THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

A Valuable Sheepskin

William and Mary Graduates Fare Well in Admissions to Medical, Law and Business Schools

Students at the College are the best among state college and university students at getting into medical schools, according to the most recent available statistics.

Nationwide statistics on medical school applicants for the year 1978-79 show that while over half of 36,000 applicants were rejected by medical schools, 48 of 68 applicants, over 70 percent, were accepted from William and Mary.

The four Virginia universities with a comparable or higher number of students applying to medical schools—Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Virginia Commonwealth University, Virginia Military Institute and the University of Virginia—all had lower acceptance rates, ranging from 36 to 61 percent.

Of the 104,150 Medical College Achievement Test scores compiled from May 1977 to September 1978, distributed among 1,028 colleges across the nation, the scores of the 173 William and Mary students in this group were in the top 10 percent.

"Medical schools look very closely at grade-point average, MCAT scores and letters of recommendation," said Randolph A. Coleman, associate professor of chemistry at William and Mary and coordinator of pre-health science advising at the College.

"These three criteria are weighted fairly equally," he said, "and they determine the decision by the medical school to interview an applicant or not. At that point, the interview becomes the determining factor in choosing among many highly qualified applicants."

While the grades of undergraduates are an important criterion, Coleman points out that considerations vary from student to student, depending, among other things, on his undergraduate school.

"Medical schools seem to be willing to pick up William and Mary graduates who have lower grade-point averages than other applicants," said Coleman. "While the majority of last year's first-year medical students at the University of Virginia Medical School had averages of 3.5 or better, the William and Mary graduates' averages ranged around 3.0."

An applicant should give careful consideration to where he applies, Coleman said, since pre-med students stand the best chance of being accepted by state-supported medical schools in their home states.

Statistics from Virginia's three state medical colleges for the year 1978-79 support Coleman's assessment. The Eastern Virginia Medical School accepted 74 of 607 in-state applicants (12 percent), while only six of 906 out-of-state applicants (.6 percent) were accepted. At the Medical College of Virginia, 150 of 716 in-state applicants were accepted (21 percent), while 18 of 1,308 out-of-state applicants made it (one percent). At the University of Virginia Medical School, 101 of 624 in-state hopefuls were successful (16 percent), while 32 of 2,166 out-of-state applicants were accepted (two percent).

William and Mary graduates seeking to enter law school also enjoy a high rate of success. "We're in an enviable position from the beginning because of the selectivity of the College's admissions procedure," said James J. Thompson, Jr., associate professor of history and a pre-law adviser to undergraduate students at the College.

"There's no question our students have a high success rate at getting into law school," he continued.

"One of the things I've picked up in meeting with admissions officers from other law schools is that these admissions offices know which schools grade harder than others. A major concern of our students is that their grades may not be high enough. But law schools know what a 3.4 means at William and Mary as compared to other schools.

"Any of our students who really want to can get into a respectable law school," Thompson concluded. "The best ones get into the best schools."

Professor John S. Quinn, senior member of the accounting faculty in the College's School of Business Administration, points to statistics from the Virginia State Board of Accountancy as evidence of William and Mary students' success in the field of accounting.

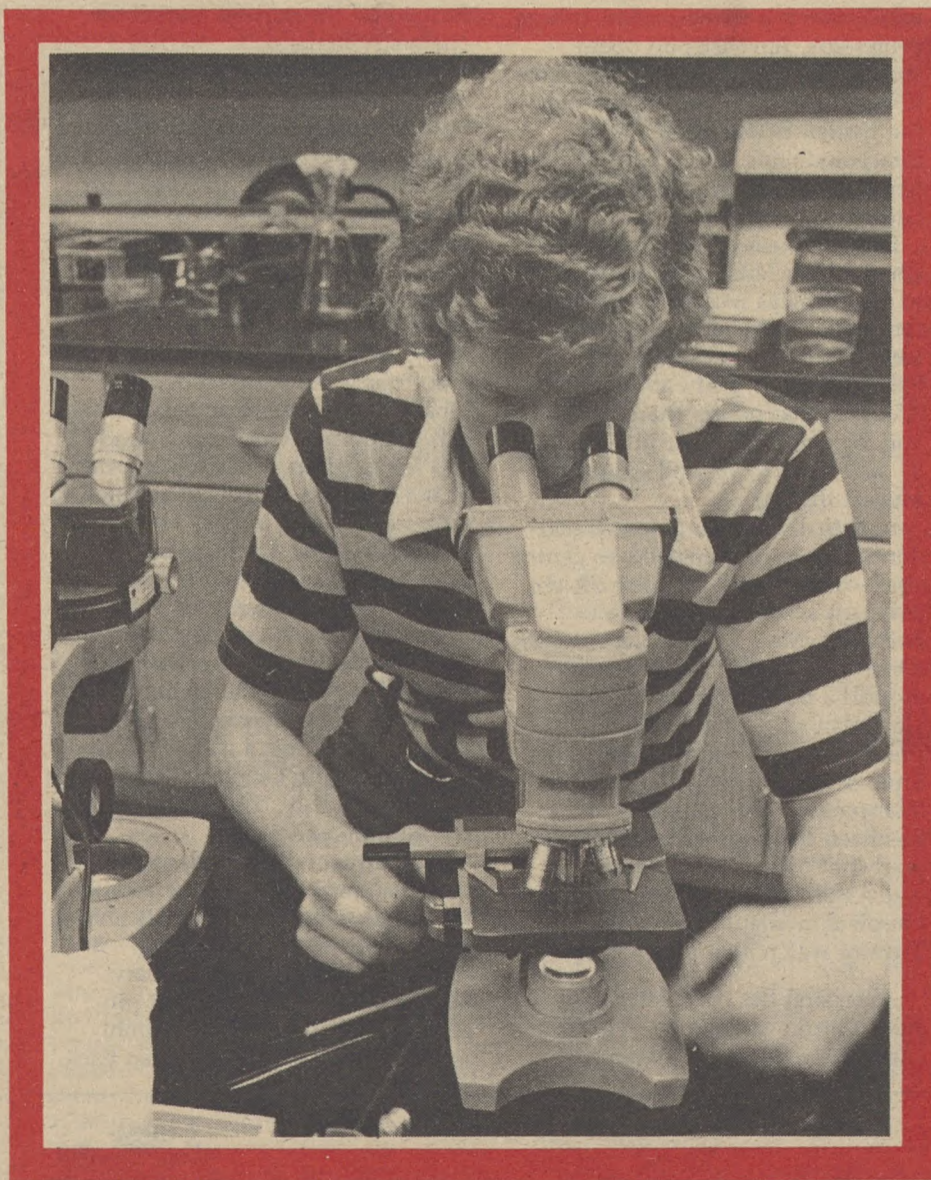

"The best measure we have on the success of our students are the figures on the Certified Public Accountant testing," said Quinn. The CPA exam is a national examination given in four parts over two-and-a-half days.

From 1974 through this year, students from William and Mary have alternated with the University of Virginia in assuming leadership among state colleges and universities in performance on the CPA examination.

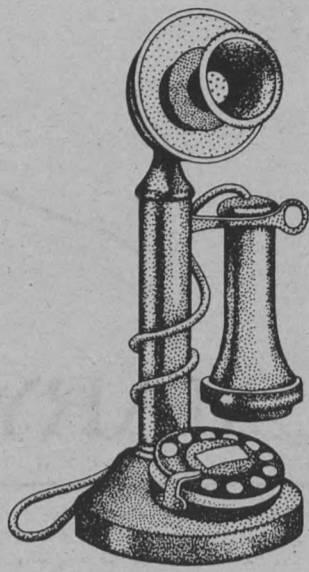

Three times since 1974, a William and Mary student has been awarded the gold medal by CPA examiners for the highest individual score in the state. During the same period, four students from the College have received honorable mention for their performance on the CPA test.

"We don't have specific information from the placement office," said Quinn, "but we get reports back from recruiters who visit the campus, and the best international accounting firms tell us they are not able to get as many William and Mary people as they'd like. They'll hire as many graduates from here as they can get."

"One of the 'Big Eight' international accounting firms has commented that our 'C' students are better than 'B' students from elsewhere," Quinn said. "The top half dozen accounting students here will get offers from any firm that interviews them."

More than 70 per cent of William and Mary students who apply have been granted admission into medical school—the best record of any school in Virginia and much higher than the national average, according to recent statistics.

At William and Mary, lasting friendships between professor and student can be traced back at least as far as Thomas Jefferson, who gave one of his teachers the rare gift of immortality when he credited Dr. William Small with fixing his destinies for life.

Today, faculty members from one end of campus to the other maintain bonds of common interest and affection with former students nationwide. The feeling is mutual, and the results often enriching. There is no one way of cementing these bonds: phone calls, letters, words of encouragement and assistance are all examples. Some schools and departments add newsletters describing academic activities of interest to alumni and news of fellow graduates.

At chapter meetings the Society encourages communications between former students and members of the faculty. Addresses are furnished, and a lot of inquiries are answered from both sides.

At chapter meetings the Society encourages alumni to fill in "Faculty-Grams" which are taken back to campus and forwarded to the appropriate department. These are prepared slips, based on Western Union telegram forms.

Students themselves prepare the William and Mary Choir's alumni newsletter, sent once or twice a year to announce fall and spring activities and music the Choir is singing in concert. Dr. Frank Lendrim, director of the Choir, finds this to be a natural outgrowth of participating in a musical ensemble. "Music certainly lends itself to a continued interest in the group and individuals," he says. "It's a closeness you might not get in class."

The William and Mary Historian is the history department's highly successful newsletter, now in its fifth year. Its 2500 copies go to current history concentrators, history graduates and friends of the College. Thomas F. Sheppard, department chairman, says, "We encourage our graduates to keep in contact with us, to let us know what they're doing." Sheppard and other faculty members funnel news they receive from former students to Judith Ewell, associate professor of history and editor of the Historian. In turn, alumni receive alumni and departmental news that includes new courses and teaching techniques, undergraduate and graduate activities, and faculty research and publication. Ewell has found that many alumni feel the value of their education goes beyond a job. "An awful lot of people write in, 'Although I'm not working directly in a history-related field, I still love history, and I'm glad I majored in it,'" she says. This brings up a service that alumni perform, often unknowingly, for current students pondering the choice of a major. "To a 19 or 20-year-old, if you major in history, that means teaching history," Sheppard says. However, history majors have gone on to work after graduation in fields as diverse as the lay ministry, psychiatric medicine, and the marketing division of Proctor and Gamble.

Keeping in Touch

Faculty Communicate in Varied Ways With Alumni in All Walks of Life

The faculty often benefits from alumni points of view. "Our former students are a very important first hand source for us of trends or changes that occur within our profession," says Dr. Vinson H. Sutlive, Jr., chairman of the anthropology department. "We hear from graduates about courses which have been helpful, might be changed or inaugurated."

Dr. Louis E. Catron, professor of theatre and speech, recently sent queries to former playwriting students asking if they'd be interested in a playwright's newsletter. The replies filled 13 legal-size typewritten pages in the first annual "Theatre 317 Newsletter," which included names and addresses so that former classmates could contact each other.

Just the variety of occupations listed defend the value of a liberal arts education. They included a wine-maker, a homesteader, college professors, novelists, an opera singer, and IBM computer specialist Robert Justis '77, who represented the United States in the World Spacemodelling Championships this September with his model of the Saturn V moon rocket.

Donald Paisley '74, a writer in Chapel Hill, N.C., later wrote back to say, "It was reassuring to be reminded of the fact -- so easily forgotten in the self-drama of everyday life -- that I am not ALONE, that others share my hopes and dreams, that some are 'making it' and the rest are still struggling toward the goal."

In their letters, many correspondents passed on perspectives gained since college. Paul Mendez '79, an assistant account executive in Bethesda, Md., wrote: "Last month, some friends and I were sitting around a pool, wearing 120 volt Hawaiian shirts and drinking 120 proof Hawaiian drinks, when the topic of conversation staggered to 'Happiness.' The question: What has been the happiest moment of your life?" Mendez continued, "I was a little amazed to realize that my happiest moment came sitting in Lab Theatre watching a play - my play."

Assessing the newsletter's value to him, Catron comments, "I guess the main thing is a sense of perspective -- I was aware that I tend to see people in class today or maybe next semester. This helped me remember to think of students in long-range senses too."

In the chemistry department, alumni input is carried a step further. For the last ten years, the Chemistry Department Visiting Committee has come to campus every other year for several days, meeting with department faculty members, students and College administrators. Their visit results in a written report to Dr. George R. Healy, vice president for academic affairs and provost, on the state of the department and their recommendations. Appointed on a rotating basis for two meetings each, the six committee members are chosen for their achievements in chemistry-related professions, often academia, industry, medicine and government laboratories. "The visiting committee does a lot for us," says Dr. Melvyn D. Schiavelli, department chairman. "It's the perspective of people who have left here and used their training to become successful."

Committee members lend their support in other ways as well, giving pointers to students, helping the department obtain private monies, and keeping faculty members informed on the current market for chemistry majors.

Both the School of Business and Marshall-Wythe School of Law rely on their alumni for the same kind of strong support, and they get it. "On the alumni side, our graduates are very active, and they have developed their own information network," says Dr. Franklin Robeson, associate dean for graduate studies. "They are very supportive financially, help recruit new students and place our graduating students in jobs." Backing these activities is the MBA Alumni Association, founded in 1976 to promote the advancement of the business school. In addition to a newsletter sent at least twice yearly to MBA alumni, the organization launched a fund drive that contributed specialized texts for the school library and six $1,000 scholarships. The association also encourages the establishment of alumni chapters elsewhere, and they've got good news: "There was a chapter forming in Richmond in October," says James E. Trask (M.B.A. '72), chairman of the alumni association.

Similarly, current students reach out to alumni. "One of the things the Accounting Club includes among its missions is the accounting alumni," says William T. Geary, faculty advisor and assistant professor of business. While alumni have traditionally been invited back to speak to students, for the first time an annual newsletter is going out to graduate and other interested persons.

At the Law School, alumni help with placement is especially important, according to Michael R. Schoenenberger '65, associate dean of placement and alumni relations. His appointment on January 1 marks the first time that Marshall-Wythe has had a person in charge of alumni affairs, and Schoenenberger notes that alumni are coming forward in greater and greater numbers to help. This fall, an employment survey Schoenenberger prepared is going out to the 1700 known alumni. "We're asking them to help with placement nationwide with their firms or employers in their area," he says.

In keeping with their tremendous interest, Dean William B. Spong, Jr., sends a quarterly report to alumni, telling them about activities and curriculum changes at the Law School as well as other items of interest. For law school graduates, there are real professional as well as nostalgic ties to their school. Schoenenberger observes, "In terms of employment for a lawyer, the reputation of his law school and his own achievements are most important."

On the other hand, Dean James M. Yankovich says graduate students come through the School of Education usually on a part-time basis, never achieving the "esprit de corps" nor the whole story, because there is a constant flow of communications going on. "We look upon ourselves as a resource to alumni," says Yankovich, "and alumni are a resource to us because they give us a perspective of our program." Every year, the graduate school does a follow-up study, asking its alumni what changes should be made and what they think are the strengths and weaknesses of the program.

Phone calls and letters flow back and forth between graduates and faculty members for advice on choosing a job, getting a promotion, moving to another part of the country, and answers to instructional personnel or even personal problems.

The need faculty members fill in the School of Education as counselors and listeners is no accident, and in the best William and Mary tradition. "We choose people who are empathetic, people who are approachable," says Yankovich. "If they're not, we don't want them for role models -- we want students to see the kind of healthy individuals we want them to become."

Elderhostel to Expand in Summer '81

Kernodle Organizes Four Different Sessions on Campus for Active Over-Sixty Set Back by popular demand—that's the story of Elderhosteling at William and Mary.

Last year's week-long session was booked up almost as soon as it was announced. This summer there will be four Elderhostel sessions held on campus.

While four "domestic" programs are underway, the campus will simultaneously play host to four "international" Elderhostel groups. SAGA, the British branch of Elderhosteling, which arranges programs for a quarter of a million people each year, will send four groups of British pensioners to Virginia and they will spend part of their time at the College.

Five spaces have been saved for alumni in each Elderhostel program, according to Wayne Kernodle, professor of sociology, who will be director again this year. He will be assisted by David Aday, also a member of the sociology faculty.

Participants must be 60 years of age or older or the spouse of someone 60 or older. Cost of the week-long sessions, including room and board, tuition and some extra-curricular activities, will be between $135 and $140. Those interested in participating should write Elderhostel, 100 Boylston Street, Suite 200, Boston, Mass., 02116 and ask to be put on the mailing list for Elderhostel information and registration forms.

The courses planned for the first Elderhostel session, May 24-30, will include "The Intellectual Scene in 18th Century Williamsburg," by Frank A. MacDonald, professor of philosophy emeritus; "Natural Sciences in the 18th Century," by Hans von Baeyer, professor of physics and director of the Virginia Associated Research Campus; and "Colonial Families," by Kevin Kelly, lecturer in history.

Robert J. Hanny, professor of education, will present a course entitled "American Public Schools: Have They Done the Job?" for the second Elderhostel session, May 31-June 6. Also during that session, Leonard G. Schiffrin, professor of economics, will lecture on "The American Medical Care System," and Norman Fiering, lecturer in history and a member of the staff of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, will lecture on "Religious Diversity in Early America."

"The Poet's Eye: Images of America in Modern Poetry," by J.H. Willis, Jr., professor of English; "Traditional Music, The British Isles and America: The Transference of a Musical Culture," by W. E. White of Colonial Williamsburg; and "Houseplants: Their Growth, Nutrition and Environment," by Martin Mathes, professor of biology, will comprise the course offerings for the third session from June 7-13.

Offerings during the final week, June 14-20, will include the following: "Life in an Isolated Fishing Community: The Guinea Marshes of Chesapeake Bay," by Victor A. Liguori, associate professor of sociology; "Solitude and Isolation in American Literature," by Robert J. Scholnick, professor of English; and "Social Dances of Colonial Times," by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Ticknor of Williamsburg.

Professor-emeritus Frank A. MacDonald will be back again to teach in the Elderhostel at William and Mary this year.

Borman To Receive Medallion

Eastern's High-Flying Former Astronaut Tapped by Business School

Frank Borman, former astronaut and chairman of the board of Eastern Airlines, has been named the 1980 recipient of the Business School Medallion at the College.

