Verkuil, Gamage and Mapp to Receive Alumni Medallions

By Virginia Collins '77

When Paul Verkuil graduated from William and Mary in 1961 with a bachelor's degree in English, Stewart Hamilton Gamage '72 was finishing up fifth grade in Petersburg, Va., while John Mapp '35 was firmly established in his career and working in New Orleans as commissioner of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Destiny brings these three alumni together this Homecoming when they will be presented with the Alumni Medallion, the highest honor given by the Society of the Alumni for service and loyalty to William and Mary and for leadership and achievement in professional and community life. The Alumni Medallion has been given to a total of 194 alumni since it was first awarded in 1934.

As William and Mary's 25th president, Paul R. Verkuil finds service to William and Mary not only a constant part of his job description but also a natural extension of his long-term relationship with the institution.

"I accepted the job because it is William and Mary," said Verkuil shortly after becoming president more than five years ago. "I have a special place in my heart and in my life for this institution. I came of age here and I knew the College then in a very special way. I've also seen it from the point of view of a person in academic life over the years."

While being a college president is fraught with such modern-day liabilities as shrinking resources and rising costs, Verkuil continues to meet the challenge of working with students, faculty, administrators, alumni, the legislature and other constituencies that demand his attention and guidance.

"In some ways, given my legal background, I represent this institution as if it were my client," says Verkuil, who holds a law degree from the University of Virginia, as well as a Doctor of Juridical Science from New York University.

"I try to ensure the College operates well, that it keeps moving in a positive direction, while watching out for pitfalls along the way. I also see myself as a motivator of the very best that is in this institution and the people who define it."

For Verkuil, keeping the institution moving in a positive direction has translated into a number of initiatives, all of which have deepened William and Mary's reputation for excellence as it prepares to enter its fourth century.

Under Verkuil's leadership, academic programs have been strengthened and enhanced, fund-raising efforts to support these and other programs have achieved new heights, and a number of new capital projects have been completed on campus. Equally important has been the progress in shaping William and Mary's future as a small public university that offers a long tradition of high-quality undergraduate study along with significant new ventures in graduate and professional study.

Joining in the effort to make what's good about William and Mary even better is Stewart Hamilton Gamage '72, who serves on the Tercentenary Commission and was a member of the College's Board of Visitors from 1985 until early this year. During the final year of her term she served as vice rector. She also served on the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni from 1980 to 1985.

Faculty members in particular laud her understanding of William and Mary's academic mission and her willingness to dig beneath the surface and learn more. "I have always been impressed with the quality of her work," said David Lutzer, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences, who was associated with Gamage when she chaired the Board of Visitors' Committee on Academic Affairs. "She has spent exhaustive hours on campus learning about our programs."

In addition to serving William and Mary, Ms. Gamage has achieved a distinguished career in serving the public. After graduating from William and Mary in 1972 she was selected as a Commonwealth of Virginia intern. She went on to hold a variety of positions in state government and on Capitol Hill, along the way earning a master's degree in public administration from the University of Southern California.

As director of the Virginia Liaison Office from 1982-1989, she served both Gov. Robb and Baliles as their "eyes, ears and brains in Washington." Last year she left that post to work in the House of Representatives as floor assistant to House Majority Leader Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo.

John Mapp's association with William and Mary goes back more than half a century. Beginning as president of his freshman class and later serving as president of the student body and editor of The Flat Hat, Mapp has assumed positions of leadership on campus to the present day. He chaired the 50th Reunion Committee for his class and from 1989 to 1990 served as chairman of the Olde Guard Council.

Mapp's early professional career included several positions in the fields of personnel administration and labor relations. As the director of personnel for the city of Richmond from 1949 to 1952 he helped inaugurate the council-manager form of government under a new city charter and set up the civil service system.

After earning a master's degree from New York University in 1962, Mapp entered the field of education where he became dean of the evening college and summer sessions for Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond. From his tenure from 1964 to 1978 the evening college's enrollment grew and eventually ranked first nationally. He served as president of the North American Association of Summer Sessions.

In 1984 VCU honored Mapp as one of the first two recipients of the Presidential Medallion.

Mapp has been an active participant in educational, civic and church activities in the Richmond area. A past president of the Capital Area Agency on Aging, he now serves on the advisory committee. As a board member for the Shepherd's Center of Richmond, he helped create for senior citizens "Free University" classes taught largely by emeriti faculty and staff of VCU. He is the former president of the Richmond Community Action Program and is now a member of the executive committee. Numerous other organizations have benefited from his leadership and participation.

The Alumni Medallions will be presented during the Society's Annual Awards Dinner/Dance on Friday, Nov. 2, at 8 p.m. at the Williamsburg Lodge. Further details and registration information are included in the Homecoming insert in this issue of the Alumni Gazette.

RINGING FAR AND NEAR

The Magic of William and Mary

By Barry Adams

Homecoming is unquestionably one of the grand occasions in the life of this university. Some alumni have been known to label their travel to the annual celebration as a pilgrimage. Others have simply said it is a "tour for the heart." This year when the thousands of alumni and friends converge in Williamsburg for the yearly celebration, November 1-4, they will be reminded of the special mystical and magical qualities of their alma mater. We hope this year's theme, William and Mary MAGIC, will entice you back to experience it once again.

Uncovering what is magical about William and Mary in the minds of alumni did not require any knowledge of alchemy or sorcery on my part. I merely telephoned some alumni chapter leaders and posed the question.

"You probably won't ever meet anyone who doesn't become nostalgic about the College," said Roy Shelor '49. President of the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter, Roy feels that "It is just something about the camaraderie of William and Mary people. It's like going back to a small hometown — we knew everyone when we were there. It's a good family feeling. It's different. It's something that lasts forever. That's William and Mary magic."

Magical feelings aren't necessarily linked to the distance from the College. Mike Ware '78, president of the Norfolk/Virginia Beach Chapter notes that last year was the first Homecoming he has missed — his daughter Monica was being born. This year he and Nancy will bring their daughter with them and celebrate by holding a tailgate birthday party with friends.

"The magic relates to the different interactions and experiences that we had there, including those with the faculty," Mike adds that those experiences continue after graduation but also says that living in Norfolk probably spoils him. "Returning to Williamsburg" anytime has a magical quality.

Cyndy Huddleston '83, '86 M.E.D. and president of the Society's largest chapter — the Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Chapter — feels that the magic "is hard to put into words." Cyndy thinks about the feelings when she was on campus as a student:

"The sense of history intertwined with the people, classmates and faculty that I met there." Homecoming allows her an opportunity to see the changes on campus but also experience the things "that have remained the same."

"It definitely has magic for me," explains Nancy Norris Foster '44, secretary for the Lower Northern Neck Chapter. "It simply brings joy to my heart. It will always be the highlight of my life. I get excited when I think about Homecoming."

Karen Ramsey '82, vice president of the Roanoke Chapter relates magic to her move from Richmond less than two years ago (with husband Rick '81). "It has given us an opportunity to make new friends." She attributes that spirit to the experiences that most people have on the William and Mary campus. That sense of a continuing family extends to alumni chapters, she explains. A volunteer in the Alumni Admissions Network, Karen hopes she communicates "how magical the school is" when she talks with prospective students.

Lynn and Ed Lull, 1983 graduates who head the San Francisco Chapter, both referred to the "shared experiences" that alumni of all ages have. "What is magical, if not haunting," declares Lynn "is to be at a college where so many great people also studied. History, tradition and roots. Words like that which apply to William and Mary make me feel grounded."

"Things move so quickly today. Technology. Careers. It's nice to think about the continuity and strength of William and Mary. It will always be there. It's peaceful. It's a reference point in my life that stays constant," she adds.

Homecoming merely organizes a weekend which affords you adequate lead time to prepare for the journey. The excitement, traditions, friendships, and sense of belonging are here all the time.

Rediscover the magic this November.

Brooks George '32 Named Grand Marshal

One of William and Mary's most dedicated and well-known alumni will be honored as Grand Marshal of this year's Homecoming festivities. W. Brooks George '32 and his wife Elizabeth will ride in the Homecoming Parade on Saturday morning and be part of other weekend activities. The Georges are longtime residents of Richmond where their two sons, William '62 and Henry '65, also live.

Currently chairman of the Olde Guard Council, George has touched virtually every area of the College with his leadership, enthusiasm and down-to-earth friendliness. At a dinner hosted last year by Jim '60 and Bobbie '61 Ukrop in honor of George, Rector Hays Watkins referred to George as "Mr. William and Mary," citing a long list of his contributions to the College: a member of the Board of Visitors for 10 years, including rector from 1966-68; trustee emeritus of the Endowment Association; founder and first chairman of the board of the School of Business Administration Sponsors

Inc.; president of the Society of the Alumni; chairman of the President's Council; recipient of the Alumni Medallion; chairman of the New Era Campaign in connection with raising funds for the Alumni House; and honorary chairman of the Campaign for the Fourth Century.

As further indication of George's well-deserved stature, the W. Brooks George Professorship in Business Administration was established last year with gifts from alumni, family members and friends. Totalling more than $645,000, the endowment began with a $200,000 commitment from Signet Bank where George served on the board of directors for 40 years. A portion of the fund also is being used to establish the W. Brooks and Elizabeth S. George Athletic Scholarship Endowment.

George's leadership on campus goes back to his college days when he served as vice president of his class, manager of three sports teams, advertising manager of The Flat Hat and a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. In addition, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa honorary and at graduation was awarded the James Frederic Carr Memorial Cup for character, scholarship and leadership.

A classmate, former William and Mary President Davis Y. Paschall, credits George's influence for many of the strides made during Paschall's administration.

Paschall once noted: "When I was asked how we managed to build an entire new campus and bring the College to an officially recognized status of a modern university, I replied that I had been fortunate in having a divinely ordained ex-officio president named W. Brooks George. Every month, I received a letter from Brooks. The first two paragraphs praised me for something, and the third specified a project that needed to be done next."

Equally well-known for his community service in the Richmond area, George is the retired chairman of the board of Larus & Bros. Co. He has served on numerous boards and been recognized with a variety of awards.

Described by a colleague as an "activist for good," George truly wears that title well at William and Mary. When you see him and his wife in this year's Homecoming Parade, give them a smile and a wave in appreciation.

Alumni Invited to Special Meeting on Bylaws

All active alumni are invited to attend a special meeting of the Society of the Alumni on Oct. 6 from 8 - 10 a.m. in Williamsburg at the Wyndham Hotel, Westminster Ballroom. The Board of Directors will be presenting the Society's recently revised bylaws for approval. Only active members, that is alumni who have contributed to a recognized fund of the College during the previous year, are eligible to vote. Breakfast will be furnished during the meeting.

The bylaws underwent extensive review by the Board last year, resulting in what Marshall Acuff '62, Society president, termed "significant strengthening and improvement from both legal and stylistic standpoints." As part of the bylaw review process, alumni associations at more than 20 other institutions were consulted, including Duke University, University of North Carolina, University of Virginia and the Naval Academy.

In June the proposed bylaws underwent further review when the bylaws committee chaired by Society board member Rebecca Beach Smith '71, '79 J.D. met to complete final revisions based on input received from alumni at last year's annual meeting of the Society.

A copy of the proposed bylaws will be mailed to all active alumni early this fall in the same envelope as the ballot for the Society's Board of Directors election. Any alumni who wish to obtain copies of either the proposed bylaws or the current bylaws may write the Society of the Alumni, P. O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187, or call 804/221-1165.

The Grand Tour: The Choir Conquers Europe

By Barbara Ball

It would not be an exaggeration to call the choir's fifth trip to Europe this summer "The Grand Tour."

It was grand for the splendor of many concert stages, including the Opera House at Versailles, Chartres Cathedral, Het Loo Palace in Holland, the New Palace in Stuttgart, Germany, and Westminster Abbey in London, and for the outpouring of genuine affection for the students as young ambassadors abroad.

As the old saying goes, "You had to have been there" to appreciate how well the students represented their alma mater during the 38-day, 30-concert tour. There were so many times that the College received bouquets because its emissaries were perceived as la creme de la creme. Each stop was special.

The choir sang in the little English village of Woolpit near Bury St. Edmunds. The church budget is not big enough to floodlight the church, except on special occasions. Bells are rung only on Sundays. But on Tuesday evening, June 5, the illuminated tower of the church lightened the summer sky, and the bells rang out to call patrons to the concert.

The Most Worshipful Company of Drapers, an ancient guild of the City of London with which the College maintains a student exchange program, entertained the choir for a sumptuous supper that was the talk of the tour—poached salmon, asparagus, fresh strawberries and cream and chocolate gateaux for dessert. The "reception" on the tour schedule was more generous than anyone could have imagined.

In the seaside town of Budleigh Salterton the choir's visit was the centerpiece of a weeklong music and flower festival. The festival dates were set after the choir itinerary was complete.

Peter Colohan, a rising junior from Richmond, read one of the lessons at morning service in the chapel designed by Sir Christopher Wren at the Royal Naval College in Greenwich. The daylong visit included lunch in the Painted Hall, built by Wren and decorated with paintings by Sir James Thornhill whose work can still be seen in the frescos around the dome at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The magnificence and grandeur of the Painted Hall, travel writers have agreed, "would be difficult to equal anywhere in the world." Four hundred officers can dine at the long tables set with silver candlesticks beneath the painted vaulted ceiling and walls which took the artist 19 years to complete.

"Holy cow," remarked one student after being ushered into the splendor of Opera House at Versailles, which is not usually on the public tour. Here royal command performances and courtly balls for the French kings were held in an acoustically perfect setting. The choir gave an impromptu mini-concert for their guides.

It meant a very early breakfast and a 7 a.m. departure from Detmold Germany to reach Appeldoorn for an appointment with Princess Margriet at Het Loo Palace. She chatted with the choir after their mini-concert in the Palace. Knowing each one would want a souvenir of the event, she made sure everyone was included in a group picture with her on the steps of the palace before she left.

The American ambassador praised the group when they sang at a black tie benefit at Hatfield House which was followed by dinner in a cloister lined with suits of armour and lighted with lanterns. The ambassador chatted with choir members during dinner, and before he departed the choir sang the alma mater for him.

A large country house, Hatfield was once the home of Elizabeth I. Guests paid 35 pounds or approximately $60 to hear the choir and dine at the home of the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury. Proceeds went to the Tradescant Trust for the Museum of Garden History. At some concerts in churches, ticket sales aided special projects.

Sir James Cobban, a sprightly octogenarian knighted by Queen Elizabeth II for his contributions to education, took choir members on a tour of Sherbourne Castle. Undaunted by the cloudy wet weather, choir members scorned the rain to sing the alma mater to former choir member Nancy Norman '41 who came from her home in Cerne Abbas, Dorset, to greet the students. The choir sang that evening at Sherbourne Abbey.

The Duchess of Beauford took the choir on a personal tour of Badminton House and showed them pictures of Lord Botetourt, the royal governor in the 18th century who established the academic prizes that are still awarded at commencement. The Duchess was one of the most engaging tour guides of the trip. With a collection of assorted dogs following her, the Duchess went from room to room tracing the history of the family and including anecdotal reminiscences.

It was a unique experience for the choir and one the average tourist never gets to enjoy. The splendid country house, where badminton was first played, is full of priceless antiques and works of art but also home to an active family. Reynolds paintings hang on the walls in one room. In another are framed snapshots of family and friends, including a young Princess Elizabeth and her sister Anne riding at Badminton House, and informal pictures of Queen Mary who spent the World War II years at Badminton.

Host families who opened their homes to choir members expressed the wish that the students would return. When guest and lodging were not a perfect fit, students rose to the occasion with aplomb. "They're the best kind of ambassadors you can send," said one Englishman.

The choir, in the words of one Englishman, almost came "unglued" in Backwell outside Bristol. At the close of the concert there, the host, vicar of the parish church, thanked the choir for coming. He said he appreciated the fact the concert opened with "God Save the Queen." "Now," he said, "we'd like you to sing your own national anthem." After more than 20 concerts and a month away from the States, all thoughts of home came rushing forward, and singers fought back tears they didn't suspect were so close to the surface.

The audience of more than 400 people rose to give the choir a standing ovation when they finished their concert in the White Hall in the New Palace at Stuttgart. This was the final event in a two-day visit arranged by Dr. Stephen Cochrane, liaison officer with the Department of the Army in Bad-Wuettenberg and father of former choir member Christine Cochrane '89. Lunch with members of the Parliament, a tour of and luncheon at the Mercedes facility and a grand dinner provided by the City of Stuttgart were all part of the choir's visit to the city.

The choir's visit was part of a German-American friendship celebration. Colonial Williamsburg Foundation executives Norman Beatty and Hugh DeSamper '51 provided educational materials about Colonial Williamsburg both in English and German and sent them to Germany for display along with materials from the College. They also contacted the State Office of Tourism and arranged for materials about Virginia to be sent.

At the reception which followed the concert, choir president Beth O'Doherty and incoming president Andrew Barnes, a rising senior from Springfield, Va., presented a Colonial Williamsburg tankard to Lord Mayor Manfred Rommel, son of the famous World War II general. Rommel responded by presenting the two choir presidents with medals of the city.

It didn't take choir members long to find their way around European cities. Several celebrated their arrival in Paris by singing Above, Princess Margriet of the Netherlands greets the choir at Het Loo Palace in Holland. the alma mater at the top of the Eiffel Tower. At the sandwich shop on the Rue de Bassano, just a few steps from the hotel, was a great place to get an economical lunch, with French bread and cheese or pate. Add fresh strawberries and raspberries from the grocery around the corner and you have a picnic to enjoy on the Champs Elysees.

There were a few glitches but no major disasters. The attentive care of a country and an English mother nursed one choir member back to health after a bout with a virus. Mrs. Lendrim stocked a medicine chest with cough medicines, decongestants, aspirins, Band-Aids, Ace bandages and other remedies for minor ills.

Director Frank Lendrim is already working on ideas for the 1993 tour. Lendrim likes to keep a low profile and let his singers take the bows, but it is his months of correspondence and planning that assure students of a spectacular itinerary. He crafts the itinerary so that there is a good mix of educational and travel. Before a cruise on the Thames in London, he took students to the Royal College of Heralds to see the records of the College's Coat of Arms, which was issued in 1694.

Because there are many references in Europe to World War II and the losses America's allies suffered, he took them to the American cemetery outside of Cambridge, England, to help put this part of history in perspective.

Mrs. Lendrim, who serves as counselor, friend and keeper of the medicine chest, went on a shopping trip before the tour, buying gifts, tokens of appreciation—a scarf for Princess Margriet, a W&M plate for the president of the Parliament in Stuttgart, a colonial apple cone for the Marchioness of Salisbury and the Duchess of Beaufort, engraved Jefferson cups for Mr. Money at Leeds Castle who arranged a real old-fashioned cream tea for the choir with scones, strawberry jam and cucumber sandwiches and pots and pots of tea to go with them.

The Society of the Alumni and the development office at the College provided funds for several gifts to choir hosts. The choir members pay their own way and engage in several fundraising projects to help pay for the trip. Many local merchants contributed to the choir. Most generous supporters are members of the Olde Guard who presented the choir with a $7,000 check for the tour.

Spokesperson for the choir throughout the trip was the choir president Beth O'Doherty '90 from Covington, Va. At each concert Beth gave information about the choir and the College. "We are," she would begin, "the William and Mary mixed choral organization. ..." At the final concert in Staines, the choir let her get the first two words out and then joined in. She laughed and tried to gain her composure, but abandoned her script. "If I were to tell you that this was one big loving family it would not be an exaggeration," she said.

Ruby O. Osborne: History in the Making

By Sara Thomas Hunt '74

William and Mary history buffs are in for a treat! Ruby O. Osborne '81 Ed.D., a Richmond educator, has written a new book titled The Crisis Years: The College of William and Mary in Virginia, 1800-1827, which analyzes a major turning point in the College's past.

According to Dr. Osborne, the early years of the 19th century found the College in a struggle for survival. She tells a true tale of political intrigue, starring none other than U.S. founding father and William and Mary alumnus Thomas Jefferson, that almost spelled ruin for the College. Also, she offers a provocative perspective on the four presidents who served during these years. Following the stabilizing influence of Bishop James Madison (second cousin to the U.S. president), leadership for William and Mary hit an all-time low thanks to two presidents (John Bracken and John Smith) who often allowed unchecked self-aggrandizement to dictate their decisions.

While weak or misguided authority figures are examined as the primary culprits behind William and Mary's troubles, Dr. Osborne reminds readers that heroes can surface in the most unlikely places. In fact, she credits the outspoken and supportive citizens of Williamsburg as being pivotal players in determining the ultimate destiny for W&M.

"Educational institutions were and continue to be a product of the people—the students, alumni, governmental bodies and the political powers at play during any given time period," reflects Dr. Osborne.

From her 20th-century vantage point, Dr. Osborne had first identified the crisis years when researching her doctoral dissertation, "The College of William and Mary in Virginia, 1800-1827," en route to a 1981 degree in higher education administration. She concluded from her careful study that one era began in March 1826 when the University of Virginia opened in co-existence with W&M, and another era ended the same year when William H. Wilmer succeeded John Smith as president.

"Wilmer helped the College turn the corner and regain sight of its mission," observes Dr. Osborne. "No other president has ever been like Smith, or like Bracken for that matter. They were quite the entrepreneurs, lots of wheeling and dealing, but seldom in the best interests of the College."

Compiling such a comprehensive volume—404 pages—has not dampened Dr. Osborne's enthusiasm for probing William and Mary's past still further. Currently, she is investigating a history of the Society of the Alumni, which celebrates its sesquicentennial on July 4, 1992, and editing the 19th-century minutes of the faculty and Board of Visitors.

Ruby O. Osborne '81 Ed.D. displays a copy of her newly published book, The Crisis Years: The College of William and Mary, 1800-1827, which chronicles a major turning point in the College's past.

Dr. Osborne also is working on a 50-year collection of poems that have commemorated each anniversary of Phi Beta Kappa since Dec. 5, 1941. And, finally, the prolific alumna would like to pick up and complete the history of the College—at least through the 19th century—where J.E. Morpurgo left off in Their Majesties' Royall Colledge.

At first glance, Ruby Osborne would seem to be an improbable candidate for frequent visits to the University Archives. As she sits sedately in the exquisitely furnished sunroom of her elegant home in Richmond's West End, you can easily imagine her in more executive settings accompanied by her husband, Scott, a retired senior research scientist for Philip Morris Inc.

However, the sparkle in her eyes and sudden animation quickly betray an intense passion for the remembrance of things past. "I find research very exciting," she remarks. "Everything in the archives is so fragmented that I have to follow many clues in order to be sure ... to get at the truth. Sometimes, I'll sit for hours taking notes, realizing that time has passed only when something starts to ache!"

Fortunately for Monacan High School students in Richmond's Chesterfield County, Dr. Osborne's organized and disciplined approach to learning translates into a creative teaching style. Whether it's tracing the origin of the English language or surveying the evolution of drama, she has shared that unrelenting curiosity about yesteryear with her English and American literature honors classes since 1969.

