THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

THE BOOMING BUSINESS SCHOOL

New Dean Brings Wall Street Acumen to William and Mary

BY LISA L. HEUVEL '74

When John C. Jamison became dean of the School of Business Administration on July 1, 1983, he was ready to consolidate what had already been built there and to make it stronger. "Then," he said in a 1983 interview, "we'll see where we go from here."

Now just over two years later, the School of Business Administration can be described in one word: dynamic. True to his word, Jamison has continued to build upon the solid foundation left him by Charles L. Quittmeyer '60, who is now Floyd Dewey Gottwald Professor of Business Administration at William and Mary.

The increases in faculty size and in the number and quality of programs are not accidental. They are part of a step-by-step expansion aimed at making this relatively young business school one of the best in the nation.

Before becoming dean, John Jamison was a general partner in the Wall Street investment firm of Goldman, Sachs and Co. He specialized in corporate finance and, later in his career, in aiding troubled companies.

Says Jamison, "When I came here and had to make the change from being a business person whose bottom line was money and profit, I had to find a new kind of bottom line."

He used his business acumen to find a new purpose to guide his activities. "The bottom line I focused on is educating students in each one of our programs as well as they're educated in any similar program in the country."

Like ripples in a pond, that goal has set off a series of exciting developments, from new programs linking the School to the business community, to the prospect of stronger ties to other graduate and undergraduate programs within the College.

This fall, 25 percent of the business school faculty and administrators are newcomers chosen for their exceptional qualifications. Through the support of the Virginia Legislature a total of eight new faculty positions and two new administrative positions will be added over the next three years.

In the mix of new faculty, Dean Jamison says he's emphasizing versatility among disciplines, teaching ability and a wide range of experience from "green" Ph.D.'s to associate and full professors.

This year, six new business faculty members have brought with them links to some major business programs in the U.S., including those of Harvard, the University of Michigan, Purdue, the University of South Carolina, the University of Virginia, Virginia Tech and the University of Toronto.

"The particular benefit from this is that the faculty will have achieved a size that permits a better mix of teaching and applied business research activities," says Jamison. "Faculty interaction with business will be enhanced, in my opinion, to the benefit of our undergraduate and graduate students."

The background of skills in the new faculty includes marketing, finance, accounting, taxation and public administration. "We needed in that faculty mix faculty with experience in teaching executives, and we have, I think, an outstanding new group of faculty this year."

As the School of Business Administration grows older, its alumni continue to rise in the ranks of upper middle management in the business world. That reality, along with the increasing demand for advanced education in business administration, has led to the development of several important programs within the School.

The Center for Executive Development was formed in July 1984 from the consolidation of business-related seminars offered by the Office of Special Programs and the Women in Business Program. It is headed by Julia B. Leverenz, a graduate of the School's M.B.A. program who developed the Women in Business Program under initial grants from I.B.M. and International Paper. In its first year of operation, the Center broke even, and in the current year is projecting a modest contribution on program revenues approaching a million dollars.

The Center's management training programs fill the calendar with eight to ten events per month, and include one- and two-day training sessions, specialized projects and on-site corporate training programs. Business school faculty are instrumental in the Center's William and Mary Management Workshop, a week-long program for first-level managers, which was added to the schedule this year.

Beginning in January 1986, the School of Business Administration will inaugurate its Executive Master of Business Administration Program. Designed as a 20-month general management program of instruction for promising mid-career executives, the E.M.B.A. program allows its participants to earn a master's degree without interrupting their careers. To make that possible, most E.M.B.A. classes are scheduled on alternate Fridays and Saturdays, in addition to a requirement to spend three weeks in residence on the William and Mary campus.

The business school's wide range of continuing executive education programs will also be enhanced by a new part-time evening M.B.A. pro-

Among his many innovations is a new Executive Master of Business Administration program, which is administered by Dr. Larry Ring (right), who came to William and Mary this fall from the University of Toronto where he administered a similar program.

The New President Takes Charge

Paul R. Verkuil '61 Makes Presence Felt on Campus

His official inauguration won't occur until October 20, but Paul R. Verkuil '61, William and Mary's vigorous new president, has already made his presence felt on campus. Almost from the moment he took the oath of office in a quiet ceremony in the Wren Chapel on July 1, President Verkuil has been a whirlwind of activity, touring the campus and meeting the administration and faculty, conferring with the Board of Visitors, greeting new students and their parents, and welcoming the faculty and staff at a presidential reception in the Wren Yard. Verkuil and his wife, Fran '66, and their two children, Gibson and Tara, provide William and Mary with a handsome new First Family. A new presidential era has begun at the 292-year-old "Alma Mater of a Nation."

In August, President Verkuil welcomed Governor Charles S. Robb and his legislative advisory committee to campus and gave them a tour of two William and Mary buildings — Ewell Hall and Blow Gymnasium — which need to be renovated. Ewell Hall, which houses the music department and admissions office, is the College's top capital outlay priority.

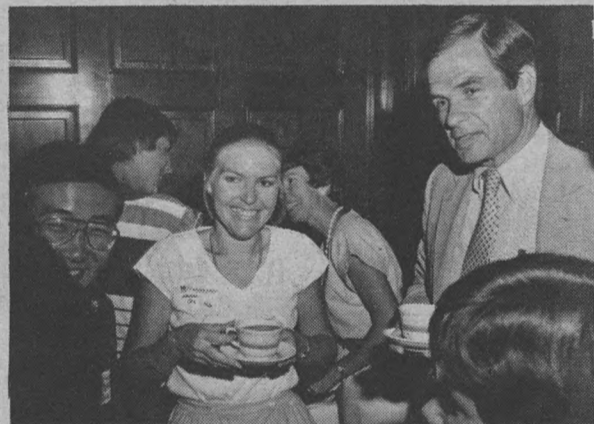

Although his official inauguration won't take place until October 20, Dr. Verkuil took the oath of office on July 1 in a quiet ceremony in the Wren Chapel. With Mrs. Verkuil holding a Bible and Anne Dobie Peebles '43, rector of the College, looking on, former Governor Albertis S. Harrison administered the oath of office.

Dr. Verkuil traveled to Richmond in August to attend an appearance of the cast of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival at the Phillip Morris plant, where he visited with actress Helen Hayes, who serves as honorary chairman of the Lord Chamberlain Society, a support group for the Festival, which is held each summer at William and Mary.

Lawson Cox '83, Alexandria, Va., a member of the Alumni Admissions Network, had an opportunity to meet the new president at an Admissions Network workshop at the College in September.

President and Mrs. Verkuil shared some time with parents of incoming freshmen at Orientation Weekend. The President addressed the new students and their parents in William and Mary Hall.

New Book Hails William and Mary

The Public Ivys Calls College Ivy League Equal

BY G. GARY RIPPLE

One of American higher education's best kept secrets may finally be out of the bag. In a recently published book entitled The Public Ivys (Viking, 1985) Richard Moll has included William and Mary on a list of eight state-supported colleges and universities that most represent the qualities we normally attribute to Ivy League institutions.

Also included in the book are the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the University of Michigan, the University of Texas, Miami University in Ohio, the University of Vermont, the University of Virginia, and the University of California system which Moll has lumped together.

Dick Moll is no stranger to higher education. He had served both Bowdoin and Vassar colleges as director of admissions before moving to the University of California at Santa Cruz in 1981. He is universally respected as one of the admission profession's most thought-provoking and entertaining writers but even he was not aware of the College's public affiliation until he actually began to work on the book. Already well known as the author of Playing the Private College Admissions Game, Moll was a natural to focus public attention on state supported institutions when he moved to Santa Cruz.

The Public Ivy is an assemblage of lively essays which resulted from Dick Moll's travels in the summer of 1982. He visited each institution for two or three days and met with representatives of each institution's faculty, administration and student body. At each stop on his tour, Moll was looking for evidence of those characteristics most commonly attributed to Harvard, Princeton, Yale and the other members of the Ivy League consortium. His primary task was to discover if the high quality of education students find in very expensive Ivy League colleges could also be found at institutions which are relatively inexpensive because of the heavy subsidies they receive from state legislatures.

Moll uncovered the secret of William and Mary when he was actually conducting his research for The Public Ivys. During a visit to the University of Virginia, he was asked if William and Mary would be his next stop. "What for?" he exclaimed, "William and Mary is a private institution." Soon he was on his way to Williamsburg for a three-day visit and a chance to discover firsthand the many gems of knowledge he has included in his description of our College in his new book.

The advance promotion of The Public Ivys has generated a tremendous amount of attention for the book and for the colleges it has designated as "public ivys." There was a U.S.A. Today cover story and a special article in Time magazine that called attention to rising costs of higher education. The story focused on the most expensive private institutions and compared them with some of the colleges described in Moll's book, including William and Mary. Also this fall, a book entitled The Best Buys in Higher Education by Edward Fiske (who is the education editor of The New York Times) will be condensed for an upcoming issue of Seventeen magazine. The Fiske book will be published later in the fall.

Moll has liberally sprinkled his essay on the College with generous praise for the College and its mission. For example, "setting William and Mary apart from the larger scale universities is unanimity of purpose, consistent agreement among staff

Don Fukuda

Dick Moll's new book, The Public Ivys, lists William and Mary as one of eight state-supported universities that most represent the qualities normally attributed to Ivy League institutions.

and faculty on the mission of the College. Few public institutions defend the liberal arts directly and with such clarity." "The retention of students at William and Mary must be underscored — they graduate at a higher rate than students at most elitist private colleges." "Approximately 75% of the entering freshman graduate within four years." "The athletic facilities seem superb for a college this size: a well scrubbed . . . football stadium, a modern . . . basketball facility, fourteen tennis courts . . . also, there is considerable enthusiasm for recreational and intramural sports." "The campus . . . is breathtaking. The huge, deep magnolias sprinkled throughout the 1,200 acres; Lake Matoaka; the Sunken Garden and the Georgian section; the historic buildings in the old colonial section . . . and others." "This is a special place."

Dick Moll writes with a marvelous style that is both richly imaginative and factually interesting. He has used his training as an admissions recruiter to identify and define those special ingredients that create for William and Mary a unique niche in all of higher education. He also discovered in his many interviews and fact-finding sessions that there is a universal agreement among the staff and faculty on the mission of the College. While students cannot and do not always understand or appreciate the process while it is occurring, our alumni consistently reinforce what we value so much — that the development of one's imagination and adaptability to change and the ability to learn are all more important than the adoption of a craft or trade, which may or may not provide a lifetime of benefits to the graduate.

What is responsible for William and Mary's national reputation? It has a unique combination of special ingredients. A typical state university has a name that makes it easily identifiable. It is usually a large research-based institution with most freshmen and sophomores being taught by graduate teaching assistants or in extremely large lectures or televised courses. There is a de-emphasis on campus living after the freshman year and big enrollment targets normally make the university less than selective.

William and Mary is none of these. We have a profound emphasis on undergraduate liberal education and 82 percent of our students reside in college housing. Most of our professors have attained the terminal degree, and 80 percent of all classes at William and Mary last year had fewer than thirty students. Our admissions process attracts four Virginians for each vacancy and ten non-Virginians for the limited number of places set aside for those who reside outside of the Commonwealth. We have the highest graduation rate of any college in Virginia and one of the highest of any in the nation. Moll has hit the nail on the head with his statement that "William and Mary can make a good case for being the most selective public college in America."

The Public Ivys could not have been published at a better time for public education, which has been beset by strong criticism of its performance at all levels. The book stands as a position statement about the possibilities that can be realized when institutions set high standards for selection, enroll bright and highly motivated students, hire extremely competent and demanding professors, and allow the process of teaching and learning to go on with a minimum of administrative interruption or control. Virginia taxpayers can be especially proud that two of the best public institutions in America are found right here in the Old Dominion.

Dick Moll left Williamsburg visibly impressed with our College and his writing of his description of us clearly and sharply defines our unique characteristics as a Public Ivy. The book is designed to attract readers so, naturally, it must present a balance of platitudes and criticism. On the whole, most who will read the book will agree with something we have known all along. In William and Mary there exists a noteworthy shining example of how public support can produce excellence in higher education.

Moll closes his essay on William and Mary by quoting former president Thomas A. Graves Jr., whom he describes as looking and speaking "as though he is prepping to be an American ambassador abroad." Graves, says Moll, is almost teary as he says:

"Then there is William and Mary. There is not another state university like it in the nation. It is a credit to the state system of higher education in Virginia, of which we are proud to be a part, that only here could a William and Mary thrive. Only here could William and Mary have the confidence which we currently enjoy."

Adds Moll:

"He is probably right. This strange and wonderful little place, with its tough liberal arts emphasis, its generous delegation from around America, and its charming atmosphere, is a tribute, in large part, to the leadership of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

"William and Mary is also, as the dean of students (W. Samuel Sadler '64) said succinctly, ' . . . a unique interlude for four years. America, there really is an Ivory Tower.' "

Alumna Works as Cook Off Coast of Aleutian Islands

A former York County social worker, Jo Fagan '70 is still listening to people in her new profession as a cook on fishing boats off the coast of the Aleutian Islands in Alaska.

BY CECILIA CASSIDY

When Josephine Raflo Fagan '70 graduated from William and Mary, she took a job listening to people: social worker for York County Social Services Bureau. She is still listening to people. But since 1981, she has been working as a cook on fishing boats off the coast of the Aleutian Islands in Alaska.

"When you're with people anywhere, you realize that human needs stay the same. Cooks typically have the job of listening, and social workers have the job of listening," says Jo. "People would come in and say, 'Maybe I'm getting married when I get back.' 'I'm going to get out of this business when I get back.' They need someone to listen because you can get into doing a lot of thinking out there."

"Out there" is three-days sailing on the Bering Sea from Jo's home in Unalaska. Her conversations with fellow crew members are over the gallery counter or a crab pot they've just hauled in. The job routine is far from the 9-to-5 life of a York County social worker.

In 1982 Jo had sailed with friends from Hawaii to Dutch Harbor, Unalaska, one of the larger of the Aleutian Islands. Dutch Harbor, 1,000 miles southwest of Anchorage with a population of 1500, is a major fishing port for king crab and salmon. She drove a taxi there for a year before taking the cook's job aboard the F/V Commodore.

King Crab fishing in the Bering Sea is supposed to be one of the toughest, most physically demanding jobs in the world. A typical day for Jo starts at 5 a.m., though days vary depending on tides and what the crew is fishing for. If the tides are running, the crew works all night, and Jo takes a watch while the others catch two or three hours of sleep. "I fix breakfast, do the dishes, clean the deck, feed the crew a snack, do some baking, feed the crew lunch."

She also works on deck, sorting crab to keep females and undersized crabs from going in the tank.

The time on watch qualified Jo to take the Coast Guard test for her master's license. In four years she has logged 720 days of sea time. The Coast Guard test, administered in Seattle, is the bar exam of the sea. She must know chart navigation, fire and safety procedures, and rules of the road. The master's license entitles her to operate "power driven vessels of not more than 500 gross tons upon oceans not more than 200 miles offshore." This means she can be a first mate on a freighter, tugboat or luxury yacht.

She is now working toward a sailing endorsement to the master's license, which requires 90 days sea time on a sailing vessel. She sailed for 60 days this past summer as a volunteer aboard the clipper ship Spirit of Massachusetts as it traveled from Washington, D.C., to its home port of Boston, Mass.

In Alaska the former William and Mary cheerleader and philanthropic chairman of Pi Beta Phi is in a different world from the Virginia horse country where she was raised. There are only 15 or 20 women, mostly cooks, in a fleet of 400 fishing boats. "It's kind of rough. When you tie up with another boat with a lady on board, you go over and talk," says Jo. "You share the things you couldn't talk about before."

The weather, which a social worker may barely notice, is a major factor in the fisherman's life. Winds can sometimes be up to 100 miles an hour. "That's when you wish you were in a nice little apartment somewhere," says Jo. "Although we were in 100-mile-an-hour winds one time, and we just anchored up and weathered the storm, I just always felt that I had to be on my toes. Part of it has to do with being with people you trust. Your senses have to be tuned in, and you have to be thinking immediately about what you're going to do next."

