College Dedicates Reves Center

Gov. Gerald L. Baliles helped William and Mary dedicate the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies on April 14 — a triumph of public and private support working together.

Constructed in 1916 and known as Tyler Hall until last year, the Commonwealth of Virginia spent $1.89 million to renovate the building, and Mrs. Reves endowed the center in December 1987 with a $3 million gift.

Named for Mrs. Reves and her late husband, an author and publisher who died in 1981, the Reves Center gives the College a national center for excellence in international studies with a special emphasis upon education, faculty teaching and research and community outreach. It is directed by Dr. James A. Bill, a distinguished scholar of Middle East society and politics and one of the nation's foremost experts on Iran.

Dr. Bill said at the dedication that, "We want to break new ground in key international issues — issues like war and peace, the environment, political development and international justice. We are finding that boundaries and borders are becoming increasingly irrelevant. We live in a world of great disconnectedness."

Governor Baliles noted that the center "captures the creative spirit" of Wendy and Emery Reves — "two individuals inspired by the vast variety of human life on this planet and the potential for overcoming differences and finding new avenues to peace and understanding."

"Wendy Reves' vision and generosity have combined to bestow a great gift on this venerable and respected college," said the governor. "It is a center for teaching the skills of international bridge-building, for spanning the distance between communities, for crossing the sometime difficult chasm between regions, cultures, nationalities and academic disciplines. And, never has the need for such an institution been greater."

President Verkuil described the dedication as "a turning point in our history, since we never before have had a true home for our work in international studies, [although] William and Mary has had a global perspective on education for almost three centuries."

"So in a way," said the president, "this day is a reaffirmation and continuation of the work we began so long ago. The opening of the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies culminates a long-standing effort to understand and shape the world around us, and to make the world a better place for us all."

Mrs. Reves, an outgoing native of Texas and former New York fashion model and business woman who now lives on the French Riviera, described the center as a dream fulfilled. "The principles of the center are the same as Emery's principles," she said of her husband, a talented musician, linguist, art connoisseur, journalist, businessman and political thinker.

She described her husband as "a great man, well-known in the intellectual circles of the world."

"But," she added, "I felt that he had not achieved the glory and greatness that he deserved."

Mrs. Reves, who presented the College with a $500,000 check at the dedication, said she is convinced she has accomplished her task of memorializing her husband. "This dream has come true for my wonderful husband," she said. "I would have never dared to dream that I can have such a wonderful building."

Mrs. Reves, who donated more than $150 million worth of art to the Dallas Museum of Art, began seeking a suitable memorial to her husband eight years ago. In 1987, Frank Shatz, a friend of the Reves who now lives in Williamsburg, suggested the Center for International Studies at William and Mary. Following a meeting with President Verkuil, she agreed to a $3 million endowment of the center.

As an author, Reves is best known for his book "The Anatomy of Peace," published in 1945 by Harper and Row when he was 41 years old. The book, which sold a million copies, analyzed the causes of war and offered a solution—a higher international tribunal of law backed by power and consent. "We shall never have peace if we do not have the courage to understand what it is [and] if we do not want to pay the price it costs."

Reves studied at the Universities of Berlin and Paris and earned a doctorate in political economy from the University of Zurich in 1926. In 1930 he founded the Cooperation Press Services and Cooperation Publishing Company with offices in Paris, London and New York. In the decade prior to World War II, he organized the publication of original newspaper articles by such leading democratic statesmen as Winston Churchill, Anthony Eden, Clement Attlee, Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum. These articles, which focused upon international issues, were carried in over 400 different newspapers in 70 different countries.

Bill said that given the tragic record of wars during the 44 years since Reves wrote his book, "it is time that we go back to the ideas of Emery Reves and shine new light upon them."

"We intend to do this and more at the Reves Center with the inspiration, love and support of Emery Reves' longtime partner—our own Mrs. Wendy Reves."

A special guest for the dedication was journalist Bill Moyers, who is from Mrs. Reves' hometown of Marshall, Texas. Moyers, who gave the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies Inaugural Lecture on the evening of the dedication, discussed the politics of peace from a journalist's perspective.

Noting that the Rev. James Madison and Thomas Jefferson took the time to revamp the entire William and Mary curriculum in 1779 while the Revolutionary War raged around them, Moyers said, "They were making peace. They had their minds on the future, and their hearts on posterity. They believe that ideas would flourish here, that the young would be prepared for leadership here. So it is appropriate that you have this center [for international studies] here. This has become a new salient in the peace process."

FUTURE STOCK

By Barry Adams

Swearer took the helm, issued that challenge in the 1940s.

Howard Swearer, the president of Brown University, likes to point out that one of his predecessors took issue with the lack of intellectual curiosity in alumni and public outreach programs sponsored by the institution. Nothing unusual about that observation — critics have been stressing the need to link alumni programs with the intellectual life of universities and colleges for most of the 1980s.

Except Henry Wriston, who guided Brown long before President Swearer took the helm, issued that challenge in the 1940s.

Wriston felt that "alumni need to be involved with the faculty at every opportunity. To create understanding and support for the university, we must remind former students that the faculty they knew and treasured have been succeeded by talented young teachers who will carry on the traditions and challenge new generations of students."

If alumni are indeed the shareholders of an institution, William and Mary graduates were privy to an insider's trading tip in the last issue of the Alumni Gazette. In announcing this year's Alumni College, "Exploring the Chesapeake Bay," the Society also acknowledged its commitment to building and maintaining relationships between alumni and the academic life of the institution. It is a major component of an emerging educational ingredient in alumni programming.

Questions that are often repeated on campuses these days are "Can alumni find happiness discussing the federal deficit? Will they attend seminars on toxic wastes as eagerly as they go to football games and receptions?" The answer, now thoroughly tested by alumni associations, is a resounding yes.

What are some of the reasons alumni educational programs are being ushered to the front row of alumni activities? There are a number of responses worth noting here.

First, by including educational programs, alumni see beyond the social nature still necessary to building a base of support. In today's smaller world, college graduates are surrounded by events and issues which influence, sometimes dramatically, their professional and personal lives. College graduates often have a desire to fully comprehend situations occurring around them — sometimes from a current assessment, sometimes from a historical one.

Second, educational programs are important messengers for interpreting the basic mission of higher education, that of teaching, research and public service. Many of our nation's college presidents feel that our institutions generally enjoy public support, but the understanding of the mission is a less common plateau. President Swearer writes that "people support our institutions in great and wondrous ways when they understand and are deeply committed to the intellectual heartbeat of the university."

Third, not only do educational programs provide opportunities for alumni to participate in activities that are intellectually and creatively stimulating, but also many of the topics can be directly linked to community service. A more informed public requires the continued diligence of those who are active leaders and public servants in our communities.

Fourth, programs like Alumni College showcase our faculty members and allow them to be partners in the advancement of the university through interaction with alumni and staff.

And finally, good academic programs for alumni, families and friends often attract the attention and interest of those outside the institutional family. The media, prospective students, corporations, parents and politicians are often curious about viewpoints and discussions generated by faculty members at our leading universities.

In addition to offering a four-day Alumni College in June, the Society is examining other academic programs. On May 19 the Society will sponsor a special half-day continuing education program for alumni and friends entitled "Estate and Income Tax Planning for Retirement Benefits." The Class of 1963 included a seminar on "Getting Educated: Just What Happens Between Teachers and Students" at its silver anniversary reunion this past fall. Museum tours hosted by alumni chapters, such as a special showing of "The Age of William III and Mary II" at the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C., are likely to increase.

Educational programs can penetrate the years and miles which sometimes isolate alumni from the heart of their alma mater. They create opportunities to appreciate the intellectual ferment at the institution while holding stock in its future.

In the words of one educator they help form "a more perfect union."

Actress Glenn Close '74 Graduation Speaker

Actress Glenn Close '74 will deliver the 1989 commencement address Sunday, May 14.

Close will receive an honorary doctor of arts degree at the ceremonies, which will begin at 1 p.m. in William and Mary Hall.

Also receiving honorary degrees at commencement will be Robert McCormick Adams, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, honorary doctor of humane letters; Mary Maples Dunn '54, president of Smith College, doctor of humane letters; and physicist Sir Denys H. Wilkinson, vice chancellor of Sussex University in England, honorary doctor of science.

Speaking at the traditional baccalaureate service at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, May 13, will be theologian and author Martin E. Marty of the University of Chicago, recent past president of the American Academy of Religion.

Close has been honored by her peers for her work on stage, screen and television. She received a Tony Award for her performance in "The Real Thing," an Obie Award for her title role in "The Singular Life of Albert Nobbs," and an Emmy nomination for her role in ABC-TV's "Something About Amelia." She has received Academy Award nominations for her work in "The World According to Garp," "The Big Chill," "The Natural," "Fatal Attraction" and "Dangerous Liaisons."

A native of Greenwich, Conn., Close is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the college who was active in writing, directing and acting in a variety of William and Mary

Theatre productions. As a student, Close said, her guiding light was Howard Scammon '34, professor of theatre and speech emeritus. During her senior year she was nominated for the national regional auditions of the Theatre Communications Group, and it was from there that she was discovered by the Phoenix Theatre, then a Broadway house, and made her professional theatrical debut in New York in a season of three back-to-back plays: "Love for Love," "The Member of the Wedding," and "Rules of the Game."

Close has recently finished work on a film titled "Immediate Family," with James Woods.

Robert M. Adams, anthropologist and educator, has been secretary of the Smithsonian Institution since 1984. A native of Chicago, he received Ph.B., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago and was a long-time member of the faculty, serving as a professor in the anthropology department, director of the university's Oriental Institute, dean of the division of social sciences and provost. Adams did his archaeological field training in Jarmo, Iraq, and Yucatan, Mexico, and his field studies in history irrigation and urban settlement have taken him to Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Iran. He is the author of numerous books and serves as an adjunct professor at Johns Hopkins University.

Mary Maples Dunn has been president of Smith since 1985. A native of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., she graduated Phi Beta Kappa from William and Mary with an A.B. degree in history, then enrolled at Bryn Mawr College, where she received M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. She was a member of the Bryn Mawr faculty for 27 years, serving as professor, acting dean, dean of the undergraduate college, and academic deputy to the president. Dunn's research interests include women in colonial America and William Penn. The author of several books on Penn, she and her husband Richard S. Dunn are editors of "The Papers of William Penn," Vols. I and II.

Denys Wilkinson, an internationally recognized physicist, has made major contributions to the instrumentation and theory of physical science. A native of Leeds, England, he received undergraduate, graduate and doctorate degrees from Cambridge University. He has worked on both the British and Canadian atomic projects and has taught at Cambridge, Oxford University and Sussex, where he has served as vice chancellor since 1976. He has lectured at many institutions around the world, including William and Mary, where on several occasions he has been a visiting lecturer in the department of physics.

Baccalaureate speaker Martin Marty is recognized as one of the country's foremost religious authorities, serving as editor of the weekly The Christian Century, editor of the fortnightly newsletter Context, and co-editor of the quarterly Church History. He is president of the Park Ridge Center, an institute for the study of health, faith and ethics, and is the Fairfax M. Cone Distinguished Service Professor of the History of Modern Christianity at the University of Chicago, where he received his Ph.D. in 1956. A native of West Point, Neb., Marty served 10 years in the Lutheran pastorate, then joined the Chicago faculty where he has taught in the Divinity School, the Committee on History and Culture, and the history department. He is the author of some 40 books, and serves as project director for a five-year fundamentalism project for the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Student Ambassadors Link William and Mary Generations

By Virginia Collins '77

With diplomas in hand on Sunday, May 14, a group of 11 seniors will be leaving William and Mary with more than just academic credentials. As graduating members of the Student Alumni Liaison Council (SALC), they have developed valuable leadership skills and gained an appreciation for William and Mary that goes beyond their four years on campus.

"Being a liaison has placed me in the role of representing today's student at William and Mary," says Linda Hartevelde '89, this year's SALC chairman. "Alumni want to know what students are doing and thinking — how things are different than when they were here."

By the same token, Hartevelde is energized by talking to alumni about their experiences as students. "Never in a million years would I have expected to meet so many interesting people and share with them the common experience of William and Mary."

The Society of the Alumni established the SALC in 1981 under the direction of its chapter director, a post most recently held by Diane Hagemann '75.

With a current membership of 20 students, the SALC participates in all major events sponsored by the Society, such as Olde Guard Day, Burgesses Day, Homecoming, Alumni College and the 50th Reunion weekend. Whether taking tickets at a Homecoming dinner or shaking hands with the Governor at Burgesses' Day, they play an active role as ambassadors for the College.

One of the liaisons' most successful activities since 1984 includes speaking at admissions receptions each spring. Alumni chapters sponsor the receptions for applicants who have just received acceptance letters from William and Mary.

"We're able to offer a peer-level, personalized view of the College and explain why it has been a good choice for us," says Linda Hartevelde. "From the feedback we receive, the prospective students and their parents really appreciate the personal interest we show."

Dave Varner '86, who served as a liaison for three years, credits the experience with opening a number of doors for him. Now manager of educational programming for Sigma Chi fraternity's international headquarters in Chicago, he has continued an active involvement in College activities.

Like many former liaisons, Varner serves on the Young Guard Council. This group functions under the umbrella of alumni chapters to serve graduates of the past five years or less. The Young Guard Council works closely with chapter leaders to plan annual events that will appeal to young alumni.

Varner also volunteers as a class agent, working with the College's office of annual support. In addition, he is a member of the Alumni Admissions Network, which assists the admissions office with the voluminous task of interviewing applicants each year.

"So many graduating seniors say 'Goodbye, it has been fun, but now it's over,'" says Varner. "Being a liaison gave me a sense of continuity. It's not over when you graduate. There are so many vehicles of opportunity where you can become involved and make a difference."

Joanna Ashworth '84 is another graduate who has taken advantage of the vehicles of opportunity first offered through the liaison experience. As vice president of her senior class, Ashworth was an ex-officio member of the SALC. Her stereotyped views of alumni were quickly dispelled once she became involved.

"I loved working with the Olde Guard," says Ashworth. "They are such great people and so loyal to the College."

After graduation, she served on the Young Guard Council, which led to her holding major offices, including president, in the Metropolitan Washington, D. C. chapter. The chapter has thrived under Ashworth's leadership and was named Chapter of the Year in 1988.

Diversity is considered one of the SALC's greatest strengths. Members represent all class years, a variety of majors, numerous interests, and hometowns both inside and outside Virginia. Members are often active in other campus organizations. Both Greeks and non-Greeks are represented.

Competition to become a liaison has become stiffer in recent years. Any interested student may apply, and this year 50 students vied for 11 openings. Successful applicants are carefully selected by current liaisons and a Society representative based on a personal interview and written application.

Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni, has worked with student alumni organizations for more than 10 years. He envisions a number of ways in which William and Mary's group might extend its reach in the future.

One example is the Student Host Program, organized and conducted by the liaisons for the first time this spring. High school juniors and seniors with alumni ties were given the opportunity to stay with individual liaisons, attend classes and otherwise experience university life for a 24-hour period.

"The SALC has the dual ability to improve the quality of life for students and to serve as a transition from life on campus to life as alumni," says Adams.

"Here, within the Alumni Society, we encompass all elements of the university — students, faculty, alumni. The interaction with our student liaisons is one means of enriching the Society's programs and uniting the past and present."

Sam Sadler '64, dean of student affairs, expressed similar thoughts when he addressed the liaisons at a recent dinner held in their honor. "Alumni see in you many of the same qualities that were so important to them, but they see this in a present-day setting. It reminds me of a phrase former President Paschall was fond of using: 'Knitting the generations each to each.' That's exactly what your group does."

At a dinner on April 5 honoring the liaisons, senior Anne Humphries and junior Chris Thomson shared views with John Entwisle '44, a member of the Alumni Society's board of directors.

BY WILFORD KALE '66

A $4.4 million renovation of Blow Gymnasium, which cost $150,000 to build, will change the former athletic and recreation facility into a classroom and office building. Blow opened originally in 1925.

An era at William and Mary has ended with the closing of George Preston Blow Gymnasium.

Opened in 1925, the building ceased to be an athletic facility early this year when workers began tearing out the interior as part of a major renovation. They will create classrooms and staff and faculty offices.

Its closing recalls stories, some true and others probably apocryphal, about life at the old building.

H. Lester Hooker Jr. '43 said the small gym with its second-story track was the main men's basketball facility when he came to William and Mary.

"When we played in the small gym you couldn't shoot from the corners of the basketball court because the arc of the shot would take the ball into the bottom of the track. It always bothered visiting teams," recalled Hooker, who later was basketball coach at William and Mary and the University of Richmond and athletic director at the College.

During his college days, Hooker said, a larger, 2,000-seat gymnasium was added to the building, which was convenient for college dances and convocations.

Howard M. Smith '43, a longtime professor of physical education and chairman of the department from 1951 to 1978, recalled that the University of North Carolina swimming team came to W&M for a meet in 1950, primarily because its star, John Thomas, wanted to break the Southern Conference record for the 220-yard freestyle.

The old record was set in a 20-yard pool and W&M had the only one (in Blow Gym's basement) left in the conference, Smith said. He called it "just a bathtub."

For Smith and many other alumni, Blow Gym is remembered as the site of many social activities, especially the large formal dances of the 1930s and 1940s. The first College dances were held April 17 and 18, 1925, before the formal dedication June 8.

"I was chairman of the College dance committee for about 10 years," Smith said, "and we had big name bands, like Lionel Hampton, Benny Goodman and Harry James. At the time, we used both the big and little gyms and the dance floor was set up in the middle of the two, where the folding partition stood.

"There was always a full house for the big weekends when there were dances on Friday and Saturday nights. Chief Kelley and the Smith brothers were the city's entire police force and we used them for dance security. It was something," he said with a chuckle.

The gyms were elaborately decorated "right up to their hilt," Smith said. "The students always waited (to decorate) until right up to the last minute, but they always pulled it off."

Anne N. Lambert '35, a member of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni and widow of longtime dean of students J. Wilfred Lambert '27, attended many "nice dances. When I was in school, we had three big weekends, openings, midwinters and finals. We also had a dance every Saturday night with our own W&M band.

"If your date had 50 cents for the dance and 10 cents for two Cokes, you had it made. That was right in the depths of the Depression."

From 1926 to 1928, the W&M band that played was the Indian Serenaders led by Cotton Rawls. Other bands played through the 1930s, but none captured the students' attention like the Serenaders did.

Mrs. Lambert also recalled that a group of young faculty members went to all the Saturday night dances and the formal dances, right up to the war.

"And we had a good time at those dances. The students were real kind at breaking in and dancing with those old (faculty) ladies, all of 27, 28 or maybe 29 years of age," she said with a smile.

The large gym will be converted into faculty offices and classrooms, primarily for use by the School of Business Administration. Other parts of the building will house offices for the dean of student activities and student services.

The building was given to the College by the widow of Blow, a Navy captain and W&M alumnus. Its cost was about $150,000; the renovation will cost $4.4 million.

From 1940 to 1970, the basketball court was legendary. The cramped quarters were bad news for visiting teams.

Chuck Noe, a University of Virginia alumnus and former basketball coach at Virginia Military Institute and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, recalled that "it was just a tough place to play.

"It was like a lot of others, like 'the Pit' at VMI and a host of other small, old gyms. At William and Mary, the fans sat right on the sidelines and put their toes on the out-of-bounds line.

"They had the noisiest people. They put the visiting team at one end right under one of those spiral staircases. People would hang off the staircase and throw peanuts at us.

"At the beginning, it seems like some of the meanest guys in the world sat right behind our teams."

Back in those days, Noe explained, "when you played away from home, it was tough. W&M was tough."

Hooker added that "people used to say you always had 10 points for home court advantage in gymnasiums like Blow."

"There was always a certain advantage at Blow when there was a good crowd on the mezzanine."

Hooker and Noe recalled that the backboards were attached to the mezzanine, and fraternity men would sit behind the visitors' goal and stamp their feet often causing the basket to move, thwarting otherwise good shots.

Bill Chambers '53, head coach from 1958 to 1963, agreed with Hooker and Noe.

"The crowd was pretty tough on opponents and made life a little miserable. They were vocal and always on your side; you had a distinct advantage, not like the spacious areas of today.

Lefty Driesell, now coach at James Madison University, brought his nationally ranked Davidson College team to Blow in the early 1960s.

"It was small with that balcony, fans were close, very close to the floor. But every gym like that was tough on the road. (Blow Gym) wasn't the best then, but it wasn't the worst."

Driesell received his master's degree in education in 1961 from William and Mary.

"I used to work out in the gym and I hung around there often."

He later refused to play in the cozy gym, and the last game was played there in 1970. Since then the building has been used for intramurals and ROTC classes until this semester.

Chambers said, "I'll always remember our dressing room by the swimming pool was always hot and steamy, like an old sauna bath.

"As a player, we didn't consider the gym that much out of size or shape with the rest of the world. Everybody played in a square box-type gym. I enjoyed Blow; it was special. I hate to see it go."

RESERVE YOUR SEAT FROM BLOW GYM

While an active chapter in Blow Gym's history came to a close earlier this year, it's still possible to preserve some of the memories. The Society of the Alumni has secured a limited quantity of boards from Blow's bleachers and is in the process of preparing memento seats for interested individuals. Specially engraved plates will be attached to 12-inch bleacher sections and will be made available for $50 each. Seating is limited, so reserve your seat today. Please write: Bleacher Project, P.O. Box 60, Williamsburg, VA 23187, or call (804) 229-1693.

Blow Gymnasium did double duty as an athletic area and romantic setting for dances in its heyday.

William and Mary fans made life miserable for opposing teams in Blow Gymnasium. "It seemed like some of the meanest guys in the world sat right behind our teams," remembers one coach.

PHOTOS FROM COLONIAL ECHO

William and Mary's Danielle Gallagher is one of three college players to make it to the final cut, which will be made in June, for America's lacrosse team in the World Games scheduled for Australia this fall.

Danielle Gallagher— Local Heroine

By Marty Benson

To be able to shoot those shots more consistently, Gallagher has followed a rigorous training program, designed by Pat Turczany, associate athletic trainer at the College, to prepare her for the World Games competition, both mentally and physically.

When folks around Manhasset, Long Island, get into "the greatest local sports hero" debate, the discussion is as short-lived as an open parking space in the nearby Big Apple. After all, how many towns can boast of a native son the likes of Jim Brown, whom some still call the greatest football player ever and many others call the greatest lacrosse player ever? Throw in the fact that Brown also lettered in basketball and track at Syracuse University and he wins, no contest.

When the Islanders' conversation turns to female athletes, however, chances are not many names are thrown around before someone mentions Danielle Gallagher, who, like Brown, starred for Manhasset High School on the lacrosse field and also starred in basketball, field hockey and cross country.

