THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Thousands Enjoy Homecoming

Record Numbers Return To College To Renew Ties With Old Friends

President Graves planted the traditional kiss on the cheek of Homecoming Queen Dana Disque, a senior fine arts major from Winchester, Va., at halftime of the William and Mary-Harvard football game, which Harvard won, 23-14.

Homecoming continued to thrive at William and Mary in 1981.

The annual event that has come to mean so much to alumni was held later than usual but it still attracted record numbers of alumni back their alma mater.

"We were excited about numbers of younger alumni," said Gordon C. Vliet '54, who marked his 10th year as head of the Society of the Alumni. "The College needs continuity in the loyalty of its alumni, and this year's turnout reinforced our contention that young alumni feel as strongly about William and Mary as those who graduated in earlier years." Nearly 700 participated in the Young Guard Keg Party, while over 150 were at both the '76 reception and the '71 Matoaka Shelter party.

For those who came back, Homecoming 1981 was a time for reunions, a time for accolades, a time for a great deal of joy, some sadness, and even a little disappointment.

It was also a time for business, conducted at the annual meeting and Homecoming banquet on Friday, Nov. 7.

Alumni learned that four members of the Board of Directors had been re-elected to three-year terms and one new member had been elected. Returned to the Board were James W. Brinkley '59, Towson, Md.; James E. Howard '43, Richmond; Austin L. Roberts III '69, Newport News; and G. Elliott Schaubach '59, Norfolk. The new member is Audrey Murray Harris '60 of Richmond.

John H. Garrett Jr. '40, Kilmarnock, president of the Society, announced that revisions in the By-Laws noted in the Alumni Gazette were approved.

Five members of the faculty received Alumni Fellowships while four students were awarded Order of the White Jacket Scholarships.

The faculty recipients were John B. Delos, associate professor of physics; David H. Finifter, associate professor of economics; Mark Fowler, assistant professor of philosophy; Roger R. Ries, associate professor of education, and John H. Willis, Jr., professor of English. Receiving the OWJ scholarship were William A. Maher, Peter F. O'Malley, Steven A. Salter, and Andrea Spessard. Bryan D. McElvaine received the Norman Moojiam Memorial Scholarship, named for the late member of the Class of 1955 who was a former member of the Board of Directors of the Society.

The Outstanding Chapter Award for 1981 was presented to the Baltimore-Annapolis Chapter President Bill Armbruster '57. The Georgia and Northern Virginia Chapters received honorable mention.

In athletic competition earlier in the day, Ken Birkett '70 and Jean Cogle '49 won the Flight A Division of the Sandy Kelly Alumni Tennis Tournament while Jim Brinkley '59 and Sharon Jenkins, wife of Ed Jenkins '55, won the Flight B competition. In the Pro-Am competition Mike Debransky '65 was first, while Sonny Cowling '53 was runnerup. Tillie Gondak, wife of Charles R. Gondak '41, won the women's golf tournament low net and low gross.

Former President Pomfret Dies

21st President Headed College From 1942 to 1951

John Edwin Pomfret, 83, president of William and Mary from 1942 to 1951 and former Director of the Huntington Library in California, died Thursday, Nov. 26 in a Camden, S.C. hospital following a brief illness.

Pomfret was an historian who specialized in the Colonial American period. He was one of the original founders in December, 1944 of the Institute of Early American History and Culture as a Center for research and publishing in the field of American history through the Jeffersonian era.

A native of Philadelphia, Pomfret earned three degrees at the University of Pennsylvania and also held several honorary degrees. He began his teaching career at the University of South Carolina in 1924. The next year he moved to Princeton University and when he left in 1937 he had gained the rank of associate professor. Pomfret was Dean of the Senior College and Graduate School of Vanderbilt University before coming to William and Mary. He took over directorship of the Huntington Library, including the art gallery and botanical gardens at San Marino, Calif., after leaving William and Mary and held that post until he retired in 1966.

Pomfret made his home in Carmel, Ca., until 1976 when he moved to Camden, S.C. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah W. Pomfret; a son, John D. Pomfret, New York City; a sister, Mrs. George Henderson, Wetherfield, Conn., and two grandchildren.

Pomfret was inaugurated on Feb. 8, 1942, on the 250th anniversary of the College. He succeeded Dr. John Stewart Bryan who was named Chancellor of the College.

As a wartime president, he saw the Naval Training School for Chaplains established at the College in 1943 in February, 1943, and in August of that same year a specialized training program in basic engineering was established by the U.S. Army.

Dr. and Mrs. Pomfret chat with President and Mrs. Graves at a reception in the Great Hall of the Wren Building, Dec. 3, 1976, as part of the triennial meeting of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa and the bicentennial celebration of the founding of Phi Beta Kappa by students of the College in 1776.

Alumnus Recalls Pomfret

Dear Editor:

In Dr. John E. Pomfret's time as president of the College of William and Mary in Virginia an amusing story was making the rounds. (Dr. Pomfret died in November at his Camden, S.C., home.)

In a recent letter to me he recalled the tall tale, and reported something about the ramblings of the rumor.

As applied in our case, it was that a large Stetson-topped man had wandered about the yard of William and Mary, admiring the Wren, the Brafferton and the President's House. Then he was supposed to have sought out the college president and asked him how he would like to have forty, fifty, sixty million dollars.

What strings were attached?

Oh, he and a friend were going to put up the money and there were no strings connected except that they wanted a "name" college in Houston, Texas, and they would finance the moving expenses.

Dr. Pomfret recalled, in the letter, that the same story had made the rounds, applied to Washington & Lee University and other historic and prestigious institutions as well.

While Dr. Pomfret was president of William and Mary I, asked him why he didn't accept some C students.

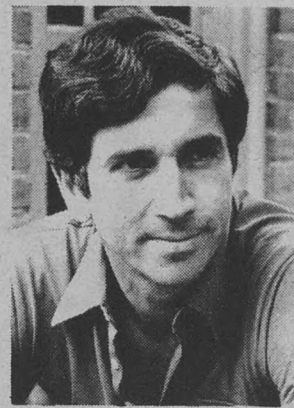

"Why we have an overabundance of straight A applicants."

"I know," I commented, tongue in cheek, "but they are smart enough to make it regardless, while the purposeful and willing to study C student would benefit so much from a college education. Besides, a C alumnus seems to be more generous with endowments."

Dr. Pomfret pondered a moment, then said:

"Well and good, but I'm afraid we don't have the faculty to teach the C students."

Inside Admissions

Weighing The Effects Of Recruiting

by G. Gary Ripple
Dean of Undergraduate Admissions

The parents of today's high school students are usually surprised to see the amount of attention showered upon them by college admissions officers. The typical senior now receives a plethora of mail and personal contacts formally reserved for the most prized athletic prospects. It is estimated that many colleges budget more than $1,000 for each new student they hope to enroll. This investment is made in staff salaries, telephone and direct mail costs, and in the development of super-slick brochures. Many colleges employ outside consultants to assist in the development of recruiting materials and the proper posture for successfully recruiting enough students to maintain the quantity and quality desired.

These recruiting wars have created many positive benefits for the high school student. For example, more students are now aware of the value of higher education and are encouraged to perform at a respectable level in high school so that their credentials will attract college recruiters. In addition, the effort and care that has gone into the information process from college to student now enables the work of the high school counselor to be complemented by a network that flows directly to the student, independent of school counseling channels.

But there are other aspects of the recruiting process which give me great concern. For one, there has developed a proliferation of so called "merit scholarships" which are, in reality, little more than price discounts or rebates. The majority of colleges now offering academic scholarships not based on need see their value as one of "buying" students who would not enroll otherwise, the theory being that one student enrolled at less than full price is more desirable than no students recruited at the actual cost of providing quality education.

I have concern for another effect of aggressive college recruitment. It gives a false sense of security to the student who fails to take the initiative in sorting out college propaganda, who procrastinates in his search for an appropriate college. All of the attention he receives from college carries with it the danger of slowing down the student's process of searching for the right college. Each year it seems that students are later in filing their college applications as if they are waiting for the right college to appear at their doorstep or in the mail box so that they can be plucked out of their dilemma of having to carefully sort through all of this information that colleges now provide. There is no wonder that many students elect to pull themselves out of this confusing situation and elect not to receive mail from colleges or to attend college fair activities. Despite the hoopla that surrounds the college recruitment process, the student should never lose sight of the importance of taking an assertive approach to searching for the college that is especially appropriate for his individual needs and goals.

Ground Broken For New Art Museum

Alumni Make Possible College's "Newest Gem"

Miles Chappell '60, chairman of the Department of Fine Arts at William and Mary, and his fellow alumni had even more to be happy about than usual at Homecoming this year.

Ground was broken on what President Graves called William and Mary's "newest gem" -- a new art museum that will provide a central repository for the College's art collection, valued at more than $3 million.

And it was alumni of the College who in large part made possible the art museum, the first phase of which will be completed in approximately a year. The new museum will be named for Joseph '27 and Margaret Muscarelle of New Jersey, who gave $600,000 toward the construction of the first phase of the museum. In addition, Gilbert G. '34 and Jeanne '39 Kinnamon of Williamsburg gave $300,000 toward the construction of the museum. Other major commitments were made by Dr. Frederick '48 and Lucy '47 Spigel Herman of Norfolk and their son Bernard '73 and their daughter Fredricka; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bredin '36, Wilmington, Del., Mrs. Gertrude Perrin of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hennage of Chevy Chase, Md.

The board of visitors authorized the museum last fall on the condition that it be financed with private gifts.

The museum, designed by prize-winning architect Carlton S. Abbott of Williamsburg, will have a triangular exhibition space of 2,500 square feet, which will be known as the Ralph M. Sheridan and Edythe C. Sheridan Gallery. This gallery will be available for shows such as those offered by the Smithsonian Institution and the American Museum Association, as well as for the college's exhibits. The gallery is named for Mrs. Kinnamon's mother and father.

An adjacent, smaller area, the Enid W. and Bernard B. Spigel Gallery, will be used for the exhibition of prints and drawings.

The building also provides space for the museum's director, the registrar of the college's art collection and a museum secretary, as well as for a storage area where works of art now housed at several spots around the campus can be assembled under more desirable conditions.

The galleries will be temperature- and humidity-controlled. Abbott designed the building so that 20 percent of its heating needs will be met by passive solar energy features.

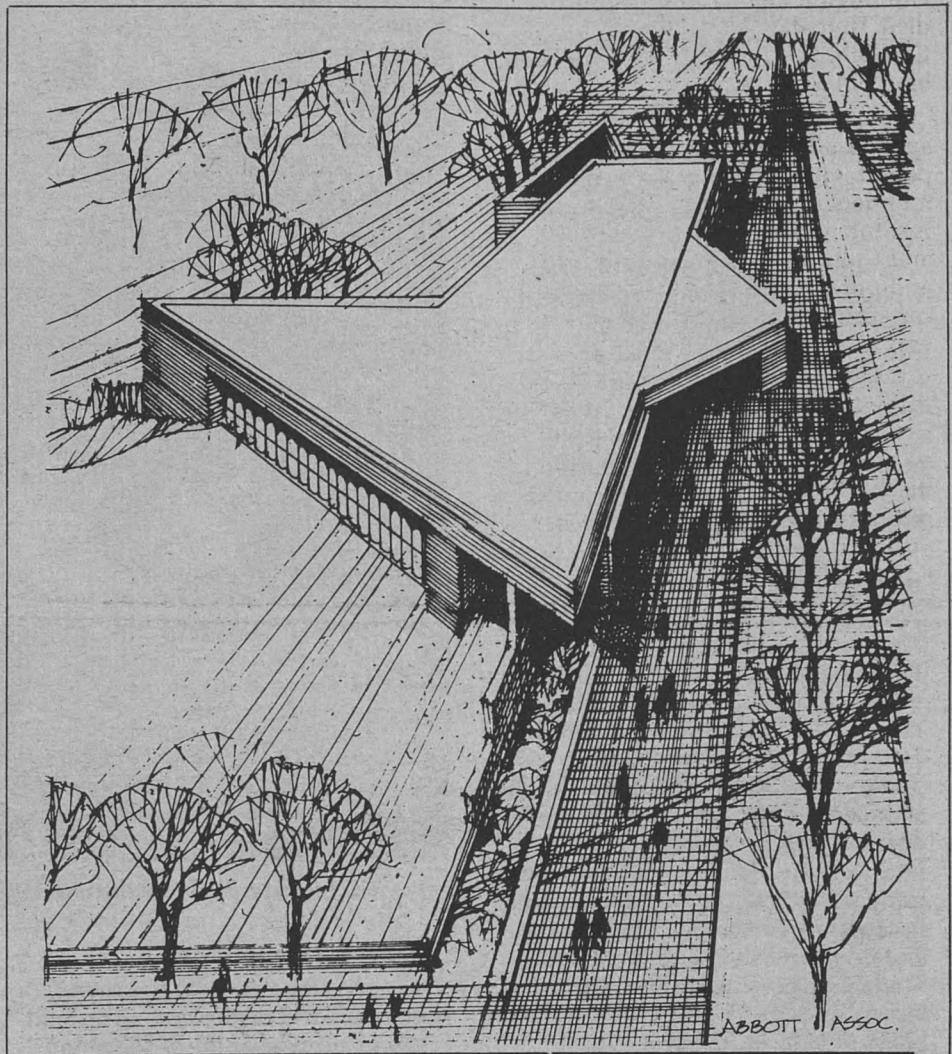

The museum will become the home of a collection that is rich, as might be expected, in 17th and 18th century American and English portraits.

The portraits number about 60 canvases and include two important collections of family portraits.

Eleven portraits of the Page family were donated in 1897 by Dr. R.C.M. Page of Gloucester. In 1940, Mrs. Robert Malcolm Littlejohn of New York gave 13 portraits of Bolling and Randolph family members.

Other important facets of the college's holdings include the Alice Aberdein collection of Oriental arts and crafts, the Jean Outland Chrysler collection, focusing on American abstract expressionism of the 1950s and 1960s, and the Lonas sculpture collection. Mrs. Chrysler is a member of the class of 1942.

The college also owns about 250 mezzotint engravings, etchings and lithographs, both American and European, dating to the 16th century.

The new art museum, for which groundbreaking ceremonies were held at Homecoming, will house William and Mary's $3 million art collection. It will include a triangular exhibition space of 2,500 square feet. (Rendering by Abbott Associates).

Fund-raising has begun to finance the second phase of the museum, which will result in the expansion of exhibition space, and the College already has two commitments totaling $125,000 toward the construction cost.

Present at the groundbreaking ceremonies were architect Carlton S. Abbott of Williamsburg, President Graves, and several of the donors to the construction of the museum including Gertrude Perrin of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muscarelle of New Jersey, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Kinnamon of Williamsburg, (Mrs. Graves), and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herman of Norfolk. Mr. Muscarelle, the Kinnamons and Hermans are all alumni of the College. Above is the architect's rendering of the museum.

A Time For Reunions, Accolades and Joy

Young Alumni Return In Greater Number Than Past

In the men's division, Ralph Johnston '73 was the men's low gross winner and Kevin Cooper had the low net score.

At the Sunset Ceremony on Friday, the William and Mary Choir provided a choral tribute to alumni who had died during the past year, and the roster of those names was read.

Saturday, alumni began the festivities with a continental breakfast at the President's House and an Alumni Jog down the Duke of Gloucester Street to the Capitol and back to the Wren Building. At 10 a.m., they watched the traditional Homecoming Parade with Vernon L. Nunn '25, the former College auditor, serving as honorary marshal.

In the afternoon, alumni attended the football game between William and Mary and Harvard, which Harvard won 23-14. At halftime, Dana Disque a Fine Arts major, Pi Beta Phi from Winchester, Va. and varsity cheerleader was crowned the 1981 Homecoming Queen, and Jim Anthony '52 led the Alumni Band in its traditional performance. Alumni also learned during the game who had won the Homecoming float competition. Pi Beta Phi won the Sorority Division; Pi Lambda Phi won the Fraternity Division, and the Black Students Organization won the Open Division. Pi Beta Phi won the Lambert Cup for the best overall float in the Parade, which was well below past standards. Society officials are already taking steps to improve the parade for next year.

At the Friday night event, the Society also recognized several classes with trophies for their outstanding performances in the 1980-81 William and Mary Fund. The Class of 1938 won the Class of 1925 Trophy for the most outstanding increase in giving. The class of 1954 trophy for the best percentage participation increase of class members in the William and Mary Fund went to the Class of 1940. The Board of Directors Cup, given to the class determined to be the best all-around class in support of the William and Mary Fund, also went to the Class of 1940.

In his remarks to alumni at the annual meeting and banquet, President Garrett said the alumni board has been working to "find ways in which we can be more helpful to the College, and be of greater assistance to the alumni that the Society represents."

