Saving The American Eagle

A William and Mary Biologist Looks for New Ways to Protect America's National Emblem

A small airplane swoops close to the treetops, and a couple of dedicated scientists squint their eyes looking for dark masses in the tops of the tallest pine trees. They're looking for nests of the Chesapeake Bay bald eagle, an endangered species struggling to survive in an environment poisoned by pollutants.

Strong, swift and free, the bald eagle has always maintained the image necessary to serve as the national emblem of the United States. But its lofty status as a symbol of greatness has not protected the eagle from the ravages of kepone contamination on the shores of the bay and its contributing rivers. In recent years, the population of eagles in the area has been dwindling drastically. Not a single eagle resides on the shores of either the James or Chickahominy Rivers. In 1976, only 32 nests were uncovered in the entire Chesapeake Bay area.

Artist Vernon Wooten's pen and ink drawing of the American Bald Eagle was inspired by a limited edition lithograph of the American Eagle in flight created by Guy Coheleach, '50. Coheleach's special edition was prepared especially for visiting Heads of State.

During the last two years, a small group of concerned biologists have conducted a series of studies aimed at protecting America's national emblem. The group is led by William and Mary Professor Mitchell Byrd, one of the most celebrated ornithologists on the east coast. The project is funded by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Although the situation remains grave for the Chesapeake Bay eagle, Byrd says recent counts of the population indicate the eagle may be making a slow but significant comeback. In 1977, Byrd's team of investigators located 34 active nests that produced 19 young eagles, an encouraging increase over the six or seven offspring produced in 1976. Byrd remains unsure whether the higher count reflects an actual rise in the eagle population or simply more thorough investigations of existing nests. He calls 1978 a "turnaround year," when statistics should reveal whether the population is indeed on an upswing.

With the help of graduate assistants and William Clark, director of the National Wildlife Federation's Raptor Information Center, Byrd uses a small rented plane to cover the shoreline one section at a time. Fortunately, eagles usually nest in the tallest pines and construct massive homes that weigh up to 2,000 pounds. Using a special Loran-C navigational system designed originally for use during bombing missions in North Vietnam, Byrd pinpoints the exact location of the nests on a detailed map.

After locating the nests on foot, Clark, the member of the group authorized to bank the eagles, climbs up the tree and attaches a small plastic disc to one leg of each baby eagle. If eggs are discovered in the nest, several weeks are allowed for gestation, hatching and early growth of the young birds. Eagle parents will often abandon young which have been handled by humans. Federal restrictions prevent the banding of full-grown eagles.

Byrd says the research team will use the bands to monitor where eagles nest, what habitats the birds prefer, and what environmental pollutants can cause illness and death. In the not-too-distant future, Byrd hopes to use miniature radio transmitters to track the eagle's daily movements.

In the Chesapeake Bay area, the third largest bald eagle population in the country, kepone is without doubt an eagle's worst enemy. "Even back in the sixties we were finding very high levels of kepone in the eagle egg shells," says Byrd. Scientists have found some shells with more than five parts per million of kepone, which is 25 times the level required to condemn seafood products. High levels of kepone cause a calcium deficiency in the egg shells, and in recent years, a majority of the eggs have cracked before the embryos reach maturity. If the young chicks are born alive, nearly half die during the first year of life.

Kepone proves to be just as deadly to adult eagles, who often eat dead fish that may have succumbed to kepone poisoning. A liver tissue from one dead eagle showed 100 parts per million of kepone.

This spring, Byrd will take a leave of absence from the College to devote all

Artist Coheleach 'Captures' Eagle Sale of Prints Supports Environmental Law Program

The American eagle has probably never been portrayed more majestically than in the paintings of Guy Coheleach, the country's premiere wildlife artist.

A longtime conservationist, Coheleach has provided the College with a collection of signed, limited-edition prints. All proceeds from the sale of these prints benefit the Marshall-Wythe School of Law environmental law fund.

Coheleach has created five different prints of the eagle, including a special edition of 300 prints that have been given to visiting heads of state by the Vice President of the United States.

Coheleach's gift for painting character, motion and life into his birds and animals is as deep as his thirst for adventure. He's been chased by elephants, raced open cockpit autos, climbed mountains, tracked eagles, lions and rhinos, caught rattlesnakes, cobras and pythons all over the world.

The artist's ties with William and Mary are primarily a result of his close association with Scott Whitney, one of Marshall-Wythe's experts on environmental law. Both men share a concern for conservation and are members of the Explorer's Club of New York City. Coheleach is also the youngest person ever to have been admitted to the Adventurer's Club in New York.

Coheleach was awarded an Honorary Doctor of Arts degree from the College in 1975.

Coheleach is the highest-paid wildlife painter in the world, and his original paintings sell for more than $40,000 each. His painting "Beware," which captures the anger of the African elephant, hangs in the East Room of the White House. His painting "Leopard on a Rock" received the International Wildlife Artists "Magnum Opus" award in 1972 and was described by one critic as

"the finest wildlife painting of all time."

The College has available a limited number of signed prints, including several of Coheleach's most popular editions. Most are already sold out on the wholesale market and many trade today for more than twice their original price. Collectors everywhere rate Coheleach prints among the best art investments on the market today.

Among the prints available are Golden Eagle, Bicentennial Eagle, Great White Sharks, Red Shafted Flicker, Short-eared Owl, Snow Leopard, Cape Buffalo, Mute Swans, Charging Elephant and Wood Ducks. Prices for signed, limited editions start at $25.

Alumni interested in supporting the environmental law program by purchasing a Coheleach print should contact William McGoldrick, Office of Development, College of William and Mary.

his time to monitoring eagles and three other endangered species--the brown pelican, peregrine falcon, and red cockaded woodpecker. A William and Mary graduate student, Norman Jaffee, will start close-up observations of eagles using tree blinds built as close as possible to individual nests.

Byrd reports that the eagle identification program has already had a positive influence. Landowners who find they have an eagle's nest on their property are virtually always the bird's best friend. In conducting his search for nests, Byrd says he was occasionally greeted by gun-toting farmers and woodsmen who were not about to let a "stranger" climb the trees of "their eagles."

"I've been cursed at, almost shot at, and threatened with quite a few beatings," says Byrd. "But I take this as being a good sign of support for the bald eagle."

Owning the tree where an eagle had decided to build its home has actually become a symbol of prestige. The complimentary photographs of the young eagles the National Wildlife Federation gives to landowners can be found framed and displayed over the mantle or next to pictures of the wife and kids.

Virginians who live and work around the Chesapeake Bay probably feel like most other Americans--the bald eagle is indeed a very "special" bird. What other animal so epitomizes the strength and individualism of the American people?

Only Benjamin Franklin seemed to disagree:

I wish the bald eagle had not been chosen as the representative of our country; he is a bird of bad moral character; like those among men who live by sharpening and robbing, he is generally poor, and often very lousy.

The turkey is a much more respectable bird, and withal a true original native of America.

A presidential seal featuring the American turkey? A gobbler on the back side of a quarter, on top of a flag pole and engraved on the stationery of our highest officials? It was undoubtedly one of Mr. Franklin's most unpopular suggestions.

Is Public Education Serving Everyone?

Smith, Stiles, Boyer Seek Answer At Charter Day

Howard K. Smith, commentator and public affairs analyst for the ABC Network, Dr. Lindley Stiles, Professor at Northwestern University and former Dean of the University of Virginia School of Education and Ernest L. Boyer, U.S. Commissioner of Education, will be panelists at a conference on public education which will highlight the 1978 Charter Day commemoration at William and Mary February 10-11.

To mark the 200th anniversary of the concept of free public education in America which was proposed by one of the College's illustrious alumni, Thomas Jefferson in 1778, the College has planned a two-day conference which will explore how, in modern times, knowledge is diffused among the public by a variety of means.

Boyer as well as being one of the conference panelists will also give the principal address at Charter Day ceremonies which will be held in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, Feb. 11. All three men will receive honorary degrees from the College at the Charter Day convocation.

In addition to the national panelists, a state panel will be made up of Dr. Gordon Davies, Director of the State Council of Higher Education; Eugene Campbell, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; and Anne Smith, Education Editor for the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

Letters have gone out to the School of Education alumni for their suggestions on workshops which will be held Saturday morning.

The conference theme "The More General Diffusion of Knowledge," is taken from one of three bills drafted by Jefferson for a system of education he felt was "adapted to the condition and capacity of everyone." The bill passed the House of Delegates on the third try; it was never approved by the Senate. Although a landmark in the history of education in America, the idea of public education was not to become a reality during Jefferson's lifetime.

Jefferson's contributions on behalf of education, however, have continued to be studied and the Commission for Constitutional Revision in 1971 incorporated the title of his bill into the constitution of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Jefferson's contributions on behalf of education, however, have continued to be studied and the Commission for Constitutional Revision in 1971 incorporated the title of his bill into the constitution of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Jefferson attended William and Mary from 1760-62 and remained in Williamsburg to study law under George Wythe, later first professor of law.

In 1779 under the leadership of Jefferson, who was then Governor and a member of the College's Board of Visitors, the scope of William and Mary was enlarged to the university level. Grammar and Divinity Schools were discontinued and a professorship of anatomy and medicine and the first American chairs of law and police and modern languages were established. Jefferson's plan is also credited for establishing the first elective system of studies in the United States.

ABC News Commentator Howard K. Smith will join other experts this month at a special conference on public education scheduled to be held at this year's Charter Day celebration.

Godwin Donates Papers to College

Gift Reflects Governor's "long-time love for William and Mary"

William and Mary will receive the personal papers of former governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. '36, the only two-term governor in Virginia's history.

Godwin, who served his first term from 1966 to 1970, retired from his second term in office on Jan. 14, when he was succeeded by another William and Mary alumnus, John N. Dalton '53 of Radford.

In addition to Godwin's personal papers, William and Mary will receive copies of many of his public papers, which under Virginia law go automatically to the State Library.

The gift also includes memorabilia from the Godwin years.

"In a period of eight years, the Governor has quite an accumulation of memorabilia," said Carter O. Lowance, longtime friend and aide to the former governor. "Some of it may have historical significance and possibly will be examined with the thought that those items might be useful to the College."

Lowance said Godwin has "a long-time love for William and Mary, and there was no problem in his reaching a decision to give his papers and the memorabilia to the College."

President Graves arranged the gift with the former governor. He had been in touch with Godwin several times before he retired from office and then officially wrote and asked the former governor to give the materials to the College.

The College is "pleased and grateful that Governor Godwin will give his papers and other items to William and Mary for permanent retention in the Earl Gregg Swem Library," said President Graves.

"The materials will be a rich source of knowledge for historians and other scholars now and in the future, for his unparalleled career of leadership and public service merits their special attention."

Godwin's papers will join those of several other 20th century Virginia leaders who have given their papers to William and Mary. They include former governors William M. Tuck and John Garland Pollard, U.S. Senator A. Willis Robertson, and Congressman Scheyler Otis Bland.

At the time of the transfer of the Godwin papers, which is expected to be consummated in about six months, a formal document of transfer will spell out the restrictions -- if any -- that will be placed on access to the papers.

A. Gordon Brooks, executive assistant to Godwin, will supervise the transfer of the papers.

Godwin first entered public service in 1948 when he was elected to the Virginia House of Delegates. In 1954, he was elected to the Senate and in 1961 he assumed the office of Lieutenant Governor.

In 1966, the College conferred an honorary degree of doctor of laws on Godwin. In 1972, the Society of the Alumni honored Godwin with the Alumni Medallion.

Just Call Her "The Apple"

At an Age of 104, Constance Applebee Remains One of the "Great Ladies of Sport"

One of William and Mary's staunchest allies overseas is Constance Applebee, one of the great ladies of sports, now retired at 104 and living in her native England. She introduced field hockey to the United States in 1901.

Living alone -- she likes it that way -- in a picturesque cottage on the edge of the New Forest on the southern coast of England, Miss Applebee, "The Apple" to thousands and thousands of players through the years, cherishes her memories of happy times spent in Williamsburg with her dear friend Martha Barksdale at the College which she describes as her "favorite of all. It had a marvelous atmosphere, just marvelous."

In 1901, when hockey was considered by many too violent an exercise for young ladies, Constance Applebee organized a demonstration of the game for students and faculty of the Summer School at Harvard. That was the beginning. Soon, invitations to Vassar, Smith, Wellesley, Holyoke, Radcliffe and Bryn Mawr were extended and hockey became established in the United States.

Miss Applebee was named Director of Outdoor Sports at Bryn Mawr, retiring in 1929.

Her association with William and Mary began in 1925 when Martha Barksdale, Marguerite Wynne Roberts and her sister, Edna Clements, went to Miss Applebee's hockey camp at Mt. Pocono, Pa. Miss Applebee had started the summer camp in 1923 with 300 girls and coaches brought from England.

After more than half a century of association with William and Mary, Miss Applebee is an energetic booster and will regale visitors with the wonderful years she spent in the South. She is the major contributor to the Martha Barksdale Fund and delighted that its first recipient this year, Ginny Ramsey, is a good hockey player as well as an outstanding student.

During World War II Miss Applebee spent considerable time at the College and in Williamsburg and was an active worker for the Red Cross, U.S.O., church and other community projects. She once asked Miss Barksdale to have a "proper English tea" at her home for some English sailors who were visiting. She made mountains of sandwiches for the sailors and listened attentively to their tales of home and family and even gave them advice on the kind of undergarments they should take home to their wives.

Miss Barksdale, Miss Applebee recalls, was a real organizer. She would get everyone working and at parties for servicemen would supervise everything from the dancing to the refreshments. "She used to have me sit in a corner and talk to the older ones about their families," said Miss Applebee.

"Miss Barksdale and I had a glorious time together. Wasn't she a dear? . . . I don't know of a kinder person, she managed everyone so well and she cared about students. She knew them all and all about their families.

"She was very strict. I remember when she took students to play at another college they had to dress correctly and have the right shoes and gloves and all the rest of it, but the students all loved her. She knew them all from top to toe."

With the kind of gentle admonition understood between old friends she added, "I wish she hadn't let herself get so plump, the naughty thing. She was a perfectly remarkable woman and a very good hockey coach."

Miss Applebee recalled that there was a "very nice" president of William and Mary during the war years. "L. Tucker Jones was head of physical education and Miss Barksdale worked under him.

"I remember one winter he became awfully ill with Spanish flu. Miss Barksdale became ill too but I didn't, so Martha let me go and take care of the girls and also the men who were preparing to be P.E. teachers." Many students may still remember the commanding style of Miss Applebee on the field with her brown tunic and sagging sash which demanded, and usually got, full participation from her students.

" . . . Dear Mr. Jones -- his death was a great loss to the college . . . Mr. Jones carried the Mace and he was very proud to do that."

It was partly the influence of Mr.

Jones, Miss Applebee suggested, that turned Miss Barksdale from her studies of history to physical education.

"She was the first woman student at William and Mary, you know. She was very clever but when it came to writing a thesis she thought it a bit boring and decided to drop the whole thing and go into physical education. The history department was very furious that she had thrown over history and gone into physical education, but she did it.

"I remember Marguerite Wynne Roberts used to be in P.E. then. Later she gave it up and became a dean. And Dean Landrum, I was so fond of her.

"Althea Hunt, now she was a character. I used to help her sometimes with students. If she had someone in a play that didn't walk just right, I would take them over. She was a very interesting person.

"I never knew so many marvelous people as those at the College then. They all fit in so well, everyone seemed so happy, so devoted to the College. I think if you do work hard you get to love it, you get to be a part of the place."

In a commemorative book written by two Bryn Mawr students, Miss Barksdale wrote that Miss Applebee during her stay at the College "impressed and inspired."

"Williamsburgers continually ask, 'When is that English lady coming?' Miss Applebee has lived up several winter seasons at my house. She has lent me much of her wisdom and insight."

Champion of many causes during her lifetime, Miss Applebee has received many honors for her work in American field hockey. The 1961 National Tournament was dedicated to her as a "dedicated teacher whose warmth of personality, wealth of humor and energetic humanitarianism has set her apart as a friend of thousands."

At 83 she was described by a Christian Science Monitor reporter as still spry and contributing her own special type of talent and youthfulness to the sport of hockey.

Dr. Sargent, director of the Harvard gym, was probably the first to give her praise. He wrote in a letter of introduction that Constance Applebee was "a young lady of unusual physical vigor and energy who excels in various forms of athletic sports." For a woman in 1901 that was quite a feather in her cap.

Miss Applebee lives quietly now in the lovely little English village of Burley but before she fully retired Miss Applebee organized clubs and programs for elder citizens in the village and was an active participant in community affairs.

She proudly shows visitors her set of Jefferson cups, each with a William and Mary coat of arms which were a gift from friends at the College.

Carefully placing them back in the corner cupboard in her dining room she smiled, "You know I wouldn't have missed Williamsburg out of my life for a million pounds."

Changing of the Guard

There's Still a William and Mary Alumnus in the Governor's Mansion

When John N. Dalton '53 of Radford was sworn in as the new Governor of Virginia in Richmond on Jan. 16, it was a family affair -- a William and Mary family affair. Dalton followed in the footsteps (right) of another William and Mary alumnus, retiring Governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. '36, as they descended the Capitol steps to the inaugural platform for the swearing-in ceremonies. Dalton received the affectionate congratulations (top) of his father, Federal Judge Ted Dalton '24 of Radford, a former Republican nominee for Governor, after the elder Dalton swore his son in with the assistance of another William and Mary alumnus, Chief Justice of the Virginia Supreme Court Lawrence I'Anson '28 of Portsmouth (at right of picture). Beaming with pride at Governor Dalton's left is his wife Eddy, who is a member of the Steering Committee of the Association of Parents, along with her husband, a former director of the Society of the Alumni and an Alumni Medallion recipient. To give the inaugural a special William and Mary touch, the new Governor requested that the College Band and the Queen's Guard march in the inaugural parade. ## Second Volume Published of Marshall Papers

Publication of the second volume of "The Papers of John Marshall," has been announced by the editor, Charles T. Cullen of the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

"This volume brings Marshall into the most active phase of his legal career and reveals much new information about his life and times," said Cullen.

The Marshall Papers are being published by the University of North Carolina Press in association with the Institute of Early American History and Culture at William and Mary. The project, expected to include 10-12 volumes when completed, is the first publication of the collected correspondence and papers of Marshall. Herbert A. Johnson, who has since resigned, served as co-editor of this volume with Cullen.

