Homecoming 1983 Honors The Arts

Muscarelle Museum Dedication Highlights "A Celebration Of The Arts"

Two years ago Joseph '27 and Margaret Muscarelle came to Homecoming to break ground on a new art museum that would bear their names. On October 21, they were back again to dedicate the Joseph and Margaret Muscarelle Museum of Art, an event President Graves described as a "re-dedication of the College itself to our historic tradition of teaching the arts and sciences."

The museum dedication on the Friday of Homecoming Weekend set the tone of Homecoming 1983, a celebration of art in many different forms for the thousands of alumni who made their annual pilgrimage back to the Williamsburg campus.

Following the museum dedication, alumni attended the official opening of the museum and enjoyed two exhibitions: "Form, Function and Finesse," which consists of 50 drawings from the collection of Lucy '47 and Frederick '48 Herman of Norfolk, who were major contributors to the construction of the museum; and "William and Mary Collects," a collection of works of art on loan to William and Mary from alumni and friends of the College.

The next day, the Muscarelles served as the grand marshals for the Homecoming Parade in which the floats reflected the theme of the weekend — A Celebration of the Arts. Kappa Delta won first place in the sorority division and claimed the Lambert Cup for entering the best overall float in the parade. Kappa Sigma won the fraternity division while the William and Mary Choir took the top award in the open division.

In the Homecoming football game,

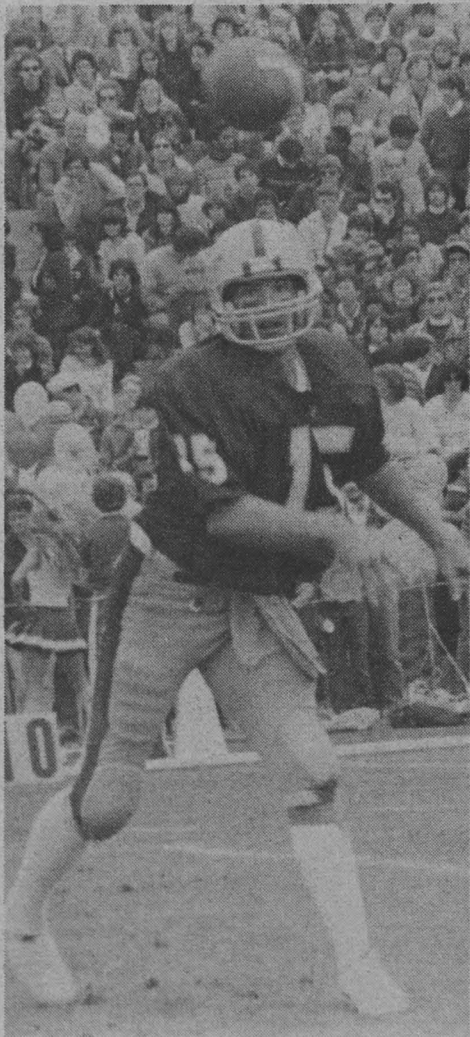

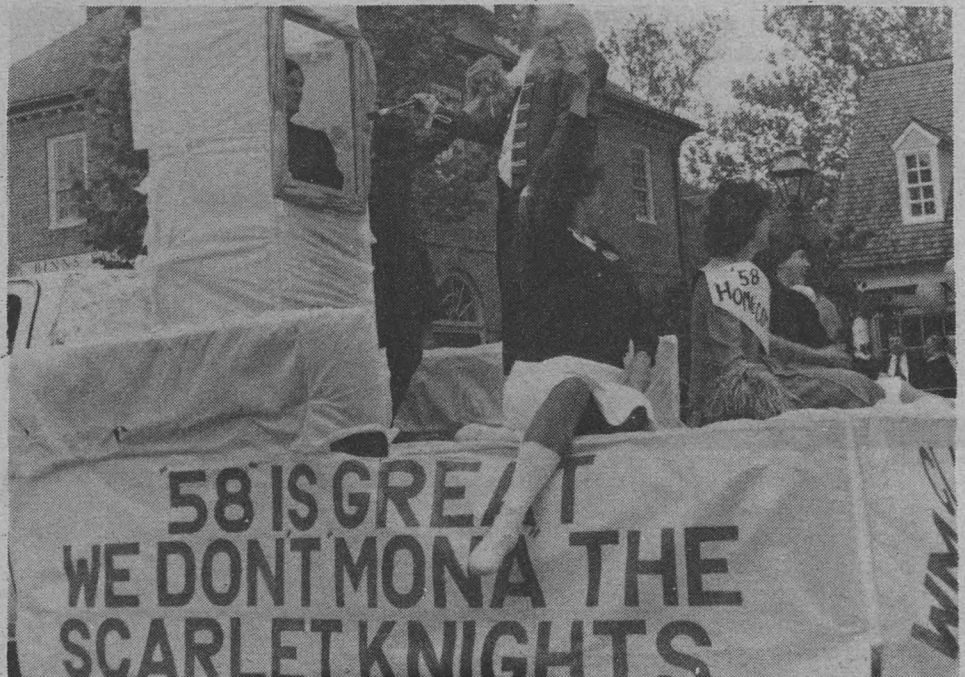

William and Mary lost a close battle to Rutgers, 35-28.

At the Friday annual meeting and banquet, four alumni received the Alumni Medallion in recognition of their service to their fellow man and to

Burgesses Day 1983 Inaugurates New "Journal of Burgesses"

Governor Robb Heads Group Of Lawmakers Who Attend Society-Sponsored Event

A change of venue and the beginning of what the Society of the Alumni and the College hope will become a new tradition marked the 1983 Burgesses Day on October 10 at William and Mary.

The Society of the Alumni, which sponsors the annual event to honor Virginia's lawmakers, moved the Burgesses day reception and luncheon from William and Mary Hall to the Wren yard and the Sunken Garden. In another break with the past, the Society established a new "Journal of Burgesses" in which the names of retiring state legislators will be inscribed at each Burgesses Day. About a dozen retiring or retired members of the House of Delegates and Senate, including Congressman Herbert H. Bateman '49, received scrolls and inscribed their names in the Journal of Burgesses which will be kept on permanent display at the Alumni House.

Burgesses Day is sponsored by the Society in association with the College's Board of Visitors. It commemorates the historic bonds between the state's lawmakers and the College, recalling the periods from 1700-1704 and 1747-1754 when the Virginia legislature, then the House of Burgesses, made the College's Sir Christopher Wren Building its temporary headquarters.

The new Journal of Burgesses recalls an earlier period from 1699 to 1780 when Williamsburg was the capital of Colonial Virginia and members of the House of Burgesses were required to sign an oath of allegiance to the English crown at the beginning of their legislative term. Today, the list is considered the most complete historical record of those who served as lawmakers in early Virginia.

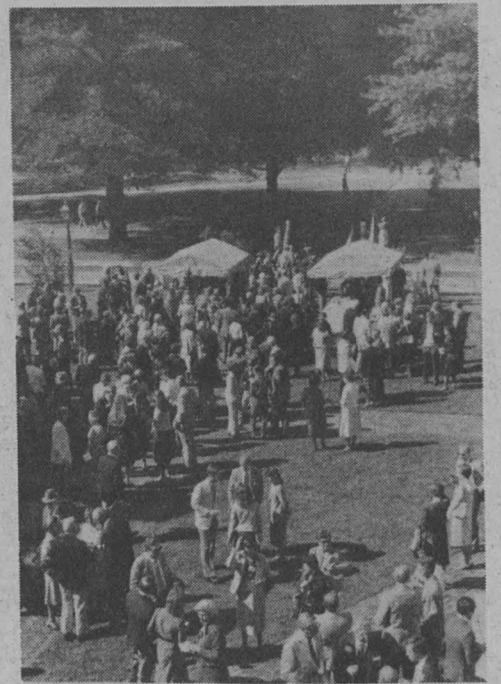

Recalling that historical fact, Austin L. Roberts III '69, president of the Society of the Alumni, told the Burgesses Day luncheon guests, gathered under a large tent in the Sunken Garden, that "this handsome new handmade leather volume will both revive and extend this tradition as we ask our retired senators and delegates to inscribe their names in the Journal." He added, however, that "we will not be asking allegiance to crown or to the Protestant faith at this time!"

In his remarks to the audience, which included Governor Charles S. Robb, President Graves recalled another interesting historical fact. On one occasion, the President said, when another governor, Francis Nicholson, was approached in the halls of the College by one seeking money out of the public funds, the Governor did "fly into such a rage, and did curse and swear so loudly that a sea captain, who lay asleep at some distance in the Wren Building sprang from his bed and, neglecting to affix his wooden leg, came leaping through the halls in his shirt, thinking the building to be afire again, as it often was."

"Nevertheless," the President added, "the Sir Christopher Wren Building and the College itself have survived both fire and foreign invasion to say nothing of General Fund reversions and reductions, have always been reborn with new vigor and determination, and will be doing so again this year, even if we do not have sufficient funds to pay the traditional quit rent now due."

Following the luncheon, the lawmakers and other guests moved to Cary Stadium for a football game between William and Mary and James Madison.

Above, guests at Burgesses Day ate lunch in a large tent in the Sunken Garden after a reception (top, right) at the rear of the Wren Building. Governor Charles S. Robb (above, right) addressed the gathering which included retiring or retired state legislators who entered their names in the Journal of Burgesses with the assistance of Austin L. Roberts III '69, president of the Society of the Alumni, who served as co-host of the event with President Graves. At right Roberts shows Senator Willard Moody and Congressman Herbert Bateman '49 (far right) where to sign their names. After the ceremony, the legislators gathered with their hosts and Governor Robb for a group photo (below). Pictured left to right are Senator Adelard Brault, President Graves, Delegate Fred Gray, Congressman Bateman, Governor Robb, Delegate John Gray, Attorney General Gerald Baliles, Delegate Evelyn M. Hailey, Delegate Robert Washington, Senator Moody, and Delegate Erwin Solomon.

In 1976 William and Mary held a most successful alumni college for a week during the summer. The Society would like to sponsor another alumni college and bring together alumni and faculty for a different kind of educational experience, one that will encompass a balance of intellectual and social activities designed to encourage a renewed dialogue between alumni and faculty.

As one step in preparing these activities, we need to know about your interests. Your response to the following will provide valuable information with which we can plan the program.

ALUMNI SURVEY

- In what type of activity would you like to participate:
 - An opportunity to participate with faculty in discussions of current interest, exchange ideas with faculty and generally engage in a learning experience.
 - An in-depth study of one subject such as a specific period of history, computers, an issue.
 - A program mixing learning opportunities with social activities.
 - Other _____
- Topics - If you are interested in a learning/ideas exchange program, what subjects would you like to explore:
 - Current national and international issues: Middle East, Asia, Latin America, Economy, Energy.
 - Liberal arts - Art, Philosophy, History, Literature
 - Topics relating to personal growth and development: Money Markets, Life Changes, Avocational Interests.
 - Professional Topics - Specifically related to your professional practice _____
 - Other (Specify or make comments) _____
- How long do you think a program should be:
 - a) One day _____ b) One or two days residential _____ c) Five days residential _____ d) Longer (specify) _____
- If residential would you like to stay:

Imperial Russia: "Land of Lincoln"

W. Bruce Lincoln '60 Gets High Marks For Writings On Russia

Although "Land of Lincoln" has been Illinois' official slogan for nearly 30 years, the phrase suddenly also seems to fit imperial Russia.

The "Lincoln" in this case is not Abe but W. Bruce Lincoln '60, a bespectacled, bearded history professor at Northern Illinois University.

Soon, it appears, Lincoln's writings about tsarist and revolutionary Russia will be everywhere. Consider:

--Lincoln's In War's Dark Shadow, published in May by Dial Press, is getting rave reviews and the first printing is expected to sell out quickly.

--The Book-of-the-Month Club adopted the same volume as its main selection for April, giving Dark Shadows a huge direct mail publicity boost through the club's 1 million members, and also substantial but undisclosed sales for the club's special edition.

--Lincoln's literary agent, Robert Gottlieb of the William Morris Agency in New York, is "talking to PBS about a long-term TV series along the lines of 'I, Claudius.'" The series would be based on The Romanovs, one of Lincoln's five earlier volumes on Russian history.

--The Romanovs, published in hard cover a year and a half ago, soon will appear in a trade paperback. Editions also are scheduled in England and in Italy.

--Lincoln, recently described in "Publishing Weekly" as "America's foremost Russian historian," has just contracted with Dial for another book already in the works, Passage Through Armageddon, which will focus on Russia during World War I.

--The NIU Press, on Lincoln's "home" campus, has just published his scholarly study of "enlightened bureaucrats" in mid-19th century Russia and already the book, titled In the Vanguard of Reform, is being adopted for college classes throughout the nation faster than any other cloth-bound edition ever published by the press.

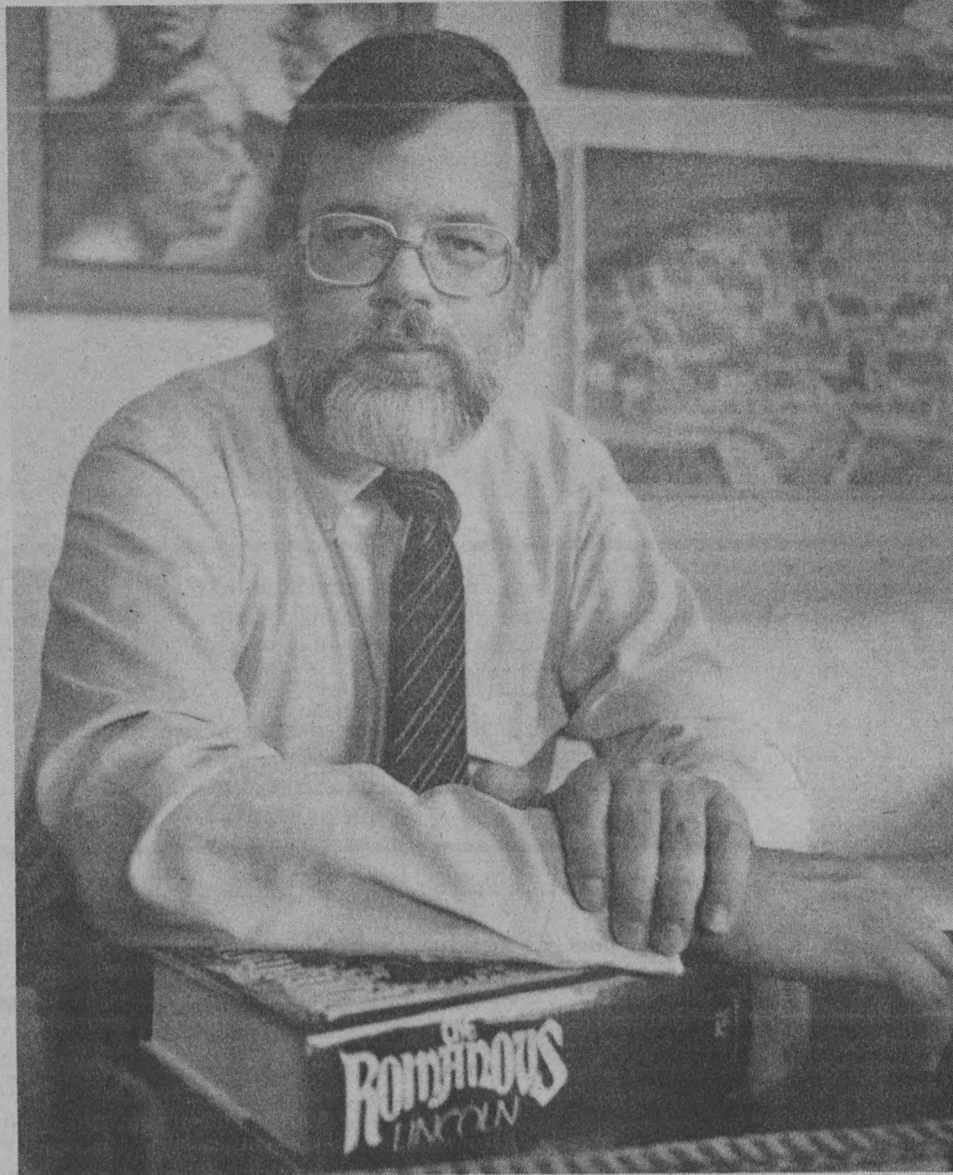

"He's definitely a rising star," Gottlieb says of Lincoln. "Russia is fascinating to American readers and Bruce's books evidence prodigious research and fine writing."

Noting that Dial is planning a major advertising and publicity push for In War's Dark Shadow as the book hits bookstore shelves in mid-May, Gottlieb confidently expects the first printing of 30,000 copies will sell out quickly and leave readers hungering for more.

"It's fairly unusual, but not unprecedented, to publish a book by an academic for such a large readership," observes Gloria Norris, the senior vice-president and editor-in-chief for Book-of-the-Month Club, Inc.

"In War's Dark Shadow is a really fine book and presents an enormously interesting portrait of the Russians before World War I. We've offered a great number of books about Russia but felt this one had a great deal new to say."

Adds Otto Olsen, the acting chair of Northern's nationally respected history department, "Bruce is an unusually productive scholar, whose years of past efforts just now are getting into print in a manner that will increase his public recognition.