He noted the number of initiatives that the Society had taken during the past year, including the sponsorship of Burgesses Day to improve relations between the College and the Commonwealth; the placement and admissions programs that the Society had organized, and the number of awards sponsored by the Society to recognize creativity and scholarship at William and Mary.

Pointing to specific programs, Garrett noted the Life After DOG Street program which brings young alumni back to campus to counsel seniors on how to make the transition from campus life to civilian life. He also noted the Society's Career Exploration Day, which brings alumni from across the country to William and Mary to talk to students about their work, their jobs, and their careers.

In announcing the Alumni Fellowships, which carry a $500 stipend,

Garrett said the Society "is particularly proud to be involved in the academic life of the College."

"For some years now," he said, "the Society has taken special pride in recognizing members of the faculty who have been particularly effective in their classroom contacts and in their relationships with their students. . . those who are recognized as 'good teachers'."

Garrett said the Society was equally proud of the response alumni have shown to the William and Mary Fund and to other funds that benefit the College. He noted that alumni overall had given nearly a million dollars to the College in the past year.

"We see the steady upward progress based in large measure on the leadership provided by the alumni who serve as national chairmen at the one end," said Garrett, "and the many loyal alumni who man the telephones and write the letters at the other."

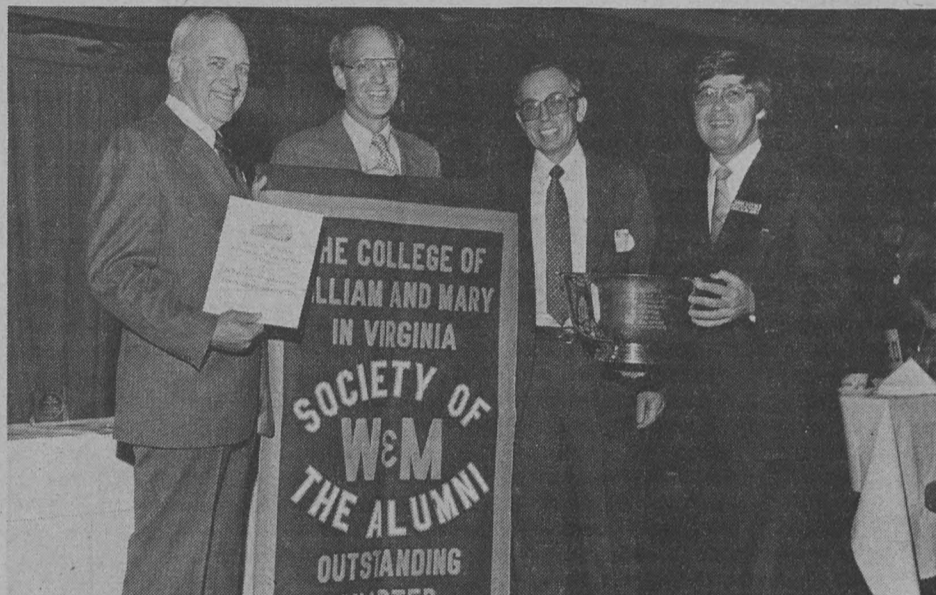

Garrett paid tribute to the leadership of John '44 and Marilyn '44 Entwisle in leading the William and Mary Fund to a record gift total during the 1980-81 and welcomed the leadership that the new co-chairmen, Pat '58 and Stu '56 Sell of La Jolla, Calif., will bring to the 1981-82 William and Mary Fund.

Members of the Order of the White Jacket and their guests got together for a photo at the annual Order of the White Jacket dinner on Sunday evening at which Congressman Paul Tribble spoke. Back row, left to right, are Congressman Tribble, Ben L. Carnevale, who retired as men's athletic director at William and Mary in July; Colin R. Davis '50, who was elected 1st vice president of OWJ; and Howard M. Smith '43, who was elected president. Front row, left to right, are outgoing president Allen C. Tanner '46, M. Carl Andrews '32, Dr. Lee B. Todd '27, and Walter J. Zable '37. All are former OWJ presidents.

President Garrett '40 and Executive Vice President Gordon Vliet '54 presented the outstanding chapter award for 1981 to the Baltimore-Annapolis Chapter (top), whose president is Bill Ambruster '57 (second from right). Next to Ambruster is Jim Brinkley '59, the previous president who was instrumental in reorganizing the chapter. Both are members of the Alumni Board. Marge Brown '54, president of the Northern Virginia Chapter, and Mark Shriver '71, former Georgia Chapter president, accepted certificates honoring their chapters which received honorable mention in the outstanding chapter competition.

Lauri Brewer, president of the class of '82, gave a hearty welcome to some new members at the Old Guard luncheon Friday.

Many alumni began their Saturday morning of Homecoming by participating in the annual Alumni Jog from the Wren Building to the Capitol and back, a distance of about two miles. Also included on the morning agenda were the continental breakfast at the President's House and the traditional Homecoming Parade.

Vernon L. Nunn '25 of Williamsburg, the former College auditor and friend of many alumni during their student days, served as the Honorary Grand Marshal of the Homecoming Parade. Riding in front seat is Mrs. Elizabeth Nunn '35.

The Queen's Guard served in its traditional role at the Sunset Ceremony. The names of alumni who had died during the previous year were read and the William and Mary Choir performed a Choral tribute to the deceased.

President Garrett '40 welcomed Zoe Graves, wife of President Graves; Rebecca Tinker, former head of the food services at William and Mary, and Mrs. Steve (Mama and Papa) Sacalis of Williamsburg into the Society as Associate Members of the Society. Many William and Mary students worked in the Sacalis restaurants which included the Corner Greeks and the Lafayette. With the Sacalis' is their niece, Mrs. Sylvia Pittas of Virginia Beach. Garrett said the Society confers the Associate Membership on "a very few persons" and "we are pleased to number them among (the College's) loyal sons and daughters."

Bill '44 and Jane '48 Smith of Detroit greeted J. Wilfred Lambert '27, the long-time dean of students at William and Mary, and Mrs. Lambert '35 at the Luncheon on the Lawn at the Alumni House on the Saturday of Homecoming.

At its Homecoming ceremonies, the Marshall-Wythe School of Law accepted a portrait from the Law School Alumni Association former Dean Dudley Woodbridge and inducted the classes of 1979 and 1980 into the Order of the Coif. Above, Julia Oxrieder '48, Dean Woodbridge's daughter, thanks the Law School Alumni Association for its gift, and below, William B. Spong, dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, inducts Florian J. Bartosic '56 BCL, dean of the law school at the University of California, Davis, into the Order of the Coif as an honorary member. Bartosic, who gave the address at the Coif ceremonies, was inducted along with R. Harvey Chappell '48, '50 BCL, Richmond, former rector of the College and President of the Society of the alumni, as an honorary member.

Dean Charles L. Quittmeyer '40 presented School of Business Administration's Business Medallion to James C. Wheat, Jr., president of Wheat, First Securities of Richmond who was honored as one of the leading financial investment figures in the Southeast.

Laurie McAvoy - The Total Student

She's A Star Athlete And An Involved Student Who Believes
You've Got To Do Everything Hard

"There are a million different committees and they're all so interesting," bubbles senior Laurie McAvoy. "Interesting" is a word she will use often—her vocabulary overflows with words like "fun," "new perspective" and "a chance to talk to people." That's what the college experience is all about, says McAvoy, who lives her belief that "you've got to do everything hard."

While most students find the role of scholar-athlete more than enough to keep them busy, McAvoy has dabbled in every aspect of life at William and Mary. In addition to competing on two varsity teams, she has served as a President's Aide, Liaison to the Board of Visitors, Liaison to the Alumni and on such committees as the Student Athletic Council, Kappa Kappa Gamma Philanthropy Committee, Admissions Application Committee and the Trinkle Hall Renovation Project.

To McAvoy, it is important for students to find out first hand what's going on. "For a lot of students there is a self-induced lack of communication and too many self-interests," she explains, noting that it is up to the students to bridge the gap between themselves and those who are making the College policies.

After serving as class president at Phoenixville High School, McAvoy decided to skip what she sees as the red tape of student government and what she believes are sometimes the less than objective views of the Flat Hat to get directly involved with the source. She started out by sitting in on the committees that interested her and now seems to have a hand in every committee or organization on campus. She'll smile her I-mean-it-from-the-bottom-of-my-heart smile and shrug as if to say, I just can't help getting involved.

As an athlete, McAvoy came to William and Mary to play tennis. But in typical style her interest in people preempted any other plans. "Field hockey practices started on Thursday and tennis didn't start until the following Monday, so I went out for field hockey just to meet a few people," she explains. McAvoy liked the team and the coaches so much that she put her #20 Middle-States ranking and racquet behind her and has played four years of hockey and will enter her fourth lacrosse season this spring.

Although there have been times when she hasn't felt as qualified or confident as she would have on a tennis court, McAvoy's been successful in her own right. As an attack wing in lacrosse she has scored 24 goals and 18 assists, and as captain of the very young field hockey team, provided leadership by example. "I give Laurie a lot of credit," says field hockey coach Jean Stettler. "She cares so much about other players as people and she genuinely tries to help them out with things."

McAvoy has been very satisfied with the role William and Mary athletics have played in her life. "I've been so pleased, the recruits are neat people, and the coaches too," she says, "It would be so easy to fall into all the traps of pressure and recruiting. . . the burden rests with the coaches, but they've provided an example of priorities and their philosophy is good."

As her senior year fades away, McAvoy does not see her college participation ending in May. "I plan to be very active with the William and Mary alumni, you can help as an alumnus, and I can even imagine myself back here working for the college someday."

Women's Sports Roundup

Golf Team Wins Regional Title

Defending Champions Qualify Again For Nationals

The women's golf team won their second straight AIAW Region 2 Championship at the Kingsmill Golf Course qualifying for the Division II Nationals in May where they will defend their national title. Freshman Anne Bierman of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, won her first collegiate tournament, shooting a career low 71 the first day, and an 82 the second day for a 153 total.

Senior captain Mary Wilkinson placed second with a 74-82-156 on the Par 73 course and junior Mary Ellen Fedor turned in an 83-79-162 to place third individually. In team points, the Tribe easily defeated state rival Longwood with 652 points to Longwood's 685. The race was expected to be much closer as Longwood was runner-up at the AIAW Division II Nationals to William and Mary last Spring.

CROSS COUNTRY - William and Mary fell short of qualifying as a team for the AIAW Division II Nationals, but still finished with the finest dual record to date at 9-1. Senior Cathy Sardo, sophomore Alison Hawley and freshman Robin Roughton qualified individually for the nationals which were held November 21 at Idaho State University in Pocatello.

TENNIS - The women's team stood true to form in turning in a 9-1 fall record, with wins over Ivy League power Yale 6-3; Wake Forest 5-4; and Richmond 5-4. Top tournament places included first of 21 teams at Salisbury State; third of 32 teams at the Tennis Life; and second of 35 teams at the prestigious Eastern Intercollegiate in New Paltz, NY.

Junior transfer Cherie Dow capped off her first season for the Tribe with a win over Yale's highly ranked number one player. Sophomore Karen Dudley and freshman Sarah Dobbins at number three and four singles, and the number one and two doubles teams of Chris Mast-Margie Waters and Lisa Milligan-Anne Shoemaker all won titles at the Salisbury State Tournament.

VOLLEYBALL - Volleyball ended with an overall 19-18 record and an unblemished conference regular season record of 5-0. Still, the state title eluded the team for the fifth year, as they finished in third place. Senior Tami Olenich was selected to the State All-Tournament team for the second straight year, along with sophomore Elaine Carlson.

FIELD HOCKEY - The women's field hockey team was nationally ranked all season, but failed to qualify for nationals, finishing at 6-7-4 and fourth in the state. Sophomore Karen Thorne received Honorable Mention All-American status, and junior Basia Deren and senior Susan Aldworth were named to the State All-Tournament team. Deren led in scoring with 11 goals, upping her career record to 52 goals, eight off the all-time scoring mark.

SOCCER - In their first varsity season, the women's soccer team had a 9-8 record and faced strong regional competition. They won games over Richmond, ODU, Mary Washington and Randolph-Macon, and will only lose two players to graduation. Kathy Doherty led the squad with 8 goals and 7 assists, Mary Swanson had 8 goals and 4 assists and Ana Kuhn had 8 goals and 1 assist.

Optimism Abounds On Reservation

Depth, Experience, Recruits Make Parkhill Smile

Basketball coaches generally are not known for their optimism. But William and Mary's head basketball coach, Bruce Parkhill, is positively beaming with good feelings as the Tribe heads into its 1981-82 season.

The Indians won their first three games over Elizabethtown, Christopher Newport College and Virginia Military Institute before dropping a 76-60 decision to Virginia Tech at Blacksburg.

Parkhill, who begins his fifth year at the helm and 10th with the program, feels this year's squad has the ability to "be as good or better than any I've been associated with here."

The reason for the optimism? More talented depth at every position, better shooting team, and solid on-the-floor leadership by the upperclassmen to be a significant contribution.

"Things have really progressed well in practices. Our younger players have caught on to our scheme and approach very quickly and the result is more doing and reacting and less teaching," said Parkhill.

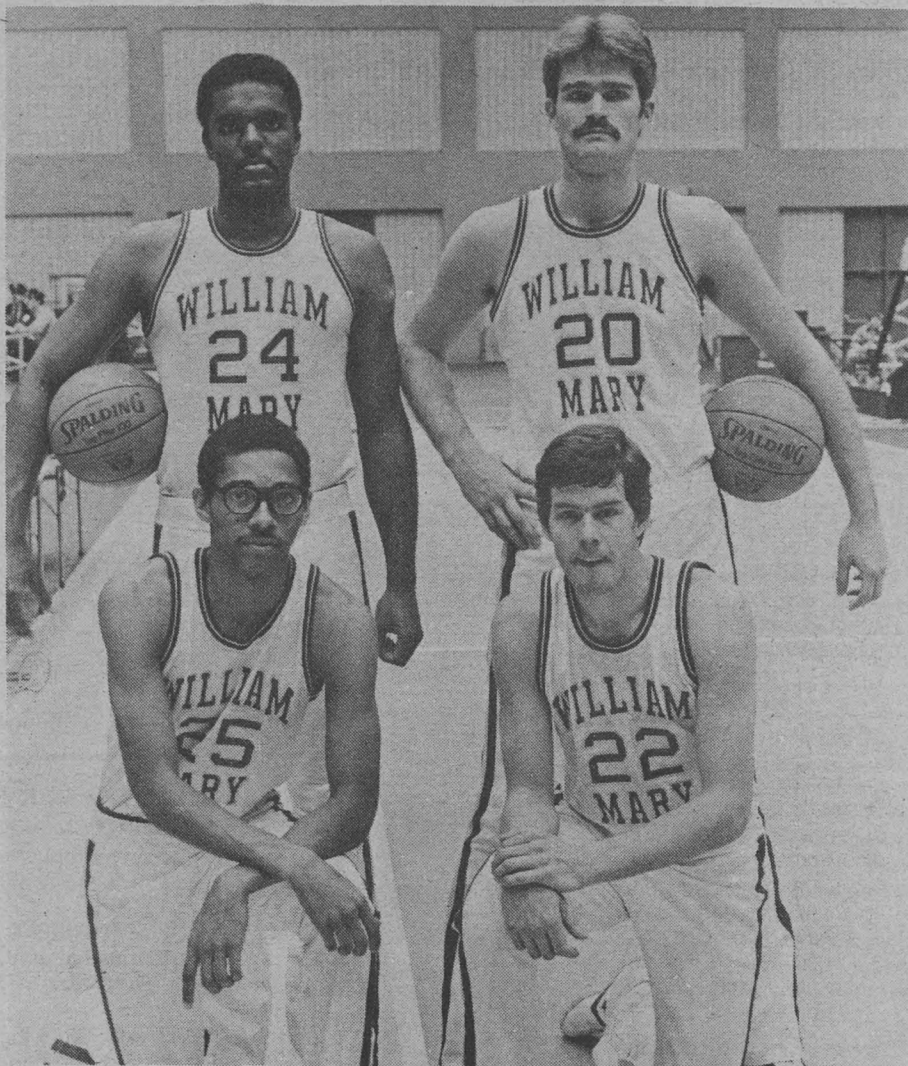

The 1981-82 session began with opening practice on October 15. Since then, Parkhill reports "only a couple of practices have been bad."

"We have had a very, very good pre-season and I don't think I've ever felt more positive about our potential."

Parkhill is pleased with his first year players and their progress.

"I can't help but smile," said Parkhill. "The three freshmen recruits could well be the best we've ever had."