Volume two contains all extant Marshall documents from mid-1788 through 1795, including the second half of the future Chief Justice's account book. Marshall was 33 in 1788 and his burgeoning law practice reveals his leadership of the state bar under the reorganized court system that took effect that year. Such lawyers as John Breckinridge, Wilson Cary Nicholas, Archibald Stuart and William Branch Giles were frequent correspondents, as was George Washington, who needed Marshall's help in a difficult land case.

Later in the period covered, Marshall became deeply involved in the new Virginia Militia, leading an expedition to investigate a disturbance in Smithfield.

Volume three, which will be published next year, will contain a full account of the XYZ Affair which has never been fully covered in documentary fashion, said Cullen.

Friel, Barton Bound for England

Seniors Eileen Friel of Fairfax and Douglas Barton of Springfield have been named recipients of the Drapers' Company Exchange Scholarships for 1978-80.

The scholarships are awarded annually for two years of study at a British university of the recipient's choice.

A physics major, Friel is working on an honors project in theoretical astrophysics: constructing a simplified model of stellar evolution. She was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa on Dec. 5, and is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshman scholastic honorary.

Friel works for the physics department as a research assistant and tutors freshmen physics students. She hopes to attend Cambridge studying either physics or astronomy.

Barton, a computer science and music major, is working on an honors thesis involving the combination of computer science and music. He is co-musical director of Sinfonicron, an organization which presents a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta each year, and is a member of the William and Mary Choir and the Botetourt Chamber Singers. He studies voice at the College under Frances Breeze.

Barton has worked as a balladeer and juggler for Colonial Williamsburg, and has sung with the Cathedral Choir in Washington, D.C. He was also inducted into Phi Beta Kappa in December, and is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, the freshmen men's honorary. Barton hopes to attend one of the musical conservatories in London to pursue his interest in voice and music.

Flat Hat Editor Begins Internship

Bob Evans, a senior and former editor of The Flat Hat, began an internship at the White House news summary office in January.

Evans expects to be monitoring newspapers from the Mid-West region and condensing information for the daily news summary, which is hand delivered to President Carter each evening.

A philosophy major, Evans will undertake some independent study projects while in Washington to finish up his final semester before graduation in May. He is currently a staff reporter for the Richmond Times Dispatch, Williamsburg Bureau. This summer he worked full-time in the Richmond office of the newspaper handling rotating assignments in several departments.

Evans is president of the campus chapter of the Society of Collegiate Journalists and a member of Mortar Board and F.H.C. Last year he was awarded a journalism scholarship by the Sigma Delta Psi chapter in Richmond.

Evans will be working with Janet McMahon '71, who worked with the Office of Student Affairs in filling the intern post.

Faculty Newsmakers

William F. Swindler, John Marshall Professor of Law, is the author of an article, "The Trials of Aaron Burr," which will appear in the forthcoming issue of the Supreme Court Historical Society Yearbook. The article is derived from a chapter on the Burr treason trial which appears in his book, The Constitution and Chief Justice Marshall, which is to be published by Dodd, Mead and Company of New York early in 1978.

An essay by Carl Dolmetsch, English, entitled "Tucker's 'Hermit of the Mountain' Essays: Prolegomenon for a Collected Edition" appears in Essays in Early Virginia Literature Honoring Richard Beale Davis, edited by J. A. Leo Lemay, recently published by Burt Franklin & Co., Inc., of New York. In his essay Dolmetsch outlines from extant correspondence the circumstances of composition of 22 Addisonian essays by St. George Tucker in 1811 and 1813 which have remained in unpublished manuscripts in the Tucker-Coleman Collection of Swem Library and he describes his scheme and rationale, following closely Tucker's intentions, for the publication of a collected edition of these works.

Anthropology Professor Mario D. Zamora presented a paper entitled "A New Frontier: A Philippine Founder's Career" or "Is the Native Father Legitimate?" at the 76th annual meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Houston, Texas, Nov. 29-Dec. 3. During the conference, Zamora presided over the first meeting of the Third World Anthropologists Association of America, which he founded. He also coordinated a program honoring one of America's outstanding anthropological theorists, Morris Opler, who is retiring this year from the University of Oklahoma. Seven former presidents of the American Anthropological Association, including Margaret Mead, attended the program, held Dec. 1 in Houston.

The November issue of American Literature contains an article entitled "Politics and Poetics: The Reception of Melville's Battle-Pieces and Aspects of the War," by English Professor Robert J. Scholnick.

Emeric Fischer, professor of law, recently participated in a seminar in Bermuda sponsored by the Virginia State Bar, speaking on the subject of "Corporate Funding Through ESOP (Employee Stock Ownership Plans)." He also was appointed by the governor's office to serve as one of the Virginia delegates to the annual conference of the National Tax Association in Louisville, Ky.

English Professor Peter Klappert's poem, "Thank God the Other Side has Generals Too," is scheduled for publication in the fifth anniversary issue of Parnassus: Poetry in Review.

A section of Klappert's book manuscript "The Idiot Princess of the Last Dynasty" and an essay on it by Stratis Haviaris, librarian of the Lamont Poetry Room at Harvard and winner of this year's Houghton-Mifflin literary fellowship, will appear in the January issue of Agni Review.

Klappert will be resident fellow at the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts at Sweet Briar, January 2-15, when he intends to complete the manuscript for "The Idiot Princess."

Prize-winning Decorations Help Support Choir's Trip

The Christmas season brought more assistance to the William and Mary Choir in its efforts to raise money for a 23-day trip to England and Europe beginning May 16. Mary Gonzales of Williamsburg presented a $100 check to Choir member Ben F. Kellan III for winning one of the top awards in Colonial Williamsburg's 1977 Historic Area Christmas Decorations Contest. Mrs. Gonzales and her husband Don (left), a vice president for Colonial Williamsburg, paid the Choir to decorate their home, The Robert Carter House, and then, in addition, donated the prize money. The Choir worked out a prize-winning design of boxwood, cranberry strings and pomegranates. In addition, the Choir performed an outdoor concert for the Merchants Square Association, netting another $100. In the Choir's biggest project, members have sold nearly 100,000 Christmas and notecards. They still have about 6000 available at $3.50 for a box of 25, including envelopes. Later this year, the Choir will sponsor two pancake breakfasts at the Southern Pancake House in Williamsburg. The Choir trip will include France, Switzerland, Germany, the Netherlands, and England. Others in the photograph are Choir Director Frank Lendrim and Choir members Ruth Anne Council and Timothy E. Allmand Jr.

Linda Lavin Leads Campaign To Support W&M Theatre

Star of Television's "Alice" Writes Letters to 2,000 Theatre Alumni

Linda Lavin '57, award-winning actress and star of the top-rated television series "Alice," has accepted a new role from her alma mater: helping The William and Mary Theatre find the "angels" it needs to maintain its high standards in education programs and theatrical productions.

As chairman of this special project in support of the Theatre, Linda has written a letter to 2,000 alumni who have participated in the Theatre, asking them to make possible the publication of The William and Mary Theatre: 50 Years by Howard Scammon, Professor Emeritus of Theatre and Speech.

Contributions will not only help to defray the publishing costs of The William and Mary Theatre: 50 Years, but also give financial support to William and Mary Theatre and the Campaign for the College. According to Howard Scammon, "If we could pay the publishing costs, then the proceeds from every book we sell will go directly to the Althea Hunt Theatre Enrichment Fund, to bring in visiting productions." Established in 1974 by Anna Belle Koenig Nimmo '45 to honor Miss Hunt's memory, financial support from this fund enables the Theatre and Speech Department to augment its programs of plays, musicals, professional productions and guest speakers each year.

Most people don't realize that The William and Mary Theatre is not subsidized. This is the first time in its history that the Theatre is asking its patrons and alumni for financial assistance, having relied entirely on ticket sales to support its operations.

The William and Mary Theatre: 50 Years is a chronicle of the two hundred-plus productions at William and Mary since 1926, with an original play program and one photograph from each play and musical. By printing the programs, names of all the Theatre's participants both onstage and backstage are listed, as a tribute to all the people associated with the growth of The William and Mary Theatre. Through its publication, Howard Scammon also hopes to preserve a historical record of the development of the Theatre into the outstanding educational theatre it is today.

"It really has been a remarkable trip into the past," says Scammon, who has been working on this history since 1974. "When people see it, they'll realize that it is not just about The William and Mary Theatre, but the story of all educational theatres: the trends in playwriting, in costume, lighting and scene design, and styles of directing and acting."

Howard Scammon has had a unique vantage point from which to watch the Theatre grow: first as a student and then as a professor. He came to the College in 1929 and studied under Dr. Althea Hunt, who founded the Theatre in 1926 as its first teacher and its director for 31 years. He returned to join her on the Theatre staff in 1948.

As a professor of theatre and well-known Director of the William and Mary Theatre, Scammon has been part of its development for three decades and he often talked with Miss Hunt about the early productions of the 20's and 30's. "I really think, much as I hate the expression, that I am a link between the past and the present," says Scammon. "I also think, if this history is not done, that there won't be any testimony to the people who have made William and Mary Theatre a nationally recognized theatre in the educational and professional world."

Assisting Howard Scammon is Peter Logan '75, a former theatre concentrator who has edited tapes of Scammon's comments on the Theatre's development through the years that will appear in The William and Mary Theatre: 50 Years.

Donors who make a gift or pledge of $100 or more will receive a complimentary copy of The William and Mary Theatre: 50 Years following its publication in the spring. Scammon has already received several donations toward the book's publication as a result of trips to Boston and New York, and he has written many of his former students asking for more.

"I'm right on the warpath, like the William and Mary Indian," he says. "Either they contribute, or I'll scalp them."

Cabell Foundation Supports Law School

Gift will Expand New Courtroom into One of Nation's Best

The Robert C. Cabell III and Maude Morgan Cabell Foundation of Richmond has given the Marshall-Wythe Law School at the College a $65,000 grant to expand its new courtroom into one of the most modern judicial facilities in the country.

Governor William H. Cabell, who served 1805-1808, received the first law degree in America from William and Mary in 1793. The gift by the family Foundation established by his descendants will assist the College to expand the courtroom by more than 1,000 square feet and to install advanced communications equipment. The College is currently seeking additional gifts to complete the project.

The experimental moot courtroom will be the central feature of the law school's new $5.1 million building, which was funded by the bond issue approved by Virginia voters last November.

The new courtroom will be designed to accommodate video-taping equipment that many experts predict will help improve the speed and efficiency of the judicial process. Currently, one of the greatest problems faced by judicial systems across the nation is the increasing cost of conducting a trial and training court reporters. Studies by the National Center for State Courts have concluded that modern methods of telecommunications may be one solution to the mounting problems.

The courtroom will be designed to serve as a proving ground for procedures initially tested in mock trials. Telecommunications methods demonstrated and tested by William and Mary students will be evaluated in terms of accuracy, integrity and quality of video recordings. Studies will be made to determine whether the cost of videotaping procedures are more or less than those associated with the traditional approach.

Videotaping of mock trials will also enable Marshall-Wythe students to observe themselves and to analyze their performances in the courtroom environment they will likely encounter in their practices. Though new to the training of lawyers, videotaping of student performance has been used successfully for several years by the William and Mary School of Education.

The College is expected to work closely with experts at the National Center for State Courts, which is adjacent to the site of the new law school building. The National Center building was recently completed and special opening ceremonies are scheduled for this March. The site for the law school building has been prepared and construction of the building will begin early this year.

Alumni Board Holds Meeting At College

At top, outgoing Society President Jean Canoles Bruce '49 (right) wishes good luck to the incoming officers, elected at the January meeting of the Board of Directors. Left to right are Denys Grant '58, treasurer; Patricia King Sell '58, secretary; Harriet Nachman Storm '64, president, and Jack Garrett Jr. '40, vice president. At left, Mrs. Bruce is bussed by retiring Board member Glen McCaskey '63 after she presented him with a gift from the Society, a brick appropriately decorated with a bronze plaque recognizing his service to the Society; and below, President Graves meets with the Board of Directors, including Mrs. Storm (left), Mrs. Bruce, and R. Bradshaw Pulley '39. Other administrators who met with the Board were William J. Carter, vice president for business affairs; Ben L. Carnevale, athletic director; Millie West, chairman of women's physical education; Joseph Healey, Associate dean for extramural affairs; Ross Weeks, director of Information Services, and William McGoldrick, director of special giving.

Harriet Nachman Storm Takes Reins of Busy Board of Directors

Harriet Nachman Storm '64 of Hampton, Va., was elected President of the Society of the Alumni at the Board of Directors' semi-annual meeting at the Alumni House on Jan. 19-20.

Other new officers are John H. Garrett Jr. '40 of Irvington, Va., vice president; Patricia King Sell '58 of La Jolla, Calif., secretary; and Denys Grant '58, Richmond, treasurer.

The retiring officers are Jean Canoles Bruce '49, Norfolk, president; R. Bradshaw Pulley '39, Virginia Beach, vice president; Mrs. Storm, secretary, and John F. Morton Jr. '58, New Orleans, treasurer.

The Board honored retiring members -- Morton, William L. Person '24 of Williamsburg, and Glen E. McCaskey '63 of Hilton Head Island, S.C. -- with service certificates and retirement gifts -- bricks taken from the basement of the Alumni House during the remodeling and appropriately decorated with bronze plaques recognizing the three members for their efforts in the establishment of the Alumni House and for their more than six years of services as members of the Board.

Mrs. Marilyn Miller Entwisle '44, Dr. Marvin West '52, and R. Stanley Hudgins '43 joined the Board as the new members at the conclusion of the two-day meeting, replacing retiring members Morton, Person, and McCaskey.

The Board took a number of other actions during its meeting. They included:

*Approved initial plans for the 1978 Alumni College which is set for the week of June 4-10, with the theme of Historical Archaeology. With attendance limited to 30 persons, the Alumni College will use the facilities of the Virginia Research Center for Archaeology and of Colonial Williamsburg.

*Approved and funded an Alumni Chapters Officers Workshop and Leadership Conference for volunteer leaders associated with various alumni constituent groups of the College. No date for the meeting was established.

*Approved assistance to the Career Advisory Service, a program to help develop career counseling programs using alumni active in vocations of interest to undergraduates, and financial assistance to support the 1978 Journalist-in-Residence pro-

Denys Jacobs, '63 Dies in England

Denys Jacobs, '63, lecturer in history at the University of Exeter, England, and visiting professor of history at William and Mary from 1974-75, died of an apparent heart attack, recently in England.

In addition to the year he spent on campus, Jacobs was a visiting faculty member during the summer of 1973. He was very active in campus and community activities during his stay. He was an enthusiastic squash and handball player and was a member of the Williamsburg Players production of "Outward Bound."

His teaching interests included English history, 1660-1832. He also worked with the Exeter faculty exchange program.

gram, sponsored by the Society of Collegiate Journalists.

*Took special notice of the continuing successful development of the Society's merchandising program, reviewing new products now offered and anticipated new offerings for the next six months. The Board noted the sale of peanuts and the William and Mary Hitchcock chair, both of which have been highly successful, and approved the sale of a new William and Mary watch.

*Urged continued growth and development of chapter programs which the Board viewed as creative, productive and "out-reaching" to alumni who have an interest in the Society and the College. The Board emphasized a strengthening of communications with alumni and the use of questionnaires in the Alumni Gazette to identify areas of alumni interest.

*Endorsed upcoming travel programs to Bermuda, Rome, Switzerland, and Paris-Moselle, river trip.

*Reviewed the nominations for the Alumni Medallion. All alumni are urged to nominate deserving members of the Society, using the form printed elsewhere in this issue of the Alumni Gazette.

*Reviewed Homecoming activities. While no major changes are planned for 1978, the board gave strong support to the tennis tournament inaugurated last fall. The Board took note that several classes which had enthusiastic reunions last year have voiced an interest in continuing the gathering this fall. Such programs will have to be conducted largely by a class committee, but will receive staff support from the Alumni Office. Plans for the 50th Reunion of the Class of 1928 were reviewed and members will be contacted in February with the first news of the event, planned for the weekend of May 14.

*Took note of the formation of several new chapters as part of the chapter development program. Alumni interested in forming alumni groups in various areas of the nation are urged to contact Minta McNally at the Alumni Office.

*Determined, after considerable discussion over the past two years, to proceed with the automation of the records of the Society, including address and biographical information. Several ways in which this will be of assistance to the Society in its role of service to the College, to individual alumni and to chapter groups were cited as strong reasons for finalizing such a transition.

The Board joined in several discussion groups to review short-range, long-range goals of the Society and the relationship of the Society and the College.

Alumni Directory Questionnaire

Students at William and Mary worked with the Office of College Development in early January to mail out some 30,000 questionnaires to alumni to gather information for the first fully comprehensive, international Alumni Directory, which will be published this fall under agreement with the Bernard C. Harris Publishing Co. of White Plains, N.Y. The publication will be made available exclusively to alumni of the College, and the data used by the publishing company will be returned to William and Mary. President Graves enclosed a letter urging alumni to fill out the questionnaire and return it promptly to the College.

Job Opening DIRECTOR FOR ANNUAL GIVING

Creative individual with skills in communicating wanted to manage the several annual giving programs of the College, including the general alumni fund; the programs of the Schools of Business, Law, and Education; and the Parents Fund. Annual Giving staff includes Assistant Director and secretary and is supported by a fully-staffed Office of Development Services.

Qualifications: College degree and six years of development/public relations experience.

Salary: Starting salary of $15,000 with range to $20,500.

Send applications to Director of Personnel, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

Application deadline: February 20.

An Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer.

Wren Building Desks

The Society has obtained one each of the Wren Building desks, which sold for $100.00 or $125.00, depending on style, in 1975. Any alumni interested in purchasing one of the desks should call John Phillips, 804-229-7545.

A Plea for The Environment

Dear Editor:

As a May, 1977 graduate of Marshall-Wythe School of Law, I receive the Alumni Gazette.

I found the article on Prof. Whitney's exploits absolutely revolting. At a time when such beautiful creatures as tigers, lions, leopards and elephants are rapidly becoming extinct, it is a disgrace to honor a man who takes pride in hastening their destruction.

To allow a man who obviously has no consideration for protecting the environment to teach the course in environmental law shows a gross insensitivity to the needs of our world's ecological system.

Sincerely,

Ardath Hamann
Lake Forest, Ill.

Thumbs Down To Hunters

Dear Editor:

My wife and I must protest the inclusion of one Professor Scott Whitney's hobby in your recent issue of the Gazette on professors' leisure activities. In a time of environmental and conservation concerns, the publicizing (and, implicitly, the condoning) of big-game hunting seems to us a sadly backward step. Although we accept the idea that one should be able to follow his or her activities freely, we do feel that you and your staff could be more selective in those that you celebrate. We hope that you will display more discretion in future issues.

