THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Burger Installed as Chancellor at Charter Day

Alumni Society Presents Badge and Chain of Office

William and Mary installed Warren E. Burger as its 20th chancellor at Charter Day on Feb. 7 and conferred on the former Chief Justice of the United States an historic badge and chain of office that had been given by the Society of the Alumni.

Stressing the importance of the occasion, Burger, who had received an honorary doctor of laws from the College in 1973, said that "few things that have happened to me are as pleasant as this occasion, nor have I received an honor that I cherish more."

"It is a great honor for me to become formally affiliated with an educational institution which, perhaps more than any other, profoundly influenced the founding of our Republic," Burger added.

In addition to the installation of Chancellor Burger, the College conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree on Governor Gerald L. Baliles and presented the coveted Thomas Jefferson Awards to the former provost of the College and to a distinguished member of the Department of History.

George R. Healy, who received the Thomas Jefferson Award, retired last year as provost after serving since 1971 at William and Mary as vice president for academic affairs, provost, and for several months as acting president. Healy, who is currently acting president of Christopher Newport College, was lauded by Anne Dobie Peebles '44, rector of the College.

"Wherever the humanistic tradition continues in the United States," said Miss Peebles, "wherever there is a college of 'good arts and sciences,' persons in the Jeffersonian tradition can be found. At Thomas Jefferson's alma mater, George Healy has stood squarely in that tradition."

The Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award went to Helen Cam Walker '64, a faculty member at the College since 1969, who was honored for the help she has given to students both inside and outside of the classroom. Miss Peebles noted that Professor Walker is "particularly outstanding as a mentor and role model for bright young women students who have taken the intellectual challenges she has set for them."

In his new role as chancellor, Burger, who is chairman of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, succeeds a distinguished group of Englishmen and Americans, which includes several bishops of London, the archbishop of Canterbury, and Presidents George Washington and John Tyler. He is the seventh American to hold the title.

The badge and chain of office that was placed around Burger's neck during the investiture are modeled after those worn by British dignitaries in the 15th and 16th centuries. Handcrafted by the firm of Thomas Fattorini, gold and silversmiths of Birmingham and London, the silver, enamel and gold badge and chain were made possible by the Society of the Alumni, through its board of directors.

The badge includes a representation of the coat-of-arms granted to the College in 1694 and across the badge's top are the word "Chancellor" and the College's founding date, 1693. Encircling the badge are the words "College of William and Mary."

The chain supporting the badge incorporates six insignia chronicling the history of the College and the office of chancellor — one each from the coat-of-arms of the bishop of London and the archbishop of Canterbury, the holders of the office during the Colonial period; one each from the family arms of Presidents Washington and Tyler, the first two Americans to hold the post; the Great Seal of the Commonwealth of Virginia; and the arms of the London Company, representing the Colonial Arms of Virginia at the time the College was chartered.

In his remarks to the audience in William and Mary Hall, Burger spoke about the remarkable history of the Constitution and said of William and Mary that, "there is no example, I think, in all of history of any one place which has contributed so much to the leadership and development of freedom."

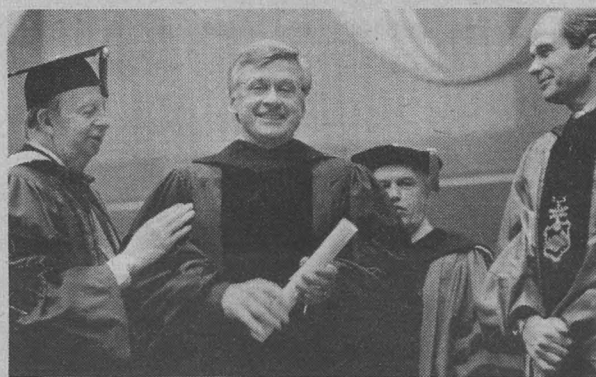

"To try to refer in any way to the great contributions that this splendid institution has made to our country and our system and the whole system of freedom that has gone beyond our country would be impossible," the new chancellor said.

In his address, Governor Baliles also spoke about the role William and Mary played in the formation of American values.

"For nearly 300 years, William and Mary has helped to shape history," said the Governor. "That is why Charter Day is so important — because you are continuing the tradition of leadership in a world of change, important because you can help Virginia lead the way into the future as you've done before."

In conjunction with Burger's investiture as chancellor, President Verkuil announced that the Board of Visitors is reviving the tradition of appointing Chancellor Professors. Following past policy, the professors will be selected on the basis of exemplary contributions to the College. The program will allow the chancellor and Board of Visitors to appoint four Chancellor Professors representing the Schools of Business Administration, Education, Law, and Marine Science, and a total of seven from the three major areas of the College of Arts and Sciences — the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences. The president and provost will recommend candidates to the chancellor and the Board of Visitors.

While Anne Dobie Peebles, rector of the College, and President Verkuil proudly watch, William and Mary's 20th Chancellor, Warren Earl Burger, receives his badge and chain of office at Charter Day with help from College marshals Thaddeus W. Tate (right) and R. Wayne Kernodle.

Governor Gerald L. Baliles received the honorary degree of doctor of laws at Charter Day and addressed the audience in William and Mary Hall on the subject of the Constitution.

Helen Cam Walker '64, associate professor of history, received the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award while former provost George R. Healy (below) received the Thomas Jefferson Award.

ARE SAT PREP COURSES NECESSARY?

Almost every selective college requires its applicants to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Test (ACT). Although testing does not drive the selection process, it is generally billed as a "major criterion" by these colleges. This position of importance creates the need for students to achieve the highest test scores possible and has produced a plethora of test preparation courses that now reaches virtually every student in the nation.

Some of these programs are offered in the high schools by teachers and counselors. Some are given after school or on Saturday while others are offered as regular components of the curriculum and often earn academic credit. Since some school districts are now using test results as evidence of teaching success, it is no wonder that these courses are receiving such a high priority by superintendents and school board members.

Commercial test preparation centers range from good to very bad. The former actually teach a great deal more than how to take a multiple-choice test and spend a lot of time drilling on grammar, syntax, vocabulary and basic math concepts. If there is a hidden value in this type of instruction, it is the development of more than just a higher score on the SAT. A lot of learning just may have "snuck up" on the students while they thought they were trying to get into college!

The worst of the test business is found in the courses that teach guessing strategies not necessarily linked with skill development or knowledge acquisition. Their goal seems to be a conscious misrepresentation of one's reasoning abilities, an inflation of one's true test scores in order to fool someone who is trying to make a decision about them and their future. It's like telling a person who is about to have an interview to "be someone else." Who really wins when someone else writes the application essays or has the interview or takes the test?

Are testing prep courses worth it? I feel like the family physician when asked about the value of daily vitamins. The usual answer is: eat the right foods and treat your body well and you won't need a lot of pills. So it is with prep courses. For every person whose scores went up after taking a course, I can find someone who achieved the same results without it. Before a student spends a lot of money on an SAT prep course, he should think about the cost of the course, how much fun it is to learn without endless repetition, get a good night's sleep and give it his best shot. Then, he can proceed with the college selection process content with the knowledge that his test results are really his own.

The annual Discovery college counseling program for rising seniors will be offered in two sessions at William and Mary this summer: from June 28 to July 3 and from July 18 to July 24. Deadline is April 1 for Board Nominations

Alumni are encouraged to place names in consideration for nomination to the Board of Directors, Society of the Alumni. Names and supporting statements should be forwarded to W. Samuel Sadler '64 Chairman, Nominating Committee, Alumni Board of Directors, Post Office Box 60, Williamsburg, Virginia 23187. The suggestions should be received no later than April 1, 1987.

The committee will nominate two persons for each of the five vacancies on the Board of Directors which will occur in 1987. The slate will be published in the May issue of the Alumni Gazette, and the election will be held in the fall.

Other members of the nominating committee are: John R. Blankinship '77, Richmond; Dr. Milton Salasky '31, Norfolk; Jane Spencer Smith '48, Richmond; Barbara Lynn Wheeler '56, Summit, N.J.; and Elizabeth Moncure Winn '82, Blackstone, Va.

Subsequent to the publication of the slate, nominations may also be made by petitions by seventy-five (75) active members of the Society. Such Petitions must be received by the Chairman of the Nominating Committee no later than July 15, 1987.

Nominations Invited for Alumni Medallion

The Alumni Medallion Committee is receiving nominations from alumni chapters and from individual alumni for candidates for the Alumni Medallion, the highest honor conferred by the Society of the Alumni.

The medallion is awarded for service and loyalty, recognizing extraordinary achievement in the vocational and avocational life of the alumnus. Consideration is given to distinguished service and exceptional loyalty to the Society and to the College; outstanding character; notable success in business or profession and contribution in worthy endeavors of such nature as to bring credit and honor to the College. The graduating class of the nominee must have been at least ten years prior to the awarding.

The nominations must be supported by a short written statement outlining service to William and Mary and an assessment of that service; service to community, state, and/or nation; vocational achievements and recognitions. The deadline will be May 1, 1987.

Walt Zable '37 Wins NCAA's Highest Honor

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has chosen Walter J. Zable '37 as the recipient of its 1987 Theodore Roosevelt Award, the highest honor the NCAA confers on an individual.

The honor is presented annually to "a distinguished citizen of national reputation and outstanding accomplishment who, having earned a varsity athletics award in college, has by a continuing interest and concern for physical fitness and competitive sport and by personal example exemplified most clearly and forcefully the ideals and purposes to which college athletics and programs and amateur sports competitions are dedicated.

Presented to Zable Jan. 7 at the annual NCAA convention in San Diego, the "Teddy Award" has been given previously to such distinguished Americans as former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gerald Ford and golfer Arnold Palmer. Last year's winner was Vice President George Bush.

Zable is chairman of the board and president of Cubic Corporation, an electronics component company based in San Diego. A four-sport athlete at William and Mary, he was the Southern Conference low-hurdles champion and an honorable mention all-America and first team all-South Atlantic football player.

An end for the football team, he was known for his speed and scoring ability. In the tradition of football's earlier years, he played both offense and defense and was a standout in both.

He also played forward for the basketball team and shortstop for the baseball team. In 1937 he was named "Best Athlete in Virginia." He went on to play for the Richmond Arrows football team and the New York Giants.

After graduating with a B.S. in physics, Zable attended graduate school at William and Mary and then earned a master's degree in physics and Dan H. Edmonson '38, Dallas, Tex., an old friend and former teammate of Zable's from their days at William and Mary, came to San Diego to be present for the award presentation.

At a reception after the ceremony, Randolph presented Zable with a framed version of the football jersey he wore at William and Mary where he was a four-sport athletic and an honorable mention all-American football player.

mathematics at the University of Florida.

He went on to found Cubic Corporation in San Diego. One of the largest businesses in California, Cubic is considered an international leader in electronics development and computerized locomotion. The firm produces geodetic and surveying systems, aerospace and data handling systems, and digital and automation components.

Before starting Cubic, Zable worked for General Dynamics Convair. He also worked for Flight Research Company, Sperry Gyroscope Company, IT&T Federal Telecommunications Laboratories, and Newport News Shipyard and Dry Docks Company.

Zable is involved with numerous civic groups in San Diego, including the Junior Achievement program, the YMCA, the Museum of Man, and the Theatre and Arts Foundation. He is also a member of the Governor's California Economic Development Board and holds directorships on a number of boards.

Zable was joined by a contingent of William and Mary friends and administrators at the NCAA awards luncheon. During the award presentation, he was acclaimed by master of ceremonies Dan Rather and NCAA president John R. Davis. Rather noted that Zable and other "Teddy" recipients "exemplified ideals and purposes to which college athletics programs and amateur sports competition are dedicated."

Rather said of Zable, "We salute today a former student-athlete who formed a corporation here in San Diego about 36 years ago with a $5,000 investment. Today, it is a $332-million company with 4,500 employees."

Davis said the NCAA was recognizing Zable's "superb undergraduate career as a student and athlete, and your continuing commitment to the highest personal standards."

President Paul R. Verkuil '61 was presented the institutional plaque commemorating the selection of one of William and Mary's distinguished alumni as the "Teddy" award recipient.

That evening, at a reception for Zable and his family and friends, President Verkuil hailed Zable as a student-athlete, a successful businessman and dedicated alumnus. He read the comments of a number of Zable's William and Mary friends upon learning Zable had received the "Teddy" Award.

He quoted Davis Y. Paschall '32, president emeritus, as saying, "Walt Zable is one of few men who, in their own lifetimes, become legends of sportsmanship. His distinction in athletic achievement is complemented by an outstanding career record of service to his alma mater, his community and nation."

Former football teammate Bud Metheny '39 was quoted as saying, "Walt was very intense. He was always a competitor. He was never satisfied but he might have been pleased." Another teammate, Ted McGowan '38, said Zable was "an excellent player. He never gave up. We had some games that were exciting right through the finish, and I remember Zable in there trying right to the end."

Also during the reception, William and Mary Athletic Director John Randolph '64 presented Zable with a framed version of his football jersey, number 20.

He has received numerous other professional, civic and sports-related awards. He was selected for Sports Illustrated Silver Anniversary All-American Team in 1962 and for William and Mary's Athletic Hall of Fame in 1969.

He was the first recipient of the Distinguished American Award from the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame in 1980. He was named Executive Headliner of 1982 by the San Diego Press Club, and in 1985 he was honorary chairman of the Holiday Football Bowl. He has also been named "Industrialist of the Year" by San Diego Magazine.

Involved with William and Mary in a variety of ways over the years, he is a lifetime member of the President's Council and a past member of the Endowment Association Board. He received the Alumni Medallion in 1971 and an honorary doctor of laws degree in 1978. He was president of the Order of the White Jacket in 1977.

He is also a member of the University of San Diego's board of trustees and is a member of the board of directors for the University of California at San Diego Foundation and that university's Cancer Center.

He and his wife, the former Betty Carter '40, live in Rancho Santa Fe, Calif.

Building Boom on Campus

New Buildings, Addition To Swem Add $10 Million in New Facilities

BY HILARY HOLLADAY

It's business as usual at Earl Gregg Swem Library, even though drill hammers are heard more often than "Shh," the traditional library watchword.

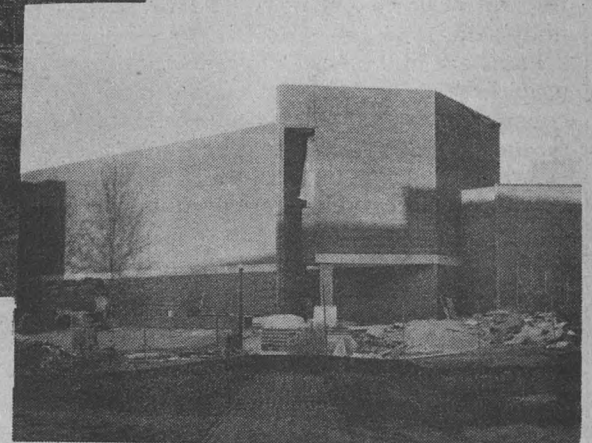

Swem patrons have grown accustomed to entering the building via the loading dock and traversing staircases previously unknown to all but library employees. And the roars, clunks and grinds in the background have become a kind of heavy-duty white noise. The sound of construction is, after all, the sound of progress.

By late April, the four-story library will be 25 percent larger than it is now. That means 280 more seats and space for at least 87,000 more books. It also means a new study room open 24 hours, ending the complaints of nocturnal scholars currently ushered out at midnight. A much-requested vending machine area will be attached to the all-night study room.

The library is the most prominent construction project underway on campus. But it is just one of many areas that will see expansion or renovation in the coming months. Also under construction is the addition to the Muscarelle Museum of Art. Together, these additions represent about $3.75 million worth of work. And, in the spring, several other projects, costing more than $10 million, will begin.

An addition to Swem library (left) now underway will increase the four-story building by 25 percent and add room for 280 more seats and 87,000 books. Also under construction is the second phase of the Muscarelle Museum of Art (below), which will more than double in size with the 11,000-square-foot addition. Together, the two projects represent about $3.75 million worth of work, with funds for the library expansion coming from state sources, while the Muscarelle addition is being constructed entirely from private sources. (Photos by C. James Gleason.)

The 28,600-square-foot addition to the library will ease crowding and accommodate future ex-

A new 52,000-square-foot physical education, intramural/recreation facility will be constructed behind William and Mary Hall. It will include three gymnasiums, an eight-lane pool, eight racketball courts and a weightroom. The $4.3 million facility is expected to take 20 months to complete.

EWELL HALL ADDITION

The music department will get brand new facilities when a 15,900-square-foot addition to Ewell Hall (above), is completed in 18 months. Tyler Hall (above, right) will become the home of the international studies program when a $1.3 million reconstruction of that building is completed in 20 months.

pansion, according to James J. Connolly, William and Mary's director of facilities, planning and construction. "In effect, this is like putting another floor on the library, except it'll be spread out," Connolly said.

Plans are in the works for an expanded bibliographic services center on the first floor and the consolidation of all library administrative offices on the ground floor. Also, the Friends of the Library will have their own room, and the library will have a large room for orientation sessions and other bibliographical classes.

The library's front doors will reopen this summer and the expanded facilities will be fully in use by the fall, according to Librarian Nancy H. Marshall. Though construction is expected to be completed in the spring, it will take several months to furnish the new areas. The work, begun last March by the O. K. James Construction Co. of Williamsburg, will cost about $2.6 million.

The Muscarelle Museum of Art will more than double its size this spring. The 11,000-square-foot addition will change it "from a small museum to a medium-sized museum," according to Director Mark M. Johnson.

The expansion will include four new galleries, more office space and a work area for exhibition preparation. "We're very excited about the additional space and its potential for increasing the number of exhibitions. This will allow us to more than double our special exhibition schedule and, for the first time, to show works from the College's permanent collection on a regular basis," Johnson said.

He added that the increase in the number of galleries, from two to six, will allow the museum to remain open while an exhibition is being changed. With the new gallery space, "when we have a 'down' week, we're still worth visiting."

Three of the additional galleries will be part of the new second story. The fourth, designed for graphic arts, will be on the first floor. Johnson noted that the project also includes extensive landscaping. Trees, shrubbery and sitting areas will be blended into the museum's setting on Jamestown Road next to Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Evans Construction Co. of Sandston is handling the $1,146,000 contract. Johnson said that the expanded museum should be completed by July 1.

Construction that is underway or penciled in for the spring will not be affected by a new College master plan, but the plan is expected to shape future projects. In August William and Mary signed a $100,000 contract with the consulting firm of Johnson, Johnson & Roy, Inc., of Ann Arbor, Mich. The consultants are looking at all aspects of the campus and other properties owned by the College. Their final recommendations, due in August, will establish guidelines for future construction and facility use.

TYLER HALL ADDITION

A new dormitory for graduate students. Housing 65 students in single rooms and a visiting professor in a suite, the dormitory will be located next to the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. The budget is set at $1.6 million, and work is expected to take 18 to 20 months.

Reconstruction of Tyler Hall. After reconstruction is completed, this 1916 building will become the International Studies House. It will house 70 students and the program director's office. The cost is set at $1.3 million, and the project should take 18 to 20 months to complete.

Physical Education, Intramural/Recreation Facility. This new 52,000-square-foot building will be located behind William and Mary Hall. It will include three gymnasiums, an eight-lane pool, eight racquetball courts and a weight room. The $4.3 million project is expected to take 20 months to complete.

Intramural fields. Two fields for intramural sports will be located behind the Commons dining hall. The $165,000 project is expected to take six months.

Addition to Psychological Services Center. This 1,500-square-foot addition will include a group therapy room and more counseling offices. The budget has been set at $137,000, and construction is expected to take six months.

Relocation of law school placement office. An area now used for bicycle parking will be converted into Marshall-Wythe's new placement office. Rooms for firms interviewing law students will also be installed. The $365,000 renovation is expected to take six months.

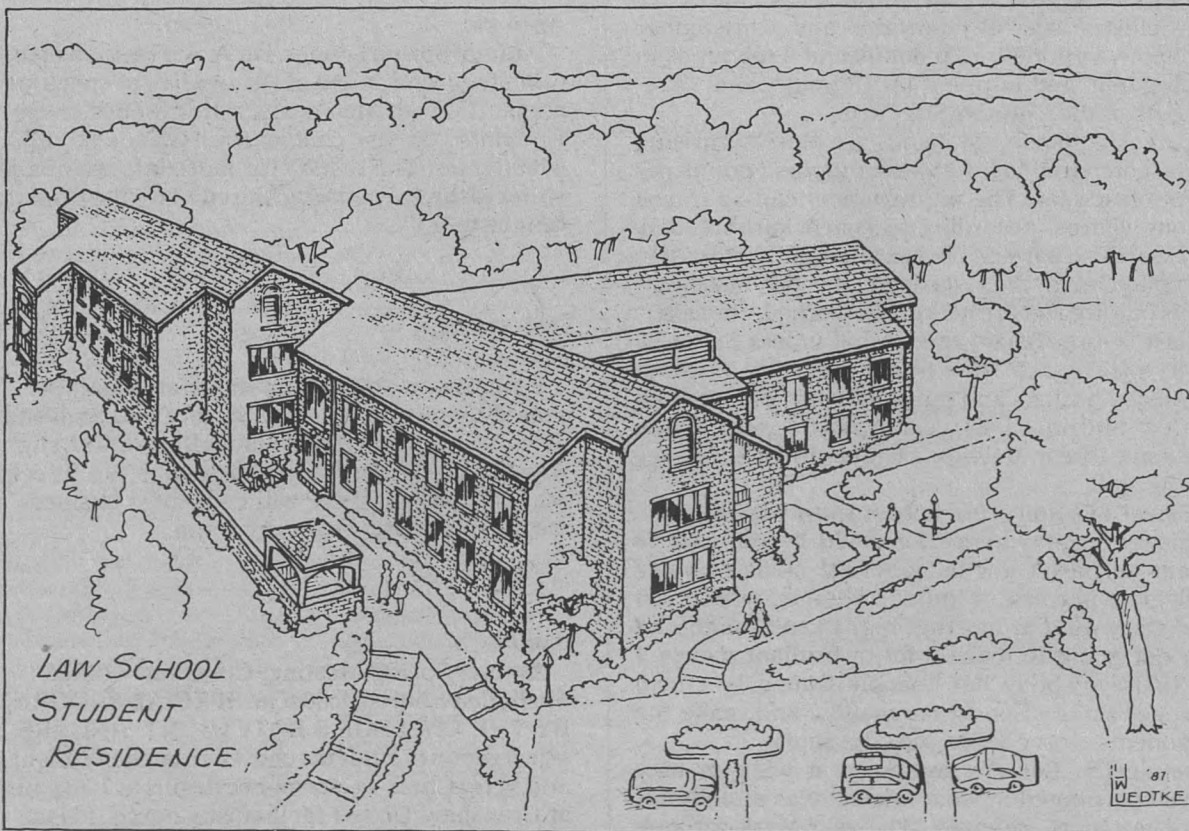

Public rest rooms. Facilities will be installed convenient to the intramural fields near the fraternity complex. If the $105,000 budget permits, rest rooms will also be installed near the intramural fields located by the Dillard Complex on Ironbound Road. Work is expected to take six months.

The master plan is the College's first in 25 years. According to Charles J. Lombardo, director of operations for the office of administration and finance, the plan has three main goals. First, it will suggest ways to provide some design continuity between the old and new campuses. Second, it will identify sites where additional construction could take place and provide direction for development of the College's non-contiguous properties, such as Ash Lawn and the Virginia Institute of Marine Science.