In announcing the award, Charles L. Quittmeyer, dean of the School of Business Administration, said that at its September meeting, the business school faculty elected Borman to receive the Medallion, given for "professionalism and integrity in management."

Borman will come to the College to receive the Medallion in February, 1981.

Borman became chief executive officer of Eastern in 1975 and chairman of the board in 1976. At the time he assumed those roles, Eastern had been "for many years one of the more problem-plagued airlines," said Marvin M. Stanley, a member of the faculty nominating committee. "Internally, Borman streamlined a formerly top-heavy management structure. Externally, he stressed improved service to the traveler.

"Originally opposed to airline deregulation, Frank Borman has accepted the changed airline environment and made Eastern highly competitive," Stanley added.

"Several years ago Eastern Airlines turned the corner into profitability and appears quite capable of coping with the higher airline operating cost problems of the 80s."

Borman is best known as commander of the Apollo 8 space flight, the first manned lunar orbital mission in December 1968, and as commander of the Gemini 7 mission. In 1967, he served as a member of the Apollo 204 Fire Investigation

Board and later became the Apollo program resident manager, heading the team that re-engineered the Apollo spacecraft.

Borman is the fifth business leader to receive the Business School Medallion from the College.

In 1976, the award was initiated with Thomas J. Watson, Jr., former Chairman of IBM Corporation, receiving the first Medallion. Other winners include Floyd D. Gottwald and Floyd D. Gottwald, Jr., both of Richmond's Ethyl Corporation and co-recipients of the award; Thomas C. Boushall, founder of the Bank of Virginia, and Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of the board of directors and chief executive officer of General Motors.

Hall of Fame Taps Six

Henning, Hornsby, Mann, Luzins, Light and Applebee Set for Induction Dec. 6

Four men and two women, including a 107-year-old non-alumna who founded the sport of field hockey in the United States, have been tapped for the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame.

The six are Dan Henning '64, quarterback coach for the Miami Dolphins; Robert S. Hornsby '41, '49 BCL, a former football and golf star at William and Mary; Peggy L. Mann '41, who participated in field hockey, basketball, tennis, and lacrosse at William and Mary; Juris Luzins '70, a former AAU national track champion; Harry Light '30, a football and basketball standout, and Constance M. K. Applebee, who introduced field hockey in the United States at Harvard in 1901.

Henning, who played quarterback for William and Mary for three years, set several single season passing records during the 1963 campaign including the most passes attempted (182), most passes completed (100), and most passing yardage (1,333). Although those marks have been broken, he still holds the record for the longest pass competition of 87 yards against Navy in 1961. Henning played professionally for the Norfolk Neptunes, the Oakland Raiders and the San Diego Chargers before entering the collegiate coaching ranks in 1968 as an assistant at Florida State. He coached professional football with the Houston Oilers in 1973, but returned to college coaching at Virginia Tech and Florida State before going into the professional ranks again with the New York Jets (1976-78) and the Dolphins.

Hornsby, a past president of the Society of the Alumni (1960-62) and now a member of the Board of Visitors, played football and was captain of the 1941 golf team, as well as president of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and the IFC at William and Mary. A Williamsburg real estate developer, he is a 1970 recipient of the Alumni Medallion, has served on the President's Council with his wife and is associated with Campus Ministries United. He has been active in his support of the College and its athletic program for many years.

Mrs. Mann, who received her M.A. from Columbia University, played on the William and Mary varsity field hockey team from 1937 to 1941 and served as captain of the 1940 Southeast Field Hockey team. She played on the basketball and tennis teams and started the women's lacrosse team at William and Mary. Since 1963, she has served as the women's tennis coach at State University of New York at Albany.

Luzins, who is presently an architect in Gainesville, Fla., was ranked as the nation's top half miler in 1969 and 1971. He set William and Mary records in the 800 meters (1969) and the indoor 1,000 yard run (1969). In 1970, he was the AAU indoor 1,000-yard champion and the outdoor 800 title holder. He ran for the United States track team in Europe and the Soviet Union in 1969 and set the American 1,000 yard indoor record in 1969. A Marine Corps veteran, Luzins ran track professionally before entering the field of architecture.

Light, a resident of Garrison, N.Y., led the basketball team to a state championship at William and Mary in 1927-28. He won all-state honorable mention at guard in 1930 and was considered one of the top defensive players in the state. A member of the Order of the White Jacket, Light has been active with the Society of the Alumni. He coached football for four years at Rutgers before entering the textile industry.

He is president and chief executive officer of Crestwood Fabrics, Inc.

Miss Applebee, a resident of Hampshire, England, introduced the game of field hockey at Harvard and later at Vassar, Bryn Mawr, Wellesley, Smith, Mount Holyoke and Radcliffe. She founded the United States Field Hockey Association in 1922 and the Mt. Pocono field hockey camp in 1923 where she met the late Martha Elizabeth Barksdale

'21, with whom she subsequently helped coach field hockey at William and Mary. She spent considerable time in Williamsburg during World War II. She received the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Award of Merit this year.

Official induction of the new Hall of Famers will take place Dec. 6 at halftime of the William and Mary-University of Virginia game in William and Mary Hall.

'Guarded' Optimism

Parkhill Prepares for Tough Schedule With a Solid, Excited Team

"I really think we can be very good this year. If we can stay healthy and the seniors provide the leadership we need it could be quite a season" . . . Bruce Parkhill, Head Coach.

Head Coach Bruce Parkhill and his staff have molded what could be, just might be, one of the best William and Mary basketball teams in years.

It will have to be to meet the challenges of an unbelievable schedule which features home engagements with Virginia, North Carolina, Virginia Tech, South Carolina, VCU and Old Dominion.

One very important ingredient in the success formula for 1980-81 is the leadership of the Tribe's experienced senior foursome of Scott Whitley, Guy Courage, Tim Wagner and Rich Veres.

"Wit" has been the team's Offensive Player of the Year the last two seasons. A hard nosed competitor, Whitley looks to get off to a better start than in seasons past.

"I've gotten off to real slow starts but this year I'm going to relax a little more at the outset and hopefully I can avoid that opening season slump," says Whitley.

"Scott may have brought too much pressure on himself to be the leader the last two years," says Parkhill. "This season he has teammates to share in that role."

The Indians, 12-15 last year without a senior on the roster, anticipate a turnaround of several close losses, because of the experience factor.

"I think we can have a super year," says Florida product Guy Courage. "Leadership and experience are so frequently mentioned but rarely understood or appreciated. I know I feel a bit different being a senior. I sense more responsibility and I guess that's the key. If we seniors can handle it, which I'm certain we can, then that 'big season' could be here!"

Tim Wagner, like Courage and Whitley, embarks on his fourth letter winning campaign.

A frequent starter throughout his career, the Scranton, Pa., native looks forward to the challenge.

"I can't wait. It is a matter of pride as much as anything," says Wagner. "We have the opportunity to play against many of the very best teams in the nation this year. If we do what we've been coached to do, if we handle the pressure, then we can beat those people. Not just be competitive."

Rich Veres nods in agreement.

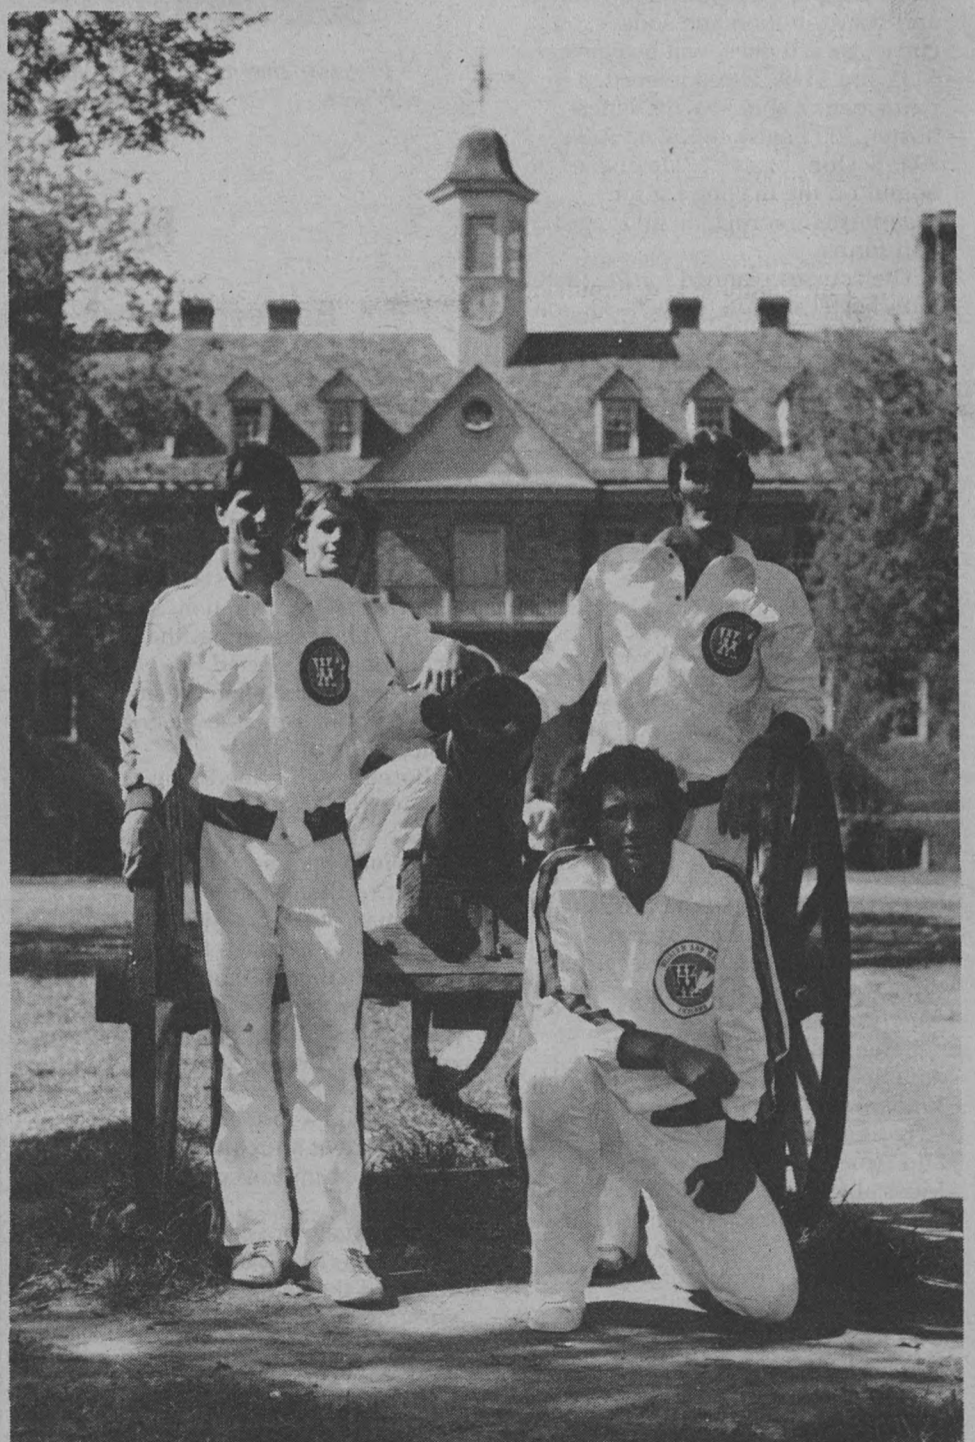

"The seniors are the ones who are supposed to respond to that pressure. Overcome it. I have every confidence we will," says Veres.

The lightning quick guard from Akron, Ohio, describes this year's squad as "a close knit group which has improved in every phase of the game."

"The coaches stress positive thinking. This year we really have it and every player is committed to doing what he has to, for the team to attain success," said Veres.

-- Bob Sheeran '67

Four seniors, three of whom begin their fourth year with the Tribe, will lead the Indians into one of the toughest basketball schedules in recent years. From left to right are Rich Veres, who joined the Tribe last season as a transfer; Matt Courage, Tim Wagner and Scott Whitley (kneeling). Included in the 1980-81 schedule are games with the University of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia Tech and Old Dominion.

Seniors Lead Tribe Women into Battle

Norenberg, Scott, Edwards Hope To Help Indians Regain State Title

"It takes a little more to make a champion" is a motto that hangs on the wall in senior basketball co-captain Lynn Norenberg's room. It is a saying that she and her roommates, co-captain Nancy Scott and Liz Edwards, are taking seriously entering the 1980-81 season.

Best of friends both on and off the court, the trio provide seasoned leadership to this year's squad, having started together each year at William and Mary. "We all want to be winners at whatever we do," says Scott. "The three of us know what motivation we each have and where our priorities lie."

Basketball ranks near the top for the seniors who are hoping to regain the state title this year. The three have not forgotten last year's disappointing season and third place finish at the state championship after losing in the semi-finals by one point.

"We were very disappointed last year," states Norenberg. "We were plagued by injuries and never really got off the ground. Mentally we were on a downer."

However, she is quick to add that, "This year should be our best year. When you have experience playing with people, you know about them and how they are going to move."

The team's attitude is determined, the experience and depth are there and it is now or never for the seniors. "The attitude of the team as a whole is positive. Everyone is trying to help each other," says Edwards. "We want it to be a good year. This is our last try and we are all working a little harder."

Scott agrees that this year should be the one. "We have more confidence and a total team commitment this season. Last year was a settling experience . . . now we can play some basketball!"

Norenberg is probably the best known of the three four-year starters. She averaged 20.3 points-per-game last year, has 1,235 career points, and has been an All-State selection for three seasons. The physical education major holds a 3.96 g.p.a. as a member of Phi Beta Kappa, was homecoming queen this year, and was named an Academic All-American last year.

The season might have started on a better note for Norenberg who broke her left clavicle (collarbone) in a freak accident during a pre-season scrimmage and will be sidelined until January. (Especially since she sat on the bench nine games last year with a knee injury.)

"I look at it (the injury) as I have 'x' amount of games left to play and now I've had 'y' amount taken away," she says. "I just want to get back on the court and play."

Coach Barbara Wetters says Norenberg is the Tribe's strongest offensive threat. "She is highly respected in the state and other teams key in on her. Everyone is upset that Lynn is hurt, but we can go on because we are a total team."

Scott will be one player whose leadership should power the squad on defense. "Nancy is the quickest and most naturally talented individual on the team," says Wetters.

Seniors (left to right) Liz Edwards, Lynn Norenberg, and Nancy Scott will lead the women's basketball team into action this year. Lynn, one of the top offensive players in William and Mary history, suffered a shoulder injury, but will be back in action in January.

"She is our strongest defensive player and has set a personal goal of being the best defensive player in the conference."

At 5-5 Scott scored 9.3 p.p.g. last season and led the team in assists at 61. She was the 1978 Virginia State Champion in the 100 and 200 yard dashes and her school records still stand. A physical education major, Scott also works in the training room as a student trainer.

A government major, Edwards is the softest spoken of the three. After playing underneath the basket last year where she scored 6.5 p.p.g. and grabbed 6.9 rebounds, Edwards will move out to a wing-forward position.

"Liz is going to be tough this year. She has worked hard," says roommate Norenberg. Wetters agrees, stating that "Liz is looking better and has a good attitude. She is quick and powerful at 5-10 and I'm looking for her to use that speed in her forward position this year."

Depth will play a crucial role providing the team can stay healthy this season. "We've been working really hard to increase the pace of our game so that one person can go all-out on the floor because we have a full bench that can replace them," says Wetters.

At center, junior Betty Strock is "looking really good" this year, says Wetters. The 6-0 player scored 7.9 p.p.g. last year while leading in rebounds with 9.5. She is being challenged by freshman Betsy Becker who at 6-2 scored 10 p.p.g. and averaged 10.7 rebounds at Reno High School in Reno, Nevada. Senior Kris Huntley (5-11) has worked hard over the summer and will also see action at center this season.

At forward, Wetters has welcomed back junior Janet McGee who took a year off from school. Her sophomore year McGee (5-11) scored 7.8 p.p.g. and is a "thinker" who has improved considerably, according to her coach. Sophomore Loree Connolly (5-11) saw a lot of playing time last year and scored 6.2 p.p.g. while gathering 5.6 rebounds.

Sophomores Leila Byron (5-10) and Cheryl Yarbrough (5-10) will both be playing for the first time after suffering knee injuries last year. Byron will contribute outside shooting power at forward while Yarbrough will be an aggressive performer at guard.

Junior Karen Johnson (5-6) is an experienced guard while freshman Sandy DeSilvio (5-9) has been playing well. Newcomers Janet Hanrahan and Vicki Lutz have been injured in pre-season but should come back to play.

All three seniors agree that the closeness of the team has been one of the most rewarding aspects of playing basketball. "Whether we win or lose we still have a good time," says Norenberg. But don't mistake the players' seriousness. "We have all the ingredients to have a really successful season this year," continues Norenberg. "Whether we do is going to be up to us."

Editor's Notebook

Since we first began writing for the Alumni Gazette some 15 years ago, there have been some remarkable changes at William and Mary.

It is a noticeably larger place. There are perhaps a third more students and faculty, and a larger supporting staff. The new campus, which was only started by the mid-1960s, is now just about complete. It includes a facility capable of seating 11,000 people, which is on a scale not even dreamed of in 1965. There are two satellite campuses in Williamsburg—one for the law school and one adjacent to Eastern State Hospital. There is a graduate campus in Newport News, and the two campuses housing the School of Marine Science. There is Ash Lawn, in Albemarle County.

William and Mary is a real university, in fact if not in name. Its ratio of graduate students to undergraduates exceeds that of every other institution in Virginia except the University of Virginia.

The College is also one of America's few high quality public colleges or universities. Its age and traditions have long been recognized, but it has been only in the last few years that it has been earning distinction among its contemporaries for the calibre of its students, its faculty and its programs. In many regards, William and Mary ranks with some of the finest private universities.

With growth, and with increased demands for public accountability, the College has also grown somewhat more complex. Decisions, once the domain of those "in charge," are now made after extensive involvement of those who will need to live with them.

Despite this metamorphosis, there are those who work very hard to emphasize that William and Mary is still a small, humane, very personal place.

That approach is widespread, if not universal, throughout the faculties, particularly those who work primarily with undergraduates.

Though its membership has almost doubled in the last 15 years, and will soon exceed 36,000, the Society of the Alumni, through the Alumni House and its various programs, also works on a very personal, individual basis with those who keep William and Mary in their minds and hearts.

