THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Fire Guts Historic Jefferson Hall

Students Escape Unharmed; Reconstruction To Take Two Years

At 1:12 a.m. on January 20, 1983, the fire alarm sounded in Jefferson Hall, one of William and Mary's oldest and most historic dormitories. Before that long night and the following day ended, Jefferson Hall, built in 1921 and named for the College's most distinguished alumnus, would go into the history books as the victim of the ninth great fire in the 290-year history of William and Mary.

The fire, which was caused by an electric malfunction in a refrigerator located in a first floor kitchen, burned all night and into the following day. Despite the heroic efforts of more than 60 firemen from six Peninsula departments, it destroyed all but the walls of the west wing, collapsed the roof of the entire dormitory, and caused severe smoke and water damage in the rooms that were left standing in the east wing. Insurance will cover replacement of the dormitory which is expected to take about two years. Architects have determined that the walls of the building can be retained in the reconstruction.

But thanks to the fire alarm system, the alert action of students, a well-trained residence hall staff, and the prompt response of local firefighters, none of the 185 dormitory residents, most of whom were freshmen, were injured, although one student had to be rescued by ladder. By the next day, the students had been relocated to the Motor House complex, provided free of charge by Colonial Williamsburg. In an outpouring of support from the Red Cross, the community and alumni, students received clothes and financial support. Within two days, the College had secured permanent housing for the students in the Commonwealth Inn, on Richmond Road, which William and Mary has leased for a year and one-half, with an option to renew.

In a letter to the community, friends and alumni who had come to the aid of the College during the crisis, President Graves gave a sigh of relief and expressed thanks that the experience had not been worse.

"William and Mary has suffered a tragedy," he wrote, "but we are so very grateful that the students are safe and well. The College is stronger than ever, thanks to people who care."

The Fire

Shortly after 1 a.m. on Thursday, Jan. 20 on the third floor of Jefferson Hall, resident advisor Mark Rozzi and his roommate detected smoke in the building. Rozzi told Andy Kahl, a freshman, to pull the fire alarm while he called the Campus Police and told them that it was not a false alarm.

At first some of the students in Jefferson responded casually to the alarm, thinking it was either a drill, which they are required to have twice a semester, or a false alarm. After all, William and Mary had not had a major fire since 1953 when Ewell Hall, then known as Phi Beta Kappa Hall, had been partially destroyed by fire.

But the alert residence staff, which was well trained in what to do in the event of the fire, had the students out of the building within minutes. By the time the Williamsburg Fire Department arrived shortly after 1:14 a.m., the building was 90 per cent empty, and resident advisors, master keys in hand and some with wet towels over their faces to fend off the smoke, were going door-to-door in the dorm to check rooms. Then advisors turned their keys over to the firemen who made another room-to-room search.

Although no one was found during the two searches, freshman Alec Murphy was apparently still inside, and at 1:40 a.m., firemen helped him to safety from the second-story balcony on the street side of the building.

Meanwhile, firemen began tearing down ceiling tiles and chopping into walls with their axes, looking for the source of the blaze, which had originated in a refrigerator motor, burned a one foot hole through a wall, shot through a space between the floor and the basement ceiling, and headed west where there was air to feed it. Everywhere they chopped, behind almost every wall they looked, fire fighters found evidence of fire. According to Williamsburg Fire chief Robert Bailey, the fire had raced through many of the partitions and false ceilings of the renovated structure where it could feed for long periods without being detected. Unfortunately, firemen could not find the source of the blaze, and heat, thick smoke, and danger of the floors collapsing finally drove them from the building.

Building in intensity, the fire spread to the roof by 4 a.m. By dawn, almost the entire roof was engulfed in flames, and the west wing was totally ablaze. By 5 a.m., smoke had filtered into Barrett Hall, adjacent to Jefferson, and threatened the frame houses across Jamestown Road, and they had to be evacuated.

Units from five other districts responded to calls for help to fight the fire. Battling the huge blaze in 14 degree weather, on the coldest night of the winter, the firemen found their gloves freezing to their hands from some of the million gallons of water that poured onto the dormitory, and they had to be literally pried from their hands afterward. Spray from the hoses soon covered the ground around the dormitory, coating trees, grounds and bicycles with a heavy crust of ice. It was not until mid-morning that Chief Bailey reported that the blaze had been contained and not until 2:30 p.m. on Thursday, more than 12 hours after they had arrived, that the exhausted firemen declared the fire out.

Dealing with the crisis

It took Charles J. Lombardo, Director of Residence Life, and W. Samuel Sadler '64, Dean of Students, less than a half hour to get to Jefferson Hall after they were notified between 1:15 and 1:30 a.m. Sadler even went by his office in James Blair Hall to pick up a flashlight. The flashlight didn't work, but that was about the only malfunction over the next several hours in a response to a crisis that moved with remarkable speed and efficiency.

Arriving at Jefferson at around 1:45 a.m., Sadler and Lombardo were briefed by area coordinator Pamela Ficarra. Although no flames were visible, the area was sealed off and a plan to determine the safety and location of the Jefferson residents initiated. Sadler designated Taliaferro Hall, across the

Business School Taps Jamison

Investment Banker To Succeed Quittmeyer As Dean

John C. Jamison, a limited partner of the New York investment banking firm Goldman, Sachs & Co., has been named Dean of the School of Business Administration at William and Mary in Virginia, replacing Charles L. Quittmeyer '40 on July 1. Dr. Quittmeyer will return to teaching and research as the first Floyd D. Gottwald Professor of Business Administration.

Jamison has had extensive experience in the world of corporate finance during his twenty years as associate and partner with Goldman, Sachs. His work has included a wide range of assignments and activities dealing with public and private financing, mergers, acquisitions and divestitures involving many nationally-known companies. During the past decade he also has been a specialist in advising troubled companies.

President Graves, said that "the College is indeed fortunate to be able to attract a man with John Jamison's background and pragmatic knowledge of the business world and the economic scene. He will bring both vision and energy to the School of Business Administration at an important point in its development and planning for the future."

Jamison currently serves as director of three companies: G. C. Murphy Company (1972 to present); Hershey Foods Corporation (1974 to present); and Cowles Broadcasting.

In addition to his business experience, Jamison has participated actively in service to his alma mater, Purdue University. He is a member of the Dean's Advisory Council for the Krannert Graduate School of Management, a governor of the Purdue Foundation, and President of the President's Council. His other service includes being a trustee of the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School and a director of the Theatre Development Fund in New York city.

Jamison received his B.S. in Industrial Economics from Purdue University in 1956, and his M. B. A. (with Distinction) from Harvard Business School in 1961.

John C. Jamison

In past years, he has served as a trustee of the Solebury School, New Hope, Pa., trustee of the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival, advisor to the Theatre in the Americas Project of the Theatre of Latin America, and vestryman at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Murray Hill, N.J.

From 1956-59, he served as a legal and communications officer in the U.S. Navy.

Jamison was born in Lafayette, Ind. in 1934. He married Carol Sansone and they have two daughters, Kelly (20) and Debbie (19).

House Notes

Alma Seippel Coon, who was a special student at the College during World War II, has written an upside down and backwards book for children, entitled THE MOUSE AND THE MILL and THE BOTTLE BABIES, published in 1982 by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. She has graciously forwarded copies for the Paschall Library. A copy of a 1906 LITERARY MAGAZINE has been received from Gil Granger '57.

Michael P. Lesniak '64 has generously contributed to the Paschall Library Fund to purchase books by alumni authors.

Mementoes of the 1930's have been received from David Glasser '35. Included is a photograph of the Virginia State Championship Freshman Football Team of 1931.

Dr. Lee Wadkins Vliet '68 and Gordon C. Vliet '54 have generously donated a unique carved wooden ornament to the furnishings of the Alumni House.

The Society appreciates the generosity of alumni who have contributed to the library either by giving books or memorabilia, or donating to the fund to purchase books written by alumni. Memorial gifts are invited. Correspondence should be addressed to Frankie Martens, Society of the Alumni, Post Office Box 60, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187.

LOST AND FOUND: The following articles are being held at the Alumni House: a men's tweed hat with bombardier's wings, DAV pin and other mementoes; a nylon parka; a wrist-watch; a cosmetic bag; and a ladies all-weather coat. Please telephone 804-229-1693 to claim.

SAT Scores — Meaningful In The Selection Process

by G. Gary Ripple
Dean of Undergraduate Admissions

As I begin this column, I must make the following disclaimer: everything I know about tests has been derived from observation and experience. I have never studied psychometrics nor have I received any formal training in the development, administration or interpretation of standardized tests. Everything that I believe to be true about the SAT is based upon my fifteen years of experience as a student of the college admissions process.

Every prominent admissions officer strongly resists the temptation to rely upon test scores as a crutch in the selection process. We pride ourselves in taking all factors of the student's application into account, especially those which relate to daily performance in the classroom and the ability to interact with teachers and other students. That is why, for example, the William and Mary admissions process admits a few students each year with SAT's totaling below a 1000 while denying admission to students whose total score exceed 1400. The SAT is but one factor in a relatively complex formula we use to determine which of our candidates are the most capable and promising.

In broad terms, SAT scores are meaningful in the selection process. We do not consider a 530 verbal to be necessarily higher than a 520, but we do think of a 650 as indicating a significantly greater intellectual potential than a 450. Also, at our most challenging secondary schools, students with higher test scores tend to have the best grades, a good indication that the curriculum and teaching environment of the institution challenges its brightest students to perform to the levels of their ability.

Surprisingly, few students and their parents realize the most important use of college entrance examinations. They can be a highly effective selection tool to allow students the opportunity to place themselves in an institution that is most appropriate for their preparation and potential. A student with SAT's in the 400's might find himself at a serious disadvantage at a college where the normal range of student testing falls in the 600's; the same is true when the student's range of abilities lies far above the range of his/her student body.

Tests such as the SAT are the only standard against which all applicants can be compared. Until a better standard has been developed, selective colleges will rely upon their results as the need for equity and fairness in selection continues. College entrance examinations do not measure the size of a student's heart or determine his level of courage and intellectual tenacity. They are a helpful aid to selection on both the student's and the institution's part, and all of us must continually work to see a student's score as one part of his academic evaluation that can never be greater than the whole.

Summer Counseling Seminar. Alumni children who wish to receive information about one week of college counseling for rising seniors should send their names and addresses to Dean Ripple in Ewell Hall as soon as possible.

Governor Helps College Celebrate Charter Day

Robb Speaks On Higher Education At 290th Birthday Celebration

William and Mary celebrated its 290th birthday on Feb. 5 with a visit from Governor Charles S. Robb who delivered a major address on higher education in Virginia.

Celebrating the 290th anniversary of the granting of the Royal Charter by King William III and Queen Mary II, the College conferred Thomas Jefferson Awards on Dr. Vinson H. Sutlive Jr., professor of anthropology, and Dr. Morris McCain, assistant professor of government who is an expert on the Soviet Union.

Governor Robb received an honorary doctor of laws degree from the College for his "distinguished career of service to state and Nation" in which he has "brought to the highest office of the Commonwealth an enthusiastic and courageous commitment to high quality and effective management in all facets of public life, and has taken forceful initiatives in support of excellence in education."

In a special observance, the College paid tribute to the former living rectors of the College for their "significant influence on William and Mary while they were in office. The living former rectors are W. Brooks George '32, Richmond, who served from 1966-68; Walter G. Mason, Lynchburg, 1968-70; Ernest W. Goodrich '35, Surry County, 1970-72; R. Harvey Chappell, Jr., '48, Richmond, 1972-76; John R. L. Johnson, Jr., '28, Chadds Ford, Pa., 1976-78; and Dr. Edward L. Brickell '50, Virginia Beach, 1978-82. George, Mason, Goodrich, and Johnson were in attendance at the ceremony.

Sutlive received the Thomas Jefferson Award for embodying the personal and professional characteristics of Thomas Jefferson while McCain received the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award as an outstanding young faculty member.

Sutlive, who is editor of two international anthropology journals, was described as a scholar who has "chronicled the lives of indigenous peoples and brought their needs and attainments to the attention of the world scholarly community." As a teacher, his award noted, Sutlive has "brought your diverse skills, myriad interests, and vast experience to your students and colleagues."

McCain, a Rhodes Scholar who received his M.A. with distinction from Oxford College and his Ph.D. from Yale University, was honored as "one of the best teachers..." at the College, according to students who have evaluated his courses and described them as "intellectually stimulating, challenging and well organized."

Robb, who has warned state universities and colleges that they will have to exist on less money in the future, announced the formation of a special committee to "investigate our options and to advise me on how best to match up our commitments and our resources in order to assure that higher education continues to flourish in Virginia." The study group will include former William and Mary executive vice president Carter O. Lowance who served as an assistant to six Virginia governors.

Six living former rectors of the College, including four who attended the Charter Day festivities, were honored during the Charter Day ceremony. In attendance were (left to right) W. Brooks George '32, Richmond; Walter G. Mason, Lynchburg; Ernest W. Goodrich '35, Surry County, Va., and John R. L. Johnson '28, Chadds, Ford, Pa.

"The motive for these citizens who will work with me to build new solutions to our problems, for me personally, and for our colleges and universities, is that our system of public higher education is itself at stake in this search for answers," Robb said.

"We can let the fiefdoms stand — assert that every college will be the castle for its region, its town, or its part of town. We can confuse simple inefficiency with academic freedom, and deplore the fact that shortfalls in the general fund hurt higher education. Or we can join forces now and act. By failing to act now we risk leaving to our children and their colleges that can define themselves only in terms of what they used to be, back in the old days, before times got tough. Or we can use tough times as incentives to invent new economies of scale in management, to protect the teaching that must go on, to end duplications that serve only to protect what is, not to predict what will be."

Robb said he has asked the committee to study such issues as goals, duplication, management, finances, and revenue sources pertaining to higher education.

Governor Robb, who attended Burgesses Day at William and Mary last fall, was paying his second visit to the College since he became governor in January 1982. He arrived on Friday evening and attended the annual President's Council banquet sponsored by the College at the Williamsburg Lodge. On Saturday after the Charter Day convocation, the Governor spent approximately a half hour at a reception in Andrews Foyer and then attended a special Charter Day luncheon at the Great Hall. He was accompanied by his wife Lynda Byrd.

Roberts Elected Society President

West, Hudgins, Harris Named To Alumni Offices

Austin L. Roberts III '69, a Newport News banker, has been elected president of the Society of the Alumni, succeeding Williamsburg dentist Dr. Marvin F. West '52, who has served for the past year.

Roberts took office at the February meeting of the Board of Directors which also elected R. Stanley Hudgins '43, a general district court judge from Virginia Beach, as vice president; West as treasurer, and Audrey Murray Harris '60, Richmond, as secretary.

Roberts, who has served as treasurer of the Society for the past two years, is also president of the Athletic Educational Foundation, the fund-raising organization for athletics for the College. His second term as president of the AEF will end in September.

He has been an active member of the Board of Directors of the Society, serving as chairman of the College Relations Committee and chairman of the Committee for Career Exploration Day, in addition to his duties as treasurer.

Roberts, who began his banking career with United Virginia Bank, is currently president of the First Peninsula Bank and Trust Company, and has the distinction of being the youngest bank president in Virginia. He has been active in a number of civic organizations including the Boy Scouts, Rotary and United Way. Roberts received his MBA from the College in 1971. His wife is the former Barbara Powell '71.

Hudgins, who received his law degree from the College in 1948, serves on the Executive Committee, the College Relations Committee, and is chairman of the Scholarship Committee of the Board. He is a Commissioner in Chancery and a Divorce Commissioner for the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach and a member of all state and local bar associations. An active civic leader, Hudgins is married to the former Frances Capps '49.

Dr. West is in his second term on the Board of Directors. In addition to serving as president, he was chairman of the Alumni House Committee. A graduate of the Medical College of Virginia, Dr. West has been active in community and college affairs since his return to Williamsburg in 1958 to set up his dental practice. Dr. West's wife, Millie, is director of athletics for women at William and Mary.

Mrs. Harris, who is in her first term on the Board, has been active as both a paid staff member and volunteer in Virginia political circles, serving as assistant to the Speaker of the House of Delegates during the General Assembly sessions in 1978, 1979, and 1980. Mrs. Harris received her M.Ed. from Virginia Commonwealth University and was a teacher for two years in Richmond. She has been an active community and Alumni Society chapter leader in the Richmond area. Her husband Bob '62 is an attorney in Richmond, and one of their two children, Bob Jr., is a junior at the College.

Four new members attended their first meeting of the Board of Directors in February. They are Lesley Ward Bottoms '63 of Bronxville, N. Y.; H. Westcott Cunningham '43, Gloucester, Va.; Bernard J. Nolan '61, Cincinnati; and S. Warne Robinson '37, Williamsburg.

Alumni Medallion Nominations

Society Accepts Nominations For Highest Honor

The Alumni Medallion Committee is receiving nominations from alumni chapters and from individual alumni for candidates for the Alumni Medallion, the highest honor conferred by the Society of the Alumni.

The medallion is awarded for service and loyalty, recognizing extraordinary achievements in the vocational and avocational life of the alumnus. Consideration is given to distinguished service and exceptional loyalty to the Society and to the College; outstanding character; notable success in business or profession and contribution in worthy endeavors of such nature as to bring credit and honor to the College. The graduating class of the nominee must have been at least ten years prior to the awarding.

The nominations must be supported by a short written statement outlining service to William and Mary and an assessment of that service; service to community, state, and/or nation; vocational achievements and recognitions.

The deadline will be May 2, 1983.

Send all nominations to: ALUMNI MEDALLION COMMITTEE, BOX GO, WILLIAMSBURG, VA. 23187.

Letters

Editor:

I just must write to someone down there to tell them how very upset and distressed I was to see the picture in The Boston Herald on Jan. 21 of Jefferson Hall burning.

The next day, Saturday, I had a telephone call from a former roommate, Elizabeth Robinson Cowne, '25 of Richmond to tell me about it.

She and Elizabeth Walmsley, '25 of Philadelphia and I were all freshmen in the fall of 1921 and lived together in the brand new Jefferson Hall! We are still friends and keep in touch all the time. Jefferson Hall with Bessie Porter Taylor on the first floor with an apartment and her office with shelves of books that she was always glad to share with us.

Jefferson Hall with a lovely big swimming pool — and I would stand beside it and hold my breath and watch another roommate, Helen Lanigan Caldwell Cushman, swim under water four lengths of the pool.

Jefferson Hall where we had what seemed like a nice big gymnasium where we rooted loudly for the basketball team — or danced dreamily on Saturday night.

A beautiful holly tree outside our room — a group of boys singing outside on the lawn after lights were out — it was a wonderful four years and I enjoyed every minute of it.

Thanks a lot for listening to me. Since I have now had my 80th birthday — and "E" Walmsley is in a retirement home, I am not sure I'll get to William and Mary again — but it was fun.

Affectionately,

Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse '25
Hingham, Mass.

Editor:

While pleasantly reading your December issue, I was startled to spot a reference, on page 9, to "Holy Cross College." Since its founding, exactly

150 years after William and Mary, Holy Cross has properly been known as, The College of the Holy Cross, and never as "Holy Cross College."

Surely William and Mary, which is repeatedly cited as "William and Mary College" in the national press, can extend the same standard for correctly addressing other schools as it demands for itself!

Cordially yours,

Jeffrey Cronin ('74)
Charlestown, Mass.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Cronin is right, of course. We apologize.

Conference Set For Chapter Leaders

A conference for alumni chapter leaders will be held at the Alumni House March 19, 1983. Currently serving and potential officers are eligible to attend the one-day workshop, which is designed to facilitate alumni volunteers in their chapter responsibilities.

Those participating in the conference will include Society Board members and staff, the President, other College officials, Student-Alumni Liaison Committee members, and Mr. Douglas Wilson, the Vice-President for University Relations at the University of Miami in Ohio.

Topics to be discussed are a review of Society programs, ways that alumni may serve the College, motivation and effective use of volunteers, leadership development, sample program offerings, problems and solutions.

The program will close with dinner in the Great Hall.

Chapter officers should make reservations with Tish Paschall, Director of Chapter Programs, Society of the Alumni, Box 60, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

Women's Gymnastic Team Likes Its New League

Gymnasts Ranked Third In 24-Team Nationwide Competition

When the Association of Inter-collegiate Athletics for women folded last year, the coaches in the William and Mary women's athletic department were given a choice. They could enter their programs in the highly competitive Division I level of the NCAA, or they could enter them in the National Association for Inter-collegiate Athletics (NAIA), a smaller and yet still very competitive league.

Of the 11 women's sports at William and Mary, only two opted for the latter alternative: swimming and gymnastics. While both of these two teams are fairing well in their new level of competition, the William and Mary women's gymnastics team seems to have gotten more out of the move than any other squad at the college.

Always a very tough team to beat at the Division II level of the AIAW, the Tribe gymnastics team has become an even more tenacious force since joining the NAIA. The gymnasts currently are ranked third in the 24-team nationwide league, and have virtually guaranteed themselves a berth in the national tournament even though there are four meets yet to compete in.

"We can be reasonably certain that we will be competing at nationals," commented head coach Sylvia Shirley, who has coached the team for the past several seasons. "We would have to score very poorly in our remaining meets to reach the point where we would not receive an invitation." The top 12 teams in NAIA compete at nationals, with seedings determined by average scores in regular-season meets.

While the Tribe's position in the national rankings was heightened by its move to the NAIA, it should be noted that the primary reason for William and Mary's great success and its strong 5-1 record is its increased excellence in the gym.

The gymnasts defeated an extremely tough North Carolina State team at William and Mary Hall on February 5 by a score of 135.2 to 134.7. That 135.2 score was the highest in recent history by a William and Mary team and surprised the favored Wolfpack, which went home in defeat rather than victory.

