THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Festive Homecoming Welcomes the Verkuils Victory Over Richmond Provides Fitting Climax to Weekend

William and Mary extended a warm and official welcome home to its new first family at Homecoming on Nov. 14-16 during the almost perfect weekend marred only slightly by a light rain on Saturday morning.

Thousands of alumni and other spectators lined Duke of Gloucester Street to watch the Homecoming Parade and wave to Paul and Fran Verkuil who were riding in a Packard convertible. Earlier during the weekend of festivities, Dr. Verkuil, a 1961 graduate who assumed the presidency in July, addressed the Order of the White Jacket banquet and the annual Homecoming banquet. And on Saturday afternoon, the football team provided a fitting and exciting climax to Homecoming weekend by defeating the favored Richmond Spiders, 28-17, in the 50-year-old Cary Stadium before the largest crowd since the late 1940s. After the game, many of the 18,000 fans poured onto the field and tore down the goalposts, something Cary Stadium has not seen in many years.

Homecoming opened officially on Thursday evening with the Order of the White Jacket banquet in Trinkle Hall where many of the 200 attending had waited on tables during their college years. President Verkuil, an OWJ member himself, found a receptive audience for his address on student aid among the dinner guests. During the evening, OWJ awarded nine scholarships worth $750 each to William and Mary students.

On Friday afternoon the largest crowd in many years attended the Sunset Ceremony at the rear of the Wren Building, attracted in part by a William and Mary Choir concert in the Wren Chapel. An overflow audience spilled out into the Wren Yard for the concert by the Choir, which is directed by Dr. Frank T. Lendrim.

On Friday evening, Dr. Verkuil addressed the annual dinner of the Society of the Alumni. Also during the banquet the Alumni Medallions were awarded and the names of newly elected members of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni were announced. The recipients of the Alumni Medallion for 1985 were Dr. Robert J. Faulconer '43 of Norfolk, Joan F. Showalter '55 of New York City, and Mildred E. Layne '32 of Williamsburg. Miss Layne received her medallion on Friday afternoon at the Olde Guard luncheon.

Newly elected to the Board of Directors of the Society were John S. Entwisle '44 of Williamsburg and Ann-Meade Baskervill Simpson '65 of Virginia Beach. S. Warne Robinson '37 of Williamsburg, the president of the Society of the Alumni; Dr. Lesley A. Ward '63 of New York City, and William A. Armbruster '57 of Blackstone, Va., were reelected to second terms.

On Saturday morning, more than 65 units participated in the Homecoming Parade for which actor Justin Deas '70 served as the Grand Marshal. Deas, an Emmy-winning actor for daytime television for his role in "As The World Turns," has recently completed a feature length movie "Dream Lover," which is directed by Alan Pakula. It will be released next year.

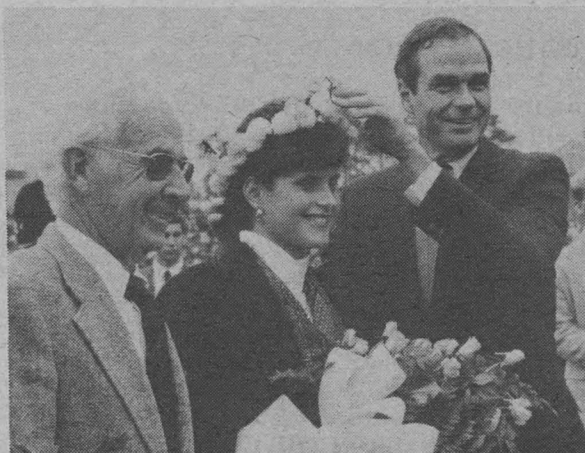

Others riding in the parade were Dr. Milton Salasky '31, chairman of the Olde Guard Council, and Anne Dobie Peebles '44, rector of the College. Miss Peebles also gave greetings at the Order of the White Jacket banquet and 25th Reunion dinner.

The junior class won the Lambert Trophy and $500 for its float with the theme "Bug Busters." The theme of the parade was "Tribe on a Spider Raid - Quality Work Since 1693."

Chosen as this year's Homecoming Queen was Mary Elizabeth Kosko, a member of Pi Beta Phi and senior from Chagrin Falls, Ohio. Her court included Elizabeth Beall Dewey, freshman princess, a Kappa Kappa Gamma from Houston; Terri Dale, sophomore princess, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma from Houston; Julie Lopp, junior princess, a Kappa Kappa Gamma from Herndon, Va., and Lisa Matick, senior princess, a Chi Omega from Peekskill, N.Y.

Among the many activities during Homecoming weekend was the Young Guard Keg Party for classes that graduated within the last five years. More than 2,000 alumni attended the event, the largest such gathering since the Young Guard was founded. Concluding the weekend on Sunday was an alumni brunch and a concert by the William and Mary band.

Inside Admissions

What's Wrong With the SAT?

G. Gary Ripple
Dean of Admissions

Regular readers of this column know how staunchly I have defended the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) as a useful and necessary tool in the college search and selection process. Despite recently renewed public attacks, my feelings have not changed. Why is the College Board continually answering so many critics of the SAT?

In my view these attacks are unrelenting because the idea of intelligence tests runs contrary to the fundamental principles of a meritocratic society and the work ethic upon which our nation was founded. The SAT is too closely related to heredity, affluence, and educational opportunities. Using it as an admissions criterion seems to offer just one more advantage to an already advantaged class of citizens.

Although I know of no college that uses the SAT as a single criterion or as the most important factor in selection, the general public continues to believe that, because the test is required by college admissions offices, it is extremely important to decision makers in their task of selecting a freshman class.

This opinion is only strengthened by the many abuses to which the SAT has been recently subjected. The use of minimum test scores for admission to large state universities, the establishment of a formula for athletic eligibility by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and the report of slight rises in SAT scores as evidence of better teaching and more effective schools are but a few of the abuses of testing that make it very difficult for the true story to be heard.

Last year, a selective private college in New England dropped the SAT as a requirement for admission because "too much emotional energy was being wasted on the subject." Although I disagree with the solution, I am distressed by the amount of public attention being focused on the SAT. There are so many other factors of equal or superior value in the assessment of a candidate for college admission.

In the rush of the holiday season, we sometimes overlook the greatest gifts of all — life and love.

But in Great Falls, Va., a very special family is rejoicing in those gifts and the miracle of being together to share them.

Joseph R. "Joe" Koons '68 and his wife, Nancy, have 10 "great kids" as they describe them: Joyce, 17; Diane, 16; Carol, 14; Julie, 11; Joe Jr., 9; Mary Elizabeth, 7; Susie, 6; John Walter ("Johnny"), 4; Theresa, almost 3, and baby Laura, 10 months.

This Christmas Day marks the third birthday of little Theresa, whose determined fight for life and health — against enormous odds — has brought her family even closer together.

It was Christmas Day 1982, when Nancy Koons began to realize that she might be going into labor earlier than her due date. Caught up in the bustle of preparing a holiday dinner and in going up and down stairs to look after her ill father, Nancy was just getting ready to put dinner on the table when her labor pains began.

"Joe and I jumped in the car, really excited," recalls Nancy. "How exciting it would be to call home and share the birth of a baby girl or boy."

But when Theresa was born, Joe and Nancy were shocked by the extent of her physical problems because there had been no clue to indicate that anything was amiss. Their baby had been born with a severe cranial-facial deformity called "Crouzon's Syndrome," caused by the premature closing of her cranial bones. She had no nasal passages — they were blocked by bone. Doctors and nurses "came out of the woodwork" to help her, according to Nancy Koons.

At Fairfax Hospital, Theresa stopped breathing six times before being stabilized sufficiently to allow a quick transfer to Children's Hospital in D.C. Her fight for life was staggering: five days after birth she had her first operation, in which the top half of her skull was removed for surgery. Ten days after her birth, Theresa had laser beam surgery to create new nasal passages.

Nancy and Joe Koons had been told at birth that Theresa might not live and, once that crisis passed, that their little girl could be mentally retarded, deaf and blind.

Theresa spent her first year of life at Children's Hospital, with her parents taking shifts around the clock to be with her and to stimulate her by playing a little Fisher-Price toy tape recorder with music and the everyday sounds of her brothers and sisters at home. For the first 18 months of her life, the tubes allowing her to breathe had to be suctioned out every two hours, night and day.

She has had 12 operations to make cranial repairs and faces the prospect of plastic surgery up until her teen years.

But the bottom line is that little Theresa Koons is now a happy, healthy youngster, neither deaf, nor blind, nor mentally retarded. Her family has much cause to celebrate this Christmas, because she has spent this year without being hospitalized.

It's one of the best experiences that his family went through, according to Joe Koons. A member of William and Mary's Board of Visitors, a devoted father and a highly successful businessman, he says, "My older kids witnessed a little one struggling to live; Nancy spent a year away at the hospital.

"We saw a different kind of life, and it brought us even closer, although we'd always been close as a family."

At the College, Joe Koons has always been something of a legend because of his strong, continued support of William and Mary in general and also its athletic programs. He graduated in 1968 with a degree in business management, after being secretary and president of Theta Delta Chi fraternity and a member of the Intrafraternity Council and the Society for the Advancement of Management.

What Joe Koons has never forgotten about William and Mary is that although he was accepted to the College with a football scholarship, he never played there. One day after graduation from Bishop O'Connell High School in Northern Virginia, he went into the hospital for the surgical removal of a previously undiagnosed tumor on the hip and sciatic nerve.

Even so, the coaches at William and Mary let him work in the athletic office during freshman year and to retain his scholarship. "I really enjoyed William and Mary," says Koons. "It was nice to me. The coaches didn't have to keep me on scholarship, but they did." Always sports-minded, as was his entire family, Koons says, "People think I'm a great supporter of athletics, but I love William and Mary."

Joe Koons '68 — Family Man

A Devoted Father and Loyal Alumnus,
Northern Virginia Alumnus is Special Person

BY LISA HEUVEL '74

Joe Koons and his wife Nancy pose with their 10 children, including Theresa (second from right), whom they call their "miracle child."

His record as an alumnus bears that out and ties in closely with his career in the automobile industry. Joe Koons has two of the top 15 car dealerships in the nation: a Ford-Porsche-Audi dealership in Annapolis, Md., with sales of 5,000 new cars per year, and a Pontiac-GMC Truck dealership at Tysons Corner, Va., with sales of 2,200 new cars and trucks annually.

As a top dealer, he meets with the top executives of Pontiac and Ford frequently and enjoys his work. "It's been very rewarding," says Koons. "I think the big thing about the auto business, or any business, is that I really enjoy my employees. Approximately 250 people work for me. We've had good times and great times, also tough times."

The toughest time was 1980, when the economic recession caused many good dealers to go bankrupt and put the automobile industry into a tailspin. Koons hung in there, refusing to lay off or terminate a single full-time employee, so when the recession eased up he had everything in place to get a jump on the market.

Close to his employees, most of whom have been with him for years, Koons has brought groups of them down to College athletic events like the Wightman Cup this year, which he helped sponsor. In 1984 Koons was partial sponsor of a college golf pro-am with LPGA members and played in it as well, even though he has arthritis. He also played in the pro-am this year.

As chairman of the Board of Visitor's subcommittee on athletic policy, he has a big fan in Women's Athletics Director Millie West. "I call him the Sleeping Giant, because he quietly moves around and gets the job done," she says.

This year, Koons gave the women's athletics program a courtesy car, its first, and he also supplies the men's athletics program with two cars, one for its director and one for the head football coach.

"He does things for the program and for William and Mary that are immeasurable," says West. "He's a neat guy himself. He doesn't do something to get credit, but because he believes in it and is dedicated."

John Randolph, the College's director of men's athletics, seconds that. "As chairman of the athletic policy subcommittee, Joe makes himself a resource rather than an authority. He doesn't call and tell you how to do things. He's there if you want to call him up and ask for advice."

As an alumnus and member of the Board of Visitors, Joe Koons considers the faculty, administrators and students top-notch and enjoys talking things over with them and listening, whether they agree with his point of view or not.

"You're going through an interesting time at the College," he says. "I'm impressed with President Verkuil, and there's no question in my mind that he'll make changes. Millie and John are on the brink of making changes at William and Mary in the next year or two, and I think that the school and its image will grow."

"William and Mary is weak in one area: it doesn't get enough recognition for what it is, but I think Paul Verkuil will work hard to change that."

The first president of William and Mary's Northern Virginia Chapter, Koons coaches soccer and had a soccer game and awards luncheon to attend this past Homecoming Day. "I'd love to have been at Homecoming, but three of my little ones play soccer. The kids come first — everything revolves around that."

To underscore that point, consider what happened in Nov. 1984. Joe Koons was on his way to Hawaii for a combination vacation and meeting with Pontiac executives, accompanied by his wife, Nancy (then pregnant with Laura), their nine children and the housekeeper.

At Dulles International Airport, half an hour before takeoff time, he fell off the curb, tore the ligaments in his knee and was told by the airline staff that he shouldn't attempt the flight. "I said 'We're going,' 'Aced' the knee up, and away we went," says Koons.

Nancy Koons puts it another way. "I can call Joe anytime about the children, and he's there. That's a special kind of father."

"He's the dearest man in the world, and I'm very lucky to be married to him."

The Tribe Heads for Hawaii

Women Gymnasts Compete in Holiday Tournament

BY FRANCES BOBBE

It's December in the 48 contiguous states. At William and Mary in Virginia, it's likely that balmy weather prevails for first semester finals and the Yule Log lighting. Even so, how does a holiday season trip to Hawaii grab you?

Alert the Honolulu Alumni Chapter! No, the men's basketball team isn't playing those Silversword-spoilers of Chaminade. But, yes, the women's gymnastics team is heading for Kailua on the Island of Oahu, Hawaii, for the 10th annual Aloha Fest Invitational, Dec. 28-29.

"Our driving force this season is our trip to Hawaii," says head coach Sylvia Shirley. "It has really made the girls work hard. It's given them drive and a purpose.

"This has meant that our routines are due a month ahead of when they're usually due. They have to be finished; we have to be ready to perform," adds Shirley. "This will be the furthest ahead we've ever been in terms of our training."

The Tribe will compete in the collegiate division. There is also a United States Gymnastics Federation (USGF), or club, division. Says second-year assistant coach Greg Frew, who will accompany the team, "It's an international meet, too. Teams in the past have come from Australia and New Zealand. Historically, (U.S.) west coast and western Division I-caliber teams compete there."

Since last April, when the trip was approved, the Indians have been working to raise funds for travel expenses. Appropriately enough, the team has been selling beach towels. These are white with "GO TRIBE" and "The College of William and Mary" printed in green with the feathered W&M logo and sell for $7.50. (To order, call or write Sylvia Shirley, Women's Gymnastics Coach, Adair Gym, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185; 804-253-4360.)

