Tim Sullivan '66 Named 25th President

By S. Dean Olson

After a five-month search that attracted 178 nominations and 142 active candidates from 40 states and four foreign countries, the Board of Visitors decided the right person was already on campus to become the 25th president of the College of William and Mary.

In a dramatic announcement on April 9 in the Great Hall before a cheering group of students, faculty and staff, Rector Hays T. Watkins introduced Timothy J. Sullivan '66, dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law for the past seven years, as the next president of William and Mary.

With his wife Anne Klare Sullivan '66 nearby, Sullivan, who will succeed Paul R. Verkuil '61, described his feelings as "surprise, fear and hope ... all mixed together" and pledged to do everything within his power to move the College forward as it enters its fourth century.

Watkins described Sullivan, 48, who also holds the positions of John Stewart Bryan Professor of Jurisprudence and executive director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law, as the "right person for the position as we head toward the College's 300th anniversary in 1993."

James W. Brinkley '59, vice rector of the College, who chaired the 21-person search committee that forwarded the names of three finalists to the Board of Visitors, said Sullivan had "articulated a vision that the board thought was right for the College. He has the leadership abilities and management style that we thought are correct for William and Mary."

Sullivan was the only alumnus among the list of five finalists, which also included Michael Hooker, president of University of Maryland, Baltimore County; Melvyn D. Schiavelli, provost and acting president of William and Mary; Katharine C. Lyall, acting president, University of Wisconsin System; and George R. Packard, dean, the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University. He is the first professor in 138 years to move from the faculty to the presidency. Benjamin Stoddert Ewell, professor of mathematics, was elected president in 1854.

Sullivan has been associated with William and Mary for most of the 30 years since he came to Williamsburg as a freshman in 1962. A member of Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa, he entered Harvard Law School where he received a juris doctor degree in 1969. A decorated Army officer who served in Vietnam, Sullivan received the Bronze Star and Army Commendation medals and the First Oak Leaf Cluster. He returned to William and Mary in 1972 as an assistant professor of law, was promoted to associate professor and associate dean of the law school in 1974, to full professor in 1977 and was named the John Stewart Bryan Professor of Jurisprudence in 1984. In July 1985, he became President Verkuil's first appointment when he was named dean of the law school.

In between his service at the College, Sullivan has taken two leaves of absence—first as a visiting professor of law at the University of Virginia from August 1981 to Above, Tim and Anne Sullivan approach the Great Hall with Rector Watkins and Search Chair Brinkley for the announcement and at right Sullivan reflects on his appointment.

January 1982 and then as former Virginia Governor Charles S. Robb's executive assistant for policy from January 1982 to August 1984.

In a recent U.S. News and World Report survey, the law school was in the top 35 among 174 law schools in every category except resources, where it ranked 87th. It is among the top 10 of public institutions in admissions selectivity and in law school aptitude test scores. In fund-raising since Sullivan became dean, the annual fund has grown from $60-70,000 a year to more than $300,000 with a 30 percent participation rate among alumni, one of the highest among public institutions in the country. In addition, endowment has grown to nearly $7,000,000.

The Institute of Bill of Rights Law, of which Sullivan is executive director, is considered one of the leading, if not the leading, constitutional research institutes in the country, according to Richard A. Williamson, vice dean of the law school. As an indication of its status, the institute last spring was chosen as the site for the Bicentennial Celebration of the Bill of Rights by the Judicial Conference of the United States.

A colleague for more than 20 years, Williamson said Sullivan's strengths lie in his integrity, the ability to surround himself with able and trustworthy people and to delegate authority, his great sense of history, his affinity, unquestioned loyalty and knowledge of William and Mary, and his breadth of support that cuts across academic, generation, political and gender lines.

"Tim will do the right thing, no matter what," said Williamson. "The one consistent theme has been that he will make decisions that are guided by the welfare of the students and their education."

Williamson credited the "unusually open" search process with exposing the William and Mary community to Sullivan's strengths and "getting Tim the job."

"The process let Tim be Tim. People could see what he was all about," said Williamson.

Brinkley, the man who chaired the process, said the committee wanted an open, expeditious and completely confidential search—and that it had accomplished all three goals. The committee initially conducted interviews on campus with students, faculty and staff to determine a profile for the ideal president and then brought the five finalists to campus for two weeks of interviews in open sessions with the College community. Reaction from the interviews was submitted to the search committee, which then forwarded the names of three finalists to the Board of Visitors. After interviewing the finalists, the board elected Sullivan unanimously, according to Rector Watkins.

Sullivan, who will take office July 1, was commended by a number of state leaders, including Senator Charles S. Robb, Gordon K. Davies, executive director of the State Council on Higher Education, and State Senator Hunter B. Andrews '42.

Commenting on Sullivan's election, President Emeritus Davis Y. Paschall '32 commended the search committee for the caliber of the final candidates selected and the Board of Visitors for the obvious soul-searching decision that was ultimately made.

Paschall said Sullivan has "a proven record of leadership and vision and views an institution as people."

"He possesses a sincere sense of caring—without patronizing—that will manifest itself from the groundsman to the dean on campus," said Paschall. "I was privileged to present him with his degree in 1966. He was married to an alumna in the Wren Chapel, as I was, and there is something about that that makes William and Mary a second mother in his heart and soul."

COUNTING THE PRESIDENTS

Will Tim Sullivan be the 25th or 26th president of the College—and if Paul Verkuil began his presidency as the 25th, how could he end it as the 24th? And why won't Sullivan be the 26th? And who's on first?

Until recently, the next president of William and Mary would have been the 26th since the College was founded in 1693. But last year, W. Wilford Kale '66, author of Hark Upon the Gale: An Illustrated History of the College of William and Mary, pointed out that Benjamin Ewell had been counted twice—first as acting president from 1848 to 1849 and then as president from 1854 to 1888. Three others had served acting, or pro tem, terms—Kremer J. Hoke in 1934 and James W. Miller in 1951 and George W. Healy in 1985—but none except Ewell's term was counted in the chronology of presidents.

"No matter how the presidential list is determined, the incumbent cannot be the 25th president," Kale wrote of Verkuil. "He would either be the 24th president by correcting the one year Ewell served his pro tem term, or the 28th president with the inclusion of three other acting presidents."

Based on Kale's research, the Board of Visitors decided to eliminate all pro tem terms, making Paul Verkuil the 24th president and his successor, Tim Sullivan, the 25th.

RINGING FAR AND NEAR

And Now There Is One

By Barry Adams

There were 178 nominations. Then there were 142 applicants. Eventually there were but 12. Finally, five finalists emerged. And now there is one.

They represented residents of 40 states and four foreign countries. Sixteen percent were female applicants. It was an amalgamation of intellectual and administrative talent with designs on the presidency of the College of William and Mary in Virginia. As the local Daily Press noted so eloquently in an April 13 editorial, it is "a post that has been held by clergymen, military officers, educators and scholars." That same editorial also described it as "a job that requires the faith of a clergyman, the tenacity of a warrior, the passion of an educator and the intelligence of a scholar."

Their career paths and present positions spoke well of the esteem in which the presidency of William and Mary is held among contemporary national leaders. Diverse, impressive and solid. They were internationally known scholars, college and university presidents, provosts, corporate vice presidents, deans, museum moguls and academic prodigies.

And now Timothy J. Sullivan, president-elect, a 1966 alumnus and dean of William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe School of Law stands as one. His selection, which considered in the comprehensiveness of the process resembles a popular consensus among those ultimately affected by such decisions, is a tribute to the appeal of his candidacy.

The soon-to-be 25th president was viewed throughout the process as a sensitive, warm and caring person who happened to have an immaculate record as an administrator, scholar and spokesperson.

An article in the Richmond Times-Dispatch quoted a member of the search committee as saying he was a candidate whose "love and deep affection for the College was apparent throughout the process."

"When I talk about the College, I think about individuals, not an abstract institution with a distinguished history, which it is. But for me it is a living place. There are individual relationships found that transform lives and it's a special place. All that happens within the context of its history."

Without question the search has been grueling for those cast as contenders. But it has, from all accounts and comparisons, been a model process. From the appointment of a well-versed and representative search committee to the intense two-day interviews and presentations attended by students, faculty, alumni, staff and community leaders it was a search perhaps unprecedented except by more than a handful of institutions. The more than 55,000 alumni can take satisfaction in knowing that their interests and love of alma mater were acknowledged by broad alumni participation. From leadership of the search committee, chaired by James W. Brinkley '59, to discussions with the consulting team that helped shape a job description which focused on "the qualities sought in the 25th president," to the interview process, which included a start-off breakfast with alumni to the final selection by the Board of Visitors, the search gave numerous and frequent opportunities for alumni voices to be heard. And they were.

The Society can be proud of the process which sometimes can be so encumbering and political on campuses less endowed with articulate and progressive governance. Under the new leadership and vision of Timothy J. Sullivan an investment and belief in people are likely to shine even brighter among the qualities representative of our institution.

And though now there is one, Timothy J. Sullivan doesn't stand alone.

Alumni Board of Directors Installs New Officers

Two days after being named William and Mary's 25th president, Timothy J. Sullivan '66 met with members of the board of directors of the Society of the Alumni at the board's spring meeting held April 10-11 in Williamsburg. "I look forward to an excellent working relationship with you," noted Sullivan, who also referred to this as a "remarkable time in William and Mary's history. We are a healthy institution but we have a way to make it even better."

Sullivan pledged the board that through his actions and deeds he would do everything possible to earn the title of president once he assumes that title later this year.

In other significant business, the board voted to adopt the proposed bylaws of the Hulon Willis Association of the Society of the Alumni. This new group organized under the auspices of the Society, according to the bylaws, "seeks the involvement of its members through sponsored programs, projects, activities and events in order to preserve the legacy and history of African-American students and to enhance the participation of all alumni, faculty, staff and students in the College community."

The organization is named in honor of the late Hulon Willis Sr. '56 M.Ed., the first African-American to attend William and Mary. Willis, whose son Hulon Jr. '77 and daughter Kimberly '80 also attended the College, is remembered warmly by alumni who knew him.

As part of the board's semiannual meeting, members hosted a reception on Friday evening at the Alumni House for winners of the Society's Literary and Science Awards. Although the Society has awarded literary awards for a number of years, this year marked the first time that awards in geology, physics, biology and chemistry were given.

Faculty representatives also were on hand to congratulate the following winners, each of whom received a $100 prize: Russell Anthony '92, Mathews County, Va.; Elena Bonaplata '92, Madrid, Spain; Nicholas A. DiProspero '92, Cherry Hill, N.J.; Warren M. Griffith '92, Alexandria, Va.; Stephanie Jones '94, Culpeper, Va.; Cristen Kimball '92, Lake Ridge, Va.; Brendon MacBryde '92, Fairfax, Va.; and Bonnie Powell '93, New Orleans.

The board closed its meeting with the installation of new officers who will serve through the 1993 spring board meeting. Joseph W. Montgomery '74 of Williamsburg, a member of the board since 1989, was named president. Serving with him are Rebecca Beach Smith '71, '79 J.D. of Norfolk, vice president; Anne Nenzel Lambert '35 of Williamsburg, secretary; and Joseph J. Ellis '65 of Holyoke, Mass., treasurer.

Montgomery is a managing director and head of the Optimal Service Group for Wheat, First Securities Inc. In 1990 he was elected to Wheat's board of directors. He is the recipient of several professional awards from both Wheat and other financial organizations. A former co-captain of William and Mary's football team, he received numerous honors for his success on the playing field, including Outstanding College Athlete of America and All American. He has held leadership positions in numerous organizations connected with William and Mary and the Williamsburg community.

Smith has served as a U.S. district judge for the Eastern District of Virginia since 1989, the same year she was elected to the Society's board. In addition to her undergraduate and law degrees from William and Mary, she holds a master's degree in city planning and public administration from the University of Virginia.

Now serving her second three-year term on the board, Lambert has been an active participant in the life of the College for more than 50 years. Involved in numerous College and community activities, she is the widow of the late J. Wilfred Lambert, former vice president for student affairs.

Also serving a second term, Ellis is Ford Foundation Professor of History at Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass., where he has taught since 1972. He holds two master's degrees and a doctorate from Yale University.

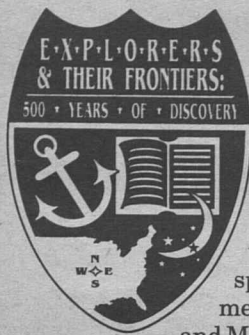

Board members paid a fond farewell to Society President John S. Entwisle '44 and Secretary Ann-Meade Baskerville Simpson '63. Both retired from the board at the end of this meeting, after completing second three-year terms. Filling their slots are newly elected members Barbara Pate Glacel '70 of Burke, Va., and Sunshine Trumbo Williams '44 of Norfolk.

New officers of the Society's board of directors for 1992-93 are (from left): Joseph J. Ellis '65, treasurer; Rebecca Beach Smith '71, '79 J.D., vice president; Anne Nenzel Lambert '35, secretary; and Joseph W. Montgomery '74, president.

500 Years of Discovery

Alumni College Highlights Land, Sea and Air Exploration

"Explorers and Their Frontiers: 500 Years of Discovery," this year's Alumni College program scheduled for June 18-21, promises to be one of the best ever. Nationally recognized speakers and eminent members of the William and Mary faculty will share their energy and expertise throughout the four-day program sponsored by the Society of the Alumni. Adding further excitement will be field trips, special meals and receptions, including a Saturday evening dinner cruise around the Hampton Roads harbor. And for the first time this year, families who wish to bring their children may enroll them in a separate program especially designed for ages 6-12.

Program Highlights

With Columbus as a starting point, Alumni College 1992 will look at how explorers have opened new vistas and forever changed the world at their time and place in history. Focusing on people and events of the past five centuries and projecting future paths of exploration, speakers will create a sense of discovery surrounding the frontiers of sea, land and air.

The program opens on Thursday afternoon, June 18, with a tour of Jamestown Settlement introduced by Tom Davidson, curator of the "Discovering America" exhibit, which opens earlier in the week.

James Axtell, Kenan Professor of Humanities, will present a Thursday evening lecture on "Columbus Before America," in which he will discuss Columbus' maritime experience in the Mediterranean and the eastern Atlantic before he "discovered" America en route to Asia.

Axtell

Friday begins with a talk on "Mapping European Overseas Discoveries: Christopher Columbus to John Smith" by Kenneth Nebenzahl, an accomplished map scholar and the recipient of an honorary degree from the College in 1983.

Thad Tate, Murden Professor of Humanities, will follow with a lecture on "Captain John Smith: Dreamer, Adventurer, Explorer." Professor Tate, who has taught courses on colonial Virginia at the College for the past 30 years, will discuss Smith as a person and how he carried out the first full-scale exploration of the Chesapeake Bay and its adjacent lands, prepared the first good map of the region, and very likely saved the struggling, undisciplined colony from extinction.

Chandos Brown, assistant professor of history at the College since 1988, will focus on two key explorers of the American frontier in his lecture, "An Imagined Continent: The Journey of Lewis and Clark."

Friday afternoon's program continues at the Mariners Museum in Newport News. William J. Hargis, professor emeritus of marine science, will lead a tour through this vast collection chronicling maritime history and sea exploration. The tour will include the museum's newest gallery, "Age of Discovery."

From the sea the program moves to space exploration. Astronaut Kenneth Reightler, who piloted the September 1991 mission of the space shuttle Discovery, will present a Friday evening talk on "The Life of an Astronaut." Cmdr. Reightler, a native of Virginia Beach who has been part of the NASA team since 1987, and his wife, Maureen McHenry Reightler '73, are looking forward to participating in the entire Alumni College program.

On Saturday, Cmdr. Reightler will discuss "Geography from Space." Sharing slides and photographs from his recent five-day mission, he will demonstrate the power of space exploration to reveal mysteries about land formations and other features of our planet.

Professor Hargis will play a prominent role in Saturday's program by beginning with a lecture on "Explorers of the Seas." Drawing relationships with space exploration, he will highlight the explorations leading to European peopling of the Americas and introduce the current epoch of modern exploration of the seas and oceanography from space.

Hargis

Saturday also features a trip to the newly opened Virginia Air and Space Center located alongside the beautifully restored waterfront in Hampton, Va. Here participants can view some of NASA's most outstanding exhibits and see the film, "The Dream is Alive," NASA's tribute to the Challenger crew, in the center's 300-seat IMAX theatre.

From there everyone will board the top-sail schooner American Rover for a beautiful three-hour sunset dinner cruise around the Hampton Roads harbor. Professor Hargis will be on hand to provide special commentary on "John Smith's Chesapeake Bay Exploration."

On Sunday, the program concludes with brunch and a slide-illustrated lecture, "Where Next, Columbus?" presented by Dr. Valerie Neal and Ann Monroe Swaim Jacobs '76 of the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C. Opening in the fall of 1992 to recognize the 500th anniversary of Columbus' voyages of exploration, the "Where Next, Columbus?" exhibition examines prospects for exploring new worlds in space. Dr. Neal is curator of the exhibition, and Ms. Jacobs is responsible for picture research.

Announcing the First Dean of Alumni College

Beginning this year, the Society is pleased to announce the participation of James McCord Jr., associate professor of history at the College, as Dean of Alumni College. McCord has served on the faculty since 1965 and was a member of the 1988 Alumni College faculty.

New this Year! Separate Children's Program

For alumni who wish to share the Alumni College experience with their entire family, a special program with separate activities will be offered for children ages 6-12. The children's program will parallel their parents' program with a combination of educational and recreational activities. Adult supervision will be provided throughout the children's program, which begins after breakfast and concludes after the end of the adult schedule each day.

Neal

Costs

For participants choosing to stay on campus, the cost is $350 per adult and $250 per child (when staying in parent's room). Included are all meals, lodging in Jefferson Hall, tuition, fees, all activities and a souvenir tote bag. For individuals who do not stay on campus, the cost is $275 per adult and $200 per child. Accepted forms of payment are check, VISA or MasterCard. Payment in full or a deposit of $50 per person is required with the registration form. Full payment is due by May 29, 1992, to guarantee your reservation. Early enrollment is encouraged due to space limitations!

College Announces
Formation of

Sir Robert Boyle Society

By Sara Piccini

For three centuries—beginning with the first gift from the estate of Sir Robert Boyle—the generous bequests of alumni and friends of William and Mary have sustained and enriched the life of the College. To honor those individuals who have made provisions for the College in their estate plans, William and Mary has established a new group: the Sir Robert Boyle Society.

Any individual who has made a future provision for the College in his or her estate plans is eligible to become a member of the Society. Such provisions may be in the form of bequests, trusts, annuities, life insurance or other means.

The Society is named for Sir Robert Boyle, a noted British scientist who developed the chemistry theorem known as Boyle's Law. In his will, Boyle left about £5,400 to be invested for "pious and charitable uses." James Blair, first president of the College of William and Mary, was able to persuade Boyle's executors to devote some of that legacy for the initial funding of the College in 1691. Income from Boyle's estate, Brafferton Manor, was donated annually to William and Mary until the American Revolution.

Sir Robert Boyle's name is engraved on the College's Mace, along with other illustrious names associated with the history of the College. The Mace therefore has been chosen as the Society's emblem.

Membership in the Sir Robert Boyle Society is an expression of abiding commitment to William and Mary. By sharing—in confidence—their intentions for the future, members enable the College to pay appropriate tribute today for their future generosity. Says Robert S. Dutro, director of estate planning, "With sufficient knowledge of your plans and wishes, we can suggest ways for your provision to be remembered appropriately. There are a variety of commemorative rooms, gardens and endowments that can bear your name or the name of someone you may wish to honor or memorialize."

Charter membership in the Sir Robert Boyle Society will be available from June 1992 to July 1993. All members will receive a special recognition pin engraved with the emblem of the Sir Robert Boyle Society. If you reach the age of 70 by the end of the charter membership period, your gift will be counted toward the Campaign for the Fourth Century.

If you have already made a provision for the College in your estate plans, or are considering doing so, the College would like to provide you with additional information about membership in the Sir Robert Boyle Society. Contact Robert S. Dutro, Esq., or Martha M. Ingles, CFP, Office of Estate Planning, College of William and Mary, P.O. Box 1693, Williamsburg, VA 23187; 804/221-1002.

An Invitation to Become a Charter Member of the Sir Robert Boyle Society

Membership in the Sir Robert Boyle Society of the College of William and Mary is accorded to any individual who has made a future provision for the College in his or her estate plans. Such provisions may be in the form of bequests, trusts, annuities, life insurance or other means. Charter membership in the Boyle Society will be available from June 1992 to July 1993.

Sunny Florida Is Host to Campaign Celebrations

Alumni and friends of William and Mary gathered in cities throughout Florida last month to celebrate the College's Campaign for the Fourth Century. Events were held in Orlando, Miami, Tampa/St. Petersburg, Ft. Lauderdale/West Palm Beach and Jacksonville.

The Campaign heads north again for the late spring, with celebrations being held in the following cities:

Charlottesville, Va. (April 30)
Philadelphia (May 11)
Wilmington, Del. (May 12)
Richmond (May 14)

Tampa/St. Petersburg Celebration: Jim McGlothlin '62, vice chair of the Campaign's National Steering Committee, and his family join hosts Thelma Jamison and Jack Martin '53 at the Greater Tampa Bay/Suncoast Alumni Chapter's regional Campaign celebration. Pictured (from left): Laura McGlothlin, Jim McGlothlin, Diane McGlothlin, Jack Martin and Thelma Jamison.

Gold Coast Celebration: Jim Ukrop '60 (left), vice chair of the campaign's National Steering Committee, joins hosts Cynthia and John '57 Ottaway at the Florida Gold Coast Alumni Chapter's regional Campaign celebration. The event was held at the Ottaways' home in the Village of Golf.

Campaign Pushes Toward $150 Million Goal

As of the end of March, total gifts and commitments to the Campaign for the Fourth Century had reached nearly $119 million—79 percent of the $150 million goal.

"That figure represents many thousands of individual contributions—large and small—made by dedicated alumni and friends of the College," says Campaign chair Mark McCormack.

One very notable aspect of the Campaign funds raised thus far is the high percentage of cash gifts received in proportion to commitments and deferred gifts.

Cash-in-hand gifts have an immediate impact on campus: funds have already been converted into endowed faculty chairs, student aid, improved classroom facilities and many other enhancements.

The Campaign is very much on track, having reached 79 percent of its goal in 70 percent of the allotted time. "We should all be very excited about the next 15 months as we close in on our goal," says McCormack. "I intend to be in Williamsburg a little more than a year from now, announcing the successful completion of William and Mary's Campaign for the Fourth Century."

After compiling a 60-5-1 record at Division I-AA Holy Cross over six years, Mark Duffner '75 has been named head football coach at the University of Maryland.

Mr. Enthusiasm Takes Over at Maryland

By Tom Nugent '65

Ask Mark Duffner '75 to describe his four years at William and Mary and his hazel eyes light up like the neon in a flashing scoreboard: "Magnificent! Fantastic! I mean, I loved the place. I made lifelong friends there. And the professors, the courses I took ... just a great, great experience!"

You really can't blame the goggle-eyed Duffner for jumping around like a kid at a Fourth of July picnic these days, or for writing such passionate love-poems to his Williamsburg alma mater.

Because the 38-year-old Duffner just hit the jackpot.

Only a few months ago, he landed one of the top jobs in the world of college sports—as the new head football coach (at $120,000 per year) at the University of Maryland.

Duffner, who was an "academic all-conference" defensive tackle at William and Mary during his senior year, signed a five-year contract at Maryland last December, and he will soon be leading his revamped and revitalized "Terrapins" into combat against the likes of Michigan, Clemson and Penn State.

