THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

A MEMORABLE WEEKEND

College Honors Lambert, Buckley, Hayes, Morgan As 11,000 Attend Commencement Ceremonies

During a commencement weekend that took on a personality of its own, William and Mary honored a distinguished writer, actress, and historian -- as well as one of the fabled names in its recent past -- with honorary degrees on May 17.

William F. Buckley, Jr., the Commencement speaker, actress Helen Hayes, and historian Edmund S. Morgan of Yale University shared the Commencement stage with the well-known J. Wilfred Lambert '27, former teacher and long-time dean of students and administrator at the College.

The Commencement audience of approximately 11,000, one of the largest in College history, gave a warm reception to Buckley who spoke about the "simple freedoms" that Americans enjoy.

"These simple freedoms -- to come and go at will, to read what we wish, to enter and depart our homes or dormitories freely -- are not shared by the majority of the world's people," said Buckley, who received an honorary doctor of humane letters.

"I do believe that you owe America something, that what you owe is to meditate on your blessings -- or our blessings," he said.

Buckley said he had been deeply touched by the seniors' Candlelight Ceremony to which he had been invited the previous evening. He and Mrs. Buckley interrupted their dinner to participate in the proceeding which is reserved particularly for seniors. Other speakers during the evening were Robert Wagner, president of the senior class; Ellen T. King '31, Alexandria, Va.; Molly F. Ashby, a member of the graduating class; Elizabeth B. "Missy" Wright, vice president of the graduating class; Terry L. Meyers, associate professor of English; and W. Samuel Sadler '64, dean of students.

For Miss Hayes, the First Lady of the American Theater, it was an equally busy Commencement Weekend. Receiving her honorary doctor of humane letters to a five-minute standing ovation, she brought her own special kind of magic to the activities of the weekend, charming everyone with her graciousness and apparent joy at being at William and Mary.

She said that while the College was making the presentation of an honorary degree to her, she had loved the College for a long time and felt that it was perhaps the power of her wishing that had brought about the occasion.

At a reception in her honor in the Great Hall of the Wren Building, she became honorary chairman of the Lord Chamberlain Society of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival. She received a pendant, designed by Mike Stousland '41, from Robert S. Hornsby '41, '49 BCL, a member of the Board of Visitors who with his wife Lois is co-chairman of the Society.

From Howard Scammon '34, professor of theatre and speech emeritus and a former department chairman, she received two books on the history of the William and Mary Theatre. One book was edited by Althea Hunt, who established the theatre in 1926, and the other by Scammon.

For Lambert, the weekend included not just the conferring of an honorary doctor of humane letters by the College but the unveiling at a blacktie dinner of his portrait by his son and daughter, Charles F. Lambert and Mrs. Wilford Kale.

The introduction to the unveiling was presented by Arthur B. Hanson '39, '40 BCL, Washington, D.C., who headed the volunteer committee which raised funds for the portrait by artist David Silvette. The committee is also seeking to establish an endowment to support Lambert Scholars, professors at the College who demonstrate the same high degree of dedication and caring for their profession that Lambert showed during his career of nearly 50 years.

For Edmund S. Morgan, Sterling Professor of History at Yale University and a Research Fellow at the Huntington Library, and recipient of the doctor of literature degree from the College, it was an opportunity to renew old ties. He was one of the principal speakers at the 1971 conference on the American Revolution sponsored by the Institute of Early American History and Culture at the College and recipient of the first Douglass Adair Memorial Award given by the Institute for an outstanding article published in the William and Mary Quarterly. Morgan is a leading Early American scholar whose subjects have spanned puritanism in New England to plantation life.

Board Distributes Rosettes To Special Alumni

Two new recognition symbols for the Society are shown above. On the left is the green, gold, and silver lapel rosette which has been awarded to the 77 living green and gold rosette which has been awarded to former members of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni.

Medallion Recipients And Former Board Members To Receive Special Mementoes

The Alumni Board recently distributed rosettes to significant persons in the Society. Feeling that there should be continuing recognition given those who have received the Alumni Medallion, which is the highest recognition the Society can confer, a green, gold, and silver rosette has been presented to those who have received that honor. There have been only 165 medallions awarded since the inception of the award in 1934. There are 77 living recipients who have received the rosette.

At the same time, the Board chose to recognize alumni who have served on the Board of Directors of the Society. It is a responsibility and privilege accorded to a limited number of alumni. There are 58 living former members of the Board of Directors who will be wearing the green and gold rosette.

Should alumni qualify for both rosettes, they have received only the higher recognition, the tri-color representing the medallion.

The rosettes may be worn at any time, but it is particularly appropriate that they be worn at William and Mary functions. All persons who wear either of the rosettes have been recognized for particularly outstanding service to the Society and the College, and deserve the respect and appreciation of all alumni.

Ten Alumni Nominated For Board

West Heads Committee To Select Candidates For Fall Election

The Nominating Committee for the Board of Directors of the Society has released the names of those alumni who will be running for the five open positions on the Alumni Board this fall. The Committee was chaired by Marvin F. West '51 of Williamsburg, Vice President of the Society, and included A. F. Chestnut '41 of Morehead City, N.C.; Bill H. McKinnon '69 of Newport News, Va.; Barbara Berkeley Ukrop '61 of Richmond, Va.; Virginia Forwood Wetter '40 of Havre de Grace, Md.

Four of the nominees are incumbents, running for a second three-year term. They are James W.

Brinkley '59; Executive Vice President of Legg, Mason, Wood, Walker investment firm, and a resident of Towson, Md.; James E. Howard '43, President of Howard Distributing Company of Richmond, Va.; Austin L. Roberts, III '69, President of First Peninsula Bank and Trust Co. of Newport News, Va.; and G. Elliott Schaubach, Jr., '59, Vice President Todd Electric Company of Norfolk, Va. Eligible but declining to accept renomination is Robert H. Land '34 of Alexandria, Va.

First time nominees are Barbara Pate Glacel '70 of West Point, N.Y., who has a Ph.D. degree in political science, and is presently in the Civilian Personnel Division, Department of the Army, West Point, N.Y.; Benjamin F. Hamel, Jr., '50 of Mobile, Ala., a vice president and manager of the Mobile office of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, Inc.; Audrey Murray Harris '60 of Richmond, Va., Assistant to Speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates for three sessions and former teacher; Alice Williams Phillips '52 of Richmond, Va., professional staff person for several projects of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia; John H. Tucker, Jr., '54 of Norfolk, Headmaster, The Norfolk Academy; James S. Watts '66 of Salem, Va.; Treasurer of the Shenandoah Tool and Supply Company, Inc. Tucker and Watts are both former presidents of the Roanoke Alumni Chapter.

In early September ballots will be mailed to all alumni who have contributed financially to The William and Mary Fund during the previous year, or current fiscal year to date or to any of the other recognized funds of the College, including the Athletic Educational Foundation. Results of the balloting will be announced at the Annual Meeting held on Homecoming weekend, Friday, November 6, 1981.

Editor's Notebook

For the last 16 years, I have had the pleasure of close association with the alumni of the College as the editor of The Alumni Gazette. In recent years, through this regular column, I have been able to help interpret for the Gazette's readers some of the trends affecting higher education and William and Mary in particular, and call attention to some of the lesser-known aspects, and the personalities, that make up this College community.

At this writing, I have begun service as executive director of the Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation, but hope not to lose the privilege of a continuing relationship with the thousands of fine individuals whom I have had the chance to know since 1965 through the College.

The College, I sincerely feel, has moved into the ranks of the best institutions of higher learning in the nation. It has always been prestigious, perhaps mainly because of its history; but its degrees are now more respected than ever before.

William and Mary has an outstanding faculty. With the emphasis, quite properly, on teaching at this college, the faculty may have fewer "stars" who make the news and attract public attention for many other universities. The respect for a William and Mary diploma, shown at an increasing number of graduate and professional schools and among employers, is some evidence that the College's faculty is making "the news" in important ways that escape the public's attention.

The College's students are more and more carefully selected, and greater attention is being paid than ever before to their overall capacity to contribute to this unusual academic and social community. They are highly motivated young men and women, and have a variety of talents to bring to Williamsburg with them.

But the alumni, just as the faculty and students, are also an unusual group. For the most part, they are supportive of their alma mater, when they find ways to be of some service to William and Mary. I have found, as editor, that they are interested in keeping up to date on the College and are concerned about the problems that face William and Mary and many other institutions which are trying to protect and enhance high quality in what they do.

It has been a wonderful experience, and I have enjoyed so much my association--although not as an alumnus--with the College, its administrators, faculty and students, and through the Society of the Alumni, with those who do call William and Mary their alma mater.

FACULTY NOTES:

Monson Receives NEH Grant; Dolmetsch To Teach In Europe

Donald A. Monson, associate professor of modern languages and literatures, has received a grant to attend a National Endowment for the Humanities seminar this summer at Princeton University.

This seminar will be conducted by Francois Rigolot, professor of Romance languages. Rigolot was on campus in March to give the first of two Bellini Lectures. The series was established this year and named for Charles Bellini of Florence who was named to the first American chair of modern languages at the College in 1779. The seminar will deal with modern critical theory and French poetry.

John F. Kottas, Zollinger Professor of Business Administration, has published a paper entitled "Some Problems With Transient Phenomena When Simulating Unpaced Lines" in the Journal of Operations Management. This paper was co-authored by Hon-Shiang Lau of Washington State University.

David Kranbuehl, associate professor of chemistry, has been awarded a six-month $10,000 award from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to conduct studies on characterizing high-temperature polyimide polymers. The total amount awarded to date in support of this project is $110,482.

William Bullock, Jr. and Clifton Conrad, School of Education, have published a book entitled Management: Perspectives from the Social Sciences. University Press of America is the publisher. The book is organized around key concepts in four social science disciplines - anthropology, sociology, political science, and psychology - examining each concept or field of study and its implications for managing as a process of control. The book is intended for use in graduate management courses and as supplementary reading material for practicing managers. Excerpts from the book on humor and play have formed the theme of several speeches presented to federal executive personnel and senior military officers.

Carl Dolmetsch, professor of English, will be a visiting professor at the Free University of Berlin during the 1981-82 academic year. Dolmetsch will be on leave from William and Mary to teach courses in Southern fiction and the American musical theatre in the Free University's John F. Kennedy Institute of North American Studies.

A faculty member since 1959, Dolmetsch was English department chairman from 1970-1976. This is his second appointment in Berlin. During his first appointment from 1964 to 1966, he held a Fulbright-Hays Senior Lectureship. In 1977 he had a Fulbright chair at the University of Erlangen in Bavaria.

Inside Admissions

Nearly 6,000 Apply For 1,100 Spaces

by G. Gary Ripple
Dean of Undergraduate Admissions

The freshman class which will enter William and Mary in August was selected by the Admissions Staff from a pool of 5776 applicants. Virginians comprised 40% of that pool, 2335; while non-residents composed the higher percentage with 3441 this year. While admission has been offered to only 2019 (35%) of our aspirants, it should be noted that acceptance was extended to 53% of all the Virginians but to only 23% of the non-residents. It is anticipated that our entering freshman class of 1100 students will consist of 725 Virginians and 375 non-Virginians.

The transfer picture was also quite competitive. Applications were received from 356 Virginians and 462 non-Virginians (a total of 818), all vying for just 92 anticipated vacancies in our upper classes for the fall semester. This translates to a 17 to 1 applicant to vacancy ratio for out-of-state transfer applicants! Only 116 Virginians and 49 non-Virginian transfer applicants have been offered admission for the total of 92 spaces available.

In accordance with the policy statement approved by our Board of Visitors, the applications of alumni children were given preference where other considerations were essentially equal. For freshman candidates with alumni parents, 60% of the Virginians and 46% of the non-Virginians have been offered admission to the College.

As our admissions year draws to a close, Rex Tillotson '69 M.Ed., Juanita Wallace, Karen Schoenenberger '66, '69 M.Ed. and I will be spending the summer months statistically analyzing the data generated by the current year, planning for our next admissions cycle which will culminate in August of 1982, and catching a few days of greatly anticipated vacation time before the hectic season begins in late August. We do hope that alumni sons and daughters who hope to be candidates for the College in 1982 will plan ahead and schedule some time for a visit on campus to learn more about the College as it exists today and to receive personal college counseling from a member of our professional staff. We look forward to meeting our future candidates and do hope they will call us far enough in advance of their anticipated visit to facilitate the scheduling of a personal interview in our office.