"We sold a lot (of towels) at Homecoming, at the football game," says senior standout Lori Pepple. The team also raised funds by selling student-rate tickets for the recent Nabisco Wightman Cup and by helping run a local meet, The Judges Cup. The men's gymnastics team also participated in, and received proceeds from, the latter endeavor, which brought about 175 club gymnasts to William and Mary Hall.

The gymnasts will depart from Norfolk on Dec. 26, which means coming back to W&M on Christmas Day, and return on Jan. 2. They will stay in Waikiki, better known for surfers, which is 10-12 miles from Kailua. And, while getting a tan tops the souvenirs list, the Indians will work out before and after the meet.

According to Frew, a former James Madison University gymnast and full-time coach for Gymnastics Incorporated in Hampton, Va., the team is as serious about doing well at the Aloha Fest as it is excited about just going there. "It's so nice to be in a coaching position where your team is as dedicated as you would want them to be. They want to know when the competition is, how is it going to be scored," he says.

Sun and somersaults aside, this nine-member Tribe is one of W&M's best ever. Pepple, a two-time NAIA All-America ('83, '84) and state all-around champion ('83, '85), is back after a stellar junior season. Besides winning four state and two regional titles in 1984-85, she qualified for the NCAA Division II championships and placed in two events there. The Reston, Va., native and South Lake High grad also set W&M season average records in the all-around (34.30), floor exercise (8.87) and balance beam (8.24) and holds five other school standards.

Junior Kim Read, a former All-American high school gymnast, was William and Mary's No. 2 all-around competitor last year, and one of her coaches says she is even stronger this year.

"Lori is looking absolutely wonderful," says Shirley, whose 10 seasons at the helm include the 1983 NAIA national championship and '83 NAIA Coach-of-the-Year honors. "She has come back so tough. She's still the veteran who will come through."

A business major who is choosing between job offers in the personnel field, Pepple is looking forward to 1985-86. "This is definitely the best team we've ever had since I've been here. And, we have a good attitude. Everyone is real supportive of everybody else," she says.

Often asked why she's still competing (as in, aren't you a little old?), Pepple has no hesitation. "I've always looked at gymnastics as a gift that I've been given and (one) that I should use . . . to its fullest potential," she says.

As for Hawaii, Pepple is one of two Indians who has been there before. "I went at Christmas my sophomore year in high school . . . with my mom and my sister. . . . The water's blue. The sun's always shining," she relates, also recalling fondly the fresh pineapple. "It's wonderful. And they serve it with absolutely everything. At the McDonald's, they have pineapple shakes. We ordered eleven of them, just my sister and I!"

Junior Kim Read, the business major who helped the Tribe corner the beach towel market, competed at the Aloha Fest when she was in junior high. The former high school All-American from Derwood, Md., and Magruder High, was W&M's number-two all-arounder last season.

Both coaches are pleased with Kim's pre-season. Says Shirley, "Kim, these last few weeks, has really pulled herself together." Says Frew, "Kim Read is even stronger this year. She was one of the surprises of (our) Green & Gold meet."

Read is equally pleased with her coaches. "Syl is really great on philosophy. Gymnastics is an individual sport; when you get up on the beam, . . .

you're the only one out there. What Syl tries to impress upon us is that everyone is out there with you. . . . She's taught us to help each other to be the best we can be," she said prior to the season. "Greg is one of the best coaches I've ever had . . . I've picked up four or five new skills, which is rare for a college gymnast."

Also returning are senior Janet Lawson, junior Sue Kapp, a 1984 NAIA All-America in the vault, and sophomore LeAnn Crocker, who broke W&M's vault record as a freshman with a mark of 8.73. The Tribe has four freshmen, who should contribute right away.

The newcomers are Lynn Dreylinger of Alexandria, Va., Kimberly Streng of West Redding, Conn., Jeanne Foster of Springfield, Va., and walk-on Debbie Failla of Churchville, Md. Dreylinger captained her Fort Hunt H.S. team and was the 1984 AAA state beam champion, the 1985 state runner-up in the all-around, and regional first team pick. Streng was a two-time high-scorer and MVP for her Joel Barlow H.S. team; the past two years, she placed fourth in state all-around competition.

Jeanne (pronounced Jan) Foster is a two-time captain of her Lee High School team; she was the AAA state all-around champion as a junior. She also won two state titles in the beam and one in the floor exercise, as well as two regional all-around titles and one in the beam.

"Jeanne doesn't have a weak event. . . . Kim (Streng) is probably going to be right there with Jeanne and Lori on floor," says Frew. Foster chose W&M because she was looking for a good school with a sound gymnastics program. Recruited by Berkeley, she says, "I chickened out; it was too far away." She also knew that she would be competing right away. "When I'm doing gymnastics, I want to compete," says the former club teammate of Read. As for Hawaii, "Everyone's glad to go. We're really working hard for it."

The consensus is that if the Indians stay healthy, they will be a solid contender for the 1985 Division II regional crown; last season, W&M finished third. Winning the Southeast crown would qualify the team for the NCAA Division II Championships. These will be held April 4-5 at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo. (It was in Colorado, Pueblo to be precise, that the 1983 Indians won NAIA nationals).

Let the winter season begin! This season, the William and Mary women's gymnastics team will gather both leis and laurels.

House Notes

Billie Snead Budkopp '44 of Baltimore returned for Homecoming and generously donated her father's framed diploma to the Alumni House. The licentiate of instruction was presented to William Winston Snead on June 28, 1900, by the College of William and Mary, State Male Normal College of Virginia, and was signed by each of the "7 Wise Men" of the College. An 1899 Colonial Echo, a first-year publication, was also donated to the House's collection.

Two W&M trolls have found a home at the Alumni House, a gift from Katy Purtill Pfeffer '81, who received them as a gift from her sister Anne Purtill O'Connor '64. Katy also left a 1940 football souvenir booklet from her father, Jack Purtill '40.

A Williamsburg Scrapbook compiled by the Williamsburg Garden Club in 1932 and yearbooks for 1929 through 1932 have been received from Katherine P. Everhart '33.

Tribe Season Promises New Look

Mike Bracken Welcomes Opportunity to Contribute

BY BOB JEFFREY '74

In three seasons as a William and Mary basketball player, Mike Bracken has never won a game with a last-second shot. In fact, the 6-7, 225-pound forward from Severna Park, Md., has played only infrequently in his career, usually in the waning moments of games that have already been won or lost.

Yet despite the lack of playing time, Bracken has stayed in the thick of things over the years. Tribe fans have noted his infectious enthusiasm and team spirit. Even when sitting on the bench, Mike Bracken is into the game, and he's having fun.

More important, Bracken has been a tremendous asset to the basketball program. According to former sports information director Bob Sheeran '67, Bracken has been instrumental in the recruitment process, coordinating and handling the on-campus visits of prospective players. "Since his sophomore year he's been the one who has taken the new guys around and shown them the ropes. He's just a very outgoing, personable and sincere guy. He's got a total commitment, not just to the basketball program, but to the College," Sheeran said.

Part of that commitment stems from the fact that Bracken's parents, Peter Bracken '62 and the former Miss Sandra Wright met and wed at William and Mary. A younger sister, Susan, also attends the College.

As a senior, Bracken is still not slated to start. But his contribution to the team has been recognized by his teammates, who elected him one of the tri-captains, along with senior Scott Coval and junior Scott Trimble.

"I felt honored," said Bracken. "I always thought it was the guys who played the most or knew the most about the game who were made captains."

But head coach Barry Parkhill pointed out to the team before they voted that there were other factors that should go into the selection as well. "Coach said that we should look for leaders and not just guys who play every minute, but guys who lead by example," Bracken said. "That they felt that way about me, it meant something."

Parkhill praised Bracken for his unselfish attitude. "He's always positive, always up," he said. "Having someone like that around the younger kids helps, too."

But with severe losses from last year's team — starters Keith Cieplicki, Kevin Richardson, Matt Brooks, and Herb Harris, plus top reserve Tony Traver — Parkhill is hoping that Bracken can contribute this season in a more tangible way. "He's worked very hard, and he's playing better than ever before. Seeing what we've lost, Mike has the chance to contribute with playing time on the floor," Parkhill said.

Bracken is looking forward to participating more, but he has no illusions about his capabilities. "I know I'm a role player, when I'm in it'll be for rebounding and inside scoring."

Bracken's new opportunity to play parallels that of the William and Mary team as a whole. On a team that lost 80 percent of its scoring and rebounding to graduation, there'll be lots of opportunity. "We'll get our points," Parkhill said, "but it will just be new faces scoring."

Guards Scott Coval and Scott Trimble will anchor the team, providing ballhandling experience and stability. "Coval is a settling influence on the team,"

The proud parents of record-setting senior quarterback Stan Yagiello joined their son at midfield prior to the start of the Richmond-William and Mary football game at Homecoming. Yagiello established five Tribe single season and career records as the Indians closed out their season with a 7-4 mark, the third successive winning season under Coach Jimmie Laycock '70.

Fantastic Finish Closes Season

BY BOB JEFFREY '74

A crowd estimated at over 18,000 watched as William and Mary climaxed its finest football season in a decade by downing arch-rival Richmond 28-17 for Homecoming at Cary Stadium on Nov. 16. Coach Jimmie Laycock's Tribe finished at 7-4, the best since 1976, and put together a string of three straight winning seasons for the first time since 1965-67.

Senior quarterback Stan Yagiello continued to rewrite the record books with three touchdown passes against Richmond. Yagiello established single-season and career marks for passes attempted, passes completed, passing yardage, total offense and touchdown passes.

Mighty mite Michael Clemons also enjoyed a big day against the Spiders, rushing for 105 yards, catching eight passes, and scoring three touchdowns. The 5-5, 160-lb. junior tailback, set a single-season team standard with 70 pass receptions. Clemons ranked as one of the top all-purpose running backs in the country, compiling 714 yards rushing, 657 on pass receptions and 509 on kickoff returns.

The win over Richmond, which had been ranked number one in Division I-AA for five weeks this fall, was just one of many highlights in a season packed with last-minute comebacks, goal-line stands and close contests. The Tribe won four of six games decided by a margin of one touchdown or less.

W&M also endured a schedule which, as Coach Laycock said, "I wouldn't wish on my worst enemy."

said Parkhill. "He doesn't make many mistakes, and he's a good passer and shooter." Freshman Greg Burzell will also see action at shooting guard.

Tribe fans are looking for good things from Tim Trout, a 6-7 forward who was playing extremely well last year as a freshman before dislocating a kneecap. "Timmy's leg is strong. He has no after-effects," Parkhill said. Trout showed his return to form with a 22-point, 16-rebound performance in a pre-season win over Marathon Oil.

At center Bob Dail, a 6-9 junior, has been impressive in earning the starting nod over Mark Boddy. "Dail has really improved immensely since last year," said Parkhill. "He's maturing and becoming more consistent in his play."

Former walk-on Mark Batzel has the edge on David Bond and Alex Rocke at the small forward spot, though all three will see playing time, according to Parkhill.

While the Tribe has been determining a starting lineup, the rest of the Colonial Athletic Conference (formerly the ECAC-South) is well stocked with vet-

The skein of six consecutive road games was believed to be the longest in collegiate football this season. The Tribe was undefeated at home.

Only a 39-38 loss at VMI, suffered when the Keydets scored a touchdown as time expired then added a two-point conversion, kept the Tribe from an NCAA Division I-AA post-season playoff bid. W&M ended up ranked 16th in the nation.

Despite the disappointment of not making the playoffs, Coach Laycock expressed his satisfaction with the team's effort. "I couldn't be prouder of them," he said.

Laycock praised the offensive line as unsung heroes. "We are averaging 40 passes a game, and they didn't allow a sack in the last four games. That's quite an accomplishment," said Laycock.

In six years as head coach, Jimmie Laycock has taken the Tribe a long way toward respectability on the gridirons without sacrificing academics. Laycock, his coaching staff and the entire football team have displayed a sense of dedication to excellence that has increased enthusiasm throughout the College community. "We've always been able to talk about our SAT scores or how many of our players graduate, but now it's nice to be able to show pride in ourselves as a good football team," Coach Laycock said.

The 18,000-plus that jammed Cary Stadium for the Richmond game is believed to be the most to attend a home game since 1949, when over 20,000 saw W&M take on North Carolina, led by Charlie "Choo-Choo" Justice.

erans. "Every team in the league has four or more starters back, except us," Parkhill said.

The clear favorite in the conference is the Naval Academy, which has been ranked as high as 10th nationally in some pre-season polls. George Mason and Richmond should vie for the next spots.

Despite the uncertainty involved in fielding a largely untried team, Parkhill stressed the positive. "We'll need to rebound extremely well, shoot the ball at a good percentage and cut out mistakes," he said.

Getting the entire squad involved will be crucial. "We're going to need great efforts every night out from everybody in order to be competitive. But I think we can do that. I'm expecting it," Parkhill said.

Pre-season projections of a "rebuilding" year haven't upset the team either, except to get them fired up, according to Mike Bracken. "In a way it's not so bad. We don't have to live up to anyone's expectations," he said. "But at the same time, we're not expecting to lose either, just because Keith or Kevin aren't here any more. We're planning on winning," Bracken said.

Scenes From Homecoming 1985

Returning for his 15th reunion and serving as Grand Marshal of the Homecoming Parade was Justin Deas '70, who won an Emmy for his role as Tom Hughes on the daytime television drama As The World Turns. Deas has performed in a variety of roles on television and in regional off Broadway and Broadway theatres. He recently completed a movie for director Alan Pakula entitled Dream Lover.

Betty Lanier '30 and Agnes Brittingham Willard '29 enjoy a conversation at the Olde Guard luncheon held at the Hospitality House. The eighth annual luncheon featured music by the d'Alfonso, Vana, Fisher Trio and a special performance by the Botetourt Chamber Singers.

Joan Showalter '55 and Dr. Robert Faulconer '43, two of the 1985 Alumni Medallion recipients, talk with Anne Dobie Peebles '44, rector of the College, at registration at the Alumni House.

S. Warne Robinson '37, president of the Society of the Alumni, gives opening remarks at the Sunset Ceremony in the courtyard of the Wren building. Participating in the service were members of the Queen's Guard and the William and Mary Choir.

The 1985 edition of the Alumni Band gave its usual excellent performance to cheering crowds at Cary Field at halftime of the William and Mary-Richmond football game. J. Coleman Anthony Jr. '52 led the '85 band, which fielded 41 members.

All escorts for the court are members of the Alumni-Student Liaison committee.

Mildred E. Layne '32 receives her Alumni Medallion from S. Warne Robinson '37, president of the Society of the Alumni, and H. Westcott Cunningham '43, executive vice president of the Society, at the Olde Guard Luncheon. Additional medallions were presented later Friday evening to Joan Showalter '55 and Dr. Robert Faulconer '43 at the Society's annual dinner.