In relation to each of these objectives, the consultants will consider traffic patterns, parking, lighting and other design features. Lombardo emphasizes that the plan does not mean that William and Mary is gearing up for a population boom. "You can talk about growing without an increase in the size of the student body. We're organizing what we have and labeling opportunities for the future."

Other construction projects scheduled to begin in the spring include:

Expansion and renovation of Ewell Hall. This 15,900-square-foot addition to the music department will include a 100-seat recital hall, band and chorus rooms and individual practice rooms. The $2.3 million project should be completed in 18 months.

LAW SCHOOL STUDENT RESIDENCE

Construction of a new dormitory for graduate students will cost $1.6 million and take 18 to 20 months to complete. It will be located next to Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Hard Work Pays off for Mark Batzel

Walk-on Leads in Scoring and Rebounding

BY BOB JEFFREY '74

In four years Mark Batzel has gone from left out to standout. The leading scorer and rebounder on this year's William and Mary basketball team didn't even have the luxury of starting his collegiate career on the bench. Batzel had to watch from the stands.

Though he was named Virginia Beach Player of the Year after his senior season at Kempsville High, Batzel didn't receive any scholarship offers from Division I colleges. He enrolled at William and Mary, hoping to make the team as a walk-on. Unfortunately for him, the Tribe had enjoyed a banner recruiting year, leaving no roster spots available.

A lot of people might have gotten discouraged at that point. "I wanted to play ball, but I realized it wasn't my number one thing," recalled Batzel. "I came here because William and Mary had a good reputation for academics," he said.

Batzel had already vetoed Tribe head coach Barry Parkhill's suggestion that he prep for a year at Fork Union Military Academy. "I didn't want to do that because I didn't need it for the grades," Batzel said.

So he took his chances and ended up watching from the stands that first season.

Since that time the situation has steadily improved for the 6'6", 210-pounder, mostly due to his own dogged determination and hard work. Batzel made the W&M varsity team the following season as a walk-on. He earned an athletic scholarship and by the next year had worked his way into the starting rotation.

In 1986-87 Batzel has achieved more than many would have ever thought possible. Named a tri-captain, the husky power forward has been one of the bright spots in an otherwise disappointing campaign. After 14 games, Batzel was leading the squad in scoring (12 points per game) and rebounding (6.5 per game). He was particularly impressive in victories over Bridgewater and Christopher Newport, striking for 20 points and 9 rebounds in each game, and in piling up 18 points and 12 rebounds in the Towson State win.

Batzel's offensive statistics are more surprising when compared to his modest output (5 points per game) last year. The improvement can be traced to one source, according to coach Parkhill. "He just works so hard. Mark has improved immensely as a player over the last couple of years, but shooting is one area where he's really worked," he said.

Last season Batzel rarely shot unless he had a wide open layup. Now he's confidently working for inside baskets and putting up the jumper from 14 feet and in. "Last year I wasn't much of an offensive threat. But now I'll take the shot if I have it," he said.

Batzel's exploits should be inspirational to over-achievers everywhere. He would be the first to admit he hasn't got the physical skills of some collegiate players. "I know my game, what I can and can't do. I'm not that big; I can't jump; and I'm not going to make a lot of brilliant moves. I try to use my body, bang people around, box them out, get some offensive rebounds, and make the opponents worry about me," he said.

Ironically, Batzel's season as a walk-on may have contributed a boost to what was already his strongest suite, defense. "The year Mark walked-on, we were really looking for a guard," said Parkhill. "He had to match up with Keith Cieplicki (the Tribe's third all-time scorer with 1,812 career points) in practice all year long. I think that really helped him develop," he said.

Now Batzel often draws the opposition's toughest player as his defensive assignment. "I take it as a challenge to play against someone who is a known scorer. I'm going to try and shut them down," he said.

Quality opponents like George Mason's Kenny Sanders and East Carolina's Marchell Henry can attest to Batzel's prowess. He held both to subpar performances, keeping the Tribe close in contests that might have turned into mismatches.

Teammates and coaches admire Batzel's blue-collar style of play. "He's the kind of guy you know is going to give you everything he's got every night," said Parkhill. "I'd like to have about 15 players like him, but I'm happy to have one," he said.

Batzel's scrambling, dive-on-the floor intensity resulted in groin and knee injuries that might have sidelined a player with less fortitude. "Mark played all last year with injuries that would have kept most kids out of action. He gutted it out and led the way by example," Parkhill said.

An off-season rehabilitation program kept Batzel off the court prior to this year's productive effort. "This past summer I didn't even touch a basketball. I just lifted weights and rode a stationary bike," he said. "So far I haven't had any major injury problems, but I wouldn't recommend not playing as a way to improve yourself," he laughed.

No one has appreciated Batzel's success on the court more than his parents, Commander and Mrs. Thomas J. Batzel of Virginia Beach. They attend games at W&M Hall and even some of the away contests. "My dad waits for me afterward and then we go out to dinner, and he critiques my game," Batzel said.

Mark's older brother John, a recent graduate of Virginia Tech, has been another formative influence. "We were only 18 months apart, so we grew up with a competitive rivalry in sports," said Batzel. John Batzel is no slouch on the hardwood either, having won the schoolwide one-on-one competition three times at Tech.

Though the Tribe has struggled so far this season, dropping seven decisions by three points or less, Batzel remains positive about the rest of the schedule. "I think we can play with anybody in our league. We're going to have to correct some things and try to pull together as we go down the stretch toward (CAA) tournament time," he said.

Parkhill concurs, "I'm far from happy with our record, but I've been encouraged by the effort and attitude of the players. They've worked hard and they haven't gotten down on themselves. We've just got to get over the hump and make good things happen late in the games," he said.

With Batzel and company on the floor, William and Mary fans can be sure that there will be no lack of desire.

Tribe's Jordan Paces Team With Hook Shot

All-Conference Forward Passes 1000 Point Mark

Karen Jordan is the top point maker on the Tribe's women's basketball team.

BY MARTY BENSON

A fake right, a pivot and a smooth hook shot.

"Basket by Jordan," says the announcer.

"Wait a second, since when does Michael Jordan shoot a hook shot," you think. "Must have meant Jabbar."

Wrong on both counts. The cager in question here is a Jordan all right, but not he of the self-named sneakers — not even close. Right sport, but wrong sex and shoe brand. This is Karen Jordan, scoring leader of the Tribe women's basketball team for the past two years.

A hook shot is a seldom-seen shot anymore, even during the average men's game. Jordan says she developed the shot when she was in high school more out of necessity than anything else.

"I wasn't very tall back then, and it was the only shot I could shoot inside without getting it thrown back in my face," she remembers.

Getting shots blocked isn't much of a concern these days. Now standing 5' 11" Jordan is one of the CAA's dominant inside forces as a power forward. Second-team all-conference last season, she is on track for similar honors this season. After averaging 6.3 points per game as a freshman, "K.J." has been a model of consistency for the Tribe. As a sophomore, her statistics jumped to 13.6 points and 7.6 rebounds per game. Last year, despite receiving heavy defensive attention, she averaged 14.6 points and a school-record 8.2 rebounds per game. After 12 games this season, her stats were 13.8 points and 8.3 rebounds.

Not bad numbers for someone who didn't even start playing basketball until her freshman year of high school. Springfield High School in Northern Virginia had three sports — swimming, gymnastics and basketball. She had tried all but basketball, partially because she was only 5'5" at the time.

Success didn't come instantly, by any means. The future collegiate forward was on the junior varsity as a freshman and sophomore. Jordan made the varsity as a junior, mostly, she says, "because six or seven people had graduated."

She played on a team with Liza Lunk, a high school All-America and future player at national-power University of Virginia. While Lunk was busy grabbing the headlines and getting 1,000 career points in the process, Jordan was toiling away in near anonymity, scoring 11 points a game as a junior, then 13 as a senior, as well as earning high grades in the classroom.

Partially because she wasn't a star in high school, but mostly because books were paramount, academics, not basketball, were the determining factor when it came time to choose a college. She came to William and Mary without a basketball scholarship, but with the goal of earning one. It didn't take her long to convince the proper people of her worthiness.

As her scoring average rose, so did the defensive attention she received, starting in her junior year. Even so, her figures continued to rise, or remain consistent. Early this season, she tallied her 1000th career point, a goal she had wanted to achieve ever since starting to play and one that was reinforced by watching Lunk do it in high school.

Head Coach Pat Megel says that one of the things he's worked on with Jordan to help overcome the added pressure is passing the ball back out to the team's guards to try to make the defense more honest.

"We've worked on having her kick the ball out to the wing to open things up," he says. "What we try to do is get her one-on-one with somebody; there are very few who can stop her in that situation."

Junior Debbie Wade, who, along with Jordan, serves as one of the team's co-captains, says not only is the Springfield native a good player, she is a good captain and an inspirational one. "She is the type of person who can get the team fired up, while I'm more low-key," Wade says.

Megel agrees. "She is a vibrant person," he says. "She is pretty jovial and carefree off the court, but very serious and intense on the court."

Jordan says that because she is a captain, she must watch her demeanor. "I can't really ever be down, even on the court. If the captain drops her head, it will have an effect on the rest of the players."

One of the factors that helps K. J. maintain this outlook is a realistic attitude toward the basketball team as it continues to develop in its Division I infancy.

"Coach Megel has a lot of work to do and it won't all happen this year," she says. "I'm just part of the building process."

Academically, Jordan, an economics major who also enjoys pencil-sketching, is also in the growing stages. She's planning to study for her M.B.A. after graduation, with the ultimate goal of working in international investment. If her success at reaching her other goals is an indication of how she'll do with this one, look for Jordan's name to jump from the sports page right to the business section.

J. Edward Grimsley '51 (standing, left), editorial page editor for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, was elected the new president of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni at its semi-annual meeting in Williamsburg in February. Dr. Lesley Ward '63 (seated, left), a psychologist/business consultant from New York City, was elected vice president, while Jerry Van Voorhis '63, rector of Chatham Hall in Chatham, Va., was elected secretary. Harriett L. Stanley '72 (not shown), vice president of Ehrlich-Bober and Co. in New York City, was reelected treasurer, and Audrey Murray Harris '60 (seated, right), an administrator for the State Department of Personnel in Richmond, was elected member at large of the executive committee.

As I write this, 1987 is only five days old and for each of you I wish the remaining 360 days to be filled with good health, happy happenings and meaningful involvement in worthwhile activities.

1986, though gone, has I hope left with us some pleasant memories. One was Homecoming. Those who came enjoyed visiting together and are sorry more weren't with us.

Following is a list of those who registered: Malvern H. Omohundro Jr., Robert Randolph Jones, Kitty Topping Hill, George Robert Whitley, Arthur R. Gordon, John S. Brooks, William G. Thompson Jr., Randolph N. Gladding, Virginia Vaiden Bowen, Jefferson Carey Jr. and Mary Land Gill.

By way of the Alumni Office, I received four notes. Warren H. Russell regretted that because of cataract surgery he couldn't make Homecoming. Otherwise he's fine. Hope the surgery was a complete success.

Jefferson Carey reported that he and his wife, Eunice, look forward to Homecoming and renewing friendships with classmates.

Ellen Cate Jordan Classcock, my roommate, helps fill her spare time with church activities, civic affairs and the D.A.R. She wrote, "I have fond memories of William and Mary and feel privileged to have attended for two years." Saw an article in the paper recently about her son who is a delegate in the state legislature from the Suffolk area.

Alice Kerr Stehle not only sent news to the Alumni Office but also wrote a nice letter. After graduation she taught English and Latin, then went into library work, which she found stimulating and challenging. She now finds retirement to be wonderful and tries to enjoy it to the fullest. She is a volunteer at a local hospital, is active in the church and the county public library, belongs to a study club and a book club, plays bridge, does a bit of traveling in the U.S.A. and Europe and keeps up with Brooks Johnson Parker and sister Elizabeth '27 by letter, visiting and taking trips together.

A note from Lucien Hobbs was attached to a copy of an interesting article by Alistair Sampson, which appeared in the Oct. issue of Punch magazine. It is about Colonial Williamsburg, which the author decries is "without doubt the most praiseworthy and successful venture of its kind in the whole wide world." High praise from an Englishman. Read it if you can. It has a satirical twist that is amusing and contains much interesting information about the restoration — does not mention W&M, all the pity! Lucien was occupied "all summer and fall getting built a new horse barn, five stalls and living quarters for possible caretaker." Want to go horseback riding? Visit Lucien.

Bill Thompson and wife, Mary, ran into Malvern Omohundro at the Greenbrier Hotel last summer, as the latter was returning from a meeting of the Texas Jack Association held in North Platte, Neb.

Appreciate the two letters recently received from Malvern. In one he included

Another Homecoming has slipped away into history. The weather was atrocious, either downright cold or downright cold and rainy. Did I enjoy it? Yes, the Olde Guard luncheon and preliminaries thereto made it a memorable event. It is always wonderful to see old friends and classmates.

My class was represented by Wilhemina Swann Goetz, Blanton Bruner and me. Those registered from earlier classes were:

Rolf Kennard '24, Ed Islin '25, Bill Gravely '25, Jack Holliday '24, John St. George '25, Art Winder '24 and E. Ralph James '16.

I was delighted to see old friends from later classes, among them Cameron Ogden '35. I had not seen him since 1939 in New York City. We worked together on alumni affairs compiling names, etc., of all alumni in the general area, New York City, New Jersey, Westchester and Connecticut. Once a year, we would have a fling. The last I attended, prior to departure from New York City, was the 1939 Christmas party at the Biltmore Hotel with "Horace Heidt and His Magical Knights" providing the music. Over 100 of our alumni were in attendance. It was a large night with me leading the orchestra at one time. Oh, Brother! It was nice to know that Cameron and his wife would still speak to me after the alumni mess I dropped on them upon leaving New York City.

The final speaker at the Olde Guard luncheon was E. Ralph James who recounted how for years he had followed a chest of drawers that had belonged to Col. Ewell. Finally, within the past year, the family that owned the chest consented to sell it to him. I understand it now is located in the President's House, a gift from Mr. James.

We were pleased to receive a note from Cooper Ponton who has successfully overcome some serious medical problems. I think he owes us another poem. He did an excellent job for our 50th reunion and the 60th should stimulate that thinking machine.

Elizabeth Palmer Thompson telephoned from Waco to wish us a pleasant Homecoming. Elizabeth regretted that she was

NICHOLAS ST. GEORGE NAMED BEST CEO IN MANUFACTURED HOUSING

The Wall Street Transcript has named Nicholas J. St. George '60, '65 J.D., the best chief executive in the manufactured-housing industry for the third consecutive year. The weekly financial newspaper selected him for his foresight and discipline in establishing Oakwood Homes Corporation as a leader in its field. St. George is president and chief executive officer of Oakwood Homes, which operates four manufacturing plants in North Carolina and 66 sales centers in nine southeast states. He is a trustee of the William and Mary Endowment Association and a member of the President's Council.

a day-by-day report of the Texas Jack Round-up. When news is scarce, I'll quote parts of it as it is a picture of the West, both present and past. He also wrote that membership in the Association is open to all "who desire to keep alive the memory of the pioneers and first settlers of the early American West." On Jan. 8, Malvern is leaving for a two-month stay in Montego Bay, Jamaica, but plans to return in time for the spring Olde Guarde luncheon. All of you plan now to meet him there.

A Christmas card from John Branch (Dauba) Green contained a nostalgic letter about our youth, memories of the people and activities in the small village where we lived. He has enjoyed the spring Olde Guarde luncheons but hasn't been to Homecoming in about 10 years. Doesn't enjoy football now. Suppose it is because of his failing eyesight. Has to use "a big, thick reading glass" to read.

There are three reports on a sad note.

The daughter of Reba Dameron Thornburn wrote that her mother retired from teaching in 1968 and spent 12 years as a happy wife, mother and grandmother and was an active church member. For the past six years she has suffered from arteriosclerosis and resulting ailments. She remains at home with around-the-clock nursing care. She and her husband have five grandchildren. One is in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, one at the University of Virginia, one a respiratory therapist and two in high school. Both daughters followed in their mother's footsteps and are teachers.

News of Emma Pettit Marchant also came by way of a daughter, Emma Lou Martin '59, who wrote that her mother lived for 40 years in Mathews County where her husband was commonwealth attorney. Because of declining health, she was brought to live in Richmond with her daughter, Emma Lou, but in May a "fall required the care of a nursing home and she is now at Stratford Hall in Richmond." Emma also has two grandchildren who are W&M graduates.

From a daughter-in-law came the very sad news that Howard Gilliam, who owned the Stone Mountain Reporting Company, had passed away. His avocation had been wood carving (birds being his favorite) and furniture making. Pieces of both are owned by friends and his two sons. How wonderful it is that he left something he enjoyed for others to enjoy.

All of you plan to attend the next Olde Guarde luncheon. It will be great to meet again.

Class notes from Ed:

Betty and I were glad to welcome Frances Griffin Waters, Eleanor Williamson James, Albert Connel, Norris Halpern, Samuel Hurley and Harvey Trevilian back for the Olde Guarde luncheon on the Friday of the Homecoming weekend. Personally I thought we all looked very well for our years, and we enjoyed being together again; so much so that we are inviting all of you to join us for the annual Olde Guarde Day, May 1.

Thomas Pope and his wife, Amoretta, were back in his native Drewryville one day in November. His old home place is still standing and well kept by the present owners.

Bernice and I visited Fay LeCompte, our class poet, recently. He has completed sorting through his poems prior to having the best ones published in 1987. He and his wife, Cynthia, sent us a Christmas card.

We also received greetings from John and Mildred Slaughter, Sam and Betty Hurley and Dick and Ruth Jones. The Joneses told of celebrating their 50th anniversary last fall and their plans to attend Olde Guarde Day this spring.

I also received Christmas greetings from Truman Welling, who says he believes there is a relationship between keeping busy and good health. (I agree, Truman.) He states that he and his wife are still busy with the farm, though they are complaining about the encroachment of developers who destroy the open country in an unattractive manner. Last September they spent some time in Worcester, England, at a country home (converted to an inn) designed by Sir Christopher Wren. It was so much like the building at the College he felt as if he were sleeping in the Chapel. Thanks, Truman, for your interesting comments.

Let us pause for a moment of silence in memory of Paul Norton, a classmate who has been called home.

Now the rest of you who have not written for a long while, share some of your experiences with us. We will be delighted.

Notes from Betty:

Best wishes to all of you for everything good in 1987. Let's hope you will do many interesting things during this year and that you will let us hear about them.

We had Christmas messages from several of our classmates. Lucy Bosell Crymble sent a picture of her family taken at Lucy and Carter's 50th wedding anniversary this past spring. They have two children and six grandchildren. They are very proud of their daughter, the mother of three children, who has just received a fellowship to complete her Ph.D. in industrial engineering. She teaches at the University of Central Florida.

Louise White Johnson writes that she enjoyed the holidays with her daughter and sister in Raleigh, where her son and his family joined them. Louise keeps busy playing duplicate bridge and with family activities.

COLLEGE NAMES NEW ARTS AND SCIENCES DEAN

David J. Lutzer, professor and chairman of the Department of Mathematics and Statistics at Miami University of Ohio, has been named dean of the faculty of arts and sciences at William and Mary. Lutzer, 43, has chaired the Miami mathematics and statistics department since 1982, supervising more than 50 full-time faculty members on three campuses and 24 graduate assistants enrolled in several master's degree programs. Miami University is a state university with a selective admissions policy and a strong liberal arts tradition. A 1964 Rhodes scholar, Lutzer received his undergraduate degree in mathematics from Creighton University in Omaha, Neb., and a diploma in advanced mathematics in 1966 from Oxford University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Washington in 1970. Lutzer, who replaces Melvyn D. Schiavelli, who became provost of William and Mary last July 1, will assume his new duties July 1, 1987.

We were delighted to hear from Evelyn Steele Garrett, who mentioned that she keeps in touch with Eleanor Williamson James and Sallie Byrd Farmer Lawrence. Evelyn has 10 grandchildren and is hoping that at least one will matriculate at the College one of these days. Her husband, Earle Garrett, is among those who are still working — no retirement yet. More power to him.

Ann Messick Mogle and her husband had a great trip recently. They flew from Guayaquil, Ecuador, to the Galapagos Islands and then took a cruise ship to Santa Cruz Island. She mentioned that certain areas reminded her of the Dismal Swamp, where Professors Davis and Warren at the College took their biology students in the days of yore.

Tom Hart and Dorothy took a 11,300-mile trip around the United States this past summer. Included were a few days in Williamsburg and visits to the James River homes. He was delighted to find his old room in Monroe Hall, where he says he felt perfectly at home after an absence of many years.

Your reporter enjoyed her first meeting with the Olde Guarde Council in December, where she had a pleasant visit with Sarah Ann Everett Woolford, who is still hale and hearty.

We hope everyone will make at least one New Year's resolution, and that is to send some news to us for the next issue of the Gazette.

Dear Classmates:

Another new year and how lucky we are to have another start on a new one, each new day is an extra dividend.

First, let me make a correction from my last letter in regards to Ellyson Godwin Outten's address. I have a letter from him saying his permanent address is 218 Roma Road, Venice, FL 33595 and not Buxton, N.C. Ellyson says he is enjoying traveling, photography, music and attending Elderhostel meetings and his WWII division reunions. If all sounds good to me!

Homecoming was on a wet and dreary day. I made it to Williamsburg but did not go to the game. Classmates registering were: Alfred Armstrong, Ben Bruner, "Rip" Collins, Brooks George, Bill Renn, Jack Tuthill and Dr. Vernon Tillar.

I was in New York the first of December with my husband for a dental meeting and found out Brooks and Elizabeth George were staying in the same hotel. They were there on a theatre tour. Brooks was saluted recently for his work with the Greater Richmond Community Foundation in establishing a special fund in honor of Hays T. Watkins, CEO of the CSX Corporation. Under Mr. Watkins' leadership, CSX has done much to support educational and philanthropic endeavors. Brooks has been a leader in promoting the Richmond Symphony and many of the cultural organizations in Richmond.

A letter from Dr. Ralph Carbone says he is working with the federal government at the Office of Personnel Management (formerly the Civil Service Commission). He finished the School of Medicine in Boston in 1936 and spent five years in the Air Force, 1941 to 1946, and then did a residency in OB-GYN. at the Margaret Hague Maternity Hospital in Jersey City, N.J. After many years of practice, he joined the Food and Drug Administration in Washington.

Ralph has a son, John Stephen Carbone, who graduated from William and Mary in 1984. John is now in his third year at the University of Virginia School of Medicine. Ralph says he is looking forward to seeing more class of '32 news.

I recently saw Ben Bruner in Richmond, and all seems to be well with him.

Have a great year in '87.

Dear Classmates,

It was good to see our class so well represented at Homecoming '86. Larry and I attended the Olde Guarde luncheon and among classmates there were: Evelyn Maynard Harris, Williamsburg; Emil O. Johnson, Austin, Texas; Joe and Dagmar Turner, Scottsville, Va.; Helen Singer Dau, Williamsburg; and Frank Hall, Newport News.

Other class members who had signed in for Homecoming were: Lillian Carmine Sterling, Gloucester, Va.; Henry C. Land Jr., Alexandria, Va.; Frances Spindle Harris, Williamsburg; Edith Pope Howitz and Sarah Pope Dix, White Stone Gap, Va.; G. Ruffin Winfree, Richmond; W. Gordon Williamson, Petersburg, Va.; and Elizabeth Wiley Toll, Newport News, Va.

It was also great to see Bruce Stewart '27, Portsmouth, Va.; Art '25 and Mary Winder and Bill '28 and Mary Thompson of Virginia Beach; Lota Spence Reid '33, Emporia, Va.; and Alice Barnes Hardy '35 and her husband from Alexandria. Alice is a classmate of our mutual friend Harriet Council Mead, Orlando, Fla.