In lacrosse, a game in which she first played as a sixth-grader in a boys' Police Athletic League, she was a four-year member of the varsity at Manhasset, earning All-America recognition as a junior and senior and leading her team to the state championship as a senior while playing for Head Coach Pam Monfort, for whom she also played basketball as a freshman. Gallagher's accomplishments on the court were every bit as impressive as they were on the field. She led Manhasset to the state "B" championship as a junior, and was named all-league, conference and division. As a senior, she repeated on the all-county team and was named second-team all-Long Island. Not satisfied with playing just two sports after her freshman year, she stepped into the cross-country world in the fall of her sophomore year and promptly earned all-county harrier honors. But she gave up running competitively for field hockey, a sport in which, you guessed it — she garnered all-county honors as a senior.

Gallagher's talents presented her with the opportunity to play either lacrosse or basketball in college. But she chose the former "because the schools (in lacrosse) offered me better opportunities with better schools."

She wound up at William and Mary thanks in part to a videotape that she sent Feffie Barnhill, director of field hockey and lacrosse at William and Mary. Just the fact that she sent the tape, which wasn't a common thing to do back then, caught the attention of Barnhill, but not as much as what she saw when she pushed her VCR's play button.

"She looked like a basketball point guard

(the way she passed and moved) on the lacrosse field," Barnhill remembers. "I didn't have to watch long to notice her natural athletic talent. She also shot the ball harder than I had seen a high school player shoot."

The Tribe coach, who is the assistant coach for the United States lacrosse team for the 1989 World Games, was impressed even more when she met Danielle.

"She had a drive and desire to be as good as she could be (play on an international level), that you don't hear many players seriously talk about at that age. Many wish it, but she planned to do it."

Danielle says much of that drive comes from her father, who is a nationally competitive master's swimmer and has swum the 26-mile distance around Manhattan Island.

Barnhill eventually offered the all-around athlete a scholarship for both lacrosse and field hockey, which Gallagher chose over offers from Virginia, Maryland and Vermont. She began producing almost immediately.

As a freshman, she scored three goals and had one assist for the field hockey team in the fall. In the spring she earned a starting position on the lacrosse team, scoring 26 goals with eight assists, for 34 points, the fourth highest total on the team. Her field-hockey numbers increased to six goals and four assists as a sophomore, tying her for the team lead in scoring. In lacrosse, her goal production fell to 24, but her basketball point-guard instincts allowed her to post a Magic Johnson-like 24 assists (tying the school record), while she served as a feeder for first-team All-America Lisa Miller '87.

It is her passing, not goal scoring, which Gallagher enjoys most. She says her most memorable high school play was an assist in a Long Island championship game against Cold Spring Harbor. She drew both defenders on a two-on-two fast break, passing for the game-winning assist.

In the fall of her junior year at William and Mary, the business major fulfilled one of her lifelong desires and spent a semester in London studying liberal arts at the American Institute of Foreign Study in London. Although she loved the experience and plans to return, it had its price. Field hockey was finished and lacrosse suffered.

"The trip was more than I ever expected," she says. "There is just so much more out there than we usually see."

"It did take its toll on lacrosse — no one played over there. I was forced to work out on my own and there was always something else to do."

Admittedly not in the shape she should have been when she returned for the second semester of her junior year, Danielle pulled a hamstring and missed the first two contests of what would be a 13-game season. One of the only veterans on an extremely young offense, Gallagher sat and watched as the Tribe defense keyed two victories over Boston College and Northwestern. She returned to the lineup against Richmond and promptly scored three goals and had four assists, then helped lead the Tribe to another victory before a 12-8 setback by defending national champion Penn State gave W&M its first loss. The team didn't lose again until the first round of the NCAA playoffs, and Gallagher, who finished the year with 29 goals and 18 assists, plus honorable mention All-America honors, was one of the main reasons.

That fact was never more evident than in the South Atlantic Conference playoffs. In the semifinals, the Tribe pulled out an 8-7 overtime win over Loyola after trailing the entire game. Gallagher was directly responsible for seven of the eight goals, scoring six and assisting on another. Included in her goals was an unassisted goal that tied the game with 29 seconds left, forcing overtime. In the championship game against James Madison, W&M fell behind again, this time 4-1 with 23:48 remaining. The plan for the comeback was the same as the previous day's.

"Danielle said give me the ball and let me score, and that's what we did," Barnhill remembers.

Simple but effective. Gallagher scored two goals, then assisted Margie Vaughan as part of a set play that was vintage Danielle.

"The play we had set up for her didn't exactly work, but she read the defense well and we still scored," Barnhill says.

The score went back to 5-5 before Gallagher, naturally, scored the game-winner with 3:56 left.

The storybook season ended with a 7-6 loss to Harvard in the first round of the NCAA playoffs in a game in which the Tribe had to battle back from a 6-0 first-half deficit to make it close.

That loss is serving as a motivational factor for the 1989 Tribe, which returns the entire offense, plus the majority of the defense.

"We have more confidence this year," Gallagher says. "One year of playing together helps a lot, especially on offense."

Danielle and her teammates won't have to wait long to find out what it will take to win the national title. The Tribe faces defending national champion Temple on the season's first weekend.

"If we win, people are going to be after us; if we lose, people will think we're not as strong as we should be," says the Tribe co-captain. "Both could be advantageous, but we obviously want to win."

"All the pressure is on them."

As much of a rival as Temple is, Danielle hopes to be seeing more and more of Sue Stahl, the Owls' head coach, who will serve as head coach of the U.S. team to the World Cup, which will be held in Australia this coming September. A member of the 60-player United States Squad, a developmental group for the World Games, Gallagher is now one of three current college players out of 30 overall to have made it all the way to the final cut (15 or 16 are kept), which will be made in June.

Barnhill said she was pleasantly surprised with how well Danielle did in the tryouts.

"Playing against players who had been on the team for eight years, I thought she might try to force too much and cause some turnovers, but she fed well and made some unbelievable shots, one of which no goalie could have stopped — I can still see it in my mind."

To be able to shoot those shots more consistently, Gallagher has followed a rigorous training program, designed by Pat Turczany, associate athletic trainer at the College, to prepare her for the World Games competition, both mentally and physically.

"She has worked very hard this year to become quicker and more powerful and I'm already seeing the difference," Barnhill says. "Now that everyone knows about her, she's going to need it because she will take a beating."

Barnhill says that Gallagher is one of the two or three best players in her age group in the country now, and if she sticks with it, she could be the best, a term usually reserved for another Manhasset alumnus.

Volunteerism—

A Long William and Mary Tradition

By Christy niDonnell

William and Mary has plenty of traditions in the classroom and on the competitive sports field. But there's another area of endeavor which links the past to the future and the campus to the community. That's the field of volunteerism, which, according to administration, students and community representatives, is alive and thriving at the College.

Kenneth Smith '69, associate dean of student affairs for activities and organizations, described the interest among students in volunteering as "strong," and the range of projects and commitments as "wide." The tradition has been around for a while, he said, with some periods being more active than others. The past couple of years have seen a resurgence in interest, he added, pointing out that there are groups that have grown up around volunteering.

In addition to service-based organizations, Smith noted that all fraternities and sororities have philanthropies, either national or local. They serve as Big Brothers or Sisters, raise funds for an agency, or sponsor blood drives. They tutor young children or adults learning to read, help out at nursing homes or stage carnivals on campus for area youngsters.

The two big volunteerism guns on campus have to be Alpha Phi Omega and Circle K. The former is a fraternity (with both male and female members) patterned on the Boy Scout organization and operated like other Greek fraternities. APO has 250 active members and 80 pledges this year. The latter must pledge to do at least 10 hours of service a semester, although most do more, said Douglas Adams.

Adams, a junior from Vienna, Austria, majoring in international government, has been in APO since the beginning of last year. He is coordinator of one of the fraternity's standing projects, the on-campus escort service. Operating from a basement office in Landrum Hall, APO escorts are available seven days a week, 7 p.m. to 1 a.m., to women who must otherwise walk alone across campus. Adams says the service, which has had slow periods in the past, now averages 15 calls per night for escorts (either one man or two women volunteers).

In addition to the escort service, APO has several "set" projects, according to Adams. Brothers go to the Pines Nursing Home to entertain the residents and run bingo games. They plan parties at Eastern State Hospital. They exercise dogs for the Williamsburg SPCA.

As individuals they become Big Brothers and Sisters for local children. As a group they plan organizational meetings and socials for the kids and prospective companions. There are also activities on behalf of the Special Olympics, including a bowling league and a track and field tournament.

The fraternity also puts on one-time or occasional events, such as sponsoring a blood drive on campus, or masterminding and executing October's Monster Bash, in which 24 campus organizations put on a children's carnival that raised $800 for UNICEF. This extravaganza, which included an extremely popular booth where kids got to throw pies at W&M students, was started in 1987, and may become one of APO's set projects. The fraternity also sponsors "Super Dance" in February, proceeds from which benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

One of the major community projects APO takes part in is Housing

Partnerships, Inc., a program administered by community agencies, and depending on donated materials and volunteer labor to renovate and repair substandard housing in the Williamsburg-James City County-York County area. While some of the workers come from community groups, campus organizations—including Circle K, fraternities and sororities, ROTC, Some Young Carpenters and dorm associations—provide the backbone of the force.

Kimberly Fox, Student Volunteer Coordinator for HPI, described the input from the College as "fantastic. If we didn't have the students, a lot of work wouldn't get done."

Fox, a 1988 graduate of William & Mary, got involved with the organization through Some Young Carpenters, and applied for the permanent position upon graduation. It's an unusual job, and a satisfying one, she said.

The program works through community social workers who identify projects at the outset. An estimator sizes up the job, materials are donated by local businesses or bought with donated funds, and student volunteers go out under the guidance of experienced carpenters, plumbers or electricians, as needed for the job. On a recent Saturday morning, HPI had five projects going, with 30 student volunteers.

Housing Partnerships is one of the standing projects for Circle K, according to Jeanna Wilson, president of the organization. Wilson, a senior from Fredricksburg majoring in education, has been in Circle K since her freshman year. She hadn't gone into volunteering while in high school, but as part of the growth process of college, she felt she had to get involved. The experience has been enlightening.

"It has changed the way I look at a community and really become involved in it," she said. "You think of volunteering after you fulfill your other expectations. But younger people can get things done, too."

In particular, Wilson liked the Williamsburg Area Tutorial Service (WATS), the biggest of Circle K's standing projects. WATS brings Circle K members together with area preschoolers in a program reminiscent of Head Start.

There are other projects—involving the Special Olympics, participation in the Monster Bash, Big Brothers and Sisters, and others. In December, Circle K sponsors a Turkey Walk, a two-mile walking event to raise funds for the American Cancer Society.

As president, Wilson is looking for ways to bring the organization together, to make it more like a fraternal society and to coordinate activities with other campus groups.

"Being a service organization isn't all fun," she pointed out. "You have to make it fun."

Mary Dotson, a graduate assistant to the associate dean, is currently in the process of analyzing the volunteer effort at William and Mary. Through a campus-wide survey of all student organizations, she hopes to find out exactly what people are doing, what they think should be done, and how the administration can coordinate efforts more effectively.

Help Unlimited, run from Smith's office, currently acts as a broker between the community and the campus, and among college organizations. Dotson would like to see improved communication to and from Help Unlimited, so that participation will be enhanced and there will be greater visibility both on and off campus.

While some of the workers come from community groups, campus organizations—including Circle K, fraternities and sororities, ROTC, Some Young Carpenters and dorm associations—provide the backbone of the force.

Members of Circle K contribute their time to the WATS program, which works with underprivileged children in the Williamsburg area.

Virginia Kerns '70— A Role Model for Women

BY MARK DI VINCENZO

Benjamin J. Davies came to William and Mary to study physics, but when he couldn't get all the classes he wanted in his first semester, he took an introductory anthropology course taught by Virginia Kerns '70.

Davies, now a senior, is majoring in physics and anthropology.

One of her most memorable experiences was a time in 1973 and 1974, when she lived with and studied the Black Caribs, a group living on the coast of Belize in the Caribbean. There was no electricity, roads or indoor plumbing, and the modes of transportation consisted of dugout canoe and feet. The nearest doctor was 60 miles away.

"I probably would have never taken the course," he said, "but there were seats open in it, and, being a freshman, I couldn't get into other courses I wanted. I didn't even know what anthropology was, but after a while, I decided to major in it, largely because of Dr. Kerns. She was very knowledgeable, personable, easy to approach; I was impressed by that."

In February, Kerns, a cultural anthropologist was wearing a cap and gown, standing on a stage in William and Mary Hall with the chancellor, rector, president, governing board, Dutch royalty and English nobility, listening to applause directed at her and accepting the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award.

It was only six years after she had become unexpectedly unemployed and was asking herself: What will I do? Where will I work? How much will my life change?

One of four anthropologists hired by Virginia Tech in 1978 to develop an anthropology program, Kerns was on her way to distinguishing herself as a leading scholar and expert on gender relationships by 1983, when funding cuts forced the university to disband the program.

Vacant college teaching slots for cultural anthropologists, even good ones, were scarce — there were two nationwide.

"It was a very painful time," she recalled. "It was a great loss to me. By then I had given 14 years of my life to anthropology."

She took a job as a consultant with the United Nations in India, while checking on available teaching jobs in the United States and keeping in touch with former colleagues as best she could. After a year-and-a-half, she learned of an opening at William and Mary, where she had taught during the 1977-78 school year. The job was hers if she wanted it, she was told. She did, but first she worked for a few months with the United Nations in Rome.

"Traditionally, anthropologists see academia as a place they want to be, and I've always seen myself in academia," she said. "I think my field is important, and it's important for me to teach it, to explain how people are different, to explain cultural differences. If we are to become more tolerant and humane, we must understand the differences between men."

"This has had a profound effect on the way I see the world."

She equates that experience with winning the Thomas Jefferson award. The same joy. The same pride. The same overpowering satisfaction.

Some women students of Dr. Kerns say they want to grow up to be just like her.

"In the field of anthropology, you tend to look more closely for a sponsor, a mentor," said Caroline D. Peterson, a senior anthropology major, "and she's a model for us."

"I've been to five universities now, and she's definitely one of the best teachers I've had. She's very centered and knowledgeable in a lot of different areas, and she listens to people. Not all professors will do that. She shares her personal experiences in the field, and those are great."

One of her most memorable was a time in 1973 and 1974, when she lived with and studied the Black Caribs, a group living on the coast of Belize in the Caribbean. There was no electricity, roads or indoor plumbing, and the modes of transportation consisted of dugout canoe and feet. The nearest doctor was 60 miles away.

While there, she studied gender relationships and found that middle-aged women are highly respected and play a vital role in the community. Her book, "Women and the Ancestors: Black Carib Kinship and Ritual," details her work and distinguishes her as an expert on the Caribbean and gender relationships.

She chose to study Caribbean culture because men and women there tend to be regarded more as equals, compared to other cultures. It was an added challenge, she said, that most gender research had been done on cultures where extreme inequality existed rather than equality.

Kerns continues to keep busy outside the classroom. She will be co-editing a revised edition of "In Her Prime: A New View of Middle-Aged Women," a collection of case studies on middle-aged women worldwide.

She has also begun to do research for a book on an American anthropologist named Julian H. Steward, who is known for his research on native cultures of North and Latin America.

"She has always impressed me," said W&M anthropology professor Nathan Altshuler, who taught Kerns and was chair of the department from 1968 to 1975.

"Her colleagues call her a pioneer; that's really deserving. Virginia doesn't have any short suits."

Although she said she was "destined to become an anthropologist," Kerns said she never heard of anthropology until she was 16. She was interested in writing, and a high school English teacher lent her two books she considered to be well written. One was called "The Immense Journey" by anthropologist Loren Eiseley, which Kerns describes as "a story about the history of life on Earth."

Born in California, Kerns lived in many cities there before moving to Denver and to Fort Wayne, Ind., "a corporation brat," following her parents around the country. The "sight of the brick buildings and ivy" during a vacation to Williamsburg and five W&M alumni in her family drew her to the College, she said, but there was no "master plan" to return to teach.

"It's hard to explain why I like to teach," says Kerns. "It's frustrating at times because you don't know what the students are thinking about this or that — if they're thinking anything at all."

"Teaching is an act of faith. . . that something is sinking in. You have to have that optimism. You never really finish teaching. You say, 'This is what I've been able to do; that is to be enough.'"

Virginia Kerns '70, who first joined the William and Mary faculty in 1977, received the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award at Charter Day in February in recognition of her outstanding accomplishments in the classroom.

Make Your Plans: Only Six Months to Homecoming!

At T minus six months and counting, plans are well under way for this year's Homecoming celebration scheduled for the weekend of Nov. 2 - 5.

Reunion chairmen for the classes of 1944, 1949, 1954, 1959, 1964, 1969, 1974, 1979 and 1984 met in early March to finalize details for special class events. In April, letters with information on the weekend and hotel reservation forms were mailed to all reunion-class alumni.

Alumni are responsible for making their own reservations directly with the hotel, rather than through the Society of the Alumni. The August issue of the Alumni Gazette will carry a list of general availability hotels for the benefit of alumni from non-reunion classes.

Themed "The Best of Times," Homecoming weekend will be highlighted by the Society of the Alumni Annual Dinner on Friday evening at the Williamsburg Lodge, the Homecoming Parade on Saturday morning at 9:30, followed by the football game against East Tennessee State University and a post-game "Tentgater" celebration for all alumni. A number of special events are being planned, including the first reunion of theatre and speech department alumni.

Watch the June and August issues of the Alumni Gazette for further details.

Terry, Bowen Named to Board

Secretary of the Commonwealth Sandra D. Bowen '63 of Richmond and author Wallace H. Terry of Alexandria have been named to four-year terms on the William and Mary Board of Visitors.

Mrs. Bowen, who is also the 3rd District Democratic leader, was named Secretary of the Commonwealth by Gov. Gerald Baliles in 1986. Prior to that, she served as special assistant to Gov. Charles S. Robb. After graduating from William and Mary with a degree in history, she received an M.A. degree in political science from the University of Richmond. She is a past trustee of the Athletic Education Fund, past president of the Richmond Chapter of the Society of the Alumni, and a member of the Tercentenary Observances Commission of the College.

Mrs. Bowen succeeds Henry T. Tucker Jr. '72 of Richmond, former vice rector of the Board, who was not eligible for reappointment.

Terry was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in 1984 for his book titled "Bloods: An Oral History of the Vietnam War by Black Veterans." Educated at Brown University where he is a former trustee, he did graduate work in theology as a Rockefeller Fellow at the University of Chicago and in international relations as a Nieman Fellow at Harvard University. A member of the Parents Association Steering Committee, he is the father of David Terry, a junior at the College.

Terry will complete the term of the late Carlisle H. Humelsine, former president and chairman of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. Humelsine died on Jan. 26.

Appointed to a second four-year term on the Board of Visitors are Stewart H. Gamage '72 of Alexandria, director of Gov. Baliles' Virginia Liaison Office in Washington; and James E. Ukrop '60 of Richmond, president of Ukrop's Supermarkets Inc. Gilbert M. Grosvenor, president and chairman of the National Geographic Society, who was appointed in December 1988 to complete the unexpired term of former Gov. A. Linwood Holton, was appointed to his first four-year term.

Suzanne Tucker Joins Marshall-Wythe School of Law Staff

Suzanne Tucker

Suzanne Tucker of Williamsburg has been named assistant director of alumni affairs for the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Ms. Tucker will be responsible for coordinating special events and the production of publications for the law school's 3,000 alumni. She will report jointly to the law school and the Society of the Alumni.

In her most recent position, Ms. Tucker established and managed the American Red Cross office at the Naval Submarine Base in Kings Bay, Ga. Prior to that, she served as assistant director of admissions for the University of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif., where her duties involved arranging programs for visitors, including representatives from foreign governments interested in placing students in the United States. Additionally, she was a member of the admissions staff at the University of Maryland in College Park, Md., where she coordinated the production of all undergraduate admissions materials.

Ms. Tucker holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin and a master's degree from the University of Maryland.

Seniors Explore Real Life 101 Through LADS Program

More than 160 seniors learned about the practicalities of everyday life at the annual Life After Dog Street Program held the evenings of Feb. 21 and 22 at the Alumni House. First organized in 1980 under the joint sponsorship of the Society of the Alumni and the senior class, this popular program offers seniors a chance to learn from alumni about some of the practical decisions they will face as independent adults.

Alumni volunteers from the Williamsburg and Richmond chapters participated in this year's session and led panel discussions on everything from renting an apartment to choosing a doctor to applying for credit.

Participants from the Richmond chapter included Geoffrey S. Beitner '70, insurance agent with New York Life; Thomas Emerson DuBois '83 and '86 J.D., attorney with Mays and Valentine; Mary Reese Carson Jones '83, branch manager with Fidelity Federal Savings Bank; Ellen MacDonald Shaffer '81, branch manager with Investors Savings; Erin A. Sheehy '84 and '87 J. D., an attorney in private practice; and Dr. Frederick P. Woodlief III '72, a dentist.

Williamsburg area alumni who volunteered were Gene Griffin '66, an attorney in private practice; Scott Hayes '78, real estate agent with Berkeley Realty; Michael Johnson '76, branch manager with Crestar Bank; Andy Pare '79, real estate agent with Berkeley Realty; and J. Stephen Roberts '77 J. D., attorney with Stephens and Roberts.

Williamsburg area alumni who spoke to seniors included Scott Hayes (from left), J. Stephen Roberts, Michael Johnson, Andy Pare and Gene Griffin (not shown).

Contributions of Society Staff Members Praised

The Society of the Alumni staff bid farewell in April to Diane Kessel Hagemann '75, director of alumni chapters, and Todd L. Larkin '85, director of alumni services. Mrs. Hagemann plans to begin full-time graduate study at William and Mary in the School of Education. Larkin has accepted a position as district representative with the Aide Association for Lutherans in Newport News.

A member of the Society's staff since 1981, Mrs. Hagemann worked with all aspects of programming and event coordination for the Society's more than 40 chapters across the country. In addition, she administered young alumni and student programs, such as the Young Guard Council and the Student Alumni Liaison Council.

Larkin, who has worked for the Society since 1987, was responsible for the educational travel program, the merchandise program, scheduling of the Alumni House, and special alumni services, such as the life and health insurance program.

"The Society is deeply indebted to Diane and Todd for their many contributions, and we wish them well as they undertake new challenges," stated Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society.

"Under Diane's leadership, the Student Alumni Liaison Council, the alumni chapter network and a variety of other programs were strengthened significantly. In a relatively short time, Todd also contributed much to the development of services provided graduates. His energy and enthusiasm will be missed."

