Charter Day Celebration Extols Freedom

William and Mary celebrated its 1991 Charter Day weekend with a visit from one of the world's best known advocates of freedom and the rededication of a renowned old building that has been renovated to serve the College in the 21st century.

Fang Lizhi, the distinguished Chinese astrophysicist and human rights advocate who played a central role in the 1989 Tiananmen Square uprising in China, delivered the Charter Day address on Feb. 2, which commemorated the 298th anniversary of the granting of the Royal Charter.

On the previous day, the College dedicated old Blow gymnasium as Blow Memorial Hall, marking the completion of a $4 million renovation that turned the building from an athletic and social facility into a sparkling academic and administrative center.

Dr. Fang, who was allowed to leave China with his wife last June after hiding in the American embassy in Beijing for several months, noted that Charter Day honored not only the founding of the College but also the 200th anniversary of the ratification of the Bill of Rights of the United States and that 1991 marked the 80th anniversary of the first republican revolution in China.

"My first thoughts are for our predecessors who devoted themselves, and sometimes paid with their lives, to the struggle for civil rights in both your country and mine," said Dr. Fang. "The world has never forgotten the people who have contributed to the continuing fight for human rights and freedom."

At exercises whose theme was appropriately civil liberties, human rights and the observance of the bicentennial of the Bill of Rights, Fang received an honorary doctor of humane letters "as a reminder to all, and especially to the repressed, that freedom of human expression is our most precious treasure." A. E. Dick Howard, White Burkett Miller Professor of Law and Public Affairs at the University of Virginia who served as executive director of the commission that wrote Virginia's new constitution, received an honorary doctor of laws degree in recognition of his "singular contribution to the preservation of constitutional government and . . . devotion to the public."

Cirila Djordjevic, Garrett-Robb-Guy Professor of Chemistry at the College, received the Thomas Jefferson Award while David A. Dessler, associate professor of government, received the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award. The Jefferson award honors a member of the College community who emulates the traits of Jefferson while the teaching award honors a younger member of the faculty for his dedication to teaching.

Noting the decline of communism throughout the world, Dr. Fang predicted the end of communism in China, not only because the system has failed miserably economically, but because the proletarian regime has "trampled upon the most basic dignity, rights, and freedoms of (its) own citizens."

Fang said the Tiananmen massacre of 1989 shocked the world because it marked the first time the outside world could see for itself "how cruel and violent the behavior of the Chinese authorities can be." But he added that the incident "is only the tip of an iceberg." Recently, he said, the Chinese authorities have used the distraction of the war in the Persian Gulf to intensify the repression of those fighting for democracy and freedom in China.

"They have resumed the trials of students who took part in the peaceful demonstrations at Tiananmen. Soon there will be even more students and others facing the same fate. This is the new desecration by the Chinese authorities of the universal principles of human rights. It is clear that the struggle for human rights and freedom in China is far from over."

Adding an optimistic note, Dr. Fang predicted that, although the road will be long and difficult, the trend toward democracy, freedom and human rights "will be very hard to completely turn around."

Said Dr. Fang in conclusion: "The world will never forget the men and women of Tiananmen in 1989 who paid with their lives for freedom in China, just as we still cherish the memories of many of your former students at William and Mary who were deeply committed to American freedom in 1776."

In his remarks, President Verkuil noted the appropriateness of human freedom as a theme for Charter Day.

"Human rights. The phrase comes so easily to those of us in this country, where our Bill of Rights has assured our individual liberties for two centuries," said the president. "The year 1991 is the bicentennial of those first 10 amendments to our Constitution, so it seems only proper to have human rights as the theme of these Charter Day exercises."

Renovated Blow Hall is Dedicated

Blow Gymnasium, which was originally constructed in 1925 with the help of a $100,000 gift from its namesake, was rededicated on Feb. 1 as Blow Memorial Hall.

The building, which underwent a $4 million renovation, now consists of three floors of offices for administrators and faculty and classrooms for the School of Business Administration, as well as quarters for the Board of Visitors to meet.

Blow Memorial Hall, which was rededicated during Charter Day weekend, not only has a new entrance but a new, $4 million look inside.

"This represents a marvelous example of the adaptive re-use of an old building," said W. Samuel Sadler '64, vice president of student affairs. The offices of admissions, the registrar, career services, counseling and the treasurer are now in Blow Hall. "We have combined, in one place, a number of functions that our students use every day," said Sadler. "This makes it easier for students to get services."

The first floor includes the registrar's and treasurer's offices, previously located in James Blair Hall. Also on the first floor is the telecommunications office, which handles the College telephone and computer operations, and the office of career services with its library and interview rooms.

The second floor lobby is the main entrance, with the admissions office in the wing opposite the lobby. On the other side of the lobby is a huge reception area for visitors to the admissions office. The financial aid, the comptroller's office and the counseling center occupy other areas of the second floor.

The Graduate School of Business Administration has state-of-the-art classrooms and research areas on the second and third floors as well as computer labs and offices for the Executive M.B.A. Program.

Other business school classrooms are on the third floor, where the Board of Visitors has a magnificent new meeting room and a hideaway office for the rector of the College.

The building is named for George Preston Blow, a distinguished Naval officer whose family donated $100,000 toward the construction of the building, which cost $150,000 when it was constructed in 1925.

The original building was T-shaped, with a small, semicircular drive at the front near Richmond Road. Its central feature was a basketball court on the main floor, with a swimming pool in the basement. In 1940, it was expanded with an addition to the back of the building. The building hosted its first intercollegiate basketball game Jan. 10, 1925, and served as the main athletic facility for the College until William and Mary Hall was built in 1979.

RINGING FAR AND NEAR

Just for the Record

By Barry Adams

In the June 1990 issue of the Alumni Gazette I wrote in this column about "Why Alumni Associations Sell." Later I was told by members of the College's leadership boards and chapter officers that the explanation helped them "put into perspective" the entrepreneurial initiatives of the Alumni Society. In this issue I want to address, for the record, why the Society maintains alumni records.

The compiling of alumni biographical records and addresses has been one of the most important yet unheralded missions of the Society for more than a century. Modern technology certainly has alleviated some of the cumbersome procedural and processing steps long associated with retaining records of William and Mary graduates. But make no hasty judgment about the effectiveness and efficiencies computerization brings. In reality, such improved systems only widen the field of opportunities which in fact multiplies the workload.

In numerous association and institutional studies concerning the importance of alumni recordkeeping it is estimated that between 30 to 40 percent of our recent graduates move at least once each year. This could easily translate into 1,500 address changes every time the Alumni Gazette or the William and Mary Magazine, both Society publications, are mailed! Beyond simple address updates, such changes usually signal career changes, new telephone numbers, marriages, divorces, births, deaths and quite often significant job promotions. Of course, address changes derived through the Society's regular publications represent only a portion of the hundreds of thousands of alterations which must be made on alumni records annually. But even the most sophisticated system cannot track alumni to ask why they moved without knowing where they moved first. In this category it would be inefficient for any department less suited to alumni outreach to maintain alumni address and biographical files.

The Alumni Society has in place several avenues which allow it to prime the alumni pump for data. In turn, the data allow the Society to better reach alumni to offer attractive programs and services and keep them in tune with their alma mater. For example:

- Alumni chapters annually sponsor between 100 and 125 events and reach through announcements and newsletters more than 50 percent of our total alumni population.

- In the upwardly mobile young alumni population (which comprises more than 35 percent of our total alumni population) the Society has made great strides in formulating an active and viaible program for recent graduates. The Young Guard Council has an ambitious and comprehensive agenda for the more than 8,000 young alumni it represents. Part of the Council's efforts will be to locate young alumni and build an awareness about the need to stay in touch with the College through their alumni office.

- Through the Society's network of class reporters, biographical changes are made daily. This highly motivated, intensely loyal group of 70 alumni represents significant links to thousands of alumni. On an annual basis they provide hundreds of pages of information about alumni. Because of their close relationship to the Society's communications office, class reporters epitomize the best of William and Mary volunteers.

- Annually the Society sponsors 11 class reunions, produces class directories and systematically mails announcements, invitations and surveys to 40 percent of the entire alumni population. Through active class reunion committees an effort to locate classmates is constantly under way.
- Through other outreach efforts such as Career Exploration Day, Alumni College, the Alumni Admissions Network, the Olde Guard Council, numerous Homecoming events, student activities and alumni services such as travel, insurance and the gift shop, the Society of the Alumni serves as the point of reference for the multitude of alumni. Often the Society accomplishes its role in a personal, one-to-one setting.

- Last year more than 15,000 individuals attended events, activities or merely visited the Alumni House. On a monthly basis a large portion of those visitors and without question the largest percentage of our daily phone calls are to locate a classmate, change an address or update a record.

The Society extends its obligation to the College and to the alumni by providing assistance in locating lost alumni to Greek and student life organizations, creating directories for other alumni organizations and serving alumni classes in their search for lost class members and their efforts to communicate as well as generate support and interest. Because the Society's principal mission extends far beyond the fund-raising efforts so critical to the College in these difficult times, it finds itself in an ideal position for administration and management of alumni addresses and biographical records.

College Cancels Changes in Athletic Program

A headline in the Feb. 13 Richmond Times-Dispatch read "W&M is cutting 4 sports." Readers of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot opened their sports pages and saw "W&M austerity plan takes toll on athletics." The Washington Post put it more colorfully: "William and Mary Axes Four Sports."

The College had decided, as part of an institution-wide effort to respond to declining financial resources, to reconfigure its intercollegiate athletic program, dropping men's wrestling, women's basketball, and men's and women's swimming.

The decision had not been an easy one, and had come after considerable examination of the athletic program's long-term viability. The announced decision was to take funds used for women athletes in the eliminated sports and direct the money to those programs which are already competitive on a national level.

The decision clearly indicated strong support for women's athletics at William and Mary.

While the move would have left William and Mary with 21 varsity sports — four more than the NCAA Division I average — and a stronger fiscal and competitive position for the remaining teams, the announcement touched off a 10-day series of events that led to the reinstatement of the programs.

The keys to the decision to restore the programs, according to both President Paul R. Verkuil '61 and Athletic Director John Randolph '64, were the appeals by students and other groups to save the sports and the promise of sufficient private financial commitments to help keep the programs afloat.

In a statement released to the news media Feb. 22, Verkuil said the original decision had produced "an unprecedented response," causing a reconsideration of the action.

"The support expressed by the campus community, parents, alumni and friends of William and Mary for those sports and for William and Mary's philosophy of a broad-based athletic program has been gratifying," Verkuil said. "It has caused us to review our earlier action, which was based on the fiscal realities confronting the athletic program and the university."

While those realities and the College's desire to strengthen the fiscal and competitive health of its athletic program have not changed, Verkuil said, "new financial commitments and pledges have been made, making it possible to reconsider our prior action."

In consultation with Randolph and other members of the university's leadership, the president reached the conclusion that the sports could be reinstated.

"Because of the clear, emphatic and reasoned expression of the will of our students, parents, alumni and friends, as well as newly expressed financial commitments to these sports, we are reinstating the four sports in question," he said.

Verkuil emphasized that the decision to reinstate the sports left unanswered some complex questions related to the funding of William and Mary's athletic programs. Furthermore, the long-term future of the affected sports will depend on whether private funds can be raised to endow them permanently.

He appointed a group, including Randolph and several members of the budget formulation team, "to determine alternative budgetary actions which can be taken to meet the fiscal constraints we still face. In making this request, I have asked that special consideration be given to increasing efforts to support the athletic program through private gifts. In particular, it will be necessary for the friends of our swimming and wrestling programs to fulfill commitments that will assure the long-term viability of these sports."

The president also noted "the unusual situation presented by the elimination of women's basketball," an issue he said contributed to the decision to reinstate the four sports. A major consideration in the move to restructure the athletic program had been the desire to strengthen women's programs which are already competitive at the national level, but Verkuil said the controversy over women's basketball had created inaccurate perceptions of William and Mary's view of women's athletics.

"While we remain convinced that the program objectives and principles behind our earlier action are sound, this administration wishes to avoid any perception that William and Mary is not fully committed to accommodating the athletic interests and abilities of its women students," he said.

Verkuil also stressed the importance of balance in the College's academic and athletic programs.

"Budgetarily, these are difficult times for all of William and Mary's programs," he said. "One of my responsibilities as president is to maintain balance among the institution's many programs in good times and in bad. I do not expect fiscal constraints to create imbalances within the institution. Our continuing goal is to offer our students and the commonwealth programs of quality in areas of need and strength."

"We will work with equal vigor to assure that new and additional commitments are obtained for our academic programs as well. This is a time for all friends and supporters of the College to step forward."

Alumni Share Experience with Students on Careers

By Barbara Ball

If you have survived the rigors of four years at William and Mary, you've earned blue chip stock for your job search. You have the skills employers are looking for—the ability to write clearly, speak articulately and think logically.

If you have a two-page resume, trim it to one because employers are busy people.

When hunting for that first job, take a chance on a position that will allow you to learn. You need to eat and a place to rest your head but money should be secondary. When you get that interesting first job, stay with it, be a sponge and learn as much as you can to take on to the next step on the ladder.

Go work where you feel comfortable. Don't knock big cities like New York unless you've tried them. However, if you know you are a small-town person, leave the Big Apple to those who would be miserable in the country.

These tips on moving from the campus to the working world came from alumni who have made the transition and gladly volunteered their time, talents and a wealth of practical information at Career Exploration Day, organized by the Society of the Alumni and the Office of Career Services. Twenty, three-member panels representing different careers offered a wide range of career information to approximately 650 students.

Tracey A. Ragsdale '82 (English), customer marketing manager for the Xerox Corp. in Richmond, told students, "Understand the marketplace and develop strong strategies to respond to interview questions." To the often-asked question, "Can I get a job with a liberal arts background?" the answer is a resounding "Yes."

Students asked Jeff Berkin '78 (philosophy), supervisory special agent with the FBI, how many hours they could expect to give to the job. Was there enough time to develop outside interests?

When asked, "What is the future employment picture for lawyers?" Berkin replied: "If you go to a good law school and are solidly in the top third of your class you should have a lot of choice. If you go to a little-known law school and are in the bottom half of your class you will have a problem."

Susan E. Arnot '79 (history), public relations director for Elizabeth Arden in New York, said the strongest skill needed is writing and the second is people skills. Arnot echoed the advice of many that the first job is a place to learn, not make the big salary.

Arnot on resumes: "I've been working 12 years and just in the last year have I cracked two pages. What do students put on those two pages?"

Patricia Deuster '71 (mathematics), associate professor at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Services, advised students not to rush into a career decision. "Many students are preoccupied with what they would do with the rest of their lives," she reported. "I tell them, things unfold, be willing to try new experiences and see where they will lead, take opportunities as they open up." She advised seeking a summer medical internship before launching into medical school. Deuster also suggested students consider the research side of medicine which she said offers great opportunities for creativity.

Noah Levine '84 (history), an account executive in New York City for FCB Leber/Katz Partners, told students to polish their skills at building relationships if they were looking to go into a service business such as advertising. "An account is never lost because a bad commercial was made. It is lost when working relationships break down. Class and talent go a long way. If you are from William and Mary you have the talent—you can develop the class.

"Don't take a course just because you think it is going to fit in the job market. At a great school like William and Mary you do shopping for excellence in the things that you are interested in. Over in Morton there is a great history department; it would be foolish not to take advantage of it."

Barbara Martino '79 (English), account manager, Entre Computer Center, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, said, "The longer I am out of school the greater my belief in liberal arts. It doesn't matter what you study, just enjoy it and then get out in the work place and get some experience, volunteer in the summer, job-shadow someone for a day, get a sense of reality.

"If you survived William and Mary you must know how to learn; you're highly motivated and that is more important than vocational skills. "You can't predict what you will be doing five years after graduation. You can target your goals but you have to be flexible and willing to use your skills to your best advantage."

Robert W. Todd '69 (history/education), director, Human Resources/Employment Development, Warner Lambert International, Westfield, N.J., told students competition is keen for jobs in the international field. "You need one foreign language, two is better and experience living abroad is a plus. International companies are looking for people who want to work in the international field who have special skills—an internationalist with some economics or accounting skills, knowledge in the sciences—something that allows you to contribute to the business," he said.

W. Allan Sharrett '74 (anthropology), partner, Outten, Barrett, Burr, and Sharrett, PC, Emporia, Va., said anthropology was a good preparation for law. "We had a ton of reading and writing," he said, "and there was at least one term paper in each course. We had to write an undergraduate thesis. . . . Subjects aren't important, what is important is that you learn to read and write logically and speak well."

Sue Billingsley Mosher '74 (sociology), assistant director/technology development, Associated Press Broadcast Services, Arlington, Va., said, "The preparation you are getting is excellent compared to 95 percent of college students. To get the first job go to a small market. Don't go into New York or D.C. unless you are very brave. Go to small markets in your state, your hometown where you know people."

In a brainstorming session on the best way to get publication credits, members of the panel on communications surprised themselves with the number of ideas they came up with: Write for your hometown newspaper, if not a story, a letter to the editor. Contribute to a church publication, contribute to the corporate in-house publication where your parents are employed. Find a summer job between school years working in public TV or media production in the corporate field. Spend some time on presentation, getting your foot in the door.

Erica Heinemann '90 (government), public affairs assistant for Youth for Understanding International Exchange in Annandale, Va., said, "Although William and Mary provides a strong education, students should not expect the degree alone to nail them a job. Nonprofit organizations and smaller companies are good bets for starting jobs because they allow you to learn a lot and have great responsibility."

Joan Detz M.A. '75 (English) Joan Detz/Speech Writing, Doylestown, Pa., told students, "There is a whole wide range of jobs, more than you can imagine. There is a special nook and cranny for many different skills and interests. Look beyond the obvious." Don't pass up the opportunity to volunteer for an exciting project even if it means a longer workday and no overtime, suggested Detz, who got her break as a volunteer with the "I Love New York" campaign while working in a tedious, non-creative slot for an advertising agency.

"Associate with the very best in the field," she told the students, "and learn simply by osmosis. Foreign languages are important no matter what job you have."

Kimberly J. Harris, claim support manager, Allstate Insurance, Newport News, stressed the value of a liberal arts education and people skills. She also suggested that students highlight summer job experience in customer service or a particular area which relates to the insurance field.

Approximately 60 alumni panelists participated in Career Exploration Day which attracted more than 600 students seeking to benefit from their career experience.

Friends Upgrade President's House Furnishings

Heading the Friends is Dr. Clement Conger of Alexandria, urbane curator of the U.S. State Department Reception Rooms, who works closely with President and Mrs. Verkuil, plus several dozen history- and art-minded friends of the College.

By Parke Rouse

When President Woodrow Wilson came to visit his friend Lyon Gardiner Tyler in Williamsburg in 1917, and to address students at William and Mary, the Tylers proudly entertained him in the President's House. Some of the guests sat on favorite Tyler heirlooms — three gilt-decorated Federal side chairs that Annie Tucker Tyler had inherited from her grandfather, Thomas Walker Gilmer, one-time Virginia governor and Secretary of the Navy under President John Tyler.

Today three of the Gilmer-Tucker-Tyler chairs are back at William and Mary, the gift of Lyon Tyler's granddaughter. They're among dozens of rare 18th- and 19th-century furnishings that have been given the College since the President's House Friends went to work in 1977 to find suitable furnishings for the priceless old house.