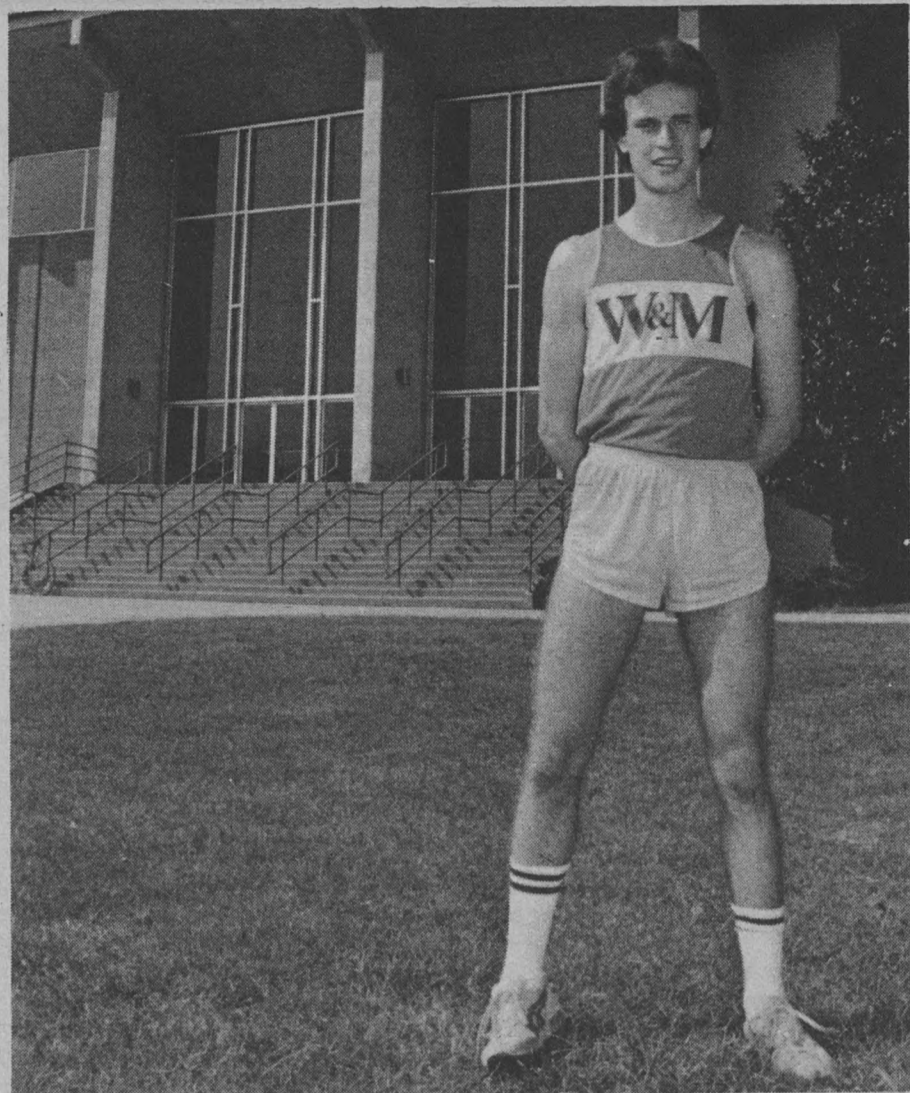

When the winds die down, so does the work-related stress, and the crew thinks about entertainment. "A good boat has a stash of VCR films. Boats often tie up next to each other and trade tapes. The worst thing that can happen in these trades is to put on "Godfather Part I" and then Part II is "Tammy Goes Hawaiian." You want to kill them because they've screwed up your whole day." Otherwise, people write letters, work on gear, work on the boat, play cards or talk to each other.

Back on land, Jo was founder in 1982 of The Aleutian Eagle, the only newspaper in the Aleutians. Printed in Anchorage, it is distributed by truck to the stores and airport in Unalaska, and mailed to the other islands. Jo had also helped start The Yorktown Crier in Williamsburg in 1979. She holds a B.S. in sociology, but picked up her journalism skills from her father, Frank Raflo, who publishes The Public Pamphlet, a monthly in Leesburg, Va.

"In Alaska, if you want to do something, usually people will help you do it. That's the way it is all over Alaska. I've had my share of people saying, 'Oh, you can't do that.' In Alaska, people say, 'Oh, you want to do that? Okay, we'll help you.' And that's everywhere, big cities down to little villages."

The magnificence of place plays no small part in everyday life in Alaska. "Life on the Bering Sea, or in Alaska in general, is humbling. Compare yourself to Mount McKinley. Compare yourself to the Bering Sea," says Jo. "You're a speck. The sea makes you maintain that humility because you are totally powerless over a 100-mile-an-hour wind. All you can do is your very best."

THE MOTH WHO TURNED INTO A BUTTERFLY

Inexperienced Ken Halla Becomes One of Nation's Best Long-Distance Runners

Ken Halla, who achieved All-American in cross country last year and qualified for the NCAA championship meet at 10,000 meters, ran sparingly in high school and didn't become serious about track until he came under the guidance of Tribe coach Roy Chernock.

BY BOB JEFFREY '74

Ken Halla is a goal-oriented person. When he came to William and Mary back in 1982, he was worried about making the varsity cross-country team. Now, as a senior, he's thinking about repeating as an All-American in the sport.

"I didn't say when I came here that I was going to be All-American," said Halla. "The first goal I set was just to make the varsity. When I made that, then I set other goals."

Chief among the goals Halla achieved last year was making All-American in cross country, an honor earned by placing in the top 25 native American finishers at the national meet. The senior from Vienna, Va., also qualified for the NCAA championship meet outdoors at 10,000 meters, finishing 10th in the country at that distance.

In the 10K at the prestigious Penn Relays this past April, Halla led a strong field for most of the race before finishing second in a time of 28.44.3, qualifying him for the TAC and NCAA championships and breaking his own school record by 1:07. Not bad for a guy who just took up competitive running in his senior year of high school.

Halla got a "late" start in running because he spent much of his youth in Europe and the Middle East. Born in Brussels, Halla spent his teenage years in Paris, France, where his father worked for the U.S. State Department. His only track experience was running the quarter mile for the American School's track club in Paris. "That wasn't too serious," Halla recalled. "We only practiced about ten times a season."

Returning to Madison High School in Northern Virginia for his senior year of high school, Halla decided to get serious about track. "I really wanted to make the team, so over the summer I started running about three miles a day," he said.

From the outset, Halla was successful in cross country. He advanced from the junior varsity to the varsity team at Madison, eventually running in the number one slot. In outdoor track he qualified for the state championships in the 1,600 meters with a best time of 4:19.

A trip to Williamsburg during his senior year convinced Halla to choose William and Mary over the University of Virginia. Still, there were no recruiters beating down his door. Halla's only communication with Tribe cross country and track coach Roy Chernock was a call to say, "Hi."

Chernock recalled, "We became aware that a kid who qualified for the state meet had been accepted here, so I wrote him a letter inviting him to come out for cross country, which is what I do to 50 or more incoming freshmen that we know a teeny bit about."

In the fall of his freshman year Halla was one of 30 runners trying to make the seven-man varsity cross-country squad. "By the time we had run a couple of meets," Chernock said, "it was apparent that we had a moth who was going to turn into a butterfly."

Halla made the team as the seventh man. He went on to break the W&M freshman record in the 5,000 meters, both indoors and out.

Meanwhile, in track Chernock was attempting to convince Halla to give up the mile for longer distances. "We had a slight difference of opinion there," Chernock said with a laugh. "I kept sneaking him into longer races while he insisted he was a miler."

Because of his lack of background in track, Halla had to discover the event and the distance that best suited his abilities. "Kenny doesn't have the great leg speed that you need to be a miler, but he can run all day. He's a strong runner rather than a speed runner," said Chernock.

These qualities of strength and endurance pointed Halla inevitably to the 10,000 meters, which happens to be the standard championship distance in cross country and an NCAA and Olympic outdoor event, the equivalent of 6.2 miles. The 10,000 meters also fit Halla's natural running tendencies.

"Ken puts the pressure to people early in the race and breaks them," Chernock said. "He likes to be a front runner. He goes out hard as if to say, 'If you guys want to beat me, you better run as fast as me now, 'cause I'm not going to run slow just to let you sprint past me at the end.' That's his style of running; and it works quite well for him," said Chernock.

As a sophomore Halla established himself as the number one cross-country runner, leading what Chernock thought was an inexperienced team to a 5-0 dual meet record.

What happened in Halla's junior year was the fulfillment of every coach's fantasy: the walk-on athlete who develops into a star, an All-American. Halla came in 32nd overall at the cross country nationals. He qualified there by placing 12th out of 242 runners at the southeast regional meet. Halla also won the IC4A College Division championship.

Chernock illustrated Halla's drive and determination to achieve his goals by recounting an incident that occurred when he took Halla to Furman University for the Southeastern Regionals. "As I shook Ken's hand at the starting line and wished him good luck," Chernock said, "he turned and said to me, 'I'll see you at Penn State, coach,' which was where the nationals were going to be held."

Sure enough, Halla finished 12th, garnering the last qualifying position.

Chernock continued the story: "A week-and-a-half later we went to Penn State for the nationals and I did the same thing, wished him good luck. He said, 'Coach, I'll see you at the All-American awards ceremony.' And of course it was so. He was an All-American."

Halla continues to set goals for himself. "I always set my goals high, higher than other people might expect, and I still am. I think that by setting them high, that makes me work harder," Halla said. "In distance running your mental attitude is really important. And no matter what happens I always believe I'll reach my goals."

Halla doesn't want to reveal the extent of his goals for this season, but he does admit, "I'll be disappointed if I don't make All-American in cross country and track. And I certainly want to place a lot higher at the national meets."

Further down the road Halla is planning for the years after graduation. An international relations major, he hopes to attend graduate school in Boston next year while continuing to train and run competitively.

Both Halla and Chernock think that the marathon could be the ultimate distance for him to conquer. "Most distance runners don't reach their full potential until their mid- to late-twenties," Chernock said. "I feel that in another few years Ken will probably run a fine marathon."

And how about the inevitable question, does Halla have a shot at the 1988 Olympic team? Coach Chernock said, "Right now I'd have to say that I don't think he's a candidate for the '88 team, but if you had asked me three years ago did I think he'd make the varsity, I would've said no, then. Ken is the kind of person I would never bet against."

Halla's quiet self-confidence has made believers of all who follow William and Mary track, reawakening the tradition of great distance runners like Jimmy Johnson, Juris Luzins, Howell Michael, Reggie Clark, and Ron Martin. Even in this exalted company Ken Halla has a chance to be one of the very best.

The Wightman Cup Finds A Home

William and Mary Named Permanent Site; Chris Evert-Lloyd Will Captain Team

BY FRANCES BOBBE

On May 23, United States Tennis Association president J. Randolph Gregson announced that Williamsburg will be the permanent American site for the Nabisco Wightman Cup. On Aug. 24, he announced that Chris Evert-Lloyd will captain the 1985 U.S. Wightman Cup team. Thus, with the USTA's vote of confidence and the presence of the world's number one woman tennis player (at press time), this year's matches are likely to be a sell-out success.

"Chris Evert-Lloyd — you have to be really pleased that she's coming," said William and Mary's new president, Paul Verkuil, who was familiar with the 62-year-old event. "Last fall, when we were in London (on sabbatical), we watched (the Wightman Cup) on BBC. . . . Royal Albert Hall is quite a setting."

As in 1983, when the Nabisco Wightman Cup first came to Williamsburg, William and Mary Hall, home of jump shots and fast breaks, will be transformed into an elegant arena suited to passing shots and service breaks. The Hall will be ready for tennis on Oct. 31, Nov. 1 and 2 and for the game's leading lady.

Chris Evert-Lloyd has won more Wightman Cup singles matches than any player in the event's history. She will make her 12th Wightman Cup appearance with a string of 24 singles wins without a loss. This will also mark the first time Chris has played championship-level tennis in the state of Virginia.

"Everybody's excited. And, everybody's worried about whether they're going to get tickets. We do have more sponsors than we did last time, so tickets will be at a premium," said Millie West, Nabisco Wightman Cup tournament chairman and W&M women's athletic director. "We couldn't have asked for a better U.S. team."

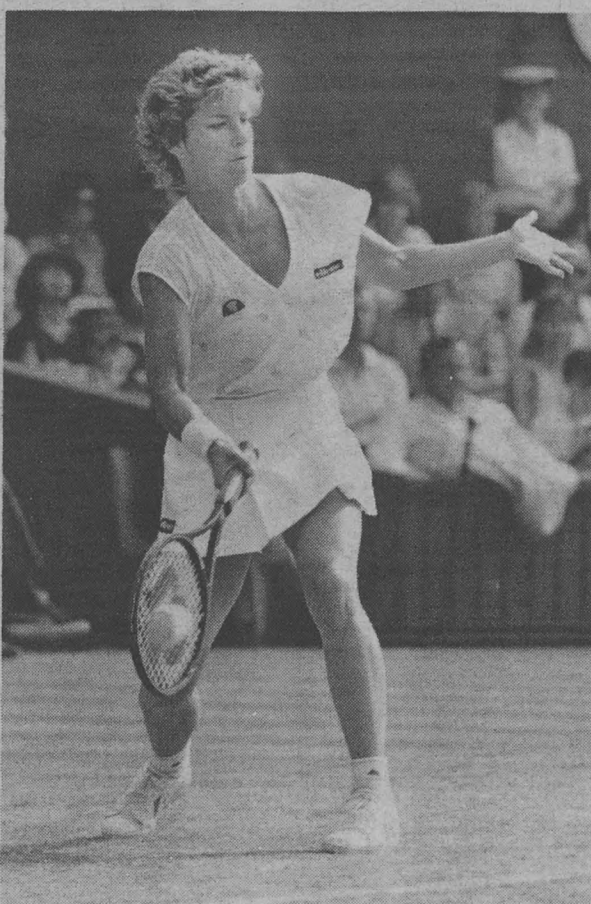

Joining Evert-Lloyd are Pam Shriver, Kathy Rinaldi, Betsy Nagelsen and Anne White. Evert-Lloyd is returning from the 1984 team that defeated Great Britain 5-2. Rinaldi and Shriver are returning to Williamsburg, having played on the '83 squad that beat the English, 6-1.

Chris and Pam will be the number one doubles team for the Americans. Shriver is currently the world's number one doubles player, with partner Martina Navratilova, who captained the '83 U.S. Wightman Cup team. Winner of the 1985 Australian Indoor at Sydney, as well as tournaments in Melbourne, Australia, and Birmingham, England, Shriver will be making her sixth Nabisco Wightman Cup appearance.

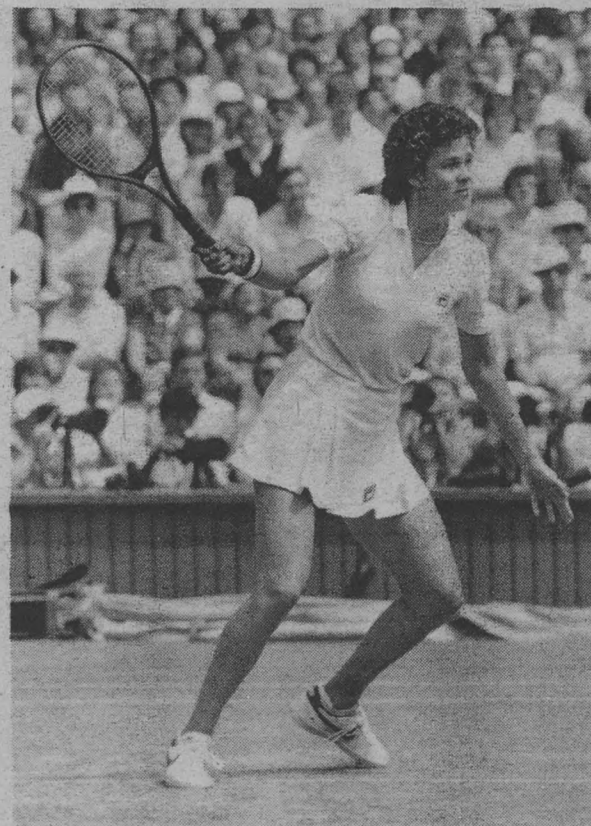

Rinaldi, who defeated Virginia Wade in her only previous Nabisco Wightman Cup appearance in '83, captured the 1985 Women's Tennis Association event in Mahwah, N.J. She was also semi-finalist at Wimbledon and the German Open.