Coincidentally, a third member of the staff has left to pursue a longtime personal goal. Sandra Thomas, staff secretary, has moved to Richmond, Va., where she plans to enter the undergraduate program at Virginia Commonwealth University and work as administrative assistant to Dr. W. Avon Drake, director of Afro-American studies.

"We wish Diane, Todd and Sandra all the best," added Adams. "They have worked hard in the name of the College. We look forward to Diane and Todd's continuing participation in alumni programs. Their insights and advice undoubtedly will be valuable as we prepare to celebrate the Society's 150th anniversary in 1992 and the College's 300th birthday in 1993."

Mary Bicouvaris '70 M.Ed. is honored by President and Mrs. Bush after being named National Teacher of the Year by the Council of Chief State School Officers, Encyclopaedia Britannica Inc. and Good Housekeeping Magazine. A Greek immigrant who became a citizen in 1968, Mrs. "Bic," as she is called by her students, was selected from 2.5 million public school teachers for the award. She will take a paid sabbatical to tour the nation as teacher of the year and talk to education groups and civic organizations. (Daily Press photo)

Reves Center Contributes to International Understanding

BY JAMES A. BILL

The age of warrior kings and warrior presidents has passed. The nuclear age calls for a different kind of leadership—a leadership of intellect, judgment, tolerance, and rationality, a leadership committed to human values, to world peace, and to the improvement of the human condition.

Former Sen. J. William Fulbright in The Price of Empire

In 1945, a 41-year-old enterprising journalist and political analyst argued that until the world was ready to respect the rule of law, war would be inevitable. "We must search for the truth about peace," wrote Emery Reves in his international best seller, The Anatomy of Peace. "We shall never have peace if we do not have the courage to understand what it is (and) if we do not want to pay the price it costs."

The establishment of the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies at William and Mary will provide an environment to promote understanding between cultures. With the generous support of Mrs. Wendy Reves, who has donated $3 million to the International Studies Center in her husband's memory, the College has accepted a formidable yet vital task: to help build international understanding through the intensive study of foreign languages, cultures, economies and political systems.

The center's work is made all the more important because of the growing need to understand nations once considered, especially by many Westerners, only marginally important in the world scheme. That need became obvious to me during the years that I have lived and worked in Iran, and in a number of other Middle Eastern societies. Too few leaders in the United States have been willing to recognize that America's future and fate are intrinsically tied up with the 3.9 billion people who inhabit the Third World countries of Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America. What is more, Americans remain painfully ignorant and poorly informed about many of our international neighbors. The surprising and costly lesson of the Iranian revolution in many ways is yet to be learned. Knowledge and understanding of other cultures and other societies is a fundamental issue of American national security.

William and Mary is uniquely qualified to take on the task of building international understanding through education. As an institution of learning founded by British rulers, the College was financed by trade with foreign governments, when King William decreed that the College would receive a penny tax on every pound of tobacco exported from the colonies to nations other than England. In the almost three centuries since its founding, the College has consistently promoted an awareness of the world, especially through the study of Classical and foreign languages. It has pursued that study even during the periods of so-called "curricular reform" when Classical studies courses were dropped as irrelevant, or modern language courses were reduced to elective status. At William and Mary, competency in foreign languages and cultures has remained a key component of the educational experience.

To build understanding, the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies has begun breaking down barriers. First, the center will promote interregional and intercultural programs. The strategic focus will be on problems and issues that transcend specific regions, problems that deal with the environment, comparative education, justice and international law, political and economic development and the issues of war and peace themselves.

Second, the center will emphasize an interdisciplinary approach to examining these problems. The College provides the center with a rich reservoir of knowledge from which to draw. In East Asian studies, for example, the College's faculty members have visited China as Fulbright scholars, as directors of academic programs, and as participants in international conferences. The center will establish cooperative teaching and research as scholars drawn from a dozen different disciplines and specialties bring their particular expertise to bear upon the fundamental issues of the day.

In addition, the center will encourage students and scholars to cross the college boundaries on our campus, promoting cooperation among the schools of education, law and business. An excellent example of this cooperation occurred in August 1988, when the School of Education took a lead role in organizing the first Commonwealth of Virginia Seminar on East Asia, which brought together an array of international experts with the state's business leaders, teachers and students. Faculty and administrators from the College, along with members of the Governor's staff, oversaw an innovative two-week program of study, which featured presentations by many of the leading national and international authorities on East Asia.

But the center's outreach will not be limited to its campus. Just as important is the center's intent to increase the links between the College and the community, the state and the nation. There is unusual expertise in international relations in this part of the country. In the Williamsburg area alone, there is a strong pool of intellectual resources to draw upon. Just as the center "reaches out" to the schools and community, so too does it intend to "draw in" those in the area with special experience and expertise in international affairs.

The center has pulled together several international activities already established on campus. It serves as the coordinating office for the undergraduate interdisciplinary major in international studies, in which students may concentrate in East Asian, Latin American, or Russian/Soviet studies, or in international relations. A minor is offered in African studies, and plans for a concentration in Middle Eastern studies are well underway. In addition, the center oversees the operation of the university's study-abroad programs in France, England, Scotland, Spain, Italy, West Germany, the Netherlands Antilles and the People's Republic of China. It is also involved in helping to attract foreign students to campus for exchange programs and for full-time enrollment.

Students at William and Mary have already responded to the international studies program. More than 150 students are now degree candidates. That interest should grow as we unveil the center's new home in one of the College's vintage Georgian structures which has undergone a $1.8 million renovation. Along with the offices and personnel that oversee the center's programs, the building has been renovated to provide students with modern dormitory rooms, work areas, and the capacity to oversee their own international academic experience. The building is designed to be the dynamic nucleus about which international programs and international studies will grow and rotate.

With the dedication of the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies, the college has created the best possible environment for breaking through the barriers that inhibit understanding. As Emery Reves wrote more than 40 years ago: "We shall never have peace if we do not have the courage to understand what it is." At William and Mary we intend to build that understanding.

James A. Bill is the author of The Eagle and the Lion: The Tragedy of American-Iranian Relations. (Yale University, 1988)

With the generous support of Mrs. Wendy Reves, who has donated $3 million to the International Studies Center in her husband's memory, the College has accepted a formidable yet vital task: to help build international understanding through the intensive study of foreign languages, cultures, economies and political systems.

President Verkuil visits with Bettie Woodward James '23. Mrs. James served as charter president of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority when the William and Mary chapter was founded in 1922.

Retiring members of the Olde Guarde Council, whose terms will end in June when they become emeriti members of the Council, were recognized and presented with certificates. From left are William J. Rhodes Jr. '36, Katherine F. Lam '31, S. B. Savage '32, Agnes Brittingham Willard '29, E. Carlton Macon '28 and Mildred Layne '32. Barry Adams (at podium), executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni, also recognized Lota Spence Reid '33, outgoing president of the Council, and presented her with an engraved pewter plate.

Enjoying themselves at the reception were Harold M. Gouldman Jr. '37, Cecil Carlisle Harper '34, Ellen Latane Gouldman '37 and Jane Sunderland Broudy '37.

College Honors Olde Guarde at Annual Reunion

Sunny skies and crisp temperatures greeted more than 300 members of the Olde Guarde and their guests who returned to campus on April 12 for the College's annual salute to alumni who graduated 50 or more years ago. The event was held in William and Mary Hall.

As promised by Lota Spence Reid '33, chairman of the Olde Guarde Council, and Bertha Capps Sheeran '38, program chairman, the day was filled with food, fun and frolic. Following a mid-morning reception, President Paul R. Verkuil '61 welcomed the group and shared comments on the Glorious Revolution celebration, recent actions by the Virginia General Assembly that will benefit William and Mary, and other successes of the past year.

Performances by several campus groups added to the day's festivities. Entertainers included the College's concert band, jazz ensemble, the Tribe cheerleaders, and the William and Mary choir. Following a program of special selections, the choir led the group in sing-along of old favorites.

The day was even more special for reunion classes holding individual celebrations following lunch. Twelve alumni from the class of 1926 were present for their 60th reunion, and 33 classmates attended the 55th reunion of the class of 1934.

A span of 23 years, from 1916 to 1938, was represented. E. Ralph James '16 was recognized as the oldest alumnus present. Emil O. Johnson '34, chairman of his class reunion committee, received the "Roadrunner" award for traveling all the way from Austin, Texas.

Members of the class of 1934 celebrating their 55th reunion were (first row, from left) Jane Latham Inloes, Ada Kelley Hudnall, Anne Moreland Dickinson, Kitty Blanton Seay, Ruth Wilson James, Evelyn Robertson Shreeves, Alice Cohill Marquez, Helen Singer Dau, Harriett Pittard Beales, Clara Thompson Knight, Edith Pope Howitz, Sarah Pope Dix. Second row, from left: Frances Spindle Harris, Helene Adelaide Donnelly, Evelyn Louise Maynard Harris, Lillian Carmine Sterling, Nancy Hedgecock Broughton, Lucille Hurst Parrish, Elizabeth Wiley Toll, Dorothy Littlepage Allen, Helen S. Lukens, Frances Culbreth Deane and Margaret Wright Meroney. Third row, from left: Fred "Buckwheat" Stewart, Joseph Randolph Turner, W. Gordon Williamson, Henry Carter Land Jr., L. Eldon James, Emil O. Johnson, G. Ruffin Winfree, Cecil Carlisle Harper, Harold K. Broughton and Edward David Cohn.

Right, under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, the William and Mary Choir gave a spirited performance and led the Olde Guarde in a medley of old favorites.

Special Note

In the book, The Olde Guarde Remembers, several accounts do not give accurate dates for events. At the suggestion of the Olde Guarde Council, you may want to make the following changes in your book: page 7, Dr. Chandler became president in 1919; page 8, women students first came to William and Mary in September 1918.

"Exploring the Chesapeake Bay"

June 22 - 25

When and how did the Chesapeake Bay develop? Who are some of the people who earn their living from the Bay? What sort of vegetation lives in or around the Bay? Why does the Bay face an uncertain future and what is being done to protect it?

These questions and more will be explored during this year's Alumni College being sponsored June 22-25 by the Society of the Alumni at the College of William and Mary. Alumni, family members and friends are invited to return to campus for what promises to be an exciting look at one of the country's most treasured natural resources.

Although under the aegis of Virginia and Maryland, the Bay is hardly limited by these two states in terms of its national importance. As efforts to protect the Bay from environmental threats increase, regional and national attention continues to grow.

These efforts are directly supported by the College of William and Mary through the Virginia Institute of Marine Science (VIMS), the marine training and research facility administered by the College at Gloucester Point, Va. Furthermore, the Bay's long-term regional influence is reflected in history, geology, biology and sociology courses taught at William and Mary.

Faculty experts from VIMS and the departments of sociology and geology will present a comprehensive view of the Bay through illustrated lectures, a field trip and boat tour of the Bay. In addition, special events will make this return to college life even more memorable.

Enrollment is limited and participants are encouraged to register early. The deadline for registration is June 1, 1989.

Registration Details

• Cost — $300 per person includes all meals, lodging on campus in Jefferson Hall (recently renovated and air conditioned), tuition, fees and activities. 1989 Alumni Travel Program

The Society of the Alumni is pleased to announce an exciting and diverse lineup of destinations for the 1989 Travel Program. To learn more about any of these tours, please return the form below. If you have specific questions, please call the Society's travel program office at (804) 229-1693 Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. (EST).

ENGLAND

June 10-23, 1989 (14 days)

The historical roots of the College of William and Mary date back to 17th-century Europe and the age of the Glorious Revolution. This tour, specifically designed for the Society of the Alumni and the College, begins with a week in residence at Oxford University and continues on to explore the riches of the Netherlands. The combination of lectures by Oxford scholars, field trips, private visits to stately homes and castles, and festive meals with fellow alumni will make this trip especially memorable.

Itinerary-at-a-Glance

Begin your visit with an exciting program of classroom study and day excursions during your week in Oxford. Rich in associations with the era of the Glorious Revolution, it was from Oxford University that Sir Christopher Wren — the dominant architectural and artistic spirit of the 17th century and the designer of the original College of William and Mary — was graduated.

With Oxford University's department for external studies, the Society has developed a program that thoughtfully explores the late 17th century through its history, politics, architecture and decorative arts. Lawrence Goldman, tutor in history and politics in the department, will direct the seminars, calling upon lecturers from the faculty of history.

At Oxford, visit the Sheldonian Theatre, one of Wren's masterpieces. Day trips from Oxford will include Blenheim, home of the first Duke of Marlborough, and Winslow Hall, the only Wren house standing exactly as originally created. In London the group will visit Wren's famous St. Paul's Cathedral and tour the Banqueting Hall in Whitehall where William officially accepted the bill of rights before becoming king. Also visit Kensington Palace, which William and Mary bought and remodeled for themselves, as well as Hampton Court Palace and Gardens. At Stratford-upon-Avon, enjoy dinner and a performance at the Royal Shakespeare Theatre.

Learning is always much more fun in Oxford with stout ale in local pubs to fuel discussions, and tutors available during meals to converse informally with participants.

Armed with the historical background gained at Oxford, travel to the Netherlands where the group will reside at the Pulitzer Hotel in Amsterdam. While there, visit the Rijks Museum, one of the world's greatest museums, which houses innumerable masterpieces from the 17th century when Dutch painting flourished. Also visit the Royal Palace on Dam square and enjoy a canal ride on a privately chartered boat. Visit the Hague, a genteel city of patrician architecture and the center of government in the Netherlands. The Royal Palace Het Loo in Apeldoorn features a splendid collection of decorative arts, furniture and royal memorabilia, as well as magnificent baroque formal gardens. One of the most picturesque areas in the Netherlands, the lush Vecht River Valley shelters handsome villas, quaint towns and magnificent castles, including Castle Amerongen.

Included features: Special dinners, a reception with Her Royal Highness Princess Margriet, most meals, guest lecturers. Approximately $3700.00.

RUSSIA

July 6-18, 1989 (13 days)

Take a fascinating journey to a land as expansive as it is historic. Russia is a curious blend of medieval and modern, a diverse cultural tapestry woven with splendid museums, palaces and monuments. An intriguing land — you'll reflect on all you've seen long after you're home.

Itinerary-at-a-Glance

Your fascinating journey begins with your days in Moscow, Russia's cosmopolitan capital. You'll tour Red Square, view the colorful onion domes of St. Basil's Cathedral and Lenin's Tomb. Visit the Kremlin and its complex of palaces, cathedrals and museums, which house priceless art and antiques. You'll experience the fabulous Pushkin Museum, ride the celebrated Moscow subway with its chandeliers and paintings, and sample delicious Russian fare.

Your next two days will be spent in Vladimir, a medieval fortress city where you'll visit the tombs of the Princes of Vladimir and see the city's Golden Gate — a masterpiece of ancient architecture. Travel on to Suzdal where you'll wander through the narrow, unpaved streets to capture the charm of 12th-century shops. Marvel at the beautiful blue-domed Rozhdestvensky Cathedral and the white-washed Pokrovsky Convent.

Days seven through nine will be spent in Yalta, a favorite vacation resort of Russian aristocracy on the scenic Black Sea. Stroll along its many lovely beaches and parks, and visit Nikitsky Gardens — a breathtaking, 500-acre landscaped terrace. You'll visit ornate Czarina Livadia's Palace, tour the fascinating Anton Chekhov Memorial Museum and shop for Russian handicrafts.

Follow this with three days in Leningrad, "music set in stone." You'll be inspired by the monuments, spires and bridges that grace this city. Explore the stately Hermitage, one of the finest museums in Europe, see the Peter & Paul fortress with its gold-leaf spire, and visit Petrodvorets, Peter the Great's summer palace.

Wind up your 14-day tour with a visit to the "White City of the North." In Helsinki you'll shop, visit Finlandia Concert Hall, and see the magnificent Temppeliavkio Church — blasted from solid rock.

Included features: All meals and transportation from the East Coast. Approximately $2700.00.

Second Annual NORTH AMERICAN RIVER RUN

September 2-3, 1989

"What an incredible trip! Skilled and entertaining guides, great lunch, deep swimming holes, beautiful scenery and wild rapids! This trip has it all! An experienced guide takes the time to tell everyone what to expect. The trip starts off with easy rapids and calm water to give everyone time to practice paddling, really meet each other, enjoy the scenery and hear the sometimes unbelievable river stories."

The calm and easy water doesn't last forever though. . .rolling, crashing waves and frothy foam initiate participants to the excitement of the New River. Not far downstream is Plowshares, then Pinball, then the Upper and Lower Railroad.

The total price of seventy-five (75) dollars includes: appropriate rafting equipment, a guide in each raft, barbecued chicken and baked potato dinner on Saturday evening, Saturday night campsite, a continental breakfast Sunday morning, a deli lunch on the river and an official North American River Runners T-shirt identifying you as a William and Mary participant. Lighted volleyball courts and a horseshoe pit available as well.

"...there warn't no home like a raft. After all, other places do seem so cramped up and smothery. But a raft don't. You feel mighty free. . .easy. . .and comfortable on a raft."
—Mark Twain

CANADIAN ROCKIES

July 25-August 3, 1989 (10 days)

Few wilderness regions of the world can match the beauty and unspoiled grandeur of Canada's West. The scenery is very special. Everything is big, wide and wonderful; a magnificent collection of snowy peaks, deep green valleys, glistening ice glaciers and hundreds of blue-green lakes.

Itinerary-at-a-Glance

Spend your first night at the elegant Four Seasons Hotel in Edmonton followed by a motor-coach ride to Jasper Park where you will spend two nights at the Jasper Park Lodge and participate in a comprehensive tour of the area. Visit Athabasca Falls, the great Columbia ice fields and Lake Louise en route to Banff. Your next stop will be for two nights at the spectacular Banff Springs Hotel. After sightseeing excursions of the Banff area, you'll transfer to Calgary for the flight to Victoria.

Spend two nights in the Laurel Point Inn, take a Victoria City tour and visit the world-famous Butchart Gardens. A ferryboat ride through the Gulf Islands will take you to Vancouver for two nights at the Hotel Vancouver in the heart of the city.

Included Features: All excursions, welcome and farewell cocktail parties and dinners, and most meals. Participation is limited to 40 individuals. Approximately $1999.00 from Edmonton.

MEDITERRANEAN CRUISE

September 3-16, 1989 (13 days)

Nothing surpasses the relaxation of a 12-night cruise aboard the five-star Royal Viking Sky to some of the most colorful Mediterranean ports in France, Italy, Turkey and Greece. Experience the sophistication of the French Riviera, the art and history of Italy, relive the golden age of Greece and succumb to the charms of exotic Istanbul.

Itinerary-at-a-Glance

Begin your cruise in Nice/Villefranche, Queen of Cot d'Azur and capital of the French Riviera. Next, cruise to Livorno, port city for Florence, the city of the Italian Renaissance. Cruise into the Bay of Naples, one of the most beautiful harbors in the world, for a journey to the nearby ruins of Pompeii where Mount Vesuvius buried the land in volcanic ash. Next stop is Valletta, founded by the Knights of Malta and featuring the Palace of the Grand Masters. A visit to the Greek Isles in Crete will allow you to wander through the Palace of Knossos. The harbor at the port of Santorini is formed by a volcanic crater, which is the legendary site of the lost city of Atlantis. Other stops in Greece will include Piraeus, Athens, Mykonos and Delos. Visits to Kusadasi and Istanbul in Turkey will conclude the cruise.

Included features: This ever-popular travel experience includes five meals each day while cruising, specially priced optional shore excursions, optional pre- and post-cruise extensions in Cannes and Istanbul, one crew member for every two passengers. From $3399.00.

GIFTS from the Society of the Alumni

The Society of the Alumni takes great pride in offering the William and Mary Executive Lamp to alumni, students, faculty and friends. This beautifully designed commemorative lamp symbolizes the image of excellence, tradition and history established here at the nation's Alma Mater. The Craftsmen at Sirrica, Ltd. have created this 22" hand-polished, solid brass lamp which will provide lasting style and beauty for generations. William and Mary's coat of arms is richly detailed in gold on a black parchment shade. The lamp features a black marble base and centerpiece. It will serve as a handsome reminder of your days on campus.

Since the Society purchases the lamp directly from Sirrica, Ltd., you can own it for significantly less than similar lamps purchased from custom brass shops.

To order, use the below form, or if you're charging to a credit card, you may dial 1-800-346-2884.

Class Notes

Petersburg, VA 23805

I am grateful for the Christmas cards and notes I received from a few classmates. It was wonderful to hear from you. I wish more of you would let us know what is happening in your lives.

Elizabeth Glenn Hartman and husband George enjoyed their annual fall trip to visit children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. The highlight of the year for them was their 50th wedding anniversary celebrated with relatives and friends. Elizabeth wrote, "The children surprised me with a party." I know it was not only a surprise, but also a joy.

John Branch "Dauba" Green included in his Christmas card a nostalgic letter about the Roaring Twenties and our days at W&M. What memories! The name bands at formal dances, the Saturday night dances in Jefferson gym, the College Shop, the College corner gang, the walks to the lake, yellow slickers, duc caps, fraternity parties and much, much more.

Ellen Jordan Glasscock didn't include much news in her card, but called later and said she was leaving for a visit with family members in Florida. Hope she was there during the February snowstorms we had in Virginia.

George Whitley included a nice note in his card. He and his wife Edna are enjoying living in Richmond at the Imperial Plaza. They expected to be at the Olde Guard luncheon this spring. They didn't see many of our class at Homecoming, which he regretted. He wrote later that they were leaving in January on a South American air-cruise. From the itinerary, which he included, I learned that they were to fly to Rio de Janeiro, take a sightseeing tour of the city, then follow Magellan's path around Cape Horn on the Ocean Princess. On their way back up the coast to Buenos Aires, they were to tour a number of cities and take fascinating inland trips to see unusual wildlife, spectacular scenery, the Argentine pampas, etc.

I received a card from Malvern Omohundro, who with his wife spent the winter in Barbados, expecting to be back in time for Olde Guard Day.

A card from a non-classmate, Shelton "Dick" Baker '26 included a note from a nephew who wrote that neither Shelton nor his wife, Dru, were well enough to write. A later communication indicated that he is much better. He and Dru have lived in Baltimore for a number of years.

Happily the new year brought a few replies to our latest request for news. Would that more of you would take pen in hand and write us what you are doing these days.

Ann Messick Mogle recently returned from a fantastic trip to Antarctica and the Falkland Islands. The tour was sponsored by the California Academy of Scientists and the Museum of Comparative Zoology of Harvard University. They saw thousands of penguins and hundreds of seals, petrels and albatross. They visited Palmer Station where United States scientists are studying marine and bird life. They ended their trip with a visit to the Falklands. Among the passengers was another alumna, Margaret Montgomery '42, of Honolulu.