The project will reach its climax in 1993, when the College celebrates its Tercentenary.

Heading the Friends is Dr. Clement Conger of Alexandria, urbane curator of the U.S. State Department Reception Rooms, who had earlier performed the same magic for the White House. Working closely with him are President and Mrs. Verkuil, plus several dozen history- and art-minded friends of the College. Mrs. Janet Colenda is the volunteer coordinator.

Dr. Conger, himself a well-known collector and lecturer, earlier directed a successful campaign to similarly furnish Virginia's Executive Mansion in Richmond.

Creation of the Friends was sparked by William and Mary President Thomas A. Graves Jr. when he headed William and Mary from 1971 to 1985. Bothered by the contrast between the 18th-century house and his modern furnishings, Graves enlisted Conger to help kick off the project. They found many collectors willing to help find proper period pieces for the gracious Georgian mansion, built in 1732-33 for founder-president James Blair and occupied by every one of the College's subsequent presidents except one.

In 1982 — on the 250th anniversary of the start of construction of the house — the Friends published the house's history. It was titled "A House for a President: 250 Years on the Campus of the College of William and Mary," written by Williamsburg author Parke S. Rouse Jr.

Conger calls the structure "the most important Virginia Georgian brick house in the Williamsburg area." When his committee went in search of fine 18th-century furniture, rugs and other needs, many people responded generously. Some were seeking a suitable inheritor of their cherished treasures. What better place than the President's House?

"Since the College has approximately 15,000 guests and visitors in the house each year, including many notables," Conger explained, "it seems high time that we should make the furnishings representative of an affluent residence of college presidents in the 18th century."

Because of its long years of heavy use, the house was in a badly rundown state when it was restored to its original — and present — form by the Colonial Williamsburg restoration of John D. Rockefeller Jr. in the 1930s. Restored at the same time were the Wren Building and the Brafferton, all built in Blair's presidency, from 1693 to his death in 1743.

No permanent furnishings went with the house until President John Stewart Bryan in 1934-42 bought a few antiques and reproductions to remain in the house. Except for Bryan, few incoming presidents owned enough furniture to equip the house appropriately. So President Graves and Conger tackled the problem in 1977.

Since then the Friends have learned from College and Colonial Williamsburg decor experts just how beautiful the old house could look inside. The committee also includes fine arts graduates of the College, museum curators and collectors. An accessions committee of experts serves with Conger to screen all offerings carefully.

An overall furnishings plan was developed by another committee in order to frame a "Wish List" for the first floor of the President's House. Later, the committee added the Brafferton, the one-time Indian school that was built in Blair's regime to balance the President's House, flanking the Wren Building. It is now used for offices of President Verkuil and others.

Conger and his Friends work closely with Paul and Fran Verkuil. Says Conger, "Obviously the house is — and must remain — a private residence, filling a key role. It cannot be allowed to become a museum at the expense of its family function. But it can be a beautifully furnished private residence."

At the start, Tom and Zoe Graves wrote descendants of the College's former presidents in search of furnishings, pictures and family papers. One response was the gift of the three chairs owned by Lyon Tyler. They were given by his granddaughter, Mrs. Charles Davison of Charlottesville.

Other gifts have been generously bestowed by alumni and well-wishers: chairs, sofas, tables, paintings, flat silver, china, prints and candlesticks. Most are in the President's House, but a few enliven the Brafferton or are on exhibition at the College's Muscarelle Museum. A handsome 19th-century silver tureen associated with President Benjamin Ewell, who served from 1854 to 1888, was given to the collection; an early French version of the 18th-century Jefferson-Fry map of Virginia, the original of which was the work of surveyor Peter Jefferson, father of Thomas, and of Joshua Fry, a former math professor at the College, hangs in the north parlor of the House. A collection of John Catesby bird prints, done by an 18th-century naturalist who once lived in Williamsburg, are part of the collection and exhibited in the House and Brafferton.

Such is the new life of the "commodious brick house" which Henry Cary Jr. and his crew completed at College Corner back in 1733. The fortunes of the College are rising as never before. "I feel we have made great strides," says Conger.

Ferguson Seminar Gives Insight Into Publishing

By Laura Jones Dooley M.A. '87

Do people really read much anymore? Is the video and computer age making books obsolete? William and Mary students and alumni think otherwise, and they recently spent two days talking about careers in book publishing.

Five alumni in publishing joined several of their colleagues at the 9th biennial Ferguson Seminar in Book Publishing, which is funded by an endowment established in honor of William Cross Ferguson '16 who enjoyed a successful career in publishing, becoming editor-in-chief, secretary, and ultimately president of the World Book Company.

Before his death in 1967, Ferguson expressed a desire that a seminar in publishing be established at his alma mater. The resulting program, established in 1968, is designed to introduce William and Mary students to book publishing and to careers in book editing, design and production, and sales and marketing. More than 80 William and Mary students attended this year's event.

The all-day session of talks was filled with information on every aspect of book publishing, beginning with an overview of the industry. Ron Chambers '66 kicked off the day's presentations with an informative look at the varied fields that make up book publishing in America. He is editor-in-chief and general manager at Praeger Publishers, where he has direct responsibility for all acquisitions, production, marketing and administration functions for Praeger, which produces approximately 260 new hardbound titles a year. After graduation, he served for three years in the Marine Corps and received a master's degree before deciding on a career in publishing. His first job in the field was in the College Division at Prentice-Hall.

He later became senior acquisitions editor at The Free Press before joining Praeger in 1980 as editor-in-chief.

Laura Jones Dooley '87 M.A., who had attended an earlier Ferguson Seminar as a student, spoke about the much smaller world of nonprofit scholarly publishing and the often overlooked craft of manuscript editing. She is currently assistant managing editor at Yale University Press, where she has worked since joining the staff as a manuscript editor in 1987. She received her introduction to publishing while pursuing her M.A. at the College in 1983-85: she was an apprentice in historical editing at the Institute of Early American History and Culture and worked at the College's publications office on, among other things, the William and Mary Magazine.

Children's publishing is a rapidly growing segment of the book publishing industry. Catharine Rigby '88 spoke entertainingly about acquiring and producing books in this highly competitive field from her vantage point as an assistant editor at Harper Collins Children's Books in New York. She also had plenty of good advice on how to get that first job in publishing and how to stay alive (attend lots of publishing parties with free buffets) on the minuscule salary that one's first job typically pays. At William and Mary, she worked on the William and Mary Review all four years. Upon graduation, she spent the summer as a co-recipient of the Ferguson-Blair Scholarship at the Radcliffe College Publishing Course.

General interest trade publishing and the author-editor relationship was the subject of the talk by Paul D. McCarthy '77, who is senior editor at Pocket Books in New York. Given his passion for editing, he says he'll be a senior editor, probably at Pocket, until he retires at age 90. Upon graduation, he began his career in publishing at Scott Meredith Literary Agency, where he represented such writers as Carl Sagan and Ellery Queen. After a stint at Dell, he moved to Pocket Books. An admitted workaholic, he also finds time to review literary fiction and nonfiction for such newspapers as the Los Angeles Times Book Review, Chicago Sun-Times Book Review and Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The presenters and students talked informally about publishing over luncheon at the Great Hall before returning for the afternoon session. Whereas the morning talks had focused on the editorial side of publishing, the afternoon presentations focused on book design and production and marketing.

Joyce Kachergis, of Kachergis Book Design, spoke about the demands and constraints of designing books that satisfy not only authors and editors but readers. Slides of books she has designed added visual depth to her talk, and she enlightened students on some of those mystery terms of book production—leading, point size, gutters, galleys and sinkage.

Once the books have been acquired, edited, designed and produced, they must be marketed and sold. Getting students to plan an effective marketing campaign was the mission of Dan Harvey '68, '72 M.A. who has been an associate publisher at G.P. Putnam's Sons since 1988. Before coming to Putnam's, he was director of publicity, marketing and promotion and a member of the editorial board at Harper & Row for 10 years. He began his career in publishing in 1972 in the marketing department at Princeton University Press. Over the years he has worked with many noted authors, including Joseph Campbell, Saul Bellow, Colleen McCullough and Paul Theroux. The students and Dan Harvey planned an author promotional tour, created a bookstore "dump" for advertising and lined up major media coverage of one of Putnam's new lead books, Charles Kuralt's A Life on the Road.

After hearing about the interesting and varied careers a life in publishing can bring, students learned about three publishing procedures courses that give newcomers an entree into the field. Presenters Liz Breckenridge, an alumna of the Denver Publishing Institute; Avis A. Taylor, program administrator of the Howard University Press Book Publishing Institute; and Catherine Modica, assistant director of the Radcliffe College Publishing Course, held a panel discussion on their respective programs and answered students' questions about career placement opportunities and the cost of attending such courses.

Tribe Baseball: Out of the Dark Ages

By Bob Jeffrey '74

After a long spell in the Dark Ages, William and Mary baseball is set to undergo a Renaissance. Head coach Bill Harris '73 is shaping the change like a Donatello of the dugout.

Though baseball has been a fixture at the College since 1914, and championship banners have waved in the '40s and '60s, overall darkness has overshadowed the light. In the 1980s the gloom lifted when the Tribe won the ECAC South title and advanced to the NCAA playoffs in 1983. But even including that 24-15 campaign, W&M averaged 14 wins and 26 losses over the last decade.

Worse still, the team had struggled under seven coaches in six years and seemed on the brink of extinction. Enter Harris, an All-Southern Conference catcher in the early '70s, who had a plan to raise Tribe baseball to unaccustomed eminence.

Now in his third season, Harris has organized his revival efforts into three categories: stable leadership, improved financial stability for the program and increased talent pool among Tribe baseball recruits.

By staying on the job for more than a year Harris alleviated the lack of continuity. He added to his brain trust by bringing in assistants Jamal Oweis '79 and pitching coach Bill Wallace. Wallace pitched 11 years for four major league organizations. In 1974 he went 7-0 for the Phillies and Yankees.

Harris himself took a substantial pay cut to become the first ever full-time baseball coach at the College. Leaving his job in Northern Virginia as a teacher of advanced placement American and World History, he returned to Williamsburg with a desire to elevate the baseball program.

"Though I had been away from the College for 15 years, it had seldom been out of my mind to return," Harris said.

He started by establishing a network of high school prospects, utilizing his own extensive contacts and those of his assistants. Harris' 10 years as a high school baseball coach in Northern Virginia were helpful in that area.

"We became very aggressive in recruiting, which is a new twist for William and Mary," said Harris. Despite a limited budget, Harris used the reputation of the College to pave the way to success.

"We've found that if a kid is being recruited by us and some of the other good in-state or ACC schools, for the most part, he'd prefer to come here if we can do a little something to indicate our commitment," he said. "We have a combination of a small student body and an unparalleled academic reputation."

In the past two years Harris' hard work has begun to pay off. W&M has brought in 11 all-district players, seven all-staters, two state players-of-the-year and two who have played in international competition.

Along with improving recruiting, Harris created a group called the Alumni and Friends of William and Mary Baseball that has been instrumental in supporting the program during a period of financial hardship. The group, composed of former Tribe diamondmen, contributed $45,000 last year and has pledged similar amounts for the next two years.

This support has not only allowed the baseball program to survive, but even to offer limited financial packages to recruits. "It shows that we're making a commitment to the player," said Harris.

Another support group, The Dugout Club, made up of local boosters of Tribe baseball, is also lending its organizational skills in fund-raising efforts, such as hosting a baseball card exchange and autograph session on campus this fall, featuring a number of professional baseball legends.

Harris isn't ready to confirm names, but rumor has it that several members of Casey Stengel's New York Yankees are confirmed, along with professional teammates of pitching coach Wallace. Proceeds from the event would be earmarked to create an endowed scholarship in the name of the late Vic Raschi '49, former Yankees hurler who pitched for the Tribe in the 1940s.

With new recruits and sufficient funding, all that remains is to turn the won and loss records around. This year's model radically differs from 1990's 9-31 expectation. Eighteen new faces this spring promise a reversal of fortune. "The new guys have enthusiasm and unity of purpose," said Harris.

Coach Bill Harris '73 (left) has high hopes for his 1991 Tribe baseball team with pro prospect Adam Geyer (center) and all-CAA right fielder David Ryan sparking the offense.

"In the fall our veterans could see how much difference there was in the talent level," he said. After losing their opener, the Tribe won 13 straight contests, establishing an omen of good things to come this spring.

Even with all the new talent, the team is anchored by several outstanding returnees. Adam Geyer, senior co-captain and centerfielder, is a legitimate pro prospect, according to Harris.

As a junior Geyer was all-conference. He led the team in almost every offensive category, batting .338 with nine home runs, 26 runs batted in, 12 doubles and six triples. He also paced the squad with an amazing slugging percentage of .656.

The only other senior, David Ryan, was all-CAA in 1989 before being sidelined by a knee injury last season. Ryan is a strong-armed, fleet footed right fielder. In his last full season, he batted .323 with 25 RBIs and 10 stolen bases.

Junior Jimmy Adkins, already one of the CAA's slickest fielding first basemen with a .986 fielding average, should improve at the plate, according to Harris. "Surrounded by stronger hitters, Jimmy should hit for average," he said.

In left field, junior Mike Sicoli returns. Over the last two seasons Sicoli has averaged .331 at the plate.

Excitement surrounds two sophomore transfers who should have an immediate positive impact. Brian Jenkins, a smooth second baseman who came to the College from George Washington, possesses "pro speed" that makes him a natural leadoff man. At Colgate Alex Creighton earned all-conference honors as a freshman third baseman. A left-handed power hitter, he will step into the clean-up spot.

Harris has Michael Ruberti, a high school District I All-American, pegged as the designated hitter. "Ruberti is a tremendous power hitter," said Harris.

Behind the plate sophomore Daryl Zaslow is set to start. Harris said that Zaslow has recovered from a knee injury suffered while playing "Jean Claude Killy" on the ski slopes over Christmas break.

The veterans of the pitching staff are southpaw Eddy Manning, Tom Logan and Dave Backus. Logan and Backus were thrown into key roles as freshmen last season. Two fireballing freshmen, Alex Pugliese and Chris Ciaccio, boast 90 mph fastballs. Top in-state recruits Matt Bestick and Eric Sandvig will lend their arms.

Submariner David Fletcher proved his worth as a reliever in the fall. His sidearm motion induced 90 percent of batters to hit the ball on the ground.

The season began Feb. 27 with a home date against VMI. After a swing through North Carolina in early March, there will be 11 consecutive home dates between March 10-27. "Nobody who's in Williamsburg in March can say they don't have a chance to see us play," said Harris.

Tribe baseball fans should take the opportunity to see the new spirit on the diamond. Maybe they can catch the first stage of Mike Harris' masterpiece.

Eight Join W&M Hall of Fame

The company of Tribe immortals increased on Feb. 22 as eight former W&M sports standouts were inducted into the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame. After ceremonies and dinner, the inductees were presented to the public at half time of the W&M-Richmond basketball game.

The most versatile inductee is probably Camilla Buchanan '66, who participated in basketball, lacrosse and field hockey. Since graduation Buchanan has developed into a world-class cyclist. She has won two world titles and 11 national crowns.

Buchanan graduated first in her class at the Medical College of Virginia in 1976 and currently practices medicine in Williamsburg.

Murray "Mac" Collins '75 ran his way to All-American honors in cross country in 1975 and was named the Outstanding Senior Athlete in 1976. He set numerous records including the freshmen indoor mile (4:06.3), and a share of the 3200 meter relay and four mile relay marks.

Collins is an energy conservation engineer today. He and his wife Suzanne have two sons (Christopher, 3, and Nathan, 1) and reside in Suffolk.

Known around William and Mary as "The Indispensable Man," Ed Derringe served the College for 28 years in a variety of positions, including baseball coach, assistant football coach, physical education instructor, business manager and associate athletic director.

A resident of Williamsburg, Derringe and his wife Arlyne have six children.

Mark Duffner '75 has become another in the line of successful coaches who got their start at the College. An All-Southern Conference defensive tackle in 1974, Duffner has compiled a phenomenal 49-5-1 record since taking over as head coach at Holy Cross in 1986. The Crusaders have won four Lambert/Meadowlands Cups and three ECAC Team-of-the-Year awards.

Duffner and his wife Kathy '76 have two daughters (Christina, 11, and Carolyn, 9) and live in Worcester, Mass.

A member of the Tribe All-Time football team, Robert Gadkowski '68 was twice named All-Southern Conference linebacker and made All-American honorable mention in 1967. He played for the Marv Levy team that upset nationally ranked Navy, 27-16, in Annapolis in 1967.

Gadkowski later attended the Culinary Institute of America and is now the executive chef at the Lobster House in Williamsburg. He and his wife Barbara have two daughters (Lisa, 20, and Amy, 19).

Richard "Rick" Pawlewicz '74 was one of the finest tight ends ever to play at the College. He earned AP All-American honors (third team, 1974), All-Southern Conference (1973, 1974), and All-East (1974). Many Tribe fans still recall Pawlewicz's electrifying 100-yard kickoff return against Virginia in 1974, the longest in W&M history.

Pawlewicz is vice president and general manager of the Leasing Corporation with the Allen Group Inc. Rick and his wife Ana have three children (Karl, 10; Hannah, 7; and Michaela, 5) and live in Farmington Hills, Mich.

A three-time All-Southern Conference selection at defensive back, Paul Scolaro '73 was recognized this fall as another member of the W&M All-Time football team. Against Citadel in 1970, Scolaro intercepted three passes, still a Tribe record.

Scolaro recalls playing in the Richmond game in 1970. "I'll always remember the final seconds of our 34-33 victory over Richmond which gave us the Southern Conference championship and a trip to the Tangerine Bowl," he said.

Scolaro is Parks Development Supervisor in Columbia, Mo. He and his wife Rebecca have three sons (Brian, 7; Keith, 5; and Nick, 3).

Peter Mason Tokarz '79 is the only gymnast in Virginia intercollegiate history to win four straight all-round titles. He advanced to the NCAA Championships twice, becoming the first Tribe gymnast to do so.

Tokarz is senior manager in the accounting firm KPMG Peat Marwick. He and his wife Karen live in Richmond.

New Hall of Fame inductees (l-r): Peter Tokarz, Rick Pawlewicz, Robert Gadkowski, Mark Duffner, Ed Derringe, Mac Collins and Camilla Buchanan. Not shown is Paul Scolaro.

Alumni College explores technological rewards and perils

Looking for a unique vacation this year? Something more stimulating than having your feet hit the hot sand? Alumni College offers just an opportunity. Along with your spouse, other family members or friends, you are invited to spend four energizing days in the familiar, serene summertime setting of William and Mary. The program is sponsored by the Society of the Alumni and takes place June 27-30.

"New Horizons in Technology: Remedy or Malady?," the theme of this year's program, will focus on the dual nature of modern technology, examining both the rewards and perils it has created for all members of civilization in such areas as business, genetics, information management and the environment. Ethical questions will provide an underlying theme for faculty lectures. Special activities, including a behind-the-scenes tour of nearby NASA Langley Research Center as well as a geology field trip and a visit to the biology lab for an exercise in gene reproduction, will take discussions an exciting step further.