"Ruby encourages her students to explore the literature by themselves in order to gain a firsthand experience," comments Eileen Ford, instructional specialist for English in Chesterfield County. "She challenges her classes to investigate a novel in pairs or groups, then she guides and directs them toward deeper insight into the work."

Although Dr. Osborne now enjoys an established reputation as educator/historian, her professional path followed the pattern of many other women who re-entered the marketplace after raising a family. She obtained a B.A. degree from Wake Forest University in music, English and Spanish, but two difficult pregnancies in the early 1950s put her plans for advanced education on hold. Then, once both sons were in elementary school, she resumed her interrupted teaching career. A master's degree in administration and supervision from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1973 paved the way for increased responsibilities in curriculum design and development.

Then came the William and Mary experience which, she readily admits, casts a spell unequalled by any other college. "My English classes were in the Wren Building, and I'll never forget that incredible feeling to walk up those stairs and look out upon Williamsburg."

For Ruby O. Osborne, the Wren's hallowed halls held whispers of untold stories from a bygone century. Rather than turn a deaf ear to those beckoning calls, she chose instead to give them full voice via her literary talents. And the rest—as they say—is history.

Gift Income Up 26% as Campaign Tops $80 Million

Private gift income to the College of William and Mary and its related foundations through the end of the 1989-90 fiscal year (July 1, 1989 - June 30, 1990) totaled $16,275,800, according to the university's office of development. This represents a 26 percent increase over the previous year, in which William and Mary raised $13,362,371, and sets a new fund-raising record at the College.

The Campaign for the Fourth Century, which is in the fourth year of a seven-year campaign, has a total goal of $150 million. The $16 million contributed in fiscal 1989-90 raises the Campaign total to $81.8 million. "We have reached 55 percent of our Campaign goal and are right on schedule," said Director of Development Barrett H. Carson. "We've received over 29,000 gifts and commitments, 53 percent of which are from alumni of the College. The remaining support comes from a broad base of individuals, corporations, and foundations."

Of the $81.8 million, $46.8 million has been received and is already at work at the College, according to Carson. Multiyear pledges account for $13.6 million, and the balance of the funds are in various forms of deferred gifts and commitments.

Eighty-three percent of the $25 million goal for current operations has been received, while the College has received 56 percent of the $100 million slated for endowment purposes. Within the endowment component, faculty support tops the list, having reached 87 percent of its $35 million goal.

Alumni College Examines 'Changing Face of Communism'

By Virginia Collins '77

While chilling news from the Middle East has dominated headlines in recent weeks, the end of the Cold War was very much on the minds of 44 alumni, family members and friends who returned to William and Mary June 21-24 for Alumni College 1990.

"The Changing Face of Communism" offered participants a general overview of recent history-making events. Sponsored by the Society of the Alumni, the four-day return to college life featured lectures by professors whose classes are among the most sought after by students, talks by guest speakers, and special events.

Stimulating, enlightening and enjoyable were adjectives participants often used to describe the sessions. "Perhaps the best Alumni College ever," stated Ed Griffin '48, who, with a number of others, is an "Alumni College alumnus."

Robert Heisterberg of Alliance Capital Management in New York spoke on global economics following Saturday evening's international dinner in the Great Hall.

Coming the greatest distance was actor Stan Wojno of West Hollywood, Calif., who returned to campus for the first visit of any length since he graduated in 1969. The trip, he said, was worth it.

"I found myself on the edge of my chair during the lectures. It struck me," noted Wojno with a smile, "how intelligent my professors had become in 20 years."

Wojno also was impressed by the opportunity to meet alumni of different ages and backgrounds. At the conclusion of the program on Sunday morning, he offered some impromptu comments, expressing his thanks for the program:

"In many ways Alumni College personifies those words that I re-discovered this weekend on a plaque at the Wren Building: 'A link among the days to knit the generations each with each.' When you're a student, the College very much revolves around you. You're living in the present without perhaps fully appreciating the past. Coming to Alumni College gives you a grasp of what's gone before. You realize this is an institution with continuity and indeed links between the generations."

The program also forged links between speakers and participants. Harry Monroe of Fairfax, a retired broadcaster with Voice of America, miraculously discovered that Ling Yang, a native of China who spoke to the group about events in her homeland, had learned English many years ago by listening to his broadcasts. She was overjoyed to meet Monroe, and he was visibly touched to learn how his work had influenced her life.

Elsa Diduk, who retired in June as professor of modern languages and literatures, enjoyed a reunion with one of her former German students, Lynn Cary Dowell '69. Mrs. Dowell herself now teaches German at Duke University. She signed up for Alumni College because of both the topic and the presence of her former teacher and mentor, who spoke on "The People of East Germany."

Other faculty members and their topics included: Ilja Kostovski, "Prague Spring

'68 and Perestroika Today"; Anne Henderson, "The Crisis of Communism in Eastern Europe: Challenges and Opportunities for the West"; George Grayson, "Latin America: Revolution or Reform?"; and Edward Crapol, "Is the Cold War Over?"

Joining Chinese native Ling Yang were three other guest speakers who shared insights based on their unique personal and professional experiences. Istvan Ament, associate professor of dance at Old Dominion University, provided descriptive commentary at Friday evening's performance of East European dance.

A specialist in global economic and policy analysis, Robert Heisterberg of Alliance Capital Management in New York discussed the economic and financial ramifications of changes in Eastern Europe. From the U.S. State Department, Michael Hornblow, senior deputy director for Eastern Europe and Yugoslavia, spoke at Sunday's closing brunch on issues surrounding future U. S. foreign policymaking.

Special events rounded out the program. A reception on Saturday evening at the Reves Center for International Studies preceded an international dinner in the Great Hall of the Wren Building where dishes from Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union and Latin America were served.

While international crises of the past have given way to new ones, this year's Alumni College concluded with an optimistic realization that human rights have prevailed in parts of the world once governed by oppression. In his summary lecture, Edward Crapol, professor of history, suggested that at least with regard to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe the session could have been entitled "The Disappearing Face of Communism."

After receiving his "diploma" and an Alumni College T-shirt for traveling the greatest distance, Stan Wojno '69 thanked everyone at Sunday morning's farewell brunch on the Alumni House patio. To his left are Bess Littlefield, coordinator of the program, and Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni.

Self-Made Man Leads Tribe Attack

By Bob Jeffrey '74

Tyrone Shelton is a self-made man, according to William and Mary strength and conditioning coach John Sauer. As a 5'11", 180 lb. freshman fullback in 1986, he didn't figure prominently in the Tribe's plans. But four years and thousands of bench presses and power cleans later, Shelton has built himself into the centerpiece of an explosive offensive attack.

For his extraordinary prowess in the weight room Shelton was named to the 1989 National Strength and Conditioning Association All-Strength team. More importantly, he employed that power to bull through enemy lines for 944 yards and seven touchdowns last season, becoming, in the words of head coach Jimmie Laycock, "probably the best all-around fullback we've had here."

Shelton's accomplishments in '89 are all the more noteworthy when you consider he didn't even become the focal point of the offense until the fifth game of the season, when tailback Robert Green suffered an ankle injury against Delaware.

Suddenly, Shelton came into his own. With defenses keying on Laycock's vaunted passing attack, the unknown fullback redefined his position by rushing for over 100 yards in five of the last seven games. He gained 154 yards and most valuable player honors in a 13-10 Oyster Bowl win over Boston University. Against a tough East Tennessee State team, Shelton carried 30 times for 177 yards and four touchdowns in a 34-28 victory.

Shelton's emergence didn't come totally out of the blue. In '88 he rushed for a respectable 399 yards in 10 games. But with an offensive alignment that relied on the fullback mostly for blocking, the opportunities were limited.

However, the senior from Wheaton, Md., native continued his exertions in weight lifting, using the Tribe's individualized conditioning program to build up his strength and endurance. Sauer, W&M's first-ever strength coach, has been impressed with Shelton's motivation for self-improvement. "Tyrone has good natural strength, but he didn't realize what he could do until he tried. He's really developed himself through hard work," said Sauer.

What Shelton has done is bench press 400 pounds, squat lift 560 pounds, and power clean 320 pounds, all tremendous improvements over his original capacities. This lifting has been carefully coordinated with an aerobic conditioning program that is specific to football, according to Sauer.

In addition to a powerful running style, Shelton clocks a swift 4.5 in the 40-yard dash and has a 34 inch vertical leap. "Overall, Tyrone is the best back I've worked with," said Sauer, whose past experience includes a stint at Clemson. "He's got a powerful upper body, strong hips and legs, and a great attitude. When he runs into a linebacker, he can really rock him back on his heels."

"Lifting helps a lot psychologically," said Shelton. "It helps me feel more confident as a runner and a blocker. I'm not intimidated by anyone out there on the field."

Indeed, the entire Tribe team has increased its strength and confidence through the conditioning program. "Overall, we're a strong team now," said Sauer. "Our big guys are big with muscles, not fat."

Among the biggest and strongest are the offensive line. Returning starting guards Reggie White and Mac Partlow, center Greg Kalinyak and tackle Peter Reid average 6'3", 270 pounds.

"I find it hard to believe that we've had an offensive line the size of this one," Laycock said. "They're very experienced, and they have equal ability to run block and pass block."

White and Partlow undoubtedly form one of the best guard tandems in the country. White is a second-team All-American and Partlow was recognized as the Tribe's finest lineman, winning the George Hughes award in '39. Kalinyak was the Tribe's iron man, taking every snap in '39. With this wrecking crew opening up holes, Shelton and his running mates Robert Green and Alan Williams can look forward to putting pressure on the defense all over the field.

"We're running out of more sets now," said Shelton. "It used to be when we lined up in the T (formation), we were going to run. The single back was pretty much a passing set. Now the defenses have to be more on their toes because they really don't know what we're going to do out of any particular set."

If Shelton is Mr. Inside, Green and Williams share the designation of Mr. Outside. Green, a 5'9", 195 lb. junior, has rushed for over 600 yards in each of his first two seasons. An effective receiver, he hauled in 36 passes for 277 yards. Williams, a 5'8" senior from Norfolk, alternated at tailback with Green, running for 427 yards and four touchdowns. He led the team with 43 pass receptions.

Despite its proficiency on the ground, the Tribe will not abandon its normal reliance on the aerial assault. At 6'2", 220 lbs., senior Chris Hakel is gifted with size and a strong arm. He gained valuable experience last season, starting three games when Craig Argo twisted a knee.

With the Tribe trailing VMI 9-3 in the second half, Hakel completed 9 of 17 passes for 151 yards and a touchdown, rallying W&M to a 24-17 win. Against Virginia, he threw a 46 yard touchdown pass to Ray Kingsfield in a hard-fought 24-12 loss.

"Hakel has a good grasp of the offense," said Laycock. "He has confidence in himself, which I like. He has been able to do all the things we asked him to this spring practice."

Receivers Kingsfield (41 catches, 614 yards, 4 tds) and Mark Compber (21 catches, 401 yards, 4 touchdowns) return as primary targets. Laycock is hoping that the combination will produce some big plays. "We can't just be one-dimensional with our running. We have to throw it around pretty well, too," said Laycock.

Areas of concern for Laycock include the defensive tackle position vacated by Andy Linn and the outside rover and safety, ably manned last season by Greg Kimball and Mike Drake. Returning are powerful defensive end and co-captain Alan Garlic, named all-ECAC and all-state for his six sacks and 78 tackles, and linebackers Mark Hughes, Jeff Nielsen, and Brad Uhl. Cornerbacks Palmer Scarritt and J.D. Gibbs are back to defend the outside.

All-America kicker and punter Steve Christie will be missed. Christie, who holds virtually all the kicking records at the College, kicked three field goals for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in a pre-season game against the Cincinnati Bengals in August, including one from 54 yards, topping his W&M best of 53 yards.

Tribe coach Laycock, now in his 11th season, has earned a reputation for staying ahead of the pack with a creative offensive scheme and judicious use of available talent. After last season's 3-3-1 mark and second trip to the I-AA playoffs, his mood is cautious but upbeat. "We've got some individual talent, but how well they mesh together as a team will be a big factor. Of course we've been to the playoffs. I'd like to go a little further in the playoffs, ultimately compete for a national championship some day."

With Tyrone Shelton and a host of other standouts, Tribe fans are hoping that the future is now.

Lehigh Game on TV

The William and Mary-Lehigh game on Saturday, Oct. 27, at Cary Stadium in Williamsburg will be televised live nationally on the Channel America network. Consult your local paper for affiliate stations in your area.

Call for Hall of Fame Nominations

Nominations are now being accepted for the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame. Induction of new members will be in conjunction with the Richmond basketball game on Feb. 23, 1991. John Randolph, athletic director, has provided the following criteria for membership in the Hall of Fame:

1. It shall be open to persons who have made a significant contribution to the College through intercollegiate athletics as a competitor, coach or administrator.
2. Consideration also will be given to continued contributions to society through community activities, through performance in chosen field of endeavor and through avocations, on such a level as to bring credit and distinction to the College.
3. In order that proper assessment may be made of the nominee, a time period of at least 10 years must have elapsed since graduation for a competitor and five years for a coach or administrator.
4. No more than eight persons and no more than one team will be inducted annually.

Alumni who wish to make a nomination should fill out the ballot below and return it to: Athletic Hall of Fame Committee, P.O. Box 399, Williamsburg, VA 23187 no later than Oct. 1, 1990.

Olde Guard Council Elects New Officers

New officers of the Olde Guard Council were elected at the council's semiannual meeting on June 6 at the Alumni House. They are: W. Brooks George '32, chairman; Ernest Goodrich '35, vice chairman; Cecil Harper '34, secretary; and Anne Reynolds Wood '37, treasurer. In addition, the new chairman announced the following committee appointments: Helen Singer Dau '34, program committee chair; Robert Simpson '38, nominating committee chair; Virginia Forwood Wetter '40, college relations committee chair; and Jack Tuthill, member at large to the executive committee.

During the council's business session, members unanimously voted to commend the Society of the Alumni for winning three national awards for excellence in alumni programming from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education. The council also passed two resolutions honoring the memory of Dr. William M. Bickers '29 and Melvin C. "Meb" Davis '28 and their many contributions to William and Mary.

In other business, chairman Brooks George welcomed new member Jack Garrett, who with Virginia Forwood Wetter represents the Class of 1940 following its induction into the Olde Guard at the class's 50th reunion celebration in May. George also announced that the Olde Guard newsletter would be reinstated and published twice a year.

Prior to the business session, special guest Joel Schwartz, director of the Charles Center for Honors and Interdisciplinary Studies, presented the group with an update on the progress and activities of the honors program.

Robert Simpson (far left), Helen Singer Dau, Ernest Goodrich, Cecil Harper and Brooks George were installed as new officers and committee chairs of the Olde Guard Council at a meeting on June 6. Not pictured are Anne Reynolds Wood, Virginia Forwood Wetter and Jack Tuthill.

Tailgater Celebrations

This fall, join fellow William and Mary alumni and friends by sharing in the fun of tailgater celebrations scheduled before or after each home and away football game.

On home turf, post-game celebrations will take place on the Alumni House patio following the final buzzer until 5:30 p.m. You may purchase either a season tailgater pass for $25.00 or an individual pass for $5.00. Passes include complimentary refreshments and are good only for the tailgaters following home games.

For more information, call the W&M athletic department at 804/221-3350 or the Alumni House at 804/221-1174.

Also on the day of each home game, the Alumni House Gift Shop will be open from 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

When the Tribe goes on the road, tailgaters will take place either before or after the game. For specific dates, times and costs, please see the schedule for "Upcoming Chapter Events" on this page.

Rick Overy '88 Moves from Chapters to Development Post

Rick Overy '88, formerly assistant director of alumni affairs for chapters, has joined William and Mary's office of development as assistant director for capital support.

Overy will be responsible for fund-raising and administrative duties related to the regional campaigns that are being conducted as part of the Co-lege's $150 million Campaign for the Fourth Century. He initially will be working in the New York area.

Under Overy's leadership, the alumni chapter program grew both in size and strength. "We have tried to develop more diverse programming that appeals to a wider spectrum of our alumni, but the credit for our success goes to the volunteer chapter leaders for their incredible creativity and hard work," stated Overy.

During the past fiscal year more than 40 chapters and interest groups sponsored more than 120 events across the country. Many chapters also have started awarding student scholarships and publishing newsletters for their membership.

"Rick has developed a strong rapport with alumni chapter leaders and helped build a solid foundation for future growth among our chapters," said Barry Adams, executive vice president for the Society of the Alumni. "We appreciate his efforts and are happy that he won't be venturing too far from the Alumni House. We look forward to his continued involvement as an alumnus and College staff member."

An Interview with Mark McCormack '51

Chairman Answers Questions on Campaign

By Melissa Gill '82

The Campaign for the Fourth Century, publicly announced on May 5, 1989, is the vehicle through which the College hopes to raise $150 million for programs and activities in the decades to come. To date, the Campaign has raised more than $78 million. These funds will enable the College to achieve its educational and programmatic goals in the years to come.

The Campaign has been designed to address areas of need throughout the university. Funds raised will support students, through undergraduate scholarships and graduate fellowships; faculty, through endowed professorships and fellowships; program enrichment for library and museum acquisitions, faculty research curriculum development, lectures and scholarly publications; facilities and equipment; current operations; and unrestricted endowment.

The Campaign for the Fourth Century has stimulated interest and inquiries from alumni and friends nationwide. Campaign chairman Mark McCormack '51 recently took a few minutes to answer some of the most commonly asked questions about the campaign.

Q: William and Mary is a public university. Why does an institution supported by the state need private funds?

A: Only 34 percent of the College's operating budget comes from the state. The remaining costs must be covered by other means, including tuition, fees and private support. Private funds enable William and Mary to offer educational opportunities that otherwise simply could not exist—the creation of chaired professorships, expanded library resources, and first-rate museum collections, for example.

Q: How much is the College spending on the Campaign?

A: Currently, fund-raising costs are running at less than 15 percent of the amount raised, with a goal of closer to 10 percent by the Campaign's end in 1993. This is an excellent rate of return for a young fund-raising program like William and Mary's. These are budgeted funds; no fund-raising costs are taken out of gift receipts. This is more than a 700 percent rate of return—as a businessman, this sounds to me like an excellent rate of return on an investment.

Q: What exactly is an endowment?

A: Think of it as a savings account, as opposed to a checking account. The annual fund is the College's checking account—it provides the funds needed for current operating expenses. A permanent endowment is exactly that: a permanent fund where only the income is expended for the intended purpose. The principal remains intact and grows with time, thanks to the College's conservative spending policy, so the relative impact of the endowment remains constant. Endowments in different areas of the university can be established for varying amounts. For example, a full professorship requires an endowment of $600,000. A lecture or concert series can be endowed for $50,000, while a general scholarship fund requires $25,000.

Q: How are endowments established?

A: A formal resolution is prepared in consultation with the donor. These resolutions set forth the purpose of the fund and serve as a guide for future funds administrators. Endowments are named at the donor's discretion.

Mark McCormack '51

“Private funds enable William and Mary to offer educational opportunities that otherwise simply could not exist.”

Q: There seem to be many different funds at William and Mary. For example, someone who played football at the College, received an undergraduate degree and then went on to Marshall-Wythe receives solicitations from three different funds: the College, the law school and athletics. Will contributions to these funds count toward the Campaign goal?

A: It is confusing. William and Mary has 14 annual funds and seven institutionally related foundations. People who have been involved in different areas of the university can receive many requests for support. This allows maximum flexibility in designating gifts. But all of the funds are included within the Campaign, and any gift or pledge to any fund counts toward the Campaign goal of $150 million.

Q: Many people are being asked to give at levels higher than they are accustomed to. How were these amounts determined?

A: One thing to keep in mind is that we are seeking multi-year commitments for the Campaign. A commitment can be fulfilled over a period of up to five tax years—this flexibility allows many people to make larger gifts than is customary for them. It's also important to remember that our goals for William and Mary are ambitious. Meeting these goals requires commitments which may seem sacrificial. We want people to dig deep to support the College, but only at levels commensurate with their means.

Q: Are gifts other than cash accepted?

A: Absolutely. We encourage donors to look at other assets they may have when considering their commitments—stocks, bonds, real estate, works of art and rare books, for example. These assets often provide important tax benefits and allow donors to make larger gifts. The development office can help determine the most appropriate asset from a charitable and a tax standpoint.

Q: Many people would like to support the College, but are living on fixed incomes and therefore are not in a position to make an outright gift or pledge. Do testamentary provisions count toward the Campaign?

A: Yes. A committee was formed to study this question at the outset of the Campaign. We concluded that, while the greatest emphasis should be on meeting the current needs of the institution, we should also try to accommodate older people who are beyond their income-producing years and thus are unable to replace assets contributed to the Campaign. Documented testamentary provisions do count for those who will have reached the age of 70 by the Campaign's end in 1993.

Q: What if someone is unable to fulfill a pledge?

A: Pledges are not legally binding. We expect that people make their pledges in good faith; if a turn of circumstances renders someone unable to fulfill a pledge, he or she simply has to let the College know. William and Mary is more than willing to try to restructure a commitment if at all possible.

Q: It appears that support for certain areas of the Campaign (program enrichment and student support, for example) is lagging. What happens to areas that are not fully funded?

A: In most campaigns, only 60 to 65 percent of the stated needs are fully funded. We're doing better than that, and we don't want a lopsided campaign. However, we also want our donors to support areas that they feel are important. If certain areas are severely under-funded by the Campaign's end, undesignated funds will be used to augment those areas.

Q: How is the Campaign doing to date in reaching its goals?

A: We are over halfway to the total Campaign goal of $150 million. We're doing particularly well in the area of faculty support—we've raised more than $30 million towards the goal of $35 million. We've also raised more than 76 percent of the $25 million designated for current operations, and 81 percent of the $5 million targeted for unrestricted endowment. The areas of student support and program enrichment have not been as generously subscribed, but as the Campaign progresses we feel sure that these areas will receive their share of funding.

IS YOUR STOCK PORTFOLIO UNYIELDING?

Then transfer your stock to a William and Mary Life Income Plan. You'll increase your yield significantly and save capital gains taxes at the same time.

Some of the most highly regarded stocks pay only modest dividends. If you're dependent on these yields to supplement your current income, one of our Life Income Plans may be for you. Look at these recent yields of some well-known companies:

|                 | Yield |                | Yield |
|-----------------|-------|----------------|-------|
| Alcoa           | 2.3%  | Kellogg        | 2.8%  |

Black Leadership Institute Explores Talents, Potential

By Kathleen Brophy '90

Higher education, in itself, is not necessarily a key to power. According to W. Samuel Sadler '64, vice president for student affairs at William and Mary, many minority students who attend college at predominantly white campuses "are not having leadership experiences that prepare them for leadership in the world."

From May 27-June 9, William and Mary hosted the nation's first Black Student Leadership Institute. Funded with a $100,000 grant from The Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable and Educational Fund, the program was specifically designed for black college students who attend mostly white schools. All participants had been recognized campus leaders prior to attending the institute.

