THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Burger Named William and Mary Chancellor

Retired Chief Justice Will Be Installed at Charter Day 1987

BY HILARY HOLLADAY

Retired U.S. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has a new job: chancellor of the College of William and Mary. Elected by the Board of Visitors in June to a seven-year term, he is the College's twentieth chancellor. He follows in the footsteps of three archbishops of Canterbury, seven bishops of London and a series of prominent Americans, including George Washington.

Burger, 78, will be officially installed into the honorary office during Charter Day exercises on February 7, the 294th anniversary of the granting of the College's charter.

He will be invited to participate in commencement and other ceremonies at the College but will have no administrative or teaching duties. Plans are in the works for him to have an office in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, but he and his wife, Elvera, have made no plans to move to Williamsburg. They are residents of Arlington County.

After the news was made public, Burger said that the recognition "from one of the oldest and one of the great universities in the country is an enormous honor and pleasure." He joked later: "I was assured the work was not heavy. In fact, I was more or less told the work was about like the pay." The position is unpaid.

President Paul R. Verkuil had this to say about the appointment: "There can be no greater office in academic life in America than that office. It seemed to us that such an office ought to be held by an appropriate person."

He added: "As the institution which was the alma mater to the fourth Chief Justice, John Marshall, it is fitting and appropriate to have the sixteenth Chief Justice become our symbolic leader, especially on the eve of the bicentennial period."

Burger recently retired from the Supreme Court after seventeen years in order to devote his attention to the Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution, of which he is chairman. He said that he expects William and Mary will be actively involved in commemorating the bicentennial.

Burger's involvement with the College spans a number of years. A frequent visitor to Williamsburg, he received an honorary doctor of laws degree from William and Mary and gave the commencement address in 1973. He was the Law Day speaker at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1979 and was involved in the establishment in 1976 of the National Center for State Courts in Williamsburg.

Last February, he spoke at William and Mary to a group of state supreme court justices regarding the Constitution's upcoming bicentennial. He also spoke in June 1985 at the opening of Colonial Williamsburg's DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Gallery.

He arrived by helicopter in the Sunken Garden last month in order to meet with the press and discuss his new position with President Verkuil and College Rector Anne Dobie Peebles. Miss Peebles said that the chancellorship had not been filled since 1974 because "the right person did not appear on the horizon." She added that both she and President Verkuil felt that "with the bicentennial and the campaign for the College coming up, we should find someone with a national reputation for chancellor." A fund-raising campaign is planned in preparation for the College's 300th anniversary in 1993.

In the Wren Building, Burger listened to President Verkuil read the Board of Visitors' resolution on his appointment. "That was a unanimous resolution and we don't have those any more than you do on the court," Miss Peebles said.

Burger responded: "I'm very pleased and complimented, but I can't help but be a little amused to succeed the archbishop — several archbishops — of Canterbury."

A native of St. Paul, Minn., Burger attended night school at the University of Minnesota and graduated magna cum laude from the St. Paul (now William Mitchell) College of Law in 1931. The same year, he began practice and joined the faculty of his law school. In 1933, he became a full partner in the oldest law firm in Minnesota. During the next 21 years, he handled both civil and administrative cases.

In 1953, he was appointed assistant attorney general as chief of the civil division in the Department of Justice by President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Three years later, President Eisenhower named him to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. He served there until President Richard M. Nixon appointed him Chief Justice of the United States.

Burger is also chancellor of the Smithsonian Institution. He has served as chairman and trustee of the National Gallery of Art, trustee of the National Geographic Society, and honorary chairman of the Institute of Judicial Administration and the National Judicial College.

The position of chancellor dates back to William and Mary's founding in 1693. The royal charter decreed that the chancellor would be "one eminent and discreet person" serving as intermediary between the College and the crown.

According to the 1728 Statutes of the College, the chancellor's "advice is to be taken, especially in all such arduous and momentous affairs, as the college

After a press conference in the historic Blue Room, Chief Justice Burger paused for a photograph with Anne Dobie Peebles '44, rector of the College, and President Verkuil on the back portico of the Wren Building and then proceeded to the President's House with Verkuil across Wren Yard.

shall have to do in England. If the college has any petitions at any time to the King or Queen, let them be presented by their chancellor."

The chancellor originally represented a religious tie. All but two of the English chancellors were clergymen. After the revolution, however, the religious connection was no longer an issue. The job was held by notable Americans with a special interest in William and Mary.

Henry Compton, bishop of London, was the College's first chancellor. A member of the Privy Council and a loyal supporter of King William, he was a logical choice for the position. He appointed the Rev. James Blair as the Church of England's representative in Virginia. Blair went on to become the College's first president.

College Attracts Another Excellent Freshman Class

William and Mary's formula for attracting top students is not a heavily guarded secret. A time-honored tradition, fundamental emphasis on the liberal arts and sciences, and a dedicated faculty working in a unique setting combine to make this one of America's most popular colleges. Given the recent national attention to public institutions of unusual quality, there is little wonder why we are setting records for applications received.

Over 6,500 candidates competed for the 1,200 places in the class of 1990 (actually, we will have more than 1,300 freshmen, since the response to our offers of admission far exceeded our expectations, making this the largest class in the history of the College).

Preliminary figures indicate that the quality of our new students will be exceptional. Sixty percent of those ranked were in the top decile of their class; 85 percent were in the top fifth. Median SAT scores show a 590 on the verbal and 630 on the math section. (These scores would be much higher if the SAT were our sole criterion for selection.)

Virginians make up a solid majority of the class with 29 percent of that group coming from the suburbs of our nation's capital while Richmonders comprise 13 percent and Tidewater accounts for 10 percent. Over half (54 percent) of our non-Virginians are from the Mid-Atlantic Region with the remainder being liberally sprinkled around the nation. About 100 of our new students (freshmen and transfers) are sons and daughters of alumni.

With requests for applications, catalogues and interviews bombarding our office from around the world, we eagerly await the challenges of the new admission year and the quest for an even greater Class of 1991!

Advancement Vice President Named Former Delaware Official Will Lead Fund-Raising Efforts

Edward T. Allenby, director of university development at the University of Delaware, has been named vice president for university advancement. He started his new job August 15.

Allenby succeeds Duane A. Dittman, who will remain at William and Mary as senior adviser in development until June 1987 and will work with the development staff in planning fund-raising activities for implementation over the next several years.

As director of development at the University of Delaware since 1981, Allenby has been responsible for designing and managing a $16 million capital campaign, the first in the university's history, and maintaining total gifts in excess of $12 million annually. William and Mary is planning a major fund-raising initiative that will culminate during the school's 300th anniversary in 1993.

Allenby joined Delaware in 1978 as development associate in charge of planned giving and corporate/foundation programs and became director of development in 1981. Prior to his association with the university, he served as a manager of the Delaware Trust Company in Wilmington.

A University of Delaware alumnus, Allenby received his undergraduate degree in marketing and economics in 1971. He is a member of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), and the National Society of Fundraising Executives (NSFRE).

President Verkuil said Allenby "brings exactly the type of development experience William and Mary will need as it anticipates the challenges of the future." He also noted Dittman's contributions to the university's advancement programs. "Mr. Dittman has assembled a solid staff and created a sophisticated program on which we can build as we look to William and Mary's development needs over the next decade."

The Fine Arts

William and Mary Marks 50th Anniversary of Modern Program

"Our colleges have succeeded well in teaching how to 'make a living,' but few of them have thus far thought of teaching also how 'to live.'"

— Leslie Cheek, Jr.
Magazine of Art, 1938

BY KAY LAWSON

The Great Depression was a time when making a living was a national concern, but at a small college in Virginia learning "how to live" was part of the curriculum. In 1936 the Department of Fine Arts was established at William and Mary. It was the first complete fine arts department in Virginia — and the fulfillment of a 160-year-old dream of Thomas Jefferson. To appreciate the value of this department and its place in fine arts education, one must reflect on what the arts meant to Jefferson and how the arts were being taught elsewhere in Virginia.

During the two years Jefferson was a student at William and Mary (1760-1762), his education was largely directed by William Small, professor of natural philosophy, and Jefferson's friend as well as mentor. Small probably recommended such works to Jefferson as Hogarth's Analysis of Beauty, Edmund Burke's On the Sublime and Beautiful, and Lord Kames' The Elements of Criticism. Jefferson's views about the arts grew from these readings.

The writings of Lord Kames (1696-1782), philosopher and jurist, were widely read among the colonists. His advice in The Elements of Criticism that, "No occupation attaches a man more to his duty, than that of cultivating a taste in the Fine Arts," inspired Jefferson's belief that a taste in the arts and a sense of morality went hand in hand. Art should be didactic; it should teach virtue and foster patriotism. Architecture, as both practical and a fine art, was the means through which Jefferson sought to guide the culture of a young nation. He wrote to James Madison, "how is a taste in this beautiful art to be formed in our countrymen, unless we avail ourselves of every occasion when public buildings are to be erected, of presenting to them models for their study and imitation?" Jefferson, of course, presented such fine models as the State Capitol and the University of Virginia.

Jefferson wished the arts to flourish and hoped that art would be an essential part of his countrymen's lives. While governor of Virginia, he was a member of the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary and conceived the first plan to include fine arts as a course of college study by largely reorganizing the curriculum of his alma mater to accommodate his ideas. The Reverend Robert Andrews became the first

The library on the second floor of the old fine arts building was designed by Leslie Cheek. He provided an artistic habitat that reflected this philosophy that art was something to be enjoyed as well as appreciated. Warm grey walls, white ceiling and silver-gold trim provided a comfortable setting for quiet study or reading. Indirect lighting allowed shadowless reading anywhere in the room. The librarian was Lucy Simms.

professor of fine arts in our nation in 1779 when he was named "Professor of Moral Philosophy, the Law of Nature and of Nations, and of the Fine Arts." Unfortunately, the fine arts program at William and Mary was unsuccessful and was abandoned almost immediately.

When planning the University of Virginia in the 1880s, Jefferson naturally included a fine arts department. Civil architecture, gardening, painting, sculpture, and music theory were to be courses of study, and Jefferson proposed that the University's buildings should be models of pure architecture to illustrate the architectural lecturer's courses. Although the University of Virginia was built as Jefferson wished, there was no fine arts department. His dream, twice frustrated, was yet to be realized.

Limited growth of fine arts departments during the early nineteenth century was dealt a devastating blow by the Civil War. Regrowth was a long, slow process, lasting well into the twentieth century. H. L. Mencken in his 1917 essay "The Sahara of the Bozart" wrote caustically of Virginia: "Elegance, esprit, culture? Virginia has no art, no literature, no philosophy, no mind or aspiration of her own. "Yet Virginia was "the best of the south to-day."

The bartenders, the bottles behind them and the voluptuous mermaid (painted by Professor Haber) above the bar, were all part of the setting for a fine arts student costume party with a 19th-century theme. The interior of the "Palace Saloon," was constructed by fine arts students for a party held February 1938. Despite the barroom setting, no liquor was served.

The fine arts department was called upon to add glamor to special events. The spectacular urns of magnolias, lighted from the bottom, and swags of greenery were part of the decor for a lavish June Ball (1937-38). The dance was held in the Sunken Garden where a wooden dance floor, covered with canvas, was erected for the revelers.

The outlook was not truly grim, especially at Virginia colleges where the fine arts were taught. After William and Mary's and the University of Virginia's unsuccessful early attempts, women's colleges pioneered fine arts education in Virginia. Fine arts went hand-in-hand with the educational role of the early "finishing schools." This association led to the belief that young women, not young men, were proper pupils for the arts, but institutions other than women's colleges also offered fine arts courses.

Virginia Military Institute has one of the briefest, most intriguing histories of fine arts instruction. In 1859 Colonel Francis H. Smith, superintendent of VMI, recommended that a school of fine arts be established on a system used by the École Polytechnique in Paris. The Civil War slowed down the plan. Shelled and burned by Union forces in 1864, VMI began to rebuild in 1865. In 1869, the school established a fine arts department in memory of students and faculty who fell during the war. The plan called for the completion of eight to ten memorial portraits each year. But artist William D. Washington, VMI's professor of fine arts, died suddenly in 1870 and, with him, the Department of Fine Arts passed away.

In the 1930s, colleges such as Hollins and Sweet Briar were making strides in fine arts education and had art instruction. Still, the fine arts were taught on comparatively few Virginia campuses because fine arts were not practical.

An educator who shared Jefferson's belief in the practicality of fine arts arrived at the College of William and Mary in 1935. Hired as a substitute for an instructor on leave, Leslie Cheek Jr. had just completed studies at both Harvard and Yale. At William and Mary, he soon conceived an idea of a fine arts department that would be planned "to permeate all fields of college life in which the fine arts might naturally participate. On a campus typically lacking interest in any of the arts a new and healthy enthusiasm was to be revived."

With the support of President John Stewart Bryan, the Department of Fine Arts at William and Mary was established in 1936. Now, 157 years after the first attempt to establish a fine arts department, Leslie Cheek's creativity and well-defined plans succeeded in making Jefferson's vision a reality.

Students would be taught how "to live." As Cheek wrote in 1938, "it is hoped that no student who has spent four years on campus will go away unaware of the arts; but rather that he may graduate with a sincere interest in them, which will serve to fill with deeper satisfaction the leisure hours of his life after college."

To ensure this and to teach the fine arts as a part of life, the department chose first to emphasize the theater. Cheek wrote: "If genuine enthusiasm could be won for the theater, the ice would be broken, for here come together practically all the arts and many of the sciences as well." During play productions, art exhibits were hung in the foyers of the theater building.

Tribe Athletes Compete on International Level

College is Represented at Lacrosse's Answer to Olympic Games

BY MARY PETTITT '86

Current or former William and Mary athletes who were busy in national and international play this summer included Julie Cunningham (left), a junior member of the lacrosse team who participated in the U.S. Olympic Festival tournament, and Georgia Flamporis '86 (above) who played for the North/South Senior All-Star lacrosse team, along with Mary Pat Kurtz '86, in exhibitions at the World Cup this summer.

While a lot of people enjoy the "laid-back" days of summer around the pool or vacationing with family, many Tribe athletes and coaches use their free time to test their skills in regional, national or even international competition.

Maybe some of you tuned in to watch at least part of the Goodwill Games. Well, William and Mary didn't have any representatives there, but the College was represented at lacrosse's answer to the Olympic games - the World Cup. Since lacrosse is not an Olympic sport, teams from six countries - Australia, Canada, England, Scotland, Wales and the U.S. - meet every four years to determine the world champion. This year, after a week of competition at Swarthmore College in Philadelphia, the U.S. team lost to Australia in the finals. Alumnus Julie Duff '84, W&M's fifth all-time scorer, was one of 16 players on the U.S. squad.

In exhibitions at the World Cup and again in Baltimore, recent graduates Mary Pat Kurtz '86 and Georgia Flamporis '86 played for the North/South Senior All-Star Team. Kurtz, a two-time USWLA All-America First Team honoree and an '86 U.S. Reserve Team member, was an alternate to the World Cup team but did not get to play.

Lacrosse Head Coach Feffie Barnhill and Assistant Coach Jean Stettler were also involved in the world-class event. Barnhill spoke at a coaches' clinic and did color commentary during a local cable television station's coverage of the opening and final games. Stettler was a games committee member.

For the past two summers, junior Julie Cunningham has been a member of the U.S. Olympic Festival's East Soccer Team. This year's tournament in Houston, Texas, included a week of practice followed by a week of competition ending Aug. 2. In the All-America Second Team member's only match so far, Cunningham's East team played to a 1-1 tie with the West. Only the North and South stand in the way of her championship gold medal.

For some athletes, this drive for summer competition begins before they enter college. Incoming freshman Danielle Webster spent part of July at the National Hardcourt Tennis Championship in San Francisco and part of the month in the Jacaranda Junior Classic in Plantation, Fla. In August, her search for 18-and-under competition will lead her to the USTA National Championships in Memphis, Tenn. Webster, the '86 Class 3A Florida Singles title holder, lost in the quarter-finals of the Hardcourt doubles competition but is vying for the Jacaranda singles crown. She also plans to play an exhibition mixed-doubles match for broadcast by a local television station.

While many athletes hone their skills in anticipation of the upcoming college season, others are just trying to get their games back in shape. Just mention the word "injury" and you strike fear in the hearts of most athletes. Combine injury with senior year and you get near-hysteria.

Just ask senior Jody Carreiro. Because of a shoulder problem, the golfer played in only two spring tournaments. By postponing the necessary orthoscopic surgery until school was out in May, she knew her summer would be filled with long hours of rehabilitation and pain. In addition to the physical pain, Carreiro suffered the mental pain of being able to play only every other day.

An avid fund-raiser for her "always-possible-it-will-be-cut" sport, she was forced to give up plans for her third annual golf-a-thon. Last July the New Bedford, Mass., native played 133 holes in 12 hours and 40 minutes, earning $2,200.

While the surgery has cramped her style a bit, Carreiro has been anything but idle. Besides summer school and a job in the local pro shop, the student athletic trainer will work as a trainer at one of the hockey and lacrosse camps run by W&M Field Hockey Coach Jean Stettler. Perhaps Carreiro will do her job a little differently because of this experience. As she says, "Now I know what the athlete feels like when I have to tell her she can't play for a while."

As the Burg bakes in the summer sun and the deserted campus anticipates the students' return, among athletes, there's anything but a drought of competitive spirits. Maybe this summer pursuit of competition is only that, but just maybe it's a little more. Isn't it living the philosophy behind the College - learning, putting the knowledge to work in the world, and exploring your abilities?

Athletics Initiate New TV Show

Cable Program To Reach 600,000 Homes in Six States

A new half-hour cable television program featuring William and Mary athletics will be available to nearly 600,000 homes in a six-state area in the Mid-Atlantic Region beginning this fall.

Running for 26 weeks, the show will feature football coach Jimmye Laycock and basketball coach Barry Parkhill while giving an in-depth look at William and Mary's 26-sport athletic program. Beginning the first week of September, just prior to the football season opener against Colgate at Cary Field, the Jimmye Laycock Show will run 11 weeks during the regular season and continue through the Division I-AA playoffs, should the Tribe qualify. The Barry Parkhill Show begins in December and runs through the regular season in late February and during the Colonial Athletic Association Tournament, as long as the Tribe remains a competitor. In both shows, the coaches will describe game highlights, and interviews with players will be featured.

Jay Colley, who is the radio voice of the Tribe for both basketball and football, will co-host the show with Laycock and Parkhill.

In addition to the segments on football and basketball, the show will feature a section on the College called "Campus Spotlight" and a section on the non-revenue sports called "Olympic Sport Spotlight." On "Campus Spotlight," viewers will hear from administrators, faculty and staff at the College, including President Verkuil. The "Olympic Spotlight" segment will showcase various sports in William and Mary's broad-based men's and women's intercollegiate athletic department and will include interviews and features on various head coaches and athletes.

Produced in Williamsburg by Continental Cablevision under the direction of Karen McFall, public access coordinator, the program will be shown by Continental Cablevision in the Williamsburg area Tuesdays at 7 p.m. It will be shown by Continental Cablevision in the Richmond area Tuesdays at 8 p.m.

It will be shown by Newport News Cable, Hampton's Warner Cable and the Hampton Roads area's Cox Cable on Mondays at 8 p.m. Media General in Fairfax County will show the program Thursdays at 6:30 p.m.

Home Team Sports will show the program in the District of Columbia, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina and Pennsylvania Fridays at 6 p.m.

Although star quarterback Stan Yagiello has graduated, Coach Jimmye Laycock is still optimistic about the 1986 football season because he has two talented seniors competing for the position in Ken Lambiotte (left) and Greg DeGennaro. While they lack Stan's experience, Laycock says both are good passers with strong arms, maturity, intelligence and size.

The Big Question: Who Can Replace Stan?

Laycock is Optimistic as Battle Looms for Quarterback

BY BOB JEFFREY

Expectations are running high as William and Mary's football team prepares for its fall campaign. Coming off a 7-4 mark that saw the Tribe ranked 18th in the nation at I-AA level, Tribe boosters are banking on another exciting season, culminating perhaps with a first-ever trip to that division's post-season playoffs. Fifteen starters and 30 lettermen are back, giving credence to the most optimistic prophecies.

But even with all the returning firepower, one big question looms. Who will replace Stan Yagiello at quarterback? Yagiello, a three-year starter and holder of 12 all-time passing records at the College, has been busy at the Washington Redskins tryout camp this summer. Whoever follows him will have big shoes to fill.

Ken Lambiotte and Greg DeGennaro, two untested senior transfers, will be vying for the starting nod as signal-caller. Both players possess strong arms, but neither has much experience at the I-AA level. Craig Argo, a sophomore from Atlanta, will also contend for the position.

For a team that has relied heavily on the passing game, the situation could be a little unnerving, especially after enjoying the security of Yagiello's presence. Head Coach Jimmye Laycock '70 said, "It's definitely a concern. For the past couple of years, we were set with Stan. We knew what he could do. Both Kenny and Greg are good athletes and mature individuals, but they haven't been in game situations that much. It'll be a learning experience first."

Lambiotte, who transferred to the College from the University of Virginia in 1983, finished up spring practice with a slight edge. The 6'4", 190-pound native of Woodstock, Va., has had an extra year to learn Laycock's complex offense. Lambiotte was third on the depth chart last season, and saw limited action. In April's Green and Gold game, his performance earned him co-offensive player of the game honors.