Yours truly,

William H. Young, '62

Alumna Recalls King's Exploits

Dear Editor:

I enjoyed the class of '26 letters in the last issue very much. I would like to add a bit and suggest a humanized or humorized version of Dr. King's exploits be written and published by the Gazette.

In 1927 as June approached, I could not possibly fit all my finals into a conflicting schedule, so Dr. King suggested and authorized removal of a chronic appendix in Newport News (it cost a total of $50) so finals could be given me during the summer session. While recuperating in Newport News, we saw Lindbergh's ship being escorted up the bay with much fanfare. Shortly after my return to Morgan Hall a week after the appendectomy, on a double date in my model T Ford, we stopped at Lake Matoaka for, I think, a gallon of white lightning (50¢, perhaps it was only a half gallon), then we drove on down to Jamestown. Shortly seepage from adhesions ran, and thinking the stitching had come open, I rushed back to the infirmary where, in due course, Dr. King, to his own amusement, put one white pan between my legs marked "L," another "K," etc., so he could put my liver in the first, kidney in the next, etc., and warned me - no more dates or he could not reassemble me so easily until he removed the stitches. Then he tested the "white lightning" to be sure it was safe!

On another occasion a few of us went to Suffolk over night with Dr. Hall who you may recall was a very studious type without much humor to English students in his class, so far as I was concerned. While in this little rooming house (called a hotel) that evening, the manager pleaded for help in finding a doctor for a pregnant lady, also a guest transient. We suggested, being strangers, that we knew no one, but Dr. Hall was in his room and might be helpful or know some one locally who could be. When Dr. John Leslie Hall, translator of Beowulf, came downstairs with the manager after seeing the patient, he was ashen, shaken and embarrassed by his visitation, much to our private amusement.

Incidentally, I sent some nostalgic photos to the Swem Library, including one of the black at Lake Matoaka who ran the still and supplied Paget's man (who collected shoes for repair, tailoring, bets, and sold liquor at 75¢ a Mason jar full) as he shouted, "Paget's man" walking through Monroe Hall.

This service too must now be long gone?

Cordially,

Leonard Loth Born '27

Aceto Dinners Worth $200

Dear Editor:

We really enjoyed the article on Hank Aceto. Unfortunately, no words can possibly do justice to his culinary talents. In spite of his uncharacteristically modest protest, he is indeed a gourmet cook!

We count ourselves lucky to have been regular guests in the Aceto household. His incredible dinners (including the one which finally began at 11 p.m., due to the osso bucco mix-up, as described in your article) are just one of the things which we miss about Williamsburg.

If the College really wants to raise money, turn Hank Aceto loose in the kitchen, with some trusty helpers, fill the Great Hall with gourmands and charge them $200.00 for the evening. It would be worth every penny.

Sincerely,

Letty and Jim ('63) Cash
St. Louis, Mo.

Editor's Notebook

William and Mary's programs of intercollegiate athletics landed in the national spotlight several times in early winter--a phenomenon which drew mixed emotions on campus.

Articles elsewhere in this Alumni Gazette report on the details of the various major news stories:

* First, there was the overblown news account of a preliminary recommendation that William and Mary drop football altogether. The recommendation, presented for discussion purposes by the faculty-student Committee on Athletic Policy, was framed in the light of a 1974 Board of Visitors policy which would end mandatory student financial support for intercollegiate, revenue-producing teams by 1979. The news report was published coast-to-coast, and some sports columnists turned the possibility into a certainty in later commentary.

* Then, the Indians shocked the basketball world by upsetting second-ranked University of North Carolina at William and Mary Hall. The upset was the major basketball story throughout the country and made big headlines even in Puerto Rico.

* The selection of John Lowenhaupt as Sports Illustrated's player-of-the-week and news of two tournament wins by the basketball Indians brought more national exposure to William and Mary's athletics.

* The Board of Visitors' clear-cut decision to maintain the present Division I football program, despite future financial uncertainties, also was published throughout the country, only two weeks after the story circulated about the possibility of dropping football.

* In mid-January, national exposure of a different kind came to the College's athletic programs. At the Atlanta meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), William and Mary was recognized for the breadth of its total program of intercollegiate athletics--the number of teams it fields in a variety of sports. The recognition was implied in the NCAA's decision to allow William and Mary to remain in the so-called "super division," Division I-A of the association. That division had been reserved for the major athletic powerhouses with large stadiums and budgets.

But William and Mary, Colgate and the Ivy League universities joined in a successful, widely publicized move to broaden the scope of the I-A division by including institutions which field teams in at least 12 intercollegiate sports, whether or not they play big-time football.

This last nationally-reported "upset" of a different sort is the first time that the total William and Mary athletic program has been dramatized. One of the lesser-known facts in sports circles is that William and Mary has the broadest program of athletics of any college or university in Virginia.

The number of teams, both intercollegiate and intramural, receiving financial support is a direct result of the 1974 Board of Visitors decision to make available the broadest possible range of opportunities for William and Mary students to participate in sports as an important part of the total educational program.

Administering such a diverse program is not an easy job, but both Ben Carnevale and Millie West manage to make the most of limited financing, accelerating State accounting restrictions, and sometimes inadequate facilities.

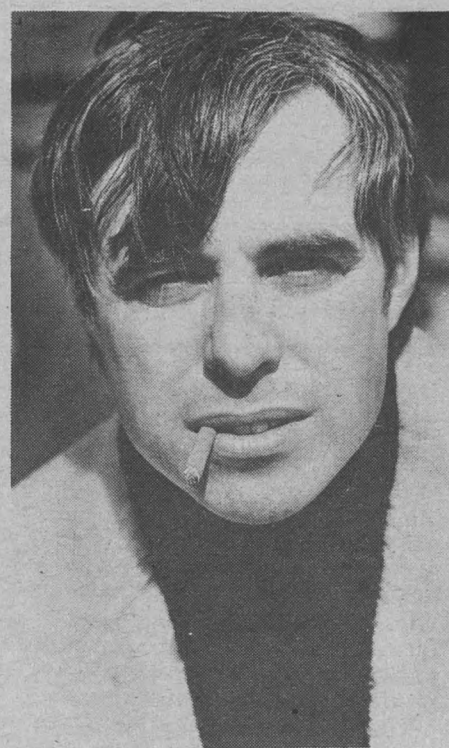

Carnevale's job, especially, involves important public relations responsibilities--trying to explain complex financial factors when vocal coaches and their supporters demand quick answers to problems that, a few years ago, were more simply resolved. Ben undertakes this job with patience, good humor and diplomacy--with the sportsmanlike personality that has made his reputation as one of the best in the nation.

Not many laymen, and certainly not the sports press, can comprehend the sophisticated budgeting and costing procedures which have been developed in the last few years to administer intercollegiate athletics. Fees must be paid from athletic revenues and gifts to cover office space, telephone services, accounting support, maintenance, use of Cary Field and William and Mary Hall, and so forth, and it all represents a dollar drain for the various coaches. It also makes developing and administering the athletic budget for such a broad range of sports a special challenge for Carnevale and his staff.

A Maverick Editor Takes Over Times Books

A Classic Case of Survival of the Fittest in the Print Jungle

When he was five years old, young Tom Lipscomb '61 was fascinated with dirigibles, those huge balloons which were supposedly going to revolutionize the aviation industry.

Some thirty years later, dirigibles were all but forgotten--except by Lipscomb, by then the head of a large publishing firm. Playing a hunch, he contacted an unknown author to write a book on history's most famous dirigible, the Hindenburg. What resulted was a controversial bestseller and a big-budget motion picture starring George C. Scott.

It is not uncommon for a publisher to suggest a subject or plot for a book--Mutiny on the Bounty, in fact, was developed from an idea suggested by an editor of a publishing firm. The best editors, says Lipscomb, maintain a special "department of useless information" somewhere deep in their subconscious, which in rare cases provides the substance for a future bestseller.

After about 20 years of dazzling success intertwined with overnight disaster in one of the most erratic, unpredictable and exciting occupations in the world, Lipscomb seems at home in a posh Park Avenue office. For the last 18 months, he's been president of Times Books, a medium-size publishing firm which markets everything from cookbooks to complex investigations of the "divided German soul."

Lipscomb describes himself as "a real pain in the neck." He keeps a close eye on the projects of all 34 of his staff members, and personally has a hand in selecting everything from the jacket design to the weight of the paper stock. "Things have to come together in just the right way," explains Lipscomb, "and we have to be sure we place our items in the right market at exactly the right time."

Lipscomb's keen sense of timing has always been one of his strong points. It started when he applied for his first real job, a post in the foreign service, and received a letter of acceptance stipulating it would be three months before the job would open up. To put meat on the table, he grabbed a stop-gap sales position with a publishing firm. His sales territory covered nearly the entire eastern seaboard. "I had the time of my life," says Lipscomb. "When the state department finally sent me my official certificate and said they were ready for me to start work as a vice-consul, I wrote back and said sorry, I've decided to become a traveling salesman."

During the next two years, Lipscomb developed a reputation as a smooth operator, an aggressive worker who was ready to climb the managerial ladder with leaps and bounds. Then one night, when he was peacefully resting at the Williamsburg Inn, the bellhop slipped a cable under the door with some unfortunate news. A large corporation had just purchased the small publishing firm Lipscomb worked for--and the boy wonder had been fired.

A temporary setback. Several months later, Lipscomb was an executive for another firm assigned to land the rights to Che Guevara's memoirs in a bullet-ridden Latin America. "The negotiations were incredible, and everyone knew they were in danger of being killed at any minute," remembers Lipscomb.

By the time he was 32, Lipscomb had worked for four publishing firms and served as the youngest editor-in-chief in America. For a short period, he was a partner in his own publishing firm, Mason and Lipscomb, followed by a two-year stint as a corporate investment counselor.

He's clawed an irregular path through the "print jungle" to arrive at the prestigious New York Times book division. In recent years, Times Books has introduced an expanded fiction list and tackled some of the most controversial non-fiction topics of the seventies. Two books investigating the search for Nazis in America and the faults of the DC-10 jet have resulted in multi-million dollar law suits. Yet Lipscomb claims the Times legal staff stands behind the policy of publishing "strong, important books that say something new."

At the same time, Lipscomb is staying on top of "literary fashions," i.e., what makes money in today's market. Times Books recently published Life on the Run by basketball star Bill Bradley, and Tess Slesinger's On Being Told That Her Second Husband Has Taken His First Lover. One of Lipscomb's top executives, Marsha Magill '48, has personally supervised the preparation of Compromising Positions, a new novel by Susan Isaacs.

Although not yet 40, Lipscomb is indeed a veteran. He's been hired and fired several times--for good and bad reasons--but still claims to possess an undying love and respect for the industry.

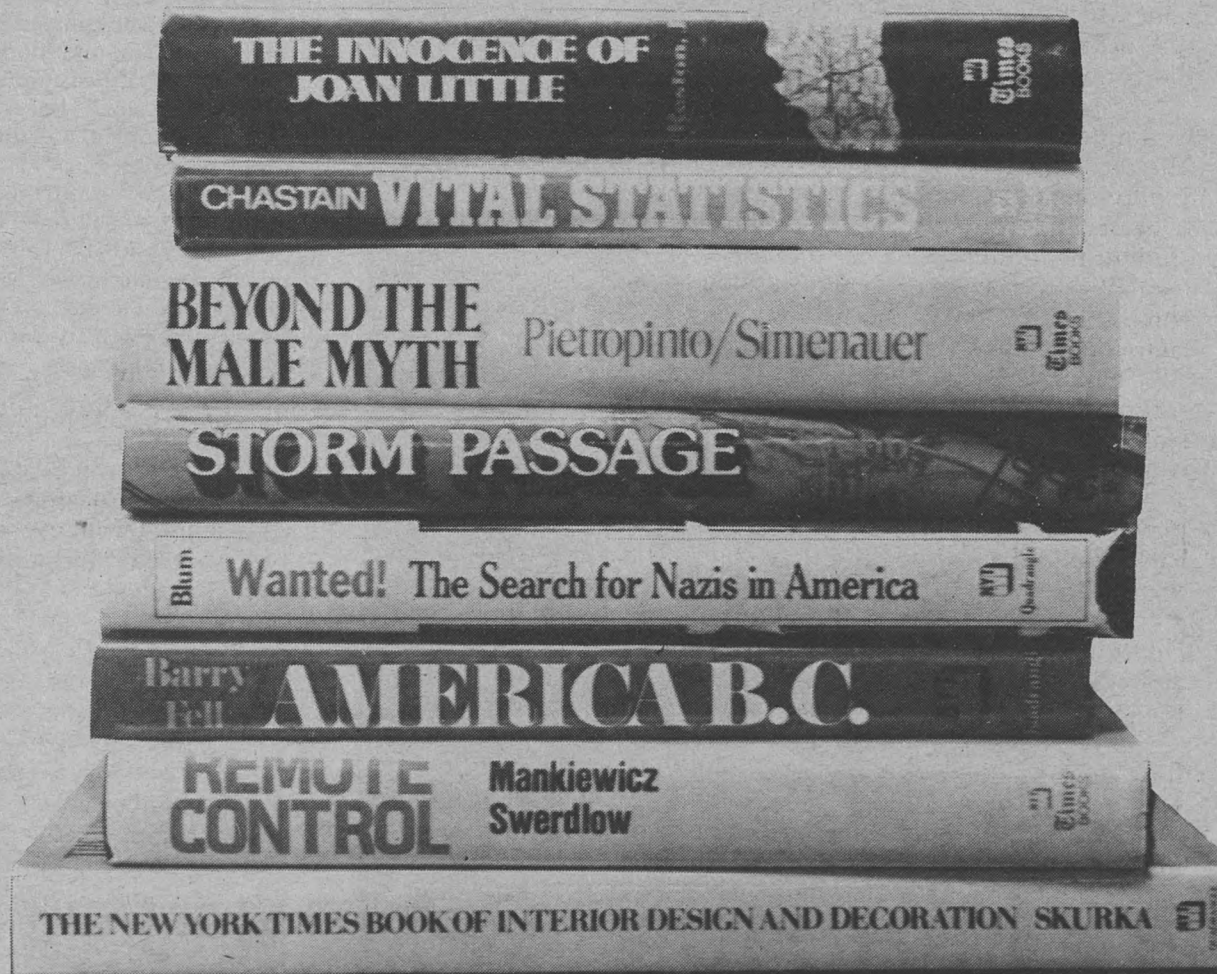

It's a love and respect that has its origin in Lipscomb's experiences as an English major at William and Mary.

Although he admits the department existed in "a state of creative chaos," Lipscomb remembers Professor Carl Dolmetsch as "an incredibly methodical and insightful teacher who communicated a great awareness of what American publishing is all about." Lipscomb particularly recalls Dolmetsch's description of Herman Melville, one of America's most celebrated authors, who was forced to serve as a customs inspector to feed his family when his "classics" would not sell.

Today, Lipscomb's greatest joy comes when he publishes a bestseller by an unknown author--when someone deserves to strike it rich, and then actually does.

Why Do Some Parents Know What It's Like Attending William and Mary?

Because They've Been There.

Of the more than one thousand students in this year's freshman class, at least 89 came to William and Mary with some well developed ideas about the College and what it has to offer. They are the sons and daughters of William and Mary alumni.

Some say they came because of their parents' experience here. F. Scott Bane, Bedford, Va., had a double reason for choosing William and Mary--both his father, W. F. Bane '56, and his mother, Mary Buford Bane '57, are graduates. "We talked about it all along," said Scott. "I guess I wanted to follow in their footsteps. I liked the small size of the school. Even though it offered a great program, it wasn't huge like other State schools. I wanted a chance to get to know most of the other people here."

At least one student came in spite of his heritage. Not only did John Russell Redmond's parents--Carolyn Canoles '57 and Russell Joseph Redmond '55 of Virginia Beach--both graduates from the College, but so did an Aunt, two uncles and two cousins.

"Because the rest of my family had come here, I didn't really want to continue the tradition," said Redmond. When another choice for college fell through, however, he decided to come to William and Mary after all. Does he have any regrets about the way things worked out? Not really, he says. He's currently interested in the College's pre-med and pre-law courses.

Many of the 89 freshmen say that, while their parents' experience was a factor in their choosing William and Mary, it wasn't necessarily the major reason.

George Granville Tankard III of Fairfax has a sister, Mary, who is a senior here this year, and his father also attended the College.

"I got to know the campus when I visited my sister," he said, "but it's not like I was automatically going to come to William and Mary. I just decided I liked the campus and the area and the small classes."

Nancy Jennings, daughter of Foster Jennings '42 of Richmond, said her father encouraged her to apply, but that she came because she "felt at home here." The size appealed to her as well. "It's big enough so the curriculum is good, but small enough so you can know a lot of your classmates," she said.

After a semester on campus, the students remain enthusiastic about their choice.

"I'm glad I came," said Elizabeth Dudley Campbell, whose mother, Elizabeth Saunders Campbell, is a 1956 graduate. "The atmosphere is friendly, and I like the close contact between professors and students," she said.

"Classes are really hard. You have to work for a 'C', but it's worth it," added Mary E. Bailey, daughter of Robert M. Bailey '56 of Lynchburg. "I'm not going to go anywhere else," she laughed.

"I like it a lot," said Scott Bane. "It's the people who make it great. I'd recommend it to others, but I'd tell them it's going to be tough."

"I didn't expect William and Mary to be so cosmopolitan," said Nancy Jennings. "I expected a State school to be more provincial, but the students come from a really diverse background, and the College offers a lot socially and culturally."

George Tankard said he was surprised to find his fellow students conservative in their political views, but he's pleased with his decision. It takes a special quality, he feels, to be a William and Mary student. "It takes someone who doesn't mind the competitive atmosphere," he said. "You don't need to be a bookworm, but you do need to be somewhat

As Usual, W&M Freshmen Prove to be "Extra Special"

This year's freshman class may produce a good number of journalists and a fair share of publishers, musicians and athletes as well as scholars in 1981 if students continue the wide range of interests they have brought to the university.

Selected from over 5,600 applicants, the class of 1981 includes 120 valedictorians and salutatorians, over 800 National Honor Society members, National Merit winners, finalists and commendation recipients; over 600 band, orchestra and choral group members; 519 public speakers and debaters; and 668 editors and staff members from high school newspapers, yearbooks and magazines.

Almost all of the 1050 members of the freshman class participated in one or more school-related extra-curricular activities before coming to college, and 637 participated in four or more.

