billy is at Adolphus College in Minnesota.

Linc and Anne Waring Brown were at Homecoming. They stated it was great.

Ruth Barnes Chalmers and Dave were going to spend half of the holidays in Acapulco. That sound pretty good about now.

Had a very nice note from Shirley Lyons Hardwick. Shirley was in New Orleans for a visit with her parents. Her daughter, Scarlet and husband were also able to come over for a visit. Charles, another sailor sailed around Majorca and the Bellearic Islands. My how my Bob would love to do that.

Fitzhugh B. Odell, Jr. has been promoted to manager of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation control branch in Columbia, S.C., previously he was branch manager in Akron, Ohio.

Also had cards but not so long notes from Janet Pierce Waller and John, Pat Jones Warner, Millie Johnson Woodling and Pete, and Woody Wayland -- what happened to my note Woody...

I hope I haven't left anything or anybody out but since there is an early deadline and the Post man is always late if you are left out never fear you will reappear in the spring. Now for heaven's sake send me something for the next "edition".

Our family is much the same. Suzy is struggling at U. of Calif. Davis but loving every minute of it. Patty is doing very well here at Cal State Bakersfield. Bob and I are down to two dogs and a cat.

The spring is always dull for news so send some. . . .

Thanks for all the news on your Christmas cards. Many mentioned plans to attend our 25th Reunion this fall. I'm excited and started my diet today! It's always more fun when a crowd gets back for the festivities, so try to make the extra effort this year

Alice Williams Phillips and John have retired from the Army and are busy renovating their first "owned home". She's hoping for 25th Reunion guests, so there's someone else besides me who is excited. Daughter Cary is married and son Weston is a second year student at U.Va. John is associated with the State of Virginia Justice Dept., and Alice is a social work supervisor for the City of Richmond.

Mark McCormick ('51) and his fascinating sports promotion agency were a recent feature on ABC's "60 Minutes" with Mike Wallace. Mark's blond hair is now silvery, but the voice is the same. His business management of professional athletes has made him famous in a field with little competition.

The highlight of the year for Bob and Peggy Blair Hackler was a trip to Russia last March. They found it extremely interesting and educational, but were glad to thaw out in Florida upon their return. Peg is currently President of the Women's League of the Fine Arts Center in Anderson, Ind. Bob continues to travel extensively with Delco-Remy which is opening two new plants in the South.

Although he was not in our class, Paul Fox was familiar to everyone while he attended law school. He has had an interesting career and is now settled in California. He writes that he thinks often of his College days, and wants to hear from his friends. His address is: 106 Oxford Dr., Moraga, Cal. 94556. How about dropping him a line.

Hilda Beck Sherman and tennis are a way of life. She plays in an indoor league and on the Hilton Tennis Club's competitive team. At the American Dental Association Convention in Las Vegas this year, she won the ladies Doubles Round Robin Tournament. First prize was $100 gift certificate at the Desert Inn Tennis Shop. Son Wray III plays for King College in Tenn., and Will as #4 man on the Warwick High tennis team last year. This team won 11 straight matches and was very strong ones in the peninsula area.

Bruce Lester has been appointed to the Kentucky Court of Appeals. He is immediate past president of the Kentucky Municipal Attorneys Association, having served as city attorney for Bellevue from 1968-1972. He currently resides in his hometown of Ft. Thomas.

Tom Burke lives in Strasburg and has served on the Shenandoah County School Board for 10 years. He was recently appointed vice chairman of the Board. (Tom, I can't read the box number on your note. . . help).

Mary-Alyce Harvey Tuska stays involved in her community of Pennington, N.J. She especially enjoys her garden club work. Daughter Jeanette is a freshman at Albright College in Reading, Pa.

Dave Smith and Lib live in Boone, N.C., where he has been associated with Appalachian State University for the past 9 years. He is an assistant professor and University Registrar. They have two sons, Larry 16, and Randy 13.

Morgan Guaranty Trust in N.Y. has named Dave Wakefield a senior vice president. He is in the national banking division and serves as a division credit officer. He lives in Madison, N.J.

Russell Clements has been named manager of the J.C. Penny store at Lebanon Plaza in Lebanon, Pa. He will be leaving managership of the store in Alexandria, Va. He has been with the company since 1953.

My daughter is very involved in gymnastics and has several friends training for the Olympics, but I couldn't believe this was why I received a report from the President's Commission on Olympic Sports. It turned out to be a newsletter about the U.S. weightlifting program, and went into detail about the meeting of five advisers, the Weightlifting Consulting Group, with Congressman Jack Kemp (R., N.Y.), a Commission member. One of the five was Bob Crist of Hampton who is a Representative of the International Weightlifting Federation and is Operations Director, National Weightlifting Committee.

It is nice to end a column for lack of space, not lack of news!

A new book is out as of January, by Rene Henry, entitled How to Profitably Buy and Sell Land. He taps the expertise of fifty of the nation's top real estate professionals in his book, pointing out the most common mistakes of unsuccessful investors.

Bette Bodley Dunker has recently become a third grade teacher in Greensboro, N.C., having spent a period as a full-time student to prepare herself for her new career. She feels well satisfied working in primary education. Her husband, Bill, has moved from Litton to Standard Duplicator, doing much the same kind of work. Daughter, Jan, is a junior at University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Ralph Magee has been promoted to Head of the Corporate Systems Department of the Integor Corporation in Winston-Salem, N.C. His department provides computer systems, including payroll and investment accounting programs.

Winfred Ward, now at the College as an adjunct professor, teaching in the department of counseling, recently made a tour of west coast schools teaching medical hypnosis.

Gloria Smith Potter has a new part-time job as Librarian at the Collegiate Schools in Richmond.

The Miffins (Carol Meyers) have two boys in college, one at Southern Methodist University, the other at Rice. Rick, the younger of the two is a freshman; he represented the United States in Austria last summer in a math Olympiad along with seven others from this country.

The daughter of Peter Austin, Susan Belle Austin, is currently a freshman at William and Mary.

Bill Hilliard is now hospital administrator for the new hospital in Amherst, Ohio.

Bill Brink was named as chairman of the Special Gifts Division in the New Haven United Way campaign.

HOMEcoming '76--a time: to have a motel clerk tell me that if I wanted to know what room my roommate and his family were staying in, I'd have to ask the sheriff (honestly, a true story); for my wife and me to see so many old friends; to chat about the past--fast 20 years; to get a copy of the "Colonial Re-Echo" and to read of those who couldn't come; to watch another silly Homecoming parade (The College students may be brighter than ever, but they certainly are getting less creative and original in their float ideas); to see another football game and to watch another Homecoming loss (gosh, it would be nice to see a Homecoming victory--oh, well--);

To observe an unbelievable change in the weather from hurricane-like conditions to a beautiful fall weekend; to fight the crowds in the restaurants and to see "No Vacancy" signs all over the town; to eat lunch in Blow Gym (how well I remember those basketball games of the 50's); to get the class picture taken on the steps of the gym--what a nice surprise to see so many 56ers that we didn't have enough steps for all to stand on; to see Tom Williams, the photographer telling us to smile and us telling him to wait because there were more 56ers coming out the door.

