THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Is William and Mary becoming too large? What is the ratio of in-state to out-of-state numbers of applicants? How will the College meet the threat to the integrity of the degree if it grows and alters the professor-student ratio? To what extent does the College use graduate students as teaching assistants? What is the school's policy regarding the admission of student athletes? What is the College's endowment? Why are there so many solicitations for funds? What is the Virginia Plan regarding the minority situation? How serious are the alcohol and drug problems on the campus? Do alumni children receive any special consideration in admission? With lower grade point averages than students from other schools, what is the prospect for William and Mary students entering graduate schools?

In traveling to William and Mary's alumni chapters during this past year, the Director of Chapter Programs found these questions to be among those most often asked about the College. In an effort to provide the alumni with accurate answers, key people on campus have been contacted. The responses which follow represent a combination of information from those people and from current publications.

WHAT IS THE SIZE OF THE STUDENT BODY? WILL THE COLLEGE GROW SUBSTANTIALLY, OR IS THERE A PLAN FOR A CEILING ON GROWTH?

The question of the size of the College has been raised increasingly in recent years, particularly in light of the projected enrollments at other state institutions. In the 1960's William and Mary projected a 5000 member student body. Overwhelming demand for admission, more stringent budget allocations from the State, and the necessity to increase graduate enrollment in some programs resulted in 1983 in an undergraduate enrollment of 4400 with 1600 graduate students. It is contemplated that the undergraduate enrollment may further increase by 250 in the next year.

If continued attention is accorded "the individual student," this increase can, it is believed, be accommodated within the traditional mission of a student-oriented, personalized institution. William and Mary retains a family atmosphere; a strong sense of community prevails among the students and the word personal represents the essence of their description of their experience at the College.

William and Mary is unique, neither small like a Washington and Lee nor large like a University of Virginia. As a modern university it must offer programs comparable in some instances to the "big" university, and, on the other hand, retain many of the values and attributes of the small school — especially in its attention to the individual. William and Mary thus defies valid comparison in practically any area that one might suggest; this reality may, in fact, be its greatest strength.

AS THE COLLEGE GROWS, HOW WILL THE INTEGRITY OF THE DEGREE BE PROTECTED IN THE FACE OF A CHANGING STUDENT/FACULTY RATIO?

Regarding the slight increase in undergraduate enrollment anticipated, the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences says, "The average effect on each course will be small and the impact on the quality of the education each student receives will be minimal." He admonishes, however, "since much of our educational quality stems from close faculty involvement with our students, keeping the class size down in writing and language courses will perhaps require reallocation of resources from other areas."

Regarding the use of graduate students with assistantships for teaching, the Dean says, "We use graduate students very little in teaching" and "I do not see us substituting graduate students for faculty members as regular lecturers." On the other hand, he applauds this energetic group of young scholars who can provide undergraduates with a role model of the next stage of intellectual growth and who willingly grant evening time for one to one teaching.

WITH LOWER GPA'S (GRADE POINT AVERAGES) THAN STUDENTS FROM OTHER SCHOOLS, WHAT IS THE PROSPECT FOR OUR STUDENTS ENTERING GRADUATE SCHOOLS?

The Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences answers this rather emphatically: "The good graduate and professional schools know the quality of our students and low grade inflation and judge accordingly." He further states, "It is both a pride and a concern that William and Mary has very high academic standards and very low grade inflation. I am sure faculty members elsewhere envy us. I am sure part of our attractiveness to the bright students is our reputation for academic rigor. Decreasing that rigor, I think, would hurt, not help our recruiting."

Information from the Placement Office indicates that the pre-med students at the College are among the nation's best, and around 90% of them are accepted into medical schools. Off-the-record statements from graduate school admissions officers indicate that the low grade inflation at William and Mary means they will consider William and Mary students with lower gpa's, since these are equivalent to the higher records of students from other schools.

ADMISSIONS: WHAT IS THE COLLEGE'S POLICY ABOUT THE ADMISSION OF THE STUDENT ATHLETE?

The Dean of Admissions reports that a subcommittee of the Admissions Policy Committee of the Faculty carefully reviews student-athlete admissions. Specific guidelines have been established to aid coaches in their recruitment efforts. Public school students must have a class rank of at least the top twenty-five percent and SAT scores totaling 900 (verbal not below 400), or can be in the top thirty-three percent of their class if their SAT's total above 1000. Coach-recommended student athletes whose numbers fall below the guidelines on either SAT or class rank must be considered by the Review Committee. Very few are brought to the committee, and the Dean indicates, "Our student athletes as a group generally rank at or about the eighty-fifth percentile in high school and have SAT scores totaling approximately 1100 — our student athletes are superior to the entire student body of most colleges in America."

ADMISSIONS: WHAT PERCENTAGE OF ALUMNI CHILDREN ARE ADMITTED AND IS THERE A SPECIAL POLICY COVERING ALUMNI CHILDREN?

On an annual basis about fifty percent of the non-Virginia alumni children are admitted and sixty-five percent of the Virginians. In 1973 the Board of Visitors established a policy governing this group, which in summary indicates that all other factors being equal, the status of alumni children receives special consideration.

Of the 5300 applicants for the class entering in fall of 1983, two thirds were out-of-state students; but of the 1100 enrolling freshmen, two thirds are residents of Virginia. Six percent of the class are alumni children.

Society To Award Medallions

Davis, Hyle, Mason, Ramsey To Be Honored At Homecoming

Four distinguished members of the Society of the Alumni will receive the Alumni Medallion at Homecoming on October 21-23 in recognition of their service to the College, community and nation.

The four are Richard J. Davis '42, the lieutenant governor of Virginia; Howard H. Hyle '48, director of international accounts for the Coca-Cola Company; Raymond A. Mason '59, president and chairman of the board of Legg Mason Wood Walker, Inc., and Harold W. Ramsey '27, superintendent emeritus of the Franklin County, Virginia, Public Schools.

A mortgage banker, lawyer, and civic leader, Davis served as mayor of the City of Portsmouth from 1974 to 1980 and as chairman of the Democratic Party of Virginia from January 1979 to November 1980. A partner in the Portsmouth law firm of Cooper, Davis, Kilgore, Parker, Leon & Fennell, he was elected lieutenant governor of Virginia in 1982. He was the Democratic candidate for the United States Senate last year.

Davis is the former chairman of the Housing and Community Development Committee of the United States Conference of Mayors and has served in a number of governmental and civic positions. In 1980, he was selected as the first recipient of the Area Cooperation Man of the Year Award by the chambers of commerce of several Tidewater cities and in 1979 he received Portsmouth's Citizen of the Year Award. Governor Davis is a member of the Board of Visitors of William and Mary.

Hyle joined Coca-Cola in 1949. He has worked as a salesman, special representative, promotions manager, advertising manager, sales manager, and as a member of the president's staff as an environmental specialist. A trustee emeritus of the William and Mary Endowment Association and a member of the Board of Directors of the School of Business Administration Sponsors, Inc. He served as vice president of the Society of the Alumni in 1968-69 and is a former chairman of the William and Mary Fund Committee.

Mason has been president and chairman of one of the country's top regional investment, banking and brokerage houses since 1973. He began his career with Mason and Lee, Inc., as a broker in 1959. The firm, through merger, acquired its present name of Legg Mason Wood Walker, Inc., in 1973.

Mason, who employs many William and Mary graduates in his company, is a member of the Board of Trustees of Villa Julie College and the Baltimore Museum of Art. He is a director emeritus of the School of Business Administration Sponsors and a trustee emeritus of the Endowment Association. He is currently a member of the President's Council. His wife is the former Suzanne M. Arble '60.

Ramsey served as superintendent of the Franklin County Public Schools from the time of his graduation from William and Mary in 1927 until his retirement in 1968, a total of 41 years. From 1920 to 1922, he taught in the Franklin Schools and was school principal from 1923 to 1926.

Ramsey received his masters degree from William and Mary in 1940 and in 1964 the College honored him with an honorary degree. He served in the Department of Education for the state, on the State Advisory Council of School Superintendents, and on several state and national education commissions. From 1958 until 1962 he was a member of the Virginia Commission of Public Education, and from 1946 to 1954 he was on the Board of Visitors of William and Mary, during which time he was elected secretary of the Board.

The four will receive their medallions at the Annual Meeting of the Society of the Alumni on the evening of Friday, Oct. 21. Since 1934, the Society has conferred 174 medallions.

INSIDE ADMISSIONS

Merit Scholarships: A Troubling Trend In Higher Education

By Gary Ripple
Dean of Admissions

A number of visitors to our Admissions Office are asking about merit scholarships, the awarding of monetary assistance to an incoming student based on factors other than financial need. This is a growing phenomenon in higher education and one that worries those of us who fear the disastrous consequences of fewer services as a result of lessened income and the prospects of an all out bidding war should such a practice reach the most selective, financially endowed institutions of higher learning.

In the jargon of the business world, pricing is an important component of marketing strategy. If one thinks of higher education as an industry, the price we establish for our "product" will have an important impact upon our ability to attract able students; thus, many colleges are actively participating in a variety of pricing schemes as a means of insuring the continuation of their place in the world of higher education.

Merit scholarships worry me because, with a few notable exceptions, they result in little more than a discount passed along to families with no real educational values awarded to the student. I would rather see such dollars directed toward the improvement of facilities or the reward of truly gifted and dedicated faculty members, the ones we are losing to businesses that can pay much higher salaries. Generally speaking, admission to a prestigious college or university should be a suitable reward for any student who has worked hard and made the most of his/her talents in secondary school. This is why the majority of America's truly great colleges and universities have not joined in the battle for good students by awarding empty scholarships. At William and Mary, we are constantly searching for new dollars to assist outstanding students for whom a William and Mary education would not be possible without financial aid.

Student consumers and their parents should carefully consider offers of merit scholarships and ask some important questions. For example, is the college able to meet the financial needs of those students who qualify for assistance? Where are the dollars for merit scholarships coming from (faculty salaries, equipment and facilities, maintenance)? If the brand of education the college offers is such a high level, why does it have to be offered at a low price?

Board Of Directors Approves Changes In By-Laws

The Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni passed the following changes in the by-laws of the Society at its meeting in September. The changes, which are indicated in italics, will be voted on at the Annual Meeting at Homecoming on Oct. 21.

ARTICLE I - THE SOCIETY

(b) ACTIVE MEMBER.

1. An active member, with the privilege of voting, and such other privileges as the Board of Directors may confer, shall be either an alumnus who has been designated a Life Member of the Society or an alumnus who has contributed to any fund recognized and/or accredited by the Office of University Advancement or the Society of the Alumni, during the previous fiscal year or by September 1, in the same calendar year in which the election occurs.

ARTICLE II - OFFICERS

SECTION II. The President shall preside at all meetings; shall have general supervision of the affairs of the Society, under the direction of the Board of Directors; shall sign and countersign all contracts and other instruments of the Society or may delegate such responsibilities to the Executive Vice President, except those under the management of the Alumni Board of Trustees; shall make reports to the Board of Directors and the members of the Society and perform all other duties incident to the office or as are properly required by the Board of Directors. The President may be bonded for such amount as the Board of Directors may determine.

SECTION IV. The Secretary shall insure issuance of notice of all meetings of the Society and taking of minutes thereof; shall have charge of the seal and the records of the Society; shall sign with the President such instruments as require such signature and shall affix the corporate seal to all instruments requiring same, and shall make such reports and perform all other duties incident to the office or as are properly required by the Board of Directors, or the action of the Society.

SECTION V. The Treasurer shall direct the custody of all the funds or securities of the Society, except those properly held by the Alumni Board of Trustees, and deposit of the same in the name of the Society of the Alumni in such bank or banks as the Board of Directors may elect; shall sign or approve signators for all checks, drafts, notes, and other instruments for the payment of money, and pay out and dispose of same under the direction of the President and of the Board of Directors; shall in cooperation with the Executive Vice President prepare the annual budget of the Society to be submitted to the Board of Directors at its spring meeting for approval. The books and accounts shall be open for inspection at all reasonable times to any member of the Board of Directors or of the Society on application to the Treasurer during business hours. The Treasurer shall be responsible for an audit of the Society accounts at least once a year, and at other times when requested by the Board of Directors or the Executive Vice President. The Treasurer may be bonded for such amount as the Board of Directors may determine.

SECTION VI. The Board of Directors may employ an alumnus as Executive Vice President for the purpose of effecting the wishes of the Board, said Executive Vice President to be charged with the management of the affairs of the Board and the Alumni Office. The Executive Vice President shall serve at the pleasure of the Board of Directors, shall have the authority to employ and shall have supervision over other employees on the non-professional staff of the Alumni Office. The salary adjustment of any employees of the Alumni Office, the Executive Vice President excepted, shall be referred to the Board of Directors together with the recommendation of the Executive Vice President.

(c) The Executive Vice President may be bonded for such amount as the Board of Directors may determine.

ARTICLE III BOARD OF DIRECTORS

(f) The Executive Vice President of the Society shall appoint tellers to validate and count the ballots.

ARTICLE IV - BOARD MEETINGS

SECTION I. The regular semi-annual meetings of the Board of Directors shall be held in the City of Williamsburg at a time determined by the Board. At the meeting following election of new members, officers of the Society for the ensuing year shall be elected.

ARTICLE V - COMMITTEES

SECTION I. There shall be an Executive Committee of the Board of Directors to be composed of the President, Vice President, Treasurer, and at least one member at large, selected by the President. This Committee may act on behalf of the Board as necessary in a situation requiring immediate action.

Dynamic Dean: Planning To Make A Difference

John C. Jamison Joins School Of Business Administration From Corporate World

John C. Jamison has come to William and Mary to make a difference. The new Dean of the School of Business Administration says that in fundraising activities for schools, for instance, he's always been frustrated by the way people seem to "grab the money and run."

"I wanted to see if that was just the way it is, or if I could make a change," he says. A limited partner of the prestigious New York investment banking firm Goldman, Sachs & Co., Jamison spent 21 years in the world of corporate finance before leaving to succeed Charles L. Quittmeyer '40 as Dean of the business school on July 1.

That high-level background has made the 49-year-old Jamison aware of many aspects of money, industrial economics and business that are less familiar to other people. Fundraising is nothing new for him, particularly where the needs of higher education are concerned: Jamison currently serves as Governor of the Purdue Foundation and Director of the Theatre Development Fund at his alma mater, Purdue University. In 1982, he was president of the Purdue President's Council.

Coming to the South for the first time, the Indiana native acknowledges that it's a big change from the Northeast and Midwest and that any place is a big change from New York City.

"The New York pace is money-motivated," he observes. "Fundamentally, the more money you have, the more options you've got and the more you can do. And one function of money is to give it away."

Once he decided to leave the corporate world for academia, Jamison decided he liked what he saw at the College.

"William and Mary, I think, was the right place to make such a transition," he says. "It was the right size — smallish — and a place where you could come into contact with people in the school, both internally and externally."

"Clearly, William and Mary has a fine reputation. Like Purdue, it's perceived as a private school, although it's a state institution. I think that's an asset. It's a mystique that relates to a little more closeness and a little higher quality of academic education: both are perceived as advantages of private schools."

Graduating (with Distinction) with an MBA from Harvard Business School was just one of the goals John Jamison set for himself early in his career. Another was to go into business and make money, and another was to wind up in either academia or politics. Jamison has done it all.

But that doesn't mean he has nothing left to learn. "I've not been an administrator previously," says Jamison.

"I've not been an administrator previously," says Jamison. "I've had the luxury of living most of my life without bothering with those things. It was time for me to learn about the other side."

A director of three major U.S. corporations — G. C. Murphy Company, Hershey Foods and Cowles Communications — Jamison's corporate financial work involved him with other standouts like Abbott Laboratories, American Greetings, Cannon Mills, R. H. Macy, Mattel, Singer and Whirlpool for over five years. His contributions included advising them on public and private financing, mergers, acquisitions and divestitures.

But his professional talents were especially useful in restructuring troubled companies outside the courts. "My field involves bankruptcy or near bankruptcy situations and devising ways to financially restructure them to create and yield," says Jamison.

John C. Jamison

He allows that it's an emotionally charged field, making Jamison's calm demeanor and cool gaze professional assets, it would seem, along with his practical outlook. "Bankruptcy and labor-management disputes are two areas where there is frequently a lot of posturing, which isn't too functional to the ultimate resolution," he says.

"The nature of an investment banker's work is not to be an advocate, but to work with both sides to get a resolution and to get something done," he adds. That ability to grab hold of things and get them done has been central to Jamison's professional career until now. As Dean of the School of Business Administration, he's learning that completing one's objectives is a form of a different color. At a fast-paced company like Goldman, Sachs, Jamison says, "You can finish a week and feel like you accomplished a great deal. Here, it takes a few more forms."

"While the paperwork may take some getting used to, the new Dean is already used to the other aspects of his job, and starting to set priorities for his school. He's telling everyone — students, faculty, friends of the College, alumni and the employers hiring his students — that this year is a time to think about how best to go forward."

The business school's future is on his mind, and marshalling its resources most effectively a high-priority item. John Jamison is knowledgeable about the limitations currently imposed on his school and faculty because of budget restrictions, and can cite State of Virginia teaching load formulas ("We should have 60 on the full-time faculty, not 40 as we do") and salary funding formulas ("Salaries are only two-thirds of what they should be") to back him up.

Still, Jamison says, "We've been dealt a hand, and we have to play with what we've got." He sees similarities between being Dean and being a corporate advisor on financial matters, in several respects. "I don't think there are or should be differences. You can organize in a college or university as you can in business to accomplish tasks."

Having talked to each member of the business school faculty to get their views on the school and possible improvements, Dean Jamison is now looking at just what tasks need to be accomplished first. "For example," he says, "there's no library or reference library in this building," referring to Chancellor's Hall, home of the business school. "The library budget is half of what exists for the economics department, and I'm not complaining about the economics department."

"Within this school are 500 full-time undergraduate students and 250 graduate students, and they require information to grow on. A library to me means teaching, researching and learning resources," comments Jamison. "We're going to find out what kind of information is needed here."

Just as he sees the need to bring technological breakthroughs in computer software to business administration students and faculty members — as well as the more traditional forms of information, books and periodicals — Jamison's approach to decision-making is equally flexible. "I'm used to considering all the options and debugging them," he says.

But what he wants to do immediately is build upon the firm foundation laid by his predecessor, Dr. Charles L. Quittmeyer, who is now Floyd D. Gottwald Professor of Business Administration. "I've said to groups around the state that what Charlie Quittmeyer has managed to do in quality and substance here is nothing short of a miracle, done with mirrors and bailing wire."

Established in 1968, the School of Business Administration at William and Mary is one of fewer than 200 business schools accredited at both the undergraduate and graduate levels by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, out of approximately 700 in the U. S. The $2.1 million renovation of Old Rogers Hall on campus provided the growing school with a new home, dedicated last February and renamed Chancellors Hall.

The high caliber of both students and faculty, together with the business school's increasing stature in the eyes of employers, is the culmination of a 74-year-old heritage. In 1919, President J.A. C. Chandler, foreseeing the demand for business administration training on the collegiate level following World War I, added business administration courses to the William and Mary curriculum. This move made the College one of the first in the nation to institute such training.

Well aware of the school's impressive past and its promising future, Dean Jamison is intent on spreading the good news. "I'm interested in getting my graduates employed," he says. "The story of this school and William and Mary hasn't been told as broadly as it might be, and I'll tell it up and down the East Coast and into the Midwest."

While he's at it, Jamison is also picking up steam as a mover and shaker. Although he's taking time to assess every aspect of his school's resources and seeking ways to maximize them, Jamison is undeniably a fresh and remarkable presence, and very much his own man.

But John C. Jamison's main pitch from now on will clearly be for his school and its future. Although he wouldn't mind teaching classes and has done so in the past, Jamison doesn't plan to teach for 18 months — although he will definitely participate in the instructional area, he says. The energy he'd use in the classroom for now will be going toward finding how best to consolidate the business school's strengths and make them even stronger.

His definition of success also says a lot about Jamison's goals as Dean. "I think success is trying to get something done well," he says. "Not just get something done."

Martina Leads Americans In Wightman Cup Competition

"Most Elegant" Women's Tournament Begins Nov. 3 In William And Mary Hall

The world's top woman tennis player, Martina Navratilova, will lead the American team in "the most elegant competition in women's tennis," the 60th Anniversary Nabisco Wightman Cup, at William and Mary Hall on November 3, 4 and 5.

Navratilova, who won her first U.S. Open singles title just last month, will head an American team that also will include the No. 6 and No. 12 players in the world, Pam Shriver, whose mother Margot Ketchum Shriver is a 1956 alumna of the College, and Kathy Renaldi. Navratilova and Shriver are the world's reigning women's doubles champions.

The Wightman Cup competition pits the American team against Great Britain, but unlike a normal tournament, all seven Wightman matches are of equal importance.

There are two singles matches scheduled Thursday, Nov. 3, starting at 7:30 p.m., a singles and doubles match the next night starting at the same time and two singles and one doubles Saturday, Nov. 5, beginning at 1 p.m.

Navratilova's 6-1, 6-3 victory over Chris Evert Lloyd in Flushing Meadow, N.Y., came as little surprise. The win was her 156th in 160 matches, and earned her $120,000, which upped her career income to an all-time high $6,089,756. As in winning the Wimbledon crown earlier this year, she did not lose a set on her way to the U.S. title; she also set an Open record for fewest games lost in seven rounds with 19.