Obviously a bright and well-organized young man, Lambiotte also excels in the classroom. He compiled a perfect 4.0 grade point average this spring, along with competing in basketball, spring football, and getting married.

DeGennaro, who also stands 6'4" and weighs in at 195, came to W&M by way of California Wesleyan College. He spent last season practicing against the first-team defense while quarterbacking the scout team.

According to Laycock, the two players are cut from the same mold. "Both are good passers, range and have good size. They are intelligent and mature. How well they make decisions during the games will be a crucial factor. Neither guy is as quick afoot as Stan, but maybe they have more range. The only thing they really lack is experience."

Despite the uncertainty at quarterback, the Tribe's offensive cupboard is far from bare. Tailback Michael Clemons, one of the finest all-purpose backs in the country, should continue to excite onlookers with his lightning-quick bursts. The 5'5", 160-pound senior from Clearwater, Fla., rushed for 714 yards last season, caught a school record 70 passes and scored 12 touchdowns.

Adding depth at tailback, Merritt "Dirk" Gibson has recovered from a knee injury that sidelined him for most of last season. Gibson, a 5'11", 200-pound senior, was the Tribe's leading ground gainer in 1984, rushing for 532 yards and nine touchdowns. His return may influence Laycock to shift occasionally from the one-back offense in order to get both runners into the game at the same time. The strength of the Tribe rushing attack should also take some of the pressure off the new quarterback.

Though flanker Ron Gilliam (69 catches, W&M record 1,100 yards) has graduated, the Tribe will once again boast a top-notch group of pass receivers. Harry Mehre and Dave Szydlik, who combined for 65 catches and 898 yards last season, will share time at split end. Dave Pisano (four touchdowns) will man tight end. Sophomore Chris Gessner appears to have the inside track on Gilliam's spot.

On the offensive line, Archie Harris, 6'5" and 260 pounds, is probably one of the biggest, strongest ever to play at William and Mary. Pro scouts will be watching him. Laycock is hoping that replacements for graduated co-captains Bob Solderitch at center and Graeme Miller at guard will emerge to provide leadership as well as solid line play.

While nine of 11 starters return on defense, Laycock stressed the need for continued improvement. "We had to play a lot of guys last year who didn't have much game experience, and we made a lot of mistakes due to immaturity. A year of maturity should be a big help," he said.

Laycock was mindful that of the Tribe's seven victories last season, four were by a touchdown or less. "Last year the breaks went our way. Several games hinged on one or two plays. This year we'll have to try and widen that margin a little bit."

A talented lineback corps will highlight the defense. Middle linebacker Dave Pocta led the team in tackles last season, while right linebacker Dave Wiley and inside linebacker Kerry Gray also had fine campaigns.

Other defensive players to watch include tackle Joe Monaco, who recovered three fumbles last year, and fifth-year senior cornerback Calvin Trivers.

The Tribe's schedule has undergone a facelift, much to Laycock's relief. A fifth home game has been added, and last year's brutal stretch of six consecutive road games in the middle of the season is gone. The University of Virginia is the only I-A team appearing on this season's schedule.

"It's more realistic," said Laycock, "but it's a difficult schedule. We've got the best I-AA teams around."

As Laycock enters his seventh year at the helm, it's time to recognize his achievement in bringing respectability to William and Mary's football program. In compiling three consecutive winning seasons, W&M has won 19 of 22 games against I-AA foes.

With a fine mind for offensive strategy, Laycock has recruited and nurtured an outstanding series of quarterbacks that have made Tribe football exciting as well as successful. Chris Garrity, Dave Murphy and Stan Yagiello each in turn have established new standards of excellence as signal callers, and the Tribe's fortunes have soared as a result.

In turning around a program that seemed prone to mediocrity, Laycock has also presided over a renewed enthusiasm on the part of many students, alumni and local W&M fans. A Cary Stadium record crowd of 18,054 turned out for the season finale against Richmond last fall.

Laycock, who was a senior quarterback in 1970 when W&M appeared in the Tangerine Bowl under then-coach Lou Holtz, wants to continue with more of the same. "We want to keep being successful within the proper framework. That's the key here. We want to win — but within the proper parameters."

Increased attention and spirit from the students, faculty and other fans also help the team, he said. "We've had good support from the administration and the faculty. These guys — both the players and the assistant coaches — work so hard. When they feel that the school appreciates them, it means a lot. It keeps everybody's attitude very positive."

Armed with that attitude and a new starting quarterback, the Tribe is aiming to be among the nation's elite in I-AA football this fall.

John Boswell '69 Yale's Extraordinary Scholar

Historian Provides New Insights Into Human Relationships and Ethics

BY JEFF CRONIN '74

The ascent of John Boswell in the world of academia is an exceptional story among the alumni of William and Mary. At age 38, the 1969 graduate of the College is a tenured professor of history at Yale and presently the director of its graduate studies program in history. He is recognized as a distinguished scholar of the Middle Ages and is the recipient of major academic awards (including the 1981 American Book Award for history).

He is a highly visible symbol of new perceptions about the patristic and medieval world. To the envy of many historians, readers of his work have extended beyond scholarly circles into the general public, and the immense popularity of his classes at Yale further attests to his rising stature in his field. He aspires, as a historian, to provide new insights into human relations and ethics, and, with obvious sincerity, contends that his "special understanding of the Middle Ages... is a gift to offer the world;" others describe it simply as "moral vision."

Like many alumni of William and Mary, Boswell was born into a military family. He spent his early years in several foreign countries, including Turkey, Spain and West Germany. From those experiences he acquired a fascination with foreign cultures. In recent years, he has traveled annually to Europe to spend summers in the leading libraries of Scandinavia, Spain, Italy, Germany and elsewhere. His extensive understanding of European cultures has imparted to him an identity unfettered by political boundaries, and Europe has become for him "just another place and not a fantasy land."

He attended high school in Petersburg. There, during the turbulence of desegregation, he became one of just three white students to befriend blacks at the school. He also set out to learn Hebrew from the local rabbi and, to the astonishment of his peers and of his Quaker family, converted at age 15 to Catholicism.

Out of these experiences emerged influences on his future work as a historian: a sensitivity to the persecution of minorities, a mastery of foreign languages (particularly those of antiquity) and a devout faith as a practicing Catholic.

As an undergraduate at William and Mary, Boswell earned academic honors in history. A merit scholar, he graduated Phi Beta Kappa and received a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. He recalls William and Mary as a "familiar and beloved place," and words such as "grateful" and "loyalty" surface during any discussion of his alma mater. He also recalls that he could not have received a better education anywhere.

In 1970, Boswell entered a graduate program in history at Harvard where he earned M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. His dissertation on the Moors in Spain was published in 1977 as Royal Treasures: Muslim Communities under the Crown of Aragon in the Fourteenth Century (Yale University Press). At 29, he began teaching at Yale as an assistant professor of history. He has since remained, and his academic career, as he observes, has involved the three oldest colleges in the U.S.: Harvard, William and Mary and Yale.

Ten years of research culminated in 1980 in the publication of his second book, Christianity, Homosexuality and Social Tolerance: Gay People in Western Europe from the Beginning of the Christian Era to the Fourteenth Century (University of Chicago Press). Encomiums for this work earned him a promotion at Yale and the National Book Award. Sales of the book grew unexpectedly in the aftermath of highly favorable reviews, and nearly 50,000 copies have been sold to date (following a first edition printing of only 2,500).

Preceding all this, however, were some anxious times about whether to proceed with publication of the book. Admonitions from his family and his colleagues at Yale that the book would imperil his teaching career failed to dissuade him from his project. He now surmises that the climate for introducing such a topic is less formidable than in 1980.

Paul Robinson of Stanford reviewed the book for the New York Times and concluded that "its empirical base [is] so broad, its reasoning so fierce, that it succeeds in making one think the unthinkable." The "unthinkable" is that explanations for hostility toward homosexuals cannot be traced to the traditions of the early Christian church or to the Bible or, even, to the prevailing social organization of medieval Europe. Boswell argues that the "powerful and permanent stigma" against homosexuality arose concurrently with the consolidation of absolutist states (in the 12th century), with social changes resulting from the Crusades, and with a spectral fear of Jews and Saracens, which permeated Western culture and extended, irretrievably, to other minorities.

Boswell attends Mass almost daily and maintains that he is "as ardent a Catholic as ever." His faith rests on a belief in the "eternal matters" of the church, which, he asserts, have remained virtually unchanged for centuries. Paralleling this are major disagreements with the church on its positions on moral issues. He suggests that the "church has been threatened by the 20th century and has failed to provide guidance for 20th-century problems," and, further, that Christians from the fifth century would "scarcely recognize the church of today." Nonetheless, he concludes that this conflict with the church is a "dialogue," an expression of conscience, and that with a "special understanding" of theology and the history of the church he is in a unique position to "address questions to the Christian community."

Since learning Hebrew in high school, Boswell has taught himself one language each year. Although he declines to specify the number of languages in which he is literate, he acknowledges that Latin is "about as familiar" to him as English and that he regularly uses his battery of languages in his research. His writings demonstrate a mastery of Greek, Catalan, Persian, German, French, Latin, Hebrew, Arabic, Portuguese, Italian, Spanish, Old Slavonic — and English. And if Turkish, Coptic and Oscan are not yet on the list, one might assume they will be before the decade is out.

Boswell is presently at work on five books. These include a general survey of social history in ancient and medieval Europe; a study of the interaction of the Jews, the Christians and the Muslims in Spain; a treatise on an obscure early Christian marriage ceremony written expressly for male couples (which survives, he has discovered, in over 70 manuscripts in several languages and in separate versions for female couples); an unspecified work on "intellectual slippage" and a lengthy study on the abandonment of children in ancient and medieval Europe.

Although Boswell has occasionally visited Williamsburg since leaving William and Mary, he has not taught any courses at the College. He readily expresses an interest in returning to his alma mater as a visiting professor or as a guest lecturer.

He compares William and Mary favorably with Ivy League schools and observes that undergraduates in Williamsburg "work harder" than those in Cambridge or in New Haven. He suggests that students at William and Mary may be somewhat "less questioning" than those at Harvard and at Yale and hopes they experience comparable changes in their social and political perspectives during their years of study.

Boswell now refers to the solemn neo-Gothic quadrangles of the Yale campus as home. In this setting, one might expect to encounter him as a modern counterpart to a medieval anchorite with a skull on his desk and a retiring sacerdotal demeanor. He is, however, an engaging and spirited man who conveys a soaring delight in his career and life in the late 20th century. His main concern now may well be avoiding the intrusions of unwelcome celebrity. Ten to 20 years from now, and beyond, he expects to be at Yale, still teaching and researching the mysteries of the Middle Ages.

Society Issues Annual Report for 1985-86

Activities Enhance Sense of Community and Family Among Alumni

Introduction

Its founder, Thomas Roderick Dew, would take justifiable pride in his creation after its founding. Founded on July 4, 1842, by Dew, who was president of the College at the time, the Society of the Alumni completed its 144th year in hearty and fit condition, carrying out its mission of serving William and Mary alumni throughout the nation and the world. In its many programs and activities, the Society continued to promote a sense of community and family among its alumni — a link not only between the generations but a link among faculty, students, friends and alumni as well.

Under the excellent leadership of S. Warne Robinson and William A. Armbruster, who succeeded Mr. Robinson as president in February, and its 15-member board of directors, the Society of the Alumni administered programs that ranged from organizing tours to different parts of the world to organizing reunions at William and Mary. Homecoming, chapter programs, publication of the award-winning Alumni Gazette, the merchandising of William and Mary through the Botetourt Boutique, the maintenance of more than 60,000 alumni records — these were but a few of the programs carried on by the able staff working in the Alumni House on the William and Mary campus.

Following are some highlights of the 1985-86 fiscal year.

Alumni Office Operations

The base of an effective alumni program is its records, and in 1985-86 the Society's efforts to upgrade its record-keeping system culminated in the identification of a software product that will support both alumni relations and development purposes. The product will be installed on a minicomputer system recently placed in the Alumni House. The system will use up-to-date equipment. System access will be provided to several College offices and foundations that continually use alumni information. The projected date for conversion to the new system is January 1, 1987.

Chapter Programs

The Alumni Chapters and Interest Groups of the Society of the Alumni are a network of groups across the U.S., Great Britain and West Germany whose purposes are: to be effective instruments of service to and sources of leadership for the Society and the College, to preserve the memories of college life, to perpetuate and enrich the blessings of the College experience, to produce an understanding of the goals of the Society and College and to promote a feeling of unity toward these goals.

To realize these purposes, the chapters conduct a variety of programs, projects and events that are appropriate to the size of the chapter, to the proximity of the chapter to the College, to the regional flavor and quantity of resources in the area and which seek to involve alumni, current and incoming students and parents.

Over the past year, demand for alumni representation increased, as did activity levels at current chapters and interest groups. A friendly spirit of competition emerged among the chapters. Chapter leaders felt a new enthusiasm and dedication after attending the Leadership Conference.

In fiscal year 1985-86, the chapters continued to grow and operate as follows:

1. Alumni Society representation now exists in 53 areas of the U.S. and in Great Britain and West Germany. There are 12 chapters in Virginia.
2. Two new chapters were chartered — Rappahannock and Southside.

Executive Vice President To Retire

Dear William and Mary Alumni:

Serving as executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni for the past three and one half years has given me the greatest enjoyment I have known in all of my years in education. I have informed the president of the Society that I plan to leave my position on December 31, 1987. This will enable me to round out nearly five years with the Society and to complete a long and happy working love affair with the College.

The greatest joy has been dealing with so many of you on an individual basis over the years and in several capacities. It has been exciting to watch the various Society programs flourish and become vital forces in assisting the College in the fulfillment of its purpose. For me it has been great fun to visit chapters around the country, to keep a weather eye on Homecoming and Burgesses Day and other William and Mary occasions of great moment. How invigorating it has been to lead the 50th reunion classes in full plumage into William and Mary Hall each year for Commencement. It has also been rewarding to have responsibility for the Gazette and the Magazine.

My sincere thanks go to all of you for making the job a joy as well as to the superb staff members with whom I have worked at the Alumni House, to the publications staff, to those delightfully cooperative members of the faculty and administration who have been unanimously supportive and certainly to the members of the Board of Visitors with whom I have been pleased to interact on so very many matters. A special thanks is due the devoted and tireless people on the Board of Directors of the Society. Their backing and advice have provided a warm and happy atmosphere in which to work.

Lest I become maudlin, let me simply say that it will be "business as usual" through December 31, 1987. I know the Society will continue to prosper and to serve you and the College.

Sincerely,
Scotty Cunningham '43
Executive Vice President
Society of the Alumni

3. Official chapter representation is expanding into Charleston, S.C., Charlotte, N.C., Greensboro/Winston-Salem, N.C., Minneapolis and South-west Virginia.
4. Revitalization is taking place in Boston, Los Angeles, Houston and Cincinnati.
5. Eighty-five alumni chapter events were held relating to all phases of Society and College programs — academics, athletics, admissions. College representatives were speakers at 28 events; Society presence at 24 events.
6. Highlights of the year's activities included:
 -  Champagne reception and auction at Sotheby's in New York.
 -  President Verkuil's visits to the Williamsburg, Southern Connecticut, San Diego, Philadelphia, Norfolk/Virginia Beach, Baltimore/Annapolis and Richmond chapters.
 -  The Lower Peninsula's Seafood Feast with special guest John Randolph.

-  The Chicago reception with Gary Ripple.
 -  The series of spring admission receptions in Norfolk/Virginia Beach, Lower Peninsula, Richmond, Northern Virginia, Southside, Philadelphia and New York.
 -  The Northern Virginia spring meeting with special guest Commodore Grace Murray Hopper, USN.
 -  Atlanta's steam train excursion in the fall.
 -  The Princeton v. W&M game at which three chapters joined together to support the game in Princeton, N.J.
7. In addition to regular, all-chapter programs, individuals within groups were involved with projects or programs related to the Society and College — records updating, career planning and placement, career speakers series, career exploration day, Life After DOG Street, the Alumni Admissions Network, athletics and advancement.

SOCIETY ANNUAL REPORT

8. The Outstanding Chapter award went to the New York City Chapter. Honorable mention was awarded to the Hartford and Northern New Jersey chapters.
9. The Chapter Leadership Conference was held on March 19-20, 1986, at the Alumni House. Twenty-three of the then 46 chapters were represented. The chapter leaders learned about avenues of service from College representatives from athletics, admissions, advancement, career planning and placement and students. The leaders also learned about Society programs and policies. President Verkuil brought the group up-to-date on the happenings around campus and in the General Assembly. The group attended a lecture on motivation presented by Dr. Kelly Shaver of the Department of Psychology and participated in a round-table question-and-answer discussion. Social time included a luncheon at the Alumni House and a farewell dinner at the Great Hall.
10. There has been a systematic approach to geographical regions with applications for chapter leadership and events development.

Chapters remain a dynamic program of the Society and the development of the local chapter leadership has strengthened the entire network and structure of the chapters in 1985-86.

Continuing Education

Continuing education for alumni of the College is currently available in the following ways: associate memberships with existing programs in local areas, alumni travel program, Society publications (William and Mary Magazine), educational speakers (faculty) at chapter meetings, Office of Special Programs, the Center for Executive Development (through the business school) and the Women in Business Program.

Class Programs

Class programs are at full strength. The Society of the Alumni Class Program structure has grown to include 46 committees providing representation to all graduated classes. Individual class reunion committees represent the 44 classes not encompassed by the Olde Guard and Young Guard organizations. The Olde Guard Council represents all classes 50 or more years out of school while the Young Guard Council supports classes prior to their fifth reunion. Each class committee is responsible for the activities of its respective class or collective group of classes. Class committees are open to all interested alumni and normally include seven to 20 membership positions and function throughout the year. The activities of these committees are increasing steadily with work in the areas of reunion planning, address and biographical records updates, annual giving and special class capital support projects. The 1985-86 fiscal year has exhibited continued growth in these class activities and the outlook is bright for future development. Through the work of these class leaders, committee chairmen, class reporters and class fund representatives, the reunion committees are making a difference and are taking a strong leadership role in the support the Society of the Alumni provides to the College. Although the Society does not administer undergraduate class activities, it is working to promote student interests and to make students aware of its activities and programs. Through special programs for undergraduate classes and in particular during Homecoming weekend, the Society is opening new channels of communications with future alumni.

Homecoming

Homecoming continues to grow. Homecoming 1985 was the largest reunion weekend to date, with more than 17,000 people in attendance. Homecoming represents the single largest event sponsored by the Society. Covering a four-day span beginning with OWJ activities on Thursday and concluding with the Alumni Brunch on Sunday, Homecoming is providing a variety of activities for alumni, students and the local community. All plans for Homecoming weekend activities are scheduled and implemented in coordination with the Alumni Office. Over the past several years, Homecoming has received increased participation from students, faculty and administration and has truly become a campus-wide event. Many new events have been added to the weekend—events designed for specific classes as well as those open to all alumni. In 1985 the class hospitality suites continued to be the most popular events of the weekend. These suites support four scheduled events, plus such other

President Announces Search Plans

Dear William and Mary Alumni:

This issue of the Gazette carries a letter addressed to you from our executive vice president announcing his plans to retire next year. Scotty Cunningham's ties to the College go back many years and most of us have been touched by him in one capacity or another during his long and distinguished association with William and Mary. We will miss him and Cecy but recognize that they are entitled to resume their well-earned retirement.

As the College begins preparations to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the granting of the Royal Charter, the members of the Society of the Alumni Board of Directors believe the selection of Scotty's successor must proceed without delay so that we will have in place a new executive vice president to guide the Society through this exciting and challenging period in the life of our beloved alma mater. We will shortly announce the establishment of a search committee. This committee will be charged with identifying suitable candidates to fill the office of executive vice president. Announcements will follow in the next two editions of the Gazette soliciting applications for the position.

Meanwhile, Scotty will continue to serve the Society until his successor is installed. I know that you will join me in expressing our appreciation for the job he has done and in extending warmest best wishes to both Scotty and Cecy.

Sincerely,
William A. Armbruster
President
Society of the Alumni

events as may be planned by each reunion committee. The hospitality suites provide an area where class members are sure to see their classmates. Last year also saw a renewed interest in Saturday night class dinners. The old idea of a joint dinner and dance on Saturday is changing to individual dinners with joint dances. In 1985 a number of non-class-specific events were added, including a choir concert on Friday and the Alumni Brunch on Sunday. Homecoming weekend is now encompassing over 100 events for alumni and undergraduates and is still growing. The weekend is improving and growing each year as more and more alumni are returning to campus and getting involved. This year will bring a new look to the Society's annual meeting through a total change in format.

Fiftieth Reunion

During the Commencement Weekend in May the Class of 1936 joined the ranks of the Olde Guard. Over 100 class members and guests returned to campus for the three-day event. Class members were placed center stage and treated to a variety of events honoring them for completing a half-century of service to the Society and the College. Under the leadership of the reunion committee chairman, Judge Robert T. Armistead, and gift committee chairman, William Rhodes, the Class of 1936 experienced an outstanding reunion and presented the largest single class gift to be raised.

Olde Guard Program

Under the direction of the 19-member Olde Guard Council and the Council's chairman, Dr. Milton Salasky '31, the activities of the Olde Guard are being continually expanded. In addition the annual luncheon and hospitality suite events sponsored by the Council during Homecoming weekend, the Olde Guard members meet in the spring at the Olde Guard Day celebration. The Council is currently working to develop special plans for the Tricentennial celebration in 1993 and for the Society's sesquicentennial in 1992.