"We're working like crazy!" he thundered the other day, while leading a tour of his expansive new office on the College Park campus. "We're going to play hard, and we're going to play with emotion and enthusiasm and we're going to play as a team and then give it all we've got!"

He paused, and you couldn't help wondering: Would a crew of black-and-gold-clad cheerleaders (the Terrapin colors) come leaping out of the nearest broom closet?

But that's Mark Duffner. And if you think that his "rah-rah, sis-boom-bah!" approach to the task of teaching 20-year-olds how to knock down linebackers on Saturday afternoons won't work, you better think again.

It already has.

During the past six years, while serving as the head football coach at Holy Cross College in Massachusetts, Duffner accumulated a coaching record of 60 wins, five losses and one tie—a record which easily qualifies him as the "winningest" coach now at work in the major college ranks.

How good is this former William and Mary physical education major, and how likely is he to succeed at one of the most demanding and nerve-shredding jobs in the world of bigtime sports?

Says Tom Rossley, now the head coach at Southern Methodist University and a former assistant to Duffner at Holy Cross: "He'll be the next great coach in Division I-A."

Says Carl Ullrich, executive director of the Patriot League in New England, where Duffner's Holy Cross teams won championship after championship in recent years: "I'd characterize Duffner with a single word: He's a leader. He's simply an outstanding coach."

But the best part of the "Mark Duffner Story" may actually be the way that this man insists on remembering his roots—insists on talking, almost non-stop, about how he learned some key coaching "values"

Duffner, who is the winningest coach now at work in major college football, credits much of his success to his William and Mary education.

while studying at Williamsburg.

"I've never forgotten Howard Smith '43," he says, describing the immensely popular head of the physical education program at William and Mary during his years on campus. "He was a magnificent guy—he's Mr. 'Green and Gold,' as far as I'm concerned!"

"He taught us how to put together a sports budget for a high school or college athletic program. That's a job I'm working on right now, here at Maryland.

"And what about Joe Agee '52? He was another phys ed professor, and we all took his course on the 'Philosophy of Coaching.'"

"And that helped me to come to grips with some of the very problems that we're grappling with right now, at Maryland—the problems involved in balancing the desire to win against the other educational goals you set for your students."

Duffner is quick to say, however, that not all of his William and Mary learning experiences were as positive as the ones he received in Joe Agee's classroom. During his senior year, in fact, he found himself embroiled in a painful football controversy, as the College debated a proposal to "de-emphasize" the sport by dropping out of Division I NCAA play entirely.

"I was a senior on the football team," recalls Duffner, "and suddenly the entire campus was caught up in this big debate about whether we were going to stay in Division I—or drop down to Division II, which would have greatly de-emphasized the football program."

"So we (the players and the coaches) worked real hard to solidify support for the program, and in the end they decided to keep it at Division I."

Duffner has a lot of praise today for the teachers and coaches who provided leadership during the struggle over William and Mary's football future. "I learned a lot. It helped me to identify, very early, what the benefits of college football are. We had to examine those and had to stand up for them, and that really helped me to develop my philosophy of coaching."

But Mark Duffner saves his greatest praise for a man with the unlikely name of Mont Linkenauger, who taught a "combination course" that involved both pre-med and physical education. "There were 14 of us," he remembers, "and we spent a year dissecting four human cadavers—three hours, every Monday."

"You don't get any better education—in terms of the body and how it works—than that!"

Believe him. Because Mark Duffner will be the first to tell you that the proof is in the performance—and his performance, since leaving the ranks of the Green and Gold in 1975 has been nothing short of sensational.

After spending two years as an assistant to the legendary Woody Hayes at Ohio State and then moving on to serve as an assistant coach at the University of Cincinnati and Holy Cross for the next decade, Duffner took over the reins at the Catholic college in 1986.

The rest is gridiron history.

And now, accompanied by his wife, Kathy Frost Duffner '76, his daughters Carolyn and Christina and his son John, Coach Duffner has begun to climb the "Mount Everest" of contemporary college sports, by attempting to jolt the sad-sack Maryland Terrapins out of their recent, losing doldrums.

It won't be easy. Traumatized by the tragic cocaine-death of star basketballer Lenny Bias in 1986, and after several years of losing money faster than a busload of drunks at Hialeah, the Maryland Athletic Department is now $5 million in debt—and in desperate need of a football savior.

Is Mark Duffner the one to lead the bedraggled Terps to the Promised Land of winning seasons and high-profile Bowl Games?

You better not bet against him.

Because—as he'll be the first to tell you—this man has had some mean preparation for the struggle that lies ahead.

"I learned something very important from my coaches and teachers at William and Mary," he says, somewhere near the end of the recent football-tour.

"I learned that you're not going to win them all. No way."

"But I also learned that if you do your best—if you try your hardest—you've already won. And that's what we're going to do. I'll be happy if our football team plays hard for 60 minutes and plays with great intensity and enthusiasm."

"And the rest will take care of itself."

That's vintage Mark Duffner.

You can catch his act starting Sept. 5, when the rejuvenated Terrapins lock horns with the Wahoos of Virginia at Charlottesville, as the "Duffner era" at Maryland officially begins.

Memorabilia and Memories Highlight New York Auction

By Lisa S. Reagan

While hundreds of other alumni from around the country ogled tables and walls laden with "priceless" treasures during the silent phase of the William and Mary New York Auction, the Joblin family from Connecticut sailed swiftly past Glenn Close's mink coat, a wooden 1928 schoolmaster's desk from the Wren Building, and his and her gold William and Mary watches. They headed for a far corner table that resembled a small, albeit tidy construction site.

"That's why I'm here," explained Warren Joblin '60, pointing to a rusty, wrought iron lantern hanging between a paint-chipped post and two ordinary bricks.

"This is the lantern that lit the porch every evening at my Lambda Chi House," he said with a sigh.

Joblin's fond memories of his days as a student at William and Mary and his commitment to its mission as an active alumnus were echoed in the welcoming remarks of Glenn Close '74, this year's honorary chair for the auction, which was held March 13 at Christie's auction house.

Close's opening statement was read by Kay Rouse Lark '76, who, along with her husband Andy '79, served as co-chair of the event.

"William and Mary launched me physically, emotionally and spiritually into my life," read Mrs. Lark. "Because of your participation in events like tonight, William and Mary will continue to grow, continue to nurture and inspire its students and continue to give them the courage and the heart to fly." Close could not attend the event as she was "plying her craft" that evening in the Broadway play Death of a Maiden.

The lantern, post and bricks of the "construction site" table were rescued from the Lambda Chi House, in recent years referred to as Lodge No. 1, and two other lodges that were razed to make way for William and Mary's new university center, scheduled to be completed by 1993.

Joblin, along with his wife Nancy '62 and daughter Bonnie '92—who coordinated the student volunteers for the auction—continued their aggressive bidding during the silent auction and took home the Lambda Chi porch lantern for $270. Warren Joblin, currently president of the Southern Connecticut Alumni Chapter, said he plans to give the lantern back to the fraternity's new house on William and Mary's campus.

Kay Rouse Lark '76 reads the welcoming remarks of Glenn Close '74, honorary chair of the auction. During a brief lapse Lark filled in for the auctioneer, who was a few minutes late getting to the stage, by tap-dancing and asking for "questions from the audience."

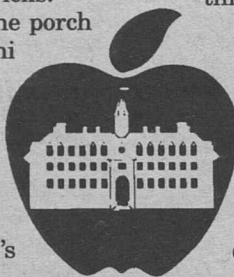

Bonnie Joblin was one of 14 students from the Student Alumni Liaison Council and the Student Advancement Association who worked tirelessly to keep the auction running smoothly. Student volunteers brought items to the stage floor for bidding, wrapped them for shipping, and as Lisa Goddard '94 did, answered questions and protected items from the tipping soda and champagne glasses of admirers leaning in for a closer look.

Goddard graciously guarded Glenn Close's mink coat that had been luxuriously draped across a $6,000 "Cornwall" loveseat, donated by Wood and Hogan Inc., and answered inquiries about the famous headboard from the movie The Big Chill. The headboard, donated by Close, included a publicity shot from the movie with her autograph and cryptic message, "If only this headboard could talk!"

Through an absentee bid, Aubrey Mason '72 of Lynchburg, Va., acquired the headboard for $625. The Cornwall loveseat was scooped up by Lisa Seidman '82 of Sherman Oaks, Calif., for the highway-robbery price of $950! Bradley Staubes '85 of New York City took home the 1928 schoolmaster's desk from the Wren Building for $725.

Instead of a student volunteer simply bringing Close's famous mink coat to the stage, Kay Lark cordially consented to model the coat runway-style through the aisles. With the finesse of a professional, she encouraged everyone to stroke a sleeve or hem of the glamorous garment, while Christie's auctioneer, Christopher Hartop, humorously heckled the bidders to keep bidding or "wake-up and hate yourself in the morning."

Kay Lark was such a stunning success in her runway modeling debut that her husband Andy was convinced she should sport it to Saturday's auction events—a

Sharon Meyers Levine '87 and Ken Levine eye the headboard from the movie The Big Chill and the handiwork of Mark Farinella '83. Exhibiting the enthusiastic commitment shared by all volunteers of the auction steering committee, Farinella painstakingly ironed the sheets and pillowcases of the makeshift bed while kneeling on the cold floor of the auction house a few short hours before the champagne reception began.

Nancy '62, Bonnie '92 and Warren Joblin '60 take a close look at the Lambda Chi lantern.

Andrew Lark '79, auction co-chair; Kay Rouse Lark '76, auction co-chair; and Mark Farinella '83, acquisitions chair and vice president of the Northern New Jersey Alumni Chapter.

Broadway play and a dinner-dance cruise around Manhattan. Mr. Lark outbid all other contenders and acquired the coat for his wife for $5,000.

Saturday's events included the Broadway matinee performance of Dancing at Lughnasa, a happy-hour at Zip City's Brewing Company in SoHo—sponsored by the New York City Alumni Chapter's Young Guard Council—and a dinner-dance cruise on World Yacht with the twinkling lights of Manhattan as a moving backdrop.

Through the sale of 95 donated lots, a team of auction benefactors, steering committee and student volunteers, this year's New York Auction raised $39,320 and attracted more than 200 alumni and guests from 12 states, including Colorado and Minnesota, representing classes between 1937 and 1994. The proceeds will be added to the New York Chapter's total pledge of $100,000 to the Campaign for the Fourth Century. As the result of five auctions held since 1984, the chapter has raised nearly $90,000 to date.

The chapter has decided that the total funds raised will be equally divided among the Hunt/Scammon Theatre Endowment, the Society of the Alumni Chapter Programming Endowment, and the New York area student scholarship endowment.

Student volunteers Carol McCormack '94, Lori Chaffin '94 and Liping Lo '94, break from their hectic pace to pass around a Tribe football autographed by the 1991-92 team and donated by the team and the Student Advancement Association. The Pepsico Ray Charles "Uh-huh" activewear in the background was donated by Paul Boykas '83.

Linda M. Csellak '83, braves the fangs of the dragon, something no mere mortal or incoming freshman would have done to the real "Dragon." The fully functional dragon marionette from Pelham Puppets was donated by Howard Scammon '34, professor emeritus of the theatre and speech department, and affectionately nicknamed "the dragon" by his students. Toy dragons in various forms were traditionally given to Scammon by his student cast after a play ended, according to Andy Lark '79. The marionette dragon was given to Scammon by the cast of the play Misalliance in 1966. The marionette was purchased during the silent auction by Frank Hynicker '70 and Jere Rapp '67 for $150.

Student Hosts Offer Inside View of W&M

By Matthew B. Kirsner '92

On March 26 and 27 members of the Student Alumni Liaison Council (SALC) proudly hosted children of alumni for the fourth annual Student Host Program. Twenty eager participants arrived at the Alumni House on Thursday afternoon. Not letting the rainy weather spoil the planned activities, SALC members Holly Hartman '93 and Heather Lyle '94 conducted an informative tour of the campus. Following the tour, each council member greeted his or her visitor at a reception at the Alumni House. Our young guests found accommodations in a variety of college housing, ranging from dormitories to fraternity and sorority houses.

Following dinner, Student Host participants were treated to a panel presentation on college life coordinated by SALC member Kelly Garrett '93. Speakers representing the Student Association, Recreational Sports and Residence Life provided information and fielded questions from the prospective students in the audience. The weather provided a small reprieve, enabling visitors to enjoy the annual "Ghost Tour" of Colonial Williamsburg. The participants and their hosts spent the remainder of the evening in typical William and Mary fashion — a mixture of study, talk and relaxation.

The program participants spent Friday exploring academia on their own, observing classes in a variety of subjects. Choices ranged from 8 a.m. chemistry to afternoon psychology seminars — each providing a glimpse into William and Mary's esteemed reputation for learning. The hosts bid farewell to their guests on Friday afternoon, hopeful that the visitors had received the best possible "inside view" of William and Mary.

TAMPA BAY/SUNCOAST CHAPTER RECEIVES CHARTER

At the Campaign for the Fourth Century Celebration in St. Petersburg, Fla., on March 16, W. Barry Adams (left) congratulated members of the Tampa Bay/Suncoast Alumni Chapter, the Society's newest chapter. Receiving the chapter banner are Cindy Hall Wilcox '76, George Blanford '43, Bonnie Bishop '88 and D. Jackson Martin '53.

NOMINEES INVITED FOR BOARD OF VISITORS

Each year, the board of directors of the Society of the Alumni submits a list of suggested nominees for the College's Board of Visitors to the governor of Virginia. This privilege is accorded the board by the Code of Virginia. The alumni board compiles the list at its fall meeting and sends it to the governor by Dec. 1. As part of the process, the board invites suggested nominees from the entire alumni body. If you would like to nominate qualified alumni candidates, please send their names and brief biographical information no later than July 15 to: Board of Visitor Nominations, Society of the Alumni, P. O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100.

A CLASS ACT

W&M HOMECOMING '92

OCTOBER 15-18

HOMECOMING '92 SET FOR OCTOBER 15-18

Get ready! Here it comes... Homecoming '92, that is. This year's celebration, "A Class Act," is set for the weekend of Oct. 15-18. Plans include all the traditional activities such as the Sunset Ceremony, Homecoming Parade, football game, post-game tailgater and Young Guard party. Reunion celebrations will be observed by the Classes of 1947, 1952, 1957, 1962, 1967, 1972, 1977, 1982 and 1987. As part of this exciting weekend, the Society of the Alumni will celebrate its 150th year with a special anniversary version of the Annual Awards Dinner and Dance. Watch your Alumni Gazette for further information. The September issue will carry complete details and a registration form for all Homecoming events. In addition, the Gazette will begin carrying information about Homecoming '93, scheduled for Oct. 20-24, when all alumni are invited to join in the grand celebration of the College's 300th anniversary.

Janice Brown: An All-American Girl

By Bob Jeffrey '74

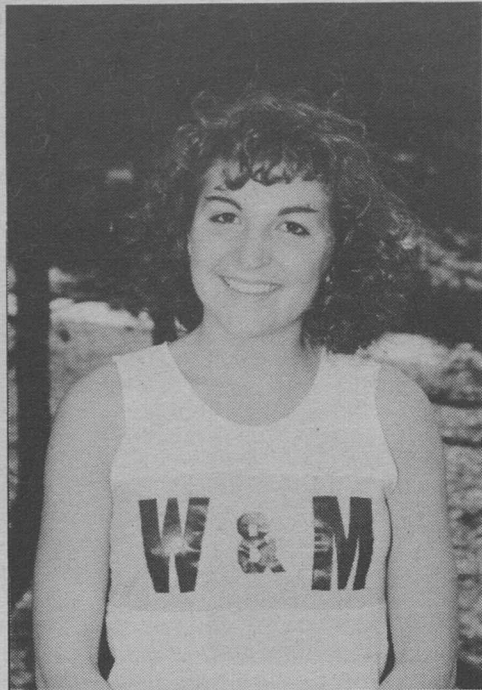

Janice Brown is an All-American girl. She's perky, she's cute, she giggles a lot, and she has won three All-American certificates this past year, with the possibility of a fourth looming as the women's outdoor track season gets under way.

In the fall, Brown came in 15th at the NCAA cross country championships (the top 20 qualify for All-American), to become William and Mary's first female harrier so honored at the Division I level. At the NCAA indoor championships in March she finished fifth in the 5,000m for another All-American effort.

Brown was further recognized as an academic All-American in cross country. She has maintained a 3.2 average in her accounting major.

Now an academic senior, Brown's running career at the College did not start out so auspiciously. As a freshman she injured herself in her first cross-country race and did not run again for a full year.

That slow start turned out to be a blessing in disguise. Since women's track and cross country Coach Pat Van Rossum redshirted her after the injury, Brown now has an extra year of eligibility left, which she plans to use next year.

"Janice has progressed to be the best runner I've coached here," said Van Rossum. "She's really gotten better each season, to the point where I'm not sure there's any limit to how good she can be," he said.

"When she finished 15th in cross country, we thought that was great at the time. Then she came in 5th at the indoor meet, and she was only 2 seconds out of third, and 12 seconds from being national champ," said Van Rossum.

Brown has been a little surprised herself. "It took me almost all of my sophomore year to get back into running. I just concentrated on improving," she said.

She remembers when she suddenly recognized her own potential. "In my junior year at the Penn Relays I had my first big breakthrough. I ran a real fast race in the 3,000m without really realizing I had done it. After that I said, 'Wow, I can compete with these girls,'" Brown said.

"Janice has utilized all her natural talents, and she's worked very hard," said Van Rossum. "She's able to run through the pain. She's got the emotional attributes to be a great runner," he said.

Brown is focusing her efforts on the upcoming outdoor track season, splitting time between the 3,000m and 5,000m events. She has provisionally qualified for the NCAA outdoor championships in the 5,000 with a 16:34 time. But she's also interested in competing at the Olympic Trials in the 3,000 (the Olympics does not have a 5,000m race for women).

"The 5,000 is probably my best race, so I want to do that at the nationals, but the 3,000 is more fun," she said. "It's shorter, faster, more like a track race, while the 5,000 is more like cross country," Brown said.

Brown, from Mohnton, Pa., is just now hitting her stride as a national distance running contender. "I feel that I have confidence, and I'm concentrating on the races," she said.

Yet she maintains a shy, humble exterior before stepping on to the track. Van Rossum wondered if she might be pulling a psych job on her competitors. "She comes on like a little girl, giggling and shy, then she goes out and smokes the opposition," he said.

If she keeps up her present pace, Brown may giggle her way to a fourth All-American certificate in one year, a feat never before achieved at William and Mary.

1941-1958 Gridiron Greats Get Together for Reunion

By Bob Jeffrey '74

It looked like Valhalla in Williamsburg as more than 100 William and Mary gridiron immortals gathered to honor two of their coaches at the Marvin Bass-Eric Tipton Reunion on the weekend of April 10-12.

The players spanned the era from 1941-1953, when Carl Voyles and Rube McCray brought big-time football success to the College. Tipton was the backfield coach under Voyles, McCray and beyond, while Bass played and later coached the team.

The gregarious group gathered on Saturday morning at the Alumni House for a brunch and group photo. An escorted tour of the renovated dressing room facilities in Zable (Cary Field to these guys) Stadium was offered.

The annual Green and Gold game gave the alumni players a chance to view coach Jimmie Laycock's upcoming squad. Rising junior quarterback Shawn Knight was named MVP as he led the Gold squad to a 17-3 victory.

The highlight of the weekend was a Saturday night banquet that featured a Hall of Heroes paying affectionate tribute to their mentors. Jack Cloud '50 acted as emcee with a wit that would put Johnny Carson to shame.

Lou Hoitsma '48 read a proclamation from the mayor of Petersburg, birthplace of Bass and Tipton, recognizing the achievements of both.

Tipton was an All-American at Duke University and played on the 1938 Rose Bowl team. His punting against a powerful Pitt team is still recalled with awe.

When Carl Voyles came to William and Mary in 1939, he brought along Tipton. Also a major league baseball player with the Philadelphia Athletics and Cincinnati Reds, Tipton recalled that he went straight from shagging flies to coaching defensive backs.

Tipton continued to alternate baseball and football for more than a decade. He compiled a .263 lifetime major league batting average and was named to the National Football Hall of Fame.

Bass was one of the "Fabulous Freshmen" that Voyles, McCray and Tipton recruited. An All-Southern Conference guard, Bass anchored the awesome line that propelled W&M to a 9-1-1 mark in 1942.

After the War, Bass returned as line coach under McCray. In 1951 he guided the Tribe to a 7-3 mark as head coach. Later he coached at South Carolina, and for the Washington Redskins, the Calgary Stampeders, and currently, for the Denver Broncos.

Members of 1941-53 teams gathered at Zable Stadium during a reunion honoring former coaches Marvin Bass and Eric Tipton seated in middle of front row.

The ribbing between the players was gruff but full of genuine emotion. Jack Bruce '49, recalled Tipton's philosophy on pass defense: "Don't let 'em get behind you."

"As a result I watched a lot of games from the end zone," Bruce quipped. Bruce also intercepted 10 passes in 1947, still a Tribe record.

"We thank you for the outlook you gave us," Bruce said to Tipton, "to always be positive about what you do, and to always give your best."

Ralph Sazio '48 remembered that Voyles instructed him, "to emulate everything that Marvin does." Though he allowed as to how that advice occasionally got him into trouble with Voyles, "even to this day, 41 years later, I still try to emulate Marvin Bass."

Joe Mark '51 summed up the feelings for the crowd when he said, "You two guys are class coaches who are truly in a class by yourselves. You guys will always have us as your friends, because we love you both."

Tribe Swimming Teams Stay Afloat

By Bob Jeffrey '74

Supporters of William and Mary swimming couldn't look to Stephen King to come to the rescue when the program fell to the bud get axe last year. The popular horror novelist recently endowed swimming at the University of Maine. Instead the swimming alumni at the College got organized and scared up their own donors to keep the program afloat.

Men's and women's swimming were two of the four sports that faced discontinuation due to budget shortfalls in February 1991. After some delicate negotiations with the athletic administration, the swimmers received a reprieve, and an opportunity.

An anonymous donor had agreed to match endowment contributions dollar for dollar up to $750,000, provided that pledges were in by Nov. 30. The resulting effort netted an impressive $375-380,000, for a total of nearly $760,000. The pledges must be redeemed by the end of a four-year period.

How the swimmers saved their sport might serve as a model for athletic funding of non-revenue sports in the future. "It was really a grassroots effort," said Anne Anderson, director of swimming at the College. Some 300 of the 600 swimming alumni ultimately pitched in. Under the guidance of former swimming coach Dudley Jensen, past swim team captains volunteered to contact their teammates. Chris Herr '62 spearheaded the effort, riding herd on the captains with reminders and updates. Herr, publisher of the Intercourse (Pa.) News in the Lancaster area, even printed a special edition of his newspaper devoted entirely to the fund-raising effort. In an editorial headlined "Fish or Cut Bait Time," Herr dared his fellow alumni to rise to the challenge: "Do you want to save the swimming team or not?... We can make this goal if we all remember what swimming meant to us when we were in school. It was the stabilizing factor that helped us get the degrees that put us in the positions we are in now. Ones that allow us to give, so that others can have swimming help them."

Parents of current swimming team members were also instrumental. Judy Connell organized and chaired a unique "Night for Tribe Swimming" back in September. The dinner meeting of swimming team parents raising funds for current operating costs featured James J. Kilpatrick as speaker.

Close to $100,000 previously raised for the Natatorium project was also transferred to the endowment effort, although it did not qualify for matching funds.

Many of the captains mentioned their personal loyalty to Jensen, who headed the swimming program from 1951-89, as a major factor in their involvement.

