THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Ash Lawn: A William and Mary Treasure

James Monroe's Former Home Has Blossomed Under College Ownership

BY REBECCA CLARK

When James Monroe sold his family's plantation back in 1826, he probably never imagined it would end up in the hands of his college alma mater. But the College of William and Mary's ownership of the great statesman's homeplace is appropriate to its reputation as "the alma mater of a nation."

This year William and Mary observed its 10th anniversary of owning and operating Ash Lawn, James Monroe's 535-acre estate nestled in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Charlottesville, not far from Thomas Jefferson's Monticello. The Board of Visitors of the College visited Ash Lawn in the spring for a brief ceremony to mark the occasion.

Ash Lawn, known as Highland in Monroe's day, was opened to visitors in 1930 by Pittsburgh industrialist Jay Winston Johns, who owned the old plantation. Upon Johns' death in 1974, a bequest in his will stated that Ash Lawn was to be given to William and Mary. A curator was hired, and today Ash Lawn entertains approximately 100,000 visitors annually.

The 10th anniversary had a special meaning for former William and Mary president, Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32, under whose administration Ash Lawn came to William and Mary.

"It was a high privilege to be closely associated with Mr. Johns for many years," remembers Dr. Paschall, now a resident of Charles City County, Va., who arranged the gift. "There is no way that one can assess the true value or the endless meaning of his many philanthropies."

"Through his gift of Ash Lawn to the College my hope of earlier years was realized that the influence of William and Mary would endure through the spirits of two illustrious alumni — Jefferson and Monroe — in nearby proximity as they would watch over the esteemed University of Virginia in years to come."

The person who is helping make that influence endure is Carolyn Holmes, Ash Lawn's curator, who was experienced in home restoration and dealing in antiques when she took the job of supervising the plantation. She says the interpretive aspect of running Ash Lawn has come a long way in her 10 years on the job, but there is still a lot to do. Mrs. Holmes lives at Ash Lawn, with quarters in the upstairs portion of the house, which she shares with her husband and two small daughters.

The upkeep of Ash Lawn depends largely upon grants, donations and visitation receipts. Mrs. Holmes says visitation has been good most years, with the exception of a lean year in 1979 when the gasoline shortage kept many people home.

Just getting to Ash Lawn is a pleasure, as motorists leave Interstates 64 or 81, or Route 250, and wind their way up the hill that is Route 795, past other points of historic interest that overlook the city of Charlottesville and provide a panoramic view of the Blue Ridge. A right turn off Route 795 leads up a picturesque, tree-lined drive toward the parking lot. Visitors pass through the gift shop to pay admission, then take a short walk toward the house. The home's white-columned porch serves as a waiting area for tours.

This year the College observed its 10th anniversary of owning and operating Ash Lawn, James Monroe's 535-acre estate in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Charlottesville.

A souvenir guidebook notes that "every visitor to Ash Lawn is a friend," and those who operate the plantation are as good as their word. Once in the front hall, guests are invited to sign the register and are permitted to browse freely through the house and grounds. And, unlike other historic tourist spots, photography is permitted.

Guides take visitors through the sitting room, study, dining room, master bedroom, and the children's room, pointing out Monroe furnishings such as a dropleaf table of Honduran mahogany, which was given to Monroe by the people of Santo Domingo in gratitude for the Monroe Doctrine and for America's protection from European intervention in the Western Hemisphere.

The chairs in the sitting room were made in Paris around 1800 and were imported around the time of Napoleon to grace the Monroe residence. A bust of the French leader is also an original work from Monroe's day. In the dining room is an original Hepplewhite table and a large imported French mirror. The hand-carved chairs in the dining room were also used by the Monroes in the White House.

In the master bedroom, a highpost bed is distinguished by handcarved feather and palm motifs and a concealed trundle bed underneath. In the children's room, a child's crib is from the Monroe era, while a cradle and dolls date to the time of Monroe's grandchildren.

Long-range plans for Ash Lawn include the construction of a barn on the property to enhance the farming milieu that will be developed. Ash Lawn also is seeking $60,000 in funding to renovate a mid-19th-century log house that served as a caretaker's residence after the Monroe era. The renovation will include replacing bad logs on the original house and building a replica right next to it. The newer house will be rented out to anyone who wants to live on the property.

In addition, plans are underway to rebuild slave quarters that once stood behind the plantation house. The original slave quarters were demolished in 1925, and Mrs. Holmes says a reconstructed version has been on Ash Lawn's "wish list" for a long time.

A proposal now before the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) to pay for the reconstruction says that the College hopes to provide "a more balanced and historically accurate view of the nation's past." It is hoped that with the NEH grant, Ash Lawn can develop a living history program in which actors would portray slaves as they lived in Monroe's era.

Ash Lawn — Highland went through approximately eight owners before falling into the hands of Jay Winston Johns, and ultimately, the College of William and Mary, says Mrs. Holmes. Even after the Monroes left their plantation and other owners took over, she says, "it was always treated as the farm of a very well-respected person." She adds, "It gave a luster to it. It was always very well known whose farm it was."

Inside Admissions

What To Ask Before Choosing A College

BY G. GARY RIPPLE
DEAN OF ADMISSIONS

Students who spend a week with us at the College Counseling Seminar often ask for a few good questions to use in their admissions interviews. Every dean remembers a few from the past and here is a sample of my favorites:

How would you describe the relationship between your college and the local community? Answers to this query will tell the student much about the world that borders the campus and the existing opportunities for a life away from the daily academic regimen. Are there jobs available? Are students welcomed in local churches? Do eating establishments have any biases against college students? Can one become involved with social service organizations? What about cultural or recreational outlets that supplement what is available on campus?

Is the undergraduate program compromised in order to advance the graduate and professional schools? Once again, this question has several sub-parts. Are resources being channeled away from freshman and sophomore courses and into doctoral programs? Do graduate students teach undergraduate courses? How large are the survey courses in most departments?

Why do students leave this college? Every institution has dropouts. Why do some people fail to persist until graduation? What do they discover about their choice that they did not realize before matriculating? Is there a particular personality type that might not be suited to this environment?

What percent of this college's total operating budget is allocated to the library? When I was asked this question a number of years ago, I went scurrying to find a financial report. (You must not expect your interviewer to know the answer to this one, but he will find the answer in due time if he's worthy of his office.) The answer says much about an institution's commitment to the maintenance of a vast repository of knowledge and the support it wishes to provide its own academic program. As a rule of thumb, anything above four percent represents a strong commitment, while less than that could be seen as a possible warning sign.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

I opened the May '85 Alumni Gazette to Lisa Heuvel's article about a couple of alumni-turned-entrepreneurs, and I felt like part of my past had been erased. Let me explain.

The story tells of "Beth Rutgers who started the campus news department at the College's radio station, WCWM. She was its first local reporter . . ." Sorry, but it's just not true. I was doing "rip and read" newcasts on "Wicwum" in the fall of '67, and I was only one out of a news staff of 20 or so. (I later became News Director for the '69-'70 school year, and was Station Manager my senior year.) We covered everything from the sit-in in James Blair Hall to Captain Kangeroo's visit. (Remember "Kangeroo in '72"?)

Could it be that Rutgers re-started the news department after it faded away in the apathetic 70's? That must be it, because the news was thriving at WCWM ten years earlier. Now that the record is straighter, I'll take back my slice of W&M history.

JOHN RANDOLPH '64: HEADING HOME

Former Tribe Track Great Returns to Alma Mater as Athletic Director

John Randolph '64 majored in history at William and Mary, ran the 220, 440 and 880 for the track team, and later set all kinds of records as head track coach. Randolph, who went from William and Mary to coach at West Point and the University of Florida, is now coming back to the College as the new athletic director.

BY BOB JEFFREY '74

A new era in William and Mary athletics began with a touch of homecoming in August. John Randolph '64, former W&M track coach (1968-76), was named athletic director by President Paul R. Verkuil, himself a 1961 graduate of the College.

Making the announcement at a news conference before reporters, coaches, staff, and friends of the College, Verkuil called Randolph "an ideal choice, even an inevitable choice." The smiles and good feeling emanating from those present in the Person Room at William and Mary Hall seemed to augur that the homecoming would have happy consequences.

For Randolph and his wife, the former Anne Maynard Williams '64, it was a dream come true. "Although it's been nine years, we've never been too far away," said Randolph. "Maynard and I have close ties to the College and lots of good friends here in Williamsburg. Obviously, it's a special place for us."

The Randolphs made William and Mary their home from 1960-76, except for the period of John's three years of active duty in the U.S. Marines from 1964-67. They are personally acquainted with many facets of campus life. In his student days John majored in history and ran the 220, 440, and 880 for the William and Mary track team, then coached by Harry Groves. He was also the president of Kappa Alpha fraternity. Maynard took a degree in sociology, was a Chi Omega, head majorette, and homecoming queen.

Randolph returns bringing a legacy of outstanding achievement in 18 years of coaching and athletic administration on the collegiate and international levels. During his nine-year tenure as head track coach the Tribe garnered an incredible 52 Southern Conference and Virginia State championships in cross country, indoor and outdoor track. Perhaps even more remarkable was the way he did it, with few scholarships and a small budget.

He is remembered also for his innovative "Operation Back-Track," a community-based effort that raised $100,000 for the construction of the all weather track facility at Cary Stadium in 1973.

Leaving the College in 1976 for West Point, Randolph revived the track program at the U.S. Military Academy, compiling a 54-4 record in three years. For the next six years (1979-85), he headed the track program at the University of Florida.

Randolph's success earned him the recognition and responsibility of acting as chairman of the U.S. Men's Olympic Development Committee, the group that prepared track and field athletes for the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles. He was asked to serve in a similar capacity for the 1988 Games in Seoul, South Korea, but declined in order to devote full attention to the W&M post.

As recently as June 1985 Randolph was named director of sports development for the state of Florida, taking charge of a million dollar program to establish five regional sports training and educational centers promoting competition in 34 amateur sports. However, the opportunity to return to William and Mary proved irresistible.

With vacancies to fill in two crucial positions in the William and Mary Athletic Association, business manager for men's athletics and director of development for the Athletic Education Foundation, Randolph has a chance to put his personal stamp on Tribe athletic policies and practices for some time to come.

"The opportunity for an athletic director to hire his right and left hand men is real important," Randolph said "It made the position much more attractive."

Coming on board at the same time as a new president of the College provided a further incentive. "First and foremost I think Paul Verkuil will be a super president," Randolph said. "He has a positive attitude about our athletic program and the things it can do for the College. At the same time, he shares, as I do, a sense that the William and Mary student-athlete is a student first."

"Young people come to school here first of all to get a superior education. Their experiences in athletics are an extension of that, a supplement, an enrichment process that they derive from the pressure of competition. You grow under pressure. What's that expression? 'There are no great people, just great challenges for ordinary people.'" said Randolph.

Those who know Randolph realize that he thrives on challenges. Harry Groves, Randolph's mentor at William and Mary and now head track coach at Penn State, recognized that quality immediately. "John knows how to put things in the proper order to get them done. He just has great leadership ability. In fact that's why I hired him as a track assistant coach when he came out of the Marines. His background in track was somewhat limited, but his leadership ability was so good that we had a great program because of it," Groves said.

Randolph will look for those same leadership qualities in his associates. "I think the key to the program at the very beginning is the quality and the caliber of leadership, the men and women that we have out in front of our teams. Sooner or later success in coaching, or in the classroom, or in the business world depends on the resourcefulness of the person involved, the individual leader. I think we have a real good group of creative, resourceful coaches here. I want them to be able to enjoy the success that they've created and to give them the tools they need to be successful."

This even-handed approach will also extend to the non-revenue sports, some of which had been earmarked for discontinuation in 1984 due to a budget shortfall. "We have resources through our own department and through the AEF, and I want those resources and that expertise to work to help every one of the sports that are willing to help themselves, not just football and basketball," Randolph said.

"They (the coaches) will know what the criteria are for approaching people, but they'll have a support system to get them in touch with their power bases, which are the fans interested in those sports and the people who participated in those sports. We want to bring these groups together," said Randolph.

But dedication to a broad-based athletic program will not lessen the support for football and basketball, the flagship sports of the men's athletic program. "Football and basketball are always going to be the get all the information we need, then move expeditiously to get some conference affiliation," said Randolph. "It will create more interest for our fans, our students, our community, and our football players," he said.

Getting the Tribe into a viable division I-AA football conference is another priority item for Randolph. Both the Yankee Conference and the fledgling Colonial Conference have expressed a strong interest. "We're in the enviable position right now of being courted by several groups. We want to study our options and get all the information we need, then move expeditiously to get some conference affiliation," said Randolph. "It will create more interest for our fans, our students, our community, and our football players," he said.

In basketball the teams that formerly comprised the ECAC-South have reformed into the Colonial Athletic Association (not to be confused with the Colonial Conference in football), which will also offer conference championships in men's cross country, golf, tennis, baseball, swimming, and soccer. The CAA basketball tournament champion will receive an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament, as did the winner of the ECAC-South.

Randolph will attend a meeting of the athletic directors of the CAA as one of his first official acts on August 22-23. The presidents of the member institutions are scheduled to meet at W&M on September 27.

In addition to maintaining the competitive excellence of W&M's athletic programs, Randolph will concentrate on fundraising, a primary mission of the modern athletic director. "We will always have a battle to keep our resources at a level where we can assure quality. We need to work very hard and bring our family together," he said. "I think our AEF has done a tremendous job over the past few years in gathering our resources for us. Now we are challenged to go out and broaden that base and bring more people into the W&M family," said Randolph.

Now that they are home again, John and Maynard are planning to settle in for a while. "We're going to put our feet in concrete," Randolph joked. They're looking for a house in Williamsburg, and Maynard hopes to put her master's degree in school psychology to use. Offspring Katherine, 18, and John Jr., 16, will also get another taste of Williamsburg. Katherine plans to attend at least one semester at the College before heading to Duke University. John Jr. will be a junior at Lafayette High School.

For the Randolphs, things have come almost full circle. As Harry Groves said on hearing his favorite pupil had returned as athletic director, "Pappy Gooch once told me that you never really leave William and Mary. I guess that's true."

Welcome home, John and Maynard.

THE LACROSSE LEGACY OF POOR PIXIE

Tribe's First Lacrosse Great Sets An Example of Excellence

BY FRANCES BOBBE

Poor Pixie — you remember? As in Hamilton, the class of '80 lacrosse phenom, who made the United States Team and U.S. touring teams to Great Britain and Australia — she was born too soon. Surely, the Tribe's all-time leading scorer (218 goals in 52 games, as in 4.2 per) would have been a consensus collegiate All-American.

But, the first women's lacrosse All-America team didn't come along until 1982. While Pixie was long-graduated by then, her William and Mary successors have made the national roster (or rosters) ever since.

In '82, then-juniors Dana Hooper and Whitney Thayer were named to the inaugural Coaches' All-America squad. In 1983, Hooper made the first NCAA All-America team, while Thayer and Basia Deren also '83 made the initial United States Women's Lacrosse Association (USWLA) team. In '84, both Julie Duff '85 and Mary Pat Kurtz '86 made the Brinne All-America Second Team; Duff was also a USWLA First Team All-American, while Kurtz received USWLA All-America Honorable Mention.

This spring, Kurtz was named to both the Brine and the USWLA first teams. "As a junior, to have reached that level is quite an honor," says W&M head lacrosse coach Feffie Barnhill. Kurtz's ability to improve has been a key to her achievements.

"Mary Pat continued to play and improve at a level that's beyond the majority of our team; she's improving upon her own level," Barnhill said at the end of the Tribe's 6-7 (second in the South Atlantic Conference) season. "She has improved her shooting skills and her open-field, on-the-run checking skills."

Kurtz, a three-year starter, led the Tribe defensively with 65 ground ball controls and nine interceptions. On her way to All-SAC Team selection, she also scored 10 goals and posted seven assists and a .385 shooting percentage.

Asked whether or not she thinks she has improved as a player, Kurtz said, "I think so. The groundwork becomes more solid. The things you had to concentrate on before, you can do more easily. I'm also stronger physically."

As a freshman, Kurtz helped W&M to the VIL (state) and ECAC (regional) titles, as well as to an NCAA bid. As a sophomore, she made the VIL All-Tournament Team, while the Indians recaptured that crown. A three-year veteran of the varsity hockey team, she was chosen to both the 1984 SAC All-Tournament and College Field Hockey Coaches Association (CFHCA) Southern All-Region All-America teams.