Betsy Nagelsen and Anne White will team as America's number two doubles tandem. It is Nagelsen's second appearance in Wightman Cup doubles and White's first selection to the team. This year, the pair reached the Bridgestone World Doubles Championship finals as well as the Swiss Open semi-finals. White received a measure of notoriety for the body-suit she wore at Wimbledon.

Virginia Wade will captain the British team, the other members of which had yet to be determined at press time.

Chris Evert-Lloyd (above) will captain the 1985 U.S. Wightman Cup team, which will also include Pam Shriver (below), when it meets the British team in William and Mary Hall Oct. 31-Nov. 2. The U.S. Tennis Association has announced that Williamsburg will be the permanent American site of the Wightman Cup. Evert-Lloyd, the world's No. 1 ranked woman player, has won more Wightman Cup singles matches than any other player in the event's history. She will make her 12th appearance with a string of 24 single wins without a loss.

Again in 1985, the Nabisco Wightman Cup is being presented by the Badische Corporation of Williamsburg.

The United States team is again sponsored by the First American Bank of Virginia. And, once again benefitting from the event will be the W&M women's athletic association, the Riverside Hospital of Newport News, Williamsburg Community Hospital and Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters in Norfolk.

As alumnus and Executive Director Dick Anzolut '51 put it, "We are thrilled with the 1985 Nabisco Wightman Cup United States Team. The Most Elegant Competition in Women's Tennis will be graced by what is probably the most elegant team the United States has ever fielded, both from an ability standpoint and a standpoint of the individual attraction of the players."

Game, set, get your tickets now (if you haven't already), and let the matches begin!

A Businesswoman Who Thinks Big

Edna Gregory Cataldo's Products Stop Traffic

BY BARBARA BALL

Edna Gregory Cataldo '59 is a businesswoman who thinks big. Her calling card announces "Only Superlatives"; her products have been known to stop traffic.

If you had been driving down the road behind a stationwagon full of llamas who were looking out the back window with bedroom eyes and long curly lashes, you too might have been tempted, as one motorist was, to pull off and follow the Cataldos into the gas station and inquire about their cargo.

The Cataldos, that day, were enroute to Dallas to deliver an order of Edna's whimsical sculptures.

Edna was a fine arts major. She started out, as many ceramists do, making small decorative items. She made her first large animal as an attention-getter for her work at a crafts fair. The animal got more attention than her regular stock. That was the beginning of an unusual enterprise.

The large sculptured animals, which can be seen in fine craft galleries on both coasts, are in the collections of Andrew and Virginia Lewis and the Thalhimers of Richmond, the Royal Family of Saudi Arabia and Jo Ann Nickelson, Color I, Washington, D.C.

Filmstar Goldie Hawn owns a Cataldo original as does alumna Linda Lavin '59.

When Hodding Carter's staff wanted a gift to give him when he left President Carter's administration, they gave him one of Edna's coy dragons that wear red tennis shoes.

With her animals in the Neiman Marcus winter catalogue, which has a world-wide circulation in the millions, Edna works to keep at least ten animals in stock at all times. Her collection includes a majestic ram, a two-hump camel, a moose, sheep (both black and white), a cow, and a bull. There are a giraffe, a fuzzy pig and a rideable dragon on the drawing board. While the Cataldos take advantage of deliveries to see the country, most animals are shipped by truck in special crates.

There are no molds for the faces of the animals. Edna enjoys giving each one its own individualized personality. She uses a mix of heavy California clays, which she cuts in slices and thins out with a pizza rolling pin.

As a student, Edna spent a great deal of time in the theatre. She recalls helping bolt down the seats for the opening of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall in 1957 after fire destroyed the old building. She played the nurse in the first play, "Romeo and Juliet," in which her good friend Linda Lavin played Juliet. Edna was best known to local audiences for her creation of the Widow Huzzitt in "The Common Glory," Paul Green's successful outdoor drama, which ran for many years in the Matoaka amphitheatre during the summer months.

Although super toys for children, Edna's animals are geared to the adult who would like to fulfill a childhood fantasy — "rock on a six foot camel — love a llama — squeeze a sheep — or take home a ram."

Edna is headquartered on the island of Chincoteague on Virginia's Eastern Shore.

When she's not working at home or at her kilns in an old boatworks building, you can find Edna at the Spectrum gift shop on Main Street, which she and her husband Frank own jointly with Richard Vesley and Richard Hatfield.

Of her animals Edna says, "I hate to say they are something you don't have to have. Let's face it, they're not an essential item — like a casserole dish — but they so soften life's realities."

Dear Classmates,

Thanks to each member of our class and those of earlier classes for cooperating so enthusiastically in sending "news" for the October issue. It was a real joy receiving and reading each letter, and it assured me that you love your Class of '25 and you appreciated being reminded. Please keep up the good work for our December issue. Sounds far away, but it's really not.

A nice note from Suzanne Garrett Montague tells us that she no longer resides in Hampton, Va., but in York County. She is delighted with her new home. She writes, "It is a one-floor plan with ramps leading up to the deck (good on arthritic knees), a swimming pool in the front yard from which one can overlook the Poquoson River — plenty of room for flowers and vegetables — and for my two dogs to run free." Thank you, Suzanne. It all sounds mighty inviting. Don't be surprised if you should see the Class of '25 descending upon your doorstep!

A letter from Frances Sanders Ennis states how much she enjoyed reading about "Olde Guard Day" and how glad she was to read about you, Jeanette Beazley, and how much you have accomplished. She seemed to be in very good spirits — mentioned planning to get a perm — and while she has not attended any parties since December she did "enjoy each minute of that party." Now that sounds like "our Frances!" In January she had a setback, but with her faith and courage pulled through and has continued to improve. Friends continue to invite her and John to parties, which she greatly appreciates, but finds it necessary to decline. She misses playing bridge but it does not make her unhappy, in fact she says, "I realize I can never be well again, but I have so much for which to be thankful." Isn't that the greatest spirit!

It was my good fortune, with a mutual friend Helen Peterson to have a short visit with Frances and John in the spring, and we so enjoyed seeing them. It was amazing how well Frances looked. She welcomed us with that charming twinkle in her eyes and gracious hospitality. We reminisced about our days at William and Mary, and as we did I could see the sparkle grow even brighter — her face wreathed in smiles — and for moments we were reliving our days of yore.

Among news received is picture of Ed Islin and "Pap" Fuller, which appeared in the Daily Press-Times Herald on May 28, 1985. They were evidently recalling old times as they thumbed through what appears to be a scrapbook.

From Dorothy Arnold Parks came a brief note stating — "Well and happy — Six grandchildren — one graduated at Vanderbilt, one at Simmons, one at Tulane, one at the Naval Academy and one at prep school." You have great cause for pride, Dorothy, and we, in turn, are very proud of you and your family.

Marjorie Bruelle Shook, of Kilmarnock, wrote a most interesting piece of news in which she felt William Stopan '27 and our Bill Gravely would be especially interested. However, I am confident we are all glad to hear of the later years of Dr. and Mrs. Gelsinger. She writes — "Recently Carl Andrews '27 referred to Professor Gelsinger. I substituted Greek for Math for two years and got to know the Gelsingers well. Kept in touch for many years after they moved to Buffalo, N.Y. Professor Gelsinger was on the faculty of the University of Buffalo. Also he was a priest of the Orthodox Greek Catholic Church. He wrote me at the time of Mrs. Gelsinger's death, enclosing what he said was

Innovations Include New EMBA Program for Rising Executives

gram sponsored jointly by William and Mary and Christopher Newport College.

The Virginia Legislature has voiced its support of these new programs by approving funding for new teaching and administrative positions, which, over the next three years, will bring the business school faculty to 45. General and supplemental increases in faculty salaries have helped in the recruitment of quality faculty by bringing the business school to the median level of its peer group.

Another new development is the promising consolidation of time and resources within the university: already, one undergraduate student is pursuing a joint J.D.-M.B.A. degree, with the approval of the business school and the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

"We have also contemplated a joint program in terms of combining faculty and student bodies in taxation on the graduate level," notes Jamison, adding that both professional schools now have liaison committees.

"Similarly, we have formed liaison committees between the business school and the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, to explore what we can do with them. I would hope that in due course that could be expanded to the School of Education and, I hope, some other areas of the university, both in arts and sciences."

Chancellor's Hall is now rapidly running out of classroom space because of the needs for new program facilities and faculty office space. Also, the current construction of a Professional Resource Center is taking up what used to be the M.B.A. lounge (now in larger quarters), two small classrooms and the vending machine area. The Class of 1938 is funding this much-needed specialized business library as its 50-year gift to the College.

In the midst of all this activity, Dean Jamison has also reorganized the school, changing the job titles of two important administrators: the associate dean of undergraduate studies (now the associate dean for administration and external affairs) and the associate dean of graduate studies (now the associate dean of academic affairs). The reorganization's purpose is to put a more direct thrust behind curriculum development, faculty development and research, and to administer the school in a more professional and businesslike way.

"In a very short period of time — physically, in terms of new faculty coming, in terms of degrees and non-degree programs — we've become a very different school than we have been in the past," Jamison emphasizes.

"That kind of change in an academic setting is something difficult to deal with. I think the faculty and students have done a superlative job in coping with some present and prospective changes."

GRADUATE NAMED BEST EXECUTIVE

Nicholas St. George '60, '65 J.D., president and chief executive officer of Oakwood Homes Corporation of Greensboro, N.C., has been named the best chief executive officer in the manufactured housing industry by the Wall Street Transcript, a New York financial publication. His company makes and retails manufactured housing in nine southeastern states. The Wall Street weekly paper, in giving the award, said that Oakwood had record earnings last year, and it quoted a number of industry analysts who lauded the company's success. St. George was cited for his "pragmatic, strategic approach" and for the "clearly defined goals and objectives" he has established for the company.

called a 'Schein' in Pennsylvania, a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Gelsing. I still have a few photos of the Gelsing children — John Steward and Mary A. — now grandparents."

Thank you, Marjorie, for sharing this information about the Gelsing family with us. And don't ever tell me again you don't have any news. That was excellent.

Stuart and I thank you for your kind expressions about missing us at our 60th reunion. I assure you it was a real blow to me not to be able to attend. I now have the 65th as a gleam in my eye.

Dot and Jim Campbell wrote that they have just returned "from their annual trek to New York and New Jersey." While in New York they took side trip to Canada to visit friends. They "found all branches of both families doing well and keeping healthy and busy." While in New Jersey they saw their newest great-grandchild — a little boy born in March. They now boast of six great-grandchildren. Congratulations to you both. Looks like we shall have Campbells for many years to matriculate at William and Mary.

They also attended their first automobile races. They thoroughly enjoyed them and added — "so guess there's still some life left in the old bodies yet." They continued — "Our next venture will be to Shreveport in September for the wedding of Baynam's oldest boy. After that on to Florida for the winter." We do not like the sound of that because it means you will not be in Williamsburg for Homecoming. We shall miss you. Dot closed, "I'm watching three humming birds argue over who's to get to the feeder first — and they are fascinating." What a lovely way to pass time.

Vernon Nunn writes that most of their activities this summer have been quiet ones. He has been busy trying "to keep his yard in shape." And that, Vernon, has been a real job for us here also — with all this drought — but how grateful we are for God's heavy rains lately, which raised our well water levels and saved vegetation. We have really suffered here. He further states that he treks over to the Alumni Office, thus keeping in touch with the "goings-on" and finds things are about the same and that plans are being laid for the future. He also tells us that Elizabeth is quite a sufferer but refuses to give up and stays busy all the time. At the time of his writing she was stuffing envelopes at home for the Chamber of Commerce. Keep that good spirit up, Elizabeth, you are a "jewel" and a marvelous example of will power. So glad you and Vernon do slip out once or twice a week for meals. Change is good for all of us, especially those of us who spend so much time in the kitchen.

Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse and her sister, Evelyn Crawford Cheney '28, attended our 60th reunion as well as Olde Guard Day and so enjoyed it that she now is looking forward to the 65th. Good, so am I.

She tells us that Hingham is celebrating it's 350th anniversary this year and that numerous affairs and much entertainment are taking place this summer, and needless to say they are very busy. By the way, Mathilda, please write me all about it for our December issue. Deadline to me is October 10.

Bill Gravely writes that he and Elisabeth were in Virginia Beach in June to attend the high school graduation of their eldest granddaughter, Terri, who begins her college career at Virginia Tech in the fall. On their way home they had breakfast at the Williamsburg Lodge and later paid a call on Elizabeth and Vernon. This was their "first visit to the Nunn's attractive Williamsburg home" so I am confident all four spent a delightful time together. Bill continues, "On August 18 we shall be in Virginia Beach again for the christening of our youngest granddaughter, Ann Elisabeth, who is our sixth grandchild and third granddaughter." How wonderful that you could return to witness and share these happy moments. Bill and Elisabeth are really our "Class of 25 World Travelers": "On August 24," he continues, "we fly to Mexico for a week's visit in Guadalajara, later traveling by bus to Mexico City — expecting to reach home by September 5."

Bill, thank you for telling us about A. Stanley King '26, whom many of us knew. He writes, "I was saddened to learn, early this month, of the death of A. Stanley King on June 29. Stanley, a member of the Class of '26, and I were two of three roommates who occupied the right front, second-story room of the Kappa Alpha House in the spring of 1925. The other roommate was Robert Tansill Maclin, a member of the Class of '25 and one of my two or three closest friends in college. He died many years ago in 1929 at the early age of 26. The Kappa Alpha House was then known as 'The Bright House' and continued to be so known until it was remodeled preparatory to becoming the present William and Mary Alumni House. How well I remember the appearance of our room with its single bed, which was Tansill's, and the 'double decker' bed, which was Stanley's and mine, Stanley being the occupant of the upper bed. How well I remember, too, a youthful prank which Stanley and I played on our unsuspecting roommate. Returning late one night after Stanley and I had gone to bed, Tansill proceeded to undress quietly, but, on climbing into bed, was amazed to discover that several planks had been placed between his mattress and bottom sheet. I sha'n't report on the fury of his reaction when he suddenly realized what had happened, but will leave it to your imagination. Suffice it to say, I have many pleasant memories of my association with Stanley and with Tansill, also of course, brief though his life was.

"I may mention here, in passing, that the recently published Hark Upon the Gale contains among its many photographs a group picture of our K.A. chapter, Alpha Seta, as it was constituted at that time. Tansill, Stanley, and I are among the group seated on the steps leading to the large front porch of 'The Bright House.' Both the porch and the steps leading to it were of course long ago removed when the house was being altered to serve its present purpose. Of the 22 active members in our chapter during the spring term of 1925, only three are still around, now that Stanley has left us.

"Elisabeth and I are looking forward to Homecoming in November and do hope to see you and Stuart at that time."

Carl Andrews, reporter for the Class of '27, forwarded a news item for which I thank you very much, Carl. It concerned Gladys Calkins Cook who received her A.B. as a member of our class, continued her education at William and Mary receiving her M.A. She later earned her Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania. On May 11, 1985, she received an Honorary D.H.L. at Bucknell University where she was a professor of French from 1930 until 1973. She also studied at the Sorbonne. Our heartiest congratulations to you, Gladys. You not only have been honored but have in turn brought honor to the class of '25.

As reported to our classmates, the Alumni Office requested some time ago that the Class of '25 reporter add all news from classes prior to '25. Please do not let this in any way prevent you from sending in our class news. It would look pretty bad for your reporter to write more news for other classes than our own. I hope that you keep news coming. Thanks.

500 ATTEND RECEPTION AT ALUMNI HOUSE

Over 500 members of the Class of 1986 attended the senior class reception at the Alumni House, August 30. The senior class and the Alumni-Student Liaison Committee hosted the afternoon of good food, fellowship and music.

Hampton, Va., who is former bishop of Alaska and was vice president of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The Class of '25 congratulates you, Bishop Bentley, upon this honor which you so richly deserve.

Your reporter has received a request from Della Breeding Gratton. She would like to locate Jimmy Cox of Scott County, who was in her freshman class in 1920-21. She writes, "I have lived in California since 1945. I have one son living in Virginia — Gwynn's Island — just off Chesapeake Bay. I have forgotten the names of all those in my class except Jimmy Cox. He and I were in Dr. Morton's history class."

Della, James S. Cox from Gate City, Va., attended the College in 1920-21, and I regret to report that he is deceased. The Alumni Office does not have a date of death, but apparently it was a long time ago, and they have no other information concerning him.