Students representing 41 schools and 23 states took part in workshops on self-concept, finances, organizing for a cause and media relations, in addition to a three-day trip to Washington, D.C., where students had the opportunity to meet with and question leaders in the three branches of government. During breakfast meetings, students heard a talk on professional ethics from Barbara Reynolds, inquiry editor of USA Today, and a talk by Dr. Dorothy Height, president of the National Council of Negro Women.

At the Supreme Court, the group met Associate Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who explained the day-to-day workings of the Court and took students' questions on her role as one of the nation's judicial leaders. President Paul Verkuil, who has served with Justice O'Connor in the Anglo-American Legal Exchange program, thanked the justice on behalf of the College and suggested a group photo for posterity.

On Capitol Hill, the group viewed a session of Congress from the Senate Gallery and met briefly with Virginia Sen. Charles Robb on the Capitol steps. Robb applauded the students for having been chosen by their colleges and universities for the leadership institute and urged them, whatever their chosen careers, to take part in the political process.

Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, appeared at the briefing room at the Pentagon with son Michael '85 to speak with students and answer questions.

Amelia Parker, executive director of the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, told students they could make a difference, that "there is a black governor in Virginia today because of individuals such as Laura Ross Miller." Mrs. Miller, a trustee of the College's Endowment Association and a realtor and political consultant in the capital city, accompanied the group for much of the Washington stint and presented speakers with tokens of appreciation on behalf of William and Mary.

After a tour of the Pentagon, students met in a press briefing room with Marine Corps Col. Clifford Stanley, an assistant advisor for Australia and New Zealand and principal advisor for Prisoners of War and Missing in Action. He counseled students to "know who you are and what you are" and to believe in taking chances.

At the close of Stanley's presentation, Gen. Colin Powell '88 Hon., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, appeared at the briefing room with son Michael '85 to speak with students and answer questions. Powell explained that his role as the senior military person in the U.S. was to serve as principal advisor to the President and the Secretary of Defense on matters military, and to serve as the top manager for all military operations, working through U.S. forces headed by the 10 four-star generals who command the nation's forces throughout the world.

Rather than promoting a particular agenda, the institute focused on refining each individual's leadership skills. Students could then apply these skills in a manner best suited for their particular campus.

"I think it would be very wrong of us to have an agenda that says: 'The goals are to be ...' What we are doing is trying to help them have an impact on the world they exist in," Sadler said.

Institute director Carroll Hardy, associate dean of student affairs, also emphasized the role of the individual and the need for sound judgment. "Most black leaders are dead or in jail," Hardy said, referring to the lack of role models. After carefully studying videotapes of leaders, students were called on to see for themselves what was charismatic or fatalistic, or short-term thinking. An afternoon in an "Outward Bound"-style ropes course allowed students to examine group processes and the kind of following that is necessary to get a large task accomplished.

The institute was formally titled "Empowering Self and Others." Student opinion on the best way to do this was as varied as the schools represented.

Christopher Henderson of Texas A&M University emphasized the need to alter racially biased attitudes and a need for equal access to campus resources. As president and founder of his campus's Minority Liberal Arts Society, he feels that "while a biased mindset is dictating control of financial resources, there won't be a difference."

Henderson sees the problem as a cultural one, with biased attitudes being learned in childhood and functioning independently of intellect. "It's not about education," he said. "What is there to know? I'm a person, you're a person."

Henderson is on scholarship. Although he does play football, his scholarship is academic. Most assume that it is athletic. He said he has repeatedly encountered the attitude that "unless you have some kind of help, [minority students] don't make it in school."

Others found their strength by making their own organizations more cohesive. "When you are a part of a group that works, then everyone is empowered," said Trecia Canty, president of the Afro-America Society at Dartmouth College.

Karen Andre, Black Student Union president at Florida International University North Campus, sees block voting as a key to power. In a recent student election, BSU members chose to support a Hispanic male—the candidate they felt would best address their concerns.

Some choose to work outside the university system. Eldann Chandler, president of the African American Congress at Tulane University, said he must cope with race riots and cross burnings. He chose to completely avoid the student government and instead formed groups which lobby the administration and the student government. "You have to know when the system of the university is not in your best interest," Chandler said. "It is a struggle to be progressive and not reactionary."

All participants seemed to have an extremely positive reaction to the institute itself, as well as to the interpersonal ties which they established. Many will return this winter for the three-day Black Student Leadership Conference, a five-year tradition at William and Mary.

At the Supreme Court, the group met with Associate Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who explained the day-to-day workings of the Court and took students' questions on her role as one of the nation's judicial leaders.

CLASS NOTES

28 Mary Land Gill
1658 Berkeley Ave.
Petersburg, VA 23805

An interesting letter from Robert Mears was most welcome. He appears pleased to be "still alive and kicking" and seems to have enjoyed life for all of his 83 years. Following graduation he and a friend began a seafood business in Pennsylvania. After four years they transferred their business to Chincoteague and successfully operated it for 43 years. During this time he has been active in church work, the local community college, the Kiwanis Club, and has served on the town council for 14 years.

The one tragedy in his life was the loss of his son 11 years ago. At present he manages a mobile home park for his daughter-in-law and his two grandchildren. He feels a close tie to the College which he still loves. Not only he, but also a sister and brother received their degrees from W&M.

It is indeed remarkable that after graduating from W&M 62 years ago, a large number of us continue to be involved in volunteer, professional and/or business activities. Wish more of you would report on your "life after college." The rest of us would like to know what has happened to you. Please send some news about yourself.

An interesting article concerning Walter A. Porter appeared in the October 1989 Galax, Va., Gazette. He died in February 1988 and recently his widow, Virginia Porter, established in his memory a $10,000 scholarship endowment fund at Wytheville Community College. Proceeds from this fund will be used to provide scholarships for Carroll County WCC students who plan a career in a medical/allied health program or are enrolled in the science curriculum in preparation for medical school.

This is indeed an appropriate memorial to Dr. Porter as he showed his interest in the educational opportunities for the youth in his community. He worked diligently to secure financial support for the development of WCC, was chairman of the Building and Site Committee, provided effective assistance and guidance in the procurement and improvements of land for the permanent site, and then served eight years on its governing board. Dr. Porter practiced medicine in Carroll County for several decades, was the county's medical examiner, and was active in a number of civic and historic organizations as well as his church.

Our class was not well represented at Olde Guard Day in April. Of all the alumni present our classmate, Elizabeth Lam Vieg, received the award for having traveled the farthest. Among those present from our class were: Ruth James Turner, Page Drinker Hogan, Mary Ribble, Malvern Omohundro, George Whitley and Bill Thompson. As I misplaced the "sign-up" sheet I may have omitted some. There were also several spouses present.

Hope more of you will be present at the Olde Guard Luncheon on Friday, Nov. 2, during Homecoming weekend.

The 60th reunion of the Class of 1930 has come and gone. It wasn't quite as exciting as our 50th; perhaps because fewer of us were present and we missed those who have died or who, for one reason or another, could not join us. However, those of us who were there enjoyed one another. The following were present: Frances and Harold Ashby, Mary Edgar Calcote, Phyllis Cornell (Albert's widow), Louise Phillips Craig, Lillian and Tecumseh Dalton, Carl Gillespie, Fay and Norris Halpern, Richard Jones, Helen Hurst Keshy, Elizabeth (Betty) W. Lanier, Kathleen and LeRoy Ober, Mary Owens, Martha and William Savage, Sally Copenhaver Southworth, Mary Stephenson Spears and Selden, Elsie Beebe Swesey and Frank, W. Harvey Trevilian and Linda Kelley, Frances Griffin Waters and Gerald M. Conkling, and Robbie L. and Jean Yeatts and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clodfelter.

Since Olde Guard Day, we have heard from some of our classmates who were unable to be with us. Thomas Hart writes that he and Dorothy were unable to join us because age and the hassles of airports and other means of transportation make it difficult for them to travel great distances.

Lucy May Boswell Crymble couldn't make it as she was with her daughter and granddaughter in Germany at the time.

Louise White Johnson had moved from one city to another and had just organized her daughter's wedding, both of which had left her "with her tongue hanging out."

Ann Messick Mogle and Alice Proudman Reisa and her husband had their own reunion recently in San Francisco when they met for luncheon. The Reisas were returning from a trip through the Panama Canal. Ann and Alice hadn't seen each other in over 20 years and had a lot of fun reviewing their days at the College and catching up on personal news.

Sue Cornick Barlow is back in Yorktown after having lived a number of years in California. She is well, but is "staying put" as she doesn't drive now. She sees Millison Finney occasionally.

Mary Edgar Calcotte, as usual, comes up with news for us. Recently, Mary's volunteer work was featured in a Chesapeake newspaper. She is pictured with her six great grandchildren and with her various awards for her years of volunteer service to her community. Mary's specialty is music (piano, organ and choral directing). Her latest honor is a community service award from the AARP.

On a recent trip to Scotland, her parents' home, Mary traced her family back to 1525. As the result of this feat, she wrote the following lines:

"Be careful when looking up your family tree!

There might be some monkeys or funny birds

About which you will wish you had never heard...

How your family tree came to be."

Ruth Whitehead Morris, formerly of Petersburg for many years, is now enjoying her new home at Westminster-Canterbury in Richmond as are Tom Pope and Retta. Tom writes that there are quite a number of William and Mary alumni there.

We are distressed to hear of the death of our classmate, Harry Light, who died of a heart attack in February. Harry and Gladys were faithful in attending Homecoming and Olde Guard events. We send our deepest sympathy to the family.

With the next issue of the Gazette, your two 1930 class reporters will have completed 10 years of reporting class news. There has not been a single issue in that time that has not carried a column for the class of 1930. Sometimes the news has been scarce, but we never laid a "goose egg." We have kept you in touch with all of your classmates who have been thoughtful enough to send us news of their families and their activities. We do appreciate that very much. It has been an enjoyable and rewarding service to our class.

The Olde Guard Council met June 6 at the Alumni House and elected officers for 1990-91. Brooks George '32 is chairman, Ernest Goodrich '35 is vice chairman, Anne Reynolds Wood '37 is treasurer and yours truly is secretary. The program included an excellent talk by Joel Schwartz, director of the Charles Center for Honors and Interdisciplinary Studies. John Mapp '35 reported that the Olde Guard gave $7,000 to the William and Mary Choir. He added that all aspects of Olde Guard Day — everything from parking to staff support to the luncheon and set-up — were evaluated as excellent.

The Olde Guard Council voted to prepare a resolution honoring two great alumni, Meb Davis '28 and Dr. Billy Bickers '29, who have joined Omega.

Lillian Carmine Sterling took a trip in April with her daughter, Peggy, and family of Herndon to visit her grandson, his wife and Lillian's two great-grandchildren in Indianapolis. They spent a week and toured six states. She got back in time to enjoy Olde Guard Day, which she wrote was a "great event. I was so glad our class was well represented. The program, luncheon and fellowship were enjoyed by all."

Our class was represented by a total of 36 class members, spouses and guests. Representing 1934 were: Dorothy Littlepage Allen, Walter and Harriet P. Beales, Claude Carmine, Helen Singer Dau, Frances Culbreth Deane, Sarah Pope Dix, Franklin A. Hall, Dorothy and Cecil C. Harper, Evelyn Maynard Harris, Frances S. Harris, Murray H. Harrison, Edith Pope Howitz, B. H. and Jane Inloes, Eldon James, Ruth Wilson James, Kenneth and Clara Thompson Knight, Marjorie and Henry C. Land Jr., Helen S. Lukens, Gregorio and Alice Cohill Marquez, Harold and Lucille Hurst Parrish, William and Winifred Hall Proctor, Edward L. White and Kitty Blanton Seay, Evelyn Robertson Shreeves, Lester and Lillian Carmine Sterling and Annie Belts Whitehead.

Bob Vaden wrote that he, his sister Kathryn Vaden Sparrow '37 and her husband Kavanaugh Sparrow attended the funeral of Henry Wolf in Charleston, W.Va. on May 10. Henry's obituary appears elsewhere in this issue.

Bob is serving in his 10th year as a member of the Pittsylvania County Public Library board of trustees. A source of particular pride is the new county library headquarters building recently composed in Chatham.

And finally, I am pleased to report that my wife, Dorothy, has fully recovered from the operation she had in January.

Would you like to serve as the reporter for the Class of 1936? It's a great way to stay in touch with classmates and the College. For more information, contact Virginia Collins, Director of Alumni Communications, Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100.

There are two sad notes to open this report. Wilbur Morton had written in April to report that he had served as master of ceremonies at a "Massing of the Colors," jointly sponsored by Brevard Community College and the Military Order of World Wars, and to say that his wife Ruth had undergone triple by-pass heart surgery in November. At the time of his letter she seemed to be improving, but in May he wrote of her passing on April 22. Please accept the sympathy of your classmates, Wilbur.

Also in May a note from Mary Jane Sheedy reported that her father John William Sheedy had died in December. She wrote: "My father enjoyed receiving his copy of the Gazette, mainly to read your column and thereby hear news of former classmates. He and Ted McGowan saw each other briefly a few years ago and enjoyed talking about their W&M days."

It's been exciting to see members of our class featured in the College's Campaign Update newsletter. In March a marvelous gift from Bob Simpson and his sister Edith Simpson Carlisle was announced. The gift of real estate in Georgetown, Va., has an appraised value of $600,000, and will be used to create two new endowed professorships. The gift is exciting in itself, and it is gratifying to us that Bob credits his leadership in the Class of '38 50th Reunion Fund with sparking the idea.

And did you see in the June Campaign Update the charming picture of Dick and Doris Froehner Joslyn taken at the Los Angeles celebration?

Olde Guard Day in April saw a fair number of our classmates there. These are the names I received from Bert Capps Sheeran and the Alumni Office: Dr. Wil- liam Anderson and Polly, Mildred Albee Babb, Eldridge Blanton and Martha, Virginia Betts Chapman and Joel, Mollie Waters Christie and sister Ruth Berry '45, Robert Dew and Kay, Margaret Brett Honn and Reese, William Murray and Grace, Bert Capps and Bob Sheeran, Frances S. Shepherd and James, Robert Simpson and Alice. Mollie Waters Christie added that Pete Moreland Thomas was to have attended but was prevented by the illness of her sister.

And now some interesting notes in response to my postcards. From Bill Anderson: "We have just returned from a Smithsonian Seminar of two weeks in Florence, Italy. It was very interesting and fulfilled a desire I have had for a long time. We leave for a tour to Alaska in July and are looking forward to that with much pleasure. We are trying to do all the traveling we can before we are unable to. (So far there's no sign of slowing down!) We have a date to spend a few days in the mountains in October with Ed MacConomy and his wife, Alma Dean."

Ella Lee Fulton Manning wrote: "We continue a spring and fall move between Chesapeake Bay, Md., and Redington Beach, Fla., homes, which takes more out of us each time. In July we'll make a trip to Carmel, Calif., and en route back have a four-day stop in Los Vegas for a Civitan convention, a civic organization in which Chuck's been very active. We're working on a spring 1991 trip to Hawaii, Fiji Islands, Australia and New Zealand if all goes well and health holds out. We loved being with so many of you at our 50th Reunion but missed Charlotte Hinson Jemmott. (For shame, Charlotte, to let me down!) An amusing incident from our reunion: A well-groomed grandmother of a Class of '88 graduate, sitting in front of me, turned to say: 'I'm impressed that so many of you returned late in life to get your degrees.' Of course, our caps and gowns misled her!"

And a real resume from Mary Virginia Flanary Edmonds: "Your card suggested 'anything big or small' in the news line, so I'm going back to the beginning of my college days and give some of the highlights down through the years. Following graduation from Sullins College in '36 and William and Mary in '38, I taught history and English and served as librarian and guidance counselor at my alma mater, Dryden High School, retiring in 1974 after 36 years spent in the 'battle against ignorance.'

"I returned to William and Mary summer school '40-'42 to receive a degree in library science and returned to Williamsburg during the summers of '44-'48 to work for Colonial Williamsburg in the archives in the Goodwin Building. Those were the early days of air-conditioning, and this building was fully air-conditioned. We spent our days in air-conditioned comfort in the Goodwin Building and our lunch hours and evenings poolside at the Inn. Such comfort was very special in those days in Tidewater Virginia!"

"Following my retirement in 1974 and prior to my husband's death in 1984 we divided our time between my home in Dryden and his home in Big Stone Gap, with winters in Venice, Fla. After his passing I returned to my home in Dryden, where I make common cause with old friends, many of whom, like me, are living alone and adjusting to that life-style."

Doug Hoyt sent this note: "I practiced orthodontics until my 50th year in dentistry last year. I'm now retired and we live in Stuart, Fla., November to May and Fair Haven, N.J., the rest of the time. Dicksie and I both play golf, and Dicksie was the 1990 champ at Monterey Yacht and Country Club in Stuart, a small but tricky course. I fish in New Jersey and in Florida play golf and work for the Red Cross every Tuesday."

Doug also sent two clippings of interest. One is about his son. "Active Sports Unlimited. Though it's the name of a burgeoning sporting goods agency founded in 1975, it's also a pretty accurate description of the life and time of its president, 41-year-old Doug Hoyt." The article goes on to enumerate the sports he's proficient in: golf, football, skiing, tennis, racquetball, waterskiing, running, as well as using a full-workout gym at home!

The second clipping bears out how athletic the whole family is: "Ranked U.S. tennis player Jennifer Callen, daughter of Dicksie Ann and Andrew Callen of Concord, Alumni who wish to remember Melvin Clyde "Meb" Davis '28 of Richmond, Va., who died Dec. 16, 1989, may make contributions to a scholarship fund previously established in his name. Funds are awarded annually as a full four-year scholarship to a qualified football player. Davis served as the College's head freshman football coach from 1930-34. He was a charter member of the William and Mary Hall of Fame after distinguishing himself in football, basketball and track as a student. In 1977 he was honored in the Tobacco Bowl game, and in 1984 he was named to the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame. At William and Mary, he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, president of the Varsity Club and vice president of the Honor Council. He also served as president of the Richmond Alumni Chapter. Alumni and friends may send contributions to: Endowment Office, Attn: Melvin C. Davis Scholarship Fund, P.O. Box 1693, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

Mass., has received a four-year scholarship to the University of Virginia. Jennifer is the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. Douglas Hoyt. Proud grandmother, Dicksie Hoyt, thinks Jennifer inherited her mom's outstanding sense of balance. Mom was the National Women's Water Ski Champion in 1963, '64 and '65 and was a member of the victorious U.S. water ski team that competed in Vichy, France." Way to go, Hoyts!

It was fabulous to hear from so many of you! Keep those notes coming.

It certainly is difficult to know where to start to report on our momentous 50th Reunion Celebration May 11-13. Everyone who attended—83 classmates plus 49 spouses—has expressed nothing but accolades for a fun-filled weekend of nostalgia and reminiscences.

First of all, these are the attendees, coming from 18 states including California, Florida and Hawaii:

Stuart and Anne Steward Allen, Scrib and Ginny Claudon Allen, Margaret and Al Alley, Bill Amburgey (Lillian Waymack's widower), Chester and Helen Jones Baker, Jane and John Barba, Dan Bradley, Jean Clarahan Bratton, Nils and Gervais Wallace Brekke, Frank and June Worley Butters, Caldwell and 'Cookie' Cook Cason, George and Dorothy Schmitz Chalmers, Evelyn and Tony Champa, Al and Janet Wood Chestnut, Betty Schneider Colton, Anne Bruce and Gordon Dorrier, Coleman and Joan Bowers duPont, Nina and Stanley Ebb, Mary and Merritt Foster, Marj and Vance Fowler, Kitty Jones Frith, Jack and Fran Jacobs Gaisford, Jack and Ann Terrell Garrett, Virginia Garrett, Mary Ellen and Jack Geddes, Bob and Emily Edgerton Gladstone, Estelle Rivkin Green, Ruth Struminger Greenburg, Bill and Chris Cowan Halsey, Frank and Bobby Clawson Henderson, Miriam and Jack Hudson, Noel Lambert, Edythe Harriss Langhorne, Helen and Bob Lansburgh, Lois Leach, Ben and Sarah Burton Letson, Rosa Ellis Long, Carolyn Moses Lusardi, Bill and Ruth Ann Holzmueller Mahood, Fran and Bud Metheny, Cookie Woods Middleton, Mildred and Ed Miller, Mary Jane Miller, Minnie Lou Dobbie and Bill Musser, Pinky Newton, Jane and Jimmy Dill, Ruth Keat Harvey, Eldon and Louise Eppinger Nuernberger, Alice and Len Owen, William and Kay Taylor Parlin, Carney and Anne Cross Pearce, Harriet and Jack Purtil, Maureen and Charlie Quittmeyer, Frances and Frank Raflo, Bob and Dottie Coppridge Rawl, Fran Wagener Read, Marilyn and Charlie Roberts, Willette Chambers Rogers, Millie Shephard Sanderhoff, Ralph and Jean Walworth Schrader, Elizabeth and Sy Shwiler, Connie Hoge Smith, Florence Mode Smith, Lester and Betty Knoll Smith, Joan and Walter Snowdon, Mary and Jim Talley, Joe and Sue Duncan Thomas, Pat Ford Updegrove, Leah and T. Waller, John and Betty Wood Walton, Louise and John Wavle, Ed and Dinny Forwood Wetter, Charlotte Bagot White, Eugene and Hope Hunt White, Jane Brandt Wild, Robert and Joan Jarrett Woods, Walt and Betty Carter Zable, Maizie Coggin Sanders and Dave Senft.

Jack Garrett and Dinny Wetter put together a super schedule of events, and the College really gave us the red carpet treatment from start to finish. Also, the staff at the Wyndham Hotel, across from the Alumni House, went all out for us. Oh, and the weather was fair and beautiful though some members from more southern climes thought it too cool—am sure they'd forgotten how miserably hot and humid Williamsburg can be.

Friday on our arrival we checked in and registered at our hospitality suite on the main floor of the Wyndham. The large print name tags with duplicates of our graduation pictures were great and everyone was good about wearing them. It was especially exciting to see classmates who returned for the first time.

That evening at 6:30 we went across to the Alumni House for the welcome cocktail buffet. It truly was a festive occasion—delicious food sufficient for dinner and everyone mingled indoors and out, under a large tent, visiting with old friends.

Saturday was lovely again, starting with a leisurely continental breakfast. At 11:30 a.m. College buses picked us up to take us to Trinkle Hall, the old dining room which is very attractive and totally unrecognizable, for our class photograph and our class luncheon. Round tables for eight were decorated with big green and yellow balloons and a delicious luncheon was served. President Verkuil was there with other dignitaries, and Jack Garrett presented the class gift, the Class of 1940 Merit Scholarship Endowment, which exceeded our goal and totaled $218,000. Jack says that 52 percent of the located class members participated and that's quite a record.