"The swimming alumni felt that the program was a great experience for them," explained Charlie Kendrick '82. "It was Dudley's personality that made it so enjoyable. Just thinking about it brings back good memories. We want future students to have that type of experience," Kendrick said. Members of the current squad gained a sense of the tradition of Tribe swimming in the process. "There was a lot of pride among this current group in being involved with it," said coach Anderson. "It was fun for them getting to know so many of the swimmers that had gone before," she said. While the energy expended was phenomenal, Anderson stressed that the battle is far from over.

"A permanent endowment will make swimming secure in the long term, but for the short term the situation is still challenging," said Anderson. Endowment funds will not be available for four years. At an average yield of between 5-8 percent, it will total $35,000-50,000 a year, only enough for salaries and travel. To save money in the interim, Anderson has had to cut back on travel, eliminating several scheduled meets. Only on special occasions is certain equipment, such as the ultra light "paper suit," available for competitors. "We usually take box lunches now, rather than stopping at a restaurant after an away meet," Anderson said. But a lot of little sacrifices, by current and past swimmers, have revived the swimming program.

CLASS NOTES

Petersburg, VA 23805

From Boulder Creek, Calif., came a nice long letter from Lucien Ashley Hobbs who has a number of interesting hobbies that keep him active. In October he enjoyed a cruise up and down the western coast of Mexico during which he tried his success at being a standing comedian. He did very well!

The trip ended in a catastrophe. When alighting from the bus at the airport he "soared in the air and landed" on his left hand. It was badly broken and took some time to mend. He continues to visit Reno where he sometimes wins — $100 now and then. He had ambitions to become a writer for juveniles, but now thinks he won't make it. He seeks out places where one can order good — the best — food. He listed more than a half dozen places with addresses. If anyone would like to order excellent, unusual and exotic food, let me know and I'll send you a copy of his recommendations, or better yet, a copy of his letter which you'll enjoy. He now has dependable caretakers living in the apartment over his barn. The man handles the horses efficiently and now wants to enter the 2-1/2-year-old filly in some shows. He suffered some adverse effects from that terrific California earthquake. In making repairs he and his wife decided to complete some unused space. They now have another bedroom, which doesn't interest him. The hobby he enjoys most is collecting big band records. He has an enormous library of them and acts as the disc jockey for "The Elderly Place" now and then.

Was glad to receive an interesting letter from Emma Waring Walbridge. She has also been busy and traveling. She caught the traveling habit when she went to Europe in 1925 with Dr. Fichtner's group. This past December she spent two weeks in Oaxaca, Mexico, where Christmas and New Years festivities are highlighted all day and all night. It was an awe-inspiring experience. In September in France at the Air France ticket office, she saw a young girl wearing a William and Mary sweat shirt. Yes, she was a W&M student on her way to Aix en Provence for a six month stay "to improve her French." Emma keeps busy in Austin during the winter helping with Elderhostel programs, driving foreign students to social events, volunteering as a docent at the L.B.J. Library and Museum, and moderating for eight weeks in February and March a discussion of the Great Decisions. Last July she attended a family gathering in Seattle. She enjoyed having Tom Hart '30 and his wife Dorothy join them.

In January I received a card from Malvern Omohundro. He and his wife were in Barbados for the winter. They planned to attend Olde Guard Day on April 8.

A note from John Branch "Dauba" Green included the remark, "I wish I could report otherwise but things are still going down hill." Both he and his wife Betsy '29 have health problems and he is almost blind.

The Alumni Office sent a copy of a long article which appeared in the Galax, Va., Gazette on Sept. 25, 1991. It contained much interesting history of Carroll County as related by Walter Albert Porter. The article contained some interesting facts about him. After receiving his B.S. degree from W&M, and a doctor of medicine degree from M.C.V., he interned two years at Lewis-Gale Hospital in Roanoke and did post-graduate study in New York and Chicago. He married Virginia Lee McMillan in July 1934 and began his medical practice on August 10 in Hillsville, Carroll County. He retired in June 1972. He and his wife have two daughters, two granddaughters and two grandsons.

William and Mary's Tercentenary celebration in 1993 will include grand Homecoming events October 20-24. Plan to be there. Mark your calendars now. Also watch the Alumni Gazette for more information.

A Christmas note from Sam Hunley states that he was quite well in spite of the fact that he is an octogenarian. He is still working part-time.

As has been the custom for several years, Truman Welling and I exchanged Christmas cards and he said that all was well with his family and that he was still busy looking after his horses.

I also received a long Christmas letter from one of my closest college friends, Bill Talton, who lives in Sparta, Fla. He and his younger brother Jim were at the College at the same time all four years. Jim, who was a pilot for Eastern Airlines, passed away several years ago.

While I was hospitalized in the early part of this month, I received a letter from Betty Lanier, passing on some news about Lucy Boswell and Louise Johnson and their attendance at an affair concerning a grandchild. I regret that I misplaced the letter and I am unable to give the details. My apologies to each of the above ladies. After all, I am 83.

If any of you have any news I will try to keep it for future editions of the Gazette.

I hope many of you were able to attend Olde Guard Day when we celebrated our 60th class reunion with a reception at the Alumni House.

A note from Jeanette Kessler Bauer of Carmel, Calif., says she is astounded at the fine publicity that the College puts out.

Bill Talton said he would not be back four our 60th because of circumstances at home. He has retired from his real estate business in Florida and is taking care of his wife who broke her hip in '89. I was sorry to hear that his brother, James Talton, passed away several years ago.

It was good news to hear that James Gilley of Lynchburg has given a $25,000 gift to establish the James M. Gilley School of Business Administration Endowment.

Anna K. Dunlap Weatherford is fine. We are in the same bridge club and often talk of the days we spent at W&M.

Good wishes to all of you.

Helen Singer Dau, one of the most loyal "Olde Guard" is moving to Colorado Springs, Colo., to be near her daughter and her family. She was a member before I was elected. She has served faithfully as an officer and chair of numerous committees. We will miss her but look forward to renewing our friendship at Homecoming and other events.

In a recent letter she wrote:

"Have also closed my Arabian horse business (Daustar Arabians). My daughter and I have had a lot of pleasure watching foals grow and eventually become nice show horses or go to good teen-age owners. Kept two for ourselves — they're now happily adjusted to Colorado.

"In college I was in the play 'Hotel Universe' with classmates Bob Land and Alice Cahill Marquez, among others. One of the lines, 'Wherever there is an ending, from it springs a beginning,' has voiced one of my philosophies — so I am looking forward to new ventures."

Frances Culbreth Deane is living outside Richmond in Glen Allen, where she is a member of Tuckahoe Presbyterian Church, a senior group called the Belmont Travelers and the WCH Guild. Her three grown daughters are married, she has four grandchildren and she enjoys her cats and walking.

Frances taught for two years in Wakefield. She was married to Ormond Deane for 49 years before his death in 1985. They owned and operated a small private 1st and 2nd-grade school for 25 years in Charlottesville.

Hello Class of '36! I hope many of you were able to attend Olde Guard Day. It is always such a big event and a great time to see old friends.

I haven't been in touch with you since Christmas, so I'll write a little about that. First, I had such a wonderful Christmas call from Martha "Mops" Connelly who lives in Norristown, Pa. She is so delightful to talk to and is so interested in everything about W&M.

Then I received a card from Anne Reneforth Shade. Anne lives in Yorktown and stays busy with her grandchildren and volunteer work. I am sure we all remember her husband, Charlie Shade, whom we cheered for on the football team. He retired from Philip Morris here in Richmond and they moved to Yorktown. In his memory, Anne always buys season tickets to the football games.

I also heard from Anne Hooker Jones. Inea, as we called her, lives in Spencer, Va. Since her husband died she spends her time playing bridge and working with the D.A.R. Incidentally she is my cousin; we roomed together in the dorm and the sorority house.

My husband and I always watch the Super Bowl game with our good friends "Judge" and Dora Terrell Williams.

I was interested in Buffalo since the coach, Marv Levy, had coached at William and Mary.

I just talked to Bill Rhodes, who chaired the gift committee for our class. He wanted our classmates to know that from our gift two students have been awarded scholarships totaling $5,000 from our endowment fund. Please keep sending contributions to the class of '36 fund. I am proud of our achievements.

Let me hear from you. Best wishes to all.

It worked! My minimal letter in the December issue brought notes from several of you, and I'm delighted.

Ruth Broughton Auping said: "I wish I had some spectacular news for the class column. However, my life has been spent raising our family of two wonderful daughters, one a W&M graduate. Now I'm enjoying a more leisurely life, although my husband may dispute that! Volunteer work for church and community keep me busy. My family is planning a reunion in June in Tappahannock, Va., and I'm sure I'll make at least a short trip to Williamsburg. I usually take time to walk the main walk to the Wren Building and still miss Lord Boteourt! My daughter '73 "doesn't understand!"

Ruth also sent news of Ruth Otis Testa, with whom she has had a long telephone conversation. Ruth lives in Chino, Calif., and since retiring from full-time teaching, has been substituting almost every day.

Fran Jenkins Taylor shared the good news that one of her granddaughters will be attending William and Mary in the fall. Her other two granddaughters are at James Madison.

Tom Crowson sent a long Christmas letter full of family news. He and wife Anita joined their daughter and son-in-law "for a three-week trek through Georgia, Alabama, Texas and Mississippi exploring plantations, oil wells, gardens, the Mississippi River or whatever struck our fancy. We never lack for local color when traveling together." This same daughter has been "immersing herself in Anita's family history and is always coming up with some interesting tidbit. At last count she announced that Anita is 'cousin' to at least eight Confederate generals! I may start a new writing career based on Anita's family if I live that long. I stay stuck in the mud with my research and writing. This year is my 50th researching projects at the Library of Congress and the National Archives."

Carl Buffington wrote on his Christmas card: "Thank you for sending me part of Herbert Cobb's letter. I read the rest of it in the September issue of the Alumni Gazette. I have written Herb at some length." As class reporter I'm always pleased to help in getting any of you in touch with another classmate. Just ask me.

"Boe" Royal sent a letter to the Alumni House and it was sent on to me. "I was recently a patient at University of Virginia Hospital. Inquiry as to John Gibbons Wall, D.D.S. (retired) brought him to see me. First time since W&M... Looking forward to a visit to College in the near future. Doris and I always welcome all from W&M. 'Latchstring outside'."

Along with Ruth Broughton Auping's newsy note she sent a clipping from the Cleveland Plain Dealer concerning Dorothy Kincaid Portz's retirement from Solon, Ohio's City Council because of illness. A few days later Woody Portz wrote that Dottie was at that time hospitalized in Cleveland for "treatment of obscure symptoms connected with cancer." She had battled that dread disease with radiation and chemotherapy for the previous 14 months, but on January 25 she died at her home in Solon. We are grieved at Dottie's passing and salute her accomplishments and her courage.

Nick and I are still reveling in memories of our "Down Under" experience last fall. Australia and New Zealand are absolutely fabulous, and we had a once-in-a-lifetime trip. Nancy Adams Hegeman, who was there in 1971, and I have been exchanging impressions.

In one of her famous phone calls Bert Capps Sheeran reported that George Bunch had a setback in his long struggle to regain health. Bob Sheeran Jr., on W&M radio during halftime of a football game, gave George an accolade that George said "made his day" ... Bert recalled that there were very few from our class at Homecoming last year but admonished all of us to keep our class spirit strong for our 55th reunion due in '93. Homecoming that year (October 20-24) will include a giant birthday party. It's less than a year and a half from now, so let's start making plans to be there.

I want to take this opportunity to thank you classmates who remembered me at Christmas with a card: Mary Holmes Hall, Mary and Merritt Foster, Jim Klode, Ned and Helen Gudebrode LeGrande, Charles and Helen Strange Patterson. Bobbie Milligan Molyneux wrote that she's renting a condo in Port St. Lucie, Fla., for the month of March and this summer she's going to Greece for 16 days, seven of which are on a cruise of the Aegean Sea.

Nils and Gervais Brekke said '91 was a wonderful year for them. First, in January, their daughter, Gervais, married John McCarthy, a successful corporation lawyer in Philadelphia. Second, their son Tron returned to Washington and was promoted to section chief in the FBI. He became engaged to Kate Sullivan, who was leaving her TV anchor position in Los Angeles to be with them for Christmas, and to be married early in 1992. Third, in October their granddaughter, Kristina, married Randy Mitzelfelt. They had a big beautiful wedding and both they and daughter Linda gave her away. Gervais and Nils spent a month in Florida via their VW camper and cruised the summer away on the Chesapeake Bay on the "Odin." Gervais' tap dance group won a national championship. They are "spry and in good health" and it sure sounds that way!

Secretary of State James A. Baker III will deliver the commencement address at William and Mary on May 10 in William and Mary Hall. About 1,500 students are expected to receive graduate and undergraduate degrees at commencement, which will take place at 1 p.m. Baker first came to Washington in 1975 to serve as under secretary of commerce under President Ford. Subsequently, he was President Reagan's chief of staff and secretary of the treasury before becoming the 61st secretary of state under President Bush on Jan. 25, 1989. His term as secretary of state has seen the crumbling of the Berlin Wall and the collapse of communism, the Persian Gulf conflict and the ongoing Middle East peace talks, and the emergence of the newly independent states of the former Soviet Union. Baker will receive an honorary degree along with Mary L. Good, senior vice president for technology at Allied-Signal Inc.; Floyd D. Gottwald Jr., chairman of the Ethyl Corporation; the Rev. J. Bryan Hehir, senior research scholar at the Kennedy Institute of Ethics of Georgetown University, and Stephen J. Wright Jr., former president of Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn.

Howard M. Scammon '34 and Roger D. Sherman, professors of theatre and speech emeriti at William and Mary, have received the fifth annual Cheek Award for Outstanding Presentation of the Arts. Scammon and Sherman, who received the award on April 6, were honored for their creative achievements as theatre professionals, educators and mentors. Scammon and Sherman were major forces in the William and Mary Theatre for more than three decades—Scammon as a director and Sherman in lighting and design. The award was established in 1986 by Leslie Cheek Jr., who founded one of the first departments of fine arts at a southern institution at the College in 1935.

Gene and Hope Hunt White have a new grandson born last January and they looked forward to having him and the rest of their family for Christmas.

Alice and Len Owen reported that their granddaughter is married, their grandson in out of the University of Delaware and working with Westinghouse in Pittsburgh, a second grandson is a senior at the University of Scranton, two grandsons are in high school, and a granddaughter is in elementary school. "They are all healthy and doing okay. What else can one ask?" Right!

Jean Bratton had a good visit with daughter Anne and the girls in Hastings, Neb., in November, and daughter Chris and husband were to be there for Christmas. She plays lots of bridge and is taking a French course at Emory and Henry, and somehow she's become secretary of three organizations!

Jane Wild wrote that she was too busy getting out of her North Carolina house to get to Homecoming. Her new address is 8800 Island Dunes Oceanside II, South Ocean Drive 1010, Jensen Beach, FL 34957.

It's always fun seeing Rosa Long's family pictures on her card. She says she spends her time at Archivists and History Workshops for Girl Scouts and Church Home Board Meetings.

Sally Bell Wainwright is still working half-time and enjoying it. Son Curt was home for Thanksgiving and is now back in Sun Valley. Son JI, a counselor, is now in private practice, a change he wanted to make.

Ginny Allen's card in rhyme was lots of fun describing family reunions and staying with grandchildren in Minnesota. Scrib is studying astronomy and Ginny is still "immersed in art."

Charlotte Bagot White's daughter, with whom she lives, had a second son, so with a 7-year-old girl, it is a very active household. Charl went to Florida for three weeks in April, two weeks in Boca Grande and one week in Naples. She hopes to repeat her trip next March.

Casey Caldwell and "Cookie" Cason had an eventful year. Cookie says the exciting thing that happened is that she has a new bathroom, the prettiest, most cheerful bathroom complete with skylight and orchids! In the midst of all the work, Cookie landed in the hospital with an irregular heartbeat. When the proper medication finally was found, they celebrated with a fun trip to Callaway Gardens in Georgia. They played 18 holes of golf five out of six days so she's back to battery and Casey's playing better than ever.

Casey's daughter, Nancy, had to have a kidney transplant in May and her husband, Doug, was the donor. Fortunately both came through in great shape. Isn't medical science amazing?

So much for all those great cards. Frank and I headed to Florida the middle of March to attend Frank's youngest brother's 50th wedding anniversary celebration. (Ours isn't until next year.) We'll be away about two weeks.

Howard P. Anderson of Halifax, who retired in January after 34 years of distinguished service as a state senator in the Virginia General Assembly, was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws by Longwood College at the school's winter commencement exercises. In addition to the honorary degree he received a citation commending him for his long service to the people of his district and Virginia.

Greetings! By the time you read this newsletter we will be on the brink of celebrating our 50th reunion the weekend of May 8-10 in Williamsburg. I hope you plan to be on hand for the celebration.

A card from Bette Smith Elliott reported that she was on her way to Bermuda for Christmas holidays; and in the summer she will attend the summer Olympics in Barcelona. I'm envious!

Emalee Ewing Durbin and her husband traveled in Hawaii, New Zealand and Australia for two months and after that they traveled in Virginia. She tells of celebrating her significant birthday on an Oregon beach overlooking the Pacific Ocean watching a beautiful sunset.

By phone Donald Axon told me that he has been retired for seven years from the Ford Co. where he had worked for 30 years. Now he has time to enjoy a granddaughter and some travel time.

Eleanor Ely Mackey Ferguson and her husband began 1991 with a 10-day cruise in the Caribbean, and trips after that to New Mexico, Iowa and Kansas. Her husband had a serious automobile accident in August and spent a month in the hospital, but he is recovering nicely now. They live in a Quaker-sponsored retirement community, close enough to Penn State to attend functions. John taught at Penn State for 30 years.

The Christmas mail brought a lovely informal family portrait from Gerry Koteen Koretz taken last March at Tanque Verde Ranch. Gerry and her husband spent the holidays in California with their son and his family whose home did escape the Oakland fire by four blocks. Gerry is active with many volunteer activities in Chicago when she isn't traveling.

Beatrice Monell Cole and her husband have traveled far and wide to Japan, China, Thailand, Europe, Australia and many, many more countries, most of these trips under the leadership of horticultural organizations. Unfortunately, Bea probably will not be able to attend our 50th reunion because of injuries sustained in an automobile accident. We wish her well and hope that a change will make it possible for her to come to Williamsburg.

Elaine McDowell Fuerst writes from her new home, 894 Lucas Lane, Oldsmar, FL 34677, to say that all is well and that she and her husband have happily accomplished their move from Guam, where they taught for many years at the university. Now they are closer to friends and family. In spite of all the homing and nestbuilding, though, they continue their pattern of global travels!

Before Christmas they will have back-to-back Elderhostel programs: 1. to cruise the Galapagos in a small craft ... and then 2. to Ecuador to explore both mountain and jungle areas. Home for Christmas. In January, a trip to Belize for an exploration of the interior, followed by snorkeling on the coast. Between times, they are at home to all friends ... already they have had visitors from Guam, California, Georgia, Virginia and North Carolina.

Dave McNamara and Geri have sent an abbreviated diary of their interesting trip to Spain last fall. Highlights were the landscape, the art, ancient architecture and "the remarkable beauty of the people in Barcelona."

A newsy Christmas message from Marge Retzke Gibbs and Wayne tells of their extensive travels during 1991 with their Airstream trailer: North Carolina; Charleston, S.C. (where their tour guide was Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, who entered W&M in the Class of 1945); Minnesota; Prince Edward Island; Boston; Pennsylvania. These are all separate trips! Since November, they have been at their home in Fort Myers, Fla. Marge reports that Mary Wilson Carter Sale (of our class), Marnie Bevans Kent '46 and Joyce LeCraw Rand '45 are all Florida neighbors.

Edie Burkard Thompson reports from Drexel, Pa., that she and her George made an October visit to Cape Cod to see Martha Eddy Hassell, who lives right on the Cape Cod Canal. She sees Carolyn Hall Gare '43 several times a year; she's an Elderhostel buff. Otherwise, she says "George and I lead a rather quiet life. No retirement, no grandchildren, no 'grand tours,' no complaints and no problems. It's all fun." She says she stopped in Williamsburg last April, while returning from Charleston, S.C. It all sounds happy and good to me!

Ann Edwards Harnsburger and Jim sent a nice Christmas letter from their farm in Hot Springs, "Whippoorwill Hill." They reported trips back and forth to Lancaster County, where they have a fishing camp on the water, to Lewisburg, Pa., Greensboro, N.C., Atlanta to see friends, and to San Diego to meet with Marilyn Miller Harnsburger and Hutch (both Class of 1943) and to attend the annual meeting of the Shanghai American School Association. Jim was elected president of the association, which is made up alumni of this institution that served the missionary families in China.

For this entry, special thanks to Dinnie Lee McAlinden, class reporter for 1945. She says, "I received a newsy letter from Muriel Koch Ernstmeier. Mu says she hears regularly from Barbara Ruhl Odom. Mu attended her 50th high school reunion in Floral Park, N.Y. Mu and Ernie visited each of their three daughters during the year — in St. Lucia, Ill., and Virginia. They have six grandchildren, the eldest of whom is an engineering major at Virginia Tech. In mid-October, the Ernstmeyers toured the South Pacific for four weeks ... Hong Kong, Bangkok, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand. There were 20 on the tour, and they had a marvelous time."

William O. Morris writes from his office in the law school of the University of West Virginia to say that he received a diploma as Honorary Doctor of the Faculty of Law and Administration at the Nicolaus Copernicus University, Torun, Poland, on Feb. 19 at the University Day convocation. He is only the sixth person to be so honored at this 400-year-old university since 1945. Bill has taught at the University in the past and has assisted in the development of its law library.

The W&M estate planning office recently announced that Marilyn Miller Entwistle and John have established a trust and a provision in their wills which will benefit the College. The trust will provide endowments for student aid and the Swem Library, and the will provision will support the Society of the Alumni. As we all know, they both have labored steadily for the Society. Congratulations and thanks to John and Marilyn!

Keep sending me news. I know you all will be busy with duties for our American political process for much of this year, but do find the time to write. Help your mendicant class reporter.

I feel downright guilty enjoying this column so much. Getting reacquainted with classmates and old friends is the next best thing to sitting on the front porch rocking and chatting. You all have so many interesting lives and experiences to share.

Just the other day Frances Robb and I got together for lunch. I had so much to ask her that our lunch stretched out for more than two hours. She has that unusual status of being a Williamsburg native, so she has a wealth of information to share with those of us who know so little about the community prior to the restoration. Thanks to Frances and a group of her peers there is an active Williamsburg Historic Records Association "dedicated to collecting information from the late 19th and 20th centuries." These records and artifacts are going into a special collection in the Swem Library ... living proof that there was life in Williamsburg after the colonial period and prior to CW.

As many of you will remember, Frances' father was Dr. Robb who was head of the chemistry department when we first came to William and Mary. Frances felt the need to sprout wings when it was time to attend college, so she enrolled in Sweet Briar where she stayed for two years, then she came to William and Mary and graduated with our class in 1948. She started working when she came to William and Mary and graduated with our class in 1948. She started working for Phi Beta Kappa when the national headquarters was here at William and Mary. When the office was moved to Washington, D.C., Frances moved with it. She retired last year after 40 years and moved back to the family home. I get the feeling she is really contented being settled in her "old community" and thoroughly enjoyed hearing about her childhood experiences and also the ones associated with her work with Phi Beta Kappa... an interesting life.

Christmas mail brought news of Bryan Smither and wife Boots Cumming '47. They are most likely basking in the sun on a South Pacific Island as I write this. Last year in February they were in Australia and New Zealand, liked it so much they decided to go in the same direction this year. Their son, Bryan Mercer, lives in Honolulu, so they stop to visit him on the way. Another son, Jimmy, is a graduate student at U.Va., and daughter Sally lives in Durham, N.C. Boots and I were roommates from 1944 until she graduated in 1947.