Navratilova's presence at the Wightman Cup is an on-the-court plus for the prestigious challenge match between the U.S. and Great Britain. Yet, before this top professional had committed herself, those involved with the tournament at William and Mary were already working hard to make the 1983 Wightman Cup competition a successful off-the-court venture as well.

Beginning with Executive Director Dick Anzolut '51, alumni have played a significant role in laying the foundation for success. It was Anzolut who first thought of his alma mater when the United States Tennis Association approached him about directing the Wightman Cup. Having sold the USTA and William and Mary on the idea, he and his wife Cynthia, who also direct the Lady Keystone LPGA Open among other sporting events, set the wheels in motion.

As his Tournament Chairman, Anzolut enlisted Millie West, director of the women's athletic program, one of four organizations that will benefit from the proceeds of the Wightman Cup. West's efforts in this capacity have proved as fruitful as they have dedicated. West has already earned the women's athletic program $55,000 by selling sponsorships to several major corporations. The program receives 30 per cent of each sponsorship fee it brings in.

First, West convinced the Williamsburg-based Badische Corporation to become the Wightman Cup's Presenter. "We are most pleased to be associated with this outstanding sporting event which will benefit the College's women's athletic program, as well as three area hospitals," said Dr. Hans Kopper, president of Badische, which is a major North American producer of chemicals and man-made fibers and yarns.

Next, it was announced that the First American Bank of Virginia would sponsor the United States team. Again, College connections were instrumental as First American's President and Chief Executive Officer is Milton L. Drewer, Jr., also a member of the Board of Visitors. "It is important," stated Drewer, "that our commitment to growth and profitability does not ignore our equally strong responsibility and commitment to be a contributing member of our community. As often as you hear First American Bank of Virginia mentioned as a leader in business, you will see it noted for its sponsorship and support of arts, education and charity."

Then, the 60th Wightman Cup became the Nabisco Wightman Cup, once again, through alumni initiative. It was Fred Kovaleski '50, former William and Mary tennis great, who now works for Carcam, a subsidiary of Nabisco, who helped persuade the multi-national food concern to become the major sponsor of the event.

Kovaleski, who also competed at the U.S. Senior Open this year in the double division, played on the Indians' national champion teams of 1947 and 1948. In the latter year, he and Bernard "Tut" Bartzen won the collegiate doubles title. Kovaleski continued his playing career during the two years following his graduation. Seeded 12th, he reached the quarter-finals of the 1950 Wimbledon tournament.

The Wightman Cup is Nabisco Brands' first venture into major tennis sponsorship. The firm is also the major sponsor for the prestigious Nabisco Dinah Shore Invitational LPGA tournament. Said F. Ross Johnson, president and chief operating officer: "Nabisco Brands recognizes the fact that women have reached equality with men on both the golf course and the tennis court, as well as in other social and professional areas. It is our privilege, as well as our pleasure, to be able to sponsor this major USTA championship."

"We are extremely pleased to have such outstanding firms as Nabisco Brands, Inc., First American Bank of Virginia and Badische Corporation committed to the Wightman Cup," said

West, "and, we are equally grateful to those alumni and friends, without whose assistance we could not be so sure of success."

West hopes to see Williamsburg become the permanent U.S. site of the Wightman Cup, just as Royal Albert Hall in London is the regular British locale. Toward this end, William and Mary Hall will be transformed into a gala setting. The lighting will spotlight the tennis court, which will be surrounded by large pots of colorful begonias, chrysanthemums and ferns. Landscape supervisor Roy Williams is scouting nearby woods for 25' to 30' juniper trees to stand at the open end of the Hall, which, as it was during the Summit, will be draped in blue.

At deadline, tickets were still available for the Wightman Cup, and alumni response through the Gazette order forms has been excellent. Time is running out, however, so, if you are interested in attending "the most elegant competition in women's tennis," please fill out and send in the order form below. A Wightman Cup office has been opened in William and Mary Hall, the telephone numbers are (804) 220-3516, 220-3517 or 220-3518.

Former Tribe Players Make Grade In NFL

Pro Football Is Competitive, Demanding For Ryan, Shull And Cannon

Jim Ryan '79, Steve Shull '80 and John Cannon '82 all made the grade in the demanding academic environment of William and Mary, all three having earned degrees in business. But then that's really nothing unusual.

What is highly unusual, however, is that after leaving the College this trio also made the grade in a profession for which William and Mary has never been known as a training ground — professional football. And the three admit that their experiences at the College helped them make it in the highly competitive and demanding world of the National Football League.

Former teammates on the 1978 edition of the Indians, the three defensive stalwarts are currently established performers in the NFL. Ryan is a starting linebacker for the Denver Broncos, Cannon holds down a defensive end slot for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and Shull was a linebacker and special teams captain last year for Super Bowl participant Miami but has been sidelined this season with a knee injury.

The road from Williamsburg to the NFL has not been an easy one by any means. Overlooked in the NFL draft, both Ryan and Shull overcame nearly impossible odds in making their respective teams as free agents. Cannon, although a third-round draft choice (William and Mary's highest ever), had to come back from a knee injury that sidelined him most of his senior year.

None of the three ever considered a professional football career when they came to William and Mary.

"I never thought I'd play professional football," admits Ryan, who was a four-year starter for the Tribe. "It was a month after the draft when I got a call from a Denver scout. Apparently the guy thought I could make it. He was the only one I heard from."

Making the Broncos was quite an accomplishment for Ryan since Denver was generally considered to have the best linebacker corps in the NFL.

The Bellmawr, N.J., native did not see much action his first two years except on special teams (punts and kickoffs). By his third year he was special teams captain and seeing some additional playing time in spot situations.

"When you are not starting you look for any opportunity to get into a game and make something happen," explains Ryan. "I felt like I was contributing to the team when I could do something like throw a block to help spring a runner on a kick return."

The former Tribe captain got his big break last year when All-Pro linebacker Bob Swenson did not report to camp because of a contract dispute. Ryan moved into his starting spot at outside linebacker.

"I felt I performed pretty well," states Ryan. "It really gave me a chance to boost my confidence."

Although he was moved to inside linebacker this season and then lost the starting position to Steve Busick, Ryan is back in the Broncos starting lineup. He was moved back to the outside linebacker spot after two games because of a knee injury to Swenson.

Ryan credits William and Mary with helping him make it in the NFL.

"When I look back at my years at William and Mary I am amazed that I could take five subjects, play football and have a social life," he explains. "It was very demanding but so is professional football. The work habits I developed then have really helped. William and Mary prepared me for the self-discipline I have needed."

Ryan, who is working on his MBA at the University of Denver, hopes that much-heralded quarterback John Elway can lead Denver to a playoff berth this season.

Still, he admits, "If it (his career) all ended tomorrow I can look back with no regrets. Each year I have played has been a bonus. I thank the Lord every night for the blessings he has given me."

Shull's road to Miami was filled with all the same obstacles as Ryan's to Denver.

Despite starting for three years and leading the Indians in tackles each year, Shull was also overlooked in the draft. However, former William and Mary quarterback Dan Henning '64 who is now head coach of the Atlanta Falcons but was an assistant under Don Shula at Miami at the time, got Shull a tryout with the Dolphins.

He performed well enough at the Dolphins' mini-camp to be invited back to pre-season camp. There, after playing all four linebacker positions, he was cut on the last day. The next day, however, an injury opened up a spot on the roster and Shull was brought back.

"As a free agent you have to be in the right place at the right time," states Shull. "There is a lot of luck involved."

Like his good friend Ryan, Shull originally never considered a pro career. "I thought I was too small," he says. "I was really surprised when Jimmy signed with Denver. His making it sparked my interest my last year at William and Mary."

Shull labored on the special teams his first two years at Miami, becoming captain last year. He also got some playing time last year on short yardage and goal line situations.

With the tragic off-season death of linebacker Larry Gordon, Shull could well have found himself in a starting position this season. However, a serious knee injury in an early scrimmage has put him out of action for the season.

After he gets the cast off his leg, he will begin an extensive rehabilitation program. He also plans to go back to work with an advertising agency he has worked with in the off-season.

He, too, notes that his William and Mary background has been a benefit in the NFL.

"I think I was hindered some coming from a small college like William and Mary but as a whole it was a plus," says Shull, who earned his degree in 3½ years. "You can't beat the education you get there. And you have got to remember football is only a small part of your life."

"A good academic background really helps when your playbook is three or four inches thick," he adds. "My rookie year I was playing outside linebacker in practice and inside in exhibition games. The academic training helped with learning my different assignments."

Ryan

Shull has found it a learning experience playing under Don Shula.

"He demands perfection," emphasizes Shull. "He knows I give him everything I have."

Of course Shull is one up on his two former teammates, Ryan and Cannon, having played in last year's Super Bowl against Washington.

"That was an unbelievable experience," he observes. "Getting to the Super Bowl is what playing in the NFL is all about, but you have to win or it means nothing at all."

Shull and Ryan, who gave William and Mary an outstanding linebacking combination for three years, were fraternity brothers and are still good friends. Oddly enough, they have only met twice on the playing field as professionals and that in preseason games.

Both admit it was strange to play against each other.

Ryan recalls one meeting of the two. "One time I had to block Steve on a kickoff but he slipped and fell right before I got to him. I jumped on top of him to keep him from getting up. When the play was over, we both got up laughing."

Cannon hasn't had quite the struggle Ryan and Shull had to earn playing time.

Cannon was William and Mary Player of the Year his junior year at tackle. He was expected to garner a number of post-season honors his final year but a knee injury in the fourth game squelched that.

Still, Tampa Bay drafted him in the third round. A preseason hamstring injury limited his role to duty on the kicking teams most of last season.

However, he did see some action at defensive end in the final two games and then was credited with two tackles and a share of a quarterback sack in the playoff loss to Dallas.

After learning from All-Pro defensive right end Lee Roy Selmon last season, Cannon was switched to the left side this season to battle with fellow second-round pro Booker Reese for the starting spot. The 6-foot-5, 255-pound Cannon won the starting nod.

Like his former William and Mary teammates Ryan and Shull, whom he has yet to meet on the playing field in the NFL, he wasn't thinking pro football when he entered William and Mary.

"I lasted about two years in pre-med, but then I switched to business," he explains. "I wasn't really thinking about a football career. But after my junior season, it became a reality, the idea of playing in the NFL. It seemed like a once-in-a-lifetime shot and I wanted to take it."

Not only is Cannon on the verge of making it big in the NFL, but he is preparing himself for later years by earning his stockbroker's license. He has already spent time on the floor of the American Exchange on Wall Street.

Although Ryan, Shull and Cannon all look back on their years at William and Mary as being a positive influence on their professional careers, they do wish the attitude toward athletes had been better during their tenures.

Shull probably sums up that feeling best.

"It was really tough when I was there because of all the anti-football sentiment," he explains. "But football and academics can mix. I know I never got a break because I was a football player."

"Somewhere in the future if the two sides (academics and athletics) can live together, William and Mary could be the perfect environment."

— George Watson '69

Choir Plans Third European Tour In 1984

Trip To Include France, Switzerland, Germany And England

The College's talented roving ambassador, the William and Mary Choir, is taking to the road again next spring.

Under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, choir director and chairman of the Department of Music, the singers will make their third European jaunt in 1984, visiting France, Switzerland, Germany and England.

The tour, which garnered much praise for the singers and the College in 1978 and 1981, will again be a pay-if-you-go proposition for students. Lendrim has received a rough estimate of $1,800 per student from the travel coordinator.

To help finance the trip, the choir has already inaugurated fund-raising projects under the leadership of two of its members, Terry Bockhorn of Williamsburg, Va., and Jessica Pollard of Portland, Me.

The choir raised approximately $11,000 toward the last European tour by selling Christmas cards and notepaper and plans a similar sales drive this fall. Already 90,000 cards have been received from the printer and choir members are using Lendrim's office as a production station to package the shipment into saleable units.

The Christmas cards have full-color photographs of the Wren Building and the President's House on them and contain a seasonal greeting. These will be packaged in lots of 20 and will sell for $4.50 per packet. The black and white sketch of the Wren Building which was so popular in '81 is being repeated on the notecards and the coat of arms of the College has also been used as a design motif. Notepaper will sell for $4 for a packet of 20.

Cards and notepaper are on sale at the College bookstore and will also be available from choir members during Homecoming weekend and at the Christmas choir/chorus concerts. Choir members also plan to canvas the campus as well as sell them by mail

College Counseling Sessions Set For Homecoming

The admissions office and the Society of the Alumni will offer a program for alumni parents and their children of high school age (particularly juniors and seniors) during Homecoming Weekend, Oct. 21-22 in an effort to provide an opportunity for both parents and students to learn more about preparation for the college experience.

The Friday evening session for students only will begin at six o'clock with students meeting at the Campus Center in the Wigwam where they will purchase dinner and join Dean Gary Ripple in meeting room "C" for a program lasting approximately one and a half hours.

The Saturday morning session for both parents and students will begin at eight o'clock with continental breakfast in room 100 of the Wren Building. Dean Ripple will meet with the parents and Assistant Dean Karen Schoenenberger will meet with the students until shortly before 10:00 a.m. (in plenty of time to view the Homecoming Parade).

No pre-registration is necessary.

through the Alumni Gazette (see adjacent advertisement).

For the first time this year, the Choir will operate a singing telegram business to raise funds. The first telegram was delivered recently to a Williamsburg choir booster, businessman J. B. Hickman, chairman of the Friends of the College organization since its inception a little over ten years ago, in celebration of his birthday.

In 1980-81 choir members raised $22,000 toward their trip. Choir members planning to make the trip all participate in fund-raising projects and the money raised is applied to the total trip bill.

Next year's trip will cover some of the same ground as the 1981 trip but several new stops have been added. The group will leave Monday, May 14, and return June 12, or 13.

Lendrim says the trip is planned to give students an opportunity to experience European life as well as spend a goodly amount of time in England, particularly singing and visiting places which are relevant to Williamsburg and the College. Concerts are planned in a variety of settings including schools, large cathedrals, and small village churches.

"We shall return to places visited on earlier tours," says Lendrim, "as well as some new places. Concerts have already been scheduled for Westminster Abbey, Canterbury Cathedral, and the two new stops — the beautiful Stourhead Gardens in England and the famous Wren church in London, St. Mary-le-Bow, home of the famous Bow Bells."

One of the new stops in Europe will be Lucerne with a mountain top lunch, a ride on a cog railway and a steamer trip across Lake Lucerne planned. Geneva and Basel will also be stops in Switzerland. A visit to the cathedral at Chartres has been added to the itinerary in France. The choir will fly to Paris from Washington and return to the capital from London. The complete tour schedule will be announced later.

Alumni Ask Questions About College

ADMISSIONS: WHAT IS THE VIRGINIA PLAN AND HOW DOES IT AFFECT WILLIAM AND MARY?

According to the Director of Affirmative Action at the College, "the Virginia Plan is a three year agreement between the Commonwealth of Virginia and the federal government (U.S. Department of Education — Office for Civil Rights) to eliminate all vestiges of the once dual (black/white) system of higher education at state colleges and universities. All of Virginia's thirty-nine colleges and universities are required to take positive measures to increase the number of blacks enrolled in our academic programs and to increase the number of black faculty and administrators. There are numerical targets assigned to these efforts but they are not quotas. We are increasing our efforts to identify and actively recruit well-qualified black Virginians who we believe have an excellent chance to succeed at the College. We are not lowering our admission standards to meet our assigned numerical targets." As of May, 1983 blacks comprised about three percent of the student body and 1.5 percent of the faculty. All efforts are being directed at recruiting and enrolling the caliber of student that will not diminish the quality of the William and Mary degree.

WHAT IS SOCIAL LIFE LIKE AT WILLIAM AND MARY TODAY?

The Dean of Students responds that while in former years much of the social life centered around fraternities and sororities (and that system is still healthy with 11 fraternities and 13 sororities embracing between 20-25% of the student body), Greeks no longer "provide the sole focus of social activities." Residence halls sponsor their own social activities with increasing frequency and success.

Also, the Student Association hosts a number of collegewide social events throughout the year, and a significant increase in such activities is noted by various campus organizations.

Although William and Mary is not immune from the problems that beset college campuses, the Dean explains that the College is probably "not as bad as most." Both alcohol and other drugs exist, but appropriate efforts are being made to curb the problem of abuse. "A vigorous alcohol education program is in place as are special services for those who are addicted, including chapters of Al Anon and Alcoholics Anonymous."

An interesting but disturbing statistic is that nationwide, in the 17-21 year old age group, the abuse of alcohol is ranked among the top three health problems.

WHAT IS THE COLLEGE'S ENDOWMENT AT PRESENT? WHY DOES THE COLLEGE SEND OUT SO MANY SOLICITATIONS, SEEMINGLY OFTEN IN BACK-TO-BACK FASHION?

The Vice President for Advancement reports the market value of total endowments as of December 31, 1982, was almost $27 million.

It is acknowledged that in recent years an unfortunate situation has existed, namely too many solicitation mailings from the College. Efforts are being made to correct this. For instance, as of July 1, 1983, three funds are now being consolidated: Friends, Parents, and Alumni. They constitute the "William and Mary Annual Fund." Further efforts are underway to coordinate more effectively the mailings from the Athletic Educational Foundation and the newly constituted William and Mary Fund.

HOUSE NOTES

Charles H. Schepmoes '13, who lives in Roanoke, sent to the Alumni House a lovely large framed print of the campus yard and buildings of the 1800's. G. T. Brooks, of Williamsburg, donated the teaching certificate and other mementoes which had belonged to his mother, Charlotte Miles Shipman Brooks '23.

Edward B. McCaskey '49 visited the Alumni House recently and brought copies of the 1916 and 1917 Colonial Echoes.

Alumni authors: A copy of your published novels, non-fiction, poetry, and/or textbooks will be given a good home in the Paschall Library at the Alumni House. Memorial gifts are also invited. Please contact Frankie Martens, Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box GO, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187.

BANK ENDOWS SCHOLARSHIP

United Virginia Bankshares, Inc., has established a UVB Scholarship Fund at William and Mary with a gift of $100,000, the income from which will provide, in perpetuity, scholarship assistance to deserving Virginia students enrolled at the College. During 1982-83, one student in every five received financial assistance, and the need is expected to increase as college costs rise and federal assistance becomes more uncertain. UVB is recognized as one of the leading banking institutions in the Southeast.

NEWSPAPER COLUMNIST NAMED MARSHALL UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR

William K. Diehl '42, editorial page columnist for The News and The Daily Advance in Lynchburg, Va., has been named Gannett Distinguished Professor of journalism at Marshall University in Huntington, W. Va. Diehl will teach graduate and undergraduate courses in the university's W. Page Pitt School of Journalism, which has 350 students. He will also serve as the school's liaison with state and regional news media. Diehl became editorial page editor of The Daily Advance in 1976. Since August 1982, Diehl has written an opinion column for both Lynchburg newspapers.

MADSEN NAMED SR. V. P. OF MANHATTAN SAVINGS BANK

Mrs. J. Stuart White
(L. Helen Smith)
P.O. Box 966
Jetersville, VA 23083

Dear Classmates:

Since today is the deadline for the Class News for the Gazette, I shall take pen in hand and try to compose a column for the October issue. I am placing all blame for the shortage of news on the shortage of rain and this intense heat wave. I have decided that you have taken off either for the beach or the mountains, and I can't say that I blame you. If you have found a "Utopia," please call me at my expense. I'll be on the next plane!

Ed Islin called me a few weeks ago on his way to Richmond to join some "old cronies," as he expressed it, which has been a custom for quite some years. It was so good to hear his voice and to know that he is feeling fine. He had recently had the pleasure of a visit from his daughter Betty and her family, so he was in "high gear!"

Yesterday, at long last, brought a letter from Dot and Red Campbell! It is small wonder that I have felt so concerned since there had been no communication since prior to the Olde Guard luncheon. Knowing that many of you have been concerned, I now give you the answer:

"We are sorry that we could not be at William and Mary for Olde Guard Day, but that date usually conflicts with Masters time and as you know we usually have a house full of family.

"We had a very traumatic experience on our way home from Fla. last March as we totaled both car and trailer. Thanks to the good Lord and seat belts we came out of it with practically no injury and walked away from it all. It has taken quite a while to recover nerve-wise, but we are both fine now. We have replaced the trailer and have the "new" one set up on our lot in Fla. and will tow no more. Have also replaced the car so we have wheels to roll on again.

"At present writing we are getting ready to visit our Yankee children later this month and will be away until mid-September. Then we are hoping to head to Fla. in early October.

"Our plans do not include a trip to William and Mary this fall for Homecoming. We will miss you all and hope that you each one have a happy and healthy year ahead."

We are ever grateful for your nice letter, Dot and Red, and indeed sorry that you had such a traumatic experience, but thank our dear Lord for His Divine Love and Guidance. It is nothing short of a miracle, such as only God can bring about.

We are sorry that your plans for next fall do not include William and Mary. As has been expressed on many occasions our mini-reunions are never quite complete without you. However, we shall keep you in our thoughts and hearts that entire day.

Do please plan ahead for 1985. We will celebrate our Sixteenth Reunion at that time!! Plans will soon be in the making and it will be a great celebration!

