THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

New dean team heads arts and sciences

Mel Schiavelli and Tom Finn bring experience to leadership roles

When William and Mary opened the doors this fall for its 291st academic year, a new team of deans was in place. Two are new: Melvyn D. Schiavelli is Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, and Thomas M. Finn is Dean of Undergraduate Studies. They join Rolf G. Winter, Dean of Graduate Studies, as the trio which oversees faculty efforts in behalf of students studying arts and sciences.

Schiavelli and Finn are both veteran teachers, highly respected by their peers, and both have been members of the College community for well over a decade. Both have high hopes for the College's future and are optimistic and enthusiastic about their jobs.

Dr. Schiavelli had been chairman of the chemistry department since 1980, after a career at William and Mary that began in 1968. He has served on a number of important committees and built a solid reputation for his insight and capabilities. In the chemistry department, he was a persuasive advocate for the College as a great place to study science, as well as the liberal arts.

"The National Science Foundation did a study looking at the 20-year period from 1960 to 1981," he says. "Here were listed all the people in the U.S. who got a Ph.D. in chemistry. Where did they do their undergraduate work? If you look at where W&M ranks, you discover that of all public institutions that do not themselves offer Ph.D.'s in chemistry, we're number one. More people did their undergraduate work at William and Mary and got Ph.D. degrees in chemistry than at any other public institution that does not have a Ph.D. program."

He suggests that the College's liberal arts education gives science graduates of William and Mary a competitive edge because they can read and understand problems, sort out answers and write reports that are cogent and to the point.

The popular Schiavelli is good-natured, unflappable, and doesn't harbor grudges. He has a good word for everybody and even while hurrying to one of his many meetings, he takes time to listen to an individual problem. Easy-going and relaxed, he is a sociable person, quick to laugh.

"I'm big on being a professional in what I do," he declares. "I want to be right the first time, but if not, I will do it over so it will be right. That trait may come from being an experimental scientist. I'm not afraid to try an experiment more than once."

He took office after Commencement last May, upon being tapped for the deanship by the Board of Visitors. What the search committee was seeking was an experienced individual who would be responsible not only for administering the curriculum in arts and sciences, but one who would serve as liaison between faculty, administration, students and alumni. Mel Schiavelli fills the bill admirably.

A native of Chicago, he is 42 and a Cubs fan. He has a B.A. degree from DePaul University and his Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley. He plans to continue teaching at least one graduate chemistry course.

He comes into office at a time when both the President and the Provost have given notice that they intend to make this their last year. Three other key administrative department heads have indicated they will leave in 1985, so Mel Schiavelli is starting his deanship between the completion of one administration and the beginning of another. It is a pressure time.

"It might have been a tenuous situation had this job been held by an outsider," he comments. "But I've been here long enough to see several deans and presidents come and go, and I believe the College is better now than it was 16 years ago when I came. We have a great resource in our faculty and students. I have the opportunity to shape the thinking of the new President and Provost, and I'm optimistic about that. I want to restore excitement to the campus! And I have to convince the new President and Provost that my opinion is important, and what I have to say is worth listening to."

As Dean of Undergraduate Studies, Tom Finn, who reports to Mel Schiavelli, also wants to restore excitement to the campus. The position is new to the College and replaces the now abolished post of associate dean. His major responsibility is administration of the undergraduate instructional program, including educational policy, international studies, Honors and experimental programs, writing across the curriculum, and academic advising.

"I am excited about the possibilities of the job," he says. "I have always been deeply interested in what goes on in undergraduate classrooms and am concerned that quality education is maintained. The position makes it possible for me to make a difference in undergraduate life here. I feel comfortable in the middle of the faculty, and have great respect for them."

He joined the faculty 11 years ago and continues to teach one course in religion each semester. He will also pursue research interests in the social world of early Christianity, for which he has received numerous research grants from both the National Endowment for the Humanities and from William and Mary, and has published extensively.

Tom Finn is energetic and intense. It appears that all his life experiences have uniquely equipped him to hold the new position. One of eight children, he was born 57 years ago in New York City and was raised in Ardsley-on-Hudson, N.Y. His mother was a professional etcher and his father was her printer, both working at home. As a young man, he joined a Roman Catholic religious order, the Paulist Fathers. After nine years of study he was ordained a priest in 1959. Following several years as a college chaplain, he returned to Catholic University where he was awarded a doctorate in early Christian history and thought. In 1965 he joined the faculty and later went to the University of Connecticut as chaplain. Subsequently he became a member of the religion faculty at Syracuse University. He realized that what he wanted most in life was teaching and research, and the Paulists were not a teaching order.

He had no quarrel with the church nor it with him, but he left the Paulists in 1968 while at Syracuse. He went to Boston, where, from 1969-73, he was chief editor at G.K. Hall and Company, a scholarly publisher of reference works, especially bibliographies and library catalogues. He traveled the globe and visited distinguished research libraries in search of unique reference materials to be published. Out of the blue, in 1972, while preparing for a trip to Moscow, he got an inquiry from William and Mary Harold Fowler, dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, asking if he might be interested in the job of

Spong to retire as dean in 1985

Former U.S. senator built law school into one of nation's best

William B. Spong, Jr., dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law since 1976, will retire as dean and Woodbridge Professor of law as of Sept. 1, 1985.

"We have experienced an exciting enterprise — the development of a professional school into a first-rate forum where rigorous teaching and learning abound in a relatively civil and pleasant environment," Spong said in a letter to faculty in September. "I am privileged to have been a part of our significant progress."

Under Spong's leadership the law school has moved into a new building, expanded its library collection from 85,000 to 190,000 volumes, expanded its faculty from 23 to 38 professors, and has grown from about 450 to 510 students. Last year, the law school was named one of the top 36 law schools in the country in a study published in USA Today, and this summer it was named one of the top 15 law schools based on education and tuition by the National Law Journal, a weekly newspaper of the legal profession.

This year's edition of "Inside the Law Schools," which gives a profile of all U.S. law schools, described Marshall-Wythe.

"The new building and generally concerned faculty have propelled the school from mediocrity to prestige in a very short time. Should the institution's ascendancy continue along the present lines, national recognition of its diploma should continue to grow. As a note to students looking for an easy three years: Marshall-Wythe is not it. The school is looking to build on a solid name by demanding competency and preparation. On the good side, all the hard work adds up to a quality education."

The Rector of the College, Miss Anne Dobie Peebles '44, noted that Spong has "served our nation and our Commonwealth with distinction... and over the past nine years has led William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe School of Law, founded in 1779, into the ranks of the nation's distinguished law schools."

"His departure next fall will be a loss to the College," Miss Peebles said, "but we are fortunate that he generously chose to delay his retirement for several years in order to lend his leadership to the establishment of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the Law School."

President Graves said that "Bill Spong has provided exceptional leadership to the Marshall-Wythe School of Law over the years... moving it into the top ranks of legal education in the United States. The School's faculty and students are strong, its library is excellent and its facilities superb. Dean Spong deserves great credit for this progress."

Dean Spong

A native of Portsmouth and former U.S. senator (1966-73) Spong '63, attended Hampden-Sydney College, and received his LL. B. degree from the University of Virginia. He taught at William and Mary as a lecturer in law during 1948-49. He returned to William and Mary in 1974 a Cutler lecturer at the law school, until his appointment as dean in 1976. At the time of Dean Spong's appointment, he was president of the Virginia Bar Association.

Spong served as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates during 1954-55 and as a member of the Senate of Virginia from 1944-66. He was also a partner in the law firm of Cooper, Spong and Davis of Portsmouth from 1956-57 and 1975-76.

Choosing well is important to success in college

By Gary Ripple
Dean of Admissions

There are many ways to define success in college. It might be the grades received, balancing social and academic growth, accumulating knowledge and intellectual skills, or just completing the four year course and earning a diploma. While the last of those definitions might be the simplest, national statistics indicate that less than half of this year's college freshmen are expected to graduate from their current institutions. Many reasons are given why students fail to complete their college program — personal, financial, economic — but I believe that many of these early dropouts are a result of students making a poor choice in the first place.

Choosing an appropriate college requires a tremendous amount of research. Visiting campuses and matching the offerings of a particular institution with an individual's carefully considered needs and objective is essential. I worry that many of our young people are not aware of the magnitude of the college decision and do not take the time necessary to make a good choice. While tuition serves as an effective tool, in the final analysis it must be used only after all of the logical research procedures have been adequately completed.

Dropping out of college (or flunking out) is a costly experience. For the individual student, there is the possibility of lost earning power and in many cases, the loss of satisfaction at having completed the task at hand. There is also a likelihood of lessened self-confidence as a result of poor grades or the inability to adjust to the environment at a given institution.

It is interesting to note that William and Mary currently graduates approximately 80% of its freshman class, a tribute to the young people we are fortunate to enroll. This fact is even more significant when one considers the rigorous nature of our curriculum and the high expectations of our faculty. The success of our students in gaining a degree and using their knowledge and skills to carve satisfying and productive careers is an achievement we can all view with pride and satisfaction.

Cunningham chairs committee

Group will consider ways to celebrate 300th anniversary

H. Westcott Cunningham '43, executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni, has been appointed by President Graves to chair a planning committee to explore ways to celebrate the tricentennial of the College's founding in 1993.

The group, composed of faculty and administrative staff, students, alumni, townspeople and friends of the College, will consider ways to make the celebration both memorable in its impact and enduring in its influence, said Cunningham.

"It's not too soon to begin making plans to commemorate this important anniversary," said Cunningham. "Right now we're just brainstorming, but there are several things we plan to do. We hope to invite the President of the United States to the campus during 1993, and it's not unrealistic to anticipate that the reigning monarch to Great Britain may come.

"There will be seminars, cultural events, symphonies, and important are events during the celebration," he adds. "We hope that a commemorative U.S. stamp will be issued here, with appropriate ceremonies. Possibly some successful theatre project will take place on campus. It's not inconceivable that the William and Mary football team might play both the oldest (Harvard University) and the third oldest (Yale University) colleges on the gridiron in 1993.

"All these developments would of course be under the leadership of the president of the College at that time." Cunningham emphasized that publications would be an important part of the tricentennial, and that plans for publishing can go forward well in advance of the event. He expects that a popular history will be written by someone associated with William and Mary, to cover events from the College's founding to the present.

The ten colonial colleges established before the American Revolution will probably be involved in the observation, says Cunningham. "It's really something special for an American college to commemorate 300 years of higher education," he adds.

Cunningham predicts that there will probably be a plethora of tricentennial items such as medallions, pictures, posters and published materials, produced not only by the College but by outside interests.

Meanwhile, he says, the committee is proceeding slowly, soliciting ideas until the College's new president is in place. The Board of Visitors is expected to join with the next president in taking an active planning role.

Linda Lavin '59, Jack Garrett '40 to receive medallions

TV's Alice and former Society president voted top Society honor

TV's Alice and a former president of the Society of the Alumni will receive the Alumni Medallion at Homecoming on the weekend of Nov. 2-4.

The Board of Directors of the Society voted at its September meeting to honor Linda Lavin '59 and Jack Garrett '40 with the Society's highest honor in recognition of their service to the College, community and nation.

Miss Lavin, who has made the caring waitress on one of television's longest running comedies a household word, will also serve as the Grand Marshal for the Homecoming Parade on Saturday, Nov. 3, and will be inducted as an honorary member into the Order of the White Jacket on Nov. 3, at the Alumni House. She is returning to William and Mary to celebrate her 25th class reunion.

Garrett, who is vice president for investments, Trust Department, at the Bank of Lancaster in Kilmarnock, Va., served as a member of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni from 1976 to 1982, as vice president from 1978 to 1980 and as president from 1980 to 1981. A member of the President's Council, and the Order of the White Jacket, Garrett served with his wife for many years as a class agent and also served with her as co-chairman of the 1940 class reunions.

A retired Navy captain, Garrett served in the Navy from 1942 to 1970 during which time he commanded two major naval shore establishments. In his hometown of Irvington, Va., Garrett is an active civic leader, having served as a member of the Town Council, the Board of Zoning Appeals, chairman of the Lancaster County Court House Green Restoration Committee and president of the Mary Ball Washington Memorial Museum and Library.

From 1970 to 1979, Garrett worked as a vice president and Kilmarnock branch manager for Cecil Waller & Sterling, Inc., an investment house. Since 1980, he has been with the Bank of Lancaster as a senior vice president and trust officer and vice president for investments.

Miss Lavin accepted the Society of the Alumni's invitation to serve as the Grand Marshal of the Homecoming Parade when she visited William and Mary in April 1983, her first return to campus since she graduated in 1959. At the time of her visit, she described her college years as "a very special time in my life. . ."

"I know that my history here is very moving to me," she said. "It's where I began; it's where my adult life began; it's where my independence began; it's where my life as an actress began."

That life as an actress took her to Broadway after graduation where she became a noted stage actress in musicals and the dramatic theatre and later to Hollywood where she has starred in the CBS-TV series "Alice" since 1976. She is also an accomplished vocalist and pianist.

In 1979 she received the Golden Globe Award for her role in "Alice." In the same year she was nominated for an Emmy award for the show in the category of "Best Actress in a Comedy Series." On Broadway, she was nominated for a Tony for "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." Since beginning her role in "Alice," she has also starred in several CBS Movies of the Week including the highly-rated "Like Mom, Like Me," with Kristy McNichol.

When she visited William and Mary last year, Miss Lavin spent a day with theatre students, theatre faculty, members of the Faculty Women's Caucus, and with business women for a roundtable discussion. She served as a member of the National Endowment for the Humanities Task Force at William and Mary, and she received awards of appreciation from the Society of the Alumni for narrating the Campaign for the College slide program in 1979 and for heading a special project to support the William and Mary Theatre.

Garrett and Miss Lavin will be honored at the Annual Meeting of the Society of the Alumni on Friday evening, Nov. 2. Since 1934, the Society has conferred only 178 medallions.

RETURN TO THE WREN

"...since 1695, the oldest academic building in continuous use in America."

William and Mary's alumni college is scheduled for June 2-6, 1985. Sponsored by the Society of the Alumni, this program will bring together alumni, their spouses, and faculty in a setting providing a balance of learning and vacation. It will be an opportunity for the alumni to enjoy being with old friends, renew ties with the College, and meet faculty.

The results of a survey taken through the GAZETTE last fall indicated strong interest in this kind of alumni activity. The survey also revealed that alumni prefer housing on the old campus. Therefore, the group will be housed in one of the renovated dormitories on the old campus, meals will be served in Trinkle Hall, and classes held in the Wren Building.

The instructional program is also being designed in response to the consensus expressed in the survey, namely, an emphasis on the liberal arts. The main theme will be "A Celebration of the Liberal Arts" with a select group of faculty from different departments — religion, history, music, drama, English, etc. In addition, one portion of the program will join the group with Colonial Williamsburg.

Registration is open on a first come first served basis to a maximum 100 alumni and friends of the College. In an effort to keep cost to a minimum, the entire program — room, meals, lectures, and social activities — is offered for $225.00 per person, from registration Sunday to departure Thursday.

Those involved in planning the summer program are looking forward to the opportunity of recreating for a few days in June that blend of good fellowship and learning that is the hallmark of the special William and Mary experience.

For further information write Tish Paschall, Society of the Alumni, Box GO, Williamsburg, VA 23187. For advance reservations (early admission) please send a $25.00 check payable to Society of the Alumni. Mail to "Return to the Wren," Box GO, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

New illustrated book traces history of College

Alumnus collects 350
illustrations from 1678
to 1984 for book on William and Mary

More than 350 illustrations of the College of William and Mary, many of them never seen before, are included in a new history of the College that will be sold through the Society of the Alumni.

"Hark Upon the Gale — An Illustrated History of the College of William and Mary" is the work of W. Wilford Kale '66, chief of the Williamsburg Bureau of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, who has been involved with the College, either as a student or reporter, for 22 years.

Kale, who wrote the text of the 8 1/2 x 11" coffee table book and collected the photographs and other illustrations over the past year from the archives of Colonial Williamsburg and the College, describes the book as a "popular account of the school's history." The earliest illustration in the book is a survey of the 330 acres that eventually became College property and dates from 1678. The latest illustration is from the dedication of the new administrative and research building at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science last summer.

The book contains 12 chapters and runs chronologically from the College's founding up to 1984. It is not a scholarly work, Kale explained, but in reading the book, alumni "will get a clear picture of what the College is all about."

"They will understand, for instance," says Kale, "that the 19th century was a very difficult time and that, in fact, the school probably should have collapsed but miraculously survived."

"There were numerous occasions when the student body numbered fewer than 20 students and the faculty numbered only two or three. In 1860, in fact, there were only two graduates."

"The thing I hope people will get from the book is the feeling of the continuity of William and Mary and realize that it has undergone significant change over the past 291 years."

Kale's research points to four great heroes in the College's history: James Blair, who founded the school and literally pushed it into a genuine college; Benjamin Ewell (1854-88), who saved the College during its darkest moments and devised ways to play on William and Mary's history in order to promote it; Thomas Roderick Dew (1836-46), who did more to strengthen academics than any other president up to that time; and J.A.C. Chandler (1919-34), who brought

William and Mary into the modern era and made the public realize the potential of the College.

History and heritage have always played an important role in the development of William and Mary, says Kale, who first got interested in the project while doing research 15 years ago with the late fine arts professor Thomas Thorne on Robert Andrews, the first teacher of fine arts in an American university.

"History and heritage here are not a new thing," he says. "It is not new for a president to talk about the history of William and Mary. Presidents have been talking about the history for 200 years, and it has always been important in promoting the school."

The book contains an introduction by former Virginia Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr., '36. It has a four-color dust jacket with a photo of the Wren Building. A leather bound limited edition will be published of the book, which is being printed by the Donning Publishing Company of Norfolk, Va., which does about 35 to 40 titles a year. Prices and instructions on how to order the book are printed on the back cover of this issue of the Gazette.

Venture — a different kind of job bank

College program says dropping out may be a good thing

For some William and Mary students, getting a quality liberal arts education means more than attending college for four years. These adventurous spirits can explore life outside the ivory tower for a semester or two through a program called Venture.

Venture is a job placement service for undergraduates who wish to take a leave of absence from college. The Venture program began in 1973 at Northeastern University in Boston and today nine additional colleges — Bates, Brown, Colby, University of Chicago, Northwestern, Oberlin, Skidmore, Vassar, Wesleyan and William and Mary — participate in this expanding program, which is now headquartered at Brown.

William and Mary students have been able to participate in Venture since the late 1970s and, according to Harriet Reid, director of career planning, about 45 students have taken advantage of the opportunities offered through Venture. This past year alone 16 students took time off from school to explore other options through Venture.

Krista Mendelman '86, an environmental science major, spent a semester working as an environmental education instructor for Horizons for Youth in Sharon, Mass. Her work involved instructing fifth and sixth graders on week-long camping trips about the environment and the importance of teamwork. She feels her time off from college had many benefits. "I developed self-confidence. I found a place there and I was really happy with what I was doing. I found that I could count on myself to solve problems that I had." Krista adds, "I feel like I can take advantage of more around me now."

The Venture program fills a real need, explains Sharon Thelin, career counselor and Venture campus representative at the College. Students often need to take time off from their studies for many reasons: to explore career goals, to gain a fresh perspective on their college studies, or simply to expand their horizon. Stressing that Venture is not simply for those students who feel they are unable to cope with the pressures of college, Thelin emphasizes that Venture is a positive way to spend time away from college, and compares its benefits to those of a program abroad.

Venture is essentially a job bank, but a job bank with a difference. Thelin explains, "We have a book of about 200 jobs in the career planning library. Students pick five or six jobs and then come and talk with us about their motivations and job interests. Then we help them develop a resume and write a cover letter and send it all off to Brown. The student generally has a telephone interview with the Brown representative, who then puts that student in touch with the companies. From then on it's all up to the students." Job bank listings are anonymous, merely giving locations and job descriptions; this avoids the problem of unsuitable job applicants. Thelin adds, "It's not like hand-holding. Once they get into it they have to follow through. That's one thing I like about it."

The Venture job bank offers opportunities in diverse fields. Jobs range from apprenticeships in choreography and dance, film, music, photography, sculpture and writing to jobs in industry, retailing, commercial design, public relations and museums. Environmental opportunities are also numerous, such as working in land conservation or on farm management.

Students from William and Mary in the past couple of years have worked for museums, as taxpayers research interns, library processing assistants, environmental staff teachers, psychology aides in public relations and even for the Muppets.

Barbara Trybul '85, a sociology/English major, worked for a year in Kent County, England, as an adolescent intermediate treatment counselor for juvenile delinquents. She emphasizes that choosing Venture was a very personal decision, and says her Venture experience was an opportunity "to redirect my energy." Barbara says "At William and Mary it seems as if everything is geared toward the student. I felt an urge to put other people first. By feeling needed by them I felt more self-worth."

Parents of Venture students often fear that their children won't return to college. In fact, says Sharon Thelin 95 percent of Venture students return to college. Many of these might have been potential dropouts. As Thelin says, "They just stop their lives for three months, but everything is waiting for them when they get back." What a great way to take time off!

Schiavelli, Finn assume deanships religion department chairman. Finn had been highly recommended for the position by the religion chair at Syracuse University.

Finn visited the campus and fell in love with it and its academic atmosphere. He became a faculty member and chairman of the religion department in 1973.

His is an academic discipline that involves history, classics, philosophy, sociology, anthropology and theology, and "the religious studies I've been in are interdisciplinary," he points out. "When I think of curricula and how they all shape the students for living I know I am in the right place."

His experiences as department chairman and service on college committees such as educational policy and faculty affairs have taught him the college's inner workings.

Finn emphasizes to alumni that the deans' offices "are in good hands." The faculty is strong, the students are excellent and are part of an institution that has a valuable tradition that seems to be "impervious to fads of the times."