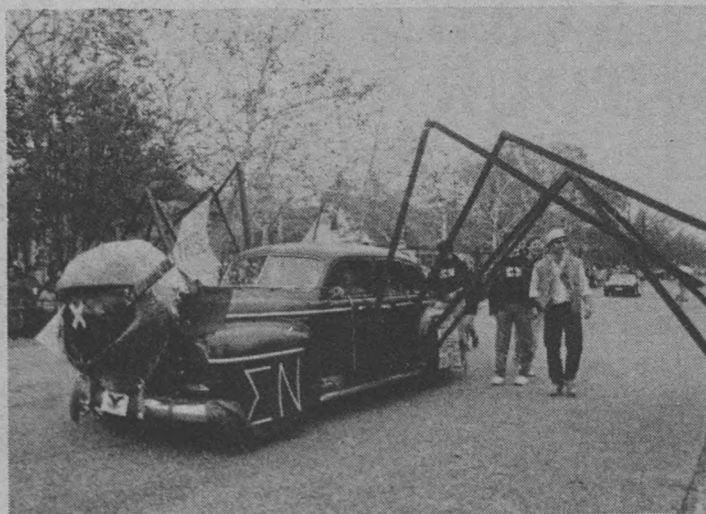

The Young Guard again had a strong turnout for its annual Keg Party at the Alumni House. Under the leadership of Chairman Sue Newman '83 and the members of the Young Guard Council, the Young Guard organization has become instrumental in the development of programs for alumni who have graduated within the past five years.

Past William and Mary basketball greats returning for Homecoming gathered in William and Mary Hall for their annual alumni game. A David Walker-coached Green team prevailed over the Gold unit, coached by Billy Person '56.

Sigma Nu received second place in the Homecoming float competition with a theme of "Squash The Spiders - Sigma Nu's DDT Squad."

Mexico City, where they boarded their plane for the homeward journey shortly before the terrible earthquake devastated so much of the country. Only a week after the disaster in Mexico, the Gravelys were at their cottage in Bethany Beach, Del., when they were forced to leave by Hurricane Gloria. They're thankful Gloria's damage was slight - mostly debris and downed tree branches.

Mathilda Crawford Whitehouse was among those who had a lovely time at the 60th class reunion last April. She and her sister, Evelyn Crawford Cheney '28, are helping Hingham, Mass., celebrate its 350th anniversary. Mathilda continues her volunteer job at the library, reads four or five books a week and has "just finished knitting two bulky sweaters for my darling great-granddaughters."

C. M. "Spike" Smith '27, who lives in Mechanicsville, Va., wrote to Helen recently. He enjoys the class notes and appreciates this avenue of keeping in touch. He stated that names mentioned bring back pleasant memories. Spike says, "Who could forget Miss Bessie Porter Taylor" and the Saturday night dances at Jefferson Gym.

From the Class of '24:

Della Breeding Gratton attended the College in 1920-21 and has "sweet memories" of her year at William and Mary. She received her degree from San Francisco State. Della visits her son in Gwynn's Island about every three years and on a recent visit located a classmate, Nettie Griffin Brinkley, who lives in Suffolk, Va.

The Reverend and Mrs. Carter Henry Harrison recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a family gathering at Cataloochee Ranch near Maggie Valley, N.C. Carter was rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Hampton for 21 years. As a college freshman, he preached his first sermon 67 years ago at Hickory Neck Episcopal Church in Toano. Mrs. Harrison (Margaret) received her undergraduate degree at Smith and her master's at William and Mary.

Walter J. Holladay Jr. decided it was time to quit and sold his peanut business in Smithfield, Va. And after 55 years of general medical practice Dr. Clyde Bedsaul retired.

The Class of '24 can boast among its members the author of The William and Mary Fight Song (Victory March). Rolfe E. Kennard, a poet, makes Homecoming a habit! He has attended every year since he graduated. The Prince George's Post Sentinel of Oct. 24-30, 1985, published a photograph of Rolfe and a nice article about his loyalty as an alumnus. Bedelia, his wife of 59 years, died early this year. Rolfe's poems "Bedelia" and "The Empty Chair" are love poems to her.

The Class News Editor is the substitute reporter this month. Helen and Stuart White took a well-deserved vacation - a cruise to the Caribbean aboard The Norway. We hope they had a wonderful time and we look forward to hearing from Helen in the April issue. Now for the news:

On behalf of the Class of '25, President Art Winder received a note of appreciation from Kennedy Clark '88, recipient of the Class of '25 grant: "I greatly appreciate your grant as it will be extremely helpful. I do intend and will be honored to continue your generous tradition by contributing to your fund myself in the future. Again, thank you very much. Sincerely, Kennedy H. Clark, Class of '88."

Caroline Sinclair with several fellow residents of Westminster-Canterbury House in Richmond have revived the limerick. They have published a collection entitled Animal Limerics, a whimsical limerick for each letter of the alphabet. They are having a lot of fun at autograph parties, and the book has been so well received that a second printing is anticipated. It can be purchased at several Richmond area bookstores and also by mail from Westminster-Canterbury. Proceeds go to the Fellowship Endowment of Westminster-Canterbury.

In April, Caroline was honored with the Centennial Award presented by the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. Caroline addressed the Southern Association of Physical Education of College Women meeting in Stone Mountain, Ga., in October.

Katherine Millner Vance writes that she is keeping very active. She also states that Dr. Vance will be 90 in January, and he still plows the garden, drives the car, and writes many letters. (Writing many letters - what class reporters wish classmates would do!)

Vernon Nunn has spent a busy summer trying to keep the yard and flowers in a respectable condition, and Liz has been busy stuffing envelopes for the Chamber of Commerce. They hope to return to Jekyll Island in December.

Marjorie Brulle Shook wrote that she might not make it to Homecoming this year, but promised to "be with you all in thoughts." She likes it in Irvington and expects to feel very much at home when she gets unpacked and more settled.

Elisabeth (Betty) Robinson Crowne and August took a boat trip down to the entrance of Dismal Swamp, which brought back memories of the trip she took long ago with the Clayton Grimes Biology Club. They visited Duke University and the University of North Carolina. Later in the summer they toured the Masonic Temple in Alexandria and went to the dinner theatre where they saw "Annie Get Your Gun." Recently, a family picnic was held at the Gathright Dam recreation area in Alleghany and Bath counties.

Dot and Red Campbell are in their winter location in Dade City, Fla. In September they attended a grandson's wedding in Shreveport. Dot remarks, "Only one grandchild left to take that walk." The Campbells plan to be with Anne and family in Houston for Thanksgiving.

Helen's faithful correspondent, Bill Gravely, wrote of his and Elizabeth's 12-day visit to Mexico in August. They stayed in a charming hacienda in the little village of Ajijic, not far from Guadalajara, and traveled through the lovely countryside to

When you read this letter Homecoming will be long past, but because of an early copy deadline you won't be reading a roll call or any details. Sorry.

Our 60th commencement anniversary comes up in 1987 (tempus fugit!), and it is time we start thinking about planning. Olde Guard Day next April would be a good time for us happy survivors to get together and talk about it, perhaps to elect some new officers. Remember, Jimmy Barnes, our president, is gone. Cotton Rawls, our vice president, will be unable to attend because of his 1984 stroke. That leaves Max Brockenbrough, secretary-treasurer; Kitty Myrick, historian; me, the poet (ha!) and Wilfred Lambert, chaplain, who is in a nursing home. I suggest that we select the most youthful classmate in good health to lead us in what probably will be our final get-together as a class from those "Golden Days" of 1927. Please think about it.

On another tack, nautically speaking, Frank Hopkins enters my good-humored, running exchange with Bill Hogan over the

OUTSTANDING CHAPTER AWARDS

The Society of the Alumni presented its awards to Alumni Chapters for outstanding efforts in 1985 at its annual banquet. At left: The Award for Outstanding Chapter was won by the New York chapter. scene of our commencement that hot June 7, 1927. Writes Frank: "I remember quite clearly where we got our degrees. It was in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, the old one that burned. I marched up right behind Margaret Holman, who preceded me alphabetically.

"I remember that old building (then new) well because the fall of 1926 I reported there for rehearsals of 'The Goose Hangs High,' Althea Hunt's first William and Mary play. Also in the cast were Kitty Myrick, Bill Morrow, Jimmy Barnes and Mary Via. Also, not from our class, Truman Welling, who was my 'father.' Kitty and Truman were parents to Bill and me in the play. Mary Via was our 'grandmother' in the role of a disapproving old lady. Jimmy Barnes was a sort of villain, a politician-alderman who was the cause of a family crisis. Fairfax Berkley was a family friend who helped work out the solution. We all had fun."

"I'll bet that brings back many fond memories to most of you. Anyhow, we were graduated in Phi Beta, regardless of how many wore the key!

Not long ago I received a fascinating letter from Joe Muscarelle containing reminiscences I'd like to share. He has recovered remarkably from a stroke two years ago and now tries to take it easy, which isn't easy for him.

Joseph L. Muscarelle, Inc., one of the largest construction firms in the country, is observing its 60th anniversary. It has completed big projects all over the U.S., Panama, Newfoundland and Argentina. Besides projects in home-base New Jersey, his firm is presently involved in a $135-million hotel complex in Pittsburgh.

Writes Joe: "I come to the office regularly and am still involved in several of my own ventures. My son, Joseph, is president of the firm and has taken over all running activity since 1971.

"He and his wife, Sharon, have five children. My daughter Carol's husband, Martin Infante, owns his insurance firm and does some construction work. My youngest daughter, Marlene, is married to Dr. Mal Flanagan, head of the Department of Urology at Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago. They, too, have five children. All grandchildren are college graduates except two who are attending now.

"Margaret, my wife, continues her interest in children. Recently in Garfield, N.J., a child development center was named in her honor. It cares for 110 children of working

More than 200 OWJ members and their guests attended the Order of the White Jacket 13th annual banquet in Trinkle Hall during Homecoming. Below, the Board of Directors gathered for a group photo. Re-elected president was Deborah S. Dalton. J. Coleman Anthony '52 (front row, fourth from left) was elected 1st vice president; Maxey B. Davis '39 (second from left, front row) was elected 2nd vice president; William L. Person Jr. '56 (second row, second from left) was elected 3rd vice president, and James S. Kelly '51 (far left, back row) was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Elected or re-elected to the Board of Directors for three year terms were William G. Thompson Jr. '28, Howard M. Smith '43, William R. Murphy '48, Colin R. Davis '50, John W. Dayton '50, Joseph S. Agee Sr. '52, Jim Anthony, Denys Grant '58, and Christopher J. Honenberger '74.

OWJ members converse about old times at the College where many of them served as waiters in Trinkle Hall where the banquet was held.

President Paul R. Verkuil '61, a member of the OWJ, addressed the group on the importance of student aid, and OWJ awarded nine scholarships at the banquet to deserving William and Mary students.

Among those giving greetings to the OWJ banquet was Anne Dobie Peebles '44, rector of the College. In addition, life memberships were accorded to Dwight C. Brown '32 and Andrew J. Christensen '32 and the Restaurateur of the Year Award was conferred on James J. Seu '53, owner of the Colonial Restaurant in Williamsburg. Secretary-treasurer Jim Kelly '51 gave an honor roll tribute to the 15 OWJ members who "answered the call to service at The Great Table during the year," in the words of Maxey B. Davis '39. A cash award went to Susan Dunham '76 for outstanding performance as OWJ administrative assistant.

1985 ALUMNI MEDALLION RECIPIENTS

mothers and offers programs for all pre-school and elementary children."

Not many of you know this but in 1975 Joe gave money for and erected the Joseph L. Muscarelle Center for Building Construction Studies at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Teaneck, N.J., which prepares men and women for managerial positions in the construction industry—a four-year program. In addition, his foundation has since 1958 awarded over 200 scholarships to deserving students who otherwise might not have been able to attend college.

Joe and Margaret are justifiably proud of the new museum of fine arts at William and Mary to which they are principal contributors and are now financially supporting construction of Phase II. They divide time between New Jersey and Florida homes.

Kitty Myrick Marshall tells me that she and Max Brochenbrough Houghland recently spent the day together and had a marvelous time. They plan a real get-together with Fax Griffith Bahr, Bobbie Meyer and Patty Hunter soon—all sorority sisters.

A humorous note from Bill Hogan closes out our 1927 commencement debate with the comment that Irishmen don't yield "easily or graciously." Wouldn't you know, his home is named "Tipperary"? He forgot to say how the Roman digs in Britain went this year.

I'm still waiting to hear from most of you. If you get tired of reading about the same faithful correspondents, sit down and write to me about yourself and don't be modest. My deadline for the April letter is Feb. 6.

Meanwhile here's wishing you a Christmas holy, happy and healthy followed by a great New Year!

We hope many of you came back for Homecoming Nov. 15-17 and enjoyed the Richmond-W&M football game.

I had hoped to have some letters from many of you to pass on to our classmates but as yet none have been received. We still have about 160 living alumni from the Class of '29. I am thinking about giving up the job as reporter of the class. The only way that I will keep the job is if many of you who have never written do so now and help out those classmates who are already writing in.

I do look forward to hearing from many of you for the next issue of the Alumni Gazette.

As I write this letter, I am looking forward to going back for Homecoming and the Olde Guard functions.

I was sorry to learn of the death of Francis Lake Hayman who lived in Princess Anne, Md., while attending college. We used to travel via the Cape Charles ferry to the Eastern Shore when coming home for vacations.

I will miss seeing Catherine Hasseltine Mayhew at Homecoming. Some of you may remember that at our 50th class reunion she wore a dress that she had worn while in college. She also brought her 1931 college yearbook to get autographs from those at the reunion.

We also regret the loss by death of Anne Elizabeth Moore Nottingham, Helen Stone Porter Estes, Victor Anthony Simiele, and Dale Wright, a member of Alpha Psi fraternity at William and Mary and a native of Laurel, Del.

Kathrine Kahle Adleman had a wonderful vacation in south-central France this summer. She visited in the village of Trebons in The Pyrenees. While at Lourdes, she was impressed to find the streets very narrow and crowded with people at all times. At Carcassonne, an old medieval city surrounded by a wall, entry was gained over a wooden drawbridge.

She also notes that the region of Bagneres de Bigorre had places for camping—with special ones for gypsies. The region also boasts several health spas.

Kathrine says that old deserted stone barns in the vicinity of Trebons are being bought and remodeled for summer homes. Across a dirt road from where she stayed there was a small stone chapel dated 1687. Inside it had five benches that each seated five people.