"(Lacrosse) is something I love to do, to be active constantly. [It's] a fun sport to play. [W&M's program] is very personal. . . . It's serious, but it's comfortable; you're also in school. . . . You lose your academic worries," Kurtz says. An average student, she switched from a major in fine arts to one in English. "Professors are friendly with students. They're not condescending in any way. They treat you as an equal. They speak to you as an adult. They're relaxed, so you're not afraid to speak up in class." After graduating, Kurtz plans to work for a design firm in New York City.

"She's the glue that's held us together in midfield," Barnhill said of her pixie-sized center. Though 5-2, Kurtz is rarely kidded about her height. "Only one person ever said anything to me. That was a player from U. Mass., who said, 'Boy, it must be really hard to be so short,'" Kurtz says, acknowledging that the opponent was bigger than she. "Then, I proceeded to mark her out of the game."

Like Hamilton, Kurtz has sought success in lacrosse beyond the collegiate realm. For the past two years, she has made the U.S. Reserve, or second, Team. And, following this year's selection, she was asked to try out for the 1986 U.S. World Cup Team.

"The World Cup is the one international culminating event for supremacy in lacrosse. It is the only time that those countries come together to compete," says Barnhill. "Those countries" are Australia, Canada, the U.S., England, Scotland and Wales. Like the first collegiate All-America selections, the first World Cup in women's lacrosse took place in 1982. It was played at the Nottinghamshire Cricket Grounds in Trentbridge, England, where the Americans defeated the Aussies 10-7 in overtime.

The 1986 World Cup will be held in Swarthmore, Pa., June 14-21. The first of two tryouts was scheduled for July 27-28 at Eastern High School in Gibbsboro, N.J. A squad of 30 players would be chosen. In November, that group will be pared down to a final 16. "If she [Mary Pat] has trained this summer, I think she has a good shot at making the 30," Barnhill said.

Kurtz, who was eying a position on defense ("hopefully defense wing or third man. I'll play anything except goalie!"), had been working out — all by herself. "I jog into Old Greenwich," said the Stamford, Conn., native. "There's a little school there where I can shoot the ball against a wall. And, there's a field where I can do sprints. . . . I don't usually run more than two miles; I just pace it differently." She also put leg weights in the pocket of her cross when practicing cradling.

"I'm a little anxious more than excited," Kurtz said about the tryout. At least, she would be in familiar company. In fact, a pair of former teammates, who also happen to stand 5-2 and hail from New England, were also planning to attend the World Cup tryout.

For Julie Duff '85, making the team would be a dream-come-true to redeem her disappointing showing at this year's U.S. trials. The Byfield, Mass., native was last seen on these pages in April of '84, after she had made the U.S. Team and was looking to make the 1984 Touring Team. She made it, and spent last September competing for the U.S. in England.

"I think Julie's chances [of making the World Cup team] are very good because she has international experience. She's toured, and she's proved herself on tour," said Chris Paradis '84, the other World Cup hopeful. "But, being out of college is harder. You don't practice everyday."

Paradis, a Framingham, Mass., native and former 1984 Academic All-American, has made up for lack of organized practice by running and swimming on her own. She also helped organize a small summer league, and played for the New England team, which competed in Canada, June 28-30. For Paradis, making the World Cup would be a flat dream-come-true.

"Part of me says my chances are slim. But, part of me says my chances are great. If they look at me, I think I have a chance," Paradis, who like Duff made the U.S. Squad this year, said. "Mary Pat played well at [U.S.] trials. . . . Her chances are really good because she had such a good college season."

W&M field hockey coach Jean Stettler, who, as USWLA Treasurer, will be in charge of flags, national anthems, and commemorative pins at the 1986 World Cup, agreed. "I think M.P.'s chances are very good. . . . She's got the speed. She's good defensively. It just depends on what they [the selectors] are looking for."

As an aside, Paradis (a former business major) is now teaching and coaching at Kurtz's alma mater, Greenwich Academy. Duff (a philosophy major) will begin teaching and coaching at Phillips Exeter Academy this fall; Kurtz spent a postgraduate year there before attending the College.

If Kurtz made the first cut and makes the 1986 U.S. World Cup Team, things (like practicing) could get "confusing" next spring. Not to mention the fact that next summer she plans to marry John Stone, an English major and water polo standout at Princeton. But, if she didn't make the first out, or even if she doesn't survive the second, there will be another U.S. Touring Team to Australia in 1988. There will also be an opportunity for her to become the first W&M woman to receive All-America lacrosse recognition three years in a row. Which is to say, Mary Pat was born at just the right time.

BY HARRIET MCLEOD

Eh-DEE! Eh-DEE! Eh-DEE! was the chant from a sold-out audience of 8,600 at William and Mary Hall before the appearance of Mr. Saturday Night Live, Mr. Beverly Hills Cop, Velvet Jones, Gumby, Little Richard Simmons, Buckwheat and a host of other characters wrapped up in the good-looking body of superstar comedian Eddie Murphy.

One student even stood in his chair whipping a towel around his head to stir the crowd and then spelled out the letters with his arms and legs: E-D-D-I-E!

Eddie Murphy stopped at The College of William and Mary on a 37-city sold-out tour of colleges. Few of those in attendance knew that one of those behind the scenes was one of their own: Robert Wachs '61.

He is Murphy's personal manager and has been since the beginning of Murphy's guided missile entertainment career. The beginning, for Murphy and for Wachs, was when the teenaged comedian walked into a comedy club in New York called The Comic Strip on Second Avenue between 81st and 82nd streets. It was 1979. He was 18.

"He was just getting out of high school," Wachs recalled the other day on the telephone from his office at 72nd and York, now a cornerstone of the Murphy empire. "He came in to perform, to try out, to audition. We got to know each other over the next year. He got to know one of my partners. We came up with the idea of submitting him to 'Saturday Night Live.'" Wachs' partner was Richard Tienken. Together they owned The Comic Strip. For Wachs, it was a sideline to a successful entertainment law business. He was dealing in motion picture properties and managing stars like actor Matt Dillon, negotiation of book-to-movie contracts and handling the Cole Porter estate, for example, he said.

The native New Yorker had gone to William and Mary because it was "warm," he said. "It was a very warm, congenial atmosphere. I went down to see William and Mary and Williamsburg in the spring, and people were, you know, saying hi to you, and they didn't even know you! People smiling and nodding. The other place I was considering was Brown (University). Brown was very cold."

Wachs majored in philosophy and acted in the William and Mary theater. "It was fantastic, tremendous. When we did a play, it was six solid weeks of work."

Actress Linda Lavin ("Alice") was a "dear friend." Actor Scott Glenn '61 ("Urban Cowboy," "The Right Stuff," "The River,") was a close friend. Together, Wachs said, he and Glenn wrote a play their senior year.

"It was performed at Yale Drama School. It was called 'There Are Lies Like Truth.' I never wrote or acted thereafter. I had had it. I moved to the right side of the lights, what I consider the appropriate side. I think I was a lousy actor and a lousy playwright."

In those days at William and Mary, a girl in your room meant immediate dismissal from school, alcohol was banned on campus and the black student population was zero, Wachs said.

Wachs roommate for two years was Paul Verkuil '61, William and Mary's new president. "Paul and I met the first week of orientation and we hated each other. You know, two pushy New York know-it-all guys." They became friends, however, and later worked in the same New York law firm. Verkuil went on to become dean of Tulane University's law school until his alma mater snatched him from there this year to become its new president.

Wachs went on to Harvard Law School. "William and Mary was very good to me," Wachs said. "It got me in the finest law school in the country." His daughter has applied to the college.

He and Tienken can be credited with "discovering" Eddie Murphy. They were the first to recognize his talent.

"He was offered and accepted a 'featured player' or 'supporting role' on 'Saturday Night Live,'" Wachs said. "He was upset by that. He wanted to be a principal. I said look, just get out there wait your turn. Eventually he was made a principal player and remained through the summer that a lot of people were fired. In September of 1981, he started creating a lot of characters, like Little Richard Simmons. I sat back and I looked at this thing, and I said this kid is really amazing.

BOB WACHS '61: HE'S EDDIE MURPHY'S MANAGER

"Eddie asked us to manage him. We accepted in December of 1980. My basic strategy was to try to build success upon success. Jan. 1, 1982, he did the first Carson show."

Then it was Eddie Goes To Hollywood. In January 1982 Wachs could not get him a movie deal, he said. "I was asking for a lot of money. A company could have gotten this man for a lot of money, for a piece of change. But they were asking all the wrong questions. They kept saying what do you want to do? They wanted him packaged. If you find somebody that sings well, you don't buy them with the songs that they want to sing right there. You buy the personality. . . . By the time April came around, things were shaping up very nicely. I had gotten wind of a script.

The script was "48 Hours." And the rest, as they say, is history. Wachs has now completed the third rewrite of a $25 million contract with Paramount Pictures Corp. for five movies and one concert film. "Beverly Hills Cop," released last year, has made $200 million at the box office.

Wachs says simply: "Eddie has enormous talent. We've been very, very lucky."

"Here you're dealing with one of the biggest stars in the world and the kid goes out and does a stand-up comedy routine." Murphy's guaranteed fee on this tour is around $50,000 per date, Wachs said.

The empire includes Eddie Murphy Television Inc., Eddie Murphy Tours Inc. and Eddie Murphy Productions Inc. Wachs and Tienken run Entertainment Management Associates Ltd. with just one assistant. That company manages nobody else, he said, "Just my old English sheepdog, besides Eddie." The job is full time.

"It's 29 hours a day," Wachs said. "It's a fantastic challenge. My partner Robert said about me that I would pick up a pay phone in the middle of the street if it rang. I always viewed the phone as being a positive thing . . . I'm a phonoholic. I love it."

Murphy, whose routine covers cursing ("English is the hardest language to learn how to speak. But you can learn to curse in a week."), junk food, house hamburgers (the ones your mother made on Wonder Bread), sex, venereal disease, masturbation, Bill Cosby, supermarkets, domestic squabbling and his own ego, surprised a few people in the audience with strong statements about cigarettes and drugs.

"People doing that (freebasing cocaine)," he said, "might as well be saying 'Hey, I gotta great way to get high, right? I got a gun, right? Big .357 Magnum. We put a bullet in the gun and put some cocaine on top of it and we'll draw a big bull's eye on my head and when the bullet comes by my face, I'll lick it!'"

"That was surprising," said freshman Amy Rejent. "It made me not want to start."

"I think he's got the right opinion about it," said George Tripp, 23, from Norfolk. "Stay away from 'em."

Murphy spent a week in London doing interviews with the international press, Wachs said. On return, Wachs turned down a request from "60 Minutes" for an interview. Eddie Murphy is about as hot as entertainment properties can get right now. Wachs says Murphy is no flash in the pan.

"Eddie will go as long as he wants to. Eddie will just go and go."

Hulon L. Willis, who entered William and Mary in 1951 as the College's first Black student, is now Director of Campus Police and assistant professor of health and physical education at Virginia State University.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

William and Mary's First Black Student Recalls College Fondly

BY LISA L. HEUVEL

"WILLIAM AND MARY IS TOPS IN MY BOOK. IT ALWAYS HAS BEEN AND IT ALWAYS WILL BE."

--Hulon L. Willis

When 63-year-old Hulon L. Willis, Sr. (M.Ed. '56), came to the College of William and Mary in 1951 as a graduate student in the School of Education, he recalls, no Williamsburg restaurant served blacks. At home football games, black spectators sat only in the end zone. Newspapers headlined Willis as "the first Negro to enter William and Mary."

He was then teaching in the Norfolk, Va., school system, and the Supreme Court had just ruled that qualified blacks must be accepted into the graduate programs of colleges and universities.

Willis says that it was his wife, Alyce, a fellow Virginia State University graduate, who inspired him to apply to William and Mary in 1951. However, as a Pittsburgh, Pa., native who came South on an athletic scholarship in 1941, he "fell in love" with the College upon his first visit there in 1945.

"I was going through the Wren Building and thought what a great thing it would be to matriculate there. I never dreamed it would happen."

But it did. A World War II veteran who had already done one summer semester of graduate work at Virginia State University in Petersburg, Va., Willis also wanted to complete his graduate work closer to home.

Starting in 1951, he spent four summers (with one semester off) on graduate work, earning his M.Ed. in 1956. He was elected to Kappa Delta Pi education honor society and is a member of the Order of the White Jacket. But since graduation, Willis has added a long history of active participation as an alumnus. A member of the Parents Association Steering Committee for seven years while his daughter and son attended William and Mary (Alyce Willis served as secretary of the organization), Willis also participates in the Alumni Association Network for the Richmond-Petersburg-Hopewell area. He and his wife are active in the College's STEP program.

The Willis family is the first, and at this time, only black two-generation William and Mary family. Daughter Kimberly ('80) attended William and Mary for three years, leaving to complete her undergraduate education elsewhere and to earn a master's degree in social work. Son Hulon Willis, Jr., graduated from William and Mary in 1977, and will be awarded his master's degree in social work from Howard University this May.

An assistant professor of health and physical education at Virginia State University, Hulon Willis, Sr., is also that institution's Director of Campus Police. During his 33 years at Virginia State, he has also spent time as football and wrestling coach.

It is in the law enforcement field that Willis has earned a national reputation, teaching over 7,000 police officers in "Defensive Tactics" over the past 23 years. Working with the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services, Willis has taught this course in weapons control, intermediate weapons and defense to law enforcement officers on the national, federal, state and local levels.

He also teaches in the area of personal safety for women, senior citizens and children as a hobby — something, he says, that he does for his community. He has been involved in karate for 25 years, and several years ago came back to William and Mary to teach self-defense to women students during the "mini-semester" in January.

If that completed Hulon Willis's list of activities, it would be considered substantial. Yet he is also in "Who's Who in Law Enforcement," is a trustee of the American Police Hall of Fame, and serves as a trustee for the Scholarship Committee of the Virginia State Police.

Willis says that he has developed genuine friendships through the years with members of the College community like former William and Mary presidents Davis Y. Paschall '32 and Thomas A. Graves (as well as Mrs. Graves), Howard M. Smith '43 and Joseph S. Agee '52, professors of physical education, and Richard B. Brooks, professor emeritus of education.

This loyal alumnus credits friends like these for giving him "a lot of inspiration," and he says, "I can't say anything negative about my experience there." But as he also says, there have been many social changes in Williamsburg and in the nation since he was a graduate student — the only black student at the College.

However, he adds, "I don't think that the professors have changed, all the way down the line. They could have set up roadblocks for me, but they didn't.

"The students didn't accept all things about it, but I wasn't there for that. . . I was there to get an education, and my background as a Virginia State graduate was good. I was never under great pressure at William and Mary, although a lot of people were concerned for me."

As for sitting in the end zone at the football games, Hulon Willis wasn't about to. He took his place with the other William and Mary students.

From the standpoint of history and prestige, he says, "William and Mary is the school. I would recommend for anyone to go there, and I've motivated some whites to go there."

One thing this law enforcement professional says never dawned on him is that some blacks might consider historic Williamsburg's proximity to the College offensive, because their people were once enslaved there.

"Some things you have to go above and beyond," says Willis who as a student couldn't eat in Williamsburg restaurants, only on campus. "That was of those times, and it still doesn't take anything away from the history and prestige of William and Mary.

"Look at the Order of the White Jacket. Do you know the origin of that?"

"Prior to the end of the Civil War, black waiters served the meals at William and Mary. But after the Civil War, some of the affluent whites had to work their way through college.

"As a result of waiting on tables, they found it was an honorable thing, and founded this prestigious organization. They found that it doesn't hurt to do hard work."

BRINGING A TASTE OF WILLIAM AND MARY TO THE ACADEMY

Bill McIntosh '66 is a Hardliner on Education at West Point

BY BARBARA BALL

West Point cadets have many challenges to face before they are commissioned — one of which is getting through Bill McIntosh's freshman English course. No grade inflation here.

"I knew what was good work and what was failing work when I graduated from William and Mary, and that is probably the most important lesson I learned. It had to do with stinginess in grades, and now I am just as stingy and rotten about grades as anyone at William and Mary," says McIntosh.