Young Guard Program

The Young Guard Council and the Young Guard

programs are proving to be a new bright spot in the development of alumni activities for the Society. Since the council's inception in 1984, the Young Guard has been on the move. Representing over 10,000 members of the Society, the organization is the largest single alumni class organization sponsored by the Society. Under the leadership of the first two chairmen of the Council, Sue Newman '83 and Fraser Hudgins '84, the Council has grown and expanded in its scope of activities. The Council is currently active in Homecoming weekend by sponsoring two special events for Young Guard members. The Young Guard Dance held at Trinkle Hall has had attendance of over 600 while the post-game Young Guard reception at the Alumni House draws approximately 2,500 members. The Council is also actively helping to maintain up-to-date biographical information on its members through its work with the Alumni Data Processing Office. Additionally in 1985, the Council has begun to encourage all Young Guard members to support chapter functions in their local areas. The goal of the Young Guard leadership is to involve its members in all aspects of Society and College activities.

Burgesses Day

Sponsored by the Society of the Alumni in cooperation with the College, Burgesses Day commemorates the meetings of the House of Burgesses in the Sir Christopher Wren Building. Held in the fall in conjunction with a home football game, Burgesses Day brings prominent legislators, state officials and friends of the College to the campus. Burgesses Day was not held in 1985; instead it was combined with the inaugural of the 25th President of the College. Burgesses Day will be resumed this year with the scheduled date being October 4. Attendance at this annual event has increased substantially over the years, due mostly to a statewide alumni network endeavoring to promote and gain recognition for the unique mission and quality that William and Mary represents. The event serves to honor retiring elected officials of the Commonwealth for their service through the entry of their names into the Journal of Burgesses at special ceremonies during the day.

SOCIETY ANNUAL REPORT

Board of Directors

In the fall of 1985 the following persons were elected to the Board of Directors of the Society for a three-year term and took office in February 1986: William A. Armbruster '57, Blackstone, Va.; John S. Entwisle '44, Williamsburg, Va., and Blue Bell, Pa.; S. Warne Robinson '37, Williamsburg; Ann-Meade Baskerville Simpson '65, Virginia Beach, Va.; and Lesley A. Ward '63, New York City. Retiring members were Stewart Gamage '72 and Bernard J. Nolan '51.

In the spring of 1986 six men and four women were nominated for seats on the Society's Board of Directors. Candidates for election to three-year terms are: Mary C. Evans '83, Bala Cynwyd, Pa.; J. David Hubbard '77, Baltimore, Md.; William R. Murphy '48, Manassas, Va.; Bernard J. Nolan '51, Cincinnati, Ohio; Charles L. Quittmeyer '40, Williamsburg; Carolyn Todd Schaubach '50, Norfolk, Va.; Helen Thomson Stafford '48, Princeton, N.J.; Harriett L. Stanley '72, New York City and Merrimac, Mass.; Jeffrey B. Trammell '73, Washington, D.C.; and Jerry Van Voorhis '63, Chatham, Va. Ballots will be mailed in late August to each active member of the Society, and the results of the election will be announced at the annual meeting of the Society on November 14, 1986. Members of the nominating committee for the selection of candidates for election to the Board were: Chairman Marvin F. West '52, Williamsburg; Melissa Eastman '77, Rosemont, Pa.; Leslie Fouts '80, New York City; James E. Howard '43, Richmond, Va.; Milton Salasky '31, Norfolk, Va.; and Martha Leef Stout '65, Richmond.

The Alumni Medallion

Alumni Medallions were presented during Homecoming 1985 to: Robert J. Faulconer '43, Mildred E. Layne '32 and Joan F. Showalter '55. The Alumni Service Committee is presently reviewing vitae of 31 alumni who have been nominated to receive the medallion for 1986. The committee will recommend names to the Board of Directors, who will make the selections in the fall.

Other Recommendations

The Society submitted 12 names for consideration by the Governor in making appointments to the College's Board of Visitors in accordance with the provisions of Section 28-42 of the Code of Virginia. Two of the recommendations resulted in appointments to the Board. The Society also submitted a name to the Honorary Degrees Committee of the Board of Visitors for consideration in awarding an honorary degree. Twelve young men and 12 young women were nominated by the Society for inclusion in Outstanding Young Men of America and Outstanding Young Women of America.

Alumni Admissions

Seventy children of alumni parent(s) enrolled for the College's fall term 1985. Two hundred nineteen children of alumni parent(s) applied for admission to the College for the fall 1986 session; 121 were offered admission, and 83 have indicated they will enroll.

The Paschall Library

During the year 22 alumni donated books or memorabilia to the Alumni House collections. The Paschall Library houses approximately 300 books by alumni authors and 200 or more volumes relating to the College or to the area. Colonial Echoes, Flat Hats, College catalogs and other resource materials are also among the library's collections.

The Alumni Gazette

The Society of the Alumni continues to communicate effectively with its alumni through the Alumni Gazette, which is published in two forms—as a tabloid newspaper eight times a year and as a magazine twice a year. The tabloid newspaper, which contains class notes on the activities of alumni, as well as information on the College and expanded alumni activity, goes free of charge to all alumni of record. The William and Mary Magazine goes to all alumni who have made gifts to the College during the past fiscal year. In 1985 the Magazine was honored for the second consecutive year as the recipient of a Gold Medal Award by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). This award is given on the basis of design and editorial content and is awarded to the five best collegiate magazines in the nation.

Life After DOG (Duke of Gloucester) Street

This popular Society-sponsored program allows successful young alumni to share their expertise and practical knowledge with members of the senior class. The program was developed in 1981 as a service to help seniors cope with life in the real world and to help them solve problems they will face after graduation. In 1986 a record-breaking 30 percent of the senior class attended the program, which was held over a period of three nights at the Alumni House, February 11-13. Selected alumni from local chapters of Williamsburg and Lower Peninsula served as panelists. Among the topics they discussed were the whys and hows of obtaining credit, buying insurance, selecting a doctor, lawyers' services, buying or renting property, women's and minorities' rights in the workplace, buying a car and adjusting in a new town—practical information not usually taught in the classrooms. The senior class president appointed a LADS committee, chaired by Lisa Matick '86 and Susan Doyle '86, which worked with the Alumni House on the project.

The Alumni-Student Liaison Committee

The Alumni-Student Liaison Committee continues to be an outstanding way to bring alumni and undergraduates of the College together through programs of mutual interest, to facilitate better understanding of what being an alumnus means and to help alumni learn about the College today. The reputation of the committee continues to grow. During the selection process in February, over 50 people applied for the vacant positions on the committee. All applicants were greatly qualified and selection was difficult. The committee members serve as outstanding ambassadors for the College in providing programs at various alumni chapter events and other campus events. The committee's activities in 1985-86 included: providing programs at freshman receptions during the summer at Roanoke, Lynchburg and Charlottesville chapters, sponsoring a freshman watermelon feast at the Alumni House the first week of classes, assisting the Alumni House staff in all phases of Homecoming, planning and helping with Olde Guard Day and making presentations at chapter events in Richmond, Lower Peninsula, Norfolk/Virginia Beach and Northern Virginia in the spring to which admitted students and their parents were invited. Individual members of the committee participated in a student panel discussion at the Alumni Admissions Network training weekend. The committee also provided a valuable presentation at the Chapter Leadership Conference. Under the leadership of Dave Varner '86, the committee began planning a number of new programs for 1986-87.

Career Exploration Day

Career Exploration Day, a program funded by the Society through the Office of Placement and Career Planning, took place October 19, 1985. The career-oriented program, which attracts several hundred W&M students from all classes, began with a breakfast for the alumni at the Alumni House and was highlighted by presentations from selected alumni in various occupations discussing career paths. Discussions again centered around what curriculum to pursue to obtain certain jobs, what the jobs are actually like, possibilities for advancement in various fields and job opportunities. A popular program with students and alumni alike, it brings successful alumni back to campus for a positive intermingling of thoughts and ideas.

Alumni Admissions Network

The Alumni Admissions Network is now in its fifth year and involves alumni from 16 different geographic areas of the country in the admissions process. The Society funds the network through the Office of Admissions with administration and training of network participants by the admissions office. The purposes of the program are: (1) to provide a more personal contact with individual attention to applicants to the College; (2) to provide information needed by applicants to make well-informed decisions regarding William and Mary; (3) to aid the admissions office in the difficult process of evaluating personal qualities of applicants; (4) to broaden ways in which alumni can be of service to the College; and (5) to assure the continued quality and diversity of the William and Mary applicant pool and student body.

The Alumni House

The Alumni House of the College of William and Mary serves a dual function as an office for the professional staff of the Society and a facility that has several well-appointed public rooms for business and social functions.

The Alumni House, originally the Bright House, has served the College in a number of ways over the years—a fraternity house at one time, faculty and staff apartments later, and, finally, in 1971 the home of the Society of the Alumni. Today, the Alumni House serves not only as a focal point for Society-oriented programs, but is often used for College, community and civic organizations.

To utilize the facility, one needs only to call or stop by the House to check on the availability of a particular date. The House Manager will explain the conditions and options involved in renting the House and distribute an application and house guidelines sheet. The rental fee for the Alumni House depends on the time of the event, the nature of the event and the number of persons who will be in attendance for a function. With regard to a catered affair, a client is free to choose a caterer he/she is comfortable with as long as the caterer is willing to abide by Alumni House policies.

It is recommended that inquiries about the Alumni House availability be made well in advance as the facility is very popular for private functions, particularly wedding receptions on Saturdays. The Alumni House is not scheduled for use on Sundays or select holiday weekends.

The Society of the Alumni encourages the use of the Alumni House as much as possible as the facility lends itself well as a comfortable setting for a variety of purposes.

Merchandise Program

The Merchandise Program of the Society of the Alumni continues to make available quality merchandise to serve as gifts and memorabilia for alumni, students, College employees and friends of the College. All items are featured in a catalog supplement in the October issue of the Alumni Gazette while select items are advertised in each issue of the Gazette. The Botetourt Boutique collection includes decorative items for the home, books, jewelry, wearing apparel, handicrafts, glassware, chairs, recreational items and an assortment of specialty foods.

The highest volume of sales is generated during the fall prior to the holiday season and in the spring due to Commencement. The Society offers a mail/phone-order service with credit card convenience, which includes UPS delivery. Several items are available for direct sale at the Alumni House from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and during special events, e.g., Homecoming and Commencement weekends.

The Botetourt Boutique will continue to seek out quality merchandise to sell to alumni who have generously supported the program over the years.

Educational Travel Program

By offering a variety of travel destinations to meet the interests of its alumni body, the Society of the Alumni wishes to encourage alumni to take advantage of the travel program. The travel program in 1986 has proved to be a challenge as international events did have an impact on participation in tours, particularly those with European destinations.

Trips that were offered this past year included Egypt, Spain and Portugal, the Rhone River Passage (France), the North Cape Passage (Norway) and England. The Alaskan Wilderness trip and the Sweden/Denmark tour are scheduled to leave later this season.

Future direction of the travel program will emphasize more domestic trips and greater participation of William and Mary faculty to enhance the educational aspect of the tours. "The Mystic Lands of King Arthur" tour in England was the first of such programs for the Society. Greater flexibility will also be sought, in terms of tour packages, to better tailor trips to alumni interests.

Order of the White Jacket

The Order of the White Jacket currently has approximately 650 active members. For the 1985-86 school year, OWJ awarded nine scholarships of $750 each to deserving William and Mary students working in the food service industry. For the 1986-87 school year, the number of scholarships will remain at nine, but the amount of each will be increased to $1,000.

OWJ officers for 1986 are: President Deborah S. Dalton '72; First Vice President J. Coleman Anthony '52; Second Vice President Maxey B. Davis '39; Third Vice President William L. Person Jr. '56; and Secretary-Treasurer James S. Kelly '51.

What They Did Teach at Harvard Business School

These Alumni Learned A Lot About Their William and Mary Education

BY WILFORD KALE '66

The best-selling book What They Don't Teach You at Harvard Business School, which contains information and advice from a street-smart executive, was written by Mark H. McCormack '51. At least 18 other William and Mary alumni could have written chapters for that book or could write a book of their own about the nationally known business school.

Their perspective, however, would be different from that of McCormack, who acknowledges that he never went to Harvard. These William and Mary alumni did take their graduate training at the Ivy League school and in most cases received their master's in business administration from Harvard.

Recently, eight of the 18 alumni, identified from college records as having attended Harvard Business School, were contacted to determine what roles their William and Mary undergraduate education played in their Harvard experience.

The alumni and their experiences range from Lawrence L. Born '27 of San Francisco, a retired financial consultant, formerly with the California State Public Utilities Commission, to Brooke Tribble Weinmann '79, currently a marketing representative for IBM in Atlanta.

Also included in the list are two members of the Society of the Alumni Board of Directors, Dr. Charles L. Quittmeyer '40, former dean of the William and Mary School of Business Administration and currently Gottwald Professor of Business Administration, and Harriett L. Stanley '72, vice president of Ehrlich-Bober and Company, Inc., a New York City investment banking firm.

The majority of those interviewed spoke of their William and Mary undergraduate education in terms of both academics and extracurricular activities.

Born said he was fully prepared academically for Harvard Business School where he enrolled immediately after graduation. He was also financially prepared, due to some creative money-making in Williamsburg.

"In the spring, we would go down the street to the clothing store and pick up the big boxes that suits came in. We would hire people to fill those boxes with fresh daffodils at about 10 cents a box," Born explained.

"We would get up at 4 a.m., go to the train station and put the boxes on the train bound for New York. I had a florist friend who would pay us six to eight dollars per box for the daffodils. That was pretty good money — pay 10 cents and get six to eight dollars. The money we made off that kept us in change for quite a while."

Ms. Stanley, who attended Harvard from 1980 to 1982, said the two schools offered "different kinds of experiences, but the thought process that I was forced to develop at William and Mary played a major role in my Harvard business work.

"I believe, however, that the small classes and the strong faculty interaction with students at William and Mary certainly (provided) the best education that I've received from any of the three institutions that I've attended, including Harvard and Boston University."

Richard B. Sayford '52 of North Palm Beach, Fla., and White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who also went directly to Harvard after graduation in Williamsburg, pointed to his "good liberal arts education" at William and Mary as a major reason for his selection to Harvard.

"My undergraduate major was economics. I also had some accounting, but my background was pure liberal arts," he said. "There is absolutely no question it helped me in the business school. Harvard loves good liberal arts students, and extracurricular activities are important in their selection process."

Paul C. Jost '76, student government president at William and Mary and now president of European Autocars, Inc., in Washington, D.C., believes "my extracurricular activities were as important to me as the actual academic courses. It was the total education."

Jost developed a company that rented refrigerators to college students for use in their dormitory rooms. The program began at William and Mary and by the time he sold it last year, it was renting on more than 60 campuses.

"We were operating in Williamsburg, Boston and New York when I was at Harvard," he said. "Unfortunately for me, I was more involved in my own businesses in the end than in Harvard Business School." Jost finished one credit short for graduation in 1979. He says he's been meaning to go back and finish but hasn't found the time yet.

Because of Harvard's case-study approach in the business school, Jost found that the problem-solving, dealing with people and analytical requirements of student government "enabled me to function well there. Resolving conflicts with competing groups and lots of analysis at Harvard were much more than just memorizing various facts."

William and Mary has a good national reputation, Jost explained, "but I was kind of shocked to find that William and Mary was just one of a group of good schools. It was kind of a humbling experience, but it was pretty neat to be up there with other highly motivated, highly ambitious, driven people."

Robert A. Irvin '70, former member of the Georgia House of Representatives (1972-78) and now senior manager with McKinsey and Company in Atlanta, a management consulting firm, found his experience with William and Mary's academics somewhat different from Jost's.

"The main thing going to Harvard Business School showed me was what a terrific school William and Mary was academically. In Cambridge, I was in class with people from Ivy League schools like Yale, Columbia and Princeton, and they didn't seem to know any more than I did. That wasn't particularly surprising, but it gave me a new appreciation of what I got at William and Mary."

Irvin also noted that many southerners and mid-westerners "have always had, at some level, an inferiority complex. Somehow, we always felt that those folks in the Northeast must be smarter or at least know more. But at Harvard, I found out that wasn't so. I found I could compete with them on equal footing and for me that was a great life experience."

"I'm sure that William and Mary was part of my preparation for that experience."

Mrs. Weinmann, the most recent (1984) Harvard Business School graduate of William and Mary alumni, said her undergraduate education held her in good stead in graduate school "from the standpoint that my liberal arts degree in history enabled me to take a wide range of courses. As a result, I achieved an element of balance that enabled me to look at issues presented in business school from a real-life point of view."

William and Mary also provided for her the "self-discipline, reinforcing my study skills." The "total education" opportunities in Williamsburg with academics and extracurricular activities "emphasized people in life and how to relate to other people. William and Mary also encourages interaction between students and faculty members."

As a history major, she found Harvard difficult because she had not taken some business courses that would have proved helpful early in her graduate work. "But overall, I'm not disappointed because I could catch up," she said.

For Philip B. Hamilton '31, retired chairman of the board of Dennison Manufacturing Company, the William and Mary-Harvard combination was the right thing. He majored in economics and business subjects in Williamsburg, "even though there was no business school at William and Mary back then."

"I was interested in manufacturing from the outset and found that with my William and Mary academic background, I had no trouble at all with my studies at Harvard. I did well," said Hamilton, a 1933 Harvard graduate.

Quittmeyer explained that once you get into Harvard, it really doesn't matter where you come from. "Harvard Business School then, as it is today, is comprised of students from 50 to 80 different institutions. It doesn't make too much difference where you come from — you have to learn the system (case method) and then go to it."

"I don't think the academics (at William and Mary) was much involved at all. The main thing was making sure that you worked hard and thought out your problems. What I did best was write, and I polished that at William and Mary and did very well with it at Harvard because we had to write out our detailed solutions."

These William and Mary-Harvard grads had several tips they would pass along to William and Mary alumni thinking about business school. While most would not trade their Harvard experience, several noted there are other top-notch business schools around. Students may find that places such as Stanford, Dartmouth, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Chicago have programs with comparable academics and opportunities for contacts with business leaders.

As far as advice for getting into business school, several alumni expressed the importance of experience in the "real world" — several years, in fact.

But Ms. Stanley notes that "Harvard is looking for a specific quality" that can probably be defined as excellence in its various forms. "Excellence does not mean being a consultant or investment banker or Phi Beta Kappa or captain of the football team. It might more appropriately be defined as being an effective student leader, being the very best journalist among college circles, or being a photographer with extraordinary vision."

(Editor's Note: Other known living William and Mary alumni who attended Harvard Business School are: Donald T. Axon '42, John James Barry '52, Harry W. Carter '46, Carl H. Christensen '68, William Gregory Dunlevy '77, Jon Todd Elsasser '74, Marion Vance Fowler '40, Randolph Archer Neyland '67, William Joseph Slocum '35, and Bette Susan Stock '78.)

perience. Keep up your plucky attitude, Kitty, and be at Homecoming.

Appreciated a nice letter from G. Claude Cox. Since retiring from school work, he has been quite a traveler. All his teaching days were spent in Virginia except a two-year stint in Gainesville, Ga. Upon retirement he purchased a recreational vehicle (his words) and, accompanied by his wife, he has visited 49 states and driven across most of Canada. They did fly to Hawaii. They have also spent three winters in Mexico and been to Central America, to seven countries in Europe, to Israel, Egypt, Australia, New Zealand and Tahiti. They now think their traveling days are over, except for commuting between Wytheville and Florida, spending six months a year in each. They have three children, a boy and two girls, plus two grandsons. The son is a U.S. forest ranger in Kentucky. One daughter teaches in Prince William County, Va. The other daughter lives in Seattle, Wash., with her husband and two sons.

Louise Rice Ayers wrote an interesting letter about happenings in her life since graduation. She tried teaching for two years and, not finding it interesting or lucrative, she turned to newspaper assistant editing. Four years later, she entered the U.S. Government Service as a research, writing and publishing employee in the Office of Education. The next year, she married Robert C. Ayers, a lawyer, who later became associated with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. She joined him in his various assignments in Colorado, California, Montana, Arizona and Maryland. As both were in government service, they lived in the Washington area most of the time. With no children of their own, they are proud of the two they assisted through college and master's degrees. In retirement they are quite happy living at Westminster-Canterbury in Lynchburg.

Enjoy letters from Lucian Hobbs as he includes interesting chit-chat about his frequent visits to Reno. In his last letter he recommended for our reading enjoyment the two-part article by John Cornforth, "The New Decorative Arts Gallery at Williamsburg," which appeared in Country Life. He enjoys British authors, particularly those who write about America, and so do I.

Hope to see many of the Class of '28 at Homecoming.

Notes from Betty:

We hope all of you have had a wonderful summer and that you will take a few minutes to write us about it. Anything you care to send will be appreciated. We like to see your name on these pages.

We had some news from some of you just after the last deadline, so we saved it for this issue. No news is stale as far as we are concerned.

Anne Messick Mogel and her husband had a great South Seas Halley's Comet cruise this spring. They had two well-known astronomers on board, one being Carl Sagan. The cruise started in Auckland, N.Z., and included the islands of Tonga, Pago Pago, Suva, the Isle of Pines and Vila on Vanuatu. The cruise ended in Sidney, Australia, from where they flew home.