"But his standing among historians has been well established for a long period of time, as indicated by the many grants he's received to support his research."

Interviewed by overseas telephone to England, where he is completing a spring teaching stint at Oxford University, Lincoln says his approach to history is probably the key ingredient.

"For a number of years, it seemed that history was dominated by specialists writing for other specialists or by popular works that were not solidly based, often including gossip and rumors and so on," Lincoln points out.

"There is nothing in between to bridge the superficial, popular stuff and the specialized, authoritative works. I've been trying to bridge that gap."

Noting that most general readers probably "are much smarter than many publishers suspect," Lincoln says his books, which also include the highly praised Nicholas I, are aimed both at general readers and specialists.

"I feel we should get back to the way history was written in the 19th or early 20th century, for instance by Macaulay and Gibbons, when historians were writing for everyone and not just other historians. And after all, we have more information now than ever before and the capability of getting at it through travel and computers."

Travel has been especially important to Lincoln's work as his research in the past nine months alone has taken him to Russia, Finland, France and England. Soon, he and his wife, Patricia, will be traveling again, first making a brief visit to his home state of Connecticut, then attending meetings in New York and finally returning to NIU.

Though Lincoln's six books and dozens of scholarly articles so far have all dealt with Russian history, Lincoln notes that Passage Through Armageddon, because it deals with World War I, "will start spilling all over" as the involvement of other nations expands his historical turf considerably.

Because of the remaining research and writing and the usual time lags involved in publishing, that volume likely will not reach readers until 1985, Lincoln's agent forecasts. Unlike many historians, Lincoln in his works covers not only the leaders of a particular era but also group portraits of the general populous and social composites of merchants, peasants, nobles and other segments.

Also unlike many other Western authors, the 44-year-old NIU professor speaks and reads the Russian language and also has lived for prolonged periods in Russia, searching exhaustively through archives in Moscow, Leningrad and several other countries, including Poland.

After earning his bachelor's degree in history from William and Mary in 1960, Lincoln received his Ph.D. in 1966 at the University of Chicago. The Stafford Springs, Conn., native has conducted his research under both Fulbright and Guggenheim grants, grants from NIU, the American Council of Learned Societies, the American Philosophical Society and several other groups or agencies.

The extensive research obviously has been worth it, as a reviewer for the American Library Association's "Booklist," commenting on galley proofs for In War's Dark Shadow, notes that Lincoln's new volume shows "the same fluent grace and intelligent passion for detail that carried readers through The Romanovs . . ."

Pointing out that the horrible living conditions of Russian peasants at the time have been recorded in many other works, they have "never before been rendered with the frighteningly realistic detail that Lincoln provides," the "Booklist" reviewer adds.

Hailed by others for his writing of "history on the grand scale," for his "superb erudition" and for his "sharply vivid insight," a Los Angeles Times reviewer perhaps best summed up Lincoln's verbal historical landscapes in a commentary on The Romanovs.

"Lincoln has written a work of huge scope and astounding erudition." And, as if not quite sure the point had been made clearly enough, the reviewer added that Lincoln's works may be "richer in clues about the Soviet Union today than the last 800 pages of Kremlin messages intercepted by the CIA."

Only The (First) Name Of The Coach Has Changed

Tribe Game Plan Expected To Stay The Same Under New Head Coach

About the biggest change in William and Mary basketball this season will be the last four letters in the first name of the coach.

While most college coaching changes bring about some degree of upheaval, the transition to a new head coach for the Indians has hardly been noticeable. And with good reason.

Barry Parkhill has quietly and confidently assumed the duties as the Indians' head man after serving five years as an assistant coach under brother Bruce. Bruce Parkhill, the College's second winningest coach with 89-75 record in six seasons, took the head job at Penn State last spring.

"Bruce developed an outstanding program here and I sure don't anticipate making many changes in our approach to the game," says Barry. "I worked under a guy (Bruce) who knew what the heck he was doing. I helped build the system and I believe in it.

"People talk about style and tempo," continues the younger Parkhill. "Our style will be to play to win. If that means using the break, working the ball for a good shot, using a zone defense, full-court pressure, or whatever, we'll do it.

"I'm not really sure yet what our tempo will be. There are a lot of variables. We want a certain flexibility from game to game. A lot will depend on how a team plays us. You have to bend with the situation.

"We plan to take advantage of our strengths and cover up our weaknesses."

The Tribe's strong point is a secret to no one — the guard spot.

Returning are junior sharpshooters Keith Cieplicki and Tony Traver, both starters last year. Cieplicki, an all-league and all-state choice as well as third team Academic All-American, averaged 16 points and shot 54 percent from the field. Traver, a long-range bomber, averaged 11 points.

Sophomore Scott Coval, an excellent playmaker and shooter, and senior Tommy Lamb also return.

Add to the returnees highly-touted freshman Scott Trimble, the Suburban Philadelphia Player of the Year, and the Tribe has the most talent and depth in the backcourt in the school's history.

"In a nutshell, our strength is in our guards," evaluates Parkhill. "We definitely have thought about using three guards in our lineup. You can expect to see some of that."

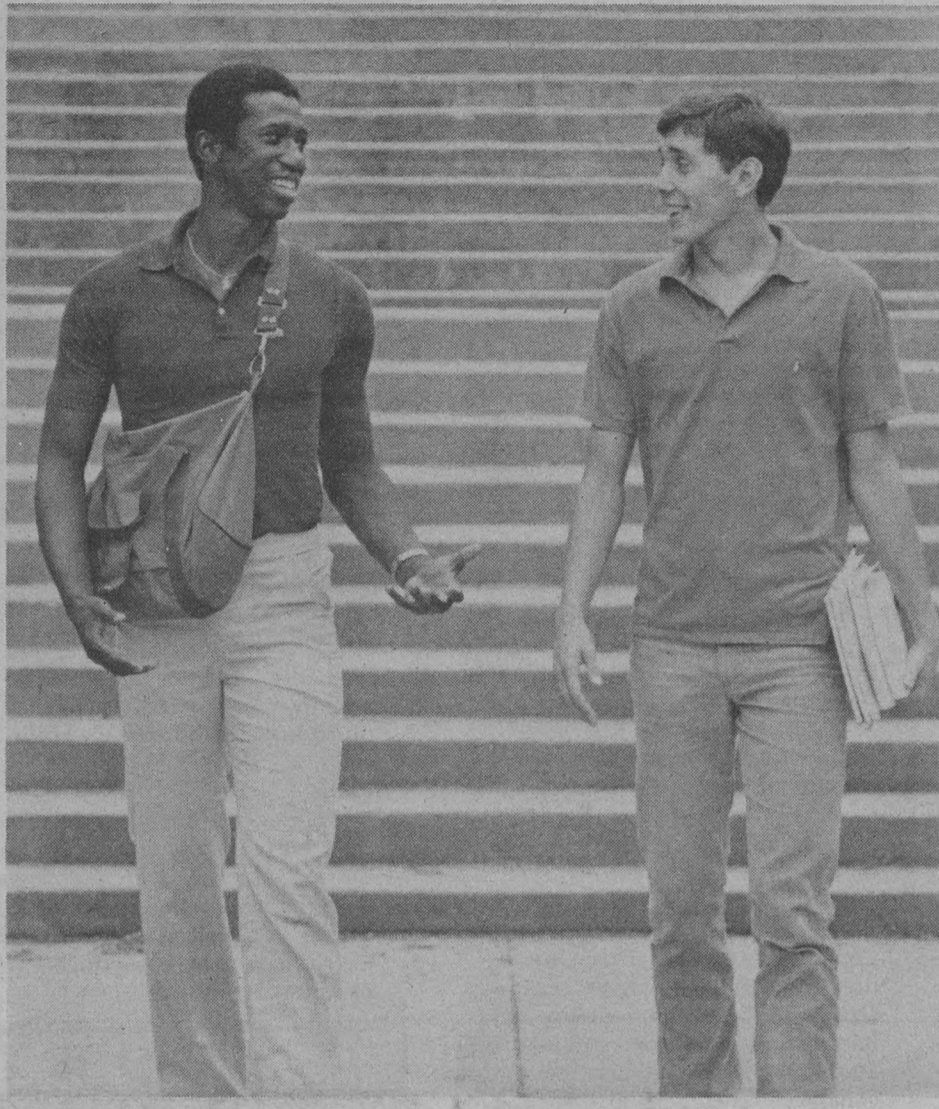

While guard is the Tribe's forte, the forward position is by no means weak.

Junior Kevin Richardson came on strong as a starter last year, averaging nine points and 4.4 rebounds per game while shooting 55 per cent. Herb Harris, a 6-7 strongman with excellent jumping ability, returns after sitting out last year. Harris, who can play either forward or center, was a starter two years ago.

Senior Gary Bland (6-6) is a smooth shooting front-line player who has also started on a number of occasions.

Providing depth up front will be 6-7 senior Neil McFarlane, a walk-on last year who has earned a scholarship, burly 6-8 sophomore Mike Bracken and 6-7 freshman David Bond, a product of Fork Union Military Academy.

The Tribe's biggest question mark is the center position. Lost to graduation was 6-10 Brant Weidner, a fourth-round draft choice of the Houston Rockets. That leaves 6-8 junior Matt Brooks and a pair of freshmen, 6-10 Mark Boddy and 6-9 Bobby Dail, battling for the pivot spot.

"That's definitely the position with the least amount of experience," says Parkhill. "Matt gained some experience last year as Brant's backup.

He knows the system and has gotten stronger, too.

"The two new kids need to learn the system and get stronger physically. I have confidence in both of them, though."

While it will be tough to fill Weidner's shoes, Parkhill claims forward-guard Mike Strayhorn may be missed even more.

"Mike is as tough a kid as we've had to replace in the last four or five years," says the new head coach. "He was the guy the kids looked for when help was needed." Strayhorn was often referred to as the "glue" that held the Indians together.

Still, Parkhill is confident his team is not without leadership. Senior tri-captains Bland, McFarlane and Lamb are considered fine overall team leaders while Cieplicki is looked to provide the leadership on the floor.

The Tribe will get its first taste of competition Nov. 8 when the Yugoslavian National team visits William and Mary Hall. The regular-season opener is Nov. 25 against North Carolina Wesleyan but then the Indians have a gruelling four-game stint in eight days, hosting Duke and visiting Old Dominion, VCU and Virginia.

As the season-opener nears, Parkhill does admit to feeling some pressure in following in his brother's footsteps.

"We are coming off the best season William and Mary has ever had so people expect a lot," he says of last year's 20-9 record which included a conference championship and NIT appearance. "Still, my job has been much easier than the normal coaching change.

"I'm taking over a program in the best shape it has ever been in. I have a great staff (assistants Jim Christopher and Dan Barner plus newcomers Sal Mantesana) and I feel the players have confidence in me.

"I do hope," adds Parkhill, "that I can command and get the most out of the kids like Bruce did."

Where there are many similarities between the Parkhill brothers, there are also enough differences that William and Mary basketball is about to embark on an exciting new "Parkhill Era."

Athletic Hall of Fame

Nominations are now being accepted for the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame. Induction of new members will be February 15, 1984.

Jim Copeland, athletic director at William and Mary, has provided the following criteria for membership in the Hall of Fame.

1) It shall be open to persons who have made a significant contribution to the College through intercollegiate athletics, as a competitor, coach, or administrator.

2) Consideration will also be given to continued contributions to society through community activities, through performance in chosen fields of endeavor and through avocations, on such a level as to bring credit and distinction to the College.

3) In order that proper assessment may be made of the nominee, a time period of at least 10 years must have elapsed since graduation for a competitor and at least 5 years for a coach or administrator.

4) No more than 8 persons and no more than one team will be inducted annually.

Alumni who wish to make a nomination should fill out the ballot below and return it to: Athletic Hall of Fame Committee, Box 399, Williamsburg, Va. 23187, no later than November 30, 1983.

Lady Spikers — Pulling Together And Setting Records

Women's Volleyball Team Hopes To Prove Itself The Best In Virginia

For the best hospitality, go south of the Mason-Dixon. For the best collegiate volleyball, go west of the Mississippi. For the best collegiate volleyball east of Mark Twain's river (well, at least, the best in Virginia) come to William and Mary's Adair Gym this month when the Tribe hosts the 1983 Virginia Intercollegiate League (VIL) Division I Championship.

The Indian spikers hope to officially become the best in state at the end of the five-team round-robin tournament. They will compete for their first Virginia title, having finished as high as second in 1979 and 1980 (in VAAW Division II) and third the past two years. This year, they've been aiming for number one all along.

As 1983-84 opened, William and Mary had a roster of 10, which included eight returning players and two freshmen. Also returned was Coach Debra Hill, who spent the previous year as a graduate assistant coach at Louisiana State University. From her experience under LSU's Ruth Nelson, a former U.S. Olympic volleyball coach, Hill came back "revolutionized" and appreciative.

"Ruth is one of the most highly-respected coaches in volleyball," said Hill, "She's an unbelievable technician. I learned all of the most current international-level skills, as well as offensive and defensive patterns.

"The experience opened my eyes to the potential that we do have at William and Mary," continued the seventh-year mentor, who holds a 124-59 career ledger, "We have such a quality situation here. We're not limited. I'm thrilled to be working in a truly combined academic-athletic environment; volleyball enriches the academic environment, it doesn't dominate it."

Hill's new knowledge has had the desired effect. By November, the team was 23-6 overall, having just set a record for the most consecutive wins in a single season with 12. Further, the team's success has come in spite of the loss of two members in the early going, senior Kelly Halligan and sophomore Laura Burrus, to knee injuries.

Halligan, who transferred to William and Mary from N.C. State after her sophomore year, possessed the most high-level experience on the squad. She also had the perfect mental toughness for her middle blocker position. And, having missed most of last season with a knee problem, the 5-9 government major was ready to play.

Ironically, it was Laura Burrus, who went in for Halligan when she reinjured her knee in the first game against the Midshipmen at the Navy Invitational. A 5-7 hitter from Oak Ridge, Tenn., Burrus made the team this fall, having been among interim coach Cindy Laughlin's cuts last year. But, Burrus (number ten) suffered the same fate as the number nine player (Halligan) and was also sidelined for the rest of '83.

The remaining Indians have worked hard to pull together, to develop team cohesiveness. Said Hill along the way, "Off the court, it's in the student's best interest to be highly independent; academically, that's very positive. But, athletically, that can be disastrous, at least in a team sport; the athletes have to become responsible for one another."

Those eight "little" Indians, who are not so little, have become more and more of a unit as the season progressed. Dominating at the net are three six-footers from New York state: senior Elaine Carlson (Plainview), junior Lisa Bobst (Mt. Kisco) and freshman Judy Cochrane (Smithtown).

Carlson, a three-time All-State Tournament Team honoree, has led William and Mary in most kills throughout the season, chalking up 218 with a respectable .264 hitting percentage. Cochrane, a newcomer with the potential to become an unflappable middle blocker, is third highest in total kills with 137 and a .252 spiking ratio.

Bobst has developed into the Tribe's most consistent hitter with 155 kills and only 45 errors in 372 total attempts for an impressive .296 hitting percentage. At the outset, Hill said of the third-year standout, "Lisa has 'quiet strength.' She's not a flashy player; she gets the job done." Describing her skills as "unorthodox," the coach went on: "She's hard to read... (and) very effective because of that."

As the season progresses, with the Tribe winning its own Parents' Invitational and the Virginia Tech Invitational, and placing a highest-ever sixth at the Delaware Invitational, Bobst's skills also progressed. Said Hill after the latter event; "Lisa is our most consistent hitter. She's also starting to serve some aces (and) continues to improve her defensive play in the back court. She's becoming more vocal... more of a force in terms of team dynamics."

Accompanying Bobst's growth has been that of sophomore setter Jane Fanestil. An All-State Tournament Team selectee in her freshman season, the 5-8 La Jolla, Calif., native has single-handedly directed William and Mary's 5-1 offense. Says Hill: "Jane is like a quarterback, having to direct, and direct, and direct. It's very physically demanding; she has to be in twice the shape that everyone else does.

"It's also very mentally demanding," Hill continued, "as we're using four plays, each of which has five or six different options. Jane has to be able to adjust to the opposition, as well as to who her personnel is in the front row."

Elaine Carlson

Filling out the William and Mary personnel are senior captain Ann Kempfski, a 5-6 hitter and setter, senior hitter/setter Khy Kaupelis, also 5-6, 5-6 junior hitter Anita Straupeniaks and 5-7 freshman setter Sasha Mobley. Each has made individual strides this season, but their greatest stride have been in playing as a team.

Says Hill; "Every weekend, we've played a little bit better. The only thing limiting us is when we don't play cohesively."

HOUSE NOTES

John S. Entwisle '44, of Meadowbrook, Pennsylvania, presented to the Society a very handsome Eli Terry pillar and scroll clock, handmade by Mr. Entwisle. The clock is in the Chandler Room at the Alumni House.

Several 1907 postcards of the Wren Building, Bruton Parish Church, and the Lightfoot House, were gifts of David E. P. Dufour of Cold Spring Harbor, New York.

Samuel F. "Bill" Royal '54 of Williamsburg, donated to the Paschall Library the book CHARLOTTE, by Grace Warren Landrum, published in 1919. Dr. Landrum, for whom Landrum Hall was named, was Dean of Women and Professor of English, 1927-47.