William Alexander McIntosh '66, lieutenant colonel, U.S. Army, professor of English, U.S.M.A., cherishes his William and Mary experiences and has no hesitation in giving his cadets a taste of what he learned on campus. A keen wit and a man of cheerful disposition, McIntosh is no martinet, but a hardliner when it comes to performance in the classroom.

McIntosh has also been teaching English in a federal penitentiary, and prisoners there have also had to meet his William and Mary standards.

"I particularly use that standard with prisoners," he explains. "The worst thing you can do to anyone, especially high risk human beings, is to lie to them and tell them they have done mediocre work when in fact they have failed. It is cruel and they are surely going to step back into the world and find that their mediocrity is failure. They will respond by hurling themselves back into the circumstances they are now in."

The son of an Army family, McIntosh calls Richmond, Va., home. He was prompted to apply to William and Mary after he met Hal Pattison '59. Pattison, now a foreign service officer, was then a W&M freshman who was particularly kind to McIntosh when he was an avid seventh-grade stamp collector.

McIntosh admits that he was pretty disorganized when he came to college and made many academic false starts. He liked music but could do little better than a string of D's so he turned to German and English electives to bolster his G.P.A. He graduated with a major in English and an ROTC commission in the Army. Then, he said, he began looking for ways to amortize his enthusiasm for poetry and literature. "I knew," he said, "the Army isn't keen on having a lot of poets in the ranks."

After tours of Germany and Vietnam, he contacted West Point, the only place in the Army to teach English. The Army sponsored his graduate study at the University of Virginia, where in 1972 he received his master's degree and in 1974 his Ph.D. Staying only three semesters in Charlottesville, McIntosh took overloads and double loads in the summer to fulfill his requirements. He wrote his dissertation on the interrelationships between music and poetry in the 15th to 18th centuries, drawing for ideas on papers he had written for Jerry Kindred's English 201, the late Cecil McMulle's 18th-century literature, and Frank Evans' Renaissance poetry classes.

Bill McIntosh '66 married his College classmate, Mary Kathryn Sweeney, and they now reside at West Point where Colonel McIntosh is a professor of English.

McIntosh is course director for freshman English at West Point. He also teaches Middle Ages and Renaissance literature and an introductory survey in art history. To help with his preparation for teaching art history, McIntosh received an NEH grant several years ago to study with Howard Hibbard at Columbia University. He was a visiting professor of English at the University of Lancaster, England, 1982-83.

This is McIntosh's second tour of duty at West Point. Before returning for the second time he was stationed at the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, which afforded him an opportunity to teach for Old Dominion University. He was also posted in Iran.

For the past two years McIntosh has been in charge of a writing program for the Army aimed at teaching officers a clear, precise, easily understandable style of prose. Last summer he traveled to military installations across the country to develop two 14-hour instructional programs. This summer he will head a team that will visit military and defense department installations around the world including bases in Japan, Europe, Greece and Turkey.

McIntosh, as an adjunct professor of English at Marist College, has been teaching English for several years to inmates at the Otisville Federal Correctional Facility, about 50 miles from West Point. Otisville houses prisoners that McIntosh describes as "a cut below the Watergate plumbers and a cut above Lizzie Borden."

McIntosh started teaching at Otisville because he wanted to change an advanced composition course he was teaching at West Point. "Rather than experiment with students we were putting through the system at $150,000 a copy, I decided to try it in an environment which I expected to be slightly more hostile than West Point. If it went there it would go here.

"Frequently both students and faculty hate distribution courses because they are concerned with things they don't know anything about or aren't interested in. I had been doing it for years, teaching essays by Thoreau, Griswold and Huxley, which bored me silly, so I thought about teaching a course with the writings of people like Isadore of Seville and St. Augustine."

McIntosh decided he could build a bridge to literature for the prisoners by pointing out similarities of lifestyle. "Augustine struck me as being the same kind of person many of these inmates were. He literally saw the light and many of the prisoners were in the process of coming to some sort of social epiphany of their own."

McIntosh's concern for the inmates has grown over the years although he insists that initially his motive was a selfish one. The prisoners responded to him and welcomed the contact the class brought them. "To some people in the course it wouldn't have come anyway."

McIntosh has taken a break from his prison duties to write a book on effective staff communications. Earlier this year his book about traditional West Point songs was published. He is also co-author of a biography of the Warner sisters, two 19th-century writers.

Although much of his energy is devoted to English and teaching, McIntosh is a man of many interests. He likes to run, and his first love is still music. He has a collection of over 3,000 records of music before 1750. The later kind, he quips, is in the collections of his two daughters, Katie, 14, and Jane, 11.

"I wanted to study music in college," recalls McIntosh, "but I had no talent for it. . . I was a member of the choir until Pappy Fehr tossed me out." While a student McIntosh was hired along with three other students, Gene Galusha, Mike Hatcher and Ann Biddick, to sing through arrangements for Colonial Williamsburg that were eventually recorded by Taylor Vrooman.

McIntosh married his college classmate and sweetheart, Mary Kathryn Sweeney of Lynchburg. "We met our first day on campus," said McIntosh, "but we didn't start dating until our sophomore year, and I have been desperately in love with her ever since." The McIntoshs were married in December 1966, and left soon after for Germany.

Mary Kathryn has taken advantage of New York City's proximity to West Point and has taken graduate work in interior design. Because she couldn't find anyone to renew the face of an antique grandfather clock, she learned the art herself and has had several commissions. She is also currently enrolled in a master's program in counseling. Besides all that, she has also taken on the responsibilities of executive director of the Constitution Island Association. Constitution Island in the Hudson River at West Point draws visitors to the home of Susan and Anna Warner. Susan authored the most popular novel of the 19th century (with the exception of Uncle Tom's Cabin) entitled The Wide, Wide World. Anna is best known for the lyrics to the hymn, "Jesus Loves Me."

The obvious question comes to mind while talking to Bill McIntosh. How does someone who loves literature and poetry and who builds Renaissance musical instruments reconcile a life that also includes uniforms, guns and preparations for war?

McIntosh explains, "That kind of reconciliation is possible because of something I read in Frank Evans' course. The text of Castiglione's Book of the Courtier has had a profound influence on my life. In defining the ideal courtier, Castiglione describes someone who can function in both the military and academic world. His ideal courtier must be a man of arms and a man of letters, two aspects that are not mutually exclusive but mutually reinforcing. That is what I try to communicate to the people that I teach."

The Alumni College: "We Happy Few"

36 Alumni Enjoy Their "Return to the Wren"

Professor John Thelin from the School of Education addressed the group at the closing session in the Wren Chapel.

Professor Ludwell Johnson from the History Department and Ross Goble '51 share a humorous story during the morning refreshment break.

Ann '40 and Jack Garrett '40 register at Chandler Hall with Gordon Brooks '85, conference coordinator, who tells them about campus facilities available to them during their stay.

President Emeritus Davis Y. Paschall '32 talks about the College's liberal arts tradition and William and Mary's mission for the future.

(Return to the Wren, the Alumni College program held at William and Mary June 2-6, had as its theme "A Celebration of the Liberal Arts." The following article about the experience was prepared by Ed Griffin '48, copy editor for the Richmond Times-Dispatch.)

BY ED GRIFFIN '48

In Henry V on the eve of Agincourt the king spoke of "we happy few," and the phrase is appropriate for the group of 36 who returned to the Wren for the Alumni College held the first week of June.

It was nowhere near St. Crispin's Day but we had a "mother superior" in Tish Paschall who deserves beatification at least because of the way she ran the program.

We checked in on Sunday at our Chandler Hall quarters from as far west as Las Vegas, as far north as Minneapolis and as far south as Isle of Pines, S.C. Eleven were from Virginia and the class with the largest number, though I say so who shouldn't, was that of '48 with four. The oldest person was from the class of '31 and the youngest from that of '75.

We had a reading list of six books, which we had gone through more or less, and were ready to meet our professors, some of whom were able to share a barbecue supper at the Alumni House. (At other times we ate at the Colony Room in Trinkle Hall, and some of us thought the food was good.)

I was at a table with Dr. Ludwell H. Johnson III, an unreconstructed Rebel whose "special specialty" is the Civil War, which he, of course, considers an erroneous title. I expressed admiration for Sheridan and was asked whether I knew why he was absent when the Confederates attacked at Cedar Creek, where it took him several hours to undo the damage. Contrary to my belief that he was at a conference in Washington, it seems that he was involved in dalliance in Winchester on his way back, or as Dr. Johnson put it, "he was in bed with a strumpet."

He said that when he told that story to one of his classes a boy asked, "Mr. Johnson, why was Sheridan in bed with his trumpet?"

"No, no," the student was told, "not trumpet, strumpet."

A couple of minutes later, the same hand went up, and the boy asked, "Mr. Johnson, what's a strumpet?"

We were divided into two groups for the lectures, and on Monday morning Group I went to Wren 100 to hear Dr. James C. Livingston tell of the difficulties encountered in the formation of the religion department, the youngest at the college. The main things that had to be overcome were the fear that it might be used for indoctrination, and the theory that Buddhism should be taught by Buddhists, Catholicism by Catholics and so on.

He said that in this radically pluralistic era he favored some form of reconception that would balance commitment to one's religion with detachment.

After lunch we went to Room 315 to hear Dr. Vinson H. Sutlive Jr., a missionary turned anthropologist, tell about his work with the Iban, a people in Borneo who until very recently were headhunters. A friend had received the supreme Professor Emeritus Howard Scammon delights the group with a reading of James Thurber's "University Days" during an evening session in the Dodge Room at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

English Professor Tom Heacox shared some disturbing and provocative ideas about the current and future uses of reading.

The entire group was divided into two smaller groups for the academic sessions so that dialogue with professors might be enhanced.

John Entwisle '44 and Professor James Livingston discuss a point from Livingston's lecture topic "Religious Pluralism in America."

gift of a couple of heads on condition that he warm and "feed" them once a year. Dr. Sutlive also was in the Philippines and recounted the trials of the procedure of becoming a registered alien. Despite much evidence to the contrary, he said he was optimistic about the battle against racism because the attitudes that cause this are learned and can be unlearned.

That night we were to have visited the President's House, but the belongings of the new tenant, Dr. Paul Verkuil, were arriving so we went to the Wildflower Refuge across from Crim Dell to be addressed by Tish's father, Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, who was president from 1960 to 1971 and had much to do with development of the new campus.

Dr. Paschall read a poem by John Masefield that included the lines "There are few earthly things/ more beautiful than a college," and as he shared his memories with us he was, like William and Mary, "a link among the days to knit the generations each to each."

Tuesday morning we heard Dr. Hans von Baeyer, a physicist, who said that the artist and the scientist have to find hidden similarities, the former between a woman and a painting of her and the latter between equations and the things they symbolize. He said that the hardest thing to teach in science is the balance between respect for authority and confidence in one's creativeness, that the dialectic between orthodoxy and dissent pervades all education and is the chief difficulty of democracy. We were so impressed that several, all nonscientists probably, went downtown to buy his book entitled Rainbows, Snowflakes, and Quarks.

In the afternoon Dr. Thomas L. Heacox, an English teacher, talked about "The Right Use of Reading." He said the best kind was done in childhood, and most people never returned to that level. The other kinds he listed as vicarious experience, analytical reading and the sort that is outwardly-directed (as by book clubs and similar organizations).

In the evening at Phi Beta Kappa Hall, Howard Scammon, professor emeritus of theatre, explained the difficulties and the give and take required in putting on a play. A flute and harp recital followed, and then we went next door to the Muscarelle Museum for an exhibit of Post-Impressionists that was on loan. It included works by Cezanne, Picasso, Matisse and Toulouse-Lautrec.

Wednesday morning the groups were reunited for a lecture by Dr. Johnson who told us that we can't see the world as it is without understanding history, and that we must see the world as it is. He said the present U.S. view is much like that of the Republican Party in the 1850s. Then it was the "slave power" that was out to get the nation. Now it is communism, though this menace, unlike the other, requires vigilance.

The nation or parts of it, he said, always feared conspiracies. The British were seen as plotting to regain us. Others held the opinion that Jefferson and his party were tools of the French Revolution. He cited the Masonic "threat" and the "monster bank." There was the fear of the Catholic Church that spawned the Know-Nothing Party.

Always adding to the difficulties are those who believe we are the chosen people. Dr. Johnson recommended a book by Ernest L. Tuveson, The Redeemer Nation.

That afternoon we were free, and since a morning rain had knocked out thoughts of tennis I went to Swem Library and communed with Lord Botetourt in his basement retreat where he need "fear no more the heat o' the sun, nor the furious winter's rages."

That evening we went in one of the college buses to Carter's Grove before having a picnic supper at the Alumni House, indoors because of more rain. At the plantation one of the party was marveling at the height of the ceilings and asked the guide for a figure. The answer was 13 feet, three inches.

"But they must be higher than that," the questioner said.

"All right," was the affable response.

Thursday morning we assembled in the Wren Chapel, dressed formally for the first time during the week, for a summary convocation and were addressed by Dr. John R. Thelin of the education department.

After he had commented on an update of Clark Kerr's The Uses of the University, we received our "diplomas," the same day of the month as that when members of the class of '48 got their original documents outside that building.

We repaired to the Alumni House for a farewell lunch, then returned to Chandler to check out. It was hard to believe that we had been on campus only 96 hours during which time so many good things had happened and we had been thinking mostly about ideas. We were a happy few indeed.

Tribe Outlook: Optimistic

Yagiello Anchors Young William and Mary Team

Record-setting quarterback Stan Yagiello returns for his final year to lead a young Tribe football team.

William and Mary is coming off its second straight 6-5 season in which it again registered a 6-1 mark against I-AA opponents.

"Most observers called our schedule last year the toughest at the I-AA level, and we came away winners. We were nationally ranked throughout most of the season and unfortunately we just missed the playoffs," stated head coach Jimmy Laycock '71. "We will continue to succeed. We have a solid program, and our goal is to keep improving."

Laycock enters his sixth season at the helm, and he has established one of the most explosive passing attacks in the country. The Indians have set numerous school records during Laycock's tenure.

"We will still throw the football. Stan Yagiello will be back, and he is one of the premiere quarterbacks in the country," says Laycock about his record setting-signal caller.

The Tribe graduated 15 lettermen, including nine starters (five offense, four defense) and the most obvious losses were at the linebacking and receiver slots (three regulars each). In addition the departure of All American Mark Kelso '84 has left an opening at free safety.

We have some big shoes to fill with the departure of several fine veterans but I'm confident the quality of our younger players will help ease those losses," said Laycock.

William and Mary opens its season on September 7 at Winston-Salem, N.C., against ACC-member Wake Forest. After consecutive games against Norfolk State, Delaware and James Madison, the Indians go on the road for six weeks, highlighted by back-to-back games against Virginia Tech and Temple.

Laycock has a record of 22-23 at William and Mary, but the record is deceptive. His teams have gone 6-5 the past two years, with four of the five losses last season coming against Division I-A Penn State, Virginia Tech, Temple and Wake Forest.

The Indians may struggle a bit at running back, where Merritt "Dirk" Gibson, the team's leading rusher a year ago, injured a knee in spring practice and is not expected back this season. In addition, Bobby Wright has graduated. At receiver, both Glenn Bodnar and Jeff Sanders are gone.

I find little difference writing class news from my present address or my former location in Pennsylvania as seldom do I ever hear directly from any of you. My loss!

Our class entry for "The Return to the Wren" program this past June, Elizabeth Palmer Thompson, succumbed to sentiment. She cancelled the Wren reservation and instead attended the 65th reunion of her high school graduating class in Independence, Mo. This also gave her the opportunity to visit old friends and family. Elizabeth returned to Waco to face the death of her husband, Hugh Thompson, Cornell '24. Our sympathy to our classmate.

Olde Garde member Emil Johnson '34 has been nominated for a seat on the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. An excellent choice. Emil headed for Seaford, Del., on leaving college and signed on with DuPont, then constructing the world's first commercial nylon plant. It was a great place for Emil as he did not know a thing about nylon and DuPont had never spun nylon outside the laboratory. They complemented each other. He must have proven himself as he finished his career at the head office holding a major executive position.

The Olde Garde is beginning to beat the drum for the annual luncheon of this group, Friday, November 15. The Homecoming this year is scheduled for November 15 and 16, inaugurating the ski season in Williamsburg. There will be plenty of everything to keep you warm at the Olde Garde luncheon. It is the focal point of the Homecoming for those who qualify. Note the date on your calendar and begin saving your pennies.