The President of the College, whose time is divided among so many individuals, groups, committees, boards, agencies and organizations involved with the College, has over the years given a special priority to emphasizing the smallness of William and Mary.

Every fall, parents and incoming freshmen are startled to see the President in the residence halls, offering to carry luggage and rearrange furniture—thus making it clear, to them, that he is not only available when needed but, after all, that he is in some ways another hired hand whose job is to make William and Mary an attractive environment for living and learning.

At least one hour each week, the President sets aside an "open house" in his office for students. Advertised in the campus media, this hour is for anyone to talk with the President about any subject, without appointment. The rest of his calendar is open to students upon appointment, as well. Questions of college policy, personal problems, and suggestions or ideas are all open topics for students in meeting with the President.

Once a month, he meets with the President's Aides, serving up fresh popcorn, soft drinks and beer in the basement of the President's House. The Aides, an informal group of student leaders begun in the late 1930s, provide a sounding board and the students themselves usually develop the agenda for these relaxed sessions.

After each meeting with the Aides, the President will distribute notes and comments to administrators and faculty whose programs were discussed.

Often the topics deal with the mechanics and politics of student government and interface with the Board of Visitors.

But the Aides have also received top-level attention for a need for longer hours at the Library, and more places outside residence halls to study at night and on weekends. They get attention for their ideas on ways to improve dissemination of administrative decisions on the campus. They have over the years provided an early warning mechanism for potential sources of controversy before it is too late for the College to react.

Though the College has changed significantly in 15 years, there are those working to keep the earlier William and Mary experience alive and unchanging.

A Huge Pool of Talent

That's What Drew Richard Palmer Back To Virginia

Richard Palmer understands the value of both the written and the spoken word. He also appreciates the exhilaration of theatrical production. And he is hungry for the diversity and dynamism of a human approach to theatre. So, after a lifelong circuit from his birthplace in Richmond, across the United States, and into the life of university theatre, Palmer has returned to Virginia and a place on the faculty of the College of William and Mary.

Palmer is the new artistic director of the William and Mary Theatre, and he brings a varied background of journalism, literature and theatre to his new position.

The special problems of university theatre are familiar to Palmer. He comes to William and Mary after teaching drama and English at Washington University in St. Louis for 16 years, 10 of which he spent chairing the university's performing arts department.

Prior to coming to St. Louis, Palmer had worked as a feature writer for a Chattanooga newspaper, received an undergraduate degree in English from Princeton University, and studied both theatre and English at the University of Iowa while earning a doctorate in theatre.

Throughout all his experiences and travels, Palmer always felt a pull to Virginia. "From my childhood on, I had always heard of William and Mary and the University of Virginia," Palmer said, "and I had some expectations that I'd end up at one of the two."

His attraction to William and Mary stemmed from the College's dedication to liberal arts. "My sense is that William and Mary is strongly committed to the concept of a liberal arts college," Palmer said. "This is perhaps one of the few truly liberal arts colleges left."

When he came to William and Mary this year from Washington University, Palmer found that his expectations of the College were justified. "The faculty members here bridge fields and have multiple interests which are not confined to their profession," he said. "The students have the same kind of versatility, and I like that."

"This is an age of specialization, but in terms of my own lifestyle, I like pulling things together rather than pushing them into infinite detail," he said.

Palmer considers the theatre to be an ideal environment for this pulling together and concentration of effort. "Theatre is a collective art form," he said. "You have to work with others. Where theatre is working at its best, you have the sense of magnification of effort, of everyone stroking at once. It's a kind of high, an exhilarating experience."

Palmer considers theatre in a college environment an integral part of the educational experience. "With many students, the work they do in theatre is a nice balance to the other work and activity they experience at college," he said. "So much of their work is centered around absorption and taking in. Theatre lets them go the other direction, to create, lay something out, generate something of their own. It's a releasing kind of experience."

"Theatre in general, and acting in particular, is a lousy profession," Palmer continued. "There are very few opportunities to make a living. It's almost immoral to train students professionally for such a limited and harsh field. Here, we are interested in a human approach to theatre as part of a larger total experience for students."

"Many of them find something is unlocked, some well is tapped," said Palmer. "Most of these students will go into another profession and perhaps continue in drama by taking part in local theatres."

As the William and Mary Theatre's artistic director, Palmer's role is one of coordination. He works to develop strong relations between the College and the community, and to coordinate the efforts of faculty and students.

"My intent is to plug into what I sense is the strong tradition of the William and Mary Theatre," Palmer said. "I am looking for synthesis and integration of the theatre effort here. There is a tremendous amount of potential at William and Mary in terms of faculty, students and facilities."

Palmer cites the College's studio theatre as an example of this potential. "The studio theatre is an avant-garde, experimental, kind of off-PBK theatre," he said. "An example of this experimentation is Bruce McConachie's decision to use an all-female cast for this fall's production of 'Waiting for Godot'."

Palmer was the lighting director for the William and Mary Theatre's production of "Company."

"I was tremendously impressed by the devotion of the students and faculty to this play," he said. "Everyone rolled up their sleeves and pushed. The kids worked four to six hours a day, seven days a week--on top of their normal school demands."

His work with "Company" gave Palmer an opportunity to do some talent scouting for next semester's production of "Oedipus Rex," which he will direct. "There is a huge pool of talented young people here," he said. "It's encouraging in terms of the present, and in terms of future productions."

Inside Admissions

New Dean Says Give Us A Call!

(With this issue, G. Gary Ripple, William and Mary's new Dean of Undergraduate Admissions, begins a column that will run periodically in the Alumni Gazette.)

by G. Gary Ripple
Dean of Undergraduate Admissions

This is my first attempt at what we are hoping to make a regular feature of the Alumni Gazette. In future issues, we will use this forum to express our views about admissions matters at William and Mary as they relate to the special concerns of alumni and their sons and daughters. I am hoping to receive comments, suggestions, and questions from alumni as a basis for determining the topics most important to include in future efforts.

William and Mary attempts to serve many publics. We are first and foremost a service to the citizens of our great Commonwealth and must keep the educational needs of Virginia students uppermost in mind. We are also thought of as a family school serving the continuing educational needs of a most loyal and supportive alumni body.

In the weeks to come, I will be continuing my review of our current policies and procedures, and working very closely with our Faculty Admissions Policy Committee here on campus to take a fresh look at the way we go about the difficult and often frustrating task of selection. Our goal will be to clearly understand the guiding principles laid down by our Board of Visitors, administration and faculty, and to articulate those tenets to the students and families they affect.

It might be appropriate at this time to remind alumni parents that our office does serve as a source of continuing education and guidance for students who are planning to attend college and for those who are considering William and Mary as a possible college choice. As our time permits, the members of our staff will make themselves available to provide personal counseling sessions which can supplement the guidance services available in their local schools. We also plan to provide special seminars at homecoming and reunion time when alumni are returning to campus and find it most convenient to include sons and daughters in the touring party.

Since joining the William and Mary family, I have been continually impressed by the extremely high regard in which we are held by the world at large. Much of this respect, I am absolutely certain, comes from the living examples of the William and Mary philosophy people observe in the words and deeds of our alumni. You are our greatest source of new interest in the College each year, and your special concerns will always be a high priority for me and the members of my staff.

A Special Christmas Greeting

(Faculty and staff at William and Mary gathered in the Great Hall of the Wren Building in December of 1948 to listen to Professor James W. Miller, chairman of the Department of Philosophy, read this Christmas season tribute to them. Now retired in Williamsburg, Professor Miller, who served as Dean of the Faculty for eight years, believes that every member of the 1948 faculty is named in the poem, the form for which he borrowed from the Christmas poetry Frank Sullivan used to write in the New Yorker at Christmas. Miller says he is no poet, but rather "just a jingler," and he gives credit to his wife for writing four lines of the poem.)

SANTA TO THE WILLIAM AND MARY FACULTY, DECEMBER 18, 1948
(with apologies to Frank Sullivan)

Greetings to the Faculty
Gathered round the Christmas tree!

To Andy Haigh and Doug Adair,
To Pappy Gooch and Pappy Fehr,

To Edgar Foltin and to Lore,
A. G. Taylor, Roy P. Ash,
Vernon Nunn who guards the cash,
Robert Land who guards the books
Jimmy Fowler, Richard Brooks,
Wilfred Lambert, Thomas Thorne:
A happy, happy Christmas morn!
To John C. Brunner, and John C. Bright:
A happy, happy Christmas night!

McCary, McCurdy, McCully, McCray:
A happy, happy Christmas day!
(The same to Alfred Vandeweghe.)

More peace than ever blessed the Balkans
To Haughwout, Carpenter, and Calkins;
Peace to you from all your moppets,
Winsome Marguerite Wynne-Roberts.
And likewise a full measure of peace
To J. T. Baldwin and Bernice Speese.
Now both be merry as a dolphin,
Dr. Swem and Margaret Galphin.
Good cheer, Charuhas; Pitz, goodwill;
Good health to Hazel Turbeville.
And joy to you this festive hour
Sands and Rossback, Page and Power.

Cleeton, Cormack, Cogar, Clark;
May your vacation be a lark!
Marshall, Morton, Mooney, Morfit:
May the new year bring you profit!
You Iturraldes, Max and Vic,
From Santa's pack just take your pick.
To Sydney Rome and Beatrice,
A very jolly Christmas kiss.

May holiday surprises happen
To J. D. Carter, Lester Cappon;
And hearts' desire in every box
That comes to Davis, Pate, and Cox.

Deck the hall with boughs of cedar
For Sinclair, Saunders, Barksdale, Reeder;
Southern smilax, long-leaf pine
For Armstrong, Sutker, Adolstein.
Bring in holly and poinsettia

For Stetson, Southworth and Sancetta;
Mistletoe, American beauty
For Roseberg, Reboussin, and Schuette.

On the hearth a bright spark kindle
For Barney Wilson and Brooke Hindle!
Now come gather round the fire,
Macy, Marsh, and John McGuire --
And let the Yule-log be lit higher
For Phalen, Phelps and Charles Quittmeyer.
Bring the bowl of Wassail in
For James R. Bush and Fisher Blinn.

Fill the bowl up, fill the bowl,
And drink to Captain Ledyard Towle,
To both the Stewarts, Alan and Jean,
To Dr. Pomfret and the Dean.
Drink in sherry, Scotch and Bock
To Sherman, Scammon, Hunt and Haak
And yet another bumper toss
For Robert Smith and Warner Moss.
Lift the curacao and kirsh
To Foorster, L'Hommedisu, Curtis, Hirsh.
A toast to Travis Summersgill,
To Verba Wood, Virginia Till,
And drink to the great Guy named Bill.

Mighty cheers and praise undyin'
For George J. Oliver, George J. Ryan.
Let Christmas bells ring forth their tones
For Grace J. Blank and Melville Jones.
Let nothing the enjoyment hinder
Of Mrs. Bixby and Mrs. Winder.
Fill the bowl up to the brim
For Miller Phil and Miller Jim.
Ring the bell and beat the gong
For Charlie Duke and William Spong.

Greetings in a ringing tone
Howard Dearstyne, Howard Stone,
And raise a Merry Christmas yodel
For Korpi, Kocher, and Kernodle.
Slaughter turkeys, slaughter heifers
For Johnnie Hocutt, Katherine Jeffers,
Jess H. Jackson, Fraser Neiman, --
But now I fear we tire of Rhymin'.
And so to all the rest we say
A very merry Christmas day!

For all of you and all your spouses
May Christmas spirit fill your houses!

25 What a perfectly delightful Fifty-fifth Reunion we experienced on October 3!!! Our only regret was that all of you could not be present for it truly was a great occasion - one which is now a most cherished memory.

Art and Mary Winder, as you know, were our hosts. On behalf of our Class, and personally as well, it is my privilege and pleasure to thank them for a delightful time. Not one stone was left unturned. The luncheon was delicious and the "refreshments" were a good starter for reminiscing. Our hosts went the "other mile" as always, and upon learning October 13 was my birthday honored me with a true surprise. Suddenly from "out of no where into the here" was a perfectly beautiful birthday cake (and candles) with "Happy Birthday, Helen." It simply took my breath and brought the tears. Red Campbell, who I always thought could keep a secret, announced it was my birthday. At the cutting of the cake my classmates sang "Happy Birthday." Can you imagine any nicer way to celebrate one's 77th birthday than with classmates celebrating our 55th Reunion! I'd like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation of their thoughtfulness for it was a lovely gesture and one which I shall always remember.

Now I shall let you in on another little secret. Red celebrated his 80th birthday on October 23rd, and where do you suppose he observed it? He and Dot were in Hawaii for two weeks. I received a card from them bearing this wording - "Greetings from Hawaii. We arrived on the 20th for a two-week fun-time to celebrate Jim's 80th birthday and to fulfill a promise made two years ago. Having a great time. Going on cruise tour of Pearl Harbor tomorrow and on the 28th will fly to Island of Hawaii. Will get back to Mainland on November 3 and spend the rest of the winter in Dade City, Fla."

Dot wrote a little earlier that they had a reunion of their family last July at their son Jack's home on Lake Murray, S.C. Their four children and their spouses, six of the eleven grandchildren and the latest great-grandson, making four generations, were present.

Congratulations on being so blest.

I am indeed grateful to Art for sending the roster of those who have contributed to our Class '25 Memorial Fund through October

18, 1980. They are as follows: Jeanette Beazley Yates, Marion Taylor Bedwell, Virginia Blalock Sale, Samuel F. Burke, Robert D. Calkins, Jr., James Campbell, Virginia Chapman Lindamood, Fred Clifton, Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse, T. F. Daly, Miss M. L. Dixon, A. Foster Everett, Mary Finegan Liverman, John Curtis Fuller, Elizabeth Gaines Ott, Suzanne Garrett Montague, Mary Gilliam Hughes, William H. Gravely, Jr., Alice Clay Hall, Ann Hudson Milteer, Edward N. Istin, Charles D. Jordan, Elizabeth Kent Lazo, C. A. Lindsay, Jr., Jesse Little Smith, G. Gunther Mercer, Thersa Moon Glenn, Norman H. Neblett, Vernon L. Nunn, C. B. Oliver, Charles P. Pollard, Mary M. Parsons, the Reverend W. J. Reed, Elizabeth Robinson Cowne, Anita Rucker Cottrell, John Randolph St. George, Frances Sanders Ennis, J. D. Sanders, M. R. Sanders, W. A. Sanders, Lawrence W. Sherritt, C. J. Shook, Reuben F. Simms, James W. Somerville, Helen Smith White, J. Swanson Smith, Harmon J. Swink, James W. Somerville, Helen Smith White, J. Swanson Smith, Harmon J. Swink, Mary Nash Tatem Goodwin, Lucy A. Taylor, George W. Todd, Sr., Henry L. Townsend, Mrs. L. W. Turpin, Mildred Vaiden Aird, Muriel Valentine Yale, Rose R. Vipond, William J. Vita, Elizabeth M. Walmsley, Miss S. D. Whitbeck, Dorothy Wilkinson Campbell, Henry I. Willett, Arthur J. Winder.

It was with pride that we presented Dr. Graves, who was our guest of honor, a check for $12,000 and which now makes it possible to give "financial aid" from the interest to a worthy student.

It was so good to have some members of our class at this reunion for the first time. Do plan to continue to join us next year for our Fifty-sixth! As many of you know, we were inducted into the "Olde Guard"; however, that does not signify that we will lose our identity - It's true we will all have luncheon together, but the Class of '25 has requested that we will all be seated together. It is in the planning that we will have a social hour together prior to the luncheon and thus have

Traveling With 'Sweeney Todd'

Sinfonicron Graduate Lands 'Meaty' Role in Road-Show Version of Broadway Smash

The Sinfonicron Opera Company is getting ready to present "The Mikado" at William and Mary, which brings to mind the spirited contribution of Calvin Remsberg '72 who was perhaps the best "Pooh Bah" the opera company will ever have.

But Remsberg will not be available for an encore performance—he is starring elsewhere. Remsberg is at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts with such stage luminaries as Angela Lansbury and George Hearn in the musical thriller "Sweeney Todd, the Demon Barber of Fleet Street," with music and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim.

Remsberg is a member of the national touring company of "Sweeney Todd," which includes most of the original Broadway cast. The play closed in Washington Nov. 29 and opened at the Schubert Theatre in Philadelphia Dec. 3. It will continue through January 3. January 6 the play opens at the Metropolitan Center theatre in Boston and runs through January 31. From February 4 through March 7, the play will be at the Arie Crown Theatre in Chicago and from March 10 through June 6 in San Francisco at the Golden Gate Theatre. It opens at the Pantages Theatre in Hollywood on June 9 where it will play tentatively until Nov. 29.

Bookings, said Remsberg, are coming in for next year already, but his cast is only under contract for one year so he is not certain of what lies ahead.

Ideally, he'd like to do another Sondheim musical. But for now, he has a bottle of champagne from leading lady Angela Lansbury on his dressing table—an opening night gift—and the future looks bright indeed.

And how did it all happen?

"It is quite a tale," says Remsberg. "And I guess the best part is that it's true!"

"I had dinner with Glenn Close

'74 and Len Carion in New York in late December," he recalls. "We discussed 'Sweeney Todd,' then playing on Broadway with Mr. Carion in the lead. I mentioned how I would like to audition but couldn't get through to Joanna Merlin, the casting director. They said they would arrange an audition, and lo and behold, I went to New York to sing for Ms. Merlin, Paul Germiniani, the musical director, and the producers in late April. I was asked to return in late May to do a final audition for Harold Prince, the director, and I got the part."

Remsberg plays the part of Beadle Bamford who is the "enforcer" of Judge Turpin's decrees. He has a solo in Act One, "Ladies in Their Sensitivities."

But "Sweeney Todd," although a big break for Remsberg, is not a case of overnight stardom. Since he left Williamsburg, Remsberg has been building an impressive list of theatrical credits.