Another close friend from "start to finish" was Ann Brower Turner. She waited until after the Christmas crunch and wrote a wonderful long letter which I thoroughly enjoyed. Ann and Jim live in Raleigh, N.C., and are fortunate enough to have all four children and two grandchildren in the same area. Ann's life sounds busy and fulfilling with family and many civic activities.

It's always nice to hear that deserving people do get some just rewards. Such a person is C. Jackson Simmons. Jackson, whose family has been in the Northern Neck of Virginia since the 1600s, has made a lifelong study of the history of the area and its unique traditions. This year he has been made "Orator of the Holly Ball" and is sure to once again "fascinate his audience with more interesting tales and customs," according to the Northern Neck News. He has also published a pictorial history of early Irvington, Va., where he and his wife, Frances, live. Jackson is a senior partner in the law firm of Dunton, Simmons and Dunton in White Stone, Va.

The hospital isn't the best place to become reacquainted, but that's what happened to Tom Athey and me. Tom was the patient and I was the "pink lady." He was in for knee surgery, and I had the best visit possible with him and his wife, Helen, under the circumstances. It didn't seem fair to write about a fellow when he's down, so I promised to wait until he was up and going. We've chatted on the phone recently, and I am happy to report he's doing very well. Tom is an attorney, was with the law firm of Carneal, Smith and Athey in Williamsburg for many years, served as Judge for York County general district and juvenile courts, and finally retired after 11 years as county attorney for York County. He and Helen live in Yorktown, and he has three children and three grandsons, all living in this area.

It's nice to get news from Mary Minton Cregor Eitel. She is still in Louisville, Ky., enjoying her two children and three grandchildren. She's busy with her church and various hobbies and is looking forward to spending some time in January with Jeannie Bevans in Sanibel, Fla.

A William and Mary professor has organized a three-week trip to South Africa that alumni are invited to participate in for only $3,000, including roundtrip air fare, hotel and food costs. The educational tour, which has been organized by Eric Ayisi, associate professor of anthropology at William and Mary, will begin from New York on May 21 and return June 10. Flying on South African Airlines, the tour group will visit Cape Town, Johannesburg, the township of Soweto, Durban, Zululand, Kruger National Park and Pretoria. Dr. Ayisi has also arranged for a guided tour of the South African Parliament, visits with members of the African National Congress and the Inkatha Freedom Fighter Party, including possible meetings with their leaders Nelson Mandela and Chief Butselezi, and a tour of Stellenbosch, the oldest African university in South Africa. For more information, contact Salty O'Rourke at 1-800/638-8784 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

This letter is being written in early 1992. Have any of you thought about the significance of 1993? Our degrees will be 45 years old when this venerable institution reaches the age of 300. Plans are beginning to get under way for our big 45th reunion. Watch your mailbox in May for the first letter regarding our special celebration. This is your class and your letter, so do feel free to write. I love hearing from you!

50 William R. Low 5015 Hartwell Drive Houston, TX 77084

I have received only one letter thus far as class reporter, but that one from Phyllis Reardon Morrison contained a good bit of news. Phyl and Bob are living in Jakarta where Bob is continuing his fine oil and gas exploration career with Occidental Petroleum. Sounds like Jakarta is big, busy and spread out, making it a bit difficult to get around and make new friends. Knowing the Morrisons, that shouldn't be a great challenge. Phyl notes that they've made trips to Thailand (her favorite), Lombok and Bali. Seems that Bob always had pretty good assignments at Oxy!

The following is quoted from her letter concerning the whereabouts and what-abouts of some of our classmates:

Nancy Kurtz Falck will be spending two months in Richmond serving as legislative assistant to her son-in-law while the General Assembly is in session.

Liz Daniel Shuman and Bob are enjoying their Maine retirement. She sent a wonderful photo taken from their front porch looking toward the ocean, with snow I might add. She suggested we have a mini-reunion in Maine.

Nicky Dillard Dewing and Jay continue to love the Williamsburg area. Their daughter has been with them for two months waiting for her husband in Germany.

Janet Pierce Waller '49 and John are enjoying retirement in Leesburg. I also saw Janet this summer while I was in Alexandria.

I always get a great note from Woody Wayland '49. After a year in Nevada, Woody and Yvonne are living in Charleston, W.Va., where Woody is special assistant to the governor. Their children are spread all over the country.

Thanks, Phyl, for your contribution! Hope many of you from the Class of '50 will take time to drop me a line so our class can stay in touch.

Season's Greetings were received from Blair and Gloria MacKenzie, to wit:

"Blair finished work at the Naval Academy at the end of last year. He was going to try out retirement and catch up with the house and yard. His model building was increasing with plans for a Chesapeake Bay lighthouse model, a model of the gunboat Yorktown that his grandfather served on, and maybe a water-wheel mill. We may have to add a wing to the house. Just when he was catching up he was asked to work on a training program for the Martin-Marietta Corp. They have had him dashing around the country, so all of the work is on hold." Gloria is still at Bruce Morgan Associates enjoying her research reports, library work and a lot of different computer programs that really keep her on her toes. Her model building is on hold, but she is up to her neck in cross-stitch projects.

Also, Judge James H. Joines retired in January after 38 years as general district court judge in the 27th district.

Greetings and Salutations, one and all! Sorry my columns of late have been blank but I'm blameless! Actually, it's due to your lack of news — or not reporting some. This will be brief since I misplaced Betsy Graves Smith's Christmas card as well as Peg Blair Hackler's. Please gals, I'd appreciate hearing from you in time for the next issue.

However, I had a very newsy letter from Liz Beard Patterson, which I really enjoyed. Jerry Patterson has become the medical director of advanced dermatology, and in that capacity supervises the operations of six clinics throughout the Detroit suburbs part-time. Liz is a part-time marketing rep for MFP, a Canadian marketer of IBM, DEC and UNISYS electronic banking equipment.

They are very active people — Jerry's hobbies include golf, tennis and skiing. Last year they sailed in the Caribbean and visited Liz's native South Dakota where they were guests of friends from med school days who live on a farm outside Sioux Falls. Sounds wonderful! She's planning on Homecoming '92.

I do hope our class has a well-attended reunion. I'd dearly love to see each and every one of our "gang." There are so many memories to relive and after 40 years to sharpen our minds on!

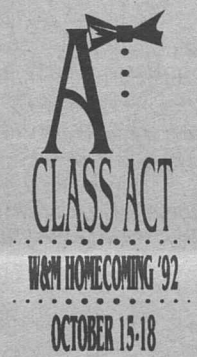

As yet I'm not sure whether I'll make it to Homecoming, but if there's a way, I have the will! Sounds like a gala event (Oct. 15-18). Also, preparations are under way for the College's 300th anniversary in 1993.

My life is moving right along — Liz, I'm not dating at present, but I did for a while — kind of a hassle after all those years of being out of the dating game.

After being in a fairly quiet house for quite a while it's now a beehive of activity. My oldest daughter, Kimberly, son-in-law and 3 granddaughters (10, 3 and almost 1) moved from North Carolina to Cincinnati last summer. They're living with me presently and I'll tell you — it makes for a full day every day! Kim has been a great help, since I pulled a muscle in my back last spring, of all things scrubbing floors on hands and knees. Needless to say, I don't do that any more, but I still have trouble lifting and bending. My favorite pastime, walking, has been curtailed, but with warm weather on the way, I've gotten back to it. Kathryn, my youngest, lives here in Cincy, as well as Steve, although not at home. Kelly, my middle daughter, is in Raleigh and I hope to visit her soon. She was here for Christmas and it was great having the whole clan together.

Well, my friends and fellow alums, I'll wind this up and expect to hear from you before next Christmas!

Organizers of Career Exploration Day, an annual program sponsored by the Office of Career Services and the Society of the Alumni, are lining up alumni panelists to speak at next year's program on Jan. 30, 1993. Whatever your field or interest, if you would like to share your career path and insight into the world of work with current William and Mary students, please write Bob Hunt, Associate Director of Career Services, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185, or call 804/221-3240.

54 Carol Raymond DeSampier 103 Cedar Court Williamsburg, VA 23185

A wonderful and newsy Christmas letter from Betsy Skinker Barnes and Ron Barnes describes their lives in Prescott, Ariz., as "blessedly active." Betsy is busy with AAUW, a women's investment club, weekly hikes, Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, still loves travel, and has great enjoyment from her family. Daughter Lisa is expecting her first child as this column's deadline approaches, and Tim's daughter, Katelyn, at 3-1/2 has the senior Barneses at her beck and call. Ron continues his twice-weekly column for The Prescott Courier, serves on several community boards and consults with town and state businesses. This spring he will teach a course at the local community college titled, "Attaining Self-Understanding, Self-Realization, Self-Fulfillment and Other Impossible Dreams."

Sandy Bettiger Crenier and Peter Crenier enjoyed a superb trip to Australia last fall. Their touring included Cairns, Brisbane, and Sidney, and was enhanced by visiting and being entertained by long-time friends. A stop-over in Hawaii gave a nice break to a long trip, and also a chance to see the many changes since they lived there in the mid-'60s.

Jim Duff and his wife Trina have moved to Williamsburg and are thoroughly enjoying their new home at Ford's Colony. Jim is a manufacturer's rep and divides his time between traveling and working out of his home. Trina has joined the William and Mary community with a part-time job on campus. Since their arrival here there have been many visits from family and friends from their Connecticut days.

During the holiday season we enjoyed seeing Al Gross and his wife Joy, Jim Carter and Terry Hamilton Carter, and also Marge Huff Brown and her husband Jay.

Our daughter Kim '79 and Stephanie were here for the holidays, a rare treat for us. Kim is practicing medicine and living in Rye, N.Y., while Stephanie and her husband live in Charleston, S.C., and are awaiting the arrival of their first child. Hark! Will Hugh and I be the last of this class to become grandparents?

Best wishes to all for a happy spring, and please do not forget to send news.

56 Mary W. Warren R.D. 1, Box 4155 White Stone, VA 22578

Alumni Communications generously forwarded a copy of James "Hike" Abdella's article reviewing our 35th reunion. He'd not been back for a reunion in 10 years so was quite happy to be there. It was fun.

Milt '55 and Alice Glover Glasser sent a cheerful Christmas card with lots of news, including the announcement of the marriage of their son, Miltie. They also claim there is perfection in this world in the person of their grandson.

Jane Topping Underhill '55 stopped by the Tides Inn one day last fall. She and her family were there for lunch. It was great to see her looking so pretty.

Chris and Bob Schlatter '57 are perking right along. Chris says she feels like that pink battery rabbit on the go all the time. Wait until Bob retires this spring — then she'll really be busy.

Dottie Guthrie Wilson keeps on the go, too. Her travels included stops in Mexico, the Sierra Madre, the Bahamas and several other places you hear about only in the movies. Italy is her hoped-for next destination.

Bob and Bobby Jo Zahn are rejoicing over their 10 grandchildren — five boys and five girls. Now that's a family to celebrate.

Dave and Ginny von Breitenfeld Ferre have quite a challenge in keeping tabs on their growing family as well as their travels all over the country. Hopefully, things will simmer down when they retire to the Northern Neck of Virginia, not terribly far from White Stone. Welcome, neighbors.

58 Peter Neufeld 410 W. 53rd St., Apt. 132 New York, NY 10019

"Death ends a life, but it does not end a relationship." These words open Robert Anderson's play, I Never Sang For My Father. I mention them now because I feel their philosophy is something we all need to bear in mind as we enter the winter of our fifties. For most of us, natural causes have probably already started to encroach on the richness of our lives. For myself (given both my life and profession), I've had to take refuge in this thought for a good number of years since AIDS has taken and will continue to take the lives of so many men and women I know.

On the other side of the coin, however, Neil Hock recently walked down a street he had obviously never walked before and ran into Kay, to whom he has been married for the last few months. Never being one to waste time, Neil has also acquired Sarah, 10, Michael, 12, and Matthew, 16.

As my fingers nimbly do the walking through the pages of telephone books around the country and I find out that:

Nicky Macy Stange, who still sends out Christmas cards to all the Chi-O's, has discovered that the card she gets from Betsy Stafford Elliot kept arriving later. Until the most recent one arrived at Easter. (Betsy, I think you should let Frank make dinner one night, and you sit down at your typewriter.)

Carl Merrill's attraction to belly-dancers led him on his path to researching the causes of Alzheimer's and schizophrenia. After college he became interested in photography and wanted to photograph belly-dancers in their natural habitat. He couldn't use a flash because it would destroy the natural ambience. (Stay with me now.) He started to study the chemistry of photography and came to realize that using silver would help him see things in greater detail in the dark. From there it was just a jump to identifying microbes in the field of biochemical genetics at the National Institute of Mental Health. (I've told you before, I only speak the truth in this column.)

Bji Nunn McKnight says she has no message for her ex-roommate Zona Fairbanks Hofstadler '59 because the two of them and their respective husbands just spent Valentine's Day weekend together.

Dick Clay spends part of his time in jail teaching "Marriage and the Family" to the inmates. He wants Tom Lightner to know he really wants to help on the committee for the 300th. Tom, Dick's address is 8631 U.S. Route 11, Pulaski, NY 13142. And not so incidentally he specifically asked I say "hi" to anybody I speak to and wants us all to know how much he misses the class.

Sid Pauls would like his friends to know that he's lost both his parents in recent months. Betty Bowser has retired from teaching, but Sid is not resting on her laurels. He continues with NASA and has just recently been given a Presidential Rank Award for Senior Service. He particularly asked that Tom Lightner write to him. Tom, Sid's address is 10 Poquoson River Drive, Poquoson, VA 23662.

Oh, and Tom, Meryl Streep's been pacing the floor like a caged animal waiting for her letter. Look, just because she went to U.Va. ... But hurry will you? When she gets angry, it's not pretty.

A story in the Richmond Times-Dispatch recently detailed a new venture by Jim Ukrop '60, a member of William and Mary's Board of Visitors, that benefits innercity businesses in the state's capital. The paper noted that Ukrop's Super Markets Inc. had set up a $1 million foundation to help minorities start innercity businesses. The first recipient of help from the foundation, Community Pride Inc., bought four Nick's supermarkets in Richmond and will begin operating the stores this spring. The article was written by Maria Osborn of the Times-Dispatch.

I had a note from Nancy Read Burkhardt before Christmas. She and Vernon were on their way to Malawi for a two-year Peace Corps commitment. Nancy will probably teach, and Vernon will practice medicine. She wrote that Wilma Fowler Bergfield is the president of the American Dermatologist Association.

And for those who haven't been reading the sports pages, the judge who presided over Mike Tyson's trial was Patricia Gifford Butsch. Her husband, Bob, is an actor who works on commercials and industrial films. They have a daughter in high school.

How can it be 30 years since we graduated? This year is a big one for us. Start making your plans to be in Williamsburg for our class reunion at Homecoming, set for Oct. 15-18.

Michael J. Molloy is seeking the Lee District supervisor seat in the November election. He and his family live in Opal, Va., where Michael is an administrator for Virginia Power's department of community and government affairs, Northern Virginia. Good luck in the election!

Warren Billings has just had a book published titled Virginia's Viceroy. The subtitle is Their Majesties Governor Francis Howard, Baron Howard of Effingham. This is a college textbook.

Another recent author is Susan Ward. She and three other authors wrote Listening Hearts. Susan lives in Baltimore, Md.

Pat Horne Dresser, wrote that her middle son, Daniel, entered the College as a freshman this past September. Pat has been a single parent for the last five years. Her eldest son graduated from Wake Forest, another son is a junior at Flint Hill School, Oakton, Va., and her youngest son attends Green Hedges School where Pat is on the board of trustees. Pat said that she keeps in touch with Janet Perry Ellis who still lives in Richmond, Va. Janet's son Wayne graduated from Virginia Tech and is working in Northern Virginia.

Jane Noble Lundy and her husband, Rich, find the house quiet after their youngest, Janie, went off to Colby College in Waterville, Maine, this past September. Their eldest is at U.T.-Austin working on his master's at the Institute for Latin American Studies. Their middle child is at U.C.-Davis studying history and the classics.

Beth Poole Radford and Wade live in Maryland. Their son, Richard, is an engineer and went to England in April. Beth and Wade will be in England in June.

Diane Snyder Montuori sent word that a group of Phi Mus from '62 have been getting together annually. Last October they met at Judy Gunter Stough's home in Mt. Airy, Md. Carolyn McCarthy Dunn from Georgia, Courtney Turner Stanby from Charlottesville, Va., and Lucy Sproul Carlson from Oakton, Va., were there also. Judy, Lucy and Diane are grandparents. Diane sees Margaret "Murph" Weirick regularly.

Jackie Fleming is planning to return from Denver to her hometown of Upperville, Va., sometime between June and October to sell her mother's house. She plans on remaining back East. She is making plans to attend our 30th.

Mary Alice Adams Betts is also making plans to attend our 30th. She went to Baltimore to visit her daughter and also had a reunion with her former roommate, Mimi Davis Londos, in Garrett Park, Md. They had not seen each other since Mary Alice's wedding in '62. Mary Alice is working for the Girl Scouts, and she and her husband, Lee, are still living in Florida.

A $472 million higher education General Obligation Bond Issue, affecting virtually every campus in the Commonwealth, has been approved by the General Assembly and will go before the voters of Virginia on Nov. 3. At stake at William and Mary is a total of more than $25 million in capital projects that will affect life for students on for years to come. The bond issue would include $6.1 million for an undergraduate science building, $8.5 million for a toxicology/pathobiology research facility at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, $5.3 million for the renovation of James Blair Hall, $2.9 million for a facilities management complex, and $2.8 million for utility systems upgrades. More information will be forthcoming in the fall.

Gayle Crabill Kerns and Waldron are in Blacksburg, Va. Their children are either married or away at college. Laurie, their eldest, and husband live in the D.C. area and Kelly, recently graduated from UGA, lives with them while she job-hunts. David, their youngest, is studying at St. Andrew's College in Scotland.

Joan Buhlmann, who is teaching at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, relates that she still has time for quilting and playing the recorder. She presented papers at Kalamazoo on Aneau and in Philadelphia on Le Caron, Rabelais, and Marguerite de Navarre.

Sandra Hancock Martin is also planning to attend the 30th. She saw Louise MacDowell Battist after 25 years recently. Louise's son graduated this past June from Penn State and her husband is retiring from Kodak and taking a job in Chantilly, Va. Sandra's two sons are out of college and working. One is on the West Coast doing cartoons for a Seattle paper. The other one is with the Boys Scouts in Farmville, Va.

The Henrys have been involved with all the college experiences one goes through when a child is applying for the fall of '92. Ryan, our senior at Virginia Episcopal School in Lynchburg, Va., applied to seven colleges and has been accepted to six and is anxiously waiting for the seventh one to arrive. Life will settle down after May 1. Jim and I are planning to come to our 30th; we had such a great time at our 25th that we would not want to miss this reunion!

We hope that many of you will be planning on meeting in Williamsburg this fall!

It was delightful to receive holiday news from Gretchen Scherer Isreal, Dick Goodwin, Marcia Ballard Scott and Gail Blake Wright.

Gretchen Scherer Isreal, her husband the Rev. Fielder Isreal, and their two sons, Andrew and Stuart, live in Eden, N.C. Eden is on the border of Virginia just southwest of Danville and north of Winston-Salem and Greensboro. Gretchen recounts something we all with children can relate to — that much of our daily life, activities and business is a result of "keeping up" with our children. Son Andrew, 18, is a senior at Morehead High School and plays soccer and golf. Stuart, 9, is in 4th grade; he prefers Weebelo Scouts and has a gold belt in karate. Fielder is pastor at St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Eden; he also serves as a volunteer chaplain at their local hospital and as vice president of the Ministerial Association. Their whole family was recently involved in organizing the local "Crop Walk," which raised $4,000 for hunger. Gretchen is teaching French at the nearby community college as well as at a local French-owned company, Zarn, now Plastic Omnium. Gretchen is planning her annual trip to France and Switzerland in early June with students and with "anyone else who wants to join in." Sounds like an open invitation to me.

Marcia Ballard Scott is still living in Richmond and working in public relations. Her son David is 7 and the joy of her life. Marcia wants to organize a reunion of the Thetas this year, either in Richmond or in the D.C. area. She needs feedback from all the '64 Thetas. So do I.

Another Richmond resident, but temporarily moved to Blacksburg, is Gail Blake Wright. A professor at the University of Richmond, she has been on loan this year to Pamplin College at Virginia Tech. Son Bill is with her there and attends Blacksburg High School. Her other son Scott attends the University of Alabama, but visits Blacksburg often. Gail's daughter Rollin graduated last year from the University of Virginia and is now a staff assistant for Sen. Cohen of Maine. Gail admits writing at a "weak moment" (because no one likes to talk about themselves) and she offers a challenge to the other Alpha Chis ... it's your turn now.

This past February the student division of the Institute of Bill of Rights presented its third annual symposium, "The Second Amendment: The Right to Bear Arms," at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at the College. After a moot court exercise addressing issues arising from gun purchase restrictions, Sarah Kemp Brady, chair of the boards of Handgun Control Inc. and the Center to Prevent Handgun Violence, delivered the keynote address. Since the near-fatal shooting of her husband Jim Brady, press secretary to President Reagan, Sarah has been extremely active on issues of handgun control.

An article about Franklin Edward Harris comes from the Roanoke Times & World-News. Ed, who is president of Crestar Bank's Western Region, has recently been elected president of the Roanoke Regional Chamber of Commerce. Ed began his banking career as a management trainee for Crestar, then United Virginia Bank, in Norfolk. In 1979 he became president of the Newport News unit, in 1982 executive vice president of the bank's Western Region, and in 1984, president. Ed also studied at the University of Virginia, Rutgers University and the University of Oklahoma. He was a psychology major at the College and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon. Yes, now we must hear from all the other psych majors and Sig Eps!

Dick Goodwin sent greetings from Annapolis where his law practice has "thankfully" resumed after Desert Storm. I know Dick is anxiously awaiting our 30th Reunion in 1994, which he is planning with Phil Van Kirk and Roger Hardy. Any suggestions or offers of help I know they would appreciate.

Before that, however, keep in mind 1993, the College's Tercentenary, and all the grand events that are now in preparation. We have much to look forward to and many traditions and memories to relive. In the meantime I hope you will share your present life with us. Send news now for our next class column. And many thanks to Gretchen, Marcia, Gail, Dick, Sarah, and Ed. We enjoyed hearing about you.

66 Sharon Cosminsky Kern 708 Coleridge Drive Greensboro, NC 27410

The Class of 1966 owes Nancy Rhodenhizer Henderson special thanks for the great job she has done as class reporter. Nancy and her "notebook" were at many W&M functions. Hers is a hard act to follow; please send me information soon.

Nancy reported on the 25th reunion, and I want to add my 2 cents. It was a very special weekend. Despite our 47-year-old bodies, it was fun to have our 18-year-old minds in sync with others who knew us in the fall of 1962. I don't know about the rest of you, but I was hoarse for three days after all the "visiting," and singing "Shout" at the dinner dance. Our own college-aged children would have been proud of us — we can still party. Didn't I see someone gator at the dance? During the dinner in Trinkle Hall one of the servers dropped a tray of dishes, and the cheers and applause brought back even more memories. We didn't know the term back in the '60s, but we were "bonding" for life — 25th reunions don't get any better!

David A. Heenan '61, chairman and chief executive officer of Theo. H. Davies & Co., is author of "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow," an article that explores the changing dynamics of the borderless, or global, economy. Heenan says he thinks the changing economic realities are forcing more and more chief executives to re-examine their traditional beliefs and habits. The article appears in the March 1992 issue of the magazine Chief Executive.