Project aims to honor war dead

Military science department asks for alumni help

Throughout the course of the nation's history, students and alumni of the College have been involved in all ten of the country's wars, from the Revolution to the Vietnam conflict. The names of those who died in wars prior to the Korean War have been memorialized on marble tablets in the Wren Building. No plaque commemorating the war dead since World War II has been added.

To rectify this oversight, the Department of Military Science has undertaken the project of compiling the list of names of alumni who died following World War II and through the Vietnam conflict. The department is interested in the names of those who died in hostile fire as well as in any Cold War conflict. Once the names are compiled and verification completed, the department, in conjunction with the College, will have a commemorative tablet placed in the Wren Building along with the other memorial plaques.

Captain William Koziar '74, a member of the military science department, will compile and verify the names. The department is currently aware of eight alumni whose service qualifies them. Records are incomplete, however, and assistance is needed from alumni to insure that no one's name is omitted. Anyone having knowledge of other qualifying alumni is asked to send the names to Captain William J. Koziar '74, Department of Military Science, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia 23186, or telephone (804) 253-4366.

Notes from Ed:

Bill Savage, who has served three terms on the Christopher Newport College Board of Visitors, has recently received that college's Distinguished Service Medallion. He also received the Mace Award, which is given to all retiring board members. He formerly served on the College of William and Mary Board of Visitors. His career in education began at Holland (Virginia) in 1930, and when he retired he had served as Suffolk's superintendent of schools for 25 years.

Bill, along with Sarah Everrett Woolford, is our class representative on the Olde Garde Council.

Received recently news from Simon Shubitz in answer to my request for news of members of our class. Permit me to repeat that request "Let me urge all class members to write me before you become too feeble to do so and before I am too senile to report the news." Si's comment, "Very good, but unfortunately true. Only our beloved William and Mary becomes rejuvenated every year." Thanks for those words, Si. He further states, "I very much enjoy reading your column. Stay well, active, and continue with your good work for our 1930 class."

Si Shubitz, a native of New York City, had the boyhood ambition to become a physician. After completing his undergraduate studies at William and Mary in a record two years and four months, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. In 1935 he received M.D. degrees from the University of Chicago and Rush Medical College. His hospital training was at the Los Angeles County General Hospital. Following that he did postgraduate work in cardiology at the New York Postgraduate Medical School. After World War II he continued his medical studies in London, Berlin, and Vienna. For the past 30 years Dr. Shubitz has practiced internal medicine and cardiology in Los Angeles. He has been recognized as a Fellow of both the American Academy of Family Physicians and the American College of Cardiology. He is a founder of the American Geriatrics Society. He was awarded the Selective Service Medal by the United States Congress for medical services patriotically rendered during World War II.

Si established the Simon M. Shubitz Cancer Prize and Lectureship at the University of Chicago Cancer Research Foundation and Cancer Research Center five years ago, and each year since an outstanding person in oncology research is invited to give the lecture there. Someone has said that this program "mirrors Dr. Shubitz's belief in the dignity of man, in hard work, and perseverance, and in his profound admiration for the fundamental principles which have given this country freedom and greatness."

Si, thanks for your contribution and best wishes to you and Helene. Come back to William and Mary and meet with us who return regularly for Homecoming and Olde Garde Day while we are able to maneuver.

During the summer I saw Thomas Pope while he was visiting in his native Drewryville. Thomas was another member of our class who became a physician, practicing his profession in Petersburg for many years prior to his retirement.

A long letter from Joe Bennett reveals that he had planned to attend our 50th reunion, but the death of a sister prevented his doing so. It was the first time I had had any communication from him since the days when he worked with the textbook division of the MacMillan Company, and I was in public education. Joe and I were good friends at the College. On the track team he ran the sprints and I the middle distance. He and Tillie Holmes were married the summer prior to his last year at William and Mary, and he and Dr. Hodges agreed he should postpone his education for a while and go to work. He later continued his education at the University of Richmond and New York University while working with the publishing company. Joe progressed rapidly with MacMillan until he became science editor for college textbooks. During 18 months in this position he published 26 manuscripts, all but one of which became successful standard textbooks in their respective fields. He continued to progress to general manager and vice president as well as secretary of the company. When MacMillan severed their English connection he was given the job of finding a location in Canada at Galt, Ontario. After this he proposed centralization of a distribution center in the New York area with automation to the greatest possible degree. His proposal was accepted, and the building for the operation was erected in Riverside, N.J.

After this several companies merged and became MacMillan, Inc., and he became a member of the corporate staff that had a new building erected according to their specifications, upon completion of which the activities of 21 subsidiary companies were moved there. This was done over one weekend, and everything and everybody was set to work Monday morning, making front-page news in the New York Times. After this he became corporate vice president and director of facilities planning. Before his retirement the distribution center was expanded twice.

Upon retiring in August 1970, he enjoyed a six-year period playing golf and collecting and restoring antiques. Tillie died of cancer in 1976. A year later Joe married Annabelle Lee, a graduate of the University of Nebraska. Since she owned an antique shop in Palm Beach and they each had a house full of antiques, they opened another shop to dispose of the surplus (which was accomplished within a year). They now spend a part of each year selling the contents of large homes stocked with beautiful furniture. They go north each summer on a month-long buying trip. According to Joe they stay "busy as beavers" with their activities and there is no more time for golf. He says, "I will be 79 this year, and I feel like 39. It is a wonderful life and I love every minute of it." Joe recalled a saying that Dr. Hodges told the freshmen, "Do not take seats in the back now in your classes, but sit up front where one can get the drippings from the sanctuary."

It was good to see so many of our classmates at the Olde Garde Day this past April. Let's plan to be together at Homecoming in November and particularly for the Olde Garde luncheon on Friday, November 15.

Send in news about yourselves. You may not think it worthwhile, but possibly others will.

Eleanor, this is especially for you. The dogwood which you gave me in May 1980 at our 50th reunion has finally begun to grow. It still may be a tree someday!

Notes from Betty:

The Class of 1930 was well represented at the spring gathering of the Olde Garde for luncheon. According to the listing, the following were present: Dorothy Langford Bradford and Ed, Carol White Dozier, Margaret Floyd Eichelberger, Geraldine Rowe Fedors, Eleanor Hall Haynie, Samuel H. Hurley, Helen Hurst Kesby, Betty Lanier, Betsy Nicholson Marshall, Leroy Ober, Mary Owens, Dorothy Speese Person, William R. Savage, Sally Copenhaver Southworth, W. Harvey Trevilian, and Edward M. Trice.

I had a few minutes chat with Bill Savage and he mentioned that he had just retired after ten years as a member of the Board of Visitors at Christopher Newport College.

Your reporter, accompanied by Mary Land Gill '28, had a second trip to Ireland in June. The APVA planned the trip with the help of the Georgian Society of Ireland. As a result we stayed in castles and had most of our meals in private homes, a delightful experience. We spent our time visiting manor houses in rural areas with stopovers at Cork and Dublin.

I spent the latter part of June in Florida visiting relatives and attending the Kappa Delta convention at The Breakers in Palm Beach, where over 600 Kappa Deltas gathered for their 46th biennial convention.

(Sorry I had to fill the column with personal news, but what is a reporter to do when no one sends her news? Please send news of what YOU have been doing this summer.)

William and Mary alumni here in Southside Virginia are quite pleased with the attendance at our first meeting held at Bill '57 and Betty Wright '58 Armbruster's beautiful restaurant in Blackstone. We have thirty-one paid up members and a slate of officers who are already making plans to entertain the new students from this area who will enter William and Mary this fall. The new president is my son, James Leroy Bradshaw. John Harrison is vice president. Edith Bell '42 is treasurer, and Emma Brewer Fraher Mahley is secretary. Jackie Myers is publicity chairman and Beth Moncure Winn is program chairman. Ray Reid, Robert Henkel and Irby Moncure are serving with me on the board of directors. Anna K. Dunlop Weatherford is an active member.

A note from George Diggs — known to us as "Piggy" — says he and his wife of fifty years are continuing to enjoy retirement. They spend winters and early spring in Florida but enjoy Virginia in the summer and

The Legal Services Corporation will provide $80,000 to the Marshall-Wythe School of Law to expand its clinical law program to include a course called "Elderlaw," in which students will furnish legal services to poor, elderly persons. Marshall-Wythe is one of 19 law schools throughout the United States benefitting from the program. Peter P. Mrs. Lawrence W. Lippincott
(Dorothy Ford)

Dear Classmates:

All of you, I know, join me in a feeling of shock and sorrow over the news of Bob Land's untimely death on May 7. A little more than three weeks previously, Kitty Seay, Eddie White, Virginia and Gordon Campbell '29, Larry and I had had the pleasure of sharing a table with Bootsie and Bob at the luncheon on Olde Guard Day, April 12. It was a beautiful day and the program had been beautifully planned as had been the days of our 50th. The occasion, as last year, was such a happy one for all of us to cherish. Bob's place in our hearts will be hard to fill.

It was so good to receive notes from friends in the Class of '35 — now, the newest members of the Olde Guard — saying how wonderful their 50th reunion had been and saying how they, too, shared our sorrow over the loss of Bob, our reunion chairman.

Emil Johnson, our gift fund chairman, had called just before Olde Guard Day to say how sorry he was to have to miss it, but it came on the very day of their move to their home in Texas. Bruce Stewart, immediate past president of the Olde Guard, has given me Emil's new address: 806 Mariner Lakeway, Austin, TX 78734. Emil is the Olde Guard candidate for the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni.

Frances S. Harris, Williamsburg, has moved to a condominium in Village Green Apartments, 1184 Jamestown Road, No. 22, 23185. She was disappointed that the post office had not forwarded her mail from the Alumni Office, so she, too, had missed Olde Guard Day. Frances had accompanied Helen Dau to the memorial service for Bob Land, May 12, at the Immanuel Church-on-the-Hill in Alexandria. In early June, she attended the high school graduation of her great-nephews in Frederick, Md. Accompanied by a friend, she visited Harper's Ferry, Charleston, Winchester, Martinsburg, Fredericksburg, and Tappahannock on her way home. "We have pleasant memories of a delightful trip," Frances wrote. She added, "As William and Mary's new president moves into his new home, my prayers are with him during this transition." May we wish you continued joy in your new home, Frances, and hope to see you at Homecoming.

Joe Turner wrote from Scottsville, Va., that he is now on the board of directors of the Charlottesville William and Mary Alumni Chapter and also on the board of the Lions Club of Scottsville. This, Joe considers, "retirement at its best!" He says they are getting younger people in the alumni group so he was able to leave his job as vice president to become a member of the board. The Chapter attended Ash Lawn's Commemoration of its 10th year under the auspices of the College of William and Mary. "The home has been visited by a surprising number of tourists," Joe wrote, "and has great plans for the future." A Q sad note — Joe's senior roommate, Winfield Hammond, with whom he had such a joyous reunion at our 50th and with whom the Turners had a lovely visit at the Hammond's home in Pearl River, N.Y., last October, died in late May. Our condolences to his wife, Anne.

A lovely letter came from Faith B. Vogel from San Rafael, Calif. Seeing the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena was among the highlights of her year. "The parade floats were magnificent," Faith wrote, "and even though the bleachers were uncomfortable, it was great fun to see it 'live' at least once." Faith's daughter and family have moved to Eugene, Ore., where the Vogels visited them at Easter. Oregon is a beautiful state, Faith said. The flowering trees were in full bloom while they were there. In the fall, they are going to Colombia, Ecuador and Peru with stops at Cuzco and Machu Picchu. They will have a short trip down the Amazon and will stay in an Indian village. Then they will take a cruise around the Galapagos Islands. This all sounds fascinating, Faith. Please send us the highlights of this trip!

So nice to hear from one of the Pope twins! It's always such fun to see them at College gatherings. Edith Pope Howitz wrote that "Our Olde Guard Day was such fun." Edith said that she and Sarah had a lovely trip to Shreveport, La., in April and "survived" the heavy traffic around Atlanta and Birmingham. In June, they spent a week at Schroon Lake, N.Y. Best wishes to our twins and to Sarah's new grandson.

Received an interesting letter from Clara Thompson Knight, Raleigh, N.C. She and Ken attended a meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in Cincinnati, driving by way of the Black Hills of South Dakota. They drove 4,500 miles enjoying such sights as the Gateway Arch in St. Louis, the Mark Twain Exhibition in Hannibal, Mo., and in South Dakota: Mt. Rushmore, the Mitchell Corn Palace, and the Passion Play at Spearfish. Along the way, they also visited many state capitals. They enjoyed the three things that make a perfect trip — good weather, good health and no car trouble. The Knights are also enjoying their new, two-bedroom home, which is a separate house in the Springtime Retirement Center in Raleigh. They still maintain their cottage at Emerald Isle just a three-hour drive away. They are both active in church and other volunteer work. Clara's interests include the Woman's Club, book club, history museum and the Meals-on-Wheels program. The Knights enjoy, too, their return trips to Williamsburg. Their last visit was on Olde Guard Day when Clara saw her "big sister" in Phi Mu, Doris Sutton '33.

Marion J. Holl wrote that she is in the process of selling her home in Mathews so she can move to Williamsburg Landing. We'll expect to see you at all Olde Guard activities, then, Marion. Other classmates write that there is always a host of other College activities to enjoy, also.

Two notes from the Alumni Office included one from Robert Carrington Vaden. After 25 years service, he has recently retired from the board of directors of the United Virginia Bank of Gretna. Best wishes, Bob, for a full and happy retirement.

Mary Turpin Acree also wrote the Alumni Office that her grandson had a very serious accident in the spring and was still in the MCV Hospital. She mentioned that she had been at William and Mary when Dr. Chandler was there and had met Kit Larson on a harbor cruise in Norfolk. She, too, misses Kit's grand articles in the Alumni Gazette.

It was delightful to hear from our (Ann Pharr Goodykoontz's, Harriet Council Mead's '35, and mine) dear friend, Howard Scammon, although I was distressed to learn about his first real trip to the hospital. He had to have brain surgery twice. It was like Howard to make a joke of the whole thing, saying that it had necessitated a Yul Brynner hair-style, which he hadn't found very becoming. We're so relieved that he is feeling better and has recently taken a trip to see some former students who are in interesting theater roles or jobs. Among them were Justin Dean in the Hartford Stage Company's The Tempest and Glen Close in a one-woman show, Childhood, in New York. Howard says that he is enjoying a relaxed life, speaking or entertaining a group from time to time and being invited to a special social where everyone seems about 30-35.

June Haller Ford, brother Al's wife (they're both '47), attended the centennial convention of Alpha Chi Omega at DePauw University in Indiana in June. She is the current president of the Baltimore alumnae club. Al continues to win blue ribbons for his roses. Happy centennial to all Class of '34 members of Alpha Chi Omega!

My friend and neighbor, Kitty Blanton Seay, has been traveling again! In response to my request for news of her trip, Kitty wrote:

"I was among a group who visited Spain in late May on a tour conducted by José Simon, professor of Spanish language at Old Dominion University. I chose this particular tour because it included out-of-the-way places that the average tourist never sees. Among places visited were Alcala (home of Cervantes), Sequenza and Morella. Then, we traveled down the Costa Blanca where we stayed at Peniscula, Alicante, Elche, Cartegena (large naval base) and Murcia. At Valencia, we had a stopover at the Lladro factory to see the lovely Spanish porcelains. Instead of hotels, the group stayed in Paradores, castles, convents, and the like, which have been refurbished by the Spanish government for use in place of the hotels. They are indeed very Spanish in character. We saw Moorish castles; exquisite cathedrals; museums, including Prado; factories that made textiles, ice cream and candy; and many places of historical interest. We were sure relations were improved between the U.S. and Spain as Dr. Simon presented a replica of the Norfolk mace (1753) to the many mayors who greeted and entertained us. The countryside, with its prolific fruit trees (apricots, oranges, and lemons), olives, almonds, fields of grapes and artichokes, was picturesque. Indeed, it was a most educational and enlightening experience." Thanks, Kitty, for sharing your lovely trip with us.

Please classmates, remember to sign in at Homecoming!

W. P. Johnson Jr. writes to let us know that he is still alive and still active. He says he hopes to be around in 1995 so he can enroll his grandson as a student at that time. His son, W. P. Johnson III, was in the class of 1960.