The class presented Jack and Ann Garrett with a much deserved custom-designed gift—a small wooden column with scenes of the College engraved in brass on the four sides, the brainchild of Bob Lansburgh and Dinny Wetter, and a beautiful and fitting tribute to all that Jack and Ann have done for our class these 50 years and more.

When Jack formally presented, in our behalf, the endowment to President Verkuil, he announced that Alexander Davis of Alexandria, Va., would be the first Class of '40 Scholar. Jack has received a fine letter from Alex expressing his "appreciation and awe at being given this honor," and saying he'd welcome an opportunity to meet and thank "my benefactors personally" at Homecoming in November. Very heart-warming indeed.

Following the luncheon we were given a bus tour of the old and new campuses. There were stops at the Muscarelle Museum and the Botetourt Gallery of Swem Library, conducted by Student Alumni Liaison Council members, who were very personable and knowledgeable.

Free time following our tour was spent in various ways, but we all got dressed up and presented ourselves at 6 p.m. for the champagne reception preceding our candlelight dinner and dance at the Wyndham. The cocktail party was scheduled to be in the courtyard but rain threatened so it was moved indoors.

During the evening we were all inducted into the Olde Guard. Following the ceremony we were all sitting around the dance floor when Charlotte Bagot White's attractive daughter, Lynne, came in. She looked at us with our Olde Guard medallions hanging around our necks on green and gold ribbons and quipped, "You look like you're all Olympic Gold Medalists"!!

Jack and Ann Garrett represented the class and the Society of the Alumni at the Senior Class Candlelight Ceremony after the induction. At the ceremony, graduating seniors and their families gather in Wren Yard to hear remarks from class members, a representative of the 50th reunion class, and a faculty member selected by the seniors. Candles are lighted from person to person, signifying the continuity of the William and Mary experience, spotlighting the role of parents, family and friends, and symbolizing the "light of knowledge" and the role of the modern university. This tradition was started by the Class of '78. Jack and Ann said it was a very impressive occasion but they regretted having to leave the class function, especially when there was quite a delay in the start of the ceremony. They came back afterwards to join us hardy types, some two dozen, who stayed to the very end.

Sunday morning we were taken by bus to Wren Chapel for the Class of '40 Memorial Service. Members of the William and Mary Choir sang the "William and Mary Hymn" for our processional after which the Rev. Al Alley made some very meaningful remarks, beautifully expressed. Merritt Foster, Frank Henderson, Frances Wagener Read and Betty Carter Zable each read the names of 25 deceased class members, 47 women and 53 men, followed immediately by taps sounded outside the chapel by two buglers—indeed a moving tribute. The Alma Mater and recessional sung by the choir closed the service. It was a somber and reverent occasion remembering those no longer with us.

We cheered ourselves up again at our champagne brunch before departing by bus in our academic regalia, complete with our Olde Guard medallions, to attend Commencement exercises at William and Mary Hall.

Our class led the Commencement procession and was seated in a reserved section near the front of the hall. The rest of the procession took a long time to file in, faculty and guests on the stage and the exuberant Class of 1990 totally filling the ground floor. There were some 1,767 receiving degrees compared with 260 when we graduated (plus 30 in August) far more than the total student body when we were there.

It was a heart-warming experience to see the excitement exhibited by those graduating and to witness the ceremony. Gov. Douglas Wilder gave a fine and brief address and degrees were conferred en masse to the various departments. A different world from our Commencement in Wren Yard 50 years ago!

A dozen or more classmates stayed overnight Sunday but most of us packed up and started for home shortly after the exercises, taking with us so many warm thoughts and memories of a once-in-a-lifetime weekend. Frank and I came down to earth gradually because Jean Bratton came home with us to stay until Tuesday. She retraced her steps to Williamsburg to meet Gwen Evans Wood '39 for lunch and drove on to Emory. Grass didn't grow under her feet, for she left that Friday for a tour of Italy!

Really appreciated receiving several letters besides Jean's since reunion. Ginny Allen's letter of appreciation and pictures were great. She's starting to "remove the Easter poundage" in preparation for competing again in October to qualify for the nationals in the Senior Olympics (swimming). More power to you, Ginny, and best of luck.

Jean Walworth Schrader, who came all the way from Hawaii with her husband and daughter, wrote that after leaving Williamsburg they explored Kitty Hawk and the eastern shore of North Carolina and on to Durham. Thank you so much for writing, Jean, and do let me hear from you more often.

Len Owen sent us a "photo on Alice!" He said it was an outstanding weekend, one of the nicest he's ever experienced and one we will never be able to duplicate; our 50th comes only once. Too bad, isn't it, for it was so great.

Again accolades go to the reunion chairman, Dinny Wetter, and to our indispensable Jack and Ann for their continuing and faithful leadership. Jack is already setting plans in motion for Homecoming the first weekend in November so you'll be hearing from him.

And apropos of Homecoming, etc. Barbara Pate Glacel '70, is a nominee for the Board of Directors of the Alumni Society. She lives in Burke, Va., and is Dinny Forwood Pate Wetter's daughter. We wish her well!

This is surely my swan song as far as long reports are concerned. Please remember my plea for news and let me hear from you—it's always a pleasure and I appreciate letters more than you can know!

The Commonwealth of Virginia reports that 138 sets of special College of William and Mary license plates have been purchased under a new state program that highlights individual institutions on the plates. William and Mary ranks fourth among all colleges and universities in the state in the number of plates issued with the special institutional insignias. Once 1,000 sets of plates have been sold, the College will receive $15.00 of the $25.00 fee for each additional set of College plates sold. The plates may be purchased by contacting any DMV office in the state.

A letter from Bette Smith Elliott reports that she took a trip to Egypt for two weeks where she saw the local sights, shopped in bazaars and even rode a camel. Her next trip will take her traveling down the Danube.

Dear Emalee Ewing Durbin—world traveler—deserves a medal for her faithfulness in reporting her news. In February and March she and her husband clocked more miles in what seems to be their goal of seeing the entire United States. They went by plane and car to Orlando, Tampa, Marcos Islands, West Palm Beach, southernmost Texas and El Paso visiting friends and relatives along the way. Thanks, Emalee!

Could I pique your interest in reporting news to your class secretary? Would anyone named Virginia, Margaret, Ed or Thomas send me news by the end of summer? Please!

44 John Paul Carter Route 1, Box 209 Sewanee, TN 37375

This time I struck it rich! I sent letters soliciting news, first to 25 of you and then to 15 more. Back came wonderful answers, a regular feast. So, let's enjoy the distillation of them.

Bill Ditto (Dr. William M., D.D.S.) reports from Greensboro, N.C., that he has practiced orthodontics there for 37 years, after degrees from W&M, Medical College of Virginia and University of Michigan. He and his wife Ann have three daughters and a son: one daughter is a missionary in the Pacific, another has recently resigned as dean of students at Greensboro College and is now a private counselor, and the son is a hydrogeologist in Greenville, S.C. Bill says, "I have recently sold my practice . . . and look forward to accomplishing many things that have been put on the back burner . . ."

Bob Eastham (Robert W.), Flint Hill, Va., left W&M after two years for the Navy V-5 program and served in the Pacific as a carrier pilot on the USS Yorktown. Back from the war, he completed his education at Georgetown University in the Foreign Service School. In the State Department he served in Veracruz, Mexico, Hong Kong, and Seoul, Korea. He then entered commercial foreign service with the National City Bank—Puerto Rico, Venezuela, head office in New York, and then the Virgin Islands. For a number of years he had a Crown Lease in the British islands and built a house. In 1977, he moved to Flint Hill, his birthplace, and has been writing as an expert about the Civil War. He is also an amateur physicist and does experimenting in electro-magnetism. He and his wife have two unmarried sons: one is a lawyer in California and the other is hitchhiking around the world for the second time. Bob remembers particularly the influence of Prof. Charles Harrison.

Betsy Yow Pearce lives in Selma, Ala. She says she skipped her W&M graduation to go up to West Point for June Week and her husband's graduation; they were married eight days later. They have lived in many places in the U.S., two tours in West Germany, and Okinawa. They have an older son married and living aboard a yacht in Ventura, Calif., and twins—a daughter who is a lawyer in Atlanta, and a son "who has the largest catfish farm in Alabama." They had lived for 11 years near Pensacola, but think Selma is a great improvement where "there are no tee times at the golf course." They have a condo at Ft. Myers. She keeps up with Marian Smith Turner, roommate in summer of '42, who accelerated to graduate in '43. Betsy has five grandchildren, ranging from 10 to 24 years of age. She and her husband are active in St. Paul's Church, Selma.

Elaine McDowell Fuerst and her husband, living in Guam and retired from the faculty on the university there, are

Dr. James M. Patton, director of teacher education and associate professor in the School of Education, is among 11 recipients of the University of Louisville's first Alumni Fellows Awards. The annual awards recognize distinguished alumni of the institution. Dr. Patton received a master of education degree from Louisville in 1971 and his Ph.D. in administration of higher education from Indiana University in 1976.

The Board of Visitors has directed the College's investment managers "to make no further investments in companies that are not substantively free of interests in South Africa" and "to sell existing holdings with interests in South Africa when such sales are advantageous to the College's portfolio." The action was taken in response to Governor L. Douglas Wilder's executive order on divestiture of investments in companies having ties to South Africa.

Emanuel C. Edwards '79 J.D. has received the Community Service Award from the city of Roanoke, Va. A graduate of the University of Virginia and the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, Edwards is a self-employed attorney in Roanoke where he was recently appointed to the city school board. He has served as a volunteer instructor at the City School for the Gifted and Talented, Special Consultant to the Board of Managers of the Family Center YMCA and in other volunteer community activities.

champion travelers, just back from a snorkeling trip to French Polynesia. This summer they will go on an MIT-sponsored exploration of southern Alaska waters. From Alaska, they will go to an Elderhostel in the Cascade Mountains of Washington; and then on to another Elderhostel in Oaxaca, Mexico, for a Spanish-immersion course. Along the way, they'll be in North Carolina for the birth of grandchild No. 7, and they have a great-grandson born last February. She says they are in Guam about half the time, "But as you can see we have wanderlust!"

Billy Davison Cantlay and her retired lieutenant general husband report that they've "lived in Williamsburg now for nearly four years of complete unnewsworthy contentment." They were six years in Brussels and seven in Hawaii, but now appreciate being accessible to their daughter, two sons and their families. She is very glad to be "back home."

Winifred Gill Geesey writes from Watsonville, Calif., that she and her husband Don are avid and informed antiquers who attended meetings this spring in Philadelphia, Lancaster, York and Gettysburg, then on to Cape May and Ocean City. They then continued to Abingdon, Va., for her 50th high school reunion before going on to Florida. She says it was good to be in the East on "firm land... because... in Watsonville the earthquake really shook us. We personally lost lots of dishes, glassware and antiques." Their son's home, nearby, slid down the hill.

In Philadelphia Win telephoned Florence Metius Johnson but could not see her because Flossy was just about to depart for Italy. Win also keeps in touch with Pat Leonard Morell, of Lake Forest, Ill., whom she had seen last winter in Scottsdale, Ariz. She also hears from Bob Blanford '43 and Nancy Westcott Larsen '43.

Bill Brittingham, Norfolk, says that his wife, Virginia Dixon, graduated PBK in January '44, and that he finally finished in '46 after two years in the Navy. In 1950, he earned an M.Ed. degree and began teaching in the Norfolk school system, 35 of the years at Maury. He retired in June 1986. His fields were chemistry and English, and he also coached tennis (state championships in 1966 and '67). They have two daughters and a son... the elder daughter graduated from W&M, son from Wesleyan University in Connecticut and younger daughter from George Washington. There are two grandchildren whom they see regularly. They go up to Williamsburg or Yorktown frequently to walk and enjoy, and they particularly like the Muscarelle Art Museum (because Bill is an artist). "However, we are NOT the regular W&M alumni" avoiding homecomings, etc. Maybe they will break down and come to the 50th!

Nancy Norris Foster and Dixon, Irvington, Va., took their boat down the Intracoastal Waterway this past fall and visited the west coast of Florida, where they had a memorable evening with Joyce LeCraw Rand and Ed, Marney Bevans Kent and Dick, and Marge Retzke Gibbs and Wayne. They have had as houseguests Harvey and Ann Pope and Jo Cornell Clark and Buddy (Garland). They also saw Sonny and Ann Almond (he was '41). Nancy and Dixon have worked with others to form a Lower Northern Neck Alumni Chapter, and average attendance is 70!

They also passed on a recent note from Marge and Wayne with the news that they are going to a big Airstream Rally (comfortable, aluminum housetrailer) in Notre, that they had been to the Kentucky Derby — "Wayne hated it, but I enjoyed watching people, etc." — and that they have recently celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary.

Scarlett Pettigrew Staunton writes from Lancaster, Pa., that her husband has been retired from his law practice for several years, allowing them time for travel. The most recent trips were a wildlife tour to the northeast quadrant of Australia; and then a later trip to study the three cultures of Papua New Guinea. This summer, they will visit their daughter in Ann Arbor, who is writing a biography of Federico Garcia Lorca; her husband is a professor of romance languages at the University of Michigan. The middle child is a son who is a TV producer in Seattle, and the younger daughter (who has cerebral palsy) has been ordained as a minister in the Disciples of Christ, has completed her advanced certification in Clinical Pastoral Education and expects to be an institutional chaplain.

Scarlett gives thanks for the ministry of our classmate Ted Bailey and his wife Gunda during their years in Tappahannock (they are now retired and living in Williamsburg).

She also reports that Mary Barnhart Huston and John have moved from Long Island to Milford, N.J., "where they live surrounded by woods and visited by various wildlife" but "are close enough to New York to be able to take advantage of all it has to offer."

Enclosed also was a Christmas note from Ann Smith Goldston, Rochester, Minn., where her husband practices at the Mayo Clinic. Ann, meanwhile, practices pediatrics in Austin, about 40 miles west. Their son is a physician, older daughter is working on her M.B.A. degree at the University of Minnesota and younger daughter is head of professional marketing for the American Diabetes Association in Alexandria, Va.

Joan and I are fine. We spent the spring at St. Deiniol's Library, Hawarden, North Wales, "the world's only residential library." We expect to go to Barbados for a month this fall.

Thanks one and all for responding so warmly. Keep up the good work!

Grubie Williams has remembered Keith Anne Gamble Duncan with the following memorial:

I was shocked to read in a recent Alumni Gazette about the death of Keith Anne, and since she was such a vibrant member of our class I felt that we could not let it pass without recognition. Tex was a kind of breath of fresh air inasmuch as she hailed from Texas, hence the nickname. We loved her accent and her special style of humor which, along with her dedication and devotion to the College and to the class, endeared her to us forevermore. During our freshman year she met and dated Tom Duncan who was a member of our class and one of the war work boys. After the war he pursued Tex and they were married in 1949. They had two sons, one of whom is an alumnus of the College.

In 1981, Tom had a severe stroke and became totally dependent on Tex. However, she managed to keep up her Tri Delt, AAUW and class activities all the while. She had been ill for a short time and went to the hospital for treatment where she suddenly died on Aug. 24, 1989. In spite of her cares and worry during the last 10 years she had such an upbeat attitude. I have lovely memories of several telephone conversations when she was particularly cheery and holding a positive outlook. Hers was a sincere love for the class and College and there was never anything that she would not do for both. Most of the time she would volunteer and work hard in any cause. We will miss her and surely we will long remember her happy presence, for Tex brought joy to every situation.

Tom is now in the VA Hospital in Northampton, Mass. I'm sure he would be happy to hear from any of his old friends and acquaintances.

Warm weather activities did not seem to include writing letters to yours truly, so my newsletter will be, of necessity, shorter than usual. When you read this, Homecoming will be around the corner and you can catch me up then.

Because of a mistake I made in my last letter, I received a delightful letter from Shirley Sprague (Shuz) Thompson setting me straight. Shuz pointed out that I had described her as someone who, after retiring from 39 years at Phillips Academy, is enjoying divided time between homes in Williamsburg and New Hampshire, and that she cannot claim this idyllic arrangement. I believe the Lou Hoitsmas can!

Shuz and her husband reside in the environs of Cleveland, where she's always been. He heads a mining and lake shipping firm headquartered in Cleveland and they lead bustling lives that include a good bit of travel and community involvement. They abandoned Shaker Heights 13 years ago for the little village of Hunting Valley, which combines sylvan beauty with tribulations of septic tanks and well water. Their three children, all Dartmouth graduates, in spite of Shirley's hope that at least one would choose W&M, are all married and happily launched into the world. They have two grandchildren.

The Thompsons plan to lead more leisurely lives when he retires at the end of next year. We hope their plans will include forays into Virginia — Williamsburg, in particular, at Homecoming. We'll look forward to seeing them there!

A letter on gaily bedecked Chi O stationery arrived in February from old friend Betty Hotopp Van Aken, who feared that, if she didn't let me know her whereabouts, she would once again appear on my "missing persons" report. Betty and husband Tom retired in June 1989 and moved from New Jersey to Tennessee. They live in their new home on Tellico Lake, on the 16th hole of a golf course, near Maryville, where their daughter attended college and Bill Murphy played pro-baseball.

Betty and Tom received the January-February issue of Cityview magazine which contained an article about the busy young builder who did their home and there were two color photographs of their home under construction at that time. Even more exciting, there was a picture of the president of Carson-Newman College and none other than our own Henry Blanc, who is one of the trustees. Their daughter then revealed that she had known Henry's daughter at Maryville College.

And yes, Betty, Knox Ramsey's brother Buster does own that herd of white cattle on Route 411 outside of Maryville. Who says it isn't a small world?

Before I sign off, here a few statistics on the Bray twins: Jim is in his 41st year of teaching, his 32nd year as a professor at Salem College, and his 40th year of marriage to the same woman. Congratulations, Jim, to you and Ginny! Ben has retired and lives in Williamsburg. Bet you all didn't know that!

I guess you have all been busy with summer activities instead of sending me news. Please put me on your Christmas card list right now!

Alfred, son John and I have been completely immersed in polishing up the duplex where my mother had lived from 1973 until she entered a nursing home in 1987. I have been astonished at all the things I have learned to do, including grouting and caulking, cement work, patching stress cracks and putting down new tile flooring in the two large kitchens. John did my usual job of painting inside and out. Alfred, who has very little free time, handles the difficult technical things such as electrical and plumbing repairs and repairing locks. It looked so nice that it sold in only 10 days. I feel like I have suspended the rest of my life in favor of all that work for the past two months! I'm ready to get to artwork and sewing and I have a commission waiting for some attention.

Do write. We all like to know what everyone else is doing. How about some essays on "What I did this summer" — or you may get one on "What Winston did this September!"

Well, folks, sorry about the lack of news, but I will send along what I have.

I had a very newsy letter from my roommate (senior year), Betsy Graves Smith. In fact, Betsy, this is my way of replying — for the time being. She and husband Bob are living and working in Alexandria, Va. — also making plans for retirement. They've been doing a lot of traveling in the U.S., Canada and Europe. Sounds great! She enclosed a lovely picture of the whole clan — two daughters and four grandchildren. Terrific to hear from you, Betsy!

Gene Burns has been invited as a visiting lecturer to the Finance and Control Faculty Seminar of the Graduate School of Business of Harvard University. Very prestigious!

As for me, I've just enjoyed a marvelous visit with the entire family — Kimberly (the mother of my two granddaughters) and Kelly, both of whom are living in North Carolina. Steve and Kathryn, my other two young 'uns, live in Cincinnati. Kathryn just earned her degree in paralegal studies and is earnestly job hunting. Steve is very much involved in his rock 'n roll band.

Please send me your news, so I can write more than a few paragraphs!

A number of our classmates registered in the Homecoming tent last November but were not noted in the May column. Thanks to the Alumni Office for furnishing me with this information. They are: Dr. David B. Dunkle of Hummelstown, Pa.; Margaret Ives Emerson of Perrysburg, Ohio; Russell A. Gills Jr. of Virginia Beach; Dr. Alfred J. Gross, Williamsburg; Posie James Hundley Jr. of Dallas, Texas; Barbara Shriver Inman of Hampton; Betty Ann Wallace and Annie Lee Lewis Waltrip, both of Williamsburg; and Elizabeth King Welsh of Hampton. It appears that there were approximately 45 class members who returned for some part of the 35th reunion. Let's see if we can make it 100 for the 40th!

I will briefly review reunion surveys from 20 classmates that have not been covered in the past two columns. Several others were missing a page when received from the Alumni Office so must be delayed until the next column. Jay Spencer Birnbrauer is an associate professor of psychology at Murdoch University and is located in Cottesloe, Western Australia. Jay is single, and lists hobbies of singing, piano, swimming and tennis. Joanne Little Davies was executive director of the Mental Health Association in Madison County, Ala., 10 years before she and husband, Robert, moved to Alexandria in 1988 where he is an engineer with NASA. They have four grown children and Joanne is looking forward to becoming involved with volunteer work. She has received several distinguished service awards in the field of mental health.

Mary Maples Dunn is president of Smith College and her husband, Richard, is Nichols Professor of History at the Univer-

ROBERT BOYD ELECTED TO HOLNAM BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Robert F. Boyd '50, '52 J.D., president of the law firm of Boyd and Boyd, P.C., in Norfolk, has been elected to the board of directors of Holnam Inc., one of the largest producers of cement and allied construction materials in the United States and Canada. Boyd is a trustee emeritus of the William and Mary Endowment Board and a trustee of the Marshall-Wythe Law School Foundation, having recently completed service as president of that foundation. Boyd also serves on numerous corporate boards throughout the country.

sity of Pennsylvania. They have two grown daughters, Rebecca and Cecilia. Mary, who is "committed to women's education and women's issues" has received honorary degrees from Marietta, Amherst, Lafayette and William and Mary.

Jane Carney Pillow and husband E. Graham Pillow reside in Ithaca, N.Y., where he is director of data processing and communications for Ithaca College. Jane, having retired from college administration, is active in the American Association of University Women and Delta Kappa Gamma. They raise and show Burmese cats, and Graham looks forward to early retirement and travel. They have two sons and four grandsons.

Margaret Owens Wolfe retired in 1988 as a professor of English at Anne Arundel Community College. She and husband Carvel live in Edgewater, Md., and he is a math professor at the Naval Academy. They have three children and five grandchildren. Margaret enjoys square dancing, church choir and Elderhostel vacations.

David Martin Heinrich graduated from Chicago Medical School, served in the Army Medical Corps for two years, and currently practices medicine in Waukegan, Ill. His wife, Gladys, is an accountant with the Great Lakes Credit Union, and they have three children, Robert, Linda and Jeffrey. David enjoys stamps, golf and classical music.

Nancy Waggoner Roeder and husband Robert '51 reside in Littleton, Colo., where he is employed by the University of Denver as an associate professor of philosophy. They have two children, Craig and Susan.

Nancy Wilson Rule and husband Walter who retired from the U.S. Forest Service in 1986, live in Ouray, Colo., where Nancy is very active in community affairs. She serves as president of the Historical Society Board, the Woman's Club of Ouray, the AAUW, and is the Altar Guild Directress of her church. They have five grown children.