The quote of the weekend was made by Paula Lippard Justice when she saw Art and Pat Walsh: "You guys are still twins!" Our theme, "Still Crazy After All These Years" was most apropos!

Now for some class news. The Colonial Re-Echo was a wonderful source of information, especially when cross-referenced with our original 1966 Colonial Echo. The most unchanged award has to go to Anne Askew Jones. Anne transferred to the University of Richmond her junior year and was Homecoming Queen there as a senior. She now has a master's degree in social work from Virginia Commonwealth University. Anne lives in Richmond with her husband, Reggie, and they have two children attending James Madison University.

I enjoyed talking with Peggy Hall and Kathy Hagan Stettler at the various activities. Peggy lives in Oklahoma City where she is an account services manager at a marketing services firm. She earned her master's degree in journalism. In a Christmas letter, Peggy mentioned a new vocation: writing verses for greeting cards. Kathy is a social worker in California, working with Children's Services. Her master's degree is in clinical and community psychology. Kathy's son, Steve, attends Cal State Long Beach.

The hospitality room was a great place to talk to old friends and meet new ones. Judy Sullivan McKnight lives in Falls Church, Va., with her husband, Randy, and her sons, Sullivan and Shawn. Judy is president of the Education Network of Virginia and travels around the state with her responsibilities. Nancy Gottwald Harris lives in Williamsburg and has organized large fund-raisers for major organizations. Her son, Mitchell, attends Gettysburg College where he is a wrestler. Also visited with Laurette Harvey who is living in Kensington, Md.

Tim Curtis and his wife, Pegi, live outside Chicago where Tim is a consultant in employee and labor relations. They have a high school-aged son, John Tyler. Pegi enjoyed the reunion as much as Tim, especially since they were engaged in Williamsburg in 1971. Bud Anderson and his wife, Paddy, live outside San Francisco, where Bud works for the Clorox Company. Their daughter, Kelly, graduated from University of California-Santa Cruz, and Rebecca is a senior at UCLA. In talking with Bud we realized we went to elementary school together — a benefit of going in-state to college.

Living in Humble, Texas, Donna Province Grill is an attorney with Exxon Company, U.S.A., and spent four months in Alaska in 1990 assisting in oil spill legal matters. Donna has two daughters, Jennifer and Valerie, and a granddaughter. Her younger daughter was interviewing at the College during Homecoming.

Old Jefferson Dorm buddy Carol Adams Barkstrom lives in Richmond where she is chair of the art department at St. Christopher's School. Her son is a graduate of the College of Charleston. (Have you noticed how many of us now have children who are real people — many older than we were 25 years ago?)

Robin Jenks Wintzer had jet lag all weekend as she and her husband, Charles, had just returned from Europe in time for Homecoming. Robin lives in Chester, Va., where she is a programmer/analyst with Media General Inc. They have a teen-age daughter, Heidi. Marie Fridenstine Williams lives on Cape Cod with her husband, Laurence, and children Leigh and Stephen. Marie is assistant to the president of the May Institute Inc. Marie and Babs Lewis Korman looked good enough to be out there cheering on the "Indians" — a.k.a., "Tribe" — you can tell your age by how you cheer at football games.

The parade is always a good time to see friends, followed by a trip to sorority court.

SPENCER TIMM '66 DONATES RARE CHECKBOOK

Spencer Timm '66 has donated a checkbook to the Earl Gregg Swem Library at William and Mary. The checkbook records payments from the Confederate treasury for rail and steamship transport of freight and soldiers. Associate Librarian John Haskell said the checkbook would help scholars better understand "how the South depended on railroads to move men and materiel in the closing months of the [Civil] War." The checkbook was used by the treasurer of the Confederate states from January through March 1865—up until the day the Confederate capital of Richmond was evacuated.

ALUMNI DIRECTORY TO BE RELEASED JUNE 15

Harris Publishing Co. has notified the Society of the Alumni that the 1992 William and Mary Alumni Directory will be released June 15. If you haven't already ordered, a limited number of copies are available on a first-come, first-served basis. To place an order or to verify the status of your order, call Harris Publishing Customer Service at 1-800/877-6554.

CLEVELAND FRANCIS '69 RECORDS COUNTRY ALBUM

Dr. Cleveland Francis '69, a cardiologist for the past 13 years in Northern Virginia, was profiled recently on the front page of USA Today upon the debut of his new country album "Tourist in Paradise." Francis, who was well-known during his undergraduate years in Williamsburg as a talented guitarist and folksinger, is a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia and president of a five-physician group cardiology practice which he founded. Francis will make appearances on "The Today Show" as part of the promotion planned for his new album.

Tom Daugherty and his wife, Nancy McNairy '67, live outside Winchester, Va., where Tom is an orthopedic surgeon. They have a son, Wilson, at the College, daughter Lee at UNC, and David, a 9th-grader. After enjoying Tom's reunion, Nancy was anxious for next year's celebration.

Thanks to a fantastic band, the dinner dance was a huge success. We enjoyed having time to spend with good friends. So often the Homecoming encounters are much too brief. My roommate, Mary Ellen Coleman Culp, and husband Clyde were dinner partners. They spend part of the year in Annapolis since their children are on the East Coast: Kelly in Connecticut (U.Va. graduate), Suzanne in the D.C. area ('91 W&M grad), and Darby outside Charlottesville in high school. Clyde is president of Embassy Suites Hotels and they are based in the Dallas area. My brother-in-law, Dave Kern, and wife Sandy McNeill '68 also live in Texas, in McAllen. Dave is the plant manager with Weyerhaeuser and Sandy is in her last year of study for a divinity degree. By December, Sandy will be an ordained Presbyterian minister. Their daughter, Allison, is at Texas A&M, and sons Craig and Lee are in high school.

Williamsburg friends, Gene Griffin and wife Betty Bishop '67, stay busy with Gene's law practice. Their daughter, Beth, is finishing her first year at U.Va., and son John is in high school and very busy with various sports. Gene's crazy sense of humor, combined with his buddy, Mike Greenwood, kept the party lively. Mike and wife Julia Ann Dickinson '67 are in Richmond where Mike is president of Plywood and Plastics Inc. Their daughter, Ann, is in W&M's Class of 1992.

Bill Rountree now sports a black leather eye patch after successful eye surgery. A prominent Virginia banker, Bill is still the life of the party.

Congratulations to classmate Pete Nance. He and his wife, Judy Poarch '69, have been chosen co-chairs of William and Mary's Annual Fund. Their daughter, Sara, is a student at Vanderbilt.

I ran into Susie Romans at the dance. Susie is living in Denver where she and her husband own a consulting firm specializing in performance improvement. Isaac Freeman, our freshman class president, attended the reunion, after many years away from the College. Isaac lives in Seven Mile, Va.

Jim Armentrout and Johnne Wicker '68 live in Winston-Salem, N.C., where Jim is vice president and general counsel for Ramey Inc., a public utility contractor. Jim graduated from U.Va. law school. The Armentrouths have twin sons at Wake Forest University and a daughter in high school.

Living in Falls Church, Va., are Bunny

Popkin Latkin and Pete '64. Pete is a doctor and Bunny works for the YMCA as assistant coordinator for a program for pregnant teens. Their son, Danny, is graduating from the University of Vermont, and their daughter, Shannon, attends Tulane. Bunny and Pete met on Bunny's fourth day of school, and this June they will celebrate their 26th anniversary!

Linda Helfrich Keown lives in Richmond and works for Virginia Asset Management. Elaine Thornton Simmerman and her husband, Barry, are both school guidance counselors in Northern Virginia. Their son, Clay, is graduating from the University of Texas, and daughter Laura is graduating from high school. They spend summers in their restored historic homes in Lewes, Del.

Missing at the festivities was Joe Plumeri, who is president of the Private Client Group of Shearson Lehman Brothers and lives in Scotch Plains, N.J. Recently there was a biographical article on Joe in the "Money" section of USA Today. And several years ago as we were watching a national golf tournament sponsored by Shearson Lehman, there was Joe between the two regular broadcasters, with microphone and headset! Joe and his wife, Nancy, have three children.

Living in Greensboro, N.C., is Denny Taylor Kelly. Denny is the executive vice president of Bouvier Kelly Inc., an advertising firm. We missed Denny at the reunion, but during the fall, her husband, Dirk Dawson, was quite ill. Sadly, Dirk died right before Christmas. Denny's children are close to home: Shannon is a recent U.N.C. graduate and works in Charlotte, N.C., and Graham is a student at U.N.C. I'm sure I speak for the Class of '66 when I tell Denny she is in our thoughts.

There are some real advantages to being the new class reporter. After my name and address appeared in the December Alumni Gazette we got a long letter from Danny Denby '64. Danny has lived in Europe for the last 20 years and is now in Madrid, where he owns a mergers and acquisitions company. I also had a wonderful letter from Dick Weber '65 with several pages of W&M memories. The Alumni Office is asking for such memories for publication in a book entitled Traditions, Myths and Memories.

Dick '64 and I have now been in Greensboro for 13 years. He is president of Central Carolina Warehouses, and I am a professional volunteer, currently involved with the Adult Literacy Program. Our two sons are engineering students; Scott in graduate school at North Carolina State, and Michael at Clemson University. Scott will be married in July, so our empty-nest situation is serious! Please send me news—we won't have another 25th reunion to report on.

68 Sandra Abicht Simmermon 1145 Rockbridge Ave. Norfolk, VA 23508

Many thanks to those who wrote letters. Unfortunately they arrived after last October's deadline, so I'm including them in this issue of the Gazette. Letters are always welcome, and they are a good way to let your friends know what you're doing.

Our 25th class reunion will coincide with the 300th anniversary of the College. Now is the time to start planning for this grand event.

One person looking forward to Homecoming '93 is Larry D. Smyth. He's hoping for a good turnout. He also welcomes visitors to the Coto De Caza, Calif., area. Larry and his wife Diane Lucas '69 have lived in California for 20 years. He is senior vice president for Smyth Business Systems, and he works with computer systems for retailers. The Smyths remodel and build homes as a hobby. They've just completed a house on a two-acre lot in southern Orange County. The Smyths' daughter Dayna graduated from the University of California at Irvine last summer. Their son Matt will graduate from Cornell on a three-year program, and then he plans to enter medical school to become a surgeon.

Other news from California comes from Dave Davis in Los Angeles. He works in Pasadena where he manages the advertising for Santa Anita, the thoroughbred race track. The racing season is from Dec. 26 through April 27. Contact him if you're interested in thoroughbred racing in the L.A. area. Dave keeps in touch with Bob Foster and his wife Sharon who live in the Jacksonville, Fla., area with their two sons. Bob is a state judge. Jean Branham Reid, who lives in Alexandria with husband C.J. and three children, told Bob most of us wouldn't recognize her now that she is a size 6! Jean teaches elementary school.

Diane Letchworth Burgess is busy in Lake Forest, Ill. Last fall she organized both the Consular Ball—a white-tie event to support an international library—and a benefit for the Heifer Project International. She also headed the raffle/auction for the Children's Home and Aid Society. Diane is close to Chicago and is involved in the Lyric Opera, the Art Institute and lunch programs at the Woman's Athletic Club. Her family also keeps her on the go. Her husband Richard is vice president in charge of mergers and acquisitions for Kraft General Foods. Her sons Reid and Brice are 12 and 11 and the twins Alec and Elizabeth are 7. A group of animals—cats, canary, turtles, hamsters and fish—rounds out the household. Diane says she enjoys being a mother, chauffeur, room mother and jack-of-all trades.

Robert B. Stroube was named Virginia's health commissioner by Gov. Wilder. Among his department's top priorities are AIDS, infant mortality and family planning. In 1974, Stroube received his medical degree from the Medical College of Virginia and a master's degree in public health from Johns Hopkins. His public health career has included positions as assistant director of the Prince William Health District, assistant state epidemiologist and director of Virginia's health hazards control program.

Stanley O. Ragsdale is vice president of Pyramid Technology Corporation's Federal Business Unit. Stan is responsible for the company's federal sales efforts. He has more than 18 years of experience in computer sales. Before joining Pyramid, he worked 12 years at Prime Computer Inc.

Douglas M. McGraine is vice president-finance and chief financial officer for Combe Inc. Combe is known for Grecian Formula, Just For Men, Lanacane, Vagisil and Odor-Eaters. Douglas resides in HoHoKus, N.J., and has been with Combe since 1974. He is a CPA and has an M.B.A. in taxation from New York University.

Glenith P. Whitaker is associate director of secondary instruction for the Hanover County, Va., school board. Before taking this position, Whitaker was principal of Gloucester High School in Gloucester, Va., an assistant principal and an English teacher. She received her master's degree from the College.

70 Randy Pearson Van Dam (Mrs. T. Thomas Van Dam) 215 Myrtle St. Haworth, NJ 07641

The Rev. Nancy Darnell, associate pastor of First Baptist Church, Salt Lake City, was guest preacher at the Ogden First Baptist Church last September. Originally from Big Stone Gap, Va., Nancy earned a master's degree in geology at Indiana University. Employed by the oil industry in Denver for 13 years, Nancy then received a master of divinity degree from Iliff School of Theology in 1989.

Masterworks Chorus and Orchestra of Bethesda, Md., appointed Arthur Roach as its executive director. Masterworks and Orchestra performs classics of the choral repertoire in the Washington, D.C., area. Art has served as organist and choirmaster of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Richmond, and assistant organist of St. Paul's Church, Washington. Previously the public relations and development officer of St. Anselm's Abbey School in northeast D.C., Arthur has held positions with the Alexandria Lyric Opera, Sinfonicon Opera (Williamsburg) and Emory Opera (Atlanta). He has appeared with the Little Theatre of Alexandria and is the recipient of its DeMaine Award for Best Musical Director. Art has done graduate work at Wesley Theological Seminary and Catholic University. He is also on the editorial staff of Intermission Magazine, a monthly review of artistic activities in the D.C. metro area.

Rappahannock Press of Urbanna, Va., announced the release of a new comedy by Mary Wakefield Buxton, To Love a Virginian. Having written three previous books (Rappahannock River Journeys, Help! I'm Being Held Captive in Virginia! and Return to the Rappahannock), news clippings describe Mary as one of Virginia's few contemporary humorists often writing tongue-in-cheek commentary spoofing Virginia and Virginia thinking for those who love Virginia. Having earned degrees from the College and George Washington University, Mary also studied poetry at Oxford. A columnist for the Southside Sentinel, Mary is married to Virginia attorney Joseph Buxton and has two grown children. Besides local bookstores, her books are available by mail through the Rappahannock Press, Box 549, Urbanna, VA 23175.

Mary Buxton

Sponsored by her employer, AT&T of Morristown, N.J., Michele Cayot Abrams is in a two-year executive program through Rutgers University. In July, she will be going to Cambridge for 10 days and to Paris for four days as part of the program.

Mary Ellen Allen Turville works full time for RealAssist of Virginia Inc. in Norfolk. The company is a mortgage lender and broker and Mary Ellen is director of servicing for a portfolio of loans that were acquired through the Resolution Trust Corp. from a failed Norfolk savings and loan. Bill '69 is executive officer of the Navy's U.S.S. Guadalcanal, an amphibious landing vessel, that was deployed for most of 1991 to Turkey where his ship and others carried Marines that went into Iraq to protect the Kurds. More recently, Bill was deployed in the North Atlantic. Daughter Elaine, 17, was accepted early decision at William and Mary for September...the third generation of Turvilles to attend the College!

The School of Business Administration at William and Mary has received a commitment of $100,000 from Andersen Consulting to establish the Andersen Consulting Alumni Scholarship Endowment. Endowment income will be used to award annual scholarships to rising seniors or graduate students pursuing a degree in the business school. Andersen Consulting Scholars will be selected on the basis of sustained academic excellence, leadership and extracurricular activities. Individual awards will be a minimum of $1,000. The first Andersen Consulting Scholars will be selected this spring for the academic year 1992-93. Andersen Consulting is the largest management information consulting firm in the world, employing more than 25,000 professionals. The firm specializes in information systems design and installation, systems integration, change management and strategic planning services. More than 75 William and Mary alumni currently work for the firm. In the accompanying photo, Alfred N. Page, dean of the business school (right), accepts a $100,000 "check" from E. B. Johnson, partner, and Kathy Griffin, recruiter, of Andersen Consulting.

Martha Hollis Robinson is teaching probability and statistics at William and Mary's School of Business. However, Martha may be free-lancing on the subject of food again, based upon her trip late last year to Hong Kong, Singapore, Taipei and Bangkok.

Now in the Raisin Capitol of the world, Bob and Berie Gomez Grobe moved from their mountaintop Santa Cruz retreat to Fresno, Calif., last September. Berie is assistant superintendent — human resources for Fresno Unified School District (third largest district in the state behind Los Angeles and San Diego). Bob is doing consulting work while earning his administrative credentials at Cal State Fresno.

Having had a "close encounter with a very large tree on Super Sunday '91 in Taos, N.M.," Barbara Burket ended up with 16 major bone fractures of her left arm! Needless to say, skiing was out but swimming as rehabilitation took her to Barbados and, after a second operation, to St. Johns, Virgin Islands. Still in Santa Barbara, Barbara continues her job of the past two years, traveling often to Albuquerque. By the way, when Barbara wrote in December, she was back on the ski slopes, but staying away from Taos and big trees!

U.S. Army Colonel Bob and Barbara Pate Glacel will be relocating to Fort Ord, Monterey, Calif., in July. Bob is presently chief of the conventional forces Europe (CPE) branch on the Joint Staff. He consequently travels to NATO Headquarters, Brussels, several times a month. In July, Bob will become commander of the 7th Division Artillery at Fort Ord. Now in its fourth year, Barbara's Pace Consulting Group (executive development, organization development and change) has opened offices in Johannesburg, South Africa, and Monterey with assistance from friend Bill Dunn '68.

The College's 300th anniversary will be celebrated in 1993. Preparations are in the making for Homecoming '93, Oct. 20-24, a grand event with faculty symposium, departmental open houses, reunion events, the traditional parade and game. Topping off the festivities is a giant birthday party for alumni, faculty members and community friends. The June 1992 issue of the Alumni Gazette will carry details on hotel reservations. Tom and I plan on being there as Tom will be celebrating his 20th Marshall-Wythe Law School reunion. I look forward to planning some sort of reunion for any '70 classmates who are in attendance! Let me know if you'll be there!

My next deadline is June 26, so please write before then!

72 Peggy Corso Gould 13906 Edgecomb Court Centreville, VA 22020

Our 20th reunion is in the works for this fall — Oct. 15-18. We were a diverse class and are certainly blown to the wind, but this special weekend should give us all the chance to catch up on times gone by, to continue friendships and fall in love again with Williamsburg in autumn. Plans have been made to have a Friday night mixer, a float for the parade, a barbecue family style at Lake Matoaka, a BIG dance with a memorable band at the Campus Center Ballroom and a Sunday brunch. If the Alumni Society has you found, you should have received a letter in March with details. We're relying on a great Williamsburg core to help with all details but can use many volunteers. If you are willing to help contact friends, call the Alumni Society if you want to make sure a classmate joins you — reach out and touch someone!

Elaine Blyth Bixiones returned to North Carolina last summer after living in Okinawa, Japan, for three years with her husband, a lieutenant colonel Marine pilot, and two daughters. She taught advanced placement English, gifted education and drama for the Department of Defense Dependents School. Her family had a wonderful tour learning about the Japanese as well as traveling to Hong Kong, Thailand, Korea and mainland Japan. Elaine is teaching fine arts at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and she is excited about Homecoming in Williamsburg.

It was just over a year ago that we were all glued to our televisions for news of the war in the Persian Gulf. Eric Frickberg got a firsthand look. Active in the Naval Reserves with the rank of commander, he was called to active duty and assigned to the 2nd Medical Battalion in support of the Marines. After a month of training at Camp Lejeune, N.C., he was deployed to Saudi Arabia and helped staff a field hospital just south of the Kuwaiti border. The hospital was entirely in tents set up below ground level in the middle of the desert. In 11 weeks of operation, the staff cared for more than 300 patients. Fortunately, very few were combat casualties. Eric, let us add our gratitude and thanks for your willingness to serve in Operation Desert Storm. In everyday life, he is an associate professor of surgery with the University of Florida College of Medicine. He attended Medical College of Virginia, receiving an M.D. in 1977 and undertook residency training in general surgery. He then spent three years on active duty in the Navy Medical Corps at Jacksonville Naval Hospital in Florida. He and his wife, Patti, have three children — Erika, Brett and Jessica.

There's another doctor in the house. Steve von Elten is a board certified family practice physician on staff at Fauquier Hospital in the Warrenton, Va., area. Last August he passed the certification examination in emergency medicine given by the American Board of Emergency Medicine. Steve moved to Warrenton in 1979 and worked in the hospital emergency room until 1985 when he moved full time into private practice. In January he was named to the Highland School board of trustees. He graduated from Medical College of Virginia.

In 1991 Robin Chambers Hart received a Ph.D. in pathology from Emory University. Linda Jones was elected to serve on the board of directors of the Greater Lynchburg Chamber of Commerce for the 1991-94 term. She is the director of resource development and marketing at United Way of Central Virginia and is currently pursuing a master's degree in education at Lynchburg College.

Susan Williams Castle was married last summer and is living in Hampton, Va. She works for Central Rehabilitation Associates in Newport News.

Thanks to the National Endowment for the Humanities, Ed Chappell will be able to complete a survey of early Virginia domestic and agricultural buildings. He received a grant for $130,000 to do this work which will take three years to complete. He earned a graduate degree in architectural history from the University of Virginia and has been director of architectural research for Colonial Williamsburg since 1980.

If you live in or travel to Los Angeles, tune in KBLA-AM radio and hear Linda Bokach Ecker talk about management training and organizational effectiveness issues. Her "One Minute Memo to Manager" segments, co-hosted by her husband, are heard three times daily on this business/news radio station. Linda was a senior management training executive with Marriott before joining her husband to form The Ecker Group, a management training and corporate communications consulting firm.

Recently I got a letter from Jack Mitchell to bring us up to date on his life. He left the Senate in March 1991 after four years as a staff investigator for the Senate governmental affairs committee. He took some time off to write How to Get Elected, a collection of anecdotes on dirty tricks and mudslinging in American elections, due to appear in June or July. At the same time he did some free-lance reporting at Cable News Network, where he had once worked as a correspondent before going to the Senate. He recently started a new job as a special assistant for investigations to Food and Drug Commissioner David Kessler. He had a chance to see Mary Mays Zussman '73 and Barbara Bounds Brown '73, both of whom are alive, well and living in Northern Virginia. Jack lives in Silver Spring, Md., and plans to make the trip to Williamsburg for our 20th.

This is it for now. Enjoy your summer vacation and make your reservations for Homecoming early!

P.S. Attention Class of '72! During reunion planning we have discovered several classmates who entered as freshmen with the Class of '72, but either graduated a year before or a year after. If you want to be considered as a member of the Class of '72 for reunion purposes, please call the records office at the Society of the Alumni at 804/221-1179 to change your records to reflect your preferred class year.

74 Mary Miley Theobald 5 Countryside Court Richmond, VA 23229

Those sweet Virginia breezes certainly blew in a lot of news this spring, news from classmates all over the country. Before you read on, though, make a note to keep the information flowing by sending me a letter for the next issue. Or pick up the telephone some evening, give me a quick call at home at 804/288-2770, and I'll write it down for you!