Keith Cieplicki, the 6-4 guard from Burlington, Va.; Kevin Richardson, a 6-5 forward from Columbus, Ohio; and Matt Brooks, a 6-8, 220 lb., forward from Bernardville, N.J., have been most impressive.

Seniors Dale Moats and Kenny Bowen (standing) and Billy Barnes (kneeling, right) and junior Mike Strayhorn, an honorable mention All-American last year, will provide the experience for Bruce Parkhill's Indians this year.

"They will all play an important part this year. And, while I'm always reluctant to single out a player, I have to say Keith Cieplicki has unbelievable potential. He has as much court presence as you could hope for and what a shooter."

Parkhill said veterans Billy Barnes, Kenny Bowen and Dale Moats "are the leaders on and off the floor."

"Their experience should be a big plus for us this year. They are the seniors and they're respected by everyone."

Barnes, nicknamed "Good News," has been the team's Defensive Player of the Year for the past two years. Last year he led the squad in steals (55), assists (88) and rebounds (140), while averaging 9.2 points a game for the Tribe. He has 788 career points.

"Billy had a fine all-around year for us. He does so many things well and has true leadership qualities. I can't say enough about how much he means to our program," stated Parkhill.

Bowen, like Barnes, has started since his freshman year. The 6-9 "Big Daddy" has been a picture of hard work and improvement since day one. A native of Richmond, he averaged 9.4 points last year and has scored 778 career points from his center position. Last year in the Tribe's regionally televised game against Old Dominion, Bowen was selected the game's "MVP" for which a scholarship in his name was presented to the College by Chevrolet.

"Ken has developed into a good, smart center who has been a very positive force in our growing program," commented Parkhill.

Moats has had an up and down career on the basketball floor. He has been a frequent starter throughout his three years and is being counted on to come through with a solid senior year.

"Dale has the ability to be a big factor for us. He is an outstanding young man who, I think, will turn in the consistent play we need from him."

Parkhill, called junior forward Michael Strayhorn "the dependable, consistent, pressure player every team needs for success and we have him."

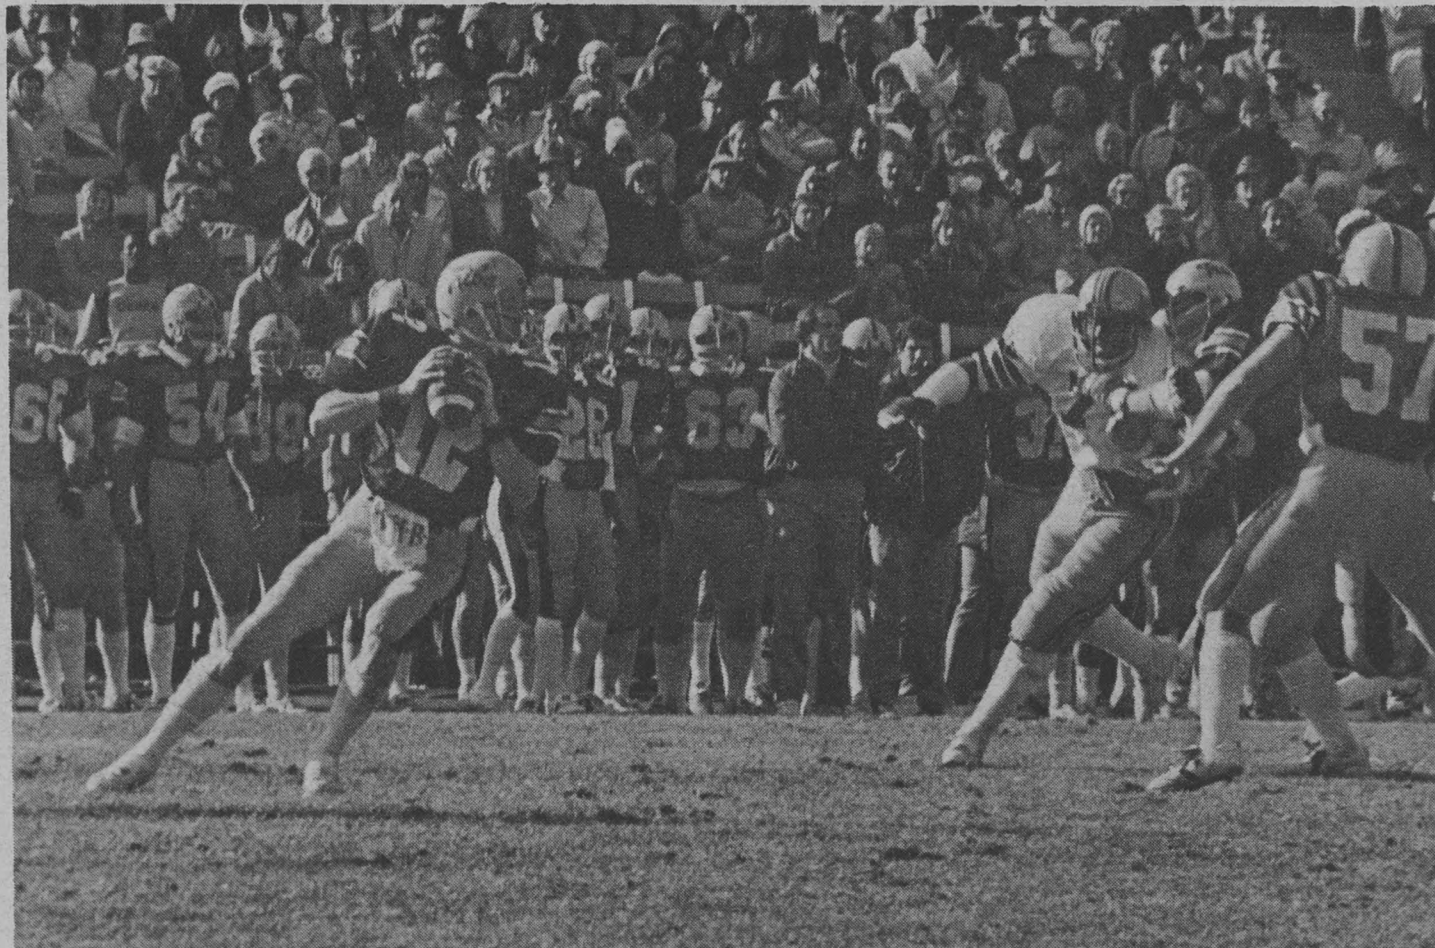

"Mike does it all. He's calm and cool and at his best when the pressure is on." The 6-5 Richmond native was the team's Offensive Player of the Year last season with a team leading 11.1 points a game. "Quiet Magic" was selected first team All South ECAC, 2nd Team All District and Honorable Mention All American.

Parkhill looks to two improving sophomores, Herb Harris at 6-7, 205 pounds, and Gary Bland, at 6-6 1/2 and 195 pounds, to add support at forward and to junior Richie Cooper to provide solid depth at the guard spot. Brant Weidner, a 6-9, 230-pounder, will spell Bowen at center, and newcomers Tommy Lamb, a transfer from Catholic University, and walk-on David Butler could see action in the backcourt.

The Indians, 16-12 last year, will be facing another outstanding schedule featuring 15 home games. Last year, the Tribe played one of the 10 most difficult schedules in the country.

Some of the big names coming to William and Mary Hall include the University of Maryland, Virginia Tech, VCU, James Madison, Old Dominion and Temple.

On the road, the Tribe will face number one ranked North Carolina and over Christmas William and Mary plays in the Iron Duke Classic with Auburn, Davidson and host Blue Devils.

Quarterback Chris Garrity led William and Mary to a 5-6 season record, including wins over East Carolina and Richmond in the Tribe's final two games. In those games, Garrity passed for a record 727 yards, completing 58 of 77 passes including seven touchdowns. With that remarkable finish, Garrity set 11 William and Mary passing records including most career yards (4536) and most career completions (407).

Former Tribe Star Recovers

Billy Taylor Undergoes Surgery at Mayo

Former Tribe basketball player Billy Taylor '80 has undergone successful surgery at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Taylor spent the last seven years partially paralyzed and bed-ridden by what turned out to be a cyst and not an inoperable brain tumor as previously diagnosed.

Before becoming bed-ridden Taylor served as a member of the math department and as head basketball coach at Warwick High School in Newport News. He was honored by the Peninsula Sports Club for excellence in the coaching field and for courage in facing his illness.

At William and Mary, Taylor was a member of Phi Eta Sigma and Kappa Sigma fraternities.

Long-time friend Paul Cowley '63 who also played basketball at William and Mary and who now serves as guidance counselor at Warwick High School, has established the Billy Taylor Fund to help provide needed financial assistance for Taylor. Contributions to the fund should be sent to Cowley at 284 Paulette Drive, Newport News, Va. 23602.

Alumni wishing to write cards or letters of encouragement to Taylor should send them to 204 Watkins Drive, Hampton, Va. 23669, where he made his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L.L. Taylor.

HOUSE NOTES

Ed Belvin '48 visited the Alumni House recently and left an autographed copy of his new book for the Paschall Library. The book is GROWING UP IN WILLIAMSBURG, FROM THE DEPRESSION TO PEARL HARBOR, published in 1981.

A 1930 football banner proclaiming W&M 13, Harvard 13 was given by Virginia Drown Smith '34 and has been framed and is hanging in the OWJ Room of the Alumni House. Mrs. Smith also donated a large poster photograph of the 1930 football team.

Other recent gifts to the Alumni House include photographs of the 1940's from Margaret Peck Latham '41, COLONIAL ECHOES and a bound copy of the 1924-25 FLAT HAT from Mary Cabaniss Bridges '29, a 1926-27 Students Hand Book from Ralph K. T. Larson '28, and from Walter D. Vinyard '32 a 1932 graduation invitation and commencement program.

Robert J. Kern '41 donated a 1940 photograph of student waiters at William and Mary.

Gifts of books written by alumni authors and gifts of college days' memorabilia are appreciated. Alumni are invited to contact Frankie Martens at the Alumni Office, Post Office Box GO, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187.

LETTER

Editor:

With deep gratitude and treasured memories of a great man, a scholar, a gentleman and a special human being, I write to thank you for your splendid article about Dr. Fowler.

By the way, Harold Fowler was, also, a good dancer. When he "cut in" to dance with me in the old Blow Gym at the Saturday night dances, I was in seventh heaven.

Dr. Fowler stands out as the teacher in my four years at the College of William and Mary. He ran a tight ship on a steady course. Drop a pencil - heaven forbid! Let alone yawn! Which I did, one day. "Are you bored, Miss Grodecoeur?" asked Fowler. "No sir," I replied, "just tired." And I was in that demanding freshman year (a far cry from high school). But I worked like the devil for Fowler's freshman course and went on to take others from him.

I suspect that you are overwhelmed by similar responses from alumni who loved, admired and respected Dr. Fowler.

Sincerely yours,

Frances L. Grodecoeur '39

William and Mary Barge - 1982

NCAA Decision Moves College To Division I-AA

William and Mary's football program has been moved down to Division I-AA from Division I-A, effective September 1, 1982, as a result of action taken in December by the NCAA at a meeting in St. Louis.

William and Mary is one of six independents, including the University of Richmond, to be affected by the action. Schools in the Southern Conference, including Virginia Military Institute, and the Ivy League were also moved to Division I-A.

In establishing the new criteria for members of Division I-A, the NCAA approved a set of standards that William and Mary cannot meet under current conditions for membership in the higher division. They include either a 30,000 seat football stadium, average per game home attendance of 17,000 over the past four years, or a 30,000-seat stadium and average home attendance of 17,000 over the past year.

However, the NCAA gave schools affected by the change until Dec. 21 to file for a waiver to allow them to remain in Division I, and the Board of Visitors, at its meeting earlier this month, authorized President Graves and James Copeland, men's athletic director, to apply for the waiver.

Although the change does not affect men's basketball, it means that schools moving into Division I-AA must reduce their football grants-in-aid to 85 by next fall and to 75 by the fall of 1983.

The impact of the change on William and Mary's plan to expand its football stadium will be more clear after the NCAA rules on the College's request for a waiver.

Charter Day To Recognize Business School

William and Mary To Confer Honorary Degrees On Business Leaders

Three prominent business leaders, including an alumnus, will share honors at William and Mary's 1982 Charter Day festivities Feb. 5-6, which will center around the dedication of a renovated building for the School of Business Administration.

Hays T. Watkins, president of the CSX Corp.; D. Hillsdon Ryan '50, chairman and chief executive officer of Minit International in Geneva, Switzerland; and Edwin D. Dodd, chairman and chief executive officer of Owens-Illinois, will receive honorary degrees and speak at various functions throughout the two-day celebration.

Watkins, former chairman and chief executive officer of the Chessie System, Inc., before the merger to become CSX, will be the principal speaker at the Charter Day convocation ceremonies scheduled for 10:30 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 6, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

On Friday, Feb. 5, the School of Business Administration will hold its annual Presidents Day program, culminating with the dedication of the renovated Chancellors Hall at 3:30 p.m. Ryan will be the principal speaker at the dedication, and Dodd will deliver the keynote address at the Presidents Day luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

Watkins has served on numerous boards of directors and is vice chairman of the Sponsors, Inc., Board of the School of Business Administration. He was also instrumental in the establishment of the Chessie Professorship of Business Administration at the College which is held by Dr. Marvin M. Stanley.

Ryan, a Petersburg native, graduated from William and Mary in 1950 after attending the Virginia Military Institute and serving in World War II. He received his M.B.A. degree from Harvard Business School in 1952 before starting a whirlwind career in business.

Dodd, a native of West Virginia, is chairman and CEO of the 95th largest industrial company in the U.S. After graduating from Ohio State University and the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, Dodd served in World War II in the Pacific, rising from the rank of private to second lieutenant.

More than 100 alumni participated last year in the Colonial Half Marathon at William and Mary, which is directed by the Tribe's Track and Cross Country Coach, Roy Chernock. The race is run, in part, along the James River on the beautiful Colonial Parkway. If you would like to participate in the 1982 race, fill out the enclosed form and send it to Roy Chernock at the College.

Another Class '25 Reunion has come and gone - our 56th! Let's begin, as of today, to make plans for our '57th!

For the first time Dot and Red Campbell could not be with us due to the fact they left Florida in early October stopping on the way at Jekyll Island for a few days of fishing. They noted how sorry they were that they would miss Liz and Vernon Nunn on this trip. On October 25th a granddaughter was being married in New Jersey and then they were planning to spend Thanksgiving in Houston, coming back immediately to Aiken for a grandson's wedding on December 5th. Dot added, "After that I hope we can stay put in Florida for awhile. Will miss being at Homecoming, but you can see why we can't be there! Have a happy day and give Stuart our regards."

Yes, Dot, it is very easy to understand why you could not be with us. From all sides I was hearing "It just isn't the same without Dot and Red at our Class Reunion." Truer words were never spoken. I assure you both that you were missed a very great deal and we hope from now on your schedule will permit you to be with us.

Red, my thanks for sending the "Guest Book." It was most thoughtful indeed. As soon as I think you are back home, I will return it.

Our Class Reunion was great as usual. Seemed a little different due to the fact we were not alone in our celebration, because, as you know, it was our first Reunion with "The Olde Guard." We thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity and the privilege of being a part of "The Olde Guard."

After the luncheon there was a groundbreaking for the Art Museum. Naturally, everyone wanted to go.

From G. Gunter Mercer we had this note - "A trip to the Far East was a thrilling experience for Cile and me. We spent a month in Japan, Hong Kong, Bangkok and Bali with a rest-up weekend in Hawaii." What a delightful trip! Thank you for sharing your time with us.

Alice Clay Hall called Art from Texas and sent greetings. We are hoping that you will come for our '57th Reunion, Alice, and we will accept no negative reply.

Vernon Nunn was the Marshall of the Parade Saturday morning. You have brought another honor to us, Vernon. We are proud, indeed, that you were selected.

Speaking of Vernon, he gave us a review of our Class Twenty-Five Memorial Fund. We now have given $13,924.84. I here inject a notation from Vernon: "This does not include earning for the first quarter 1981-82." Also he reported that an award of $275 for 1981-82 went to a freshman from Dale, New York. The recipient did not wish his name divulged. We respect his wish with understanding since this is an aide and not a loan.

We learned that Vernon has been quite ill, having undergone an operation, but he is doing fine. Liz is the same cheerful, loving Liz. She is a real challenge to the rest of us.

Two letters were read by Art. One was from Anita Rucher Cottrell stating that "she just wasn't up to making the trip." We missed you, Anita, and look forward to having you with us for our '57th. From Jane Moss Hill's husband was the request that no more notes or cards be sent to her. This saddened us but we shall respect his instructions.

Art also brought our Class honor. He is serving as the first President of "The Olde Guard Council." We are proud that this honor came to you, Art, and we look forward to working with you in your new role.