She mentioned that the Pyrenees are quite steep and are popular for serious mountain climbing and skiing. The scenery is beautiful and everything seemed designed for comfort and convenience. Kathrine has been invited to visit this area next summer and is looking forward to it.

C ALUMNI COLLEGE

The Society of the Alumni's Alumni College is scheduled for June 1-5, 1986. This event will bring together alumni, spouses, friends, faculty and administration on our lovely campus, endeavoring to balance a learning experience with a vacation in Williamsburg. Feedback from and contact with alumni indicates a continued strong interest in this kind of alumni activity. Our alumni and friends also tell us they wish to remain on the Old Campus and visit the new. Therefore, the group will be housed in air-conditioned, newly renovated Jefferson Hall with meals in Trinkle and classes in the Wren Building.

A curriculum is being designed to work with our main theme—A Vision of a Modern University: State of the Art. A select faculty from a number of departments will take part as lecturers. Additionally, the group will be able to enjoy Colonial Williamsburg.

Registration is now open on a first-come, first-served basis. We are striving to keep costs minimal. Therefore the entire program—room, meals, lectures, and activities—will be offered for $225.00 per person from registration Sunday to "graduation" and departure on Thursday.

Won't you join us for this unique William and Mary experience? Spend a few days in June with us back on campus, renewing memories, friendships, and ties with the College. We invite you to return to the Alma Mater of a Nation . . . to return home to William and Mary.

For further details and information, write to: Diane Hagemann, Director of Chapter Programs, Society of the Alumni, Box GO, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187. For advance reservations (early admission) please send a $25.00 deposit check, not refundable after April 15, payable to "The Society of the Alumni" and mail to: Alumni College 1986—Diane Hagemann, Box GO, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

HALSEY RECEIVES BUSINESS MEDALLION

Brenton S. Halsey, chairman and chief executive officer of the James River Corporation, has been awarded the 1985 Business Medallion by the School of Business Administration at William and Mary. Halsey is co-founder of the Richmond-based company, an integrated producer of pulp, paper and converted paper and plastics products, which has 23,000 employees working in 71 manufacturing facilities worldwide. The medallion was given in recognition of Halsey's contributions to industry. Dean John C. Jamison described Halsey as an "entrepreneur (whose) dynamic record speaks for him and his associates."

GIFT INCOME SETS RECORD

Gift income to William and Mary reached an all-time high during the 1984-85 fiscal year ending June 30, 1985, according to figures released recently by the office of university advancement in its annual report. Total gifts from all sources for all purposes reached $5,854,764, an eight percent increase over the previous record year. The figure does not take into account the worth of the Goodwin Islands, a gift to the college in 1984 appraised at $5,067,350. Highlights of the advancement office's Annual Report to Investors show alumni giving for all purposes increased by 27 percent to $2,453,007; foundation donations increased 42 percent to $1,174,954; and corporation gifts increased 9 percent to $848,476, which includes a 40 percent increase in matching corporate gifts.

From Betty:

Dear "Silent" Class of 1933:

Are you still out there? I've had no news from anyone. John Holberton and I are trying to update our directory for the class. If you change your address, be sure to send the new one to the Alumni Office, as they keep the roll up-to-date with your help.

Our class extends a welcome to our new president, Dr. Paul Verkuil, and to Mrs. Verkuil. Several area alumni chapters have had receptions or dinners for them, and I enjoyed the Richmond Chapter's welcome party. Several of you probably went to the inaugural ceremony in October at the College.

Homecoming was late this year, Nov. 15-17. I hope many of you got back for it.

In September, a friend asked me to pick up a package she wanted me to have, and when I did, her brother and sister-in-law were coming in for a visit from Rocky Mount, N.C. They were William Alexander Williams and his wife. After introductions, I found that Bill was a friend of John Holberton. Bill attended the College from 1929 until 1931.

Mildred Wallace Drummond of Norfolk is keeping track of our class funds. As Christmas nears, maybe you'd like to send a gift.

Do break the silence, and send John some news for our spring issue of the Alumni Gazette.

A Merry Christmas to all of you!

senior at the U.S. Naval Academy. Mike plays golf several times a week. His wife, Laura Mae Painter Cifelli, died in 1972. You will remember that Mike was a star on our track team. Roslyn Richardson Quirk thinks the 50th reunion was wonderful. She has a granddaughter at William and Mary this year. Roslyn married one of the outstanding football players of our day, Gerald Leo "Jerry" Quirk '34.

A most interesting letter from Harriet Council Mead announced she was busy getting ready for a book festival in which 50 authors and publishers had booths. One of the booths was for Harriet's book The Irrepressible Saint. A meeting of all the William and Mary library science majors was arranged by Elise Barnes Hardy at the 50th reunion. Harriet promised to have Elise write us the details for our next newsletter. Harriet says all members of the May Court were back for the 50th reunion except Dot Nice, and Helen Simpson. Those present in addition to Harriet were Betty Johnson, Pauline Stanley and Kitty Chiswell.

As we have been writing this newsletter we are reminded of how many of our classmates chose a spouse who was either in our class or a class just above or below. If you would be interested in knowing who and how many did this send us a note telling of any you know. We will keep you posted on the results.

How nice to hear from you, Peg Sheahan '36. I was flattered that a non-'37'er read my column. I know you had friends in our class, so they will be interested to hear that you have retired after 26 years from Marymount Manhattan College, New York City as professor of history, communication arts and administration in graduate studies. You sound like a world traveler, and I was impressed to hear that you are a lifetime volunteer to give slide lectures on wonders of the world to a variety of groups, and that you almost always lecture a bit on Williamsburg and William and Mary. You asked for Joe Marino's address: 27 Neptune Place, Colonia, NJ 07067.

Another delightful surprise - a nice letter from John Owen '40. You see I come from the city of Victoria, Va. (pop. 2,000), and John was from the city of Kenbridge (pop. slightly less than Victoria). Although I didn't know John, he knew my husband well, even played ball against him. John enrolled in W&M in 1935 and graduated in 1940. After one year of teaching high school in Southampton County, Va., he was drafted and sent to Fort Monmouth, N.J. There he met and married his wife. He has since been in and out of Fort Monmouth as both a military and a civilian employee. He is now retired. He and his wife have a son, two daughters and six grandchildren. His son, John, is a Rutgers graduate and works as an engineer with DuPont. He loves his job and thins DuPont is tops. He knew my husband who also worked for DuPont. Thank you, John, for your nice letter. I know you have friends in the Class of '37 who will be glad to hear about you.

It is now time to get the ball rolling - snowball that is. Do you realize it is just a little over a year until we have our 50th reunion, May 1987? I would certainly appreciate a card or letter from each of you telling me if you intend to come to the reunion. I'll publish a list in my column. You know how this works: if someone sees that a friend of theirs is coming, then they plan to come too. Wouldn't it be nice to have 100 percent attendance. I'm real excited about this, so please don't let me down.

Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year!

Oh dear, another "boo-boo" in my latest letter - all because of my handwriting.

Dear Dot Druckemiller, I know that we've never called you Pat but that's the way your name came through on my obviously illegible copy. Apologies, apologies.

Word from Jan Kennedy, on a lovely People's Republic of China postcard (no, they weren't there), advises that she and Tom are now living in Richmond, Va., at 75 Westham Green, 300 Ridge Avenue, 23229.

Bill Eppes is off to London again for research on his History of Montgomery Theatres. He writes that "it's all going to make exciting coverage, including John Wilkes Booth and more." He's delighted that his efforts and those of others have come to fruition with the New York University funding for the Washington Square Plaque for Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Fala. From Bill, I learned about the impending opening of the Leslie Cheek exhibit at the Muscarelle Museum.

According to an August news article, there appears to be a link between science and good golf. All of which explains, without a shadow of a doubt, why I am a total failure on the course and George Sands, retired scientist, is a star. Since his retirement from NASA, George has notched five holes-in-one on the Spotswood Course at the Golden Horseshoe. That's five aces in 17 months! "It's really a little bit flukey," he suggests. "The key is to play a lot of golf and hit a lot of shots to a lot of short holes." As far back as 1960 George slapped a 2-iron shot 185 yards into a par-3 hole at the old Williamsburg Inn course. Unfortunately, space doesn't permit a detailed account of the successive shots. Apart from golf, George does a little consulting, sails, bicycles, reads and follows sports - sounds good, George. In closing, I would like for all of you to know that each time George hit a hole-in-one, he had a witness.

A nice letter from Dr. James H. Bailey brings the good news that he was appointed curator of collections for the Museums of Petersburg, Va., on July 1. At the present time, there are five museums that function under the city's Department of Tourism. Jim is the author of Old Petersburg, published in 1976. He serves on the board of directors of the Southside Virginia Community Concerts Association. When in Ireland in May, he saw Mary Land Gill '28 kiss the Blarney Stone. Thanks for writing - good to hear from you.

Tom Helfrich planned to return for Homecoming. He lost his wife of 43 years, Phelps, in August but is keeping busy and "moving along," as he says. Before Homecoming, he planned to visit Wyatt Carneal in Gloucester, Va., and then travel to Williamsburg with Wyatt and Kathy. Tom has three married daughters (all William and Mary alumni) and four grandchildren. Two of his daughters and a brother of Tom's live in Richmond, where he is now quite a frequent visitor. Tom retired 11 years ago after 35 years with DuPont and lives in Seaford, Del. Nice hearing from you, Tom.

Enjoyed my trip to England, Wales and Scotland in September, staying at old historic inns, which, fortunately weren't too historic. Among the highlights were a visit to a sheep farm in the Lake District (I have more pictures of sheep than there are sheep, I think), Walter Scott's home, "Abbotsford," a day in Wales at the seashore (can't even spell the name of the place, let alone pronounce it), seeing "Cats" and "The Seagull" (with Vanessa Redgrave) in London and a return visit to Helmsley, England, a lovely little village in Yorkshire.

By the time you read this, the jolly season will be upon us. Happy holidays to all of you.

Nothing has come in since the last class notes. Can you imagine that? Maybe when one gets over 60 things stop happening. Or maybe they happen and we don't notice. Or we forget. Anyway, all is not lost because I do have a couple of reports to pass on to you. They came in just after I mailed the last report.

One is from Dorothy Judd, which I quote in its entirety. "Retired and living in Easthampton, Mass. I am delighted with the many cultural offerings of this area. How lovely to discover that 'great escape' need not be reserved for weekends!" Dorothy, we hope that you can make a great escape to Michael Cifelli reported he has been retired for 12 years. He has four children, two boys, and two girls. One of his children is a rising

ALUMNI BAND ORGANIZATION TO MEET

An organizational meeting of the Alumni Band Organization is scheduled for Saturday, January 11, 1986, at 2 p.m., at The Alumni House. All Band alumni are welcome and urged to attend. The agenda will include action to move forward with a Constitution and By Laws, in the direction of incorporation as a non-profit, tax exempt organization under I.R.C. section 501 (c) 3. Mike Pollock '73 (Northern Virginia, 703-628-1111 and 243-5329); Mike Smith '73 (Richmond, 804-233-0613); Mark Poland '71 (Colonial Heights, 804-520-2577); and Jim Anthony '52 (Williamsburg, 804-253-0321) comprise the pro-tem steering committee.

YALE DEAN RECEIVES M-W MEDALLION

Guido Calabresi, dean of the Yale Law School, has been named the 1985 recipient of the Marshall-Wythe Medallion from William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe School of Law. The Marshall-Wythe Medallion has been awarded annually since 1967 on a rotating basis to academics, jurists and practitioners in honor of exemplary service to the law. The recipient is nominated by vote of the law faculty with approval by the president of the College. Other Medallion recipients have included United States Supreme Court Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr., Tom C. Clarke, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, and the late Sir Rupert Cross, Vinerian Professor of Law at Oxford University.

Williamsburg this year. Certainly you can make it next year for the significant 45th. Our class is a seething "Dallas" and needs only a catalyst to set it off. Though judging from the letters we receive you might think it more like "Mr. Roger's Neighborhood." But it's all a mask. We maintain only a facade of respectability. I don't know why. The kids are gone.

Here's one I was tickled to receive. It's an article from the Journal-News, Hamilton & Fairfield, Ohio. It's headed, "Prof retires, the jewelry elf works on." And it's all about Charles Stousland Jr. - or MIK (pronounced Mike) as we remember him. He isn't retiring all the way, though, because he plans to teach a course, "Great Ideas in Western Architecture" during the winter semester. That's of interest, of course, but what comes next is more interesting. "He also intends to continue a hobby for which he may be better known - handcrafting silver jewelry.

"I've always made jewelry because it was fun, said Stousland, whose pieces are worn by thousands of people, including university presidents and the Prince of Wales."

Now, that's something, isn't it? Mik, did you have any idea that you'd be making jewelry when we knew you? We hope you're having fun. The article closes with appropriate sentimentality. "Love is what it's all about," he said. "We are a pretty loving family, and Betty [his wife] and I consider Oxford and the many friends we have here an extended family."

I'd like to tell you something about Ella Dickenson Hurt, but I'm afraid to. She and George, the Herb Youngs and we sprawled about at the Austin Robert's and she grimaced at me. Did Ella ever grimace at you? Holy cats! Wordlessly she let me know what she'd do to me if I ever mentioned her in this column again. And I don't know if they need attendants in sultans' harems anymore. So, I won't mention her.

You missed something special Oct 30-Nov. 1. Charlotte and I went to the last day's competition of the Wightman Cup and marvelled at the skills of Chris Evert Lloyd and Pam Shriver as well as the British girls. Women aren't supposed to be such superb athletes, it says here. But they are. We were there for about six hours and enjoyed every minute. That tells you how good it was because, as some of you know, my attention span is something under 20 minutes. Our minister doesn't need a watch to know when he should end his sermon. He watches for me to nod off. What he doesn't know is that I figured that out, and now I start nodding after seven minutes. His sermons are terse.

Greetings from the Gentle City.

We all share in the joy and pride of achievement of our classmate Dr. Robert J. Faulconer who received the Alumni Medallion for service and loyalty at the annual Homecoming banquet. He is a member of the Board of Visitors and is a pathologist at Eastern Virginia Medical School. Heartfelt congratulations!

Suzanne Felchin-Eppes writes from her beautiful Switzerland that all is serene, secure and "unabashedly pleasant" there. Anyone for hot chocolate?

Joe and I drove to Albuquerque and visited our daughter Linda Butler '71 and her husband, Mark. Then we boarded Amtrak for a trek to St. Louis, where we boarded the Delta Queen for a week of Mark Twain nostalgia. Simply marvelous. Then at St. Paul we went on board another train and returned to Albuquerque for a longer, lovely visit with Linda.

Winter is coming, bringing with it many holidays. Enjoy them.

Not much to report this time. But in my next letter I will have lots of news about Homecoming and our 40th.