Swimmers Throw A Surprise Party

Dudley Jensen Honored For 30 Years of Coaching

It was supposed to be a simple end-of-the-season party, the kind swimming coach Dudley Jensen has been giving at his home for his William and Mary team for many years.

But early into the evening, Coach Jensen realized there was something different about this party. Not only did his current team members show up at his home, but many swimmers from his 30 years of coaching began appearing at his door. They came from all parts of the country -- from Texas, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, and Florida.

By the time the evening ended, Jensen, who retired this year as swimming coach after 30 years on the job, was flush with nostalgia and emotion. Throughout the evening, phone calls came from former swimmers who couldn't make the journey to Williamsburg for the party.

The surprise party had been arranged by Jensen's former assistant coach Wally Riley '56, Jensen's wife Vivian, by the new head coach Keith Havens '76, who had also been an assistant coach to Jensen, and by 1981 swim team captain Bill Weihs '80.

Riley explained that swimmers at William and Mary have been "a close-knit group." They receive an annual newsletter from the Coach, so the addresses of most of the swimmers going back over the past 30 years were available.

"We divided up the names," said Riley, "and I took all of the alumni from '71 back to 1951 and Vivian and Keith took the swimmers since '71."

They then wrote letters to the former swimmers inviting them to the retirement party on April 4 and asking them to contribute to a present. Riley estimates that more than 125 people came to the party, nearly all of them contributed to the present -- a rolltop desk -- and many of those who couldn't attend called Jensen during the party.

Riley said the turnout reflected the "tremendous affection" felt for Jensen who had held swimming together as a sport at William and Mary since he became coach in 1951 after Dr. George Oliver, acting athletic director and chairman of the Department of Education, asked him to "help out a little bit."

Jensen not only helped out, but stayed longer as head coach than probably any other head coach of a men's sport in William and Mary history. And that was tough, said Riley, a former William and Mary swimmer himself who graduated from the College "after nine years and two wars," because of the tight budgets and the "little bit you have to work with at the College."

What Jensen did have to work with was a group of committed swimmers and good students. He said it "was almost embarrassing" to see how successful many of them had become since graduation. His former swimmers include doctors, lawyers, bankers, a financial consultant, an Episcopal priest, teachers and a college professor.

For one former swimmer who returned, the party had special meaning. The Reverend Edward A. Wisbauer '52, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y., swam for one of Jensen's first teams, but because of an oversight, he never received his varsity letter. Learning of the mistake, Riley arranged a special ceremony at Jensen's party to give Father Wisbauer his letter -- only 29 years later.

Others who attended the party included Jim Hall '52, Portsmouth; Scott O. Petrequin '53, Scotia, N.Y.; David B. Diehr '61, Waco, Tex.; B. David Kurland, '61, Hartford, Conn.; Chris E. Herr Jr. '62, Lancaster, Pa.; David C. Buckle '63, Williamsburg; James L. Walker '68, Norfolk; Phil Sparks '68, Alexandria; John Greene '70, Hampton, Va.; Wayde Harrison '68, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Joe Ackerman '73, West Palm Beach, Fla. and Gordon "Geep" Howell '72, Lynchburg.

Rick Platt '72, Williamsburg; Kerry Dearfield '74, Pittsburgh; Dodge

Havens '75, Richmond; Rick Rheinhardt '76, Williamsburg; David Smith '77, Washington, D.C.; Bruce Hartzler '77, Williamsburg; Keith Phillips '77, Williamsburg; John F. Phillips '78, Ocean Park, N.J.; John Kennedy '79, Richmond; Harold Baker '79, Williamsburg; Mike Hennessy '79, Williamsburg; W. David Clark '79, Petersburg; Bill Harding '79, Richmond; Keith Sullivan '80, Philadelphia; Ed McLeod '80, Williamsburg; Doug Slater '80, Williamsburg; and Tom Holmberg '80, Chicago.

Several members of the men's physical education department also attended. They included Howard M. Smith '43, the long-time chairman of the department and swimming coach from 1947-51; Joe Agee '52, Monte Linkenhauser '51, and Ed Jones '57.

Jensen will continue to teach in the men's physical education department and to assist new coach Keith Havens.

Howard M. Smith '43 (left) and Wally Riley '56 (right) got together with Coach Dudley Jensen (third from right) and three members of the 1952 swim team for a reunion photo. Next to Smith is Scott Petrequin '53, Scotia, N.Y., captain of the 1952-53 team. At his left is Jim Hall '52, Portsmouth, and (next to Jensen) the Reverend Edward A. Wisbauer '52, Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y. Smith served as chairman of the men's physical education department for many years and Riley was Jensen's assistant coach for 20 years.

Alumni Society Bids Trudi Farewell

After 26 Years At The Front Desk, Trudi Topping Retires

Trudi Topping is a modest person. But thousands of William and Mary alumni who have returned to campus over the last 26 years have good reason to praise her -- and to miss her -- as she is retiring July 1 from her work at Alumni House. Trudi has had the ability to make each visit a Homecoming for alumni, and her quarter-century with the Society of the Alumni has meant a great deal to her. "It has been 26 years of working with kind, interesting people -- I shall miss them all so much."

She recently took time to reminisce about her experiences, sitting in beautiful and familiar surroundings -- Alumni House. She came to work for the Society in 1955, when James S. Kelly '51, now assistant to the President, was its executive secretary, and its headquarters, The Brafferton.

"There were three of us in the office," she says, "and it is amazing how we carried on Homecoming, Burgesses Day, and all such events -- but of course there were fewer alumni."

Since The Brafferton was so strategically located, students came in and out all the time, and that suited Trudi just fine. Her warm regard for William and Mary students goes back a long way, and she laughs about her introduction to campus activities: a panty raid.

"When I first moved here, there was a panty raid one night, and I didn't know what that was. Hundreds of men students were all chanting, 'On to Chandler! On to Sorority Court! and they yelled for panties outside the girls' windows.' At the time, she and her small daughter Muffin were living in College housing at nearby Brown Annex. Trudi was unnaturally pale the next day when she reported to work, until her associates explained the student tradition.

Trudi was also a chaperone for the Kappa Sigs when they were housed in one of the lodges on Fraternity Row, and she glows in speaking of them.

"They were wonderful young men, a perfect cross section of the campus," she remembers. "They are now leaders in their communities, with beautiful wives and families."

One of her favorite memories is of the Kappa Sigma serenades in the evenings, often held when a coed had become engaged to one of the brothers. Trudi was one of their sweethearts, too, presented with red roses.

"They wore dinner jackets as they serenaded," she recalls, "and I'll always remember Steve Oaks '59 wearing his good looking bermudas with his dinner jacket."

The students have become alumni, and many are among the cherished friends she has in the professions, the arts, business, government and all walks of life.

"Many have visited Alumni House through the years," Trudi says, recalling that from The Brafferton, alumni headquarters were moved to the second floor of Ewell Hall, "where we were lost," she says. Trudi is well satisfied by the growing sentimental commitment of students and alumni to the Alumni Society's home since 1972, the former Bright House. While she has assisted alumni there with everything from directions to getting reservations in town, she has helped a number of non-alumni as well. One of her most comical memories is of a lady who came to her desk asking for "Room 203." When Trudi answered, "We don't have room numbers here," the woman snapped, "You don't have room numbers in a hotel?" In a flash, Trudi understood - the visitor thought she was in the Williamsburg Hospitality House across the street on Richmond Road.

One of the most heartwarming experiences of her twenty-six years was being made an honorary member of three classes, 1939, 1940 and 1941. "I am so proud of this tribute," she said.

A faithful associate worked by her side for 15 years - chasing squirrels in her spare time. "Lady" was a small collie, an abandoned Sheltie whom Trudi took in as her own off the street.

"People still ask about her," she says.

In a serious vein, she marvels at the leap in size of Alumni House staff -- from three in the "olden days," to eleven under executive secretary Gordon C. Vliet '54 with a battery of student helpers to assist on special occasions. One of Trudi's assignments since the start has been class notes editor for The Alumni Gazette. With a sweeping gesture, she describes how Gazette editors in the late 50's like Fred L. Frechette '46 and Will Molineux '56 used to lay out the magazine on the floor, with Jim Kelly '51 supervising. Of the class notes, she comments, "The class reporters have been marvelous -- so enthusiastic and cooperative."

Another of her favorite alumni stories is of two people who returned for their Fiftieth Reunion. They had dated in college, but had gone their separate ways after graduation.

Trudi Topping, who has greeted thousands of alumni over the past 26 years, will retire July 1.

"Well, they fell in love at the reunion, and were married the next spring," Trudi says. She also smiles to remember the homesick students who came to her to talk, including a seven-foot tall "star of the basketball court" from Chicago.

Her daughter Muffin is now 28 and the mother of three; and Trudi finds it difficult to believe that she has been at the College for the administrations of three presidents: Alvin Duke Chandler '22, Davis Y. Paschall '32 and Thomas A. Graves, Jr.

Her plans for the future are as flexible as Trudi herself, and they might even involve moving to a larger city in time. She maintains, however, that the College of William and Mary "has one of the most beautiful campuses," and she says, "I'm going to miss the alumni so much -- what will I do? They're all such friendly, warm people."

As for Homecoming, and the excitement and nostalgia it brings, Trudi looks back with a wealth of happy memories. "So many of my returning friends made me feel like a member of the alumni family," she says.

Trudi, you are.

Brent Cirves '81 Wins Two Writing Awards

Brent Allen Cirves '81 of Monroe, N.H., won two of the annual College-wide writing awards for 1981.

Announced at Commencement, the prizes are underwritten primarily by the Society of the Alumni. Cirves received the Glenwood Clark Fiction Prize and the prize for the best piece of student writing regardless of type.

Crista Ruth Cabe, a junior from Waynesboro, Va., won the Goronwy Owen Poetry Prize, and Margaret Claire Stephens '81, Fredericksburg, won the Howard Scammon Drama Prize.

The achievement of Cirves in this regard has been exceptional. In 1979 as a sophomore he also won the Clark and Jones prizes. This spring he received Highest Honors, the first such distinction earned by creative writing, from the English Department. Neither judging committee knew at the time of its decision that Cirves would be honored by the other, and the pieces of fiction singled out were different.

Presentation of Literary Awards is made by Stephen Marlowe '49, 1980-81 Writer in Residence, to Brent Cirves '81 and Crista Cabe '81.

Class of 1931 Joins The Olde Guarde

61 Members Gather At College For Commencement Weekend Induction

Weekend Commencement festivities marked the return of 61 members of the Class of 1931 accompanied by spouses, family and friends. Class members celebrated the 50th Reunion with activities which included a luncheon at the Alumni House, a Saturday night formal banquet in the Great Hall of the Wren Building, a memorial service in the Wren Chapel, a champagne luncheon at the College Commons concluding with the Commencement Exercises at William and Mary Hall.

Programming included addresses by William B. Spong, Dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law; Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32, 23rd President of the College, and President Graves, as well as by a musical presentation by the William and Mary Choir under the direction of Dr. Frank Lendrim.

The spring observance of the 50th Reunion activities began in 1975 with the Class of 1925.

Plans for the weekend were directed by the Class of '31 Reunion Committee made up of Ellen Ticer King (Alexandria), chairman; Dr. Milton Salasky (Norfolk), vice chairman; Jeromé Carr (Portsmouth), secretary-treasurer; Katherine Lam (Norfolk), and by Arthur Rodgers, Jr., Agnes Winn Paschall and Thomas McCaskey, all of Williamsburg.

The Class History - titled "Those Were The Days"--was a joint creative venture by Dr. and Mrs. Paschall. The history was read to the Class at the Saturday luncheon.

Reunion Committee Chairman Ellen Ticer King addresses class members at the Saturday luncheon held on the newly constructed patio area at the Alumni House.

"Shared memories are the golden thread that knits the generations each to each in love for our Alma Mater. Now, in 1981, we do REMEMBER."

The Class of 1931, attired in academic regalia, received an ovation from the Class of 1981 and the audience of about 11,000 in William and Mary Hall during the Commencement Exercises.