Members of the faculty, well-known on campus for both their expertise and enthusiasm in the classroom, include: Hector H. Guerrero, associate professor of business administration; Gerald H. Johnson, professor of geology; Keith Miller, associate professor of computer science; Gregory Phillips, assistant professor of biology; and Lawrence L. Wiseman, professor and chair of biology. In addition, Frank Lendrim, professor of music and an accomplished organist, will entertain participants with a recital Friday evening in the Wren Chapel. On Sunday, guest speaker Rachele Hollander of the National Science Foundation will conclude the program.

Throughout the four days, you will meet new friends amidst the congenial atmosphere of familiar campus spots. Between lectures and activities you are free to explore campus, toss a Frisbee in the Sunken Garden, enjoy an ice cream cone in Merchants Square, tour Colonial Williamsburg or shop the outlets.

In any event, you can count on enjoying a unique learning experience — without a final exam! You will return home enriched and refreshed, having shared special times with fellow alumni from across the years.

To sign up, simply return the registration form with your payment or deposit no later than June 7.

Cost — $350 per person includes all meals, lodging on campus in the Reves Center (a newly renovated, air-conditioned dormitory that is home to William and Mary's international studies program), tuition, fees and activities. For participants who do not stay on campus, the cost is $275, which includes all meals, tuition, fees and activities. Information on non-campus lodging is available by calling the Williamsburg Hotel and Motel Association, 1-800-446-9244.

Payment — Accepted forms of payment are check, VISA or MasterCard. Payment in full or a deposit of $50 per person is required with the registration form. Full payment is due by June 7, 1991, to guarantee your reservation. Early enrollment is encouraged!

Cancellations — Cancellations made prior to June 19 are subject to a $25 cancellation fee. Cancellations made after June 19 are non-refundable.

Further Information — For a brochure with more details, write Alumni College 1991, Society of the Alumni, P. O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100. Telephone 804/221-1174.

CAMPAIGN FOR THE FOURTH CENTURY

The Women's Studies program, which operates under the umbrella of the Charles Center for Honors and Interdisciplinary Studies, integrates women's studies perspectives into the general curriculum, as opposed to standing in isolation from other fields of study. Above, Anne Pratt '70, '84 Ed.D. teaches one section of an introductory course in Women's Studies: Perspectives on Women and Culture.

While women's studies uses the lens of gender to refocus our view of the world, it also has emerged as both a distinct subject matter and a set of perspectives which energizes other disciplines.

"the grant which began the women's studies program ended in June of 1990, and with all state institutions experiencing cut-backs, I now face building the women's studies program with limited resources."

The Margaret Gove Endowment in women's studies will help Ventis build the program in numerous ways. Income from the endowment will be used to meet the program's most pressing needs, guaranteeing that faculty from a variety of departments are able to offer women's studies courses, bringing faculty from other campuses as visiting scholars, and providing for workshops, special lectures and exhibitions concerning women's issues.

Gove Gift Funds Women's Studies

By Melissa Gill '82

In many ways, Margaret Gove exemplified the type of student that William and Mary prides itself upon — bright, well-rounded, dedicated — a person who makes a difference in the world. After graduating from the College in 1967, she served for two years in the Peace Corps in Gudumaria, Niger. She was a firm believer in the women's movement, and was one of the few female licensed master electricians in the state of Massachusetts when she was killed in a car accident in Boston in 1983.

Although her death was untimely, Margaret's memory — and her spirit — lives on. Her parents, William '36 and Anne Gove of Concord, N.H., have made a gift of over $153,000 to the College to establish the Margaret Gove Memorial Endowment in women's studies.

Women's studies is a relatively new area of study at William and Mary. The groundwork for the program was laid in 1985, when more than 250 undergraduates expressed the opinion that the College should offer more opportunities for the study of women's lives, achievements and perspectives through new departmental courses, an interdisciplinary women's studies Program, and even an autonomous major. The program formally began in 1988 with a two-year Funds for Excellence Grant from the State Council on Higher Education in Virginia.

Although it once was thought of as a "fringe" perspective, over the past two decades women's studies has been firmly established as an academic discipline at colleges and universities across the country. In fact, more than three-fourths of William and Mary's peer institutions have substantial women's studies programs. According to David J. Lutzer, dean of Arts and Sciences, William and Mary studied women's studies programs at other universities, and then planned a program based on the best of that study. In August 1990 the position of coordinator of women's studies was created, and has been filled by Deborah G. Ventis, associate professor of psychology at the College.

In examining women's studies programs at other institutions, William and Mary faculty discovered that the most thoughtful literature and the most intellectually compelling programs in women's studies avoided parochialism and sought out relationships between gender, race, ethnicity and class. It is impossible, for example, to examine women in Southern literature, or the dynamics of the growing number of single-parent households in the U.S., without touching on all of these areas.

While women's studies uses the lens of gender to refocus our view of the world, it also has emerged as both a distinct subject matter and a set of perspectives which energizes other disciplines. Few would doubt the importance of examining women's history, the achievements of women authors, and the social and political issues that affect women in particular. But it also is increasingly evident that subjects such as political history, English literature, and even certain sub-fields in biology have been fundamentally reconstituted through the influence of women's studies.

William and Mary's program was designed to be multifaceted in order to take advantage of women's studies both as an autonomous field of study and as a catalyst for the reinvigoration of traditional fields of study. The 1988 Funds for Excellence grant underwrote the development of an introductory honors course in women's studies and curriculum workshops for faculty members who were interested in introducing women's studies perspectives into their courses.

The honors course is a multidisciplinary introduction to the position of women in society and women's contributions to culture. Contemporary issues are placed in a historical context, making use of the new scholarship on women of the last 15 years and both employing and investigating the perspectives of literary criticism, anthropology, history, sociology, art history, linguistics, psychology and politics. The curriculum workshops enabled faculty members to work together to explore ways that women's studies could be integrated into existing disciplinary offerings.

The program, which operates under the umbrella of the Charles Center for Honors and Interdisciplinary Studies, integrates women's studies perspectives into the general curriculum, as opposed to standing in isolation from other fields of study. The program currently offers an introductory course in women's studies, a women's studies minor comprised of courses taught by faculty in the humanities and social sciences departments, and a variety of women's studies programs (films, lectures, etc.) for the College community.

The Gove's gift comes at a particularly opportune time for the women's studies program. "Our program had the misfortune to be launched just as the College and the Commonwealth entered strained economic times," said Dean Lutzer. "The College is committing its own funds to build women's studies — the field is too important for us to do otherwise — but the level of resources that can be diverted to the new program is not sufficient." Ventis adds that

News flash! The former Norfolk/Virginia Beach Alumni Chapter has undergone a recent metamorphosis, which includes a name change to the "South Hampton Roads Chapter." The new name more accurately reflects the chapter's constituency, which includes alumni from Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Suffolk.

The change began in 1990 under the leadership of Mike Ware '78, former chapter president, with the advent of a chapter constitution and bylaws. The formation of a board of directors and election of new officers have set the tone for an exciting and event-filled year.

The new officers are: Andria Forte-Turner '77, president; Monte Mason '89, vice president; Tine Voerman '90, secretary; and Tom Johnson '85, treasurer. Other board members include Jay Austin '89, Debbie D'Angelo '76, Margaret Clay '58, Debra Perry '86, Phyllis Garriss Powers '59, Peter Mark Shaw '81 M.B.A., Susan Melinda Stancill '75, Nancy Ware '79 and Mike Ware '78.

The newly revitalized chapter has already shifted into high gear, planning an outing to the Admirals game, which took place in February, a theatre night in March, a summer barbecue and annual cruise on the American Rover, and special events for fall and Christmas.

On March 23 the chapter will cheer on William and Mary at the Crawford Bay Crew Classic, a first-time intercollegiate competition involving crew teams from six schools. The event promises to be a full day of fun for the entire family. What's more, a portion of the proceeds from food and beverage sales will go toward a William and Mary scholarship fund. For more details, see "Upcoming Chapter Events" in this issue.

South Hampton Roads alumni who wish to join the chapter may contact Andria Forte-Turner at 855-2385 or Debbie Perry, membership committee chair, at 427-2874.

New York Chapter Plans Active, Diverse Schedule

Winter storms and economic vicissitudes have not dampened the strong enthusiasm of the New York Chapter as it continues to augment its list of active members and host diverse events for area alumni.

The chapter prepared a lengthy calendar of events to ease winter doldrums and welcome spring. On Feb. 17 New York alumni gathered at Central Park's Wollman Rink to demonstrate their ice skating prowess. Later that week a group met at Shank's, a popular bar on New York's West Side, for Tribe Thursday.

Other Tribe Thursdays will be held in the following places: on March 21 at T.G.I. Friday's (1152 1st Ave.) from 6-8 p.m. and on April 18 at Darby O'Doyle's (43 West 46th St.) from 6-8:30 p.m.

Following the March Happy Hour, alumni are invited to see William and Mary's Suzanne Blakeslee '78 star in "Forbidden Broadway" (211 East 60th St.) at 8 p.m.

Tickets, secured by the chapter's program committee, are $25 for New York chapter members, $31 for non-members and are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Since there is a limited number of tickets available, the program committee is urging individuals who wish to see this play to mail their reservations immediately to: New York Alumni Chapter, c/o Andy Lark, 501 Fifth Ave., Suite 2103, New York, NY 10017.

On May 18 there will be a tour of Ellis Island for alumni and guests. Details are still being arranged and chapter members will receive a mailing about this event.

The New York Chapter's membership list now stands at more than 100 members. Benefits of membership include first-class mailings for New York area events and a discount on chapter activities. Individuals interested in becoming members should send $10 (for Young Guard members) or $15 (for all other alumni) to Andy Lark at the above address.

Olde Guard Day Set for April 10

The College will honor members of the Olde Guard during Olde Guard Day festivities on April 10 in William and Mary Hall. The program begins at 10:30 a.m. with registration and a reception followed by lunch at 11:30. Lunch will include remarks from President Verkuil on the College's recent achievements and plans for the future. The William and Mary Choir will also perform.

At 2:30 p.m. members of the classes of 1931 and 1936 will gather at the Alumni House for their respective 60th and 55th reunion celebrations.

Reservations for Olde Guard Day are due by April 3. If you have not received an invitation yet or you have questions, call the Society of the Alumni at 804/221-1174.

Homecoming Celebrates 'Solid Gold Memories'

After being held in November for the past three years, Homecoming takes place Oct. 17-20 this fall. With the promise of pleasant fall weather and vibrant colors splashed throughout campus and Williamsburg, alumni and friends are invited to celebrate "Solid Gold Memories," the theme of this year's Homecoming.

Five-year reunion celebrations will be observed by the classes of 1946, 1951, 1956, 1961, 1966, 1971, 1976, 1981 and 1986. Watch your mailbox for future issues of the Alumni Gazette and letters from your reunion planning committee. The September issue of the Gazette will carry complete details and a registration form for all Homecoming events.

USAir Discounts Available for Events

Alumni returning to campus for special events and meetings are reminded that USAir, in cooperation with the Society of the Alumni, offers discounted fares on domestic flights into Richmond, Norfolk or Williamsburg/Newport News airports. Alumni, family members and friends are all eligible for a 40 percent reduction on regular coach fares or a 5 percent reduction on the lowest discounted fare.

Olde Guard Day, Commencement/50th Reunion Weekend and Alumni College are among the upcoming events registered with USAir for these special discounts.

For reservations, call USAir at 1-800-334-8644 and mention Gold File No. 693639.

William and Mary students from Blackstone, Va., and the surrounding area received a welcome surprise during exams last semester. Members of the Southside Alumni Chapter prepared boxes of cookies and other treats for 52 students. Present for the wrapping party at Armbruster's Restaurant were (from left) Jackie Myers, John Harrison, Josephine Habel Bradshaw, Anna K. Weatherford, Lee Bradshaw, Barbara Henkel, Bob Henkel, Betty Wright Armbruster, Doris Jones, Sylvia Bradshaw, Joyce Levy and Joe Levy. Bill Armbruster is not pictured—he was the photographer!

While a new football season is just a few months away, alumni and friends will long remember William and Mary's outstanding 1990 season. The Tribe's success took them all the way to Orlando's Citrus Bowl on Dec. 1 for quarterfinal competition against Central Florida. Hundreds of alumni from Florida, Virginia and other points on the East Coast turned out for a pre-game reception, resulting in the largest alumni event ever held in Florida.

Members of the Chicago Alumni Chapter shared lively conversation and the fun of a "Gifts from the 'Burg" raffle when they gathered Nov. 11 at Barn of Barrington for their annual brunch. The raffle raised nearly $200 in funds benefiting Swem Library. Alumni winners and their prizes included (from l.) Judy Odland '69 (Williamsburg print), Mary Trigg MacArthur '84 (Virginia ham and bacon gift set), Gretchen Shaner '76 (home-brewed William and Mary ale), Payne Midyette '75 (Williamsburg peanuts) and Kevin Corning '84 (Society of the Alumni sweater).

1991 William and Mary Pro-Am

The 1991 William and Mary Pro-Am, sponsored by Joe Plumeri '66 of Shearson Lehman Brothers, will be held May 13, 1991, at the Golden Horseshoe Golf Course in Williamsburg.

The full day's events will include continental breakfast, an exhibition and clinic by a professional, 18 holes of play with a professional, lunch and beverages on the course, awards reception, prizes for the winning team and closest to pin, and complimentary cart, balls and tees.

The proceeds are used to build endowment to provide permanent funding for William and Mary Olympic Sports.

News of 1927 and all prior years

Dear survivors of the 1693-1927 Era: Much appreciated Christmas greetings were received from Rolfe Kennard '25, Anne Townsend Dudley '26 and eight of you in the Class of '27 — Ed Wilshin, Tom Yates, Leonard Born, Bill Morrow, Frank Hopkins, Bruce Stewart, Spike Smith and Margaret Muscarelle (Joe's widow), some with good news, some with bad. Perhaps I should be pleased with any news because Bruce Stewart and I were the only ones from our class registering at Homecoming.

Here's a bit of braggadocio to start us off in a good mood:

"To be a Virginian, whether by birth, marriage, adoption, or even on one's mother's side, is an introduction to any State in the Union, a passport to any foreign country, and a benediction from Almighty God!"

Improve that to read: "To be a William and Mary alumnus..." etc., and all of us can enjoy it, no matter where we live.

A pleasant surprise was a letter from Mathilda Cheney Whitehouse '25 seeking information on the Campaign for the Fourth Century, which I was able to supply.

Mathilda and her sister, Evelyn Cheney '28, now live at 12 Howland Lane, Hingham, MA 02043. Mathilda has recovered from a broken hip operation.

Blanche and Ed Wilshin spent last summer as usual at his old family home in Irvington, where he enjoys gardening. It keeps his stomach flat, he reports. He also enjoyed a recently purchased sailboat. Goal, he says, is to be around for the College's 300th birthday. Let's all make that a date! Sad note: his brother, Francis Wilshin '23, succumbed last April.

I regret to say that Spike Smith's wife, Helen, passed on in October, which prevented his attendance at Homecoming, something he seldom misses.

Bill Morrow's family and friends numbering more than 40 celebrated his 85th birthday in style, starting with a church communion, lunch at Bavarian village in Vermont, a matinee performance at the Weston Playhouse and concluding with dinner at Newfane, Vt. Those places must be close together in New England fashion.

Another highlight of the year for Bill was a busy tour to Washington to visit the White House, the National Cathedral, Mount Vernon and other attractions.

Anne Townsend Dudley recently wrote me a delightful account of her experience as a member of the women's basketball team which should interest girls on this year's team. She was a star on the pioneer W&M team from 1922 to 1926, after four years of high school experience. Let her tell the story:

"This concerns the first time the W&M women's team 'took to the road.' I was manager and had a friend in New York whom I wanted to see (and later married). None of the squad, including the coach, Miss Brown, had ever been to New York City. I had been there only once, spending the night before sailing to the Caribbean.

"I arranged games with George Washington in Washington, D.C., Swarthmore and Temple in Philadelphia, Adelphi of Garden City, N.Y., in Brooklyn, New York University and Savage in New York City.

"There was a great deal of money involved in items such as guarantees, gate receipts, railroad and hotel reservations, meals, transportation, etc. (no credit cards in those days). Yet, as I recall, we made money and didn't cost the College anything.

"We were gone about two weeks and won every game except Savage, a physical education school. We called this first trip by a W&M coed team a huge success.

"I haven't seen even one women's basketball game on TV in ages. I expect they play it like the men now — no 'side center.' Surely it isn't as popular a game as it used to be. However, I would hate to see it dropped from William and Mary's program."

Anne could have added that the gymnasium in Jefferson Hall was packed with students anxious to watch the girls play, all in midly blouses and bloomers!

Harking back to Homecoming, the attraction of passing years noted the loss of 31 fellow alumni from the Classes of 1917 to 1927, of whom there were nine from '27. No wonder Homecoming attendance grows thin for our classes.

In spite of this, Homecoming was a rousing success for those of us attending, starting with the Order of the White Jacket banquet and concluding at the Olde Guard luncheon and the moving Sunset Ceremony in the Wren courtyard. Dr. Frank T. Lendrim, the director, is a dynamic leader. No wonder the 30-concert tour of Europe last summer was such a success.

Here's an item that should interest you: At a meeting of the Cypher Society (former Board of Visitors members) I learned that our entering student-athletes boast an average SAT score of 1172 and more than 88 percent of them graduate. What a thrilling commentary on the quality of our athletic teams. What a challenge to other institutions around the nation!

Pardon me for two personal notes:
1. In May, Mary and I will have a great niece, Cary Cowlbeck, of Bedford, Va., graduating from W&M. A fine student, she first made the basketball team as a freshman walk-on and has played four years.

2. The Order of the White Jacket, which I organized in 1972 and served as its first president, recently named a scholarship in my honor. I am duly flattered and, I hope, humbled. Starting with 68 members who once "slung hash" in the dining halls, we now number more than 650 and give 10 $1,500 scholarships annually to needy and deserving students. As one of Red Skelton's characters was wont to exclaim: "I'm proud of that!"

Our next column is scheduled to appear in the June issue. My copy deadline is April 10. If you want to read it, please contribute some good word about yourselves right away. As I've said before, I'm not a fiction writer!

This is our year — our 60th Reunion, or if you want to be exact, it is the 64th year since we ventured here as innocent freshmen, unmindful of what approximately two-thirds of a century would hold for us.

The custom is a "numbered" reunion every five years. Few are privileged to reach the 60th, and beyond that each occurrence is a most precious one. We must resolve, therefore, to be here both in the spring for Olde Guard Day on April 10 when we will have a special reunion reception, as well as in the fall for Homecoming.

And while we're thinking of ties to our College, I think we can get excited over the Tercentenary in '93. It will be an outstanding event. The whole celebration will be no less historic than the founding in 1693. So plan to attend its counterpart in 1993. As a rare segment of the alumni you will be welcomed with red carpet treatment. See you in the fall!

Greetings from your new class reporter who needs all the help she can get from each of you!

John Holberton, who has served well for several years as our reporter, was forced to resign that position when he faced surgery during the late summer. You'll be glad to know that he is recovering nicely. He is also asking each of you to support this new reporter.

I talked to Carlton J. Casey recently and he sent you a message: "Tell our classmates that I am still alive and living in Williamsburg." He seemed very pleased about the fact. (You will recall the excellent job he did as chairman of our 50th reunion committee.)

Deepest sympathy is extended to the families of William A. Williams and Wallace H. Lynn whose deaths occurred last Nov. 14 and Aug. 1, respectively. William until recently had been a pharmacist at Tarboro, N.C., and Wally, the 1932-33 captain of the varsity basketball team, had retired after 30 years with Alcoholic Beverage Control.

