Bruce and Grimsley to Receive Society's Highest Honor

By Virginia Carter Collins '77

Two former presidents of the Society of the Alumni whose contributions to William and Mary are matched by outstanding professional achievements will be honored at Homecoming with the highest award that the Society can bestow. Jean Canoles Bruce '49 of Williamsburg and J. Edward Grimsley '51 of Richmond will become the 208th and 209th recipients of the Alumni Medallion.

They will be honored at the Society's Annual Awards Dinner and Dance on Friday, Oct. 16.

Jean Bruce's long association with William and Mary is not only a history of personal involvement and commitment, but also a story of family and generational ties. "William and Mary has been a very important part of so many lives in our family," reflects Bruce. "It has the capacity to engage really deep affection in me."

In addition to other family members, Jean Bruce's husband, Jack '48, graduated from the College after a distinguished football career. Their two children and son-in-law are also alumni. John is a member of the Class of 1973, and Linda, married to Noah Palmer '75, graduated in 1977.

Bruce unequivocally places family at the top of priorities in her life, but her list of achievements points to a woman who has successfully blended and balanced family, career, volunteer and civic activities.

Since 1989 she has served as executive director of the Planning Council, a Norfolk-based human services agency she joined on a part-time basis in 1968 when her children were young. Prior to that she worked as an advertising executive and for one year taught high school English.

As administrative head of the Planning Council, Bruce oversees a 50-year-old organization that has grown to nearly 100 employees. Dedicated to maintaining and advancing the social and health services of the greater Norfolk area, the council identifies and assesses needs, then looks for solutions and funding to meet those needs.

Bruce proudly recounts some of the council's numerous success stories. Among them are establishing the Eastern Virginia Medical Authority, initiating the 911 Emergency Number for the area, and operating the Information Center of Hampton Roads. The council's new Homeless Prevention Program, begun in 1991 under Bruce's direction, has successfully provided critical support to families who are at risk of becoming homeless.

Although Bruce says hers has been an "unplanned life" with a series of "happy coincidences" along the way, it can't be an accident that she has been asked to provide leadership in so many capacities.

A frequent participant in William and Mary activities, she served two terms on the Society's Board of Directors and was president from 1976-78. In 1984 she became a trustee emerita of the Endowment Association, and since last year has served on the board of directors of the Friends of Earl Gregg Swem Library. She and her husband generously support the College financially and have been members of the President's Council since 1976.

Numerous community organizations have benefited from her leadership. To name just a few, she recently finished serving on the Norfolk School Board as vice chair, was chair of the State Board of Social Services, and continues to chair the State Council on Teen Pregnancy Prevention. She also has chaired the board of WHRO-TV, Norfolk's public TV station, and was commissioner of the Norfolk Planning Commission as well as president of the board of the Florence Crittenton Home.

Bruce has been honored as one of the past 22 years as editor of the Times-Dispatch editorial page. Although he served as William and Mary's press secretary for a year after graduation, he soon was drawn back to his true penchant, writing and reporting.

After serving in World War II, Grimsley entered William and Mary through the Saint Helena's extension program set up in Norfolk to serve the large number of veterans who wanted to get a college education. He later transferred to the William and Mary campus.

Grimsley speaks ardently of his life's work and activities at William and Mary, both as a student and alumni leader. "I have always viewed life as a learning experience. In this job you have to have a very broad view of

on the Board of Visitors since 1990. As part of his duties, he served on the search committee to elect a new president, a process that resulted in the election of Timothy J. Sullivan '66. That experience, says Grimsley, was one of the most rewarding he has ever had. "Selecting a new president is the most important decision the Board of Visitors can make."

Grimsley served on the Society's Board of Directors from 1984 until 1990 and was president from 1987 to 1989. During that time he represented the Society on the Tercentenary Observances Commission. He currently serves on the corporate gifts committee of the Campaign for the Fourth Century. In recognition of his generous financial support of the College, he is a member of the President's Council. He also belongs to the Order of the White Jacket and has served as a panelist for Career Exploration Day programs.

He and his wife, Ann, are William and Mary parents as well. Two of their three children are graduates—Martha Grimsley Blumenthal '75 and Anna Grimsley Ashworth '86.

Grimsley's work has received numerous awards, and his professional achievements include serving on the Pulitzer Prize Nominating Jury. He writes a syndicated column and regularly appears on Richmond-area TV news programs. He is a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the National Conference of Editorial Writers and the Society of Professional Journalists.

Bruce and Grimsley are being honored during a special year for the Society, its 150th anniversary, and just one year shy of the College's 300th. If they could present the Society and College with gifts on these happy occasions, what would they choose?

Grimsley answers, "I would give the Society the ability to strengthen ties between alumni and the College, to expand to embrace more alumni, and to convince more alumni of the importance of maintaining contact with the College."

"As for the College," continues Grimsley, "I would give it the ability to rise above trivial concerns that are fads—political correctness, for example. I would want William and Mary not ever to lose sight of its fundamental goal to develop minds to the fullest capacity possible."

Jean Bruce would give the Society "the capacity to reach every single living alumnus and develop their sense of commitment to the College. As special as our student memories are, I would like for all alumni to develop a relationship with William and Mary based on the here and now."

"For the College," says Bruce, "I would wish it to be freed of all financial concerns so it could devote itself wholeheartedly to its educational mission. I would like to see it continue to fulfill its traditional role of excellence in the liberal arts but also become first rate in the sciences."

"The transference of ethical values is also an important part of William and Mary," she adds. "I love the fact that it is such an ancient college. In a very changing world, William and Mary can impart the lasting values of integrity, loyalty, honesty and faithfulness."

Former Society of the Alumni presidents Jean Canoles Bruce '49 and J. Edward Grimsley '51 will receive Alumni Medallions this year at Homecoming.

Top Ten Professional Women in Tidewater, is an honorary member of the Junior League of Norfolk/Virginia Beach and was the first recipient of the State Department for Children's Child Advocate Award.

Like Jean Bruce, Ed Grimsley's achievements are difficult to summarize in a few words. Grimsley's influence is found daily on the editorial pages of one of the country's largest newspapers.

This year Grimsley was promoted to chair of the editorial board of the expanded Richmond Times-Dispatch. He has been on the newspaper's staff since 1953, serving for the life. I've always enjoyed the process of sharing and exchanging ideas. One of the things I enjoyed the most as a student was being an active debater and member of the Debate Council."

Although Grimsley has been a low-key participant in civic and community activities to avoid any potential conflict of interest with his job, he has given numerous hours to the College and is a frequent speaker to various organizations. For a number of years he also served as an adjunct faculty member at Virginia Commonwealth University.

Presidential Inauguration Scheduled for Homecoming

Alumni and friends are invited to be part of William and Mary history when Timothy J. Sullivan '66 is formally installed as the 25th president of William and Mary during Homecoming weekend. The inauguration ceremony will take place Friday, Oct. 16, at 10:30 a.m. in the Wren Courtyard. A reception will follow on the lawn in front of the Wren Building. In the event of rain, the ceremony will be held in William and Mary Hall.

In addition to the president's inaugural address, Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder will speak, and greetings will be delivered on behalf of alumni, students and faculty. Representatives of more than 150 educational institutions and associations, both national and international, have been invited to participate in the historic event.

All alumni who plan to attend the inauguration are requested to register on the Homecoming registration form found in this issue of the Alumni Gazette.

RINGING FAR AND NEAR

Yes, Virginia, your vote can make a difference (especially in 1992)

By Barry Adams

Question: Shall Chapter 896, Acts of the General Assembly of 1992, authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds of the Commonwealth of Virginia in the maximum amount of $472,406,000 pursuant to Article X, Section 9(b) of the Constitution of Virginia for capital projects for EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS take effect?

YES NO

November 3, 1992. A presidential election year. Some reporters refer to it as a "presidential sweepstakes." Networks taut their coverage with banners that emphasize the monumental nature of Decision '92.

Millions of dollars are about to be spent on spin research (and recovery), media blitzes, daily polls and last minute, voting day exit interviews. By the time Election Day arrives it may be little wonder why many of those lining up in the polling places appear a little nonchalant with the prospects ahead.

Buried beneath all the rallies, panels of political writers and advertising campaigns so endemic to a national election (is epidemic the word I was reaching for here?) are state issues often overlooked because they lack the glamour for the 60-second newscast or conform to the standards for potential controversy which provide play on shows like Larry King Live or Good Morning America. State issues usually affect (and often more dramatically) individuals and the entire citizenry of a state. Passage or defeat does not simply imply consequences — it mandates them.

So it is with Virginia's 1992 ballot issues — which propose that voters consider the issuance of General Obligation bonds. If passed, the bond issues would be only the third in the Commonwealth's modern history.

November Bond Issue Will Benefit William and Mary

By Peggy Shaw Beatty

November 3, 1992, will be a significant date in the history of public higher education in Virginia. On that day, voters will be asked to make a critical decision for Virginia's future: whether to approve a bond issue designed to finance $472 million worth of construction and renovation projects on campuses across the Commonwealth.

The General Obligation Bond Issue was approved by the General Assembly during its 1992 session as a way of providing much-needed capital improvement money during a recession that has deprived the state of its ability to develop facilities through conventional means. The total $600-million proposed bond package represents investments in three important sources of long-term economic growth and quality of life in Virginia: education ($472 million), mental health ($45 million) and parks and recreation ($95 million).

The bonds would be issued at a fixed interest rate (similar to a homeowner's mortgage), at a time when lending rates are favorable. Taxes would not have to be raised to pay for the bonds since debt service would be paid from general state revenues.

The $472 million designated for education would be used on capital projects, such as laboratories, libraries and classrooms, at Virginia's colleges and universities.

What is at stake at William and Mary, according to President Timothy J. Sullivan '66, is $25 million in construction projects that will affect the quality of campus life for many years to come. (The bond issue also includes $2.3 million for renovations at Richard Bland College.)

Key projects are:

- A $6.1 million undergraduate physical sciences building to be constructed adjacent to the Sunken Garden. The building, named Tercentenary Hall in honor of the College's 300th anniversary, would be constructed next to Washington Hall.
 - An $8.5 million toxicology/pathobiology research facility at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science.
 - A $5.3 million renovation and modernization of James Blair Hall.
- Other projects on William and Mary's list include a $2.9 million facilities management complex designed to centralize physical plant functions, and a $2.8 million upgrade of obsolete utility systems.

"This money will allow William and Mary to receive support for long overdue capital projects," said Sullivan. "Precious little time remains to build, renovate and equip the facilities we will need to provide the education on which our students' futures depend.

"We need to ask ourselves: 'Are our children going to have the same opportunity that we had to attend a first-class college or university in their home state?'"

"Now is the perfect time to make our generation's investment in the kind of Virginia we want for our children and grandchildren."

Virginia's colleges and universities have made deep cuts in operating budgets over the last two years, and have postponed millions of dollars worth of planned capital projects. One result is that classrooms, labs and libraries are filled to capacity today.

According to David J. Lutzer, dean of arts and sciences at William and Mary, adding the new science building, Tercentenary Hall, is

One of the three proposed bond issues calls for $472 million to be invested in educational institutions — which means all of the state's colleges and universities, including the community colleges.

William and Mary alumni and friends have every reason to support this particular bond issue and should consider the positive implications associated with passage of all three. If approved, nearly $28 million will become available toward sorely needed facilities, repairs and renovations on campus and at both the Virginia Institute of Marine Science (VIMS) and Richard Bland College.

As the article below describes, these are projects vitally important to the College. Construction of an undergraduate physical sciences building and toxicology/pathology facility on the VIMS campus are critically important elements in the future of the College but so are the proposed renovations to James Blair Hall and to Commerce Hall and the chemistry building at Richard Bland College. Equally as essential is the strengthening of the infrastructure. Modernization of the College's aging utilities, drainage and sewer systems are overdue.

There are approximately 23,000 William and Mary alumni living in Virginia. Like graduates of other public educational institutions, they are — you are — in the very best position to advocate and support the passage of this bond issue.

This bond issue (as do the others) holds forth the creation of new jobs and will add significant vitality to the state's portfolio for attracting additional investment from corporations and people. Without question it offers some essential repairs and development of one of the nation's most effective higher education systems.

Beyond the mere implications so available to the voter by merely reading the proposed bond issue is the dream — our dream — that the legacy of William and Mary that we inherited will be protected, preserved and strengthened for those who follow.

Yes, Virginia, there is a presidential race in 1992. Beyond the "sweepstakes," however, is a cry for basic educational building blocks within the Commonwealth. It is within the foundation of education that our future depends.

particularly important to William and Mary's future.

"Interest in studying science among our undergraduates has increased substantially over the last five years, and we need more teaching space if students are to get the scientific education that they need," Lutzer said. "Tercentenary Hall will create new space for geology and computer science, thereby relieving pressure on mathematics, physics and chemistry.

"Our doctoral programs in these sciences also need space to grow," he added. "They are the university's most immediate avenues for helping to bring about the growth of high-tech industry in our region."

Dennis Taylor, dean and director of the Virginia Institute of Marine Science/School of Marine Science, also emphasized the importance of new facilities to the College and the state.

"Immunology, marine/environmental toxicology, and chemistry are central to the many resource management issues facing the Commonwealth today and in the future," Taylor said.

"Those new facilities will afford opportunities to pursue research at the cutting edge, allowing us to be proactive and anticipatory, rather than reactive to the needs of society in this area."

Virginians have approved the issuance of General Obligation Bonds for capital projects twice before, both during Gov. Mills Godwin's terms in office. The 1968 bonds were paid off in full in 1985 and the 1978 bonds will be paid by 1997.

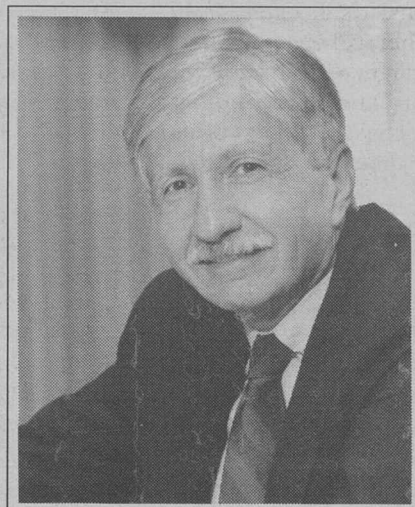

In fact, Virginia's excellent bond history makes the Commonwealth one of only five states with a Triple-A bond rating. That rating would not be jeopardized by the issuance of these bonds.

With interest rates at a two-decade low, General Obligation Bonds are an efficient and cost-effective method of paying for campus facilities, according to Gordon Davies, director of the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia. (Proceeds from the bonds will be used entirely for specified capital improvements; none of the proceeds can be used for operating expenditures of state government.)

The bond issue could create an estimated 3,600 jobs in the state.

"Virginia's higher-education system has long been an asset to the state's business climate, but without the bond issue to pay for critically needed capital improvements, it could become a detriment to economic growth," Davies said.

"The bonds are essential if Virginia's nationally respected higher education system is to maintain the level of quality that Virginians expect, and meet the growing needs of the future. These are projects that cannot be deferred any longer without fundamental damage to the higher-education system of which Virginians have long been proud."

President Sullivan: "Perfect time to invest in our children."

William And Mary Alumni: This is Your Book

By Sara Piccini

I could not shut the door of my room for the last time without a sigh of regret ... A window to the south opened into a row of most elegant elm trees whose shade and beauty always called forth the most pleasurable ideas. On the east it opened to the College's yard, a more beautiful view it could not well present.

That moving passage was written by one particular alumnus of William and Mary—Powhatan Robertson—in 1816, but similar sentiments have been expressed by alumni in 1716 and 1916, and no doubt will be expressed in 2016 as well.