Alumni Authors: A copy of your published novels, non-fiction, poetry, and/or textbooks will be given a good home in the Paschall Library at the Alumni House. Please contact Frankie Martens, Society of the Alumni, Post Office Box 60, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187.

The Society of the Alumni invites you to experience:

THE CASTLES, CATHEDRALS AND COUNTRY INNS OF SOUTHERN SCOTLAND, NORTHERN ENGLAND, AND NORTHERN WALES.

SEPTEMBER 16-29, 1984

$1984.00 per person, based on double occupancy.

Join William and Mary Alumni and friends on this custom-designed tour and discover the historic monuments, castles, abbeys, cathedrals, and homes and gardens with which the British Isles are so richly endowed. We will experience the unique heritage of Scotland, the untamed scenery of Wuthering Heights, the beauty of James Herriott country of the North Yorkshire Dales, the rich beauty of the Welsh Vales and the fabulous regional cuisine of Northern England, Southern Scotland and Northern Wales. Tour participants will have opportunities to enjoy these regions in a comfortable, comprehensive and unhurried manner, meeting local people on their own turf in a friendly and informal atmosphere.

The finest Manor Houses and Coaching Inns of the regions have been chosen not only for their comfort and cuisine, but also for their character, setting and historic traditions. Centuries old architecture does not always allow for some amenities and travellers should not therefore expect the uniformity of the modern 20th century hotels. The high standards of dining, cleanliness, and convenience of the selected accommodations are matched by their friendly and helpful staffs.

The tour price includes:

- Round-trip airfare on scheduled airline from New York to Prestwick, Scotland.
- 12 nights accommodations with bath in first class country inns and coaching houses:
 - 5 nights at Hartree Country House, a 14th century Manor House beautifully situated in the Tweed River Valley in Scotland.
 - 4 nights at the Mitre in Knaresborough, in Yorkshire, a 19th century coaching inn near York.
 - 3 nights at the Mollington Banastre, a restored Victorian mansion, standing on 8½ acres of gardens on the outskirts of Chester.
- Meals on board both transatlantic flights.
- Full breakfast daily (5 Scottish, 4 Yorkshire, 3 English).
- 12 table d'hote dinners, including one medieval feast and a farewell W&M alumni dinner at Hartree.
- All admissions fees for sightseeing.
- In country transportation via deluxe private motorcoach.
- All transfers, portorage, hotel taxes, and gratuities.
- Accompaniment on the tour by William and Mary's personal escort, Mr. Keith Roberts, Owner of Discovery Touring Service.

Other amenities of the tour include:

- Complimentary tour book of the British Isles.
- Optional comprehensive insurance - accident/medical, baggage and flight - available at $36.00 per person.
- Services available for arranging U.S. domestic flight connections.

For further information, full itinerary and brochure, contact Diane Hagemann, Director of Travel Programs, Society of the Alumni, Box GO, Williamsburg, VA 23187 or call 804-229-1693.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE TOUR INCLUDE:

- Visits to the Kingdom of Fife, St. Andrews, and Crieff.
- Touring and shopping in Edinburgh.
- Visits to the Tweed Valley and the famous woolen mills.
- Tour of Durham Cathedral on our way south to Yorkshire.
- Touring and shopping in the city of York.
- Tours of Riveaulx Abbey, and visits to Thirsk, Whitby and Scarborough and the Yorkshire Wolds.
- Touring the North Yorkshire Dales, including Fountains Abbey and Deer Park, Richmond, Castle Bolton, and visits to Wensleydale, Askrigg and Hardraw Force.
- Touring and shopping in Chester.
- Touring the Northern Coast of Wales, with visits to Wrexham, Llangollen, Ruthin and Denbigh Castles, Mold and St. Asaph's.

DEPOSIT: A deposit of $150.00 per person must be included with the above reservation form to guarantee space on the tour.

PAYMENT SCHEDULE: $150.00 deposit to secure reservation; $900.00 payment due no later than March 16, 1984; final payment of $934.00 due no later than July 14, 1984.

CANCELLATIONS: The airfare used is APEX and is subject to a $50.00 cancellation fee for cancellation or change within 21 days of departure. Kathy Meador Lessin '80 — A Portrait In Courage

An Optimistic And Hopeful Spirit Characterized Her Final Battle With Cancer

(Kathy Meador Lessin '80 of Richmond died on September 9, 1983 at the age of 24 after a three-year battle with cancer. The following is written in tribute to her by her friend, Anna F. Barron '79.)

As an anthropology and religion major at William and Mary, Kathy Meador Lessin dreamed of becoming an archeologist and traveling to distant, exotic places.

But cancer struck. And Kathy began to dream of being able to stand on her feet for more than two hours at a time and of traveling as far as the corner shopping center.

A beautiful, bright, ambitious woman, Kathy had her future all mapped out by the beginning of her senior year of college. After graduation, she would marry her childhood sweetheart, Chuck Lessin, and she would help put him through his last year at the University of Virginia. Then, they would go together to Israel, where Kathy had longed to live ever since she spent a summer there after her freshman year. In Israel, she would study biblical archeology and Chuck would pursue Judaic studies at Hebrew Union University.

All these plans were shattered during Christmas break of Kathy's senior year. Although she had felt a lump, the diagnosis stunned her: a malignant tumor of the left breast. A mastectomy was performed immediately and Kathy missed four weeks of classes. But she was determined not to let cancer completely disrupt her plans. Her roommate, Bonnie Lemon Hughes '80, attended all of Kathy's classes and diligently took notes. When she returned to school, Kathy studied night and day to make up the work she had missed and to complete a 60-page thesis that was required in her major. She made an A on the thesis and graduated on time with her class. She and Chuck kept their wedding date — two weeks after graduation — which had been set long before Kathy's illness was diagnosed.

After the service in the Wren Chapel, the newlyweds moved to Charlottesville and things looked bright for several months. The doctors were optimistic that they had removed all traces of cancer and that Kathy would be able to lead a normal, healthy life.

But that August, Kathy detected a nodule on her left arm. It was removed and found to be malignant. At the same time, Kathy's doctors removed her ovaries to prevent further spread of the disease. By the time of Chuck's graduation the next spring, however, the cancer had spread to Kathy's bones.

The couple moved to Houston and Kathy began receiving chemotherapy treatments at M. D. Anderson Tumor Clinic, a world-renowned cancer hospital. The treatments took their toll — Kathy lost all her hair and became progressively weaker. After three months in Texas, Chuck and Kathy decided to move to Richmond, where they had both grown up. There, they could be closer to their families, and Kathy could go to the Medical College of Virginia (M. C. V.) for treatment.

She and Chuck moved into their own apartment and tried to establish some semblance of a normal life.

Although she was too ill and too weak to hold down a full-time job, Kathy devoted as much time and energy as possible to causes she believed in — and to people she cared about.

She played with and read stories to young cancer patients at M. C. V., she tutored students in her own first grade teacher's class and she served as a volunteer at a local hospital. She went through three days of intensive training to become a volunteer for Cansurmount, a support group for cancer patients sponsored by the American Cancer Society, and she counseled a number of people affected by the disease.

Kathy gave unselfishly of herself even on days when she felt she could barely lift her head from the pillow. In the midst of her chemotherapy treatments, which made her violently ill, Kathy spent 30 hours at the deathbed of an elderly cancer patient who had no family or friends. The only person for whom the woman called out was Kathy.

Although to others she seemed almost superhuman, Kathy was very much aware of her own mortality. She talked openly about death, and arranged the details of her funeral as meticulously as she had once mapped out her future with Chuck. Coming to grips with death was not always easy for Kathy — she shed a lot of tears and asked a lot of questions. But seldom did she cry or express bitterness when she was around other people. As she had done throughout her life, Kathy thought first of others and focused her attention on their needs, rather than on her own.

Kathy and Chuck Lessin at a William and Mary dance.

Kathy accepted the fact that she was dying, but she did not accept it peacefully. She fought her illness and, for the most part, was able to rise above it. But once the cancer spread to her lungs this past summer, the battle became increasingly difficult.

She began gasping for air and had trouble speaking. But nothing could dissuade her from planning a big celebration for her 25th birthday on October 8. She knew that it would be her last and she wanted it to be her best.

Kathy died on September 9 — four weeks before her birthday. But the optimistic and hopeful spirit with which she approached her birthday — and her entire life — will live on forever in the hearts of those whom Kathy touched.

I am trying to meet the deadline of September 27 for the November issue of the Alumni Gazette. In said issue, you logically will expect "hot" news on the doings of the 1926 class at the Homecoming, October 21-22. As I read the stars, about twenty-six of our class will attend, a significant increase over the six that have shown in recent years. All will be interested in a "fling" but no one is going to risk being "flung." We are at that decorous age now and furthermore, cannot take it anymore. I shall look forward to seeing you all again.

One of the compensations of this job occurred several weeks ago when I received a telephone call from Jack Wolbert '29. A voice from the past, I had not seen nor heard from Jack since 1926. He was in Havre de Grace, Maryland, on business, no not horses, and realized that Kennett Square was just up the road a bit. We covered a lot of ground in that brief telephone conversation and plan to do things right at lunch shortly. Jack is from the Boston, Massachusetts area, and was on our football varsity in his freshman year. He was excited that his daughter had joined the University of Pennsylvania faculty this fall as the Van Ameringen Professor in Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing.

Now that the Alumni Gazette is 50 years old, should we rename it "The Olde Guardian"?

Gardiner Tyler '20, of the Charles City and Williamsburg Tylers and a regular Olde Guardsman, is indirectly responsible for sparking the alert that the Alumni Gazette is half a century old and the resulting good resume written by Fred Frechette '46 and the staff's good play.

Our classmate, Ed Lamberth, was alerted that the year brought another 50th anniversary... that of his marriage to Dorothy Smither '29, and it was celebrated happily at the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club several months ago, their children hosting. Present were Dr. Edwin, Jr., and his wife, Caroline, Donna L. and her husband, Comdr. Donald Nash. Representing William and Mary were Ray Reid, the Lam Sisters, and the Art Winders. Ed and Dot reside in the Westminster-Canterbury house near Cape Henry.

Helen Lucile Eastham Michie has welcomed into the family fold her fifth grandchild, Paige Ashby Turner, born May 12. Further news from Charlottesville reveals that the second annual Lucile E. Michie Living Memorial Award, named by students in Lucile's honor, went to Dr. Herbert Richards, associate professor in the Clinical Psychology Institute at the University of Virginia, where Lucile now is an adjunct faculty member.

Lucian A. Hobbs hasn't lost his spark and sparkle even though he and his wife Pat have been far away, living on their seven acres in the Santa Cruz, California mountains, out from San Jose and Santa Clara. His breezy and informative 2000-word letter is a treasure which should be shared by all who were in school with him, and I'll try to excerpt some of the passages for this letter, having been an editor myself and knowing space limitations.

Like Dauba Green and Laura Whitehead Young, Lucian has a clear memory of the William and Mary of the mid-20's and shares with all.

Writes Lucian: "Dear Ralph: Would've done this erego but mislaid the bit on Yellow Slickers. Ah yes, touches a bit of deep-lined memory. I cannot claim to be the first, but I did use pen and ink or other material and painted outrageous scenes (for that era) on my slicker. The influence of John Held, Jr., was there with the wide bottoms, and cutesy girlies.

"Slogans, sayings, which I can't remember, were early graffiti on my slicker. I recall a busty topless which I felt very daring.

"The view of my slicker around campus got me some orders for decorating that helped with small change to calm the pangs of hunger, with buttered toast at the Greek's place.

"Don't forget the flappy galoshes that were part of the get-up. (Yep, and it wasn't stylish to buckle but a buckle or two at the bottom.) All of that together gave one the feeling of Joe College, the togs and a copy of College Humor under an arm.

"So attired, I did my first crossword puzzle sitting in the corner shop, my feet up on a seat, looking out over the campus."

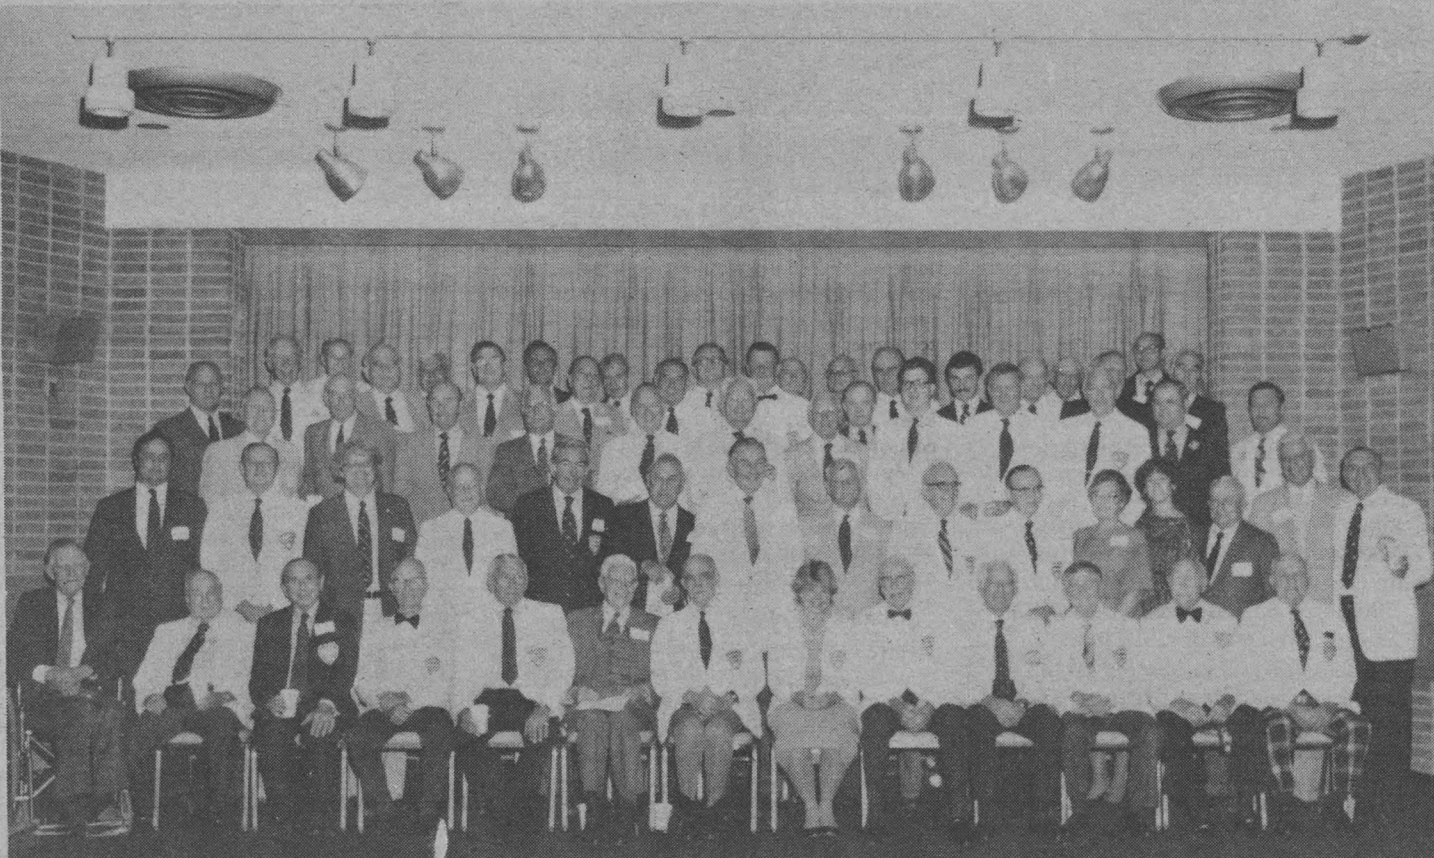

No college had better slickers than did William and Mary for they were the genuine, merchandised by our class president, Bill Thompson, the source being a Norfolk ship chandler and outfitter of watermen.

Now, coeds what about your trendy (of that day) attire, surely more than the hats required to be worn to church at Bruton on Sundays?

Lucian since leaving William and Mary has subscribed to the New York Times (except for the war years) and has graduated to its crossword puzzles (he and wife Pat), and the double crossics.

"I read a whopping lot," he comments, "taste eclectic (now on a very good English mystery writer, Robert Bernard)." Lucian also reads Punch (excellent writing) and Country Life, another English journal. Appearing in Country Life "is the most beloved of writers I have ever encountered. Jan Niall... who does a weekly piece. I delight in his prose and view, and admire to tenderness that man I find in the words." He recommends we hie to our libraries for back copies to read Niall's "A Countryman's Journal." Lucian read The New Yorker until in the late '60's he encountered an "On-the-Town" piece which was "a mawkish lament ant-Viet Nam" outpouring. He finds an occasional nugget in The Proceedings, U.S. Naval Institute.

Of other publications, he recalls his hometown Virginian-Pilot (my connection after leaving William and Mary) "as part of my life. It printed all the letters I (Lucian) wrote — mostly in horror of Bishop Cannon." Then his West Coast paper was the San Francisco Chronicle, which later soured on him, save for the clever columnists. Now he likes the San Jose Mercury, except for editorials. "I disagree with them ferociously. My last three letters filed away.