Among those attending Olde Guard Day this spring were David D. Sizer '09, age 99, of Pineville, N.C., and his wife, Esther. Upon his return home he sent the following message: "It was a memorable experience to attend Olde Guard Day at William and Mary College last week. I expect to be there again next year.

"My wife, Esther, and I both want to thank you for the recognition and attention extended us — especially all the volunteer students who so graciously and lovingly took care of our every need."

David Sizer is a challenge indeed to us. Of him has been written, "An old man, ninety-four years old came, in 1979, in a wheelchair to visit in Tulsa, Okla. He holds meetings in the jail every week and has won over a hundred souls. He wanted a projector and Miracle Films. He is going to travel across America to show and tell about Jesus. He is not a preacher, but he has God's idea about life."

Think of it — David Sizer — 99 years of age attended "Olde Guard Day" in his wheelchair and plans to be back in 1986!

Well, as for Stuart and Helen: Stuart has been under the care of the dentist since February and in the middle of the time was taken ill and spent about a month in the hospital. He is home recuperating now — missing all the pretty nurses. He is gaining strength daily and I hope will soon be back to normal health.

Helen is serving as vice president to the Amelia County Garden Club, which means she is in the throes of preparing the year book at this time. She enjoys playing bridge and she serves as secretary to her church circle. She also assists in teaching the "Hope Ladies Bible Class" of her church in Amelia. Stuart and Helen attended a mini-family reunion in the late summer.

Recently Helen was invited to join the Southside Alumni Chapter of William and Mary, which has been organized by William and Betty Armbruster, both graduates of William and Mary. In late August, the students entering their freshman class from our area, as well as those who are presently students, were entertained by the chapter.

As a last word, if you haven't made plans to attend Homecoming and Olde Guard Day get busy and enter the dates on your calendar and make reservations.

Drive safely.

See you at the Alumni House on Friday, November 15.

Dear Classmates:

Only a couple of weeks after you read this, our alma mater will be inaugurating its 25th president, Paul R. Verkuil '61, and I hope to be there October 20 for the memorable event.

This reminds me that I have known and had a personal relationship with six of Paul's predecessors: J.A.C. Chandler, under whom we attended the College, John Stewart Bryan, John Pomfret, Alvin Duke Chandler, Davis Y. "Pat" Paschall and Thomas A. Graves Jr.

I began feeling slightly older when I realized that Paul Verkuil was a student during at least three of my eight years on the Board of Visitors, and he graduated during my first term. It was my pleasure to help elect Pat Paschall as president and Admiral Chandler as chancellor. I recall, too, some behind-scenes maneuvering that helped place John Pomfret in office.

But, lest we feel too smug, remember that there are quite a few alumni who remember Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, who preceded the first Chandler. So, we of '27 can take pride in the fact that we were a part of William and Mary's 20th-century renaissance. Paul will become the eighth president of our lifetime. What a wonderful heritage to help preserve!

I am sure that all will join me in congratulations to Paul, while wishing him a long and fruitful administration. It is a great honor for any alumnus to be elected president and he will be third in our lifetime!

As a newspaper editor, I discovered long ago that there are always some who hang on your every word and then let you know where you were in error. Such a one to humble me this time is old friend Bill Hogan, our lover of archaeology, especially Roman digs in England.

In the last Gazette I wrote that Dr. Chandler and J. Leslie Hall handed us our degrees in front of Wren. Bill passes me on math, but flunks me on geography, reminding me that it was Dean K. J. Hoke who joined Prexy Chandler in handing out degrees in the new (old) Phi Beta Kappa Hall. We were first to graduate there, he says, but wonders where classes before us were graduated. My recollection (probably bad, Bill) is that two classes were capped in the new (old) Blow gym, before that maybe in one of the Williamsburg churches.

As proof of his memory, Bill says, "I recall as if it was yesterday what Dr. C. said when he handed me my degree — I was so flustered I almost forgot to turn my tassel!"

I yield, Bill. My excuse is two-fold: Dr. Hall signed our degrees as chairman of the faculty, mine despite the fact that I never could work out a schedule to include his famed Anglo-Saxon. Second, I have attended numerous commencements in College Yard since "our day." Now they are held in vast William and Mary Hall and classes are so big they make it look crowded.

By way of getting me off the hook, Bill relates a funny faux pas that occurred at Olde Guard Day in April: "Page Drinker Hogan mentioned that Ellen Ticer was wearing a green dress, so I rushed up to the green-dressed one and said: 'Hi, Ellen Ticer!' The green-dressed one turned and looked surprised. She was not Ellen Ticer."

Well, better to be greeted than ignored, Bill. Cheers!

Here's something extraordinary that I must share with you: On May 9, three days before Mother's Day, John "Buck" Marshall Jr. had published in the Newport News Daily Press a 6x12-inch salute entitled: "Kitty Marshall — What a Lady!" I wish it possible to reprint the whole tribute but suffice it to say it was the most unusual compliment to any mother I've ever seen.

On behalf of his sister, Kay, and the five grandchildren, Buck Marshall said "Happy Mother's Day" to our Kitty in words that must have brought tears to many eyes.

All of us remember Kitty Myrick as a lovely, friendly, witty and genuine person of college days, who was courted and won by John Marshall long before they graduated. John died of a heart attack in 1963, but Kitty has carried on her life in most exemplary fashion. I've visited her when back in my old home town and can report that she's still the same Kitty loved by the whole campus in 1923-27.

Kitty wrote this class letter for several years in the midst of countless other civic and church-related activities, so I have good reason to pass along this tribute from her loving family.

At last report (and I hear frequently) Cotton Rawls continues to improve slowly at his home in Darien, Conn. Cotton joined the rest of us as an octogenarian on June 7. The next day, his and Jean's granddaughter, Jennifer Gledhill "Jinsey" Dauk, became Mrs. Stephen H. Kiesling. Judging by the newspaper photograph Cotton sent me, Jinsey is a beautiful copy of her grandmother. After the ceremony at Noroton Presbyterian Church, the reception was held in Cotton's front yard on Contentment Island, an event Cotton calls "a very festive occasion." It must have given him a big boost in morale.

Also brightening my day was a most welcome letter from Margaret Holman McCoy, who wrote, "Each time I receive the Alumni Gazette I promise myself to write you and tell you how much I enjoy your letter, giving news of the Class of '27. It is with a feeling of genuine pride that I read of the success, happiness and fulfilled lives of so many who shared those four years together.

"I want to thank you for the time, energy and skilled literary ability which you have so graciously contributed to our class and the College. For this I am deeply grateful."

Somewhat blushing, I accept those kind words, Margaret. It was good to see you at Olde Guard Day.

Margaret reports interests in family, friends, church and community keep her busy although she doesn't travel much now, the last big trip being to Jackson Hole, Wyo. Her husband, Henry, died in 1975, and that brought about changes. She concludes eloquently, "As the years go by I am more and more grateful to the College for the contribution it made to my life. The faculty and my friends were a vital part of those important years. Fifty-eight years is a long time but the memories are still vivid and it is a happy privilege to meet College friends and recall the days that are 'beyond recall.'"

Curtis Jenkins, who forgot to give me his address since moving from Leisure World in Wheaton, Md., writes that he is "still living up in the everlasting and inspiring mountains of North Carolina — playing bridge, reading, walking and doing some volunteer work for the library — an occasional trip to the D.C. area and Seattle, Wash., to visit children and grandchildren. To watch them grow is pleasant."

Marguerite "Mac" McDaniel Dawson writes briefly from Norfolk and promises a "surprise" some day, but sends no news. Come on, Mac, you can do better!

One of my great joys is hearing frequently and at length from Frank Hopkins, one of our very few non-octogenarians, who with wife, Louise, recently enjoyed a delightful Atlantic coastal cruise and puts in a plug for the cruise line: "a comfortable, pleasant, inexpensive way to do your sightseeing by water without risking sea sickness." (This from an old Gloucester waterman!)

Frank tells us that Texas A&M University has established "The Sewell H. Hopkins Memorial Scholarship Fund" in memory of his brother, who headed the biology department of A&M for years until retirement and eventual death in Gloucester last year. An annual award will be made to the student who submits the best master's thesis in zoology. Contributions can be made to the fund through the Development Foundation of A&M, P.O. Box 17, College Station, TX 77844.

'70 ALUMNA PUBLISHES COMPUTER BOOK

Martha Hollis '70, associate professor in the University of Central Florida's Department of Management, is the author of a new book, High Tech Hits Home: A Woman's Guide To Household Computing, recently published by CBS Computer Books. The book discusses home applications of computers that range from food and fitness to personal robots and environmental control. Dr. Hollis is an associate professor of decision and information sciences.

I repeat, Sewell was one of the most brilliant members of our class and deserves the honor.

Frank mentions disappointment over Olde Guard Day, at least the volume of the jazz band, which inhibited conversation during luncheon when most of us wanted to talk. He liked the 1984 luncheon on the lawn better, but I got a sunburn. Oh, well. . . .

Last, but by no means least, Leonard Born and wife, Cecile, accomplished that trip to Holland, Ireland, Scotland and Iceland, noting a highlight visit to the "Paleis Het Loo," about which I wrote in the last letter.

The folder on Het Loo is most interesting — you might like to include William II's "hunting lodge of 300 plus rooms on your next voyage abroad. Len sends a couple of snapshots showing himself and Cecile among the tulips at St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, Ireland, and aboard ship en route to prehistoric digs on the Shetland Islands.

Len adds that "the buildings at Het Loo 'vaguely' look like our Wren building to a non-architect, but can't follow the original plans very well after so many fires — if Het Loo plans were used (for the W&M building) what did Christopher Wren have to do?" He wonders, too, why, if our Wren Building was adapted from Het Loo plans, there has not been more publicity to that effect over the years.

By the time you read this, they'll be off to Australia and New Zealand for a month. How about Williamsburg sometime, Len?

That's all for this time, classmates. Remember I still need to hear from you to keep this letter going!

Dear Classmates,

I am glad to be in touch with you again and hope you all are having a great year. We hope many of you will plan to return for the Homecoming game with Richmond on November 16. You will be glad you did, and you will see many of your classmates at that time.

A letter from H. Caleb Cushing: "I thought I had retired from the full-time music ministry of the Methodist Church in 1973 but have been almost as busy as before. We are in the seventh year of 'interiming' at a small U.M. church and have a Civic L.O.A. Chorus that gives about 14 concerts a year. Regards to all — especially OWJ members."

From Page Vaughan Wright: "Stay busy with volunteer work with the church and pleasuring myself. Had a nice trip last fall to Spain, Morocco and Portugal."

From Helen Osmond Hunter: "Living in California the distance is too far to get to reunion — but I do like to keep up with the ones I do remember. I do enjoy the paper very much. Wish I could see W&M again."

The recent hostage crisis in Beirut was followed closely by all of us, but no one more so than our classmate Billy Bickers, who considers Lebanon a second home. The Richmond paper carried several articles on Dr. Bickers' assessment of Nabih Berri, the Amal militia leader who played a key role in negotiating the release of the 39 Americans.

Please let us hear from you.

Irma Adams Gillespie writes that she and her husband, Bob, and their son, Bill, and family planned during the past summer to visit parts of the U.S. that they had not visited previously.

Elizabeth Erwin Higbee and Charles expected to spend some time in Ocean City, N.J. in October, to visit New Orleans in November and, while there, to take the Mississippi River Cruise.

Milton Salasky points out that the commencement of a professorship for Judaic Studies at the College of William and Mary in the fall of 1985 is a milestone in the College's history and, among its priorities, the first in the state of Virginia.

Norvelle Goodwin Tate and husband enjoyed a cruise through the Panama Canal and other places in January 1985 while their hometown Radford, Va., was experiencing the coldest weather ever recorded.

Elizabeth Moore Peters writes that her husband, Harry, died March 22, 1985. We express our sympathy to her.

I received word from Liz Griffin Conkling, too late for the June issue of the Gazette, that Everett Linden Butler died April 25, 1985. We extend our sympathy to his daughters.

Also, Liz, while on her way to the Olde Guard Day on April 12, had a serious fall and returned home instead of getting to Williamsburg. She has recovered and hopes to see us at Homecoming.

Thanks for the class news and plan to be at Homecoming. I hope to see you there.

Sally Mason Clark was recently honored for her contributions to the community by the Piedmont Arts Association of Martinsville, Va., and the United Bank of Virginia. The tribute, for her lifelong mission of beautification of the community, was initiated at a special reception in May, followed by a month-long floral arrangement exhibit, contributed by 16 surrounding-area garden clubs, held at the Piedmont Arts Association Gallery.

Sally came to William and Mary in 1931 after graduating in music from Averett College. In 1941, she married John W. Clark, M.D., and after the war settled back in Henry County, where she was born.

Believing that "the best in man's nature cannot survive without beauty," Sally has been supportive of garden club activities and horticulture, earning certificates in flower arranging and judging. As chairman of the community improvement committee of the Martinsville-Henry County Chamber of Commerce in 1971, Sally became the first, and only, woman to be presented the President's Award from the Chamber of Commerce.

Currently she serves on the board of directors at the Piedmont Arts Association and is a member of its Landscape Committee, the Clean Community Commission, the Averett College Association Board of Trustees, and the Friends of the President's House for the College of William and Mary. Having recently joined the Patrick Henry Rose Society, Sally anticipates being involved in developing the public rose garden on the Piedmont Arts Grounds.

Our 50th reunion was a great success. The committee in charge of arrangements and the Alumni Office are due our thanks for a well-planned event. John A. The amount raised far exceeded any other class gift in the history of the College.

It was fitting that lunch on Saturday was held in Trinkle Hall. Trinkle Hall has special meaning to many. We know of one couple who first met there. He was a waiter, and she ate at a nearby table. One noon in the fall of 1932 she was putting on her coat as she left when he said to her, "If you had not been in such a hurry I would have helped you." With that she took off her coat and placed it on a chair. He helped her with the coat and asked to take her to the ball game. She agreed and it was only after she left he realized he did not know her name. That problem was solved and come 1986 they will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. Another couple we know met there. He was the waiter, and she ate at his table. When he did not bring her the kind of ice cream she wanted she complained. He said, "I will take you down the street after dinner and buy the ice cream you like." This couple also will soon celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

The 50th reunion banquet was held in the ballroom of the Hospitality House, at which time Olde Guard Medallions were presented.

On Sunday morning Rose Mary Codell Brooks and Virginia Ann Codell White had as their guests for breakfast at the Hospitality House, Jane Whittaker Crittenden and daughter Nancy, Mason and Hazel Johnson Sizemore, Carrie Ann Jordan Simpson, Helen Goslee Weidman, and Jane Gilmer Wilhelm.

85 GRADUATE WINS GOLD MEDAL
FOR HIGHEST SCORE ON CPA EXAM

Laurie A. Bell '85 has been awarded the 1985 gold medal by the Virginia Society of Certified Public Accountants as recipient of the highest score in the four sections of this year's CPA examinations. Miss Bell, now an accountant in the Baltimore office of Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, received her award at the annual meeting of the Virginia Society of CPA's in Arlington. Over 1,800 candidates took the four parts of the examination in Virginia, submitting 7,444 papers. Miss Bell scored 89 in auditing, 92 in practice, 92 in law, and a heart-stopping 97 in theory. The examination lasts two and a half days. This has been a year of awards for Miss Bell. At graduation she won the Wayne F. Gibbs accounting prize and the Virginia Society's outstanding student award, given each year to the top undergraduate accounting students at Virginia colleges and universities.

Through the years there are many members of our class usually present for Homecoming. Most of these were here for the 50th reunion such as, David W. Agnew, Andrew A. Amatruda, Edward R. Boisseau and Eleanor Hooker Boisseau '36, Woodrow W. Bralley, Dorothy Ball Bretnall and Arthur Bretnall '34, Marianne Norris Brown and Merrell Brown '32, Yette Winslow Bryant, Peter P. Causey Jr., Max W. Doman and Lois Jenkins Doman '33, Charles B. Fuller Jr., Ernest W. Goodrich, Leonard L. Graves, Elise Barnes Hardy, Earl Hillman, Bruce M. Kent, Eleanor Martin Kent, Evangeline B. Klug, Maxfield Kremen, Anne Nenzel Lambert, Lloyd C. Langbauer, Hudson R. Lankford, James E. Mallonee Jr., Elizabeth Johnson Mathers, Harriett Council Meade, Cameron E. Ogden and Pauline Stanley Ogden, Dorothy Prince Oldfield and George Oldfield '37, Angelo J. Pappandreu, Roslyn Richardson Quirk, Edward H. Scott, Joseph C. Shaffer Jr., Margaret Parmelee Sheridan, Ralph W. Stanbaugh, Kathryn Chiswell Sweeney, Richard A. Velz, Virginia Mister Walker, and Ann Northington Westlow.