Samuel Benjamin Mitchell has taught and coached for 22 years for the Harrisonburg city schools. His wife, Lois, is an X-ray technician. They have four children, Mary Elizabeth, Timothy, Jonathan and Edward. Samuel enjoys participating in his church softball league and in coaching little league and youth league baseball.

David Metz and his wife Marcia have a son, John, who attends graduate school at the College. They live in Florissant, Mo., where David is employed by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. as division manager — labor relations. David writes that he is raising a golden retriever, traveling to Virginia at every opportunity, going to antique auctions and carving ducks. They have two other children, Kelly and Leslie.

Virginia Harrison Mayotte lives in Omaha where she teaches 5th and 6th-grade history and reading for the Catholic schools of that city. She is very involved with community activities serving as president of General's Aid to USAF Wives at Elsworth AFB, as a volunteer probation officer for Juvenile Department of Omaha, and is on the vestry of St. Barnabas Episcopal Church. Ginny enjoys bridge, antiques, "going home to Fredericksburg each year" and "my three grandchildren." She has two children, Carter and Aimee.

Mary Lee Johnson '54 M.Ed. is an elementary counselor for the Lancaster County School Board. She and husband Warren live in Kilmarnock, where he is with Christopher Treakle Oil Co. Mary Lee enjoys her pets, knitting and antiquing, and sings in her church choir.

Karlee Smith Gifford lives in New Haven where she is employed as librarian for the Cowles Foundation Library at Yale. Her husband, Bob, is professor of medicine, associate dean and dean of students at Yale Medical School. Karlee's hobbies are stained glass crafts and genealogy, the latter having led her to compile an extensive family history with photographs. The Giffords have four children, David, Bruce, Jennifer '88 and Susan.

Charlotte Frey Egger is an accountant with Morrison-Knudsen Environmental in Boise, Idaho. Her husband, Joseph, has retired from the U.S. Forest Service. They have one son, John Arthur.

Elizabeth Wood Bowers and her retired husband, John, live in Myrtle Beach, S.C., where she is an active volunteer with the library, Girl Scouts, PTA and Methodist church. Elizabeth's hobbies are photography, choral singing, biking, swimming and travel. In 1986 she received two Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards. The Bowers have two children, Carol and Bruce.

Grace Stone Marrion and attorney husband Robert live in East Lyme, Conn., where she is coordinator of the Birth to Three Program of Project Learn. Grace took advanced degrees in early childhood and special education. She has served on the boards of the United Cerebral Palsy Association and the Child Guidance Clinic of South East Connecticut. The Marrions have two sons and three daughters.

Jean Beckh Robertson and husband, Edward, reside in Kingwood, Texas, where he is retired from Exxon Co. Jean enjoys tennis. They have four children and two grandchildren.

Henretta Trent Band is an independent investigator in the field of geneticist/evolutionary biology and has published extensively. She and husband Neal live in East Lansing, Mich., where he is a professor at Michigan State University in the areas of protozoology and microbiology. Retta is a past regent of the Lansing Chapter DAR, and secretary of the Mid-Michigan Republican Women's Club. They have one daughter, Elizabeth.

John Hoeft Getreau and wife Mary Sue live in McLean where both are now retired, she from the Navy Department and he from the federal government where he served as a contracting officer (lawyer). John is active in many community and professional associations and is involved with "fixing up the house, enjoying retirement, and trying to keep local politicians in the People's Republic of Northern Virginia from picking my pockets with more taxes!" John closes his comments with a thought to which I can certainly relate and I feel many of you can also: "I was an undistinguished student but I owe a good deal of what success I've had in life to the good education I received at William and Mary."

From the letterbox: Dusty Ward writes that he will travel to Russia in June for two weeks and then back to East and West Germany in August. Purpose of the visits is to meet with sports psychologists in gymnastics as part of an exchange program. Fortunately, wife Anne will be able to travel with him. It appears that Dusty will have only Germany to visit!

Charlie Cottrell resides in Madison, Conn., where he is president, SNET Credit, a leasing subsidiary of SNET Telecommunications and is assistant treasurer of the parent, SNET Telecommunications. Charlie serves as a selectman for the town of Madison and is in the antique business with his wife, Barbara. They have three grown sons: David (married, and in third year of oral surgery training at Tufts), Jonathan (foreign exchange trader — The Boston Company) and Stephen (account officer, Fleet Northstar Bank in Providence, R.I.).

I was glad to hear from Liz King Welch. It seems I missed her at the reunion dinner! She was there, indeed. Liz is a reading specialist in the Hampton City Schools and received a master's and another advanced degree (C.A.G.S.) from the College. Husband Dick is a copy editor at Norfolk's Ledger-Star and their three children all graduated from the College.

I plan to write one more column in order to finish the reunion surveys and will, of course, add any additional news that I receive. At that time I hope one of you will have volunteered to take this job. Those several offers to "help" were greatly appreciated, but I must pass the responsibility on. I spent six weeks (July-August) in England visiting various friends from my working days at the American Embassy there. Having no children to take to see the Crown Jewels, London Bridge or Big Ben, and no set schedule to keep was the nearest thing to heaven! Could we be getting old?

GIFT SUPPORTS CHILD CARE CENTER

Sarah Ives Gore '56 of Newark, Del., has made a $400,000 commitment to a proposed child care center at William and Mary, enabling construction on the center to begin this fall. Mrs. Gore's donation is the latest of several major commitments, now totaling $600,000, to the center, which is being funded entirely through private support. Construction of the 5,000-square-foot facility is expected to be completed by the fall of 1991. Mrs. Gore said her commitment is "a wonderful opportunity to make an investment I believe in." She directs human resources for W.L. Gore and Associates, headquartered in Newark. Other significant support has included major gifts from Pamela Harriman of Middleburg, Va., a former member of the Board of Visitors; the Morgan Foundation, and Martha Schifferli '37, in memory of Nancy Emery Gibson. The center will accommodate about 75 children of College faculty, staff and students.

Please write before my next deadline of Oct. 22!

Blessed Howard Scammon '34 called to see if we were in one piece following the tornado in May. Fortunately, we were only slightly nicked along the property line. The town of White Stone wasn't so lucky. It was called a "microburst" in the newspapers. Call it what you will, it looked, sounded and acted like a tornado.

Martha Briggs '55, visited the Tides Inn with her church group. She looked terrific.

Bobby and Norma Gibbons dropped in for Sunday lunch, accompanied by Gene Barham '55. They celebrated Norma's happy birthday.

The definition of age used to be defined as wanting to be, and almost being, Paul Verkuil's big brother in the fraternity. But less wise heads prevailed, and I wasn't. Though I did continue to age. But we now have a new way to define getting real old. Neil Hock has two grandchildren. Neil, it's nice to know you finally let the girls date.

Looks like I wasn't making it up. Ginny Fleshman Gada and Preston are still traveling. And I quote: "We've been through Mozart's Europe — Germany, Czechoslovakia and Austria. We're finishing up in Paris and looking forward to Raleigh, N.C.!"

A note from Judith Watts Andrews notified us of the death of her college roommate and friend, Margaret "Brucie" Stewart of our class who died May 30 in Arlington. Judith's address is 6421 N. 24th St., Arlington, VA 22207.

Heard from Merritt Ierley who will be donating a copy of his newest book to the Paschall Library in the Alumni House to join his past works. Published this past May by Overlook Press, it is the story of the old National (or Cumberland) Road, told largely through firsthand accounts of travelers — initially on foot with a trail through the wilderness, and continuing on horseback, stagecoach, right up to the modern automobile.

What I want to know is — can it be a musical?

Ben Bolt has made a childhood dream come true. A native of Pulaski, Va., he had always dreamed of owning Hillcrest, a beautiful home in his area. After a 2 1/2-year restoration project, he and his wife Ann just moved into it this past year.

Tom Lightner, the very model of a modern major general was the guest speaker at the ROTC commissioning this past spring. (Tom doesn't know it, but Walt Leyland and I had an intense discussion just before our 30th reunion of whether or not it would be too complicated a job for Tom to organize the mixers, pretzels, etc. for our very hospitable suite. Until we reminded ourselves of other events that Tom has probably organized over the years.)

Well, so long. That's all the songs for a while.

Deal Waters wrote that for the last 12 years he has been the administrator of the Washington Clinic, a multi-specialty group medical practice in Washington, D.C. He and his wife, Laverne, have seven children and 11 grandchildren. Deal will be unable to attend Homecoming.

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science has a new building to house its shoreline inventory program. The structure was a gift from Nicholas St. George, president of Oakwood Homes Corp. of Greensboro, N.C. The facility will be used by graduate students in the chemical oceanography division.

In December John Pforr retired after 25 years with the Secret Service. He and his wife, Lynn, were recent guests of the LBJ Foundation, celebrating 25 years since LBJ's inauguration. They have been traveling a lot, and just enjoying life out of the fast lane. Son Cameron, a William and Mary graduate, is working for the State Department and living in Washington. And daughter Robyn, a Barnard graduate, is a newspaper reporter in New Jersey.

I'll be expecting more news, the closer we get to our 30th!

David M. Pond has been named director of the Engineering Research Division of Eastman Chemical Co. Research Laboratories. Dave first joined Eastman as a research chemist; he then made his way up the ladder as a senior, then research associate. He was later named superintendent of the Acid Development and Control Department, which led to manager and then director of Chemicals Laboratory, Technical Service and Development.

Looking back in the 1964 Colonial Echo, I was reminded that Dave was a chemistry major, manager of the varsity basketball team, an orientation group leader, a member of the American Institute of Physics and the American Chemical Society. . . which goes to prove that if one sets his sights early on, later reward and accomplishment are practically inevitable.

A fellow chemistry major, group orientation leader and fraternity brother of Pond is David L. Mims. Mims has already been named to the Leadership Awards Selection Committee of the Harrisonburg and Rockingham County Daily News-Record. The committee will select a senior from each of the area's four public high schools to receive $2,000 awards for leadership and academic achievement.

After completing graduate work at the University of South Carolina (Dave Pond did the same), Mims worked for IBM for 20 years in sales and marketing management positions. He returned in 1987 to Harrisonburg as an independent sheep farmer and as assistant to the president of the Rockingham Development Corp.

SCIENTISTS ANALYZE SKELETON OF WILLIAM AND MARY ALUMNUS

The 120-year-old skeletal remains of an 1859 graduate of William and Mary, who died at the age of 31 after serving in the Fourth Virginia Infantry during the Civil War, are being analyzed by researchers seeking clues about the man's lifestyle, diet and the cause of his death, according to an article in the Washington Post. The research, which is conducted by the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology and the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History, began in April after descendants of Civil War veteran Walter Weir asked for help in excavating family graves from a plot of land now surrounded by a townhouse development. Weir's coffin and black tuxedo in which he was buried will become part of the Armed Forces museum's historical collection. Weir was described as 5'9", married and the father of one daughter.

Another to pursue his original major of fine arts is Barry Tinsley who recently showed his works of sculpture at the Isis Gallery at Notre Dame. He was reviewed in the May/June issue of Sculpture magazine; his works like "Domingo" and "Saturday Afternoon," fabricated of bronze cast in steel forms, are examples of why he is considered one of Chicago's major public sculptors.

And at last, Patty Vaught has been found! For the past several years she has pursued her career in library science and even worked in the library at William and Mary. She has just received a master's degree in library science, concentrating in Latin American studies at the University of Texas in Austin. She is visiting her sister in Alexandria for the summer. How great it is to find you again, Patty.

Homecoming is Nov. 1-4. It would be great for us all to get together again so soon. Who said the 26th can't be just as good as the 25th? Go for it!

After serving as director of bands at Concord College in West Virginia for seven years, Leon Bly became director of the wind orchestra and chairman of the wind and percussion department at the Stuttgart Music School of West Germany, in 1981. In the past year, Leon has directed the Music School Wind Orchestra in the premiere of works by Axel D. Ruoff and David Mason-Edwards and toured Israel with the orchestra, performing in Jerusalem, Haifa and Tiberias. Leon, his wife Ilona, and their daughters Natascha, 13, and Carina, 10, live in the Stuttgart suburb of Fasanehof and welcome all classmates passing through the area to stop for a visit.

We are only a year away from celebrating our big 25th reunion. Planning is getting underway for this reunion celebration which will occur during Homecoming 1991. Walt Wink will be serving as the activities chairman and Pat and Margaret Conn Walsh will be serving as gift co-chairs. Anyone interested in serving on the planning committee should contact Walt at 303 East St. NE, Vienna, VA 22180, or the Alumni House at P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100.

Laura Daughtry Smart and her husband Sam traveled to northern Chile as part of Fredericksburg Baptist Church's medical mission. Sam, an optometrist practicing in Fredericksburg, Va., and Laura spent two weeks helping to diagnose eye problems. They dispensed almost 1,200 pairs of glasses and referred those with serious eye problems to a Chilean ophthalmologist.

Heidi Pixton Copa and Ken, an investment analyst for Bechtel, have lived in Alaska, Toronto and Rio de Janeiro. They have spent the last 10 years living in Pleasant Hill, Calif., not far from San Francisco. Heidi quit her career as an employment counselor to raise her family, one that includes eight children. Cannon, the youngest, was born last December. Kim, the oldest, is a sophomore at Brigham Young University. Heidi directs the Pleasant Hills handbell choir, is active in church organizations, and writes newsletters for three different groups. She keeps in touch with Eleanor Nethkan Smith who lives in Chubbuck, Idaho. Eleanor and her husband, LeGrande, have five children.

H. Paul Broughton has been appointed administrator of employee relations and training for the Virginia Department of

MERRITT IERLEY '58 PUBLISHES HISTORY OF NATIONAL ROAD

A new book by Merritt Ierley '58, traces the history of the National Road from its beginnings as an Indian footpath to its current-day status as a major part of U.S. Route 40, which extends westward from Baltimore. Traveling the National Road (Overlook Press) offers first-person narratives of the people and events connected with this historic stretch since it was created by an act of Congress and signed into law by Thomas Jefferson in 1806. A former journalist and an editor at the Virginia Gazette in Williamsburg, Ierley lives in Sussex, N.J. He also is the author of The Year That Tried Men's Souls and With Charity for All.

Fellow. James pursued postdoctoral studies as an N.I.M.H. Fellow at the Social and Demographic Research Institute of the University of Massachusetts. He is a certified employee assistance professional (C.E.A.P.) and specializes in helping organizations establish drug-free workplaces. James is also a member of the economics committee of the Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce. He currently resides in North Brandford, Conn., with his wife and two children.

Formerly director of foundation relations at William and Mary, Anne Moore Pratt, has been named acting director of advancement programs in University Advancement at the College. Her primary responsibilities will be to supervise the functions of special events, donor stewardship and advancement writer, to coordinate special initiatives for a number of constituencies including the Endowment Association, the Student Advancement Association and Friends of the College and oversee the Commission on Tercentenary Observances. Anne recently completed an assignment for Gordon S. Davies, director of the State Council of Higher Education, as staff director for the Commission on the University in the 21st Century.

In 1989, he left active duty and has been living in Jacksonville, Fla., working as an immunohematologist for F.G.B.A., a regional blood center serving northwest Florida and southeast Georgia.

Fred would like to know the whereabouts of Martin Bailey and Barry Porter. Fred also sent another trivia question for us...

Who was Miss William and Mary 1969 and who was the celebrity judge who chose her? Has there been a Miss W&M contest since 1969, or could Miss W&M 1969 still be reigning, 21 years later?

Via the Alumni Office I received a copy of an April 5 article from the Fredericksburg Free Lance Star, a drama review by David Winn of a local play. David has taught English and Latin at Spotsylvania High School since 1970 and has been an instructor in Latin at Mary Washington College and William and Mary.

Debbie Smith Rutter is a minister in Matthews, Va. She was married to George Rutter last September.

Ted Wood is in Pittsburgh with Ketchum and Co.

Mary Wakefield Buxton, a freelance writer and columnist for the Southside Sen- tinel, has had her first book published. Rappahannock River Journeys is a collection of stories about life along the river, raising children and dogs, facing good times and bad, and her struggles as a developing writer. The 80-page softback was published by Rappahannock Press of Urbanna, where she and her attorney husband, Joseph T. Buxton III, live. Mary graduated from William and Mary, earned an M.Ed. from George Washington University and did additional graduate work at Worcester College, Oxford, England. This past spring, her latest work, a humorous collection of her 30 years of adventures as a mid-westerner living in Virginia, was due to be published.

Alvin Anderson and Barbara Pate Glacel are on the ballot for the Alumni Board of Directors, so be sure to send in those ballots!

Just a few more odd hints to conjure memories... The Moratorium, the Dorm-In... WCWM's 10th anniversary our senior year... How 'bout Dean Fowler's Henry VIII lectures... the Yule Log Ceremony... "Pappy" Fehr's choirs... Dr. Guy... Spring Finals... "Of Thee I Sing" and "The Lady's Not for Burning" at Phi Beta Hal... "Dean Power" (Birdena, J. Wilfred and Carson)... the Student Handbook... Mermettes... Orchestis... Mortar Board mums at Homecoming... State Swimming Championship... Southern Conference Wrestling Champs... Lacrosse... The Flat Hat... The Colonial Echo!

Looking forward to seeing you all at Homecoming!!

Be sure to send in your news for my big Homecoming follow-up column!

I hope everyone enjoyed the summer. Every year seems to go by more quickly than the last.

There is news from several classmates. Bob Rycroft is busy at Mary Washington College. Last year he was promoted to professor of economics and he has published a book, The Essentials of Macroeconomics I & II.

Larry Gilbert writes from Reno, where he is on the faculty of the University of Nevada, working as associate director of instructional media services. He would love to hear from old friends who can reach him at his university address (Mail Stop 292, Reno, NV 89557).

Mike Scearce's wife writes that Mike has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Air Force. He is busy with flights and squadron duty for the 407th Air Refueling Squadron at Loring A.F.B., Maine. They have two daughters, Marissa, 10, and Megan, 6.

At our house, we're adjusting to our third little one. We had a daughter in March and are enjoying her. Even her two older brothers enjoy her, so we are really fortunate.

That's all the news for now. Keep me in mind when you send your Christmas cards.

Patrick Sullivan sent a long letter to bring us up to date on his life since graduation. After W&M, he earned a master's in engineering at GWU and worked in submarine sonar until 1980. Pat says the systems he worked with were the same that are mentioned in Hunt for Red October, a book he no doubt found fascinating. In 1980 he went to work for the Defense Communications Agency. He married another W&M grad, Mary Kay Zavilla '75, in 1983 and their daughter, Julia, was born in 1985. Pat recently completed a six-month course at the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk

Christopher MacGowan, assistant professor of English and director of the Department of English graduate studies program, has been awarded a $40,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities in support of a new, edited edition of William Carlos Williams' long poem Paterson. A pediatrician in Rutherford, N.J., Williams originally published Paterson in five books and was working on a sixth at the time of his death in 1963. MacGowan describes the work as one of the most important long poems of the 20th century. MacGowan, who joined the College faculty in 1984, attended Penn State University and Princeton.

— a big thrill for him, he says, because civilians are seldom selected to attend.

Now they live in Herndon, Va., where he is the R&D coordinator for the Defense Message System, which (and I quote) is an international-standard-based replacement for the Pentagon's current command-and-control message system, AUTODIN. (Of course . . . we all knew that . . .) Pat is also the U.S. representative to the NATO working group for electronic messaging standards, so he and Mary Kay get some nice trips to Brussels and London. He writes that one of his recent papers won the prestigious MacArthur Award, presented by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's widow, Jean, in a ceremony in Norfolk last June. Pat is justifiably proud of the award, especially since it is unusual for it to go to a civilian.

Congratulations to Tom '75 and Kathy Todd Wilke on the birth of their second daughter, Caroline Elizabeth, born in June. Kathy is taking the summer off from her work as the development officer for the National Center for State Courts in Williamsburg, but plans to return to fund raising by fall.

Tom Langhorne wrote that he was pleased that his appeal for information on several old friends had prompted some of them to write. He is still wondering what has become of Sue Billingsley, Laura Bechtel and Dave Hess. Well, I know at least one of those: Laura Bechtel Meltzer lives in Scituate, Mass., where she is a full-time homemaker. Laura received a master's degree in psychology from Rice University in 1977 and married Frederick Meltzer in 1978.

On a more somber note, Tom said that his wife Debbie died in the ICU of a local hospital on Jan. 31, 1990. They had been together for 15 years.

Jon Elsasser wrote from Sao Paulo, to say he and his family will be returning to the U.S. in August. Jon and Cindy moved to Brazil nearly five years ago when Jon was named president and general manager of Timken's Brazilian subsidiary, Timken do Brasil. A challenging job, to be sure, with the economy there in such disarray. Back in Ohio, Jon will be the director of Timken's 21st Century Business Project. While the Elsassers were in Sao Paulo, their family grew by two: a daughter, Erica, was born in 1988, and a son, Kurt, arrived earlier this year. By the time this column is published, all four Elsassers will be in Canton, Ohio, where they will welcome phone calls, letters and visitors.

Summer is a memory by now. Where did it go? What did you do? Let us know, won't you?

Heard from a long lost roommate of mine, Charlie Brown. Good to hear from you, Charlie. Charlie has covered a lot of ground since 1976. He went to medical school at MCV, moved to Youngstown, Ohio, for his internship, then on to Camp Lejeune, N.C., for three years as a general medical officer in the Navy. Next stop was San Diego for two years as a resident in emergency medicine and two more as a staff employee in the emergency department. Now he and wife Helen are living in Greenville, N.C., where Charlie is an Associate Professor of emergency medicine at East Carolina University School of Medicine. I'm impressed, Charlie.

Their son Kevin, adopted at age three months in San Diego, is now 2-1/2 and very active. Charlie would like to hear from anyone who used to live on the first floor of Old Dominion, especially Tom Phillips (I wonder about him too). The trick is, you'll have to write to me to get his address.

Rebekah J. Woodruff (now Edwards) married William J. Edwards Jr. '84 in February 1989 in Richmond. Bill is an F-16 fighter pilot in the Air Force and is now stationed (until February 1991) at McDill A.F.B. in Tampa. Prior to moving, Rebekah was an assistant vice president in retail banking at Sovran Bank in Richmond.

That's all for now, folks. Best wishes for the new school year.

We have some new contributors this month, some of whom we have not heard from in a few years! Keep those letters coming.

After medical school at Vanderbilt and a residency in pediatrics at U.Va., Bob Schoumacker did a fellowship in pediatric lung disease at the University of Alabama, Birmingham. His wife, Becky, completed her master's degree in biomedical engineering. Along the way, they had a son, Michael, and a daughter, Rachel Anne.

