Five to Receive Alumni Medallion at Homecoming

By Barbara Ball

Five alumni who have made substantial contributions in the fields of business, education and sports have been selected to receive 1991 Alumni Medallions, which will be presented at the annual Homecoming meeting and dinner dance Oct. 18.

They are K. Dane Brooksher '61, Chicago, Ill.; Mary Land Gill '28, Petersburg; Denys Grant '58, Richmond, Va.; Shepard W. McKenney '62, '64 B.C.L., Drayden, Md., and Helen Thomson Stafford '48, Princeton, N. J. The Alumni Medallion, the highest and most prestigious award given by the Society, recognizes outstanding members of the alumni body for exemplary accomplishments in their professional lives, service to the community, state or nation, and loyalty and commitment to the College.

Mary Land Gill, who has concentrated on a career in education, has helped a great many people. A retired director and coordinator of guidance for the Petersburg Public Schools, Gill served as a member of the Petersburg School Board, founded the Petersburg Public Forum, chaired the City of Petersburg Mental Health and Retardation Board and was chair for many years of the March of Dimes project.

Gill founded a branch of "Contact," a 24-hour emergency hotline for people in trouble. She is the first woman deacon at First Baptist Church and has been recognized by Petersburg Progress Index as Volunteer of the Year. She is a member of the Richard Bland College Endowment Board, the Olde Guard and the President's Council.

"William and Mary gave me a good education which I could use. It gave me the confidence to know I could succeed," said Gill, who is one of five in her family to attend William and Mary.

Dane Brooksher, vice chairman, Midwest region, Peat, Marwick, Main & Co., credits the late John Quinn, one of his mentors and first professor of accounting, with getting him started on his career. He remembers Quinn as "a very generous man and a very challenging teacher. He challenged me to be the best, although I'm not sure I always lived up to those standards."

Brooksher grew up in the St. Louis area and was attending the University of Missouri when he decided to become a tax lawyer. He knew New York University had a good program but he didn't want to live in a big city so he came to William and Mary. "The environment, the size of the school fit me to a tee," he said.

Brooksher said he was "bowled over" when he got the letter designating him as an Alumni Medallion winner. "It is very special to me and my family. I am very pleased. It is nice to be honored by your alma mater."

He has been active as class agent, fund agent, pre-campaign steering committee member and serves on the School of Business' Board of Sponsors. He currently serves as an officer and trustee of the Endowment Association and is a member of the President's Council.

Brooksher has given generously of his time and talents to his hometown of Chicago. He is a member Historical Alliance of the Chicago Historical Society, The Economic Club of Chicago, the Governor's Club and The University of Chicago Council on the Graduate School of Business.

A patron of the arts, he is a member of the Lyric Opera of Chicago, executive committee of the U. S. Olympic Committee and a member of the Board of Trustees and executive committee of the Orchestral Association of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Grant said he was floored when he learned he was an Alumni Medallion recipient. "Over the years I have done a lot of funding raising, especially in athletics. I've tried to pay back a little of what the College did for me, but I was surprised, overawed," he said.

A football player from Maury High School in Richmond, Grant wasn't sure he had what it took to stay in college. He had worked in a production plant summers and had set his sights on becoming a shop foreman. At William and Mary, Coach Jackie Freeman gave him a senior as a roommate to ensure he would stay. "The College raised my horizons and showed me I could do a lot more than I thought I could do," he said. "The professors were very helpful and took an individual interest in students."

Grant is director of employee assistance programs for Virginia Power in Richmond. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the College, he received a master's degree in business from the University of Richmond.

Grant has sustained strong ties to the College. A former president of the Society of the Alumni in 1979, he heads the Athletic Educational Foundation chapter for the Richmond area and chairs the Old Timers Group. Grant is a member of the Order of the White-Jacket and chairman of the standing nominations committee. He served as a member of two search committees for athletics, and he was the architect for original automation of Society of Alumni records.

He is founder and current board member, Henrico county chapter, Community Alliance for Drug Rehabilitation and Education.

Shepard McKenney of Drayden, Md., president and CEO of Hinkley Company, yacht builders in Southwest Harbor Me., got involved with the College at the invitation of William B. Spong Jr., former dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. McKenney has just finished a two-year term as president of the Law School Foundation and has been an adjunct professor in the law school since 1983, teaching real estate finance.

McKenney says he has enjoyed his fundraising activities. "It has been fun," he says, describing fundraising as "a unique undertaking for me."

Coming back, says McKenney, has rekindled the sense of community he felt as an undergraduate. "I was amazed to learn just how close I felt to the people I had gone to school with."

He recalls that when he was living in Norfolk looking for a college, William and Mary was the best school available for his budget. It was nearby and there were opportunities to work. McKenney earned school funds as a waiter, a park ranger and a clerk in the law office of Vernon L. Geddy.

"I knew I was better off at a small school, and William and Mary is a very beautiful place. . . I liked the package."

After receiving his degree from Marshall-Wythe School of Law, McKenney practiced in Norfolk with the firm now known as Kaufman and Canoles. With a client he started Guest Quarters, Inc., which built hotels in the southeast and southwest of the country. He was president of the company for 15 years. In 1982 he bought the Hinkley Company.

Helen Thomson Stafford of Princeton, N.J., is co-founder, director and senior vice president of Paul Stafford Associates Ltd. of New York City, a management consulting firm specializing in executive recruitment. She has been listed in "Who's Who of American Women" since 1981.

Asked about her years at William and Mary, Stafford responded quickly with an unqualified, "wonderful." She added, "I learned skills that have lasted me a lifetime—the ability to think and to analyze a situation and to get along with people." Stafford, who majored in psychology, came to William and Mary because her best friend was enrolled and loved it.

Active in the Princeton area, Stafford is United Way representative for the Purchase Community House, a member of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Medical Center and former member of the Board of Directors of the YWCA of Princeton. She is a member and former director of the Association of Executive Recruiting Consultants and served as director 1968-70. She is a member and former president of the Princeton Area Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Stafford was a member of the Board of Directors of the Society of Alumni from 1984 to 1990. She currently serves as a member of Tercentenary Observances Commission and the President's Council.

Clarke Named Grand Marshal

T. C. Clarke '22 of Norfolk will serve as the grand marshal of Homecoming. Clarke will lead the Homecoming Parade, which will be held on Oct. 19 prior to the William and Mary-Citadel football game.

Clarke, retired chairman of the Royal Crown Bottling Co. of Norfolk, served as a member of the Board of Visitors from 1974-82 and as vice rector of the College from 1978-82. He is a member of the Sponsors of the School of Business Administration, a director of the Athletic Educational Foundation and a trustee emeritus of the Endowment Association.

With his wife Elizabeth, Clarke endowed a distinguished chair in the School of Business Administration in 1990, which is held by the dean of the school.

RINGING FAR AND NEAR

Vision-Sharing and the College Graduate

By Barry Adams

Only a few years ago alumni associations devoted little time to discussion of how their chapters and clubs could serve their respective communities. Other than voicing concern about distribution of slide shows and video productions to local organizations wanting to learn about our respective institutions, alumni administrators simply did not spend much time discussing programs which went beyond service to alma mater. As a colleague of mine at Notre Dame described it "the conversation turned to how some consider alumni organizations the 'toy departments' of their respective institutions — more concerned about sports and reunions than other programs."

Perhaps that characterization leaves some of the most notable advances by alumni associations without much credit. In the 1980s organizations such as the Society, often prodded by visionary leadership from professionals and volunteers, matured significantly — reflecting acceptance of roles beyond traditional expectations. During that period colleges and universities were the beneficiaries of alumni programs which recruited students, lobbied for funds, linked career counseling and placement efforts with alumni, created on-campus student alumni organizations, developed educational programs such as alumni colleges and sought recognition of outstanding faculty.

Just as the 1990s were underway alumni associations began to focus on a broader role; a purpose which extends beyond the confines of advancement of their institutions. The resources of thousands of alumni are also now being channeled toward positive societal change.

This effort is nearly full-steam ahead for some alumni associations. For example, the 210 alumni clubs of Notre Dame have sponsored students in more than 115 summer service projects — everything from homeless shelters to children's hospitals are being served by these unique partnerships.

The UCLA Alumni Association has actively recruited chapter members as volunteers for adult literacy programs in local communities — a most noble and ambitious undertaking when one considers that in the United States there are 27 million adults who are functionally illiterate.

Duke alumni in the Washington, D.C. area "adopted" Ludlow Taylor Elementary School. Today alumni there are involved with the school's field trips, special events and even assist in tutoring.

At another D.C. school, Ketcham Elementary, Smith College alumnae tutor students while others read stories to first-through-fourth graders in the weekly Read Aloud program. An Annual Junior Book Award ceremony is also part of the involvement by Smith alumnae — honoring students from every elementary grade for diligence in reading.

A few William and Mary chapters have expressed interest in developing community service programs. For the past two years the Triangle Alumni Chapter (Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, N.C.) has been actively involved in the state's "Adopt a Highway" program. Environmental issues appear to be emerging among the major concerns of society and chapter acknowledgement and involvement in preserving our world can be meaningful.

This past September the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) co-sponsored a special conference on Community Service Through Alumni Networks. There were a number of successful programs about which to report but the question most participants wanted to ask was "should we?" There are several reasons that answer was yes. Among them:

*Those of us who are fortunate enough to obtain a college education have a responsibility to help solve our nation's problems, beginning with our communities.

*Colleges and universities, through active alumni involvement, have the resources and talent to contribute very positively toward improvement of our communities and the national prognosis.

*Community service projects are constructive alternatives to many of the traditional alumni programs we have in place.

*Community service projects represent opportunities for alumni to work together for their alma mater and their communities.

Although alumni associations are not proposing an abandonment of their existing programs most are recognizing the need to stretch their mission statements in the 1990s. Greater acceptance of leadership by those who have benefitted most from our society can be addressed by sharing a vision of opportunity. Perhaps few other volunteer forces are better suited to that task than one made up of college graduates who believe in our nation's future.

D.C. Alumni Chapter Pledges $50,000

The Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter of the Society of the Alumni has established a goal of $50,000 as its gift to William and Mary in support of the Campaign for the Fourth Century. The commitment represents the second largest donation from an alumni chapter in the 150-year history of the Society.

Gohan Meesman, Dutch Ambassador to the United States, Cynthia Nash Huddleston '83, '86 M.Ed., outgoing chapter president, and Jeffrey Kelly '89, incoming chapter president of the Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter, were among the official party who greeted over 150 alumni and friends at the Ambassador's residence May 14. The event helped the chapter initiate its scholarship drive.

"The College of William and Mary will be strengthened not only by this gift but by what it signifies," stated Society President John Entwisle '44. "It represents the spirit and loyalty among our alumni that are in the highest traditions of alumni involvement. The Society is very proud of the chapter's resolve," he added.

The gift will create two new endowments. The first will establish a Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter Endowed Scholarship Fund to provide financial assistance to needy and deserving students from the Greater Washington, D.C. area. The second endowment recognizes the importance of sustaining organized alumni chapter programs and establishes an endowment dedicated to the Society of the Alumni for chapter programming. Funds for the endowments will be raised through specially designated events of the Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter.

The largest chapter of the Society of the Alumni, the Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter focuses its annual program on serving all alumni through the sponsorship of a wide range of activities. Events include family programs such as shows at Wolftrap music park and a Prince William Cannons baseball game. Many alumni participate in the annual private White House tour raffle and the annual spring banquet. Other activities include a career reception for William and Mary seniors and an admitted students and parents reception.

The Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter officers are Jeff Kelly '89, president; Maggie Margiotta '88, vice president; Ted Zoller '87, secretary, and Charles Gobrecht '62, treasurer.

The Board of Directors of the chapter are Cyndy Huddleston '83, '86 M.Ed., Larry Griffith '86, Frances Harwood '63, Alexandra Mallus '70, Ed McGuire '73, James Rees '74 and Ray Warner '63.

Alumni Directory Will Be First in 13 Years

It has been 13 years since the Society of the Alumni last published a comprehensive directory of all alumni of William and Mary. A new directory will be published in early 1992, and the Society is encouraging all alumni to return the questionnaire being mailed in mid-August to early September.

"It is important that the directory include as many of our graduates as possible. Above all it represents an historical record of the College. Of course, alumni who opt to purchase the directory will find it a useful reference to locate old classmates and business associates," noted John Entwisle '44, president of the Society.

Although order forms for the directory will be included with the questionnaire for convenience, alumni are encouraged to complete and return the questionnaire regardless of their decision whether or not to purchase a personal copy. However, the number of directories published will reflect only the copies ordered. Alumni will have the opportunity to consider ordering the directory through the reservation form or by calling the publisher toll-free at 1-(800)-326-5955.

The release of the directory will coincide with the Society's 150th year but is being published as part of the organization's contribution to the College's 300th year observance beginning in 1993. The directory will include all alumni, (more than 50,000) regardless of degrees held or years of attendance. Only alumni responding to the questionnaire will have their most current address and positions listed. A six page section in the directory will also be devoted to the history of William and Mary.

Millie West will retire in October after 32 years in the athletic department, but she will return on a part-time basis to assume responsibility for various fund-raising activities.

A Milestone for Millie

By S. Dean Olson

The bad news is that Millie West is retiring. The good news is that Millie West is coming back.

A major force in William and Mary athletics for 32 years, Millie West, associate athletic director in charge of olympic sports at the College, announced in July that she plans to take early retirement on Oct. 1. At the same time, athletic director John Randolph '64 said that West had agreed to stay on in a part-time position as "coordinator of special projects" in charge of the Wightman Cup, the Joseph J. Plumeri-W&M Pro-Am golf tournament, the Tennis Fund Drive and other fund-raising projects for olympic sports.

The new arrangement will enable Millie to finally have some free time after devoting more three decades to a program whose success has her name written all over. "It would have been very difficult to close the door on this place and not be able to participate in some capacity," she says. "This will give me a chance to 'wean myself' from something to which I have devoted more than half my life."

The change will also allow her to concentrate on three projects that are dear to West's heart and which she has been instrumental in establishing and building into major successes for the College: the Wightman Cup tennis tournament, the pro-am golf tournament and the Tennis Fund Drive. Since the Wightman Cup first came to the College in 1983, it has provided more than $300,000 in endowment revenue for women's sports. The Plumeri W&M Pro-Am, which is underwritten by New York financier Joe Plumeri '66, has raised another $200,000 for women's sports, and the Tennis Fund Drive, which began two years ago, has already raised a million dollars for endowment and an additional $100,000 annually to fund men's and women's tennis grants-in-aid. The purpose of the program is to return tennis to the national prominence it enjoyed in the 1940s by endowing 12 scholarships, lighting the new Busch Tennis Courts behind William and Mary Hall, which will be accomplished as of this fall, and, finally, by building a new indoor tennis facility, which will house the National Intercollegiate Tennis Hall of Fame.

Of the three projects, West may spend the greatest share of her time working on the Wightman Cup. The tournament, which used to pair the best American women players against the best British players, has been reorganized to make it an American-European tournament, and the American rights have been contracted to International Management Group, the organization headed by Mark McCormack '51. West says her job will be to convince McCormack, chairman of the Campaign for the Fourth Century and a close friend of the athletic department, to bring the tournament to the College in 1993, the year of the Tercentenary.

The success of the Wightman Cup at the College is testimony to the qualities that have won West the universal respect of colleagues, coaches and students. The tournament has been played at William and Mary four times since 1983, and each time West was responsible for raising more than $400,000 to fund the event before the College realized a cent. "Whether we raised the money or not, we still had to meet the expenses," says West, "and it was my job to sell sponsorships and motivate other committee members to help get the job done." She not only raised the money but increased the College's take from $65,000 to $125,000 during the '80s and turned a profit for other charities in the area which participated in fund-raising for the Wightman Cup. If the tournament comes back to the College under IMG, the McCormack group will assume all financial obligations, including a $500,000 purse, which should make West's job much easier.

Nothing about West's career at William and Mary since she arrived in 1959 to serve as an advisor to the Mermettes, the aquatic group, and to coordinate swimming has been easy. In 1964, she started the women's intercollegiate swimming program and accumulated a 49-1 record over the next five years. From 1969-79, she served as both chair of the women's physical education department and women's athletic director, and from 1965-71 and 1975-80, she served as head coach of the women's tennis team, compiling a 202-28-2 record, finishing third in the AIAW Division II Nationals in 1979 and winning the VAAW state championship the following year.

While her teams were succeeding on the court, West was succeeding administratively in building the overall women's program. When she became chairman of the women's athletics in 1969, the program had a budget of only $8,500. In 1986 when the women's program was combined with the men's, the budget had grown to more than a million dollars.