We were very disappointed to learn that Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse and Elizabeth Walmsey would not be with us as planned due to the fact that Elizabeth's physician felt she should not travel at this time. We do hope, Elizabeth, that very soon he will give you the "Green Light." Mathilda closed her note with "Do have lots of fun at Homecoming - and put it all in your Class Report for us. See you in '82."

And we shall be at the Alumni House waiting to greet you! I requested that those present sign and write a short message to our class. As you can well imagine I was unable to capture all of our class, but I shall quote from those who did sign:

Art and Mary Winder - "Greetings."

Vernon and Liz Nunn - (Writing to Dot and Red) "Hi! We really missed you both. See you in 1982 or before if you are near Jekyll Island this year. Best regards."

Marjorie Brulle Shook - "No real news, but looking forward to our '57th!"

Rose Dipond - "Enjoying this get-together." The weather is beautiful - couldn't be better."

John St. George - "Grand to be here."

Charles and Betty Pollard - "The grandest occasion of the year - meeting so many of the 'Grads' I remember. Williamsburg is our home and we love it."

"Pap" Fuller - "I am very happy. I am 79 and full of vigor. The Lord has been most kind to me."

Leo Haskell - "The prime of senility is marvelous. The advanced stage of senility is something else."

Tony Everett - "Getting old is not so bad when you can be with this '25 group who seem ever young."

Ed Islin - "For those of us who were back for Homecoming, it was a grand day. We miss our classmates who are not with us. Let's look forward to next year."

Helen - "One of the happiest days of the year too soon came to a close. I regret all of our classmates could not join us, but I am confident each of you were with us even though we could not hear your voice."

As your Reporter, I call attention to our next two deadlines and ask that you please adhere to them and send some news. You may not receive any further notice so I beg of you that you stop this very moment and enter the following two important dates on your desk calendar which means if your news is to reach me on these dates you must get in in the mail at least two days in advance. This does not mean you cannot send it earlier. "The earlier the better" because I will be extremely busy:

February 15th on my desk for the April issue of the GAZETTE.

April 15th on my desk for the June issue.

I shall be most appreciative of your cooperation.

"The Olde Guard" met in The Campus Center Dining Hall for a social hour followed by a most delicious luncheon. The highlight of the occasion was our President's presence - Dr. Graves in his quiet and dignified manner expressed his appreciation of "The Olde Guard" and especially welcomed the newest Class - The Class of '31.

Needless to point out, Harvard, of which our President is an alumnus, played William and Mary on Saturday afternoon. The score was 23-14 (Harvard). I feel that our team did very well and for the Class of '25 I send heartiest congratulations to the Team and our Coach.

How many classmates and guests were present? I would say between 25 and 30. At the writing I do not have an exact count.

May the Joys of Christmas ring loudly and clearly and may Peace reign the World over!

Another great Homecoming has come and gone and so many of you wonderful old friends missed all the fun. How sad! Only 11 among at least 170 "survivors" registered. There probably were others.

Those I listed were Eleanor Calkins, C.M. "Spike Smith, Wilfred "Cy" Lambert, Curtis Jenkins, Joe and Margaret Muscarelle, Eulah Massey, Lee B. Todd, R.E.B. "Buzzy" Stewart, Joe James, Phoebe Green and yours truly.

Of course, we all attended the annual "Olde Guard" luncheon in the Student Center ballroom and did a lot of reminiscing while exchanging symptoms, but the highlight was the groundbreaking near Phi Beta Kappa Hall for the new Joseph and Margaret Muscarelle Museum of Art.

In a previous letter we mentioned that Joe and Margaret had pledged $600,000 for this much-needed addition to cultural life at the College. You'll find a full account elsewhere in this issue. Thanks to this and other substantial gifts a magnificent structure should be ready to dedicate next Homecoming.

All of us should be proud that one of our class and his wife have contributed the largest single private gift in William and Mary history. Its results should be a thing of joy and beauty for generations to come.

In contrast to this event was the tremendously moving Sunset Ceremony where four of our members--Mary Katharine Anderson, Julia Howard Day, Virginia Bundy Wills and Charles Harrison Zehmer--were among the several score departed alumni memorialized with prayer, tolling of the ancient bell, presence of the Queen's Guard and singing by the College Choir of that throat-catching Negro spiritual: "My Lord, what a morning, when the stars began to fall!"

Outcome of the game was a disappointment, naturally, but at least we finally brought Harvard down South for some of our fall weather. The Homecoming Parade lacked its old zip but the Indian Band was tremendous.

For several of us who once worked in the old dining hall, the Order of the White Jacket annual banquet in Blow Gym was a fitting climax. Next year will be our 55th anniversary--you ALL must come!

GIFT HONORS DEWEY RENICK '17

Dewey C. Renick '17 and his widow Fern have been honored by a gift of real estate to William and Mary by a retired businessman and real estate developer who lives in Williamsburg. George Taylor Ross, a longtime friend and business partner of Renick's, gave the College a substantial interest in the Green Springs Trust of Virginia, valued at over $215,000. Mrs. Renick has added an interest in the property of $34,000 bringing the total of the College's holdings to nearly $250,000. Green Springs was once the homeplace of Virginia's Royal Governor, Sir William Berkeley. Renick was instrumental in putting together the land package for the establishment of the Anheuser Busch complex in Williamsburg.

CASKIE STINNETT '32 NEW TRAVEL WRITERS PRESIDENT

Prominent travel writer and editor Caskie Stinnett '32 has been installed in Bangkok, Thailand, as president of the Society of American Travel Writers (SATW). Founded in 1956, the SATW is comprised of over 650 travel editors of magazines and newspapers, freelance writers, broadcasters, photographers and public relations specialists. Its members collectively constitute the primary conduit of travel information for the 300 million people of the North American continent. Stinnett has authored four travel books and is a contributor to several national magazines. During his career, he has been editor in chief of Holiday magazine, Travel and Leisure, and executive director of Ladies Home Journal. Stinnett received the Alumni Medallion in 1973.

By the way, I noted in the most recent alumni giving report that 56 members of the class (a bit less than one third) gave a minimum total of $3,000 in addition to the Muscarelle outpouring.

I must tell you that William and Mary is not the only place where Joe Muscarelle is known in a handsome way. In September at Seton Hall University he was presented the Pope John Paul II humanitarian award by Archbishop Pio Laghi, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to the United States, "for excellence in his chosen field and for the understanding and compassion he demonstrated in serving his community."

An equally great honor came to Joe in October when he was made a Knight of the Military and Hospitaler Order of Saint John of Jerusalem, Knights of Malta, Ecumenical "for outstanding philanthropic work, Exceptional achievements and unselfish support of the humanities."

The Knights of Malta, or Hospitalers, was founded by Crusaders in 1048 AD to attend wounded, but grew into a great military power, defending Malta against the Turks successfully in 1565 and expanding from Roman Catholic to Protestant jurisdictions in the Reformation. Pope John XXIII revitalized the Order so that it now has priories or commanderies in 26 countries, including the United States.

You may have noticed in Parade Magazine of November 1, that the international headquarters of the Sovereign and Military Order of Malta is the smallest "country" in the world, located inside Rome, not far from the Vatican. Its principal effort is good works such as running clinics, hospitals and leper colonies around the world. It is usually called the Kingdom of Colonia--St. John.

I am sure that all join me in saluting Sir Joseph Muscarelle, Knight of the Order of Malta. In addition to his contribution to our College, he gave a $1.4 million science building to Fairleigh-Dickinson University.

This past June, Joe and Margaret were guests of the Costa Rica government for a meeting of the International Association of University Presidents, then visited in Venezuela. Forsaking their winter home in Palm Beach, they will take their whole family--three children and spouses plus grandchildren (23 in all) to Interlaken, Switzerland, for the Christmas holidays and a lot of skiing. Well, everybody skiing except Joe and Margaret, that is.

Frank Hopkins is always a source of news for me, thank goodness, and he writes that Lane Parrott, once captain of our tennis team, now living at 17 Woodland Drive, Plandome, N.Y. 11030 with wife, Polly, recently visited Frank's brother, Sewell Hopkins, at the old Hopkins home in Gloucester. I presume that Lane (you will remember him as a handsome favorite of the coeds) is retired now like the rest of us. His boyhood home was in Norfolk. He and Frank often visited and Lane once spent a summer working on the Hopkins daffodil farm.

Frank's son, Nicholas, who teaches at the University of Cairo, Egypt, brought his son, Omar, to America in October and who was on hand to greet them at Mount Hermon School in Northfield, Mass., but Bill Morrow, who has been a professor and officer of that old institution for a half century.

Frank and wife Louise had just returned from that long-planned voyage from Vancouver to Alaska and back. They loved Victoria, British Columbia and recommend the trip to classmates.

Reminiscing about the recent Yorktown Bicentennial, Frank recalled being at the 1931 Sesquicentennial where, in addition to seeing President Hoover, he was a guest on the French cruisers. Present also was famed Marshal Petain, hero of Verdun in World War I.

A sidelight is that in 1954 Frank and Mr. Hoover remembered that meeting while Hoover was receiving his 80th honorary degree at Tuebingen University in Germany.

I missed seeing Max Brockenbrough Houghland at Homecoming although she and Fax Griffith Bahr live close by, but Max wrote me a cheerful note of appreciation for the news some of you contributed. Her life, she says, is not spectacular, but she still enjoys writing poetry.

A note from Cotton Rawls tells me that he and Jean have moved from their old home in Darien, Conn., to 41 Contentment Island, Darien, 06820 on Long Island Sound, the former summer home of Jean's parents. The Rawls recently enjoyed an annual visit to the White Mountains in New Hampshire. He is fully recovered from his heart surgery last spring, I'm happy to report.

Leonard Born recently did me the honor of borrowing my book, "No Higher Honor" on Gov. E. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., from the Swem Library, for long distance reading in San Francisco. The book was a sellout and we did not have a reissue.

Len and wife should be back by now from their second lengthy visit in China following another sojourn in Mexico and then Wyoming. How they do get around!

There will be no more news until the April Gazette so please write to me before March 1 to get in your two cents' worth. Meanwhile, a Blessed and Merry Christmas and Happy, Healthy New Year to you all!

I know that all of you who were not at Homecoming were delighted to learn that Dr. William M. "Billy" Bickers, Class of 1929, was selected by the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni, to receive the Alumni Medallion for service and loyalty to the College. His address is 412 Medical Arts Building, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

A note from William E. "Bill" Warren. "Retired from Virginia National Bank, Norfolk, 1973, as senior Vice President. Still active in business as a real estate appraiser and sales agent and as a member of the Board of Directors of the Chesapeake Savings and Loan Association. My daughter, Ann Fletcher, and her two children, Cathy and Warren, also live in Norfolk and we see them frequently."

Another letter from Thomas H. Christie, 3713 Washington Boulevard, Arlington, Virginia 22201. "Guilty, guilty, I confess. Each time I look at the alumni news related to the Class of '29, I have been disappointed, but I have done very little to help in the matter. I always enjoy the news of the classes related to us.

"The Lord has blessed us in so many ways. We have three children and nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Five of the grand children are married and doing fine.

"I wrote you some time ago that I had to have a cornea transplant. It is slowly getting better, but I have not been able to drive the car for over two years. Frances and I have had the opportunity to travel a great deal since my retirement. We have been to the Bahamas, Costa Rica, Panama, Hawaii, and many great places in our great country.

"I am still preaching, marrying, burying, and counselling. I stay as busy as I like. We enjoy every day the good Lord gives us. It is our desire to help others along the way.

"May the Lord bless all of the members of our great Class of '29."

Another note from Ernestine Renn Boyce, 5005 Holly Road, Portsmouth, Virginia 23703. "Sorry we will not be able to come to the Olde Guard luncheon. They have been great and I enjoyed so much seeing old acquaintances. My husband and I are going to the Orient at that time. Peggy Eacho Corcoran, '29, also a Theta, stopped by to see us at the Beach not long ago on the way back to Rye, New York, from Florida. We're still in Portsmouth in the winter." She is Mrs. Clinton C. Boyce.

We had the opportunity recently to visit in the home of Lucille Burke and Edward Armstrong Smith in Farmville, Virginia, on the return from a business trip to Richmond, Virginia.

Please let us have more news from other alumni as often as possible. All of your classmates want to hear from you.

T. Pettus Carter wrote that he was pleased to receive his Olde Guard Certificate even though it was not possible for him to attend the reunion in person. Pettus says that he does not get far from home these days, so will not be able to attend Homecoming, but will be there in spirit. He does enjoy working in his flower garden and has as his constant companion his 14 year old "Sheltie." He still has his William and Mary pillow on his living room couch. He sends best wishes to the Class of 1931.

Norvelle Goodwin Tate and her husband, Doug, enjoyed the Alaska Cruise in June. She said that she liked Fairbanks better than Anchorage, and liked the 20 hours of daylight. They had snow at Mt. McKinley Park. In August, they took a bus tour to Kentucky and Tennessee, including Lexington and Bardstown, Kentucky and "The Hermitage" in Nashville. They both enjoyed the reunion in May and hope to make the 55th.

In a note from Marian Handy Anderson, she said that she will not be able to get to Homecoming, but she is still remembering our good time at the Reunion and will be thinking of us on November 6 and 7.

Irma Adams Gillespie and husband, Bob, had a delightful tour in July of the capitals of Canada. They were in Ottawa at the time of

COLLEGE HIRES FIRST FUND RAISER FOR WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

Karen Arwe, 28, has been named as the College's first fund raiser for women's athletics. Effective December 1, Arwe will serve as an administrative assistant to Millie West, director of athletics for women, with the responsibility of initiating a fund development and promotional program for women's athletics. Arwe recently completed her masters degree in athletic administration at North Carolina - Chapel Hill, where she gained experience with athletic fund raising. From 1977-79 she worked for the International Management Group of Mark McCormack '51 in both the New York and Cleveland offices. She received her B.A. degree in American Studies and Economics from Smith College in 1974.

Trudeau's Summit Meeting at Monte Bel-lum, which was forty miles away. Later, the meeting resumed in Ottawa. Irma says that excitement was high and security was heavy.

D. Carlton Nightengale writes that as he read the Alumni Gazette, his thoughts went back to the life in Williamsburg. He was born in Williamsburg and went to school with J. Kenneth Graham. They were boyhood playmates on through high school there. He recalled Dr. Louis Perillo whose name is on the Nightengales' marriage certificate of 1932. Carlton had worked for VEPCO one year before entering William and Mary and returned there in 1933. He retired after 42 years service with VEPCO. During that time he studied electricity and passed through many departments of the company. When he retired in 1974 he was assistant to Operations Supervisor in Fredericksburg, Virginia. Carlton and his wife have one son, Terry L., who works for Virginia Highways and Transportation in the central office of Engineering and Design in Richmond, Virginia. Carlton says that providing their health is O.K., he and his wife would like to be at Homecoming.

Kathrine Kahle Adelmann served several years ago as Secretary/Treasurer, Program Chairman, and President of the Retired Chemists Association of New York. She had an enjoyable trip to Paris this summer. She says that if she wrote of the things she found interesting such as Egyptology, Zen Buddhism and French History most people would be bored, so she has written about other events of the trip. She found two star hotels selected from the French Tourist Bureau's list very comfortable. The cafeterias, little bistros (cafes), and restaurant cafeterias in department stores are reasonable and good. The subway system is close to foolproof: every line switches to several of the others, and the trains are quiet and without graffiti. She found it amusing to see the English translations in some bistros. For instance, "cold cuts" was translated as "cold flesh." She found good lookout places to be the top of the church of Sacre Coeur and the top of the Arc de Triomphe. Versailles was undergoing some restoration. Cemeteries were interesting. The private mausoleums are so old that the doors have rusted at the hinges and many have fallen off. She said that to look at the names on the tombstones is like walking down the pages of history. Many graves have beautiful china wreaths on them. She remarked that the hotel halls are dimly lighted at night, but at the head of the stairs is a button to push which causes a bright light that gives plenty of time to get to your room before the semi-darkness returns. In contrast to our "hamburger stands," the French have "Croissanteries" where croissants filled with a choice of ham and cheese, mushrooms, or apples are served warm. The zoo, on the outskirts of Paris, is beautifully landscaped, animals are well kept, and it has a good selection of animals. She comments on the Fennecs as especially charming. These are desert foxes, small, which have been described as "animals that Walt Disney might have created." Flowers in the parks and in public places are so well cared for that one never sees a wilted flower. It is good to have Kathrine share some of her experiences with us.