We had a note from Eleanor Nixon Ireson just before Olde Guard Day saying she and Elizabeth Allen Snead '31 were coming to Williamsburg for the event. Much to our sorrow, our paths didn't cross that day.

We did run into Mary Edgar Calcotte that day. As usual, she was bubbling over with enthusiasm about her latest venture. She has organized an instrumental band of six people who sing and play eight instruments. Mary devotes most of her time to music. She sings, composes, plays the piano and directs the band.

Memories! For those of us who finished not later than 1926, we share a unique recollection, Williamsburg as it was before the Restoration started. Who else can recall cobbled-stoned Duke of Gloucester Street with power lines down the center. The three principal College buildings at one end and the ruins of the Capitol at the other. The modern school at the far end of the Palace Green which ultimately gave way to reconstruction of the Governor's Palace. The magnificence of Bruton and the protection of its high pews from prying eyes. The unhurried pace, no one had a car, the C&O was the principal means of transportation. It was wonderful!

We are a bit late with our birthday congratulations to David D. Sizer '09 who attained the age of 100 years in Sept. 1985. He still visits four retirement homes each week to conduct Bible study classes. Our good wishes to you, sir. A true "laborer in the vineyard."

Elizabeth DeShazo Whitlock '24 continues to serve eight large organizations as professional parliamentarian. She shrugs that off as hardly being newsworthy. For those of us not of a legalistic mind, "Roberts Rules" were something of a never-ending maze.

"Glad to be up and doing," says Jesse Phillips '24. It is an accomplishment of the first order, Jesse. Do not treat it lightly. From my position as a lowly sophomore, I was impressed with Jesse. He exuded confidence, dressed well and I thought he was a "smooth hombre."

Caroline B. Sinclair '25 is visiting in her old haunts in Gloucester renewing and enjoying former friendships. She is now working on a new book entitled The Four Families of Rosewell. Your prayers that the book may come to press are solicited.

John B. Baker, M.D. '26 is getting jumpy. He recently received a copy of the "Spiked Shoe Society of William and Mary." His body twitches as he dreams of practicing "starts." John was a member of the track teams for four years. He retired from medical practice several years ago.

James P. Kemp '26 surfaced recently after a hiatus of 10 years. We met at our 50th and then he disappeared again. He and his wife are presently living in a retirement home in Atlanta, Ga. Their daughter finally corralled them.

Leah James '26 writes that having spent most of the summer of '86 in the hospital acquiring new knees, she is avidly looking forward to a return to William and Mary this year. After such a sacrifice, we pray nothing moves counter to her desire.

Editor's Note: Andre Goetz returned from the hospital on his birthday, July 4, after a stay of ten days. His sense of humor is still intact, and we hope that by the time this is published his recovery will be complete.

It was good to see some of our classmates at the April Olde Guard luncheon. Those who planned and executed the arrangements made it a very special time for us. It was a lovely occasion. Sorry more of our class weren't present. I believe the class member who came the farthest distance for the day was Ruth James Turner who lives in Georgia. It was great to see her.

Kitty Topping Hill showed the right spirit when she wrote, "Friday the 13th of December (the day I fell and broke my hip) was not all bad luck, because I have had an enjoyable recovery dividing the time between my son's family in Fayetteville, N.C., and my daughter's family in Orange, Va." By March, she had recovered sufficiently to return to her home in Plymouth, N.C., and was looking forward to enjoying her good friends, neighbors and activities there. Isn't it wonderful that she felt rewarded by an unfortunate ex-

'49 ALUMNUS RETIRES AS WILLIAM AND MARY PLANNING AND BUDGET DIRECTOR

Dennis K. Cogle '49, M.B.A. '70, director of planning and budget at William and Mary, has retired after 28 years of service to the College. A native of Petersburg, Cogle has served the College in a variety of administrative positions over the years. Before becoming director of planning and budget, he was director of personnel, assistant to the bursar, assistant to the vice president for business affairs and acting director of planning and budget. He received his W&M degree after returning from four years in the Army Signal Corps during World War II. After graduation he worked for the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory at Gloucester Point, now the Virginia Institute of Marine Science. He came to William and Mary in 1958. He and his wife, the former Jean Harrup of Richmond, are residents of Williamsburg. They have two children.

'75 ALUMNUS APPOINTED ASSISTANT TO PRESIDENT FOR COMMUNITY AND CAMPUS RELATIONS

Reginald A. Clark '75 of Newport News has been appointed to William and Mary's new post of assistant to the president for community and campus relations. A former bank credit analysis officer, Clark will represent President Paul R. Verkuil '61 at meetings of area organizations, including local and regional government bodies. He will also represent the president at various student, faculty and college-wide committee meetings. Clark holds a master's degree in public relations and communications from the University of Florida. Before his job as a credit analysis officer for First American Bank of Virginia, he worked as a branch manager for First & Merchants National Bank in Newport News. While at William and Mary, he was active in student government and athletics. A member of the varsity track team for four years, he won the 800-meter NCAA national championship and was voted the College's top student-athlete in 1975.

Mary recently received an award from the city of Chesapeake for her volunteer work in the city. Also she received a certificate for her 45 years of work with the Extension Homemakers. Mary also devotes much time to various senior citizens' organizations. It seems that she lets no grass grow under her feet.

We were delighted to hear from Samuel Rhinestine, an attorney in Chicago. We had met Sam and his wife, Hope, in 1978 on a trip to Greece and the Aegean Islands. He reports that while on a trip to England and Scotland last year, Hope broke her heel, which made it necessary to cut their trip short and fly home as soon as she was released from the hospital. Thankfully, she has recovered and is back at work.

Sam says that he doesn't do much but read and play tennis, which certainly says that both his brain and his limbs are still active.

We are saddened by the news of the death of our classmate, Emmett G. Frizzell of Danville, Va. We send our sympathy to his family.

A note from Eleanor Williamson James from Rochester, N.Y., where she and Joe went for a family celebration, says, "I met my Waterloo, as I fell down, broke my hip, and landed in the hospital." We send our sympathy as we know from experience what it is like when we break our bones. We do hope Eleanor will be back to normal in time to be at Homecoming.

On a happier note, this spring Eleanor and Joe attended the high school graduation of their grandson Garnett Byrd, the son of Crelin James Byrd '63. He will matriculate at Hampden-Sydney College this fall.

Your reporter is looking forward to serving you as a member-at-large on the Olde Guard Council for the next two years.

Notes from Ed:

It is with a feeling of sadness that I write of the death of Emmett G. Frizzell, an accounting major in our class. I recall with fond recollection some things about Emmett. He roomed on the third floor of old Ewell Hall and each morning he would go to the shower room in the basement and take a cold shower. Among the assignments given us in our Physical Education 101 was to be paired off according to our weight to box and wrestle. Emmett was quite an accomplished amateur boxer, and he was paired with "Runt" Taylor whom he dispatched with ease. But when the pairing came for wrestling, "Runt" was waiting for Emmett, and he promptly pinned his shoulder to the mat.

Most of all, I remember Emmett for an occasion relative to the College students class at the Williamsburg Baptist Church that was taught by Dr. Geiger, the philosophy professor at the College. Emmett, Dunston Johnson and I were on the committee to select new officers for the class. When we met, Emmett said, "I do not know of any in the class who are better qualified than we," so the following slate was presented: Ed Trice, president; Dunston Johnson, vice president; and Emmett Frizzell, secretary and treasurer. The class must have agreed with Emmett's assessment because we were approved unanimously.

I received a letter from Richard "Dick" Jones the last of June telling me that he and his wife, Ruth, were spending a week on Emerald Isle, N.C., with their son from Richmond. He and Ruth plan to attend Homecoming this November. Their children are planning a get-together this summer to celebrate Mom's and Dad's 50th wedding anniversary.

Dick said he was recently reminiscing about our days in Taliaferro Hall when we were roused by someone crying out "Padgett's Man" soliciting clothes for the cleaner.

He further recalled one of Dr. John Garland Pollard's philosophical statements that the members of his class chanted in unison: "It's not what you know, it's what you do with what you know that counts!"

I remember the first night I spent at college there was a reception for the incoming members of our class. I could not find the girl whose name tag I was wearing. (She was hiding after she saw the country hick who was sporting her name tag.) Dr. Pollard came to me and said, "Son, can't you find a girl?" When I replied in the negative, he took me to two girls who had encountered the same misfortune as I.

During my junior year when I was taking a course in constitutional government under Dr. Pollard, he resigned his position with the College to run for governor of Virginia in an election he won in the fall of 1929 over the Republican candidate. He had won over G. Walter Mapp in the Democratic primary the preceding summer.

A note through the Alumni Office from Dr. Thomas A. Hart that he and Dorothy Carlstrom were married March 9, 1986. He says that they honeymooned on the Oregon coast, traveled to Harrison Hot Springs, and then enjoyed a cruise on the Columbia River. Tom says, "Life is great and Seattle is wonderful!" Congratulations to both of you!

I recently received an inquiry from Leroy Ober about what has happened to the Class of '30. He asked, "Have we all gone into a coma?" He comments that he hasn't yet and is still working and playing tennis. He says he wishes for me to speak up.

Now, classmates, I cannot write about you and what you are doing unless you send me the news about yourself. If you do not, I will continue to reminisce as I have done in much of this report.

I hope to see you at Homecoming the third weekend in November. Be sure to attend the Olde Guard luncheon on Friday. You will receive further information from the Alumni Office long before that time.

Leslie Cheek Created Pioneer Program In 1936

A film series from the Museum of Modern Art Film Library was held to show motion pictures as a contemporary art form. Campus activities, such as the traditional June and Christmas balls, were carefully and elaborately designed from decorations and costumes to lighting and publicity. The arts became a part of college life wherever and whenever possible.

Prior to the establishment of the Department of Fine Arts, William and Mary had offered theater and history of music. The new department, chaired by Leslie Cheek, offered architecture, painting, sculpture, stagecraft, and art history. Cheek taught architecture; two of his Yale colleagues were hired to teach sculpture and painting.

The department also offered a basic course for students with time for only one fine arts course. This course, a chronological survey of the entire field of art, was divided into historical periods. History, architecture, painting, sculpture, music, and theater of each period were covered.

To provide teaching facilities for the Department of Fine Arts the interior of Taliaferro Hall, an old dormitory, was completely renovated. An illuminated, two-story wall fountain highlighted the building's open stairwell. Sculptured reliefs of Venus rising from the sea, attended by representations of architecture, sculpture, and painting, could be seen through water falling over large glass plates. The bas relief served as a fine example of architectural sculpture.

Exhibitions staged at the College featured the work of famous artists and designers. Georgia O'Keeffe attended the opening of William and Mary's exhibition of her works in 1937 and was awarded an honorary degree during her visit. In 1938 Frank Lloyd Wright spoke at the preview of an exhibition honoring his architectural achievements. The show, borrowed from the Museum of Modern Art, was the first Wright show ever staged in the South.

Today, fine arts are taught at 36 of Virginia's 39 colleges and universities. While the opportunity was slow in coming, Jefferson's ideal was eventually realized by educators who firmly believed in training the eye to see and the mind to appreciate.

The old Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, which burned in the early 1950s, was transformed into a gallery in October 1938, for a major exhibit and lecture by architect Frank Lloyd Wright. The exhibit installation was designed by Leslie Cheek.

This is the Fine Arts Building, built in 1893 with renovations made in 1936. It stood beside Taliaferro Hall (at right) built in 1935. The building provided studio and classroom space for painting and sculpturing. Renovations enlarged the building and included the handsome entranceway at left.

The Class of '32 must be on vacation this summer — no news for this dateline.

We had a great treat here in Blackstone. One of our W&M alumnae, Dr. Susanne Jones '72, came to our new library in July for a book review and discussion. It was one of those special evenings with dinner at Betty and Bill Armbruster's lovely restaurant, and a most interesting evening discussing Ellen Glasgow's book, The Sheltered Life.

Susanne earned her Phi Beta Kappa key and her B.A. and M.A. degrees in English at William and Mary. She will be married in a few weeks to Dr. Frank Papovich, a professor at the University of Virginia.

The W&M Southside Alumni Chapter had its second alumni picnic in August for freshmen of this area entering William and Mary this fall. The chapter is planning a bus trip to W&M's game against Harvard in Williamsburg.

A note from Agnes '31 and Pat Paschall '32 saying that they are living in Williamsburg now. Pat does not travel a great distance due to spinal arthritis. We had hoped they could be with us for the Southside Alumni picnic. We wish both of them many happy years near the college they have given so much to.

We are all sad here in Blackstone to hear of Sue Bagwell Moncure's death. She was the wife of Judge William Irby Moncure.

I see Frances Rousie Terrell here in the dental office when she comes in for dental care. Frances lives in Kenbridge and is fine at this writing.

I look forward to seeing many of you in the fall. Please write.

ALUMNUS ELECTED GM VICE PRESIDENT

W. Gordon Binns Jr. '49 has been elected a vice president of General Motors. Binns, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the College who received a master's degree in government from Harvard University and a master's degree in business administration from New York University, is the chief investment funds officer of General Motors with responsibility for overseeing the investments of the company's pension and other employee benefit funds worldwide, as well as the investments of GM's insurance subsidiaries.

a huge success, with many congratulations and much appreciation due to the Society of Alumni staff and to their volunteer student committee. At this, our second O.G. spring luncheon, we began to feel like old hands.

Among classmates it was our pleasure to see were: Harriet Pittard Beales, Boydton, Va.; Clara Thompson Knight and her husband, Ken, Raleigh, N.C.; Cary Baldwin Blade, Virginia Beach, Va.; Ruth Wilson James, Norfolk; Arthur and Dorothy '35 Brettnall, Sea Girt, N.J.; Evelyn Maynard Harris and Frances Spindle Harris — both of Williamsburg; Bessie White Nelson and Phil '32, Warrenton, Va.; and Kitty Blanton Seay, Norfolk.

It is always fun to meet and greet friends from other classes. Among these were the Bruce Stewarts from Portsmouth; Bill '28 and Mary Thompson, Virginia Beach; The Honorable Walter E. Hoffman '29, Norfolk; Eugenia Portlock Joyce '27, Norfolk; and David '35 and Jane Agnew, Norfolk.

Bruce '27 had again arranged transportation for those of us from this area to go in a group. We are greatly indebted to him for this and for other years, as well.

The day's program included campus tours by shuttle bus service, a special walking tour of the old campus, a reception and buffet luncheon on the lawn of the Alumni House. The William and Mary Band provided music during the reception and the Choir, during the program following lunch. We particularly enjoyed hearing from Dr. Paul Verkuil '61, president of the College, and meeting new members of his "cabinet."

The Class of '34's representatives on the Olde Guard Council are Helen Singer Dau and Cecil Harper. If you missed this meeting, we hope you'll be able to join one soon!

Received a call in early July from Emil O. Johnson from Austin, Texas. It is always so good to hear from him. Had just read about the first recipient of the Emil O. Johnson scholarship presented to a promising woman scholar-athlete. Lorie Lonergo, the recipient, is one of the Tribe's top golfers. This is Emil's second scholarship grant. A number of years ago, he established the Karen Johnson Memorial, a general scholarship. Emil says funds are still arriving for the class's 50th anniversary gift to the College. He hopes to attend Homecoming '86!

A lovely letter arrived from Elizabeth Jacobs Pugh, Decatur, Ga. She has done a bit of traveling this past spring, having taken an interesting cruise to Playa Del Carmen and having visited the Cancun and Mayan ruins in and around Chichen Itza in Mexico. She spent three weeks in June touring California from San Diego to Yosemite and Lake Tahoe. At home in Decatur, Elizabeth is active in the Christian Church and in her garden club and is on the board of the DeKalb County Council on Aging. She visited Williamsburg in December. Hope she'll make an Olde Guard meeting either at Homecoming or next spring!

Had a nice note from Harriet Council Mead '35, Orlando, Fla. She writes that our classmate Howard Scammon has the most fun, particularly now that he's directing plays again.

Margaret D. Ross's involvement with the Clan Ross Association of the United States, Inc., keeps her busy with Scottish affairs, right now as an officer and as historian. She writes for their newsletter, does research for various Clan members and visits many of the Scottish Games up and down the East Coast including those at Bonnie Brae, upstate New York; Stone Mountain, Ga.; and the biggest of all in the United States — those at Grandfather Mountain, N.C. Last year, members from 20 states, over 50,000 kilted Scotsmen and women were hosted.

The Williamsburg Scottish Games will be held Sept. 27 and the chief of Clan Ross is expected from Scotland to be the guest of honor. Margaret hopes that all her friends in Patricia A. Gritzan '74 has been promoted to vice president of Fidelity Bank in Philadelphia. Ms. Gritzan, who joined the bank in 1984, holds a master's degree in finance from Seton Hall University. She received her B.A. in business administration from William and Mary.

and around Williamsburg will come by Ross headquarters to say "hello." She has just completed four years as president of the genealogical society in her county in New Jersey. In odd moments between visiting family, she executes commissions for clients also interested in genealogy. She closed her newsy letter with "And they call this being retired!"

Can only marvel at Frances Spindle Harris's wonderful courage, optimism and spirit! Writing from her room in Williamsburg Hospital, July 1, the day before she was transferred to Henrico Doctors Hospital in Richmond, Frances thanked heaven and her good doctors for bringing her through an illness that apparently had started soon after we had seen her at the spring Olde Guard meeting.

Through Evelyn Maynard Harris, another classmate from Williamsburg, and Frankie Martens, alumni class news editor, we have found that Frances came through her bypass operation successfully. Her sister reported that she would be at Doctors Hospital another two or three weeks. I'm sure all of you join me in every good wish to Frances for her continued recovery and return to good health.

An interesting note arrived from Lillian Carmine Sterling, Gloucester, Va. The Sterlings were booked for a tour of the British Isles in June with daughter Carolyn '67 and her family from Albuquerque, N.M. They have thought it best to have the family visit in Virginia, this year. Lillian and Lester celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary in Washington, D.C., where they had spent their honeymoon. Lillian is an active member of the Gloucester Retired Teachers' Association. They both stay busy with church and community activities, gardening, fishing and boating. It sounds like a good life, Lillian!

Received two notes from the Alumni Office. Daniel W. Deal, Naxera, Va., wrote that he was having trouble with his eyes. We were sorry to hear this, but must compliment him on the clarity of his writing! Virginia Russell Edge wrote that she was now living in the San Francisco Bay area and learning to adjust to a "different world." "So far," she writes, "Virginia is better." Her new address is 11 Ramon Court, Danville, CA 94526.

It was good to hear from Kavey Sparrow, Martinsville, Va. He writes that he and Kitty Vaden Sparrow '37 are fine and enjoying their retirement. Kitty has served as regent in the D.A.R., enjoys church work and flower-arranging. Kavey enjoys tennis and walking. He has recently resigned from the local Rotary Club after attending 1,831 consecutive meetings over 30 years; it had become a problem to make up meetings! He is also a Paul Harris Fellow. The Sparrows enjoy visiting their granddaughters in Charlottesville and have frequently joined classmates Bob Vaden (Kitty's brother), Gretna, Va., and Dr. Henry Wolf, Charleston, W. Va., on brief trips. Son Kavey '79 is currently doing his residency at Fairfax Hospital. They had a nice visit with Sara Shelton Babson '36 and her husband, Bob, when they were in Virginia in the spring for Sara's 50th reunion at William and Mary. Thanks, Kavey, for sharing your news with us.

Larry and I had the pleasure of attending our grandson Larry III's graduation from Western Albemarle High School in Charlottesville in early June. It is one of the most beautiful settings for such an event that can be imagined. The athletic field was completely surrounded by the grandeur and beauty of the Blue Ridge Mountains. His big interest right now is bike racing. Son Larry and a friend manage an American Bicycle Association track where he competes. Recently, he attended the ABA Nationals in Baltimore, Md.

In July, we had the great pleasure of welcoming our English friends, Doreen and John Watts, and our Washington friends, Bert and Tom Wolf, who had been vacationing at Duck, N.C., on their way back to D.C. It had been our pleasure to sponsor the Watts when John and Tom were classmates at the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk. It was a really big week — starting with our exciting trip on the Spirit of Norfolk to view the tall ships on their departure for New York harbor; the 10th anniversary Fourth of July neighborhood picnic; and the visit with our friends from D.C. and from England.

And now, hear this — our good friend, neighbor and classmate Kitty Blanton Seay won a trip to New York to see the Fourth of July celebration. She has written this report for us:

"I was lucky enough to win a trip for two to Liberty weekend in New York sponsored by J.C. Penney and WFOG-FM. The trip included airfare, three nights' hotel accommodation and a cruise around the harbor. There were bands and orchestras in the streets, as well as folk dancers from many countries, and street vendors with various memorabilia for sale. Since cab drivers were on strike, we had to depend on subways and buses. I was much impressed with the wonderful security and the way in which New York City coped with the multitude of visitors. I did not witness a single bit of out-of-the-way behavior! It was thrilling to pass the tall ships that were among the 40,000 varieties of vessels from small sailboats to aircraft carriers. Just as we passed the beautiful Statue of Liberty, holding high her new gold-leaf torch, three jets zoomed down close, emitting streamers of red, white and blue gases. What a celebration!"

How nice it would be to hear from you next column!