Sallie Byrd Farmer Lawrence writes that after 45 years of a happy marriage, she lost her husband in 1987. Since then she has sold her home and moved into a pleasant retirement home in Nashville. She mentioned that she hears frequently from Marian Laning Worrall, who is living in California.

We received a welcome note from Margaret Joerissen Winston saying she and her husband do quite a bit of traveling these days. She has two daughters and a son in New York. They also have four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Margaret says "Hello" to anyone who remembers her.

A Christmas card from Frances Griffin Waters tells us how sorry she was to miss Homecoming. Just at that time, her sister, Liz Griffin Conkling '31 was hospitalized and plans had to be changed. We hope Liz is progressing satisfactorily by now.

A note from Earle Garrett tells us the sad news of the death of his twin sister, Anne Garrett Penn. We send Earle and Anne's family our sympathy. Earle is married to Evelyn Steele, also a member of our class.

We have received word of the death of Lucy May Boswell Crymble's husband. We send Lucy May our deepest sympathy.

We also extend our sympathy to Ambrose Turner on the loss of his wife. You will remember that Ambrose gave the memorial eulogy for our departed classmates at our 50th reunion.

Members of our class who attended the Olde Guard luncheon at the 1988 Homecoming were Norris Halpern, Sam Hurley, Betty Lanier and Ed Trice. The luncheon was held at Kingsmill Conference Center with 88 present for a delicious meal.

The good news from our class is the recent announcement of the W. Brooks George Professorship of Business Administration at the College. Signet Bank's pledge of $200,000 honors Brooks for his years of service to the College and the bank. He is trustee emeritus of the board of the School of Business Administration Sponsors Inc.

A letter from Bill Talton of Apopka, Fla., brings good news. After graduating in '32, he lived in Newport News 18 years and worked for Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. He and Mary moved with their son and daughter to Florida. He was with the William G. Talton and Sons insurance and real estate business until 1980 when he retired. They are happily settled near Orlando, about 45 minutes from Disneyworld.

The sad news in Blackstone is the closing of the lovely Armbruster's Restaurant. Bill '57 and Betty '57 Armbruster are retiring from the restaurant business and hope to have some time to travel and enjoy life. Bill is a former president of the Society of the Alumni.

This area was also saddened by the death of Corinne Hancock Abbitt '31, wife of former U.S. Rep. Watkins Abbitt. Hope to hear from all of you.

Homecoming was a perfect day, although it began rainy and the outlook was not good. I think the Homecoming Parade improves each year. It was great seeing Leah and T. Waller '40, one of the Alumni Medallion recipients, riding in the parade, looking as young as ever as they waved from a convertible.

We left the parade and went to the Sunken Garden for lunch. Still raining! The food was good and the Dixieland Band excellent. By game time at 1 p.m., it had stopped raining. Our excellent football team started slowly but prevailed.

I visited earlier in the day with Emil Johnson and his wife, Cornelia, from Austin, Texas. During the game I sat with Earl Hillman '35, retired commander, U.S. Naval Reserves. He loves to travel and planned to attend the William and Mary football game in Japan in January.

I also saw Sarah and Edith Pope — they were gracious and lovely as ever. Howard Scammon is back teaching at the College. He is one of the nation's top figures in academic theatre. How lucky the students are to be in his class!

Congratulations to Anne Nenzel Lambert '35 on her election to the board of directors of the Society of the Alumni.

By the time you read this, our 55th reunion celebration will have been held during Olde Guard Day, April 12, at the College. I hope many of you were able to attend.

Here are some snippets of news, from Christmas cards and in response to my "begging" postcards. Dottie Kincaid Portz wrote: "We didn't get to Hershey (where she and I are always hoping to meet) last October simply because Woody and I had had a little bit too much of old cars during August! We went on two tours back-to-back, first in the '34 Packard to the hills of western Pennsylvania for that very hot week (one of so many last summer!) and then the next week we were driving the 1914 Pullman through the flatlands of western Ohio. Each week had its own saga, but somehow another big car meet did not hold out enticing attractions for us this year. Trying to put names and faces together (in the class picture taken at our reunion) got me into the yearbook and I came across the name of Grace Crider. Noting that she lives in Lakewood, I called her this morning. We'll have lunch some time soon, as she comes over this way to visit her daughter. Grace is now retired from selling real estate.

Josephine Burpeau Reichel reports that she has retired from teaching, but that her sister Caroline, also class of '38, is still practicing medicine in New York City, although with a smaller practice. Jo's daughter lives in Pennsylvania, and she comments, "What a beautiful state!" I agree and consider that high praise coming from a resident of Maine!

For years Marian Bradshaw Spencer was marked "Address Unknown" in my card file, but when I noticed her name in a list of donors I inquired of the Alumni House staff and now she's back in the active file. She responded to my card: "Apparently the computer lost me for about 15 or more years. Since I was in the same house in Montclair, N.J., for 37 years I have no idea why. However, somehow I was put on the list again when I moved to Florida seven years ago. My husband Bill and I live the good life here with visits from our three children and six grandchildren. Bill is not too well, which restricts our traveling now. However, I love Florida and golf so I don't mind, but it did prevent me from getting to our 50th reunion."

One evening just before Christmas we had a call from Bert Capps Sheeran, who is much more likely than I to pick up the phone. No special news — just a cheery Christmas greeting, and it was great to hear her voice. We exchanged lots of those calls before our reunion last year and we do want to stay in touch by phone and mail.

Wilbur Morton wrote recently asking for an address, and I'm always glad to help any of you find lost classmates. Let's keep that reunion spirit glowing!

The Loudoun Times Publishing Company has announced the publication of Within the Iron Gates, a new book by Frank Raflo. The 604-page volume deals with changes in the quality of life in Loudoun County, Va., in the period from 1925 to 1975 as seen from the author's point of view. A county native and constant observer and participant in the affairs of Loudoun County, Frank served in public life in Loudoun during most of the 50-year period. He is currently a member of the Commission on Local Government. His first book, Hauntings and Happenings in Loudoun was published in 1976.

Ed and Dinny Wetter left the middle of January for Brazil to go on an Amazon River cruise, which proceeds through the Caribbean to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. They were to return from Miami in mid-February.

In early February Frank and I attended a dinner party at Mary Fran Zarbock Stover's '42 for Tim '40 B.C.L. and Jane Hardin Hanson '42. Buddy and Jo Carneal Clarke '44 were also there. We were distressed to learn that Tim was to start more chemotherapy the following week.

We have just returned from a three-week trip to Florida. We had a family reunion in Fort Pierce and caught up with Bobby Milligan Molyneux who was there from Dansville, N.Y. We were glad we could snag her for lunch. I also had lunch with Deede Eastlack Gray '41 at John's Island, where she and Howard have a condo, and we picked up where we left off about 20 years ago! Great fun.

Frank and I spent three beautiful days with old "roomie," Jean Clarahan Bratton, in Emory, Va., and had a delightful visit. Jean spent two weeks in Hawaii in March.

While at Jean's we received a phone call from our son, Daniel, announcing the arrival of Caroline Clawson, their third child. I was naturally touched that they named her for me. She has evened the score — four granddaughters and four grandsons!

My next deadline is June 30 so I hope to hear from you before then.

It was wonderful to receive a long letter from Patricia Nixon Arms, who now lives in Turin, N.Y. We haven't been in touch for more than 40 years, so there was a lot of news. Her husband died two years ago, but she does have one daughter living nearby, one daughter in Suffern, N.Y., and another in Connecticut. Patty has four granddaughters and two grandsons and the whole family was with her at Christmas.

When her husband retired from law practice, he managed a small shopping center in Rome, N.Y., but they had time to travel, especially to Quito, Ecuador and Cairo, Egypt, where one daughter lived for six years. All the family took flying lessons, were licensed and owned a plane. They sailed their boat from Nantucket to Charleston, but mostly in the Chesapeake Bay, and they belonged to the same sailing club as Coleman duPont and Joan Bowers duPont '40. The family must have had a wonderful life doing things together. Thanks, Patty!

A Christmas letter from Bette Smith Elliott reports that her son's novella will be published soon, and her daughter is an accomplished raku potter. Bette is moving from house to condo in Raleigh. She is acting executive director of the North Carolina Alliance of Disabled and Concerned Citizens.

Another holiday letter from Geraldine Koteck Koretz tells of her busy life with the Rehabilitation Institute in Chicago, the Chicago Commons Association, church

FOUR RECEIVE CAA HONORS

Despite a disappointing 5-23 season, four William and Mary basketball players earned post-season Colonial Athletic Association honors. Senior forward Tom Bock, who led the Tribe in scoring and rebounding (16.3 points per game, 6.2 rebounds) was named to the All-CAA second team. Freshman forward Scott Smith, who averaged 10.4 points per game, was named to the all-rookie team, while junior guard Curtis Pride was selected as an all-CAA defensive player and junior guard Matt O'Reilly earned CAA all-academic team honors.

COHEN GIFT WILL SUPPORT FORUM

Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Cohen of New York City have made a commitment of $180,000 to the College to establish the Elliot E. and Helen Y. Cohen Forum Endowment. A 1937 graduate of the College, Cohen is a risk manager for Fisher Brothers in New York, where he has served on the executive committee of the New York chapter of the Society of the Alumni and on the Class of 1937 50th reunion committee. Income from the endowment will be used to enrich the cultural and intellectual environment of the campus through an annual series of readings, debates, addresses and performances by leading scholars and artists.

activities, concerts and theater. They spent Christmas in Colorado with children and grandchildren.

Three newsletters from the peripatetic Emalee Ewing Durbin tell of her most recent travels. In September she and Sol left their home in Corvallis and went to Walla Walla, International Peace Parks, Calgary, Banff, Jasper, Edmonton and a high school class reunion in Norfolk, Va. October and November found them in the northern and eastern United States, from Minnesota to Washington, D.C., and later in Virginia where they visited friends, including Annette Warren Sirmon.

The most recent newsletter reported a January trip that took them to West Palm Beach, Miami and the Florida Keys; home to Oregon in time to enjoy the deep snow and low temperatures. I do hope Emalee and Sol are writing travel books as incentives for us to travel by. They are world-class travelers and must have lots of hints. Thanks, Emalee, for keeping in touch.

And speaking of keeping in touch, I hope that some of you will keep me posted on your news and activities. Yes, we do all like to know about you.

We still need a volunteer to be in charge of fund-raising for our 50th reunion class gift. It's not too many years away! Please consider volunteering for this important part of our commitment to the College.

Please plan to attend our 45th Reunion during Homecoming Nov. 2-5, 1989. By now, you should have received a letter from Nancy Foster, our reunion chairman, with hotel reservation forms and general plans for the weekend. A most sincere pat on the back and resounding "thanks" to Dorothy Fitzcharles Weber for answering my plea for news. Dottie was the first and most prompt with news on a Christmas card about her recent activities. My "empty column kindled a spark." She told of a granddaughter who is a senior at the College, and also her active interest in the Muscarelle Museum docents. She also included a clipping from the Dec. 19 edition of the Richmond Times-Dispatch telling how her love of history, art and nature brought about the book entitled Artistry in Avian Abodes. Dottie, a former elementary teacher, and her husband, Mo, moved to Williamsburg in 1974. Thanks again, Dottie — the article has "kindled a spark" and I must see a copy of your intriguing book.

I was delighted to meet Nancy Grube Williams at the College's Charter Day in February. This was a first for me, and we enjoyed the colorful procession, the music, the speeches and the entire event together. Before lunch and an afternoon of "catching up," we took a self-guided tour of the addition-in-progress for beautiful St. Stephen's Lutheran Church on Jamestown Road. Grube shared some Christmas card notes from Marcia Levering Balzer and George who are still loving their retirement choice of Stuart, Fla.

Also, Anne Singer Banes and Roy are happy in Sun Lakes, Ariz., a young people's retirement Sun City. They spent the month of July traveling in Colorado.

And some rather belated news of the previous Christmas from Gloria Iden

Giannestras, who reported she was in Greece at reunion time and was then touring in Bali, Bangkok and Burma, followed by a tour to Argentina. Glo is a travel guide who conducts tours around the world. We await further info about some of her more recent trips — how about it, Glo?

Cecy Waddell Cunningham kindly answered my request, writing after Charter Day ceremonies. She and Scotty had just returned from a Florida experience, visiting relatives and enjoying their favorite site of Indian Shores on the Gulf. Cecy reported how great it is to see Henry and Betty Aurell Schutz right there in Gloucester, and also to see and talk with Gene Carr Dent and Bob Pattie Wattles Robie and Ed had visited them after Homecoming on their return to Annapolis. The Cunninghams plan a jaunt to Maryland in May when their daughter Ann's first baby arrives, and they hope to catch up with the Robies. Cecy is most excited about the late April opening of a new wing at the Arts Center in Newport News — a longtime interest.

My Christmas card notes yielded traveling news from Priscilla Norris Moore and Laird who enjoy their RV on trips south in the winter and reverse to New England during the summer's unbearable heat. Catherine "Tas" Mitchell Holladay also made mention of the same subject — although kind of interesting to remember since we had two sizable snowfalls within one week here in Virginia!

Sally Reik Despard and Dick shared their exciting news that they will be first-time grandparents some time in March.

Henzie Kapler Margraf said "it's time for me to think of retirement." I hope you mean just that and will include a trip to Virginia among your first travel plans. You won't recognize us!

Ellen Irvin Newberry and Russ's letter told of all their family's activities and especially what fun they have with their grandson, Luke, an interesting age at 1-1/2! For Doris Brandt Bauer and George, there has been a move to a condo in Baltimore and the sale of the family abode to the third generation son. They also became first-time grandparents in the fall.

And a tip of the congratulatory hat to Doris, who was declared a winner in the 1988 Senior Regional Exhibition in the division of continuing education at the University of Delaware. A note on the card reads: "I'm having a great time and a bit of success doing my own art in the over-55 group." Keep up the good work!

Virginia Ratcliffe and I correspond fairly often. And via Ma Bell, Priscilla Fuller Downs and I get together for a chat. I appreciate any means or type of communication. So, my request and plea remain the same. My next deadline is late June, so there's plenty of time to write!

The highlight of 1988 was celebrating the 40 years that have elapsed since the Class of '48 ventured forth into the world outside academia. Homecoming last November was especially memorable in seeing so many of you in Williamsburg and in hearing from two of you who were unable to attend the reunion. Being together in body as well as in spirit is what it is all about.

Dusty Ash, our class president, and wife Mitch did a superb job of arranging the reunion festivities at Kingsmill Conference Center. A cocktail party in their suite preceded the excellent class dinner. Dusty chaired the dinner, planned the program, and entertained us all with a hilarious speech.

Two outstanding members of our class, Tut Bartzen and Howie Hyle, were unable to be with us. Tut, our very own tennis champ, remains faithful to the sport as director of the tennis center and head coach of the Honored Frog Tennis Team at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. For Tut, Homecoming took place on a crucial tennis tournament weekend. Howie, our student government president and now vice president of Coca-Cola International in Atlanta, had an insurmountable conflict. We missed you both!

The fun part of the reunion was talking with each of you individually and hearing what has happened in the last 40 years. First, you stare, then like magic the years fall away — and there's that old classmate, vintage '48! None of us has REALLY changed — Betty Hotopp Van Aken, Shu and Henry '47 Shook, Nancy Holland, Ed Griffin, Audrey Barthold, Gloria De Busk, Nancy Hynson, Jane Spencer and Billy Smith!

I wish I could mention everyone I saw and talked with, but space precludes that. If you would like the names and addresses of all who were there, write me and I'll mail you the list. Now doesn't that sound like a bribe?

According to information from the Alumni House, the following members of the class are unlocated: Bob De Forest, Carolyn Beach, Mary Clary Wood, Patty Planck Price, Sara Fowkes Oliver, Charlie Sokol, Barbara Latta, Pris Leggett, Leroy Balderson Jr., Edward Buxton, William J. Council, Bren Macken and Bob Piefke. If you have information regarding any of these "lost" classmates, please write.

The following members of our class are deceased: Bucky and Jay McQuat Hyle, Bob Ascherl and Ace Livick.

My third meeting as a member of the board of directors of the Society of the Alumni took place Feb. 9-11. Our meeting was greatly enhanced by the presence in Williamsburg of her Royal Highness Princess Margriet of the Netherlands, The Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, and the Speaker of the House of Commons, our patrons of the Tercentenary of the Glorious Revolution. Bill and I had the honor of attending the Charter Day dinner on Friday evening in Trinkle Hall where our three Charter Day dignitaries dined and Princess Margriet spoke. We shared a table with Jean '49 and Jack '48 Bruce.

Tom Athey recently retired after 10 and a half years of public service as county attorney of York County. Prior to serving as county attorney, Tom spent 20 years in private law practice with Bartlett, Skinner, Carneal and Smith. For Tom, the Williamsburg area is home.

Although you are reading this letter in May, I am writing it on Feb. 24 during the Great Blizzard of '89. The curtain of snowflakes turns my thoughts to Betty Lu '50 and Knox '48 Ramsey, sojourning in Florida. Knox retired some time ago as site manager of ICI Films — that's old news — but the real news would be when are they coming home to Ditchley?

The Lower Northern Neck Chapter of the Society of the Alumni is alive and well in the counties of Lancaster and Northumberland.

We look forward to the marriage and arrival of Mel Wright '47 and Carol Achenbach Taylor '49 in April. Please write!

Ralph Chinn spent most of the summer trying to put in shape the "pond" on his place in Ellenwood, Ga. Since the pond covers more than an acre, he says he will "go uptown" and call it a lake! At the beginning of September, he had "considerable surgery," which hampered his activities. He says thus, the only sensible thing was to pack a very light bag (as usual) and head for Europe to give some invited lectures, and do some sightseeing.

In June Ralph had given a lecture on the new heart hormone to a group of African doctors at Morehouse Medical School. So why not continue? After four weeks of recovery he lectured in Spain, Portugal and Germany and visited also in France and Switzerland. Returning to the States, he arrived just in time to leave again for his first trip to Canada, for the Annual Neuroscience Society Meeting in Toronto.

Blair and Gloria MacKenzie have been busy making repairs and changes to their home in Annandale, Va. According to their Christmas letter, "We don't have a lot of time for our too many hobbies, but Blair has been turning some beautiful bowls and boxes in his workshop." Blair keeps busy with model ships and a model railroad. Gloria works on sewing projects, dolls and dollhouse miniatures.

Blair has an hour's commute to the Naval Academy, where he is head of the Educational Resources Center. Gloria is a research secretary and caretaker of the small library at Morgan-Newman Associates in Arlington, Va. They have fun giving occasional lectures for the Foreign Services Institute (a branch of the State Department) on "How to Live in Saudi Arabia and Enjoy It!"

W. J. (Jack) Payne writes from Athens, Ga. where he has been on the faculty of the University of Georgia department of microbiology for the past 33 years. In late October, he and wife Jane Marshall Payne '49 got together with his former roommate Don '50 and Phyllis Coulter '48 Dolan (of Shawnee Mission, Kan.) for the Georgia-William and Mary football game in Athens. The festivities included a party the night before the game hosted by Dr. and Mrs. E. Van Landingham Herrin, parents of Andrew, current member of the class of 1990.

We have had a tragedy. Our identical twin daughters were in a terrible car accident on Nov. 22, 1988. They were taken by helicopter to the Medical Center in Kansas City, where Betsy died in surgery. She had just been married in June 1988 and was expecting their first child in May. Jamie was badly injured and had surgery, was in intensive care and on a respirator for six days. She was released from the hospital after 13 days. With the help of friends who are nurses, we were able to care for her at home. With a lot of determination and help from friends at the school, she was able to return to Phillips University for this semester, although she is still unable to carry a book.

I had a lovely letter from the Rev. Ed Wisbauer Jr., and I hope he meant for me to pass it along. Few letters are quite this eloquent, but simply stated, Ed asks that anyone who would like to remember Jim Stone do so with a memorial gift to the College's new natatorium, which is planned in conjunction with the College's newly constructed sports facility.

This seems so fitting, as Jim — and I think most of us remember — was such a fine athlete, dedicated to the sport which he pursued with rugged determination. These qualities carried over to his earning a Ph.D. at Temple University. Jim died last Easter. He was a professor of engineering at Temple. This suggestion comes from Ed's initiative, and I think it would be a most appropriate way to remember Jim. You may send your gift to Coach Dudley Jensen at the College or to Natatorium Fund, c/o the College's Athletic Department.

MRS. PAMELA C. HARRIMAN PLEDGES $400,000

Mrs. Pamela C. Harriman of Middleburg, Va., a member of the Board of Visitors, has pledged $400,000 to William and Mary. Of this amount, $300,000 will establish the Pamela C. Harriman Professorship in Government and Public Policy and $100,000 will be used as a leadership commitment for a child care center on campus. Endowment income from the professorship will be matched by the Commonwealth of Virginia's Eminent Scholars Program. Additional private funds for the child care center are now being sought, with construction scheduled to begin this fall. Upon completion in 1990, the center will serve 50 to 75 children. A member of the Board of Visitors since 1986, Mrs. Harriman also serves on the Tercentenary Commission, which is planning the College's 300th birthday celebration in 1993.

Another accomplished member of our class, Camille Grimes Henderson, was featured in the New Canaan, Conn., Advertiser last fall. Camille has a private practice in New Canaan, working with children, adolescents and young adults in psychological and neuropsychological testing and evaluation. She also counsels in areas of eating disorders and cocaine abuse. Sounds like a fascinating career.

Charles Monaghan of Hampton, Va., who some time ago changed his name to Walford Davies, has now changed his name back.

I just had a lovely visit from daughter Kimberly, who brought along my brand new granddaughter, Kaitlin. Don't need to tell you how special a visit that was. Children Kelly, Kathryn and Steve all live in this area, so we had a grand reunion. I'm planning a trip soon to Kim's part of the country — Clearwater — to scout around. As much as I would hate to leave Cincinnati (home for 32 years), I think it may just be time for a change. I'll keep you posted.

In the meantime, please send along your contributions. They're always appreciated, as well as immensely necessary to keep our class news up to date.

A trip to the Washington, D.C., area in late December and a stop in Williamsburg gave us the chance to visit with Marge Huff Brown in her new townhouse in Kingsmill. We were able to meet her lovely daughter, Suzanne, visiting briefly from Alabama. I was most impressed with all the things Marge is doing. She is occasionally writing for publication in local newspapers, while teaching evening classes for the Office of Special Programs at the College. She still maintains her piano studio and helps students who need assistance with school subjects. She has become active in her community by serving on the Parcel Board. She works, as well, with the Order of the White Jacket's student group.