My husband, John J. Reid, is quite ill in the health center of Williamsburg Landing where we retired in 1987.

Don't forget that April is the month we celebrate the Olde Guard. By now, you should have received an invitation to attend Olde Guard Day at the College on April 10. How about returning to the College on that special day to catch up on what William and Mary has been doing and to enjoy the company of old friends?

See you then!

So far, this seems to have been an off year for the class of 1937. Perhaps 1992, when we reach our 55th anniversary, will be more active.

Seventeen attended Homecoming: Ralph Baker and wife Anna Virginia Dickerson, T. Cornell Berry, Ellen Latane Gouldman, Harold Gouldman, Marion Hinman Gracey and husband Martin '39, Cornelia Land Hardenbergh, Linwood James, Carolyn Richardson McMurrin, Aileen Barclay Renn, F. C. ("Squinty") Rennolds, S. Warne Robinson, Fay Bryant Savedge and husband Jimmy '36, Anne Reynolds Wood, Walter J. Zable and Bertie Courtney Zuger. The 1937 hospitality room was the scene of joyful reunions.

Frequent travelers have not reported much news. Anne Reynolds Wood plans a trip to Alaska, her third. Connie Land Hardenbergh says that she and her husband, Hall, have recently sold their business and plan to spend some time traveling.

In February, my husband, Cary, and I flew to California where we visited a friend near Palo Alto and then drove up to Mendocino for a pleasant stay. On a trip down the Blue Ridge Valley of Virginia, Cary and I stopped to pay a visit to Marianne Keller Nixon and husband Ed at their delightful house at Massanutten Village, near Harrisonburg. They plan to move to a condo in the same area.

Of course the big news from the class of 1937 has been the impressive gift to the College from Walt Zable and the renaming of the football stadium for him. That has been covered elsewhere.

I would love to have more news from 1937 classmates, even if not so dramatic. See address above.

Greetings in the New Year! Belatedly, I send wishes to all of you for your good health, happiness and peace in 1991.

We're off to a good start with a plentiful supply of news this issue — may all our 1991 class letters be full of goodies. Is that a hint? Yes!

Dick Crane our class "jock," is also a divine dancer (proof — 50th reunion). He not only skis but plays tennis four times a week, bikes and swims. Some ski areas are free but he won't make the senior "freebie" at Alta in Utah until age 80. Show 'em, Dick — be there when the eight-oh arrives.

And more, Dick has been studying Spanish for the past two years at St. Joseph's and now Villanova, where he enjoys his campus walks which remind him of his W&M days. Dick and Adele returned for Homecoming last fall, had a great time and were appreciative of the splendid work and preparation the Homecoming committee members provided for yet another successful reunion.

The Cranes have done some traveling over the past year to Costa Rica (to test Dick's command of the Spanish language) and had Mexico in their plans to visit Dick's brother in San Miguel de Allende. However, now that they have a year-old grandchild, Alexander, they are typical "doting grandparents" (Dick's description) and may no longer wander as far from home as in the past. Dick, thanks for the newsy letter — ole!

Jim Bailey is not "working" from Oct. 1 to April 1, during which time he will be going through books, letters and papers, pictures, scrapbooks, etc., in his possession. They will be distributed to the Virginia Historical Society, the Historic Petersburg Foundation, Georgetown University and, of course, William and Mary. It all sounds interesting, challenging and tedious, Jim — good luck in your worthy efforts.

What a nice surprise hearing from Maggie Williams Lockwood, who now lives in Sarasota, Fla., after moving there 13 years ago from New York and Forest Hills. They live on the 7th hole of the Sunrise Golf Club. Her big announcement is that she's a great-grandmother. Maggie asked about Jane Hutcheson. I have no word on her — does anyone else? Thanks for writing, Maggie. I have sent your address to the Alumni Office and you should receive the next issue of the Alumni Gazette.

Back in October, Lucille Haynes Wagener brought us up to date on her and Tony's activities since they attended our memorable 50th. Last winter they enjoyed a Caribbean cruise aboard the M.S. Nieuw Amsterdam. High points were climbing the Dunn Falls in Jamaica and snorkeling off Grand Cayman. On their way home they saw Jean and A. T. Stewart in Largo, Fla. Then in May they went with a small group to Austria, Germany and Switzerland, the gem of that trip being the performance of the Passion Play in Oberammergau. Next was their annual sojourn in northern Wisconsin with family. Did they settle down after that? Heavens, no — they took off for the East to visit relatives and their oldest son in the Shenandoah Valley and Baltimore/D.C. area. The National Cathedral was this trip's highlight.

Back to Lucille, when she and Tony are home, they continue their volunteer work and their interests in crafts, sports and the church. Always nice hearing from you, Lucille.

Congratulations to Williamsburg Mayor John Hodges, who received the local Kiwanis Club's highest award for service and leadership last August.

Bill Eppes suggests that I run a column about favorite states visited by '39ers — or to carry it a bit further, perhaps favorite cities and what they have to offer. He was very impressed by Mobile, Ala., on a trip last fall, describing it as "lovely city, museums, historic houses and delicious food." Bill, I had no idea that you knew Marya Mannes, who was related to Frank Damosch '40 (deceased). She was one of my favorite writers and way ahead of her time.

Peggy Prickett Miller and Miley had a trip to Egypt last March, enjoyed a cruise down the Nile, and were overwhelmed by the places and monuments about which they'd heard and read for years. Then they had a week in Acapulco in June. Their brood continues to thrive, grow and move all over the place. Miley and Peggy are heading a successful fund-raising campaign for Christ's Church in Alexandria, Va.

Elaine Woody Walker has a new partner, an English springer spaniel named Dolly. Elaine, too, has been to school — with Dolly. Her other big news was having a wedding in her home in December for Chinese friends of son Andy. The bride and groom requested a Western wedding with all its traditions.

That wraps it up for now. Please keep those letters coming.

Hello, "guys and dolls" of '41! This is our year to cheer our 50th. And, you have a new class reporter — me, David Humphreys Jones. Who was he? One of the less outstanding fellows who muddled through. Was member of choir and Glee Club, took part in

HISTORY PROFESSOR RECEIVES NEH AWARD

James Axtell, Kenan Professor of Humanities at William and Mary, has been awarded a Fellowship for University Teachers by the National Endowment for the Humanities for the calendar year 1992. One of 114 awardees in an applicant pool of nearly 800, Axtell will use his $30,000 award to write a book titled American Encounter: the Confluence of Cultures in Colonial North America. This is the second volume in a trilogy he is writing for Oxford University Press called "The Cultural Origins of North America." The first volume in the trilogy won three prizes, including the Albert B. Corey Prize of the American Historical Association, and was a selection of the History Book Club.

CAMPAIGN SERIES WINS GRAND AWARD

A series of campaign brochures published in connection with the Campaign for the Fourth Century at William and Mary has won a grand award from District III of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). The brochures, which developed the case and needs for the $150 million capital campaign for specific areas of the College, were produced by the publications and development offices at the College. In addition to the grand award, CASE also cited the College's publications office as having one of the best programs in District III, which consists of 13 southeastern states.

Backdrop Club, managed the basketball team for two years, and was a PIKA. Absorbed as much education as possible, and still managed to have some fun: Oh those dances at Blow Gym, Fancy Dress, Glenn Miller in the Sunken Garden, and a little beer drinking at either of the Greek restaurants, the Lodge, or Ironbound Inn or even Jonesy's (no relation). Happy memories.

After graduation I served as naval officer in World War II, seeing action at Salerno, Anzio and southern France on minesweepers. Met Larry Pettet in Bizerte where we reminisced a while before he left on his ship.

After war returned to live in Morristown, N.J., area for several years, getting together with several alumni groups, seeing Betty Carter '40 (before she married Walt Zable '37 and moved west) Kormic Lapolla and others.

Moved to Pittsburgh area where I renewed friendships with John Prince and Charlotte and family, also old glamorboy Armand Harkless, who I regret to say died several years ago. Meanwhile I switched from being a pharmaceutical representative to becoming a New York stockbroker and later a family financial consultant.

Meanwhile, had three children and now three grandchildren, one of whom is a third generation Indian at W&M, now a sophomore, Kim Lucas.

Am now enjoying retirement in Lexington, Va., the old hometown of my wife, Ann Read Jones '44.

Now on to my first column. From notes

50th Reunion

May 17-19, 1991

passed to me from my worthy predecessor, John Prince, glad to hear Bob Kern has recovered from his operations.

Congratulations to Irma Luxton Nelson on her retirement from the Connecticut School System. She sees Nancy Trice and Julia Wright in North Carolina occasionally.

Sorry to hear of "Cookie" Rowan Christian's loss of her husband. She is now suffering from arthritis.

Also have a beautiful poem, "A Campus Walk—Spring of '41," by lovely Peggy Peck Latham.

Hope all the Brennans, John and Tom, and good spouses are doing better health-wise. That condo in Palm Beach certainly sounds inviting right now. And they are going to see Dot Whitfield (former fellow Jersey-ite) in Williamsburg.

I've got a lot of renewing of old friendships to do and also getting to know those whom I missed at school.

So, please bear with me. I may mess up a few names, but I'll be trying. Help the column and me by dropping me notes as to what you are doing and giving me data on anything of historical or amusing interest.

I missed last Homecoming due to a rough return of cancer. Suffice it to say I am a little debilitated and limited as to activities. However, I intend to be back for our 50th this May! Looking forward to seeing you all.

A small PS: When I, a damn Yankee, moved to "Rebel" Ridge in the "heart of the Confederacy," I could almost smell the tar and feathers. Would you believe over half my neighbors are "rascally Yankees"?

Greetings from the Gentle City. It is great to begin a new year with the acknowledgment of an honor bestowed upon a classmate.

Jayne Taylor MacLean has been a librarian at the National Agricultural Library since 1970. She developed expertise in assembling information relating to organic farming and gardening, and in 1985 was named coordinator of the new Alternative Farming Systems Information Center. This system also provides information on non-chemical approaches to maintaining soil and plant health.

For her leadership in this endeavor Jayne received the 1990 "Safe Food Trailblazer Award." Jayne was also cited as one of the first USDA employees to openly support alternative agriculture. Congratulations on an innovative career.

Had a note from Jean Ford '45 and Virgil. They are still enjoying their retirement in Foxboro, Mass., where Virgil serves as choirmaster and organist at their local church.

Our granddaughter, Caitlin McCall, made the Dean's List her first semester at Hollins College.

This feeling I have on Jan. 14 as I write this column is one of deja vu. January of our junior year was one of sadness and uncertainty. Remember all those telegrams that began "Greetings" that arrived when we came back from Christmas vacation? When you read this in March we'll know what happened at midnight, Jan. 15, 1991. Let us pray.

Dear Classmates, we have a newsy letter this time. Before I report on our 45th reunion, I have some correspondence I received in the interim between the last letter and this one.

A delightful surprise was a letter from Collinson Pierrpont E. Burgwyn, M.D., of Clarksville, Tenn. Col and twin brother Nat were at W&M from February 1943 to October 1944. Although Col lists himself in the class of '46, he says he knew more people in our class, so he is a reader of our letter. It was a thrill to hear from you Col.

Adele Hetherington Wildman, one of my former roommates, of Charleston, W.Va., said on her Christmas card that she had retired and is thoroughly enjoying unpressured living. She and Bob attended his 50th high school class reunion last April at the Greenbrier. 300 Classmates returned. The Wildmans are enjoying traveling. Have seven grandchildren. Happy 1991 to you, Adele.

Mary Schafrit Barnes sent a letter from Seattle to say she was sorry to miss this reunion, but that she and John hoped to make our 50th. They wanted to be remembered to the class. She has three children and four grandchildren. They travel frequently—14 trips last year! We will look forward to seeing you for our 50th, Mary.

Jack Carter '44 wrote in October that John M. Fields, who was in our class but had his education interrupted by war, had visited Joan and him. John and wife have a boat on which they spend their winters on the west coast of Florida.

Abner Pratt sent news he was unable to convey to me at the reunion. He is busy writing a Home Rule Charter for the town of Eastham, Mass. He is also vice president of the Cape Cod District of the Retired Federal Employees Association. Says he is busier than ever. He and Libby see Nina Parsons Cosgrove and Grace Duvois Bell on a regular basis.

Dinny Lee McAlinden expected to see Willie Anne Boschen Wright and Jack after Christmas. They will be visiting their son, Jack, who has moved from Atlanta to New Jersey. Dinny has promised to become our class correspondent after the spring letter. So, I have one more to go.

Marion Lang Van Dam sent a nice note on her Christmas card. She was sorry to miss the reunion, but talked to Betty Willcox D'Agostino and felt almost like she was there. Marion and Ted have added two more grandchildren for a total of seven!

They took a computer course to "feel more in tune" with their grandchildren, who can work one with ease.

Floss Metius Johnson wrote on her Christmas card that she and Dwight had a grand time at the reunion. Dwight had a horrible cold that slowed him down some. But we did manage to play our scheduled golf game with my son, Garrett, and a friend at Kingsmill. The weather was perfect.

Before the reunion, Jeanne Schoenewolf Preston had a house party for four days. Audrey Hudgins Thompson of Orlando, Fla., Nancy Speakes Tibbetts of Manhasset, N.Y., and Sheila Keane Gibbons-Fly of Malibu, Calif., were the guests. After our reunion, Sheila accompanied her husband on a trip to India. Jeanne's son, Bill, is currently working with the Prison Fellowship Ministry in Florida—a job he sought and finally landed. He has the entire east coast of the state.

AND NOW THE REUNION REPORT! If you weren't there you missed a wonderful weekend in every respect. The weather was beautiful, warm and fair. There was an exciting football game on Saturday. The class picture was very good. We had a great hospitality suite right off the lobby of the Wyndham Hotel. It was well used. The Saturday evening reception at Swem Library was very nice. We had our dinner and program at 8:15 in the Westminster Ballroom of the Wyndham. That was the real highlight of the weekend. Ruthie, our leader, outdid herself for the affair. As she said, "It was a fabulous weekend."

The theme of the entertainment was "Hats Off to the Class of '45." The magic of the weekend took us back to hats reminiscent of our four years there. It began with models of our duc caps, followed by colonial hats, rain hats and scarves, and then sports hats, a crown for our beauty queen, a whimsy hat for church, a wedding veil, and, of course, a graduation cap. The models weren't professional, but we had fun.

Fran Loesch Brunner read a funny, but oh so true, poem titled "Consider the Changes We Have Witnessed." For example, we were before TV, penicillin, polio shots, frozen foods, Xerox copies, contact lenses, frisbees and the pill. We got married first, then lived together. That is just a sample. I have a copy and if any of you would like one, just send me a stamped addressed envelope. The evening closed with Dick Foster '44 performing some of his amusing songs. He sings and plays the ukulele. He was very good and added just the right tone on which to end.

Ruthie, you are one super organizer. We are so lucky to have so much efficiency on such a low key. With you at the helm, there was no doubt that it would be a tremendous success. I hope I can help you with the 50th. It can't be better, but we can strive for the same high standard you set for this one. Our thanks to you from all of us who were there. We were 76 in all, I think, counting spouses. Isn't that great?

Here is the list furnished by the Alumni Society. If you were there and are not listed, you must not have registered.

From Virginia: Jack Atkinson, Mary Simons Blevins, Fran Loesch Brunner, Martha Kight Bugg, Norma Carmines, Doris Wiprid Diggs, Mary Jane Howard, Edith Ker, Jean McPherrin Morris, Jeanne Schoenewolf Preston, Eleanor Rennie, Martha Macklin Smith, Ruth Weimer Tillar, Elizabeth Aurrell Shultz, Margie Sease Burruss, Willie Ann Boeschen Wright.

Maryland: Mary Raney Begore, Mary Carroll, Rachel Jorgensen, Mary Jones Price.

New Jersey: Dorothy Johnson Blum, Betty Willcox D'Agostino, Virginia Lee McAlinden.

South Carolina: Evelyn Johnson Selton, Lyon Tyler, Jo Parker Flint.

Florida: Sunny Manwell Connor, William Harrison, Audrey Hudgins Thompson.

Texas: Louise Thomas Dooley, Lee Ann Avery Merrifield, Edythe Marsh Traylor.

New York: Mary Hall and Nancy Speakes Tibbetts.

Maine: Nina Cosgrove Parsons and Abner Pratt.

Pennsylvania: Florence Metius Johnson and Cornelia Westerman Wolf.

California: Sheila Kean Gibbons and Roger Swire Wooley.

Delaware: John Crum and Thomas Dingle.

Arizona: Dorothy Hadley Burnett.

Tennessee: Joan Worstall Carter.

This took me an exhausting three days of blood, sweat and tears. But it is all down in black and white, and I will be able to look back and re-read it with fond memories.

I wish all of you a happy and healthy New Year. Start thinking now about 1995. I hope you won't miss it.

My last report originated in the kitchen of Roy Shelor's '49 in Thousand Oaks, Calif. This one is on the East Coast at the Atlanta airport. My fogbound destination is Savannah where I hope to meet Carol and the Achenbach clan to celebrate her dad's 100th birthday on Dec. 22. Interesting man who couldn't afford the $15 fee for his Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Arkansas in 1913.

When I saw W&M demolish U-Mass. 38-0 in the NCAA play-offs, it occurred to me that Jimmye Laycock would leave W&M. He accepted and declined the job at Boston College and all the papers gave him a lot of print. Glad we kept him. U.S.A. Today amused me with "Jimmye, we hardly knew ye" at Boston College.

Carol and I drove to Richmond for Tommy Thompson's funeral services. There was a good representation of old teammates and friends. Among those present were Jack and Charlotte Cloud, Buddy Lex, Knox Ramsey, George Heflin, Tom Mikula, Jack and Jean Bruce, Jud Nixon, Ted Filer, Moe Maddox, Elaine and Dickie Lewis and Bobby Dwyer. We have since lost Ralph Floyd '49, who was athletic director at the University of Indiana.

Lou Creekmur wrote that he is retired from Ryder in Fort Lauderdale and plays golf every day (guess it doesn't rain there) and works with the NFL alumni. Jack Hoey wrote he will see us in Florida in January.

Nice card from Patsy Keen Williams '48 who enjoys our travelogue. Still lives in Williamsburg and wants a return visit from us.

Lou Hoitsma '48 visited us to work. Helped me pour a cement patio and footings for an enlarged glass porch facing the water. Weather was cold and it didn't let up until after 10 p.m. Lou gets even as I help him to move furniture at his Williamsburg condo. Can't overlook that Knox Ramsey dropped in to advise and help.

Here we go—good old Delta! Was in Fresno recently and the L.A. smog is moving north. I received a letter from Bill Lazall '47 and Adair who live in Manhattan Beach, Calif. Bill wanted to make Homecoming but detoured to New York on a business trip. Plans to visit W&M in 1995 for No. 50.

Saw Harry Stinson '47 at President's Council weekend with Helen Thomson Stafford '48. First time Harry's been back to W&M. He looks great and teaches genetics at Cornell.

Jim Hickey '42 was at the Order of the White Jacket cocktail party along with Eric Tipton, Jack Freeman, George Hughes, George Heflin, Don Ream (doctor released him for one day only—operation), Bill and Surrey Harrison, Roger Woolley, Joe Giordano and "Boo" Meeks. Last saw "Boo" on the Via Veneto in Rome in 1944.