Corajane Q. Parker planned to go to Ireland in May 1985. Did you go, Corajane? Hope you enjoyed it.

Miles E. Godwin Jr. former governor of Virginia, received the Colgate Darden award for conservatism at the College of William and Mary Republican meeting called Rites of Spring. Guests dined on barbeque, Brunswick stew, and cole slaw at this Republican party. Godwin received the award in recognition of his loyalty to conservative philosophies and his service to the state of Virginia as governor.

Adele Stephenson Burgess recently purchased a winter home in Hendersonville, N.C., leaving her daughter in her Becket, Mass., home. Her daughter will operate it, Canterbury Farm, as a bed-and-breakfast guest house and cross-country ski touring center.

Sara Shelton Babson and husband, Bob, flew to Cairo in June to take a TWA tour for eight days on the Nile River. We were on the boat from Aswan to El Minya motoring from there back to Cairo. Our Egyptologist guide was wonderful in explaining the many temples and mortuary tombs dating from 3500 B.C. He explained life in ancient Egypt to us. We took a lot of pictures but I'm sure when we show them to our friends, we won't remember half of what our good guide told us. The weather was hot but the boat was air-conditioned. It was a very enjoyable and educational trip.

Margaret Peek Marks taught English at Mauy High School in Norfolk, Va., after her graduation. She married Charles P. Marks, a Randolph Macon College graduate, Class of '35. She lived at Fort Sills, Okla., and Paso Robles, Calif., during World War II. She has a daughter who graduated from Randolph Macon Woman's College and a son who graduated from Randolph Macon College. She has five grandchildren and now lives in Richmond, Va., where her husband was manager of the C & P Telephone Company. She is a member of the Board of Trustees of Randolph Macon College and chairman of the Student Affairs Committee; docent at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts; a member of the Board of Retreat Hospital; and member of the Board of Governors of the Woman's Club. She says, however, her family is her first consideration. Other interests are fine arts, theater, traveling and gardening.

Galen Wood Ewing attended graduate school at the University of Chicago after graduation in '36. He received his doctorate there in 1939. His first postdoctorate job was as an instructor at Blackburn College in Illinois, where he met his future wife, who was a student in two of his classes. At the start of the war he became a research physical chemist for Winthrop Chemical Company. After the war he became an assistant professor at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y. His interests gradually shifted to analytical chemistry after he was asked to start a course in instrumental analysis and to equip the corresponding laboratory. As this was a new subject in those days, he had to write his own textbook, which was eventually published in McGraw-Hill and is now in its fifth edition. He left Union to become a full professor at the New Mexico Highlands University, Las Vegas, N.M. For a time he was department head there. From there he went to Seton Hall University in South Orange, N.J. He retired at age 65.

Prior to leaving New Jersey, his wife and two of his sons joined the Orthodox Bahai Faith with its national center in Las Vegas. They are still active in this organization. The Ewings have six grandchildren. As a retiree he maintains his membership in the American Chemical Society and continues to write chemistry and related textbooks.

Alec Dempster writes that his reward for graduation was a trip to Europe in 1936. On his return home he met Ruth aboard ship. She was a graduate from the University of Alabama. Next year they will celebrate their 50th anniversary — and they say shipboard romances don't last! After five trips to Europe in the last ten years, they decided to see the U.S.A. So two years ago they drove 10,000 miles in three months and did just that. Now they are settled down to golf and five grandchildren.

Do take a trip to Williamsburg next May, Alex and Ruth, and come to our 50th class reunion.

Dear Classmates:

As I write this in mid-July we have been in our new home for six weeks and are liking it very much. Beautiful surroundings, lively atmosphere and interesting people add up to a very pleasant and worry-free lifestyle. There still are things to be done in our condo and in getting settled in a new community and a new state, but we're gaining on it. We have gone through the intricacies of getting our cars re-registered and passing our drivers' tests, praise be!

Here are brief notes on what some of you are doing:

Edythe Dank Lever writes, "Shelby and I are, still, very active in Performing Arts Center at S.U.N.Y., Purchase, near our home. We worked for the Pepsico Summerfare '85, an arts festival of international performers. We had a great trip to Alaska and Pacific Northwest states last year."

Tom Crowson reports, "Retirement is pleasant. Keep very busy with writing, community activity, and travel. My article on Francis Marion is the featured article in the NSAR Magazine, Winter '85 issue."

Our faithful Helene Stein Vogt had a trip with Ed to the Orient in April and May and expects to attend Homecoming in November. How could there be Homecoming without Helene?

Bob Dew wrote, "Kay '41 and I visited our daughter and grandchildren in Mechanicsburg, Pa., in June. In July we had a two-week trip to London and Paris with Kitty Britton Norton '41 and her husband, Larry."

Here's a longer letter from Ella Lee Fulton Manning: "We've just returned from our first barge trip through the South of France — Montpellier to Beziers — to find your card indicating an interest in my activities. They really aren't much compared with our travels before Chuck's retirement from the Diplomatic Corps. Two of our five travel companions on the barge Bonjour were Betty and George Miles of Orlando, Fla. Betty Palmer Miles was a suite-mate of mine at Brown House at William and Mary in '35 when I was a sophomore transfer from Duke, she a freshman. A year later she transferred to Syracuse, but we've remained friends and made many trips together. . . . Since our winters are spent at Radington Beach, Fla., and our summers at Scientists' Cliffs, Md., on the Chesapeake Bay, I do a lot of packing and unpacking. In Florida my son Chuck Jr. and his wife, Laurie, both graduates of William and Mary, live nearby and here on the Bay, our youngest son, Mike, and his wife, Jane, with their two daughters, Robin and Lisa (ages 5 and 2), live next door, making possible our move between the two states. Our eldest son, Kirk, is a tax attorney in Ft. Worth, Texas. Since his wife, Beverly, is an American Airlines stewardess, we also see a lot of them and their 5-year-old, Elizabeth, and 2-year-old, Stephen. . . . Last year's Tauck Tour of the Grand Canyon area was special and helped fill in a gap of the U.S. we'd missed. We continue to have many visitors from South Africa, Europe and Bermuda — friends retained from foreign service days, but like all grandparents, really special is the time spent with the grandchildren, for they grow so fast." Ella Lee ends by commenting, "Others of our class are more active than we are, and a card like yours makes me feel we need make more doings to write about; we'll focus on it." Their life sounds very active and interesting to me. I loved her letter and the charming stationery from the Bonjour.

I have received a computer print-out on cards of all the members of our class with correct and current addresses. It's a real boon, for several of my postcard pleas for news have been returned. I'll be glad to share the information with any of you. Let's start reaching out to William and Mary friends we've lost and make that up-coming reunion weekend even more enjoyable.

In April your class reunion fundraising committee met at the Alumni House at the College. Present were Bob Dew, chairman, Bert Capps Sheeran, Fran Jenkins Taylor, Bob Simpson and I. The committee made no firm decision regarding a class gift, but you'll be hearing more about that later.

Our trip to Europe was fantastic. Our little "Dutch" grandson is adorable (what else?) and our visit in Holland was a delight. If any of you can travel there in the spring don't miss going to Keukenhof to see the 70-acres of landscaped gardens — the tulips and other bulbs are absolutely gorgeous and worth the entire trip. We toured parts of England with our next-door neighbors, returned to Holland and flew with son, Daniel, and his wife, Ann, to Vienna for a most memorable visit. Home looked mighty good after two months and I'm still catching up. Now we're looking forward to August as Daniel has to come to the States on business and he's bringing Ann and the baby. William will be baptized the 11th by our former rector who also baptized Daniel so all the family will be together for this happy occasion.

Jack and Ann Garrett are in the midst of running a summer camp. They have seven grandchildren visiting and have a sailing instructor and several boats to keep them all busy. They leave later this month for a trip to the Northwest which sounds very exciting.

Kary and Bob Dew are now in London with Larry and Kitty Britton Norton and will also spend a week in Paris. While they're away Nils and Gervais Brekke are staying in their home.

Please remember to send in your reservations for Homecoming November 14-17. I can't believe this is our 45th — time flies too fast. It should be a great get-together so do come while we're still reasonably hale and hearty!

Florence Yachnin Liebman writes that she is manager of Brentwood Travel in Los Angeles, having moved from Philadelphia two years ago.

Phyllis Entwistle Hile is a primary specialist in the Vero Beach, Fla., school system, where she has lived for 23 years. She has a son, a daughter and three beautiful granddaughters.

Annette Carter Land says the year's most unusual effort was learning to cross-country ski — beautiful and exerting. This with her first Elderhostel group. She found it a lively group in mind and body.

Received a long letter from Emalee Ewing (now Durbin) which I will quote intact:

"I have recently entered upon a second marriage with Sol Durbin, graduate of Oregon State U., and we have moved to Corvallis, Ore., his old hometown. OSU is here in Corvallis, and we enjoy the sports and concerts there. Oregon is beautiful with large green forests of huge trees, flowers galore, and a beautiful rugged coastline. This spring the Scotch broom and rhododendron have been spectacular. Sol has one daughter, Diane, who lives in San Francisco. We have purchased a senior citizens passport on Eastern Airlines for a year's travel and are planning to be at W&M Homecoming — the first one I've been free to attend since 1945, at least I think that was the year. For the past 34 years I was always in the middle of the school term in Arizona and couldn't get away long enough to make the trip.

"We have an 18-foot travel trailer (5th wheel), which we pull behind a Nissan (Datsun) King-Cab pick-up. We went across to Virginia to visit family and friends in various places, including a visit to Peggy Everhart in Mobile, Ala. Peggy was my roommate in 214 Jefferson Hall. We are looking forward to lots of travel together this year." New address: Box 1762, Corvallis, OR 97339.

Thanks, Emalee, for making my column, and best wishes in your new life. I have a daughter in Eugene, so I have to agree that Oregon is a beautiful state.

This has not been very smooth sailing for me the past two months. More radical surgery in April, and dad died in May, and my husband Irv's brain tumor has recurred and is inoperable this time. With the help of a wonderful local hospice group and two of my daughters we are handling this phase of his life here at home. Sounds like a soap opera, doesn't it?

The Class of '44 will be glad, I am sure, to hear from all its correspondents. A great note came from DeeDee Armor Cochrane too late for my last deadline. DeeDee says her classmates might be interested to know she recently left office as president of the Society of Sponsors of the U.S. Navy, a national organization composed of women who have christened U.S. fighting ships. DeeDee has traveled over the country attending launchings. In 1962 she christened a ship named for her husband's father, Admiral Edward I. Cochrane, a renowned naval architect. DeeDee's husband, Edward L. Cochrane Jr. is a retired Navy captain.

Had a telephone chat with Jane Thomas Folk '45, wife of retired Colonel Ted Folk, U.S. Signal Corps. Jane reports her son Robert's doctorate from Juilliard School of Music has fostered many movie and T.V. scores. Look for "Music by Robert Folk." "Police Academy" was only one. Her firstborn son, Tom, lives in Munich with wife, Anne, and two lovely daughters. Jane's daughter, Susie, has temporarily retired from business to raise a family near Washington, D.C.

Laura Emerson took time to bring us up to date on the career of Dr. William F. Emerson Jr. '45, who recently retired after 27 years with the Oregon Air National Guard as a flight surgeon. He received the Oregon Distinguished Service Award and Meritorious Service Medal. Bill is now semi-retired after 15 years as a general surgeon with the Veterans Administration and 17 years in private general practice. The Emersons attended an international aerospace medical meeting in Madeira, Portugal, last fall. They have a son in electronic technology in Lincoln, Nebr., and a daughter who is a veterinarian in research at the University of Washington in Seattle. Several years ago the Emersons visited Mel Kahn in Nacogdoches, Texas, where he teaches political science at Stephen Austin University and has had an interesting background with the State Department.

Betty Jane Meister Walters '43, a retired grade school teacher, and husband, Julian, will soon make their annual trek from Spring Valley, Calif., to Connecticut and environs to visit friends and family. I'll report next time on our get-together.

Marjorie Talle Merriman is currently the Baltimore curator of the Marjorie Olney Running Gallery at Luther College. In October of '84, she organized an exhibit entitled "Women on Paper." One of her own works is on permanent view at the recital hall of Luther in Deborah, Iowa. Last January the 10th anniversary Mount Royal Show at Maryland Institute College of Art featured a recent oil on canvas. There are numerous solo and group exhibits from 1974 to the present in which she has participated. Currently Marjorie is co-chairman of the Art in the Parlor Gallery, Towson, Md.

Robert Leonard Weinberg writes, "Our law firm continues to add W&M alumni to join Jack Merriman and me, and we're pleased to see the quality of undergraduate and graduate school products."

Jean Lochridge Quin tells us that she and husband, Langdon, met Marilyn and John Entwistle in Stuart, Fla., for a great visit in February.

Please keep our column going by sending current, and not so current, news. We will all be happy to hear from everyone who can find the time to write. Enjoy the rest of the summer.

It is with a feeling of renewed enthusiasm that I sit down to write this column today. It's amazing what a written "pat on the back" can do to one's morale — anyone who feels they deserve this way of saying thanks, please accept same! The weather here in Virginia is typically hot and humid for mid-July, and I am in the midst of readying sweets (anything containing peanuts) for our county's annual Pork, Peanut and Pine Festival this coming weekend.

A nice, long letter came from Dale Clark bringing us up to date on his family and activities over the years. He and his wife, Jackie Freer '49, have four children, two of whom graduated from the College: Alyne '70, who married Joe Pilch '71, now lives in Connecticut; Scott '74 completed his graduate work at the University of Georgia and liked it so well he and his wife live nearby in Hall, Ga. Dana teaches hearing impaired children in Fairfax County, Va., and Rory has just completed his first year at Washington and Lee Law School. Dale is the senior executive assistant to the executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation. He noted that Helen Maguire Werner has just retired from the federation and has recently moved from Reston, Va., to Marshall. She and her husband, Warren, have six children, and the youngest, Kitty, has just completed her freshman year at the College. Jackie keeps busy with many volunteer jobs and church activities and keeps in shape with jazzercise.

Dale, Jackie, and son, Rory, were delegates to the State Republican Convention this summer, along with Nancy Kurtz Falck '50 and her husband, George. Dale reports that Nancy is doing a great job as Fairfax County supervisor.

For 31 years, Dale has been singing with the Forefathers Quartet (He says they will keep at it until they get it right.) He has met a lot of W&M folks as they have entertained around the country over the years. He is playing softball on a team with his son and has also gotten into the Senior Olympics, where he received a few gold medals and set some state records at the University of Richmond recently. Congratulations!

On a visit to Connecticut, the Clarks met with Doc Post and his wife, Neet, in Torrington. Doc was Dale's first roommate and is now chief tax assessor for Torrington. He

NEW BOOK BY ALUMNUS

Dr. James A. Jacobs '69 M.Ed. of the School of Technology of Norfolk State University in Norfolk, Va., is co-author of Engineering Materials Technology, published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. The book "introduces the reader to the nature, properties, and applications of engineering materials, thus preparing the technician, technologist, or engineer to deal with materials concerns on the job."

CIEPLICKI DRAFTED
BY LOS ANGELES LAKERS

Keith Cieplicki, the fourth all-time leading scorer at William and Mary, has been drafted in the seventh round by the 1985 World Champion Los Angeles Lakers. A four-year starter, Cieplicki finished his career with 1812 points (16.0 ppg) while playing in a record 113 consecutive games.

HARTFORD CHAPTER MEETS

Alumni and friends enjoyed a Southern Barbecue hosted by the Hartford Chapter at the home of Susan Blanchard on June 9th. Enjoying the afternoon were (left to right) Jack Purthill '40, Hal Lewis '31 and Joe Gianelli '32. Those who attended were treated to Virginia peanuts, pork ribs, chicken, biscuits with honey, pecan pie and refreshments. Chapter president Katy Purthill Pfeiffer '81 organized the successful event.

does some beautiful woodworking. Another ex-roommate, Dink Engleby, was also on Dale's visiting list. Dink completed his education at VPI after the war, and he and his wife, Jean, now live in Ashland, Va., where he is president of Surfaces Unlimited and vice president of Lee Hy Paving, but loves to get out on the golf course. Dock and Dink have both sworn in blood to join Dale at our 40th reunion in '86. Keep up the good work, Dale, and round up more!