At the luncheon, we enjoyed sitting with our good friends from Norfolk — Kitty Blanton Seay; Dottie and Lee Smith; Dottie's roommate, Elizabeth Griffin Conkling '31 and her husband, Gerry, from Bethesda, Md.; and Elizabeth's sister, Frances Griffin Waters '30, Richmond, Va. The program was excellent. We particularly enjoyed the Botetourt Chamber

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT Society of the Alumni

APPLICATION DEADLINE EXTENDED

In an effort to broaden the depth of the candidate pool for the position of the Alumni Society's Executive Vice President, the deadline for applications has been extended to March 2, 1987. Refer to the position solicitation in the Alumni Gazette of October 1986 and November 1986 for position details. Applications and resumes should be sent to: Austin L. Roberts, III, Society of the Alumni, College of William and Mary, P. O. Box 60, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

House Notes

The Paschall Library has received a copy of SARAH THE DRAGON LADY, by Martha Bennett (Peggy) Wells Stiles '54. The book was published in 1986 by Macmillan Publishing Company and is one of a number of books by the author for young readers.

Yearbooks have been received from R. Harry Bennett '68 and from Virginia Armstrong McKinney '41.

ALUMNI ENTERTAIN SOCCER TEAM IN LAS VEGAS

The William and Mary men's soccer team visited Las Vegas, Nev., Oct. 11-12 for a tournament and was graciously entertained by a group of alumni in the area. The get-together was spearheaded by Phil '67 (standing at left in the William and Mary sweatshirt) and Jackie '70 (kneeling, front row second from right in the W&M sweatshirt) Arberg. Coach Al Albert '69 reported that the visit was successful and enjoyable for all of those who attended.

NATALIE BOYKINS '87 M.A.Ed. NAMED TOP VIRGINIA TEACHER

Natalie Boykins '87 M.A. Ed. has been named the 1987 Virginia Teacher of the Year by the Department of Education. Presently teaching at Bruton High School in Williamsburg, Mrs. Boykins was cited for "her record of achievement and dedication to teaching (that) sets a fine example for others in the profession." Mrs. Boykins' notebook presentation "clearly indicated her skills, dedication and ability to impart her knowledge to students and to inspire them with a love for learning," the department further noted.

Singers. (I do wish the Olde Guard ladies could help plan the luncheon menus.)

Received such a heart-warming letter from Frances Spindle Harris. She wrote that she was doing fine now and how much she appreciated all the good wishes of her many friends during last spring's ordeals.

It was good to hear from Frederick B. Hill Jr., Wilmington, Del. Fred is still very much involved in Big Brothers, both as a volunteer and as a board member. He has recently been named chairman of the Chem Vets, the retired chemistry group of the Delaware section of the American Chemical Society. Fred writes, "There are probably more retired chemists per 1,000 population here in the Wilmington area than any other place in the country." (You will remember Fred had a long and distinguished career with DuPont.) It was most interesting to learn that Fred was born and reared in Portsmouth, Va., and that the accounting firm, Frederick B. Hill and Company was established by his father. It was interesting to find that Bruce Stewart and Fred's brother, John Hill, are Portsmouth neighbors.

It is always exciting to hear from Faith Bugbee Vogel, San Rafael, Calif. Faith and Fred were in England last summer. Faith says they especially enjoyed seeing the section of Westminster Abbey containing the Stone of Scone and the coronation chair as well as the tombs of the rulers of England since Henry VIII. They also enjoyed seeing the crown jewels in the Tower of London. While in Edinburgh, they attended the magnificent military tattoo with all the bands and dancers. They returned, at the end of November, from a trip to Hawaii where their granddaughter is stationed on Navy duty. With her parents, they visited the Polynesian Culture Center, which, Fay writes, is sponsored by Brigham Young University to give jobs to their students. They found it exciting to see the catamarans as well as to ride in one. It was there that they attended one of the best shows they had ever seen. Every seat in the large auditorium was filled. There were at least 100 participants in gorgeous costumes in the dances. The program also featured an amazing fire-throwing act. Faith says, "This is a 'must-see' treat for those visiting Hawaii."

Ruth Proudman Bierman, Piqua, Ohio, wrote that she and Dave have had another wonderful and busy year in retirement. They spent Christmas '85 in California and a long weekend in Jan. '86 in Williamsburg helping her brother and his wife celebrate an anniversary. They were joined by her sister, Alice '30. "Our college loyalties are a bit divided just now because of having a granddaughter at Clemson University," Ruth writes. It was back to Ohio for a brief check on ice and snow before going to Punta Gorda, Fla., to spend March and April where they can play tennis, one of their favorite activities. Then it was back to Ohio and their summer home on the lake where they swim, race their sailboat and visit with friends and relatives. "We find Ohio so green and beautiful in the summer that now, I guess, I am a confirmed Buckeye," Ruth confides.

A nice note came from Virginia Horton Beckett, Clearwater, Fla. She and husband, Don, were unable to make a planned trip to spend several weeks with family in Virginia, which was to have included a visit to Williamsburg in July. Enjoyed your pretty, hand-designed card, Virginia. Hope your mailing-list problems will be resolved and that this will be a happy year.

Donald Gordon wrote from University Park, Md., to say that he and Norma were enjoying attending classes at the University of Maryland, where they were both so long employed, and attending concerts, opera and the ballet in Washington. Plans for a trip to Russia last spring had to be canceled because of events at Chernobyl. Instead they bought Eurail passes and visited a number of cities and mountains further west. At Christmastime they had a short visit with their elder daughter and her family in Santa Fe. In January, the Gordons plan to spend some time in London — a trip they have made and enjoyed at this time of year for the past several years. Thanks, Donald, we hope that you two will have another happy and busy year.

Nancy and Lit Upshur celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Oct. 19. Lit was busy during November with weekly practices for his four tap-dance performances in the Joy Fund program. This was his sixth consecutive year of participation in this annual program sponsored by the Norfolk newspapers. Lit was recently named chairman of the newly formed Men's Forum, a senior member luncheon program at the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club. Best anniversary wishes to Nancy and Lit!

And another delightful letter came from Mary Hunter Talman Lamb, Petersburg, Va. The Lambs and one of their daughters gave a cocktail party for Becky Vaughan '69 who was recently married. We were happy to hear that husband Pat's health was greatly improved. Mary Hunter sends her best wishes to all the class.

Anne Pharr Goodykoontz, Louisville, Ky., writes that the year just past has been a busy and happy "family year" for her and for Jack. Their eighth grandchild arrived! Jack officiated at the wedding of their daughter Carol in Dallas. They had a grand reunion with all of the members of her brother's family at Myrtle Beach, S.C., in September, and in December welcomed the newlyweds with a reception to meet their Louisville friends.

The next two notes were forwarded from the Alumni Office. Sarah Pope Dix wrote that she and Edith Pope Howitz do volunteer work at a nursing home in White Stone, Va. — Edith on Mondays and Sarah on Fridays. "You should see people's faces when they discover there are two of us. It is still fun to be twins."

Winifred Cory Jobbins, Howey-in-the-Hills, Fla., spent Thanksgiving in Highlands, N.C., then two weeks in Bermuda seeing the wife of husband Jim's William and Mary roommate. Christmas was spent in Kansas City with children and grandchildren. After another week spent in San Antonio, Winifred writes that she would "probably collapse at home — until someone suggests going somewhere else!"

Lucille Hurst Parrish, Kilmarnock, Va., writes that "our older grandson, Mark Sullivan, was graduated with distinction from Stanford University in June." He is a third-generation member of Phi Beta Kappa! His mother and their daughter, Sherrill '63, was Phi Beta Kappa as was his grandmother, Lucille. That's a great family record, Lucille! While on the West Coast for Mark's graduation this past summer, they added a tour of California. In Feb. '86, the Parrishes had a delightful sailing vacation in the Bahamas with their daughter, Sherry, and her husband.

Lucille writes that she sees Ada Kelley Hudnall frequently and runs into the Pope twins in Virginia's Nothern Neck where she and Harold retired 10 years ago. She saw Winnie Hall Proctor at Thanksgiving. "Winnie's son has a cottage near us on the Chesapeake Bay," Lucille added. She hopes to receive notice of the next Old Guard Day so that she and Harold can plan to attend.

It is always nice to hear from Huldah Dimmitt Goldsmith, Easton, Pa. We were sorry to learn of the hectic year they had spent and of John's health problems. It is good to know that he is recovering and feeling well again. Huldah writes that because of restricted physical activities, "John has spent a great deal of time recording scientific and historical tapes on Betamax . . . and I have spent a great deal of time in a darkened room, watching the results of his work!" The grandchildren have been a great joy — 10 in their combined families, as a result of their "marital merger" occurring nearly 11 years ago. Huldah writes of them all in her own delightful way, saying of the one named for her, who is constantly standing on her head, "I'm not sure I would recognize her with her feet on the ground and right side up!"

Millie Dickinson, Burnside, Ky., wrote that the summer had been so hot and dry that they had just stayed at home and enjoyed the lake. They did travel to Virginia in August for the wedding of their grandson, Shannon Hunt, who was named for Althea Hunt. Shannon is the archivist at Berea College — where he enjoys both the college and its location. The Dickinsons had a very lively holiday season with all of their family with them for a real Kentucky Christmas. Millie says she wishes that all of us could have seen the capitol, governor's mansion and other public buildings in Frankfort during the holidays. She said that she had never seen it so beautiful and her husband said, "You can tell Kentucky has a woman governor." The governor is Martha L. Collins, a good friend of theirs!

The Lippincotts were blessed by holiday visits with Larry's sister Jane and her husband on their return trip to Butler, Pa.; son Larry Jr. and family from Charlottesville and daughter Jane from Virginia Beach at Christmas; and sister Pat Updegrove '40, from Texas City, Texas, in late December.

Hope we'll see you all at the Olde Guard luncheon in the spring!

We are still discussing how much we enjoyed our 50th reunion last May. Louise Merkle Fritsch writes "My husband and I enjoyed every minute of our commencement weekend at William and Mary in May and surely appreciate all the hard work and personal attention the committee extended for the class of '36 and guests. My induction into the Olde Guard was a most memorable event."

Corajane Quarrier Parker tells of the trips she took in 1986: trip to Brazil, Argentina, Paraguay and Uruguay; family reunion in Jamaica; class of 1936, William and Mary 50th reunion in May; Christmas and New Year's cruise on the Vistafjord to the Virgin Islands, Curacao, Canal Zone, Costa Rica, Puerto San Lucas and Acapulco.

Three members of the '36 Olde Guard who signed in at Homecoming include: Charles Smetzer, Deltaville, Va.; Jimmy Svedge, Wakefield, Va.; and A. C. McCutcheon, Houston, Texas.

Even though you will read this letter in March, a large part of it was written in November while my memories of Homecoming were vivid and my enthusiasm high.

Friday was a cold but beautiful day on campus; hearing the 76-voice choir and observing the solemn Sunset Ceremony were impressive. The Alumni Dinner Dance has been up-dated. The room and food at the Lodge were delightful and the meeting and speeches were short and pertinent. A real plus was our hospitality suite for the class of '37 at our designated motel and many classmates came there.

On Saturday the class breakfast was attended by 20 — not bad for a non-reunion year. Our 50th reunion committee chairman, Bert Sheeran, introduced the members of the committee; Bob Dew, chairman of class gift fund; Bob Simpson, chairman of special gifts; and Lee Walsh, director, capital support, for the College. We have high hopes of meeting our goal of $200,000 for the Eminent Professor Program.

The cold, rainy day on Saturday made for a soggy parade and a disappointing football game, but the other events compensated for them.

When I checked in at the Alumni House tent on Friday, the following people had signed up: Horace Dyer, Harvey Shuler, Helene Stein Vogt, George Bunch, Bob Dew, Margaret Heatwole Lockwood, Bert and Bob Sheeran, Bill Arthur and Fran Jenkins Taylor. I never got back to the tent on Saturday, and I'm sure I missed others.

Here is news from some mini-conversations, Homecoming style: Horace Dyer, our class president, arrived early in Williamsburg and straightened out some snafus about our hospitality suite. He lives almost completely in his mountain home at Banner Elk, N.C., since his mother died in Martinsville last year, and now he is free to join more fully in class and College activities.

Harvey Shuler still divides his time between Hilton Head in the winter and Upper Michigan in summer.

Peggy Heatwole Lockwood has had articles published in several magazines and now has an article about mental health under contract to Ladies Home Journal. Her stay in Eastern State Hospital changed her way of thinking, she says. "The thinking I'm referring to is not the kind you did in college or the result of college, but the kind of thinking that deals with behavior and attitudes."

Bob Simpson, who is doing such a great job as our special gifts chairman, was surrounded with lovely ladies of his family at the dinner dance — his wife, Millie, his daughter-in-law Ann Meade (a director of the Society of Alumni) and his granddaughter Ann Darby Simpson, a senior at the College.

Fran Jenkins Taylor still is busy as a librarian at her church in Richmond.

Mollie Waters Christie is teaching two Bible classes at her church in Brevard, N.C.

The cold weather on Friday kept Bert Capps Sheeran from playing tennis in the alumni tournament, although she usually represents us very well.

Mildred Albee Babb is as involved as ever in bell choir and little theater.

Helen Stein Vogt, pretty as ever, busily directed husband, Ed, in taking pictures of various groups at the breakfast. The Vogts live in Ft. Myers, Fla., when they are not off on a trip.

It was mentioned that Marian Spellman Baker is a great-grandmother! Any others of you great-grandparents out there?

I caught glimpses of Brad Gilbert and his wife, of "Boe" Royal and of Bill Arthur but didn't get to talk with them.

I was saddened, as I'm sure you all are, to learn from Mary Smith Bittinger '39 of the death of Dorothy Herron in Nov. 1985. Dot had been living in a rest home in Alexandria for some time.

RICHARD CARLING '64 NAMED PRESIDENT OF ROANOKE BANK

J. Richard Carling '64 has been named president and chief operating officer of Dominion Bank, N.A., in Roanoke. Mr. Carling was formerly senior executive vice president of the bank which has 66 offices serving 35 communities in southwestern Virginia. He has also been named to the Dominion Bank board of directors and its executive committee. He earned his M.B.A. from William and Mary in 1971.

HICKMAN'S DONATE NEW ALUMNI BAND JACKETS

Members of the Alumni Band look extra-spiffy now in the hunter green jackets donated by J.B. and Mildred Hickman of Williamsburg. Hickman, chairman of the Friends of the College for the past 10 years, owned Binn's Department Store in Williamsburg for many years and is now proprietor of J.B. Hickman Men's Shop Limited in Denbigh. The Alumni Band performs at Homecoming every fall. Incorporated last year, the Alumni Band Organization raises scholarship money for the William and Mary student band. Hickman is flanked here by James Anthony '52, Alumni Band drill master, and Mary Ellen Campbell '64, Alumni Band president.

From Tom Crowson in Rock Hill, S.C., "Retirement has been very rewarding for me and Mrs. C. Somehow I still manage to write history and travel constantly. My latest is The Winthrop Story. It attempts to tell the history of Winthrop College and its unique role in the social, political and economic development of the Palmetto State." He added in a postscript, referring to our location in Lancaster County, Pa.: "We are based in York County with Chester and Lancaster counties for neighbors. Early settlers here came via your Pennsylvania counties." Interesting, and it's good to have a history expert to make us aware of such facts.

Our military expert, Cmdr. Wilbur Y. Morton, USN (Ret.), has recently completed one year as commander of Space Coast Area Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars. It is "an organization dedicated to serving under God our country and our fellow man with no pay for any activity but service."

Last fall Wilbur sent me a copy of the chapter newsletter, and I'll repeat for you the accomplishments of Wilbur's term in the words of the officer who succeeded him. "The annual report of CDR Morton, our immediate past commander, is in this newsletter, but I would like to add a few words to stress his distinguished service in guiding us this past year. Our membership increased 10 percent. Our annual massing of the colors under the able leadership of CDR Morton . . . also built up our Youth Leadership Conference support to quadruple the level of the previous year."

In addition Wilbur received two certificates of appreciation, one for distinguished leadership of the most innovative chapter from MOWW Department of Florida North and one from the Military Order Region III Commander. You surely are making a great contribution during retirement, Wilbur, and we thank you for sharing the news of these honors with us. We civilians will be able to congratulate our Navy commander in person in 1988, since he writes that he plans to attend our 50th reunion.

May Fielder Haven is not only back in the William and Mary fold, but she's contributing mightily, as we would expect. She wrote last October: "Great news! The Los Angeles Chapter of the Alumni Association is being revived. I'm told some 400 of the faithful have indicated an interest. Our main problem is the distance, despite the freeways, that we need to cover to get together."

A nucleus of 14 willing to accept responsibility for organization met, and May was elected secretary of pro-tem slate of officers. "The only other person on the list of the eager from 1938 is Doris Froehner Joslyn, who couldn't be there, but I hope to see her at the next meeting. She lives just over in Pasadena, less than 10 miles away. What a flood of memories! I took my 1938 yearbook, which the rest there seemed to treat like something from the Middle Ages. I think they were really surprised to find that the oldest grad among them (1944 was the next class in sequence represented) was still ambulatory!"

Another class letter will be in the May issue. Until then, keep planning for our 50th reunion on May 13-15, 1988.

I'm quite overwhelmed this morning by the amount of news I have for my letter today. Some is a bit dated, having arrived just after the last deadline, but it's still news!

In October, en route to New Orleans, we stopped in Emory, Va., on a chance of saying hi to Jean Bratton. She had just arrived home two hours before from five wonderful weeks in Europe, during part of which she attended an Elderhostel with Gwen Evans Wood '39 in England.

I received two thoughtful letters in November. Al Alley's concerned mostly the late date of Homecoming and the fact that weather in November is too "iffy" to drive east. I know Al will be delighted, and others as well, to learn that in '87 the date will be Oct. 23-24.

Mary Holmes Hall wrote to send her best to those attending Homecoming. She and Bud were on Cape Cod in September for a couple of weeks. Billie, her twin, and her daughter, Susan, were there also so they had a family reunion. En route home they stopped at Plymouth, Mass., and also toured Plymouth Plantation — a most interesting spot — also Lexington, Concord, etc. In October they went to Bud's Homecoming at Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa., and visited with her sister, Billie, at New Castle, Pa.

Homecoming was a fun weekend in spite of the rain of Saturday. We missed the parade on that account, but I sat through one half of the game. Bob "Pinkie" Newton "weathered" it with me when Frank left for cover.

The class dinner was well attended. Here is a list of the people who were around for all or part of the weekend: Of course Jack and Ann Garrett for we wouldn't have a Homecoming without them. Virginia Garrett, Eldon and Louise Nuernberger, Nils and Gervais Brekke, Kitty and "Tweedy" Bryant, "Jimmie" and Bill St. John, Lucille Harkness, Sandra and Mac Trotter, Janet and Al Chestnut, Maureen and Charlie Quittmeyer, Lil and Bill Amburgey, Millie Shepherd Sanderhoff, Ruth Ann and Bill Mahood, Marilyn and Charlie Roberts, Harriet and Jack Purtil, Frank Cuseo, Betty and Walt Zable, T. and Leah Waller, Carolyn Lusardi and Ed and Dinny Wetter.

From the Alumni Office:

Gervais and Nils Brekke enjoy having their three children and three grandchildren live in Northern Virginia. This past year their travels were confined to treks from Key West to Prince Edward Island by land and to cruises on the Chesapeake Bay aboard Odin, their sailboat.

I received two news releases from the Alumni Office:

No. 1: WASA and WHDG-FM were presented a special award for years of distinguished service to broadcasting by the Broadcast Pioneers, Washington area chapter, at a recent awards banquet held at the Kenwood Country Club, Bethesda, Md. Virginia Pate Wetter and Barbara Pate Glacel '70 accepted the award on behalf of the Chesapeake Broadcasting Corporation.

No. 2: Virginia Pate Wetter of WASA and WHDG-FM has been elected to the Board of the Intercommunity Telecommunications Project (ITP), which is located in Silver Spring, Md. The Director of ITP is Father John Geaney, C.S.P. ITP was started by the Paulist Fathers three years ago. Its purpose is to unite religious communities through the telecommunications ministry. It has created Counterpoint and Sound and Sense for radio and Share the Word for television.

Our congratulations, Dinny, we're proud of you!

Helen Vince Seay reports that she has four grandsons — "not old enough for William and Mary yet."

Carlton Laing now has a grandson at William and Mary: Ralph Alexander Elmore III (Alex) '90, whose parents, Nancy Laing Elmore and R. A. Elmore II, went to the College. Carl, I am forwarding on to the Alumni Office your notice of Bernie Ransome's death for the obituary column.

Frances Wagener Read had two marvelous trips this past year — to Alaska last spring and to the Alps area of Europe this fall. She says she's been bitten by the "travel bug"! She's still doing volunteer docent work in historical Alexandria and the Marine Corps Museum in the Navy Yard.

I'm sorry I can't include a copy of the write-up from the Washington Post about Frank Raflo who resigned from the Loudoun County Board of Supervisors, effective Dec. 15, marking the end of an era. "During his career, which started in Leesburg town politics, Raflo has been embroiled in many of Loudoun's most bitter disputes, from attempting to control growth to opposing a political extremist who moved to the Leesburg area three years ago.

"Raflo said heart surgery in September will force him to leave the Leesburg District board seat that he has held since 1972. 'My physical recovery from bypass surgery seems to be continuing at a satisfactory pace, but I do not feel that I can continue to commit the same degree of time and effort to the job as I have in the past,' he said, 'and to do less would, I feel, violate the trust the voters placed in electing me.

"The announcement at the board meeting was greeted with a standing ovation and a shower of bipartisan praise, a contrast to the spirited, usually colorful, sparring that marked much of Raflo's career.

"I'm a troublemaker," agreed Raflo. "Before you can make the donkey move, you've got to kick his rear." "One reason for his winning average is his offbeat yet engaging personal style. "If I have any single ability, it is the ability to communicate," he said.

My thanks for all the warm Christmas greetings I've received, and I pass along their messages and/or news:

Al Alley has duties that keep him busy at St. James' Mission, Lincoln, as well as being a member of the diocesan executive council and dean of the Summit Deanery. They did not take a real vacation this year but did get in the the annual trip to Santa Barbara for the Episcopal Chaplains' Conference.

Son, Bill, has signed a contract in Hagen, Germany, singing support roles and chorus with the Opera Theatre there. Hagen is in the Cologne-Dusseldorf area. They are happy that Bill is starting a professional career, and they may try to take a trip next spring or fall to see him and tour parts of Europe they have not visited.

Ginny Allen's poetry is delightful about their doings, the house they bought in Palm Desert, Calif., and their new granddaughter. Also loved the picture of Ginny and Scrib with grandchildren Nicholas and Alexandra.

"Cookie" Carson reports that all their (his and hers) "chicks" are fine and ditto their 12 grandchildren. "Casey" (Caldwell) had his second cataract operation in February and a week later had his third — the first on his right went awry. Cookie is scheduled for mid-January for some surgery if she doesn't chicken out. Do hope all goes well, Cookie! She kicked the nicotine gum habit and hasn't touched a cigarette in two years — "the habit is dormant but NOT the urge." Congratulations anyway!

Mary and Bud Hall are looking forward to their annual Naples, Fla., visit in February and March. They're planning to go to Alaska in June.

Sally Bell Wainwright says she and Thea "plug along," and she's still working four days a week because she enjoys it.

