THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

1932 -- It Was A Very Good Year

Born in Adversity, Class of '32 Went On To Great Accomplishments

William and Mary's Class of 1932 has the stuff that legends are made of.

Consider Hughes Kistler '32.

The son of wealthy parents, Kistler was a smashing success when he came to the College his sophomore year with a Harley-Davidson motorcycle -- a success with his classmates, but not with President Julian A. C. Chandler.

Dr. Chandler sent for Kistler and said, "We'll have no motorcycles in Williamsburg." The gleaming Harley-Davidson was stored and the subject closed, but only temporarily.

The following fall, Hughes Kistler appeared in a huge Mormon touring car. He went for his annual visit with Dr. Chandler, and the touring car went into storage in Richmond for the rest of the school year.

In 1931, an undaunted Kistler made his most glorious entrance of all, piloting an airplane -- but that was just the beginning. Climbing as high as he could, the William and Mary senior took a daredevil dive at the Wren Building. By the time his plane had regained altitude, everyone in Williamsburg, a sleepy little village, was reportedly wide awake.

That sense of "pizazz" was characteristic of the Class of '32, and still is. "It was wild adventure to be at William and Mary," says George C. "Piggy" Digges '32. "It spoiled me for anything else." Digges, who relishes telling the tale of the late Hughes Kistler's flying days, went on himself to a 40-year career with Eastern Airlines.

Among the many distinguished members of the class are a major movie producer, a college president, a world class sprinter, an ambassador, the first woman vice president of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, corporation presidents and vice presidents, editors and writers, doctors, educators -- the list goes on and on.

The diversity of individual accomplishment within the class is matched by the exceptional nature of those accomplishments. Out of difficult times -- in the middle of the Depression -- members of the Class of '32 went on to achieve national and international recognition. Yet as they gathered on Commencement weekend to celebrate their 50th reunion, it was clear that recognition of achievement wasn't nearly as important as seeing each other and picking up the lost threads of each other's lives.

"The finest thing was seeing so many of my classmates and reviving fond memories of those years," says Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32, who became the College of William and Mary's 23rd president. In returning to visit their alma mater, members of the Class of '32 saw an impressive campus built in large part by their fellow classmate.

One alumnus of the Class of '32 whose work will be studied and admired by students of the cinema for many years to come is Martin A. Jurow. Also a recipient of the Society of the Alumni's Alumni Medallion, Jurow is renowned as the producer of classic films such as "Breakfast at Tiffany's," "The Pink Panther," "The Great Race," and "That's Entertainment, Part II."

Jurow quietly and happily gave up seeing one of his latest films, "Waltz Across Texas," being shown at the Cannes Film Festival in France, because it conflicted with the reunion. "I'd seen my movie," he says, "but I hadn't seen my friends."

That simple statement says a great deal about the laughter and tears that bind these classmates together, even after half a century. Their memories, some bittersweet, include the struggles of many class members to stay at William and Mary during the Depression as their classmates were forced to drop out, relying on the sacrifices of their families, their own hard work, and help from administrators who sought financial aid for as many needy students as possible.

The restoration of Colonial Williamsburg had just begun, and it became almost as integral a part of these students' college lives as the country's economic woes. "The oddest thing is how Providence helped us," says Martin Jurow, for whom the College's Martin Jurow Award for Theatrical Excellence is named. "We were in a haven, an oasis--very much due to an inspired minister, Dr. W.A.R. Goodwin, who persuaded John D. Rockefeller to lend his economic assistance. So while we recognized and knew the Depression, we were given new economic opportunities."

After the reunion, Jurow was off to begin work on another film, "Terms of Endearment," with another scheduled after that. He is also planning a program for cable and pay TV which will be an in-depth profile and study tool of the people, places and events in Texas, his adopted state. He is planning a program for cable and pay TV called "Biovisions." It will be a prototype for more programs, one for each state in the union, although Jurow says he won't be involved. "After that," he says, speaking of the program on Texas which crowns his busy schedule, "I'm going to rest."

Talent is a commodity that Jurow and his classmates made the most of, often rising to the top of their pro-

Exemplifying a diversity of accomplishment in the Class of 1932, these six classmates gathered for a 50th Reunion photo during Commencement weekend. From left to right are former ambassador John Tuthill; Brooks George, chairman of the board of Larus and Brother and 50th Reunion Chairman; former William and Mary president Dr. Davis Y. Society Names Chapter Director

Elizabeth Paschall Mirguet '64 To Begin July 1

Elizabeth Paschall Mirguet '64, Newport News, has been appointed chapter director for the Society of the Alumni, effective July 1.

In her new position, Mrs. Mirguet, who has taught in the Newport News area for the past nine years, will work with existing chapters to strengthen their programs and with alumni in other areas to establish new chapters or interest groups. The Society has 26 chapters and eight interest groups in 20 states and one chapter in the United Kingdom.

In working with the chapters, she will assist them in organizing their programs, acting as a liaison to bring members of the faculty, staff and student body at William and Mary into their communities for programs. She will also help coordinate programs that draw on alumni within the community of the various chapters.

Mrs. Mirguet will also work with the Alumni Admissions Network, a group of alumni which helps the College in admissions recruiting.

William Armbruster '57, chairman of the Alumni Service Committee of the Board, lauded her appointment because of the "enthusiasm and personality she will bring to the post, and because our chapters are critical to the success of our alumni programs."

Since 1976, Mr. Mirguet has taught English at Hampton Roads Academy in Newport News. From 1974 to 1976, she was the Homeward Bound teacher at Newport News High School, and from 1965 to 1968 she taught English at Newport News High School.

Mrs. Mirguet, who is the daughter of former President Davis Y. and Mrs. Agnes Winn Paschall (classes of

Tish Mirguet '64

'32 and '31), noted that the majority of her life had been interwoven in some way with education and the College.

She said she was delighted by the opportunity of working with Alumni everywhere and with the staff at the Alumni House.

Mrs. Mirguet is the mother of a 16-year-old daughter, Alice, and a 13-year-old son, William.

INSIDE ADMISSIONS

College Selects Freshman Class From 5800 Applicants

by G. Gary Ripple
Dean of Undergraduate Admissions

In this time of decreasing college applications and enrollments, William and Mary has maintained a high level of both the quantity and the quality of its applicants and its admitted freshmen class. This year there were 5,804 applications for about 1100 spaces in the freshman class. Admission was offered to 2,092 (36%) of these students. Acceptance was extended to 53% of the Virginia applicants and 24% of the non-Virginia applicants. It is anticipated that our freshmen class of 1100 students will consist of 730 Virginians and 370 non-Virginians.

More than 1900 applications were received by the Marshall Wythe School of Law, and approximately 500 of these were offered admission. The mean LSAT for those enrolled is 665 (up five points) and their mean college grade point average is 3.45. According to Dean Spong, the Virginia pool of applicants was the best he has seen at William and Mary.

Our Business School will enroll 285 candidates for the MBA program and 485 students in the undergraduate program. In the School of Education, candidates for the masters, advanced certificate and doctoral programs number 132, 70 and 34 respectively.

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science projects an enrollment of 152 masters and doctoral candidates and our Graduate Arts and Sciences programs have attracted 367 applications, 116 of whom have thus far been offered admission.

The transfer picture also remains quite competitive. There were 657 applicants, 55% of whom were non-Virginians. 169 Virginians and 90 non-Virginians have been offered admission for the total of 170 spaces available.

In accordance with the policy statement approved by our Board of Visitors, the applications of alumni children were given preference where other considerations were essentially equal. For freshmen candidates with alumni parents, 65% of the Virginian and 54% of the non-Virginians have been offered admission to the college.

The formation of the Alumni Admissions Network, sponsored by The Society of the Alumni, allowed us to greatly expand the services offered to our applicants this year. Over 500 applicants were invited for a personal interview in their home areas. Approximately 66% of those contacted took advantage of this worthwhile opportunity.

As our admission year draws to a close, we will be spending the summer months analyzing the data generated this year, planning for our next admissions cycle, and catching a few days of vacation. We do hope that alumni sons and daughters who would like to be candidates for the college in 1983 will schedule some time for a visit on campus.

Board Nominations Announced

Jimmy Howard '43 Chairs Committee

The Nominating Committee for the Board of Directors of the Society has released the names of ten alumni who will be running for the five positions to be open on the Alumni Board following the winter meeting.

One of the nominees, Stewart Gamage, '72, of Alexandria, is an incumbent, running for a second three year term. She is currently Director of the Washington Liaison Office for the Commonwealth of Virginia.

First time nominees are: Donnan "Donnie" Chancellor Wintermute, '69, of Alexandria, a real estate agent and former city planner; H. "Scotty" Westcott Cunningham, '43, of Hillside, New Jersey, president of the Pingry School and former president of Christopher Newport College; Edwin C. "Win" Luther, '65, Executive Vice President of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce; Bernard J. Nolan, '51, Cincinnati, Ohio, who is Secretary of the Proctor and Gamble Fund and president of the Cincinnati Alumni Chapter; Mario Pena, '56, of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, who is Assistant Headmaster of Pine Crest School; S. Warne Robinson, '37, of Williamsburg, retired Chairman of the Board of G. C. Murphy Company; Mark O. Shriver, IV, '71, former president of the Georgia Chapter and an attorney in Canton, Georgia; Lesley Ward Bottoms, '63, from Bronxville, New York, housewife and also former president of the Georgia Chapter; and Marjorie Willard Duer, '55, of Belle Haven, Virginia, a housewife and civic worker.

In early September ballots will be mailed to all alumni who have contributed financially to the William and Mary Fund during the previous year, or current fiscal year to date, or to any of the other recognized funds of the College, including the Athletic Educational Foundation. Results of the balloting will be announced at the Annual Meeting held on Homecoming weekend, Friday, November 5, 1982.

The Nominating Committee was chaired by Jimmy Howard, '43, of Richmond and included Col. John Hodges, '39, of Williamsburg, Mrs. Sandra Dixon Bowen, '63, of Richmond, Mrs. Alice Jordan Viessman, '56, of Norfolk, and Mr. W. W. Kale, '66, of Williamsburg.

Alumni Join Virginia Shakespeare Festival

Festival Opens Fifth Season With Talented, Experienced Company

Alumni are making the Virginia Shakespeare Festival, the state's only professional Shakespeare company, a distinctively William and Mary institution.

Now in its fifth season at the College's Phi Beta Kappa Hall, the Festival will present "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Richard III," and "All's Well That Ends Well" in repertory nightly except Mondays, with Sunday matinees at 2 p.m.

The Festival's new artistic director for the 1982 season, Jean V. Cutler '48, is a Hampton native who studied fine arts and theatre at William and Mary under the expert tutelage of Althea Hunt before eventually receiving his master's and doctorate degrees from the University of Illinois.

Before returning to Virginia last year, Cutler was from 1962 to 1980 a faculty member in the speech department of the University of Oregon, where he was chairman of the department's theatre division and was instrumental in the establishment of film studies as a separate discipline.

Cutler is directing "The Merry Wives of Windsor," the first production of the Festival's fifth season, which opens July 15 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

This season's acting company, which Festival general manager Richard Palmer calls the most talented and experienced in the Festival's history, includes two returning members who are also William and Mary alumni.

Carmella Maurizi '75 appeared in the first season of the Festival in 1978 and delighted audiences with her portrayal of Kate in "Taming of The Shrew," Viola in "Twelfth Night," and Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet."

This season, she is returning to Williamsburg from her home in Seattle, Wash., bringing her two daughters, Erin, 3, and Leigh, three months, with her.

"I'm really looking forward to working again, especially with the Festival," says Ms. Maurizi, who is married to Dr. Mark Bladergroin '75, a surgeon at the University of Washington Hospital.

Ms. Maurizi says her return to the Festival will mark the end of a semi-retired period of the last several months. Since living in Seattle, however, she has been active in local and regional theatre and in films. She has worked with the Karl Krogstad Theatre and Studio and the New Playwright's Forum of the Empty Space theatre there, and recently appeared in her first full-length feature film, "Strings," for an independent film producer.

After receiving her bachelor's degree in theatre and speech from the College, Ms. Maurizi attended Pennsylvania State University, where she performed with the university's touring repertory company and received her master of fine arts degree in 1978.

Although he has just graduated from William and Mary, Brent Harris

Jean V. Cutler '48 (above) has returned to his alma mater this summer to serve as artistic director for the Virginia Shakespeare Festival, now in its 5th year. Two other alumni, Carmella Maurizi '75 and Brent Harris '82, are members of this year's cast for the Festival.

'82, is the veteran member of this season's acting company, having appeared with the Festival for the past two consecutive seasons. The Virginia Beach native has not only won outstanding reviews for his portrayals in the 1980 and 1981 Festival seasons, but has also been a standout in William and Mary Theatre productions, playing Henry IV in Shakespeare's play of the same name, and Jack Worthing in "The Importance of Being Earnest," a production featuring veteran stage, television and screen comedienne Mary Wickes.

Another member of the class of '82, David Crank of Richmond, is one of the principal set designers for the Festival, along with theatre faculty member Jerry Bledsoe.

According to Crank and Bledsoe, this year's sets will be a blending of elements from both the 1981 season and previous years. "We are creating a special new stage for the Festival," says Bledsoe. "It will have a raked forestage as in the past and enormously tall walls and a motif of beams that bisect the upper spaces."

Supporting the talents of directors, designers and actors are a number of William and Mary students who will serve as interns for the 1982 Festival. Don Reilly, a talented rising sophomore from Fairfax, has been named the 1982 Martin Jurow Scholar, an award named for one of the College's most respected alumni in the entertainment field, Martin A. Jurow '32.

Other William and Mary students who will be acting interns for the Festival include Alex Iden, a rising sophomore from Berryville, Va., and John Wesley Taylor, a rising senior from St. Stephens Church, Va. Taylor will also be choreographer for the productions.

Students involved behind the scenes at the Festival are Ann Marie

Westbrook, a rising senior from Glen Burnie, Md., who is a customer intern; Hana Sellers, an '82 graduate from Springfield, Va., who will serve as a scenery technician; Julie Ann Fanning, a rising junior from McLean, assistant stage manager; and Henry McCoy, a rising junior from Overland Park, Kan., assistant box office manager.

"The fact that the Festival is able to use as many students as it does is an indication that the College's theatre program is improving in quality," observes Palmer, who, in addition to being general manager of the Festival also serves as artistic director for the William and Mary Theatre.

"Obviously, the general approach in casting is to hire the best people possible. If there is a toss-up, then and only then do we give preference to our own. In a sense, the competition is good for our people. They know they must be excellent to compete for these positions."

"The William and Mary Theatre has always recognized that building audiences is a large part of its mission. The fact that we have as many alumni as we have supporting the Festival is indicative of the kind of support we have tried to encourage," says Palmer. "After all, the quality of the Festival depends on the quality of the audience. You can never be better than your audience."

College Names Lowry Director of Muscarelle Museum

Glenn D. Lowry, Curator of Oriental Art at the Rhode Island School of Design, Providence, R.I., has been appointed Director of the Joseph and Margaret Muscarelle Museum of Art at the College. He will assume the post September 1.

The Muscarelle Museum, currently under construction at the College, is expected to open in 1983.

Lowry, 27, is a magna cum laude graduate of Williams College, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1976, and holds a master's degree from Harvard University, where he will finish his doctorate degree in fine arts this summer. His academic specialty is Islamic and Indian art and architecture.

He has taught at both Harvard and Wellesley College and has been assistant curator of Islamic art at the Fogg Art Museum at Harvard.

Glenn D. Lowry

In addition, Lowry has published widely on Islamic and Indian art. Most recently, he participated in the largest exhibition ever held of Indian textiles at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

Lowry was selected from some 70 applicants by a college-wide search committee which included Miles Chappell '60, professor of fine arts and chairman of the department.

Class of 1932 Excels Despite Hard Times

Group Contains Writers, Businessmen, Ambassador and College President

fessions in the years that followed. At least one alumna, Pearl Young Reynolds '32, isn't surprised at that, because the potential was there all along.

"There were so many outstanding people," says Reynolds. "It was an extremely outstanding class -- there's no question about that -- and there's a wonderful feeling among its members." Pearl Reynolds' ties to the College actually began with her father, Herbert H. Young, who in 1908 received the first B.S. degree in the history of the College. Reynolds made history herself at William and Mary as a superior athlete with natural ability, excelling in basketball, baseball, archery, hockey and track (as team captain).

On her own--without the expert coaching promising young athletes get today--Reynolds competed in national track meets, and went to the Olympic Tryouts held in Chicago in 1932. As a member of the Newark (N.J.) Athletic Club, she competed against the top women athletes in the U.S., and set a new world's record in the 50-meter dash.

"Women had not run in meters before, so every record was a new world's record," says Reynolds modestly. Her experiences in competing and teaching physical education have given her an overview of sports history that is first-hand. "Things are so different today, and the times in races are terrific," she comments. "I'd like to see women compete as we did, then you could compare athletic ability -- I wish I could have had coaching as they do now, and I wonder what I could have done."

The Class of 1932 was instrumental in bringing the Virginia Conference Championship in football, basketball, baseball and track to campus, thanks to people like John Wills Tuthill, who was named a member of the 1956 Sports Illustrated Silver Anniversary All-American Football Team.

The Class of '32 renewed "the warm glow of memories" at its 50th Reunion program in the Wren Chapel with the singing of the Alma Mater, led by (left to right) George "Piggy" Diggs, Arthur McLawhon, Martin Jurov, Pearl Young Reynolds, Larry Shaffer, and John Tuthill.

Going out for freshman football and weighing only 135 pounds, Tuthill was off to a inauspicious start at William and Mary. "I thought, for the first few months, getting batted around the football field, that I should go North to school like my friends," says Tuthill, who was from New Jersey. "By Christmas, all that had changed."