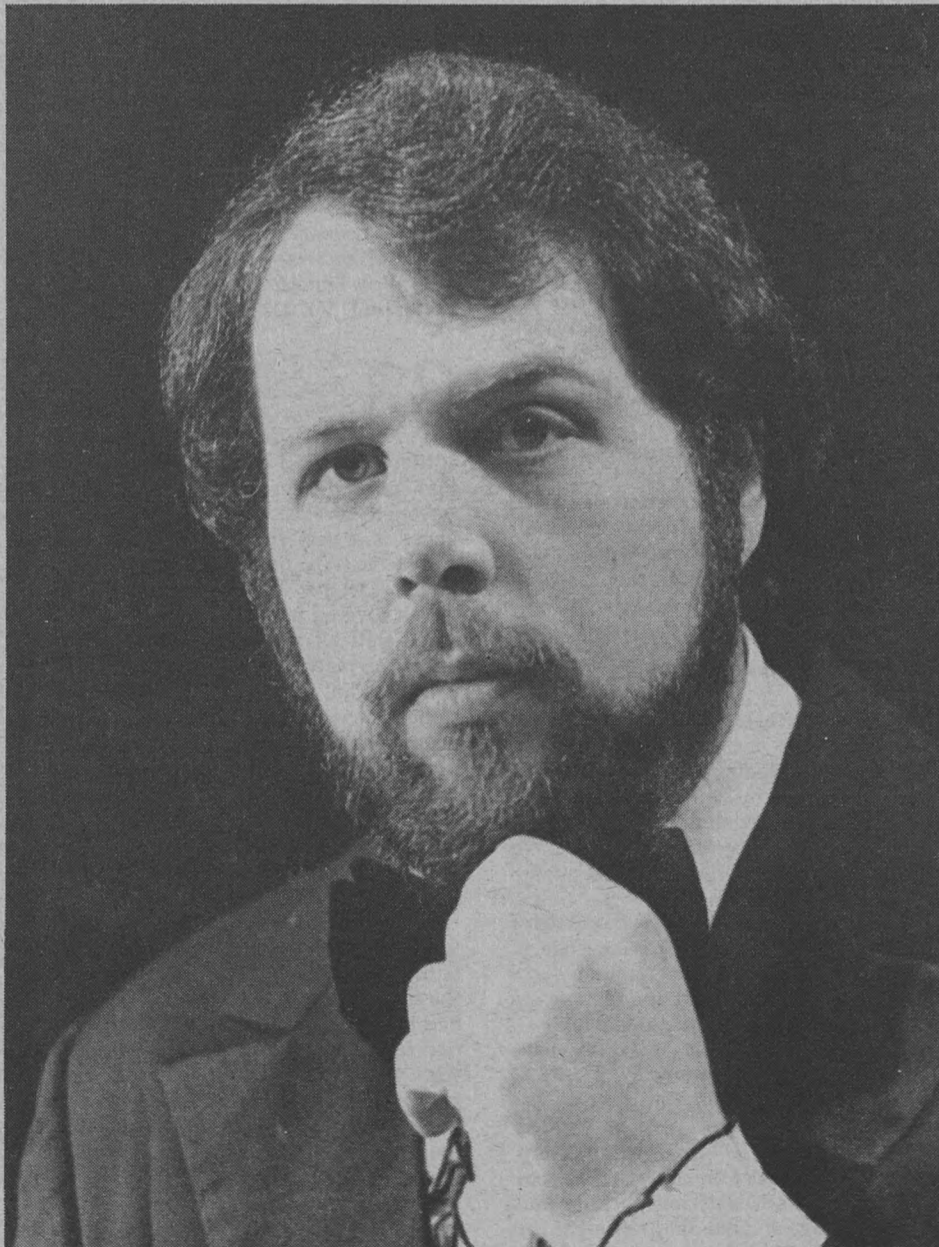

Just before joining the cast of "Sweeney," he was playing the part of the magistrate in the Washington Opera's "Un Ballo in Maschera" at the Opera House. He has performed in three operas with Beverly Sills at Wolf Trap and was Kaspar in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" in a special performance at the White House in December, 1977, for President and Mrs. Carter.

He has appeared with the New York City and the Boston Operas and has also sung for the New York City Ballet and the Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre. In addition he was a founding artist of the Kennedy Center Summer Opera.

As a director, Remsberg has staged productions of "A Delicate Balance," "Blithe Spirit," "A Clearing in the Woods," and "The Medium."

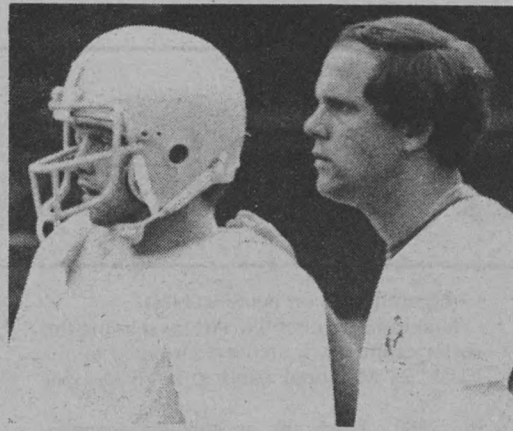

A member of Actors' Equity and the American Guild of Musical Artists, Remsberg has made concert appearances with the Frederick Wilkerson Chorale under Roberta Flack.

Remsberg says he enjoys the visits he has had with alumni who come back-stage after a performance and is looking forward to more such reunions as "Sweeney Todd" and company begin a national tour, with the flattering accolades of Washington critics ringing in their ears. The show, one critic said, was even better than the New York production.

GARRITY SETS THREE TRIBE PASSING RECORDS

Despite a 2-9 season record, William and Mary football fans this year had several things to cheer about, including a stunning victory over Rutgers and a record-setting season by quarterback Chris Garrity. Garrity, a junior, fit perfectly into Coach Jimmy Laycock's pass-oriented offense, breaking the 1966 single season records of most passes attempted (315) and most passes completed (148) of Dan Darragh '68 and the 1971 single season record held by Steve Regan '72 for most passing yardage (1654). Garrity will be back next year to try and improve on those records.

our 56th Class Reunion. So start planning now.

Caroline Sinclair wrote, "The luncheon was indeed a highlight of the year," and she expressed appreciation. She enclosed a clipping of the death of Ellen Sterling Selden, who entered with the Class of '25, but was at the College only one year. She is survived by two children and seven grandchildren. She died on October 3. To the family of Ellen we, the Class of 1925, extend our deepest sympathy.

A note from Jim Somerville recalls several good friends - "Stirling King, a fine fellow - We are in SAE. Russell Stuart and I had good times together. We were in The Fairfax Hunt Club. About his derby hat in your column, I wore one in my early days in D.C., also spats and donned a high silk hat for the formals. Today I "wear" a cane in D.C. (District of Cuckoos) for protection. Please thank Arthur and Mary for hosting the Class. Wish I could be there." It was good hearing from you, Pen Pal. Sorry out could not be with us. Maybe next year!

Back again to our luncheon - Those present including Gordon Vliet and John Phillips were Dot and Red Campbell, Vernon and Elizabeth Nunn, Alton and Mary Lindsay, Fanny and Bill Marks, Mary Gilliam Hughes and daughter, Florence Parr, William and Elizabeth Gravely, Elizabeth and William Cowne, Swanson and Jessie Smith, Ann Terrell Garrett, '40, Elizabeth Wright, '81 (Vice President - Senior Class), Jack Garrett, '40 (President Alumni Society), Jeanette Beazley Yates, Caroline B. Sinclair, Virginia Chapman Lindamood, Elizabeth M. Walmsley, the Reverend W. Josselyn, '22, Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse, Reuben and Grace Simms, John and Louise St. George, Tony Everett, Frances Sanders Ennis, John (Pap) and Nan Fuller, Ed Islin, Marion and Laura Bedwell, Marjorie Buell Shook and Carrie Cole Lane Geddy, Helen and Stuart White. We missed those who could not be with us and sincerely hope your sister is better, Suzanne. It never seems right with Suzanne and Monty not present.

Vernon Nunn, as a trustee emeritus, attended the Endowment Association of the College meeting in Williamsburg on October 10, held at the new Marshall-Wythe School of Law building.

A Merry, Merry Christmas; a New Year filled with Health, Prosperity and Joy - and may God continue to Bless you with His Love - These are our wishes for you and yours. Our love, Helen and Stuart.

27 Another Homecoming has come and gone and 174 of you good classmates out there missed out again on what has become a wonderful weekend of fellowship and reminiscing. That figure is correct: there are still 184 of us on the Alumni Society roll out of 400 plus who enrolled that September day in 1923.

In going over the card file, I find you scattered from coast to coast and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, so it's no wonder many never seem to return.

The campus grows lovelier year by year as the "New Campus" takes on a bit of age to compete with the "Original" campus of our student days.

Registering in the big tent on Alumni House lawn were Dr. Lee Todd, C. M. "Spike" Smith, Fairfax Griffith Bahr, R.E.B. "Buzzy" Stewart, Fairfax Berkeley, Eleanor Calkins, Curtis Jenkins, Mary Hess Rowe and Eulah Massey besides yours truly. There may have been others present who neglected to register.

Wilfred "Cy" Lambert, who had attended every Homecoming since its inception and was Homecoming parade marshal on numerous occasions, missed this one, being in the hospital in Richmond. I know you all wish him full and speedy recovery. Countless alumni to whom he was "Dean Lambert" join us.

Once again the "Olde Guard" luncheon on Friday in Phi Beta Kappa Hall was a feature all us from the J.A.C. Chandler days greatly enjoyed. It provides a far more intimate get-together than the huge Alumni dinner that night in William and Mary Hall (our coliseum). It also affords a lot of fun and story-swapping during the reception before lunch.

The Society makes an effort to seat classmates or grads from the same era at the same table on Friday nights and that makes the occasion more enjoyable. I had the pleasure of sitting beside Curtis Jenkins, a fellow White Jacket. It was the first time in years we had had opportunity to talk at length.

By the way, a number of you men from the class who worked in the dining halls remain eligible for the Order of the White Jacket and should join. Our annual gathering on Thursday night has become a Homecoming highlight.

The fellowship over the weekend made up for any disappointment over losing another Homecoming game. The team is building, so don't give up on the boys. Remember this: our academic standards apply to athletes, which cannot always be said about some other institutions.

I wonder how many of you looked over The William and Mary Fund contributor list in the October Gazette. I noted with pride that we had 57 contributors which was second only (and by narrow margin) to the Classes of 1929 and 1930 of the six classes who attended with us from 1924 through 1930.

Last year we had 61 givers in the various categories, second only to the 1930 group. My check shows that our loss of four givers was due to death. That means we have 127 non-givers. The 1980-81 drive is now underway, so how about joining in this time? Every little bit helps. This may sound too serious, but don't forget The College in your wills.

Unfortunately, I have no personal items this month. That's because all of you were sitting back waiting for someone else to do the writing. There will be another letter next Spring (if you help me) and my address is shown above. How about it?

29 Homecoming at the College was wonderful as usual and many of our classmates were there to enjoy the eventful weekend. We just wish more of you could have been there with us for the occasion.

We know you are proud that the Class of 1929 experienced the largest percentage of increase in class participation, jumping from 28 to 33 per cent, to receive the Class of '54 Trophy for spiritual alumni participation.

We do have several letters from classmates which are of interest. Laura W. Field, 13 Lakeshore Drive, Hampton 23666, has recently had published a book entitled "Gloucester - Fun and Facts," about county life in the early part of the century. The book is factual and is now available for $2.50 plus 75 cents postage and handling. If any of you should desire a copy, you can write her direct. A note from Mrs. Edith H. Clarke, Box 1047, Lake Wales, Fla. 33853, says her life is mostly filled with her volunteer hospital work as Director of Volunteer Service at Lake Wales Hospital. She says it is still a source of great satisfaction. Another note from Dr. Albion Guilford Taylor, 2401 Sturgis Road, Colorado Springs, Col. 80909, who wishes to be remembered to many of his former students.

We would hope to hear from many more of our classmates in the weeks ahead, so we may report to you what they are doing these days.

50th Reunion HOMECOMING 1981

October 16-17

31 Seven members of our class attended Homecoming on October 4. They were Bart Burgwyn, Liz Griffin Conkling, Loula Connelly, Lucy Morton Neill, Milton Salasky, Dorothy Reese Smith, and Cornelia Taylor Jones.

There are many of your from whom we have not heard or whom we have not seen for some time. There will be only one more class letter before we celebrate our 50th Reunion. We would appreciate hearing what some of you are doing and to learn that you plan to attend our reunion in May.

What has happened to Juanita, Cousin Floyd, Emmett, Iva, and Carrie?

Mrs. T. Leonard George
(Betty Chambers)

Richmond, Va. 23226

33 When was the last time that you read THE FLAT HAT? If you were at Homecoming, you would have seen one as they were scattered around Alumni House for us. Remember the three or four-page, carefully screened, weekly news we had? Today the paper is a very sophisticated, informative, and up-to-date publication. The edition of Friday, October 3, had twenty-eight pages, which covered many facets of campus life. I read nearly all of it, and certainly enjoyed it.

Do you read THE ALUMNI GAZETTE? It is our alumni paper with alumni news, plus College news of campus changes, events, programs, etc. Our class news is of a more personal nature, but without your "input," there cannot be any. Please take a few minutes to send something about yourself, either to me or to the Alumni Office when you send in your contribution to The William and Mary Fund.

Did you make it back for Homecoming this year? I saw Johnny Reid of Emporia, Va., on Saturday before my husband and I went to the game. Lota Spence Reid, Johnny's wife, had been in Williamsburg with him too, but had to go to Norfolk to help their daughter who was involved in "politicking." And I understand that Catherine Cubberly Beaman of Norfolk was there, but I didn't see her. (Catherine, do you think we would have recognized each other?) Ed Plummer, who has now moved to Newport News, Lois Jenkins Doman, who was with her husband, Max, since his Class of 1925 was celebrating their 45th reunion; and are from Providence Forge, Va., and Carter White of Boston, Va. who signed up on the chart at Alumni House. With me that makes seven of us. Not a very representative group, is it? Perhaps there were others who didn't sign when they registered. Let's all make a pledge to try to make it back next fall for Homecoming for our 48th class reunion (can you believe it?)

Merry Christmas and a very happy New Year to you all!!

Mrs. A. E. Harvey
(Ruth Weeks)
5707 West Franklin Street
Richmond, Va. 23226

35 Forty-five years, you won't believe it, for the men are as handsome as ever and girls as glamorous. So, you missed the reunion, it was as though we had just come back from a College break.

There is always a sad time as many of our classmates have died in the years between and their presence was a loss.

Many thanks go to Blake Newton and Dave Agnew for their reunion plans and the many that had to be cancelled. Start now to plan for our 50th, and we promise you a treat.

There were a few notes from some who could not attend. Hallie Jane Dill Thorp wrote that she is the DAR National Corresponding Secretary. Bernice Burton Boarman with her husband is retired and living in Florida. Bernice and Barbara Acker Duffy extended their College days and became Registered Nurses. Helen Dodge Latoy wrote about her visit with Arabelle Iry Hubbard who has retired from a most interesting career in New York City as a drama coach. Iry now lives in Standardsville, Va.

Ralph Stambaugh very thoughtfully shared his hobby and brought some small pins to which he had attached a piece of turquoise.

Eddie Boisseau brought a sassy poem that was hung in the Hospitality Room, not a word of truth in it.

"My Bifocals Fit
My Dentures are Fine
My Hearing Aid Works
But I Do Miss My Mind"

Eddie Boisseau, Eleanor Hooker Boisseau, '36, and Jane Dumont Sands have worked long and hard hours getting ready for the Crippled Children's Hospital Bazaar (a Richmond Christmas function).

Jim May was well; I enjoyed having him tell me about farm life. He was surprised that many of us knew where Hood, Va. is.

David Agnew was wearing his green William and Mary jacket of freshman days. We did not challenge him to button it, although I believe he could have.

John Mapp has his name on the November 7th ballot, here in Richmond for Congressman from Virginia's 11th District.

Remember "Pappy" Pappandrea: Who could forget that bubbling personality. As usual, he was his own happy self.

We didn't get to see Dean Lambert or Ann Nenzel Lambert as the Dean was in the hospital. I know that he could have called each of us by name.

Lloyd C. Langbauer came, with his wife, happy and sun-tanned from his Florida home. It was great to see him again.

Midge Parmalee Horton is still living in Mexico. This girl really travels. She can say that she played bridge around the world, having returned recently from a world cruise.

There was a note from Sue Stichel Beagler returned to me before the reunion. She is now living in Provo, Utah.

CORRECTION: Contributions to the Thomas G. Paynter Memorial Fund will be used entirely to provide resources for the American Indian Scholarship Fund (known as the Lawrence W. Hoyt Scholarship Fund) and not to strengthen the Williamson Collection of Paleo-Indian Artifacts, as previously reported in the Gazette.

ALUMNA VISITS CHINA

Christine Kurtz '80, St. Charles, Missouri, recently returned from China where she posed with a William and Mary banner before the tortoise heading the famous Avenue of Animals at the Ming Tombs, just north of Peking. A President's Aide for two years at William and Mary and voted by her student colleagues as the College's most outstanding sophomore, Christine noted in a letter to President Graves that the theme of the photo is "The Sun Never Sets on the William and Mary Empire."

Yette Winslow Bryant has the most beautiful grey hair that compliments her peaches and cream complexion.

Evangeline B. Klug continues to teach science. She made me very happy saying I had grown taller.

Margaret Snead Nuckols had a great time meeting with the Library Science group: Pauline Stanley Ogden, Elise Barnes Hardy, Juliette Croxton Clothier, and Harriet Council Mead. Bob Land was also in attendance.

Four of the five living (1935) Kappa Deltas were present: Dorothy Prince Oldfield, Pauline Stanley Ogden, Margaret Snead Nuckols and Kitty Chiswell Sweeney.

What a shock to find that Library Science and Home Economics had been deleted from the College courses that are offered.

Our class was well represented by doctors: Jim Peery, Ann Northington Westlow's husband (E.J.); and the minister was Frances Gilliam Vasilao's husband: the minister we missed seeing was the Reverend Walter Horn. I enjoyed chatting with him on the William and Mary trip to Russia in 1976.

Helen Reinhorn Skilken flew home in her son's plane. Haven't we come a long way from those "dim thirties"?

Herbert Lewis of Parksley, Va., and Blake Newton of Washington, D.C., as trustees, attended the Endowment Association of the College meeting in Williamsburg on October 10th, held at the new Marshall-Wythe School of Law building.

I must add that besides Dick Velz getting a special presentation on Alumni Night, he introduced his darling new wife. Congratulations and best wishes.

Sixty-four classmates attended the reunion. There were many more with husbands and/or wives at the luncheon who didn't sign the register. Would you drop me a line if your name was not added? If you would like a list of those attending, send a stamped envelope so a list can be mailed to you.