WALTON AWARDED BUSINESS MEDALLION

Samuel M. Walton, co-founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Wal-Mart, Inc., has been named the 1990 recipient of the T.C. and Elizabeth Clarke Business Medallion by the School of Business Administration at William and Mary. The medallion is presented annually to a business leader who exemplifies "the highest standards of professionalism and integrity in the practice of management." The recipient is chosen by the business school faculty. A citation accompanying the medallion applauded Walton's success in creating Wal-Mart, "one of the best-managed companies in the world." In 1988, Walton was named the nation's most admired retailer by Fortune Magazine and was the recipient of the National Retail Merchants Association Retailer of the Decade Award. His Wal-Mart chain of stores, which emphasizes high quality and low prices, includes more than 1,000 stores located throughout the Mississippi Valley and Gulf Coast states.

Last saw Jim Hickey at W&M in 1941. He later was head coach at the University of North Carolina and athletics director at the University of Conn. I recently looked at a picture of the 1942 squad, which won the Southern Conference title. Five were killed in the Big War — Harry Johns (my roommate), Andy Blagg, Pappy Fields, Clint Crockett and Johnny Grembowitz. Five others have died or nine out of 32. I think there is a lesson there someplace — like time flies!

Jack Cloud was honored at the Bucknell game before his induction into the College Football Hall of Fame, which took place at the Waldorf Astoria in early December. Actually it was a weekend affair with a cocktail party, dinner and a Saturday brunch at Tom Mikula's. Dinner was a "roasting" of Jack by Tom Mikula, Henry Blanc, George Hughes, Lou Hoitsma and Buddy Lex. Dickie Lewis was the emcee and Bill Murphy gave the invocation. Paul Verkuil '61 presented Jack with a scroll on the 50-yard line at halftime, which Jack returned to the school in the name of the '46-'49 teams. Jack has announced the Navy football games for 15-20 years, but on acceptance "fractured" Dr. Verkuil's name. Had a great post-game impromptu dinner at Jimmy Seu's restaurant. Want to thank Bob Steckroth for his many photos of Jack and the troops. I've passed them around.

Margie Oakes Jolly and Bill '47 were at the game. Now live in Petersburg. Watched Homecoming parade with Eddie King, Jim Bowman, Ray O'Connor, Corky Wampler and a host of others at the Chiswell House. We were interviewed by a reporter from the Daily Press in Newport News comparing pre- & post-World War II at W&M. Good to renew friendships with so many Class of '50 members as well as to see such annual returnees as Bob and Pat Arnold Adams '49 and Duke and Ruth Maroney Isaacs '49.

At the luncheon on the lawn we saw Jim "Bull" McDowell, Lucy and Bill Murphy, Shu and Henry Shook, Martha and Buddy Lex and Betty Aurell "Artist" Schutz. Also had good visits with Tuga Wilson Clements, the Rev. Ed Wisbauer '52 and Eddie King '48, who all returned to W&M for the first time after experiencing great personal losses.

With all of our running, Carol and I made six W&M games this fall — a record. Even had season tickets. Attended the 100th game between W&M and Richmond. Finally met Richie Tarrant, the University of Richmond basketball coach. His wife, Joan, and Carol worked together at Y&R in New York City with Carol introducing them.

At halftime both of the all-time teams were introduced. Names you will recognize are Buddy Lex, Jack Cloud, Tommy Korczowski, Vito Ragazzo, Lou Creekmur, George Hughes, Knox Ramsey, Ralph Sazio, Tommy Thompson and Jack Bruce. Congratulations. Like the Jack Cloud Day, there were many old faces in the crowd.

Have enjoyed many visits with Aubrey Mason '47 and his sons after the games. One son faxed a congratulatory letter to Jimmie Laycock before the first NCAA game advising him that Aubrey was planning to attend the game and would like a headphone set to help him coach the game.

With the football season over, I need your help. Write and I will return your stamp. This missive is being written early as we left Virginia on Jan. 1 for a cruise out of Miami and two months in Georgia, South Carolina and Florida. Tough to be retired! Faith, love and peace for the big 1991.

Bernard Skiba was erroneously listed as deceased in the June 1990 issue of the Alumni Gazette. I am happy to report that he is alive and well and now living in Red Hook, N.Y.

Sara Wilson Saunders recently had an exhibit of her paintings at the Dillard Gallery of the Lynchburg Fine Arts Center. Sara, who originally worked as a drafts-woman, started painting in 1977 and now prefers subtle watercolors. She particularly enjoys portraying buildings, especially from the early part of this century.

Bob Cartwright reports that he and his wife joined the Jack Hickmans and Ted Flagg's Homecoming weekend as they have been doing each year since our 35th reunion. The Hickmans recently moved to Norfolk from Murray Hill, N.J. The Flagg's live in Pittsburg, Kan., where Ted has been associated with Pittsburg University. Bob also saw Charlie Bryant, Calvin Coghill and Elaine Campton Baker. Elaine is now president of the Williamsburg Alumni Chapter.

Lou Hostetter Winder and Gus attended the New York wedding of Trevor and Beryl Colburn's daughter last fall. Trevor was an Exeter Exchange student during our senior year and is now living in Florida. Dot Dettmer McLaughlin and Ben are now full-time residents of New York City. Dot retired from her job as a social worker and now works for H&R Block for the tax season.

Teddy Nicas Maddox reports from Jeffersonville, Ga., that after 22 years serving as secretary-treasurer of the County Farm Bureau she has retired. She is now working part time in her husband Jim's law office where she serves as bookkeeper. "We still live in Jeffersonville and really enjoy the rural life," Teddy wrote.

The Maddoxes' two children are employed in Macon, Ga., about 25 miles from Jeffersonville. Daughter Angela was graduated from the University of Georgia where she joined Chi Omega sorority and was sorority president her senior year. Son Jimmy was graduated from Georgia Tech and joined Phi Delta Theta fraternity where he was president his senior year.

Teddy is choir director for the Baptist Church and serves as secretary-treasurer of the local volunteer fire department of which her husband is chief.

Harry C. Anthony Jr. has lived in Savannah for 21 years, having moved there from Greensboro, N.C. Harry says living in Savannah has provided some unique experiences such as witnessing St. Patrick's Day celebrations. "Every year," he says, "Savannah is invaded by 300,000-plus party-goers, and seeing is believing."

Harry retired in 1984 from Atlantic Cement Corp. after 28 years in sales in the Portland cement industry. Today he is active in volunteer work, serving on the board of trustees of the Counseling Center for Substance Abuse. Harry's wife Betty works for NCR Corp.

Ann Buckles Orteig was featured in a page-one story in The Virginia Gazette of Williamsburg recently. The article noted that Ann's acting credentials include Broadway shows, movie roles and appearances on television. It also said Ann had acted with such legends as Red Skeleton, Ernie Kovaks, Phil Silvers, Helen Hayes and the late Sammy Davis Jr.

"But locally," wrote reporter Bill Tolbert,

PROFESSOR RECEIVES CORPS HONOR

A professor at William and Mary has been cited by the Army Corps of Engineers for helping threatened or endangered birds find nesting sites on Virginia's Craney Island. Biology professor Ruth Beck received the Commander's Award for Public Service, a recognition that the corps hands out infrequently, according to the Norfolk District Corps of Engineers. Beck has worked with the corps at Craney Island since 1985. She has helped prepare the area to attract birds, monitored nesting spots and patrolled the area to keep outsiders from comanaging least terns, piping plovers and other birds.

"she is recognized as 'Mom,' the woman on television commercials who checks out and stamps her seal of approval on used cars for two Tidewater automobile dealerships." The article went on to detail Ann's successful career in the theater and her current work on a master's degree at Virginia Commonwealth University as a drug and alcohol abuse counselor.

Selvi Vescovi, former president of Upjohn International, has been re-elected to the seven-member board of directors of Carrington Laboratories Inc. of Irving, Texas. Selvi, better known as "Stretch" during his college days, was also elected chairman of the board.

Hugh DeSamper of Williamsburg, senior director of corporate communications with the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, is among numerous foundation employees who have elected to retire under a special early retirement incentive plan, according to a report in The Daily Press of Newport News. DeSamper, who had planned to retire in early 1992, decided to retire in early 1991, calling the plan "an offer I couldn't refuse."

A special appeal to every W&M 1951 graduate reading these words: Resolve to write me a postal card, and within the next 24 hours. In just a few sentences, tell me what you're doing now, what you've been up to in the past, and what you'd like your old classmates to know about you. Think what fun it will be reading this column next time. And all for just 10 minutes of your time plus 19 cents for a postal card. Just do it.

Thanks to those of you who keep in touch through your notes. We need to hear from the other 95 percent of our class! Please, please put me first on your list of "must write" letters in 1991.

Jack Martin had joined the ranks of those in our class who have retired. He had been a franchised Chevrolet dealer for 36 years in Manassas, Va. He and Thelma have enjoyed their 181 acres near Warrenton, where they raise Angus beef cattle, but hope to move permanently to their home on the Gulf Intercoastal Waterway in St. Petersburg Beach, Fla. Can you believe they have eight children, 15 grandchildren and a step-granddaughter! Jack still remains actively involved with his son in a real estate limited partnership. The Martins have been traveling extensively in Hawaii, the Florida Keys and most recently in Australia.

As usual, Dan and Emmy Ketterson Smith's Christmas note was delightful to read. Dan travels in New Hampshire, Maine and Massachusetts supervising student teachers and is chairing a faculty committee on outcomes assessment. He also is writing a book and several papers. Emmy is vice president of the UNH Foundation and uses her MBA training in endowment, pooled income funds, public relations, etc. They enjoy their extended family, singing, gardening and traveling — most recently to Hawaii.

Billy Farley's card showed him again in a summer theatrical production, this time "Social Security."

Nancy Ruth Adair of Neshanic, N.J., had a call from Anne Howard Green '54 who lives in Parkersburg, W.Va.

Bev Simonton Kelly retired from teaching in June, but keeps busy with activities and with her singing in Williamsburg. Among other projects, her husband Jim '51 is working on the College's 300th anniversary celebration in 1993. One daughter graduated from William and Mary and works as a historical interpreter at Carter's Grove Plantation. The other has moved to Connecticut where her husband is rector of St. James Episcopal Church in Farmington. Bev and Jim have one grandson.

Jim and Barbara Smith traveled to Germany this past year to visit their daughter, Anne Dudley, and her family. Bill and Ginny Campbell Furst took a cruise to Alaska to celebrate her parents' 60th anniversary.

I wish I could give you all the fascinating details of Ed and Ginnie Gary Lupton's two latest sailing trips. They sailed on a 35-foot sloop up to Portsmouth, Va., crossed the Albemarle Sound, settled in at Manteo on Roanoke Island, N.C., and crossed the Pamlico Sound to SwanQuarter, N.C. In October they began their three and a half week cruise to the Bahamas. Their experiences were based around good and bad weather and the places which seemed most interesting. They enjoyed a pleasant crossing to Memory Rock at the edge of the "banks" and put into Green Turtle Cay to clear customs. Other stops were Man of War Cay and Marsh Harbor. In the Eleuthera Islands they caught two dolphin fish and a king mackerel.

Ed is chief of the personnel division at Patrick Air Force Base's "Project Emeritus," a volunteer program recruiting retirees and/or their spouses of all armed forces in the area to help out active duty personnel in jobs ranging from typing and computer positions to engineering.

Carolyn and Chris Moe's holiday note was welcome. This fall Chris directed a premiere of a new translation of Euripides' "Women of Troy," with original music composed by their son, Eric. This year "Eight Plays for Youth" will be published; playwrights include former students as well as the editors.

Jay and I spent 10 days with our children who were not at home for Christmas. That meant driving to Ohio and on to western Pennsylvania after the holidays. Jay retired from Philadelphia Electric Co. in November and welcomes the change. At the moment our plans include a trip to North and South Carolina in early June. We send you our wishes for a happy and healthy 1991 and prayers for an end to the crisis in the Middle East.

Our 35th reunion was wonderful. Your committee consisted of Bill Prince, chairman, Cynthia Kimbrough Barlowe, and Betty Holladay Clarke. I thank all of you who attended for your camaraderie and enthusiasm for our class and its place in history. Many memories were shared and to quote Cynthia "it really was a fun weekend."

I am saving the wonderful article given to me by Joan Danskin Kemble to use later because it is so fascinating. The Kembles have a homestead, "Udderly Woolly Acres," on which Tom and Joan raise enough farm animals, fruit and vegetables to satisfy a large part of their nutritional needs with enough left over to sell. Farming is only a part-time occupation for both of them. Tom also works at the Hartford Courant and Joan is a Glastonbury town registrar. Tom explains that he would call the homestead a farm if they at least had a hayfield or grew some of their feed!

Don Glover teaches at Mary Washington College where he has been promoted to Distinguished Professor of English while Alice Glover teaches biology at Germanna Community College. Don is taking a sabbatical this spring and they hope to go to Greece and Crete. The Glovers have four children (three W&M alums, one Duke alum and two grandsons).

Betty Wright Carver said she couldn't think of anything interesting to say, but she did want us to know that she has three great sons, two grandsons and daughters-in-law and she keeps very busy.

Mary Ellen Wortman Ackerson is enjoying retirement and traveling. She loves to see friends from the past who come Terry J. Whitson '83 J.D. has been named associate director of corporate and foundation relations in the Office of University Advancement at William and Mary, effective last month. Since 1989, Whitson has served as director of development and alumni relations at the Medical College of Virginia's School of Nursing in Richmond. Prior to that she was associate director of annual support at William and Mary from 1987 to 1989 and was assistant director from 1985 to 1987. She also has been a labor relations specialist with the Naval Supply Center. Whitson received a B.S. degree in 1977 from the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Briar Patch, a play by Deborah Pryor '77, has won the Charles MacArthur Award for outstanding new play at the 1990 Helen Hayes Awards, presented at the National Theatre in Washington, D.C. Briar Patch was originally produced at the Arena State in Washington. Pryor also won the $20,000 Nichol Fellowship awarded by the Motion Picture Academy, for a screenplay version of Briar Patch. Pryor is a 1980 graduate of the University of Iowa.

David Hughes '90 has been awarded a 1989-90 Academic Merit Scholarship by the Drew University Graduate School in Madison, N.J. The award is made yearly to an entering student who presents a distinguished academic record and who shows unusual promise for scholarly achievement. The award provides full tuition remission and a $5,000 stipend.

through the Alexandria area. The Ackersons have one W&M son, one Duke son and one University of New Hampshire son.

Fritz Wilson is semi-retired and living in Alexandria, Va., and Clonmel Ireland. His two children graduated from W&M in '86 and '89.

Martha Wren Briggs gave us all a few laughs when she produced her Auditor's Office bill dated Dec. 20, 1951. Tuition and general fees were $200, Chandler 123 was $110, minimum cafeteria board $138, laundry $15...total $484. (College laundry use was optional!)

Betty Holladay Clarke and husband Cal (who incidentally were responsible for acquiring the 1955 Thunderbird convertible which represented our class in the homecoming parade on a simply glorious fall Williamsburg day) observed that Tri Delt had nine classmates return!

Bill Butler and Nancy Binney Butler '57 live in Toledo, Ohio, and have three children — Holly, Tracy and Bill Jr. — and two grandchildren.

John Mahoney and Dee Dee Daniels Mahoney '57 have four sons and four grandchildren. John is still with Penney. He now commutes from Dallas to New Jersey and says he is looking forward to the "good life in a few years."

Gail Wannan Mosher is "just loafing around playing lots of golf with hubby Dick, when he is home." Dick travels all over the world from Bangkok to Tokyo, to Seoul, Australia and all over Europe. Their son, Brett '88, is a golf pro having fun teaching and planning on some mini-tour or tour playing. Gail maintains contact with the younger generation by being Tri Delt alumni treasurer. She notes their lifestyle is different and they have a lot of fun comparing notes. Gail and Dick are fudge-makers for local charity events and she is known as the "Cookie Lady" at Halloween.

Ginny Broaddus Glover and husband Al live in Alexandria and have two married daughters and one son.

Carol D. Petrie Wait lives in Schenectady, N.Y. For 17 years she has been the capital district library council serials librarian. Husband Sam is associate dean of science at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. They enjoy "warm water," Mayan architecture and visits to the West Coast and Capital area visiting children in Bethesda and Santa Monica. Carol says they have too many challenges to think of retiring yet.

Ann Callihan Hines and Quimby live in Suffolk. They're doing genealogical research and had to miss the Homecoming football game because they drove to Quimby's 91-year-old uncle's house in Sussex, where Quimby's great-grandfather was buried, to talk with the uncle and 10 cousins. Ann also loves to play golf.

Howard Cline is practicing law in Flint, Mich., and lives in Grand Blanc, Mich.

Helen Grinnan Khouri lives in Garden City, N.Y. She was widowed in 1976. Her son Andrew is currently in the Navy and stationed in Maine. Helen works for the Apple Bank in Garden City, N.Y.

Tish Rustad Herrmann and Shorty came from Fayetteville, N.C. They have four boys and seven grandchildren. Shorty retired from IBM after 32 years and now has his own consulting business also titled IBM (It's My Business)!

Darrell High Wittkamp and Bernie live in Richmond. They have five children and two grandchildren. Three have graduated from W&M and one is currently a freshman. One daughter has graduated from U.Va. and U.Va. law school.

Martha Jordan Stringer has lived in Atlanta for the past 19 years. Her husband Jack works for IBM. They have three children: Allison lives in Burlington, Vt., Mark in New York and Steve will graduate in May from Tulane.

Pat Crews Hutchins and husband Otis moved to La Canada, Calif., 22 years ago and love it... "have a motor home to go to the beach, etc." They have two children.

Daughter Debbie is married and has a 5-year-old son, and son Jeff just graduated with a degree in landscape architecture. Pat works part-time at the Fletcher Jones Foundation awarding grants to private colleges and universities. She also volunteers for the Tournament of Roses Parade, her church, the W&M alumni chapter and is the current president of the Kappa Alpha Theta alumnae club. Otis is a media director, is active in the Colgate Alumni Club and plays the tuba in Tuba Christmas and a local jazz band.

Susan Rosar Sheehan and Charlie will retire in the fall. They plan to spend winters in Vero Beach, Fla., and summers in Highlands, N.C. She extends an invitation to "come and see us!"

Joan Evans Swanson lives in Williamsburg at Queens Lake. She works at a dentist's office with computers. The Swansons have two children, both graduates of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Spare time is spent sailing on the York River, sewing and doing genealogical research.

Bernice Magruder Sherwood and Deborah Young Cauffiel stayed with the Swansons for Homecoming.

Bernice and husband John live in Irvine, Calif. They have two sons...one doing graduate work at the University of California-San Diego and the other a junior at Cal State. Bernice is currently directing tours through the U.S.A. and does local guide work in the L.A. area. Deborah lives in Danielson, Conn.

Joan Pearce Jabaut and Ron are residents of Pittsford, N.Y. (outside Rochester). They have two children, a boy and a girl, and three grandchildren, all of whom live nearby, so "we are not moving." Ron has retired from 28 years of teaching and now works full-time in banking. Joan is still teaching... "life is good."

Barbara Diggs Littell works for the Brookings Institution: "D.C. think tank — runs seminars in U.S. and overseas on public policy for senior managers in government and business." Barbara's two children are a lawyer son and a to-be-lawyer daughter.