It certainly had. After a brilliant academic career at the College, Tuthill mastered not one, but three demanding careers: investment banking, the U.S. Foreign Service and teaching international politics. He has held several ambassadorships, including the post of Ambassador to Brazil, and is now President of the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies, as well as Princeton's

Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellow. Teaching is clearly a pleasure for Tuthill, who has taught classes and met with students at William and Mary as often as possible. A recipient of both the Alumni Medallion and an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from William and Mary, Tuthill is turning his attention -- and expertise -- to bringing distinguished scholars and diplomats to lecture at William and Mary from Washington and overseas.

The dedication of class members like Tuthill in continuing to help the College demonstrate the vast potential of the Olde Guard program, inaugurated in 1975. The Olde Guard includes some 2100 alumni who graduated prior to 1933, and the program of events through the year for its members seeks to reinforce increasingly strong bonds between the alumni, the College and its students.

Several class members noted "when you see the Class of 1982 give a standing ovation to the Class of 1932, then there is a feeling that does in fact 'link the generations each to each' because we share the special feeling about William and Mary."

Exemplifying that feeling is Mildred Layne '32, retired vice president of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, in four short words: "It's part of me," she says, referring to William and Mary. "I'm intrigued by its development and expansion, I'm proud of it, and I love it."

Layne left William and Mary in the middle of her junior year, expecting to return to make up the spring semester she missed in summer school. Instead, she soon found herself in Hong Kong, working as confidential secretary of the American Consul General. It was the first step in an illustrious career which would lead her back to Williamsburg -- and to the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. It was an association that would continue for more than 40 years. Even after her retirement as vice president -- the Foundation's first woman in such a post -- she was reelected secretary of the Foundation and retained as a consultant.

Layne, who served on the committee for the reunion of the Class of '32 with several other classmates, is one of two of the class's representatives to the Olde Guard, along with W. Brooks George '32. The vice president of his senior class, George is also a recipient of the Society of the Alumni's Alumni Medallion -- the highest honor the Society can bestow for service and loyalty. Within the Class of '32, that honor is shared by Martin Jurov, John Tuthill, Caskie Stinnett (editor-in-chief of Travel & Leisure), Duncan M. Cocke (retired senior vice president of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation), Roy R. Charles (businessman, philanthropist, and recipient of an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from William and Mary) and the late Dr. J. T. Baldwin, whose contributions as professor of biology at the College are commemorated by the J.T. Baldwin Memorial Garden on campus.

Members of the Class of '32 have fond and funny memories of the professors and administrators, from Social Dean Bessie Porter Taylor and her constant vigilance in seeing the social rules observed by students, to Dr. Swem saying to too-affectionate couples in the library, "This is a Library, not a matrimonial bureau."

They also remember the profound influence of faculty members on their lives. "To this day, I remember things Glenwood Clark (assistant professor of English and journalism) told me about writing, and I still quote them to classes today," says

John D. Weaver (left) and Caskie Stinnett, both students of English and journalism professor Glenwood Clark, each have excelled in the field of letters. Weaver is the author of 10 books and Stinnett, former editor of Holiday Magazine, is now editor of Travel and Leisure, of which Weaver is West Coast editor. Weaver's book, The Brownsville Raid, is now in preparation for a television mini-series to be aired in 1983.

John D. Weaver '32, author and journalist of renown.

Characterizing Clark as a one-man journalism school, Weaver points out that many of his students in the Class of '32 went on to write as professionals largely because of Clark's infectious passion for the craft. "The phrase 'Renaissance man' is overused these days, but Clark was one," says Weaver. "He brought excitement to his class and, like all good editors, he made you do work better than you were capable of." CBS recently picked up the option on one of author-historian Weaver's books, The Brownsville Raid, to create a mini-series which will air in 1983.

Weaver's brother Henry, another member of the Class of '32 and fellow veteran of Glenwood Clark's class, proves that even alumni in other professions benefited from his teaching. Henry Weaver has used the writing skills he learned as a practicing lawyer, and as the senior vice president and general counsel of Atlantic Richfield.

Prolific authoress Willoughby Patton '32 and H. Caskie Stinnett '32 are two alumni who had writing in their blood. A prominent travel writer, president of the American Society of Travel Writers and editor-in-chief of Travel & Leisure, Stinnett credits his former professor with getting him interested in writing.

"He was an extraordinary man," says Stinnett in tribute. "My feeling is that many people left there to become writers and novelists." Clark's class was also the beginning of the 50-year association of John Weaver and Caskie Stinnett, now editors for the same magazine.

Enduring ties between teacher and student are also a part of the history of the Class of '32, and almost a tradition at the College. Just as Dr. Alfred R. Armstrong '32 keeps in touch with one of his former chemistry professors who now lives in Northern Virginia, Armstrong's former students now keep in touch with him, for he is professor of chemistry, emeritus, at his alma mater.

First appointed to the faculty in 1933, Armstrong's career was in the hands of Fate. The deciding factor was A. Willie Dearing, associate professor of chemistry, who decided to go on leave. Armstrong had been an undergraduate teaching assistant in chemistry for three years, and stayed on for graduate work in physics when the Depression eroded his scholarship to the University of Virginia. (He would earn a Ph.D. from U.Va. later.) President Chandler asked Armstrong to replace Dearing for one year. The young instructor's fate was sealed when Dearing changed his mind about teaching at the College.

"Like most people, my life has been based on what opportunity comes along and on fortuitous circumstances -- not careful planning," says Armstrong. "If Dr. Dearing hadn't gone on leave, or had come back, there's no telling where I'd be."

Armstrong, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, well remembers his student days. "At that time, if you examine the roll at the beginning and the number of people who quit -- remember, this is the Depression -- you'll find a large number of people who dropped out," comments Arm-

Classmates Honor Dr. Paschall

Roy Charles Presents Gift To Former President At Reunion

During Dr. Paschall's administration as president of the College from 1960 to 1971, $36 million was expended in the construction of new buildings -- more than twice the amount spent for facilities by the College in its long history from 1693 to 1960. During his tenure, William and Mary was also brought to modern "university" status through new momentum in its research and graduate programs: the School of Marine Science, the School of Education and the School of Business Administration were all inaugurated in the 1960's, in large part due to President Paschall's sense of vision.

His contributions to the School of Business Administration were recognized by Dean Charles Quittmeyer at a luncheon for members of the Class of '32 during Commencement weekend. On behalf of the Board of Directors of Sponsors of the School of Business Administration, Dean Quittmeyer presented Dr. Paschall with a William and Mary rocking chair in appreciation of his many contributions to the school, and because he first appointed the Sponsors and its Board in 1970. Formed to advise and support the School of Business in its plans, programs and future efforts, the organization has been a tremendous asset over the past decade.

Dr. Paschall's classmates made a more personal gift recognizing his contributions to the College they all share. Roy Charles, himself honored many times by the College and Society for his participation, presented an engraved pewter plate bearing an inscription recognizing Dr. Paschall's efforts and the close feelings of the class for their distinguished fellow.

In accepting the gift, Dr. Paschall spoke eloquently on his experiences while President and his love for William and Mary. He noted the use of the Phoenix, that bird of classical antiquity which periodically built its own funeral pyre, was consumed, and rose from the ashes anew -- a rebirth and affirmation of immortality symbolizing to him the College that had suffered three severe fires, the ravages of two wars, ever rising to greater promise.

He described the portrait of Rev. James Blair, the first President, with the picture of the Wren Building in strong. The Class History in the 1932 Colonial Echo comments bravely that by junior year, "The number had fallen off, but the quality lingered on." There's no question that many members of the Class of '32 worked hard to meet financial and academic demands. They excelled in academic, social and athletic competition at William and Mary, carrying that excellence into their post-graduate lives. These newest members of the College's Olde Guard, however, are the first to say that they are not extraordinary.

"The members of every class have a right to feel that theirs was the best class," says Dr. Paschall. In praising the Class of '32's recent reunion, he spoke for many of his classmates in saying, "The events were so well the background which was to be critical to the restoration of the building by Colonial Williamsburg. Dr. Paschall pointed out that Blair's hand extends toward a bird, the Phoenix, which had reminded him of the first major fire of the Wren Building.

Roy Charles of Norfolk presented Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, president of the College from 1960-71, with the Class Award from the Class of 1932 -- an engraved pewter plate bearing the inscription: "Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32 -- with gratitude and fond remembrances on the occasion of our 50th reunion -- The Class of '32."

He also noted that the Queen's Guard, commissioned during his Presidency, has a Phoenix paramount on its arms.

In 1969, when the College constructed the lovely entrance to the New Campus, Dr. Paschall and five other members of the Class of '32 who had taken Latin under Dr. Walter Montgomery raised $5,000 and purchased an impressive bronze Phoenix to rest on the Vermont green stone. The plaque reads:

"From the Old to the New, may this entrance, like the Phoenix, symbolize a look to the Future made promising by a challenging heritage."

of 1932

In closing, Dr. Paschall said, "The basic purpose of our alma mater today, as it was for us, is to inculcate

Brooks George, who put it all together, said of the weekend that "all of us have renewed our ties with our college and with each other, in ways that are special to our class, but are a part of everyone who has been a part of William and Mary. It has been a grand time, and we will be back."

The warm glow of memories which these alumni have felt across the years may be intangible, but their contributions to the College are enduring. And beyond honors and contributions, the members of the Class of '32 have left a spark of their courage, kindness, and triumph over adversity. Larry F. Shaffer '32, retired president of Zimmer-Shaffer Associates and president of his junior class at William and Mary, put it well in a class history, quoting Tennyson:

We are not now that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven; that which we are, we are; -
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate,
but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find,
and not to yield.

The Class of 1932 gathered at the Alumni House for a Saturday luncheon on the patio to kick off festivities for their 50th reunion.

Class of 1932 Welcomed Into Olde Guard

Dr. Paschall Honored As Group Celebrates 50th Reunion At Commencement

84 members of the Class of 1932, returning to the College for their 50th Reunion, represented their 333 classmates, as the class was inducted into the Olde Guard.

Members of the Class of '32 and another 70 relatives and guests joined in the two days of festivities that began at noon on Saturday, May 16, with a luncheon on the patio at the Alumni House and concluded on Sunday with Commencement when members of the Class of 1982 gave the Class of 1932 a standing ovation.

Classmates and spouses took a bus tour of the campus, much of which classmate Dr. Paschall had built during his administration from 1960-71. The tour included a visit to the President's House where President and Mrs. Graves were holding a reception for graduates and their parents.

Saturday evening a cocktail party at the Alumni House preceded the black tie dinner in the President's Gallery and Great Hall of the Wren Building. Jack Tuthill and Dr. Davis Y. Paschall spoke to classmates recalling their college days and the life of the College during the past fifty years. Special presentations were made by Roy Charles to Dr. Paschall, and by Corky Sundin to Dr. Marvin West '52, Society president.

On Sunday, they attended a memorial service in the Chapel and a champagne luncheon in the Commons at which Bill Thompson '28, chairman of the Olde Guard Council, officially welcomed the Class of '32 into the Olde Guard. President and Mrs. Graves toasted the class at the luncheon.

The weekend festivities for the class were planned by a special 50th Reunion Committee chaired by W. Brooks George, vice president of the class. Other committee members were Rip Collins, Janie Gilliam, Jo Habel Bradshaw, Mildred Layne, Dr. Paschall, Corky Sundin, and Mildred Hall Carter.

Corky Sundin (left) presented a special brick to Dr. Marvin F. West '52, president of the Society of the Alumni, during the reunion program Saturday evening in the Chapel. The brick represents the class gift of $25,000 which will be used for a room in the projected Alumni House Conference Center.

A highlight was the display of a handsome king sized handmade all-velvet quilt, using 19 different colors of velvet created by Janie Gilliam '32, of Phenix, Va. Chances will be sold and the quilt raffled at Homecoming with proceeds being donated as part of her contribution to the Class Gift Fund. Appraisals have valued the quilt at a minimum of $1,500.

50th reunion spouses took nearly as many photographs of classmates in graduation gowns as did the class of 1982.

Members of the Class of '32 attended the Commencement ceremonies and received a standing ovation from the Class of '82 and the 10,000 members of the audience.

Dow, Daniels Capture National Championships

Tennis Team Second, Golf Fourth, Lacrosse Fifth in National Finals

Senior Jeri Daniels captured the national title in the shot put with a throw of 47 feet 7 inches at the AIAW Division II Track and Field Championship at Austin Peay University in Clarksville, Tenn. Daniels winning toss came on her first attempt, and sets a personal best and new W&M school record. The previous day, she placed fourth in the discus with a 142 foot throw, just 2 1/2 feet off the winning distance. It was her second year for earning All-American titles in both events. The Tribe's two-mile relay team and high jumper Elizabeth Simmons failed to qualify for the finals in their events.

William and Mary junior Cherie Dow captured the flight 1 singles national title and W&M placed second in team competition at the AIAW Division II Nationals, May 26-29 at the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley. It was the highest team finish in tennis, as W&M placed fourth last year, sixth in 1980 and third in 1979.

Although seeded second, Dow defeated the number 1 seed, Suzanne Kuhlman of Georgetown in two sets 6-1, 6-4. Dow, a transfer from Penn State, had lost to Kuhlman on four previous occasions but took control in the first set. "I was nervous because I had never beaten her before I thought if I played well I could beat her," said Dow.

In the opening game of the second set, the two went to deuce eight times before Kuhlman won. Dow stormed back to lead 3-1, but Kuhlman won the next three games and went up 4-3. Dow won the next game on her service and in the final game, after three deuce points, put away the match.

Dow was named an All-American as were teammates Marion Gengler and Margie Waters. Gengler was runner-up at No. 2 singles losing to Mary Spain of Charleston 6-4, 6-0. Dow and Gengler teamed at No. 2 doubles, where they finished second, losing to Mary Spain-Maggie Hastings of Charleston 5-7, 6-4, 6-0.

Waters was runner-up at No. 6 singles after a tough three-set match with Richmond's Cathy Shields. After losing the first set 4-6, Waters stormed to a 6-1 second set victory. But after leading 4-2 in the third set, the two tied at 6-6. In the tie-breaker Waters battled back from a 6-3 deficit to tie at 6-6 and 7-7 before losing the last two points. It was Waters second All-American titles as she was runner-up at No. 5 singles last year.

At other positions Karen Dudley placed third at No. 4 singles, and teamed with Anne Shoemaker to finish third at No. 3 doubles. Lisa Milligan was the consolation runner-up for sixth place at No. 3 singles, and Chris Wells was sixth at No. 5 singles. Chris Mast and Margie Waters did not place at No. 1 doubles.

It was an extremely close team race with Richmond winning with 69 points, W&M second with 61 and Charleston third with 49 of the 27 schools represented. After the third day, Richmond led by only a point and a half. "The title was not decided until the last day of play," said W&M Coach Candi Cowden. "It was a little bit disappointing but in looking at the whole spring season we were very successful. We've beaten every school in the state of Virginia and the national champions twice (Richmond in two dual matches)." The tennis team finished the year at 17-3 in dual matches.

Senior Mary Wilkinson and freshman Anne Bierman were named All-Americans following the AIAW Division II Golf Nationals, May 25-28 at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. The Tribe placed fourth in the team competition with 1337 strokes while two new teams which dropped from Division I placed first and second. Weber State (Ogden, Utah), was first at 1260, followed by Troy State (Ala.) 1275 and Longwood with 1329.

In individual competition Wilkinson placed sixth after losing a play-off for fifth, with rounds of 81-79-82-78-320 on the 6,100 yd. par 72 course. Heidi Wallin of Weber placed first with a 76-77-74-79-306. Bierman tied for eighteenth at 81-83-86-82-332, junior Mary Ellen Fedor was twenty-first with 89-87-81-79-336 and Wendy Rilling also scored with 90-90-85-84-349.

Tribe sophomore defensive star Chris Paradis (22) was named to the National All-Championship lacrosse team.

five goals, and in the fifth place game, led Harvard 4-1 at the half and survived a late Crimson surge, winning 6-5.

Sophomore defensive third man Chris Paradis was named to the All-Championship team, and senior goalkeeper Vikki Bovoso recorded 16 saves against West Chester and 17 saves in the Harvard game ending her career with 448. Sophomore Julie Duff had six goals and two assists during the tournament with a team high three goals against Harvard.

Coach Feffie Barnhill said she was pleased with the season. "We've matured a lot over the year. It (Harvard) was a great last game. The team really put it all together." The Tribe's only other loss was at the hand's of third place national finisher Penn State, 9-11, at home.

Several records fell during the year, including fewest goals allowed in a season with only 80 in 13 games, while William and Mary scored 137 against their opponents. Bovoso set a new season save percentage with 64.9 and junior transfer Whitney Thayer broke the record for assists in a game (5), assist average (1.6) and fell just three short of the season assist record with 21. She led the team in total points with 48 including 27 goals. Hooper moved into seventh place on the all-time scoring list with 35 goals and 11 assists on the year and 69 career goals. Duff's 26 goals and 14 assists moved her into tenth place with 50 career goals, and sophomore Lisa Fuccella more than doubled her goal output with 32 goals on the year.

Defensively, Liz Somers was credited by Barnhill with an excellent national tournament at cover point. At center Basia Deren scored six goals and added six assists on the season. Graduation losses will include both defense wings, Amy Wright and Katie Lehr, Bovoso in goal and Kelly Wagner at attack wing, but the core of the team will return experienced.

Juniors Dana Hooper and Whitney Thayer were named to the Coaches All-American lacrosse team for their play during the season and sophomore Lisa Fuccella was named to the All-Regional team. Hooper shot 50 per cent in shots on goal during the season. Deren, Thayer, Hooper, Fuccella and Duff will attend U.S. Lacrosse Squad trials June 5-6 in hopes of being named to the U.S. Team, Reserve team or squad.