Williamsburg and William and Mary left us all with the anticipation of meeting again in five years - the big one!! There is so much that I could add, but I want to tease you with news to come. . .from you.

A very special thanks goes to Eleanor Martin Kent for serving as the Class Reporter for many years.

Mrs. Henry H. Hardenbergh, Jr.

Spring Grove, Va. 23881

37 S. Warne Robinson of Williamsburg, Va., as a trustee, attended the Endowment Association of the College meeting in Williamsburg on October 10, held at the new Marshall-Wythe School of Law building.

Class members attending Homecoming were: Bob Dew, Fay Bryant Savedge, Ralph and Anna Baker, Marian Hinman Gracey, and the narrator.

It is time to start thinking about coming to the Class reunion in 1982. Let's start making plans to have 100% attendance.

Bud and Jane Sunderland Broudy have just had a trip to San Francisco to see their daughter, Liza. The weather was delightful and while there they enjoyed seeing "My Fair Lady" again. The first time they saw it was in New York and went with my brother and his wife, Jim and Virginia Land.

In October Fay and Jimmy Savedge went to visit Fay's relatives, who live near Staunton, for the annual family reunion and apple butter making. Seven bushels of apples were made into the best ever apple butter.

In December Doris Campbell Desmond, Ellen Latane Gouldman, Jane Broudy, and I plan to meet in Williamsburg for a candlelight tour. We hope the weather will cooperate and be clear and not too cold.

39 It's always fun hearing about Homecoming, but the only news I have received this year thus far was furnished by Trudi Topping, who sent the names of those from our Class who registered at Alumni House. They are: Jeanne Kinnamon, George Sweetnam, Peggy and Frank Miller, Brad Pulley, Herb Krueger, Lee Shimberg, Dede Bunch, Dan Blocker, Carl and Evelyn Casella, and Powell and Ellen Isea Wartel.

Jeanne Kinnamon of Williamsburg, as a trustee, attended the Endowment Association of the College meeting in Williamsburg on October 10, held at the new Marshall-Wythe School of Law building.

That's all for now. I do hope that someone will let us in on all the reunion festivities. Meanwhile, best wishes to all of you for the forthcoming holidays. Happy New Year, too!

40th Reunion
HOMECOMING 1981
★★★★★★★★★★★★

41 Since John and I were unable to attend Homecoming this year, our very able assistants, Kay Hoover Dew and Austin Roberts, took notes and gathered information for our class. There were 21 from our class in attendance: Lil Douglas Andrew, Robert and Kay Dew, Gerge and Ella Dickenson Hurt, Jean Cox Phillips, Carolyn and Arthur Kneip, Barbara and Austin Roberts, Jane and Herb Young, Edith and Bob Tucker, Joan and "Hookie" Ashworth, Jack Geddes, Bill Wyatt, Sid Brooks, Edith and Donald Reid, Shirley and Waldo Matthews, Riffi and Dick Kaufman, Nancy Chisholm Akers, Charlotte and John Prince, Howard Mirmelstein, Pat Harper, Jack and Harriet Mc Carthy Purtil, and Al Chestnut.

George and Ella Dickenson Hurt now live at Kingsmill.

John and Hope Toulon Byrne are retired and living 12 miles from Bob and Kay Hoover Dew at Whitestone, Va.

Harriet McCarthy Purtil was one of the winners in the Alumni Tennis Tournament at Homecoming. Her name will be engraved on the "A Champions" tennis trophy as a result of the tournament.

Riffi and Dick Kaufman are in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas for the winter. Dick received the City of McAllen Merit Award for organizing and running the Golden Age Olympics for that area.

Arthur Kneip has formed his own firm. ABK Associates, consultants specializing in market research, business strategy, and market planning.

Don Reid is still working as Treasurer of Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, Va.

John Prince is a stockbroker in Newport News. His wife, Charlotte, cooked a delicious ham for the hospitality room. She makes original handbags, decorated with W&M and Williamsburg motifs.

Herb Young is retired and about to build a home in Williamsburg--and he and Jane invite all of us to come by.

"Hookie" Ashworth's second daughter, Joanne, is a freshman at the College.

Bob Tucker hopes to retire and move to southeast Va. with his wife, Edie, in late 1981.

Shirley and Waldo Matthews are enjoying retirement in Dayton, O., near their five children and six grandchildren.

Gene and Bob Kern write they will be back for sure in 1981. They were involved in the Elkins (W.Va.) Forest Festival this year during October 4th weekend.

Al Chestnut retired in June, after 25 years as director of the University of North Carolina Institute of Marine Sciences at Morehead City. His son, Alfred, finished his PhD in marine biology in May and now teaches in Belhaven College in Jackson, Miss. Son John still preaches in Reidsville, N.C.

A special guest at our hospitality room party was that Tidewater TV star and "sometimes banker," Austin Roberts III '69.

Dr. Josephine W. Hubbell recently was the William and Mary delegate at the inauguration of the 11th president of the American University in Washington, D.C. Jo retired to professor emerita at American University in 1978.

We were saddened to hear of the death of Dr. Seymour Simerman in Livermore, Ca. He is survived by his wife, Roberta, and two daughters, Suzanne and Sally.

Chuck Gondak writes from Larkspur, Ca., about attending a dinner meeting in San Francisco on October 7th and visiting with President Graves and some 35 William and Mary graduates and their spouses. Doris '43 and Hutch Harnsberger '42 were there. Hutch lives in Marin County and works for Standard Oil. Doris teaches school there. Also in attendance were Martha Schifferli and Frank Cuseo '40. Frank is retired in the Santa Rosa area. Alice and Ray Stephens are retired from the real estate business and a laundry-cleaning company. Bob "Pinkie" Newton '40 is a Regional Manager with Coldwell Banker Realty. Janet Campbell Barbour '42 lives in Mill Valley. Muriel "Moo" Morris lives and works in Santa Rosa. Katie Ritherford Watson '43 and Jack, who works for Kaiser, were in Europe in early October. Kay Cotterman Hoskins '42 lost her husband this past year. Will Bergwall '42 lives in Santa Rosa, where his wife, Mimi, runs a children's nursery. Will recently retired from the stock and bond investment business. Will has had a four by-pass heart operation. Tex Schick Fay lives in Marin County. Her husband works for Standard Oil. John Brodka, retired as a Pan American pilot, raises mangoes on a seven-acre farm near Miami and is completing a summer home in the mountains of N.C. Ruth Rapp Thayer lives at Lake Almanor and Los Angeles. Vic Carbonaro, an attorney in the N.Y. area, and Gene Ellis, who raises and trains German shorthair dogs, are beating the drums for our 40th reunion in 1981.

Anyone with suggestions for activities for next year's Homecoming, our big 40th, send them in to Austin Roberts. Kay Hoover Dew suggests we start digging out pictures of our four years to bring along. Our special appreciation again goes to Barbara and Austin Roberts and Charlotte and John Prince for their generous contributions for our pleasant, and delicious, gathering in the hospitality room. Wouldn't it be appropriate to make Charlotte Prince and Barbara Roberts honorary members of the class of '41 for their many efforts put forth over the past four years in making the hospitality room a place for a heart warming reunion?

43 We had an informative letter from Ira Bernard Dworkin bringing us news of interest. He is a lawyer and for the past 14 years has served as a Referee, Formal Hearings, in the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Court. Ira has published his first work of fiction, "Sherlock Holmes in Modern Times," and plans to write a novel about Tom Jefferson. When he retires from the Bench, he wants to devote his time to writing. His hero, Sherlock Holmes, inspired Ira to organize the "Red-Headed League of Baker Street Irregulars" which now has 150 members. Ira's son, Jonathan, is getting an M.A. in Urban Studies at Montclair, and daughter Barbara is a Theatre major there. Ira and wife Shirley were here for Homecoming. We wish him success, and I'm going to the College Bookstore today to buy my copy of his new book.

Some others who registered their attendance at Homecoming were Jim Macon, Marquerite Shields Clark, Mary Ellen Geddes, Milt Greenblatt and Buck Bradford.

A sad note from Joan Wallace Clement. Shortly after moving into their new energy-efficient home, Charlie, her husband, died. While adjusting Joan is doing work with the Burlington, N.J., Library system as a part-time Reference Librarian. Her daughter, Connie, was with Joan during the summer, but now is in London, taking her senior year of college on an exchange program from New Hampshire College.

Les Hooker, manager of William and Mary Hall, was recognized for 15 years of service to the International Association of Auditorium Managers during a special ceremony at the IAAM's conference in Seattle. Congratulations.

This year's grandchild is Connor Ryan McCall. Mother is Shannon '68 and the father, Bill McCall '66. Holly, our daughter '72, is opening a New York deli here in Williamsburg.

It was great hearing from those who sent news. Thanks. Have a warm and healthy winter.

ALUMNI RECEPTIONS SCHEDULED FOR JANUARY

Alumni receptions have been scheduled around William and Mary basketball games in January. They include games against Maryland on Jan. 3 at Cole Fieldhouse; Old Dominion on Jan. 24 in Scope in Norfolk; George Mason on Jan. 26 at George Mason, and Temple on Jan. 28 at the Palestra. Alumni should check the Chapter Meetings column for details.

Larry Giordano, Dorothy Johnson Blom, W. M. Harrison, Ellie Harvey Bennie, Doris Wiprud Driggs, Dale Myers, Ginny Darst Pope.

Also present were Jack Gulley, Jess Jackson, James Ransome, and R.C. Williamson.

Ginny Pope, Martha Smith, and I would like to thank each and everyone who helped to make the Class of '45 parties at the Brickhouse Tavern a great success. Our special thanks to Jane and Bill Anderson, Martha Bugg, Margery Burruss, Nancy Chandler, Dinny McAlinden, Jean Morris, Jeanne Preston and Fran Brunner who served with us on the reunion arrangements committee.

The Society of the Alumni is constructing a patio behind the Alumni House, made possible by gifts from the Classes of '40, '44 and our 35th reunion class gifts for this project. It was complete enough for the three classes to enjoy the annual Alumni Homecoming Luncheon on the terrace. Those present were very proud of this fine patio addition to the Alumni House. It isn't too late to be a part of this class project so please send your class of '45 Reunion Gift to the Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box GO, Williamsburg, Va. 23185. This is, of course, in addition to your regular gift to the William and Mary Fund which is essential to the ongoing life of the College and the Society.

You have received your letters from Marilyn and John Entwisle '44, National Co-Chairman for the 1980-81 William and Mary Fund, and from Nellie Greaves, our Class Chairman. If you haven't already done so, now is the time to mail your gift to the William and Mary Fund, the College of William and Mary, Drawer 1693, Williamsburg, Va., 23185.

A very special and memorable 100th birthday celebration honoring Mrs. George Stringfellow took place during Homecoming week-end for 42 Thetas, from across the country, and many husbands were also present. "Mama String," who was Kappa Alpha Theta Housemother for 12 years (1943-55), was guest of honor at a brunch at the Cascades and was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Marvin Gray, also of Wakefield. Thetas present were most grateful to Charlotte Webb '47 and Frances Robb '48 for organizing this fourth birthday event for Mrs. Stringfellow. Others celebrated during the past 10 years by the sorority were on her 90th, 95th, and 97th, birthdays. Special recognition also goes to Ginna Lewis Glass '47 for a beautiful program which was a memorable tribute to "Mama String" and greatly enjoyed by all present. Theata were not alone in celebrating her 100th birthday. On Sept. 21 four generations of her family gathered at the Country Club of Virginia for a luncheon given in her honor on her birthday. Oct. 8 was "Mama String Day" in Wakefield, an event sponsored by three area Ruritan Clubs. Wakefield friends have also established the Mamie McMullan Stringfellow Scholarship Fund at William and Mary in her honor!

During August Martha Kight Bugg and Waddy's son Wadsworth Bugg III and Wendy Ann Silver were married at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Richmond. A lovely reception was held at the Commonwealth Club. Another August wedding took place in San Rafael, Calif., when Elizabeth Watson and Paul Cartmill were married on August 24. Elizabeth is the daughter of Katie Rutherford Watson, '44 and John. On Oct. 11, Leslie Murray and Roger Eibest were married in Bradenton, Florida. Leslie is the daughter of Sunny Manewal Connor. Sunny and Bob vacationed in N.J. in May and also visited Sunny's son Ken and his wife Anne in Boston. Ken is in his last year at Andover Newton Seminary. Grandson

KAREN HALL '79 WRITES "MASH," "EIGHT" SCRIPTS

The words of one William and Mary alumna are reaching millions of fans of two of TV's hottest shows this season.

Karen Hall '79 says she has finally reached "a life-long goal." The first television show to bear her writing credit aired on November 19 on ABC. It was an episode of Eight Is Enough entitled "Generations." Karen, who was featured in a recent Alumni Gazette article, is currently a staff writer and story editor at Eight Is Enough, and she will be writing episodes throughout the season.

She has also written an episode of *M*A*S*H* called "Father's Day" that will air December 8, about "Hot Lips'" father coming to visit the *M*A*S*H* unit. Alan Alda directed it, and Karen says, "I think it is really going to be a good show." *M*A*S*H* producers suggested Karen's script should be the show's 200th anniversary episode. It's another William and Mary "first" that Karen wrote her very first *M*A*S*H* script when she was a playwriting student at the College.

Benjy visited Sunny in Florida during the summer.

Happy Holidays and don't forget to include news on your Christmas Cards!

47 A note from Ellie Westbrook Heider of Williamsburg on her Fund envelope which tells of son Brook who is married and a 1st Lt. in the Army and stationed at Ft. Polk, La. in the CID Division; and daughter Beth who completed 16 hours at U.Va. architecture grad. credits in Venice last fall. Ellie met her in Brussels last fall while touring Paris, Lucerne, Heidelberg and Brugge where they spent two days with her AFS family. Beth has her own apartment and works for a local architect for experience before completing her one and a half years' graduate work.

49 Among those of our class attending Homecoming this year were Thomas East, Willard Coghill, Diana Wedel Riley, Charlie Bryant and Dot, Lou Bailey, Thurman Groves, and Frances Hudgins.

My husband and I spent a delightful Sunday afternoon this fall with Lynn Graves Whitaker and Bill at their home in Penn Yan, N.Y., after leaving one of our sons at Colgate University. We hadn't met in 30 years so the afternoon was much too short to catch up on all the news.

55 There was only one thing wrong with our 25th reunion—it was too short, and I didn't have the chance to talk with nearly as many people as I had hoped. It was fun seeing friends and renewing acquaintances, though, and Gordon Vliet said that he thought it was the largest class reunion he has seen in the years that he has held his present position.

As often happens in Williamsburg, it rained on Friday, but that didn't prevent several of us from enjoying a bus tour of the new campus. Shan Duis Carico and Dave were there from Manhattan Beach, Calif., where Dave is an attorney and Director of Industrial Relations for Totco-Division of Baker International Corp. and Shan is an art museum guide. She is also a student in art history at California State. Son David is a Stanford graduate and is now doing graduate work at McGeorge in Sacramento. Son Chris is a student at Occidental in Berkeley. Other "sightseers" included Marilyn Zaiser Ott and Jim from Cincinnati, Barbara Solomon Dressel and Hank, '56, from Atlanta, Claire Schoener Laedtke and Glenn from Rochester, Minn., Connie Clague Naginey and Chuck from State College, Pa., and Lollie Egger Scott from Tampa, Fla. Claire earned her master's from Winona State and teaches high school students with learning disabilities. Lollie is a Counsellor for the Family Service Association of Greater Tampa. Her "children" are now 23, 24, and 25!

Later, back in the alumni tent, we saw Elaine Elias Kappel and Dick from Pittsburgh, Howie Kline from Grand Blanc, Mich., Bill Butler from Toledo, Ohio, and Rodger Hill from Chatham Twp, N.J. Howie is a lawyer and Bill, who is married to the former Nancy Binney '57, is President of Binney Castings Co. They have three children. Rodger, who is in pension fund management, has two children; one attends Lake Forest and the other, Tulsa. Later, we saw Rodger again with his wife, the former Vivian Krick. Vivian works for Dunn and Bradstreet.

The Sunset Parade, scheduled for 5 p.m. in the Sunken Gardens, was held in Wren Chapel. I was most impressed with the College Choir. They were excellent!

Class of '34 To Support Swem Library to Receive Important Volumes to Celebrate 50th Reunion

The Class of 1934 has just begun an ambitious 50th Reunion campaign that will support one of the most important elements of the William and Mary campus—the Earl Gregg Swem Library.

Although the celebration of their 50th reunion is still three years away, members of the Class of 1934 decided to get a fast and early start. Class leaders have already met in two informal sessions on campus, and their gift has been described in detail in a new brochure being circulated to all class members.

The Class of 1934 will provide funds to purchase important scholarly editions for Swem Library, one of the most respected libraries in Virginia. Special bookplates, designed to honor the Class of 1934, will be included in every volume purchased, and a beautiful leather-bound register will be placed on permanent display in the library, listing every donor and the books purchased by the class.

Clifford Currie, College librarian, says the library staff is "excited and grateful" that the Class of 1934 gift will touch so many students, professors, alumni and other scholars in the Williamsburg area.

Under strong consideration for purchase are several important resource volumes, including The British Humanities Index and The Library Catalog of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, both of which are multi-volume works.

These volumes, and many others under consideration, will open up an incalculable variety of "new doors" for William and Mary students. Swem Library has the ability to borrow virtually any scholarly material a student may require, yet so often the knowledge-hungry student is not aware that so much important material exists. The indexes and resource materials purchased by the Class of 1934 should serve as a "gateway" to endless information.

Class members are being encouraged to participate in the creation of the gift and in all the varied activities leading up to the 50th Reunion celebration in 1984.

Contributions can be made to the special 50th Reunion Year Gift in a number of ways, including gifts of securities, real estate, art, and insurance. Class members may also decide to establish life income trusts or to include the College in their wills. Cash contributions may be spread over several years, and class leaders have encouraged all their classmates to make commitments above and beyond their normal contributions to the William and Mary Fund.

Although "new recruits" are still being drafted to help spearhead the drive, several classmates have already taken leadership roles, including Mrs. Harriett P. Beale, Emil O. Johnson, Robert H. Land, Ralph Levine and Mrs. Kitty Blanton Seay.