Previously, I had intended to mention Lenore Coley Thomson's travels for 3 months in Europe early in 1981. She spent 10 days in Russia and the rest of the time in Hungary, Yugoslavia, East Berlin, Ireland, Spain, Portugal, France, Greece, Austria, Germany, Liechtenstein, Finland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, England, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Italy, and Switzerland. Some of you may remember Lenore from Hampton High School days as well as William and Mary. She is an experienced traveler. She is now living in Beulah, Colorado and has taken many interesting trips in the western part of the United States in her camper.

As I write this I am looking forward to Homecoming, November 6-7. Do keep sending news. We want to hear about each other. Our next class letter will appear in the April issue of the Gazette, so let me hear from you before March 1, 1982.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

32 Mrs. Thomas C. Bradshaw (Josephine M. Habel) 131 North Main Street Blackstone, Va. 23824

33 Mrs. T. Leonard George (Betty Chambers) 5708 West Franklin Street Richmond, Virginia 23226

Hi Classmates of 1933! We have begun to plan for our big event to be held May 14th and 15th, 1983. Put the date in your address book, so that you can keep reminding yourself and all your classmate friends to keep this date open. After all, we don't have a 50th Class Reunion but once in our lifetime. We want this to be a very special celebration, a fun time for us all, so everyone is needed.

John Phillips, '78, our liaison with the Alumni Office, will be sending you a letter around Christmas time. This will give you details, but in the meantime talk to your friends, remind them when you send Christmas cards, call them. Plan to be together May 14th-15th of 1983.

Dr. Carlton Casey is chairman of the reunion planning committee. Those helping him are Lota Spence Reid of Emporia, Virginia, who is vice chairman, her husband, Dr. John Reid, Charles Thomas of Hampton, Virginia who will serve as treasurer, Fannie Martin Richardson of Richmond, Virginia, Flora Willcox Berkeley of Petersburg, Virginia, and me.

Suggestions for ideas for the program, or a class gift, if you want to give one, are needed. Contact a member of the committee, if you know them, or write to Carlton. In case you misplaced the last ALUMNI GAZETTE, here's his address again.

Dr. J. Carlton Casey, 711 Richmond Road, Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

If you know of any "lost" classmates, or those whose addresses have changed, or any deceased members, please send this information to the Alumni Office whose address is: The Society of the Alumni, The College of William and Mary in Virginia, Post Office Box GO, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187. In my last column, I wrote that Rhoda Pratt Hanson of Miles City, Montana, planned to be at the 1983 Reunion, but I'm sorry to have to write that she passed away suddenly in August.

Memorials can be sent to the Alumni Office, too, and they will be credited to the Class of 1933, if you wish to send any.

Those of you who live far from Williamsburg, plan to come back to see a changed town, but one that is still charming and interesting, full of various types of activities, many connected with the College. The campus has changed, too, but William and Mary has preserved its dignity while becoming a college of the 1980's. Here the Arts and Sciences blend well.

May all of you have a happy holiday season, with 1982 bringing you good health, good luck and happiness.

Howard M. Smith '43, professor of physical education at William and Mary, has been elected President of the Order of the White Jacket for 1982, succeeding Allen C. Tanner '46, Newport News. ber 2 for the December issue; March 1, 1982 for the April issue, and May 3, 1982 for the June issue. You will understand why there is such a long time before your correspondence is put in the '35 news.

Dave Agnew called last week, very much up on William and Mary and our classmates. He was hoping that he could let our classmates know where to find him and his wife during '81 homecoming. He extended their hospitality to '35ers.

"Pappy" Pappandreu has been in Ireland for a long visit and wrote how much he enjoyed the Emerald Island. He also has located one of our classmates: Philip L. Matthews, 1737 South 140 E. Avenue, Tulsa, Oklahoma 74104, (918) 437-5700. This should encourage each of us to locate someone we especially remember after 46 years!

Pauline and Cam Ogden will be at homecoming and I hope to go.

Ed Boisseau is sporting his new license plates W&M-13. I had to tease him about reversing our freshman year of '31.

I feel sure you have heard about Cary Field being enlarged to seat 23,300. I have a clipping from the Williamsburg paper as to the advisability of such a move. Have you voiced your wishes?

106 of the Class of 1935 made a substantial contribution to the Educational Fund. It is getting nearer our 50th reunion and we must begin to organize plans and think what contribution the class could make to our alma mater.

James Mallonee has been in touch with Blake and it is his type of concern about a class donation that we are anticipating. All our ideas will make the reunion, the 50th, the success we hope it to be. Jim lives in Wilmington, and is Dr. Mallonee, and is retired du Pont where he was in a supervisory capacity.

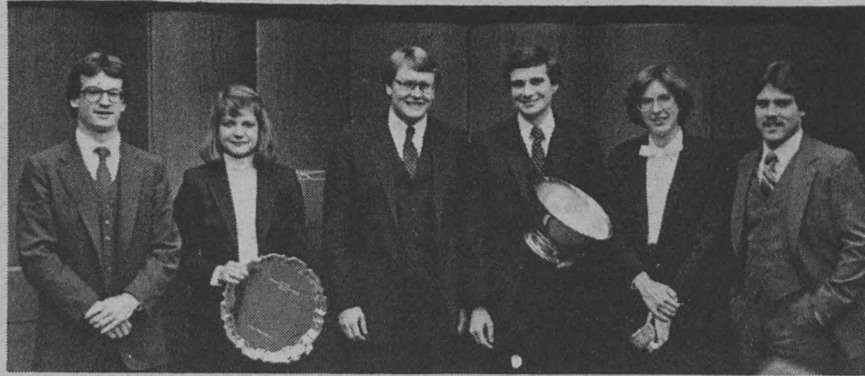

The Centennial certainly gathered more attention than it did when we participated. Can you believe it was that long ago and we didn't make t.v.? A very good article was in the August issue of the SMITHSONIAN magazine about the Battle of Yorktown.

Did your mind go back to our professors when you read the article in the Gazette

MARSHALL-WYTHE WINS MOOT COURT COMPETITION

William and Mary has swept the top honors at the regional level of the National Moot Court Competition for the second consecutive year. The team of Scott Caulkins of Hampton, Roberta Coulton of Punta Gorda, Fla., and Jack Sharpe of Chambersburg, Va., won first place in the competition and will now compete in the National tournament in New York City in January. Second place went to the William and Mary team of John Nevin, Springfield, Va., Keven O'Mahony, Oakland, N.J., and Karen Russell, Arlington, Va. At left are, left to right, Nevin, Russell, Sharpe, Coulton, Caulkins and O'Mahony.

about Dean Fowler? I am sure the present faculty is worthy, but what a treasure to have had Dr. Guy. When I toured the new science building I wanted most to see the chart of elements; the chart that hung behind Dr. Guy had only 92 known elements, and I can remember his saying thus and so is known. . . but! Alfred Armstrong was one of our able lab assistants, he is now retired as Dr. Armstrong. Would you like to send in some reminiscences of a professor who gave you a push up the ladder of success?

On page 50 of the March-April AMERICANA magazine is a wonderful article about the President's Home on our campus.

The phone rang one evening after the last ALUMNI GAZETTE asking did I remember Beth Robinson Davila? Yes, I do and what a conversation of do you remember. Beth and I both remember going to Carter's Grove with Ada McCrea (deceased). Years later when I visited Carter's Grove the hallway was as awe-inspiring as the first time I saw it. Beth said, "Mr. John D. Rockefeller was a nice person (I remember seeing him several times, very unassuming), somehow Mr. Rockefeller knew some girls needed a ride to Yorktown and sent his chauffeur and car to take them and bring them back."

These types of memories remind us that we certainly walked with an era that is past, but left an impression.

Ella May and Kate Bristow (both deceased) had an aunt married to Mr. du Pont. Once when his yacht was tied up at their home in Tappahannock, a group went down. In my college scrapbook is a candy wrapper with a gold "D" embossed on it. Elegant for a depression wide-eyed coed.

I clipped this article from September 17 (1981) saying that 50 years ago each Richmond school child was asked to bring a tomato. The conservation committee of the city was going to have them canned for distribution to unemployed families during the winter. Guess we should not have complained about pancake syrup over our Sunday ice cream, remember?

What makes a class reporter's heart glad is to receive a nice newsy letter. October 21 brought another name to add to the Library Science group, Cecelia Thomas Chow of Ormond Beach, Florida. Cecelia, like many of us, is a widow. Her husband died shortly after our '35 class reunion in 1970. While she lived in Washington, where her husband was an F.B.I. agent, she enjoyed many visits with Dr. Willoughby. She remembers what a wonderful professor he was, as well as a marvelous person. Cecelia keeps her Library Science up to date as "she volunteers at the Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped." She "catalogs and files as well as working with braille books."

These letters and calls from classmates make my job a joy, as well as helping to make plans for our "Big 50th." Remember, your input into these plans is what we need.

If I don't see you at Homecoming in November, have a Williamsburg Thanksgiving Feast at your home with family and loved ones.

I must add a P.S. I had folded this report and was getting ready to seal the envelope when Miss Alma Wilkins called asking some of her "Practice House Novices" to meet her for lunch. How fortunate to have been lucky to have experienced her instructions and to be remembered.

When one reaches the pinnacle of ones profession, as have I as a columnist, he becomes the target of petty criticism. Pick, pick, pick. For example, you may recall the last column's extolling good old Herb Kelly for his success in the veterinary game. Turns out it isn't our Herb Kelly at all, but some imposter. Our Herb Kelly is a judge and on the Board of Visitors. Shows you what can happen if you don't apply yourself. He might have grown up to be a vet. Anyway, it was suggested that a retraction or correction be printed. I have no intention of even mentioning it. It's his fault that Kelly, the vet, is not a member of the gold medal Class of '41.

Margaret Jahnke Brennan, we all missed you and John and hope you're mending. It was a grand reunion, Margaret, and I'll tell you all about it. Picked up a lot of stuff about a lot of our dear classmates, much of which was told to me in confidence. For example, Ella Dickenson Hurt told me she's too embarrassed to talk about what she's been up to lately, and made me promise not to repeat that; so, I won't. When the dessert was served Friday night - a purplish concoction - she asked if a bird ate blueberries and flew over the table. She didn't make me promise not to say that; so I will.

You remember good old Robert Tucker, Margaret. He was there. He's moving back to Victoria, Va., where he was born. Thomas Wolfe says "You Can't Go Home Again," but I guess Robert's old girl friends have all moved.

Good old Bob Kern brought his picture album. Some great shots including one of the OWJ's which he donated to the Alumni Association. They were waiters, you know. Charlotte knew that. I didn't.

And you'd never guess who showed up. Good old Horace Coward. It was a joy to see him again. Horace was and is a particular friend. He uttered a quotable quote. "I don't think I've ever been in a room with so many sixty year-old people in my life." Can't imagine whom he was talking about. ("Whom" is the objective case following the preposition "about" at a distance.) He and Aura Schroeder Emery drove with us to the dinner dance in our new 1966 Dodge Monaco. You know, Margaret, Aura looks so much the way she did in school everyone recognized her right off. By the way, Dot Palma Whitfield's tree house is not as much of a joke as I thought. She showed it to Aura as I peered over her shoulder. It's certainly different. Horace and Aura fox-trotted together. It was really more of a fox-walk the way they did it.

I'll bet you know that Peggy Lehair Mann was elected to the W&M Hall of Fame last year. I didn't. She officiates at tennis tournaments everywhere including Wimbledon and now coaches tennis at State University of New York in Albany. She is a vital, active lady. Think I'll go on a diet some day.

Ellen Lindsay Miller and Bill have retired to Lewes, Del., have five grandchildren and travel a lot. I wonder if most people who live in Lewes travel.

If you read the last column, Margaret, you will recall that Beverly Boone Jones claimed she lived in an improbable place called Wyalusing, Penna. She and her husband, with straight faces, insisted there is such a place and said they would prove it by sending me a T shirt. Humph! (When you're over 60 yo can say "humph") (and get a 10% discount at some restaurants.)

Did you know, Margaret, that I had a date once with Peg Averill? Didn't know I was in that league, did you. She confided to me that she did something for me she never did for any other date she had. Confound it! I can't remember! Bet I had a great time.

Good old Griff Calahan was there with his cute wife, Ruth. He is a minister in the Episcopal Church and guides a mission church in West Virginia. He also sells industrial chemicals for ZEP Mfg. I remember Griff from the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas.

Irma Luxton Nelson has a new cleaning lady who does windows, Margaret.

Chuck Gondak and his golf instructor, Tillie, swept all the honors in the golf tournament. Surprised? Chuck plans to retire next year after 41 years with Pacific Telephone. They will stay in Larkspur in Marin County near San Francisco except when they go into the next county looking for one of Tillie's drives.

Ruth Rapp Thayer brought Bob and a photograph album. In it (the album) she had some pictures from our high school days. Ruth and I go back a long way. At least, I do. Ruth's too young. Did you ever notice, Margaret, that Bob doesn't think like most people? He thinks in whimsy. Wish we could visit with them and others of our distant friends more often. When you see Bob, ask him about Magic is the Moonlight - if you have time.

Gene Ellis, who retired last January, and Shirley brought their movies. When Austin Roberts heard this, he did the projector. Gene bought a 3# sack of peanuts from a young lady. The proceeds, according to her, were to support "the guy's swim team." Ellis shamed us all into buying peanuts. Pretty good, they were. Ate them all.

In every issue we'll try to tell how one of our classmates met his/her spouse. This expose will be about Kay Hoover Dew, the flower girl. She was at the Greeks with Frank Henderson one evening when Bob came slouching in. Frank made the tactical error of inviting Bob to join them. On the way home she fell or was thrown by Bob into a snowdrift. Naturally Bob had to marry her and they had two daughters, in that order.

Which reminds me, I met Charlotte on a rainy night in Georgia during a tornado. Charlotte says this proves something about an ill wind, but she's not sure what.

Tell me how you met your spouses, gentle readers. Don't expect a too-accurate translation.

At the Saturday dinner good old Tom Brennan broke the cast iron seat of his chair. Margaret, you'd better talk to Kitty about him.

JANE VEHKO '81 JD NAMED O'CONNOR LAW CLERK

Jane F. Vehko '81 JD has been selected as the first law clerk to Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman named to the Supreme Court of the United States. Miss Vehko, who was first in her graduating class and editor-in-chief of the William and Mary Law Review, will begin her appointment July 1, 1982. Miss Vehko won a number of academic awards at William and Mary including the Webber Diploma, given by the law faculty to the student judged to have the greatest professional promise and so apparently she does.

ROSEBERG RETROSPECTIVE

Carl Roseberg, long-time professor of art at William and Mary who will retire at the end of this academic year, will open a retrospective exhibition of his work on January 19 in Andrews Hall of Fine Arts. The show, which will include his paintings and sculpture, will conclude on Feb. 24. Alumni are invited to attend a reception for Professor Roseberg Thursday, Feb. 4, prior to Charter Day Weekend.

WILLIAM AND MARY CONTINUES TO STAR ON NATIONAL TV

Producers of the comedy series "Too Close for Comfort," starring Ted Knight as the cartoonist Henry Rush, recently called for a William and Mary Sweatshirt for Knight to wear in an upcoming show. A 1947 freshman beanie and a William and Mary pennant was requested by a Hollywood research unit working on an upcoming two-hour special for the Waltons in which Elizabeth's boyfriend Drew Cutler will appear as William and Mary student home for the holidays. No definite air dates have been given for either show.

Good old Herb Young and Jane have been aiming to return to Williamsburg for some time, and on October 25th they made it, moving not far from where he lived when he was a lad.

Dot Whitfield found Eleanor "Cookie" Rowan Christian at 1240 Magnolia Curve, Montgomery, ALA 36106 (205-264-4005). Dot did not get to see her, but talked with her on the phone. Cookie sounded lovely.

Nancy Chisholm Akers danced in her bloomers.

Margaret, I'm happy to pass on your appreciation for the Jefferson Cup and the get-well card signed by your friends. We're glad you're coming along so well and expect you to keep your word and attend the reunion next year.

Although I slinked about furtively with my pocket notebook, I was unable to get the lowdown on all our friends who were there, and I apologize for that. I think I need a staff, and will press some of you to help next time.

Gifford Beal wrote regretting his inability to attend. While we were having fun he and Betty travelled about visiting their children who live in various and sundry places all over the place. Giff retired last May from Central Hudson Gas and Electric after 50 years and, among other activities, is sailing up and down the Hudson to find out why old Hendrich was so enthusiastic about it.

Ball State U. tells us that Flora Kearney retired last Spring. Flora went on to attain a doctorate after leaving William and Mary. During the Big War she worked in the military intelligence division of the U.S. (I assume) War Dept on secret stuff. I hope she comes to our reunions so we can worm it out of her. She was a professor at Ball State teaching American, British and world literature.