The women's lacrosse team placed fifth at the AIAW Division I Nationals at West Chester State College, Pa., and lost only two games during the season ending at 11-2. It was the third time in the past four years that William and Mary has competed in national play, placing fifth in 1979 and sixth in 1980.

Once again the Tribe lost in the opening round of play. After a 2-2 half-time score Maryland, the eventual second place finisher and defending national champions, surged to a 7-3 win. But William and Mary rebounded to crush host West Chester 13-5 in the second round on junior Dana Hooper's season-high

Giving The Community A Helping Hand

William and Mary's Student-Athletes Go Into The Schools To Work With Kids

William and Mary has always taken pride in its student-athletes. The academic demands are no less rigid for them than any other student. The hours spent practicing their respective sports create a need for organizing time to stay abreast with the studies.

With their almost every moment accounted for in a dutiful commitment to both athletics and academics, there is yet another endeavor in which many are taking part.

It is working with youngsters in and around Williamsburg: serving as big brothers and big sisters, acting as a Volunteer for Youth (an NCAA program), working in the recreation department, participating in clinics and going directly into the schools to stress the importance and need for education.

Focusing primarily on the elementary and junior high school youths, the college students serve in many roles. Mostly though, they share care, listen and learn and provide that spark of inspiration which prompts the youngsters to greater goals.

It is remarkable to see how the children respond to the student-athletes who serve as positive role models, giving the student-athlete an opportunity to reach the youngsters and expand upon the importance of education.

The athlete they have seen compete and admire so much is right there with them, conveying the message of William and Mary's perspective of athletics and academics.

"The studies enable one to compete," says John Mitrovic, a linebacker and rising senior. "My role as an athlete gives me the opportunity to continue my education at the college level as I prepare, through education, to enter the business world."

Recently, a trio of basketball players, Ken Bowen, Rich Cooper and Keith Cieplicki, met with a fifth grade reading class at Bruton Heights Elementary School.

The youngsters were "slow readers." When given the basketball brochures and asked to read about the players seated with them, the youths could hardly wait to respond.

"I've rarely seen the class so attentive, so involved," stated assistant principal Rose Kellison.

"What a great opportunity for our children. It means so much to them and to us. I can't tell you how appreciative we are."

The players brought the children out. They talked about sports, but invariably the discussions focused upon the importance of improving reading and math skills.

The following day three football players, Joe Lucas, Jerome Watters and John Mitrovic, met with another reading class, which produced the same positive results.

Kenny Bowen's 6-9 height or Joe Lucas's muscular 240 pound frame wasted little time in getting the youngsters' attention. Then student-athletes abilities to motivate the youths took over and generated an interaction.

Richie Cooper breaks out into a song or imitates one of the students.

"He (Cooper) is super. Look at how those kids are responding to him," commented Kellison when observing the "Coop technique."

"If I can spend some time with kids in an effort to convince them of the importance of education, then I think its time very well spent," says Cooper.

"We could utilize their efforts at just about every grade level. They are extraordinary," stated Bruton Heights principal Sandy Rogers following one of the sessions at her school.

Men's athletic director Jim Copeland calls the efforts of the student-athletes "another example of the outstanding calibre of persons we have in our program."

Copeland adds: "It gives me a great deal of pride to see our student-athletes become involved in the community in such positive ways."

With the overwhelmingly popular response by administrators, teachers and youngsters, the student-athletes are looking to expand their efforts.

"It is a great experience for all of us. Whether you are dealing on a one-to-one basis like the Volunteers for Youth or go into the classroom as we have recently, it is just a totally rewarding time," says defensive back and rising senior Jerome Watters.

Perhaps Keith Cieplicki, the Tribe's sensational freshman guard, summed it up best. "If I can make a kid's day a little brighter," he says, "and perhaps his future a little more positive then the tomorrow that involves all of us might be a little better."

Serena Named To All-American Gymnastics Team

Tom Serena, William and Mary's stellar gymnast, finished sixth in vaulting in the national gymnastic championship and was named to the All-American team, the first gymnast in College history to be selected as an All-American.

Serena also received the senior outstanding student-athlete award given by the Athletic Educational Foundation. A 3.7 biology major, Serena made Phi Beta Kappa and has been admitted to five different medical schools for the fall term.

Jeff Powell, William and Mary's sensational freshman sprinter, has been selected to the All-East Track and Field Team following his third place finish in the 100-meter dash with a time of 10.58 in the IC4A championships. His name equalled the William and Mary record in the 100-meter dash.

Powell, who plays tailback on the Tribe football team, had earlier qualified for the NCAA Championship during the Indoor Season in the hurdles and recorded the fastest time by a freshman in the nation.

The Brightest Of The Bright

Mike Tankersley Wins Botetourt Medal With Perfect Record

Even in a year of extraordinary academic achievement at William and Mary, Mike Tankersley '82 stands out.

Tankersley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Tankersley of Fallston, Md., received the Botetourt Medal at Commencement as the graduating senior who had achieved the highest academic distinction. Tankersley had a perfect 4.0 grade point average throughout his four years at William and Mary. But so did four other 1982 William and Mary graduates, and that had never happened before in the modern history of the College.

Besides Tankersley, those achieving perfect grades were Kennon Hager, a biology major from Williamsburg; Leslie Ann Wederich, an economics major from Westfield, N.J.; James R. Cochran, a biology major from Hampton, and Mark J. Shukaitis, a computer science major from Wilmington, Del.

While the other four had single majors, Tankersley achieved honors in two majors. He received highest honors in history and high honors in physics, the only student to graduate with double honors.

Professors who have worked with Tankersley describe him as one of the extraordinary students to come through William and Mary in recent years. Dr. Thad Tate, director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture and a professor of history, says that in his 20 years of teaching at the College, "there have been only two or three students about whom I could speak with equal enthusiasm."

Dr. Jim Livingston, professor of history, says Tankersley is a "remarkable young scholar of uncommon achievement." Dr. Roy Champion, professor of physics who advised Tankersley with his honors work, says this of him: "Tankersley is clear evidence that the Renaissance man has not vanished. He is very bright. . . a pleasant person to work with, someone able to talk about almost anything."

On his Law School Admissions Test, Tankersley achieved a 799 score out of possible 800. A law school professor jokingly suggested he might want to take the test again since he graded out so low.

Tankersley has been accepted to both Harvard and Yale Law Schools, but plans to take a year off from school before entering Harvard. He looks ahead to a career in the political arena and legislative law. He is also considering patent law, which will give him an opportunity to use his abilities in technical writing.

Tankersley researched the Maryland colony during the 18th century for his honors paper in history and has been given the two student awards offered in history. For his honors paper "Politics in Maryland, 1715-1733," completed under the supervision of Dr. Tate, he was awarded the Fraley Award for the best undergraduate honors thesis. He has also been awarded the Morton Scholarship, which is given to the outstanding senior concentrator in history. This is the first time that both honors have been awarded to one student.

For his honors work in physics, Tankersley worked on an experiment which looked at the results of atomic molecular collisions. He was involved both with the experiment and the analysis and interpretation of the resulting data. Last year he won the Eastman Kodak Physics Scholarship Award.

In addition to his high academic achievements, Tankersley has been very active in campus life. He has served as vice president of the Catholic Student Association and chairman of its Christian Education committee. He has been secretary and treasurer for Phi Alpha Theta history honorary, president of the History Students Organization and was a varsity debater for two years.

Tankersley has also been a tutor for the Adult Skills Program on campus and an active member of the Nuclear Disarmament Study Group and the Bread for the World organization.

Tankersley came to William and Mary having already amassed an enviable academic record at Mount St. Joseph High School in Baltimore, where he was valedictorian of the class of 1978. He was active in student government and forensics.

Editor:

Since May 16, 1982, when I officially became a graduate of the College, I have been writing lots of "thank-you" letters. There is a special group of people, however, whom I cannot possibly thank sufficiently with a single letter.

Therefore, I would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge, both personally and publicly, the staff of the Alumni House, so that all Alumni of the College will know how great my appreciation is of their year-long support.

As a class officer, I am grateful to each member of the Alumni House staff and the College Relations Committee, without whom I would not have known where to begin, and yet am now privileged to have worked so closely with to the end. For the always open Alumni House door, for the wealth of information and welcome advice I received there, and even for the lecture on the Latin conjugations of the noun "alumnus," I thank you. But, most important of all, is the realization on my part of the true meaning of the phrase "William and Mary family," for it is this past year's association with so many alumni that has brought it, literally, home. Once again, for the year 1982, and for the lifetime of alumni involvement to come, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Lauri L. Brewer
Pres., Class of '82

Sylvia Beck White '57 Honored For Work by Emory and Henry

Mrs. Sylvia Beck White '57 of Abington has been honored by Emory & Henry College for her work on behalf of educational programs for the gifted and talented students in Southwest Virginia and throughout the state.

A homemaker who devotes a large portion of her time to volunteer work promoting educational programs for gifted and talented pupils, Mrs. White received a certificate at Emory & Henry's Charter Day ceremonies recognizing her work.

Mrs. White is the wife of Jack White '57, and daughter-in-law of Helen White '25, class reporter for the Alumni Gazette.

She headed a statewide lobbying effort which resulted in increased appropriations from the General Assembly for use in gifted/talented education. Currently, Mrs. White, who is the mother of three children, is the first non-professional educator to head VAEG.

Since she began a two year term as president of VAEG, membership has doubled in the organization. She has worked to establish close liaison with officials of the State Department of Education and committees of the General Assembly for Gifted and Talented Education. In part through her lobbying efforts, more than $1.7 million was added to the 1982-84 biennium budget for local programs for gifted and talented students.

Prior to Commencement Exercises, Aubrey L. Mason '47 (left) and Colin R. Davis '50 (right) both members of the Board of Visitors, visited with Dr. Marvin F. West '52, president of the Society of the Alumni. Both Mason and Davis are also past presidents of the Society.

President Graves formally concluded the academic year after the President's Chain was passed from Laurie Brewer, President of the Class of '82, to Carolyn Finocchio, President of the Class of '83. The chain, which bears the names of every Senior Class president since 1897, was originated and is maintained by the Society of the Alumni.

More than 10,000 graduates, family and friends gathered in William and Mary Hall for Commencement activities.

William and Mary awarded more than 1600 degrees on May 16 in an exuberant Commencement Ceremony marked by a lively sense of humor on the part of the speakers.

Cartoonist Garry B. Trudeau, creator of the satirical "Doonesbury," set the tone for the day when he began his address by suggesting that commencement addresses were invented "in the belief that outgoing college students should never be released into the world until they had been properly sedated." But Trudeau, who was the choice of the Senior Class to speak, quickly implied that his speech would not follow that tradition by saying he had been chosen as the speaker at another graduation because the students "agreed that (I was) the candidate most likely to irritate our parents."

Tom Prince, editor of the William and Mary Review who was selected in competition as the valedictory speaker, followed with a sprightly talk that, like Trudeau's, delighted the audience with a humorous look at his college days. He got a hardy response when he quipped that Thomas Jefferson's departure from Williamsburg to help found the University of Virginia was one example of William and Mary's willingness to "help those who cannot help themselves." Prince also suggested that parents sent their children to William and Mary because their mothers find Williamsburg a nice place to shop and fathers like the College because it is such a bargain.

The students began their Commencement weekend at the baccalaureate service in Phi Beta Kappa Hall on Saturday morning. Dr. David L. Holmes, professor of religion, delivered the baccalaureate sermon, assisted by Cathy M. Allen '79 who is currently studying for her M.D. degree at the Duke University Medical School.

On Saturday evening, the graduates and their parents attended a reception at the President's House, followed by the Senior Class Candlelight Ceremony and the Commencement Ball.

On Sunday, the graduates convened at 1 p.m. at the Wren Building to begin their last walk before becoming alumni across campus to William and Mary Hall, where more than 10,000 relatives and friends gathered for graduation. Each year, the Senior Class selects three honorary marshals to lead them on the trek across campus, and this year they chose Dr. Melvin Schiavelli, professor of chemistry; John McGlennon, associate professor of government, and Marilyn Cloutier, visiting assistant professor of modern languages and literature.

The College conferred four honorary degrees during the Commencement ceremonies. In addition to Trudeau, who was honored for his "irreverent and insightful artistry" which helps us "understand ourselves a little better," those receiving honorary degrees were:

Dr. Vincent T. DeVita, Jr., '57, director of the National Cancer Instiee of the honorary degree

Jim Comey received the James Frederick Carr Memorial Cup from President Graves. It is awarded on the basis of character, scholarship, and leadership.

At the ROTC Commissioning Ceremony on Saturday morning of Commencement Weekend, President Graves welcomed Hillsman V. Wilson '51, chief executive officer of McCormick & Co., into the William and Mary ROTC Roster of Distinguished Graduates.

tute, who was honored for being in "the forefront of the worldwide fight against cancer, providing leadership with the skill and patience of a scholar, the humanity and insight of a teacher, and the drive and organizational ability of an administrator. . ."

C. Waller Barrett, a bibliophile, whom the College honored for his "unswerving devotion throughout a long and distinguished career to improving the quality of our lives through books. . ."

Frederick C. Steward, a botanist, who was recognized for his "exceptional contributions as a scientist in disciplines that search the fundamental questions of living and of our relationship with nature. . ."

In his address, Trudeau spoke of "The Revolution" of the late 1960s and early '70s in a humorous vein.

"The Revolution was a series of loosely co-ordinated public disturbances . . . attended mostly by young people of middle-class extraction," he said. "It was seasonal and usually held outdoors. Dress was informal.

"It was also nearly always scheduled to coincide with exam period, although in the protocol-conscious eastern schools, a pattern developed by which only one major university seemed to erupt at a time. Columbia went first, and in succeeding years Harvard, Amherst, B.U. and others staged their disorders in orderly sequence, a convenience that not only allowed the media to focus their coverage with economy, but also permitted college-bound seniors to evaluate each school on its individual merits."

Trudeau said his generation had become outraged because "official duplicity," evidenced in Vietnam and Watergate, "had marred an era" of "great hope and promise, the years of the New Frontier and the Great Society, when public service was held in high esteem, and duty to country was a shared responsibility."

Today's students, he said, are in the grips of "the post-Vietnam fatigue syndrome."

"Your values and interest are no worse or better than those which are filtering down from the larger society which nurtured you," said Trudeau, who noted that today's graduates are more interested in jobs and materialism than idealism and revolution.

Trudeau encouraged the students not to be so self-centered in the pursuit of a career that they forget the society around them.

Following the main commencement, both the Law School and the Business School held separate ceremonies. Federal Court Judge John D. Butzner, Jr., addressed the law graduates, and Dr. Franklin E. Roberson, associate dean of the School of Business Administration, conducted the ceremonies for the MBA graduates.

Among those introduced at Commencement were Dr. Marvin West '52, Williamsburg dentist, president of the Society of the Alumni and Mama Stringfellow, a former house-mother, now 103 years old.

At the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, Professor Betsy Schmidt completed her first year of teaching law, turned in her grades, walked in the academic procession Sunday, and early Monday morning gave birth to twin girls, Catherine, 7 lbs 2 ozs. and Elizabeth, 6 lbs. 7 ozs.

After gathering at the Wren Building the seniors took their final walk as students across campus to William and Mary Hall before Commencement. The evening before Commencement, the seniors held their annual Candlelight Ceremony (below).

In recognition of their service to humanity, President Graves presented the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Awards to Sarah Armbrister and Mike Landen, who is the son of Dr. Bob Landen '52 and Trish Kizzia Landen '56, of Concord, Tenn. Barbara S. Ball received the Sullivan Award given to a member of the larger William and Mary community.

Dear Classmates: How I do wish all of you could have been present to share our first "Olde Guard Day"! It was a great event being able to chat, not only with our own classmates, but friends from other classes as well. As I overheard one person remark, "I have seen friends I haven't seen in fifty-four years!" I patted him on the shoulder and said, "That goes for me, too." It truly was a "homecoming" of the First Order!

Cocktails marked the opening of this happy occasion. So much so you would have thought we were students rather than mature alumni for we turned back the hands of time and relived those great college days of so long ago--yes, "Nostalgic Moments" were prevalent indeed.

Each table had a host/hostess. Several of us joined Mr. Duane Dittman at his table. He is Vice President for University Advancement, and in short order we found we had mutual friends.

Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32 proceeded with the invocation.

A welcome and other remarks were given by the Senior Class President, Lauri Brewer, class of '82.

Dr. Graves, as always, made a splendid talk--brief--but to the point as he expressed his appreciation of the devotion, loyalty and spirit and "Olde Guard" exhibits for the College of William and Mary.

A special award presentation was made by William Thompson, Jr., class of '28, who is chairman of "The Olde Guard Council," to our own Art Winder for his work as first chairman of the Olde Guard Council.

The William and Mary Choir, under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, rendered a beautiful and impressive concert--so impressive that it will long linger, not only in our minds, but our ears as well. You would have stood tall in pride as did we.

Closing "Remarks" were made by Jere Shawver, class of '82, co-chairman of the Student Liaison Committee.

Yes, truly it was a day we look forward to re-living a year from now--and in the meantime let's begin making plans to come--and arrive early--that's the only way we will be able to get through the maze of alumni of the "Olde Days"!

My only two regrets of the day were, first--that those of you who could not be present do not have the sweet memories upon which to feast for the next twelve months--and, secondly--time passed much, much too rapidly. On every hand I was hearing, "What can we do to make it a longer day?"

By now I am confident you are anxious to hear the names of the members of our class who were present. They are as follows--as best I could get it. If anyone's name does

PHILADELPHIA CHAPTER OFFICERS

Newly elected officers and Board for the Philadelphia Alumni Chapter are: front row, Diane Herkness '80, treasurer, and Claire Zarilli '80, board member. In the back row are Glenn Gunderson '76, board; Sue Manix '79, president; Emily Hunsicker '78, secretary; Melissa Eastman '77, vice president; Roger Crook, board. Not available for the picture were Owen Knopping '61 and Marilyn Entwisle '44, board members.