Our 50th class reunion was a big success. Those of you who did not attend missed a real treat. We were all given name tags and everyone ran around looking at everybody's name tag to see who they were. I did not recognize several of my close friends. People change in 50 years!

The first informal get-together was on Friday evening at the home of Judge and Mrs. Robert T. Armistead in Williamsburg. I understand it was a lovely party. I was sorry that I did not arrive until Saturday.

The Saturday schedule began with registration at the Alumni House where a lovely brunch was served. Each alumnus was presented a Class of 1936, 50th Reunion Colonial Re-echo Book, bringing us up to date on what the '36 alumni have been doing during the last 50 years. This was followed by class pictures and then lunch. After a busy afternoon, we enjoyed a banquet at the Williamsburg Hospitality House. We were presented with an Olde Guard medallions. On our 50th reunion, we all become members of the Olde Guard, and we now have our medallions to prove it.

Sunday was another busy day, with many delightful activities planned. I'm sorry I missed them and also that I did not hear Jeanne J. Kirkpatrick, former U.S. representative to the United Nations, speak at the commencement exercises. I had a commitment in Norfolk on Sunday.

Bill Rhodes, chairman of the gift committee, is to be congratulated for the wonderful job he and his committee did. The Class of '36 gave more money to our college than any other class. This money is to be used to help our faculty and our students.

Mary Salisbury Tessman especially enjoyed her 50th-year reunion and graduation ceremonies. This event was very important to her because her granddaughter, Kay Margaret Kronk, graduated with the class of 1986.

INSTITUTE OF EARLY AMERICAN HISTORY AND CULTURE MEETS $300,000 ENDOWMENT CAMPAIGN GOAL

William and Mary's Institute of Early American History and Culture has completed a $300,000 challenge grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. The terms of the grant called for the Institute to raise $200,000 in endowment money to match a $100,000 endowment gift from the Mellon Foundation. The foundation also donated $200,000 to start the Institute's endowment in 1978. Sponsored jointly by the College and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, the Institute organizes history conferences, administers fellowship and intern programs, and publishes books as well as the William and Mary Quarterly, a historical journal. It was founded in 1943 to foster study, research and publication related to American history up to 1815.

They had both looked forward to this day for four years. Just before the reunion, my husband, Bob, and I drove to Martinsville, Va., to visit an old friend Kitty Vaden Sparrow '37 and her husband, Kavanaugh Sparrow '34. We had a lovely three-day visit.

Esther Beebe Spegeman wrote a note before the reunion saying she had planned to attend, but it just did not work out.

Mabel Hadly Daley said, "Enjoyed our reunion, which I attended with my daughter Susan, very much. I can't say I like the town as well as I did back in our college days."

Helen C. Rose continues her interest in renovating old period houses. Helen has traveled around the world twice since retiring from her job as supervisor of art education for the Richmond schools.

Oh, the advantages of being class reporter! In March, the very day I had mailed the class letter for May, Ed Miller '40 and his wife, Mildred, came to see us. They were in the neighborhood and stopped on the chance that we'd be home. Ed is a lawyer, now retired and living in Lebanon, Pa., north of Lancaster. Two weeks later, Gwen Evans Wood '39 telephoned while she was passing through from her home in Harrisburg. We didn't see each other, but we're still hoping to. Love these William and Mary contacts!

Another satisfaction of the class reporter position is helping long-lost classmates find each other. In this case, it was former roommates, Lib Lea Robey and Doris Johnson Hocott. In April Lib wrote inquiring about Doris's whereabouts, and in May I heard from Doris that they were back in touch. No wonder they had lost each other: Lib has moved 14 times and Doris almost that much!

As I prepared to type this letter, the mail brought a packet from Jack Morpurgo in London. I'll quote his letter in full and you'll observe that again this office is serving as a "connector."

"The May Alumni Gazette has just reached me and I was delighted to see the note from my old friend and fraternity brother Gil Crandell ('Duke' in my book American Excursion). I have not and shall never forget the address that was his when we were all young; just Gilcray, Annapolis, MD; most noble and peremptory; but I cannot be sure that that will still find him and so I beg of you to forward the enclosed letter.

"For myself, I am now professor emeritus and returned from Leeds to living in London, but if retirement is thought to imply a rocking chair on the porch, you may dismiss that picture from your mind. It is, I know, something of a cliché to say that in retirement I am busier than ever before, but in my case it is certainly true.

I write as busily as ever; my latest book, an edition with a long introduction to William Cobbett's American writings published in Britain and the U.S. by the Folio Society. I run my own small literary agency, I am much involved in the affairs of my other old school, Christ's Hospital, of which I am an almoner (trustee) and we travel extensively.

"1985 was especially hectic. As one of only two survivors from that small group of editors who directed Penguin Books through its early days and as the biographer of the founder and initiator of the Paperback Revolution, Sir Allen Lane, I was much in demand for articles, radio and television interviews, not only in Britain but also in Canada and Australia. We spent several happy weeks touring Australia; this for the third time in eight years. In October this year we are committed to spend time in Caldwell, Idaho, where I am

DOCTORAL HISTORY STUDENT RECEIVES THREE-YEAR FELLOWSHIP

John Thomas Wren, a doctoral student in William and Mary's history department, has been awarded a three-year fellowship from the Department of Education's National Graduate Fellowship Program. The fellowship will support the research and writing of Wren's doctoral dissertation, which concerns the concept of state sovereignty in the early decades of the American republic. The award will pay full tuition and provide a $10,000 annual stipend. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Wren is a graduate of Denison University in Granville, Ohio. He holds a law degree from the University of Virginia, a master's degree in public affairs from George Washington University, and a master's degree in history from William and Mary. He practiced law in the Washington, D.C., area from 1976 to 1982.

invited to be a sort of writer and scholar-in-residence at the small College of Idaho.

"I was much surprised and suitably honored when Britain's largest provisional newspaper, the Yorkshire Post, conferred upon me its Special Literary Award "for services on both sides of the Atlantic to literature, scholarship and publishing." This award has been given only to two others in the last half of the century, one of them Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

"Recently, with much help from younger alumni, I have given some time to reviving the United Kingdom Chapter of which I have been president for the last 20 years. We are, I believe, not only the most distant chapter but also the most far-flung. We have members in the far north of Scotland and others in the most southwesterly parts of England, some 900 miles apart.

"It would please us greatly if any members of the Class of '38 (or, for that matter, of any other class) who intend to pass any length of time in Britain would get into touch with me, Malcolm Robinson or Joan Lee. The Alumni Office has our addresses and telephone numbers."

A nice, unsolicited letter from Joan Thompson Hicks-Cosmos: "As the reunion time for 1988 is not too far off, I have sent a contribution to the Alumni Society for our class professorship fund, and I hope to see more news from our classmates before the reunion. I'll start by adding some notes about my recent past and invite any of our class to stop for a visit with me should any be in Urbana, Ill. I am retired from my position as librarian of the College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. I usually spend most of the winter in Texas, but come home to plant a garden before going off for visits during spring, summer and fall to my sister and classmate, Anne Thompson Graves, and her family in Williamsburg, to my older son, Bruce Hicks in Arcata, Calif., and to my younger son, Jim Hicks, in New York City. . . Looking forward to your news and the reunion."

An easy and quick way for all of us to keep in touch is by filling in the space for news on the contribution envelope for the College. Eventually those notes reach me, and I can report your news in the Gazette. Here are some notes that came that route.

From Barbara Moore McIntyre: "After 37 1/2 years with General Electric Company Switchgear Division Plant in Philadelphia, I retired in 1982 and (no connection!) married a 40-year G.E. Company retiree. We live quietly but happily in the Philadelphia suburbs with our three cats. Greetings to all in the class of '38."

From Tom Forsyth in Blowing Rock, N.C.: "My son, David Lee Forsyth, is now playing the character of Logan McCleary on NBC "soap drama" "Search for Tomorrow" and doing well."

From Edythe Dank Lever: "I was elected president of The Prompters, a volunteer task force for the Performing Arts Center of State University of New York at Purchase, N.Y. This is a four-theater complex and there are 200 volunteers serving it, performing endless amounts of services. We also serve at Pepsico Summerfare-International Arts Festival every summer for four weeks. It is a great group."

From Gil Piquette in D.C.: "This is my fifth year tutoring elementary level students at the Petworth School. I use stamp collecting as a means of teaching world affairs, history, geography, spelling, reading, researching, orderliness and increasing attention span. There are seven boys and girls who meet with me from 1:30 to 3 once a week at the school. I begin to see improvement. There is a long list of students wanting to be in the class. They are selected to join because they are slow learners or have other learning problems."

From Helene Stein Vogt: "We continue to

MR. AND MRS. LAYTON SMITH ESTABLISH EDUCATION PROFESSORSHIP

Mr. and Mrs. Layton F. Smith of Basking Ridge, N.J., have established an endowment at the College for a professorship in the School of Education. According to President Verkuil, the Smiths "have been most thoughtful and generous supporters of William and Mary. For the past five years they have taken the leadership role in supporting the William and Mary Parents Fund." The Smiths' latest donation qualifies for matching funds through the Commonwealth of Virginia's Eminent Scholars Program. The first Jody and Layton Smith Professor in Education will be appointed in the fall of 1987.

travel — this spring to the South Pacific, this summer sailing our boat up the Chesapeake for a four-month cruise. See you at Homecoming '86."

From Elizabeth Rumsey Weber: "My grandson, John Frederick (for his grandfather) Hoskins will get my 16-year-old car for his 16th birthday. I sat with Jane Hanson, wife of Tim Hanson, (a different class but I remember him), at Virginia Seminary. They spoke of Jack Morpurgo. I found a picture of Jack with Fred in my annual."

From Mollie Waters Christie: "My good news is that after 13 years at U. of Arizona, Bill Jr. will be associate academic dean at Furman U., Greenville, S.C., as of June 1986 — only an hour and a half away!"

In June I had a brief visit from one of our classmates, Beth Bowden Couper. A mutual friend brought her to call. Even though we both lived near Wilmington for many years, Beth and I seldom crossed paths then and so we had a delightful gab fest. The Coupers have since moved to Waynesboro, Va., and are busy preparing for the wedding of their younger son and visit from their older daughter and her family who live in Germany. Beth exulted that their new home has a 180-degree view of mountains!

Harold Gouldman for the Class of 1937 reunion committee has written to the members of our committee welcoming our class in sharing a hospitality suite with them at our Homecoming headquarters hotel. By joining forces, we should meet twice as many friends! The activities for Homecoming sound exciting and we trust that many of you will be there for all or any part of the weekend. Remember Nov. 14, 15 and 16 and make reservations now. Y'all come!

This summer has been a very busy one and filled with lots of fun. Do hope all of you can say the same.

Almost all the news I have comes from the Alumni Office.

A Leesbury newspaper clipping from a December issue tells of an anonymous donor who has given $10,000 to the YMCA building fund in the names of three young people who died in automobile accidents — two were children of Frances and Frank Raflo. Josephine Raflo Fagan of the Class of '70 who died Nov. 26, 1985, was 36 years old and the oldest of their four children. They lost a son, Philip, on Sept. 1, 1977, in an accident in California at age 23. He had graduated summa cum laude in politics from Princeton University. The donor has specified that a bronze plaque be placed at the base of three flagpoles in front of the new YMCA in honor of the three children. I know all our class joins me in expressing our sympathy for these tragic losses, Frank.

Louise Mallory Becker writes that she's on the road to recovery from an inflamed arthritic hip after losing a number of weeks of work. She considers herself fortunate to be a Green Thumb Area Leader for the Middle Peninsula and Northern Neck counties of Virginia. She visits the Green Thumb workers employed in about 15 host agencies. Louise says that in another year she can't say she's in the 70s — she waited nine years to start college. She enjoys our beautiful Virginia. Congratulations, Louise!

Sue Duncan Thomas reports that she certainly enjoyed our 45th reunion and is looking forward to the 50th!

I had a communication from Joan Lee '63 who is membership secretary of the United Kingdom Chapter of the Society of the Alumni. She would like to hear from all William and Mary graduates planning a visit there or even more important, any actually living in the U.K. After the summer break, they hope to get together at a special Thanksgiving service in one of the historic churches of the City of London traditionally opened by the Lord Mayor. Her address is: 38 Mallinson Road, London SW11 1BP. Telephone: 228-5862.

Jack and Ann Garrett recently attended Jack's Harvard class reunion at the business school at Cambridge and had a most delightful time.

Frank and I had a good many house guests this summer including our two Richmond grandchildren for a week. We're now anticipating the arrival of our son Daniel Marshall-Wythe '81 and family from The Hague for a two-week visit.

Would so love to hear from you good people!

Lt. Gov. Richard Davis was reappointed during the 1986 eligibility year. This appointment will give the College a closer tie to the government and its potential to build an endowment and operational base.

Wanda Cooke Calhoun has just retired after 20 years as registrar at the Achland Art Museum, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. She hopes to enjoy her freedom and travel, garden, bird-watch and engage in other earthly delights.

Edith Rathbun Bell enjoyed the Charter Day exercises, a visit to the DeWitt Wallace Gallery and says that it's always good to be back in Williamsburg. In the spring the Bells opened their home for Historic Garden Week in Virginia.

Emalee Ewing Durbim spent 60 days in Europe starting in April. Apparently a fall, resulting in a fractured wrist and whiplash, didn't deter her enjoyment of the trip.

William W. Granger Jr. is chairman of the board and chief executive of Beatrice, Inc. He joined Beatrice's Norfolk plant in 1946 as office and credit manager, followed by moving up the ranks until named to his present position in 1985. Beatrice, Inc., markets a diversified line of food products and has important non-food operations. The international food segment operates in over 30 countries.

On May 8, my youngest daughter presented me with a new grandson. While spending two weeks with her in Oregon, I fell and fractured four bones in my right foot. But thanks to an artist friend, I wound up with the most beautiful cast in town.

I feel that this should be my last class letter. My cancer continues to spread, and my chemotherapy treatments are extremely enervating. It has been a pleasure to be your class secretary for a number of years — I can't really remember how many — and I look forward to reading the class news from a fresher perspective than I can now accomplish. Thank you all for your support.

I would like to encourage our "44ers" to send in their news so the next column will be a fitting representation. There are only a few items for my July 15 deadline, and I really would hate to resort to my earlier threat to pad the column with data from the Connecticut Department of Economic Development. So, please let's all get together to make the next report a super one.

'67 ALUMNUS NAMED AD PERSON OF THE YEAR

William Westbrook '67 has been named Ad Person of the Year by the Advertising Club of Richmond, Va. Westbrook, who holds a master's degree from the University of South Carolina, is president and creative director of Westbrook, Inc., a full-service advertising agency based in Richmond with a regional office in Atlanta. Previously, he worked at Cargill, Wilson & Acree, where he was, at 26, the youngest creative director in the firm's history. In 1981 he founded his own ad agency and in 1983 and 1985, he was named "Best Television Copywriter in the South" by Ad Week magazine. The author of three books, he has received numerous awards for his work in advertising.

Jean Lochridge Quinn and husband, Langdon, are enjoying their new trawler, "Lang Syne," on the Chesapeake Bay before departing for home base in Stuart, Fla. Marilyn and John Entwisle joined them in Oxford, Md., for several days last November.

A news clip dated April 9, 1986, was sent to me concerning the committee seeking a successor to Duane A. Dittman, who will retire as vice president of university advancement in June 1987. One of the eight members of the committee was John S. Entwisle, chairman of the development committee of the W&M Endowment Association.

A news release from The Times Herald reports that Anne Dobie Peebles was unanimously reelected to a two-year term as rector of the College Board of Visitors, even though she has only one year of her four-year Board term left to serve. "Her election appeared to be a show of affection from her fellow Board members for her long years of service to the College. At the end of March 1987, Miss Peebles, the College's first woman rector, will have served 13 consecutive years, longer than any other Board member in 20 years."

Betty Jane Meister Walters '43 and husband, Julian, of Valley Springs, Calif., will travel via Amtrak in September to Vancouver City to visit Expo '86.

Since we have ample space left for news, I will relate a recent chance encounter with Paul Newman in a Southport, Conn., convenience store. One warm summer evening I stopped to order a double-dip ice cream cone. While waiting for the cone and my change, I suddenly realized Paul Newman was standing next to me. With pounding heart and determination to keep my composure, I stuffed the change in my purse. When I reached the door, I noticed I didn't have my cone. Returning to the counter, I exclaimed, "My cone — I didn't get it!" The blue, blue Newman eyes sparkled as he replied, "Ma'am, you put the cone in your purse!" And, indeed, I had.

A heat wave and a drought are the unpleasant aspects facing us here this mid-July; however, there are many good things upon which we may focus our attention, and one of those is the upcoming November Homecoming. You have all received information concerning this important event and I trust many have already made plans to attend our big 40th reunion. A committee has been working diligently and faithfully to make it the best ever.

A phone call in late spring from Simpsonville, S.C., came as a real surprise. Lawrence Rollins Richardson Jr. called to "touch base" with our class and bring us up to date. Rollins left William and Mary after two years, but completed his education and received his medical degree at the University of South Carolina. He practiced in Simpsonville for 30 years and retired on disability nine years ago. His wife, Betty, is a school teacher who retired the end of this current year, and they were heading for Maine at that point. Rollins is an avid book collector and must have instilled his love of them in his children, Margie and Steve, for they are both librarians. I hope you are seriously considering my suggestion to join us at Homecoming, Rollins, and become reacquainted with your classmates.

Louisa Lloyd writes she is still helping care for a paralyzed polio victim in Fairfax. When not working, she keeps busy with church-connected groups and running errands for the household of three, currently in connection with yard and garden work.

Summer Alumni Activities Chapters Welcome Freshmen, Gather for Fellowship

Over 100 alumni attended a picnic and enjoyed an afternoon of fellowship and activities at the United States Equestrian Team Facility in Gladstone, N.J., which was the setting for the third annual Welcome Freshmen picnic on July 19 sponsored by the New Jersey Chapter of the Society of the Alumni. John H. Fritz '48, vice president of the Equestrian team, made the beautiful facility available. Barbara Wheeler '57 of Summit, N.J., welcomed the alumni and freshmen.

ALUMNI ORGANIZE WILLIAM AND MARY'S FRIENDS OF THE CHEERLEADERS

Richard Goodwin '64 and Thomas Athey '48 are forming a new interest group, "Friends of the Cheerleaders." The group is open to any former William and Mary cheerleader or friend. Plans are in the works for a Homecoming get-together immediately after the parade. For more information, contact Thomas Athey, 502 York-Warwick Drive, Yorktown, VA 23490, or Richard Goodwin, P.O. Box 2023, Annapolis, MD 21401.

rived in December for two-and-a-half-year-old Chris. Becky writes how happy everyone is about it.

Carey Pete Modlin Jr. notes he is still assistant director for budget review with the Office of Management and Budget in Washington and says "will come to my senses and retire some year."

A new home near Sloane Square in London for Harriet Irvin Rutland where she can see the Christopher Wren building at the Royal Hospital in less than a five-minute walk. Harriet reports she enjoys living both in her new abode and her home in Austin, Texas.

Dale Clark is still winning honors in the Golden Olympics. At the competition held at Lynchburg College, Dale captured six gold medals and one silver medal in the seven events he entered. He holds four Golden Olympics records. In addition to competing in the Olympics, Dale plays on a championship softball team with his youngest son, is a downhill skier and has coached youth baseball, football and basketball teams.

Cecy Waddell Cunningham is enthusiastic about Homecoming and has heard about lots of returnees' plans for the occasion. Their daughter, Ann, was married recently, followed by their son, Todd, moving to Tampa. Let's follow Cecy's suggestion, and each of us nudge our particular friends to come — if only for part of the weekend.

I have learned of several who are marking their calendars right now: Catharine Mitchell Holladay, Patty Wattles Robie, Peggy Pitz Sanford, Jene Carr Dent, Tony Lester Kemmerer, Olive Anne Hasty Shelor, just to mention a few. Ellen Irvin Newberry wrote a reunion would be fun, but she was not making plans in June to attend. Ellen and Russ were looking forward to the Statue of Liberty celebrations when their club at Echo Bay would be hosting crews from 10 ships at a brunch and cookout.

A happy addition to our family in May — Brandon Graham Moore arrived in Virginia Beach, bringing our total to four grandchildren. We are now looking forward to the christening in August. And looking still further ahead, I'm already excited about seeing each of you in November. Please join us for a memorable event — it will be fabulous.

Thomas Lanier Smith '46

Tommy wrote letters to his friends by hand. Not only were they extremely articulate, with impeccable grammar and flawless spelling, they were in a script so perfect they could have been used as illustrations in a textbook on penmanship. In content they brimmed with sunny optimism, frequently describing the next opportunity he would seize, the next move he planned to make. Even in his last months, he wrote about how he would beat the disease that finally killed him.

His letters were like the man. Tommy was an attractive, likeable person full of cheerful enthusiasm. He was always able to see golden opportunities, look upon the upbeat side of life.

This good-looking, happy-faced youth came to W&M from Danville as a War Worker in the summer of 1942. In the fall he became president of the freshman class. Then, like so many other male undergraduates of that year, he went off to war. Unlike most, he received a medical discharge for some obscure reason after a few months.

Tommy returned to the College, Feb. 1, 1944, in time to register for the second semester of his sophomore year. He caught up with his classmates by attending summer school and graduated on schedule in June 1946.