Relocation revealed: Emelyn Mills Weyandt and husband Ted recently moved from Virginia to Miami Lakes, Fla., where Ted works for Amersham as a nuclear pharmacist. Emelyn is studying and interning to prepare for her own license in nuclear pharmacy, all the while taking care of Mary Catherine, 6, Christian, 2, and new baby Anne Carr, born in July 1991. I can't believe there is much time for study with that crew!

Way out west, Missoula, Mont., is home to Dr. Kathy McMullan, husband Mike, and son Andrew, 4. Kathy and Mike recently returned from a trip to Switzerland, which they planned around medical meetings there. I hope there was enough free time for some sight-seeing.

Gail Andrews Trechsel was featured in a nice article in the Birmingham, Ala. newspaper titled "Art's Leading Lady." As acting director of the Birmingham Museum of Art, she has had the community spotlight focused on her over the past few months. The museum is in the midst of major expansion: an $18 million renovation project that will close the main galleries until early next year, and Gail is running the show at this difficult time. With a husband, Haydn, and two children, Julia, 6, and Andrew, 1, Gail has decided not to pursue the director position at this time but she will remain active with the museum with part-time projects. Since graduation, Gail earned her master's degree in museum studies at Cooperstown, N.Y., then returned to Williamsburg for a year as an intern at the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center. From there she got a job at the Birmingham Museum of Art as the curator for decorative arts and never really left.

Back in Virginia there is big news brewing too. In Richmond, Paul Hemenway was named assistant professor and director of speech communication in the theater department at Virginia Commonwealth University. Paul will teach speech broadcast news, develop course and curricula for speech communications, serve on the department's public relations committee, and oversee 15 adjunct faculty members.

After graduating from W&M, Paul received his master's degree from Syracuse University and his doctorate from Temple University in Philadelphia. In addition to working as a radio and print journalist for many years, he has acted in some movies and commercials, including Rocky V, Seduction of Innocence, Silent But Deadly, and The Runner.

In Williamsburg last fall, David Sisk threw his hat into the political arena, running as an Independent for supervisor of the Roberts District. David is an agent for State Farm and active in various community efforts. He has three school age children. Endorsed by the Virginia Gazette, David won the election — on to the White House!

Barbara Rambo was back in the Burg last fall to take part in a panel discussion sponsored by the W&M Business School concerning the future of banking. Barb, the executive vice president of the Bank of America, came down from her home in New York for the event. The session was part of the graduate school's 1991 MBA reunion, and Doug Sankey '73, senior vice president of the Banque Nationale de Paris, also participated.

Barb joined Bank of America International right out of W&M and in 1983 became a vice president at the bank's New York corporate office where she managed the consumer and industrial products section. In 1987 she was appointed senior vice president and in 1990 was promoted to her current position. She must have impressed everyone at the session, because she was named to the School of Business Sponsors Board in January — I guess she'll be making more frequent trips to Williamsburg from now on.

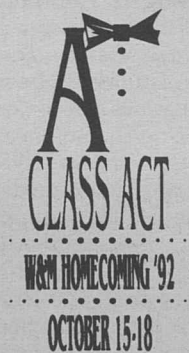

Anyone who lived at Dupont in 1970 will remember Paul Wergley and his guitar, playing great music and singing James Taylor, Cat Stevens and the rest. I remember and I have wondered what Paul ended up doing with his English degree. Now, thanks to an article in Port Folio, we know. He's singing, playing, and writing music, and doing it very successfully. In 1977 Paul's group, Iguana, was signed by United Artists and his success with his first record enabled him to move to southern California and continue with his music.

After 12 years there, he was thinking about returning to Virginia when he heard that another musical classmate, Lewis McGehee, had set up a recording studio. In 1989 Paul moved back to Hampton Roads so he and Lewis could work together on several projects. One was Paul's first solo recording, titled "Point of View." Occasionally you can see Paul perform live, alone or with his group, The Groove, at various night spots in the Tidewater area.

Another musical experience you likely had while at W&M was listening to Smith-Wade. Cabot Wade and his partner Dick Smith released their third album on compact disc called "Too Hot for Radio." Recorded in England last October, the disc is selling briskly in Peninsula music shops. Despite the disc's title, radio stations up and down the East Coast have found its songs are not "too hot" at all, but just right. Heck — W&M students have always known that!

20th Reunion

A Texas couple has endowed a scholarship at William and Mary that honors a 19th-century Virginian who was instrumental in the revival of the Alpha of Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa on campus. A gift from Mr. and Mrs. William Lamb of Austin, Texas, will endow the memory of Mr. Lamb's grandfather, the late Colonel William Lamb of Norfolk, an editor, soldier, orator and businessman who was valedictorian of the class of 1855 and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Lamb served as rector of the College from 1892 to 1905 during which time he helped revive the PBK chapter at William and Mary. The recipient of the scholarship will be chosen annually by Alpha of Virginia Chapter from undergraduates elected to PBK.

Deborah S. Vick, associate dean for development and alumni affairs at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law since 1987, has been named director of corporate and foundation relations at William and Mary. A native of Chicago, Vick holds a bachelor's degree from Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Ore., and her Ph. D. from Vanderbilt University. She worked at Vanderbilt as coordinator of graduate recruitment before becoming assistant director of corporate and foundation relations at a non-profit organization in Washington, D.C. In her new post, she will be responsible for fund-raising activities involving corporations and foundations.

76 Robert S. Cavaliere 3807 Keith Ave. Fairfax, VA 22030

Greetings to all '76ers. No doubt you've survived another winter, and spring is now in full swing in your part of the world. Tough to keep up with all those activities for the kids, isn't it? How about letting us know what your kids are up to and how you're involved with them. I think that would be a nice change of pace from the career slant that this column usually takes.

Speaking of careers, Clarke Franke is into his second already. He's now president of the family business, Taze & Hewitt Inc. in Bawlimer, Md. (for those of you who are uninitiated, that's roughly how the natives pronounce Baltimore). The firm is a manufacturer's representative of heating, ventilating and air conditioning equipment, and Clarke joined up in 1984 after teaching in Williamsburg and coaching the varsity lacrosse team at W&M for several years. He and his wife have two young children who give them great joy and lots of sleepless nights. There is a movement afoot to resurrect the lacrosse program — if you're interested in helping, get in touch with Clarke.

Susan Vann Chenault followed my suggestion and sent me her holiday newsletter. Susan works for the Army at Fort Belvoir and lives in Woodbridge, Va., with her husband and two children, one of whom was just born last June.

Deborah Anne Federhen is a curatorial consultant for museums specializing in American decorative arts. She has installed historic house museums on Long Island, researched, designed and installed a local historical society exhibit on quilts and served as a research associate for a traveling exhibition for the Baltimore Museum of Art.

That job included scholarly research, selecting exhibition objects, preliminary exhibition design and writing successful implementation grants to the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities. Deborah has published articles and essays on Philadelphia Chippendale furniture and on Paul Revere's other job as a silversmith. Currently, she is working on expanding her work on Revere into a book-length monograph. I am in awe on anyone who can say enough to write a book.

Around Christmastime I sent out almost two dozen postcards soliciting news for these pages. I got one response from a fellow Yates Third North resident, Max Schools. Max fondly remembered our lengthy tutoring sessions before the first semester calculus final exam. I did such a good job tutoring him in calculus that Max went on to be a successful major — in accounting. If memory serves me correctly, Max was the only one in our class to earn a varsity football letter during freshman year and we in the dorm got to see the real Max after the football season. Once when our R.A. called a hall meeting for disciplinary reasons, Max got us all to show up wearing essentially nothing but ties. Now there's a fond memory for the new W&M book Traditions, Myths and Memories.

Max is the assistant controller-accounting services at Virginia Power and has a 1-1/2-year-old daughter and a 9-year-old son. His wife, Nancy Ingram, finished law school last summer, passed the bar and works for a law firm in Richmond. Max wanted me to let Paul Kruis know that he finally took, and passed, the CPA exam in May 1990. The Schools family has gone backpacking in Yosemite, rafting on the Green River in Utah and dude ranching in Colorado. Thanks a lot for your great letter, Max.

On a more serious note, friends of Sharon Hanson Losito have established a fund to pay for essential medical treatment for her. She was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1988. Specialists at three leading cancer research/treatment centers have recommended a bone marrow procedure to ensure long-term survival, according to Bob Hanny, professor in the School of Education, who, along with colleagues, have organized the Sherry Losito Transplant Fund, P.O. Box 1008, Williamsburg, VA 23187-1008. The cost of the treatment will approach $100,000 but Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Virginia excludes the recommended treatment from coverage. For more information, call Jo and Bob Hanny (804/229-5080) or Jim Beers (804/220-1234).

Well, that wraps up this edition. Hope you all have a great year and don't miss your 20th year high school reunion.

78 Margaret Bowen 8713 Rolando Drive Richmond, VA 23229

Looking for some new reading material? Ask your local book store for Gabriella by Brenda Hiatt Barber, from the Harlequin Regency Romance series. Her second book from the same publisher, The Ugly Duckling is scheduled for release in August '92. She has two other novels being considered by other publishers and she recently finished a third novel intended for Harlequin Regency. Her husband, Keith, is considering leaving the Army this summer and possibly entering law school. His interest is in health law, which complements his master's degree in health administration. With their two daughters, they are enjoying life in Columbia, S.C.

David and Patty Vallone Samuels '80 welcomed their fourth child, Laura Janine, in October. David is still an attorney with NASA and Patty is studying to be a physician's assistant. They still reside in Friendswood, Texas.

My award for most fascinating letter in this column goes to Kevin O'Brien, or "OB" as he was known during our college days. Claiming loyalties to both the classes of '77 and '78, he asked to be remembered in our column! After his W&M days, he ventured north to Manhattan where he developed his skills in sales. He then moved into the contract office furniture business, where success led him to found "The Irishman on the Hudson," a full-service dealership in that field. His projects have included the world's largest trading floor for Morgan Stanley and a corporate fitness center for HBO. He lives in a brownstone in Jersey City and can see the Empire State Building, World Trade Center and, in the winter, the Statue of Liberty from his roof! In March, he hosted "OB's 14th Annual St. Patty's Day Party" (I wish I were still covering New York so I could attend!). He visits college friends in Virginia such as Bob Walker and Terence Wehle; and in Ohio, Don Brizendine. This year he celebrates his 11th year as a member of the New York Athletic Club, his 7th visit to Aruba, four godchildren and 14 nieces and nephews. He's looking forward to Homecoming and hopes to see everyone at the Sig Ep house!

Storm Simenson completed his assignment with the U.S. Embassy in Helsinki, Finland, in 1990. Noteworthy developments for him included his marriage to Ricarda Kroehle in '87 and the birth of their son, Kai Ingvar, in '90. During '91 they traveled extensively to visit family and friends across the U.S. They currently live in Vienna, Va., but are preparing for their next assignment at the U.S. Mission in Brussels, Belgium in July '92.

I was especially pleased to hear from Karen Taylor Hackler after so many years! She and her husband, Mike, are living just down the interstate from me in Hopewell, Va. Karen assumed new duties as the productivity manager for Crestar Bank's Trust Group in September. Mike is operations manager for Leake Inc. Besides settling into a new home at Jordan on the James, they have been refurbishing a '76 Catalina sailboat — a venture they have aptly titled the "Impossible Dream." Both have continued to pursue athletic interests through softball and volleyball teams. Karen's softball team was the highlight with a first-place finish in the last season!

Bill '79 and Patty Dunn Newell left their house in the country (Gloucester, Va.) last year to settle in Roanoke, Va., due to Bill's new assignment as systems account manager with Xerox. Patty left her former position as mental health therapist to be a full-time mom to their three children, a role which, like many others in our class have discovered, is both challenging and fulfilling! They often see Charlene Flanagan, who is teaching foreign languages at Roanoke College. They would like to hear from John Bilyeau, if anyone has his current address.

Steve Avent and Sophie Ridings are planning to be married this fall at the Wren Chapel. Steve is living in Richmond and is employed by Life of Virginia. Sophie is employed by Ford's Colony in Williamsburg.

Ed and Suzanne Amos are living in Winchester, Va., where Ed is an oral and maxillofacial surgeon. Their third son, Stephen Edward, was born in November.

Beth Rutgers and Scott Wheeler '77

ECHOES OF THE PAST

*The old names are here,
And the old forms,
Not alone of doorways, of houses,
The light falls the way the light fell,
And it is not clear*

*In the elm shadows, if it be ourselves, here
Or others, who were before us.*

You studied in the Wren Building, walked passed the tablet of Priorities, worshipped in the Wren Chapel, played Frisbee in the Sunken Garden, perhaps noticed that strange-looking obelisk in the Ewell Graveyard. You knew Phi Beta Kappa and the Honor System were founded at William and Mary, heard the worshipful references to Thomas Jefferson, maybe even knew that James Blair founded the College and served 50 years as its president. The old names and places of William and Mary—an alma mater steeped in

Traditions, Myths & Memories.

Now you have the opportunity to learn more about the heritage of your alma mater from Traditions, Myths & Memories: Celebrating the Tercentenary of The College of William & Mary, a 10" x 14" hardcover book to be published this fall by the Society of the Alumni. Written by W. Wilford Kale '66, author of Hark Upon the Gale: An Illustrated History of the College of William and Mary, this beautiful, four-color publication will capture not only the great traditions—and myths—of William and Mary, but the memories that made the College special while you were a student here.

CLAYTON CLEMENS '80 WINS PBK AWARD

Clayton C. Clemens '80, assistant professor of government, has been awarded the 1992 Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa Faculty Award for the Advancement of Scholarship. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate who majored in history and government, Clemens received his M.A. degree in 1983 and his Ph.D. degree in 1987 from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. He joined the department of government faculty at William and Mary as an instructor in 1985. In his six years at William and Mary, Clemens has produced a wide array of scholarship, including a major book, a monograph and several articles. Most recently, he was awarded a scholarship by the German Historical Society for his book, Reluctant Realists: West Germany's CDU/CSU and Ostpolitik, published by Duke University Press in 1990.

built a successful venture from an idea born during our years at W&M. As students, like many of us, they found themselves answering the same questions for tourists over and over again and wondered if there wasn't a better way to provide this information. After a brief period following separate careers, Beth and Scott came up with the idea for a special closed-circuit channel that would show an informational video about Williamsburg on TV sets in local hotel rooms. Today, 11 years later, Hotelvision is known as The Vacation Channel. It serves more than 6,000 rooms in 41 Williamsburg area hotels. A separate branch serves the Outer Banks of North Carolina. Both are part of the parent company, Metro Video Productions, which has studios and offices in Williamsburg and Richmond. So, on your next return visit to our alma mater, keep Beth in mind as you check out the latest information on your hotel TV set!

My business trips have been getting much more exciting. Somehow I was crazy enough to attend a special course in Boston in mid-January. Attached to both ends of the trip though, I was able to visit Robin Markwith Sleeth and Margie Weber Lindgren and their families. I also had the good fortune to time it so that I could attend the record release party for Greg Greenway '75. He has a major hit on his hands and an exciting road ahead. I highly recommend his new release, "A Road Worth Walking Down."

For your future calendar, our 15th reunion in '93 also coincides with the tercentenary celebration (300th anniversary) of William and Mary. Keep watching the Gazette for all the details and plan to make this our biggest reunion ever! Homecoming dates in '93 will be Oct. 20 - 24.

80 Pam Lunny 749 Boston Ave. Bridgeport, CT 06610

At last, spring is here, although it hasn't been a very cold winter, at least not thus far as I write this. The weather almost reminds me of Williamsburg winters. I know at least one or two of you were very disappointed when I missed the last column. I was in the midst of redoing the downstairs in my condo, and work, and so on. Please forgive me, but also do me the favor of dropping me a line on your current activities.

I have a bit of news from across the country. Audrey Sussman Gauna has recently become involved with the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter as secretary, bringing a lot of enthusiasm with her. With Audrey on board, I'm sure the chapter will be highly successful. Audrey lives in L.A. with her husband, Frank. She works for Freeman Spogli & Co. and in her spare time has been active in a Mensa group. California definitely seems to agree with Audrey. Quite a change from her earlier preference for New York!

The sunny climes of California have also captured the heart of Cathy Hartsog Taylor. Cathy has been out on the West Coast in the San Francisco area since graduate school at Stanford. She has a master's in economics and all the course work for a Ph.D., and then decided to forego academia for a position as technical writer for a data communications company. Several years later, Cathy is now director of corporate communications at Quantum Corp.

Although the job is demanding, Cathy loves it! Cathy and her husband of approximately five years, Bob, spend much of their spare time rock climbing in Yosemite, and have gone bungee-jumping several times and white-water rafting down the Colorado River. When she wrote, Cathy was planning a trip to Chile to go rafting down the Bio Bio River.

Rachel Witmer wrote a while ago from Arlington where she had taken a position with the firm of Shawn, Berger & Mann in D.C. as an associate lawyer. Rachel specializes in commercial litigation and transactions. Before Shawn, Berger & Mann, Rachel spent three years at the Securities and Exchange Commission working for the general counsel. I'm sure she has some memorable experiences from her vacation throughout Germany and Berlin, which coincided with the fall of the Berlin Wall.

Don Bartlett recently established his own private practice in family medicine in Herndon and is a member of the staff of HCA Reston Hospital Center. Don completed his medical degree at U.Va. and did his residency at Roanoke Memorial Hospital.

For those of you who may have caught the show "Parker Lewis Can't Lose" this past fall, you may be interested to know that the show that aired Oct. 27 was written by Sheryl Anderson.

Rodney Williams presented "An Evening of Song and Dance" at the Campus Center Ballroom in connection with Black History Month.

Ohio is home to the Russell family. Mark Russell writes that he, his wife Helen and son and daughter, Harrison and Marjorie, recently relocated to Westlake, Ohio, from the D.C. area. Mark had recently accepted a position with Ernst & Young in the management consulting division. Good luck, Mark!

Janet Boyd Harford is living in Falls Church with her husband, Bob, where they both work at Technology Applications Inc. (TAI), a defense contractor. Jan is a project manager, responsible for quality assurance, and Bob is a computer consultant. (As an aside, if anyone has been trying to reach Jan over the years I can give you her address and phone. I have it, but I really didn't feel comfortable putting it in print.) Jan and Bob get together frequently with a whole group of Indians, including Carol Humphries and Ky Lindsay and son and daughter, Jake and Anne; Eleanor Andrews and Ken Lasky and their two children; Connie Wiemann, husband Bob Volk and son Benjamin; and Terri Beninato and Patterson Lyles, and their two sons, Joshua and Zachary. It sounds like a mini-reunion in itself!

Dalton, Ga., is home of two well-known celebrities, Marla Maples and Deborah Norville, as well as to our own Pam Jenkins Partain. Pam and husband Jack have two children: Lucy, almost 3, and Andy, 1 1/2. Pam is director of community relations for the Hamilton Medical Center. One of the awards she's received for her work is the 1988 Touchstone Award for writing presented by the American Hospital Association's Society for Hospital Marketing and Public Relations. Jack is the district attorney. Pam is already planning to make it to Williamsburg for or 15th Homecoming, if not sooner; her plans to attend the 10th were changed after Jack, an Army reservist, was called to active duty in Saudi Arabia. Jack was in Saudi Arabia for five months with the War Crimes Documentation Center investigating alleged Iraqi war crimes. Thank goodness he came home safe and sound! Thank you, Jack and Pam, for your hard work and sacrifices.

Jeff Bakewell has to have one of the longest commutes I know! Jeff and his family, which includes a 7-year-old girl and a 5-year-old boy, live in Colchester, Vt., and Jeff commutes to Chicago where he pilots 727s for United Airlines. I guess after a while, taking a plane to and from work gets to be the same as taking a car or the train. In his spare time, Jeff flies F-16s with the Vermont Air National Guard.

Williamsburg is home again to Susan Merritt Walker and her husband, Randy, after spending several years in Jacksonville, Fla. Susan is senior programmer/analyst at W&M with the Administrative Development Group and Randy is a builder, primarily of single-family homes and remodels. Susan and Randy's spare time is spent with their beautiful little boy, Ryan Randall, now 3. Susan sees Jim Carter '79, husband of Nancy Nafzinger Carter, regularly, that is pretty much daily as Jim is systems administrator for the school. Susan and Beth Keen '79 and Jill Pegram '81 also keep in touch.

Cecil H. Creasey Jr. has been named a shareholder in the Richmond law firm of Sands, Anderson, Marks and Miller. He practices in the areas of workers compensation, business and corporate law, and real property law. He joined the firm in 1986.

Well, as they say in the cartoons, that's all folks (at least for now)! Take care and remember to send me a quick note of all that you've been doing.

82 Nancy Conlon Herzog 20 Jennifer Drive Wrentham, MA 02093

Well, it looks like we Northerners have almost made it through another winter. I'm really looking forward to summer and I imagine many of you are, too.

Leading off with an exciting story, classmate Brett Leake appears to have really hit the big time with his stand-up comedy routine. This past November, he was scheduled to appear on The Tonight Show, giving him the opportunity to perform for millions of Americans. Brett has also been seen on television's Comic Strip Live and he's a regular at comedy clubs throughout the Richmond area.

Continuing her show business success, Lisa Siedman, former executive story consultant for the series Dallas, has joined the staff of Knots Landing. Lisa has also recently completed her first novel.

I was very pleased to hear from my former roommate Carrie Solomon Glaser, an attorney who was recently promoted to counsel at the FDIC where she has worked for the past three years. Carrie has what sounds like a fascinating position; she investigates how closed thrifts and banks were run and, when appropriate, sues their former officials.

Carrie also writes that Suzanne Sellers Jones has found success as an independent personal property appraiser, specializing in antiques. Suzanne presently lives in Roanoke.

Also in business for himself is Brad Marrs, who opened his own law firm last October. One of Brad's partners is Pete Goergen '77 J.D. Brad and his wife now have two fantastic boys, Eric, 3 1/2, and Daniel, almost 2. Brad believes that both are fine W&M material! He also wanted to warn the rest of you that he is planning to attend our 10th reunion this fall.

Another attorney in the news is William W. Helsley of McGeheysville, who has recently been elected chair of the Democratic Party's Rockingham County committee. In his new position, William aims to develop a stronger organization of County Democrats, to ensure that Republican candidates do not run unopposed in future elections. He received his law degree in 1985 from T.C. Williams Law School in Richmond.

Doing well in business, Collin Pulley have become vice president of the Nottoway House furniture and carpet store in Courtland. He and his wife Judy, a North Carolina native, also live in Courtland where they have just finished building a new home.

Collin, a Civil War enthusiast, has re-

GARRETT PROMOTED AT FERGUSON ENTERPRISES

John H. Garrett III '67 of Herndon, Va., has been named corporate vice president of Ferguson Enterprises Inc., the country's largest wholesale distributor to contractors and industry of plumbing, PVF, HVAC, electrical, utility and water works products. With the company since 1974, Garrett was named among Ferguson's Top Ten Salespeople for three years prior to his appointment as president of the Jacksonville, Fla., branch in 1977. Garrett was promoted to regional manager of the Northeast and Southwest regions in 1989.

cently been elected commander of the Urquhart-Gillette Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans in Franklin. He also chairs the Legislative Action Committee of the Virginia SCV, a national organization for descendants of soldiers and statesmen who served the Confederacy.

B. Anthony Delsorone Jr. has reached a milestone in his career as an investment professional. He was recently awarded the Chartered Financial Analyst designation by the Trustees of the Institute of Chartered Financial Analysts. Congratulations!

Turning to the field of medicine, last year Matthew W. Bernart earned a Ph.D. from the Oregon State University College of Pharmacy. Today, he is performing AIDS and cancer research at a National Cancer Institute laboratory in Maryland. Matthew is the proud father of two sons, Bryan Patrick and Logan Matthew.