There are 211 varsity team captains included in the class and 95 cheerleaders. Members also list 1500 memberships on a variety of athletic teams.

While the number of applications for admission remains high, the mean total score for scholastic aptitude test for entering students is also up, from 1190 last year to 1191 this year. Applications were up significantly from the 1976 figure of 4,878. The mean grade point average for transfer students was 3.36 on a scale of 4.00.

Sixty-nine percent of the entering class is from Virginia with the next largest contingent coming from the middle Atlantic states. Of the Virginians, 31 percent are from the northern area, including Alexandria, Arlington, Falls Church and Fairfax County. Tidewater, Richmond and the Peninsula are equally represented with 12 percent and Piedmont, 6 percent.

According to financial data collected, 19 percent of the entering class received grants or loans averaging $1,640 per student. A total of $324,697 in grants and loans from all sources has been offered entering students this year.

Robert Hunt, dean of Admissions, is pleased with William and Mary's competitive stance in the field of admissions. He says he cannot point to any one factor which has contributed to the substantial rise in the number of applications this year.

The presidential debate of October 22, 1976 turned the national spotlight on the university; also last year the admissions staff stepped up its efforts in contacting prospective students. These, said Hunt, may have been factors in the increase of applications.

George Granville Tankard III of Fairfax, Va., and Nancy Eppes Jennings of Richmond, Va., in the Grammar School Room of the Christopher Wren Building.

serious to be successful."

In the group as a whole, there are 37 men and 52 women. Sixty are from Virginia, while 29 are from out of state.

The 89 were among 5617 applicants who competed for 1052 places in this year's freshman class. Applications were up 15 per cent this year over last, according to Robert Hunt, dean of admissions, and the quality of applications remained as strong as it traditionally has been, he said.

Being the child of an alumnus gives applicants an added advantage in the face of such stiff competition.

The College admissions policy, adopted in 1973, states that "other considerations being essentially equal, preference will be given to the applications of children of alumni of all schools of the college."

Applications from alumni children are given special consideration. Those who might not be accepted through the regular admissions process are considered by an eight-member Admissions Review Committee of faculty members and professional admissions staff. Alumni office personnel are also given an opportunity to provide information to the committee.

Dean Hunt stresses that academic ability is given top priority in admissions decisions, but says "we try to be sensitive to alumni children and try to admit as many as possible, provided their educational credentials are comparable to other applicants'."

Hunt points out that, of the 5617 freshman applicants for 1977-78, only 35 per cent (1,956) were accepted for admission. Of those applicants, 218 were from alumni children, and 56 per cent (123) were offered admission to the College.

For those who choose William and Mary, there's an added advantage to being the son or daughter of a graduate. Michael Fones says, "I'm glad I came, but it's quite hard. At first I thought everyone was kidding when they said how hard it was. That's one advantage to your parents' having been here. They understand exactly what it's like."

Just Getting The Job Done

Parkhill's Indians are Calm, Cool and Collected -- and Surprisingly Hard to Beat

Dick Lamb is an articulate, urbane TV talk show host not given to a loss for words. He's also the voice of the William and Mary basketball team which is going through what Lamb calls "the most exciting basketball season I can ever remember."

After William and Mary's fourth 1-point victory of the season -- a 77-76 defeat of East Carolina in which the Indians rallied from 13 points behind -- Lamb simply sat back at his microphone in Greenville, N.C., and asked incredulously: "How'd we do that?"

A lot of the William and Mary faithful have been wondering the same thing. With a new coach, the youngest head basketball college coach in the nation, and a team not blessed with unusual talent, the Indians have:

*Run up the longest winning streak -- 8 victories in a row -- in 25 years at William and Mary.

*Won two major tournaments, the first by any basketball team in Tribe history.

*Defeated Atlantic Coast Conference power North Carolina, the No. 2-rated team in the nation and last year's opponent against national champion Marquette in the NCAA championship game.

*Won 11 of 15 games (as of late January) and nine of their first 10 in the best start by any William and Mary basketball team since 1948.

In Lamb's words, "How'd we do that?"

The team credits 27-year-old head coach Bruce Parkhill, whom assistant coach Tom Brennan says the players "would go to war for."

Parkhill, who attributes the overall success to team defense, has instilled a professional, class attitude into the Indians who certainly must rate as the most intelligent basketball team in America. They don't play on emotion; rather they go out and do their job. Even when the Indians get behind, they believe in each other, and although they have one of the finest players in the nation on their team in forward John Lowenhaupt, the Indians first and foremost play team ball.

"All basketball is," says Lowenhaupt, the team's top scorer, "is to make the easy shots for the team. That's our philosophy this year. We don't have great talent, but it's why we are shooting over 50 per cent."

A second reason for the Tribe's success, of course, is Lowenhaupt himself. Averaging 20 points a game, the senior forward is among the top five field goal marksmen in the nation (at 69 per cent) and among the top 15 free throw shooters (90 per cent). Lowenhaupt is a team player almost to a fault; in the East Carolina game in which the Tribe trailed by 11 points at the half, Lowenhaupt took only four shots in the first half but made three of them.

In both tournament victories (The Cougar Classic at Brigham Young and the Tangerine Bowl in Florida) Lowenhaupt was named the Most Valuable Player. Sports Illustrated named him National Player of the Week after the Cougar Classic, and he received a similar honor from the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference.

A third reason for the Tribe's success can be traced to the North Carolina victory, perhaps the greatest sports victory in William and Mary history. Nobody gave the Indians a prayer of defeating the Tar Heels, but they went out and played flawlessly, taking the lead early in the first half, running up an 11-point bulge at one point in the game, and holding on in the final minutes in the face of a scoring onslaught by North Carolina's miraculous guard Phil Ford.

"The North Carolina game proved to us that we were really a good team," says Lowenhaupt. "It gave us the confidence we needed to win."

Lowenhaupt's efforts have been admirably supplemented by three other seniors on the team -- guards Mike Enoch and Jack Arbogast and forward Skip Parnell, who stepped in when John Kratzer was sidelined by illness. Despite his size (6-4), Parnell has been superb under the basket, grabbing around 7 rebounds a game against much taller opponents and scoring an average 10 points.

The Tribe won its first game of the season against Virginia Commonwealth University, but suffered a loss to St. Joseph's of Philadelphia in the championship game of the Spider Classic in Richmond. After that loss, the Indians unreeled eight straight victories before East Carolina upset them in William and Mary Hall and Rutgers' powerful Scarlet Knights defeated them in New Jersey.

Back home, the Tribe buried Richmond 75-43, leading at one point by 40 points at 55-15. The Indians then traveled to Greenville to defeat East Carolina before returning home for a loss to American University.

Now that William and Mary has withdrawn from the Southern Conference, the basketball team is hoping for an at-large berth in the ECAC elimination round, which is a first step to the NCAA tournament. Only two teams will be chosen from William and Mary's region (the Southern), and Georgetown, another independent, appears to have one spot all but sewed up. That means the Indians have a tough road to hoe throughout the rest of the season, but their sterling performance thus far shows the Indians are more than up to it.

Finding a Way to Fund Athletics

Board Reaffirms Pledge to Fund A Strong Division I Teams

The Board of Visitors is expected to decide in February how to provide long-term financial support for William and Mary's intercollegiate athletic programs, especially football.

The policy decision is expected at its February 24-25 meeting. At its December meeting, the Board of Visitors declared that William and Mary would continue to maintain a strong, Division I football program.

The December statement was issued to reassure coaches, team members and prospective recruits--as well as fans--that no further thought would be given to the possibility of dropping football altogether.

The idea of dropping football, which drew national publicity, came in a preliminary report of the College's Committee on Athletic

Santa Predicts Upset of UNC

William and Mary has been making the pages of Sports Illustrated frequently in recent weeks. The January 9 issue carried the following anecdote in its "Scoreboard" section:

"When Bill Scott, a William and Mary football player, dressed up as Santa Claus for the basketball game against North Carolina and handed out candy canes to the Tar Heel players and their coach, Dean Smith, Smith asked if Santa had anything else in his bag of goodies. 'Yes,' replied Scott. 'I have three points for William and Mary.' Final score: William and Mary 78, North Carolina 75."

Policy, a presidentially-appointed group of students, faculty and administrators.

According to the existing College Policy on Athletics, in 1979 men's intercollegiate revenue sports (the most costly being football) will lose about $180,000 when the mandatory student athletic fee is to be dropped. Without that money, the Committee concluded, William and Mary could no longer afford to play its present level of football. It also appeared, the Committee said, that gifts to athletics would decrease sharply if football were downgraded rather than eliminated, resulting in inadequate funding for even the modified program.

The Board's decision to maintain a Division I football program led the way for the College's selection as one of the participants in the new "super division" of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) in January. The new division, identified as Division I-A, includes all of the major football powers.

The NCAA originally had defined its Division I-A in terms of size of program and support; i.e., only universities owning 30,000-seat stadiums, with average game attendance of 17,000, would be included. A move by William and Mary, Colgate and the Ivy League universities succeeded in expanding Division I-A membership to include colleges having intercollegiate teams in 12 or more sports as an alternative requirement. The NCAA agreed, somewhat uncomfortably, to the compromise, and William and Mary remained in the top football division.

The new division also includes University of Virginia and VPI, by virtue of the 30,000-seat stadium requirement. VMI and the University of Richmond are expected to petition for membership in Division I-A on the basis of the 12-sport requirement, but they were not included in the original eligibility list drawn up by the NCAA officials.

Another decision facing the Board of Visitors is how to finance the improvement of Cary Field, which seats a maximum of 15,000. The stadium was built by the Federal Government in the early 1930s, as a Depression-era works project. It has increasingly shown the effects of age and use; crumbling concrete risers, leaking locker rooms, and general maintenance headaches.

According to some estimates, at least $1,000,000 would be required to renovate the existing stadium to bring it up to date and put it in good working order. Some believe another 5,000 seats should be built, at a cost of more than $2,000,000, but no adequate parking for more spectators is near Cary Field. A third school of thought suggests construction of a brand-new stadium, on another site, costing as much as $8,000,000. The question is whether even $1,000,000 in new money can be found (State funds are not available) for just renovation, let alone millions more for expansion or replacement.

Root Signs Five Players From Ferrum Junior College

Coach Jim Root has found a bonanza of football talent on the junior college level that should give him some instant help this fall.

Root signed five players from Ferrum College, the junior college national champions of 1977. They enrolled at William and Mary at midyear and will be eligible this fall.

Root signed on a junior college All-American defensive end, an outstanding center and tackle who should take up some of the slack left by the loss of the Indians' two centers from last season; two defensive backs, and a running back described by Root as "out of the same mold as Phil Mosser," the former Tribe fullback from Ferrum who set a number of William and Mary rushing records.

They are Richard Goode, the All-American defensive end who will team with Melvin Martin, another former Ferrum great; James Hodges and Kurt Shoemaker, two defensive backs who are especially welcome in wake of the loss to graduation of Scott Hayes and Joe Agee; Wayne Compton, a tailback who averaged 4 yards a carry for Ferrum, and Peter Pfeffer, who can play tackle as well as center.

All five athletes are from Virginia and all are outstanding students, according to Root. Hodges was a straight "A" student at Ferrum.

"They are quality young men who will be an immediate boost to our program," said Root.

Smith Named All-American

Ken Smith, William and Mary's two-time Academic All American defensive halfback, is one of 15 nationwide recipients of an NCAA post-graduate scholarship.

The NCAA, in notifying the Athletic Department of Smith's selection, stated the award "stands as a significant honor for the student and a tribute to your institution."

The $1,500 scholarship is to be used for graduate study, immediately following completion of the undergraduate degree. Smith, a pre-med student with a 3.8 average, is majoring in chemistry and psychology and plans to go to medical school.

A native of Mt. Holly, New Jersey, Smith led the football team in interceptions this past season with seven. He was a three-year starter at cornerback, after making the squad as a walk-on his freshman year and earning a scholarship in his second season.

In addition to his outstanding accomplishments on the football field, Smith is also one of the Tribe's starting pitchers on the baseball team.

We're No. 1

The flush of victory was so great after William and Mary defeated No. 2-rated North Carolina on Dec. 7 that even 9-week-old Ragan Bohannon Pulley got into the act. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Ragan Bradshaw Pulley, Jr., (Ragan is a member of the class of 1970), young Pulley signalled the No. 1 rating after his father listened to the game at his home in Winston-Salem, N.C., homestate of the vaunted Tar Heels. No doubt young Ragan was one of the few North Carolina residents who still could think clearly in wake of the stunning upset.

JAMES G. DRIVER FINE VIRGINIA FOODS Society of the Alumni P.O. Box GO, Williamsburg, Va. 23185

For over thirty years Mr. James Glenn Driver, '09, maintained a selective mail order business for a discriminating clientele interested in some of the fine foods for which the Old Dominion is so justly famous. Upon his death in the fall of 1975, Mr. Driver bequeathed his business "James G. Driver, Fine Virginia Foods", to the Society of the Alumni. The Society is pleased to now be able to extend to all alumni of the College of William and Mary the opportunity to enjoy these personally selected and recommended fine Virginia foods, prepared from time-tested traditional colonial recipes.

These include the genuine World-Famous Smithfield Ham, ready to carve and serve; Rockingham Smoked Turkey; Rappahanock Salt Roe Herring; Smithfield bacon by the slab; and assorted Smithfield meat spreads.

In addition we bring to your attention other items of quality merchandise especially designed and sold for the loyal alumnus. These items are for use and enjoyment as well as serving as a constant reminder of a close association that includes some very special times, events and close friends.

Alumni Notes

4213 Orchard Hill Road
Harrisburg, Pa. 17110

24 As usual there is a dearth of information about the Class of 1924, but here are a few items gleaned from Christmas cards and such.

An interesting Christmas letter came from Carter Harrison and Margo with a snapshot including two of their handsome teenage grandchildren.

Maude Purdy (Mrs. Robert F. Lynch) spent a good part of the summer scouring Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania for antiques suitable for the historic fifteen-room brick mansion recently purchased by her niece, Judy Bailey and her husband, on land patented in 1662, near Providence Forge in Charles City County. At different times it was occupied by both Confederate and Union forces. For Maude this will be an interesting and never-ending project.

A Christmas note from Hawk and Etta Belle Northington, both well and snug in their attractive townhouse in Leisure World. Like many of us, they are about convinced that recalling the sights and smells of far off places is preferable to the bother and hazard of revisiting them. Reluctantly, I agree.

On the other hand, Carolyn Sinclair seems constantly on the go. This summer she spent two weeks in England and four weeks in Scotland on a self-conducted tour with a friend, visiting old friends and making many new ones. A right bra lass!

Although I have not heard from "Cado" Kelly Brewster about her trip to the West Coast this fall, I am hoping for word after she finishes all the Christmas notes.

For all members of '24, may 1978 be a year of good health and contentment.

26 A Class Reporter is needed for the Class of 1926. Will anyone interested please contact the Alumni Office.

Fiftieth Reunion
October 13-15, 1978

28 In the July issue of the Virginia Bar News for Lawyers there was a picture of Robert Randolph Jones of Richmond. The picture was of Bob presenting an award. The article stated that Bob was Dominican Republic Consul and Dean of the Richmond Consular Corps. Since that time, I have received a letter from Bob saying that he and M. H. Omorhundo, Jr. would like to give a party on Friday night during the 50th anniversary for the Class of 1928. I sent this suggestion on to Trudi Topping and Gordon Vliet of the alumni office.

Virginia Beasley Byram of Fredericksburg, Class of 1932, phoned to tell me that she had a wonderful time at Homecoming and that Ed Hill sent greetings to me.

Milda B. Cohen of New York wrote to say that she and Ruth Stern Hilborn of Los Angeles are both much interested in the 50th anniversary and would like to be kept informed as plans are made. If I remember correctly, both Milda and Ruth were members of Phi Beta Kappa.

What made Christmas for me was the many cards, notes and letters I received from my friends of the Class of 1928. I take great pleasure in passing on the news to you.

Edna Spitler Burner of Luray writes that she hopes to attend the 50th anniversary, that her husband, J. Rex Burner, graduated from VPI in 1928. She hopes that his 50th reunion will not be the same date as the 50th reunion of the Class of 1928 at William and Mary.

Heard from Marion LaRue Brown of Richmond.

Mariam Silberger Goodman of Washington, D.C. writes that she and her husband, J.J. Goodman, were at Homecoming, that on the Tuesday after Homecoming they left for a visit to England, Scotland and Ireland. They both expect to attend the 50th anniversary.

Elizabeth Hunter Trainham attended Homecoming with Mariam Silberger Goodman and her husband. Elizabeth retired, sold her home in Marshall and is now living in Newport News. She works as a volunteer at Riverside Hospital and at the Veterans Hospital in Hampton. She is an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and of Delta Kappa Gamma.

So pleased to get a Christmas card from Eulalie and Meb Davis of Richmond. Meb writes that they were at Homecoming and are looking forward to the 50th anniversary.

Received a card from Seibert Simpkins and his wife, Virginia, from Christiansburg, Va.

Received a letter from Doris Rathien Hubbard of Mechanicsville. In 1972 Doris retired after teaching in Henrico County for 15 years. This past fall Doris and her husband toured England and Scotland and visited a daughter who lives in France. Another daughter who is now living in Africa flew over to be with them which made the trip even more enjoyable. Doris and her husband are planning to attend the 50th reunion.

A Prospect of William and Mary — Hitchcock artist Mel Morgan has recreated the famous "Millington View" of the college yard as it appeared around 1840. On the left is Brafferton, erected in 1723 with funds from the estate of Robert Boyle and named for his Yorkshire manor which provided rents that supported the Indian School until the time of the Revolution. In the center is the second Wren Building, dating from 1716, which was rebuilt after the original structure of 1695 was destroyed by fire in 1705. Wren is the oldest academic building in continuous use in the United States today. On the right is the President's House (1732), which has been the home of every president of the college.

William and Mary Chair by Hitchcock

A magnificent, hand-woven rush seat arm chair for your living room, office or den. Exquisitely decorated in gold on a rich black background, the chair offers the famous "Millington View," executed by hand in pastel shades through a combination of traditional Hitchcock stenciling and brushwork.

Your chair will be finished with your name and class inscribed in gold on the back. Please allow six to eight weeks for delivery.