Thomas Glenn McCaskey '31, Williamsburg, surprises Vernon L. Nunn '25, former treasurer-auditor of the College and special friend of the Class of '31, with a special gift and words of commendation for his long time service to William and Mary. The specially designed pewter plate included the inscribed words, "with gratitude and fond remembrances."

At the Saturday evening social hour in the Alumni House, Reunion Committee members, Katherine Lam '31, Norfolk, and Ellen Ticer King '31, Alexandria, shared thoughts on the weekend activities. Also pictured are Stanley King '26, Alexandria, (member of the Olde Guarde Council) conferring with Jerome Carr '31 of Portsmouth.

Edwards Steps Down As Dean

Arts and Sciences Dean Returns to Teaching After Seven Years In Administration

If Jack Edwards, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at William and Mary, is going to give one piece of advice to his successor, it is that MBWA - Management by Walking Around - is at least as effective as MBO - Management by Objectives.

"I would suggest to anyone on the job that they spend a great deal of time talking to people, trying to get to know them and their aspirations. It doesn't make the job any easier but it does give people more confidence that you are trying to help them. We have a very good faculty with a proud history of accomplishment and a good deal of pride in faculty governance," said Edwards.

Edwards will return to full time teaching in the department of government in the fall. He is being succeeded as Dean by Zeddie Paul Bowen, Provost of Beloit College in Wisconsin.

"Most faculty," said Edwards, "take a good deal of interest in and have a great stake in the affairs of the College. This is a healthy situation."

"We hear a lot of talk about leadership," said Edwards, "but the fact is that most people in administration spend much of their time working for others." Edwards said he saw his role to be principally one of a facilitator for things people wanted to get done.

Edwards plans to write about his term as Dean this summer. He says it will be a view of where we stand now.

Edwards took over as Dean in 1974 succeeding the late Harold Lees Fowler, a highly respected historian and a senior faculty member. The style of the two men was very different. Edwards says he feels one of his most important contributions has been to establish and develop guidelines and acceptance of policies concerning determination of faculty salaries, tenure procedures and how funds are allocated in various ways.

It was a time, he says of his term, when no great changes were made. "It was a time of resource shortages. The faculty was not looking to make major changes, there were no deep structural changes made in degree requirements."

Ask Edwards if he is happy to be going back to his old job in the classroom and his response is instant and a broad grin spreads across his face. Yes, he is very happy to get back into the classroom. One of the things he says he missed as dean was the continuing contact with students. In the office in James Blair he had a lot of contact with students but it was usually in a stressful situation: "Was the College going to bend the rules to help them through a crisis?"

Asked why he picked this particular time to leave the administration, Edwards said he had decided there was no good time; it was just something he felt he had to do. "I had to decide," he said, "whether I wanted to become a career administrator or a teacher. . . The longer I waited to make the decision the harder it was going to be."

"I look forward to going back to teaching. One of the greatest satis-

Jack Edwards, who has served as Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences since 1974, will be succeeded by Zeddie Bowen, provost of Beloit College in Wisconsin.

factions of the work is working with students. Almost all of us believe that or we wouldn't have gone into teaching. But I'll miss the challenges of this job," he said.

Edwards is a specialist in American Politics and Constitutional Law. He joined the faculty in 1962. He has a B.A. degree from Macalester, a law degree from Harvard and a doctorate from Vanderbilt.

As well as carrying the responsibilities of his administrative duties, Edwards has been an active participant in the community on the Board of Supervisors for James City County.

Alumni Can Help Correct Misuse of College Name

The Society of the Alumni has prepared a postcard in an effort to minimize the misuse of the College's name in the media.

Although the Royal Charter and subsequent documents have established that the College will always be known as THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY IN VIRGINIA, its name appears in the media frequently as WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE.

Any alumni who would like copies of the postcard to send to the media when they see the College's name misused should please write to the Society of the Alumni, Box GO, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

Letters To The Editor

Editor:

It is suggested that a correction be published to that portion of Anne Chapman's article which stated that Hugh Blair Grigsby was a descendant of the Reverend James Blair.

It is generally accepted that the famed Commissary and his wife, Sarah Harrison, had no children.

As far as I know, Hugh Blair Grigsby was not related to the Virginia Blairs.

The Reverend Hugh Blair was a well known Scottish minister whose sermons were widely read in America. Hugh Blair Grigsby was most likely named after this Scottish minister by his parents who were impressed by his sermons.

Yours truly,

R. J. Alfriend, III '43

Editor:

The recent article in the Alumni Gazette on Dr. Guy was great, and brought back fond memories of him. I'm very much afraid he would take off a point or two for Mr. Rees' having misspelled the word misspelled; however, contrary to Dr. Armstrong's opinion, I believe Professor Guy would forgive him for the error. He didn't say a word to me when I blew up a test tube one afternoon which seems a far worse offense.

Sincerely,

E. P. Sprinkler, Ed. '51

Editor:

As a former Fine Arts major at William and Mary I enjoyed Parke Rouse Jr.'s article about the Fine Arts Department in the Winter 1981 issue of the Alumni Gazette.

I was most interested in reading about the beginnings of the Fine Arts Department and events which happened just before I entered William and Mary in the fall of 1939. I had missed the elaborate theatricals of 1937 and was interested to find out where the Georgia O'Keeffe painting (in the Fine Arts Library) came from. It was also good to see photos of Edwin (Ted) Reist's 3-story water fall, which I imagine, was demolished with the Fine Arts building.

I wanted to point out a discrepancy in the article by Mr. Rouse. Edwin Reist was head of the Fine Arts Department when I entered the college in 1939, and was succeeded by Thomas Thorne when he left two (?) years later. The author lists Thomas Thorne, on page 24, as succeeding Leslie Cheek, Jr., as head of the department, leaving out the years of Ted Reist's chairmanship. He was enthusiastic, clever, innovative and full of great ideas, so his few years of leadership shouldn't be ignored. I still feel inspired after all these years just reading about him!

Sincerely,
Joan Wallace Clement '43

A Modern-Day Horatio Alger Story

Jim McGlothlin Creates Coal Empire From $472 Investment

James W. McGlothlin is one of a kind. A graduate of both the College (B.A. '62) and the Marshall-Wythe School of Law (B.C.L. '64), he has used his education and native abilities to create one of the 20 largest coal producing companies in the United States.

That in itself is remarkable, but consider this: United Coal Company, the largest privately owned coal company in the nation, was founded only 11 years ago, from an initial investment of $472.

If that sounds like a Horatio Alger story, perhaps it is. But there is more to the story than one man's accomplishments, according to Jim McGlothlin.

"I suspect that if we have any success, it's because of our work with personnel," McGlothlin says proudly. Speaking of United's almost 2,000 employees, he adds, "For the most part, we're non-union. We have innovative employee incentive and benefit programs keyed to production, and people feel like they're as much owners of the company as we are." Traditionally, the coal industry has had its share of labor problems, so United Coal Company's open door policy with employees, its labor and management techniques have made it a model in the field.

In addition to benefit growth, employees can share in career growth as well. "Through our growth, an employee in an hourly position this year may be in a management position next year," McGlothlin says. Not surprisingly, most of the top management positions at United Coal are filled from the inside, another example of the company's valued relationship with its employees.

McGlothlin, as executive officer, and his partners oversee the multi-million dollar business from United Coal Company headquarters in Bristol, Virginia, on the former Sullins College campus. In describing his company, McGlothlin says simply, "We own coal and steel interests in about 27 states, with coal mines in Virginia, Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and Oklahoma. We own steel mills in Illinois and Alabama." United also sells mine, mill and industrial supplies in 16 states.

What steered McGlothlin toward leadership in the coal industry? To begin with, he grew up in coal-rich Southwestern Virginia.

"My father was an accountant for a coal business after college, then he owned a few mines," McGlothlin said. "But he was out of the business before I got into it."

McGlothlin "got into it" after about eight years of practicing law in Grundy, Virginia, not far from Bristol. He explains: "I was representing more and more coal clients. As the government became more involved, I became more involved in representing my clients -- it's a natural thing for an attorney to be involved in an industry which the government believes in regulating from top to bottom."

Corporate headquarters of the United Coal Company is on former Sullins College campus from which McGlothlin directs his coal and steel interests in 27 states. McGlothlin's company purchased the college, formerly a private, two year girls school located in Bristol, Va., in 1976.

When the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act was passed in 1969, it whetted McGlothlin's interest because the Act had bad points as well as good ones. He brought a law suit to enjoin it, and came to believe through subsequent discussions with top people in the coal industry that he could make some positive contributions. So when McGlothlin was offered a coal mine for $472 one day while sitting on a park bench outside the Grundy Courthouse, fate stepped in.

McGlothlin faces heavy demands on his time, not only as executive officer of United Coal Company, but as a member of the board of directors of an impressive number of organizations. They range from the Virginia Coal Association to Bassett Furniture Industries. McGlothlin is a commissioner of the Virginia Port Authority and a member of the Virginia General Assembly Legislative Compensation Committee, which sets the salaries for General Assembly members. He is also a trustee of the Endowment Association of the College.

The young executive speaks warmly of his association with William and Mary.

"I guess I was inspired by the entire College -- Dean Dudley Woodbridge was a tremendous inspiration in my law background," he says. "You saw a man who was impeccably honest, forthright and very learned. He could explain everything in basic terms, and his teaching was straightforward and simple -- it was a delight to go to class."

McGlothlin says that his law background helps in the acquisition and organization of companies that United purchases, of which there have already been some 45. He possesses keen foresight, and has some interesting predictions about America's energy future.

"I believe coal is the only answer to our energy crisis in this country, together with the environmental crisis," he states emphatically. "I'm not anti-nuclear, but apparently the country is, and we can't continue with oil."

He adds, "We have 300 to 400 years worth of coal, and we're now aware how to burn coal safely in the environment. Through synthetic fuel plants, we can turn coal into liquid fuels: natural gas and fuel oil."

"Synfuels" are one of United Coal's latest projects, and McGlothlin says the company is starting to build plants in the U.S. "It's not a new method--Hitler did it in World War II." Since that time, however, techniques for creating synthetic fuels have been refined to the point that South Africa derives its fuel supplies today from such plants.

Finding new uses for coal is one of United Coal's goals for the future, and McGlothlin has a prediction about that, too. "By the turn of the century, we'll supply our energy needs through coal," he says.

The problems and satisfactions that go hand in hand with McGlothlin's involvement as president of

James W. McGlothlin '62, BCL '64

United Coal Company don't overwhelm him. An important part of his life is daughter Melinda Anne, who just turned 14. He also finds time for golf and tennis, and community activities, although he wishes he had more time to spend on them.

While McGlothlin modestly credits "having good people" for much of his success, the reverse is also true. Without him, $472, and a park bench near the Grundy Courthouse, the American coal industry would be the poorer. For just as Jim McGlothlin waited tables and drove a school bus during all of his seven years at William and Mary, he still makes his goals a reality today, through the belief that "anything is attainable."

Doing Your Best Is A Life-Time Job

All-American Tribe Swimmer Receives Sullivan Award

Jenny Tatnall '81 describes athletic success as "looking at what you have accomplished with the satisfaction that you have put your best into it." "It's not doing All-American times or winning races; success is satisfaction and pride," she says.

As the winner of the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award, women's athletics Outstanding Achievement Award, and four years of All-American National Swimming Awards, Tatnall certainly has some accomplishments to reflect upon with pride.

She received the Sullivan Award at Commencement ceremonies for her work in coaching and teaching 50 youngsters during the summer months at the Williamsburg Indigo Park pool. Tatnall was also a member of Volunteers for Youth for two years, and fit the Sullivan criteria of characteristics of "heart, mind and conduct as evince a spirit of love for and helpfulness to other men and women."

Tatnall was one of three student-athletes who won top awards at Commencement. Keith Best, a running back for the Tribe football team, received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award along with Tatnall, and Lynn Norenberg, the All-American women's basketball player, received the James Frederick Carr Memorial Cup which is awarded on the basis of character, scholarship and leadership.

A swimming co-captain her junior and senior seasons, Tatnall was a stabilizing influence on William and Mary swimmers and her leadership kept everything "squared away" on the team. She was recognized for Outstanding Achievement in women's athletics both for her leadership and her performance in the water. She has been a work-horse over the years turning in her best times when the team needed them, and, although a freestyler, swimming in events that lacked entrants from William and Mary such as the butterfly.