"This is definitely the best team we've had since I've been here," Shirley said of the '82-'83 squad. "They've got a higher skill level than any team I've had and they've got the team spirit and unity to make it a complete team effort."

What makes this group of gymnasts so much better than any group that William and Mary has had before?

"First of all, we haven't had any major injuries," noted Nanae Fujita, a junior all-around performer and co-captain of the team. "Last year our team scores were not as good because we had so many people hurt."

Shirley echoed Fujita's comments. "Practically the whole team was injured last season — I think we had one person who didn't sustain some kind of injury then. This year we've had some minor injuries, but nothing so extensive that they hurt the team scores significantly.

Julie Stefaniw is one of two freshmen on the gymnastics team who compete in all events.

Fujita also cited the addition of four new faces, three performers and an assistant coach, as a key contribution to the Tribe's success.

NAIA rules require a team to have three performers designated as all-around performers in each meet.

These members of the all-around category must compete in all events, and their total scores are extremely important in team scoring. While co-captain Fujita occupies one of the three positions, the other two are manned by freshmen Lori Pepple and Julie Stefaniw.

"I rarely recruit a gymnast if I don't think she can contribute right away," Shirley commented of freshmen Pepple, Stefaniw and Lynn King, a walk-on who has become an excellent performer on the uneven bars. "Lori, Julie, and Lynn may be freshmen, but they have a higher level of skill than some of the older performers that we've had in the past."

Another reason that the Tribe is performing so well, according to both Fujita and Shirley, is the addition of assistant coach Jan Roltsch '81 to the team. Roltsch still holds several Tribe records for all-around performance.

"She coaches from a gymnast's perspective," Shirley notes of Roltsch. "That's very helpful to the people she's coaching."

While Shirley certainly is pleased with the new additions to her gymnastics team, she also takes pride in the progress of the veteran performers. Some of the top contributors in this category include Lynn Rosenberry, a co-captain who has finished first in the uneven bars in each of the last two meets, and Karen Irvin, a top vaulter and consistent contributor in the floor exercise.

"One of our greatest strengths this year is our depth," Shirley stated.

"We're getting good performances from everyone, both our new people and our old-timers. I can enter six people in every meet and never be sure which ones will be in the top four."

The Tribe will be attempting to run its highest possible scores as it winds down its regular season in order to achieve a top seeding at the national tournament. "We'd have to be absolutely faultless to win at nationals," Shirley predicted, "but we're certainly going to try."

Keith Cieplicki — Epitome Of The Student-Athlete

Sophomore Guard Leads Tribe On The Court And In The Classroom

Keith Cieplicki is unique. He is one of the few survivors of a vanishing breed — the student-athlete.

At most Division I colleges there are students, and then there are athletes. Seldom are the two merged in one individual as indicated in a January CBS News special report, "The Basketball Machine." Not so at William and Mary where all athletes must be students in the truest sense.

Keith Cieplicki is the epitome of the William and Mary student-athlete.

The Burlington, Vt., native has thrilled large William and Mary crowds with his performances on the basketball court. He has been a major cog in the Tribe's success the past two seasons.

With a soft, left-handed jump shot that is deadly from nearly anywhere on the court, "KC" teams with fellow sophomore Tony Traver to provide the Indians with one of the best shooting guard tandems around.

"The potential outside threat they both give us is extremely valuable," says Coach Bruce Parkhill. "Both have the green light shooting-wise and both use pretty good judgment."

For the record, Cieplicki leads a balanced attack with a 15.0 scoring average. His 12.6 mark was tops last year, too. During the Indians' eight-game winning streak earlier this year, which included victories over Wake Forest, James Madison and Old Dominion, he averaged 17.5 points per game. Cieplicki shoots 50 percent from the field, hits 86 percent from the foul line, leads the team in assists and is second in steals.

So much for basketball statistics.

Cieplicki, a Religion major, also leads the squad in scoring in the classroom. He followed a 3.2 grade average as a freshman with a 3.5 this past semester, which included A's in chemistry and French. As a whole, the team boasted a remarkable 3.0 grade average. Keith will also serve next year as a member of the Alumni-Student Liaison Committee.

Cieplicki is the first to admit his life at William and Mary has been no picnic, particularly last year.

"I struggled last year," he relates. "Basketball was much tougher than high school and I would leave practice completely drained. Then I would have to go back and study. It was really tough."

"The biggest adjustment, though, was being away from home," adds the young man who is very close to his family. "I think I called home every day. I'm much more comfortable now. I feel I have learned a lot and matured a lot."

Despite his being a high school All-American and twice Vermont Athlete of the Year, William and Mary was the only school outside of the Northeast to really pursue his for his basketball talents.

"William and Mary offered such a great academic reputation and my parents always stressed education as No. 1," explains Cieplicki, whose father is a high school principal now after serving 18 years as a basketball coach. "William and Mary's basketball schedule impressed me, too. The biggest question about coming here was coping with being so far from home."

A very humble, sensitive and caring young person, Cieplicki is quick to downplay the celebrity status he has achieved around Williamsburg.

"I never want to be a celebrity," he states. "Celebrities are too aloof. I'm a people person."

Keith Cieplicki

Religion plays a big part in Cieplicki's life. Outside of his studies and basketball, he spends much of his time involved in activities at St. Bede's Catholic Church.

"I hope to do some mission work after graduation and then teach and coach in a high school," he says. "You still have a chance to change people's lives in high school. I would like to be able to give young people some direction."

"KC really has his life in order," praises Parkhill. "He is a very sensitive person."

Oddly enough, Cieplicki is not a sports fan. "I've always enjoyed doing but not watching," he explains. "I've never really followed any teams except maybe the Boston Celtics."

Cieplicki's role for William and Mary changed somewhat a month into the season when he took over the point guard position.

"I love playing the point," he says, "because I feel like I'm in control of the whole situation. Scoring is just a small part of my role. I'm responsible for the flow of the game."

Since developing his defensive abilities with the help of the Tribe coaching staff, Cieplicki feels he is a much more complete player.

"I don't feel I have any glaring weaknesses but I'm always working to improve. I guess the one aspect I'll have to work on most this summer is my strength," admits the 6-4, 165-pounder. "I get pushed around too much."

As for the success the Indians have enjoyed this season, Cieplicki points to "maturity and a lot of self sacrifice" as making the difference. "We are very diverse individuals who fit well together."

Probably the best summation of Keith Cieplicki is his own philosophy of life — "Taking whatever you have and being happy with that while always trying to improve, and sharing God's gifts with other people to make them happy, too."

Keith Cieplicki is doing just that.

Five Named To Sports Hall Of Fame

Plummer, Ratcliffe, Benedetto, Grant, Johnson Named To Elite Group

Three former members of the Tribe football team, a former track star, and a member of the class of 1932 who competed in five sports are the newest members of the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame.

Louis Plummer '36, Norfolk, Lelia Chewning Ratcliffe '32, Richmond, Emil O. Johnson '34, Irvington, Va., Denys Grant '58, Richmond, and Elmo Benedetto '37, South Hamilton, Mass., were inducted into Hall of Fame at halftime of the William and Mary-Loyola basketball game on Feb. 5.

Plummer, who received a masters degree from the College in 1949, starred in track for four years at the College, setting a record for the two-mile run. Following graduation, he coached football, baseball and basketball in junior high school and high school, later joining the faculty of Old Dominion as an assistant professor in physical education and as cross-country and track coach. He was promoted to full professor in 1969 and, in 1972, he was named director of evening and summer programs, retiring in 1975. Plummer has been active in alumni affairs and in the Athletic Educational Foundation for the College.

Mrs. Ratcliffe, who is considered by many to be the finest all-around female athlete of her time at the College, competed in basketball, hockey, tennis, track, and swimming and won nine varsity letters. She was also active in student government.

Johnson, a three-year starter at end for Coach John Kellison's outstanding football teams in the 1930s, won six varsity letters including three in track. A former director of the Manufacturing-Division for I.E. duPont Corporation where he served for 36 years before retiring in 1971, Johnson is a member of the President's Council and the Order of the White Jacket. He received the Alumni Medallion in 1973 and has served on an advisory committee to the Department of Chemistry.

Grant started for three years at guard for William and Mary. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, ODK, the Honor Council, and a President's Aide, he was named first team Academic All-South in 1955, 1956, and 1957. A Distinguished Military Graduate, recipient of the Carr Memorial Cup, and winner of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Scholarship, Grant is former senior vice president of Wheat First Securities and is now director of Personnel Services at VEPCO. Grant is a past president of the Society of the Alumni.

A member of the football team and captain of the baseball team while at William and Mary, Benedetto received his M.A. in 1940 from Columbia and his Ph.D. from Boston University in 1953. He served for 45 years in the field of physical education in the New England area in a variety of areas, including coaching and administration. Dr. Benedetto, who was a member of ODK as an undergraduate at the College, served for 30 years as executive director and all-star football and basketball game chairman of the Agganis Foundation and Polio Drive. He was primarily responsible for raising more than $300,000 for scholarship awards for young women and men athletes.

Inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame on Feb. 5 were (left to right) Elmo Benedetto '37, Denys Grant '58, Lelia Chewning Ratcliffe '32, Emil O. Johnson '34, and Louis Plummer '36.

Chapters Strengthen Bond Between College And Alumni

Thousands Remain In Contact With Alma Mater Through Active Chapter Program

The Society of the Alumni of the College of William and Mary in Virginia exists wherever there is an alumnus of the College.

That quotation from the Chapter Handbook tells something about the strong bond between William and Mary alumni and their College. The huge turnouts year after year at Homecoming are a testimony to the love for the College that so many William and Mary alumni have for their alma mater.

But how can dedicated alumni remain in contact with their alma mater in the months or years between Homecoming visits. The answer for thousands of alumni is by joining alumni chapters in their area. And due to the growing interest on the part of alumni — and the hard work of the Alumni Society staff — there are now 37 chapters, interest groups, and contacts in the United States and the United Kingdom.

"The chapter provides a means of maintaining school ties and relationships," says E. J. Bowen '63, past president of the Richmond area chapter, which serves 2600 alumni. "Many alumni here have social and business relationships not related to chapter activities. There is a strong contingency of alumni who follow and support athletics, and for recent graduates, the chapter provides a means of 'keeping up' with school friends in what is, for some, an unfamiliar city."

As Bowen is the first to admit, the Richmond chapter enjoys some distinct advantages by being located in the capital city of Virginia and less than one hour from Williamsburg. Many William and Mary alumni settle there, and many enjoy the sociability of chapter activities: bus trips to away football games, parties before and after William and Mary-Richmond football and basketball games. Other get-togethers include an orientation program for high school seniors interested in the College, a party or picnic in the summer and an annual spring meeting with speakers from William and Mary.

Says Bowen, "We also 'enjoy' large, visible — and vocal — area UVA, VPI and other school alumni groups which serve as a solidifying force. In short, loyalties are maintained."

The Richmond chapter, now presided over by Stephen A. Isaacs '70, was voted the Outstanding Alumni Chapter for 1978, and is one of five chapters to receive that honor since its inception in 1976. The other winners have been Atlanta (1976, 1979), Charlottesville/Highland (1977), Chicago (1980), and Baltimore/Annapolis, which received the top award in 1981 and again in 1982.

Each of these chapters was selected by the Alumni Services Committee of the Alumni Society. Their selection was based on chapter evaluation forms submitted by chapter presidents.

The criteria for judging indicate just how outstanding these chapters are. Each rated highly on variety of programs, percentage of participation, cooperation with the Society of Alumni staff and its responsiveness to requests made by the society. All five also demonstrated financial stability, good communication, involvement with the College and independent, strong management.

As a result of winning, each outstanding chapter is presented a banner at the Alumni Banquet during Homecoming weekend, and has the chapter name engraved on a silver bowl kept at the Alumni House.

Excerpts From The Chapter Handbook

The Alumni are one of the major components of the College family and are the measure of the mission of the College.

The Society of the Alumni of the College of William and Mary in Virginia exists wherever there is an alumnus of the College.

Whatever effects the College is the concern of the Society of the Alumni.

Alumni recognize that their years at William and Mary were made more meaningful by those generations which preceded them, and they have a responsibility to support the institution in such a way that future generations may benefit from the same opportunities.

William A. Armbruster '58, past president of the Baltimore/Annapolis chapter, summarizes in one sentence what makes that chapter an excellent one: "It has a good, hard core of dedicated and loyal William and Mary alumni who enjoy getting together and sharing William and Mary experiences."

Although the Baltimore/Annapolis chapter is only three years old, its officers and members have developed several events which they hope will become traditions. The biggest has been the Tent Party held in conjunction with the Navy-William and Mary football game, so big that it is sometimes called a "mini-Homecoming." With Navy off the William and Mary football schedule for the next three years, the chapter is looking to other foes, like Delaware, to carry on.

Another event brings out the real "flavor" of Maryland. "Our annual crab feast for incoming and current students, plus their parents and area alumni, is highly successful," says James W. Brinkley '59, another past president.

Like the Baltimore/Annapolis chapter, which serves 500 alumni, the Charlottesville/Highland chapter is regional in nature. Serving 700 alumni, the chapter is an "Indian Reservation in Wahoo Land," as chapter president Wordell J. Davis, Jr., puts it. By holding some of its alumni functions at Ash Lawn, home of president James Monroe, the chapter members meet within sight of another alumnus estate — Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson.

The beauty of Ash Lawn provides an elegant setting for activities like the annual James Monroe birthday party and the reception held each August for incoming William and Mary freshmen. The chapter officers and members also like to go beyond serving area alumni and the College exclusively. "The community benefits from our functions as demonstrated by the annual Christmas tree cutting (on the farm at Ash Lawn), which is open to the public," says Woody Davis. The cedar trees aren't sold, but donations are requested and shared with the Ash Lawn Foundation. The chapter's proceeds are passed on to good causes like the Children's Rehabilitation Center in Charlottesville and the Daily Progress Christmas Fund.

"Since winning the Outstanding Chapter Award in 1977 (under the leadership of past president John C. Seidler '63), the alumni competition controlled our better efforts for a repeat performance," comments Davis. But like the other outstanding chapters, Charlottesville/Highland members don't let that faze them — their active support and continuing interest in the College doesn't depend on winning any honor.

That's also true of the Northern Virginia chapter, which has received Honorable Mention twice for its excellent programs. This chapter serves the largest group of alumni — 4000 — which isn't surprising, considering how many William and Mary students come from that area originally. Its past and current presidents are Marge Huff Brown '54 and Charles A. Bish '74, respectively.

From a big group to a similar one: the Chicago chapter, which serves 300 alumni, has been recognized as an Outstanding Chapter. And not without some hard work, as chapter presi-

E. J. Bowen '63 (right) and Tim Hunter '70 accepted the Outstanding Chapter Award for the Richmond chapter from Harriet N. Storm '64 (next to Bowen) and Marilyn Entwisle '44 at the 1978 Homecoming. Bowen and Hunter are both past presidents of the Richmond chapter which is one of five chapters to receive the award since its inception in 1976.

A word about the Homecoming even though it seems ill-timed at this late date. It was an exceptional affair ranging from the Olde Guard luncheon on Friday to the Alumni Dance in Blow Gymnasium Saturday night. The Alumni Society reported record attendance at all functions. Six of our class were registered: Blanton Bruner, Stanley King, Leah James, "Lap" Ferratt, Wilhemina Swann Goetz and I.

A feature this year was a "Recovery Suite" in Holiday Inn on Richmond Road for the "Olde Guard." It opened Friday afternoon and supplied the necessities for an alumni reunion including breakfast Saturday and Sunday mornings. It was expected you would sleep elsewhere. We were deeply indebted to Mrs. Stanley King for overseeing this operation and to Stanley for persuading her to do it.

About three hundred were present for the Alumni Dance. It was lovely, sentimental affair. The orchestra played music tuned to our ears and abilities. I believe most of us felt that Miss Bessie Porter Taylor was present keeping things under control.

We were much interested to learn from Leah James that the James family papers had been contributed to the Earl Gregg Swem Library in memory of Cyrus and Annie Shield James. Four of this family were William and Mary graduates: Arthur W. '12, Benjamin '24, Leah '26, and Ruth '28.

A note from Olive Thomas Kurani stated that she and her husband were returning to Beirut on November 7. For the past six months they lived in Gloucester. Olive's son, who teaches at the American University in Beirut, and her husband's brother have both advised them that the situation there is much improved. I must look at the wrong t.v. news programs. Our prayers go with them.

Cooper Ponton writes that he and his wife, Virginia '29, "are like leaves clinging to a tree and frost can strike at anytime." I know that Cooper can turn a poetic phrase effortlessly, but, Cooper, we are of the same vintage. . . don't push!

Cooper also reported a visit from Phyllis Logan Smoot '30.

Johnson Moss informed us that his children and grandchildren now number ten. To Johnson this means a baseball team plus a bat boy.

Just when I thought Santa Claus has departed here comes the postman with a present for all of us from classmate Robert Randolph Jones, Richmond attorney. He notes: "In Writing for the Alumni News, I think our younger people quite often overlook some of the hardships the older generation experienced coming to school. I enclose an article which I call my Christmas story." (Indeed, some of the younger alumni have told me they read our '28 column.) Let's share Bob's story, and may more of you all contribute:

THE PIPE AND THE POODLE
by Robert Randolph Jones '28

One Christmas Day, when I was home in Richmond on holiday from studies at the College of William and Mary, my uncle gave me a pipe which he had made. I enjoyed it very much and it was with me when I took the C & O back to Williamsburg, taking a seat in the smoking coach to further enjoy the pipe and, as usual, I had not completed all of the assignments that the professors showered on us for the Christmas holidays.

The professors wanted a term paper early in January and I had put off doing my homework until the train trip back to Williamsburg.

I lit my pipe after leaving Toano and while puffing away a high-pitched voice yelled at me: "Will you kindly refrain from smoking that pipe!"

I reminded the lady that we were in the smoking compartment. No more was said for a while and I became intent on my studies. It being a warm day, I laid my pipe down on the side of the window. All of a sudden I saw dent Esther A. Aldige '71 comments. "It's a challenge how to relate events to William and Mary, because Chicago is far away," she says.

The Chicago alumni keep in touch with the College and each other through annual champagne brunches, boating parties, and ice skating parties for current students. Another yearly event which has turned out well, according to Aldige, is the Old Dominion Day party. "We contact other chapters of Virginia colleges, and universities and have a joint party," she says.

The camaraderie which can bring alumni from different schools together to celebrate their distant Virginia alma maters demonstrates the importance of alumni chapters to out-of-state alumni. Ruth Eye Sours '67, past president of the Atlanta chapter, puts it this way: "In Newport News or Washington, where so many alumni are from Virginia, they return to friendships with people they knew in high school or other friends not from William and Mary. In Atlanta, we are all transplants."

During Sours' presidency, the Atlanta chapter began having four annual functions each year, a schedule which has continued under current president Jeffrey P. Mayer '78. Serving 580 alumni, these activities are designed to meet everyone's needs: one activity is cultural in nature, another is entirely social, another is athletic, and the remaining one, a family gathering. Lectures, oyster roasts, and Christmas parties "in the Williamsburg tradition" result, along with rooting for some of Atlanta's pro and college teams at athletic events. And shades of Lake Matoaka, the chapter even has a keg party occasionally. The alumni in Atlanta also raise money for the William and Mary Fund.

"Our chapter really is very special and unique," says Sours, with unabashed pride. The same may be said of all the other outstanding groups William and Mary has — all 37 of them.

BANKS PROMOTE ALUMNI

Two banking concerns have promoted William and Mary alumni to vice presidential positions. Virginia B. Barbour Blain '76 has been named vice president by North Carolina National Bank, which is headquartered in Charlotte, N.C., and Arthur B. Barksdale III '73 has been promoted to vice president in the corporate banking division of the First National Bank of Atlanta.

THREE ALUMNAE NAMED OUTSTANDING YOUNG WOMEN

Three alumnae of the College have been named to the 1982 list of "Outstanding Young Women in America," an award that recognizes the talents, abilities and successes of exceptional young women throughout America. They are: Catherine Dichtel Heffington '77, Newport News, Va.; Dr. Pamela Gayle Whiting '72, Davis, Calif.; and Grace Ellen Springate '79, Columbia, MD. Ms. Heffington, who majored in sociology and religion, is associated with the Hampton General Hospital while Ms. Springate, who majored in German and Theatre and Speech, is a second lieutenant in the Air Force. Dr. Whiting, who majored in biology, is a 1976 graduate of the University of Georgia College of Veterinary Medicine.

a hand shoot by me, grab my pipe and throw it out of the window. My dander rose and I jumped up, snatched the offending lady's poodle from her arms and pitched the pet through the window after the pipe.

The lady screamed. Pandemonium broke loose. Passengers jumped up and the poodle-lady yelled: "He threw Betty out of the window!"

"After she threw my pipe out of the window... the pipe my uncle had given me for Christmas," I tried to explain to the curious.

The train crept slowly into Williamsburg, around the slight curve in the tracks, and I was trying to figure out how to get out without being caught in too much difficulty. But as I tried to slink through the crowd, here came the lady with the Williamsburg police "force."

"What's the trouble?" the policeman asked.

"He threw my dog, Betty, out the window," she accused.

To which I countered: "She threw my pipe out the window first."

The "Law" pondered the problem, and glancing to the west up the rails he saw that the matter had resolved itself:

"Hey! Here comes a little white dog down the track... and he's smoking a pipe!"

I recovered my pipe and everybody was happy... including the policeman.

The End

Margaret Lam '35. Then came Arthur J. "Sprig" Winder '26 and Mary and more recently Cassie Childress '27, of Newport News, and Helen Porter Estes '31.

