THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Over the Top!

Campaign for the College Surpasses Goal with $20.5 Million

Those who were in attendance sensed they were a part of history in the making.

It was a celebration of another "first" at William and Mary, a breakthrough that may be as significant in the College's history as Jefferson's successful reorganization of the College in 1779, Lyon G. Tyler's hardfought battle to achieve state support in 1888, and Dr. Davis Y. Paschall's expansion of its programs to full university status in 1968.

On Friday, May 11, the College announced that William and Mary's first comprehensive fund raising effort, the Campaign for the College, had surpassed its $19 million goal, with a full six-week remaining in the three-year campaign.

By the time Roy R. Charles '32, chairman of the Campaign for the College, walked onto the Wren balcony to make the formal announcement, the word had leaked out to most of the 300 guests who had gathered on the Wren Lawn. What the majority of supporters did not know was that the Campaign had already gone over its mark by some million and a half dollars.

Charles reported that as of May 10, the Campaign had received gifts and pledges totaling $20,543,979. The total included $3,817,460 in expendable gifts, $7,747.319 in capital gifts, mainly to endowment, and $8,979,200 in testamentary commitments.

The $20.5 million total does not include more than $1.6 million from the estate of Jay W. Johns, which was known to be forth-coming before the Campaign kick-off.

Charles, who lives in Norfolk, was joined at the announcement by

A special edition of the William and Mary News tells the whole story with its big, bold headline, which brings a smile to the faces of chairman Roy R. Charles '32 and President Graves.

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., Edward Brickell '50, rector of the Board of Visitors, and Warren Heemann, vice president for development. Together, the four cut loose a huge banner which proclaimed the success of the Campaign and balloons were released from the far side of the Wren Building to say congratulations from Anheuser-Busch.

The Wren bell announced the victory to the town, and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation answered with the bell in the Capitol Building. Following the announcement, alumni and friends who worked to organize and implement the Campaign climbed to the second floor of the Wren Building to take a turn ringing the bell to celebrate the occasion. Champagne toasts and a picnic lunch in the grassy area between the Wren Building and the Sunken Garden followed.

In making the announcement, Charles recalled that there were those who were skeptical that the Campaign would succeed.

"When we selected $19 million, I believe that several of the experts thought we had bitten off a little more than we could chew. There were others who believed that with a small staff, and a limited organization of volunteers, we would have a very difficult time reaching our goal," said Charles.

"But what these experts failed to consider was that the excitement about this Campaign, and its vital importance to the College, started at the very top—with the man standing right here next to me today.

Harriet Nachman Storm '64, current chairman of the William and Mary Fund, toasts the Campaign with Jean Canoles Bruce '49 at the reception following the announcement. Both Mrs. Storm and Mrs. Bruce served as vice chairman for the Campaign and as president of the Society of the Alumni during the three-year fund raising effort.

President Tom Graves made this campaign his campaign, and became an inspiration to us all. He travelled a grueling schedule to make the keynote address at 16 regional campaign dinners across the country, often flying after midnight in single engine charter planes that offered all the comforts of a Volkswagen beetle. He found a way to put more hours in his day. He visited a number of top prospects to either ask them for support or to warm them up for a later solicitation. Throughout the three years, during the rough times as well as the periods of success, Tom Graves has remained optimistic, enthusiastic, and always encouraging," said Charles.

Graves credited the "thousands of individuals who worked and contributed to this Campaign "for the achievement of the goal."

"This day, I believe, will go down in the long and illustrious history of the College, not as a day of achieving a financial goal that provides for the College's future, but instead, as a day when the William and Mary family came together to say 'yes, we care about the College, and yes, you can count on us to help make William and Mary's future even brighter than its past.' I thank you all, each and every one of you, for making this day possible," he

Former President Davis Y. Paschall '32, who served as honorary chairman for the Campaign, speaks to the special volunteers gathered in the Great Hall. Seated from left to right, W. Brooks George '32,, treasurer for the Campaign; J. Wilfred Lambert '27, secretary for the Campaign; Edward E. Brickell '50, rector of the Board of Visitors; Frank MacDonald '36, who served as chairman of faculty solicitations; President Graves; George Walters, who headed solicitations of corporations and Harriet Nachman Storm '64, vice chairman for the Campaign and chairman of the 1978-79 William and Mary Fund.

The President also emphasized that a large part of the money collected should be used to support faculty salaries, which the College has identified as its number one priority need.

"The number of gifts we have received earmarked specifically for faculty support shows that our friends and alumni recognize that we must do everything we can to retain and to attract the most qualified professors available," he noted.

Brickell presented a resolution drafted and approved by the Board of Visitors which communicated the Board's "admiration and appreciation to those who have made the Campaign for the College a strong success and a landmark for future efforts to increase private resources for the College."

Heemann, who has directed the day-to-day operations of the Campaign since its inception, praised the work of volunteers who wrote letters, placed telephone calls and made personal visits to assure the success of the Campaign. "Some of these volunteers live and work hundreds of miles away from their alma mater, yet they still feel very close to the College, and worked very hard to secure its future," he noted.

Although the announcement proclaimed the successful achievement of the Campaign goal, the accounting period for the Campaign does not officially close until June 30. Heemann told volunteers that the College will push on toward the $21 million mark, and hopes that a number of substantial gifts will come in before the close of the Campaign.

Although the announcement made May 11 signaled that the successful close of the College's first major fund raising Campaign is just around the corner, leaders at the College emphasized that the Campaign for the College is in many ways a beginning.

The Campaign enabled the College, and in particular the President, to meet and to visit thousands of alumni and friends of the College from coast to coast. The number of individuals who support William and Mary with their time, their effort and their money has grown by leaps and bounds.

As President Graves noted, the future of the College now rests not on the shoulders of just a few, but on the shoulders of thousands who are committed to maintaining and strengthening the unusual quality for which William and Mary is known.

Ringling the bell in the Wren Building to celebrate are Edward E. Brickell '50, rector of the Board of Visitors; Warren Heemann, vice president for development; President Graves; and Roy Charles '32, chairman of the Campaign for the College.

Elliott G. Schaubach '59, Norfolk, (left) a member of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni, and Jean Canoles Bruce '49, Norfolk, applauded the announcement that the Campaign had exceeded its goal.

Although dark clouds threatened to drench the supporters who attended the announcement, the skies seemed to quickly clear when the time came to begin the celebration. Faculty volunteers, alumni leaders, and friends gathered on the Wren Lawn to compare notes before the announcement was made.

Get on Board!

It's not too late. Alumni who have not yet contributed to the College can still join the thousands of loyal supporters who make up the donor list of the Campaign for the College.

The William and Mary Fund, which is still $50,000 short of its ambitious $400,000 goal for 1978-79, closes simultaneously with the three-year Campaign for the College on June 30.

"We hope the announcement of the Campaign's success will encourage more people to jump on board the winning bandwagon before the June 30 deadline," said Harriet Nachman Storm, chairman of the William and Mary Fund. "And we also hope that those who still have outstanding pledges will be reminded that their gifts must be in before the end of June."

Alumni who want to make a gift to the William and Mary Fund, or to one of the other College funds, should mail their checks as soon as possible to P.O. Drawer 1693, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

Among those enjoying the luncheon were J. B. and Mildred Hickman, owners of Binns, who recently committed $100,000 to the College.

On Campus

Physics Professor To Head VARC

Hans C. von Baeyer, a celebrated physicist who has conducted research in three different nations, has been named director of the Virginia Associated Research Campus (VARC) of the College. VARC is located in Newport News.

A member of the William and Mary faculty since 1968, von Baeyer served as chairman of the physics department from 1972-78. Currently he is completing a year's leave as visiting professor at Simon Fraser University in Canada.

von Baeyer, who will assume his new duties July 1, will replace Henry Aceto, who resigned the directorship of VARC to return to full time teaching in the biology department. Von Baeyer will also continue to teach in the Physics Department.

One of the most popular professors on campus, von Baeyer has a great deal of experience in both theoretical physics and scientific administration. He was a member of the program advisory committee of the Space Radiation Effects Laboratory from 1972-78 and served as principal investigator for a National Science Foundation grant to the William and Mary physics department from 1972-75. He was chairman of the organizing committee for the meeting of the division of particles and fields of the American Physical Society in 1974 and the Eastern Theoretical Physics Conference in 1977.

He belongs to the American Physical Society, the American Association of Physics Teachers, the American Association of University Professors and the Federation of American Scientists. In 1973, he received the coveted Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award, which is presented annually to one member of the faculty for excellence in teaching.

von Baeyer has worked on numerous campus committees, including the Committee on Honors and Experimental Programs, Committee on Graduate Studies in Arts and Sciences and the Long Range Planning Committee.

Programs Win CASE Awards

The University Communications office at William and Mary and the Office of Development have been recognized for excellence in four separate areas by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE).

Special citations were awarded to the Information Office, a division of University Communications, and to a legislative communications program organized by University Communications in cooperation with the Society of the Alumni. Another citation went to the Development Office in the category of "Volunteer Involvement" for its organization of volunteers in the third phase of the Campaign for the College, which recently exceeded its goal of $19 million.

The awards came in competition with hundreds of other universities in Recognition '79, through which CASE annually honors the top public relations, publications, and development programs in the country.

In addition, CASE gave special recognition to an 18-page report, published in 1976, which announced the three-year Campaign for the College. The special report, prepared by the staff of University Communications, is included as one of nine innovative approaches to communicating a campaign's goals recently offered through microfiche by CASE.

The legislative communications program, which received the second highest award conferred by CASE for higher education governmental legislative relations programs for 1978-79, helped inform members of the General Assembly about William and Mary and its legislative interests.

Prepared by Ross Weeks, Jr., assistant to the President and director of University Communications, in collaboration with Gordon C. Vliet '54, executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni, and Mrs. Harriet Nachman Storm '64 of Hampton, past president of the Society, the program is based on involving interested alumni of the College in the communications process with lawmakers.

The Information Office at the College was named as one of the top four in the country in the Recognition '79 program. The judges informed the director of the office, James C. Rees IV '74, that they were "impressed by the professional quality of the material. . . as well as by the scope and results of your program." They pointed to the non-traditional techniques used to obtain coverage by the Information Office as a reason for granting the award.

The Volunteers Program that won a citation for the Development Office was directed by William P.

McGoldrick, director of special gifts.

Last year, the College's publications program in University Communications won similar recognition from CASE.

Faculty Newsmakers

Two more William and Mary faculty have been selected for National Endowment for the Humanities seminars this summer, bringing to six the number of NEH awards which have been made to faculty at the College recently.

William R. Hamilton, assistant professor of music, and Robert H. Welch, assistant professor of modern languages and literatures, have been selected for the programs. Hamilton will study at City University of New York and Welch will attend a seminar at State University of New York at Albany.

Norman F. Barka, professor of anthropology, has received a contract for $57,867 from the National Park Service to study a man who was known as the poor potter of Yorktown. Barka's subject is William Rogers, a prosperous Yorktown brewer and merchant who excelled as Virginia's most prolific and accomplished potter in the early 18th century. Barka says not much is known about Rogers, except that the label "Poor Potter" is a misnomer for someone who was a seemingly prosperous entrepreneur. Stephen Clements, professor of geology, will provide technical assistance in the study.

Ann Netick, associate professor of modern languages and literatures, will participate in a summer exchange program of language teachers with the Soviet Union. The program is sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Science Research Council. It will involve 20 to 25 teachers for 10 weeks at the Moscow State University.

CHAPTER EVENTS

Tuesday, May 29

Roanoke, Virginia

The Roanoke Chapter of the Society of the Alumni held their annual Spring Meeting and Pot Luck Picnic. New officers were elected. They are: Jack Custer, '52, President; Bob Thompson, '77, Vice President; and Susan Bruton Bailey, '61, Secretary-Treasurer. The picnic was held at the home of Jack and Paige Custer in Salem, Virginia.

Wednesday, June 6

Portsmouth, Virginia

The Annual Spring Meeting of the Portsmouth/West Tidewater Chapter of the Society of the Alumni will be held in the Coleman Room at Coleman Garden Town Nursery in Portsmouth. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. The Nominating Committee will present its slate for approval of the chapter members. Light refreshments will be served and the cost for the evening is $1.00 per person. Advance reservations are requested, but all alumni are urged to attend and may pay at the door the evening of the meeting.

Sunday, June 10

Detroit, Michigan

The Detroit Chapter of the Society of the Alumni is sponsoring, along with 14 other Virginia colleges and universities, the First Annual Old Dominion Day Picnic. The picnic will be held on Sunday, June 10 from 3:00 - 7:00 p.m. at the University Liggett School athletic field. The field is located on Cook Road, between Mack and Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods. There will be sports, and music and food will be served. Soft drinks and beer will be served. All alumni have been invited as well as current students of the Virginia schools and recently admitted Freshmen. Price for the event is $6.00 per person - complete. Reservations should be sent to Mrs. R. E. Unger, 1143 Audubon Road, Grosse Pointe Park, MI 48230.

Saturday, June 23

Chicago, Illinois

The Drake Hotel, Chicago, will be the setting for the 1st Annual "Commonwealth Party" in Chicago. The Chicago Chapter of the Society of the Alumni, under the leadership of Esther Aldige, '71, President, and Beth Stoneburg, '74, secretary, is responsible for initiating this year's event. Alumni from Virginia colleges and universities have been invited. The party will be held from 6:00 to 8:30 p.m. There will be cocktails (cash bar) and hors d'oeuvres. The cost is $9.50 per person. Advance reservations are requested and alumni have been mailed forms. Esther can be contacted at 565-5959 if more information is needed.

Five Veterans Retire with Honors

Kallos, Newman, Sancetta, Stewart, Swindler Say Farewell After 160 Years of Teaching

William and Mary lost through retirement this spring the collective talents of five men who brought more than 160 years of teaching skill and commitment to the campus.

Alexander Kallos, professor of foreign languages and literatures; Richard K. Newman, professor of fine arts; Anthony L. Sancetta, associate dean for undergraduate studies in the School of Business Administration and Zollinger Professor of Business Administration; Alan Stewart, professor of music; and William F. Swindler, John Marshall Professor of Law at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, represent careers in teaching which span several decades.

Kallos joined the faculty in 1949. He specialized in modern German and comparative literature and for several years had been coordinator for German and Russian studies within his department. He has been active on several committees, served as a senior member of the Publications Committee for 18 years and worked as advisor to Omicron Delta Kappa leadership fraternity. He received a Ph.D. Magna Cum Laude from the University of Pennsylvania in 1956.