He thinks he identifies well with contemporary students because he was himself a student for so many years. He knows what a good teacher is and hopes he is one because "I love to teach! I love to learn! If somebody writes my epitaph I hope it will say, 'Here lies a master teacher.' I have an inquiring mind, never satisfied, a mind that can never know enough. I like to write and speak, and teaching requires both.

Dr. Schiavelli

"I like very much what I'm doing now. The dean's job taps my strengths and interests. As I look back, I find myself a fortunate man in my experiences: as a priest I had a rich life, a privileged life where I could reach people at a level one doesn't ordinarily know. As a student for a long time I learned what it meant to live like a student. As a teacher for 20 years I have known the joys of helping young minds learn. All these have been wonderful qualifications for the dean's position."

Palmer leads Shakespeare "out of the wilderness"

Critical praise, improved attendance arrive in seventh season for festival

In its seventh season this summer, the Virginia Shakespeare Festival made reviewers pull out their dictionaries for new superlatives. The season productions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Measure for Measure," "Hamlet," and the modern drama "Equus" drew critical praise and a total attendance only 433 seats away from the record-setting audience of the 1981 season.

The boost in attendance — 14% over 1983 — and in ticket sales was good news for the Festival, which one critic said has now "emerged from the wilderness to assume a promising position among American Shakespeare festivals."

"Most of the established festivals are very old," says Richard Palmer, VSF general manager and chairman of William and Mary's department of theatre and speech. "The Shakespeare Festival at Ashland, Oregon, just celebrated its 50th anniversary. It takes time to develop into a nationally prominent festival, as we hope this will be."

The brainchild of four faculty members of the theatre and speech department, the Virginia Shakespeare Festival grew out of the ashes of "The Common Glory," which many William and Mary alumni will recall as the summer outdoor drama staged at the College from 1947 until 1977. When it seemed impossible to continue that, the theatre faculty looked around for something else they could be involved in that would be educationally-oriented. In fact, the fledgling festival-to-be was patterned after one at the University of Colorado at Boulder, which has an educational focus as well.

From the start, VSF planners faced the prospect of having to make the new festival pay its way, because the College administration chose to consider funding annually rather than provide an asked-for commitment of support for three years. Instead, VSF planners took on the challenge of becoming financially self-supporting from the start.

William and Mary's Board of Visitors has funded the deficits each season, a total of approximately $79,000 since 1978. But more than $40,000 of that deficit occurred in the 1979 season, so the Festival's improved financial situation for 1984 is a welcomed feat. Concession sales this season increased, and contributions to the Lord Chamberlain Society, the financial support group of the festival, total $35,835 so far, compared to $25,070 this time last year.

Meeting its financial goals has been important to the festival's staff, but even more important is the continuing effort to raise its professional standards.

"When it was started, the VSF was largely in-house," says Palmer, who became general manager in 1980. "Through the years, we have gained in national visibility faster in the profession than the general public. Actors, directors and other professionals hold the Festival in esteem, although many people in this area take it for granted."

As a result, each year casting has gone further afield. For the 1984 season, close to 2,000 people applied and more than 1,000 auditioned for the company, which this year included 20 paid actors, 12 volunteers and approximately 24 paid technical staffers with another 15 to 20 volunteers helping them. Each actor also played more than one role.

Many of the actors came from professional actor training at universities nationwide, with professional credits also in abundance in the cast list. As Palmer points out, however, "We use our own students, too," naming theatre majors Robert Bruce Sherman '83, who has just begun work on his Master's degree in theatre as a University Fellow at Ohio State University; Jamieson K. Price '84, who won the 1984 Martin Jurow Award for Theatrical Excellence at the College, and Don Reilly, a rising senior.

No stranger to the Virginia Shakespeare Festival, Reilly stood out with his performances as Bertram in "All's Well That Ends Well" and Richmond in "Richard III" during the 1982 season. As a William and Mary sophomore, he won the National finals of the Irene Ryan Acting Competition at the American College Theatre Festival.

Studying English Literature at the University of Exeter over the last year led to some English acting credits for Reilly, and awards. His performance as Jimmy Porter in "Look Back in Anger" in a one-man show entitled "A Twist of Lemon" led to an invitation to the Sunday Times National Student Drama Festival. He won the Sunday Times Drama Critic's Award, and earned the 1984 Yorkshire Television Award when "Twist" was presented in part on BBC-TV.

During this year's Virginia Shakespeare Festival, Reilly received critical acclaim for his performance as the melancholy Dane in "Hamlet," a production equally well praised for its inspired staging. Says its director, Richard Palmer, "People this season were astonished by 'Hamlet,' because they're used to it as a dark tragedy." Instead, the VSF production had warmth and touches of comedy to it, which enhanced the tragedy rather than detracted from it in the eyes of critics and audience members.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," directed by festival artistic director G. Leslie Muchmore; "Measure for Measure," directed by VSF guest director J.H. Crouch (founding director of the Colorado Shakespeare Festival at Boulder), and "Equus," directed by James J. Christy (founder and artistic director of Summer Shakespeare at Villanova) were singled out for their casting, staging and visual appeal.

With this year's festival season completed, total attendance was 15,862 for the four productions staged July 5 through August 18, compared to 13,931 in 1983.

According to Palmer, audience members for VSF productions come from all over the country, including one Englishman who plans his annual visits to Williamsburg around the festival's schedule. About 25% of the VSF audience is from the Williamsburg area, with a large percentage coming from the rest of Tidewater. Most surprising, says Palmer, is that 80% of those surveyed who identified themselves as non-residents said they were in Williamsburg expressly for the festival.

Richard Palmer

Leslie Muchmore

Now that the VSF season is over, plans are already being made for 1985. Expanding the festival's scope is one major project. "Getting an article in The Washington Post was a big break for us this year," Palmer notes, "because Washington is our next step — Folger's (The Folger Theatre in D.C.) doesn't go in the summer."

Another goal is increasing the core audience, which up until now has consisted of (1), people devoted to Shakespeare and (2), people devoted to the College, and its theatre department. The next step is to make Shakespeare more easily accessible, and to draw more people in by being more entertainment-oriented, says Palmer. "We have to trust that our regular audience knows what we're about," he adds. "We're going to go more glossy, and more upbeat — we're already doing that in the content of the plays and how they're presented."

Also under consideration is a six-to-eight-week tour to Virginia colleges and universities at the end of the regular season. "If we go to Lynchburg, for example, then those people will be more interested in getting in their cars and coming here for the festival," says Palmer. Also, it's a more attractive package to actors to offer a four-to-five month contract rather than a two-to-three-month one.

"Touring was something we couldn't do before, because we were so dependent on College personnel. Now, we're independent enough to sustain a tour without jeopardizing our College program."

With strong financial and artistic success under their belts, the VSF artistic staff and administrative staff are optimistic about the future, and holding on to their national ambitions for the festival. One new regional contribution was the Dortha H. Skelton Internship program, which granted stipends to three area high school students interested in a theatre career, allowing them to serve as actors, musicians and technicians for the 1984 season.

And, Palmer adds, much of the credit for the season's artistic success goes to Muchmore, now in his second year as artistic director. Previously, the festival had three artistic directors in three years, and it has benefited from Muchmore's continued presence.

"He came in new last year without an idea of how we operated," says Palmer. "He was able to put together a much stronger company this year, and I think the stronger productions reflect his greater ease with and control of the situation."

After having had some growing pains, has the Virginia Shakespeare Festival matured beyond its adolescence? "To some extent, that's true, but I hope we never lose growing pains," Palmer comments. "If you don't have them then you're satisfied and not striving to be better."

Moving to Division I brings new challenges

Level of performance, competition improve for women athletes

It's not news to alumni that the William and Mary women's athletic program has changed over the past few years: moving to the NCAA, going Division I, founding new conferences, and so on. But, how have the program's main participants — the ones who practice and compete between their studies — felt about such changes?

Polling several seniors, most of them co-captains, on the '84 fall teams was as refreshing as it was revealing. Let's begin with Kelly Jackson, the first four-year letterwinner in W&M women's soccer history.

"The main thing is that the level of play has improved one hundred percent. All the teams are getting better each year; there are better coaches, and players are getting better instruction earlier," Jackson said.

As the team's sole senior, Jackson has seen recognition of her sport improve. "Freshman year, we were just as serious, but we weren't taken as seriously . . . Friends came to watch us play. Now, people are more interested that we have a good team and are skillful," the co-captain said.

At this writing, the Tribe was ranked second in the NCAA South/Mideast region, behind three-time defending NCAA champion North Carolina. The team was on the verge of its first top ten national ranking.

"It's kind of early," Jackson said. "But, we impressed a lot of people last weekend, not just ourselves . . . Players are already talking NAAs."

Jackson admits to being somewhat "amazed that we don't give scholarships and still get good players." Yet, she believes the College will continue to hold an edge in attracting academically-minded players. "A freshman who could have gone to a big school like North Carolina told me she wanted a good school, where she could get a good education, not just live-and-breathe soccer," she said.

Jackson and the two squad's juniors, eleven sophomores and eight freshmen (including two high school All-American) are playing what is probably the toughest NCAA women's soccer schedule. Though they would be defending champions at this year's ECAC Championship, November 3-4, the Indians are hoping, instead, to be competing in the NCAA's first round.

A Division I NCAA bid may be light years away for W&M's volleyball team. Nonetheless, according to senior co-captain Lisa Bobst, the program is "totally different" than it was her freshman and sophomore seasons.

"It's more serious. The coach makes us work harder. We get in (to campus) early for two-a days; we're doing weight-training; we're spending more time," Bobst said. And, the 6-0 hitter/blocker isn't complaining.

"The benefits outweigh everything we put in. It's more exciting the tougher it gets. Now, when we win, we say 'Can we practice some more?'" said the 1983 All-State Tournament Team selection.

Bobst believes the women's athletic program is experiencing similar improvement. "I see a lot of teams — tennis and basketball — with recruits who are so good," she said. "Women are proving that they are capable of increased seriousness. And, I think, we have to expand as far as we can go."

As for the current season, Bobst is very optimistic. Though, again, there are only ten Indians (one junior, four sophomores, four freshman), talent and growing togetherness should pay off, when the first ECAC South Volleyball Championship arrives, November 9-10. "We can beat almost anybody," says Bobst.

The women's cross country team is looking forward to its first NCAA Division I meet this fall, regionals at Furman, November 10. But, both Tribe co-captains concur that W&M's schedule and program is much the same as it was their first season.

"We don't race what some people would call the 'quality' schools — we call them 'harder' schools like UVA. . . though we tend to stay in Virginia. This has a limiting effect but, then again, we know our competition well enough to plan our team strategy. There are pros and cons both ways," Maureen Hinnebusch, top returning runner and co-captain, said.

Her counterpart, Valerie Roeder, feels that just being Division I is an advantage. "I think that stepping up to Division I means the program is moving forward. People look up to Division I teams. I know, I'm really looking forward to NCAA regionals," Roeder said.

As for the overall program, Hinnebusch sees significant changes. "I think it's moving forward. The whole training program is broadening; we're producing more well-rounded athletes. Now, you see basketball players running and lifting weights. We get to meet people from other sports, and we see them so often, that we really care, when we ask 'How'd your game go?'" she said.

One thing that Hinnebusch would like to see in the future is increased recognition from the student body for her sport. "I watch races, even when I'm not racing. It's exciting . . . You see people pushing themselves to the limit; not just one, but eight, nine, ten people from the same school trying for the lowest score . . . You can see how intense the feeling is as you watch their faces."

Unlike the other three teams, the field hockey team has been Division I since such sectioning began. Even so, the program has changed over the last few seasons, according to seniors Sheila Cunneen and Heather Grant.

"We feel so lucky, so privileged, as William and Mary athletes. We carry it with us — we carry the image with us — of some place that's different."

"What we considered 'good' for ourselves two and three years ago is nothing like we do now. The level of the sport, just as it has in the rest of the country, is getting better," Cunneen, a co-captain, said.

Cunneen sees a new "mental intensity" among younger players. "They have grown up with women's sports being a more substantial idea," she said. As for the upperclassmen, "We've seen the ODUs, with their Olympic coaches; we know what it take in terms of time, mental intensity and what it take physically."

Heather Grant, a fourth-year starter, believes that, while others promote the power game, W&M will stress the "precision and accuracy kind of game." And, along with this, she said, "I think we'll go for the student-athlete even more than before, players who can win and who can think. When we win, it's going to be worth it."

One difference, which is not a change, is the "differentness" W&M's seniors felt between themselves and other teams. As Cunneen put it, "We have a sense of family and feminine togetherness. There is such an understanding of each other's differences; it's there, when we come together. Our togetherness sets us apart from other teams."

"We feel so lucky, so privileged, as William and Mary athletes," Cunneen continued. "We carry it with us — we carry the image with us — of some place that's different."

"The hottest job in college athletics"

Al Platt holds the title of academic advisor for athletics

Al Platt has what he calls "the hottest job in college athletics right now." Since the fall of 1983 Platt, who has been head wrestling coach at William and Mary for five years, has been the College's first academic advisor for athletics, devoting a large portion of his time to acting as academic counselor to members of the Tribe football team.

The job developed out of the need to ensure that student-athletes were receiving the attention necessary to help them progress towards a degree. Enormous pressures exist for students who come to William and Mary on athletic grants-in-aid. They live in a fishbowl, performing publicly to earn their keep while balancing a heavy practice and travel schedule with the same classroom pressures that face any ordinary student at William and Mary.

All of these factors combine to create potential problems for the student-athlete. To help, someone special is needed. Someone like Al Platt, who has a Ph.D. and a long experience with athletics borne of 10 years as a head wrestling coach at two universities.

According to men's athletic director Jim Copeland, the football team had assigned previously an assistant coach to that area. But with Platt, Copeland feels he got somebody ideally suited for the job: caring, energetic, experienced and wholly committed. As a wrestling coach, Platt showed all of these qualities, winning consistently with a limited budget and few scholarships. More importantly, Platt showed himself to be more than the ordinary coach. He became a friend, a counselor, and a positive influence on the athletes he touched.

Humorously describing himself as a "professional student," Platt downplays his own academic achievements. He holds his doctorate in physical education and social sciences from Kent State University. He teaches classes in sports psychology at W&M. Athletes who come into contact with Platt often express surprise that the coach seems to know so much about a variety of specialized subjects.

Though he's not technically a counseling specialist, Platt is one of those rare individuals who seems to draw people to him for advice and encouragement. His attitude is unremittingly positive, and it rubs off.

"I'm just grateful for the opportunity to mean something to the kids, to be able to do something that's definitely constructive and satisfying to me," Platt said.

Though the academic advisor program is intended to help all members of the football team, Platt concentrates on freshmen and sophomores. "We have some priorities, and a main goal of mine is help freshmen become sophomores," he said. "We recognize there's a need for someone to assist the transition of high school kids to college life, from the very beginning with personal adjustment on campus, behavioral adjustments, scheduling, and study skills," Platt said. "They need someone to keep a big interest in each of their lives."

Platt admits that all athletes are not equally in need of his help. "Sophomores are obviously our second priority, but most of them are fairly well squared away. And then with the upperclassmen, some of them are doing so well, I just try to stay out of their way," he said.

"Take Mark Kelso (an academic All-American), what am I going to do for him? On occasion I may monitor his records to make sure everything's okay, but Mark could probably monitor me," Platt joked.

Though the football team constitutes the core of his counseling group, Platt doesn't really turn anyone away. He estimates that somewhere around 130 students might be using him as a resource. Members of the wrestling team, of course, are frequent visitors to Platt's office in William and Mary Hall. But there are numerous others, too. "We have lots of kids stopping by who aren't involved in athletics at all," Platt said. "They just poke their heads into the office, say hello, and see what's going on."

Al Platt

The funny thing is, Platt appears to have time for them all. Though he jokingly admits, "I guess I could use help," Platt radiates a sense of excitement and enthusiasm about the position.

Despite William and Mary's reputation for being tough academically, Platt said that most of his charges do well with their studies. "When they do have troubles, it's usually because of difficulty in managing their time," he said. Platt helps the students organize their time more effectively. "We say, 'O.K., you've got the day down hour by hour, morning, afternoon, and evening, and suddenly the problem doesn't seem so insurmountable,'" said Platt.

When some students do have trouble academically, Platt schedules weekly conferences to check on their progress. He also has students monitor their own performance in classes. "In monitoring, the kids will do a self-assessment of where they stand in their studies. If anything, they're tougher on themselves than I thought they'd be," he said.

Many collegiate athletic counseling programs rely heavily on paid or Quarterback Stan Yagiello tries to sneak the football into the end zone in a pileup in the William and Mary-VMI football game. The Tribe won the game, 24-13, and then defeated Delaware the following week, 23-21, to win the first two games of the season. In Division I-AA, William and Mary was ranked 8th nationally.

volunteer tutors, but not so with Platt's. "I was pleased that we only used three paid tutors all last year," he said. Platt found that organizing study groups within the team accomplished the same goals. Upperclassmen were often able to help freshmen and sophomores, and the positive peer attitude also paid dividends.

"I remember last year that Al Lucas (a senior biology major) helped out some of the freshmen in their science subjects. They'd meet in the evening, review everything, and it worked out great," Platt said.

Even with minimal financial resources, Platt said that his task is made easier by the type of school William and Mary is. "Our college is unique in that so many professors give willingly of their time to help. And our coaches here are really good in following it up. If everyone wasn't so involved, we probably would need to pay more people," he said.

The results of the advisor program speak for themselves. "The guys on the football team graduated with the same G. P. A. (grade point average) as the rest of the students leaving the school of arts and sciences. We only had two kids who had to go to summer school for academic reasons, which I believe has to be an all-time record. And, we didn't lose anybody academically," Platt said proudly.

Those who are anti-athletic by nature may question the rationale behind the academic advisor program, but any such individuals are out of touch with reality. Platt stresses the importance of the program in terms of institutional responsibility. "If a kid gets hurt on the field, we have competent trainers right there. If that same youngster is coming here for an education, someone had better be paying attention to that, or else that person could leave the university feeling used," he said.

Copeland echoes Platt's comments, but draws a distinction between the advisor program at William and Mary and that of other schools. "Al sees that each kid is healthy academically, that he's moving towards a degree. A lot of places the academic counselor is involved only in keeping kids eligible to play. Our primary concern is in the kid getting a degree. That's why we've asked Al to do what he's done," Copeland said.

A spring downpour did not deter Williamsburg alumni from attending a wine and cheese party on the portico of the Wren Building. President Dan Jenkins '68 welcomes wet but smiling guests.

Alumni Chapters Enjoy Busy Spring and Summer

Alumni chapter activity is strong even during the busy summer vacation months. From coast-to-coast, William and Mary alumni get together for all kinds of programs: from a James Monroe Birthday party at Ashlawn in Charlottesville to a pig-pickin' in Richmond, a baseball game in Norfolk to a cruise on the Lady Joan in Connecticut, a pool party in San Diego to a dance at the Surf Club in New York. Become a part of your local chapter activities this fall, and if no chapter exists in your area, contact the alumni office about organizing something.

New Jersey alumni Dale '63 and Dick '60 Cohen, along with Society Board member Helen Stafford '48, attend the May chapter meeting at which the new chapter received its charter and museum director Glenn Lowry presented the program.

Jack Fritz '48, vice president of the U. S. Olympic Equestrian Team, arranged for alumni in New Jersey to picnic at the team stables in Gladstone. Here Jack is pictured with Abdullah, the horse which won the silver medal in individual competition and the gold in team competition.

Kevin Barnes '76, coordinator of the Northern New Jersey Chapter picnic, and his daughter Kristin were a part of the group of more than 250 alumni, students, parents, and guests who attended the festivities at the Equestrian Stables.

Announcing The Young Guard

CLASSES 1980-1984:
THIS ONE'S FOR YOU!

The Young Guard will have programs and activities designed especially to make the transition from college to career smoother, and the social activities to help you keep in touch with your own class members, as well as with other alumni.

Homecoming '84, November 2nd-4th, will kick-off the Young Guard Program with several events just for the Classes of 1980 - 1984, so plan to be there! Check out the ALUMNI GAZETTE'S Homecoming insert for specific reservation and event details. Our Hospitality Suite/Welcome Center will be at the Holiday Inn West on Richmond Road (open from 3:00 p.m. Friday thru noon on Sunday), and $10.00 buys two breakfasts, post-game hors d'oeuvres, mixers and snacks and a great place to see your friends. Note the annual keg Party, post-game Saturday. Then there's a dance and midnight buffet on Saturday in Trinkle Hall, featuring the top 40 music of L. P. and Company (BYOL and Mixers).

Start calling friends and making plans for the weekend! And look for more news of Young Guard events.

Cordially,

Sue Newman

SOCIETY OF THE ALUMNI TRAVEL PROGRAMS '85

All tour prices are per person, based on double occupancy. Each tour allows for leisure and shopping times.

Royal Caribbean 1985 Alumni Cruise on the NORDIC PRINCE - February 10-20, 1985.

The tour price: $1,810.00 - $3,765.00
(depending on cabin selection).

The price includes:

- * Accommodation and meals aboard the luxury cruise ship MS NORDIC PRINCE.
- * Special Air/Sea Program with FREE air transportation from 133 cities in U.S. and Canada, round-trip to MIAMI.
- * Transfers to and from ship.
- * Services of experienced, professional ALUMNI HOLIDAYS Cruise directors throughout.

This wonderful cruise, co-sponsored by The Olde Guard of the Society, includes the ports of call of:

- St. Croix - visit Christiansted, Frederiksted, the historical section; play golf on the 18-hole championship course at Fountain Valley or take a snorkeling/picnic trip to Buck Island.
- Martinique - From one of the most beautiful harbors in the world, you will go ashore into a combination of things French and West Indian. This is the island home of the Empress Josephine.
- Barbados - A solidly British atmosphere is evident on this island in a most exotic setting. You may want to wander to markets, view the eastern shore from St. John's Church or see the beautiful botanical displays in Andromeda Gardens.
- Antigua - This island, settled by the English in 1632, is only 12 miles wide and 14 miles long. A beautiful paradise.
- St. Thomas - This is a part of the U.S. Virgin Islands which boasts color and excitement. The main town, Charlotte Amalie, was founded by the Danes and named at the king's consort. You may bring back $800.00 worth of goods per person duty free from this island.