A swimmer from the age of six she came to William and Mary because of the academic and athletic mix after being selected All-State in swimming her four years at Plymouth Whitmarsh High School in Lafayette Hill, Pennsylvania, and graduating first in her class.

Her freshman year, Tatnall placed third in the 500, fourth in the 1,650, fifth in the 200 and eleventh in the 100 freestyle events earning All-American status for the first time at nationals. This performance was in spite of stepping out of the pool from the grueling 1,650 yards back onto the starting blocks for the 100 freestyle and then a few events later anchoring the 400 free relay (where she turned in a :54 split for her best time in the 100 yards).

"My freshman year was my best performance wise but my sophomore year was my most satisfying season," says Tatnall. If her performance slipped any, the record book does not reflect it.

She turned in more career bests at the national meet with a sixth place finish in the 1,650 (swimming a negative split with each leg faster) despite the Reno, Nevada, altitude. Tatnall also placed sixth in the 100 freestyle and was a member of the second place 200 and 400 free relays --the two highest placing relays in William and Mary swimming history.

During the regular season, Tatnall also set a new pool record which still stands in the 1,000 freestyle with a 10:51.101 personal best time. Her junior year Tatnall was a member of two All-American relays and this year she capped off her career on the fifth place 200 medley relay, twelfth place 200 free relay and fourteenth place 400 Medley relay.

Her name is currently on the W&M record books as the women's record holder in all freestyle events: the 200, 500, 1,000 and 1,650 yard freestyles. She is also a member of the record holding relay teams in all events: the 200 free, 200 medley, 400 free, 400 medley and 800 free.

A 3.0 Computer Science graduate, Tatnall will begin work August 3 in Systems Applications for Reynolds Metals in Richmond. And swimming may well remain a part of her life. "I'm thinking about starting some kind of an AAU team," she says. "If I stayed in swimming it would probably be in coaching."

Old Age Catches Up With Tyler Hall

Old age and the high cost of renovation have caught up with Tyler Hall at William and Mary.

For the first time this fall, Tyler will not be used for student housing.

John D. Morgan, associate dean of students for residence hall life, says that the basic structure of the building does not lend itself to renovation within the constraints of current budgets. Tyler Hall will be used for general storage initially and will probably be razed at some time in the future.

Tyler Hall opened in 1915 and was named for President John Tyler, an alumnus, (1806) and Lyon G. Tyler, president of the College.

Tyler originally had 28 rooms, some of which had separate study and sleeping apartments and hall baths. Hall baths were preferred because they provided more space for rooms.

Tyler Annex was added around 1920-21. It was a temporary dormitory for women and was moved from Penniman Road which at that time was an Army Camp.

The final addition, Tyler Conservatory, was added in 1926. The Conservatory (the old greenhouse) was removed around 1957.

A New Season of Shakespeare

Virginia Shakespeare Festival Enters Fourth Year on Firm Footing

With the momentum of its first profitable season in its brief history, the Virginia Shakespeare Festival is ready to launch its fourth season in July with two veteran theatre directors.

Artistic director Kent Thompson '75 has selected Gavin Cameron-Webb of St. Louis to direct the Festival's production of "Julius Caesar" and Thomas Gruenewald of New York to direct "The Tempest." Thompson will direct the Festival's third presentation, "Two Gentlemen of Verona."

Cameron-Webb, a British director, recently completed his fourth year as head of the actor training program at Webster College in St. Louis, where he worked with the Loretto-Hilton Repertory Company, a major regional theater in St. Louis. Gruenewald is a widely-acclaimed New Yorker who has directed at regional theatres such as New York's Hudson Guild Theatre, the American Place Theater, and the Phoenix; the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C.; and the Guthrie Theatre.

Last year, for the first time, the Festival, which will be performed nightly, except Mondays, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall from July 9 through August 16, turned a small profit with the help of a major promotional effort by the College. After the season ended, the College announced a long-term commitment to the Festival.

The College continued to increase its support this year with the establishment of the Lord Chamberlain Society, a group of private donors headed by Robert S. Hornsby '41, '49 BCL, and his wife Lois. The Society has raised approximately $7,000 in private gifts to support the Festival.

Thompson, who has been associated with the Festival since its modest beginning in the summer of 1978, held auditions in several cities, including New York, to select the actors and actresses for this year's productions. He has promised "three completely different worlds on the stage this summer," with three brand-new, specifically designed sets to fit the exotic settings of each production, as well as lavish period costumes, and even some special stage effects.

The 1981 season opens Thursday July 9 with "Julius Caesar," Shakespeare's political tragedy set against the turmoil and splendor of ancient Rome.

"The Tempest," which opens Tuesday, July 14, will provide the greatest artistic and technical challenge ever encountered by the company. The play begins with the terrible storm, and Thompson says he hopes to use pyrotechnics and other effects to take the audience into the mystical world of an uninhabited island.

"As far as we know, 'The Tempest' is based on the experiences of settlers enroute to the struggling colony of Jamestown in 1609," says Thompson. The colonists' ship, the Sea Venture, was shipwrecked in the Bermudas, and several survivors wandered the deserted islands for months until they were rescued.

The survivors told of their exotic adventures when they returned to England, and evidence indicates that Shakespeare used some of the accounts to fashion his magical and enduring tale.

"'The Tempest' reorients us--particularly here in Williamsburg--to what this continent must have seemed like in 1609 to the Europeans," says Thompson. They were possessed with the idea that the Helen Hayes, the first lady of the American theater, beams at a ceremony in the Great Hall of the Wren Building during Commencement Weekend, at which she became the Honorary Chairman of the Lord Chamberlain Society of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival. At left is Kent Thompson '75, artistic director for the Festival which begins its fourth season with a performance of "Julius Caesar" on July 9. Thompson has been with the Festival since its beginning.

New World was either a paradise or a demon-filled magic place." With Shakespeare's touch, "The Tempest" becomes a little of both.

Rounding out the six-week season is "Two Gentlemen of Verona," scheduled to open Friday, July 17.

Also included in the more diverse 1981 season are special programs for the public. The Festival will hold matinee performances especially for children which will include a short explanation of the play, introduction of the actors and their characters and a backstage tour.

Tickets for individual performances are $8 for the orchestra section, $6 for the main floor and $4 for the balcony. All children's tickets are one-half the adult price. For ticket information, group rates and reservations, call the Festival box office at (804) 253-4469.

Mrs. J. Stuart White
(L. Helen Smith)
140 Towne Square Drive
Newport News, Va. 23607

Finally, our long awaited warm/hot days have arrived!

Tony Everett has recently returned from a beautiful weekend at Nag's Head. He writes of the quietness one finds there especially in the spring and fall. He recalls the recent International Scottish Festival of Arts held in Norfolk and relates the pleasure of meeting Lady Dunmore of Scotland who was an honored guest. He also brings to memory that it was her husband's ancestor, Lord Dunmore, who burned Norfolk during the Revolution. He then adds - "However, after all these years all is forgiven and Lady Dunmore is an 'Honorary Citizen of Norfolk'." Tony is busy with his garden and says, "Days of retirement go swiftly by and it is only when I realize I am of the Class of '25 do I know I'm getting old -- but enjoying each day."

I received a card from one of our classmates, written so finely that my aging eyes cannot read it. It bears no signature - only three initials - and the card bears no postmark, therefore, I regret to say I cannot use the news for which I am not apologetic.

Dot and Red Campbell, our world travelers, are still on the move! They write, "We had a good winter in Florida even though the temperature was cooler than normal." They spent Christmas at home, "first time in years," but it was a very special reason. It was to be with their first great grandson on his first Christmas. And also, they shared his first birthday on February 28th, although it was actually on the 29th. Now, that is a great way to solve staying young, be a Leap Year baby. Prior to that they had been to attend an Engineers Symposium in Winston-Salem, N.C., where Red was an honored guest. As they began their trek homeward they stopped to visit Liz and Vernon Nunn on Jekyll Island and enjoyed a delightful visit with them. The last of May they were planning to enjoy the mountains of North Carolina after which they will be home in Aiken.

From Vernon Nunn it was good news to hear that he and Liz had a most pleasant stay of three months on Jekyll Island and that the highlight of the whole thing was the visit by Dot and Red. They met another alumnus, Stan Kamen, '39, and his lovely wife. They were disappointed not to see Bill and Elizabeth Gravely. Vernon reports that The Class of '25 Memorial Fund stands at $12,140.75, and "now is ready to assist a deserving William and Mary student in reaching the rising educational costs." He adds, "Of course, the Fund will be pleased to receive additional gifts." He concludes in another vein, "Liz continues to have her problem with arthritis, but a wheelchair has increased the scope of her travels and she enjoys her volunteer work and travel."

Alice Clay Hall called from San Antonio to wish us a Happy Easter. I regret I was not in, and hence, missed speaking with her, but Stuart had a nice chat. Alice, I was in convention in Roanoke. It was my loss not to be here. It is such a joy always to hear your voice and I feel thoroughly cheated to have been out of the city.

Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse, writing from Hingham, on April 14, reports that "after having a few days of spring," the temperature was then 32°. She had attended a very pleasant morning coffee the week before given for the ladies of the Hingham

Historical Society who assist as hostesses at the Old Ordinary for the summer. Approximately 25-30 were present. Suddenly she realized as she glanced around that there were four alumnae from the College - Frances Endicott, Priscilla Nickerson Hoxie, Mathilda's sister, Evelyn Crawford Cheney, and of course, Mathilda. She then added, "Elizabeth Walmsley and I are busy, as usual, making plans to be at College for Homecoming. I am thinking of Amtrak - if it's still running. Have a lovely summer and I hope to see you in the fall."

Caroline Sinclair has experienced "a full and exciting life" of late she has spent a large part of her time in going into the preservation of "Rosewell" ruins, and preparing for the 1981 Bicentennial Celebration. She writes, "There will be much to see and hear on both sides of the York River, October 16-19. She continues, "Rosewell is to be open this Garden Week for the first time ever. The massive ruins are most spectacular and one preservation program is well underway, but it is a long-time project!" She closes with "Greetings to all." Thank you, Caroline, for updating us on Rosewell. I am confident many will wish to visit this lovely, historic site.

My "Pen Pal," Jim Somerville, always livens our column with an experience of by-gone days. Here is his latest, "Dear Pen Pal Helen, the Saint, saintly because you devote hours and days spreading joyous words and words of sympathy and comfort to our large group. And you enable us to revive memories of campus days of yore.

"I never cease to marvel at the mentality of freshmen and sophomores. Consider this college tale of coke and pot. That's COKE for COLA, and POT for POTHOLE. Never too late for a giggle!

"My esteemed first cousin, Johnny Marshall, '26, and I were born on Hampton Avenue near your beautiful childhood home in Newport News. He was two weeks older. We could have been freshmen together, but he elected to clerk in a local law firm for one year before matriculating. We became roommates, Johnny, the frosh, Jimmy, the learned sophomore. After classes every Friday we usually headed for our homes in Newport News for home food and hometown social capers.

"A truck driver friend furnished classy limousine service in his Coca Cola truck operating between Newport News and Williamsburg. On a fine Friday we were boarding our limousine. Johnny elected to sit on the tailgate for reasons of scenery and easy access to free cola. But, mysteriously, when we arrived in Newport News Johnny was missing! Later, when dining at home in style, my mother inquired whether Johnny came home. I said, 'He tried, but he disappeared off the back of a truck. That's all

I know.' Bestowing on me a look calculated to heap pity on a sophomore mentality, she telephoned the Marshall home. The missing person answered in person. Dear mother, his loving aunt, said, 'Jimmy tells me you disappeared off the back of a truck. What happened?' Secretive answer: 'Not much.' Loving aunt, 'Did you have an accident?' Secretive John, 'Not exactly. The truck hit a pothole and I bounced into a pothole. That's all.' Loving aunt, 'Then what happened?' Answer: 'I thumbed another ride right away with a bottle of cola.' Loving aunt: 'Any hurts or pain?' Answer: 'Well, the fellow drank my cola.'

"This will remind you that Duke of Gloucester Street was unpaved in those days. Remember the mud and dust? Happily, the bounce into the pothole did V. no harm. He became captain of the tennis team, became a lawyer, and married his classmate, the Virginia Beach beauty, Kitty Myrick, '26. I am the cupid who introduced the two. Kitty has always been cuter than a kitty. Incidentally, John descended from Chief Justice John Marshall, one of our alumni. The latter had eleven children, we hear. Quite a quota.