A strong supporter of theatre and music, he has often given informative critiques following performances on campus.

Kallos was once likened to Santa Claus by a writer who watched him on his way to class one day, "bouncing ebulliently across campus, a slight paunch protruding over his belt, his round jolly face exuding optimism and unabridged joy in what he's doing."

Newman joined the faculty in 1946 and served as chairman of the fine arts department from 1969 to 1976. Newman was the first fully trained professional art historian at the College. Today the department has eight full time and three part-time faculty members. This growth "is due in no small way to the effectiveness of Dick Newman as a teacher, as a voice on the campus in faculty affairs," noted his colleagues at the presentation of a plaque in his honor, which will be hung in Andrews Fine Arts Hall. Newman holds an A.B. degree from Dartmouth and a Ph.D. from Yale.

Sancetta came to William and Mary in 1948 to teach economics. He became professor of business administration in 1967 and associate dean for undergraduate studies in the School of Business Administration in 1976. Last year he was honored as Zollinger Professor in Business Administration.

Since the School of Business Administration's inauguration in 1968, Sancetta has been instrumental in its rapid development, making significant contributions to the professional accreditation of the School's BBA and MBA degree programs. A recognized scholar and consultant in business, economics, finance and banking, he is a founder and director of the Williamsburg National Bank, now the Southern Bank, and is currently serving as vice president of the Eastern Finance Association. He received his doctorate from Columbia University and received a Ford Foundation Fellowship in Economics in 1958.

For Alan Stewart, enjoyment of his 35 years of teaching at the College has been coupled with a strong affection for Williamsburg as "a great place to live and bring up children." He and his wife Jackie have been active participants in the musical life of the campus and the community for many years.

Stewart has played in the Peninsula Orchestra, the Norfolk Symphony, the Norfolk Fine Arts Museum Chamber Orchestra and the William and Mary College-Community Orchestra for 27 years. He has also worked with the Governor's Palace Ensemble. He recalls with particular affection his association with the Feldman String Quartet and the concerts for school children.

Stewart has also had a guiding hand in the development of the Williamsburg Youth Symphony and was co-founder of the Williamsburg Friends of Music.

A native New Yorker, Stewart received his musical training at Yale School of Music and Columbia University.

William F. Swindler, John Marshall Professor of Law, is retiring but will remain on campus next year as a special consultant on bicentennial affairs as the law school celebrates its 200th birthday.

If he does have any spare time, there are five delinquent book manuscripts waiting for his attention. These include a treatise on constitutional law, a book on the Continental Congress, and a definitive book on the Supreme Court under Earl Warren. A prolific writer and scholar, he must also finish volumes nine and 10 of his series on documents of U.S. Constitutions.

The former dean of journalism schools at the University of Idaho and the University of Nebraska, Swindler was director of development and professor of law for the College from 1958-1966. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Missouri and his law degree from the University of Nebraska. He was named John Marshall Professor of Law in 1974. A member of Nebraska, District of Columbia, Virginia and U.S. Supreme Court Bars, Swindler is a member of the Order of the Coif and the American Law Institute. He is co-founder of the Supreme Court History Society and chairman of its publications committee. He has also been active in the establishment of the Law School's summer program at the University of Exeter in England.

Swindler sums up his eventful career with a line from Tennyson: "I have become a part of all I have seen." His involvement with campus life attests to this. As director of development, he helped guide the College's association with NASA, which set the stage for serious graduate study. He is a close friend of Chief Justice Warren Burger, and admits to doing "a lot of nagging" when the opportunity to bring the National Center for State Courts to Williamsburg came along.

William Warren of Norfolk, a member of the 50th Reunion Committee, presented one of the 21 portraits of the Governors of Virginia to Society President Denys Grant '58 that the class plans to give for the Governor's Gallery in the Alumni House.

Nattily attired in his 1929 Freshman duc cap and a tuxedo, Joseph N. James of Millwood, Va., toasted his classmates at the Reunion.

Blue Chippers Cause Agee To Smile

McCormack Scholarships Should Produce
Top-notch Golf Team in Two Years

Joe Agee '52 has been the golf coach at William and Mary for 14 years, but this fall will be the first time he has approached a season with a real sense of optimism.

The reason: an infusion of funds as the result of a major gift by alumnus Mark H. McCormack '51 which has enabled Agee to recruit some blue chip golfers.

Agee signed four recruits to grants-in-aid this spring, and this promises to be just the start on the road to respectability for the golf program. This summer, Agee will attend three major national junior golf tournaments to see if he can find and recruit "the best junior golfer in the country."

Agee's initial goal is to build a strong, competitive program within the state of Virginia, which he expects to take about two years.

"After we accomplish that goal," he says, "we will take a look at the program and see where we can go from there."

Agee readily admits that the program has nowhere to go but up. In 14 years, he has experienced at best "mediocre success." In that time, Agee says, his teams finished second in the Southern Conference once and ranked anywhere from third to sixth in the state. Agee describes that as a "puny record."

Agee hopes to change that by beginning with the nucleus of good players that he has signed this spring. His first grant-in-aid went to a current member of the team, Jim O'Mara, a junior who transferred to William and Mary from Furman. O'Mara, during the past year, was the first golfer in five years at William and Mary to average in the low 80s, and Agee had told his golfers that anyone who showed him a consistent game could receive a partial grant.

Agee also signed two Virginia high school golfers and a New Jersey prep star to grants. They are Kent Erdahl, the top player at Midlothian High School in Richmond last year and one of the top high school players in Virginia; Brad Love, another Richmond native who played at Manchester High School; and Jim McKeon, a standout at Ocean City High School in New Jersey.

Agee says Love is one of the best scholastic players in Virginia. He predicts that Love will play regularly as a freshman. McKeon's record is equally impressive. He was the most valuable golfer in the Atlanta Junior Golf Association tournament in 1975 and the most valuable player for the past three years in the Cape Atlantic League in New Jersey.

The man who has made the improvement in the golf team possible is the founder and president of International Management Inc., a firm which handles many of the top athletes in the world. An outstanding golfer at William and Mary as an undergraduate, McCormack pledged a gift of $96,000 to the College as part of the Campaign for the College to help improve the men's golf team and the women's tennis team.

Golf coach Joe Agee this fall will greet his first crop of real blue chippers who were recruited as a result of the Mark H. McCormack gift to the golf and tennis programs.

The gift, which is distributed over a six-year period, promises to have a dramatic impact. The men's golf team, for instance, in the past has received only a $1,000 grant from the athletic department for grants-in-aid, and the amount was so small that Agee frequently did not give it as a grant, but rather used the money for team expenses on the road.

Now the team can, in Agee's words, "travel right, dress right, and eat right." And Agee will have the additional flexibility of attracting some athletes who will enable his golfers to play right as well.

Tri-Captains Sign Contracts

The tri-captains from last year's William and Mary football team have signed free agent contracts with the New Orleans Saints, the Denver Broncos, and Detroit Lions.

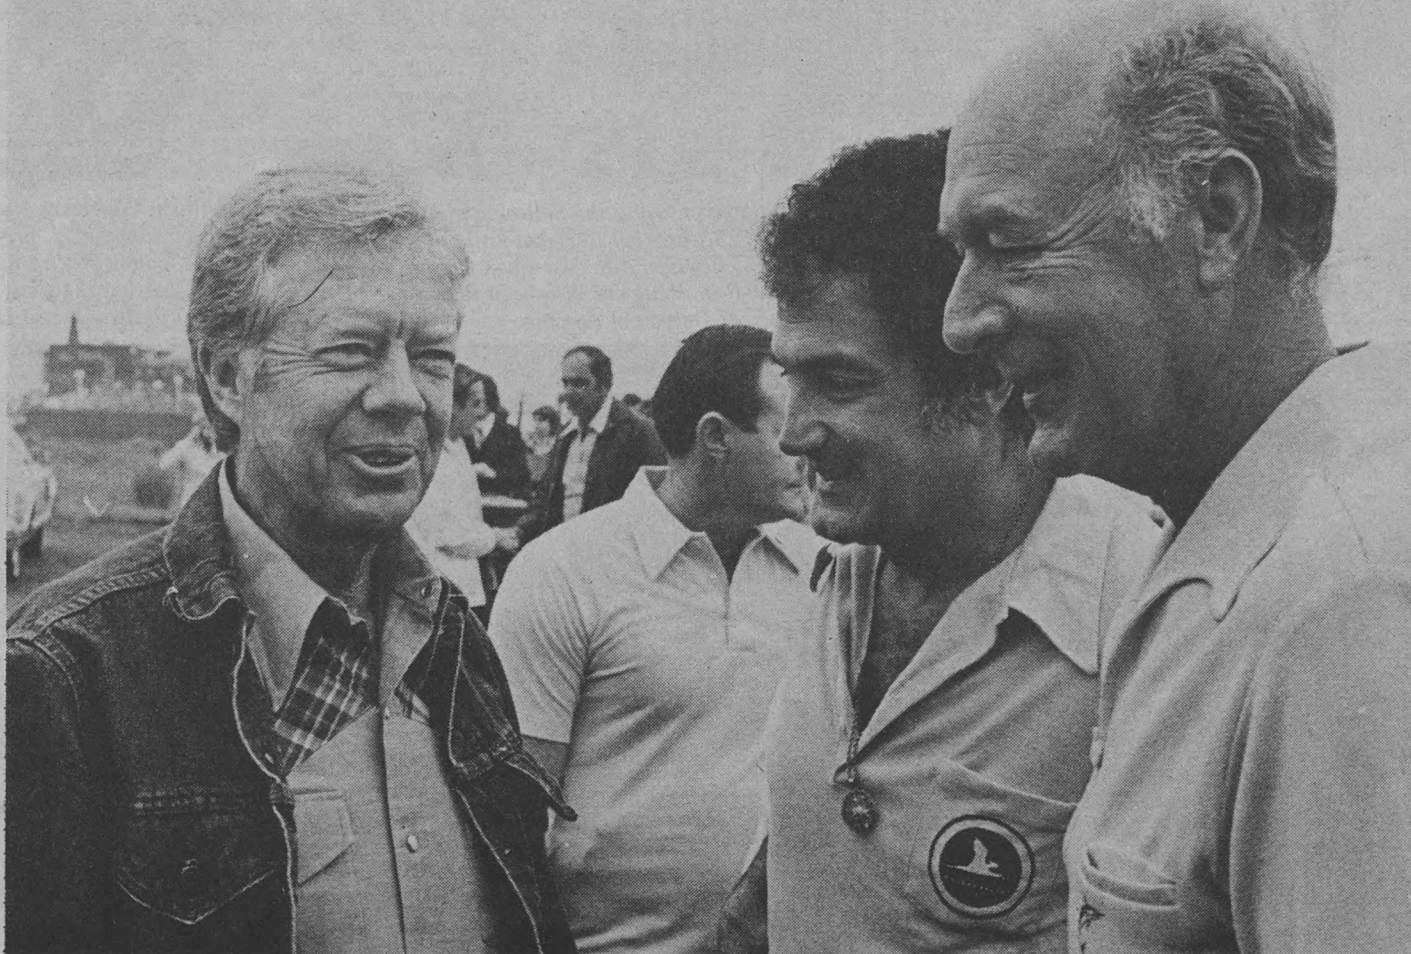

Tom Rozantz, the Tribe's record-setting quarterback, signed with New Orleans; Jim Ryan, who played for four years at linebacker for the Indians, signed a contract with Denver; and defensive end Melvin Martin signed with the Lions.

The players said they were pleased with the terms of their contract. Rozantz, who set new William and Mary career records for total offense yardage and passing yardage, said "there is an excellent opportunity for me at New Orleans, and I look forward to having the chance to play in the NFL."

Ryan sustained a knee injury two years ago, but he said his knee "feels great, better than it ever has." Ryan said he was "pleasantly surprised by the terms of his contract with the Broncos."

Martin was nicknamed "Mad Melvin" for his crushing tackles and enthusiasm for contact on the field. He said he was delighted to get a chance with the pros and plans to make the most of it.

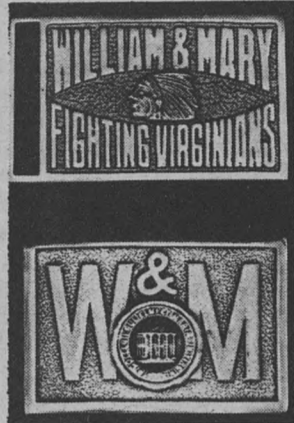

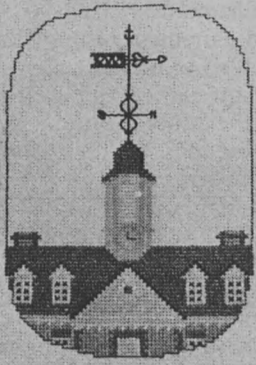

The three will report to rookie camps in June.

President and Mrs. Carter and Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus (right) were the guests of Peter Decker '60 (BCL) (center) in May when the President slipped out of Washington for a day to fish for Blues on Mr. Decker's 47-foot sport fishing craft off the Virginia coast. This was the second consecutive year that Decker, a Norfolk attorney, has taken the President fishing for Blues, and Mr. Carter reportedly enjoyed himself so much that he hopes to make it an annual affair. Decker and his guests had a successful day, catching 55 large Blues.

COMMENCEMENT '79

An aura of ebullience and youthful enthusiasm permeated the 1979 Commencement Exercises, held at William and Mary Hall on May 12.

Commencement speaker Jeffrey K. MacNelly, a 31-year-old Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist, set the tone for the afternoon by comparing the graduates to shiny new sports cars in the showroom waiting for the road.

He recommended to the graduates that they find a job they will enjoy, work like hell, and keep their minds open, but "not so open that your brains fall out."

To a background of popping champagne corks, fireworks, and a standing ovation for MacNelly's often humorous admonitions, 1399 graduates received bachelors, masters and doctoral degrees.

In addition, the College conferred honorary doctorates on four persons, including alumnus Governor John N. Dalton '53, who received an honorary doctor of laws. Daniel J. Boorstin, librarian at the Library of Congress and a renowned scholar, received an honorary doctor of literature degree; Richard Beale Davis, a scholar on the intellectual and literary history of the early South, received an honorary doctor of literature degree, and MacNelly, who has twice won the Pulitzer Prize for his cartoons in the Richmond News Leader, was given a doctor of humane letters degree.

The College conferred 1,019 undergraduate degrees and 380 graduate degrees, including 147 law degrees.