SINFONICRON CELEBRATES 15th ANNIVERSARY

"The Mikado," the first musical staged by Sinfonicon, will be revived by the student musical group for its 15th anniversary production at William and Mary in Phi Beta Kappa Hall Jan. 28-31. Founded in the fall of 1965 by the brothers of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia and the sisters of Delta Omicron, Sinfonicon is the only opera company of its type in the country. The annual musical stage production provides the main fund-raising event for Phi Mu Alpha and Delta Omicron. Tickets may be ordered from Sinfonicon, Dept. of Music, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

CHICAGO ALUMNI CELEBRATE AWARD

Annual Barn of Barrington Branch brought a number of Chicago alumni together to celebrate the chapter's recent award as the 1980 Outstanding Chapter. Among those present: front row, L to R: Dan McEachran '80, Esther Aldige '71 (Pres.), Barbara Lee, Beth Stoneburg '74 (Sec.), Heather Lamond '79; standing: Roger Lee '70, Hanne Sweetnam, George Sweetnam '39, Marvin Atkins '50, Jim Taylor '69, Ronnee Repka Taylor '69, Deal Chandler Brooks '71, David Brooks '69. Dr. David L. Holmes of the faculty was the guest speaker at the meeting.

We arrived late for the cocktail party prior to the alumni dinner at William and Mary Hall, but I saw Floie DeHart Burns, Joan Mattson, and Sue Pitman Aldridge. Floie lives in Pitman, N.J., with her four children and teaches French and Spanish. She is hoping to take a sabbatical in Spain next year. Joan teaches math to developmentally disabled children in Paulsboro, N.J. Sue is a music teacher in Frederick, Md.

Those sharing a table with us at dinner were Yolanda Grant Harrell and Skip, who recently moved to Easton, Conn., with their two children; Ann Zimmerman Kulp and Paul from Annandale, Va.; Cynthia Kimbrough Barlowe and Bob '52 from Saluda, Va.; and Nancy Butler Standish who with husband Myles recently moved to Riverside, Conn. Cynthia and Bob have boys; Charles is a sophomore at the College, George is a student at the University of Virginia, and Robert, Jr., at Virginia Commonwealth University. Bob is a dentist and Cynthia is an elementary school librarian. Nancy is an assistant to the Director of Employee Development of a large insurance company. Her daughter, Katherine, was married last year; daughter Emily is a senior at the University of Denver; and Myles is a freshman at Boston University.

I thought my eyes had deceived me when I saw how slim Nancy Lewey Spigle was! She laughingly attributes it to "doing my own cooking." Nancy is a past President of the Roanoke Alumni Chapter. She is also vice-president of Virginia's Junior Miss Program and a member of the Roanoke County Republican Club. She earned her Masters at Radford University and teaches fourth grade. She and Bill have one son, Allen, a student at the University of Virginia.

At the next table were Shelley Christine Morss and Joan Danskin Kemble and Tom. Shelley is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, but explained that she still feels more a part of our class. She and her husband live in Concord, Mass., and have three boys and a girl. Joan lives in South Glastonbury, Conn., and has five children; Sara is a graduate of Smith College, Martha teaches English in Tokyo, Jennifer attends Baldwin-Wallace Conservatory, Rebecca is a high school sophomore, and Joshua is a fifth grader. Joan is secretary of Wesleyan Potter, is a volunteer in Vocational Agriculture at Glastonbury High School, secretary of the Unitarian Women's Alliance, and a member of Friends for Music. She earned her Master's in child psychology from the University of Iowa. She works part-time as Registrar of Voters.

Saturday was blessedly sunny, so the luncheon at Alumni House was really on the lawn! Among those I talked with were Ed

Coco and Fran, Betsy James Simmons, Joanne Alfano Collins, Barbara Coogan Kledzik and her husband, Alice Knight Glover and Don, Ginny Broaddus Glover, Elsa Stromberg Bandi, and Joan Earnshaw Donohue. Ed and Fran live in Hartsdale, N.Y., next door to brother Bob and his wife. They have three children; Frank is a senior at Villanova, Roseanne is a freshman at Mt. St. Vincent's, and Eddie is a sophomore at Iona Prep. Ed is Executive Vice-president, of Kaufman Realty, Inc. Bob has two children and is in the insurance business. None of the Coco children are twins! Betsy has co-authored two books: Historic Buildings in Middlesex County, Virginia 1650-1875 and Urbanna, a Port Town in Virginia, 1680-1980. Barbara is a group therapist. She and her husband, a psychiatrist, live in Virginia Beach. Alice and Don live in Frederick, Md. Don holds a Master's degree and a Ph.D. from the University of Virginia and teaches English at Mary Washington College. He is publishing a book, C.S. Lewis: The Art of Enchantment. He is Director of Graduate Studies at Mary Washington, and he won first prize for Creative Writing at Rappahannock Community College's Creative Arts Festival in 1979. Alice is a biology teacher at James Monroe High School. Daughter Kathy is a senior at the College and son Bill is a junior. Chris and Merri, still at home, may also attend William and Mary in the future.

Alice and Don's sister-in-law, Ginny Broaddus Glover, from Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, received her Bachelor's degree from Medical College of Virginia and she is married to Don's brother, Al, a Brigadier General. They have three daughters.

Elsa Stromberg Bandi of Glenview, Illinois, is a member of Women in Construction. I talked with her briefly, as well as with Mary Ellen Wortman Ackerson from Alexandria, Va., who is a substitute teacher and librarian in Fairfax County. She has studied at American University. She is active in the American Association of University Women and the League of Women Voters.

After the luncheon, we walked to the College Bookstore with Joan Earnshaw Donohue. Joan has lived in Alexandria, Va., for the past eight years and is a potter at Studio 13, Torpedo Factory on North King's Highway. Her daughters attend Berkeley and UCLA.

While shopping at Merchant's Square, we dropped by The Peanut Shop, and the friendly salesgirl behind the counter noticed my '55 reunion badge and asked if I knew her father. She was Ruth Trice, a senior and daughter of Ed Trice. The peanuts were so good that we saw her again on Tuesday, but I never did see Ed, unfortunately.

Later Saturday afternoon, I talked with Gail Wannan Mosher and Dick from Luther-ville, Md. They have one son. Gail enjoys golf, tennis, volleyball and crewel embroidery.

We also saw Betty Holladay Neal and Tom from Richmond. Betty enjoys her work in real estate.

Judy Brown Raas, whom we met in the lobby of the Hospitality House, said that her oldest son had just been married. She and Bill live in Madison, N.J.

Our class enjoyed a lovely candlelight dinner with wine and all the trimmings in Great Hall on Saturday night. Mardie Pontius MacKim, Patty Beggs Westberg, Ron and Joan Pierce Jabaut, Jean Andrews Schweitzer, Darrell High Wittkamp and Bernie '52, John Marsh and Carol '54, and Pete Freeauf.

Mardie is Senior Vice President of Public Affairs with Kraft, Inc., is a director for E. I. duPont de Nemours and F. W. Woolworth Co., and is a trustee for the National 4-H Council. She lives in Northbrook, Ill. and has three sons.

Patty lives in Rehoboth Beach, Del., and has two daughters and a son. Her daughter, Christine, is a '77 graduate of the College.

Jean received her Master's degree in Elementary Education from Hofstra University and an M.A. from the University of Southern California. She has taught Spanish and with the Head Start Program.

Pete lives in Albany, Ga., and has two sons: Jordan, a freshman at the College, and Lee.

I talked briefly at the dinner with Marge Willard Duer, Donna Melnick Moskow, Carol Petrie Wait, Tish Rustad Herrmann and Shorty, Betty Nettles, Pat Sperb Waby, and Fred La Croix.

Marge lives in Belle Haven, Va., and has written several articles for magazines. She is married to John '57 and has three children. She and John spend a lot of time traveling.

Carol lives in Schenectady, N.Y., with her husband, Sam, and two children. She received her Master's in Library Science from the State University of New York at Albany. She is Serials Librarian for the Capital District Library Council and in the 1950's she wrote several nuclear physics papers!

Fred, who received his Master's in Library Science from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, lives in Des Moines, Iowa, with his wife, Louise, and two daughters. He is a librarian at Drake University.

After the dinner, Yolanda and Skip invited us up to their room for a nightcap. Steve Hamilton and his wife and Bob Forrest and his wife, Violet, were also there. Steve lives in Trumbull, Conn., and is an Engineering Section Manager with General Electric. Bob lives in Washington, Pa., where he is a mathematics professor at Washington and Jefferson College. He received his Master's at Ohio State and he and Violet have three children.

Ordinarily, my newsletter would end here, but many of you are, I'm sure, concerned about Barbara Regan Sumner's emergency surgery, which caused her to miss all of the activities after Friday night. She developed a severe abdominal pain and Barbara Coogan Kledzik's husband, who is a physician, suggested a trip to the hospital, where surgery was performed at 4:30 a.m. Saturday. On Sunday, we went to see her and I dropped by again on Monday. By then she was doing very well and there were plans for her discharge on Tuesday. She planned to stay with Betty Ann Will Wallace '54, at Kingsmill until Thursday, then fly home to California, where she and Charlie live in Orinda. Charlie, who played professional football with the Chicago Bears, coached for the Pittsburgh Steelers and New England Patriots, and he now coaches for the Oakland Raiders. They have two sons: the older, Terry, is a junior at the College majoring in History.

As we were leaving Barbara's room on Sunday, Jim and Allison Mercer, '56, Todhunter were arriving. Jim is Director of Pension Fund Investments for Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. and they live in Lafayette, Calif. They have four children. The oldest, Stuart, is a junior at the College.

As I said, there were many people I didn't have a chance to talk with at Homecoming. They included Aubrey and Betty Bloxom '56, Witherington, Howie Bolleman, Dabney Miller, Otto Lowe, Bill Neal, John Kopley, Ann Callihan Hines, Rufus Gordon, Martha Jordan Stringer, Sue Rosar Sheehan, Bill Prince, Hastings Hartt, Joe Campagna, Bruce Muni, Floyd Craig, John and Diana Daniels, '57, Mahoney, Bernice Magruder Sherwood, Penny Brown Moon, Bill Gatling, Eileen Segal Lorber, Jane Kesler Upshur, Doug Proffitt, Larry Phillips, Lewis Saunders, Tom Hamilton, Bunny Scheie Belford and Ralph, '56, Larry Young, Joan Evans Swanson, Debbie Young Caufield, Max Schless, Harry and Betty Wright Carver, and Tish Pettit Borjeson. To those of you who did not attend our 25th, try to come to our 30th. It's well worth the effort.

A Merry Christmas and Happy Holiday Season to all!

57 As we inch closer to our own 25th reunion, it's nice to watch other classes gather and renew friendships with many who were at William and Mary in the fifties. We have found Class-picture time the best for standing back and figuring out just who has come to Homecoming. As the Class of '55 gathered this year, we particularly enjoyed visiting with Howie Cline '55 and Bill Butler '55. Bill's wife, Nancy Binney, is a member of our class.

We spent much of our delightful Homecoming day with Dee Dee Daniels Mahoney and John, '55. As a matter of fact, their son was one of the stars of the parade!

Sally Dallas Messick attended the Delaware game with her daughter who is a student there. Sally's big Delaware button almost cost her entrance to the William and Mary post-game party. I'm certain her heart was really with the Big Green.

Marge Muller Smith recently brought me up to date on her whereabouts. It was so nice to hear from her. Marge, who lives in Matawan, N.J., sells newspaper advertising and does layout and copy for ads. She has a nineteen-year-old daughter at Franklin and Marshall College, where she was the recipient of a four-year National Merit Scholarship, and a son in high school. Marge is active in Tri-Delta Alumnae and enjoys skiing and a singles tennis organization. We'll be looking for Marge at our reunion.

Congratulations to Phil Colclough who was elected President of the Virginia Association of Insurance Agents for 1980-81 and to Bill Armbruster who is now a member of the Board of the Alumni Society.

Watch for the names of two young men who have embarked upon professional baseball careers. Sons of Doug Henley and Barbara '56 and of Junior Duff played in the Carolina League this summer. We look forward to following their progress.

Joanne Snyder Adler of Rydal, Pa., writes that she is a real estate broker in suburban Philadelphia. She has three children - 20, 18, 13.

Please let me hear from you. Just two or three notes before the March deadline would be splendid. Also, I'd be happy to receive any suggestions or criticisms that might help brighten up our column.

HOUSE NOTES

John Branch "Dauba" Green '28 visited the Alumni House recently with his son and two grandsons. He left with us mementos of the 1920's, including a leather wallet which was a souvenir favor of the Final Balls in 1925.

James M. "Suey" Eason '28 added to the collection of sports memorabilia by donating the baseball he hit over the fence, to win the game in the ninth inning, against Yale on April 8, 1927, and the uniform shirt he wore in that game.

Dr. Robley R. Good '22 has given the Paschall Library a copy of TAPS, published for The Students' Army Training Corps at William and Mary in 1918, and several yearbooks have been received from Helen K. Johnson, '29.

A number of dried flower arrangements are adding to the attractiveness of the Alumni House. They were arranged by Carra Dillard Dewing '50, and were given on the occasion of her 30th reunion.

The Society appreciates gifts of memorabilia. Anyone wishing to donate mementos or books written by or about alumni are urged to contact Frankie Martens, Society of the Alumni, Post Office Box GO, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185. Memorial gifts to the Paschall Library are invited.

SOCCER TEAM ADVANCES TO NCAA QUARTERFINALS

William and Mary's soccer team won the South Atlantic regional championship and advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA tournament Nov. 25 by defeating Howard 2-1 in a game that went four overtimes and was finally decided on penalty kicks. The victory followed William and Mary's defeat of Old Dominion University, 1-0, to win the state championship and put the Tribe in the quarterfinals at Cary Field in early December against the winner of the Duke-Alabama A&M game. The Tribe is led by John McManus who has scored a Indian record of 27 of the team's 56 goals in leading William and Mary to a 13-6-2 record up to the quarterfinals.

PIXIE HAMILTON '80 ON U.S. LACROSSE TEAM

Pixie Ann Hamilton '80, West Chester, Pa., has been named to the United States Women's Lacrosse Team that will defend its world title during a tour of Australia this summer. Miss Hamilton is one of 15 members on the touring team who come from 11 universities and colleges in the United States. The U.S. team won the world title by defeating England in a best of three series in April. The squad that will visit Australia begins training in January and will play four games in Australia in June and July.

20th Reunion HOMECOMING 1981

October 16-17

61 At long last some letters from which to draw news items! As I am writing this column I have just received a telephone call from freshman Rob Anderson asking for support of The William and Mary Fund. I urge all of you to support the fund generously.

I guess our age is beginning to show. A letter from Al Volkmann mentions a visit to Williamsburg with his wife Laurie and daughters Karen and Tricia. Al is promoting Karen's expressed interest in William and Mary. Al is a practicing attorney in Suffolk County with offices in Patchogue, N.Y. His note reminds me with two teen age daughters that college is not that distant. In addition to his practice Al is a member of the Patchogue-Medford Board of Education and has served for several years on the Advisory Board of Brookhaven Memorial Hospital. He reminds us that this next fall will be our twentieth reunion. Let's all think seriously about attending!

Speaking of Homecoming a note from Trudi Topping, Class News Editor for The Alumni Gazette, indicates that our class was represented at this year's Homecoming by Mike McCall and Al Owens.

Anne Griffith Tew and her husband Bill spent the summer doing Gilbert and Sullivan with Light Opera of Virginia. Anne teaches Latin and remedial reading in Newport News.

Paula Lauritzen Delo is the public relations officer for Rappahannock Community College. A recent state-wide promotional effort she conducted was responsible for a record turnout of over 12,000 people to the College's Dragon Run Folklife Festival.

The Honorable Bill Robertson was recently elected by the General Assembly of Virginia to the Judgeship of the 20th Judicial Circuit which includes the counties of Loudoun, Fauquier and Rappahannock. He was sworn in on February 15, 1980. Bill formerly practiced law in Warrenton.

Gay Whitlock has moved back to Virginia after being on the counselor educational faculty at the University of Georgia in Athens since 1976. Gay is presently an Associate Professor of Education at Virginia State University and also serves as the Director of the Teacher Education Services Center.

Dave Kurland has been elected a Senior Vice President of the Connecticut Bank and Trust Company. Dave holds a Master's of Business Administration from Columbia University. Prior to his present position he had served as vice president and head of personal banking in the Hartford division. He has been with the bank since 1964 as a trainee, assistant treasurer, assistant vice president and area manager of the East Hartford office.

John Wiley & Sons has published Sampling Design and Statistical Method for Environmental Biologists. The book is authored by Dr. Roger H. Green, an Associate Professor of Zoology at the University of Western Ontario, Canada. Roger received his M.S. from William and Mary and his Ph.D. from Cornell. He is a member of the Ecological Society of America and the Biometric Society.

Bunny King Neff of Canfield, Ohio, has been elected President of the Board of the Career Development Center for Women. Her mother Ellen Tices King '31 was kind enough to share with me an article from the Youngstown Daily Vindicator. Bunny had served on the board for three years and is now working on her doctorate in educational administration at Bowling Green State University. The Career Development Center is a guidance and referral center for adult women seeking assistance in career and life planning, and is a non profit agency.

Most of the items in this column are the result of notes, letters and occasionally a telephone call. One I managed to find in the Sept. 26, 1980, issue of The New York Times. A picture of Perry Ellis and others appeared along with an article about the 38th annual presentation of the Coty Awards held at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City the previous evening. The "Ellis" style was noted as representing "another part of the sportswear tradition, has a predominantly young look and an adventurous individuality."

63 William H. Jones, Jr., has joined Central Fidelity Banks, Inc., in Richmond in the personnel division as corporate director for compensation and benefits. He was previously manager, compensation and benefits, for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia, where he had been for fourteen years, seven in personnel work.

Homecoming brought some of our Class back to Williamsburg, notably: Diane Stuart Perone, Robin Reighley, Bill Lehner, Carolyn Morgan, and Mary Frances Bonner Koltes.

Wow! This must be my shortest newsletter ever! Hope Christmas cards bring in a lot of news of our class and their doings...hint...hint!

65 Robert Andrialis of New York City, as a trustee, attended the Endowment Association of the College meeting in Williamsburg on October 10, held at the new Marshall-Wythe School of Law building.