Peggy Donnelly Hino and Pete '53 live in Albuquerque, N.M., "the land of enchantment," where they have dwelt for 15 years. Their son Peter is a doctor with a private practice in dermatology.

Bruce Saxe is a practicing radiation oncologist. Bruce and wife Susan have two sons, Peter and John. Bruce lists his hobbies as golf, tennis and flying.

Jane Kessler Upshur from Charleston, S.C., has a two-year-old grandson. Jane is busy as the course director for the medical and dental students' pathology courses at the Medical University of South Carolina.

Vivian Krick Hill and Roger live in Chatham, N.J. Roger retired from Quantum Chem Corp. in December after 31 years. They will winter in Florida and teach economics on an adjunct basis.

Sally Little Hodges lists Thomasville, Ga., as home. She is "still alive, still married, has three self-supporting married children, five beautiful, brilliant grandchildren and is having a lovely life of leisure, playing tennis and bridge in preparation for writing The Great American Novel."

Yolanda Grant Harrell, of Seneca, S.C., is an oral interviewer for Clemson University Tri-County Tech and Pendleton Historical Society. The project is Black Heritage in the Upstate. The Harrells relax on their lake, Lake Keowee, on their pontoon boat, a floating rec room with couches, a table and carpet. Yo says that Barbara Brown Harman and Arlie are moving into Seneca on Nov. 7.

As for the Kappels, Dick and I are proud grandparents of Alexander Frederick Haak, daughter Caroline's son. Our son Richard is in the Anderson School at UCLA working toward his M.B.A. and rooming with a fellow Brown University grad. We will be vacationing in Fiji, Auckland, New Zealand and Australia this spring and are truly looking forward to being Down Under.

I am saving the Christmas and holiday news for the next column, hoping much of it does not change. As I reviewed the Homecoming records and personal encounters I just want the following attendees to know that we know they were there:

Elsa Stromberg Bandi, Bunny Belford Scheie, Florence DeHarte Burns, Edward CoCo, Betty Lowe Eaton, Robert Forrest, Bill Gatling, John Kepley, Fred La Croix, Claire Schoener Laedtke, Ira Levine, Susan Allen McGrath, Dabney Miller, Bill Neal, Larry Phillips, Lewis Saunders, Anne Lunas Vincent, Pat Sperb Waby, Milton J. Gassner, Joyce Wilkinson Brown, Don Spivy, Barbara Coogan Kledzik, Lee Everitt Kostel, Glenn Pearce, Larry Young, Marge Willard Duer and Joe Campagna. All were seen having a marvelous time...and if I've missed you let me know!

In closing I want to thank Betsy James Simmons and Cynthia Kimbrough and their spouses for hosting the wonderful Sunday Brunch...the source of much of this information. Keep writing!

I know you are all aware that this column has been missing for the last few issues. The reason is that I haven't received any news from you all — so it's now up to you. Please write or everyone will think the Class of '57 disappeared into thin air!

Heard from Betsey and Bruce Hathaway at Christmas. Their photo cards are great and they haven't changed a bit in 34 years. They have been busy building a beach house, and their son, Brantley, who lives in Alexandria, will be married in September. Also received cards from Mary Jo and Tom Rink, who live in Penhook, Va., and Janie Iott Cornwell, who lives in Tennessee.

The Scott family is fine. Our eldest son, Jim Jr., is now in law school, and our daughter, Anne, was transferred to Houston. Jim and I visited her and husband Greg this past summer in their lovely new home and had a wonderful time in spite of the Houston humidity. Our youngest, Ken, who lives in Dallas is being married in September. As for me, I am still active in real estate — if you can call it active in this sluggish market.

That's all the news for now. Please write so I'll have something for the next column!

Peter and I were hoping to "meet up" with many of you last fall at Homecoming — however the turnout of the class of '59 was extremely sparse.

Kathy Watkins Lawler was radiant as always. She doesn't look old enough to have three children who have attended William and Mary. Jay and Kathy are loyal supporters of the Tribe's sports program.

Sarah Delk Perkins '60 was enthusiastic revisiting the campus with her husband Tom and fifth-grade son, David. Her son Stephen presented her with the first grandchild this year, and her daughter Laura was married in June — a busy year! Sarah teaches eighth-grade history in Sumter, S.C., and encourages visitors who may be passing through the area.

Bev Harris Olsen has had a "good year." Although she is still working at the school library, her husband Ric has retired so they do get many mini-vacations. One such trip included Barbara Tomblor Carey and her husband Tom visiting from Maryland.

Emma Lou Marchant Martin has become a noted watercolor artist in the Richmond area. She is a docent of 15 years experience at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, and has been active in art education for children and adults through teaching workshops for the University of Richmond, the Ginter Botanical Garden, and privately. Emma regularly exhibits with the Metropolitan Artist Association in Richmond.

Linda Lavin has done it again! She is receiving raves for her starring role of Rose in "Gypsy" playing on the Great White Way. This year she has not only learned the songs, moves, dances and lines for this show but also has time to run her own production company, Big Deal Inc., to develop films and TV series.

Would appreciate receiving any and all notes from any or all of you '59ers before "that" Peter from the class of '58 snatches any more of our news stories!

Nancy Ramsey Carwile received her Ph.D. in curriculum and instruction from the University of Virginia. Her dissertation titled "The Value of Predictable Books for Adult Beginning Readers" came out of her zeal for literacy programs especially in the southside Virginia area where she has been teaching.

Nancy is director of special academic projects at Southside Virginia Community College. She has served the college as an adjunct and full-time faculty member, recently serving as an adjunct faculty member at U.Va. teaching an education course, Activities for Math Concepts and Problem Solving. Nancy has published articles in various educational publications. She has been asked to present a workshop at the Virginia State Reading Association meeting this year and was a presenter at the International Reading Association, North American Conference on Audit and Adolescent Literacy. She has two children in college, a daughter at William and Mary and a son at Virginia Tech. Congratulations, Nancy!

Sherry Parrish Swan is traveling all over the southeast in technical sales. Al is still in banking and very involved on the Olympic Committee. They're thrilled Atlanta will host the 1996 Olympics. Sherry saw Linda Neese McCormick and her family in Atlanta.

We had a great time seeing Dick '61 and Dale Harris Cohen this fall at the bar mitzvah of the son of Owen Knopping '61. Dick is finding his law practice doing less real estate and more litigation. Dale's consulting business is booming and taking more and more of her time. Time off is spent golfing, traveling and skiing. Their daughter has gone back to school at Duke for her M.B.A. while their son Doug just graduated from Duke and is attending law school at Cardozo in New York City.

Ron and Vi Sadlier Huse are pleased with the progress of their art gallery. It is very time consuming, but rewarding. Vi is active in her church and the Ridgewood Arts Council.

Pat Thomas Ogren is looking forward to another graduation at William and Mary this year with Ginger getting a diploma — and looking into graduate schools in physical therapy.

Rosemary Brewer Philips and

ALUMNUS RUNS GULF AIR WAR

The general in charge of the air war in the Persian Gulf is an alumnus of William and Mary. Lt. Gen. Charles A. Horner, commander of the U.S. Central Air Forces, received his M.B.A. degree from the College in 1972. A graduate of the University of Iowa, the 54-year-old general has been in the military for 31 years. In the gulf war, Horner commands and coordinates some 1,800 U.S. warplanes and 435 Saudi, Kuwaiti, British, Italian and French planes. Horner joined ROTC at Iowa and later went to flight school. He flew combat missions during the Vietnam War and later was named commander of the 9th Air Force, which includes all fighter bases east of the Mississippi.

DRAEGERT RECEIVES PRUDENTIAL EAGLE AWARD

Laura E. Draegert '88 of Roselle Park, N.J., has been named the recipient of the Prudential Public Affairs Eagle Award for the second half of 1990. Draegert, who works in the creative services division, covers Prudential's investment units for the company's newspaper, and works on special projects such as the Prudential Foundation Annual Report. The Eagle Award is presented semi-annually to a public affairs employee who exemplifies exceptional customer service.

Charlie had a wonderful trip to Alaska last summer with the William and Mary alumni travel program. Doug Morton '62 was on the tour also. They went to Homecoming but Rosemary was attending the Colonial Williamsburg History Forum so she missed the Homecoming activities. They had dinner at Kings Arms Tavern with Rosemary's sister Kathie '64 and her husband Charlie Jones.

Sally Siegenthaler Lichtenstein is again chairing the Rehabi Chili Cook-Off and is already knee-deep in kidney beans and jalapeno peppers. The Rehabilitation Service of North Central Ohio consumes much of Sally's time including editing its quarterly newsletter and serving as president of the auxiliary. She co-chaired the Holiday Home Tour before Christmas. Sally's brother, Pete '61, came to Mansfield last summer when their parents were visiting.

Kathy Dudley Okada and her family are back in California. Dave took a job at Mattel and is working around the clock. Their twin daughters graduated from Stanford last year and are both in California.

At last... a little news! Please remember I need your input, so please take the time to fill in our classmates on what you're doing.

Joan Speer Henderson-Taylor has been in Dallas for three years. She owns Henderson-Taylor, an executive search firm specializing in corporate staff positions in legal, financial and data processing, and Insurance Career Consultants Inc., providing executive recruiting services to insurance clients. Joan's husband, Charles, is president of a commercial casualty insurance company. Her daughter Lauren Henderson is a freshman at Georgetown majoring in languages. Joan writes that she loves the opportunity this provides for her to return to the D.C. area. Her other daughter, Haidee, is in 6th grade. Having helped reactivate the Dallas Alumni Chapter, Joan is on the board this year and enjoying meeting alums from all eras.

I received a hilariously funny and touching letter from GINNY DIXON, whose life in the past year has been a real-life adventure, richly rewarding, and unquestionably embellished by her 10-year-old daughter, Cheryl, who Ginny maintains is "a child of the 21st century."

GINNY, who earned her doctoral degree in education administration from Columbia, is regional manager for the East Valley Schools and Program Division of the San Bernardino County schools. She was selected by the Council of Administrators of Special Education (CASE) as Outstanding Administrator of 1990, receiving the award in Montreal last June. The selection was based on her innovations and contributions to special education, impact as an administrator on personnel preparation and quality of services to exceptional children, and community service and education-related accomplishments. Congratulations, Ginny!

She was also selected by the Carter Presidential Center in Atlanta as one of nine Americans to participate in a training program in the People's Republic of China at Huazhong Normal University in Wuhan for a month last summer. Her experiences living and working in a city of four million people and 28 universities with few Westernized aspects were, needless to say, memorable and "awesome." Before returning to California, she cruised the gorges on the Yangtze River on the people's boat, flew to Beijing, climbed the Great Wall at Badaling, and visited the Ming Tombs, the Forbidden City, Tiananmen Square and the Summer Palace. What a year!

David Schaeffer and Jayne are still in Naples, Fla., where David is president of Citizens and Southern Bank. Their son, JD, graduated from Duke and is working in D.C. Son Mitch graduated from the University of South Florida, is married and has a baby (David is not used to that yet). Daughter Tracy graduated from Florida State and is engaged, and Kelly is a junior at the University of Florida. David and Jayne are really enjoying life as "empty-nesters."

A clipping from the Staunton, Va., Sunday News Leader mentions Larry Sartoris as one of two speakers at U.S. Representative James Olin's annual health conference last May. Larry is president of the Virginia Hospital Association. He graduated from the University of Richmond School of Law and previously served as a senior attorney with the Virginia Division of Legislative Services and as a researcher for the Attorney General's office.

I remain busy renovating an old house (which vies for a "money pit" award), keeping up with Meghan, my active 8-year-old, and secretly wishing my son Hunter will attend William and Mary in the fall. I miss visiting the campus as I did when my daughter Kelly was there.

Carol Hamerson Garrard, husband John and two daughters are headed to Oxford University for the spring term where he will be a visiting research associate. Carol and John have recently published their book on Soviet writers (which received very good reviews) and are already working on a second. Carol is looking forward to the months in England, to not work and just enjoy the country, writing and her children.

Peggy Merritt Thornton, whom I saw the first time in 20 years at our last reunion, writes that she and her family are fine in Dallas. Keith is a dentist and their two daughters are busy young teens. They took a vacation driving through the Southwest last summer and were able to make three trips to Williamsburg during the year — quite a feat from Texas, I'd say!

Anne Nelms McDowell writes that despite the downturn in real estate, she and Steve had a good year in California in 1990. They took several great sounding trips, including French Polynesia and Australia.

Janet Berglund writes that she had a good and busy year until October when she broke her ankle. At Christmas she was still not able to drive or walk unassisted. Hope that's much better by now, Janet.

Toni Biordi and Charlie DeGangi sent their son off to the University of West Virginia and have been discovering the joys and sorrows of "empty nest." Toni is head of the human resources group in the law division of AT&T, with expanded responsibilities including information protection and newsletters. Whenever we talk, she's swamped! They did manage time to go to Nova Scotia for the World Figure Skating Championships as well as several trips to Morgantown.

Missy Galloway Parker and daughters Beth and Lara are in the process of making plans to move to Chapel Hill in June. Lara plans to transfer to the University of North Carolina and Beth is preparing for school in North Carolina, while Missy is taking some courses and getting ready to go back to work in the fall. Welcome back to the East Coast!

Rick O'Neil is now on the faculty of Transylvania College in Kentucky, after spending years at Emory and Henry College. He is an expert in bioethics — specifically the issue of genetic analysis of DNA — and received his doctorate at Vanderbilt.

Note to Aubrey Raper: Bill Findlay wrote for your address, which I have managed to lose. Please call me and I'll give you Bill's address. He'd like to get in touch.

Milton and I have had a good year, too, mostly working at jobs we like and spending time with friends and family. I was promoted to personnel manager and then office manager this year. Unfortunately, the firm has now dissolved and I am staying on to collect bills and sell assets! I'll be looking for a new job in March in case anyone is looking for a great generalist! In between we're still busy working on redecorating the house — only one bedroom to go now.

I am writing this on the morning of Jan. 14, and it occurred to me that in 24 hours we may be at war. I hope by the time you read it that either we didn't go to war, or it is over.

It seems appropriate, though, to remember those in our class who are still serving in the Armed Forces: Cdr. Roger Blomquist, Cdr. William Chubb, Maj. Robert Cottingham Jr., Lt. Col. Bruce Long, Robert Pollard, Lt. Col. Charles (Chuck) Schwartzman, Lt. Col. Richard Sills, Maj. Russell Smeds (and his wife Debbie Woods Smeds), Cdr. William Turville Jr., and Dr. Quenton Van Meter. Also, Susi Smith Stewart, whose husband Ron '70 is head of an engineer corps in Saudi (I had a Christmas card from him), Jan Ernstmyer Brodie, whose husband Glenn '68 is at the Pentagon, and Chris Robbins with ARAMCO in Saudi Arabia. I'm sure you all join me in praying for the safety of these friends and their families. (If I omitted anyone, please let me know.)

Please get in touch, especially if you haven't in a while. Please write by April 1 for my next column.

73 Jay A. Gsell
2007 Edgebrook Ave.
Marshalltown, IA 50158

Greetings from the Corn Belt. In case you hadn't guessed by now the Gsells have moved again. Maryland just wasn't big enough to hold a "new" 75-year-old mayor of Cumberland.

The hardest part was Christmas away from the families, but the environment, lifestyle and education system are all superior. If only it weren't so darn cold (50 degrees wind-chill in late December). We moved into our new house on Dec. 17 so we are still unpacking, repainting and waiting for the closing on our "summer house" in Maryland. So much for our nomadic existence.

Mike P. Richardson via his wife, Cathie, is now residing in Chester, Va. (3826 Baldwin Rd. 23831; 804-748-6254). Mike is a Luskin's manager on the west side of Richmond. The "Rs" have two children, Chris, 7, and Chelsa, 9 months, and an assortment of animals.

Mary Marshall Winkfield recently tied the knot with Maj. David Finnell in Strasburg, Va. Mary has her J.D. from George Washington Law School and is an attorney in the district, which is now thankfully free of Marion Barry. David went to that liberal, hippy den in Lexington — Washington and Lee — and also received a master's from the University of Texas. A honeymoon in England was followed by setting up housekeeping in Alexandria.

Last October Gordon Kray had a sculpture dedication at the John Brown Museum in Harpers Ferry, W.Va. The relief is a tribute to Cyprian Norwid, a Polish cultural hero who in the 1850s spoke out on behalf of black American slaves.

Back home in Williamsburg, Deborah Rawlings was named assistant vice president at Sovran Bank where she has been since 1985. Armed also with her master's from the University of Tennessee, Deb moved from sales manager in December 1990.

Ed May, now in Buckingham County, is a jack of all trades and master of landscape and reality painting. After a 3 1/2-year stint in Washington as a computer man, Ed escaped to Charlottesville in 1978 where he now lives with his wife, Ceara Sullivan. His 13th annual Emperor of Light show at the Wesley Foundation provided Ed with a public outlet for his continuing passion, painting. Ed is a Renaissance man who supplements his artistic endeavors with odd jobs and truly mixes art and technology with computer layouts of his work in progress.

Finally, Colleen Whiting McCall writes from 3532 Timber Lane, Amarillo, Texas 79121 of her recent gathering of the Chandler third rat pack in the Burg. Colleen has been in Texas since 1976 when she received her master's in social work and married husband Dan. She is raising two children — Valerie, 9, and Lee, 6, and is program director for the Texas Department of Human Services Children's Protective Services.

Colleen passed on the following: Nancy Bull Weaver and her husband, Bill, are in Accomack, Va. Nancy is a speech pathologist in the local schools when she is not cutting ribbons with her husband, the mayor, and son Will, 6.

Sue Russell works for the Mitre Corp. and commutes from Purcellville, Va., daily.

Wessie Dunn Wine and her husband Dave live in Hagerstown, Md., (my old stomping ground) with their three children — Andrea, Allison and Alex. Wessie teaches psychology at Hagerstown Junior College and picked up her master's in counseling along the way. A group of '74s — Karen Clews (Laguna Hills, Calif.), Polly Brair Seweel (Fairborn, Mich.), and Wright Air Force Base and Leslie Bell Shannon (Oak Ridge Tenn., via Florida and CH2M Hill) helped our classmates take a trip down memory lane, the King's Arms, et al.

All points bulletins for William "Stan Smith" Lugar, Mike "the Jim Harmon imitator" Gill, Tom Conine, Scott Patter and Kathy Brooks came out of this gathering of classmates and cellmates.

I can vouch for the well-being of Margaret Ann Dahlman Martin and husband Ron '74 in North Carolina, Sue Stephens Greenplate and husband John '75, the bug man from Monsanto, in Missouri.

Pete Dowd, his wife Cathy and the girls are in suburban Cincinnati. They are waiting for the reincarnation of Pete Rose as Babe Ruth.

Keep those cards, letters and candygrams coming! From somewhere in Middle America, where Amtrak refuses to provide service, I'm your roving reporter. Peace.

Greetings, everyone. Christmas has come and gone bringing cards from many of you. Thanks for thinking of us. Keep the news coming in.

Shelley Nix, still based in London with Metaphor Computer Systems, has again been traveling the world. She journeyed to Paris, Budapest, Copenhagen, Brussels, Cologne and Lisbon, not to mention all over the U.S.