To talk to Barbara Campbell Wenger and for her to tell me she and her husband came to Homecoming from California by way of Russia (that's got to be some sort of record); to see girls coming out of boys' dorms (times have changed); to see liquor and food being served free in the fraternities (the students must be getting wealthier rather than creative); to read (after I got back home) the October issue of the Alumni Gazette and to read the class news of '47 (Mrs. Clarke mentioned about her classmates who had died since graduation--in my excitement of celebrating our 20th, I never thought of those from our class who are deceased); to talk to a teacher friend of ours whose wife recently passed away.

To see Turtle (Mary Warren) but to miss her party--sorry, Turtle; to go to the cocktail party on Friday evening and see so many classmates there (can you believe--the class reunion of '51 was in the same room with us 56ers--shame on you, Alumni Society, for scheduling us young 56ers with all those old women and men--at least it was easy to spot all my classmates--you all haven't changed a bit during the past "few" years); to miss the President's continental breakfast because we didn't want to get wet; to see Jim Anthony twirl the baton with the Alumni Band (Jim, you dropped it several times! but you did tell me that you sprained your thumb a few days before while you were practicing--so all's forgiven); to watch and listen to the Alumni Band (those younguns' in the College band can still learn a thing or two from you); to sit in the North Side bleachers and not hear the loud speaker (it really would be nice to know what the announcer said); to sit in back of two of my own Longwood

College students at the football game (and they didn't know I was there!);

To try to meet Trudi Neese, the class news editor for The Alumni Gazette, but couldn't because she was so busy talking to rain-soaked alumni and I had to meet my wife who was waiting for me (Hi, Trudi; someday I'll introduce myself to you); to hear the announcement made in Blow Gym that the Old Guard would have their picture taken (now here's one for you--the Olde Guarde are those young ones who graduated between 1842 and 1926--I looked all over--I really wanted to meet all those 1842 and particularly those 1856 graduates--strange, I never found them--guess they must have been contestants in the Cross Country meet that day);

To go to the Alumni Dance 35 minutes late, and the band was really taking its first break (maybe I should have majored in music); to go shopping Sunday afternoon (2 questions--whatever happened to the Blue Laws? and who in the world really has the money to pay those Williamsburg prices?); to walk on the Duke of Gloucester Street--it's nice not having any cars to look out for, but God save us from those bicycle drivers); to drive home and stop at a delightful place on Richmond Road, near Toano, and buy a pumpkin from some charming people who each year have a creative pumpkin display (College students: please note); to drive by the Pottery and not see traffic backed up 2 miles; to buy regular gas for 62¢ when I can get it at home for 54¢;

To wish that all Delaware fans and their football team had gotten lost in the Baltimore tunnel;

To have a great visit with my college roommate of 3½ years, Ed Hill, his charming wife Pat, and their three absolutely great kids--Dave, Jeffrey, and Robert;

Memories of Homecoming 1976--a weekend to be long remembered.

Barbara Holcomb Lange has been appointed Director of Public Relations for the Art Institute of Fort Lauderdale. Congratulations, Barb.

Bruce Stewart has a new job as employment counselor with C & H personnel. Bruce resides at 407 W. Chestnut Street, Lancaster, Pa. 17603. Sid Mook, the acting Commodore of the Michigan State University Sailing Club, has taken numerous sailing prizes in local and national races. He was 7th in the Consolation Division at the U.S. Laser National. He is working on his Ph.D. dissertation in Urban Planning at M.S.U., Lansing.

Paige Cubbison Artzt wrote from Miami, Fla. She and Ruth Cox Page reunited this summer in New Hampshire with "five" rambunctious boys - Mothers survived, but barely.

Shirley Noell Chafee sent a letter from Winston-Salem, N.C. Shirley's husband, Bob, is an industrial engineer with Western Electric Co. Shirley, Bob, and three boys, 15, 12, and 7 are living just outside of Kernersville in a house on five acres of land. I really welcome "updates" like yours, Shirley. If any of you can send sorority or fraternity news letters, I promise to publish "only the facts." Also, I have a complete address file of the class of '58, so if you'd like to locate that girl in Ludwell - 100 in 1954, write.

Marion Hurd Linthurst (one of my best correspondents) visited Williamsburg over the Thanksgiving holiday. After eighteen years she was amazed and impressed at the changes in the campus and College. "I had to get a map at the Admissions Office in order to find our way! The old cafeteria was no more and the little two story library is now used for something else. The College bookstore is still on the same site and good old Barrett Hall is still there; we went over to the new campus and what used to be the hockey field and woods is now a beautiful complex of modern classroom buildings. The large beautiful library is certainly impressive with such advantages for the current student body. Some of that 'smallness' has disappeared with the modern changes, but like everything else, progress must go on and the current campus does give more opportunities for the student." Thanks for sharing your observations, Marion. I'm sure those who have not seen the campus lately will appreciate them.

It is still a thrill to drive past the Wren Building on a cold December evening. The candle-lit windows bring to mind precious memories of Christmases past--even eighteen years ago. There will always be tradition at William and Mary. Happy New Year -

Hope all of you had a joyful holiday season and will have a happy 1977.

Ben Dulaski and wife Chris Harms '61 live in Bloomington, Ind., where Ben is Director of Placement at the University of Indiana. Chris is pursuing her Master's degree in Higher Education and teaching piano lessons. They have two children.

Mary Jane Thomas Stokes has been elected Chairman of the Powhatan County Democratic Committee. She was also the designer of the Powhatan County Historical Society Commemorative plate for the Bicentennial.

Jack White is a research scientist at Battelle Laboratories in Columbus, Ohio. This is the largest private non-profit research organization in the U.S. His wife Pat teaches piano lessons. They have two sons.

Deborah McHahon O'Hara lives in Phoenix, Md., with her husband and six children ranging in age from fourteen to five. She wrote that they all planned a trip to Williamsburg during the Christmas holidays.

Ann Patterson Willoughby lives in Mentor, Ohio with husband Bill and their three children. Bill operates a manufacturing facility for Parker Hannifin.

Roger Roberts of Larkspur, Calif., recently won election to the City Council.

We received a few Christmas notes with news of our classmates. Peggy ClementHaines wrote that Carol Waller Welborn, husband Jerry and their children came to visit them last summer in Philadelphia. They enjoyed catching up on the last ten years and seeing the Wagon Train at Valley Forge. Peggy is still teaching fifth grade.

Charlie Nahill and wife Nancy Branham '61 wrote that they spent a week in Williamsburg last summer as "real" tourists while Charlie attended a Convention.

Gloria Marr Gassman writes that she is still busy being a full-time homemaker and mother of four "beautiful" children. Her husband, Dean, is president of the local school board. They live in Carmel, Ind.

James B. Osborn is Vice President for Information Systems of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia.

Richard Snyder, wife Karen and three children reported that they would be spending the holidays on Florida's Gulf Coast.

It is with mixed feelings that we bid farewell to Dick Coyle '61 and wife Sue Meara '63. They have been neighbors of ours for the past four years. Dick, who works for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has been transferred to Cincinnati, Ohio.