William and Mary exists in part as the collective memories of all its alumni. It was this thought that gave birth to an exciting idea: to create a book that would express the essence of William and Mary through alumni memories.

Earlier this year, the Society of the Alumni made a commitment to publish such a book. What better time than for the celebration of William and Mary's 300th anniversary?

Traditions, Myths and Memories: Celebrating the Tercentenary of the College of William and Mary in Virginia has surpassed even the expectations of those who conceived it. The book is beautiful to look at and heartwarming to read. The result of many months of hard work by many talented people, Traditions, Myths and Memories is full of breathtaking photographs, fascinating facts and entertaining anecdotes.

Most important, the book is full of memories. The reminiscences of 49 William and Mary alumni are included in Traditions, Myths and Memories, spanning the decades from the 1920s, just before the Rockefeller restoration and just after coeducation, to the 1980s, when the College began to look toward its fourth century.

"Traditions, Myths and Memories has a personal quality that sets it apart from most other college 'picture books,'" says Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society. "The book is not just for alumni—it's by alumni. And that makes it very distinctive."

TRADITIONS AND MYTHS

Traditions, Myths and Memories is divided into two parts. The first half of the book describes the many traditions and myths that have accumulated during the College's 300 years of history. Traditions, as the book's introduction explains, "are doctrines and customs of strong historic significance transmitted from generation to generation," according to the introduction. Here's just a small sampling of traditions described in the book: James Blair's 50-year reign as William and Mary's first president (how many alumni know that students barred Blair from the main building in a 1702 Christmas prank?); Homecoming parades; the origin of the Jefferson Prospect; the William and Mary Choir's international goodwill tours; Althea Hunt's theater legacy; the Botetourt statue; Mr. Cary's Field; the establishment of OWJ.

"Myths ... may or may not be true but often are remembered," the book's introduction states. Was the Spotswood Cannon really fired at the President's House? Are President Tyler's priorities all true? Did fraternity pranksters in the 1960s open the crypts beneath the Wren Building? And are the legends of Crim Dell bridge merely myths—or reality? That's the fun part of the myths described in the book: you're never really sure whether they're true or just the product of past students' lively imaginations.

The book's recounting of traditions and myths brings alive the William and Mary of yesterday. The William and Mary of today is brought alive through the full-color, full-page, stunning photographs that highlight the first half of the book. There are panoramic photographs of Tribe football players winning at Cary Field, marine scientists at work on the Chesapeake Bay, students stepping into the light and a new world at Commencement.

Among the photographs included in Traditions, Myths and Memories is a one-of-a-kind shot taken especially for the book. The photo (which is reproduced in black and white on the cover of this Gazette) records the first time that a current president of William and Mary—Timothy J. Sullivan '66—and smiles, spur memories and create a lump in the throat for anyone who reads through them.

The memories, which were gathered by Virginia Carter Collins '77, have been organized by decade, revealing both changes and continuities in the life of the College. In the 1920s, women students couldn't walk on the men's side of campus, Presidents Harding and Coolidge came to campus to receive Traditions, Myths and Memories is complemented by collages of photographs from the different eras: athletic teams from earlier times (how did women move in these skirts?); men in uniform; the memorial service for slain President John F. Kennedy. Many of these photographs were donated by alumni; others were culled from the archives of Swem Library.

THE WORK OF MANY HANDS

Traditions, Myths and Memories was made possible through the work of a large group of committed people associated with the College. While it is impossible to name all of those who had a hand in the project, the efforts of several people deserve special acknowledgement. Barry Adams provided crucial support for the project from beginning to end. Wilford Kale '66 wrote the narrative; Greta Matus conceived and carried out the design; Jim Gleason contributed to the primary photography. Virginia Carter Collins '77, director of alumni communications, assisted in the editing. And Dean Olson coordinated every aspect of production, large and small.

All of those alumni who contributed their unique memories played the most important role of all in making Traditions, Myths and Memories a reality. Their remembrances prove conclusively that once students enter William and Mary, they never really leave. They are a part of the College forever.

As Peter Neufeld '58 wrote of his freshman experience on Monroe Third, "Large portions of my soul and heart remain in that dim hallway where we are all still eighteen to this day."

three past presidents—Davis Y. Paschall '32, Thomas A. Graves Jr. and Paul R. Verkuil '61—have come together in one place. Dean Olson, director of publications at the College, and writer Wilford Kale '66 came up with the idea for the photograph. He enlisted the aid of Mary Anderson, secretary to three of the presidents, in making it happen.

"Paul Verkuil came all the way up from Florida, and Tom Graves flew down from Delaware just for the occasion," Olson says. "And the campus police went over and nabbed Dr. Paschall at his home in Williamsburg," Olson adds with a laugh. (Olson is the former assistant to Dr. Paschall.) The four men spent a highly enjoyable afternoon talking while photographer Tony Sylvestro recorded the historic moment.

MEMORIES

Dr. Earl Gregg Swem moved so quietly in the library that you didn't know he was there until he tapped your shoulder and whispered, "This is a library, not a matrimonial stage."

"Come to my office at your: a. convenience; b. earliest convenience; c. earliest possible convenience. Dean J. Wilfred Lambert." Wow! What had I done wrong now?

The 1960s were scary times in many ways ... I remember the hush of a hundred young men surrounding the only television set in the Campus Center as we listened for our destiny in the form of numbers in a draft lottery.

Four years of good luck and hard times, academic pressure and Mom's washing machine, old knowledge and young ideas, romance, breaking up, cartoons and world peace, laughter and tears, best friend, bestest friends and falling in love.

These small pieces of memories are just snippets from the many alumni memories contained in the second half of Traditions, Myths and Memories. The reminiscences bring honorary degrees, and two of the Wise Men were still alive. In the 1940s, the male students went away to war; some didn't return. The tennis team brought home national championships in 1947 and 1948, and The Common Glory made its debut. In the 1970s, streaking made a quick appearance, William and Mary Hall was opened, the College hosted the 1976 presidential debate, and The Common Glory died.

Throughout all the changes, students continued to fear, respect and grow to love William and Mary's outstanding faculty members; to meet, court and marry their one and only; to learn, have fun and grow up.

Students Help Push W&M Annual Fund to Record

By Peggy Shaw Beatty

When Karen Coltrane '87 needed help with the College's Annual Fund drive last year, she tapped into a talented resource on campus: William and Mary students.

Coltrane, director of the Annual Fund, encouraged students to make telephone calls to potential donors. The result was one of the most successful Annual Fund campaigns in College history.

"We're thrilled that we made this big jump in one year," said Coltrane. "The students really reached out. We believe people appreciated the personal contact and the students loved doing it."

The William and Mary Annual Fund, which is the largest source of unrestricted operating funds available to the College, had a goal of $1,350,000 for the year ending June 30, 1992. Alumni, parents, friends and corporations, however, gave some $1,411,000.

That figure represents an 18 percent increase in parent and alumni donations, and a 26 percent increase in the total number of donors from the previous year — the largest one-year participation increase in the last 10 years.

Gifts to the Annual Fund benefit the College in many ways, Coltrane said. First, unrestricted gifts to the Annual Fund provide flexible money that can be used for

An Invitation to Become a Charter Member of the

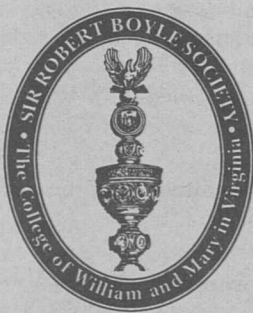

SIR ROBERT BOYLE SOCIETY

For three centuries—beginning with the first gift from the estate of Sir Robert Boyle—the generous bequests of alumni and friends of William and Mary have sustained and enriched the life of the College. To honor those individuals who have made provisions for the College in their estate plans, William and Mary established a new group: the Sir Robert Boyle Society.

Any individual who has made a future provision for the College in his or her estate plans is eligible to become a member of the society. Such provisions may be in the form of bequests, trusts, annuities, life insurance or other means. Since the society was formed three months ago, 232 alumni and friends have already become charter members and received their Sir Robert Boyle Society pins.

Charter membership in the Sir Robert Boyle Society will be available from June 1992 to July 1993. All members will receive a special recognition pin engraved with the emblem of the Sir Robert Boyle Society. who have been able to attend William and Mary because of this unrestricted fund."

The Annual Fund is also used when College administrators must augment salaries to attract or retain the best faculty members. And gifts to the Annual Fund act as catalysts for larger gifts, since many corporations and foundations consider the percentage of alumni giving when determining their own levels of support for William and Mary.

This year (July 1, 1992 to June 30, 1993), the Annual Fund's unrestricted dollar goal is $1,500,000. Coltrane is hoping that 11,000 alumni will participate, about 2,000 more than last year.

To reach that goal, she envisions more personal communication with alumni and parents. Peter '66 and Judy Poarch Nance '69, for example, who are national alumni chairs for the William and Mary Annual Fund, have reinstated an Alumni Class Agent Program.

"The Nances feel strongly that classmate-to-classmate conversations and contact are important in explaining the case for supporting the College," said Coltrane. "They are very committed to having at least one class agent for each class by the end of 1992."

Coltrane is also getting noteworthy help from the Class of 1958, whose 35th reunion next year coincides with the College's 300th anniversary. The class, under the direction of chair Tom Lightner of Hawaii, is soliciting gifts from all classmates as a special reunion present to the College.

"President Sullivan is in favor of strengthening the tradition of annual giving at the College," Coltrane said. "The Class of 1958 is hoping to provide the funds to help the College today while establishing a tradition of 35th reunion giving to the Annual Fund that will benefit the College into perpetuity." The class's achievement will be announced and celebrated at Homecoming 1993.

Coltrane and her staff have also created the William and Mary Annual Fund's Fourth Century Club. Membership will be extended to those who have made gifts of $1,000 or more to the William and Mary Annual Fund. Members of the Young Guard (graduates from the last five years), however, will be afforded memberships with gifts of $250 or more, as will graduates within the last six to 10 years who gave $500 or more.

"We want to recognize people who are giving significantly to the Annual Fund," Coltrane explained. "Also, we want to recognize and encourage our younger alumni for the contributions they are making."

Increased participation in Annual Fund giving has come at a particularly pressing time in William and Mary's history: The cost of operating the College has increased by 41

Increased participation in Annual Fund giving has come at a particularly pressing time in William and Mary's history: The cost of operating the College has increased by 41 percent since 1987 while state appropriations have risen only 27 percent.

percent since 1987 while state appropriations have risen only 27 percent.

"Unrestricted gifts to the Annual Fund provide William and Mary with the flexibility needed to make up budget shortfalls and fund programs that have no other revenue sources," Coltrane said. "Alumni support has become increasingly important."

Gifts presented to the College for all purposes from July 1, 1986, to June 30, 1993, are counted as gifts to the Campaign for the Fourth Century. The Annual Fund is one important component of the overall Campaign.

It is important to note the difference, however, between gifts to the Annual Fund and gifts to endowments, which are also part of the Campaign for the Fourth Century. Endowments are invested, with the interest used for specified purposes. Gifts to the Annual Fund are specifically used for current needs.

Calling All Band W&M Alumni

William and Mary Band Alumni, we need you! Director of Bands Laura Rexroth is putting out a call for information from all William and Mary Band alumni.

In preparation for the William and Mary Band Reunion during Homecoming 1993 (see June Alumni Gazette), Rexroth would like to hear from as many band alumni as possible. "We're looking for pictures, programs, information about all the bands—marching, concert, jazz, pep—information about early conductors, favorite stories and reminiscences, anything that previous members think is important," says Rexroth.

"There's not a lot of information about the bands at William and Mary in the College archives, and we'd like to put together a special package for the Tercentenary. In addition, 1994 will mark the 65th anniversary of the founding of the William and Mary Bands. We'll be using pictures and historical information all that year in programs, press and we hope, a commemorative booklet."

If you are a William and Mary Band alumnus and have information about the history of the bands, please write or call: Laura Rexroth, Director of Bands, Music Department, P.O. Box 8795, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23187-8795; 804/221-1086.

Library Plans Reunion For '93

As part of its celebration of the College's Tercentenary, Swem Library is compiling a list of the names and addresses of all alumni who have worked in any of the campus libraries during their student days, as well as alumni who majored in library science in the 1930s and 1940s. A special event for these alumni will be held during Homecoming 1993. Please write: Nancy H. Marshall, University Librarian, Swem Library, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185 (Telephone: 804/221-3055; Fax: 804/221-3088).

Sweethearts Weekend 1993 Coincides With Charter Day Week

The second annual William and Mary Sweethearts Weekend will be held Feb. 12-15, 1993, in conjunction with the College's Tercentenary Charter Day activities. Alumni couples participating in the weekend will be housed in their choice of Colonial Williamsburg hotels. Weekend activities include the Saturday morning Charter Day Convocation and a Valentine's Day Brunch on Sunday.

The weekend provides the opportunity for alumni couples to return to Williamsburg for a "get-away weekend" where their courtship began and to participate in some of the special activities celebrating the College's 300th anniversary.

A brochure and registration form will be sent to all "Sweetheart Couples" in November. For more information about Sweethearts Weekend call 804/221-1174 or write Sweethearts Weekend, Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100.

Five William and Mary Professors Named Alumni Fellows

The Society of the Alumni has selected five William and Mary faculty members as this year's Alumni Fellows: Francie Cate-Arries, associate professor of Spanish; Clayton Clemens '80, associate professor of government; William DeFotis, associate professor of music; Neal Devins, associate professor of law and lecturer in government; and David M. Nicol, associate professor of computer science.

The fellowships are awarded annually to younger members of the College faculty who have demonstrated outstanding achievement in their academic fields. The award winners will be honored at the annual Alumni Fellows Dinner, to be held Sept. 10 in conjunction with the Society's Board of Directors meeting.

Professor Cate-Arries received her bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Georgia, and her doctorate from the University of Wisconsin. She joined the William and Mary faculty in 1986.

She has taught a number of Spanish language and literature courses, as well as a course in women's studies. Her scholarly research, for which she has been awarded several research grants, is currently focused on the writings of surrealist painter Salvador Dali. Cate-Arries has served as a freshman adviser, an adviser to the Hispanic house and a director of senior honors thesis students in Spanish.

Professor Clemens has taught courses on European political systems, U.S. foreign policy, arms control and international relations. He is the author of Reluctant Realists: West Germany's CDU/CSU and Ostpolitik, published by Duke University Press in 1989.

Clemens is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of William and Mary, and received his M.A. and Ph.D. from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. During the 1990-91 academic year, he served as a Council on Foreign Relations International Affairs Fellow at the United States Embassy in Bonn, Germany.

Professor DeFotis received his bachelor's and master's degrees in music composition from the University of Illinois, and his doctorate in orchestral conducting from the University of Iowa. In 1977, he was awarded a Fulbright Commission Grant to study composition with Wolf Rosenberg in Munich, Germany.

DeFotis' compositions — instrumental, vocal and electronic — have been performed throughout the United States and in Europe, and a number of recordings have been made of his works. His orchestration of J.S. Bach's Prelude and Fugue in C-Sharp Minor was premiered in January 1992 by the Cincinnati Philharmonic. DeFotis joined the William and Mary faculty in 1986, and teaches courses in composition and music theory.