HANSON '39 PRESENTS $250,000 LEE TRUST GIFT

Arthur B. Hanson '39, a Washington, D.C., attorney and one of three trustees of the Lee Trust, presented a check for $250,000 recently to William B. Spong, Jr., dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, as the first installment on a gift from the Lee Trust of $1.75 million to establish an Institute on First Amendment Law at William and Mary. The gift will be paid in $250,000 installments over the next seven years.

not appear please know it is either because you did not register in our class book or your name did not appear on the printed list. John (Pop) and Nan Fuller, John and Louise St. George, Elizabeth and William Cowne, Caroline Sinclair, Jeannette Yates, Marjorie Brulle Shook, Suzanne Garrett Montague, "Tony" Everett, Charlie and Betty Pollard, "Doc" Sims, Rose Vipond, William and Fanny Marks, Vernon and Liz Nunn, Alton Lindsay, Art and Mary Winder, "HI" and Dot Willett, Helen and Stuart White.

We are sorry to report that Louise St. George had a bad fall a few weeks ago but she was determined to be with us--so she, with her cane, joined us as if nothing had happened, but she really was in pain. Louise, we hope you had no bad effects from coming and by the same token we hope you will have fully recovered by the time the Gazette reaches you.

Liz and Vernon Nunn had a delightful vacation on Jekyll Island this year. While there Elizabeth and Bill Gravely spent a day with them which, in Vernon's words, "was a very enjoyable event."

Later Dot and Jim Campbell parked their trailer on the Island for several days which made it possible for nice, long visits with them. Vernon concluded by saying, "These guests really made our stay in the south more enjoyable."

Your next deadline to my desk is August 5th. Don't forget. No news--no column! This is your final reminder.

Homecoming 1982 will be celebrated on November 5th and 6th, so don't fail to make your reservations early. We will have our usual "Olde Guard" luncheon on Friday, the 5th.

On behalf of the class of '25, and personally, I express appreciation to our President, Dr. Graves, the Student Body, and the Student Liaison Committee for the excellent planning, the delicious luncheon, and the delightful program which was ours on our "First Olde Guard Day"--a time which will long remain "cherished memories."

The April issue inadvertently omitted the graduation this year of another of our grandsons. Robert Woody is graduating from James Madison University and needless to say we are very proud of his fine accomplishments during these four years.

God bless our nation as we face these perilous times and God bless and watch over each of you, my classmates.

27 M. Carl Andrews
2814 Crystal Spring Ave., SW
Roanoke, Va. 24014

Well, dear classmates, that letter in the April Gazette came very near being the last from me but I'm glad to be writing again although few of you have sent me a line.

Shortly after mailing that letter, I felt chest discomfort and within minutes my physician told Mary to rush me to the hospital emergency room. From there they took me to ICU (intensive care unit) then to the CCU (coronary care unit).

The second day in CCU saw the real attack (my third), but almost instantaneous treatment greatly minimized the severity and 10 days later I was at home recuperating and did so well that my doctor permitted me to attend the White Jacket Spring Board Meeting at the Alumni House, providing our old classmate, Macon Sammons, did the driving. It was just "too much" to include the Olde Guard gathering in mid-week (why not have that on a weekend and not so near commencement?).

I write this personal bit at length as a warning to all of you: If ever you feel pain, congestion or pressure in the chest, don't delay but head for the hospital--it could save your life! And we need you!

Mention of the Olde Guard affair reminds me: Lee Todd was his usual faithful self and managed to get there from Quinwood, W.Va. with wife Daisy. He lists some of the others attending, including Bruce "Buzzy" Stewart and Martha and two of our Williamsburg "natives," Max Brock-enbrough Houglund and Fax Griffith Bahr. The Alumni Office lists others present: Sewell Hopkins, James Jenkins, Eugenia Portlock Joyce, J. Wilfred and Anne Nenzel Lambert, Alton Lindsay and Mary, Eulah Massey, Gay Burruss Meisel, Margaret Holman McCoy, Harriette Patteson, Anna Withers Rollings, Mary Hess Rowe and Joseph, J. F. Slauson, Spike Smith and Helen, Marie Hofmeyer Tuttle, Edward Wilshin and Blanche, and Fairfax Berkley.

After attending the White Jacket meeting, I called Max and she sounded her usual cheerful self. How I envy those who can live so close to alma mater!

HOMECOMING '82
YOU'RE INVITED

Nov. 5-6

Dr. Roy R. Powell, our former Navy Captain, also retired from practice of ophthalmology five years ago. He says: "Now we live in Ft. Myers, Fla., about seven months of the year and in Portsmouth, Va., the other five. We are thoroughly enjoying golf and travel. I had my first hole-in-one on March 15 (who besides Shakespeare's soothsayer said the Ides of March was unlucky?). Had to miss the Olde Guard get-together in order to attend a shipmate reunion in Mobile, Ala., commemorating the 40th anniversary of the commissioning of the USS Alabama (BB60). It was wonderful to see so many old shipmates of that eventful day."

Harriett A. Patteson, BS 1927, MED. 1962, was given the "outstanding alumna award" from the Medical College of Virginia (VCU) Nursing Alumni Association in 1981.

Dr. Harold W. Ramsey, who lives near me in Rocky Mount, notes that his grandson, Tom Brooks, "is presently a freshman at W&M, making it a third generation there and he lives in Jefferson Hall." (How many of us males once dreamed about doing that! --These co-ed dormitories may be all right, but my personal view is that the old system was best.)

Dick Trible, who spent the winter in Babson Park, Fla., returned to his home in Kilmarnock for a repeat operation, because he says, the first "didn't fix things." He's recently been comparing troubles with Ed Wilshin, now back in Baltimore after a California trip.

Eulah Massey writes from Newport News that she expects to be back for our 55th in November, then adds: "William and Mary was, is, and always will be the greatest!"

I can't keep up with Leonard Born. He seems to use San Francisco, his home, only as a point of departure--Mexico, China, Canada, Alaska--you name it. Now he's planning for Bavaria, Austria and the Rhineland.

Len forwarded a clipping and compares the late Archibald MacLeish to our beloved librarian, Dr. Earl G. Swem, who greatly deserved having the new library named for him. As a former Visitor, I'm proud to have my name on the plaque in that great building.

I know that all of you were saddened to read in recent Gazette issues of the deaths of Jimmy Bethune and Scott Noblin which occurred over a year ago. Personally, I had great affection for both and Scotty was a fraternity brother.

That reminds me to tell you of something, both funny and terrifying, which happened to Scotty back in the early 1930's when he was principal of an elementary school in Rye Cove, way back in Southwest Virginia. This was before he returned to the College to get his MA in 1934.

One spring day the little valley in which Rye Cove is located was struck by one of the few tornadoes ever recorded in Virginia, particularly in the mountains.

Scotty was standing by a window in the school hallway watching an approaching storm which suddenly let down a whirling funnel. One second he was looking out the window. The next moment he was sitting in a mud puddle, uninjured but wet, muddy, confused and angry. The tornado wrecked the school and took away the roof without a serious injury!

Maybe that's why he gave up teaching to become a publisher's agent. Condolences to his wife Bertha who lives in Orange.

Jimmy Bethune got his law degree at Wake Forest after William and Mary and as an attorney spent many years with the North Carolina Department of Revenue at Lumberton.

Under the head of "tempus fugit," let us note that Lee Todd will be attending the 50th anniversary of his graduating class at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond on June 10-13. As luck will have it, this will prevent him from attending his and my 59th anniversary at Newport News High School, which either one of us seldom misses.

Finally, for this time at least, the 55th anniversary of the William and Mary Class of 1927 is due to be celebrated during Homecoming, November 4-7. Of course, we are scheduled to gather with the Olde Guard for the luncheon on November 5, but some of you have mentioned a possible special '27 dinner on Saturday night or a breakfast on Sunday morning. If enough of you express interest before our next letter in September, perhaps something can be arranged.

But please don't delay. Write to me soon to give me your ideas and while you're about it, send some news of your own activities. There are at least 100 of you out there somewhere and if you like to read this letter four times a year, remember that fiction is not permitted by Ye Alumni Gazette editor!

Until we meet again, have a grand summer.

Aubrey and Louise Moore Harris have been living in North Palm Beach, Fla., since Aubrey retired from NASA in 1969 after 40 years of service. They have moved to a life care center, The Waterford, in Juno Beach, Fla. Aubrey hopes to come to Williamsburg in November for a NASA reunion.

Nancy Burke Bloxom, 2011 North Mallory Street, Hampton, Va., 23664, writes, "When I saw you at the Olde Guard luncheon last fall I said I didn't have anything to write to you for our class. On January 23rd I was inducted into the William and Mary Hall of Fame. This occasion was a happy family reunion for me of my sister, Ava B. Russell '37, of Bristol, Va.; my daughter, Grace B. Raveling, of Houston, Texas; my daughter and her husband, Bette W. Witherington '55, and Tom Witherington '56, of Lynchburg, Va.; grandson and wife, Tad and Sara Witherington of Hartford, Conn.; and granddaughter, Mary Scott Witherington, from Westhampton College, Richmond, Va.

"Spud and I are the only members from our class and also the only husband and wife in the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame.

"I attended a luncheon in March in Tazewell, Va., and had a delightful time with Dr. Mary Elizabeth Johnston and Virginia Buston Gillespie, our classmates.

"I regret that I will not be able to attend Olde Guard Day in April but I look forward to seeing you and classmates at the Olde Guard luncheon in the fall of 1982."

Classmates, please let us hear from you soon with details of your activities so that we might pass on this information to your classmates. Again, we hope to hear from you before the deadline for the next ALUMNI GAZETTE.

The morning of April 15 found many of the Olde Guard wending their way to Williamsburg for Olde Guard Day. I left Dover early that morning and arrived just in time for the cocktail hour at noon. The room was buzzing with chatter. I found that the following from our class had arrived: Amy Reid Bibb, Jerome P. Carr, II, Liz Griffin Conkling, Margery Dameron Edmonds, Clare Cook Gayle, J. Kenneth Graham, Martha Barrow Hatcher, May Selby Iturralde, Ellen Ticer King, Mary P. Maddox, Helen Lorenzen Mark, Agnes Winn Paschall, Milton Salasky, and Liz Allen Snead.

We had a delicious luncheon and much sociability. The William and Mary Choir entertained us with a concert. Dr. Graves announced that the Olde Guard Day will be an annual event.

Helen Lorenzen Mark, who spent the year 1927-28 at William and Mary, sailed the Western Mediterranean aboard the Tall Ship Sea Cloud, May 19-30, a William and Mary sponsored tour. Sounds wonderful!

Liz Griffin Conkling recently visited her former roommate, Marjorie Lanston Fitzgerald '32, in Annapolis.

Milton Salasky and wife Shirley have traveled to Bermuda since our fall Homecoming and spent the winter in Florida.

Katherine Lam and her sister, Margaret '35, have moved to Westminster-Canterbury, 3100 Shore Drive, Virginia Beach, Va., 23451.

Jim Hubbard sent Jim Murphy's address: James C. Murphy, 267 Canton Street, Westwood, Massachusetts, 02090. Maybe we will see our former football captain at Homecoming.

Jim Hubbard said that he and Hilda managed to survive the severe winter in Massachusetts, including the 15-inch snow in April.

Plan now to come to Homecoming, November 5 and 6. Hope to see you there.

How many of us are going to be in Williamsburg May 14th and 15th of 1983? We trust you have received the April 1st letter concerning our 50th Reunion and are looking forward to that event. Please read the letter carefully. The Colonial Re-Echo biography should be completed and returned by June 1, 1982. (Don't forget to include your picture with it.)

Fanny Martin Richardson has already contacted her roommate to meet her and be her roommate at the reunion. Why not

ALUMNI FINE ARTS AWARDS

Recipients of the 1982 Alumni Society awards for achievement in the Fine Arts were awarded to: David Crank, Richmond; Lee Yoritomo, Reston; Marsha Vayoda, Charlottesville; Heather Quinn, Vienna and Valerie Williams, Decatur, Ga. All of the award winners are seniors. Vayoda and Williams are previous winners, Williams for all three years of the award.

LITERARY PRIZES GIVEN

Literary prizes sponsored by the Society of the Alumni were awarded in May to Cheryl Friedman (left) and to George Jack '84 and Mary Grace Nuchols '82 (right). Jack won the Howard Scammon Prize for outstanding literary achievement in drama; Nuchols '82 received the Glenwood Clarke Fiction Prize, and Friedman won the Gorontey Owen Prize for literary achievement in poetry. Nuchols and Friedman shared the Tiberius Gracchus Jones Prize for the best overall writing regardless of type.

follow her example? Flora Willcox Berkley and I are going to contact our sorority sister classmates. I'm going to start a round-robin letter. How about you doing this? Or contact your fraternity brothers, athletic team friends, club friends, honorary club friends, band or choir group, or drama group? If you want to have a good time at the weekend of our 50th Reunion, ask them to join you, too, and let's hope that we will recognize each other!

Sumner Horton Waters, of New York City, is still working as senior vice president of his firm. Try to take time off next May for our reunion, Sumner.

Do you know if Corrine Mosley is the Mrs. Skinner of the Mayflower Apartments of Virginia Beach?

Since publishing names of some unlocated class members in the April issue, we have received current addresses and obtained information on 19. The list of unlocated now numbers 192, down from 211 stated in the April class notes (in fact from 242 when we started our search a year ago). Help us to find the following whose last known locations are given.

In Virginia are listed: Clarence Bishop (Lovettsville), Elizabeth A. Buell (Herndon), George O. Emerson, Jr. (Danville), Jack T. Gale (Richmond), Henry P. Kyle (Galax), James F. Martinez (Norfolk), William O. Robertson (Blackstone), Percy L. Roby (Staunton), H. Emory Thompson (Soles), Harold L. Walker (Arlington), William L. Walker (Burkeville), Ethlyn A. West (Newport News) and Hugh M. Williams (Suffolk).

With residence last known in Washington, D.C. are George M. Cooke, Ernestine Groves O'Kane and Margaret Helen Miller, and in Baltimore, MD Margaret Louise King and David Victor Lebow. Addresses are given last in Pennsylvania for Katherine Andrews (Philadelphia), Dorris Beale Feaster (Churchville) and Olive Mildred Long (Williamsport), and in New Jersey for George E. Marshall (East Orange) and Elizabeth Nostrand (Montclair). The unlocated in New York are: Charles Bass (Buffalo), Antonio DiSanto (Long Island), Rose Pulvino Fox and Sam Horowitz (Brooklyn), Dorothy Mann (New York), John Panebianco (Elmhurst), Doris Louise Schneider (Glen Dale), Irvin I. Techler (Auburn) and Margaret Ann Willetts (Gloversville).

With locations last listed in New England are: John P. Marks (Norwich) and Myer Stone (Hartford) in Connecticut; Mary Winston (Middletown, RI); and Daniel E. Jacobson, Harold B. Poster and David H. Warsowe (Roxbury), Morgan R. O'Neill (Brookline), John B. Perry and Theodore E. Sieminsky (New Bedford), George N. Proctor (Beverly) and Bernard A. Zarkin (Dorchester), all in Massachusetts.

Other are: Josephine C. Ross (Wilmington, NC), Mabel Virginia Hovey (Spartanburg, SC), Mildred Nichols Wing (Cleveland, OH), Lester D. Satchell (Beverly Hills) and Virginia Waite Hill (Encinitas) in California, Inslee B. Green, Jr. (Yakima, WA) and Lydia Solotareff Baudin (Herblay, France).

This is the last newsletter until fall. Homecoming this year is November 5th and 6th. Better put it on your calendar now. Will I see you there?

Have a happy, healthy, carefree summer, all of you!

If you have access to a March issue of the Commonwealth Magazine you will find an article about Perry Ellis, a Portsmouth, Va.,

William and Mary graduate of 1961. Perry Ellis has risen through business ranks to be proclaimed among the top designers. What do you think he would have found for the rising sophomores of 1932 to have worn? An item from The Pacific Daily newspaper (1932) listed today's women as wearing silk stockings, short skirts, an ounce of lingerie, had bobbed their hair, smoked, painted their faces, drive cars and go in for politics. Men of 1932 wear no hats, shave their whiskers, stay up till all hours and expect to be able to get to classes.

Gregory Lagakos was honored recently at a special naturalization ceremony sponsored by his church. There was a reception at the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies, where an exhibit on the Judge's family and ethnic background was featured. Gregory never seems to tire of his vocation and avocations.

Dorothy Prince Oldfield and "Barney" escaped the cold New Jersey weather by going to Florida.

"Bill Etheridge Cooke is living in Pungoteague, Virginia, with her husband and son. The sad part of her note was that her roommate in Barrett Hall, Hannah Rawls, died about ten years ago.

Virginia Mister Walker was not able to meet with the reunion group in February, but sent a nice note. I remember Virginia signing the "M" in her name as III, like the blocks at Stonehenge. How dull I felt with no name that could be signed so uniquely.

Betty Johnson Mathers is now living in Richmond.

Eleanor Hooker Boisseau told me of the Richmond Chi Omega's entertaining at the Hyatt House for Arabella Hubbard who had stopped by after visiting Ann Shade in Gloucester. Those attending besides Eleanor and Arabella were: Yevie Winslow Bryant, Dora Terrell Williams, Betty Johnson Mathers, and Jane Dumont Sands.

Chester Starkey and Ed Boisseau were honored at the April meeting of the University of Richmond S.A.E. fraternity, the occasion being Chef's and Ed's 50th year as S.A.E.'s, having been pledged April 25, 1932 at the College of William and Mary. The Virginia Kappa Chapter awarded them framed plaques.