Austin Roberts, in spite of his attempts to escape, was reelected by acclamation which attests to the superb job he has done every year for the past five. We're going to increase his pay by 100%. So many remarked on his excellent performance of a most difficult task. And he has a way with words. He gave a brief, witty talk and concluded with the presentation to his Barbara and my Charlotte of framed certificates appointing them Honorary Members of the Class of 1941. Those two ladies every year have dedicated a lot of thought, time and effort toward making our Hospitality Room a pleasant, nourishing, innervating haven. So here's to you, Austin, with thanks from all of us.

Charlotte wants to have the last word, and here it is:

Barbara Roberts joins ME in saying once again how pleased and honored we feel to be honorary members of the Class. It isn't easy to come back to your husband's or wife's school and friends, but all of you have made it comfortable and pleasant, and I think I speak for all the spouses, in this respect. My "diploma" hangs now among some of my favorite works of art and the Jefferson Cup shines on our hutch. An extra thanks to Austin and John for making it possible. This honor and your friendship made Homecoming '81 a special memory for me.

(She only thinks she got the last word)

For those of us who did not make it to the Big Four Oh, our sympathies. It was so much fun I move we celebrate our fortieth again next year and every year thereafter.

Ruthie did not tell me that the due date came so soon after the preceding one, but if you will just send me news I'll get it in. Thanks to a few including Ruthie and Fred Veader -- here goes.

Fred wrote a nice note of encouragement to me -- hope he won't be disappointed. He said he was in Richmond in May and it brought back old memories of his student days when he and his roommate, Elmer Rudolph Morris, Jr., would come to Richmond and only go to the movies and department stores. Richmond has changed, Fred, but what did you do this time?

He also enclosed a most interesting article from the New York Times regarding the 200th Yorktown Celebration. I quote Ben A. Franklin, "In any event, Williamsburg, 14 miles from Yorktown, took on an oddly un-British air with the arrival of two French warships, which granted shore leave.

"The streets of Williamsburg were full of the uniforms and Gallic accents of young French seamen and marines, who descended on the campus of the College of William and Mary.

"In October 1781, the College served as a French military hospital. But the French armed forces, feeling the campus historically their own, were seeking another kind of solace.

"The sound of sailors' voices mingling with those of William and Mary students. . ." "The town was entirely a scene of confusion."

From the Harrisburg, Pa. Evening News we learn that Cornelia Westerman Wolf, a partner in Wolf Management Co., director and secretary of Wolf Supply and a director of Wolf Distributing Co. and Springetts Land Corp., all of York, Pa., has been named to the boards of directors of Hamilton Bank and its parent company, National Central Financial Corp. She has been a member of Hamilton Bank's York Regional Advisory Board since 1973. Our most sincere congratulations to you!

Jane Atkinson has retired early from the department of Clinical Chemistry, Medical College of Virginia, and has become involved in volunteer work. She finds her job as Executive Director with Contact, a lay ministering counseling service, to be especially rewarding.

Jim Abernathy, a senior vice president with Universal Leaf Tobacco Co., Inc. in Richmond, travels a great deal to Europe. He and his wife, Jeanne Stigall '43, entertain foreigners often and find it most interesting. They'll spend the Christmas holidays in the Dominican Republic.

Ruthie wrote that she and Cato and Dot Agurk Edmunds and husband David will be at Homecoming, so I hope she'll have news for us then.

Congratulations to Fred La Croix, who wrote to announce the birth of his third daughter, Evelyn, September 21st of this year. Fred wonders if he has an edge in this respect, being the member of our class with the youngest children. I'll bet there are some of us who sure hope so, Fred!

Mardie Pontius MacKimm was here recently for a most welcome visit, in conjunction with business. Mardie was chairing the Chicago area Networking group, which had its national meeting in San Francisco.

Jim Kaplan, '57, was also a recent visitor to the Bay Area, here for the Electronics Industries Association Board of Governors meeting.

Newspaper clippings have provided information about some members of our class. The Albany, GA Herald reported that Pete Freeauf has been named general manager for the Mid-South management area for Storer Cable Communications with offices in Atlanta. Previously Pete had served as Georgia district manager for Storer in Albany. He will now be responsible for Storer's cable operations in Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas and South Carolina. Pete is a past president of the Georgia Cable Television Association, and has been active in the chamber of commerce, the Albany Community Concert Association and the Albany Area Arts Council.

I was so busy stargazing while at the College that I confess I was unaware of how many people were successfully peering into microscopes. A clipping from the William and Mary News notes that Joel D. Jamison was a guest speaker for the seminar in applied chemistry last September. Joel is currently manager of chemical sciences at Hercules Incorporated, a position to which he was promoted in 1979. Joel joined Hercules in 1960 as a research chemist and during the eight years that he worked in that position, received 12 patents in the field of agricultural and biological chemical syntheses. In 1968 he became a development representative working with synthetic lubricants, and nitrogen oxide derivatives. Since 1976 his research has been chiefly in the field of natural and synthetic polysaccharides, food ingredients, for which he holds one patent.

The Virginian-Pilot and The Ledger-Star featured an article about Jerry Sazio. In reflecting on his football career at the College, Jerry cites being a member of the 1953 squad of 19 players who came to be known as the "Iron Indians" as being his most memorable experience. After graduation Jerry played one season with Hamilton in the Canadian Football League, and then joined the Maury High School coaching staff. In 1963 he was promoted to the head coaching position, and became one of the state's most successful high school coaches, compiling an 86-31-4 record. In 1975 he chose to become a scout for his brother Ralph's Hamilton Tiger-Cats, but remains at Maury as athletic director, driver-training instructor, and golf coach.

Now that we have covered media, science, and sports, here is something to appeal to

BANNER GIVEN TO ALUMNI HOUSE

A 1930 football banner, W&M 13, Harvard 13, has been given to the Alumni House by Virginia Drown Smith '34 of Erie, Pa. The banner has been framed and hung in the OWJ Room of the Alumni House. Described by the 1931 Colonial Echo as the most exciting game of the 1931 season, the game was played in Cambridge. Harvard scored first, but William and Mary came back to take the lead, 13-6, before Harvard "tied the score on a lucky touchdown in the last few minutes of the game." The game was played on Nov. 1, 1931.

ELDERHOSTEL '82 SCHEDULE

The Elderhostel program will be held at the College the week of June 6 and June 13. There will be five spaces each session specifically reserved for alumni who qualify and apply. For further information contact Dean Linda Reilly at the College.

the idealists of the class of '55! Ohio University Press has published Don Glover's book: "C.S. Lewis: The Art of Enchantment." According to the book review in the Richmond Times-Dispatch, Don, who is an English professor at Mary Washington College, in his analysis views Lewis as a consummate literary craftsman whose "fusion of feeling and thought produces an 'other worldly' experience that opens for us a new way of seeing." When our son Colin became enchanted with Lewis' Narnia books, we were living in Boston, and I confess it was several weeks before I realized that Narnia was spelled with an 'r'!

Carole Lawler, '57, and Ron Drake's daughter, Nancy, is a freshman at the College, and a member of the women's golf team, reigning state, regional and national champions. Nancy came to the College as a three year letter winner in golf and basketball.

A photograph of Julie Brink, daughter of Barbie Crosset and Bill Brink, '54, appeared in a recent edition of the Pi Phi Arrow. Julie was elected Sweetheart of Kappa Sigma, following in the footsteps of her pretty mother as a fraternity sweetheart.

Last year, when the Raiders were en route to the Super Bowl, I heard from a lot of old friends, which was great fun. This year it appears Winged Victory has taken a hike, however, thus I hope to rely on all of you who return from Homecoming in a mellowed out state to write welcome news of yourselves and your friends.

Bob Simpson is a candidate for election to the Virginia House of Delegates.

Rosemary Brewer Philips, Charlie, and young son Christopher have built a contemporary home in Charlestown, Pa. Rosemary was in Williamsburg this fall for a library conference for four days. The Philips saw Jack Allison, '65, who lives in eastern Canada. Jack works for the same company that Charlie does, Shared Medical.

We are looking forward to going to Homecoming this year. We plan to visit with Pat Thomas Ogren and Ken, '72. Dick, '61, and Dale Harris Cohen are also planning to go to Homecoming after a vacation at Hilton Head. We had made plans to dine at Christiana Campbells with Pete, '61, and Ann Burgess Siegenthaler, '62, and their three sons but Pete heads his own company and couldn't make it at the last minute. Pete reports that his sister, Sally Siegenthaler Coulton, and her husband Roger are working on their home that they bought a few years ago in Ohio.

Don, '61, has begun his new position as President and Chief Executive Officer of the Presbyterian-University of Pennsylvania Medical Center. Don's second book, Opportunities in Hospital Administration, is coming out in November.

Jerry Van Voorhis wrote that he and his family would welcome to everyone who may wish to visit the school that he is Rector of, Chatham Hall in Chatham, Va.

67 Mrs. Robert L. White (Bonnie Hamlet) 1011 Harriman St. Great Falls, Virginia 22066

Beverly Wright Clark, husband Mel and son Evan, have moved to 5462 Lighthouse Lane, Burke, VA 22015. Beverly is working as a travel agent in the downtown American Express office in Washington, D.C. Mel, '61, is teaching high school English for the Fairfax County Public Schools.

Gayle, Claire, and Jim Lewis send greetings from their home in Oregon. Their address is P.O. Box 1198, Jacksonville, OR 97530.

The following note came from Roslyn Luther:

Ace Ben Pomeroy and Nancy George (wife of Henry '65) won the "Greater Wilson (N.C.) Mixed Doubles" held the first weekend of October!!!

Janey Cooke Bembenista writes that she and Wally '66 are in the midst of a major project to complete a library and study in their Victorian Brownstone in Brooklyn, New York. Janey is also organizing a strategic planning process for the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical College. The Medical Center is assessing itself and setting goals for the future. Wally is in charge of taxation for Esquire, Inc. and spends most of his time structuring sales and purchases of companies in order to minimize the tax consequences.

Betty Jean Spencer Bradshaw wrote that she and Sandi Tate Russell had spent a weekend in West Chester, PA with Ann Lyon Massey. They spent part of the weekend trying to organize a fifteenth reunion for the Alpha Chi's for next year's Homecoming. Betty Jean asked that all Alpha Chi's from our class send her their addresses so that she could send them more information. Her address is 3904 Forestford, Rd., Richmond, VA 23229.

If any other group in our class wants reunion information included in our class notes, please let me know.

Now I need your help. We need a class logo so that future mailings about our reunion will be easily distinguishable. Jon, our nine-year old, and I came up with the following one. "Oh Thank Heaven for '67." However, I'm certain that some of you talented, creative people out there can come up with a better one. Please send them to me as soon as possible. Thank you!!!

Larry and I want to wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We look forward to seeing and hearing from many of you in 1982.

A flurry of letters over the past two months makes this a very easy class notes to fill up!

Frances Herring Reynolds wrote that she and Melvin had moved to Richmond in April from Fredericksburg. Frances had been a labor law attorney for the National Labor Relations Board in D.C. She plans, when she finishes "settling in," to continue her practice primarily in the field of employment relations law. Also reporting a recent move (well, a year ago) was Carolyn Scott Jones. Carolyn, Bob and their two children moved to Billings, Montana to get away from the "rat race in the East." They enjoy the relaxed lifestyle and the opportunities to travel, camp, ski and fish. Carolyn plans to take some biology courses to develop a second career as a naturalist. Carolyn would love to hear from anyone who visits that part "of the Wild West" (only one William and Mary alumnus is listed as living in Montana!).

I heard about Jim Purtil from his sister Katy Purtil ('81) who says she knows he never writes to keep up with his friends. Jim and his wife, Kibbi, live in Glastonbury, Conn. They have three children, ages 6, 5, and 3. Jim plays lots of sports -- tennis, golf, basketball, softball and "is one of Connecticut's top-rated officials for high school soccer." If that isn't sisterly pride! Jim was in Williamsburg twice this year, his first time in ten years. . . and promises not to stay away so long again.

Bob and Bobbie Henry Todd announce the birth of their third child, Michael Levin, on October 9, 1981. I have a newspaper clipping announcing the promotion of

ALUMNUS TO HEAD ROTC

Major Raymond Robert Goodhart '65, has been appointed professor and chairman of the Military Science Department at William and Mary. A transportation management specialist, he has a master's degree in education from Pepperdine University and a master's degree in management from the University of Southern California. At the U.S. Army Transportation School at Fort Eustis, his last post, he was responsible for directing a teaching staff of ten commissioned officers and civilians who research, develop, write and teach all transportation management courses for Army officers.

MEYERS NAMED ASSOCIATE DEAN

Terry L. Meyers, associate professor of English, has been named Associate Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at William and Mary. Meyers, 37, replaces David E. Kranbuehl, associate professor of chemistry, who is now Director, Grants and Research Administration for the College. Meyers has been a member of the faculty of William and Mary since 1970.

Sharon Reeder Derringe to city controller of Evansville, Indiana. Congratulations!

Janet Watkins Jendron wrote that while Bob ('71) was in law school she worked for Social Security Disability as a Program Director and Supervisor. She quit when she started her family. . . Kathleen, 5; Trip, 2; and Danny, 8 months. Now Bob is an Assistant US District Attorney in Columbia, SC and Janet is Assistant Area Coordinator for LaLeche League. Janet saw Stacy Scherer Frantz and Pete this summer in Chicago. Stacy is still flying for Delta and doing real well. From time to time Janet also sees Gerri Farinholt Bowles who lives in Raleigh, NC with husband, Harry, and three little boys.

I had the nicest letter from Mary Sue Wine France, written one night well past midnight. She and Dave ('68) live in Fairfax where Dave is controller of a Budweiser wholesaler in Alexandria. Mary Sue retired from teaching when their daughter Michelle was born two years ago. She reported that she saw Kaye Pitts and Nancy Hulse Oliver when they all three taught at Lake Braddock Secondary School! And to emphasize further the "small world" concept, Mary Sue's roommate from college, Frances Ware Lieb, moved into her subdivision last summer. Frances and Joe have two daughters, one close in age to Mary Sue's daughter so they exchange daytime babysitting. Frances is teaching adult education classes part-time in Fairfax County after retiring as a high school English teacher.

Phyllis Kline Appler sent some clippings and an article to bring me up to date on their activities. Phyllis and David ('68) live in Hudson, New Hampshire, an hour from Boston, where David is an optometrist and a player/coach for volleyball at the YMCA. Phyllis is president of the Hudson Junior Women's Club, a published cook, a part-time botany instructor, and mother of two. On their way to Nags Head this summer, they stayed with Peggy Preston Fanney and Rob in Virginia Beach. Sharon Quillen Adams and her daughter came by. Peggy has two children.

And now to the remainder of the Chi O newsletter and some bits and pieces from the KD newsletter. Missy Galloway Parker has finished writing her second textbook while working for the state of North Carolina as a consultant in special education. Sue Miller Long is busy in Marina, California with community and elementary school activities for her two daughters. She has completed a needlepoint design class and is exhibiting needlework locally. Jackie Mitchell Harris, who lives close to me, is now substitute teaching since her two daughters are in school all day this year. Cindy Smith Jones was promoted to Personnel Management Specialist for the federal government in Richmond. She is working in job classification and position management with cross-training in labor relations.

Janet Berglund Tabot is now a senior systems analyst, enjoying cross-country skiing and tobogganing. Linda Marsh Stewart has her own aerobics program five days a week. Mary K. Thompson Pruiett is working in finance for IBM in their tape and disk drive division in NY. Mary K. earned her MBA from Stanford last year before moving back east to work.

Judy Carhart Meminger is enjoying her private medical practice in Harrisburg, PA and her work with the Junior League there. Mary Ruth Price Oates is busy chicken farming, teaching and taking care of two children.

Nancy Verser Brumback is doing more free-lance writing now. She is a regular contributor to Venture, a business magazine, and to to of Fairchild's papers (sporting goods retailing and cable TV). Her job, part-time, is with the Fairchild home furnishing paper published out of Boston.

With the holiday season almost upon us, let me wish each of you a Happy Holiday and a Happy New Year. Please keep your letters coming; it makes my job interesting, fun and EASY!