Following the fellowship, Bob accepted a faculty position as assistant professor of pediatrics at UAB. He spends a substantial portion of his time researching the cellular mechanisms of disease in cystic fibrosis. He is also devoting considerable time establishing a program to return ventilator-dependent children to their homes. They keep in touch with Ralph White — Ralph is a lawyer in the Washington, D.C., area — they have even visited their respective towns. Bob suspects Ralph did not find the Alabama cultural and night life to be as exciting as the Washington scene! Bob also asked that I mention that Ralph is the "nicest lawyer on the East Coast."

Doug Lambert and his wife, Jennifer, continue to serve as missionaries in Argentina. Their first child arrived in May — a son, William Carlos.

John Cooper has recently taken the position of director of marketing at Selfix Inc. (manufacturer of plastic housewares) in Chicago. He was formerly senior marketing manager with Genie (garage door openers). He and his wife, Lisa, live in Naperville, Ill., with their daughter, Sarah.

Stephen Christenson has recently been accepted into the graduate program of the Institute of Children's Literature in Redding Ridge, Conn. He will participate in a concentrated study on creating and selling short stories and articles. He expresses his thanks to Elizabeth Bailey for her inspiration and patience during our college days and admits "Elizabeth Bailey was my first love and wherever she is now, I wish her well and I only hope that I can continue as a writer." Stephen is a published author of numerous children's plays. One of his latest works was presented in January in Peshtigo, Wis.

Sue Hopkins Lindsay and her family weathered Hurricane Hugo relatively well considering the incredible devastation to the Carolinas. (They live in Rock Hill, S.C.) They even ran a "bed and breakfast" for friends and co-workers for nearly three weeks. She and her husband contributed tremendous amounts of their time and energy to neighbors and the community at large. I have always marveled at Sue's capacity and enthusiasm for community work — I take my hat off to you both for your contributions during such a difficult time!

And last, but not least, Janet Jones sends news from Bucknell University where she is assistant professor of classics. She finds many similarities between Bucknell and William and Mary, which has made her feel right at home. Prior to this assignment, she received her Ph.D. in classical archaeology from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. She spends her summers excavating in Turkey and doing research on ancient glass. Her immediate "family" consists of two imported salukis — hunting dogs — from Turkey.

Original sketches, drawings and paintings, along with layout designs, proofs and authors' notes from 10 picture books created by some of today's finest artists are featured in an exhibit "Literacy through Art: A Celebration of the Fine Art of Children's Book Illustration" through Oct. 14 at the Muscarelle Museum of Art. The exhibit celebrates the art of the book, a unique discipline that requires accurate interpretation of the text, a strong sense of design and the constant awareness that the art itself must be created for reproductions. The display coincides with the 22nd Congress of the International Board on Books for Young People, which is being held in Williamsburg.

If you have not already done so, make plans now to attend our 10th reunion at William and Mary the weekend of Nov. 1-4! A block of rooms for our class has been reserved at the Holiday Inn Downtown. Last year, the hotel was overbooked, so make your reservations soon!

Friday evening we will have a Hospitality Suite with soft drinks, beer and snacks beginning at 6 o'clock. Pre-registration cost is $3; $5 at the door. On Saturday and Sunday from 7 to 11 a.m. the hotel will provide a breakfast buffet. Pre-registration cost is $6.50; $8.50 at the door.

Our class party will begin Saturday at 7 p.m. with a cash bar in the "Holidome," a party room featuring a dance floor, an indoor pool, waterfall and restaurant. Heavy hors d'oeuvres will be served from 8 until 10 p.m. A DJ will begin at 9 p.m. Pre-registration cost is $18; $20 at the door.

You can register for class events using the form in the Homecoming insert in this issue of the Gazette. Please make your hotel reservations directly with the hotel.

Now for news from classmates: William C. Perrine has been named Virginia state counsel for Lawyers Title Insurance Corp. in Richmond. He joined the firm in 1983 as a title attorney in the Richmond branch. He was promoted to senior title attorney in January 1986 and was named branch counsel later that year.

In Williamsburg, John Hopke has opened a new architecture office on Richmond Road. John not only attended W&M but also has been a Williamsburg resident for 28 years! He received his master of architecture degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and was with a Newport News firm before forming his own. "It is really a dream coming true," said John in a recent notice in the Williamsburg newspaper.

Celia Cohan Fenolietto wrote a nice newsy letter from Forest, Va., where she and her husband welcomed a second daughter, Christine Kathleen, in June 1989. At the end of the year — Dec. 30, as a matter of fact — they move into their newly built Tudor home. Celia has been busy hunting for English period reproduction and antique furnishings and she's also studying English garden designs. Her husband, Rick, is with Babcock & Wilcox where he has been named manager of the engineering unit that makes their research nuclear reactors.

Be sure to mail your Homecoming registration soon!

Greetings to each of you. I'm very pleased to be submitting my first column as your new class reporter. I'm sure you all join me in sending our sincere thanks to Rebecca Lewis Saunders for the super job she has done over the past several years. Thank you, Rebecca!

Joe Violette sent a terrific letter full of news about himself and several of his former roommates. Having spent the past few years summering at the beach and wintering in Colorado, Joe has decided to buckle down and will be attending Georgetown University Law School in the fall.

Former roomie Rick Clark has had a banner year. He was named chief resident at the hospital where he is completing his proctology residency, and has become engaged to the chairman's receptionist.

Another of Joe's roommates, Vince Perri, is practicing medicine in California. But Vince's true calling, it seems, is the silver screen. While other doctors are spending their free time on the golf course, Vince is banging on Hollywood's doors. And it has paid off! Some of you may have seen Vince appearing as an extra in a recent episode of Wiseguy.

Bill Campbell '83 is working on his M.A. in psychology at Old Dominion University. Bill has also kept up his interest in boxing, and spends much of his spare time working out at the gym and occasionally sparring with light-heavyweight contender Chuck Solo.

Finally, Joe writes that John Greene is performing missionary work outside Bangkok with former physics graduate student Sifel Huq.

Thanks, Joe, for that newsworthy letter.

Another classmate working overseas, Christine Bruni, is presently a civilian doctor in the emergency ward of the 130th station hospital (U.S.A.) in Heidelberg, West Germany.

I also heard from Tom Brooke, who wants his classmates to know that after three years of hanging out in the 'Burg avoiding responsibility he has graduated from Marshall-Wythe School of Law and returned to the rat race. Tom is now an associate with Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, a Washington, D.C., firm specializing in patent, trademark and copyright law.

Another attorney, M. Andrew Gayheart, has been elected a director of the Culpeper law firm of Davies & Barrel. Andrew, his wife and their two children are living in Culpeper, where he is also active in community civic affairs.

Meanwhile, Roy Dunn has joined the Danville office of Wheat, First Securities as a financial consultant. Roy is making his home in Danville where he is a member of the planning committee and Chamber of Commerce. He also participates in the Kiwanis Club, United Way and Boy Scouts of America. Even with all these activities, Roy has found time to establish the Piedmont Chapter of the William and Mary Society of the Alumni, of which he is president.

Turning to the world of academics, Gregory Scott Ferguson has been appointed assistant professor in the department of chemistry at Lehigh University. He and his wife, Laura, are living in Allentown, Pa.

H. Winston Faircloth has returned to familiar territory as the new executive vice president of the United Way of the Virginia Peninsula. Winston's involvement with the United Way dates back to his days at W&M, where he was one of 10 students from across the country chosen to participate in the United Way of America's management internship program. He and his wife have one child.

Hi everybody! Here I am, deep in wallpaper glue and paint! I am learning to do many things I never thought I'd do! My fiance, David, and I bought a home and closed on it last week. That gives us four months to paint, etc., before we move in after the wedding in October! This is certainly the way to go. We've really been having fun with it. The house is a white brick two-story, built in 1940, on a pretty street close to downtown Charlotte. The wedding is becoming a reality, too. I ordered the invitations, enrolled in a calligraphy course and some friends hosted our first shower last week!

Work at First Union is keeping me busy. I've also become more active in the community, with Habitat for Humanity, the Junior League, and chairing a black-tie symphony fund raiser in September. Next week David and I are off to Malibu for a five-day conference. On the way, we are stopping off in Dallas to visit with Kim and Greg Hundley. I'll be ready for some good tex-mex and a Lone Star beer!

Bill and Meg Scott, who are also living in Dallas, had an exciting arrival on March 18, 1990 — their first child, William Cooper

NAME CORRECTION

The name of John McClintock '83, who was featured in an article in the June issue of the Alumni Gazette, was misspelled as McLintock, rather than McClintock, which is the correct spelling. The Gazette apologizes to Dr. McClintock and to his parents, who pointed out the error.

COLLEGE PICNIC

President Paul Verkuil '61 showed some fancy footwork at the annual summer picnic for employees at William and Mary, which was held in the Wren Yard with the president and Mrs. Fran Verkuil '66 serving as hosts. The president looked like he was having lots of fun doing the electric slide with dancers from across campus who joined in the activity, despite the warm weather. An unexpectedly large number of picnickers sent caterers scrambling early for more food, which included fried chicken, barbecue, watermelon and lots of lemonade.

REYNOLDS COMMITS $180,000

The Reynolds Metals Company Foundation of Richmond has committed $180,000 to William and Mary to enhance the Richard S. Reynolds Jr. Professorship in Business Administration. The foundation established the professorship in 1977 as part of the College's first capital campaign, which raised over $20 million. The latest commitment is part of the Campaign for the Fourth Century, which has a goal of $150 million including $35 million for faculty support.

Scott Jr., or "Will" for short! Congratulations, Bill and Meg!

News from Rutgers University in New Jersey: Dennis Shea was awarded his Ph.D. in economics and he and his wife Allison are off to State College, Pa., where Dennis will be teaching at Penn State and they will be buying their first home! Allison and Dennis, be sure to look up Gordon and Mary Trigg MacArthur, who are in State College, too. Gordon is enrolled in the M.B.A. program at Penn State and Mary is teaching English at the Grier School for Girls.

Back to Dennis and Allison — they had an exciting year in 1989, which included a trip to Hong Kong and Beijing that Allison had won as a top seller for Executive Life Insurance. They were in Tiannanmen Square on May 13, the night the hunger strike started! Dennis also traveled to Luxembourg for two weeks in conjunction with his job. In his spare time, Dennis has been coaching the Rutgers econ department softball team!

Allison also writes that they attended the wedding of Jim Daigle in the spring. The wedding was in Princeton, N.J., held at Mountain Lakes, an elegant old home owned by the Sierra Club! The ceremony took place on a fieldstone terrace covered by an awning and overlooking a pond. Other W&M alumni in attendance were Jim's brother, David, and their father, James III. Jim and his wife, Pamela McLeod Daigle, are living in NYC where Pam is an editor for the arts and entertainment section of the Wall Street Journal.

Allison adds a final note that Vicki Edwards Shea, a classmate who met Dennis's brother at Dennis and Allison's wedding, and her husband just had their second child, Kevin Mathias Shea Jr. Now Allison is an aunt for the second time!

Another birth to report is that of Elizabeth Ellen Bergen, on April 24, 1990, to Peter '86 and Jamie DeMaio Van Bergen '85. Jamie and Peter spent two years in Manhattan, where Jamie sold advertising. Now they are in the midst of moving back to Williamsburg.

Rick Weening has returned to Williamsburg and is employed—where else?—at the College of W&M as a research assistant. Cathy and Tim Cross are living just down the road in Yorktown, where Tim is employed as an urban planner for York County.

Joanne Barakos Brokaw and her husband welcomed a little bundle of joy on March 23. Her name is Helen Elizabeth and she has dark hair and deep blue eyes. Joanne writes that she is truly enjoying being a mommy and plans to do it full time, which will be a big change in lifestyle for her. Last summer, Joanne received a fellowship at the Klingenstein Institute at Columbia University. The program is designed for teachers at independent schools. She had a great time and returned to Palmer School to teach AP calculus, economics and algebra for the first semester. Next year, Joanne plans to enjoy life in Coral Gables and teach very part-time — one class of AP calculus. Joanne reports other news of Julie Jackson and Mike King, who were married in June.

Irene and Steve Simoneaux are also living in Coral Gables, where Steve is a resident physician at Jackson Memorial Hospital and Irene is in management with Holiday Inn.

The new couple Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Buhler, have made Jacksonville their home. Phil married Gloria Patricia von Hodapp on Dec. 29, 1989, and they honeymooned in Argentina. They now split their time between Phil's law practice in Florida — Taylor, Moseley & Joyner, and Gloria's law practice in Germany and South America. Phil received his J.D. degree from the University of Miami and went on to earn an LL.M. in admiralty from Tulane University. He worked for a firm in New Orleans before moving to Jacksonville, where he practices maritime and international law.

Phil's other big accomplishment is that his first book was just published by Columbia University Press in New York. It is titled The Oder-Neisse Line: A Reappraisal Under International Law and deals with the legal aspects of the German-Polish boundary dispute, which has fortuitously been in the news a lot recently. Phil certainly has much to be proud of — so much excitement in one year — congratulations on both accounts!

Amy Marcos is doing very well down in southern Florida as well. She and Jay Barnes are busy with plans for their December wedding. In the meantime, Amy has gotten a new cat and has joined the American Association of University Women, where she will be working on the public policy committee.

Tampa is the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Edwards. Rebekah Woodruff '76 was married to William Edwards on Feb. 4, 1989, in Richmond. Bill is a fighter pilot in the U.S. Air Force and is stationed at McDill Air Force Base in Tampa until February 1991. He is flying F-16's. Rebekah left her job as assistant vice president in retail banking at Sovran and is on her way to a new career in Florida. She and Bill would like to catch up with their W&M friends, so if you are in the area, be sure to give them a call.

Annemarie DiNardo '85 and Pat Cleary '88 joined hands in marriage on Nov. 25, 1989. They now reside in Norfolk, where Pat is flying F-14's for the U.S. Navy and Annemarie is practicing law. W&M is well represented by military pilots.

Norfolk is a popular place these days. Navy Lt. j. g. Michael J. Ard recently returned to Norfolk from deployment to the Mediterranean while serving aboard the guided missile destroyer USS Barney, homeported in Norfolk. During the six-month deployment, Mike took part in numerous exercises and training operations, and provided a naval presence in support of NATO allies. As part of the Navy's "Project Handclasp" Goodwill Mission Program, Mike also helped in many communities with hospital repairs, day care centers, halfway houses and orphanages in Italy, France, Spain and Israel.

Norfolk is home to Sandie Baker Thompson, who is teaching at the Norfolk Collegiate School. Her husband, Stephen, is a U.S. Navy pilot. Tracy Kerr is teaching as well, but over in the Virginia Beach School district. Tracy also keeps busy with cycling and the Virginia Beach Center for the Arts.

Caitlin Porter has spent a good bit of time in Norfolk, too. While wandering around the Norfolk Air Station, she ran across an article written by Mark Edgren's dad! Right now, Mark is stationed in the Heidelberg area and Caitlin enjoyed her brief stay in Germany in June. She spent July working on a Habitat for Humanity project in Columbus, Ohio. She is also involved with American Youth Hostels and has recently received approval for West Virginia's first youth hostel. She is busy raising money for the rehabilitation of an 18th-century limestone tobacco warehouse on the Potomac's riverbank in Shepherdstown, which will serve as the site.

Caitlin also writes that she attended Laura Tanner's wedding in May, where she ran into Caleen Norrod at the reception. Well, we have all heard of crashing pledge dances, but honeymoons? Laura didn't know where her new husband, Paul, was taking her for the honeymoon and boy was Caitlin surprised when they showed up in Shepherdstown! So, they all rendezvoused for dessert at the Bavarian Inn one night. Caitlin adds that another buddy is tying the knot in September — Benton Bailey '85. In August, Caitlin heads to Morgantown to begin law school. Caitlin should receive the class of '84 award for most frequent alumni news updates.

In Lynchburg, Danny Diehl has been promoted to assignment editor for WSET-

TV Channel 13. Danny has been with the station since September 1985 as weekend anchor.

Frederick and Kathryn Larson Hecker are living in Dunnsville, Va., where Kathryn is the marketing curator at the Mary Ball Washington Museum on the James and Frederick is the president of Tidewater Restoration Inc. They are busy restoring an early 18th-century house in Essex County, Va.

John and Jane Chase Neal are living in Culpeper, Va., where Jane is an attorney with Robert Miller, P.C. and John is lobbyist for AIH Systems Group Inc.

After graduating from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1987, Erin Sheehy has settled in Richmond, where she is an attorney with Christian, Barton, Epps, Brent & Chappell. Erin has been active with the Richmond W&M Alumni chapter and has also participated in several triathlons.

Susan French Bartlett is a loan review manager with Central Fidelity Bank in Richmond. Her husband, Jeffrey, is an audit manager for Ernst & Whinney. Susan is active with the United Way and she also serves as rush advisor for the Tri Delt Chapter at the University of Richmond.

Sara Maynard is in Richmond, too, and is independently employed as a scriptwriter.

John and Julie Goldstein Mallory are busy with their new basset hound. They live in Richmond, where John is a programmer analyst with Life of Virginia and Julie is a manager in special products administration for the same firm.

Chris and Demetra Yeapanis Kontos may not be able to rendezvous at the noon hour, because Chris is interning at the Medical College of Virginia and Demetra is an assistant administrator for the Virginia Real Estate Board.

John Carbone is doing his residency at the University of Virginia Medical Center.

Alison Hawley is spending the summer in Winston-Salem working for Hanes. During her spring break from UNC Business School, she and Keith Tomlinson '81 traveled to Florida. They brought some news from the beach when David and I met them at Alison and Greg Miller's in Gainesville: they're engaged! Al and Keith are planning a June 1991 wedding in D.C. Dr. Greg Miller and his lovely wife, Alison, are enjoying life in Gainesville. Ali has quit her job and is returning to school for a graduate degree from the University of Florida. Before starting school, she and Greg are off to London for a couple of weeks.

Jeanie Snow is living in Winston-Salem and is employed as an assistant product manager for the Hanes printables division of Sara Lee Corp.

After graduating from the Medical College of Virginia in 1988, Steven Adkins moved to Greenville, S.C., where he is a resident in the Greenville Hospital System. He and his wife, Connie, have one child, Caitlyn Elizabeth.

On a recent trip to Jekyll Island, Ga., I ran into Patty Henning who is the director of sales at the Jekyll Island Club Hotel — a beautiful spot. During the course of our conversation, we discovered that Patty is the daughter of a famous W&M grad — Dan Henning '64, coach of the San Diego Chargers.

John and Cynthia Dantzschler Loffert are living in Marietta, Ga., where Cindy is a physical therapist and John is an officer in the U.S. Army. They have one child, David Milton Loffert.

Ashley Hines has settled in Columbia, S.C., and is employed as an attorney at Nexsen, Pruet, Jacobs & Pollard. She has become active in the Young Republicans Club, too.

Ashley Klaws '89 has moved to Charlotte and is employed as a credit analyst for NCNB.

I heard from an old friend from my freshman hall in Jefferson the other day — Penny Oglesby. She is living in Charlotte, too, and the great news is that she is busy planning her wedding! After receiving her master's degree from Chapel Hill and spending time in the Peace Corps, Penny now teaches high school English.

I played host to a visitor from the north a couple of weeks ago during his layover at the Charlotte airport. Dan Head '85 came through on his way to the wedding of Bart Edmond '85. I gave Dan the whirlwind tour of the Queen City. He and J. J. are spending the summer in Indianapolis, where Dan is working for Eli Lilly & Company. They will return to Charlottesville for his second year of business school in the fall. J. J. has had a great year of teaching as well.

I bet y'all are wondering how Kevin McGahren '83 is doing. Well, by the likes of his recent postcard from the Windy City, he is just great! He graduated from business school and is now working in marketing for Kraft.

Lori Virga Cinque earned her master's in secondary education in August 1989 from Dowling College. She and her husband, Joseph, live in Centereach, N.Y. where Lori has been running a part-time calligraphy service out of her home and Joseph is a software engineer for Grumman Aerospace Corp.

Pam Scott is living in Mahwah, N.J. and working as an interior designer for Rosen Perry Preston.

David and Catherine Wood Friedman are living in Moorestown, N.J., where they are both self-employed in employee benefits counseling. In their spare time, they keep busy with gardening and home improvements.

Alix Francis lives in Westfield, N.J., and is employed as a grants administrator for the Fan Fox & Leslie R. Samuels Foundation Inc. She has also been taking wood-working courses at a local adult school.

Donald Lucidi is at home in Philadelphia. After graduating from the University of Pennsylvania law school in 1987, he was admitted to the Pennsylvania Bar and was employed as an associate at Buchanan Ingersoll Professional Corp. in Pittsburgh before joining Humphreys and Nubani P.C. in May 1989.

Judy Kavjian is on her way to becoming a lawyer — she is in Philadelphia at the University of Pennsylvania law school. Judy plans to graduate in 1990 and then spend one year clerking for Judge Joseph Lord in Philly.

Barbara and Samuel Mohr '84 J.D. are living in Cleveland, where Samuel is an attorney with Jones, Day, Reaule & Pogue. They have one child, Anna Lantz, who was born Feb. 1, 1989.

Ray and Suzanne Bisczat live in Cincinnati, where Ray is a group manager for Procter and Gamble and Suzanne works for Santen, Shaffer & Hughes as a paralegal.

Joslyn Quinn is in nearby Frankfort, Ky., where she is a senior archivist for the Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives. Joslyn has published several articles and is busy in the community with the Girl Scouts. She is also a member of the Castlewood Morris Dancers, based in Lexington, Ky. The troupe performs traditional English ritual folk dances throughout the central Kentucky area.

Continuing west across the continent, Michael '84 M.B.A. and Anne Axton Burnett are enjoying life in St. Louis, where Michael is an account executive for Control Data Business Management Services and Anne is an assistant vice president and commercial loan officer for Boatman Centre.

Russell "Buzz" Wincheski '90, a key member of the Tribe wrestling team for three seasons, has been selected as a recipient of one of 17 postgraduate scholarships awarded by the NCAA in the "Men's Other Sports At-Large" category. In addition to his NCAA award, Wincheski was a first team College Sports Information Directors of America At-Large Academic All-American. He was the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association and Virginia champion at 150 lbs. while posting a 94-26-5 career record and a grade point average of 3.88. Wincheski majored in physics.

last year in addition to his position at First Interstate Bank. Lynn is a marketing manager at Arthur Young.

Carol Morini '84 M.B.A. is living in nearby San Jose, where she is a finance and administration manager for Metrotech Corp.

Our class certainly seems to be making headway all around the globe, and David and Susan Peterson Fetter are evidence of that. David continues to do well as a foreign service officer and they have spent 2 1/2 years in Africa — 1 1/2 years in Chad and a year in Somalia.

Glenn and Joanne Maier Krumel have lived three years in Yokohama. Glenn is a pilot for the U.S. Navy and Joanne is self-employed as a computer programming consultant.

As a theatre technical director for the U.S. Army, Susan Anson has had the opportunity to travel throughout Europe. She has enjoyed Volksmarching every weekend and spending time with German friends. Susan serves as technical director of the Five Pfennig Playhouse (an American theatre serving 30,000 Americans and Germans), where she designs stage sets and lighting, and supervises volunteers in all aspects of the theatre.