Frances Gordon of Springfield, Va., writes that she spent some time during the past year with Frances Crowder and Jean Craig. Frances made a trip to the Los Angeles area. While there she visited with Elizabeth Lam Vieg and her husband, John. Frances also visited with cousins in Boise, Idaho. Frances and Elizabeth talked over our 50th reunion in 1978. Another friend who had already attended her college 50th anniversary reported that each member present received a very attractive 50th year pin. That strikes me as an excellent idea. I wonder if there is some way we can arrange for something like that.

Received a card and note from Elizabeth Glenn Hartman of Arlington. Elizabeth says she is looking forward to the 50th reunion.

Received a nice card and note from May B. Reilly of Roanoke, Va.

Also received a card from Lucile Eastham Michie of Charlottesville. Lucile hopes to make Homecoming next year and the 50th anniversary.

Received a Christmas card from the Alumni Gazette staff. What a beautiful Williamsburg scene! It filled me with nostalgia.

George Whitley and his wife, Edna, write that they were at Homecoming and attended the banquet. George and Edna plan to be at the 50th anniversary. Incidentally, my last letter to George, addressed to 5122 N. 15th Street, Arlington, Va. 22205, was returned by the postman. I would like to have his present address.

Received a nice Christmas card from Ruth James Turner of Atlanta, Georgia. Ruth made a trip to Greece in September. She plans to attend the 50th anniversary.

Received a letter from John Branch "Dauba" Green of Richmond. "Dauba" retired 8 years ago. He keeps himself occupied with volunteer work at a neighboring hospital and church work and plays bridge. Says he gets most of his exercise renovating his mother's old home up at Fork Union. "Dauba's" wife is Betsy Price of the Class of 1929. "Dauba" is looking forward to the 50th anniversary.

Mary L. Gill of Petersburg writes that in May she spent some time in London and the nearby countryside, then in July she went to the Scandinavian Countries. Mary is leaving for Israel two days after Christmas. She offers to do whatever she can to make our 50th anniversary a success.

Kitty and Ed Hill of Plymouth, N.C. were at Homecoming and plan to be at the 50th anniversary.

Received a Christmas card and letter from Thelma Stinnett Griffith and her husband Dick of Brandy Station, Va.

Marguerite Miles Thomhill of Greenbelt, Md., had some bad health a year ago but has fully recovered now. In September she was in Hawaii and on December 19th she left to go on a Christmas cruise to the Caribbean. Marguerite still enjoys bowling and swimming.

Ruth S. Hilborn of Los Angeles was leaving on December 19, 1977 to spend the Christmas Holidays in Israel. She plans to visit Acapulco in February. She is looking forward to our 50th anniversary at William and Mary, after which she plans a visit to Europe.

A card from Bill and Mary Thompson of Virginia Beach. Bill writes that they plan to attend National Automobile Dealers Convention in San Francisco in February. Bill and Mary attended Homecoming. They are planning to give a reception for our class in the West wing of the Lodge as they have done several times before.

Elizabeth Lam Vieg certainly does get places. She and her husband, John, took a round-the-world voyage. She mailed a letter to me from Tunis which had been written while they were somewhere on the Mediterranean. They had sailed from Los Angeles with a group from the Institute of Shipboard Education, affiliated with the University of Colorado. Among the ports-of-call were Korea, Taipei and Pondicherry. They visited Sri Lanka, spent a night on a houseboat on the Nile, shopped in Hong Kong and Singapore. Also included in the trip was Greece, Tunis, Morocco, Keelung, Madras, Safagah, Alexandria and Athens.

Elizabeth would like very much to know the names of those who are planning to attend the reunion.

Also heard from Whitfield Roberts in Richmond.

Reba Dameron Thorburn and her husband George Thorburn were in this office building just before Christmas and I chatted with them a few minutes. Reba's home was in Alexandria when she attended William and Mary but she has lived for many years in Spotsylvania County just a short distance out of Fredericksburg.

Again, my thanks to all those who wrote or called and please continue to write and send cards. I have no further information concerning our 50th Anniversary but I feel sure Gordon Vliet and the Alumni Office will announce the schedule of events in due time. I will be glad to pass on any suggestions to them. A Happy New Year to you.

Mrs. Joseph N. James
(Eleanor C. Williamson)
Millwood, Va. 22646

30 A Christmas greeting from John Ely, was a welcome surprise and I hope this means we can expect to see him and his wife, Betty, back in Williamsburg for Homecoming next year. They live in West Orange, N.J.

Joe and I will spend the holidays hopping from one child to the next, the children being 33, 37, and 40, so you know they like to be called children. The Santa Claus set is in Fredericksburg where our son has an asphalt paving and sealing business. Those grandchildren are 4 and 6.

Crellin James Byrd '63 lives in Bel Air, Md., with her husband, Robert L. Byrd and their sons, Lee 12 and Garnett 9. Our last stop will be with our daughter Cynthia Smith, her husband, Bob and sons Rob 15 and Steve 12. After New Year's we'll get ready for a trek to Florida to find some sunshine while Virginia is blanketed in snow. Send me some news so I won't have to write about myself.

36 Dick Velz, retired last year as vice president of A. H. Robins Company and is now continuing his community service as the Executive Director of the Medical College of Virginia Foundation.

Dr. Galen W. Ewing is Chairman and professor in the Department of Chemistry at Seton Hall University. He has authored several books on Chemistry. He recently lectured on "Polarography: History and Present Status" at Georgian Court College in Lakewood, N.J. Galen's youngest son, Thomas, is newly enrolled as a Ph.D. candidate in Geological Sciences at the University of British Columbia.

Received a nice card from Dr. Claudine Moss Bryant, MD. and her husband, Dr. Marion Bryant, MD. Claudine is President of the American Women's Medical Association whose members come from Canada and the United States. She is indeed one of the outstanding women in the United States. The College of William and Mary is proud of such a distinguished alumna. Her son, Spencer, recently showed some of his horses here in Ocala at Golden Hills.

Dr. Gene and Bea Barkley seem to be on the go almost all of the time. They have made at least two around-the-world cruises and several trips across country to see relatives. They are really enjoying retirement.

Alumni Chapter Holds Tree Give-away

On Dec. 17 and 18, the Charlottesville-Highland Chapter, winner of the Outstanding Chapter Award for 1977, sponsored a community Christmas tree give-away at Ash Lawn, the former home of President James Monroe, left to the College in 1974. The Chapter, under the leadership of Charlie Huxsaw, '68, accepted donations for the trees and with the money contributed, the Chapter was able to help a needy family at Christmas and to make a donation to Ash Lawn to pay for landscaping the new parking lot/entrance building area."

40 Christmas messages are surely a boon to a class reporter! These plus a nice long letter and some tidbits from the Alumni office really fix me up.

Seymour Shwiler is a professional staff member of the House Armed Services Committee specializing in Nuclear Weapons programs, Laser Fusion programs and Naval Reactor programs. WOW!

Raymond Cutchens is pastor of the Monumental Baptist Church in Petersburg.

Robert I. Lansburgh is now the Chief Executive Officer of his company, Select Imports. As past President of the International Trade Association of Dallas, he has been involved with a series of banquet lectures and seminars at Baylor University, North Texas State University, The University of Texas and the Business School of the College of William and Mary. He is presently serving on fifteen civic Boards of Directors in Dallas, including Dallas Grand Opera Association, Dallas Civic Opera, Dallas Symphony Orchestra, International Trade Association, to mention only a few. He is busily engaged in the College Fund Raising as State Chairman and is also participating in the President's Council of the College. Bob, what do you do in your spare time?

Hope Hunt White writes that she and Gene went to his 40th Reunion at U. of Illinois and dropped by D.C. to help celebrate her sister's birthday. Their son, Geoff, planned to be home in St. Petersburg, Fla., for Christmas.

Ben and Jane Brandt Wild expected four young people and five "grands" to their new Estes Park home for the holiday and so were "very happily excited."

Charlotte Bagot White's daughter, Lisa, age 20, is home working and going to school and returning to K.U. in January. Gary, age 22, was in California for six months and is also going back to school in January. Frank, age 24, is working for a radio station in Parsons, Ks. and Lynne, age 27, left her job in Houston, went to Europe for three months and is working and living in California. Charl is working and did get back to Buffalo and Vermont last summer and had a great time seeing old friends.

Ginny Claudon Allen says that after two miserable years of pain killers and pills she feels like she has been reborn. A Florida doctor designed a new exercise program which included being hung from the ankles which he pointed her to Unity Church's Biofeedback program, and she's now on cloud nine! She is proud to say that Scrib was recently elected to membership in the Metropolitan Club, which bases its evaluations on integrity of character as well as accomplishment. She and Scrib spent their 30th anniversary with daughter Pam in Minneapolis and in the fall attended a Houston convention.

Jean Clarahan Bratton is still working at Northwestern and enjoying it very much - great people and interesting work. Her children Anne, Dan, and Chris are all in good shape. Anne, her husband and two little girls still live in Binghamton, N.Y., where Anne is thoroughly enjoying retirement from the routine of teaching. Dan continues to live and work in Minneapolis and Chris returned in August from a great year at the university in Angers, France, plus assorted jaunts around Europe during breaks. She will begin graduate work at the University of Virginia in January. Jean had a trip to Moscow and Leningrad just after Christmas last year with a group from Northwestern, and in May she met Chris in France and after a few days in Paris Chris was her guide on a fabulous trip through the Loire Valley and Provence. Jean has been attempting to revive her college French in some local classes so that she will be prepared for a return visit.

Vince and Carolyn Moses Lucardi's third child Vincent Jr. is a junior at William and Mary this year. This is becoming traditional and hopefully he will be the third one to get his degree from the College.

Alfred Alley continues as Vicar of the Church in Rancho Cordova, Calif. He and Margaret had a glorious three-week trip to Europe this past summer through Frankfurt, Munich, Vienna, Belgrade, Athens, Rome, Assisi, Venice and Wiesbaden. They enjoyed seeing old Air Force friends who are stationed at various bases in Europe. Son Billy, is combining study, voice lessons, two choir jobs and operates his own house cleaning business in Van Nuys. Wish he was closer by!

Caldwell (better known as Casey now) and Elizabeth Jane Cook Cason (Cookie) have had a fantastic year. They have had some nice trips and most other weekends they head for their cabin in the Blue Ridge Mts. They spent two weekends at home and the neighbors came over to see if they were sick!! They headed for Lauderdale for Christmas with her son Steve and will spend some time in Bradenton as well, with her other son, Dave. Three of Casey's children are here, Nancy and Linda and their families live in Manassas, Jim and Carmen are here from Venezuela for a year and then they'll be off to Milan, Italy with the State Dept.; Bill is still in California and Susan in Hawaii.

Ed and Rosa Ellis Long's picture card was a real revelation in the changes of the times. Gone are all the beards and long hair and underneath now are fine looking young men! Rosa keeps busy working on Lay Ministry Commission of the Episcopal Diocese of W. N.Y. and exhibiting fossils in the Museum of Science, plus Girl Scouts.

We have had a nice but rather quiet Christmas. Our son, Daniel, returned

October 21, after nearly eight months in Europe and we were happy to have him with us. At present his plans are in flux, but hopefully he will return to college for some graduate work in the fall.

Do have a Happy New Year, everyone, and do keep me posted!

46 If it's as cold where you are as it is here in Pency, let's throw another log on the fire while we go over the mail.

Margaret Angelina Davison can smile gaily at such winter-time doings--she lives in Honolulu, Hawaii! Ann got together in D.C. at various times in 1977 with several friends whom we all know--Jinks Stevens Daniel, Mary Sue Ebeling, Marnie Bevans Kent, '45 and Jeannie Bevans, '47. Ann's sister, Billie Davison Cantlay, whom she visited in Brussels, has another two-plus years to go in Belgium where her husband was just promoted to a top military post and rank of lieutenant general.

Doris Brandt Bauer was looking forward to having her whole gang home for the holidays. Their youngest son, Dave, is a freshman (and rugby player) at Frostburg; Jon is in mechanical engineering at Delaware; daughter Holly is a senior art major at Indiana and oldest son Andy is graduated and working. So, Doris was all set for a week of fun in her all-American city, Baltimore!

As Roberta Volkert Harrison was writing Christmas notes, a howling dust storm with 83-degree temperature was raging in her town of Ft. Worth. "...most un-wint'ry", said Bobbie. She was planning a visit with her sister, Ruth, '49, after the holidays.

Pris Fuller Downs and Mac send us greetings from Charles City, Va.

I hope Henrietta Kapler Margraf of Tuckerton, N.J. didn't have anything to do with those mysterious explosions off her coast in the Atlantic! Her card didn't say.

Barbara Nycum Moore is enjoying the company of little Eric, her grandson, and looking forward, happily, to having another one, come June. Daughter Pam will be the new mother this time. Daughter Nancy lives in Atlanta and loves it. She's working in a bank, and planning a paralegal course in Feb. Son Nick has good things to say about his freshman year at V.P.I. Nicky and Allison are going on a jaunt to Las Vegas in Feb. with the R. E. A. convention. She says she doesn't intend to gamble it all away!

Last October I was asked by the College to be a delegate to the Presidential Inauguration at Susquehanna University here in Selinsgrove. I was thrilled. They sent me the full academic regalia to wear in the processional, and since we marched according to the age of the institution we represented I was third in line -- just behind Oxford and Harvard! After it was over I wanted very much to continue wearing that glorious and impressive academic costume to the grocery store. But, my family talked me out of it. Anyway, it was a beautiful and colorful occasion.

"Bye, bye for now. Back with you in April. Write me.

Thirtieth Reunion
October 13-15, 1978

48 Jack Hoey has been elected President of The Peoples Natural Gas Company, an affiliate in the Consolidated Natural Gas System, distributing in the western Pennsylvania area. He has been serving as executive vice president of the company since June, 1976. Jack first joined Peoples Gas in 1949.

Gerard Davis recently had his doctoral thesis in Political Science noted in the AMERICAN POLITICAL SCIENCE REVIEW. He received his PhD in 1977 from Columbia, and his thesis was titled "Liberalism in the New South: A Study of the Recent Attitudes of Three Outstanding Liberal Southern Newspapers and Their Editors".

50 Thanks for the notes and comments. Dr. Bob Jenkins has been named acting dean and dean of instruction at Livingston College. Sam Tisdale has been named director of clinical investigation for A.H. Robins Company of Richmond.

Woody Edgar Wayland and Yvonne are enjoying living just outside Annapolis. Daughter Kathy is a sophomore at Queen's College and the three boys, John, Bruce and Scott are all active in scouting. O. B. Root is recovering nicely from what he calls a "middle age heart attack". He has been back at work full time since June. Take care of yourself, O.B.

Shirley Lyons Hardwick was in New Orleans in September. Now she is back in London. She had a great visit with Ruth Barnes Chalmers and Sue Green Uhlander this past summer. Ruthie is in Houston. Also from Houston a note from Bill Low and Jean. Son Jeff is a disc jockey in Houston, Margi a freshman at S.W. Texas, Betsy a freshman at U of Texas and Billy in high school, Sally in the 7th grade. My goodness, Bill could open his own college. More Houston news, Pete and Milly Woodling are quite busy. Daughter Kerry was married in January. Steve graduated from high school in May and daughter Jo joined the Mormon Church. Milly is now working for Buttes Resources in Houston. . . and their best news is they will be grandparents in February.

Pat Jones Warner and Bill send news from Fort Worth. Daughter Sally will be married in April. Their son will graduate from Texas Tech this summer. Pat sent me a nice picture of Sally, her fiance and Pat.

Nicky and Jay Dewing see a lot of Nancy and George Falck. Nicky didn't see many people at Homecoming because of the rain. They have had another trip to Geneva.

Joanne and Dick Scofield celebrated their 25th anniversary (guess we are all getting there). Daughter Sharon teaches 4th grade and son Charles runs track. Jo is teaching piano.

Anne Waring Brown (51) and Linc moved to Dallas this past fall and they love being Texans.

Nancy Kurtz Falck and George have been busy. Nancy is on the Fairfax County school board. Daughter Laurie is working in a law office and Susan will graduate from G.W.U. this year and plans to be married in the fall. Gigi is at the U. of Utah and Andrew is in the 6th grade.

Ed Fitzgerald was elected Chairman of the Pittsylvania County School Board. He has been a member of the Gretna Town Council since 1959, and has served as Vice Mayor on and off for a number of years. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Danville Community College and is a past president of the Virginia Assoc. of Independent Telephone Companies. He is the General Manager of Peoples Mutual Telephone Co.

The Blair McKenzie's are back in the United States again after five years. Blair is with the Extended Learning Institute of the Northern Virginia Community College. They were looking forward to having all their family together for the first time in years this Christmas.

Skippy Beecher Scrymgeour and Bruce are enjoying their antique business.

Janet Pierce Waller and John are still in Leesburg.

Liz and Bob Shuman are freezing in Minneapolis, (what else could you possibly do in Minneapolis in the winter?) Son Bobby was married in March and is living in San Francisco. Liz and Bob have had two convenient business trips to San Francisco (I didn't receive a call). They also were in Brussels in the spring. Billy graduates from college in June.

Bob Lawrence has resigned his position with the Norfolk Planning Council and has set up his own consulting firm in community planning, located in the Monticello Arcade in Norfolk.

As for the Morrison's we are still plugging away in Bakersfield. Patty is teaching kindergarten 20 miles away and Suzy is at U. of California Davis. She was considering a transfer to William and Mary but I think she will stay in California.

Would love to hear from some of you that "always" say you will write. . . don't you get tired of hearing about the rest of us "faithfuls" all the time.

52 25th Reunion. . . The Joy of Recognition! . . . not a weekend to gather news for this column. . . a time to stare, glare, and sometimes squint to dissolve away 25 years. . . to revert to maiden names, and to stand in footprints of nostalgia.

The rain was no surprise, for doesn't it always rain in Williamsburg. . . but it did make for drippy nametags. The Alumni Office rolled out the red carpet and did an outstanding job planning and coordinating activities. The Colonial Re-Echo was waiting for us to pick up, and I was pleased to see so many had responded with news of themselves. If you did not get one, you should write for it. It is terrific.