Dale and Jackie have kept close ties with three other W&M couples: Benks Allen '48 and Skippy Deavers Allen '49; Harold "Lou" Lutz, who died last year, and Patty Green Lutz '50; and Joan Stout '49 and husband, Walt — Joan and Jackie were roommates. My sincere thanks to you Dale for all the above news, and we are all looking forward to the big event in '86.

A very pleasant phone call from Nancy Grube Williams the other night revealed that she has recently been appointed administrative assistant for the International Real Estate Federation, which is headquartered in Paris. However, she will be based in Washington with frequent international travel. Grube sounded very excited about the position with its growth potential and challenge. Daughter Nancy has accepted a teaching position with the Webb Schools, a private facility in Claremont, Calif., and will teach chemistry as well as be a sports trainer. She leaves the first of August, but will return to this coast, directly to Atlanta, for brother John's wedding where she will play her harp.

Tommy Smith took an early retirement from Lockheed and is currently recovering from recent cataract surgery at his home in Smyrna, Ga., outside Atlanta. Tommy, like many others, is anticipating attending the events of the 40th next year.

Richard E. King has moved his antique business, "King's Things," from 3716 Howard Avenue to 4233 Howard Avenue in Kensington, Md. Eddie reports he has lots of grandchildren — six, that is. Any plans for joining us next year, Eddie?

From South Boston, Va., Helen Jordan Miller writes she is enjoying busy days assisting her husband in his various business ventures, mainly bookkeeping. She is currently working with a new museum with programs funded by the Virginia Foundation for Humanities.

Mary Frances Propst retired in 1984 after 37 years as director of the Southside Regional Library, which serves Mecklenburg and Lunenburg counties in Virginia.

Cecy Cunningham has wonderful opportunities to see many old William and Mary friends and to make new ones since Scotty now is in the Alumni Office. They have recently been to several area parties: one in Richmond, one in Arlington, the Philadelphia event held at Winterthur. They are both excited to be back at the College with the changes and the plans for the 300th anniversary celebration. Cecy mentioned that our new president, Paul Verkuil, and Fran are the most enthusiastic of couples.

Cecy and Betty Aurell Schutz '45 recently organized a fashion show fundraiser for the Gloucester Woman's Club and reported that it was a financial success. Betty and Henry had a lovely trip to Hawaii last winter. Cecy and Scotty attended alumni meetings in various Florida locations, following which they took a mini-vacation and visited Sanibel Island. The Alumni Office sponsored a "Return to Wren" summer-college program, and Cecy encountered Jean Bevan, Jane Seaton Harrell, Mary Minton Gregor and Marilyn Miller Entwistle and John, who seem to divide their time between Virginia and Pennsylvania. She reports it was great seeing lots of friends from many classes. Scotty has been elected to the vestry and is on the board of the Gloucester County Day School, while Cecy has just started on the board of the Peninsula Fine Arts Center in Newport News. She insists we all visit the facility and also that each of us start making plans to attend and support our 40th reunion next year. I'll endorse that idea wholeheartedly!

I trust you have all been surprised by this lengthy column, and again I extend my thanks to all who helped. How about some new recruits for my next offering — any takers?

Congratulations to Harvey Chappell Jr. who was installed as president-elect of the American College of Trial Lawyers at a ceremony July 13 in London! One of our most illustrious class members, Harvey received his B.A. with us in 1948, a B.C.L. degree in 1950 from the College of William and Mary, and in 1984, W&M awarded him an honorary doctor of laws degree. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Order of the Coif, Omicron Delta Kappa and Pi Kappa Alpha, Harvey has served as editor, in 1949, of the William and Mary Law Review, as a member of the Board of Visitors of the College (1968-76) and as rector (1972-76). In 1968 Harvey was a recipient of the Alumni Medallion of the Society of the Alumni and served as the Society's president 1963-64. Harvey will serve as president-elect of ACTL for 1985-86 and as president for 1986-87. Maximum membership in the College is limited to 1 percent of lawyers' licensed to practice in each state and is by invitation only. Harvey was elected as a Fellow of ACTL in 1968 and has been a member of the Board of Regents since 1979. Harvey is senior partner of Christian, Barton, Epps, Brent and Chappell in Richmond. Admitted to the Virginia Bar in 1949, Harvey commenced practice with his firm in 1950. The firm is one of the city's largest. We are proud of you, Harvey!

We're proud, too, of Tut Bartzan who was inducted into the NCAA Tennis Hall of Fame in May 1985.

A note comes from Ann Potterfield Gregory who writes that she and her husband, Brodie, love living on the Outer Banks at Manteo, N.C., where they have retired. She says that they have a great place for their three children, their spouses, and six grandchildren to visit.

Thanks, Jim Bray, for your letter! I laughed to think that I am still confusing Jim for Ben and vice versa, so typical with the Bray twins of vintage 1948. Correction, please: Ben taught our daughter Peggy at Coker, not Jim.

Jim is presently chairman of the Department of Education at Salem College at Winston-Salem, N.C. He has completed his 37th year of teaching and will enter his 20th year as director of the Governor's School of N.C. this summer. He continues to write his novel, plays and poems.

The other twin, Ben Bray is "back home" in Yorktown, Va., where, according to a Times-Herald press release (March 6) he heads the county Parent and Child Development Center near Williamsburg. Most of us remember Ben as an original cast member in "The Common Glory" and as identical to brother Jim, which was clearly shown in the Shakespearean play "A Comedy of Errors," which I saw in old Phi Bete.

Love to you all and do write!

Sorting through all your letters has been a real chore. If I get a hernia from lifting those heavy mail bags I plan to sock the College with such a law suit that they'll have to sell the Library, Phi Beta Kappa, or some of those other useless buildings just to pay off the judgment. So if I don't get to your letter in the next couple of years, please be patient.

Cindy and Herb Chandler had a great time visiting Joanne Jonscher and Dick Scofield at their home in Rocky River, Ohio, over the Memorial Day holiday. I doubt that the Scofields can say the same thing but that's their tough luck. They should have known better to invite us in the first place. Joanne looks great but Dick appeared quite haggard. As you know, he recently took over as executive director of the Industrial Fasteners Institute and apparently repairing all those broken zippers at night is taking its toll. Additionally, Dick is doing extensive research on a special fastener for a break-away bra. Well, no rest for the weary, Dick, but we're sure you can pull it off.

When stumbling around the Cleveland Yacht Club with Joanne and Dick we saw Fritz Zepht's '46 yacht. Believe me old Fritz has got the biggest dinghy in the marina. This really lifted our spirits as we were rather dry at the time and visions of olives wrapped in gin and vermouth danced in our heads. Unfortunately, he was not aboard and also had not left instructions with the bartender for wandering alumni who might stray his way. Thanks for nothing, Fritz. Remind me not to offer you a drink at Homecoming. May the waters of Lake Erie back up into your bilge and sink your tub right at the dock. Harumph!

Some upsetting news from sick bay. Elizabeth "Tooker" Ewart '48 advises that her other half, Frank Shields '48, has had a serious mishap. As you know Frank is retired, and they are living in Santa Barbara, Calif. In order to pass the time Frank took up flying and then moved on to take up crop dusting. One day when dusting some mango groves he was innocently strafing some migrant workers when his engine conked out forcing a crash landing. Frank's leg got all screwed up, and if it hadn't been for the tourniquet he was able to fashion from his white silk scarf his new nickname could well be Pegleg. Another source indicates that Frank is recovering from a triple bypass operation. However, some people tend to embellish the facts. In any event, Frank is home recuperating and we send him our best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Here and There: Congratulations to Lucy Ann Parker Cella on the publication of her second book of poetry, Patterns.

Robert L. Davis retired as sales manager of Metropolitan Life in 1983 and then got back into the rat race by going with John Hancock the next year. Bob writes that he is married and has three children, four grandchildren and a pet iguana named Smedley. Those interested in an autographed 8x10 glossy of Smedley should please contact Bob on his 800 number.

Got a neat card from Ralph Chinn with a picture of the cathedral at Cologne while en route to Sicily and mailed from Amsterdam. Does this sound like a business trip to you? Absolutely, and deductible too. Way to go, Ralph.

If you check out the November/December 1984 issue of Colonial Homes be sure to catch the spread on the 1740 House near Charlottesville. This is the home and antique shop of Mary Ann and Clarence Elder. They're not running a garage sale there, folks. It's the real McCoy so be sure and bring your wallet if you go.

Got a note from Richard Gordon Canham who has been teaching for 20 years at Oklahoma Baptist University and is enjoying watching the construction of the new science building which he helped design.

Haughton W. Baxley has been with the Buick Division of GM for over 31 years, been married forever with one boy, one girl and one Buick.

Received a rather cryptic message from Harvey Jacobson who says in part, "How about a volunteer for our 35th Homecoming '85 — I nominate Ronald King!" Don't get me wrong Harvey, this is a great idea, but for what is Ronnie being nominated? President of the College? Homecoming Queen? Being fired from a cannon at half time? As I understand it a new occupant has already checked into the President's House; they're going to have a coed for Homecoming Queen this year; and cannons are out because the ROTC unit can't find theirs. In any event, I second the motion and look forward to seeing you both.

Bob Hackler '52, whose chief claim to fame is that he was smart enough to marry Peggy Blair '52, writes that he is alive and well in the nether regions of Anderson, Ind. Bob did cut me to the quick however, when he accused me of being an imposter as my picture does not appear in the 1950 Colonial Echo. How this came about is a long and boring tale, which is all the more reason I feel compelled to tell you about it. When I got my proofs back for my freshman picture I picked the best of a bad lot and returned it with a note on the back with the request to please airbrush away the bags under my eyes. And wow, they really did it, not a half bad picture. Now when my sophomore (1948), junior (1949) and senior (1950) years came, the bags were irreversible. It was sort of like the latter stages of Dorian Gray. Yes, all those long, hard hours of studying had taken their terrible toll. The ravages of academic commitment had made a shambles of a sweet kid like me. Those of you who have hung onto the 1947 annual truly have an archival treasure.

Great note from Lorraine and Tom Banks who pedaled their buns off on a 500-mile bike tour of China. Tommy tells me that next time he's going to come up with enough scratch so they can at least afford to take the bus. The Bankses are also active in the Ava Gardner museum near Smithfield, N.C., having recently brought back four large oil portraits of Ava for the museum. Tom reports that one of these measures 3 feet by 2 feet. Now, don't get me wrong. No slight intended for Ava, Tom, but shouldn't we be building a museum for Mickey Rooney? The Mick has had eight wives (including Ava) and could just about slip into a 3-foot-by-2-foot portrait and be life-size. Think it over. It's not too late to mend your ways.

Homecoming Tip: Don't review (or bring with you) the old issues of the Colonial Echo to try and refresh your memory so that you can recognize your classmates. This is an exercise in futility. It's sort of like forensically matching up Mengele's bones with his picture as a young Nazi. We're all somewhere between the young faces and the old bones. All the more reason to remember the way we were. Same thing with names. Don't sweat it if you can't remember all the names. That's why they invented name tags. If you want to have some fun, look someone straight in the eye and say, "I remember your name, but I can't place your face." Then shake your head and walk away. This is bound to send them in pursuit of another beaker of martinis. Just get here and have a good time.

I have to close on a sad note. I regret to tell you that Oliver Bowen Root died of a heart attack on March 9 in Mountain View, Calif. O.B. had been retired for two years from the aircraft industry. This word came to me from Bill Payne a close friend and classmate. Bill is dean of the Franklin College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Georgia. Bill said it all when he said, "O.B. was a sociable, likeable and outgoing gentleman, a dedicated family man and a devoted alumnus of the College. We will miss him." We join in sending our condolences to his beloved Mim.

DEBBIE DALTON '72 HONORED FOR EPA DESIGN WORK

Debbie Dalton '72, president of the Order of the White Jacket, has received an outstanding service award from the Environmental Protection Agency for the design and implementation of training courses in the EPA's 10 regional offices. In addition, she has been selected as one of five U.S. citizens to participate in a two-week conference/training seminar entitled "Methods of Alternative Dispute Resolution" in Salsburg, Austria. The course will exchange experiences and teach methods of dispute resolution other than litigation for environmental problems.

ALUMNA NAMED CHAIRPERSON

The appointment of Dr. Nancy M. Minahan '64 as chairperson of the University of Wisconsin-Superior Division of Humanities and Social Sciences has been announced by UW-S Chancellor Karl W. Meyer. Dr. Minahan, who joined the UW-S faculty as an instructor in the Department of Psychology in 1967, has served as acting chairperson of the division for the past year.

He had been employed at Brenau since 1979.

John Westberg is still in London working the Middle Eastern circuit. He hopes to be coming home soon, but while he's there encourages anyone who might find himself in London to give him a call.

Another classmate has joined the ranks of grandparents — Gloria Smith Potter. Tom and Gloria are no longer in Richmond; they are in Bowling Green, Ohio, where, for four years now, Tom has been managing a family grain farm. Gloria was assistant librarian in Collegiate Schools in Richmond. Now she's doing substitute teaching and is busy in church and civic groups. Oh, and the grandson, Thomas Alan Potter III, was born in February in Virginia Beach to son Tap and his wife.

David Dunkle, married to Janet Fisher '57, has been plant medical director for Hershey Chocolate Company since 1981. Jan, besides giving volunteer time to the Hershey Museum and the Milton Hershey Medical Center, directs a children's choir at Derry Presbyterian Church.

It's great to hear of sons and daughters of classmates attending the College. Gil Parmele wrote to say his son David has been accepted and will join the freshman class this fall. Marilyn Parr Earl's daughter Kathy graduated in 1982 and was married last year. Another daughter, Allison, was to finish at James Madison University this year.

Gil told us his wife, Anne, has been moved up to fashion coordinator at the boutique where she works.

Molly is working where her husband, Gene, works, at the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C. They both keep up their pet out-of-work interests. For Molly it's playing soccer and directing a bell choir, and for Gene it's jogging in a big way.

Mary Knabb Blake is still in Richmond serving as media processing coordinator at J. Sargent Reynolds Community College. She is able to stay in touch with a very wide range of students from teens to the golden years. It sounds like it suits her needs very well.

At the time of writing, we are heading for South Bristol, Maine, to do some serious sailing. Maybe we should take a poll to find out who else likes to sail and plan a group venture. I just finished Lifespring Basic Training at the encouragement of my daughter, and I feel like I'm ready for a new challenge.

James N. Hubbard III reports via the Alumni Office that he is department chairman for leisure studies and physical education at Christopher Newport College.

Ginny Breitenfeld Ferre probably should have an atlas rather than a program to keep track of her brood. Paul's in Florida, and Peter spent some summer months in California. Somewhere in the middle, Ginny and Dave have latched onto some lovely real estate here in Virginia, while still actually living in New Jersey.

Richard A. Gatehouse has been named senior vice president of sink group operations services at Elkay Manufacturing Company, the country's leading manufacturer of stainless steel sinks. Congratulations, Dick, though it's hard to equate the senior tag with any of the youthful Class of '56.

Pat Best Rainey and her husband have transferred to Marco Island, Fla., after 27 years in New Jersey. En route south, they deposited their youngest son, Rich, at the Naval Academy as a member of the Class of '89.

Hulon L. Willis Sr. and his daughter, Kimberley Dawn Willis '80, are first- and second-generation members of the Order of the White Jacket. Hulon Jr., although not a member of the OWJ, is an alumnus of the College.

Alice Glover Glasser and Milt got away for a quick visit to Bermuda earlier in the year. What a heavenly place to park your mind in neutral and just enjoy.

Your reporter had to bid a tearful farewell to her 17-year-old VW beetle. Not all the paint and pampering in the world could keep it rolling. Ah well, the best goes on. Please send full reports of your vacations, future plans, whatever. Cheers.

They also have a daughter who is in interior design at Fla. State. Their third son, Billy, will be in the third grade. Sally is still involved in the North East Florida Tennis Foundation and Umpires Assoc. She is also pro-life representative for their church and a Sunday cantor. In her spare time she has taken up quilting.

Janet Perry Ellis is a homemaker, taking care of her husband, Wayne, and their two children in Midlothian, Va. Janet has taught art at the secondary level but does not teach now. Art, however, still plays a big part in

The summer should be about over when this news hits the mail; I hope everyone enjoyed it.