Randy Garrett married Mary Lynn Heinke in August. Mary is a child psychologist with Spotsylvania County Schools, and

JAMISON HEADS MARINER'S MUSEUM

John C. Jamison, former dean of the School of Business Administration, has been named the next chief executive officer and president of the board of trustees of the Mariner's Museum in Newport News. A former Wall Street banker, Jamison headed the business school for seven years until leaving that job in July. A graduate of Purdue and Harvard Business School, he oversaw improvements that led the school to being named one of the top 50 in the nation and top 10 in the South. He will assume his new position in July.

Randy is with Computer Sciences Corp. at the Naval Surface Warfare Center in Dahlgren, Va. They live in Fredericksburg and keep in touch with Charlie and Barbara Doyle who live in the area.

Nat Hamner wrote to say that he and Nancy had baby Catherine Carlisle Hamner on July 29. They're enjoying her thoroughly, but maintain that parenthood is a jolt to the system after 13 years of marriage!

The big news from the Larsons in Tennessee is that our next news will be coming from Wisconsin. We'll be Yankees once again as Dave takes over a design group in the Horicon plant. Our new address is listed above and is effective March 15. As always, we'd be glad to see any of you who happen to find yourself near us.

77 Carol Baranofsky Pugh 3025 Crossfield Road Richmond, VA 23233

Your eyes are not deceiving you, that is another new address at the top of the column! Mark and I were able to get a great deal on a new house in the west end of Richmond, and we moved in shortly after Christmas. After six moves in a little over eight years, we plan to stay put for quite some time!

I received a letter from Paul Staneski just after I submitted the last column. Last year was a busy one for him. In April, his wife Pamela gave birth to their first child, daughter Hope Caitlin (W&M '12?). In May, Paul received his Ph.D. in applied mathematics/statistics from Old Dominion University, where he had been teaching for the previous six years. Then in July he began a new job as director of research for an investment firm in Virginia Beach!

This past fall, Frank Hayes Jr. was named executive vice president of Virginia Lutheran Homes Inc. He has been with VLH for nine years, and served as administrator of Virginia Synod Lutheran Home in Roanoke and as fiscal manager for VLH. He is also secretary and a member of the executive board of the Virginia Association of Nonprofit Homes for the Aged.

Deborah Pryor of Virginia Beach won a Governor's Screenwriting Competition award at the Virginia Festival of American Film in Charlottesville this past October. Her award-winning play, titled Briar Patch, is set on the edge of the Dismal Swamp and has been performed at theaters in Washington and New York. Deborah has written eight plays and is known for use of murder as a dramatic effect in her pieces. One of her other plays, Wetter than Water, was performed by the Virginia Stage Company in Norfolk in 1986. After graduating from W&M, Deborah received a master's degree in fine arts from the University of Iowa.

Brenda Whitesell has moved to Raleigh, N.C., and would love to hear from other alumni in the area. She has been with GE since graduation and is currently vice president — finance for GE mortgage management systems.

That's all for this time. Please send me some material before April 10 for the June issue!

79 Mary E. Keen 3500 Colony Crossing Dr. Charlotte, NC 28226

Apologies for my absence from this space. The demands of business and a lack of news are my only excuses! Many thanks to those who took time to write.

Capt. Jorge Ascunce is currently serving with 2nd Force Service Support Group, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

The Independent Computer Consultants Association, Connecticut Chapter re-elected David K. Hamilton president for 1990. David has been president of Computer Perfect since 1983. Incidentally, he also founded and still owns said company! David lives in Farmington, Conn.

Marc Hines joined the Virginia Beach

office of Wheat, First Securities as a financial consultant. Marc went to Wheat following six years of sales management experience in the health care field.

Christopher Hux made his debut with the Virginia Opera during the 1989-90 Season. Christopher, a tenor, sang the role of Count Almaviv in "The Barber of Seville." He was also a recent Pavarotti finalist and placed second in the Liederkrantz Foundation Competition.

Paul Fletcher was promoted to publisher and editor-in-chief of Virginia Lawyers Weekly, a Richmond-based legal newspaper, in April 1989. Paul joined the paper in 1988 as news editor after three years of private law practice. The Fletchers have two children: Kathleen and Daniel.

Robin McCutcheon Duncan recently welcomed her third child, second daughter, Tess Elisabeth. Robin and Glenn are still in the trucking business, mostly long and short distance hauling.

Robert Muscalus has joined the staff of Harrisburg Hospital as a clinical instructor in the Family Practice Residency Program and as a staff physician at Mechanicsburg Family Practice Center. Additionally, Robert serves as medical consultant/correspondent for the local CBS television affiliate and is team physician for the Harrisburg Senators Baseball Team. He and wife Jodi are residents of Hummelstown, Pa.

William Mims has become quite active in Loudoun County, Va., politics. He serves as chairman of the local Republican committee and was honored as the best local party chairman in Virginia. He practices law in Leesburg.

Scott Custer is managing the new Centura Bank in Wilmington, N.C. Scott is senior vice president and city executive with Centura. He held the same position with Peoples Bank. Centura is a product of the merger of Peoples Bank with Planters Bank. The merger will make Centura the seventh largest bank holding company in North Carolina.

Kathy Dalton Mika recently welcomed her third child, Jason David, this past October. Kathy is a pediatrician in Culpeper, Va., and works at the University of Virginia Pediatric Emergency Room. She became a fellow in the American Academy of Pediatrics in June 1989.

Sue George entered private OB/GYN practice in September 1989.

Margery Spiller Squier is working as a medical writer for Johnson & Johnson in La Jolla, Calif.

Janene Hecker completed her emergency medicine residency in 1989. She is now practicing in the Pittsburgh area at Canonsburg General Hospital.

Again, many thanks to those who sent letters. Have a great spring!

81 Pamela Pritchard Padgett 311 Ashbourne Drive Orlando, FL 32811

Hello again — wishing you the best for 1991. I want to add a special note of gratitude to our men and women, especially William and Mary graduates, serving in Operation Desert Storm. I am sure our hearts are with people like Capt. William T. Kelly '82. If you'd like to write to him, his full address is Capt. William T. Kelly, 119-42-7660, HHC, 18th Airborne Corps (G-2), APO New York, 09657.

Back home, I have received news through the biology department newsletter on where a few of our classmates are. John E. Gersbach Jr. and wife Joane Marie Cassan Gersbach '83 live in Charlottesville, Va.

Susan Marks, M.D., received her M.S. in 1985 and Ph.D. in 1987 at Duke. After three years in post-doc at Indiana University, she teaches botany and ecology as an assistant professor at Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S.C.

Sandra Harrington, M.D., received her Ph.D. in biomedical engineering from U.Va.

FINERAN NAMED ASSISTANT VICE PRESIDENT AT NAM

Larry A. Fineran '79 has been named assistant vice president and director for government regulation and competition at the National Association of Manufacturers, the nation's largest national industrial trade association. Fineran joined NAM in 1985 as associate director of regulation and competition, and was later promoted to director. His expanded duties will include assisting the vice president in all department policy and management issues. Prior to joining NAM, Fineran was special assistant to the chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, and later served as a legislative assistant to U.S. Congressman Tom Kindness handling transportation, banking and telecommunications issues.

in 1989. After one year of post-doc in the division of gastroenterology at U.Va., she is continuing this work in esophageal motility at the Medical College of Wisconsin, Kenosha, in the department of radiology, as an instructor of radiology. David E. Fulford, M.D., is teaching his fourth year at Edinboro University in Pennsylvania.

In other news, Ronald H. Holmes has joined the Fredericksburg office of Wheat, First Securities as a financial consultant. Ronald received his master's degree in finance from George Mason University and came to the firm from Wiland Services Inc., headquartered in Boulder, Colo.

Ron Holmes

Last November Beth Scott Bednarek received an award for customer service and sales support during 1990 at the fourth annual dealer conference of Construction Data Control Inc., in Atlanta. Beth's company, 3C Plus, is based in Merrifield, Va., and specializes in automating construction firms including contractors, subcontractors and home builders in the mid-Atlantic area. Congratulations, Beth.

Beth Scott Bednarek

Ann Burke Moretz writes of the birth of their first child, Dixon Edward, on Aug. 13, 1990. Congratulations! The same is in order for Ann's promotion to vice president of the corporate trust division of NCNB in Charlotte, N.C. Ann works with companies on their retirement plans.

Betsy Tripician Davis also had her first child, Emily Elizabeth, on Sept. 3, 1989. She and her husband Sperry still live in Virginia Beach. Betsy keeps in touch with he has been doing since college. Martin writes that he is living in Chicago and works for First Chicago as a lawyer in the mergers and acquisitions group. He finished his law studies and got his M.B.A. at the University of Chicago in 1987 and joined the bank this year after three years on Wall Street and in corporate strategy for BSN in New York.

Finally, I want to thank cowboy Jimmy Hall for the newsy albeit censored letter I received from him in November. For interested parties Jimmy is alive and well in Kansas City and working for U.S. Sprint. He hasn't lost his sense of humor either.

I just succeeded in selling the last of the litter of 14 golden retriever puppies that Buckwheat Padgett had on Veteran's Day. It was a lot of work but well worth the pleasure of the experience. We're keeping a male, so any future litters will only be initiated by us! Take care till next time — keep those cards and letters coming.

Yes, I have moved once again. But, I promise this will be the last one for a long time. In fact I have purchased a house with Dwight Davis '83. We are engaged and are getting married in Northern Virginia on June 15. In other news about us, Dwight has completed his master's in acoustical engineering from Catholic University. I started a new job in September and am now a manufacturer's representative for Steelcase Inc., in Washington, D.C.

Scott Brazil '84 and Andrea Smelzer '87 are engaged and will be married April 20. A week later Todd Canterbury '83 and Beatrice Bornkast will be tying the knot in Northern Virginia. Aileen Aderton has purchased a house in Falls Church with her fiancé Allen Davis, Dwight's brother. They have not scheduled a date for their wedding yet. Mike Barnsback '83 will be graduated from George Mason University Law School this spring and was married in October to Lynne LaColla. Quite a busy year.

Tom and Laura Beth Wilson Roberts have a new baby — Erin Grace was born Sept. 3, 1990. Laura Beth has now retired from teaching to stay home and play mommy. Tom is still engineering on an aerospace project in D.C.

And, speaking of babies, Bob '84 and Theresa Cabano Creagh '84 are expecting their first child, due March 15.

Kevin O'Keefe married Diana Torres in her hometown of Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, on Dec. 16, 1990. In attendance were Kris O'Keefe '86 (bridesmaid), Steve Yeatts (usher), Thom Mistele (usher) and Tom Compenhaver. Kevin and Diana honeymooned on Sanibel Island, Fla., before returning to the Miami area, where Kevin is a top secret federal agent.

Tom Mistele relocated to Durham, N.C., from Raleigh and is still working for the state of North Carolina in its water quality/toxicity testing lab. Liz O'Brien and Karen Jordan '87 are also in Durham working on their M.B.A.'s at Duke.

Rumor has it that Doug Murphy has also been teaching. He is a kindergarten teacher in a small coal mining town in West Virginia and loves his work. In fact, he was Teacher of the Year in his county in 1989!

Desiree DiMauro is putting her talents to work in D.C. in her dual roles as environmental consultant and dancer. She has been traveling to New York City and dancing for the likes of Debbie Allen and Bill Cosby. Des and her Rottweiler, Gus, live in Alexandria, but dream of Radio City Music Hall!

Todd Armstrong has had some changes in his life. He has moved back to the San Francisco area to be the marketing

10th Reunion

October 17-20, 1991

Amy Pflueger Trumpoldt who lives with her husband Dave in New Jersey. They were expecting their first child this past December. Congratulations, moms!

I received a clipping from the Fairfax Journal about the marriage of Cynthia Linderer '81 and James Vincent Irving '81 J.D. on Sept. 22 in Salisbury, Md. The article states that Cindy holds an M.B.A. from the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania and is a management consultant with McKinsey and Co., Inc., in Washington. James is an attorney with Clary, Lawrence, Lickstein and Moore in Falls Church. Congratulations!

You may want to follow up on some of the national magazine articles over the past several years by Chris Phillips. Chris is a free-lancer based in Alexandria. We enjoyed a recent article written by Chris that was in the July 1, 1990, issue of Parade magazine. The article was about Charlie Deleo, caretaker of the Statue of Liberty.

Seems that someone is playing a prank on me and some of our classmates, via the Gazette. Martin Novoa writes to me that he did not attend Dave Back's wedding as reported in our last 1981 classnotes, nor has he seen his fraternity brother in several years. Apologies to Martin and Dave for the mix-up! Also, a while back I had received some incorrect information about Martin, and he has brought me up to date on what

GYMNASTS NAMED ALL-AMERICAN

Four members of the men's gymnastics team at William and Mary have been named to the Academic All-American team, selected by the National Association of Collegiate Gymnastics. They are Randy Jewart, Dan Krovich, Marc Lim and David Williams. To be named to the team requires a minimum of a 3.5 cumulative grade point average for the 1989-90 school year and an 8.5 official NCAA scoring average on at least one event. "The very essence of William and Mary gymnastics revolves about the scholar-athlete approach to the sport," head coach Cliff Gauthier said. "This national recognition is a fitting tribute to all of our gymnasts of both the past and the present."

manager for Wadsworth Publishing Co. And he has a brand new car in which to drive up and down all those big hills. While Todd was still in L.A., Tom Johnson came out to visit and Todd managed to conjure up an earthquake for him. Nancy O'Brien also came to visit, but had to settle for solid ground, not shaking ground. Todd saw his British friend Katherine Lapworth '84 M.A. (American studies) as well. She is now a director/producer for the BBC and owns a home in Stratford.

John and Allison Farwell Ball have a new addition to their household — daughter Michelle Alysm, born Nov. 3, 1990. John is working for Freddie Mac as a senior accountant and Allison has one more semester of law school at George Mason.

Tony McNeal is still hanging out up here in northern Virginia. He spent a weekend in December in New York with Mark Thalheimer, Jeff Grossman, Neil McShane and Sue O'Brien '86. They did the touristy things like visit the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island. They also saw The Piano Lesson on Broadway. Mark is still at the Gannett Center for Media Studies at Columbia. Neil is a high school math teacher at a Catholic girls school in Paramus, N.J., and Jeff is still working with his dad in New Jersey. Over Christmas Dave Butler and Breck Hall visited Tony. Dave is finishing his residency in Louisville, and Breck just finished his first semester of the M.B.A. program at W&M. They stayed in Chris Walker's new condo in Arlington while Chris was vacationing in Toronto.

Brian Gordineer has a new challenge. He purchased the historic Duck, N.C., United Methodist Church before it could be plowed under by developers. He now faces the problem of putting it together again at its new site near Williamsburg on Route 5. Brian lives in a house built in 1857 and runs part of it as a bed and breakfast.

In medical news, Peter Wilcox finished his residency in ocular disease and is currently in practice with his father in Hayes, Va. Tim Kinkead is practicing veterinary medicine near Williamsburg. And, Darren Sledjeski will graduate from the University of Maryland, College Park, this fall with a Ph.D. in microbiology.

Jeff Bradshaw is teaching in a private school in Fayetteville, N.C., where he is also the soccer and basketball coach and the athletic director. Jeff married Sarah Westbrook in 1988.

Lauri A. Bell has been promoted to manager in the audit department of KPMG Peat Marwick's Baltimore office.

That's all the news for now. My next deadline is April 10, so keep those cards and letters coming.

THE YOUNG GUARDE

Well, it is once again time for our update. So far it seems as though we are all having quite a new year.

A little bird passed on news of wedding plans in progress for Margaret Weathersby and Rob McLemore, Beth Buzard and John Armstrong, and Cara Smith and Chuck Schaeffer.

Anne Marie Belair Pace and husband Chuck were married in June in Charlottesville and quite a few W&M alums were on hand. Alison Dwier '86, Kelly Metcalf (now at Duke University), Kathy Moriarty (clerking for the Supreme Court), Mary Lynn Mescier, Laura Stotz and Cheryl Keenan Dunn all served as bridesmaids.

Alison Dwier was also married this fall. Her husband Doug Selden just happens to work at Albermarle High School along with Anne Marie and Chuck. Kerri Cox is still busy earning her doctorate at the University of Texas. Presently, though, she is in Athens, Greece, studying through a fellowship at the American School of Classical Studies.

Charlene Reese Bolos married husband George in September 1990 and Anita Rutkowski served as a bridesmaid. Anita is currently in D.C. after graduating with a law degree from University of Virginia.

The Wren building is serving as the site for many of our classmates' weddings. Lee Norris will be there in April to marry Billy Barnes '82. Lee is now living in Williamsburg and commuting daily to her job in Richmond. Lee has just passed the Virginia bar exam along with classmates Joe Jackson and Martha Bond Liebenow. Lee received her law degree from George Mason and Martha received hers from the University of Virginia.

Steve Rosenburg married Catherine Stokes '88 at Wren. Steve finished his law school years at Emory University and is currently in Fairfax, Va., and Catherine is working in accounting in Arlington. Alton Martin and Christopher Bright were groomsmen. Alton and Chris are roommates in Charlottesville attending graduate school at the University of Virginia, in law and foreign affairs, respectively. Steve's former buddies from Lodge 12 all made an appearance as well.

Rich Nixon is currently in his residency at Riverside Hospital in Newport News.

Kevin Bullock lives in Boston and works for Peat Marwick.

Joe Quigley has just begun his first year at Marshall-Wythe.

Kevin Lewis is presently running his own construction and contracting business in Portsmouth, Va.

Bill Connolly is at New York University's law school and Fred Federici is in his third year of law school at the University of Virginia.

Becky Brawley is looking forward to two upcoming events this summer. She will graduate from medical school in May, and marry Tom Sawyer in June. Becky will then go into pediatrics.

Johnny McGranahan is in Northern Virginia still and is marrying Deanne Buschmeyer this June. The couple will honeymoon in Bermuda.

Rusty Burgener worked at the National Geographic her first three years after graduation, then decided to go into museum work. She is presently getting her master's in museum education from George Washington University. After finishing school, she plans on marrying her fiance whom she met this past summer in Wash-

TAFRO BECOMES LAW FIRM PRINCIPAL

Alexander J. Tafro '80 of Summit, N.J., has been named a principal in the law firm of Brach, Eichler, Rosenberg, Silver, Bernstein, Hammer & Gladstone, a full service firm in Roseland, N.J. Tafro, who received a J.D. (cum laude) from Seton Hall University in 1984, concentrate his practice on real estate and business matters.

MCCREEDY RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP

James M. McCreedy '88, a third year student at The Dickinson School of Law in Carlisle, Pa., was one of two students recently awarded the D. Arthur Magaziner Human Service Scholarship. Given in honor of the late Mr. Magaziner, a noted Philadelphia attorney and public figure, the scholarship is awarded annually to one or more third-year Dickinson law students who demonstrate high standards of character, academic performance and commitment to the legal profession.

ington. It seems the two were participants on the same ultimate Frisbee team and soon after became engaged.

Quite a few of our classmates have started families. Carolyn Baker Flowers and husband Steve '85 are living in Indiana with new baby Jordan Lee. A few of the new babies were seen at Homecoming already cheering on the Tribe football team! Lisa Luxton Lucas and husband Al '86 brought along Luke to join in the festivities. Kelly Varner Pocta and Dave were also there with their new addition. There's a first tailgate for everyone, I guess!