Professor Devins serves as a consultant to the American Bar Association's Central and Eastern European Law Initiative and as a research fellow at the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the College. Prior to joining the William and Mary faculty, he served as assistant general counsel of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Devins is the author of several books, including Abortion Politics: The Role of Elected Government in Shaping Constitutional Values to be published by Johns Hopkins University

DeFotis

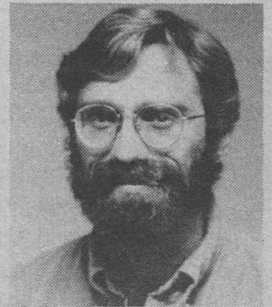

Devins

Press. His many articles on constitutional law, civil rights and education topics have been published in prominent legal publications: his op-ed pieces have appeared in The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post and the Christian Science Monitor. Devins received his A.B. from Georgetown University and his J.D. from Vanderbilt Law School.

Professor Nicol is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Carleton College, and received his master's and doctoral degrees in computer science from the University of Virginia. His research interests include parallel processing, performance analysis, parallel simulation, and static and dynamic mapping algorithms. He has written many articles on his work and has been awarded numerous research grants from the National Science Foundation, NASA and other agencies.

In addition to his scholarly duties, Nicol serves as a consultant to NASA Langley Research Center, AT&T Bell Labs and IBM Research. He is the associate editor of two journals on computing.

Society Says Farewell to Kellam, Promotes Frank

After 13 years of dedicated service to the Society of the Alumni, Ben F. Kellam III '78 left his post as director of administration and records on July 31. Kellam has begun a new career as president and director of software services for Wright, Kellam, Phillips and Associates Inc., a firm specializing in office automation analysis, computer sales, service and software needs assessment.

Kellam joined the Society in 1979, just one year after graduating from William and Mary with a degree in English. Beginning as director of merchandising and manager of the Alumni House, he moved two years later to the alumni records area. Over the years, most of his talents were focused on managing the complex tasks of automating and maintaining the biographical records of William and Mary's nearly 70,000 living and deceased alumni. In 1989 his duties were broadened to encompass personnel, budget and office administration.

A self-taught computer wiz, Kellam became the Society's internal expert on computers and office automation. Through his efforts, the Society acquired in 1981 one of the first personal computers in use by an administrative office on campus.

Kellam

Kellam was an integral part of the Society's steady progress in moving from a totally manual record-keeping system to a computerized one today that offers advanced, state-of-the-art capabilities.

Kellam has been a familiar face to many alumni at such events as Homecoming, Olde Guard Day and home football games. Although he jokes that he won't miss the all-nighters pulled in preparation for Homecoming, he does look forward to participating in Society activities as an alumnus.

In reflecting on his long career as part of William and Mary's alumni administration staff, Kellam said, "The Society has strengthened my commitment to my alma mater and afforded me with unique insights into its operation and institutional mission. William and Mary and the Society have given so much to me during the past 18 years—a degree, employment, and professional development opportunities."

"Many of the technological advances, services and capabilities enjoyed by the Society today are a result of Ben's resolve and extensive abilities in adjusting, adapting and sometimes creating computer support systems," noted Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society. "Needless to say, Ben Kellam has left an indelible mark on the Society and will be greatly missed by everyone on staff and the many alumni whom he knows personally."

Jessica Frank, who joined Kellam's staff in 1991 as assistant director of alumni records and research, has been promoted to director of alumni records and information systems. A University of Iowa graduate with both bachelor's and master's degrees in English, she is an experienced systems programmer/analyst. For four years she served as supervisor of computer operations for the National Conference of Bar Examiners in Chicago.

Society to Offer Alumni and Friends Special Tours to Japan and England in 1993

Although the 1993 calendar is already full of events and activities celebrating the College of William and Mary's 300th year, the Society of the Alumni is inviting everyone to consider visiting two distinctive island nations, Japan and England, to observe the special year.

In January 1993, the Society will host a special tour to Japan for alumni, families, parents and friends in conjunction with the William and Mary football team's participation in the Epson-Ivy Bowl in Tokyo. To be played on Jan. 9, 1993, the Tribe will be the first American squad to face the national championship team of Japan — Nippon University. In 1989, the Tribe defeated a Japanese all-star squad 73-3 during the first Epson-Ivy Bowl.

The Society's tour to Japan for the 1993 game, to be played in the Tokyo Dome, will depart Jan. 3 (one day prior to the team departure) and return Jan. 10. Special optional four-day/three-night extension trips to Hong Kong will be offered.

While the team is practicing, those participating on the tour will visit the ancient capitals of Kyoto and Nara, Hakone and Kamakura — traveling to some locations on the world-famous 120-mile-per-hour "bullet-train."

Other features will include a Tokyo city tour, attendance at the opening banquet and a special reception for President and Mrs. Timothy Sullivan hosted by the Society's Japan Alumni Club. All participants also will be provided game tickets and transportation to and from the game.

A complete itinerary and reservation form for the tour to Japan will be available in August.

In May 1993 the Society will sponsor a travel program to England with President and Mrs. Timothy Sullivan expected to join part of this special Tercentenary Tour.

Leaving on May 27 from Charlotte, N.C., and returning June 5, the Tercentenary Tour to England includes eight nights in the Berners Park Plaza Hotel, a continental breakfast daily, a welcome reception and dinner, two full days of touring in London, a one-day trip to Oxford and a day trip to Windsor and Hampton Court.

Japan

The William and Mary football team will play in the Epson-Ivy Bowl in Tokyo on Jan. 9, 1993.

A special feature of this Tercentenary Tour to England will be a reception and dinner at Drapers' Hall, hosted by the Society's United Kingdom Alumni Club and the Drapers' Company in celebration of the College's 300th Birthday. A special performance by the William and Mary Choir (which will be on a European Tour) is on tap for the dinner.

In addition to permitting participants considerable free time to explore London, this tour includes cultural lectures focusing on William and Mary and the architecture of Sir Christopher Wren.

Complete details of the tour will be available in September.

If you want to make sure you receive the complete information on either or both of these special tours indicate your interest and return the travel form found on page 11 of this Gazette. An advance request and reservation list will be compiled in August since both are expected to be popular destinations for alumni and friends in 1993.

Bob Foth Wins Olympic Silver Medal

By Bob Jeffrey '74

Persistence paid off for Bob Foth '80. One of the premiere shooters in the world for the past decade, the former William and Mary math major and riflery coach won an Olympic silver medal in the three-position rifle event in Barcelona on July 31.

"I am really glad to have a medal. I was really prepared to do it," he said.

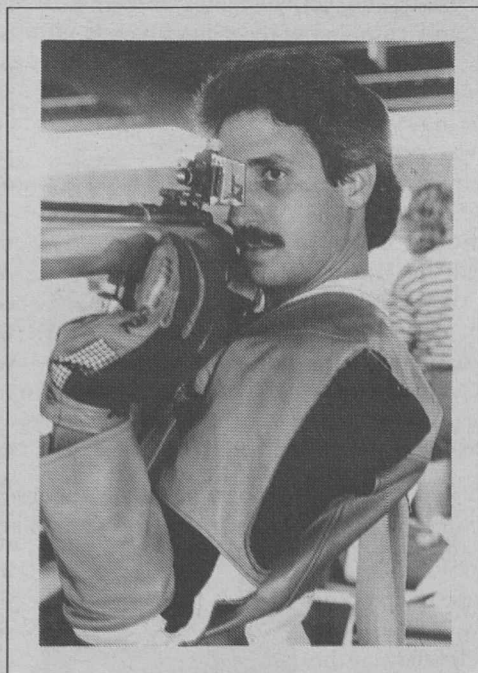

Foth went into the final phase of the competition tied for the lead with his rival, Gratchia Petikian of the Unified Team. Ultimately Petikian edged out Foth, winning by a bare .8 out of a possible 1309.9 points.

"Petikian beat me here; I've beaten him in the World Championships in his home country. We both had an equal chance. If the final had ended one shot earlier I would have won," Foth said. The three-position is one of the most difficult and dramatic of all Olympic shooting events, calling for versatility as well as intense concentration.

Foth described the event: "The contestants use a .22-caliber rifle and shoot from 50 meters (165 feet) at a ring one centimeter around, about the size of a dime.

"Contestants take 40 shots from each of three positions, prone, standing and kneeling. Scoring is easiest in the prone position, where the body is fully braced and stationary. The difference between the highest and lowest scores in this phase of the competition is slight.

"In the standing position the event is won or lost. It's the hardest position, resulting in the widest variation in scores.

"The three position has a dramatic shoot-out finale, with the top eight participants taking part in a 10 shot final, one shot at a time.

"It's such a volatile situation. We're trying to hit an impossibly small target in the wind, mirage and noise of the crowd."

Though Foth was grateful for his silver, he couldn't help but think about how close he came to the gold. "I really, really thought

I could've won a gold medal. But in shooting, all you can do is prepare to be there; you can't guarantee winning," he said.

Foth also competed in the air rifle event at Barcelona, finishing seventh.

Winning a medal was the culmination of more than a dozen years of total dedication for Foth. While competing for the Tribe riflery team in 1980 he qualified for the Olympic trials. "I was just barely good enough to be there, but the experience really made me want to come back," said Foth.

He continued to train while living in Williamsburg, helping to coach the W&M co-recreational riflery team and teaching mathematics and physics at Lafayette High School.

In 1984 Foth tried out for the Olympic team and missed again, but not by much. "I was probably in the top 10 by that point," he said.

The big step came when Foth moved to the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs in 1985 as part of the Resident Athlete Program. The program allows Olympic caliber athletes to train with the support of top-notch facilities, coaches and equipment.

"We live in a dormitory-type setting; we have a cafeteria where we eat, and we have a really nice shooting center," said Foth.

The training center experience paid off for Foth, who qualified for the Olympic team in 1988. He competed in Seoul, finishing fourth in the air rifle event.

As a student at the College, Foth led one of W&M's finest-ever riflery squads. In 1979-80 the Tribe went 11-1, defeating traditionally powerful teams like N.C. State and Penn State. The W&M riflemen won the prestigious Southeastern Invitational Tournament, dethroning perennial champ N.C. State. Foth and teammate Rich Jones '80 were qualifiers for the NCAA Finals as well as the Olympic tryouts.

Before he came to the College, Foth was already serious about shooting sports. Growing up in Clarence, N.Y., near Buffalo, he got his start in a summer recreation program. "I enjoyed it, but I wasn't one of the best at first," said Foth.

"In the Buffalo area many of the high schools had varsity riflery teams, so I was able to travel and compete then," he said.

Foth made this Olympic trip a family affair. Both parents, his two sisters and their husbands and their children an aunt and a high school buddy all planned to make the trip to Barcelona to act as Foth's personal rooting section.

"My folks have been very supportive all along," he said.

Foth is also appreciative of his experience at the College. "At William and Mary I was able to keep competing and participate in the NCAA's. Afterward when I was coaching at the College, part of the deal was that it gave me access to the shooting range. They were all good steps along the way," he said.

After the Olympics, Foth is scheduled to join the team in a reception at the White House on Aug. 11. He plans to come back to the Olympic Training Center for a little while.

Foth is considering staying in the Colorado Springs area, maybe to go back to teaching, but certainly to stay in practice and compete occasionally in riflery events.

Big Guns Gone, Tribe Looks to Defense in '92

By Bob Jeffrey '74

Jimmy Laycock '70 doesn't know whether his 13th season at the helm of William and Mary football will be a lucky one, but he relishes the challenge.

"It's always a challenge, especially when you're trying to replace important players, trying to find ways to move the football," said Laycock.

"We've got to look closely at what we're doing and find out who's going to be playing in some key spots," he said.

Two of the Tribe's biggest guns from last year, quarterback Chris Hakel and running back Robert Green, are currently strutting their stuff in the training camp of the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins. Yet the question marks on offense may be solved by an improvement in the defense.

In two consecutive years giving up more than 300 points, the Tribe defense has consisted of hoping the offense could outscore the opposition. This season, however, the defense may hold the key.

Only three defensive starters graduated, leaving a strong, experienced squad to hold opponents' scoring down.

"We'll have to play better defense," said Laycock, "because we won't necessarily be able to put as many points on the board this season."

Leading the charge will be Mark Tyler, senior defensive tackle, a preseason second team All-American (Street & Smith and Sports Network). The 6-3, 255-pounder was the second leading tackler for Tribe last season with 85 stops, four for losses behind the line. An All-ECAC selection, Tyler sacked the opposing quarterback three times, forced a fumble, and blocked a kick and a pass.

At the other defensive tackle, senior Craig Staub is set to perform as he did before an injury knocked him out of action in the North Carolina game. At 6-3, 260 lbs., Staub played extremely well in spring drills, being named the defensive MVP in the annual Green & White spring game.

Staub had 20 tackles in five games in '91, forced two fumbles, recovered one, and blocked a kick. Having Staub healthy for the entire season would be a bonus for the Tribe.

Also anchoring the defensive line will be senior tri-captain Alex Utecht, a starter last season at defensive end. Utecht, an intense player, recorded 58 total tackles last season and had a sack, a fumble recovery and caused another fumble.

Laycock is looking for leadership by example from the senior troika. "These guys have been there, been involved in a lot of games. They've got to be consistent and exert a positive influence on the underclassmen," said Laycock.

The linebackers and defensive backfield were decimated by injuries last season, resulting in seven separate players getting starting nods at cornerback and safety positions in different contests, but the experience gained should contribute to team depth this time around.

"We hope we won't get nailed with injuries like we did last season," said Laycock. "But if we do, at least we've got a lot of players who have seen some action and know what it takes."

Linebacker Adrian Rich started all 11 games and was the team's leading tackler with 99 stops. Marty Benzing, Keith Booker and Eric Hawkins have all seen action and should give the linebacking corps additional experience.

All-State cornerback and team tri-captain Palmer Scarritt returns for his senior season. He intercepted five passes and deflected six more to go along with his 57 tackles and three blocked kicks in '91. For his effort he was selected the Tribe's Defensive Player of the Year by the W&M Quarterback Club.

Scarritt was also a dangerous punt returner, running back 18 kicks for 174 yards, including one for 36 yards.

At free safety, Eric Lambert is back, having recovered fully from a knee injury sustained in the win again Navy last year.

Rich Kinsman switched from outside linebacker to strong safety this spring, to take advantage of his size (6-3, 210) and pass coverage ability. He started nine games last year and had 75 tackles, two interceptions and two deflections.

Marc Richards started out as wide receiver and moved to safety before finding a niche at cornerback. He gained valuable experience last season, drawing starting assignments twice finishing with 31 tackles.

An area of concern in seasons past, the defensive backfield is expected to be a bulwark on this year's edition. "With Scarritt, Kinsman, Lambert, Richards and others, we've got some good experience," said Laycock. "They're going to have to raise their level of performance to keep us in ballgames."

Rich Allaway, Gerald Davis and Michael Britt at cornerback, and Jermaine Rosser at free safety should all see plenty of action.

The development of a high-flying offense, always a hallmark of Laycock's teams, may be initially hampered by new players at several of the skilled positions. In particular the departure of Hakel will mean breaking in a new quarterback.

Shawn Knight, a 5-10, 170-pound junior, was the leading candidate coming out of spring practice, where he was named offensive MVP in the Green and White game.

Knight has speed and mobility, and is a threat to run at any time. He wowed the Tribe faithful in a relief effort against Sanford, scrambling for 54 yards in eight carries. He tossed a 65-yard touchdown bomb to Michael Tomlin at North Carolina.

Also challenging for the signalcalling spot is senior Todd Durkin, who at 6-2, 205-pound, is more in the Hakel mold.

"Knight was leading coming out of spring practice," said Laycock. "Both he and Durkin have a good understanding of the offense."

A third quarterback contender, Williamsburg's Shawn Boyer, is such a good athlete he may be tried at another position, according to Laycock.

At fullback, where veteran Scott Wingfield, Greg Parker and Chris Applewhite are available, Laycock rates the personnel as "pretty solid."