Our 35th Class Reunion Committee met March 4 at the Alumni House to make plans for our reunion, scheduled Nov. 3-5 during Homecoming. Working on that committee are Marge Huff Brown, Charlotte Henderson Lewis, Gordon Vliet, Luther Kiger, Carole DeSamper and I. Headquarters for our class will be the new conference center at Kingsmill. Start making your plans. It should be great!

My big news is a first grandchild, born to our daughter, Lee, and named Hannah Chandler.

It was good to learn that Bobby Jo Peters Zahn is healthy once more, especially since she and Bob now have seven grandchildren to celebrate.

Milt '55 and Alice Glover Glasser managed a junket to Paris last summer, where they ran into some former neighbors on the dance floor of the Lido. That definitely comes under the heading of "small world." The Glassers will welcome their second grandchild in the spring.

Dottie Guthrie Wilson is on the go, as usual. The snapshot enclosed in her Christmas card indicates she's prettier than ever. Next time you're in the country, come to dinner at the Tides Inn, Dottie. It would be great to see you.

Ginny Ferre and Dave have a busy life, with their trips to track their three active sons. They have great plans to sail in this general area. On top of all that, they've added a fourth son — a Norwegian ex-

TABOR RECEIVES PBK FACULTY AWARD

James Tabor, assistant professor of religion, has been awarded the 1989 Phi Beta Kappa Faculty Award for the Advancement of Scholarship for his work in the fields of Christian origins and ancient Judaism. Tabor is the 28th recipient of the award made possible by an endowment from John D. Rockefeller Jr. He is the author of numerous articles and several books, the latest of which will be published this fall by Harper and Row. Titled A Noble Death: Suicide and Martyrdom Among Ancient Jews, Christians, Greeks, and Romans, it is co-authored by Arthur Droge of the University of Chicago.

BARRON'S LISTS W&M AS 'MOST COMPETITIVE'

Barron's Guide to Colleges and Universities lists William and Mary in its highest category—"most competitive"—in its most recent survey. The College moved up from the "highly competitive" category. Others in the "most competitive" group include Brown, Columbia, Dartmouth, Duke, Harvard, Princeton, Stanford and Yale among the approximately 30 schools. Barron's notes that "Even superior students will encounter a great deal of competition to entering colleges in this category."

Betty Passamaneck Soffin stayed at the Tides Inn in the fall. I discovered a note to that effect tucked in a pocket of an old uniform, which is why the visit was not mentioned earlier. In any case, she looked terrific.

Laura Lou Lawson Struthers sounded rather pleased with life in general. Her eldest son got married last spring. Charles is in college, while John is kept busy with school, sports, paper route and church youth club. Her husband, Tom, keeps so busy it makes one's head spin.

Laura had a letter from Sheila Eddy Baker, enclosing a picture of her new grandson. It would be interesting to know how many Class of '56 grandchildren there are!

Homecoming '88 was tremendous. By far, it was the most fun and nostalgia-filled of all the college reunions this reporter has attended. This means the class of '58 is getting better... and no one looked older than we did 30 years ago.

It would take too much space to list all the class members in attendance, but many of us were there. The dinner on Saturday evening was well attended and was great fun — including the photo session during the Happy Hour, which for some reason made us look better than we would have if the customary picture could have been taken in the Sunken Garden at lunch!

Peter Neufeld and Bob Thomas did a wonderful job on the 1958 Colonial Re-Echo. It is an inspirational, fun and informative commentary on our lives at 50+. Thank you, Bob and Peter, for a job well done.

The highlight of the dinner was a proposal by our own Maj. Gen. Tom Lightner, who suggested that the class of 1958 should plan ahead for our reunion in 1993 to celebrate our 35th anniversary and the Tercentenary of the College. Volunteers were asked to serve on a committee to plan a class gift and special events for this momentous occasion.

Those of us who volunteered to serve will be hearing from Tom. If anyone would like to serve on the committee, please contact Peter Neufeld. His address is: 410 West 53rd St., Apt. 132, New York, NY 10019 (212) 581-1624.

This will be my last letter as class reporter. Peter Neufeld has agreed to take over the job. I have enjoyed my years as reporter, and I thank you for all your "cards and letters." Keep them coming for Peter! He needs your support!

I have learned that Broadway producers are still in bed at noon — call late! Good luck, Peter, and keep this great '58 together!

Jerry Bracey wrote that after 27 years he thought he would let us know he is living in suburban Denver and is the director of research and evaluation for Cherry Creek Schools in Englewood, Colo. Since graduation, he has received a Ph.D. in psychology from Stanford. He worked as research psychologist for Educational Testing Services and taught at Indiana University, Bloomington.

In 1973 he went to Hong Kong and traveled around Asia, Africa and Europe. While in Italy and Greece he taught for the University of Maryland. After four years he returned to Virginia and served as director of research, evaluation and testing for the Virginia Department of Education for nine years. For the last two and a half years he and his family have been in Colorado. His wife teaches dance and acts in local companies. One child is still at home and the other is a senior at George Mason University. Jerry promised to give us all an update in 2016.

Gayle Crabill Kerns wrote that her husband, Waldon, has been elected to the Town Council in Blacksburg, Va., where he is on the faculty of Virginia Tech. They have one daughter married; one daughter at the University of Georgia, and a son who is in high school where he is captain of the cross-country team.

Jane Noble Lundy and family are still in California. Jane and her husband, Rich, are still teaching and enjoying it. Their oldest son is a sophomore at American University. The youngest son is a freshman at the University of California, Davis. Their daughter is a sophomore in high school.

Mary Alice Adams Betts is working for the Girl Scout office and her husband, Lee, is still with Liberty Mutual. Their daughter is a college graduate and is into physical therapy at the University of North Carolina. Their son is at the University of Florida majoring in criminal justice.

Beth Poole Radford wrote that their son, Richard, is at Virginia Tech majoring in electrical engineering. She and her husband, Wade, are still living in Maryland.

Jackie Fleming was home in Upper-ville, Va., for Christmas to visit her mother. She brought with her all the way from Denver her new dog, Rocky. She took the social worker licensing exam and has started a private practice. She will continue working in the chemical dependency recovery program and also will do group therapy.

Judy Case Falkenrath is working at the office for children in Fairfax County, Va. Her two children are still at home. Michelle has graduated from high school and Michael is a sophomore in high school.

Joan Buhlmann, on leave in the fall to work on a 16th-century French emblem book, returned to teaching three courses at the University of Nebraska.

Linda Lester Hagen and Jim have taken on a new project since only one child is left at home. They have two foster boys, ages 8 and 4. They are still in Washington state. Their sons are in college: Chris is at the University of Washington, and so is John; and Charlie is at Western Washington University. Linda started a medical assistant course at a community college — trying a new direction from teaching. Her husband is still with Boeing in the space program.

Sandra Hancock Martin and David Martin '67 wrote that they had a lovely 25th anniversary trip to Argentina and Brazil last winter. Their oldest son will graduate from William and Mary this year. He majored in government and English. The youngest son goes to college in California. Sandra was in Spain studying on an all-expenses-paid Carnegie-Mellon fellowship last summer. David now has his pilot's license.

Ronald R. Ramsey has been appointed executive director of Scripture Press Ministries, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Ronald has been with Scripture Press since 1980, serving first as field services representative for the Great Lakes district, followed by marketing operations manager and now his present position. He has completed additional studies at the University of California (Davis), Huntington Graduate School of Christian Ministries and Wheaton Graduate School in Illinois. He is married and has two children.

Ann Smith Hughes always includes a Kappa Alpha Theta newsletter in her Christmas card. The following items come from their great newsletter.

Lynn Eads Black has been certified by the state of Texas as an alcoholism and drug abuse counselor and is working for the Brownsville school district. Sara, her daughter, lives and goes to school in Austin, and Kiley is now a freshman in college.

Susan Griggs Braman and E. J. are alive and well in central Florida. Last May they went to EPCOT and met Pril Nash Brown and Seab for breakfast taking along the 25th-reunion picture. Pril was amused tremendously at all our smiling faces.

Bunny Becker Harrington has turned out new editions of three books about the stock market. She took a year off from teaching at the University of Virginia to do all her writing.

Kay Christian Sills is back to full-time teaching this year. She has a 5th-6th grade combination in a challenging school. Her son is living in Los Angeles. Her daughter is a high school senior and plans to attend the University of Michigan in the fall.

Sue Oakley Nelson has been enjoying her graduate courses at the University of North Carolina in preparation for renewing her teaching certificate. She and Larry are living in North Carolina and their children are still at home. Kara is working in medical records at Duke and Chip is in the 9th grade.

Janie Lawson Hall and Frank moved to the Silicon Valley of California where Frank has a job with the state prison system. Janie is teaching in San Jose at a city school for severely emotionally disturbed boys. Both their girls are in college.

Martha Walton High wrote that their son, Lance, graduated from Dartmouth last June and their daughter, Martha Elizabeth is a sophomore at Duke. Martha is in her third year on the Longwood College board of directors. She is the president of the Episcopal Women of the Diocese of Virginia.

Paul and Dorcas Brown Bankes moved from Wynnwood, Pa. to the heart of Philadelphia. Dorcas has been doing coursework through the mail and will return to San Francisco for the final work toward her master's in East-West psychology. Business at Paul's law firm has been booming. Their daughters are Jessica, who is in her last year at Macalaster University, and Heather, who will be married this spring.

Finally, Ann Smith Hughes, wrote that their oldest is a sophomore at George Mason University and the youngest is a senior in high school. Ann works three days a week as a paralegal for a senior partner in a law firm.

This was a great column to write because so many of you sent news over the Christmas holidays. Keep me posted about what is going on in your life!

Milton (Bucky) Reigelman and Sandy have not made it back to Homecoming in 25 years but plan to attend our 25th Reunion Nov. 3-5. Bucky would like to encourage "those rapidly aging Flat Hat people" who were unable to attend Mason Sizemore's Flat Hat gathering two years ago to come to Homecoming for a full reunion.

Last year Bucky spent a semester in the Soviet Union/as the U.S. Government Fulbright Professor of American Literature and Culture at the University of Kiev. Sandy, who took a year off from teaching in Beth Terranova '80, who graduated from William and Mary with a grade point average of 3.5, has been named this year's Disabled Professional Woman of the Year by the Pilot Club of Williamsburg. A medical transcriptionist for the Williamsburg Community Hospital, Miss Terranova has been blind since birth. She received the John Kratzer Award from William and Mary while in college for "exemplary courage, self-sacrifice, leadership and spirit." A computer specialist, she does all her transcribing of medical records for the hospital on a computer in her home and then sends them through a modem and telephone line to the hospital's computer.

Faculty members received a 9.3 percent average salary increase in the 1989 session of the General Assembly, the second highest among state institutions of higher education. In addition, the budget bill contained $400,000 to buy classroom and office equipment; $378,000 to plan construction of Tercentenary Hall to house the geology and computer science departments; $325,000 to build a child care facility; $500,000 for a geographic education program and $147,000 to commemorate events in connection with the College's 300th anniversary. Funds appropriated for housing needs included $7.7 million to build residences for 230 graduate and upperclass students, $2.2 million for renovations to several older dormitories and $8.9 million to construct dormitories for 400 undergraduate students. Proceeds from the state lottery designated for capital projects included $8.4 million for construction of Tercentenary Hall, $3.8 million for renovation of Washington Hall and $885,000 for Matoaka Lodge.

the gifted program in the Danville, Ky., schools, also gave lectures at the university and in Soviet schools. Their 13-year-old son would return from school each afternoon laden with gifts, and Bucky says that their experience was most exhilarating and most pleasant.

The Reigelman's daughter Jennie is a senior at the College, and her twin sister is at Wake Forest. As a freshman Jennie was randomly assigned a room on Monroe 3rd next to the room Bucky and Don Lefelar had lived in for two years.

I hope the former Flat Hat staff will respond affirmatively to Bucky's invitation to gather together this November. Bucky can be reached at Centre College in Danville, Ky.

Bill Corley, one of our reunion chairmen, who also functions as president of Community Hospitals of Indiana, Indianapolis, was elected to a two-year term (1989-1990) as a director for the Indiana Hospital Association. Bill also serves on the IHA Council on Government Relations.

Bruce Titus, who lives in Reston, Va., is going to help work on the festivities for our 25th reunion. Bruce is a partner with the law firm of Venable, Baetjer and Howard and practices in the firm's McLean, Va., office. His practice focuses on design and structural failure litigation and the representation of architects and engineers. His wife, Sandy, teaches music, and they have two daughters, Kelly, 14, and Kristen, 11.

Claudy Tucker Barnes plans to come to the reunion and offers to help in any way. Claudy would like to know where Sheila Tchirigi and Patty Vaught are, as would I. Patty and Sheila, where are you? (And please come in November!) Claudy is teaching art at Virginia Beach High School, and has taught Bobby Simpson's son and other W&M offspring. Her oldest daughter Hazel, 23, is working in Hawaii. Katy, 19, is a second year art student at VCU and rooms with Butch Kitchin's middle daughter, Pelar; Grey, 17, is a high school junior, and Beth, 10, is a fifth-grader. Claudy's husband, Tom, is now working in adult education for Virginia Beach.

It was great to see Bobbie Mulcahey Frazier and Gretchen Scherer Israel at Homecoming last November. We had a reunion in the Royce Hotel lobby. Bobbie is teaching French at Fairfax High School. She and Bill live in Leesburg, Va. Bill has been with IBM for 23 years.

Gretchen and Fielder live in Eden, N.C., where Fielder is an Episcopal minister. Gretchen teaches French at a community college. Her 6-year-old son is in first grade. Gretchen's 14-year-old son and Bobbie's 14-year-old son were seeing Williamsburg together. They just missed Marcia Ballard Scott who arrived a few minutes later from Richmond to have dinner with Philip and me.

Bobbie, Gretchen, Marcia and I were suitmates so it would have been a great reunion. We vowed to do it this year. Marcia came armed with pictures of her 3-year-old son, David, and she, like so many others at Homecoming, is a single parent.

Don Beck and Steve Merrill were sharing a room with Kenny Roberts. Kenny and Steve got lost driving from Richmond to Williamsburg (we're all aging!). Don has "retired," having sold the Chatham Bars Inn last year. He and Susie still live on the Cape and spent the winter in Virgin Gorda. Their son, Cameron, is a sophomore at the College. Their younger son is a senior in prep school. Everyone was asking Don for a handout.

Bob Joynet and his wife were at Homecoming from Virginia Beach. Bob's son is a freshman at Radford College, which now has 9,000 students. Their daughter is a junior in high school.

We saw John and Maynard Williams Randolph. Maynard is a psychologist for an elementary and secondary school in Williamsburg.

At Binns, I ran into Charlotte Elder Marriott and her mother. Charlotte lives in Virginia Beach with her husband who is with First American Bank. Her daughter, Jan, 18, is at Peace College, and her son, Evan, 14, at Hargrove Military Academy.

After the game I saw Polly Mayhew Owens and Al and Roger Amole and his wife. At the after game I saw Sandy Tolbert Absalom of Centerville, Va., with her daughter, Laura, a senior at the College. Sandy works for the Bureau of Mines at the Department of the Interior in Washington, D.C.

One of the benefits of going to Homecoming is seeing old friends from the reunion classes. The Class of 1963 had a great turnout and I loved seeing them. Carol Kirkup (who came from San Diego, Calif., with Robin Reilley and Babs Beaumont) and Judy Hall Halesky and I explored the Theta house together. Mac Lillywhite, Bob Soleau, Diane Stuart, Crelin James, Pat Farrell, Lesley Ward, Janice Royson DeLero, Chico Herrick, Billy Jones, Bill Lehner, Judy Hawkins Coddling and Karl Zavitkovsky were among the group.

Finally, it is shocking to me, but thrilling to them, that Grey '62 and Pat Evans '63 are going to be grandparents. Their son Philip and wife Tammy are expecting in June. They live in La Jolla, Calif., and Philip works for a law firm in San Diego. Grey and Pat will be coming to Homecoming (armed with pictures, I'll bet!)

Al Mollohan, a third-term congressman from West Virginia, gave the concluding address at the College's recent Honor Council Awareness Week. He spoke on "Relating the Principles Underlying the Honor Code to Personal and Professional Life Beyond William and Mary." His remarks addressed the dropped fourth point of the Honor Code, which states that the College will not tolerate anyone who will lie, cheat or steal.

Bonnie Lou Muddiman Johnson and her husband, Gary, both work for Botetourt County. Gary is chief animal warden and Bonnie is director of public works. They are enjoying their new marriage, their combined families, and life in the country.

Susan Griswold Brown's "Behind the Moon" series of paintings was in a special exhibit this fall at Cudahy's Gallery in Richmond. This series of 13 oil paintings explores woman's relationship with nature. Susan has been a professor of art at Richard Bland College in Petersburg for the past 20 years. Her paintings have also been displayed at the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk, the Mint Museum in Charlotte, the Virginia Museum and the 20th Century Gallery in Williamsburg.

This is the first column since our reunion last November. It was so much fun to renew old acquaintances. Special thanks go to Bob Blair and Bruce Oliver for their efforts in arranging our class dance and get-together Saturday evening. This was the highlight of most class members' weekend. Didn't the weather Saturday morning, when our picture was scheduled to be taken, remind you of the downpours the first week of our freshman year?

The following news was gathered from the notebook left near the entry to our class party. Nancy West Rowley lives in Tabb, Va., and teaches Spanish at Poquoson High School. (Tom Fay teaches there also.) Nancy is married to Sewell Rowley, assistant principal at York High School, and they have two girls and a boy.

Alice Luzader Cade teaches social studies and English in middle school for Prince William County. Alice, her husband and 8-year-old daughter, Shannon, live in Woodbridge, Va.

Kent Swanson is a political-military planner for NATO policy in the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon. He and his wife, Donna, have three children, Matthew, 11, Cortney, 5, and Meagan, 3.

Mike Johnson and his wife Jackie are living in Virginia Beach. He is an air wing commander on the USS John F. Kennedy. He says, "Still flying and loving it!"

Susan Baskerville Otteni was glad to see 10 of her Gamma Phi Beta sorority sisters. She hopes to see more in 1993.

Two from our class are chefs. Bob Gadowski is chef at the Lobster House in Williamsburg. Gail Littlefield is a chef at the Quilted Giraffe in New York City.

Mike and Midge Ernst Madden reside in Haddensfield, N.J., with their five children. Mike is an attorney and Midge is a professor at Glassboro State.

Bette Scott Meuleners is the mother of four children ages 18, 16, 8 and 5. She and her husband, a battalion commander, and their children live in Fort Ord, Calif.

Bob and Violette Stephenson have lived in Manhattan Beach, Calif., since 1968. They have three children.

Sherry Capolla Birk is curator for the prints and drawings collection at The Octagon in Washington, D.C. Her daughter is a freshman at William and Mary.

Adin Brown is general manager of Technical Sales Inc. and lives in California.

Jo Carol Nessel-Sale is an attorney with Haley and Stolebarger in Salt Lake City, Utah. Her son is a high school senior and her daughter is in pre-school.

Bruce Oliver is principal of Joyce Kilmer Intermediate School in Fairfax County, Va.

I actually received some letters for this column — not just press releases and news clippings! Tom Wright wrote, "Still trying to figure out who all those folks are [from the reunion] and what relationship we had a couple of decades ago. We had a pretty good group back then, but I think I may like us even better today. Guess we all know who we are now..."

He went on to say he finished 20 years active duty with the Navy in January. He plans "to stay on board another couple years before seeking a real job in the civilian community." He spent the early '80s in the California high desert with VX-5 doing operational testing of Navy weapons systems while flying the A-7, A-6 and F/A-18 aircraft. In early 1984 the Wright family moved to San Diego and Tom served as strike operations officer on the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk.

Tom said he gained the dubious distinction of being the only naval officer on record who ever requested to go to work at the Pentagon. He and his wife grew up in northern Virginia and felt it was time to go home. In August 1986 the family settled in Burke, Va., and plan to stay put. In December Tom transferred to NAVAIRSYSCOM in Crystal City. He is presently attending the Defense Systems Management College at Fort Belvoir "to try to get the academic perspective on the acquisition process, or at least learn how to stay out of trouble." Tom and his wife Gail have three daughters: Marcy 15, Tracy, 13, and Kelly, 10. Tom coaches them in softball and basketball. His softball team, the Ramalamadingdongs, were undefeated last season.

Judy Pond wrote that attending our reunion put her in the mood to renew old ties with the College and prompted her to write. After graduation, she went to Washington, D.C. and began a career in public affairs, first as a lobbyist for eight years at the White House, two years at the Justice Department, and two years at the Federal Trade Commission. In 1987 she married Larry Kudlow and moved to Manhattan. She left the public affairs field to become a portrait and landscape artist and a home-maker.

Lynn and Carol Pern Dent enjoyed seeing everyone at Homecoming. They have returned to the U.S. after spending two years in Sofia, Bulgaria and two years in Canberra, Australia. Lynn is in the foreign service. Their children, Jenny, 15, and John, 12, are enjoying American schools and sports again. The Dents live in Fairfax, Va.

Judy O'Grady McKeon, who resides in Charlottesville, attended the reunion with Ellen Shorter Hardy from Richmond; Susan Pepper Loeffler from Shepherdstown, W.Va.; and Martha Leech Clark from Atlanta, Ga. Judy said they had a wonderful time reliving memories, visiting special places, and seeing friends again.

Daniel G. Harvey has been named associate publisher of G.P. Putnam's Sons in New York. Dan has lived in New York City for the past 10 years and was employed at Harper & Row where he was director of advertising, publicity and promotion. He has orchestrated book campaigns for Colleen McCullough, Susan Issacs, Lily Tomlin, Dr. Bernice Siegel and Mikhail Gorbachev. Dan wrote, "Sorry I couldn't make the reunion. Between jobs, I took off six months and had myself one terrific vacation. At Homecoming I was on a 12-speed bike somewhere in Austria."

Olivian Boggs Boon wrote, "This has been a strange and hectic year for us, but I'm beginning to suspect that most people can say that most of the time!" Her husband Jim spent last semester teaching at Princeton while Olivian stayed in Ithaca, N.Y., with their two daughters. Tili is a senior in high school, and Jessica is in the 7th grade. Jim has returned to Ithaca this semester to write and edit. The family will move to Princeton, N.J., in June.

Kennon Pate McKee was awarded the degree of doctor of psychology from the Chicago School of Professional Psychology this past October, and she is now a practicing clinical psychologist in Chicago.