I received a letter from Elizabeth Nicholson Richter who moved a little more than a year ago from Farmville, Virginia, to Ocean Grove, New Jersey. She reported on her son's position at Hughes where he is involved in "software." Her son's oldest child, Gregory, got his PhD in May and now has a full professorship at the University of Missouri teaching Russian and German. His second child, Carolyn, and her husband are with the Peace Corps in Africa, and the youngest child is a high school student. She writes, "Did you get word from Red Campbell and wife? They are always at everything concerning the College. I guess you were alarmed."

So, you see, Dot and Red, just how your classmates feel about you, and this is just one of many who have been anxious.

One day we had a most pleasant surprise when a car drove up and parked and who should be here but Mr. and Mrs. Carter Lowance, Mr. Guy Friddell, and Mr. Eddie Boggs! Their time was limited since they were on their way home from Governor Tuck's funeral, but they wanted to stop long enough to say "hello." That is one of the nice things about this area — frequently we have "angel" calls and what happiness each friend brings!

Due to our fine Alumni Gazette, some friends have located me whom I had not seen in years and what joy they have brought me! Katherine Watson Weisiger '27 called immediately after reading our column last fall. Mary Williams, Home Demonstration Agent, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, of some years ago, and Ann Duke, Director of Public Health Nurses, both called and we have had a great time reminiscing. Also at a party I was fortunate in meeting Doris Hamilton Jones '50. So you see Amelia is the delightful place I have written about. We have celebrated our first year here in this little "garden spot" Amelia.

Now, my last word. October 21-23 will be big days for all of us as we celebrate our 58th anniversary! It is my hope, as your reporter and classmate, that you will put forth an extra effort to attend the Olde Guard luncheon on Friday, October 21, 1983.

May the remaining vacation days continue to bring happiness, and Please Drive Carefully and with Safety.

Helen

M. Carl Andrews
2814 Crystal Spring Ave., S. W.
Roanoke, VA 24014

Dear Classmates (also, To Whom It May Concern): In our last letter in the spring, I promised to share with you a delightful bit of humor on aging sent to me by Dr. E. Cotton Rawls, our surgeon-musician, who probably sees a lot of those described hereinafter:

HOW TO KNOW YOU ARE GROWING OLDER

- Everything hurts and what doesn't hurt, doesn't work.
- A fortune teller offers to read your face.
- The gleam in your eyes is from the sun hitting you bifocals.
- Your pacemaker makes the garage door go up when you watch the pretty girls go by.
- You feel like the night before, and you haven't been anywhere.
- The little gray-haired lady you help across the street is your wife.
- Your little black book contains only names ending in M. D.
- You burn the midnight oil at 9:00 p.m.
- You get your exercise acting as pallbearer for your friends who exercise.
- You get winded playing chess.
- You have too much room in your house and not enough in the medicine cabinet.
- Your children begin to look middle-aged.
- You sink your teeth into a steak and they stay there.
- You finally reach the top of the ladder and find it leaning against the wrong wall.
- You join a health club and don't go.
- You begin to outlive enthusiasm.
- You decide to procrastinate but then never get around to it.
- You are still chasing women, but can't remember why.
- Your mind makes contracts your body can't meet.
- A dripping faucet causes an uncontrollable bladder urge.

You know all the answers, but nobody asks you the questions.
You look forward to a dull evening.
You walk with your head held high trying to get used to your bifocals.
Your favorite part of the newspaper is "25 years ago today."
You turn out the lights for economic, rather than romantic, reasons.
You sit in a rocking chair and can't get it going.
Your knees buckle and your belt won't.
You regret all those mistakes resisting temptation.
You are 17 around the neck, 42 around the waist, and 96 around the golf course.
After painting the town red, you have to take a long rest before applying a second coat.
Dialing a long distance call wears you out.
You are startled the first time you are addressed as "old-timer".
You just can't stand people who are intolerant.
The best part of the day is over when the alarm clock goes off.
You stop looking forward to your next birthday.

To that, your faithful class correspondent would add: "You know you're growing older when some classmates tell you that they skip Homecoming because they don't want to see all those old people!" Also, "you must be getting older (men) when you look at the football game instead of ogling the cute cheerleaders!"

Earlier this year, C. M. "Spike" Smith, now of Mechanicsville, had been reading the Alumni Gazette and the White Jacket News Letter and was inspired to write me a five-page letter, full of memories and whimsy. I can't print it all here but do want to share some of its delights. Says Spike:

"Reminiscing, I harked back to my first train ride. (He was born and raised in mountainous Floyd County which had no railroad and few roads). High school classmates drove me down to the railway station (in Christiansburg). I'd never seen a train — only pictures of them. It was 54 years before I ever saw that station again!

"Few who know me would believe that I took the only $5 bill I'd ever seen to buy a ticket to Williamsburg and that I had graduated before I ever saw any of those boyhood familiar faces again.

"Anyhow, arriving in Roanoke, I asked a Red Cap how to get to the nearest hospital, walked up Campbell Avenue to the Shenandoah Hospital and asked the receptionist to have a doctor remove my tonsils. That precipitated a crisis, but luckily a surgeon walked by. He removed my tonsils which he said were the worst he'd ever seen and preserved them in alcohol to show colleagues.

"An hour later, I got out of bed, dressed and started to leave the hospital, only to be apprehended at the bottom of the steps.

"That afternoon I had a job pitching hay at a nearby farm but the alfalfa dust, plus bleeding considerably, gave me a rough time. That first job started a long and complex trail — ice house, barber, milkman (that last one didn't last long — I couldn't see to read house numbers).

(Andrew's note: Spike worked before College and during summer vacations at all sorts of jobs), but much of this was before getting to Williamsburg. He had to drop out to go to work and did not re-enter College until 1924).

"Next came a year and a half in a slaughterhouse, a steel plant, logger, bronco buster — those plains ponies sure could buck! press room apprentice, cashier and manager at a roller coaster — by then I could see enough to count money.

"I've worked over 70 years, less than six as an employee. I never had time to see the Chesapeake & Potomac recruiter at College, but they sent a telegram, telling me to mail my application and report to the District of Columbia office. One day, after leaving C&P, I took my apartment mate to lunch (he later became president of Bell of West Virginia) and on returning to the C&P office I ran into a friend from New York. Learning I was foot-loose, he spent 30 minutes on long distance, then told me I'd just been appointed national circulation manager for the Pictorial Review Magazine!

"In that job, I was in and out of just about every known college or university in the U. S. and Canada, met many college officials and grew up fast."

Like so many others of our generation, Spike worked at many things to make his way in the world. He got through College on his own only to be greeted by the Great Depression. He later became district agent for Pacific Mutual Life in Allentown, Pa., and remained there for many years until moving back to Virginia to be near his wife Helen's old home in Richmond.

As some of you know, Spike was considerably older than the rest of us. I quote much of this because it well illustrated how a country boy made good in spite of many handicaps with sheer hard work and determination. In College he was a track and field man, played football, headed Phi Kappa Tau, worked in the dining hall, was treasurer of the Monogram Club, and led a Pictorial Review team every summer. I often wondered how he found time to sleep. So far as I know, he is one of a very few who paid their entire way through College.

And now for a few personal items received since our last letter:

Margaret Holman McCoy writes that she enjoyed several visits to the Alumni House in the past year. Her sisters, Mary Holman Curd, '22 and Katherine Holman MacKallor, '28, were with her at Homecoming last year. "We were on a close schedule and sorry not to see more people, but we were fortunate to visit with Carl Andrews and Macon Sammons '29," she adds.

"No news!" says Alice Trevvett Todd, "but I was distressed like everyone else to learn about the burning of Jefferson Hall. I spent the last two of my four years in that building and have many memories, both good and bad, of times there. They were the days of Miss Bessie Porter Taylor, the dances in the gym, the best of William and Mary basketball teams ('Indians' and not 'Tribe'). Best of all, the number of students enrolled made it possible to know and be known by fine professors!"

Dr. Roy Randolph Powell, retired both from the Navy and dental practice, writes: "Maybelle and I continue to enjoy our winters in Fort Myers, Fla. and summers in Portsmouth, plus a number of sight-seeing trips in the U. S. Golfing is our 'big thing' in Florida. Unfortunately, Homecoming and Olde Guard festivities come while we are there." (You must change that schedule a bit, Roy. Homecoming and Olde Guard days are unequalled for joy of seeing both the College and old friends of student days.)

You may remember that I wrote last year about Zelda Swartz Vittale, of Long Beach, Calif., having suffered a fractured knee in an accident. "Several months ago, as the result of heart problems, I underwent implantation of a pacemaker," she writes. "My activities have been drastically curtailed, but I enjoy reading the Alumni Gazette and hearing from old friends of student days."

Virginia Clark Fulton says it short and snappy: "I am getting older each year but am healthy!" For comment, Virginia, reread above.

As indicated in the mead item above, "the years dwindle down to a precious few," so I never miss Homecoming if I can possibly help it. See you October 22-24!

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SOCIETY OF THE ALUMNI

1982-83 Marks Year Of Transition, Consolidation And Progress In 141-Year History Of Society

The fiscal year 1982-83 marked a period of transition in the 141-year history of the Society of the Alumni. It also marked a period of progress and consolidation in the many programs that the Society operates for its approximately forty-five thousand located alumni.

In the most visible change, H. Westcott Cunningham '43 was named the new Executive Vice President of the Society of the Alumni. Cunningham, who has more than forty years association with William and Mary and the Society, succeeded Gordon C. Vliet, '54 who resigned in October. Austin L. Roberts, III '69 of Newport News succeeded Dr. Marvin F. West '53 of Williamsburg as President of the Society when Dr. West's one-year term ended in February.

Following are other highlights of the 1982-83 fiscal year:

Alumni Office Operations

The base of an effective alumni program is its records. In 1982-83 the Society of the Alumni examined methods of upgrading its record-keeping and financial systems. The Society plans conversion of its alumni records from an automated system to a computer-based system. The installation of a new system will afford the Society faster retrieval of information and provide more extensive biographical resources which will assist the staff in designing alumni service programs. The Society converted all of its financial records to an IBM/PC microcomputer which not only eliminates many time-consuming, manual operations in financial record keeping, but gives a broader base of information for better analysis and decision-making.

At left is H. Westcott Cunningham '43 who assumed the office of Executive Vice President of the Society of the Alumni in May. He succeeded Gordon C. Vliet '54. Below is the Alumni House which not only serves as the home base for the Society but as a meeting place for alumni, faculty, students, friends and the community.

Chapter Programs

The Chapter Program of the Society of the Alumni helps preserve the memories of college life, perpetuates and enriches the blessings of college friendship, and provides an understanding of the goals of William and Mary. All of this contributes to the growth of William and Mary and to the family feeling that alumni have toward their alma mater.

In 1982-83, the Chapter Program continued to flourish, with representation in forty-two areas of the United States and Great Britain. Virginia, with ten chapters, has the largest representation. New Chapter representatives were added during the past year in Birmingham, Ala.; Orlando, Fla.; Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Kansas; New Jersey; Nashville, Tenn.; Phoenix, Ariz.; and Isle of Wight/Southampton County in Virginia. In addition, two new chapters were chartered (the Triangle of North Carolina: Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill; and at the Top of Virginia: Winchester/Front Royal); seven were revitalized or fully reorganized, and several others are in the process of being reorganized.

Seventy-one chapter events occurred during the year with College officials the principal speakers at ten of the meetings. The remainder were connected with admissions, fund raising, athletics, joint Virginia schools' socials, or programs of local cultural interest.

Through the Chapter Program, alumni participated in many other projects and programs in the service of their alma mater, including the Society-sponsored Career Exploration Day, the Alumni Admissions Network, and the Life After Dog Street program for all seniors. In March, thirty officers from eighteen different areas participated in a Leadership Conference at the Alumni House, learning about avenues of service for alumni, programs sponsored by the Society, the History of the Society, and current events at William and Mary.

In retrospect, 1982-83 was an active and successful year for the Chapter Program with the promise of additional progress to come.

Class Programs

The reorganization of class reunion committees which started in 1979 continued to be on schedule during fiscal 1982-83. With the selection of new committees for the classes of 1938, '43, '48, '53, '63, '68, '73 and '78, the total number of active class reunion committees has grown to forty-five. The increase is up from twelve in 1978 and represents a dramatic achievement in the fulfillment of the Society goals in class program development for the five-year period beginning 1979. During the fiscal 1983-84 seven class year committees (years ending in 4's and 9's, except '39 and '44, which are already active) will be formed, thus completing the five-year plan with the establishment of fifty-one committees — one representing all classes from the Olde Guard and one for each of the fifty classes between graduation and the 50th Reunion induction.

Homecoming 1982

Homecoming continues to be an event that brings thousands of alumni back to their alma mater each year, and Homecoming 1982 was no exception. In fact, it proved to be the largest and most successful Homecoming in years, with increased attendance across the board in event reservations and hotel accommodation bookings.

The Homecoming Parade, which was reorganized in 1982, was the largest since the mid-1950's with all eligible sororities and fraternities plus nineteen Open Division units participating. Student-sponsored activities were numerous and varied and were open to all returning alumni.

Olde Guard/50th Reunion Program

The Olde Guard Program continues to be one of the strongest programs operated by the Society of the Alumni. With the induction of the Class of 1933 into the Olde Guard during Commencement Weekend in May, the membership of the Olde Guard is over three thousand. Also formed during the past two years were committees for the Classes of 1935, '36, '37, '38 and '39. They are already working on the planning for their 50th Reunion Weekends.

Under the direction of the nineteen-member Olde Guard Council, the activities of the Olde Guard are being expanded. In addition to the traditional luncheon and other events on Homecoming Weekend, the Olde Guard enjoys the Society and College sponsored Olde Guard Day in April of each year and is planning to promote a number of travel and educational opportunities in the coming year. A tour of Egypt in the spring of 1984 and a weekend seminar program in the summer of 1984 and 1985 are now in the planning stages.

Additional Society Programs

The Society of the Alumni either sponsors, funds or administers a number of programs that benefit the College directly and involve the services of alumni from across the nation. They include: Burgesses Day, Career Exploration Day, and the Alumni Admissions Network. Additional programs included the Life After Dog Street Program, Educational Travel Programs, and the Alumni Student Liaison Committee programs.

Burgesses Day

Sponsored by the Society in cooperation with the College, Burgesses Day brings prominent legislators, state officials and friends of the College to William and Mary each fall for a reception, luncheon, and a football game to commemorate the historic meetings of the House of Burgesses in the Wren Building in the early eighteenth century. Governor Charles Robb headed the list of distinguished visitors at Burgesses Day at the College in 1982.

Career Exploration Day

Career Exploration Day, a program funded by the Society of the Alumni through the Office of Placement and Career Planning, took place on February 12, 1983. The career-oriented program, which attracts several hundred William and Mary students each year, was highlighted by presentations from selected alumni in various occupations discussing career paths. Discussions center around what curriculum to pursue to obtain certain jobs, what the jobs are actually like, possibilities for advancement in various fields, and job opportunities. The program brings successful alumni and undergraduates together for a positive intermingling of thought and ideas.

Life After DOG (Duke of Gloucester) Street

Another Society-sponsored program in which successful alumni share their expertise and knowledge with William and Mary students is Life After DOG Street, which was developed in 1981 as a service to help seniors get solutions to the problems they will face after graduation by offering practical advice. About twenty-one percent of the senior class participated in the 1983 program held over a period of three nights at the Alumni House in February. Selected alumni from chapters in Richmond, Northern Neck, Norfolk/Virginia Beach, the Lower Peninsula and from Williamsburg served as panelists. They discussed such topics as how to obtain credit, buy insurance, select an apartment or house, select a doctor, buy a car, adjust in a new town and determine why one might need a lawyer — practical information not usually taught in the classroom. Two seniors, Cyndy Nash and Terri Cartwright, served as co-chairmen of the Committee which helped to organize and staff LADS 1982.

Educational Travel Programs

Educational Travel Programs sponsored by the Society have taken alumni all over the world to learn about other cultures in an unhurried, comfortable, and comprehensive manner, in an atmosphere of camaraderie with fellow William and Mary alumni. In 1982-83, alumni traveled to several European countries, China, Egypt and Morocco. In all, there were eight different Society-sponsored tours.

The Alumni-Student Liaison Committee

The Alumni-Student Liaison Committee brings alumni and undergraduates of the College together for programs of mutual interest and understanding, to help students gain a sense of class identity and an understanding of what being alumni means and to help alumni learn about College life today. The activities in 1982-83 included programs at freshman receptions at the Roanoke, Lynchburg and Charlottesville chapters; sponsoring a freshman watermelon feast at the Alumni House during orientation week and a senior class wine and cheese party at the Alumni House the first week of classes; planning and sponsoring of the Summer Internship Program; planning and co-sponsoring of Olde Guard Day; making presentations at spring chapter admissions receptions in Philadelphia, Northern Virginia, Lower Peninsula and Norfolk/Virginia Beach chapters; and assisting the Alumni House with all phases of the 50th Reunion, Commencement, Burgesses Day and Homecoming Activities.

Alumni Admissions Network

The Society of the Alumni funds an Alumni Admissions Network through the Office of Admissions, with administration and training of network participants by the Admissions Office. Now in its third year, the program involves alumni from ten different geographic areas of the country in admissions processes. The purposes of the program are: 1) to provide more personal contact with individual attention to applicants to the College; 2) to provide information needed by applicants to make well-informed decisions regarding William and Mary; 3) to aid the Admissions Office in the difficult process of evaluation of personal qualities of applicants; 4) to broaden the ways in which alumni can be of service to the College; and 5) to assure the continued quality and diversity of the William and Mary applicant pool and student body.

The ALUMNI GAZETTE

The ALUMNI GAZETTE continued to serve as the main vehicle of communication between the Society of the Alumni and its members in 1982-83. Founded in September of 1933, the GAZETTE completed its forty-ninth year of publication with eight twenty-four page tabloid issues and two William and Mary MAGAZINE issues. The tabloid goes to all alumni of record — approximately forty-five thousand — at no cost to alumni while the William and Mary MAGAZINE is mailed to all alumni who make a financial gift to the College — approximately thirteen thousand. The GAZETTE is one of the few alumni newspapers that continues to carry comprehensive classnotes and vital statistics, which are provided by a network of sixty class reporters and edited by Society staff. The GAZETTE expanded the Vital Statistics in 1982-83 by including obituaries on deceased alumni when information is available. Other sections of the GAZETTE include feature stories on alumni of distinction, news about the College, including the Jefferson Hall fire and the Summit, and coverage of various programs and events sponsored by the Society of the Alumni.

The Merchandising Program

Through the Merchandising Program, the Society of the Alumni makes William and Mary-oriented merchandise available to alumni while at the same time earning revenue for the Society. Items are offered both at the Alumni House and through the "Botetourt Boutique" advertising in the ALUMNI GAZETTE. Each year the Merchandising Program makes several new items available to alumni.

The Alumni Medallion

The Alumni Medallion is the highest honor the Society can confer on its alumni for distinguished service and exceptional loyalty to their College, community and fellow citizens. During Homecoming in November 1982, the following alumni received the Alumni Medallion: Edward E. Brickell, Jr., '50, Chester G. Giermak '50, Jeanne Sheridan Kinnamon '39, Joseph L. Muscarelle '27, and George D. Sands, Jr., '39.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SOCIETY OF THE ALUMNI

1982-83 Marks Year Of Transition, Consolidation And Progress In 141-Year History Of Society

Chapter Programs

The Chapter Program of the Society of the Alumni helps preserve the memories of college life, perpetuates and enriches the blessings of college friendship, and provides an understanding of the goals of William and Mary. All of this contributes to the growth of William and Mary and to the family feeling that alumni have toward their alma mater.

In 1982-83, the Chapter Program continued to flourish, with representation in forty-two areas of the United States and Great Britain. Virginia, with ten chapters, has the largest representation. New Chapter representatives were added during the past year in Birmingham, Ala.; Orlando, Fla.; Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Kansas; New Jersey; Nashville, Tenn.; Phoenix, Ariz.; and Isle of Wight/Southampton County in Virginia. In addition, two new chapters were chartered (the Triangle of North Carolina: Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill; and at the Top of Virginia: Winchester/Front Royal); seven were revitalized or fully reorganized, and several others are in the process of being reorganized.

The Alumni House

The Alumni House serves as the home base for the Society of the Alumni, a beautiful, renovated home for alumni to rally around when they return to campus. The House also serves faculty, staff, students, administrative groups, and community and civic organizations. Over the past fiscal year, the House was reserved for forty-two student meetings or functions, four College departmental functions, forty Town and Gown luncheons, six Board of Visitors meetings, two Elderhostel receptions, eighty community/civic group meetings and two Board of Directors meetings. Alumni can take great pride in this beautiful house which serves its alumni, college and community so well.

Order of the White Jacket

1982-83 was an excellent year for the Order of the White Jacket which makes its headquarters at the Alumni House. Thanks largely to the recruiting efforts of its president, Howard M. Smith '43, membership has grown over the past year to six hundred active members — up from four hundred prior to 1982. Order of the White Jacket did several things in 1982-83 that benefited the College and its students including the establishment of the Edmund N. O'Connell Scholarship Fund in honor of the late co-owner of the Colonial Restaurant in Williamsburg who was an honorary member of the Order of the White Jacket. In January 1983, after Jefferson Dormitory was severely damaged by fire, Order of the White Jacket, under the leadership of its new president, Colin R. (Randy) Davis '50, contributed $1,000.00 to the Jefferson Emergency Fund. At its 1983 Spring Board meeting, Order of the White Jacket voted to raise Order of the White Jacket scholarships from $200.00 to $250.00 each beginning in 1983.