Wingfield rushed for 333 yards on 63 carries and four touchdowns. He was a key performer in the 40-26 VMI win, carrying 19 times for 133 yards and two TD's.

Replacing tailback Robert Green, the Tribe's leading career rusher, will be no easy task. The heir apparent, James Blocker-Bodley, suffered a foot injury during spring practice. Sophomore Derk Fitzgerald and Newport News junior Billy Lyons, are also "getting into the mix," according to Laycock.

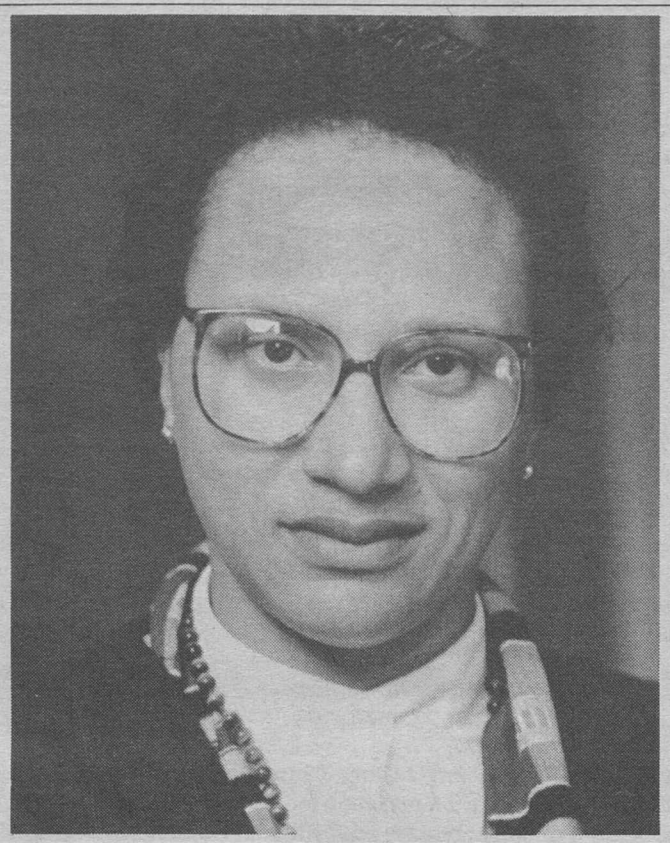

Though unproven, Blocker-Bodley has potential to develop into an outstanding ball carrier and receiver. The senior rushed for 124 yards in 24 carries for a 5.6 average. He led the Tribe in kickoff returns and was named Special Teams Player of the Year by the W&M Quarterback Club last season.

The receivers, led by seniors tri-captain Joe Person and Corey Ludwig, will be one of the strengths of the squad. The big question, as Laycock puts it, is, "Can we get the ball to them?"

Ludwig, an All-State selection, led the Tribe with 54 catches for 834 yards and two touchdowns. At tight end Person is a good blocker and solid receiver. Last year he hauled in 19 aerials for 294 yards and three TD's.

Michael Tomlin, a junior from Newport News, is slated to start at flanker. The fastest receiver on the team, Tomlin has big-play capability, as evidenced by two long TD catches last season. Lance Morabito is a strong backup to both Ludwig and Tomlin.

The offensive line is anchored by Tom Walters, a second-team preseason All-America pick by the Sports Network. A three-year starter at guard, Walters' pass protection and run blocking has boosted the Tribe's offensive production over the past two seasons.

Joanne M. Braxton, Cummings Professor of American Studies and English, is among 11 professors honored this year by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia with an Outstanding Faculty Award.

Joanne Braxton Named Outstanding Professor

By Hilary Holladay '88 M.A.

Joanne M. Braxton, Cummings Professor of American Studies and English, is among 11 professors honored this year by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia. Winners of the Outstanding Faculty Award receive $5,000 and a commemorative sculpture in recognition of their teaching, research and public service.

The state award is not the first time Professor Braxton, 42, has been lauded for excellent teaching. In 1986 she received the College's Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award, and in 1988 she was one of five outstanding professors named Alumni Fellows by the Society of the Alumni.

Braxton has taught at William and Mary since 1980 and has held the Frances L. and Edwin L. Cummings chair since 1989. A graduate of Sarah Lawrence College with a master's and doctorate in American Studies from Yale, she specializes in African-American literature and women's autobiographical writings.

Known for encouraging her students to speak their minds, Braxton is no slouch in the area herself. She is worried about the future her students face—and about her role in shaping that future: "I have ethical concerns about how best to prepare [students] to go off into a world where the prospects as I see them are increasingly pessimistic. I try to reinforce humanistic values that I think are largely present in our academy in a profound and special way. But there's the problem that the undergraduates will come in contact with a world that is racist and sexist and homophobic.

"My question is—for myself—along with the humanistic values that I find in the literature and which I hope I communicate, do I give them anything else that will allow them to practice these values with any kind of consistency when they're confronted with values that are largely antithetical to the ones that sustain the human race?" Braxton adds that, for most professors gauging their role in students' lives, "You never know if you're doing enough."

If the words of colleagues and former students supporting her nomination for the state teaching and award are any indication, Braxton is doing more than her share. In her letter, author Maya Angelou describes meeting former students of Braxton's: "They speak of her in such glowing terms that I confess to a twinge of envy. At once, I wish to have been the student receiving the lessons from Professor Braxton, and at the same time I nearly wish I was the teacher giving forth with generosity the knowledge she has gleaned."

Keith S. Clark '85, a Ph.D. candidate in English at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, validates Angelou's impression. Clark says that in her responses to his freshman composition journal, a course requirement, Braxton encouraged him personally as well as academically: "She kept nurturing me. As a freshman, that was very important." She eventually directed his senior honors thesis on Richard Wright and James Baldwin and urged him to pursue graduate study in literature. "I value her not only as an academic but also as a friend," he says. The two remain in touch, and Braxton lectured at UNC a year ago, as part of an African-American literary event Clark coordinated.

Both Clark and Bertram D. Ashe, Braxton's graduate research assistant last fall, say that Braxton has a talent for placing African-American literature in a cultural context. She has shown her students slides and photos relevant to Afro-American studies—and passed around a root similar to the conjurer's root described in Frederick Douglass' slave narrative. She has also hosted a blues singer in her classroom. Such events live up class considerably, but that's not all that goes on, Ashe points out: "The discussions are comprehensive and exhaustive and provide a worthy focus through which the class can understand the text."

An accomplished poet as well as a scholar, Braxton is the author of a collection of poetry, Sometimes I Think of Maryland and Black Women Writing Autobiography: A Tradition Within a Tradition. She is also co-editor with Andree Nicola McLaughlin of Wild Women in the Whirlwind: Afro-American Culture and the Contemporary Literary Renaissance, which won the 1990 Koppelman Book Award. In addition her poetry has been widely published in poetry anthologies and magazines.

While she has benefited from College grants enabling her to pursue research off-campus, she takes special pleasure in combining teaching with scholarship. In one instance, she and four graduate students collaborated on a paper, which Braxton and one of the students, American Studies doctoral candidate Sharon Zuber, later presented at an academic conference. "It was a statement that said this is a new model for feminist scholarship, the idea that faculty and students could work together and write together," Braxton explains proudly.

Although she has had job offers from other universities, Braxton remains committed to her students at the College. "Teaching is the most important thing I do. I think that our students are wonderful, special; our students have kept me at William and Mary over these years.

Alumni College Explores Frontiers of Land, Sea and Air

By Virginia Carter Collins '77

Like an academic time machine, this year's Alumni College transported alumni back to 15th-century Portugal, the age of Columbus, and ahead to the 21st century when some yet-to-be-born explorer touches the surface of Mars. Through classroom lectures and special events, the program's 76 participants experienced what guest speaker Valerie Neal called an ageless "human desire to leave the surface of this world on the wings of a desire to explore."

Sponsored by the Society of the Alumni, "Explorers and Their Frontiers: 500 Years of Discovery" led alumni, family members and friends around the globe in a dynamic four-day voyage from June 18-21. They sailed with Columbus and Magellan, suffered hardships with Captain John Smith, ventured onto new terrain with Lewis and Clark, and shot into space on the "ride of your life" with Astronaut Kenneth Reightler.

As a modern-day explorer, Reightler shared his experiences piloting the space shuttle Discovery's September 1991 mission.

In his talk, "The Life of an Astronaut," he described the "great exhilaration" of going from 0-17,000 miles per hour, entering space in just eight and a half minutes. As he and his fellow astronauts circled the world in a mere 90 minutes, they viewed the devastating—yet spectacular—sight of the fires burning in Kuwait and witnessed the natural spectacle of a sunrise or sunset every 45 minutes.

Reightler, who recalled many happy visits to William and Mary in the past, is the husband of Maureen McHenry Reightler '73. She joined her husband as a participant in the program.

The kinship between explorers of the past and present that Reightler noted in his talk became all the more real on Saturday evening. Following a visit to the newly opened Virginia Air and Space Center in Hampton, Alumni College participants relaxed on a dinner cruise around Hampton Roads harbor. William J. Hargis, professor emeritus of marine science, was on board to point landmarks and provide special commentary on "John Smith's Chesapeake Bay Exploration."

Field trips earlier in the program included a visit to Jamestown Settlement's new "Discovering America" exhibit and a trip to the Mariner's Museum where Professor Hargis led a tour of the new gallery, "The Age of Exploration."

Valerie Neal, joined by Ann Monroe Swaim Jacobs '76, brought the program to a close on Sunday morning with the talk, "Where Next, Columbus?" Both are involved in the National Air and Space Museum's major exhibition by the same title, scheduled to open sometime in the near future.

Neal highlighted key explorers of the past and challenged participants to look ahead to all the new worlds where exploration of the future might lead.

The program drew an enthusiastic response from start to finish among participants. "I've been to every Alumni College since 1975," commented Evangeline Klug '35. "Each year I think it's the best. This is by far the biggest and the best."

President Tim Sullivan '66 greets Alumni College participants at the welcome dinner held on the Alumni House patio on Thursday evening. Following dinner, Professor James Axtell opened the academic portion of the program with a talk on "Columbus Before America."

Katherine and Chris Harvey (left) of Spartanburg, S.C., participated in the first Alumni College children's program. They are joined by Jim McCord, associate professor of history and the first academic dean of Alumni College; their mother, Michelle Pugh Harvey '72; and grandmother, Lydia Harvey, of Danville, Va., at Sunday's graduation brunch.

ALUMNI COLLEGE 1993

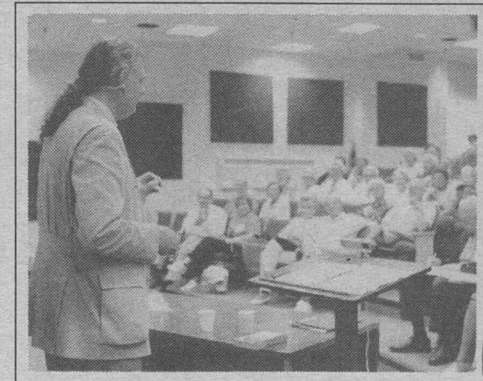

In celebration of William and Mary's 300th anniversary, Alumni College 1993 will focus on the life and legacy of alumnus Thomas Jefferson. Dates for next year's program are June 24-27. For further information, call the Society of the Alumni at 804/221-1174.

John Mapp '35 enjoyed the four-day program with friends Gertrude Howland (left) and Nancy Purcell. All are from Richmond.

Alumni and Friends Help Society Celebrate 150th Birthday

Turning 150 is cause to celebrate, and the Society of the Alumni observed its historic anniversary in grand style on Saturday, July 4. An Old-Fashioned Family Picnic, complete with birthday cake and food at old-fashioned prices, attracted more than 700 alumni, spouses, children and friends to the sunny lawn of the Alumni House. Festivities included music by the Williamsburg Jazz Ensemble, face painting, a magic show, games and balloon sculptures for the children.

Sponsored by the Williamsburg Alumni Chapter, the celebration turned out to be one of the largest-ever alumni events. More than 75 volunteers, joined by Society staff members, and a number of sponsors who provided everything from financial support to hotdogs helped make the event a success.

In greeting the crowd, President Tim Sullivan noted the Society's tremendous growth since it was founded on July 4, 1842, by President Thomas R. Dew. The Society is the sixth oldest alumni organization in the United States and the second oldest in Virginia.

Landry and Elizabeth Bosworth of Williamsburg, daughters of Leonard Bosworth and Susan Lovegren Bosworth '80, '85 M.A., paused before joining contestants in a three-legged race.

President Sullivan and his wife, Anne Klare Sullivan '66, say hello to 5-year-old Elizabeth Flanary and dad Steve. Elizabeth's mom is Sara Lewis Flanary '77, '84 M.B.A.

The Alumni Affairs Office plans and implements more than 400 Society of the Alumni events each year to welcome alumni back to campus and help them stay in touch with William and Mary. Alumni Affairs Office Plans Programs that Last a Lifetime

By Poul Olson

Second in a series of articles commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Society of the Alumni

Summer recess is generally a slow time of the year at the College of William and Mary. For the Office of Alumni Affairs at the Society of the Alumni, however, a typical summer day means such activities as working on the logistics of Homecoming, helping alumni chapters plan their events and newsletters, developing the budget for the 25th class reunion, or finalizing housing for the 1993 Alumni College. Regardless of the season, alumni affairs is constantly striving to serve the needs of William and Mary's more than 50,000 alumni.

Each year this branch of the Society of the Alumni coordinates more than 400 separate events such as Homecoming, Sweethearts Weekend, class reunions, Alumni College and numerous chapter activities. As the largest functional area within the Society, alumni affairs is the "programming" arm of the organization.

Consisting of five managers, four support staff members, and thousands of volunteers, the office coordinates the administration of 62 alumni chapters worldwide, reunions and campus activities, special interest alumni groups affiliated with the Society, and regional celebrations of the Campaign for the Fourth Century.

A leader among its peers, alumni affairs at William and Mary is recognized by many colleges and universities for its commitment to excellence. "William and Mary is well-known for the caliber of its alumni programs," says Lee Foster, director of alumni affairs. "We often receive requests from other schools who want to use our programs as a model for their own."

Three councils — Student Alumni Liaison Council (SALC), Olde Guard Council and Young Guard Council — are part of alumni affairs and serve students, older alumni and recent graduates in a variety of capacities.

A group of 33 students, SALC members function as ambassadors from the Society to the student body. They not only raise awareness about the organization, but also help with many Society-sponsored programs such as conducting campus tours and hosting events.

Other student programs sponsored by alumni affairs in conjunction with the SALC serve an important role in education. The Life After Dog Street program (L.A.D.S.) features alumni speakers who provide advice to students about the harrowing processes of obtaining credit, buying that first new car, and signing a lease.

As their names suggest, the Olde Guard and Young Guard represent the interests of alumni from two markedly different age groups. The Olde Guard comprises some 3,000 alumni who graduated from the College 50 or more years ago, while the Young Guard consists of the approximately 6,000 alumni who graduated within the last five years. That group now encompasses the classes of 1988-1992.

To promote unity among their constituent members, each group sponsors numerous activities. Olde Guard Day, for example, brings together these respective alumni each spring. "Such activities help strengthen the ties between alumni and their alma mater," Foster says.

In conjunction with the respective classes, the alumni affairs staff also regularly coordinates 15 class reunions and helps the 25th and 50th reunion classes coordinate their class gift efforts. Each year, the reunion gift program raises close to $500,000 for the College.