Dr. Mary Louise Shannon, professor of speech/humanities at Florida Community College in Jacksonville, Fla., has been nominated to the 1989 edition of World Who's Who of Women. She was selected as teacher of the year (1980) by the Florida Speech Communication Association and has been nominated for teacher of the year at her college. She is also listed in the International Directory of Distinguished Leadership, 2nd edition, and is president of her own communications company, Shannon Communication Consulting.

Thanks to all who have written. The next deadline is June 1st. I hope to hear from even more of you then.

News this time via newspaper articles forwarded from the Alumni Office.

From a Dec. 7, 1988, Georgia paper, the Roswell Neighbor:

Former state Rep. Bob Irvin held a black-tie New Years' Eve Party in Roswell to kick off his exploratory campaign for governor. Bob became the youngest member of the Georgia legislature in 1972 while still at Emory School of Law. Representing Roswell, Alpharetta and Mountain Park, Bob served three terms. He was chosen Republican caucus chairman and is an

ADMISSION FIGURES

As of April 1 the admission office had received 9,500 freshman applications for admission, compared with 10,003 for the 1987-88 year. The Wall Street Journal noted recently that colleges are beginning to feel the impact of a smaller pool of high school graduates, as applications slowly drop after two years of being swamped with applications. Last year, William and Mary accepted approximately 28 percent of those who applied. President Verkuil recently announced that William and Mary will admit 50 more Virginians to the freshman class this fall, increasing the class size to about 1,250.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE SET

William and Mary opens its 1989 football season on Sept. 9 with a home game against Colgate and completes the season on Nov. 18 with another home game against Richmond. With five home games on the schedule, the Tribe will also play Delaware (Oct. 7), East Tennessee State (Nov. 4) and James Madison University (Nov. 11) in Cary Field and Boston University on Oct. 14 in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk's Foreman Field. Other away games include VMI on Sept. 16, Princeton on Sept. 23, University of Virginia on Sept. 30, Villanova on Oct. 21 and Lehigh on Oct. 28.

SCHAUBACHS PLEDGE $100,000 TO COLLEGE

Mr. and Mrs. G. Elliott Schaubach of Norfolk, both members of the class of 1959, have made a $100,000 commitment to William and Mary. One half of the commitment is designated for athletic grants-in-aid and $25,000 for the expansion of the Alumni House. The remainder will be used for annual support for the Athletic Educational Foundation and the William and Mary Annual Fund. Mr. Schaubach is a trustee emeritus of the Endowment Association, a former member of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni and past president of the Athletic Educational Foundation. Mrs. Schaubach, a community leader in the Norfolk area, is currently a member of the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni.

expected Republican candidate for governor in 1990. At present, Bob is a partner in an international management consulting firm advising large companies and major public sector institutions. Bob practiced law in Roswell before earning an MBA from the Harvard Business School. His past honors include being selected in 1976 as one of Ten Outstanding Young People of Atlanta and in 1977 as North Fulton Citizen of the Year. Bob lives in North Fulton with wife, Lynn.

From the Venice, Fla., Gondolier an August 1988 article, "Good management the key: Ford-Coates":

Barbara Ford-Coates, the Sarasota County tax collector was running for reelection, having held the position for the past four years. Prior to that, she served as assistant tax collector and held various positions within that department for nine years. Barbara has done postgraduate work in accounting, management and tax collecting at University of Florida, Florida State and South Florida University. Barbara and her husband have three children and live in Sarasota.

And from Christmas cards:

In Burke, Va., Barbara Pate Glacel started a new consulting firm, PACE Consulting Group Inc. Last fall Barbara was reappointed to the Army Science Board advising the Secretary of the Army on human resource and family issues. In January she was in Europe as chairwoman of a panel to analyze the return-on-investment of Army family programs. This June Barbara heads to Korea to witness change of command ceremonies. Husband Bob will be completing his tour in Son Uri, Korea, with the 1/4 Field Artillery. Bob will return to the U.S. to attend Senior Service College for the academic year.

Barbara Burket's computer consulting has her traveling a lot between home in Santa Barbara and Albuquerque, N.M. She and Bob made it to New Zealand at last for an outstanding three and a half weeks of touring both islands. Bob has a pilot's license and rented a plane in Christchurch to explore by air mountains, fjords, glaciers and beautiful sounds cutting in from the Tasman Sea. They followed up the air exploration with motor-home traveling to their favorite spots!

Congratulations to all who survived 40th birthdays last year! My next Gazette deadline for the August issue is June 30th. Remember our 20th reunion. . . Fall 1990!

Hello, classmates, wherever you are. It will be spring by the time you read this, so let me wish everyone a pleasant summer and urge you to drop a line — maybe from summer vacation.

I received a Christmas card from Karen Lerohl Wilson, who lives in sunny California. She had a great 1988. She and husband Ted became proud parents of a baby boy in August. Karen did admit that she has been living on three hours of sleep a night since then. She is back at work at Hughes Aircraft. She is interested in news from Sue Emerson or Kay Rorer, so if you're out there reading this, send in some news.

Margaret L. Carter wrote of her accomplishments as an author. She got her Ph.D. in English literature from the University of California, Irvine, in 1986. She has since had two books published. One is Specter or Delusion? The Supernatural in Gothic Fiction, and the other is Dracula: The Vampire and the Critics (an anthology of scholarship). A third will be published in 1989 — Vampirism in Literature: An Annotated Bibliography. In addition Margaret has several short stories in paperback anologies edited by Marion Zimmer Bradley. Her real ambition is to become a fantasy novelist (more money and fun to write than academic books). Husband Les '71 has been promoted to commander in the Navy within the past two years. He will go to command of a ship after his present tour. They have four sons; the oldest is 21.

Gregg Franklin has been appointed manager of environmental services at Chem-Nuclear Systems Inc. in Columbia, S.C. He received his master's degree in environmental engineering from Drexel University and was formerly vice president of Advanced Mineral Technologies Inc. in Golden, Colo.

Robert Mathe has joined NCI Transportation Services as president of NCI Educational Services. He was formerly president, Mid-Atlantic division of Progressive Casualty Insurance Company, NCI's parent company. Robert received a master's degree in business administration from William and Mary.

It sounds like Christy Yeack Linnenkohl is becoming an expert in parenting since the birth of first child Laura, who is about 1-year old by now. Christy is a full-time mother studying parenting books and attending parenting classes — "as tough a task as any devised by the pros." She is giving the CPA business a rest while she also enjoys classes in Japanese, Russian and homemaking. Last spring while awaiting for the onset of parenthood, she did volunteer work for Lutheran Social Services in a local retirement community. She is interested in news of Patty Buckles, Martha Burton, Donna Ireland, Cindy Viau and Edie Cooke.

Kathy Jebo has been named coordinator of career/educational resources in Radford University's career planning and placement center. Previously she was a guidance counselor at Radford High School for two years. Kathy received her master's degree in counseling and student personnel from Radford in 1982.

Penny Wilson Lynch has remarried and is living in Hempstead, N.Y., with husband Jerry and her two children, Rachel, 13, and Megan, 10. Penny teaches first and second grades in a neighboring town.

The modest sprinkling of news I received for this issue has forced me to take drastic action: I have selected two dozen names at random from our class list and am sending out postcards asking for information for the next issue. Those of you who don't get a direct request, feel free to drop me a note anyway!

Thanks to Kathryn Renard-Murphy, for writing on behalf of her husband, Maurice O. Murphy, a staff emergency physician at Shenandoah County Memorial Hospital in Woodstock, Va. He is also on the board of directors for the Virginia chapter of the American College of Emergency Physicians. The Murphys recently welcomed their second daughter, MacKenzie. The family lives in Luray, Va.

David W. Hess wrote a note to the Alumni Gazette office to change his address to Bolivia. He received a leave of absence from the U.S. Agency for International Development to work for the World Bank in La Paz on a new project it is financing to strengthen regional and municipal development activities in that country.

In a recent letter to the Gazette office, Delight Woodhull recounted her activities since graduation. After obtaining a master's degree in environmental health from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, she became a certified industrial hygienist and certified safety professional with OSHA. She spent eight years in Atlanta as corporate safety manager for Scientific-Atlanta and manager of industrial hygiene for McCrone Environmental Services. Then she moved to New Jersey where she accepted a position with Hoechst Celanese Corp. as manager of industrial hygiene and health services for the engineering plastics division, with responsibilities for plants throughout the southeastern U.S., South America, Europe and Asia. I guess that will involve some travel!

Someone spotted an article in New York Newsday's food section on Starr Boggs. (I remember Starr as a football player freshman year.) Evidently he is a well-respected chef in New York, but the article (at least the portion I received) failed to mention the restaurant's name. It talks of the Boggs farm on the Eastern Shore, his stint at the Williamsburg Inn, his mania for fresh vegetables, and his cooking style, which he describes as "local, with Mediterranean influences." Just to keep those Mediterranean influences strong, he visits France or Italy every year. Maybe more travel would help my cooking too . . .

Linda Coates Jones has a new address as well. Last June she graduated from John Tyler Community College with an associate's degree in applied sciences with her major in mortuary science. She passed her national board exams and is now an apprentice. She and her husband purchased Thacker Bros. Funeral Home in Scottsville, Va., last October. Now Linda's husband is also her boss at work! She writes that they love the community and small-town life, and plan to be in Scottsville permanently.

It's easy to get news on our class's best-known graduate, Glenn Close. Since she has just been nominated for another Academy award, I expect we've all been reading a good bit about her.

76 Robert S. Cavaliere 3807 Keith Ave. Fairfax, VA 22030

It's finally warm again. Hope you've gotten an early start on those tasks you spent the winter planning, and I hope one of those tasks was to drop me a line so I can bring everyone up to date on your whereabouts and your goings-on.

Mary Beck wrote a lengthy letter. She's been a whirlwind of activity in the last 24 months or so. While living in Norfolk, Mary met and married Derek Sutton, an engineer with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Derek was promptly transferred to Rockville, Md., and Mary secured a transfer to the D.C. office of the commercial real estate firm she had been working with. In July of '88 she switched firms and now works on a team of suburban office leasing specialists, focusing on the Rosslyn, Ballston and Tyson's Corner areas. She's now ready to jump into W&M alumni activities in northern Virginia so if you live in the area, look her up.

Jacquelyn Brennan was recently named a shareholder in the CPA firm of Fraley and Brennan, P.C. in her native Scotia, N.Y. Jacquelyn holds an M.S. in accounting, cum laude, from SUNY-Albany.

An October article from the Cleveland Plain Dealer stated that Robert Ferreri, an assistant Cuyahoga County prosecutor, was seeking election as a judge in the county Juvenile Court. Bob graduated from Cleveland-Marshall College of Law in 1978 and has been a prosecutor since 1981.

Brown-Forman Beverage Company reported that Bill Butler was promoted to wine manager, based in Dallas. (My wife is the wine manager in our house.) Bill has an MBA from Bellarmine College in Louisville and has been with Brown-Forman since 1978.

In February, I ran into (literally, almost) Dave Savold on the subway in D.C. Dave is an editor at Air & Space Magazine with an office in the Smithsonian's Air & Space Museum. Back in his W&M days Dave worked in the Raleigh Tavern Bakery and he snuck me a cookie or two in exchange for a ride home on my bus when I worked as a CW bus driver. I guess Dave just likes being near tourists. Was good seeing you, Dave. Sorry we didn't have longer to chat.

My next deadline is June 30, so what do you say? Drop me a line. Have a fun summer.

Thanks to everyone for writing, and here's hoping I continue to hear from you!

Tim Boykin recently returned to the mainland from Maui. The Boykins lived in Maui for the past five years, but last January decided to return to Leesburg, Va. Tim has been employed as an air traffic controller since shortly after graduation. After a long stressful day "at the office," Tim comes home to two lively sons, ages 1 and 2. Although the household may be a bit hectic with two young boys, I'm sure Tim is in seventh heaven.

Natalie Haugh and David Six are the proud parents of a beautiful little girl, Elizabeth Ann, born last August. Beth Ann is already approaching eight months of age — how time does fly! Beth Ann's first birthday will be celebrated in Ogden, Utah.

After six years in cost engineering with Mattel Toys in Redondo Beach, Calif., Natalie will be packing up her desk. David recently accepted a new position, still with TRW, in Utah. The family is excited about the move and is looking forward to being able to spend even more time in the great outdoors.

Natalie added that Sheryl Holtzclaw and Larry Gussman and their daughter, Johanna, welcomed Joseph Wilson into the world last March.

Anita Bolick and Paul Tarbox also became first-time parents with the birth of Jennifer Kathleen, who just turned 1! Other news supplied by Anita is that Rev. Kathleen Overby Webster and her husband, Harold, moved to Montpelier, Va., last June where Kathleen accepted the pastorate at Forest Grove United Methodist Church.

Valerie Bettendorf Spargo decided that it's only fitting that her daughter's college roommate at W&M come the fall of 2006 be none other than the daughter of Valerie's college roommate, Anita! Although that is many years away, it is a nice thought. Mary Theresa Spargo was born last June, and I can tell there is a special gleam in Valerie's eye whenever she talks about Mary Theresa. I'm sure Valerie has her hands full both at home and at work in the Department of the Army as a budget analyst.

Valerie passed along other news. Amy Taylor Hill and her husband, Bill, recently celebrated their son's first birthday. The Hills are living in Monterey, Calif., where Bill is in naval post-graduate school. Terry Smith is completing her doctorate in business management at Virginia Tech. Sherry Grosso Smith and her husband are working for C & P in Silver Spring, Md.

I received a note from Merlin Vaughan that was very much in character — it was full of excitement and happiness! Merlin taught for six years at Norge Primary School in Williamsburg, then decided to go back for his master's degree at CBN University in Virginia Beach. Probably the main

GESSNER NAMED SCHOLAR-ATHLETE

Chris Gessner, a cornerback on the 1988 Tribe football team, has been named the recipient of a $2,000 National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Inc., scholarship as one of 11 scholar-athletes selected nationally by the foundation. An economics major, Gessner has maintained a 3.93 grade point average while starting for the Tribe as both wide receiver and cornerback.

ATTENTION, CLASSES OF 1937 AND 1947!

After many years of loyal service, the class reporters for 1937 and 1947 would like to pass the baton to others who are interested in serving as a contact for their classmates. Reporters are responsible for corresponding with class members and writing Class Notes three times a year for the Alumni Gazette. If you'd like to help your class with this important job, please contact Virginia Collins, Associate Editor, Society of the Alumni, P. O. Box 60, Williamsburg, VA 23187. Telephone (804) 229-1693.

SUMMER CAMPS SET AT WILLIAM AND MARY

Summer camps in a number of different sports will be held at William and Mary this fall. The dates and persons to contact for more information are as follows: men's soccer June 18-23 and July 16-21 (Al Albert); women's basketball June 25-29 (Pat Megel); men's basketball, June 25-29 (Chuck Swenson); football July 23-28 (Matt Kelchner); women's soccer June 25-30 and July 30-Aug. 4 (John Daly); tennis July 9-15 and July 16-22, July 23-29 and July 30-Aug. 5 (Kris Milligan); track June 30-July 1 and July 7-8 (Dan Stimson); strength training July 16-19 and July 23-26. For further information call the respective coaches at (804) 253-4360, except for Kris Milligan who can be contacted at 1-800-346-0163.

reason for Merlin's excitement is the news of Merlin's Christmas engagement to a very lovely young lady! The nuptials will take place in July.

1988 was another busy year for weddings. Tammy Krcelic was married to Ted Fryar in May. Carol Bova Hill and her husband, Barry, were able to attend. When Tammy wrote, they were in the process of building a house and expected to move in early this year. Best wishes in your new home!

Tammy is a process chemist for Siebe North Inc. in Charleston, S.C., and Ted is a blacksmith for the naval shipyard there. Before moving to Charleston, Tammy lived in Charlotte, N.C., where she worked as a chemical sales rep for Reagents Inc.

This past October, several Indians attended a "mini-reunion" at the wedding of Mark Dennett and Mary Summerskill. Dan McEachran was Mark's best man and the wedding party included Dave Brown and Paul Hershey. Liz Tufts Brown and Deborah Meek McEachran '81 also enjoyed the festivities. Mark and Mary traveled to Hawaii for their honeymoon, and when they returned moved into their new condo in Alexandria. Mark is a government contracts attorney with the U.S. Postal Service and Mary is busy finishing her studies at George Mason and taking art courses at the Alexandria Art League.

To all who live in the Richmond area and are interested in dance — sign up for top-notch dance instruction at Fandanse, located at 409 Strawberry Street. The dance studio, just in its first year, is destined to be a success, as it is owned by none other than Rodney Williams! The studio offers modern, jazz, tap, ballet, ballroom, African and square dance, as well as instruction in karate and singing and acting.

Rodney is not one to stay idle; he is a dance and music teacher for the elementary school program of the Richmond public school system, director of "Impact on Youth" (a talent show appearing on Storer Cable), a lead vocalist for the Gospel Truth TV show, and deacon and minister of music at Trinity Baptist Church. In 1982 Rodney founded a dance troupe, Trisohm Dance, which performed at the Kennedy Center, and he founded the Upward Bound Dancers at Virginia Union University. He was awarded a teacher fellowship at the Kennedy Center to create new dance programs for the Center. Congratulations on all of your achievements and best wishes for continued success, Rodney!

Thomas Shannon was recently awarded the Department of State's Meritorious Honor Award for his work done while assigned to the Bureau of African Affairs. Among other things, Thomas coordinated the visits of several central African heads of state. After completion of his tour in Washington, Thomas will be assigned to Brasilia, Brazil, as special assistant to the ambassador. That will mean a move for the entire family, which includes his wife, Maria, and young son, Thomas Edward, who recently celebrated his first birthday.

Bill and Sarah Weiser are living in Durham, N.C. Recently, Bill was promoted to the position of development scientist in the analytical development laboratories of Burroughs Wellcome.

Elizabeth Danahy-Shreiner is manager of lockbox operations for First Wachovia Corp.'s Remittance Processing Center. Elizabeth was named vice president at First Wachovia operations services in Dallas.

The Williamsburg area is still home to Beth Terranova. Beth lives in Denbigh, where she is a medical transcriptionist for Williamsburg Community Hospital. Beth's several other activities and interests take up all her spare time. Beth taught herself to operate an amateur radio. A few years ago, when Hurricane Gloria passed through the area, she was on standby to pass along any emergency messages. This year, she was selected to assist with broadcasting the March of Dimes Walk-a-Thon. Beth also is active in the Williamsburg Community Chapel choir and is a consulting member of a "user's group," which discusses the policies, materials and services for the local library's blind clients. In honor of Beth's initiative, community service and achievements, Beth was named the Disabled Professional Woman of the Year by the Pilot Club of Williamsburg. I know I speak for the entire class in extending our sincerest congratulations to Beth on her award!

That's all the news I have for now. My next deadline is the middle of June — please let me know what you have been doing!

82 Rebecca Lewis Saunders 171 Otter Slide Lane Kitty Hawk, NC 27949

Greetings, classmates! I received some newsy letters in response to my last plea, so let me fill you in...

Ellie Ferguson wrote from Wilmington, Del., where she is working at Barclays Bank and contemplating grad school. She recently took a chemistry course at the University of Delaware and enjoyed dipping into the academic world again. (My hat's off to anyone who can enjoy chemistry! Where were you when my GPA was nosediving because of required chem classes?)

Ellie got to see Tami and Bill Savage and reports they are in Alexandria where Tami works at NASA doing computer type graphics, and Bill works at a law office. Tami has caught up with some W&M volleyball teammates now living and working in the D.C. area — Khy Kaupelis '84, Ann Kempinski '84 and Elaine Carlson '84. Ellie mentioned two classmates pursuing the field of biology: Erika Holzbaur Howland in a post-doctoral position in Massachusetts, and Pat Raymond in Nashville considering gastroenterology as a specialty.

John Markey is now a controller for Gescan International, a start-up computer company in Research Triangle Park, N.C. He was one of those in Raleigh blasted by tornadoes last fall, but seems to have benefited overall — workers replaced the roof, windows, deck, chimney and siding on his home, and then he went out car-shopping with the insurance money.

John had some scoop on fellow alums: Ken Meyer recently purchased a house in Houston, Texas; he is an audit manager with Arthur Andersen & Co. and spent a large part of the past year in New York City with clients. Jim Jones is a systems analyst with SRA Corp. in Northern Virginia. Martha Spong Bauer is living in Portland, Me., with husband David and son Edward.

Connie Wilson Ambler is teaching Latin and English at her former high school in Atlanta, while husband Bob Ambler is in his third year at Emory University Law School. They'll be moving to Washington, D.C., this summer where Bob will serve a clerkship and Connie will work on her master's degree in English.

Earl Straight is in San Antonio, Texas, where he has his own law practice. He rooms with Mike Linnane, who just gave up his five-year-old construction and carpentry business to begin a career as a writer. Beginning in March he'll be on a six-month excursion to Mexico to finish his novel. Sounds fine to me! Earl would love to hear any news from his old buddies George Boatwright and Buddy "Bullett" West.

Susan Gray left Philadelphia and has settled into small town life in Spartanburg, S.C., at the South Carolina School for the Deaf and Blind as the early childhood education coordinator, supervising pre-school through first-grade classrooms.

Brad Marrs is still living in Richmond with his wife and baby son Eric whom they are enjoying immensely. He works at a law firm and keeps active in the Republican Party. He'll be door-to-door campaigning this spring with his own General Assembly bout and says he'll be in practice for kissing babies!

Jan Howarth continues to love Hawaii. She is in the maintenance department as Avionics assistant division officer and has learned many good lessons about leadership and people management as her job involves supervision of six other officers and about 130 enlisted personnel. She'll be due a transfer next December. Where to next? Jan got involved in ESPN's aerobics show, "Basic Training—The Workout," and has done some shows and had fun at the workouts and tapings. She sounds healthy and happy!

Congrats to those who received promotions: Steven McDaniel, who is now assistant vice president in commercial loans at First American Bank in Tyson's Corner; and Marsha Percy who was promoted to an associate position in the Washington office of Russell Reynolds Associates.

Chris Bruni is completing her first year of medical internship at the Memorial Mission Hospital in Asheville, N.C.

Wayne Curtis is the editor of Revelations: A Collection of Gay Male Coming Out Stories, which was recently published by Alyson Publishers.

Thanks to all of you who contributed news! It is fun to hear from folks all around the country doing such diverse things! I'm still enjoying life on the Outer Banks, and am looking forward to meeting our third child come August — anyone want to exchange child-rearing tips? Have a wonderful summer!