"Carry on. Down with pot. Up with cola, with a touch of longevity rum perhaps. Yours for longevity, J.W.S."

Thanks, Jim, for this clever, clever story! John was a great kid, a greater alumnus and an even greater attorney. I would like to add he had a wonderful mother and she was one of my very early teachers and how I did love and admire her. I quite agree, John married a beautiful girl - and she still is as pretty and sweet as ever. You really were a great cupid. Thanks, Jim, for coming through with such an interesting story from many angles.

As for Stuart and me - Well, I left him for the first time in almost the 13 years we have been married to attend the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs Convention in Roanoke. Upon my return he had planted two gardens of lovely flowers as a surprise for me -- and it truly was one of the nicest surprises I ever experienced. His love is roses, so again this early spring he put in about six more bushes. To my utter surprise a few days ago when I came down to breakfast, the most gorgeous deep red velvet-like rose smiled up at me! As is Stuart's custom, as long as the roses are in bloom, one is placed at my plate each morning but I had no idea any had opened. It was a huge bud and opened to no less than six inches across - a real specimen! This has been a very full and challenging year for me as I come to the close of my year as President of The Women's Club of Hilton Village. May brings our much-looked-forward-to Spring Luncheon at the Warwick Yacht Club. Then comes June, the beginning of my second year as president. My Board of Governors is the best anyone could ever have and the members of our club cannot possibly be equalled. And may I add, but for Stuart's cooperation and enthusiasm, I could not possibly have come through so well.

May the summer bring happy hours as you relax on the beach, in the mountains or out on the waterways, wherever it is may the journey be a safe one. Don't forget to make that reservation for Homecoming? Your classmate, Helen.

Dalton, Baber Honored

Governor John N. Dalton '53 and Brigadier General James A. Baber '52 of the Virginia National Guard have been named to the "Roster of Distinguished Graduates" by the Department of Military Science at William and Mary. The induction of the Governor and General Baber, a Richmond attorney, at an April ceremony inaugurated the distinguished graduates program which will be increased in years to come from the ranks of the several hundred officers in the Active Army, Army Reserve, and National Guard who have graduated from William and Mary ROTC program and have distinguished themselves in the service of their country.

PROMINENT ATTORNEY RECEIVES MARSHALL-WYTHE MEDALLION

Edward Bennett Williams, one of the most renowned and respected trial lawyers in the nation, is the 1981 recipient of the Marshall-Wythe Medallion given by the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. Williams, senior partner in the Washington law firm, Williams & Connolly, received the award at the annual law school faculty dinner.

The Marshall-Wythe Medallion was commissioned in 1966 for presentation by the School of Law to selected leaders of the legal profession in the United States and abroad. The recipient is nominated by vote of the faculty and invited to campus for the presentation.

DONALD SNOOK '61 PUBLISHES BOOK

I. Donald Snook Jr. '61, administrator for St. Mary's Hospital in Philadelphia, is the author of a new book, "Hospitals: What They Are and How They Work." The book is described as the first and only practical guide to the inner workings of today's modern hospital. A graduate of the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania, Snook teaches in the graduate programs of two universities in the Philadelphia area.

Our classmate and good friend, Dr. Lee B. Todd, suffered a mini-stroke early in April. He was in the University of Virginia Hospital for a week and then went back home to Quinwood, W.Va. Our good thoughts and best wishes are with you, Doctor.

There is no more class news for this issue. Not a soul sent anything to me. Sorry, because I enjoy writing for the Gazette.

It has been my pleasure to report to you the news from the Class for many years, but recently there has been no news to report, since no classmate has written in since the last issue. We hope this trend will not continue and we will not be without class news anymore. If some classmate would like to take over as Class Reporter, please let me know and I will be happy to work with you. I would welcome your comments concerning the above and in the meantime, please let the news roll in. You make up the column and without your news, there can be no column about your Classmates.

P.S. The next deadline will probably be in early August.

As I write this letter, it is 2 weeks before our 25th reunion. I have just received the list of early registrants, and I know it will be an exciting time.

Herb Stewart wrote a Cantata for the Lenten Season entitled "No Greater Love." It was presented at the West End United Methodist Church in Portsmouth this year. Also, Herb played the organ music at the 10th Annual induction banquet of the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame.

Lois Stone Paterson regrets that she will not be at the reunion, but she and her husband are planning to go on the William and Mary sponsored Alaska Cruise in June.

Charles Hagbert has been named a Paul Harris Fellow in the Chatham Rotary Club. Charles is a past president of the local club, and has a record of perfect attendance for 28 of his 35 years as a member. He retired recently as superintendent of Pittsylvania County Schools, and also from the Hargrave Military Academy board, on which he served for 22 years.

Keep the news coming. We want to hear from you.

My last paragraph in the class letter of the April issue brought me a letter from Charles McCurdy who is not in robust health, but whose sense of humor is still great. Charley said he won't be able to lead our class into organization for our Fiftieth Class Reunion in 1983. He has asked Carlton Casey, who lives in Williamsburg, to chair our committee and get it started early for a great 50th! The year 1933 brings back vivid memories. It was the year of the Depression when no one had much. The New Deal was just beginning. We all recall what graduating from the College meant to us. Let's start now to put forth a little extra effort by writing to our classmates who have been friends through the years. We can contact the 1933 alumni in our localities, no matter where we live. Start talking and making plans for the Best Big Fiftieth the College has seen yet. Will you think about this, and offer suggestions and ideas on what our committee should consider.

Our Reunion Committee is the liaison group in contact with the Alumni Office and all of us. Success will depend on each of us doing something. We can make the Class of 1933 live and be remembered.

In the meantime don't forget that Homecoming for 1981 is November 6 and 7. I hope to see you then. Our Big Fiftieth is planned for mid-May of 1983. Have a happy summer, and start contacting your classmates.

Spring has come to Virginia. You will remember how beautiful the dogwoods and redbuds are, so Williamsburg is crowned in all its beauty! Williamsburg is changing, but before you say oh, no, let me explain I felt the same way until I understood why. The interior of the Governor's Palace is now an exact replica of the inventories found in England several years ago. The French wallpaper is gone. Remember, those of us who had art classes saw it pieced together. In its place is a very vivid painted wall that shows the exquisite woodwork.

The Methodist Church building at the intersection has been torn down. The original stagecoach roadway came by there. The church had been used as classrooms for years. The new Science Building, Law Building and Library (where Lord Botetourt stands protected from the elements) plus much new construction is a credit to the administration of the College.

With the passing of time it is only to be expected that our Class has illnesses, and if you were particular friends of Yette Winslow Bryant, Mary Hunter, Talman Lamb or Ruth Ahfeldt McNamara, send them notes of encouragement while their husbands are ill.

Hampden A. Burke writes that after several years with The Traveler's Insurance Company, then four and one half years in the Navy as a P.T. Boat skipper, he returned to Bristol, Tenn./Va. and bought into a General Insurance Agency from which he semi-retired January 1, 1981. Hampden married Nina Butler, a William and Mary coed, in 1936. His family consists of two daughters and four grandchildren (three girls and a boy). If all of the above doesn't keep him busy he has a golf handicap of five. Look in your Colonial Echo and you will see he began his excellent golf during College days.

I had a nice note from Betsy Baker Detner telling me about her father, Dr. J. Hugh Baker's death. He was a faithful alumnus, having graduated in 1914.

Frannie Anderson Endicott wrote an interesting letter from her home near Boston. I have always remembered Frannie with her accent. She popped in my room one night to borrow a pen? No a pen! When I hear the beautiful Bostonian accent I always recall our language barrier. She roomed with Ginny Belliveau Young. Ginny transferred to Radcliffe and later married Robert Young (not the movie actor). The girls with their husbands have taken many nice trips.

Pauline Stanley and her husband, Cameron Ogden, had a lovely spring trip to Hilton Head, S.C. for the Heritage Golf Classics. Pauline says, "that since I am a new golfer, I am having nightmares about the game. If we have to pair up with the 'younger ones', I'll have on my bifocals, too. If you recall I was no athlete in school and that has not changed." Pauline writes that each time she comes South she is convinced she is a "reincarnated southerner."

Harriet Council Mead wrote from her Orlando home that the reunion in October was an event she had wanted very much to make and it was a thrill to see everyone. Anne and Dean Lambert had a luncheon for the Kappa's in the Class of '35 on Saturday of the reunion. Dean Lambert wasn't feeling well, but he was still his wonderful self and Anne a super hostess. Those entertained were: Emily Parker, Lucian Lutz, Minnie Franck, Frances (Billie) Nenzel Ash, Jean Wilson Clark, Margaret Peek and her husband Charles Marks, Helen Kimmel and her husband, George Bentley, Anne Thomas and husband, Ken Boyden and Harriet and her husband.

Harriet wrote that I piqued her memory about the Yorktown 150th celebration. She remembers how sore her feet were from dancing on the Yorktown Battlefields. I had a wonderful day in March at the seminar, on the "Road to Yorktown." The whole town has changed and the battlefields and Information Center give a much clearer picture of the surrender and the battles around the area. The cave at the bottom of the cliff and on the river is no longer believed to have been a hiding place for Cornwallis.

Ed Boisseau, Leiper Rennie Gerlock and Virginia Roper are on the committee planning the Petersburg High School reunion, Class of 1931, and we are all looking forward to a memorable evening. If you do not know a Petersburger, then you cannot imagine the comradeship over the years.

I have had several requests to get a list of the Library Science graduates. It was a blow to their pride when the department was dropped from the College courses. Drop me a card about yourself, and I shall forward it on, please? Those of you taking Library Science will like to hear about Dr. Edwin Willoughby, though he died about twenty years ago. He was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa before leaving the College to go to Washington, D.C. and the Folger Library. I shall write Bob Land and see if I can renew ideas and compile some information about our friends who walked the campus carrying a "shoe box" with a card index file system. I often wondered what would have happened if they were ever dropped!

One more renovation that was long overdue, "Sorority Court Houses." They were completely gone over, I believe the first time since we were there. They are lovely.

It is always sad to hear of a classmate's death. John E. Hocutt was very much a part of the October reunion, but his death, from cancer, was a blessing.

In a small frame at Alumni House is a handwritten note to the girls from Miss Bessie Taylor. To quote: "Notice! Girls, what about the growing habit of hanging on the boys, or vice versa, on the campus and off the campus! Of course, if the boy or the girl is physically or mentally unsteady, no one will say nay! Let those of us who are sane and sound face life standing upright! Bessie P. Taylor."

Do you remember when we were allowed to walk to Lake Matoaka? Yes, "but," can't you hear Miss Taylor say, "You may walk to the lake, don't sit down, and stay in sight of the road."

Have wonderful vacations and let me hear from you.

An Alumni Leadership Conference was held at Alumni House, Saturday, March 28, 1981, for class presidents and reporters of the special reunion classes in 1981 and 1982. Some forty alumni were in attendance. It was a busy day. There were sessions in the morning from 9:30 to 12:30 followed by a luncheon break at Alumni House. Group meetings for class presidents, led by Jack Garrett '40, met after lunch; class reporters met with S. Dean Olson, associate editor of The Alumni Gazette, for instructional pointers on writing style and the solicitation of news. President Graves, Gordon Vliet, Executive Vice President of the Society, and Duane Dittman, the new Vice President for Institutional Advancement, appeared before the group during the day. The session was climaxed with a reception in the Presidents' Gallery of the Wren Building at five o'clock, and afterward a banquet in the Great Hall. Harold Gouldman and I, as well as Fay Bryant Savedge attended for our Class. Everybody, begin now to make plans for attending our 45th reunion in the fall of 1982!

I hope to contact members of the Class and have more news for you in the next column.

Word has been received from your Class Reporter that she has been bedridden with a fractured vertebra and a severe case of osteoporosis for about three months. KEN KRANZBERG '59 RECEIVES HONOR

Kenneth S. Kranzberg '59, president of North-western Bottle Co. of St. Louis, was one of thirteen businessmen honored in New York recently when the Food and Drug Packaging Association presented its 13th annual Package of the Year Awards. Thirteen packages were singled out for their ability to contain, protect, identify and dispense their particular product. Kranzberg's company was honored in the liquor division. Kranzberg served for many years as alumni interest group coordinator in St. Louis.