What a reunion! Those of us who made the pilgrimage to Williamsburg last month could not have had a better time if we'd tried. While piebald Kenny King was stocking the hospitality suite with gallons of Central Liquor's Best, the Alumni Soccer team, with Steve Wilson, Ed Hartman, Scott McEvoy and Dave Fabian in orthopedic shorts, was running circles around the varsity. A large contingent of classmates dined on Chopped Steak a la Meatcleaver at George's, and then there was a round of informal get-togethers, such as the slumber party thrown by Will and Pat Hausman at their baronial estate. The Homecoming Parade on a crisp, clear Saturday morning was a perfect opportunity to shuffle through the red and gold leaves blanketing Duke of Gloucester Street and meet old friends. I happened upon Jeryl Mumpower and Jerry Coyne snapping Instamatic shots of a pom pon girl. (If you thought the parade floats were funky when we were in school you ought to see them now.) We had so many people in town (over 150) that when they lined us up for a class photo at the Alumni House, the photographer had to stand on a gas pump at the Kayo station to get us all in. Our keg party at the Matoaka Shelter after the game was outstanding. (Your dutiful reporter jotted down enough smut on the back of napkins to last for several columns). Henry Brown, "Clown of Renown from Out of Town," regaled us with his unicycling and fire juggling. You'll be happy to know that, as a group, we are fairly well preserved. And the camaraderie was such that it was easy to forget this was a bunch of highfallutin lawyers, teachers, and doctors cavorting in the woods. The grand finale of the weekend, a dance at the Campus Center, started out slowly. Seems the kids from WCWM couldn't figure out which Victrola records to bring, so we ended up with two Motown albums and a stack of duds like the Hollies' Greatest Hits. (Even Mr. C., who Cathy Bryan Johnson observed "just can't resist a microphone," was grounded by technical snafu's.) Our illustrious leader, Dave Bernd, formed a Conga Line to break the ice. When the room started jumping to classics like "She Shot a Hole in My Soul," the WCWM-ers would peer out from behind the console with the fascination of kids at a zoo. But we finally bridged the generation gap when we danced up a storm to the hottest record on campus now, something called "Boogie at Midnight." More reunion gossip in upcoming episodes.

Janet Barbara Brown Strafer and her husband the Army major are back in Northern Virginia after three and a half years in Berlin. She is an education specialist at Ft. Belvoir. Beth Harris McMullen is in charge of the Financial Audit department at Perpetual American Federal Savings and Loan in D.C. She graduated at the top of her Penn State Business Administration class.

In Paris, Sandra Dawson is teaching math at the American School. Sandy St. John Huffman put aside her art teaching in Aspen this fall to have a baby. Husband Bill directs an Outdoor Education program. There will be gobs of fresh air for Barbara Batson Martin and Stuart ('73) in Stavanger, Norway, where they'll live for a year or two. They rented out their antique house in Richmond, loaded up 1200 pounds of furniture and clothes, and moved over this summer. Stuart will teach Chemistry and Physics at the American School for the North Sea Oil Consortium. Barbara is looking for a position in petroleum as well, but in the meantime she has "40 yards of canvas and 30 yards of watercolor paper" to keep her occupied.

It is great to see so many of you at Homecoming. I had a ball, and I appreciate the good comments about these humble scribbles. So keep the fodder coming, and have a great holiday season.

There hasn't been much mail in my box lately, but I pass along what I have.

David Helm received a doctoral degree in sociology from Boston University last spring. He is now working under a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health focused on teaching parents to help their special needs children. David also received his master's degree at Boston University.

I apologize for misplacing a letter I received some time ago from Linda Stayton Rivetto. She and her husband Larry own and run a general store/canoe rental business, which they have discovered is a big responsibility. The Rivetto's were expecting a child in mid-October when I last heard from them.

Please note in the Vital Statistics section the announcement that Connie Burbage Head and her husband Mike are now the parents of twin boys. Best wishes for lots of patience in the coming months! Connie says she plans to return second semester to the 3rd grade class she has been teaching. She and her husband are living in Franklin, Va., where they have been for the past 3 years.

Happy holidays! Hope to hear from you in '82.

CHAPPELL '60 RECEIVES PHI BETA KAPPA AWARD

Miles L. Chappell '60, associate professor and chairman of the Department of Fine Arts at William and Mary, has been awarded the 1981 Phi Beta Kappa Advancement of Scholarship Award by the Alpha of Virginia Chapter of PBK. A specialist in Italian Renaissance and Baroque art, Chappell, who received the award Dec. 5 at William and Mary's PBK initiation ceremony, was honored for his work both as a teacher and art historian. William B. Spong, Jr., dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa as a faculty initiate, thirty-four students were inducted into PBK at the ceremonies.

1981 ENROLLMENT AT 6520

William and Mary's total undergraduate enrollment for the fall semester of 1981 is 4760 students, an increase of 26 students over 1980. The total graduate enrollment, according to statistics released by the Registrar's Office, is 1254, or two more than during the fall semester of 1980. Law school enrollment is 506, an increase of 27 students. Total William and Mary enrollment is 6520 students.

devoted most of my energies in two areas - keeping my two year old from murdering my four month old, and keeping myself from murdering my two year old. From what I hear, several of you are experiencing this same joy.

Jan Wampler Booker sent a great letter with news about the Pi Phi's. Melissa Wright Johnson and Wayne are also making a smooth transition to the "terrible twos." They recommend that we should space our children eighteen years apart. Wayne has accepted a new position at Fleet as Director of Benefits, and they'll be moving to a new home. Melissa is taking aerobics, playing tennis, and riding when she can. Jean Berger Estes, husband Rob ('74), and baby Carrie are living in Richmond. Cindy Holdbrook Gubb and her husband, Larry, are living in Vermont where Cindy works for Xerox as a marketing rep.

Lisa Grable Wallace is in Raleigh where she was accepted for a scholarship to take advanced placement physics at N.C. State this summer and hopes to begin a Master's program there in Science Education. Her husband, Robert, is in the last year of his Master's in Industrial Engineering. Nancy Tienken Milburn is living in Falls Church with husband Dave, son Aaron, and one more on the way.

Leanne Dorman Kurland and her husband, Alex, are living and working in Evanston, Illinois, where Leanne has decided to go back to school for her MBA. Jan Rivero Godwin is living in the D.C. area where she has been assigned to two churches in Arcola and is also campus minister at the Loudoun campus of Northern Virginia Community College. Her husband, Badger, works for Southland Corp., and they have a daughter, Kristin. Marilyn Miller is in San Jose, CA working for IBM as a marketing manager. Leslie Himelwright Dell and her husband, Vance, are in San Antonio, TX, where Leslie works for United Services Auto Association, and Vance is a second year radiology resident. And, finally, Jan Wampler Booker is living in Palmyra, VA where she can be found merrily chasing son Armistead and giving moral support to the Fluvanna High Ass't Principal, who also happens to be her husband, Buz.

Martha Elmquist Sherman wrote that she and John have now settled in Falls Church after moving nine times in four years. Martha got her CPA and is working for Commercial Transfer Systems, Inc., a superlative moving and rigging company, which was started three years ago by, you guessed it, John Sherman. Business is great and understandably so, because they move anything from space capsules and dinosaurs for the Smithsonian, to computers, offices, and household goods. Now you all know who to call.

Dave Ryan is now in Denver, and by the sound of it, on his way to becoming rich and famous. He's working for the PBS station as developer, producer, and host of a local cultural affairs series, parts of which will be included in a new nationally syndicated series called American Skyline. Look for his name in the credits. He's also doing some free-lance TV directing of rock concerts for cable TV. He goes to numerous gallery and show openings, rock concerts, and films, and heads for the Rockies for cross-country skiing to get away from it all.

Coincidentally, Dave's freshman roommate, Bill Smyth, also wrote. He's teaching at a large private school in Charleston and loves it. Bill designed and had built a new home which he wants to sell so he can design another overlooking a tidal creek. Another roommate, Jim Beavers, is still in Williamsburg and working for Open Doors. He and his wife, Anne Clark Beavers, have a two year old son, Jay.

Wayne Lorgus wrote that he was promoted to manager in the audit division of the Philadelphia office of Arthur Andersen & Co. He was married this spring to Linda Young, a music graduate of Westminster College. After a wedding trip to Paris, they've settled in West Chester, PA where they own a lovely old home overlooking one of the town's parks.

Bruce Falk reports marriage in November and progress on the job with IBM. He is teaching in the program and has a year to go before moving into management ranks. He had to miss his first Homecoming this year because of his wedding, but promised to stand in the shower and pretend he was at the Homecoming Parade. Can anyone verify that?

This brings me to the end of my news. We won't be in the Gazette again until April, so that gives you all until March 1st to drop a line. I hope that everyone's holidays are merry, and that no one has any exams after Christmas!

So many exciting things have happened since our last column. Thank you for sharing them with your classmates.

Wedding bells rang October 10th for Karen Murphy in Falls Church, where she married Bill Haase. They returned from their honeymoon in Guadeloupe to their condominium in Vienna. Karen is still with the American Petroleum Institute in D.C. and Bill has his own accounting firm.

I received a note from Monte Weinberger letting us know that he is alive and well in Atlanta, Ga. After having his fill as a Quality Control chemist for General Nutrition Corp. in Greenville, S.C., he enrolled in the master/physicians assistant program in anesthesiology at Emory University.

Linda Angevine recently completed studies at the University of Mississippi Medical School where she received her Ph.D. in pharmacology/toxicology. She received the Sigma XI Research Award and was inducted into the Sigma XI Society. She is presently employed as a toxicologist in Houston.

Two Kappa Kappa Gamma legacies were born in September. John and Mary Sue Hogan Sharp are the proud parents of Amanda Marie, born September 4. Katherine Ann Graves, born September 11th, is brightening the lives of Peter and Jody Roberts Graves.

Johanna Steinbuchel is a management analyst with the Department of Justice in D.C. She was recently awarded a scholarship by her employer to study for a masters degree in applied public financial management at American University. Even bigger news is her impending marriage to Jim Mulhall on January 2, 1982.

Also working for the government, Pam Roller Jay and husband Bruce live in McLean. Pam works for the Defense Department while Bruce is in his third year of dental school at Georgetown University.

Linda Mahon is working for Sherman & Sterling, a law firm on Wall Street in New York City. I was in the area on business a few weeks ago and had dinner with Debbie Allison in New Jersey. Debbie already has two patents on arthritis drugs she developed with Merck.

Now a member of both the Pennsylvania and New Jersey bars, Kelly Koons is an associate in the firm of White and Williams in Philadelphia. Melissa Eastman Walker, who lives near Philadelphia, has been promoted to Assistant Director of Graduate Admissions at Drexel University. Her new position keeps her quite busy, involving everything from interviewing applicants to advising a sorority. In addition, she is taking graduate business classes.

On a recent visit to Washington state, Kelly visited with Jeff Leppo, who is an attorney in Seattle. Also living in Washington, Fort Lewis to be exact, is Fran Leuck Dillon. She and her husband, Peter, recently celebrated the birth of a healthy baby boy, Peter Jr.

Debbie Kelly Davis has been promoted to Director of Financial Aid at the University of Richmond. Also in Richmond, Alice Burlinson is now working for the Virginia General Assembly House Appropriations Committee.

At Penn State, Peter Garland has been promoted to Assistant Director, Residence Hall Programs and is continuing his doctoral studies in Higher Education.

Joan Burnette has been promoted to regional branch administrator at Colonial American National Bank. She will supervise the management and operation of eight branch offices in the bank's western region service area.

Now living in Mathews, Va. Marianne Chis was married a year ago to Raymond Hunley, the Commissioner of Revenue for Mathews County. Marianne is working for the Department of Social Services.

Sue Harmon Rickman had a beautiful baby girl last spring. She and John are delighted of course. She returned to teaching this fall. She and Debbie Firebaugh, '76, have started a handmade baby gifts business.

Also in Richmond, Ward Richardson is teaching English at a high school and coaching the soccer team. He recently completed his masters degree at V.C.U. in guidance and counseling.

Karen Stephan is now in McLean after several years of teaching in Charlottesville. After spending the summer touring the West Coast, Karen left for a month in France in September.

Congratulations to Mark Tezak on the publishing of his first book entitled Order Under Law. He and his wife, Missy Murdock Tezak, '78, are living in Bloomington, Illinois where he is a professor of criminology.

Mike and Marion Roby Lugar have just moved to Chantilly, Va. He received a promotion to computer sales manager with Burroughs Corporation. Marion is working in personnel with E Systems - Melpar Division.

In August Pat Bowles received her masters of education from George Mason University in higher education, guidance and counseling. During the summer she was a resident advisor at the University of the Governor's School, which is a special school for gifted high school students in Virginia. She is now residence hall counselor for George Mason and is responsible for hiring and training resident advisors among other jobs.

Jo Anne Carlton has been promoted to lieutenant while serving aboard the repair ship USS Vulcan, homeported in Norfolk, Va. Emily Deaver finished her masters in oceanography and is working in aquaculture (or fish farming) for Natural Systems, Inc. in Florida. She is the assistant operations manager for the Company which is involved in breeding and selling a food fish. She just returned from a trip to Venice, Italy where she represented her corporation at the World Conference on Aquaculture.

Also traveling abroad, Cynthia Casson Morton and her husband Bill just returned from the international genetics conference.

The end of October she presented a paper at the national conference in Dallas.

Jeff Hosmer was ordained to the Christian Ministry as assistant pastor of The First Presbyterian Church in Lancaster, Pennsylvania on September 27, 1981.

The other night one of our classmates had dinner with President Reagan. Anne Ward attended a campaign dinner for Marshall Coleman where the guest speaker was none other than the President.

We certainly can be proud of our classmates. We all want to know more. So write me soon.

It was good to hear from so many fellow classmates the last few months. It sounds like everyone is doing quite well.

Melissa Larson Howard is living in Chesapeake and teaching first grade in Virginia Beach. She and her husband, Sam Howard ('77), had their first baby, Chip, in July. Debbie Lam is currently teaching lab science in a Bethesda high school and has been very actively involved with young life, where she met her finance, Bruce Fraser. She writes that Cathy Allin and her husband, Gary Deddo, are in California, working for InterVarsity. Robin McCutcheon was married in August to Glenn Willis Duncan. They are enjoying the country life in Cumberland County, Virginia. Roseanne Ondarza also married this summer. Her husband, Michael Marner, is a West Point graduate and they are both in the Transportation Corp, where Roseanne is a platoon leader. Other military news: Michael Chase has been commissioned an ensign in the Naval Reserve. His training will eventually lead to his designation as a naval aviation officer. Also, Coast Guard Lt. j.g. Ted Turdy has recently reported for duty aboard the Coast Guard cutter, Unimack, in New Bedford, Massachusetts.

Mary Ann Wri is still programming for IBM and was selected to coordinate a technical orientation for new employees this fall. She is quite active in athletics, running and bike riding, and plans to start on her masters in January. Kyle Sonnenberg received his masters in public administration from the University of Delaware in June. Bob Lacy is in his second year at Marshall-Wythe law school. He spent the year after graduation gallivanting across country with Paul McLeod. Paul then spent a year working on his masters in geology at the University of Arizona. Bill Mims is currently working for Congressman Tribble in Washington. Bruce Matson, Patti Pritchard, Sheila Scanlon and George and Mickey Harhan Martin are all studying at Marshall-Wythe. Mike Solis is a third-year law student at Emory University. Mark Cochran is an MBA student at William and Mary while his wife Laura Lahs is working for C.W. Scott Lowe and his wife, Kathy Hirshi, live in Charlottesville. Tim Harvey is at the University of Maryland, teaching and working on his PhD in physical education. Andy Motsko is teaching at McDonough, a private school near Baltimore. Al Hammaker is a first lieutenant in the Army and was last stationed at Fort Hood, Texas. Chris Royster is working on his MBA at Columbia University. Nancy Trbovich is a writer in the communications department of Northern States Power Company in Minneapolis. She married Thomas Alexander in September. Beth Lorimer

ALUMNA NAMED U.S. ATTORNEY

Elsie L. Munsell '72 JD has been named by President Reagan as the next U.S. attorney in Alexandria, Va. If she is confirmed by the Senate, Ms. Powell, who is a Federal magistrate, will be the first woman to hold the post in Virginia. Ms. Munsell worked for a year as an assistant prosecutor in Alexandria before joining the same U.S. Attorney's office she will soon head if approved by the Senate.

married Eric Bahner ('77) in June. They currently live in Exton, Pennsylvania where Beth is a zoological assistant at the Philadelphia Zoo.

That's all the news for now. For those of you we haven't heard from in a while, write! I hope everyone has a terrific holiday season.

As one might expect, the grads of 1981 are doing phenomenally well. All seem to be adjusting well to post-William and Mary life and are excited with the success they are achieving in their new ventures and endeavors.

Beth Scott is conquering the business world, working with computer software and making instructional videotapes to market to the construction industry. And, she is getting psyched for upcoming business trips to Orlando, Las Vegas and Wichita--and she calls that "work!!" While Beth is "working" in Omaha, Pam Pritchard is conquering the real estate business in Birmingham, Alabama. She is selling hi-rise condominiums for American Invesco. Lou Paladeau seems to have established himself nicely "down South" too. He is living in Atlanta and working as Assistant Controller in one of the Marriott Hotels there.