Received a postcard from Jean Clark Ford. It had so much written on it that I'm not sure I got it all. Anyway, she and Virgil '43 have retired near Williamsburg. They celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary with a trip to Canada, then traveled to Connecticut and Boston to visit children and grandchildren.

Dinny Lee McAlinden wrote to say that she had lunch with Floss Johnson and Betty D'Agostino in October. Although Floss and Dwight were going to miss Homecoming, she and Betty planned to room together and enjoy the festivities. Dinny recently went to Washington for a Garden Club Conference and ended up at the White House for tea! Can't wait to hear about that.

The Observer, a publication from Hartsbrouck Heights, N.J., had a marvelous article on Dorothy Johnson Blom. Her career with books has been fascinating. She loves working with children and has implemented a number of innovative programs in her field. The article was a tribute to her untiring efforts on behalf of the children. Dot is retiring, but I'll bet one will frequently be able to find her at the same location. The three-page article was entitled: "25 Years at the Library - Service Above and Beyond." Enough said.

This letter is being written the day after one of the most violent and long-lasting tropically spawned storms that left many areas of Williamsburg without power and left many twigs, branches and trees down in its wake. A huge, old, oak tree in the backyard of my rental home was twisted off at about two yards from the ground, missed the fence and landed on the tops of two neighboring metal tool sheds.

I missed the last Williamsburg area alumni chapter meeting (a wine and cheese party at the Muscarelle Museum). I had planned to attend the event and sent in my reservation and remembered it as I walking toward Phi Beta Kappa Hall to attend two plays that evening. There is just so much to do here it is difficult to keep up with the

PRESIDENT'S HOUSE AT W&M RECEIVES GIFT OF CHAIRS

Three Federal period side chairs, which were used in the President's House at William and Mary during the tenure of Lyon Gardiner Tyler (1888-1919), are back home. The chairs were offered to the President's House collection by Professor and Mrs. Charles M. Davison of Charlottesville. Mrs. Davison is the granddaughter of President Tyler, and the chairs, designated as the Gilmer-Tucker-Tyler chairs, were inherited through her family.

DR. MANGUM RECEIVES DEAN'S AWARD

Dr. Charlotte P. Mangum, professor of biology, has received the first Dean's Award for Outstanding Scholarship in Arts and Sciences at William and Mary. Dr. Mangum is internationally recognized as one of the foremost experts in the field of comparative physiology. Her research efforts have resulted in over 100 publications and work has benefitted from funding by the National Science Foundation continuously for over 15 years. She has been a member of the editorial boards of six journals and is a member and officer of numerous professional societies. Her laboratory has been the training ground for many students and her influence on them extends well beyond that laboratory to their professional careers, according to Melvyn D. Schiavelli, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences.

calendar. One disappointment this year will be the lack of the fireworks display at the Christmas Grand Illumination. The attendance of increasing numbers of people at the annual event has posed a safety problem: street congestion.

This past weekend I was with a group of APVA members touring historical and architecturally interesting buildings in Washington, D.C., and Alexandria. Marjorie Merriweather Post's home, "Hillwood" was magnificent. The private tour by the curators of the Carlyle House in Alexandria (ca. 1753 and recently restored) concluded with sherry. A short walk away we entered Gadsby's Tavern (18th century) for dinner.

The Old Town Holiday Inn in Alexandria was a very pleasant and convenient place to stay.

Saturday included a tour of the Old Executive Office Building, lunch at the Old Ebbitt Grill, time to shop a bit, a tour of the Deatur House on Lafayette Square and on to the Christian Heuric Mansion (1892-94) built by a German immigrant who founded a brewery in Washington, D.C. The unusual design and decor of the Heuric Mansion contrasted with what we had already seen.

On Sunday we went to the Woodrow Wilson House, which was lovely, and then to Capitol Hill to visit the old "brownstone" home of a young couple who have an extensive private collection called the Potato Museum.

Jean McCreight Clarke writes that after 20 years of teaching she has given it up to open an antique business, which she finds fascinating. Husband, Clarke, retired from International Harvester in 1982. Jean has been elected to her town council, a first for the women of Stony Creek, Va., where she and Clarke now live.

June Haller Ford wrote a very interesting letter to me dated Sept. 5. She writes: "Recently I experienced something that is bigger than just personal news and I wanted to share it. When I was initiated into Alpha Chi Omega at William and Mary, I never dreamed that some day I would attend the Centennial Celebration Convention of the sorority, but in June 1985, that was my honor and pleasure. As president of the Baltimore Alumnae Club of Alpha Chi Omega, I represented our club at National Headquarters of Alpha Chi and six or seven other fraternities and sororities, in sort of a fraternal compound. Nearby, in Greencastle, is DePauw University, where on Oct. 15, 1885, seven young female music students were officially presented to the university as the founders of Alpha Chi Omega. Now the sorority has a national membership of about 113,000, with 121 active collegiate chapters, and alumnae chapters and clubs all over the U.S.

"About 1,700 Alpha Chis attended the five-day Centennial Convention and enjoyed official group meetings, theme luncheons and banquets at the Indianapolis Convention Center, sightseeing trips to the Indy Speedway and Museum, the art museum, DePauw University, Butler University and National Headquarters.

"At the reunion banquet the first night, we were seated by chapters, and the sisters from William and Mary included the collegiate president, Connie Bane '86; also Harriet Rippe Doub '57, Jean Scribbins Dewe '41 and Anne Reynolds Wood '37. Harriet is presently a national officer, having previously served as president of the Baltimore Alumnae Club and the Virginia Beach Alumnae Club, and as district alumnae chairman. Jean was one of the convention hostesses from the Indianapolis chapter. Anne is a member of the Washington, D.C., alumnae chapter, and a classmate of hers, Annabel Hopkins Mitchell '37, is a member of the Baltimore Alumnae Club. A near-classmate of mine, Virginia 'Wicky'

Wierum Bennett '48, is also one of our members.

"At our meeting in October, we will celebrate the centennial with a pot-luck supper and birthday cake, and I'll give a slide presentation of the convention and other sight-seeing events in Indianapolis.

"On a more personal note, Al Ford and I have been married now for 37 years and have an adopted daughter, now 24, and into social work at a shelter for battered spouses. Al is a vice president at Bendix Field Engineering Corporation in Columbia, Md., and also teaches business psychology at the Evening College of Johns Hopkins University. He has gotten into rose growing as a hobby, as well as photography. I do volunteer work at a local library and at our church thrift shop and two soup kitchens in Baltimore. We take summer vacation trips with his sisters, Dorothy Ford Lippincott '34 (who writes the '34 alumni news for the Alumni Gazette) and Ethel "Pat" Ford Updegrove '40 and their spouses."

Jeanne Nelson '45 is driving down from Washington, D.C., this weekend to share time with me, rather than attend Homecoming. We'll have much to see and do to up-date her as to what has been going on in town and on the campus.

My only regret is that Williamsburg has become so popular that it is expanding more and more and the traffic becomes increasingly impossible.

Please keep the news coming. I can't write a column without your interest and support!

Merry Christmas to all! I look forward to your notes on holiday cards.

Diane Evans Conwell and husband, George '50, live in Richmond where George is personnel director for the can division of Reynolds Metals Company. Diane had a busy year in 1975 when she graduated from Virginia Commonwealth University after leaving William and Mary in '51, and George received a master's degree. The Conwells have four daughters: Linda is a graduate of the College and has three sons; Kathy and Patricia graduated from Virginia Commonwealth University. Patricia is expecting this month, so there will be another grandchild in the family. Youngest daughter, Bonnie, will finish her studies at James Madison University next May.

Also from Richmond, Va., John Dalton

has been elected a director of Bank of Virginia Company. He remains a partner in the law firm of McGuire, Woods and Battle. In addition to John's varied activities, he is a member of the boards of directors of Bassett Furniture Industries, Chesapeake Corporation, CSX Corporation, Ethyl Corporation, Figgie International Holdings, Inc., Life Insurance Company of Virginia, and Henrico Doctors Hospital.

Patrick Wright took an early retirement from Anne Arundel County, Md., public schools. He and his wife, Ellen, moved to Florida. They have one granddaughter. Patrick is director of music at Broadway United Methodist Church. He has a special love for birds, mainly finches and cockatiels, and plants of the bromeliad varieties.

Carolyn Burt Hume wrote a long, newsy letter about her family. She and Joe '55 continue to be busy in the business forms industry. "Burt" especially enjoys selling and designing their Keystone Business Forms. They have three manufacturing plants located in Muncy, Pa., Buffalo, N.Y., and Forest, N.C. Joe has his own plane, which they use for travel and for vacation trips. Son Joe Jr. also is a pilot and is in his last year of graduate school at Penn State. He will receive his master's in business management and marketing. The Humes are grandparents; their daughter, Terry, has two daughters. In their spare time "Burt" and Joe pursue their golf game.

James E. Lawrence is an Air Force colonel with the inspection and safety center and presently is stationed at Norton AFB in Calif. He had returned to the College in '55 and received a doctorate.

Our thoughts are with Martha Parker Stanley who lost her husband, Dick '54, this summer.

Hope you all enjoyed a beautiful fall in Williamsburg during Homecoming. Happy, healthy holidays.

A very happy fall to all! Our class notes deadline falls prior to Homecoming so please be patient; Homecoming news will come in the next Gazette. We must take time, however, to congratulate Joan Frances Showalter who received the Alumni Medallion this year. Joan is vice president, personnel, CBS, Inc.

Claire Schoener Laedtke wrote that she had just returned from a New York-Connecticut vacation where she enjoyed luncheons with Sue Rosar Sheehan who is avidly pursuing her loves of choral music and the winter sport of curling, and Judy Brown Raas who is enjoying trips with Friends of the Library. Claire said they all exchanged family notes and agreed that they looked fantastic and that the years had been good to them! Claire returned home to a new year of teaching learning disabled children in Rochester, Minn.

Eleanor Sellers Hoppe, who attended W&M in 1951-52, sent a brochure to the Alumni office describing a book just published that she coauthored, titled Scalples and Sabers: Nineteenth-Century Medicine in Texas. In the same brochure was an article telling of another book titled Reflections and Observations, essays of Denton A. Cooley, M.D. Dr. Cooley is Surgeon-in-Chief of the Texas Heart Institute in Houston, and his wife is Louise Thomas '45.

Alison Sandlass Carr wrote that her oldest son, Nevin, is a lieutenant, U.S. Navy, and is working on his master's degree at the Naval Post Graduate School in Monterey, Calif., where he lives with his wife, Ann Cary, and their two sons. Daughter Sue is married and living in Wickford, R.I., while daughter Becky, also married, is in Worcester, Mass., where her husband, Jon, is a medical student. Daughter Jessie is at O.D.U. majoring in history. Husband, Pete, is retired from the Navy and is working for Atlantic Research Corporation. Al is still in the art world with her focus now on watercolor.

Dick and I just wound up our summer golf with a round with Helen Barber Stabile and Jack. Helen is great and really brings the house down when she talks of her life B.G. and A.G. (before golf and after golf). As I wrote once in the past, Helen holds the record for the most rounds played at her club in one year!

Do drop a line. We'd love to hear about you!

Sarah Derry Callahan wrote from Des Moines that she is going through the "empty nest syndrome." Her daughter Anne is in Phoenix while her daughter Nancy is in New York City. To keep busy, Sarah is working in real estate while Sam, her husband, has a mortgage banking company.

One Saturday the phone rang. It was Betty Brown Hayward (now known as Liz). Between Nov. 7 and Dec. 10 she had an art show at St. Peter's Church on Lexington and 54th Street, N.Y.C. If you missed it and would like to get in touch with her, she now lives at 1103 55th Street, Brooklyn, 11219. Good luck with the showing and your career!

Mary Jamieson Wallace wrote that she is now the assistant dean of the William Allen White School of Journalism at the University of Kansas in Lawrence. She represented the College at the inauguration of KU's chancellor in 1981. Mary was at Homecoming last fall but was one of the many I missed. (Poor journalism on my part!)

Our news is short this time. You all will just have to write more if you want to read more. Please help me out.

News from Margaret Barnhart Gunn is that she is close to completing the post bac-

The fourth William and Mary Alumni Golf Outing was held on September 28-29, 1985, at the home of the Tribe—Kingsmill on the James. Coach Joe Agee '52 initiated the concept in 1982 when 15 prior golfers returned for a "fun fundraising" weekend. The weekend got started with five of the ex-greats playing the Golden Horseshoe on Saturday morning. The individual champion, who won the "green jacket award" was Russ Brown '74 of Hilton Head, S.C. The team members, alumni and their wives, gathered at Kingsmill for a delightful dinner and refreshments. The returnees included: Joe Agee Jr. '78, Hilton Head, S.C.; Worth Banner '68, Virginia Beach, Va.; Russ Brown '74, Hilton Head, S.C.; Len Brooks '81 - Larchmont, N.Y.; Scott Cousino, '78, Baltimore, Md.; "Lee" Dixon '66, Gambrills, Md.; Mike Gregor '85, Huntingdon Valley, Pa.; Steve Isaacs '70, Midlothian, Va.; Larry Larsen '85, Winchester, Va.; David Stewart '66, Alexandria, Va.; Kevin Sullivan '84, Richmond, Va.; Bert Wilson '74, Richmond, Va. The captain's choice tournament was played on Sunday in perfect weather. The winning team of David Stewart '66, Lee Dixon '66, Chip Brewer '86 and Joe Monk '88 had -12. Three groups tied at -10. The date for next year's outing is the Harvard weekend—October 5, 1986.

laureate certificate program in information systems at Virginia Commonwealth University. She works as a technical writer at Life Insurance Company of Virginia. Sterling '66 is an insurance agent and broker, and their daughter Nancy is a sophomore at the College. Daughter Elizabeth is a high school student, and both girls are interested in theater and music.

Just promoted to community resource developer with the N.J. Division of Youth and Family Services is Jim Gandy of Bridgeton, N.J. He is also developing a wholesale nursery business at home.

Ann Jensen Stern writes that she is the circulation manager for her local newspaper. Her husband, Alvin, is a maritime insurance manager and an admiralty attorney. They have two daughters—Keelan, a freshman at Brown University, and Leslie, a high school freshman. Their home is in Ardsley, N.Y.

This year found Bunny King Neff changing jobs. She is now with General Electric running a unique plant "outplacement" project designed to help displaced workers to retrain and obtain jobs. She is also working on her Ph.D. at Bowling Green State University.

Pat Portney Stern's husband, Paul, is president of Burroughs Corporation. Their son Paul finished his first year at Duke and daughter, Andrea, is starting her studies at Wharton School of Business. Both are on the dean's list. Their son Andrew is a very active 13-year-old, and Pat is still Pat!