The social and ethnic diversity of past and present student bodies is similarly reflected in other special organizations administered by alumni affairs. The Order of the White Jacket includes alumni who worked in food services while attending the College. This group annually awards $15,000 in scholarships to students working in food service today. The Association of 1775 consists of alumni who participated in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps while at William and Mary or have or are currently serving in the military. Finally, a newly added constituent group, the Hulon Willis Association, serves to preserve the legacy and history of African-American students through sponsored programs, projects, activities and events.

Homecoming is, of course, the Society's most established, widely attended annual event. Thousands of alumni return each fall to participate in the more than 60 events that are held throughout the weekend. "Planning begins months in advance — actually before we finish one Homecoming we have already begun planning for the next," says Foster. "Each year, the entire staff carefully evaluates what went well and where improvements can be made. In fact, we do this for every program. We want to keep improving, and more importantly, keep meeting the needs of our alumni."

In addition to such well-established programs as Homecoming, a number of newer programs attract many alumni. An innovative program which saw a successful beginning this year is Sweethearts Weekend. The now-annual event brings together married couples who first met while attending William and Mary.

Next year marks the College's 300th anniversary, and alumni affairs is actively involved in coordinating all details of events that involve alumni. Three years ago, the office took on the responsibility of planning regional celebrations in support of the College's Campaign for the Fourth Century. Its special events office has planned celebrations in some 30 cities nationwide.

As the most "external, interactive" arm of the Society, Foster sees many challenges facing alumni affairs in the future as the number of graduates increases.

"With classes of more than 1,000 students, class unity becomes more difficult to maintain," she says. "We will be challenged to look for different ways to reach out to new and old alumni."

More than half the Society's 50,000 alumni have graduated since 1972, and Foster considers it a priority to provide more programs, activities and services for an increasingly younger alumni body. "The demographics of the College's alumni are changing each year. Many of our current programs focus on older alumni. We are trying to add more things for young alumni and particularly families." Examples of this new commitment include child care during Homecoming and a children's program during Alumni College.

Paralleling the substantial growth in alumni over the last two decades is a marked increase in chapter activities. During the past five years alumni affairs has helped double the number of "off-campus" chapter events such as career networking events, faculty speakers, cultural events, spring admission receptions, the New York Auction Weekend, and many community service projects.

Ultimately Foster hopes alumni affairs will further develop its role as a means of educating alumni about the College and the importance of community service. "Helping our alumni become better informed about the College and more connected with it are the first steps toward building a mutually supportive relationship that lasts a lifetime."

Attendance is growing at many alumni events, but she recognizes there are still many alumni who are not being reached by the Society. "You are only a student for four years. You are an alumnus forever. We consider it very important to strengthen the ties between all alumni and their alma mater."

WHO'S WHO IN ALUMNI AFFAIRS

The Society of the Alumni operates as an independent organization under the direction of a 15-member Board of Directors elected by active alumni. As the largest functional department within the Society, the office of Alumni Affairs serves as the programming arm of the organization. The department is responsible for alumni chapters, reunions, special interest alumni groups affiliated with the Society, regional celebrations of the College's Campaign for the Fourth Century, and the class giving program. The Student Alumni Liaison Council, Olde Guard Council and Young Guard Council are also part of alumni affairs.

Lee Johnston Foster has held the position of director of alumni affairs since 1989. A 1975 Mary Baldwin College graduate and a 1977 University of Virginia graduate, Lee joined the Society in 1988 as director of reunions and campus activities before being promoted. She oversees the staff and programs organized by alumni affairs such as the 25th and 50th reunions gift programs, the Olde Guard and Young Guard and Student Liaison councils, Homecoming, student programming, Sweethearts Weekend and Alumni College. Lee also works with other constituent groups including the Order of the White Jacket, the Association of 1775 and the Hulon Willis Association. Four assistant directors report to her directly.

Sherri Givens Holland, assistant director of alumni affairs for reunions and campus activities, joined the Society in 1991 and later that year earned a masters in public administration from Old Dominion University. A 1986 William and Mary graduate, Holland plans and coordinates on-campus special events for the Society such as Homecoming, Alumni College and Olde Guard Day. She also administers all student programming, including the Student Alumni Liaison Council and "Life After Dog Street" and assists with events sponsored by the College including Career Exploration Day and the "So, You're a Senior" series. Sherri is presently working to increase alumni involvement in the Tercentenary celebration.

Matthew B. Kirsner was named assistant director of alumni affairs for special events after graduating from William and Mary this past May. His responsibilities include coordinating regional celebrations of the College's Campaign for the Fourth Century and working closely with chapter leaders and other alumni in planning the 13 events scheduled before the end of the campaign in 1993.

Jonathan A. Lever, assistant director of alumni affairs for chapters, joined the Society in 1991. Overseeing some 60 alumni chapters and clubs worldwide, the 1991 William and Mary graduate helps coordinate more than 180 diverse events throughout the year to promote the Society and the College. He is also responsible for the activities of the Young Guard and the Hulon Willis Association. Lever first joined the staff as assistant director of alumni affairs for special events coordinating celebration events in support of the College's Campaign for the Fourth Century. He was promoted to his current position in June 1992.

Kristi L. Thornton was named assistant director of alumni affairs in 1991 after working for seven years in human resources at the accounting firm of Ernst and Young. A graduate of California's Dominican College, she handles the administrative duties for Order of the White Jacket and the Association of 1775 and is responsible for organizing their programs, events and newsletters.

Elaine Campbell, budget and personnel assistant, joined the alumni affairs staff in 1991. A 1972 graduate of Northern Virginia Community College, Elaine was originally hired as secretary in the special events office. As of Aug. 1 she assumed her new role as budget and personnel assistant.

Cynthia Crawford joined the staff in mid-August, replacing Elaine Campbell. Cynthia will be providing secretarial support for the special events office, Order of the White Jacket, and the Association of 1775.

Cathy Blair Forbes was hired in 1989 as secretary for the Society's reunions office. Her duties include assisting in the planning, promotion and logistical support of more than 20 events annually as well as processing reservations for Homecoming, Alumni College, Olde Guard Day and the Student Host Program. She also prepares copy for various pamphlets, booklets, postcards and brochures that are related to the promotion of various special events.

Annette M. Shrewsbury Taylor, chapters office secretary, joined the Society in 1985, a year after graduating from Kee Business College. She started as a data entry operator in the alumni records office and was later promoted to data base administrator. She assumed the position of chapters office secretary in 1991.

Sonya Crossman Worden joined the Society in 1989. In 1991 she was promoted from secretary in the chapters office to executive secretary for alumni affairs. She is currently working with Lee Foster in support of the 25th and 50th class reunions and the reunion giving program. Sonya is a 1989 graduate of Tidewater Community College.

CLASS NOTES

Petersburg, VA 23805

Appreciated a nice letter from Raymond L. Driscoll who lives in Kensington, Md. He retired in '71, but with good health he continues to stay active. He works in his vegetable garden, keeps the grass cut and helps to care for his invalid wife, Hazel Kelly. As a result of two strokes, she is unable to walk or feed herself, but with assistance, Raymond can care for her at home. He is "alive and kicking" and quite interested in the news he reads in the Gazette.

Received a grand letter from Laura Whitehead Young. After eight years of study at Columbia University, she had a successful and enjoyable half century working in the field of hand bookbinding and conservation. She had a studio in N.Y.C. where she accepted commissions and took private students. She also taught in her field for 15 years at Columbia University and Pratt Institute in Brooklyn. After her retirement in 1983, she and her husband, Frederick, moved to the Eastern Shore of Virginia where they owned a farm, on which was a "sort of" summer cottage. Now they spend their summers in the country and their winters in the town of Onley where they bought and remodeled a house built in 1908. Laura also wrote that they "...do nothing exotic, very interesting or news worthy, but it is nice to do what you feel like doing in a pressure free environment." Don't we envy her?! She promised to let us know if she does anything newsworthy. I'll look forward to a follow-up of her very interesting letter.

Those of our class who return for Olde Guard Day are fewer in number each year, but the returnees enjoy being together and have a nice time seeing friends who were in other classes. There were six of us present in April, including Malvern H. Omohundo Jr., accompanied by his wife Libby, Elizabeth George, widow of W. Brooks George '32 and Virginia Vaiden Bowen and her husband. Virginia sends this message to you absentees: "It is really wonderful to be here today."

E. Carlton Macon also attended Olde Guard Day. He still plays golf twice a week and sails when he gets a chance. He was headed for Kitty Hawk, N.C., in May where he has a time-share condo. He wants you to know, "Tis fun just to be with old friends."

William G. Thompson Jr. and his wife Mary were present at Olde Guard Day. They were on their way to Richmond for a few days. Their comments were, "We are so happy to be here for Olde Guard Day. Such fun to see our friends. They haven't changed. The years have been good to all of us."

Don't those remarks encourage you to come to Homecoming and to the Olde Guard luncheon? Homecoming will be October 15-18, so mark it on your calendar. A special feature will be held on Friday morning at 10:30 when Timothy J. Sullivan '66 will be inaugurated as the 25th president of our alma mater. Be present!

It is such a pleasure to receive letters from you, then I have news of interest for our Class of '28 column. Please write!

Here's an update from Lucy Boswell Crymble:

While visiting in Bristol, Va., Lucy met and married Carter Crymble and moved to Kingsport, Tenn., in 1937. She became in-involved in the affairs of the community through the Presbyterian Church. She joined the Junior Welfare League, which met regularly to roll bandages for the Holton Valley Community Hospital. The bandages later went to the Civic Auditorium on an average of 400 rolls each delivery. Later, the league worked and gave money for hospital equipment, especially for cancer patients. The Welfare League grew from a small beginning to a cafe and gift shop with Lucy taking a very active part in its work and growth. Her husband, Carter Crymble, died in 1989.

Bill Warren is retired from Virginia National Bank (a forerunner of NationsBank) and maintains an office in Norfolk. James Madison University named its campus center in honor of Bill's brother, Percy Warren, who served as dean of Madison College (now JMU) from 1954 to 1965. Percy was killed by a tornado in Toledo, Ohio, in 1965.

Olde Guard Day in April was a day to remember. We had 32 members registered and everyone seemed to have a wonderful time. Those registered were: Alfred R. Armstrong, Ben Bruner, Virginia Beazley Byram, J. Spencer Dryden, Joseph A. Gianelli, Jane Fleet Gilliam, Katherine Weary Kirkup, Mildred Layne, Arthur McLawhon, Clyde Munnell II, Helen Slaughter Myers, Mary Jane Cofer, E. Godwyn Outten, William E. Renn, Pearle Young Reynolds, Simmons B. Savage Jr., Minnie Hogge Shackelford, John C. Stolz, Vernon I. Tillar, Jack Tuthill, Hugh L. Vaughan, Ferris Bleight Waffle and L. Randolph Williams. It was a great day for all of us.

On April 7, John Tuthill, who served as a U.S. diplomat and educator for more than 40 years, spoke at the College on "Meeting the Challenge of a Changing World." John has served the U.S. government around the world. He has taught international studies at Princeton and Cambridge universities. A football star while at William and Mary, he is a member of the College's Athletic Hall of Fame.

A note from Martin Jurow (4403 Normandy Ave., Dallas, TX 75205), is still sharing his experiences of more than 50 years in the world of entertainment. He has been a distinguished visiting professor at Southern Methodist University for five years. Martin also has a radio program and has been broadcasting for more than two years.

It is time to make plans for the next Homecoming on Oct. 15-18. At this time the new president, Timothy J. Sullivan '66, will be inaugurated as the 25th president of the College.

I hope to see all of you there.

Thirty-four of our class members attended Olde Guard Day in April.

Homecoming takes place Oct. 15-18. Be sure to mark your calendar for Oct. 16 at 10:30 a.m. — Timothy J. Sullivan '66 will be inaugurated as the 25th president of the College.

The Olde Guard Council met June 3. Provost Melvyn Schiavelli gave an update on academic programs. The council voted to raise $115,000 in commemoration of the College's 300th anniversary in 1993. $15,000 will go toward the cost of publishing a history of the College, while the remainder will aid in the establishment of a permanent endowment to the William and Mary Choir in support of its European Tour. The council members enjoyed a luncheon at the Hospitality House and were joined by President Sullivan. We shared some interesting conversation.

Winifred Hall Procter and her husband Bill toured Europe this spring and returned to the states on the Concord.

Lillian Carmine Sterling has begun her summer traveling. She and her daughter, Clara Jean, recently flew out to San Diego, Calif., to visit her grandson, Scott Bryan. While there, they attended the "Americas" sailboat races and other points of interest. They also visited nearby Kosarito Beach in Mexico. They went on to tour Los Angeles and Hollywood. A highlight of their tour was a visit to CBS Television City, where they were members of the studio audience on The Price is Right, a popular daytime TV show. They had a wonderful trip.

I am pleased to report that we have a new co-chair as class reporter, Virginia Hurdle Adams, formerly a resident of Portsmouth, Va., now lives at Westminster-Canterbury and will assist me.

Hello, Class of '36. I am pleased today to let you know at the close of this past fiscal year the Class of 1936 scholarship totaled $42,267. This year's recipients of the scholarship are Anne Bede and Michael Blair.

Anne is a sophomore from Wilmington, Del. I received such a nice letter of thanks from her. Her grandmother is Mae Wright

Hocutt, whom I am sure you remember as well as her grandfather, Johnny Hocutt.

The other recipient is Michael Blair from Williamsburg, who is majoring in history. He plans to apply his history studies, combined with a minor in fine arts, to teach history, perform historical research or pursue the field of historic preservation.

I had such an interesting call from Ernest (Shorty) Horton, who lives at 2156 Ebbesen Ave., San Jose, CA 95124. I thought you might want to contact him. He sells real estate and has two sons who went to William and Mary. He called me just before the Kentucky Derby and told me he had bet on Casual Lye so I watched and was sorry the horse did not win. He came in third.

I am a member of the Sunshine Circle of the Children's Hospital and work each Monday to benefit the children. Several William and Mary alumnae work with me, including Jane Dumont Sands '35, Barbara James Mears '46, Minnie Margaret Franck '37 and Elsie Lewis Renolds '37.

Echoes of the Past

*The old names are here,
And the old forms,
Not alone of doorways, of houses,
The light falls the way the light fell,
And it is not clear
In the elm shadows, if it be ourselves, here
Or others, who were before us.*

You studied in the Wren Building, walked passed the tablet of Priorities, worshipped in the Wren Chapel, played Frisbee in the Sunken Garden, perhaps noticed that strange-looking obelisk in the Ewell Graveyard. You knew Phi Beta Kappa and the Honor System were founded at William and Mary, heard the worshipful references to Thomas Jefferson, maybe even knew that James Blair founded the College and served 50 years as its president. The old names and places of William and Mary—an alma mater steeped in Traditions, Myths & Memories.

Now you have the opportunity to learn more about the heritage of your alma mater from Traditions, Myths & Memories: Celebrating the Tercentenary of The College of William & Mary, a 10" x 14" hardcover book to be published this fall by the Society of the Alumni. Written by W. Wilford Kale '66, author of Hark Upon the Gale: An Illustrated History of the College of William and Mary, this beautiful, four-color publication will capture not only the great traditions—and myths—of William and Mary, but also the memories that made the College special while you were a student here.

R. Edwin Burnette Jr. '75, '78 J.D. of Lynchburg, Va., was chosen president-elect of the Virginia State Bar at the organization's annual meeting in June in Virginia Beach. A partner in the firm of Edmunds and Williams P.C., he will assume the presidency of the State Bar, an arm of the Virginia Supreme Court that regulates the practice of law in Virginia, next year. Currently serving the Virginia State Bar as a member of the executive, council and lawyer discipline committees and as chair of the long-range planning committee, Burnette will oversee the organization's financing and budgeting processes as president-elect. He is a member of the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association, Virginia Association of Defense Attorneys, the Virginia Research Institute and the American Bar Association. This year's meeting, attended by lawyers from around the state, focused on the practices of the news media in handling celebrated cases, such as the Clarence Thomas Supreme Court hearings.