TRIBE CHEERLEADERS TO REUNITE

Past and present William and Mary cheerleaders will reunite to generate spirit at the 1983 Homecoming football game between Rutgers and William and Mary on Oct. 22. Sponsored by the Society of the Alumni and the Varsity Cheerleaders, the reunion will begin at 11 a.m. with a reception to be held at a location that will be announced on the Homecoming master schedule at the Alumni House. All former cheerleaders are invited to grab their pom poms and megaphones and join in.

MASONS HOLD RECEPTION

The "Chalet de Lora," summer home of the Masons of Lynchburg, provided the setting for the Lynchburg Chapter's annual picnic-reception honoring incoming freshmen. Braving 100 degree temperatures that August Saturday are Bill Overacre '64, father of freshman Debbie, Jackie Crebbs '64, and Nancy Brockman.

Dear Classmates:

A letter from H. Caleb Cushing: "Though retired, I have a lively group of retired folk, 40 in number, who compose a Civic Chorus, namely, 'Caroloa Choir.' They rehearse regularly and sing in public often. This spring season we have seven appearances so far. Often see Carl Andrews '27 in my 'travels.' He is doing fine. Regards to '29."

From J. Harry Carmine: "No real news. I live alone here on East River. We built a house here in 1961. I retired in 1965. The wife died in 1966. Since 1966 I have lived alone. I am of the Class of 1929 (August). I have served my Commonwealth as school principal for 32 years and as a private school assistant headmaster for 5 years."

From Thos. H. Christie: "Greetings in the name of our dear Savior. We trust that you have had a delightful winter and that you are enjoying a glorious spring. Frances and I spent the winter in Santa Clara, Panama, with our daughter who is a missionary in Panama under the Southern Baptist Convention. We had the opportunity to visit all of the places of interest in Panama. Panama is a beautiful land and has much to offer tourists. I had the privilege to fly in a small plane into the jungles and to live with the natives for two days. This was a high point of my visit. I arrived home in time to get my garden going. This keeps me busy during the summer months. Hope to hear from some of the gang in the next issue of the magazine. Best to you in every way."

From William M. Bickers, M.D., 412 Medical Arts Building, Richmond, Va. 23219. "American University of Beirut, Graduating Residents Honored. In honor of the graduating residents, the department of Obstetrics and Gynecology organized a dinner at the Four Seasons Restaurant (Summerland). Dr. William M. Bickers, former chairman of the department, 1960-1973, as well as former residents practicing in Tripoli and Sidon, were present. This ceremony was marked by the distributing of awards and traditional shields. President Kerr gave Dr. Bickers the shield of the department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and spoke in praise of Professor Emeritus Bickers." Billy Bickers writes "Hotel Summerland was destroyed by rockets four days later."

I regret to inform you of the passing of Dr. Albion Guilford Taylor at Colorado Springs, Colorado, on August 10, 1983. Dr. Taylor was the beloved Professor of Economics at the College.

Many of our classmates have not written and your letters are urgently needed to keep us posted with what you have been doing in recent months. We hope many of you will return for Homecoming, October 21-23, 1983. A great program has been planned and we know you will have "the time of your life" if you can be with us. We look forward to seeing you.

Dear Classmates:

As the deadline for writing the class letter nears, I have not received any news. Your classmates look forward to hearing what you have been doing, but unless you let me know, I cannot tell them.

I am planning to be at Homecoming, October 21 and 22, and do hope many of you are sending in your reservations. Please come prepared to give me some news for the December issue or write to me prior to November 1.

Hope you all had a wonderful summer and I shall look forward to seeing you at Homecoming.

What is a 50th class reunion? For those of you who gathered in Williamsburg for the weekend of May 13th, 1983, it was many things, I'm sure. Staring at a member, wondering who he or she was, then suddenly hearing the classmate's voice, and seeing a face light up with mutual recognition was a moving moment. Meeting spouses of classmates, looking around for missing members, talking, talking, and talking; suddenly hearing John Phillip's voice quietly an announce, meeting the new Executive Vice President of the Alumni Association, H. Westcott Cunningham '43 and his wife, being escorted everywhere by gracious Alumni Office personnel, seeing the "new" campus, learning of the changes on campus, sharing graduation with the 1983 graduates, pausing to remember classmates who have left us, eating delicious meals which were varied and tasty, chatting with classmates at breakfast at the Holiday Inn, then having other "yak" sessions in rooms with renewed friends, are all a part of a reunion. Then there are memories which come flooding back, especially those of instructors who helped to mold our lives. As I sat near the Sunken Garden by the Chapel wing of the Wren Building on Sunday morning, I recalled the convocations in the old Phi Beta Kappa Hall, the play production class under Miss Althea Hunt, to whom I'm indebted for helping me overcome my shyness as she made me have faith in my own worth, as did Dr. Grace Warren Landrum who understood my problems in English composition.

While I was sitting there, I noticed a pungent smoky odor all of a sudden. Of course, the wind had blown it from Jefferson Hall where that burnt odor still lingered faintly.

Who came? I was fortunate to come with Fannie Martin Richardson and Loreta Lybrook Young early on Friday, from Richmond, as we had been invited to lunch by Leah Miller McCaskey '34 and her husband Tom '31. What a delightful way to start our weekend celebration! Leah's and Tom's home, nestled in the woods, overlooking water in the back, was charming, along with their hospitality.

As we returned to the motel Annis Wilkerson from Hollywood, Florida, was arriving with a friend, and her dog. Ellasue Carr, Lettie Hairston Hodges, and Marion Zuydhoek Allison, along with Kay Everhart (Washington, D.C.), were with the Roanoke, Wytheville area people, so I went around to see them, and Mary Owel, Eleanor Henebry Oakey, and Mary Minichan were near them, too.

Ginny Hawthorne Murray '32 and her husband Ralph Murray of our class came from Long Beach, California. It didn't seem possible that it had been over fifty years since I had taken their picture when they were sitting on the rail of the Pi Beta Phi porch. I told Ginny to take the snapshot back to her grandchildren for them to see their grandparents "courting."

Macon Fears of Drakes Branch and his wife came, too. Macon entered the College in 1923, but he graduated in 1933 as he worked in between times, too. After graduation he went to get his master's degree in Education, serving in educational fields until his retirement.

And Mary Butterfield Wells was finally found among the "lost" 1933 members. She lives in Largo, Florida.

On Saturday night we were escorted to the Great Hall in the Christopher Wren building for dinner. Mary Minichan walked in dressed in a beautiful turquoise gown which made her look regal and elegant, perfectly at home amid the portraits of English royalty which adorned the walls.

The Memorial Service on Sunday morning affected us all emotionally. As I read the name of Libby White Whitchurch, I could see that little blonde from California when she first saw snow, standing outdoors with her face lifted up so that the flakes fell on her face and she even opened her mouth to let it fall on her tongue so that she could taste it. She was one of my roommates in old Tyler Hall when we were freshmen. She went with Dad and me to the farm that he had in Caroline County during the summer of 1930.

Seeing Joe Cohron who has changed very little, reminded me of our work with Miss Hunt on the plays given. It was great to recall our friends of those days again.

We missed Charlie McCurdy who expected to come but was not physically up to it. We were grateful for Percy D. White's inspirational opening of the Memorial Service. Lucie Grossman Titus gave delightful class highlights from '29 to '33. We also welcomed back Howard Scammon '34 as a member of our class, as he entered in 1929. (During the years of the depression, many dropped out, then returned later to graduate.) Lota Spence Reid presented Miss Emily Eleanor Calkins with a gift and scroll in the form of a resolution from the Class of '33.

These are excerpts from comments made by some of the members who came:

From Margaret Scott Rennick: "The 50th Reunion was an invigorating and heart-warming experience." Then Annis Wilkerson said, "We felt that we were real V. I. P.'s and the red carpet had been rolled out for us. We had a ball and enjoyed every minute of it." Joe Cohron said "I'm still up in the clouds."

Did you know that Ewell Crawford Ramsey was one of the descendants of a former president of the College? She attended the Authors' Luncheon on June 24th for the benefit of the President's House on the campus. Parke Rouse, Jr. spoke on his new book, A House for a President. Truly the President's House is lovely! We had a brief tour of it, too.

Max and Lois Jenkins Doman wrote that they enjoyed the events and the fellowship beautifully provided at the reunion.

Alan Rufus Tonelson, of Norfolk, expected to come but didn't make it. We hope that you are feeling all right, Alan.

Jean Hyatt Holcomb said that the 50th reunion was "super"---red carpet treatment the whole weekend."

John and Lota Spence Reid, Emporia, Virginia, said, "This has been a real success --- good fellowship, good food, good program. We'll try to be here for our hundredth."

Vi Martin Pate, who came all the way from Spokane, Washington, to room with her roommate Loretta Lybrook Young, said, "Let's keep going!" Jeanne Rose, from Arlington, Virginia, commented, "Thanks for a lovely time." Minn Shreve Copley, of Alexandria, said, "The 50th was fun! Just enough activities, rest, and time for renewing friendships."

Mary Owel of Wytheville: "I loved it! John (Phillips) and his group were terrific." Fran Booth from Arlington said, "It was a wonderful weekend. A job well done."

For each of you who were there, I hope you enjoyed our 50th, too. As I sat next to Joe Cridlin at lunch on Saturday, it seemed strange that the quiet, gentle man is now a judge. I think Bromley Freeman, a famous surgeon in Texas, felt humbled as I did before the graduates on Sunday.

Keep in touch, all of you, please.

OCTOBER 21-23
HOMECOMING
YOU'RE INVITED!

I nearly forgot Charles Thomas, of Hampton, who has been the treasure of our Class Gift Committee. In May we had $8,751.07 collected. As you know the gift will go toward the Alumni House expansion program which is badly needed. If you have not contributed and wish to, send it to the Alumni House before October 21st, which is Homecoming weekend.

The Olde Guard luncheon will be on Friday, October 21st, at 12:00 noon at the Williamsburg Hospitality House (across from the Alumni House). Cost $11.00 per person with reservations due by October 3, 1983. See the June issue of the Alumni Gazette for other Homecoming details. I hope to see you there.

Again, thanks to Carlton, the Alumni House, the caterers, and all others who helped to make the reunion a success.

Flora Willcox Berkeley's husband has been ill, I hear. We hope he is much better by now.

My husband enjoyed all the programs and the weekend. I hope that other spouses did, too. One that did was Virginia Hawthorne Murray, who wrote to Charles McCurdy, "The reunion was so well planned, staged, and executed, one came away feeling like an honored guest at an honorable institution. We were all fortunate to have experienced William and Mary and the friendships it brought us." That's a good summary as it says it all.

For my last bit of news, John V. Holberton of 10130 Chapel Road, Potomac, Maryland 20854, has agreed to be "co-partner" for the Class of '33 reporter. Isn't that great? He and wife Betty were at the class reunion, too. Give John your cooperation, please. I hope we will have the next news letter for you. We haven't worked out all the details as yet, but you can write to either of us now. Keep in touch.

What is better on a hot afternoon, besides cold lemonade and watermelon --- going through old scrapbooks with some members of the Class of '35. Some articles were sad, others bewildering (by today's standards), and others hilarious. There will be only one more fall cleaning, after this year, to collect and send materials for our scrapbook. Before you tear apart your collection, remember it would be wiser to include only one of a kind article unless you have been the proverbial string saver and have some choice items. Old pictures of the campus or the buildings on Duke of Gloucester Street that were torn down while we slept. . . and a white painted fence installed before Franklin D. Roosevelt

"NEW SPIRIT" CRUISE

ALUMNUS APPOINTED
PEAT MARWICK PARTNER

H. Max Lummis IV '73 has been named a partner in the St. Louis Audit Department of Peat Marwick. Lummis had been a senior manager in the department since 1979 and has extensive experience working with SEC clients. He has also instructed national training courses on government grants for Peat Marwick. Lummis first became associated with Peat Marwick in 1973.

arrived in his open car. Do you have clippings of the STRIKE? While the girls slept the boys had a confrontation at the dining hall, meat cleaver held off, and the culprit tossed in the gold fish pond in front of the hall. Before you begin sending to me or to the Alumni House, may I suggest a postcard telling what articles you have to offer. This way our scrapbook will be the most informative and no feelings hurt!

Harriet Council Mead was nominated as the Outstanding Volunteer of the Year for her work with the blind. What a much needed area to work in.

Frank deS. Willson wrote to tell me what he knew of missing classmate Harry Wayne Perfater. Frank and Harry were Brother Rats at VMI in 1931, then both transferred to William and Mary. Frank has not kept up with Harry, and at his suggestion I contacted the VMI Class of '35 agent. They, too, have no record of Harry.

Does anyone know about Jean Elizabeth Barry Burch?

A helpful card came from Anne Nenzel Lambert, who had graciously researched a name and spelling there in Williamsburg.

Our classmates are on the move. Pappy Pappandreu has returned from his yearly (it seems) European tour, this time for three weeks.

Blake Newton "was in Europe for the best part of early June, and in the hospital the best part of the end of it." So glad you are much better.

Hazel Bowers May wrote a long note from which I quote, "After my parents' death, I moved to Orange, since I inherited the 'old homeplace.' Besides teaching school and raising my twin girls, my hobby was and still is antiquing. I have been a widow for some time, so my life has been rather busy and routine. I was somewhat disappointed that neither of my girls attended William and Mary. Barbara is a graduate of the University of Tennessee, and Carline, Virginia Tech, and a Phi Beta Kappa (naturally, Mama is proud)." Hazel was able to send the new address of George William (Bill) Smith, Jr. His sister lives in Orange.

The kind of letter a class reporter welcomes: "The June issue of the Alumni Gazette was so interesting and enjoyable, it inspired me to write to you." Who but Mary Allen Moser! "I feel very proud to be a part of the Class of '35" and its efforts to endow a professorship in the Department of Government. Mary and her husband moved to the Seattle area when they retired and are living near their son and his family, playing golf and "really love the great Northwest."

Not only do the men of our class travel, but Sue Stickle Beagler wrote, "I have just spent four weeks at the Institute de Francais at Ville Frandie-sur-Mer, studying French. What a great way to spend time in a foreign country. The school ended, I spent a week on a hotel-berge, floating along a canal in central France. That is a marvelous way to travel through the countryside, at a snail's pace, enjoying the scenery. Last on my list was a two-day visit to a cousin in Holland." Sue moved back to Provo, Utah, after her husband's death, likes the security of the town, the active community life of the Brigham Young University, and the gorgeous scenery. "I'll be there in '85 - wish it were now." Sue could not give me a lead on Fran Smith, Rosedale, Virginia. You Phi Mu's check your directories!

Annie Pauline Cornett Brown and her husband have retired from the active ministry of United Methodist Church after forty-three years of full time service. "We will be serving an English speaking church in Vienna, Austria, during 1984." Pauline's new address is Box 605, Jonesboro, Tennessee.

Kitty Chiswell Sweeney has returned from a lovely trip to England to visit family and to do some touring.

Ed Boisseau, vice president of the Virginia Electoral Board, was accompanied to Charlottesville by Eleanor Hooker Boisseau '36 and Yette Winslow Bryant. While Ed attended to official business, Eleanor, Yette, and Betty Weston Dulaney (of Charlottesville) enjoyed going to all the interesting eating places. Airy Hubbard came down from her mountaintop home in Standardsville to join them. These Chi O's really keep in touch!

Clara Bamforth Knight wrote that she had spent two weeks in Japan.

After reading about all these trips, I am convinced our class has the greatest stamina of any class and 1985 is going to be the greatest reunion ever. In case you read Erma Bombeck, her article "Only the 'old grads' show up at reunions," is a scream! If you haven't read it, don't take it to heart for all our young '35ers don't come under her attack!

Do you remember arriving at The College of William and Mary in Williamsburg and having to precede your male family members up the hall, screaming "Man of the Hall!" Remember the laundry to be picked up we pitched over the railings at the end of the halls? The laundry was washed, wrapped in brown paper, and picked up after supper later in the week. The September Gazette sported pages of bedrooms after and during our times of iron beds that could not be defaced, but many were decoyed into a more female decor with matching spreads.

Reading the football schedule for the coming season, I recall 102-0 score at one of our Homecomings against Bridgewater College. Why couldn't we have been gracious enough to let them score once, remember?

If you can possibly do so, plan on being in Williamsburg for Homecoming, October 21-23, at least for the luncheon on Saturday. Keep writing! You make our 1935 report the best!!

It was so nice to hear from Lyman Belknap with a bit of humor in his letter. He has a license plate on his pick-up truck that reads "Live Free or Die 83 - W&M-37 New Hampshire." This comment was "I have had a great deal of fun with this number plate on my pick-up here in N. H. A few people guess what it means, but not too many."

Marjorie Sparrow Curtis writes that now since her husband Ralph has retired, they can spend more time at their country house in the Jersey mountains. However, they shall continue to indulge their love for travel. Last year they joined the alumni tour on The Main Passage, a truly delightful experience. This year they plan to cruise the Baltic and continue to the fjords of Norway.

After spending two weeks in Florida in the spring, Charles Penrose says he is looking forward to hiking in Switzerland for a couple of weeks in August with his son Bruce. Then they plan to visit distant cousins in Britain. Good hiking, Charles!

Marshall Brickell writes that he is still practicing family dentistry in Stoughton, Maine, but is getting ready to slow down. I'm sure this is good news for his four children, three sons aged 32, 29, 26, and one daughter 18. He and wife Carra Lee hope to make Homecoming in '83.

Thank you, Julia Bader Leonard, for answering my card. I'm delighted to hear your summation of your past 15 years. Retired three years ago from position of Director of Special Services in the South Hadley School System; now consultant as Child and Neuro-Psychologist primarily in educational settings; also became grandmother of three delightful girls (12, 4 and 2), daughters of Charles and Catherine Leonard Hopkins; son Christopher in doctoral program at the City University of New York in cultural anthropology. Two special memories: a camping trip across Scandinavia to Leningrad where the Hopkins spent two years teaching in the Anglo-American school, and the profoundly moving June 12th nuclear freeze march in N. Y. C. last year.

I'm still hoping to hear from all of you 1937 alumni, so please don't let me down.

Monongahela, PA 15063

"Small world" items are almost a hobby with me, particularly after running into Monongahela hometown folk in New York City on three different occasions (on a bus yet!). Now here's a good one - Martin Gracey writes that he and Betty Roberts Osborn met in Copenhagen. He was on the William and Mary "Northern Lights Tour" and Betty on a Northwestern University Scandinavian Tour with a friend who's a Northwestern alumna. Martin did us proud! When the lecturer on the cruise (which included the universities of Michigan, Tennessee, Kansas and Marquette), told the group about William of Orange and his influence on the Netherlands and Britain, Martin remarked about "the importance of William's grandson and his prescience in establishing a college in the Virginia Colony (with the help of his wife) in 1693." Also, on that tour was General Joe Butcher of Indiana University who had served in the Marines with '39ers Tim Hanson and Wyatt Carneal. Thanks for writing, Martin - enjoyed the Paris hotel stationery (nice place, eh? I stayed there several years ago).

Peggy Prickett Miller decided to retire at the end of the school year and I arrived on the scene when all the parties honoring her were taking place. Even so, we did squeeze in time for the Freer Art Gallery and a good movie - but then, Peggy always could do a thousand things at one time and do all of them well. I learned a great deal about some of the creative teaching techniques from The Red Apple, a publication for teachers and other professional personnel in Fairfax County Public Schools, among which was trying to survive a television blackout for two weeks, keeping a journal of what one did instead of watching the tube and discovering the pleasures of walks with parents and pets. Beach Tree School, where Peggy taught her fifth-sixth grade class, named her 1981-82's Teacher of the Year. Additionally, she was a nominee for FCPS Teacher of the Year in 1981-82 and was nominated last year for Social Studies Teacher of the Year in Virginia. Peggy and Miley will be situated in Elkhart, Indiana, come September where he has taken a position as Vice President, Marketing, for the Remic Corporation, an electronics company which produces hands free communications devices. They'll be on deck for Homecoming - hmmm, it just occurred to me that Peggy might agree to write another Homecoming letter - she does such a good job - would she dare refuse!

Preceding my stay at the Millers', I was in the Tidewater area and Richmond on business, but had a little free time to stop by the Alumni Office to say hello to Frankie Martens (and to humbly thank her for the patience of a saint in translating my handwriting). Also, dropped in on the Admissions Office and some of the development staff. They're dedicated folks and doing a good job. It was nice - and nostalgic - just walking around campus and the town. Yes, a lot of changes but some things that won't, like the old campus and the Sunken Garden, lovely memories and fun to know that the senior dance is now taking place (with tent) again in the Garden.