Homecoming 1980 offered beautiful weather, an opportunity to see many classmates, and one half of exciting football. The following members of our class registered at the tent on the Alumni House Lawn:

Barbara Anderson Egseth, Charlie and Kathy (Brewer) Jones, Diane Owens Lehner, Sharon Spooner Gray, Judy Weismann Dennen, Lynn Meushaw Parent, Ned and Lorelei (Adams) Ingle, Mickey and Margie (Hodges) Furr, Elsie Medinger, Dabney Dulaney Leonard, Penney Plummer Kidd, Jim Korman, Nanci Coppari Gould, John L. Newbill, Larry Bolton, Kent and Mary (Rollings) Stevens, Micki (Leef) Stout, Henry George, Dick Weber, George Dupuy, Melinda Duke Ball, Deedle Rowland Holsten, Joe and Janis (Callaway) Nash, Diane Freeman Pollard, Dave Rector, Donnie Owens, Tommy and Rita Vaughan, Bridget Sullivan Hampson, Sue August Bridenstine, Joanie Solinger Stoneman, Fred and Beryl Everett, John Jester, Mike Sopchak, Joyce Hoskins Walk, Tom and Martha (Jordan) Connor, Arthur and Nancy Henderson.

Tom Kirkup, Anne Barden Kirkup, Susan Stevenson Landis, Kathy Power Fallis, Becky Ruffin Collins, R.M. Simpson, Lyons Hardy Burke, Jodi Russell Horton, Penny Sanders Buck, Sara Shafer Hetzler, Marguerite Fuery MacGuire, Anne-Meade Baskerville Simpson, Bob Simpson, Jeanne (English) and Dave Bedell, Wade Cheatham, Suzanne Proudman Cowles, Billy Wellons, Bonnie Cheshire Greenwalt, Gene Birdsong Tongier, Suzanne G. Frayser, Janet Neal Morrison, Patricia Clift Evans.

Lorelei Adams Ingle and Ned live in Gainesville, Ga. Ned is a pilot for Eastern Airlines and Lorelei does some commercial advertising. They also own a company called Gold Masters with stores selling coins and collectibles. They have three children, ages 10, 8, and 4.

Mary Rollings Stevens and Kent are located in Franklin, Va., where Kent is associate administrator of a hospital. They have two children, Susan, 3, and John, 9. Don Olsen, married to the former Carol Miller, '66, has recently moved to Macon, Ga., from Atlanta. Don and a former colleague at Union Camp Corporation have formed their own business, Confederate Packaging, which manufactures corrugated containers and specialty items of cardboard. Don and Carol have two daughters, Elizabeth and Rebecca.

While Betty White Suchar was unable to make the long trip to Williamsburg, I was told that she and her husband have purchased a house in London. Betty is working, but I lost her job description!

Jodi Russell Horton and Kit have two children, Kristin and Ted. Jodi received her B.F.A. from the University of Georgia and is now a free-lance writer and a contributor to "Spotlight" magazine. The Hortons live in Rye, N.Y. Jodi is also the Community Relations Coordinator at the United Hospital in Port Chester, a member of the Junior League, and a member of several civic and professional organizations.

Jeanne English Bedell and Dave make their home in Atlanta, Ga. Jeanne received an M.S.W. from the University of Georgia and now works part-time as a psychiatric social worker at a county mental health center. She also has a part-time private practice specializing in work with children and adolescents. Jeanne shares an office with David, who is a psychiatrist. They have four children: Charles, Liz, George, and Brooke.

Lynn Meushaw Parent continued her education at Catholic University where she earned an M.A. degree, and at Federal City College where she earned a Certificate in Gerontology. Lynn and Neil have two daughters, Elena and Denise.

Judy Weismann Dennen made Homecoming a family affair; her father is a member of another of the classes honored this year. Judy is working as a reading tutor in the primary grades under a Title I program. Judy continues to work with the American Field Service and was able to go to Guatemala this past summer.

Elise Medinger earned a Master of Social Work degree in 1971 from Virginia Commonwealth University. She now lives in Louisville, Ky., and is currently a full-time private practitioner of psychotherapy. I enjoyed hearing about Elise's work—and was amazed that she finds time to sail, travel, etc.

Carolyn McGee Turner works with four-year-olds in a nursery school and helps with the school's music program. Living in Richmond, Carolyn and Albert have one daughter, Gwendolyn, age 10. Albert is an architect. Dick Weber was back for Homecoming—they didn't have girls in the Queen's Guard when he was a member. Dick and Linda live in Lorton, Va. They have three daughters: Le, Lara, and Katie.

Martha Jordan Connor and Tom drove to Williamsburg from their home in Norfolk, Va. Tom is an attorney; Martha is involved in several volunteer projects such as the Holly Tour for the Children's Hospital and a court docent program which takes high school students to the courts to observe jury selection, trials, and such. Martha and Tom have two children, Lauren and Jordan.

Bonnie Edwards Gordon and Roger missed Homecoming for a good reason: Bonnie was in the hospital having a baby, their second child. Bonnie and Roger run a portrait photography studio in Stuart, Fla.

Jean Birdsong Tongier, Max and their three children live in Hampton, Va. Max is involved in medical research through the Veterans Administration, and Jean is teaching kindergarten in Newport News. Sally Schwiller Davis works for Congressman John Myers (R-Iowa) while her husband Del is a House Appropriations Committee Staff Assistant. They live in Falls Church, Va.

Kathy Power Fallis and Stan came from Englewood, Colo., to participate in the Homecoming activities. They have two children, Jennie and Russ. Stan won the Alumni jog! Sally Lyons Hardy Burke and George make their home in Richmond, Va. Lyons has been employed as a systems analyst at the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond for the past eleven years, but is now working part-time so as to have time to refurbish their new home. George is a physician specializing in pulmonary medicine.

Charlie Jones changed his profession from Health Physics to dentistry and in 1974 earned his D.D.S. from SUNY-Buffalo. After being stationed in Germany for four years, he is now at Ft. Belvoir, Va. Charlie and Kathie Brewer Jones have two beautiful daughters (I saw their pictures!), Cheryl and Cynthia. Kathie has retired from teaching and is presently involved in real-estate sales. Upon completion of a professional office building in the summer of 1981, Charlie plans to set up a private dental practice in Fairfax Station, Va.

Suzanne Frayser took a few days off from work on her soon-to-be-published book, The Cycles of Life, in order to attend Homecoming. Suzanne now lives in Silver Spring, Md.

Suzanne Proudman Cowles, Carter, and their two children have been living in Williamsburg for two years. Carter works at the National Center for State Courts.

I should think that Andy and Barbara Anderson Egseth came as far as anyone to attend Homecoming. They live in Honolulu, Hawaii, where Barbara works as a Zoo Instructor at Honolulu Zoo through the Assistance League of Hawaii. Andy earned his J.D. from the University of Wisconsin Law School while Barbara obtained a Master's of Science degree from the University of Wisconsin. Andy is a member of the Hawaii Bar Association, the ABA, the American Cancer Society Hawaii division, and the Board of Directors of the Hawaii Estate Planning Council.

I was unsuccessful in my attempts to find Melinda Duke Ball in the Homecoming crowd, but she was there. Melinda, Stuart, and their two children, Stephen and Jenny, live in Middletown, Ohio. Melinda is active with the Junior League of Cincinnati.

Penny Sanders Buck and her family live in Alexandria, Va. After teaching high school English for eight years, Penny is enjoying time to play team tennis, participate in the Alexandria Follies, teach an exercise class, and transport her two children, Peter and

ALUMNI PERFORM IN SHAKESPEARE

Two alumni, Justin Deas '70 and David Little '59, performed in Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure" at the Folger Theatre in Washington in November in a production described by the Washington Post as "fascinating" with "an abundance of good actors with meaty roles."

WILLIAM AND MARY GROUP VISITS EUROPE

An all-William and Mary contingent of alumni from Virginia gathered at the Hilton International Hotel in Brussels for a photograph while they were in that Belgian city on business. Governor John N. Dalton '53, Glenn J. Sedam Jr. '69 JD (right), head of the Virginia Port Authority, and Harvey G. Pope '44 (at Governor's left), president of the Hancock Peanut Co., Courtland, Va., were in Brussels to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the opening of the first office in Europe to promote commerce in Virginia and the Virginia ports. Sunny Trumbo Williams '44 (left) was in Brussels with her husband Rolf on a Hampton Roads shipping mission to promote ports.

Heather, to various activities. Last summer Penny traveled in Europe.

Sue August Bridenstine lives in Richmond; after working for the AMF corporation for a number of years, she has now "retired."

Dabney Delaney Leonard and her two children, Kathryn and Matthew, are taking care of things at home in Springfield, Va., while Ron, a Lt. Colonel in the U.S. Army, is stationed in Korea. Dabney still finds time to teach aerobic dancing, run, serve as a leader for 28 junior Girl Scouts, and coach soccer teams for the Springfield Youth Club.

Nanci Coppari Gould and Jeff have recently moved to Lynchburg, Va. Jeff is Director of Drug and Alcohol Abuse for the Central Virginia Mental Health District. Nancy and Jeff have two children. Diane Owens Lehner and Bill, '63, have four daughters: Mary, Sarah, Molly and Julia. I doubt that I've ever seen a more beautiful family. Diane is a member of the Junior League of Baltimore; the Lehnors live in Severna Park, Md.

Bridget Sullivan Hampson is presently teaching mathematics at Frank W. Cox High School. She earned her M.Ed. from Old Dominion University. Bridget and her husband Harry live in Virginia Beach.

Sharon Spooner Gray brought her daughter Christine to Homecoming; they look like sisters! Sharon is a CPA with Keeler, Phibbs, and Co. in Harrisonburg, Va. She also teaches tax courses at Eastern Mennonite College.

Like Diane Lehner, Ann-Meade Baskerville Simpson has four children. She sells real estate with the Turner Company of Virginia Beach. Married to Bob Simpson '63, Ann-Meade coordinates the Virginia Beach Court Docent Program. This program serves to acquaint sixth and twelfth graders with the courts and legal system. She also is a member of the King's Daughters, Bay Colony Civic League Board, the Junior League of Norfolk-Virginia Beach, and the Mayors Council for Volunteerism.

Joe Nash, and his wife Janis '67, make their home in Fairfax Station, Va. Joe works for the Environmental Protection Agency and helps the William and Mary football program by doing some recruiting in Northern Virginia. Janis does personnel work for the U.S. Geological Survey. They have two sons, Scott and Joseph.

Tom Vaughn and his wife Rita are the parents of three children, Danny, Keith, and Melanie. Tom is a sales manager for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the Chesapeake, Va., area. He is also a Major in the Army reserve and first vice-president of the Board of Directors of the Central Y.M.C.A. Rita teaches 3-year olds in a nursery school part-time.

Bonnie Cheshire Greenwalt is working full time as Curator of Education for the Reynolds Homestead Continuing Education Center. She arranges and coordinates art exhibits, classes, seminars, and events in the performing arts. The Center is now affiliated with Virginia Tech. Bonnie is married to Frank Greenwalt, a graduate of Richmond College and the T.C. Williams School of Law. Frank is presently General District Court Judge for the city of Martinsville and Patrick County, Va.

I saw Wade Cheatham briefly when the class picture was being taken but had little chance to talk to him. Wade lives in Mechanicsville, Va. He has two daughters, Michelle and Amy.

Anne Barden Kirkup and Tom live in Richmond with their son, Christopher, and daughter, Katherine. Tom is Director of Marketing for Reynolds Packing. Anne tutors students in Latin and is the immediate past-president of the Junior Board of the Senior Center. Arthur Henderson and Nancy '66, live in Virginia Beach with their two children. Arthur joined Furmanite, Inc., a year ago. He has traveled to South America and Scotland with this company.

Janet Neil Morrison and Bill '64, live in Newport News. Bill is partner in the CPA firm of Egleston, Smith, and Co., while Janet is a nursery school teacher. They are the parents of two children, Michele and Chris.

I remember greeting Byrd Lacy Murray near the Alumni House, but managed to have a memory lapse regarding personal news. Byrd and Gene, '63, live in Richmond and have two sons, Stephen and John. The Colonial Re-Echo, distributed at Homecoming, reports that Byrd is still teaching fifth grade at St. Michael's Elementary School in Bon Air. . . she has earned an M.A. in Elementary Education from Virginia Commonwealth University.

Joanie Solinger Stoneman manages the Goochland Branch Library three days a week, but the rest of the time she helps her husband Phillip farm 1500 acres along the James River. Joanie is also a Girl Scout leader, member of the Board of Directors of the Goochland, Va. Historical Society, Chairman of the Women's Committee Southern States Cooperative, and Editor of the Goochland County Historical Society newsletter. Joanie and Phillip have two children, Lisa and Philip IV.

Margie Hodges Furr and Dick stay very busy in Greensboro, N.C. Margie is now working part-time as Medical Librarian at Wesley Long Community Hospital, having earned her M.S. in Library Science from UNC-Chapel Hill. She is involved with the Junior League and works as a volunteer for the schools in their Junior Great Books Program. Dick holds an M.A. and Ph.D. in Industrial Psychology from the University of Tennessee. In 1979 he joined with three others in forming a new management training and consulting firm called LEAD Associates. They have offices in Greensboro and Charlotte, N.C., as well as in Atlanta, Georgia. Dick and Margie have two sons, Michael and David.

Marguerite Furey Maguire received her M.A. in German from Duke University. She lived in Belfast, Northern Ireland, for six years while her husband Walter attended medical school. Both Marguerite and Walter are now employed by the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. I saw George DuPuy as the football game but never got close enough to talk to him. I was told that he is living in Charlottesville — please write and tell us more.

Jim Korman is married to the former Babs Lewis, '66. He continued his education at George Washington University School of Law, where he earned his J.D. Jim and Barbara have a daughter, Katherine, and live in Arlington where Jim is a member of a private law practice, Bean, Kinney Korman and Hylton.

Early Saturday morning before the Homecoming parade, the Class of 1965 Pi Phi's met for breakfast at The Cascades. Mary Liz Smith Sadler, Deedle Rowland Holsten, Kathy Power Fallis, Joyce Hoskins Walk, Micki Leaf Stout, Diane Owens Lehner and I forgot that we had not been together for fifteen years. Later Suzanne Frayser and Sara Shafer Hetzler joined us. We missed the 12 who could not come — Ellen Rennolds Brouwer and Dirk suddenly sold their home and were in the process of moving. I think Laurie Yingling Soleau was suffering from severe writer's cramp from sending all those letters about the William and Mary Fund to each class member. Ellen lives in Fairfax, Va., and Laurie and Bob Soleau live in Glastonbury, Ct.

I hope this news is reasonably accurate; it was collected under less than ideal conditions. I am sorry that I missed a few of you who attended Homecoming — and sorry that many of you could not be with us. Please write so we can renew our friendships and share experiences.

Mrs. Robert L. White

67 Lorraine Benson Hancock wrote that she, Bill '68 and their three daughters are back in the Atlanta area. Last spring Bill finished his MBA at UTN and is now working as the Southeastern Marketing Manager for C. Itoh, Inc. Lorraine spends her time painting and working with their Shetland Sheepdogs and dog obedience. Their new address is: 4272 Theresa Way, Lilburn, Ga. 30247, 404-923-9003.

The only other class members whom we saw at Homecoming were Larry and Faith Sartoris. Where were you all this year??

This fall has kept us hopping. We're building a summer house on the Chesapeake Bay near Kilmarnock, Va., and that has meant a lot of back and forth travel. We also spent a week in Dallas for the meeting of the American Society of Therapeutic Radiologists. I have spent my "spare" time teaching two mornings a week, being membership chairman of the P.T.A., working on the Fairfax County Medical Society Auxiliary Board, and making the arrangements for the Virginia Ball for the American Cancer Society. Who says that when the last child goes to nursery school you have lots of free time??

We hope to hear from many of you at Christmas. Without your notes, this column will be very short indeed.

Mrs. Harold E. Williams, Jr.

69 Merry Christmas to all!! This year has flown by for me just as it has for you. Coleman Sheehy and his wife Ellen are the proud parents of a third son, Nathan Robinson, born on September 14. He didn't make it in time for my last deadline or my visit with his parents in August when I was in Richmond but know he is a welcome addition to their family.

Susan Crampton, a CPA with the accounting firm of Thompson, Kelly & Company in Burlington, Vt., has been elected to the Policyholder's Advisory Committee of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston. The committee is a seven member group, representing policyholders nationwide, to advise company management. Susan is a partner in the accounting firm where she has worked since 1975. She attended Middlebury College after W&M and the University of Vermont's Graduate School of Business Administration.

I had a long letter from Bob Day early in the fall. For the past six years he has been associated with the two-year technical college system in South Carolina. This year he is Director of Research and Grants at Beaufort Technical College, Beaufort, S.C. The college is between Charleston and Savannah which Bob describes as "really beautiful with nearby beaches and resorts like Hilton Head" and "a seafood lover's paradise."

I didn't make Homecoming this year, but the Alumni Office reported that Liz Ramsey (Lexington, VA), Peggy Riordan Murdock (Atlanta) and Sandy Camden Bishop (Virginia Beach) came. I am sure there were more, with lots of class news, but this is all I can report.

At a Fall Atlanta alumni gathering I saw

Claudia Byrd MacDonald, her husband and two children. Claudia told me she hears from Delores Bushong who lives in Washington, D.C., and teaches at a private school for learning disabilities. Delores is fixing up an old Victorian house on Swann Street in her spare time. Delores' college roommate, Dee Curwen, is in Eugene, Ore., where she is a professional artist doing batiks. Dee studied in Jamaica after finishing W&M. Claudia recently saw Susan Campbell, who was in Atlanta from Houston, Tex. Susan is in the cash management department of the largest bank in town.

I had two nice conversations with Barbara Johnson in early November. She lives in New York and is a district manager for Gulf Air, an airline owned by four governments in the mid-east. Barbara was named an Outstanding Young Woman in America this year and is enjoying her chances to travel with her work.

Barbara reports that Cathy Calvert has left Mademoiselle and is now writing for the Daily News in New York. Barbara sees Linda Clark Stout who is with a computer company in NY and hears from Marty McGuire Keating who has two small children and lives in Boston.

Jo Ann Walthall and husband Stuart Kramer are the proud parents of a new daughter, Ashley, born in August. Jo Ann is a financial analyst for Pfizer, a part-time teacher at Pace, a volunteer for various organizations and now a mother!

Why not plan to start the new year off right by dropping me a note of your doings since graduation? Everyone enjoys hearing about old friends, but unless you contribute your news there will be nothing to report.