Robert Stoy writes that he has been a school administrator at T.C. Williams High School in Alexandria, Va., since 1964. His wife Mary Berkeley '64 is a school librarian, and they have one son and one daughter.

Since Ron Willard has two sons attending Falls Church High School, one may probably find him spending most of his spare time coaching basketball.

It's nice to see that some people became motivated and wrote letters this time. Inspiration hit Dave Kurland, and I am glad to be able to pass on his news. After graduation, he received his M.B.A. from Columbia University, spent some time in active duty in the Army and stayed in the Army Reserve until his recent retirement as lieutenant colonel. Until 1984 he worked at the Connecticut Bank and Trust Company eventually becoming head of the branch system. Upon leaving the bank, Dave became president and chief executive officer of a newly organized bank, Community National, which opened in July 1985. This has been quite an exciting adventure for Dave, besides being a lot of fun! Dave and his wife, Joanne, have a daughter, Leigh, live in Glastonbury, Conn., and enjoy traveling. Thanks for your letter, Dave.

Another letter brings news from Swarthmore, Pa., and Susan Kohler Frost. Her husband, William, is the Jenkins Professor of History at Swarthmore College, director of the Friends Historical Library, and editor of The Pennsylvania Magazine of History. They spend their time between the Swarthmore campus and their home in Hawaii. Their son, James, started his freshman year at Oberlin College.

Peggy Thornblom Campbell, her husband, Ken, and their three children live in Houston where she is loving every minute of being a "housewife"!

After 20-plus years with his first employer since the Army, Robert Stephens has now become the area director of the American National Insurance Company and a business consultant in the areas of marketing, sales and risk management.

The news from Patricia Singleton Parker and her husband is of the success of their children. Their son, John, has graduated with honors from the Webb School of Knoxville and will be attending Vanderbilt College. Their daughter, Nancy, dances with the Knoxville Ballet Company.

It seems hard to believe that Joe and I will be attending the 25th reunion in just a few weeks. It's harder to believe that we will be attending mine next year! It's not too early for all of us to think about next year and plan a really incredible reunion. I'll keep hounding you through this column.

Joanie Solinger Walker worked for three and a half years as administrative assistant to the president of Alliance Agromics in Mechanicsville, Va., and then "retired" in May 1985, to marry Lewis M. Walker III of Petersburg, Va. They are currently building a house on Lewis' grain farm in Dinwiddie County. Joanie also continues to write and edit a quarterly in-house newsletter for Alliance. In their spare time they sail a thirty-foot Hunter class boat in the Bay.

Pete Olson wrote that one of the first pieces of mail to reach him in Mexico after the 8.1 earthquake was the Alumni Gazette. Pete wrote: "We are O.K., thank goodness. Our building was closed for several days, but it was finally determined that the structure was sound despite the damage to the plaster. (My office is on the 10th floor.) Other parts of the city were not so fortunate, and the immediate center of Mexico City is probably about 50 percent gone. It is somewhat ironic to see areas such as the one where we live look as if nothing had happened and a few miles away to find other areas that look like downtown Beirut. Our immediate concern after the quake was letting our families know we were O.K. Fortunately, the U.S. Embassy finally set up a system to relay messages, and I know everybody's families were relieved. (I believe there are about 25,000 Americans living here.) Work is now past the rescue phase, and demolition and reconstruction are about to commence. I think it will take two to three years to reconstruct, and there is of course the question of how all this will be financed—the economy has been in a state of crisis for the last three years. People in my business are concerned about the implications of this disaster for the external debt situation, and we are hoping that the additional financing required will be forthcoming from the World Bank and other transnational institutions." Pete is vice president of First Interstate Bank in Mexico City.

Jodi Russell Horton was able to attend the New York City Alumni Group meeting at Sotheby's last spring. Her eldest child, Kristin, entered Wellesley this fall. Their son Ted is in the ninth grade at Rumsey Hall School in Washington, Conn. Her husband, Kit, is in business for himself near their home in Rye, N.Y., and Jodi is still director of public relations and development at St. Joseph's Medical Center in Yonkers, N.Y.

Cindy Cain Moore, Bill '66, and their four children live in Plymouth, Mich., where he is pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church. Quimby James Amory has a daughter, Aurelia, in the freshman class at William and Mary. Aurelia is the fourth generation to attend the College. Francis Drewry Green is currently general manager of Miller and Rhoads' Willow Lawn store in Richmond, Va. Her husband, Bob, is an associate professor at the Virginia Commonwealth University School of Social Work. Their son Jay is in the first grade at St. Christopher's and enjoys T-ball and swim-team activities.

Camilla Clocker is employed as a searcher at the Library of Congress. For fun she enjoys book restoration, furniture refinishing, ice dancing with the U.S. Figure Skating Association, and working as a photographer for the American Horticultural Society. Charles Clements now lives in Reston, Va., where he is an editorial assistant with The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics. Mary Erskine Jackson is an elementary school counselor on Bainbridge Island near Seattle. She lives in Seattle with her husband, Bruce, who is also a school counselor. They have two children, Mike, 15, and Ben, 9.

Thanks to Rick Shelly for responding to my plea for news from those of you unheard of for so long! Rick earned his master's and doctorate from the University of Virginia. He has taught at both UVA School of Medicine (for eight years) and Virginia Tech. Rick is presently the director of the Roanoke Valley Governor's School, one of four regional secondary schools initiated by Governor Robb for students gifted and talented in science, math, computer science and technology. Having been appointed as a Project Hope Fellow, he has been to Costa Rica twice during the last two years assisting in the introduction of new health care programs by their Ministry of Health.

Pat Bailey Jensen is now president of Motor Specialists Company, a NAPA auto parts store in Charlottesville. She is also chairman of the advertising council for NAPA Richmond distribution center and is on the regional ad council for a seven-state area. Pat and Doug have three sons, 10, 8 and 5, and an 18-month-old daughter.

Michael Hodnett is practicing law in Gastonia, N.C., involved primarily in trial

ENDOWMENT ASSOCIATION NAMES NEW MEMBERS

The Endowment Association of the College of William and Mary recently named six new trustees to three-year terms at its annual meeting. They are: Herbert V. Kelly Sr. '41 of Newport News; John F. Kuemmerle '50 of New York City; Alan B. Miller '58 of King of Prussia, Pa.; George W. Roper of Norfolk; Nicholas J. St. George '60 of Greensboro, N.C.; and Paul R. Verkuil '61, president of William and Mary. The Endowment Association is a private, non-profit organization which helps devise policies for fund-raising and investment of the college's private funds. The group has 33 active trustees, 37 emeritus trustees and five live trustees.

work. His 12-year-old daughter is the joy of his life. Michael recently remarried Leslie Fry.

Larry Qualls has directed another play by Daryl Chin, "Aspersions Cast," presented at New York's Theater for the New City in November.

Debbie Thomas Pomeroy '66 and Ben moved from Columbia, S.C., to Richmond last year. Ben is with Colonial Life Insurance Company. Their 16-year-old son, Brad, plays basketball for Midlothian H.S., Scott, 13, is an accomplished soccer player, and daughter, Christy, 13, is competing in tennis at the state level. Mike and Julia Ann Dickinson Greenwood are also in Richmond. He is president of Plywood and Plastics, and she is headmistress for the New Community School, a high school for learning disabled teens. Their 15-year-old daughter, Ann, plays basketball for St. Catherine's.

Dee Ford Bane lives in Hampton with son Greg, 9. Dee works in Norfolk. Mary Jim Baskerville Shaw recently moved from Maryland to Florida with her two children.

DICK DAVIS '42 SUBJECT OF TELEVISION PROFILE

Lt. Governor Richard J. Davis Jr. '42 was featured in a special installment of the "Great Citizen of Tidewater" series presented by Cox Cable, which provides cable television services in the Norfolk, Va., area. The program explores Davis' personal and professional achievements as lawyer, mortgage banker and politician. A member of the Board of Visitors of William and Mary and former mayor of Portsmouth, Davis talks about his early background and the Depression years, during which eating and having a pair of shoes was a primary motivating factor for many. He recalls working his way through William and Mary in jobs ranging from a night watchman at the Williamsburg Inn to waiting on tables in Trinkle Hall.

I will apologize right now for the brevity of this column but the news just didn't come in and my time was too tight to make the million calls it seems to take to get more. Please help me for the February deadline so we can once again be well represented.

One of my faithful writers is Woody Lookabill. He wrote that he is still practicing law in Pulaski. In his spare time he enjoys racquetball, a weekly Bible study group and several civic organizations. He and his wife, Jane, have two boys, David and Joshua, and a girl, Kimberly. They planned to go to Homecoming this year.

My other faithful writer is Carol Hamerson Garrard. She and John now live in Tucson where he is the new head of the Russian department at the University of Arizona as well as director of the Institute for the Study of the Soviet Union (ISSUE) - a federally funded organization. Carol and John just published their first coauthored article "The Politics and Economics of Soviet Book Hunger" in Problems of Communism. Carol works part time as coordinator of research proposals for the faculty of humanities at the university and is working on a book with her husband that will be published by MacMillan. She also mothers her two little girls, ages 2 and 4!

Richard Sills reported to the Alumni office that he is "alive and well with two children, Brian, 6, and Jennifer, 3." Richard lives in Woodbridge, Va., and works at the Pentagon. A press release announced that Robert Holmes, an associate professor of legal studies at Bowling Green State University, has been named to Who's Who in American Law. Robert is a specialist in federal law and teaches courses in contracts, sales, secured transactions, commercial paper, agency, labor, discrimination and buying and selling law. Robert is also the author of the book Computers, Data Processing and the Law published last year by West Publishing.

Patrick Stoner, the WHYY-TV 12 critic, was chosen as one of the 24 judges for New York City's EMMY competition held the end of October. He judged well over 100 entries for the award of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences Nancy Verser Brumback wrote today that she and Ron have taken on a new project - working on the restoration of a 1902 Victorian House outside of Boston. Sounds like "fun" when you both work and you have a 7-year-old and a 3-year old!

Best wishes for a happy holiday to each of you. Make your resolutions now to write your doings these past 16 years early in 1986. We all miss hearing from you!!

BRINKLEY ELECTED-PRESIDENT OF LEGG MASON WOOD WALKER, INC.

James W. Brinkley '59 has been elected president of Legg Mason Wood Walker, Inc., a financial firm headquartered in Baltimore, which provides securities brokerage, investment banking, asset management and other financial services to individuals, corporations and institutions in the mid-Atlantic region. Brinkley, who along with his wife Dana '60 is alumni co-chairperson of the William and Mary Annual Fund, has been with Legg Mason or its predecessors for 23 years. He is a member of the President's Council and trustee of the Endowment Association and is a former member of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. Brinkley's election was announced by Raymond A. Mason '59 chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the firm.

MILLER AWARD IN PHILOSOPHY ESTABLISHED

Friends and classmates of Gerald G. Miller '74 have established an endowment fund in his memory to provide an annual award to a senior philosophy student who presents the best essay in an annual competition. After graduating from William and Mary with highest honors in philosophy, Miller studied law and jurisprudence as a Draper's Scholar at Oxford, went on to Harvard Law School where he received his J.D. in 1978, and then returned to his home state of Wisconsin to practice law until his death in 1984. For further information regarding the fund, contact the College's Development Office at (804) 253-4391.

husband, Ed, will celebrate by ordering up an easy winter for us in his job as Storm Czar at the National Weather Service.

Albert Neuner has been named principal of Vandermeulen H.S. in Port Jefferson, N.Y. Lindsey North divides time between her two sons and a job as a part-time systems programmer in Menlo Park, Calif. After finishing his residency at Dartmouth, Dave Fabian set up his orthopedic surgery practice in Framingham, Mass. He has three children.

"Bootie" Kreulen Oswalt writes that she, husband, Chuck (surgeon), and son, Chase, love "our little Texas town of Graham and our lifestyle, which includes lots of hunting and fishing." Bootie says she went back stage in Chicago recently to congratulate Calvin "Pooh Bah" Remsburg on a fine performance as Old Deuteronomy in the road company of "Cats."

Ivy Akers Sinaiko is heavily involved in the League of Women Voters in addition to her job as an intergovernmental affairs specialist for the Defense Department. "My spare time is spent reading, gardening, traveling, and enjoying life with my husband and dog."

Ed Bryant has been promoted to manager of medical biostatistics for Ortho Pharmaceutical in New Jersey. Sally Jane Lamond is senior vice president/treasurer Freedom Savings in Tampa.

One of Pat Boyle Bruner's secrets for sanity: weekends in D.C. with husband John, away from the kids. Pat has a private practice in child and adolescent psychology in Petersburg. (John does staff training in computer programming.) Pat sends word of several friends: Gail Lillard Singletary is on the board of a mental health center in Spartansburg, S.C. She has been river rafting, camping and skiing recently with husband, Frank, (physician) and their two children.

In Prince George County, Va., Ken Robinson is director of special education, after doing graduate work at William and Mary. He plays softball and volleyball, practicing spikes with diapers from his baby girl. Jane Robinson Matheus is special education supervisor in Dinwiddie County. She teaches swimming and enjoys mining and shaping semi-precious stones with husband, Jerry ('73), under the supervision of their talking parrot, Zulu. Donna Gilman Dennchy is training horses at Eagle Point Farm in Ashland, Va.

Your reporter has had an eventful fall, covering everything from the Mexican earthquake to the visit of Their Royal Highnesses Chuck and Diana. (Yes, she looks mahvelous. I asked her what her favorite TV show was. Answer: Dynasty - pronounced dinnasty.)

Howdy! After a recent trip to Montana and the home of the Marlboro Man (Helena) I just had to get that out. We have done a lot of traveling lately to such hot spots as New Hampshire, Philadelphia and the alleged Garden State, New Jersey. Ann Marie is well into her second collaborative effort in women's fiction, and I'm having trouble finding words to fill this report. Here are a few pearls that found their way into our mailbox along with all the bills and junk mail.

Elizabeth Thiele Martin and her husband, Earle, had a baby boy, Jonathan Earle, in September 1984. The Martins are living in an old Victorian (are there any other kind?) house outside Boston, Mass. Betty is a pathologist at Mt. Auburn Hospital in Cambridge.

Chris Galfo armed with his B.S. in physics, received his Ph.D. from UVA and is now senior process engineer for the Performance Semi-Conductor Company in Santa Clara County, Calif. Naval Officer Stephen J. Corner and his equally military wife, Air Force Captain Sandra Corner, are presently residing in Hertfordshire, England. They moved there in June for a three-year tour of duty. Typical wet, cold English weather is requiring use of the fireplace in their Victorian estate. There son is about to matriculate as a freshman at the University of Maryland, Munich. Steve's address is Box 17, CINCUSNAEUR (N2) London, England, FPO N.Y. 09511-5000.