Our James Merrill (Suey) Eason still is coming through in the clutches. Remember his 2-out 9th inning homer that humbled Yale in its first sports encounter anytime against William and Mary. (Plan to attend next year's Autumn Oyster Bowl in Norfolk, Yale versus William and Mary, in these old schools' first meeting on a gridiron.) Suey will be at the Oyster Bowl, most certainly, itching to catch the first touchdown pass against the Elis as he did in the football game against the Harvards some years ago.

Well, here I was about "scoreless" myself (for this class letter), and you, everyone and all, should know that feeling, when the postman brings me a letter from Suey, saving the "game." It broke the ice for other notes from classmates to follow.

Suey asks us to remember our first employment after being adjudged "educated" and cites his own experience perhaps somewhat different. For one thing, no salary was attached to his work. (Yet it led to a most remarkable and successful career coaching championship football at Hampton High School.)

"The principal of Portlock High School had rounded up 15 boys (I was one of 12 on the Manassas High School squad), who were interested in playing football. The principal was trying to be coach, too, but despite his good intentions it was too much and he 'fired the coach' and gave me the job," Suey recalls.

"Two weeks later we motored to Moyock, N.C., just across the state line, and that was my first, of two, interstate games out of 300. The gridiron we found behind their school building. Its summer's heavy growth of broom sedge had been burned off, the two goal lines drawn through the heavy black straw ashes... soot. A stadium wasn't all that there wasn't.

"No officials... and no game either, said the host coach, unless I would agree to handle all the officiating. Well, the game progressed quite well under the circumstances until in the last quarter when a minor rhubarb erupted. The Portlock quarterback threw a bomb pass and a Portlock end caught it on the first bounce.

"Even the Portlock fans knew that was a no-no, but the Portlock principal stomped onto the field to rectify matters, but he was made to know that this 'Ump' calls 'em like he sees them."

The next week Suey was in Crewe where his assignment was not only football but the stand-in history teacher for four history classes. He struggled with the likes of Hercules, Apollo and Euripides, he recalls, so much so that when he and his wife, Margaret, toured Greece and the Mediterranean Isles, it was all he could do to refrain from putting a cleat dent in the legs of the statues of the Grecian heroes he had wrestled with a half century ago in a little school in Crewe, Virginia.

Death of responses to the S. O. S. for class notes, did I write? Let it not be said that old (or is it olde?) '28 ignored the distress signal.

Malvern Hill Omohundro, Jr., thoughtfully wrote me that he had read an essay, under my byline, in the Thanksgiving issue of his hometown newspaper, the Richmond News Leader. Sure enough, there on the editorial page it was. I was surprised for I had written it the year before for the Washington Post Op Ed page. Based on memory of President Taft coming to my Prince William County to hunt wild turkeys, it was linked to President Reagan's quest for the game in Louisiana, where there were so many "turkeys" in Washington. The News Leader had preserved the piece, and now my writing is one year along to immortality.

Malvern, a key figure in the Huguenot Society at all levels and active in real estate, continues in good works, and can recount many an interesting travel with Elizabeth, plus early Virginia history discoveries nearer home.

Note to George and Elizabeth Hartman: You wrote asking to be advised of the date of the Olde Guard Day next spring. Put a big circle around April 14. Last year's inaugural of the program was an outstanding success and any Olde Guard — person who misses this year should bend over in close proximity to the kicking machine.

A Christmas card from them and also from faithful Bob and Edna Whitley. Bob is such a railroad buff that it shouldn't surprise us if he and Edna came riding in on a William and Mary C & O special for one of our functions. Come to think of it, it might be a well worthwhile idea to schedule such a trip down through Virginia and back to point of origin. All aboard!

Indications are that Dorothy Broughton Brennan, of Portsmouth, will be with us on April 14. We join in her expression of sadness over the news of the passing of Virginia Mills Floyd and Thomas G. Burke. Her summer was spent on the Finger Lakes region and later she did her own Virginia around Lexington, Hot Springs and the Peaks of Otter, and every now and then dashing up to the 'Burg to breakfast at Kingsmill.

What a crowded schedule Eliza Hunter Trainham maintains since she retired from the State Department of Education; meetings of the D. A. R., Iota Chamber of Delta Kappa Gamma, AARP, American Red Cross, Riverside Hospital Auxiliary Volunteers, church circles, and a volunteer at the Kecoughtan Veterans Hospital. And William and Mary gets its share of attention from her home in Newport News.

We'll look for Robert Randolph Jones and his new 50-year Virginia State Bar veteran's pin at Olde Guard Day. He and Florence visited friends in Fort Lauderdale and New Smyrna Beach, Florida, and later took a trip to upstate New York (where the place names puzzle me in the matter of spelling).

Don't tell Dr. John Lesslie Hall that I missed another word. In one of his spelling bees it was boys against coeds, and he hated to teach coeds, so he said. I was the last male facing the lone skirted survivor across the room. Here came the word "sacrilegious" and I spelled "S A C R E ---" and I was called out. Of course the lady, having the benefit of my mistake, was the winner, and she might have been anyway for she was one of what we termed "Mature Minds" — teachers back to earn a degree.

Did a delightful item from Rose Mountcastle Flannery make the last column appearance?

Edwin Lewis Lamberth and Dorothy spent a good holiday around Thanksgiving visiting their son, Dr. Edwin, Jr., M. D., and his wife Caroline, in Mobile, Alabama.

Marjorie Lacy Deering Burns' eldest granddaughter, Emily Burns, has done us proud, a psychology major at the University of North Carolina and seeking to enter graduate school this year. Not to be outdone, educationwise, is her eldest grandson, C. L. (Chuck) Burns, of St. Louis, an honor student at Tulane University, with a major in computer science. No wonder Marjorie can report good health and life enjoyment on "Golden Pond." Hopefully, the grandchildren have inherited her happy spirit.

Among our classmates who can compare observations on the countries abroad are Rose Mountcastle Flannery and her husband Vern, who on a three-weeker saw the Adriatic Coast of Yugoslavia and many historic places in Greece and the Greek Isles, the latter aboard the cruise ship Sea Cloud, a four-master, formerly the Marjorie Meriweather Post. Another highlight was a visit to Ephesus, Turkey. Then there was a month in Tyler, Texas, visiting their daughter and family, and the rest of the summer in Provo Canyon, Utah. Now the winter in Mesa, Arizona, as usual. How about coming to Williamsburg on April 14?

Note to all classmates: In case you have a difficult time remembering dates, please instill in your head that of April 14 for the second Olde Guard Day, to mingle with each other and leaders of the current senior class, administration and faculty.

How to remember? It is the day before deadline for our IRS revelation for 1982... and the day after the birthday of a distinguished alumnus, Thomas Jefferson.

Since OWJ has just celebrated the tenth anniversary of its founding you may wish to know the names of those from this class who worked in the dining hall. They are Walter Blake, Albert Cornell, Willard Entwisle, William J. Fields, Emmett Frizzell, Norris Halpern, Harry Light, Simon Shubitz, and Edward Trice.

The following class members were registered at Homecoming 1982: Peggy Nininger Bailey, Betty Lanier, Dorothy Lankford Bradford, Ned Bradford, Harvey Trevilian, Sarah Everett Woolford, Eleanor Williamson James, Lucie Burke Smith, W. R. (Bill) Savage, Frances Griffin Waters, Norris E. Halpern, Dr. Albert Cornell, Ed Toone and Ed Trice.

Notes from Betty:

A letter from Eleanor James states that they are spending the winter at Melbourne, Florida, except for Christmas with one daughter, Crellin '63. On February 6, she and Joe along with Crellin and Cynthia, another daughter who resides in Albuquerque, will leave from Miami on a cruise of several Caribbean Islands, then through the Panama Canal in daylight so as to see the activities of the locks. They will leave the ship at Acapulco, Mexico, and fly back to Miami except Cynthia who will fly to Albuquerque.

A letter from Wyllhart Bayliss Kenny informs me that they spent the Christmas holiday with their daughter, Betty Anne, in her villa at Hilton Head and that the four of them are going to the North Carolina mountains for the New Year weekend. Billy told of the wonderful trip she had to New England in the fall. I might mention that Billy was the first member of our class to become a great-grandma.

A note from Mary Parry said that she had a welcome August visit from Anne McNulty Stone. In November 1981 Mary went on a tour of England, France, Germany, and Italy. She crossed the Atlantic on the QE2. This past summer she visited in St. Paul and the northern Wisconsin woods. Her special comments was that, "I may not look, but beginning to feel, my age."

Ann Messick Mogle and her husband, who now reside in California, went to the Peoples Republic of China in November on a trip sponsored by the Alumni. They flew to Tokyo from San Francisco and then to the Peking area where they saw pandas, the Summer Palace, Temple of Heaven, Great Wall, Ming tombs, and the Forbidden City. Next they flew to Shanghai and from there they went by rail to Soochow. The train was very modern and "plush." They enjoyed the view of the countryside. She said Soochow

OCTOBER 22-23
HOMECOMING
YOU'RE INVITED!

Our 55th Reunion Year! (Or is my arithmetic in error?) Who in 1928 would have thought it or even thought about it?

So, get out your old yellow rain slickers, hightop galoshes with (how many?) metal buckles dangling and jingling, or leather-heeled shoes (to make a "sound" impression) and something "Finchley," men. And you coeds, come in your long strings of beads, short-skirted loose dresses (at least they were short when you sat down, thank you), or shirtwaists with wide collar and little tie. Don't forget the little snug hats. Might be Sunday and Dr. J. A. C. Chandler would insist on formality, most surely, for church attendance. P.S., bring your slitted flapper dance gown, by all means, and pre-nylons silk stockings. Garters? Has anyone preserved a slicker adorned with autographs and bright mots or an old four-wheeled rumble-seater with an appropriate name painted on rear or hood? Even pictures of the period should be welcome at the Alumni House's memorabilia rooms.

Swimming, anyone? (Remember how Professor Havilah Babcock would ask us, in his journalism class on a balmy day, how many "tin lizzies" were available, and if enough suggest that we hie to our rooms for bathing suits? He would explain that we would gather at Jamestown Island, call us together and drill an important point in English into our heads and then we could take a swim.

Swimming, anyone? There's a nucleus of the Olde Guard now residents in the Westminster-Canterbury House on the sandy shores of Chesapeake Bay near Cape Henry. (Swimming in season.) Edwin Lewis Lamberth and Dorothy were early settlers, followed by two sisters of our Elizabeth Lam Vieg, of California, Katherine Lam '31 and street, as a center for dispensing office and blankets, staffing it with residence hall advisors.

Jefferson Hall Hit By Fire

College Responds Quickly To Jan. 20 Crisis

Returning to James Blair Hall, Sadler and Lombardo first took several emergency measures, including the securing of more blankets and shelter from the Student Health Center, the Athletic Department, and Colonial Williamsburg. They instructed resident advisors to stay with their students through the night and to meet with them at 8 a.m. for further instructions.

With the help of David Charlton '73, director of auxiliary enterprises, they called the campus food service and opened up the Campus Center where the Little Theatre would serve as a rendezvous point for students at 8:30 a.m. and the Wigwam would serve breakfast.

At 3:30 a.m., the fire department notified Sadler that Barrett, adjacent to Jefferson, as well as the homes across Jamestown Road which house students, would have to be evacuated. Calling resident advisors, Sadler directed them to inform the students to dress warmly, take a blanket, and leave the building. Other residence hall staff went door to door along Jamestown Road and gave the evacuation order, marking doors with X's as the students left.

Meanwhile, Lombardo and Ficarro prepared a master list of all residents in Jefferson for police and fire officials and as a way to determine that all students were safe. At 4:50 a.m., with flames clearly visible in Jefferson Hall, Sadler made the decision to contact the Red Cross which offered not only clothing and financial support but also contacted Colonial Williamsburg which made the Motor House available free of charge (and later offered free meals to the students at a nearby cafeteria).

At 5:45 a.m., firemen warned Sadler that a transformer near Jefferson was in danger, and if it went out, it would throw that side of the campus into darkness, possibly creating a panic in the dormitories. Sadler quickly informed the residence staff which conveyed the word throughout the dorms so residents would be prepared.

Meanwhile, offers of help began to pour into the student affairs office where the phones had been staffed by resident advisors and other volunteers, freeing Sadler and Lombardo to return to Jefferson where they moved about, answering questions and providing assistance.

Throughout the early morning, other administrators moved into action. The Office of University Communications put word out on the campus and local radio stations for Jefferson residents to meet in the Campus Center Little Theatre at 8:30 a.m. By 6 a.m., a bus system from campus to the Motor House had been organized and the Registrar's Office and Treasurer's Office had been notified to be available at the Campus Center to issue new identification cards, meal tickets, and small loans to the students at the 8:30 meeting. The Campus Bookstore opened to make books available, as well as individual credit accounts for students who had no money. President Graves offered the President's House to several handicapped students from Jefferson who needed special housing.

Sadler's office initiated a newsletter with relevant information pertaining to the fire in an effort to quell any rumors that might arise, and announcements went out to faculty that some students would miss classes because of the fire. And when the endangered transformer did indeed go out, the Plant Department had the lines rerouted and power restored within a half hour.

At 8 a.m., Sadler and Lombardo met with the residence hall staff at Taliaferro and briefed them on the developments up to that time. They then moved to the Little Theatre to meet with the Jefferson Hall students, confirming that each resident was safe by calling their names, and, if a student did not answer, asking other students if they knew where he was. The meeting indicated that the students were safe, and by noon a confirmation of a student who was sick in the infirmary completed the final accounting.

Both President Graves and Sadler addressed the students, who were in a "state of shock" and quite "down," according to Sadler, until Head Jefferson Hall Resident Advisor Alecia Inez talked to them. "Jefferson the dorm is gone," she said, "but I hope we can keep the spirit alive." By the time she was finished, Sadler said, the students were on their feet cheering. "It was the turning point," said Sadler. "She displayed a tremendous ability to get them up."

The fact that the Red Cross was available with clothing and vouchers for local stores, the Treasurer's office with money, the Registrar's office with identification cards, and the housing office with room assignments at the Motor House raised the students' spirits too. Sadler asked each student to call home, telling them to use any administrator's phone they wished. They apparently complied because, Sadler said, few parents called the College to ask about their sons and daughters.

Within hours of the fire, Charlton was on the telephone lining up a permanent residence for the students. Within two days, an arrangement had been established with the Commonwealth Inn, where 135 students now reside. Others moved back on to campus, while a handful who have homes in the Williamsburg area chose to move back home.

If such a disaster can have a happy ending, there were glimmers of smiles on Friday when firemen moved back into Jefferson Hall to assess the damage. Although the west wing was destroyed, many of the rooms in the east wing had suffered only smoke and water damage, and some personal belongings were unharmed. As students went back into the dorm and returned with cherished possessions — a gold chain, a prized guitar, pictures of family and friends, a Pooh bear, a baby blanket, and even a Timex watch which was still ticking — cheers went up from the students who had lined up outside of the dorm.

Karen Robinson, a freshman from Darmstadt, Germany, came out smiling with a gold watch her grandmother had left her in her will. Amazingly, it was in tact, although the room had 15 inches of water on the floor. One fireman called it a miracle. And in many ways, despite the events of January 20, 1983, William and Mary felt that same luck applied to its students who had come through the great Jefferson Hall fire unharmed.

Flames lit up the early morning skies of Williamsburg on Jan. 20 as they broke through the roof of Jefferson Hall (above) and caused severe fire, smoke and water damage (left) to the dormitory, located on Jamestown Road. During the night, tired Jefferson Hall students Mary Drain, a resident advisor in Jefferson, and her roommate Cindy Goff (right) comfort each other as they meet in Chandler Hall lobby to plan emergency measures. Below, President Graves talks to a Richmond Times-Dispatch reporter while firemen battle the stubborn blaze in icy 14-degree weather. President Says Thanks

There is no way that I can adequately thank each of the alumni who has offered, spontaneously and generously, support and assistance to the 185 students of Jefferson who have lost their William and Mary home. Your aid, in spirit and in substance, has made an enormous difference in helping these brave young men and women rebuild their lives. I am very grateful to the scores of you from whom I have heard and the untold numbers who have come forward anonymously in time of need. William and Mary has suffered a tragedy, but we are so very grateful that the students are safe and well. The College is stronger than ever, thanks to alumni who care.

College Suffers Nine Fires Since 1693

Fires have been a problem for William and Mary almost from its founding in 1693. The Sir Christopher Wren Building and the President's House have been badly damaged three times each by fires and three other major structures, Rogers Hall, Phi Beta Kappa Hall, and now Jefferson Hall, have been hit by fires once each.

- 1705 -- Wren Building is gutted by fire.
- 1781 -- President's House suffers severe damage to much of the interior.
- 1859 -- Wren Building fire destroys much of the interior.
- 1862 -- Wren Building fire destroys the Italinat towers and much of the interior.
- 1879 -- President's House fire guts central stairwell from first floor to the attic.
- 1930 -- Rogers Hall (now Chancellors Hall) fire destroys the second floor and roof of the building.
- 1953 -- Phi Beta Kappa Hall (now Ewell Hall) fire destroys rear auditorium. North wing with national records of PBK is saved.
- 1983 -- Jefferson Hall fire badly damages bulk of interior and collapses roof.

Community, Alumni Rally To Help

Red Cross Leads Prompt Rescue Effort

Within hours after the fire broke out in Jefferson Hall on Jan. 20, William and Mary began receiving offers to help that ultimately involved alumni, faculty, merchants, organizations, and a wide variety of friends of the College.

One of the College's best friends proved to be the American Red Cross which launched a relief effort at 4:15 a.m. on the day of the fire. By the time dawn broke, the Williamsburg-James City County chapter had helped locate housing for the students as well as blankets, food and clothing. Included in its assistance to the students were vouchers worth $200 that could be used to buy clothing at a local department store.

Colonial Williamsburg provided free shelter at the Motor House, where the students stayed for several days until they moved to the Commonwealth Inn which the College leased on a long term basis. In addition, CW gave the students free meals at the Cascades restaurant.

Many merchants and individuals provided money and personal items, including clothes, pens, linens, sheets, towels, books, and toiletries, as well as discounts on eye glasses. The Alumni House, which served as a drop-off point for clothing, reported that the OWJ room filled four times with clothes from the local community. Several alumni chapter presidents also called the Alumni House with offers to help, and the Society of the Alumni itself offered small, short-term loans to the students.

Even sister schools in Virginia rallied to the needs of the students. Randolph Macon and Radford colleges each sent several boxes of clothing, and Richard Bland, a branch campus of William and Mary, sent $200 from students at the Petersburg school.

By early February, William and Mary had received more than $23,000 in contributions from alumni, friends, students and faculty, including $2,000 from a benefit held in the Hoi Polloi on campus. Churches also collected donations, and even a local roller rink held a benefit to raise funds. The money will be used to meet the uninsured losses of students and their personal needs. Any left over funds will go to the Red Cross, which estimated its expenses would exceed $47,000 far in excess of its $4,000 budget for the entire 1982-83 year.

Contributions may be sent to the Jefferson Hall Fund in care of the College or to the American Red Cross chapter in Williamsburg.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES

Historic Hall Housed Freshmen Since 1921

Many alumni must have felt like Agnes Winn Paschall '31 when they heard about the fire in Jefferson Hall. "I couldn't go and watch because I knew I would break into tears," recalls Mrs. Paschall, who lives in nearby Charles City County with her husband, Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32, former president of William and Mary.

Although the dormitory was badly damaged by the fire, the Richmond architectural firm of Wright, Jones and Wilkerson has determined that the exterior walls can be saved and used in the reconstruction for aesthetic purposes.

"We think it is extremely important to retain the total exterior of the building as it was originally constructed because it is so totally related to the 1930 campus," said Hubert L. Jones, who added that the reconstructed building will have the same roof line with a slate roof, dormer windows and Georgian cornices. The walls, which will not be load-bearing, will be braced for safety.

Mrs. Paschall lived in Jefferson Hall during her freshman year. Nearly 30 years later her daughter Tish '64 was a freshman resident in the same building. "Because it has been a freshman dormitory for so long," says Tish, "I think it brings back more memories and is more significant to alumni than perhaps any other dorm on campus." Mrs. Hilda Crawford Whitehouse '25 of Hingham, Mass., wrote (see letter on P. 5) about "how upset and distressed I was to see the picture in the Boston Herald on Jan. 21 of Jefferson Hall burning." She recalls the fond memories that she and two of her schoolmates, Elizabeth Walmsley '25 of Philadelphia and Elizabeth Robinson Cowne '25, all of whom were freshmen residents of the dorm when it opened in 1921, have of Jefferson Hall.

When it opened in 1921, Jefferson was the first dormitory built at William and Mary specifically for women and the first built on the old campus during the administration of President J. A. C. Chandler. Jefferson was followed by several other buildings, including Barrett Hall, linked to Jefferson by a breezeway.

Constructed of Flemish bond fleck brick in Georgian architecture to complement the Wren Building and other nearby historic buildings, Jefferson has large, but unusable, chimneys and a high pitched roof. Although the roof was destroyed, the facade of the building, including the chimneys, are still in tact. The building had a center hall with rooms on each side (the east and west wing), with four floors, including the basement.

Until it was converted into student rooms, the basement contained a swimming pool and gymnasium. The pool was used until 1953, according to the College Archives, and the gymnasium until 1964.

Jefferson was the third dormitory renovated under President Graves' administration, at a cost of $830,000. Completed in 1977, it included new plumbing, heating and electrical systems.