Random notes on a damp napkin: no place to park; talk about Virginia politics; Johnny Dalton enjoying Brunswick stew in the gym surrounded by campaign well-wishers; getting one of the Dalton family cookbooks; Jean Canoles Bruce, a radiant Alumni President; Theta's celebrating Mama String's 97th birthday; PiKA big turnout of Jim Carter, Joe Ferenczi, Ed Lupton, Ruf VanZandt, Doug Ryder; wet leaves everywhere; Candlelight Dinner at the Inn; gray hair and glasses giving the men a definite look of success; so many in the class picture, those of us on the wobbly bleachers on the back row were sure we would not be in the picture; Bob Hackler directing us for the photographer; Anne Holliday Wallace and Hilda Beckh Sherman winning a set of glasses in the alumni tennis tournament; Phil Denman's room burglarized, our tall basketball players still towering over us; big Ted Filer still impressively big; Jim Anthony and the Homecoming Alumni Band; winning the football game until the last 20 seconds; Doug Ryder stealing the show with Diane, his new bride of 13 months (together they have ten children); the far-away contingents from California: Ernestine Cox Peake and Anne Holliday Wallace from San Diego, Doug Ryder from Huntington Beach, Ruf from Anaheim. . .

Others travelling many miles to make the weekend complete: Rusty Davis Schumacher and Hazen flew from Ann Arbor to D.C. to ride down with Chuck and Bobbee Lamont Redding in their van. Hazen and Chuck had jogged 3 miles before they left Washington that morning. . . George and Peggy Ives Emerson from Perrysburg, Ohio, George sporting a full beard. . . Bob Godfrey, the same weight he was in 1952 (it took losing 35 lbs. this year to do this!), from Duxbury, Mass., where he is president of a publishing and consulting firm associated with the construction industry. . . Catherine Hanrahan Hennessey left the family business, the Ocean Spray Lodge at Avon-By-The-Sea, N.J., for the week-end. Son Bob is a freshman at the College. . . Taffy Lay Davis from Cincinnati and Marie Newcomb Massey and Alice Williams Phillips from Richmond. From Marietta Ga., we saw Doris Hasemyer Smith and Wendell, and silver haired Bob Sessions. Ann Beattie Recknor and Phil came from Baltimore where she teaches at Notre Dame Preparatory School. Others were Nancy Hubbard Clark, Caroline Jones Wiley, Jackie Jones Myers, Bob Landon, Mary Kay Langan Flegler, Bob Barlow, Joe Agee, Jerry and Liz Beard Patterson, Claudia Richmond, and Marvin West. The Kappa porch was packed Saturday morning with alums, husbands, and two enormous Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls, their rained-out float. It was a repeat of the Kappa '52 float, only this time it won first place. Joyce Miller Tipton and Phil, from Waynesboro, had given daughter Lee a Kappa picture of the original float as a guide for the group.

Also from Massachusetts were Edee Moser Buzzell and Bob. Daughter Sue, a senior, was a Homecoming candidate. Sara Hardin chatted about her work in Richmond with Ernst and Ernst Accounting firm. A co-worker is June Cosby Gibb's daughter Paige. Nancy Bradley McCready drove with us from Richmond. She was excited about nephew Tommy Thompson, Jr. starting at nose guard for Annapolis that same week-end. Watch for the name Joanne Russell in tennis circles. She's coached by Tommy Boys in Naples, Fla., and has appeared at Forest Hills and Wimbledon. Jim and Betsy Booth Devitt were up from Pompano Beach, Fla., where he is an attorney. Jack and Marie Percival drove down from Long Island with Ed and Marie Wisbauer. Jack is vice president-finance for the catalog division of Litton Industries; Ed is an Episcopal minister. Jeanne Vester Olsen spoke of the Chi O's having lunch together. Her daughter is a Chi O at the College. Rusty Davis Schumacher is proud of daughter's 4.0 average at Northwestern where she is a Chi O. Their son John 21, is a student at the Berkeley School of Music in Boston. His instruments are drum and bass. Hugh Warren and his wife came from Newport News, and through the crowd we glimpsed Tom Reinert, Bob Stone, Jane Walker Thomas, Dave Wakefield, Linwood and glamorous Gwen Batten Perkins. Burt and Charlotte Walker Hill brought 10-year Page with them for the week-end. . . Elaine Diehm Guilfoyle rightfully excited about daughter Beth at Princeton. . . Chiles Larson sharing lunch with his two blond daughters. Chiles is with the Securities Exchange Commission in D.C. and commutes from Carter's Creek near Irvington. The perfect end to a perfect week-end was the Candlelight Dinner at the Inn with "my group". . . we vowed it wouldn't be so long before we got together. I knew we were the class of '52 when the clock struck eleven: the yawns began while the dance floor was rocking, with the Class of '72.

Marvin West has been elected President of the Williamsburg Rotary Club and will take office in July.

Charles Somervell has joined Georgia Kraft Company as Director of Management Information Services and is responsible for the company's data processing services and information systems.

54 To All of You, Hello! Kentucky is the new home of Peggy Wells Stiles, whose husband, Martin, is a Visiting Scholar at the University of Kentucky at Lexington. Peggy is eager to let friends know that she is living on a 50-acre horse farm in Paris, fourteen miles from the university and just nowhere from Route I-75, hoping that those driving through that part of the country will stop by. The address is Hume-Bedford Road, Route 1.

Peggy has possibly two books coming out this year, both intended for young readers. More details will be included later.

Another individual in a new state of residence is Walter Trent, recently married and in a newly purchased home in Barnard, Vt., twenty-five miles west of Hanover. He was married to Alice Kacherian, who has been doing math consulting in New York City, and will continue now in New England. Walter will continue to do his consulting work, requiring him to spend about a week per month in New York City. They've stockpiled much wood for the cold winter months.

If you haven't heard a word from Tom Hunnicutt in years, here it is. He is with Pembroke Construction Company in Hampton. His new interest is in forming a sailing program. Tom is on the Board of Old Dominion University Intercollegiate Foundation, representing sailing. He is hoping some of his sailing friends might be interested; he envisions a major east coast program, instructional and competitive. He is on the Board of Trustees of the Mariners Museum and the Board of the Peninsula Y.M.C.A. His children are: Kay, at University of South Carolina, Warren at Hampton High, and Page, who is eight and a horsewoman.

56 Homecoming '77: My wife and I spent the night in Richmond with Marjorie Brown Neal ('51) and husband Larry. The 4 of us left bright and early Saturday so we could get to Billsburg to see the parade--halfway down the road it started raining. We arrived on the Duke of Gloucester Street just in time to find out the parade had been cancelled. It seems that any time I do something with a member of the class of '51, something goes wrong. Maybe next year if the '51ers stay away, the parade won't have to be cancelled 3 years in a row because of rain.

If you're not living in Virginia, you may not know we have had a water shortage--particularly throughout the summer and fall months. So, we really can't complain about the rain as we need every drop we can get--so, since the parade was cancelled, we went shopping along the Duke--the street has been landscaped along the sides--lots of scrubs, trees, plants as well as benches. The street looks real pretty--just like 200 years ago???

Saw several alumni who had been waiting for the parade. Don Seiler is still practicing law in Fairfax, Va. He is in the process of building a new office and will soon be walking to work--great way to save gas, Don--we're proud of you conserving energy. Don is still single--can't imagine some girl not having caught Don by now. Is it really true what you told us, Don--you've got a girl in every city??

Saturday afternoon went to see the football game (it was the 5th football game this fall that was damp and rainy). The game was exciting--it is amazing how many ways William and Mary can find to lose Homecoming games--this time no thanks to one of the officials who called a horrendous pass interference penalty (Mr. Official--you really were out of position when you called that penalty.) Saw the team play VPI&SU this year--William and Mary won everything except the final score. Then, to see them win everything except the final score against Rutgers at Homecoming--the team deserved better.

The halftime show was excellent, even if the bands had to slosh around. (Saw the Tobacco Festival football game in Richmond this year--the crowning of the William and Mary queen is much more sophisticated and interesting than the crowning of the Tobacco Festival queen). Jim Anthony led the Alumni Band and he and the band members looked great again. Mr. Varner celebrated 25 years with the band--Congratulations, Mr. Varner--a job well done!

Sunday the weather cleared up beautifully so those alumni who stayed overnight had a nice day to see the College and the town before returning home. I'm sorry I didn't get to see more '56ers. Because of the rain and having early dinner reservations Saturday evening, I didn't get a chance to walk around and talk to too many people. For those of you who came--hope you had a nice week-end and enjoyed the Homecoming festivities. Maybe I'll see you next year.

Received a note that Dolores Diggs Fauber is serving a two-year term on the Board of Directors of the Lynchburg, Va., alumni chapter--had me scared for a minute, when I saw you were serving a two-year term, Dolores!

I stated in the last column that William and Mary is the "Alma Mater" of the country. Why? Because three presidents graduated from the College: Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, and John Tyler. Did you know William and Mary would have been the oldest college in the country if it hadn't been for the mean-ole Indians way back in 1603? They massacred everyone at the site of the proposed college, so the College wasn't chartered until 1693 instead of 1603. Some college up in the New England states is #1--even so, we're still the Alma Mater of the Country--take that, Harvard.

Best wishes to each of you as we begin a new year. May 1978 be your best year ever. (Please notice very few names are mentioned in this column--you don't write to me--you will have to read the dribble I write, instead. You could make a New Year's Resolution, you know.)

Twentieth Reunion October 13-15, 1978

58 Happy New Year!! Beth Meyer Fox knows the plight of a class agent's deadline and writes the following. "I am busy with the Charlotte, N.C., Nature Museum. They made me book buyer for the gift shop and I am thoroughly enjoying it." Both of her sons worked at the museum last summer. Beth's husband, Ned, is Headmaster of the Charlotte Latin School and hopes to have completed doctoral requirements by next June. She says Charlotte has been a warm and friendly city.

Barbara Doan Streitfeld was promoted from instructor to assistant professor in psychology at the University of Hartford. She received her MA in psychology in 1972. Her husband, Julian, is professor of psychology at the University of Hartford and is chairman of the Faculty Senate. They have four children. It certainly is a long way from life on Jefferson 3rd!

Clare Vincent, associate curator for Western European Arts at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, chaired a session of the International Conference on the History of Scientific Instruments at the Greenwich Maritime Museum in Greenwich, England last August.

Rollie Antupit is a travel agent with Armonk Travel in Pound Ridge, N.Y.

Betsy Stafford Elliott has really done things up in great shape. She recently opened an office for the general practice of law in Springfield, Va. She graduated from Catholic University of America Law School in Washington, in May, and is a member of the Virginia Bar. Her husband Frank is principal of Jefferson High School and they have three sons.

Thank you for your Christmas letters. I hope 1978 brings resolutions from all of you to write news of your exciting successes or failures!!

Mrs. Robert W. Squatriglia
(Betty Lee Powell)
Rt. 6, Box 474
Quail Creek
Conway, S.C. 29526

60 Richard Snyder is with the Jefferson Township High School, N.J., as a math teacher and is also the head football coach.

Mrs. James R. Henry
(Nancy Sinclair)
505 Janneys Lane
Alexandria, Va. 22303

62 W. Hollie Engle Heims is living in Rutland, Vt. She is divorced and is presently working for an architectural firm. She writes that two of her three sons are substantially taller than she and in addition to allowing her to be their housekeeper and cook, they sometimes allow her to ski and play tennis with them!

Dr. William H. Young is serving a one-year term as a director of the Lynchburg Chapter of the Society of the Alumni.

Received a nice long letter from Sandy Hancock Martin. She and David live in Montvale, N.J., and have two sons, Todd (11), and Drew (8). David received his PhD in Physics at the University of Florida in 1967, and Judy got her Master's there in 1966. David is now Vice President of Teledyne Isotopes. Sandy teaches Spanish at Ramsey High School and loves every minute of it. Sandy is busy planning to take 33 of her Spanish students to Spain in April. They are busy making plans to build a new home. They still get back to Virginia often. David's parents are in Alexandria and Sandy's parents retired to Richmond.

News came from John Muhlhausen who left our class and transferred to the Rhode Island School of Design in 1960. He graduated with a BFA in Graphic Design and worked in New York City, Boston and Copenhagen where he met and married a Danish girl. They returned to the States in 1967, and moved to Atlanta where John has his own design office working primarily in the areas of corporate identification and environmental graphics. John's interest in sailing led him to write and design his first book, Wind and Sail, in 1971. He became a father at age 35, and loves every minute of his son. To quote John, "Having children late in life was my way of preserving youth!"

The Christmas cards I received brought the following news.

Chapter Meetings

The following Alumni Chapter activities are scheduled for the upcoming weeks. More information on exact times and locations will be mailed to alumni in the various regions holding the meetings.

The LOWER PENINSULA CHAPTER is making plans to host a reception on February 15 when the William and Mary Indians play host to the V.M.I. Keydets in Hampton Coliseum.

The WILLIAMSBURG alumni will be invited to a keg party at the Alumni House preceding the basketball game between William and Mary and the University of Virginia on February 20. The PORTSMOUTH-WEST TIDE-WATER and CHARLOTTESVILLE-HIGHLAND CHAPTERS are chartering buses to Williamsburg for the game.

On February 24 the LYNCHBURG CHAPTER has scheduled a dinner and wine-tasting party to kick-off alumni activities for the new year.

In late February and early March chapter meetings will be held in NEW ORLEANS, DALLAS, HOUSTON, ORLANDO, TAMPA, AND FT. LAUDERDALE.

Linda Lester Hagen and her husband, Jim, and their four children are now living in Barstow, Calif. Jim works for Ford as Plant Engineer for the Goldstone Spacecraft Tracking Station. The Ford contract is up for renewal in March, so there may be a change in their future.

Jane Noble Lundy, Rich, and the three children are still in Monterey, Calif. Rich is still in the teaching field. Mark (8) and Adam (7) are happy at school and doing well. Janie (4) goes to pre-school but looks forward to kindergarten in September and going to school with her brothers. Jane is Assistant Librarian and an English teacher to 4 Persian and 1 Japanese students at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Mary Ellen Litton Draper, David, and their two sons are still living in Silver Spring, Md.

Jackie Fleming works fulltime for the Veterans Administration Hospital in Washington, D.C., and is selling real estate part-time for Century 21, Suburban Properties in Montgomery County, Md. She saw Mimi Davis Londos and Judy Delbridge Higginson in October.

Diane Beemer has opened her law office in Clarks Summit, Pa. After leaving the College she went to the University of Colorado, worked with the Peace Corps in Washington and Pan Am. She graduated from George Washington Law School in 1967. She was appointed Assistant Attorney General for the Pennsylvania Bureau of Consumer Protection in Scranton in 1972. She resigned this position to enter private practice. Her husband Barry is also an attorney, and they have two sons.

Mary Alice Adams Betts, Lee, and their two children live in Winter Park, Fla., where Lee is with Liberty Mutual Insurance. Mary Alice is the Providence Collegiate Director for Gamma Phi Beta. She said it is fun and scary at the same time.

Gayle Crabill Kerns is living up in Blacksburg, Va. Walton, her husband, is with VPI and he travels quite a lot for them. The three children -- Laurie (13) is a 9th grader, Kelly (9) is a 4th grader, David (6) is a 1st grader -- are doing well in school. Gayle says keeping up with this household is a fulltime job. She does volunteer work at Kelly and David's school, is active in the Faculty Wives' Club, sings in a choral group, is Pledge Advisor to the Tri Deltas, and is also Vice President of the Tri Delta alumnae.

I received a surprise telephone call from Judy Case Falkenrath. She and Jim and their two children returned to the States in February from Korea. They now live in Annandale, Va. Judy attended Homecoming and saw many friends there for Our Fifteenth.

We never made it to Homecoming. At the last minute Ryan came down with the flu and so we remained at home. Our Christmas is always the busiest due to all the services at St. Paul's Church, where Jim works. We have a few days off between Christmas and New Year's so we have decided to go to Williamsburg for a rest. Please write to me and let me know all about you and your doings.

Mrs. Paul S. Murphy
(Joanne Arnett)
8 Beech Tree Lane
Bronxville, N. Y. 10708

64 Wayne O'Bryan has been elected to the House of Delegates in the Virginia General Assembly, for Hanover County.

Linda Walker Warren was promoted to Associate Professor and granted tenure at California State College, San Bernardino, where she is chairperson of the Department of Psychology. Her husband, David, continues as Professor at the University of California, Riverside. Their son, Michael, is now 4½ years old.

Susan Trice Fieglein, in a welcome Christmas note, reports she is working at the University of Texas Medical School in the computer center, and is busy with her three children and their activities. Mike is enjoying his Houston law practice.

Ann Lyons Ackiss and Tom and baby Emily are moving from Springfield, Va., to Virginia Beach at the end of January.

Gretchen Scherer Israel is settled in Charleston, S.C., and busy teaching Sunday School at St. James Episcopal Church where Fielder is assistant minister. Son Andrew is now 4.

Barry Fretz has been appointed as a fulltime elementary reading teacher in Boyertown, Pa. He had previously been Headmaster of the Chestnut Hill Academy for five years, reading consultant for Independent Services of New Jersey, and had received his Master's degree from Temple University.

Mrs. Arthur P. Henderson, Jr.
(Nancy C. Rhodenhizer)
232 Dominion Dr.
Newport News, Va. 23602

66 I hope you had a nice holiday season. Homecoming didn't bring a lot of news about our classmates due to the horrible weather. The parade was cancelled, and it was so raw and cold at the game, no one stood around to talk.

Mary Ellen Downing Gordon received her doctorate in Special Education (learning disabilities and emotional disturbances) from the University of Virginia this past August and is currently on the faculty at Lynchburg College as Assistant Professor of Education.

Wendy Wendler is now in Dallas, Tex., and finishing her MBA in the Graduate School of Management at the University of Dallas.

Christmas cards did bring some news of classmates. Lynn Eford Burnet and Bob have moved from sunny Florida to Upper Marlboro, Md. Bob has been assigned to Andrews Air Force Base, and they settled into their new home in mid-December. Betty Staton Hogan wrote her husband Ray is now Assistant Superintendent of Public Schools in Rappahannock County, but they're still living in Orange, Va. She tells me Bill and Mary Kathryn Sweeney McIntosh are back at West Point, N.Y., and Annie Laurie Sellers Chambers and Jim '65 are in Reston, Va.

Larry Paffrath and his wife Nora Morsch '68 are in Newport News where Larry is an Assistant Principal at Menchville High School. He is working toward his doctorate in Education Administration and has already received his advanced certificate. Nora teaches part-time in the public schools and they have two children Larry (6 years) and Lisa (4 years). Over the Christmas holidays the Paffraths visited Tom Daugherty, his wife Nancy McNairy '67, and their children Wilson (6 years), Lee (4 years), and David (18 months). Tom is an orthopedic surgeon in Winchester.

Also with the Newport News Public School System is Tim Walters who was appointed Director of Business Affairs this past summer. Jim LoFrese is an Assistant Principal at Warwick High School and is completing his doctoral work at Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Education Administration. Jim and his wife Mary Lou Jenkins '68 have two sons. Carlton Hardy is Principal of Epes Elementary School. Al Lebold is Supervisor of Math and has received his advanced certificate in Education Administration. Al tells me Larry Dosier received his Doctorate in Biology from the University of Virginia and is currently with the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C.