Jean Bratton wrote that since she saw us she's been up to New York to visit her daughter, Chris, and husband where they went to the opera, museums, etc. She was then getting ready to leave for Nebraska to spend Christmas with daughter, Anne.

Hope Hunt White had a short visit with Jane Harden Hanson '42 in September when Jane was getting therapy for a broken elbow. Hope and Gene want to get back to William and Mary for a reunion another year.

Bobbie Milligan Molyneux has a new grandson, and he's made her Christmas quite exciting. This is her son's first, and daughter, Sue, has four boys, so it is busy and fun. She is secretary for their Red Cross Chapter, volunteer at the hospital and plays bridge once a week, so she keeps busy. She's rented a condo for the month of March in Port St. Lucie, so she'll get to see her old friends and enjoy that Florida sunshine.

Rosa Ellis Long wrote that Ed's health forced them to cancel a trip to England to visit friends and also a fall foliage tour of Vermont with their Museum of Science friends. She did go to the National Cathedral last January for the "enthronement" of P. B. Browning and took the opportunity to take a quick look at the exhibit at the art gallery of "The Treasure Houses of Britain." That plus the service presenting the Hymnal 1982 to Bishop Allin made quite a weekend! Back home in Buffalo she was delegate to the western N.Y. convention to elect the bishop coadjutor and thereby had to miss a high school reunion in Richmond, Va. "Life seems to be one big conflict on my calendar."

A note from Len Owen says they have not been south too often lately. A quick trip to Kenbridge, Va., in September to visit his sister was the only trip since Homecoming 1985. He's still busy volunteering, keeping up with grandchildren and playing golf when weather permits. A granddaughter graduates from Elizabethtown (Pa.) College in May '87. A grandson has been accepted already by several schools for fall '87. He wants to study chemical or mechanical engineering so he has a big choice to make.

Frank and I had a nice Christmas in Richmond with both our daughters and four grandchildren. Come April we are leaving for a visit to Holland and England; my sister, Jeanette, is going with us.

Greetings, classmates of 1942, and bear with me on my initial venture in writing of a newsletter. After volunteering to do this I began to wonder if it was such a good idea. However, I've received so many great letters that my job has been made easier and it's been wonderful hearing from you.

Bette Smith Elliott and I had lost contact for a few years so it was a pleasure to hear from her. Bette has recently retired as president of her public relations firm, but she is still doing freelance writing. Her most recent editing job was for an access travel book for disabled people, which entailed surveying 300 vacation and travel sites for accessibility and three years of studying and compiling. This book is the most comprehensive of its kind in the country and Bette says that a free copy can be obtained by writing to her at P.O. Box 10892, Raleigh, NC 27605. It sounds like an invaluable reference book.

WILLIAM AND MARY CHOIR ANNOUNCES SPRING TOUR

The William and Mary Choir will perform in Virginia, New Jersey and New York in March. The spring tour begins Sunday, March 1, at Providence Baptist Church in Ordinary, Va., at 6:30 p.m. Other performances scheduled are: St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Orange, Va., Thursday, March 19, 8 p.m.; New Providence Presbyterian Church, New Providence, N.J., Friday, March 20, 8 p.m.; The Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York City, Sunday, March 22, 10:30 a.m.; Southampton High School, Southampton, Long Island, Sunday, March 22, 8 p.m.; Columbia Baptist Church, Va., Monday, March 23, 8 p.m. Members of the Northern New Jersey Chapter interested in helping with the choir are asked to contact Barbara Wheeler, 201-277-2938.

Bette was in Cape May, N.J., before Christmas with the local Raleigh Dickens Club for a Victorian Christmas celebration. Next summer the same club will be traveling to London to see famous sites from English literature. She is also working on a B.A. in English literature. Her daughter is a sculptor and teacher in Chapel Hill, and her son is a writer who teaches in the English department at North Carolina State. It leaves me breathless to think of such energy!

A Christmas letter from Jane Harden Hanson brought news of her family and their activities. Tim celebrated a milestone birthday in December, but nothing slows Tim down. Jane had the painful experience of a broken elbow in August, but it is healing now and, as with all misadventure, came lessons in patience and adaptations. Their daughter Kim and her husband live in Kentucky where Kim is director of development and Jeff is vice president and academic dean of the community college of the University of Kentucky at Hazard. Daughter Jenny lives on a farm and enjoys working with her horses.

Virginia Smith Strange wrote from the lovely city of Annapolis, Md., where she and Tom have lived and put down roots. Their two children and five grandchildren live nearby. Sounds like the best of all possible worlds.

Virginia Gould Schwenke and her husband, Ray, left the day after Thanksgiving for a six-week tour of Kenya and a visit with a son and his wife who are architects in Nairobi, an enviable trip that I hope we hear more about.

Mildred Sheffield Stanger reports that she is operating her interior design firm at a new waterfront location in Norfolk, Va., and still spending each July and August in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., where her husband is director of the New York State School of Orchestral Studies, housed at Skidmore.

A letter dated Aug. 1986 from Annette Warren Sirmon states that she has been retired for a year and has enjoyed a trip to Europe and is looking forward to a trip to Alaska next summer since she worked in Juneau years ago. She also plans to get involved with volunteer work with children through her local social service agency, an area in which she worked for over 40 years. In 1985 she went to Homecoming with Emalee Ewing Durbin and Virginia Welch Phillips. Emalee lives in Oregon, but frequently visits her mother in Virginia. Annette has served the College as class agent. I hope for more such newsy letters from Annette.

Margaret Kelly Dunham is still president of A.A.R.P. and is also chairman of the class of 1942 reunion in the fall of 1987. And, folks, let's try to make it to Homecoming along with Natalie Rogers Mabry who hopes to be there and have the grandest 45th celebration ever.

Eleanor Ely Mackey Ferguson and her husband have recently moved into a beautiful new retirement village, which they like very much and will soon have an apartment there. Her address is 1930 Cliffside Drive, State College, PA 16801. Anyone living or traveling near State College might like to call or visit.

Don Axon retired at the end of 1984 after 31 years with Ford and now has time to pursue his interests in Italian language, art, history and yoga. Like all of us who are retired, Donald is doing as much traveling as possible.

Joyce Mathes Malcolm reports that Betsy Wakeman Servell, who is president of the Weavers Guild of Southern California, gave a weaving demonstration for the Escondido Historical Society in October. I want to give a salute to Joyce for her years of reporting the class news to us. She did a great job and will be a hard act to follow.

William W. Granger Jr. was elected as a trustee of Virginia Wesleyan College last spring in Roanoke at the Virginia annual conference of the United Methodist Church. In March 1984 William retired as vice chairman and retired as a director in June 1984 from the International Food Division of Beatrice Companies, Inc. He was called back into service by Beatrice and was elected chairman of the board and chief executive officer in Aug. 1985, serving in that position in Chicago. In April 1986 he retired again and returned to Norfolk. He is a member of Park Place United Methodist Church and the Downtown Kiwanis Club of Norfolk. It sounds as though William is not the retiring type and I expect we will hear more about his activities.

I'll sneak in a little autobiography of my own. My husband and I have lived in southwest Ohio for over 33 years because he was chairman of the architecture department at Miami University and retired last year. I am a docent at the Miami University Art Museum, am active with the League of Women Voters and with a community theatre. We've been traveling also and, in fact, we are leaving for a week in the Caribbean on Jan. 3.

Remember, classmates, letters are the stuff that makes the days of the class reporters. So, keep those cards and letters coming and I'll check my mail box every day! Come on, Trudi, Patty, Tony, Nancy and all. The next deadline for 1942 class news is mid-March and I hope to have lots of news to report. You can send mail to the Alumni Office in Williamsburg if you lose my address, but write, write, write.

An enthusiastic note from Sue Whitehead Byars brings us up-to-date and has some fine suggestions. "I am happy to be alive! Still active in the D.A.R., Col. Dames XVIIIC, and serve on the local Head Start Policy Council. Surviving open heart for aortic valve was definitely a challenge!

"Would enjoy a weekend campus as projected last June, which was canceled by W&M.

"My three daughters are all doing well and live in Mobile, Pensacola and Atlanta. They are all college graduates and include a speech therapist, a teacher of the learning disabled and a pediatric nurse. I have two grandsons and a granddaughter.

"My memories of the Homecoming celebration of the '30s can never be matched! There was a warm friendship and love prevalent, and the Brunswick stew was delicious! October is a better month than November for Homecoming it seems.

"It would be wonderful if W&M would include some class reunions inviting the Navy chaplains and Army ASTP, who were on campus during WWII. Also, for many of us, our classmates returned in '45, '46, '47 and '48 and are not listed with '44."

Don Ream of Bethesda, Md., gives us a fine report on Homecoming. "It was a sad and rainy day as far as the football game was concerned. However, there were several class of '44 who returned for the festivities.

"Anne Dobie Peebles, Rector of the College, was grand marshal of the parade.

WILLIAM M. HARRIS '53 JOINS ZAY & CO.

William M. Harris '53 has joined the executive search and management consulting firm of Thomas C. Zay and Company, Inc., in Atlanta, Ga. A former senior human resources officer of two major commercial banks, Harris will be engaged in assignments which reflect his varied management background.

Willard "Bill" Smith and his wife, Jane Spencer Smith '48, received the Alumni Medallion from the Society of the Alumni.

"Here is a partial list of the people I saw from the class of '44: Dorothy Agurk Edmonds, Jean Boyd Lacy, William Garland Clark, John S. Entwisle, Dixon L. Foster, Winifred Gill Geesey, Russel Gulick, Marilyn Miler Entwisle, Nancy Norris Foster, Anne Dobie Peebles, Harvey G. Pope, Katherine Rohn Tobish, William S. Smith, Lois Spratley Donald, Sunny Trumbo Williams, William O. Morris and Newman Paul Berlin.

"The Alumni Banquet returned to the Lodge on Friday under a new format that proved successful. There was dancing and cocktails, buffet dinner, half-hour meeting and dancing 'til midnight.

"The class of '44 and '45 hospitality room was not very successful in a non-reunion year. Very few people showed up."

William O. Morris, professor of law at West Virginia University, Morgantown, describes his lectures, travels and future plans. "On Nov. 7, 1986, I delivered the James P. Hollers Memorial Lectures at the University of Texas. These lectures are sponsored by the alumni of the University of Texas in honor of James P. Hollers, who was a president of the American Dental Association. The speakers are selected annually in recognition of scientific contributions.

"Will be at Homecoming this year. As we will be moving to Florida before next Homecoming, it may be my last one for a while.

"Hazel, my wife, and I had a great time this summer working and traveling in Japan and China. Finishing 40 years as a professor, I think it is time to quit."

My thanks to all the contributors to news of '44. Best wishes for the New Year.

Banner headlines should have read "'46 does it again!" From the prize-winning float, to the balloon-filled hospitality room, to the scrumptious banquet with such outstanding entertainment, to a perfect weekend that even typical Williamsburg weather didn't spoil. I am writing November news here in January for March reading. However, it should bring back some pleasant memories for those of us who were fortunate to be at Homecoming and perhaps inspire those who missed to plan on the next one!

Our long-distance members in attendance included: from Washington, Sue Claypool Vukich and Bob, who flew from Seattle for the occasion; B. J. Relph Samuel and Darrell who came from Fort Worth, Texas; Olive Anne Hasty Shelor and Ray flew to Roanoke and joined Bev Bose Deans and Fred for the ride to Williamsburg; Mary Baker Flynn, who does much volunteer and charity work and loves traveling to Mexico, came from Chicago; and Harry Carter from Dallas.

Ann Luetzenkirchen Cansler and Norman from Niceville, Fla., Marcia Levering Balzereit from Stuart, Fla., Jan Freer Scantlebury from Nashville. New England sent us Betty Cutshall Allman from Manchester, N.H., Dick McCracken and Marilli from Acton, Mass., and Doc Post from Torrington, Conn. Denver, Colo., sent us Marjorie Hill Seaman, and Fritz Zepht traveled from Rocky River, Ohio.

Of course, most of us come from closer to the scene of the action and those registered at the Alumni House were: Dick Baker, B. Jean Adams Truheart, Cecy Waddell Cunningham, Allen C. Tanner, Patty Wattles Robie, Martha Humbert Riley, Anne "Tony" Lester Kemmerer, Adina Allen, Betty Lawson Sallada, Donna Lepper Ware, Nancy Grube Williams, Dorothy Hammer, Harmon L. Hoffman, Jane Fessler Brick, Dink Engleby, Honey Maguire Werner, Patricia Curtis Clinkunbroomer, Edward F. Hill, Dale Clark, Doris Brandt Bauer, Bob and Kay Frances Seely, Jane Waddington, Bob Hopf, Jerrie Healy Clay (to whom we owe our gratitude for the delicious meal on Saturday night) and Allen, Peggy King Storminger, Bill Lucas, Gene Carr Dent and O. Bland Crowder who teaches government at Blue Stone Senior High School in Boydton, Va.

There are those of us who are fortunate to live close to such a great spot: Helen Strickler McConnell and Trist, Fred Frechette and Caroline, Pris Fuller Downs and Mac, Buck Barrett and your class reporter.

Thanks are due to so many for planning the spectacular event and our class is indeed fortunate to have such dedicated members. We can't forget the great job Ronnie King accomplished in keeping our hospitality room always on the ready. The float was a huge success and we appreciated those who participated — some have already been mentioned and we can't forget Mel Wright and Henry Shook, both from '47.

An extra special addition to our happy group were the daughters of Joyce Remsberg Shank: Sally Hull of Norfolk, Va., and Susan Shank of San Antonio. We were pleased to have them join us for the class banquet.

Mary Frances Thomas Propst had indicated she hoped to attend Homecoming from Boydton, Va. Sorry we missed you.

Mary Stuart Mason wrote that she has recently retired after 25 years with the Department of Education as supervisor of school libraries and textbook adoptions.

Many of those who began their college experience with us at William and Mary in 1942 were contacted concerning our 40th reunion. One such classmate is Dorothy Hoadley Burnett from Paradise Valley, Ariz., who wrote that distance kept her from being a very good alumna. Her husband, Jack, is semi-retired, and they have two grown daughters. She reports she is most content with life in Arizona, and nature makes up for the lack of cultural advantages she was used to in the East. She wished us well and asked to say "Hello."

Elise Leidheiser Maclay had hoped to join us, but as in so many instances, our hopes are not always realized.

Unfortunately not enough people completed and returned the questionnaire so we were not able to publish the Colonial Echo Re-Echo for the class. However, questionnaires will be mailed to those who have not yet responded, and we will publish and mail to all members of the class the completed Re-Echo. Please respond as soon as you have received your questionnaire so that we can share news of everyone.

My intention was to retire as reporter as of this reunion, but I was "persuaded" to please hold on, but with a new twist — from time to time we shall have a guest reporter, so you may anticipate a change in writing styles.

Please forgive me if I have omitted anyone who attended Homecoming; it definitely was not intentional. Dottie Fitzcharles Weber and Aubrey Mason of Lynchburg are last, but not least, in my lengthy list. It was wonderful seeing so many of you, and it took each one to make such a memorable occasion.

ADMISSIONS OFFICE PUBLISHES NEWSLETTERS FOR COUNSELORS AND PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

The William and Mary Admission Office is reaching out to prospective students via two publications, one for high school guidance counselors and another for 25,000 high school seniors. The Colonial Spectator, edited by Assistant Dean of Admission Virginia A. Carey '71, keeps counselors posted on admissions deadlines and schedules for campus tours and interviews. Campus Courier, written by two current students, fills in prospective students on campus activities and admissions information.

Since this letter is being written on the last day of the year, I would like to wish each and every one of you members of the class of 1948 a happy, healthy and satisfying 1987, the year during which we will celebrate our 39th anniversary as alumni of the College. When you read this message, we will be well into the new year. Perhaps your thoughts will turn to Homecoming and "Auld Lang Syne" in Williamsburg.

This afternoon Bill and I stopped by Jane Spencer and Bill Smith's Travelhost office in Richmond. In addition to wishing them a happy new year, I wanted to be sure that they had their "his" and "her" alumni medallions prominently displayed. They assured me that the medallions are featured most appropriately in their new house in the Richmond Fan District.

Early in December a note came from Bernard "Tut" Bartz in Fort Worth, Texas. Tut continues as director of tennis at the TCU Mary Potishman Lard Tennis Center as well as coach of the men's varsity tennis team, which is ranked #12 in the pre-season poll. His oldest son, "Tut" Jr., completed his master's degree in architecture in May. He is working with Komatsu and Associates in Fort Worth. Fred, the next oldest son, married in October and is a commercial photographer in Irving, Texas. Daughter, Angela, and her husband, Jim Allin, live in London with their eight-month-old baby daughter. The youngest son, Tom, is a junior at the University of Texas. It is good to have the news from our tennis playing classmate from Texas!

A Virginia Press Service clipping brings news of Joseph E. Sandlin, a native of Franklin and a 1948 graduate of William and Mary, who has been presented an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from Pembroke State University. He is only the third person in the history of the 100-year-old school to be accorded that honor.

Pictured on the front page of The Living Church, Sept. 21, 1986, a publication which has served the Episcopal Church for 107 years, is our classmate, The Reverend William Norgren, with the archbishop of Canterbury, who was the featured ecumenical guest at the 13th biennial convention of the Lutheran Church in America. The Reverend William Norgren is the ecumenical officer for the Episcopal Church.

A note from Katherine Rhodes Hodge says that she has retired from her job as counselor in guidance in the Clarence, N.Y., school system. She and husband, Ken, will be spending part of 1987 in Seven Lakes, Southern Pines, N.C., where they will be visited by their two grandsons and new granddaughter. They hope to find other William and Mary friends there, too. It is good to hear from you, Kay! I remember our education courses together.

Seeing so many of you at Homecoming and on various other occasions has been fun. Recently we had an opportunity to visit with Knox and Betty Lu Brann Ramsey at Indian Creek Country Club.

An interesting Christmas note came from Jim and Elaine Campton '49 Baker, who now reside in Williamsburg. Brodie and Ann Potterfield Gregory sent Christmas greetings from their new home in Mathews, Va.

We look forward to having lunch in Williamsburg on Saturday with Henry and Phyllis "Shu" Struse Shook, a happy conclusion to the Christmas holiday.

I received a welcome note from Harry Bailey, who is living in West Haven, Conn. Harry says he was honored to be elected to the Connecticut Gridiron Club Hall of Fame and that he still misses the W&M football team. He keeps in touch with Jack Gulley.

In June '86, Lois Short Raymond moved to Williamsburg.

Henry W. Ashton is still living in Tappahannock, Va., where he teaches at Essex High School and is varsity baseball coach and assistant varsity football coach.

Col. Kenneth Gutterman wrote that he retired from the U.S. Army last October. Let us know what your plans and activities are now, Ken.

Dr. Martin M. Herman writes from Detroit that he is still serving as associate dean of Wayne State University's College of Liberal Arts but hopes to return to the faculty and resume a career of teaching and scholarly activity. Marty sends best wishes to all of his friends from W&M.

Owen Taylor wrote in November that he was being transferred to England for several years and would be out of touch as he would not have a permanent address there.

In the spring of '87, our world travelers, Thomas M. Banks and wife, Lorraine, are returning to Europe to visit Austria, Germany and Holland. Tom says that the German he took at W&M really helps him in Europe! They will be driving across Austria visiting Lorraine's cousins who live along the Hungarian border. They plan to bring back 10 paintings to add to the collection in his Ava Gardner museum in North Carolina. They will then travel on to New Zealand and visit friends they met on their around-the-world trip in 1975-76.

Here is a nice, long note from Claude S. Nock Jr. and Anne Dunn Nock. "In July, Anne and I did considerable 'trading,' i.e., a home on Deal Island, Md., in the Chesapeake Bay for a villa on St. Simons Island off the Georgia coast — a purely waterman's community to a golfing and general resort area, the Skipjack sailboat-oyster-dredger for the off-shore shrimper. But there are similarities — we are surrounded by water, great expanse of wetlands and impressive histories. Why did we move? I suppose the year-round golfing, more moderate weather conditions and that we were free to do so. As a friend of ours says, 'Why not?'"

Both of our daughters are now married, the most recent in June, and our son and his bride-to-be have planned a June '87 wedding in Vienna, Va. All goes well for now, except for an imminent long-term relationship with a periodontist and a dental bridge engineer. Best regards and know we're just 12 miles off I-95."

Unfortunately, it's too late to tell you all to see William Barksdale's one-man show of photographs, "Images With Light," which ran for seven weeks last year at the New Jersey State Museum in Trenton. Bill was kind enough to send me the brochure that announced the event. Several photographs are shown in the brochure and are most impressive; I wish there was some way to share them with you.

Bill is still with Mercer County (New Jersey) Community College as coordinator of photography and associate professor of art and has been affiliated with Southampton, Brooklyn (CUNY) and Queens (CUNY) colleges. You might want to check out James Rose's Modern American Gardens (Reinhold 1967) photographs by William Barksdale. His work has also appeared in

W & M CONTINGENT ATTENDS ALUMNI WEDDING

The August wedding of Stephanie D. Wright '86 and John E. Denson Jr. '84 attracted a large number of William and Mary alumni. Shown standing, left to right, are: Jerry Begley '85, Beth Clancy '86, Drew Emery '86, Pat McParland '86, Larry Harrison '88, John Fielding '86, Heather Shaw '86, Jeannette Parker '86, Kris Deyerle '86, Mary Blake '87, Matt DeLuca '87. Sitting, left to right: Ed Chapman '86, Gary Cowling '84, Stephanie Wright Denson '86, John E. Denson Jr. '84, Vicki Ellis '86, Ted Stark '87, Lisa Struthers '86. Also attending were John Bedor '83, Karen Libucha '87 and William and Mary Dean of Admissions G. Gary Ripple and his wife, Susan.

Time, Popular Photography, Modern Photography, and Forbes as well as others.

As for my news, we still have one daughter suffering the after effects of last June's car accident; the other daughter became engaged in December. Alfred, around the edges of teaching chemistry at the University of Kansas, is busy singing for weddings, etc., and I have begun something new — giving workshops for my church — and possibly will "take the show on the road" this spring.

Run, do not walk, and put my name on your Christmas card list. That will keep you from putting off sending news, especially those of you who send out printed letters! I can promise you that I will have no criticism of this form of communication, unlike those familiar letters we see in the paper! Many thanks to those of you who wrote, please keep up the good work.

Not much news arrived from our classmates in the year-end Christmas cards. However, some of you have been great about dropping notes both to the Alumni Office and to me. Thank you most sincerely, and please keep it up!

As I start my fifth column, in my second year as class reporter, I am amazed that Marge Huff Brown performed this service for 30 years! Thank you again, Marge, for only now do I really appreciate your efforts!

And speaking of Marge, she is the only classmate I spoke with at Homecoming in November. I noticed that Penny Hutchinson Eure, Al Gross, Bud Jay and Ann Davis Sturm had all "signed in" but I never saw them. Probably because the rain kept me under cover most of the time! Marge and I literally ran into each other in the Hospitality House, and she promised to pass on some of the news she was getting. Perhaps it will be added to this column.

An Oct. 22, news release from T Cell Sciences, Inc., Cambridge, Mass., brings news that Jim Grant has been elected chairman and CEO of that corporation. Jim was formerly vice president of scientific development for CPC International (a Fourtune 100 food products corporation). He also served as deputy commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in Washington from 1969-72. After receiving his B.S. at the College, Jim received an M.B.A. from the Wharton School and did further study at Stanford University on a Ford Foundation fellowship. We congratulate you, Jim!