I've also learned that Kevin Roche has been given a fellowship in pediatric radiology at New York University Medical Center. Kevin is a board certified radiologist, living in Manhattan.

Checking in with the armed forces, Navy Lt. Timothy J. Lyons recently completed a six-week exercise aboard the destroyer USS Comte De Grasse. Training was held in Guantanamo Bay, where Timothy and other crew members tackled simulated emergencies ranging from fires and floods to multiple battle hits.

That's it for now. I look forward to hearing from more of you in time for the next column, so stay in touch!

84 Joanna Lee Ashworth 3015 Hampton Avenue Charlotte, NC 28207

We just returned from a trip to the Capitol City to help celebrate with David and Ann Golwen Brand — the cause for celebration you may ask? David received his doctorate from Georgetown University in biology and Hilliard hosted a fun party, full of W&M folk, including Linda Cottle '83, Karen Kolecki '83 and her husband Bill Browning, Susan Brand '85, Henry Plaster '85 and his wonderful fiancée, Christi Bruns, Jeff Bishop, Becky Rogers Voslow '83, Anne Quynn Ritko '83, Mark Ford '83 and Mary Obata.

A fun time was had by all in a beautiful old townhouse in Adams Morgan, owned by David's sister, Debbie Brand Baum '81. Ann and David will be relocating to Memphis in March, where David has accepted the position of research associate for the University of Tennessee Center Medical School.

While on my trip to D.C., I saw Jill Bobbin '85, who continues to enjoy her position as coordinator, Continuing Education for NAACOG, the organization for obstetric, gynecologic and neonatal nurses. I stopped by to see Elizabeth Wood '87 who has just returned from a vacation in Europe and is enjoying her work at Smith & Haroff.

Dan and J.J. Head are enjoying Indianapolis. Dan is employed with Eli Lilly, through which they have made many new friends.

A Christmas card from Carl Adkins brought fun news from Philadelphia! Carl is doing well as the nursing business manager for the Methodist Hospital and has been dating a delightful woman named Nancy for two years. She is an elementary school music teacher, who also conducts the children's choir at her church and teaches 30 piano students each week. They met through the single professionals organization that Carl started!

Over Thanksgiving, Carl rendezvoused with Dabney Carr at a snazzy spot in the Ghent section of Norfolk, where she is working for the Christian Broadcasting Network on the show "Big Brother Jake." Carl spoke with Mike Hobbs recently, who is the manager at the Union Station AMC Theatres in D.C. Carl also reports that Jeff Cole is employed as a systems officer

CIA DIRECTOR SPEAKS AT MARSHALL-WYTHE

Robert Gates '65, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, spoke to a capacity audience at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at William and Mary on April 8. Gates gave an overview of the military situation in the world, citing what he considers as continued threats to world peace. He touched on the breakup of the Soviet Union, increased arms proliferation in countries such as Iran and North Korea and nuclear capabilities in India and Pakistan. "We must not let our hopes overshadow our good judgment, our common sense and historical realism," said Gates, who added that continued threats to world peace are realities, "not phantoms conjured up to protect defense and intelligence "communities."

JOHN MCCLINTOCK '83 PICKED BY EXPLORERS CLUB

Dr. John Scott McClintock '83 has been accepted as a fellow in the New York chapter of the Explorer's Club, a prestigious international organization with 2,900 members worldwide. McClintock, who has been active in several international medical missions, is an underwater photographer and diver who has explored many waters in the world. He plans to continue his efforts for wildlife conservation and preservation of coral reefs.

at First Virginia Bank.

I received a New Year's card from the Great White North, with news from Michel Hurtubise. Michel has been living in Toronto for two and a half years. After graduating from the University of Toronto Business School in May '91, he is now working as a corporate banker for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Canada's second largest bank. Michel looks forward to visiting with many of his W&M buddies at Homecoming '92!

Christmas cards always bring plenty of news from around the globe. Patrick and Kathy Hecker Frakes '87, are living in Hinesville, Ga. They had a very eventful year with Patrick in Saudi Arabia from January through late March. Following the birth of their son in June, they enjoyed Homecoming and then Pat was off to California before returning for the holidays on Dec. 19.

Brendan and Carrie Krysa O'Hara '81 had an exciting year, with the purchase of a home in Alexandria, a trip to San Diego for Michelle Conyne's '81 wedding to Nels Anderson, a trip to Colorado and Utah and a vacation in Paris! Carrie works in the senior living division at Marriott and Brendan works in corporate tax for the IRS.

Sunny Jacksonville, Fla., is the home of Gloria and Phil Buhler, who celebrated the birth of their first child, Vincenz Arthur, in October. All are doing just fine and he is growing very quickly. Phil is employed with the law firm of Taylor, Moseley and Joyner in Jacksonville.

Mary Sugg is keeping busy in Greenville, S.C., as a single mom with her 2-1/2-year old son, Christian, working as a marketing representative for IBM and volunteering in the community, including at the hospital. Last summer, Mary attended the weddings of Susan McElligot in October and Chris Comey '86, who is now an M.D., in June.

I received a great letter from Carolyn Daughters, who has had many changes in her life recently. She received her M.B.A. from George Washington University in 1990. After graduation, she worked in the corporate accounting area at Freddie Mac, and now has left to do free-lance accounting and tax work, as well as focus on her sport horse training ventures in Lorettsville, Va. She just completed training clinics with former U.S. Olympic team coach Jack LeGoff and team member Bruce Davidson, with her 5-year-old thoroughbred, "London Calling." Carolyn plans to compete with him and others in three-day events in 1992. She has placed several horses in the top year-end standings since 1989. Good luck, Carolyn!

Great news from nearby Oakton, Va. Chuck '84 and Tracy Krauthem Murray '85 welcomed a little bundle of joy into the world on June 10, 1991. His name is Spencer Thomas and he has been a pure joy for Tracy and Chuck. Chuck continues to enjoy his work with the law firm of Dickstein, Shapiro & Morin in D.C. Tracy completed a master's degree in education and human development at George Washington University in February 1991, and is currently having fun being a full-time mom!

Fellow PiKA Rob Haislip sends news of a similar nature. Rob and his wife, Lori Selden Haislip, are enjoying the parenting role as well. Their 1991 holidays were especially joyous, with the birth of their daughter, Erin Sinclair, "Clair," on Dec. 23, 1991. Rob and Lori live in Richmond, where Rob recently accepted the position of sales manager at Covington International Travel, Richmond's leading travel management company. Lori is a sales account executive for Entertainment Publications (the entertainment coupon books). Lori and Rob send news that Joe Cornett is engaged!

Amy Eliza Peters and Keith Delano Jones exchanged wedding vows in Martinsville on Oct. 5, 1991. They honeymooned in Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard and now live in the D.C. area, where Amy is employed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Keith works for Davis and Glass Inc. in Northern Virginia.

Another W&M wedding occurred on Oct. 5 as well — that of Caroline Beth Kunkel '84 M.A. and Paul Kennedy Kipps, in Williamsburg. The reception was held at the Williamsburg Hilton and they honeymooned in England. They reside in Williamsburg, where Caroline is a development researcher at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and Paul is the manager of news and information services at CW.

Another Williamsburg wedding to report is that of Glenn Gormley (of Green Leaf fame!) to Catherine Marie Power. They were married at St. Bede's on Nov. 3, in the early evening. The reception was held at The Trellis and the couple took a wedding trip to Mexico and returned to Williamsburg, where Glenn is proprietor of the Green Leaf and Catherine is the manager at the Cheese Shop, familiar places to us all!

Columbia, S.C., is the home of Ashley Steele Nutley, who has joined McNair Law Firm, P.A. as an associate.

News from Harrisonburg — Jeffrey Lenhart became partner at the law firm of Wharton, Aldhizer.

Chris Turner sends plenty of news from her home in Harrisonburg, Va., as well, where she has been prosecuting criminals for the past two and a half years. Chris reports that Jeff Deal and his wife, Jennifer, now live in Charlottesville, Va., and have a second child. At Homecoming, Chris saw Mike Cousins, who is working hard in his family landscaping business in Silver Spring, Md.

Howard and Cathy Bos '85 were also at Homecoming. They are living in Richmond and are expecting their second child. Christine Villa '85 and her sister, Kim Villa '86, ventured to the Burg, too. Christine lives in McLean and works for BRTRC, a defense contracting company. Kim lives in New York and works for a large bank in New Jersey.

In November, Chris Turner attended the wedding of Katherine Evans to McCoy Farmer, who are both employed by Virginia Power, in Richmond. There were many W&M friends there to join in the celebration! Chris visited with Chris and Wendy McKee Hambleton at the wedding. Chris and Wendy are living in Maryland, where Chris is a rare coin dealer with a family business and Wendy is a CPA with BDO Seidman.

Janet Hanrahan Weise '85 was also on hand with her husband, Steve. Janet works for the University of Maryland and is studying toward her master's in counseling. Steve is a legal computer consultant.

Chris Paradis traveled down from Connecticut, where she is the athletic director at Porters School. Anne-Leigh Henley '86 and Steve Bisese '83 came as well, and are in the midst of planning their own wedding! Anne-Leigh will be returning East from her job in the Financial Aid Office at Marquette University in Wisconsin. Steve works in the Office of Student Affairs at the University of Richmond.

Chris Gingery Payne and her husband, Jay, left their new son, Daniel, for the first time, to join in the wedding festivities. Chris stayed with Kelly Halligan, who is a lawyer with a thriving solo practice in Ashland, Va. Thanks, Chris, for the many updates!

Up North in colder country, Donald Lucidi and his new wife, Mary Theresa, have made their home in a beautiful three-story Victorian home, complete with stained glass windows, in the Highland Park section of Pittsburgh. Mary Theresa Kuchtik and Donald were married on Nov. 9, 1991, in Pittsburgh, and honeymooned on a Caribbean cruise to San Juan, Barbados, Martinique and Antigua.

Nov. 9 was also a special day for Mary Patricia Canonico and William Anthony Sybers Jr. '85. Patty and William exchanged wedding vows and enjoyed a honeymoon to Bangkok, Thailand, and Katmandu, Nepal! Patty received a master's degree in 1986 from Boston College and is director of services for the Hoover Services for Low Vision and Blindness in Baltimore. William earned a master's degree from Georgetown in 1987 and is employed by the American Psychological Association in Washington as an editor.

Leslie Barry '87 writes from her home in sunny California, where she is enjoying her life out West. She vacationed at Mammoth Mountain last year, has been managing a softball team and has spent many weekends water skiing with friends on her boat. Leslie continues to work in Production Planning at Strand Lighting and has also had the opportunity to do some free-lance work.

While I was out in San Francisco in December, I met Amy Marcos for dinner in the city. She is enjoying her horseback riding and her job with Marinco, which has involved a good bit of traveling across the country, including a brief stopover in Charlotte next month! Amy visited Beth, Matthew and Milan Turk recently in Guadeloupe, where Milan works for Procter & Gamble. While in the City by the Bay, I also visited with Monique Valenti Brannon '82 and her husband, Shaun, briefly and they are both doing well. Monique has recently been promoted at Bank of America.

Last week, Greg Park '83 was in Charlotte on business with his new job at First Union. He told me all about his April wedding plans — it sounds like he and Vicki are all set for a big celebration!

I enjoyed lunch with Sara Maynard Sommers and Hope Solomon last week. Sara and her husband, Jeff, who is a psychiatrist, are considering a move back East from their home in Denver. Hope is serving as president of the Metroline Chapter this year and continues to enjoy her work at Marketwise here in Charlotte.

I'm looking forward to two more visitors this weekend, Bobby Harris, and his father, Bob Harris '61 who will be in town for the ACC Tournament!

Greg and Kim Staples Hundley, my college roommate, are busy putting the finishing touches on their new home in Dallas. Greg will begin his cardiology fellowship shortly. I spoke with our other roommate, Anne St. Clair Woron, last week and she and her family are planning a move from Wilmington to a new home in Jenkintown, Pa.

Here in Charlotte, Kent and Jennifer Horrocks Francois '91 have purchased their first home, in Plaza Midwood, one of the older areas of the city, with lots of character. We helped to move them into their wonderful, new home last week and Jennie has already put her incredible green thumb to use in the garden, with lots of bulbs and pretty flowers.

A little up the road north in Greensboro, Bill and Meg Hunter Scott are building a home! They have two adorable children, Will and Michael. Bill works for the law firm of Brooks, Pierce.

My usual chat with Noah Levine on his February birthday brought some most exciting news — Noah has just completed his M.A. in history from Hunter College, the City University of New York. After five years of hard work, Noah and his wife, Jackie, certainly have a big celebration in store! Jackie works in retail management at Abraham and Strauss, and Noah works in marketing at Western Union. Congratulations, Noah!

Last weekend, our home hosted a number of W&M friends! My husband and I threw a wine fete honoring Henry Plaster '85 and his fiancé, Christi Bruns. Betsey and Jeff Bishop, complete with video camera, traveled down from D.C. as did Anne and David Brand, who are preparing for their upcoming move to Memphis. Even Bart Edmunds '85 and his wife, Cynthia, made the trek from Roanoke! From visiting the famous Charlotte Motor Speedway to baking a delectable wedding cake, a fun time was had by all! Keep those cards and letters coming!

Greetings once again from Washington, D.C., home of our nation's capital, breathtaking memorials, lots of good food and many W&M alums, including me! Hope that 1992 has been a good one thus far for everyone. Read on for the latest updates on our classmates:

Once again, weddings abound among members of our class. Congratulations are in order for my fellow Yates inhabitant

Lewis B. Puller Jr. '67, '74 J.D. has won the 1992 Pulitzer Prize for biography for his book Fortunate Son published last year by Grove Weindenfeld. Puller's book tells about his life as the son of the most decorated Marine in U.S. history, his college years at William and Mary, his shattering experience in Vietnam where he was severely wounded when he stepped on a mine in October 1968, and his years of struggle to resume a normal life. Puller first wrote about these events in an article in the William and Mary Magazine in summer of 1984, an account that Puller expanded into Fortunate Son, which was published last summer. Puller described the book as "a symbol of the 'separate peace' he says he has finally made with his past," according to a profile on Puller by Mike D'Orso '75, which appeared in the Winter 1992 issue of the William and Mary Magazine. When he learned he had won the Pulitzer, Puller was quoted as saying, "I am going to get into my old clunker (his wheelchair), take my tie off, fix myself a big glass of iced tea with an extra dollop of sugar (and) go watch a rerun of The Fugitive." Puller said he had no idea he would win the Pulitzer and described it as "kind of amazing."

Doyle Hull and his bride-to-be, Cecilia Costanzo, who will tie the knot this April. Best wishes to you both!

Lisa Fraim '87 and Matt Seu took their marital vows this past December in Norfolk. The wedding party included Groomsman John Siegel and bridesmaids Holly Barrett '88, Courtenay Jenkins '89, Tracy Jolles '87, Marsha Lycan '87, Elizabeth Martin '89 and Amanda Meyers '87. Lisa and Matt are now living in Herndon, where Lisa is an analyst for State Farm Insurance and Matt is a business analyst for the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. here in Washington. Congratulations to you both!

I can only assume that Ken Rogich and Karen Riedel are engaged, since they were recently pictured in The Washington Post registering for various items at Crate & Barrel! Christina Olson '88 (an accountant at Ernst & Young) and fiancé Charles Mack will take their marriage vows in April, while Ann-Darby Simpson '87 and her fiancé will be married in Virginia Beach this coming October. Congratulations and good luck to all!

Joy Dibble Nagy was married last October in her hometown of Sarasota, Fla. After a honeymoon in Vienna and Budapest, Joy and husband John settled back in Boston, where Joy continues to work at Arthur Andersen while dabbling in community theater. Congratulations and best wishes to you both! And thanks for writing!

Lesin Liskey Dippold is now the executive director and vocational services director of Valley Associates for Independent Living in Harrisonburg. Congratulations!

Kevin Ward gets the prize for the letter which traveled the greatest distance to reach me. Kevin sent me a Christmas card from Nairobi, Kenya, where he works at the U.S. Embassy. Kevin tells me that Nairobi is beautiful, and that his job is both fun and interesting (we should all be so fortunate...). He's already gone on a few safaris, has scuba-dived in the Indian Ocean and plans to climb Mt. Kilimanjaro this spring. Phew! What an experience!

Laurel Strawn Hurst wrote from London, where she and husband Mark are living and will soon celebrate their third wedding anniversary. How time flies! Laurel has just started a new job with J. P. Morgan in London and reports that all is well across the Atlantic. Thanks for the note, Laurel!

Thank you, Anne Detterer, for responding to my "where-are-you-now?" query. Anne writes from Scottsdale, Ariz., where she is putting her accounting degree to good use in the internal audit department at American Express. Anne's job sounds like it offers some great travel benefits, which find her frequently flying to San Francisco and Salt Lake City.

June Sherry also wrote after reading that I was looking for her. June continues to work as an account executive with AT&T in Baltimore and is also working towards a master of science in business at Johns Hopkins. She tells me that Tom Brooks '85 is also in Baltimore, working on his master's in environmental science at Johns Hopkins.

June tells me that Clem Chang and Jack Langan's annual New Year's Eve bash was a big success, and included W&Mers Dennis Whelan '87, Mark Sweet '88, Christie Checkel '88, Jeff Majtylca '88, Charles Miscio '88 (who will marry Shannon Mohac this June), Jim Lovegren '85, Jeff McQuilken '85, Kent and Kathy Redmond Schaum '87 (who were here visiting from California for the holidays), Chris and Amy Parr Roak '88, Tom Blackwood, John Reynolds and Chris Neikirk '88. I'm told that a good time was had by all.

June also mentioned that our freshman hallmate Pat McParland is living and working in Philadelphia as a marketing communications manager for NewsNet data news service. June tells me that congratulations are in order for Sharon Callahan, who plans to tie the knot with Vince Coates this April. Sharon was recently promoted to financial analyst with Advanta Leasing. Good luck! Jeff Gollomp also responded to my "where-are-you-now?" column, so I guess it has been successful so far! Having graduated from Emory University's law school in 1990, Jeff is now working as an attorney for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission here in D.C. Jeff and wife Cindy, who tied the knot last May, have settled in McLean. Jeff writes that Steve Lewis, who served as best man at his wedding, is finishing up his medical residency in Chicago. Thanks for writing, Anne, June and Jeff!

I saw Deanne Buschmeyer McGranahan '87 and husband Johnnie '87 over the holidays at her parents' home on Long Island. Deanne and Johnnie are living in Fairfax, Va., where Johnnie works for Hunton & Williams. Deanne is continuing her career in the field of graduate admissions at Georgetown University, where she works for the M.B.A. school's admission office.

GINNA GROSECLOSE CARROLL wrote to let me know that she too has taken the proverbial plunge, having married Patrick Carroll this past November in Richmond. Among those witnessing the ceremony were bridesmaid Beth Duncan and Delta Gammas Twinky Leftwich, Allison Belsches, Jennifer Gunderson '85, Brooke Kirk '85 and Catherine Perrin '87.

Kimberly and Mark Hurley '87 were also among the guests joining in the celebration. Ginna and Patrick are now living in Glen Allen, Va., where Ginna works for Crestar Bank, and Patrick, a Rutgers University graduate, works for Virginia Power. Congratulations and good luck to you both!

Susan Maxson graduated from the University of Chicago's law school last June and is presently clerking for a judge in Richmond. She'll begin a career in law at Covington & Burling here in D.C. this coming fall. Congrats!

Susan tells me that Bess Littlefield, who had been assistant director of alumni affairs at our alma mater, is now executive director of the Medical College of Virginia Alumni Association. Bess and husband Mike reside in Richmond.

Margaret Halstead lives in Falls Church with Katherine Leupold (who continues to work as managing editor for an association magazine in Alexandria) and Laura Avis '85 (who works at the Brookings Institution here in D.C.).

Susan tells me that Julie Withrow is an auditor for The Washington Post, while Venson Wallin is a C.P.A. at Richmond's Ernst & Young office, specializing in health care services.

Margaret Wohler '85 sent a post card to say that she is looking for Katy Richardson Shea. Katy, where are you? Please drop me a line!

Sabrina Brinkley is still working as a flight attendant for Continental Airlines and is flying the Paris routes as the French speaker. Sounds like a wonderful opportunity! Sabrina says that her career has been quite an adventure; she has traveled the world and met many interesting people.

Film-star-in-training Vicki Ellis wrote from Atlanta, where she has been living for nearly four years. Vicki is currently teaching acting for the Alliance Outreach program there and continues auditioning in the hope of getting that big break to star-

Language Skills Take '91 Graduate to Moscow as Translator for Business

When Virginia Garnett '91 took a three-week job last fall as a Russian language translator, she had no idea that the job would result in her taking up residence in Moscow.

Her translator stint was so successful that the international trading company that hired Ms. Garnett appointed her manager of the firm's new office there.

"I was working as a free-lance translator and conducting tours in Oslo, Norway, in September when approached by Trade West International S.A. about a job translating," said Ms. Garnett, a 1991 graduate of the College of William and Mary.

"The (Luxembourg-based) company was tired of having Russian translated from a Russian viewpoint and needed someone who could translate in terms of feedback and spot the inside curve balls of conversations," Ms. Garnett said.

She was on leave in Richmond recently to celebrate her 24th birthday with her family before returning to Moscow for a year's assignment.

"My job was to pick up on those peripheral conversations and learn what Russian business and government officials really thought about things," Ms. Garnett said.

Knowing the language, "I could listen to conversations between Russians and determine if they were unhappy or uncomfortable with a part of a package or terms which they wished were different," Ms. Garnett said.

"I could tell my boss which issues he should address," while official translators couldn't do that for fear of losing their jobs, she said.

Ms. Garnett said working as a translator was an ideal job because of her passion for Russian language and literature, which she has studied at William & Mary. It provided her with an opportunity to translate her classroom knowledge of the language to real business situations.

She had tested those skills by working in Moscow during the 1988-89 academic year.

After working at the American embassy scheduling social events for the defense attache, she was assigned to the consular section where she worked with Armenian refugees and Jewish dissidents.

Slightly more than two years later, she was back in Moscow.

But instead of translating, she was hiring staff and running the office for a capitalist, profit-driven trading company in the heart of a state-controlled economy which was nearing collapse.

"Trade West International is involved in supplying a broad variety of good and management services to the Russian market," Ms. Garnett said.

The firm builds and operates manufacturing plants in Russia to produce goods that use as much Russian raw materials as possible, Ms. Garnett said.

Deere Co., an American manufacturer of farm equipment and construction machinery, is Trade West's largest partner in agricultural projects, she said. Other agricultural imports arranged through the firm include seeds, fertilizers and pesticides.

The company contracts with Russian textile producers to improve their production and management, she said.

"Assistance can be finding a spare part that is needed and marketing the output, such as raincoats, winter and baby coats," Ms. Garnett said.

"Then we export them for hard currency," she said. "Any rubles taken in payment are converted as fast as possible into hard assets as an inflation hedge," she said.

"While the Russians will pull through the painful transition from a controlled to a free market based economy," she says, "shortages of almost all consumer goods will continue for several years creating a major market opportunity."

Food is in critically short supply and sells at prices unknown to American consumers," she said.

"The price in hard currency for a loaf of bread is four dollars, six or seven dollars for a gallon of milk and 16 dollars for a small chicken," Ms. Garnett said.

Almost all spare parts for industrial machinery and cars are in short supply, she said.

"Russians prefer doing business with Americans, as opposed to the Japanese," she said.

She hopes to find ways to use government funding to purchase outdated drugs and medical supplies in the United States and get them into Soviet markets.

"Everything marketable here is marketable there if we get them over the hump," she said.