Early in the summer our Class will receive a letter from the Alumni Office with details about our 40th Reunion in November, along with reservations forms which should be completed and returned. Our block of rooms is to be at the Motor House; however, reservations are to be made through Alumni House.

Austin L. Roberts, Jr. attended the Leadership Conference held at Alumni House on March 28th. This was a first and was sponsored by the Alumni Office, as an organized effort to help classes plan class reunions, class gifts and class Gazette columns.

Josephine W. Hubbell of McLean, Va., represented the College in September at the inauguration of the new president of American University in Washington, DC.

Recent travels were a favorite subject and picturesque post cards told of interesting places visited by classmates during the past few months. Jeanne Schoenewolf Preston and Page visited Audrey Hudgins Thompson and Buck in Orlando while vacationing in Florida in February. Audrey and Buck traveled to San Francisco and Hawaii in March. While in San Francisco they visited Sheila Stewart Erlich and Phil.

In March Sunny Trumbo Williams '44 and Rolf and Jean Boyd Lacy '44 and Ben enjoyed a trip to Florida and had a wonderful visit with Dorothy Agur Edmunds '44 and David in Clearwater. The Edmunds had a beautiful dinner party and among those present were also William and Mary friends Margaret Carey McQuillan '44 and husband and Wayne and Marge Retzke Gibbs '44 who were vacationing in Florida.

Cato and I enjoyed attending the annual William and Mary Athletic Educational Foundation banquet for the Petersburg-Hopewell area on March 23. It was an opportunity for some great William and Mary fellowship and among those we enjoyed seeing were Ann and Harvey Pope '44 of Courtland who had recently seen Wayne and Marge Gibbs in Florida. Also present was the Pope's son Matt, a '78 graduate of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, and his wife Amy who live in Courtland, too. Among those present and appearing on the program were Football Coach Jimmie Laycock, Basketball Coach Bruce Parkhill and new Athletic Director Jim Copeland.

Early summer plans for us will include attending the UVA graduation at which time, Darrel Long Tillar, our daughter-in-law will receive her law degree. Tom and Darrel live in Blacksburg where Tom is Director of the Alumni Annual Fund at Virginia Tech. and Darrel will be working for the University, too.

Our daughter Elizabeth will be in Virginia for a summer visit. She is a graduate student and a teaching assistant in the English Department at the U. of New Mexico.

We will attend a family wedding in Winchester and look forward to seeing Jean and Ben Lacy and Jeanne and Page Preston who will be present during many of the wedding festivities for our niece. The Prestons, Edmunds, Lacys and Tillars will also attend a William and Mary gathering at the Rolf Williams beautiful beach house at Sandbridge.

Have a wonderful summer.

The deadline is upon me and still I hope for news to share. With the ideas gleaned from the Alumni Leadership Conference still echoing in my ears, I've decided that the problem just could be as discussed: we need a class logo. Send me some sketches that would remind us that '47 was a year to remember. Sexless Mondays, meatless Tuesdays, shoe ration coupons and social cards--these bits of nostalgia should jog your collective memories and inspire some artistic gems!

Jane McDowell Lynch writes that she visited Nancy Keene McCarthy in L.A. some time ago. Jane does a lot of traveling, planning commission work and helping to run a small business. She says five acres is farm enough to keep her busy--by July she begins to hope for an early frost. Jane's daughter, Craig Williams, practices law in Charlottesville.

Jane Heller Frieden is still flying and teaching to support that habit.

1982 will be a REUNION year for us. With the lazy days of summer upon us, send some day-dreaming sketches for a class logo. We don't need to be just a number, we're SPECIAL.

As you may have guessed, this list is neither complete nor official. It was compiled after checking three sources: the 1951 Colonial Echo, the "Colonial Re-Echo" distributed at our 25th Class Reunion, and a list of those who signed the Alumni Register at our 25th Reunion. The home towns were those listed in the yearbook 30 years ago! If you know the current address or have news about any of the above classmates, please let me know.

It was such fun recalling the name and face of each classmate from graduation photos in the '51 yearbook, wondering where you were? How you were? What in your day-to-day life in the past year might have happened that made one day a little different or special for you? There are others who would be interested, too. With our 30th Reunion coming up in November, wouldn't it be grand to locate all our "missing" classmates? Better yet, it would be wonderful to see you all at Homecoming. Circle Nov. 6th & 7th NOW!

In the "small-William-and-Mary-world-department," Polly Stadel Wrinkle '58 recently related a wonderful coincidence that occurred when she and Davis moved to Rockford, Ill. some years ago. As newcomers from Virginia, they were told about several other members of their new church who were from Virginia. These were Ginny Gallagher Sharpe '51 and Ed, a thoracic surgeon, and their four beautiful daughters. Over the next seven years the two families established close ties, which continued after Polly and Davis moved to Richmond where they live today.

Polly was attending the 1981 Class Leadership Conference in Williamsburg in March when I met her. It was also good to see Fred Allen '52, Liz Beard Patterson '52, Alice Williams Phillips '52, Perk Perkins '52 (and Gwen '51), and Jim Kelly '51. Jim reported that Bev '53 is enjoying teaching second grade at Walsingham Academy.

HOOKER RE-ELECTED HALL OF FAME PRESIDENT

H. Lester Hooker Jr. '43, '47 M.Ed., director of William and Mary Hall, has been re-elected to a third year term as president of the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame. He is the first to serve three terms as president of the state-wide organization which was organized in 1966.

On March 28th a Career Exploration Day Program was also being presented on campus - a program designed to provide students with practical career advice. Among those attending were J. Edward Grimsley '51 (Editorial Page Editor, Richmond Times-Dispatch), Marvin F. West '52 (Dentist, Williamsburg), Carmen Romeo '53 (Manager, Employee and Community Relations, General Electric Company, Richmond), Nancy K. Falck '50 (Supervisor, Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, McLean, Va.), Marcia Magill '48 (Senior Editor, Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, N.Y.), and Linwood F. Hello again! Are you all as glad as I am that Winter is over? Spring has come with a bang to Ohio. It's still April as I write this and it's 80 degrees out!

John and Marilyn Entwisle '44, the national chairpersons for The '80 - '81 William and Mary Fund, have written asking us to make a special effort to contribute this year. All new or increased contributions from alumni will receive matching funds from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Fred La Croix writes that he and wife, Louise, have been kept busy with home improvements--insulating and waterproofing his basement and building a play area for their daughters (ages 5 and 9). The La Croix family plans a Pennsylvania and New England vacation this summer.

Harriette Harcum Hobbs sent pictures of her four girls. The oldest, Ann, was wearing her Boston Women's Rugby Club T-shirt. She is in Germany for Smith College's junior year abroad at the University of Hamburg. Harriette and Charles visited her there in March. At home are tenth grader Holly, eighth grader Courtney, and fifth grader Kelly. Harriette took a flower arranging course last year and received a second prize in a recent flower show, helped to establish a local historical society in Chevy Chase, Md., is on the Gamma Phi House Board at the University of Maryland, and is on the Parents' Council of Washington, D.C., representing Holly's school.

Carol Kent Carlson wrote that, with help from the Alumni Association, she finally found her William and Mary roommate, Patti Rouen Miles. Patti lives in Los Angeles, not far from Pacific Palisades, where Carol visited Drs. Sidney and Beatrice Rome twenty years ago! Patti's three daughters live with her. One attends U.C.L.A. and the other two are in high school. Patti works as a secretary and her children are sixth generation descendants of President Tyler.

At the end of my April news letter, I told you that this would be my last letter. Starting in September, your Class Reporter will be Barbara Regan Sumner, of 43 LaCuesta, Ordinary, Calif. 94563. I received a letter from her a few weeks ago and she wrote of being at the Super Bowl as a staggering experience "an immense event, almost too much to grasp as you are going through it." She told of some William and Mary people who were there -- Joan MacWilliams Russell '56, Jim and son Jimmy from Minneapolis; Bob Hornsby '57 from Newport News, who came with Barbara and Charlie's son, Terry, who is a junior at the College; and Mardie Pontius MacKimm's son Timmy, an Arizona State graduate. Barbara and Charlie celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary in late January with a trip to Mauna Kea, Hawaii and relaxed after Charlie's seven straight months without a day off. A bonus for them was seeing two linebackers that Charlie had coached previously with their wives; Andy and Nancy Russell from the Steelers and Bob and Carolyn Geddes from the Patriots. I'm certain that Barbara will provide you with lively, interesting newsletters. If you have a copy of the May 1955 Royalist, you can read some very picturesque examples of her work. She wrote two short stories which were published in that issue: "Lost April" and "Muhcantaweap." I hope Barbara enjoys hearing from you and writing the news as much as I have for the past six years. Thanks to all of you who have written.

Other forums will be held between the two candidates who seek to succeed Governor John N. Dalton '53.

HARRIET STORM NAMED TO WHO'S WHO LIST

Harriet Nachman Storm '64, a member of the College's Board of Visitors, has been selected for inclusion in the 1981-82 edition of Who's Who of American Women. Mrs. Storm was cited for her work on behalf of William and Mary as a member of the Board of Visitors, past president of the Society of the Alumni, and past vice president and trustee of the W&M Athletic Educational Foundation. A former editor and now freelance writer, Mrs. Storm was also recognized for civic achievements on the Peninsula and in the Commonwealth.

1981. This year our class celebrates its 20th!! In late March I was invited to participate in a leadership conference sponsored by the Society of the Alumni which was held at the Alumni House. Also representing our class was Herm Schmidt and you will be hearing from us in the coming weeks. It was a glorious Saturday in Williamsburg and having left behind the snows and cold of upstate New York I quickly realized what an important part of my life today is reflected in those four happy years of long ago. Not one of us at the conference left untouched by the emotional pull our Alma Mater has, and I mention all of this because in November each of us can draw upon that super feeling of being in Williamsburg, seeing old friends, a football game, and other alumni at Homecoming.

A letter from Fran Recchuiti tells that he and his wife Bunny recently attended a William and Mary - Temple basketball game, sitting with Charlie Nahill '60 and his wife Sally. Charlie is presently a State Legislator to the House of Representatives in Pennsylvania. Fran also mentioned speaking recently with Owen Knopping who is President of the Philadelphia area alumni group. Fran and Bunny are planning to attend Homecoming this fall.

In 1982 our distinguished class will be celebrating a 25th reunion. The College invited class reporters and presidents to a meeting recently to encourage reunion planning and to offer guidelines and suggestions. It seems that class reunions don't just "happen." Our class president Wayne Adams, who practices dentistry in South Boston, Va., attended, took lots of notes and will be contacting you to serve on committees and work to see that we have the best reunion ever. Do plan to come to Williamsburg in the fall of 1982. While in Williamsburg, Wayne visited Virg McKenna who is a professor at the College.

Class reporters met to share information, and I pledged to call, write, or somehow contact more of you by this deadline. Well... maybe next time. Among the interesting things I learned at the meeting is the fact that William and Mary students now elect just a senior class president, and the job lasts a lifetime, but the class reporter's job lasts just five years!

Two notes from a sorority newsletter say that Jan Charbonnet Crocker is currently Kappa Alumnae Vice President in Fort Lauderdale and that Ann Baird Millard, mother of three sons and a daughter, serves as a pre-marriage counselor at her church and enjoys working in the Republican Party.

We attended a seafood festival on Virginia's Eastern Shore recently and enjoyed seeing Clyde and Julie Vakos Nordstrom '58. Clyde is in the oil business, and I believe they said that two of their five children are currently at William and Mary.

If you have read other columns you will note frequent references to Homecoming

A most pleasant surprise was a telephone call from Constance Quesenberry Fisher in Orlando, Fla. Connie and John Paul Fisher were married August 31, 1979. The marriage merged 2 households, 5 daughters and a variety of pets. Connie is employed by Sun Bank of Florida and is responsible for the recruitment and training of management trainees for the bank. She develops and presents programs to bank managers. In her spare time she has taken up running and encouraged her bank to sponsor a 10 kilometer race (6.2 miles). Connie was second in her age group and placed third in her second race. She also is learning to play golf!

On January 31, 1981 Rexford E. Adelberger represented the College at the inauguration of William Raymond Rogers as Sixth President of Guilford College in Greensboro, N.C.