Next on the leisure class reporting is Dot Hosford Smith, whom I visited when in California on a CMU trip. It was our first meeting since 1939, if our memories serve us correctly. Anyway, she, husband Herb, and I had a great time together. While they were off to their respective offices, I made my calls and reports, then evenings were ours. Their travels and activities are so numerous I couldn't start to sum up all they've done over the past years, and now they're off to Africa on a freighter with no time limitations since they retired in June, Herb from teaching, Dot from counseling. Heavens, they must need some rest after all the events which preceded their retirement. The Claremont Colleges are impressive, tour courtesy of Dot. We, also, managed a brief visit to the marvelous Norton Simon Museum in Pasadena.

Next classmate reunion was with Dot Spence Druckemiller in Phoenix, where she and I lingered over lunch at the Biltmore, taking in the old world atmosphere and catching up since our last visit a couple of years ago. Dot continues to be busy since retirement and Don is still working (has made a splendid recovery from his illness). She has been concentrating some of her volunteer efforts on hospice involvement (in April was receiving instruction). Now that Dot and Don have a snappy new custom van (I rode in it - very comfortable and view from the windows is superb), they'll probably do more travelling. Keep us posted, Dot.

Hang in - we're now up to August - and a good visit with Barbara Westcoat Carter and Chuck. This is usually an annual get together with much golf and reviewing the crops. Little golf this time, crops suffering from the dry weather, but local color in the trotting race and carriage marathon, topped off by a spectacular storm which felled an old locust tree in Carter's yard (minor damage to the tool shed and probably some sore muscles. As I departed, Chuck was still hacking away and doing a professional job of the wreckage removal). The Carters did some extensive travelling in southern states earlier this year, spending several days with Barbara's brother and family in Dallas. Ah yes, I forgot to mention the fresh red raspberries from their garden - that's livin'!

Class notes received in the Alumni Office:

Carroll Hutton MacGahan writes that they had a fantastic trip to New Zealand earlier this year. Stops included Hawaii and Tahiti and they managed to miss most of the winter. Nice timing.

Alma Van Blarcom and Lorimer Walker are back in schools, enrolled in sign language and vocal ensemble classes at a local community college. The summer has, also, been occupied with short visits to their four children in Maryland, Minnesota, Texas, and Indiana. They'll return for Homecoming.

Bill Eppes writes that actor-friend Erik Rhodes (Bill, does he still have his neat moustache?) has given his priceless and unique pug collection to the Peter Chapin Collection books on dogs at Swem Library. Bill and Mr. Rhodes share a mutual affection for pugs, and isn't it nice that, because of Bill, he, a non-alumnus, gave his collection to our school. Bill saw "La Cage Aux Folles" in Boston while attending a Theatre Historical Society meeting. John Weiner '76, who plays the juvenile lead, is proud of his William and Mary education (aren't we all!).

Congratulations to Herb Krueger who was given Honorable Mention in the All-Time Phi Kappa Tau Football Squad.

Let's hear from you. Have a wonderful time at Homecoming.

DR. COLE '50 ELECTED BY STATE GROUP

Dr. Waverly Manson Cole '50 of Richmond has been elected President of the Virginia Society of Anesthesiologists. Prior to his election, he had served in numerous other official roles including Secretary-Treasurer of the organization. He also served as President of the Richmond Society of Anesthesiologists. Dr. Cole was the former head of the Department of Anesthesiology at St. Mary's Hospital, Richmond, but now devotes full time to his practice at the Richmond Eye & Ear Hospital.

John H. Prince, Chronicler
2063 West Cheadle Loop
Yorktown, VA 23692

"The fat woman is heavy and crusheth the fruit on which she treads; but the slender one is light and bruiseeth not the grape" (Proverbs)

You may have noticed in the past how, with subtilty and guile, I weave that first paragraph into the body of this thing. Not this time.

Thursday I received a lovely card with a picture of the William and Mary Choir (an enormous group) spread over 2.5 acres and in front of a modern-looking building that wasn't there when I was — or you were either; so don't get snide. The men and the women are dressed formally and are quite fetching. Anyway, on the other side of the card was a terse message. It said, "REMINDER * CLASS NOTES ARE DUE AUGUST 24, 1983." Nobody signed it; so it may be a hoax, and perhaps I should work on that assumption. But then again, it might not be, and since being chicken is an integral part of my psyche I'll assume it is genuine.

So I pulled open the lower left hand drawer of my desk — that's the big one you can put those manila file folders in standing up — and pulled out the particular folder titled "W&M - CLASS NOTES - CURRENT." I was not in the least surprised to find it empty. Absolutely empty! Well, almost empty. It did contain a personal note from Pat Parry, which is none of your concern.

What to do? What to do?

Would you like to hear what Charlotte and I have been up to? Now that's not nice, and I'm going to tell you anyway. Among other things we've been going fishing, playing tennis (once), golf (twice) and going to Busch Gardens in the evening, having dinner in the Italian section, and enjoying the music put on by some enormously fine performance, I rose to join everyone else in giving a standing ovation. Then I noticed that I was the only one on his feet. I sat down to a polite smattering of applause from my neighbors. Charlotte must have dropped something during this byplay because she was under the table when I looked for her.

Good old Horace Coward, being true to his tradition of being a charter member of the League of non-Achievers (LOLA) did not send me a letter telling me the following:

He spent the early summer in the Antarctic harpooning penguins and carving out ice cubes for the Hospitality Room at this year's Homecoming. He almost called me twice, but just looking at the telephone reminded him of the dismemberment of AT&T, a fond thing vainly conceived, and he broke down both times.

Oh, well. I think I'll wait and see if anything comes in the mail. Better come soon, though. Today is the 14th and it's due on the 24th. That's less than a week away.

Nothing! So, that's the way you're going to be, eh?

I decided to call good old Austin and Barbara Roberts who are usually a font of information. Nothing! Well, not really nothing. They spent a week or two in Nags Head with their four children, two of their children's spouses and four grandchildren. It's over now. Sympathy cards may be sent to them care of the R & R Division of Eastern State.

Not being too impressed with the Roberts' input, and now being driven by an irresistible need to get news, I called good old Herb Young and Jane. Surely, I thought, living at the hub of our academic world, they were constantly being exposed to class gossip. Nothing! Well, almost nothing. Jane was rather reluctant to tell me that they had travelled from Africa to Iceland, and places between. She didn't want to appear pretentious.

I heard her scream at Herb that I was on the phone and did we have any news. I think he was reading the paper — one of the many skills picked up in the silver years. He woke up and shouted back, (and I think I quote) "No. Say hello to dear old John for me." So Jane said, "Hello," we exchanged a few more inanities, and that was it.

I just found out that we are not going to be around for the Homecoming Weekend. We don't feel good about that. I think I'd better clarify that. We do plan to be in this world, but not in this part of it. I certainly hope and expect that each of you attendees take copious note on what goes on, who is indiscreet, who is there, etc, and send them to me. I'll credit you or not, as you prefer.

Have a ball.

Greetings from the Gentle City. A cool morning like this is a reminder of what it will be like for October's Homecoming. Come back and remember.

Scotty Cunningham is back on campus. He was the former Dean of Admissions at the College, and was the first president of Christopher Newport College. Now he serves as the Executive Vice President of the Society of the Alumni. Welcome home, Scotty and Cecy. Cecy, did you see what happened to our rooms at Jefferson!

The Reverend S. Grayson Clary was ordained a deacon in 1949 and has served in parishes established in 1815, 1741, 1670 and 1400 — the latter in London. He and Jean moved to Minnesota in 1965 and have become acclimated to that region. Floods, tornadoes and record-breaking sub-zero temperatures have all been experienced by this fine southern gentleman and his family. His two sons are attorneys. Grayson was the president of the Minnesota Episcopal Foundation for two years. He has been dean of Region Seven and also examining chaplain for candidates for ordination. He has just finished a term as chairman of the Diocesan Council and is currently a member of the Challenge executive committee.

OCTOBER 21-23

HOMECOMING

YOU'RE INVITED!

Buck Bradford is interested in finding out how many of our classmates have attended every Homecoming. Answer the challenge!

Governor Charles Robb reappointed Dr. Robert Faulconer to a four-year term on the College Board of Visitors.

Mary Louise Taylor McGoodwin and retired architect husband toured the hill towns of Tuscany last fall. How were the grapes? Mary Louise is a docent at the Portland Art Museum.

Bill Remick works with the U.S. Navy's international sales and training program. He was in Saudi Arabia part of last year, and is now working on a Pakistani project.

J. Edgar Pointer is still practicing law in Gloucester, Va., and also serves as county attorney. He recently employed Julianne B. Dias, 1982 graduate of Marshall-Wythe School of Law. She is the first lady lawyer in the history of Gloucester County.

Jean and Virgil Ford were here in June.

RICHMOND ANNUAL PICNIC

The Richmond Chapter of the Society held its annual picnic at the Virginia Power Boat Association on the James River. Among the 250 alumni attending were Allan S. Wagner '51, Elizabeth George, Brooks George '32, Clyde Ratcliffe, Lee Cheurning Ratcliffe '32, and Betty Hicks Wagner '51.

The Norfolk Alumni chapter gave a dinner dance on board "The New Spirit" docked at the all so new Waterside. Jean and Virgil helped entertain grandchildren this summer — including another indoctrination trip to the Gentle City. Can't start too soon with grandchildren.

Thanks for all the news and for the support for the College. See you at Homecoming.

Mrs. Wadsworth Bugg, Jr.

Richmond, Virginia 23226

A nice note received from Bill Heffner. He writes, "Currently serving as Rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Mt. Kisco, N.Y., just north of N. Y. C. in Westchester County. Also active in the Diocese of New York serving as President of the Standing Committee and a trustee of the Cathedral of St. John the Devine. We've had the William and Mary Choir in concert at St. Mark's twice in recent years. Naeko and I have four children: one in the Marine Corps, one at Georgetown, one at Trinity in Hartford, and our last girl is in Fox Lane H.S. here. I was a touring missionary of the Episcopal Church in Okinawa (1951-62), where I met and married my wife Naeko."

Virginia Craddock Oberlin writes, "My husband and I just returned from a wonderful 4-1/2 week trip. We had two weeks touring Spain, including lunch with artist Juan Ferrandez in Barcelona. A few days in Mallorca, then on another trip taking us to Austria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, northern Italy (Santa Christina and the ANRI factory — just beautiful), and back to Germany and then home."

Congratulations to Lewis L. Glucksman who has become the Chief Executive Officer of Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb, Inc., investment banking house. The New York Times says, "With his rumpled appearance and quiet demeanor Lewis L. Glucksman hardly looks like the kind of man to have ascended to the top of one of Wall Street's most prestigious investment houses. And, Mr. Glucksman, by his own admission, is a private person — a loner whose passions in life are boating and carpentry and who feels uncomfortable in the public eye. . . . Despite his reputation as a tough, street-smart trader, Mr. Glucksman is a reticent man and not particularly fond of having his name in the newspapers. . . . I work very hard, but I leave the business behind and don't work on weekends' . . . and returns to his wife, two daughters and one of his four residences, either his Manhattan apartment, his New York country home, a summer house in East Hampton, or his house in Key Largo, Fla." Still sounds like our kind of "good guy," doesn't he?

And it seems our "good gals" are doing things, too. A note from Annis McLean deBrijard says, "Such a pleasure to receive Alumni Gazette and read about all the wonderful things happening at William and Mary. Am very involved now as a member of Board of Directors of the Bank of Florida and Chairman of the Board of my own company, Manufactured Housing Products Co., Inc., supplier of components to manufactured housing industry in the southeast." Sounds great, Annis!

A letter from Volina Robertson Turner says she enjoys reading the Alumni Gazette and is sorry she has not been able to attend homecomings since her husband's death, but is hoping to be able to come to our next one. She is living in Newark, Delaware, with her son who is the principal of William Penn High School. Besides her son she has four grandchildren and seven great grandchildren, one of whom is in first year college. She says while visiting her sister in Roanoke last year the family surprised her with a birthday party. They came from as far away as India — quite a distance and what a reunion.

Our very deepest sympathy to Betty Willcox D'Agostino on the death of her husband "Doc." He was long identified with the Lawrenceville School and Princeton University alumni affairs. He was for many years the popular owner and innkeeper of the historic Cranberry Inn near Princeton.

Mary Jane Chamberlain Howard writes that her sons knew the D'Agostinos when they were at Princeton. She says she and Edie McChesney Ker attended the 50th anniversary of the founding of Gamma Phi Beta at William and Mary in January and are planning to attend Homecoming. She says she and Vaughan had dinner in Williamsburg in May with her former roommate, Genevieve Rile Morrison '43, who now resides in Aberdeen, Maryland. Mary Jane is the librarian at Holladay Elementary School in Henrico County, Virginia.

Fred Veador writes he was with a former roommate, Rudy Morris, for the first time in twenty-six years, and forty-one years since he had been in King George, Virginia. Rudy is father of two and grandfather of three. His son is a Marshall-Wythe Law School graduate. Fred writes glowingly about southern hospitality while visiting Fredericksburg, Stratford Hall, and King George. Says members of Class of '45 near King George would do well to deal with Morris Chevrolet there.

Keep up the good work with your notes and letters.

The Alumni Office asks us to please watch for any newspaper articles on William and Mary alumni. Send the clippings on to the appropriate class reporter or to the Class News Editor at the Alumni House. Be sure to include the date and the name of the paper or magazine.

Frankie Martens sent a post card to me two weeks ago reminding me of my August deadline for the Alumni Gazette Class of 1947 news. I had waited until the last minute to meet that deadline, hoping to receive word from a few of my classmates, but no word arrived.

Ann Anderson Apperson, '47 BA sent news from Daytona Beach last April to the Alumni Gazette and it was forwarded to me. Ann's son, Jay is an attorney at EPA in Washington, D.C. and is working on his masters degree in International Law at Georgetown University. Her other son, Lee, is in charge of Volusia Beach Safety, married and a father of a three year old son. Lee and his wife have two black labradors who keep the Coast Guard, boat captains and motel managers in the area in a constant uproar. The dogs swim 600 yards off-shore, then in the Halifax River and end their adventures in various motel pools before returning home. Ann has probably returned to Washington, D.C. by now for the month of August after spending June and July in Europe.

This has been a very busy and exhausting summer for me, but also very productive and rewarding. I flew to Ohio two days after my school responsibilities ended to help my mother move to Williamsburg to be near me. She has an apartment at the Heritage Inn and is nicely settled. Beth and I helped unpack and put things away for her.

Our first social outing after arriving back here from Ohio was attending the lovely luncheon at the Williamsburg Lodge Virginia Room benefiting the furnishing of the President's House. Parke Rouse was the

CHARLOTTESVILLE RECEPTION

Dave Varner '86, a member of the Student Alumni Liaison Committee, talks with incoming freshmen at the Charlottesville Chapter's August reception held at Ashlawn. Throughout the summer alumni chapters in Virginia and Maryland entertained the newest class of students, making them welcome and briefing them about life at William and Mary.

ALUMNI STAR IN MOVIES

Two William and Mary alumni are starring in new movies that have been released recently. Glenn Close '74, who was nominated for an Oscar for her performance in "The World According to Garp," is a featured performer in "The Big Chill," a movie by Lawrence Kasdan which was released this summer. Scott Glenn '61, whose previous credits have included "Urban Cowboy," plays astronaut Alan Shepard in the movie "The Right Stuff," based on Thomas Wolfe's book on the early astronauts. It was released this month.

WILL MOLINEUX '56 NAMED TIMES-HERALD EDITOR

Will Molineux '56, manager of the Williamsburg office of the Newport News Daily Press and Times-Herald, has been named editor of the editorial page of the Times-Herald. Molineux, a history major at William and Mary, has been associated with the Newport News newspaper for the past 19 years. Before that, he was a reporter for the Richmond News-Leader and the Virginia Gazette in Williamsburg.

featured speaker and gave a delightful review of his book entitled The President's House.

I enjoy swimming at the pool at The Heritage while my mother sits in the shade of the crape myrtle trees that line the edge of the pool. These trees have been magnificent this year despite the severe heat and lack of rain.

Debbie, my son Brook's wife, presented us with a healthy baby boy June 21st, while Brook was attending summer Army Reserve training in Georgia. We had four generations represented at the dinner following the christening in Virginia Beach. I was hostess to thirty friends and relatives at a restaurant near the church.

My daughter, Beth, is super-busy with her architectural pursuits with Carlton Abbott, Asso. and booked to capacity with the catering partnership she manages on the side.

Brook, an NIS agent, is assigned to the carrier Nimitz, now in dry dock at the shipyards. It is wonderful to have both children so near as well as having my mother minutes away.

Football season and tailgate parties will soon be resumed and Homecoming is not too far away.

There are some new restaurants in the Merchant Square area and changes continue each year. We now have a Craft House located on the Duke of Gloucester Street where the A and P store was located when we were in school.

The lovely old C & O railroad station is being renovated to accommodate tourist information and house a small eating establishment and perhaps more. Trailway buses are also coming into Williamsburg at this station.

I hope to gather news of my classmates Homecoming weekend, but please don't hesitate to write to me before that date. I can't write a news column if I don't have any news to report!

Jack Peterson and Deloris are in Saudi Arabia where he is working for Western Electric. He plans to retire after completion of this assignment. Their youngest daughter who transferred to engineering school after two years at William and Mary will graduate next year. Their other daughter is a controller in Norfolk. One of their sons manages a store in Greensboro and the other practices law in Norfolk and lectures at Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Mary Martin Hoffman and Harmon are planning to spend as much time as possible in their condominium in Williamsburg which they recently acquired as a second home. Bob Heckel and Martha are living in Florida where he is Director of the Small Business Development Center at Stetson University.

Dorothy Vaughan who had been a Supervisory Administrative Specialist has retired after 30 years with the federal government. Margaret Smithwick Clay and Walter live in Norfolk where she is teaching high school and Walter is Director of Health, Safety and Physical Education. They are enjoying their two grandsons.

Walter Oden has retired from his job in Norfolk as prosecutor for the Commonwealth of Virginia. He now divides his time between Virginia Beach and Naples, Florida. Nancy McFadden Walker and Dixie are living in Louisville, Kentucky where he is manager of domestic leaf purchases for Philip Morris, Inc. One of their sons has graduated from Hampden-Sydney and is working for Philip Morris in Richmond. Their other son graduated from North Carolina Wesleyan and is working for Universal Leaf in Danville.

Herb Bateman, who is congressman from Newport News, was recently honored in a ceremony at the U. S. Jaycees national headquarters in Tulsa, Oklahoma, where he was inducted into their Hall of Leadership. He was chosen because he achieved outstanding stature in the organization while he was a member and because he has continued to display outstanding leadership in business and public service. Herb was a Hampton Roads Jaycee in Newport News for seven years during which time he served in many offices including Virginia state president.

"Tidewater Woman of the Year" is our Mike Warfield (Dr. Melissa) as announced in July by the Virginian-Pilot, an award presented by a coalition of businesses and the Tidewater Women's Network. Mike modestly demurred at the honor but did pose for a photo with a young patient and answered questions for a reporter. As mentioned in October '82, Mike is director of the division of hematology and oncology at Children's Hospital of the Kings' Daughters in Norfolk and professor of pediatrics at Eastern Virginia Medical School. When she returned to Norfolk in 1960 her goals were "to build a facility that could meet children's special health needs in Tidewater." The hospital's pediatrics program was developed under her guidance. Her influence has been felt also in the establishment of a lead-control program and she has pressed the battle against sickle-cell anemia, and no doubt, much, much more to earn her this accolade from her community.

Lou Tull, who started out in our freshman class, and her husband, Art Mashburn, are associate professors of biochemistry at the University of Tennessee Center for the Health Sciences, according to the University of Richmond alumni magazine. Lou gave a paper on her research at the American Association for Cancer research meeting last year in St. Louis. The Mashburns live in Memphis and Lou's hobby is orchids.

And another medical note: Dr. Edward Sharp, husband of Virginia Gallaher Sharp, a surgeon of St. Anthony Hospital, Rockford, Illinois, came in for high praise by New York Times reporter Nan Robertson in a syndicated article about her own near fatal case of toxic shock syndrome.

Jo Askew writes she's a free lance interior designer, a 15-year member of ASID and worked with two architectural firms previous to marriage in 1969. She is co-owner of an automated chicken house and farm which raises 84,000 caged chicks to egg-laying size. Her youngest child just earned a doctorate in pharmacy from the University of Georgia.

From Tita Cecil Myers news that she and Clark expected to be in their new home in Moultonborough, New Hampshire, by mid-summer. Tita earned her master's in American Studies from the University of Maryland last December. The blacksmith shop guest cottage sounds delightful, and we'll surely look you up if we're in your area. Please keep us informed of your new life in New England, Tita.

I received a year-old but still interesting newspaper clipping about Stanley J. Garrison of Virginia Beach. It seems, Stan, while recuperating from major surgery during the Falklands War, wrote a long sympathetic letter to La Nacion, the largest circulation newspaper in Argentina. "I'm neutral in this thing," Garrison is quoted as saying. "But I thought I'd reach out to Argentina because most of what we've heard about the war has been pro-British." At the time the article was published, he had received over 400 letters as well as pamphlets and books about the islands. Some of the letters were 10 to 15 pages long. The Falklands War became very personal to Stan, whom the Ledger-Star describes as "rail-thin man of middle years who smokes a lot and listens to golden oldies on the radio. His business is selling automobiles."

A lengthy newspaper interview with Old Dominion University basketball coach Paul Webb appeared in the Norfolk paper May 1, 1983.