The Alumni Office sends me news that Harold Holland, now in Kalamazoo, Mich., received the Silver Beaver Award from the Boy Scouts of America in Feb. 1986, served as chairman of the Western Michigan University Foundation, 1985-86, and was elected to the board of trustees and chairman of capital campaign of Bargers Hospital in 1986. It is good to hear the varied activities of our classmates!

Peggy Orr Boggs and I still exchange Christmas letters, if not visits! She writes from her home in Coral Springs, Fla., that it is the first December in her 16 years there that her air conditioner is still running! She continues to work for the teachers who are administering the national Math and Science League competitions, complete with Apple computer on loan in her home for score input. Her leisure activities remain bowling, bridge and gardening, and she has traded reupholstering for furniture refinishing for the moment. Husband, Jim, went to Guatemala with the Accutrack for the Central American games and wants to go back. Daughters Nancy and Betsy are working and living close by in Florida.

I received a book review for Sarah the Dragon Lady published by Kirkus Children's Edition, N.Y.C., recently. It was delightful to read, and especially when I realized our own Peggy Wells Stiles was the author! Her note to me said, "Look Ma... I have a new book, number eight. I don't know which makes me feel older — being accused of WISDOM by a reviewer, or reading in your column that Cabby Tennis is a bishop." The review makes me want to go read it, Peggy!

And speaking of Cabel Tennis, I wrote of his election as bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware in my last column. I have received several news clippings since then and will add a few comments. After receiving his law degree at the College, Cabel served as a youth minister at St. John's Episcopal Church in Hampton, while practicing law. A law partner's mother gave him a copy of the book The Courage to Be by Paul Tillich, which, in Cabel's words "made sense." It "rekindled a calling," so he took his wife and three children to start seminary. He graduated from Virginia Theological Seminary with a Master of Divinity degree in 1964, having worked in many part-time jobs to support his family during that period. Following seminary, Cabel was associate rector for a year at St. John's in Portsmouth, and in 1965, he became associate rector, and then rector, at Trinity Church, Buffalo, N.Y. He became dean at St. Mark's Cathedral in Seattle, Wash., in 1972. When Cabel was taken by the search committee on a tour of his new location he felt that "coming to the Delmarva Peninsula is like a homecoming." Welcome back and congratulations!

Eleanor Kanter writes that she is serving as secretary for the Friends of the Public Library in Portsmouth and works with Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization. She has a poem coming out in January in the American Poetry Association anthology. Eleanor adds, "work on a novel keeps me busy, too... like having a tiger by the tail!" Be sure to let us know about your novel.

Betsy Skinner Barnes and husband, Ron '52, sent me one of their yearly Christmas letters, and it was so interesting I wish I had been on their list to receive the 31 previous ones! (Having this reporter job has a few rewards!) Their son Tim's wedding to Nanette Eckert of Huntington, Conn., was the year's highlight. Residents of Arizona, the Barnes journeyed east for the wedding and for visits with friends and relatives, including Judy Bell Skinner '56.

Betsy wrote that the wedding was "on a gorgeous June weekend, with the newlyweds leaving the church in a horse-drawn carriage... taking them to a Fitzgerald-like reception on the tent-covered lawn." In Arizona, Betsy works with her public affairs consulting business (moved from home into office in 1986) and Ron with his three human services organizations. Other events for 1986: Daughter Lisa received a master's from Denver University in social work and now works with Lutheran Social Services and United Way in Fort Collins.

A feature story from the Herald Progress of Ashland (Oct. 15, 1986) highlighted Stewart Foley Reid, who has worked as a funeral director there since 1969 and bought his own funeral home in Ashland in 1974. The story focused on Stewart's belief in the "importance of returning self to community" and highlighted his involvements and activities through the years. His activities range from having served as a president of the Virginia Funeral Directors, to serving as president of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce, to currently coordinating the local Meals on Wheels program through his church.

CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT RECEIVES AT&T GIFT

The chemistry department at William and Mary has received a gift of computer equipment from AT&T valued at over $200,000. The new equipment includes two 3B2/400 super microcomputers and 10 UNIX-PCs, according to department chairman Richard L. Kiefer. "It gives us the capability of networking throughout the department and enlarges our word-processing capabilities and will be particularly valuable to students for writing lab reports, applying computers in laboratory course work and using computers in research projects," said Dr. Kiefer.

Stewart and his staff act as resources for classes on death and dying taught at VCU and make films available to students and other groups. One of his most notable efforts has been forming a local support group for widowed persons called HOPE (Helping Other People with Empathy). He coordinates volunteers to drive cancer patients into Richmond hospitals for treatments and checkups and racked up over 2,000 miles of his own last year in this service. This sounds like a volunteer effort we might all think about.

As I write this article on New Year's Eve, I look forward to spending the weekend in Williamsburg. I wish I could see you ALL around Corner Greeks, in the old library, dodging cars on Duke of Gloucester. But all that has changed, and we have too. I am thankful this year for good health, and that is my wish for all our classmates for 1987!

The class of 1956 wears its years with grace and distinction. It was a proud moment looking around Homecoming weekend, to be reminded of what really special people tossed their tassels a mere 30 years ago.

We caught a glimpse of Dick Thompson Friday evening at the general class gathering. Dick's address is Delta, Ohio — a fair hike for the reunion. Perhaps having made the trip this time, you'll come back more often, stay longer.

Among those at the table for dinner Friday, Carolyn Mitchell, John and Nancy Harshburger Hummel, Ed and Belinda Owens Watkins and Bobbie Campbell Wenger. Barbara Lynn Wheeler was there, too, at the headtable as a salute to endless efforts for the alumnae in the Summit, N.J., area.

Saturday's rain hardly dampened the cheerful crowd at lunch time, including: Aubrey Fitzgerald, Fay Smith Schefer, "Skooky" Gideon Collins, Jean Wyckoff Gwaltney, Pat Wells McDonnell, Tribble King and roommate, Ginny von Breitenfeld Ferre.

Many others were there, but having only one night and a half day Saturday to get around, it was something of a challenge to "hey" everybody. Among those who registered at the tent: Bud Leeds, Tom and Mary Jo Rink, Bill Miranda, Gerhard Otten, Wilson and Margo Wood Sweeney, Jane Thompson Kaplan, Cass Washburne Rigby, Alice Jordan Viessmann, Nan Hilton Wentzel, Tom Burke, Brenda Korn's Cattell, Joan Marsh Myers, Dick Blanchard, Dot Chapman Sullivan, Meta Fooks Rickard, Tricia Kizzia Landen, Don Seiler, Martha Copenhagen Bates and Ginger Portney Klapp.

Other news: Don and Champe Summer-son Hyatt will open the Summerfield Inn, a "bed and breakfast" in Abingdon, Va. It's only 150 miles southwest of Roanoke and two blocks from the famous Barter Theatre. The inn season runs from April through October. There's complimentary sherry in the afternoon and a fine continental breakfast to start your day properly.

The board of trustees of the Artman Lutheran Home (Philadelphia area) has appointed Rev. Rinda Lu Grubbs Rogers to the position of chaplain at the home.

After 22 years with the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, Maurice Bradley Tonkin has retired to the good life in Richmond, Va. Welcome home, Friend.

Still active in the field of medicine, Gary Joachim specialized in infectious diseases. He wrote two papers in the past 18 months, consults at four hospitals and is program chairman for the Long Island Infectious Disease Society. Busy fellow that he is, Gary became a Fellow in the Jewish Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1984 (installed with Admiral Hyman Rickover).

Joy Schlafprizzi Thunstrom enclosed her usual chatty family letter with her Christmas card. Joy lives up to her name in light of many special challenges. A healthy new year for you and many more.

Will Molineux has been elected vice president of the Richmond chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi. A member of the chapter through much of its 30-year history, Will is in line to be chapter president in June 1987. Cheers.

Milt and Alice Glover Glasser journeyed to Belgium, Ghent and the Netherlands. As if that weren't enough, they spent their 30th anniversary in Scotland. On a quick trip to Williamsburg, the Glassers met Marcie Willis Lynn. Young Miltie Glasser is a graduate student at Loyola.

Bob and Chris Schlatter have added a couple of new family pictures to their mantle collection. Grandson, Robert Karl IV, and another daughter-in-law have joined the cheerful group.

Read somewhere: "Experience is knowing a lot of things you shouldn't do — any more."

Nancy F. Russell was recently named the lower school head of Nansemond Suffolk Academy, Suffolk, Va.

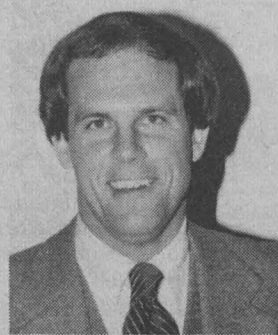

Six Pi Phis met at Virginia Beach in July for a reunion. Jackie Goode Legg, Nancy Moore Kiser and Judy Dickerson Bullock of our class enjoyed looking at old slides, pictures and annuals with Patty Jo Divers, Anne Brown Lanman and Carolyn Bacon of the class of '59.

Jackie, who lives in Newport News, Va., has been instrumental in organizing the William and Mary Football Parents' Club, which will begin functioning this September. Her son, Jonathan '89, is on the varsity football team.

Judy, who has been living in Atlanta for the past 20 years, is kept busy with her interests in music, writing and travel. Her husband, Bill, is a vice president with the Lockheed-Georgia Company, and they have one daughter, Caroline, 12.

Nancy has lived in the D.C. area for almost 10 years, where her husband, Danny, is a division manager with the C&P Telephone Company. They have three sons, the oldest of whom is a freshman at James Madison University.

Anne had just returned from Pensacola, where her son, Charlie, had received his commission as a Navy ensign.

LAYCOCK SIGNS FOUR-YEAR CONTRACT

Head football coach Jimmie Laycock '70, whose 1986 team had one of the best records in William and Mary history, has signed a new four-year contract. Laycock came to William and Mary from Clemson in 1980 and will enter his eighth season this year. A former Tribe quarterback, he led the team to a 9-3 won-lost record and a first-ever berth in the NCAA I-AA playoffs last fall. Athletic Director John Randolph '64, who announced the new contract, said, "Coach Laycock has done an outstanding job of building a strong program with high quality student-athletes. We look forward to his continued leadership of Tribe football."

Patty Jo has been with IBM for 26 years. (Remember the Bender Building?) She is currently with ISG Headquarters in Rockville, Md.

Carolyn works at the O'Donnell Foundation in Dallas. A year ago she was appointed to the Health Care Technology Advisory Council by the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

During their get-together they were able to contact Ann Perkins Charney. She lives in River Forest, Ill., and teaches political science at Rosary College. Her daughter, Sarah, is presently at American University in D.C.

Pat Glover graduated from Dartmouth Medical School in June and is now enjoying her residency at St. Vincent's Hospital in Worcester.

Robert W. Harrell Jr. of Suffolk, Va., vice chairman of the Virginia Community College System, was elected to be the board of the Association of Community College Trustees at the national convention in October. This is the first time that a representative from Virginia has been elected to the board.

Thomas Foster is president of Prospect Development, Inc., a marketing firm in Pittsburgh.

Marcia Hoffman Bures and family live in Thousand Oaks, Calif. Marcia's husband, Joe, is a vice president at NBC TV. They have two daughters, Jennifer, 14, and Diana, 11. Marcia has recently returned to doing TV commercials. The entire Bures family are golf addicts and play whenever they can.

Judy Case Falkenrath and her two children live in Falls Church, Va. Judy is teaching child care courses to people in centers and family day care homes.

Linda Lester Hagen and family continue to live in Washington State. Jim and Linda have four children. The two oldest are in college. John is in pre-engineering at the University of Washington, and Chuck is a freshman at Western Washington University. Linda has been working as an instructional aide for the Kent School District since last spring. She tells me that she will be at the great 25th reunion this fall, and Jim and their youngest child, Katie, will be coming too.

Mary Alice Adams Bett is also planning to come to Williamsburg for the great 25th reunion. She and Lee are still in Winter Park, Fla. Lee is still traveling the state of Florida for Liberty Mutual. Mary Alice is an administrative assistant at Central Florida's Girl Scout Council office. Kathy is a freshman at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Keith is a freshman at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

Jane Noble Lundy and her family live in Monterey, Calif. Jane and her husband, Rich, are still teaching. Mark, their oldest, is busy with college applications as well as school, Model UN, the radio station, water polo and swimming. Adam was chosen by the school to host Takoya Kojima and to return home with him to Kawasaki, Japan. This exchange was a marvelous experience for the entire family. Janie is in the eighth grade and is busy with student council, band and volleyball.

Jennifer Fuller DeNapoli and her family live in Silver Spring, Md. Jennifer is working as a secretary in Bishop Walker's office at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. Her husband, Tom, is in last year of his residency at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. They are waiting for their next assignment which will begin the summer of '87.

Dr. Thomas Sodeman has been appointed the chairman of the Department of Pathology at Texas Tech University's Health and Science Center in Lubbock, Texas.

Bill Allen wrote that he is still in the moving company business. He has two sons, Zack, 15, and Andrew, 12. He and his wife would welcome any friends from W&M who come to the San Francisco area.

William J. Bolton has been appointed vice president — finance of Carolina Steel Corporation. He and his wife, Nancy, have four children and live in the Greensboro, N.C., area.

Gayle Crabill Kerns wrote that she is not working at present. Waldon, her husband, is still with Virginia Tech. Her oldest, Laurie, gets her master's from Georgetown University. Kelly is a freshman at the University of Georgia. David is a sophomore in high school and is on the cross country team.

Dean Bettker received his doctorate in education — administration from USC in 1985. He is the superintendent of schools in Brentwood, Calif., since 1983. Dean lives in Walnut Creek, Calif.

James W. McGlothlin, president of United Coal Company, was appointed chairman of the National Coal Council. He was named by President Reagan to serve on the National Coal Council last year and is a member of the Board of Visitors of the College. He and his wife, Diane, live in Bristol, Tenn.

George Gravely is now completing 22 years of cross-cultural ministry in the Appalachia Region with marginally funded and structured clan-centered little clusters of Presbyterian-type Christians. He began in Alabama right after the Selma March, and continued in the mountains of West Virginia and in the Ohio Valley's industrial "Rust Bowl." He is active denominationally, ecumenically and secularly from Lions to Little League to community theatre to economic development to mental health. Susan Judkins Gravely '64 teaches math and science in a Catholic church school, serves on the board of the Sweet Adelines and Synodical Presbyterian Women, and has become an accomplished amateur church organist.

Joan Buhlmann resides in Lincoln, Nebr., where she is the vice president and the French section head at the University of Nebraska. She has just purchased a home for herself and one for her parents in Lincoln. She began playing the tenor gamba and has a wonderful English tenor viol, which was finished in July by Michael Plant in Sheffield. Joan played it in the Collegium Musicum concert in December. Joan has been awarded a research summer fellowship for 1987 that will allow her to examine books in Paris and Glasgow and attend an international conference in Glasgow.

Beth Poole Radford came to the Southwestern Virginia area to bring their son, Richard, to college in the fall. Richard is a freshman at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, Va.

Sandra Hancock Martin and David reside in New Jersey. Their oldest son, Todd, is a student at W&M and loves it. This means driving eight hours to Williamsburg for Sandra and David. So David is taking flying lessons hoping to make a change in time and scenery on their trips to Virginia. This will definitely come in handy now that their other son is applying to W&M, also. Drew is a high school senior this year, has traveled to Russia and will be going with his mother and 15 other students to Spain this April.

PROFESSORS, ALUMNUS AUTHOR NEW BOOK

Two William and Mary faculty members and a 1962 alumnus of the College are co-authors of a new book that explores the myth of prosperity and stability of Colonial Virginia. Written by Thad W. Tate and John E. Selby, professors of history at William and Mary, and Warren M. Billings '62, a professor of history at the University of New Orleans, Colonial Virginia: A History is the final volume in a bicentennial series, A History of the American Colonies in Thirteen Volumes published by KTO Press.

to some of the well-known restaurants in the nation, including Brennan's of New Orleans, the Manhattan Ocean Club, Post House and Smith & Wollensky of New York City. He has offices in Yorktown Heights, New Orleans and Los Angeles. With his wife, Margaret, and a partner, he set up an association of experts in food and wine called The Culinarians.

Most of you may already know that our very own Marshall Acuff is one of the chairpersons of the 1986-87 William and Mary Annual Fund Drive. Marshall has been associated with the New York firm of Smith Barney since 1966. He is senior vice president and a managing director of the firm. Marshall has continually worked in some capacity for the benefit of the College. He has served as co-chairman of the greater New York area in the Campaign for the College and is founder and current president of the Southern Connecticut Alumni Chapter. Keep up the good work, Marshall!

I was thrilled to receive so much correspondence from so many people for this issue. I appreciate all of you taking time out of your busy schedules to write some news of yourself and your family. For all of you who are not in this issue, and there are many of you, WRITE TO ME THIS YEAR—the year of the great 25th reunion. Are you making plans to come?

Dr. Stephen R. Mosier, associate vice president for international affairs at the University of Houston, has accepted appointment as the first director of the Office of Research Services at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. His appointment was effective Sept. 1.

Mosier had served at the University of Houston since 1983. From 1978 to 1983 he held positions at the National Science Foundation and was responsible for cooperative programs between the United States and Japan, France and Belgium. In addition, he was a member of the U.S.'s negotiating team for the 1979 U.S. - Japan energy agreement. Before joining the National Science Foundation in 1978, he worked for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, first as a study scientist and then as a project manager. He has a Ph.D. in physics from the University of Iowa.

Betty Smith Krikorian is project director for the pension and trust fund research project at the Boston University School of Law (Morin Center for Banking Law Studies).

Robert Elder is director of human resources for the DMS-10 division of Northern Telecom, Ltd., in Research Triangle Park, N.C. He is married to Candace Campbell who is a programmer for IBM in Research Triangle Park. They have two sons, Rob, 7, and Chris, 4.

John Toedtman of Cincinnati has just moved his school of music to an 18-room historic mansion. The school has 17 teachers and 450 students.

Charlotte Edmonds is doing freelance writing and editing in the Washington, D.C. area.

Sandra Tolbert Absalon was visiting her children this fall. Her 20-year-old son, John, is a lance corporal, U.S. Marine Corps, who just returned to Camp Pendleton, Calif., after a tour of duty in Okinawa, the Philippines and Tokyo. She attended Homecoming and visited her daughter, Laura, who is a sophomore at the College.

EDWARD IRISH APPOINTED DIRECTOR OF STUDENT FINANCIAL AID

Edward Irish, former associate director of student financial aid at Kent State University, has been named director of student financial aid at William and Mary. A member of the Kent State administration since 1984, he was director of financial aid at Ohio Wesleyan University from 1977 to 1984. He was also assistant to the dean of admissions there from 1981 to 1984. He had previously worked as director of financial aid at Georgia Southern College.

One of our classmates was omitted from the Sept. Alumni Gazette article, "What They Did Teach at Harvard Business School." Bob Pavey received his M.B.A. from Harvard in 1967. After graduating from the College with a B.S. in physics, Bob received a M.S. in metallurgical engineering from Columbia in 1965 prior to going to Harvard.

Bob has been active as a Harvard Business School alumnus, serving as president of the Cleveland alumni association and as a representative to the national alumni association for several years. Bob has been general partner of Morgenthaler Ventures, a nationally known venture-capital firm based in Cleveland, for 17 years. He is married to Patricia Lee.

An article about Helen Cam Walker, a professor of history at the College, appeared in the Daily Press in October. The article focused on activists in the '60s and their reflections in 1986. Cam noted that she doesn't think people of our generation have traded their youthful liberal convictions for yuppie aesthetics. She suggested that many former political activists remain socially concerned citizens and are simply finding new outlets for their activism.

While I was at Homecoming, I conversed with a couple of Cam's present students who were very enthusiastic about her classes, having lived in the Theta house with Cam, I remember particularly the thrill we all enjoyed when she made Phi Beta Kappa. It is gratifying to hear that her insight and intellectual gifts are being passed on to the sons and daughters of her classmates.

Speaking of Homecoming, while I was walking along Richmond Road, I ran into Jerry Gimmel and we had a good talk, principally about the picnic reunions Jerry and his wife have hosted for Sig Ep alumni from the classes of 1960-67 at their home in Gaithersburg, Md. The third one will be this July. Jerry runs a law firm of nine attorneys that handles a wide variety of cases. He remarked that what was most rewarding about the Sig Ep reunions was that the 17 fraternity brothers, after basic reminiscing, were able to enjoy one another's company as middle-aged adults as well as they had as college students. He welcomes alumni interested in attending.

Others from the class of '64 at Homecoming were Susan Roache Warner and Ray, Gene Birdsong Tongier and Max, Ed Horton and Heidi, Marynell Roberts and Steph Gordon, Dick Kern and Sharon Cosminsky, Pete Stout and Micki Leaf. I'm sure I missed others.

We went to Homecoming with Phil Van Kirk and Mary Van Lear and had a great weekend, but an eventful return when we discovered the Norfolk airport was not functioning. So we drove back to New Jersey in the compact car Phil Tutschek had rented, arriving home at 3 a.m. and getting up at 6 a.m. to go to work. Phil VanKirk had a 7:30 a.m. flight to Boston with son, Greg, to look at colleges. The Van Kirks' daughter, Larissa, is a sophomore at the College and they enjoyed seeing her and her friends during the weekend.

Homecoming 1986 was wet, wet and more wet! (Plus cold!) The rains made it hard to get around to see former friends, for everyone was trying to stay indoors and dry.

Cam Buchanan and I tried to contact all the Thetas and encourage each one to come to Williamsburg for the reunion.

There were 16 Thetas in our senior class. Cam and I contacted 12 of them and seven were at Homecoming. Our planned tailgate luncheon with each other and families became a piano bench luncheon at the Theta House.

Here's the info on those of us at Homecoming. Cam Buchanan is an obstetrician and gynecologist in Williamsburg. She has a beautiful new home on the James River and enjoys racing bikes.

Betty Gayle Sanford Kirk and Dave live in Newport News. Betty Gayle is a retired elementary school teacher, and Dave is vice president of James Institute, an outpatient drug rehabilitation program. Dave also set up Community Outreach, a substance abuse program for rural and suburban hospitals. Their daughter, Laura, is a freshman at Auburn University in Alabama and their son, Austin, is 15 years old.

Linda Arey is assistant director of public liaison for President Reagan. For Homecoming, Linda and her husband were guests of President Verkuil for breakfast and later sat in the presidential box for the football game. (That meant she stayed dry.) In November, Betty Gayle and Dave were Linda's guests at a White House briefing, where President Reagan addressed his staff and the press before his trip to Iceland. At the same meeting, they met Phylis Schlafley, chairman of the board of Eagle Forum.

Other Thetas at Homecoming: Jane Snead Ford teaches high school history in Fork Union. Her son is doing post-graduate work at Fork Union Military Academy on a baseball scholarship.

Penny Sanford Kidd lives in Williamsburg and teaches special education in York County. Her husband, Bob, is in the mortgage division of Heritage Savings and Loan and they have two daughters, Kirstin, 16, and Heather, 14.

Connie Hudson Harris and Bill live in Reston, and Connie works with a pre-school program. I stay busy tutoring high school math students and playing tennis. My daughter, Julie, is now 16 years old and Michael is 12.

Some news on Thetas who were not able to come to Homecoming. Nino Allen Shipp is a freelance convention and party planner in Memphis, Tenn. She is also president of a local theater group. Nino's husband, Charles, is an architect in Memphis, and they have two children, Hester, 12, and Charles, 6.