Between Feb. 1944 and June 1946, the W&M world was Tommy Smith's oyster. Among other things, he was chairman of the Men's Honor Council, sports editor of The Flat Hat, played the lead in "The Importance of Being Ernest" and helped organize the highly successful Sovereigns, wartime fraternity substitute. And of course he made ODK.

'71 ALUMNUS HEADS MEDICAL HIGH TECH FIRM IN NORFOLK

Bruce C. Holbrook '71 is president of Osteoporosis Reference Systems, Inc., which develops and manufactures equipment used to detect osteoporosis. The sophisticated equipment allows doctors to discover the disease in its early stages and begin preventive treatment. The business that Holbrook heads is related to Computerized Imaging Reference Systems, Inc. By using equipment developed by the two firms, doctors may determine whether lung tumors are malignant without conducting surgery. Holbrook, an accounting major at William and Mary, is also a partner in the certified public accounting firm of Goodman & Company.

He did all this while working his way through college. He was a wine steward at Travis House (predecessor to Kings Arms Tavern) and worked in the College Dining Hall. He may have been known best for his contributions to the Saturday night dances which were a regular feature at Blow Gym. Tommy parlayed his skill as a trombone player and singer into the role of dance band organizer and leader. He obtained outstanding professional musicians from nearby military and naval bases to provide some of the best dance music ever heard on the old campus.

Tommy Smith epitomized the acronym BMOG (Big Man On Campus) which was current when he was a student. He was a beam of sunlight during those grim, gray years of World War II.

Here in Lancaster County, Va., the drought has caused farmers to request emergency aid from the federal government. Likewise, there is a dearth of news in my department. Only one old faithful has come up with an item for this newsletter. Charles Warner writes that he and his wife, Anne, had their home, Accokeek, open for Garden Week this past spring and entertained almost 800 visitors among whom were many old friends. Charles and a cousin are having a state historical marker placed in Lancaster to designate the ancestral home of the James Carter family, Barford.

When news of our class is scarce, you might expect to be bombarded with the big personal pronoun "I." (It's a just punishment for your not writing!) Bill and I planned to attend the Anheuser-Busch Golf Tournament in Williamsburg. It is always a delight to return to Williamsburg even at the height of tourist season. Later we are going to the beach to visit the Shooks to celebrate our wedding anniversary (48th) and my birthday (59th). Now I have let all my secrets out of the bag! Bill and I should be fully retired next year this time although he continues to make plans for beginning new and exciting careers.

In the meantime, I continue to enjoy Jim Baker's (and sometimes Elaine Compton Baker's) columns on their travels, which are published in the Williamsburg newspaper. We had an enjoyable weekend with the Emil Johnsons, visiting Virginia from their new home near Austin, Texas, in June.

I miss seeing the Armbrusters (Bettu Wright Fraher and Bill) in Blackstone and dining in their great restaurant. Since my mother now resides in Farmville, I seldom get to visit my old hometown of Blackstone.

Let's all get together at Homecoming this year and catch up on the news! I've also received news from members of other classes that we can share them.

Since I have just taken over the job of class reporter after it had been vacant for a while, some of the news should be reclassified as "olds," yet it's so interesting that I felt sure you would want to read it.

Here are excerpts from a newspaper clipping dated over a year ago: "Dr. Thomas M. Banks and wife, Lorraine, have recently returned from the Netherlands, where they obtained 14 oil portraits of former film star Ava Gardner. These will be displayed in the Ava Gardner Museum beginning July 1985. The museum, located in the Brogden community near Smithfield, N.C., where Ms. Gardner lived from 1922 to 1935, was opened in 1980, when Banks purchased The Teacherage to house his extensive collection of Gardner memorabilia.

CHAMP PROGRAM ENCOURAGES MINORITY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

William and Mary hosted a new two-week program for minority high school students this summer. CHAMP (Creating Higher Aspirations and Motivation Program) was designed for entering ninth-grade minority students who live within a 50-mile radius of Williamsburg. According to Carroll F. Hardy, associate dean of student affairs and creator of the program, "CHAMP is designed to limit or reduce the attrition rate of minority youngsters who tend to drop out of high school at the sophomore year. It will also motivate them to consider higher education after secondary school." The program, which included instruction in basic high school math and writing skills, was funded by a $35,000 grant from the State Council of Higher Education's Funds for Excellence.

Another excerpt from a clipping: "Chief Judge Henry L. 'Les' Lam of Virginia Beach Circuit Court announced his retirement after 16 years on the bench. He was in private law practice for 17 years. He graduated from the law school of the College of William and Mary in 1952, was admitted to the Virginia Bar the same year and began working with a Virginia Beach law firm. Three years later he opened his own firm where he practiced until his appointment to the bench."

We extend our sympathy to Harriett Smith Funkhouse who recently wrote to tell us of the death of her husband in 1984. She went on to say that she has retired after 34 years of teaching, 33 of them in Fairfax County, and has moved back to her old hometown of Hillsville, Va.

Our congratulations to Charles R. Harris, who was appointed vice president in the casualty-property engineering department of The Travelers Insurance Companies in Hartford, Conn. He has been with Travelers since 1951, being named a director in 1974. Charles and his wife have four children and live in West Hartford.

Phyllis Reardon Morrison writes that they have been living in Quito, Ecuador, for almost two years. This follows a four-year stint in Argentina, which they loved. They should be coming back to the States soon.

A postcard from Dallas, from Dr. Ralph McCalley Chinn, mentions presenting research at the Neuroscience Society meetings.

John F. Kummerle of Cranford, N.J., has begun serving a three-year term on the board of the Endowment Association of the College.

The Dec. 1985 William and Mary Theatre News had an item about Blair L. MacKenzie, who is project director for the National Center for Financial and Economic Information, Ministry of Finance, Saudi Arabia (through the U.S. Treasury Department). Blair has gone from commercial TV production to educational television to educational media in general to educational development. In his Christmas letter, Blair says he plays golf, but sees Bedouin tents, camels and sheep from the course. He and Gloria have gotten to travel back to the States (both coasts!), as well as to Hong Kong, Tokyo, and Peiping to see the Great Wall of China. They are now back in Riyadh for another year.

Martin M. Herman has been serving as an associate dean of Wayne State University Comprehensive College of Liberal Arts since Sept. 1984. He anticipated returning to the chairmanship of the Department of Humanities in Aug. 1986, where he could "with pleasure return to teaching and write something other than countless memoranda." We understand, Marty!

From Middletown, N.J., a note from Edmund C. Burke with an impressive list of responsibilities: senior vice president of American Banker and The Bond Buyer, daily newspapers published in New York; in charge of circulation, advertising sales, printing and production; also responsible for Trans Data Corporation, a market research company located in Salisbury, Md.

Kirk and Marcia McKenzie Kirkpatrick moved from Suffolk to Williamsburg last year and are enjoying the opportunity to see old friends who return for alumni activities.

Samuel M. Lindsey II has written, apparently for the first time, to The Alumni Gazette. Hooray for Sam! (Where are the rest of you?) After graduation he served 26 years in the U.S. Army — his last assignment was as commanding officer, USA Ballistics Research Laboratories, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md. Since retirement in 1976, he and his wife, Amy, have lived on Tenerife, Canary Islands. They have been married 32 years and have no children, but own two dogs and two cats. He is now a consultant in systems analysis.

Our next clipping has a big picture of Buddy Lex and his wife, Martha Ann Hogshire '51. Some interesting bits from the lengthy writeup: "Buddy Lex will become the ninth William and Mary football player in the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame when he's inducted on April 25 [1986]. 'It's a great honor for me to be included in such an elite group,' said Lex, who now resides in Norfolk. At William and Mary under coach R. N. McCray, Lex did everything from his tailback position — run, pass and punt. 'We ran out of the single wing and a tailback had to be an extremely versatile athlete on the field,' said Lex, whose 18 touchdown passes in one season (set in 1949) was a school record until W&M quarterback Stan Yagiello last season threw 22 TD passes. Lex averaged 41.4 yards per game in the 40s. And that's great even by modern standards. At the end of World War II, Lex enrolled at W&M in 1946. 'Cloud, Hughes, Thompson, like myself, were all war veterans when we signed on with W&M.' Lex still has his name in the W&M record book with four TD passes in one game."

Samuel A. Tisdale, M.D., has been promoted to director of the clinical research department in the Research and Development Division of the A. H. Robins Company. He has been with the company since 1974, previously serving as director of medical therapeutics. He received his M.D. from the Medical College of Virginia.

Peggy Benedum Stout wrote in April. She is working as the social studies teacher expert in the Anchorage School District, after 12 years as a librarian there. Anchorage, too, is experiencing major cuts for the coming year as the state budget has suffered from the drop in oil prices. She had plans to travel in the Far East during the summer. She said it would take less time to fly from there to Tokyo, than to Washington, D.C.!

We have another nice picture that I wish we could include! This one is of the Rev. Jere Bunting, a dean in the Diocese of Virginia, at the groundbreaking for construction of a new parish house for Kingston Episcopal Parish in Mathews County.

I must say, it's fun to have a captive audience, and I've been considering doing my autobiography . . . unless I get so many letters that there isn't room!

Notes and letters have been few and far between for this issue, so I encourage you all to drop me a note, no matter how short, to keep our classmates up to date on your whereabouts and activities.

Thanks to Ann Angle, we have word from many classmates. After living in Florida for 28 years, Ann writes, "I am thoroughly enjoying being back 'home' and seeing so many old buddies. I hope anyone who reads this will let me know when they are in Charlottesville." She noted that she and her former roommate, Tanky Fichtenger Stephenson, get together often, and incredibly, their daughters live around the corner from each other in Houston, where both are architects. While visiting in Houston recently, Ann had lunch with a first-year roommate, Jeanne

FORMER WRITER-IN-RESIDENCE PUBLISHES BOOK ABOUT AFRICA

Joseph Hone, the College's writer-in-residence during the 1983-84 academic year, has recently published a book titled Africa of the Heart. What was to be a travelogue turned into a personal story after Hone met a beautiful young woman during a long trip through Africa. Born in 1937 and educated in Dublin, he is the author of both fiction and travel books. His novels include the spy thrillers The Sixth Directorate and The Private Sector.

Beckh Robertson. Having not seen one another in 28 years there must have been a lot of catching up to do! Ann learned from Jeanne that former suitemate Gail Van Benthuyzen Pidgeon lives in Hopewell, so upon returning to Virginia, Ann contacted Gail by phone for a visit.

Ann further reported that last year she received a call from Jayne Baker Lewis who, with Tommy '53 (retired from the Marine Corps), lives in the Washington area. Ann and Jayne have gotten together a number of times for Wolftrap, etc., and went to Roanoke for a mini Pi Phi reunion with Ann Ingoe Miller, Bev Barnes Sherman and Tanky. A great time was had by all! Ann says that sooner or later nearly everyone gets to Charlottesville. She was delighted to hear from Joe Minton who is an interior designer in Fort Worth, Texas, and whose son is in the School of Architecture at UVA. Finally, Ann reports that she enjoys having Kitty Sue Lee Landess '55 live very near her. Thank you, Ann, for writing so much news! I hope that your letter will be an inspiration to other classmates out there.

Four notes arrived from the Alumni office this issue. Joan French Schaefer writes that daughter Julie graduates in June from Princeton, Linda is a junior at Stanford, and Karen is a freshman at Stanford. She comments that with all three girls in college, they are, as a friend says, "very poor and very lonely." I'm sure you are also very proud, Joan!

Henretta Trent Band, whose work we recently discussed in this column, wrote that she enjoyed Virginia's beautiful spring and is looking forward to doing research at Mt. Lake Biological Station again this summer. Retta is a resident of Michigan.

A clipping from the Winchester Star brings news that Ann Lehe Legge, who is a professor at the Lord Fairfax Community College, presented a program in March, "Great Books from Used Book Stores," as part of the Handley Library's Booked-for-Lunch series of noon book talks. I hope we can get more information from Anne on her activities, which I understand are varied, for a future issue.

Lynanne Robinson Guynn writes that she serves Lafayette Presbyterian Church in Norfolk as organist and director of the adult, bell and junior choirs. That sounds like a busy job.

Our next publication deadline is Sept. 24. PLEASE take a moment right now to send me a few lines about yourself, your family, your work, your play!

Let's start off with an impressive note from Bud Fisher. Now that he's a world traveler, sponsored by the U.S.I.A., perhaps we'd better be more dignified and refer to him as LOUIS. Anyway, our friend is on the road to the Far East to give talks in Australia, the Philippines and Singapore. His specialties are constitutional law, separation of power and budget policy. Yes, sir.

Eloise "Skooky" Gideon Collins cheerily packed her passport for a jaunt to France in May. She says she will be in Williamsburg for our 30th celebration. It will be grand to see you.

Ed and Belinda Watkins also expect to be in the Burg for the November festivities.

Sheila Eddy Baker stopped by the front desk at the Tides Inn to say-hello. She looked splendid, though a longer visit would have been pleasant.

Russ and Pat Best Rainey are positively wallowing in bougainvillea, when not involved with the Sailing Association. Pat is also active with the American Association of University Women. When not balancing a multitude of church and civic activities, the

P.E. MAJORS SPONSOR 5K FUN RUN

On Oct. 4 the Physical Education Majors Club at William and Mary will sponsor a five-kilometer fun run with proceeds going to the Grayson Dougherty Memorial Scholarship Fund. The run, which is open to all alumni, students, faculty and administrators, will begin at 9 a.m. at Adair Gymnasium. Registration costs $5 per entry and is open until race time. For further information, contact Steve Haynie at 804-253-4267. Awards will be presented to top finishers.

Rainey even manage to play a little bridge.

Lavinia Pretz Phillips '55 was another "hello-how-are-you" at the Tides. She gets lovelier with each passing year.

Aubrey Fitzgerald has retired after 14 years of outstanding service with the Newport News City Council. Maybe now he'll have a bit more time for his bride of almost 30 years. He will also catch up with Tom, second-year law, Lynn, a recent graduate, and Anne, about to enter — all of them W&Mers!

Roland and Susan Whaley Howard have not exactly been standing idly by. Wanda '81 is married, living in Roanoke. Gretchen, married last October, now lives in Beverly, N.J. Elizabeth is a senior in college in Pittsburgh, home base for the Howard clan. Last, but no means least, Anne has completed her freshman year at Pitt.

Margaret Anne Graves Heyward sent a marvelous letter, which will be answered shortly. In the meantime, the news to be shared is that her husband, Shannon, retired after 26 years of service in the Navy and is now with an engineering firm in Alexandria. Their son, Sandy, upheld a family tradition by graduating from the Naval Academy '84, got his wings last year and now serves as a helicopter pilot. Beth will graduate from Randolph-Macon Women's College next spring. Margaret Anne teaches 15 pre-schoolers on a part-time basis.

It's not a day too soon to get your deposit check in the mail for your room(s) at the Hilton for Homecoming. Let's make this reunion the biggest and best.

One small note: Please note the new box number at the top of this column, write it on an envelope and let the good news pour in.

Thank you for responding to my plea for news. It was especially good to hear from those of you who have not been in touch for some time.

I received an informative letter from Carol Norstrom Wray. Carol and husband, Jim, traveled extensively in Asia, Europe and South America last year. Carol wrote of touring remote and interesting places, many of which she and Jim had visited 25 years ago on their honeymoon. The Wrays are currently living in McLean, Va.

Pat Coan Fitzmaurice is attending Trinity College in Washington, D.C., a two-year course in preparation for working in the lay apostolate of the Catholic Church.

Sally Smith Manifold is living in Carolina Shores "on the first fairway of C.S. Golf Course!" Her husband, Rod, retired three years ago, and she keeps very busy with golf, bridge and her garden club. Their son is an Army captain, and their daughter who graduated from James Madison University in '84 is married to an Army officer. Sally invites anyone who comes to Myrtle Beach to play golf or go to the beach to give them a call in Calabash, N.C.

Congratulations to my former roommate Bevo Wilson Palmer! An edition (microfilm publication) of comprehensive correspondence of U.S. senator and anti-slavery leader Charles Sumner will be published this year. Bevo is the editor.

Marion Hurd Linthurst is office manager for the Mercer County Education Association. The Linthursts reside in West Trenton, N.J., and expected to become grandparents this spring.

I received a newspaper clipping featuring Jim Pittman's watercolor shows. He recently exhibited at the Twentieth Century Gallery in Williamsburg. He is also exhibiting in a group show at the Maritime Historical Museum and had two works selected for exhibit in the Chesapeake Bay Watercolorist juried show. He was also planning to show his work in Virginia Beach. Watch for his collections if you are in the area!

Gail Morgan Ullman is currently social science editor, Princeton University Press. She remarried in Dec. 1983. Richard Ullmann is professor of international affairs at Princeton. Her son, Victor, 21, is a senior at Rutgers University and daughter, Christine, 20, is a sophomore at the University of Colorado.

Frances Frost Abbott has been elected to her second term on the Auburn City Council and will continue as chair of Maine State Committee on Arts and Humanities. Congratulations, Frances! Their son Woods graduated from Curry College, Boston. Son Edward is a junior at Guilford College in Greensboro, N.C., and their youngest, Ann, is a freshman at Hebron Academy. She writes that she was saddened by the passing of classmate and fellow Mainer Smokey Sherman. "He was well known and much respected throughout our adopted state," writes Frances.

Betsy Stafford Elliott and Frank's oldest son, David, is stationed in Germany, and their other two, Michael and John, are still in college.

Mike Alembik and his wife, Vicky, attended Mike's 25th law school reunion in Williamsburg in April. Mike practices law in Atlanta.

It has been wonderful hearing from so many of you. Please keep writing. Our class is certainly alive and well, and, as we have known for 28 years, is still on top of things!

I hope to see Carole Waller Welborn soon. She and Jerry '58 have just moved to Severna Park, Md.

Jogina Diamanti Picariello wrote a nice letter. She is still into sports, but now it is following her sons. Lee, a junior at the Pennington School in New Jersey, plays football and baseball, and Pat, who has just completed his freshman year at Dartmouth, also plays football and baseball. Jogina was sorry to have missed our 25th, but she was watching Pat play football. Husband, Pat, is retiring from the educational world this year, and Jogina keeps herself busy as the business end of their real estate enterprise.

Bob Squatriglia was selected to participate in Leadership South Carolina, a statewide program sponsored by the governor's office. He is also a member of the board of regents of Leadership Grand Strand, sponsored by the Myrtle Beach Chamber of Commerce, and he has been nominated to serve as district governor of Rotary International District 777 for 1987-88. Bob is the first two-term district secretary in the 26-year history of District 777. Betty is now selling real estate and working part time at the Literacy Council.

Ruth Woods Lett has four sons: the oldest is working for Bear Stearns in New York City, the second is a junior at Texas A&M, the third is entering the freshman class at Washington & Lee, and the fourth is in the eighth grade.

Jim Ukrop has been appointed by President Paul Verkuil to serve on an eight-member committee to search for a new vice president for university advancement. Ukrop Supermarkets, Inc., recently claimed the Green Thumb Merchandising Award, sponsored by the National Apple Month committee.

Sylvia Wandell West is the director of a small private school, West Academy, and a tutoring service, the Tutoring Room.

Dr. Gerald Temes is the chairman of the Louisville Institute for Heart and Lung Disease at Jewish Hospital.

KENNETH COLLINS '69 HEADS HONORS PROGRAM

Kenneth K. Collins '69, associate professor of English at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, has been named acting director of SIU's Honors Program. A member of the English department faculty since 1976, Collins has taught honors courses and served on the program's advisory board. Hope everyone had an enjoyable summer. Now it's time to think about back to school for kids, football games and a 15-year Homecoming reunion. Do you believe it!

From Elsie Munsell we hear she was added to the Office of General Counsel, Department of the Navy on Jan. 6 as a senior trial attorney in the litigation office. Sounds like she'll be busy.

And Daun Anderson accepted a position in 1983 with Cullinet Software in Westwood, Mass., as a senior hardware communications analyst. She married William Diaper in Aug. 1985 and they live in Waban, Mass. She expects to earn her M.B.A. from Boston College next May.

John Peterka is working even when he isn't at work. Work, as we usually think of it, for John means being president and CEO of a general contracting real estate development firm around Costa Mesa, Calif. His company is working on a West Coast adaptation of Colonial Williamsburg architecture for a mixed-use project. Otherwise, he spends time skiing with his family or working on training for the triathlon — his sights are set for the Kona Ironman competition in 1990. He adds that every year he appreciates how valuable his philosophy training is to him in business and life. Let's hear it for a liberal arts education.

Financial matters at the National Endowment for the Humanities are in good hands. Steve Cherrington is now the director of the Office of Planning and Budget. And here's an interesting (if roundabout) connection:

The National Endowment for the Humanities is funding a series called "Changing Voices" featuring Virginia scholars who speak and lead discussions of works written by southern writers during the 1930s and '40s. Our own Suzanne Jones of the University of Richmond spoke in March on Faulkner's novel Sartoris in Warrenton, Va., as part of this series. She received her doctorate from the University of Virginia and has published papers on several authors.

Gary Jones has joined the Commerce Bank of Hampton Roads as a vice president and commercial loan officer. He is at the bank's Pacific Avenue office in Virginia Beach where he works with business customers.

Pete Roberts was elected president of the New Hampshire Association of Legal Administrators. He volunteers his time in the Manchester Big Brother program and was recently elected to the board of directors of the Manchester Big Brother/Big Sister program.