"I think I'll write about the barn cats."

He has barn cats, "a horse (Pat's), two dogs, two house cats, (one in and one out), two barn cats. The latter are twins, Katzen and Jammer, tiger variety. We were down to one bale of hay and they were insecure. The barn now is filled with bales and they are up there just under the roof disgustingly happy and secure."

He planted a forest that offers "a church-like, pine needled floor, quiet and cool." A good place to rest after his wrestling with chain saws, axes and shovels cutting brush and maintaining roads and well. "But I may have to leave it because owning 80 acres 21 miles from here in real wild country, my wife Pat, having retired and having to have a project, is building a house over there."

Of college days, his piano playing, of swamp mist in Mason jars and night expeditions "to dance at the many girls' colleges the State had. The girls were eek things, loving, good dancers. . . but the hangovers!"

Lucian had his experiences in World War II as a U.S. Naval Intelligence officer and his lust for the sea returned two autumns ago when he and Pat took a Caribbean cruise, liking it so much that there was another last spring and next March another one to the Windward Islands. Aboard the "Song of Norway" we who know him of old can see him as the stand-up comedian again, exuding hilarious nonsense with a modern twist. "I go bonkers on ships," he muses.

But then he relapses for a passage back to William and Mary, recalling the beginning of the Restoration, the Peebles boys and: "Oh yes, the most intellectual professor in my time, Dr. Gehrels. I spent a bit of time with him, just talking; why he thought his time was worth it I never discovered. In fact, I did not fully mature until the Navy sent me to San Francisco, Naval Intelligence training, plunk in the midst of academe, Stanford, California, Denver. I was in the brains so I started using mine."

And still Lucian A. Hobbs '28 wonders if anyone besides this old class reporter remembers him.

His address is 17850 Old Summit Road, Los Gatos, California 95030.

Maybe he will give an account of his meeting scheduled atop a winery mountain with Clooney and Woody Herman, next to Napa Valley where they "do not plow under the grape vines." Or he may tell you about the trek to Seattle and Victoria or a couple of nights in Reno at gaming ("by now I know enough to lose a little to win").

The world continues to be exploring ground for Mal (Malvern H. Omohundro, Jr.), whose card mailed September 7 from China arrived just about as quickly as it takes a letter from Williamsburg to Norfolk. The Great Wall of China appears on one side and on the other is the good news that he is expecting to see us all at Homecoming. Any chance of turning the Great Wall into condos, Mal? Or will you confine your real estate promotions to Richmond?

Eureka, California, was the postmark this time, and a U. S. A. Olympics Games stamp. It was from George and Edna Whitley, who had been touring the attractions of Northern California, including the Redwood Forest. Of all the places "Lake Tahoe was the most enjoyable."

Hopefully our travelers will be at Homecoming. Then we'll have a symposium on travel to the unusual locales.

There's a new author in the William and Mary "family," for family she is although her college was Sweet Briar. Nancy Tucker

Wilson Mann, granddaughter of William and Mary President Lyon Gardiner Tyler, and daughter of Dr. James Southall Wilson, William and Mary Notable and later Edgar Allan Poe Professor of English at the University of Virginia, has written and published a book: Tylers and Gardiners on the Village Green, Williamsburg, Virginia and East Hampton, Long Island, (Vantage Press $9.50).

Born in Williamsburg in 1912, her vivid memory began at about age four. The concluding chapters give a merry picture of the Williamsburg in the years surrounding World War I. The reader shares with her the scenes of folks of the Williamsburg of then through the eyes of a little girl, who recounts also the stories of her elders, and paints the town when most every home had a "garden house" and including the facility besides the President's House in the Yard.

Of interest, too, are her drawings and the rare pictures taken by the noted Norfolk photographer, Harry Mann. In several passages she draws on the memory of her kinsman, D. Gardiner Tyler '20.

Mrs. Mann did considerable research, not only in genealogy, but delves into much history of the families, especially in the period when her great grandfather was President of the United States. She resides in Virginia Beach.

And thanks, Class President William G. Thompson, Jr., and Mary, the provender provided from the tailgate of your wagon saved from starving, before the Delaware game, one certain class reporter.

Notes from Betty:

We had a chatty letter from Connie Waters Tardiff. After living in New York for 26 years, she is back home in Culpeper, Virginia. She is now a widow with two children and four grandchildren. One granddaughter is a Phi Beta Kappa from Oberlin College and another is studying at Cornell to be a veterinarian. She is feeling fine and carrying on as usual. As she feels that old friends should be cherished more than new ones, she would like to hear from some of her classmates.

Nancy Johnson Hurt writes that she had a delightful trip this past year to Scandinavia. She and Eleanor Nixon Ireson frequently talk on the phone since Eleanor is now living in Roanoke.

Irene Bennett Young, a widow of nineteen years, leads a busy life serving on various civic committees and boards in Arlington. Irene's grandson was graduated from the College this spring. He spent his junior year studying at King College in London.

Irene reports that she sees quite a few William and Mary alumni in her area.

Elizabeth Moore Peters from Baltimore gave me a surprise telephone call recently. Liz talked so much about "old times" that I did not get any news from her. She is still her vivacious witty self. She did mention that she had had a telephone conversation with Dot Glenn Shook in New Mexico and that Dot is fine.

Another honor came to Thomas Hart recently when he received a Founders Award from West Georgia College, Carrollton, Georgia. Tom began his teaching career there when the college opened fifty years ago.

Please do send us some news about yourself. Your classmates are interested in you and your activities.

Notes from Ed:

No news from my classmates! I am perplexed as what I can get together for the Gazette. Perhaps you may think that what has happened to you is not news; yet, it may be of interest to your classmates.

I have seen Helen Nance Joyner and Fay LeCompte this summer. The former is recovering from a fractured pelvis sustained in a fall in her backyard a few months ago. At the present she is president of the Franklin-Southampton Retired Teachers, of which I am a member.

Fay is adjusting to a pacemaker which was implanted after a heart attack last April.

Your correspondent is now chairman of the Western Tidewater Mental Services Board which encompasses the cities of Franklin and Suffolk and the counties Isle of Wight and Southampton.

Do you realize it has been fifty-seven years since we arrived on the campus of the College of William and Mary as green ducs and ducesses? Since that time many changes have been wrought. Those years have probably been the most interesting that anyone has ever experienced. One of those changes which comes to mind is the cost of living, specifically the cost of a college education.

When we entered the College in September 1926 the cost of tuition, room, board, fees, etc. was $193.75 per semester for Virginia residents. Books, laboratory fees, and incidentals cost just a few dollars more. The total cost of my first year was about $500, including spending money, and for my sophomore year it was the same. No one knew about inflation at that time and the cost of living remained constant.

My last two years I received a track scholarship. Also during my junior year I waited on tables and my senior year I graded papers for those in the United States government classes. That job enabled me to work extra in the dining hall and make 24 cents for each meal served. Since I was a farm boy and accustomed to having much money to spend, that amount took care of my spending money for the session. The jobs and the scholarships enabled me to get by for $300 for each of the last two years.

When our daughter entered the College in 1965 it cost more for her freshman year than it did for me during the four years.

If any of the current students read this article, they will not think they are being "taken for a ride." Everyone now knows about inflation.

The members of our class extend their sympathy to the family of a classmate, L. Rives Taylor, whose obituary was published in a recent issue of the Gazette.

See you at Homecoming.

No news from any of you. Perhaps you called while we were on vacation. If so, please call again. I do enjoy hearing from you.

My summer has been a great one. My husband and I have had the most wonderful trip ever. We flew to San Francisco to the Photographic Society of America meeting (photography is our hobby when we are not in the dental office). Then on to Hawaii for several days to catch up with the time change. Then to that marvelous "Land Down Under" - New Zealand and Australia.

No one can describe the beauty of these two countries. You will have to see and feel it to believe there is so much beauty wrapped up in two wonderful countries.

The people are the friendliest of any I have ever met. We are guest of photographic friends in Auckland, New Zealand, and we had the "Royal Tour" of their city. We also visited with two couples who are dentists in Sidney. One couple we met in Austria several years ago. They were determined we should see their beautiful city in four days.

If you want a perfect vacation, go to New Zealand and Australia. The South Island of New Zealand is as near perfect as any place can be - so don't miss Christ Church, Queensland Milford Sound, or Mount Cook. We loved all of it!

Hope to see you at Homecoming.

It was exciting to receive the "Big News" about our 50th Reunion from our chairman, Robert H. Land, and a telephone call from Emil O. Johnson, the chairman of the gift fund committee. It promises to be a great occasion for all of us.

Among my notes, this time, were the following four from the Alumni Office: Bernard Brugh, Landover, Md., wrote that his second great grandchild, a boy named Benjamin Bernard Brugh, was born May 18, one day prior to his own 71st birthday. He wondered how many other classmates have joined the same select group of "greats."

Elizabeth Young Clark, Bluefield, West Va., wrote that she was vice president of the Presbyterian Women of the Church and a member of the retired persons' church choir, which travels wherever their music is requested. She visits with her son, his wife, and three grandchildren in Chicago and has also toured Alaska as a member of an "over 50" tour group.

Enclosed was a nice note from the Alpha Chi Connection of Alpha Chi Omega about Mary Talman Lamb, Petersburg, Va., her husband and two daughters, on the occasion of Mary's attending her sorority's 50th anniversary celebration.

Ruth Waller Gills, Roanoke, Va., wrote that she is a widow. She travels as much as she can and has been almost all over the world. She enjoys her church, her two children, and a granddaughter. She has been to many Homecomings and hopes to attend the reunion in May.

I received a delightful letter from Elizabeth Jacobs Pugh, Decatur, Ga. Both she and her husband retired about 10 years ago. He was appeals examiner for the Fifth District Civil Service Office in Atlanta. Elizabeth taught high school mathematics for 10 years and then, headed the school program at the Scottish Rites Hospital for crippled children located in Decatur. They have traveled extensively overseas and in the States. September 10, they left for a trip by ship through the inside passage to Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Mt. McKinley. Elizabeth says, "Hope to make our 50th in May 1984."

Another classmate, who is planning to attend our reunion in May, is Marie H. Hoyt, Richmond, Va. Marie writes that she retired from Reynolds Metal Company in 1977, after 35 years of service. Since then, she has traveled to Holland and to Germany and twice "via a Polish freighter" to Poland. She has enjoyed two extended visits with friends in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Marie is active in the Women's Club. She also plays bridge, visits, and just has fun!

Received a charming letter from Mildred (Bunny) Refo Carr, Greensboro, N.C. "Graduation in 1934. . . how long ago that seems," Bunny writes. Her education was continued by joining the staff of Enoch Pratt Library in their alma mater. They were Lt. Governor Richard J. Davis '42 of Portsmouth; Howard H. Hyle '48, Atlanta, Ga.; Raymond A. "Chip" Mason '59, Baltimore; and Dr. Harold W. Ramsey '27, Rocky Mount, Va.

Several faculty members, including Helen Cam Walker '64, associate professor of history, were recognized by the Society of the Alumni as Fellows for 1983. Elected to associate membership in the Society were Jay D. Andrews, professor of marine science, emeritus; John W. Sykes, associate professor of education, emeritus, and Royce W. Chesser, professor of education, emeritus.

The Northern Virginia Chapter won the outstanding chapter award while the classes of 1941, 1944 and 1940 were honored for their support of the William and Mary Fund. Herbert V. Kelly '40, rector of the College, received the Baltimore-Annapolis Chapter Trophy, given to the individual who makes a significant effort for the William and Mary Fund.

The results of the election to the Society's Board of Directors were also announced at the banquet. Andrew D. Parker, Jr. '69 JD of Chapel Hill, N.C., was re-elected to a three year term. Elected to their first terms of the board were Charles L. Quittmeyer '40, former dean of the School of Business Administration; Mrs. Helen Thomas Stafford '48, Princeton, N.J.; Harriet Stanley '72, Brooklyn Heights, N.Y.; and Jerry Van Voorhis '63, Chatham, Va.

In a surprise announcement to complete a perfect weekend, President Graves said that Kent Watkins, a member of the 25th reunion class of 1958, and his wife Linda had pledged $50,000 to Phase II of the museum construction. The gift by the Watkins brings the College to within $362,000 of fully funding the $1.45 million Phase II expansion. A Linda and Kent Watkins Seminar Room will be included in the expansion.

Homecoming 1983

One of the new features of Homecoming 1983 was an alumni basketball game. The teams were divided into the graduates of the past two years (back row, coached by Dr. David Walker '68) and graduates prior to 1982 (seated, coached by Billy Person Jr. '56). Dr. Walker's team won, 70-66.

INSIDE ADMISSIONS

Recommendations — A Key Element In Applicant Evaluation

By Gary Ripple
Dean of Admissions

Letters of recommendation on behalf of applicants to the College can be an important element in our consideration of the personal qualifications of a candidate. We are pleased to receive these letters and include them in the applicant's folder for reading with high school credentials and the student's biographical data.

In some of our more hair splitting decisions, recommendations provide a personal perspective which is important to our understanding of the candidate. Some recommendations are more helpful than others and I have been asked to provide guidelines which would enable alumni to provide the strongest support possible in an acceptable format.

Good recommendations establish a sound knowledge of the candidate explaining the relationship between the writer and applicant. They offer some balance between platitudes and areas for improvement and they make a conscious effort to be as specific as possible comparing this candidate with others of her peer group.

The candidate's major contributions to his school, community, and/or church is an excellent way of highlighting what one expects will be the student's most important contributions to the College. Since our decisions are usually an attempt to project the student into the William and Mary community and to predict her performance, it is helpful to know where the student might make the greatest contribution. It is also appropriate to include the sentiments of others in one's recommendation indicating that there is even broader support than this one particular letter might imply. Another important characteristic is the student's ability to interact with peers, teachers, and other adults and be a positive contributor to the development of a sound learning environment.

Finally, brevity is extremely important because we are being asked to read more than 25,000 individual documents each year. An appropriate length would be somewhere between 100 and 300 words.

Baltimore and acquiring a library degree from Columbia. "Following marriage and the war years, we moved to Greensboro in '52 and as our two children grew up, I resumed a library career in a university setting at UNC, Greensboro." She was head of circulation when she retired three years ago, after 22 active years on the library faculty. The first year of retirement, she indexed her husband's third book and looked after three grandchildren, who had lost their mother. Since, she has taken several trips to Europe and "dabbled" in genealogy, volunteering, and gardening. Happily, Bunny, too, is looking forward to renewing old acquaintances in May!

Harriet Council Mead, '35, spent a busy summer proofreading for that first book. Husband Tom worked on a national lawn tennis tournament that was held in Orlando. We hope to see them in Virginia this fall.

Annie Pharr Goodykoontz and her husband, Jack, had a really spectacular summer trip out West. "We were thrilled and awed by all we saw. The country was so different that I felt as though I had been transported to another world!" Annie wrote. They enjoyed the train ride from Chicago to Denver. They particularly enjoyed their side trip, by car, through Rocky Mt. National Park. The view from the train, from Denver to Salt Lake City, still showed the effects of the April mud slides. They heard an organ recital at the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City and loved Jackson Hole and the Tetons. Their raft trip down the Snake River proved a delightful experience. They went by motor-coach from Jackson to Yellowstone. Here, they spent two full days and found Yellowstone to be both beautiful and awesome. The rest of their trip paralleled the one my family took about a month later. They traveled the "Going to the Sun" highway in the special, red, 1936 Jammers and lunched at McDonald Lodge in Montana's Glacier National Park. The next day they visited the delightful, colorful, Canadian town of Banff and historical Banff Springs Hotel. From Banff, they went to beautiful Lake Louise. All in all, it was a long-to-be-remembered trip!

In August, Larry and I met sis, Pat (Ethel) Updegrove '40, her husband Joe, brother Al Ford and his wife, June - both '47 - in Calgary, Alberta, Canada for a thrilling Tauck tour of the Canadian Rockies. We found Calgary to be a thriving old town with aspects of a frontier village. In Dominion Square, we saw Devonian Gardens, a beautiful small park located on the third floor of a main department store! At Fort Macleod, we met a number of Boy and Girl Scouts from Denmark, who had just attended the International Jamboree. Our tour took us to Waterton National Park in Alberta; Glacier National Park in Montana; through Kootney National Park en route to beautiful Lake Louise in Banff National Park; along the awe-inspiring road that is the Banff-Jasper Highway with its spectacular and ever-changing panorama of mountains, water falls, glaciers and snowfields to Jasper National Park and finally to Banff National Park for a two-night stay. We were all impressed with the National Parks we visited - the cleanliness, beauty, service (mostly by Canadian college students), food and lodging. Among other highlights of our trip was the ride along the 52 mile, "Going to the Sun" highway, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year and still is considered a road-building milestone. At Jasper, we took an exciting river-raft ride down the Athabasca River, the fur traders' highway, and a tramway ride up the incline to Whistler's Mountain. Our specially constructed glacier snowmobile ride out onto Athabasca Glacier, one of the nine glaciers that are run-offs of the Columbia Ice Fields, was rather scary but thrilling. The sunrise reflections on beautiful, emerald Lake Louise were also an unforgettable sight. This was, without a doubt, one of the most spectacular and beautiful trips we have ever taken.