Bonnie Mayo Burnham taught high school Latin and Spanish the last four years in Boynton Beach, Fla. She has presently retired from teaching and is enjoying taking organ lessons. Her husband, Andy, is with IBM and they expect to be transferred in the near future — hoping to come back to Virginia.

Louise Thornton teaches government at Prince George High School and lives in Petersburg. Marty Miller Witherspoon teaches chemistry in her hometown of Abingdon. Her husband, Spoonie, teaches sociology at the local community college. They live with their daughter, Sarah, 5, in Marty's childhood home built in 1907. Besides keeping their 80-year-old house operational, Spoonie is restoring a 1952 steel-hulled cabin cruiser. For a short time, they dabbled in the restaurant business, having a 200-year-old tavern as their location.

Susan Sheffield really impressed me with her travels. She spent three months this fall touring Southeast Asia — a lot of it on foot! She was in Nepal for six weeks, Malaysia for four weeks and Thailand for two weeks. While in Nepal, she backpacked for 25 straight days into the Himalayas, going up 18,000 feet on Mt. Everest. She ate a lot of potatoes and rice at local tea houses during her trip. To support her travels, Shef managed two ski shops last year in Park City, Utah. She has been in Park City for 10 years.

ENTREPRENEURSHIP GRANT AWARDED TO COLLEGE

William and Mary has received a $9,097 planning grant from the Center for Innovative Technology to launch an entrepreneurship center to provide technical assistance and research to new business pioneers on the Virginia Peninsula. The 10-month grant will involve eight faculty members from three divisions of the College and from the Continuous Electron Beam Accelerator Facility (CEBAF) in Newport News.

Brigitte Schmidt wrote a thoroughly enjoyable letter, bringing me up-to-date on her life. She has lived in San Diego for 13 years, teaching German and English at several area colleges for a while. Recently, she completed her Ph.D. in German literature at the University of San Diego. Now Brigitte is in her first year of law school at the University of San Diego and finds that very demanding. She's the eternal student!

It was great seeing, talking to or hearing from almost all the Thetas. We did not locate Linda Gray Shilliday, Jeannie Swink O'Connors and Elaine Bannerman.

Burt Queen and his wife, Betsy Cherry '68, are living in Chicago, where Burt is vice president of Bank of America and Betsy teaches reading. They enjoy cross-country skiing and running, and Betsy is also interested in biking. Their children are Laura, 15, and Burt, 12.

Beth Distler Gaebe '68 and Dana were at Homecoming, but Dana spent the whole weekend in bed sick with a flu bug. That's not a fun way to spend Homecoming.

Betty Gayle Sanford Kirk supplied me with information on several classmates. She saw Lee Dixon at Homecoming, and he is working at the Pentagon. She also talked to Susan Romans, who has her own business, Romans Associates, in Denver, Colo. Betty Gayle has stayed in touch with Babs Dunaway Bowers and Mike, who live in Dallas, Texas, with their children, Anne and Susie. Babs works with Mike in their modular homes business.

Anne Askew Jones received her master's degree in social work from Virginia Commonwealth University in May 1985. Currently, she is a researcher, employed by the Virginia Department of Corrections. Anne had a paper published in the Sept. 1986 edition of Criminal Justice and Behavior. Anne's husband, Reggie, practices law in Richmond and they have a son, 16, and a daughter, 14.

Roy Cooper has lived for the past 10 years in the Minneapolis/St. Paul area. For the first nine years, he was employed by Control Data in the human resources area. This past July, Roy joined Xtal (pronounced "crystal") Corporation as director of operations. Roy and his family live in Burnsville, Minn.

Vicki Nuckols Kruse has been in the Chicago area (Naperville, Ill.) approximately 15 years with her husband, Joe, and son, Stuart, a chemical engineering major at Northwestern University. Vicki has been modeling for about five years and can be seen regularly in Land's End catalogues.

Marie Brewer Armstrong has been teaching senior high art for 16 years and lives in Stoney Creek, Md., near Baltimore.

Gary Williams has been Sussex County's Clerk of the Court since 1975. When he took office, the county's early records were kept in Richmond. Gary proceeded to have all the county's documents in Richmond returned to Sussex, and then he undertook the formidable task of indexing documents dating back to 1754. He has found this task to be a tremendous source of local history and one day would like to write a book on the history of Sussex. Gary is currently taking graduate courses in administration of justice at Virginia Commonwealth University and is also involved in the renovation of his family home, Chester, built in 1793.

Jimmy Johnson coaches cross country at Menchville High School in Newport News. He is the only cross country coach in the Peninsula District ever to win a state championship — and he has won two. Jimmy was recently elected cross country Coach of the Year by the Virginia State

SOCIETY BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Newly-elected member Carolyn Todd Schaubach '59, Norfolk, (seated, left), joined three other board members who were reelected to second three-year terms for a photograph at the February meeting of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. The reelected members are (standing, left to right) Jerry Van Voorhis '63 of Chatham, Va., and Charles L. Quittmeyer '40, Williamsburg, and (seated) Helen Thomson Stafford '48, Princeton, N.J. Also reelected to a second three-year term was Harriett L. Stanley '72 of New York City.

Coaches Association and was named District II cross country Coach of the Year in the nine-state Southeastern Region. He is department head for health, physical education and drivers education at Menchville and has been there 16 years. Jimmy's wife, the former Celia Curlee '65, is a librarian at Reservoir Middle School in Newport News. They have two children, Julie, 18, and Jamie, 16.

Larry Paffrath is an assistant principal at Denbigh High School in Newport News. He currently is a governor's representative for his Rotary district. His wife, the former Nora Morsch '68, is an associate vice president for professional services at Maryview Hospital in Portsmouth. Their children are Larry, 15, and Lisa, 13.

I saw Joann Batten Norris in the grocery store recently and we had a chance to talk. She teaches sixth-grade science and math at Dozier Middle School in Newport News. Joann enjoys refinishing furniture and made many eggshell ornaments for the holidays. She has a son, Robert, 18.

Betty Staton Hogan, her husband, Ray, and their four daughters spent Christmas with Lynn Efirid Burnet and her family in Niceville, Fla. Betty and her family first stopped by Disney World on their way to Lynn's. Lynn still owns a stichery shop and writes it's doing well. Her husband, Bob, will retire from the Air Force this summer, and he hopes to find a job in the Niceville area, so they won't have to move.

This is part of the people who registered at the Alumni House at Homecoming. I'll include the others in the next article: Linda Helfrich, Richmond; Spencer Timm, Sherborn, Mass.; Jeff Kelley, Sunrise, Fla.; Bill McCall, Hampton; Stephen Snell, Washington D.C.; Bart Watt, Germantown, Tenn.; Beryl Slayton Everett, Marietta, Ga.; Kay Whitfield, Virginia Beach; Judy Lockridge Warner, Virginia Beach; Bob Factor, Burlington, Mass.; Ed Shifman, Newton, Mass.

Also Grace "Gigi" Guin Schiff, San Diego, Calif.; Rona Ellen Martin, Douglasville, Pa.; Jim Bowdren, Rockville, Md.; Bizhan Zavnegar, Richmond; Ron Williams, Richmond; Steve Critchfield and Farmer Jeffries Critchfield, Atlanta, Ga.; Tom Blekick, Suffolk; Larry Paffrath, Newport News; Jeannie Williams, San Antonio, Texas; Cooper Pearce, Alexandria; Marie Brewer, Pasadena, Md.; Tom Armstrong, Pasadena, Md.; Mary Baker, Chevy Chase, Md.; Joy Cheatham Sibley, Herndon; Kathryn Ingram Allen; Jack Drew, Athens, Ga.; Keith Taylor, Fairfax; Dave Kern, Kingswood, Texas; Pat Patterson Westbrook, Richmond; and Bob Mooney, Richmond.

Also Elmer and Sue Rankin Hodge, Roanoke; Dana Gaebe, Seekonk, Mass.; Mary Lou Mays McIntyre, Woodbridge; Wilford Kale, Williamsburg; Ron Chambers, Tenafly, N.J.; T. C. Browne, Darien, Conn.; Susan Bunch Blanchard, New Haven, Conn.; Sally Barnett, Henderson, N.C.; Pat Patterson Riley, Summerville, S.C.; and Jack Knowles, Gaithersburg, Md.

Thank you to those who wrote answering my plea for news. I'd love to receive news from the rest of you, too. Please write.

In 1972 Edgar H. Willard graduated from West Virginia University with a degree in medicine. While there he became a member of Alpha Omega Alpha, an honorary medical society. He concluded his internal medicine residency in 1975 at Charlotte Memorial Hospital in Charlotte, N.C., and entered the U.S. Air Force. He was chief of medical services at Charleston Air Force Base. In 1977 he entered Emory University as a cardiology fellow and studied under Dr. J. Willis Hurst.

In 1979 Edgar began private practice in Winter Haven, Fla., at the Bond Clinic, a multispecialty, 25-physician group. In 1980 he was elected a fellow of the American College of Cardiology. In 1981 he was elected a fellow of the American College of Chest Physicians, and in 1986 he was elected a fellow of the American College of Physicians.

Edgar lives in Winter Haven with his wife of 16 years, Laverne. They have two boys, Zachary, 9, and Gar, 13. Edgar is active in community and medical-related organizations. He is the past president of the Heartland Division of the American Heart Association. He also served on the board of directors of the Florida affiliate of the American Heart Association. Edgar takes advantage of the opportunities of living in central Florida. He fishes, hunts, plays golf and tennis and goes scuba diving.

Bert Milling lives in Mobile, Ala., where he has been appointed U.S. Magistrate of the Southern District of Alabama. He graduated from the University of Alabama School of Law and served in the Army as a legal officer. He worked in the Mobile County District Attorney's office as a special assistant attorney general and assistant district attorney. Bert served as court referee for the Juvenile Division of the Circuit Court of Mobile and as counsel for the U.S. Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Security and Terrorism in Washington, D.C. Bert and his wife, Pris, have three children: Brooks, 17, Jeremy, 15, and Maran, 12. Pris works as a counselor for Save-A-Life, an alternative to abortion. The Millings would enjoy seeing classmates who are in the Mobile area.

Bert mentioned he talks to Jerry Masters who is an Alabama District Court Judge in Abbeville, Ala.

Ernie Ramos lives and practices optometry in Fullerton, Calif. After graduation Ernie served in the U.S. Army Medical Corps from which he retired as a captain in 1972. In 1976 he received a master's degree in learning disabilities from California State University in Fullerton. In 1980 he received a Doctor of Optometry and a B.S. in optometry from Southern California College of Optometry in Fullerton.

In 1980 Ernie began working on an A.A. in liberal studies from Fullerton Junior College and has over 100 credit hours. He tutors French and teaches tennis in his spare time.

Ernie mentioned that Jim Kane and Don Freeman are also O.D.'s in the Los Angeles area.

Pat Milliren quit the National Park Service and began graduate school in the fall of 1980. She received an M.S. in biology in 1983. She does proofreading and editing of manuscripts for a technical journal. In 1985 she purchased an old timber baron's house near Mt. Baker and began a bed-and-breakfast inn.

Robin Wood Mann is living in Okinawa where her husband, Sheldon, is chief of endodontics for the Air Force. Their son Christopher is in the ninth grade, son Eric is in the first grade, and daughter Melissa is in preschool. Robin is trying to squeeze her family into a 1,200-sq.-ft. house with two small closets. She's taking courses in Japanese conservation, gems and Japanese cooking.

WILLIAMSBURG RESIDENTS ESTABLISH WRITER-IN-RESIDENCE ENDOWMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shatz of Williamsburg and Lake Placid, N.Y., have made a bequest in their estate to establish the Frank and Jaroslava Shatz Writer-in-Residence Endowment at William and Mary. The endowment will support writers in exile from their native lands. Shatz, a native of Czechoslovakia, was imprisoned in a Nazi labor camp at age 18. He escaped and eventually became a foreign correspondent traveling across Europe. He and his wife came to the United States and settled first in Cleveland, Ohio, where Shatz edited a Hungarian newspaper, and later in Lake Placid and Williamsburg. Shatz said that the endowment should help exiled writers who need the opportunity to develop their ideas into books.

Charlie, a marketing manager for one of DuPont's electric businesses, are looking forward to their son's departure to college next year.

Judy Booker writes that she loves being back in Virginia after 18 years of living in Maryland, New Jersey and Texas. Judy is managing computer systems development with the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Company. Previously she worked for C&P and AT&T.

Joyce Hill Stoner has gone back to school to earn a Ph.D. in art history. She continues her job as director of the Wintthur art conservation program. Her musical, Mrs. Jack, which is about Isabella Stewart Gardner and Bernard Berenson, is being produced this winter.

Nancy Allen Kurtz has purchased her first home in Gaithersburg, Md., where she lives with her sons, Scott and Matthew. She is the assistant to the benefits administrator at Computer Data Systems, Inc., a nationwide computer consulting firm.

Carolyn Peery and her husband are enjoying Indonesia where they're working for the Ministry of Education and Culture on a teacher-training project. Gail Littlefield visited them last August.

Mike and Midge Ernst Madden live in New Jersey. Mike is an attorney in Haddonfield, and Midge is teaching at Camden County College. They have five children: Michael, and Melissa, 11, Lisa, 10, Christopher, 8, and David, 5.

Bob and Pat Woody '69 Belshe are on sabbatical from West Virginia for a year and living in Hampstead, England. I had a great Christmas letter from them and must quote an amusing two paragraphs.

Their year abroad began with a couple of days in Zurich, where Bob presented a review of his work on RS virus to a group of European physicians. Then on to London... "Arrival at Heathrow Airport was our first truly English experience. Our rental car would either hold all our luggage or all the kids, but not both. After some diplomacy, we were given a larger car, a Vauxall Astra L. Not being used to driving on the wrong side of the road or big city traffic or a stick shift in the LEFT HAND, the back seat soon learned to chant in unison 'think left, think left, look out, think left.' After five months of practice in our new used car, a 1982 Ford Escort 1.3L, things are slightly better....

"Our next experience was to learn the language. When daughter, Bonnie, orders chips, she is asking for french fries... when she wants potato chips she says, 'Crisps, please.' Cookies are called biscuits and biscuits are scones. And Pat soon learned that when you go to the dry cleaners you don't ask to have your pants cleaned... Pants are underwear and trousers fit over those! Cheers is a most useful word that fits all occasions."

While on his sabbatical, Bob is doing research on genetic engineering techniques to keep current with modern virology. Children, Bobby, 11, and Bonnie, 9, are enjoying their new school. Weekends they've had many wonderful experiences in London and environs, as well as traveling to Scotland and Normandy, France and Munich.

Answering my last plea for news of other classmates, the Belshes wrote that they visited Raffie Torrens in Puerto Rico last spring. Raffie is a successful attorney in San Juan, specializing in international corporate law.

In Truckee, Calif., Mike Campana thoughtfully took a break from his woodsplitting chores to send along an update. Except for a year in Atlanta, Mike has been out West (Arizona, Nevada or California) for the 16 years since William and Mary. Having given up the idea of becoming a famous disc jockey, Mike earned a Ph.D. in hydrology from the University of Arizona in 1975.

Since then, Mike, an associate research professor of hydrology at the Desert Research Institute in Reno, has been working on problems such as nuclear weapons effects at the Nevada Test Site and radioactive waste disposal. Besides his Institute appointment, Mike is an associate professor of hydrogeology at the University of Nevada-Reno and enjoys the teaching. He has even had two former William and Mary students in his graduate classes.

For one year, Mike was in the geology department at Georgia State University-Atlanta, only to decide he wanted to be back in the West. Fortunately, he was able to get his job back. Mike loves Truckee (35 miles west of Reno in the Sierra Nevada and 15 miles north of Lake Tahoe) and cross-country skis out his front door. Last summer, Mike presented a paper at a conference in Fairbanks, Alaska, then he and wife, Donna, took off on a two-week backpacking and hiking vacation through that state.

Mike asks the whereabouts of Tom Friedlander?

At the University of Arizona, Patricia Downer is earning a Ph.D. in psychology.

Pat and Greg Pence spent two great weeks in England last summer in a rented Rover — Bath, York, Edinburgh and Loch Ness. They loved being in Edinburgh during the festival celebrating the Scottish Enlightenment. Greg and Pat live in Birmingham, Ala., where Greg teaches 150 medical students every year about the "Baby Doe" cases, the "Baby Jessies," and all the other "baby cases" since most of the media cases in medical ethics involve babies.

A research scientist for the Research Triangle Institute at NASA/Langley, Luci Gibson Crittenden develops aircraft simulations and designs cockpit displays. Husband, Tom, is a pilot with Piedmont Airlines. Son, Tommy, is now a first-grader in the Poquoson school system.

Dr. John Morello is associate professor of speech/communications at Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa. He will also serve as faculty adviser of The Simpsonian, the school newspaper. Prior to this position, and since 1972, John taught speech communication courses at James Madison University, where he was also director of forensics. He earned tenure there in 1980. Before that, he was a graduate assistant at Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich., where he earned a Ph.D. in speech communication. His master's degree was earned while a graduate assistant at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, Ill. John's wife, Tami, works for General Growth Companies in Des Moines.

In Washington, D.C., Susan Absher manages the hazardous waste oversight program for the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. Her daughter, Angela, was born in 1984.

LUDWELL JOHNSON RECEIVES RECOGNITION FROM CASE

Ludwell H. Johnson, professor of history at William and Mary, has been named a semifinalist in the 1986 "Professor of the Year" competition sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education. Nationally known for his research and teaching on the Civil War, Johnson was among 25 silver medalists nationwide. Some 350 professors were nominated for the award, which is based on extraordinary effort as a teacher-scholar, service to the College and to his profession, a balance of achievement in teaching, scholarship and service, and direct involvement with students.

Had an update on Don Wilson via a press release the Alumni Office sent to me. Don was named manager of the New Orleans agency of the Equitable Life Society, the nation's third largest life insurance company and a leading pension manager. Don will manage the Don L. Wilson Agency of 57 agents covering southeast Louisiana. Formerly district manager in Equitable's Birmingham Agency, Don joined the company in 1977. He earned numerous Equitable awards for outstanding sales and management achievements. In Birmingham, Don served on the board of directors of YMCA, the Birmingham Touchdown Club and the Birmingham Association of Life Underwriters. He and wife, Nancy, and their son live in the Beau Chene area across Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans.

Still in Colorado Springs, Colo., JoAnne Deacon Egolf is teaching high school French. Husband, Jim, is retired from the Air Force after 20 years and presently works for Ford Aerospace.

John Peterson, a member of the Norfolk law firm Scanelli and Shapiro, is a lecturer at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Barbara Pate Glacel wrote that her family has settled into their home in Burke, Va. Husband, Bob, became a lieutenant colonel on Oct. 1 with mother, Ethel, and mother-in-law, Virginia Forwood Pate Wetter '40, pinning on the lieutenant colonel leaves that their husbands wore. Bob has become the liaison to the Congress for the Army's personnel chief. Next December, he will be going to Korea unaccompanied for one year to command the 2/17 Field Artillery Battalion on the DMZ. Barbara and three daughters look forward to meeting him there for the Olympics.

Oct. 1, Barbara became director of executive development programs for HAY Systems, Inc., a new subsidiary of HAY group of management consultants, which specializes in human resource forecasting, behavioral engineering and human-systems interface. She works with upper management of high-tech and fast-changing organizations, who must adjust human resources and organizational design to fit their changing environments. The Glacel daughters are all Scouts and take piano and dance. Jennifer and Sarah are in a center for gifted children, and Ashley began first grade last fall.

In Santa Barbara, Barbara Burket finished her job with Raytheon in June, took six weeks off, then began a job with a small research firm. "Interesting job in that it was a Star Wars project (actually an experiment) to determine if software for Star Wars could be managed the same way current software is managed." However, before they got any real results, the budget was cut, and the contract was cancelled last October. Barb made it to Maui, Hawaii, last June and looks forward to a return trip for more wonderful snorkelling.

It was a very busy 1986 for Berie Gomez Grobe as she reorganized her entire department with the Dallas Independent School System. Berie let go most of the professional staff and hired brand new people. Husband, Bob, is also with the Dallas Independent School District. He presently develops criterion-referenced tests and a microcomputer test-scoring system for teachers to use in their school.

Last spring, Berie and Bob attended the American Educational Research Association Convention in San Francisco — enjoying wine country, Sausalito and of course the cable cars. Thanksgiving morning they ran in the annual Eight-Mile Turkey Trot. December skiing in Wolf Creek, Colo., January escape to Cancun and more skiing in March will take up any free time they might have.

A sincere wish to all of you for a healthy, happy and prosperous 1987! My next deadline is March 30 for the May issue!

Now that we're just about at winter's end, let me offer upbeat thoughts of a great spring ahead. And, keep in mind that this year marks our 15th reunion! It can't be, can it? Just plan a trip to Williamsburg to catch up with college friends and to relive those memorable days of yesteryear.

The Sept. 14, 1986, issue of the Richmond Times-Dispatch ran a very complimentary article on Stewart Gamage, calling her the field commander of Virginia's battles on Capitol Hill. She is the director of the Virginia Liaison Office in Washington for Virginia Governor Baliles, a position she also held under former governor Charles Robb. After spending long days maneuvering within the bureaucracy on issues ranging from tax reform to nuclear accelerators, Stewart crosses the Potomac River to home in Alexandria. Husband, Joseph Tompkins, is a Washington attorney, and they have two children, Graves, 6, and Forbes, 17 months. Stewart also serves on the Richard Bland College Foundation board of directors.

Donald "D.A." Anderson and Carol are living in Richmond and have two children, Kathryn, 10, and Anna, 6. Donald is an attorney at McGuire, Woods & Battle while Carol works in Democratic party politics as a legislative aide in the General Assembly.

Fran Nettles Boyd has several reasons to celebrate — a baby in January and a master's degree (finally) in December. She received her master's in special education on a longer trail than most. She started at West Virginia University in 1975 but quit just before finishing. She continued taking courses and started a new program two years ago which she is just now completing, but with enough course work for two degrees. Fran has continued to teach and moved to Virginia during this process. Enjoy the little one and your degree!

Several people are involved in the field of education. Raj Richardson is on active duty with the Army teaching ROTC at Kent State University. He plans to move to Washington, D.C., area at the end of his current tour.

Diane Blair Richardson is a new faculty member at Averett College. She will serve as an assistant professor in the education department. Diane earned her M.A. and Ph.D. from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. She taught in the Pulaski County public school system, was the elementary supervisor for Manassas Park City Schools between 1976 and 1979 and was the director of instruction for the same system.

Here's a short, to-the-point note from Jack Russell. "B.A. — 1972, M.B.A. — 1977, BMW — 1985, VCR — 1986. Would love to hear from Billy Fields and Jud Meade." It sounds like you're an upwardly mobile member of society, Jack. We'd like to know what else you're "up" to.

John and Linda Jones Ramler are on the move again, compliments of the Air Force. This time they're assigned to a small base in Germany called Sembach. They're enjoying their stay a great deal, terrorist threats and the dropping dollar notwithstanding. And they would be happy to see any classmates traveling in their area.

As of June 1986, David Bates joined the ranks of the U.S. Army as a chaplain. He and wife, Jane '73, moved from South Boston, Va., and now live in Colorado Springs, Colo. Dave resigned as pastor of the Aaron's Creek Baptist Church and is now stationed at Fort Carson. He was selected an Outstanding Young Man of America for 1986. The younger portion of the Bates family consists of Jennifer, 11, Sarah, 9, and Jefferson, 1. Jane was selected an Outstanding Young Woman for 1985!