Stephanie Wickowski, after five years with the civil division of the U.S. Justice Department is on her way to a private law firm - Learch, Early, Roshman and Frankel - working with the bankruptcy group of a multi-dimensional law firm. Stephanie is also teaching creditors' rights at Catholic University Law School and keeping her ear cocked for any business bankruptcy consultations. She is anxious to hear from Barbara Woodall who may or may not be homebound with a new baby. So let's get together ladies. Stephanie's address in our nation's capital is 755 Third St. S.W., Washington, DC 20024.

Finally Chuck Hall sent a great two-pager in an attempt (that all of you 73'ers should emulate) to reestablish contact with classmates. Chuck and Kathy are presently living in Suffolk, Va., at 5628 Canterbury Lane, 23435. Their home is midway between Chuck's job in Hampton and Kathy's in Portsmouth. Chuck is an administrator for the Mental Health Systems in Hampton/Newport News. The work covers the gamut of assistance for all age groups and treatment needs. Apparently there are a number of peaks and valleys in Chuck's line of work and never a dull moment. The lovebirds have a 26-foot Columbia sailboat to help them get away from it all and it's appropriately named the Psyche. In cold weather, they alpine ski (obviously not in Mt. Trashmore) up in New England. Any of you reprobate Sigma Chi's or Roanoke refugees who want to give Chuck a hard time, just get in touch. That includes Tom Dabney and Phil Snead.

The Tribe football fortunes took another upswing in Princeton-N.J.'s Silicon Valley, and this fall has been good to most of W&M's women's and men's teams.

Remember, only you can help make this news notes section interesting, so please write even if it's only a postcard or the inside of a chewing gum wrapper. Our next deadline is Feb. 6, 1986.

Keep the Faith.

Hi, all. Since I'm writing this before Homecoming and you're reading it after, there may be moments of confusion. The news filtering in to Wisconsin recently has been sparse. Just keep in mind that I'm hoping to hear from lots of you, recounting your great reunion experience with impressive insight gained over the last ten years. Send me all the details. I'll edit liberally with same insight.

Melissa Wright Johnson sent a hilarious letter giving me friendly advice and general household tips on childrearing. Irma Bombeck move over! In between hints, she did say that she and Wayne are still happily ensconced in Lynchburg. Whitney, 6, is in first grade, and Reid, 4, is in the dog house constantly. Boys will be boys, Melissa. Wayne is benefits and insurance manager with CB Fleet, while Melissa rides horses and contemplates going back to teaching part time next year. Stay tuned.

Carmella Maurizi also wrote to bring us up to date on the whereabouts of the Bladergreens. When last we heard, she and Mark were living in Seattle, Wash., while Mark completed his five years of general surgery training. In June 1984 they settled in Durham/Chapel Hill to allow him to finish a research fellowship in cardio-thoracic surgery. In the spring they'll head north to Boston for his final two years of cardio-thoracic training. (Now I know what made Dr. Mark Craig on St. Elsewhere so grouchy!) Carmella has been working for the Durham Arts Council's CAPS (Creative Arts in the Public Schools) program teaching creative dramatics around Greek myths and performing at the Duke Art Museum. She's also on the faculty of the Center for Visual and Performing Arts in Chapel Hill/Carrboro, teaching acting to adults and creative dramatics to children ages 6-13. Daughters Erin, 5, and Leigh, 4, are in preschool and picking up southern accents - suitable for a Tennessee Williams' heroine.

Wendy Anstaett and her husband are living in Atlanta and traveling all over the country for IBM. They earned a free trip to Barbados for all their hard work. And guess what they do for fun? They bought a small airplane and spend weekends flying to new golf courses. And, yes, Wendy has her pilot's license.

Ruth Anne Clark has gone back to school full-time after five years as the associate curator at the Old Town Hall Museum of the Historical Society of Delaware. She has a graduate teaching position at the University of Delaware where she teaches photography and is finishing her M.F.A. in photography. She had three photographs hanging in the juried exhibition "National Aperture '85" sponsored by the Associated Artist, Inc., of Winston-Salem.

Mallery Carter Joyce is president of a financial planning firm, Summit Financial Resources, in Newport News. She has one daughter, 11, and is married to Richard L. Joyce. Mallery is currently completing the Ch.F.C. designation from the American College, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

On July 1, Jeffrey Greenspon was promoted to the rank of associate professor of psychology at Hobart and William Smith colleges. Jeffrey earned his master's and doctoral degrees from Clark University and has a research interest in experimental facilitation of behavioral recovery following brain damage. This summer Jeffrey made a presentation on trigeminal chemo-reception at the 50th Jubilee Congress of the Hungarian Physiological Society in Budapest.

Now, if you're all still with me, we'll adjourn to the stork report. Margaret (Peggy) Lawlor Hutchinson and her husband, Mark, have a baby boy, John William Hutchinson. And Nancy Norman Hudock and Mike have a new baby girl, Kelsey Lynn.

That's it for now. Keep those letters coming, and have a Merry Christmas one and all.

ASSOCIATE MEMBERS

Three retiring faculty members were named Associate Members of the Society of the Alumni at Homecoming. Shown with H. Westcott Cunningham, executive vice president of the Society, are Edmund Derringer, men's intercollegiate athletics, William J. Maddocks, School of Business Administration, and Willard Van Engel of the School of Marine Science.

MASON ENDOWMENT ESTABLISHED

The Walter G. Mason Endowment for Faculty Support in the School of Business at Lynchburg College has been established by friends and family of the former rector of the College of William and Mary. Mr. Mason, after whom a visiting professorship in the department of religion at William and Mary is named, is former president and chairman of the board of Mason & Lee, an investment banking firm.

PAMELA CHINNIS '46 ELECTED TO HIGH CHURCH POSITION

Pamela Chinnis '46 of Washington, D.C., has been elected vice president of the House of Deputies of the Episcopal Church. Chinnis, a former president of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni, is the first woman elected to a leadership post in the House of Deputies, which admitted women to membership only 15 years ago. A church official called Chinnis' election "a landmark decision."

Where was everyone last month? I only have a few items to report so you are going to have to make up for it.

Dr. Anton Allen has announced plans to practice diagnostic radiology in Blytheville, Ark. He recently completed a residency program in radiology at the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston. He received his medical degree from the Medical College of Virginia.

In California, Judith Cromie Minton was recently promoted to the position of personnel director for I. Magnum's San Francisco store. Husband, Paul, is still pursuing his Ph.D. in economics while starting a business with some associates from Stanford.

Gail Borgatti Croall has completed a one-year fellowship in developmental pediatrics and opened a private pediatrics practice on Oct. 1. Dave is still practicing labor/employment law with Frost & Jacobs. They are both enjoying their six-month-old daughter, Lauren.

Belated congratulations to John Ailor who married Wendy Anne Ball '81 in the Wren Chapel in February 1982. Peter Garland moved to Harrisonburg, Pa., last summer when he began a new position with the commissioner of higher education. His responsibilities include the drafting of the Commonwealth's master plan for higher education and related studies.

Sheila Klatt is living in Virginia Beach now where she earned her license in clinical social work last summer. She is working for Rehab Care, Inc., in Portsmouth. Jessica Kersey joined the staff of PC Magazine in December 1984 as a public relations manager. PC Magazine, located in New York City, is one of the largest microcomputer publications in the world.

In March, Darien Shirley Petit and her husband, Brian, became the proud parents of a baby girl, Allison Shirley. Robin Goodloe worked as an endangered species biologist for the fish and wildlife service in Maryland at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center until she went back to school last September. She is working on her Ph.D. in wildlife biology at the University of Georgia in Athens.

Lisa Flexer Ragland is an admissions counselor at American University. Her husband, Stuart, is in graduate school in economics at the University of Maryland. They are settling in the Wheaton, Md., area.

In July, Drs. Mark and Carol Pugh moved from Charleston, S.C., to Voorhees, N.J. Carol started a new job as an assistant professor of clinical pharmacy at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. She is also involved in patient care at the Philadelphia V.A. Hospital. Mark recently had surgery on his hips but hopes to begin the drug information residency at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital next July.

Greg Rutledge is living in Baton Rouge, La. Steve Greenlaw teaches economics and coaches women's soccer at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va. He and his wife, Kathy, live in Alexandria, Va.

Now living in Silver Spring, Md., Peter Boyer is employed as a hospital specialist for Key Pharmaceuticals. He married Carol Garrubbo in October 1983. Sylvia Lundquist is now a graduate student at Oklahoma State University with an assistantship in the English department.

Laurie Bond recently started a new job in the chief accountant's office at the Securities and Exchange Commission. Janice Steed Lewis and her husband, Evan, had their first child, Kathryn, in November 1984. Evan has started a new job with Legal Services of Southside Virginia.

Pam Myers Waymack is administrator of the Department of Family Medicine of the University of Maryland Medical System in Baltimore, Md. She was advanced to membership status in the American College of Hospital Administrators. Pamela Jordan Penny is a senior manager in the Houston office of Peat Marwick. This past spring, Denise Adams was chosen as the 1985 Young Career Woman of the Year by the Williamsburg area chapter of the Business and Professional Women's Club. She married Travis McDonald in May 1985. He is an architectural historian at Colonial Williamsburg.

The sun never sets on the Class of '83. Leslie Allsopp, serving as a Peace Corps volunteer, is spending a second year in Western Samoa. Karen Hoyle Al-Chacar worked as an English teacher in a Beirut, Lebanon, orphanage. However, she and husband, Nicolas Ramey Al-Chacar, recently returned to the U.S. and now enjoy the peaceful North Carolina countryside. Stephanie Baranowski spent two years abroad, working at the Spanish Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky., where Kristin Andreason is also a student. Lieutenant Robert Scott, after a tour of duty in Panama, returned to his station in Monterey, Calif., and relishes the Pacific Ocean and beaches. Overlooking the ocean from a different direction are Chrys Lonick and Cindy Duck. Both have packed their bags and moved to Maui, where Chrys was transferred to the Hyatt Regency. Their new address is: 12T7&8, 500 Kapalua, Maui, HI 96761.

Teresa McCoy and Mike Madser, who were married in September, honeymooned in Maui. Andrea Spessard (bridesmaid), Sue Newman, Jodi Scarlata, Maggie Degan, Debbie Hall, Cathy Evans, Tricia West, and Sandy Cimerman all attended the wedding. Other marriages to note: Mike Karl, a procurement officer with the Army in New Jersey, was married in June, with Wayne Puglisi as best man. Liz Presley and Lieutenant Mark Edgren '84 were wed last April and now live in El Paso, Texas, at Ft. Bliss. Jerry Jordy, a cost accountant for the Christian Science Publishing Society, and his bride, Leslie, live in Boston. David and Catherine Wood '84 Friedman became partners not only in marriage but also in the insurance field.

Nanette Fithian began her job as executive director for the Rape Crisis Group in Charlottesville, where husband, John, attends law school. More dual-career couples include Kathryn Kostel Litten, who works at an S&L in Harrisonburg, and her husband, who joined the family law practice.

Speaking of families, Laura and Doug Fraedrich are the proud parents of a baby girl, Caitlin Ryan, born in September. Also experiencing the first joys of parenthood are Tricia Byrne and Jeff Tancill. Jeff works as a software engineer for Digital Equipment Corporation. Tricia mentioned that Alex Blakemore and Chris Kline '84 as well as Lynn Rosenberry and Ed Lull '84 plan weddings in the near future. Wendy Rilling, a graduate student in exercise physiology at George Washington University, is getting married next fall. Steve Shaffer is planning a December wedding. And finally, my wedding date is next August. (I'm as surprised as you are.)

And now, what you've all been waiting for, the saga of Carolyn/Rani Anne/Robin Manix/Steve Shaffer in Philadelphia continues. The Philly W&M Alumni Chapter held a highly successful party along Boat House Row in September. Joining Rani, Robin, Steve and myself were newlyweds April Hamel and Russ Berry as well as Paige Snarr and Bob Skelley. An October W&M vs. Temple football game reunited several classmates, including Peter Atwater, Bob Newman, Kevin McGehrin, and Bruce Holmes. I think I spotted Tom Ball as well. Visiting Philadelphia for a different purpose were Sue Lightner Pino and Terri Cartwright. Both work for a Baltimore insurance firm and are preparing for the series of 10 actuarial exams. Good luck! Another person in the insurance industry is Ann Richter who works as an examiner with Liberty Mutual Insurance Company in NYC.

Kudos to Bill O'Toole who was awarded the 1985 Golden Poet Award. Further congratulations are due to Class of '83 members. Chris Curlwess received his M.A. in French studies at NYU's Institute of French Studies. He now enjoys working for the French-American Foundation, a small, nonprofit organization. Sherry Schmulling received her M.B.A. in international management. She started work in the corporate and institutional banking training program at Continental Illinois Bank in Chicago. Kriss Fillbach graduated with her M.S. in college student personnel from the University of Tennessee. This summer, Kriss began her job as assistant director of residency hall life at James Madison University. Jane Green completed the U.S. Air Force dental assistant course at Sheppard A.F.B. in Texas.

Persons beginning advanced studies include Melissa Campbell, who started at UVA medical school this fall through an Air Force scholarship, and Karen Pollok, who started work on her doctorate this fall in the Department of Medical Microbiology and Immunology at the University of Kentucky.

Ann Durant, an education consultant and puppeteer for The Kids on the Block, enjoys her work with this internationally known company that uses the unique medium of puppetry to teach children about disabilities and other sensitive issues.

Well, closing off this issue's column are the Dewey, Del., supper gang (once again): Marv Shaw, Mark Forge, Cesar Conda, Jeff Carr, Bob Laverty, Becky Rogers, Lisa Schwarz, Karen Kolecki, Bob Newman, Greg Park, Judy Dorrow, George Cruiser, and Cathy Evans. The crew entertained Catherine Dehoney, Mark Voigt, Sue Sweeney, Jim Dougherty, Scott Gregory, Susan Fryer, and others.

That's all for now. Keep me informed!

Well, the letters have been pouring in - they are a welcome change from all those bills. Everyone seems to be keeping busy, and some are getting into trouble.

John Bessler and Margie Johnson have announced their engagement and are planning an August wedding. John headed to Fort Benning, Ga., after graduation for infantry officer's basic school where he finished second in a class of 203 and was awarded a military leadership commendation. He is currently somewhere in the Georgia mountains in ranger school. Margie is working on her master's in education in the athletic training program. As part of her program, she is working as an assistant trainee at Western Albemarle High School.

Likewise, Jill Pryor and Harry Austin have decided to tie the knot. Jill is studying law at Yale, and Harry is working on his master's degree in philosophy at UVA. He is hoping to close the distance next fall and begin his doctoral work at Yale.