A final note came from Jim and Maureen Rumazza Morgan. Jim and Maureen are the parents of six, including Stephen who was born November 4, 1979. The household also includes two high school juniors, a seventh and ninth grader, and a second grader! She also included a picture and I can tell you all six are gorgeous. Needless to say Maureen is a busy lady but she does find time to play tennis and ski. Jim is Vice President of American Research and Development in Boston. Jim has also helped start an independent day school for girls in Brookline, Mass., called Montrose. It is in its second year of operation. The Morgans attended the William and Mary-Harvard football game last fall and saw several classmates: "Maureen Harvey Culliton, Dave Bottoms, Al Owens," etc. That's Maureen's quote. Maureen Harvey Culliton is living in Cambridge and working for Digital Equipment Corporation.

Thanks for all your notes and calls. Please think about attending Homecoming.

Mary has seen several William and Mary alumnae at their meets. Ashley, four, enjoys going to the meets also. The Whites have a new home in Virginia Beach. Mary is secretary in her garden club and vice president in the local alumni group.

Don, '61, has been continuing to travel giving lectures on physician recruitment and medical staff matters. Most recently he was in San Antonio and Washington, D.C. speaking for the American Hospital Association. He recently got a contract to write a career book on hospital administration.

Thanks to Margie Hodges Furr, we have news of the Kappas in our class. Kathie Wiese Astor and Bart bought a home in the mountains above Santa Cruz. Kathie is still Director of Financial Aid at the University of California, Santa Cruz; she was also elected president of the California Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. Susan Bunch Blandford was in Williamsburg last March for a one-day alumni presidents' workshop. Susan and her husband live in Hamden, Conn.

Betty White Suchar and Vic have moved into a new home in London. Betty is working as the Information Officer of the American Community School and as the Advertising Manager for the International School Journal. Dona Hougen McLaughlin and Paul moved to Rhinebeck, N.Y., when Paul took a job with Texaco Research Labs. Laura Youngblood Meager graduated from Virginia Theological Seminary, cum laude, with a Master's in Theological Studies. She is working part-time at Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown as CCD Administrator (Sunday School Director), and spending considerable time in training as a hospital chaplain at the Washington Hospital Center.

Michael P. Sopchak of Owensboro, Ky. represented the College in September at the inauguration of the president of Kentucky Wesleyan College.

Byrd Lacy Murray continues to enjoy teaching in the Richmond area, and keeping up with the activities of her two sons. Lynn Meushaw Parent, Neil, and their two daughters were able to extend Neil's teaching obligations in Albuquerque into a New Mexico vacation. They are happy in Alexandria, and Lynn is considering a return to part-time employment. Mary (Rusty) Rollings Stevens and Kent have moved to Leesburg, Va., where Kent has become Administrator of Loudoun Memorial Hospital. Pat Niccoli Gasch finds spare time to volunteer with the Campfire Girls and 4-H. Her family enjoyed another Wisconsin winter with sledding and ice skating. Lynne Marcus Yerkes is in her last year of law school at Hastings, part of the University of California. Tom is still with the Port of San Francisco, coaches basketball and baseball, runs occasionally, and enjoys the Bay Club in San Francisco.

Jean Ball Bugg and John live in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. Jean taught 3rd grade for a while at the International School and has been busy exploring their new home. Their first home leave afforded them with the opportunity to visit Paris, London, and the States.

Margie Hodges Furr has been asked to be a trustee for the Greensboro Historical Museum. She is still working part-time as Medical Librarian at a local Greensboro hospital, as well as serving as a Cub Scout den mother. Mickey does a good amount of traveling and his new company is doing well and growing.

I have returned to work -- but the job is entirely new to me. I am the office manager of my husband's orthopaedic clinic. Please send me a letter or post card regarding your current activities.

Fourteen years ago this month we were sitting in Wren Courtyard amidst classmates, relatives and friends, waiting for our diplomas and remembering all we had experienced in the past four years.

Do you remember Duc Week the Ludwell bus at midnight? Dr. Fowler's Henry VIII lecture? Yule Log ceremonies in back of the Wren Building? Toga parties? Rush smiles that you thought would never uncurl? Keg parties at Lake Matoaka? or The beach after finals?

Now, though it's a year away, we are preparing for our fifteenth reunion, November 5-7, 1982. This time we have the opportunity to plan the activities that we would like. Ergo, I'm going to ask two things of you.

First, how would you like to spend our time together? A family picnic in a park or on the campus? Brunch with one or two favorite professors? A keg party? Dinner at the Inn? A Miss Tinker catered special? A suggestion of yours?

Second, if you live in the Williamsburg area and would be willing to spend an evening or two helping us coordinate our Homecoming weekend, please send me your name, address and phone number.

This Homecoming, November 7, 1981, let's get together in front of Casey's for the parade and discuss our Homecoming weekend. I'll look forward to seeing you there.

Russell F. Lee of Bemidji, Minn. represented the College at the inauguration of the president of Bemidji State University last October.

Recently I talked with Randy Glesenkamp. He, his wife, Carol, and daughters Lee Ann (8) and Lauren (14 months), live in Alexandria, Va. Randy is Executive Vice President of Pre-Paid Dental Benefits Agency. They are the marketing representative for Delta, the largest strictly dental carrier in the United States. His firm is approved by the Virginia Dental Association and the American Dental Association. Now Randy is actively involved in working for the Independent and United Mine Workers as they attempt to solve their contract dispute.

Randy said that Chuck Albertson is living in California. He is working for a company that makes conduit.

CHOIR DEPARTS FOR EUROPEAN TOUR

Fifty-nine members of the William and Mary Choir, including Laurinda Nicholson '81 and Susan O'Sullivan '82, left Dulles Airport after Commencement for a 26-day tour of Europe. The Choir, which is directed by Dr. Frank Lendrim, raised nearly $17,000 for the trip through the sale of Christmas and notecards, many of them to alumni, and other activities. The Choir will give concerts in France, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and England. Identification pins for all Choir members were provided by the Society of the Alumni.

ALUMNI FLEW PRINCE TO WILLIAM AND MARY

Two William and Mary alumni flew the White House helicopter that brought Prince Charles to William and Mary for his May 2 visit. Captains Judson A. Mason, Jr., '70, '76 M.Ed., and John A. Tucker, Jr., '68, are both Marine pilots. They flew the Prince to William and Mary from a prior engagement in Norfolk and touched down on Barksdale Field. Mason and Tucker are attached to the White House Staff.

Randy also supplied us with information about Ned Carr, who is a school administrator in Tidewater Virginia. Donny Maguire and Ray Gowen are football coaches in Columbia, SC.

Wherever you are on the Fourth of July weekend this summer, please take five minutes to send me a postcard telling where you are and what you're doing. I'll mount them and set them up at Alumni House during Homecoming weekend. Then you can all come and find out the latest news about your classmates. Everyone Write!

When you don't send me any letters, there is no news to report. Alas, this month there really is very little. Jo Ann Walthall has recently been promoted to Manager, Inventory Planning for Pfizer International. She came to Pfizer in 1978 as a business analyst-economist after previously being merchandising analyst manager with R. H. Macy and a VP of Hugo Frank Associates (a management consulting firm). Jo Ann has finished the course requirement for a Ph.D. from Columbia where she holds an MBA.

I was in Richmond, Va. in April and saw some from our class: De Garber Steverson, Sally Barner Leslie, Becky Vaughan, George Watson (in Williamsburg), Linda McIndoe Chenery. I am afraid I report on them all the time so won't add anything now. I heard that Carol Knight Mullen and her husband, John, are expecting their first child in July. I am doing the annual Kappa Delta Newsletter (Nancy Verser Brumback and I alternate doing it) so will at least have that to report on next time.

Do try to write so our class can be well represented on these pages.

I had almost given up on you folks. With only two dull items in hand, I had visions of this column shriveling into "Joe Smith bought a new set of false teeth last month." But just as I started to sulk, Big News struck. After a ten-year search, the "Where Are They Now Dept." has landed its most notorious lost soul: the enigmatic W.R.C. Munsey. First tip came from Carey Hoagland '74, who claimed to have actually heard the haunting strains of the Munsietta ("oh-oh-oh-no") echoing through the foothills of western Virginia. Then came a letter from the elusive educator himself. "You now have my permission to remove my name from the roster of missing persons." Bill got his PhD in Chemistry from U.Va. in 1978 and is now a lecturer in Science and Technology at Piedmont Virginia Community College in Charlottesville. "For all you courageous alumni with a secret yearning to take organic chemistry, here's your chance! And word has it that Bill is still very much in demand outside the classroom for his guitar picking and that honey-smooth counter tenor voice. Let this be a lesson to you all: you can run but you can't hide.

Jamie Cowles was in D.C. last month, wrapping up a cross-country ramble. You name it and Jamie's done it since graduation. His latest pursuit: studying holistic massage for athletes in Santa Fe. Some of the friends he has encountered in his travels. . . John Hempel is finally getting his Ph.D. in Biochemistry from Rutgers after six years under the iron hand of "The Duchess," a faculty member who "runs a lab like Stalag 17." John is specializing in amino acid sequencing. He'll spend the next two years doing research in Stockholm. After delivering over 100 babies as a professional midwife, Grayson Pannill is about to turn the tables (and her working partner will do the honors). Right in the same Massachusetts town, Henry Brown is a special education teacher, but his real love is his "Henry Brown--Clown of Renown" schtick, doing kid's shows and parades. In his spare time, he's been touring the world with an amateur rugby team, including stops in London and the Soviet Union.

Patty Deuster allegedly broke the magical three hour mark in the Boston Marathon this year. Bubba Hooker is reviewing the troops at the Marion Military Institute, where he's now Athletic Director, Football, and Baseball Coach. Bubba has touched base at N.C. State, Austin Peay, Wichita State, Vanderbilt, and Tennessee State in various coaching jobs. The Virginia Bankers Association has named Ashby Cockrell VP of the Young Bankers Division. Ashby is Executive Vice President of the Bank of Middlesex in Urbanna, Va. Up in Pa., Susan Schwenk Volp is a nursery school teacher and hospital admissions interviewer. Every plant needs a lawyer, and Tim Kavanaugh is counsel to Hercules Inc.'s factory in Radford, Va., after graduating from law school at Widener.

If you're ever nabbed for running the red light in Tumwater, Wash., just look for the shingle of Kinney Valz, Attorney at Law. He remarried and has a one-year-old son. Kinney writes that Bruce Hockman is wheeling and dealing as Vice President of Agency Rent-a-Car in charge of Canada and the midwest.

Dodie Fredericks is living in another exotic Washington town called Issaquah, where she works as a potter. Bet she's never seen the likes of the stuff turned out by Doug Curtler back in Richmond. He used to make graphic figurines of over-the-hill women sitting on the beach, their cellulite crammed into polka-dot bikinis. But now he's into something new. He just had an exhibit at Wierd Harold's in N.Y.C. The subject: "Erotic Bathroom Ornaments."

Bill Hausman has been named a full-time associate professor of economics at the College for the upcoming academic year. He has received his MA and PhD from the University of Illinois.

Dr. George Lucas is an assistant professor of philosophy and department chairman at Randolph-Macon College. He has been awarded a fellowship by the American Council of Learned Societies. With the fellowship he will take a sabbatical leave during the first semester of next year and will complete the first volume of a projected four-volume history of process philosophy - the interpretation of the significance of science. He plans to analyze speculative evolutionary cosmologies in his first volume. He is one of three philosophy recipients nationwide this year. George received his doctorate in philosophy of religion in 1978 from Northwestern, Evanston. He is already the author of three published works, in addition to journal articles. In 1979, he received the Thomas Branch Award for excellence in teaching, in his second year at Randolph-Macon.

If you haven't already, start making plans to come to our tenth-year reunion November 6, 7, and 8. The tentative schedule runs the gamut from a Friday night banquet for all reunion classes to "Disco Dancing in the Wigwam." But the highlight will definitely be the after-game bash we are planning at Lake Matoaka similar to what we did in '76. But this time, we're going after big name entertainment: Bill Deal and the Rhondells. You will be getting a mailing with details.