Instrumental in the growth was West's well-known tenacity and blunt-spokenness that, with the help of Title IX of the Education Amendments Act of 1972 which legislated equal treatment for men's and women's athletics at schools receiving federal support, changed the attitude toward women's sports at the College. She remembers the time he was summoned from her class to the business office, directed to a table in the corner of the room and given 20 minutes to cut the budget for women's intercollegiate athletics. She remembers, too, the time a College official exploded when she asked for a 25 percent increase in her budget while, she was curtly informed, the men had asked for only a 10 percent increase. West promptly retorted that her budget totaled a paltry $15,000 while the men received well over half a million. If she could have the men's budget, she would ask for no increase at all.

Such attitudes changed during the '70s, partly because of Title IX, but primarily because of the advocacy and personal talents of Millie West. "I tried to organize the program to take advantage of the national

While her teams were succeeding on the court, West was succeeding administratively in building the overall women's program. When she became chairman of the women's athletics in 1969, the program had a budget of only $8,500. competitive avenues established by the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), the formation of which coincided with the enactment of Title IX," she says. "My becoming director of the program in 1969 threw me right into the beginning of many national developments. From '72 to '90 we saw major and rapid growth of women's athletics. For the future I see a period of stabilization but continued improvement in the quality of opportunities."

In 1986 when the men's and women's programs were merged, West was named associate athletic director and turned her talents to the olympic, or non-revenue, sports program. After devoting more than 25 years to women's sports, she admits she was not happy with the change, but, after being assured that financial support for women's athletics would not suffer from the change, approached her new job with the same vigor and dedication that were characteristic of her past efforts.

Her performance and personality have won widespread admiration—from the highest members of the administration to the coaches. President Verkuil said West's talents "produced an athletic program that is the envy of many institutions, especially as it relates to the successful emergence of women's athletics at the Division I level." Randolph described her as "an extraordinary person whose enthusiasm and leadership are responsible in large measure for the success of our athletic program here at the College."

Those comments are echoed by others who work closely with West. Barbara Wetters, assistant athletic director who has known West for 14 years, described her as "someone who's going to listen and then make a decision. She may not do what you want, but you always knew you could trust her." Gymnastics coach Cliff Gauthier, a colleague for 18 years, said West "never hedged or gave you a bureaucratic answer. It is the caliber of the school and people like Millie that kept me here for 18 years." And John Conlee, chairman of the Department of English and the faculty representative to the NCAA, said that "what's impressed me is how well known she is nationally and how everyone reveres, respects and honors her at the national level. She has been important in the development of intercollegiate athletics for women on a national scale."

While her tenure at the College has not been without its problems, even those have proved educational and enlightening to her. During the past year when the College tried unsuccessfully—for the second time—to eliminate some sports to balance the budget, West was the point person in an effort that brought strong reaction from students, parents and alumni. "What we learned," she said, "is that athletics are very important to the students at William and Mary. The experience is an integral part of their education, and no matter which sport or their skill, they want to continue participating and competing while in college." Furthermore, she said the controversy proved the mettle of the student athletes. "It was amazing to me that even though we went through this very difficult period, our athletes performed at the highest level in the history of the College. We had more national accolades and better over all team records than ever before. We finished second behind the University of Virginia in the state in overall team records, and they have 23 sports and a $12 million budget while we have 25 sports and a $6 million budget. This is the highest possible tribute to our outstanding coaches who recruit and train the student athletes."

West says her greatest job satisfaction "has been just being a part of the great things that have happened in athletics at the College." The student-athletes, she says, are of such superior quality that they are a joy to work with (the 600 who participated in intercollegiate athletics last year averaged 1170 on the SATs), while the coaches are "competent and dedicated."

As West changes roles, she feels good about the athletic program, which she describes as "stable for at least the next five to seven years," and about her part in its success. How would she like to be remembered? "I hope it would be that I led by example," she says.

Alumni Study Implications of Technology

From June 27-29, alumni and friends of the College returned to campus for the Society's Alumni College, "New Horizon's in Technology: Remedy or Malady?" For many of those attending, Alumni College has become an annual tradition. This year 69 percent of the participants had attended previous programs. There were many new faces as well, making for a diverse group with a wide spectrum of opinions and interests. The youngest participant was Kahtra Murphy Kayton '90 of Richmond, while the senior alumnus was Hal Lewis '31 of Salem, Conn.

Faculty members and guest speakers led the group through a wide variety of lectures and activities, sharing their expertise and knowledge to raise participants' awareness about probable and possible ramifications of innovations in many aspects of their daily lives.

Hector Guerrero, associate professor of business administration, for example, jolted the group with a video depicting Apple computers of the future. The prognosis, according to Apple, is that the computer keyboard will become obsolete and replaced by the human voice. Thus, words will appear on a monitor as a person dictates into the computer.

Keith Miller, associate professor of computer science, demonstrated the difficulties in engineering the computers and software of the future. Through a "hands-on" computer seminar, Miller proved how difficult it is to "debug" (remove the errors) a computer program. For over two hours, participants attempted to find an error-free computer program; they discovered, however, that such a task was easier said than done.

Larry Wiseman, professor and chair of the biology department, and Greg Phillips, assistant professor of biology, expanded the discussion of technology into the field of medicine. In a slide presentation, Wiseman questioned the legal aspects of recombinant DNA research. He raised issue questions such as "Will patent lawyers need to be hired every time a scientist isolates a previously undiscovered gene?" Phillips demonstrated the techniques about which Wiseman had lectured. In the laboratory, alumni isolated the gene that controls glowing in fireflies and recombined it into a bacteria. In this way, an E. Coli bacteria strain was made to glow.

A long-time favorite among Alumni College participants, Gerald Johnson, professor of geology, entertained the group with his discussion of environmental problems facing the country because of poorly designed and planned development projects and land fills. Alumni experienced the problems first-hand when they accompanied Johnson on a field trip to area land fills, sink holes and water wells.

Out of the classroom experiences included a field trip to NASA where participants toured an air tunnel and the wheel testing site for the space shuttle. They also enjoyed several special dinners, including one at the Langley Officer's Club and one in the Great Hall of the Sir Christopher Wren Building.

"The Day the Earth Stood Still," a black and white movie classic, differed from the other educational activities of the weekend because it demonstrated, not what was to come in the future, but how far we have come from the past. After the movie, like many William and Mary undergraduates, some participants felt compelled to frequent the local taverns for some late night relaxation and discussion.

One of the highlights of the weekend was an organ recital in the Wren Chapel by Frank Lendrim, professor of music and director of the William and Mary Choir. Lendrim presented music from 18th century England and the era of William III and Mary II. After concluding the concert with two choruses of the Alma Mater, "Hark Upon the Gale," Lendrim allowed alumni a "hands-on" look at the famed chapel organ.

Program Director for Studies in Science, Technology and Society at the National Science Foundation, Rachelle Hollander concluded the weekend's activities by exploring the relationship between science, politics and ethics. Hollander outlined a model for professional ethical responsibility in the increasing sophisticated technological environment.

Next year's Alumni College is scheduled for June.

Answering questions after his discussion of GenEthics, Professor Larry Wiseman fascinated and perhaps shocked students with the ethical implications of genetic engineering.

An enthusiastic group of fossil hunters proudly display their finds from their hike to a 9 1/2 million year old whale fossil site.

Keith Miller '76 MS, associate professor of computer science, teaches alumni to "Climb To New Heights" in their knowledge of computers.

Tribe Challenge: What to Do for An Encore

By Bob Jeffrey '74

Last season's edition of William and Mary football won 10 games, advanced to the national I-AA quarterfinals and set an all-time Tribe record for scoring proficiency. What can it do for an encore?

Head coach Jimmie Laycock '71 isn't sure. "It took almost 100 years for William and Mary to win 10 ball games in a season. I don't know if we can top that in a year," he said.

"Offensively we're coming off a tremendous year," he said of the squad that amassed 467 points, an all-time W&M high and averaged 500 yards of total offense a game, tops in I-AA nationally.

"We've got to regroup and determine the makeup of this year's team, not just try to do exactly the same things we did last season," said Laycock.

However, before they get out the crying towel, Tribe fans should be aware that this year's team will not need to rebuild, but, as the saying goes, simply reload.

The most potent weapons, quarterback Chris Hakel and All-American running back Robert Green, hope to pick up right where they left off last season, churning out points and yardage at record pace.

Hakel, a 6'2", 220 lb. senior, completed 245 of 414 passes for 3,414 yards and 22 touchdowns. He also rushed for 11 td's. His performance set Tribe records for passing and total yardage.

Laycock pointed out that Hakel's stats were even more impressive in that it was his first season in a starting role and that the offense was balanced by two 1,000 yard running backs (Green and fullback Tyrone Shelton).

"Hakel started out with a great first game against Citadel, except at the very end when he threw an interception at the goal line (W&M lost, 34-31)," Laycock said. "But he didn't let that get him down. He came back and played very well week-in and week-out and had as good a year as we could have hoped for."

This season Laycock looks for continued improvement on Hakel's part. "If he builds on last year's accomplishments, he could be as good as any quarterback in I-AA. He's got a great understanding of the offense," said Laycock.

As for his leadership skills, "Hakel has been elected one of our co-captains. That speaks for itself as to how our players perceive him," Laycock said.

Robert Green, a 5'9", 195 lb. senior tailback, also enjoyed a dream season in 1990. He ran for 1,408 yards on 243 carries and tallied 19 touchdowns, setting new W&M standards for rushing yardage and scoring. He caught 42 passes for 324 yards.

With one season remaining, Green already holds the Tribe career rushing record with 2,668 yards. For his efforts he earned third-team All-American honors.

Laycock attributes Green's success to several factors. "He runs with a great deal of determination and he has tremendous balance. When you couple that determination with his strength, speed and balance, he's a very difficult individual to bring down," Laycock said.

In fact, Tribe running back coach Matt Kelchner calculated that Green broke 173 tackles in 13 games last season, including an amazing 27 escapes against Furman. "He has incredible leg strength and can squat lift 580 pounds," said Kelchner.

Hakel and Green are not the only weapons in Laycock's arsenal. Senior running back Alan Williams returns for a fifth season. Playing behind Green, Williams rushed for 147 yards on only 22 attempts, for a gaudy 6.7 yards per carry. Williams showed his mettle with four touchdowns in the Tribe's 38-0 pasting of Massachusetts in a first-round I-AA playoff game.

"Bryan Polhemus is another excellent back, who should have been starting, except that we had Tyrone Shelton (now with the Los Angeles Rams)," said Laycock.

"We'll have to look at these running backs to do some things to take the pressure off Robert Green," he said to an offensive line blessed with depth and experience. Center Greg Kalinyak, 6'4", 265 lbs., has made virtually every snap for the past two seasons. Kalinyak was named second team Academic All-American last season, maintaining a 3.39 grade point average majoring in business.

A four-year starter, Peter Reid, at 6'3", 275 lbs., is a tower of strength at left tackle. Another giant, Steve Ford, 6'4", 280, will man the opposite tackle. Thomas Walters, 6'3", 255, and Howard Maycom will hold down the guard spots.

The biggest area of concern on the offense is at wide receiver. Mark Compher (64 catches, 1180 yards, eight td's) and Ray Kingsfield (44, 609, 5) both graduated, leaving Laycock to promote some relatively untried receivers. Leading candidates Corey Ludwig and Doug Erney saw limited action last season. Laycock allows that "this is one area where a freshman might contribute."

Michael Locke, a 6'2", 230 lb. senior, will return at tight end. Named second team All-State (Roanoke Times and World News), Locke caught 27 aerials for 359 yards and seven touchdowns, including a 63-yarder against Furman at Homecoming.

Defense is customarily considered to be the weak point for Tribe teams. Even in last year's banner year W&M gave up 322 points, including 63 to number one ranked Virginia, 52 to Central Florida, and 47 in a win against VMI.

However, Laycock remains optimistic. "At times last year the defense played extremely well. In shutting out UMass, against Delaware and Richmond, in fact against most of our Yankee Conference opponents we played well. We had most of our tough games against wishbone or option-oriented teams," he said.

Seven starters return to provide continuity and a firm basis for improvement. The line will be tough with David Flynn, 6'3", 265 lbs, and Mark Tyler, 6'3", 255, back at defensive tackle. Flynn led the team with nine sacks while Tyler racked up four. Senior co-captain Tom Dexter will start at one defensive end, while Alex Utecht and Rob Tinsley compete for the other starting nod.

Jeff Nielsen, another co-captain, will anchor the linebacking corps. Nielsen had 73 tackles last season, including two sacks, two pass deflections, one interception, and one fumble recovery.

returns at strong safety.

Laycock wants to build on the solid performances of the past. "We've got to accentuate the positives, and continue to make the defense feel more confident," he said.

Two new coaches, Michael London for the defensive line and Joe Battiglieri, will contribute. "They'll be getting to know the players, making a few changes in the scheme and helping to pull it all together."

Whenever the prospects for William and Mary's football fortunes are considered, an intangible but very real advantage for the Tribe is the veteran coaching staff and the system that Laycock and his assistants have instituted.

Entering his 12th season, Laycock has already compiled the most wins (68-56-2) and longest tenure in the College's gridiron history. Last season he was recognized as Coach of the Year in Region II and Coach of the Year in Virginia.

Contributing materially to this success have been a number of assistants, who have stayed alongside their mentor rather than take head coaching jobs elsewhere.

Tom Brattan, offensive coordinator and offensive line coach, for nine years has helped shape the offensive scheme that

The Cedar Rapids, Iowa, native was also named first team Academic-All American with a 3.74 grade point average in a business major. Nielsen will be pursuing an MBA at the College this year in his final season of football eligibility.

Among the key performers in the secondary will be free safety Eric Lambert, the leading tackler returning with 80 stops last season. Lambert deflected eight passes and intercepted three.

Senior Palmer Scarritt is back at cornerback. Scarritt led the team with 12 passes broken up, and picked off three more. Richard Kinsman re-powers the explosive W&M attack. For eight years Matt Kelchner has coached running backs and coordinated Tribe recruiting, and Zbig Kepa has developed pass receivers. Russ Huesman is in his seventh season at the College, coaching the defensive secondary.

Always focusing on the team instead of the individual, the coaches have evolved a winning approach. "We don't ever stress the individual performance here," said Laycock. "All we're concerned about is how we're doing as a team. That's what each of our players is looking for, some way way to contribute to keep us winning."

Last season's record-setting success was the culmination of the steady and consistent climb to excellence during the Laycock years. In the past five years, the Tribe has made the I-AA playoffs three times and ranked in the top 10 nationally both of the last two seasons.

Laycock is mindful of the importance of tradition at William and Mary and aware that the College's tercentenary in 1993 will also mark 100 years of intercollegiate competition in football.

"To be the first football team in William and Mary history to win 10 games was significant. William and Mary prides itself on tradition in so many areas. That we could establish such a tradition in football is quite an achievement for our players and coaches," he said.

Yet wins and losses do not define success for Laycock or William and Mary. "The team each year is different. We try to find its makeup, its character, and see how good it can be. Sometimes the ball will bounce your way, and sometimes it doesn't. But if you can get the players to do their best, to achieve their potential every week, that's a successful year," said Laycock.

Call for Hall of Fame Nominations

Nominations are now being accepted for the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame. Induction of new members will be in conjunction with the Richmond basketball game on Feb. 23, 1991. John Randolph, athletic director, has provided the following criteria for membership in the Hall of Fame:

1. It shall be open to persons who have made a significant contribution to the College through intercollegiate athletics as a competitor, coach or administrator.
2. Consideration also will be given to continued contributions to society through community activities, through performance in chosen field of endeavor and through avocations, on such a level as to bring credit and distinction to the College.
3. In order that proper assessment may be made of the nominee, a time period of at least 10 years must have elapsed since graduation for a competitor and five years for a coach or administrator.
4. No more than eight persons and no more than one team will be inducted annually.

Alumni who wish to make a nomination should fill out the ballot below and return it to: Athletic Hall of Fame Committee, P.O. Box 399, Williamsburg, VA 23187 no later than Oct. 1, 1991.

"On call" for the William and Mary for the William and Mary Annual Fund are students (l. to r.) Danielle Riley '92, Shawn Overbey '92, Dan Chase '94 and Jennifer Armentrout '94. The students averaged a 37 percent positive response to their requests for support for the College from alumni.

Phonathon Stirs Memories of Campus

By Melissa Gill '82

"You're kidding! I live in Landrum! What room were you in?"

"...sure, he's still teaching chemistry. And he's still tough..."

"Yeah, we're feeling the cuts. Especially in the library. Can you help out?...Terrific!"

Night after night, the voices of students blend together from a room on the third floor of James Blair Hall. It's a busy place

Sunday through Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. All around the table, students pick up phones, dial numbers and reach out to alumni across the country. This is the William and Mary phonathon.

"Phonathons are a phenomenally successful way to reach alumni," says Karen Coltrane '87, acting director of the annual fund. "Nationally, direct mail appeals have a two to four percent rate of return. Our phonathon is averaging a 37 percent positive response rate—which is quite impressive."