MBA GRADUATE JOINS KENNAMETAL DIVISION

John R. Halberda '72 MBA has been named the new marketing and sales director for the Mining Tool Group of Kennametal Inc. of Latrobe, Pa. He joined Kennametal from the Carborundum Co. where he was manager of new business development.

was a fascinating city of gardens. They next took a boat trip on a portion of the Grand Canal which the Chinese have used for transportation for over 800 years. They viewed the strange limestone formations at Kweilin. They went from Canton to Kowloon on board a deluxe train. Along the route they saw people farming without the benefit of any mechanized equipment. Some were using "water buffalo power." From the bustling city of Kowloon they went to another sophisticated city, Hong Kong, which was also teeming with activity. She closed by saying, "My head is still whirling with new thoughts, ideas and feelings which this trip stimulated in me."

Anne McNulty Stone says she is having a busy time trying to keep up with six grandchildren, but she is enjoying every minute of it. There does seem to be a variety in her activities which consists of hauling them to soccer and basketball games, dance recitals, etc., etc. She says she is still trying to get back to Williamsburg for one of the Olde Guardie festivities.

A short note from Sally Copenhaver Southworth tells how much she enjoyed the get together last April, the first Olde Guardie Day.

Notes from Ed:

Ed Fales, who resides in Falls Village, Connecticut, came to William and Mary to speak to a group of students on "Careers in Writing and Publishing." This was a career seminar sponsored by the Office of Career Planning. Mr. Fales was a French and English major at the College and has since worked for numerous popular magazines and has written several books. He offered students an amusing and insightful look into the lifestyle and the responsibilities of a special assignment writer and offered suggestions for students interested in a writing career.

C. Ambrose Turner, who is a retired minister of the United Methodist Church and is now residing in Norfolk, preached in the Wren Chapel, Sunday, October 3, 1982, at a reunion of those who lived in Williamsburg forty or more years ago. Ambrose was married while he attended the College and he lived in a rented house with his wife and two children. He was a full-time resident of Williamsburg.

Bill Fields reports that he and his wife had planned to attend the 50th Reunion but they were in China at that time. Since he has not been back since the early 50's we trust that Olde Guardie Day, April 14, 1983, will be open for them. If not, probably they can make the next Homecoming in October 1983 and attend the Olde Guardie luncheon.

Addison Baker, from whom we have heard nothing in a long time, reports that he retired to Cape Cod in 1970 and is enjoying his hobby, wood carving.

Those of us who attended the Olde Guardie luncheon had a great time reminiscing. It was Bernice's and my pleasure to be at the table with Dick and Ruth James and Peggy Nininger Bailey. As you will remember Peggy is the girl who married the Professor. It was the first time they had been back since 1970, our 40th Anniversary. Floyd, a Pennsylvanian, came to the College in the fall of 1926 to teach industrial arts and after he arrived he was assigned a freshman math class and that is where he met our classmate, Peggy. He told us of his first trip to Jamestown which was after nightfall. He said that after having studied about Jamestown being the first permanent settlement in America that he expected to see a large town. Finally, he saw the lights of what he thought was the town only to be informed by one of those riding with him that they were lights on the ferry boat. He was disappointed in the lack of growth of Jamestown over so many years!

Dick and Ruth are promising to visit with Bernice and me during '83 so we are looking forward to it. Dick and I were good friends during college days. Many will remember his mother as house mother for one of the sororities.

Recently Helen Nance Joyner, a member of our class, invited me to speak to the Courtland Woman's Club.

Helen married Marion R. Joyner '27 and she has spent all of her married life in Courtland where her husband continues to operate his business. She, among others in our class, got her Mrs. before receiving her B.S. They have a daughter, Gladys, who resides with her husband and children in Warsaw, Virginia. Their son, Marion Rivers, Jr., lives with his family in Richmond. After rearing her family Helen returned to teaching until retirement age. She has been active in the Woman's Club and the Courtland United Methodist Church where she has served in many capacities. At the present she is president of the Southampton-Franklin Retired Teachers Association.

Helen was the first of our classmates I met at the College. It was at the reception for the class. We were introduced to each other by Dr. John Garland Pollard, a professor of government. He later was elected Governor of Virginia in 1929.

Our class sustained another loss on November 17, 1982, with the passing of Benjamin Moses (Moe) Schwetz (details in obituaries). An impressive statement from his widow is that, "He adored his College and the teachers he had."

Let us begin making plans to attend the Olde Guardie Day festivities April 14, 1983. If you cannot do this, why not plan to be present for Homecoming in October 1983?

Members of our class will regret to learn that Betty Lanier, our co-correspondent, was hit by an automobile on a Petersburg street December 8, 1982, and she sustained a fractured pelvic bone and a broken leg. She will be glad to hear from any of you at her home: 17 Corling Street, Petersburg, Virginia 23803.

Betty has requested that any class correspondence for the rest of the year be sent to me at Drewryville, Virginia 23844.

This has been a wonderful year for the class of '32. A great reunion in May and a most successful Homecoming in Nov. We are now members of the "Olde Guardie" but the spirit of 32 is still going strong.

It was good to see many of you at Homecoming. Some of you registered but many did not. Those signing the register were:

Ben Bruner, Rip Collins, John Demarest, George Deggs, Brooks George, Joe Gianelli, Dutch Heltzel, George Jones, Red Maxey, Pat Paschall, Bill Renn, Howard Sizemore, Jack Tuthill, Bea & Powell Wartel.

We left Williamsburg on Sunday November 7th and drove to Berkley Plantation to the Thanksgiving Celebration. It was one of those perfect days and a most interesting service. The guest speaker was our classmate and former President of the College, Davis Y. Paschall. Those who did not go really missed one of the special events in Virginia.

I was sorry to hear of Gordon Vliet '54, leaving William and Mary. He will be greatly missed.

Our thanks to Betty George '33, saying she has located a classmate we didn't have listed. Nancy Roberdeau Allison Walker, lives at Mt. Holly, VA 22524. Telephone: 804-472-3119. Robbie will be welcomed by the Olde Guardie.

Jack Tuthill '32 has been to Evansville University in Evansville, Indiana as a Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellow.

RICHMOND ALUMNI MEET

Over 175 Richmond alumni and friends gathered for a brunch at Willow Oaks Country Club preceding the W&M-Richmond football game November 20.

Joseph Spicer has retired from the George Washington University after thirty years service as University cashier. He now resides in Silver Spring, Maryland.

I hope all of you will have a glorious year and keep the spirit of '32 alive in your heart.

What a thrill it is to visit Williamsburg during the Christmas season! How beautiful everything is with all the lovely, traditional decorations.

Again, this year, we had the pleasure of having sis, Pat Updegrove '40, visit from Texas. Lois Leach '40 and Selma Lawrence invited us to have lunch at the Inn on Thursday after Christmas. We were joined by Dot C. Rawl '40 who was returning home to Goldsboro, N.C., after a visit with her children in Washington. We were also happy to have our daughter, Jane, and son, Larry Jr., and the grandchildren with us at Christmas.

It was good to hear again from Ann Goodykoontz (Louisville, Ky.), and to receive her family news letter. She writes that she had a wonderful time reminiscing with Pat Clarke Fontaine '31, who visited her from St. Augustine, Florida, in October. Jack, her husband, is busy with plans for a trip west next summer — but they are looking forward to our class reunion in 1984.

I also had a nice note, earlier, from Harriet C. Mead '35 from Orlando, Florida, saying that she had enjoyed the alumni reports. This was a rough year, in matters of health, for the Meads, but both she and Tom are all right now. This note was a "bonus," and we enjoyed hearing from her again at Christmas. She enclosed an interesting article from the Williamsburg Gazette concerning Howard Scammon '34. He has retired from his career in acting and directing, but he remains active in a variety of local stage presentations. In his appearance with the Chamber Ballet Company, he will play Mother Gigone in the "Nutcracker." To allow dancers to hide beneath the expansive skirt costume he will wear, Scammon will enter the stage on a pair of shoes with 12-inch soles.

"That Scammon is really something else again," Harriet wrote. She and Tom enjoyed having dinner with him on their last visit to Williamsburg.

Ann, Harriet, and I all remember Howard with affection. Ours were still depression days, as many of you will recall. Howard wanted us all to be able to see the then current production of "Hansel and Gretle" and so put the three of us on the make-up committee. The program listed us (grandly?) as follows: Gretle, light juvenile, Harriet Council; Hansel, light juvenile, Dot Ford; angels, no make-up, Ann Pharr.

I find Howard's name listed, as was Mack G. Britton (Orlando, Florida), among the members of our class in the OWJ in the nice thank you sent by Howard M. Smith '43. He wrote that the 10th anniversary celebration was a huge success — as well it should have been! I think Howard had contacted every class in his promotion efforts. (President Graves, please take note when future such efforts are needed!)

The other nine active members were listed in my last report. And speaking of that original list, I received a delightful, but gently chiding, letter from Bernard B. Brugh (Landover, Md.). Bernard writes, "Your column listed the names of those of the class of '34 who are active members of the OWJ and lo! the name of Hogh Brugh led the list! I am called Bernie by some. . . Bud by my family and friends; Ben by two or three; B.B. by one classmate; and Bernard (my mother's family name); but NEVER Hogh!" A thousand apologies, Bernard. And let this be a lesson — never accept a hand-written list of names without checking three times — I only checked twice. At any rate, the error did prompt a nice, newsy letter from a former class reporter. I hope we will receive news of his spring visit to the College to see Eddie Plummer '33 and other members of the class inducted into the Olde Guardie.

Had a nice note from June W. Butters '40 (Falls Church) saying she'd read about us in the class notes. She writes that she is still busy with Republican duties. Larry and I had a nice visit with her and her husband, Frank, when the GOP State convention was last held at Virginia Beach.

Just received a pleasant letter from Kavey Sparrow (Martinsville, Va.). He writes that he and Kitty (Vaden) '37 are enjoying their retirement. Kitty stays busy with church work, her garden club, and her flower garden. Kavey is a Paul Harris Fellow in the Martinsville Rotary Club. He has had perfect attendance for 35 years and attended 1,831 consecutive meetings! He still enjoys tennis throughout the year. Their son, Kavey, finished the College of William and Mary in 1979 and is now attending the Medical College of Virginia. They also have two lovely granddaughters. They see Bob Vaden, Mary's brother, often and he is fine. We hope the Sparrows and Bob will make our fiftieth!

In a note forwarded by the Alumni Office, Lillian C. Sterling writes that she and her husband, Lester, accompanied their daughter, Peggy, and her husband to visit their grandson at Fairchild AFB in Spokane, Washington, in June. They flew Northwest Orient and also went on an extended tour of the Pacific Northwest. In October they received the happy news of the birth of their first great-grandchild, Sarah Christine Jones, who was born in Fairchild.

Nat Kates (Palm Beach, Florida) writes that he and his wife, Jeanette, are looking forward to celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary and his 50th class reunion within a short time of each other in 1984. The Kates, parents of three sons and two grandsons, were delighted with the recent arrival of a beautiful, blue eyed, blonde, baby girl, Kira Robinson Kates, to their middle son, Ken, and his wife. Congratulations are in order also to Nat on his 70th birthday and for his best round of golf ever — a one over par 73 at the Palm Beach National Country Club.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Sue Lancaster McLean (Pearisburg, Va.). The Alumni Office has received word that Sue's husband, George, died July 14.

Guy Wilson Daugherty (Rochester, Minn.) retired September 30 from the staff of the Mayo Clinic after 41 years of training and practice at Mayo. Guy is a member of the class of '34, although his degree was awarded in '37. Many of you may remember the very fine write-up given Guy in the 1979 Re-Echo. Guy has been a staunch supporter of the College and of the Alumni. He served on the Board of Directors for six years (1967-74) and was appointed to the President's Council, as well as being a recipient of the Alumni Medallion in 1974. We hope that the surprise family celebration in October was a big success and join in sending best wishes to him, his wife, and family.

Ruth Proudman Bierman writes from Piqua, Ohio, that she and her husband, David, have enjoyed 10 years of retirement, spending their summers sailing, hiking, and playing tennis. In the winter, they head south to the Caribbean and spend two months in Florida. Ruth says that they are proud of their 10 grandchildren.

Frankie Martens was kind enough to send the list of those signing up for Homecoming

NASA HONORS ALUMNUS

William C. Walton Jr. '58 of Hampton has received a NASA Exceptional Engineering Achievement Medal in a ceremony at the space agency's Langley Research Center. Walton is Group Leader of the Rotorcraft Vibrations Group, Loads and Aeroelasticity Division which conducts research on rotorcraft vibrations. He has been with NASA since 1957.

'64 ALUMNUS IS LAW PARTNER

A merger of two Atlanta, Ga., law firms has made a 1964 William and Mary graduate a partner in Atlanta's largest law firm. Walter D. Vinyard, Jr., '64, became a partner in Alston & Bird in December when the firms of Alston, Miller & Gaines and Jones, Bird & Howell merged, bringing together 132 attorneys in a single law firm.

PHYSICS PROGRAM IS TOPS

The graduate physics program at William and Mary has been named one of the top programs in the nation by the Conference Board of Associated Research Councils. The rating was based on nationwide evaluations of graduate research doctorate programs conducted by leading educators for the Conference Board. The national study evaluated 15 elements including the reputation of the department, the number of students who received national fellowships and faculty publications.

'82: Harriet Pittard Beales, Bernard B. Brugh, Evelyn Maynard Harris, Murray Harrison, L. Eldon James, Helen Ridgely Kennedy, Clara Thompson Knight, Ralph Levine, Lucille Hurst Parrish, Kitty Blanton Seay, and Irvin Upson.

I hope all of you had an opportunity of joining in the discussion of today's key foreign policy issues in "Great Decisions '83," the annual program sponsored by the Foreign Policy Association (non-partisan). It is sponsored in Norfolk by the World Affairs Council. For the name and address of your local coordinator, you may write FPA, 205 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10016.

One additional note that should be of interest to all garden and flower lovers. Judith Green, in her "Tipster" column in Jan. 4's Virginian-Pilot, noted that the College of William and Mary is "hosting a series of free guided botanical tours of the campus." The college greenhouses are open for winter tours and in warmer weather, the tour will include a visit to the wildflower refuge. All tours are scheduled M-F, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. For reservations, you may call (1-804) 253-4240.

Let us hear from you! Every good wish for '83!

Among those attending homecoming in 1982 were Dick Velz, Jimmie Savedge, Sam Schlapfer and Preacher Franklin. Others may have attended, but did not register.

Dr. Frederick A. Eidsness attended The International Water Supply Association 14th Congress in Zurich. Fred is still active in Environmental Engineering. He hopes to attend homecoming in 1983.

Virginia Benson says she is now retired after spending 40 years in education. She continues to live in Fairfax, Va. She enjoys a number of activities, including Bible Studies, and visiting friends and family.

Edith Rahmer Lubben says she still works at the First National Bank of New Jersey. She expected to visit her son in Atlanta for Thanksgiving. She wrote that she had no special news. Just to hear from you is news, Edith.

Jasper "Red" Kranke writes that he has a new granddaughter, Amanda Marie Mortenson. He, also has a new great-grandson, Michael Scott Kranke. Both were born in 1982. He also said that he had dinner with Drs. Marion and Claudine Bryant last August. He adds that John Feagler, M.D., and wife, Susan, and two children from Omaha, visited him.

Addison Reid Brown is a retired C. P. A. from Price Waterhouse & Co.

Mary Jean Roth Kuhn took a long trip to Germany, Vienna, Venice, Florence and Paris. She says she seems to have ridden every train in Europe. She thinks Paris is the loveliest of all cities. Now she expects to stay home for a while.

Cora Jane Quarrier Parker did a lot of travelling in 1982. She made a trip to Central America to visit friends. Then in June, she had a delightful trip to Spain, visiting the Basque Country, with a wonderful group from Old Dominion U. After that she went to Washington, D.C. to see the Goya exhibit at the Smithsonian. After that she drove over the mountains into West Virginia where she stayed at the Greenbriar with her sister, Emily Quarrier '37.

Jean Wilcox Clark says she is having a wonderful time being retired. She does painting, weaving, sewing, photography, travelling and bird watching — almost anything except housekeeping! Her husband, Robert, is still working. They are both part time farmers. They have four children and two grandchildren. She says she enjoyed the class of '35's reunion in 1981 but could not make the class of '36's reunion.

It is reported that these members of our class registered at the Alumni House during Homecoming last year: Mildred Albee Babb, Bob and Bert Sheeran, Peggy Heatwood Lockwood, Dede and George Bunch, Harvey Shuler. Let's have ten times that many next October 21 and 22!

OCTOBER 22-23
HOMECOMING
YOU'RE INVITED!

Mollie Waters Christie wrote that she and Bill spent Thanksgiving in Williamsburg and "its charm is undiminished." They spent six weeks in Arizona this winter with their son and his family and succeeded in spoiling their little grandsons.

Leslie Potter echoed Mollie's sentiment: "I spent Labor Day week-end at William and Mary and Williamsburg. I hadn't been there in several years and it's as beautiful as ever."

Dottie Kincaid Portz says: "I can't believe that it's been almost five years since that last big reunion in Williamsburg. But somebody is surely spreading the word. I've been getting little question-hints about 'Are you coming down next fall?' Husband Woody enjoys being retired; I say he's retired to the garage, where he keeps his toys (antique cars). We drove the '34 Packard sedan out to Salt Lake City in September. It was quite a trip!... I'm still practicing "people" law and must confess that I find great satisfaction in problem solving."

From Bill Arthur: "Dot and I spent most of October at the National Judicial College in Nevada, where I was a faculty advisor. It was an enjoyable and worthwhile experience."

Tom Crowson has recently retired from his position at Winthrop College. He and his wife plan to travel but keep a home base in Rock Hill or Clemson, South Carolina, where Tom will complete work on two books. We probably all know the feeling he describes: "In retrospect my 40 years in the classroom and several years in Federal Service seem to have slipped by as imperceptibly as the river bank when one lies back in his canoe to watch the sky, little noting how the river's swift current pulls him along." Happy retirement, Tom!

Virginia Betts Chapman and her husband combined a trip to see the fall foliage in the Blue Ridge and Smoky Mountains with a visit to the World's Fair at Knoxville.

Mary Virginia Flanary Edmonds lives in Big Stone Gap, Virginia, and may have crossed paths with the Chapmans at the Fair. She wrote: "After teaching 36 years at Dryden (Virginia) High School, I retired in 1974. (Nixon and I retired the same day!) We spent subsequent winters in Venice, Florida, until last winter when health factors kept us at home, close to our doctors... My husband is trustee on the Slep Foundation of Big Stone Gap. The trust was established by his uncle, the late Honorable C. Bascom Slep, who was secretary to Calvin Coolidge and Congressman from Virginia's Ninth Congressional District for many years. The monies from this trust have afforded Big Stone Gap a museum, library, hospital, and community college as well as hundreds of college scholarships awarded to young high school graduates of this area. Having witnessed the inestimable good works that this foundation has afforded the community, I'm convinced that the best way to achieve immortality is to leave one's estate to the people — in a trust! As long as trusts are permitted, the income therefrom will continue to benefit the community and its people... Our most recent event was the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville. Since we're nearby, we not only enjoyed seeing many friends and relatives who journeyed our way to attend the Fair, but with season passes we were able to attend many times during its May to October duration."

We send best wishes for many happy, healthy years ahead to Frances Merrill Graef, who retired in June as principal of Poquoson, Virginia, Elementary School.

Mildred Albee Babb reports that she had a much too quick trip to France and England in October. Beside doing all the fascinating tourbook places, she arrived in London in time to see a young friend in two different plays. He is a William and Mary graduate of the class of '79 whom she met while she was working backstage and he acting in her community theater. Mildred is a strong advocate of bigger and better reunions for our class.

From Russell M. Haynie, Jr.: "After graduating from William and Mary, I accepted a position as teacher and coach in the Danville, Virginia, school system. I worked with Jerry Quirk, W and M football star of the past. In 1942 I was employed by Trailways Bus Company of Charlottesville. For the next seven years I developed training and supervisory programs which were vital during the manpower shortage. Then I was appointed by the Division of Continuing Education at North Carolina State University to develop and conduct short courses for all segments of the bus and trucking industry, including U.P. S. These experiences were fruitful and rewarding. My work was recognized across this country and in five foreign countries. I am retired now and residing in Reedville, Virginia, where I was born. I have so many fond memories of my years at William and Mary and I would not trade those four years for all the rest of my life combined. Now I look forward to 1988, the reunion, my golden anniversary and as much time as I can spend with my two pretty daughters and five wonderful grandchildren. I often wonder what happened to all of the members of our class. I wish more of them would write to our class reporter." (Hear, hear!)

Isn't that a nice letter? I'm hoping I will hear from more of you to report in the May issue.

40

Mrs. Franklin D. Henderson
(Bobby Clawson)
Box 186
Irvington, Va. 22480

Happy New Year one and all! This has been such a busy fall and winter for the Hendersons I haven't yet caught my breath nor sent all my Christmas cards. I was grateful to Ann Garrett for pinch-hitting for me for the last newsletter while we were in Europe. It was a wonderful six weeks but there's no place like home.

Six weeks after returning we were off to Laurinburg, N.C. where our son, Daniel, and his bride, Ann McLean, were married December 4th. It was a very gala and happy occasion and we were delighted to have Jack and Ann Garrett and Kay and Bob Dew among our family and friends who joined us for the event. Our two grandsons were in the wedding party — Bambi's son, Mark (18 and a freshman at Washington & Lee) was an usher and escorted me down the aisle. Our Ann Kramer's, Stephen (almost 4) was ring bearer and Frank was Daniel's best man.

Frank and I spent Christmas in Richmond with the Kramers and returned the 28th when Ann's baby daughter, Ann Kamps, was born. She's a beautiful little girl and I stayed on for a week after they returned from the hospital. Again I say it's great to be home — tho of course I loved being with them all.