BRICKER NAMED ADMINISTRATOR OF THE YEAR IN SOUTH CAROLINA

John Brodie Bricker '80 C.A.S.Ed. of Taylors, S.C., has been recognized as the Administrator of the Year by the South Carolina Association of School Administrators (SCASA). Currently assistant superintendent of schools in the southwest area of Greenville County Schools, Bricker has served as a high school principal and vice principal for nearly 20 years. Responsible for general administration, curriculum and instruction, and budgeting and personnel, Bricker was recognized for his outstanding educational leadership in the southwest area, SCASA and the community. Previously honored with First Union's Outstanding Educator Award and the National School Public Relations Golden Achievement Award, Bricker has lectured for graduate courses at the University of South Carolina, conducted seminars on team building and served on the state advisory board of Cities in Schools and the state Defined Minimum Program committee.

KAREN COLTRANE '87 HEADS W&M ANNUAL FUNDS

Karen Graves Coltrane '87 has been named director of annual support at William and Mary, and Chris Bracken, a 1987 graduate of the University of Virginia, has been named associate director. The annual support office oversees the alumni fund and the parents' fund, among other annual gift programs. Coltrane joined the annual fund office as associate director in 1990. She is a former officer with Signet Bank.

dom. You may have seen Vicki on television; she's in a Folger's Instant Coffee commercial! How exciting! (Will you be our next Glenn Close, maybe?) Thanks for the letter, Vicki. It was great to hear from you.

As for the baby scene, there are quite a few newborns to write about! Jeanne Guzzo DiFrancesco '84 dropped me a line to say that Mary Guzzo Nelms and husband Jeff welcomed a beautiful baby boy, Taylor Kelly, this past September. What exciting news! I know you two will be wonderful parents!

I'm told that Mary Kach Chapin '85 and husband Doug are the proud parents of daughter Ellen Jean and that Mary is thoroughly enjoying motherhood!

Mary Hallihan Cushan '85 and husband Jeff '85 have a new addition to their family as well. Baby Catherine Elizabeth was born this winter and is reportedly adorable!

Finally, Emily Powell Boddy '88 and husband Mark '88 welcomed baby Sarah Morgan into the world this past February.

Jane Butler Shuler and husband Mike '83 will soon be joining the parental ranks. Their little one is due in May. Congratulations to all of you ecstatic (sleep-deprived?) parents!

I run into new homeowner Tracy Sinnott '85 every so often here in my neighborhood. Tracy tells me that Susan Zanetti Harrison was a beautiful bride this past December. I'm sorry I missed the celebration, but am told it was much fun! Sue continues to teach school in Fredericksburg, where she and Rich live, while Rich continues to commute to D.C.

I hear that Chip Puskar '87 and wife Patty Hansen Puskar '87 are traveling the country now that Chip has landed the lead in the touring production of The Buddy Holly Story. Chip played Buddy in London and will reprise his role here in the States. Be sure to go see him if you can!

Since you are probably dying to know what Ellen and Doug Brinkley are up to, well, I've seen lots of them this past winter and can report that life is treating them well. Ellen and Doug hosted a fun party this past February.

Mike Sapnar '88 came up from New York, where he continues to work for Continental Insurance, works toward his M.B.A. at New York University at night, and is busy with plans for his May wedding to Jen Wargo '88. Susie Brinkley Means '88 and husband John '88 (John went to the Super Bowl this year and saw the Redskins win!) were there to liven up the party.

Rounding out the guest list were Lina Lukens (still enjoying her job at The Washington Post), Sean Stone '87 (finishing up M.B.A. school at Georgetown), Ansley Calhoun (still working at Kirkland & Ellis here in D.C.), Sarah Shea (in insurance at Northwestern Mutual Life), Micah Yarbrough (about to graduate from law school at Rutgers), Robin Freedman (engaged to a great guy and planning to tie the knot next winter), Mary Barrett Shearin '87 and husband Chris (proud parents of two children now!) and Shawn McDaniel Simms '88 (teaching school in Baltimore). A fun time was had by all (and I did a great job chopping vegetables). We certainly missed Linda Habgood '88, but hear she's busy with work in New York.

Mark Decker called from Seattle to say hello recently. He confirmed that he is indeed engaged to be married this June! Mark is finishing up his M.B.A. studies at the University of Washington, while fiancée Kathy Curtis is back here on the East Coast teaching school.

Julie Wallace Dunn and husband Tom '87 are busy finishing graduate school. Tom has accepted a job offer with New York City's Cravath, Swaine & Moore for the fall, so he and Julie will find themselves apartment hunting in the Big Apple before long!

Tom Noble has earned a promotion to account supervisor at that amazing advertising shop of Wieden & Kennedy. He continues to enjoy Portland, Ore., and has done quite a bit of work-related traveling, including a jaunt to Barcelona, Spain, in preparation for the Summer Olympics. Not bad!

As for my usual "where-are-you-now?" inquiry, Jeannie Cherundolo, Archie Harris, Anne McInerney and Carol Holmes, where are you now and what are you up to? Please write!

As for me, life is hectic but good. I'm working hard toward my master's degree and am truly enjoying every minute. The challenge is an enjoyable one and a welcome respite from the legal field. I have another year before I'll receive my degree, so until then I'm still at Akin, Gump, where things are hopping, as usual! Have met no celebrities lately, but did get to travel to Phoenix in January on one of our cases, somewhere I'd never been. What a beautiful part of our country!

As always, I'm simply thrilled to receive mail from so many of you, so please keep writing!

Hello! I hope all is going well with all of you! Thank you so much for all the notes, letters, post cards, phone calls, etc. that came in for this issue.

Shannon Lucas Manning got married on June 1, 1991, in Springfield, Va., to Edward Manning. Several alums attended the wedding including bridesmaids Kelly Adams, Carol Stubin Bell, Lynn Dreylinger Forrester '89 and Maria Santos '87. Other W&M alums who helped celebrate were Anne Montgomery '89, B. J. Sullivan, Laurie Bunkelman, Jeanne Foster '89, and Cathy Sherwin and Mike Gaydos (who are to be married in May). Shannon and Edward went to Bermuda on their honeymoon and then moved to Houston where Shannon is attending law school.

Shannon ran into my "little sis," on a visit to Northern Virginia (NOVA), Jennifer Piech '89, who was in Washington, D.C., performing in A Christmas Carol at Ford's Theatre. Also, Shannon says that Page Seckman is working 100-plus hours a week as she finishes up medical school in Georgia.

Brian Abraham has been working for Chevy Chase Bank since 1988 and is currently the assistant branch manager at the Fair City Mall location in Fairfax. Also, he has been taking courses at George Washington University as he pursues a master's in public administration. Brian says that anyone who wants to reach him can call information under his roommate's name (Ron Green).

Brian also said that Kim Wilcox is at Brandeis getting her M.F.A. in costume design. (I ran into her this summer at the Virginia Shakespeare Festival and she looked great and seemed really happy.)

Eric Grosfils '89 took his physics/geology major to Brown University where he is doing graduate research with data from the Magellan space probe. Brian says that Eric really enjoys his work.

Katherine Ecklund is at Wharton getting her M.B.A.

John Leonard is working for Colonial Williamsburg. Brian says he saw John at Grand Illumination.

Kathy Blake works for the Atlantic Council in NOVA and is very busy with the events surrounding the Soviet breakup. Brian says that he thinks that Kathy is still in touch with Mark Kotzer every now and then.

Steve Sacks graduated from George Mason Law School this past spring and passed the Bar. Steve is working in NOVA.

Leigh Tillman is getting her master's — maybe Ph.D. — in English out in Montana and loving life.

Brian also says that anyone who hasn't been back to the Burg recently should go check out the new digs at Paul's. He says it's HUGE!

I got a postcard from Melanie Newfield which was sent from PARIS! Melanie and two friends from her M.B.A. program decided spontaneously to go to Europe for three weeks over Christmas break. Melanie says she visited friends in Austria and France, and also toured parts of Germany, Italy and Switzerland. She said that she was thinking of changing her degree to French and just staying in Paris.

World traveler that she is, Melanie also went to Denver recently and saw Carol Kwiatowski and her husband John and Sue Elliot. Melanie says that they all look well.

Michelle Fay wrote to let us know about the "goings-on" of the Class of '88 members of Lodge 6:

Kathleen Durkin has left her position at the World Trade Center in Washington and is earning a living as a business analyst for Freddie Mac. She went back to school for graduate work in computer programming and has moved into her own place on Connecticut Avenue in D.C.

Amy Englund is a first lieutenant in the Army and was still serving in Saudia Arabia as of September 1991. She was supervising the removal of all the troops and equipment out of the port in Dahrhan, Saudia Arabia. She is now serving at Fort Eustis, Va.

Jackie Verrier received her master's in public health from the University of Texas last summer. She is job hunting in San Diego, Calif., where she and her husband, David Copp, are living (they got married in December).

Michelle is working as a White House/Treasury correspondent for Market News Service (a financial news wire) in Washington, D.C. She's been with MNS for a year since leaving United Press International in Boston (and Washington where she worked since graduation). Michelle has begun a master's degree for international transactions program at George Mason University where she sees quite a few W&M faces. Michelle lives in Vienna.

Julie Frakes Buckley wrote that she and George Buckley '87 were married on Aug. 10, 1991. She and George have bought John Hancock Brooks '67 has been named chair of Northern Illinois University's theatre arts department. Brooks, who will assume his responsibilities in July 1992, is a specialist in costume design and has broad experience in commercial theatre. Previously, he was a faculty member at Loyola University where he taught costume design and history, theatre in Chicago and theatre practice, operations and stage management. He served Loyola as chair of the theatre department from 1981-1986 and as director of the university theatre for 10 years. While at Loyola, Brooks designed nearly 40 productions, including Cabaret, Fiddler on the Roof and The Glass Menagerie. Currently treasurer for the Illinois Theatre Association, he has served as design director for numerous productions at the Victory Gardens Theatre in Chicago, including The Escape Artist and The Whales of August. He holds a master's degree of fine arts in design from Pennsylvania State University and has studied at DePaul University's Goodman School of Drama and the American Academy of Art, both in Chicago.

A graduate of Monroe 3rd, Susan Smith Bateman wrote with exciting news. She and husband Scott are expecting their first BABY in late May or early June! Congratulations! Susan finished up her master's in early childhood education (how appropriate!) in December 1990 and she is currently teaching 4th grade in Norfolk, Va.

Susan also says that Robyn Yustein married Steve Spero on Sept. 28 at the Dulles Marriot in NOVA. Among the W&M bridesmaids were Catherine Policastro Freiling and Shawn Meyers Nabors. Other W&M guests were Monica Taylor, John Holloway, Anne Jansen, Donna Lotz, Sue Wilson, Anne Obenshain Zumbro, Steve Zumbro, Paul Freiling, Alan Nabors, Cathy Ireland (soon to be married herself), Tricia Ritenour Hertz, Bill Hertz, Julie Slade and Randy Lowe Barnett. Susan says that the wedding was gorgeous and the reception was a blast. Everyone danced and partied until the wee hours. Robyn and Steve spent their honeymoon in St. Thomas, and they are now living in Springfield, Va.

Speaking of Monroe 3rd, Susan says that she saw David Dickerson with Laura Cavaleri at Homecoming.

She also says that Joe Monaco is selling insurance in Williamsburg and playing ice hockey in his spare time.

Susan's senior roommate Monica Griffin Scruggs and husband Todd are pursuing post-graduate degrees at U.Va. They stay busy studying and taking care of their Yorkshire terriers.

In keeping with the Monroe Hall theme (1st floor this time), McKim "Mac" Williams wrote that he moved offices. He is now working at Wheat's Newport News office in the Oyster Point Park, so if you need investment services, look him up! (It was great hearing from you!)

Christopher Taylor wrote to fill us in on what's been going on in his neck of the woods. After graduating, he returned to Newport News, Va., for a year. In 1990 he started working for PRC Inc. (formerly Advanced Technology Inc.). Chris says that primarily considered a "beltway bandit" in NOVA, he worked as a financial analyst for the Department of the Navy's Trident submarine program in Crystal City, Va. He also says that the experience makes him appreciate the experience that he received at W&M!

Chris went on to say that living in Fairfax has given him an opportunity to see several Sig Ep brothers and other alumni. On a regular basis he runs into Joe Valentino '87, Dan "Big Dan" Walker '87, Mark "Rhino" Rein, Michael Cremson, Terry "T-Bird" Reiley '89, Terry "Squeaky" Reiley '89, David "Jabba" Braun '87, as well as Rick Crane '89 and Lisa Richardson '90. Rick attends the University of Pittsburgh Medical School, and Lisa works for the Marasco-Newton Group and EPA consulting company.

I was very surprised and very happy to hear from Eric Mendelsohn, another Monroe 3rd resident. Eric gave me news on some other Monroe 3rd folks:

Dan Bilderback and Elizabeth Pierce Bilderback were married on Jan. 4 in Williamsburg at the Wren Chapel. Dan and Beth are both pursuing master's degrees in anthropology at the University of South Carolina. They plan to move to the Richmond area after graduation this spring, since it is midway between his family in Connecticut and hers in South Carolina.

Dave Dickerson, Abe Patterson and Eric were groomsmen at the wedding. Other Kappa Alphas at the wedding included Scott Lunceford, Mark McWilliams '91, Dave Hersh Smith '89, John Curley '89 and Meade Dickerson '93. The reception was held at the Alumni House (the one-time home of KA).

Eric said that Dave Dickerson is making the best possible use of his philosophy major by selling life insurance for Northwestern Mutual Life in Washington, D.C. Scott lives in Athens, Ga., and is part owner of a company that customizes and repairs classic and "classy" cars. And, Eric has returned to the Hartford, Conn., area where he works for CIGNA Corp.'s employee benefits division as an internal operations consultant. His "significant other," Dana Lafer, and he live in a country farmhouse with their two dogs and are very happy.

Skye Hassel is doing fine being unemployed and living with five cats. If anyone is in the Richmond area, Skye says that you are more than welcome to come visit or call!

I got a phone call from Karen Woo a couple of months ago. She is getting married in May to Randy Boggett. Karen is an accountant at Deloitte and Touche in Richmond, and Randy is in his third year at University of Richmond Law School. Congratulations!

Jennifer Lear is living in Arlington, Va., with Bob Wilson until September when she and Todd Cunfer '87 will get married in the Burg. After graduating from school, Jennifer is going to be working for the D.C. firm, Crowell and Moring.

Jennifer says that W&M alums have taken over the neighborhood. John Horn '90 and Michelle Boeker Horn '89 live across the street from her. Barry Ohlson '89 (who's graduating from GWU Law School this spring) is down the street from John Gregory, Katie Wilson, Lisa Appelgate, Tom Didato and Ron Wolfe. Dan Jost '90 is a block away, and Anne Jansen and Rachel Edelstein are close by as well. Anne is getting married in December.

Jennifer also says that Kitty Nguyen and Bill Connolly are living in Hoboken, N.J. Bill works for a New Jersey law firm and Kitty just started as an assistant buyer for Barney's. They are getting married in Wren Chapel in September.

Beth Gallagher is teaching high school English in Baltimore and has some wild classroom stories. She recently had brunch with Lisa Appelgate, Liz Martinez (who's a medical school intern in Baltimore), Jenny Leete, Elaine Eged-Nissen and some other Pi Phi's at Jenny and Elaine's in Baltimore.

Jennifer says that she spoke to Joy Gibbins '87 recently, and Joy is living in Philadelphia and charming the doctors to whom she sells pharmaceuticals.

Jennifer was in Pennsylvania for E.J. Paulik's '87 wedding in June. She says that it was beautiful and E. J. looked gorgeous — though now she goes by Jane Amato. She and her husband, Patrick, live in Short Hills, N.J., and both work for J. P. Morgan in N.Y.C.

Karen Wintermute and Michael Richards '87 and their brand new baby boy were also at E. J.'s wedding. The Richards were living in Baltimore but were headed out to California for the summer for Karen's residency.

Todd and Jennifer ran into Brian Letzkus '87, Marty Cross '87 and Chris Craig '86 at Homecoming. Brian is in D.C. working for First American Bank, Marty is finishing business school and getting married this year, and Chris is living in Milwaukee having just graduated from business school.

Jennifer also saw Leah Haunz in Charlottesville in November. She and Todd will graduate from Darden, U.Va.'s business school in May.

Jennifer and Todd also ran into Carrie Harrison '87 and Jim Brady '87 at Fox Field in the fall. Jim works for Hunton & Williams in Richmond, and Carrie is still in D.C.

Rob Skoff '87 and Chris Farris '89

were both summer associates with me at Crowell this summer. Chris is graduating from W&M Law School and Rob from U.Va.

Kate Fleming '87, W&M's Glenn Close of the '80s, lives in Alexandria and is a successful actress in various D.C. theatres. Jennifer says that she spots her picture in the Post from time to time and they get together periodically to catch up on the theatre crowd.

Jennifer also ran into Tricia Maher in the Safeway earlier last year. She works for Time and assisted in the cover story on date rape.

Steve Abbot '90 and Suzanne Hartley are getting married two hours after Jennifer in Wren Chapel on Sept. 26. Christine Philipp '89 and Jack Calandra '89 are getting married in the Burg in May.

Tom Lewis saw his name in the last issue of the Gazette and decided to write with some news. His work at United Co. is going well. After spending August-November in the coal mines of Southwestern Virginia, he has been working with Scratch Golf Co., one of United's other subsidiaries. Since December he has been working at its course in Plantation, Fla., Jacaranda Golf Club. In March he moved on to the Hilton Head course. Tom says that any W&M alums are invited to call if you are in the area.

Tom says that his girlfriend, Cynthia Mitchell '90, and her family are going to be vacationing in Florida soon. Cynthia finished a teaching/coaching substitute job at her old high school in Toronto, Ontario. After her visit to Florida she's off to Europe for six weeks!

Harry Mehre, after two years of try-outs with the World Champion Washington Redskins, is presently working on his M.B.A. at the University of Georgia. So far he is carrying a 4.0 and scheduled to graduate this June. Tom says that he still doesn't want to get a J-O-B though.

Gary Grocco is living and working in Lancaster, Ohio. He's a sales account manager with Metal Powder Specialties Co. He is dating Dave Wiley's little sister, Ann (Penn State).

Dave Wiley and his wife, Jennifer Volgeneau Wiley '90 are happily married and living and working in the D.C. area — Dave for Anderson and Jennifer for a food company (possibly Carnation?).

John Brosnahan '89 and his wife Nancy Lindblad Brosnahan are also in the D.C. area. Jim works for AT&T and Nancy teaches elementary school.

Don Pearce received his M.B.A. from UNC-Chapel Hill last year and is also now working for AT&T, but in Morristown, N.J.

Tom also had news from the Class of '89: Jonathan Tuttle '89 is finishing his law degree from Harvard and will work in D.C.

Kevin Forrester '89 and his wife, Lynn Dreylinger Forrester '90, work and live in Columbia, S.C.

Kim McDonald '89 is living in D.C. and working for MCI. Tom says that she'll probably be engaged before the summer to "some fella" named John (U.Va. '89).

Arnold Gooch was designated a naval aviator after completing 18 months of flight training with Helicopter Training Squadron-Eight at the Naval Air Station Whiting Field in Milton, Fla.

And now for the infamous "Where in the World Are They?": Has anyone heard from Mark Hargrove, Mark Kotser, Tay Bronaugh or Todd Beach? If so, write and let us know what they (or you) are up to!

As for me, I am still working seven days a week for Manhattan Theatre Club in N.Y.C. The big news is that by the time you read this I'll be an actual resident of Manhattan. After eight months of a two-hour commute from Watertown, Conn., I am definitely ready to begin the big city life. My new address will be in the next issue of the Gazette so come by!

"Southern Quilts: A New View," a 10-week exhibit by 28 artists co-organized by Gail Andrews Trechsel '74, will be on display in the Muscarelle Museum of Art from June 6 through Aug. 16. The exhibition, which began a two-year tour on Aug. 15, 1990, is the first of its kind to showcase the work of contemporary artists in the South who have chosen quilts as their form of expression. Trechsel, acting director of the Birmingham Museum of Art, organized the exhibition with Bets Ramsay, a well-known author and lecturer on the subject of quilts.

That's all for now. Thanks to everyone for all of your notes of support concerning the column. Keep that news coming in!

Eric Mcfarland Gobble and Sarah Elaine Ketchum were married Feb. 15 in Gloucester, Va. Sarah is a vocational rehabilitation specialist at Central Rehabilitation Association in Richmond, and Eric is a training specialist at Southtech Inc. in Tappahannock. The newlyweds currently reside in Mechanicsville after taking a wedding trip to Jamaica.

William Arthur Sisson and Denise Kay Shoemaker celebrated their marriage Dec. 28, 1991. They live in Fairfax and are both employed with the copy products division of Eastman Kodak in Washington, D.C.

The wedding of Julie Palmer '89 and Jeff Kipers took place that same day in Newport News, Va. The couple was married after Jeff, a captain stationed at Fort Eustis, returned from a tour of duty in the Persian Gulf. They will be relocating to Germany in May. Many William and Mary alums were on hand for the occasion, including Carolyn Hayes '89, Joan Palmer '85 and Cheryl Toth. Phi Mu Sorority sisters Gwen Newman Fincham '89, Kristin May '89 and Tasha Norris '91 were also at the wedding. Both Carolyn and Kristin are engaged and will be married this summer.

Tracy Caroline Taylor and David Dean Thorton '91 were also married Dec. 28, 1991, in Atlanta. Tracy graduated from the Lovett School in Atlanta after receiving her degree in government at the College. David and Tracy live in Charlottesville, Va., where he is currently attending the University of Virginia School of Medicine.

Henry Schuldinger is working for the chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors. As a legislative aide, Henry will act as a link between Davis and both his national constituents and the county staff on legislative issues. He will be responsible for covering transportation and environmental issues. Henry will work with fellow W&M alumnus, Christopher Bright '87, who is responsible for budget and education matters.

Birgitta Sandberg, a second-year student at the Dickinson School of Law, has been elected to membership on the Dickinson Journal of International Law, published by the student-run editorial board twice a year to address issues of private and public international law.

Aretta Zitta sent news from the Columbia Biblical Seminary in Columbia, S.C., where she, Aimee Hummer and Jennifer Crawford '91 are studying. Aimee will graduate in June with a T.E.F.L. degree (Teaching English as a Foreign Language). Jennifer is in the Bible Certificate Program and will graduate in June as well. Aretta is working on a Christian education degree with T.E.F.L. certification. They would love to hear from any William and Mary classmates!

Kristin Nahill sent a postcard from Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, where she is teaching business English at an economics university and beginning English at an economics institute. She has also been asked to edit a monthly university journal in English. Kristin says that while the country has taken some getting used to, she is enjoying it and has recently traveled to Vienna.

ZOLLER RECEIVES PROMOTION

Ted Zoller '87 was recently promoted to principal of American Management Systems Inc., a management information consulting firm in Arlington, Va. Zoller received his master's of public administration from the Maxwell School of Syracuse University in 1988. In his role at AMS since then, Zoller has consulted for several federal agencies and currently serves as project manager for a financial systems implementation project for the Environmental Protection Agency. Founded in 1970, AMS has 2,800 employees with offices in 28 cities throughout North America and Europe.

STUDENT NAMED TOP TRIATHLETE

Karen Laslo, a senior chemistry major at William and Mary, has been named the 1991 Tri-Fed Junior Athlete of the Year, a designation that recognizes the top woman amateur triathlete in the country in her age group. Laslo, who participates in two NCAA Division I sports at William and Mary—swimming and cross-country—added biking, the third component of the triathlon, to her training on weekends. Laslo finished first in two triathlons and third in another in her age group in 1991. A native of Kennet Square, Pa., she plans to pursue a master's degree in biomedical research after graduation.