Other honors went to Carol Ann Arnold of DeWitt, N.Y., who received the Lord Botetourt Medal as the graduate who attained the highest scholastic average; to Susan Patricia Manix of Stamford, Conn., who received the James Frederick Carr Memorial Cup, awarded on the basis of character, scholarship and leadership; to Alvin Gerald Austin Jr. of Roanoke and Cathy Michele Allen of Rocky Mount, N.C., who received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan award, in recognition of influence for good.

President Graves also presented the Sullivan award to Mr. and Mrs. Don Gonzales of Williamsburg for their many contributions to the life of the College, their generosity to students, particularly international students, and their support of functions and activities on campus, especially musical programs. Gonzales is senior vice president of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and Mrs. Gonzales, a past president of the Occasion for the Arts, is founder of the Wednesday Morning Music Club.

Senior class president Margaret Nelson announced in her valedictory remarks that members of the senior class had pledged a gift of $20,000 to the College, the largest ever by a senior class. The money will be used to plant two trees on campus and to install an electronic check out system to improve security at Swem Library.

Miss Nelson also announced the establishment of the John Kratzer Memorial Award, in honor of the former William and Mary basketball player and a member of the Class of 1978 who died of cancer last year after a valiant battle. All proceeds will go to the American Cancer Society's research, rehabilitation and education programs.

Other students receiving prizes and awards on Commencement Weekend were:

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION: Wayne F. Gibbs Senior Prize for the Highest Undergraduate Average in Accounting -- Cheryl Proscino, Gradyville, Pa.; Dean's Award for the MBA graduate who has contributed most to that Program -- Douglas K. Ayres, Worcester, Mass.; Sponsor's Award for the MBA Graduate with the Highest Average -- Sandra L. Peterson, Hampton, Va.

CHEMISTRY: American Institute of Chemists Achievement Award -- Stephen Nichols, Annandale, Va.; Virginia Section of the American Chemical Society Student Award -- Gregory Harrington, Williamsburg, Va.

ENGLISH: The Dr. Murray Braderman Borish Prize -- Diana Elizabeth Henderson, Alexandria, Va.

HISTORY: Richard L. Morton Award -- Nancy Shelton, Charleston, W.Va.; William E. Fraley Award -- Janet Steele, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Governor John N. Dalton '53 brought greetings from the Commonwealth to the graduates at Commencement.

Commencement Speaker Jeffrey K. MacNelly (left), the Pulitzer Prize-winning editorial cartoonist, visits with Dr. James M. Yankovich, dean of the School of Education.

Professor Alex Kallos, one of three honorary marshals chosen by the Senior Class, led the Class on the symbolic walk from the Wren Building to William and Mary Hall. The other two honorary marshals were Barbara S. Ball (left, descending steps), of the University Communications Office at the College, and Dr. Bruce Rigelman of the Department of Government (at right, descending steps).

At left, Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Gonzales of Williamsburg received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award in recognition of their influence for good. Gonzales, who is senior vice president of Colonial Williamsburg, and Mrs. Gonzales have been close friends of the College for years.

Senior Class officers Margaret Nelson (right), president, and Lela Early, vice president, began the cross-campus walk from the Wren Building to William and Mary Hall with their classmates.

President Graves with Governor Dalton '53.

Editor's Notebook

When the Campaign for the College surpassed its $19 million goal six weeks ahead of schedule, success was marked in the form of special tributes to the man who made it one of his major goals for William and Mary.

He made the Campaign his campaign, remarked Chairman Roy R. Charles '32 in describing the way in which the major effort was guided by the Twenty-Fourth President of the College, Dr. Thomas A. Graves, Jr.

In retrospect, Mr. Charles observed, "Tom Graves had more faith in the alumni and friends of the College than we did in ourselves" when in 1976 he urged that the Campaign be launched.

President Emeritus Davis Y. Paschall '32 also credited his successor, Dr. Graves, as being responsible for the successful development effort. And W. Brooks George '32, Campaign Treasurer, said the President's encouragement and leadership were the crucial factors in reaching the Campaign goals--as far back as 1972 when the idea was first being discussed.

Governor John N. Dalton '53 joined in a sustained, standing ovation for President Graves at a pre-Commencement dinner to honor those who were to receive honorary degrees. The spontaneous show of admiration came after Rector Edward E. Brickell '50, in impromptu remarks, paid tribute to Dr. Graves' leadership role in guiding the Campaign to such a positive outcome.

A decision by William and Mary to embark on a highly visible major campaign, with a pre-announced schedule and publicized dollar goal, was not an easy one. No public college or university in Virginia, and not many in the United States, had done so in recent history. Some public universities have amassed substantial endowments, including the University of Virginia, but they had been developed over the years as part of a lower-key, continuing effort, devoted to attracting major gifts from a relatively few donors.

Rather than involving a few major donors, the Campaign reached out to all constituencies of the College including faculty and staff. Consequently, as many as 11,000 individuals took part in the success story announced May 11. Parenthetically, many similar major campaigns at public and private universities, with both small and larger goals, are faltering.

Success in 1979 is, President Graves believes, the basis for a continuing high level of private giving to the College in the years ahead. Someday, perhaps as William and Mary approaches its 300th anniversary in 1993, it will be time for another major campaign.

Whoever is President of the College at that time will do well to study closely the style and performance of the Twenty-Fourth President. More by encouragement and personal example than by edict and insistence, Dr. Graves brought together the College's many competing interests to assure that the Campaign attracted maximum support and possessed sufficient energy to reach the goal. He supplied more of that energy, clearly, than did any other individual. When the Campaign seemed to be falling behind, as campaigns usually do, his was the encouraging, optimistic voice that helped sustain its momentum.

Throughout this special effort, which required remarkable tenacity and patience--and time--the President guided his adopted College's ongoing progress through some of the most difficult times in its history. Rather than making decisions and delegating follow-up responsibilities to subordinates, he asked instead that they help him to lead the College by joining him up-front. Throughout, he remained concerned that William and Mary protect and enhance its quality, its ability to carry out better than most universities its goal of educating students.

The problems aren't all solved, and situations will continue to demand new approaches to finding the answers. But the success in attaining a new level of financial support is one indication that William and Mary's essential quality will not be as threatened as it has been during the 1970s.

--Ross Weeks, Jr.

"Spring" Arrives

New Sculpture Given to College

Two new students at the College spend 24 hours a day reading and studying. They never leave the campus, and they will never graduate. The two hard-working students are actually bronze sculptures which were recently placed on campus.

Entitled "Spring," the sculptures are a gift to the College from the Johnson Atelier Institute in Princeton, New Jersey, through the courtesy of Mr. John Zvosec of Mahony and Zvosec Architects of Princeton.

The two realistic figures occupy a small clearing just off one of the paths around Crim Dell Pond on the William and Mary campus. The young man, dressed in jeans, sweat-shirt, and tennis shoes, lies on his side on the ground with his head propped up on his left hand as he reads a book. Wearing what appears to be a lightweight skirt and blouse, with the edge of a slip peeking out slightly above the knee, the young woman reads a letter from her boyfriend back home.

This type of "super-realistic" sculpture is typical of the work currently being produced by J. Seward Johnson, Jr., a grandson of the co-founder of Johnson & Johnson, the medical products firm. Back around 1971, Johnson, at age 41, decided that metal sculpture was his first great love. Then, in 1974, he opened the "Johnson Atelier-A Technical Institute," for advanced sculptors.

Since that time Johnson has produced a series of sculpture and castings in bronze and other metals which are on display up and down the East Coast. All the pieces appear to have one outstanding trait in common: extreme realism through meticulous attention to detail.

The love letter to the girl in "Spring" is completely legible, and the time on the watch on the young fellow's wrist can be clearly read. The soles of his tennis shoes are slightly worn, and if the Panasonic AM-FM cassette player on the ground beside them were any more real it would play. Some students who pass the sculptures say the experience of viewing the work can be "a little spooky."

But that apparently is the precise effect which Johnson seeks in his work. He feels that the human being has been too long out of the picture in sculpture and other works of art. Johnson aspires to produce life-size and bigger-than-life "human" sculpture which would never qualify for the label of "abstract" art.

Although extremely realistic, Johnson's work often leaves a number of questions unanswered. The love letter read by Tina (that's the name used in the salutation on the letter) in "Spring" is there for any curious passer-by to read yet the pages in the young man's book are blank. Since Johnson could well have chosen to fill those pages with anything from Shakespeare to Freud, the viewer is left to wonder why the artist chose to leave them unprinted. But since the young man's eyes aren't looking at the book anyway, does it really matter?

The most important clue to this puzzle may be the title of the work. In spring, students are known to turn their attention from books to romance. It may be fitting that expressions of love are the only readable sentiment.

JOB OPENING

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law is seeking a qualified person to fill a newly created position of Associate Dean for Placement and Alumni Affairs. The Associate Dean, who will report directly to the Dean, will be responsible for the development of the Law School's placement program, will act as resident secretary for the William and Mary Law Alumni Association and will coordinate the Law School's development activities.

Candidates who possess a law degree are preferred. Interested persons should submit applications to the Dean, Marshall-Wythe School of Law, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185 not later than July 15, 1979. The position is identified. William and Mary is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer.

"Oliver" Seeks Permanent Home

Engman Sculpture Features Graceful Curves Created by Straight Lines

"POSITION WANTED: 1000-pound sculpture named 'Oliver' seeks permanent spot on campus. Capable of graceful curves and amazing reflections of light. Enquire at the fine arts department, Andrews Hall."

So might read an advertisement for "Oliver" in the classified section of the campus newspaper.

"Oliver" is the latest in a progression of unusual and beautiful sculpture in metal by Robert Engman, sculptor in residence at William and Mary. The new addition to the College's sizeable collection of contemporary art currently rests on a temporary base just outside Andrews Hall, home of the fine arts department.

Beneath the sculpture a sign informs the viewer that suggestions for the permanent display area will be accepted. So the final chapter in "Oliver's" very interesting history has yet to be written.

That history began when Engman, 51, decided to take a one year sabbatical leave from his post as co-chairman of the fine arts department at the University of Pennsylvania in order to devote his time to "the creating process." William and Mary offered him a residency position which was funded by gifts from the late General George Brown, USAF, and the Virginia Commission for the Arts.

This arrangement obligated Engman to teach one course per semester, and the rest of the time he could follow his own inspiration. As 1978 drew to a close, Engman was still searching for a grant of materials or money to begin the work he had in mind.

Then in January 1979, Reynolds Metals in Richmond offered an unusual donation--a huge quantity of bright anodized aluminum, specially cut and prepared to Engman's specifications.

"You can't appreciate what a marvelous job the Reynolds people did unless you actually work with the material. They cut and finished the aluminum with a precision I couldn't ever have achieved myself," says Engman.

The sculpture was begun in February. Engman spent practically every waking hour in Peterson's Welding Shop in Williamsburg, either placing rods on the steel pattern or hunching over his welding torch. Observers at the shop commented on the speed with which Engman worked, but Engman himself said he felt as though "it took forever." Clearly, he was driven to complete "Oliver."

"I'd say it took me about 27 years to make that piece of sculpture," says Engman.

Actually, "Oliver" took less than eight weeks to construct. But the design, and the skill to execute it, are the products of a lifelong dedication which Engman brings to his work.

"It's an evolutionary process. Most of my things don't have names for the same reason you don't name a seed before you put it in the ground, or when it becomes a sprout. They're all part of the same organism," says Engman.

The "Oliver" organism consists of nearly 1600 straight aluminum rods, exactly four feet in length, assembled in such a way that they appear to form two intersecting ellipses at right angles to each other. In short, it's complicated.

"The numbers and equations that would generate this thing on a graph are pretty fancy, and I have no idea what they are," says Engman.

But what he may lack in the numbers department Engman more than compensates for with care and extreme precision.

"Oliver has eight different sections, each composed of nearly 200 rods, assembled into one unit. If I were a 16th of an inch off in my original design, then the error would accumulate in each part until I'd be a half-inch off in the final assembly, which couldn't be tolerated. So my accuracy is within a 64th of an inch on each piece," says Engman.

Dressed in soiled pinstripe coveralls and cap, Engman looks more the part of a railworker than an artist. He takes to the machine shop atmosphere like a duck to water, and his friendly, easygoing nature with any and all visitors belies the fact that his concentration is entirely on his sculpture.

While constructing "Oliver," Engman had a daily procession of curious onlookers, media people, the press, and shop customers who literally stumbled upon his work. They all had questions and comments, and Engman treated them all with the humor and patience of a seasoned teacher.

"It's just the way it looks, what it does with light that fascinates me," Engman answers to queries about his choice of shapes. Then he explains at some length the relationships of the lines and arcs and how they reflect light. His listeners seemed convinced they were in the presence of something significant.

"This is the largest single piece I've done, and Charlie Peterson here has really been wonderful. I've just really enjoyed the time here," says Engman.

Engman at work on "Oliver"

So much in fact, that he has extended his stay at William and Mary for another year so that he may continue working. Although he has exhibits at prestigious places like the Whitney Museum in New York

City, the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, the IBM Corporate Center in Atlanta and the Yale University Art Gallery, Robert Engman prefers the "laid back" lifestyle smack in the middle of Charlie Peterson's Welding Shop--with a course in sculpture awaiting him twice a week at William and Mary.

Half of "Oliver" near completion.

Bigger, Better Organized, More Appealing

That's How Thompson Describes the Upcoming Season of Shakespeare

Kent Thompson '76, a Draper's Scholar who has been active in the theatre since graduation, was in on the beginning of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival when it was founded last year at William and Mary.

Although it was "incredibly successful" in its first year, the Festival was not without its birthing pains. Thompson, for instance, had to learn two major roles in five days when some of the nine actors who performed all three plays became ill from overwork.

Consequently, when Thompson says this year's Festival, which opens July 20, will be "bigger, better organized, and more appealing" than the 1978 effort, you know the judgment is based on sound experience.

The Festival has chosen two Shakespeare comedies and a tragedy on the basis of their broad family appeal down through the ages. They are A Midsummer Night's Dream and Much Ado About Nothing and the tragic Macbeth.

Midsummer Night's Dream is a comical exploration of love by Shakespeare while Much Ado is about gossip, innuendo, and the battle of the sexes. Macbeth, says Thompson, is "probably the greatest story ever told about ambition and power."

"They have tremendous family appeal," says Thompson. "Children and adults enjoy them very much, and we chose them because we wanted to serve our audience and build the audience through these first few years."

The plays will be performed nightly Tuesday through Sunday, with a Saturday matinee beginning at 2:30. They will be given on a rotating basis through August 19.