I'm glad others were not as disorganized as I and appreciate being remembered with all the nice Christmas cards. Carolyn and Vince Lusardi wrote that they were distressed to miss Homecoming but they had reservations starting Nov. 10 for three months in Florida. The planned to be in Virginia for a couple of weeks at Christmas and return for January and February.

Jean Clarahan Bratton had good visits to Nebraska and New York several times during '82 to visit her daughters and also a wonderful trip to England.

Len Owen wrote that Alice had knee surgery at the time of Homecoming which of course prevented their attending. Am glad to hear she's doing well. Their son who works for Dupont has moved back to Newark, Del. from Beaumont, Texas and their two daughters live in Manassquan so they were all together with Len and Alice for the holiday.

If I think my life is busy I'm breathless just reading about Ginny Claudon and Scrib Allen's. Ginny is the founder of the Vermont Masters Swim Team and both of them are members. In December they competed in the New England Meet at Harvard where 300 were competing. Scrib got 2 firsts and Ginny broke the all time New England Masters Record in the "50 back stroke." Our congratulations. Ginny's taking a Public Speaking Course and a class in Creative Writing and Scrib is enjoying his course in computer programming.

Al Alley is out of retirement for the second time as the Bishop has appointed him Vicar of the little Mission Church in Lincoln, about 20 miles from Al's home.

Tommy Cartwright is planning to go on the tour to Italy in 1983 which will be guided by Dottie Hammer ('46). She was tour guide on a trip to England last year which he was on and it was so outstanding he and others would follow her anywhere, he says.

Rosa Ellis Long attended in September the 10-day Convention of the National Episcopal Church in New Orleans, and happily represented the College at the inauguration of President Steven Sample at the State University of N.Y. in Buffalo in October. Rosa was busy this fall conducting fossil digs for the Buffalo Museum of Science.

Shirley Sheain Battison was one of the nineteen William and Mary alumni among the 109 passengers on the Western European Passage Cruise which she says was delightful. She hopes to try this again in the spring.

Frances Wagener Read enjoyed a wonderful trip to Spain in September. They covered Madrid, Seville, Granada and Torremolinos on the Costa del Sol. She stays busy with volunteer work as a docent at the restored Carlyle House in Alexandria and the Marine Corps Museum in the Navy Yard.

Betty Holt Nelson has two married daughters and four grandchildren — three boys and one girl. Her husband is partially retired and she enjoys doing some volunteer hospital work.

Bob Griffin is now fully retired from Civil Service as a chemist (supervisor) in Material Engineering and as Lt. Col. MSC in Army Reserve. He's enjoying his retirement and stays active with church, gardening and golf.

DR. MAIDMENT AUTHORS BOOK

Dr. Robert Maidment, professor of education at William and Mary, is the author of a new book, Straight Talk: A Guide to Saying More With Less. A specialist in organizational development and educational management, Dr. Maidment describes the book, which was published in January, as a tribute to "being authentic and being ourselves" in thinking, talking, listening and writing. Straight Talk is Maidment's fourth book.

DR. GRAVES SPEAKS AT PITTSBURGH

On November 12 Pittsburgh area alumni joined chapter president Mary Minnick '58 at Feolas Ristorante (owner Tom Feola '66 pictured here) for an Italian dinner and remarks by President Graves.

He plays twice weekly with Ned Scott ('35). He and Ned roomed together when he was a freshman and met again five years ago, not having seen each other since school — and they had a great time.

Winston Menzel visited Australia in July '82 and plans to visit China March-April '83.

A very nice message from the Alumni Office comes from Jean Walworth Schrader in Kaneohe, Hawaii which I'd like to quote in full:

"Recently I received a request for information about the good old days at W and M and decided this is the year to surface.

"After graduation I worked in a series of offices (the stock joke among my friends was, 'where are you working now?') and when I got to the stage just before throwing typewriters, I left and went to USC for a certificate in Occupational Therapy — and found my field.

"Altogether I worked about 5 years but after our three girls were all in school I began to volunteer at the same hospital where I had worked with the mentally ill.

"Since then I have worked in an O.T. program at a school for handicapped children and am now working at a rehabilitation hospital — mostly adults over 50.

"This is the year of the grandchildren: twins — a girl and a boy joined our one wonder child (a girl, natch) in September and another daughter is expecting a baby in November.

"Anyone for a Brown Hall career women's, aunts' and grandmothers' reunion in 1985?"

city of Virginia in May, 1982 and is serving a residency in internal medicine at the University Hospital in Charlottesville. Our daughter, Nancy, graduated from William and Mary in 1981 and works for Central Fidelity Bank in Richmond in the Credit Analysis Department."

Edith Rathbun Bell retired this year, and her husband retired last year. They have spent a lot of time traveling, to both Nova Scotia and California last summer. But mostly they stick close to home to visit their children and grandchildren.

A fascinating note from Nancy Ryan Benoit mentions four rather extraordinary children. They have a Doctor, an Alaskan, a runner, and a potential lawyer or business man. From some enclosed clippings, I learned that Dr. Andre Benoit not only practices medicine in Boothbay Harbor, Maine, but he is an excellent runner and painter. His wife is an Arctic archeologist who has done research on primitive civilization in Labrador. The runner, Joan Benoit, is an internationally known athlete and coach at Boston University, and one of the best woman marathoners in the world. The Alaskan, Peter Benoit is a fisherman, frontiersman and painter. I'd certainly love a seat at one of their family reunions.

Our travels have been curtailed this year, but next week we take off in a private railroad car for a couple of days in Puerto Panesco in Mexico. It is a quaint shrimp fishing village on the coast, and we look forward to this unique experience.

What a contrast! Last year, as I wrote for this issue, it was freezing and today is balmy and 60° plus!

Thanks to a few Christmas notes and memos from the Alumni Office, I do have some contributions. Everett Baker represented the College at the inauguration of the Reverend Thomas S. Acker as president of Wheeling College, Wheeling, W. Va. Virginia on October 9, 1982.

Catherine Mitchell Holladay surprised me with a Virginia return address on her card. George retired in June and they completed their move to Rapidan in October. Great to have you back in our general area, Tas. Tas is still writing, including the feature story and cover in the September issue of Collector's Mart and also one on toy soldiers in a more recent issue. A short story was also due in a recent children's magazine — we can see you have indeed been busy!

A nice, newsy communique arrived from Cecy Waddell Cunningham too late for the last letter, but I do appreciate your letters and a belated welcome back to Virginia. She and Scott are living in Gloucester Court House and have made their home into a "two family" situation and sharing it with her mother. Lucy Jones and Bill Murphy, Betty Aurell and Henry Schutz, and Jene Carr and Bob Dent are all fairly near and have been in contact. Please do keep in touch, Cecy, and perhaps our paths will cross for we do enjoy traipsing over your way occasionally.

Columbus, Ohio was the Christmas locale for Henrietta Kapler Margraf. Henzie's family is well scattered and they all gathered at son Joe's for the occasion.

According to the register for Homecoming, Emerson Barrett signed in and quoted

Dallas, Texas as his address. Buck, please bring us up to date, we have missed hearing from you.

An article from the November 4, 1982 issue of the Philadelphia Inquirer headlined "a first at Abington." Dorothy Wilson Hammer was elected as the first woman to the board of trustees of Abington Memorial Hospital. She had been an ex-officio member, as vice-president of the Woman's Board, but is now an elected trustee. Congratulations, Dotty. Dotty is owner-president of Plywood Specialties and has also planned several trips for the Alumni Society in the last few years.

Keith Gamble Duncan wrote that because of a serious stroke in August, '81, Tom is no longer associated with Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Corporation.

News came from Jane Hopf, regretting she couldn't attend Homecoming. Her daughters have varied interests: Wendy is studying Arabic at Monterey Language Institute in Monterey, Ca., after spending three years in Kuwait and developing an interest in that culture; Susan graduated from the University of Delaware and is working for Mitsubishi, and Jo Ann is an avid hockey player at Jenkintown High.

From Memphis, TN, Richard Bicks wrote that he is still practicing, teaching and doing some research. He will lead another group of MD's to teach in Chinese medical schools this year — quite an exciting venture.

Betty Seely Townsend travelled through western Virginia in the fall en route to the World's Fair from Howells, N.Y. and commented on its beauty — how very right you are, Betty. She also visited in Petersburg in the spring and would have visited Jean McCreight Clarke '47, in Stony Creek had it not been Sunday and high winds in the area. Waitresses at the Holiday Inn informed her of Jean's antique shop — better luck next time on a reunion.

Another retiree heard from — Ellen Irvin Newberry and Russ in New Rochelle, N.Y. Ellen worked sixteen years as an aide in the local school system. They have joined a square dance class and are enjoying their leisure around home. Their youngest son, Jeff, graduated from Embrey-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach in December.

I had promises of other newsy letters which have failed to arrive. Deadlines do have to be met and the post office hasn't cooperated (or is it the writers haven't?). Perhaps I'll have them for the next issue. Thank you, one and all, who wrote of their activities. Please remember to contact me as we would all like to hear about YOU!

Now in the midst of Christmas holidays, we remember homecoming 1982 at William and Mary as long ago and far away. Many of you will be interested, nevertheless, in knowing that the following members of our class "signed in": Morris B. Gutterman, Suffolk, Va.; Iris Tolley McCoy, Alexandria, Va.; William Wright, Olney, Md.; George Bartholomew, Alexandria, Va.; Jim and Mary Ann Sutherland, Penhook, Va.; Becky and Bill Garrison, Virginia Beach, Va.; Jane Spencer and Bill Smith, formerly of Detroit, now of Richmond, Va.; Lucy (that's me!) and Bill Murphy, Manassas, Va., and Ed Belvin, Williamsburg, Va. Incidentally Bill Smith is in the Class of '44, Jane is "our" member. I would like to add about these two that we are very glad that they have come home to Virginia and are now living in Richmond. Many members of William and Mary return to live nearby, it seems.

Two of these, Elaine Compton '49 and Jim Baker, write that they will be retiring to Williamsburg this summer after having spent the last two years in Tunis, Tunisia. Elaine has written a book on bicycles. I guess she is saving the one on their many travels and experience all over the globe these last thirty years for later. (If she doesn't then I'll have to put all her Christmas letters together and publish them myself!)

YOU'RE INVITED!

Other bits and pieces of information about class members include a note from Herbert Tucker, Jr., who still resides on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, although he has built a house near Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, at Debordieu Colony Club, for vacation and retirement. Herb has seven children and two, probably three by now, grandchildren. He and his wife recently returned from a three week tour of England and Scotland, flying over and back on the Concorde.

Elizabeth McLaughlin Gibson and husband, Stuart, have six children and seven grandchildren, all of whom are spread all over the East Coast and Texas. Libby neglected to say where she lives, however. She did say that they are busy, she as a secretary with an insurance agency and Stuart as a fence consultant and cost analyst. Where are you anyway?

Mary Willette McCarthy Leigh writes that she retired from teaching in 1975 and enjoys a leisurely life now of visiting her family, walking, and reading.

Two of our class athletes, Ralph Sazio and Tut Bartzon, remain active in sports. Ralph is in Ontario, Canada, where he is president of the Toronto Argonauts. The Argonauts are in the same league as the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, with which Ralph has been for the past 31 years. Tut won the NCAA Coach of the Year choice, which, among other things, merited him, his wife Sara, and daughter Angela, a trip to the U.S. Open Tennis Championship in New York as guests of Wilson Sporting Goods.

Bill and I were very pleased and surprised to have a visit from Billy May this past fall. As feisty as ever, Billy was on his way to visit his sister in his hometown, Staunton, Va., after having attended a business conference in Washington. He is with Smith Barney Harris Upsham and Company, in Columbia, S.C., where he and wife, Nathalie, live.

Pete Jones Warner and husband Bill are enjoying retirement. They enjoy their granddaughter and play lots of golf and bridge. They still live in Ft. Worth, Texas, but hope to travel more next year.

Kate and George Hughes are in Norfolk where George has had a hardware store for more than 25 years. After playing with the Steelers ('50-'54), George coached the Norfolk Neptunes ('65-'72) and then coached the Ottawa Rough Riders in Canada ('74-'80).

Albert Simmerman is now retired and living in Hollywood, Florida. (200 Berkley Road, Apt. LK 220)

Eleanor Ely Mackey Ferguson writes that she and John have driven to the midwest, to Maine, and to the New Jersey Shore — something like 8000 miles. Then on to North Carolina and the 40th reunion.

Natalie Rogers Maby spent Thanksgiving in New York City for a family reunion, and showed her 4½ year old grandson the Macy's parade.

FILM CRITICS HONOR CLOSE

Glenn Close '74 has received the second place award for Best Supporting Actress from the New York Film Critics for her much-acclaimed performance in "The World According to Garp." Selections by the New York Film Critics, the country's senior, prestigious association of movie reviewers, frequently, but not necessarily, anticipate the preferences of the Hollywood community in the Academy Awards. Jessica Lange received the Best Supporting Actress award for her role in "Tootsie."

ASSISTING FIRE VICTIMS

Members of the Alumni-Student Liaison Committee and the Society staff worked closely with the College in accepting contributions for victims of the Jefferson fire. Although all of their comments are fascinating, I found the bit about camels especially appealing. "Yes, there are camels. . . camels grazing in the desert, camels being herded by a Japanese pick-up truck, camels riding in the back of a pick-up truck. We haven't found out yet, if those riding are being taken to a vet or just for a ride. Either way they look quite contented to be riding instead of walking. There is also an annual camel race at which the spectators are just as interesting as the camels."

Class of '52, we did it! The scene of activity of 72 registered classmates plus their spouses, offspring, friends and relatives, was at Holiday Inn East for the best reunion we have had. Our rooms and the hospitality suite arranged for by "Perk", Fred Allen and Alice Williams Phillips were excellent facilities and convenient for spontaneous or planned gatherings. Jackie Jones Meyers, Mary K. Langdon Flegler, and Gwen Batten Perkins '51 went overboard providing a gourmet buffet of homemade snack specialties and bakery goods throughout the weekend and plentiful set-ups. The Holiday Inn served superb Continental breakfast in the suite each morning. The sizable turnout of classmates was a high-spirited and sincerely caring gathering, many of whom have already suggested another such reunion in five years! Hopefully the extensive letter writing of Claudia Richmond Harman, Bob Hackler and the communication agents whom they contacted, and my constant reminders contributed to the attendance. Thanks to Jackie Jones Meyers and June Compton Merkle for rounding up choir members and arranging for Pappy and Alice Fehr, accompanied by Dennis and Jean Cogle '50, to be our special guests. They provided leadership for a post-game sing-fest that was jammed with a happy (in spite of the miserable game ending) and reminiscent crowd. It was a nostalgic time. Plaudits for this entire successful accomplishment go to the inspiration of Fred Allen and "Perk", and Perk's masterminding the event. His devotion to our class and excellent leadership, organizing and directing the committee mostly from afar, is greatly appreciated. The reunion committee has contributed the $75 balance, from the hospitality suite charges and costs, to The William and Mary Fund on behalf of the class of '52. That is not to be a substitute for YOUR contribution.

Upon returning home Jack Percival took the initiative to be the class statistician. He counted "62 persons in the class photo, over 20% of our class of 278, if the yearbook is correct. Pretty good considering our age and distance." Thanks, Jack, for your observations and participating along with wife, Marie. Jack is Vice President of Finance and Administration for AMECOM Division, Long Island Facility of Litton Industries, Inc., and has moved into a new research and development plant in Hsapuppauge, a high technology hub. He and Marie have a yearly tradition of attending Christmas Eve service at St. Mary's Church where our renowned classmate, Ed Wisbauer, now an Episcopalian bishop, officiates. Ed was a lively one at our reunion. Carroll Walker Sultan traveled the most miles to reunion, coming from Hawaii. Her daughter, a graduate student at George Washington University, Washington, D.C., accompanied Carroll. Carroll is an active volunteer in fund raising for Easter Seals and the Festival of Trees that contributes to the Queen's Medical Center. She and her husband travel extensively throughout the world on business and pleasure. Next in line for long distance traveler awards go to Ann Holliday Wallace, and Ernestine Cox Peak, each from La Jolla, CA. Congrats!

Award winners George Emerson and Hilda Beckh Sherman deserve our attention also. George was co-winner in the Class A (advanced) Alumni Tennis Tournament, and Hilda was co-runner up in the same event. Each attended reunion with respective spouses, Peggy Ives ('53) Emerson, and Wray Sherman, '51. Edie Moser Buzzell and daughter, a Kappa and senior at The College, mingled in the crowd of familiar faces. Edie has retired from the travel business to travel with her husband, a professor at Harvard Business School. They plan to spend 1983-84 in Lausanne, Switzerland. Ernie Cooke and wife, Bev Turner from Arlington, are joining the retiree ranks. (We're too young, gang.) He served in the Air Force for twenty-one years and retired as Lt. Col. in '73. (That was young!) Since then he has worked for the Department of Commerce as a meteorologist. They are moving to Garland, Texas. Geri Wall McKean and Jim, MA '48, arrived from their home in Ciappaqua, New York, where Geri is a librarian "dispensing books and large helpings of misinformation to an eager public." Her hobby is a large, vicious, orange cat, who eats every twenty minutes. Geri, an atypical dropout who in my recollection was a Phi Beta contender, completed her college BA in 1970, her MAT in 1971. She taught English a few years. She and Jim have two sons and daughters. Jim is recently retired from IBM. Other Thetas attending reunion were Laura Mickler Bentley, and Kathryn (Bootsie) Gray Bradshaw. Laura is active in the Junior League of Tampa, FL, as President of the Sustainers. She also serves as President of the Henry B. Plant Museum Society, (history of Tampa). Kathryn teaches fourth grade in Hampton, VA, and continues with her musical talent by singing in the Virginia Choral Society of Tidewater, a group of 147 singers, which is the official chorus for the Virginia Orchestra Group of Norfolk. The 24 member Chorale Chorus, an offshoot of the VCS, is another group with which Kathy is active. Gene Gulitz, another Fine Arts graduate, and his wife, Judy were active reunionists. Gene is a self employed Motion Pictures Art Director. Watch for his credits on TV also!

More joining us from out-of-state were: Peggy Blair and Bob Hackler, Pat Hitchcock Broadfoot, Black Mt., N.C.; Doris Hasemeyer Smith and husband Wendel (she kept her promise-see earlier newsletter!); Ann Beatrice Recknor, looking trim like joggers do, and husband; and Catherine (Katy) Hanrahan Hennessy, owners and managers of a 109 year old Victorian Ocean Spray Lodge, N.J. Bob Larsen, Port Jefferson, NY; Evelyn Moore and Park Musselman, Bethelhem, PA; Freddy Ann Bailey Clark, Hopewell, Junction, NY; Bob and Camie Spotts Griffin, Wilmington, DE; Joe and Pat Megale, Freeport, NY; Edward Lupton, Cocoa Beach, FL; Bob and Tricia '56 Landen, Farragut, TN and Nancy Noot Goldberger, Haven Beach, NJ. Virginians attending were:

Alice Rice Cottingham and Bob '69. Alice teaches in primary school and Bob, a retired Marine Corpsman, is an assistant principal in Newport News. Keep 'em in line, Bob! Betsy Graves and Bob Smith, Jane Kerwick Beil, Tom Burke, Robert Hux MD, Bernie Wittkamp, MD and Darrell '53, Jim Hall, Jim Anthony, Bob Landen and Tricia '56, Becky Roche White and Marie Newcomb Massey, enthusiastic participants and active sportswomen; Joyce Miller Tipton, Jeanne Watkins Hughes, Jim Carter, Joe Agee, Dick Lewis, Charles Sexton, Tam Burke, Audrey Doll Bates, Bobbe Lamont and Chuck, '51 Redding; Mary Jane Gill, Miriam Dickens Wall and Bill, Phil Denman.

Time and space are running short. Continuation of this pile of news will be in my next column. You're stuck with me for a while longer as I could not convince the gang to have an election. They were having too much fun. Our class spirit is alive and well. Have a good year, and WRITE.

Several familiar but not too often seen faces were on campus during Homecoming in November. Among them were Peggy Ives Emerson and her husband, George. Bud Jay was there, and we were only able to chat briefly at half-time, to find that he is still with transportation, working for the state of Maryland.

Peggy's job sounds fascinating. She is in public television in Toledo, Ohio. Pete Freeauf has moved to Dallas from Sarasota, and still in the world of cable television, on the selling end of it.

Folks who signed in but whom I missed were Carol and Harriett Baskett and Al Gross. I just got to say a quick hello to Ann and Bill Strum. I was surprised to see that they are living in Wilmington, Delaware.

Gail Wannan Mosher '55 from Baltimore was on hand. We had seen her last year as a guide at the Baltimore Aquarium when the Baltimore chapter hosted a happening at the harbor.

Edie Moser Buzelle, Ginny and Ed Lupton, Bobbie Lamont Reading, Doris Mary Kay Hasemeyer Smith, Langan Flegler, and Ernie Cox Peake were people I was delighted to see who helped to make up the big bunch there for their thirtieth.

After all these many years, I spotted Ann Wilson, who has taken back her maiden name. She lives in Mount Laurel, New Jersey. Marge Willard Duer '55 and husband, Jack, were over from Belle Haven, Virginia. I just learned where that is. It's on the Eastern Shore, south of Salisbury, Maryland. She doesn't stay there that much, however. She and Jack travel several months out of the year, and when Jack can't, Marge goes places on her own, maybe to New York or Washington. Darrell and Bernie Wittkamp never seem to miss Homecoming. You're likely to see them at most home games.