- * Services of experienced and professional GREAT ADVENTURES IN TRAVEL tour directors throughout.

This tour is custom designed to give you an opportunity to learn about the ancient and modern cultures of Greece. You will begin the tour with 3 nights in Athens staying in the Deluxe Hotel Caravel. There you will have a welcome dinner, visit the Museum, Acropolis (and experience the Sound and Light show there), and lunch in a quaint outdoor cafe in the Plaka, the Poseidon. There will be also a festive greek evening w/dinner and wine included.

The tour on the mainland will include 2 nights in Nauplia, 1 night in Corinth, and 2 nights in Delphi. The second portion of the tour will take you to the enchanting island of Corfu for 2 nights. There you will stay in a luxury hotel. Then, it's on to the Cruise portion of the tour, with visits to the islands of Crete, Rhodes, Santorini, Patmos and on the Turkish mainland, Ephesus. You will return to Athens for return to the U.S.

Cote Du Rhone Passage — July 9-12 1985

Tour price:
$2,295.00

This price includes:

- * Transatlantic flights New York/Paris and Nice/New York.
- * Accommodations in Paris, Monte Carlo
- * Breakfast each day in Paris and Monte Carlo
- * Sightseeing excursions in Paris and Monte Carlo
- * Transportation Paris/Lyon via. High Speed Train
- * Cruise portion - fare, all meals, accommodations
- * Welcome and farewell parties in Paris and Monte Carlo
- * Services of experienced and professional Alumni Holidays travel directors throughout.
- * Many other amenities.

This tour will begin with 3 nights in Paris, where you will want to visit the great sights in Montmartre, along the Seine, on the Champs Elysees, at Notre Dame, or the Louvre.

From Paris you will travel to Lyon via the high speed TGV train to board your cruise vessel, the M.S. CORNELIS KROES.

During the five-night voyage, you will visit:

Lions: Once the ancient capital of Gauls, today it is the principal center of the French textile industry. Many historic sites from all periods are in evidence.

Vienne: Another important Roman town, with important Medieval ruins.

Valence: Built on a series of terraces rising from the Rhone, there are important Renaissance houses still existant.

Viviers: This city dates to the 15th century and features the Romanesque Cathedral of St. Vincent.

Orange: Interesting sights include the Roman Theatre (best preserved in the world), the Cathedral of Notre Dame and the town Museum.

Avingnon: This was the 14th century seat of the Popes in France. You will see the Palais Vieux and Palais Neuf, as well as the Palais des Papes. Also important is the Musee Calvet with fine wrought-iron work.

Arles: Once a port of imperial Rome, many fine Roman ruins are in evidence today. Many of Van Gogh's works are found throughout Arles.

At Arles you will disembark and board your motor-coach to the French Riviera and to Monte Carlo for three nights. You will return to the U.S. from Nice.

Hawaii Heritage

- late August/early September -
price to be determined

This two week tour will take you to the islands, with an emphasis on the outer islands, to learn about the cultures that have influenced our 50th state. The tour price will include round-trip air fare from the U.S., inter-island transportation, all accommodations, two meals a day, transfers, sightseeing, special amenities for Alumni and Friends of the College, and an experienced GREAT ADVENTURES IN TRAVEL tour director throughout.

Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania -

October 21-November 9, 1985

Tour price: $4,600.00

This tour will allow you to visit three exciting island-nations and cultures all in one tour, custom designed especially for Alumni and Friends of the College. This is a first-of-a-kind travel offering from the Society and quite a unique combination. You will visit great cities, important geographical and natural features and explore the history of each area.

The tour price includes:

- * Non-stop Transpacific air fare round trip, Los Angeles/Sydney and Auckland/Los Angeles.
- * All inter-island air and transportation.
- * Deluxe Accommodations
- * Two meals daily
- * Sightseeing
- * Unusual, scenic excursions
- * Experienced and professional TRAVEL ANYWHERE tour director throughout.

Australia-

The tour will begin in Sydney for two days of exploration, with an orientation tour, harbor cruise and walking tour of Paddington. You will also have a private tour of the famed Sydney Opera House and attend a performance there.

In Melbourne you will visit the Como House, Royal Botanical Gardens and go on to Philip Island, home of the fairy penguins.

Tasmania - an important and unusual island south of Australia will be the next stop. There you will visit Hobart, Port Arthur, and Launceston. You will also see what Tasmania is known for - its natural and unspoiled beauty in the form of lakes, forests, wildlife and natural features.

New Zealand - This will be the third and final country on the tour. You will visit Christchurch, Te Anau, Midorf Sound (including a launch excursion to Bowen's Falls, Ship's Cove and Mitre Peak), Eglinton and Hollyford Valley and Homer Tunnels to Cleddau Gorge, Queenstown (including a launch cruise on Lake Wakatipu for a town of an 1800's Homestead), Mt. Cook in New Zealand's alpine region, to Rotoura, home of the Maoris, the original settlers and to Auckland, its north shore and Mt. Eden. You will return to the U.S. from Auckland.

PLEASE NOTE: THESE ARE ONLY BRIEF SKETCHES OF THESE TOURS, EMPHASIZING THE HIGHLIGHTS. For more detailed information contact Mrs. Diane Hagemann, Director of Travel Programs, Society of the Alumni, Box GO, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

Dear Classmates:

The above address is very important to you and to me if we are to continue our Class

'25 news. I call this to your attention because recent news has been either slow coming in or not coming at all. I feel confident that it is not a lack of interest or love for your alma mater, or your Society of the Alumni, or the Olde Guard, and I can't bring myself to believe that you are just sitting at home twiddling your thumbs — no — not my classmates! Probably procrastination for some; or a feeling of "this wouldn't be of interest to anyone," or "our traveling days are over," or "who wants to hear about our children or grandchildren." Your reporter can't do anything about "ol' man procrastination," but you are dead wrong in your other reasons. Your classmates are indeed interested in all you do and in all your interests. No more excuses, please!

Soon we will be turning our thoughts and planning toward November 2, which will be Olde Guard Day. A reception and luncheon will be held in the Empire Ballroom at the Hospitality House. The September Gazette carries the entire program, so read it carefully, clip the Olde Guard reservation, and send it in with your check. Homecoming 1984 will be celebrated November 2-4.

The Green and Golden brings a report from Bruce Stewart '27, chairman of the Olde Guard Council: "News in recent issues of the Alumni Gazette class notes from the Olde Guard classes has been declining tremendously. The Council requests members of the Olde Guard to please send in news of activities to your appropriate Alumni Gazette class reporter. Those of you who are in the Class of 1924 or earlier classes should direct your news to the Class of '25 reporter. Keep in mind that the Green and Golden will not supplant the Olde Guard Alumni Gazette class notes." It will be extremely helpful to this reporter if you will remember to please sign your name and include your address and class year.

I am sure all of you received a letter this summer from our class president, Art Winder. He reminds us that our 60th reunion is just a year away, and suggests that our individual contributions to William and Mary at least from now until our 60th reunion in 1985 be made to the "Class of 1925 Memorial Fund" and sent to the Society of the Alumni, attention of Vernon Nunn, P.O. Box 60, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

Our loyal and hard working chairman of the Memorial Fund, Vernon Nunn, has been nominated for election to the Society of the Alumni's Board of Directors. The results of the election will be announced at Homecoming. We are proud of you, Vernon. You continue to bring honor to our class.

So good to hear from you, Dot and Red Campbell, but oh, so disappointed you will be unable to join us for our 1984 Homecoming. Dot and Red returned to their home in August after lovely visits to their children in New Jersey and in New York. In Buffalo they saw their 7-month-old great granddaughter for the first time. This was a good year for their family as they were able to get together on four occasions. In March all four children and their spouses plus two grandsons surprised them for Dot's 80th birthday. Then in April they were all together for the Masters, and in May they met both in Houston and Austin for the wedding of Anne's son and for the summer visit to the two families up north. Dot and Red leave for Florida in early October. While they will not be at Homecoming this year, they plan to be present for our 60th reunion. Dot expresses the wish that the homecomings could be held in October (and so do I).

It was so good to hear from Stanley Teagle, although we were saddened to hear that he has been ill for over a year, requiring nurses around the clock. Stan, we are most grateful for your nice letter and we pray that as fall is ushered in you will be much, much stronger. We shall keep you in our thoughts and prayers.

From Tony Everett we hear that despite the hot, humid weather of Norfolk, he did find ways to have fun this summer. He visited friends in the beautiful Blue Ridge mountains and on Skyline Drive and later journeyed to his favorite city, Charleston, S.C. Tony reports that he enjoyed a neighborhood party hosted by Walter Chrysler, founder of the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk. The party was held in the beautifully landscaped garden of Mr. Chrysler's home, which is across the street from Tony's home. Tony also enjoyed a visit to the Virginia Beach Art Show.

A delightful note from Frances Sanders Ennis telling us that she has had excellent reports from her doctor and is very encouraged and most grateful. She states, "Folks say that I look well and call me the miracle woman." She adds, "I don't suppose I'll attend any more of the William and Mary affairs, but please give the Class of '25 my love. John is so good to me. Please know I am happy and not depressed one bit as one might think." Frances, you are a great lady in our book. Just know you are held close in our thoughts and prayers.

Bill Gravely writes that while they did not get to visit several friends last winter, they did get to Jekyll Island for an enjoyable lunch with Liz and Vernon Nunn. Before returning home, they visited with their eldest son and his family at Virginia Beach. In June they were again in Virginia Beach to witness the high-school graduation of their grandson, John David, who will be a student at Old Dominion University this fall. His sister, Terri, visited Bill and Elizabeth for two weeks during the summer. She is keenly interested in horses and in fact owns one. During her visit she took beginning lessons in polo at the Potomac Polo Club of Maryland, of which Bill and Elizabeth are members.

From Carrie Cole Geddy came a card stating that she doubts she will make the 60th class reunion. Now, this reporter refuses to accept that from one Carrie Cole Geddy!! You begin making plans right now and Stuart and I will count it a privilege and a pleasure to take you to this great reunion and see you safely home. In the meantime, we are coming to see you. The Class of '25 loves you and wants you to be present to share this big event.

Caroline Sinclair has returned from a delightful trip to England, Scotland and Norway. She reports that the weather was great, but very dry in England. So glad you had an enjoyable trip, Caroline. I was disappointed not to find you home when I attempted to visit with you one day recently. However, I was informed that you were traveling, and for that I was happy indeed. Caroline's note concludes with, "Like everyone else I have greatly enjoyed the Olympics."

In August Stuart and I had the good fortune of finding Ed Istin at home one afternoon while visiting in Newport News. It is always so good to chat with him. Our friendship goes back to high school days when we "performed" in Shakespearean plays. Ed had just had a birthday and had been entertained with two parties, one of which was still in evidence! We were invited into the dining room and there, dangling from the chandelier, were enlarged cutouts of football players and other decorations and in the kitchen, the remains of a beautiful cake! Congratulations, Eddie, on the achievement of another milestone of life!

In August Ed went to Massachusetts to attend the wedding of his only grandson.

HOSPITAL WING NAMED FOR GENE KIDD '43

A new $17 million wing of the Baptist Hospital in Nashville, Tenn., has been named for Gene Kidd '43, president emeritus of the hospital. Kidd, who served as president of the facility from 1970 to 1982, oversaw the growth of the hospital from 210 beds to a 724-bed complex, Middle Tennessee's largest health care facility. In his position as president emeritus, he is currently overseeing a $50 million expansion and modernization program of Baptist Hospital. The Gene Kidd Building has 215,000 square feet and houses 204 private patient rooms, a remodeled Emergency Pavilion, and ultra-modern cardiovascular and radiology departments.

The bride and groom will make their home in Charlotte, N.C., where the groom is a tax attorney.

Ed is looking forward to being with us for Homecoming. By the way, did you know that he is our Class Representative At Large to the Olde Guard Council? His term expires June 1985. We are proud to have you as our representative, Eddie, and wish you continued joy on the council.

To the family of the following late members of our Class of '25, we wish to express our deepest sympathy: Samuel F. Burke of Thomaston, Ga.; Hughes Lee Gilbert of Martinsville, Va.; Phyllis Mildred Parker Hess of San Francisco, Calif.; and Margaret Lupton Thomason Copland of Hilton Head Island, S.C.

Each of these classmates has left a lingering memory. Their outstanding contributions to their alma mater and to their communities, friends and families, will be remembered always.

As for Stuart and Helen, we have had the pleasure of several houseguests and a few short trips and a family reunion. We do plan to attend the W&M-VMI game on September 8 as guests of Ed Islin. On September 29 we have our sights on the W&M-JMU game at Harrisonburg and on November 10, the VMI-JMU game.

After a year of study in England, our grandson, Stuart III, is now a freshman at the University of Virginia. Our granddaughter's husband, Michael Thomas, is an aide to Senator Warner, after having served with Congressman Trible.

In June I was elected vice-president of the Retired Teacher's Association of Amelia and more recently, secretary of my church circle. So you see, the ol' rocking chair hasn't got me yet!

Again, please send me news before October 10, and please don't allow your good ol' Class of '25 spirit to die! Now it is more important than ever as we look forward to our 60th class reunion.

Happy Labor Day. Don't forget to fly our beautiful Red, White and Blue high — high — high!

27 M. Carl Andrews
2814 Crystal Spring Ave., S.W.
Roanoke, VA 24014

Dear Classmates: (Most of whom have forgotten how to write, hence this is a short report. As a matter of fact, were it not for Frank Hopkins, our tireless class agent, who has forwarded a few items, this space would be blank.)

Two who wrote to Frank are Zelda Swartz Vittal and Hyde Fowlkes Hallum.

Says Zelda: "I married Antoine Vittal, a Frenchman, and in another few months we hope to celebrate our 50th anniversary. We have two remarkable sons, one an attorney who specializes in litigations, the other a research computer scientist who has been conducting seminars in the United States, Japan and Europe, since returning to California after six years in Cambridge Mass. Our home is only one block from the beach (29 Temple Ave., Long Beach, Calif., 90803), and the climate is ideal. In less than an hour we can enjoy the interests and cultural activities in Los Angeles, but we wouldn't want to live there!"

Hyde, in responding to Frank's question about her son by the late Robert Lafayette Brewer, another classmate most will remember, had this to report: "Robert is a wonderful son and I regret so much Bob can't be here to enjoy his success. Robert is now head of the Biology Department at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., where he has tenure. He and Nancy have a mighty fine son of 15, my only grandchild. Your letter about Sam Sta- ples was wonderful. I wish he were living to enjoy your pleasant memories of him."

Incidentally, Hyde, who lives in Richmond (210 Willetta Dr., 23221), says she spends summers with her daughter in Seattle, as she did the one just past.

Comments Alice Trevvett Todd: "The short story about Sam probably called to minds of other classmates some 'close calls' where 'Sherlock' or 'Kitty' (the campus watchman) was involved. I'm sure everyone must have had special thoughts pop up with each name Frank mentioned."

More humor from Leonard Born via San Francisco: "Now almost an octogenarian (who isn't in our class aside from Frank?), I find myself anointed to support 10 descendants, not always extant in our world."

In another communication Len recalls from student days: "There was this chap (his name escapes me) who occasionally walked down Richmond Road with us to Bruton Parish and sang along there and in a lower berth on the C&O to Washington, 'Nearer My God To Me.' He was not alone. Was he your frat brother?" My comment: He could have been. There were several who could have qualified for that!

In June, Frank Hopkins, a vice-president, attended a convention of over 2,000 members of the World Future Society in Washington. One of the city's radio stations interviewed him for an hour. That's considerable talk, fellow citizens.

Sorry for the sad note, but Frank's brother and classmate, Dr. Sewell Hepburn Hopkins, suffered a stroke in April and is in serious condition. Only a few years ago he came back to live near the old family plantation in Gloucester after over 50 years teaching biology at both the University of Illinois and at Texas A&M. Frank visits when he can. Cards from classmates and friends would be greatly appreciated and could help considerably. Address: Route 4, Box 232, Gloucester, Va., 23061. Hang in there, Sewell!

I am sure all of you will be interested in the following report from our class agent: "In my role as '27 class agent, I have just received from the College's Office of Annual Support a report on how well we did in the 1983-84 Annual Fund campaign. Out of 179 alumni, 49 of us gave $5,123.63. Our average gift was $104.55, and our percentage of participation was 27.8 percent. What particularly pleases me and should gratify all of you is that '27 had the highest percentage of participation of all the classes from 1923 to 1930 inclusive. That is something to be proud of and on behalf of William and Mary I want to thank every contributor."

Our next class notes will be in December, long after Homecoming, where I hope to see you all. Please study up on your penmanship and write. As an editor for 50 years, I understand and translate hieroglyphics!

Shawsville, VA 24162

Dear Classmates:

We heard from only two classmates this time, and we do hope we will hear from many of you before the next deadline, which is immediately after Homecoming. Don't let us down. Get busy and send in lots of news.

The Class of '29 has 184 living located members. This large number should produce a lot of news for each issue of the Gazette. Please follow through. We will welcome any class letter received.

From Nancy Ward: "I still enjoy travel and stay busy with housekeeping and volunteer work at the museum and at the hospital, as well as the Tazewell Presbyterian Church."

SERVICE REGISTRY ESTABLISHED

A 1943 alumna of the College has established the William and Mary Service Registry to provide a source of volunteer help to the College. Evelyn Cosby King '43, a former staff member to two-term governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. '36, recruits volunteer help within the Williamsburg community and coordinates their service with the College. "There are so many wonderful people in Williamsburg who have experience and good will to share with the College," says Mrs. King. "And there are many receptive members of the College community who recognize the value of the volunteer."

From Thos. H. Christie: "Frances and I had a nice winter in Santa Clara in the Republic of Panama. Our daughter, Jeane, is a Southern Baptist intern."

We have a great Homecoming program for November 2, 3 and 4. Please try to come. You will be glad you did.

As I am writing this letter summer is fast drawing to an end. So what should follow but thoughts of Homecoming. I hope to see many of you there.

John T. Chewing, Sr., writes that he and his wife, Virginia, enjoyed Olde Guard Day on April 13 and hope to be able to attend many more.

Edward Goodwin Ballard has retired and is living in Sewanee, Tenn., the scene of his last visiting professorship. His recent book, Principles of Interpretation, was published in 1983 by Ohio University Press.

We regret to have learned of the death of Emerson Gillenwater from a heart attack on April 4. Our sympathy goes to his widow, Olene, who is now living in Harriman, Tenn. See you at Homecoming!

Mary Virginia Rigg Fischer, in a Christmas card note to Carlton Casey, said she would have liked to have attended the 50th reunion, but found it impossible to make the trip. She enjoyed the write-ups in the Alumni Gazette and the Colonial ReEcho, where she found 50 years of news about many friends. Mary lives in Las Vegas, Nev.

Elizabeth Sparks Dow, who lives at Monkton, Md., reports that she and her husband, Wallace, had a fine trip with the William and Mary alumni tour group to Egypt, Tunisia and Morocco. According to Elizabeth, the arrangements were superb and the members of the group were great fun.

Gertrude Frost Movshin has retired from her position as a chemist. Gertrude would like to hear from some of her classmates.

Lucie Grossman Titus is the director of the Fort Henry branch of the Association of Virginia Antiquities. The Fort Henry branch recently sponsored an auction, conducted by Sloan's, for the benefit of APVA.

Jacob J. Freeman, who retired several years ago, reports an interesting trip to Yugoslavia this year. Jack's hobby is the continuing study of Einstein's theory of relativity.

William A. Williams and his wife, Mary Grant, are both retired, Bill as a pharmacist and Mary Grant as a school teacher. One of their hobbies is gardening. He concentrates on the vegetable garden and she on the herbs. When they get bored with Rocky Mount, N.C., they escape to Nova Scotia.

Marie Fries DeCarlo, who retired from the Montgomery County, Md., school system 13 years ago, now lives in Carmel Highlands, Calif. Marie visits Hawaii every year and enjoys life living near her five grandchildren, the oldest of whom is 18.

Fred Eilers — editor of the Colonial Echo for 1933 — lives in Evansville, Ind., where he teaches art at the University of Evansville and does portrait painting, a profession he has pursued since William and Mary days. He has a 19-year-old grandson who lives nearby. Last December, Fred was one of the judges at the Space Coast Art Festival at Cocoa Beach, Fla. He recently visited the Barbadoes and reports he is in good health.

Lota Spence and John Reid are the Class of '33s only couple. Their two grandchildren are early achievers. Lisa Reid, 8, swims in state meets and John J. Reid II, 13, was recently elected student body president of his middle school in Henrico County. The Reids expect to attend Homecoming this year.

If you have any news items for the December issue, please send them to our faithful reporter, Betty Chambers George before the first of November.

I keep hearing "I only attended William and Mary one year," or two years, or a few months. . . you are still a member of the Class of 1935! Each of us in our own way contributed to each other. Each of you, regardless of the amount of your time at the College of William and Mary in Virginia, plan to be with "The Reunion" May 1985.

A short but much appreciated note came from Charles Richardson in Mathews, Mathews and Gloucester counties you will find on the Virginia map, not Nothern Neck per se, but a large group of classmates came from and are still living in this area. How about car pooling for the reunion?

Louise Morris Swartz is so great about sending me clippings concerning classmates. In the last Gazette I told you that Frances Gilliam Vasiliou and her husband had moved to her old home in Buckingham. Father Vasiliou, her husband, has had published a most readable and interesting book, Costas Discovers America, about his life as an immigrant to America and becoming a Greek Orthodox priest.

Don't you think it would be interesting to compile for our memorabilia a listing of all articles, artifacts, books, papers and other printed materials contributed to the College archives by classmates? Would you send me such titles, please?