The phonathon is traditionally part of the Annual Fund appeal, and it has become an integral component of the Campaign for the Fourth Century. For the next two years, the phonathon will be calling alumni in the areas where campaign celebrations are being held, asking for multi-year pledges to support current operations. "The phonathon enables us to reach many alumni who, due to their sheer numbers, cannot receive a personal visit from a representative of the College," says Coltrane. "It's a way to personalize the Campaign."

While gifts to all areas of the College may be pledged through the phonathon, callers primarily will be asking for gifts to the William and Mary Annual Fund. The Annual Fund furnishes critically needed unrestricted support for the College. In the upcoming academic year, Annual Fund dollars are providing student aid, augmenting instruction and research budgets and supporting other institutional needs. Recent reductions in state support have made the Annual Fund even more important to the continuing operation of the College.

People who receive a call from a William and Mary student are hearing only the tail end of a carefully orchestrated approach.

Two mailings are sent out before a call, describing the Campaign and alerting alumni that they will be contacted by a student caller. The students then follow up with calls in which they refer to the mailings and ask alumni to make a commitment to the College. They try five times to reach each person. If they can't get through, they send a note with a pledge card.

Before they begin calling, students receive three nights of training. They work without scripts. The student callers say they enjoy talking to alumni and actually find it easier to make the calls when they don't have a set script to follow. Jennifer says that most of the people she talks to respond positively to being asked to support the College.

"I enjoy talking to alumni," says Danielle. "I'm graduating this year, and I want to know what it's like out there. A lot of people are really helpful; they offer tips about summer jobs and career options. And they like finding out about what's going on at William and Mary."

Shawn, who raised the largest amount of money last year of all the student callers, says the secret is establishing a good rapport. "I try to find something that we have in common, or something they like to talk about. Sometimes people start out complaining about their college years or about something that's going on now at W&M, but if you keep talking, the usually find something positive, some good memory. Then they're more inclined to make a pledge."

In the world of fund-raising, it's a well-known adage that the hardest gift to get is the first one—once people have supported an institution, they're much more inclined to continue giving. Sometimes students are successful in persuading "never-givers" to make a gift. One alumna wrote a note along with her check, saying that Lori's enthusiasm "managed to chip away even my 'I'll never give' armor!"

The students ask alumni to consider making pledges over a three-year period. "The callers let people know that their gifts to the Annual Fund may be designated to a specific area of the school — scholarship support, for example, or support for a particular academic department," explains Coltrane. "Gifts may also be left unrestricted. These gifts are used to meet the most pressing needs of the university."

As the Campaign for the Fourth Century approaches 1993, the phonathon effort will be stepped up. This fall, Coltrane is training more student callers. She expects that their record of success will continue. "Looking at it regionally, $1 out of every $5 raised in the New England area came through the phonathon," she says. "Our callers are great. Since we can't meet every single alumnus face-to-face, the phonathon really is the next best thing to being there."

J. Andrew Lark '79 Steps Down as Chair of W&M Annual Fund

For the past two fiscal years, J. Andrew Lark '79 has served as the chairman of the William and Mary Annual Fund. In that capacity, Lark worked with the Office of Annual Support to raise funds from alumni to support some of the most pressing needs of the College. In the 1990-91 fiscal year, that support amounted to over $950,000. These annual fund dollars supported areas of need at the College including scholarship assistance, faculty salaries, curriculum development and student services.

"As chairman of the Annual Fund, Andy has played a vital role in encouraging his fellow alumni to support William and Mary," said Karen Coltrane '87, acting director for annual support. "He has been ungrudging with his time and energy, and the Annual Fund has benefited greatly from his support." By the beginning of the fall semester, the College will announce the next chairperson for the William and Mary Annual Fund. Lark, a law partner at Lark & Sullivan in New York, is a member of the Endowment Association executive and development Committees at the College.

Alumni Chapter Activities Increase Third Straight Year

The number of alumni chapter and club sponsored activities increased a whopping 23 percent for the 1990-91 year, according to totals compiled by the Society's Alumni Affairs Department.

In the fiscal year completed June 30, Society records indicated that 42 alumni chapters and clubs held 152 events representing an increase of 28 events over the previous year. The 1989-90 totals had previously established a record for annual chapter programs.

"We are pleased that alumni chapter leaders have worked diligently to improve their annual planning of events. Several chapters now have a good working schedule for the upcoming year planned 12 months in advance. Chapters also have been responsive to the diversity of alumni in their areas. From our law school alumni to our ardent athletic boosters and from members of the Olde Guard to the classes representing the Young Guard chapters are trying to involve as many William and Mary alumni as possible," said Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society. "As a result, there are more opportunities, better networking and increased enthusiasm among our graduates. Since approximately 79 percent of all William and Mary alumni live in areas served by a chapter or club increased outreach programs have corresponding benefits for the College" he said.

Lee Foster, director of alumni affairs, and Keith Reagan, assistant director for chapters, both noted that on the average there are nearly 13 chapter events per month. "For the chapters office," noted Foster, "this means producing, printing and mailing an announcement or flyer for an event about every other day. Of course there is much more to do before and after each alumni event. Strong volunteer leadership as well as newsletters, supplies, chapter elections, bylaws, and regular communications and visits are essential to the effort."

Nationally many alumni associations have not experienced the rate of growth in chapter activities being felt by William and Mary's Alumni Society. William and Mary's statistics show that in 6 years the number of chapter activities has nearly doubled.

New Managers Join Staff

If you're involved with chapters, reunions or special alumni groups like the Association of 1775 you probably are already aware of recent staff changes at the Society of the Alumni.

Kristi L. Thornton began her part-time position as assistant director of alumni affairs in late February. A former San Francisco resident where she was employed by Ernst & Young as a human resources manager, Thornton serves as executive administrator for the Order of the White Jacket and the Association of 1775. She replaced Suzanne Tucker who accepted a position as Enrollment and Student Services Specialist in the School of Education.

Jonathan A. Lever '91 began at the Society in early June as assistant director of alumni affairs for special events. As a recent graduate, Lever held leadership roles in several college groups, including Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity and the Student Alumni Liaison Council. Lever also was an intern and tour guide for the admissions office.

Lever will coordinate the 26 campaign celebrations scheduled in chapter areas over the next 18 months.

Sherri Givens Holland '86 replaced Elizabeth S. Littlefield '86, who accepted a position in May as Executive Director of the Medical College of Virginia Alumni Association. Holland began her new position in July.

As assistant director for alumni affairs for reunions and campus events, Holland will coordinate Homecoming events, Alumni College and Student Alumni Liaison Council activities. A resident of Newport News, Holland previously was assistant director for Newport News Occasions. She is nearing completion of her Master of Public Administration degree from Old Dominion University.

The Young Guard Council held their summer meeting on June 15 at Ashlawn-Highland (former home of James Monroe) in Charlottesville. Left to right standing are John Holloway '88, Mark Toner '91, Ted Zoller '87, Jay Austin '89, Renee Snyder '88, Eric Kauders '91, Mike Deagle '88, Charlene Jackson '88, Christopher Bright '87, Andrew Stross '90, Duane Milne '90, Michelle Bellanca '91, and Beth Shapiro '87. In chairs: Jeanie DeBolt '90, Maggie Margiotta '88, Rachel Haight '91, Anson Christian '89, Jennifer Stowe '91, and Nyla Hashmi '91. On grass: Jeff Kelly '89, David Futrell '90, Monty Mason '89, and Reg Jones '91.

Joyce Anzolut '90, Irby Moncure, chapter president; John Harrison '37 and Bill Armbruster '57 were among those who attended the Southside Virginia Alumni Chapter's "Second Annual Sidewalk Treasures 'N Trash Sale" on June 8 in Blacksone, Va. The event raised $538, which will go toward endowing a $25,000 chapter scholarship.

Tribe Tailgaters to Start Sept. 14

The Society of the Alumni and the Athletic Education Foundation will again co-sponsor postgame tailgater parties this football season on the Alumni House Patio. The first event is scheduled for immediately following the September 14 football game against Delaware. Join fellow alumni and other Tribe fans in enjoying beverages, snacks and fellowship. Coach Laycock and other members of the coaching staff will also stop by to discuss the plays of the day! Last year was the most successful football season in William and Mary history - the 1991 team may be the most competitive ever to wear a Tribe uniform.

The tailgaters are scheduled for September 14 and 28, October 19 (Homecoming), November 16 and 23. Tribe Tailgaters Season Passes are available in advance for $25.00. This ticket will admit the pass holder and a guest to all five events. Individual game passes are also available for sale in advance or at the event for $5.00 per person.

Also note that on the day of each home game, the Alumni House Gift Shop will be open from 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

Passes can be ordered by sending a check payable to WMAEF to Tribe Tailgaters, P.O. Box 521, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

When ordering passes, be sure to note the type of ticket(s) you are ordering and the date(s) you will be joining us. Individual tickets for only the Homecoming Tailgater can be ordered with the Homecoming registration forms located in this issue of the Alumni Gazette.

President's Corner

By John Entwisle '44

There are 55,000 living alumni, from the oldest class of 1916 to the most recent graduates of the class of 1991. (It is interesting to note that approximately 50 percent of the alumni are in classes from 1972 to 1991.) I often wonder, though, just how many alumni really know or understand the Society; what makes it tick, makes it work and most, importantly what the Society does other than to sponsor traditional programs such as Homecoming, or to publish the Alumni Gazette and William and Mary Magazine. As president of the Society for the academic year '91-'92, I hope to help alumni become more aware of the Society and encourage more of you to support the College through our programs.

Your Alumni Society is only as good as the person hired by the Board of Directors to run the show. In this case that person is Barry Adams, executive vice president. While Barry serves "at the pleasure" of the Board he is, in fact, the person who guides the day-to-day programs, activities and services of the Society. In taking on the responsibility as chief executive officer for the Society he has assembled a highly motivated and talented staff.

Barry arrived on campus in 1987 from Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, where he held the top alumni administration post for over 10 years. At first there was some concern expressed because he was not an alumnus of William and Mary. That soon disappeared when it was recognized that the Society had hired someone whose knowledge of the task at hand was exemplary. Three and a half years later his professionalism has had a dramatic and positive impact on the Society and the College.

For instance, last year in competition with colleges and universities from coast to coast, your Society was awarded the coveted Gold Medal Award from CASE (Council for Advancement and Support of Education) for the most improved alumni association. In addition the Society received a Silver Medal for its Total Alumni Program and one for Program Excellence, in recognition of our Alumni College.

We have seen many creative things happening under the new leadership and there are many more on the drawing board. Suffice to say, your Board is very pleased with the changes so apparent in the Society today.

The relationship between the Society and the College has occasionally been unclear in years past. As an independent alumni organization, interpretations of jurisdiction and requests for funding support can become complicated. One very positive event occurred in 1973 which helped to alleviate some of the difficulties. By mutual agreement between the Society and the College administration the development office assumed responsibility for most fundraising. The Society ceased coordination of the annual fund, although it continues with special projects like reunion gifts and the Alumni House expansion. This is as it should be. The real mission of the Society is to nurture, cultivate, befriend, keep track of you and make sure you feel welcome when you come back here.

The Board of Directors understands this philosophy. We work closely with President Verkuil and other administrative offices on campus to create a climate which benefits the entire College community. Today the College and the Society recognize the importance of this partnership. A very positive development.

The year 1993, our College's 300th anniversary year, is fast approaching. Planning is well underway for the largest and most exciting celebration in the College's history. Most of the formal activities will center around Charter Day in February and Homecoming in October. I urge everyone of you to take part in this observance. You are encouraged to make plans well ahead because this old town will be jammed!

Have a healthy rest of the summer. The good Lord willing, I will be back in the next issue of the Alumni Gazette with more thoughts about your Alumni Society.

By the way, keep your class reporters aware of your activities and achievements. They will welcome your input.

Society Confers Five Fellowships

Each year the Society of the Alumni selects as Alumni Fellows faculty members who represent a wide diversity of accomplishments in a variety of academic fields.

This year the awards will be presented to Christopher J. Abelt, assistant professor of chemistry; Susan V. Donaldson, assistant professor of English; Tomoko Hamada, assistant professor of anthropology; Henry W. Hart, assistant professor of English; and Lori A. Korinek '80 M.Ed., associate professor of education.

Abelt, associate professor of chemistry, received a B.S. degree from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and Ph.D. from the University of California at Los Angeles. He joined the faculty of the College in 1986.

Abelt specializes in organic chemistry. The focus of his research is on understanding the chemistry of highly reactive species.

Donaldson specializes in modern Southern literature and painting as well as 20th century American literature and 19th-century American literature, painting, social and intellectual history and expository and persuasive writing.

Before coming to William and Mary, Donaldson was assistant professor of English and Andrew W. Mellon Fellow at Vanderbilt University.

Donaldson received her doctorate and master's degrees from Brown University. She received a B.A. in American Studies with highest honors from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Hamada, associate professor of anthropology and chair of the East Asian Studies since 1988, is a participant in the expansion of international studies on campus. This summer she has been actively engaged in the exchange program with her alma mater, Keio University, in Japan. Hamada

CLASS NOTES

28 Mary Land Gill
1658 Berkeley Ave.
Petersburg, VA 23805

Olde Guarde Day in April was a delightful occasion. Those of you who did not come were missed and you missed a nice opportunity to visit with classmates and other friends. Those who were present wrote comments to be included in this report and I feel that they will be of interest to all.

Ruth James Turner came from Atlanta accompanied by her sisters Leah '26 and Nellie who live in Chattanooga. Ruth wrote that she has "two natural grandchildren, two adopted grandchildren, five step grandchildren — music is still half of my life — gardening and as I said breathing in and breathing out."

Mary Ribble, reported, "I'm happily settled at Westminster Canterbury in Richmond along with a number of fellow alumni."

Virginia Vaiden Bowen was accompanied by her husband, Ervin. They live in Williamsburg so attend most Olde Guarde functions. She said, "Have enjoyed all the Olde Guarde Days. Good to see old friends."

Malvern H. Omohundro happily reported that our getting together, "always recharges my battery."

Bill Thompson penned this message, "Mary and I always enjoy seeing our friends at Olde Guarde Day and also at Homecoming."

Carlton Macon still lives in Norfolk. From his remarks his days appear to be filled with activity. "Still alive — play golf Wednesdays and Fridays each week — Sports Club Mondays — Civitan Club Tuesdays — mow lawn Thursdays. Sailed to Bahamas last May — Hope to sail from Spanish Wells to Norfolk this year."

Robert Randolph Jones was present with his wife, Florence Adams Jones '33. They live in Richmond. He was "Consul to Dominican Republic — practicing law with son, Sherwood Adams Jones — Elder in the First Presbyterian church in Richmond. Both interested in visually handicapped and have four grandchildren."

It was a pleasure to have Nannie W. Gordon with us. She is the widow of Arthur Gordon who died in 1989. She wrote "Together we always attended all the College functions, so now although I'm alone I feel I'm a member of the class of 1928. I now live in a retirement community here in Williamsburg and am happy there."

We missed George Whitley who, as reported in the November Gazette, had planned to come to Homecoming but couldn't because Edna, his wife, was in the hospital for surgery. In May I received a letter from George and I learned with sorrow that Edna did not survive her illness. He concluded with this comforting thought, "this Imperial Plaza (where he and Edna lived in Richmond) has a total of about 2000 older souls like me, so I'm not exactly lonesome and I'm not far from W&M. I look forward to seeing many of you in the future."

Hope many of you will join us in October for the Olde Guarde luncheon and the other Homecoming events.

Dear Classmates of 1930:

After reporting to the Alumni Gazette the 1930 class news for 11 years, it is time to bid you adieu. It has been a pleasure to hear from many of you throughout the years, and I appreciate the cooperation of all who wrote. I shall miss the letters from you.

It is to be hoped that one of you will take over my job and keep the class informed of what is happening to those of you who are still here.

Best wishes to each of you.

Can you believe our 60th reunion is coming up next year? I do hope we can all gather in Williamsburg for a big celebration.

I had a letter from John Stolz and have talked to him since. He and his family were in Williamsburg for several days and had a talk with "Pat" Paschall. Pat and Agnes are living in town now.

Pearl Young Reynolds is still interested in sports. She has been selected as a member of the "Wall of Fame" for this year and will have a gold plate engraved with her name hung on the wall of the Hall of Fame Museum in downtown Portsmouth. Pearl's address is Box 279, Bowling Green, VA 22427.

The best of good wishes to all of you.

Olde Guarde Day on April 10 was enjoyable and well attended. Our class used three tables. You should attend, the College is your host. Hope to see some new faces next April.

The Olde Guarde Council met June 5. Ernest Goodrich was elected president for '91-92. The council voted to raise $15,000 to underwrite the publication of the College's history in celebration of William and Mary's 300th Anniversary. You'll be hearing more about this project later.