Debbie Dalton is manager for site and community for Clean Sites, Inc., in Alexandria. This independent organization is speeding the cleanup of hazardous waste sites. Previously, Debbie was senior regional coordinator for Superfund at the Environmental Protection Agency. She received a master's in biology from the University of Virginia and is a candidate for a doctorate at the University of Maryland in marine and estuarine environmental sciences.

This next year will be unique for Mike Wildasin. He has been selected as a fellow in Virginia government by the Institute of Government and the Curry School of Education at the University of Virginia. This means he'll be on a year's leave of absence from Chesterfield County schools where he teaches high school government. Mike will spend the next year directing the Institute's teacher resource service — traveling to schools, conferences and workshops to put into the hands of government teachers more in-depth resource materials and current illustrations to make Virginia government come alive for students. He plans to return to the classroom after this appointment. Mike earned a master's degree in American history from the University of Virginia and taught school in Danville and Fairfax County before leaving to earn a law degree at William and Mary. He is happy he chose teaching over law. Mike lives in the Church Hill area of Richmond.

There was a nice article in Accomac's Eastern Shore News on Nancy West, who is primarily a portrait artist but also paints landscapes and other subjects, usually in oil. She is definitely putting to good use her degree in portraiture. Only after taking from 35-100 pictures and getting to know her subject will she put anything on canvas. She has participated in numerous art shows and is an accomplished photographer. Plus, she has extended her creative talents to stained glass design, graphic designs, book jackets and program covers and logos. Nancy lives with her husband, Gerald, and two children on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

That's it for now. We all like to keep track of our friends, so the next time you have a few minutes — WRITE TO US.

ENDOWED MINORITY PROFESSORSHIP ESTABLISHED BY CUMMINGS FUND

A gift of $200,000 from The Frances L. and Edwin L. Cummings Memorial Fund of New York City will establish William and Mary's first permanently endowed professorship for a distinguished minority scholar-teacher on the faculty of arts and sciences. The Cummings Professorship will also generate matching funds through the Commonwealth of Virginia's Eminent Scholars Program. William and Mary's efforts to recruit highly qualified minority faculty members came to the attention of the board of directors of the Cummings Fund through the initiative of J. Andrew Lark '79 and Leroy C. Latten, co-trustees of the fund. The academic discipline in which the appointment will be made has been left to the discretion of the dean of the faculty of arts and sciences. The first appointment is expected for the fall of 1987.

For the past two and a half years, Bert Wilson has been director of marketing at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia. He now does a lot of traveling in the state since the company's recent merger with another. Bert just completed his 11th year refereeing high school basketball in Richmond.

Anne Williams Daniel is head curriculum writer and is serving on the advisory board for the "Maryland State Fire Safety/Burn Prevention Program for Preschoolers." Anne received her M.Ed. in early childhood education at the University of Maryland, taught for three years in the university's campus lab school and is currently an independent consultant in the area of employer-supported child care programs. She and her husband, Bob, have two boys.

Mary Eure Weckstein and husband, Clifford Marshall-Wythe '74, live in Roanoke, with their two daughters, Virginia Minn (born 1980) and Margaret Claire (born 1986). She teaches part time in a program for gifted high school seniors in the English department and spends most of her time being a mother.

Some "News Briefs" (where I include rumors and other snippets that come my way): Lynne Bruggen Austin has become a member of the firm of Williams and McCarthy in Rockford, Ill. (I'm guessing that that is a law firm but the announcement does not say.) R. Rushton Paul Jr. has been name vice president and personnel director at Jefferson National Bank in Charlottesville. He is a graduate of UVA's law school and joined the bank in 1977. Russell Brown's firm, Russell Brown and Associates, is engaged in marketing "fractional ownership" of vacation homes and condos on Hilton Head Island, S.C.

James C. Kennedy's job as manager of information services for Fluor Corporation in Irvine, Calif., keeps him busy. He and his wife and daughter, Kelly, 3, and son, James, 1, live in nearby Mission Viejo. Jim writes that life in the Sunshine State is terrific. Marjorie Windelberg is the information center manager for Systems and Computer Technology (SCT) Corporation of Malvern, Pa. Michael D. Wesson was recently elected treasurer of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

Lynn Butler Winfree and husband, Zeke, live in Roanoke with their two children, Heather, 5, and David, 3. Lynn teaches night classes at C&P Telephone. She and Zeke enjoy seeing other alumni in the Roanoke area — Alice Sizemore Graves and husband Pat, and Kitty Crush Tate and husband, Bob.

In May of last year, Mary Gilchrist Gray married John Hammond. She has worked for the past seven years as chief investigative auditor of the Maryland Attorney General's Criminal Investigations Division, investigating white-collar crime. The Hammonds live in Baltimore.

M.J. and Mac Conway have a new daughter, Margaret Kelley, and a new house in St. Louis. Address: 424 Park Road, St. Louis, MO 63119. Our 10-year reunion gets closer each day with the Homecoming weekend of Nov. 15 just around the corner. I hope everyone who can will make plans to attend. I cruised through the Burg this past July 4 and it looks as historic as ever. We have the following news from . . .

Project Plus: Doug Adams is an account executive with Bell Atlantic in Richmond handling large business clients. Lisa Dillich Usher works as an economist with the Bureau of Labor Statistics in D.C., where her husband, Rob, is an international management consultant. They are living in Arlington with their one-year-old son, Clifford John. Lisa reports having spent two months on the Caribbean island of St. Lucia while Rob had a "rough" two-month consulting assignment. In Elkins, W.Va., Doug Hill continues as a publicity coordinator for the Augusta Heritage Workshop. Doug says that when he's not behind a word processing keyboard, he and wife, Pam, are busily sprucing up their newly purchased 1920s bungalow.

Chorus: Nancy Demyttenaere has recently left the American Museum of Natural History in New York to assume the position of archaeological conservator to the New York State Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation. Nancy also is a private consultant in archaeological matters, including the Atocha treasure shipwreck in Florida. Anne Gibson works part time at the University of Massachusetts as an associate editor for design and production on a state atlas. Her primary interest is completion of her Ph.D. in geography with a concentration in cartography at Clark University. She has also co-authored an atlas of women in the U.S., scheduled for publication this October. Nancy Delap Lanier lives in Wakefield, Va., with her husband, Felix, and son, Michael.

Theatre: Kent Thompson spends a lot of time these days on the road directing regional theatres. His permanent home is in Astoria, N.Y. Tom Tutwiler works as a programmer/analyst in Germantown, Md., and is looking forward to our 10th reunion. And John Weiner continues his Broadway performances, commercials, etc., in the Big Apple.

Athletics: Jim Bellow has exchanged golf clubs for medical instruments as he has recently begun a two-year fellowship in rheumatology at Andrews Air Force Base. Michael Gilleran has written an article titled, "Little FTC Acts Emerge in Business Litigation," which appeared in the May 1986 American Bar Association Journal.

Miscellanea: We have another writer in Cynthia Seibels who is in New York City as a self-employed art researcher. She also contributes to Antique Review. Cynthia reports having a great time at the March wedding of Linda Vorhis '77, while also seeing Joyce Downey '77, Michael Krass '77, Mark Stanley '78 and Cathy Keene '78. Robert Boyd Jr. has recently completed two years as the pastor of New Faith United Church on Walton's Mountain. He is now a professional speaker on college campuses with Campus Crusade for Christ International. He and wife, Mallory, have moved to Auburn, Ala., with their son, Robert Boyd III. Kathy Henry reports that she and Sue Hedrick continue to work as intelligence analysts for the Secret Service. Finally Michael DiRienzo got his letter in just under the wire. He was recently appointed assistant executive vice president for the Hotel Association of Washington, D.C., after serving as assistant director of sales for the Madison Hotel.

The next deadline for this column is Sept. 20. Before that date, I need any information you would like to pass along to others. As Bartles and Jaymes say, "Thank you for your support!"

Jeffrey Mayer and Diane will be relocating to the Washington, D.C., area where Jeffrey will be the director of corporate accounting for the Marriott Corporation. He was previously an audit manager with Arthur Andersen & Company in Atlanta. Diane is a graduate of the University of Georgia. They will reside with their two children in Gaithersburg, Md.

Kathryn Terry Lunsford and her husband, Charles, have a new daughter, Sarah Kathryn, born in July. Sarah has an older brother, Michael Grayson, who is now 2 1/2. Kathryn is taking a leave of absence from her job as assistant manager for C&P Telephone. She plans to return in early 1987.

Mary Ann Kerins Miller announces the birth of her second daughter, Kathleen Bridget, in Feb. 1985. Her older daughter, Maureen, is now 2 1/2. The family is living in Fairfax, Va.

William Bishop joined his brother-in-law's accounting firm located in Brunswick, Me., in 1983 as a small business consultant. He would like to hear from classmates by letter or visit! His address is RFD 2, Box 462, Lisbon, ME 04250.

Debbie Duncan and husband, Bill Tito, recently bought a home in Alexandria, Va. Debbie is a recent graduate of George Washington University Law School. She will be working in the Washington, D.C., office of Vinson & Elkins.

After graduation, Julie Mills taught elementary school at Rawls Byrd in Williamsburg. From Aug. '79 to Aug. '82 she taught school in St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands. In Aug. '81 she married Jeffrey Emas in the Virgin Islands. Jeffrey is also a teacher. In Sept. '82 they moved to Washington, D.C. Their daughter, Elizabeth, was born in 1983. Since May '84, Julie has been working for the Navy Department as a configuration management specialist for the joint cruise missiles project.

Pamela and Robert Lundquist had a son, Nathaniel Hedley, in April. In May Robert was ordained a priest in the Episcopal Church in Chattanooga, Tenn. He will begin a new position as assistant to the rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Manassas, Va., in September.

Congratulations to Carol Cross as she has been selected for inclusion in the 1985 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America. Cary Carr '79 and Wanda Allen J.D. '82 were also named. This program is designed to honor and encourage exceptional young women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in their homes, their professions and their communities.

Kim Marie Blankenship received her Ph.D. in sociology from Duke University in the spring. She has accepted a teaching position at Yale.

Henri Cole has published his first book, The Marble Queen, a collection of original poems. His poems have also been published in Antaeus, Grand Street, The Nation and Poetry. Henri is living in New York City.

David Engel and Laura are living in El Paso, Texas, where David is a captain in the U.S. Army JAG Corps. He handles medical malpractice defense litigation. They have a son, Michael Andrew, born in March '85 and are expecting a second child this fall.

Joan Hadlock Fontes is a vice president in commercial lending at the Dallas office of the first National Bank of Chicago. She participates in local horseback riding shows in her spare time. Her husband, Mark, works for Texas Utilities as an MIS engineer.

John W. Phillips, chairman of the Colonial Virginia Chapter of the American Red Cross, was recently appointed field service chairman of the Southeast Virginia Territory of the Red Cross. In this capacity, he will direct the activities and services of 40 Red Cross chapters in Virginia and North Carolina. John was also appointed to the advisory board of Tidewater Regional Blood Services. John is director of alumni affairs for the Society of the Alumni and is active in other community organizations. He serves as president of the Virginia Peninsula Swimming Union, former president and current vice president of the Williamsburg Community Center, president of the Country Club Acres Association and is a member of the Salvation Army Board of Directors.

Keep the news coming! Let me know if I need to update some information or correct an error. I greatly appreciate your efforts in sending news for this column. Our next deadline is early September.

DALTON MEMORIAL FUND ESTABLISHED BY BUSINESS SCHOOL

The Board of Sponsors of the School of Business Administration has established a memorial fund in honor of the late John N. Dalton '53, former governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia. "All of us who knew John were aware of his deep abiding interest in education and his inherent and intuitive concern for people," said John C. Jamison, dean of the School of Business Administration. "This was especially evident to the College of William and Mary as an invaluable member of the Sponsors' Board of Directors." Gifts should be sent to the Governor John N. Dalton Memorial Fund, C/O of the Dean, School of Business Administration, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. 23185. Income from the fund will be used to provide financial assistance to a William and Mary undergraduate student majoring in business administration who has a sincere interest in public service during his or her career. Governor Dalton, who died on July 30 after a three-year battle with cancer, was scheduled to become one of the Board of Sponsors last April, but his health precluded his assumption of his new duties.

Greetings from the Outer Banks! I look forward to hearing from you as I take over Lauri's role as class reporter, so get those pens out; better yet, if you come beaching this way, look me up! And thanks, Lauri, for your faithfulness over the past years! From the collection of news I received, our class seems to be making its mark in the business world; indeed, some of the titles in themselves deserve applause!

My latest title is simply Mom and I'm enjoying a break from the working world to be with "Miss Mess" (alias Corinne), born last November. My husband, Jamey, just passed the contractor's licensing test, so we're ready to move into a new phase of construction, from roofing to residential building (a welcome change).

It appears that an education from W&M just wasn't enough for some of you! Jeanne Hurlbert was awarded the Howard Odum Award by vote of the full faculty of sociology at UNC-Chapel Hill, given to the most outstanding enrolled graduate student in that department. The award carries a stipend of $1,000 — way to go! Katherine Wagner married Thomas McCune, a VMI and EVMS graduate, and is in Virginia Beach in her final year at EVMS, planning a residency in neurology.

Michael Alessi graduated from the air weapons controller course at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla., where he studied air defense tactics and the organization and operation of air defense systems (was it anything like "Top Gun"?). David Erickson finished his Ph.D. in atmospheric chemistry, conducted research in some wonderful faraway places like New Zealand, Australia, Hawaii and France, and has published papers in the Journal of Geophysical Research. He hears from Greg Devine, John Simonson and Gus Griffin occasionally.

A bunch of folks are not only taking on jobs but relocating as well — best wishes with both transitions. Devin Murphy and his wife, Jennie, will move to New York this fall where Devin is beginning with Morgan Stanley after graduating from the University of Michigan's M.T.S.A. program. They enjoyed having the summer off before moving to the Big Apple. John Markey was promoted to audit manager with Ernst & Whinney and recently transferred to the Raleigh, N.C., office; he and Ken Meyer attended Karen Garland's wedding in New Jersey, after which she and new husband, Mark Shahon, took off honeymooning in the Caribbean.

Pete Beveridge received his M.S. in health/fitness M.L.T. (hope I got that right) from American University and has taken a job with Dallas Wellness in Dallas, Texas. He served as best man in Jay Gaucher's May wedding — congrats, Jay!

Also moving to a new job in Dallas is Judy Dorow who just got her M.B.A. at UVA and will be an assistant product manager for Frito-Lay. You can write and find out all the scoop about those salty snacks at: 4900 Pear Ridge, No. 1303, Dallas, TX 75252 (she'd love to hear from you so she won't get lonely in the Lone Star State). Judy enjoyed a 4th of July get-together in Dewey Beach, Del., where she ran into some other fun- and sun-loving alumni including Karen Reeks, Steve McDaniel, Bob Hallman and Alice Campbell.

The saga of impressive titles continues. Jim Frye is living in Falls Church and is director of corporate research at the American Institute of Architects in Washington, D.C. Curtis

Whittaker is an attorney for Skadden Aarps Meagher & Flom (whew!) and resides with his wife, Tammye, in Alexandria. Alice Lawson Cox lives in Vienna and writes for Prison Fellowship, a Christian ministry founded by Charles Colson — a neat way to combine one's career with outreach.

Peggy Maher relocated to Alexandria from Hartford, Conn., to be head librarian for the National Catholic News Service while she pursues her M.L.S. degree at the University of Maryland. She's glad to be back in the Old Dominion and looks forward to seeing some old friends from W&M in the area. So much for news from the D.C. metropolis!

Doug Granger graduated from UVA School of Law in May '85 and has since been associated with the firm of Hunton & Williams in Richmond. Catherine Walker is also in Richmond where she is returning to the "less hectic" pace as a legislative assistant for Del. Chuck Lacy, after spending seven months working with Gov. Gerald Baliles' Inaugural Committee. Joy Lawson, a certified C.P.A., has been named an assistant controller at National Card Control, Inc., of Crozier, a marketing consultant firm. Back on the local Burg front, Steve Otto's name surfaced in the Flat Hat with an interesting look at "What's Wrong with William and Mary" and some ideas that students and professors can take to create a better learning environment.

Moving out of the state, Ethel Wragg is excited about her new job in Bronx, N.Y., where she has joined Citibank as a design and development officer to implement their new computer system. Helen Smith is living in the San Francisco Bay area and working as an actuarial analyst for AMEX Life Insurance Company. Donald Linebaugh began as a training specialist with Standard Federal Savings in Gaithersburg, Md. And Chuck Barham sends a big hello to all his classmates — he's doing well in bank branch management in Fayetteville, N.C.

Wedding bell congratulations are in store for Lai Lee and her new husband, Jorgen Birman. They made their first big purchase — a house in Germantown, Md. I know you are having fun decorating and making it home! On the upcoming wedding list is Tricia Ferris who will be marrying Jacob Wilson '83 this September. The ceremony will be in Culpeper, Tricia's hometown, but they will continue to reside in the Tidewater area.

If I received news after the July 15 deadline, look for it in an upcoming issue. Thanks for writing!

A summer of fun has been going by too quickly for me. I started with a relaxing Nags Head weekend with 15 fellow W&M'ers. Waterskiing, sailing and windsurfing have been filling my weekends. I've also been doing some traveling for work. I was recently in New Orleans and Las Vegas, where I ran into Steve Wing '69 at a convention at the MGM Grand, and San Juan, Puerto Rico, where I ran into Mark Farkus '83 at a reception. He is working for C-Span in D.C.

Lots of recent grads from the D.C. area gathered at Mike Baker's Bar on H Street on Tuesday, July 8. Six W&M grads took over the bar for the evening as guest bartenders: Brad Angevine, Alison Hawley, Dan Head '85, and Tracy Brownlee '85, Chris Walker '85 and me. We sure learned quickly how to make a Bloody Mary and Kamakazis! Andy Morse '79 was there to cheer us on. Andy is a vice president for real estate at Riggs Bank, and he has recently bought a new house in Arlington. Patty Schmidts '83 has picked up a new biking hobby and enjoyed a drink with George Crusier and Mark Forde '83. Tom Deornelas is enjoying his new position with an insurance firm. Mitch Cooper '85 dropped by for a quick Amstel Light. Meg Hunter took time out from her wedding planning to join Suzanne Sweeney, Anne Golwen '83, John Golwen '86, Susan Fryer, Margee Mulhall, Lori Buckius, Ed Healy and J.D. Neary '85 (who always attracts a crowd). A fun time was had by all.

Tom Erdmann's mother writes that Tom is serving in the Peace Corps in Mali, West Africa. He is currently a forestry volunteer and is planning to travel with Wil Gimpel in the fall.

Catherine Luman Daniel and her husband, Matt, are now living in Pensacola, Fla., where Matt is occupied with flight school. Cathy is attending the University of West Florida for early childhood/elementary education. Quite a change of career for Cathy from sales. She says it is gorgeous on the Gulf but is it ever hot! They plan to live there for another year and are not sure where the Marine Corps will send them next. They are only about three hours from New Orleans and welcome any fellow W&M'ers who want to visit!

I recently read in Navy Times, the Jan. 13, 1986, issue, about the famous Buttered Rum Caramel Corn of Army 2nd Lt. Caitlin Porter. Apparently Caitlin is famous for the delicacy, and they decided to write about her and her recipe in the "Life in the Times" section of the publication. Caitlin is stationed at Redstone Arsenal in Alabama. She is having a ball exploring Huntsville.

Doug Schmidt said that he has spent the past two years at William and Mary pursuing a master's degree in the sociology graduate program. He will receive his degree this August. In the fall, Doug plans to attend the University of California at Irvine, to complete his Ph.D. in computer science. It was a hard decision for him to attend Irvine instead of UCLA, Yale and even UVA! Doug is looking forward to his new studies at the other end of the country.

Also out west is Laurie Thornton, who is working as a wrangler at a ranch again this summer. It is plenty of hard work but she is really enjoying the beautiful setting.

Stationed in California is William Metzner, who will be entering the Air Force's officer training school in July. After three months in Texas, he will settle in California for seven months of navigator training.

M.B.A. school seems to be in the plans of many '84 grads. Dave Linka received his M.B.A. degree from the University of Richmond in May. Dave Garland will be pursuing his M.B.A. starting this fall. Brad Angevine will be leaving his job at the Export Import Bank to pursue his M.B.A. degree as well, either at Duke or UVA.

Patty Zillian was elected to serve as the president of the student board at the Amos Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College. Patty is in her second year of the M.B.A. program. She was the second woman and first Virginian ever to be accorded this honor. I also hear that Patty is soon to be married.

Boston finds Kathryn Batenhorst employed as a computer consultant for TCS, Inc. She has been with the company for a year and a half and started attending Harvard this spring. (She is proud that she can now say that she has attended the two oldest schools in the country!)

David Finnegan sent me a letter and said that since graduation he has been teaching Latin at a private school in Hartford, Conn., for two years, where he has also been helping direct the boys' choir. In August, David will begin a graduate program at the University of Massachusetts. Robb Kirchner has been working long hours on Capitol Hill for a congresswoman from New Jersey. Robb is currently applying for graduate programs in business and hopes to attend Columbia in the fall. If so, he will be joining Al Ruenes who is studying at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. Al is a member of the rugby team at school and is president of his medical class. David also writes about Chris Knopes who worked in D.C. for a year after graduation and then headed out to Texas for graduate school. The summer of '85 found Robb, Al and David in Peru as a part of a 12-man team commissioned by the American Cyanamid Corporation. They traveled into the Peruvian jungle to combat a parasite and leading cause of blindness among Peruvian natives. It sounds like it was an eventful trip and Robb even shot himself in the foot — but it was Al and David to the rescue! They all made it through safe and sound.