I received a newsy letter from Steve Miller who earned his Ph.D. in English from Indiana University in February 1985 and has accepted an assistant professorship in English at Millersville University of Pennsylvania. In May Steve married Fran F. Koski who taught legal writing last year at the School of Law at Indiana University. Steve has tried to keep in touch with Dr. David Jenkins from the English department, and he saw Professor Bob Maccubbin and Dr. Elsa Nettels at a convention in Washington this year.

To summarize (as is customary in the world of English folks) Steve hopes to hear from the Class of '72, especially since he suspects there are a lot of us lurking in the D.C./Baltimore/Philadelphia area.

The hot sticky days of summer are here in Virginia, and the tourists are swarming at Colonial Williamsburg again. The freshmen will be arriving at William and Mary soon, looking much too young to be freshmen, and I'll probably drive through the campus that day just for nostalgia's sake. It's hard to believe that it was 15 years ago this September that we arrived at the College with our parents, grandparents, brothers, or sisters, and started on that big adventure.

Jim and I have had a busy spring and summer. I've been home on maternity leave with our new son, John Miley, and only just returned to work at Colonial Williamsburg. John was born in May and has astounded is by being a delightfully easy baby. I tell people that we deserve this bit of luck after our first, Margaret, was colicky and never, ever slept. I came back to work to find that my office had been moved and my job had changed — all for the better fortunately — but life is a little chaotic at present.

Lots of new babies arrived in the past few months. Mary Elizabeth Dwyer was born to Jackie Heurtling and Danny Dwyer. They live in Richmond where Jackie works as an advertising and marketing research supervisor for AMF. Wendy and Tom Watkins had a baby girl, Caroline, last November. Tom writes that he and Wendy spent a week's vacation in the Virgin Islands this past April where they ran into Tom Farrell, the food and beverage manager at Caneel Bay. Tom had been working at the Williamsburg Inn when he was offered the Caneel Bay job last year. He is married and has a new baby, too, but I don't have the details. Please write, Tom.

A letter came from Laurie Baxter who wrote from England where she has lived for Laurie worked for the first two years doing E.N.T. surgery, then taught medical students at Cambridge University for the next two years. She was scheduled to return to the E.N.T. department this past spring. Laurie and Lou had identical twin daughters last November: Lisa and Sarah — what an adventure!

Paul and Anne Totty Dayer of East Aurora, N.Y., have a new baby. Christopher Burke was born on June 29, 1985, and joins a sister Ashley, 6, and a brother Scott, 3. Lynn Adams and John Hostetler's third child, Mary Elizabeth (Molly), was born July 3, 1985. Molly joins her big brother, Brian, and big sister, Katie, and her parents at their Chambersburg, Pa., home.

Bruce Spiegelman finished his Ph.D. in biochemistry at Princeton and did some post-doctoral work at M.I.T. For the past three years he has been an assistant professor at Harvard Medical School in pharmacology and enjoys life in Boston very much. Bruce and his wife, Susan, have been married since 1978, and they have a four-year-old daughter, Gina. They occasionally see Ted Dintersmith who works for Analog Devices Company, and Bruce spent a couple days with Doug Pinter in San Francisco recently. He reports that Doug is doing well and is enjoying renovating his newly purchased house.

After serving as director of admissions at Emory University's School of Business for five years, Elizabeth Lee decided to return to school for an M.B.A. herself. In 1984 she received that degree from the Amos Tuck School at Dartmouth. Liz now works with TRW in human resources management in Cleveland and says she loves her job and her new city.

Many thanks to those who sent news, cards, birth announcements, and newspaper clippings about themselves and other classmates. Please remember that whenever you send a contribution to W&M in one of those special envelopes, there is a place to fill in a little news. That part gets torn off and sent to me, so always take an extra few minutes to jot a couple notes to me that way.

I look forward to seeing any and everyone who can come to our 11th reunion. Those of us who live close by will be there, of course, and you never know who else might happen to be in town that weekend. See you there!

We have received an excellent response thus far to my plea from last May's issue. It is hot and humid here in July as this issue's deadline approaches. Look forward to our next column as our ad hoc reporters will have some scoops. Maybe there are some of you out there like Jeff Goodrich, who with his 800-548-4858 phone number (800-523-1990 in Florida) has volunteered to collect info on SAE and King's Arms Tavern people. where he and Barbara met, and in St. Augustine with Jeff's father's company — Goodrich Company Brokers. They have a 4 1/2-year-old girl, Ansby, and a 4-month-old boy, Chase. Marlene Curling is also selling real estate — for Larasan Realty/Better Homes and Gardens in Virginia Beach. She also works as a school psychologist.

ARMED FORCES: Jim Bellor writes that he finished his residency in internal medicine last June and is currently practicing for the USAF at Offutt A.F.B. in Omaha, Nebr. He has also recently received board certification in internal medicine from the American Board of Internal Medicine. Barry Plunkett is playing with planes now, instead of money, having moved from the Navy comptroller's office to assistant counsel in the Naval Air Systems Command in Arlington, Va.

VIRGINIA: Dan Riina has assumed the position of administrator of Whittaker Memorial Hospital in Newport News. This follows six years as assistant administrator at Hampton General. Dan received his master's in hospital administration from M.C.V. in 1978. Sarah Bane Williams was named vice president and manager in the Richmond office of American Security Bank. Sarah will be responsible for commercial lending in the Tidewater region and throughout the south-eastern states. Debbie Limburg Mefford was in Richmond but has recently moved to Cincinnati with her husband, David, and two children. It sounds like they had a hectic schedule. March 28 of this year he loaded up the moving truck; March 29 their son, Gregory Allen, was born; March 30, he drove to Cincy and unloaded the truck. Debbie and the kids got there in mid-April. Whew!

COLLEGE FLASHBACK: As an additional feature of this column, for the next several issues we will profile a classmate's experience at school and see where that person is now.

One Sunday afternoon on the last day of the SA Book Fair in January 1975, there were several Western Civ, Calculus and Chemistry books that were going unclaimed for $1 each. The young man walked in, bought over one hundred books and waited 'til the SA Book Fair the next September, where he promptly unloaded over half of what he bought at prices that were around half of the price at which everyone else sold, clearing several hundred dollars. From this start in our capitalistic system, former IFC President Joe Marren has gotten his CPA, earned his law degree at Fordham, his M.B.A. degree at N.Y.U., written a book on mergers and acquisitions and is now working in corporate finance with the investment banking firm of Kidder Peabody in New York. Joe's wife, Joan, is also an attorney with a Wall Street law firm. And all of that is within 10 years of graduation? I just want to know one thing: Joe, do you ever relax?

ALUMNI IN GREECE

Over 20 W&M alumni and friends enjoyed a successful and interesting tour of the Greek mainland and islands on May 17 - June 3. support activity in Holy Loch, Scotland, while Jody remained in Boston. Now that school is over, Jody has joined Kevin in Scotland where they are living in a 19th-century house in the tiny village of Innellan. They will be stationed there until June of 1986. Jody will be teaching at Queen's College in Glasgow. In the meantime they are enjoying the beautiful countryside and providing "bed and breakfast" for family and friends. A final note for Kevin's former track team cronies — Kevin's big Boston comeback became a series of orthopedic disasters; however, in a recent 10K in London, he turned in a credible performance for his base team, sprained ankle and all!

Jody also sends news from Rich Loewy. After graduating from Georgetown's law school, Rich joined the firm of Peabody and Brown in Boston. A few years ago he bought a condo in the Back Bay area, but as Jody describes "he is saved from true yuppie-hood by his weekend pursuits, karate and dirt bike enduros." A late summer visit with Jody and Kevin is next on the agenda.

On June 2, Roger Hackett received his Ph.D. in biochemistry from Cornell University. After graduation, Scott joined Centex, an educational telecommunications research firm in Williamsburg, as production manager. Metro Communications, founded in 1981, has grown to one of the three largest television production companies in Hampton Roads. This year, Metro Communications won four Addy Awards from the Eastern Carolina Advertising Federation, including two Best in Show awards for print and video.

After graduating in 1983 she decided to pursue yet another advanced course of study, master of theology, also at Duke. On August 25, 1984, Heidi married Ron Robinson. After honeymooning in Hawaii, they returned to North Carolina where Ron is minister of the First United Methodist Church of High Point. Heidi is serving as associate pas-

They report that their sons, John and David, have also enjoyed the move and the new opportunities in Durham.

Mark Riennerth is a stockbroker with Wheat First Securities, and his wife, Linda, is a pharmacist with Peoples Drug Stores. They are living in Norfolk and according to Mark, have become true yuppies!

Curtis and Mary Phillips Hall went on a beautiful ski adventure in Utah earlier this year. Robin Engh was apparently in Utah at the same time but they were not able to get together. Mary says maybe next year!

Larry Kunz is in Raleigh, N.C., working for IBM, planning and writing computer manuals. Relocating from New York allows him to visit Williamsburg more often. Perhaps November 16 will be another trip for Homecoming.

Marjorie Dunbar and G. J. Dufek Jr. were married in May. Marjorie earned her C.P.A. in 1982. She is currently supervisor of finance for Newport News Industrial Corporation, a subsidiary of Newport News Shipbuilding. She is presently pursuing an M.B.A. at Old Dominion University.

I continue to enjoy receiving news from all of you. You really make my job easy! I welcome suggestions and comments and most of all NEWS at any time. I am planning to attend Homecoming, but don't save your news until November! Write NOW!

I hope everyone's enjoying the fall thus far and had a great summer! Be sure to write and let me know about your trips and other endeavors. So many times I think of W & M as if we were there only yesterday; then, I realize that it's been five years already! That does mean, however, that this fall will be our first official Homecoming celebration. It is scheduled for the weekend of November 15, so if you haven't made your reservations yet, be sure to do it pronto. Let's have a great turnout!

Since you heard from me last, I have changed jobs; I am now working for Esterline Corporation in Darien, Conn., a former client of mine. I will be assuming the position of director of accounting in January, and until then, I will be working on special projects and assisting in internal audits. The people are great fun to work with, and I enjoy the job very much.

I haven't heard from too many people lately, although, luckily, those who wrote passed on news of other classmates. Please write and tell me what you've been up to lately. A few people have told me that, with a little help as to general locality, they have renewed contact with friends; so, you never know who may see your name and decide to drop you a line!

John H. Oakley, assistant professor of Classical Studies at William and Mary, has received one of 93 grants-in-aid for post-doctoral research in the humanities and related social sciences from the American Council of Learned Sciences. Dr. Oakley will use the grant to conduct study on the subject "Public Dining Pottery from Classical Athens."

ALUMNI ATTEND BRADY FETE

USA Today recently honored White House Press Secretary James S. Brady, husband of Sarah Kemp Brady '64, as its "Man of the Year." Shown chatting with CBS's "Sixty Minutes" commentator Andy Rooney at the reception are Washington, D.C., area William and Mary alumni Jerry File '61, Debbie File, Rooney, and Sharon Hall McBay '63.

There's some news from the services. First Lieutenant Clark Shuler wrote from Mathes Air Force Base in California. Clark has been in northern California for approximately one year, where he was training to become a weapons system operator (WSO or wizzo, for short). When Clark completes the training, he'll fly F-4 Phantoms for the 171st Fighter Interceptor Squadron in Mount Clemens, Mich. He finds it challenging but really loves the job, especially the flying!

Mathes AFB is about an hour and a half from both San Francisco and Lake Tahoe, so Clark has had plenty of places to go in his spare time. Betsy Frick was in the same area; Clark saw that she was the winner of a women's triathlon. Also, Lesley Brown Heslop was promoted to the rank of captain in the Army. She and her husband, Jeffery, live in Fort Lee, where Lesley is at the U.S. Army Quartermaster Center. Jeffery is also a captain in the Army.

There have been quite a few weddings. Melissa Bird finished her Army tour in Europe in December of 1983 and returned to Washington, D.C., where she worked for six months. In June of that year, Melissa married Steve Ritz. Steve is also in the Army and is stationed at Fort Lewis in Tacoma, Washington. Melissa and Steve are settled in the area, where Melissa was job hunting.

Ed Walker was married to Sharon Harley in May of 1984. Since then, Ed and Sharon have been living in Rustburg, Va., near Lynchburg, where Ed is minister of three United Methodist churches, and Sharon is an occupational therapist at Central Virginia Training Center, a mental retardation facility. Ed spent some time in Vienna, Austria, where he served as minister and then returned to the states to attend Duke Divinity School. Sharon graduated from Duke University in 1982 and went on to the Medical University of South Carolina, Charleston, where she received her bachelor's degree in occupational therapy. Ed mentioned that Dean Short and Blake Velde attended the wedding.

Susan (Meachum) Stonesifer is living in Naples, Fla., with her husband, John. Susan and John were married in June of 1984. John went to Clemson University after which he attended Virginia Theological Seminary. In Naples, John is assistant to the rector at St. John's Episcopal Church and was ordained in December. Susan is keeping busy singing in the church choir and working part time. She says that Naples is quite a change from D.C., but she seems to like it. Susan writes that there are quite a few W&M alumni in the Naples area. She has run into Rosemary Harold, who is working at the Miami Herald, as well as some older alumni.

Patti Jermain Mickelson wrote from Northern Virginia where she has been working for AT&T Communications (formerly AT&T Long Lines) since graduation as a computer programmer. More exciting news, however, is that Patti was married to Jim Mickelson. Jim is originally from Illinois where he attended the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana. He is also a programmer for IBM in Manassas. Patti and Jim recently bought a new townhouse in Centreville.

Kathy Burke was also married in 1984 — to Bob Koch, who was a fellow student at Columbia University. Kathy and Bob received their MBA's in May and were married shortly thereafter. They are now living in Morristown, N.J., where Kathy is in production management for Warner-Lambert Co., working on Listerine, and Bob is a financial analyst for RCA's American Communications division in Princeton. There was a large W&M contingent at Kathy and Bob's wedding. Nancy Tammi was the maid of honor — Nancy finished her master's in forestry at Duke in 1983 and is now in Ithaca, N.Y., at the Cornell University Extension Service. Suzanne Doggett is working for Congressman Madigan on the Hill and lives in Arlington. Sarah Hassell went back to medical school in Charleston, S.C., after working at the Children's Hospital in D.C. Leslie Scarlattelli is in Newark where she works for Prudential Insurance Co. Donna Groover works for Riggs Bank in D.C. Deanna Krause Perrow and her husband, Mike, are living in Norfolk, after spending some time in Massachusetts. Deanna is working toward her Ph.D. in psychology, and Mike writes for a journal. Lauren Daly is in the Big Apple, where she works for a brokerage firm. Margaret Witten is finishing her law degree at the University of South Carolina in Columbia, S.C.; Bruce Hatrak is also in law school at Washington & Lee, where one of his recent accomplishments was making the Law Review. Sue O'Loughlin graduated from the University of Michigan with a master's in hospital administration, and is now living in Seattle, as are Lisa Eddy Nicol and her husband, Jim. Both Lisa and Jim work for Weyerhaeuser. Ruth Cupery Mead and her husband, Jim, are settled in North Carolina. Ruth works for an environmental consulting firm. Anna Blackwell Ransome and her husband, Mal, are in Kilmarnock, Va., where Anna is working for an accounting firm. Lisa Lawler is presently back in school at New York University, after first attending Columbia (where she and Kathy were roommates for a while), then working for Paine-Webber. Other classes were represented by Debbie Williams Cook '81 and her husband, Bill, and Martha Schirmer '79.

Lisa Jo Sagolla is also in the Big Apple, where it sounds like she has been kept extremely busy. Lisa Jo was responsible for choreographing a Jerome Kern revue which opened in November; she also sang and danced in the production. She is teaching dance and exercise classes at Columbia University in the physical education department. Lisa Jo was recently appointed area chairperson of Delta Omicron for New York.

Brian Moore was named an audit manager in the Roseland, N. J. office of Arthur Andersen & Co. Brian is living in Maplewood, N. J.

I believe I mentioned that Celia Cohan Fenolietto and her husband, Rick, were expecting their first child — Well, Celia wrote to say that she and Rick are the proud parents of a beautiful baby girl, Michele Marie, born in March. Congratulations!