Denise Noffsinger has made Alexandria, Va., her home after spending a year in Switzerland and nine months in Austria teaching. She became engaged in Vienna to Robert Humphrey, a graduate of MIT. I hear that their wedding took place last September. Robert is a former naval officer and is now a senior engineer with John J. McMullen Associates. Denise is involved with sponsoring/helping refugees from Eastern Europe and is employed as a teacher in English as a second language in Fairfax county.

Alexandria is also home for Matthew and Liz Offield Holmes. Matthew is a computer programmer with Phoenix Systems and Liz is the director of residence life at Hood College.

Steve Walker is a program analyst for the Department of Justice and is living in Springfield.

Mario Shaffer lives in Washington and is employed as a sales representative for R. R. Donnelley & Sons Inc.

After completing his doctoral work at Princeton, Eric Bowman has moved to Falls Church, where he is working as a research physiologist for the National Institute of Health.

Philip Gouda is living in Lorton, where he is an explosive ordnance disposal technician and naval officer for the U.S. Navy.

Bertrand and Elizabeth Hendricks Lefebvre are settled in Washington. Beth has returned to the life of a student at the Washington College of Law at American University and Bertrand is an investment executive at Paine Webber in Arlington.

Mike Dullaghan is working as a senior systems analyst at Ino-Tech in Sterling. Mike lives in Herndon.

Nancy Williams is living in Kensington, Md., and is a teacher/athletic trainer at the National Cathedral/St. Albans School in D.C.

Melanie Moreau is pursuing her master's degree in education at the University of Maryland. Before returning to the life of a student, Melanie worked for an international education association in Washington for 3 1/2 years.

Patty Canonico is working for the Richard E. Hoover Services in Baltimore, where she is the orientation and mobility specialist for the Blind and Visually Impaired. She lives in nearby Lutherville.

George and Lynn Crusier are in Gaithersburg, not far away. After receiving his M.B.A. from Wharton in 1989, George has been employed by Hewlett-Packard as a financial analyst and Lynn is an assistant vice president with Sovran Bank.

The D.C./Baltimore area is definitely a popular spot for our classmates. Lisa Krizan '85 and Scott Anderegg are doing well in Arlington. Lisa received her J.D.

BALTAS NAMED VICE PRESIDENT

Deno Baltas '59 has been promoted to vice president of the hospital division for Kentucky Medical Insurance Co. in Louisville, Ky. Baltas joined Kentucky Medical as director of its hospital in 1988. He has nearly 25 years experience in the medical professional liability insurance field including serving as trust administrator for the Kentucky Hospital Service Corporation, a subsidiary of the Kentucky Hospital Association. Kentucky Medical Insurance Co. provides medical professional liability insurance to about half the state's physicians and to many Kentucky hospitals and other health-care facilities.

wonderful time was had by all. (And once again, I did not even try to catch the bouquet — sorry, Mom!)

The bridal party included bridesmaids Edibell Pizzani Roland '88, Julie Anderson '87, and Chris Kelton Polk, as well as groomsmen and ushers Cary Polk (who has just begun a new job with Price Waterhouse), Dave Maxwell (who having survived his first year of law school, is back at Duke for round two), Chad Gunnoe (who spent the summer in Germany and is now pursuing a Ph.D. at U.Va.), and Mike Johnson (who, by this time, has moved to New Hampshire with wife Lisa where he will begin M.B.A. studies at Dartmouth). I provided the vocal music. (Ask me about learning Hebrew for one of the songs.)

The W&M extensive guest list included Susan Zanetti, Lynn Hale Riggs and her husband, Billy, Dana Baldwin '87 (working at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts), Kay Fanestil '87, Corey Richardson '87, Rick Baldwin '87, Scott Gilbert '90, Nell Durrett '88, and a host of others. The bride and groom honeymooned in the Caribbean and are now enjoying married life back in Chesapeake, Va., where Ed works as an attorney. Elizabeth will continue to work toward her master's in education at U.Va. Best wishes to both of you!

Chagrin Falls, Ohio, was the setting for the nuptials of Dr. Mary Kosko and Dr. Dave Oates. It was quite a weekend for both the bride and the groom, as they graduated from med school at Ohio State on Thursday, were married on Saturday and moved to California on Sunday! Not only did Mary graduate cum laude, but she also received the dean's award for leadership, academic excellence and service to the school. Dave received his degree summa cum laude. Quite impressive, both of you! Though I was unable to get to the wedding (these 7-day work weeks are killing me), I hear everything was simply lovely.

The bridal party included Julie Wallace Dunn (who is now in her first year of M.B.A. school at UNC-Chapel Hill, while husband, Tom '87, is in his second year at the law school there), Caneel Sullivan and Jen Cox '85 (living in Louisville where she is pursuing a graduate degree). Mary and Dave are now settled in Redondo Beach, Calif., where they'll both be working on their respective medical internships. Congratulations and best of luck to a wonderful couple!

Jane Butler and Mike Shuler '83 tied the knot this past June in a beautiful ceremony in Chevy Chase, Md. The wedding party included bridesmaids Liese Cochran '87 and Susan Zanetti and groomsmen Steve Cooley '83.

Guests came from all over the country. Matt Ramsey came up from Florida, where he continues to work for MCI. Bob Bass and Debbie Zanfagna arrived from Atlanta where they have been busy trying to coordinate details for their own October wedding. Julie Miller Engelman flew in from Houston, where she and husband Russell have just bought a house; Julie received her master's in tax from the University of Texas a few years ago and is putting her degree to good use in her job with a major accounting firm. Debbie Perry is living in Virginia Beach and is in the midst of a job change. Kathy Welch lives and works in the Big Apple, while Nancy Brooks '85 is starting her second year of a doctoral program in economics at the University of Pennsylvania. Jeannie Cherundolo was there with her fiancé; they're getting ready to wed in September. Ellen and Doug Brinkley have been busy painting their house in Baltimore. I'm told that Chris Roak and Amy Parr '88 plan to marry in December. Congrats! And Kathy Redmond '87 and Kent Schaum are already married, having tied the knot in Philadelphia this past July. Best wishes to all of you! Lynn Hale Riggs (she received the award for the most outstanding graduate of the School of Library and Information Science at Catholic University. Kudos to degree from Catholic University in May. Scott just became general counsel of the Finance Company, a medium-sized corporation with offices throughout the south-eastern U.S. Lisa is glad to return to a normal lifestyle and continues to do well in her work. She and Scott are busy looking for a house. Another Theta, Lawson Cox '83, has returned to the D.C. area. She has moved to Arlington, where she keeps busy with her free-lance writing.

New York will soon serve as home for Sue Hamerland DeSmith '82 and her husband, David. David has accepted an offer from Young and Rubicam advertising, so they have packed their things in Maine in preparation for the big move. Before leaving, Sue had an exhibition of her paintings and drawings, titled "Empowered Plants," at the University of New England in Biddeford, Me., in May and June.

Another New Yorker, Serge Kovaleski, was recently saluted at the New York State AFL-CIO 5th Annual Labor Recognition Dinner. Due to his outstanding work as labor reporter for The Daily News, he received one of four awards at the annual dinner with more than 800 attendees. Serge joined The Daily News in 1987, and the first story he covered was Black Monday. Since that auspicious start, he has covered many events related to the labor movement and labor/management relations, including the Eastern union's battle with Frank Lorenzo.

I received an unexpected honor recently, too. The Alumni Society called and asked if I would be interested in filling Ed Grimsely's spot left vacant on the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. Ed has been appointed to the Board of Visitors. I said yes, and had the opportunity to attend my first committee meeting in Williamsburg in June — very interesting. Elections come up again in the fall, so we'll see what happens.

Please drop me a note from your corner of the world.

Hello everyone! Hope all of you enjoyed the summer months and are getting set for fall.

The list of couples tying the proverbial knot continues to grow. Chantal Emerson and Adam Hogge were the first of many couples to wed since my last column. They were married in late April in Williamsburg, and are now settled in their newly purchased home in Midlothian, Va., where Chantal teaches school and Adam not only works but also is getting his M.B.A.

Donna Flinn took her vows of matrimony next. She and Calvin Dilks were married this past May in Virginia Beach. Calvin is a pilot with USAir, while Donna works for Pan Am Computer Systems as a documentation analyst. Best wishes to both of you! Guests at the wedding included Lynne Giermak Johnson and husband Kerke '85, David Bass (studying for a graduate degree at U.Va.), Susan Asplundh (who is now living in Phoenix, Ariz.), Elizabeth Reynolds (in dental school at MCV), John Morton '85 (living in New Orleans where he is in banking), Richard Hulme (in D.C. and working as a restaurant manager), Heidi Reihansperger and John Fielding (who will be husband and wife by the time you read this), Dave Maxwell, Brian and Anne Holmberg Lauritzen (who are now back in the U.S. and stationed in Colorado), and Nadine Casavecchia (working toward becoming a buyer for Macy's here in D.C.). Rounding out the guest list were Derek Koolman and Lisa Haverty '84 who, according to Donna, will also be tying the knot soon. Congrats to you as well!

Elizabeth Flamm and Ed Grissom took the plunge in early June at Evelynton Plantation outside Williamsburg. It was an absolutely beautiful wedding! The sun shone brightly, Elizabeth looked radiant and a you, Lynn!) and husband Billy will soon be the proud owners of a new home in Richmond. Demetra and Chris Kontos '85 (living happily in Richmond), Howie '84 and Bonnie Horowitz, Mike Lorch '84, Val Stiffler '84, Jeff Mosher '85 and Jeff McQuilken '85 were also among the well-wishers. A great time was had by all at the Chevy Chase Country Club. Jane and Mike honeymooned in Bermuda and are now settled in Reston, Va. Congratulations and best wishes to you!

Christine Ferguson and Tommy Myers are among the recently engaged. They plan to wed at Thanksgiving. Tommy has just finished up his stint with the Army and is now in the D.C. area working for Merrill Lynch. Christine is still working hard at AT&T. Best wishes to both of you!

Liese Cochran's '87 parents threw a lovely garden party in late June in celebration of Liese's engagement to Jeff Mosher '85. (They will be married in December.) It was a lovely party attended by many William and Mary alums, including Alex Cochran, who's now home from Germany and stationed at Arizona's Fort Wuchuca, Ellen and Doug Brinkley, Mike and Jane Powell '85 and their adorable baby, Jeffrey (class of 2012 or so?), Karen Griffith '87, Karen Hansen '87, Christie Checkel '88 (working for the Smithsonian), Megan Haislip '90, Mary Barrett Shearin, husband Chris, and their 3-month-old bundle of joy, Allison, to name but a few.

Gary Zanfagna '88 is currently traveling around the world before heading to law school in the fall. He has been to a number of fascinating places, including China and New Zealand, where he actually tried bungi jumping!

Ran into Linda Habgood '88 at National Airport (if your plane is delayed long enough, you will eventually run into someone you know) over Memorial Day Weekend. Linda is still traveling the globe with Chase Manhattan and enjoying herself. She tells me that Sue Bozarth '88 is about to embark upon her second year at American University's Law School and is doing very well there.

Kathy Curtis is on her way to Japan to teach English to Japanese students.

Margaret Collins dropped me a line from Richmond where she's finishing up her second year of medical school. She tells me that there are quite a few W&Mers in her classes at MCV, including Sterling Ransome, John Hendrickson, Mike Fabrizio '88 and Mike Braxton. Margaret started her third year rotations in July and reports that she is constantly busy.

Ken Rogich is keeping busy working for Marriott in Bethesda, Md., where he lives. I ran into him at the Rio Grande Cafe in Bethesda a while back and it sounds like he's doing well.

Jenny Thompson is back in the D.C. area working for DEXEC, a contracting consulting firm. Jenny is still in the Army Reserve and wants everyone to know that at least one weekend a month you can all sleep well knowing she is out guarding the country!

Jenny tells me that Jim Brubaker was promoted to account executive at the J. Walter Thompson ad agency in New York, and Ed Holt is now an assistant buyer at Macy's in that city. Chris Foreman Meilly and husband David are still in Colonial Heights, Va., where Chris is using her graduate degree to counsel adolescents and David runs the pharmacy they own. Polly Gladding Szablewicz is working in Richmond. Thanks for the news, Jenny.

Richard Toma '87 sent pictures of him and Alex Cochran patrolling the Czechoslovakia/West German border as part of their army duties. It must have been an interesting time to be stationed in such a locale this year, given all the changes that have occurred in Eastern Europe.

Diane Inderlied has been busy since graduation. After working for Sovran Bank, she decided it was time to move on, took a 3-month trip to Europe and is now back in

MARY BEAUDRY PROMOTED AT BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Archaeologist Mary Beaudry '73 of Newbury, Mass., has been awarded tenure and promoted to the rank of associate professor in the archaeology department of Boston University College of Liberal Arts. A specialist in North American historical archaeology, Beaudry has been teaching at the university since 1980. For the past two summers, she has conducted field schools at the Spencer-Pierce-Little Farm in Newbury as part of her archaeological survey of that property for the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities. In 1989 Beaudry served as president of the Society for Historical Archaeology, a national organization based in Washington, D.C. The editor since 1986 of Northeast Historical Archaeology, Beaudry is on the editorial board of the Journal of Field Archaeology. She also edited the book Documentary Archaeology in the New World, and is nearing completion of a co-edited book, Material Culture, World View and Culture Change. She holds master's and doctoral degrees from Brown University.

BARBARA RAMBO '74 PROMOTED BY BANK OF AMERICA

Bank of America has named senior vice president Barbara L. Rambo '74 to manage its New York-based Northeast/Southeast Institutional Group. For the past three months, she has been acting head of the group, with responsibility for the bank's corporate relationships in the region. Ms. Rambo joined Bank of America in 1974 as a credit trainee. She has spent her entire career with the bank in New York, where she has served in a full range of corporate office assignments. In addition to her undergraduate degree from William and Mary, she holds an M.B.A. from New York University.

Virginia Beach selling real estate. Diane reports that she loves her job and entered her first triathlon in May. Thanks for the long letter, Diane. It was great to hear from you.

Had dinner with Cathy Creekmore Decker while she was home for a quick visit this past June. She and Ted are happy and enjoying Australian life. They'll be down under for another year at least while Ted continues his banking work there.

Joy Dibble wrote that she is indeed alive and well (my where-are-you-now paragraphs has been somewhat successful). Joy tells me that Betsy Fulcher is studying voice at New York University while working as an au pair in the city.

Elizabeth Beal Murphy '84 and husband Kevin '81 are expecting a baby in October! Elizabeth looks great (take it from me — I see her every day at work) and is doing well. Elizabeth tells me that Rebecca Stack '85 was here in D.C. clerking at Covington and Burling for the summer. Rebecca is now back at U.Va. doing the law school routine.

Thanks to Susan Doyle for a letter full of news. Susan has been busy this summer doing research at U.Va. while working on her master's degree in special education. She tells me that Rhanna Kidwell will be joining her in Charlottesville this fall in order to begin her M.B.A. studies at Darden.

Susan reports that we can add Cathy Caputo and Glen Livingstone to the list of soon-to-be-marrieds. As for those who've already tied the knot, Pam Krulitz and Tracy Melton '85 recently celebrated their first anniversary. Amanda McCombs Thomas is completing her internship at Western Psychiatric in Pittsburgh. Gary Youngblood and wife Vicki recently welcomed baby Travis James into the world. Congrats! Jennifer Finn Duffy and husband Neil are still in Virginia Beach where Jen works at Wheat First Securities.

Nannie Penney begins her first year of law school this fall, while Jane Church will be entering her third year at U.Va. Kelly Doyle, having survived law school altogether, not to mention her first year as an associate, is still at Brown & Wood in New York. Cindy Budinger and husband Russ have relocated to Dallas. Cindy is still with Xerox and Russ is starting his own business. Good luck! Terry Rosenbaum Andrews and husband Corky '83 have left Manhattan for New Jersey. Patti James continues to work for the Federal Reserve Board in Richmond. Thanks for the letter, Susan!

Renee Ward Farnham wrote from Baltimore where she is working as a legal assistant. She was married last September (the wedding party included Kate McCarthy '87, Kelly Kutzer '87 and Renee's sister, Becky Ward Naves '85). Renee is now settled in a new home with husband Austin. Renee tells me that congrats are in order for Grace Boland Doyle and husband Kevin '85 who just had their second baby! John William was born in June and is surely a bundle of joy! Renee reports that Janet Lawson Klingenberg and husband Karl are enjoying married life here in Virginia (I ran into them over the summer and they look happy!). Marie Montalto is working in Norfolk. And John Siegel is working for a PR firm in New York.

As for my where-are-you-now paragraph, this issue I'm wondering about Glenn Brooks, Chris Hagin any and all members of the William and Mary Choir, and anyone who lived in a lodge during our senior year (Doug, you don't count, and Steve, I know what you're up to!). Please write.

I'm content to report that all is status quo with me! I'm still enjoying my job here at Akin, Gump and spent much of the summer working on the George Steinbrenner investigation. (Last year Pete Rose, this year George — will it never end?) Life is good here in Alexandria and I've been staying busy. Between work and weddings,

I have little free time!

Finally, it is with great sadness that I must report the untimely death of our friend and fellow classmate, Dr. Bob Tormey. Bob died of an apparent heart ailment at his home in Lloyd Harbor, N.Y., on July 4. He had just graduated from dental school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and was about to begin a dental residency at Long Island's Nassau County Medical Center before joining his dad's dental practice in Huntington, N.Y. Having grown up with Bob in Huntington, I consider myself fortunate to have been touched by his warmth and humor for so many years. He never failed to make me laugh! I'm sure many of you feel the same way and will keep Bob and his family in your thoughts and prayers.

I wish everyone well and hope that you all are making the most out of life. As always, I look forward to hearing from you and hope to see everyone at Homecoming. Take care of yourselves.

Hello, Class of 1988! Hope this issue of the Gazette finds you all well. First of all, please note my address change. Please send all of your letters to this address, at least for the next (and LAST) academic year! Letters sent to the old address will still get to me, but this address will be easier and faster.

Martin Infante writes from New Jersey that he is living at home and working for his father helping him manage family-related businesses including real estate development, an insurance agency, an indoor tennis club and a car wash. He also writes that he recently returned from a trip to the Dominican Republic after a week of sunshine and relaxation.

A recent article in the Newport News Daily Press featured some information about Dekova Pelton, who presently works for the Matrix Temporary Agency. Dekova is planning to attend graduate school in anthropology this year.

News from the Alumni Office: Kaky Spruill, a second-year student at the Dickinson School of Law, was recently elected to membership on the Dickinson Law Review. She will help prepare issues of the quarterly law journal.

Jeff Dato, former School of Business person, sent me his version of an Alumni Gazette novel in which he writes that he has a fascinating job with Crestar Bank in their Richmond headquarters. He has started a career in disaster recovery or contingency planning, and serves as the disaster recovery coordinator for Crestar. He is still very active in sports — "sawbaw," tennis and basketball for the bank and is still bowling. Jeff spends a lot of time at the Bus Stop, a local bar located in historic Shockoe Slip in downtown Richmond and invites any classmates who are passing through on any given Thursday through Sunday night(s) to join him.

Jeff writes that Connie Bruce married Andrew McRoberts '87 last June in Virginia Beach. Chris Booker and Bonnie McDuffie were among the witnesses of the long-awaited event. Connie is working for Sovran Bank as an assistant branch manager. Andrew just graduated from T.C. Williams School of Law at the University of Richmond and is now with Hirschler Fleischer, a Richmond law firm. Chris is working his way up the proverbial corporate ladder at Central Fidelity Bank in Richmond, working on being a loan officer, and is still dating Debbie. When last heard from, Bonnie was cruising through T. C. Williams.

Jeff's fellow former DuPont Second Wester Jim Miller married Ingrid Peters '89 last summer. Jim, along with Connie McRoberts, completed Sovran's management associate program last fall. He recently was hired to do managerial accounting for one of Sovran's subsidiaries. Jim says that all those #@!&* formulas they learned in finance were not made up and that he has to use them on a daily basis. Ingrid is working as a tour guide for the White House of the Confederacy. The couple is residing in Richmond.

Fellow School of Business grad Laura Dougherty is still with Procter and Gamble and lives in Cockeysville, Md., the residence for those yuppies in and around Baltimore! Laura says that Kim Scata is doing biological research at Yale.

Two of Jeff's former roommates, Bruce "Daps" DePaola and Scott "Lenny" Reid, are attending (and terrorizing) institutions of higher learning, studying the law they spent at least four years breaking in Williamsburg. Bruce is at St. John's and interned this summer in Connecticut, while Scott is preparing for his final year at Campbell University Law School (near Raleigh) and, when last heard from, was playing in a band around the Triangle area. Jeff adds, "To my pals — 'Ep!'"

Another former roommate, Scott "Spelunker" Harris, is answering nature's call at the "other" university on Interstate 64 (U.Va.), getting his master's and (what else?) spelunking all over the Appalachians and, for all Jeff knows, the world. "Go get 'em, Spelunk!"

Benji Berinstein is also attending U.Va., in the law school.

Another "banking buddy" of Jeff's, Karen Sullivan, is, at last hearing, motor-ing through Jefferson National Bank's branches throughout Richmond, soon to have one for herself.

Peat Marwick has Pam Robertson by the audit trail in D.C.

Scott Schafer is doing well at Overnite Transportation, which has been transferring him around like a chess piece. He started in Richmond, was moved to Charlotte, N.C., and is now outside Baltimore. When Jeff saw him at the Jimmy Buffett concert last summer at Cary Field, Scooter was sporting a business-style haircut and lacking a 5 o'clock shadow, was loving his job and was psyched about moving to the Metro area.

Scott Cooke is instructing racquetball at the Robious Fitness Center in Richmond. Scott is also seen quite frequently on Jeff's "home turf," the Bus Stop.

Jeff, Bruce and Scott are interested in the whereabouts of the other members of the DuPont Second West Brew Crew '84: Dale "Schnackel on the Tackle" Schnackel, Cary "Wimp" Fishburne, Terry "Hoover" Reilly, Paul "The Hardman" (and his lovely wife, Anne) Harder, Dave "That Lousy Irishman" Allason, or John "Fleaman" Fleenor. (Write and let me know what you're up to and I'll forward your addresses to Jeff.)

More from the Alumni Office: Navy Ensign Paul G. Scanlan was commissioned to his present rank upon completion of Aviation Officer Candidate School as a distinguished graduate. Scanlan was prepared for future duties and responsibilities as a commissioned officer and for primary flight training.

Lynn Sloane Brown was married to Ken Brown '89 on May 2, 1990, in the Wren Chapel. Both Lynn and Ken work for Staples Inc. in Cincinnati as assistant managers in two stores there.

Laura Preston wrote to the Alumni Office with lots of '87 and '88 news:

Kelly Hughes '87 is continuing her double life as a staffer on Capitol Hill by day and a law student in Baltimore by night. Recently Kelly was nominated to the board of the Baltimore/Annapolis Alumni Chapter.