As you learned from the letter Emil Johnson sent members of our class, the book value of our library endowment proudly stood at more than $76,000 at the end of last year. With interest earned during the last fiscal year, the library has been able to purchase 77 books.

I received a note from Lillian Carmine Sterling. She said she was so very happy and proud to attend commencement exercises at William and Mary Hall on May 19 as her grandson, Chris Sterling '91 (son of Lester Sterling Jr. '65), was her first grandchild to graduate from her alma mater.

Each class reporter has been given a handbook with guidelines and ideas for getting news. Beware — I have a LIST. Please send me an update on your activities and those of other classmates.

Hi, Classmates! Hope you survived this hot summer and are ready for football and other activities at our College.

I am sorry many of you missed our 55th reunion at Olde Guarde Day. The College honored us with a delicious luncheon and a special reception. Those who came back were: Alex Haughwout, Greenwich, Conn.; John M. Former, Litchfield, Conn.; Fran Moreland Lewis, Northern, Va.; William Marden, Hadley, Md.; Dr. W. C. Henderson, Richmond; William F. Rhodes, Richmond; Frances G. Preissner, Berkeley, Calif.; Jimmy Savedge, Wakefield, Va.; Judge Robert Armistead, Williamsburg; Edward Katz, Seven Lakes, West End, N.C.; John Bunting, Virginia Beach, and some others I didn't get a chance to meet.

I was happy to receive a call from Martha "Mops" Connelly who lives in Norristown, Pa. She tells me Mary Jean Kuhn Roth still lives at Avon Lake, Ohio, and is doing fine. Mops and I had a good visit.

In April on another nice occasion Yetine Winslow Bryant '35 gave a luncheon at the Virginia Museum for Helen Dodge Latoy '34, who has moved to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. She was originally from New York. While she was here she visited the College and was excited over the growth and improvements. The last time she had been there was for her 25th reunion. Other W&M alums present besides myself were Betty Johnson Mathis '35 and Dallas Dalton West.

I enjoy seeing Virginia Williford Bruner at the First Baptist Church where she is very active. She is married to Dr. Ben Bruner who graduated from William and Mary in '32 and from W&M Law School in '33. He later earned a degree from the Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

I do hope more of you will contact me. I need your help. Your classmates want to hear from you!

As I looked over the letters and clippings that make up this report, I was impressed with the active, productive lives that our classmates lead.

The Alumni Office sent an article from a Williamsburg paper about Dave Rutledge. It's headlined "A Real Joker," but the facts prove that he's much more than that. After four years in the Navy in World War II he and his wife ran the Ivy Restaurant in Williamsburg from 1946 until 1960 and were famous for their "astronomical pancakes." He has also worked for Colonial Williamsburg and James River Country Club, been president of Williamsburg Chamber of Commerce and division manager of Waddell & Reed Inc. Now, in retirement, he volunteers for Meals on Wheels and Hospice of Williamsburg. He is quoted as saying, "My ambition is to attend the big New Year's party they're bound to have for the year 2000." We'll join you in that ambition, Dave.

Othello (Pete) Batten wrote from Smithfield: "I'll start with the news since leaving William and Mary. I worked for the Williamsburg Restoration for a short time, then moved on to the Newport News Shipyard and stayed with the yard for about seven years. From there I was offered a job with the Bank of Smithfield (now Dominion Bank) and stayed with them 20 years, retiring as assistant vice president. For the past several years and at the present time I am working on a history of Smithfield and Isle of Wight County (mostly about the people). I'm still happily married and enjoy living and working. I just celebrated my 75th birthday."

Also from Smithfield, Helen Childrey Love contributed: "My life is not exciting, but it is a happy one. I have been a widow since November 1989. We had six lovely children and now four grandchildren have been added to the flock. None of them lives in Smithfield. I am thankful for many blessings: my church, in which I am very active; my golf, which I thoroughly enjoy lots of (hit the ball a lot, too!); lots of bridge (some duplicate); short trips with others in my age bracket, and some volunteer work at the public library. I always look forward to reading the Alumni Gazette."

Margie Beggs Brice's letters are models of brevity and humor. Her one of several years ago was quoted word for word, as is this one: "If life is a play in three acts, then act one ended for me on VJ Day, and the curtain went down on act two with the death of my husband six years ago. I am now doing act three of what appears to be a black comedy subtitled The Dubious Delights of Widowhood. I live alone, without much sniveling, and take lots of trips, usually by air, although I consider plane travel tantamount to steerage. As I age, I wish for greater religious conviction but am resigned to being a careless Episcopalian who doesn't much care what people do as long as they don't do it on my front lawn, and their English is good. Being 74 is not really insupportable if your brain is furnished and your house filled with roses in December. For me, minutiae have become disproportionately appreciated; the sight of Mario Lemieux, holding the Stanley Cup aloft; the promising smell of a new book; the sound of Jack Teagarden playing 'Body and Soul'. My 2-year-old grandchild scowls from under a blonde wedged haircut and says, 'I annoyed, Grandma.' Not me. Life is delicious." May it continue so, Margie.

Finally, from Franklin, Herbert Cobb responded enthusiastically to my card:

"One of these days maybe I'll break down and attend a gathering at dear old W&M and see all of you one more time. I am now 73 years old but still keeping my front office door open. I now have been over 36 years in real estate and for years exclusively as an appraiser. I am still the old bachelor of the class, I reckon, but have a wonderful family of cousins and young marrieds. I am in so many varied activities I can hardly keep up with them. I am helping my Baptist church in Habitat for Humanity; I'm a go-for-broke member of our local Sons of Confederate Veterans and a Civil War buff, of course; and the Southampton County Historical Society takes up a great deal of my time, also.

"BUT thanks to that great personage, drama coach and teacher, Althea Hunt, under whom I had a joyous experience in the W&M Theater (Oh, how I loved her and learned from her!), I became a dyed-in-the-wool theater buff. I still tell the Little Theater people, as she told me, to get the word B-E-E-N correctly pronounced for theater dialogue. 'Herbert,' she'd say, 'go off stage now and say over and over again, "I have been up to London to see the queen" and rhyme been and queen.' I am sure you know now that my most important hobby and interest is in Little Theater, and, if I do say so, we do have an outstanding one in this community. I just finished directing that captivating comedy-drama of World War II, Mr. Roberts. It received good reviews in the Norfolk papers. Also, I have played the mayor of River City in Music Man, Grandpa in You Can't Take It With You, cameo roles in Barnum and Sound of Music, Patrick Martin in Little Shop of Horrors. I was prop chairman for Annie, which totaled way over 200 items.

"A year or so ago, a movie Deuce Coupe, was shot locally and I was a featured extra. The producer in Pasadena says it will be released this summer, but I don't know when. I hope I don't wind up on that dirty cutting-room floor! It was great fun working with the 100 or more in the cast and crew. It's set in the 1950s and that's why Franklin, a vintage 1950 area, was picked as the location... Oh yes, I am going to attend my battleship reunion (U.S.S. New York) in Annapolis the latter part of September." As my star-struck 16-year-old granddaughter says, "Break a leg, Herbert!"

Based on these samples, don't you agree that we have a remarkable group of classmates?

As husband Nick remarked, class reporter's duties also include personnel locator. Early in June, Tom Nephertot '48 called me from New York City to inquire as to the whereabouts of Bill Reynolds, mentioned in the May Alumni Gazette column. Tom and Bill had worked together in New York after World War II while Bill was obtaining his Ph.D. at Columbia. I was able to give him both summer and winter addresses, and I trust that the two have exchanged letters and phone calls by now.

40 Mrs. Franklin D. Henderson
(Barbara Clawson)

I'm sure you've all read the June issue of the Gazette and seen the write-up of Olde Guarde Day on April 10. Frank and I attended along with Jack and Ann Garrett, Mary Ellen and Jack Geddes, Virginia Garrett, Leah and T. Waller, and Chet Baker '41 represented Helen who was sick — so it was a very small group.

Jean Bratton has surely been touring the globe. In March she sent greetings from Australia where she was cruising around on a Royal Viking Ship. She enjoyed Sydney especially where she saw The Mikado at the Opera House — "shades of the W&M production in 1938!" She was going to New Zealand next.

In June we had another card saying she was "concentrating on the beautiful hill towns of Central Italy on this trip and Assisi is one of the most interesting. Jean was to go to Siena next day and Perugia the following week." It all sounds wonderful, Jean!

Ann Garrett shared a letter from Marie Harris Hoffman who said she is having a pleasant time in Santa Barbara. "We have our garden, our orchard — lots of oranges, limes, lemons and apricots coming — our club with golf, our other club for pool and dining — the ocean and mountain views..." Her son, Wally, is still in Weston, Conn., so she keeps in touch with the old home town. So good to hear from you, Marie, even though it was secondhand.

On the evening of May 3, like a bolt out of the blue, I had a phone call from Brock Steele in Altamonte, Fla. I was so dumbfounded that except for his address (448 Oakhaven Drive) I had to call back because I didn't take any notes. I spoke to his wife, Jean Jordan '43, as Brock was out. They have four children, two boys and two girls and two grandchildren, ages 2 and 4. Brock

GOVERNOR NAMES THREE TO BOARD

Acuff

Three new members, including A. Marshall Acuff Jr. '62, former president of the Society of the Alumni, have been appointed to the Board of Visitors of the College by Gov. L. Douglas Wilder. Besides Acuff, senior vice president and managing director of Smith Barney Upham and Co. in New York City, Wilder named James B. Murray '74 J.D. of Keene, Va., and Norma B. Harvey of Hampton, Va. to the Board. In addition, Wilder reappointed two visitors to a second four-year term: Edward J. Campbell, president of Newport News Shipbuilding, and Audrey Harris '60 of Richmond. Murray is chairman of Columbia Cellular Corp. and a founding trustee of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law Foundation and former president of the Law School Association. Harvey is a member of the board of the Virginia Museum of Natural History, a member of the Governor's Task Force on Substance Abuse and Sexual Assault on college campuses and director at Hampton University where her husband is president. She is on the board of the Virginia Museum of Natural History and the 1991 recipient of the Business Minority Advocate Award. She is a business counselor at the Hampton University business assistance center. The new visitors succeed Garner Anthony '53 of Honolulu, Hawaii, Lewis L. Glucksman '45 of New York and Sharon A. Coles-Stewart '75 of Newport News.

is retired from real estate and they spend a lot of time at their beach home, babysitting grandchildren. Brock enjoys boating especially, Jean says.

The Loudoun Times Mirror of Leesburg, Va., published a great "profile" of Frank Raflo, a native son. Frank ran his family's store for 40 years, worked on small newspapers for more than 20 years (including two that he owned and edited), and won nine of the 11 races for public office that he participated in over the years. He credits his wife, Frances, with a large share of the success he's had — especially her support and advice.

Since 1976 when Frank had triple bypass surgery, his only public office is appointive. He serves on a committee established by the state Commission on Local Government. "I like to work. I enjoy it. I have to keep at it, because now I find that when I sit down, I fall asleep. So it's better to keep active." Activity these days consists of rising at 5:45 a.m. to walk two miles with Frances and their dog. After a light breakfast he plays an hour of doubles tennis. At 10:30 a.m., he goes to WAGE radio to record his program "Good News." After that, he works on his column for the Loudoun Times Mirror, and the afternoon is sometimes taken up with annexation issues. Frank has been active in developing an alumni chapter in Loudoun County, which has 256 graduates of the College, he reports.

On June 9 Frank and I were delighted to see Carney and Anne Cross Pearce at the 8 a.m. service at Christ Church here in Irvington. They were houseguests that weekend at mutual friends, the Phil Brooks, who have moved to our area from Petersburg.

The summer has been busy. In July our son, Daniel '81 J.D., his wife, Ann, and their three little ones — William, 6 1/2, Emily, 4, and Caroline, 2 — came for a week's stay.

Back to Brock's phone call. It was such a great idea that I'm going to make it easy for all of you thoughtful people whom I'd love to hear from and give you my phone number: 804-438-5521 (we have no answering device) and I'll be alert and get the facts — thus saving you the trouble of writing me! Neat idea, isn't it? Will surely look forward to hearing from you!

It was fun being back in Williamsburg last May for Mike's 50th reunion. I saw Margaret Kelly Dunham who is chairman of the 1942 reunion. She and her committee are working hard on arrangements for our big 5-0. From my observation of Mike's reunion everything was great. It was a lot of fun seeing so many friends, some of whom had traveled long distances for this special occasion.

Ellen Lindsay '41 had recently seen Tom Crane, who had told her to say 'hello' to everyone.

Emalee Ewing Durbin sends me her newsletters concerning the travels that she and her husband make in their motor home. Last April they were in Carrollton, Va., to pick up their newest mobile home and visited Mamie Gilliam '33 and Edwin Turner and Richard Turner '64. While still in Virginia they also visited Annette Warren Sirmon and her husband who helped them bail rain out of their Bounder, the result of hard rain and a leak around the TV antenna on the roof. The Durbins saw Bill Brown and his son in Pittsburgh. After driving through Wheeling, W.Va., Columbus, Ohio, Greenfield Village, Mich., and Milwaukee, the Durbins had the added excitement of tornado reports, high winds and hail. Fortunately, there was no damage to them and they continued home to Corvallis via Laramie.

In response to an article in the William and Mary Magazine last year Emily Harrell Lynch gave her freshman duc cap to the College's archives along with photographs taken during college days.

I was so happy to receive a long letter from Virginia Sterne Herndon. She is living in Winter Springs, Fla., not far from daughter Martha. Ginger's grandson just received his M.A. from Cambridge, England and is working on his Ph.D. there. Ginger's son, Potter, has a B.A. from Yale and an M.B.A. from Rutgers and now works for Velsicol Corp. in Memphis. Her handicapped son is being cared for at Presbyterian DuVall Home in Florida.

Ginger keeps in touch with her Tri Delta roommate, Margaret Craig Alexander, who is very active in the Students Club and Library Science policy-making groups. Marjorie Hopkins Payne belongs to the American Association of University Women and the Winter Park University Club, as does Ginger. She also hears from Luella Fitzgerald Russell '44 and Jean Bulette Boggs '44. Jean's husband is a doctor and Lue's husband is in politics.

Jean and Dorothy Scarborough Howell '45 live in Charlotte, N.C. Mildred Wilshire Owens '41 and her husband have returned to Richmond to live. On a trip to Alaska, Ginger met Patricia H. Parry '44 who lives in Pacific Palisades, Calif. At William and Mary Ginger was a member of the Debate Club, and that group's newsletter keeps her in touch with alums. She also keeps in touch with Frazier Neiman of the English department. Thanks, Ginger!

It's not too early to begin making plans to attend our 50th Reunion. So, Super Crew of '42, mark your calendars now. Remember — May 8-10, 1992.

Springtime and summer here at Sewanee have been lovely. It must have been especially wonderful in Williamsburg, with all the gardens. When I was courting Joan and wandering the paths, I particularly liked the plantings around the smaller cottages.

Fran Pendleton Elliott, Winchester, Mass., has written to tell me of the death of her husband, John, from an aggressive brain tumor that was discovered just before Christmas and killed him on April 15. He was a professor of materials science and engineering at MIT. For more than 40 years he was a world-rank leader in chemical-process metallurgy, especially in steel-making, a member of global scientific commissions, a lecturer in many countries and the recipient of international awards. We extend our sympathy and direct our love and supporting prayers to Fran and their son and daughter. Fran says, "I am grateful for 45 very good years together but really miss him dreadfully." She will remain in Winchester, and expects to be with us for the 50th.

Marilyn Miller Entwisle spotted an item from the bulletin of the Friends of the Library. It reported that Billy Snead Budkoff had "donated several certificates of distinction awarded to William Winston Snead, a W&M student from 1897 to 1900," probably her grandfather. A listing of "Recent Gifts to the University Archives, Swem Library" reveals that the Entwistles and Margaret Horn Boothe have donated scrapbooks, and Bill Morris (see more below) has also sent his duc cap and a 1944 letter from John D. Rockefeller Jr. Marilyn hopes many more of us will be inspired to comb through attics and closets for materials to strengthen the Swem Library collections.

From the College of Law at West Virginia University, Bill Morris reports another year of far-flung travel: lectures in September at the National University of Singapore; in March at Stockholm University; and in June at the East China Institute of Law and Politics, in Shanghai. He says he is thinking of retiring "so we can travel" (he and Hazel visited their 51st country this spring). For the third time, the students have voted him Professor of the Year. He adds, "I guess they have not found out what a poor student I was at William and Mary."