Joe Beneditti, chairman of the State Board of Corrections, and Herb Bateman, Newport News attorney, were both victors in their respective political arenas in the last elections. Both Republicans, Joe is representing Richmond's 68th District in the House of Delegates and Herb won the 1st District congressional seat.

Another clipping concerns the marriage of the daughter of Ann Giesen Fowlkes of Laguna Beach, California. How about a letter, Giesey?

From Betty Hicks Wagner a delightful letter in early August about her June trip to the island of Statia (St. Eustatius, Netherland Antilles) where the College's Dr. Norman Barka has run a field school in archeology for several summers. The Wagners met Dr. Barka and were able to see him and his students in action on this West Indian island which flourished in the 17th and 18th centuries and is now in ruins. The ambiance was all one could dream of — excellent cuisine, beautiful deserted beaches — "real therapy." The Wagners' other news is of their youngest, Clayton, who was graduated from Virginia Military Institute in May and will enter the MBA program at the College this fall. A great "excuse" to visit Williamsburg, says Betty.

I regret to confess I've misplaced a piece of correspondence received recently, I believe, from Toni Gilman Reynolds — please correct me if I'm wrong — who wrote of visiting three former college roommates recently: Ann Buckles Orteig in Williamsburg, Mary Jo Finn Aarestad in Pennsylvania, and ??? I do apologize and hope one of you will confirm, deny or add to this information.

Ralph Hart was planning a van tour of England, Wales and Scotland for the summer past, and enjoyed singing in the musical drama, The Witness, last spring in Portsmouth where he resides.

Ann Reese Carson has continued to clip for me and sends the following bits of information about our classmates — I might add, while helping her dear husband Bev to recover from a slight heart attack which struck in late June and certainly turned their lives upside down for a while.

She ran into Dot Franklin Eckles in Richmond; Dot and Russ live and work in the Richmond area. Phoebe Martin Harcum spoke at the Franklin Baptist Church and Reesie introduced her. Phoebe was Regional Coordinator of the Tidewater Center for the Virginia Baptist Children's Home but has since resigned.

The Carsons' daughter, Mary Reese, received her BA degree from the College in May and among alumni offspring graduates were Elizabeth Bolling Carter, daughter of Bolling Conner Carter, and Daniel Powell Hodges, son of Nan Jones Hodges.

Reesie also attended the College Choir reunion June 10-12, and noted the presence of Bill Nary, Gwen Batten Perkins, and Phoebe Martin Harcum, all of our class. She mentioned seeing Jim Kelly at both events. Last November the Carsons attended the funeral of George Jones, husband of Doris Hamilton Jones, in Blackstone. Our belated sympathy to the Jones family.

A post card from Sea Island, Georgia where Jim and Sarah Enos Brown were guests of Paul and Sidna Chockley Rizzo in June. Jim had been a commissioner at the General Assembly (of the Presbyterian Church) in Atlanta en route.

Many thanks to all of you who wrote me or sent information to the Alumni office. Let's keep in touch — I'm happy to pass it on, but need to hear from more of you.

Writing this column has been a genuine pleasure. I have enjoyed hearing from each and every one of you. Old friends who are "column-shy" have written, and, while not wishing to appear in print, have provided me with the greatest happiness with their letters. On the other side of the coin, some dear old friends haven't communicated since I began writing this column, and I now look forward to hearing from them again, for I must relinquish this pleasant task to someone else. If you really enjoy people, treasure enduring friendships, feel, as I do, that we were students at The College at its best and most beautiful period as a small, unique, liberal arts institution situated on a campus of perfect symmetry, graced by the elegant simplicity of buildings of Georgian architecture, and if you feel strongly the common thread which binds us all, then I think you would find great pleasure in writing the Class Notes column.

I returned to school last fall, tentatively, to see whether that was what I wanted to do. Now that the Raiders have moved to L.A., and our family will be on a commuting basis for a while, I have decided to pursue the long desired and unrealized goal of an M. A. in English. Relinquishing this column is simply my realistic acknowledgement of my limitations — there's only so much you can do!

Our family has had a wonderful year of traveling, with the occasional feeling of "passing like ships in the night." Charlie and I had a wonderful vacation in March, beginning with several days at Las Brisas in Acapulco, followed by a Princess Line cruise of the Mexican Riviera. We went with three of the Raiders' players and their wives, and had great rapport and much laughter. It was also spectacular to see the sun again, for we had another incredibly rainy winter, as cheerless and grim as your basic Joyce Carol Oates novel, one gray, rainy day following inexorably on the heels of another. In May I drove down to Santa Barbara for a visit with Mardie Pontius MacKimm, who was presiding over a portion of a Public Relations Seminar at the Biltmore. We then donned our tourists' hats and traveled up the coast, stopping at Hearst Castle, Carmel, and then home to beautiful Orinda. I left for the most marvelous month's tour of Europe the end of May. As Charlie is phobic about crossing the ocean blue, I went by myself on a bus tour and loved every moment and mile of the 3000 we crossed in Europe. I didn't miss one cathedral, basilica, baptismal, museum or gelateria within the range of the tour! (No guilt about the latter, I feel obliged to add, as I weigh 115 lbs. as the result of some serious dieting!) After Charlie went to training camp, our son Colin, 16, and I went up to Lake Tahoe for a week, and tomorrow I'm going to San Diego for the wedding of Pat, '58 and Stew, '56 Sell's daughter, Sherri, '82. I'm looking forward to seeing all the Sells at such a happy occasion. I'm going to call a halt to all this right now, as it is beginning to sound like one of those disgusting Christmas letters you get from people when you have had a perfectly dreadful year doing nothing.

This will certainly go down as my favorite mail flap message. Speaking for the collective unconscious, E. Dale Lutton writes: "I love to read the College news in the Gazette but I hate to supply any news." What a marvelous statement of the predicament most of us face at one time or another!

More mailflap: Nancy Lewey Spigle writes: "I have been teaching school for 20 years which may be the reason my hair is turning gray! My favorite hobby is William and Mary. My husband Bill and I make many trips to The College and also support all William and Mary activities in Roanoke. I wish all alumni would do the same. It's great!"

Don Glover writes that his wife, Alice Knight Glover, is halfway through her Master's program at Mary Washington College. Their son Bill, '82, is returning to enter Marshall-Wythe School of Law this fall. Cathy, '81, who has married David Glover (no relation), is working at UVA Law School Foundation.

And proudly mailflaps Bernice Magruder Sherwood: "John and I are very proud of our son, Steve, who is entering MIT this fall after graduating with highest honors from high school. Steve was also a National Merit Finalist and selected for Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Faithful correspondent Anne Lunas Vincent wrote, brimming with happiness, of her son Andy's election to Phi Beta Kappa at Ohio University. At the time Anne wrote in May, Andy had been accepted by Georgetown as a candidate for a Master's degree in Foreign Service, and was weighing that opportunity with an interest in the Peace Corps. While visiting her parents in Florida, Anne managed a visit with Diane West van Wert. Diane runs 4 miles daily on the beach, which effort culminated in her winning a 6th Place Ribbon in the World Famous Beach Run. She has also gotten a State of Florida Real Estate License, exhibited some true grit and heroism by trying to chase the Mafia out of Daytona, pressing the closure of porno places, and being on TV as a crimefighter! Diane continues to study for her Master's program in Christian counseling at Stetson, and is very near the finish line of that race as well. Two of her sons attend Vanderbilt. Mark is a freshman and John is in his third year of medical school, while Diane's youngest, Stephen, is enjoying the blissful life of being an "only child" while his brothers are away. Diane conveyed the information that Elaine Thomas Moore is now Public Relations Manager for Burdine's Department Store in Daytona.

Another faithful correspondent and dedicated marathon runner, Fred La Croix, writes that he has entered a new age group — 50 and up — and had his third best race last May. Fred attributes his success to following the advice of Dr. George Sheehan, a medical guru of runners, who suggests drinking modest amounts of beer the night before the race, and during the later stages of the race, and is convinced that it improved his endurance. Well, we all know about runners and the tolerance for pain they cultivate! Enduring the severity of Dr. Sheehan's rigorous training regimen explains, no doubt, why there are so many people running about at all hours of the day and night!

From the OWJ Newsletter comes news of Rear Admiral Ming Erh Chang, USN, who took command of Cruiser Destroyer Group Two in Charleston, South Carolina in February of this year. Ming and his wife Charlotte have two children, both of whom are in the United States Navy. Their son Daniel, class of '79, U.S. Naval Academy, is a Lieutenant, and their daughter, Donalda, class of '82, University of Hawaii, is an ensign.

Andy Thunander Miles writes that her daughter Elizabeth had a very successful year at Texas Christian University, and that her daughter Sarah will be a freshman at Kenyon College in Ohio this fall. Her son David has spent a wonderful summer at camp in northern Minnesota and will undoubtedly join the ranks of all the children who enjoy their moment in the sun as the "only child" when the siblings go off to college.

Allison Mercer, '56, and Jim Todhunter's son, Andrew, is off to Brown this fall, where he will join his brother David, and Andy Moat, the son of Stan and Julie Bleick Moat, '56, at that University.

Our son Terry had a wonderful summer in New York City, having been given an internship at Merrill Lynch on Wall Street. He loved the work, and the entire experience, and returns shortly to complete his degree in philosophy at Berkeley.

In closing, it seems to me that sprinkled throughout this column, and many that I have written, is evidence that the Class of '55 has reason to be proud to send forth into this world a really wonderful bunch of kids filled with the idealism and humor and compassion which we have shared with each other, and with them. Ah, Wilderness!

Perhaps you have already noticed a new name at the top of this column. In one of my many very weak moments I accepted the job of class reporter and am now begging you to write and send me all your news. In the meantime, a large round of applause to Shirley Richardson Fitzgerald for the fine job she did for so long.

Many of our classmates have received prestigious appointments and awards since our last column. Jim Windsor, of Newport News, has been elected chairman of the State Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board. He is a psychology professor at Christopher Newport College and a former president of the school. The board's nine members, appointed by the governor, make policy on mental health, retardation and drug problems.

Dave Evans was honored recently in Sydney, Australia, at the opening session of the International Association for Dental Research where he was awarded the 1983 Biological Mineralization Award. Dave is now Chief of the Mineral Chemistry and Structure Section of the Laboratory of Biological Structure of the National Institute of Dental Research. His focus of research interest has been the mineral phase of hard tissue, especially the effects of fluoride on such minerals. WOW! Does that ever sound impressive! Congratulations, Dave!

More accolades for Vince DeVita who was recently honored by Ohio State University and by Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. He received an honorary doctor of science degree from Ohio State on June 10th in recognition of his work in developing curative chemotherapy for Hodgkin's disease. Vince also was honored with the Memorial Sloan-Kettering award on May 19th in New York and gave the Convocation Address at its Fourth Annual Academic Convocation. I know all of our class joins me in congratulating Vince on the marvelous work he has done over the years in cancer research.

WCWM-FM RECEPTION

WCWM-FM, the William and Mary campus radio station, will hold a reception Homecoming Weekend for all alumni who were affiliated with the broadcast station since its inception in 1959. The reception will be held in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall immediately following the William and Mary-Rutgers football game. Alumni are encouraged to dial WCWM-FM at (804) 229-2600 if they will be able to attend the reception.

LIBRARY RECEIVES RARE VOLUME

The Earl Gregg Swem Library at the College of William and Mary has been given a rare eighteenth-century work relating to revolutionary Virginia by Kenneth Nebenzahl of Chicago. The volume was printed in Williamsburg in 1775 and is entitled "The Proceedings of the Convention of Delegates for the Counties and Corporations in the Colony of Virginia Held at Richmond town, in the county of Henrico on Monday the 17th of July, 1775." The work consists of the minutes of the Third Virginia Convention, which took place between July 17 and August 26, 1775. The copy which Nebenzahl has given to William and Mary has special significance because it belonged to George Wythe, the first professor of law at the College and signer of the Declaration of Independence.

forward to the campaign, Gil pledged to work with local governments and legislators from all parties "for the betterment of all of our citizens." Good luck, Gil! Many cheers to Ed Jones for the wonderful job he is doing coaching the William and Mary baseball team. For the first time since 1971, the Indians have a winning season, going 24-14. This led to winning the ECAC South Tournament and earned the team a first-ever berth in the NCAA tourney. Ed was formerly assistant dean of admissions at the College from 1961-1964 and the following year took over as director of intramurals, a job he headed for 15 years. Congratulations, Ed, on a job well done!

Word from the Gamma Phi Beta summer newsletter is that Jo Kline Caylor, owner of her own secretarial service, works as a free lance secretary. She's also involved in amateur theatre, performs with the Winnetka Community Theatre, teaches tap dancing to adults, and is a member of the local woman's club. Jo and her husband Eugene have two children and live at 857 Ash St., Winnetka, IL, 60093.

All's well here in the Philly area after a miserably hot and humid summer. Now with September approaching rapidly there's a hint of fall in the air. I'm still kept reasonably busy selling real estate, though rising interest rates are turning my hair gray very quickly! Our "baby," Ken, begins his senior year at Southern Methodist University in Dallas this fall and husband Jim is thrilled that tuition bills are finally almost over! Young Jim, 24, is now working in the Philadelphia area, and Anne, 22, is a manager at Bloomingdale's in New York. Those of you in the Big Apple, please stop in and see her in the mens' cosmetic department. She needs every penny she can get to afford the big city life!

Please write, you all, so that I'll have lots of news for the next column. It was great seeing so many of you at our 25th Reunion last fall. It's amazing how NONE of us had changed, isn't it?

Hi folks! As the school year gets underway, several classmates report that they have children attending the College this year. Beth Mossey Pendleton's son, Edmund, and R. J. Coyle, son of Dick Coyle and Sue '63 entered this fall. Mary Frances Brown Anderson's daughter, Maribeth, is a sophomore.

Peg Grim Davis writes that she is back teaching junior English at Madison County high school. Even though the curriculum, work load and other things have changed, she still finds our young people to be wonderful!!

From the Adirondacks comes an invitation to visit from Dave Comyges, who is a physical education instructor and swim team coach in Au Sable Forks, N.Y.

Julie Kneen Brown, who holds a master's degree in Library Science from Catholic University, is a leasing agent with Leggat McCall and Werner, a commercial real estate agency. Julie, husband Nicholas and two daughters live in Wayland, MA.

In May of this year, K. Dane Brooksher was named by Peat Marwick, the international professional accounting firm, as regional vice chairman in charge of the Southeast region. Dane has been with Peat Marwick since 1961 and was elected a partner in 1969. Before this appointment, he was in charge of the Firm's Human Resources Department in New York City.

I know that there are many people out there that just can't wait to write to me!

I hope all of you had a fantastic summer and will take the time with fall's slowdown to let me know what you've been doing.

J. J. Hansbrough was transferred to Stuttgart, Germany this summer. He had been chief of Research Coordination for the Air Force Electronic Warfare Center in San Antonio, Texas. He received his M. A. degree in education from Chapman College in 1981, is married, has two children and is now a Lt. Col. in the Air Force.

Bob Owen has been elected president of the Philadelphia chapter of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters for the 1983-84 year (the 3rd largest chapter out of 288 in the country). Bob is president of Brokers Diversified Services, Ltd., an affiliate of the Karr-Barth Agency of The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. Bob, wife Peggy, and their three children, Emily Jane, Danielle Joy, and Lucas Robert, live in Berwyn, Pa., where Bob is president of the Conestoga Woodlea civic association.

Cis Roton Perrow is teaching history at the Grants Campus of New Mexico State University. About two years ago, she moved to Bluewater Canyon (18 mi. west of Grants) with husband Mike and two daughters, 8 and 11. They have eight acres on the side of a mesa and love it! The girls saved enough money to buy themselves horses — an Appaloosa mare and a shetland pony.

Hollace Casey Koman writes from San Diego, CA, where she is assistant conductor for the San Diego Civic Light Opera Association, which presents four musicals each summer that have audiences between 20,000 and 40,000 people. She conducted some performances of "Hello Dolly!" and "Annie" in August and conducts "Mikado" for the San Diego Gilbert & Sullivan Company (of which she is a founding member) in the fall.

The most distant news this issue comes from Janet Collins MacClarence in Anchorage, Ak. After ten years in St. Louis, she took a job as a mental health clinician with the Anchorage Community Mental Health Center. Along with husband Bill, who works for the Alaska State Department of Environmental Conservation, and sons John and Bryan, they find Alaska beautiful and exciting and are happy about the adventurous move.

Marjorie Arnold has left academia for Madison Avenue — as an account executive for Benton & Bowles advertising agency. She loves it! She is still living in New Brunswick, N. J., and would enjoy hearing from any alumni in the New York area.

Pete Marston, as director of group life and health insurance operations for The Hartford Insurance Group, was elected as one of three vice presidents in July. Pete had previously been vice president, group insurance, with Metropolitan Life. He lives in Simsbury, Ct.

Ellen Blevins Pickels writes that she left teaching and Williamsburg in 1981, moved to Richmond, remarried, and has become a media specialist at St. Mary's Hospital. Her primary involvement is in instructional TV (closed circuit) for patients and staff and producing instructional media for the education department. Her husband, Herb, is a systems analyst for the state of Virginia.

Brenda Childress Porter remarried last December and is living in Greensboro with husband Gene, son Scott and daughter Katie.

Bob Steidtmann sends news from Atlanta, where his firm, Robinson-Humphrey Co., a member of the New York Stock exchange, was acquired last year as a wholly owned subsidiary of American Express. Bob's wife, Carol (U. of Kentucky, '69), is still active in charitable fundraising for the Egleston Childrens Hospital. Together with daughters Meredith (9) and Amanda (4), they enjoy summer vacations in Europe and Aspen during the winter.

Linda Wales Adams is in Moscow, Idaho, where her husband, Douglas, teaches linguistics at the U. of Idaho. They have two sons, Allen (4½) and Michael (2). Linda worked for the Henry County (Va.) Department of Social and Health Services for three years after graduation, then spent 6½ years with Seattle's Department of Social and Health Services.

Please let me hear from you before my next column deadline: November 4th. Or, fill me in via phone: 216/543-8770.

What happened to all those summer letters you promised me? I think I got a grand total of TWO since April!! With Homecoming coming up, PLEASE write me your news, especially if you won't be there to share the festivities.

Congratulations to Susan Blount Bowman on her election as president of the student body of the School of Theology, University of the South in Sewanee, Tenn. Susan formerly worked for the city of Petersburg in administration before she entered the seminary. Susan has an 11 year old son, Scott. Frances Herring Reynolds is a staff attorney for the Virginia Supreme Court and has lived in Richmond for a little over two years.

Chandler Joyner was admitted to the partnership of Price Waterhouse, a firm of independent accountants, this summer. Chandler lives in Virginia Beach and has a daughter, Courtney, who is a freshman at the College this year. Paul Hildebrand is director of the Shenandoah Valley Playwrights Retreat. This summer workshop program for professionally oriented playwrights is in its sixth year. It assists writers in the writing of plays and provides a unique opportunity for people in the Shenandoah Valley to see and participate in professional theatre work.

Linda Wyrick Winkle reports that she received her Ph.D. in reading education from the University of Mississippi in May, 1982 where her husband, John, is an associate professor of political science. Linda now operates a private reading clinic in Oxford, Mississippi and is a reading consultant to the Ole Miss Athletic Department (!!). Sons Johnny, 9, and Jason, 6, keep her busy with sports, art and scouts. Dan Salisbury has changed jobs after 12 years in the Secretary of the Interior's Budget Office. He is now with the National Park Service as assistant director, Financial and Data Systems.

Jane Spence Catterton, her husband and two children moved to Chattanooga this summer. Jane is a physician in a program evaluating developmental delayed children; her husband is the co-director of the Erlanger neonatal intensive care unit.

Ed Weisberg writes that he is still practicing dentistry at Wards Corner in Norfolk. He and Janis have two lovely daughters, Lisa, 13, and Amie, 5. Richard O'Neil, an associate professor of philosophy at Emory & Henry College, was awarded a fellowship for summer study and research at the University of Kentucky Appalachian Center. Richard will focus his research on theories of justice which are applicable to the distribution of health care. In other words, he will look into how the medical community makes decisions on who will receive certain forms of health care which are so expensive and technical so as not to be readily available to all who are in need. Isn't that a topic we frequently see brought up on the evening news or in the newspaper? Should have been an interesting summer of study!

Alice Carlton reports that she is working as the chief clinical social worker for the psychiatric unit of Alamance Memorial Hospital in Burlington, NC. Alice lives in nearby Chapel Hill in a house with a black labrador retriever named "Dominique." This fall Alice is marrying Ed King who works for the Church World Service in Durham. Congratulations! Robert Reed wrote the College that he, his wife and three children are all very content. "Our lives are peaceful and days are sunny and fair." What a happy thought!

Do you live anywhere close to 60 miles north of Sacramento, CA? If so Margaret Hawkins Brown would like to hear from you and perhaps get together. Margaret and her husband are extremely busy with three clothing stores and three boys, ages 17, 15, and 19 months. "Getting kids ready for college and preparing for preschool at the same time is a real experience, she reports. Reed Hunt, who is an associate professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina, reports he "is quite content now that sons Reed and Brandon are gradually acquiring southern accents." Reed's wife, Beth Bromley ('68), has just earned her MBA and is working with Burlington Industries.