The Festival auditioned more than 600 actors and actresses for 15 paid positions and more than 300 technicians and designers for 15 openings. Auditions were conducted in Atlanta and Williamsburg after an advertising campaign at universities and professional theatres in 27 states and Canada. The actors in this year's Festival come from as far away as Washington state and California and Ontario in Canada.

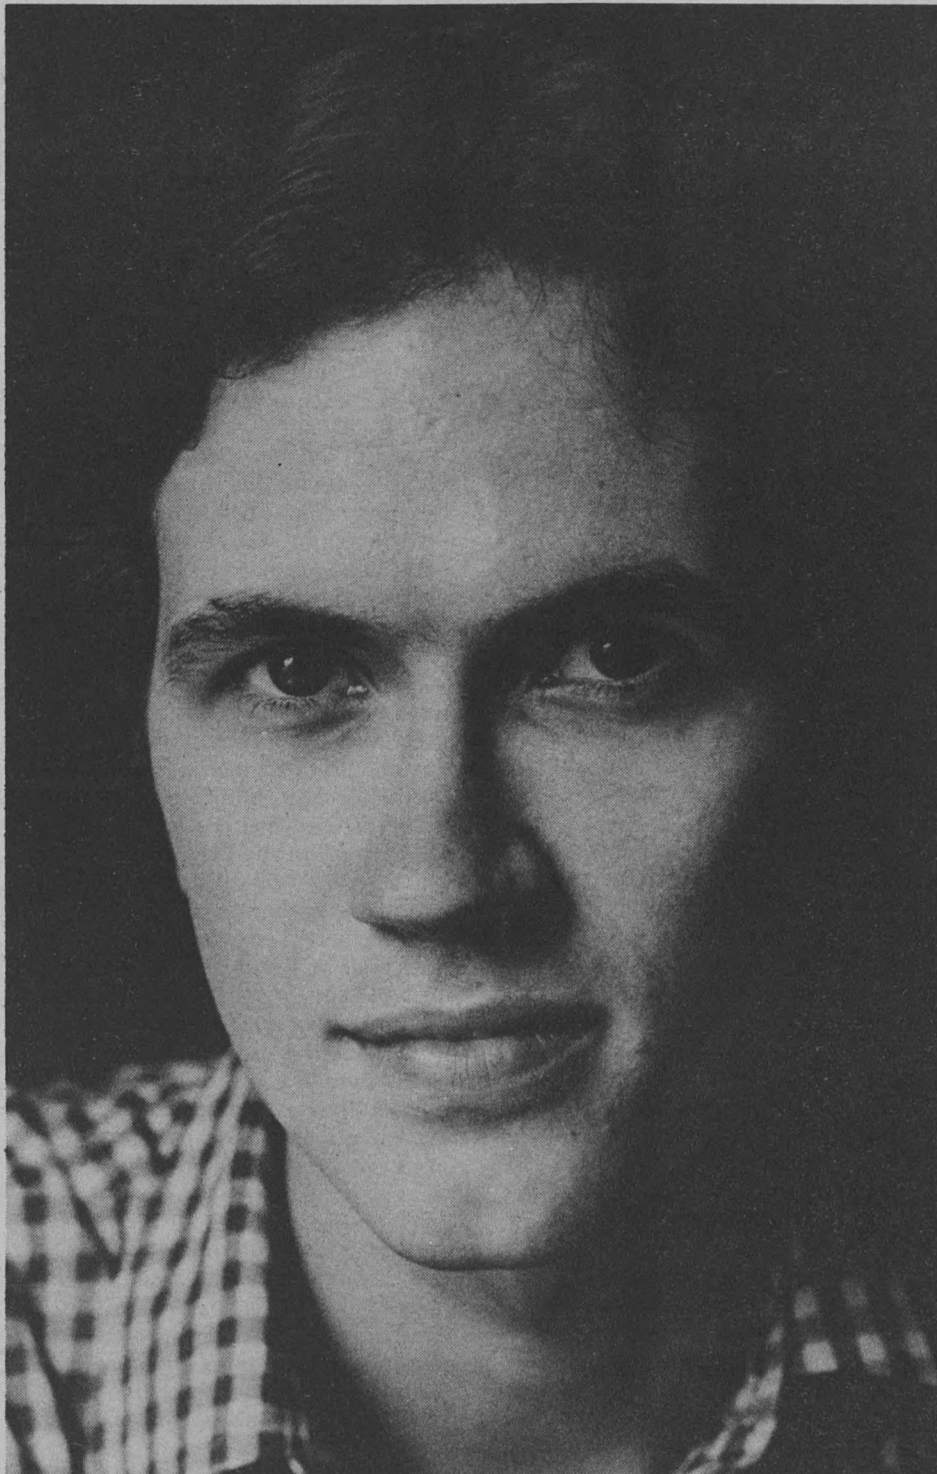

Thompson, who has studied acting and taught at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London, will direct A Midsummer Night's Dream. Professor Jerry Bledsoe of the Department of Theatre and Speech, one of the founders of the Festival, will direct Macbeth, and Shirley Cox, a professional actress who has performed on Broadway, will direct Much Ado About Nothing.

Besides Thompson, five other

William and Mary students or alumni are associated with the Festival. Two are actors: James Luce '76, who recently received his masters of fine arts from Brandeis University, and Dylan Baker, a senior next fall in theatre and speech. Three others will work with the technical crew. They are Mark Stanley '78, now a graduate student in lighting and design at the University of Wisconsin; Laurie Smith '78, who recently completed training as a stage manager with the Hartman Theatre in Connecticut, and Jeff Sage '80, who transferred to the University of California at Santa Barbara after two years at William and Mary to study design.

Thompson says the Festival hopes to increase last year's attendance of 9,000 to at least 13,000. This would pay all but about $10,000 of the Festival's expenses, and external funding would help make up the deficit. The Festival is a production of the College and the Department of Theatre and Speech, with the College providing seed money and supportive services.

Rehearsals begin June 9 when the directors will begin to cast the various roles. The cast will rehearse for five and one-half weeks, "six days a week, 10-12 hours a day," says Thompson. The average salary is about $100 a week.

Kent Thompson '76

Ticket information is available by telephone at (804) 253-4395 or 253-4557, or by writing the Virginia Shakespeare Festival at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

Ten Nominated for Board

Four Current Members, Six Newcomers Run for Alumni Board

The Nominating Committee for the Alumni Board of Directors has named ten persons to the ballot to be mailed to all alumni who contribute to any of the recognized funds of the College.

Ballots will be distributed after September 1 and the results of the voting will be announced at the Annual Meeting on Friday evening, October 19, during Homecoming Weekend.

The Committee was chaired by James E. Howard, '43, of Richmond and included Donnie Chancellor Wintermute, '69, Alexandria, Va.; R.E.B. Stewart, '27, Portsmouth; Marvin West, '53, Williamsburg; and W. Sam Sadler, '64, Williamsburg.

Current members of the Board renominated for a second term were:

Denys Grant, '58, who currently serves as President of the Society. He is personnel director for Wheat First Securities, Inc., and was previously vice president for man-power development for First & Merchants Corporation.

John H. Garrett, Jr., '40, of Irvington, Va., who is Vice President of the Society. Jack is the Kilmarnock Branch Manager for the investment brokerage firm of Cecil, Waller and Sterling. A retired naval captain, he was president of the Class of 1940.

Jane Spencer Smith, '48, of Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich. She is a partner in "Mr. Tennis" retail and mail order business as well as a housewife and member of the Alumni Service Committee of the Board.

Henry D. Wilde, '53, Houston, Tex. An orthopedic surgeon of international reputation, he is a member of the College Relations Committee of the Board of Directors.

First time candidates for election to the Board are:

Susan Aheron, '72 B.A., of Washington, D.C. She is a former staff member for Congressman Caldwell Butler and was recently appointed by Governor Dalton as Assistant Director of the Virginia Liaison Office in Washington.

Stewart Gamage, '72 B.A., of Alexandria, Va. She is currently administrative assistant to Lieutenant Governor Charles Robb of Virginia. Previously she had been a staff member of the House Select Committee on Ethics in Washington.

Ruth Coles Harris, '77 Ed.D. She is Director of the School of Business Administration at Virginia Union University and a professor of accounting.

Carlton E. Holladay, '24 BA, Wakefield, Va., has recently retired as Judge of the 6th Judicial Circuit of Virginia.

John C. Seidler, '63, of Charlottesville, Va. He is General Auditor of the National Bank and Trust Company, and served as the first president of the Charlottesville/Ashlawn Alumni Chapter.

Merchant Couple Pledges $100,000

J.B. and Mildred Hickman Support Critical Need -- Faculty Support

Two of Williamsburg's longtime merchants have made a commitment of $100,000 in cash for endowment to the Campaign for the College to support one of the College's most crucial areas of need--faculty support.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hickman, owners and operators of Binns Fashion Shop on Merchants Square, have made their pledge during the final weeks of the three-year Campaign to help the College meet its $19 million goal.

J. B. Hickman has for the past three years served as chairman of the Friends of the College advisory council at William and Mary and has spearheaded fund-raising efforts among local businesses. He has also been an active member of the William and Mary Endowment Association trustees, the Athletic Educational Foundation and the President's Council.

A native of Tennessee, Hickman has been active in the fashion industry for some 45 years. He started his career during the depression era in Lynchburg, where his uncle managed to get him a job in the men's department at Leggett's. He also worked in Burlington, N.C., where he met and married his wife Mildred, before landing a job at a department store in Smithfield. Following a stint in the military, Hickman moved to Williamsburg in 1945 to manage The Williamsburg Shop and then Casey's.

In May 1960, the Hickmans purchased Binns Fashion Shop and began a series of renovations and expansions. Over the next decades, to handle the growing numbers of steady clients, they expanded the store to nearly seven times its original size.

The Hickmans have been longtime supporters of William and Mary, and for the past 10 years have sponsored annual fashion shows for the Panhellenic Association at the College.

"I think because William and Mary is a relatively small school, and because its standards for students are so high, it attracts the cream of the crop, the best students in the country," said Hickman. "We cater to this kind of clientele, and over the years the relationship between Binns and William and Mary has grown closer and closer. Quite a few students, particularly those in the Washington area, will still come back to do their shopping at Binns even after they graduate."

"We feel that the College has helped us and now we're helping them," noted Mrs. Hickman.

"What would Williamsburg be like without William and Mary?" said Hickman. "All of us would miss the sports events, the cultural activities, and all the special people the College attracts to our area. But most of all, I think we would miss the opportunity to meet and become friends with a new group of bright young people every year."

The Hickmans, who each work longer than eight hour days six days a week, describe themselves as "people who like doing things with and for other people."

Editor:

A very very very late thank you for including me on the list for the William and Mary magazine. It's a handsome and professional-looking publication, full of good things to read. I've circulated it here among our own staff.

I look forward to seeing the next issue. All good wishes,

Sincerely,

25 Wasn't our spring perfectly delightful! And now summer with all of its beauty has arrived and that means relaxation and good times!

Our June column will be short this time due to the fact that this Class Reporter has been in so many and varied activities during the months of April and May she has almost "met herself coming back," as the old adage goes.

From Dot and Red we heard of the tremendous damage one ice and sleet storm did to their property in Aiken. They had been in their home in Florida for the winter and had no idea of just how extreme the weather had been up our way. They returned to Aiken the last week of March to find one 75-ft. pine tree had fallen, damaging many of their beautiful shrubs. Needless to say, Red had plenty of work cut out for him for a few days! We are sorry to learn of this but glad your house was done no damage. Dot enclosed a letter from Mike Sanders telling of the death of his wife, "our" Julia, who will be remembered by us as Julia Yelverton Dixon. Julia was very dear to all who knew her -- a much admired classmate. She had a heart attack the day after Christmas and remained in the hospital until February 4th. On the sixth she was buried in Oakdale Cemetery, Wilmington, N.C. Her husband closed with writing - "Julia and I had forty-four wonderful years together." Mike, to you and your family, the Class of 1925 extends its deepest sympathy and our love. We hope that you will come our way at some near future date and thus give us an opportunity to know you. Julia was a delightful person to know and we have always been proud that she was a member of the Class of '25 and a Phi Beta Kappa - a richly deserved honor. It is interesting to note from Dot's letter that she and Julia went through school and college together, and were next door neighbors when they were young. Thanks, Dot, for this information although it has saddened us.

We regret to find it necessary to report Virginia Weymouth Chapelle's death in April after a lengthy spell of illness. We shall miss her at our next Class Reunion Luncheon for she always brought sunshine with her presence. To Virginia's family, our Class of 1925 extends its deepest sympathy.

I am happy to report that Frances Ennis is at home after surgery and is recuperating nicely. She sends her love to each of us and expressed her appreciation of the many beautiful cards, calls and the prayers said in her behalf. Frances, take it easy, regain your strength, and plan to be with us for Homecoming for it just wouldn't be Homecoming without you.

We welcome Art Winder back to his home after a lingering illness and surgery. Art, we are happy to learn that you are recovering nicely, and we look forward to being with you and Mary next October for our 54th Class Reunion.

The Class Reunion Committee met on May 17th, to further our Homecoming plans, and I am happy to report that Liz and Vernon Nunn will host our 54th Reunion. We thank you both, Liz and Vernon, and hasten to say we look forward to our "54th" as your guests with real anticipation.

So, please turn to your desk calendars now, and enter October 19th and 20th - Homecoming; October 19th-Class Reunion Luncheon! If you have not made your motel reservation, dash off a note today - only four months left!

This brings to a close our little "chat" for June. I wish for each of you a great vacation this summer - one filled with many surprises - all happy ones - and delightful moments never to be forgotten.

Editor's Note - The following was submitted by J. Stuart White, husband of Helen: "Honors came to Helen White on May 3, when her portrait was unveiled in White Hall at James Madison University, Harrisonburg, Va. The portrait was requested by Dr. Ronald E. Carrier, President of the University, and was unveiled by Robert W. Woody of Richmond, a grandson, who is a student there. Helen served on the Board of Visitors of Madison for ten years (1964-1974), during eight years of which she was Vice Rector of the Board. Because of Helen's outstanding contributions to Madison as a Board member and as a former President of the Madison Alumni Association, the Board voted to name a new dormitory for her. In 1974, the Helen Mugler White Residence Hall, called White Hall, was dedicated."

27 This edition is going to be shorter than usual because you classmates out there have not responded to my appeals for help in providing information about yourselves.