Lucille Fizer Gooch reports from Troy, Va., that she and her husband have focused their activities and interests on public education for many years, she as a teacher and he as a school board member, with both active at state as well as local levels. For the first time in 21 years, she will not be teaching, although she will continue in library media administration. This past December the Gooches had a wonderful vacation in Williamsburg and found pansies blooming at the Lodge. Lucille expects to be with us for the 50th: "We have to join 'The Olde Guard' even if we don't consider ourselves that 'olde'."

Dave MacNamara continues on the trail of John Buchanan, via a letter sent to me by a cousin, passed on to Dave, and giving John Buck's sister's address. Are many of you hunting for friends? Let me know, perhaps we can stimulate a bit of cross-communication.

Joan and I plan a month exploring the south of Spain by car. We return Sept. 26. Please keep sending me your news. Remember that class reporters are like the biblical beggar who lives on the crumbs that fall from the rich man's table!

Mid-July in Virginia is not the ideal time nor place — however, beautiful autumn is coming and then my opinion definitely changes! Not only is the weather most pleasant, but it means that Homecoming at William and Mary is around the corner and I sincerely hope that all '46ers (or at least most of you) are planning a return to the campus for our momentous 45th reunion. Your committee has been working diligently for some time planning exciting events for us to enjoy together. The Buffet and Wine party on Friday night will be held in a unique location and the special dinner Saturday will find us in a new and delightful locale. In between will be all the usual alumni features and a very important occasion at the Library where an extra surprise awaits us all. Please mark your calendars NOW and make those plans to be in Williamsburg Oct. 17-20 for a fun-filled time.

A clipping from the Sunday News Leader in Staunton, Va. in February noted that Joanne Armstrong Donderro was guest speaker at the Attention Deficit Hyperactivities Support Group of Staunton, Augusta County and Waynesboro meeting. Joey is the director of Oakland School which is licensed and certified to teach special education and learning-disabled children in the state. After receiving her master's degree in special education from the University of Virginia, she held positions as a juvenile probation officer, social worker and testing psychologist in a reading clinic.

Harold Reid has recently presented some memorabilia to the University Archives in Swem Library, the keeper of the history of the College. It seems Harold is a regular contributor, giving fascinating stories about his times and friends at William and Mary, photographs taken by him during his College years, and books for the general library collection.

A nice letter from Richard MacCracken noting that he always enjoys reading news of classmates and regrets he has contributed little over the years. However, Dick did divulge a few items of current interest. This month he and his wife, Marilli, are going to California to see their grandson who will be celebrating his second birthday. After returning home, they will fly to Switzerland on their way to visit his wife's family in Florence. Dick also mentioned that they have already made reservations for Homecoming. Just wish I could learn that news from one and all.

The artist in our midst, Doris Brandt Bauer, participated in an Artist's Reception at a Lutheran church in Towson, Md., in January.

Julia Woodbridge Oxrieder is still most active in volunteer work at the Williamsburg United Methodist Church. She says it's easier to reach her there than to find her at home. Since last September, Julia has developed a new hobby — writing. She has had articles published in local daily and weekly papers. Besides her other interests, she makes time to read regularly to a man who is legally blind. Julia returned to Williamsburg in '72, following a varied career and worked at the Marshall-Wythe Law Library. She has mesmerized area residents with her folk tales ever since the Bicentennial year. She has one daughter and two grandchildren.

Several columns ago, we told of the success of Dorothy Fitzcharles Weber, the author, and her book on birdhouses. Her second offering is entitled "Backyard Bounty." She is also president of the council for W&M's Muscarelle Museum. Her husband, Maynard "Mo," was baseball coach at the College for two periods, and is still actively involved managing a team this summer. Mo has started a new career, that of restaurateur at the Upper Crust in Hampton, Va. Retirement years?

I had the pleasure of a mini-vacation last month, visiting Virginia Ratcliffe in her new surroundings at Bryn Mawr, Pa. and together we enjoyed an evening with Henrietta Kapler Margraf in Tuckerton, N.J., first at dinner and then a catch-up session in her lovely home. Henzie has more than kept busy since her retirement and she too is looking forward to Homecoming.

Sincere thanks to all who keep in touch with me. I will see YOU in October in Williamsburg!

When Lucy Jones Murphy wrote in April asking me to take over the duties of class reporter my initial response was completely negative. Then I must have had a good night's sleep because the next day the idea was much more appealing, and I agreed to give it a try. Bear with me as I strive to become a seasoned reporter.

I cannot begin this column without first mentioning Lucy and Bill Murphy. Most of their married life was spent in Manassas where Lucy was librarian at Osbourn High School and Bill practiced law. They retired to their current home at Merry Point in Lancaster County where they both enjoy golf, Bill fishes, and Lucy is active in all sorts of physical fitness programs. They have two married daughters and two grandchildren. Not only were Lucy and I roommates our senior year, we also did our practice teaching together at Matthew Whaley High School under the supervision of Miss Mildred Matiere, an inspiration to all would-be teachers. Lucy devoted too many years to this column not to get top billing.

One of the rewards derived from joining

Alumni who need assistance in finding a job may wish to contact the Office of Career Services at William and Mary, according to Stanley E. Brown, director of the office. By completing an Alumni Data Form and filing it with the office, alumni can 1) receive Career Placement Notes, a newsletter which is published semi-monthly; 2) have their data form and resume referred to potential employers; 3) come to the College for on-campus interviews; and 4) maintain a credential file with the office with recommendations enclosed to accompany future job and/or graduate school applications. For further information on these services, call the office at (804) 221-3230, or by mail.

the Sir Christopher Wren Association (of Lifelong Learning) at William and Mary was becoming acquainted with such interesting fellow members. One of the students in the creative writing course was Julia Woodbridge Oxrieder. Julia was the daughter of the late Dudley W. Woodbridge who was dean of Marshall-Wythe School of Law when we were students. Julia's career has taken her from one end of the country to the other, but she ultimately ended up back home in Williamsburg working in Marshall-Wythe Law Library. She is a well-known story teller (folk tales and inspirational stories), has devoted many hours to volunteer work in the church and community, and her latest hobby is writing. Several of her articles have been published in newspapers and periodicals. My introduction to Julia was when she read to our class an inspiring tribute to her father. Her brother, Hensley Woodbridge '43, teaches Spanish at Southern Illinois University. She has one married daughter and two grandchildren.

Another CWA classmate (in the Chesapeake Bay course) was Audrey Allein Hoitsma '49 who is just as concerned about the environment as I am. We are both avid gardeners and thoroughly enjoyed conducting tours through some of the historic gardens in CW during Garden Week in Virginia. Audrey and husband Lou spend their summers in New Hampshire missing all this Tidewater humidity.

The Friends of the Library recently published a list of gifts to the University Archives, Swem Library. One of the gifts was "a scrapbook covering his freshman year" by Benjamin F. Bray who also lives here in Williamsburg. Remembering how active the Bray twins were, I bet that's a full and interesting scrapbook.

Lucy forwarded a letter from Howard Hyle who travels all over the world as a consultant. This letter was from Kenya, which Howard says is one of "the garden spots of the world" and should be on our list of places to visit. From the color brochure he enclosed, I can believe it.

One of my reasons for taking on this column was that I love getting mail! Howard must have been thinking along that line too, because he came up with a brilliant suggestion. Each year on YOUR birthday send a card to ME with a brief note about your activities the previous year. You don't have to be a world traveler. At our age just the fact that we've made it through another year is an accomplishment. I'm enough of an optimist to be certain I'll be swamped with mail. There's just one drawback ... I'm really going to miss your letter, Lucy.

The following are excerpts from a letter from Bob and Liz Shuman:

"First of all, an update on the Shumans for those who don't know our present whereabouts. Bob Shuman and I (Liz Daniel Shuman) moved from Minneapolis to Cape Elizabeth, Maine, in June 1987. We sold our house in Maine and now live in what was called a "cottage" when it was built in 1886 by Bob's family. We have worked hard, spent a lot of time and money, and have renovated this old house. Both of us are happy and pleased with the results. We invite W&M friends to stop by if they are ever in our area. We are in the Portland phone book.

"The 40th reunion of our class was terrific. We did a bit of homework ahead of time, contacting old friends. There were many laughs and telling of old stories... truly heart-warming!

"It seemed like a good turn-out to us; and of course all names can't appear here, but here are some people who attended that we particularly enjoyed spending some time with. My roommate, Phyllis Reardon

Morrison, was there from Bakersfield, Calif. She and Bob moved to Kakarta, Indonesia, in November 1990 for a two or three year tour of duty. Bob is with Occidental Oil.

"Skippy Beecher Scrymgeour was there from Oakton, Va. Pat Jones Warner and Bill came from Fort Worth, Texas. Rod Lamontagne was there from Washington. Others we had nice visits with were Nancy Kurtz Falck and George, Jan Walser Nelson and Roy, Ed and Ann Cleaver Marsh, Martha Belford Root, Jay and Elly Seiler Flagg, Nicky Dillard Dewing and Jay (who now live in Grafton, Va., about 25 miles from Williamsburg).

"Also, Kirk and Marcia MacKenzie Kirkpatrick who now live in Williamsburg if my memory doesn't fail me, Jeanne Bamforth from Florida, Waverly Cole, still in Richmond, Randy and Sue Hines Davis, Dick Duncan and wife Sue, Dick and Audrey Hutchison Saunders now living in Kilmarnock, Va., Duke and Ruth Maroney Isaacs, Pete and Milly Johnson '51 Woodling; Ruth Barnes Jorgenson, Dick and Joanne Jonscher Scofield, Herb Chandler, Knox and Betty Lu Brann Ramsey, Barbara Campbell Borst and Bob, Bill '49 and Ann Litts '51 Lucas, Frank and Adelaide Leftwich '51 Angle, Don and Petey Beckett, and on and on go the names.

"There were those who have died who were sorely missed, and those we thought of and don't know their whereabouts. A few names that pop up in my mind are George Wells, Frances House, Anne Menefee, Bill Schroeder and Shirley Green.

It was fun and we are so glad that we went! For the benefit of others planning to come back for a big reunion, the secret to success is to arrange ahead of time for all your old buddies to promise to show up!"

From Capt. Ralph Chinn, USN Ret. in Ellenwood, Ga., comes this note: "In November, I did a bit of intellectual chattering at Universitat Zu Koln where I saw friends in Amstelveen and North Holland. My good friends in Dusseldorf gave me the keys to their apartment while they were in Ireland and I enjoyed good rest and recreation. I plan to attend the AAAS scientific meetings in Washington, D.C., in February 1991 and will go to Leningrad and Moscow in March 1991.

The Southside Sun of Emporia, Va., printed an article in April about our classmate, Dr. Edward Brickell, who is now president of the Medical College of Hampton Roads. He was to be guest speaker at the introduction breakfast for the Greenville County Education Foundation. In addition to his present position, Dr. Brickell is president of Brickell Management Services Ltd., a management training and consulting firm. He has delivered more than 1,500 addresses and speeches on local, state, national and international levels.

Even though I will never have children,

Todd A. Leeson '86 has been named an associate in the Roanoke, Va., office of the law firm Woods, Rogers & Hazlegrove. Leeson earned his juris doctor degree cum laude from the University of Notre Dame Law School where he was note editor of the Journal of College & University Law and on the Dean's honor list. He majored in economics at William and Mary.

Alma S. Coon '46 of Manquin, Va., is the author of a new book Amy, Ben and Catalpa the Cat: A Fanciful Story of This and That, published by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. The 40-page book for youngsters is a story of two children and a cat in Williamsburg in colonial times which serves as a means of introducing words that begin with each letter of the alphabet. Coon, who had a successful career writing radio jingles in St. Louis, said that her new book is a means of introducing youngsters to Williamsburg as well as building their vocabularies. The book is on sale at shops in Williamsburg operated by Colonial Williamsburg.

I'm well aware of the pain attached to having younger people around me die. Among my "children," I count a number of classmates who graduated after we did. The kids. One of them, Mike Smoller '60, died in June of a heart attack. Seeing him infrequently over the years, I visualize the exuberant, brash, 18-year-old. Happily that energy was well-placed since he leaves (among others) his wife Linda, two daughters, a son and two grandchildren. Mike Colleton '60 served as a pallbearer.

At another corner of life's spectrum is the wedding of the daughter of Larry Peccatello and Betsy Trebiert '59. Sitting at one table together at the wedding were Punky and June Knight Clarke, Ed and Dottie Byrd Wilson—of course—can four people be joined at the hip? Continuing with that table—Ross Hindemarsch and wife Connie and Art Gingold '58 with wife Faith. Five of the eight are '59.

DID YOU GET THAT, SOLLACE?

Ken Wallace '57 retired (there it is again, the arrgh word!) from Mutual of New York. Lives in Bedford, Va. In the last two years he's traveled to New Zealand, Hong Kong, Australia and England. And you didn't run into Ginny Fleshman Gada? In all those countries were you able to find enough bologna, white bread and mayonnaise to live on as we did in '55-'56 on Monroe third in Bob Gibbon's room?

Bob Anchell '59 has GOT to quit bugging me to return money to him on a show he invested in 17 years ago. Even Bob Thomas has given up on that one. To update you on his and Leonora's kids—Andy is 24 and a sergeant in the U.S. Army, David is 22 and a college senior, Carla is 18 and finishing high school.

In 1958 Don Smith and Linda Lavin '59 appeared opposite each other in Romeo and Juliet in the opening production at Phi Beta. At the tail end of 1990 Don was on campus to talk to the kids in the theatre department about life in our profession. My favorite event that Don was in of all his various appearances in the past 32 years was a play on Broadway called Moonchildren. A play to take great pride in.

Be forewarned at Homecoming. I will be recognized by my legal pad and a dozen sharpened No. 2 Ticonderogas.

I'm trying to get back in the groove after my daughter Susan's wedding on June 22 to Randy Hebert. Carole and Jerry Welborn, both '59, attended.

Got a Christmas card from Sarah Delk Perkins. She is enjoying her new grandson born in May 1990. And her daughter, Laura, was married last June. But she is still kept busy with her 11-year-old son, David. Sarah is also teaching 8th-grade history.

Also in December I got a letter from Ann Fenigson Losin. She and husband Ted had visited Linda Seltzer Roosen and Larry '58. Linda is an office manager in a podiatry office in Newport News, and Larry is a partner at the CPA firm of Goodman and Co. Their son, Howard, is doing his internship in podiatry in Detroit. And daughter Sharon is in hotel management in Virginia Beach. Ann works with her husband who is an attorney in Baltimore. Son Eric is a CPA with Ernst and Young, and daughter Amy lives with her husband, Joe, in Columbia, Md.

I promise to be more prompt with the news contained in all the letters that I am going to be receiving this fall!

Robert Tyler English lives in Voorhees, N.J., where he is president of RTE Search, which recruits manufacturing and research executives for major food and beverage clients. Bob plans to be at our 30th reunion in 1992.

Michael J. Mollory resides in Opal, Va. He is an administrator for Virginia Power's department of community and government affairs in Northern Virginia. He and his wife, Johnise, have two children, Michelle, 22, and Michael Jr., 19. Michael is a potential candidate for the Lee District board of supervisors in Fauquier County, Va. Good Luck!

I took my son, Ryan, to Williamsburg to participate in the Student Host Program in March. He spent a 24-hour period gaining a perspective on the College viewing it through students' eyes. He loved the College and plans to apply for admission. He will be a senior at Virginia Episcopal School, Lynchburg, Va.

News from you would help make this column more interesting and informative. For a postcard if you can't write a letter. I'll be waiting to hear from you for the next column.

Since we last corresponded "over the miles" Dick Goodwin was somewhere in the Persian Gulf. It is so good to hear from him, back safe from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, where he served with the 416th Engineer Command. Now he is just next door in Maryland. He got tired of the sand and the Scuds and was ready to come home despite his promotion to lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserves. We are grateful for his safe return and for his service on our behalf. Dick has resumed his law practice in Annapolis and plans to be at Homecoming this fall. He says he has some great stories to tell!

It was a pleasure to hear from Dan Armour. For the past 10 years Dan has been president of d. Armour and Associates, a firm specializing in the sale of data processing storage equipment plus records management equipment and supplies in Virginia Beach. He has served as president of the board of directors of the United Way Family Center and a member of the boards of the United Way Family Center and a member of the boards of the United Way in South Hampton Roads and in Virginia Beach. Dan has been active in the local alumni chapter, with the Athletic Educational Foundation, and part of the College's alumni admissions network. He has been master of ceremonies for the Neptune Festival, member of the Virginia Beach city councilman's advisory staff, and delegate to the state political convention. Dan has also found time to remain active in his profession as president of the Board of the Association of Records Managers and Administrators and as treasurer of the Data Processing Management Association. He is also an instructor in records management at Eastern Virginia Medical School.

Now, Dan, Dick and I send a challenge to the other Kappa Alphas, the other cheerleaders, plus all the fine arts majors and the economics majors, to fess up to your past and present activities. You weren't shy back in the early '60s. We'd also like to hear from everyone who worked on any Student Association committees. Let's hear from all of you for the next issue. Write now, but certainly no later than Oct. 15. For everyone else, please keep you old class reporter in mind when you send out those annual holiday messages. We want you to keep current!