My husband, Bob recently received the Chancellor's Award from the University Awards Committee at SUNYA for the funding of a study of student perceptions of a University environment. This study spans a one-year period and will be shared throughout the State University system.

Lynda Walker Warren is now chairperson of the Department of Psychology at California State College, San Bernardino, where she is in her fourth year as a faculty member.

W. Barry Tinsley, Associate Professor of Art at Illinois State University, has sold an 8x8 foot welded steel sculpture entitled "Kentucky Hills" to Augustana College in Rock Island, Ill. He has won several competitions and prizes in recent years.

Howard Hardy was appointed an associate actuary in the actuarial division of the casualty commercial lines department at The Travelers Insurance Companies in Hartford. He has been with the company since 1965.

Congratulations to Jim Bennett who received a Master's of Hospital Administration Degree from Baylor University, Waco, Tex. Jim and his wife, the former Mary Susan Watkins, have two daughters, Amy, three, and Dawn, two. Currently, Jim is serving as an instructor in hospital administration courses at the Army Medical Science College, Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex. During his military career he has served two tours of duty in Vietnam, served three years in Germany, and was stationed at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C.

Robinette Henderson Fitzsimmons was elected to the City Council in Apple Valley, Minn. She began her interest in local government by a League of Women Voters assignment. Robinette was the first woman ever elected to the council in Apple Valley and she will serve a four-year term.

And now for the very welcome Christmas card news . . . Gretchen Scherer Israel writes from Bethesda that she is enjoying immensely the role of a minister's wife. She has recently become involved in the youth group of husband's Skip's church, is still teaching French to college students, and caring for young son Andrew.

Claudy Tucker Barnes says husband Tom is still coaching and they hope to get up to W&M for a basketball game from their Virginia Beach, perhaps with Jan and Butch Kitchin.

Susan Trice Fieglein writes her family is becoming adjusted to life in Galveston, Tex., after new job, new house, new baby. Mike passed the Texas bar and children Hank is in fourth grade, Ashley is in kindergarten and Alex is five months old.

Ginnie Pierce Volkman is awaiting the birth of her second child in February and writes that her husband Al has been travelling to England and Spain and daughter Kate is enjoying pre-school programs.

Ann Lyons Ackiss and Tom are expecting their first child in March and Pril Nash Brown ('62) and Seab are expecting their second in April. Pril writes from Bogata, Columbia as President of the American Womens' Club amidst a Christmas bazaar for 900 ladies, and planning a Valentine Ball for 100 Americans away from home.

Larry and Diane Bright Manning ('65) returned from Brazil in February and after several transitional months in the Cleveland office of Larry's law firm, they are back in their house in Washington, D.C.

Henry Wolf is general tax attorney for the Norfolk & Western RR. He joined the Company in 1973 as senior tax attorney.

Penny Sanders Buck ('65) and Jim are still in Alexandria with their one year old daughter, Heather, and son Peter. Penny is playing tennis regularly.

And finally I had a real treat over Thanksgiving when my first W&M roommate, Kay Prince Sykes and her mother at whose home I had spent many weekends many years ago, came to New York to see some plays. We met for lunch for the first time in eight years and were the last people to leave my husband's club we had so much catching up to do. Kay lives in Chesapeake, Va., with her husband, J.T. and they both teach at Norview High School in Norfolk, Va. They have three sons, Scott, 14, Barry, 5, and Monte, 2.

So, would you like a reunion with your W&M roommate in '77? (That will either bring on a pleasant thought or a shudder). Write me where you are and what you're doing, and perhaps it could happen.

The class of 1966 poses for a photograph during Homecoming. This photograph was delayed from an earlier Homecoming issue of the Gazette. Copies may be ordered from Thomas L. Williams, Box 2222 Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

Our tenth reunion was rainy, but fun. It was great seeing everyone who traveled back for Homecoming and hearing the happenings of our classmates. The last ten years have flown and I was relieved our classmates all looked the same, but puzzled as to the youthful looks of the present students.

Congratulations to Bill "Tree" Rountree on his election to Executive Vice President of the Commercial Division of United Virginia Bank/National in Northern Virginia. Bill and Lee have now moved to Alexandria after several years in Norfolk. Pete Nance and his wife Judy Poarch '69 traveled the farthest for our reunion. They live in Kentfield, Calif., with their daughter Sara who is four years old. Pete is Assistant Vice President with General Reinsurance Corporation and is in charge of their San Francisco office. Bunni Popkin Latkin and Pete '64 live in Falls Church with their two children Danny and Shannon. Pete is a pediatric allergist and Bunni works in his office. She tells me Laurette Harvey has moved to Washington, D.C., after several years in Hawaii. Sharon Cosminsky Kern and Dick '64 are in Richmond where Dick is a field distributor with DuPont. Their two sons Scott and Michael keep Sharon busy at home. Dave and Sandy McNeill Kern '68 live in Andover, Mass. near Boston with their children Allison and Craig. Dave is plant manager for Container Corporation of America.

Some hearsay from Homecoming: Mary Ellen Coleman Culp and Clyde '65 are in Chattanooga, Tenn. They have three children Kelly, Suzanne, and Darby. Mary Ellen is active with the League of Women Voters and Clyde is with Krystal Corporation. Gene Griffin and his wife Betty Bishop '67 are close by in Williamsburg. Gene is an attorney and Betty is president of the local Tri-Delta alumna group. Debbie Thomas Pomeroy, Ben '67 and their children Brad, Scott, and Kristi are in Wilson, North Carolina. Ben is a basketball coach at Atlantic Christian College. Denny Taylor Kelly and Gordon '67 live in Greensboro, N.C., where Gordon is with Lawn King.

Kathy Hollingsworth Reese and Mike moved to Columbia, Mo., last spring. Mike is manager of staff benefits for the University of Missouri and is doing graduate work in the Business School. Kathy has temporarily left high school counseling and is involved in post-masters degree work in counseling psychology. She will co-chair a group on assertiveness training for the Women's Center this semester and hopes to get more involved with the local Kappa alumna group. Their two daughters Carrie and Lori are nine and four years old. Kathy keeps in touch with Ann Farmer Jeffries Critchfield and Steve in Atlanta, Georgia. They have two children Stephen and a new daughter Madie. Farmer teaches in a local nursery school and has continued her interest in art--teaching a night class and doing lots of creative things on her own, especially weaving.

Jeannie Swink Connors writes she has been in Dallas, Tex., the past eight years. At present she is counseling in Richardson, a suburb of Dallas. "Swink" and her husband Michael are busy with their one-year-old daughter Mandy Brooke and the remodeling of an older home they recently bought. According to "Swink", Louise Thornton is teaching government at Prince George High School in Virginia and Virginia "Gin" Gill Edmunds and husband Bill are back from Germany and living in Herndon with their children Marcy and Billy.

A short note from Jerry Johnson reports he and Billye are in Albuquerque, N.M., where he works at the Air Force Test and Evaluation Center. They have one daughter Virginia Carole who is ten months old. Leon Joseph Bly and Maria-Ilona welcomed the arrival of their first child Natascha Jutta in September. They are presently in Athens, W.V.