How many of you remember the Monogram Club's stupendous production of "Minus Mary," that tuneful, scintillating, laugh-provoking, light-hearted musical extravaganza, presented in "new" Phi Beta Kappa Hall in 1926?

Several members of our class including Buzzy Stewar, Art Matsu, and Bill Morrow were principals, while others were in the chorus lines (male or "female").

There hadn't been anything like it before and certainly nothing like it since. Nobody else dared undertake the task!

Anyhow, due to urging from Buzzy and others, Monica Dupuy of the Gazette staff is working up a special article about that famed womanless musical comedy to appear shortly.

Thanks to some of the original pictures contributed to my Memory Book by Art and others of my own, the article will be well-illustrated. Get ready to look, read and laugh again!

Leonard Born, one of our most experienced world travellers, visited the College in April for the first time in many years and enjoyed the startling transformation, including the new campus. His grandchildren, who accompanied him, were equally thrilled, he reports.

In September Len plans a month's trip to the Peoples Republic of China and I've asked him to give us a report. Maybe some of you will want to follow his example and see whether or not the Sleeping Giant is still sleeping.

As many of you realize, we have a goodly number of classmates in the medical profession. Among them is Dr. William J. Ellis, who has practiced in Covington for almost a half-century.

Bill, who played guard on the football team, set up practice at Covington in 1930 and was associated with Allegheny Memorial Hospital from its inception in 1931, being chief of staff several years. Two years ago Allegheny merged with Emmett Memorial Hospital at Clifton Forge nearby and Bill recently has been named secretary-treasurer of the medical staff. On April 18, he received the Covington Kiwanis Club's "Citizen of the Year" Award. When the new Bank of the Alleghenies was chartered, guess who was elected Chairman of the Board? That's right--Bill Ellis. He frequently sees Dr. Lee Todd, who lives a short distance over in West Virginia at Quinwood.

It was my pleasure to inform Bill that he is eligible for membership in the Order of the White Jacket--he served as a waiter in Bob Wallace's Pocahontas Tea Room, as many of you girls will remember as a result of skipping Dining Hall chow for a sandwich down on the corner.

Speaking of the White Jackets, Lee Todd and I attended the Spring Board Meeting in April and were back in Newport News for the 56th reunion of our high school class in May, both still able to swing a golf club (scores a secret).

Elizabeth Boyenton Kramer and her husband Dr. William Kramer recently moved from Mansfield, Ohio, to Columbus, Ohio (110 S. Gould Road, Columbus, 43209). She writes that they "spent seven weeks in Charlottesville redoing our little place there. We also took a weekend off to attend two reunions of classes I had taught at Hampton--both dinners and dances were held at the Chamberlain. It was great to be back home again on the Peninsula." Dr. Kramer is teaching in Columbus.

Fairfax Berkley, always in demand for his historical knowledge, was a recent speaker at the State Convention of The Daughters of Colonial Wars held at Omni Hotel in Norfolk.

In case some of you deliberately skip the obituary column in the Gazette and missed the announcement in the April issue, Virginia Ayers Woody, one of the loveliest and most popular girls of our class, died in Durham, N.C., last December. Pi Beta Phi, she owned the hearts of both girls and boys in the class from freshman days to graduation. A sad loss.

Our next letter will not appear until October, which gives all of you delinquents an opportunity to drop me a note well before September 1. Have a wonderful summer and don't forget Homecoming--put it on your calendar whether or not you like being classified as "Olde Guard," whatever that is!

29 By the time you read this, our 50th Class Reunion will be past and many of us can look forward to returning to the College for our next Homecoming in the fall. Those of us who have been returning for Homecoming regularly seem to have a wonderful time. We hope some of our Class members who have not been returning will do so and enjoy it with us.

News from our classmates is scarce. Please let us hear from you and let us know how much you enjoyed our 50th. I am sure those who returned for the Reunion had a wonderful time being together again.

A note from Boyd G. Carter, Clintwood, says he retired from the University of Missouri in 1976, but it didn't stick. In 1977 (second semester), he was Visiting Professor of Spanish at the University of Iowa, and since 1978 (January), Scholar in Residence and Adjunct Professor at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, in the Department of Classical and Romance Languages.

Another note, from W. Carroll Brooke, Roanoke, saying, "Leaving on Polish freighter, with my wife, of course - from Baltimore on March 28, for Rotterdam. Will be in England and Scotland for three months. Hope to be in Christ's Cathedral, Canterbury, for Easter Service, the Cradle of Anglicism."

Let us hear from you during the summer so there will be lots to read about when the fall issue of the Gazette comes out.

31 S.P. Claud of Norfolk wrote that on a recent trip to the valley of Virginia he paid a visit to his old classmate, Alden Kite Phillips. He is retired from duPont in Waynesboro, Va., and has a son win duPont in Wilmington, Del.

Paul and Allwin Baldacci write that retirement has been fun. Their grandchildren and children remain their joy. The oldest has graduated from the University of Santa Clara, as did her father. They now have four in college. Paul especially enjoys grandson Louis, who plays freshman football each Friday for DeLasalle High School in Concord, Calif. - #78 Right Tackle.

Waller B. Smith was pushed off the "65 cliff" at United Airlines, finishing 30-plus years with United & Capitol Airlines as Director of Insurance. Waller, not being quite ready for the rocking chair, took on the position of Vice President of Rollins Burdick Hunter Co., two days a week. He also assumed, as a voluntary effort, a vice presidency and directorship in the Risk Studies Foundation in New York. Waller and his wife now live back in Alexandria at 1609 Old Stage Road on the bus route to the airport and eight minutes from Woodlawn C.C. for a quick 9 when commuting to Chicago makes 18 impossible.

33 Dear Classmates of 1933, Summer is around the corner, so I imagine you gardeners, golfers and travelers are busy now. Maybe some will be going on one of the alumni trips this summer. If so, have fun and tell me about it.

Remember that when October rolls around that means Homecoming on the weekend of October 19 and 20. Let me remind you again that it is best to make your room reservations through the Alumni Office.

My husband Ted and I have had two trips this year. The first one was a cruise, our first, on the QE2 which sailed from Norfolk in January on a Caribbean cruise. I wondered if any of you were aboard. The ship was filled, so it wasn't easy to see all the passengers. Maybe the alumni will sponsor a group when a cruise sails from Norfolk. We found it a delightful way to travel. Then in April we had a brief visit with our daughter and her husband at Maxwell AFB in Alabama. We all drove over to the University of Mississippi (Ole Miss) to see our grandson, who is on the tennis team, participate in a tournament there. It was a grand experience, though rain cancelled the second day's matches. We stayed at the Alumni House, a motel on campus, then had breakfast at the Student Union Building the next morning, as it was but a few steps away. Wouldn't it be nice if there were a motel on campus at William and Mary for families of students who visit? It is used for guests, visiting professors for seminars, or other college activities, I believe.

Mildred Wallace Drummond of Norfolk writes that she and her husband are now retired from the Norfolk Navy Supply Center and U.S. Navy Regional Finance Center (June of 1971). Since then they have been traveling extensively throughout Europe, Mexico, South America, Turkey and Egypt. At home her main hobby is sewing, while her husband raises house plants for sale at the church bazaars. They both enjoy opera. Mildred is a charter member of the Virginia Opera Association, and she says she is a real opera buff.

Jeanne Rose of Arlington is looking forward to her high school 50th class reunion this June. Though a small class, she says many plan to attend. My high school 50th class reunion is to be this fall. I went to Oak Park and River Forest Township High School in Oak Park, Ill. It is a long way to go, but maybe I will make it. It's early in October (I will let you know, later).

Minnie Mae Shreve Copley of Falls Church sent me a delightful note after Christmas. She used to be my suite-mate in Barrett Hall.

Have a happy summer, all of you! Do drop me a note or card and give me news of you and yours.

39 Greetings - and Happy Summer. News of classmates is sparse this issue, but our next column won't appear until September - so how about a note telling us about you and your family, and of course, that you'll be in Williamsburg for our 40th Reunion.

Nannie Smoot Frank is working for Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. Her son, Ernest Frank, Jr., is teaching at St. Christopher's School in Richmond. Nannie is obviously proud of his little girl and two boys, who call her "Grandnannie."

Barbara Brown Heimerl, who lives in Yorktown, Va., writes that her older son, John, and wife live in Carrollton, Va., where he is with James River Broadcasting Co., as Operations Manager. Son Robert is completing his Master's Degree at American University, School of International Service, his field of concentration, Iran (he'll be spending most of August with friends in Tehran). We extend our deepest sympathy to Barbara, who lost her husband on Christmas Eve and her mother in October.

George Sands, who is Chief of the Scientific and Technical Information Programs Division of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Research Station at Langley, was the keynote speaker for the Western Carolina University Science Festival in March.

Editor's note: Word has been received at Alumni House that Fran Grodecoeur is now Director of Special Gifts at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh. This is in addition to her position as Assistant Director, Estate Planning. Congratulations, Fran.

REMINDER: BIG 40TH COMING UP OCTOBER 19 - 20. Get yourself in shape for the festivities, and don't forget the special gift for the Class of 1939, The Commemorative Gates at Alumni House.

41 While visiting a highschool friend in Los Angeles in March, I called Betty Foster Bernard in Pasadena to arrange an afternoon. I was lucky to time my visit with one of Betty's daughter Jeannie of Tulsa, who had just arrived with her two sons to surprise her parents on their 30th wedding anniversary. Jeannie and sister Debbie, who works in a gift shop nearby, had planned this anniversary celebration for some time. Dave, recovered from a recent fall resulting in a broken leg, was having a great time getting acquainted with his newest grandson of three months and renewing his grandfatherly role with 6-year-old Jonathan.

Easter weekend found John and me in Michigan, visiting our granddaughter Katie, now three, and her parents, Mary Brennan Alice '66 and Ray Alie '71. Ray is working toward his PhD in Education Leadership at Western University in Kalamazoo. Mary teaches at the seventh grade level in the Portage School.

Jean Cox Phillips and I exchanged family news in early May. Her husband Bill no longer works in the hotel but is presently employed at Dorr Engineering in Norfolk. Bill and Jean have three daughters. Billie, who graduated from VPI last June, works in Ellicott, Md. Verna Marie Greene teaches third grade in Charlotte. Jean Cox Dyson, also a teacher, is working on her Master's in Education at the University of South Carolina. Jean Dyson will bring 18-month-old Jean Ashley to visit her grandparents over Mother's Day weekend. Jean sees Ellen Butt Rhudy frequently. Ellen was employed in Washington but is now retired and lives at 1071 Charity Drive in Virginia Beach.

Arthur London and his brother manage the family's four Kingston, N.Y., area clothing stores, which have recently opened a shop in the Mammoth Mall in Ulster.

Watch The Alumni Gazette for information concerning Homecoming, October 19-20. Be sure to contact the Alumni Office for room reservations. Austin Roberts will be sending pertinent information for the Class of '41--so watch the mails. Have a good summer. See you in October.

43 Greetings from the Gentle City. Caitlin and Meghan McCall welcomed their brother, Kyle Patrick, into the family in April. The production was launched by Billy '66 and delivered by Shannon '68, Joe and I are the happy grandparents.

We also welcome Louise Morton Murtagh back to our town (arrived back several years ago). She is serving as the Director of Placement for the Law School.

Richard Higgins is one of the top builders in the Saddle River area of New Jersey. Many of his homes have been featured in House Beautiful, McCall's, House and Home, Ladies Home Journal, and Better Homes and Gardens. He has been twice selected "Builder of the Year" by New Jersey builders.

Louise Forsyth has taken on another task. She is the Chairman of the Capital Fund Campaign for the Protestant Social Service Bureau in Quincy, Mass., with the challenge of raising $81,000.

Have a great summer and let us know what you did.

45 Mary Jane Chamberlain Howard, who lives at Beavertown, Va., writes that they have become proud grandparents. Jennifer Lauren Howard was baptized at Fork Church, Hanover, Co., last Dec. by Charles A. Joy '66 and Godmother for her niece is Ann Adams '75. Vaughn and Mary Jane enjoyed a visit in May with Edie McChesney Ker when she was in the U.S. from her home in Nairobi, Kenya.

Nancy Speakes Tibbetts and Colby traveled to San Diego in January and enjoyed a visit with her son Bill and his wife Cherie. Daughter Nancy is teaching in Colorado and Mike and his family live in Johnstown, Pa. Living closer to Manhasset, N.Y., is daughter Barbara and her family. The Tibbetts enjoy frequent visits with grandson Craig who is now age nine!

Lesney Williams '72 was honored at a dinner in Norfolk winning twelfth out of 8000 realtors. There for this special occasion and outstanding recognition were her parents, Rolf and Sunny Trumbo Williams '44, and her brother Rolf '76 who lives in N.Y.C. and is working as a young executive for a shipping firm from Norway and New York. Lesney is with Kabler and Riggs Realtors.

The Williams' beautiful beach house was open in April on the Sandbridge tour for Historic Garden Week in Va. "A Day At The Beach" featured houses at Sandbridge and Sunny's and Rolf's outstanding and attractively decorated beach house was a fine addition to the '79 tour.

An article, "Historic Rosewell is Donated," Richmond News Leader, Dec. 15, 1978, reads: "The ruins of Rosewell, the once magnificent colonial mansion where the likes of Thomas Jefferson were wined and dined, might be given a chance to impress future generations."

"The brick remains of the historic York River landmark, and several surrounding acres that include the ruins of the ice house and the burial grounds of Virginia's noted Page family, will be donated to the Gloucester County Historical Society, owners of the Rosewell property have announced."

Miss Nellie D. Greaves and her brother, Lt. Col. Fielding Lewis Greaves, whose family has fought for years to save the ruins from souvenir-hunters and vandals, decided to donate the site so the local historical society can preserve it from further deterioration.

Announcement of the gift coincided with the publication of Rosewell, the first book written on the historic home.

Since learning of this gift to the Gloucester Historical Society by Nellie and her brother, Lt. Col. Geaves, the book Rosewell by Claude O. Lanciano will indeed be of special interest to classmates.

Our daughter Elizabeth received her degree in English from the U. of N. Mex. in May. As a graduate student at the University she is a teaching assistant in the English Department. Our son Tom is Assistant Director of Development at Virginia Tech. His wife Darrel is a second-year law student at U.Va. We are looking forward to seeing each of them during the early summer.