84 Joanna Lee Ashworth 4 Fenwood Place Yardley, PA 19067

I feel like my four years of Republican efforts have paid off — George Bush is in the White House! These past few years have been incredibly exciting, from the national convention, to the campaign and election, and finally inauguration. One of our classmates, Mark Kelso '85, played a special part in the inaugural festivities. During the program for outstanding high school students on Jan. 19, Congresswoman Lynn Martin introduced Mark, who delivered a dynamic speech. Mark is one of the best safeties in the NFL. He plays for the Buffalo Bills and most appropriately, after Mark's speech, Congressman Jack Kemp tossed Mark a pass. Mark represented William and Mary finely!

My parents, Houston '41 and Joan Ashworth, came down for all of the festivities, including the opening celebration, the Inaugural Gala, and the swearing in. By far, my favorite of all of the parties and balls was the Black Tie & Boots Ball on Saturday night. The gala was the Texas State Society Ball and I saw some truly wild outfits. All of the men had real cowboy boots on with their tuxedos, and we danced to country music all night!

Elizabeth Wood '87 received a promotion here at the Republican National Committee. She has moved up to the speaker's bureau and will be handling the many requests for speakers to represent the Republican Party — Lincoln Day dinners, BBQs, etc. After working on the finance end of President Bush's campaign and the inaugural, Chris Kidder '87 has started working in naval operations at the Pentagon.

Once again, weddings are in the air!

Kevin Davis '87 and Aimee Bellaria '87 tied the knot on April 15. Dan Head '85 and Justina "J.J." Johnson are planning a June wedding. Ann Golwen '83 and David Brand became engaged over Christmas and are planning a July 1 wedding in Memphis! I'll have to sneak over to Graceland for a visit between the wedding festivities. Ann just bought a great condo in Arlington and she has had fun decorating it the past few weeks. Brad Angevine and his fiancee Sandy Deutsch, who works for Bankers Trust in New York, are planning an August 1989 wedding on Long Island. Jeff Bishop popped the question over the holidays to Betsy White. Betsy and Jeff will be married on May 4, 1989, in Reston. I am heading out to San Francisco in April to serve as a bridesmaid in Beth Dodge '83 and Thad Weaver's wedding. I spoke with Fraser Hudgins recently. He is working for Schafer & Associates law firm in Richmond. He has also become engaged and is planning an April 1990 wedding. Fraser, Bobby Harris and I will be serving as the 5th reunion chairmen for our class!

I am beginning to feel old — my roommate from college, Anne St. Clair and her husband, Scott, had their first child, Hunter Scott, on Jan. 28. I can't wait to visit their new addition! My other college roommate, Kim Staples Hundley, and her husband, Greg, are living it up in Dallas. Kim started a new speech therapy job and is very happy.

I was in Miami recently (and it was 30 degrees!), and I went to visit Laurie Bond Mitchell '77. She has a lovely home and works for Ryder Corp. She and her husband have just had their first child, Kathleen, who is a real cutie! When I went to visit, a friend of hers was visiting as well. The friend asked how I knew Laurie and I explained the W&M connection, and what do you know — her friend was also a graduate of the College of Knowledge. It was very funny — neither Laurie nor her friend, Carol Friedman Fine '79, knew that the other had gone to W&M. Carol and her husband have also just had their first child, Jenny.

I hear some news through Alan Neighbors, who frequently visits our home to see Shawn Meyer '88, our new roommate. Shawn works as a paralegal, and Alan graduated from W&M School of Business and is consulting for Piedmont Airlines. He spends a good bit of time in Winston-Salem. Mark Flatin '85 and his wife, Bobbie, are alive and well in Winston-Salem. Mark works at Wachovia and Bobbie is working at a savings and loan. Mark and Bobbie have a daughter, age 1-1/2, and another one on the way. Rich Miller and his wife, Donna, are in Winston-Salem as well. Rich will be working at Wachovia's London office soon. Bert Greenwald and his wife, Karen Barclay '86, will be in Richmond at MCV for Bert's residency. He is finishing med school at the University of Louisville.

I hear that John Kellog is still running around in Virginia's capital as well. He took first place in the five-mile race in the Richmond Newspapers Marathon on Oct. 23, 1988.

Kari and Tony Traver had their second child and will be moving back to Williamsburg. Tom and Dana Hearn are living in Charlotte, N.C. where Tom works for Charlotte Memorial and Dana is a lawyer. I talked to Colleen McKee '87 and she is in Charlotte as well. Colleen is a branch manager for First Union Bank. Ted Geschickter '85 is working for Procter & Gamble in the Queen City, too. Charlotte is the place to be these days!

Rhonda Gillespie Raney is an attorney with the law firm of Larue, Barnardini, Seitz and Tresher, in Daytona Beach, Fla. She is married to the Rev. G. Wesley Raney, pastor of Tubman-King Community Church, where Rhonda is active in the gospel choir, church council and women's

BASF WIGHTMAN CUP TO BE HELD IN SEPTEMBER

The BASF Wightman Cup, which matches the United States' finest female professional tennis players against the best Great Britain has to offer, will be held Sept. 14-16 this year. Tickets for the three-day team competition may be purchased for $30, $25, $12 or $5 per day. For ticket information, please call the William and Mary Hall ticket office at 804-253-7122. For information on sponsorships and advertising, please contact Millie West at 804-253-4360. Please see the June Alumni Gazette for further information and a ticket order form.

WILSONS COMMIT $125,000

Hillsman V. Wilson '51 and his wife Steuart of Timonium, Md., have made a commitment of $125,000 to William and Mary. Of this amount, $50,000 will be used to create an endowment honoring Wilson's brother, the late Lynwood H. Wilson '31. The Hillsman V. and Lynwood H. Wilson Athletic Scholarship will provide financial assistance to a student athlete who plans to attend law school after graduating from William and Mary. Another $50,000 will support scholarships in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, from which Hillsman Wilson graduated in 1953, while the remaining funds will be divided between support for existing scholarships and the annual funds of William and Mary and the law school.

Susan Peterson Fetter writes from afar — she is in Mogadishu, Somalia, which is a country on the Horn of Africa, east of Ethiopia. Susan's husband is the economics officer at the embassy. They moved there from Chad and say that it is beautiful — situated on the Indian Ocean. One problem is that there is a huge contingent of sharks right off shore. So much for swimming! Susan ran into Leslie Weirick Johnson, whose husband, Randy, is a commerce officer there. Keith Jacobson, MBA '81 is a POL/MIL officer living there as well. Not bad for east Africa — four W&M grads!

Susan and Dave spent time in the states in September and visited with many W&M friends. Michelle and Scott Vachris have bought a new home in Arlington. Michelle received her master's degree in economics from George Mason University and is now working toward her Ph.D. Catherine Dehoney '83 is working with the American Symphony Orchestra League. Desiree DiMaruo '85 has just returned from a year of study in Germany and is using her master's in environmental resource management from Duke in a government job. Lilly and Ron Andrews have just bought their second house in Springfield. Marty Hogan is in law school at George Mason, and Hope Solomon is managing a restaurant at Hilton Head. Suzy Tierney has been transferred to Boston for three years to work with government contractors. She is spending her free time singing with a rock band, rock-climbing in New Hampshire, and white water canoeing in Maine. She has even become a Red Sox fan! Boy, Susan and Dave really made the rounds during their home leave before returning to east Africa! They are only a short flight from Nairobi — so come on over for a safari!

Caitlin Porter also saw some W&M grads overseas. She ran into Erik Lundquist '82 in the Black Forest in Germany while on a bike tour through Europe. They cycled together for a whole day before they realized that they held the same alma mater. Both Caitlin and Erik quit their jobs to cycle through Europe. Erik had been working for the Washington Post and Caitlin left the Army in Germany. While biking in Italy, Caitlin ran into Gail Guines Inman '86. You never know when a W&M grad will be around the corner!

Julie Breidegam Kempton sends news that she and her husband Jim Kempton M.S. '84 and Ph.D. '88, are living in Vancouver, British Columbia. They have been there for one year, and are very happy. Vancouver is a beautiful city and Julie and Jim have been taking advantage of camping and hiking. Julie is working on her master's in chemistry at the University of British Columbia and Jim has a post-doctoral position, also at UBC. She spoke with Gaye Bumgardner Guyton '83 over Christmas and she and her husband, Jon Guyton '83 are living outside Minneapolis. They have a little boy, Andrew, who was born in April 1988. Jeff and Laura Plante White are living outside Richmond. Jeff is an accountant with Coopers & Lybrand, and Laura is doing research with A.H. Robins. Kathy Woodall is in Anchorage, Alaska, where she is a music teacher for the Anchorage School system. She really likes living in Alaska! Our class is surely spread out all over the globe!

News from the West — Phyllis and Josh Slocum are alive and well with their new addition, Charlotte, born on April 18, 1988. Josh has moved from the Scottsdale office of A.G. Edwards to the Carefree office; Josh will be joining forces with his father. In his spare time, Josh has become an avid Phoenix Cardinals fan. Phyllis threw another spoke into the women's movement by being promoted to underwriting consultant at Prudential, while on maternity leave! Dave and Jenny Ramey visited Phyllis and Josh in sunny Arizona.

Jenny has her own mail marketing business and Dave continues to do well on the Hill and recently wrote a masterpiece on foreign policy for the Republicans.

Doug Schmidt sent me a Christmas card from another sunny climate. He is about to receive his second master's degree this spring, in computer science, from the University of California at Irvine. His first master's was in sociology from W&M. Doug sounds like he is lovin' the California life!

Maryellen and Doug Bergen have moved from D.C. to Cape Cod and just love it — wouldn't you? Doug is the sports editor for the Cape Codder newspapers and Maryellen is the director of social services at a nursing home. The best part is that most of their free time is spent on the beach!

Kathy and Pat Frakes '86 just had their first baby, Paul Christopher, on Dec. 27, 1988. Jeff and Jennifer Deal are expecting their first as well.

Laurie Raymond Benson and her husband, Chris, are moving to El Paso for Chris to begin his residency.

I rang in the new year with Jackie and Noah Levine. First, David and I went to see the Phantom of the Opera, which I highly recommend. When we came out of the theater, we were only four blocks from the dreaded Times Square at 11 pm on New Year's Eve — quite an experience! We zipped down to the Village and met Noah and Jackie at the Manhattan Brewery. Noah and Jackie had good reason to celebrate the new year — it is their first year as a couple!

Noah Levine and Jackie Lefcort joined hands in marriage on Nov. 13, 1988, in Cedarhurst, N.Y. The black tie wedding was just perfect and what a celebration it was — plenty of dancing until the wee hours. Denise Boscoe '83 and her husband came to celebrate. Denise continues to do well in advertising. Tim Wilson served as a groomsman and Greg Miller sported his brand new tux. Noah and Jackie escaped to Aruba for their honeymoon and returned to a snazzy new apartment on 87th Street in the Big Apple. Jackie graduated from the University of Maryland and she now works for Abraham & Strauss as an associate buyer in handbags. Noah works for Backer, Spielvogel, Bates Inc. in New York and handles the Arrid Extra Dry account.

Although I haven't been to Aruba, my travels have taken me to Boston, Orlando, Tampa and Sanibel Island - where have you been? Our fifth reunion is just around the corner — please write and let your classmates know of all your escapades.

Happy 1989 to one and all! Hope it's been a good one thus far.

More engagements are on the horizon. Lynn Hale and longtime beau William Riggs III will tie the proverbial knot in October. Lynn finishes up her library science program at Catholic University this summer. The happy couple is planning to settle in Richmond where Billy is an architect. I'm so happy for both of you!

A little bird told me that Anne Holmberg is engaged to a fellow Army officer. They plan to return to the Burg for a September Wren Chapel wedding. Congrats!

Julie Wallace Dunn and husband Tom '87 are enjoying Charlotte while Tom waits to hear about law school. Julie recently attended the wedding of Heather Brown '85. She says it was beautiful and such fun to see old Pi Phi friends, including Ann Burhans '85 and Janet Lawson. Janet will be tying the knot soon herself!

Valerie Jacobson Brodsky recently dropped me a line. She celebrated nuptials last May with Neal Brodsky, a UVA grad. Valerie is in her final year at Marshall-Wythe and will begin as an associate with a Norfolk firm in June. The happy couple is living in Newport News.

And have I mentioned that Todd Leeson will be getting married in June? He and Whitney Monger '87 will take their vows at the Wren Chapel. Todd is in his third year of law school at Notre Dame and will be working for Hunton & Williams in Richmond upon graduation. Best wishes to both of you!

Martha Mountain wrote that she is currently in pursuit of her M.F.A. in lighting design at Northwestern University and loves Chicago! Will we be seeing your name in movie credits soon?

Sutton Stephens is in Dallas working with her mom. When are you coming to D.C., Sutton?

Susan Doyle is applying to grad school and teaches in a Catholic school in Arlington.

Lynne Stephens is currently at Syracuse University earning a master's of professional studies in media administration. She's also working as a marketing assistant at the Lifetime cable network in Queens, N.Y. Lynne says she's gotten a chance to see the Cosby Show being filmed. Sounds neat!

Thanks for the wonderful and inspiring letter, Beth Clancy! Beth wrote with yet more proof that the speech and theatre department at W&M is outstanding. She is at Yale's School of Drama working toward a master's in set and costume design. Beth is enamored with Yale and is really enjoying the community. Beth tells me that Ken Cole and Ann Johnson are also at Yale in the technical direction department. She also mentioned that David Johnston graduated from the acting program at Circle in the Square and is waiting for his big break. We'll be watching for you, David!

Angela Campbell dropped me a note from Connecticut where she is still with Price Waterhouse/Consulting and doing well. Debbie Zanfagna is also with PW and has done quite a bit of exciting travel in her job. She and roommate Sue Zanetti are doing well and still living in Falls Church.

Stephanie Wright Denson and husband John '84 are living in Philadelphia. Stephanie is working for Ursinus College.

I saw Mike and Jane Powell '85 at the movies recently. By the time you read this, a new Powell will have entered the world! Jane looked great when I saw her, supporting the theory that pregnant women have a certain beautiful glow! Congrats to both of you!

Pat Cummings dropped me a line to say that Betsy Tinsley is a newlywed, having tied the knot with Richard Wood II in early July. Betsy and Richard are living in Virginia Beach. Congrats! Pat also tells me that Shelli Rubin is working for UNICEF in New York, has applied to law school, and is getting married in June. Shelli, you're certainly keeping busy! Best wishes on your upcoming nuptials!

Fellow choir alum Beth Monin is still living in Nashville and loving it. She is now arts editor for the Nashville Banner where she reviews plays and writes features on the arts. Sounds interesting and entertaining! Beth has been volunteering as a tutor for disadvantaged youngsters in her spare (!) time.

Ben Brake was recently promoted at Wachovia Bank and Trust. He and Susan are awaiting acceptances from various MBA schools. Hope it all works out for the best! (Please write or call — I miss you two!)

Sarah Giffen is the education coordinator at the Old York Historical Society and has been appointed to an advisory board at the Tsongas Industrial History Center in Lowell, Mass. The center's goal is to encourage the teaching of industrial history in America.

I ran into Laura Poms on the Metro recently. She and husband Keith are living in Falls Church and enjoying married life. Keith is still working hard for Arthur Andersen's accounting division. Keith and Laura were two of the many guests at Milan '84 and Beth Turk's wedding in late 1988. Witnessing the ceremony were Dave Maxwell (still with General Electric in Charlottesville), Scott Hahn '83, Mike Arnold '83 (who is getting his doctorate at UCLA), Michelle Barnes '85 who is also at UCLA in the MBA program and Kay Fanestil '87 (who is living in Richmond). After what was surely a fantastic honeymoon in Europe, the happy couple headed back to Miami, where Milan continues to work for Proctor and Gamble. Hope you are enjoying married life!

John Kammeier (my Metro buddy) is working at Woodward and Lothrop with fellow '86er Darby Drew. John just bought his own place and tells me his job in retail is going really well. He says that Tricia Banks '87 is also at Woodies. John also tells me that congrats are in order for my freshman roommate, Marsha Domzalski, who is yet another of the engaged contingent. Are there any single people left?

Late 1988 found Christine Ferguson getting a promotion at AT&T here in D.C. Christine and I have been doing a lot of commiserating over law school applications. (Let's hope that by the time you read this we are no longer commiserating!) We are still singing in the Alexandria Chorale and enjoying it. Christine says that Pam Tiffany and Debbie McDaniels have been up until the wee hours of the night finishing their grad school essays.

Tom (the advertising mogul) Noble, how are you doing? Have you landed any noteworthy accounts?

Steve Richards and Dan Weber were reportedly still freezing in Chicago. Hope you avoided being indicted in the latest insider trading scandal, Steve.

Cathy Creekmore is back from a six-month sojourn in Sydney, Australia. Not only did she have a wonderful time, but she's got a great tan!

Alex Cochran was back from Germany for a brief visit in January. He looks great and is really enjoying his tour abroad. Joining us for a fun night out at the Fish Market here in Alexandria were Mike Lewis, Cathy Curtis, Mark Decker, Liese Cochran '87 and Karen Hansen '87. Liese is enjoying her job in public relations at Burson-Marsteller.

Sarah Helga Shea, Micah Yarbrough (how did the law school acceptances turn out?), Ansley Calhoun (still working for the Close-Up Foundation here in D.C.) and group hosted a fun New Year's party. It was a great chance for a fun time and reminiscing with W&M pals. Pat McGrath is doing well at Vanderbilt University's Medical School. Roy Sauberman is in med school as well. Ginny Cook is in her last year of law school at Marshall-Wythe. Ellen and Doug Brinkley are enjoying their new home in Baltimore. Ellen is studying to become a certified financial planner. (I'll let you handle my millions, E.T.) Patty Canonico '84 is still teaching school in the Baltimore area. Regina Femminella is working at American University's law school and taking graduate courses.

I spoke with Liz Somers Ottoway '84 in late February. She and J.P. have just moved into a new house in Richmond's West End. Glad to hear things are going so well! Liz says she saw Elizabeth Flamm and Ed Grissom recently. Ed is getting ready to graduate from the University of Richmond's law school in May after which he'll be working for a firm in Chesapeake.

Julie Anderson '87 is still in Baltimore working for Maryland National Bank. Paul Calamita '87 has moved to Northern

A few amateur spots still remain. For information on playing or sponsoring a hole, please contact Millie West at 804-253-4360.

JOYCE L. SHIELDS '64 HEADS HAY GROUP SUBSIDIARY

Joyce L. Shields '64 has been appointed president and chief executive officer of Hay Systems Inc. (HSI), a subsidiary of the Hay Group located in Washington, D. C. HSI specializes in forecasting human resource and other support requirements of new technology and equipment for government and industry. Dr. Shields had served as vice president of HSI since 1985 and was recently awarded partnership in the firm. In addition to a bachelor's degree in psychology from William and Mary, she holds a Ph.D. in measurements and statistics from the University of Maryland and a master's degree in experimental psychology from the University of Delaware.

Virginia with the rest of us and is working for a law firm here in D.C.

Anne Jarrell and Greg LoCasale, are you still among us? Hope things are going well for both of you!

As for me, well, I'm still enjoying working here at Heron, Burchette, privy to all the latest and greatest scandals in the world of white collar crime. (Have you read about us in the news? We're the fastest growing firm in D.C. and just opened a Moscow office.) I hope that by the time you receive this missive I will be preparing for law school. As always, I thank all of you who have written to say how much you enjoy my column. It really means a lot! So keep those letters coming! I couldn't do it without your help! Have a wonderful spring and summer!

The father of Richard Cohen writes that Richard is spending a year in Israel under the Sherut La'am program. Mr. Cohen says that the appeal of the Sherut La'am program is to gain an insider's knowledge of Israel while also achieving valuable work experience. The one-year program includes three months of Hebrew study (the ulpon) plus nine months of work. Richard will be returning to the U.S. in October 1989.

Maria Santucci, Sue Campbell and Donna Romankow wrote to provide this info:

Over Christmas break Maria, Sue and Donna got together and rocked Philadelphia. While there they ran into a bronzed Juli Winkler, who had just returned from Cancun (where she put the natives to shame with her tequila slammers). When Jill is not partying, she studies fitness management in the master's program at the University of Richmond.

Maria is doing very well at Villanova Law School (sorry about the mistake, Maria). Donna made it through her law school exams, too, at Indiana University (Bloomington). Donna plans on possibly living there, where she finds the corn especially delicious.

Sue visited Maria and Donna for the holidays after taking time off from her job in the advertising department at Roll Call, the Newspaper of Congress. Sue currently lives with Sue Wilson in Alexandria. Sue Wilson is teaching first grade in Triangle, Va.

Mac Williams is attending the University of South Carolina in Columbia. He is a straight-A student and a graduate assistant. I should say Uncle Mac. Mac's two sisters have both had babies in the past few months. Congratulations!

Mac is living with Aaron DeGroft, who is also pursuing a graduate degree from the University of South Carolina. Aaron also is a straight-A student and a graduate assistant.

Aaron and Mac see Arthur Rosaria quite often. He is working for his master's in international business administration when he's not being the "Cosmopolitan Entertainer." The three of them love South Carolina.

Mac also writes that he has been developing a high-flying hobby. He went flying with friends over break but does not expect to get a pilot's license soon. This spring Mac has an internship handling the corporate art collection at South Carolina National Bank. Corporate art is another of his hobbies.

Bud Walker writes with information on several classmates:

Mike Lynch is a sports reporter for the Altavista Journal, which takes him around all of central Virginia.

Doug Huszti is a draftsman for the Virginia Theatre, located at the Virginia Museum of Art in Richmond. Doug often visits local bars with fellow class-member Steve Carlisle.

Eric Remy is currently enrolled in the Army's officer basic course at Fort Knox.

Susan Lilly is a lobbyist for the National Rifle Association's Institute for legislative affairs. She has a new kitten named "Muffin," which keeps her company in Washington, D.C.

Dave Ransom and Tim Lesniak are rooming together in Charlottesville, and both work for UVA.

Lisa Price is a graduate student at American University and is involved in student government there.

Mark Maurer has successfully completed the Army's officer basic course at Fort Sill, Okla. Congratulations, Mark!

Eric Williams is teaching history at Madison High School in Vienna, Va., and is rooming with Ted Zoller '87.

Uri Arkin is attending law school in Miami, Fla., and is soaking up many rays.

Tom Toler is working in Williamsburg by night and job searching by day. Tom was recently elected to the national board of governors for Delta Phi fraternity.

Andy Ellett is working in Northern Virginia but very much wants to go to graduate school to escape the real world.

Shannon Lucas writes that she has been working for GE Aerospace in Northern Virginia and loves it. Shannon sends news of Cathy Sherwin who is working for Gordon Associates in Northern Virginia and is still seeing Mike Gaydos. Shannon sees Kelly Adams quite often, who works for the FDA and Holiday Spa where she's seen the likes of Chris Kidder '87 and Laura Simonds. Carol Stubin and Scott Bell are loving married life in Texas. Laurie Bunkelman is also working in Northern Virginia and is still hanging out with Greg Burzell.