HOMECOMING 1981

71 Steve Harvith writes that his wedding last winter to Ronni Chernay turned into a mini-William and Mary reunion. The ushers included John Morecock, Den Frumen, and Bob Siegel '72. Pam Simpson '72 and Betty Hamilton '72 were also on hand for the festivities. John catered the bachelor party: "His culinary skills are surpassed only by his potent pina colodas." That can be verified by Den who, lampshade firmly in place, provided a good deal of the evening's entertainment and ended up a little weak-kneed at the ceremony itself. Steve is now living in Buffalo, where he's working on his Ph.D. in psychology at the State University of New York.

Dr. Ginnie Klemkowski Laycock has been chosen by the Clemson University student body as the 1980 Alumni Master Teacher. She is an Assistant Professor of Elementary and Secondary Education specializing in Special Education. She writes "The whole philosophy of special education is dealing with the handicapped as individuals. Each child that my students work with is so unique with his or her own distinct array of problems. It's like trying to put a puzzle together to determine what each child can or cannot do. We have to be precise in the way we approach teaching them. Our instruction methods have to be right on target."

Persons wishing to purchase copies of class photographs taken at the luncheon-on-the-lawn should complete the form at right. The form should be returned to Mr. Thomas L. Williams, 119 Matoaka Court, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185 along with a check made payable to Thomas L. Williams. The cost of each photograph is $4.00 which includes postage and handling. Please be sure to specify the number of photographs and which photograph is desired.

this year: Biff Hicks, Barbara Lanzer Ferrari, and Richard Merriman. The family of Peter Jones has established a living memorial fund in his name at the National City Christian Church in Washington. The fund will provide educational, vocational, and cultural opportunities for pre-teenagers in D.C. Mary Campbell Gardner is teaching elementary school in Orlando, Fla. Marjorie Speakman Vaughn is teaching in Clayton, Del. Husband Jim practices law.

Nancy Jane Sievert Lawless writes about the birth of her second child this fall. "I'm living in Glen Rock, N.J., and welcome any alumni that might be passing this way."

Why so many lost souls this month? Because we are again in our annual fall slump for class news. You all are apparently assuming that 1. "No one cares," 2. "Someone else will write about me," or 3. "It takes too much time to write" (or all of the above). All of these assumptions are, of course, false and possibly hazardous to your health. A major University Medical center is at this very moment doing research on the cornucopia of ills that befall those who fail to keep in touch with their classmates. And don't forget that if the drought continues, your loyal secretary may be forced to put his inventive and somewhat devious mind to work to manufacture news. . . possibly about you. (Our next installment is in the spring). Here's hoping you have a great holiday season and new year.

Mrs. Allen T. Nelson, Jr.

73 Anna Highsmith Moore is enjoying being a full-time mother and homemaker after working for five years as an eligibility worker for the Newport News Welfare Department. Anna and her husband, Doug, are living in Hampton and enjoy being close enough to Williamsburg to be able to take off on an occasional Sunday for a stroll down DOG street.

After attending the first Homecoming in seven years, Bert Browning decided to send some news in for THE ALUMNI GAZETTE. Bert married Rose Alley '75 in June of 1974, and the Brownings now have a little girl, Emily Dare, born in July of '78. In the meantime Bert was attending Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C. Bert received his Master's of Divinity degree in 1976 and is presently pastor of the Mentow Baptist Church in Bedford County, Va. He also serves as vice president of Bedford County Ministerial Association.

Among those in Williamsburg for this year's Homecoming activities were Ross Sternstrom of Albany, N.Y.; J. Paul Giles of Woodbridge, Va.; and Chuck Hall of Williamsburg.

Laura Leigh Adams Venable wrote to say that she will be living in Pusan, Korea, for the next two years while her husband Bruce is stationed there with the Army. Laura Leigh is tutoring Koreans in Conversational English, helping out in her daughter's first grade class, and doing some guest lecturing in the high school Government class. Laura Leigh's husband was stationed in Bayonne, N.J., prior to this assignment. While living there she studied at the Germain School of Photography in New York City, and she is enjoying doing some photography now in her spare time.

David Knight is currently working on a Master's degree in Library Science at Catholic University. He is also part of an article on football injuries in the October issue of ESQUIRE.

From Wakefield, Va., Janet Burch Musgrove wrote with news of her activities since leaving the College. Janet taught in a Petersburg elementary school for five and a half years before marrying Tommy Musgrove. Tommy is the pharmacist-manager of a pharmacy in Wakefield. Janet says she has done some part-time work since living there, but enjoys spending most of her time as a wife and step-mother for Tommy's 7 1/2 year old daughter, Amy.

I have a special message to pass along from John Finta '74. John says that although he's not a member of the Class of '73, he does have some close friends in our Class. He says, "To Jack, Jack, Gino, Mom and Mensch: Harsh rules. Dirty Delli Time: Two Pitchers, hold the mug. Four quarters for one song on the juke box. Nothing helps. Is dis a system? I dunno. I just don't know. XXX Ta" Now that should make plenty of sense, shouldn't it?

In a nice letter from Kathleen Price McCarthy, I found that she and her husband, Will, are still in Florida, but that they have both made career changes recently. Will, or Bill as we knew him, has formed his own sod business. With the construction still going wild in their part of Florida and all the lawns to be installed as a result, Kathleen and Will are excited about the prospects. Kathleen is currently working in a real estate office. After six years in banking as a trust officer, Kathleen, along with almost the entire Trust Department, resigned. They have hired a labor-relations lawyer and are charging the bank's administration with treachery, lies, conspiracies and discrimination. Kathleen is more or less in limbo right now, but hopes to join the Trust Department of another bank in the future. In the meantime the McCarthys are still enjoying Florida, but miss all the company they used to have from friends and former classmates dropping in.

Kathleen said that Clark Chase spent a few days with them last Christmas. He was then still in insurance and living in Richmond.

Sally Stroeker '74 has Florida in her territory as admissions counselor at Mary Baldwin and stops over a couple of times a year. Kathleen has also recently caught up with Mary Virginia Daniel in Danville, Va. She is advancing her career in hospital administration and has recently become a homeowner.

Jeff Trammell, where are you? Kathleen and Will say their letters keep getting returned and they'd like to get in touch with you.

I also heard from John Salop recently. He and his wife, Montserrat, are living in Arlington, Va., where John is an assistant vice president with First Virginia Bank. The Salops are new parents of a little boy born in July, and John passed along word about several other classmates with young children.

Greg Phillips has a little girl born this past spring. Greg Franklin has a little boy who is three and a little girl who is one. Greg's twin brother Gary Franklin is carrying on the family tradition of twins. He is the father of twin girls.

John asked that Steve Bens please get in touch with him. Steve was in medical school in Europe, I believe, and John lost touch.

About to release his first solo album, Willie Sordill has been performing along the East Coast both solo and as a member of the band, "Slim Pickers." The album, "Please Tip Your Waitress," is a diverse assortment of folk, Bluegrass and light rock speaking of such topics as racial, sexual and economic equality, farming, self affirmation and personal relationships. The album has been praised by a number of reviewers. If you would like to get a copy of Willie's album, you can send $7 to Willie at 20 Highland Avenue #3, Cambridge, MA 02139.

It has been really great to hear from as many people as I have in the past few months. It sure makes my job a lot easier. Speaking of my job as Class Reporter, I'd really like to give someone else a chance to write this column for a while. If anyone would like to take over for me, please get in touch.

It is hard to believe our daughter, Elizabeth, is almost a year old. She is a real live wire, constantly on the go, but with a great temperament that makes her irresistible, to us at least. I am planning to start work part-time next week. I'll be doing some computer programming and have found a situation that will allow me to have flexible hours. I am hoping this will be the perfect opportunity to get back into the 'real world', but still allow me to spend plenty of time with Elizabeth.

The Nelsons send their best wishes for a very Merry Christmas. Drop us a card with a little news about yourself, and if any one wants to volunteer to take over this column, just let me know.

75 Ford Robinette and his wife took a few days' vacation and spent them in Williamsburg the end of October. Ford is in the contracting building business in the Miami area, and says there is a good building boom on there, with buyers from Europe and from South America. He spent some time visiting classmate Reggie Clark, who is with F&M Bank in Williamsburg.

77 This month's column classifies as a news brief. Only one letter found its way to my mailbox. Unfortunately I did not see as many of you at Homecoming as in prior years. It was a beautiful, cool day. Sorry so many of you missed it.

Doug and Barbara Leary Jones were down from Rockaway, N.J. Doug has recently changed jobs. Also making the trip from New Jersey, Bob and Pat Giermak Millea drove down from Harrison. Debbie Allison flew in from Scotch Plains, N.J. Holly Newcomb Johnson made it to Williamsburg all the way from Elburn, Ind. Carolyn Testa was busy planning for her wedding the middle of October. She and Ken are now residing in New Jersey.

In from Ohio for Homecoming Bob and Nancy Esper Gessner are busy planning for the addition to their family due in January. Joe and Judy Huffard Steele are expecting their second child.

Congratulations to Jim McDonough who graduated from law school at Columbia. He is now with a national public accounting firm in Newark, N.J.

Beth Hutzler is back in Richmond working at the Medical College of Virginia helping them obtain various grants and aid. She has become an avid runner and even ran in the 26.2 mile Richmond marathon in October.

Liz York is also at the Medical College of Virginia. She in her third year of medical school.

Tim and Melita Love Melester are now settled in Manhattan, New York City. Tim is doing his residency at the Cornell Medical School hospital.

Lynn Sloane married Timothy Bemiller September 27, 1980 in Norfolk. She and her husband are both in their senior year at Eastern Virginia Medical School and are looking forward to their graduation in June of 1980. Following graduation they both plan on residency programs in internal medicine at Portsmouth Naval Hospital. Also at E.V.M.S. is Steve Dinwiddie who will graduate in 1982. Mike Moore is in the Class of 1981 at E.V.M.S.

Peter and Jody Roberts Graves have moved into their new home in Wayzata, Minn. They are looking forward to the cross-country skiing in the near future.

The next deadline for this column is not till March. That gives everyone plenty of time to drop me a line.

LAW SCHOOL TEAMS WIN MOOT COMPETITION

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law defeated 23 other teams from 12 schools in five states to win the regional phase of the National Moot Court Competition in Richmond in November. The team of third year law students Scott Harbottle, Rick Mann and Rich Marone now move on to the national competition in New York in mid-January. Marshall-Wythe not only took first place in the regional competition, but won the second place trophy as well with the team of Jack Sadler, Paul Frampton and Norman Thomas.

It was so nice to see so many law alumni at Homecoming in October. The new law school building, which was the location of the annual meeting, surely inspired an extra measure of pride in everyone. Perhaps more of us will now feel comfortable using the facilities of the spacious, well-equipped law library.

There has not exactly been a flood of news to be reported at this time. However, I have heard from Northern Virginia. Rick Lane, J.D. '77, is now practicing with Donahue, Ehrmantrant and Montedonico, a law firm which concentrates in personal injury work. Rick works out of the firm's Virginia Office. Wallace Ward, J.D. '75, is now with Aminoil, and based in Houston, Texas. Barbera Kimball, J.D. '77, has left the Fairfax Commonwealth Attorney's Office to start her own private practice in Fairfax City. Jim

ACCOUNTING STUDENT WINS NATIONAL AWARD

Barry J. Sharp, a senior in the accounting program at William and Mary, has been awarded the $2,500 Arthur H. Carter Scholarship given by the American Accounting Association to students who show promise of leadership in the field of accounting. Sharp is the first William and Mary student to win the Carter Scholarship which is competed for on a nationwide basis.

Thurman, J.D. '76, and his wife Darlene are now owner-managers of a small hotel which they are renovating in Virginia Beach. Some of our alumni visited the "new" Sinclair Hotel on the beach between 26th and 27th Streets on Atlantic Avenue during the summer and were delighted with the "homey" charm of the facility.

Greg Welsh, J.D. '75, reports that the Wildroots (vocal group) are doing big things. The group was started at the '73 Greaser Party in Williamsburg, and it seems their fame has spread far and wide. Larry Diehl, J.D. '74, and Pat McDermott, J.D. '77, are some of the other original members of the group. Sharon Henderson, J.D. '76, is now chairing the Directory and Support Guidelines Committees of the Fairfax Bar Association.

On the Tidewater scene, Barbara Hays Kamp, J.D. '75, has just been elected

STEPHEN MARLOWE '49 RETURNS AS WRITER-IN-RESIDENCE

Stephen Marlowe '49 has returned to William and Mary to serve a second stint as the College's writer-in-residence. Marlowe, who was the first writer-in-residence at the College in the 1974-75 academic year, teaches an advanced professional seminar in fiction for selected students. Marlowe has written nine novels including "Colossus" and "The Valkyrie Encounter."

Treasurer of the Newport News Bar Association. Joyce A. Melvin, J.D. '79, has become a partner in the firm of Coles, Melvin and Brown, engaged in the general practice of law in Newport News.

This will be the last alumni report until April, 1981. May we all have a prosperous winter.

DEATHS

William Lunsford Person, '24 B.S., died November 21, 1980, in Williamsburg, following a short illness. A member of Kappa Sigma fraternity and a Williamsburg native, he took over his father's automobile business shortly after graduation and for over 50 years was owner of Person Ford, Virginia's oldest Ford dealership. He served on several national committees of Ford Motor Company. For 45 years, he also owned and operated Person Exxon Service Station in Merchant's Square. A well-known civic leader, he was a past member of Williamsburg City Council, the Williamsburg Recreation Board, the Williamsburg Selective Service Board and the James City County Planning Commission. He served on the Executive Committee and board of the Peninsula Bank and Trust Company and its successor, United Virginia Bank of Williamsburg, and on the board of Williamsburg Community Hospital. Deeply loyal to William and Mary, he received the Alumni Medallion in 1978. He was a member of the President's Council and was a trustee emeritus of the W&M Endowment Association, served two terms on the Alumni Board of Directors and was one of the principal figures in the campaign to establish the Alumni House. He served on the Development Council of the Campaign for the College, on the Board of Sponsors of the School of Business Administration and the Board of Directors of the W&M Athletic Educational Foundation. Mr. Person is survived by his widow, Emily; two sons, William L., Jr., '56, and Waverly G.; a daughter, Mrs. Lucy P. Grandstaff; and a sister, Alice S. Person, '22.

Robert Alexander Duncan, III, '24, died at his home in Williamsburg on October 4, 1980, after a long illness. He served as president and chief executive officer of the Peninsula Bank & Trust Company from 1947 until 1968, and after his retirement he became chairman of the Bank's board of directors. He was active in a number of professional organizations, and he served at various times as director and secretary treasurer of the Jamestown Corporation, assistant treasurer of the Jamestown Foundation, president of the Williamsburg Community Hospital, president of the James City Investment Corporation, director and chairman of the executive committee of Williamsburg Restoration, Inc., and director of Virginia Hospital Services Association. He was a past president of the Williamsburg Chamber of Commerce and of the Williamsburg School Board; a founding member and later a president of the Williamsburg St. Andrew's Society; secretary of the Williamsburg Rotary Club; chairman of the American Red Cross Fund Drive, and a member of the executive council of the Boy Scouts of America. He served on William and Mary's Alumni Board of Directors from 1965-1971, and in 1973 he was awarded the Alumni Medallion. He is survived by his widow, Kathryn M. Duncan, and three daughters, Jean D. Parker, '49, Elizabeth D. Modys, '55, and Kathryn D. Trumpy.

Ellen Sterling (Selden), '25, formerly of Gloucester, Virginia, died October 3, 1980, in Downingtown, Pennsylvania, after a long illness. She is survived by two children, a sister and a brother.

Trittie Ware (Geddy), '26 A.B., died October 4, 1980, in Williamsburg, Virginia, after a long illness. A public school teacher for more than 40 years, she was elected Teacher of the Year in 1967 during her tenure at James Blair High School in Williamsburg. She lived almost her entire life in Toano and was highly active in many civic affairs in the community. She is survived by her son, Bertram E., Jr., also of Toano, three brothers, and two sisters.

Irma Brown (Roane), '29, of Schley, Virginia, died May 11, 1980. A former school teacher, she is survived by one brother.

Shirley Pierce Claud, '31, died November 5, 1980, in Norfolk, Virginia. Formerly Chief Counsel of Atlantic Division Naval Facilities Engineering Command in Norfolk, he was also a retired Commander in the Naval Reserve, and a member of the State Bar for 50 years. He is survived by his widow, the former Marjorie Pruden, and three children.

Solomon R. Fox, '31, died at his home in Norfolk on November 10, 1980. A member of Phi Alpha fraternity, he took undergraduate courses at the College for three years and later earned his law degree from the Marshall Wythe School of Law. He was a member of the Virginia Bar and a practicing lawyer at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, Beverly B. Fox, and a nephew, Alvin Fox, '56.

Norman E. King, '34, died September 16, 1980, in Petersburg, Virginia. A member of Sigma Pi fraternity, he graduated from the Medical College of Virginia in 1938. He served as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Army Medical Corps during World War II. An ear, nose and throat specialist, he was a member of the American Board of Otolaryngology. Prior to his retirement in 1977, he was in private practice in Petersburg, and he served as a consultant for both Kenner Army Hospital and Central State Hospital. He is survived by his widow, Rose McGinnis King, and two sons, Thomas W. of Staunton and Norman, Jr., '64, of Richmond.

Mary Elaine Ferguson, '81, died November 7, 1980, when she was struck by a car as she crossed Route 60 west of Williamsburg. A native of Annandale, Virginia, she was a senior majoring in biology and an announcer for WCWM, the College radio station. She is survived by her mother, Aileen Ferguson of Reston, her father, James E. Ferguson of Arlington, two brothers, and a sister.

James Ronald Burnett, M.Ed. '74, died of a heart attack at his home in Eagle Creek, Oregon on January 31, 1979. He earned his B.S. from Oregon State University in 1956, and earned his degree from William and Mary while he was stationed in Newport News with the U.S. Air Force. A lieutenant colonel, his last USAF assignment was command of the Air R.O.T.C. program at the University of Portland in Oregon. He retired in July 1979, and at the time of his death, he was engaged in the raising of Angus cattle and real estate management. He is survived by his father, Ronald E. Burnett, of Portland.

S. William Houston, GRAD., of Indianapolis, Indiana, died July 10, 1980. He earned his A.B. from St. Lawrence University in 1926.