In a holiday newsletter, Betsy Barnes said she and her old roomie, Marthanne Hodges Luzader, got together in Austin, Texas. Betsy's daughter, Lisa, was married in July to Jim Clark. She and Ron are most happy with their new son-in-law. The Barnes spent a while in Hawaii over Thanksgiving. She called it a working vacation.

A newspaper clipping noted that Rev Michael was elected president of the Virginia Society of the Institute of Architects. He is president of the architectural firm of Michael and Michael in Alexandria and was, until last year, on the board of Northern Virginia Alumni of the College.

Rene Henry is being retained by Fundacion Chile for a major project related to housing in Chile. He recently spent 12 days there. He presented a seminar for the nation's leading economists, architects, engineers, component manufacturers, lenders, building code officials and executives in various government agencies.

As you may have read, Gordon Vliet has left the College, and the position of Executive Vice President of the Society of the Alumni. He has been in that position for 16 years; the first six years his title was Director of Alumni Affairs. He is credited with starting the 50th Reunion, alumni faculty awards and the alumni educational travel club. He pushed for the establishment of the first Alumni House. We shall miss seeing him when we journey back to the campus.

Dusty Ward and Tom Hunnicut are two probably not mentioned heretofore as being a part of the enthusiastic bunch of OWJ members, but they surely are.

Mary Ann Garth had the pleasure of having old friends visit during the summer of '82. When Charlotte Frye Egger came in from Boise, Idaho, it was cause for a reunion. Treasure Rissinger Johnson of West Point, Virginia and Annie Lee Lewis Waltrip from Williamsburg came to Mary Ann's in Annandale and a grand old time was had catching up. Mary Ann has retired from Food and Drug Administration, and is enjoying doing lots of things she didn't have the time for until now. Treasure's daughter, who has the same name as her mother, graduated from the College in 1979, and is in law school at University of Virginia. The other daughter, Belle, is a senior at Randolph-Macon in Lynchburg.

Raising bloodhounds and teaching at Lord Fairfax Community College are the new pursuits of Anne LeHew Legge, who has a son at University of Richmond and a daughter at University of Virginia, now a freshman.

For twenty-three years, Nate Carb has served as professor of English at Glassboro State College in New Jersey. He travels every year, most recently to Asia, also to France and to Venice.

Benjamin Hendrick is with the National Conference on Social Welfare as Associate Executive Director. Prior to this position which he took in 1979, he was with the American Public Welfare Association for 12 years. He served as Assistant Director and Director of Professional Development and Membership. He lives in Arlington, Virginia.

I am still involved in the affairs of the Northern Virginia Chapter, working with other alumni of the College and enjoy that, though no longer president of that organization. My youngest child Bob has gone off to college. He is a freshman at University of Cincinnati. Patty, who graduated from the College in May of '82, is in New York City, studying at Parson's School of Design. I'm looking for a new career, and with it, perhaps a new location. Who knows?

Keep the letters coming. It makes this job so much more fun!

JUDITH BAROODY '75 HONORED

Judith Baroody '75, Norfolk, Va., has been honored twice for her work as a television reporter for WVEC-TV. In September, her documentaries "Carole's Choice" and "Race Against a Killer" won the highest award in Virginia from the American Cancer Society for electronic journalism. Her second award, given in November in New York City by the International Film and TV Festival of New York, was a bronze medal for "Carole's Choice." The documentaries concerned a Portsmouth, Va., woman who chose to undergo reconstructive surgery following a mastectomy and the incidence and mortality rate from cancer among Black Americans.

Frank and Betsy Stafford Elliott are in Springfield, Virginia. Frank is principal of Lee High School in Springfield. Betsy is with the office of the Attorney General of Virginia, assigned as Assistant Attorney General to the Northern Regional Office of the Virginia Department of Social Science. They have two boys in college and one in junior high school. It was good to hear from you two.

Joyce (Bji) McKnight is enjoying a new job as Voter Registrar for the City of Williamsburg. "In my maturity," she writes, "I have dropped 'Bji' for Joyce."

Teresa Barreto Purvis writes from Oregon that she was anticipating a special Christmas treat, a reunion with her roommate, Barbara Spaight Peroe, and Barbara's husband, Bob '59. The Peroe's children planning to accompany them are Richard and Cynthia '78. Teresa has a University of Oregon senior, a Gonzaga University freshman, and a junior high schooler. Hawaii would be a nice place for a William and Mary reunion. Next to Williamsburg in October (class reunion October 21-23), it would be great!

Jim Pittman had a show of his watercolors at Pittman Chrysler in Williamsburg in November 1982. Jim has had many group and one-man shows in recent years throughout Virginia. His studio is in Wakefield, Virginia.

A very interesting article appeared in the Philadelphia Inquirer concerning Alan Miller, who is head of Universal Health Services, Inc., in Bala Cynwyd, Pennsylvania. The article outlines Alan's meteoric rise to become the chairman of his successful hospital management company. Congratulations, Alan!

Sandy Weidman Pika submitted a logo idea to the reunion committee. She has been busy on the Mother's Club Board of her son's school, Mt. St. Joseph in Baltimore. She is planning a trip to Spain in March.

Barbara Doan Streifeld is newly married to Julian Streifeld, a psychology professor at the University of Hartford in Connecticut. Barbara has been teaching psychology at the University of Hartford for six years and is currently working on a Ph.D. in Experimental Psychobiology, as well as doing research at the Institute of Living's Research Laboratories.

A portfolio of ideas for our reunion (Class of '58 - October 21-23), was sent to me by Kent Watkins. He is currently chairman and president of U. S. Systems Corporation and continues as Executive Director of its affiliate, the Institute for Housing Management Innovations in Washington, D.C. Kent earned his master's degree from Harvard University and did graduate work at the University of London. He is completing his doctoral degree this year. Kent is the recipient of numerous awards and honors both in this country and abroad.

The Order of the White Jacket has asked me to remind any former waiter, man or woman, who has worked at least one semester in the College dining halls, cafeteria, or in food dispensing establishments of the Williamsburg area that you are eligible for membership. The active members from this class are Donald N. Belote, Michael Hodges, and Donald Engleken. Please contact the OWJ, P. O. Box 60, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187, if you are interested.

I have made several reminders throughout these classnotes. Please put October 21 on your calendar NOW. We promise you a great weekend. Remember to complete the Re-Echo questionnaire and return it to the Society of the Alumni.

Two of our class members participated in the Career Speakers Series operating through the Office of Career Planning. Daniel Giffen, currently a professor at Kent State University, traveled from Ohio on November 4 and gave a talk on "Careers in Historic Preservation." On November 18 Thomas Legg, a Vice President at Legg Mason, Wood, Walker Inc., presented the seminar "Careers in Investments."

Ron Masci and Bill Harrison signed in at homecoming. I am sure that many others attended, but did not register. In future years, please register so that your classmates may know who is attending.

The Alumni Office sent several items. Harry Reynolds was recently appointed by the Supreme Court of Georgia to the Attorney Arbitration Committee as the only non-lawyer member. Ann Fenigsohn Losin is working for several charitable organizations in the Baltimore area. Her husband, Ted, is a practicing attorney, and their son, Eric, is a freshman at Cornell. Gerald Quardt is a Lt. Colonel stationed in Los Alamitos, Calif., but expecting orders for a new assignment soon. Ruth Woods Lett wrote to say that her oldest son is currently a sophomore at Richmond. And John Pforr's son, Cameron, is a freshman at William and Mary.

The Order of the White Jacket now has seven active 1960 members. From their newsletter, I got the item that Bob Squatriglia is the Dean of Student Development and Associate Chancellor, University of South Carolina, Coastal Carolina College.

From my Christmas cards I got several newsy items. Judi Urian Lownes and Ken are leaving the Philadelphia area and moving to North Carolina. They are going to open a landscaping business in Seven Lakes. Their new home should be ready by February 1. Nancy Read Burkhardt is also living in North Carolina. Gin-Anne Joyce Conger and George also have a connection with North Carolina. Their son, Mike, is at Elon, and they are currently going through the college process with Kurt. Gin-Anne is working full time. She said that last winter, she saw Lil Cloyes Clarke whose daughter is at East Carolina. Janet Caldwell Elling and her daughter, Jennifer, recently spent the weekend at William and Mary. Nancy Callahan Loutzenheiser is the treasurer of her church's bell choirs in which her whole family participates.

Our 20th Reunion was a great success. If you weren't lucky enough to be with us the first weekend in November then make a promise to yourself to come to the 25th in 1987.

It would be hard to describe everything that went on but there truly was something for everyone. The Hospitality Suite had 54 participants and many others dropped in for a drink or coffee.

Jim and I arrived at the Lord Paget around 2 p.m. on Friday and set up the Hospitality Suite and then went to lunch at Chownings. For Chownings' fans - still the same atmosphere and good food! The first person we ran into was Steve Lopez who is now single and works for the Fairfax County, Virginia, Urban Planning. He has written a play entitled "Single Family Detached" and had come early to Williamsburg to work with Howard Scammon on his endeavor. From then on it was one familiar face after another.

Nancy Carman DeRamus came down from Manassas, Va., where she teaches the fourth grade. Nancy has officially been single since April. She has two children. Gail Palmer Greene and her husband, Bill, came up from Virginia Beach. Dr. Larry Penniston and his wife, Carolyn, were there from Suffolk where Larry is the radiologist at Obici Hospital. They have a second home at Kingsmill on the James near Williamsburg. Lewis Detch was in Boston on business and he flew to Washington, D.C., and rented a car and drove down to Williamsburg. He was the classmate who came from the farthest away. Lewis and his family live in Santa Barbara, Calif. He has a son, age 9, and two daughters, ages 5 and 3. The truth finally came out after 20 years. Remember the party raid with the trumpet being played while the boys came in droves over the Sunken Garden? Well, Low fested up and said it was his trumpet that had added that special touch.

Bob Diederich and his wife came up to the Reunion from Louisville, Ky. Bob talked about the attic rooms in Old Dominion and the track team. We remembered all those times that Bill McCuen's ('59) family would put up the track team so the boys could go to the meets in Philly.

Mildred Murray Torian, Sam and their two children ages 10 and 12 drove down from Collinsville, Va. Sam is in insurance and Mildred has her own preschool outside of Martinsville, Va. Many thanks go to Mildred for helping with the Hospitality Suite.

Gayle Crabill Kerns, Waldon and their two younger children came from Blacksburg, Va. Laurie, their oldest, is a sophomore at The College and she came over with her roommate on Saturday morning. Since our return home the news from the Kerns family is that Laurie will be studying in Cambridge, England, this summer and her eleven year old brother will be an exchange student in England this summer also. Many thanks goes to the Kerns for all the help in serving great "Blacksburg" doughnuts and coffee.

H. C. Thaxton and his wife came from nearby Richmond. H. C. has not changed except for less hair. He is a lawyer and has his office down near the capitol in Richmond. Jim and Barbara Wiegand Guy, Bea McKay Osborn, Don Duvall, Dave Harned-all arrived from Richmond, too.

Following were either seen or talked to sometime during the weekend: Diane Snyder Montuori, Ann Miller Kuznicki, Peggy Rives Brooks, Carroll and Patty Bayliss Owens, Jeff Mobley, Bob Resch, Judy Warder Schroeder, Ann Fox Harrison, Peter Haynes White, Gregg Evans, C. Lacey Compton, Pat Groves Ballard, Pete and Sandra Wright Bracken, Carole Valdes Owens, Philip Tutschek, Ann O'Neill Jennings, Courtenay Turner Stanley, Phil McLaughlin, W. F. Metts, Jr., Lynn Shaw, Judy Guntner Dunn, Bill Buyrn, Butch and Anne Haynes Barr, Suzy Tyler Mastracco, Marc Higginbotham, Doug Shoemaker, Mary Steketee Hall, Judy Leeds Kernell, Gordon Berryman, Sally Swoope Horner, Jane Wright Fields, Jo Anne Welch Gallamore, Ann Smith Hughes, Sue Oakley Nelson, Tisa Piper Masci, Donna Gaines Contois, Nell Gracey Jones, Gail Scott Eldred, Ilene Carr Rutschow, Ken Roberts, Marty Adler, Will Bauserman, Bill Mirguet, Rich Guardino, Tom Scott, The Rev. David Poist, Calvin and Linda Cox.

Barbara Aubry Walsh could not make it to Homecoming but she was responsible for the delicious food which was served at the Hospitality Suite. Many thanks from all who enjoyed your choice of great cocktail food.

The following news came from other sources besides the Reunion. Sue Schade Ward wrote a nice long letter. She is married to Sam Ward who is a Captain in the Navy. They have four children, three of them are undergraduates at The College. Rita '83 is an education major in Army ROTC and a Tri Delta. She is planning to marry Joe Fucella (also an alumni's kid) '83. Becky '85 is also a Tri Delta. Renee '85 has pledged Pi Phi. Their 14 year old wants to go to the Naval Academy. Sue wants her old roomie, Ruth Shoemaker Carpenter, to surface so the two of them can get together.

F. Milton Garrett is serving as Minister with the Gap Creek Christian Church in Elizabethtown, Tenn. while studying at Emmanuel School of Religion.

Don Lloyd is in his 16th year working for Bell Systems and his current job is Marketing Manager. He is living in San Francisco in a

COLLEGE RECEIVES RARE PRINT

A copy of Paul Revere's print of the Boston Massacre, described by President Graves as "one of the most historically significant gifts which William and Mary has ever received," has been given to the College by Dr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Fields of Williamsburg. The most famous and most desirable of all of Revere's engravings, it appeared on March 26, 1770, and was sold on the streets of Boston for eight pence. Two hundred were printed, and the original copper plate from which they were struck is preserved in the Massachusetts State Archives.

restored Victorian which needs and gets all of Don's time.

Lynn Marie Crisman Wieland writes from Ridgefield, Conn., that she is learning to play the guitar while her son, Jamie is learning the autoharp. Her business is going well considering the economy and she plans to branch out.

The Rev. George Gravely and Susan Judkins Gravely '64 live in Darlington, Pa. Susan is President of her United Presbyterian Women's "Presbyterial" thru 1983, coordinating the work of 46 local U. P. W. organizations. George is still pastoring a steel workers' congregation near the Pa.-Ohio line. Soon they will be in their 9th year.

Now that all the holidays are over we are settling down to our regular routine. Jim is going to start on his Doctorate this summer so our vacation will be spent at home for the next two years while Jim is in residence at The Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria. Please send any news before the first of March so that it can get in the next issue.

Carleen Sundin Rollins has a new address, is living in Suffolk, Va.

Peter Dranz toured Alaska last summer, traveling the inland passage-way on the Alaska Explorer and visited Fairbanks and Anchorage.

John Slifka arrived in Southern West Germany (Stuttgart area) in June for a three year tour with Headquarters United States Army Europe. In their spare time, he and Pat are traveling and enjoying good European cuisine. They will return to the states in 1985.

Ellen C. Kukuk earned a Master's Degree in Education from Wright State University, Dayton, Ohio in June, 1982. She continues to teach first grade in Middletown, Ohio.

Joan Dudik-Gayoso moved in November, 1981 from the U.S. Agency for International Development to the U.S. Peace Corps, where she is Deputy Director for Africa Operations. Joan notes that Africa programs constitute about half of all Peace Corps programs. They are involved in 23 countries south of the Sahara.

Her husband, Antonio, is Director of the Office of Development in the State Department Bureau for International Affairs, which handles U.N. programs. He is on loan from A.I.D. They now have three of four children in college, a daughter who is a sophomore at Barry College, Miami, son Steve is a sophomore at VPI and son Tony is a freshman at Duke.

Ken Olshansky is practicing plastic and reconstructive surgery in private practice in Richmond, Va. and is assistant clinical professor of Plastic Surgery at the Medical College of Virginia. Ken is married and has two children.

Dennis Sullivan has since 1972 been the buyer for Van Cleef & Arpels in Beverly Hills, Ca. On trips to New York, old friendships have been kept up with Tom Callan, '62, Armen Bahadurian, '63, Bill Pitt, '63, Ed Shifman, and Ash Cutchin '63.

Jim Perry wrote a fascinating article for the Fairfax Journal in November on John Reese '62, "from Blackboard to Billboard - John Reese Joins the Folger Theatre Group."

A very wonderful note from Karen Patrick Martin welcomed me to the realm of "mature motherhood." Her daughter, Meredith was two in October. Leslie is 13 and in eighth grade and Candy is 16 and a junior in high school. Ralph is with Miller Fluid Power, home office is Bensenville, Illinois. The Martins enjoy living in Knoxville, Tenn. and enjoyed the World's Fair quite a bit.

Homecoming, 1982 was enjoyable as always. Registered from our class were Jerry Gimmel, Gaithersburg, Md.; Lee Marinelli, Vienna, Va.; Marynell and Steph Gordon, Virginia Beach, Va.; Dick and Sharon (Cosminsky, '66) Kern, Greensboro, N.C.; Wesley Jones; Phil and Mary (Van Lear, '66) Van Kirk, Mt. Kimble Lake, N.J. and Gene Birdsong Tongier of Williamsburg, Va. It was fun seeing Mary Ann Venner Schmidt and Herm and their son. At the Colonial we saw Dan Henning and Sandy (Crutchfield) Sandy Tolbert '64 was back with her children.

Bob Joynt and his wife were there as were Don Beck and Susie, Steve Merrill, who has gone into private law practice in northern Virginia, and Marty O'Donnell and his wife from Texas. Marty who is with Polaroid was armed with some vintage 1960's photos which were enjoyed by many. Pete Stout and Micki were down from Richmond, as was Mike Griffin. Sue Roache Warner and Ray were there from Fairfax, Anne Tomlinson Bartlett and Tom came from Virginia Beach as did Claudy Tucker Barnes. Polly Mayhew Owens and Al were there from Norfolk. They have an exchange student living with them for a year as their daughter is abroad. We saw John Gravely '64 and his wife Maryanne from Virginia Beach. Tish Paschall and Barry Fratkin from our class who both hold positions with the College were on hand.

Since it was the reunion year of 1962 and our class was so close, I am tempted to cite the many familiar faces present but will restrain and leave that to the '62 editor. It looked like a good turnout and a good time.

Finally, it was wonderful to hear from Ginnie Peirce Volkman at Christmas.

Al is a deputy to the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and is traveling to Europe frequently. Kate is in the fourth grade and her boys Max and Fritz are in pre-school.

Wishing you all a happy and rewarding 1983 - keep in touch.

WILLIAM AND MARY MAGAZINE

Articles about F. Scott Fitzgerald by William and Mary professor Scott Donaldson and on Detroit by Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Edwin A. Roberts Jr. '56 are included in the Winter issue of the William and Mary Magazine, which is mailed twice a year to all contributors to the College. Other articles are on former William and Mary president Benjamin Ewell, on the rise and fall of the Episcopal Church in Colonial Virginia, on literary societies at the College, on a race for the Congress by a William and Mary professor, and on historical myths of the American campus. If you would like to receive a copy of the magazine, which has a four-color photo of a painting of John Marshall on the cover, write to the Alumni House, Box 60, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

SHAKESPEARE GENERATES REVENUE

More than $358,000 was added to the Williamsburg economy last summer by out-of-town visitors who came to Williamsburg expressly to attend the Virginia Shakespeare Festival at the College of William and Mary. Total attendance for the 1982 season was 15,836, according to the Festival's general manager Richard Palmer, who did an audience survey that indicated that 46 per cent of those polled did not consider themselves residents of the local area. The Festival itself added $140,000 to the economy in production materials and salaries, Palmer said.

Civil Division, Commercial Litigation Branch.

National Bank and Trust Company, Charlottesville, promoted George Yancey to Vice President and Regional Executive last fall. George, a graduate of the Virginia Bankers School of Bank Management, has been with that bank since 1971. He and wife, Phyllis, have two children — Ann Marie and George, II.

Lynn Butler Eberwine is pursuing a Doctor of Education degree at University of Virginia and expects to graduate in May this year. She and her six year old son, V.G., live in Charlottesville.

After three years of working in films and television in Los Angeles, John Shearin has returned to New York "hopefully to spend nearly every waking hour on stage again!" Most recently in Hollywood, John was a regular on the now defunct Bret Maverick series with James Garner.

Still contracted as a consultant with Sperry Rand ("at least until April") in Salt Lake City, Barbara Burket filled me in on her no less than exciting year of travel and outdoor sports!! In May she took a "quick trip" to the 49th State and drove around the Anchorage Kenai Peninsula area — and now with whetted appetite, intends to return for longer visit hopefully in the summer of '84. Having taken scuba diving lessons, Barbara became certified on July 4th in a frigid Utah lake. To recover, she spent seven days diving off the island of Bonaire, Dutch Antilles. Her newest sport, whitewater canoeing, dominated the remainder of her summer with twelve trips — "the most exciting being the Middle Fork of the Salmon River in the Idaho wilderness."

Also experiencing the "last frontier" are Barbara (Pate) and Bob Glacel. Last February they were given 24 hours to choose skiing in Germany for the next three years or skiing in Alaska. Opting for better housing, moose in their backyard and four hours of daylight on Christmas Day, they chose Alaska. The Glacels arrived in Anchorage last July. "Bob became operations officer (S-3) for the only field battalion in Alaska." Barbara's revised and updated dissertation — Regional Transit Authority — A Policy Analysis of Massachusetts — will be published as a book by Praeger Publishers this summer. Barbara's own consulting firm, Barbara Glacel & Associates, does management and human relations consulting in university and corporate settings. Active with the Army family movement, Barbara will be working on a worldwide study of Army families for the next couple of years under the auspices of the Army Research Institute.

With AMOCO (Standard Oil of Indiana), dealing with natural gas regulatory matters, Bill Benham is a senior attorney. He and wife, Barbara, have three children — Bill, 7, John, 4½, and Anne, 1.