Diane Preston '87 is working as an assistant buyer with Hecht's in Ballston. She is living with Jackie Delia '87.

Lydia Bayfield is living and working in Reston, and preparing to return to school for a master's in education.

Pam Sutton is working at Hallmark's corporate offices in Kansas City, where she can see her fiance, Dave (the guy she met on spring break senior year) regularly. An October wedding in Northern Virginia is planned.

John Tarrant '87 is a proud homeowner in Baltimore where he has played host for such alums as Julie Perkins '89, Jim Smith '89, Kathy Rickard '89, Peter Trippe '87, Mike Donohue '87, John Fedewa '89, and Nicole Drapeau '87, to name a few.

Diane and Laura went to New York City to visit Karen Kloster '87 as she finished her last season managing the Dan Waggoner Dance Troupe. They hung out with Peter Trippe '87 at his Staten Island apartment, where he rides his bike to the ferry to Manhattan to pursue his arts management degree at NYU. (Hi Pete!)

Laura is living at the Baltimore Harbor and working for the Baltimore Business Journal — right now making the transition from advertising account executive to marketing. Laura ran into Dan Sheehan '87 and Lester Lain '87 when she went to get a Nick-a-boli in Rehoboth on Memorial Weekend. She says it really felt like being in Paul's!

Christopher Johnson writes that he just finished his second year at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa. He got married on Aug. 26, 1989, in Redbank, N.J., to Kristina Natale Madsen, who is also just finishing her second year at the seminary. Chris will be going on internship in the '90-'91 school year at the University Lutheran Parish at Penn State. They will both be graduating in 1993, with M.Div. degrees.

Suji Gupta (sorry for the name change, Suji!) writes that she is in Richmond working as a computer technician for the state. She is living in Oregon Hill and biking every day to get in shape for her trip to New Zealand where she'll be touring (on a bicycle) for a few months. She leaves in September with Catherine Foster '89, who is currently her roommate.

Virginia Parsons Woodson writes to add her name to the just-married list. Virginia wed Ross Woodson, a 1983 Naval Academy graduate, on June 9, 1990. Virginia was introduced to Ross by Tracy Jolles while visiting in Philadelphia last fall. Virginia still sees Tracy and Blair Kochler as much as possible. Ross and Virginia moved to California in July where Ross is getting his master's degree at U.C. Berkley. Virginia hopes to work at the University in the biology department. Virginia adds "Congrats to everyone from our class who is doing well at medical school." She has heard from Jaime Young who was accepted at M.C.V.

Tariq Hafiz writes that he has been pretty busy in the two years since graduation. He has been working for the Computer Sciences Corp. in Falls Church, Va., while going to graduate school at night. He will be completing his M.B.A. in December of this year. Tariq, who decided to settle down, married Rina Makhodoom on June 23. They went on a cruise to the Caribbean for their honeymoon. Tariq had been living with Mark Kotzer for the last two years. Mark works for Rails to Trails in Washington, D.C. Tariq says to anyone who is passing through the D.C. area that he would love to see them!

Well, I have gotten a lot of letters announcing marriages but this is the first I have gotten announcing a BIRTH! Janice Capone Cheshire writes that she and husband Gregory Cheshire (a U.Va. grad) have a healthy and happy baby girl named Erin Elisabeth, born Jan. 15, 1990. Janice and Gregg have been married for two years and own a home near Charlottesville. Congratulations!

Julianne Winkler writes that her plans to move to Australia in July were changed. Instead she will be getting married on Nov. 3 to James P. Stann, originally from St. Louis.

WILLIAM COLE '70 NAMED DIRECTOR OF WATERMAN'S MUSEUM

William W. Cole '70 has been named executive director of the Waterman's Museum in Yorktown. He will be responsible for the overall operation of the museum which offers a repository of artifacts, photographs and exhibits describing the life and culture of people who made their living on the water in Virginia through the past several centuries. The museum is housed principally in buildings from Cypress Manor, a Gloucester County estate. Cole's professional experience has included teaching school and working in several administrative and educational positions at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. He also has served as an officer and board member of the Preservation Alliance of Virginia, the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, and other preservation and history organizations.

scrawled note to announce that they are now living in Chicago where they are working for Tim Tront as futures traders for Tront Trading Co. They are working hard and enjoying the sights, sounds and smells of balmy Chicago. Kevin McNair showed Allen and Lewis the dark side of Chi Town and all it has to offer. Lewis also ran into Phil Robilotto '87 at a bar while he was donning the beer goggles. As a P.S., Tim says, "Go TRIBE!"

My fellow '84 Monroe 3rder Pam Anderson writes to let us know that she has finally found her own studio to paint in and at the time she wrote was hurriedly preparing for her first "out-of-college" show in July. Pam had been taking a couple of classes at V.C.U. but is now pursuing her painting on her own, hoping in another year to apply for an M.F.A. program through V.C.U. that allows for one of the two years to be spent in Florence. To earn money for this trip, Pam is working for an illustrator designer three days a week and for the Virginia Museum as a receptionist on Sundays. She is obviously very busy and loves Richmond and her activities. Congratulations Pam and good luck!

Pam also writes that she visited Jennie Jones in Columbus, Ohio. Jennie is waiting tables and trying to figure out what she really wants to do. A familiar story!

Pam saw Anne Riddle at Christmas. Anne is getting ready to graduate from the University of Denver with a master's in social work. She plans to move to Boulder, practice mountain climbing and get a "real" job.

Christine Yuki Dixon lives in Richmond but will be going to Philadelphia in the fall to get her M.F.A. in sculpture at the Tyler School of Art.

And lastly Pam writes that Mike Cook is living in D.C. and working as an art handler. He is renovating a house that he and a friend just bought and recently was admitted to Catholic University's graduate architecture program.

Michelle Rogers wrote with tons of news, including the fact that she is engaged to Dave Cisik '90. They are getting married in the 'Burg on Dec. 29. Michelle is working with Signet Bank in Richmond. She graduated from the management intern program in December and is now an assistant branch manager. She loves Richmond and wishes that more people would come and visit.

Michelle and a group of more '88 grads (Ana Nhra, Debbie Hudak, Sandy Self and Karyn Barlow) keep in touch through a Round Robin Letter. Ana is still in Virginia Beach. She is working for Michelle's competitor, Sovran, in the retail management program and loves it. Her beau is still John Ness. Sandy is also living in Virginia Beach. She decided that law school wasn't for her and is now pounding the pavement. Ana really wants to go into mortgage banking. In her spare time, which she has little of because in between interviews she is a waitress at Foggs, she spends time with boyfriend Steve and hunts for antique furniture.

Debbie Hudak is living in Pittsburgh. She has a great job with Black Box, a computer company. She travels a lot and is working on her masters in computer science (she'll also get her M.B.A. at the same time). When she's not busy, she's working out at the health club. She says she really misses her friends. Memorial Day weekend she made it down to Richmond where she met up with Ana, some high school friends and Michelle. They had three days of partying and catching up. Karyn Barlow is still with Anderson Consulting. Michelle saw her on her way back from visiting Dave's family in Pennsylvania. They were able to do some catching up at TGI Fridays. Karen and Bryan are still dating.

A few months ago Carla Montague, Francoise Alberola '89 and Michelle headed to N.Y.C. to see Andrea Danese and Pam Hodgekinson. They rent an old Victorian house in Greenwich, Conn. Their other roommate Karen Wallace is spending a year of law school studying abroad. She gets to do a lot of traveling and love it. Andrea is working for a publishing company in the city. She really enjoys it and gets to bring home all sorts of great specialty books. Pam is currently looking for something more challenging. She also loves the city and knows it pretty well. She was able to guide Michelle, Carla and Andrea to several hot spots. While in N.Y.C. the three met Lisa Viviano '87, Mary Hazinski '87, Mary Anne Bernhardt '89 and Mary Johnston '87 at Grandpa's for dinner. They all ended up getting their picture taken with Grandpa (the man from the Muntsters)!

Lisa Viviano and Carla Montague are living in Richmond, but Michelle says that she doesn't see them often enough. Deluxe keeps Lisa really busy. Carla is now the assistant manager of a pilot store belonging to Macy's and loving it. She is engaged to Scott Hartman and just bought a house with him down in Brandermill. The two will be married Nov. 10, 1990, in the Wren Chapel.

Speaking of engagements, Michelle says that Debbie Smith is engaged to a guy she met in D.C. where she is living with Francoise Alberola, who just finished her first year teaching elementary school, and Maria Manos, who is working for Sovran in the commercial analysis area.

Dave Wiley and Jen Volgenau '90 are also engaged. Dave has been in Williamsburg the last two years getting his M.B.A. at W&M.

Lauren Ellis is living in Pittsburgh. She is in a management program with one of the city's major steel producers. She likes being so close to Evan Bloch who is in Pittsburgh attending law school. They are getting married in August 1990.

Kim Norris Chappell and her husband Jim Chappell '86 are doing well. They just celebrated their first anniversary on June 3. Jim is in medical school in Norfolk. He just finished his second year and will be taking the boards soon. In July he'll start his rounds in the hospital. Kim is very busy in school at W&M. She is almost finished getting a degree in history which she will add to the psychology degree she got in '88. She'll start the master's program in the spring.

Jennifer Douglas '89 recently wrote that she's working hard at Macy's in Baltimore. She sees Jason Morgan '89 on weekends. She says her next move may be to New York, although she likes Baltimore for the time being and sees Emily Minnegrode '89, Sara Kapral '89, Lisa Luxton Lucas '87 and Shawn McDaniel Simms every so often. In her spare time she cuddles her two new Persian kittens.

Shannon Lucas writes that she, Kelly Adams and Jennifer Quartana spent a week down on Captiviva Island in April. They had a great time, although they found out that they can't quite party like they did during spring break anymore. Shannon's big news is that she is engaged to Edward Manning and is planning a June 1991 wedding in northern Virginia. Shannon has recently changed jobs and is very happy working as a data base administrator for a small defense contractor called Autometric. She keeps busy coaching gymnastics and planning her wedding, and she plans to start work on her master's in the fall.

Kelly A., Jennifer Q., Katy Brown, Joan Tracy all live in a townhouse in McLean. They had a party a few weeks back and there were a few familiar faces from W&M. Nancy Lindeblad and John Brosnahan were there, and were looking forward to their upcoming wedding, as were Stacie Allen and fiance.

As for me, I am presently experiencing the independence, leisure and PANIC of unemployment during my last "summer vacation." I'm looking forward to finishing up my M.F.A. here in sunny Syracuse this

D. THOMAS REEL '56 RECEIVES AWARD

D. Thomas Reel '56, northern regional manager for American Medical Laboratories, has been awarded the President's Cup for the second consecutive year. Presented at the company's annual sales meeting in Williamsburg, the award recognized Reel's outstanding performance in sales and marketing. While attending William and Mary, Reel was captain of the varsity tennis team, a member of the choir, Royalist staff, Varsity Club and Sigma Pi fraternity.

and joining the Great American Job Hunt. This summer, when not working on my master's thesis or cleaning my apartment (believe it or not!), I took the opportunity to travel South to visit greatly missed friends. After visiting my old hometown of Anniston, Ala., and getting lost while trying to visit friends in North Carolina, I finally made it back to the 'Burg where I ran into several W&M alums:

Cathy Walsh '91 told me that brother Mike Walsh and Jenny Stiles '90 got married in July.

David Gaston was still in Williamsburg finishing up his master's at W&M. He finished his M.A.Ed. in social studies in July. Dave is getting married on Aug. 11, 1990, to Susie Soaper in Kentucky. Laura Deporter will be the maid of honor. Dave and Susie will be settling in the Newport News area.

Dave let me in on more news of the Class of '88:

Matt Williams and Jodie Ceballos will get married in June 1991.

John Klar is at U. Conn. looking forward to graduating from medical school with a degree in sports medicine.

Chris McDonald married Corie Morck in May 1990! (Congratulations, you guys!)

Becky Architzel is living in Alaska. Paul Farentinos will marry Cynthia Hall on Aug. 4, 1990. Paul will also be getting his M.A.Ed. in social studies from W&M in July and is looking for a teaching position in Northern Virginia.

I had dinner with Anson Christian '89, who will be going to Southern Methodist University in Texas in the fall. Anson told me that Steve Lewis will be living with Tim McEvoy and Fred Federici in Charlottesville while working on his Ph.D. in history at U.Va.

David Fletcher '89 and I checked out life at the Green Leaf Cafe. Fletch is working for James City County and living in Williamsburg.

I was also able to get to Richmond in June for an engagement party for Bill Hertz and Tricia Ritenour who got married on July 14, 1990, and are living in Durham, N.C. I saw Jenny Whitaker, who is working at a fitness center in D.C., and Cathy Ireland, who is a recruiter for George Washington University. Both are doing well. Also at the party were Randy Lowe and her fiance (they were married in August), John Morgan and fiance Molly McNeil, Tricia's sister Susan, who will be attending W&M in the fall, Tom Hamilton and fiance Jill Watson (who are getting married in April 1991), among others.

Anne Obenshain gave the party. Anne is going to work at a small college in western Virginia as a supervisor for residence hall quarters. Anne is marrying Steve Zumbro in August '91. Steve is presently working as a clown for Ringling Bros. & Barnum & Bailey Circus. It was great seeing everyone again after two years!

Lastly, I talked to my old roommate Amy Hoyt who is living in London and loving it. When I talked to her she was getting ready to go to Finland to work on her next assignment for Trans-World International — covering the World's Strongest Men (a contest which involves 300-pound men pulling trucks in Finland). (Don't laugh, it's true.) Amy will be staying abroad at least through Christmas '90.

Erik Gustafson called to let us know that Jack Kayton married Kahta Murphy '90 on June 23, 1990. At the wedding were Dave Gleason, Mike McKinney and Walt Welham, among others.

Sherry White is going to France next year as part of her pursuit of her Ph.D. in French from Indiana University.

Betsy Wilbourne, who is in law school at Duke, is in Seattle for the summer, having gotten a clerkship there.

As for the Where In The World Are They? section: If anyone knows anything about the goings-on of Eric Mendelsohn or Wendy Cutting, please write and let me know what they (or you) are up to.

Well, that's all for this issue. Keep those letters coming!! I hope to see you all at Homecoming!

Can you believe that it has been nearly four months since graduation? Before you know it, they are going to be calling us about our five-year reunion! I hope everyone's adventures in the "real world" are going well. I am still looking for full-time employment, but have a car and an apartment.

In the meantime, I have volunteered to serve as class reporter. That means I get to keep everyone informed about our classmates in the coming years. You have to help, however. Drop me a line whenever something monumental (or even something insignificant) happens. Let me know of weddings, moves, promotions, parties, etc. This should be a fun way to stay in touch. For this month, I have to rely on phone calls and personal letters. I begin by apologizing for not responding!

Bob Kreiling is doing well with his job in Florida. He's working with Barnett Bank, has his own apartment and is enjoying life as a successful bachelor.

Kristin Palm is also having quite a summer. Kristin went with her brother and Hollis Clapp '91 to England and Scotland for a two-week trip after graduation. She said the sights were great, and she even ran into classmate Mark McWilliams at a pub in Scotland. Since returning home she has been working part-time before she begins her "real" job with the government. She's also been out on several dates with several guys!

Jennifer-Ashley Lane and Doug Hillman traveled to California together where Doug brushed up on his golf game at some of California's best courses as J.A. watched and even took a few swings herself. Rumor has it that J.A. may make the PGA tour before Doug!

By now Kahtra Murphy and Ellen Winstead should be Mrs. Jack Catrain '89 and Mrs. David Gould M.B.A. '90 respectively. I hope both weddings went smoothly. Please write and tell me about the events. I'm sure Kahtra and Jack's ceremony was an SAE and KD reunion!

I recently received an invitation to the wedding of former roomie JoAnn Adrales '89. She was married to Colin Ruh '89 on Aug. 11. Meg Madoc-Jones, returned from the Orient to be in the wedding.

Kim Caruthers is out in Texas now with fiance Jesse. They plan to settle into their new condo after an October wedding.

Suzy Allison was selected as a cast member for this summer's Shakespeare conservatory project at the College. She performed in "The Comedy of Errors" in July. Two other W&M students will join her on stage.

Classmate and fellow Ohioan Kristen Hull was presented the Williamsburg Daughters of the American Revolution Award for excellence in academics and leadership.

David Martin III recently finished teaching a volunteer art class at Eastern State Hospital. David began the class four years ago and watched it grow into a funded hospital program. He and his fiance Rachel Watts are looking at wilderness camps for disturbed adolescents so that they both can continue their work. Eventually they hope to be able to open their own program for troubled youth.

Last month when visiting friends in Ann Arbor, Mich., I ran into Chris Foot '87. Chris is working on his Ph.D. in economics at the University of Michigan. This summer he's doing research for a professor. He likes life at a Big 10 campus but still roots for the Kansas Jayhawks in basketball.

Pam Giambo is moving to Washington,

GRAYSON OWEN WINS CPA AWARD

Grayson H. Owen '89, presently employed with Peat Marwick of Raleigh, N.C., has won the Elijah Watt Sells Award for exceptional scores received on the CPA exam in November 1989. This is a national award given to 120 out of 75,000 candidates who took the exam. Owen is one of two native Virginians to receive the honor. At William and Mary, Owen was a member of the College Republicans and the Wayne F. Gibbs Accounting Society.

SUPREME COURT REVIEW

Supreme Court watchers will gather at William and Mary Sept. 21-22 for a preview of the upcoming court term with more than 20 legal scholars and journalists expected to attend. Sponsored by the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, the event, which is now in its third year, is free to the public. The Supreme Court Preview, as it is known, has become a favorite for legal reporters, editorial writers and columnists and for editors who need background in upcoming legal issues to help plan daily news coverage.

STRUHAR NAMED TO MANAGEMENT POST AT NASA

Joseph R. Struhar '73 M.B.A. has been selected to head the Programs and Resource Division, Management Operations Directorate, at NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va. He is responsible for assisting senior management officials at the center in planning and implementing research and development programs through analysis of money, manpower and facility programs. He also prepares budgets and program operating plans, monitors the budget process and supports Langley divisions in resource policy and procedure. He began his Langley career in 1960 as a staff accountant and most recently served as chief of the Financial Management Division. Struhar received a NASA Exceptional Service Medal in 1988. He holds a bachelor's degree from Duquesne University.

D.C., sans job or auto, but with a lot of determination and resumes. She and Karen Kossow should be moved in soon. Good luck with the job search, guys!

I can only speculate on what everyone else is doing! Start dropping me postcards, please. This should be more than a Kappa Delta newsletter, but right now those are the only people I've heard from. Tim Padgett, my fiance, will be moving here in August and my address will change, but I'm close to home, so keep the letters coming. Have a wonderful summer, and I hope to see a lot of you at Homecoming! Start looking for your green and gold plaid pants — after all, we're alumni now!

States Naval Reserve in World War II. He is survived by his wife Norma, a stepson, stepdaughter and three grandchildren.

DANIEL LEROY FEGLEY '27 of Hummelstown, Pa., died April 20, 1990. He was a retired minister.

NORMAN HACKMAN '27 of Leesburg, Fla., died Oct. 20, 1989. A retired salesman, he was the widower of Olga Drozdov Hackman '27.

CLAUDE COPELAND BROWN '28 of Ware Neck, Va., died in November 1988. He worked as a gasoline distributor. At William and Mary, he was a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity. He is survived by a daughter, Claudia Walthall.

WILLIAM MCKENZIE BICKERS '29 of Richmond, Va., died May 5, 1990. He was a retired obstetrician and gynecologist, having earned his medical degree from the Medical College of Virginia in 1933. After completing graduate training at Harvard Hospitals in Boston, Dr. Bickers returned to Richmond and taught at MCV from 1937 to 1959. In 1945 he took leave from his position at MCV to serve as a visiting professor with the American University of Beirut Medical Center in Lebanon. He was a member of numerous professional organizations, the recipient of several national awards and the author of two medical textbooks. In addition, he wrote an autobiography, Harem Surgeon, which detailed his career as a doctor throughout the Arabian Peninsula. Upon his retirement in 1986, he reflected on his accomplishments, which included the delivery of 10,000 babies and the performance of 10,000 operations in Richmond and Beirut: "This is a very large family for one man to count but each one has brought its thrill and joyful satisfaction of new life." He was chosen to deliver three children of King Hussein of Jordan and two of the late Anwar Sadat's, president of Egypt. Dr. Bickers was an Alumni Medallion recipient in 1981 and active in numerous alumni activities over the years. In 1989, Dr. Bickers and his wife, Annie, established a professorship in Middle Eastern studies at William and Mary. As an undergraduate, he was active in student government, a member of the Flat Hat staff and Theta Delta Chi fraternity. In addition to his wife, survivors include a son, two daughters, a stepson, a stepdaughter and three sisters, including Marguerite Bickers Miller '27.

HAROLD VAUN LIGHT '30 of Miami Beach, Fla., died Feb. 27, 1990. He attended William and Mary on an athletic scholarship, playing both varsity basketball and football. Following graduation he was a football coach at Rutgers University for four years. Later he founded Crestwood Fabrics Inc. in New York City and served as a consultant for the firm following his retirement. During World War II he served as a first lieutenant in the Navy. Among his professional and community activities, he helped to establish the Jewish Chapel at West Point, N.Y., was on the board of directors at Temple Israel in Croton-On-Hudson, N.Y., and was president of the Woolen Jobbers Association from 1957 to 1963. At William and Mary he helped establish the Chair of Judaic Studies in the department of religion. He was a member of the Order of the White Jacket, the Athletic Educational Foundation and Phi Alpha fraternity. In 1980 he was inducted into William and Mary's Athletic Hall of Fame. He is survived by his wife of 51 years, Gladys, a son, a daughter and a grandson.

ROBERT SAMUEL PANNILL '31 of Martinsville, Va., died May 29, 1990. He was the retired vice president of sales and board member of the Pannill Knitting Co. He served in the Army Air Corps during World War II. At William and Mary he was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and

Obituaries

WILLIAM RIDLEY SHANDS '17 of Midlothian, Va., died March 31, 1989. He was a retired attorney, associated with the Richmond law firm of Christian, Barton, Epps Brent & Chappell. As a student he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He received his LL.B. from the University of Richmond. He is survived by a daughter and a son.

JOHN BERTRAM COWLES '23 of Toano, Va., died April 19, 1990. He was a self-employed businessman and farmer who also attended the University of Virginia. He is survived by two sons, two sisters, a brother, two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

FRANCIS F. WILSHIN '23 of Fredericksburg, Va., died April 25, 1990. He retired from the National Park Service in 1970 after serving in positions at seven National Historical Parks, the final one being superintendent of Manassas Battlefield National Park. As a noted author and Civil War historian, he wrote four books, lectured nationally and received national awards related to his work. After graduating from William and Mary in 1923, he received his master's degree in history from Columbia University in 1927. He did further graduate studies at the University of Virginia.