Donald Ferriss has joined the insurance brokerage firm Johnson and Higgins Carolinas, Inc. in Charlotte, N.C., as the head of their marine/aviation/international department. He and his wife Barbara celebrated the birth of their second son Daniel Mark in August. Paulette Johnstone Garthoff is on the editing staff at the American Geophysical Union in Washington, D.C. She, her husband Doug, and sons Matthew and Jonathan have been living in Alexandria for several years. Paulette's husband reports Karen Cottrell Schoenberger is counseling high school students in Alexandria.

Marian Bozarth Klein received her B.S. in Nursing from Hampton Institute last May and is now teaching maternity nursing at Riverside Hospital's School of Professional Nursing in Newport News. Returning to Homecoming from Yonkers, N.Y., was Grace "Gigi" Guin Schiff. She and husband Ray thoroughly enjoyed their visit. Robert Brian Sigafos, M.D. has recently assumed a new position as director of the dermatology clinic at the Naval Regional Medical Center in San Diego.

Jane Norman Ryland is in Boulder, Col., and directing a project to facilitate communication between state-level postsecondary educational agencies and the Federal government with regard to data collection and statistical analysis. Congratulations to Jamie Gronning on his promotion to Vice President by First Virginia Bank in Fairfax County. He is enrolled in graduate business studies at American University and is also an instructor for the American Institute of Banking.

New Address!!!! After February, please send your news to our new address. Tom and I bought a 50-year-old Colonial and are looking forward to moving in February.

I would like to take this opportunity to encourage all of you to contribute to this year's William and Mary Fund (Drawer 1693, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.) Especially remember to check with your employers, as many will match your contribution to the College. Our class chairman is Barbara Tuttle Richardson Pearson. Tuttle (and I) would like to see the Class of '70 rank among the top contributors.

George Yancey has been named a vice president of New Bank of Roanoke branch in a Roanoke shopping center. He was formerly with a NB branch out of Charlottesville, and has been in Roanoke with a NB subsidiary which manages the deposits of the former Roanoke Industrial Loan and Thrift.

Dave Thompson was elected Commonwealth's Attorney for King George County Va., in November.

Larry Foy was named Second Vice President in the Commercial Banking Department of the Continental National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago. Larry earned an MBA from Northwestern in 1974.

From graduation until Spring, '74, Rita Smith Welty worked in "just about every capacity of the hotel business with Hilton in Williamsburg, and Marriott and Stouffer's in Atlanta." In her "spare time" she took graduate courses at Georgia State University; studying real estate and certifying for a sales license. For over a year, Rita was a leasing agent for a commercial office/warehouse/shopping center complex in Winston-Salem, N.C. In April, '76, she married Ray Welter, moved to Myrtle Beach, and presently works for a building contractor and strongly contemplates opening a pastry shop! Rita hopes anyone in the area will look them up.

Roy and Rita recently visited Kyle Warren Ahrold in New York City. Kyle is working for Encore magazine.

Pat Butler wrote that she has a great job as a Programmer/Analyst at Defense Contract-Audit Agency. In '75, Pat did the E.S.T. Training and now is a guest seminar leader for E.S.T. Living in Alexander, Va., Pat keeps active sky-diving, white water rafting and bicycling--also vacationing in Martinique!

Since graduation, Suzanne Edge Atkins, has been living in California. For the past 3½ years Suzanne has been a computer programmer for Varian Associates in Palo Alto. Her husband, Steve, has an MBA from Stanford University and also works at Varian. They bought a house in October, '75. .22019 McClellan Road, Cupertino, California; 95014.

Editor of the Ledger-Star's Saturday television guide, Chris Vinyard is an avid theatergoer and writes reviews for the Daily Break. Before joining the Ledger-Star in 1973, Chris was a reporter for the Newport News Daily Press.

Fred Hinton joined the Richmond, Va., law firm of Paul, Smith, and Blank last fall. The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics awarded ten mini-grants for innovative projects in mathematics and the project by Susie McIntyre Turner was one of those ten. Susie's project was a library of math games for first graders to take home and use with their families. Susie received $200.00 to set up the program at her school, Stonewall Jackson Elementary School in Arlington County, Va.

Earlier last year, Mike Davis earned a M.A. degree from University of Southern California at Los Angeles. Mike then graduated from the T-38 Talon instructor pilot course at Randolph AFB. The training was specialized flight familiarization and academic instruction in aircraft engineering, flight planning, and applied aerodynamics. Mike now is at Craig AFB, Alabama, for duty with a unit of the Air Training Command.

Condit Cooper and Bill Lotz '71 spent Christmas in Bad Aibling (near Munich) Germany with her sister and brother-in-law. She and Bill expected to travel around Germany and Austria and take a trip to Florence, Italy.

In December, Sandy Fagan became the new Director of Bacon Street in Williamsburg. Sandy was an original volunteer at Bacon Street in 1971 and in January, 1974, he became a staff member. Prior to the Directorship he was the Clinical Supervisor.

Stewart and Susan Burgess Johnson are both with NASA at Goddard Space Flight Center. They bought a house in Laurel, Md.

Now living in Richmond, Don Elmore graduated from Marshall-Wythe School of Law last year.

Richard Zimmerman outlined his activities on the W&M Fund envelope as follows--"Society of the Cincinnati; Captain, USMCRes.; BPO Elks; Secretary Harrisonburg, Va. Democratic Party; High School Social Studies Teacher, Elkton High School; Homeowner; Church Lay District Representative."

Last year, David Winn was Spotsylvania County's nomination for Teacher of the Year. In November, he addressed a group of Latin teachers at the 10th Annual Convent of the American Council on Teaching a Foreign Language. Jason Alexander Winn, their first child, was born January 26, 1976.

Kathie Asplund, daughter Kristie, and Captain Mike Munson are on a duty tour in Spain, and are living in the middle of Madrid. Sometime this year, they'll begin a three year tour at West Point, where Mike will teach at the Academy. Kathie wrote that Jim and Joanne Deacon Egolf had their first child, Heather Suzanne, September 25.

Employed by the U.S. Army at Natick Research and Development Command, Reid Williamson lives in Framingham, Mass.

Based in New York, Wayne Aycock is a steward with Pan American World Airways.

November 7, Gayle Crawley and Scott Foster had their first child, Allison Tyler.

Donna "Birdie" Fowle Mohr spent a year in New York City after graduation and then returned to southern New Jersey to teach eighth grade English and reading. Her husband, Joe was teaching at the same school. Since July, Donna has been working as a Title III, IVC Project Director to develop a new program in seventh and eighth grade Language Arts. If the program is successful, it may be used all over the country.

Happy New Year to all of you and thank you for all the news you sent for this letter!! I look forward to hearing from those I saw at Homecoming who promised to send me a postcard about their activities.

David F. Boerner is now Doctor Boerner. He received his M.D. from Penn State University College of Medicine last May, and is now doing his residency at Duke University Medical Center. Our congratulations to Edwin Genebach who received his M.D. from MCV last May. He will be doing his three-year residency at the Roanoke Memorial Hospital, specializing in family practice.