I am so excited because Dora Terrell Williams and her husband have bought a house near me and we will be neighbors. We roomed together in the Chi Omega house and were in each other's weddings. Our friendship goes back a long way.

I am sure many of you remember Lillian Waymack Amburgey '39. After graduation she was in charge of the Career Center at J. Sargeant Reynolds Community College here in Richmond. The center, which she established in 1970, provides career counseling, job search assistance and help with resume preparation for many students.

Since her death, the center has been named in her honor. I am proud so many of us knew her and have had the opportunity to contribute to the center and to see it grow.

Homecoming (Oct. 15-18) is the next big event at the College. Please come and be sure to see me and give all the news about you. See you then.

These members of our class attended Olde Guard Day in the spring: Mildred Albee Babb, Virginia Betts Chapman, Bob Dew, Louise Hall, Margaret Brett Honn, Cyril Mirmelstein (did you see his picture in the June Alumni Gazette?), Bill Murray, John David Rutledge, Bert Capps Sheeran and Bob Sheeran.

Bert Sheeran called in May with the sad news of George Bunch's death. I wrote to Dede for the class (and received a lovely thank-you note), but I'm sure she would appreciate hearing from those of you who knew George well. Dede's address is: 1831 Clayton Ave., Lynchburg, VA 24503.

Nancy Adame Hegeman attended her granddaughter's graduation from the College in May. Nancy's daughter and son-in-law are also graduates, so Nancy joins Bert as one of the select W&M three-generation families. Are there others of you in our class?

In May I had a big 75th birthday! To help me celebrate, Nick and my two children (unbeknownst to me) wrote asking long-time friends to share memories in letters to be put into an album. I opened the album on the day and laughed and cried over the priceless letters. Annabel Hopkins Mitchell, Bert and Bob and Nancy Adams Hegeman from our class responded with heartwarming letters, as did Anne Reynolds Wood, Jane Robertson Litzenberg, Dot Hosford Smith and Jim Mallonee from other classes. With friends like those, what's bad about being three score years and 15?

The soon-to-be-published William and Mary book, Traditions, Myths and Memories, sounds delightful, and I've already ordered my copy. How many of those memories will we recall from the '30s?

Doris Froehner Joslyn wrote from Pasadena: "Dick and I just returned from a wonderful alumni holiday trip — 'Cruise on the River Elbe' — and we enjoyed it very much. We went with the Trojan Travelers — Dick's alma mater, the University of Southern California, but there were other alumni groups as well, including two from W&M — Jim Hall '52 and his wife. We enjoyed chatting about our school and all that's been happening recently. When we went to Alaska with this group, one of the Trojans lived in San Diego — Rancho Santa Fe — across the street from Walt Zable and Betty! Isn't it a small world?" Doris and Dick are planning to come to our big 50th reunion in '93. Let's all start making plans; details will be coming soon.

So-called news is really old by the time I get to write it and then another wait for the printing, so do bear with me!

When Frank and I were in Florida in March we stopped by and had a brief but fun visit with Jane Wild in Jensen Beach. We had tried unsuccessfully to call her first and so just burst in on her in her lovely new tenth floor condo overlooking the ocean which she shares with her loyal cat.

We took in Olde Guard Day (April 8) again this year and were pleased that it was held in Trinkle Hall where it was better suited to the smaller numbers than William and Mary Hall. We were delighted to see a newcomer after many years, Elizabeth Church Durfee from Barrington, R.I. I missed seeing Marshall Allen of Ft. Loudon, Pa., but others of our class attending were Jack and Ann Garrett, Helen Jones, Jack Geddes and Mary Ellen '43, and Bud Metheny. Bob '38 and Kay Hoover Dew '41 drove over with us and we all had a very pleasant day.

Nils and Gervais Brekke sailed into Carter Creek and anchored in early June and had a brief visit with the Dews. We were sorry not to see them but had a nice phone conversation with Gervais.

Jack and Ann Garrett have just returned from Alumni College which they thoroughly enjoyed and highly recommend. The subject this year was exploration and discovery, from Columbus on up to the space program, including lectures by one of the astronauts. They planned to take in the Shakespeare Festival and also the July 4 Family Picnic celebrating the 150th anniversary of the Society of the Alumni.

Homecoming takes places Oct. 15-18, with a special event highlighting this year's plans. On Friday morning, Oct. 16, Timothy J. Sullivan '66 will be inaugurated as the 25th president of the College. All alumni are invited to participate in this historic ceremony in the Wren Courtyard at 10:30 a.m. Jack Garrett, however, asked me to mention that no special plans or letter regarding Homecoming will be forthcoming for our class this year since attendance last year was so poor.

BIG plans are in the works for Homecoming '93 and already there is a list of those who have made limited reservations: Walt '38 and Betty Carter Zable, Carolyn Lusardi, Leah and T. Waller, Bob (Pinky) Newton, Eldon and Louise Eppinger Nuernberger, Jack and Harriet McCarthy Purfill '41, Bill and Ruth Ann Mahood, Helen Lansburg and Ed and Dinny Wetter, who will stay in their new condo in Williamsburg, Jack and Ann Garrett and Frank and yours truly. It promises to be a very exciting weekend.

As of now, Frank and I are flying up to Keene, N.H., the end of July to visit Daniel and his family. We haven't seen any of them since October so know that the children will be quite different. We wish we saw them more often and knew them better.

Please let me hear from you so that I'll have something more diverse to pass along.

By all reports the 50th Reunion of the Super Crew of '42 was grand. I understand that 58 class members out of the 218 members were in attendance. Many thanks are due to Margaret Kelly Dunham and her wonderful committee. Our class raised $103,000 for the class gift and there are two more years in which contributions can be made to this fund. Please designate your check for the '42 50th Reunion gift.

A welcome letter from Malcolm Sullivan reports that everything was beautifully orchestrated and that all events ran smoothly. Sully and his wife live in Boynton Beach, Fla., since his retirement in 1978 after 35 years in advertising with J. Walter Thompson Co., Chicago. Their child is the business coordinator of the Naples (Fla.) Philharmonic Orchestra. Sully is living the good life of retirement with surfing, golf and tennis.

Emalee Ewing Durbin and her husband, on their way to Williamsburg from Corvallis, Lora Lynn Flattum '91 of Carrollton, Isle of Wight County, has been named Miss Virginia 1992. A classical piano student at Shenandoah Conservatory in Winchester, she performed a Franz Liszt piano concerto in the talent competition and expressed her views on improving the nation's educational system during the personal interview segment. Flattum, who was awarded a $5,500 scholarship and a new car among other gifts, will represent the state of Virginia at the Miss America pageant in September. Recently awarded a $60,000 fellowship to Duke University, she will pursue a master's degree in music performance practice before applying to the University of Virginia school of medicine to study chemistry. The Miss Virginia pageant is established as a "scholarship pageant," meaning each contestant must be enrolled in or have graduated from college and that scholarship money must be used for educational purposes only. The Miss America Scholarship Foundation is the world's largest educational gift fund for women.

Or., visited the homes of Carl Sandburg (whom Emalee had met at the Library of Congress) and the Vanderbilts in Asheville, N.C. In Pittsburgh they visited Emalee's cousin, Bill Brown, and in Norfolk another cousin, Lois Leach '41, and Emalee's aunt Mamie Turner '32. After the reunion they visited Susan Crane Rowe in Westfield, N.J.

The commencement address of Clinch Valley College in Virginia was given by Hunter B. Andrews, majority leader of the Senate of Virginia. He has been a member of the Senate since 1964 and chair of the finance committee since 1986. He is a practicing attorney in Hampton and a former chair of the Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation, member of the executive committee of the Southern Regional Education Board and the Southern Legislative Conference, and former member of the executive committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures.

The news of the selection of Timothy Sullivan '66 as our new 25th president is VERY good! The fact that he has been working on the campus for almost 30 years offers the promise that he will bring an intimate understanding of the needs and future of the College to his work, and that he will be fully dedicated to that work and the vision that will uphold it. I wish him long and fruitful years in the leadership and service of the College.

A friend has sent me the obituary notice for Virginia Woodward Patterson, whom we knew as Vicki, from Portland, Maine. She died in Stoughton, Mass., and had been an elementary school teacher for many years. After graduation from W&M, where she was a Kappa Delta, she was a field rep for the Red Cross in New Jersey and New York. Later, she worked for G.E. Then after her marriage, she moved to South America, before returning to Newton, Mass., in 1957. She is survived by her husband, a daughter and three sons.

I also have noted the deaths of Harriett Holland Barrett, of Cheyenne, Wyo., a Gamma Phi during her W&M years; and Harry Hammond Snyder of Winchester, Va., former president of MICO Corp. in Alexandria, where he assisted many community charitable enterprises. Navy service in World War II drew him to Hampden-Sydney. May they rest in peace, and may light perpetual shine upon them.

It's good to hear that Bill Smith of Richmond has been serving on the nominating committee for the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni.

Betsy Yow Pearce has just written me with her new address — 215 Beauchamp Place, Huntsville, AL 35802. Her husband had several tours of duty there at the Redstone Arsenal, totaling 12 years, so, "It's like coming back home." That's only a little more than an hour from Sewanee, and I hope we can get together. Betsy says they still retain their condo at Fort Myers, Fla., for winter use. There, they see Marian Smith Turner ("our husbands enjoy each other") and this year, they will see Marge Retzke Gibbs and Wayne, who also have their base there.

I received another fine letter from Lucile Fizer Gooch, Troy, Va., only 20 miles from the cultural amenities of Charlottesville. She says, "This is my first year of semi-retirement, which brings howls of laughter from family and co-workers." She was a teacher for 28 years. Her heightened voluntary services include tutoring at the high school, serving on the library trustee board, writing a history of the local library, and (especially) the Day Care Ministry at her church. Her three children and seven grandchildren are all within a half-mile radius, most unusual these days. As her husband has been in a heart rehab program, she has gone into adult fitness and is on the local American Heart Association Board.

She concludes, "We are fortunate to live in Virginia, where the honeysuckle is fragrant, the bobwhites call, the deer visit our front yard and the turkey inhabit our woods..."

Jack Bellis, a psychiatrist in Hamden, Conn., wrote a very interesting letter with news of his family and reflections on W&M. He says he never did graduate but "left in '43 after a rather extraordinarily disengaging year," then returned for two summers and a full year before going on to the Harvard Medical School. I think we'll all agree that the middle of World War II was an "extraordinarily disengaging" time with many displacements and doubts, and the loss of so many of our friends — the price of that time was very high.

Jack's sister, who died last year, also spent several summers at W&M, and his son Christopher, now a theater director, graduated in the Class of 1990. In August, he and Joyce will visit his son in Florida. He also has a son in Arizona, who is a lawyer for the Navajo Nation. He reports that, like me, he has a growing interest in the thought of Carl Gustav Jung, the Swiss psychoanalyst.

John and Marilyn Miller Entwisle continue a very active role with the Alumni Society. Living in Williamsburg, they have been generously available to serve the College. His picture in the last issue of the Alumni Gazette looks pretty trim and handsome.

Sunny Trumbo Williams was duly elected (as we had hoped) to the Society's Board of Directors. She and Rolf continue to live in Norfolk.

Come to visit us any time. We have plenty of room and lots of good things to show you. AND keep those letters and postcards coming. I NEED news!

Excuses, excuses — seems we are all prone to find them — and I do apologize for missing our column in the last issue. I did receive a few cards at Christmas which should have been recognized from those who were most appreciative of our great reunion and wrote while the warm glow was still with them. So thank you, one and all, for your kind words to your committee.

A news clipping from the Palm Beach News, Fla., last fall brought word of Barbara Bellen Lawless, who completed her master's degree in fine arts from Southern Connecticut College and has recently attended a graduate course at Harvard. She is a frequent teacher in her hometown of Westport, Conn., and in Palm Beach and conducted an acrylic workshop in Jupiter this winter. She has also exhibited with the Artist's Guild at the Norton Gallery of Art and in the Contemporary Art Show at the Society of the Four Arts.

Nancy Grube Williams and I had a most memorable dinner party at the home of Emerson Perkins Barrett and Ruth, just prior to their moving from their lovely Williamsburg home. Bucky and Ruth have returned to New England and are now making their home at 20 Pine Hill Road, New London, NH 03257. You both will be sorely missed in our area.

At the 170th commencement of the General Theological Seminary in New York City on May 20, 1992, one of the four honorary degrees of doctor of divinity was awarded to our own Pamela Pauly Chinnis. Since 1991 she has served as president of the House of Deputies of The General Convention of the Episcopal Church. Congratulations, Pam, on being recognized for your service to the church and concern for the ministry of women. We are all most proud of you.

Plans for Homecoming '92 are well underway for Oct. 15-18, with the added pleasure of the inauguration, on the 16th, of Timothy J. Sullivan '66 as the 25th president of the College. Each and every alumnus is invited to participate in this event in the

The Olde Garde Council, representing alumni whose classes graduated 50 or more years ago, met June 3 at the Alumni House and elected new officers for 1992-93. Joining Cecil C. Harper '34 of Richmond as chair are: Ann Reynolds Wood '37 of Bethesda, Md., vice chair; R. Bradshaw Pulley '39 of Virginia Beach, secretary; Virginia "Dinny" Forwood Wetter '40 of Havre de Grace, Md., treasurer. The Olde Garde will hold its annual Homecoming luncheon on Friday, Oct. 16, at the Williamsburg Hospitality House. For further details and to register, see the Homecoming insert in this issue of the Alumni Gazette.

Wren Courtyard at 10:30 a.m. I hope many of you will make plans to attend.

Just last week I accompanied Virginia Ratcliffe on a trek to New Jersey to visit Lucille McCormick Endler '45 where we were joined by Jean Taylor Delahanty '45 for a good mini-reunion. Ginny and I will leave for a two-week adventure to Alaska in a couple of weeks. My excitement level increases daily as I anticipate the events to be enjoyed and the spectacular scenery to be viewed. Now if the weather will cooperate!

You all know my address, it hasn't changed in many years, so send me a letter, a post-card, or something with news about you!

Summer has officially arrived in Williamsburg, and the crabgrass is thriving. It's green, though, so I just mow it along with the rest of the weeds, and then sit back and admire my carefully cut "lawn."

The grass wasn't growing here in February when Ed Griffin took a nostalgic trip to New Zealand (Revisited). He writes, "Highlights included seeing albatrosses soar again in Dunedin (poetry in motion), petting a kiwi named Chloe (plumage feels like damp human hair), an all-day train ride through lovely country from Auckland to Wellington, visiting Paradise, seeing old friends and learning a lot about cricket (the World Cup was being played). The country, like most others, has fallen on hard times, but the people are as friendly as ever and there is still no tipping!"

How good it was to hear from Betty Mullinix Morris. My last two Christmas cards finally caught up with her in Ocala, Fla., where she and her husband, Barry, moved last year. They had often visited Ocala while still living in Midlothian, liked it and decided it would become their retirement home. They do return to Virginia to visit because some of their children are still in the area. Sons John and David are in Virginia Beach (Hal lives in Florida) and their only daughter, LeAnn, is in law school right here at William and Mary. Hopefully we'll get together the next time they come to Williamsburg, and they can tell me all about those eight grandchildren.