Cecil W. Doss retired from Franklin County School System in 1979. He has just returned from an eight-day visit to Honolulu. He lived in Hawaii for six years during and after the war. His son and his family live near him and he is employed by the U.S. Postal Service in Rocky Mount, VA. Members of the class of 1936 please write to me and tell me about your self. How else can I write news about you? Please write!

38 Mrs. Erling B. Hauge (Jane Speakman) 503 Ivydale Road Wilmington, DE 19803

Would that this letter were being written in late October, after Homecoming, rather than late September. I'm sure there would be much more news to report. But twas ever thus with deadlines and I hope to have many goodies for our next letter in March.

For now there is a charming tidbit from Betsy Nichols Lowery. "We have been living aboard our 44-foot cutter-rigged sailboat for ten years: cruising summers in the Bahamas, west coast of Florida and up and down the Intercoastal Waterway between Maine and Key West, wintering in Marathon in the Florida Keys. An ideal life if you love boating, are retired, and the children are all married and on their own. We qualified in all categories and have met some wonderful and interesting people during this phase of our retirement. While my husband maintained 'Highland Light' winters, I worked part-time nursing at the local hospital, keeping up on the latest in medicine and loving every minute of it. Alas, arthritic knees, etc., take their toll, so we swallowed the anchor and moved to our winterized summer home right on Waquoit Bay, East Falmouth, Massachusetts. A beautiful spot, and we enjoyed our first winter North in ten years, with the help of a wood stove in the fireplace and long underwear. We still keep up our swimming of one-half mile three times a week and I still do some part-time nursing. We have a little 18-foot runabout for fishing and picnicking. Truly the good life. I have four children all doing their own thing and five grandchildren."

On a personal note, I'd like to share with you all what a wonderful time Nick and I had at Elderhostel for a week last summer. We took a hands-on course in computers, one in local archaeology and one in comparative religion at Laurentian University in Sudbury, Ontario. It was fun to eat in the college dining hall and live in the dormitory and exciting to meet marvelous people from all over the country. We can't wait to do it again, with different locale and different course.

Nancy Adams Hegeman has a daughter and son-in-law who are graduates of the College. Their daughter, Ann, traveled with Nancy in England, Scotland and Wales for a month last summer. Nancy wrote: "Ann was a delightful traveling companion, enthusiastic and young enough to want to stay close. She was a whiz at getting us around on the underground. She loved castles, enjoyed certain cathedrals, tolerated some museums. She learned to put cream in her cup before pouring in tea and managed to write postcards however illegibly on trains. We had a marvelous time. Bath was high on her list of places to go." That sounds like a memorable trip. . . Nancy won't be at our 45th reunion but is anticipating our 50th.

We hope lots of you are anticipating No. 50 and that No. 45 has just whetted your appetite for more!

40 Mrs. Franklin D. Henderson (Bobby Clawson) Box 186 Irvington, VA 22480

Just after the news for the last issue was due I received an outstanding letter printed on very impressive stationery with the seal of The State of Texas in the center, Justice of the Peace in large letters at the top and in smaller type at the left, The Honorable Paul H. Kratzig. To quote, in part: "During these years I have collected a number of titles, some of which are good and others not so good. I shall omit the 'not so good' as the better part of discretion. Titles: 'Rev.', Father, Doctor, Brother, Rector, Vicar, Pastor, Rancher, Farmer, Printer (own my own corporation so I can print what I write), President of this and that organizations and now, to cap it all, a very active Judge with the added title of 'Your Honor' and/or Judge. My only surviving son became a lawyer, practicing in Corpus Christi, Texas, but I beat him to the judgeship. . . ."

"For those with whom I have been out of touch my permanent address is: Rt. 3, Box 33 - Goliad, Texas 77963. I have the somewhat singular and dubious honor in the Episcopal Church Priesthood of having made only one change in all of my career, but I have had several addresses since moving into this area of Texas.

"Being a Virginian by birth and raising, with all of my education in that commonwealth, the roots are still deep in such tradition. The heartaches, tragedies, hurts and sorrows throughout the years have been the pruning shears for a life still very active with what I hope is a smile to others in their pilgrimage of life.

"For whatever use it may be, I still have all of my teeth and most all of my hair; weigh in at 141; shortened by 2 inches in height by the inexorable fate of all aging; have a revved up reconditioned heart with 4 bypasses; knocked a couple of times at the Pearly Gates but rejected (darn it); ride a horse, rope cattle and can throw a calf to the ground in nothing short; and Vicar of an Episcopal Church in Refugio, Texas. . . . Just a check-in with hopes I will hear from a few."

HOMEcomings ROYALTY

COLLEGE RESEARCH RECEIVES GRANTS

Grants totaling over $220,000 have been awarded to faculty members at William and Mary for research in biology, physics, chemistry, geology, and mathematics and computer science. The largest grant, for $71,974 from the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, has been awarded to Mitchell A. Byrd, professor of biology, for continuation of his work with endangered bird species. Grant awards to date for the program total $306,584.

Many thanks, Paul, for remembering to share all this with your class.

Also had a nice letter from Al Alley. During their visit in Virginia in June he and Margaret saw Al's sister-in-law, Janet Campbell Alley, of the class of '47. She had just returned from Germany where she was the keynote speaker for the European PTA Convention. She served a term as Virginia State President for PTA and is now on the National Council.

Al enjoyed their stay in Deltaville and their visits to Williamsburg, Yorktown and Hampton. He told the guide at Bruton Parish Church that her speil was better than the one he used to give when he guided there in the late '30's! He and Margaret were impressed with the growth of the campus since 1940! By the time they got back to California they had driven 8,000 miles in all.

Their son, Bill, spent the summer in preparation for grand opera auditions that will come up this fall and winter. We shall keep our fingers crossed for him, Al.

Gervais Wallace Brekke retired from teaching this fall after many years with a private school in Northern Virginia. I know you'll miss it, Gervais, but hope you'll enjoy your leisure too.

Mary Ruth Black Dowling is currently president of United Way Community Services in Central Maryland and on boards of Girl Scouts, the Maryland Association of Parliamentarians and the local AAUW. Both of her daughters are married and she has a two-year old grandchild. Mary Ruth lives at 450 Severnside Drive, Severna Park, MD 21146.

Frank and I returned the middle of September from a month's trip through New England, visiting near Bar Harbor, to our son in Keene, N.H., out on the Cape and then to our daughter's in Charleston, W.Va. We had a marvelous time, perfect weather and saw lots of old friends and family.

Hope to see many of you at Homecoming and glean some news for next time.

Irv and I have just returned from a motor trip through California and Oregon, visiting friends and family along the way. Our stop in Sacramento was to see my freshman roommate Louise Julius Greene. Daughter Ann lives in Eugene, Oregon. Someone in Chinatown, San Francisco, grabbed my wallet and used some cards, which has been a real hassle. Otherwise it was a lovely trip. The entire West coastline is just breathtaking.

Need you be told. . . next fall you will be featured in the Gazette. A 40th reunion will be scheduled for the, let's say, wise, mature and elegant members of the class of '44!

Two small world items -

Elizabeth (Betty) Overcast, '46, wrote the following: "William and Mary alumni meet all over the world. At the Waverly Hotel on Princess Street in Edinburg, met accidentally, and lunched with Betty Jean Niederlander Murphy and her husband."

Becky Kohler Hilbert attended a Pennsylvania Presbyterian church conference recently and was delighted to find 3Carolyn Hall Bare, '43, seated across the table.

Becky and her husband have retired from teaching and in their leisure sport around in a newly acquired Model A Ford.

I talked with Ted Bailey recently. Ted has been Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Tappahannock, Va., for the past eight years and is enjoying his work and life in that charming town. Ted and his wife met at Dickinson College. They have two daughters and are fortunate to have one of them working nearby. The other is in Boston working on her doctorate in English. Ted's wife is from Germany and they return often to visit her family in Berlin. Ted recently visited with Scarlett Pettigrew Stinton who was in Tappahannock visiting her parents.

Bill Smith and Jane, '48, sold their business and home in Michigan and have moved to Richmond, Va. They are living in the interesting Fan district of the city and are now responsible for the local edition of Travelhost, a weekly travel magazine placed in hotel and motel rooms throughout the nation. One of their first editions featured Williamsburg Fife and Drum players on the cover. Michigan's loss is Virginia's gain!

A beautiful cool, clear fall morning and such a welcome treat from the blistering summer we experienced. It is definitely Homecoming weather and I do hope to see many of you there for the occasion.

Dottie Hammer has a new address: One Twin Brooks Drive, Willow Grove, Pa. 19090. She has sold her family home and purchased a town house. Dottie was busy with tour groups in the spring - Italy in April, France in May and England in June - what a great way to spend the spring!

News from Red Rock Farm in Rapidan, Va. - Catharine Mitchell Holladay wrote of her middle daughter's wedding in July with the reception at the Farm. Cary was the class of '80 and Marty Leclerc '78 - best wishes from the class of '46. Tas is still doing free-lance writing with an article scheduled for October in an antiques magazine. She also writes "The Antique Column" for the Culpeper newspaper and says the research is work, but the writing is fun.

Allison and I have recently had two nice get togethers with Priscilla Fuller Downs and Mac, meeting first in Williamsburg for dinner, and later at a delightful party in their lovely home in Charles City. Pris and Mac are currently on their way for a vacation in England.

Nancy Grube Williams and I do keep in touch frequently with the good of the class in mind. We are anticipating a visit from Grubie in the near future.

Please - keep in touch!

Memorial - Daphne Andrews Crum, '46

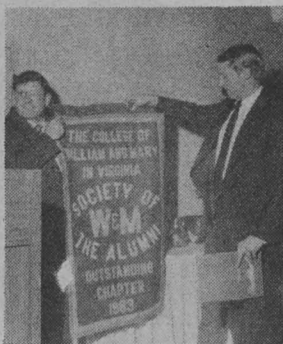

The Class of '46 and the College lost a loyal and devoted alumna when Daphne Andrew Crum died on April 29, 1983, in Wilmington, DE, after a brief illness.

The shock of this sad news gave cause to reflect upon many years of association with

ARTS AND SCIENCES SEARCH BEGINS

A search for a new dean of the faculty of arts and sciences at William and Mary has begun with the appointment of a committee headed by Professor Edward P. Crapol of the Department of History. Dr. Jack D. Edwards is currently serving as acting dean until replacement can be found for Dr. Zeddie P. Bowen who resigned to take a new position at the University of Richmond. The dean of arts and sciences is the chief administrative officer of the College of Arts and Sciences which comprises 23 academic departments. Applications should be directed to Dr. Crapol at William and Mary.

OUTSTANDING CHAPTER AWARDS

Daphne who, as an undergraduate, participated in many campus activities, was a member of Chi Omega and a friend to all.

In our years since graduation, Daphne remained the same ever helpful and spirited person and missed few, if any, reunions. No matter what the task, she never refused to do anything she could for the good of the College.

Who of us will ever forget her great performance as the Homecoming Queen on our 35th Reunion float in the Homecoming Parade? She stole the show and helped us win the prize.

To Johnny and her four children we extend our heartfelt sympathy. We too shall miss her. Whenever we gather she will be remembered with happy memories.

One month from today, we are hoping to be with Y'all in Williamsburg celebrating our big thirty-fifth! When I think how quickly the years have flown, all kinds of comments come to mind — all of them trite. So, kids, mark it on your calendar and be there!

One couple that is sure to be there are the Bill Smiths, formerly of Detroit, at present Richmonders. Jane Spencer Smith and husband Billy are living in the Fan district of Richmond, after thirty years in Detroit, and enjoying it very much.

The Smiths are responsible for the local edition of Travelhost, a weekly travel magazine placed in hotel and motel rooms throughout the nation. The magazines' headquarters in Dallas publishes eighteen pages of national travel news and advertising, but each city has an associate editor, like Bill Smith, to produce an additional sixteen page midsection devoted to Richmond. A headline in the July 31 issue of Travelhost best expresses the Smiths' feeling about their new home. It reads: "Richmond, Virginia, wondrously old. . . wonderfully new."

Both Jane and Bill are natives of Minnesota; and although they were together at William and Mary, they never met. Coincidentally, they ended up working for the same advertising agency in New York. In 1950 they eloped to Aiken, S.C., and left New York for Detroit in 1954. They have four children, three of whom graduated from their parents' alma mater in Williamsburg.

Jane and Bill's strong William and Mary ties became even stronger when in 1979-80 they became the first couple to be co-chairmen for the College's annual fund drive. Jane says that when they looked at the printout of those who gave, they knew 900 of those names. They came within $4,000 of reaching their $400,000 goal. Great job, Bill and Jane! We look forward to seeing you at Homecoming.

We look forward to seeing the Jim Brays, both of whom are retired. Jim wrote an interesting letter describing his and Jennie's trip to London in the spring. Both of them were guest speakers for two separate conferences — so separate that they were in two separate hotels in London. Thereby hangs a tale! Tell us about it at Homecoming, Jim. And do bring that brother of yours with you. The last time I heard from Ben he was in Roanoke. Was it 15 years ago?

I'll bet nobody is reading my letter this time. . . so sure you are that it would be about nothing except our trip this summer to Ireland and Germany. We had a great time and plan to bore you with all the details at Homecoming!

A class reporter is needed for the Class of '50. If willing to serve, please write to Frankie Martens, Society of the Alumni, Post Office Box 60, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187.

You've heard of people 'carrying their weight'? Our Bob Crist is doing that in an international controversy regarding the use of special muscle building drugs being used by athletes worldwide in the Olympics. Bob has used his titles and expertise as Chairman of the U.S. Weightlifting Federation from 1971-76 and President of the International Powerlifting Federation from 1973-76 to press for more testing measures among Olympic athletes. This was his main endeavor while he was a delegate to several International Olympic Congresses. ("Topics of discussion at the sports social events are the size of the drug bill and which doctors to see. The idea is not whether or not it's legal, but to not get caught using them.") Random inspection is the best control; however, lack of money and the attitude of the International Olympic Committee are the major roadblocks, according to Crist in the interesting article of The Daily Press, Hampton, VA, recently featuring Bob Crist in his efforts to "return to the natural athlete" in athletics worldwide. Perseverance, Bob, in a worthwhile crusade.

Nancy Barker Squires, Emporia, VA was elected in July of 1982 to a four year term to the Emporia City Council. She finds it a great learning experience. I'm sure it's a full time job, and an important one. The College of William and Mary certainly has its share of community servants throughout our nation.

Jane Kyle Mead and Bob '51, residents of the Akron, OH, area since 1971, invite you to visit them several miles off the Turnpike in Stow, OH. Bob has been working with B.F. Goodrich for 34 years and is Title Manager of Credit Services. Jane is Business Manager for a Dental Clinic and is enjoying work now that the three offspring are out of the nest. The Meads have two granddaughters in Denver, CO. They vacationed last summer at Nags Head, N.C., and found Martha Anne Hogshire '51 and Buddy Lex '50 under a sand dune, so stopped for a visit. Sounds cozy.

Charles Monaghan from Portsmouth inquired about Joe Agee and Dr. Worth Banner. Yes, Joe Agee is still at the College, still teaching and is golf coach. Dr. Banner, Professor of Modern Languages, Emeritus, retired about 1974.

Last year at this time a mob of us were celebrating our 30th reunion at the College. That year sped by. Start thinking 35th! as I am typing this in September it occurred to me that you will be reading this around Thanksgiving — so, Happy Holidays!

HAWLEY RECEIVES BUSINESS MEDALLION

Philip M. Hawley, chairman and chief executive officer of Carter Hawley Hale Stores, Inc., has received the 1983 Business Medallion from the School of Business Administration at William and Mary as a business leader "whose distinguished career as a contributor to the profession of management represents the highest standards of professionalism and integrity." Hawley, whose firm encompasses 26 stores in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, was described by Dean John C. Jamison as "a futurist who believes in the long-term view of management." The Business Medallion has been given annually since 1976.

MIKE D'ORSO '75 NAMED SONGWRITER AFFILIATE

Mike D'Orso '75 has joined Broadcast Music, Inc. (BMI) as a songwriter affiliate. D'Orso's first song, "Rain," recorded by country music star Mel Tillis, is featured on After All This Time, Tillis' latest album. D'Orso, who received his M.A. degree in English from William and Mary in 1981, is a senior writer for Commonwealth Magazine in Virginia. He only recently began writing lyrics, and with his signing with BMI, he becomes a member of the world's largest music licensing organization.

them about all your doings, and to save you time, I'll take care of it for you if you'll send me your news.

Joe Minton was a history major, but, believe it or not, he has made his mark in the field of designing interiors. Just look in the July issue of Architectural Digest, and you'll see his work pictured and described. He is a partner in the firm of Minton-Corley.

Martin Diggs is retired after a long career as a classroom teacher, then principal, home-school counselor, assistant supervisor of Federal Programs and Assistant Superintendent. He has been active in the Historical Society of Mathews County. He has been a lay preacher for many years as well.

John Getreu will retire next year from the U.S. Department of Education. He lives in McLean, Virginia.

Jo Kline Caylor is owner of a secretarial service and works as a free lance executive secretary. She's into amateur theater and enjoys choreography. Her home is in Winnetka, Illinois.

Did anybody recognize Rev Michael in the picture article in Southern Living describing his beautiful home in Olde Town in Alexandria? It was the August or September issue.