The members of Mortar Board set a record: of the 12 members 10 were present for the 50th reunion: Herbert Council Mead, Pauline Stanley Ogden, Jane Whittaker Crittenden, Juliette Croxton Clothier, Jane Gilmer Wilhelm, Betty Johnson Mathers, Kathryn Chiswell Sweeney, Marguerite Stribling Vermillion, Ruth Cobbett Biemiller, Yette Winslow Bryant. If the other two members were present we could not find their names on the registration list.

Dr. Joseph P. Pollard, Mason's roommate for three years was present for the 50th reunion on Friday. We are sorry he could not be with us for the other days.

A letter was received from A. Addison "Billy" Roberts. Billy plans to return to the campus more often now that he is a member of the Olde Guard.

Ruth Cobbett Biemiller sent a nice letter. She enjoyed the 50th reunion. Did you see her history of our class? If you did not you will want to. Thank you, Ruth for the history and the letter. As usual Ruth is busy with many interesting things.

A most interesting letter arrived from J. Stanley "Jack" Smith. Jack had very kind words for the work of the reunion committee and the Alumni Office. Jack is a retired high school math teacher. He has some health problems, but that doesn't keep him from doing volunteer hospital work. Jack would like to hear from his classmates. When he got to Williamsburg he got lost. Don't wait so long to return to W&M from now on.

"50 YEARS, 7 CHILDREN LATER, HE'S STILL W. and M. FAN" so says a headline in the Richmond Times Dispatch of May 13, 1985. You are correct if you guessed Leonard L. Graves Sr. His son and six daughters all went to W&M. Lennie is a Williamsburg native, and for 46 years, until his retirement, he owned a men's shop on Duke of Gloucester Street and was referred to as the "Squire of Merchants Square." So the 50th reunion was an important time in his life.

Several notes from our class members were passed on to us by the Alumni Office, one from Margaret Hedgecock Ogburn promised to be at the reunion. She was there as petite and pretty as ever. Another from Robert G. Ranson said he and Ruby enjoyed the reunion and now they are off to Scotland for a visit. Evangeline B. Klug says the 50th was absolutely tops. She thinks we should have another one next year and just quietly visit each other. See you at Homecoming. Pauline Stanley Ogden and Cam have just returned from a month in Florida. Pauline put in a plug for husband, Cam, who is our class agent for the W&M Fund. If you haven't already done so please send a contribution. Edward H. "Ned" Scott and wife, Kitty, have been traveling from New York to Florida. Glad they had time for the 50th reunion. As you may remember, "Ned" was an ace pitcher on our baseball team. Virginia Mister Walker says, "A glorious memorable 50th. The glow lives on!"

In addition to those already mentioned as attending the 50th reunion the following were also present: Elizabeth Mitchell Berry, Pauline Cornett Brown, Ruth Butts Bruno, Hampton A. Burke, Edmund M. Clarke, Cecelia Thomas Clow, Mary Lucy Cobb, Margaret Rutherford Cole, Janette Tharp Davis, Hardy D. Dudley, Barbara Acker Duffy, Elizabeth Weston Dulaney, Regina Bowles Fisher, Helen Haynes Fries, Claudine Moss Gay-Bryant, Leiper Rennie Gerlach, Mary Edwards Harris, Elizabeth Coleman Johnston, Margaret Christie Edgar Knight, Ralph E. Ladd, Maxine Kanter Meltzer, Bernard G. Meyer, Adelaide Mason Miller, Dorothy Ela Mustin, Gordon S. Mustin, William E. Newby, Margaret Snead Nuckolls, Helen Donahoe Owen, Sumner Paisner, Mary Whitley Peters, L. Harrell Pierce, George C. Pitts, Nathan Plaks, Hebe Ruggieri Redden, Wilson Butler Riggan, Earl R. Robertson, Virginia Bryant Roper, Virginia Inez Powell Stankus, Chester E. Starkey, Virginia Clementson Stewart, Talmage T. Talley, Michael C. Tavenner, Helen Addis Taylor, Joseph W. Taylor, Jessie L. Thompson, Murray M. Trinkle, T. Robert Vermillion, Muriel Wyman Weismann, Curtis Cocke Whitehead, Virginia McLeod Wilkins, Doris Robinson Young.

When you are traveling through Southside Virginia and come upon the town of Halifax turn down Maple Avenue. Two blocks down on the left you will see a colonial home with a sign on the lamp post that reads "COLONIAL ECHO." Come on in, Mason and Hazel will welcome you.

Another school year has started, and I wonder if we have children (I'm being kind) or grandchildren at our good old school. This really is important news so please enlighten me.

Heath Childress writes that he returned to William and Mary in '78. Also heard from Laura Calhoun Lindblad. She and her husband retired to Florida and are spending their "golden years" in North Miami. She says their health problems continue to plague them, but what can you expect after you reach the age of 70. I loved her last paragraph: "I think often of William and Mary and wish I could be back to those 'good old days.'" You can, Laura, for at least a few days in 1987 at our 50th reunion. Put it on your calendar.

I know that an obituary was written for Elmo Benedetto in the last Gazette but I received such a beautiful letter and tribute to him from Joe Marino that I'd like to share it with you. I'm so sorry it came too late for my last column. "If I may, I would like to bring to the attention of our classmates the passing of Elmo Benedetto, my roommate and good friend for these many years. I was stunned and saddened by the news from Carmeline, that Ben had passed away April 12 from a series of strokes.

"Benny was one of the outstanding men of our class. He was a member of ODK, chairman of 3-3-3 Committee, varsity football, captain varsity baseball, 13 Club-7 Society.

"Ben was well liked and had many friends on campus and had a smile for all. He was 'alive, vibrant and always on the go.' In later life he was still the same. Most important Ben did so much for young people — his life was devoted to them.

LYNCHBURG CHAPTER WELCOMES FRESHMEN

The "Chalet de Lora" at Smith Mt. Lake was the setting for the chapter's welcome freshmen reception on August 15. Mike Fabrizio, second from right, member of the Alumni-Student Liaison Committee and a Lynchburg native, welcomed the freshmen contingent.

Joe and I are going on a Mark Twain Journey from St. Louis to St. Paul aboard the steamboat Delta Queen. We'll let you know if we paint any fences, but we do want to avoid any travel by raft.

This is your last bit of news before we have our BIG 40th. I do hope that we are going to see a good number of you in Williamsburg in November. I can assure you that we will have a lot of fun. We are planning it that way. IF YOU HAVEN'T DONE SO, MAKE THOSE RESERVATIONS NOW!

Notes of interest from several classmates: Virginia Craddock Oberlin says: "We have just returned from a four week trip to Yugoslavia. We enjoyed our stay in Opatya, Lake Bled and Dubrovnik and found it fascinating and beautiful country."

Stanley Herbert Bernstein writes that he is a cardiologist in Hollywood, Fla. His daughter Carol is a psychiatrist in New York. Daughter Janet is an artist at the Virginia Art Institute at Sweet Briar, Va., and son Michael is a professor of economics and history at Princeton University. What a family!

Lee Ann Merrifield says she will be at Homecoming complete with pictures of her four granddaughters.

Fitzhugh-Lee Messler writes from Daytona that he expected to visit Williamsburg in June. (Hope that it worked out for you, Fitzhugh.)

Ruth Brook Roth reports that this year has been one of travel. She went to England with her husband. From there they went to Canberra, Australia, to see their new granddaughter. She is also working on a paper about the Rossetti family.

Have had several communiques from Dinny Lee McAlinden. She is really promoting Homecoming. She reported that Hean Huber Nascimbene, who lives at Lake Valhalla, N.J., was organizing a reunion of some of her high school chums, which took place the end of June. Dinny planned to attend. In her latest letter, she reported that Sunny Manwell Murry Conner and Bob were definitely planning to attend Homecoming. Dinny says that Princeton plays W&M the Saturday before Homecoming. She plans to attend the game and the festivities the N.Y., Philadelphia and North Jersey Alumni chapters are planning.

Jean Schoenwolf Preston and Page had a grand trip to the British Isles in June. Here are some of the highlights: They spent five weeks traveling around Scotland. Page played some of his "dreamed of" golf courses for a week. They spent time on the famous Salmon River. They sailed with friends through Loch Ness. (Did not see Nessie.) Went through the Caldonia Canal. The Scots were friendly and warm, but the weather was a bit wet and on the cool side.

Again, from Jean. She visited Audrey Hudgins Thompson in May to attend the wedding of their son (Jean's godson).

The Tillars, Ruthie and Cato, visited their daughter Elizabeth, in Rochester, N.Y., in July. Elizabeth teaches English literature in the university there.

My trip to Europe was wonderful, hectic, exciting, and totally exhausting. Never before have I done so much going and seeing in 21 days. I won't do it again, but I loved every minute of it. In 1987, I plan to return to the Continent especially to see more of the things I missed on the first trip. I especially want to return to Paris.

Jean Preston, Ruth Weimer Tillar and I did go to Williamsburg in May. Plans were made "In February 1983, Ben was inducted into the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame. As Ben told the Sunday Post, 'I will be the fourth member of the 1937 class to be thusly honored. I am very pleased about the honor.'

"Ben was my roommate for our last three years at W&M (Tyler Hall). Over these past many years we had kept close contact with each other in regard to our profession, careers and the growth of our families. Many, many times we recalled fond memories of our years at W&M.

"I will greatly miss my 'old' roommate and very good friend."

Thanks, Joe, for a beautiful tribute to a wonderful guy.

Greetings and apologies for no class letter in an earlier issue. My business travels caught up with me about deadline time. While I was in Florida, I spent some time with Betty Robert Osborne who's having a summer of family activity. Her daughter and family will be visiting from their present home base, Moscow. Betty's other daughter, her husband and two children live in Stuart, so it would be a joyful time for all of them.

Earlier I was in Arizona and had lunch with Pat Druckemiller. For two people who are supposedly in a state of retirement or semi-retirement, those two show no evidence of it.

The same goes for most of our "crowd" as far as I can determine. What is it with this Class of '39?

Trudy Crosby Williams writes that she and husband, Jeff, enjoyed a trip to Greece early last fall. En route, via air to London, they visited William and Mary friends in Hove, England. Before arrival in Greece, they traveled through Belgium, Holland and Copenhagen via car, train and hydrofoil, visiting more friends, but missed others back home, namely Reenie Stuart Dillon and Bill, who were in Phoenix earlier this year.

A beautiful picture postcard from Korea, where Peggy (Prickett) and Miley Miller spent several weeks in May and June, tells us that they had a wonderful time visiting son Dick and his wife, Joanie. Dick, who's stationed there, was able to spend part of the Millers' traveling time with them while Joanie stayed home to tend to her teaching duties. Panmunjom, Peggy reports, is stark and eerie. They also visited the largest shipyard in the world (Poseogjeong, Gyeongju), which also has ancient burial mounds. This may be the only break Peggy has taken from her dedicated efforts on behalf of our 50th reunion gift to our College. Keen interest in the project, a first at the College of William and Mary, is growing.

No recent news from Dot Hosford Smith but I suspect that she and Herb are now settled in a retirement community within shouting distance of their former residence in Claremont, Calif. Within a week of putting their home on the market early this year it was sold — no surprise to me as it has a great deal of charm and ideal guest quarters: a small cottage, so complete and well stocked with good books that I wonder any guest would leave. A plane reservation was the only thing that forced me to do so. The Smiths, as always, are "into" all kinds of activities. Herb has been in some demand on the Rotary circuit as a speaker since their trip to India, both were attending a gardening class, a Great Decision class (a sort of international relations seminar) and theater in Los Angeles and at the nearby colleges.

Bill Eppes sent me a good clipping from the New York Times (way back in April) about Pittsburgh's ranking of No. 1. Of course, it's all well deserved, despite the horrendous potholes and distance from the ocean — but then I'm prejudiced. Thanks, Bill.

Kate Alfriend advises that she is an information specialist handling liaison with national magazines and newspapers for the news division of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. Nice hearing from you, Kate.

Dorothy Dickie Dunlap lost her husband in November. He had a long history of heart-related ailments. The Dunlaps had wintered during 1983 in Tucson, Ariz., and planned to move there. Dot writes that she expects to carry out that plan and has been in touch with classmate Betsy Richardson Popof. I know that other classmates join me in wishing you the best on your move, Dot.

Barbara Brown Heimer writes that she was delighted with Homecoming '84 — and even stayed over for the class dinner, thanks to Jeanne Sheridan Kinnamon's powers of persuasion and hospitality. Barbara's son John (at William and Mary '68-'70) is now in a broadcast consulting business, Fine Tuning Associates, Media Consultants. The firm is located in southside Virginia (Carrolton and Churchland). Her other son, Robert, is still in Arlington.

Don Stetson's yearly "magnum opus," a two-page (legal size) single-spaced letter that is packed to the margins with commentaries and news about ever so many subjects, filled us in on his and Rose's children: son Geoff and wife, Karen, became parents of Don's first grandson, Brian Adam, in January 1984. They live in Miraman, Fla., quite near Don's daughter Mary Virginia who's in Plantation. Both she and Karen are second-year, full-time law students at Nova University Center for the Study of Law in Fort Lauderdale. Mary was one of the top five in her first-year class of some 300 at Nova and subsequently was appointed to the editorial board of the quarterly, Nova Law Journal. Mary's girls, Amy Elizabeth and Sunny Ann, now ages 13 and 11, visited with Don last summer — all the way to Washington by themselves on Delta Airlines.

That wraps it up for now. Please keep the news coming. Happy fall and great Homecoming!

41 John H. Prince 2063 W. Cheadle Loop Seaford, VA 23696

I'm sure it has occurred to you as it has to me that the last war we really won was WWII. And that happens to have been the war that the gold medal Class of '41 ran. You'll agree that there is a more-than-casual relationship here.

By golly! We have struck a veritable bonanza! In the "CURRENT W&M" folder are seven flaps and a post card. Because I read somewhere that the first shall be last, etc. ("etc." means I forgot the rest of it), let's start with the card.

Hello! It's from good old Dick and Riffi Kaufman, peripatetic contemporaries who have been "poking our way up the West Coast and are enthralled with its beauty." The picture is of a lovely pond and formal flower garden with an imposing house framing it. It says, "The Butchart Gardens, Victoria, B. C. — The Italian Garden at Night." They expect to see us the spring of 1986. I suppose this is a familiar place to many of you. So there'll be no Kaufmans at the Homecoming. (44 years!)

Oh, for goodness, sake. Four of the flaps are old ones that went into the last column. Put them in the wrong envelope. That leaves three. See, the old mind is still chugging along on all four cylinders.

Here's a flap from good old Gene Ellis, the dog shaver. They have retired at last to the Carolina Trace Golf Resort in Sanford, N.C. He adds, "My owner-handled German short-haired pointer dog won the GSP National Championship dog show last Memorial weekend." Good for you, Gene. Or for your dog. I guess we should change the class coat of arms to recognize this feat. We might have a picture of Williamsburg flanked by two of your dogs, Gene, and title it "A City of Two Tails."

Good old Bob Kern announces that he and Gene spent three weeks in Georgia and Florida dropping in on his son Mike and family, which includes two grandchildren, and on assorted friends and relatives. They met good old Austin and Bobby Roberts who were spending a golf-package week at Myrtle Beach. By the way, the Roberts dropped into my office for a few minutes one fine day. They had stopped by their house to dust off their martini pitcher.

Talk about funny coincidences, one day Jane Young fell off her bicycle and broke her foot bone, and the very next day, good old Herb tripped over his dog's leash and broke a wrist bone. I'm not sure of the bones that broke but I'm within a couple of feet of them. Because time was dragging what with their both being in casts and all that, they decided to take a trip to Alaska. I understand they have reserved seats on the next space shuttle anticipating more breaks.