The Society of the Alumni is trying to have corrected in the media the use of the name given by the Royal Charter to our alma mater. When writing to the College use The College of William and Mary in Virginia. Remember the college is old, respected and has a long list of firsts in colleges.

Evangeline R. Klug has retired as chemistry teacher and head of the science department which she opened in the new Mahwah High School in New Jersey twenty-three years ago. The students at their prom honored Evangeline as "Honorary Queen for the Prom" for her forty-five years of teaching. Wouldn't Dr. Guy be very proud of his student? Evangeline isn't giving up, but choosing an avocation with the Ambulance Corps.

Addison Roberts of Philadelphia was reappointed to a second term on the College Board of Visitors. Addison is head of an insurance consulting firm and a trustee of Temple University.

Anne Nenzel Lambert sent a list of some of the Williamsburg area girls in our class who were roommates. Juliet Craxton Clothier and Marguerite Stribling Vermillion roomed together all four years. One year Sue Stickle Beagler suited with them. Peg Hildebrandt MacDonald and Eleanor Lanyon Gill '37, were roommates. Mary Whitley Peters and Dorothy Beck, Anne Lambert and Jane Dumont Sands were roommates for their freshman year.

Ethel Lee Cross Blanton and Libby Ware Dillard suited with Bobbie Saunders Nott. Libby and Bobbie transferred to Farmville State Teachers College for their junior year.

Doesn't a list of roommates take you back to our years at college?

Pat Powell Myers and Bernice Burton Boorman; Barbara Acker Duffy with Ruth Ahlfeldt McNamara; Ruth Weeks Harvey and Pauline Blanton Baskerville.

Who were your roomies? Pauline Stanley Ogden, Elsie Barnes Hardy, Fran Anderson Endicott, Dorothy Mathews, and many other friends who bring dear memories of pleasant days as freshmen in Barrett Hall. Would you send me your roommate?

Guess you boys had roommates. . . how about remembering those days?

In planning a reunion nostalgia must not take over completely, for sadness enters in with lists of classmates that have lost contact with the College. Many of you will receive unexpected notes from me asking you to try to locate these friends in your locality. Your help will be appreciated so that everyone in our class (the largest [remember] to enter the College of William and Mary in Virginia), will be aware of the reunion plans in 1985.

These classmates seem to have pursued careers in the services. Ask around and help us check on them. Nannie Wheeler, Kathleen Cowden Gill, Gabriel DeSamper, Hermine Du Couedic, Samuel Griffin, Mildred Kaeper, Helen Marston Browning, Harry Stark and Robert Von Volkenburgh, Jr.

Have a nice summer, but think 50th Reunion!

News is still coming slowly from our class. There are almost 250 of us, "living, located" alumni, according to the Alumni Office records. Won't you stop now, as soon as you have finished reading this column, and write to Connie Land Hardenbergh, giving your classmates news of where and how you are??! We have only two more times before Homecoming and our 45th reunion to give you news of the Class of '37.

Martha Schifferli writes from San Francisco that she "finally retired" in January 1981. She enjoyed a four-month tour of the United States and Canada by car last year and is now back home "doing all the things I never had time to do before."

W. Aubrey Skillman is also recently retired. He served as Commissioner of the Revenue for the City of Williamsburg for twenty-two years. He is a member of our class fortunate enough to have stayed in Williamsburg for life.

Jane (Miller) Elia has written again (Many thanks) from her home in Middletown, New York. She is still enjoying visiting her children and grandchildren in Phoenix, Arizona and Largo, Florida.

Lucille (Palmer) Sugg lives at Fort Walton Beach, Florida. She has been a widow for four years; she keeps busy with house, garden, bridge and staying well.

John Gibbons Wall retired from his practice in Charlottesville on January 1, 1982. He lives in Charlottesville [204 Georgetown Road, Charlottesville, Va. 22901.]

Connie (Land) Hardenbergh's husband, Col. Hall Hardenbergh, and Marion (Rose)

Abbitt's husband, Andy - William and Mary '35 - were at Wakefield with the Savedges in April for the Ruritan Shad Planking, an annual "pilgrimage" they make with their sons to this event.

Because of illness in Connie's family, she has a substitute writer for the Class column this time, Fay (Bryant) Savedge. I hope that everybody will respond to our plea for news from you without fail and without delay. It is discouraging to try to get news for you when letters (or telephone calls) don't come from you.

Somewhere something wonderful happened and mail from classmates arrived in time for a letter which usually has very little, if anything, to say at this time of year - so, thanks be and let's keep the news coming.

Dick Crane is crazy about retirement - small wonder! He's playing tennis, skiing, doing long distance swimming, serving as President of a tenants association "fighting" the scourge of today's urban society - condominium conversion (atta boy, Dick) and is involved in serious adult education as a member of the Board of Directors of one of the country's oldest centers, The Joseph Daroff Campus of Senior Adult Studies. He and Adele still have hopes of travelling "after things settle down." At any rate, Dick is taking weekly classes in French conversation to be prepared. He and Adele plan to return for Homecoming this year - guess who will be in the alumni jog - you will represent us, won't you, Dick?

Betsy Richardson Popof writes that they are still enjoying Prescott, Arizona, one of ten delightful hide-a-ways in the U.S. according to Newsweek. They had a wonderful Smithsonian tour of China in May, well led by Craig Canning of the College's Oriental Studies Department.

At a special program on June 25, 1981, Neoma Bunting Epstein was honored for her "almost twenty years of service directly or indirectly related to community school boards in New York City." The tribute said that "Neoma Epstein is regarded not only as a person with intimate knowledge of the operating procedures of community boards but also as the individual who has steadfastly encouraged school boards to focus their energies on children." Space does not permit listing of the kudos given Neoma that evening at Terrace-On-The-Park in Flushing, but we cannot delete mention made of her role as wife, mother of three, dedication to her church and active participation in the Bronx and Greater New York Councils of the Boy Scouts of America. We're proud of you, Neoma. Congratulations from your classmates.

That letter which Lucille Haynes Wagner supposedly sent last year (in an empty envelope) finally arrived, this time around dated March 20. Anyway, it's a newsy piece, full of travels and family update. She and Tony had a wonderful trip to Hawaii last year and most recently embarked on their annual "pilgrimage" to the Carolinas and the Georgia Isles to visit friends and family and spend some "do nothing" days. Tony retired early this year and is happily pursuing his hobbies in woodworking and stained glass. They're about to celebrate their fortieth wedding anniversary - best wishes, you two. The Wagners' five sons and families are everywhere - Cape Fear, Hinsdale, DeKalb and Northern Wisconsin. Summers, the family gets together at Tony and Lucille's cottage in Northern Wisconsin. Lucille still teaches music part time, does publicity work and is a volunteer at the church and hospital. Both the Wagners read a lot, bicycle and swim. They'll be back for Homecoming if the time doesn't conflict with a projected trip to Europe. They are busy and obviously enjoying all their activities. Thanks for writing, Lucille.

ALUMNUS SPEAKS AT BOSTON EXHIBITION

Richard C. Nylander '66, Acton, Mass., is among the scholars involved in activities surrounding the major exhibition, New England Begins: The Seventeenth Century, at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Curator of Collections at the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA) in Boston, Nylander was one of five SPNEA preservation experts who spoke at the Museum in a program entitled "Preserving Your Old House," a four-part lecture series starting on May 13. His lecture focused on interior treatments used in historic houses.

Alma Van Blarcom Walker and Lorimer became happy grandparents when Benjamin Lipson Walker arrived March 2nd in Bloomington, Indiana. The Walkers also have two step-grandsons in Minneapolis. Their other children are located in Houston, Texas, and Columbia, Maryland. As usual, they'll be back for Homecoming, especially now that Lorimer is retired after forty-three years of teaching in Virginia, Maine, and, recently, Valhalla, New York.

Don Stetson, who never misses a Homecoming, talked about the November event in his newsletter which is a collection of Don's thoughts and views on ever so many subjects. Oft he waxes poetic as, for example, when he wrote about the Sunset Ceremony or Homecoming. "The chapel bell tolls as names are read off of alumni who have passed since the preceding autumn. In the dusk a chill wind whirled falling leaves down on the scarlet tunics of the honor guard, and the cries of young girls at field hockey nearby came as a strangely fitting obligato to the sounding of taps. Rosa's (Rosa Evans Stetson) restored Kappa Delta house was warmly reoccupied. College women used to be such mature people, one is more perplexed each year at what little bitty kids they're letting in now." Don goes on saying that "perception of time works in odd ways." Truth is, we're getting older and all those students look so much younger.

I am saddened to report that the name of Pearl Bruegger Reid will be among those for whom the chapel bell tolls at the 1982 Sunset Ceremony. Alice Laubach Uhl, '41, wrote me about Pearl's death in late January, a great loss to all of us. Pearly Belle wrote me her usual cheery Christmas note which I reported in a recent issue of the Gazette. On behalf of our class, I extend deepest sympathy to Joe Reid and his family.

If all goes as planned, I'll be meeting with that fun "loving" committee of ours when I head south for a business trip the end of April. You'll be hearing from them in the near future - so start making plans now for our 43rd class reunion, another glorious one. Have a good summer - how about sending me a picture post card from your vacation spot.

Greetings from the Gentle City. I am always overwhelmed with the natural beauty of our lovely town. Each of us should find four weekends a year-one in each season-to restore our souls and our energies by a stroll across campus. Y'all come!

Louise Seymore has retired to a beautiful home in Chapel Hill. She was with the U.S. Government for 37 1/2 years, spending most of that time working at the VA hospital in Durham. She received her graduate degree in Social Work from Columbia University in New York. Happy retirement, Louise.

Glenn Knox was honored recently by being named to the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame. Congratulations. He is an automobile dealer executive in Richmond.

Have a happy summer.

Nancy Hochstrasser Lichliter writes that she is the librarian at the Middle School in Stephens City, Va. Her husband Vernon has an office supply business and they have two grandchildren, Daniel Lichliter, 2 years, in Winchester, Va., and Joshua Buck, 6 1/2 years, in Georgia.

Abner V. Pratt, 2nd, says he continues to be active in the federal personnel field by taking short term jobs with the Navy in Boston. He is chairman of the Public Library trustees in Eastham, Mass., where he and his wife have their retirement home. He says, "Life is such that I wonder I ever had time to work!"

Mary Simon Blevins writes that she has taken early retirement from teaching in West Virginia and built a home on Claytor Lake which she is busy landscaping, canning and freezing fruits and vegetables from her garden and orchard. Her mother passed away last July after having a stroke. She invites her classmates to come by.

Alf Mapp, Jr., writes from Portsmouth, Va., that he was made Cultural Laureate of Virginia on October 1 at ceremonies in the State Capitol presided over by the Speaker of the House. A silver medal was presented by former Governor Mills Godwin at a banquet addressed by U.S. Senators Harry F. Byrd, Jr., and John Warner. His category was "distinguished performance in more than one discipline and for writing and historical scholarship." Honored as cultural laureate at the same time were U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell for statesmanship; Roger Mudd, NBC anchorman, for communications; and Dumas Malone, for biography. Alf's latest book publication was in October. He is co-author of Chesapeake Bay in the American Revolution. Our most sincere congratulations, Alf, for being an outstanding Virginian! . . . and I happen to know he is an excellent speaker on history.

A nice note from Lelia Ann Avery Merri-field saying she is still teaching and that Bob has retired from NASA and is teaching history and government at San Jacinto College South Campus. He is head of the Social Science Department. Their daughter has just presented them with a third granddaughter. She writes that she had a nice visit with Willie Anne Boschen Wright here in Richmond in June and says we should all be proud of Willie Anne because she is an outstanding Virginia artist and indeed she is!

I finally got Willie Anne on the phone and she tells me the Witkin Gallery, 57th and Madison Avenues, in New York City, handles her photographs and she has been invited to exhibit at their 13th Anniversary show beginning April 29th called Visions of Reality, Contemporary Color Photography. This winter she will be the curator for the Institute of Contemporary Art at the Virginia Museum for a National Invitational show of eleven photographers titled Pinhole Photography. Speaking of talents!

She and I both ran into Lois Spratley Donald '44, who now lives in Richmond.

Audrey Hudgins Thompson had a wonderful visit with Shiela Stewart Ehrlich at her beautiful home on San Francisco Bay. Audrey said it was a thrill to sit and hear the sea lions and otters at night.

Jeanne Schoenewolf Preston and Page spent a night with the Thompsons in Florida in March.

Betty Aurell Schutz is a portrait painter in Gloucester, Va., and I hope to get in touch with her before the next issue to get some details. More talent for the class of '45!

It is with sadness that I write of the recent death of Bill Anderson at Virginia Beach. I understand Bill had suffered from heart trouble for some time. We send to his wife and also our classmate, Jane Welton, our love and very deepest sympathy.

I am not sure that I wrote we had heard from Sunny Murray Connor that she and her husband Bob were in Biddeford, Maine, on November 15th for the ordination of their son Kenneth as a minister in the United Church of Christ.

As I write this at the end of April I wish each of you could see Virginia in all of its spring glory! After a long cold, icy winter, the magnificent colors of the azaleas and dogwoods seem almost unbelievable and breathtaking. I often wonder why reunions aren't held at this time of year.

Gretchen Erb Bradley is now working for the Child Protective Services of the city of Richmond. Elizabeth Hayes Pratt is working as a professional artist in the Boston area and is represented in several eastern Massachusetts galleries. A one-man show of her work is scheduled to take place at Stonehill College, Easton, Mass.

Jim Putman is supervisor of transportation claims at Abbott Laboratories. In his capacity as second vice president of the Shippers National Freight Claim Council, he has conducted transportation seminars in Chicago and Minneapolis this year. Since retirement from her position as a high school librarian in 1973, Virginia Ruff has been busy traveling to Europe, Hawaii and distant parts of the United States. She returns to Williamsburg whenever possible and has found no time in which to be bored.

Earl Alluisi, whose regular position is University Professor of Psychology at Old Dominion University, is completing a 3 1/2 year assignment as chief scientist at the Air Force Human Resources Laboratory, Brooks Air Force Base, Texas, under Title IV of the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970.

SEARCH INITIATED FOR BUSINESS SCHOOL DEAN

The College of William and Mary is seeking resumes and nominations for the position of Dean of the School of Business Administration. Candidates should have significant administrative experience, a commitment to excellence in teaching and research, the ability to work well, both with the faculty and business leaders, and the personal qualities necessary for the leadership of a vigorous school. An earned doctorate and substantial academic experience or associations are preferred. Deadline for applying is Sept. 1. Applications or nominations should be sent to Dr. James R. Haltiner, chairman of the Search Committee, School of Business Administration, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. 23185. Charles L. Quittmeyer '40 will retire as Dean on July 1, 1983. The College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Ross Rich Saturday at the President's House Breakfast, but for little more than hellos and meeting her son John who had accompanied her from Ruxton, Md. Martha Wood Kongshaug and Olaf who were attending Martha's first reunion are due to spend Memorial Weekend with us, and I hope to get more news about Sallie then, as well as Martha's update. Saw Hugh deSamper finishing the alumni running event-he looked the same as he did in '51! Before the parade, chatted with Tommy Brummer and also with J. P. Morgan, who's teaching economics and finance at University of North Carolina and living in Wrightsville Beach, N.C. We also had a chance to talk with Fred Kraus, who's a pathologist in St. Louis, and to have a long, latents session with Anne Reese Carson, who's got to be the most enthusiastic school teacher I've ever met. Come to think of it, no one looked thirty years older!

Those of you who knew that Sarah Enos Brown and Jim were unable to attend because of son Mark's terrible accident the week prior to Homecoming will want to know that Mark is now in a nursing home for intermediate care and physical therapy, having reached a plateau in his rehab program. The injuries he sustained, as I understand it, were similar to those of Press Secretary Jim Brady. Sarah's latest message concludes, "He has his depressed times, but on the whole his spirits have been remarkably good and we remain optimistic." The Browns' address is 1506 Basswood Court, Jeffersonville, IN., 47130.

As sad as it is to write, I feel I should include that just the week after Homecoming, Betty Cox Scott and John's youngest daughter, Mary Dean, a senior at the University of Virginia, was killed in an automobile crash near their home in Charlottesville. These double tragedies of two former roommates have affected all of us who know and love the families involved. I hope my future letters will never again have such dreadful news to report.

Jim Baker and Elaine '49 were mentioned in the last issue under Elaine's class news, but we deserve to know, too, that they've started another two-year assignment at the American Embassy in Tunis, Tunisia, after a summer leave in the States visiting son James, Jr., in Seattle and driving cross-country to see son Glenn, a recent Brown University graduate, in Virginia. They would like to hear from former classmates and promise to answer all letters. Their address: James W. Baker, Tunis (RPC), Dept. of State, Washington, D.C., 20520. Consider this my letter, Jim, and write us more about your life in Africa, please.

Rolfe Kennard, II, who's just recently moved to Gaithersburg, Md., and is president of his own company, Animated Playhouses Corporation, shares plans to open a national restaurant and entertainment chain with us. The first was to have opened in February in the D.C. area. Would love to hear more about this in the future, Rolfe.

Ann Lewis Burrows is in her eighth year as executive director of the Mary Ball Washington Museum and Library at Lancaster Court House on the Northern Neck of Virginia, where she lives. She adds that the area abounds in fellow alumni.

Music-choral and church-are keeping Ralph E. Hart of Portsmouth on his toes in retirement which he is enjoying, and this fall he'll be taking a course in church music at Frederick College.