Willis Shawver completed a Master's degree in Elementary Administration from UVa. in May, 1976. Steven Miller is an associate instructor at Indiana University while working toward his Ph.D. in English.

Allen and Chris Storeide Grant are living in Berkeley, Calif., where Chris is studying Nutrition Science. They miss Virginia, however, and plan to return "before California slips into the Pacific during the next earthquake". Wynter, age 5, says hi to all his uncles.

James Freeman '72

Julia Harris Morrison and husband, Rick, are living in Bel Air, Md., where he is stationed at the Ballistic Research laboratory of Aberdeen Proving Ground and she is working in an elementary school library. Previously, Julia worked as a high school French teacher so this is quite a switch for her. Steve and Page Reid Whitten are building their own house in Goochland County. It looks like a Williamsburg house, of course, and she says it will probably take them ten years to finish it.

William Schumm was awarded the Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster for meritorious achievement with the Kansas Army National Guard, 1975-76. He also received an M.S. in Family and Child Development in May from the Kansas State University, and is now working on a Ph.D. in Family Studies at Purdue.

Janet Spencer Anderson has received her Ph.D. in physical chemistry from the University of Wisconsin at Madison last August. She is now doing postdoctoral research at Cornell in hopes of landing a good college teaching job.

Steve Thompson has been named manager of the Reynolds Alumni Recycling Co. Richmond Service Center, and is also working towards his Master's in Government at the College.

Brian Davenport, now a 1st Lieutenant, was recently appointed an officer in the regular Army in ceremonies at the Anniston Alabama Army Depot, where he has been stationed since 1974.

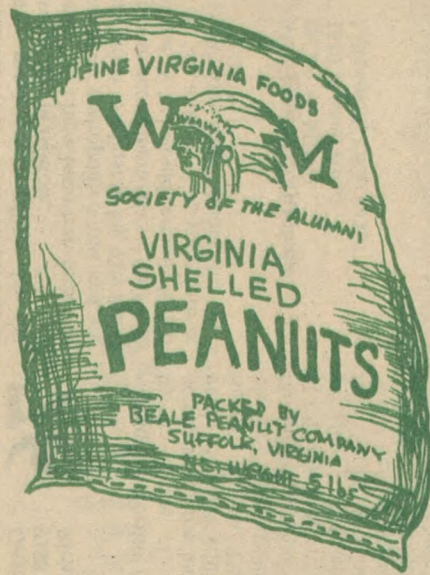

The following news shorts are supplied courtesy of Jack Melamed who received his Master's in Public Administration from Penn State, has been working as a management consultant for the State of North Carolina and is planning on working on his doctorate in counseling psychology.

During Holiday Break Biologist Baby-sits Plants

You might call it the secret life of Martin Mathes. In reality, he's a biologist at William and Mary, but during school holidays he takes on a new personality -- that of a baby-sitter, or a plant-sitter, to be more exact.

During the recent semester-Christmas break, Dr. Mathes cared for more than 500 different kinds of plants in the College Greenhouse atop Millington Hall of Life Sciences. The plants were left in his care by many students at the College who could not take them home and had no one else to care for them during the holidays. More than likely the plants would have died had it not been for Dr. Mathes' plant-sitting service.

Dr. Mathes instituted the service several years under the auspices of the Department of Biology, and it has grown in popularity rapidly. In 1974, there were 300 plants under his care. This year shelves had to be added in the greenhouse to accommodate the plants, which ranged from tiny cactus to a 5-foot palm tree weighing over 50 pounds.

Of the large number of plants, all receive standard treatment and are watered en masse by students who remain on campus over the break. There are some fatalities Mathes admits, but the mortality rate is low and owners are usually assuaged with a healthy replacement.

As well as being impressed with the care students have given plants, Mathes has also been intrigued by the variety of containers in which the plants are grown. A tuna fish can, wicker, macrame and crocheted baskets, ceramic containers in a variety of shapes and sizes, cocktail glasses and even a South Sea barnacle have been used to accommodate plants as colorful as poinsettias and as unusual as the string of beads.

The service the biology department offers students is a "fringe benefit," said Mathes. He is glad to be able to house the plants that would surely die if left in student rooms over the semester break or transported home and back again.

Because of the anticipated influx of plants, Mathes set aside sections of the greenhouse so students could place their plants in storage and know where to find them when they returned.

There are some "orphans" in the greenhouse, left from another vacation. These are being cared for as part of the regular greenhouse populations and probably, said Mathes, will be made available for new ownership later in the year.

Dr. Mathes takes care of students' plants.

Charles Accepts Campaign Chairmanship

Roy Randolph Charles of Norfolk, a member of the class of 1932 at the College of William and Mary, will serve as Chairman of the National Council for the Campaign for the College.

Charles will succeed the late J. Edward Zollinger, '27, who died in Florida late in November. Zollinger was first chairman of the three-year, $19 million fund-raising campaign announced last May by the College.

A. Addison Roberts, '35, of Rosemont, Pennsylvania, recently appointed by Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr., to succeed Zollinger on the College's Board of Visitors, will serve as a national vice chairman of the Campaign's National Council.

Campaign Gifts Reach $4.3 million of $19 million Goal

The total contributions to the Campaign for the College reached a new high of $4,345,432 as of January 15, 1977. W. Brooks George, Campaign Treasurer, reported at an Executive Committee meeting on January 20.

This $19 million, three-year effort has three major goals which were established not only to differentiate kinds of giving, but also to set targets for private monies needed by the College to maintain its standards of excellence.

Leading the effort in terms of percentage of the goal achieved to date are donors of testamentary gifts, or "expectancies." $1,656,600 in gifts has been recorded, or 33% of a goal of $5 million.

The sum of $2,164,185 in private funds has been given or pledged toward the endowment goals of the Campaign. This is approximately 22% of the three-year mark set at $10 million.

Gifts and pledges to the various annual funds of the College of William and Mary total $521,646 as of January 15, or 13% of the $4.3 million goal. Special initiatives planned to increase annual giving are scheduled for later in the Campaign.

Mrs. Jean Canoles Bruce, '49, continues as a national vice chairman for the Campaign. Mrs. Bruce has been serving as interim Chairman since Zollinger's death. She is president of the College's Society of the Alumni.

These announcements were made at a meeting of the Council's executive committee in Williamsburg.

"We are especially pleased that Roy Charles, who has been so dedicated to the College for so many years, has agreed to assume the leadership of the Campaign," said President Thomas A. Graves, Jr. Warren Heemann, Vice President for College Development, said that Charles "will ably build on the momentum already generated in our comprehensive effort to raise $19 million in private funds."

Charles, president of Crestwood Company of Norfolk, is a former member of William and Mary's Board of Visitors (1952-60) and currently serves on the Board of Trustees of the College's Endowment Association, the Board of Directors of the Sponsors of the School of Business Administration, and the President's Council. He has also served on the boards of Old Dominion University and Elon College.

His work on behalf of the College earned him an Alumni Medallion in 1961, and in 1975 he received an honorary doctor of laws degree from William and Mary.

A. Addison Roberts is the recently retired chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Reliance Insurance Company of Philadelphia. He has formed his own financial consulting firm, A. Addison Roberts Associates.