Many a time good old Chuck Gondak has rescued this column from the oblivion it probably deserves. It turns out that he and Tille were invited to a dinner party (which invitation they accepted with alacrity) where, to their surprise they met Mary "Tex Schick" Fay '43 who was there with her husband, Perrin Fay. Don't you envy people with first names like Perrin, Austin, Wolfgang and the like? Although the name John means "Gift of God" (a fitting soubriquette) it just doesn't have the same ring.

I did get another card, but it said that this must be at the Alumni Office by August 19. Since today is Saturday, the 17, I doubt if it will be there on time. However, I understand that they make allowances for sluggards. For all of you who are rushing to the mailbox to send your flaps, please be informed that they will not make this issue. But rest assured that they will appear with proper footnotes in the next.

Greetings from the Gentle City.

Jean Norris Daniels continues her travels on this planet. In late spring she saw much of Greece by land and sea. Athens, Epidaurus and some of the islands were on her itinerary. Have you considered the marvelous possibility that the writers of Class News 20 years hence might very well tell of classmates traveling to other parts of the galaxy on summer vacations?

Bill Remick is out of the country much of the time. Currently he is working with naval training programs in Pakistan and Turkey.

Ira B. Dworkin has published his second book, A G. I. Remembers: The 97th Infantry Division. A copy was given to the Paschall Library in the Alumni House. In 1980 he wrote Sherlock Holmes in Modern Times, a copy of which is also in the library. Ira is a judge in the New Jersey Division of Workers' Compensation.

Congratulations to our class agents for a very successful year of fundraising. Applause for classmates Marguerite Shields Clark, Betty Lyons Lascara, Louise Watson Todd, Helen Marshall Fedzuik and Virginia and Earl Clesson.

ALUMNUS WINS DESIGN AWARD

A project that was researched and implemented by B. Douglas Brockman '57 for Sam Moore Furniture Industries of Bedford, Va., has been named the winner of one of the 1985 Furniture Design and Manufacturing Impact awards. The project involved the design and implementation of a sophisticated computer information system for the upholstered furniture industry. Brockman is executive vice president of manufacturing for Sam Moore, a manufacturer of upholstered living room furniture.

for our 40th. We went back in August to finalize everything in preparation for YOU, dear classmates.

SEE YOU IN NOVEMBER!

Dear Friends:

I contracted mononucleosis shortly after spring vacation at school and did not complete teaching the last five weeks of the school year. It has taken me several months to regain my strength, and I will have returned to teaching seventh- and eighth-grade science classes in York County by press time.

Mary Martin Hoffman '49 and I spent a pleasant day in June having lunch at a new Japanese restaurant in town and visiting the DeWitt Wallace Art Gallery that afternoon. I had not attended the cocktail party the evening the gallery was officially opened, and Mary was my "guide" for my first visit. The building is architecturally magnificent and the displays are outstanding.

As I have mentioned before, I'm actively involved as a member of the board of The Occasion of the Arts to be held October 6. If any of you can come for the festivities it will be a Sunday well spent and enjoyed.

Because of my illness I did not travel to Naples, Italy, as planned, to visit my son Brook, his wife, Debbie, and the "baby" Brook, now two years old and speaking Greek and Italian. They will be assigned there for two more years with the NIS.

This past weekend I visited my daughter Beth who is now with an architectural firm in Washington, D.C. I stayed with my dear friend and sorority sister Jeane Nelson '45, who will be staying with me during Homecoming this fall.

Beth, her apartment-mate, Mary Beth, Jeane and I enjoyed cocktails on the rooftop of the Hotel Washington overlooking the panorama of the beautiful Washington buildings, then to the Old Ebbitt's Restaurant for dinner and on to the Kennedy Center to enjoy the magnificent ice skating performance by the John Curry Skaters.

Jeanne has become a very avid gardener, and her lovely European-style garden is a mass of blooms showing all her labors of thought and love.

I've been taking mini-trips all spring and summer, enjoying fishing, boat trips and other excursions exploring the unlimited areas along the coastal waters of Virginia and the Carolinas.

Gloria Beale Sexton '48 thoughtfully sent me the retirement dinner program from the Fort Monroe Officers' Club honoring Denis Wine who served as a teacher in the Hampton City Schools from 1949 to 1985. Congratulations, Dennis!

News from Marthann (Sally) Phillips Mileur told about her older daughter's marriage last December in Washington, D.C. Lucy and Bill Murphy '48 attended the special occasion. Daughter Ann, 16, was one of the bridesmaids and Charles from Portland, Ore., was an usher. The "Golden West" seems to agree with Sally, and she is enjoying much reading and bridge.

A letter came from Dr. Carl C. Moses and Helen Peters Moses. Carl is a professor of politics at Wake Forest University, and Helen works in the development office there. Their son, Carl Owen, A.B. Princeton, is currently pursuing a Ph.D. at UVA in geo-chemistry, and Sarah Helen '81 is studying graphic design at the Portfolio Center in Atlanta.

In 1982 Carl was the professor from Wake Forest who took a group of 16 students to live and study in London during the fall semester housed at Worrell House owned by Wake Forest. Helen and Sarah went along, spending two weeks on the continent in October — Switzerland, Spain and France. They also visited Scotland and the English countryside spending a week in Oxford.

Eustelle Ryan Clark '49 and Ed keep in touch but we did not have our spring outing at Nags Head this year. Hopefully, when Ed retires, they will decide to make Virginia their permanent home.

Please do send news of you and your families so I can have a nice long letter in the December issue.

Tonight (August 31) feels like an October night. Today was one of those cool sparkling Cape Cod days that makes all the summer tourist hassles worthwhile and one happy to live here. We have our hot and humid dog days in August, too, but this was a gem, and I have some good correspondence to share, so let's get to it.

A news release from the Upjohn Company tells us Selvi Vescovi became corporate vice president and general manager for international subsidiaries on March 1. The Gazette already scooped me on this, but I felt it well worth repeating here for anyone who might have missed it.

Betty Cox Scott invites us to drop by their Pavilion home on the Lawn at the University of Virginia if we're in the neighborhood.

Ward Donohue should be living in Sarasota, Fla., by now. He wrote of visiting the Bill Martins '50, there last January and of his intent to move there by fall. His oldest son, Bob, received an M.B.A. at UVA in May '84.

Virginia Flaherty Childers sent an address change but no message — P.O. Box 3033, Oakton, VA 22124. We'd love to hear from you; needless to say.

Paul Webb has been in the news again, announcing in July that he had accepted the assistant athletic directorship at Old Dominion University after 34 years of basketball coaching. His 500th collegiate victory came last January against UNC-Charlotte, and he finished 511-257 in 29 years of college coaching. The new position will involve working in fundraising and public relations and won't send him on the road and away from home and wife, Charlotte, as much as coaching did.

From Tita Cecil Myers came word that she and Clark were back at the College for a nostalgic weekend in May for son Chris's graduation. First they had to pick up Chris at Sam's Gap, N.C. He finished his studies in December and started the Appalachian Trail in Georgia in April. After graduation he returned to the Trail to continue the trek to Maine. Ultimately he plans to study geology in grad school in Colorado. Tita talked with Walt Milkey whose son was also among the Class of '85.

A newsy note from Carolyn Hooper Lundberg, Tucson, Ariz., tells us she's still teaching American history as well as acting as attendance coordinator for Cholla High School two hours a day. Son Clif, also a teacher in Tucson, has a year-and-a-half-old daughter, Alexis Nicole. Daughter Casey, who lives in Price, Utah, has a year-old son, Andrew Francis, Carolyn proudly announces. Her summer was to be spent traveling — to see Ferne Doss Barron '50, in Arlington in June, and then Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico later in the summer.

It was also great to hear from Martha Schilt Stewart who wrote of the joy their grandchildren have brought to her and Bob '52. She says they've lived in the same house in Norfolk now for 26 years. Bob has been a circuit court judge for the past seven years and Martha a highly committed volunteer. She renewed her teaching certificate several years ago and says she found her "added maturity only a plus in the academic environment." The Stewarts were going to Scotland in April where their daughter is taking her junior year at the University of St. Andrews, "founded 1411," Martha adds.

Betty Hicks Wagner says she's already looking forward to our reunion next year. She said Ralph Hart's account of his trip abroad in '84 made her wonder if they could have been there at the same time — the Wagners started in Budapest, went through Hungary to Vienna, Salzburg, Innsbruck and the Passion Play, where they had third-row center seats, then on to Munich.

When Betty wrote in July they had recently returned from the West Indian islands of Saba and St. Eustatius. On the latter, they visited the William and Mary field school archeology digs and took in all the activities — land and undersea archeology, ethnography and even the "soup kitchen" for dinner, followed by calypso band entertainment. They saw Jill Landen, daughter of Bob Landen '52, hard at work digging in her pit. (I think I'll go back to college, folks!)

The youngest Wagner received his M.B.A. from William and Mary in May and is now at Ft. Sill doing his O.B.C. Their other three are living in Richmond, each in his and her own places, and the Wagners aren't the least bit sad to have tuition payments a thing of the past. Can't we all relate to that!

My next deadline is November 4 for the December issue so this is the time to beg for news from those of you who attend Homecoming and see each other in the flesh. Have fun, but save some energy for the big one: our 35th (it can't be possible) in '86.

Jay and I attended a Philadelphia Chapter of the Society of the Alumni reception in June for Dr. Graves and his wife, Zoe, at the Winterthur Museum in Delaware. Dr. Graves, as you know, has assumed the presidency of the museum. What a pleasant way to spend an afternoon recalling old times at the College as everyone welcomed the Graveses to the Philadelphia area.

recent trips being to Israel and Greece. Ann has resumed her teenage study of the piano and is into her third year of study. Jerry is doing well with his paintings. Number one on their list of favorites is the twins, of course. Younger son, Brent '82, earned his master's degree in English and will be working on his doctorate while teaching freshman English at the University of Virginia this fall. Ann mentioned that Joe '52 and Eloise Bryant Agee recently had a get-together to greet Betty and Bill Chambers who were returning from a family visit in Lynchburg on their way to their new home in Lakeland, Fla. Those attending, besides Ann and Jerry, were Willie and Lois '52 Clark, Pete Markos and his wife, Dudley and Vivian Jensen, and Howard '43 and Betty Smith.

We are busy helping to plan our youngest daughter's wedding, scheduled for August 30, 1986. It seems strange to be writing about our families now. I guess we'll just have to admit that we all are just a bit older!

Don't forget Homecoming, November 14-17. Please keep in touch.

As your new class reporter I greet ALL of our class with a very special reminder of our 30th reunion this November 14, 15 and 16 at Homecoming. It would be fabulous to see as large a group of you present as we had for our 25th. Check through your Gazette for details. I'll have a sign-up sheet for class news in our hospitality suite. Please take the time to scratch a few lines on it — news of you, yours and other classmates. If you cannot attend Homecoming we'll miss you, but let us hear from you anyway!

Fred Emery Wilson sends word that he has two children attending the College. His daughter Amanda is a junior and son Donald a freshman. Larry O. Phillips has joined Branch, Cabell and Company, a Richmond-based investment firm, as a general partner in charge of retail sales management. Good luck, Larry!

Anne Lunas Vincent wrote that she has all three of her boys in college at one time. Son Jimmy is studying electronics at DeVry; Andy is working toward his M.S. in foreign service at Georgetown; and Bob will enter Ohio State in the fall to study computer science and engineering. Anne had lunch with Harriet Harcum Hobbs who has the reverse situation. Three of her girls are in college. Harriet and her husband, Charlie, live in Chevy Chase, Md. Anne enclosed an article from Diane West vanWert, a classmate who left W&M to finish at the University of Florida. She received her master's degree in pastoral counseling from Stetson and is currently counseling at the new Episcopal Counseling Center at St. James Episcopal Church in Ormond Beach. An Article from the Columbus Dispatch written by Anne titled "Chymopapain eases back pain" told of her personal treatment for two herniated discs through disc injection.

To the best of my knowledge, Alison Sandlass Carr's grandmother award, given as 20 in last month's Gazette should read as two! It would be interesting to see who holds that award. . . any news? Incidentally, Alison's picture along with John Westberg's is featured in Wilford Kale's Hark Upon the Gale.

Mailed via the Alumni House was an impressive photo of John L. Apostolou being sworn in as general district court judge on Law Day in the new Roanoke County Courthouse in Salem. Congratulations, John.

Dick and I are enjoying the temporary relaxed no-tuition status. Son Richard graduated from Brown this June and daughter Caroline from Georgetown in '83. Graduate school, however, lurks just around the corner.

See you at Homecoming!

Sorry about "no column" last time around, but to be perfectly honest I have to receive news from all you '57ers to report it!

Received a nice note from Harriet Rippel Doub who has been very active with Alpha Chi Omega alumnae activities since graduation. She is now completing a two-year term directing alumnae activities for the eastern third of the country and was planning to attend the AXO Centennial Convention in Indianapolis in June. Harriet also wrote that her daughter attends Virginia Tech and will study in London this fall, and her two sons work for husband, Dick, who owns a Mack Truck distributorship in Tidewater and Raleigh, N.C. Their youngest son is a junior in high school. Thanks for the news, Harriet!

The Alumni Office sent me an article about Ed Jones resigning as head coach of the baseball team at the College. Ed will remain as professor of physical education, a most time-consuming job that competes with coaching chores. He was responsible for changing the attitude toward baseball and has done a great job of leadership and will certainly be missed.

Jan Fisher Dunkle wrote that she is director of the children's choir at Derry Presbyterian Church and a volunteer at Hershey (Pa.) Museum and the Milton Hershey Medical Center. Husband, Dan '54, is plant medical director for Hershey Chocolate Company. (All samples gratefully accepted, Dan!)

From the OWJ newsletter comes news of Charlie Morrow who is a manufacturer's representative selling forgings and pipe fittings.

Suzanne Tully McCarthy and John Ottaway report a common bond. Sue's daughter, Cara Suzanne, and John's son, John P. Ottaway III, are now both graduates of the College.

News from Letty Sheild Best is that her lifestyle is a bit divergent. . . from being still active in car pools for her youngest daughter, who is 13, to planning a wedding for her oldest daughter, who is 25 and a graduate of W&M, Class of '81. Letty still has two other children in college and one in high school. Frequent rounds of tennis seem to clear out the cobwebs, she says!

Betsy Davis Hathaway writes that son Brantley graduated from UNC in December and is now a manufacturer's representative in High Point, N.C. Seventh-grader, Brooks, is at Westchester Academy and interested in all sports. Summers are spent in Morehead City at the beach. Husband, Bruce, is kept busy at Guilford Packaging and Fiber, a company providing batting and packaging to the furniture and electronic industries.

An article in the Richmond Times-Dispatch reported on a fabulous new restaurant in Blackstone owned by none other than Bill and Betty Armbruster. Steeped in history and traditional southern cooking, Armbrusters opened in a white, colonial revival building that dates back to 1908. Bill, who retired from the Navy after 26 years, wanted the restaurant to be authentically southern, retaining the period look. So all of you in the area, stop by Armbrusters at 200 Church Street in Blackstone. The rum daiquiris are wonderful!

All is well with the Scotts. After a fabulous vacation in Hawaii in February we were "on the road" again in May to visit youngest son, Ken, who lives in Dallas, Texas, and works for IBM. Then in July our daughter Anne was promoted to account executive with Aramis Fragrances and transferred to Charlotte, N.C. Of course Jim and I had to check out her new apartment in early August. Quite a culture shock moving from the Big Apple after two years to the South where the living is easy, but she loves it. I must admit that I hate having my kids so far away, so thank goodness Jim Jr. is still living at home. Big Jim is now president of our country club, which keeps him very busy, and he plays golf CONSTANTLY while I slave away at a new real estate office, which I joined in June.

Keep those cards and letters coming, folks . . . and have a nice Fall!

Margaret Blevins Kraus is completing her doctorate in education administration at Boston College while continuing to work as a school psychologist. In her spare time she and husband, Ed, are developing life-care communities in the Massachusetts area. Last year at reunion Margaret and Ed were enthusiastic about their plans and now it seems all is moving along. Margaret's daughter Laura Beth graduated from Amherst this spring. A busy household!

When visiting Williamsburg, stop by the computer science department of the College. Richard H. Prost is now the chairman. Congrats!

From the OWJ Newsletter, we read Kenneth S. Mink is deputy commander and troop commander of the U.S. Army post at Fort Richie, Md. And he's planning to retire in about five years.