Virginia Gallaher Sharp lives in Rockford, Ill., with surgeon husband Ed and an emptying nest. DAVID HEENAN '61 JOINS THEO DAVIES

Dr. David A. Heenan '61 has resigned as vice president for academic affairs at the University of Hawaii to become president of Theo H. Davies and Co. Ltd, whose parent company, Jardine, Matheson and Co., is based in Hong Kong. Heenan, who is recognized as an expert in international business with a background and on-going interest in business in the Pacific-Asia region, had been vice president at Hawaii for the past year. Previously, he was associated with Hawaii's College of Business Administration.

GREG MILLER RECIPIENT OF ED DRUKER AWARD

Greg Miller, a sophomore and William and Mary's number one tennis player, has been selected this year's recipient of the annual Ed Druker Award, a watch presented to the team's MVP. Druker, a member of the class of 1947 and resident of Indianapolis, initiated the award five years ago to recognize outstanding tennis achievement by a William and Mary player. Miller registered a 15-7 season including a 9-1 slate in the state.

GEORGIA HONORS 1950 ALUMNUS

Dr. William J. Payne, professor of microbiology and dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Georgia, has been named the Alumni Foundation Distinguished Professor of Microbiology at Georgia. The honor is awarded in recognition of outstanding professorial achievements and exceptional contributions to the university. A member of the Georgia faculty since 1955, Dr. Payne is author of a 1981 book, Denitrification, considered the first comprehensive review and critique concerning the microbiology, physiology, biochemistry, genetics, ecology, and applied aspects of denitrification.

up with functions for organizations she works with—a children's home and her church. She also is a dedicated worker for the Young Life movement, and chairs the local board of directors this year.

Some brief notes from Christmas '81 messages: Carol and Roy Lorenz, back on the West Coast in Carmel Valley, Calif., are anticipating an August wedding for daughter Debbie.

Mary Earhart Jenkins, Flemington, N.J., earned a MLS degree in May, 1981, and has opted for parttime work for the present, as she and Bob still have daughter Linda at home. Joan Meadors Hawkins, from North Olmstead, Ohio, wrote that daughter Jane lives nearby, and that son John is in his third year of medical school. Joan Padden Hickman, Norfolk, visits daughter Connie in Houston as often as possible—no doubt the two grandchildren there strengthen the attraction. Joan's son David is in apprenticeship to be a pilot (seagoing variety) and daughter Carol is in college.

Annapolis, Md., is home for Betty Mitchell who is with the personnel department of the Annapolis school system. Betty has traveled extensively since graduation on her extended summer vacations.

From Peggy Wayne and Arnie McReynolds a newsy note from Vero Beach Fla., where Arnie is an elementary school principal, and Peggy does independent adoption and custody studies for the courts in four counties, as well as teaches two college courses: English at the local prison, and western civilization ("Would that I would emulate Dr. Fowler") at a junior college. In her spare (?) time she does volunteer work for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation. Sons Herbie and Tony are, respectively, a doctor at White River Apache Reservation in Arizona, and director of the data bank for the State of Vermont.

I feel truly fortunate to have kept in touch with so many of you, and I hope the scope will widen as more of you write, so that I can share with all our classmates what your lives are about as we enter our thirty-first year away from alma mater's bosom. I am looking forward to being the means for keeping us in touch with one another. If any of you will be visiting Cape Cod this summer, Eastham is the town where the National Seashore Park begins, and we're in the book, so give us a call. . .

April, come she will, and with it came a wonderful surprise birthday party which Jim Todhunter threw for his wife Allison, '56. Jim's days at the King's Arms served him well, as he planned and presented this beautiful party virtually singlehandedly, for a very happy crowd of celebrants. Surprise guest of honor was Julie Bleick Moat, '56, who flew in from Philadelphia for the occasion. Julie's arrival coincided happily with the reappearance of the sun which disappeared last October, giving way to the 56 inches of rain which fell in Orinda. Sunny days and warm weather allowed Julie, Allison and me to have the happiest of reunions, touring or sunbathing by Allison's pool, prolonging the birthday joy for the nine days of Julie's visit. Julie has received an M.A. from Temple, and is teaching adults with reading disabilities. Her daughter Leslie, a graduate of Hampshire College in Massachusetts, is living at home and working in Philadelphia; son Andy has just been accepted at Brown; and Jill, her youngest, is an 8th grader.

Mary Alice Woods Davis writes that she is still very much a homemaker. Her oldest daughter graduated from Emory last June and is back home working at Radford University. Daughter Julie is completing her work at Temple, qualifying to be a federal court reporter. Mary Alice's three sons are in high school, playing football, basketball and golf. She volunteers at Radford Community Hospital as a hostess during surgery, and teaches all employees on empathy and attitudes.

Two people fortunately blessed with "island fever" are Gail Bowen Jordan, '57, and Mike. After 15 years of living in Honolulu, Mike and Gail decided to relocate to beautiful Coronado, CA, an island across the bay from San Diego, a year and one half ago. Mike is with the San Diego office of Merrill Lynch as an Account Executive, and Gail is with a Coronado based real estate office, continuing with the business she was in in Hawaii for 11 years. Their son Steve, a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, is a Lt. (j.g.) in the Navy who recently earned his aviator's wings, and is about to be transferred to Jacksonville, Fla. Their daughter Eileen is living with her husband and two year old son at Camp Pendleton. Matthew, their youngest, is completing his junior year at Purdue. The Jordans continue to make the most of the beautiful climates in which they have lived in that they are avid tennis players, and long distance runners. Five years ago they trained with the Honolulu Marathon Clinic, running marathons in 1978 and 1979, but have now settled into a more comfortable pace of one or two half-marathons per year. Now that they are 3,000 miles closer to William and Mary, Gail and Mike hope to make Homecoming in the not-too-distant future.

In an earlier letter, Fred La Croix also made note of the fact that he has been a dedicated marathoner, who like the Jordans, has settled into a more relaxed pace, enabling him to converse with his fellow runners as they press on to the goal.

A welcome letter from Alan Canfield brought us up to date on what the Canfields have been doing since we last saw them at a Raiders-Chargers game in the '60s. In 1973, Alan left Guardian Life, where he had been for sixteen years, to join Standard Insurance Company, moving to the Portland, Oregon area. Alan and his wife Jeanne enjoy the bucolic life, living on five acres they call "Alderbrook Farm," raising sheep, goats, bees, rabbits and various and sundry animals which wander in, and find the combination of relaxation and hard work they do around the farm very satisfying. Their son Doug, 22, is a professional fly tier, and was married last June. C. J., their 18 year old daughter, works at Standard, and goes to college in the evening. As Alan mentioned nothing about the erratic behavior of Mt. St. Helens or the invasion of the Rajaneesh, I presume he and Jeanne are enjoying a haven of tranquility on Alderbrook Farm.

A note from the Alumni Office informs that Alex Harper, formerly Vice President, Sales, for the Santa Monica branch of Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes, Inc., brokerage firm, is now with E. F. Hutton in their Santa Monica office.

Warm praise has been given Martha Wren Briggs who has been Art Librarian for the School of the Arts at the C. W. Post Center of Long Island University since 1965. In that capacity, Martha oversees the cataloging, distribution, and maintenance of some 43,000 slides per year which are used by the school's six art history professors in their lectures and seminars. In the University Bulletin Dean Julian Mates is quoted as saying: "She is superb. Not only does she keep one of the largest art history libraries on Long Island, she takes tremendous pride in all of the art department's activities, and assists other professors in the Long Island area." Martha, a long time resident of Port Washington, is, in addition, a published author, respected cook, and a nature lover.

Every decade or so our paths cross with Bob Elzey, Charlie's college roommate, who never looks a day older than his photograph in the William and Mary Indians Football Program, and a welcome letter arrived from him recently. Bob, a Lieutenant Commander, is retired from his career as a naval pilot, of which he enjoyed every minute. Following retirement, he had a business for a time in his home town of Salisbury, MD, and enjoyed it, but subsequently moved to Pensacola, Fla., where he is once again involved in his first love, flying, teaching it as a civilian, and thoroughly enjoying his job and his life. Bob has loved everything he has done, and if he had it to do over again, wouldn't change a thing! On that upbeat note, with many thanks for the warm letters and interesting news, I wish you all the most beautiful of summers.

John Harvey says he is sure it is a mistake that his class's twenty-fifth reunion is coming up this fall. No, John, tis true! John is currently Assistant Athletic Director at Grinnell College and is teaching interdisciplinary courses including the works of Thomas Hardy and the French Impressionists. He was recently elected to the Editorial Board of the National Association of College Basketball Coaches. John, we look forward to seeing you when the reunion does indeed take place in the fall.

From Malcolm Anderson comes news that he, his wife Beverly, and three children live in Lompoc, California, where Mal is the Regional Director for Santa Barbara County Mental Health Services in the North County.

We received a beautiful Christmas card from Jan Charbonnet Crocker with a picture of the whole family on skis. She says husband Ed is looking forward to spring when their four girls start to graduate from college. Three of them will graduate in 1982! Their degrees will be in Architecture and Interior Design, Business, and Special Education. I think the Crockers have covered it all. Jan also says they saw Liz Shell Allen on a trip to the Rose Bowl and have seen Ann Baird Millard several times as she and her family live near Denison where the Crocker's youngest daughter is a student.

Ann Wilson continues to teach Art in Mt. Laurel, New Jersey, and also does oil painting. Daughter Michelle (Wood), a student at William and Mary, is studying in Montpellier, France, this year.

Dr. Vincent T. DeVita, Jr. will be among those receiving honorary degrees from the College in May. A pioneer in the development of chemotherapy as a treatment for cancer, he has been with the National Cancer Institute since 1966. Congratulations on your outstanding contributions in the medical field, Vince.

The Fitzgerald family continues to enjoy being close to the College and looks forward to being even closer as daughter Lynn enrolls this fall. She requested that we take her college "shopping" -- which we did -- only to have her suddenly see the light and say that she had always known she wanted to go to William and Mary!

Several classmates have sent news this month.

Nancy Espey Bedford is currently a second year student at Woodrow Wilson College of Law in Atlanta, GA, and is thoroughly enjoying being a student again. Her husband Charlie is with the College Board in the Southern Regional Office.

Elizabeth Massey Pendleton writes from Wytheville, VA, that she and her husband and three children would welcome any classmates to drop by on their way to the World's Fair!

By the time you read this, Judy High Boyer, husband Fred and three children should be somewhere in the U.S. after three years in the Philippines.

Patricia Singleton Parker and family are new residents of Knoxville, Tenn. Her husband Joe is Associate Dean, College of Medicine and Professor of Pathology at the University of Tennessee, Center for Health Sciences. They have two children, John, 14, and Nancy, 9.

Another home open to William and Mary guests is that of Vida Kenk in Saratoga, CA. She is teaching Biology at San Jose State University and her husband, William Minkel, teaches Biology at the University of Santa Clara. They have two children, Lauren, 6 months, and Christopher 4.

Jerry File is a Senior Vice President in the Washington D.C. office of Winthrop Financial Co., Inc. He has been assisting Frank Silcox, '62 in arranging financing for Frank's printing company based in Denver, CO.

A note from Sue Hadden Skelsky in Pottersville, N.J. tells us that she is teaching and counseling at Purnell School. She has two daughters, Anne and Karen.

I wish all of you could have read the fine article on Perry Ellis in the April issue of "Commonwealth Magazine. It was a most interesting account of his life and successful career. We continue to follow, with interest, the successes of Seventh Avenue's hottest designer.

Joe and I enjoyed seeing Bill Clayton in March while he was engaged in a training program at Bethesda Naval Hospital. It was fun to personally catch up on all his latest adventures as reported in my last article.

Please keep the letters coming. I need you to make this article a success!!!

Jane Noland Matthis received a Specialist in Education degree from Georgia State University in 1980. She is employed as an Associate School Psychologist for the Henry County Schools in McDonough, Georgia. Jane, her husband Rick, and their two daughters, Charlotte (age 10), and Ginger (age 7), live in Conyers, Georgia.

Blanche E. McKenney was able to tour Ireland last summer. Dabney Delaney Leonard and her family have returned to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where they were stationed six years ago. Dabney is busy teaching aerobic dancing four days a week; volunteer work with the Girl Scouts takes additional time as does teaching computer programming to the students at her two children's elementary school.

Sam Martin is now serving in the Pentagon on the staff of the Secretary of the Air Force; Sam has a public affairs position. He is living in Fairfax and finds time to sail all over Virginia waters. Congratulations are in order as Sam was recently selected for promotion to lieutenant colonel.

Virginia Spain is working in Wilmington, Delaware, for the duPont Company as a financial analyst. She came south for a vacation in Hilton Head, S.C., enjoying cycling, tennis and the beach. Margorie Stark Robert-Guroff has a PhD in biochemistry. An article in the Daily Press reported the following: "Dr. Marjorie Robert-Guroff and associates reported they found disease fighting proteins formed in response to the virus in the blood of six of seven Japanese patients with T-cell leukemia." The article was discussing research which indicates that a virus has a role in causing a type of adult leukemia that is very rare in the United States but more common in Japan.

Dave Lutz and his wife have three sons, ages 11, 10, and 5. Dave is president of the Kokomo YMCA, past president of the Rotary Club, coach of various little league teams, and vice-president of Syndicate Sales, Inc.

Clyde Culp and Mary Ellen Coleman Culp, '66, live in Annapolis, MD., with their three children, Kelly, Suzanne, and Darby. Clyde operates a Wendy's hamburger franchise company. Mary Ellen devotes some of her spare time to the historic Annapolis organization.

Martha Bean is now teaching at California State University in Los Angeles.

Bonnie Cheshire Greenwalt sent me a copy of the Deltas yearly newsletter. Bonnie and Frank are the parents of a near two year old, Daniel Cheshire Greenwalt. Bonnie had to resign as Curator at the Reynolds Home-stead, but works with their traveling puppet show and various other volunteer activities. Jenne English Bedell works 2-3 days a week in her private practice as a clinical psychologist; she sees mostly teenagers. Jay and Glenda Hudgins Anthony have moved to Cleveland. Glenda is taking ballet, playing tennis, and working as a substitute teacher in the French department of local schools. They have two children, Justin (7) and Alexis (3). Barbara Riley Scott is also in Ohio. Barbara and Jim, their two children, Jim II (12) and Christy (10), live in Cincinnati. Barbara serves on the local school board advisory committee and is enrolled in an accounting course at the University of Cincinnati. Marty Boyd Gresham, in Dayton, Ohio, is in her second year of law school and Steve is with Bethlehem Steel. Melinda Duke Ball and Stuart live in Middletown, Ohio. Melinda tries to keep up with the activities of their two children, Stephen and Jenny, and does some substitute teaching.

Jean Freeman Reed is now involved in the busy world of private law practice; she joined the firm of Kenny, Nachwalter and Seymour in Coral Gables, Florida, nearly two years ago. The firm specializes in litigation relative to antitrust and securities cases. Spare time finds her boating and fishing with John or driving the children, Molly (11) and Mason (7), to soccer matches. Bonnie Edwards Gordon and Roger have moved both home and studio into two side by side homes in Stuart, Florida. Roger is a professional photographer and Bonnie does print retouching, dry mounting and framing, and handles the wedding orders and books. They have two children, Joshua (3) and Sarah (2). Ginny Blount Nagel lives in Boca Raton, Florida, although she spent six months of the past year teaching management courses for IBM at five locations around the country. Mary Lynn Sigmon works for the real estate developer who just completed the Levi Strauss headquarters in San Francisco; they are now working on another large residential-commercial complex in the area. Also in California, Barbara Wampler Melby, Tom, Elizabeth (8), Meg (11), and Kate (13) live in Los Altos. Tom works in the computer field and Barbara left the travel business to keep up with many family, church, and community activities.

Linda Combs McCall taught kindergarten in Louisville, KY., last year and is now working on a project involving infant stimulation. Her husband David is an engineer. Lavoile Robinson has a new job as chief of the acquisitions and cataloging branch of the library, Department of Defense, Ft. Meade, MD. Judy Pollard Harned, Dave, and their three daughters live in Richmond, VA., where Dave is Group Personnel Director with Reynolds Metals. Patsy Canady Buchanan and Donald live in Newport News, VA., which enables them to attend most of the William and Mary basketball games. Ann Meade Baskerville Simpson and Bob are very busy in Virginia Beach. Ann Meade is still selling real estate, and Bob is busy with politics, his own law firm, and several boards.

Kathie Wiese Astor forwarded a copy of the Kappa Kappa Gamma newsletter. Kathie and Bart live in Ben Lomond, California. Bart recently changed jobs and now, like Kathie, is a director of financial aid -- Bart at a local community college and Kathie at Cabrillo College. Kathie is also president of the California Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. In view of the present economic and political situation, the Astors will have a challenging year ahead. They visited Betty White Suchar and Victor in London last spring. Betty has kept in touch with College Board and Educational Testing Service staffers back in the States and works with several education related projects such as the International Schools Journal and the

Are you ready for Homecoming? We can hardly wait to see who will be there. Please be watching the mails this summer for letters from our class about our special Homecoming events.

I received a letter today from Cathleen Crofoot Murphy saying that she would be our class reporter for the next five years. Cathleen remarried last June 13. She, husband Tom, and two children Kelly and Hunter have moved to Ohio. Their new address is 8742 Holly Springs Trail, Chagrin Falls, Ohio 44022. The Murphys are awaiting the birth of a new little Murphy in late May.

Mary Lou Paulson Blessing has recently moved to the National Bureau of Standards as a computer scientist. Her husband, Gerry, M.S. '66, is working there as a physicist.

In June 1981 John Spellman was elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Pennsylvania Society of Dentistry for Children.

Palmer C. Sweet is a geologist with the Virginia Division of Mineral Resources in Charlottesville, VA. He is presently head of the Economic Geology Section. He is active in golf, track and field and does blood services work with the Red Cross.