Cheryl Clark Pagan is doing great things in the field of educational programs on international development. She is the director of development education for Heifer Project International, a U.S.-based, non-profit, agriculture development agency. She will be developing and implementing a new program for use in primary and secondary schools to promote understanding of the roles small farmers and livestock play in development and how these roles are affected by political and economic trends and conditions. Cheryl received her Ph.D. in education from Boston University and was formerly a specialist in social studies and international education with the Arkansas Department of Education. Prior to that, she was a curriculum developer for the Rita Welsh Adult Skills Program at William and Mary.

Peggy Drake sent me her annual Christmas card enclosure summarizing her busy 1986. She has become a full-time transportation planner for the City of Baltimore. She enjoyed exploring Chicago when she attended a short course there for her job. Outside the office, Peggy chairs the deacons at the First and Franklin Street Presbyterian Church; she is the president of the Board of Offender Aid and Restoration for Baltimore and is on the national board, too. A special thrill for her was winning the Mathilda Koval Community Service award from Neighborhood Housing Services of Baltimore/Patterson Park.

For the past five years, Stephen Carney has been a Baltimore resident. He received his law degree from Marshall-Wythe in 1980 and is working for the law firm of Venable, Baetjer & Howard in Baltimore as a commercial real estate attorney.

Steve '71 and Kathe Nickerson Fischer are alive and well in the hills of East Tennessee. They both work at Oak Ridge National Laboratory where Steve does research for energy conservation in heat pumps, and Kathe works in a computer graphics group two days a week. Their three boys, ages 9, 6 and 4 keep them young (and busy, too, I'm sure).

Here are a few one liners. Charles Breeding is now assistant manager for Waccamaw Pottery in Burlington, N.C., after 12 years in management with J.C. Penney. Margaret Carter received a Ph.D. in English from the University of California, Irvine, in March 1986. Dottie and John Kuhlman have moved and are now living in Bealeton, Va.

Big news from Irene Diamant is second son, Matthew Gerald, born in Oct. 1986. Their family moved to a larger cooperative apartment in Park Slope, Brooklyn, and she is still with the General Counsel's office at Citibank — or she will return March 1, after attending to the newest family member.

And Tom Mueller and his wife are popping their buttons over daughter Kristina, born in Jan. 1985. He is working at a juvenile correctional facility in Wisconsin as the chief psychologist.

News from Maya Cohn (Pamela Lyn Doolin) covers the past 15 years. She graduated in 1973 after taking a year's break to explore her options, married Steven D. Cohn in 1984 and is now involved in real estate sales in San Francisco.

Guess that covers it for now. Everyone likes to hear where college friends are living and what they're doing so keep us informed.

PSYCHOLOGY PROFESSORS EVALUATE PROGRAM GEARED TOWARD CHILDREN

Joseph Galano and John Nezelek, associate professors of psychology at William and Mary, are studying the impact of a program designed to educate children about human sexuality. They received a $15,000 grant from the Virginia Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in order to conduct a statewide evaluation of "Especially for You," an after-school sex education curriculum for fifth- and sixth-graders available in 30 Virginia school systems.

"Candy King" Bill Wertz left Hershey Foods a year ago to become president of Wertz Candies, Inc., in Lebanon, Pa. The company has manufactured and retailed handmade confections since 1931. Unfortunately Bill neglected to include a sample with his note so I can't comment on the quality of the product.

Dr. Susan Chittum will finish her Navy residency in OB/GYN in July. She lives in Norfolk and would love to see W&M friends, especially Jay Burgermaster, Laurie Pierce, and Doug Adams. Where are you? Give Susan a call — she's in the phone book.

Also in the practice of OB/GYN in Norfolk is Carol White Nottingham.

Bill Louv, his wife, Jill, and their 18-month-old son, Aaron, are moving (or maybe already have moved) from Birmingham, Ala., to Cincinnati, Ohio. Bill will be the head of the department of Bios-tat, Merrel Dow Research Institute.

Steve French moved to a new home in suburban Wilmington, Del., last summer. He was recently promoted to senior supervisor for product information at Dupont.

In the world of academe, Catherine Foster Walsh was appointed assistant to the chancellor of Southern Illinois University. For those unfamiliar with Illinois' schools, this little institution includes Southern Illinois at Carbondale and its schools of law and medicine and Southern Illinois at Edwardsville and its school of dental medicine — for a total enrollment of around 33,000. Sounds like W&M, huh?

Also in Illinois, Stuart J. Kolner resigned from his position as associate professor, Library of the Health Services, University of Illinois at Chicago to pursue a degree in medicine. In Aug. 1985 he enrolled at the University of Illinois College of Medicine at Urbana and picked up in the fall of 1986 at the Rockford campus. His checkered past includes an M.S.L.S. from Case Western Reserve in 1977 and an award for excellence in writing for Online or Database magazine, for his five-part series titled "The IBM PC as an Online Search Machine."

Bill Koziar just completed a three-year tour of duty in the military science department at W&M, where he initiated and oversaw a project to have a memorial tablet mounted in the Wren Building foyer honoring William and Mary alumni who were killed in action in the Korean and Vietnam wars. The plaque was dedicated during Homecoming weekend. Bill is presently stationed in Nuremberg, Germany.

Larry Diehl wrote a few months ago (missing the deadline for the last issue by two days) from Harrisburg, Pa. He graduated from Dickinson School of Law in Carlisle, Pa., in 1979 and began working for the State Senate. Private practice began in 1982. He married Wilhelmina Elizabeth Zeidler ("Billie") in June 1986. Larry and Billie moved into an old house in Harrisburg last summer. Billie is a nursing home care caseworker for the state, and Larry plays at politics on the county and state levels when he can get away from his other two jobs. Larry asked if anyone knew the whereabouts of Christine Owens?

On the topic of "whereabouts," I should mention that I have no class address list or files of any sort. While I am always willing to print a search request, writing the Alumni Office for an address is probably a more reliable way of getting the information. While their files are as up-to-date as possible, there are still many alumni who have never notified the office of any address changes since graduation. Whenever

ALUMNUS NOMINATED TO HEAD CIA

The man President Reagan has nominated to succeed William J. Casey as director of the Central Intelligence Agency is a William and Mary alumnus. Robert M. Gates '65 has served as deputy director of the CIA since April 18, 1986, and after Casey resigned in early February he was named by the President as Casey's successor, pending approval by the Senate. A native of Wichita, Kan., Gates earned his masters degree in history from Indiana University in 1966 and his Ph.D. in Russian and Soviet History from Georgetown in 1974. In addition to his service with the CIA, which he joined in 1966, he has served under three presidents on the National Security Council. A former chairman of the NSC, Gates is the recipient of the Intelligence Medal of Merit and the Arthur S. Fleming Award, presented annually to the 10 most outstanding men and women in federal service.

you move, send one of those change-of-address forms to the Alumni Office. Not only will that insure the delivery of the Alumni Gazette, it will enable you to receive other College literature and provide your friends with a way to get in touch with you.

Unless specifically requested, class reporters are asked not to print addresses and phone numbers in the paper, simply out of concern for your privacy.

And, yes, I do make mistakes! Most of the time, my news comes second-hand from a well-meaning friend who has forgotten the details. Sometimes news comes in the form of a photocopy of a scribbled note you write on your contribution envelope and suffers from my meager deciphering capabilities. I blew it with news last time of Steven H. Murden (not Murder) when I said he worked at the Virginia State Library as librarian for the visually and physically handicapped. Steve was kind enough to correct me: he works for the Virginia State Library for the Visually and Physically Handicapped which is not connected to the Virginia State Library. Mea culpa.

I'll bet there is more news than this out there! Someone must have a new job, house, wife, husband, baby, pet or hobby. Put me on your Christmas card list; send me one of those "Dear Friends" Christmas letters—I'm not proud. Just write, or better yet, type!

Greetings from the nation's capital. Avid readers of this column will note that there has been a change in your class reporter. Yes, folks, after 10 loyal years George Duke had decided to pass the torch, and I know you all join me in thanking George for a job well done. To turn a phrase used daily by the New York Times, we will "print all the news that fits" so please drop me a line if you have a moment and I will gladly pass the news on to our classmates.

Our 10th reunion in November seems to have been fairly well attended, and I don't think the rain put too much of a damper on things. The pregame luncheon at the Hospitality House and the postgame cocktail party at the Hilton provided excellent opportunities for old friends to reunite. Both events were well attended.

Mike Kappel and his wife, Kim Wilson Kappel, are living in Atlanta with their two sons. Mike attended graduate school at Cornell and is now director of research and development for HBO & Company, while Kim works for Digital Communications Associates in the field of data communications.

Mike's freshman roommate, Mark Bundick, wrote to say that he is still employed by First Chicago Bank, now in the capacity of financial analyst. Mark received his M.B.A. from the University of Chicago and has been with the bank ever since in a number of different positions. Quite a transition from the Eastern Shore of Virginia to the Windy City. Mark is still quite active in model rocketry, and last August he ran the national model rocket championships. He has also experienced some of the real thing, having gotten his pilot's license a few years ago. Mark and his wife, Barbara, who is an attorney and who now attends seminary, are expecting their first two children in July—yes, twins!

Heather Hollowell is reaching new heights, literally and figuratively. Heather is manager of the Union Pacific Foundation, where she administers the company's philanthropic budget, and she recently moved to a large, fifth-floor apartment in midtown Manhattan. Michael Gilleran and Dabney Eastham can beat that though. Last summer they climbed 22,600-foot-high Mt. Huascarón in Peru.

Another accomplished traveler is Al Buchanan who is currently living in Berkeley, Calif., but will be moving to Miami soon—temporarily. Al is a freelance writer and photographer and also works for the Pacific News Service where he is involved in editing, research and writing. The news service supplies information to approximately 80 U.S. and foreign publications and also does background research for the NBC TV program Main Street. Al has articles upcoming in a variety of travel and geographic-type magazines and in January planned to be in Guatemala to report on a major Central American Indian festival.

Dave Robbins is also a freelance writer, living in an old townhome in Richmond. Kenneth Cline is a writer for the Atlanta Business Chronicle covering banking, finance and public companies. He spent two years freelancing in the Middle East and has contributed work to the Christian Science Monitor and Time magazines, among others.

Tim Hall and his wife, Judith Refo Hall, are moving to Bluemont, Va., where they are going to restore an 80-year-old Victorian home. Their second child (second daughter) was born in Nov. 1985.

Craig Poling and wife, Cheryl, live in Minneapolis where Craig works for Honeywell. Craig has master's degrees from W&M and Carnegie-Mellon University. In 1985, he was one of 33 Honeywell scientists and engineers worldwide awarded the H. W. Sweatt award for outstanding technical and scientific achievements. Craig was honored for his design and development of a model system in the area of ocean environment simulation.

Terence Coughlin is living in Bowie, Md., with his wife, three children, two dogs and one cat (must be some house)! Terry is a production manager in defense electronics for Litton Industries and is also a captain in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Susan Schott Karr recently moved from San Francisco to Edison, N.J. Susan completed her M.B.A. in finance at Golden Gate University in San Francisco in 1982 and has held a variety of marketing and writing positions since graduation. Her second child was born in Oct. 1986.

Serena Plotnik Paisley and husband, Donald '74, had their first child in Nov. 1986. Serena plans to return to her position as children's librarian in the Williamsburg Regional Library in mid-February.

The legal profession is well represented among our classmates. Did you ever wonder why lawyers continually practice their profession?

Gary Cross became partner of a new firm, Dunaway and Cross, in Washington, D.C., on May 1, 1986.

Jon Hauser wrote to say that upon graduation with honors from UVA law school in 1979, he moved to Virginia Beach to practice and is now a partner in the second largest firm in the city, specializing in commercial and corporate law, as well as complex litigation.

After graduation from Catholic University law school, John Metz joined the Navy to see San Diego. He has now been back in the D.C. area for two years and is working for the Department of Defense. He and his wife, Anne, are expecting child number three in April.

Bill Campbell is a partner in an up-and-coming CPA firm in the Roanoke area. Bill and his wife, Rhonda '78, own a neat farmhouse in the Fincastle area in which they have done and are continually doing extensive interior remodeling.

EDUCATION STUDENTS WIN
CONGRESSIONAL TEACHER SCHOLARSHIPS

Three undergraduates in the School of Education have won scholarships in the Congressional Teacher Scholarship program. Awards of $5,000 each were made to Lisa L. Clement, a senior from Springfield, Va., majoring in secondary school mathematics; Jennifer Ann Roche, a senior from Williamsburg majoring in early childhood education; and Laura L. Baumhofer, a senior from Vienna, Va., majoring in early childhood education. They are among 45 students from Virginia colleges and universities who won the awards. The scholarship program was begun in order to encourage outstanding high school graduates to pursue teaching careers at the pre-school, elementary and secondary school level.

Steve Huebner was selected as one of the Outstanding Young Men of America for 1986. John Weiner is singing and dancing on Broadway. Try to catch his act if you're in the city.

I ran into several classmates at the Lambda Chi house after the Homecoming football game. Joe Marren has a law degree from Fordham and an M.B.A. from NYU, both accomplished while working full time. He now mans the idea desk at Kidder Peabody in Manhattan and lives in Bronxville, N.Y. Somehow he managed to find time to get married, and child number two is expected this spring.

George Halasz is in business for himself as a court reporter in Richmond and his services are very much in demand. George and wife, Michelle, have three children and are living in an apartment at the moment, counting the days until their spacious new home is completed. Kim Fergusson is treasurer and part-owner of a commercial and residential real estate company in Richmond. A few years ago Kim supervised the building of his own home in West End.

Jeff Scott has sold his donut shops and is now a broker in Fredericksburg, matching together buyers and sellers of small businesses.

On a personal note, on Dec. 24 my wife, Sue '77, and I returned from Santiago, Chile, where we completed the adoption of our second child, Maria, who was 2-1/2 months old at the time. Santiago is a vibrant city filled with friendly people. Sue dusted off her Spanish, and she helped greatly to conduct our affairs. It was a very special trip for us but it certainly felt strange to have the temperature in the 80s and 90s only a few days before Christmas. Our son, who is from El Salvador, is 2-1/2 years old now and the pair of them is quite a handful. Upon our return from Chile, we were the subjects of a news segment produced by Washington Post/Newsweek TV on the subject of international adoption.

Feel free to send me any news that you would like passed along to our classmates. Best wishes to all for 1987.

As the new year begins, I would like to wish all of you the very best for 1987. I feel fortunate to represent a class that stays involved and sends news for this column to the Alumni House or to my home address. You make my job much easier, and I do appreciate it!

After two years of counter-intelligence work with the FBI in Los Angeles, Jeff Berkin has been promoted to the position of supervisory special agent and transferred to FBI headquarters in Washington, D.C. Jeff's initial assignment is to litigate related activities within the legal counsel division.

On the international scene—John Grossman is still a taxi driver in West Berlin, slowly but inexorably inching his way to a master's in German from the Free University of Berlin. He is helping to rebuild a tenement building as part of a self-help project. He sends his greetings to all his classmates who have hot water and don't have to heat with coal.

Check your television schedules for February and March! The Betty Ford Story will air during that period. You may remember from a previous column that Karen Hall wrote the screenplay for this movie based on the autobiography, The Times of My Life, and on her personal contacts with Mrs. Ford and her family.

Are you suffering from stress at home or on the job? Joe Agee may have the answer for you in his new product—Stress Pops Therapeutic Bubbles. These are sheets of "bubbles" normally used to wrap fragile items packaged 1,000 bubbles to a box with a manual on how to use the bubbles to reduce stress. This novelty gift is similar in concept to the frisbee, pet rock and hoola hoop and will, he hopes, be similar in its popularity and monetary success! You can purchase the product in gift stores in Hilton Head and Williamsburg. Joe is working on expanding his market, hopefully to the major chain stores. If anyone has connections, I am sure Joe would be interested in discussing business with you. Perhaps I can develop a distribution center for alumni! In any event, best of luck to you, Joe!

Robert Reeves has been working for IBM in various New York and New Jersey locations since 1978. He began as a programmer and is now a manager. In 1982, Robert received his M.B.A. from Fordham University. He currently resides in Ramsey, N.J.

Paul Palmer recently completed his second year as marketing manager for an independent insurance agency in Miami.

William and Theresa Kilgore Porter have a son, Joseph Douglas, born in Dec. 1985. Theresa graduated from Catholic University Law School and passed the Virginia bar exam in July 1986. Bill is currently working as a special education teacher with Fairfax County public schools.

Drexel George married Virginia McAlvey in July 1983. They became the proud parents of a little girl, Dale Amelia, on Oct. 1, 1986. Michael Edwards is living in Atlanta. His second daughter, Kelsey Ryan, was born last September. His first daughter, Lindsay Grey, is now three.

Debbie McIntyre Hunter is teaching first grade at Powhatan School in Boyce.

Carol Parker Reese is working for Schlumberger Ltd. where she was transferred in 1986 to Guilford, England, as personnel department manager. She expects to stay there until late 1987 and then move to either France or return to the U.S.

David Brown is serving as a flight surgeon aboard the USS Carl Vinson. He flies from the ship in F-14s which is the type of aircraft featured in the movie Topgun.

Bill and Robin Markwith Sleeth and their children, Willy and Jackie, visited Williamsburg during the Christmas holidays. I had a wonderful visit with them in Richmond on their return trip to N.J.

Bruce Conger is a second-year resident in internal medicine at the Washington Hospital Center. He is living in Burtonsville, Md.

Robert Bass recently passed the oral exams required for him to become a fellow to the American Academy of Optometry. He and his wife, Sheryl, traveled to Toronto, where the exams were held in late 1986.

Gerry Wass began a program of organic farming four years ago on a family farm near Pierz, Minn. He is attempting to raise crops eligible for certification by the Minnesota Organic Growers and Buyers' Association. He is well on the way to eliminating fungicide residues and hopes to raise enough produce to make the operation pay in the near future. One part of his program is raising buckwheat to enrich soil by adding humus. This crop also commands a high price at the market and his success will benefit his entire program. Organic farming can be a lonely business; Gerry knows of only one other organic farmer in his vicinity.

letter jacket while sightseeing outside Westminster Abbey. As a result, they spoke and had a photograph taken together to document this chance meeting of two alumni in England. John received the jacket for swimming under the direction of Coach Jensen.

Happy New Year! I hope 1987 has been good for everyone thus far. All I can say is that the years seem to fly by quicker as we get older. It seems like just yesterday that I moved into my first condo, yet it's already been three months! (Be sure to note my new address for all your letters!) Now I know what it's like to be a homeowner.

There are a few others who have recently taken the big step. Stuart Burnett and his wife, Cyndi, bought a house in New Kent County this past fall. Stuart and Cyndi Davis were married in May 1981. Cyndi teaches physical education, and Stuart is a senior systems programmer for Reynolds Metals Company in Richmond.

Wendy Ball and John Ailor '77 just bought a house in Reston. They are able to visit William and Mary quite often when they check on their house in Williamsburg. Wendy is an archivist at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington, and John is supervisor of financial reporting and analysis for Sallie Mae. John is also working toward his M.B.A. at George Washington University.

Eileen Cleary McGraw writes from Michigan where she and her husband, Joe, found their first house. Eileen finished her master's degree in economics at the University of Michigan and is now working as an actuary for USF&G.

I received a note from Dan Burnick just before his marriage to Ann Schwartz this past fall. The wedding took place in Grand Rapids, Mich., Ann's hometown. After the honeymoon, Dan and Ann returned to Birmingham, Ala., to their new house. Dan graduated from the Cumberland School of Law in Birmingham in 1983. He worked at one firm from that time until March 1986, when he accepted a position at Sirote, Permutt, Friend, Friedman, Held & Apolinsky, P.C. Dan is in the litigation department and loves his job.

Diane Carrasco and Pat McGibbon were married this past July. They are also living in Reston, where they recently bought a townhouse. Pat is the assistant director of statistics at the National Machine Tool Builders Association in McLean, and Diane is budget analyst for the comptroller of the Army at the Pentagon.

Diane also passed on some news of other W&M alumni. Susan Beckett and Lee Jones '79 are the proud parents of a son, Daniel, born in October. Kim Jones married Tom Darkis in Dec. 1985. They are now living in Danville. Cindy Seidel was married to Martin Dugan in June 1985. Their home is in Philadelphia, where Cindy is completing her Ph.D. in microbiology at the University of Pennsylvania.

I received word of the arrival of several potential future Indians. Barbara Kepchar and her husband, John Burgin Dysart, announced the arrival of their first child, John Jr., in September. (I must say John Jr. chose a good day on which to be born!) The proud grandfather is also a W&M graduate; John Kepchar received his M.A. in 1964. I think a family tradition is well on its way!

Steve Anderson and his wife, Kathy Eichelman, became first-time parents to Mary Kaitlin, who was born in August.

Steve graduated from the University of Maryland Medical School in 1984. He and Kathy were married in Jan. 1985, and they (including Mary!) are living in Tampa where Steve is in his third year of residency in radiology at the University of South Florida.

Joanne Mitchell and her husband, Ted Ourednik, welcomed Dorothy Kay in Dec. 1985. Dorothy was almost a Christmas baby — I'm sure she was the best present imaginable for Joanne and Ted! Dorothy is now a year old and, when I heard from Joanne, she was almost walking and talking. Joanne is staying home for the time being and is enjoying her time with the baby immensely, although I'm sure Dorothy is able to keep Joanne plenty busy! Joanne and Ted are living in Williamsburg where Ted is working at the VEC.

Eric Thompson wrote with quite a bit of news. He and Janet Willson were married in 1981. They moved to a historic home in Smithfield and, for the last five years, have been busy restoring the house. That job is almost never completely done, but it sounds as if Eric and Janet have done the impossible and finished it! Eric is an investment broker for Legg Mason Wood Walker in Newport News. More important news is that James Russell Thompson was born in September — Eric definitely sounds like a proud father!

Eric also wrote that Lynn Nash and Kennedy Troy Paynter are now the parents of twins! That's definitely a handful! Ken is working on his Ph.D. in marine biology. Christina Whitson married Samuel Ramsey on New Year's Eve in 1984. They are also parents of a beautiful daughter named Rachel. Sam works for American Securities Bank in the international loan division. Rob Goetz is living in Virginia Beach and works for Merrill Lynch in Hampton.

This past July, Mark Gregory Hanley was born. Greg is the first child of Andrea Kent and Mark Hanley '78. Andrea and Mark truly enjoy parenthood, even with all its work! They have been living in Miami for the last two years, where they can escape the winters and be near the beach. Andrea is assistant vice president and manager of financial analysis for American Savings and Loan.

Diane Herkness is product manager for Cigna in Philadelphia. For the second year in a row, Diane was able to take a trip to Europe; this year it was Spain and Morocco. Pat Gorowitz is presently in New York City where she is working toward her M.B.A. at Columbia University. As a between-semester treat, Pat traveled to Germany this summer.

At least a few of us Easterners have made it to the sunny west coast. Natalie Haugh writes from Redondo Beach, Calif., where she lives with her husband, David Six. Natalie and David were married this past September. Natalie has been working for Mattel Toys in the cost engineering department for the past four years. In Aug. 1985, she was promoted to supervisor of preschool costing.

Rayna Kneuper is presently living in San Antonio, Texas, where she is in her second year of residency in internal medicine at the University of Texas at San Antonio. Once her residency is completed, Rayna plans to pursue a subspecialty residency in dermatology, either in Texas or California. Kim Hamlett has finished her Ph.D. in clinical psychology at Catholic University and is now living in Chapel Hill where she is doing her internship in medical psychology at Duke University Medical Center.