I've had the exciting job of serving as secretary in the Embassy of Lebanon for the past few weeks; it's been far from dull.

Will Molineux has been a busy citizen over the years. He and Olivia are justifiably proud of their sons, Leslie, a student at Christopher Newport College, and Brad, who's 12. Will is a member of the Williamsburg Kiwanis Club and the Richmond chapter of the Society for Professional Journalists/Sigma Delta Chi. After 26 years of service, he has retired from the U. S. Army Reserves with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

As if all that weren't enough, Will has been named editorial page editor of the Times Herald, a post that had been vacant for three years. We're very proud to know you.

Gerald L. Gulley, Sr., has been named the Tennessee Vocational Association's 1982-83 Educational Administrator for the Year. This award tops a long list of accomplishments, which includes being named the Jaycees Boss of the Year. The citation from the Vocational Education Teachers Conference lauded Gulley's placement of 330 people in less than two years. A very respectful tip of the beanie to you, sir.

A short report because of an empty mailbox. Come along, dear people. As the weather takes on a chill, warm your conscience with a note to "home."

Mrs. N. Davis Wrinkle, Jr.

Richmond, VA 23225

It was good to hear from many of you this summer. It appears that we will have many classmates attending our big "25" in Williamsburg on the 21st!

Melissa Smith Fitzgerald says they finished their two-year tour with the U. S. Embassy in Papua, New Guinea, in June, and she plans to attend Homecoming.

Harry Cornell writes that he and his wife Janet were pleased to attend their first "Parents Weekend" at William and Mary. Their oldest child, Christopher, is in the class of 1986 and is enjoying life in Williamsburg. Harry is controller of the Health and Beauty

Division of Chesebrough-Ponds, Inc., in Greenwich, CT. They hope to make Homecoming.

Denys Grant just doesn't stop making top news. At a ROTC commissioning ceremony at William and Mary in May, Denys was named to the Roster of Distinguished Graduates. Congratulations, Denys!

Toby Perry writes that he has three boys, ages 12, 14, and 16 who are actively involved in tennis, soccer, and swimming. Toby says, "I am presently a full-time tennis teaching professional as predicted by my William and Mary classmates."

Barry Goldstein has continued his activities with B'nai and B'rith holding numerous board positions. He is also on the Board of the New York Career and Counseling Service. He writes that his son is also very involved with B'nai B'rith organizations.

Carole Chase, through the years a loyal correspondent, writes that she has a Ph.D. in Christian Ethics from Duke University. She is Assistant Professor of Religion at Elon College. She became chairperson of the Religion Department for 1982-1984. She traveled to Israel and Egypt in 1982. Hope to see you at Homecoming, Carole.

Both of the Brendels have made news recently. Mary Ann will be heading Colonial Williamsburg's new historical interpretation department. Before this appointment, she was adult group coordinator. Congrats, Breezy. Attorney Johnston Brendel announced his candidacy for an eight-year term as clerk of the Williamsburg-James City County Circuit Court. "Jack" has practiced law in the Williamsburg area since graduation.

Sandy Berg Shirey wrote a note from Ashland where she is working in a branch of the Public Library. Sandy married Dick Shirey, '59 in 1958, and they have two children, Missy, a graduate of Radford University, and Frederick, presently at VCU. It was nice to hear from you, Sandy.

Michael Hodges reports that he has been involved in general management operations for multi-national firms for many years, including a long run in Europe. . . from which he resigned 8 years ago to answer the 'call to the sea' of Longboat Key, Florida, where he resides with his wife, Rosemarie, and their cruising sailing vessel. The Hodges recently entertained Bill and Judy Althans, together making plans to join up for the William and Mary Class Reunion. They hope to see a lot of old friends.

The William and Mary Choir Reunion in June was very well represented by our class. The incomparable "Pappy" Fehr led the alumni choir through a spectacular evening, and there could not have been a dry eye in Phi Beta when the group closed with the "Alma Mater" and "The William and Mary Hymn." Also, music by our own Merritt Ierley, an author and composer, was performed that evening. The choir reunion honored Dr. and Mrs. Fehr on their 50th wedding anniversary. The music, sung by the 150-voice choir at a banquet at the campus center, was a setting of a wedding hymn, "the words of which make it equally appropriate for an anniversary," writes Merritt. It was the third time music of Merritt's has been sung by the William and Mary choir. It was truly a beautiful tribute to "Pappy," Merritt.

The reunion brought my "old" suite-mate, Ruthie Peterson Barton, back from California by way of Florence, Italy, where she had been visiting her son. Ruthie's son is studying in Florence this year. Ruthie's enthusiasm for the choir reunion will bring her back for Homecoming in October.

I had an exciting trip this summer. I took a class at Virginia Commonwealth University that visited schools throughout England. For two weeks we visited schools and cities throughout Britain, and then I traveled another week in Wales and Scotland with friends. It was quite an experience to witness the British educational system on a first-hand basis.

O. K., everyone, we are really ready to go!!! Pat, put on your Indian mocassins, Carolyn, get out your SAE pin, and Ruthie, put on your sunglasses for studying at night! Bob Burchette, get ready for songs on the wall outside Jefferson and, Pikas, run down to Florida and get some Spanish moss. Lookout, Williamsburg, the class of '58 is about to descend! Please, everybody come! We'll see you on October 21 for the REAL Williamsburg Summit!

The mail brought a terrific letter from Elena Ruddy Coleman. Elena has been in Hawaii for the last six years and has moved back to the Mainland. She and her husband, Rick, and family are in Northern Virginia. Rick has been reassigned to the Department of Interior in Washington, D.C., after having managed wildlife refuges on all the islands in Hawaii. Elena has been working full time in Real Estate for the past four years. She has eight children from college to diapers. The latest child, Julie Lynn, was born on December 16, 1982. She has been involved in community theater and T.V. work. Hawaii saw Elena everyday on local commercials. Elena has also done a Japanese commercial, a Pond's commercial with Don Ho and recently an American Airlines commercial. Her favorite day was spent filming her one line on "Magnum PI" as the wife of a Texas football player. Elena took drama classes at The University of Hawaii and played Terence Knapp's leading lady in "Amphitryon." Rick had played her hero in three melodramas and convinced her to continue the script. She had a reunion in August with Carita Dalrymple Green and Martha Bell Laxson while JoAnn Dotson Holland visited Hawaii. Elena has bumped into Judy Case Falkenrath who is at The University of Hawaii taking courses.

Dorothy Heid Bracey was presented the Academy Fellows Award by The Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences for distinguished teaching and research in criminal justice. She has just returned to New York after a term as Visiting Professor at the University of Illinois.

The Reverend James E. Thomas represented the College at the inauguration of President Michael Hooker at Bennington College, Bennington, Vermont on May 15, 1983.

Ernie Phillips is an Associate Professor of Law at Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing, Michigan. He is married and has a 3½ year old daughter, Andrea.

On Labor Day Weekend I received a surprise visit from Norma "Sis" Murray Ayers and family. Bedford County is Sis Murray Ayers' home and she had come to visit her family. Sis is married to Robert Ayers who is retired and they have a son, Robbie. Sis works at the Pentagon and she is in charge of the Army personnel budget. It was great seeing Sis after twenty-one years. She had been in my orientation group back in our freshman year.

Please send me a Christmas card with some news of you and your family. Let's make this column longer the next time!

Doris Williams Wallace received a Ph.D. in Public Administration from American University in June, 1983. Doris lives in Gaithersburg, Md.

Florence Fay Pritchard published in the fall of 1982 a book entitled Improving Test Taking Skills, Riverside Publishing Company. This summer, she was appointed to the Maryland State Professional Standards Board for Teacher Education Programs and Teacher Certification Standards.

Kay Bonner Drews passed the Virginia State Bar and began working for the government as an attorney in April. She also plans to be involved in her own practice, as a post-mediation attorney.

Shauneen Ann Cruise Hutchinson received a Master of Education degree in Educational Leadership from the University of Delaware on June 4, 1983. In addition, Shauneen also holds an M.A. from Northwestern University and a J.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

Lloyd Becker is Professor of English at Suffolk Community College, Eastern Campus, and lives in Riverhead, N.Y. with his wife, Deborah and daughters, Allyson and Miranda.

This past spring he pursued post-doctoral studies in American Literature at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York, with a Mellon Foundation Fellowship, administered by the CUNY Graduate Center's Community Colleges Project.

Jimmye Dell Lubin Angell, Ph.D., lives in Walla Walla, Wa. with her ten year old daughter, Jennifer. Jimmye is in private practice in clinical psychology. She is building a cabin in the Blue Mountains and skiing a lot.

John Randolph coached the United States track team at the Pan American Games in Caracas, Venezuela in August. John is the head track coach at the University of Florida. His international background includes having been head coach of the USA National Junior team that defeated the USSR in both men's and women's competition, in 1971. From 1976 to 1979, he was the Chairman of the NCAA Track and Field Sports Committee. In 1981, John coached the USA national team against the Soviets in Leningrad, and he currently serves as chairman of the U.S. Men's Olympic Development Committee for next year's Summer Games in Los Angeles.

A welcome letter from Nancy Mahoney Minahan outlined her life for the past nine years. Nancy lives in Superior, Wisconsin with her two daughters, Kristi, 10, and Robyn, 6. Since 1967, she has been teaching psychology at the University of Wisconsin - Superior, a branch of the University of Wisconsin system. This fall Nancy assumed the duties of Program Coordinator for her department. She is also involved in private practice as a neuropsychologist (this involves testing patients for evidence of impaired cognitive abilities due to brain damage). Nancy comments, as so many others have, that managing a career and being a single parent is fatiguing, worrisome and satisfying and perhaps we as a society can find a better way to combine these ever increasing roles more effectively.

Philip VanKirk has joined Teradata, a California based company specializing in database computer technology. Phil will be responsible for developing their New York metropolitan marketplace. He was formerly Director of Information Systems for Schering Plough, the pharmaceutical consumer product company. Mary (VanLear) VanKirk continues her career at the National Telephone Directory Corporation in Union, New Jersey. The VanKirks and their children, Greg and Larissa, will attend Homecoming.

We had dinner with the VanKirks recently and Philip and I discussed that 1984 marks our 20th reunion. So we all have a year to lose ten pounds or redistribute, grow hair, stretch wrinkles, and appear, circa 1964, in Williamsburg next fall. I hope that many of you will make plans to come and will think of some special festivities in which we can celebrate and make our 20th reunion very memorable.

 (Nancy Rhodenhizer)
 921 Winthrop Dr.
 Virginia Beach, VA 23452

My only class news this time is a note from Bart Watt, telling of his move from Des Moines to Memphis. Bart is now with the Specialty Store Division of Malone and Hyde.

Arthur and I are in a transitional period now, as we are trying to sell our home in Virginia Beach and move back to Newport News. Arthur left Furmanite America, Inc., last May and returned to Noland Company, where he became Vice President of Finance on October 1. Until we sell our home and building is complete on our new one, Arthur will commute the hour plus drive each day.

We plan to go to Homecoming for the day on October 22. I'll let you know any news I hear from classmates.

This article is too short! Please drop a line telling of your happenings and whereabouts.

If you see someone on a Tylenol commercial but you can't quite place her, chances are you've seen Carol Bender Hooker Blaskowsky. Carol says she was "discovered" in a local shopping mall by Tylenol's ad agency and flown from her home in Bellevue, Washington, to Miami to do the commercial. She thinks the most exciting part has been hearing from people she hasn't heard from since graduation who've turned on "Dallas" and suddenly had her in their living room. When not filming commercials, Carol is a part-time employment specialist for Genetic Systems Corp., a part-time MBA student at Seattle University, and a full-time mother and volunteer. Carol lives with her husband Don in a suburb of Seattle with her three children: Will Hooker, age 11; Sarah, age 5; and Michael, age 3.

Sandy Rodden Akers is also living in the Northwest. She is a school psychologist in Portland, Oregon. She and her sons, Jim and David, enjoy the outdoor recreational opportunities available in the area - especially cross-country skiing and white-water rafting.

Greg Swem is a staff writer covering the arts for the Louisville Courier Journal.

Ben Pomeroy has been promoted to assistant vice president-field management for Colonial Life and Accident Insurance Co. of Columbia, S.C.

The next class notes will appear in the March issue of the Gazette. The deadline for news is Jan. 12, 1984. I hope to have heard from many of you by then.

Thanksgiving Greetings to All!

Thanks to all who included news for the column on the William and Mary Fund envelope. My next deadline is January 12 for the March issue - please send along any news of our classmates you might receive over the Christmas holidays.

A correction to my last report. . . Gayle Crawley Foster's daughter's name is Tyler.

John Shearin is again in the news. Known as Roger Forbes on ABC's daytime drama, "Loving," John is the third William and Mary graduate to be featured on a major daytime drama. Two lengthy articles on his career appeared in June in The News and Observer, Raleigh, N.C. and The Times Herald, Newport News, Va. John's acting career began under the direction of Howard Scammon at the College. He went on to Penn State for an MFA in directing and acting. His work contains such diverse credits as "Comedians" on Broadway, Lear and Macbeth at Williamsburg, the television mini-series "French Atlantic Affair," and the films "Eating Raoul" and "I'm Dancing As Fast as I Can." Off-off Broadway he starred in "Jazz Poets of the Grotto," a show he hopes to produce for another New York run. His television work includes an appearance in the last of the M*A*S*H series, as well as parts in "Bret Maverick," "Flamingo Road," and "The Doctors."

Another of our classmates was featured May 31st this year in The Richmond News Leader. . . Barry and Sandra Borden Koval are actively involved in a support group, NICU Grad-Parents. It is a group for parents of intensive care infants in association with the Medical College of Virginia's Neonatal Intensive Care Unit. The support group works with parents of intensive care infants to help them overcome apprehensions and deal with concerns for their child's survival. Sandy and Barry's interest stemmed from their own experience with their healthy and now three year old Marianne, who was born three and a half months premature.

Barbara Pate Glacel received an assistant position at University of Alaska, Anchorage. Her book, Regional Transit Authorities, was published last summer by Praeger Publishers.

Currently living in Washington, D.C., Janet Smith works in Bethesda, Md., as publications manager for the American College of Health Care Administrators.

In August, Wayne Duke was elected officer of the Bank of Virginia, Richmond. Wayne, a loan reviewer in the Richmond loan administration department, joined the bank in 1979 as a credit examiner and transferred to this position in 1981. Prior to working for the Bank of Virginia, Wayne was assistant state bank examiner for six years.

Having taught three years in Winchester, Va., Gretchen Shrader Saunder has "retired" to caring for her children - Meg, 8, and

PETER KALISON '57 NAMED WOLFSON VICE-PRESIDENT

Peter M. Kalison '57 has been named executive vice-president of Wolfson & Company, an Atlanta-based advertising and public relations firm. Kalison joined Wolfson from Mohasco Corporation, where he spent 12 years in a variety of senior communications management positions. His background in advertising also includes experience at Monsanto and the American Broadcasting Company.

FORMER FOOTBALL TRAINER DIES

John M. "Dusty" Rhodes, a volunteer trainer for the William and Mary football team for 32 years, died recently. A founder and first captain of the Williamsburg Medical Services, he retired in 1981 as director of the X-ray and EEG laboratory at Eastern State Hospital.

MERITORIOUS SERVICE

A 1973 graduate of William and Mary has been selected for a meritorious performance award by Virginia Attorney General Gerald L. Baliles. John A. Gibney Jr. '73, who graduated with honors, was selected for his work in representing the legal interests of the Commonwealth of Virginia in the Attorney General's Civil Litigation section in the Richmond area. A 1976 graduate of the University of Virginia School of Law, Gibney was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and co-editor of the William and Mary Review while a student at the College.

Drew, 5. Also, she serves on the Vestry of Calvary Church, is a La Leche League leader and volunteers in the schools. Her husband Wayne (U.Va., '71) is chief engineer with Capitol Records in Winchester.

Having returned to the U.S. from Germany, Reid Williamson is settling into his townhouse in Annandale, Va.

Centreville, Virginia 22020

I didn't receive too much mail this time, but some things are going on among our classmates.

Robert Rycroft has been promoted to the position of Associate Professor of Economics at Mary Washington College.

Peggy Drake writes that she sponsored an intern from William and Mary in her office. His name is Michael Arnold ('84) and he was working in the Economic Development Section of the Baltimore City Department of Planning and staying in Baltimore this past summer. As for Peggy, she is involved with volunteer work and planning work — plus two softball teams. She was surprised and thrilled to have been elected to the National Board of Offender Aid and Restoration/USA.

On May 21, 1983, Grace Marvin graduated from the University of Virginia after finally (emphasis on finally) finishing her requirements for a Ph.D. in Sociology. She is now an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Southwestern at Memphis, a liberal arts college.

Frankie Holmes completed her oncology fellowship at M. D. Anderson Hospital in Houston and had been appointed to the staff of the Medical Breast Oncology Service there.

From Bob Daniel we hear that his wife Anne ('74) is busy with aerobic dancing when she isn't dancing around after their energetic 3-1/2 year old, Andy. Bob is competing again in track and field meets in the Washington, D.C. area and loves it. He's happy to entertain past classmates when they are in D.C.