Mary Ann Nuernberger Mason is working part time with a psychologist in a private counseling practice. She is also working as a social work consultant at a home nursing agency and at a hospital. Her husband Dick has recently begun working as an account executive with Merrill Lynch Investment firm. They have two boys, Andrew and Peter.

YOU'RE INVITED

Nov. 5-6

Ginny Dixon is now living in Rochester, MN, where she is working as Director of Special Education for I.S.D. 535.

Dale Skydane Napoli was named "Realtor of the Year" by the Prince William, Virginia, Board of Realtors for 1980.

Bill Hoffmann recently traveled to the Playboy Mansion in Los Angeles to receive the Hugh M. Hefner First Amendment Award in the category of print journalism for representing high school newspaper editors in a lawsuit enjoining the school board and principal from censoring the school newspaper.

Frances Zwenig is the Deputy Director for People for the American Way.

In addition to my teaching, I am now working on the final arrangements for The Virginia Ball for the American Cancer Society. This annual event is being held at The Barns of Wolftrap Foundation on May 22. While the Ball is small, seating 300 persons, we return approximately 75% -- more than $30,000.00--of our income directly back to the community for education, patient services, and research.

I have enjoyed writing our class news over the last fourteen years. Thanks for all your help and support. For Cathleen, please keep those cards and letters coming in. I'LL SEE YOU AT HOMECOMING!!!

If it had not been for those of you who contribute to the W&M Fund, and send some class news with your contribution, this column would be almost blank. Let's try for some silent ones to write me over the summer. My next deadline isn't until the end of August so there is plenty of time for each of you to drop me a line.

One person who did write was Linda Phillips Kaplan. Linda and Bob have a new baby, Michael Edward, born the first of April. They are in the midst of moving into a new home in Midlothian that they have been building this past year. Linda and Bob have a son who is 11 1/2 and a daughter who is 7 1/2. Jane Spence Catterton lives in Augusta, GA which isn't too far from me. Jane works part-time in the Pediatric Emergency room and spends the rest of the time as housewife/mother to two children, ages 2 and 6. Her husband is the Director of the Newborn Intensive Care unit at the Augusta hospital.

Ronnee Repka Taylor is a product manager in the household/grocery products division of Alberto-Culver Company in Chicago, IL. She reports that her current project is Baker's Joy, a baking spray that was recently introduced nationally. Ronnee's husband Jim ('60) was promoted last year to manager of corporate real estate for American Hospital Supply Corporation.

Southern California has been the home of Pat Zepul Lamb since 1974. Pat and Dave have two daughters. Before the second baby, Pat worked as a reading specialist/English teacher at Mission Viejo High School. Dave has his own real estate investment firm. Pat would love to hear from other W&M graduates who live in Southern California. . . are there any of you out there? Also on the California news front, I heard that Michael Moore of San Francisco was elected to the board of governors of the 5100-member California Trial Lawyers Association for 1982. Congratulations!

CRAIG WINDHAM '71 WINS RADIO AWARD

Craig Windham '71 of WASH-FM, a radio station in Washington, D.C., has won second place in category B, Radio, Top 50 markets, in the fifth annual Champion Media Awards for Economic Understanding sponsored by Champion International Corporation and administered by The Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth College. Windham, who is the reporter for the Class of 1971, and a colleague at WASH-FM, won the award for their program "Calling All Savers—Where Did Your Money Go." The award carried a $2,500 prize.

Philip Keator wrote that he is expanding his business, Keator Signs, Inc., and building a new shop in Oyster Point development in Newport News, VA. It is a regular W&M business with Michael Monahan as vice-president and Constance Keator ('78) as secretary-treasurer. Philip's wife, Margaret Whitley Keator ('68), was running for Newport News City Council in May as a Democrat. Certainly hope she won! David Daugherty, his wife Barbara and one year old daughter Alicia recently moved from Germantown, PA to Memphis, TN. Both David and Barbara are assistant professors in the Department of Psychiatry within the University of Tennessee College of Medicine.

The Winter 1982 issue of the W&M Historian mentions several people from our class. John Boswell is on the faculty at Yale University and the author of a 1980 winner of the American Book Award in History titled Christianity, Social Tolerance, and Homosexuality. William Lowe has become the head of the History Department at Mount St. Claire College in Cinton, Iowa. Michael Chesson, assistant professor of History at the University of Massachusetts--Boston, has published his first book, Richmond After the War, 1865-1890. Mike also has published an article in the Winter 1981 issue of Virginia Cavalcade.

Bob Todd has just been named manager, Human Resources Planning and Development at Philip Morris International. He and his wife Bobbie Henry Todd and their children are moving to New York from Richmond, VA where they have lived since graduation. Bob was previously administrator, organization planning and research for Philip Morris USA. Philip Morris International manufacturers and exports cigarettes around the world as well as managing Seven-Up's international operations.

Have heard of a few upcoming additions to the W&M family. Linda McIndoe Chenery and Nancy Verser Brumback are both expecting second children in August. And I am happy to report that Hal and I will be having #2 in late September.

The Alumni Office is looking for some lost members of our class. I'll list a few, and if you know a current address of them, please write me or the College so we can get back in touch. Some of the missing ones are: Bill Bonner, Bob Brown, Tom Cavanaugh, Laura Folland, Jan Dickinson Glass, Emma Fonda, Mark Decot, Joan Kirkley Stone, Jane Mastin, Jean Werner, Lisa Huffman Sullivan, Jane Morrisey Praft, Mark Winter, Tim Marvin (our illustrious president!), Laura Lof, George Latimer, Barbara Hunter Luctman, Rick Lawson, Barry Holliday, Steve Jaggard. . . and the list goes on. Please HELP, HELP find these people.

It won't be long before Jim Almand is setting his political sights on the Hill. Jim breezed into his third term in the Virginia House last fall. He got married during election week, too. Bill Matson was one of the ushers. Fran and Jim Robison say they would be happy to have you stretch out under one of their palm trees if you're ever in Honolulu. Jim is now Deputy Commander of the Army Communications Command Signal Battalion in Hawaii. Fran surfs with the three kids. Vincent Norako is a Marine Corps Major stationed at Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii. Career switch for Pat Graves: from the Railroad Retirement Board to real estate agent in southern Virginia for Lemon and Landon, Inc. Pat and Alice have a son and a daughter. Peter McLennan is a copy editor with the New York Times. He commutes from Greenwich, Connecticut, where wife Kathy is a librarian.

Linda Mimms Murray has come out on the short end of the game of teacher roulette played every year by Fairfax County. when the budget pinch comes, teachers with little seniority are laid off or "RIFF-ed" as we say here in the Nation's Capital (that's bureaucraticese for Reduction in Force). Linda got pink slips for three years, but she's now teaching Spanish at Jeb Stuart High School. "I travel 'economically' by taking student groups abroad. . . last year to Madrid and the Soviet Union." No pink slips for Winn Fields. He has just been given tenure and a promotion to Associate Professor of Economics at Miami University in Ohio. Wife Kathi is doing graduate work in mathematics at the University. Winn writes that Ronnie Johnson finished work on his Master of Divinity degree at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary last year and moved to Omaha, where he got married and is now teaching school. John Hempel is now Dr. John. He's now at the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm doing research on a N.I.H. fellowship and studying Swiss culture.

Bootie Kreulen Oswald and her husband built their own house in Fort Worth. He's a vascular surgeon. Where are they now? Greg Weigle, Chris Layne, Gaye Keller, Mike Stiebel, Todd Small, Richard Mohs, Bill Suber, Carol Ware Gates, Linda Wisler Wilson, and Sandra Wilson Hassenplug.

Your humble secretary has had a successful spring. In my first year as News Director at WASH-FM in Washington, we have won the Outstanding News Operation Award from both the Associated Press and United Press International in competition with other stations in the city. It's the first time a station has won both. And a series I did last fall on the impact of the All Savers certificate on the local housing market has won two regional awards for investigative work and a national Champion Media Award for Economic Understanding. Have a sunny summer, and take time out to write!

Eau Claire, Wi. 54701

Greetings. Well spring is paying its annual two week visit to West Central Wisconsin just in time for fishing season and beer parties at the local University. Since the Gazette had the guts to print my first effort as class reporter, I guess I will give it another go and chance the "Fates". At least they will not have to just print my address.

Darlene Lercher Smith is currently working as a school psychologist in Putnam County, Fla. Husband Jim is an archaeologist for the Historic St. Augustine Preservation Board. In their spare time they are restoring an old house in St. Augustine. Tom Dundon is a partner in the Nashville law firm of Neal and Harwell while wife Mary Catherine Meyer, '75 is a third year resident in pediatrics at Vanderbilt University Hospital.

Sarah Hunt Comiskey is a trial attorney in the tax division, U.S. Dept. of Justice and last year married Stephen Comiskey, also a lawyer. Their Washington, D.C. address is 3387 Stephenson Pl. N.W. Wash. D.C. 20015. Andrew Purdy, our former class president, is now Special Assistant, U.S. Attorney's Office in Atlanta, Ga. Among other things, Andy is going after a multi-company fraudulent bankruptcy scheme as one of his chief accomplishments. Gail Holder McPeters and her husband Lee McPeters are currently living it up in Montgomery County, Pa. where Lee works for the Research Division of Rohm and Haas, after receiving his Phd in physical chemistry from Stanford University. Gail recently put aside the insurance business to get more involved in craft work and volunteer activities. Their address is 404 Drayton Rd., Oreland, Pa. 19075. That about does it for this issue. The Alumni Association has put out an A.P.B. for some of our less communicative classmates such as Susan Aaesn, Fred Baker, Dana J. Banker, Michael Barrett, Helene Barrows, George Bearcraft, Wanda S. Black, Elizabeth Blake, Clement M. Brown, Greg Bryant, David A. Corn, Andrew Mosney and others too numerous to mention. If by chance you know of their whereabouts or should any of you A.W.O.Ls catch this issue, please report in. Peace, Love/Dove and Bobbie Sherman. 10-4.

Greetings all. I'm starting this letter with a special request from my husband Dave to find out exactly where Bob Blenner has disappeared to. Anybody know?

These searches via the Gazette evidently get results because Fred Lorey responded to Kurt Straub's letter and can now be found at The University of California at Davis. He's in his fourth year of a doctoral program in physical anthropology and is working on his dissertation research in human genetics.

Carol DeWilde Lee wrote that she is working as a Personnel Analyst for Perk Development Corp. which owns and operates Perkins Restaurants. She's living in Rochester, N.Y., while her husband is completing his residency in pediatrics at U. of Rochester's Strong Memorial Hospital.

William Kleindinst informed us that he has become an Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, and his wife Sharon Pandak is an Assistant County Attorney for Prince William County, Virginia.

John Wulfken is in Charlottesville on his third year of employment with G.E. He was a participant in their Financial Management Program and is currently specializing in Foreign Accounting.

We have lots of job updates in this month's newsletter and Mark Duffner's comes as no surprise to those of us who

ALUMNA ELECTED SOUTHERN SEMINARY PRESIDENT

Dr. Joyce O. Davis '56 has been elected president of Southern Seminary Junior College in Buena Vista, Va., by the Board of Trustees. Currently the vice president for academic and student affairs at the college, Dr. Davis will assume her new post on July 1. She holds a masters degree from the University of North Carolina and her Ph.D. from Tulane.

remember his football career. After serving as Defensive Coordinator and Assistant Coach at U. of Cincinnati for four years, he took a new job in December of 1980 as Defensive Coordinator and Linebacker Coach at Holy Cross College in Worcester, Massachusetts. They had their first winning season in years, and Mark and his wife Kathy Frost '76, love it there. They have two daughters, Christy and Carrie, and extend an open invitation to call if ever in New England.

Kay Ferguson Bechtel completed her M.F.A. in Creative Writing at the U. of North Carolina at Greensboro in May '81 and was married that summer to Stefan Downey Bechtel. They live in Allentown, Pa., where Kay teaches English part-time for Cedar Crest College, and Stefan serves as Associate Editor for Prevention magazine.

Debbie Allen is now living in southern California. She and her fiance Allen Henderson (Brown '69) enjoy playing tennis year round. Debbie is moving out of academia into business. After finishing her Ph.D. in economics at Duke in 1978, she worked for the Treasury and then taught for two years. She's now Senior Vice President of Claremont Economics Institute in charge of their International Services. Debbie reports that she and Scottye Hedstrom and Paul Wergley (both '74) are anxious to see everyone who makes it out west.

Jim Larsen left public accounting one year ago and moved back to Williamsburg to become the Controller at Williamsburg community Hospital. He loves being back and is the proud father of a new baby, Michael, born in November.

Pettus LeCompte has joined the McArdle and Itzkowitz Insurance Agency in Richmond as an independent insurance agent. He was formerly with the Richard Duncan Agency.

Gates Parker and his wife Cathy are now living in Lake Forest, Ill. Gates is a dentist stationed at Ft. Sheridan, and Cathy is working as a medical technologist at Lake Forest Hospital. They'll be there until the end of 1983.

Diane Fisher is still in Charlottesville where she's been working on an infant pediatrics floor for two and a half years, and loves it.

Cynthia Sturgis is at the U. of Utah working on a Ph.D. in Western American History.

Jim Weekly is working in Washington and attending night school at Georgetown Law School.

Ernie Copley is a stockbroker with E. F. Hutton in Alexandria. Helen Marie Gretsche Copley is working with an interior design firm in Alexandria.

Bruce Mullin is finishing his Ph.D. in religion at Yale, and Lucy Moye is working on her Ph.D. in medieval history at Duke.

Lisa Grable and her husband Robert Wallace are still living in Raleigh, N.C. She's teaching high school physics and chemistry, and is the sponsor of the Beta Club. She is also in the Master's Program in Science Education at N.C. State. Her thesis and course work should be finished by May '83. Lisa would like to hear news of Becky Malec, Beth Cumbie, and Cherie Bouchey.

John Singleton recently completed his first year with the NASA-Langley Research Center as an aerospace technologist providing support for the National Transonic Facility Project.

Tykie Tobin Dicterow is now living and working in Manhattan. She's married to Glenn Dicterow, one of the most talented violinists in the country, who is the concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic. They own a co-op on the upper west side and Tykie works for Morgan Guaranty Trust on Wall Street. She started as the planning and control person for the Bank Operations Department, but has been promoted to an Assistant Treasurer. She's excited about more money, more vacation, lunch in the officers' dining room, and the expectation of more and better quality work. But she's even more excited about the baby she's expecting in July. Congratulations!

ALUMNA ELECTED ACJS PRESIDENT

The Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences has elected a William and Mary alumna as its first woman president. Dorothy Heid Bracey '62, chairman of the Department of Anthropology at John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York City, will assume office in 1984. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate at William and Mary, Dr. Bracey received her M.S.L. degree from Yale Law School, which she attended as a National Science Foundation Fellow, and her Ph.D. from Harvard. The 1600-member Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences is a national organization of police officers, correctional personnel, teachers and researchers who are involved in improving the criminal justice system through education and research.

And speaking of babies, Bob Murray and his wife Nancy have a new baby boy. Robert Hale, IV, was born on March 20, weighing 8 lbs. 2 oz. and measuring 21 inches long.

Shelley Nix wrote to catch us up on the last five years. She has been living in Arlington, Va., since March '76 and is working for a mini-computer company called Four-Phase Systems, Inc. Shelley is an Associate Technical Instructor, having completed over two years in the Education and Training Department for the Federal Regional Office. She teaches customers all levels of their word processing product, the basic and advanced data entry subject material, and various aspects of programming. Her job affords a bit of travel and she has run into Stuart and Barbara Kolner '74, in Rockford, Ill., and Rob Lopez '74, and Jim Bantham in Dallas. Rob works for American Airlines and Jim is an attorney.

Shelley has also been to Paris and spent four weeks in Australia visiting her parents. Apparently, one really can see kangaroos in the wild, and koalas truly are as cute as they look. If you can catch her at home Shelley keeps busy with yoga, the art of stained glass, and even ballroom dancing.

That really brings me to the close of any news. Congratulations to all of you spring graduates, one of which is Dave. His MBA diploma is finally sitting on the closet shelf with his psychology and engineering degrees. I plan to frame them after he gets to work on the "Honey-do" jar I gave him for graduation.

Keep the news coming in, and have a great summer!

To pick up where we left off in our last column, Debbie Rennolds Taggart is the proud mother of a baby boy, John Kennard Taggart. Weighing in at 8 lbs. 12½ oz. and 21", he sounds like a prospect for the W&M football team.

Motherhood is becoming popular with our classmates. Heather Young Titrington became a mother October 17, 1981 to a girl, Elizabeth. Prior to becoming a full-time mother, Heather taught for two years in the English department at the University of North Carolina in Wilmington. She attended school at Purdue University and V.P.I. where she received her masters degree in English.

Congratulations to Dr. Cynthia Casson Morton who has just received her Ph.D. in human genetics from M.C.V. Good luck in your post-graduate work! Another classmate became a doctor last May. Jerold Epstein graduated from dental school at M.C.V. last May and has been associating with Dr. Michael Teitler in south-west Washington, D.C. He added, "If anyone is looking for a dentist, give me a call."

COLLEGE RECEIVES PAINTING

A large oil painting of James II, King of England from 1685 to 1688, has been given to the College by Raymond H. Julian and Vera W. Julian of Williamsburg. Executed by Sir Peter Leley, the Court Painter, in 1660, the portrait is of historical significance to the College because James II occupied the throne during the establishment of Middle Plantation of Virginia, which later became Williamsburg. The Julians purchased the painting in England in 1959. Their daughter, Michelle, is a senior at the College.

Wolford is a research assistant with Wheaton EFA in Washington and Patty Gibson is an employee of the Navy Department here in D.C. Pia Wood will begin work this summer as a financial analyst for Club Med.