Greg Fronczak has moved around a bit since graduation. Greg was working for MCI Telecommunications in New York until April 1984, at which time he decided he needed a change and took an internship with a real estate firm in Dallas (the Big D?). The internship program was finished in November. Greg then moved back to the D.C. area where he is a stockbroker for Dean Witter. Greg had a chance to visit with Ed and Carla Moreland while in Dallas; Ed and Carla recently bought a new home.

Debbie (Hodge) and Jack Dunn are living in Williamsburg in Kingsmill. They work together for a firm in Newport News, where Jack is the vice president of financial management and Debbie is the vice president and secretary. They've been with the same firm since graduation, and obviously, enjoy their work very much. Debbie wrote that she and Jack received invitations to the 50th Presidential Inaugural Gala, Parade and Ball. As you may remember, the parade was cancelled because of freezing temperatures; however, Debbie and Jack had a great time at the other festivities.

Debbie and Jack attended the wedding of Glen Smith '81 and Marilee Massey a year ago. The wedding party included Jack, as well as Hal White and Dave Back. Hal completed his master's in hydrology and returned to Northern Virginia, and Dave is close to finishing his master's degree, also in hydrology.

Robin Allen Gilman and her husband, Don, are living in Florida, where they had to contend with a hurricane that tore their sailboat loose from the dock. Robin and Don recently celebrated their first year anniversary. Dave Lucas is living in Red Bank, N.J., where he is an associate with the defense firm of Wolff, Helies, and Duggan. Dave graduated from the Rutgers-Camden Law School in May of 1983 and became a member of the New Jersey Bar Association in December of the same year.

Carl Meyer wrote with some exciting news — He and his wife, Kay, were expecting their first child; I haven't heard yet whether it was a boy or girl. Congratulations to the new parents! Carl is an account executive with Merrill Lynch in D.C., and Kay was an elementary school teacher up until the birth of the baby.

News of a few other marriages:

Diann Dodd was married to Joseph Martin in May of 1984.

Elizabeth Connell was married to Michael Panhorst.

Cindi Barwick was married to Lieutenant Michael Malinick last October. They were initially stationed in Pensacola, Fla., but were awaiting a transfer to San Diego.

Paul Hershey received his master of science degree in electrical engineering in December from the University of Maryland and is working for the Fairchild Communications and Electronics Company in Germantown, Md. Paul and his wife, Cheryl, live nearby in Gaithersburg. Jay Morris is living in Richmond where she is a buyer for Miller and Rhoads. Jay makes frequent trips to New York and California; luckily, she enjoys the travel. Jay recently bought a condo which takes up most of her spare time.

Bob Bailey and his wife, Teresa (Martin) '81, live in Lynchburg. Bob works for Limitorque Corporation as an applications engineer in the Marine Products Division.

I'm looking forward to seeing everyone at Homecoming — remember . . . November 15-17! Take care and I'll have more news for the next issue. Please write before September 15, so I can get the news in!

So, how many of you were on the mall in D.C. on the 4th? I was in a W&M crowd, all of us craning our necks to see the Beach Boys. Greg Hundley; Bobby Harris, back from St. Croix and getting ready to teach English at St. Christophers in Richmond in the fall; Kim Staples; Priscilla Hancock, who is a marketing specialist at Aetna and living in Reston; Brad Angevine; Jennifer Lear '88; and Alison Horrocks, who is working as a project director for a computer time-sharing firm. She just returned from the airport on Thursday night from picking up Greg Miller, who is back from Europe. Greg will be starting Med School at M.C.V. in the fall. Too bad he was in England for the 4th!

I also saw Mary Trigg, who is working as a manager at Garfinkels and living in Rosslyn. Carl Adkins just returned from Europe, where he traveled with Bruce Britton. Bruce will return in late July and begin med school in fall '86. They thought that Ireland was the most enjoyable place, and they also found the French girls to be quite friendly. Carl seemed glad to be back in the U.S.A. watching the fireworks! I also ran into Maureen Leahy who is attending the Univ. of Maryland Med School. The 4th was definitely fun, especially with a few '83 Kappa Sigs keeping us entertained.

It seems that a few couples are having some fireworks of their own. George Foreman and Lynne Helms were married in March in Charlottesville, Lynne's hometown. Attendants were Monica Johnson, Lu Ann Spruil, Margie Mulholland, Bruce Phillips, Greg Miller, Dan Jordanger, and Rob Haeslip. Also attending the wedding was Lori Selden, who is working for Epic Realty in Falls Church, Va. George and Lynne took their honeymoon in Bermuda and have bought a townhouse in Brandermill in Richmond, where George is a tennis pro. Lynne is teaching handicapped children and will be attending M.C.V. in the fall.

Josh Slocum married Phyllis Gallimore in April in the Wren Chapel, and the reception was at the Hospitality House. Dave Ramey served as the best man. I hear it was a big Lambo reunion and lots of fun! They are now living in Carefree, Ariz.!

Meg Hunter and Bill Scott are now engaged and planning an August '86 wedding. I often see Meg on the Metro; she is working for a brokerage firm in D.C. Bill will be starting his second year at UVA Law School in the fall.

David Witmer and Anna Marie finally tied the knot. Mr. and Mrs. Witmer took their vows in June in the Wren Chapel with a reception at Kingsmill. Dave is attending M.C.V. Med School.

Anne Kolmer married Cameron Brooks, a pharmacist from Anne's hometown, Salem, Va. They were married in Salem and spent their honeymoon in the Virgin Islands. They will live in Salem.

Ben Lowe and Suzy Musciano have set the date for September 1985! Ron Andrews and Lily Armistead are planning their September wedding in Springfield, with a honeymoon in the Carribean. Jan Singletary writes that she is planning a late-August wedding to Brent Thomas '83.

Ingrid Johns and Chris Gleason were married in May, and Chris is attending law school at Marshall-Wythe.

Bob Landen and Debbie Moffett were married in May in Wayne, Pa. They are now working in D.C., Bobby for Ernst & Whinny. They will be moving to Honolulu in September. Bobby plans to continue graduate work in tanning and Asian studies at the U. of Hawaii, and Debbie will continue her work with Ernst & Whinny.

Mary Sugg writes that she and Scott Chahalis were married in March with lots of W&M friends looking on. Groomsmen were Doug Strobel, Scot Danforth, and John Carbone. Attendees included Suzy McElligott, Michele Melany, Patty Canonico, Mike Ard, Bruce Kalk, Chris Mahoney, Nancy Jean O'Brien, Chris Comay '86 and Kevin Bullock '86. It was a great day, followed by a honeymoon in Barbados.

Alison Irvin wrote me a long letter from Dean Jarmon's office. (I thought I'd done something wrong when it came in the mail.) She has been working as a secretary there since graduation. Her roommates have included Vicki Edwards; Allison Smith, who is now at med school at M.C.V.; and Sharon Weaver, who is now living at home and working as a dog groomer. Dennis Shea has been at Cambridge in England since October, earning his master's in economics. Dennis and Allison Irvin plan to be married in early August. Terry Bockhorn, Wendy Bernath, and Vicki Edwards will serve as attendants. After a honeymoon in Bermuda, they plan to move to New Jersey where Dennis is going to work on his doctorate at Rutgers, and Allison will go back to school, part time at least, to work on her master's in counseling and/or clinical psychology. But for the summer, Allison is just relaxing and planning the wedding, and Dennis is working as a lifeguard.

Harris Warner married Martha Elizabeth Trotter, from Mary Washington College, in July 1984, in Roanoke, Va.

But not everyone is getting married. Mollye

PROFESSOR THELIN NAMED OUTSTANDING WRITER

John R. Thelin, associate professor of education at William and Mary, has been named one of America's best writers in the field of higher education. Thelin, who contributes to the William and Mary Magazine, among other publications, has been a member of the College faculty since 1981. Change Magazine named Thelin, who holds his bachelor's degree from Brown University and his master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of California at Berkeley, to the list. Thelin's latest article is entitled "The Oldest and Cheapest College in the South" in the summer issue of the William and Mary Magazine. A study of the evolution of admissions at William and Mary, it was co-authored with Karen Schoenenberger '66, associate dean of admissions.

Greene writes that she enjoyed a wonderful summer tour of Europe and Russia, and then began work as a media planner for Young & Rubicam in N.Y.C. Doreen Winn is doing well in New York Law School and loves the city life. Paige Edeburn and Laura Zinni are working for Marine Midland Bank in N.Y.C. Pam Scott is also in N.Y.C., working as an interior designer. Sharon Jones attends Dickinson Law School in Carlisle, Pa., home of the Redskins summer training camp!! Valerie Johnson resides in Richmond where she works for a local veterinarian. Justina "J.J." Johnson enjoys teaching in Arlington, especially in the summer; she vacationed in Cancun. Mark Wysong and Lucy Martin tied the knot in a beautiful Williamsburg wedding last November, and Chuck Gamble and Jeanie Browning are soon to be married in Georgia. Debbie Lipuma is living in Alexandria, Va., and planning to attend law school. Lastly, Mollye mentions that Mike Mulligan lives in Alexandria and is working for Arthur Anderson.

Tracy Marblestone dropped me a nice note and told me that she has settled in Media, Pa., and is working in the management information consulting division of Arthur Anderson & Company as a staff consultant. She travels often, and is now in Chicago for six months. She runs into Pete Tantillo every once in a while. He is working in the audit division of Arthur Anderson in Philadelphia.

Joe Carroll and Linda Ritter have now set a date for their wedding: May 3, 1986. I am sure it will be a day to remember. Al and Elaine Robinson are expecting a baby in September.

Nancy Coté is working in N.Y.C. as a furniture buyer for Penney's. Guy Crittenden is working for an advertising agency and attending art school in Atlanta. Liz Sommers is working in mutual funds in Philadelphia, and J. P. Ottaway has been living in Williamsburg, and managing the Beecroft & Bull store. Laurie Raymond is teaching 8th-grade science at Franklin Intermediate in Fairfax County. She spent part of her summer in Europe as did other classmates.

Lisa West writes that she has been working for the Dana Corporation in Germany since October 1985. Dana Corporation is a worldwide manufacturer of automotive and machinery parts. She is in the Munich purchasing and sales department, until March 1986. She will take her GMAT soon, and wants to attend business school in September '86. She says Munich is wild! She has six weeks of vacation, and she lives in the "Beer Capitol of the World." Julie Beringer visited Lisa at Easter, and they made a trip to the Austrian Alps. Lisa will be seeing Hugh Marthinsen '86 in August for a week of sailing off the coast of Yugoslavia. Lisa welcomes visitors, and I have her address. Please give me a call if you are planning a trip!

Paris Wilson sent me a postcard from Honduras, C.A. He is in the Peace Corps, working with Indians in the mountains. He crammed the following info on the card: Susan Conn is enjoying working for a publishing company in Cleveland. John Baiocco is happy in a training program in Va. Beach. John Christiansen is in N.Y.C. and planning to go back to school for his M.B.A. Mike Sturm, Paris's old roomie, is "maxing out" at Harvard Law.

David Dowler has certainly been doing some interesting things since graduation. He worked as a waiter at Glacier National Park in the summer '84. Then he traveled down through New Mexico and participated in Albuquerque's huge hot air balloon festival. He

R. HARVEY CHAPPELL JR. '48 HEADS TRIAL LAWYERS

R. Harvey Chappell Jr. '48, B.C.L. '50 was installed as president-elect of the American College of Trial Lawyers at a ceremony in London on July 13. A senior partner in the Richmond firm of Christian, Barton, Epps, Brent & Chappell, he will serve as president-elect of ACTL for 1985-86 and president for 1986-87. Membership in the College is limited to not more than one percent of lawyers licensed to practice in each state and is by invitation only. Chappell, who is noted for the practice of federal and state civil litigation and general corporate law, was elected as a Fellow of ACTL in 1968 and has been a member of the Board of Regents since 1979. During his year as president-elect, Chappell will travel throughout the country to meet with Fellows of the College and will be responsible for organizing the program for the 1986 spring meeting of the College to be held in San Diego. Chappell received an honorary doctor of laws degree from William and Mary in 1984. A former rector of the College and former president of the Society of the Alumni, he is also a recipient of the Alumni Medallion.

finally settled in San Francisco and is taking part in an American Youth Hostels sponsored trip leadership training program, which will hopefully lead him to conducting a few hiking/biking trips this summer. In his spare time, he is waiting tables and enjoying San Francisco!

On a sadder note, the class of '84 mourns the death of Nancy Lex in a water accident in July.

Please keep in touch with your classmates and check the Gazette for events in your area.

I hope you all are enjoying your first year out of W&M. Please write so I can let everyone know how you are doing.

INSTITUTE ESTABLISHES MORTON AWARD

The Institute of Early American History and Culture at William and Mary has established the Richard L. Morton Award for distinguished publication by graduate students in the William and Mary Quarterly. The award honors Dr. Richard L. Morton, longtime Williamsburg resident and former chairman of the history department at William and Mary. Morton (1889-1974) was the founding editor of the Quarterly's Third Series, a respected teacher for 40 years and a leading colonial historian of his generation, whose two-volume Colonial Virginia (1960) remains a work of important scholarship. The Morton Award is intended to recognize accomplishment by graduate students in all fields within the William and Mary Quarterly's domain — history, literature, religion, fine arts, anthropology, political science and economics — as well as other fields of early American studies. Commencing in 1987, the Morton Award will be offered annually, as warranted by the quality of the candidates, for an article of distinction published in the journal by an author who, at the time of submission, is pursuing graduate study. Selection will be made by the Quarterly's editorial board. The award will carry a prize of books chosen by the recipient from the Institute's list of publications.

HOMECOMING 1985

Dear Alumni, Spouses and Friends:

It's time to check your graduation years as Homecoming 1985 is only three months away and it is never too early to make your plans. The Alumni Office has been working to make this year's Homecoming even better than its predecessors. Homecoming is continuing to grow in both attendance and activities and we hope you will agree that Homecoming at William and Mary includes something for everyone.

This year the spotlight is on the Classes of 1940, 1945, 1950, 1955, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and 1980, who are all celebrating one of their five-year reunions. A full schedule of events has also been planned for members of the Olde Guard Classes (1907-1935) and for members of the Young Guard Classes (1981-1985). If you are a member of one of the Non-Reunion Classes, we hope you will attend as well, as there are events for everyone who comes back. In short, Homecoming 1985 is missing only one ingredient — AND THAT'S YOUR ATTENDANCE.

With a number of new events being added, including a concert by the William and Mary Choir on Friday afternoon before the Sunset Ceremony, and with a few events being revised and tailored, we feel William and Mary's Homecoming is second to none. We have tried to make events more personal with more time to be with friends. We encourage all returning Reunion Class members to participate in their Hospitality Suite activities. Hospitality Suites have become the focal point of classes for the weekend and offer the place where you can be sure to see your friends. We have four days of excitement to offer, beginning with programs for the Order of the White Jacket on Thursday and concluding with a new Alumni Brunch on Sunday to cap off the weekend's activities. Williamsburg in the fall, exciting activities, old and new friends, and the University of Richmond in football — MAKE YOUR PLANS NOW TO COME "HOME" TO WILLIAM AND MARY.

To help us in planning the weekend, we are requiring that all reservations for catered events be made on a pre-paid basis only. All reservation information for events is included in this notice. Room reservation forms have been appearing in the last several issues of the Alumni Gazette and are also included in this issue. Please note that we are currently holding rooms for all classes as per the Class Hotel Listing. Due to cut-off dates, we will only be able to take room reservations until OCTOBER 1ST before we must release rooms back to the hotels. We encourage you to place your hotel reservations immediately as space is filling quickly. The catered event reservation cut-off date will be OCTOBER 15TH, but we ask that you not wait to reserve space as there are space limitations and the Alumni Office needs time to process your reservation. If you have questions regarding any aspect of Homecoming Weekend 1985, please do not hesitate to contact me or Mrs. Betsy Cobbledick at 804-229-1693 and if busy, 804-229-7545, for assistance.

We hope that we have properly whetted your appetite and you are already marking the dates of NOVEMBER 14TH, 15TH, 16TH AND 17TH on your calendar. If you are still not convinced you are coming, we have one more item to entice you. Homecoming 1985 will honor the twenty-fifth President of the College, Dr. Paul Verkuil '61. Dr. and Mrs. Verkuil will be in attendance at many of the Homecoming Weekend events and we know you would like to meet the man who will lead your Alma Mater to her Tri-Centennial. We hope to see you in November.

Cordially,

John W. Phillips '78