The Dickinson School of Law sent a communique to the Alumni Office informing us that Jim McCreedy is well into his first year of study.

Coincidentally, Jim wrote me over the holidays. He tells us that Kaky Spruill is also a first-year law student at Dickinson. Jenny Whitaker is at Indiana University (Bloomington) getting her master's in preventive and prescriptive medicine. Jenny is rooming with best friend Lynn Kerr, who is at the law school at IU.

Jim also writes that Ann Oliver is studying marine biology at Duke University and is rooming with Tricia Ritenour, who is getting her master's in chemistry.

Keith Driscoll and his brother Scott '86 sent a press release to the Society of the Alumni to inform us that they have formed their own advertising firm, Driscoll Media Placement. The firm was formed to help Northern Virginia and Washington area companies place their advertisements more effectively. Services offered by the company include media buying, advertisement design, price negotiation, response tracking and media information. We wish them the best of luck with their business endeavors!

The Orange Coast Daily Pilot of Costa Mesa, Calif., reports that Chris Fowle quit his job at Prudential-Bache Securities to "pitch the merits of Proposition 103 face to face with potential skeptics." Proposition 103 deals with the insurance industry's efforts to promote the no-fault initiative, Proposition 104. Chris plans to eventually go to graduate school and then possibly do some lobbying for a non-profit organization.

Congratulations to Pam Foster, who has been named a program instructor by the Close Up Foundation of Washington, D.C., the nation's largest civic education organization which offers week-long, government studies programs. As a program instructor Pam, will be responsible for implementing the Close Up educational program through the supervision and instruction of 15 to 25 high school students each week.

Marine Pfc. Matthew S. Farrell recently completed a recruit training course at Marine Corps Recruit Depot in Parris Island, S.C. Congratulations, Matt!

Page Hayhurst is at the University of Richmond working on her master's in museum studies.

Leslie Hornaday plans to move to Richmond in late July and will be living with Cathy Riley for a month.

Chris Cox is planning a trip to Africa to visit Lisa Reeves '87. Have a safe trip!

Sujet Mohanty attends Columbia University in New York City and has found he is not quite a "city boy."

Ana Shrank and Becky Okonkwo are sharing an apartment in New York City.

Jen James is in Paris, studying at the Sorbonne and teaching English to French children. Jen plans to return to the U.S. in the fall and earn her master's in English.

Bonnie McDonald writes from New York City where she is studying at Julliard. She is an intern in the stage department as a carpenter and has served as technical director for shows in 301, the studio theatre there. She is doing very well and likes it. Keep up the good work, Bon!

Hello to Steve Lewis, who is now back at William and Mary studying for his master's in history.

Charlie Miscio and John Reynolds have started a painting company in Northern Virginia.

Susie Soaper recently flew from Kentucky to visit Dave Gaston in New Jersey for a whirlwind trip to the theatre in New York City. Susie will be leaving in the fall for a year of study in London. Dave is now applying to graduate schools and hopes to earn his master's in history.

Amy Hoyt is still living with Suzy Hoube in Syracuse and will be spending her spring break on Sanibel Island with Cathy Riley, Leslie Hornaday, Renee Snyder, Becky Okonkwo and three others. There will be lots of fruity drinks and turbo tanning!

And last but hopefully not least, I am still at Syracuse University in my first year in the College of Visual and Performing Arts and doing very well. (Straight A's!) I have just started a research grant project which I hope will culminate in a book published some time in the next two years. The subject is Arthur Storch, a veteran actor and director, who is head of Syracuse Stage, the equity theatre in Syracuse, and head of the Syracuse University drama department. Wish me luck!

Thanks again to all who contributed to the column. Write and let me know what you're up to. If there is anything you think the class might like to know, send it to me, and I'll make sure it gets into the Gazette.

RESOLUTIONS HONOR NUNN, HUMELSINE

Two resolutions sponsored by Delegate George Grayson and passed by the General Assembly of Virginia honored individuals associated with William and Mary who died recently. House Joint Resolution 341 mourned the passing and expressed appreciation "for the many contributions of Vernon L. Nunn (class of 1925), who served William and Mary for more than half a century." House Resolution 94 expressed the gratitude of the General Assembly "for the many contributions to the nation and state made by Carlisle H. Humelsine, former president and chairman of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and member of the William and Mary Board of Visitors."

PARENTS GIVE $100,000

Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Meredith of Norfolk, parents of two William and Mary alumnae, have given William and Mary $100,000 to establish a permanent endowment that will provide scholarship assistance to deserving undergraduate students. The Merediths have established the scholarship endowment in honor of their daughters, Susan Trumbo Meredith '82 and Sunshine Meredith Leinbach '83.

JOSEPH L. MUSCARELLE '27 COLLEGE BENEFACTOR

Joseph L. Muscarelle '27, a 1982 recipient of the Alumni Medallion for service and loyalty to the College and a major benefactor of William and Mary, died recently at the age of 85 in Hackensack, N.Y. A construction executive, Mr. Muscarelle and his wife Margaret donated generously to the Joseph L. and Margaret Muscarelle Museum of Art which was dedicated in 1985. Museum director Mark M. Johnson described Mr. Muscarelle's donation to the museum as "an expression of love toward William and Mary and toward art." He noted that the generosity of the Muscarelles "made the dream of a fine arts museum at William and Mary a reality. He had great love for the College and the museum was a symbol of that devotion."

Vital Statistics

ROBERT EUGENE COOK '50 B.C.L. of Ravenna, Ohio, died Nov. 28, 1988. He was a member of Kappa Sigma. A veteran of World War II, he also earned an undergraduate degree in 1947 from Kent State University, which honored him with an award for Outstanding Achievement in Government in 1960 and named him a distinguished alumnus in 1979. He was elected the Portage County (Ohio) prosecutor in 1952, and in 1958 won a seat in the U.S. Congress from Ohio's 11th district, a position he held for two terms. He served as a judge for two terms in the Portage County Common Pleas Court from 1963 until 1968 when he won a seat on the bench of the 11th District Ohio Court of Appeals, a position he held until his death. He had also served as a faculty advisor of the National College of Judiciary and was active in numerous other professional, civic and social organizations. Survivors include his wife, Evelyn.

CATHERINE RANDOLPH LEE TRASK '50 B.A. of Salt Lake City, Utah, died Oct. 3, 1986. As an undergraduate, she participated in Music Club, Spanish Club and the Westminster Fellowship.

CHARLES WILLIAMS HARDIN '51 of Suffolk, Va., died Jan. 14, 1989. He also attended Appalachian State University, the University of Mexico and the Sheffield School of Aeronautics, and studied in England, Scotland, Spain, Switzerland and Mexico. A Navy veteran of World War II, he later worked in the airline industry before becoming assistant director of the Bristow Hardin School of Music of Norfolk and Virginia Beach. He worked for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation for 13 years, retiring as master music teacher and supervisor of the Music Teacher's Room. He continued to teach, lecture and exhibit his extensive collection of antique, ethnic and folk instruments. He founded the Virginia Beach Recorder Society in 1962, served as a faculty member and adjudicator of the American College of Musicians and the National Guild of Piano Teachers, and was active in professional and church affairs. Surviving are his wife, Marilyn, and three stepsons.

DOUGLAS ARTHUR BOECKMANN '61 B.C.L. of New York, N.Y., died Dec. 12, 1988. He received a B.A. from Hofstra College in 1961 and an LL.M. from New York University School of Law and was an Air Force veteran. A partner in the law firm of Semel, Boeckmann, Diamond, Schepp & Yuhas, he represented Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. for 24 years, most recently as its appeals attorney. He is survived by his wife, Julia Spring, a daughter, his parents and a sister.

CHARLES EDMUND JETER '64 M.T.S. of Arlington, Va., died July 26, 1987. He also received an A.B. from the University of Virginia in 1949. He had retired from teaching physics at Fairfax High School after 35 years and was active in his church. Surviving is a brother.

THELMA GRIFFIN SANDERS '64 M.Ed. of Chesapeake, Va., died Dec. 1, 1988. She earned a B.S. in elementary education from the Norfolk Division of the College in 1962. A retired teacher, she was active in several professional and civic organizations and in her church. Survivors include a daughter, two sons and two sisters.

WADE WARDELL CHEATHAM '65 B.A. of Richmond, Va., died Feb. 15, 1989.

He served as a member of the Queen's Guard and as alumni secretary and pledge trainer for Pi Kappa Alpha. Following graduation, he joined First Union National Bank of Charlottesville. In 1971, he became president and director of Williamsburg National Bank, and in 1974 vice president of Southern Bank (now Jefferson National) when it acquired Williamsburg National. He transferred to Charlottesville as senior vice president in charge of operations, and in 1988 to Richmond as vice president and operations officer for the bank's eastern region. He was pursuing a graduate degree in banking from the Stonier Graduate School, University of Delaware at the time of his death. He is survived by two daughters, his mother, and a brother, Alvin '69.

MARTHA NELL McKAUGHAN (TARKENTON) '65 of Newport News, Va., died Sept. 1, 1987. She earned a B.S. from West Carolina College in 1961 and was a teacher of mathematics at Kecoughtan

High School at the time of her death. Survivors include her husband, Charles, and a son.

PAUL FRANKLIN THOMAS JR. '66 M.Ed. of Norfolk, Va., died March 4, 1989. He received a B.A. from East Carolina College in 1959. He was a Navy veteran of the Korean War and had formerly served as a teacher and elementary school principal. From 1971 until his death, he served as director of food services for Norfolk public schools. Among survivors are his wife, Peggy, two daughters, his mother, a sister and a brother.

CORRECTION: MARGARET McCUE (EDWARDS) '60 was incorrectly reported deceased in the March 1989 issue of the Alumni Gazette. The actual deceased is her mother, MARGARET THORNTON (McCUE) '22, who died on Dec. 9, 1985. We deeply regret the error and extend apologies to the family.

Society Seeks Nominees for Alumni Medallion

Alumni and friends are invited to submit nominations for the Alumni Medallion, the highest and most prestigious award given by the Society of the Alumni.

Presented each year at Homecoming to as many as five alumni, the award recognizes outstanding members of the alumni body for exemplary accomplishments in their professional lives, service to the community, state or nation, and loyalty and commitment to the College of William and Mary. The award reflects the honor and credit that recipients bring to the university through their actions and contributions.

Qualified nominees must be members of a class that graduated at least 10 years prior to the awarding.

Information regarding each nominee and supporting statements must be submitted on an Alumni Medallion Nomination Form, which is available by writing or calling Alumni Medallion Nominations, Society of the Alumni, P. O. Box 60, Williamsburg, VA 23187, (804) 229-1693.

Deadline for Nominations: June 1.

Your Estate Plan Where There's a Will ... There's a Way

Your Last Will and Testament is the cornerstone of your estate plan. It is a lasting expression of your love and affection for your family, church, and others you wish to remember.

In preparing your will, we hope you will remember The College of William and Mary. By doing so, you will have the satisfaction of providing for the future, while establishing a permanent memorial to you or a loved one.

You can create a scholarship fund, faculty fund, or other endowment through a simple provision in your will.

For further information, write for our booklet, "The Future of William and Mary and Your Will."

A will is a way to remember . . . and be remembered!

Grants and Research Report

Research Means Major Financial Support for William and Mary

The College of William and Mary receives grants from a variety of sources including federal agencies, state and local government, private corporations, and private foundations. A major source of revenue for the College as well as the basis of funding for an expansion of knowledge, the awards represent national recognition by both government and the private sector because they have been competitively evaluated and selected as among the best research and instructional projects in the country. Some recent accomplishments follow.

RESEARCH AWARDS IN THE HUMANITIES

Faculty members Scott Donaldson and Talbot Taylor from the English department, and James C. Livingston from the religion department, received three of the 120 research fellowships awarded in 1989 from the National Endowment for the Humanities under its program of Research Fellowships for College Teachers and Independent Scholars.

GRADUATE STUDENT SUPPORT

Last year approximately 160 students received stipends to support their master's and doctoral degree work under grants and fellowships from federal funding agencies such as the National Science Foundation, NASA, U.S. Department of Education, state agencies, and private foundations. These students are in all departments and schools.

MINORITY STUDENT SUPPORT

Since 1981, 25 students from minority and other groups under represented in areas of national need have received Patricia Roberts Harris fellowships funded by grants from the U.S. Department of Education.

RESEARCH EXPERIENCES FOR UNDERGRADUATES IN THE SUMMER

For the past several summers, undergraduate students have participated in a special Research Experiences for Undergraduates program in the physics and geology departments, funded by grants from the National Science Foundation.

Overall, 36 undergraduate students participated in research projects in biology, chemistry, and physics from grants from the Petroleum Research Fund, Jeffress Memorial Trust and the National Science Foundation.

FOUNDING OF THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL PROJECT CENTER

The summer of 1988 marked the beginning of the Archaeological Project Center which is affiliated with the Anthropology Department, and is headed by Director Robert Hunter. Its founding enabled by an initial York River Crossing grant from the Virginia Department of Transportation, the center has been extremely active from the beginning. With a staff of professional archaeologists and well-equipped facilities for collecting and testing, the center is able to offer a wide range of services to both state and private agencies in projects which have taken them not only to the local area but also over much of the state.

Professors Scott Donaldson, James C. Livingston and Talbot Taylor are recipients of prestigious National Endowment for the Humanities research fellowships.

Expenditures for Grants and Contracts 1987-88

Faculty of Arts and Sciences	$3,103,937
School of Business Administration	94,880
School of Education	309,018
School of Law	150,347
School of Marine Science	3,782,566
Student Affairs and Financial Aid	761,394
Other (Provost's Office, Public Service, Library, Museums, Business Affairs)	191,153
TOTAL	$8,393,925

1987-1988 GRANTS AND RESEARCH HIGHLIGHTS

- Expenditures for research and instruction from public and private grants totalled $8.3 million in 1987-1988, a 16% increase over 1986-1987.

- Expenditures for externally sponsored faculty projects exceeded $3.8 million in Arts and Sciences, Business, Education and Law and were more than $4.5 million in Marine Science.

- Externally sponsored research support grew 26% at the Williamsburg campus and 15% at the School of Marine Science, the York River campus.

- Federal, State and private grant support for research and instructional programs is now equivalent to an additional $1,200 per student and represents 15% of the Education and General Budget for the university.

- Approximately two-fifths of the university's faculty members received support from external agencies for their research interests.

- Over 120 faculty members received compensation, including summer research salaries, from grants.

- Over 200 students received at least partial support from research grant funds.

- Indirect costs included in these awards increased by 12% and generated approximately $280,000 for support of the Faculty Research Grant Programs.

- In 1987-1988, 37 faculty members received Summer Faculty Research Grants; and 24 faculty members were awarded Semester Research Assignments. Since 1983-1984 there has been an increase of five Summer Research Grants and five Semester Research Grants. This is a result of the faculty's ability to increase external support for research.

- Forty-four faculty members received summer course development or seminar fellowships which were funded from grants: Twenty-eight from the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia, eleven from a Ford Foundation grant, and five from endowment income from the National Endowment for the Humanities Challenge Grant, awarded to the College in 1979-82.

David Kranbuehl, associate provost for research, grants and research administration, coordinates William and Mary efforts to bring research money to the College.

FACULTY OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Anthropology

Barka, Norman F. and Marley R. Brown, "York River Crossing Study," Virginia Department of Transportation, $187,349 (5/24/88 - 8/31/88).

Brown, Marley R., "Hampton University Archaeological Survey," Hampton University, $8,664 (7/6/87 - 9/6/87).

Moyer, Curtis, "Conservation of Artifacts," Historic Annapolis, Inc., $3,500 (11/1/87 - 6/30/88).

Moyer, Curtis, "Conservation of King's Reach Site Artifacts," Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development, $965 (6/1/87 - 9/1/88).

Reinhart, Theodore R., "Archaeological Phase I Survey of Hillpoint Farms Project, Suffolk, Virginia," Oceans Holdings, Incorporated, $12,891 (5/15/88 - 6/30/88).

Department of Biology

Byrd, Mitchell A., "Nongame and Endangered Species Investigations," Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries, $73,200 (7/1/88 - 6/30/89).

Terman, Richard C., "A Study of Socially Induced Contraception: Clarification of Mechanisms," Jeffress Memorial Trust, $15,400 (7/1/88 - 6/30/90).

Department of Chemistry

Abelt, Christopher J., "Collaborative Binding in Bis-Cyclodextrins," Research Corporation, $23,000 (1/1/88 - 12/31/89).

Abelt, Christopher J., "Quinone-Capped B-Cyclodextrins: Potential Photoinduced Electron-Transfer Catalysts," Jeffress Memorial Trust, $41,700 (1/1/88 - 12/31/90).

Abelt, Christopher J. and David W. Thompson, "Acquisition of a Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Spectrometer," W. M. Keck Foundation, $65,000 (12/17/87 - 12/16/88).

DeFotis, Gary C., "Experimental Studies of Two-Dimensional and Random Magnetic Systems," Petroleum Research Fund, $20,000 (9/1/87 - 8/31/89).

DeFotis, Gary C., "Magnetic Measurements," R. R. Donnelley and Sons Company, $1,500 (10/1/87 - 4/30/88).

DeFotis, Gary C., "Magnetism and Phase Transitions of Transition Metal Compounds," National Science Foundation, $29,600 (11/1/87 - 4/30/89).

DeFotis, Gary C., "Teaching and Research Fellow at The College of William and Mary," The Camille and Henry Dreyfus Foundation, $45,000 (9/1/88 - 8/31/89).

Djordjevic, Cirila, "Transition Metal Peroxo Complexes," National Science Foundation, $32,951 (5/1/88 - 9/30/89).

Kiefer, Richard L. and Robert A. Orwoll, "The Effects of the Interaction of Polymeric Materials with the Space Environment," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $12,026 (6/16/88 - 6/15/89).

Knudson, Stephen K. and John B. Delos, Department of Physics, "Publication Subsidy," The Jeffress Memorial Trust, $265 (4/1/88-7/31/88).

Kranbuehl, David E., "Characterization of the Relationship of the Cure Cycle Chemistry to Cure Cycle Processing Properties," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $50,625 (12/1/87 - 11/30/88).

Kranbuehl, David E., "Characterization of the Relationship of Frequency Dependent Electromagnetic Properties to Cure Cycle Processing of High Performance Resins," Center for Innovative Technology, $29,000 (1/1/88 - 12/31/88).

Kranbuehl, David E., "Frequency Dependent Electromagnetic Characterization of Polymerization of BMI and Epoxy Resins," General Dynamics/Convair Division, $12,993 (3/7/88 - 8/26/88).

Kranbuehl, David E., "Instrumental Technique for Measuring Polymerization," Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, $64,962 (3/18/88 - 3/17/89).

Thompson, David W., "College Science Grant," E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, Inc., $6,000 (1/1/88 - 12/31/88).

Department of Computer Science

Burton, John C. and Stephen K. Park, "End-to-End Digital Imaging System Simulation," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $18,000 (6/1/88 - 5/31/89).

Feyock, Stefan, "Automatic Determination of Fault Effects on Aircraft Functionality," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $78,377 (2/18/88 - 2/17/89).

Kearns, John P., "Three Problems in Concurrent Systems," National Science Foundation, $59,244 (6/1/88 - 11/30/89).

Long, Jacquelyn E. and William L. Bynum, "Generation of Real-Time Graphic Displays," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $18,000 (8/16/87 - 8/15/88).

Miller, Keith W., Larry J. Morell, Robert E. Noonan and Stephen K. Park, "Toward a Practical Theory of Ultra-Reliable Software," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $38,891 (6/1/88 - 12/31/89).

Morell, Larry J., "Incremental Assessment and Improvement of Software Reliability," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $39,970 (1/16/88 - 1/15/89).

Morell, Larry J., "Safety Analysis of Knowledge-Based Systems," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $27,955 (6/6/88 - 6/5/89).

Prosl, Richard H., "Cooperative Education, Training and Research Opportunities in Computer Science and MIS," Eastern State Hospital, $24,000 (10/16/87 - 8/14/88).

Reichenbach, Stephen E. and Stephen K. Park, "Algorithms for Focal Plane Image Restoration," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $18,000 (6/1/88 - 5/31/89).

Department of Geology

Goodwin, Bruce K., "Research Experience for Undergraduates: Individual Projects on Virginia Geology," National Science Foundation, $32,000 (4/15/88 - 11/30/88).

Department of Government

Kim, Chonghan and James A. Bill, International Studies Program, "Development of a Korean Studies Program," Korean Research Foundation, $20,001 (6/1/88 - 5/31/89).

Kim, Chonghan, John M. Nagle and Ronald C. Wheeler, School of Education; Craig N. Canning, Department of History, "Commonwealth Seminar on East Asia: China, Japan and Korea," Office of the Governor, $176,500 (1/1/88 - 12/31/88).

Rapoport, Ronald B., "The Active Minority: Collaborative Research of Presidential Selection and the Political Parties," National Science Foundation, $97,278 (8/1/87 - 1/31/90).

Department of History

Canning, Craig N., John M. Nagle and Ronald C. Wheeler, School of Education; Chonghan Kim, Department of Government, "Commonwealth Seminar on East Asia: China, Japan and Korea," Office of the Governor, $176,500 (1/1/88 - 12/31/88).

Hoak, Dale E., "The World of William and Mary," Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy, $5,000 (3/11/88 - 11/30/89).

Wren, John Thomas and Robert J. Scholnick, Dean of Graduate Studies of Arts and Sciences, "Jacob Javits Fellows Program," Department of Education, $3,775 (9/1/87 - 8/30/88).

Department of Modern Languages and Literatures

Mather, Clare M., "French Theatre Production of 'La Colonic'," Williamsburg Area Arts Commission, $490 (3/1/88 - 2/28/89).

McGraw, Beverly A., "Africa Rediscovered," Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy, $1,500 (11/5/87 - 5/31/88).

Department of Mathematics

Andersen, Carl M., "Tire Nonlinear Model," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, $65,000 (12/1/87 - 11/30/88).

Johnson, Charles R., "Further Issues in Matrix Theory," Office of Naval Research, $69,543 (5/15/87 - 9/30/88).

Johnson, Charles R., "Topics in Matrix Analysis and Application," National Science Foundation, $47,300 (6/1/88 - 11/30/89).

Kincaid, Rex K., "Intergovernmental Personnel Assignment," U. S. Army Logistics Management College, $12,254 (5/23/88 - 7/15/88).