Elise Barnes Hardy has continued to check her area for misplaced classmates. This help is most appreciated in compiling as complete a class roster as possible. Elise and her husband were among those in Normandy for the D-Day commemoration. I feel sure most of you had a chance to view the occasion on television, which was, as Elise says, "a memorable and moving experience."

Those of you who had Ruth Budd Galbraith as a library science professor will be sorry to hear of her husband's death.

Yvete Winslow Bryant, state rush chairman for Chi Omega, was in Scottsdale, Ariz., for their national meeting.

Ed Boisseau, vice-president elect of the Virginia Electoral Board Association, and Eleanor Hooker Boisseau '36, were guests at the Homestead for the state board meeting. Eleanor has been elected 1985 president of the Sunshine Circle of the Crippled Children's Hospital, Richmond, and is to be assistant chairman for the Class of 1936 at William and Mary.

Betty Johnson Mathers, her daughter, Betsy, and her two girls took an extensive tour of Scotland this summer. James Mather's people were from Scotland, and Betty felt this summer was the time to acquaint her family with James's heritage.

A card from "Pappy" Pappendreau said he "was again across the 'big pond' for the month of May doing two weeks of theatre orgy." Pappy also says he is looking forward to the reunion.

COAT OF ARMS RESTORED

A beautiful coat of arms with lion and unicorn at William and Mary has been restored by John Bond, director of the department of buildings and grounds, and will be hung again in the newly restored Trinkle Hall. Bond, a sculptor, carved new pieces to replace broken and missing ornaments from the 18th-century cartouche which is about six and a half feet tall. The ancient carving had been stored for many years, and pieces were missing, paint had flaked off, pigeons had roosted on it, and the entire object was in a delapidated state. Bond put about 200 hours of his own time in on the sculpture which was purchased in England by Leslie Cheek, former head of the fine arts department, and given to William and Mary in the 1930s.

Margaret Snead Nuckols was honored in May for her 50 years with Kappa Delta. I am sure many others have been so honored by their organization, but I have not heard from you.

John Mapp and wife are among those from Richmond who toured Europe this past June and enjoyed seeing the Passion Play. John unfortunately came down with shingles in Paris, but was lucky to have an American doctor at the hospital. What a time to be sick, although they did have a delightful trip.

No news had come from Roland Hall in some time, but a newsy letter (July 16) finds him well. He "applauds the formation of the Colonial League for football," which includes Lafayette, Lehigh, Colgate, Bucknell, Holy Cross and William and Mary. Roland also wrote he was in correspondence with the Gift Program for 1935, and I hope all of you are making plans to return your pledge. Weren't you pleased with the letter about the plans for the professorship?

Bruce Kent sent his biography. The picture, he says, "has the same amount of hair, but more wrinkles." Don't we all fit this image? Bruce says, "Every time we get a few dollars ahead, my wife and I spend them on a cruise." Last July the Kents reached their goal of seeing all fifty states; the last state was Alaska, via British Columbia.

Those of you who have responded to requests for help in locating class members are very much appreciated for your efforts. Harriet Bozarth Jasper found for us her cousin Flora Bozarth Brenan, a classmate in Florida. Bessie White Nelson, who lives in Warrenton, Va., tried hard but unsuccessfully to locate Marie Lake. Bessie's address is most interesting: "Mecca" in Warrenton.

Names similar to unlocated classmates have brought results. Jane Echols Johnston in a roundabout way found Louise Kessler. A great surprise, for Louise lives here in Richmond. Louise became a med tech at Medical College of Virginia and worked there until she retired. Small world! Wonder how many of us have passed each other like ships in the night? The reunion will cure this!

Kitty Chiswell found Shirley Mason Leonard. She used the '31 class reunion roster from Shirley's high school — a smart way to check. Kitty remembers Shirley well because she was the first person she met on arriving in Williamsburg. Sad to say she has not seen her since, as Shirley was at the College only a short time.

I am glad I had kept a running account of news for on August 5 I had a severe heart attack. It was my wish that this report would end with a terrific account of our May Day 1935 exercises, names and descriptions sent in by our beautiful May Day persons. I'll continue to form this for our next report.

Let me thank you for the help in locating class members. At this point we have about 60 classmates not located. Many persons have gone to great lengths to do research, and it will all be reflected, I am sure, in our May 1985 exercises.

I am planning on being at Homecoming. Keep your fingers crossed!

It is such a delight to hear that some of the 1937 girls are still getting together. Four members of the class did a Garden Week Tour in Williamsburg, the Northern Neck and the Eastern Shore. They are Bertie Fox Courtney Zuger, Ellen Latane Gouldman, Jane Sunderlund Broudy and Doris Campbell Desmond. I can imagine the remembrances of things past.

Was delighted to hear that Louise Eppinger Nuernberger has continued her education. She received a M.S. in human relations from Shippensburg University last May. She said it started out to be a course taken for fun, but turned out to be a degree program. She and her husband, Eldon, reside at 727 McKinley St., Chambersburg, Pa., 17201. They are the proud parents of four children and eight grandchildren.

Nice to hear that Mildred Graves Mims is now retired in Luray, Va. She says she spends time playing bridge and tennis and showing her two Tennessee walking horses. I envy her, because I love bridge and horses. She has a daughter who lives in Dallas and works for American Airlines. Her son, who lives in Virginia Beach with his wife and two children, is a newscaster on television. I'm sure she enjoys visiting them both.

Thanks, Bud Tulin, for sending the March 29 Norwalk News with the article on the W&M Choir. The paper stated, "A packed audience at the Norfolk United Methodist Church enjoyed a concert by the choir of the College of William and Mary, from historic Williamsburg, Virginia, on Sunday evening." It further reported, "The free concert, open to the public, marked the second appearance of the famed choir in Norwalk, which concertized here seven years ago."

Let me hear from more of you '37ers!

Yes, my friends, guilt is a terrible thing. I am laden with it because I've missed two editions of our class letter — why, you ask — don't you? Well, first time around, I was at my temporary Pittsburgh address during the BIG FREEZE and simply missed the deadline. (However, dying loyalty, in that weather, would not have inspired anyone to drive 25 miles to sort out news items.) On to second miss — I was on the West Coast and in the Southwest on a business trip while also drumming up bits and pieces for this column. Whew! I hope the foregoing explanation and apologies put me in good stead to show up for our spectacular reunion.

While on the West Coast, I had a good but all too brief visit with Dot Hosford and Herb Smith, whose travels continue. No sooner were they back from the trip down the west coast of Africa via freighter than they started planning another for September. They'll go to London and then to India for several weeks. Also on the summer agenda is a cross-country tour (they must be younger than I), on which, praise be, they'll stay overnight with me. Dot remembers my home as being a big, white frame dwelling — well, obviously, she's thinking of another since it's yellow brick! What's more, she's never been to Monongahela. How did she miss it! She's covered the world, I think.

Next on the William and Mary research for the column was lunch with Jean Vosburgh Lee, who took Dot and me to a marvelous place for lunch at Laguna Beach, with the Pacific at the restaurant's doorstep (well, it was close). Jean has retired from her position as a project assistant-genetics in the Department of Pediatrics at the University of California at Irvine. She's loving the leisurely life and, except for giving her former employer an occasional helping hand, she's devoting time to gardening, bridge, reading, some travel and relaxing.

On to Arizona, where I missed seeing Dot Spence Drukemiller, but had a good long talk with her on the telephone. She had just returned from her first trip abroad (England), and is looking forward to the next trip in the U.S. — to Williamsburg in November for reunion.

Had a grand time in Arizona seeing Doris Robinson Young and meeting her husband, Joe. We had a lot of catching up to do.

Now let's move back to Christmas 1983 (before we read it in 1984), and notes gathered from Christmas cards which, I shamefully admit, weren't started out until late March (between business trips).

Jane Speakman Hughes wrote that her son, Trip, would probably be on the CMU campus in the near future since a good friend of his heads one of its engineering departments. What a delight when Trip turned up in my office several weeks ago! We had a good visit despite the fact I could not reveal one thing wrong his mother did at William and Mary, but then again I don't have the world's best memory. Peakin, are you reading this? Anyway, your son is neat and has a delightful sense of humor — like yours!

Nice letter from Jordan Sizemore advising that he had responded to my class agent's letter and sent in his gift. That's rewarding news in the middle of a fundraising year. Jordan retired in 1977 and for a few years operated an antique shop. He's planning to attend the 1984 reunion — glad to hear that, as Jordan seldom misses.

Gwen Evans and Bill Wood were in Williamsburg for the Wightman Cup, which was, Gwen reports, "lots of fun." Also, says Gwen, "positively we'll get to 1984 Homecoming." The Woods have moved to New Cumberland, Pa., also in the Harrisburg "area" where their former home was located. She's going to Long Beach Island, N.J., in June (a favorite beach spot of mine — it's really "beachy").

Highlight of Elaine Woody Walker's year was being the queen in "My Fair Lady," performed by a local drama group. Next on her schedule was costuming the group's production of "The Sound of Music."

Lucille Haynes and Tony Wagener wrote about their travels in their Christmas letter, the biggest of the trips being a tour of France. Yes, they made it to the top of Mont St. Michel — so did I, in 1977 — wonder how I did it? They continue to meet with their family at the Wisconsin cottage. Tony's big interest at the present time is working with stained glass. He also bakes bread! Tony, all samples gratefully received. They do volunteer work together at the hospital once a week.

Emily Stuart and Bill Heydt continue to enjoy the easy life at Ormond Beach. Bridge, golf, bowling and dinners take up most of their time when the kids aren't visiting. Their oldest grandson is a freshman at the University of New Hampshire. Yes indeed, tempus fugit.

We're proud of our two directors of the Order of the White Jacket. They are Maxey Davis, who will serve until January 1, 1985, and Herb Krueger, who will serve until January 1, 1987.

A good note from Bill Eppes included a nifty PR article about Pittsburgh in the New York Times. That's what I keep telling everyone — it is not a dirty city of grime. It's new, exciting and upbeat despite its problems (end of commercial). Bill is currently working closely with Ashlawn archivist David McKinney on research involving his kinsman, John Wayles Eppes. At the insistence of his uncle Thomas Jefferson, he continued his studies at William and Mary after graduating from Hampden-Sydney College in 1786. At age 14, he entered the College to study mathematics and modern languages. Bill's exhibited watercolor by Anne Gold-waithe at the Muscarelle Museum was donated in honor of Jeanne Sheridan Kin-namon and her late husband, Gilbert.

'81 ALUMNUS WRITES FOR READER'S DIGEST

An article by Christopher Phillips '81 of Abingdon, Va., has been published in the July issue of the Reader's Digest. Entitled "Thank You, Mrs. Calabash," the article tells the story of an elderly woman in Midland, Pa., who anonymously donated $20,000 to a food bank for unemployed steel workers. A free-lance writer, Phillips has also sold a second story to the magazine about a massive volunteer effort by Mormons in Utah which saved the town of Bountiful after flooding in the spring of 1983.

Jan and Tom Kennedy were in Yugoslavia somewhere along the line — can't read the postal date, which is covered by great stamps. They were impressed with everything — the country, its people, the Roman ruins, etc.

From Peggy Prickett Miller came Christmas greetings from Annandale, Va., and Elkhart, Ind. Miley is a vice-president of marketing for Remic Corporation in Elkhart, an electronics firm that produces hands-free communication equipment and personal safety alert devices. He and Peggy have a condo (Remic's) where they live about two-thirds of the time. When in D.C. recently I called the Miller residence in Annandale and found from daughter-in-law, Clare, that Peggy was returning for a brief stint of substitute teaching until mid-June. Last fall, the Millers returned to West Point for Miley's 45th reunion and were also in Williamsburg for '39's annual reunion (as if you didn't know from Peggy's great roundup of the event).

More belated news: Betty Roberts Osborn is with an Elderhostel Study Abroad Program this summer studying architecture. She and friends will relax from their studies in Scotland, the Lake District and the Cotswolds. She'll be back in time for our 45th. Sara Cole Roh writes that their eighth grandchild, Katy, arrived in January. She's a member of the C. E. Roh, Jr., family. Bring her picture along to the 45th, Sara — there'll be a lot of them going around! Fred Brown and Jane Ricard Brown '57 met Glenn Close '74 after the April 28 performance of "The Real Thing." Fred writes, "What a thrill. She is great, outstanding." From what I've seen of her in movies and TV, I agree.

J. Warren Littleton reports that he's retired from the Virginia Beach Public Schools after 45 years in public education.

Al Tirelis retired in April from his position as postmaster in Alberta, Va. A genuine tribute to Al and a heartwarming story entitled "Tirelis: They Treated Me Like A King," was carried in the April 25 issue of the Brunswick Times-Gazette.

Jane Speakman Hauge writes that she and husband, Nick, are Elderhosteling (my phrase) in Scotland and England. Maybe they'll see Betty Roberts Osborn.

All for now. See you at Homecoming!

This may be classed as a banner quarter. We were fairly inundated with news — not to mention rain. This has been a damp year.

Here's a letter from good old Margaret of good old John and Margaret Brennan enclosing a card from good old Bob Kern. Please note that the Brennans' new address is 1125 Confederate Crescent, Virginia Beach, Va., 23456. It's a shame that your health is not improving, Margaret, and know it must be discouraging. You know it is not for lack of your friends pulling for you. John must be getting quite adept at racquetball what with playing twice a week. Were I to play tennis twice a week I might hit the ball with something other than the wood of my racquet. I'm not complaining. If it weren't for the wood I wouldn't hit it at all. You mentioned that your son, Jim, and his wife are coming east this fall because the Denver weather got to them, and that they plan to stay until the arrival of their first-born. You are right in noting that we have a daughter in the area and that they are hoping for a better winter. The fact is that they have given up. They came here last Wednesday and are staying

'80 ALUMNUS WRITES BOOK ON WITCHCRAFT

David C. Brown '80, a student at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, is the author of a new book on witchcraft. Entitled "A Guide To The Salem Witchcraft Hysteria Of 1692," the book is the first comprehensive, authoritative guide to the sites and events of the Salem witchcraft hysteria in Massachusetts and combines a thorough historical account with detailed descriptions of over 40 extant witchcraft sites in Essex County and nearby Boston.

with us until they buy a house in the Richmond area, where Linda's husband, John, will be teaching. He teaches "earth sciences." We didn't study earth sciences. All we were taught was geography. How did we ever get along?

Getting back to good old Bob Kern and Gene, they now live at 57 Rosewood Dr., Myrtle Beach, S.C., 29577. They, too, got sick of the 24 below zero weather in Elkins, and hope that their children and grandchildren will now visit them more often.

Here's a change of address card from good old Davey Jones and Ann. Their dreams have been realized and they now live at 101 Rebel Ridge Rd., Lexington, Va., 24450. (I hope whoever notes these things has noted all these address changes). Since it is only three hours from Williamsburg we should see them at the Homecoming. Davey tells us that he had a bout with cancer, but from the tone of his note I gather that he has emerged victorious. Good for you, Davey. You exemplify the indomitable spirit of that valiant remnant of the Gold Medal Class of '41.

Here's an idyllic post card with a picture of a very blue river winding through tree-covered hills under a cloudless azure sky. It's from Germany, so I deduce it's the Rhine. I didn't graduate 364th in our class of 283 for nothing. It's from Aura Emery who is monthing it in Germany and Switzerland. She plans to teach one more year and "May see you at the reunion." Not mentioning any names, but that should increase the turnout.

Speaking of good old Horace Coward, where are you? I realize that being an outstanding member of LOLA requires a degree of dilatory behavior, but being too good at it can work to your disfavor. (To the uninitiated, LOLA refers to the League of Late Achievers, for which Horace and I have been deemed uniquely qualified.)

By golly, we have eight flaps this time. I'll attack them in the order received.

This top one is from good old Elizabeth Davis Hartman who reports that she will retire after 23 years at Richard Bland College, a part of W&M. She was its first librarian. Her husband, Elizabeth's husband, that is, is in his 25th year as sheriff of Petersburg. A good name to know.

Here's a nifty flap from good old Peg Gildner Abele who seems to have retired to work, i.e., she works part time as a legal secretary; is chairman of the Village Standing Committee; runs the Village Exchange where antiques, gifts and local craftwork are sold; and dashes off to California and Arizona to see the kids and the "little house on the desert"; so she works, stands, runs, sells and dashes. Quite a feat for a classmate of mine (and yours, too, remember).

That was followed closely by a terse flap from good old Lillian Douglas Andrews. I quote, "Wallace & I have both retired and are loving retirement."

Good old Nancy Chisholm Akers, who is also reveling in retirement, invites us to call her in Nags Head, Boca Raton or Petersburg, but prudently omits the several phone numbers.

Good old Dick Earle and Nancy visited Bill and Ginny Tinney as they do ever and anon. Ginny used to be Miss Virginia Bunce of the Class of '43 until she thought better of it. I assume Dick and Nancy do other things as well, but he didn't mention any so we can't be sure. It is dangerous to assume, you know. I could give you lots of examples, but you'll be relieved to hear that I won't. (Aside to Virginia of the Class of '39. You show much discernment for a girl of your tender years.)

Well, it's about time you came back, good old Ellen Lindsay Miller. She descended on former army friends in England and Spain. I assume it was the U.S. Army, but there I go assuming again. Will never learn.

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION PLANS HOMECOMING BRUNCH

The Canterbury Association will be serving brunch between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturday, November 3 (Homecoming day). Brunch will be served in Bruton Parish House (located next to Casey's on DOG St.), and will benefit missionaries John Rebstock and Joe Sanlei. Stop by after the Homecoming Parade.

Here's a flap from good old Bob Kern telling us what Margaret Brennan told us above. So I won't repeat it.

The last thing in the pile happens to be the return envelope to the Alumni Gazette. Already stamped. I'm sure you don't expect me to spend my own hard-earned 20 cents. This is a grueling task as it is. Especially with my 20-month-old grandchild zipping around the house. Her mother and dad went off to Erie, Pa., and wisely left Hope with us. She's a beautiful little girl — at least, I think she is. She never stands still long enough for me to be sure.

Greetings from the Gentle City. Jean Norris Daniel and her brother, Harry, journeyed once again to Europe, this time to Oberammergau for the Passion Play. On the way they visited Paris and Brussels. Nancy Wescott Larsen and spouse traveled even further. They went on a three-week tour of China. It was a Smithsonian tour entitled "History through the Dynasties." What a magnificent experience that must have been.

Anne Armitage Madden and husband, Joe, retired in 1983 and are busy traveling hither and yon. Carolyn, Anne's sister, is also retired and living in New Bern, N.C.

Betsey Douglass Munves and Mary Louise Taylor McGoodwin both wrote notes praising Homecoming 1983 and the great music at same. Y'all come back.

Nearer to home we have news of Muriel Shelley Evans and her husband, Edgerton, who have had a successful ballet studio in Hampton, Va., for the past 34 years. The number of students has grown from the original six to the present two hundred. Another fifty students are being taught by daughter-Darcy O'Neil. Daughter Lisa Schultz teaches ballet at a studio in Newport News. I must say this family is really on its toes. Ouch!

Margaret Langfitt Harris and Frank sent their good news — they moved to the Gentle City this fall. A thousand welcomes.

Have a glorious autumn. Many thanks to all of you classmates who faithfully supported the William and Mary Fund.

Greetings Classmates,

I am your new correspondent. The job I do, as such, will be only as good as the material you feed me. So, get those letters coming. I want to hear from you.

It is time to start planning for our big Class Reunion in 1985! It's our 40th! I do hope that we will have a record number of you there.

Mary Jeanne Keiger Hansen writes that last summer she attended the first Annual Cocktail Party for the Alumni of Virginia Colleges and Universities sponsored by the alumni of the University of Virginia. The W&M alumni attending included a graduate of 1933 and others of the 1980s. The location of the party was not revealed but sounded like a great idea.

Marilyn Kaemmerle Quinto writes that she plans to do research in the Cape Verde Islands later this year and is studying Portuguese furiously in preparation. Lots of luck, Mac.

Carol Anderson Cavileer reports that her mother has been in a nursing home since May 1983. She is terminally ill with a brain tumor. We are sorry to hear that, Carol.

I don't know what I would do without Jeanne Schoenwolf Preston. I asked for news and she really came through. All of the following comes from her.

Audrey Hudgins Thompson has gotten along splendidly with her treatment for her throat malignancy. Jeanne and Page were with Audrey and Buck several times in Florida during the winter and spring. The Thompsons then came to Virginia Beach in June for a couple of weeks. I saw Audrey then and she looked great. She will be returning in October and hopefully we can get some classmates together then. Audrey keeps in touch with Sheila Stuart Erlich. Both are planning to be present at our 40th.

Jeanne and Page travel a lot. They have just returned from a beautiful fun-filled trip in Europe. They joined German friends on their 42-foot sailboat southeast of Paris on the Soane River and cruised (with mast out) rivers and canals of France and Germany for 15 days. They traveled into the mountains and down again through a series of 133 locks. The loveliest part was along the Upper Mosel River in Germany with vineyards and castles on the mountainsides along the way. After leaving their friends they spent a week in Paris. What a marvelous trip!

Jeanne saw Ruth Weimer Tillar in Emporia not long ago. Ruth and K.T. went to Jean Boyd Lacy's daughter's wedding (Betsy McIntyre) in Front Royal, Va., in late May. Dorothy Agurk Edmunds and David were there, having flown up from Clearwater, Fla., for the occasion. K.T. and Ruthie attended a USS Hornet Club Reunion aboard the carrier Yorktown in Charleston, S.C., in June.

Fran Loesch Brunner and Bob were at Sandbridge in Sunny Trumbo William's cottage in August. Ruthie and K.T. joined them for a week-end.

Jane Welton Anderson joined a group of Virginia Beach gals for a couple of weeks last winter in Florida at Sanibel Island. Before that, this same group went to Africa on an animal safari. I was lucky enough to be invited for the showing of the pictures. They were spectacular!

Now that I have this job, I understand the importance of communicating with the class correspondent. I have to plead guilty for not writing, too. It is not that it is hard to do. It is just that we procrastinate. Please remember to write. A post card will do. Thanks.