Keith Taylor, who is deputy director of the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority, was elected vice president of the Virginia Chapter of the National Association of Industrial Office Parks.

Dr. Rodger Bates has been named Chairman of the Department of Sociology, Family Development and Social Work at Lambuth College in Jackson, Tenn. He received his PhD from the University of Delaware. He joined the Lambuth faculty last year, and has founded the Sociology Club and he organized the first West Tennessee Undergraduate Sociological Symposium.

Harper-Jane (used to be Nancy) McAdoo was recently the subject of a nice article in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, while she was appearing in a play at the Cleveland Playhouse, "The Norman Conquest". After leaving Williamsburg she taught for a while in Cambridge, N.Y., and then went on to earn an MA at New Mexico Highlands University in Las Vegas (in English and Drama) and an MFA at the University of Denver. She went to Wayne State University in Detroit on a doctoral program. She did not get the degree but she did meet her husband, Wayne Turney, through the university's Hillsberry Theatre. He is an actor and she is a hard working actress in addition to taking care of their family pets: a boa constrictor; a Saint Bernard and a Welsh Corgi, a cat, and some assorted goldfish. Please send me some news!!

Tenth Reunion October 13-15, 1978

68 Al Ritter, Jr., is Corporate Controller of Landmark Communications, Inc., a Norfolk based newspaper publishing, broadcasting and CATV company. He is a CPA and on the board of directors of the Norfolk Symphony, Norfolk Goodwill Industries and Tidewater Arts Council.

Conrad Conrad has been named Assistant Controller with the Quaker State Corporation in Oil City, Pa. He had formerly been with Price, Waterhouse & Co., in Washington before joining Quaker State in 1970. He is also a CPA.

Mrs. T. Thomas Van Dam
(Randy Pearson)
368 Maple Street
Haworth, N.J. 07641

70 From Tuscon, Ariz., comes news from Alice Derr. . . From 1970 to August last year, Alice was teaching children with learning disabilities in Fairfax, Va. In 1974, she earned a Master's in Special Education from University of Virginia. Now a fulltime student, Alice is earning a PhD in Special Education with a minor in educational administration. Bob Kennedy received his PhD in Zoology last spring from Louisiana State University. Congratulations, Doctor.

John Greene, who is an assistant manager with the New York Life Insurance Co., has been awarded the CLU diploma and professional designation by the American College, Bryn Mawr, Pa. He is currently President of the Williamsburg Association of Life Underwriters.

Douglas Densmore has joined the law firm of Shumaker, Loop and Kentrick in Toledo, Ohio. He received his law degree from the University of Toledo in 1976.

As of last September, Chip Boyd has been Commanding Officer of the US Naval fleet tug, USS Salinan. He is involved mostly in salvage and towing operations in Florida and the Caribbean. Chip is one of only eight lieutenants to have their own command in the 1977 Navy!! Last year he had a six-months deployment in the Middle East. Chip and his wife, Dayle, and eight-year-old son Jay live in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla. Their second child is due in February. A Captain in the USAF stationed at Johnson AFB, N.C., Sam Seagle is a weapon systems officer with TAC. Sam previously was stationed at Bentwaters RAF Station in England.

At William and Mary, Ginny Kerns is teaching Anthropology on a one-year visiting professorship.

Two Kappas slipped into the Chi Omega Newsletter this time. . . due to a Ludwell 400-A reunion last August. . .

Gayle Crawley Foster and Scott are in Pittsburgh enjoying their son, Tyler. Scott is a professor, while Gayle works 24 hours a week and is continuing her studies.

Having completed her Master's in Special Education (specializing in the gifted child), Condit Cooper Lotz is teaching in Atlanta.

Rhonda Curry bought an old house in Louisville and continues to enjoy restoring, repairing, and furnishing it.

Having resigned from the Navy last fall, Walt Boulden '71 and Linda Collins moved to Atlanta. Walt is a pilot with Southern Airways.

Happy wanderers/sailors, Kit Smith and Skip Fry spent spring and summer months of '77 in Bermuda, the Azores, Portugal, Gibraltar, Morocco and Spain. Late November they returned to the Virgin Islands (St. Croix) after a 28-day journey from the Canary Islands. They'll be doing charter work through the winter months from the Virgin Islands.

Susie MacIntyre Turner is in her eighth year of teaching first grade in Arlington. Susie teaches with Barbara Bounds Dabney, '73. Susie and husband Danny live in Alexandria. At the moment, Danny is superintendent for construction of a power plant in Baltimore.

Barbara Pate and Bob Glacel are thoroughly enjoying life at West Point. Bob is teaching and Barbara hopes to finish her dissertation with a grant from AAUW by this summer.

In Boston, Joel Fisher is working for a radio station.

Earl Adams was recently elected Secretary of the Lynchburg Alumni Chapter.

Tim and Linda Beerbower Burke were in Europe for three weeks last fall, combining her career with a little vacation. They visited Switzerland, Norway, the Netherlands, United Kingdom and France.

Pam Funck '72 and Lehn Abrams bought a house last summer in Orlando, Fla. Lehn is still a Public Defender and enjoying his work. Pam is teaching a class this year of severely emotionally disturbed children.

Barbara Burket left Florida last February and was off for Sonora, Calif., where she learned to ski and play tennis. Then Barb was on an assignment for three months in Salt Lake City, Utah. Now working in Idaho Falls, Idaho, Barb loves the snow and the skiing.

I wish you all a belated Happy New Year and look forward to hearing from more of you for my spring letter.

Marguerite M. Corso
5767 Reading Avenue, #263
Alexandria, Va. 22311

72 I hope everyone who came to Homecoming enjoyed it. It was great to see everyone who was able to make it and to come face to face with some of the people who have written to me.

David Gillespie lives in Lansing, Mich., with his wife and 21-month-old daughter. After graduation he spent five years in graduate school at the University of Wisconsin-Madison studying sociology. In August he received his Ph.D. and is now an Assistant Professor at James Madison College of Michigan State University. He enjoys teaching, especially in an atmosphere where teaching is highly valued.

I saw a dinner theatre production of "Mame" in early December and was pleasantly surprised to see a familiar face on stage. John McConnell was the production manager, and he acted, danced and sang in the play as well. He was very good, and I wish him continued success in his career.

I talked with Linda Beaver Rice at Homecoming and she and her husband, Tom '74, enjoy living in Wilmington, N.C. Linda received her Master's degree in Diagnostic Descriptive Teaching and Learning Disabilities in August of 1975 and is now teaching in a Learning Disabilities Resource Program. Mike Wildasin is in his third year of law school at William and Mary. And Schuy Ferrell and his wife live in Fayetteville, N.C., where he is a captain in the Air Force. He pilots Lockheed C-130 Hercules planes. Jim Warns was living in New York City working as a personnel specialist as of November. He was anticipating a transfer to the West Coast. So, if all has gone as expected, Jim has since moved.

House Notes

Two new books have been added to the Paschall Library recently. Grand and Private Pleasures, by Caskie Stinnett, '32, and The Wreck of the Old 97, a gift of the author, Clara Garrett Fountain, '63.

A member of the Class of 1925 has given a small ice bucket, which will be used at the Alumni House.

The Society received a 1920 dance card, a 1920 Commencement Program, and other memorabilia from Maude Cheatham Copeland, '23.

The Alumni Office is endeavoring to locate past issues of the Flat Hat, so that a complete set may be bound and placed in the Paschall Library for visiting alumni to enjoy. Many issues of Volumes 2 through 40 are needed. Volume 41, issues 10 and 13 (1951-52) are lacking. Volumes 47, 48, 50, 51, and 52 are needed. Some issues of Volume 65 and 66 (1975-77) are also needed. We would be most grateful to receive the assistance of any alumnus who has copies. Please send them to the Paschall Library, Alumni House, Post Office Box GO, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

I also saw Kevin Hennessey and his wife, Donna, who live in Pottstown, Pa. Kevin received a degree from Delaware Law School and is now an attorney with the firm of Hennessey and Hennessey. He is studying for a Master of Laws Degree in Taxation at Temple University Law School. Mavis Henry and her husband, Billy, live in Richmond where Mavis is an art teacher for the Richmond Public Schools.

Cheryl Menke lives in Annapolis and teaches seventh grade social studies, but she hopes to get a teaching position overseas. Liz Baltes teaches first grade in Hampton. Linda Heck is a librarian in Texas, and Pam Rarig is a programmer analyst with Systems and Applied Sciences. She is working towards an M.S. in computer science from George Washington University.

Bruce Linder practices law with his father in New Bedford, Mass. He and his wife were presented with a son in July of this year. Bruce Gumbert is completing his Master's degree in sociology at Boston University. Sanford Boisseau is still an avid William and Mary sports fan. He lives in Richmond and is a real estate appraiser for the State of Virginia.

Peggy Gordon lives in Springfield, Va. She travels extensively in her job as a Budget Analyst for the Air Force. She received an M.A. in psychology in the spring of 1977. Peggy tells me that Margaret Micholet is living in Williamsburg and is a Children's Program Coordinator for the Park Service. In her job she uses her M.A. in Special Education which she received from William and Mary. For everyone who has lost track of Christy Bruce, she is living in Virginia Beach where she teaches Spanish.

Aubrey Mason has begun a two-year term as director of the Lynchburg Chapter of the Society of the Alumni. Bill Magner received his M.S. in Education from the College of New Rochelle. Rick Platt, in addition to being the associate editor for RUNNING TIMES magazine, is also the advertising manager. RUNNING TIMES is a monthly magazine published in Washington, D.C., and covers eastern U.S. distance running.

Constance

John Constance is Acquisitions and Disposal Officer for the National Audiovisual Center of the National Archives, located outside of Washington, D.C. He is responsible for managing the flow of new audiovisual materials into the Center's distribution programs. John was the chief negotiator for the National Archives in arranging for the nationwide distribution of the film versions of the PBS production "Equal Justice Under Law." The film featured major decisions of the Supreme Court under Chief Justice John Marshall who was an 1884 graduate of William and Mary. John has been with the Center since 1972 and is currently a candidate for a Masters degree in administration at George Washington University.

Christopher Ovide was named vocational assessor for the federally funded, locally directed effort to improve resources at Hampton Institute, Gloria Dei Lutheran and St. Mary's Star of the Sea schools. This is his first teaching assignment. He has a Master of Science degree from Virginia Commonwealth University.

Last May Nancy Stanton graduated from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C., with a Master of Divinity degree in languages and religious education. She will be serving the Green Ridge Baptist Church in Roanoke as Minister of Education.

Stewart Gamage is going back to Richmond with some exciting new opportunities. She is going to be the Administrative Assistant to Chuck Robb, the newly elected Lieutenant Governor of Virginia.

On that note I'll close, after wishing you all a happy and prosperous 1978.

Mrs. James W. Theobald
(Mary R. Miley)
2614-A Hanover Avenue
Richmond, Va. 23220

74 First, I want to call attention to our new address up above -- we're back in Virginia now and settling into our apartment in the Fan. We're renting the upstairs of an enormous old duplex from Nat ('75) and Nancy Sloan Hamner, who will be living downstairs. Nancy and Nat bought the house in October and have been renovating it for the past three months; Jim and I have been helping with the painting and Nancy and I did the wallpapering -- an excellent job, if I do say so!

Jim passed the Ohio Bar and was sworn in on November 4, along with Nancy Nordstrom and Rob Gardier. We know that Nancy graduated from the University of Cincinnati law school, is married, and has joined her father's law firm in Ashland, Ohio; and we know that Rob is working for a large Columbus firm after having graduated from Ohio State's law school. . . but since Jim talked to them both on the last day of a three-day bar exam, this was all his frazzled brain could remember. Jim has started his new job as an attorney at the national headquarters of Lawyer's Title, where he will specialize in real estate law.

Wedding bells have been ringing for lots of our classmates lately: just a couple of months ago Scott G. (Chip) Yancey and Sandy Wilson ('75) were married. Chip, a senior accountant with Price Waterhouse, was married to Sandy on November 18 (also her birthday) in Arlington. Kathy Todd Wilke and Paul Dayer were attendants.

More wedding news comes from Paula and Lee Powell who were married last July 30. Lee is a court consultant and researcher for the National Center for State Courts in Williamsburg and Paula teaches.

Shari Shank Kidd wrote to catch us up on her recent activities. Shortly after graduation she married Reggie Kidd ('73) and moved to Philadelphia. While Reggie got his Master's degree in religion, Shari managed a woman's clothing store; then Reggie returned to seminary for a divinity degree and Shari became a housemother at a home for neglected children. Reggie finished his degree this spring and they moved to Boca Raton, Fla., where he is an assistant pastor at Spanish River Presbyterian Church. Shari says she has gone into temporary retirement and that she loves Florida's weather and their new church. She also sent news of Lem Tucker who graduated from seminary with Reggie. Lem is working in Mendenhall, Miss., with the Voice of Calvary, a ministry to rural poor folks.

Some promotions have come through for several classmates: Kay Storck, a former staffer at "Broadcasting Magazine," is the new production editor of "Nation's Business." Milton Mooney was promoted to buyer of the young men's division of O'Neils, a department store chain in Northeast Ohio. Milt now buys clothing for all student-aged boys and young men.

Among those pursuing graduate degrees are Randi Rovesti, at N.C. State as a graduate assistant in their sports program; Eric and Lynne Brugen Rieker, who are attending law school at the University of Akron; and Tom Watkins, who has just started the MBA program at the University of Chicago. Tom is on leave of absence from Arthur Anderson, where he has been employed as a junior accountant, and is concentrating in finance and securities. His address is 1401 E. 55th street, #502N, Chicago 60615 for those who would like to drop him a line. He'll be there until graduation in March 1979 -- that sounds like a long way off!

Hugh D. Alcock has joined the Navy and his wife, Mary Yore Alcock '76, writes that they'll be spending three months in Pensacola and six months in Denver while Hugh goes through the Air Intelligence School.

Beverly Powell wrote that she has moved to New York City. After finishing law school at U.Va., Bev was snatched up by the prestigious Manhattan firm, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie & Alexander.

We've heard through the grapevine that Ronnie Chappell was busy during the gubernatorial race last November, working as a speech writer for Henry Howell. And we received a copy of an article in the Dover Advance about Jane Bergman, who works for New Jersey Bell as an engineer. Jane lives in Morristown and began working for the telephone company right after graduation as an assistant engineer. Last year she was promoted to engineer and her job includes reviewing and approving plans drafted by assistant engineers and assembling reports and budgets. Although the job keeps her in the office much of the time, some days she's outside or underground checking on the work she's designed.

Nancy L. King wrote that she is trying to locate two '74-ers and asked for the Gazette's help. If Bruce Spiegelman or Mark Robertson read this, or if anyone knows where they are, please contact Nancy at 15597 Highcroft Drive, Chesterfield, Mo. 63017.

Robert Moncrief was named Organist and Director of Choirs for the Rye (N.Y.) Presbyterian Church. He holds a Masters of Music degree from Yale School of Music. While at Yale he was Director of the Yale Divinity School Choir.

Harold Stark has been named Head of Library Services of Harford (Md.) Community College. He joined HCC in 1975 as Head of Technical Processes in the College library. He is working on a Masters of Science in Administration at George Washington University in D.C. He has already received a Master's in Library Science from the University of North Carolina.

76 They say no news is good news, so I will assume that is true for the Class of '76. There are a few items, however, that I will relay.

Brian Cashell received the degree of Master of International Management from the American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale, Ariz. Word has it that James Klage has completed most of the work on his MA in Philosophy at UCLA as a Danforth Fellow. He has had an article accepted for publication in the journal Philosophical Studies, appearing around the end of 1976.

Bob Ferreri attended the London School of Economics College of Law last summer. He is a student at the Cleveland Marshall College of Law.

Mary Beck is in a management training program with Mutual Federal Savings and Loan and has been working in the Norfolk office.

Nancy Long has joined the law department of Reynolds Metals Company as legal assistant, a newly created position. She graduated from the Institute for Paralegal Training in Philadelphia in January, 1977, and was with the Richmond law firm of Hunton & Williams before joining Reynolds.

Courtney Henshaw Holmes is working at MCV in Richmond as a Lab Specialist A in the chemistry labs while her husband, Kevin '77, is in his first years of graduate school there in the Department of Anatomy. John Porter '75, and Steve Dinwiddie '77, are also in the Department. Glen Johnson, Brian Torre, and Wally Brubaker are in their second year at Med School, also at MCV. Bruce Dressel is another Lab Specialist A in the chemistry labs. He and the bank own a house and 2 1/2 acres of land in Aylett, Va.

Deborah Federhen reports that she is working toward a Master's in Museum Studies at George Washington University after having interned last year as a research assistant at the Smithsonian. She spent the summer in Europe, travelling and working on the restoration of an 11th century chateau in Lorraine, France. I received a letter from Kathy Stumm the other day and she indicated that she was in her second year at the University of Colorado School of Law in Boulder. She is working in the Legal Aid and Defender Program whereby she handles criminal cases under the supervision of a staff attorney. Kathy says that she has really enjoyed the work as well as Colorado in general, and she has hopes of settling there. Kathy reports that Suzanne Conway is working at the State Department in D.C., while Arlene Hewitt is in graduate school at Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn. Connie Painter Stewart is living in Columbia, S.C., where her husband Porter is in law school.

Committee to Accept Medallion Nominations

The Alumni Medallion Committee is receiving nominations from alumni chapters and from individual alumni for candidates for the Alumni Medallion, the highest honor conferred by the Society of the Alumni.

The medallion is awarded for service and loyalty, recognizing extraordinary achievement in the vocational and avocational life of the alumnus. Consideration is given to distinguished service and exceptional loyalty to the Society and to the College; outstanding character; notable success in business or profession and contributions in worthy endeavors of such nature as to bring credit and honor to the College. The graduating class of the nominee must have been at least ten years prior to the awarding.

The nominations must be supported by a short written statement outlining service to William and Mary and an assessment of that service; service to community, state, and/or nation; vocational achievements and recognitions.

The deadline will be March 1, 1978.

Send all nominations to: ALUMNI MEDALLION COMMITTEE, BOX 60, WILLIAMSBURG, VA. 23185.

Fine Virginia Peanuts

The Society is pleased to offer through the FINE VIRGINIA FOODS program high energy, rich in protein, VIRGINIA PEANUTS, fresh from Suffolk, the peanut capital of the world.