Cheryl Russell Scheid is an assistant professor of physiology at University of Massachusetts Medical School in Worcester. She earned an M.S. and Ph.D. in Endocrinology at Boston University followed by postdoctoral work in smooth muscle physiology at University of Massachusetts Medical School. Her first faculty position was at Tufts University School of Medicine as assistant professor of physiology, 1979-80. Husband, Rick ('68), is engineering manager at Digital Equipment Corp. in Maynard, Mass.

Betty Sue Grombacher Shore has been manager of a Devoe Paint & Wallpaper store for two years now. Husband Joel, (M.W. Law, '71), is assistant treasurer of Jack Eckerd Corp.

Any former student waiter, man or woman, who has worked at least one semester in the College dining halls, cafeteria or in food dispensing establishments of the Williamsburg area is eligible for membership in the Order of the White Jacket. Part of the "Objectives and Purposes" of the organization is to provide grants and financial assistance to deserving students, including scholarships awarded on the basis of need. Capt. Jud Mason, U.S.M.C. was the only new recruit from our class last year. Anyone eligible for membership is asked to contact for an application: James Kelly, Sec-Treas., Order of the White Jacket, P.O. Box 60, Williamsburg, Va. 23187.

Members of our class who registered at Homecoming last fall are: Linda Britt Blair from Washington, D.C., Frank Hynicker from New York City, Luci Gibson Crittenden from Hampton, Fred Prasse from San Antonio, Tex., and Karen Clark Norsworthy from Powhatan.

My next Gazette deadline is March 30 . . . Remember to include your whereabouts and news on your William and Mary Fund contribution envelope!

Homecoming was terrific for me and I hope for everyone else who was able to make it for the Tenth Reunion. I saw a lot of people who stopped by the class hospitality suite and hope even more will come for our fifteenth. We had a great turnout, and we all look just the same!

I got a note from Randy and Sharon Yates Gillett who moved from Richmond to Pittsford, New York (outside Rochester) this fall. Randy is the controller of The Present Company, a catalog showroom retailer, and Sharon is busy with daughters, Melissa, 3, and Stephanie, 4 months. At the time they wrote, they hadn't found a permanent home but were living in a restored 19th century gate house overlooking the Barge Canal — a real showplace. Sounds really great and alumni are invited to stop by.

Richard Beard wasn't able to make it to Homecoming because he is stationed at Andersen Air Force Base in Guam where he has been upgraded to Aircraft Commander (like an airline captain) and accepted a Regular Commission, which is career status. Richard and his wife, Teresa, have two daughters, Cassandra, 6, and Jennifer 4. Everyone who reads the articles in the Alumni Gazette saw an article last November called "Winging It with Alumni" which was written about Richard and his former navigator, Lt. Marcus Carlton ('77).

Ronald Myers was awarded a Ph.D. in Physics from Carnegie-Mellon University in May of 1982 and is working for Brockway Inc. (NY) in applied research and development.

Jim Graves was in the Air Force for five years and decided to try something else — law school. He supported himself by flying part time with the Air Force Reserve and is now a partner in the firm of Graves & Allison in Shreveport, La.

There are more alumni involved with the service. Joanne Bird Randa writes from Germany where her husband, Rich ('71) is in the Army in Heidelberg. Their daughter, Carrie Dean, is 3 and goes to a German nursery school.

Virginia Miller graduated from William Mitchell College of Law in St. Paul, Minnesota in January, 1983 and was first in a class of 199. Before graduation she was working as an appellate hearing examiner with the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Minneapolis and hadn't decided whether to start a career as an attorney.

Iuroguee Syuon graduated from William and Mary Law School and is now practicing law as a sole practitioner in Key West, Florida.

Nancy Layne Stanton is the Minister of Education at First Baptist Church of Martinsville, Virginia and has been for three years. Prior to this, she lived in Roanoke, Virginia and was the Minister of Education.

From Ellen Elsen I hear that she writes contracts for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in Seattle, Washington. She married Frank Gaul in 1976 and kept her surname. Her call for missing persons includes Debby Dalton Alfna and Barbara Rogers Crisman.

Now if anyone wants to try something different you might try what Rich Atkinson, his wife and two year old son do. They live and work on a dairy farm in East Montpelier, Vermont where, he says, his academic credentials in philosophy and religion are brought to bear daily on the care of 70 registered Holstein cows. His metaphysical speculation is minimized when waking hour is sometimes before 4 a.m.

I received a really nice article on Charles Correll, who we might consider naming our class artisan. He left college planning on a career in psychology but has become a glass maker and owner of the Correll Glass Studio in Holyoke, Massachusetts. As a part-time job during college, he worked for the Jamestown Glasshouse in the Colonial National Historical Park where he learned the art of glass making — and the results are now included in the permanent collections of institutions like the Chrysler Museum! Charles uses solid colors that shade into one another and emphasizes form rather than ornate surface decoration. He was in Williamsburg showing his work in the Village Shops at Kingsmill in December, and the pictures in the paper were beautiful. Charles, his wife, Cori Ashworth, and 14-month old daughter, Maureen live in Massachusetts country known as Pioneer Valley. Any alumni in the area should really try to stop in.

Here are some one-liners from people I saw at Homecoming. . . Frank Roche works for the Smithsonian Museum of American History as project manager of inventory collections which should be finished next June. He lives in Falls Church. Anne Iarobino Barter's second child was due (so has been born) in December. Congratulations! Husband Al is a doctor and they'll be moving from Durham, North Carolina to Birmingham, Alabama. Kevin Hennessey and wife, Donna, live in Pottstown, Pennsylvania where he is an attorney and they have a little boy. Linda Marsh is as crazy as ever. She's doing great in Greensboro, North Carolina where she designs lamps and furniture; plus, she has done display work for department stores, free lance design work and photography.

Allen Grant is a contract supervisor with Dynamac, working on a contract with the Environmental Protection Agency. He lived in California and is now in the D.C. area. He had his son and daughter with him and I bet they still have a supply of donuts.

I saw Bill and Susie Slaton Gibbons who live in Charlottesville. Susie is a corporate account manager with a newspaper headquarters and Bill is a tax attorney in Richmond. He received his law degree from the University of Virginia in 1980. Trish Parlin Lange and family live in Chicago. Her husband is an attorney and 5 and 2 year old children keep her hopping.

Captain Bob ('73) and Ann Owen North were lucky enough to be stationed in the D.C. area so they could make it to the reunion. They have several children and Ann has taught math and adult education to servicemen. Dave Watkins works for the Fairfax County government and has been involved in facilities management since 1973. Andy Evans works for the Agency for International Development and lived overseas in Afghanistan for two years while he was with the foreign service. He was also in Indonesia as the Regional Controller for the Asia bureau. He and his wife have two daughters, 4 years old and 6 months.

Gail McLawhon Snow and husband Don live in Madison, Connecticut and have two sons, 4½ and 1½. Gail worked in the Yale art gallery and had related jobs but has turned to homemaking for the time being. Tony Jay told me he is the Vice President of Finance with ARTCEC, the company that sets up cable television in Arlington County. He is married, has two sons and lives in Springfield.

Dave and Susan Flook Glendinning live in Highland County, which sounds like it's as close to heaven as West Virginia. They have a daughter, Dave works for VEPCO and he literally built a fantastic house there. Frank and Hannah Lindsay Finn live in Knoxville, Tennessee where he works for 13-30 Corporation, a company that publishes magazines, and was previously an editor for a trade association magazine. Hannah teaches dance and drama to children. John Wallmark lives in Hightstown, New Jersey and is a data base administrator with FMC Corporation. He comes back to Williamsburg every year to play in the alumni band at Homecoming and deserves a hand for his dedication.

Donna Kidd Kingsolver works for Time-Life in Alexandria as Assistant Director of Finance for Corporate Development. Her son, Brian, is 4 years old. Janice Brown Baskin works as an analyst for the Internal Revenue Service. She lives in Falls Church, is active in the Junior Womens Club of Falls Church, and enjoys tennis, needlework and going to legal conventions with husband, Bill.

I saw Matt ('71) and Betty Ann Carty Pagels. Betty Ann previously taught elementary school for two years and retired to take care of their family of three daughters. Matt is a corrective therapist in the Veterans Administration Hospital in Hampton.

Brooke Coleman Taylor and husband Bob traveled from Chattanooga, Tennessee. She has edited an art magazine, written a historical novella and managed an art gallery in the three years they have lived there. Bob is city manager of Red Bank and they have two daughters. Jack Hurley and his wife are expecting their first child (or were at Homecoming). They are probably proud parents by now. He owns and runs two restaurants in New England (Vermont maybe?). Judy Barrows lives in the D.C. area where she is an attorney for the government.

Lane Pruett Jacobsen has settled down to raise two children. She and husband Tom live in Falls Church. Jack Russell hails from Houston, Texas now where he is a division manager with the National Electrical Contractors. His note in the alumni booklet asks where are Jed Meade, Billy Fields, and Brian Davenport???

Betsy Stone was in Williamsburg with husband, Marc Berman and her four month old son. She has visited in Central and South America since graduation, her hobby is weaving and she is the owner of a retail womens clothing store. Vickie Volk Holpe taught school for over 5 years and worked on her masters degree in education. After son Michael was born she occupied herself with church work, tutoring and a myriad of other activities. Now she and husband, Mark, have a second son, Brian (since October).

Elaine May Kontos (Alumni Gazette reporter of yesteryear) works for the 7-Up Bottling Co. as controller. She and husband, Ken, have two sons, she is the organist and choir director at her church and does upholstery/interior design on the side. Bill Monday is the Vice President of Marketing for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia. He and

GOLF TEAM HOLDS REUNION

Coach Joe Agee '52 organized a reunion of former members of the William and Mary golf teams on Oct. 9-10, bringing together 15 alumni from teams dating back 19 years. The participants watched the current Tribe team defeat Dartmouth and then gathered for a reception and dinner at Kingsmill on the James. The group included (kneeling, Ted Rand, a visitor from Dartmouth; Steve Isaacs '70, Richmond; Todd Richter '79 and Lenny Brooks '81, New York; and Jim Angel '75, Richmond. Standing, Burt Wilson '74, Richmond; David Stewart '66 (with daughter Tasha), Washington, D.C.; John Kyle '67, Bethesda, Md.; Worth Banner '68, Virginia Beach; Bill Binns '67, Richmond; Joe Agee Jr. '78, Hilton Head, S.C.; Dr. Dick Tomlinson '68, Tahoe City, Calif.; David Kast '79, Brookfield, Conn.; and Russell Brown '74, Hilton Head. A team including Kyle and current Tribe golfers Kent Erdahl and Jim McKeon won the reunion golf tournament, with Binns, Kast and current Tribe golfers Duncan Weir and Kevin Sullivan coming in second. Agee plans to hold another reunion Oct. 1-2 during Oyster Bowl weekend when William and Mary plays Yale. If you would like to attend, contact Coach Agee.

wife, Kathy, live in Midlothian, Virginia and have three sons. His spare time is taken up with tennis and sailboat racing.

Tommy and Tina Jones Johnson came south from the northlands of New York where they've found out the real meaning of cold. Tom is a senior construction supervisor with Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation and likes woodworking, especially guitar building, photography and hunting and fishing. Tina has begun cross-country and downhill skiing since their son and daughter are going to school. Chrissie Ulmer Moore lived in Atlanta for several years before moving to the D.C. area. She works part-time as a paralegal while raising two children.

I know I have more notes on people I saw at Homecoming and when I find them, you'll find out what everyone else is doing. Hope you are all having a good 1983 and let me know where you are.

This month's column is being penned hastily while our week-old baby daughter is asleep — at last! Margaret Maynadier was born on Jan. 2 and is the most beautiful little girl Jim and I have ever seen! I will be home with her for a couple months before returning to my job as products manager at Colonial Williamsburg. I had been looking forward to a little leisure time, but am beginning to realize what a naive thought that was!

John L. Sherwood is an assistant professor at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater. John, a plant pathologist, is developing a program to study plant viruses on economically important crops in Oklahoma. He earned his master's degree at the University of Maryland in 1977 and his Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin in 1981.

William B. (Rip) Scherer is now in his third year as an assistant football coach at Georgia Tech. He and his wife and young son Scott reside in Marietta, Georgia. Bruce Stevens, his wife Susan, and daughter Jill just moved to Hawaii and — needless to say — are enjoying it very much. Bruce is assigned as Staff Anesthesiologist at Tripler Army Medical Center.

Cary C. Hoagland writes that she has become involved with a vocal group where she sees two other W&M classmates, Robert Hall and Allen Hemphill. Cary, who lives in northern Virginia, is also indulging in two new hobbies: picture framing and playing the recorder.

After having been Director of Admissions for the School of Business at Emory University for the past five years, Elizabeth (Liz) Lee has returned to school to pursue an MBA at the Amos Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth.

For the last six years, Patricia Mayer Henry has been working at the American Statesman newspaper in Austin, Texas, and is now the editor of the paper's four neighborhood sections. Her husband John works for the paper too, as a political reporter in the state capital bureau.

Susan King McGrail was recently appointed Regional Controller for Warner-Amex Cable Co. in Cincinnati.

After a three-year stint (1975-78) in the Peace Corps as a math teacher in Zaire, Africa, Phillip Schofield returned to the States and taught eighth grade math in Charlottesville. From 1979 to 1981 he got his master's degree in math at VPI (but swears he's no Hokie!) Now Phil is in Houston making flight simulators for the Link Division of Singer Corp.

Maggie Lineham Berry wrote that she has been an engineering technician at NASA Langley Research Center in Hampton for the last two years. She and her husband Bob, who also works at NASA, live in Hays, Virginia, with their six-year old Noah. They enjoy being close enough to Williamsburg to pay frequent visits to the libraries, restored area, and shops there.

Jim Newell married Janet Sooeey in Charlotte, N.C. in 1980. After going to school in California, he now works as a launch control officer under the North Dakota "tundra" at a missile base near the Canadian border. He is also working on an MBA from the University of North Dakota. Jim and Janet's first child was born in 1982: Stephanie Carole will be a year old by the time this issue appears.

Has anyone heard from Carol White, Tom Monday, Paul Wergley, or Mary Lively? If so, please write and let us know what they are doing.

To the Editor:

I'll begin this column by correcting an entry from the September issue. Susan Kidwell is at the University of Arizona, not the University of Virginia as was reported. Sorry for the mixup, Susan.

BANKING: Shirley Macklin Lassiter moved to Austin, Texas last August and began work with First City National Bank as a Regional Banking Officer. She says that the Bank is one of the more aggressive Texas bank holding companies and that she is really happy in her job. Last month, she began work on her MBA at St. Edward's University. Ginny Blain has been promoted to vice president by North Carolina National Bank. She has been with NCB since 1979 and is an account officer in their Chicago office. Prior to 1979, she had been assistant treasurer with Chase Manhattan Bank. Rebekah Woodruff has been promoted to assistant vice president and assistant manager of bank related courses at the University of Richmond and the American Institute of Banking. Lisa Anne Van Divender has also been promoted to assistant vice president, with Central Fidelity Bank in Richmond. She joined the bank in 1981 in the International Banking Division. Prior to that she worked for Commerzbank AG in New York and London.

NEW ENGLAND: Deborah Federhen has moved east as she is currently in New Haven, Conn. Deborah works in the American Arts Office at the Yale University Art Gallery. Larry and Pamela (DuPriest) Tucker are alive and well and living in the Boston area and would love to hear from some old friends. Pam has an M.Ed. from UNC and is now the educational director of a school for dyslexic children. Larry has a Ph.D. in clinical psychology and is consulting at programs for disturbed children. Rebecca Bezdin Cawthorn lives in New Hampshire but works in Lowell, Mass. at Wang Laboratories. She is currently the manager in the Software Engineering Dept. in charge of new product testing at customer sites.

PITTSBURGH: Patricia Angstadt Staudt has been promoted to senior tax manager with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell. Pat said she would love to hear from David Batlan. Mark Griffith has been elected a vice president of Griffith & Bennett, Inc. His firm is a pension and profit-sharing design and administration firm.

MEDICINE: Glenn Johnson is in Houston where she is a second year resident in Family

Practice at the UT-Houston Memorial Hospital system. Gary Crickenberger is doing an internship in veterinary medicine at the West Los Angeles Veterinary Medical Group, Inc.

SWIMMING: Keith Havens is currently the head swimming coach at William and Mary. He is also a national class canoeist and recently placed third in the Nantahala Outdoorsman's Triathlon (The triathlon consists of a 1-mile swim, 4-mile swim, 4-mile run and 8-mile canoe). Rick Rheinhardt placed 12th in the same event. Last May, Rick had won the Richmond Ironman Triathlon (a bike-swim-run event).

Coleman Tyler is director of missions for Williamsburg New Testament Church and teaches French part-time at the Williamsburg Christian Academy. This past December he became engaged to Susan Butler, and the big event is planned for Easter Weekend. Congratulations, Coleman! Scott Shafer reports that he served as the program director for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon in Mobile, Ala. He was in charge of setting the stage, arranging for talent, producing the show log and directing all local portions of the Mobile broadcast. The effort helped to raise over $200,000! Wow!! Cheryl Smith is an archaeologist for the Tulsa District Corps of Engineers and this fall began work on an M.A. in Anthropology at the Univ. of Tulsa. She will be coming to William and Mary in February to talk to the faculty and students in the Anthropology Dept. about her role as a Federal archaeologist. Laurie Johnston came to the campus in October to talk on careers in the Foreign Service. Her talk was the third in the Career Speaker Series run by the Office of Career Planning.

Finally, Steven Webb has formed a partnership for the practice of law in Richmond — Witmeyer and Webb. He did this one year after graduating from the T.C. Williams School of Law in 1979.

Plan now for the fall! This will be our fifth year reunion at Homecoming. If you would be interested in helping with plans or with contacting classmates, send me a letter or contact the Alumni House. More details will be included in the next column; our deadline is March 30.

Our class president, Chris Kelly, has been quite active in recent months. On Sept. 23, Chris won election in the New York primary to be an East Hampton Democratic Committeeman. At the October meeting of this committee he defeated the incumbent chairman by a 3 to 1 margin to become the youngest town democratic chairman in history. He and his wife, Nancy, have bought their first house in East Hampton. In addition to his political career, Chris is an associate with the law firm of Twomey, Latham & Shea in New York.

In the fall, Laila Wolle joined Scroggin & Fischer Advertising in San Francisco as an account executive handling the California Table Grape Commission, Fireside Thrift and the New Zealand Apple & Pear Marketing Board accounts. Laila was previously with the William Esty Co., Inc. in New York where she served as account executive on Mastercard International. While in New York, she completed her MBA at New York University.

Congratulations to all new parents! Curtis and Mary Phillips Hall are proud parents of Curtis Alexander, born October 10. The Halls live in Norfolk. Also in October, Robert and Marie Jacobsen Johnston became parents for the second time on the 25th when Elizabeth Ann was born. They also have a son, Robbie. The Johnstons are once again in Northern Va.

Fred Reiner married Nan Moncharsh in May. She is a Princeton graduate and received her J.D. from Columbia University. She is a prosecuting attorney in Washington, D.C. Fred is self-employed as a piano tuner/technician. Fred and Nan own a home in Alexandria.

Lou and Rich Garrison have moved to an area near Los Angeles. Rich is working in personnel for Litton.

Les and Patty Gilboyl Mulligan are living in Blacksburg. Les is in his second year of veterinary medicine at the new Va.-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine. Patty is teaching 5th grade in a nearby county.

 OCTOBER 22-23
HOME COMING
 YOU'RE INVITED!

Mike and Debbie Camacho Potter have moved to Danville. Mike is still a sportswriter for the Danville Bee. He has covered William and Mary events on occasion! Debbie is a day treatment counselor for the Mental Health Center. Their son, John, is now four and learning to read in kindergarten. He visited Williamsburg at Homecoming with his parents and Debbie reports that he enjoyed the candy shop the most.

Howard Smith passed along information from the Order of the White Jacket. This organization recently celebrated its tenth birthday with a very successful membership drive. The Agee family (James '17, Joe '52, Joe, Jr. '78 and Gayle '79) received a special President's award at the anniversary banquet. Other news from OWJ: John Patrick Baker married Anne Marshall James of Richmond in April. He graduated from dental school at the Medical College of Va. in May. They have since moved to Greenville, N.C. where he is in general practice. David and Anne Birch Pierce are living in Fredericksburg where he is manager of Zales Jewelers and she is a floral designer and plant caretaker at Green Growcery, Inc. in the Spotsylvania Mall.

Janet Jones received her M.A. in Archaeology in 1981 from UNC, Chapel Hill. She excavated in the Agora at Athens during the summer of '81 and returned to UNC to work towards her Ph.D. In November, she successfully completed the written requirements. Next summer she plans to be excavating at the Turkish site of Gritille on the Euphrates River and then to remain in Greece to do field work on her dissertation. Janet had news from Charles '75 and Ellen Hoitsma Schelberg. Ellen was in our class at one time but transferred to UVA. They have a son born in August and live in Baltimore where Charlie is a lawyer with Miles and Stockbridge.

Cpt. Dee Morris-Young married Lloyd Young in March '79. They are serving at SHAPE, a military medical center in Mons, Belgium. Dee is personnel officer for the hospital and Lloyd is in civil service. They enjoy the installation and say that it is not quite as Goldie Hawn portrayed it to be in Private Benjamin but it is similar! With London 6 hours away and Paris only 3 hours, it certainly sounds like fun!