I received word of the accomplishments of Mike Coster through an undisclosed source! I think Mike is too busy to write

'80 GRADUATE WINS LITERARY PRIZE

Cary C. Holladay '80 has been awarded $500 as well as royalties in the FICTION NETWORK contest, a major short story competition based in San Francisco. Her winning story, "Squabs," will be published in FICTION NETWORK MAGAZINE and will be syndicated in other publications. Another of her stories "Breaking Ground," was recently accepted for publication in a 1987 edition of CIMARRON REVIEW, a literary journal published by Oklahoma State University.

and let me know, so let me thank you for your help, Michelle! Sorry about that, I let it slip! Well, after graduation and passing the CPA exam, Mike went on to George Mason University Law School. In between all the course work, he found time to provide management and tax consulting to small businesses through his own company, Coster Management Corporation. Mike also passed the Virginia bar exam and opened his own practice in Fairfax. In the fall of 1985, he left the practice and became comptroller of the Legal Services Corporation. Mike now also holds the position of acting treasurer. All this requires that he spend many long hours working; however, it is the opinion of my source that Mike loves the work and thrives on the challenge!

Unfortunately, I will have to bring this to a close for two reasons — first, so that I have a bit of news for the next time, and second, so that I can get this in the mail! Thanks for writing, and for those who haven't — please write!

82 Rebecca Lewis Sanders 2012 Smithfield Street Kill Devil Hills, NC 27948

A new year and a new house here on the beach, so it's moving time again. The house we built and moved into in Aug. 1985 recently sold, so we're building another — a little bigger — and with a beautiful view of both the bay and ocean. I'm excited about the house, but just can't say the same about moving!

Have received a real variety of class news, so without further ado . . .

Laura Akerhielm moved to Greensboro, N.C., and is training to be an IBM marketing rep; so far she loves the change from New Jersey, no traffic and gorgeous countryside! Leslie Ann Wederich has moved to Westfield, N.J., and is working with the law firm of Shearman & Sterling in N.Y.C. Alice Campbell has taken a new position in MCI sales in the Chicago field office. Previously she worked in the MCI headquarters office in D.C.

Kristine Winegar is living in Atlanta and traveling a lot with her job as a systems engineer for IBM. Edward Carroll works for the Ritz-Carlton, Atlanta Hotel and is considering attending Georgia State University to pursue a degree in training and development management. In the meantime, he pursues work in the world of commercials and entertainment as a hobby.

Richard Stanley was appointed a vice president of Irving Trust Company in N.Y.C. where he is manager of the marine transport department. He started out in 1982 in the bank's training program and has advanced from officer to assistant vice president to his present position.

Midge Stocker was elected to the national steering committee of the Feminist Writers Guild and is an editor of the FWG Chicago chapter monthly newsletter, which gives her a chance to combine politics with her work. Midge is in her fifth year as a freelance writer and editor, working mainly on language arts textbooks, business/professional books and computer documentation.

David Rogers is attending law school at the University of Pittsburgh, counting down for a May 1988 graduation. William "Bilgie" Helsley graduated from T. C. Williams School of Law in May 1985 and has been practicing law since that August with Dabney Overton Jr. in Harrisonburg. William Maher graduated from UVA Law School in May 1985 and held a one-year clerkship with the Hon. Milton Pollack, Senior U.S. District Judge for the Southern District of New York. Since Sept. 1986

William has been employed at Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, a law firm of over 300 (whew!) attorneys in N.Y.C.

Beverley Carson is employed by Syntex, the ninth largest pharmaceutical company in the U.S. Previously she worked as a sales rep for Clairol, Inc. Now in pharmaceutical sales, she was awarded one of the two awards in 1986 as "Rookie of the Year" and received a silver trophy and $300 check for outstanding performance.

In another area of accomplishment, Mary Tod Haley Gray had a book published by Donning Company in 1985. Titled Caroline County: A Pictorial History, it traces the history of her home county from 1607 to 1985. The book contains a selection of 350 items (chosen from over 2,000 photos, illustrations and documents she acquired over the course of her research), with narrative of events and individuals' recollections about the content of various photos. Mary Tod wrote the history while working as a reporter and newspapers-in-education coordinator for her hometown Bowling Green newspaper. Residing in Falls Church with husband, Clarke Gray '76, Mary Tod is teaching elementary school in Fairfax County at present.

There was a nice write-up on Kim Kalman in the Virginia Gazette relating her history of singing, both solo and with the organization Up With People, her schooling and attempts after graduation to hold multi-jobs and sing at night and her plunge into a full-time music career two years ago. All this has led to a real musical success — the release of Kim's first solo album in Dec. 1986!

Received only a brief note from Thomas Kusterer who says, "No news is good news!"

Now let me tackle the who's who list of the newly engaged, married, expecting and parenting . . .

Gary Hammersmith announces his engagement to Kimberly Ann Garvin of Chicopee, Mass. Kimberly is a physical therapist at the New York Hospital/Cornell Medical Center. Gary is associated with the law firm Cahill, Gordon & Reindel on Wall Street and does corporate and securities work and litigation.

Margie Waters and her fiance, Chip, are both working in Richmond and planning a wedding later this year.

Janet Mallison and fiance, Thomas J. Nelson, are planning a May wedding. Janet left Procter & Gamble to go back to school and is in her second (and last) year at Harvard Business School. After graduation, she'll return to the Baltimore-Washington area to join Thomas.

Sharon Schnell will be getting married in June to Howard Day, a fellow optometrist. Sharon will graduate from the University of Alabama School of Optometry in June and plans to do a residency in Philadelphia or Boston.

Joanne Fenity has recently married, but unfortunately, I didn't get any details on the lucky groom!

Paula Fehnel married Scott Moore last summer, and the reception held in Silver Spring, Md., proved to be a reunion for many W&M friends, including Beth Ryan and Eric Harder, Greg Moore, Lauralyn Sessoms, Kathy Mocariski and Rick Dwyer, Liz Lynn '81 and Art Perraud, Lawson Cox, Pat Vaughan, Helen Claybrook '83, Carol Myles '81 and Tom Skiba. Corey Giesecke Wetzel and husband, Howard, took the prize for coming the longest distance — they happened to be in town from the Netherlands, where they are stationed at the Hague embassy.

Kevin Doyle married Jacquie LeTendre, and they have recently moved from Harrisonburg to Annandale. Jacquie attended

DAVID POND '64 PROMOTED BY EASTMAN CHEMICAL PRODUCTS

David M. Pond has been promoted to manager of the chemical laboratory in the Technical Service and Development Division of Eastman Chemical Products, Inc., in Kingsport, Tenn. Prior to this appointment, he was a staff assistant in the Development Division of the Eastman Chemicals Division. A native of Vienna, Va., he has a Ph.D. in chemistry from the University of South Carolina. He is a member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and a past president of the American Chemical Society in northeast Tennessee. He and his wife, the former Susan Matthews, live in Kingsport with their three children.

W&M from 1978 to 1980 and graduated from UVA in 1983.

Catherine Sardo recently married Brant Weidner '83. Brant is in his third year of law school and just accepted an offer from Winston & Strawn in Chicago. Catherine is a Ph.D. candidate in American (U.S.) history at Northwestern, researching her dissertation and teaching.

Chris Timpanelli and his wife, Patricia, have been living in Bridgeport, Conn., since their May wedding last year at Bruton Parish Church. Chris is a member of the New York and Connecticut bars and is currently practicing for the Hartford firm Copp, Berall & Hempstead. Recently he became a member of the American Bar Association task force on legal finance planning.

Don Morris married Valerie Hook on Long Island last October. They honeymooned in Bermuda, but had to race home in time to watch the Mets in the playoffs. In attendance at the wedding were Jack Horst '81 and Marcia Seymour with their new baby, Duncan; Jeff and Debbi Campana '81; Dave Lucas '80; Buddy Phillips (who is now at Harvard Business School) and wife, Sherri Sell '83; Bo Sawyer '81; Jim and Marilyn Blank Peworchik; and Eric Harder '83. I hear everyone had a super time!

Barbara Walker Hutchinson and her husband David, living in Charlottesville, are expecting their firstborn in 1987. Barbara works at the airport in administration, and David manages two boarding kennels. Debbie Hammond Middleton and her husband, Robert, are also expecting their first. Connie Kilian and Jim Lowden '83 bought a new house in Jersey City last summer and were expecting their first in Nov. 1986 — boy or girl?

Cathi Gartner Chapin and hometown honey, Pete, were expecting their first child in Jan. 1987. Cathi filled me in on the past few years. She and Pete were married just after graduation and moved to Champaign, Ill. to attend the University of Illinois — Pete for graduate work in electrical engineering, Cathi for law school . . . briefly! In Jan. 1983 she entered the School of Social Work where she earned a master's of social work in community mental health. Cathi's special field of interest is counseling the adult survivors of child abuse. They have now settled in Randolph, Vt., where they are enjoying life in a small town nestled in the mountains. Pete is a professor at Vermont Technical College, and Cathi works as the volunteer coordinator for a new battered women's program.

Mark Kehoe and his wife, Carolyn, are very happy and excited over the birth of Andrew Robert, who weighed in at 7 lbs., 10 oz. They live in Westville, N.J., and Mark works in Center City Philadelphia as an attorney for Liebert, Short, Fitzpatrick & Hirshland.

Congratulations on all the latest accomplishments, and wishing you the very best in 1987! (My apologies for any misspellings; it seems law firms in particular cannot have simple names!)

Who believes it is 1987 already? Soon we will have been out of school for three years, which is hard to imagine!

I'll start out with news close to home. My roommate, Alison Hawley, has started a new job on the Hill. She is a legislative correspondent for Congressman Steve Bartlett from Texas.

Our good buddy Chris Walker '85 landed a job two doors down from Alison with Congressman Tom Lantos from California. Chris is a legislative assistant, and soon after he began his job, they sent him off to San Francisco to work on the elections. He was pretty excited. While Chris was working hard to get the Congressman re-elected, he took some time out to visit with Amy Marcos, who is working for U.S. Sprint in the City by the Bay. Amy recently visited Kim Rabenberg in L.A. Kim is selling ad space for a music newspaper and working on her script writing.

Jane Hatcher and her new husband, Marco, have also settled in California. They are living in Pasadena, where Marco is studying toward his Ph.D. in civil engineering, and Jane is substitute teaching. On Dec. 27, Marco and Jane had a reception in Danville for the William and Mary crew. Linda and Kord Basnight, Angie Johns, Debbie Fuess, Alison Busby, Mike Wood and Alison and Diane Hawley were all on hand to celebrate.

Also out west is Laura Groom. She writes that she moved to Denver where she is an assistant director of admissions at the University of Denver. She hopes to hear from any other W&M alumni in the Denver area — please give her a call at D.U. She also would welcome any W&M ski bums who want to visit — uh, oh, Laura, you may end up with a full house this winter! Laura says that Hope Soloman is doing well in Houston.

Also moving to Texas in the near future are Mary and John Sweigart. Mary Manson Sweigart sent me a delightful letter about her June 28 wedding in Ambler, Pa. Bridesmaids included Denise Noffsinger, and Dawn Zimmerman '83 was the maid of honor. Both are currently living and working in D.C. Cathy Ondis '85 and Eric Maggio made the trip from D.C., too, to celebrate. They are both accountants. Nancy Hildreth '85, Susan Powell and Mark Hilbrink also cruised up from the Capitol City. Susan is working for InterVarsity at Georgetown and American universities, and Mark is employed in the computer field.

Dianne McCall '85 attended and is working in computers as well, but in Philadelphia. Dianne is living in Havertown. Susan, Mark and Dianne were reunited once again to play as a violin trio at the wedding. Margaret Garland Walljasper and her new husband traveled all the way from Minneapolis. Dennise Johnson Peck and her husband, Dave, came from Vienna, Va. Their first child, Sarah Elizabeth, was born in August. Gaye Bumgardner Guyton attended the guest book and served as a greeter. Her husband, Jon, and she are living in Westminster, Md.

The new Mary and John Sweigart are enjoying newlywed life. After graduating from Drexel, John has accepted a job with Amerata Hess as a chemical engineer out in the oil fields. Mary and John had previously been working as research chemists at Rohm & Haas Company in Philadelphia, where I suspect they probably met!

I received a nice note from Bill Wagner, who is announcing his engagement to Cynthia Scott Engelken of Williamsburg. They were engaged in New York last summer and are planning a June 1987 wedding in the Wren Chapel.

My roommate, Laurie Raymond, is also planning a June 1987 wedding. Chris Benson is the lucky guy. Chris is a medical student at Georgetown University. Our house will sure be aflutter this spring!

Ellen Jeffery writes that she just became engaged to Frank Boczon, a co-worker at the Department of Defense. Frank is an electrical engineer. They are planning a summer 1987 wedding.

Sheila Duffy is pursuing her M.B.A. at George Washington University. Angela

LAW SCHOLAR DICK HOWARD GIVES LEE MEMORIAL LECTURE

A. E. Dick Howard, professor of law and public affairs at the University of Virginia and chairman of the Virginia Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, recently served as the Distinguished Lee Fellow at Marshall-Wythe School of Law. During his residency Feb. 3-5, Howard presented the Lee Memorial Lecture on "The Rehnquist Court." Howard is a graduate of the University of Richmond and University of Virginia law school. A Rhodes Scholar, he was executive director of the commission that wrote Virginia's new Constitution and directed the successful referendum campaign for its ratification. His speech was the first in a series named in memory of Laura Lee and her parents, Mary I. W. and Alfred Wilson Lee.

Happy New Year fellow grads!

In Orlando we welcomed 1987 by dropping the BIG ORANGE at midnight — look out NYC! Good friend (haha) Ed Grissom was visiting from Richmond to help ring in the new year. Ex-roommate Monica Tetzlaff called on New Year's Day from Boston, Mass., to say hello. She's working for Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries and welcomes the cold weather. (Monica grew up in Vero Beach, Fla.)

Commencement Co-Chairman Jenny Thompson recently sent in a summer update. She had been traveling with a hometown friend around Europe and ran into some classmates: Allison Seyler at the Munich train station, Chuck Zinsner and friends in Vienna, and Sarah Bottems with her family in Versailles. Jenny now has joined the ranks of the Washington Yuppies. Jenny and Kay-Margaret Cronk are marketing assistants at the Armed Forces Relief and Benefits Association.

Keeping bizarre hours, Brian Kane is managing a full-time job at Panametrics, a small engineering company, as well as attending graduate school at Harvard. Dave Siren is keeping crazy hours, too. He's pursuing his master's in philosophy at the University of California, as well as becoming a professional beach bum.

Also busy in grad school is Chris Meily at UNC getting her master's in social work. Chris has formed her own Tarhell-Tribe fan club. Those at UNC include Teresa Rousseau and Meg Lanchantin '85, Bob Tormey who is studying dentistry and Leah Bennett who is attacking bio-statistics. Also in the club are Elizabeth Keyes, in operations research, Mia Amaya, a med student, and Paula McMillan who is continuing her study in economics.

At UVA grad school working on her master's in exercise physiology is Polly Gladding. Polly recently became engaged to James Szablewicz, a UVA law student. Another recent engagement was made by Christopher Pond '88 to Martha Forsyth. Martha is a catering supervisor for the William and Mary Commons.

Speaking of contracts, Georgia Flam-poris is a first-year student at Dickenson Law School. Pat Cousins, Martin Luther King Scholarship recipient and past captain of the track and field team, is attending the University of Florida Law School. Pat was awarded a three-year scholarship for his achievements at William and Mary. Kelly Doyle is hitting the books at UVA's Law School. First-year students at the University of Richmond's law school are Brian Bisegnoni, Chuck Walls, Chris Royers and my friend Ed Grissom. Mark Forde '83 and Kord Basnight '85 have become law spiders as well.

Archie Harris graduated with us, but didn't have the heart to leave the college of knowledge. He played football for the Tribe this season while attending Marshall-Wythe. Local newspapers are predicting an NFL drafting of Archie this April.

Second Lt. Courtney French completed the Army finance officer basic course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. ROTC buddy, Second Lt. Cary Polk, has moved to Savannah, Ga. Cary is doing well working for the Army in hospital administration.

Darryl Gugig received the Gerald Miller Award for outstanding achievement in the study of philosophy. The award is named after a noted W&M graduate and lawyer. Congrats, Darryl!

New school teachers include Jenny Phillips and Kathy Curtis. Jenny is living in Virginia Beach teaching English to high school students. Kathy, on the other hand,

Hardy Johns completed an M.S. degree in elementary education at the University of Tennessee in Aug. 1986. Daniel Simon started business school in September at the University of Georgia in Athens. Brent Hirsch Greenwald is in the medical school class of '89 at the University of Louisville in Kentucky. Robert LaFrankie has begun first-year studies at the Dickinson School of Law.

Jeff Huber has been hired by the Northern Neck Planning District Commission as a regional planner. Jeff will be providing technical planning assistance with the four Northern Neck counties including comprehensive zoning and subdivision along with some economic development activity.

Patrick Roger Cleary III is currently attached to Fighter Squadron 101 at Oceana Naval Air Station, Virginia Beach, flying the F-14 Tomcat.

Another person serving our country certainly has the most exciting news in this issue! First Lt. Paul Forgrave writes that while swimming across the Strait of Tiran from Egypt to Saudi Arabia, he was attacked by a shark. He survived, with a few scars to show (that is, over 100 stitches). Paul says that the fishing is great and it's hard not to get a bite!

Ingrid Gleason has been elected retail banking officer at the Deer Park Office of Sovran Bank. Ingrid joined Sovran in 1984 and recently completed the bank's management associate program.

Also in banking is Jeff Cole, who is employed as an assistant branch manager at First Virginia Bank in Falls Church. Jeff is living with Mike Hobbs. Their good friend Carl Adkins had a humdinger of a party on Nov. 8. It was a popular night for W&M gatherings, because Dan Head '85, Chris Walker '85, Doug Neil '86 and Henry Plaster '85 had a rather large bash on the same evening!

Beth Dodge '83 recently moved from D.C. to Wilmington, Del. She has gotten a cute apartment there and is starting to settle in to her new surroundings.

During my Christmas vacation in Yardley, I spoke with Tim Meell, who is doing very well at Grieshaber, an ophthalmic surgical instruments company based in Switzerland. He is now in charge of their U.S. operations and has had the opportunity to do some traveling, including down to New Orleans. We agreed that Arnaud's is one of the best restaurants around. Tim is cruising around Yardley in a Saab and has recently bought a new house. This summer he is looking forward to going in on a beach house with a bunch of buddies down at Avalon, N.J.

Tim gave me the scoop on a few W&M friends. Mario Schaffer is working as a sports agent in Cleveland and is recruiting for pro teams. He's doing some traveling, too, even out to Honolulu. Ray and Suzanne Bisczat have moved to Cincinnati, where Ray continues to work for Procter and Gamble. Mike Murphy is doing well at Ferguson Enterprises in Denver. Tim has been down to Atlanta a couple times and visited Guy Crittendon, who recently finished at the Art Institute in Atlanta. He loves Atlanta and plans to stay there and work in commercial art.

Tim is not the only one who has been doing some traveling. I spent the month before the elections in Milwaukee, where I spent some time with Beth McGaffey. She showed me her beautiful home, and we tore up the town of Milwaukee. I made a trip up to Minneapolis and down to Chicago. In the last two months, I also spent a week in San Antonio, a week in Orlando and a week in Pennsylvania. This job keeps me on my toes!

Please write and tell me what 1987 has in store for you!

'70 ALUMNUS APPOINTED TO ARMY SCIENCE BOARD

Barbara Pate Glacel has been appointed by the Secretary of the Army to serve on the U.S. Army Science Board. The board is an advisory committee comprised of scientists, educators, engineers, defense analysts and industrialists who advise the Secretary of the Navy, Chief of Staff and major Army commanders on a variety of scientific and technological matters. Mrs. Glacel is the director of Executive Development Programs for HAY Systems in Washington. Previously employed as an assistant professor at the University of Alaska and a senior management trainer for Atlantic Richfield, she has a Ph.D. from the University of Oklahoma. She and her husband, Lt. Col. Robert Allan Glacel, live in Burke, Va., with their three daughters.

is battling with first-graders in McLean. Mike Lewis and Doug Brinkly recently landed jobs. Mike is working at the National Bio-medical Research Foundation conducting protein research. Doug accepted a position in commercial real estate in Baltimore. Word has it the Brinkleys hosted a Halloween bash at 3 a.m. for a tired bunch of W&M alumni. There was another big bash at the apartment of Marty Cross, John Golwen and John Fielding. Many Pika's and Pika groupies were in attendance. Kristen White ran into the Penney sisters on the metro in D.C. Kitty is working as an assistant manager in a clothing store in Ballston while Nanae is doing para-legal work in D.C. Nanae moved into a new apartment in November with Susan Doyle and Pam Krulitz. Rhanna Kidwell and her friend from high school live less than a mile away. Rhanna is working for American Bank in Reston. Also in Reston is Mike Kalaris utilizing his accounting studies. Ellen Thompson and Robin Freedman moved into a new apartment on Wisconsin Avenue in D.C. and both love living in the nation's capitol.

Dan Phillips is hard at work at the Better Business Bureau in Rosslyn, Va. From here on in, please send all complaints to Dan. Chris Olsen is collecting dollars working for AMSEC in Crystal City, Va. All those late night hours in the computer room in Morton finally paid off. Will Nicklin, on the other hand, would like a list of opportunities for Russian studies majors. He's doing odd jobs and playing farm boy in Warrenton, Va. Close pal Dennis DiMauro completed the Engineer Officer Basic Course in Ft. Belvoir, Va. He's decided to fulfill the rest of his commitment in the reserves and is currently hanging around home writing letters to the Alumni Gazette.

'25 ALUMNUS PUBLISHES BOOK ON EASTERN SHORE

Arthur King Fisher of Parksley, Va., has published a new book, Eastern Shore Wordbook, a collection of words, local expressions, surname pronunciations, folk cures, home remedies and weather signs pertaining to the Eastern Shore of Virginia. A former mayor of Parksley, Fisher is now executive director of the Delmarva Advisory Council, a non-profit organization serving business and industry in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia. Fisher's wife, Rachel, is a 1933 alumna of the College.

Speaking of this column, I am proud to announce we have a new class of '86 correspondent. Kristen White will take over my responsibilities beginning with the April issue. Kristen lives in the center of the after-DOG-Street scene and is much more on the ball with W&M gossip. Also Kristen was an English major! Please write her many letters at the following address: 1664 Sierra Woods Court, Herndon, VA 22070. You're still welcome to send letters to me here in Florida — I'd love hearing from you! Best wishes to all for a healthy and happy new year!

HARK UPON THE GALE
An Illustrated History of the College of William and Mary
(from 1693 to 1984)

by Wilford Kale '66

The second-oldest institution of higher education in America now has a comprehensive illustrated history, which spans the efforts of its first president, the Rev. James Blair, in 1693, to the events of 1984, containing for the first time, all the known views of the college from 1695 to 1865. It's the most exciting publication in many years, and we're pleased to offer it first to you. It contains over 350 fully-captioned photos, maps, and illustrations in crisp black and white and rich sepia tones, and a concise, entertaining text covering the major events in the evolution of the college. For example: did you know that Thomas Jefferson proposed that the Virginia legislature close William and Mary and establish a network of community colleges; that the first student secret society, the first fraternity, and the first intercollegiate Greek letter society were all at William and Mary; that as late as 1881, the college had twelve students?

No alumnus of the school can fail to be moved by this unique and exciting 8½-x-11-inch coffee table book. It will be a treasured possession to be passed on for generations. Beautifully printed and bound, Hark Upon The Gale comes in a regular edition with dust jacket, and a special leather limited edition of 250 copies with slipcase, each signed and numbered by the author, each increasing in value each year.