Most of you are aware that I was your class agent for 1984. It was not an easy chore, but it was a pleasant one. I enjoyed the correspondence, and again I would like to thank each of you who thought enough of your alma mater to contribute.

My life is an extremely busy one at the present. It seems that I was besieged with volunteer jobs and before I realized it, I had gotten into more things than I bargained for. I have so many folders that to find the one I want is not easy sometimes. At church I am head of the Lay Readers Ministry, which among other things includes making the schedule for the lay readers and chalice bearers for all services at which they are needed. Since we have two services each Sunday in the summer and three each Sunday during the winter, plus special services, this requires a lot of bookkeeping and numerous phone calls. I find it most challenging.

Sports play an important part in my life. I play tennis three times a week and golf even more. At the moment, I am head of the ladies golf at my club and am back on the boards of both the Women's Tidewater Gold Association and the Women's Virginia State Golf Association. The biggest thrill of my golfing career just happened to me in July at Hot Springs, Va., at our State Senior's Championship, which I won for the third time in a most spectacular fashion, if I do say so myself. After being two down with three holes to play, I birdied the last three holes to win one up! My score that day was 74. I might add that I haven't played that well since then.

TRAYWICK FUND ESTABLISHED

The Leland Traywick Student Emergency Loan Fund has been established at William and Mary in the School of Business Administration with a $5,000 gift from the wife of the late director of the Bureau of Business Research. The fund will be used to assist students enrolled in the MBA program at the College in memory of Dr. Traywick who served on the William and Mary faculty from 1967 until his death earlier this year. John C. Jamison, dean of the School of Business Administration, said that he hopes some of Dr. Traywick's friends "will join with Mrs. Traywick in building the resources of The Leland Traywick Emergency Loan Fund as a continuing reminder to our MBA students of the qualities of integrity, good humor, sensitivity and sound thinking always shown by Dr. Traywick."

Have bag, will travel. In the past year, I have done just that. My sons call me "the traveling lady." Last fall three friends and I went to Scotland for golf. What a thrill it was to play on St. Andrews! We had a perfectly beautiful day, warm and calm. I was very pleased that I missed those hideous bunkers. Scotland's countryside is like a gorgeous patchwork quilt. Everything is in squares, it seems, because all land is utilized. Edinburgh was just as memorable as I expected it to be. I loved every minute of time there. In February, my sister and I went to Hawaii for two weeks. We visited the islands of Kauai and Maui and enjoyed two weeks of warmth and sunshine. In March, we went to a golf rules school in Philadelphia for three days. It was rigorous but very interesting. The highlight of that trip for me was when Floss Metuis Johnson and Dwight joined us for dinner one evening. We had such a good time catching up. She had seen Dinny Lee McAlinden and had talked to Marion Lang Van Dam. Dinny is very involved in her photography and is quite good at it. She came down to visit me last winter and we went to an exhibit of pinhole photography at the Virginia Beach Art Center. Willie Anne Boeshen Wright exhibited and lectured. It was most interesting and different.

That's all for now. Don't forget to send me some news for the December issue.

Dear Classmates,

I hope to meet the deadline for the Alumni Gazette, which is today! At least I can just run across the street and hand deliver the letter.

Howard Ranson wrote a newsy note in May. He retired August 1, 1983, from his job with the Commonwealth of Virginia after 30 years of service. To celebrate, he and Sally Justice Ranson '46, took a two-week tour of Europe. They visited five countries: England, France, Germany, Switzerland and the Netherlands. Included was a Rhine River cruise of four days and three nights. Sally and Howard became the grandparents of two more precious grandchildren born in September and December last year: a boy and a girl. That makes them grandparents to six in all — four girls and two boys. Howard says he loves retirement and can't wait for Sally to join him. Thanks so much for your wonderful news!

Edith Horn writes that she is living in a small town on the Kennebec River in Maine and classmates are wonderful about keeping in touch.

My son, Brook, wife, Debbie, and their 13-month-baby, Brook, left for Naples, Italy, three weeks ago, where Brook will be assigned an office with the NIS for three years. The baby had not begun to talk, and I won't understand his Italian if I travel there next summer.

My daughter, Beth, moved to Washington, D.C., in the first part of July, after she and I returned from our cruise, which went from New York to Nova Scotia and down the St. Lawrence seaway, ending in Montreal. She is now with Anderson, Notter and Finegold — Architects, with an office near Dupont Circle and a darling renovated townhouse six blocks from work.

I am going to be settling and unpacking for months in my new home, but love being right here on Richmond Road.

I have two graduate students renting rooms but no kitchen privileges. That would be impossible anyway, because Beth

JAMESTOWN FOUNDATION AWARDS FELLOWSHIP

Nathaniel Turk McCleskey, a second-year doctoral student in the Department of History at the College, has been awarded the first Jamestown Fellowship to be offered by the Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation. The fellowship is the culmination of negotiations between members of the College's history graduate program and the foundation. The Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation has long been interested in providing financial assistance for a Ph.D. student in exchange for work as a part-time staff historian. Foundation officials said that the William and Mary doctoral program in American history, one of only two such programs in Virginia, was chosen because of its good reputation in the field, its research facilities and its proximity to the foundation. As the first recipient of the grant, McCleskey will be awarded $7,000 annually for a maximum of three years, the estimated time it will take him to complete his degree.

designed a new kitchen for me as well as a screened porch at the back of the house, and I am typing here in the gutted kitchen with my new refrigerator, a makeshift sink, and appliances lined up, such as a toaster, coffee pot and little oven. I'll live this way for six weeks, waiting for the cabinets to be built.

School has begun for me and I am having to commute. I teach two math classes at the high school in the morning and three physical science classes at the intermediate school. I'm really looking forward to early retirement in two years, including this year.

Please send me news when you can and thank you, Howard and Edith, for writing.

Have a lovely, healthy and happy autumn.

Dorothy Wollon Spaulding reports that her job with a law firm in Washington is an exciting one and that her spare time is filled with church work, which includes being assistant editor of an evangelical publication. Their second child has graduated from Boston and their older one has won a scholarship for graduate school at Wisconsin. Sally Obitz Cannon is living in Lawton, Okla., where she is teaching aerobics and ballroom dancing and is golfing and traveling.

Mary Berger Bradshaw was the subject of an extensive article relating her many civic activities in a July issue of the Richmond Times-Dispatch. She is currently first vice-president and 1984 campaign chairman for the United Way of Harrisonburg-Rockingham, an elder of the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the board of First Step, which is a local shelter for battered women and their children. In addition, she is a member of the sixth District Committee of the Virginia State Bar and a member of the advisory board of Sovran Bank. She has previously served as chairman of the Local Human Rights Committee for West State Hospital in Staunton and on the Harrisonburg-Rockingham County Services Board. She and her husband, James, who has a dental practice in Harrisonburg, have three sons and a young grandson.

Jay Hardison has retired after a 32-year career in education as a teacher, guidance counselor and principal. Jack Peterson is also looking forward to retirement shortly. He and Deloris have recently returned home after two years in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. This assignment gave them the opportunity to visit many places in Europe and the Orient. Their son, John, is a lecturer at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

The recently formed New Jersey Alumni Chapter held a picnic this summer at the Equestrian Team Center in Gladstone, N.J., before the team's departure for the Olympics. Arrangements were made by Jack Fritz '48 who is vice-president of the U.S. Equestrian Team. My husband and I met Lou Hostetter Winder and Gus there and also saw Sara Gordon Schutz and her husband.

I hope to see many of you in Williamsburg the weekend of November 3 for our 35th Homecoming.

From beautiful Gunston Hall at Lorton in Fairfax County I received a note written by its director and our classmate, Don Taylor. Don, who earned his M.Ed. in 1957, taught at Hampton High School 1952-62 and from there went to Tryon Palace in Edenton, N.C., for the next 20 years. I wish we knew more about his role there, for I think these were the developmental years for that historical monument. Gunston Hall, built in 1773, was George Mason's home and is owned by the Commonwealth and administered by the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America. What a lovely place to live.

Don adds that his two sons are both in marine biology and that Johanna and he are proud grandparents to two little girls. As a member of the Committee to Furnish the President's House, Don visits the campus regularly.

More on historical digs: Betty Cox Scott and John moved August 1 to Pavilion IV, East Lawn, of the University of Virginia, where John is a professor. Betty had mentioned earlier in the year of this opportunity, and they have chosen to accept it, although it meant leaving their beautiful home nearby. I missed a phone call from her while I was wandering the countryside in June so haven't the details of what one must accomplish and/or endure to attain this prestigious address. The Scotts sent a postcard from Japan in mid-July so must have had the move under control and found time for a holiday in Japan. Guess you'll have to send more details of all this excitement, Betty.

As to my wanderings in June — it was an eventful month. Elizabeth (youngest child, 25, only daughter), and I flew to Seattle from Boston on June 2 to visit with son John and see some of the Pacific Northwest he loves; we attended his graduation on June 10 from Evergreen State College, a unique commencement from an outstanding college ("best in the West": U.S. News and World Report, November 28, 1983). That's my stock reply to the question "Ever-what?" I went from Seattle to Charlotte, N.C., for a visit with my parents, and while there visited Franklin, Va., and attended a Waters family reunion in Richmond on the 25th. (Six William and Mary alumni among us.) Back home on the 27th and started my summer job at the gift shop on July 2. John was off to Alaska the week after graduation, but we expect to see him at home in the fall.

While in Franklin I managed a brief visit with Anne Reese Carson, where the wedding presents were still on display from her daughter's wedding the previous weekend. Much excitement there, too, but the best news is that Bev is much improved from his illness of last year.

Evelyn Gardner King wrote in the spring (too late for my last deadline) from Largo, Fla., that she had a marvelous but short visit with Marcia and Jim Kirkpatrick in mid-March followed by a three-day "talkathon" when Tita Cecil Myers and Clark came. Evie still owns the Flying Needle (needlepoint, knitting, etc.) in Belleair Bluffs, Fla., and adds that their three children are all "happy, thriving and, alas, all grown up!"

The Alumni Office sent me clippings from a Williamsburg area paper of an article by Jim Baker about his experience as amateur magician in India, Pakistan and Tunisia. Now "retired" in the Williamsburg area, Jim has just had a magic book for young people, Illusions Illustrated, published by Lerner Publications of Minneapolis. He also writes for Williamsburg Magazine.

Hugh DeSamper, director of travel and group marketing for Colonial Williamsburg, was coordinator last July for the Summer Institute of Tourism at the Virginia Beach Pavilion. The all-day forum was to study the feasibility of establishing a regional tourism authority to serve the Hampton Roads area, which embraces the region from Virginia Beach to Williamsburg and Surry County, and from the York River to the North Carolina line.

MARK H. MCCORMACK '51 WRITES NEW BOOK

Mark H. McCormack '51, president of the International Management Group, Inc., is the author of a new book "What They Don't Teach You At Harvard Business School: Notes From A Street-Smart Executive." Published by Bantam Books, the book is written in the no-nonsense manner that McCormack, described by Sports Illustrated as "the most powerful man in sports," brings to his own fast-paced business of managing some of the world's best-known celebrities. McCormack, who describes himself as "a manager of people and concepts," shows in his new book how to use "applied people sense" to get things done, whether it's getting ahead in a corporation or running one, building a business or becoming an entrepreneur.

Will someone write after Homecoming and share with us the '51 news and faces seen thereabouts? Many thanks.

Nancy Simmons Manson writes she is oil painting — mainly landscapes and still lifes, with an occasional portrait — showing in galleries. Her oldest son, Dan, starts college this fall and Patrick, a high-school junior, is an up-and-rising pole vaulting champ.

Albert (Chick) Smith is stationed at Scott Air Force Base where he is serving as director of logistics plans for the USAF Military Airlift Command. Chick is an Air Force colonel. He is married to Sandy Walck of Vancouver, Wash., and has a seven-year-old son.

Paula Margolf Whitaker has settled in Dade County, Fla., and is an associate professor of social sciences at Saint Petersburg Junior College. Her husband, Jeff, is a senior sales rep with Harper & Row Publishers in the college sales and editorial division. Her daughter, Diane, a junior at St. Leo College, is an accomplished equestrian and has competed successfully in the Midland Horse Show, winning the three-day dressage, cross country and jumping show. Paula, we all will be looking for her in future Olympics!

After 17 years with Shell Oil, Jim Godfrey has retired and now has a new career in commercial real estate in Houston. He and his wife, Pat Clark '58, are enraptured with sailing. This past spring they sailed to Chesapeake Bay and visited Ed and Dorothy Bird Wilson. Jim wrote that he and Pat enjoyed the trip so much they bought a vacation home on the Piankatank River to serve as their base for future sailing excursions. Pat and Jim promise to make Homecoming in November.

Willard (Bill) Morris recently won the Army Editor of the Year Award as writer/editor for the Administrative Systems Management Branch, Military District of Washington. During a Pentagon ceremony, Bill was praised for writing "in clear, simple English . . . logically organized and so clearly written that an outsider can pick it up and understand it." Now that is a real feat for anything coming out of the government! Congratulations, Bill — and we'll keep you in mind for the next class news editor.

Berea College president John B. Stephenson, is one of 53 Kentuckians selected to serve on a statewide, bipartisan citizen's commission formed to promote the economic and social revitalization of our 15th state.

Harry Barnhart, Jr., has a dairy farm south of Roanoke in Boones Mill, Va. He has three children, one in college. We talked to Harry recently about Homecoming — says he'll try to be there.

When Peter and I realized Marsha Schwartz Jones was just on the other side of Bergen County, we gave her a call. She has a graphic arts and printing company with her husband, Art. Her son, Art, is in his second year at Brown; her daughter, Claire, goes to Hamilton and they have a 15-year-old daughter at home.

Ann Hansbarger Haden is in Williamsburg. Ann's son, Doug, attended V.P.I. and is now in computer software, while daughter, Nancy, is in the class of '85 at James Madison. We all shall be looking forward to seeing you at Homecoming, Ann.

Another classmate in Williamsburg with no excuse for missing our 25th reunion is John W. Roberts who is executive director of the Williamsburg Area Tourism and Conference Bureau.

News from the Bommers — Peter is an underwriting member of Lloyds of London and partner in an insurance agency. Our eldest son, Stephen, finished his freshman year at W&M and, at this writing, is anxious to get back. Daniel, our No. 2 son, will be starting at Babson this fall, leaving us home with Gretel, our 13-year old. Peter and I will be at Homecoming and are very anxious to see and hear from the rest of the class.

Many thanks to all of you who have written, and those who have not, please do!

Sorry about the last issue folks. The deadline came and went, and I completely forgot!! Isn't there something about the brain cells dying after forty? So, here's some old news along with the new.

A Sig Ep reunion in New Jersey saw several classmates get together: George Chapman and wife, Gretchen, from Raleigh, N.C.; Jim Odell and his wife from Lexington, Ky., where Jim is a lawyer with Odell and Howard; and Bill Nicolai, who lives in New York, where he is assistant director of public relations for United Cerebral Palsy Association, Inc.

Jim McMahon and wife, Anita, returned to the U.S. after almost 20 years of living and working overseas. Jim is now living in El Toro, Calif., and would like to have friends from college get in touch with him at 23316 Buckland Ln.

Sue Bruton Bailey writes from New Bern, N.C., that they've opened their own business, Pamlico Sportswear. Daughter Benton is a rising senior at the College.

Ann Lichtefeld Kauffman is keeping busy with traveling, sailing, and new interest — horse racing.

Much news from Sheila Kessler Michaels in New York. She has seen Tom Libscomb and his actress wife, John French and his wife, Lola, Peter Neufeld and Dana Kruger, who was singing this last season at Carnegie Hall in La Perichole. Sheila has been placing pieces in the Times and New York Magazine lately. She is working on a Japanese TV cartoon series, which will be imported soon.

Back in February (I told you some of this news was old), the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame inducted eight new members. Among them was Bev Vaughan, who was a four-year basketball letterman. Bev was All-Southern Conference in 1961 and led the Indians in scoring in 1960. The Hall of Fame honors persons who have made a significant contribution to the College through intercollegiate athletics as a competitor, coach or administrator.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE ADOPTS ALUMNUS' PROGRAM

James McCrory '83 has recently completed a project for the Chicago Board of Trade. His computer program was devised for the management of world stock options and commodity futures. Two major Swiss banks and the Rothschilds have lauded the program as being the best that they've seen and have adopted the program. While at William and Mary, McCrory majored in computer science and worked on weekends programming the Department of Defense printing operations.

Phyllis Akers Mink, hardly the stereotyped image of the little old librarian in ankle-length skirts who sits behind a desk and says "shh!" (Phyllis hopes that image is gone forever), has accepted the position of user services librarian at McConnell Library at Radford. In addition to her B.A. in English from William and Mary, Phyllis earned a master of science in library science from the University of Tennessee.

In June, for the second year in a row, the Cutty Sark Award for the best U.S. menswear designer went to Perry Ellis. Perry gave the $5000 scholarship that comes with the award to William and Mary.

Don Pons is the treasurer of the newly formed alumni chapter in Williamsburg.

This has been an interesting year for my husband, Joe. He has been detailed from NASA to the White House Science Office, where he is writing policy on space science in the Office of Science and Technology Policy. I am still teaching at our county's science center; two children off to college and the last starts high school. How time flies. Don't let too much more of it fly before you get a letter off to me with your news. I depend on you to keep this going!

Fall is the time for many to return to school. How many of us are sending our children off to college now? And how many to William and Mary? Our first daughter, Pam, is going to the University of Pennsylvania this fall as a freshman. The College counseling seminar she attended during the summer of 1983 really gave her guidance on applying to college. Our second daughter, Sharon, attended this seminar this past summer and is now following the guidelines she learned in her search for the college best suited for her. A very positive experience that the College is providing!

Joe Snyder and his wife, Susan, live in Annapolis, Md., where Joe is a professor of mathematics at Anne Arundel Community College. They live on a 10-acre farm with various animals and their two daughters.

Ron Miller is a plant manager for International Minerals and Chemical Corporation in Spruce Pine, N.C. He was invited to be a track and field official at the Olympics!

Mickey Baughman and his wife and two children live in Seminole, Fla., where he is plant manager of the West Company.

Ray Warner and his wife, Susan Roach Warner '64, live in Oakton, Va., with their two children. Ray is a marketing consultant with DGA International, Inc.

Steve Skjei and his wife, Priscilla '64, and their two children live in Vienna, Va. Steve recently took a position with the Communications Satellite Corporation.

Nancy Ramsey Carwile lives in Cullen, Va., where she is a reading resource teacher in the Appomattox County schools. She and her husband, C.L., run a dairy. They have two children.

William Jones and Margaret Beale Jones have added a son to their family. William Jones III was born in March 1984.

Bruce Heckman is in private practice in internal medicine as medical director of the Osining Open Door and Hospice Program and the assistant clinical professor of internal and community medicine at the New York Medical College. He and his wife have two children.

Richard '61 and Sue Meara Coyle have two children who are both attending William and Mary now, one in the class of '87 and the other in the class of '88.

ALUMNUS NAMED TRIAL LAWYER FELLOW

Thomas C. Palmer, Jr., '63, '66 B.C.L., of Manassas, Va., has become a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers. Membership, which is a position of honor, is by invitation of the Board of Regents. The College is a national association of 4050 Fellows in the United States and Canada. Its purpose is to improve the standards of trial practice, the administration of justice, and the ethics of the trial branch of the profession.

Carol Boardman Artiques teaches third grade, is a high-school track coach and the tennis instructor for a summer recreation program. She lives in Ballston Spa, N.Y.

Jane Rothgeb Jennings lives in California with her two children. She is divorced and working full time in mortgage banking. She sees Enola Fox, who lives nearby and teaches at the high school. Jane heard from Phyllis Atwood Gauker. Phyllis has been a widow for some years. She lives in Auburn, Ala., with her children.

Don, '61, was in Chicago this summer preparing a video tape for the American College of Hospital Administrators, which will be used in graduate programs in hospital administration.

I have been working up a kindergarten computer lesson plan for my classroom. My school recently purchased Apple IIe computers and I am finding this whole field exciting and very new, especially at this age level!

Let's hear from you all out there!

Mary Blake French has been named managing editor of Army magazine. Mary Blake has worked as a journalist since graduation from the College and the University of Virginia, where she earned a master of arts degree. Before assuming her new position, she was managing editor of the publications of the American Association of University Women.

Diana Lemke Woodruff was awarded a Ph.D. from Georgia State University in 1983 and now serves as a behavior consultant to the DeKalb County School System.

Robert Willis recently assumed the position of national sales and service manager for the Bemiss-Jason Corporation, a multi-divisional company that converts paper products for the school and the retail marketplace.

Sam Martin is a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force, currently stationed in the Pentagon. Sam finished his M.B.A. and is working in public affairs. He was recently married and expects to be moving with his wife to San Antonio, Tex.

Janet Thurman Murphy and her family live in West Hartford, Conn. She is teaching English at Northwest Catholic High School and working on a master's degree in American studies at Trinity College in Hartford. Her husband, Bob, has gone into business with another consultant. Their daughters, Kelly and Maureen, attend the Kingswood-Oxford School.

On July 7 a number of Sig Ep fraternity brothers gathered in the Gaithersburg, Md., area for a picnic and reunion. Janet Neal Morrison and Bill '64 came from Newport News, Va. Bill is manager of the Williamsburg office of Eggleston, Smith and Company, Certified Public Accountants. They have a son and a daughter. Mike Sopchak and Dickey made the trip from Owensboro, Ky. They have three children and Mike is the vice-president of a company that does homebuilding, real estate and commercial, residential and mini-warehouse leasing.