Paula Lippard Justice and her husband Steve were married in May 1988 after they became reacquainted at their 25th high school reunion. After their marriage, Steve was transferred to Indianapolis with Alison Transmission Division of General Motors, and Paula became a professor of communication at DePauw University in Greencastle. This summer, a job transfer brought Steve, Paula and her daughter Laley (11 years) back to Virginia Beach to live. Paula was excited about this move and mentioned that she plans to be at our 25th reunion in October.

I hope you have made plans to be back in Williamsburg Oct. 17-20 for our 25th Reunion. It should be a great weekend. See you there!

Bill Collins, a math major at the College and a junior high school teacher for two years in the early 1970s in Stafford, Va., is a sales manager for Sears. Bill was a contender for the Aquia seat on the Stafford school board last May.

Good luck to Barbara Pate Glacel who is running for the Alumni Society's board of directors. Results will be announced on Oct. 18 during Homecoming Weekend.

Thanks to Barbara's Chi Omega newsletter for updates on others... Ricky Garber O'Kane has retired as training director for Woodward & Lothrop at Tyson's Corner. Ricky's daughter, Catherine, is a sophomore engineering major at the University of Virginia. Son Ryan is 14. Tommy, Ricky and children live in Alexandria.

Lin Stocker Reuther gave birth to a son, Tyler Stocker Reuther, last Nov. 17.

Linda Gray Coates works for a government contracting company in the Colonial Beach, Va., area. Daughter Melanie is a sophomore at William and Mary. Son Nathan is in high school.

I had a great chat with George DeVilbiss Gowan in July. George is a freelance artist in Kent, Conn. With a chuckle, she said she is also "head of the art department at the local bookstore." Husband Don (University of North Carolina '70) began his 22nd year at Kent School, where he is dean of boys, history professor and coach (football, basketball, lacrosse). Kent School is all in their family... Don, a 1968 graduate, celebrated his 25th reunion last June; young Don, a 1991 graduate, is now a freshman at Trinity; daughter Anna entered Kent with the Class of '92 this fall; and Andrew, 9, will be Class of 2000!

Enjoy the fall and have a happy holiday season!

Irene Diamant McLaughlin and family have moved from New York City (with little regret) to Los Angeles where her husband is now the dean of Loyola University School of Law. Leaving behind the skyscrapers and busy streets, they have joined the residents of suburbia in Pacific Palisades. Their home is a five-minute walk to the Pacific Ocean and has a view of the Santa Monica Mountains in another direction. They have two sons, Mark, 8-1/2 and Matthew, 4-1/2. As of April, Irene was looking for a job as an attorney, a challenge in this economy. She is interested in knowing if any classmates live "out here in La-la land." If so, get in touch.

Congratulations to Chrissie Ulmer Moore who received her master's degree in human resource development from Marymount University in May. She is working as a consultant developing training courses for businesses.

That's it for now folks. Have a great fall!

Classmates continue to climb the ladders of academe: Craig Davis was promoted in March to associate professor from assistant professor at Smith College in Northampton, Mass. Craig received his M.A. from the University of Wales in 1980 and a Ph.D. from U.Va. three years later. He joined the faculty at Smith in 1985 where he teaches English language and literature. Congratulations, Craig.

Tom Langhorne wrote from Endicott, N.Y., that he was able to visit the 'Burg for a day during his vacation to Virginia Beach — the first time he had been back in more than 10 years. An avid fencer, Tom hooked up with his former fencing coaches, Jack Willis and Pete Conomikes, and also saw Ted Reinhart of the anthropology department.

Fencing is still one of Tom's major interests and he recently served as an official for the Central Region Qualifying Rounds for New York's Empire State Games. He is also the faculty adviser/coach of the SUNY-Binghamton Fencing Club, which just awarded him the club's Order of the Broken Blade, a great surprise for Tom because it was the only time the award (intended for seniors) had ever been given to a coach.

Unexpected honors are always the nicest!

IBM has struck again, transferring and promoting John L. Hollis to Gaithersburg, Md., where he has reached another milestone on the road to corporate success. John and Elizabeth Shank Hollis are not expecting to stay long in Maryland, however, and are hoping the next transfer will be to some place less hectic than DC suburbia.

They have three children, Caroline, Lydia and John, and are flirting with the notion of home education this fall for the school-age girls. I am finding, suddenly, that a significant number of my friends and acquaintances are going that route. Has anyone else out there had any experience with home education?

Polly Sweet wrote from her home in Fairborn, Ohio, with news about herself, classmates and others. In May 1990, Karen Clews, Leslie Bell Shannon, Colleen Whiting McCall '73, Weesie Dunn Wine '73, Nancy Bull Weaver '73, Sue Russell '73 and Polly all met in Williamsburg for a Chandler Third Floor reunion. They hadn't all been together for 10 years but have kept up through the mail and by phone.

Leslie Bell Shannon and her husband Sam had recently moved from Gainesville, Fla., to Oak Ridge, Tenn. They both do geological consulting and are enjoying their new town and newly built home, which Polly pronounced "large and lovely."

Karen Clews is a systems analyst/supervisor for Fuor Corp. She recently bought a new condo in Laguna Hills, Calif., and is doing very well with the company. As for Polly, she works part time as a human resources specialist at Wright Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio. Her husband of 16 years, Carl, is a supervisory contractor specialist, also at the base. Their 6-year-old daughter, Erin, and their 2-year-old son, Ian, keep them busy.

Thanks for all the news, Polly.

After five years in the making, my book on how to run a museum store was finally published by the American Association of State and Local History. With its catchy title, Museum Store Management is a real thriller that purports to tell museums how to make their shops more profitable. Since money is one commodity that all museums need desperately, the publisher and I hope it will sell well. Don't watch for it on the New York Times best sellers list, however (if only I'd titled it Sex, Gore and Museum Store Management!), but as it is the only book on this topic ever published, I believe it will find its own small niche. And I'm very glad it's finished! While I'll not be making my fortune on this, it was a heady experience having my first book-signing reception at the Ohio Museums Association meeting in Columbus this past June.

My husband Jim Theobald was elected to the American College of Real Estate Lawyers, a select group of real estate attorneys across the country. I was very pleased, especially when I realized this group meets twice a year in fun-to-visit locations such as San Francisco, Maui and New Orleans.

A plea for news from Chi O's was answered by Susan Dunford Dixon. Susan lives in Richmond with husband Charlie and two sons, ages 9 and 6. She does a lot of volunteer work, particularly with the Richmond Easter Seal Society where she is in charge of this year's major fund-raiser, which has a goal of raising $20,000.

Before her children were born Susan taught 7th grade English for five and a half years and she has a master's degree in school administration. She won't be at Homecoming because the family is going to Disney World that week (they opted for Goofy instead of goofy) but she hopes to hear news of a lot of people in a later column. Susan keeps in regular contact with Dru Conway Kevit and Linda Owens Smith, each of whom also has two sons. Thanks for your letter, Susan.

Next time you see Ray and May Graves O'Leary, be sure to wish Ray a happy 40th birthday. May organized several surprises for Ray in June for this milestone including an ad in the Richmond newspaper sports section and a surprise party. Many William and Mary friends attended, including John and Robin Wamsley Schilling, Rick and Susie Forbes Dewey and Mike and Nancy Ware. We had a lot of good natured fun kidding Ray — I'm sure he won't let us forget in a few years! It was good to see old familiar faces again and catch up on what we've all been doing recently. May and Ray also have other exciting news. Their new daughter, Casey, surprised them both by arriving three months early! She is doing very well and should be home with her brother, Connor, by August.

DESERT STORM/SHIELD ALUMNI LIST STILL BEING COMPILED

In addition to the 16 names published in the June issue of the Gazette, three other alumni have been reported Desert Storm/Shield veterans. They are: S. Sgt. Bambi Lynn N. Salley '85, U.S. Air Force, 2nd Lt. Thomas C. Carnell '89, U.S. Army and 2nd Lt. William D. Fischer '89, U.S. Army. If you know of other alumni who served in the Gulf war please send their names to: Desert Storm/Shield, Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100.

DAVID A. HEENAN '61 PUBLISHES NEW BOOK

David A. Heenan '61, chairman and CEO of Theo. H. Davies & Co., Ltd., is the author of The New Corporate Frontier: The Big Move To Small Town, USA published by McGraw-Hill in July. The book analyzes the viability of a nontraditional headquarters and how and where corporate power will be exerted in the coming years. Heenan argues that command has shifted from the center (traditional, monolithic headquarters and large cities) to the periphery (so-called "miniheadquarters" and small-to-medium-size communities). Heenan has served on the faculties of The Wharton School and the Columbia Graduate School of Business. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

ager for Circuit City. She stays on the road covering seven stores over a two state area. She enjoys working with her computer in her "spare time" and can be found on Compuserve and Prodigy.

Cynthia Anne Hunt married Robert Howard in April. They are living in Troutman, N.C. Cynthia attended Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary following our William and Mary days.

Stephen Christenson recently earned a graduate diploma from the Institute of Children's Literature in Redding Ridge, Conn. In June he completed production on the children's play Painters Squadron at St. Mary's Grade School in Peshtigo, Wis., and this summer will be his fifth as publicity committee chairperson for the Ephraim Yacht Club. This fall he plans to travel south to Savannah to visit family and then on to Williamsburg followed by a stop in Northern Virginia to visit Sigma Chi friends, William Pommering, his wife Kay and baby Andrew, as well as Arthur Clayton and his wife Betty.

1990 was a satisfying year for Richard Lloyd; his play A Fugue for Sirens was featured in New York theater. He was also awarded the maximum fellowship in literature — playwriting, by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts. The basis for this award was the play Kess, which he based on his exposure to the rural communities of northwest, Virginia. He and his wife, Alice '79, and daughter Deirdre live in the small community of Roosevelt, N.J. Over the years this area has developed a sizable and active arts community. Springtime found him busy preparing for two New Jersey stagings of different works and putting the final touches on a new play entitled Ping-Pong. He says it should break the record for the most ping-pong balls ever to appear on one stage at one time... don't miss it!

Shawn Reilly Williams and her husband, Walter '80 J.D., welcomed their third son, James Hamilton, at the end of April. His brothers are Mason, 7, and Charlie 5. Besides a busy family life, Shawn has been active professionally since being appointed in 1989 by Gov. Caperton to the board of directors of the State College System of West Virginia. She also serves on the West Virginia Public Broadcasting Authority board of directors. The college system is composed of eight four-year colleges and the broadcasting authority oversees three public TV stations and the eight-station public radio network.

Brenda Hiatt Barber received exciting news last November — her second Regency romance novel, Gabriella, was accepted by Harlequin for publication. She says it takes about a year for the novel to reach local bookstore shelves, so keep your eyes open this fall. You can find her work under the pen name "Brenda Hiatt." Her husband, Keith, completed his master's in health care administration in December. He serves as executive officer for the dental activity at Fort Jackson.

Mark your calendars for Oct. 25 — our next deadline. Luckily this year Homecoming is the week before. I hope to see many of you. If you can't make it this year, drop me a note for our next column!

I think I've had it hot this summer, but I wouldn't last in Brazil, which is where Tom Shannon calls home. Tom is stationed at the U.S. Embassy in Brasilia until 1992 and all indications are that he enjoys the climate and area. Tom and his wife, Maria Guisela, welcomed their second son to the world last fall. John Andrew was born in September and is thriving in the South American culture.

A letter I received recently from Jay MacPherson bore two addresses — one in Portland, Ore., representing his stay at the Oregon Graduate Institute where he received his Ph.D. in environmental science and engineering, and one in Bellevue, Wash., where he has accepted a job as senior environmental chemist with PTI Environmental Services. Jay seems to have settled into the lifestyle of the Pacific Northwest quite easily, and enjoys the area immensely. He is eager to take advantage of local recreational facilities in what little spare time he has.

It sounds as if Susie Piedmont Palladino is single-handedly trying to inject a bit more life into the D.C. economy. Susie writes that the recession is having quite an effect on the architecture industry, at least in the D.C. area. However, she has very little time to think about it! Susie has been at Catholic University for about a year as assistant professor of architecture, but will be taking a new position this fall as associate professor at Virginia Tech's experimental urban campus in Old Town Alexandria, the Alexandria Center for Architecture. She will be teaching introductory design to high school students as the academic director of Catholic U's "Experiences in Architecture" program, as well as working on a book proposal for the American Institute of Architects Press, and fulfilling her duties as a director of Architects, Designers and Planners for Social Responsibility! All this while running an architectural firm with her husband, titled appropriately, Palladino & Piedmont Architects.

This spring, Paul McCulla was appointed county attorney of Fauquier County, after serving as deputy county attorney for two years. His office mostly deals with real estate matters, contract review, tax collection proceedings and litigation, and sometimes bankruptcy cases. Paul's background in municipal law for five years qualifies him for the position. He and his wife, Barbara, live in Warrenton with their 18-month-old son, John Patrick. Paul received his law degree from Marshall-Wythe in 1985.

Aspiring attorney Karl Olson was named to the post of editor-in-chief of the Law Review Board of Drake University for 1991-92.

Kathleen Pickering is at the University of Wisconsin-Madison where she is studying the economic development of the Lakota-speaking Sioux Indians in South Dakota under a National Science Foundation graduate fellowship award.

Also at the University of Wisconsin-Madison is Dick Fronko who is director of the magnetism resonance lab in the chemistry department. Under his authority are several highly sophisticated machines, each of which is worth millions of dollars. Dick tried to explain, in what I am sure are layman's terms, how these machines work and their purpose, but I must confess that his explanations went way over my head! (I guess that's why I stuck with the more fathomable field of accounting!)

Wisconsin seems to have become home to Dick. He pursued his master's and Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin, and although he spent some time in the Baltimore area at a research center, decided to return to Wisconsin to accept this position. He has been there since. The University of Wisconsin-Madison is one of the top schools and/or facilities for chemistry and physics, among other fields. Dick does manage faithfully to make the trip east for W&M reunions and family visits.

Diane (Corrasco) and Pat McGibbon are living in Herndon and are the proud parents of a beautiful daughter, Bevin Marie, born a year ago this past June. Diane works for the Pentagon as a budget analyst in addition to taking care of Bevin.

Scott Walode is another faithful attendee at W&M reunions — he has attended all 11 since graduation! He manages to do so even with two young children, Lindsay and Jacqueline (with a bit of help I'm sure from his wife, Louise), a new home in Wayne, N.J., which was recently completed, and as president and owner of HW Exhibits Inc. His accomplishments have earned him a place in Who's Who in U.S. Executives and Who's Who in U.S. Manu- facturers.

Steve Shull and his wife, Carole (Bowen) '79, live in Cooper City, Fla., where Steve is a financial consultant.

Also in Florida is Michael McLane, specifically in the Gainesville area. This past winter, Michael was appointed director of marketing for the Hippodrome State Theatre, a professional equity theatre. In 1990, he graduated from the University of Florida with a master's of fine arts in theatre. He also holds a master's in mass communications from the University of Florida. Michael has been acting since then in Florida, most recently appearing as Bob Cratchit in the Hippodrome's presentation of "A Christmas Carol," and in "The Heidi Chronicles" and "Rumors." Michael previously was a movie critic for the Gainesville Sun, and is listed in Who's Who in Entertainment.

I hope I've gotten all my facts straight; if not, please write to correct me. Remember to fill me in on what you've been doing and your whereabouts. Until I hear from you, take care!

I think you'll be impressed by all the productive, interesting things our fellow classmates are doing. Thanks to everyone who wrote to me this month.

For starters, Laurie Selz Harris has been awarded an MBA from Lynchburg College.

Midge Stocker has founded Third Side Press Inc., a publishing company dedicated to addressing issues of social relevance to women. Most books are fiction or deal with women's health. Midge's company is based in Chicago, and her first two titles were released in May.

If any of you attended the Richmond Alumni Chapter's annual spring reception, you were treated to the catering talents of Jana Blue Hopper. Jana's establishment, the Du Jour Restaurant, is on Grove Avenue in Richmond.

Another classmate in the food service industry is D. Robert Spivey Jr. who, along with two partners, owns and operates both a delicatessen and a catering business in the Richmond area. Bobby has been in business for himself since 1985 and is enjoying impressive success.

Cindy Drake Richmond and husband Joe have added a second son to their family. Christopher Drake, born Dec. 17, 1990, joins older brother Ryan Joseph, now 4 years old. Christopher was born on the same day the Richmonds moved into their new home in Newsoms — creating a very hectic time! However, Cindy reports that things have settled down considerably since then and she is enjoying six months leave from her accounting position at Union Camp Corp.