Virginia Knight Palmer and her husband James are running their own maintenance and cleaning supply business in Arlington. Last year their son James Jr. graduated from VPI and this year their daughter Laurie graduated from VPI. Daughter Karla is a junior at W&M leaving Cathy, 16, and Adrienne, 13, still at home.

Barbara Alexander Baroody is teaching French part time at the University of Richmond. Her daughter Ann Mitchell also teaches in Richmond while younger daughter, Julie, graduated from our alma mater this spring with a French major and is planning on future studies in France.

The United Way of Central Maryland has named Raymond A. (Chip) Mason as the general chairman for the 1985 campaign. Chip is chairman, president and chief executive officer of Legg Mason, Inc., an investment firm headquartered in Baltimore.

I received a letter from Beverly Harris Olsen who, after living in the Tidewater area for years, moved to California in '78 with her husband, Ric, an engineering psychologist with Lockheed's space division. Their daughter, Kathleen, is a drama student at Trinity Repertory Conservatory in Rhode Island, and they have three teen-aged boys at home. Bev works in the public school library in Santa Clara and "fills in time" with swimming, painting, guitar playing and church work. Vacationing along the West Coast has been grand — from Alaska to San Diego.

Bev asked if I could forward an address of a classmate with whom she had lost contact. Please, if anyone else needs an address, I'd be delighted to be your "tracer of lost persons." Wouldn't it be fun to send a Christmas card this year to a classmate you haven't seen in years!

amount of traveling: a week in Turkey and another in Paris with her family. She was planning on Chaing Mai, Thailand, and Jakarta in July, hoping to squeeze in a short trip to Bombay. Laurie stays busy playing softball, mothering and wifing, missing her oldest son, Eric, who returned to the States for prep school last year.

Bill Binns has been promoted to senior vice president in charge of bank card credit administration with the Bank of Virginia, which he joined after we graduated (over 18 years ago). He was promoted to retail officer in 1970, assistant vice president in 1973 and vice president in 1976. Bill also graduated from the Graduate School of Retail Bank Management.

Carol Jackson Verser Scott's new young adult novel, Kentucky Daughter (Clarion Books), has been well received by Peninsula residents, especially Hampton readers. The story is a realistic portrayal of a rural Kentucky girl who moves to Hampton to pursue her dream of becoming a teacher, unattainable without the education she can obtain while living with her deceased father's family in Virginia. The book "arouses in the reader a sympathetic awareness of some of the problems which teen-agers face today." Carol taught English at Hampton High after graduation, earned her Ph.D. in English and creative writing at the University of Louisville, and served on the faculty at Iowa State University for seven years. She is now devoting all of her energies to full-time writing.

Haywood Wigglesworth, a geologist/solid waste engineer with Henrico County Virginia Public Utilities in Richmond, served on the science careers panel at the College's last Career Exploration Day.

Bob Sheeran, who retired last spring to enter private business after serving 13 devoted years as William and Mary's sports information director, was presented with the Irving T. Marsh ECAC service bureau award in Boston in July. This award honored Bob's superior service and cooperation with the ECAC.

Thinking of our 20th reunion (!) in two years. . . . How many of our classmates have never been mentioned in the column? Knowing many of us would like to hear more about each other, I am again pleading for news. Please take the time to drop me a note to catch our classmates up on where the rest of us are and what we're doing. I hope you enjoyed a great summer and will let me hear from you before my November 4 deadline for the December column.

This deadline has crept up on me as we returned this weekend from a lovely family vacation, complete with grandparents, at Hilton Head Island, S.C. I hope each of you had a nice summer and are ready to settle back into the routine of work, school, carpools, volunteer projects, etc.

Jim Onderdonk wrote that he married Mary Timmins '73 in July 1983 and has been working for the U.S. Navy administering educational programs on ships while visiting Spain, Brazil and Puerto Rico. Mary is an editor for a N.Y. magazine and they'll be moving there (from Norfolk) soon. Jim will be job hunting after the Navy and looking for a place to store his collection of BMW motorcycles (his only remaining bad habit, he reports)!

FACULTY, STAFF PROVIDE $28,000 FOR STUDENT AID IN 85-86

For a first-time effort, the results of the faculty-staff Campaign for Student Financial Aid at William and Mary have been so encouraging that planners want to make it an annual event. Figures indicate that the 1985 fund drive netted approximately $28,000 in gifts and pledges, according to Vinson H. Sutlive, chairman of the campaign committee and chairman of the anthropology department. Sutlive estimates that 25 to 30 students can be helped with their tuition bills this year, based on average assistance of $500-$1,000 per student. Approximately six months went into planning the first campaign, and the committee is already preparing for next year's fund drive. No goal amounts have been set, says Sutlive. "We just hope future campaigns will stimulate more giving by alumni and the general public." 220 faculty and staff members contributed to the 1985 campaign.

November. Alice is working in D.P. for Lithonia Lighting and has three grown stepsons. Her family still lives in Newport News, and she gets up to see them occasionally.

Politics is again surfacing this time of year, and Dennis Brown, an Amherst insurance agent, is running for the Virginia House of Delegates from the 24th legislative district. He is challenging the Republican incumbent. Dennis is on the Amherst School Board and is a former head football coach at Nelson County High School. Good luck, Dennis!

Dick Hoffman is at Iowa State University as an associate professor of zoology and genetics. In the summer he goes to the coast of Maine to do research. He and his wife have two children ages 10 and 7. George and Chris Taylor Nance are in Richmond where George has joined the faculty of MCV Dental School in removable prosthodontics. Chris is doing freelance public relations planning and writing.

Wellford Marshall has been promoted to vice president of Sovran Bank. Wellford is manager of the bank's Williamsburg office.

Robert Reed reports that he and his wife just celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary. Their daughter left for Susquehanna University this fall, and their two sons are 15 and 13. Robert is in Rhode Island and put in a pitch that "complete nuclear disarmament would be best for all of us."

Kenneth Collins continues to win awards at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. At the university's annual service awards ceremony, Ken received a cash prize and a travel account award as the 1985 Amoco Foundation Outstanding Teacher. He specializes in 19th-century English literature and has been on the faculty since 1976.

I didn't hear how Al Albert's US soccer team did in the Maccabiah Games the end of July, did you? Hope they won a silver medal as they did at the games in 1981.

Lew Derrickson is a vice president of Northwestern Mutual Life in Hampton Roads. His agency was ninth in sales out of 292 agencies nationwide! Lew is active in civic work for the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and active at Old Dominion University.

Pat Woody Belshe wrote a long, newsy letter about her family. Pat is teaching math at Marshall University Community College in Huntington, W.Va., and Bob is chief of infectious diseases at Marshall University School of Medicine. He's just published his first book, Textbook of Human Virology, and returned from a meeting in Japan that included the whole family. Pat is active in the Huntington Junior League and goes to D.C. every six months for a training seminar. Pat and Bob saw Rafi Arrillaga Torrens '70 on an April trip to Puerto Rico. He is an attorney specializing in international law.

I have a copy of the February Chi Omega newsletter, courtesy of Wynne Whitehurst. Wynne was married in May 1984 to Milton with Toni Biordi as her witness. They live in Richmond but travel about a quarter of the year as part of their business, "Decoy Ducks."

Linda Marsh Stewart is business manager of the Reston Institute of the Arts and coordinator of the dance company. Judy Chase Kahn lives in the San Francisco area and sells commercial real estate for Coldwell Banker.

Ginger Graef Smith is substitute teaching in elementary school as her two children are both in school now. Judy Gordon Mentlik is involved in a gerontology certificate program in N.J. Janet Berglund Tabor is also back in school, getting her master's degree. Kathy Friedman Bright has her own small business called "Brightworks" making knitted caps and accessories.

Bob Soter sent an early summer letter about his years since graduation. Bob is now on the corporate human resources staff of Mack Trucks doing in-depth analysis of management personnel jobs and how the individuals in those jobs compare with the job rating. (Sounds "heavy" to me!) He, his wife, Linda, and their children ages 14 and 9 live out in the country in the Lehigh Valley north of Allentown, Pa., in a two-story log home. Bob does some organic gardening in his backyard. Linda has her own craft business, selling directly to stores as well as participating in a limited number of craft fairs. They travel to Hampton to see family a couple of times a year. Bob has a master's degree from VCU in community organization and planning and worked for the state of Virginia for four years in planning before moving to Pennsylvania.

Donnie Chancellor Wintermute has opened her own real estate firm in Alexandria, Va., called "Wintermute, Jackson, Donatelli and Associates." Donnie was the sales associate of the year in 1984 out of 9,000 realtors and "is delighted with the success of the (new) company" this year.

My own D.P. consulting work has taken a sudden upturn and I remain busier than I might like this fall. Anna Louise enters first grade, Ellen goes to a 3-year-old preschool program, and Charles tries a mother's morning out one day a week to give me some time to work. All this comes to another halt about Christmas when Williams No. 4 (yes, I can't believe it either!) arrives. I may never be sane again.

The ever-enigmatic Bryan Festa sends the following cryptic greeting from jolly old England: "Jag mar bra. Det har varit gangska Kallt. Jag har druckit mycket ol. Jag ar i Skotland." (A linguist I contacted did a loose translation: "This person was apparently shopping for some women's undergarments when he was accosted by a gang of youths, drenched in motor oil, and hustled off to Scotland.")

Maybe Festa's Follies will pay a visit to Kingclere, England, home of compulsive oenophile Kenneth King, wife, Jane, and daughter, Charlotte. Kenny is converting his entire cottage into a wine cellar. You see, he works as a computer expert for a brewery, and as part of his salary, he gets as much beer and wine as he can cart away.

I spotted Gary Diamond recently at a congressional hearing on the law preventing active-duty servicemen and women from suing if they get bad medical care in a military hospital. Gary works for a small Maryland law firm that specializes in personal injury cases.

Rebecca Beech Smith was sworn in this summer for an eight-year term as a U.S. Magistrate for the Eastern District of Virginia. She has most of the powers of a federal judge (except the authority to conduct felony trials). She will preside over preliminary hearings and misdemeanor trials as well as issue arrest and search warrants. "Colonel" Kerry Buckley was tired of exposing hanky panky as a military prosecutor, so he has switched sides and is now senior defense counsel at Fort Carson, Colo.

ALUMNUS WINS POETRY AWARD

William O'Toole '83 of Williamsburg was won the Golden Poet Award for 1985 and Award of Merit-Special Mention from the World of Poetry, a California publishing company that advertises for poets to enter their best work for prizes. The winners of the publisher's poetry contest will share $10,000. O'Toole was invited to a convention at the MGM Grand Hotel in Reno to receive the award at a ceremony hosted by Steve Allen. The title of his winning poem was "Like a Flower."

Sarah Johnson has been chosen for a year-long teaching internship at the University of North Carolina. She has won honors for her skill in teaching high school French. Both Kenneth Robinson and his wife are special education teachers in Petersburg. (Their first child was born last spring).

Mary Wakefield Buxton has been named placement director of Kee Business College in Newport News. In Columbia, Md., Kathleen Schilling Denz is a "full-time mother expecting a third child in the fall." And Laura LaBonte Nagel has left her career as an anesthetist "for the joys of rearing kids" (and the guarantee of no sleep!).

I'm throwing the Where Are They Now Department open to nominations from the floor. Send me the names you want traced. And if you haven't written in the last three years, please take some time to drop me a line with an update on yourself or some good gossip about a classmate.

Obviously it has been a good summer and an active one among our classmates if the birth announcements are any indication. Winchester has had its typically bizarre weather, but that has not kept Ann Marie and a colleague from finishing a 56,000-word category romance in which a national publisher has expressed interest and which may produce some royalties that will allow me to work in public service for "a song" — fat chance. Here now the News!

Some of our Virginia-based alumni include Bruce Gould, ex-King Dorm refugee, who is practicing law with the firm of Gould and Sherman and living in the Ghent section of Norfolk. Another legal field participant, Allen C. Story was recently elected 1985-86 president of the Private Libraries Special Interest Section of Washington, D.C. (an association of over 600 law libraries). Allen has his master's in library science from the University of Maryland and works for one of the largest national law firms in the country. He is currently residing in Annandale, Va.

Dennis Belcher is now a partner in the Richmond, Va., firm of McGuire, Woods and Battle. He married a Richmond belle in 1975, and they have three children: Sarah, 7, Mathew, 5, and Ben, 2. Dennis works with another 1973, Weith L. Smith, a Republican party activist in the tax department of the firm. Weith has two children, Matt, 7, and Christiana.

In Norfolk, Edward Downum Jr. and his wife, Terri, are awaiting their third child. Ed will be attending military college at the Norfolk Naval Air Base from January to June 1986.

From the far corners of the U.S. we get word from Sara Jane Talis who has just returned from Tanzania, East Africa, after three years working with the Maryknoll Fathers as research assistant and consultant setting up and managing a government-mandated education program. Sara is presently teaching and working on her doctoral dissertation in anthropology and ethnography at Rutgers University. Her current address is 6 Valley Pl., Upper Montclair, NJ 07043.

Lorraine M. Gentile is currently employed with the Veterans Administration, Office of Inspector General, in the Hartford/Boston regional office.

From Southern climes comes news from Linda Charles Dill that a second child, James Michael, was born last February. Husband, Steve, just received his D.V.M. in May (Lassie, beware!), and the Dill's will be moving to Louisville, Ky., where Steve will be working in a small veterinary practice.

Teresa Boykin Antsey recently married Stephen E. Antsey who is an electrical engineer for G.E. at Cape Canaveral. Teresa completed her M.Ed. at VCU in August 1983 and is now working for the Brevard County Public school system.

From the land of Fun, Sun and David Lee Roth, James T. Flesher, land mogul and vintner, informs us that he has started a computer services company, "E-Net," specializing in protecting large computer-dependent businesses from sudden power outages. He also dabbles in some consulting. James recently planted 24 acres of future table wines as part of a 1,000-acre joint-partner Napa Valley Ranch. As if this wasn't enough, he is also organist for the First Presbyterian Church of Napa.

Thomas V. Harris, also in California, would like to hear from a few of his fellow "partners in crime." Tom received his Ph.D. in chemistry from Cornell in 1978/79 and did some post-doctoral work at Princeton. Having worked since then as a research chemist for Gulf Oil in Pittsburgh, Pa., the new Chevron buyout of Gulf finds him transferring to the Frisco area to work at Chevron Research Company. Along the way, Tom got married in 1982 to Diane Van Arsdale, with a PhD in clinical psychology. Their new address is 183 Seaview Dr., Benica, CA 94510.

Finally Harleen Dizer in addition to a belated birth announcement — (John Thomas-third child, first son) writes that her elementary education degree is coming in handy with the home schooling of her two daughters as part of a group of 25 home schoolers in the area. The children go on monthly field trips, and the parents started a support group in what has been a challenging and rewarding experience. Now if I only knew where you were located?

Last but not least, Pete Dowd and Steve Snyder each participated in the birth of baby girls one week apart in July. Pete and his wife, Kathy, welcomed Katherine Jennifer into the world, and Steve and Beverly said, "Hi," to Lisa Marie. Sarah Hunt Comisky not to be outdone by the above three had her first child, Joseph Hunt, in February.

Congratulations to all and "to all a good night." Our next deadline is November 4, so send some Halloween tales or whatever strikes your fancy. Keep the peace.

Hi, all. Dave and I just returned from a late summer vacation in Kentucky where we had our own mini-reunion of W&M grads. His two sisters, Karen '76 and Melissa '79, plus their husbands, Max Gillespie '77 and Sam Howard '78, and all our collective children gathered with other family members to golf, swim, eat, and play games. If there's one thing William and Mary prepared us for, it's Trivial Pursuit. Boy, are we good!

Homecoming is almost upon us, even though I'm writing this in August. I sure hope as many of you as possible will be there and that you'll look us up. Dave especially wants to see the long legs and lofty attitudes of his old Lambda Chi cohorts. We'll be staying with the Gillespies in Newport News or the Howards in Chesapeake and hope to take home lots of stories, greetings, etc., for the April newsletter. November 4 is the deadline for our next letter, so we'll just miss the December printing. Write anyway!