Dave Lutz brought a restaurant called "Calloways" in Nobelville, Inc., and this past spring added a catering service to the business. Bob Clapp lives in Laurel, Md., and is credit manager for American Security Bank. Jerry Stettler lives in Vista, Calif., and opened his own CPA office in January 1984. Kent and Rusty Rawlings Stevens and their two children live in Leesburg, Va., where Kent is the administrator of the Loudoun County Memorial Hospital. Pete Olsen is vice-president and Mexican representative of First Interstate Bank of Los Angeles, Calif. He lives with his wife and two daughters in Mexico City, Mexico. Bill Hurley is with the FBI in Los Angeles, Calif. He, his wife, and their three children live in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Eric A. Foretich is an oral surgeon practicing in Falls Church, Va. He lives with his family in a home he designed and built with help from his father, Vincent. The home is a replica of the president's house at the College of William and Mary. As no architects' plans exist for the original structure, they had to rely upon direct measurements from the house and some floor plans found in the College library. The Foretiches plan to construct replicas of other 18th-century Virginia homes in the Northern Virginia area. Their next project will be the Moore house in Yorktown.

Dabney Delany Leonard continues to teach aerobic dance at Ft. Stewart, Ga. She is active in PTA, Girl Scouts and the swim team and volunteers in the schools attended by her children. Her husband, Ron, has just been selected for full colonel in the Army, and they feel they will soon be transferred, possibly to Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Where did the summer go? Entering my fifth year in Ohio and watching the leaves fall reminds me too quickly that I'm not yet acclimated to Cleveland's winters and will be temporarily envious of those of you in warmer climes.

Summer newspaper clippings were the source of much of this issue's news about classmates. Bill Westbrook moved his advertising agency into a colonial revival mansion in Richmond's fan district this summer. Built in 1879 and previously known to Richmonders as the old (yellow) Boy Scout building, the house is now purple and was featured in an August Richmond Times-Dispatch article. Bill has totally restored the building and electically furnished it with a mix of primitive antiques and modern chrome, glass, leather and tweed. His collection of carousel horses, unusual pie safes and other "country-looking oddments" adds functionally to his offices. Bill lives in an old log cabin from Buckingham County that he reconstructed in Hanover.

Bob Sheeran announced in July that at the end of the 1984-85 basketball season, he will be leaving his position as sports information director at the College. Bob said that his decision had been developing with the growth of his children, Rob, 7, and Billy, 5, for whom he needed precious time that his job did not allow. He intends to remain in the Williamsburg area and continue a supportive association with William and Mary.

Joe Dye had a nice write up in the Eastern Shore News describing his educational accomplishments, travel, research and publications, which led to his present position (since September 1980) as curator of Asiatic art at the Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond. Joe earned his M.A., a museum training certificate and his Ph.D. from the Institute of Fine Arts in New York, majoring in the art of India and Southeast Asia.

Lewis Puller has written the book, Trial By Fire, which will touch the heartstrings and strike some deep mental and emotional chords for all of us who experienced the war in Southeast Asia. Lewis completed law school at the College after wounds caused his evacuation from Vietnam and subsequent retirement as a Marine officer. He is an attorney in the Office of the General Counsel

BUSINESS SCHOOL RECEIVES GIFT

The School of Business Administration at the College has received a gift of $6,000 from the Allied Corporation of Morristown, N.J., to provide scholarship support for Master of Business Administration students. A diversified manufacturing company, Allied has provided scholarship support to the School of Business since 1978. Last year Allied provided $4,000 in scholarship aid.

at the Department of Defense and lives in Alexandria with his wife, Toddy, and their two children, Lewis and Margaret.

Sam Smart and Laura Daughtry Smart '68 live in Fredericksburg with their four daughters and both serve on the College's alumni admissions network. He is an optometrist in private practice and joined practices with William Mitchell Powell '71, in 1981. Ralph Elmore left his law practice in Richmond in 1983 and moved to north Myrtle Beach, S.C., with his wife and son. They own and operate the Ship's Bounty Seafood Restaurant. Tom Trautman and Betsy Walker Trautman '69 live in Broad Run, Va., with their two children. Tom is a mortgage banker with A.E. Landvoigt in Fairfax.

Ellen Vasiliou Mamandras, is living in London, Ontario, where her husband, Anthony, is on the dental faculty of Western Ontario University. They have two young children.

William Willis is a senior staff scientist for the environmental services division of the Energy and Technology Group. He and his wife, Brenda, have one son, Bill, who is six.

I missed seeing Laurie Uhl Swanson while she was visiting friends from Canton, Ohio, in August. While back in the States from Saudi Arabia this summer, Laurie took one son to participate in the AAU junior olympics championships in Jacksonville, Fla., and enrolled the other in prep school in New England.

Carol Harlow Rafter moved to Winchester, Va., last summer, where her husband, Tay, returned to family practice after six years of emergency room medicine. They have twin sons in the 5th grade and a daughter in the 4th grade.

I always plead for news at the close of every column. Again: please take a little time to fill me in for the December issue. How about news from those of you who have never been mentioned in 17 years?

And I thought the last column had NO news!! Where are all you people with your cards and letters? If Homecoming does not bring some items for the next issue, we may win the award for least news from a 15-year reunion class.

I hope many of you are planning to come to Homecoming this year. I am, and so are many of my Kappa Delta sisters. It should be a lot of fun.

Now to the skimpy news that I have acquired. Nora Butler wrote that she was married in March to Soren Andresen and became the mother of two teenagers. "It is quite an adjustment — but a happy adjustment," she says. Nora is still an emergency counselor with Western Tidewater Mental Health Center and the community coordinator of the center's Spouse Abuse Prevention program. She reported that she sees Bobbie Hart at VADV (whatever that stands for) functions and that she looks great!

James Green was back in Williamsburg on March 30 to attend the College Band's concert and to go to an open house at Mr. Varner's afterwards. He reports that he saw Pappy Fehr there as well as some old friends. James completed a music project, a vocal recital with a friend, in April up in Newark, Del., where he lives.

Congratulations to Jim Douthat who was recently named the administrative vice-president of Albion College in Albion, Mich. ALUMNI TOUR EUROPE

Sixteen William and Mary alumni, led by H. Westcott '43 and Cecy '46 Cunningham, toured Europe for 15 days in June, visiting Switzerland, France, Germany and the Netherlands. The highlight of the trip, sponsored by the Society of the Alumni Educational Travel Programs, was a five-day cruise on the Rhine and Moselle rivers. The group also visited Heidelberg, Amsterdam, and Interlocken; did some mountain climbing in the Alps, visited the dikes in Holland, and dined in an authentic German castle. In the accompanying photos are (left) Saunders M. Almond Jr. '41, his wife Ann, and R. Sidney Broocks '41 and (right) Scotty and Cecy Cunningham (opposite each other) and Nancy Seal Hauss '47 (next to Cunningham) and Jean Booges.

lege, including being in charge of the student life area and the business and financial offices. He will also be the secretary to the college board of trustees. After graduation, Jim went to Duke University for both a master of divinity degree and an Ed.D. degree. He and his wife have a son, Mark.

Congratulations are also in order for Steve Maier, who was promoted to assistant treasurer of the Grand Union Company. Steve and his wife and son moved to Sparta, N.J., from Maryland. Patrick Stoner continues to win honors. This time he was selected from across the nation as one of 12 critic fellows of the National Critics Institute. The Institute is the only professional-level training program for critics in the country. Patrick has worked as the critic-at-large for WHYY-TV in Philadelphia/Wilmington for the last four years.

Melanie Leonard Mason and Bob '68 are enjoying their old farmhouse on Long Island, where they have three horses to ride (or let Shannon, 12, and Justin, 9, ride). Melanie is a pony cart driver for the Carriage Museum in Stony Brook and also has a garden consulting business. Bob is a vascular surgeon at SUNY Stony Brook and is the surgical residency coordinator. Patricia C. Christopher is also into gardening. She just received a certificate of merit in ornamental plants at Longwood Gardens, Pa., and is now a guide there. Patricia travels with her husband on business to Japan and Mexico.

Some news came to me on a Sig Ep picnic and reunion held in Gaithersburg, Md., the beginning of July. Tom Trautman was there with his wife Martha (Betsy) Walker from Broad Run, Va. Tom is a mortgage banker and they have two children. Jackie Mitchell Harris vacationed with her family at the World's Fair in New Orleans late this summer. Jackie teaches high-school math in Atlanta.

Patricia Rayne Kerns wrote that she received a certificate of advanced study in educational administration from the College this May. Pat had completed 34 hours beyond her master's degree. She lives in Newport News.

I am happy to report that our family added one new member in late May. A little boy, Charles Edward, joined two sisters, Anna Louise, 5 1/2, and Ellen, almost 2. They are keeping me busy although I still find time to accept a consulting contract every now and again. See you at Homecoming!

Well, the Summer of 1984 is almost at an end. The Olympics are a thing of the past — McDonald's to the contrary; the conventions are over and Ms. Ferraro is trying to find her husband's checkbook and the Anderson/Jackson "we'd rather switch than fight" may not be enough to overtake the "Gipper." Oh well, life in the fast lane goes on. Now to the news at hand from Alumnville.

Nancy Bull Weaver and husband, William, have added their first child, William V. IV, to the family. Nancy and the two Bills live in Accomac, Va. (P.O. Box 342, 23301). Adam Burlock and wife, Julie, are presently living in Alexandria, Va., at 4701 Kenmore Ave., Apt. 919, 22304. Adam, a former first trumpet in the W&M orchestra, regrets missing his chance to play in the Olympic gala (just kidding, Adam). He sends word of Sheldon Kuasik who is a successful (aren't they all) attorney in Chicago, living with his wife, Patricia, and their son. Carol Diehl (please confirm this item) is allegedly married and living in the highlands of Scotland. Stephanie Wickowski has recently been appointed adjunct professor of law at Catholic University, molding the minds of two and three L's in the "paper chase." Her real job is as trial attorney with the Civil Division of the Justice Department for the last three plus years. Stephanie's address is 755 Third St., S.W. Washington, D.C. 20024.

David Russell and wife, Debbie, moved into a new self-built home in March. Dave is a realtor with Bowers, Nelms and Fannill, while Debbie is an attorney with McGuire, Woods and Battle, doing nationwide product liability litigation. Robert W. Stohner (glad to hear a Kappa Sig still "alive and kicking") and wife, Melanie, are the proud parents of two sons — Jared Marshall, 3, and Andrew Todd, 3 months. The Stohners live at 444 Crescent Ave. in Moorestown, N.J. 08057. David C. Scofield writes of his recent return to New York to work for Webster Management Co., where he is president of the Kidder-Peabody Special Growth Fund; David previously put in six years in the City of Brotherly Love with the Delaware Management Fund. Just call him "Mr. Equity."

A few of our more distant alumni checked; Christopher A. Bracken just received his degree — M.D., transitional residency, University Hospital, Little Rock, Ark., from the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio. (Did I get that right, Chris?) Ralph Getty is a captain in the Marines, assigned as operations officer of the Medium Helicopter Force on the USS Tarows in the Western Pacific and Indian oceans. He is married to Anne and they have a son, John. Steve F. Glessner works as a staff internist in the Beaufort, S.C., Naval Hospital near Paris Island Marine Base. Dr. Stuart D. Martin and wife, Barbara Carol Martin '71, have returned to Richmond, as of July 1 (2308 E. Broad St., St. Johns Old & Historic District, Richmond, Va., 23223), having spent three and a half years in Stavanger, Norway (which we all knew but they didn't know we knew). Stuart will begin private practice in Richmond but just before he left Europe he was admitted to the American Dental Society of Europe. Welcome back, folks.

Last but not least, our most exotic letter award goes to John L. Crull, who has recently moved from Tokyo, Japan (after seven years there) to the Taipei American School, Republic of China. The complete address, for those winging through the neighborhood and wanting to say hi, is: 731 Wen Lin Rd., Sec. 1, Shihlin, Taipei, Taiwan 111, c/o The American School.

Yours truly has had an uneventful summer except for having my car "totaled" by a kid who ran a stop light — luckily, my only passengers were a gallon of milk and a D.Q. Buster Bar. Another birthday just passed me by as it probably has most of you. My daughter starts nursery school next month and Ann Marie cannot wait for the deafening silence to overtake the house. For those of you who consider yourselves gamespeople, the Baby Boomer edition of Trivial Pursuit is a real humbling experience — if those were the days my friends, I must have read the wrong magazines, periodicals and newspapers. In any event, Keep on Truckin' and Keep in Touch. Peace.

Mrs. A David C. Larson

Beaver Dam, WI 53916

Hi, everyone! The summer has flown by for the Larsons in Wisconsin, as I'm sure it has for many of you. We're continuing our adjustment to small town life in the Dairy Belt and enjoying it. Did you know a cow isn't a cow until she's had a baby? These facts and more are yours for the asking. Just write!

Dave competed in his first triathlon this summer and lived to tell about it. My challenges were slightly tamer, but no less taxing. Can you imagine shopping for carpeting, cabinets, doorknobs and lighting fixtures all at the same time, and then being dragged by a four year old to all the Back-to-School sales in Beaver Dam? Sarah is in kindergarten this year, and I'm sure many of you are experiencing the same pangs of seeing your first babe go off to school. That is, unless you have a three-year-old Christopher break dancing to Sesame Street in the background and a ten-month-old Jenny looking you squarely in the eye and saying "Soooo Big" to that age-old question instead of raising her arms like babies are supposed to do. Anyway, enough of these trivialities. On with the real news.

Lots of babies were born this spring and summer. Paige Auer Winck and Mike gave Adam a baby brother, Ryder Christian, on April 18. Paige can't believe she's living with three boys, but cherishes hopes that one day she'll be able to pack them all off on a bike tour with little or no fuss and meet them once they get to some flat terrain. I really think this sounds like Paige has gone soft. With legs like hers, she should be able to keep up!

Terry and Dave Forman are also proud parents of new baby Sara Christine, born on June 29. Dave took time out in July to pack twins Katie and Jenny in the car and drive to Beaver Dam to help my Dave cut trees on our lot. Now all of W&M knows how much we appreciated it. Thanks, Dave.

Karen Kennedy Schultz and Gene Schultz are also new parents. Katherine Kennedy Schultz was born January 11 and is a candidate for admission in the W&M class of 2006. Gene is the manager of the Virginia Employment Commission in Winchester, Va. Karen is on the faculty at Shenandoah College teaching in the Respiratory Therapy Program. She says this field offers some excellent careers and encourages people to look into it if they want a career change. Gene and Karen extend an open invitation to anyone who would like to visit them in the beautiful Shenandoah Valley.

Ann Spielman Woolley and Mark '77 should be new parents by now. They are living in Little Rhode Island, where Mark works as a planning analyst. Ann has retired from her position as assistant to the medical director of a health maintenance organization in favor of motherhood.

Terri Bartlett Osborne gave birth to Christopher Bartlett Osborne on April 18 and has given up teaching. She still gives private piano lessons and is her church choir director. She and Mark welcome all old friends to their home in Kingsmill in James City County, anytime.

And last in the Baby Boomers category, Lawrence Bussey and Margaret Bartenstein Bussey '76 had their first child, Benjamin Alden, on December 11, 1983.

Tykie Tobin Dicterow and Glenn are still in New York City but have moved to a large, prewar apartment they've redecorated. Whitney Ann is enrolled in a Montessori program for two-year-olds. Tykie is now in line management with Morgan Guaranty heading the Middle East Module in International Trade Services as an assistant treasurer. Glenn is still with the Philharmonic but has expanded his teaching and concert career.

Also in New York is Crystal Orndoff Kurtzberg. She's staying home to take care of one-year-old David and admits to getting lonely. Stop by at 213-05 34th Rd. in Bayside or call 212-631-4294.

Another fellow New Yorker, Barbara McCulloh, sounds like she's off to fame and fortune in her stage career. In March she made her New York debut in an off-Broadway show, "Up in Central Park," doing the female lead. Mark Basile was also in the cast. Then in June she began starring in the musical, "Kuni Leml." Reviews for the play were very complimentary to Barbara and to the entire production. It may still be running, so all you New Yorkers look Barbara up at the Jewish Repertory Theater.

Another of our musicians, Bill Jenkins, and his wife, Leslie Michaud Jenkins, have also taken the plunge to big city life. After twelve years in W'burg, they've moved to D.C., where Bill is selling musical instruments of the world at the House of Musical Traditions in Takoma Park, Md., and writing the store's mail order catalog. He invites anyone with a strange instrument that they want to sell to bring it by. Leslie has become an RN and is at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda. They recently spent a month traveling southern and eastern Mexico by bus and plan to lead small groups there in the future. They report that Takoma Park is said to have more poets per square mile than any city in the U.S., and they invite anyone to contact them at House of Musical Traditions.

Polly Brothers Oliver wrote that she was transferred from Richmond to Orlando, and is working for Travelers Insurance Co. as assistant manager, Commercial Lines Department. She earned her CPCU designation in September 1983 and is happily married with no children.

The Alumni Office sent a wealth of information on the doings of several other classmates. One of the cleverest ideas I've heard of came from Cynthia Hall and her husband, Jan Schonborn. They've started a business in W'burg called Critter Sitters. They babysit for cats, dogs, fish, etc., in your home and do it in a very professional way. They're bonded, carry insurance, and keep the welfare of the animals as their highest priority. So relax, would-be travelers. You know who to call.

The rest of the Alumni Office news concerns the over-achievers. This is the news that always makes the housewife, mother of three, drool and sigh. Congratulations, one and all!

Judith Baroody was recently sworn in as a foreign service officer in the U.S. Information Agency. For the last six years she was a news reporter and anchorwoman of the weekend news for WVEC-TV and won several awards.

Tom Fergusson has been appointed by Rust-Oleum Corporation to the position of senior vice-president — marketing and sales. He'll be responsible for overall direction and coordination of the consumer and industrial marketing groups. Tom and his wife, Catherine, live in Libertyville, Ill.

Gary Byrd has been promoted to vice-president and manager of the Century City Business Banking Center of Security Pacific National Bank. He's been with the bank since 1975. Gary earned an M. B. A. from the University of California, Los Angeles, in 1981.

Mike D'Orso of W'burg who recently moved from Commonwealth Magazine to the Virginian-Pilot/Ledger-Star newspaper in Norfolk, received a third place award in Lincoln University's annual Unity Awards in Media program for his article on Moses Malone. He also received a first place award from the National Association of Petroleum Landmen for an article on offshore oil exploration and was included among The Sporting News "Best Sports Stories 1984" for his piece on NASCAR auto racing.

Robert Garrity received a Colgate Darden,

SATURDAY EVENING POST
FEATURES DR. DEVITA

Dr. Vincent T. DeVita '57, director of the National Cancer Institute, is the subject of the cover story in the July/August issue of The Saturday Evening Post. Written by Dr. Cory SerVaas, the article says that "all America should be glad that Dr. Vincent T. DeVita is in charge of the $1,100,000,000 that will be spent on cancer this year by the National Cancer Institute." DeVita, says the article, is a "gutsy, no-nonsense researcher with a practical, imaginative, down-to-earth approach to tackling cancer." The article consists of a wide-ranging interview with Dr. DeVita on the causes, preventions and treatment of cancer.

Jr., Summer Internship which enabled him to work as a research assistant for the Governor's Office of International Industrial Development in Richmond. The program's purpose is to give students first-hand experience in the workings of American government and politics in order to bring the political and academic worlds closer together.

Jim Beavers is the new principal at Williamsburg Christian Academy. He has served on the school board since the academy was founded in 1978 and became an instructor last year. Jim previously taught for three years in York public schools and worked in missions for three years in the mid-Atlantic states.

Bill Smyth has accepted a position as assistant director of the Charleston Development Board in Charleston, S.C. He'll be in charge of national and international industrial trade and development in the tricounty area.

And before I leave her out, Mindy Wolff resigned from the service bureau after three years as a customer services rep. in September 1983, spent a couple of weeks in Greece and went to work for Rohm & Haas Chemical Company as a consultant and trainer in its Computer Information Center. She says her math background from W&M and her M.B.A. from Temple are finally coming in handy. She bought a condo in Devon, Pa., and is active in the Masters Swim Competition. Her times have improved since college, and she's competing for fun! Gee, girls, maybe we shouldn't believe them when they tell us our bodies are "done for" at twenty-one.

Alas, it's time to wrap up this lengthy and, I hope, informative letter and get back to the bubblegum stuck in our favorite Barbie doll's hair. Better her than me! We plan to move by Halloween, so send your letters to: 805 Lakeshore Dr., Beaver Dam, WI 53916. And have a great fall, all.

Many thanks to all of you who wrote over the summer. We couldn't have the news without you.

In August of 1983 Bill Thralls left the Army as a captain to devote himself full time to Thralls & Associates, Inc. The firm, an international service firm specializing in task analysis and training for industry, was formed by Bill, his father and his brother. Bill has just returned to school for the graduate M.B.A. program at Emory University in Atlanta.

It was good to hear that Susan Cleghorn has accepted a position in Richmond with Best Products. She previously had worked for two years with a government contractor in Norfolk.

Congratulations to Rip and Debbie Renolds Taggart on the birth of their identical twins, Elizabeth and Carolyn, born May 29, 1984. They are living in Houston.

Mindy Halleren Ferrell received a M.S. in outdoor education at Northern Illinois University in 1981. She served as a nature center director on a 1600-acre "playground." In 1982 she married Douglass Ferrell and they settled in Dixon, Illinois. This spring they toured England, France and Scotland by bicycle, covering 2500 miles in nine weeks. They are presently living in northwest Montana in the town of Trout Creek.

This past May Sally Kessler completed her M.F.A. in costume design at the University of Virginia. The last two summers she worked at the Alabama Shakespeare Festival. She recently started work as a costume assistant at Arena Stage in D.C.

Amy Rose is working in Richmond as an examiner for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the agency that regulates savings and loan associations. She has worked for them since graduation, working in Connecticut for a couple of years before returning to Virginia.

Also in Richmond, Cynthia Bailey is an assistant attorney general representing the state on environmental and health matters. After graduating, she got a master's degree in pharmaceutical chemistry from the Medical College of Virginia and her law degree from the University of Richmond. She was a delegate to the 1984 state Democratic Convention.