The class of '87 was a talented bunch and a few classmates have decided on careers in showbiz. Chip Puskar can be seen on Saturday nights on the comedy show "On the Television" on the Nickelodeon channel. He recently landed a role in a stage production of "The Buddy Holly Story" and has just moved to London to begin working on it. I guess the avid Nest Pas fans helped him become accustomed to the spotlight.

As if that is not enough excitement, Patty Hanson also moved over to London after Christmas to join Chip there. They got engaged in November and are planning a June wedding. Congratulations to both of you!

Matt Deluca still calls New York home but was in Washington, D.C., recently with some news about people. Linda Powell is in New York and was seen on stage recently in Reversal of Fortune. Kate Fleming received an acting award for her performance in a production in Washington.

Ted Starke is working in New Mexico for the Santa Fe opera. Lester Lain appeared in several Washington area productions before moving to New York in December. He is there en route to Seattle, where he hopes to continue his interests in the theatre. Lester worked at the American Psychological Association after graduation. Now he leaves the office in good hands — Amanda Meyers and Chris Barrett are both there to carry on.

Hard work has really paid off for Danny Sheehan. He recently was named to Congressman Sisisky's small business committee on Capitol Hill. Roommate Eric Fedewa has just relocated to Texas. He decided to give up his career in car sales and began anew in a career in real estate there. Eric, of course, waited to move until after his family's annual New Year's Eve party in D.C. As usual it was the gathering place for all years of W&M alums. A good time was had by all! Roommate Tom Kennedy has

TAIWAN PRESENTS GRIMSLEY INTERNATIONAL AWARD

J. Edward Grimsley '51, editor of the editorial page of the Richmond-Times Dispatch, has received an International Communications Award from Taiwan. Grimsley was honored for increasing "international understanding" of Taiwan through his editorials and articles on political, economic and social developments in that country. The award was presented by Ambassador Ding Moushih, head of the Coordination Council for North American Affairs, the government agency that represents Taiwan's interests in the United States.

news of his own — he and Marty Armel became engaged and are in the midst of wedding plans!

Andrew Horrocks tied the knot in Reston, Va., in July. Andrew married Amy Will, a graduate of Cornell University. The two now live in Ithaca, N.Y., and both are attending graduate school at Cornell University.

Nancy Lane Smith was married to John Paul and now is in Richmond finishing her last year at medical school. Diane Dobbins Hooten married on Sept. 29 and is employed in Newport News, Va.

Marine 1st Lt. Troy Toth recently received his "wings of gold" at a ceremony designating him a naval aviator. Troy joined the Marine Corps shortly after graduation and completed 18 months of training to earn this designation.

Greg DeGennaro and his wife Kim currently live in Smyrna, Ga., where Greg is an audit senior accountant at the Atlanta office of Smith and Radigan, Certified Public Accountants. Greg is also the leader of St. Phillip's Cathedral's group for young married couples.

Jen Gimler is at work in Delaware after finishing law school at Dickinson College. She is with the law firm of Potter, Anderson and Corroon.

Linda Denise Tilley works at the Carolinas' Medical Center in Charlotte, N.C. She completed her graduate work in genetics at the University of South Carolina.

Alison Kruffka is at the University of Wisconsin — working toward her Ph.D. in developmental biology.

Sara Sawyer is a lab instructor at Bowdoin College in the biology department. She received her masters in zoology from the University of Maine.

Laura Dillard is getting quite a bit of publicity as the press secretary for Virginia Governor Douglas Wilder. She is known in Richmond as one of his most influential aides.

Well, it is now my turn to give you all my news. My roommate Marsha Fishburne recently upstaged our Christmas party by being caught off guard by an engagement ring! She will marry Dan Lycan on May 4 in West Point, N.Y. Marsha met Dan while skiing in the Poconos with Andrea Romig a couple of years back. The two will live in Northern Virginia after the wedding...that is, if we let her out of our lease so soon! Andrea is busy planning a wedding of her own in Pennsylvania on Aug. 24. She will marry Capt. Brian Burns and move to Little Rock, Ark. Linda Seiden, Marsha Fishburne and Mary Coyle '86 are to be bridesmaids.

Liz Haddad Martin and husband Pat are in Williamsburg, and Liz is expecting her baby in July! She is working at Riverside Hospital as director of outpatient services.

Lisa Viviano is with Deluxe Check Co. in Richmond and works closely with Margie Vaughan '88. Lisa had a Christmas party that turned out to be quite an alumni affair. Mike Walsh, Don Moscier and Steve Baker were all there. The three are all employed by Coopers and Lybrand in Richmond. Don is getting married this spring. Richmond-roommates Scott Flynn and John Peluso were also there to have some fun. Scott is busy studying for the Virginia Bar exam after receiving his degree in New York. John is taking night classes at Virginia Commonwealth University toward his master's, and is working for Wheat, First Securities.

Wendi Willard is also at Virginia Commonwealth studying for her master's in educational counseling.

Well, that's about it for now. My roommates and I went to the W&M — George Mason basketball game in January but didn't see too many familiar faces from '87; maybe next time. I am now living in what is getting to be more and more like a W&M sorority house. I live with Holly Barrett

TRANSCRIPT REQUESTS

The University Registrar's office at William and Mary will now accept transcript requests by facsimile transmission. If you wish to request a copy of your transcript, contact 804/221-1773. Each request must include a signature.

'88, Amanda Meyers, Marsha Fishburne and in September Stacy Zeman '90 moved in.

Please keep the cards and letters coming — it sounds like we are all going through some major changes and I love to brag about our class so let me know what is new!

Happy 1991! Before I go into all the great news about the Class of '89, I want to clarify a couple of things:

First, yes, Sean Mullen has been spotted in Northern Virginia, but he isn't living with Jeff Dean nor has he been vacationing with Kerry VerStreate. That would be Sean Murray.

Second, my deadline was in January, not March, so I apologize for the brevity of the column and hope to get a lot of mail from everyone by my next deadline which is early April.

Now on to the good stuff:

The Fedewas' sixth annual New Year's Eve party was a huge success! It was held on the top floor of Hotel Washington and the view from the balcony was incredible. John Fedewa looked dapper in his tux. He is busy working in Rosslyn for Advanced Computer Concepts. Just recently he mailed a catalog to the Society of Military Engineers — it has 30,000 members. He also just landed a huge contract with the Pentagon and is hoping that the government doesn't cut defense spending by too much.

Jim Smith was one of the many sponsors for the party. He works for AMS and travels between Rosslyn and Reston.

Curtis Shumaker was kind enough to give me champagne at midnight. He was currently involved in the production of Our Town at the Arena Stage in Washington. He informed me that Melanie Martin is involved with the theatre in Atlanta.

Linda Hartevelde and Erich Schock were enjoying the festivities. Erich is in his second year at George Mason Law School. Linda is working in New Jersey for the Star/Ledger doing advertising.

Ron Webber and Melissa Sutton were ringing in the new year. Ron is busy trying to save the world with his work for the Leukemia Society in Newport News. Melissa is teaching in the Chesapeake Bay area.

I got a chance to catch up with Vincent Howell at the party. He is still working for Coopers & Lybrand in D.C. He and Deb Calusine were "tripping the light fantastic." Deb is also employed at Coopers.

It was a pleasure to see Elmer Bigley on New Year's Eve. He was proving his excellence in the "name game." He and Roy Wright are a singing duo known as the Last Call and they are charming audiences in Northern Virginia. If you get a chance go and see them — they are great!

Suzanne Hartley, Ruth Philipp and Lisa Simpson were at Hotel Washington. They are roommates in Arlington. Ruth is enjoying her job at Price Waterhouse. In her spare time she is training her dog, Riley. Lisa is using her psychology degree working for a school in Northern Virginia.

Anson Christian was kicking up his heels sans cowboy boots. He was the impromptu photographer for the evening. He was enjoying the break before his second semester at SMU.

Mary Ann Love and Marnie Mitchell hailed the new year. Mary Ann is currently working for the D.C. office of the Barrington Consulting Group and loves it. She says the work is challenging and she enjoys it. Marnie is working for Peat Marwick in D.C. The two are rooming together in Crystal City.

Kathy Rickard flashed her engagement ring at the party. She intends to get married sometime in 1991.

Laurie Pearce was enjoying her semester break. She came down from Massachusetts to attend the event before she begins her second semester at William and Mary. During the summer she will be employed by Carter's Grove and using her knowledge in anthropology. She should be finished with her master's in August.

Kerry VerStreate and Sean Murray came into town to celebrate New Year's Eve. Sean and John Waggoner went to a Bills vs. Redskins game the Sunday before the party. They enjoyed cheering for the Bills amidst the Skins fans.

Kerry and I visited Samantha Wessel Weaver and her new baby Samuel. Samantha and her husband, Mark, are living in Woodbridge.

Pam Tate married Robert Lydons on Jan. 5. Robert graduated from the Naval Academy. Pam works in Smithfield, Va., as an assistant controller. Kerry and Julie Edmonds were bridesmaids. Julie works for Sentient, in Maryland, as a computer programmer. She is busy planning her wedding to Jeff Dean. Jeff is an associate programmer for Computer Sciences Corp. in Maryland.

John Waggoner escaped getting a "swirly" from Elmer Bigley on New Year's Eve. "Waggs" has been busy jet setting around the country. He recently visited New Jersey and Florida in January and is planning to go to Florida again in March.

The engagement notices are coming in fast:

Mary Jo Lawrence became engaged to Mike Coiro over Labor Day weekend in Williamsburg. They shared a celebration glass of champagne at the Green Leaf. Mary Jo is working on an advanced psychology degree at Bryn Mawr.

Anne Waleski and Brandon Black became engaged on Christmas Day. They plan to marry in the fall. Anne is working for Reynolds Corp. in Richmond. Brandon is in Signet Bank's training program.

Tim Dragelin and Lori Gabig also plan to get married in the fall of '91. Lori is at William and Mary getting her master's in French so she can pursue teaching. Tim is working for Coopers & Lybrand in D.C.

Sally Wellons and Steve McOwen are engaged. Sally is attending W&M for her master's in education. Steve is at George Mason Law School.

Jim Taylor married his longtime girl friend, Kelly, in Richmond. Freddy Wood and Paul Seidenberg were among the guests. Freddy is attending Vanderbilt Law School. Paul is working for Virginia Power and living in Chantilly, Va. Laurie Saultman came down from Pittsburgh for the wedding. In January she was considering a job opportunity in West Palm Beach working for the Expos.

Doug Williams got engaged to Jean Kelly '87 at Homecoming. They will be married some time this year. Doug is living with Dave Parmelee and Nick Petrucci. Doug works for Peat Marwick in D.C.

I ran into Ginger Miller at a party given by Maggie Margiotta '88. She told me that Jen Poullin is engaged. Also at the party were Joel Luen and Jonas Cedergren. Joel is continuing his graduate degree in Ohio and gets to New York on occasion.

Beth Vogel and Louis Dudney were married in the Wren Chapel on Dec. 8. They had a beautiful ceremony and a reception was held at Evelynnton Plantation. They are presently living in Arlington with no plans to go to London yet. Jen Douglas was present at the ceremony. She and Jason Morgan are engaged.

Alethea Zeto became engaged the week before Christmas to Steve, a co-worker at Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

John Barnes is engaged to Sharon McElwee '88 and they plan to be married this year.

Becky Pike will be married to John Weinbrenner in June. Mary Ann James is to be maid of honor. Mary Ann is working

JMU NAMES SCHERER NEW HEAD COACH

William B. "Rip" Scherer '74 was recently named head football coach at James Madison University. After being a three-year letterman as quarterback for William and Mary, Scherer served as graduate assistant at Pennsylvania State University. He also coached at North Carolina State University, University of Hawaii, Louisiana State University and the University of Virginia. Later he served as offensive coordinator at Georgia Tech for seven seasons, then held that same position at Alabama State University before joining the Arizona staff as offensive coordinator in 1988. While at Arizona, Scherer served as coordinator of all football operations, including recruiting, budgetary matters, travel and NCAA rules compliance.

in Fredericksburg for Leggett's. Although the commute from Richmond is hard, she loves working in the personnel department.

Anne Humphries is getting her master's in education at W&M. She is the head resident at Brown. Mike Mink has been spotted at the Green Leaf sharing a drink with her.

Kevin White is attending W&M for his master's in biology. He should finish up the program in the spring.

Other graduate students include:

Omar Sacerby is getting his master's in English at W&M.

Jim Bitner is attending his second year at the University of Richmond Law School. Wythe Michael is finishing up his first year.

Phil Davis is working on his thesis in history to capture his master's from Wake Forest. Phil made it to Williamsburg for Homecoming and enjoyed reminiscing with all his friends.

Clair Preisser is working to help the homeless in Atlanta.

When Kim Strang is not making the commute to Williamsburg to visit Ken Collins, she is living in Northern Virginia with Christine Lauffin. Kim works for AMS in Rosslyn. She is the head coach for a high school gymnastics team that crushed its opponents in its first meet. Christine is consulting for Price Waterhouse.

I missed Eleanor Carroll and Tracie Mertz on New Year's Eve, but El was very busy trying to meet her quota for IBM — which she did! She enjoys driving the highway in her spare time and ignoring women in uniform. Tracie and her family enjoyed the holidays in sunny Florida. After only a brief respite, she has to hit the books for another semester at University of Miami.

Marion McCorkle is teaching elementary school in Washington. She lives in Northern Virginia.

Maureen Flaherty and Ann Giffen live together in Richmond.

Anne Montgomery is still working for Arther Andersen in the tax division. She and her boyfriend, B. J. Sullivan, were dancing up a storm on New Year's Eve. In the fall they attended an engagement party for Elizabeth Sinclair and Robb Dugan in Winchester, Va. They are getting married in April. Elizabeth's roommate, Sarah Kelly, was also at the party. She and Elizabeth live and work in New Jersey.

Greg Fernandez is living in Williamsburg and job hunting.

Monty Mason is living in Virginia Beach selling products for Xerox.

Stephanie and Scott Moss are enjoying married life. Stephanie works at Circuit City in Richmond with Kerry VerStreate. Scott got a new job in Richmond and works with Dan Berry. They have been working on a job in North Carolina.

Lisa Weiss and her "15 minutes" of fame! She was one of the members selected by the Army to appear on Family Feud. The other members of her team were four very good-looking guys. She is stationed on the coast of California and lives on the beach. Her position gives her a lot of responsibility and she enjoys the challenge.

Mary Feltovic works in N.Y.C. as the director of telemarketing for Home Life Insurance.

Wedall Kadunce is working for a bank in Falls Church.

Dean Deangelo is working for Coopers & Lybrand in D.C. He lives with Jeff McDermott.

Laura Absalom and Diane Wright teamed up to coach a soccer team. Laura is working for Media General and Diane is working for First Investors. Both are working in Northern Virginia.

Jack Calandra is still working for Peterson Consulting. He has been assigned to a case in New Jersey and has been commuting back and forth to New York where he has an apartment.

Sue Morrison and Lisa Applegate

FISHER PROMOTED TO DIRECTOR'S POST AT EMORY BUSINESS SCHOOL

Connie Quesenberry Fisher '61 has been named director of executive programs for Emory Business School in Atlanta. She joined Emory in 1987 after serving six years in education administration at Valencia Community College in Orlando, Fla. have moved from Tysons to Arlington. They are enjoying their apartment. A mutual friend of theirs, Kathy McCartney, got engaged on Jan. 6 to Neils Christiansen. Kathy is working in advertising in NYC; Neils is also there.

Rusty Simmons is with Chubb Insurance as an underwriter in Richmond.

Leah Barker writes that she is employed by the Barrington Consulting Group in Pittsburgh. The office is small, so she is working long hours. Grant Phelan is in his second year in law school at Widener University and really enjoying it. Leah visited Lynne Bushey and Ellen Jaffe '87 in their townhouse in Alexandria and had a great time. She also had lunch with Dan Berry when he was in town for a National League playoff game.

Martha Giffen and Leslee Fettig are roommates in Alexandria. They are both legal assistants for different law firms in downtown D.C. Leslee is at Graham & James, and Martha works for Kirkland & Ellis. Leslee is planning on law school in the fall. Martha is taking her GMATs and hopes to head off to business school next year. Leslee is busy planning her wedding which is to be in June.

Sue Metcalfe had a chance to catch up with some friends:

Andy "Bandit" West is in his second year of medical school at U.Va. and looks forward to many more years of studying.

Susan Strobach is working as an assistant accountant to the comptroller at J. W. Ferguson in Richmond. She is living with Pat Weber '88, Janet Offerman and "Icky" the Wonder Dog. Pat works in the field of geology and Janet is an actuary at William M. Mercer.

Sue and Sara Hammel both work for First American Bank in Tyson's Corner. Sue lives with Jill Walker, who is an economist for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington.

Ann Buckley is working for Maryland National Bank in Timonium, Md.

Amy McCormick is at Harvard to get her Ph.D. in economics.

Michele Sokoly is attending Vanderbilt University to get her Ph.D. in child psychology.

Kim Hadney is living in Long Island and working for Random House in New York.

Eric Kirby is living in Manassas, Va., taking night classes to get his master's at George Mason and working as a computer consultant for TRW.

Catherine Nelson is working hard and living with Romelda Harvey and Pam Busch in Northern Virginia.

Richie Stevens is in Ames, Iowa. Why? To finish up his master's science in higher education at Iowa State University in May. He has an almost full-time live-in position with the department of residence as a hall advisor. He supervises 10 RAs and runs a 10-story building with 600 residents besides being a full-time graduate student. He plans to move back to the East Coast upon graduation. Over Thanksgiving, he visited Stewart Tatem and Julie Devish in Beaumont, Texas.

As for me, I have been getting crushed at work. Not only long hours, but I have been assigned to a case in New Jersey for a very long time. But life is not all work and no play. I have been down to Florida to visit my home a couple of times — nice in the winter, and I escape to Richmond on the weekends. Oh, one last thing, I was the reason "Waggs" almost got a "swirley."

Please keep that mail coming! My next deadline is April 10.

STUDENT ADVANCEMENT ASSOCIATION MAKES GIFT TO COLLEGE

Members of the Student Advancement Association (SAA) have made a collective gift of $1,750 to the SAA Endowed Scholarship Fund at William and Mary. This gift will be matched by funds from the J. Andrew Lark Challenge Grant, for a total commitment of $3,500. The SAA Endowed Scholarship Fund was established in 1988 to support undergraduate students who have demonstrated financial need. Once a minimum of $10,000 has been raised, the scholarship will be awarded to a student at the College. The SAA was formed in 1986, when a group of students initiated a proposal to allow students to take a role in College fund raising. Members of the SAA, which is now a committee of the William and Mary Endowment Association, work to raise funds and promote the College. Jay Austin '89, Randolph Beales '82, Michelle Braguglia '90, Christopher Bright '87, Anson Christian '89, Sean Connally '89, Tom Duetsch '90, Eric Kauders '91, Jeffrey Kelly '89 and Ted Zoller '87 contributed to the gift. Shown in the accompanying photo at the presentation of the gift are (front row) J. Andrew Lark '79, Student Advancement Committee chair; Hays T. Watkins, rector of the College; Bobbie Ukrop '61, SAA board member and Endowment Association trustee; and (second row) Eric Kauders, executive director of the SAA; Jeffrey Kelly; Christopher Bright; Jay Austin; and Rick Andrews '81, alumni liaison to the SAA.