Anne McGuire was the first to report that she'll be missing Homecoming this year in exchange for a working tour of Europe. To begin at the beginning, Anne left Williamsburg in 1977 to dabble in a master's degree in museum administration at GW, but finally found the nerve to pursue her lifelong desire to be an opera singer. After studying privately and doing opera chorus work, she received a scholarship to attend the St. Louis Conservatory of Music in 1980. She received her master of music in vocal performance in '83 and returned to D.C. to teach voice. In 1984 she commuted to New York City for more voice lessons, and in 1985 she has done a leading role in a G&S group in D.C., toured with the national tour of The Beggar's Opera, and done a world premiere opera with Opera Theatre of St. Louis. Then it's on to Austria to the American Institute of Musical Studies in Graz, to Munich to study German, and then auditions for agents and opera houses in Europe. I marvel that Anne had time to write this letter, but she sends her best to all.

FRESHMEN ATTEND WATERMELON FEAST

The 5th annual Freshman Watermelon Feast was held on the lawn of the Alumni House August 27. About three-fourths of the freshman class attended to enjoy the watermelon, tour the Alumni House, meet fellow class members and pick up their Green and Golds. In the foreground, Dave Varner '86, chairman of the Alumni-Student Liaison Committee (left), greets Charles Quittmeyer '40 (right), member of the Alumni Society's Board of Directors and current Floyd Dewey Gottwald Professor in the business school. The Society of the Alumni and the Alumni-Student Liaison Committee hosted the event.

Leanne Dorman Kurland wrote to say she will be at Homecoming along with her husband, Alex, and sons, Lee, 2 and Robert, 1. Leanne is busy at home with the boys and is involved with a local parent's support group and with the Pi Phi alumna club at Northwestern. Alex is vice president with a Chicago investment banking/securities firm, Mesirow and Company, in their financial services branch. They find themselves jaunting about the country visiting family and friends and report that Lisa Grable Wallace and husband, Robert, had a second daughter, Rosa Hope Frances Wallace in July.

Another Chicago couple, Payne and Marilyn Ward Midyette, reported that Marilyn is working for AT&T Communications as an account executive in marketing. Payne has finished his master's at Northwestern and has a new position with La Salle Partners in real estate investment. They were planning a three-week trip to Europe in September. Stay tuned.

After grad school at Harvard, marriage, and more grad school for husband, Philip Bess, at UVA, Barbara Harrison Bess has been in Chicago since 1981. She keeps busy with Jennifer, 6 1/2 and Peter, 2, as well as being a member of her parish school board. Look for the Bess family at Homecoming.

Since we seem to have so many alumni in the Chicago area, I hope you all have visited Jerry and Holly Newcomb '76 Johnson's project near Geneva, Ill. We've mentioned the Garfield Heritage Farm and Museum in past letters, and it's well worth the trip. They continue to restore original buildings on the farm and are always eager to show off the results of their hard work. This year's fall festival is planned for October 4, 5, and 6 and would make a great family outing.

Getting closer to home, Gayle Rockwell recently bought a condo in Northern Virginia where she lives with her two cocker spaniels. She is a meeting planner for an educational association in Alexandria and coordinates over 100 meetings a year throughout the United States. Gayle would love to hear news of her "wonderful roomie," Mary Ellen Wyant.

John Trudgeon, who has been the wrestling coach at Lafayette H.S. in Williamsburg since 1975, has been named the new wrestling and soccer coach at VMI. John coached his Lafayette wrestlers to team titles in '82, and '83 in addition to coaching six individual state champions. VMI won the Southern Conference wrestling championship this past season and sent four wrestlers to the NCAA.

Lee Walsh has been named director of capital support at W&M in the College's Office of Development. Prior to this appointment, Lee was the director of development and planned giving at Brenau College in Gainesville, Ga., since 1979. He is married to the former Vicki Lifsey of Emporia, and they have a two-year-old son, Martin.

Peter Logan has joined MG and Casey, Inc., a Southfield, Mich., public relations firm, as an account executive. He is responsible for implementing the day-to-day activities of several accounts, including Ameritech Mobile Communications. Previously, Peter was the media relations manager for Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, and before that, served in press relations for Colonial Williamsburg.

Congratulations to Gary Torrence on his August wedding. Gary is the executive assistant manager of the Boar's Head Inn, a Mobil four-star resort in Charlottesville, Va.

Our final note concerns Joan Harrigan, who is working just outside Philadelphia where she is a manager for Hartford Insurance.

That's it for news. I almost forgot to report that Dave survived his Madison Triathlon, and to show you the spirit in which he enters these events, he boasted that he easily won the Under 17 and Over 40 age classifications — for women.

And in closing, I'd like to bring to your attention that Ian Robertson can be seen winking at 200 million people on an AT&T commercial — even in Wisconsin. Se you in November!

However, she recently left the bank and became a full-time mother and student. She and husband, Ray, a technical consultant for Westinghouse, have just bought a home.

David Forrest is practicing orthodontics in Hampton, Yorktown and Poquoson, Va., with Dr. Guy Clayton. He moved to Williamsburg in July.

As a vice president and travel coordinator for Worldwide Nordic Tours, Inc., Jody Roberts Graves has traveled extensively to international cross-country events including the World Championships in Seefeld, Austria. She completed five of the ten Worldloppet ski marathons this year. She lives near Minneapolis with husband, Peter, and daughter, Katie, who at 3 1/2 has already won a medal in a cross-country ski race. This spring Jody had a major role in a Minneapolis Civic Theatre musical production.

How did you spend your summer vacation? Fourth of July, for me, was spent on a 200-acre farm in Evansville, Ind., milking cows and baling hay. However, I'm looking forward to a more normal Labor Day weekend, sunning in Cape Cod. Other classmates, like Carol McGuire, headed west where she visited her brother's family in Colorado. Denise Aulenti and Patrick Ryan vacationed (honeymooned) in the French West Indies. Pat is preparing to take his medical boards in September. Attending the Ryan wedding were Paul Decker, Bill Hayes, Rusty Quinn '81 and Chuck Murray '84.

News from other W&M couples: Laura Francis Paloski, a programmer/analyst for Atlantic Companies in Roanoke, married Paul Paloski in June. Carol Doub and Brent Kelly recently relocated to White Plains, N.Y., where Brent serves as a financial analyst for General Foods. Carol works for Merrill Lynch as a closing supervisor. Brent's letter applauds the heroics of Matt (Smockey, the Bear) Bradley while attending Tony Kovaleih's marriage to Gloria Rose Peterman in Florida. Matt who shares a D.C. apartment with Steve Larson put out a raging fire in a Florida motel, saving the inn thousands of dollars in damages. By the way, Tony completed his master's in Latin American studies at the University of Florida.

Mikell Darby Nelligan moved back to Fredericksburg, Va., with husband, Gary, and two-year-old son, Patrick. Mikell expects a second child on December 26. (Merry Christmas!) She also hopes to contact ex-roommate Cathy Mayberry via this column.

Elizabeth McLeod Andrews celebrated a one-year anniversary with husband, Ricky Andrews '81, in May. Elizabeth works as a classified accounts executive with the Virginia Pilot/Ledger Star. Margaret Couden who married Steve Radcliffe last December, is teaching ninth-grade English. In Margaret's letter, she mentions Anne Quynn's March wedding to Bob Ritko. Anne and Bob reside in Virginia Beach.

Back to summer activities! David Price, who last year worked in Geneva, Switzerland, for the United Nations, spent this summer in D.C. with the Pacific Legal Foundation. David is ready to tackle his third and final year at Harvard Law School. Also preparing for the final year is Betsy Beasley. Betsy will receive a master's degree in geology from the University of Delaware. Lisa Beyer received her B.S. in nursing from MCV and is developing travel plans to Europe.

Kudos to second-year law student Julie Carpenter. Julie was accepted to UNC's Law Review. Also a second-year student is Stephanie Poscik — at MCV. Stephanie spent several days in Philly seeing Chinatown, the Jersey Shore, etc., with Rani Anne and myself. Barbara Buzzell, living in Boston, plans to get a master in fine arts degree in metals from Boston University. And Mary Alcorn, who is planning a December wedding to David Knuth, is working toward a Ph.D. in school psychology at UNC.

Onto the Army and Air Force updates. Kathy Powell, stationed in Heidelberg, West Germany, was promoted to first lieutenant in the U.S. Army. Stuart Lay was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force. Jane Anderson completed Air Force basic training and has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

Greetings to all of you old folks! We're finally alumni after all those years (for some, more than others). No more exams, last-minute papers or boring profs. Now we have the "easy" life: getting up at six, paying those endless bills and wondering if we'll ever have any time to have fun. What I wouldn't give to be able to wake up in the morning and decide to skip a day of work!

I hope ya'll had great summers. Some of our friends not only graduated, but also decided to take the big plunge. The day after graduation Paul Peterson and Joan Carol Folzenlogan were married in the Wren Chapel. They will be living near Duke University in North Carolina where Paul has won a fellowship and an assistantship for advanced study in environmental sciences. Joan passed her CPA exam and will be working in Greensboro.

In July there were two weddings: Annette Blackman and Ron Harlow were wed on July 20 and are living in Virginia Beach. Lindsey Willis married Todd Stravitz the 27th.

August 10 was also a big day for weddings. Sandy Pastrick and Jim Mozingo tied the knot and are living in D.C. In Virginia Beach Kim Eckert and Brian Failon were married and after a honeymoon in Barbados will live in Chicago (the other side of the world).

Moving right along to all of us sane people — there seems to be a ton of us here in Richmond. I moved here in July and am working as telecommunications sales representative for Harris/Lanier. Sue Scharpf spent the summer serving pizza and playing in the Richmond Concert Band and is now attending MCV. She and Mark DeCoster, at MCV studying biochemistry, went to a cook-out August 11 at Claudia Nader's, a fellow MCVer.

LIVINGSTON BOOK PUBLISHED

A book by James C. Livingston, professor of religion at William and Mary, has been published recently by the University of North Carolina Press. Entitled Religion and Government in Other Countries, the book is one of four published by the University as part of a program on Church, State and the First Amendment: A North Carolina Dialogue.

Janice Allen is the assistant director of the Central Richmond Association, which promotes and protects downtown Richmond.

Howard Brooks is doing double duty as a realtor for Fowlkes and Ricks in the Northside and a performer at the Williamsburg Lodge. Diane Limm is working for Chubb Insurance, and Demetra Yepanis is studying at the University of Richmond for her master's in political science. On the outskirts of Richmond, in the big city of Chester, Dennis Thacker has taken up residence with Jim Daniels after spending a lazy summer in Vermont.

A bunch of our friends have also migrated to Northern Virginia (for some strange reason)! It seems as if the accountants have taken over up there. Nancy Kraft is working for Arthur Anderson, Sharon Philpott for Seidman and Seidman, Kendra Morgan for Ernst and Whinney, and Martha Ruth for Peat, Marwick and Mitchell. We'll know who to go visit at tax time! Sharon and Martha are rooming with Aileen Aderton in Alexandria and from what I hear pass like ships in the night. If Sharon isn't out of town, Aileen is gallivanting off to Baltimore and soon to California. Aileen is an auditor for Allied Corporation in the aerospace division.

If it's parties you want in D.C., rumor has it they can be found at Leigh McDaniel, Nancy J. O'Brien and Ann Burhans' apartment in Alexandria. They have been having cookouts galore, so get yourself on their guest list. Leigh is working for the U.S. Intelligence Agency in the Book Programs Division, Nancy for Republican Senator Andy Ireland from Florida as an assistant to the press secretary, and Ann for Fullbright and Jaworski as a paralegal.

Mary Iida is working for IBM (that small company) in Roslyn, while Bob Mayhew is training to be a manager for Evans. Sue Kren spent her summer flying here and there for interviews, looking for that perfect job. She definitely needs one since she bought a brand new Ford Tempo! After hitting the high spots in Europe with Julie Greenisen, Amy Bell settled down in D.C. with a job with PEPCO.

Speaking of Europe, Todd Armstrong left a name for himself across the Continent and is trying to escape his reputation in California where he is assistant dean of admissions at Woodside Priory School near San Francisco. Allison Farwell and John Ball also traveled in Europe this summer, as did Janice Harrup and Jen Cox. Europe wasn't enough for Janice; when she returned she took off across country with Teresa Russo. Jen is teaching French at the Louisville Country Day School in Kentucky and plans to lead another tour of Europe next summer.

In other parts of the U.S., Debbie Packman is working for Hit or Miss in New York, and Kathy Filippone is studying for her master's in art history at the University of Texas. Marian Oliver is serving as superior of resource development at Pioneer Ministries, Inc., in Wheaton, Ill.

Stephanie Leyland had a rough summer in Honolulu forcing herself to go to the beach and endure all that awful weather out there! Back on the East Coast, Tom Johnson is training for Ferguson in Macon, Ga. Anita Straupeniks, another Europe refugee, is in Virginia Beach working for McGladrey, Hendrickson and Pullen.

Moving north, Jeff Grossman is working in sales/accounting for Industrial Corrugated Box in New Jersey. Eric Morrison is studying dentistry in Baltimore.

After working for STEP at W&M, Sheila Diggs is studying for her M.B.A. at James Madison. Graeme Miller is also getting his M.B.A. (at W&M) while continuing to play football.

Maureen Hinnebusch and Kerke Johnson spent the summer recruiting for the ROTC program at W&M. Maureen has gone to Huachuaca, Ariz., for training in the intelligence branch. Kerke, who is in the cavalry, has been stationed in Fort Knox, Ky.

Last, but most definitely not least, we have a star among us. Keith Cieplicki was drafted in the seventh round by the Los Angeles Lakers.

That about wraps it up. If you have any news, please write or call me at 804-231-7880. There's plenty of room if you are in the area and need a place to stay. The next deadline is November 4. I look forward to hearing from you.

Dear Alumni, Spouses and Friends:

It's time to check your graduation years as Homecoming 1985 is only three months away and it is never too early to make your plans. The Alumni Office has been working to make this year's Homecoming even better than its predecessors. Homecoming is continuing to grow in both attendance and activities and we hope you will agree that Homecoming at William and Mary includes something for everyone.

This year the spotlight is on the Classes of 1940, 1945, 1950, 1955, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and 1980, who are all celebrating one of their five-year reunions. A full schedule of events has also been planned for members of the Olde Guarde Classes (1907-1935) and for members of the Young Guarde Classes (1981-1985). If you are a member of one of the Non-Reunion Classes, we hope you will attend as well, as there are events for everyone who comes back. In short, Homecoming 1985 is missing only one ingredient — AND THAT'S YOUR ATTENDANCE.

With a number of new events being added, including a concert by the William and Mary Choir on Friday afternoon before the Sunset Ceremony, and with a few events being revised and tailored, we feel William and Mary's Homecoming is second to none. We have tried to make events more personal with more time to be with friends. We encourage all returning Reunion Class members to participate in their Hospitality Suite activities. Hospitality Suites have become the focal point of classes for the weekend and offer the place where you can be sure to see your friends. We have four days of excitement to offer, beginning with programs for the Order of the White Jacket on Thursday and concluding with a new Alumni Brunch on Sunday to cap off the weekend's activities. Williamsburg in the fall, exciting activities, old and new friends, and the University of Richmond in football — MAKE YOUR PLANS NOW TO COME "HOME" TO WILLIAM AND MARY.

To help us in planning the weekend, we are requiring that all reservations for catered events be made on a pre-paid basis only. All reservation information for events is included in this notice. Room reservation forms have been appearing in the last several issues of the Alumni Gazette and are also included in this issue. Please note that we are currently holding rooms for all classes as per the Class Hotel Listing. Due to cut-off dates, we will only be able to take room reservations until OCTOBER 1ST before we must release rooms back to the hotels. We encourage you to place your hotel reservations immediately as space is filling quickly. The catered event reservation cut-off date will be OCTOBER 15TH, but we ask that you not wait to reserve space as there are space limitations and the Alumni Office needs time to process your reservation. If you have questions regarding any aspect of Homecoming Weekend 1985, please do not hesitate to contact me or Mrs. Betsy Cobbledick at 804-229-1693 and if busy, 804-229-7545, for assistance.

We hope that we have properly whetted your appetite and you are already marking the dates of NOVEMBER 14TH, 15TH, 16TH AND 17TH on your calendar. If you are still not convinced you are coming, we have one more item to entice you. Homecoming 1985 will honor the twenty-fifth President of the College, Dr. Paul Verkuil '61. Dr. and Mrs. Verkuil will be in attendance at many of the Homecoming Weekend events and we know you would like to meet the man who will lead your Alma Mater to her Tri-Centennial. We hope to see you in November.

Cordially,