Joan Kable Griffith writes from Charleston, S.C., that daughter Mandy is studying for a Master's Degree at Pratt U. and Marjorie is selling real estate in Boston. Their son Ross is selling yachts in Charleston. Max and Joan are planning to be at Homecoming this year! Now is the time to mark your calendar, too, for the week-end of Oct. 19-20 for Homecoming '79. Contact the Alumni Office for room reservations. Start now watching for information in future issues of The Alumni Gazette.

47 From Joppa, Md., comes word from Jack London that he's retired from US Civil Service after over 32 years.

On the Tenerife trip I had lunch with Janice Groh Biggs; she told me she spent three years at Princeton U. Press, where her boss was Daniel Harvey, '68. Imagine this discussion in the grandeur of a Moslem palace, where tall turbaned black men served the food, but at the table it was forbidden for men to serve the plates. One man of our party offered to serve the plates of those seated near him. He was twice told NIX and physically restrained from actually serving. Their customs demand that women must perform this act. Wine is forbidden by Moslem Law, but in deference to the Americans, it was served.

Kitty Hardiman Atkinson and Ed seemed to enjoy the trip as much as I did; we joined all side trips and decided Marrakesh was certainly an experience one can only store in memory, for pictures cannot possibly tell the story. Abdul and Mustaffa, two little boys who followed our group through all the labyrinths of the old city, and Muhammed our guide, cannot fully be appreciated by a single photo.

Ed Sprinkle, M.D., '48 said on the trip he doesn't hear too much W&M news in Martinsville and hopes alumni in that area will keep him posted.

Mary Jane C. Howard, Beavertown, had as her guest May 12, Edie McChesney Ker of Kenya. Clarke and I joined Betty May B. Gaston, Hampton, and Fran Kersey, Richmond, in viewing slides that Edie and her husband had taken over the years.

Alice Peebles Lilley and I are enjoying renewing an old friendship that goes way back to second grade. Never mind what the writer said, you can go back--with gracia-- as the Spanish say.

If vacation plans include Myrtle Beach area this summer, call us, we're in the book. Don't forget HOMECOMING--watch the Gazette for latest advices.

49 George Duborg has been elected Vice President-Investments for Commercial Union Insurance Company. He is also Vice President and Director of the CU Investment Management Corporation and will manage the Employee Savings Plan Equity Pool.

Ben Perkins is an attorney in Villa Park, Ill., where he is again a candidate for trustee after completing a four-year term in that office. He has also been a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals and has worked with Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Little League Baseball.

William Ogletree is living in Newtown Square, Pa., and is Vice President of Corporate Development for Narco Scientific, a company which manufactures and sells medical products and communications and navigation equipment used in aviation. He travels extensively and visits Japan quarterly.

Start making plans for Homecoming, October 19th and 20th. Reservations can be made through the Alumni Office.

51 Imagine my surprise when talking to a Danish acquaintance in Copenhagen. I learned that he had in his library three books written by a classmate: One Among The Indians (1962), Darkness Over The Land (1966) and a "delightful" children's book, Dougal Looks For Birds (1972). The author was Peggy Wells Stiles! Peggy and her husband Martin live in Paris, Ky.

Another news item has come to my attention concerning Marianna Brose. Although it is dated October 1975, I'm sure that many would be interested to know that a fine article was written about her in the Phoenix Arizona Republic. Under her photo was the caption, "Marianna Brose: Instrument of the Playwright." In 1975, the U.S. Center for International Women's Year had suggested specific areas of women's achievements to spotlight. Each month a woman was featured in a selected profession. Marianna was featured when women were honored in the dramatic and fine arts and literatures. At the time she was appearing in the demanding role of Agnes in "A Delicate Balance." At the same time she was a professor of Shakespeare and Literature at Arizona State University. The article noted that Marianna had been a drama graduate at William and Mary; studied on a two-year scholarship at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London; and also studied with the famed drama teacher, Lee Strasberg.

Last but not least is news of Robert Parker who serves as President of Parker & Company, a general insurance business which he founded in 1956 in Suffolk, Va. Bob is also Chairman of the Board of the Parker-Rupp Realty Company and operates a firm in the Liberty Spring area of Va.

55 Greetings! I was hoping that the news would continue to come in as it did for our last class letter, but alas, there is very little of it this time.

Roger Hill has been named to the Morris County (New Jersey) College Board of Trustees by the Board of Chosen Freeholders, filling an unexpired term. Roger is a Vice President of the National Distillers and Chemical Corporation, and is Vice President and Director of Elkhorn Insurance Company. He was formerly employed by the Chemical Bank of New York and is the former president of the Chatham Township Board of Education. He is also an author.

And now, as I promised you before when there was little news, I fill in with news of my family, so here goes!

Jim, our oldest boy, finished his drafting course at Columbus Tech in December and is now working.

Andy will be graduated from high school at about the time you read this. He is a member of the National Honor Society and plays varsity baseball. He plans to enter Ohio University in the fall.

Rob will enter junior high in the fall. He enjoys playing backgammon, chess, and electronic games and showing his Burmese cat, "Toni."

Besides doing part-time nursing, I am a teacher (of sorts) for the two-year-old nursery at church and have recently been elected treasurer of the neighborhood Garden Club.

I wish you all a happy, full-of-fun summer and hope you will write and share your good times with all of us.

59 The Class of '59 continues its march to the Sunset Years, with a modicum of success and happiness as noted below:

Stuart W. Longworth writes that his daughter Kathy is a freshman at William and Mary this year, and that he and his family will be moving to Louisville, Ky., shortly, where he has accepted a job as Corporate Employment Manager for American Air Filter, Inc.

Ann Evans Duke is now serving as Chairman of the Spry Junior High P.T.A. in Webster, N.Y.

Pat Foushee Jacobs, of Wilmington, Del., writes that she enjoyed visiting the campus in November. Her daughter Michelle is a senior in high school and wanted to see William and Mary again. She says they have been very busy, her husband continues to travel, and she has a part-time job. Pat just cannot believe our class will be having its 20th reunion this year.

Dr. William R. Davidson has been elected to another five-year term as Superintendent of Schools in the City of Pottsville, Penn. Bill, his wife Ruth and their three children traveled through the west last summer and expect to be at AASA Convention in New Orleans in February.

Chip Mason has been named a trustee emeritus of the Endowment Association of the College after six years of service. He has also been elected a member of the Board of Trustees of Villa Julie College in Stevenson, Md.

Thomas Law is minister of St. Paul's Christian Church in Raleigh, N.C. He received his Master's of Divinity degree from Yale and was ordained into the ministry in 1962. He has served ministries in Indianapolis and Greenville and Raleigh in North Carolina. He was recently elected to a one-year term as a Director on the Board of Church Extension of Disciples of Christ.

Paul Wiedenmann has been appointed Vice President of International Finance and Administration for Microdata International Corp., with responsibilities for liaison with Microdata's United Kingdom and subsidiary, CMC, Ltd. He had previously worked with Rockwell International and General Dynamics subsidiaries.

Doug Fridrich became the new financial manager for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration this past July. He is living in Falls Church, Va.

Barclay Nakhleh, her husband Ziad and their family are now comfortably ensconced in Aberdeen, Scotland, having recently moved from Lagos, Nigeria. Barclay has become quickly acclimated to the community and is very active in many endeavors. She and her family visited the states this past summer renewing old acquaintances and, hopefully, she will be able to join us for our 20th reunion.

Speaking of our 20th reunion, it is set for October 19 and 20, 1979, and I am hopeful that everyone in the class will make an effort to return to the campus and participate in a little "one-upmanship." See you in Williamsburg, and have a great summer.

61 Spring has sprung, thank goodness! And with the passing of the seasons has arrived some news of fellow classmates. Not much, but some.

Mike McCall, a manager for federal systems marketing at Beehive International, has been elected President of Westwood Country Club near Vienna, Va.

Those of you visiting in the Pennsylvania Dutch areas near York may find time to visit the full line craft shop owned by Betty Ann Lewis Lasley. The shop specializes in classes as well as supplies.

Now located in the Washington, D.C., area is Michael A. Glass, A.I.C., which used to be U.S.I.S. He is General Consul. Mike also sent word that John W. French is head of Rennert Bi-Lingual translations.

The University of Southern California has promoted to Associate Professor Edwin J. Perkins. Ed has also been appointed Managing Editor of the Pacific Historical Review. He is the published author of Men and Organizations (1977). Ed lives in San Marino and is recently divorced.

Bill Nicolai is now the Assistant Director of Public Relations and Publications Manager for the United Cerebral Palsy Association, a national organization with 256 affiliates across the country. Bill is headquartered in New York City.

Our class has a new politician! Recently elected Vice Mayor of Warrenton, Va., is William Shore Robertson. He is also serving as Chairman of the Board for the Highland School, and a member of the new law firm of Martin, Walker, and Lawrence, P.C.

Living in the West Palm Beach area is George B. Chapman and family: Gretchen and daughters Jennifer and Martha. George became the Director of Planning for the city of West Palm Beach in December 1978 and is enjoying "life in the sun."

Also in Florida is Patricia Singleton Parker. Her husband Joe is Director of Neuropathology at Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami. Their children are John, a sixth grader who plays guitar, and Nancy, who started first grade this year.

An interesting note was received from Loye D. Bechtold who reported that he and Larry Schalk '62 are "still alive and running." On December 10, 1978, they completed the Honolulu Marathon, a distance of 26 miles and 385 yards! Congratulations! Loye and Larry plan more for 1979.

Last fall Pat Portney Stern helped direct special dances for the Peninsula Community Theatre's production of "Shenandoah."

Joan Beck Willis is the choir director at St. John's Episcopal Church in Hopewell and is also the Assistant Principal at DuPont Elementary School. This year she is directing the Hopewell based Community Oratorio Society.

The Trumbull County Ohio Women's Panhellenic Association in Niles featured Ellen King Neffas as the main speaker. This meeting was the annual college reception for all collegebound high school senior girls. Bunny has also received her Master's Degree in European History from Youngstown State and is currently attending Bowling Green State University.

Despite news to the contrary, there is a mailbox in front of my house. Have a happy summer!

63 Ray Warner is Deputy Assistant Secretary for Intergovernmental Affairs at the Department of Transportation. Sue Roache Warner '64 is a third grade teacher and teacher of the gifted/talented school-based program in a Fairfax County Public School. Ray and Sue have recently moved into a new home built by William and Mary alumni Mickey and Penny Kite Simpson. They live in Oakton, Va.

Tom Bryant was the recent subject of a newspaper article concerning the Shamrock Marathon held in Virginia Beach. It seems Tom bragged to his fellow workers at the Richmond Post Office that he could finish the marathon in under four hours. It is not known how he actually finished in the race. Incidentally, in 1973 Tom was the fourth-ranked sport parachutist in the country and was a member of the American team that beat Russia for the first time in 16 years at an international meet held in Yugoslavia.

Don '61 plans to attend a hospital financial workshop in Williamsburg in August. A summer visit to Williamsburg just might be a bit different from our annual trip to a football game!

Note: Homecoming is October 19-20. Contact the Alumni Office if you would like to make room reservations.

Further note: I'd sure like to hear from more of you! This column loves news!

65 Larry Thomas is executive director of the National Paint and Coatings Association and was recently the keynote speaker at the 14th Biennial Western Coatings Symposium at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco. He became executive secretary last August, after having served as the association's general counsel. Marshall Gates has received a Master's degree from the University of Maryland and is presently regional sales manager for Paul Revere Life Insurance Company. Marshall, Sandra and their three children are enjoying a newly built home in the country.

Eric Foretich has been made chairman of the Department of Dentistry at Commonwealth Hospital Division of Fairfax Hospital. Linda Lane Izquierdo is a radiologist and mother of three children, Erika, Carlos and Katherine. Her husband is a cardiologist. They recently moved to San Jose, Calif. Margie Kelly Morris and her family have returned to Virginia after three years in Atlanta. They are now living in Richmond where Patrick is zone manager out of the Washington, D.C., office of Proctor and Gamble.

Byrd Lacy Murray and Gene continue to be active William and Mary supporters while being involved in numerous other activities. Byrd is teaching sixth grade history at St. Michael's School in Richmond. Gene is with Central National Bank and is busy with the merger of CNB and Fidelity American Bank. Byrd and Gene are also owners of The Linen Closet of Richmond, Ltd. They opened the store last August -- I encourage all our classmates in the Richmond area to visit the shop, as I have firsthand reports that it is terrific. Elizabeth White Suchar and Vic left New York City in November and moved into a townhouse in the Chelsea area of London, England.

Kathie Wiese Astor is Director of Student Financial Services at the University of California, Santa Cruz, and is currently serving as treasurer of the California Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. In addition, she has been working as an instructor for the Office of Education-sponsored Student Financial Assistance Training Project. Kathie's husband Bart works for a touring children's theater company. Laura Youngblood Meagher has been accepted as a full-time candidate for the degree of Master in Theological Studies in Virginia Seminary beginning next fall. John is still minority counsel of the Ways and Means Committee. They live in Alexandria.

Margie Hodges Furr is putting her graduate work to good use in her new capacity as librarian at a hospital in Greensboro, N.C. The library is new and Margie is responsible for organizing, supplying and staffing the facility. Mickey continues his consulting work in the field of psychology. He is a member of Rotary and has recently been elected to the Drug Action Council. Jean Ball Bugg is involved with her hobby of genealogy, weekly Bible studies and course work at a local junior college. Jean and John live in New Orleans where John is employed by Exxon.

Pat Niccoli Gasch spent a Wisconsin winter carrying hay through the snow and cleaning stalls for her horse, sewing, making some crafts for sale and tending to the needs of her two children. Judy Weisman Dennen continues to tutor reading part-time at neighborhood schools in Concord, Mass. Lynne Marcus Yerkes is attending Hastings College of the Law in San Francisco. The school is part of the University of California system. Tom Yerkes has started a new job as Director of Finance and Administration for the Port of San Francisco.

Lynn Meushaw Parent began a part-time job last summer as coordinator of a telephone reassurance program for the elderly. Her husband Neil has a new job working as representative for adult education at the U.S. Catholic Conference, which is the staff of the Catholic bishops. The Parents live in Alexandria. Mary ("Rusty") Rollings Stevens and Kent remain very active in their Franklin, Va., community. Kent is the Associate Administrator of the hospital, Senior Warden of the church vestry, choir member, and member of both the Rotary and Ruritan Club.

67 Bob Steidtmann has been elected Vice President and N.Y.S.E.-Approved Branch Office Manager of The Robinson-Humphrey Co., Inc., an Atlanta, Ga. - based stock brokerage and investment banking firm.