Kitty Dichtel Heffington was promoted to assistant director of the Kee Business College in Newport News in March. She and her husband, Terry, have moved back into the home she grew up in.

From Orlando, Fla., Kathy Owens Hardman writes that she and her husband, Eddie, moved into a new home last Halloween and have spent much of the last six months getting it exactly the way they want it. She was promoted to advertising and corporate identification manager at United Telephone of Florida this year. She designed a program that resulted in 750 employees participating in March of Dimes Walkathons in four different cities, which earned her the Golden Image Award given by the Florida Public Relations Associations. She and her husband are very active in the BMW Car Club of America.

Tom Huber recently moved from Chicago to Los Angeles. He is employed as an attorney in the Los Angeles Regional Office of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

In Palo Alto, Calif., Judy Cromie Minton is the compensation manager for I. Magnin specialty stores. She is married to a doctoral student at the Stanford Graduate School of Business.

I was lucky enough to see Kara Lang Craig, Bill and Michele Griffen Craig's new daughter. She was born June 1, 1984, and weighed in at almost eight pounds.

Susan Brzosteh married Gene Thies on August 16, 1980. They are expecting their first child in early November. Susan graduated on May 13 of this year with high honors from the University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Nursing at Omaha, receiving an associate of science in nursing degree. She also received the Student Nurse of the Year Award and the Alumni Award for the highest academic average.

After attending the College of Fisheries at the University, Larry Greenburg is at Cornell working on his Ph.D. His thesis is on competition in stream fishes.

Jeff Leppo is in private law practice specializing in environmental matters and land use. He lives in the Seattle area.

At George Washington University, Kevin Holmes is working on his post-doctorate. His wife, Courtney Henshaw Holmes, is a biochemist for a commercial medical lab.

Susan Craig Crockett received her B.S. in dental hygiene from O.D.U. She is working as a dental hygienist in Hampton. She and her husband, Tom, plan on building a solar house in Gloucester County.

David Hamburg was recently promoted to vice-president at Bank of Virginia. He joined the bank six years ago in Richmond's commercial lending department. After transferring to Norfolk in 1979, he was elected a commercial loan officer and advanced to assistant vice-president in September 1983.

After receiving her M.D. from M. C. V. in 1981, Leigh Ann Schwietz has just finished an internal medicine residency in northern California. She is now doing an immunology/allergy fellowship in San Antonio, Tex.

Dale Lee is an attorney employed with

INSTITUTE NAMES NEW EDITOR

The Institute of Early American History and Culture at William and Mary has named Dr. Philip Morgan of Virginia Polytechnic Institute to succeed Dr. Norman Fiering as editor of book publications. An author and historian, Morgan, who has been on leave this year to complete a book on slavery in colonial Virginia and South Carolina, will assume direction of the Institute's prestigious publications program, which garnered the 1983 Pulitzer Prize in history last July.

State Farm Insurance Company in Annandale. He was recently promoted to claim supervisor. A member of the Fairfax County Republican Committee, he received an award in 1983 for the best precinct organization. He was precinct chairman for the Republican party.

Congratulations to Barbara Savage Breit on the birth of her third child, Elliott Jacob Breit, on December 14, 1983.

Greg Dunlevy and his wife, Andrea, are expecting their first child. They are living in southern California. Marcia Schmidt Blaine and her husband, Quentin, are living in Concord, N.H. Marcia is teaching and doing freelance quantitative historical research. Her husband has just completed his first year of law school.

Since March 1983 Jeanmarie Brock Tade has worked as an oil and gas attorney for Sohio Petroleum Company in Houston. Her work includes trips to Anchorage, Alaska. She is married to Timothy Tade, a petroleum engineer.

Steve Halenda was married August 6, 1983, to Ruth Marrion. He received his Ph.D. in September 1982 from M. C. V.

Keep those cards and letters coming. Don't be bashful!

After a long HOT summer, it seems that relief is finally in sight with the coming of fall. I am presently living in the sunny South, so please note the new address.

Lori Nelson wrote with news of her busy, post-William and Mary years. After several years of toiling over the books at UVA, Lori graduated with a B.S.N. in nursing in May 1983. She opted to stay in Charlottesville, taking a position as an operating room RN at UVA Hospital. Lori professed to be enthralled by the charms of neurosurgery, trauma and general surgery and is thrilled by the arrival of a trauma helicopter. She hopes to become involved with that program. In between aiding the sick, Lori found time to move to a new town house in Albemarle County.

Louisa Manglesdorf Chiasson reports several new additions to her life since graduation. On August 27, 1983, Louisa wed Westinghouse engineer Mike Chiasson, while this past April she received a master's degree in information science from the University of Pittsburgh. Louisa will be starting work as an applications programmer after she and Mike decide about a possible relocation to either Raleigh or Dallas.

Another alumna on the move is Nancy Fahey Smith, who is currently residing in Belgium with husband, Paul. Nancy writes, "After leaving the army as a captain in May of 1983, I moved to Shape, Belgium, with my husband, Paul. I am working on the Belgian equivalent of a master's degree in French language and literature at the Free University of Brussels — which involves a commute by train and bus of just over an hour. I am currently taking exams — they're spread out over six weeks!" Nancy and Paul also became proud parents on April 5, 1984, with the birth of their first child, Eric Joseph. Cultural indulgence appears to be next on their agenda, with trips planned to the Loire Valley, Paris, Normandy and possibly Munich for the Oktoberfest.

Closer to home (Williamsburg, that is), Cynthy Floyd Page writes that she and husband, Sam, are happily settled near her place of employment, Randolph-Macon Woman's College. After passing her CPA exam and working three years at a local CPA firm, Cynthy accepted the position of accounting supervisor at RMWC. She reports that her work has given her "a very different look at college life." Cynthy plans to renew old college ties this fall at Homecoming and hopes to see many old friends.

NEW FINANCIAL AID DIRECTOR

Edward K. McCormick has been named the new director of financial aid at William and Mary, succeeding E. Leon Looney who retired in August. McCormick had directed the financial aid program at Susquehanna University in Pennsylvania since 1970. He is a graduate of Bloomsburg University and the University of Pittsburgh.

More news on Hutton Cobb, this time gleaned from the Newport News Daily Press. Hutton's recent role in PBS's "Down in the Valley" has brought him yet another film role, this time in a space movie. The movie is titled "Enemy Mine," with filming due to begin soon. No news yet on the date of release.

Seeking to make his mark in the field of athletics is former All-Southern Conference quarterback Tom Rozantz. After playing on two teams in the Canadian Football League, Tom signed with the USFL Chicago Blitz, and was then drafted by the Pittsburgh Maulers. According to a Richmond Times-Dispatch article, "You couldn't miss No. 14 for the Maulers. He accounted for 210 of the team's 335 yards. He completed 16 to 25 passes. Several were dropped." Space limitations prevent me from including the whole article, but suffice to say that it was glowing in tone!

Art Halpert writes from Houston that he is the assistant tax manager at Browning-Ferris Industries. Art and wife, Lisa, welcomed their first child, Matthew Martin, on October 23, 1984. Christopher J. Bender recently received his Ph.D. in theoretical chemistry from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Chris is presently a post-doctorate fellow in biophysics at Amherst College. Kim De Wilde Young is an editorial staffer of Minerals and Materials for the Department of the Interior. April Ennis Powell has recently given birth to a son, Zachary, after several years of teaching in Williamsburg area schools.

Michaerel M. Hux, recent graduate of Guadalajara Medical School, is presently interning in Martin's Ferry, Ohio. Kevin J. Hennelly is living in Chesterfield County and working as a GS-12 at the U.S. Army Troop Support Agency. Kevin is a personnel staffing specialist with the Directorate of Personnel, Training and Administration. According to the Army news release, the TSA "manages and operates Army commissaries and provides technical guidance and procedures for other troop support activities such as food service and clothing".

Twyla Parsons has recently moved to Richmond and is employed by IBM. Twyla planned a trip to New York this past May to visit classmate Cindy Raczenbek. Cindy is a genetic counselor at a Long Island hospital. Twyla also passes along a big "hi" to Donna Eccard. Donna is working for Hewlett-Packard as a financial analyst in Rockville after completing her M.B.A. at the University of Maryland. Donna is residing in Arlington, Va.

Anna Barron Billingsley is a staff writer for the Richmond News Leader. Elizabeth Martin Yeakel is living in Helena, Mont., and working in the Corporate Bureau of the office of Secretary of State. Her husband, Steve, is the executive director of the Montana Republican Central Committee and undoubtedly having a very busy fall.

Barry Weinstein is keeping occupied with two teaching jobs in South Carolina. Barry is teaching both as an adjunct faculty member of the art department of the University of South Carolina and also at a high school in Columbia. He comments that "there are three good reasons for teaching school — June, July, and August!" Eileen Morgan married Marine captain William P. Johnson on September 3, 1983, in the Wren Chapel. Eileen is presently practicing law and living in California.

Captain Carl Siebenritt graduated from Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies in 1981. Carl is currently serving as an Army intelligence staff officer in Frankfurt, West Germany. Also in the mili-

JOHN HUNT '82 LL. D. NAMED
KILPATRICK & CODY ASSOCIATE

John R. Hunt '82 LL.D. has been named an associate of Kilpatrick & Cody, one of the largest law firms in Atlanta. Hunt received a B.A. degree in history and B.S. degree in journalism from Boston University, graduating magna cum laude. He is a member of the Virginia and Georgia Bars.

ENNIS REES '46 NAMED
SOUTH CAROLINA POET LAUREATE

Dr. Ennis Rees '46, professor of English at the University of South Carolina, has been named South Carolina's Poet Laureate by Governor Dick Riley. Dr. Rees, who teaches poetry at the university and has numerous works to his credit, will serve for a one year term ending June 30, 1985. Rees, 59, joined the USC in 1954 and has been active in the field of poetry throughout his career. His works include volumes of selected poems published in 1964 and 1973, and verse translations of the Odyssey and the Iliad. He has written numerous books of verse for children and recorded a number of record albums of his own poetry.

tary is Grace Springate, who by this time should be serving a tour of duty in Washington, D.C. Grace writes that she will be wed in August in Japan and will attain the rank of Air Force captain in October.

Teri Browning Pierce is presently director, legislative and political issues at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington. Teri is happily married to microbiologist Mark Pierce, living in Rockville, and was expecting her first child in June 1984.

Fay Eure Thomasson and husband, John, are presently living in Richmond and are both employed by C&P Telephone Company. Fay is a facilities planning engineer, while John manages the Special Services Center. Mary Colin Hyder has moved to College Park in order to pursue a master's degree in library science and hopefully enjoy some good U. of Md. basketball.

Well, that is all of the news for this issue. I hope to see everyone at Homecoming this November and consequently expect lots of letters about Homecoming experiences. Write and have a GREAT fall!

We've had a wonderful summer here in Southern California. The highlight was attending the Olympic Games in Los Angeles. If any of you were lucky enough to attend, I'm sure you'll agree that it was a marvelous experience. It was moving just watching the games and athletes on TV, but actually being there was a once-in-a-lifetime tremendous experience. There truly is such a thing as the "Olympic Spirit." Everyone in LA certainly had it!

From all the correspondence I've received recently, the Class of '81 is out conquering the world with a "go get 'em Indians" Spirit!

I'd like to extend congratulations to and welcome to the "Real" world our classmates who have recently completed master's and other advanced degree programs.

A number of '81 grads finished their 3-year law degree programs this past spring and have found employment throughout the country. John Fessenden earned his J.D. degree from UVA in May and has recently relocated to the Lone Star State of Texas. He and his wife, Kali, are living in San Antonio, where John is working for a local law firm and Kali is involved in biomedical research with the Air Force.

Mike Garrett and Nancy Kucan Reed graduated from Marshall-Wythe in May and are now both employed by Virginia law firms. Mike is working with a Lynchburg firm and Nancy is an associate with attorney Bishop Dansley in Harrisonburg. To add to the excitement of graduating from law school, Nancy was married, the day after graduation, to Mark Reed '80, J.D. '83, in the Wren Chapel. Mark is a partner in the law firm of Will, Hennessy and Reed in Luray.

Three new Pennsylvania lawyers include Greg Thomas, with his J.D. degree from Dickinson School of Law, and Dave Haas and Donna Harpster, both with law degrees from Widener University. Gayle Montague Flynn graduated from New York University School of Law in May, took the New York bar exam this summer and began working with a Wall Street law firm in September.

Heather Brown received a J.D. degree this past spring from the University of Oklahoma School of Law, where she was also a member of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity. Heather was also married, on April 28, to David Markette, another U. of Okla. Law School grad. Heather and David are currently living in Amarillo, Tex., where Heather works with the law firm of Moore, Dalrymple, Moss and Dyson and David is with Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield and Hensley.

But law degrees have by no means been the only advanced degrees earned by '81 grads. Molly Ashby received a master of science in foreign service from Georgetown University in May and has begun a nine-month training program with Morgan Guaranty Trust. She hopes eventually to work in MGT's African Dept.

In the field of athletics, Lynn Norenberg received a master's degree in athletic administration from the University of Kentucky and Teresa Norman earned an M.S. in sport management from U. Mass. Lynn is now working at NCAA National Headquarters as one of 10 NCAA enforcement representatives (investigators) and Teresa is in Miami, Fla., working with the University of Miami doing marketing and promotional work with their football program. To add to the fun and excitement of moving to Miami and starting a new job, Teresa is also a newlywed. In August she married Joe Spicer, her childhood sweetheart. Joe works in Miami for Southeast Bank. Congratulations, Teresa!

On the Health front, Cathy Jones Gunderston recently received an M.S. in nutrition from the University of Maryland. She says she spent her summer enjoying the leisure life, recovering for the start of her job hunt this fall.

Pam Kopelove, Mary Brennan and Trish McAuliffe all graduated from Eastern Virginia Medical School, Norfolk, this past spring and have begun their residency programs. Pam is working in OB/Gynecology at Maimonides in New York City, Trish is at the Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters in Norfolk working in pediatrics and Mary is in Lancaster, Pa., serving her residency in family practice. An added congratulations to Mary on her marriage, June 2, to Mike Wirshup '80. Dawn Ferree has begun a residency in pediatrics at Norwalk Hospital/Yale University and will soon seek employment in the Va./N.C. area.

And then there are those, at this point probably envious of their previously mentioned classmates, who are still working on or are just beginning advanced degree programs.

Maryclaire Moroney is working on a master's in English at Harvard, Mark Hilbrink is studying computer programming at Control Data Institute, Sue Townsend is working on her Ph.D. in chemical engineering at the University of Delaware, Cynthia Musgrave is at Auburn University working on a master's in family and child development, Jeff Barnes is in his second year at Marshall-Wythe, Mark Rhoads is at T.C. Williams in his final year of law school, Roy Hall is in the M.D. program at EVMS, David Fulford is in the Ph.D. program in microbiology and immunology at MCV in Richmond and Connie Swinner is at Howard University Medical School, not only studying medicine but also serving as the school's student council president.

After becoming a registered polysomnographic tech at the Stanford University Sleep Disorders Clinic, Sandy Seidel has returned to Virginia to work on an M.S. in biomedical engineering at UVA. Kim Bennett returned to the books after working for a year as an electro-optics engineer with IIT. Kim is now working on a master's degree in electrical engineering at Virginia Tech. Valerie Kidwell is in her third year of graduate work in chemistry at Purdue University. She's making the final push for her degree, finishing research for preliminary exams this fall. As a break and diversion from the research, Valerie stays active clogging with the Gypsy Moon Cloggers and enjoying the small-town atmosphere of Lafayette. Debbie Meek and Dan McEachran '82, married a year last July, are both attending school in Richmond, Debbie at Union Theological Seminary and Dan at the U. of R.'s law school. Carole Anne Weiss is also working on a law degree at the U. of R. She had been working for Peat, Marwick and Mitchell in New York City, but after two years of commuting three hours each way to and from the city on "ancient trains and hating every minute of it," she decided to return to Virginia and get a law degree from U. of R. And she says she loves law school!

Judith Habicht is at Harvard working on a Ph.D. in anthropology and archaeology and enjoying being a newlywed. Judith was married June 16 to Christopher Mauche, who is working on a Ph.D. in physics at Harvard.

I must give special mention to those hearty souls who are juggling careers and graduate studies. Susan Amato is working in Chicago for Centel and going to law school at night, Louis Harrell is an economist at the Bureau of Labor Statistics in D.C., helping to produce estimates of employment for states and SMSA's and working on an M.A. in economics and Kristin Mills is living north of San Francisco, working in an antiques business and doing graduate work in anthropology at Sonoma State University.

Having had enough of being taught, Karla Kraynak Bruno and Marty Nickley have taken up teaching. Karla is living in Virginia Beach and teaching ninth-grade English at Norfolk Collegiate, and Marty is teaching math and coaching soccer at T.C. Williams High School in Alexandria.

Bill Bryan is also living in Northern Virginia and working for a large residential contractor. He spent three years "in the field" supervising construction and was recently appointed assistant director of design and land development. John and Sandra Cox Berger are enjoying married life in the D.C. area. Sandra is currently working for Marriott Corporation in their In-Flite Services division and John is a CPA with Price Waterhouse. Stuart Jones and Debbie Robertson are also CPAs with Price Waterhouse, D.C. Keith Tomlinson has also put his W&M accounting degree to work and is now a CPA with the D.C. firm of Coopers & Lybrand. Bonnie Newton Tomlinson (she and Keith were married last October and are living in Alexandria) is the public affairs director for a public agency foundation in D.C.

Down south in Richmond, Charles Davis is a systems analyst on the controller's staff at Reynolds Metals, Les McGee is working with Virginia Garmet and Caroline Bolte is assistant curator of education at Richmond's Valentine Museum.

In the banking industry, Ellen MacDonald is assistant branch manager at the W. Broad St. (Richmond) branch of Investors Savings & Loan. She invites everyone in the Richmond area to stop by, say hello and, incidentally, open an account! Kim Pine Burke was recently promoted to branch officer and manager of the largest Dominion Bank Office in Winchester. And at the Bank of Virginia, Janet Gaudlitz Perkowski was recently promoted to an accounting officer in the bank's controller's division. Prior to joining the Bank of Virginia, Janet worked with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., and earned her CPA.

Dave and Sharon Bowen Grogan are still living in and enjoying Houston. Dave is keeping busy working for Arthur Andersen and Sharon, making a career change last fall, is now the assistant employment coordinator of the second largest law firm in Houston — Fulbright & Jaworski. She helps the firm recruit law students from about 22 college campuses nationwide. Bo Sawyer is also in Houston working for Conoco Oil.

Susan Maag Stukenbroeken and Marie Cruz Buck have enjoyed the benefits of travel with their jobs. Susan took a three-week cruise on the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Independence in connection with her job as a computer programmer. The carrier was participating in NATO exercises off the coast of Norway. After completion of the carrier's exercises, Susan took advantage of being in Europe and spent 10 days traveling in England with her husband, George '80.

Marie and her husband are "home" in Lake Jackson, Tex., where both work for the Chemical Division of Badische Corporation. Both, though, have recently spent quite a bit of time at Badische's corporate headquarters in Ludwigshafen, West Germany. Marie spent two weeks in Ludwigshafen in January and is scheduled to return this January for more training in German technology. At the Badische facility in Texas she's implementing the German technology she's already picked up on the start-up of a new chemical plant, the only one of its kind in the U.S.

Also enjoying other parts of the world, Mary Kay Thompson McSwiney is living in Panama, and Lydia Dambekalns just returned to the U.S. after spending two and a half years overseas with the Peace Corps. After joining the Peace Corps, Lydia spent two months in Benin, West Africa, and then spent two years in Kenya, East Africa, where she lived in a mud hut and worked with the Ministry of Agriculture. She says, "The experience was unbeatable and oddly enough a little reminiscent of my R.A. days at W&M!"

In journalism/writing, Margaret Ann Samuels recently authored a children's story entitled How the White Bunny Rabbit Came into Being. Margaret Ann spends most of her time, however, working at the Rappahannock United Way, producing a newsletter for 19 member agencies and administering the combined Federal Campaign and VEPCO Energy Share Fuel Assistance program. Christopher Phillips authored an article entitled "Thank You, Mrs. Calabash," which was published in the July 1984 issue of Reader's Digest. Cindy Friedheim is a news assistant for "USA Today," and Kelly O'Grady is the editor and general manager of the Northumberland Echo, a weekly newspaper about Virginia's Northern Neck.

In Entertainment, Greg '83 and Margaret Stephens-North are living in Williamsburg and enjoying their involvement with the Williamsburg Players. Bob Penola is in Nashville, Tenn., where he says opportunities for his talents seem to abound. Besides steady employment with one of Opryland's shows, he's been used in industrial shows for a variety of clients and appeared on "Porter Wagoner at Opryland," the park's link to cable television's Nashville network. Chris Durham's acting career seems to have taken off. Not only does he portray Matt McCandless on the CBS daytime soap-opera "Capitol," but he was also featured in a six-page spread in the June issue of Playgirl, which subsequently got him an invitation to appear on the "Phil Donahue Show!"

Bob and I are enjoying California as much as ever. Campbell Soup has been keeping Bob busy, having recently given him full responsibility for servicing one of the largest grocery store chain accounts in Southern California. In September, Bob also started working on an M.B.A. degree, at night, at the University of Southern California. My job as promotions manager with Fluid Components, Inc., is still wonderful. With the tremendous growth in sales FCI has experienced in the past several years, I've been challenged and kept busy expanding the company's advertising and promotions efforts to make sure sales keep increasing! And besides working, Bob and I have just been doing the typical California stuff — going to the beach, playing tennis, biking. . . .