One evening in early April I had a call from El Pendleton Monahan '49 who had accompanied her husband, Tom, to a conference here in Williamsburg. The very next afternoon she and I got together for a long-overdue visit. She and Tom, an attorney, live in Winchester, have five children, eight grandchildren, and El spends several days each week as a docent at the National Art Gallery.

Mark Waldo and wife, Anne Beekley '49, have built a lovely bed and breakfast in Montgomery, Ala., called "Red Bluff Cottage." Mark took early retirement after serving as rector of Ascension Church from 1962-1988. They are just back from a fine trip to the Cook Islands in the far reaches of the Pacific. During his years at W&M (interrupted by World War II) Mark was Phi Beta Kappa and ODK.

So many of you enjoy traveling. If you are searching for "solitude and professional hunting circumstances" Howard Hyle has found the perfect spot for you. He was attending a business meeting at a hunting lodge north of Stockholm, Sweden, recently when on an after-dinner walk he came face to face with a female moose. He said that for a couple of seconds the two of them just stood there, frozen in their tracks, staring at each other, before she turned and lumbered off. Now that's an experience you wouldn't soon forget. Howard also mentioned that Jay McOuat Hyle joined his family for a mini-reunion not long ago. Jay lives in the Atlanta area, enjoys Little Theatre and traveling.

Julia Woodbridge Oxrieder called the other evening to report that her brother, Hensley Woodbridge '43, had spent a week with her. Hensley lives in Carbondale, Ill., and teaches at Southern Illinois University.

Recently I had the opportunity to spend a delightful afternoon in a tranquil setting on Lake Powell Road (originally the old, old Jamestown Road) with Tom Mikula and his wife, Elva. They have restored a charming older home which was in Elva's family, and I could rave endlessly about that, but I must get on with the purpose of my visit.

Tom had offered to elaborate on the Bass-Tipton reunion and the members of our class who had attended. The idea for a reunion to honor Marvin Bass and Eric Tipton was born following a tribute to Jack Cloud '50 approximately two years ago. Lou Hoitsma, Tom Mikula and George "Buddy" Lex '49 chewed it over, and a committee was formed, headed by Lou and including Tom, Bob Steckroth and Jack Bruce '49. More than 300 men were contacted (those who had played under one or both of these coaches) and invited to participate. You can imagine the research entailed in locating these alumni; Tom says the Alumni Office was a tremendous help.

Well, it was obviously a success, for 200 alumni and their wives attended the dinner including from our class Knox Ramsey, Betty Lu '49 and Gus Calos, Ed Dunbar, Ralph Sazio, Bill and Lucy Murphy, Bob and Mary Lou Steckroth, Audrey '49 and Lou Hoitsma, Jack Hoey and Tom Mikula.

Tom mostly wanted to talk about the reunion, but I didn't want to leave before finding out how he had spent the last 40-some years. After graduating from William and Mary he earned his master's degree from Columbia University. In 1950 he returned to W&M to coach and teach for the next four years. From here he moved on to Rollins College where he worked in the admissions office for a couple of years. Then he headed north where he spent the next 10 years teaching math at Andover, on to Dartmouth for another eight years and finally served as headmaster at Kimball Union Academy in Meridan, N.H., for 15 years... an impressive and rewarding career in the field of education. And now he and Elva seem so very contented right here in Williamsburg. They have a son and daughter and five grandchildren.

I assume you have all received your letter regarding the 45th reunion in 1993 from Dusty Ash and Phyllis Struse Shook, and I hope many of you are making plans to attend. It's going to be an exciting year, one we can all look forward to!

When I agreed to take over as class reporter from Winston Jones Lata, I did so with the expectation that an active class such as ours would want to stay in touch through our exchange of news through the Alumni Gazette. I had noticed over a period of years that our class more frequently than not, had no news whatsoever. This, I thought, couldn't be possible. Now, I realize it is.

As something of a last call I urge you to take a moment and drop me a line, and let's have a column in the next issue befitting of the Class of '50.

Last week was my turn in the jury system and on our jury panel was a Randall Elliott. The name rang a bell and sure enough Randy was a Kappa Alpha in the class of '50. I hadn't seen him in 42 years. He's retired and just enjoying life here in Houston.

Last summer Jana and I took a cruise from London to Scandinavia and Russia (including a side trip to Moscow). Very interesting and worthwhile.

Later in the summer, as my 65th birthday present, we went to Chicago where I was the oldest participant in the Chicago Cubs fantasy camp at Wrigley Field. Got a hit off of Fergie Jenkins, and a few bumps and bruises, but it was a blast!

Again, please let me hear from you. Do it now while you're thinking about it. Thanks!

mittee! Bobbie Ramsey Brooks, Walt Leyland (cheerful and obedient chair, which can't surprise anyone), Jim and Nan Maurer Rosenbaum (Jim, how long did it take you to convince her), Ann Tankard, Polly Ann Stadel Wrinkle and your reporter.

Any thoughts you have of making it interesting — forward to any of us. And send your reservation in for the Hospitality House right now. It really is filling up. You should have received a letter with all the details.

Bob Thomas, I sure hope you get this issue 'cause it's the only way I have of telling you how happy we are that you're going to consent to print the Colonial Re-Echo again. My phone is broken. I guess my legs are soon to follow.

Two thoughts. Send me candid photos from school years. The more candid, the better. And preferably of other classmates so everyone will be surprised. I promise to return them, but you've got to print your name and address on the back of each one you send. Also give names of as many people in the pictures as you can. I'm going to do something with them.

Second thought. For the Re-Echo, think seriously of sending me something somewhat more personal than statistics (150 words maximum). Memories of life we lived together, a message you want to convey to a friend, even (God help us) some thoughts on self-awareness, or details of the outrageous stunt one of us pulled before going into a religious life. (We've got 11.) No, these are not guidelines from the College. It's me.

Got a great letter from Bob Bradley. Told me he was in a cab at 50th St. in New York, heading back to Boston and thought of me. (I can't even get a joke out of that.) He was here on business with his architectural firm that might bring him back to New York more frequently. Give them a low bid, Bob. I'll make sure it ends up being worthwhile to you.

Got a happy phone call from Beth Meyer Fox. Now it was noon New York time, but I got home at 5 a.m. the "night" before. All I've got are my notes which I will present exactly as I wrote them, since I have no memory of the conversation. "B.S. Nursing, UNC-Charlotte, Magna Cum Laude, National Honorary Nursing Society, Ecology Internship at Pres. Hospital." Looks like goals achieved or about to be undertaken. She was very happy about it all. Best of luck to the redhead.

Heard from Linda Thompson Yates, who is looking for Suzie Mann and Ralph Northrop. Linda is now the fiscal agent for the state of New Mexico and her address is 9217 Galaxia Way N.E., Albuquerque, NM 87111. (Doesn't anyone want Tom Lightner's address anymore?)

Ron Masnik '57, a great friend who helped prevent my being kicked out of my fraternity, just wrote arguing that he is much better looking than Gary Joachim '56 and Bob Ansell. And guys, Ron's address is... He's been working for a lotta banks but has now started his own firm to assist companies newly involved in international trade. He also represents the Belgian consul for the state of Washington. From Brooklyn?

Transition.
The irony is that the day my last column in the Gazette reached my doorstep containing my thoughts on the durability of relationships, I got a call from David Green that his mother, my beloved Adelaide Atkins, bravely and very gracefully gave up her year-long fight against lung cancer that morning. And Ruth Peterson, now you'll have to send me that picture of all of you gathered around the Theta Rock in springtime.

Mark those calendars for our 30th Reunion. Oct. 15-18 will prove to be most exciting for all who attend. Yes, it has been 30 years. Call up those classmates you went around with during those great college days. Get a group together and let's make this one the Best Reunion of the Class of '62.

Since no one sent any news, I am assuming that all of you are saving your news to tell me at the reunion. I am bringing reams of paper with me to record it all.

Jim and I will be at the reunion and we hope to see lots of you there. We also have another reason this year to come to Williamsburg. Our son, Ryan, who graduated from Virginia Episcopal School in Lynchburg, Va., will be attending the College as a freshman. He got accepted to the seven colleges he applied to, but his No. 1 choice was William and Mary. I did not twist his arm, contrary to popular belief. We are thrilled for him and delighted he'll be there.

30th Reunion

64 Ginnie Peirce Volkman 2400 Daphne Lane Alexandria, VA 22306

This fall and all of 1993 promise to be exciting times in the life of our alma mater. Homecoming '92 takes place Oct. 15-18, highlighted by the inauguration of Timothy J. Sullivan '66 as 25th president of the College. All alumni are invited to participate in this historic ceremony in the Wren Courtyard on Friday, Oct. 16, at 10:30 a.m. Of course, you can't miss the many and varied festivities planned next year for the College's Tercentenary. And then our 30th reunion comes up in 1994. That's three big years of celebration. So plan now for your trip back to the campus. And plan also to let me know of the latest happenings in your life.

The challenge sent out several columns ago to the Sig Eps was finally answered...not by a Sig Ep, but by a friend, Bill Fleming. Bill was inspired as he recalled a Sig Ep party with the Thetas on Oct. 4, 1962 (almost 30 years ago...what a memory!), when he met his college sweetheart and wife-to-be, Pam Wandell '65. Pam and Bill live at Foxlair Farm in Gaithersburg, Md. Pam has been a director at C-SPAN for 10 years. Bill is chief of the Program Management Office, Russia/Eurasia Division, at the Defense Intelligence Agency in Washington. Their daughters, Jennifer and Ashley, recently returned from attending college in Munich, Germany, and are now completing their degrees at George Washington University.

Bill and Pam attended our 25th Reunion with Sig Ep Braxton Garriss (from whom we look forward to hearing). Bill has also been in recent contact with another Sig Ep, Lew Wehner, his college roommate. Lew is living in The Woodlands, Texas. After serving as a Marine Corps aviator in Vietnam, Lew went with Continental Airlines and today is a senior captain flying the Airbus. Bill mentioned that they have made plans to attend Homecoming this October, including the Order of the White Jacket dinner. Yes, we all loved those King's Arms Tavern shirts! Well, Sig Eps, you have a true spokesperson in Bill. Now it's your turn.

Sarah Kemp Brady has once again and most deservedly been honored. As reported by the Richmond Times-Dispatch, it was March 2 at the Virginia Women's Conference sponsored by the Women's Resource Center at the University of Richmond. The theme of the event was "Developing Your Own Inner Power." Both Sarah and Phyllis Eason Galanti '63 were cited for their strength and leadership that stemmed from extreme tragedy. Phyllis's husband was a prisoner of war for seven years in North Vietnam and she led the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, a national movement seeking the return of American POWs. Her husband was released in 1973.

As you know, Sarah's husband, James Brady, former Reagan press secretary, was gravely wounded by an assassination attempt on the president and today remains partially paralyzed. Sarah cited the constant support by her friends, family and even strangers that gave her the "inner strength and unrelenting courage" to go on in the face of such tragedy. She said, "A woman's natural inclination is a responsibility to family. You are born with that, but you don't know if you have it until you are tested." Sarah's response to all the love and support has been to give back in kind. She has become involved in a variety of causes, including the National Head Injury Society and the National Easter Seal Society. And she remains constant as chair of Handgun Control Inc.

I had a nice chat with Sue Roache Warner, who recently served on the planning committee of the Greater Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter's Starlight Cruise. The luxury liner Potomac Spirit cast off for a 4-hour cruise on May 30 with a record chapter attendance of more than 300, all enjoying the Cajun dinner, live dance music, casino and auction, and defying the torrential rains of the evening.

Aboard besides Sue and her husband Ray Warner '63, were Sam Sadler and wife Mary Liz '65 who were accompanied by a large contingency from the College. Specially introduced were the recently inaugurated president of the College, Timothy Sullivan '66, and his wife Anne Klare Sullivan '66. Others from our class included Anne O'Hare Filippone, Pud Quaintance, Mary Ann Venner Schmidt, Joyce House Shields, Ethlyn

The Society of the Alumni wants your best recipes and College food memories for the upcoming William and Mary Cookbook, which will be published during 1993. See page 9 for form and details.

Abbott Owen, Roger Amole, Sharon Hall McBay and Laidler Freeman Campbell.

Laidler is an elementary school guidance counselor in Fairfax County and mentioned having one of the youngest families for a member of our class with a child age 4 at home still!

Sue said that this will be an annual event for the Metro D.C. chapter, and the record attendance brought unprecedented proceeds to benefit the Campaign for the Fourth Century and the chapter scholarship gift, as well as the chapter programming endowment for the Society of the Alumni.

As we chatted on, Sue mentioned what she called an "ironic and serendipity" happening, which I shall attempt to relate here since a similar happening may have occurred to others of you, given that for many of us our children are graduated, grown and marrying (not necessarily in that order).

Let me begin with the wedding in 1964 of Sue Roache to Ray Warner '63, in Williamsburg in the Wren Chapel. Participants in their wedding were Mary Jane Mitchell Stewart and Bill Stewart.

Now it is 1992 and as Sue says, "some torches are actually passed on." The Warners' daughter Megan Warner '91 plans to marry Bill McCamey '91 this Aug. 15 in Williamsburg, too, although at Bruton Parish; both mother and daughter marrying their William and Mary sweethearts and in Williamsburg. Now, guess who is the groomsman for the wedding...John Stewart '92, Mary Jane and Bill's son! Seems that this may be the beginning of a family tradition.

With that happy occasion in our thoughts, let me conclude with one final joyful note, and I hope I'm not being too presumptuous when I echo these felicitations to all who either last year, this year, or next year reach that grand milestone in life...Happy 50th Birthday to everyone!

Congratulations to Tim and Anne Klare Sullivan on his new position as 25th president of the College. As alumni, we can be pleased in knowing that our alma mater is in good hands — one of our own is running the show!

I recently received a letter from Carol Twigg. I hadn't heard from or about Carol in years. Since her W&M graduation, Carol received her Ph.D. in English literature at SUNY/Buffalo where she also taught English and women's studies and began her college administration career. In 1979, Carol moved to Saratoga Springs, N.Y., where she is associate vice president for academic programs and information technology at Empire State College, a non-traditional college, designed to serve working adults. This position gives Carol many opportunities to speak at conferences throughout the country.

Carol's son, Matthew Hinchey, is a senior at The Berkshire School in Sheffield, Mass. She met her husband, Mark Hopkins, at the racetrack in Saratoga — sounds intriguing. Mark's interest in thoroughbred horse racing has become a second career, as he writes for The Daily Racing Form.

This job really is fun when the letters from old friends arrive. Right after Carol's letter, I heard from Alan White. Alan lives in Falmouth, Mass. (Cape Cod) and is a marine scientist with the National Marine Fisheries Service in Woods Hole, with a specialty in red tides and marine toxins. (Alan, your Phi Beta Kappa credentials are obvious!) With his job, he has traveled to Canada,

CALLY GOES TO COLLEGE

September heralds new changes and signals a time of both beginnings and endings. Following is one alumna mother's bittersweet account of bringing her daughter to begin her freshman year at William and Mary in the fall of 1991.

By Judith Hawkins Coddling '63

This August morning I drove my second daughter toward Williamsburg, going fast down I-95 past Richmond. She slept peacefully on the van seat beside me, and I drifted backwards to another fall 32 years ago when I headed east to enroll in the College of William and Mary. Unlike Cally, I could not sleep because I was too scared, too excited with the prospect of the new life which loomed before me.

I came from small town Virginia, and I saw William and Mary as a large place. From the moment I arrived I never looked back. I loved it all — the friends, the parties, the beauties of the town. I developed intellectual curiosity. I matured there in a safe environment guided by the staid college faculty and friendly housemothers and supportive sorority sisters. I met a man whom I eventually married and live with still.