Our meager remaining treasury is likely to need some help, even though we will certainly not over-order beer the way we did last time. Our beloved leader, Dave Bernd, had a slight collision in the U-Haul while returning the excess suds and later found Campus Police had a posse out with a warrant for his arrest. Dave has set up a committee to coordinate the weekend: Kenny King will be in charge of the Matoaka festivities. Other members are Ginny Vogel Carey, Virginia Klemkowski Laycock, Bruce Holbrook, and Tom "Sak" Rees, (plus Bernd and yours truly). If you have any suggestions for reunion activities, write me, and I'll pass them on to the others. I've only gotten one so far, from Nancy Terrill, who was disturbed by the complacency she found on campus during a recent visit and suggests we do something to recreate the good old days.

Hope you have a great summer. Take time to write and let us hear about it.

Matt Asai is now in Davenport, Ia., and wrote to say that he received an MBA from Florida Institute of Technology in December 1980.

Finishing up his family practice residency in June, Bill Harper will be joining a family practice group in his hometown of Harrisonburg, Va. Bill and his wife, Dorothy, are expecting their second child in July.

Patti Brennan is Business Manager of the Actors Theatre of Louisville. Both Time and Newsweek included writeups on the Actors Theatre Festival of New American Plays. Patti says that she loves her work because the theatre is an exciting and exceptional operation.

I was in Williamsburg at the end of March for an Alumni Leadership Conference sponsored by the Society of the Alumni. Weatherwise it was a perfect Williamsburg weekend, and that made the trip doubly enjoyable. The emphasis of the conference was on increasing participation in alumni activities such as Homecoming, or local alumni groups. The weekend gave me an increased awareness of how much the Society does and how hard the staff works.

They sponsored a Career Day for the current seniors for the first time this year, and that turned out to be a big success. There were a number of alumni from various career fields who participated in a day-long seminar, highlighting opportunities available and providing pointers for getting started in a particular career field. The conference was well received by the students. I know that I could have benefitted from something like that seven or eight years ago. Gee, it's hard to believe it has been that long. Andy Purdy participated in this seminar, representing the legal profession, and Dave Mercer provided information about banking careers.

Since the Career Day activities took place the same day as the Leadership Conference, Andy (who is our president, if you forgot) asked Debbie Prillaman to represent him at the Leadership Conference. Afterwards we had cocktails and dinner in the Great Hall of the Wren Building with all the participants in both groups. It was fun chatting with several people I recognized from other classes, but I don't have much information about anyone in our class. My next deadline is not until August, so make it a point to drop me a card sometime during the summer with a little information about what you've been up to. If my mailbox is empty, you won't have anything to read next time.

Everyone must have had a busy spring. Hardly anyone found a few moments to drop me a note. So please write me this summer. Everyone enjoys reading about you as much as you enjoy reading about them.

Our class president, Maggie Rollins Stanton, and I attended a class leadership conference at William and Mary the end of March. Maggie flew in from St. Paul, Minn. where she is presently employed by Clark, the company who owns the Chlorox Company.

We found the conference most enjoyable and informative. Several speakers discussed topics centering on the importance of the class organization and ways we can be more active.

Maggie and I need your help with preliminary ideas for our five year class reunion in November of 1982. Yes, we need to start planning this far ahead. The first thing we need is a class logo and slogan. We have so many creative people in our class. I am sure several of you have some good ideas. It is important since it will represent our class forever on Homecoming brochures, class projects, etc. Jot down your ideas and send them to me. When the Homecoming committee gets together they will review them and select the best one.

Now for the bit of news that came in this past month. Dee Dee Delaney was married the end of April in her hometown of Danville, Va.

Several of our classmates are climbing the ladder of success. Anne Ward is now the number three person on Richmond Lifestyle Magazine. She completed her Master's degree in mass communications from V.C.U. this winter.

Lee Piatt was recently admitted to the Pennsylvania bar. He is working for Reed, Smith, Shaw and McCleary in Pittsburgh. Gail Geddes will join the same firm when she graduates from Yale this spring.

Sherry Poskanzer Wainger and husband, Allen, have purchased a home in Columbia, Md. They settled in the end of March.

Congratulations to Diana Dubel Cullem on receiving her Master's degree in accounting/finance from Monmouth College. She was recently promoted to financial systems analyst for Prudential Property and Casualty Insurance Company.

Upon graduation Rich Sherman entered Marshall-Wythe Law School and received his J.D. in 1980. While at law school he became the first graduate student to serve as Chairman of the Board of Student Affairs and was instrumental in founding the Graduate Advisory Council, a graduate

SOCIETY SEEKS SPECIAL FABRIC MATERIAL

The Society of the Alumni is seeking an alumnus who can be of assistance in obtaining fabric material, in limited quantity, that could be especially designed for William and Mary use, in colors and design. The material, for instance, would be used for such items as skirts, curtains, and napkins. If you have any suggestions, please contact the Society at Box GO, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

student body equivalent to the President's Aides. He took the Foreign Service Exam and began work for the Foreign Service in January, 1981. He will be starting his first overseas assignment in London on June 1 which will last 18 months.

Enjoy the rest of your summer and send me a postcard while you're on vacation.

Not too many of you wrote me this month so the column will be rather short, quite unlike the last one. Laurie Huntsman wrote to update last time's news. She is currently living in Tampa with Ann Patterson '80, where both of them are working on a cruise liner, "The Caribbean Queen." Laurie has also been doing commercial work for various companies in New York. Her latest assignment was as a mermaid for a tuna company! Sounds like an interesting and exciting lifestyle. Jon Horovitz recently returned from an exciting Caribbean cruise where he ran into Laurie and Ann. Jon was mixing business with pleasure as his company is considering a Central American office. Ken Cloud is moving to Saratoga Springs, N.Y. to accept a position as battalion chief for the Saratoga Springs Fire Department. Kathy Yankovich is currently residing in Los Angeles, where she teaches American history and English at a junior high school. She is also attending night school at UCLA in the graphic design program.

Eileen M. Morgan of Provo, Utah represented the College at the inauguration of the president of Brigham Young University in November.

That's all the news I've received. I know you folks are doing lots of interesting things that we would all be interested in, so write! When you do, please note the new address. I'll be moving the first of June.

Although I have no news about our graduate students, I want to remind all of you to send a contribution to The William and Mary Fund. It is especially important this year, because of the National Endowment for the Humanities matching grant to which the College is entitled. Any new money contributed this year will be matched. Any increase over last year will be matched as well as any first-time contributions.

Your reporter trusts that many of you will attend Homecoming at the College in the fall, Nov. 6 and 7.

This is the 46th column your reporter has written for The Alumni Gazette since she began in September 1969. If you send in news of your activities and accomplishments, she will be able to continue the Grads column. Many thanks to all who have contributed news items during the past twelve years.

Unfortunately there seems to be very little information to convey. Please remember that information in The Alumni Gazette does not fall under any proscription regarding professional advertising. In any event, here's what I have.

Michael G. Shepard, JD '75, has been appointed an Associate Counsel with Pioneer National Title Insurance Company in Newport News.

Mark L. Tunnell, JD '75, and his wife, Judith Ann, proudly announce the birth of their second child, a daughter, named Hillary Christian Tunnell. They can be reached at 1208 Old Lancaster Road, Berwyn, Pa. 19312.

Tony Giorno, JD '76, and Neal Vener, JD '77, have been named Assistant Commonwealth Attorneys in Lynchburg.

Janet B. Rubin, JD '77, has recently joined the Office of General Counsel for the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, better known as Metro, assigned to the negligence litigation section.

And last, but surely not least, Sharon Villarosa, JD '78, has been sworn in as an Officer in the United States Foreign Service. She is scheduled to serve in Bogota, Columbia. Since her graduation from Marshall-Wythe she has worked as a legislative analyst for a congressional research service in Washington, D.C.

That's it, folks, keep those cards and letters pouring in.

DEATHS

ELLIOTT EDWIN WEST, JR., '11, died April 11, 1981 in Roanoke, Virginia. He joined First National Exchange Bank after leaving William and Mary, and in 1954 he retired as assistant cashier and head of the commercial department, after 41 years of service. Twice appointed to the Roanoke City Council, he served as president of Goodwill Industries, chairman of the Roanoke City-County Public Forum, and treasurer of the Blue Ridge Boy Scout Council. An active member of Calvary Baptist Church, he was a deacon for 37 years, church treasurer, and Sunday School superintendent and teacher. He served as a trustee of Virginia Baptist Hospital in Lynchburg, president of the Roanoke Merchants Association, a director of the Retail Merchants Association of Virginia, and vice president of both the Roanoke Executive Club and the Columbia Building & Loan Association. During the 1930's, he served two terms as president of the Roanoke alumni chapter. He is survived by a son, three sisters, two brothers, and two grandchildren.

ROBERT JOHN JOHNSON, '19 A.B., died at his home in Virginia Beach, Virginia on November 24, 1980. A member of Kappa Alpha, he became principal of Great Bridge High School after his graduation from William and Mary. He studied law at both Washington and Lee University and at T.C. Williams Law School, and then returned to the field of public education as superintendent of schools for Princess Anne County. He later became an agency manager for Bankers Life Company, and for 18 years he was executive vice president and managing director of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, retiring in 1967. He at one time was president of the Virginia Beach Rotary Club, and he was a former vestryman of Christ Episcopal Church in Alexandria. He was married to the late Pauline Smith. He is survived by one brother and a sister, Iola Johnson Maloney, '28.

ERVIN WILLARD FITCHETT, '21, of Norfolk, Virginia, died April 17, 1980. A member of the football team while at William and Mary, he is survived by his son, Leon W. Fitchett, '50.

JOHN WALSTON HENDERSON, '22 B.S., of Williamsburg, Virginia, died December 12, 1980. A member of Theta Delta Chi, he did graduate work at the School of Architecture at Georgia Institute of Technology after earning his undergraduate degree from William and Mary. A member of Bruton Parish Church, he was employed for 30 years as an architect with Colonial Williamsburg. He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth Lee Henderson, '22.

CHARLES HARRISON ZEHMER, '27, died June 19, 1980, in Gainesville, Florida after a brief illness. A member of Sigma Phi Epsilon at William and Mary, he was a native of McKenney, Virginia, and he spent most of his life there as a businessman and farmer. He was Mayor of the town for two terms, and he served several years on the Dinwiddie County Board of Supervisors. He was a past Master of Dinwiddie Masonic Lodge No. 136, AF&AM, and President of the League of Virginia Counties. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II as a pilot instructor. After his retirement from business and farming in 1968, he moved to Vero Beach, Florida, where he served as Commander of the local Power Squadron. He moved to Jacksonville shortly before his death. Survivors include his wife, Aileen, and two sons, Edward Earle and Charles Lovick.

WALTER ALLEN COLEMAN, '29 B.S., died April 4, 1981, in Richmond, Virginia. After graduation from William and Mary, he began working for the C&P Telephone Company, as a management assistant in the Richmond office. He became record office manager of the Norfolk office in the early 1950's, but several years later, he returned to Richmond as C&P's supervisor for independent telephone company relations. In 1965, he was named district manager for the coin telephone service, a position which he held until his retirement in 1972. After retiring from C&P, he served as Great Lakes region, including the mid-Atlantic states, manager for the National Association of Regulatory Commissioners, which sets standards for communications companies and their earnings records. He is survived by one sister.

PRISCILLA BRETT (DELLERT), '31 B.A., of West Hartford, Connecticut, died December 31, 1980. She is survived by her husband, Edward F. Dellert.

JOHN F. STRAYER, '31, of Goldens Bridge, New York, died April 2, 1981 in Chapel Hill, North Carolina following a brief illness. A member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, he served in the Air Force during World War II. He was a test pilot with Grumman Aircraft, and he later began operating charter flights and air taxis in the New York metropolitan areas. For approximately the last ten years of his life, he was a skywriter for the Pepsi Cola Company, touring the country in an antique open cockpit biplane. He is survived by his wife Dorothy, and two brothers.

FRANCIS V. MORGAN, '32 A.B., of Reading, Pennsylvania, died March 27, 1981, after suffering for a year and a half from cancer of the spine. Until his retirement ten years ago, he was Life Agent for Northwestern Mutual of Milwaukee. He is survived by his wife, Grace, and nine children.

ELIZABETH HAYES BRADLEY, '45 B.A., died December 4, 1980, in Norfolk, Virginia. A Junior transfer from the Norfolk Division of William and Mary, she was a member of Gamma Phi Beta and Phi Beta Kappa.