In 1974, Roberts was granted an honorary LL.D. by William and Mary, and he received the Alumni Medallion from the College in 1970. He has been a member of the Board of the Endowment Association since 1969, and he served on the Board of the Society of Alumni from 1965 to 1970. He established the Nannie Wilkins Roberts Scholarship Fund at William and Mary in his mother's memory.

Roy R. Charles has been a generous supporter of the College for many years. He was the major contributor to fund the research for Their Majesties' Royall Colledge, a history of William and Mary in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, written by Dr. J. E. Morpurgo and published last February as part of the Bicentennial. Among his other contributions to the College was a major gift which helped establish the clubroom in the Alumni House which honors Dr. J.A.C. Chandler, William and Mary's President from 1919 to 1934. He also donated furnishings to the Alumni House and a concert piano to the Department of Music.

For the Campaign for the College, Charles has made a gift of $100,000 to establish the Roy R. Charles Fund, whose proceeds are unrestricted for use in meeting the most pressing needs of the College.

While at William and Mary, he was a member of Alpha Kappa Psi, Pi Kappa Alpha, 13 Club, 7 Club and the Interfraternity Council. He was manager of the football, swimming and baseball teams. His bachelor of science degree was in business administration.

From 1932 until 1965, he was an executive and director with the Smith-

Douglass Corp. of Norfolk. He served in the U.S. Coast Guard from 1942 until 1946, and from 1948 until 1958 in the U.S. Naval Reserve. He has been a director of the national U.S.O., the Hampton Roads Navy League, and the Navy and Central YMCAs in Norfolk. He is also a past national vice president of the American Red Cross.

Charles was also instrumental in founding the Eastern Virginia Medical School as a commissioner of the Norfolk Area Medical Authority.

He is currently president of Property Development Corp., Norfolk; a director of United Virginia Seaboard Bank, the Tidewater Red Cross, and Tidewater Boy Scouts of America Council. He is a national director of the Navy League of the United States, director of the Norfolk United Community Fund, and director of the Medical Center Hospitals of Norfolk. A member of the advisory board of the Dolphin Scholarship Foundation, he is vice president of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy Foundation.

A. Addison Roberts has also held many important business posts and has had numerous civic affiliations.

He has served as director and principal officer of Pilot Insurance Company (Canada) and the United Pacific Insurance Company, and he has been on the board of directors of many other insurance companies. He has also been a director of First Pennsylvania Corporation and First Pennsylvania Bank, as well as serving on the Board of Managers of the Germantown Savings Bank.

Roberts has held the office of chairman of the board of the American Insurance Association and the Insurance Information Institute.

He has been very active in community service in Philadelphia, having served as a director of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Philadelphia Division of the American Cancer Society, and member of the Board of Trustees of the United Fund of Philadelphia.

He has also had wide-ranging interests in education. In addition to serving William and Mary, Roberts was a member of the Board of Trustees of Temple University, serving as Chairman for the past two years. He has also been chairman of the board of the World Affairs Council.

Roy R. Charles, '32, agrees to serve as National Chairman of the Campaign and to continue drive begun successfully by the late J. Edward Zollinger. A. Addison Roberts, '35, is named as a Vice Chairman. Jean Canoles Bruce, '49, who served as interim Chairman, continues as a Vice Chairman.

Gifts To Campaign Include Life Insurance

A variety of gifts geared to meet both personal and Campaign goals have been received during the first eight months of William and Mary's efforts to build its endowment. These include gifts of cash, securities, real and personal property, testamentary gift commitments, charitable remainder trusts, and assignments of life insurance.

Among the latter are the assignment of four life insurance policies with a total eventual value to William and Mary of $340,000. Each names the College as specific beneficiary of the proceeds, and each was taken out as a supplement to other commitments to the Campaign for the College made by the donor.

A policy valued at more than $100,000 has been given the Endowment Association by Arthur B. Hanson, prominent Washington attorney, and his wife, Jane Harden Hanson. The proceeds of the policy, which will build substantially through dividend accumulation, will eventually be used to establish an endowment, the income from which, Hanson has suggested, is to be used half for the support of the departments of English and History and half for the School of Law, particularly the teaching of constitutional law with emphasis on the Bill of Rights, as recommended by the President in consultation with the Law School.

Two recently appointed members of the Board of Visitors have also named the College the beneficiary of insurance policies. Herbert V. and Beverly Kelly have named William and Mary the recipient of the proceeds of an $80,000 policy in support of the School of Law. Aubrey L. and Velma Mason will provide assistance to the School of Business Administration in the years ahead through proceeds of a $60,000 policy.

The College's Division I program of intercollegiate athletics also will receive eventual support through the proceeds of an insurance policy in which the College has been named the beneficiary. A Virginia husband and wife, who have asked to remain anonymous, have assigned a policy with an eventual worth of $100,000 for support of the purposes for which the Athletic Educational Foundation raises funds annually.

The gifts of insurance made by Hanson, Kelly, and Mason will supplement the annual support each has contributed for many years. Each has pledged to continue and, in some cases, double his annual contribution toward the operating expenses of several of the College's programs. All have been members of the President's Council since its inception in 1973.

Hanson, who holds both his bachelor's and law degrees from William and Mary, is a member of the Executive Committee of the Development Committee of the Endowment Association, and a former member of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. Mrs. Hanson, also a graduate of the College, has served as a director of the Society of the Alumni, completing her term at year-end 1974.

In making their gift commitment, the Hansons wrote, "the friends we have made at the College have lasted our lives to date. The tie that has always bound has been William and Mary. Perhaps in a sense we are paying a bit here in joy and service to assist others achieve the same joy and service that have been ours."

Herbert V. Kelly took both his bachelor's and law degrees from William and Mary. He was appointed to the Board of Visitors by Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr. in March of 1976. The Kelly's son, Herbert V. Kelly, Jr., graduated from the Marshall-Wythe

School of Law in June of 1976. The proceeds of the Kelly policy will be used to fund an endowment honoring William H. Kelly, father of the donor and Chief-of-Police of Williamsburg for many years. The income is to be used to support the Marshall-Wythe School of Law for purposes recommended by the Dean.

The proceeds of the Mason policy are to be used to establish the Aubrey Mason Educational Investment Fund. Under special arrangement with the Endowment Association, students of the School of Business Administration studying securities management will invest the corpus of this particular fund as a practical adjunct to their instruction. Half the income earned through their investments will be used for the general support of the School of Business Administration, the other half for unrestricted purposes.

Mason was appointed to the Board of Visitors in July of 1976. He is a Trustee of the Athletic Educational Foundation and serves on the Development Council for the Campaign for the College. His father, Walter G. Mason, was a member of the Board of Visitors from 1962 to 1970, serving as Rector from 1968 to 1970. A Walter G. Mason Professorship in Religion was established at the College a few years ago through the Mason's generosity.

Charles, Bredin, Newton Give Major Contributions To Campaign

Three unrestricted gifts totalling more than $300,000 have been received from persons long associated with William and Mary as a result of early Campaign efforts.