A captain in the U.S. Air Force, Mike Scarce is stationed at Columbus, AFB, Mississippi. He was promoted to Flight Commander, which means he oversees several instructor pilots who each have three students they are training on the T-38 Talon Jet. Besides this job, he has to maintain his flying quota and keep his schedule, including many cross-country flights and daily training flights. Earlier in his career, Mike flew to Europe several times and received the Air Force Commendation Medal and the Humanitarian Service Award for distinguished service and leadership. He and his wife Donna have a four-year old daughter, Marissa, and a new daughter, Megan. The Scarces hopes to complete their USAF tour in nine years and settle either in North Carolina or Texas.

My plea for news of Tri Deltas and Sig Eps seemed to fall on deaf ears, so I'll try asking this month for news of Thetas and Sigma Chi's. And anyone else, of course!

Barbara Brittain Stone, a Tri Delta, did answer my call, and wrote last month with her family's news. Last July she and her husband moved to Dover, Delaware where he began private practice as an orthopaedic surgeon. This fall Barbara is teaching at Wesley College three mornings a week, and tutoring Hispanic migrant workers in reading skills the other mornings. For the past five years, while her husband was completing his residency, Barbara was a reading specialist at Upper St. Clair High School in the suburbs of Pittsburgh.

Newlyweds: Tom Reed got married on August 27 in Norfolk to Kathleen Victoria McGuinness. Tom graduated from William and Mary's law school in 1977 and has a general practice in Norfolk. Ruth Ann Wilbur was married to Gregory F. Whitten on January 8 of this year. Greg is a 1973 graduate of U. Va.

New babies: John D. Shillingbury and wife Rebecca had their first child, a son named John K. Kaethe Post Ferguson and husband Don are the parents of a baby girl, Sarah Elizabeth, born August 6 in Johnson City, Tennessee. Kathy Todd Wilke and husband Tom ('75) have a new baby girl, Mary Katherine, born July 26. Chip Yancey and wife Sandy ('75) just had their second child, a girl named Melissa Lea, on Sept. 13.

News briefs (Some of these are very brief, so feel free to elaborate or clarify): Frank John Caccetta, Jr. received his masters degree in physical education from the University of Delaware in June. Beth Stoneburg has moved to Chicago where she works for Wm. M. Mercer, Inc. Dr. Wayland Eure, Jr. is in private practice with the Medical Center of Radiology in Riverside, CA. Barbara Pete French recently returned from a tour/cruise of Greece and the Greek Islands; she lives in Alexandria, VA.

Joseph Montgomery has been selected an "Outstanding Young Man of America" in recognition of "outstanding professional achievement, superior leadership ability and exceptional service to the community." Joe is a senior vice president/investment officer and account representative for Wheat, First Securities and lives in Williamsburg. He was recently named first vice-president for the William and Mary Athletic Educational Foundation.

Price Waterhouse announced the promotion of Paul A. Dayer to senior manager. Paul joined the firm only two years ago and works from the Buffalo, N.Y. office. He and his wife Anne Totty Dayer and their two children live in nearby East Aurora, N.Y.

Linda Bryant Curry graduated from Emory Law School and got married in June of 1981. Since then she has been working for a medium size law firm, Hyatt & Rhoads, in Atlanta.

This issue will appear after Homecoming, although it is written considerably before. As this is our ninth reunion. I hope that anyone unable to attend the festivities this year will start thinking now about the big tenth reunion next year. It's not too soon to plan any special parties or get-togethers, and it's certainly not too soon to get out your 1984 calendars and mark off the date, Nov. 3.

Another Homecoming will have come and gone by the time this is printed so I hope everyone had fun. We've had several letters since our last column, so we'll get on with the news.

Corporate Moguls: Vicki Murphy Roman-Lagunas writes that she is in Tucson, Ariz. where she received her M.A. in Latin American Literature in 1978. She works for Diamonds Department Stores, a division of the Dayton Hudson Corporation as regional director of training and executive development. In her "spare time" she dedicates herself to her husband Jorge from Santiago, Chile, and their ten-month old son, Juan Pablo. She would love to hear from old friends at 4432 E. Water St., Tucson, 85712. Jan Lyons McKee and her husband David live in Ft. Worth, Texas, where she works for General Dynamics in operations research and David is with Champlin Petroleum. She went to Switzerland in August where she presented a paper on mathematical modeling. Rob Roberts just moved to Houston from Chicago with American Cyanamide and is a proud new father. And Gordon Eide is a broker with Paine Webber in Richmond where he reportedly has many classmates for clients.

Men of the Cloth: Trevor Smith writes from Suburban Philadelphia where he is assistant pastor at the Bethany Collegiate Presbyterian Church. His wife of one year, Joany, is a nurse in an infant ICU at a nearby hospital. Most of Trevor's work is with the youth and he does everything from directing a summer camp to running a year-round youth program. He says that Andy Buckingham and his wife Rhonda Lee '77 will be going out as missionary translators with the Wycliff Bible Translators. And Jeff Jeremiah is on the staff of the fourth Presbyterian church in Washington, D.C.

New MBA's: Steve Proscino, from the Wharton Graduate Business School, started this summer with Anheuser-Busch in St. Louis in the corporate planning area. Prior to his program at Wharton, Steve worked for 4+ years with air products. Vanessa Popa, from the Darden Graduate School of Business (UVA), has started with Citicorp Financial, working as an assistant product manager on the choic card. I have also just finished in Vanessa's class at UVA and as you may have noticed by the address change at the top of the column have moved from the Virginia Area to Music City, USA. I am working for the real estate investment firm of Jacques-Miller as a product development analyst, putting together real estate limited partnerships for investors. My wife Shery '77 has joined the faculty of the School of Medicine at Vanderbilt University where she serves as research instructor in oncology.

Entrepreneurs: California must be the place for the entrepreneurial spirit as two of our classmates have headed west to start their own operations. W. Corey Trench and Suzy have moved to Westlake Village where he has opened a consulting practice in the area of environmental science. Prior to this they were living in the D.C. area where Corey worked for the Edison Electric Institute and Suzy was teaching learning disabled children. He reports quite a change of pace in California where rain comes from automatic sprinklers. He visited with Don Wizalek '77 who is working in Sacramento. Don came down for a visit and they went for a jog — Corey said that the pace was a little slower than a 1/4 mile, but the magic still there. Nancy Shumar Prescott writes from Tustin, California, that she has started her own catering business, "Gourmet Soirees," for which her stint as cook at the Alpha Chi House helped prepare her. She says that her most challenging job to date was a cocktail buffet for 150 people held at the local mortuary. She also does weddings, business luncheons, dinners, etc. This past summer with the lower European travel rates that some of us may have taken advantage of, Nancy went to Germany and Austria for three weeks. Nancy closed by saying she would be available to cater Williamsburg's next summit conference. Finally in this area, Steve Wilkerson has returned home to Forest, Va., where he is the owner and operator of Rainfrost Nursery, after having taken a full course load at the school of hard knocks.

Kate Schmidt Berger writes to let us know she is alive and well in Gretna, where she has two sons, a horse, a dog and 26 big acres of land to keep her busy. Her husband Glenn '74 is up for re-election as commonwealth's

PAT STONER '69 HOSTS PHILADELPHIA SHOW

Patrick Stoner '69 is the producer and host of a Philadelphia television interview and information show called Take Five, which celebrated its first anniversary in October. Stoner informs viewers about performances and current events in the Philadelphia area and interviews people connected with those activities. He is also a theatre and film critic for WHYY in Philadelphia, and his wife, Joyce Hill Stoner '68, is director of conversation for the Winterthur Museum.

TRIBE LOYALTY

Earl R. Hillman '35 and his wife Helen demonstrated true Tribe loyalty when they hitchhiked the final 100 miles to Hanover, New Hampshire, to see the William and Mary-Dartmouth game. Earl and Helen live in Memphis, Tenn., and had been on a fall foliage bus trip. Here they pose in front of the coach at the Hanover Inn.

attorney of Pittsylvania County this fall. Ridge Dewitt is working for his dad in North Carolina after spending 3 1/2 years in Nepal. Phil and Alice Wheeler Meilman are still living in Nebraska where she is an outpatient therapist in a community mental health clinic. She mentions having a hankering to move back east in the not too distant future. Anne Park reports being crazy, single and still having fun in Norfolk where she starts her 7th year teaching at Norfolk Collegiate High School. She also coaches a varsity soccer team and junior varsity cheerleading. Laurie Cone Pocher works as a structural pest control inspector with the N.C. Dept. of Agriculture. She says for the first time ever she is not in school and that it seems wonderful. From New York City, John Weiner bested over 500 actors to secure the lead role in the musical "La Cage." This marks John's Broadway debut and represents quite an achievement. John has appeared in over 25 commercials and on "Another World." I'm sure we will want to check out the play if we get to New York.

Sue Buzzell Browning is a senior marketing rep. for Xerox selling to the CIA. She married Kelly Browning on June 11, 1983. Kelly is Vice-President at Credit Card Services Corp. They have bought a home in Alexandria.

Ruthann Curry is appearing at the Burn Brae Dinner Theatre in Maryland as Grace in Annie. In November she plans to go to Aspen, Co. to do a caberet revue at the Crystal Place for the winter season. In her spare time she teaches voice and does commercial and radio spots.

Mark and Nancy Dunavant Scheffel had a son, Peter William, born in January. Nancy returned to work at CSC in Roslyn this summer teaching computer classes part time.

Donna Paxton Campbell is an Associate of the Society of Actuaries and is working at Life Insurance Co. of Va. She married Francis Bruce Campbell in August.

Dave DiGiovanna is a member of the American Stock Exchange trading for the firm of Spear, Leeds & Kellogg as a stock specialist. He spent two weeks this year in Japan visiting fellow Phi Taus Timothy Olewine '80, Neil Weinberg '81 and Lee Radin '82 in Tokyo. They are currently living in Japan and teaching English to private corporate clients.

Joe Brennan graduated from medical school at MCV in Richmond and returned to New England to begin his residency training at Yale Hospital in New Haven, CT. He plans to specialize in internal medicine. During the past year, Joe returned to King's College Hospital in London for 10 weeks. While at William and Mary, Joe participated in the Exeter program in London. He also writes that Bob Dunker and Carol Page received their M.D. degrees from MCV. Bob will be doing his residency at Riverside Hospital in Newport News while Carol will be completing her residency in internal medicine at Portland, Oregon.

Susan Stock has been promoted to manager, business development for the Specialty Chemical Division of Lonza Inc. She is responsible for the worldwide development of chlorhexidine, its precursors and end-products. Susan graduated with high distinction from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration in 1981.

Jeffrey P. Mayer represented the College at the inauguration of President Ruth A. Schmidt at Agnes Scott College, Decatur, GA. in April.

G. Warren Wahl is the new superintendent of York River State Park. He was previously assistant superintendent at Pocahontas State Park in Chesterfield Co. As the new superintendent, he will oversee a staff of 10 and recreational facilities that include a boat ramp, picnic areas, hiking trails and a growing environmental education program.

Martin G. Leclerc and Cary Holladay '80 were married in July in Rapidan, Va. Cary is working as a writer and production editor for Issues Management Reports, a media tracking newsletter. Martin is an account executive with Dean Witter Reynolds. They are living in a condominium in Alexandria. Paul Dingman was an usher in their wedding. Paul is now living in Austin, TX. and working for a computer firm, Continuum Corp.

John and Melissa Dozier Friedery send greetings from Ardmore, OK. Melissa is the new Preschool Division Director at their church.

Will Deming is now studying in Germany. He moved in August of this year.

Judy Worthington married Mark Gratton in July. She is attending George Mason University where she will receive a BSN and RN after completing another year.

David Brown recently completed his internship in Charleston, S.C. He has started building an airplane and plans to move to Pensacola, Fla. next year to train as a Navy flight surgeon.

Jenny Runkle Carver is planning to enroll in the Accounting PhD program at the University of Arizona this fall. She hopes to complete her coursework in two years and then to return to her teaching activities at Montana State University in Bozeman, MT.

Debora Cress is a second year law student at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Paul Serra is working as a radioactive waste specialist at a nuclear generating station in Southern Ca. On the weekends he enjoys flying and hang gliding.

David Seitz is a fourth year medical student at the University of Southern California in L.A.

After graduation, Ali Mohammad Mojdehi moved to Oklahoma and started law school at the University of Tulsa. While in law school he served as Articles Editor of the Tulsa Law Journal. Ali is currently serving as Associate General Counsel at the Oklahoma Securities Commission in Oklahoma City.

Bruce Congh completed his masters degree in microbiology during the summer of '81. He worked at NIH through the summer of '82 and is now a third year medical student at George Washington University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C.

Deborah Gordon Drissi is in Algeria for two years with her husband and infant son.

Mary Harasek married Doug Ziegenfuss on October 22. After spending a short period in Houston as a bookkeeper and teacher, she returned to Richmond and resumed her job as Office Manager at WRFK radio station.

Van Black sends greetings to all of his friends in the class of 1978. He is enjoying his work at GE and life in Cincinnati. He was not able to attend Homecoming this year but would love to hear from friends if ever in the Cincinnati area!

For those who could not make it to Homecoming, we missed you and would love to have news from you. Please write!

Hello! I have a lot of news for you so I'll try to keep this short. Hope all is well with you. Remember my new address — yes, it's changed again — I'll be here for at least this year.

Lisa Eddy completed her masters degree in forestry at Duke University in May. When she wrote, Lisa did not have formal plans for a job because she was busy planning a couple of major events. Lisa was married to Jim Nicol, who also graduated from Duke. Jim works for the Container Corporation of America in Chicago, so, the second event was a move to Chicago. The wedding party included Sue O'Loughlin, Kathy Burke, Nancy Tammi, and Jill Saveracker.

Heidi Kunz was married to Bradley Bullock at Bruton Parish in May of 1982. Brad did his undergraduate work at Baylor University in Texas and went on to Vanderbilt University for graduate work, which is where he and Heidi met. Heidi was working on her PhD in English, while Brad was working towards a PhD in sociology. Heidi also wrote that Jerry Plunkett was attending medical school at the University of Cincinnati.

Richard Lacey completed a 30-week sales training course for Burroughs Wellcome Co. He is now a sales representative based out of Atlanta. Burroughs Wellcome manufactures pharmaceutical products.

Steve Harrison is working for VEPCO at the North Anna facility as a nuclear health physicist. He has about one year left in nuclear training program. Steve married Ellen Stine McCarron in December of 1980. When Steve wrote, he and Ellen were expecting a new arrival. Congratulations to the proud parents!

Meo Curtis received a master of science degree at the College of Marine Studies at the University of Delaware where she studied crustacean larval ecology. In connection with an International Sea Grant project, Meo participated in a research project in Costa Rica. Lee Hilldrup is working as a quality control inspector for VEPCO in Monterey, at the Bath County Pumped Storage Construction project. Other news is that Lee was married.

Cindy Weaver graduated from the Walter F. George School of Law at Mercer University in June. She passed the Georgia bar exam and is now an associate attorney with the firm of Heard, Leverett & Adams, P.C. in Georgia.

Bruce Patterson was married to Kristine Winegar ('82) in June of 1982; the wedding was in the Wren Chapel. Bruce and Kristine are living in Atlanta where Bruce works for IBM as a staff representative in the Biomedical Systems Division and Kristine works for Macy Corporation. It sounds like Bruce has been busy — besides work, he participates in

I know many of you are expecting to read news from Homecoming but you will have to wait until the next issue as this column was submitted in September! I hope all of you that were able to attend enjoyed our 5th year reunion. Many thanks to Elizabeth Wagner for coordinating our activities.

After a year as a librarian in Heidelberg, Germany, Holly Wilson transferred to an Army post in Vicenza, Italy. She is serving as an "itinerant librarian" which involves overseeing Army libraries in Italy, Greece and Turkey.

Martha Williams is living in St. Louis where she is working for Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. as an underwriter. She also enjoys working as a Mary Kay Beauty Consultant.

Ken and Lynn Whitlock Ashworth are working at DePauw University in Greencastle, Indiana. Lynn has served for the past year as Assistant to the Director of Off-Campus Study and Foreign Student Advisor. Ken is the Director of Financial Aid.

Congratulations to John and Robin Wamsley Schilling on the birth of their son, Ryan Fergusson, on Sept. 6. They recently moved into a new home in Richmond. John continues to enjoy his law practice with White and Blackburn.

FACULTY RECEIVE NEH RESEARCH GRANTS

Three members of the William and Mary faculty have been awarded research grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities for the coming year. Elsa Nettles of the Department of English will work on a study of William Dean Howells' treatment of language, race and class society in his fiction and essays. John H. Willis, also of the Department of English, will use his grant to support his writing and research on the last four chapters of a book-length history of Leonard and Virginia Woolf's Hogarth Press. The third recipient, Miles L. Chappell Jr. '64 of the Department of Fine Arts, will work on an exhibition and catalog of the paintings of Cristofano Allori (1577-1621).

the Big Brother program and serves on the Atlanta chapter of the Alumni Association Board of Directors.

Linda Anderson recently accepted a new position with International Bank in Arlington as treasurer of the Finance and Leasing Group. Linda Rives started graduate studies in social studies education at the University of Virginia this fall. For the past year, Linda has been serving as a missionary with Christian Aid, which assists developments around the world.