Linda Fombell Harkins stays busy as the mother of an 11-year-old daughter and a 10-year-old son and as an art teacher (K-6) for the Chesapeake, Va., public schools. Last December she spent ten days touring Australia, spending most of her time in Sydney.

I talked with Mary Allan Brown Beckley the other night. She is still working for the V.A. here in Washington, living in Fairfax, and taking care of her daughter Laura, age 3. She passed on the following news:

Natalie Ryder Berry is living near Boston and has a daughter, age 5.

Cis Roton Perrow and her husband are living and teaching in Grants, NM. Cis is teaching History and Special Studies courses at New Mexico State University. Last year she taught a Roots course. They have two daughters.

When I talked with Glad Bulwinkle Hatchl, she said that Russ is still with the Federal Trade Commission. Glad spends her time raising their two sons.

In January Chris and Bob Rowland visited the Hatchls from Norfolk, Va., where Bob is a radiology resident at Norfolk General Hospital and Chris is busy with their two daughters.

While Chris and Bob Rowland were here, they and the Hatchls met Nancy Allen Kurtz in town for Chorus Line. Nancy her husband, and their two sons, live in Gaithersburg, Md., where Jim works for Montgomery County.

Missy Crowdy is working as a guidance counselor in Galveston, Tex. Last summer she toured England.

Linda Rains Ragsdale and her husband are living in Arlington, Va. They have two children, a girl and a boy. Linda is a Personnel Specialist with the Navy in Rosslyn, Va.

I am looking forward to hearing from many of you this summer. If you live in the Washington area or just happen to come here for a visit, please give me a call.

69 Congratulations to Frances Herring Reynolds who was one of ten second-year students to be chosen for the St. George Tucker Society, William and Mary's honor and service fraternity. Frances serves on The Law Review, and recently accepted the position as the Notes and Comments Editor for the Review. One of Frances' papers was chosen to be published in the Spring '79 issue of The Law Review and in April she received special recognition from the William and Mary Student Bar Association. This summer, she will be serving an internship with the Attorney General's office in Richmond. Frances and Melvin are going to Florida for a week of sun after her exams and before her job begins. It certainly sounds like a well-earned vacation!

Ted Zychowski writes that in the spring of 1969 he married the former Cathy Coleman. Ted completed Navy Officer Candidate School that summer and graduated from the Navy Supply Corps School in Athens, Ga. in May 1970. Until July 1972, the Zychowskis were in Charleston, S.C., where Ted was stationed on board a submarine tender. From July 1972 until May 1974 they were in Bainbridge, Md., where Ted served as supply and fiscal officer for the Naval Academy Preparatory School. Then in May 1974, Ted reported to New Orleans for several months as part of the pre-commissioning crew of a new ship. In October 1974, Ted and Cathy settled in their new homeport of Norfolk, where they spent the next four years. In September 1978, they were transferred to Puerto Rico where Ted is a Lieutenant Commander and is on the staff of Commander U.S. Naval Forces Caribbean Area. The Zychowskis will be there at least until September 1981. Ted says that during these years their family grew from the two of them to a gang of four -- which includes their daughter Kelly, age 10, and their son Christopher, age 7. Cathy completed her undergraduate work during the summer of 1974; however, Ted adds that in Cathy's heart she'll always be Class of '70. For the most part, she has been mother and homemaker. During their tour in Norfolk, however, Cathy worked for the Norfolk Social Services Department. She is presently taking it easy and thoroughly enjoying their tour in Puerto Rico. Thanks, Ted, for the wonderful news update!

Austin Roberts III has been named Chairman of the Christopher Newport College third Annual Fund Campaign. Austin is President of the First Peninsula Bank and Trust Company, and is a member of the Alumni Board of Directors at William and Mary.

Congratulations to Michael and Peggy Sotheron Wormwood on the birth of their first child, Michael Wesley, on April 13th. The Wormwoods are living in Davidsonville, Md.

In April, Carol Hamerson Dixon presented on WGMS radio a one-hour lecture on Shakespeare as part of a telethon for the Folger Shakespeare Library. Carol's husband, Bill, is with the Naval Research Laboratory and, in addition, is completing his Ph.D. in Applied Mathematics.

Cheri Anderson is currently studying for her Master's at George Washington University in Recreational Therapy.

Michael Chesson is teaching "Civil War and Reconstruction" and a seminar in American Negro Slavery at the Boston campus of the University of Massachusetts. Michael wrote his dissertation at Harvard on "Richmond After the War, 1865 - 1890," and has received his Ph.D.

John Quaintance has been appointed acting principal of Springfield Estates Elementary School. John has received his MA in educational administration from VPI and is enrolled in a doctoral program. John's wife, Marilyn, '70, is an industrial psychologist and serves as the Director of Assessment Services for the International Personnel Management Association in Washington.

Curt Lowe is currently teaching English History at Marshall University in Huntington, W.Va., after receiving his Ph.D. from Emory University.

Kaye Pitts is living in Alexandria and is teaching senior government at Lake Braddock in Fairfax. Last summer, Kaye returned to William and Mary to take two courses -- educational law and criminal law.

David Hillman was named the outstanding administrator at Virginia Western Community College, where he is the Director of Learning Resources.

Bob and Patricia Woody Belshe and their two children, Bobby, age 3, and Bonnie Anne, age 1, are living in Huntington, W.Va. Bob is the Chief of Infectious Diseases at Marshall University School of Medicine.

As for me, I'm keeping very busy with my real estate. I'm the lister of 85 houses called Canal Way on the north end of Old Town, so this is occupying a huge amount of my time. In April, I enjoyed a brief trip back to William and Mary to serve on the nominating committee of the Alumni Board of Directors. Doug is the President of Performance Systems, Incorporated, and is on business now in Europe for two weeks. Peter is four and is thoroughly enjoying nursery school.

My apologies for the brevity of this class letter; however, I seem to be unusually low on information. Please send me any and all news for the next issue. We are all eager to hear from you!

Don't forget. . . I'm relinquishing my job as Class Reporter after ten years. (It's hard to believe that it's been that long!!) Please let me know if you have the energy, desire, and time to write our class column. I've loved doing it, but it's time for someone else to take over. Please let me know if you're interested.

Looking forward to seeing lots of you at our tenth reunion October 19th - 21st! Please contact the Alumni Office should you need assistance in arranging your room reservations.

Have a wonderful summer!

71 Down in "Big D," Cher Zucker has traded her Jersey accent for a Texas drawl and a Piece of the Rock. Cher is General Manager of Real Estate Operations for Prudential and teaching real estate courses at a local community college. She's also a member of a group called the "Dance Ensemble" which this spring gave a premiere performance of some of her choreography. "The dance critic of the local newspaper declined to review it even though she did see it, so apparently I really do belong in real estate rather than dance."

Ashby Cockrell is Senior Vice President and Cashier of the Bank of Middlesex in Urbanna, Va. Ashby and wife Sharon, who teaches school, are sailing buffs, setting out frequently in their boat, the "Shabby V." Another alumnus on the way up the corporate ladder is David Lamb. He was recently promoted to Junior Vice President in the firm of Hazleton and Rogers and is also finishing work on a PhD in economics.

Dr. Bob Gilbert has joined a family practice group in Pocatello, Id. Wife Kat Phillips is driving a school bus and spending "90% of the time trying to be a better housewife." They have a small house on six acres and "eight or nine assorted animals," all having a good time in the Snake River Valley. David Jordan is an attorney in Oak Park, Ill. He's married and has two children. George Waldo Miller is also in private practice. His office is in Hyannis, Mass. Linn Acton Tyrrell is teaching full-time in the social and behavioral science department at a community college in Illinois. She's also the mother of a baby girl. Kay Rorer would like to get an address for Nancy Terrill and Wing Legerton.

Stanley Florer writes that he recently met with Phil and Kathy DeShong in Zurich for some touring. In January, Phil completed post-doctoral work in chemistry in Switzerland, and he has now moved on to the even headier pursuits at M.I.T. Glenn Robertson and two other William and Mary graduates have formed the Energy Conserving Homes Co. ("to build homes for modern living"). Wife Barbara works in the genetics lab at U.Va.

"Christianity in Marxist Countries" was the topic of a recent stemwinder by George Lucas, who is a faculty member at Randolph-Macon College. He received his MA and PhD from the Garrett Theological Seminary. Last summer, George was a delegate to the International Congress of Christian Peace Conference in Czechoslovakia. There, he could be seen wandering the streets of Prague at night humming the haunting melody of the "Munsietta," written in honor of the reclusive W.R.C. Munsey.

The people of Wethersfield, Conn., are scratching their heads in bewilderment at the new street signs popping up around town, signs with names like "Botetourt Ave." and "Taliaferro Rd." Town Planner Len Tunderman sees nothing wrong with those names. Len, with an M.A. in planning from Rutgers, has worked up a city layout that would put L'Enfant to shame.

Forsaking sunny Sacramento, Virginia Miller moved to Minneapolis in 1978. She's an Immigration Hearing Officer and a darned good one: since taking over, not one illegal Mexican alien has crossed the border into Minnesota. This month, Bob Newman will be moving to Charleston, S.C., after graduating from U.Va. Medical School. He'll start a three-year residency in family practice while wife Anne Baird Newman '75 continues her career in physical therapy. Up in Pennsylvania, Susan Schwenk Volp classifies herself as a "homemaker, tutor, mother, tennis player, hockey and lacrosse official (not necessarily in that order)." Marti Garland Seraphin is Assistant to the Supervisor for Auditor Programs in Montgomery County, Maryland, schools, but she hopes to return to teaching in the fall. Her husband works for the state finance department.

Last issue's "Where Are They Now?" netted one lead: Drucilla Petty, who left William and Mary before graduating, is married to Army officer Charles Miller and living in Reston, Va. That word comes from Kathy Schilling Denz. Kathy had jobs with the Departments of Labor and the Treasury before moving to Huntsville, Ala., with husband Steve, who works for GTE designing telephones. She's employed by a temporary service and is settling into a house with two cats and plans for a family. As for hobbies: "Steve is a black belt in karate. I've taken up belly dancing."

Where Are They Now? Elizabeth Tarpley, David Levy, Drew Christensen, Cathy Fulwiler, Gary Diamond, Jonathan Shackelford, Patricia Deuster, Beverly Gosney, Sarah Chapman, Lynn Briley, Phil Budahn, Mike Fratkin, and John Davey.

Your intrepid writer is still News Director of WFMD/WFRE Radio in Frederick, Md. (a stone's throw from Baltimore and Washington). This year, in competition with stations throughout Maryland, Delaware, and D.C., we walked away with the Non-Metro awards given by the Chesapeake Associated Press Broadcasters Association: Best Enterprise by a Reporter (yours truly), Best Spot News Coverage, Best Public Affairs Program, and Outstanding News Operation. Now that I'm finished patting myself on the back, I'll wish you all a good summer, and close with my constant admonition: send in your news!

73 Charles B. Foster was initiated into Pi Tau Chi, National Honor Society in Religion, at the University of Alabama. Also, Charles was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in December 1977.

In Newport News, Gladys Caywood is the supervisor of school libraries. She was selected as a delegate to the 1979 Governor's Conference on Library and Information Science.

After returning to the Williamsburg area 2 1/2 years ago, Karen Vanderwolf Dorn spent time working on a Master's at the College, and is now working for York County Public Schools, and pursuing an Advanced Certificate in Education Administration. Karen and her husband have also bought a home in Newport News.

William Harper graduated from MCV School of Medicine in 1977 and is presently a second-year Family Practice resident at Blackstone, Va. William and his wife, Dorothy, have one son, James Michael, age 2.

David Bruce Christian is working on his dissertation in Latin American History at Tulane University, and he is teaching part-time as well as working in the Latin American Library.

Richard Hartje is a commercial analyst for Westvaco in Wickliffe, Ky. He received an MBA from Emory University where he met his wife, Anne Sturgis Phillips, who also received an MBA at Emory. Anne sent along word that Glenn Baruch, Russel Astley and Lynn Wingfield were in their wedding.

Currently serving as Vice President of Administration at Chester County Hospital of West Chester, Pa., Fred Siembieda is also working on his Master's in Health Care and Engineering at Temple University. Fred received a plaque of appreciation for his services at Delaware County Memorial Hospital, where he began his hospital career, working during high school and college.

Darlene and Jimmy Smith sent along news of the birth of their son, Jonathan Matthews, on January 12, 1979. Jimmy helped with the delivery at Community Hospital in Williamsburg. The Smiths are living in Yorktown.

In a nice note from Chuck Hall I received word that he and his wife Ami Cuervo Hall, '74, are living in Newport News and are both actively involved in their careers. Both Ami and Chuck received graduate degrees in counseling and Educational Psychology from the College. Ami is chairman of the Department of School Social Workers in Newport News, where she has had several grant proposals accepted. Chuck has worked as a marriage and family counselor for a private clinic, and has recently been hired as a programs specialist for the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in the Hampton-Newport News area. For their own mental health Chuck and Ami enjoy their two thoroughbred mares and the Maltese dogs which they raise. Both say they'd love for any friends in the area to get in touch. They are currently at 548-K

Turnberry, in Newport News.

The Alumni Office would like to remind you of Homecoming which is October 19-20. This is the last column until next fall. Hope you have lots of exciting vacations; plan to send me a postcard. Why don't you?

77 The news this month is brought to you by special correspondents Gail Geddis, Melissa Eastman Walker, Sheila Klatt, Bob Corso and Tad Minkler. They took the time to fill me in on several of our classmates' whereabouts.

First to fill you in on their whereabouts. Bob Corso is living in Tempe, Ariz., just outside of Phoenix, where he is the sales representative for Van Heusen, a mens wear firm. His territory includes Phoenix, Tucson, Albuquerque and Las Vegas. Prior to joining Van Heusen, Bob was in sales in the health and beauty field with Mennen. Bob seems to enjoy his travelling, especially those "business conventions" in the Bahamas.

Sheila Klatt received her Master's degree in May from the V.C.U. School of Social Work. Last summer she worked at a resort in Colorado. She plans to head to Europe in September prior to obtaining a job in corrections.

Tad Minkler writes from Houston, Tex., where he is working as a technical representative for Milliken Chemical out of Spartanburg, S.C. His territory is extensive, including Chicago, New Orleans, and Los Angeles. He finds the travel exciting and enjoys seeing new cities. His work is in the oil, textile and plastics industry.

Melissa Eastman married Lew Walker September 2nd. He received his M.B.A. at William and Mary last December and accepted a job in Philadelphia. She writes that there are several other '77 grads in that area including Maggie Kneip and Debbie McCracken Rebeck. Debbie just finished her Master's in museology and is hunting for a job in one of the area's museums. Husband Dave is Assistant Dean of Students at Ursinus College just outside of Philly.