That's all the big news I've got on the Class of '81 for now. I know there are a lot more of you out there who are involved in exciting,

GLENN LOWRY LEAVES MUSCARELLE MUSEUM

Glenn D. Lowry, director of the Muscarelle Museum of Art at William and Mary, has resigned to take a position with the Smithsonian Institution as curator of Near Eastern Art at the Freer Gallery in Washington, D.C., beginning in mid-November. Lowry will be succeeded on an interim basis by Muriel Christison, a member of the art faculty at the College who has more than 30 years of museum experience. Lowry has been director since July 1, 1982, arriving before the completion of the museum building which is now being expanded with an 11,000 square foot second phase at an estimated cost of $1.3 million. A search committee has been established to find his permanent successor.

interesting careers, studies, etc. Be sure to drop me a note with the latest '81 grad news you know so I can include it in the next writing of the Class of '81 "Class Notes."

Philadelphia, PA 19103

Hey, you guys, I thought Homecoming was scheduled for November this year, not the summer — which, from reading everybody's latest letters, served as a reunion setting. Traveling to Philly, Julie Carpenter (preparing for UNC Law School), Stephanie Pocsik (beginning at MCV), Rob Bryant and Joe Claytor lunched with Rani Anne and myself on South Street and then proceeded to the hot tubs (I didn't go in!). Also in Philly (I admit it, this is a biased column!), over 70 alumni — including classmates Barbara Buzzell (visiting from Boston), Robin Manix, Russ, Rani and myself — partied on Boathouse Row. The event was sponsored by the Philadelphia W&M alumni chapter, who, by the way, elected Robin as vice-president — service and myself as secretary. (And Russ actually joined the club!) The club's upcoming events include a riverboat cruise and a W&M guest speaker. I encourage everyone to investigate their local W&M chapters — good times, food and friends. I also visited Michele Martin in NYC. Michele, working for House Beautiful, and I dined in the village and danced in the city's Limelight. (Tres cher, but we weren't paying for it!) I understand from Marian Eller that Brad Holsinger recently transferred to E. F. Hutton's NYC office. Marian works as an information systems consultant to hospital administrators for Shared Medical Systems Corporation in Tyson's Corner.

Also in Tyson's Corner, Sue Newman has been channeling her ceaseless creative energy and talents to the Tyson's Corner Shopping Center as its marketing director. Sue also sent me news regarding the wedding of Judy Spooner and Rob Carpenter '84. Attending were Scott Stadler, Greg Parks, Elaine Barth, Pam Appleby, Brenda Gerstl Becker and Alyssa Van Winkle. Alyssa married Randy Perkins '84, the next week.

More summer weddings doubled as mini-reunions. Guests at Liz Davis's wedding to Rick Mason included Rani, Julie, Stephanie, Carol McGuire, Ann Horner Gunn and Liz Goode. Liz will be joining Rick in Japan shortly. Carol wrote that she and Patti Witmer were elected as at-large board members to the Richmond W&M alumni club. Has our class got spirit! Also, according to Carol, Mary Lloyd Sinnott has been working as a paralegal for McGuire, Woods and Bathe in Richmond. And Mary Evans has joined the Busch Gardens marketing team.

Another wedding, Mary Carson's and Alan Hale's, reunited the following: Helen Cox, Vickie Caldwell, Ray Landis, Bert Laureane, Bruce Holmes, Rob Bryant, Joe Claytor, Cindy Radcliffe, Patti Wittmer, Lindsey Harrison, Dare Tulloch, Karen Beale, Nancy Wetmore, Jean Latu, Jennie Smith and John Graham. Mary and Alan have moved to Kill Devil Hills, N.C., and extend invitations to classmates heading in the Nags Head direction to stop by.

But I must award the Dewey, Del., crew first prize for largest reunion. The following '83ers rented a beach house for the whole summer: Marv Shaw, Mark Forde, Bob Laverty, Cesar Conda, Jay Minnick, Mona Kledzick, Monique Miller, Becky Rogers, Linda Cottle, Karen Kolecki, Bob Newman, Greg Parks, Lisa Schwartz, Cathy Evans, Bruce Holmes and Anne Golwyn. According to Marv, they had so many W&M guests that they considered establishing an alumni chapter there. Visitors included Jeff Carr and Melanie McVikar.

And back to more engagements, weddings and — yes — babies. A September '84 wedding is planned for Susan Tulloch and Lt. Jeffrey Risinger. Ann Little was recently engaged to Lt. David Koch. Ann works as an admissions counselor at Mary Baldwin College. Denise Aulenti and Pat Ryan are now engaged. Denise serves as a management trainee with Empire Bank; Pat attends med school at University of Buffalo. Another engaged couple, Liz Prislely and Mark Edgren '84, plan an April 1985 wedding.

Enjoying the married life are Martha (Newsom) Smith and husband, Harvey. When not teaching first-graders, Martha spends time decorating their townhouse. Brenda Gerstl Becker and husband, Dave, live only two blocks from the Baltimore Bankers (a.k.a. Bob Newman and Greg Parks). Brenda works as a supervisor at Kelly's. Bryan Dearing wrote that he and Mary Beth have moved to Richmond. There Bryan is pursuing his master's in hospital administration while Mary Beth works as an RN in the Coronary Intensive Care Unit at MCV Hospital. Another couple on the move is Lisa Robinson and Rob Hale ('83, VIMS). Lisa works as a real estate agent; Rob is an environmental chemist with Mobil Oil Corporation in Pennington, N.J. And finally, congratulations to Karen Bogan Mahoney and husband, James. Their first child, son Michael James, was born on April 9, 1984.

Meanwhile, footloose and fancy-free in Philly are Carolyn and Rani! The only bells we hear come from the Liberty Bell.

I was particularly happy to hear from Paul Markowski. Paul, completing his first of two years at Fuqua School (Duke), worked at Arthur Young this summer. Also at Arthur Young is Laird Johnson. Paul mentioned that Amy Reich is doing well in her career and is planning another European vacation. Also in Paul's note was news about Marcie Mallet. She is nearing the end of her master's in museum education program.

Jon Blanké has been working at an archaeological dig at Mt. Vernon and Surry. In the fall he will travel to Japan to teach Japanese businessmen the English language. Another adventurous spirit, Gwynne Wells, first toured Europe and now works on a farm in Germantown, Md., with El Salvadoran refugees.

Gaining invaluable stage experience are Rob Sherman, who will continue his master's at Ohio State, and Shana Abora. Shana completed a six-month internship with N.J.'s Shakespeare Festival.

Many of you wonder where I get all this info. Well, letters, phone calls, word-of-mouth and news clippings from the Alumni House serve as my main sources. Recent clippings contained news from Karen Pollok, who works for the Old Dominion Eye Bank as the technical coordinator for Northern Virginia. Katherine McEnderfer works as the managing editor of a successful regional magazine, "Shenandoah — Virginia Town and Country." Michele Morrao recently began her second rotational assignment in GE's Information Systems Management Program. Kirsten Leafstrand presently works for Youth for Christ as a high-school Campus Life club director. And finally, Sally Lewis serves as editor of the Virginia magazine for the Virginia Credit Union League.

Well, Sue Newman has written, and I've spoken to Steve Bisese. This column certainly does the trick. Please keep those cards and letters coming. (I sound like a game or talk show host.) Seriously though, I'd like this two-way communication to continue. I'm looking forward to the official reunion, Homecoming '84. Since my next deadline is November 7, I plan on taking some serious notes there. Be warned and take care!

COLLEGE COUNSELING SESSIONS SET FOR HOMECOMING

The Admissions office and the Society of the Alumni will offer a program for alumni parents and their children of high school age (particularly juniors and seniors) during Homecoming Weekend, November 2-3, in an effort to provide an opportunity for both parents and students to learn more about preparation for the college experience. The Friday evening session for students only will begin at six o'clock with students meeting at the Campus Center in the Wigwam where they will purchase dinner and join Dean Gary Ripple in meeting room "C" for a program lasting approximately one and a half hours. The Saturday morning session for both parents and students will begin at eight o'clock with continental breakfast in room 100 of the Wren Building. Dean Ripple will meet with the parents and Associate Dean Karen Schoenenberger will meet with the students until shortly before 10:00 a.m. (in plenty of time to view the Homecoming Parade). No pre-registration is necessary.

Mrs. E. D. Etter
(Mary R. Spitzer)
486 W. Market St.
Harrisonburg, VA 22801

Louise B. Forsyth (M.A. '43), who retired in 1982 from an administrative position in the Quincy, Mass., public schools, now works as a speaker and consultant in public relations and leadership development.

Doug Woodman (Ph.D. '69), since November 1983, has been a senior staff scientist with Lockheed Research in Palo Alto, Calif.

George Jacobson (M.A. '65) is now associate professor of psychiatry at the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee.

Mary Kendall Lee Stoneham (M.A. '83) is one of approximately 450 women in the U.S. to complete all requirements to become a Special Agent in the F. B. I. She attended the F. B. I. Academy in Quantico, where she graduated in March 1984. She has been assigned to the F. B. I. office in Buffalo, N.Y.

James R. Bentley (M.A. '72) has been named director of the Filson Club, named for John Filson, who published the first history of Kentucky in 1784. It is a private historical society, but its museum and research library are open to the public. Bentley joined the Filson Club as assistant to the curator in 1964. He has been editor and publisher of the Kentucky Genealogist since 1979 and is a director of the George Rogers Clark Press, which reprints local and Kentucky histories.

J. Craig McDonald (M.A. '76) has been promoted from assistant professor to associate professor at King College. He is currently serving as chairman of the division of humanities. Recently McDonald delivered a paper at the meeting of the Christianity and Literature Conference in Columbia, S.C. The paper was entitled "All Shall Be Well: The Nature and Passive Christian Action in Charles William's War in Heaven" and was presented to the group of some 50 participants from colleges throughout the South-west.

The Virginia chapter of the National Society of Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America recently presented the national presidents' Shadow Box Award to Alexander C. Brown (M.A. '51). The award is presented to a citizen who has won recognition beyond the local or state level for contributions in a particular field. Mr. Brown received the honor for "his distinguished nautical research and for many years of devotion to the preservation of maritime and local history." He traveled the seas in tugs, trawlers, tram steamers, merchant ships, destroyers and dredges, and rounded the world in a 76-foot fishing schooner. He served on the staff that prepared the 20-volume History of U.S. Naval Operations in World War II and was literary editor of the Newport News Daily Press during 1951-74.

DEATHS

JOHN LETCHER ELEY, '19, of Franklin, Virginia, died in April, 1982. Survivors include a son.

ANDERSON MINOR RENICK, SR., '20, died June 11, 1984, at his home in Roanoke, Virginia. He left William and Mary to serve in the U.S. Navy during World War I. He entered the automobile business in 1919, and later founded and became president of Renick Motor Company; he was involved in the Roanoke automobile business for 35 years. Active in numerous professional and civic organizations, he was a past president of the Roanoke Chapter of the Society of the Alumni. Survivors include his wife Sarah, two sons, a daughter, a stepson, and a sister.

JAMES GLENN COX, '23, of Hillsville, Virginia, died July 31, 1984. After leaving William and Mary, he began studying medicine in 1922. Shortly thereafter, his studies were cut short when he contracted tuberculosis. He recovered, and returned to Hillsville to teach chemistry. In 1928, he resumed his medical studies at the Medical College of Virginia, earning his M.D. He worked for the State Health Department for several years, and returned to Hillsville in the late 1930's to begin work as a general medical practitioner. One month after opening, his office was destroyed by fire; he moved to another location, and later built the Cox Building, where he set up his permanent office. A retired medical examiner for Carroll County, he was a member of the Selective Service Board during World War II, and a member of the old Carroll County Bank board of directors. He had delivered over 3,500 babies when he was forced by ill health to retire in the 1970's. Survivors include two daughters.

DEWEY HOBSON MARSHALL, '23, of Roanoke, Virginia, died August 27, 1984. At William and Mary, he was a member of Sigma Nu and the baseball team. Considered one of the College's finest pitchers, he was the first W&M player to be signed by a major league team — the Boston Red Sox. He gave up a promising baseball career because he disliked the constant travel and hotel living, and became a sales manager for the Roanoke furniture firm of Thurman and Boone. He later joined the J.G. Sheets & Son Realty Company, from which he eventually retired. A past president of the Roanoke Chapter of the Alumni Society, he is survived by his wife Beulah.

MARGARET LUPTON THOMSON (COPLAND), '25, of Hilton Head Island, South

Carolina, died April 21, 1984. A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma at William and Mary, she was married to Arthur Francis Copland, '22. Survivors include her husband and two sisters, Christine Thomson Carroll, '31, and Frances Thomson Busbee, '28.

WATT HENRY TYLER GRIFFITH, '27, of Hague, Virginia, died September 1, 1984. At William and Mary, he was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha. He was employed by the Southern Railway in Atlanta, Georgia, but later returned to Westmoreland County and became a partner with B.H. Baird Insurance Agency of Warsaw, Virginia. He is survived by his wife Nancy, and two sisters.

EDWARD HARVIE HILL, '28 B.S., died August 10, 1984, at his home in Plymouth, North Carolina, after an extended illness. Following his graduation from William and Mary, he studied at the Institute of Paper Chemistry. He joined the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company as a chemist, and later worked as a chemist and technical director for North Carolina Paper Company (now Weyerhaeuser). From 1947 until his retirement in 1967, he held the position of Senior Technical Service Representative for the Industrial Division of Corn Products Company, International. He contributed a large number of innovations to the paper industry and wrote numerous technical articles for pulp and paper publications. In 1963, he was featured in Dun and Bradstreet's Review for his HDLS Adhesive Process, widely used by manufacturers of corrugated paperboard. Active in alumni and community activities, he was a charter member of the Order of the White Jacket. Survivors include his wife, Kathryn (Kitty) Topping Hill, '28; a son; a foster-daughter; and a sister.

MILDRED SQUIRES (BOWMAN), '30 A.B., of Staunton, Virginia, died June 29, 1984. A retired teacher at the Virginia School for Deaf and Blind, she taught high school students for 35 years. After her retirement she traveled widely abroad and was active in the National Retired Teachers Association. Survivors include her husband Gilbert; a sister; a son; and a daughter, M. Lee Bowman, '61.

ALBERT CHARLES KIRK, SR., '31 B.S., of Gainesville, Florida, died May 3, 1984. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he was a physician. Survivors include a son.

HARRY LEE DOLL, '32, died August 27, 1984 at his home in Baltimore, Maryland. He left William and Mary to attend Virginia Theological Seminary, from which he graduated in 1933. He then served congregations in the District of Columbia, Virginia, and Texas until 1942, when he became rector of Old St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Baltimore. He held that position until 1955, when he was consecrated as Bishop Suffragan in Baltimore. He subsequently was elected Bishop Coadjutor of Maryland, and in 1963 he became bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland, a position which he held until his retirement in 1971. He headed the diocese during a time of considerable strife and unrest, and he was well-known for his strong support of progress in both religious programs and civil rights. He worked closely with Roman Catholic Cardinal Lawrence J. Shehan to promote improved ecumenical relations in Maryland, and he served as president of the Maryland Council of Churches during his rectorship at Old St. Paul's. Survivors include his wife Delia, three daughters, and a sister.

GEORGE BASKERVILLE CHINN, '33, of Tappahannock, Virginia, died August 24, 1984. He was a retired U.S. Army Colonel. Survivors include his wife Frances, two sons, a daughter, a brother, and two sisters.

Former President Davis Y. Paschall '32 gathered in September at the Alumni House with Austin L. Roberts III '69, president of the Society of the Alumni, H. Westcott Cunningham '43, executive vice president of the Society, and President Graves, for the dedication of the statue "Frame of Mind" presented to the Society by Anna Bell Koenig Nimmo '45 in honor of Professor Victor Iturralde who taught in the modern languages department from 1929 to 1949. Dr. Paschall, Cunningham and President Graves gave brief remarks at the ceremony. Dr. Paschall, who studied French under Professor Iturralde, remembered that Iturralde was "a wise teacher who led the student to the threshold of his own mind in assessing the values and goals of the good life."

GILBERT TAYLOR KINNAMON, '34, of Williamsburg, Virginia, died August 8, 1984. From 1933 until 1976 (except for the World War II years, when he served in the U.S. Army Medical Corps), he was a men's clothing salesman and buyer for Casey's department store in Williamsburg. Following his retirement from Casey's, he operated his family's tourist home for several years before he and his wife, Jeanne Sheridan Kinnamon, '39, established Boundary, Inc., a firm which developed and built a townhouse project across from the Williamsburg Regional Library. He was, with his wife, an active supporter and benefactor of the College. They were major donors to the Joseph and Margaret Muscarelle Museum of Art; and in 1976, they established the Sheridan-Kinnamon scholarships, a permanent endowment to assist needy Virginia students attending William and Mary. He was a member of the President's Council, the Lord Chamberlain Society, the Athletic Educational Foundation, and the School of Business Administration Sponsors. He is survived by his wife, and a brother, Wilton Kinnamon, '35.

WILLIAM LIONEL ROSE, '34, died in February, 1984, in Delray Beach, Florida.

GEORGE L. WEINBAUM, '35 A.B., of Newton Centre, Massachusetts, died August 21, 1984, after a long illness. At William and Mary, he was a member of the Choir and Phi Beta Phi, and president of the French Club and the Glee Club. Former owner and president of R & H Pant Company, a Chinatown clothing store which had been in the family for three generations, he spoke fluent Chinese, and was well-known in the Chinatown community; in the early 1960s, he was named honorary mayor of Chinatown. After selling the business in 1969, he became a manufacturer's representative for Botany 500. He was a former class agent, and a former president of the New England and the Boston Chapters of the Alumni Society. Survivors include his wife May, two daughters, and a sister.

WARRENA AUMACK, '36, of Keyport, New Jersey, died March 31, 1984. Survivors include a daughter.

ROBERT WHEELWRIGHT HENLEY, '36, of Richmond, Virginia, died September 2, 1983. He was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha at William and Mary. Survivors include a son.

SAMUEL MOORE HEDGECOCK, '41 B.S., of Martinsville, Virginia, died May 12, 1984. At William and Mary, he was a member of Kappa Alpha and the track, football, basketball, and swimming teams. A former purchasing manager for the Sale Knitting Company, he was retired from the Tully Corporation of Virginia. Survivors include his wife Patsy.

VOLINA ROBERTSON TURNER, '45 B.A., of Wardtown, Virginia, died of cancer July 25, 1984, in Wilmington, Delaware. A retired teacher, she had made her home with her son in Newark, Delaware since her husband's death in 1969. In addition to her son, survivors include a sister.

ALAN CLARKE SHERMAN, '58 B.A., died July 17, 1984, at his home in Waterville, Maine, of Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's Disease), which he had been fighting since 1979. At William and Mary, he was a member of Theta Delta Chi, the Student Assembly, Varsity Club, Interfraternity Council, and varsity football team; he was also dorm president and co-captain of the varsity track team. Following his graduation, he served in the U.S. Marine Corps until 1963 and in the Marine Corps Reserves until 1972, attaining the rank of Major. He earned his LL.B. from Boston University in 1966, and began practicing law in Waterville with the firm of Stanley Bird. In 1970, he started his own law practice, and was most recently a member of the firm of Sherman, Sandy and Millett. Active in various professional organizations, he was a former president of the Waterville Bar Association and the Kennebec County Bar Association, and the author of Mortgage and Real Estate Investment Guide. An avid runner and aviator, he was a member of the Aircraft Owners' Pilots Association and a member and honorary member of the Central Maine Striders. He ran in the 1972 Boston Marathon, and continued his running even when the disease progressed. Survivors include his wife Sally, his stepfather, two sons, two daughters, and two sisters.

is pleased to announce that it is the exclusive distributor of
HARK UPON THE GALE
An Illustrated History of
The College of William and Mary
by Wilford Kale (Class of '66)
In two handsome editions

The second-oldest institution of higher education in America now has a comprehensive illustrated history, which spans the efforts of its first president, the Rev. James Blair, in 1693, to the events of 1984, containing for the first time, all the known views of the college from 1695 to 1865. It's the most exciting publication in many years, and we're pleased to offer it first to you. It contains over 350 fully-captioned photos, maps, and illustrations in crisp black and white and rich sepia tones, and a concise, entertaining text covering the major events in the evolution of the college. For example: did you know that Thomas Jefferson proposed that the Virginia legislature close William and Mary and establish a network of community colleges; that the first student secret society, the first fraternity, and the first intercollegiate Greek letter society were all at William and Mary; that as late as 1881, the college had twelve students?

No alumnus of the school can fail to be moved by this unique and exciting 8½-x-11-inch coffee table book. It will be a treasured possession to be passed on for generations. Beautifully printed and bound, Hark Upon The Gale comes in a regular edition with dust jacket, and a special leather limited edition of 250 copies with slipcase, each signed and numbered by the author, each increasing in value each year. Be sure to reserve a copy. Books will be available for shipping around December 1, and we cannot guarantee a second printing if we sell out. You will not find a better gift, or a more meaningful addition to your library. Order early. On limited editions, numbers are assigned as orders are received.

WEEKEND EVENT

HOMECOMING '84

INFORMATION

Dear Class Members:

It's time to check those graduation years as Homecoming 1984 means reunions for the Classes of 1939, 1944, 1949, 1954, 1959, 1964, 1969, 1974 and 1979 and for members of the Olde Guard and the Young Guard. And as always, non-reunion class members are invited to attend the weekend.

Homecoming has expanded tremendously over the last few years. With many new events being added and old events being revamped, we feel William and Mary's Homecoming weekend is the finest you will find. We have tried to make the events more personal with more time to see your friends. We have come up with a weekend we know you will enjoy.

To help us in planning the weekend we are requiring that all reservations for catered events be on a prepaid basis only. All reservation information for events and hotel accommodations is included in this advertisement. Please use these reservation forms to make all of your weekend arrangements. You are encouraged to send in your reservations early to ensure space availability and to help facilitate processing.

If you have questions regarding the weekend activities or any of your individual class events, please do not hesitate to contact the Alumni Office at 804-229-1693. We look forward to seeing you in Williamsburg, November 1st - 4th, 1984.

Cordially,

John W. Phillips '78
Director of Alumni Affairs