Ted Purdy is presently a lieutenant j.g. in the U.S. Coast Guard, serving as a deck watch officer on the U.S.C.G.C. Unimack out of New Bedford, Massachusetts. He and his wife Mary had their second child in January. Sue Brown worked as a designer for the National Geographic Society until this spring, when she married and moved to Houston. She will be working there as a freelance science illustrator. Fritz Knopp and his wife, Lee Pearson ('80), are living in Richmond where they both teach in local middle schools. They are quite excited about becoming parents in May. Janet Steele has completed her master's in history at Johns Hopkins and is now working on her dissertation there in late 19th century American journalism. Heidi Campbell and Kathleen Overby are attending Duke Divinity School, while Elizabeth Gibbs and Brooks Savage are studying at Marshall-Wythe. Nancy Nooney Lammers is an editor for the Congressional Quarterly Inc. in D.C. Bill Silkworth is working toward a M.A.T. in history at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Charles Franzen is completing his master's in history at the University of Mississippi and hopes to enter the Peace Corps. Trixie Lowrey received the Margaret Morgan Coughlin Award for Excellence in Asian History at the conclusion of her first year of graduate study at U.Va. Brooke Tribble is vice president of Pacesetters, Inc., a management and professional placement firm which specializes in the recruitment of women and minority candidates. She left her position as personnel officer for Virginia's Department of Personnel and Training to set up this new firm in Richmond.

Deborah Linkenauger was recently promoted to investment officer of Central Fidelity Bank. David Ellenbogen received concurrent degrees of Master of Business Administration and Master of Environmental Management from Duke University in May. Scott Wayland received a Master of Philosophy in Renaissance English literature from Oxford University last August and began doctorate work at Princeton University in the fall. Woody Hawthorne has recently accepted a position as test engineer with Rockwell-Collins in Cedar Rapids, Iowa after being with the Naval Surface Weapons Center since graduation. Woody also changed his marital status in March. Barb Bailey Martino has also changed jobs, she now works for Norstan Information Systems, selling NBI word processors. Chris Hux is working as an account representative at ITT World Communications in D.C. He is also pursuing a career in vocal performance, studying at George Washington University and performing with the Paul Hill Chorale.

That's all for now. For those of you who have remained silent for the past three years as well as those who haven't, write and let us know what you've been doing with yourselves.

Happy summertime everyone! Isn't it wonderful to have the warm summer months upon us again? I don't know about the rest of you grads of '81, but I'm ready for a 3 month summer vacation! Unfortunately, being a "working person" . . . Boy, what ever happened to the good ol' days of college life and summer vacations?

From the sounds of it, everyone seems to have had a busy spring, forging ahead in

GRACE ALFORD WINS ACCOUNTING AWARD

Grace Alford, a senior from Winchester, Va., has won the award for the outstanding student in accounting at William and Mary. Miss Alford, whose parents are Grace Minor '52 and Ruel J. Alford Jr. '55, received the award at a dinner of the Virginia Society of Certified Public Accountants in Newport News on Wednesday, April 28.

true Indian spirit to new promotions, honors and phases of life.

Taking a very challenging step forward, Mil Norman has uprooted herself from her homeland of Roanoke, Va. to establish a new home in West Germany. Mil is currently living in Oldenburg, where she is a teacher of English at a language school and an editorial and research assistant for curriculum at the Bremen School Board in Bremen. And, Mil is engaged to be married this summer to Volkmar Risch of Bremen, West Germany, whom she met while they were both exchange students at Exeter University in England during the 1979-80 school year. Mil and Volkmar will be living in Nardenham, West Germany after the wedding. Congratulations and best wishes, Mil!

On the "home" front, our grads of '81 are conquering the U.S. business world. Nancy Westervelt is enjoying her 2 hour commute into the city each day from her home in Spring Lake, N.J. Sara Majors has moved from Richmond, Va. to Madison, N.J. as a result of her promotion with Travellers' Insurance. She's enjoying her job and is heavily involved in recruiting for Travellers Insurance. Close by in Summit, N.J., Sue Struckell is enjoying her challenging job in Public Accounting with Peat Marwick and the diversity of clients she has been working with.

Beth Scott's job with Esccomate, an environmental systems construction company in Omaha, NE, is "going wonderfully" and she had a "super time" on her recent business trips to Orlando, Las Vegas and D.C. And she enjoyed a weekend stop-in at William and Mary to visit all the old stamping grounds. Pam Pritchard is still loving her job selling medical products for Mead-Johnson Pharmaceutical Division in her territory surrounding Birmingham. Evy Lowenstein is still in the D.C. area, having recently changed jobs. She is in personnel at a new company which seems to offer better promotional and job opportunities. John Holsinger is also in the D.C. area, working for Arthur Anderson. Stu Rogers is also just recovering from a busy tax season and is enjoying his job as an accountant, helping interesting clients out of loop holes. Lou Paladeau seems to be adjusting well to life down south. He is not only enjoying his job as Asst. Controller for the Marriot hotel in Atlanta but is also enjoying the Atlanta social scene.

Cindy Linderer is doing well with her job at Wachovia Bank in Winston-Salem, N.C., but seems to miss the big-city life since Winston-Salem isn't exactly the cultural-center of the world! Brent Finch is also in the Carolinas (South Carolina) employed at Milliken.

Two of our fellow grads are enjoying rapid promotions in the U.S. military. Marine 2nd Lt. Ken West was recently graduated from the Navy's Aviation Indoctrination School. This 4-week training course, during which Ken studied basic aerodynamics, aviation physiology and engineering, is the first step in the Naval flight training program leading to designation as a naval aviator. Recently graduating from Officer Candidate School, Warren Stein has been commissioned Ensign in the U.S. Coast Guard. During this 18-week course, at the Coast Guard Reserve in Yorktown, Va., Warren studied navigation, seamanship, communications, leadership, plus Coast Guard search and rescue and law enforcement procedures.

Adjusting to married life. Cathy Jones Gunderson, married last September to Lt. USN Gunderson, is living with her husband in College Park, Md. where Cathy is working as a Faculty Research Assistant in the Dept. of Food and Nutrition at the University of Maryland. Cathy plans to enter the graduate program in that department in the fall. And preparing for married life, Karla

MRS. SACALIS DIES

Chrysa "Mama Steve" Sacalis, an Associate Member of the Alumni Society, died May 2, 1982 in Williamsburg Community Hospital. She and her husband Steve came to Williamsburg in 1930 and bought a restaurant on Duke of Gloucester Street, which they named the Colonial. They later owned and operated two other restaurants in what is now Merchant's Square - the Palace and the Williamsburg. In the mid-1950's, they opened the Lafayette Restaurant on Richmond Road, and Mama Steve's House of Pancakes opened in the 1960's. Along with her husband, "Mama Steve" was a well-known philanthropist, contributing generously to Williamsburg Community Hospital, the Hellenic Center in Newport News, the Williamsburg Police Department, and the College, among others.

Kraynack is busy with preparations for her July 31 wedding. She will be marrying Lt. J.G. USN Jack Bruno. Karla is currently working at the American Heart Asso. in Annandale, Va. but will be moving with her husband to Virginia Beach after her wedding.

There's lots of news from the academic front - from all the '81 grads following in William and Mary academic tradition. Mike Garrett is really enjoying law school at Marshall-Wythe and is spending a lot of his spare time running, preparing for 10K races. John Fessenden is enjoying his law school experiences at U.Va. and is looking forward to a law-clerking job in D.C. this summer. Angela Ottobre is at grad school at Cornell University, working on a masters degree in Consumer Economics while Janis Gibbs is enjoying legal philosophy and surviving Socratic challenges at the University of Chicago Law School. Rebecca Hart is working on a master's degree in International Management at American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale, Az.

And, after taking a year off from the books, several '81 grads have decided to return to the world of academics. Hal Hicks hopes to enter law school in the fall as does John Pini, who is currently working at the Colonial Restaurant in the 'Burg. Andy Nierenberg will enter UCLA in the fall to work on a M.A. in European History. Andy did some substitute teaching in the Northern Virginia area during the spring and also worked on an article on the program in Proskaro in 1919. Molly Ashby is planning to enter the master's program in Foreign Service at Georgetown University this fall.

And over here on the Far Western side of the country, the summer weather has inspired Bob Wagner and me to play a lot of tennis, run and soak up the sun - of course when we're not working. Bob is still working with Procter and Gamble in Los Angeles but is looking for a new job down in the San Diego area. And I still love my job as Promotions Administrator for Fluid Components, Inc. It certainly offers a lot of challenge and responsibility, not to mention the fact that I am becoming well informed about the instruments and controls industry!

That's all the news for now from the Class of '81.

I hope all you other '81 grads will find a minute to let me know what you're doing out there in the "real" world.

On behalf of the Class of '81, I congratulate the newly graduated Class of '82 and wish everyone luck in their new endeavors.

Have a great summer, everyone!

Dr. Kenneth Ross Garren, MA '65, mathematics professor at Roanoke College, Salem, Va., received the 1982 William C. Lowry Outstanding Mathematics Teacher Award for the college level, presented by the Virginia Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Dr. Garren earned his Bachelor of Science degree from Roanoke College in 1962. He worked for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at Langley in Hampton, Va. He earned his Ph.D. from Virginia Tech. In 1978 he won the Teacher of the Year Award given by the Blue Key honorary fraternity. He served as president of the Blue Ridge Council of Teachers of Mathematics in 1979-80, and recently received the top achievement award for the Blue Ridge Council.

John C. Dann, Grad 1966, was elected a member of the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester, Mass. in April 1981.

John Fitzhugh Millar, MA 1981, has finished a sacred oratorio, The American Messiah, using the words of Handel's Messiah and music from 41 composers from the British and French colonies in America before 1790. John hopes that the William and Mary Choir may perform this oratorio sometime.

James L. Jordy, MTS 1963, in addition to duties as chairman of the Mathematics Department, varsity basketball coach, and director of winter term intersession, has recently assumed the responsibilities as Dean of Academic Services at Millbrook School. At the fiftieth year celebration of the school on Oct. 10, 1981, he was named to the Jane Johnson Garnjost Chair in Mathematics and Science. He is in his fourth year of teaching at Millbrook School.

Philip E. Coyer, MA 1972, writes that after he left the College of William and Mary, he moved to Amherst, Mass., where he completed a Ph.D. in zoology in the winter of 1976. He moved to Birmingham to work as a research assistant professor of Neurology. Philip married Barbara Russell Biglow and has a son, Philip "Joel" Coyer.

Mrs. Ruth G. Keffer, MA 1951, is in her 34th year of teaching. Presently she is teaching seventh and eighth grade science at East Bank Junior High School, East Bank, W.Va. Her daughter Patricia is teaching general science and mathematics to ninth graders at Oak Hill, W.Va.

Dr. William Wayne Scott, MA 1966, is president of Gaston College in Dallas, N.C.

ALUMNUS WINS HOPE AWARD

Dr. Robert Cline '68 has been voted the recipient of the H.O.P.E. award as the outstanding professor-educator at Hope College in Holland, Mich. Instituted in 1965, the award is presented by the graduating class to the professor who they feel epitomizes the qualities of the Hope College educator. An associate professor of economics, Dr. Cline joined the Hope faculty in 1975. He received M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan.

Dr. John Frederick Fausz, MA 1971 and PhD 1977, assistant professor of History at St. Mary's College of Maryland, has received a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship for college teachers. Seventeenth century Chesapeake history and Anglo-American intercultural relations are the major themes of his research.

The Spring Weekend Reunion which included a cocktail party and reception and a luncheon for all alumni and a breakfast for the Board of Directors and past presidents of the Law School Association was a resounding success. Much of the success must be attributed to the efforts of Dean Michael Schoenenberger and George Campbell, President of the Law School Association. The program of lecturers from the faculty gave strong evidence of the developing strength of the teaching faculty in general at the Law School. For those of you who did not make it this year, the opportunity to spend a quiet weekend in Williamsburg unencumbered by the usual homecoming activities should prompt you to mark your calendars for next year's reunion once the date is announced.

John H. Klein, J.D. '76, is pleased to announce the birth of his first child, a daughter, Kathryn Baird Klein, on October 17, 1981. John, along with the Marshall-Wythe alumni, William D. Breit and Jeffrey A. Breit, have become partners of the firm, Breit, Rutter & Montagna, in Norfolk. Alumna Lelia Baum Hopper has been appointed Deputy Secretary for Human Resources with the new administration in Richmond. Jeffrey Lynn Milam, J.D. '80, is with the law firm of Hoover, Hoover, Penrod and Davenport in Harrisonburg, Virginia. Sharon A. Henderson, J.D. '76, wrote a very nice letter from which I will steal as follows: "The Class of '76 had a bang-up Fifth Year Reunion during homecoming this past year. Jim Thurman was busy passing around pictures of his new daughter Amery Christina born August 26, 1981. Tom Jacks is the newly-appointed state Deputy Attorney General for Human and Natural Resources." Sharon also informs us that she was married July 18, 1981 to David A. Glazer. Jon Bradley King, J.D. '81, is presently serving as Coordinator of the Madison County (Indiana) Ordinance Codification Project with the goal of collecting and organizing a century and a half of local legislation to develop a comprehensive county code. In December of 1981, he was sworn in as a member of the State Bar of California.

That's all for now. Keep those cards and letters rolling in.

DEATHS

There were errors of both omission and commission in the obituary for Sidney Harrison Kelsey '31 published in the April Alumni Gazette. This obituary is submitted to correct those errors, with our apologies.

SIDNEY HARRISON KELSEY, '31, died November 12, 1981, in Norfolk, Virginia. A member of Kappa Alpha at William and Mary, he earned his law degree from Washington and Lee in 1934. Admitted to the bar in 1933, he practiced law with his father in Norfolk from 1934 until 1938; then practiced law independently and with his own son in the Norfolk firm of Kelsey & Kelsey. For many years, he practiced primarily in the federal courts of Norfolk, and was recognized nationally as a leading trial and appellate lawyer in the area. During World War II, he served in both Europe and the Pacific as a Naval officer. He served at one time as chairman of the Republican state convention, and he was one of the founders and a president of the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association. He had practiced in the U.S. Supreme Court; U.S. Court of Appeals, 4th Circuit; and the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Virginia. A member of various bar associations, he was also a Law Science Institute lecturer and writer. He is survived by his wife Evelyn of Crittenden Station, three daughters, and two sons.

Vital Statistics

During the period from 1919 to 1925 he played professional baseball, and in 1925 he became recreation head of Madison Ward Community Center in Norfolk. In addition to his years at William and Mary, he also studied at Harvard and Northwestern Universities. He was a scout for the Boston Red Sox, and he officiated local football and basketball games, including the first Oyster Bowl in 1946. In 1943, he was named Norfolk Man of the Year in Sports, and shortly thereafter, he became Norfolk's Director of Parks and Recreation. Upon his retirement from that position in 1968, Norfolk city officials declared August 25, 1968 D. Paul Decker Day. In 1977, he was inducted into the Tidewater Baseball Shrine. Survivors include a daughter and a sister.

LILLIAN HUGH CASSELL (CALLAHAN), '29 A.B., of Franklin, New Jersey, died June 4, 1980. At W&M she was a member of the Women's Dorm Association, History Club, Biology Club, Y.W.C.A., Literary Society and Southwest Virginia Club. After her marriage in 1931 to William H. Callahan, her time was occupied with raising two children, gardening, and doing volunteer work with such organizations as the Episcopal Church, the Hospital Auxiliary, the Library Commission, and the D.A.R. She is survived by her husband and two daughters.

JAMES MOODY ROBERTSON, '29 B.S., of Norfolk, Virginia, died May 2, 1982. At William and Mary, he was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, the F.H.C. Society, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Phi Beta Kappa, and president of both the Junior Class and, during his senior year, the Men's Student Body. He earned his LL.B. from the University of Virginia in 1933 and was a practicing attorney in Norfolk from then until his retirement in 1980. He was a member of the Virginia House of Delegates in the 1940, 1942 and 1948 sessions, and he served as U.S. Collector of Customs for the Virginia district from 1948 until 1953. A U.S. Naval Reserve officer during World War II, he served on William and Mary's Board of Visitors from 1951 until 1952, and was Rector of the Board from 1952-1962. In 1959 he was awarded the Alumni Medallion, and in 1965 he received an Honorary LL.D. from the College. He was a former member of the Alumni Society's Board of Directors and a Trustee Emeritus of the Board for the W&M Endowment Association. He was married to the late Geneva Breckenridge Robertson. Survivors include a sister, Ruth G. Robertson, '36, and a brother, John W. Robertson, '32.

CHARLES ELDRIDGE HATCH, JR., '35 A.B., of Yorktown, Virginia, died February 1, 1982. A member of Phi Beta Kappa at W&M, he earned his M.A. from the University of Virginia in 1936. He joined the U.S. Park Service in 1937, working at George Washington's birthplace; and in 1938 he transferred to Colonial National Historical Park. His 35-year Park Service career was interrupted by World War II, during which he served three years in Europe with the 14th Armored Division and in Third Army Headquarters. After the War, he returned to Yorktown, and by 1967 was Chief Parks Historian. In that year, he was officially transferred to another office of the Park Service, but his duties were such that he remained in Yorktown to do historical research. The author of numerous works, including a book on Colonial Yorktown, he was outstanding in the field of historical research; and among his greatest contributions to the Park Service were his very thorough studies of Yorktown's historic buildings. In 1980, the Yorktown Branch of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities dedicated to him a newly restored court record book for the years 1763 to 1765, in recognition of his service to the county in researching its history. He was married to the late Mildred Muse Hatch, and his survivors include a daughter, Cornelia, and a son, Charles E., III, '70.

DOROTHY KATHLEEN TAYLOR (MILAM), '39 A.B., of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, died in 1975. A bookkeeper, she was married to William H. Milam. Survivors include a sister, Eva Gertrude Taylor Tipton, '37, and two children.