Several '81 grads have relocated themselves "out West." Sharon Bowen is still enthralled with her job as manager of a "The Limited" clothing store in Houston. Margaret Findlay is reportedly in Houston, also, teaching. Marie Cruz seems to be doing extremely well with her new job as a chemist for Badische Corp. She is living in Clute, Texas, on the Gulf of Mexico, and is one of the first two women selected to undergo a 15-17 month program to train chemists/engineers to enter the chemical marketing aspect of Badische. Bob Wagner is enjoying working for Procter & Gamble in its Los Angeles office and is adjusting well to California life--soaking in the California sun, playing lots of tennis, running in 10K races and enjoying weekend excursions to see the sights in his brand new car.

Mil Norman has taken off across the Atlantic and, at last report, was going to try to locate a teaching position in Germany. And, rumor has it that Jimmy Hall has taken to the sea and joined the Navy! I hear also that Hal Hicks has become a Sheriff for the City of Virginia Beach.

Back in the 'Burg, Laurie Nicholson is still loving her job in the Dean of Students' Office at William and Mary and is keeping busy teaching piano and working at Walnut Hills Baptist Church. Karen Reese is currently working at Adams until she heads south to Atlanta for paralegal school in the spring. Joyce Jones is working at Chownings but is anxious to start her new job with her hometown newspaper.

Not having had enough of William and Mary academics yet, Sue Philips is working on a graduate degree in geology at William and Mary. Mike Garrett is reportedly "studying" law at Marshall Wythe, and I hear, still making frequent trips to Ashland. John Fessenden is finding law school at U. Va. quite challenging and seems to be enjoying life as a law student in Charlottesville.

There is quite a contingency of '81 grads working and living in the Richmond area. Susan Albert is in the city working on Chuck Robb's campaign team (at least at this writing) while Cathy Loving is working as an auditor in Richmond. Don Staples is living in Ashland while maintaining an accounting job in Richmond and Shih-Shing Shih is working in the business office of Miller and Rhoads downtown. Kathy Bess is reportedly to be in Richmond too but I do not know what she is doing.

In northern Virginia, Sandi Rich was married to Ben Glass, '80, in June and is currently working in D.C. for a computer firm as a data entry clerk. Martha Maerker is enjoying working for Arthur Anderson & Co. in D.C. while Evy Lowenstein is there working as a "list Manager" for American Mailing Lists Corporation--she apparently has "3 million names under her!" Lisa Best is also in the northern Virginia area working for a shop called Printways. A little farther north in Baltimore, Marcie Anzman is working in the Registrar's Office at Johns Hopkins University. She has a combined job as Undergraduate Records Assistant and Student Health Benefits Coordinator.

Several people have relocated themselves in North Carolina. Babette Gwynn is working in a cancer research lab at Duke and Fran Hunt is in the Environmental Studies program there. Susan Marks has joined the U.S. Forestry Service, working at Research Triangle Park as a lab technician and is busy making plans for her upcoming wedding on Jan. 2. Steve Mittewede is in Columbia, South Carolina employed with the S.C. Research and Statistical Services, Geological Survey Division.

Teresa Martin Bailey is currently enjoying married life and is teaching in Lynchburg. Rick Reeves is also teaching. He is teaching at the military academy in Fork Union and reports that the night life there is pretty slow!

Congratulations to Pam Schubert who had a baby girl just before graduation in May. Pam is working hard taking care of little Helen Elizabeth. Congratulations also to Kim Pine who was married in October.

And back out in California, I am really enjoying my new apartment in Studio City (near Hollywood!), being an Account Executive for Bertrand Advertising Agency, and basking in the warmth of the California sunshine. I hope "ya'll" are enjoying the weather "back East," too--I know you are enjoying your new successes.

Thanks to everyone who sent me "scoop" on the grads of '81 for this writing. And everyone else, please send me a note and tell me about the new ventures you and other '81 grads are pursuing so I can let everyone else know.

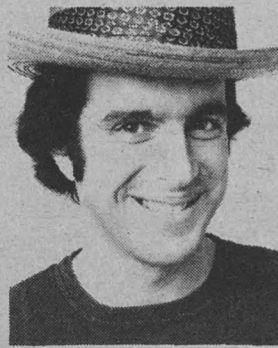

Have a great holiday season everyone!

GARRY TRUDEAU NAMED COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Garry B. Trudeau, creator of the comic strip "Doonsebury," has accepted an invitation to serve as the 1982 Commencement speaker at William and Mary. A graduate of Yale and the Yale University School of Art and Architecture, Trudeau is the first comic strip artist ever to receive the Pulitzer Prize for editorial cartooning. Trudeau was selected by students from a list of 20 names which had been reduced from an original field of 60. Commencement will be held on Sunday, May 16.

been coordinator of teachers of emotionally disturbed children at Eastern State Hospital. She received a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Virginia State University in Petersburg in 1968 and a master's degree, with emphasis on the teaching of reading, from the College of William and Mary in 1976.

Dr. Michael Magri is the new director of consultation and education for Central Virginia Mental Health Services. He went to Lynchburg from Williamsburg where he served the past two years as supervisor of the marriage and family counseling unit of the Ninth District Court. He received a bachelor's degree in psychology and master's degree in counseling from Old Dominion University and a doctorate in counseling from the College of William and Mary.

Harry Joseph Stagers of South Hadley has been named director of alumni relations and development at Williston Northampton School, Easthampton. He was graduated from Wake Forest University and received his MA from the College in 1967.

Miller A. F. Ritchie is one of 21 Oregonians named by Gov. Vic Atiyeh to the newly created Governor's Commission on Senior Services. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Roanoke College, Salem, Va., in 1932 and his master of arts degree from the College in 1942. He is the former president of Hartwick College, Oneonta, N.Y. (1953-1959), and was president of Pacific University from 1969-1970. Following his retirement from Pacific University, Miller served as a professor of higher education at the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla. (1970-1975).

'76, is the Democratic nominee for Williamsburg-James City County Circuit Court Clerk; Jim Murray, J.D. '74, and D-Albemarle, is seeking re-election to his fifth term in the House of Delegates; George W. Grayson, J.D. '76 and professor of government at the College of William and Mary, running unopposed for the House of Delegates, will make a presentation to the National War College's course on "U.S. National Security Interests in Latin America" in Washington, D.C., and has signed a contract with Praeger Publishers to complete a book on The United States and Mexico: Limits of Influence, to be published next summer. Judy L. Humphries, J.D. '77, announces the birth of a son, Christopher Allen Grant, in Morgantown, West Virginia, on July 30, 1981. Judy and her husband, Dr. Michael A. Grant, are also proud parents of a daughter, Susan Lindley, born March 11, 1980. Judy recently left her position as an assistant prosecuting attorney for Monongalia County, West Virginia, where she had been employed for the past three years. Her husband was appointed to a position as assistant professor of surgery at the West Virginia University. William C. Andrews, III, a partner in the Hampton law firm of James, Richardson, James, Sawyer & Quinn, was recently named a substitute judge for the Hampton General District Court. Samuel T. Powell, III, J.D. '73, was appointed a substitute judge for the Ninth Judicial District effective December 1, 1981. Sam is a partner in the Williamsburg law firm of Otey and Powell.

Jeffrey V. Puff, J.D. '78, made the Woodbury, New Jersey Times in an article describing his restoration of a Victorian mansion where he lives and practices law.

Finally, Bob Goldman, J.D. '76, called from Springfield, Illinois, to announce that Mint Julep, his dog, passed away this past September.

CLASS OF '57 MAKES 25TH REUNION PLANS

Plans for the 25th Reunion of the Class of 1957 are being made by a special committee chaired by Gil Granger of Williamsburg. Ideas still in planning are an attendance contest between sororities, fraternities and independents; a parade float; block seating at the game with Brown; a nostalgia party in one of the old fraternity lodges; a dinner and dance in the Great Hall; yearbook nametags; and hospitality suite.

Suggestions and volunteers to make contact with classmates are needed. If you want to help, contact Gil, or other committee members: Elaine Abbott Fuqua, Kathy Christian Young, Anne Hannegan Prince, Lavinia Pretz Phillips, Carolyn Canoles Redmond, Harry and Barbara Harding Hager, Ron Clark, Wayne Adams, Ed Jones, and Doug and Barbara Pharo Henley.

GAZETTE NOTES CORRECTION TO ADMIRAL LISTING

The November 1981 issue of the Alumni Gazette noted the promotion of Ming E. Chang '55 to the rank of Rear Admiral. The listing of other living alumni who have reached the rank of admiral should have included Elliott Bloxom '37, who retired in 1973 with the rank of Rear Admiral, and lives in Irvington, Virginia, with his wife Margie Hoskins Bloxom '39. The Gazette regrets this oversight.

We also learned that Dick Velz '36 (left) is the only known Rear Admiral ever to be commissioned in the Virginia State Militia, and serves on the military staff of the Governor as an Aide. A Captain, USNR (ret.), he was first appointed by Governor Mills E. Godwin '35.

DEATHS

WALTER GRAY WOMBLE, '10, of Virginia Beach, Virginia, died May 7, 1980.

WALTER JOSSELYN REED, '22 A.B., of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, died October 23, 1981, while traveling in England. He graduated from the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Alexandria, and was priested in St. Paul's Cathedral in London while studying for missionary work. He served as a missionary in Liberia, West Africa, from 1925 until 1932, and it was there that he married Lois Ford, a missionary nurse. Upon returning to the United States, he served a congregation in Columbia, Pennsylvania; and then served as an Army chaplain, with the rank of lieutenant colonel, in the South Pacific during World War II. Shortly after the end of the war, he became rector of Holy Innocents Episcopal Church in Beach Haven, New Jersey, where he continued to serve until his retirement in 1968. He was for many years an active member of the Order of the White Jacket. Survivors include his children and grandchildren.

BEBE BROOKS, '23, died on October 25, 1981, at her home in Richmond, Virginia. A member of Chi Omega at William and Mary, she taught for many years in the public schools of Lakewood, New Jersey, and then worked as an Analyst for the Defense Department at the Pentagon until her retirement.

CHARLES HOLBERT ALLISON, '28, of Draper, Virginia, died in June, 1981. Survivors include his wife, Marian, '33; his daughter, Ellen, '66; and a sister, Martha W. Allison.

MARY TOLSON BULLOCK, '28, died October 27, 1981, in Suffolk, Virginia. She taught for 42 years in Norfolk, first at Ballentine Elementary School, then at Blair Junior High School as English teacher and guidance counselor. She was a member of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church and the Norfolk Historical Society. Survivors include two brothers.

MARY WALL CHRISTIAN, '28 A.B., died November 2, 1980, in Williamsburg, of a sudden heart attack. She was a teacher and a recreational worker for the American Red Cross, and an active member of the Olde Guard. Survivors include a niece, Marianna Christian Broaddus.

RHODA ELIZABETH PRATT (HANSON), '33 A.B., of Miles City, Montana, died in August, 1981, as a result of a fractured skull caused by falling down a stairway in her home. At William and Mary, she was a member of Phi Mu, and the Dramatic Club. In Montana, she was a French teacher in high school and junior college, as well as a general agent for Western Life Insurance Company. In 1953, she was Montana's Businesswoman of the Year. Survivors include her husband Roy, and four children.

WINIFRED SEARS FREIOT (CONRADIS), '34, died of cancer on September 15, 1981, at a hospital in Sarasota, Florida. A native of Washington, D.C., and a long-time resident of Bethesda, Maryland, she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega at W&M and later served as president of the Alpha Chi Alumnae. After leaving W&M, she earned her bachelor's degree from George Washington University in 1935, and later earned another degree from the Prince School, a merchandising college in Boston. During World War II, she worked for the U.S. Public Health Service and helped register aliens under the Wartime Powers Act. She was active in a number of hereditary, civic, and historical groups in the Bethesda area; and in 1960, she was instrumental in blocking efforts to rename a historic section of Rockville Pike. She and her husband Albert moved to Florida in 1972, following his retirement; he died last year. She is survived by a daughter and two sons.

JOHN CHARLES SHEPPARD, '35 A.B., of Cambridge, Ohio, died August 21, 1980, of complications which resulted following a case of pneumonia. A Phi Kappa Tau at William and Mary, he was also a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, the Flat Hat, and the Band. Following graduation from William and Mary, he entered Harvard, earning his law degree in 1938. He was admitted to the Ohio Bar in 1939, and the U.S. District Court in 1948. From 1956 until 1964, he served as a Representative to the Ohio General Assembly. In June, 1976, he was appointed Judge of the Common Pleas Court. He is survived by his wife Jane.

LUCILLE MARCIA FITTS (GARRITY), '38 B.S., died September 24, 1981, at her home in Homer, New York. A member of Delta Delta Delta at William and Mary, she also earned degrees from the Bradford Junior College and Simmons College. She was active for many years as a volunteer in the Cortland Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, and for the past ten years, she served as coordinator of the Hospital Gift Shop. She is survived by her husband Thomas, three sons, and two daughters.

CHIPMAN WOODWARD CUNNINGHAM, '43, died of cancer September 19, 1981, at his home in Annapolis, Maryland. A member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon at William and Mary, he left the College in 1941 to enlist in the Army during World War II. By the end of the war, when he was discharged, he had attained the rank of captain. He entered Johns Hopkins University and then the University of Maryland Law School, and in 1950 he became a member of the Maryland Bar.

He became interested in banking and studied at the Stonier Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University. He entered the private practice of law in Annapolis, and from 1952 until 1955, he was a standing examiner for the Circuit Court of Anne Arundel County. He then joined the Farmers National Bank of Annapolis, organized the trust department of the bank, and served as trust officer for about ten years. In 1966, he took the position of trust officer and estate administrator for Maryland National Bank, and at the time of his death, he was Trust Administrator and Vice President of Maryland National. He is survived by his wife Isabel, a son and a daughter.

JEAN VAUGHAN GILL (KING), '49 B.S., of Roanoke, Virginia, died September 10, 1981, in a Richmond hospital. A member of Kappa Alpha Theta at William and Mary, she was an active civic leader in the Roanoke area. A past president of the Junior League of Roanoke, she served on numerous boards, including the United Fund, the American Cancer Society, the Virginia Society for the Prevention of Blindness, the Roanoke Symphony Auxiliary and the Elbyrne G. Gill Eye and Ear Foundation. She was a member of the Roanoke Assembly. In 1960, she became the first woman to serve as president of the Roanoke chapter of the W&M Alumni Society. Survivors include her husband, W. Courtney King, Jr., and two sons.

HENRY EDWARD McMILLAN, '51 B.A., of Cleveland, Tennessee, died August 23, 1981 in Knoxville. At William and Mary, he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and the Monogram Club, and was Co-Captain of the Varsity Basketball Team. An outstanding basketball player, he won many awards and was selected as a member of the all-star team in the Atlantic Coast Conference. During the Korean War, he served as an officer in the U.S. Navy, and at the time of his death, he owned and operated a trucking business. Survivors include a daughter, his mother and stepfather.

FLORENCE MESSICK CLAY, '62 A.B., died October 7, 1981, in Newport News, Virginia. A Peninsula native, she was active in community affairs, and she attended various schools in the area. Prior to entering William and Mary, she had been a secretary with the Newport News Shipyard, the Board of Education, and State Farm Insurance Company. She later served as Director of Aid to military families at Hampton's Red Cross, and as a teacher at Henrietta Kuzer Hebrez Academy. An active musician, she was a member of various choral and operatic groups, and Clay was a frequent soloist for area churches and civic organizations. The widow of Irving Clay, she is survived by one daughter, three sisters, a brother, and two foster sons.

CHARLES ELBERT WRIGHT, '64 B.A., died September 29, 1981, at his home in Roanoke, Virginia. A teacher, he served in the U.S. Navy and was a former member of the Roanoke Lions Club. He was very active in opera organizations. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Rex R. Wright of Roanoke.

"THEIR MAJESTIES' ROYALL COLLEDGE"

The College of William & Mary in Virginia,
In the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries

THEIR MAJESTIES' ROYALL COLLEDGE, a title taken from usage during the 17th and 18th centuries, covers the period from the beginnings soon after the first settlement at Jamestown, until the end of the 18th century when alumni of Virginia's pre-eminent College were helping guide the destinies of the young American Republic.

Working almost entirely from original sources, the author Jack E. Morpurgo, Class of 1938, produced a fascinating account of the dreams, frustrations, and achievements of the tiny College of William and Mary and its people. The lively text is liberally interspersed with more than a hundred illustrations, many culled from various historical archives. It is written with great wit and warm style that typifies its author, but it also manifests scholarly instincts throughout. Not merely a dry, institutional history, it is as readable as any popular work.

The book, at the cost of $25.00 per copy, is hardbound in vinyl-impregnated green cloth, with a special natural finish paper used throughout. Order your copy today.