Deborah Bliss Fordham is married and

ATLANTA HIRES HENNING

Dan Henning '64 has moved from offensive coordinator of the Super Bowl Champion Washington Redskins to the position of head coach of the Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League. Henning, who played quarterback for William and Mary from 1960 to 1963, began his coaching career at Florida State and later coached at Virginia Tech. He has been in the NFL for seven years with the Houston Oilers, New York Jets, Miami Dolphins and the Redskins where he has been assistant head coach and offensive coordinator for the past two years. Larry Peccatiello '58 is assistant coach of the World Champion Redskins.

CW PICKS ALUMNUS

The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation has named Richard L. McCluney Jr. '67 as its director of audiovisual programs. McCluney, who has been vice president of Louisville Productions, an affiliate of WHAS-TV in Louisville, Ky., will be responsible for a wide range of audiovisual activities including the foundation's television and film unit, which has produced more than 30 documentary films over the past 30 years. McCluney has been a reporter for a Richmond television station and advertising manager for a Boston firm.

living in Jacksonville, Fla. where she works designing and implementing computer systems for small businesses.

Richard Lowey is currently practicing law as an associate with Peabody & Brown in Boston, Mass.

Rick and Sue Olsen Rowland live in Williamsburg where Rick is completing the MBA program. Sue took the CPA exam in November and is awaiting the results. Following graduation this spring, they would like to relocate to the Washington, D.C. area. Rick is interested in the government relations field and Sue in accounting.

Bruce Hartzler and Keith Havens captured the two-man class in the Lafayette Open Canoe Regatta in September. Bruce is a graduate student at William and Mary; Keith is the swimming coach. Later that month, Bruce also won the Nantahala Outdoorsman's Triathlon in Bryson City, N.C. Other finishers included Keith Havens, third, and Rick Rheinhardt, twelfth.

Beth Fischer visited campus in November to present a talk on "Careers in Computer Service" as the ninth speaker in the Careers Speaker Series sponsored by the Office of Career Planning. Beth was a math/computer science major and is currently working as an applications consultant for Tymshare in Atlanta.

John Strickler received his M.D. from the UVA School of Medicine in May. He is now serving a three year residency in anatomic pathology at the Stanford University Medical Center. He married Joan Downey '79 in September '81.

It was great to see many of you at Homecoming this fall. Don't forget our fifth year reunion this fall! I hope to have some new names in our next column. Keep those letters coming and have a great year!

Happy New Year! I hope everyone enjoyed the holidays, and finds the new year full of happiness and prosperity. You haven't heard from me in awhile — I'm sorry I missed the last column, but it's been a busy few months for me. I've compiled quite a bit of news since the last column and even have some more for the next, but keep on writing!

It seems as if everyone's been busy with finishing up school, a little travelling or work. I enjoy hearing from you — also several people have mentioned how great it is to be able to keep up with a few distant friends.

Kim Hamlett wrote from Winston-Salem, North Carolina, where she had recently received her Masters degree in general experimental psychology at Wake Forest University. Kim was planning to move to Washington to begin training in Catholic University's PhD program in clinical psychology. Laura Fisher is a copywriter for the advertising firm of Bovier-Cecil Associates in Greensboro. Laura was also living in Winston-Salem.

There have been a few new additions to several families. Congratulations to Cathy (Welch) and Dean Kurtz! Cathy wrote to tell us that they were expecting a baby at the end of January. Nothing else is new in Chicago, but I don't think anything else would be quite as exciting.

Toni and Richard Chidester wrote from Williamsburg. Toni also had some exciting news — their first child, Michelle Lauren, was born in August. Congratulations to the proud parents! Toni had been teaching kindergarten since graduation, but is now taking time out to raise Michelle. Richard graduated from Marshall-Wythe School of Law in May and was waiting to hear the results of the bar exam — good luck, Richard!

Laurie (Peery) and Chip Jackson recently announced the arrival of their second child, Eric, in September. I believe that congratulations are in order again! Eric joins his brother, Chad, in keeping Laurie and Chip extremely busy. They've been living in California, but will be moving back to Norfolk this winter, and are looking forward to being back in home territory.

John McCoy writes from Charlottesville where he is between degrees. John recently completed his Masters degree in materials science in the Engineering School and has decided to continue on for three more years towards his Ph.D.

Celia Cohan has been keeping busy in her new position as stockbroker for the firm of Anderson-Strudwick in Lynchburg. Celia accepted the job in June and before that was an office manager for an area company. When I heard from Celia, she was packing for a trip to the Virgin Islands. All is going well for her and she's having a great time.

John O'Hanlon returned to school this fall for his Masters in social work. John is attending the University of Missouri in Columbia, a college town, not unlike Williamsburg, however John claims that it's not as pretty. Betsy Connell is also back at school at the University of Delaware in Wilmington, where she has completed the first year of graduate work in the Winterthur Program. Student life agrees with Betsy, and, all in all, she's having fun.

Since graduation, Chris Armstrong has been involved in quite a few different things. He is in Norfolk now at Eastern Virginia Medical School where he enrolled as a member of the last three-year medical school class which will graduate in the U.S. Between graduation and now, Chris worked as a biologist at the National Cancer Institute and then returned to William and Mary to work on his Masters degree in biology. His research was delayed for awhile due to certain technical matters; during this time, Chris worked at the King's Arms Tavern with a few of our classmates — Ed Moreland, Mike Myers and Tom Mogen. Chris transferred to the School of Education while enabled him to pursue his interest in academic medicine and graduated with his Masters in the spring of 1982. His roommate at William and Mary was Mark Reed who was attending Marshall-Wythe School of Law. Mark is doing very well and has received several awards. Chris also found time to attend the wedding of Dwight Peake and Rhonda Collier in the summer of 1981.

A few other quick notes —

Joel Bass has completed his third year of medical school at Rutgers Medical School in New Jersey.

Lisa Goldstein received her Master of Science in entomology from the University of Delaware this past summer.

Nan Keller is teaching fourth grade at Boyce Elementary School in Clarke County, Virginia.

Laurie Lynn Baskett is employed by Peat, Marwick and Mitchell in Roanoke and has completed all requirements for her CPA certificate.

Nancy Neff is enrolled at the University of Tennessee in the Masters program in geology, where she specialized in carbonate sedimentology. Nancy completed her degree in December.

Phil Kilgore is in his third year of law school at the University of South Carolina. Phil has been competing as a member of the school's national Moot Court team. He plans to remain in South Carolina to practice, so I guess we'll just have to take a trip down to visit!

Well, that's about all for now, folks! (I also have to get this in the mail before I miss another column) I've enjoyed hearing from you, and I know others have as well, so please keep writing!

Hope to see you sometime at the 'Burg in the near future, but until then, enjoy the now not-so-new New Year. Best wishes for all!

Thanks to all the 1982 grads who wrote or called to let me know what they were up to. It seems the "real" world is a bit bigger than we all thought — the Class of '82 is now scattered all over the U.S. and abroad!

Shearer West Stuttard is earning her Ph.D. at the Univ. of St. Andrews in Scotland as an Overseas Research Scholar. Jan Howarth spent the summer in England, Marsha Percy has been in Spain, and our Commencement Chairman Sean Gallacher is now recovering from graduation by touring Europe "for as long as his money holds out."

On the homefront, employment opportunities (or is it the after-hours opportunities?) have drawn many William and Mary grads to Washington, D.C. The D. C. accounting firms have been overtaken by William and Mary grads including, Beth Alford, Brenda Bloomer, Karen Garland, and Jere Shawver. All are claiming that the conservative three-piece suit lifestyle is worth it in order to live in exciting D.C. Others enjoying the fast pace of the nation's capitol are Bob Hallman at IBM, Judy Dorow at McGraw Hill Co., Julie Brink at the White House, Anne Benton at American Management, Inc., Alice Campbell at MCI, Carrie Solomon at American U. Law School, and Michelle Coster on "the Hill" with the White House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee.

Potential doctors, lawyers, and dentists from the Class of '82 are finding that William and Mary classes were "easy" compared to "case, after case, after case study," and "marathon lab sessions." Kurt Whittaker and Leslie Wederick are attending the 'William and Mary of the North,' Harvard Univ. Marshall-Wythe 'first-years' include Steve Edwards (recipient of a $15,000 Shell Oil scholarship) and Sara Jennings (who incidentally is engaged to Steve Edwards, so double congrats to them both) Patti James is attending law school in New York, while Dana Disque and Jeb Jeutter went South to the Univ. of Ala. and Mississippi State law schools. Others in Va. law schools include Brad Pollok (Univ. of Richmond), Ellen Gray (Washington and Lee), and Tom Prince and Brad Marrs are both at that school in Charlottesville. Future M.D.'s in med classes are Lisa Amaya, Chris Benjamin, and Tom Hearn but to which med school they've given their lives to I'm not sure.

Some of the more unique jobs the Class of '82 has ventured into or gone far afield for are technical copywriting (Lisa Zanetti), South American Peace Corps volunteer (Dave Kaut), field secretary for KKG (Barbie Cole), Tennessee Journalism (Dennis 'Moose' Fitzgerald), RA for the Catholic Student Assoc. (Kevin Doyle), Pepsi Cola public relations (Mrs. Laurie McAvoy Hissey), Wall St. (Doug Borden). Buddy Phillips can be found somewhere in St. Louis, and Bill Kelley is with the U.S. Army in the Arizona Desert. (Bill says 'Hello' to all old and new Moores, and hopes for a Homecoming '83 reunion at Ludwell.)

The bankers in the class can be found in Maryland (Cindy Vick), in N.J. (Brenda Henry and Bruce Fletcher), and in VA.

(Tony Delserone.) 'Educated' grads such as Nancy Conlon, Charlie Kendricks, and Frank Robert are continuing their educations in grad school while teaching students of their own at prestigious private secondary schools. Alison Hood is working on a tan and her Masters in Special Ed at San Diego State Univ.

Others receiving post graduation honors or special internships are Bonnie Banks, who received a fellowship to study management in MBA school at Washington Univ., St. Louis. Randolph Beales and Jennifer Ricketts served as interns this past summer under the Governor of Virginia. Jennifer then went to work on the successful campaign of Congressman R. Boucher. Nancy Sharp, after only 4 months with Arthur Anderson in Washington, D.C., was transferred to the California office where she is now working, with a new car and a tan.

Employment and wedding plans went hand in hand for many classmates. Evelyn Stanten (with Peat, Marwick and Mitchell in N.J.) is now married to Christian Andree (now in MBA school). According to their letter they were married in Williamsburg and then again in London! Laurie McAvoy married Dave Hissey ('78), and Karen Wyatt (now at VEPCO in Richmond) married Rick Ramsey. Dave Blows tied the knot with a 'hometown', as did Brenda Henry. Roy Dunn and Rindy Lawson are married, as are Rich Choate and Cindy Vick. I'm uncertain of the dates and details, but Laura Wortman and Paul Solitario plan to wed, Sue Hamerland and Kevin Zegel have tied the knot, and Tracy Deering, Anne Husted, Kris Winegar, Suzanne Sellers, and Tracey Armstrong are on their way to the altar, as well.

I gladly include in this newsletter the list given me of Class of '82 initiates into the Order of the White Jacket. This fine fraternal organization of former Williamsburg and college caterers/waiters/waitresses celebrated its tenth anniversary on October 12, 1982. This group exemplifies the compatibility of hard work and academic excellence. Congrats are in order for: Dave Ardis, Molly Buchanan, Carole Carber, Joanne Fenity, Kim Johnson, Stacy Spencer, Joseph Violette, Mark Whitney, Robert Loftus, Shireen Hayes, Vince Pirri, Laurie McAvoy, Stacey Alexander, Marty Dickens and Chris Romeo.

Homecoming 1982 gave us the opportunity to see classmates and old friends, but I hope to put something together specifically for the Class of '82 next year. If for no other reason, it will give me a chance to talk with more of you and thus get a head start on the next class notes deadline! I might have trouble getting together with even the other officers, though. Vice President Shao-Li Liu is now doing grad work at none other than California's Stanford Univ., and the last word on Mike Mallare was that he had "Taken a year off" and was working at a ski lodge in Utah. It seems a lot of people needed "a year off" to recover from Senior year, including myself. I am slowly working on a Masters Degree in Public Administration and have gotten caught up in local and state Virginia politics. Law school is still in the plans for this Fall, only the location has changed. The state of Virginia, not Florida, is now 'home'. The address listed in this issue of the Gazette is the one all class notes should be posted to. The one in the student directory, as some of you may have found, is incorrect. I hope to hear from and about as many of the Class of '82 as possible. Please just take a few minutes during a lunchbreak to jot a line or two. I'm not much as a gossip columnist, but I do know that I can only include "gossip" about those people I hear from! (Suggestions on how to improve the class notes column are also, obviously, encouraged and needed.) Write soon. . . .

DEATHS

The obituary for Victor A. Bell, which was published in the December 1982 Alumni Gazette contained several errors. The following corrected obituary is therefore submitted, with our apologies.

VICTOR ALTMARK BELL, '35, a native of Suffolk and a long-time resident of Smithfield, Virginia, died April 16, 1979, of cancer. In addition to William and Mary, he attended the graduate School of Credits and Financial Management, Dartmouth College, and earned his A.A.S. degree from Tidewater Community College. He served on the Smithfield Town Council from 1956 until 1962, and was a member and former president of the Smithfield Chamber of Commerce, Smithfield Rotary Club and the Smithfield German Club. He retired from I.T.T. Gwaltney, Inc. in 1978 as Vice President and Director of Credits and Collections. A member of Trinity United Methodist Church, he is survived by his wife Caroline; two sons, Victor A., Jr. and James L., II; three sisters, Mrs. James C. Moore, Miss Jean A. Bell, and Mrs. Bruce W. Butts; a brother, Jack H. Bell; and two granddaughters.

LAFAYETTE ARTHUR BRITTINGHAM, '20, of Newport News, Virginia, died December 17, 1982, following a long illness. A member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, he was a member of the W&M football team from 1916-1918. He is survived by his wife.

MAXWELL REED ALEXANDER, '26, of Williamsburg, Virginia, died January 3, 1983. A retired postal worker, he was employed by the Williamsburg Post Office for 34 years. He is survived by one son, Maxwell R., Jr.

ANNYE B. BURBANK, '29 B.A., died December 16, 1982, in Newport News, Virginia. A native of Hampton, she was a school teacher for more than 50 years, teaching college preparatory English at Newport News High School until her retirement in 1955, and then teaching at Hampton Roads Academy. In addition to her undergraduate degree, she earned her M.A. from W&M in 1932; and upon her retirement in 1955, she was made a member of Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. She was the author of The Reward of It All, a book based on her experiences as a teacher. A member of Hampton Baptist Church, she is survived by six nieces and nephews.

MILTON CROXTON STRIBLING, '29 B.S., died December 3, 1982, in Sarasota, Florida. A member of Omicron Delta Kappa, the F. H. C. Society and Theta Delta Chi, he was a native of Richmond and a former resident of Virginia Beach. He was for many years a sales engineer. Survivors include his wife Virginia, and a sister, Marguerite Stribling Vermillion, '35.

BENJAMIN MOSES SCHWETZ, '30, of Portsmouth, Virginia, died November 17, 1982. A retired scrap dealer, he was a charter member of Phi Alpha fraternity. He studied law at William and Mary, and prior to establishing his own business, he was for several years a practicing attorney. Survivors include his wife Ruth.

HERBERT RAY CADDY, SR., '31 B.S., a long-time resident of Chesapeake, Virginia, died November 15, 1982 in Virginia Beach. After earning his degree in Business Administration, he went to work for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in 1935. In 1968 he retired, having spent many years as a consultant specializing in the creation and conservation of estates. Active in numerous civic organizations, he at one time taught defensive driving in Chesapeake. He was a member of Elizabeth River Baptist Church. Survivors include his wife Grace, two sons, and a sister.

GEORGE BARTHOLOMEW CRANSTON, '32 B.S., of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, died of a heart attack on October 26, 1982. A mechanical engineer throughout his working career, he spent the last 15 years before his retirement as Administrator of Mechanical Standards at R. C. A. He is survived by his wife Ivy.

EDWARD HERNDON TRICE, '33, of Kenbridge, Virginia, died November 26, 1982. Prior to his retirement, he was a division salesman with Youngs Rubber Corporation, Boyle-Midway Corporation, and Southside Furniture Company. Survivors include his wife Livie and one sister.

MARTHA AUDREY BRYHN (BOHGREN), '36, died November 16, 1982, as a result of a fire in her home in Tampa, Florida. A native of Williamsburg, she attended William and Mary for one year. Survivors include her husband Marion; two sisters, Louise B. Harrison, '41, and Helen Bryhn, '30; and a brother, George Bryhn.

JANE ALBERTA BAKER (LARSON), '39 A. B., of Salem, New York, died in February, 1982. A member of Pi Beta Phi, she earned a Bachelor of Music degree from the Cleveland Institute of Music in 1942. She is survived by her husband James and three children.

ELEANORE RHEUGY (VOLONTE), '44 B.S., of Madison, New Jersey, died December 12, 1982, following a long illness. A member of Alpha Chi Omega, she was an active volunteer with the American Red Cross and numerous other organizations in the various parts of the country where her husband (an active duty naval officer) was stationed. In 1972, she received a certificate of appreciation from President Richard Nixon for her Red Cross work. While living in Madison, she served as a Red Cross volunteer for Morristown Memorial Hospital and as a board member of the Hospital Women's Association and the Visiting Homemakers Service. In recognition of her dedication and devotion, the Morristown Memorial Hospital Women's Association voted to name its Service Award the Eleanor Award. Survivors include her husband Joseph, two children, a brother, and a sister.

HARRY LEE MYERS, JR., '51, originally of Staunton, Virginia, died December 16, 1982, in an automobile accident. He attended William and Mary from 1947-1948. Since 1949, he had been a Benedictine monk of St. Meinrad Archabbey in St. Meinrad, Indiana.

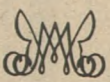

ALICE VIRGINIA GOULDMAN (HUGHES), '59, died September 27, 1982, in Fredericksburg, Virginia. At one time a teacher in Stafford, Virginia, she had been chronically ill with emphysema for a number of years. She is survived by her husband Mirabeau and one son.

TIMOTHY JAMES WALTER, '66 B.S., died December 9, 1982 in an automobile accident in Newport News, Virginia. At William and Mary, he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity, the Student Association, and the freshman and varsity basketball teams; he was a group leader and a dormitory manager, and he served on the staff of the Colonial Echo. In addition to his undergraduate degree, he earned his M.Ed. from the College in 1969, and his Certificate of Advanced Study in Educational Administration in 1980. Following his graduation in 1966, he taught for two years in Williamsburg, and in 1969 joined the Newport News school system as a counselor at Warwick High School. In 1970, he became a counselor and director of activities at Menchville High School, and in 1971 he was appointed assistant principal at Ferguson High School. He left to serve as director of business affairs for the school division, but returned to Ferguson in 1978 as principal, the position which he held at the time of his death. A former consultant to the Hampton School Board on a proposed middle school plan, he was selected last year to be chairman of the Peninsula district of the Virginia High School League. Survivors include his wife Carol; three children; his parents; a sister; and two brothers, Gary D. Walter, '67, and Randy D. Walter, '72.

JAMES NEALE LAWLER, '67 B.A., of Richmond, Virginia, died April 27, 1982, of hepatitis. After graduating from William and Mary, he attended the T.C. Williams School of Law of the University of Richmond, earning his J.D. in 1970. He served in the U.S. Army for two years, attaining the rank of captain, and then served for several years as an assistant city attorney for Richmond. In 1981, he began practicing law privately from his home, and he maintained this practice until his death. He was a member of numerous professional organizations, the Commonwealth Club, and Sacred Heart Catholic Church. Survivors include his father, his mother, a brother, and two sisters.

JANET MARGARET GRAYSON (COFER), '76 B.A., originally of Blacksburg, Virginia, died November 29, 1982, following a brief illness. A mathematics major at William and Mary, she was active in Alpha Lambda Delta and WATS. Prior to the birth of her son, she taught high school for several years. She is survived by her husband William; one son; her parents; and three sisters, including Mary Grayson, '78.

STANLEY MARVIN HIRSCH, J. D. '71, died January 2, 1983, in Norfolk, Virginia. A 1945 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, he entered the Marshall-Wythe School of Law after retiring as an officer in the U.S. Navy. He was a former Virginia Beach deputy commonwealth's attorney and a former assistant commonwealth's attorney in Chesapeake, but he had been in private practice since last February. As a prosecuting attorney, he was highly regarded for his ability to defeat the insanity defense plea. Active in numerous professional and civic organizations, he was a member of Ohel Shalom Temple. Survivors include his wife Natalie and one son.

The Official
Oxford Buttondown

The Society of the Alumni is proud to announce that it has commissioned the Aetna Shirt Corporation of Baltimore, Maryland to design the Official William and Mary Oxford Buttondown Shirt. In business since 1916, Aetna is the exclusive licensee for such world famous designers as Adolfo, Givenchy, and Carol Horn, and has designed quality shirts for hundreds of outstanding stores, including Saks Fifth Avenue, Joseph Bank, and Lord and Taylor.

Men's shirts are available in 100% cotton and permanent press. When ordering, please specify regular or tapered cut, your neck and sleeve sizes, and the color(s) desired -- blue, white, yellow, pink, ecru, or lilac. Ladies shirts are available in all of these colors in sizes 4-16, perma-press only. Each shirt will be distinctively monogrammed with the Royal Cipher in navy on the cuff.

For a limited time only, the Alumni Association is able to offer you a quantity purchase discount. Regularly priced at $30.00 each you may purchase three shirts for $85.00, six for $165.00, or one dozen for $324.00. You may choose any assortment of colors and sizes to qualify for this discount. As your Official William and Mary Oxford Buttondown will be tailored to your requirements, please allow 4 to 6 weeks for delivery.