CORPORATE DONORS BOOST VIRGINIA SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL

For the second year, Philip Morris invited the Virginia Shakespeare Festival to travel from Williamsburg to the tobacco company's Richmond manufacturing plant. The corporation also underwrote the production of "Romeo and Juliet," the play performed for Philip Morris employees and community leaders. Philip Morris and CSX Corporation have given the festival its largest corporate donations this year. Donations both large and small are the lifeblood of the festival, a longtime summer tradition in Williamsburg. Performed in William and Mary's Phi Beta Kappa Hall, the four plays this year depended on corporate contributions for a third of the overall $150,000 budget. The Lord Chamberlain Society, a group of Virginia Shakespeare Festival supporters, help with fund-raising efforts.

New York finds Michael Meagher working for an advertising agency. He has laid aside his medical plans for a while to enjoy life in NYC. Also in the Big Apple is Lissa Smith, who is working for American Express as a financial analyst. Sarah Williamson is an assistant editor at Arbor House Publishing Company. Although her job demands long hours, Sarah still finds plenty of time to throw great parties.

David Geer has made his home in Norfolk. He is an associate with Hofheimer, Husbaum, McPhoul and Brenner. Susan Marie Summers is teaching junior and senior English at First Colonial High School in Virginia Beach. Gary Cowling writes that he has just completed his thesis role of Ken in "Fifth of July" and will complete his M.F.A. in acting at West Virginia University in May. He also performed in a production of "The Sea Gull." As part of his graduate assistantship, Gary is also teaching.

Joyce Ann Hann is a C.P.A. candidate and is currently employed with the Virginia Department of Health Division of Internal Audit.

Mario Shaffer sent me an interesting story about his company, Russell E. Brown & Associates. The president is Russ Brown '74, associate is Joe Agee '78, and the representatives are Rich Hodson '79, Gayle Agee '79 and Mario. Sounds like a W&M success story.

Sheila Mertes writes that she is still working at Equitable Bank in Baltimore but is now in the real estate department making commercial construction loans. Sheila recently moved into an apartment in the downtown historic area — her building dates from 1840. She and Phil Buhler have finally set a wedding date for March 21, 1987. Phil has finished his second year of law school at the University of Miami and works at Anderson, Coe and King in Baltimore in the summer.

The Northern Virginia W&M contingent chimes in with Suzy Tierney writing about the super house that she, Kim Shanks and Lynette Shoemaker have moved into in Vienna. Suzy is still working at the State Department, Kim has a new job with the American Psychological Association and spends her days reading psych studies and journals from around the world, and Lynette is a full-time counselor at the Alternative House, a shelter house in Vienna. They welcome any W&M summer visitors!

Carolyn Daughters is a senior accountant for Financial Reporting at Freddie Mac (Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation) and will be starting part time toward her M.B.A. in finance at GWU soon. John Lanner is working with Peat, Marwick and Mitchell and Company.

Mary Ellen Walsh '85 is also working on Capitol Hill for Congressman Dingell. I had lunch with Dave Remy recently, and he is employed as a research analyst for foreign policy with the House Republican Research Committee. He is living in Potomac.

And now it's time for . . . weddings and births! Patricia Keen Johnson writes that she and Roger had a daughter, Leah Mae, in May.

Tracey Marblestone and Mark Brant were married on June 21. Also married that day were Mary Bateman and Lt. William Meade Harrison in Virginia Beach. For the next three years, they will be living in Okinawa, Japan.

Daniel J. Maher '86 became the fourth member of the Edward T. Maher family to graduate from William and Mary when he received his diploma from the College in May. Dan is pictured in the accompanying photo with his sisters (left to right) Margaret '82, Mary Anne '72 and Kathleen Maher Webster '71. According to their father, the four William and Mary graduates "have a strong allegiance to William and Mary, as do their mother and myself, and we appreciate the great education they all received. They are all doing well in their respective fields of interest."

A third wedding on the 21st of June was that of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Deal. The wedding was in Connecticut. I hear that Jeff Bishop and Mike Cousins contributed to the celebrations!

Chuck Murray and Tracey Krauthelm '85 had a beautiful wedding in June in Mount Vernon. The best man was Paul Decker '83, who is also Chuck's big brother in PiKA. The reception was held in the Holiday Inn Old Towne in Alexandria, where none other than Mike Hobbs is the daytime manager. Also attending the wedding were J.D. Neary '85, Dan Jordanger and Chuck Stanley. Jon Leibowitz ventured down from New Jersey, and Chris Colton cruised down from the Big Apple. Steve Hall, Lori Etkin and Ben and Suzie Low made the trek up from the South. Members of the PiKA contingent included Bruce Phillips, Scott Ukrop '85 and John Boyd '85. John is currently working at BMW of Fairfax. Attendants from the D.C. area were Kathy Brice, Henry Plaster '85 and roommate Brad Angevine, and Justina Johnson, just to mention a few. Following the reception the festivities continued, because Sheri Leigh Gill '85, Lee Ann Sprull and Monica Johnson had a wild party, which of course, included lots of W&M'ers!

A co-worker at the Republican National Committee and also fellow W&M alumna Carey Carr '79, married Bill Cox on Saturday, May 17 at the Virginia Theological Seminary Chapel in Alexandria. Carey looked gorgeous in her mother's wedding gown. W&M guests at the wedding included Susan Dewey '78, Nancy Ware '79 and Karen Cooley-Favier, who served as the matron of honor. Of course, Carey's brother Dabney Carr '83 was on hand to celebrate. After the reception at Scott Lounge, Carey and Bill whisked off to Barbados for their honeymoon. Bill is employed at Equitable Bank in Maryland, and Carey is a field representative for the Republican National Committee. Bill and Carey have made their home in Salisbury, Md.

Last but not least is the wedding of Alison Horrocks and Greg Miller, on June 28 in Williamsburg. Although I am sad to lose a roommate, there couldn't be a nicer guy than Greg! It was like a storybook wedding, that hot day of June in Bruton Parish Church. The wedding party consisted of several W&M friends. Tom Hearn served as the best man. Tom was Greg's big brother in Lambda Chi and by coincidence, also married a homecoming queen and cheerleader. Mr. and Mrs. Hearn live in Dallas, where Tom is employed as a hospital administration consultant. Alison's brother Andrew Horrocks '87, Noah Levine, George Foreman and Brian Black served as groomsmen. Noah's career in New York has put him right in the hot spot, in charge of Kentucky Fried Chicken advertising. Brian is Greg's little brother in Lambda Chi. He, too, is a newlywed.

Mr. and Mrs. Black were married on June 14 in Fort Lauderdale. The bridesmaids included Beth Hicks, Liz Somers, Susan Marfizo, Kari Traver and Laurie Raymond. Beth is Alison's big sister in Tri Delt. Liz is also a Tri Delt sister and is busy planning her own fall wedding to John Ottoway. John has recently been transferred to San Francisco, and Liz and John will be making their new home on the West Coast after the wedding.

Priscilla Hancock was the mistress of ceremonies. Alison looked picture perfect in her antique wedding dress. She and Greg cruised from the church to the reception at the Alumni House in a convertible, which of course, caught the eye of many DOG Street tourists. Guests at the wedding ventured from near and far, but guests traveling the farthest were Alison's grandparents from England! Not as far away, Guy Crittendon, Nancy Cote, Chris Walker '85, Dan Head '85, Alison and Diane Hawley, and Jeff Bishop, descended on the Burg for the celebration. Alison and Greg spent their honeymoon in the Cayman Islands and returned to live in Richmond. Greg is in medical school at MCV, and Alison will be attending William and Mary for her graduate degree.

That about wraps it up for now. With Homecoming just around the corner, don't forget to set aside Nov. 14-16 for some fun in Williamsburg. There will be plenty of Young Guard events — a dance and a keg party, among others! Also be sure to keep an eye out for chapter events in your area. I hope to hear from you soon!

Hello there, graduates! I hope everyone is adjusting to life in the real world. I hear we already had some weddings in Wren Chapel: Adriane Stewart married Tom Bianco in June, and Pete Glenshaw, our candlelight speaker, married college sweetheart Laura Evans in May. Our class vice president John Poma recently got engaged to MaryBeth McDevitt. A wedding is planned for December. Congratulations to all those tying the big knot!

News just in from the ROTC gang. Apparently everyone gathered for a Fourth of July bash in Panama City Beach, Fla. Among the guests were second lieutenants Ken Downer, Suzanne Robinson, Dustin Kanady and Amy Flint. Tommy Meyers left late May for Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., and buddy Cary Polk is nearby in Houston, Texas. Linda Weber and Anne Holmberg are both anxiously waiting to report this fall.

Back in the Burg, Glen Brooks is still practicing his lacrosse on Barksdale field; Tom Noble is establishing his Virginia residency and getting ready to start W&M M.B.A. school; and a crew of others are finishing up some final credits. (Willie Mitchell and Ron Gilliam were studying hard last time I checked.)

Some ambitious grads just didn't get enough studying done at the College of Knowledge so they're taking a crack at graduate school: Mary Kosko is heading to med school at Ohio State; Lisa Matick is going west to Colorado to get her master's in college administration and personnel; Jack Miller is pursuing the same degree at the University of Tennessee; Karen Robertson is going to UVA (boo!) Law School; and Kathy Moon is already at paralegal school in Philadelphia. Also venturing into law is Sue Zannetti who is currently working for a law firm in Chesapeake.

New retail executives include Andy Salita, who is a Richmond Miller and Rhodes manager, and Jeannie Cherundolo, who is already a regular N.Y.C. yuppie-type commuter. Jeannie is training in the Big Apple with Macy's.

Many '86 grads are job-hunting in the D.C. area: Kristen White, Adam Avel, Kathy Creekmore and Lynn Helm, to name a few.

Julie Wallace and I ended up together for a week in Cincinnati during training for Procter and Gamble. While there we ran into Lisa Ferguson who had just begun her job with P&G's customer service department. Speaking of a small world, Woody Waters was out in the Grand Canyon and he bumped into fellow-OD-second-hallmate Ken Scofield!

Two members of our class are headed for the White House. Kelly Doyle and Richard J. Sullivan, both government majors, were selected as Governor's Fellows to work in Richmond this summer. Kelly was assigned to the staff of the governor's wife, Mrs. Jeannie Baliles, and Richard worked with Gordon Morse, speechwriter for the governor.

That's all the news for now. I'd like to thank Linda Weber for sending the ONLY letter. (Remember my plea for correspondence at Candlelight?) Have a great month, classmates, and I'll see you at our first Homecoming!

HIROYUKI HAMADA HONORED NATIONALLY FOR VOLUNTEER WORK

Dr. Hiroyuki Hamada M.A. '74, A.C.E. '83, of Norfolk, Va., has been chosen as the "30th Anniversary Sister Cities Volunteer" by Sister Cities International. Hamada is president of the Norfolk Sister City Association, which he joined in 1980. He organized a summer youth exchange program for 25 Japanese college students who came to Old Dominion University. He also organized numerous exchange visits between Norfolk and Kitakyushu, Japan.

FANNY ROBINSON LEE '46 A.B. of Portsmouth, Va., died April 28, 1986. A transfer student from the Norfolk division of William and Mary and Virginia Intermont, she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She earned a master's degree in social work from the University of North Carolina and a certificate of law from LaSalle Extension University. She began her career as a social worker with Norfolk County in 1938. In 1943 she joined the Portsmouth Social Service Bureau (known then as the Welfare Department). She became superintendent of the bureau in 1954 and retired from that position in 1970. The widow of Eugene C. Lee, she is survived by a son and a sister.

MARILYN FRANCES PATTON (GREEN) '46 of Hornell, N.Y., died Dec. 7, 1985. She was a graduate of Allegheny College. Survivors include her husband, Ernest.

MILDRED HUME RIDDLE (HARTIGAN) '49 B.A. of Ocala, Fla., died May 16, 1986. She and her husband, John, both died when their airplane crashed near their home. A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma at William and Mary, she was co-owner and secretary of Cashel Stud, a Thoroughbred horse farm. Survivors include two sons and two brothers.

WILLIAM GRICE BOGG JR. '50 B.A. of Naples, Fla., died June 16, 1986. He was past president of the American Stamp Dealers Association. Survivors include his former wife, Jean, two daughters and a son.

ROSABELLE MADDOX MOLL '50 B.A., died June 14, 1986. After earning her master's degree from Purdue University, she served on the staff of Depauw University as an educator and counselor. She later operated a kindergarten in Tappahannock for nearly 30 years. Survivors include one brother.

JOSEPH CRAWFORD POTTS '50 of Wilmington, Del., died May 5, 1986. He was a member of Phi Kappa Tau at William and Mary. Survivors include his wife, Betty, and four children.

WILLIAM ROGER HARPER '51 B.A. of Honolulu, Hawaii, died in Oct. 1985. A member of Theta Delta Chi at William and Mary, he was a former employee of Western Electric.

JOHN NICHOLS DALTON '53 B.A. died July 30, 1986, in Richmond, Va., following a three-year battle with lung cancer. At William and Mary he was manager of the football team, president of the junior class, president of the student body, chief aide to the President, warden, treasurer and secretary of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and a member of the student survey committee, student assembly, student senate, general cooperative committee, publications committee, Omicron Delta Kappa and Scabbard and Blade. He was the recipient of the James Frederick Carr Memorial Cup. Upon graduation he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery Reserve. After serving in the U.S. Army, he attended the University of Virginia Law School, earning his L.L.B. in 1957. He joined the Radford law firm of his uncle and adoptive father, Judge Ted Dalton '24, and he continued to practice law in Radford until 1978. In 1960 he served as chairman of the Young Republican Federation of Virginia, later serving as treasurer and general counsel for the Republican Party of Virginia. He was elected to Virginia's House of Delegates in 1965 — the first of four terms; in 1972 he was elected to the State Senate. He was elected Lieutenant Governor of Virginia in 1973 and Governor in 1977. At his inauguration in January 1978, he was sworn in as the 63rd Governor of Virginia by Judge Dalton. During his four years as Governor, he remained committed to the conservative philosophy of limiting the growth and costs of state government; he also worked diligently to support Virginia's right-to-work law and to promote new industrial development in the commonwealth. Upon leaving the Governor's office in January 1982 he joined the Richmond law firm of McGuire, Woods & Battle; at the time of his death, he was a senior partner in the firm. Earlier this year, he was appointed to serve on the Governor's Commission on Transportation in the 21st Century. An active member of the College community, he was a former vice president of the Society of the Alumni, serving on the Society's Board of Directors from 1961 to 1967. He served as chairman of the W&M Fund Committee in 1964 and as vice president of the Roanoke alumni chapter in 1971. In 1974 he was awarded the Alumni Medallion for service and loyalty. He was elected in 1982 to the board of directors of William and Mary's School of Business Administration Sponsors. He served on the boards of numerous corporations and was active in various civic and fraternal organizations. Survivors include his wife, Edwina; two daughters, one of whom is Katherine Dalton Mika '79; two sons; his adoptive parents, Judge and Mrs. Ted Dalton '24; his mother; and a sister.

Editor's Note: The June Alumni Gazette contained a very brief obituary for Henry Whyte Jr. '35. We have recently received additional biographical information on this alumnus, and are therefore including the following corrected obituary:

HENRY WHYTE JR '35 of Norfolk, Va., died April 28, 1983. A native of Petersburg, he was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon at William and Mary. He retired as vice president of Marsh and McLennan Insurance Company, and, following his retirement, he worked with the Hampton Roads Oil Company. He was a veteran of World War II and a retired major in the U.S. Army Reserve. Survivors include his wife, Eloise, two daughters, a son, and a sister.

HARK UPON THE GALE
An Illustrated History of
The College of William and Mary
by Wilford Kale (Class of '66)
In two handsome editions

The second-oldest institution of higher education in America now has a comprehensive illustrated history, which spans the efforts of its first president, the Rev. James Blair, in 1693, to the events of 1984, containing for the first time, all the known views of the college from 1695 to 1865. It's the most exciting publication in many years, and we're pleased to offer it first to you. It contains over 350 fully-captioned photos, maps, and illustrations in crisp black and white and rich sepia tones, and a concise, entertaining text covering the major events in the evolution of the college. For example: did you know that Thomas Jefferson proposed that the Virginia legislature close William and Mary and establish a network of community colleges; that the first student secret society, the first fraternity, and the first intercollegiate Greek letter society were all at William and Mary; that as late as 1881, the college had twelve students?

No alumnus of the school can fail to be moved by this unique and exciting 8½-x-11-inch coffee table book. It will be a treasured possession to be passed on for generations. Beautifully printed and bound, Hark Upon The Gale comes in a regular edition with dust jacket, and a special leather limited edition of 250 copies with slipcase, each signed and numbered by the author, each increasing in value each year.

HOMECOMING 1986

Dear Alumni, Spouses and Friends:

It's time to check your graduation year, since Homecoming 1986 is only three months away, and it is never too early to make your plans. The Alumni Office has been working to make this year's Homecoming even better than its predecessors. Homecoming is continuing to grow in both attendance and activities, and we hope you will agree that Homecoming at William and Mary includes something for everyone.

This year the spotlight is on the Classes of 1941, 1946, 1951, 1956, 1961, 1966, 1971, 1976, and 1981, who are all celebrating one of their five-year reunions. A full schedule of events has also been planned for members of the Olde Guard Classes (1907-1936) and for members of the Young Guard Classes (1982-1986). We hope no matter what your class affiliation, you will plan to attend. Homecoming 1986 will be a success with one more ingredient, AND THAT'S YOUR ATTENDANCE!

The greatest change for 1986 will be a new look for the Society's Annual Dinner. This year it's going to be a party! We want all of you to come and celebrate with us. We are back at the Williamsburg Lodge, and we will begin the evening with dancing and good times, to be followed by Colonial Williamsburg's finest plantation buffet. A short program will precede the resumption of more dancing and fun. We're excited about our new "look." We know you will be as well.

A number of new events are being added, including concerts by the William and Mary Choir and the William and Mary Concert Band on Friday afternoon before the Sunset Ceremony. Some other events are being revised and tailored. We feel William and Mary's Homecoming is second to none! We have tried to make events more personal with more time to be with friends.

We encourage all returning class members to participate in their Hospitality Suite activities. Hospitality Suites have become the focal point for reunion classes for the weekend and offer the place where you can be sure to see your friends. We have four days of excitement to offer, beginning with programs for the Order of the White Jacket on Thursday and concluding with last year's newest successful event, the Alumni Brunch on Sunday. Williamsburg in the fall, exciting activities, old and new friends, and Holy Cross in football — MAKE YOUR PLANS NOW TO RETURN HOME TO WILLIAM AND MARY.

To help us in planning the weekend, we are requiring that all reservations for catered events be made on a pre-paid basis only. All reservation information for events is included in this notice. Room reservation forms have been appearing in the last several issues of the Alumni Gazette and are also included in this issue. Please note that we are currently holding rooms for all classes as per the class hotel listing. Due to cut-off dates, we will only be able to take room reservations until October 1st before we must release rooms back to the hotels. We encourage you to place your hotel reservations immediately as space is filling quickly. The catered event reservation cut-off date will be OCTOBER 31st, but we ask that you not wait to reserve space as there are space limitations and the Alumni Office needs time to process your reservation. If you have any questions regarding any aspect of Homecoming Weekend 1986, please do not hesitate to call the Alumni House at 804-229-1693 or 229-7545.

We hope that we have properly whetted your appetite and you are already marking the dates of NOVEMBER 13, 14, 15 and 16 on your calendar. We hope to see you in November.

Sunday, November 16th — Events

ALUMNI BRUNCH

The second annual Alumni Brunch will be held Sunday morning at the Hospitality House in the Empire Ballroom. We hope all alumni will take time to spend a few quiet hours with their closest friends at this event. We have scheduled the brunch so that it will be from 8:30 a.m. until 11 a.m. and will allow each person to attend at leisure. The brunch buffet will feature traditional Old Virginia breakfast fare with some extras. We will have good music and good fellowship. The cost per person is $9.

QUEEN'S GUARD BREAKFAST

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the formation of the Queen's Guard. To commemorate this anniversary, the 1986-87 Queen's Guard invites former Queen's Guard members to attend a reunion breakfast at 9 a.m. in the Alumni House. Cost per person is $6.

Sunday, November 16th -- Events

ALUMNI BRUNCH
 The second annual Alumni Brunch will be held Sunday morning at the Hospitality House in the Empire Ballroom. We hope all alumni will take time to spend a few quiet hours with their closest friends at this event. We have scheduled the brunch so that it will be from 8:30 a.m. until 11 a.m. and will allow each person to attend at leisure. The brunch buffet will feature traditional Old Virginia breakfast fare with some extras. We will have good music and good fellowship. The cost per person is $9.

QUEEN'S GUARD BREAKFAST
 This year marks the 25th anniversary of the formation of the Queen's Guard. To commemorate this anniversary, the 1986-87 Queen's Guard invites former Queen's Guard members to attend a reunion breakfast at 9 a.m. in the Alumni House. Cost per person is $6.