Roy R. Charles of Norfolk, Class of 1932, who recently succeeded the late J. Edward Zollinger as National Campaign Chairman, has made a cash gift of $100,000 toward the Campaign for the College, specifying only that it be used for the pressing needs of the College as recommended by the President and approved by the Trustees of the Endowment Association.

The gift has been established by the Association as the Roy R. Charles Fund. Thomas A. Graves, Jr., President of the College, who serves also as President of the Endowment Association, has indicated that the income produced each year most likely will be used for faculty development, a high priority item among the College's Campaign goals.

J. Bruce Bredin, Class of 1936 and a current member of the Board of Visitors, has also made an unrestricted gift of stock with a value of approximately $112,500. It is anticipated that it too will be established as a fund acting as an endowment in support of the faculty semester research leave program.

Bredin made an additional gift of $10,000 during 1976 for support of the faculty semester research leave program, as he has made since 1964, when with Bredin support the College offered the first one-semester leave for the professional development of a member of its faculty.

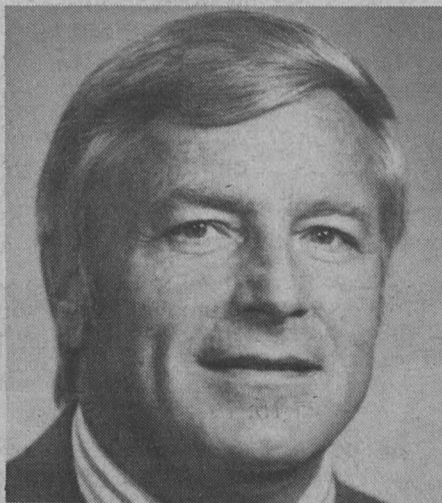

In addition, Bredin contributes annually to aid deserving students from his native state of Delaware.

A third unrestricted Campaign commitment of $100,000 has been received from Blake T. Newton, Jr., Class of 1935, former Vice Rector of the Board of Visitors, and current Trustee of the Endowment Association.

In transmitting his pledge, Newton indicated that he wished the proceeds of the policy to be used to establish a Newton Family Trust with the Endowment Association. Though unrestricted by the donor, Newton said that he hoped the income might be used "in a way that would support the creative instincts of our faculty."

Charles, Bredin, and Newton were among the original members of the Advisory Council on Special Resources, which was established in October, 1975 to assist the President "in developing a strategy to meet the major financial needs of William and Mary in the decade ahead." They serve today as members of the National Development Council of the Campaign for the College.

"By making their major gifts on an unrestricted basis and allowing us to establish them as endowments, Messrs. Charles, Bredin, and Newton are assuring that their support will be of value to William and Mary in perpetuity," according to Warren Heemann, Vice President for College Development and Chief Executive Officer of the Campaign. "The State's and Nation's educational priorities and the College's needs may shift drastically in the years ahead," said Heemann, "but a sizable endowment which is not heavily restricted as to its use will allow the College to steer a steady course through such shifting educational tides."

Sets $300,000 Goal For '77

Foundation Exceeds Goal of $250,000

The Athletic Educational Foundation bettered its fund-raising goal in 1976, raising a total of $264,000 -- $14,000 more than it had set as its goal.

With that impressive accomplishment in hand, the Foundation met in January and decided at its annual meeting on a goal of $300,000 for 1977.

The figures are especially significant in view of the improvement in giving since 1974 when the College asked alumni and friends to substantially increase their support of the athletic program in an effort to put it on a self-sustaining basis over a period of four years.

In 1975, the Foundation raised more than $200,000 for the first time in its 30-year history. The 1976 total represents a 31 per cent increase over 1975 and a 133 per cent increase over 1974.

Dubbed "Comeback '76," the 1976 fund drive emphasized the revived continuity and success of the athletic program at William and Mary. It highlighted the virtual total return of the football team, which enjoyed its best season in two decades; the total return of a basketball team that had finished second in the Southern Conference, the return of the coaching staffs, and the return of friends and alumni who support the program.

A record number of contributors gave to the Foundation drive in 1976. They totaled nearly 2300, an increase 40 per cent over 1975. Donors gave an average gift of $118.

Barry G. Fratkin '64, executive director of the Foundation, noted every area made significant progress during 1976. Some examples: Williamsburg raised a record $60,000, a 25 per cent increase over 1975; Richmond raised more than $44,000, an increase of $10,000 over 1975; the Peninsula area raised nearly $36,000, up $10,000 over 1975; Tidewater increased its giving by 35 per cent to more than $31,000; and Northern Virginia went up by a whopping 76 per cent to more than $23,000.

Fratkin noted that Northern Virginia is one area especially representative of the improvement in giving since 1974. In that year, Northern Virginia raised just $4,000, compared to the $23,000 total in 1976.

Elliott Schaubach '59, Norfolk, served as President of the Foundation during 1976. He was also named the Foundation's "Man of the Year." A standout football player at William and Mary in the 1950s, Schaubach has led the Foundation during the past two years, the most successful in its history.

"After serving as President for what he thought was the last time in 1975," said Fratkin, "and guiding the AEF to a record year, Elliott was ready to step down, but during the course of a disheartening 2-9 football season, differences of opinions arose.

"There was doubt the Foundation could raise $200,000 again, there was some doubt of the future of the entire program. Elliott stepped back to the forefront, was named President again, and boldly set a goal even higher than the record year before. His faith prevailed and the results are now apparent."

Richard Savage '56, Virginia Beach, succeeded Schaubach, who went off the Board of Trustees after completing a six-year term.

Other new officers for the Foundation are: C. Ray Johnson, vice president Peninsula; Walter W. Stout '64, vice president Richmond; Hartley Dewey, vice president Tidewater; and Austin L. Roberts III, '69 treasurer, Newport News. Re-elected were Gilbert L. Granger '57, vice president Williamsburg; Aubrey L. Mason '47, vice president Western Virginia; J. William Harrison '60, vice president Northern Virginia; James Porach '61, vice president Petersburg; and J. W. Lawler '61, secretary, Richmond.

In other action, the Foundation launched a special fund drive to raise financial support for women's athletics. By year's end, the drive had netted $3450 from 125 contributors.

The funds will go for grants-in-aid for women athletes.

Spring Kick-offs

Education, Business Begin Fund Raising Campaigns

Two graduate schools at William and Mary will launch fund-raising programs for the first time this spring in cooperation with the Office of College Development.

Some 600 alumni of the M.B.A. program in the School of Business Administration will be asked to give their financial support to the aims and goals of the graduate school of business. Joe Patterson, MBA '73, Williamsburg, a retired naval captain, will serve as chairman of the fund-raising effort, and Don Reichenbach, MBA '74, Williamsburg, will be vice chairman. In addition, students anticipating graduation from the MBA program in 1977 will be asked to make three-year pledges to be paid after they graduate.

Some 2200 alumni of graduate programs in the School of Education will be contacted by Dr. James M. Yankovich, dean of the school, in an effort to raise financial support for the graduate programs in education. All former students who have taken courses toward or obtained a William and Mary graduate education degree will be solicited.

Second year graduate students in education will be asked to make three-year pledges to the school as well.

Alumni of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, the only other professional school at the College, now give nearly $60,000 annually to support law school programs.