Ready for roasting shelled peanuts are available in 3lb and 5lb bags. Each bag is furnished with old fashioned recipes you may use in your own kitchen. These king sized peanuts prepared to your personal taste can be a trademark of your entertaining, in the best Virginia tradition.

The famous Hubs' "home cooked" salted peanuts are truly different from any others. They are crunchy and have a full rich peanut flavor brought out by a special and difficult water blanching process. They will keep in the freezer indefinitely regardless of how often the container is opened. We offer the large 46 oz. resealable can for weekend entertaining and snacks around the house.

To: JAMES G. DRIVER, Fine Virginia Foods, Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box 60, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

News and Notes • February 1978

$9.5 Committed Toward Goal Campaign Reaches The Half Way Point

The College has reached the halfway point in its 3-year effort to raise $19 million.

With 18 months left, contributions to the Campaign for the College total $9,469,246, or 50 per cent of the $19 million total.

In order to maintain its current pace and reach its goal, the Office of College Development calculates that it must raise an average of

Faculty, Staff Give Nearly Quarter Million. See P. 2

$24,437.83 each working day over the next 18 months.

The Campaign is now well into the second of three phases, which includes the solicitation of major gifts and of contacting the faculty and administration of the College. In the third and final stage, scheduled to begin next fall, the general alumni body will be solicited for special gifts.

In the solicitation of the faculty, which began in late fall, the College has commitments already of nearly a quarter million dollars.

"The cooperation and response of all members of the College family thus far have been remarkable," said Warren Heemann, vice president for development. "If our efforts are rewarded over the second half of the campaign in a similar fashion, I am confident we will reach our goal on schedule."

The College has received several recent gifts of cash, stock, property, and valuable artifacts. They include:

Reynolds Metals Gives $100,000

A $100,000 gift from the Reynolds Metals Co., headquartered in Richmond, will establish an endowment to partially fund a professorship in the School of Business Administration.

Faculty, Staff Gifts Total $239,000

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars has been committed to date to the 3-year Campaign for the College by faculty, faculty emeriti and staff at William and Mary.

Canvassing of the faculty has been in progress since late fall under the direction of Frank A. MacDonald, professor of philosophy emeritus who heads the faculty Campaign committee. Solicitation of the administration and staff, with the exception of the Office of College Development which has already made its commitment, began in January.

To date, $217,722 has been pledged by 98 faculty and another $21,691 has been committed by staff members in the Office of College Development, which received 100 per cent participation from its members.

MacDonald, who heads a 39-member committee of faculty volunteers which began the solicitation in early December, said he was pleased with the initial results of the campaign.

"William and Mary is an outstanding small university," he said, "and it is axiomatic that a really first quality school can't be run on State funds alone. To maintain the special quality of our program, we must have additional support, especially in view of the austerity of the State budget."

"Gifts to the Campaign will benefit William and Mary students and faculty for generations," said

MacDonald. "We hope that faculty will contribute according to their circumstances, but our primary aim is to persuade all members to make a gift. Participation by the entire faculty is a very powerful argument in soliciting outside funds.

"There is a history of contribution by faculty members to scholarship funds for worthy students, and at least one fund, the Martin Luther King Scholarship, was entirely initiated by and has been supported principally by the faculty."

Included in the faculty gift total is a gift in trust by Mrs. Gladys Guy, widow of the late distinguished chairman of the Department of Chemistry, Dr. William Guy, reported earlier. Mrs. Guy has deeded her home to the College, retaining life-time tenancy privileges.

Assisting Professor MacDonald in the solicitation are:

Mario D. Zamora, Anthropology; Garret R. (Jack) Brooks, Biology; David W. Thompson, Chemistry; J. Ward Jones, Classical Studies; Allen R. Sanderson, Leonard G. Schiffrin, Economics; Robert P. Maccubbin, Robert J. Scholnick, English; Carl A. Roseberg, Fine Arts; Gerald H. Johnson, Geology; Alan J. Ward, Government; A. Z. Freeman, H. Cam Walker, History; Richard H. Prosl, George T. Rublein, Mathematics; Joseph S. Agee, Men's Physical Education;

Lloyd L. Young, Military Science; Paul P. Cloutier, Elsa S. Diduk, John A. Moore, Modern Languages; Henry Earl McLane, Philosophy; Roy L. Champion, John L. McKnight, Physics; Peter L. Derks, Stanley B. Williams, Psychology; Jack D. Van Horn, Religion; Jon S. Kerner, Edwin H. Rhyne, Sociology; Louis E. Catron, Theatre; Richard G. Flood, Joe B. Hoyle, School of Business; Armand J. Galfo, John F. Lavach, School of Education; and Ronald C. Brown, John E. Donaldson, School of Law.

William and Mary Fund at $206,000; Leaders Listed

Gifts and pledges to the 27th William and Mary Fund as of mid-January have exceeded $200,000.

Contributions total $206,633.95 from 3,656 alumni. In last year's full campaign, 4,800 alumni gave approximately $270,000 to the William and Mary Fund.

Among the various classes, the class of 1920 has the highest percentage of participation -- 33 percent; the class of 1936 has contributed the largest amount of money -- $14,572; and the class of 1968 has the highest number of donors -- 122.

Top five in percentage of participants are the class of 1920 (33 percent), class of 1922 (33 per cent), class of 1923 (27 per cent), class of 1921 and class of 1942 (each 26 per cent), and the classes of 1926 and 1943 (each 25 per cent).

Top five classes in total amount given are the class of 1936 ($14,572), the class of 1935 ($8,142), class of 1949 ($7,050), class of 1940 ($4,730) and the class of 1934 ($6,378).

In number of donors, the top five are the class of 1968 (122), class of 1949 (111), class of 1971 (104), class of 1965 (97), and class of 1967 (96).

Serving as chairpersons of this year's fund drive are Fred L. Frechette '46 of Williamsburg, Mrs. Barbara Berkeley Ukrop '61 of Richmond, and Mark O. Shriver IV '71 of Atlanta. Frechette represents the class up to 1955; Mrs. Ukrop the classes from 1956 to 1966, and Shriver from 1966 to 1977.

Cindy Clisham (left) and Joyce Cross of the Office of College Development help Jeff Shy '71, coordinator of development services, count checks coming into the Campaign for the College at the midway point in the Campaign. Staff workers calculate that the College needs to raise $24,437.83 each day over the next 18 months to realize the Campaign goal of $19 million.

President's Council Visits Campus in February

Members of the President's Council will visit William and Mary during Charter Day weekend in February for their fifth annual meeting.

More than 200 individuals and couples now belong to the President's Council, initiated five years to recognize alumni and friends of the College who give at least $1000 a year to William and Mary.

Members of the President's Council will attend a black-tie reception and dinner on Feb. 10 and Charter Day exercises on Feb. 11. In addition, they will meet with President Graves and other College administrators as well as with members of the faculty for informal discussions of matters of mutual interest and concern.

As a special attraction this year, the President's Council has been invited to attend a special conference on education sponsored by the School of Education and featuring television commentator Howard K. Smith and Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, U.S. Commissioner of Education, as well as several academic dignitaries.

The new professorship will be named the Richard S. Reynolds Jr. Professorship of Business Administration and will be occupied by an individual whose primary academic and research interests are in the field of international business management.

Under terms of the gift, the income will be matched dollar for dollar by State funds under the Commonwealth's Eminent Scholars Program. The combined sum of $8000 to $10,000 will be used to supplement a regular salary, permitting the School to retain a person of special eminence in his field.

The Reynolds gift, the fourth corporate contribution of $100,000 to the Campaign for the College, is "evidence of an increasing awareness in the business world of the contribution our School of Business Administration is making to advanced management training," according to President Graves.

The President of Reynolds Metals, George M. Walters, is chairman of the Campaign's Business and Industry Committee and chairman of the Board of Directors of the School of Business Sponsors, Inc.

Zables Contribute Arizona Real Estate

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Zable of San Diego, California, have given the College another major gift of real estate in Arizona.

The Zables, who are members of the classes of 1937 and 1940, gave the Campaign land valued at $168,141. It is located near Tubac, Ariz.

"The Zables have been among the College's strongest supporters over the years," said Warren Heemann, vice president for development. "This is another in a long line of generous gifts of cash, stock and property."

Mr. Zable, founder and chairman of the board of the Cubic Corporation of San Diego, served as co-chairman with Mrs. Zable for the William and Mary Fund last year. He is also a director of the School of Business Sponsors, Inc., a trustee emeritus of the Endowment Board, a member of the Campaign's National Development Committee, and a member of the President's Council.

A recipient of the Alumni Medallion, Mr. Zable is a former director of the Society of the Alumni.

College Acquires Rare Collection

A 1942 alumnus of the College has made it possible for William and Mary to acquire one of the finest collections of Paleo-Indian artifacts in the New World.

Thomas G. Paynter of Weston, Conn., made the gift of the Williamson Collection in memory of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Paynter, Sr.

The Williamson Collection contains more than a thousand Paleo-Indian artifacts, including fluted projectile points, commonly known as "arrowheads;" knives, drills, spokeshaves, and many rough implements and cares. Archaeologists have judged the age of the artifacts at between 10,000 and 12,000 years.

Dr. Vinson Sutlive, chairman of the Department of Anthropology at the College, said the collection is particularly significant because it represents the earliest evidence of human habitation in Virginia.

The artifacts were collected from an archaeological site on the farm of the late John E. and Joshua S. Williamson, located near Dinwiddie, Va.

Vice president and a director of the Walden Book Co., Mr. Paynter is a member of the National Leadership Gifts Committee of the Campaign for the College. In 1969, he established at William and Mary the Lawrence W. Hoyt Scholarship Fund for students of American Indian descent. He is currently a member of the Western Historical Society, the Little Big Horn Association and the National Historical Society.

Refuge Project Benefits from Gift

Another $12,000 has been donated to the Campaign for the College for the construction of the Wildlife Flower Refuge Project near the Crim Dell area of the campus.

The project will consist of a small amphitheatre with benches, pine bark paths, and various plants and shrubbery native to Virginia where students can gather for classes, dramatic workshops and other projects and which can be used by visitors to campus for various gatherings.

The Senior Class of 1977 pledged $14,000 to the project at Commencement last year and student volunteers have helped clear underbrush from the area. Dr. Martin C. Mathes, professor of biology, has worked with the project for some time, encouraging a place on campus where plants native to Virginia can be exhibited in a natural habitat.

Already in the area are jack-in-the-pulpit, May apple, yellow ragwort, violets, and lady slippers.

A foundation which wishes to remain anonymous made the latest gift to the Wildlife Flower Refuge Project.

Thalhimer Brothers Contributes $15,000

The Thalhimer Brothers Foundation has given to the College $15,000 to establish the Thalhimer Brothers Foundation Fund under the auspices of the Endowment Association.

Income from the Fund will be used at the discretion of the President and his advisors to meet the most pressing needs at William and Mary.

Dr. Vinson Sutlive, left, chairman of the Dept. of Anthropology, and Dr. Ben McCary, Associate Professor emeritus, study some of the artifacts from the Williamson Collection.

The Thalhimer Bros., Inc., is an independent department store group which operates 26 stores in 11 cities in Virginia and North Carolina. The Company was founded in 1842 and incorporated in Virginia in 1922.

William B. Thalhimer Jr. is chairman of the board and chief executive officer and his brother, Charles G. Thalhimer, is president of the company.

William B. Thalhimer Jr. is a member of the Board of Directors of the School of Business Sponsors, Inc.

Roberts Makes Gift of Stock

A gift of stock valued at $63,637 has been given to the Campaign for the College by A. Addison Roberts '35 of Philadelphia, a member of the Board of Visitors.

Mr. Roberts, who also serves as vice chairman of the Campaign for the College, is the retired president, chief executive officer, and chairman of the board of the Reliance Insurance Co.

His gift will be deposited in the Nannie Wilkins Roberts Scholarship Fund, which Mr. Roberts established at the College in 1971 in memory of his mother.

The Fund provides scholarship assistance to needy students from the Eastern Shore of Virginia, with the flexibility that if no worthy candidate from the Eastern Shore is available, the College may use the scholarship funds at its own discretion.

With the addition of the latest gift, the fund corpus now totals $95,000.

Sauer Company Gives $5000 Gift

The Campaign for the College has received a $5,000 gift from the C.F. Sauer Co. of Richmond.

The Sauer company manufactures spices, extracts, condiments, and salad products.

$350,000 is 1978 Goal

AEF Reaches $293,000 in Record Fund Drive

Contributions to the Athletic Educational Foundation increased again in 1977, continuing the upward trend of the past four years.

By the end of December, contributions had reached a total of $293,000, an increase of $40,000 over 1976. The AEF paid the College in 1977 $262,000 to support men's and women's athletics.

Besides the $293,000, the College received a pledge of $96,000 over the next six years from alumnus Mark H. McCormack '51 of Cleveland, president of International Management Group, Inc., a multi-million dollar corporation involved in sports promotion. The gift will be used for scholarships in men's golf and women's tennis.

The Athletic Educational Foundation also learned in 1977 of five major endowment gifts totaling more than a half million dollars that will be used to support athletics at the College.

"Endowment gifts which are a part of the Campaign for the College will become a major thrust of the Foundation," according to Barry G. Fratkin '64, executive director of the Foundation.

Fratkin said he was pleased that contributions to the AEF in 1977 significantly increased for the fourth consecutive year. Since 1973, contributions have grown from $94,000 to nearly $300,000.

"Our growth has been the result of hard work by many dedicated alumni and friends of William and Mary athletics who recognize that with the rising costs of an athletic program of excellence we will have to continue to do better," said Fratkin.

"We are especially indebted to the AEF board and to the leadership provided by President Dick Savage," he added.

Schaubach, Norfolk, immediate past president; and members-at-large: Harriet Nachman Storm, Hampton; Richard L. Salmon, Petersburg; Wade W. Cheatham, Williamsburg, and Barry G. Fratkin, executive director.

Richard Savage (seated) of Norfolk and Gil Granger (behind Savage) of Virginia Beach were named men of the year by the Athletic Educational Foundation at its meeting in January. With Savage and Granger is Becky Vaughan of Petersburg, a foundation trustee. Savage was reelected president of the Foundation, which set a $350,000 goal for 1978.

First MBA Drive Nets $6500

Law School, Parents' Fund Report Totals

Gifts and pledges to the 1977 Marshall-Wythe School of Law Fund totaled nearly $64,000, according to Jess Cloud, acting director of annual giving at William and Mary.

"We were delighted by the response," said Dr. Cloud, who noted that it coincides with the passage of the November bond referendum which included money for a new law building for the school.

Law alumni contributed $63,547.10 to the law drive, for an average gift of $110.90 from 573 donors. Thirty-nine per cent of all law alumni gave to the fund.

Gifts to the law fund go to support a number of educational goals at the law school, including faculty research and professional development, financial aid to deserving students, and library acquisitions.

The new law building will be constructed adjacent to the National Center for State Courts, which was in the process of completing its new building in early 1978.

"We look forward to a mutually beneficial relationship between the Law School and the National Center," noted William B. Spong Jr., Dean of the Law School. "Indeed, the presence of the National Center has already made positive contributions to the life of the Law School."

When completed, the new law school building will occupy nearly 80,000 square feet of space.

"Perhaps for the first time in its recent history," said Dean Spong, "the law school will have an adequate physical facility for the conduct of its educational program."

Dean Spong noted that "the remarkable generosity of our alumni has been an immensely comforting constant."

"The impact of alumni contributions," he said, "has been felt in almost every area of our educational program. In many cases, alumni gifts have, quite simply, provided a margin of financial flexibility that has been indispensable to the maintenance of the forward progress of the law school."

Woody Turner '73 of Leesburg, Va., served as chairman of the 1977 fund drive and Wayne M. Lee '75 of Alexandria, Va., served as vice chairman.

Regional chairmen were Michael E. Kris '71, Northern Virginia, Maryland suburbs and the District of Columbia; Stanley G. Barr, Jr., '66, Tidewater; Edward L. Hubbard '74, Peninsula; Alvin P. Anderson '72, Williamsburg; Thomas W. Wright '73, Southwest Virginia; Gary F. Roth '74, New York and New England; and Bryan D. Rosenberger '74, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Class chairmen were Robert S. Parker, Jr., (1970); H. Robert Mayer (1971); William Musser, III (1972); Michael A. Inman (1973); Steven W. McGrath (1974); Samuel F. Boyte (1975); and James J. Thomas, II (1976).

Parents' Fund Raises $48,000

The Parents' Fund drive in 1977 raised nearly $48,000 from 1049

parents, year-end totals show.

The Parents' Fund is one of four fund drives, along with the Law School, the MBA Association, and the Athletic Educational Foundation, with campaigns which close December 31.

Sixteen per cent of all parents of current and recently-graduated students contributed an average gift of $45.62 to the Parents' Fund.

The William and Mary Parents' Fund is one of the half dozen most successful such drives in the country, according to data available from the Council for Financial Aid to Education. It ranks high in all categories -- total gifts, average gift, and percentage of parents participating.

Administered by the Office of College Development, the Parents' Fund, which supports instructional equipment and materials, faculty and student research, financial assistance, lectures, concerts, student service projects, and other programs of cultural enrichment, is under the auspices of the Association of Parents. Dan P. Restuccia of Lynchburg, who is president of the Association for Parents, heads a 50-member steering committee that assists the College in the Parents' Fund drive.

One of the highlights of the 1977 drive was a 4-night phonathon during which 40 William and Mary students called more than 2000 parents nationwide, collecting 400 pledges totaling approximately $10,000.

The Association of Parents in cooperation with the Student Association and the College annually sponsor Parents' Weekend during the fall. In addition, parents of all William and Mary students receive the Alumni Gazette and other publications from the College.

MBA Fund Drive is Successful

The MBA Fund, in its first year of operation, raised nearly $6500 for the support of the educational program in the School of Business Administration.

Joseph Patterson Jr., a 1973 graduate of the Master of Business Administration Program, headed up the fund drive, which attracted support from 136 alumni of the MBA program. Twenty-four per cent of the MBA alumni contributed, for an average gift of $47.62.

"We are very pleased by the success of the program in its first year," said Patterson. "The participation by alumni is most gratifying and reflects their confidence in and support of the excellent educational program the School of Business Administration is providing for our students."

Patterson, a resident of Williamsburg, was the national chairman for the 1977 MBA Fund Drive. He stated that proceeds from the fund drive will go for financial assistance to deserving students and other stated needs of the Graduate School of Business Administration.