Carolyn Ross was married to Charles Martin last fall. Carolyn and Charlie both worked at GTE Systems until August, when they moved to Durham, North Carolina, so that Charlie could attend Duke University for graduate work in computer science.

Sandi Rich (class of '81) and Ben Glass were expecting their first child when I heard from them. Congratulations on the new arrival! Ben graduated from George Mason University Law School this past year and sat for the bar exam. Sandi is working for Information Planning Associates, a computer firm.

Susie Piedmont wrote from Old Town Alexandria, where she is finishing her masters degree in architecture at the Washington/Alexandria Center for Architecture. This past summer, she was free-lancing and will be doing her thesis this year.

James MacPherson is working in Bethesda, Maryland, as an environmental chemist and, all in all, is having a great time! Sergio Galvis graduated from Harvard Law School in June. He is clerking with Judge Lawrence Pierce, Federal Judge for the second circuit.

Kevin Parks was married to Karen Beamer in April of 1982. He and Karen recently had the chance to take a vacation in Williamsburg. Kevin said it was good to be back, but they had to return to Illinois where Kevin is finishing up his studies at the National College of Chiropractic Medicine.

Dan Weintraub is living in Delaware where he is a clinical psychologist at a juvenile correctional center. Dan received his MA in psychology from Connecticut College, (my neck o' the woods!). Richie Andrews is living in Greenville, South Carolina, where he has been working as department manager for Milliken and Company since graduation. Tom Fulcher wrote from Arlington where he is busy as the special assistant to Virginia 10th District Congressman Frank Way. Jeffrey Lucas was married to Ano Withers in April. Jeff and Ann are living and working in Williamsburg, where they are in business for themselves.

Carol Ashworth has been working in the trust department at First and Merchants Bank for about one year and has recently begun graduate courses at VCU. Terrell Coe has been busy since graduation — he received his MBA from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He was a sales representative with Virginia Packaging Supply Co. out of Washington and recently accepted a new position as a professional sales representative for Smith Kline & French laboratories in Chapel Hill.

Congratulations are now in order for Sarah (Banks) and David Gifford (1979, J. D.) who are the proud parents of a bouncing baby boy, Matthew Brayton, born in May. Matthew is their first child.

Ruth Cupery received her masters of environmental management degree from Duke University and recently started work at Radian Corporation in Durham, North Carolina, as an environmental scientist. Ruth really seems to enjoy her work. While at Duke, Ruth met her future husband, James Mead, who also received his masters in environmental management. Ruth and Jim were married in June of this year, and spent their honeymoon in Oregon and California. I attended the wedding of Veronica Terry and Rick Lewandowski in May. Veronica and Rick met at the University of Maryland where they both received their masters degree in horticulture. They now live in Ambler, Pennsylvania. Veronica is working as a research physiologist with Rohm and Haas, a pharmaceutical firm, while Rick is the assistant curator for propagation with the Morris Arboretum in Philadelphia. Lynne (Whitmarsh) and Steve Binari ('79) also attended the wedding. Lynne received her masters degree in plant physiology from the University of Maryland last December and is now working at the National Institute of Health! I also saw Cathy Welch who is busy at medical school at the Medical College of Virginia. Cathy is definitely keeping busy, but enjoys med school very much.

Daryl Wedding writes from Houston, Texas, where she is employed as a compensation specialist for Southwest Bankshares, Inc. Daryl received her masters degree in industrial/organizational psychology from Rice University. However, the most exciting news is that Daryl was married to Steven Shepherd, this past July. Members of the bridal party included Pam Snidow Thaxton, Stephanie Jones and Patty Jermain. Pam and Jeff Thaxton live in Cincinnati, Ohio, where Pam works for a bank and Jeff is attending graduate school. Stephanie works for the EPA in Washington and Patty works for ATT Longlines in Oakton.

Cary Holladay and Martin Leclerc ('78) were also married in July. They honeymooned in Mexico, but, unfortunately, had to come back to work! Cary works as a writer and production editor for "Issues Management Reports," while Martin is an account executive with Dean, Witler Reynolds. Cary and Martin have recently moved into a new condo in Arlington.

Susan Trawicki writes from Manhattan where she is teaching; however, she had quite a trip before reaching New York. Susan was teaching biology and chemistry with the Peace Corps in Zaire. I imagine it may be a nice place to visit, but, as they say, there's no place like home!

Carol Ann Hilton has been appointed as the director of annual giving at Wagner College in New York. Before assuming this position, she served as the director of corporate relations at the College. Past experience included positions with CASE, University of Maryland and the University of Evansville, Indiana.

Robin Sanders completed the requirements for her MA degree in math last spring and is currently working towards her PhD at the University of Illinois. Jim Griffin is having a great time down in the Fort Lauderdale area — something similar to an extended spring break. Jim is working for Smith Barney.

Well, that's about all the news I have for now. I still have yet to hear from a lot of people out there, so please drop me a line with any news you may have. (Remember my new address, above!) Love to hear from you.

The credit for this edition of the Class of '82 column goes to those alumni who wrote to tell me about themselves and their classmates. I changed the format of this month's letter to reflect their contributions. Actually, the due date for this issue was just six weeks prior to Election Day, and I'd have been frantic trying to compile the class news for this edition and work to re-elect Senator Bobby Scott at the same time. So, thank you for making my reporting job easy and not costing me my real job with the campaign. Jim Comey is in his second year at the

CLASS LETTERS 44 YEARS OLD

The first class letter printed in the Alumni Gazette appeared in the October 1939 issue and was written by the secretary of the Class of '39, Fran Grodecoeur, who continues as the reporter today. The editor at that time was Charles P. McCurdy, Jr. '33. The 1939 class was the largest graduating class to leave William and Mary since 1693, graduating 236 in June and 36 in August of that year.

University of Chicago Law School, but found time to visit Patrice Failor, a Peace Corps volunteer, in the jungles of West Africa. (While there he also found himself with malaria.) Jim wrote that: Dave Eklund is a trainee with Lloyd's of London; Todd Irick is getting a chemistry master's degree and getting married in Ottawa, Canada; Skip Dolan is married to Violet Jackson and has a son named Roosevelt Eugene; Greg Sampson is at law school in Maryland (Jim says, "Write, Greg, now!"); Toney Roberts works at a Richmond bank and may also chance a visit to Africa; and Buff DeBelles is living in Manhattan waiting for his big break into broadcasting.

Carrie Solomon, a new Law Review member at American University in D.C., keeps in touch with Pete Beverage, Jay Gaucher (a scholarship recipient to MCV), Rebecca Lewis (now living in Nags Head), and Suzanne Sellers Jones, a public relations administrator in Roanoke.

Frank Robert called to tell me he had taken a break from teaching and going to class in order to visit his former roommate Bill Maher in Charlottesville. Congratulations are in order for Bill and Clay Warner as both made UVA's Law Review and to Frank for dragging old William and Mary friends away from their law books long enough to enjoy the Charlottesville nightlife.

Jane A. Cuthrell works as an administrative assistant for a property management company in Japan, and likes it so much she may teach English there as a foreign language.

Glenn Shine is teaching and coaching a swim team at a Milwaukee high school and is starting MBA school at the University of Wisconsin.

Richard and Cynthia Vick Choate are living in McLean, Virginia, where she is with Maryland National Bank and he is with the U.S. Department of the Army.

Laura Wortman Solitario wrote and asked that I print the name of the woman who is handling memorial contributions for Isabel Asuncion, Class of '82, who passed away earlier this year. A tree will be planted in her memory on campus. Please send contributions to: Mrs. Barbara Hager, 221 Queens Drive West, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

Over forty-five Class of '82 alumni returned the William and Mary Fund information form with news for the Alumni Gazette. They include: Chuck Barham with Wachovia Bank in Raleigh, where he also serves as the Chairman of the Triangle Chapter of the Society of the Alumni Recruiting Committee; Kim Kalman, the Youth Minister at St. Bede's Church in Williamsburg; Diane Hess, a student at Lewis and Clark Law School in Oregon; Gary Hammersmith, director of a Legal Assistant's Society labor project while at UVA Law School; Paula Palmore, a military analyst with Mitre Corporation in D.C.; David Crank, a graduate student in Theatre Design at Carnegie-Mellon; Mary Anne Sanderford, the Assistant Director of Virginia Minority Supplier Development Council in Richmond; Jim Frye, the Assistant Director of Government Affairs with the American Institute of Architects; Matthew Bernart, pursuing an environmental engineering master's in Logan, Utah; and Dave Rogers, a contracts administrator in New Hampshire; Amy Schoner is earning a geology master's at the University of Tennessee; Curt Whitaker spent the summer interning with a Pittsburgh law firm and going to lots of Pirates' games; Wayne Curtis is a T.A. at the University of Delaware and is studying toward a MA in American History specializing in Museum Studies; Nancy Thomas Jernigan married in February and is an underwriter in Richmond; and Michelle Coster is happy with the Banking Committee on Capitol Hill and enjoys telling friends about the good times at William and Mary. John Cafferky got married in May and began law school this fall at Harvard; Jeff Forbes is at UVA's Med School; Evelyn Kirkley is getting a master's in Divinity in New York; Mike Canny is a patrolman with the Hampton Police Department; Zohreh Kazemi moved recently to Paradise Valley, Arizona; Tom Prince is in New York, not at UVA, working for Esquire magazine; Diane Baker is a marketing analyst for Anheuser-Busch and visits a different brewery each week; Janet Mallison spent her summer at the beach, and got to help train a William and Mary 1983 grad for her employer, Proctor and Gamble; Mary Grace Nuckols was in Andover, Massachusetts, teaching writing at Phillips Academy; Margaret Maher is an underwriter in Leesburg; Steve Budd is starting law school this fall at Columbia; Lynne Shannon Healy and her husband Chuck are in Newark, New Jersey; Midge Stocker just invested in personal computer and is a freelance editor and writer in Chicago; Carol Wetmore is earning a master's degree in Learning Disabilities from Northwestern University; and Annamarie Zaborowski married Bill Swertfager and is working for Marine Midland Bank, National Corporate Division. They just bought their first home in Kahonah, New York. Mary Clayton is a Front Office Supervisor for Westin Motel in Boston. Julie Findlay is a Museum Technician at the Smithsonian Institute and is getting married around Christmas to a Foreign Service Officer. They will be moving to Monterey, Mexico. Sarah Wiggert is studying Art History at the University of Illinois. Debbie Angstadt is a management associate for United Way, while Curt is a budget analyst for Best Products in Richmond. Beth Fournier is with Marriott Hotels in D.C., and Glenn Campbell is in a Philadelphia Med School.

Again, I appreciate everyone's letters, whether long and newsy or just a line. I hope many of you can get away for the weekend and come to Homecoming. Don't forget the Class of '82 pre-game get-together in the parking lot opposite the Infirmary. It's an informal chance for us to see each other all at once. Hope you can make it!

PRENTIS AWARD

Robert H. Rathert, Williamsburg plant manager for Anheuser-Busch, Inc., has received the 1983 Prentis Award given by the Friends of the College organization at William and Mary in recognition of his accomplishments in the field of business and his service to the College and local community. President Graves cited Rathert's "exemplary business practices, community service and outstanding stewardship in strengthening a bond of mutual respect between the university and one of the great Fortune 500 companies."

PRESIDENT'S HOUSE CELEBRATION

A series of activities during the weekend of Oct. 28-30 at William and Mary commemorated the completion of the President's House 250 years ago when the Rev. James Blair, first president of the College, was believed to have moved into the stately Georgian mansion. The events included a program called "Music of the President's House," a black-tie dinner, and an exhibit entitled "A House and Garden Suitable to the Place: The President's House at the College of William and Mary," which will continue through Jan. 6 in Swem Library. Another exhibit, "Furnishings From the President's House," will be on display in the College's new Muscarelle Museum of Art Jan. 6-27. The final event of the 250th anniversary celebration will be a day-long symposium on "The Taste of the Times: Virginia, 1732-33," scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 21.

DEATHS

WILLIAM HANSEN DEIERHOL, '12 A. B., of Richmond, Virginia, died September 16, 1983. A member of Pi Kappa Alpha at William and Mary, he began teaching at Williamsburg High School immediately following his graduation. The next year, he moved to Richmond, where he served as assistant principal of the old Nicholson School and then of Binford Junior High. From 1923 - 1930, he was principal of Robert Fulton School, and from 1930 - 1942, principal of Binford. He then served as principal of Westhampton High School until 1954, when he was appointed assistant superintendent of Richmond public schools; he retired from that position in 1960. A U.S. Army veteran of World War I, he served with the infantry in France. In 1922, he worked briefly as a textbook editor for the World Book Company, and in 1924, he earned his master's degree from Columbia University. A co-founder of the Richmond Institute of Lifetime Learning, he was active in various retirement and senior citizen organizations. A member of Ginter Methodist Church, he is survived by his wife Emily and three sons, including Frank, '49, and Tyler, '53.

WILBERT TUCKER WOODSON, '16 A. B., died July 12, 1983, in Fairfax, Virginia. A member of Sigma Phi Epsilon at William and Mary, he did graduate work at George Washington University and served in the U.S. Army in France during World War I. He began teaching in Nansemond County, Virginia and served as dean of Fork Union Military Academy until 1925, when he went to work in the central administration of the Fairfax County public school system. Four years later, in 1929, he was named superintendent of the Fairfax school system; he retired from that position in 1961. During his administration, the Fairfax county system grew from a modest rural school system into one of the largest systems in Virginia. When he retired, the county's newest and largest school was named for him - W. T. Woodson High School. He was a member of various professional and civic organizations and of Fairfax Baptist Church. Survivors include a daughter and a son.

Survivors include two sisters and a brother.

CHARLES R. ARMENTROUT, '30 B.B.A., of Staunton, Virginia, died January 2, 1982, following a long illness. A transfer student from Bridgewater, he went to work for the DuPont corporation in Waynesboro after his graduation from William and Mary. He retired from DuPont in 1970, having served for many years as cashier and paymaster. Survivors include his wife Florence, a stepson, and two brothers.

EDWIN DARIUS MEADE, '33 B.A., died July 13, 1983, at the home in which he was born on Oak Island Beach, Long Island, New York. At William and Mary, he was captain of the track team, and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon and the football team. He earned varsity letters in football, swimming, boxing, tennis and track, playing in the first North-South football game as an All-American guard and taking part in the 1932 Olympic Trials in Los Angeles, in the javelin competition. He worked for Uniroyal, Inc. for 35 years, retiring in 1966 as Director of Commercial Relations. Following his retirement from Uniroyal, he worked with the management consulting firm of Edward N. Hay and Associates, retiring for the second time in 1981. An avid sportsman, he was also a writer, and he had recently written an article on the history of Oak Beach which was published in the "Long Island Forum." Survivors include his wife Marie; three sons - Garret M., '66, Edwin D. Jr., '72, and Roger D. JD '75; a brother; and a sister.

MARY KINSLEY JEAN (LYON), '34, of Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania, died May 30, 1979. A member of Kappa Delta at William and Mary, she was Director of Disaster Services and Senior Caseworker for Service to Military Families for the American Red Cross, until her retirement in 1976. She was active in numerous civic organizations and in her church. Survivors include her husband John and three daughters.

RACHEL EASTWOODS GRIFFIN (NELMS), '39, of Nashville, North Carolina, died December 6, 1981. A member of Kappa Delta at William and Mary, she was retired at the time of her death. She is survived by her husband Horace.

JEAN RHODES EDWARDS, '42 B.A., of Palo Alto, California, died October 15, 1982, after a long illness. Following her graduation, she served in the U.S. Navy, retiring as a Lieutenant Commander. When she retired, she was in charge of the Naval Accounts Office at the U. S. Naval Station in Long Beach, California. Survivors include a sister, Barbara Edwards Diefenderfer, '55.

DOROTHY ROBERTA VOGEL, '42 B.A., of Baltimore, Maryland, died November 25, 1982, of cancer. A member of Kappa Delta at William and Mary, she was a real estate agent. Survivors include her mother and a brother.

An anthropology and religion major, she had hoped to become a biblical archaeologist. Her battle against cancer began in January, 1980, and despite operations and chemotherapy treatments, the disease spread throughout her body during the next three years. She became active in an American Cancer Society program, Can-Surmount, spending considerable time visiting with children who were patients in the cancer clinic at the Medical College of Virginia. Survivors include her husband Chuck and her mother.

ANTHONY ANDRE LUCAS, '87, of Newport News, Virginia, died September 27, 1983. Although his death was sudden and unexpected, it apparently resulted from an infection which occurred as an indirect result of a 1979 operation for Hodgkins' Disease. A graduate of Warwick High School in Newport News, he was a walk-on member of William and Mary's football team. He was also active in the Virginia Student Transition Enrichment Program (VSTEP), which helps black students admitted to William and Mary adjust to college life before they start school. He is survived by his parents.

The Society of the Alumni of the College of William and Mary now has available a distinguished line of 14 karat gold jewelry. The design is based on the Royal Cipher of King William III and Queen Mary II as carved on the ancient boundary marker of the College, now a treasured artifact in the Earl Gregg Swem Library. Skilled artisans of Colonial Williamsburg have crafted these pieces to serve as a distinguished reminder to each alumnus of the royal heritage of this historical college.