Mary Todd Haley Gray has been weaving coverlets and rugs in her Vienna home as she raises her 15-month-old son, Thomas. Mary's husband, Clarke '76, opened his own business in Centerville back in January. His firm, All Sports and Business Awards, produces and personalizes gifts and awards.

April was certainly a big month for weddings! Robert Withers Lee III was married to Tammie Kay Wright. Robert is presently working for C. L. Lewis & Co. Inc. After a trip to the Caribbean, he and Tammy were planning to settle in Lynchburg.

William J. Barnes was also married in April. He and LeeAnn Norris '87 held their ceremony in the Wren Chapel. The couple is living in Williamsburg, where William is a stockbroker with Wheat First Securities. LeeAnn is an attorney for the Henrico County Circuit Court, having earned her law degree from George Mason University.

Renata Manzo Scruggs wrote to tell me about another April wedding, that of Kathy Uhl and Joe Keller. According to Renata, the ceremony was held in a lovely country church near Kathy's home town of York, Pa. Megan Lott and Lynne Shannon Healy were among Kathy's bridesmaids. Megan works for TARS, the national Young Republicans organization, while Lynne, who is expecting her first child in August, is with Travellers Insurance.

Carole Schwartz, Dawn Ehlenfeldt and Susan Quine Laurillard also attended Kathy's wedding. Carole is a financial analyst for Marriott Corp. in Rockville, Md.; Dawn is a pharmacist at Lewis Gale Hospital in Roanoke.

Susan is working as an attorney for the state of New York, specializing in environmental issues. She and her husband, Kevin, who is also a lawyer, have a new home and should be enjoying many hours on the tennis court now that the warm weather has arrived.

Renata also had news about several other classmates. Lisa Robinson is manager at Rizzoli's Bookstore in Merchants Square. Apparently, Lisa has done a wonderful job with the place.

Pat Vaughan Haymes is expecting her first child and is working as an associate at Mays and Valentine in Richmond.

Attorney Will Shewmake is now a partner at the law firm of Coates and Davenport in Richmond. Congratulations! Will's wife Donna is also an attorney, practicing for Central Fidelity.

Finally, Renata herself is still the in-house environmental attorney for Reynolds Metals at its headquarters in Richmond, where she has recently bought a condo in the West End.

I also received a newsy letter from Karen Budd Duffy, who continues to serve as curriculum coordinator for the two preschools in Burke, Va. Her son Billy is now 4 1/2 and daughter Kathleen Marie was born in July.

Karen writes that Peggy Maher recently left her job at Price Waterhouse's law firm services group to manage on-line services at the Georgetown Law Library.

Rebecca Pagans has been awarded a master's degree, with a focus on computer science, from Hollins College. She is employed by Hollins, reporting to the controller.

Jeri Daniels Elder and her husband have apparently had a few "misadventures" with their new residence, according to Karen. Jeri is coaching field events for Penn State and was on the coaching staff for a U.S./Great Britain track meet last summer.

Another informative letter came from Becky Millard, who is living in Arlington while pursuing a graduate degree in film and video production at American University. Although specializing in screenwriting, Becky is also studying editing and cinematography and has even done a little directing!

Becky writes that Jan Mallison has recently become engaged. Having received an MBA from Harvard a few years back, Jan is now working for Marriott and living in Alexandria.

Lora Jacobsen is living in Richmond and pursuing a variety of artistic and personal goals, according to Becky. She has a black belt in taikwondo, is becoming an accomplished potter, and is hard at work on a romance novel.

Finally, Becky has given me a lead on one of our "missing classmates." I hope to have more information by my next column, so stay tuned! And don't forget to write.

Howdy, partners! My husband, David, and I, just returned from Jackson Hole Wyo., where he hiked halfway up the Grand Teton! It is a truly breathtaking place. We ventured through Idaho, Oregon, Seattle

ALUMNUS GIVES RARE DOCUMENTS TO COLLEGE

D. Hillsdon Ryan '50 of Geneva, Switzerland, has presented to William and Mary a portfolio of rare documents commemorating the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. Entitled "We the People," the portfolio was created in France in 1987 and consists of 33 folios. In addition to facsimiles on sheepskin of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, the collection includes facsimiles of other realted documents of early America, period engravings and a color lithographed triptych by contemporary artist Paul Jenkins. Only 250 copies of the portfolio were printed. In the accompanying photo, Ryan, founder of Minit International, presents the documents to Hays T. Watkins, rector of the College.

BOARD MEMBER HONORED BY MISSOURI

Author Wallace Terry, a member of the Board of Visitors of William and Mary, has been awarded the Missouri Medal of Honor for Distinguished Service in Journalism by the University of Missouri School of Journalism. Created in 1930 by Walter Williams, founding dean of the journalism school, the award is given to an individual or organization for a long track record of excellence, rather than for a single outstanding achievement. Past winners include Winston Churchill, David Brinkley, Chet Huntley, William Manchester, William Raspberry and Helen Thomas. Terry will receive the award on Nov. 8 at a banquet at the school in Columbia.

and up to Vancouver and Victoria. It was time for a vacation because I am starting a new job at the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hospital Authority Foundation as the associate director of development in early August.

John Ottoway is moving up in his career as well. John was recently promoted to vice president, account supervisor, for J. Walter Thompson in Detroit.

Dina DiCenzo was awarded the doctor of osteopathy degree from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine on June 2. Dina will begin an internship at St. Lukes Presbyterian Hospital in Denver, Colo.

Brandt Widener is a lawyer working for Winston & Strawn.

Patrick and Kathy Frakes '86 welcomed their second little bundle of joy into the world on June 4, 1991, Daniel Patrick Frakes.

Carrie Krysa '81 married Brendan O'Hara in June 1990, and they now live in Alexandria. Donald Crigger and Suzanne Ramos pronounced their wedding vows on April 13 in Norfolk. Donald is employed at the World Trade Center in Norfolk.

Here in Charlotte, Nick Sojka married Lucy Purcell, a UNC graduate, on April 13, as well. Nick is a lawyer with Parker, Poe, Adams & Bernstein.

On a more solemn note, Karen Simmons Sabol passed away on April 10, 1991, in a biking accident. I know we will all fondly remember her and the time we spent together with her as classmates at William and Mary. Suzanne Sweeney and her family have provided a donation to the College for the planting of a tree near the library in memory of Karen.

Those of you who have sent notes which are not reflected in this space, please remain calm. My change of jobs has contributed to an abbreviated column in this issue, but rest assured that your news will be in the next column. Until next time...

Greetings from our nation's capital! I hope that all of you have enjoyed a relaxing summer. Hard to believe that we will soon be together again. Our fifth year reunion is right around the corner, and I'm hoping to see all of you there! As always, there is a great deal of news to report, so please read on!

Susan Zanetti is finishing up her master's program in elementary education at William and Mary and has accepted a position as a fourth-grade teacher in Fredericksburg for the fall. I imagine parents will soon be begging to have their children in your class, Sue. Good luck!

Sarah Bottoms wrote from Amelia Island, Fla., where she and fiance Marc Magnus-Sharpe are busy planning their 1992 wedding! Marc continues to work with Outward Bound while Sarah has found a new and promising position as a television reporter for the NBC affiliate in Jacksonville. Look for Sarah on television if you are in the area. Good luck with the wedding plans!

My freshman roommate Marsha Domzalski Hope and husband Chris have moved to suburban Kansas City, Kan. Chris was transferred there by US Sprint, while Marsha is working for Waddell & Reed Financial Services.

Marsha tells me that congratulations are in order for Darby Drew and Terry Garber, who were recently married. Bridesmaids included Amanda McCombs Thompson and Ann Shufflebarger.

Marsha also mentioned that Deb Hollen and Scott Wallhermfachtel are planning to tie the knot this fall as well. Best wishes to all of you. Many thanks for the note, Marsha.

Anne McInerney spent the summer clerking for a law firm in Alaska. She'll finish her law school studies at Washington & Lee next spring. Anne tells me that Vaughan Gibson '88, Phil Infantino '87 and Dave Saltzman '87 graduated from W&L law this past spring. Congratulations to all of you on a job well done! Dave will begin work for the law firm of Chadbourne & Parke in New York City this fall. Dave's brother, Mike Saltzman, has finished med school and will be spending the next few years at New York University Hospital completing his residency. Thanks for the letter, Anne! Write and let me know what you thought of Alaska!

Bill Stokes has been busy since graduation. After working first for Colonial Williamsburg and then for the Center for Strategic and International Studies here in D.C., he spent a year traveling throughout Europe. Bill has now returned to D.C. and is currently working on a graduate degree in international affairs here at George Washington University. He's also working at the Washington research office of the Konrad Adenauer Stiftung, a German political foundation. Good luck to you!

Congratulations to Lisa Fraim '87 and Matt Seu who will tie the proverbial knot this December in Norfolk. Much luck and best wishes to both of you! Lisa tells me that fellow Tri-Delt Amy Flint has recently moved to Germany with the Army and loves it there.

By the time you receive this issue of the Gazette, Susan Ochs Dugas and husband Richard will be proud parents! Susan and Richard, who have relocated from Houston to Bethel, Conn., expect their first child to be born in August. Richard is working for Pepsi, while Susan is working full time towards her M.B.A. at Western Connecticut State University. Susan tells me that Woody Waters is now an attorney for Texaco in Houston. Thanks for the letter, Susan.

Also expecting a new addition to the family are Lucinda Snyder Whitehurst and husband Mark, who are anticipating the birth of their first child this November. Lynn Hale Riggs filled me in on that exciting piece of news and further reports that she and Lucinda are enjoying their work as librarians in one of Richmond's public libraries. Those of you in the education or library field who read School Library Journal will note that Lucinda has been a frequent contributor to that magazine.

Christine Ferguson Myers tells me that Suzanne Robinson Trollen and husband Vince have welcomed a new baby into their home. Margaret Page was born this past year and has settled nicely into Clarksville, Tenn., (outside Ft. Campbell) with Mom and Dad. Congrats to the proud parents!

Anna Grimsley Ashworth and husband Alan '85 have a new addition to their family. Catilin Erin was born in January and is certainly lighting up their lives! Joan and Chris Jones are enjoying parenthood as well.

Did any of you see Ken Halla's picture in the January 1991 issue of Runner's World? Ken finished third overall in last year's Army Ten Miler. Also participating in that race were W&Mers Sabrina Brinkley (continuing her work as a flight attendant) and Jenny Thompson. Jenny tells me that Linda Weber has finished her stint with the Army and is now living in the D.C. area.

Tim Hudenberg and wife Sabina, who were married last year, have moved to Annandale, where Tim teaches at West Springfield High School. German-born Sabina works for First Virginia Bank.

I ran into John Byrum and fiancee Martie Mellow recently. They took their marriage vows in early August and are living here in Alexandria. John is still working with Skadden, Arps here in town, and tells me that Alec Murphy is still living in Herndon and using his computer expertise in his job with Freddie Mac. Fellow computer whiz Joe Reilly has been promoted in the management information systems area of Circuit City in Richmond and has taken up sailboat racing as a hobby. Finally, John mentioned that Mike Jones '85 and wife Amy are expecting their first baby soon. Good luck! And thanks for the update, John.

Best wishes to Henry Plaster '85 and fiancée Christie Bruns, who will be married next May here in Washington. (I can even remember when you two met!) All the best to you both.

Lyn Taber and husband Dan Peters will be celebrating their first wedding anniversary this fall. They were married last year in Wren Chapel. The wedding party included Lyn's sisters, Laura '90 and Joyce '92. Witnessing the event were Breck Hall, Chris Walker, Jeff Grossman, Tom Brooks and Tony McNeal (all '85); and Sharon Callahan, June Sherry and Pat

5TH REUNION

OCT. 17-20, 1991

McFarland from our class.

Alex Cochran continues to work in the Army and has returned to the Washington area following training in Arizona and Texas. Alex is now stationed at the Pentagon where he works in the intelligence field. He and fiancee Irene will tie the knot this September in Chicago and will then return to the D.C. area.

Julie and Tom Dunn '87 survived another year of academia, took a quick trip to Bermuda, and then spent the summer in the Big Apple. Tom clerked for the law firm of Cahill & Gordon while Julie worked for L&F Products (they make Lysol, among other things) in their brand management area. Both enjoyed their experiences and have headed back to Durham where they'll graduate next spring from their respective M.B.A. and law programs at Chapel Hill and Duke.

Ellen and Doug Brinkley have moved into a beautiful new home in Baltimore. (Ask me about my experiences trying to choose floor tiles for their kitchen.) Ellen continues to work at Legg Mason and, having passed a lengthy battery of examinations, is now a certified financial planner. (I will be sending you my millions shortly, Ellen.) Doug is still in commercial real estate with W. C. Pinkard.

Lisa Lowder '89 and Fred Barends were married in Columbus, Ohio, in late June. The bride was gorgeous, the ceremony beautiful, and the weekend fun, fun, fun! The happy couple honeymooned in Maui and are now back here on the mainland. Lisa is finishing up her studies at the Rhode Island School of Design, while Fred is working in the field of college admissions. Heartfelt congratulations and all the best wishes to both of you. Yours was a wedding to remember!

Best wishes to Scott Ukrop '85 and Lilo Simmons who were married this past May in New Orleans. I'm told that the ceremony was beautiful and the reception great fun. The wedding party included J.D. Neary '85 and John Boyd '85. John and wife Amy Caramanka Boyd '85 are living in Charlottesville; John is in sales and Amy works for the Jefferson Group there.

Celebrating with the happy couple were the groom's proud parents, Jim '60 and Bobbie Berkeley '61 Ukrop; Joseph '61 and Kathryn Watson Lawler '59; Jim Brinkley '59 and Brenner Brinkley '60, Ellen and Doug Brinkley '86, and Susie and John Brinkley '88; Richmonders Bob and Lori Selden Haislip '84; George and Lynne Helms Foreman '84 (George is working in medical sales; Lynne is working on her residency in psychiatry); Tracy Sinnott '85; Bill and Susan Davis Garvey '85 (living and working in Charlotte); Mary Mitchell (busy in the field of advertising in New York); Gregg Crump '85 (working for IBM in Philadelphia); Ginger Baskett '85 (currently teaching in Norfolk); Elizabeth Cabell Jennings '85; Bill Sykes '86 (working hard for Sen. Warner here on Capitol Hill); and John Bridgeforth '84 (who lived with the groom at Darden and now resides in Chicago). I'm told that a wonderful time was had by all. Scott and Lilo honeymooned on the Caribbean island of St. Bart's and are now settling into married life at their new home in Richmond's Fan district. May you have a lifetime of happy memories!

My parents attended the wedding of Deanne Buschmeyer '87 and Johnnie McGranahan '87 on Long Island this past June (Mom and Mrs. Buschmeyer are college pals) and reported that it was absolutely beautiful. Deanne has recently accepted a position with Georgetown University, while Johnnie is working hard here in Fairfax as an attorney for Hunton & Williams. Here's to a long and happy life together!

Ran into Mary and Jeff Cushan '85, Jeannine O'Grody '87 and Christy Chekkel '87 at Ernie's Crab House here in Alexandria. Jeannine continues to enjoy her work at the National Gallery here in Washington. Christy will leave her job at the Smithsonian to begin graduate studies in the art field this fall at the University of Delaware.

Andie Owen and Mike Cole '87 are among the recently engaged. Mike is currently living in California while Andie is working here in the D.C. area for Bloomingdale's. Congratulations!

Mark Kosko Oates and husband Dave are busy as medical residents in the sunny clime of southern California. They have recently moved into a new home close to the beach and are trying to find time in their hectic schedules to enjoy the California lifestyle.

Ted '85 and wife Cathy Creekmore Decker have moved into a new home in Pittsburgh. Ted is working full time for Pittsburgh National Bank while pursuing his M.B.A. degree at Carnegie Mellon.

Regina Femminella '88 is working at Radford University as an academic adviser and is also enrolled in a graduate program there. She is enjoying herself and keeping busy.

Rebecca Stack '85 and Todd Campbell '85 took their vows this past June at Evelynton Plantation outside Williamsburg. The wedding party included Jane Gannon '85 and Mary Ellen Farmer '85. Guests Kevin '91 and Elizabeth Beal Murphy '84 (baby Brian is getting cuter every day!) and Pete and Nancy Croll Neves '83 attended the beautiful ceremony and reception. Rebecca and Todd enjoyed a Caribbean honeymoon and are now living in Alexandria, where Rebecca is clerking for District Court Judge James Cacheris. Todd is continuing his medical school studies at Georgetown University. Best wishes to both of you!

When I spoke to Margaret Eklind this spring she had just received her M.B.A. from Columbia University and had landed a job (a tough feat in this market) with United Parcel Service. Congratulations!

Anita and Doug Hawkins continue to live in Seattle. Doug is doing his medical residency in pediatrics while Anita manages the household and cares for children Lauren and Jacquie.