Gail Geddis wrote from Yale Law School where she has completed her first year. Before enrolling at Yale, Gail spent a year at the University of Exeter on a William and Mary exchange scholarship studying East African history.

In San Jose, Calif., Don Tarin is busy getting a portfolio ready for art design school in L.A. He was recently back east where he saw Ray and Karen Jacobs. They now live in Richmond where Ray is a sales rep for Burroughs Corporation. Karen is finishing up at U.Va. grad school.

Larry Kinton was with Garfinckel's in Washington, D.C., as an assistant buyer, but went with Miller and Rhoads in Richmond last fall. He is now a buyer and makes frequent trips to New York.

Carol Sorelle Holloway was full of exciting news. She and Peter moved to Greeley, Colo., last September where Peter had a job with a dinner theatre. He has acted in several of their productions, including Fiddler on the Roof, The Unsinkable Molly Brown, and Mary, Mary. Peter had the male leads in the last two. In addition, he has done some directing and choreography.

Meanwhile, Carol kept busy substitute teaching every subject on all grade levels. More recently, she started a business of her own. She is the sole employee, owner, and bookkeeper of a candy store in a restored 1900's mall.

Since February, Diane Hull has been assistant to the director and one of the associate directors of the Theatre Communications Group, a service agency based in New York for the nonprofit professional theatre. She is also managing the publicity and promotion for the Mel Wong Dance Company, a modern dance company in Manhattan.

Holly Thompson has been named the Washington representative for the Insurance Information Institute. She is currently studying for an M.S. degree in public information administration at American University.

At Brown University, John Benson is currently enrolled in the Master's of Arts in Teaching program.

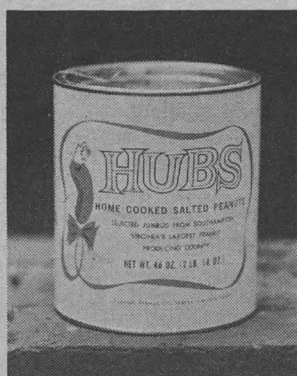

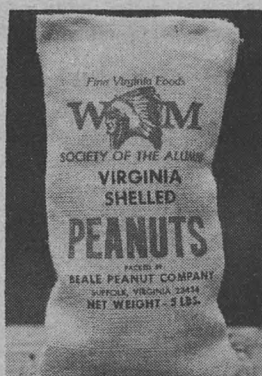

Best wishes to the newlyweds and not-so-newlyweds in our class. Mary Cottrill and Bill Yates were married on March 24th in Portsmouth. They are residing in Smithfield, Va. Bill Bean and Janet Bonner were married in January of 1977 and are now living in St. Louis, where Bill is with the Social Security Administration.

Anne Kling and Ken Rose were married December 27th. Anne is now teaching art at a private school in Alexandria. Husband Ken is a graphic artist. They plan to move to Colorado early in the summer.

Bob and Nan Esper Gessner are on the move again. Hopefully by now they are all settled in their new home in Massillon, Ohio. Bob is working with his father. Also in the state, Mark and Anni Speilman Wooley are in Cincinnati where Mark is with General Electric.

Janet Moscicki is still keeping busy working at the Democratic National Committee. Also in D.C., Joyce Downey is teaching at a girls' prep school. Debby Mayer and Susan Shank have recently moved to the area (Arlington, Va.). Debby moved east from San Francisco where she was working as a travel consultant for A.A.A. Susan Shank had been living in Texas. She is planning on entering law school in the fall. In the meantime, she and Debbie are waiting at the Hyatt House.

Linda Angevine is down at the U. of Mississippi planning on getting her Ph.D. in toxicology. Also in graduate school, Carol Wells recently moved to Charlottesville to work on her Master's in English. Paul and Diane DuBel Cullum are both working on M.B.A.'s in New Jersey.

Susan Cleghorn is finishing up her M.B.A. at William and Mary and just accepted a job with Continental Oil. She'll be in training for one year in Montana or Oklahoma, and then on to Houston.

In Richmond, Becky Bragg is employed by IBM. Amy Rose is still working as a travelling accountant. Casey Cooke has re-enlisted in the Army. Working for Honeywell, Linda Witham is an energy management consultant in Richmond.

We have a request for info on the whereabouts of Rob and Barbara Waters Wade. Anybody heard anything from them?

George Cruikshank and a group of alumni have formed a band known as Parallax. They are performing their own music in the Williamsburg area.

Mo Lawlor is in her second year of med school at Jefferson University in Philadelphia. Karen Tomlinson is not at Jefferson, by the way. She is in Chicago working for Univac, a computer company.

Jane Rehme taught 8th grade English at James Blair High School in Williamsburg for a year. Afterwards, she started her Master's degree as a reading specialist at William and Mary. Debbie Davis is also in William and Mary's graduate school of education. In addition, she is area coordinator of Tyler, Taliaferro, Hunt, and Jefferson. Peter Garland is still area coordinator of J.B.T.

Prior to her wedding, Melissa Eastman Walker was in the William and Mary education school getting her Master's in guidance and counseling/college student services. Also at William and Mary, Jennifer Corbett switched from the M.B.A. program and is finishing up her Master's in diagnostic prescriptive teaching. Jennifer and Johnny Blankenship are planning on getting married this summer. Congratulations! Johnny has been working with Price Waterhouse in Richmond since graduation.

Betsy Radd is living in Norfolk working for Bank of Virginia and skiing whenever she gets the chance. Nearby, in Virginia Beach, Cindy Shepard is teaching English. Mike D'Orso is there, also teaching English. He recently got engaged to Linda Smith. Linda is working as Head Resident at Radford while completing her Master's in guidance and counseling/college student services.

Soaking up the sun in Daytona Beach, Shelly Movroydis finds time to work for a newspaper. Chris and Debbie Kelly Davis are also in Florida.

Jan Armitage is at Yale doing graduate work in economics. Noli Mowry returned from Germany and is working on her Ph.D. in German at Cornell. Her duties include teaching freshman composition.

Steve Greenlaw is at one of the state universities of New York in grad school. Zack Perdue is married and studying at M.C.V. in Richmond.

More wedding announcements surfaced this month. Mary Kate Bresnahan married a horticulturalist, Pete Hoehman, last June. She is teaching biology in a high school outside of Richmond. They are living in Highland Springs, Va. Kevin Hoover met his new wife Catherine at St. Andrews his junior year. He should be finishing his second year at Oxford on a Draper's Fellowship.

Mark Waymack and Pam Myers are to be married this June. Pam is finishing a two-year program in business administration of hospitals at Northwestern. Mark was in Exeter last year doing a one year Master's program in philosophy.

Cathy Howard, Pam Roller, Nancy Nugent, and Mary Sue Hogan will all be walking down the aisle this summer. Ivan Fears' wedding was June 2nd. Suzanne Mahoney and Phil Sword have planned their wedding for June. Carolyn Jones and Larry Skinner are to be married in September.

Chip Mann has been appointed Administrative Assistant to the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Cindy Shaver Carter has been promoted from staff to Assistant Manager of Virginia National Bank's Main Street office in Lynchburg. She joined VNB in July 1977 as a management trainee.

Michael Fox has been named a Harold Stirling Vanderbilt Graduate Scholar at Vanderbilt University, for study in sociology. This award is among the highest honors Vanderbilt awards to any graduate student and is given not only for intellectual distinction and scholarly promise, but also for versatility and breadth as well, and is in effect for three years. Congratulations.

Our class really seems to be on the move. So, keep me posted on your whereabouts. The next issue with our class news will not come out before the fall. You'll have plenty of time to write.

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

Miss Sharon Coles
East End Professional Building
2501 Marshall Avenue
Newport News, Va. 23607

I hope you all have gotten through the long winter essentially in one piece. Marshall-Wythe has been in the news a great deal recently but first, let us take note of the following state of affairs among alumni:

Frederic Bertrand '67 has been promoted to counsel with the National Life Insurance Company of Vermont. He was named associate counsel in 1973, after joining the firm in 1970. Frederic has also served as Mayor of Montpelier, and has been an Alderman.

Hal J. Bonney, Jr. '69, has been teaching the Wesleyan Bible Class of the Epworth United Methodist Church in Norfolk, Va., since 1962. The class has had only two other teachers since it began in 1909. The program is broadcast every Sunday morning on WTAR. Hal was a public school teacher and private school superintendent before enrolling in the law school in 1967. He became Judge of the United States District Court, presiding over bankruptcies in 1971.

Robert Condon '78 has recently been named as an Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney in Newport News, Va.

Curtis Coward '74 was elected to the City Council of Lynchburg, Va., in 1978. In addition to his duties as councilman, Curt is a partner in the law firm of Bell, Coward, Morrison and Spies.

Jim Hanagan '77 is finding great personal reward in his work with the Peninsula Legal Aid Center's Williamsburg Office. In a cooperative effort with the Marshall-Wythe

School of Law, he guides a team of law students to Eastern State Hospital each week in order to assist patients with their legal problems. Jim's work was the subject of an interesting in-depth story in the Richmond Times Dispatch this past March.

Phyllis Harden '75 is the Executive Director of Planned Parenthood of Tidewater, Incorporated, in Norfolk, Va. She is the first attorney to head one of the health related agencies in Tidewater.

Chris Honenberger '74 has joined Thomas Purcell in the practice of law in Orange, Va. His wife Sally is an Assistant City Attorney for Alexandria. They are living in Orange.

Mike Smith '77 has now opened a law practice in Washington, Pa., after clerking for a Washington, D.C., law firm. Sarah Slesinger Smith '78 is awaiting the results of her bar examination and looking forward to joining Mike in practice in Washington, Pa.

Wilfred Taylor '78 has passed the February Virginia Bar Examination and is now ready to begin the practice of law in the Hampton-Newport News area.

Hal Ward '61 and his partner in the Surety Title Insurance Agency, Incorporated, of Virginia Beach, Va., have had an interesting contest with the Virginia State Bar. The controversy involves the question of the use of non-lawyers to perform title searches in real estate transactions. Previously, it had been the contention that lawyers were necessary for the search in order to obtain title insurance. They, however, prosecuted their own lawsuit when they were not able to get a practicing attorney to represent them, and won in the United States District Court.

Kenneth Whitehurst '66 has been named to fill a Circuit Court Judgeship in Virginia Beach. He has been a Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Judge since 1973.

James R. Cox '78 has now become associated with the firm of Greenbaum, Doll and McDonald and will work in the firm's Louisville, Ky., office.

Charles H. Burr '75 and William J. Bridge have formed a partnership for the general practice of law under the name of Burr and Bridge. The firm has offices in Williamsburg, Va.

Oscar L. ("Buzz") Gilbert '75 has become a member of the firm of Rabinowitz, Rafal & Swartz, in the general practice of law in Norfolk.

Allen C. Tanner, Jr., '75 has been made a partner in the firm of Mason, Gibson, Cowardin & Spencer in Newport News.

Milton K. Brown, Jr. '78 has joined the firm of Sharon A. Coles in the general practice of law in Newport News, and Latricia Cunningham Donley '76 is leaving the firm in June to return to Florida with her husband Bill, who will begin his medical internship there this summer. Latricia will join the firm of Cunningham & Cunningham in West Palm Beach, Fla.

I would like to hear from many more of you, and ask that all of you please keep the Alumni Office and/or myself posted as to your activities.

The law school celebrated its Charter Day on February 10, 1979. This year marks the 200th Anniversary of the establishment of the Chair of Law at William and Mary. A very moving celebration was conducted at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, where the Honorable Lewis F. Powell, Jr., Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, delivered the keynote address.

On April 28, 1979, Law Day was celebrated a bit early at the law school. Although the rainy weather did prevent the historic laying of the cornerstone of the new law school from taking place at the site of the new building, the ceremonies, which were conducted in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, were nonetheless inspiring. Of course, Professor Swindler has seen to it that the capsule in the cornerstone contains appropriate matter to commemorate the occasion in glorious fashion.

I remind all law alumni and friends that Homecoming will be the weekend of October 19-20 this year. All persons who wish to make advance room reservations should contact the Alumni Office in that connection. Please be on the lookout for further information in The Alumni Gazette concerning the Homecoming celebration.

I look forward to hearing from, and about you, and wish you all a most prosperous summer.

WILLIAM & MARY FOOTBALL
1979

- ★ Five Home Games
- ★ Season Tix Discount
- ★ Renovated Stadium

William & Mary's 1979 football schedule features five home games and, for the first time, season ticket buyers will receive a discount price compared to individual game purchases. Also, season ticket holders will be given priority seating at the Oyster Bowl in Norfolk against Navy.

And that is not all... Cary Stadium, virtually untouched since its construction, will be renovated prior to the 1979 home opener. New seats, a crowned and re-sodded field, proper drainage and new restroom facilities are just a few of the many improvements you will see.

Last year the Tribe was undefeated at home and its two year mark at Cary Stadium stands at 6-1-1. More exciting action is in store for 1979.

SEASON TICKETS — Season ticket orders will be filled before individual game orders. Only season ticket holders have guaranteed same seat locations for every game. Season tickets will be mailed by the middle of August.

DEADLINE FOR RECLAIMING — Last year's season ticket holders will receive the same seat location if their orders are received by June 1, 1979. This will be closely adhered to, so please send orders by this date.

SEAT LOCATION — Circle the area you prefer on the application form. Every effort will be made to fulfill your request. If we cannot give you the exact location you prefer, we will provide you with the next best seats available.

INDIVIDUAL HOME GAMES — To purchase individual home game tickets, complete the appropriate area on the order form next to the game you wish to see. If you order for more than one game, your order will receive priority over orders for a single game.

AWAY GAMES — The William & Mary ticket office will handle tickets for all away games. To insure that your tickets will be in the "Green and Gold" block, order your tickets on this form. Season ticket buyers will receive first priority on Oyster Bowl tickets.

HOW TO PAY FOR YOUR TICKETS — Use your Master Charge or Bank Americard (VISA) to charge tickets, or you may enclose your personal check. Make all checks payable to WMAA. To determine the amount of your check, use the "totals" column on the application.

BUSINESS ENTERTAINMENT — Send your clients and/or employees to Indian games. A tremendous customer/employee tool. Tickets used for this purpose are tax deductible.

GROUPS — Special discount arrangements can be made through the Tribe's Group Sales Department to bring groups of 20 or more to see the Indians. For information call the Group Order Department at 229-3111.