W&M Fund Passes $171,000 At Halfway Mark

Halfway through the 1976-77 William and Mary Fund drive alumni have given or pledged more than $171,000 to the College.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Zable of Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., Co-Chairmen of this year's William and Mary Fund report that 14 per cent of the more than 26,000 alumni who have been solicited have responded favorably. The average gift from 3633 participants is $47.20, for a total of $171,463.30, as of January 1, 1977.

Last year 22 per cent of the alumni body participated in the William and Mary Fund which reached a record total of $277,377.

Parents' Fund Nets $50,000 from 1223 Parents

The Parents' Fund drive raised nearly $50,000 from 1223 parents in 1976.

The Parents' Fund is one of three fund drives, along with the Law School Fund and the Athletic Educational Foundation Fund, which are conducted on a calendar rather than fiscal year basis.

Dan P. Restuccia, chairman of the Association of Parents, said that 22 per cent of all William and Mary parents solicited contributed to the Fund. They gave an average gift of $40.40 for a total of $49,413.20.

Administered by the Office of College Development, the Parents' Fund, which supports instructional equipment and materials, faculty and student research, financial assistance, lectures, concerts, student service projects, and other programs of cultural enrichment, is under the auspices of the Association of Parents. In addition to assisting the college raise operating support, the Association of Parents also provides guidance in organizing Parents' Weekend, an occasion for parents to visit the campus and learn about the various programs at William and Mary.

Parents also receive the Alumni Gazette each month and are sent a Parents' Handbook, which provides essential information on student life at the College.

President's Council Sets February Annual Meeting

Initiated four years ago, The President's Council is an organization which recognizes and honors alumni, parents, and friends who generously assist William and Mary by contributing one thousand dollars or more annually to the College.

"Such exemplary annual giving will help the College reach its three-year goal of $4 million for on-going programs. It encourages others to maintain and, most importantly, increase their annual gifts," and Warren Heemann, Vice President for College Development.

58 Per Cent Give Nearly $61,000 To Law School

Gifts and pledges to the 1976 Marshall-Wythe School of Law Fund totaled nearly $61,000, according to year-end figures reported by Len A. Meyer, director of annual giving at William and Mary.

Fifty-eight per cent of all law alumni contributed an average gift of $78.41 to the fund drive for an alumni total of $55,673.50. In addition, third-year law students pledged $5190, to be paid after graduation, bringing the fund total to $60,863.50. The student pledges came from forty-eight graduates who pledged an average gift of $108.13.

The campaign was the fifth for the law fund, and was conducted during one of the most productive years in the history of the law school. Among the events that occurred:

*May 8, 1976 - Ground was broken for the new facility of the National Center for the State Courts, which will be built adjacent to the new law school.

*July 1 - William B. Spong Jr., former United States Senator and president of the Virginia Bar Association, assumed the deanship of the law school and became the first Dudley Warner Woodbridge Professor of Law.

*Sept. 11 - Ground was broken for a new law school building. Appropriation of funds for the construction of the building is still pending in the General Assembly.

*Oct. 1 - It was announced that Howell Thomas Heflin, Chief Justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, and Dominik Lasok, Law Dean at the University of Exeter, England, will serve as Tazewell Taylor Visiting Professors of Law for the spring semester at William and Mary.

Gifts to the law fund go to support a number of educational goals at the law school including faculty research and professional development, financial aid to deserving students, and library acquisitions.

Co-chairman of the 1976 drive were Mark S. Dray '69, Richmond, and Woodrow W. Turner Jr. '73, Leesburg. D. Wayne O'Bryan '67 of Richmond served as chairman of a phonathon for the fund drive.

This year members of The President's Council will participate in an interesting program of events on February 11 and 12 as the College observes the 248th anniversary of its founding on the traditional occasion of Charter Day.

The program will begin on Friday, February 11 with an informal give-and-take session with the President at his Home during the afternoon. This will be followed by an Evening of the Arts, with a black-tie reception and supper to be highlighted by a performance of "Guys and Dolls." The hit musical will be presented by the William and Mary Theatre, and there will be a party afterwards to meet the cast.

On Saturday morning, February 12, members of The President's Council will have an opportunity to pursue their special interests in informal meetings with members of William and Mary's faculty and administration.

Highlighting the weekend will be the traditional Charter Day Convocation on Saturday afternoon, during which the College will confer an honorary degree on Carter O. Lowance, distinguished leader in the field of State government and public service.

The final event will be the basketball game between William and Mary and Davidson scheduled for Saturday evening.

Council Resolution Honors Zollinger

It is with deepest sorrow and a sense of personal loss that we note the passing of J. Edward Zollinger, '27, who served with unmatched dedication as the Chairman of the National Development Council of the Campaign for the College.

Mr. Zollinger brought to this task great enthusiasm, intelligence, and expertise. Even more significantly, he had a warmth and love that were evident in all of his actions on behalf of William and Mary.

As Chairman of the National Development Council, Mr. Zollinger worked tirelessly to insure the academic excellence of the College for many years to come. He, more than any other, provided the zest and energy that so quickly produced such important results. He gave unsparingly of his time, directed a corps of volunteers and staff, traveled, consulted, and persuaded - all with the force and imagination that made him so successful a leader in the world of business.

The business that concerned him most, however, was people, providing opportunities for the young, looking to the time when other generations of William and Mary students will need the aid that is at the heart of the Campaign for the College. In addition to the many welcome gifts he made to the College over the years, he helped launch the Campaign with a personal commitment that exemplified the true meaning of philanthropy, which is "love of mankind, as manifested in deeds of practical beneficence."

William and Mary is also grateful for the memorable service he rendered the College in many important posts for many years. Mr. Zollinger was a member of the Board of Visitors from 1966 to 1970, and was renamed to the Board in 1971. He was also a trustee of the College Endowment Association and a member of The President's Council. He was awarded the Alumni Medallion in 1963 for service and loyalty.

In 1960, he was named an alumni member of Omicron Delta Kappa leadership society. He was national President of Sigma Phi Epsilon for distinguished service in the field of business.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That in view of this truly distinguished record of leadership, service, and loyalty to the College of William and Mary, the late J. Edward Zollinger receive the highest commendation of the National Development Council for the Campaign, who hereby express our sorrow at his death and our belief that his memory will serve as a notable chapter in the annals of this educational institution, the alma mater of so many leaders of our nation.

FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Members direct the Secretary of the National Development Council to provide his wife, Mrs. Lucile Geoghegan Zollinger, his son, John Edward Zollinger, Jr.; and his daughter, Mrs. Frances Zollinger White with copies of this resolution.

The National Development Council, Campaign for the College

Alumni, Friends Give To Zollinger Memorial Fund

A number of alumni, friends, faculty, and staff of the College have made contributions to the Endowment Association Memorial Fund in memory of the late J. Edward Zollinger, '27. Others interested in doing so are asked to make their gifts payable to the Endowment Association of the College and indicate that their contributions are intended to honor Mr. Zollinger.

Please send your gift to Warren Heemann, Vice President for College Development, The Endowment Association of the College of William and Mary in Virginia, Inc., Drawer 1693, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.