I saw the Noble family in New York over Memorial Day (all except Tom, who's still out in Portland, Ore.) and they tell me that Tom is still keeping busy in the world of advertising. (Tom, you owe me a letter.) Tom's brother and recent W&M grad, Andy Noble '91, is off on the job hunt and doing well. It was great to see all of you!

As for my "where-are-you-now" queries, I'm still wondering about those of you who have been mentioned but have not yet responded. You know who you are! This issue, Mike Kalaris, Jeff Gollomp, Brenda Johnson and Mark Hurley, and anyone who thinks they've been in more weddings than I have (I've been in 12), where are you now and what are you up to? Please write! And many thanks to all of you who have already responded!

As for the update on my activities, things

AEF NAMES
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR

Mary Edgar, a 1987 graduate of James Madison University, has been named associate director of development for athletics at William and Mary, effective July 16. Edgar, who has been an officer with Old Point National Bank of Williamsburg since 1990, will be responsible for the Athletic Educational Foundation's annual campaign and all social activities related to fund-raising.

MOREWITZ PLAY OPENS IN CHICAGO

Stephen J. Morewitz '75 and Susan Lieberman, an award-winning Chicago Dramatist Workshop playwright and graduate of Duke University, have collaborated in the writing of a unique play about the Quanza affair, "Steamship QUANZA," which opened at the Chicago Dramatist Workshop on May 4, 1991. In addition, Morewitz and Lieberman are working on a museum exhibit, "The Roosevelt Administration's Saving of the Quanza Refugees: A Prelude to the Nazi Holocaust," which will be featured at the Virginia Historical Society in Richmond between February and April of 1992. The story of the Quanza, which was detailed in a Summer 1991 article in the William and Mary Magazine, concerned a ship of refugees from Nazi Germany, which stopped in Hampton Roads in the 1930s. Through the efforts of the Morewitz family, the refugees were allowed to stay in the United States.

are as busy as ever (what else is new) here in Washington. And yes, I'm still here at Akin, Gump with the rest of the W&M gang! I continue to keep up with my tutoring and volunteer work and am working on getting my master's degree at night. And of course, I'm still a permanent fixture on the wedding circuit.

Sure do hope that all of you are well and thriving. I can't wait to see you at Homecoming and catch up on the latest news. Until then, enjoy what's left of this warm weather and please write when you get a chance or call if you're in the area. I would truly enjoy hearing from more of you; the more news I receive, the more interesting the column (and the less you have to hear about Ellen and Doug!) Until next column, take care! See you at Homecoming!

Hello, Class of 1988! I hope the summer went well for all of you. Thanks for the letters, cards, notes and phone calls! Keep it up!

Bob Wilson writes from Vienna, Va., where he is the program coordinator for the Wolf Trap Institute, a Wolf Trap Foundation educational program. He lives in Arlington with fellow W&M alums Steve Abbot '90, John Horn '90 (who is marrying Michelle Boeker '89 in December) and Dan Jost '90.

News from Bob:
Jeff Murray is ending his third year as a med student at U.Va.

Andy Flack is living in McLean, Va., and works for Associated Sales.

Tim Dirgins is managing a bagel shop in the Boston suburbs.

Billy Connolly graduated from NYU Law School in April 1991.

Liz Turqman and Jennifer Lear are both finishing their second years of law school at George Washington University.

Margaret Turqman lives in Washington, D.C., and works for the Washington Service Bureau.

Todd Cunfer '87 is finishing his first year at the Darden School of Business at U.Va.

Kitty Nguyen is living in Hoboken, N.J., and is doing very well with Macy's in New York.

Adam Anthony '87 works for Virginia Sen. Chuck Robb, and in May married Jennifer Rodgers, sister and sister-in-law, respectively, of Karen Rodgers '87 and Jim Calpin '87.

Sue Campbell is living in Washington, D.C., and works in the marketing department for the Discovery Channel.

Katherine Eklund is working as a marketing analyst for Tweeds Inc. in North-ern New Jersey.

John Gerbino finished his M.B.A. at SUNY, Albany in Spring 1991.

Christine Philipp '89 is working as an analyst for the Polo/Ralph Lauren Corp. in New York.

Julie Cunningham is still working and going to school at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh. Julie was married Aug. 3 to Shane Shackford. W&M bridesmaids included Jill Ellis, Megan McCarthy and Amanda Meyers '87. Groomsman included John Cunningham '91 and many Tribe alums were in attendance.

Karen Ritter also was married Aug. 3. She is currently working as a physical therapist for a group in Atlanta.

Julie also writes that Marsha Fishburne '87 (now Marsha Lycan) was married in West Point, N.Y. Those present included Holly Barrett, Holly Coors, Karen Johnson, Karen Sheehan '87, Linda Seiden '87, Andrea Romig '87, Courtenay Jenkins '87, Tracy Jolles '87, Lester Lain '87 and Matt DeLuca '87.

More news from Julie:
Jill Ellis is working as a technical writer and publisher at Northern Telecom in Raleigh, N.C.

Megan McCarthy, a member of the U.S. Women's National Soccer team, has been traveling the world this past year, including Haiti, China, Europe and all over the U.S. The U.S. team is currently undefeated and ranked No. 1 in the world and has qualified for the first-ever Women's World Cup, to be held November 1991 in China. The William and Mary soccer team, both past and present, is proud to have her on the U.S. team! Julie adds that in Megan's spare time she is doing graduate work at George Mason University.

Kristine Hudson is working as a manager for Advantage Temporary Services in Falls Church, Va.

Nancy Reinisch has finished up graduate work at NYU. She is now a qualified and successful hospital administrator in NYC and loves it.

Holly Barrett is working for Aetna and is living with Stacey Zeman '90, who is working in advertising, and Amanda Meyers '87, who is working for the American Psychological Association in Washington, D.C.

Ken Nicely '89 was married in August 1989 to the former Teresa Nichols, a JMU grad. Ken just finished his master's of arts in teaching degree in Spanish at U.Va. Ken and his wife will be leaving in August to spend two years as missionaries in Managua, Nicaragua. Congratulations and best of luck!

Anne Newland married James Doll, an Old Dominion University graduate, on Dec. 8, 1990, in Arlington, Va. Among the wedding party were Maggie Margiotta and Kaky Spruill.

Tom Hamilton married Jill Watson '89 on April 13, 1991. Tom is a patent examiner at the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in Arlington and Jill is an accountant at Arthur Andersen and Co. in Washington, D.C. The Hamiltons are now living in Arlington.

Heather Taylor married William Miller on May 11, 1991, in Richmond. Heather is a tax accountant for Arthur Andersen and Co. William is a graduate of the University of Richmond and is employed by North-western Mutual Life Insurance Co. The Millers are living in Richmond.

Tim McEvoy graduated from U.Va. law school on May 19, 1991, and spent the summer studying for the bar.

McKim Williams recently joined Wheat, First Securities as a financial consultant in the firm's Hampton office. He joined the firm after serving as assistant director of operations at the Columbia Museum of Art in South Carolina.

Emily Beck returned to W&M last spring to design Luigi Pirandello's Six Characters in Search of an Author for the W&M Theatre. Emily is currently employed at Theatre Virginia in Richmond as master scenic artist. She plans to begin a master's of fine arts program in the fall.

Speaking of W&M Theatre alums, Andrea Topps is currently working on her M.F.A. at the Howard University Film Program. She just finished her second short film, Raw Intensity. Bob Brinkerhoff was in the first entitled Boundaries, and Godfrey Simmons was in both of them.

Audrea is now trying to raise the funds for her thesis film Hard Candy, which is set to shoot in the summer of 1992. A W&M alum, Gordon Wachsmann, will be the featured character. Audrea says that you can catch him in the underground cult classic Braindamaged which can be found in your local Blockbuster Video store. Audrea is in the midst of casting and selecting crew positions and says that if anyone is interested in being in a film or investing in a small production company, to talk to her. (If you want to get her address get in touch with me.)

Audrea says that Kate Flemming '87 will be working with her on her advanced directing project. Kate is doing very well in D.C.

Andy Pang is going to Yale School of Drama to get his graduate degree. He just finished working with Michelle Parkinson on a PBS special. He even had a picture in the Washington Post TV Guide.

Linda Powell '87 is currently filming a television pilot in Chicago.

Godfrey Simmons just finished work at Arena Stage Company in Pygmalion. At the time of Audrea's letter he was working at the Roundhouse Theatre. He appeared on stage May 29, 1991, with the Jewish Theatre Company in Another Antigone.

Last but not least, Audrea sends a message to Cary Fishburne down at the University of Virginia Medical School. Carrie, she'll make you a star; you'll be the next super hero! And to Keith Reagan, are you still Trekking?

Maureen "Mo" Evans writes from Norfolk, Va., to let us theatre folk know that she hasn't fallen off the face of the earth. After graduating from W&M, Mo left her budding theater career behind and worked for a bank for a year. However, she subsequently gave that up to become a ... are you sitting down? ... police officer for the city of Norfolk. She has been a police officer for the last two years and says that she became a "cop" because she thought that she could make a little difference.

Mo plans to go back to school in the fall at Old Dominion University to pursue a teaching degree. She now wants to teach and coach. For the past two years she has been an assistant basketball coach for her old high school and has loved every minute of it. Mo says that she would love to hear from her three senior comrades from the basketball team (Fonda Gray, Debbie Wade and Beth Harfield) and the gang from "It's better on the bottom" Dupont East (1989).

Barbara Pedersen graduated from the University of Chicago Law School with a J.D. in entertainment law in May 1991 and has relocated to Haverton, Pa.

David Burke is now on Broadway playing in Six Degrees of Separation with another William and Mary graduate, David Little. The two Davids play son and father.

My little sis, Jennifer Piech '89, has recently made the move to the big city, NYC that is, and is doing well. She got an industrial commercial for Amoco in April and at the time of her letter she was going to do a reading of a new play at the Lincoln Center. I got to see her in mid-May at the home of Jennifer Catney '89. They both looked terrific! Jennifer was working for a catering company for the summer while she was figuring out her options for the fall.

Erik Gustafson sent me a graduation announcement in May. Erik just completed his J.D. from Georgetown University. Congratulations!

Emily Deck is living in Arlington, Va., and working for the House Armed Services Committee. Emily had a "small" mishap playing softball during which she broke her neck giving her a forced vacation. Emily moved up into a staff assistant position last year. She works with the professional staff member who handles the major strategic weapons programs, like the B-2 and SDI.

Emily is planning on moving to Columbia, S.C. Her boyfriend, Paul Harrill '86, is down there working as a South Carolina circuit court clerk based out of Dillon, S.C. (home to "South of the Border"). Paul graduated from USC Law School last year. Emily says that she spent Memorial Day weekend at Myrtle Beach, staying with Paul, Steve Cornelius '86, Renee Snyder, Scott Covall '86, Dan Scerbo '86 and Kathy Riley (who are engaged to be married on Sept. 21, 1991, in New Hampshire) and Amy Hoyt.

Emily runs into several "Tribesters" in the course of her second job at a local health club. Alan "Fritz" Adenan '89 and Doug Anderson '85 are both members, and Scott De Marco '90 is a frequent guest. Alan is one of the managers for Fitzgerald's Restaurant in Old Town, and Doug is a lawyer at the Office of Thrift Supervision, busting the bad guys to make the world safe for democracy. He went to Costa Rica in May for a Coffee Bean Exporters Convention.

Emily crosses paths with Tim Curran '89 every now and then. He is a reporter with Roll Call Newspaper, and you will find his byline on lots of different types of articles.

Dan Sheehan '87 is still working on Capital Hill, although he now works for the Small Business Committee. He is enjoying his new job, although it is a big change.

Kathy Gramling is still working for Congressman Steven Solarz (D-NY), and has been promoted to legislative assistant.

Doug Gray left Sen. Gore's office (where he has been working for two years) to live the good life for the summer in Colorado, where he'll be driving jeep tours. He'll be going to graduate school at a classified location in the fall. His girlfriend, Julie Janson, is teaching elementary school in Loudoun County, Va., and she will join him for the summer.

At last count, Kirsten Schmidt had received her master's (international political economy) from Fordham University and was intent upon entering the Ph.D. program!

Emily ran into Debbie Growitz '90 some time ago outside a Chesapeake Bagel Bakery. Debbie is working at Arena Stage and looked really happy.

A response to the "Where in the World Are They?" section: Emily says that Cary Fishburne '90 is at the end of his first year at U.Va. Medical School and loves it. The last she heard of him, he was taking it easy after spring midterms on the Chesapeake, and getting ready to start playing with the new doctors' toys that he had: stethoscope, knee hammer...

Amy Hoyt is back in the good old U.S.A. after spending a couple of years in England. She has the privilege of being the only person I know to be deported from a country! Amy is now taking some time off and spending a lot of time at the beach before returning to the working world. Amy was up in Syracuse in June and it was great to see her again.

Chris Cox and Kate Evans were married in April in Boca Raton, Fla. They are now living in Roslyn, Va.

Also Jen James recently graduated from Syracuse University with her master's in education. She has relocated to Norfolk, Va., where she is teaching.

Now for the infamous "Where in the World Are They?" section: If anyone has heard from or about David Dickerson, Dan Bilderback or Jennifer Renee Whiting (a personal, desperate plea from her old roommate), please let us know what they, or you are up to.

As for me, I just GRADUATED! Yes, I now have a master of fine arts in theatre and oh so glad to be DONE. (By the way Monica, you lost the bet!) After finishing my 264-page thesis and defending the sucker, I got a position with the Manhattan Theatre Club in NYC, the third largest Off-Broadway theatre. I am now desperately trying to pack up my life here in the frozen tundra of Syracuse, N.Y., and get myself down state in order to start working in two weeks. I'll be staying with family until September (please note the new (actually old) address at the beginning of this article) at which time I'll be in the market for an apartment (hopefully somewhere in New Jersey).

I was pretty busy this summer with some heavy duty traveling. I went down to Lexington, Va., to attend the nuptials of Anne Scott Obenshain and Steve Zumbro who were married June 15, 1991. The wedding was beautiful and gave me a chance to see some old friends. Among those

VIMS DIRECTOR/DEAN APPOINTED BY COLLEGE

Dennis L. Taylor, director and chief executive officer of Bigelow Laboratory for Ocean Sciences in West Boothbay Harbor, Maine, has been named dean and director of the School of Marine Science/Virginia Institute of Marine Science at William and Mary. A specialist in marine microorganisms, Taylor has also been designated the A. Marshall Acuff Jr. Professor of Marine Science, the first privately supported named professorship in marine science. Taylor has been director and CEO of Bigelow Laboratory since 1989. Prior to that he was with the University of Maryland's Center for Environmental and Estuarine Studies in Cambridge, Md, where he served as associate director of academic affairs and head of the center's Horn Point Environmental Laboratories. Taylor, 48, received his bachelor's degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1964 and his Ph.D. in zoology from University College of Swansea, University of Wales, United Kingdom, in 1967.

ALUMNA AUTHORS BOOK

Joan Detz '74 M.A. is the author of a new book Can You Say a Few Words? published by St. Martin's Press. A leading speech writer for senior executives and a former member of the faculty of New York University's Business and Management Program, Detz now lectures on public speaking across the country. Her book is a helpful guide to public speaking in such forums as award presentations, dedications, eulogies and prayers, acceptance speeches and anniversary toasts. She previously wrote How to Write & Give a Speech. Cost of the book is $22.95.

in attendance were Bill and Tricia Hertz, Tom Hamilton and wife Jill '89, Jim McCreedy, Jenny Whitaker, Lynn Kerr, Cathy Ireland, Shannon Duling '89, Susan Ritenour '94 and Robin Yustein, just to name a few.

On the way back, I stopped in the Burg where I ran into (literally) John Leonard at Second Street. John spent the summer working for the newly revamped Virginia Shakespeare Festival. Others spending the summer at PBK Hall included Kim Wilcox (who is getting her master's from Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass.), Ellen Lee '89 and Tim Magner. Being at the theatre with these guys was a little like deja vu, but it was great seeing them again.

I also got the chance to see Dave and Susie Gaston in Newport News. They looked terrific and incredibly happy. Dave is teaching at Bruton High School and Susie is in graduate school at the Hampton Roads branch of George Washington University.

Also on the way back, I stopped in Washington, D.C., where I saw Curtis Shumaker '89. Curt was in the Folger Shakespeare Theatre's production of King Lear. The production was terrific (and you should have heard Curtis call for those trumpets!) It was terrific seeing him again. He is loving D.C. and is doing very well in the theatre there.

Curtis told me that yet another W&M Theatre alumn, Mark Aldrich, was understudying roles in Forever Plaid in D.C. Well, that is it for now. Again please note the return to the Connecticut address. Watch for the NYC address in the fall. My next deadline is October 25 so keep those letters and phone calls coming!