Rich Walker and Ellen Spengler '83 were married in August. Ward Thomas (at UVA Law School) and Randy Kraemer were groomsmen. Barb '83 and Jim Peterson also tied the knot. John Ball, Bob Middleton, Rich Wagner '83, Terry Martin, Allison Farwell, Scott Baum, Bill Darke, Karin Neider and Zan Pattee all attended the wedding. Jeff Fischer married Pam and is now attending Georgetown Law School.

In September Donna Porter married Richard Miller '84 in Winchester, Va. Mike Flood '84 served as best man, John Rasnic '84 served as an usher, and Kelly Huffman '84 performed a solo. Richard and Donna are now living in Winston-Salem, N.C., where Donna is pursuing a career in public relations and Richard is working for Wachovia Bank International.

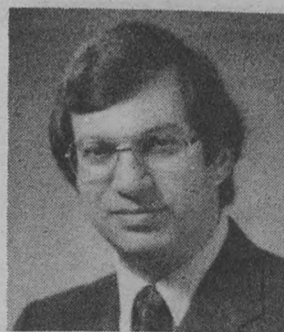

The Richmond alumni are beginning to rival those in D.C. - we're getting stronger. I ran into Chris Kontos '84, Demetra Yepanis, Diane Limm, Dave Warren, Susan Davis, Jeff Mosher and Mary Halahan at the Bus Stop one night. Chris is at med school and says he will accept any donations, gifts, etc., you would like to send. Diane and Susie are living with Betsy Powell, who is studying journalism at VCU. Jeff is still in Williamsburg doing graduate work in chemistry. Mary is actually living in Vienna and working as an intern for Congressman Bates from California. Since she was partying in Richmond, the D.C. nightlife must be slipping.

John Vanderhyde is attending MCV, along with Kelly Stone in occupational therapy school and Mary St. George in pharmacy school. Tanya Shirey is here teaching math. Kelly Huffman, Sandie Muller and Peggy Corcillo are also floating around Richmond.

Up in the north, the "Party Palace" in Alexandria had added a few members. Jennifer Stewart and Jill Bobbin have moved in with Nancy O'Brien and Leigh McDaniel. Jennifer spent the summer touring Europe with Michele-Ann Ebe and Debbie Nelson '86 with an ISL group, and is now in management with The Airport Connection, Inc., at National Airport. She's really enjoying it and hopes to move into their travel agency operations. Jill is working for NAFSA (National Association for Foreign Student Affairs).

Happy Belated Birthday to Leigh - next time invite us to the party! She has now changed jobs within the U.S. Information Agency and is an editorial assistant for the English Teaching Forum. On top of that she has been appointed a volunteer-in-mission, working with the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Korea. She plans to leave in August, but has to raise the money to go. So, please support this child in her venture. You can send checks payable to her, even for a measly $5, to me and I'll send them along. (Or you can make checks of $100 payable to me!)

Amy Bell and Phyllis (sorry I forgot your last name) are living in Vienna. Amy is still at PEPCO, and Phyllis is at "Fannie Mae." Julie Greenisen is moving there to make it a trio once again, after bouncing in a bar in Detroit - way to go Julie! D.C. is in for a shock.

VINCENT T. DEVITA JR. '57
ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

Dr. Vincent T. DeVita Jr. '57, director of the National Cancer Institute, has been inducted into Phi Beta Kappa as the alumni initiate by the Alpha Chapter at William and Mary. Dr. DeVita was tapped for membership along with 30 members of the class of 1986, over half of whom are from Virginia, and one member of the class of 1987. The initiation took place on Dec. 5 at William and Mary in ceremonies marking the anniversary of the founding of PBK by William and Mary students in 1776.

Allison Farwell is working for Government Information Systems in Rosslyn. Bill Sybers is at Georgetown University. Daphne McMurrer is with the EPA in D.C. Also up in Northern Virginia: Brad Hirschy and Herb Harris are with First American Bank of Virginia in the management trainee program. John Donohue is at Paul VI High School in Fairfax as the chairman and sole instructor of Latin (ooh, la, la). Jim Green and Mark Koschmeder have joined the ranks of auditors for Peat-Marwick.

And the list never ends - Janet McNulty is working for Municipal Leasing Corporation in McLean, while across the parking lot, Bob Ageloff is training with Dean Whitter. Laura Avis is recruiting for the admission's office at Marymount College in Arlington, and Don Hultman is in the management training program for First Virginia Bank in Falls Church.

Zan Pattee, that woman of the world, has also settled in Northern Virginia after an exciting summer. Following graduation she traveled to Seattle, Wash., for her brother's wedding and then hopped over to Italy, where she visited Karin Neider and her parents. Zan's mom joined her, and the two cruised the Greek Isles, toured Turkey and headed for home. Zan finished the summer working for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and was even featured on the "Today Show" demonstrating the physical therapy treatment of a little girl. Now she is a secretary for the communications department at the national headquarters of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Diane Street is living in College Park after traveling to Russia with a group of friends (comrades?). Also flying around (she always was a little spacy) is Aileen Ader-ton. After stopping in Baltimore and Detroit with her auditing job with Allied, she is roughing it in Los Angeles. While there she hopped down to San Francisco to visit Todd Armstrong. They hit all the high spots, including Lombard Street, the Golden Gate Bridge, Stanford, the Hard Rock Cafe, and most important, Napa Valley. After sampling the wine the rest of the trip was just a blur! Todd has made his mark at Woodside Priory School by organizing the first Homecoming.

Finally, we are done with the Yuppies of D.C.

Elsewhere in the news, Tom Johnson has been transferred from Georgia to Newport News in his job with Ferguson. Mike McManus is research assistant working on a study of the Chesapeake Bay. He should be searching for Frank Edwards who is also bumming around the area.

After an honorable discharge from the Army, Chet Whiteness is practicing for the pro-bowlers' tour. Jo-Anne Schueller remains in the ranks of Air Force intelligence in Texas. And Gail Wright is working for TRW.

Up in Boston, Jessica Pollard is the public relations assistant at the Computer Museum. Cathy Hart is studying linguistics at Oxford University in England (by George!): Susan Cousins is in law school at LSU.

After her jaunt across country, Janice Harrup took a part-time job at Union Camp in Courtland as a secretary. Since she put over 9,000 miles on her car, I guess she is taking a rest.

In the Big Apple, Alison Sellin is continuing the job hunt after touring Europe with Anne Sorenson, Mary Mitchell and Tracy Sinnott. While they were there, they ran into a bunch of friends: Megan Dowd, Margee Krebs, Scott Ukrop, Tom Simpson, Gregg Crump, and John Boyd. While in Munich they saw Lisa West '84 and Jane Ephrussi '84 who are working there and doing well. Anne and Mary are both working in New York City, and Mary is planning to move into the city to live with Chi-O sister, Beth Sala '83.

Mike Lorch is also in New York working for one of the "Big Eight" accounting firms. During the summer he went out to California and drove back with Peter Ferre and Mikki Hubbard. Peter, Mikki and Colleen McKee were among those selling books for the Southwestern Company in California last summer.

In other news, Mike Zwicklbauer is going to med school in Albany, N.Y. Mike Powell is in the Army and getting ready to go to Germany. Tom Simpson is in the Air Force in Texas training to be a pilot.

Down in the 'burg, Jim Chappell and Jim Lovegren are rooming together. Jim Chappell and Jim Lovegren are rooming together. Jim C. is taking a year off before attending med school and is working at the hospital, and Jim L. is working at the King's Arms.

J. D. Neary is getting ready to move to D.C. from New York - our condolences. Bill Garvey, now in Erie, Pa., was in New York on business for the Hammermill Paper Company and visited Alison Sellin. Marc Magnus-Sharpe biked to California from Newport News last summer. And Femi Awotesu is in the Boston area going to graduate school.

Up in the "Windy City" Kim Eckert Failon is enjoying married life to Brian. She is working part time at Charles A. Stevens, a designer clothing store, while she searches for that "perfect" job. Jen Cox came up to visit the couple from Kentucky, and the trio visited the Art Institute of Chicago and saw the treasury of San Marco. Liz Harris has also moved to Chicago from Richmond to be the assistant controller in the accounting department for the Marriott at the Lincolnshire Resort.

Kim Moosha is living with Margie Johnson in Charlottesville while she gets her master's in English. Also running around UVA are Jennifer Wong, Ann-Leslie Tuttle and Mike Branch.

Sharon Winn is currently in Military Intelligence Officer's Basic School in Sierra Vista, Ariz. Desiree DiMauro is working on her master's in environmental science at Duke along with Thom Mistele. Allison Stringer is out in Oregon working on her master's in environmental education.

David Butler and Ann Mattson are both in med school, David at UVA and Ann at the University of Maryland.

Dave McDowell is working for Proctor and Gamble in Trenton, N.J., after biking across country last summer with Matt Ryan, Jeff Hughes, and Jeff Brockman.

Susan Hudgins was commissioned in May as a second lieutenant and is currently at the Signal Officers Basic Course at Fort Gordon, Ga. After graduation in February, she will be stationed in Seoul, Korea, for a year. After Korea, she expects to be stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Finally, congratulations to Mark Kelso who was picked in the 10th round last spring by the Philadelphia Eagles. We look forward to seeing you on TV.

That's all the news - quite a bit this time. Hope to hear from all of you soon.

STANLEY B. WILLIAMS FUND EVOKES TRIBUTES

The recent campaign to increase the corpus of the Stanley B. Williams Memorial Fund has paid off in rewards beyond the particular financial contributions of alumni and friends according to Phoebe M. Harcum '51. Members of the psychology department have received numerous notes and letters from those who knew the late Professor Williams and wanted to share their experiences and gratitude for many happy and valuable interactions with him and the psychology department at the College. Included were comments that said that his leadership "created a unique academic environment," which stressed "academic excellence" and "a feeling of family." The professional achievements of Professor Williams, chairman of the psychology department for 28 years, were described in an Alumni Gazette by his colleague, Dr. Virgil V. McKenna '57. The fund to honor him was established at the time of his retirement in 1978, from which the department has awarded an annual cash prize to a psychology concentrator who exemplifies Professor Williams' dedication to psychology and his approach to true scholarship. The addition of $6,500 to the fund through the recent campaign will permit the conversion of the prize in his honor to a larger scholarship. All who have served and responded to this project are sincerely thanked. Any one who has not as yet contributed may send contributions so designated to the Endowment Association of the College.

John J. Norman M.B.A. '81 is currently teaching a seminar on personal computers for professionals through the Office of Special Programs at the College. John is site manager for a computer contracting firm and maintains a consulting practice with local businesses. He and his wife and daughter live in Newport News, Va.

Thomas M. Neale '78 moved to Chappaqua, N.Y. in September 1984 and is second vice president of U.S. Regional Division Commercial Lending of Chase Manhattan. He is responsible for customers and prospects in New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland. He calls on firms that make between $20 and $250 million in annual sales. His wife, Barbara, is a systems engineering manager for IBM in New York City.

Charles B. Foster M.Ed. '74 retired from the Army in June 1982 and is now employed at Jack T. Rutledge Correctional Institution in Columbus, Ga., as offender rehabilitation counselor. He started the first group therapy program for sex offenders in the state of Georgia in November 1983.

Alexander Crosby Brown '51 received an honorary doctorate of humane letters from Christopher Newport College at mid-year graduation in January. He is a nautical historian who has spent his life researching and writing about watermen and ships. Brown has published more than 100 books and essays, including Good Ships of Newport News (1976) and The Mariner's Museum, 1930-1950 (1950).

Ruth G. Keffer M.A. '51 is teaching science to seventh and eighth graders at East Bank Junior High School in Kanawah County, W.Va. This is her 37th year of teaching.

Charles Francis Hookey M.B.A. '78 is an operations consultant with Malarkey-Taylor Associates, a telecommunications consulting firm in Washington, D.C.

Helen Ward Forrest M.Ed. '70 retired after teaching for 36 years. She says that she misses the classroom and the children. Helen teaches a Bible class at Trinity Methodist Church in Poquoson.

Benjamin Christopher Joyce '79 worked for Arthur Andersen and Company for four years after graduation. He now has his own consulting business, providing systems consulting services to such clients as International Monetary Fund and others in the D.C. and Northern Virginia area.

William H. Pruiksma M.B.A. '82 is currently general manager for Olympus Corporation in San Jose, Calif. William says he manages an assembly distribution plant, which is a big change from his planning background but is also a wonderful challenge.

Charles E. Burt M.A. '82 writes that he is finishing his dissertation and is going to Los Angeles for an internship. It is all a part of his Ph.D. in clinical psychology from the University of Delaware.

Army Lt. Col. Lyman J. Walker has arrived for duty in Belgium. He is the director of logistics at North Atlantic Treaty Organization Supreme Headquarters Allied Power in Europe.

Army Col. W. Reeves Lippincott M.A. '71 has been decorated with the second award of the defense meritorious service medal at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. The Defense Meritorious Service Medal is awarded to individuals for non-combat meritorious achievement or service that is exceptional, and clearly places them above their peers.

Army Lt. Col. John Slifka III M.A. '71 has been decorated with the defense meritorious service medal in West Germany. John is a transportation staff officer with the U.S. European Command.

Col. John A. Peck '73 has graduated from the U.S. Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa. The 10-month curriculum of the Army's senior school prepares officers of all the services for top-level command and staff positions with the armed forces throughout the world.

Citibank (NYS), N.A. has promoted Patricia Vashbinder Bartlett M.A. to vice president in charge of business development for Citibank's national student loan business. Prior to joining Citibank, Patricia was chief development officer for Empire State College of the State University of New York. She is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Bucknell University. Citibank Student Loan, headquartered in Fairport, is the largest student loan lender in the country.

James S. Angle B.A. '58, M.Ed. '61, professor of English at Ferrum College, recently received the Distinguished Alumni Award from William and Mary in recognition of his service to education. He has completed his doctoral coursework in English at Vanderbilt University and has done postgraduate work at Oxford, Cambridge, and Duke University Divinity School. He served as a supervisor of teacher training in English at James Blair School in Williamsburg. Since 1976 he has been pastor of Goodwin Memorial United Methodist Church in Salem, Va.

Pat Rother Brewer M.B.A. '80 is manager, compensation and benefits for Itek Graphic Systems in Rochester, N.Y., and husband, Ted M.B.A. '80 is product manager for Canandaigua Wine Company.

Ken Ogren M.B.A. '70 runs the long-term care division of the Riverside Healthcare Association. He is administrator of the Patrick Henry Healthcare Center, a $7.5-million, 385-bed, replacement facility for Patrick Henry Hospital in Newport News, Va.

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM HENRY BATTE '20 died Nov. 10, 1985, at his home in Norfolk, Va. A graduate of the Medical College of Virginia, he became assistant medical examiner for Norfolk and Western Railway at Bluefield in 1927. He later served at Williamson and Roanoke, and