My parents in Richmond keep sending me clippings on people in our class. One newspaper article back in June reported on Jim Vergara running in the Democratic primary in Hopewell, VA for a seat in the Virginia House of Representatives. Jim is an attorney and a Hopewell City Councilman. I later learned that Jim lost the primary but that it was a good race. A second newspaper article I got was on Coleman Sheehy who is a data processing auditor for Robertshaw Controls in Richmond. Coleman collects original animation art, the hand-painted acetate and backgrounds that actually were used in the filming of animated cartoons and features. He also collects pencil drawings, story boards and other original artwork. It was a nice feature article on Coleman and his hobby.

Having received his Ph.D. in English from the University of Wisconsin in 1979, Jim Rhem is working as a freelance writer. He just received an award from the Milwaukee Press Club for best single feature story written this year for an article about Frank Lloyd Wright's school of architecture near Spring Green. This summer Jim received a post-doc fellowship from the Clark Library at UCLA to study music and drama in the 18th century. Bobbi has finished six years of teaching 5th and 6th graders. This summer she worked on a book sponsored by the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee Center for Latin America on how to teach Latin America in the middle school.

Congratulations to Carol Hamerson Garrard on the birth of her second daughter, Alison Veronica, last Drked on a eember. Carol was back at the College recently to teach a seminar for the staff called "Management Skills for Women." She and her husband visited India this summer as guests of the Indian Government! Carol says that she finds "the two babies, my stepson, the career, and being a wife a rich, full life — sometimes at 3 a.m. a bit too rich and full I confess!"

The Chi O newsletter put together sometime between Christmas and whenever it arrives (June this year) brought some news to pass along. Susu Williams Villalosa changed jobs last summer and is now handling worker's comp cases for NJ Manufacturers Insurance. She and Ray (Law '78) now have a son and a daughter. Judy Gordon Mentlik hasn't had time for much glass work but did do a couple of commissioned stained glass windows this year. Gayle Harper Mendelher lives in California and works part-time at Place for Parents, where her one year old son can go to work with her.

HARTFORD ELECTS MARSTON AS VICE PRESIDENT

The Hartford Insurance Group has announced the election of Harold W. "Pete" Marston Jr. of Simsbury, Conn., as vice president. Marston is director, group life and health insurance operations. He joined The Hartford earlier this year from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. where he was vice president, group insurance. He also held sales and management positions in group life, health and pensions with Aetna Life & Casualty.

HEARN NAMED WAKE FOREST PRESIDENT

Dr. Thomas K. Hearn, Jr., a popular member of the William and Mary faculty from 1965 to 1974, will be inaugurated as president of Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, N.C., on Nov. 4. Dr. Hearn, who taught in the Department of Philosophy at the College, received the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award in 1970. He left William and Mary to join the faculty at the University of Alabama where he became dean of the humanities division and later vice president for academic affairs.

WEIDNER '83 SIGNS WITH HOLLAND TEAM

Former William and Mary basketball standout Brant Weidner '83 has signed a contract to play in Holland. The 6-9, 230 lb., product of Allentown, Pa., has accepted a contract with Netherlands Champion, Nashua, a team in Dsnbosch, Holland, considered one of the better European clubs. Weidner was a fourth round draft choice of the San Antonio Spurs of the National Basketball Association and is expected to have a future with the Spurs after gaining playing experience in Europe.

Ginger Graef Smith worked for H&R Block during tax season plus working in her husband's law office, raising two little girls and rebuilding a sailboat! Lydia Bulynko Jeseule relaxed in England last fall. Toni Biordi is back with A T & T after spending a year helping to set up American Bell. She vacationed in Bermuda last spring.

Ann Nelms is a sales rep for NBI and was in Paris and Madrid this spring. This is certainly the year for European travel! Linda Freeman Holmes graduated from law school this spring. Wynne Whitehurst is living in Richmond now and still traveling a lot to arts and crafts shows where she and Milt sell ducks.

My consulting business is off and running as I have my first client. I am doing some editing on data processing material. . .not extremely interesting but a start at least!

Steve Harvith says you can learn a lot about psychology on the ski slopes, so he's made a special study of what madness leads people to strap boards on their feet and careen down sheer mountains of ice. He prowled the lift lines, went undercover at interminable group lessons, and did in-depth research at smoky, apres-ski haunts. . . all in the name of science, mind you. Steve has a year to go in his quest for a PhD in developmental psychology at S. U. N. Y.-Buffalo. Ski-ing is to Harvithian psychology what rats are to Skinner. Steve teaches some undergrad courses on the side, and he's careful to dole out a generous helping of "A's", a reaction (he says) to the tough grading at the College. He's also trying to get a "psychological-comedy" play he has written produced.

Amy Jarmon expects to earn her PhD in Education from the College this year. She's now Associate Dean of Students. Amy has a Masters from Boston University. David Dryden is working as a supply management specialist with the Directorate of Commissary Operations and has been assigned to the Army Troop Agency in Fort Lee, Va.

Mark Shriver represented the College at the inauguration of the new President of the Morehouse School of Medicine in Atlanta. Mary Minnick filled the same role at the installation of the new president of Westminster College in Pennsylvania.

To show you how deep I have to reach, here are some tidbits from our class reunion two years ago!

Reggie Lewis is a mechanical contractor specializing in heating and air conditioning. Glen Conrad is a U.S. Magistrate in Roanoke. Gary Stage is a lawyer in Lexington, KY. Wife Nancy Trent Stage is a C. P. A. Liz Tarpley pokes into gaping mouths. She graduated from dental school at MCV. Suzanne Barnett graduated from W&L law school and was clerking for a bankruptcy judge in Roanoke.

Where are they now?: Scott Davis, Anna Beth Cooper, Elizabeth Faust, Ellen Wagner, Jim Callear, Phyllis Hewitt, Suzanne Hutchins, Patricia Turner, Diane Stahl, Karen Van Houten, and Richard Mohs.

Slim pickings this month, gang. Take some time to drop me a line. Better yet, inform on someone else.

Well the long hot summer of 1983 may soon be a thing of the past and none too soon. Even here at the foot of the Berkshires, it has been too hot and dry as evidenced by Claire's daily trip to the wading pool or nearby lake and Chris's two week stint at YMCA camp. Aside from work and the grocery stores, Ann Marie and I venture out only after sundown. Occasional trips to New Jersey proved to be even worse as far as heat and humidity.

It has been 10 years since last we frolicked in the Sunken Gardens and avoided the Commons like a plague. David Knight please be advised that Fred and Mabel Noll in Garden City South, N. Y., would like to know that you are alive and well, wherever you are. Steve Noll, '74 and wife Beverly stopped by after a canoeing trip in upper NY State and are now back in Gainesville where Steve will be completing his thesis while on a fellowship and Beverly will return to teaching. H. Max Lummis, III, has been a partner in the St. Louis, Mo., audit Department of Peat Marwick, Mitchel & Co. Max has been senior partner since 1979 and has been with the firm since 1973. Connie, Julie-9, Catherine-7 and Max-6 mos. live with dad in Manchester, West St. Louis County.

Kathleen Thomison Kimsey is playing homemaker full time with first child, Claire Anna (10 mos.). Having married a Yale architect, Ray Kimsey, in 1976. Susan Mincks O'Brien is on her way to Palo Alto, Ca., no doubt to work on a top secret government project. Thomas Brady, resident Viticulturist at Meredyth Vineyards, Middlebury, Va., has ascended to the editorship for the Vinifera Wine Growers Journal. Chalmer Lee Pritchard, Jr., is teaching PE and coaching basketball at Richard Bland College in Petersburg, Va., since graduation. Kevin M. McGrath has just finished his orthodontic residency at MCV and is planning to specialize in Orthodontics for adults and children in Fairfax, Va. His wife Kathy, also a dentist and graduate of MCV, has been holding down the fort in Fairfax while Kevin commuted to Richmond to complete his residency.

Michael E. Pollock has just finished editing a book on the genealogy of the descendants of John Adams and our family tree slueeth is still operating out of Arlington, Va. Willie Sordill has released his second album on Folkways Records, entitled "Silent Highways"; number one was titled "Please Tip Your Waitress." Willie has been in Cambridge, Ma. (38 Jay St. 02139) for the last six years after a stint as a school teacher. He writes that Dick Friberger, ex grappler, and wife Diane are in N. J. where Dick is holding down a "Piece of the Rock" aka working for the Pru. Lewis H. Curd, Jr., was recently appointed to the medical staff with privileges in Pediatrics at Williamsburg Community Hospital. Lewis received his MS from ODU and his MD from Eastern Va. Medical School with his internship and residency at MCV.

Patricia Barry Roush is currently living at 93 Great Plain Rd., Danbury, Ct. 06810 and working as a Sr. Applications Chemist at Perkin-Elmer Corp. She and daughter, Jennifer, almost 9, have lived there since this past June. Patsy got her PhD from U. Cal. - Davis in 1977, worked in Princeton, N. J., for Western Electric until 1981 when she relocated to Terre Haute, Ind., and worked as a research chemist for I. M. C. She's planning to go to our tenth reunion if we can manage to get her the correct information about it. Steve Snyder, his wife Beverly and Pete Dowd and his wife Kathy and daughter Erin recently plied the waters of the W.Va. portion of the Potomac River over the July 4th weekend. Steve and Beverly are expecting a new addition to the family this fall.

Margaret Ann (Dahlman) Martin and Ron Martin '74, currently in El Paso, Texas, are battling the heat of the desert and bleak, snowy winters. They took a brief respite in Va. this past June to visit friends and family. Margaret Ann is now a certified Childbirth Educator which took 3½ years to attain (not counting her two offspring, Andrew and Sarah). Ron is working for Wrangler-Blue Bell, has acquired a pair of cowboy boots and is learning Spanish — we'll Americanize him yet. He has found an American substitute for Whatneys in Coor's Killians Irish Red. They are going to try to make it east for Ron's tenth reunion in 1984. Donna Bailey-Miles is still teaching in Richmond, Va., and enjoys summers off even more now that daughter Ellen, 1, is old enough to remember who she is. Eileen St. Denis Werber is Vice President for training and development for Va. National Bank which when it merges with First & Merchants Bank will increase her duties and may mean a promotion.

That about does it for this edition of the Fractured Follies. Homecoming and the Tenth Reunion will fast be upon us. Mark the weekend of October 21-23 on your calendars to be there or be square. Details were in the June Alumni Gazette as to the hospitality location, the Tribe's football foe and the registration form for activities, etc. Do not wait to make reservations otherwise you may find yourself staying in Ashland, Va.

Be good and get the kids and yourselves back to school in one piece. See you in October.

Mrs. David C. Larson
(Linda Cool)
5280 Crestview Heights Drive
Bettendorf, Iowa 52722

Greetings, all. I hope this finds you happily basking in some cool air after our record breaking summer. Iowa was not the place to be for big, old, pregnant ladies this summer, but I'm sure many of you can empathize. By the time this is printed, Baby Larson No. 3 will have joined our wildly increasing family, and I won't have time to complain about the weather. On to your news!

Craig Penner wrote a letter which was unfortunately omitted from the last newsletter. This, at least, brings us up to the recent past. Craig is living in Santa Barbara after moving there five years ago to attend graduate school in counseling psychology. He fell in love with the area and can't imagine ever leaving. He has a California State license as a Marriage, Family, and Child Counselor and works as a director/therapist of an outpatient alcohol counseling agency. Craig is building a private practice on the side and is still single. As an interesting tidbit, he says the divorce rate is nearly 60% in Southern California. Craig would love to hear from anyone in the vicinity. Write to me for his address.

Another California transplant, Debbie Stone, wrote to say that she's still in Santa Monica, although not necessarily for good. She's working part-time doing some word processing, but rumor has it she's been discovered in Hollywood and is working on her first major motion picture to be released soon.

Closer to home, Dottie McKenzie wrote that she's living in Norfolk and has been married to Guy Clark since '77 when they both were graduate students at O. D. U. Guy is a biologist, and Dottie has an M.S. in oceanography. She's working at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard as the "instrument specialist" in radiological control. She and Guy have been renovating an old house in Norfolk for five years and share it with a dog, four cats, lots of fish and the most recent addition, Rachael Elizabeth, born August 24, 1982. Dottie would love to hear from any old roommates and friends and asked me to include her address. 533 N.Y. Ave., Norfolk, 23508.

Kim Powell Mincks and her husband, Jeff are also becoming authorities on renovating old houses. Theirs is in Colonial Heights where they moved in May '80 when Jeff became the Assistant County Attorney for Chesterfield County. They now have three daughters, Amanda, 5, Margaret, 3, and Corinne, 1½, all born in November, incidentally. Kim speculates that it may have something to do with her birthday being nine months earlier. The Mincks keep busy singing and are both soloists for their church. Reportedly, the girls are standing in line to fill their shoes at a moment's notice. Kim also is training to be a Lamaze Childbirth educator.

And while we're still on the subject of old houses, Crystel Orndoff Kurtzberg and her husband, Seth, have moved into one at 213-05 334th Rd., Bayside, NY, and would welcome visitors. Seth is now working out of his father's office supply store selling computers and writing programs. Crystel has temporarily left library work due to the arrival in May of their first child, David Ward.

Now on to some short notes I received through the Alumni Office. Diane Doyle has accepted a position as Senior Member of the Technical Staff at Systems and Applied Sciences Corp. Steve Tamberrino is currently working at INCO, Inc. as the manager of a group of systems programmers.

Richard Lampman and Martha Kress Lampman are living in Urbana, IL where Richard is pursuing his doctorate in Entomology, and Marty is evening shift supervisor at a local hospital laboratory. Four year old Benjamin keeps them busy as will their new addition who was due in August.

Susan Epps taught for two years in Sydney, Australia and a year in Atlanta, then completed graduate work at the University of Minnesota. She's presently an Assistant Professor of Psychology at Iowa State University. (For those of you who don't know, that's Cyclone country. I bet she hates to hear me talk about the Hawkeyes!)

Cindi Lewis, since graduating from law school in '78, has been living in Falls Church and practicing law with the D. C. firm of Beveridge and Diamond, P. C. Her husband, Michael Gassman, is also an attorney in Washington.

Kay Ferguson says she almost feels grown up. This year she turned thirty, bought her first house, and had her first baby in July.

Bee Cumby Hegyi and Hugh Hegyi should by this time have delivered child No. 2 and left Massachusetts to take jobs on the Navajo reservation at Ft. Defiance, Arizona.

Steve Neal has been living in New Orleans for six years, the last three of which he's spent working as a stockbroker. He'd love to hear from anyone in the area.

Sally Mounts has just completed a Master's Degree in Journalism at West Virginia University.

Richard Baker received a Ph.D. in Bio-Chem from Penn State in 1980. He spent a year of post doctorate work at the University of Munich, West Germany and is presently doing post doctorate work at the University of Washington, Seattle.

Kathy Chambers Olsen and husband Dan are living in Holden, MA. Dan is on fulltime staff with Young Life, a nondenominational Christian outreach program for high school students. Kathy was actively involved with

DR. ALBION TAYLOR DIES

Dr. Albion Guilford Taylor, chancellor professor of economics emeritus at William and Mary, died in August at the age of 97 at his home in Colorado Springs, Colo. Dr. Taylor, who started teaching when he was 17 and retired at the age of 74, taught at William and Mary from 1927 to 1958, except for four years during World War II. He was assistant dean of the Marshall Wythe School of Government and Leadership from 1935 to 1943 and wrote five books in the field of economics.

A. P. WAGENER ARTICLE

The Alumni Gazette is preparing a Great Professors article on former William and Mary professor A. P. Wagener who taught ancient languages at the College from 1929 to 1960. If any Gazette readers have memories about Dr. Wagener that they would like to share with other alumni, please send them to the Publications Office, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

RICHARD K. LYON '55 WINS NATIONAL SCIENCE AWARD

Dr. Richard K. Lyon of Pittstown, N.J., a researcher at Exxon Research and Engineering Company, Linden, N.J., is 1984 winner of the American Chemical Society's Award in the Chemistry of Contemporary Technological Problems. The $5,000 award, sponsored by Mobay Chemical Corporation, will be presented at the Society's 187th national meeting next April in St. Louis. Dr. Lyon is being honored for his work in chemical reactions which led to a very successful method of controlling nitric oxide emissions from boilers and furnaces.

Young Life as a volunteer after graduation and continues to work closely with him in this ministry.

Cynthia Furlong Reynolds has left her job as editor of the Princeton Weekly Bulletin to accompany her husband, Mark, who works for Bristol-Myers, to Florida. She has been named editor of the alumni magazine at the University of Tampa. This is a new monthly publication which will circulate among approximately 25,000 alumni and friends of the University.

And that about wraps up the news that found its way to Iowa this summer. Dave and I won't be able to get to Homecoming this year, so you should each make it your solemn duty to fill me in. Our next deadline is November 4th, and that gives you just enough time to drop it in the mail. Have a great fall!

Thanks to our classmates the list of recruits for the Class of 2005 continues to expand. Karen Murphy Haase and husband, Bill, are the proud parents of Kristen Lynn born June 26, 1983. They are living in Vienna, Va.

From Lincroft, N.J., Paul and Diana Cullum welcomed their first child, Michelle Ann, on April 18, 1983. They both still work for Prudential Property & Casualty, where they are each managers in the comptroller's department.

Nancy Esper Gessner and husband, Bob, had their second child, Katherine Elizabeth, on April 28, 1983. Emily Michele was born May 11, 1983 to John and Mary Sue Hogan Sharp. Cathy Wilson LaMon just had a baby girl, Virginia Wilson, on August 3, 1983.

Now living in Mission Viejo, Cal., Jennifer Davison Hoppel gave birth to a girl, Rebekah Kara, on October 12, 1982. Husband, Steve, is a painter and paperhanger. After a career in banking, Jennifer has settled into her new occupation of full-time "Mom."

Carolyn Testa Rye and husband, Ken, moved into a new home in January in Cedar Grove. Carolyn received her M. B. A. in June and is still with Prudential. Betsy Johnson married Don Garber ('74) in April in the Wren Chapel. Betsy works for the Virginia Department of Corrections.

After receiving her M.B.A. from the University of Virginia, Sue Wasilewski moved to Dallas, TX. Chris and Debbie Kelly Davis had a baby girl in January.

Karen Fox received her law degree and an M. B. A. from the University of North Carolina May 15, 1983. She graduated with highest honors and was a member of the Board of Editors of the North Carolina Law Review. She plans to join Drinker, Biddle & Reath as an associate in Philadelphia, Pa.

Deborah Bowman has recently completed her first year as associate art director of East West Journal, an international magazine of health and natural living. She also has a graphics business and markets her paintings in the Boston area.

Living in Toledo, Ohio, Stephen Sullivan is employed by Conrail as supervisor of operating rules and procedures. He has one daughter, Colleen Gwynn, age 4. Karen Sue Staha received her masters of education in special education in May from the University of Virginia. She left the end of July for Costa Rica with the Peace Corps for a two year term. She will be a learning disabilities resource teacher and will be responsible for teacher training.

Karen Stephan married Cory Young on January 8, 1983. She is still working for a patent law firm in Washington, D.C. Susan Taylor Barry and her husband Reb moved from Virginia Beach to San Diego, Cal. last November. They are expecting their first baby in December.

For the past several years, Zahra Cox has been with the Department of State. She studied Arabic at the Foreign Service Institute for a year before being transferred to the Tunis office. This summer she joined the American Embassy in Cairo, Egypt.

Linda Rishton Vorhis was named to Outstanding Young Women of America, 1982. She served as a Peace Corps volunteer in Korea for two-and-a-half years. In the course of her work, she and another volunteer found a child requiring a heart operation. Their project to raise money for the operation caused such publicity, the Korean government has now passed legislation to fund operations for all future cases. Linda returned home after a trip across Russia on the Trans-Siberia Railway. She is now working in the Peace Corps office in Washington, D.C.

After earning an L. L. M. in taxation from New York University, Diane Newson Thompson moved to Portsmouth, Va. where she is an associate with the law firm of Kaufman & Canoles. Her husband, Gerry Thompson ('76), is an assistant commonwealth's attorney for the City of Portsmouth.

Noli Mowry Decker began teaching German at Colgate University this fall. William Dunlevy and his wife recently purchased a home in southern California. In Mesa, Az., Bob Corso represents Henry Grethel/John Henry Menswear. Derry Poulos also lives in Arizona at Scottsdale with his wife of last year, Leann. He is a representative of Beechman Pharmaceuticals.

After earning a master of public health degree in epidemiology from the University of Michigan, Richard Danila is working on a Ph.D. in epidemiology at the University of Minnesota. Preston Junkin and his wife, Loretta Bertamini, are living in Vienna, Va. and are expecting their first child.

Lisa Bolanovich is working in commercial loan administration at Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh. She was married in September to Ray Wroblewski. Robert Stallings is completing his second year of a pathology residency at the University of Virginia Medical Center.

I ran into Eunice Bayse Cannon and her husband, John, at a class last month. She has been teaching while John is a plant engineer with James River Paper Co. They live on the southside of Richmond.

Debbie Rennolds Taggart and her husband, Rip, have moved to Houston where Rip is working for I. B. M. Jim Lett received his Ph.D. in anthropology from the University of Florida in the spring.

From Minneapolis, Mn., Wayne Studer writes that he is in the final stages of his doctoral work in American Studies at the University of Minnesota. He is also holding down a full-time job as a courseware editor for the Minnesota Educational Computing Consortium. He wants to hear from some of the inhabitants of the Yates "Animal Farm."

Susan Acha married James N. Reddish on April 13, 1983 in Baltimore, Md. Morgan Gray is presently assigned to the Academy of Health Sciences, Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tx. Morgan is a captain in the U. S. Army Chemical Corps, and is an instructor in technical and medical aspects of nuclear, biological and chemical warfare defense. Bruce Hathorne and Debra Mauller were married on August 18, 1982. They live in Galesville, Md. where Bruce is the minister at the United Methodist Church. Debra teaches third grade in Manassas, Va.

Anyone interested in organizing a William and Mary alumni chapter in New Jersey should contact Carolyn Testa Rye in Cedar Grove. Send me your news by October 20, 1983 for the December issue.

Will the class of '81 never slow down? Frankly, I think that seems to be asking the impossible. Everyone is moving forward in high gear, giving no indication of slowing down.

Several of our classmates have taken off for foreign parts of the world. For the past two years, Margaret Findlay has been teaching fourth graders in Houston, Texas, and seems to have enjoyed it "immensely." But now, restless for a new environment, she's taken off across the Atlantic for Milan, Italy where she accepted a teaching position (fourth and fifth graders) at The American School in Milan. She expects to be in Italy for the next 2-3 years and invites any William and Mary's to look her up if they're in the "neighborhood."

Robin Emery Rupp is also heading toward Europe — Germany to be exact. On June 4, 1983, Robin married Jeff Rupp ('79) at Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg. July 1, Robin and Jeff began a series of moves, in conjunction with Jeff's joining the U. S. Army JAG Corps as a criminal lawyer, that will put them in Germany by October for a period of three years.

And back on the Pacific, Craig Tenney recently returned from Bolivia where he spent a year as an agricultural missionary. On July 2, he was married in Bolivia to Rose-Marie Moreno, a "wonderful Bolivian girl" he met there. Craig and Rose-Marie have now returned to the U. S. to attend the U. of Maryland where Craig is pursuing a Master's Degree in Agricultural Economics.

But you certainly don't have to be on land to live a "dream life." After spending a year working for a public relations firm in D.C., Susan Helms "packed it in to do some 'adventuring.'" She ended up in Miami for what she thought would be a brief stay and met "the man of her dreams." They were married June 11 and now live aboard a 34' sailboat, currently docked in Melbourne, Florida. So far, they've cruised the Florida Keys and the Bahamas and now have their sails pointed toward a future Atlantic crossing. Susan says she's "living a dream life" and can't imagine becoming a "landlubber" again. Aboard their sailboat, Susan is working toward a career in writing and yacht design. She's been published twice now in a Florida statewide magazine and is anxiously awaiting the publication of her first national article in the October issue of Sail. And besides the cruising and writing, she's beginning a 3-4 year home-study course in naval architecture with the Yacht Institute of Maine and is also beginning her first scuba diving class. Sounds exciting!

Two years after graduation, many of our classmates have recently completed or are embarking upon their final year of graduate degree programs. And naturally there are also those who are returning to school after having "experienced the real world."

Last spring, Leslie Fritsche earned an MBA in Urban Affairs from the University of St. Louis and in June, Susan Jolley received an MA in English from the University of Delaware. Roma Huk has completed her first year in the PhD-track program in English Literature at the University of Notre Dame and has been granted a teaching assistantship for the fall.

Bill and Cheryl McCulla are in graduate study at Northwestern University in Evanston, Il. Bill received an MA in Political Science and is now pursuing a PhD in American History while Cheryl is in the 2nd year of the Ph.D. program in Classics. Brian Bradshaw and his fiancée, Susan Smith, are both in Medical School at MCV. Brian is in his 2nd year and Susan is in her 3rd year. They will be returning to William and Mary in November to be married in the Wren Chapel.

The Class of '81 also seems to have produced several Geology enthusiasts. Steve Mittwede (married to Dana Davidson of Bracebridge, Ontario on July 2) will complete his M.S. in Geology at the U. of South Carolina in December of this year. David Turner, having finished 2 years of geology studies, will also receive his Master's Degree in Geology from the University of Utah next year and Charlie Lutz is working on a doctorate in Geology from the University of Tennessee. Betsy Frick slipped in some geology studies too while travelling the West. She took geology courses in Boulder, CO, last spring and in Alaska last summer. Now Betsy is settling down in Reno, NV, for a two year Master's program in Hydrology. She says she loves living in the West and has recently taken up the exciting sports of whitewater rafting and kayaking.

And even those hardcore law students have been known to interrupt their studies for the "finer" things in life. Before embarking upon his last year of law school at UVA, John Fessenden took a break from the books and got married. John married Kali Brees, another UVA grad student on May 29 in Annandale, VA. William and Mary members of the wedding party included Bob Wagner, Mike Garrett, Charlie Lutz, Jerry Evans ('80) and Mike Karl ('82). John and Kali spent the summer in Columbus, Ohio where John served an internship with a Columbia law firm. Now the Fessendens have returned to UVA to complete their final year of graduate studies.

Mike Garrett, after spending the summer working with a law firm in Lynchburg, VA, is also entering his final year of law school at Marshall Wythe. In addition to interning, Mike also spent his summer representing Marshall Wythe in National Moot Court Competition at various law schools throughout the East. At Dickinson School of Law, Greg Thomas, now entering his third year, has been elected to membership on the Dickinson Law Review, the school's scholarly publication. The Dickinson Law Review is one of the oldest law school publications in the country with membership based on demonstrated writing ability and academic performance. Congratulations Greg! Congratulations are also in order for Sharon Daigle. Sharon, entering her 2nd year of law school at Tulane University this fall, was selected for inclusion in the 1982 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America. Sharon spent, as she reports, "the best summer of her life travelling all over Europe and working as an intern in the Office of the Advocate General in Mannheim, Germany."

Michael Clem is returning to school this fall to pursue a graduate degree in journalism. Michael had been working as a Press Assistant at Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts in D.C. and as a Director of Exhibitor Services with Galaxy Conferences, a computerized registration and data analysis firm.

Sandy Seidel is also heading back to the books this year. After 21 months of working at Stanford University where she became a R. PSG. T. (Registered Polysomnographic Technologist), Sandy is returning to Virginia to pursue an MS in Biomedical Engineering from UVA.

Carol Binzer recently earned her MSED in College Student Development at Alfred

RICHARD PROSL '59
NAMED CHIEF READER

Richard C. Prosl '59, associate professor of mathematics and computer science at William and Mary, has been named to a four-year term as Chief Reader in Mathematics for the Advancement Placement Mathematics Program of the College Board. The AP program is implemented by the Educational Testing Services. Prosl will head a group of 150 readers who meet each June at Trenton State University to grade over 34,000 examinations.

University and has taken a job as Assistant Director for the Office of Residential & Judicial Affairs at Vanderbilt University. Carol should keep busy coordinating an area of 700 freshmen men and women. Yukiko Yamashita Leonard recently completed studies in nursing at Catholic University of America and is now working at Fairfax Hospital. And Paul Shannon, after earning a Master's Degree in Journalism last December from the University of Missouri, is working as a reporter for the Miami Herald.

Lynn Pasteris recently started a new job as a salesperson for a printing company in Pittsburgh, having "retired" as a singing telegram messenger. In her spare time, Lynn is continuing to perform in the theater, most recently with Pittsburgh's City Theater Company. David Atchison has also been spending his spare time performing in the St. Mary's College Choir and Dance Company in his "off hours." Now David has moved to Bethesda, MD to a new job as a Computer Scientist at the David Taylor Research and Development Center and is searching for something "creative" to do in his spare time.

Cynthia Reid is enjoying life aboard her 40' houseboat and is also trying to improve her skills in computer graphics. Beth Scott has also recently moved to the D. C. area but she, at last report, was living on dry land. Beth's move is in conjunction with her opening a sales office on the East Coast for Escamate, for which Beth is a Regional Sales Manager.

Charles Davis is working in Richmond for the Reynolds Metals Richmond Foil Plant and was recently promoted to Assistant Cost Accountant for the plant. Robert Allen, Jr. and his wife Ellen Hopper Allen recently moved to Boston where Ellen is a Loan Officer Trainee with the Bank of Boston.

With home base in Washington, D.C., Rob Olson is making a name for himself on the soccer field. Last year Rob played for the Georgia Generals of the American Soccer League. The team unfortunately folded after one season of play, yet that season was enough to allow Rob to develop himself as a professional player. In February of this year, Rob went to Tampa Bay to tryout for Team America and he made the team; the only player from the American Soccer League roster on America's Team. Now with Team America, a Washington, D.C. based national team in training, Rob will compete in the NASL as it prepares for World Cup Competition. Good Luck Rob!

The "young marrieds" of the Class of '81 are still all doing well too — juggling marriages, careers and families. Steve and Janice Scussel Seely are definitely living active lives in St. Louis. Steve is beginning his final year of law school at Washington University in St. Louis. He spent the summer interning in the legal department of McDonnell-Douglass. Janice is working for Ozark Airlines and says it's "a job made in heaven." She was recently promoted to Manager of Special Marketing Projects and finds working for the airline "fabulous." In her "spare" time, Janice is also working on an MBA degree at Washington University.

Todd and Patti Faini Billett are living in Richmond. Todd is beginning his third year of Med School at MCV and Patti has recently moved to a new job as a Training Analyst at First & Merchants Bank. Gary (MS '82) and Gail Clifton Domaleski, married just a year ago, are living in Fredericksburg, VA where they recently bought their first home. Gail teaches biology at King George High School in King George County and both she and Gary are involved with the Rappahannock Civitans. Jeff McDonald was married in May to Tammara Brayton, a graduate of Richard Bland College and student of nursing at MCV. Jeff is an accountant for a firm in Richmond. Also married in May were Conrad Schwab and Mary Beth Hennessy. The Schwabs are living in Houston, TX where Conrad is attending Med School and Mary Beth is also going to grad school.

Connie Jordan Brantley, is enjoying married life and loves her work as a programmer with Group Orientations in D.C. Duncan (MED '81) and Lee Rhinehart Charlton are adjusting to life in Austin, TX where Duncan is a counselor for a local mental health agency and Lee is busy mothering — Ryan 2½ and his new brother Casey, 5 months. Betsy Tripician was married in April to Sperry Davis and is working at WTKR-TV (the CBS affiliate in Norfolk) as assistant business manager. And Gayle Montague was married in August to Rick Flynn ('79). Gayle enjoyed her summer before the wedding working as a summer associate with a large Wall Street law firm. Gayle and Rick spent their honeymoon in Greece.

And out here in Southern Calif. life is busier than ever. You will note that Bob and I have moved — again. The compromises that must be made in a dual-career marriage! We love the San Juan Capistrano area and are scouting the area as an ideal place to purchase some property next spring. Time to enjoy the area, however, seems to be extremely limited. Bob is working harder than ever, having recently been promoted to Sales Specialist with the Campbell Sales Co. And I'm busier than ever coordinating several advertising and promotional projects for Fluid Components, Inc. In our "spare" time, we've been playing a lot of tennis and I've recently enrolled in a Design Class that should be interesting and time consuming! Every once in a while we even make it down to the beach, only a mile away from where we live, to enjoy the famous Southern California sunshine and surf!

Thanks to everyone who contributed all the interesting information for this writing of the Class of '81 Class Notes. How about the rest of you busy classmates taking a couple minutes out of your busy schedules to jot a quick note as to your whereabouts and excitement-filled lives.

Have a great fall everyone. I'll be back with another report on your classmates in December.

Suddenly I've become the "working woman," having begun a career in the Bell System as a management trainee. Joining me in Philadelphia are Barbara Baffer and Helen Claybrook (both studying at the Paralegal Institute), Robin Manix at PNB, Rani Anne and April Hamel at the University of Pennsylvania, and more. Brad Dunkin visited his parents here before returning to work at the Alumni House. Yes, the Burg's attraction proved too strong.

Where has everyone else settled? As expected, half the class infiltrated Northern Virginia. In the D.C. area are roomies Michele Martin ("gunning" her way to the top of the National Rifle Association), and Beth Dodge (shopping in the stock market via Dean Witter). Patricia Trinler works for Riggs National Bank, Monica McManus at TRW, and Diana Browning at American Management Systems. The Bureau of Labor Statistics is certainly trying hard to improve the unemployment rate. At last count, Rob Bryant, LeAnn Pearce, and Diane Linne Von Berg are all working there. Also locating in NOVA are the following accountants: Mark Ford, Mike Henderson, Karen Kolecki, Patty Schmidt, and Mark Zavrel.

Jean Latu has followed the "Big 8" to California (where Diane Williams works for

FORMER PROFESSOR ESTABLISHES ENDOWED PROFESSORSHIP AT COLLEGE

A former William and Mary professor has made a cash gift of $200,000 to establish a permanently endowed professorship in the Department of Philosophy where he taught from 1936-47. Dr. Francis S. Haserot, 88, a native of Winter Park, Fla., made the gift in honor of former William and Mary presidents John Stewart Bryan and Alvin Duke Chandler '22 under whose administrations he served. Annual income from the endowment fund will qualify for matching funds from the state's Eminent Scholars Program and will supplement an existing faculty member's state salary base.

NEH AWARDS $47,300 TO EARLY AMERICAN HISTORY

The National Endowment for the Humanities has awarded $47,300 to the Institute of Early American History and Culture for fellowship programs during the 1983-85 biennium. An award of $21,200 has been made by the NEH for post-doctoral fellowships during the two-year period. In addition, $26,100 has been given for support of special senior fellowships for the 1984-85 academic year.

Finally, the accounting line concludes with Karen Adams in Baltimore, where the lighted Inner Harbor has also attracted Sue Lightner (at U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Company), Sally Franklin, and Ruth Ann Fuqua.

Many of our fellow classmates, brave souls, are already pursuing additional schooling. Med school students include our fantastic commencement chairwoman, Kathy Schwartz, at Vanderbilt, Rob Carpenter at UVA, Mike Kontos at MCV, and Phil Dawson and Thomas Wong both across the Canadian border. Future lawyers include Steve Keeler (U. of R.), Bob Haas (GW), Vicki Caldwell and Elizabeth Ferguson (UVA), and Mary Carson and Helen Cox (Marshall-Wythe). MBA candidates are Butch Huber (U. of Pittsburgh), Paul Markowski (Duke), and myself (Drexel, only on Saturday mornings). In addition, Caroline Watkins has enrolled in U. of Missouri's graduate program.

According to sports clippings received from the Alumni Office, Brant Weidner was selected by the San Antonio Spurs during the fourth round. Congratulations to Dana Hooper, as well, for her selection to the Brine-Women's Intercollegiate Lacrosse Coaches' Association All-American Second Team.

A different sort of congratulations are due for Patricia Flaherty, who married John Farrell. Tricia has been accepted into Columbia University's occupational therapy program. Wedding bells also rang for Cindy Goff and Steve Bretson on July 30. Classmates Kimberly Clarke and Tom Ball served as attendants. The newlyweds have since moved to Boulder, Colorado, where Steve is studying law.

While 700,000 telephone workers went on strike (yes, I crossed picket lines for three solid weeks — an experience my labor relations class never taught me), Steve Bisese managed to track down my Philly number. Both Steve and Kris Fillbach have headed for the University of Tennessee where they will perform head resident/area coordinator functions while seeking master degrees in student personnel. Steve also informed me that John Flanagan began work for International Paper.

My ink is running dry, so I'll sign off now. Don't forget the Young Guard Keg party hosted by the Society of the Alumni during Homecoming weekend. See 'ya there. Also, one more reminder. Class notes for our next turn in the Gazette should reach me by October 15th. Keep that mail coming.

Susan Acha, '77, and James N. Reddish, April 30, 1983.
Ann Carter Harrison, '77, and Mark Randall Pepper, July 30, 1983.
Susan Lyn Buzzell, '78, and Kelly Browning, June 11, 1983.
David Wayne Engel, '78, and Laura Marie Tuck, June 25, 1983.

In closing, let me express a special thanks to Rani Anne, Steve Bisese, Helen Claybrook, Carol McGuire, and Michele Martin for providing me with lists of the latest "Who's Where" for the Class of 1983.

Elizabeth Nelson Harrow, MA '49, writes that she retired from the public schools in Montgomery County, Md. in 1972 and is enjoying her retirement at Saluda, Va.

Alexander Brown, MA '51, is retired and enjoying life on James River Drive in Williamsburg. He has written 18 books and booklets and is an authority on the Chesapeake Bay and especially its steamboats, canals, and shipping. He is a former editor of American Neptune and a contributor to Samuel Eliot Morison's epic Naval History of World War II. Alec has worked at the Mariners' Museum and has been involved in programs at Christopher Newport College. He gave a collection of 2,000 books to the college for the Alexander Crosby Brown Nautical Collection.

Mary Spitzer Etter, MA '41, has had a second volume of her poems published. This book is called Celebrating Life. Mary is retired, after teaching 39 years, and lives at her home in Harrisonburg where she is involved in many civic and church activities.

Many thanks to those of you who have sent news about your activities. It would be much appreciated if others would send news to the Alumni Office or to your class reporter whose name and address head this column.

Chandler H. Joyner '69 has been admitted to the partnership of Price Waterhouse, a firm of independent accountants. Following graduation, Joyner joined Price Waterhouse in Washington, D.C. He transferred to the firm's Norfolk office in 1980. He and his wife, Sherrill, live in Virginia Beach, Virginia with their daughter, Courtney, who will enter her freshman year at William and Mary this September.

DONALDSON BOOK PUBLISHED

A biographical portrait on F. Scott Fitzgerald entitled "Fool For Love" by Scott Donaldson, professor of English at William and Mary, has been published by Congdon & Weed. Six years in preparation, the new book provides an entirely new approach to understanding a writer whose reputation has been soaring for a generation. Donaldson is also the author of "By Force of Will: The Life and Art of Ernest Hemingway," published in 1977.

DEATHS

WILLIAM STRANGE ADDISON, '14, of Eastville, Virginia, died July 17, 1983. A member of Kappa Alpha at William and Mary, he also attended Carnegie Tech. An Army veteran of World War I, he was a retired farmer and a member of Christ Episcopal Church. He is survived by his wife Kathleen.
 ANNE VICTORIA PARKER, '24 A.B., of Newport News, Virginia, died October 30, 1982. An English major, she continued her studies at William and Mary, earning her M. A. from the College in 1928. At the time of her death, she was retired, having taught school for 47 years.
 GEORGE MEADE TILSON, '26, of Pulaski, Virginia, died June 10, 1980, of a heart attack. He was a retired employee of the Radford Arsenal. He is survived by his wife Frances.

BLANCHE WOOD PIERCE (DIBBLE), '31, of Fairfax, Virginia, died July 11, 1980, of cancer. A housewife, she is survived by her husband Oliver.
 MILTON DUKE MANACHER, '32, of New York, New York, died of a stroke on October 24, 1982. A member of Pi Lambda Phi at William and Mary, he was employed in the field of insurance. Survivors include his wife Hannah.

 WILLIAM BELL BADGER, '33, of Augusta, Georgia, died March 17, 1975. He was chairman of the board of Howard Lumber Company, and was associated with Augusta Sash and Door Company and Universal Lumber Sales. He was a member of First Baptist Church of Augusta. Survivors include two daughters and a son.

EDWERTA BARBARA BEYER (BARBER), '34, of Bethesda, Maryland, died December 19, 1979. A member of Alpha Chi Omega at William and Mary, she was also active in the sorority's alumnae chapter. From 1947 until 1960, she was clerk to the County Board of Appeals for Montgomery County, Maryland; and she later served as administrative secretary to the public relations director for Printing Industries of America, Inc. She was married to Edward R. Barber. Survivors include a daughter.

CHRISTINE WARD HAILEY (ANDRESEN), '35 B.S., of Greenville, North Carolina, died November 14, 1981, of cancer. A housewife and a former teacher, she is survived by her husband Per Krogh, a son, and a daughter.

MARION ELIZABETH HOBBS (SMITH), '36 A.B., of Brookline, Massachusetts, died April 30, 1983. A member of Kappa Alpha Theta at William and Mary, she was the widow of Herbert H. Smith, whose death preceded hers by one month. Survivors include two sons and a daughter.

CLARENCE HARDY SPAIN, '36 B.S., of Richmond, Virginia, died April 19, 1982. In addition to his undergraduate degree, he also earned an M. A. from William and Mary in 1939. An Army veteran of World War I, he worked in the coal and oil fields of Texas following the War, and then played professional baseball with the Rangers of the West Texas League. He returned to Virginia in the late 1920's and for the next few years served as principal of several Virginia high schools. In 1938, he was named supervisor of adult education and assistant high school supervisor for the Virginia Department of Education. He resigned in 1942 to become principal of Binford Junior High School in Richmond, and he held that position until his retirement in 1964. Following his retirement, he served as a lecturer at the University of Richmond and continued to be active in civic organizations. Survivors include his wife Ethel.

HENNING AINSWORTH ROUNTREE, JR., '37 B.S., of Hampton, Virginia, died August 5, 1983. An accounting major and a member of Phi Kappa Tau at William and Mary, he was a retired co-owner of a furniture store.