Cally could sleep this morning because she is far more sophisticated than that country girl of yore. She has traveled thousands of miles around this Western Hemisphere, while I had but twice been beyond the boundaries of Virginia. Cally's high school has prepared her well with advanced courses in science, history and mathematics, while my county high school lacked even a chemistry laboratory. My graduating class numbered 42, while Cally chose William and Mary because she wanted a small school. I had visited Williamsburg once before that day, and I knew only one other student. In addition to a number of friends and a sister on campus, Cally has alumni relatives galore. She has spent countless, sometimes boring, but always comfortable, hours in and around Williamsburg. No wonder she slept so soundly as we turned onto Richmond Road.

Yet, Cally faces a world fraught with far different concerns. The terms AIDS and date rape and STD were not yet invented in 1959. The dorms were not coed, and, for girls, the curfew was 7:00 on weeknights. The world was concerned with space exploration then, and the possibility of nuclear war was only a plot for science fiction. The bustling economy of the Eisenhower years differs sharply from today's troublesome recession where college graduates face unemployment.

But Cally is ready. She is a fine girl and I have every confidence that she will grow into a fine woman in the environs of the modern-day William and Mary. Some things remain the same. She will find lasting friends, intellectual challenges and just one last time of no big worries — just theoretical ones. Although Cally is far different from me, and William and Mary is a far, far different place, she, too, will love it. She left home this morning, and she will not look back.

On that afternoon many years ago I puzzled about why my mother slipped away and left me with no farewell. I was talking to a new friend, and she just disappeared. I concluded she did it to spare me the pain of parting. My life changed in the years that followed, and the girl who left home that morning never returned. This afternoon I stole silently away as Cally chattered animatedly on the phone. The lump in my throat consumed me. Suddenly, I was my mother, not my daughter.

Johanna Weekley '56 of Brinklow, Md., has been promoted to editor-in-chief of International Medical News Group (IMNG), medical publishers specializing in producing tabloid format, easy-to-read newspapers for physicians within specialty practices. Publisher of such medical journals as Family Practice News and Clinical Psychiatry News, the firm will expand the scope of its editorial mandate and intensify regular reporting in the Washington, D.C., area under Weekley's direction. Prior to her new appointment, she served IMNG as executive editor for 11 years, and as associate editor and later managing editor after joining the firm in 1968. During her tenure as executive editor, IMNG's medical news journals became the most widely-read independent publications among physician specialists in the nation. She is a member of the National Association of Science Writers.

FINCH NAMED VIRGINIA LOTTERY AMBASSADOR

Allen Finch '92 has been selected as a 1992 Virginia Lottery Ambassador. One of five college students or recent graduates selected, Finch traveled to various local fairs and community events throughout the state this summer providing informational services, distributing promotional items and offering lottery tickets for sale. A government major, Finch visited a variety of unique events, including the Chincoteague Pony Round-Up, the Old Fiddlers Convention, Galax, and the Virginia Wine Festival.

Japan and Israel. Alan has three sons: Elijah, who is a sophomore at Harvard, and Nathan and Benjamin (twins), who are high school sophomores. Alan also mentioned that his brother Perry White '63, is with Pontiac at the headquarters in Pontiac, Mich.

Ellen Allison Wandrei has turned her history degree into a career as director of the Bedford Museum in Bedford, Va. Prior to this appointment, Ellen was a part-time curator, third grade teacher, and Parks Service guide. Now she is also a fund-raiser, as the museum needs additional funds to keep up its 1896 building. Ellen is married to attorney Robert Wandrei and is the mother of two sons.

Another big-time fund-raiser is Bill Rountree, previously renowned as a hell-raiser! Bill has been selected president and chair of the Medical College of Hampton Roads Foundation, the fund-raising arm of the Eastern Virginia Medical School. "Tree" is an executive officer for NationsBank, with a long history of fund raising. He raised $5 million for Children's Hospital of The King's Daughters and was a past president and campaign chair for the United Way of Hampton Roads, during a $12 million campaign.

Leon Bly was introduced to Stuttgart, Germany, by Uncle Sam after graduation. Then he spent the next 15 years in the States, getting his Ph.D. and master of music divinity degrees at the University of Miami, and serving as the assistant professor of music education at Concord College in Athena, W.Va. Then in 1981, Leon returned to Stuttgart where he currently serves as chair of the wind department and director of the Symphonic Youth Wind Orchestra at the Stuttgart Music School.

Dick found an article and picture on Alan Mollohan in USA Today. Al is a U.S. congressman from West Virginia, and was in a tight race against another incumbent when the state was redistricted.

I talked to Clyde Culp '65 recently, and he and Mary Ellen Coleman have relocated to the Memphis area after a short stint in Dallas. Their summers and holidays are still spent in their Annapolis home, which is being refurbished this year, leaving them quartered on their sailboats! Sounds good to me.

We also had a visit from Dick Weber '65 in the spring when he and his wife, Linda, and oldest daughter, Lee, were in North Carolina college-shopping. One of the high spots of their visit was when Dick pulled out his old college pictures — it's so much fun to reminisce with special college friends.

My sister-in-law, Sandy McNeill Kern '68, will be finishing up her divinity degree with a two-week trip to Israel for her final credits. Sandy still has ordination exams to complete and then she will be ready for a call. She and Dave are located in McAllen, Texas, and for the past year, Sandy has been commuting to Austin for her courses.

I just talked to Denny Taylor Kelly, with plans to meet at the Triad Alumni Chapter's party later in the summer. Denny has just finished training for the Big Sister program and is waiting to have a child assigned to her. With grown children, she's looking forward to having someone to share adventures at the zoo and Disney movies.

Denny mentioned that she was meeting Pat(sy) Adams Clark in Charlottesville this summer when Pat's son, Graham, is there for soccer camp. Pat is a computer systems analyst living in Colorado Springs, Colo. She also has a daughter, Jennifer.

Our oldest son, Scott, got married in late July. Being parents of the groom is fun; and I thought God gave me sons because I didn't like to shop. I also saw that Lou Holtz was coming to Greensboro in July, so Dick '64 will try to catch up with his ex-coach. Lou is regularly here for the Greater Greensboro Open, but there is very little time to visit during the scheduled events.

I always hate to read pleas from class reporters for news, but then I wasn't a class reporter before. Put me on your Christmas card list, your sorority/fraternity newsletter list, your round-robin letter, whatever. Keep it short, but please share what's going on in your life. You really don't want to hear about our new puppy.

After several years at Northern State University in Aberdeen, S.D., and four as chair of the department of mathematics and natural sciences, Lynn Hodgson has accepted a new position to build a science program at the University of Hawaii, West Oahu. Presently a senior college in Pearl City, the University of Hawaii will be adding freshman and sophomore classes (to offer a four-year curriculum) and will build a campus west of Honolulu or Oahu. Lynn wrote enthusiastically about this opportunity to get in on the ground floor of a relatively new and expanding university. She looks forward to getting back to her seaweed research... "Obviously, I couldn't do much of that in South Dakota!" Lynn keeps in touch with Gail Whitaker, president of the faculty senate, and member of the physical education department at San Francisco State University.

The Alumni Office sent copies of two articles indicating head football coach Jimmie Laycock has been on the local fund-raising trail. Jimmie and his golf partner won first place in the William and Mary Quarterback Club's Inaugural golf outing at the Golden Horseshoe on May 18.

Also, the American Heart Association sponsored a Cardiac Arrest Event... Local "celebrities," including Jimmie, were arrested and placed in the stocks and pillories while the public bid on their bail.

I look forward to a visit from Dale Brubeck in October when she'll address our Northern New Jersey Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae group.

Hope the brevity of our column will encourage you to take pen in hand and send along your news!

Have a nice fall!

An appropriate title for this column is "News Briefs" or "Brief News" since we're catching up with just two classmates. There should be plenty of news after we all converge on Williamsburg for our 20th reunion! The dates are Oct. 15-18. Is that as hard for everyone else to believe as it is for me?

From Ada, Ohio, comes news that Louis Lobenhofer has been appointed to associate dean for law career services and director of law admissions at Ohio Northern University. He had been a law professor there. Louis received his J.D. from the University of Colorado School of Law and his LL.M. in taxation from the University of Denver.

Have you been looking for a reasonable getaway weekend idea? Consider paying a visit to Mary's Country Inn in the Shenandoah Valley, run by our own Mary Woodward Clark and husband Jim. They have been the innkeepers of this seven-bedroom inn for the past 10 years and love it. It sounds like there are plenty of interesting things to do and see nearby — after you have your country inn breakfast. They are offering a 10 percent discount to members of our class through 1993, plus some nice extras when you mention the Alumni Gazette.

Since this issue includes the special insert full of Homecoming news, I won't repeat the particulars, but I do hope to see lots of you there. It sounds like it really will be "A Class Act." And it isn't every year you can see a new president of the College inaugurated, so if you can make it on Friday morning at 10:30 in the Wren Courtyard, come and be a part of history in the making.

Hard to believe that it's time for Homecoming again, but our 18th reunion is here. Those of us who live close by will probably drive down for the day, but we all know that the really big event will be two years from now, at our 20th.

However, this Homecoming has its own special drawing card, no matter what your graduation date, because the new president, Tim Sullivan '66, will be inaugurated at the Wren Building and all alumni are welcome to attend the ceremony. The Alumni Society has arranged a pleasant sunny autumn weekend for your convenience, so we hope to see plenty of classmates at the festivities.

I heard from Sara Cheney Strom a few months ago: she and her husband John moved from Reston to Roanoke last year after having lived in the D.C. area since graduation.

Sara had been working as a librarian for the U.S. Information Agency first as chief of reference services and then as manager of the inhouse online and CD-ROM databases used by the USIA's 160 overseas libraries. She found the people and the foreign travel fascinating but admits that the bureaucracy was wearing her down after all those years. So when John's firm, Coopers & Lybrand, opened an office in Roanoke and asked him to transfer, the timing was right for a change.

Sarah and John just had their second son, Christian Maxwell, this past April (first-born Johnny is 4) and Sara has enjoyed the change from big city to small town. She says Roanoke is low on hassles and high on good schools, and she plans to be home with the boys for the immediate future. She hopes that she'll have time for a big garden, some golf, and maybe a class at Virginia Tech. Since they have moved, the Stroms have seen Tom Epps and his family in Lynchburg where Tom has a family medicine practice.

Nancy Dutro was recently appointed education coordinator of the Waterman's Museum in Yorktown, a position that has her working with local schools and universities to develop student programs and train museum volunteers. Nancy received her undergraduate degree from Miami University in Ohio but got her master's in education at W&M.

Well, it was bound to happen sooner or later: our first classmate retirement. Tommy Terry was profiled in the Appomattox Times-Virginian a couple months ago, giving us an opportunity to catch up on his life since graduation, and the article reveals that Tommy has retired at age 40. After a varied career as a drugstore clerk, bank teller, student (received his M.S. from Longwood in 1983), bookkeeper, Spanish and Latin teacher at the local high school, author of two books, and farmer, Tommy has officially retired.

What does he like best about being retired? "The hours." But Tommy is not rocking on the porch. He is busy writing a play about Appomattox during the Civil War, restoring his old farmhouse, and staying active in the Presbyterian church and other local drama and art societies. Anyone else in our class retired yet?

New to Richmond from the D.C. area is Marian Sayre Oreska, her husband Julius, and their two young sons. Marian and Julius met just after graduation when both worked at the Federal Reserve in Washington, and while Marian has temporarily retired to be home with the boys, Julius's job took him to the Richmond Federal Reserve branch. They bought a home on the west side of Richmond and made the move in June.

Back in the Burg are John and Elizabeth Shank Hollis and their three children, who took up residence after a hectic stint in the Maryland suburbs of D.C. John is a consulting marketing rep with IBM and commutes to their Richmond office each day. Elizabeth has just started back to school at W&M to get another 30 post-graduate hours in counseling (she already has her master's degree) in order to become licensed as a professional counselor. Since their move, the Hollises have found that all of their IBM friends suddenly want to come stay with them and visit Colonial Williamsburg — the perils of living in a popular town.

John related with relish the events of the 40th birthday party he had attended in L.A. for his old (oops — former) roommate, Mark Young. Mark's wife Sabrina had planned a surprise party and carried it off with such success that Mark suspected nothing. She lured him to a restaurant where his parents, brothers, sister, work friends and college friends had gathered, including several W&M classmates.

Tom Karo and his wife flew in from their home in Gloucester, Va., (Tom works for Busch in Williamsburg), Mac and MJ Conway came from Moline, Ill., where Mac manages a $3 billion (yes, Billion) dollar pension fund for John Deere, and Vicky Holt Abramson and her husband Steve '71 drove in from their nearby home in L.A. Vicky teaches fourth grade and Steve is the director of a new TV show for children starting in the fall. Mark is now a vice president with Hanna-Barbera and John reports that there were many Hollywood type folk — directors, producers, animators and such — at the party. (He especially remembered the woman who Barry L. Beers '74, '77 M.Ed., '83 C.A.S., '88 Ed.D., principal of York High School in Williamsburg, has been selected as 1992 Outstanding Secondary School Principal of Virginia. Announced at the annual Virginia Middle and High School Principals' Conference and Exposition in June in Williamsburg, the award, presented "In Honor of Excellence," recognizes outstanding principals and teachers who are representatives of the best in their profession. A teacher and coach at Lafayette High School in Williamsburg from 1975 to 1984, Beers served the school as assistant principal for four years prior to his appointment as principal at York High School in 1988. In 1990, York High School was one of 24 schools selected by the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development (ASCD) to participate in a three-year High School Futures Planning Consortium. A member of the state and national Association of Secondary School Principals (ASSP) and the York Management Association, Beers currently serves the ASCD on its high school of the future planning committee. The recipient of the national ASSP award of excellence for developmental coach of school principals, he has also been presented with certificates of achievement for the Assessment Center Training Seminar and for supervising instruction and enhancing staff development.

also working on a graduate program in marketing. For a little Sigma Pi trivia, Mark still keeps an oscar (former fraternity mascot fish!) in his aquarium.

Tim Davidson is now living in Greenwich, Conn., and works on Wall Street exchanging currencies. He and his wife, Nancy, have three children. Joe is able to visit them periodically when he is in New York on business.

Congratulations to Brian Keith Blount who received a Ph.D. in religion from Emory University in Atlanta this spring.

Two of our classmates were recently inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame at William and Mary. Jim Kruis set the career standard for rushing yards (2,404 yards) during his football days as starting tailback. His record stood until 1990. Jim is currently teaching and coaching football at Garden Spot High School in New Holland, Pa. He completed his master's degree in counselor education at Millersville University in 1990. He and his wife, Dawn, live in Leola, Pa. Dave Lipinski still holds the college pole vault record of 16' - 8 1/2." Following a training accident in '77, which shattered his right arm and corrective surgery from which doctors believed he would never pole-vault again, he returned and successfully defended his title in 1978. Following graduation, he went on to qualify for the Olympic trials in 1980 while living in California.

Susan Strommer was recently named partner in the law firm of Powell, Goldstein, Frazer & Murphy in Washington, D.C. She concentrates in international trade law and litigation, with special emphasis on unfair trade practice disputes. She received her law degree from University of Wisconsin School of Law.

In closing, I would like to share a very special letter with you from our classmates, Greg and Martha Young Blus. They are living in Winnetka, Ill., a northern Chicago suburb. Greg completed a master's degree in business and has been in the investment field for 11 years. Martha had a career in information systems since graduation. Recently she has "retired" to devote full time and effort to adopting a child and becoming an at-home mom. I learned a tremendous amount from their letter about the process of independent adoption today. They are currently searching for a birth-mother and have undertaken an effort to network through friends, relatives and colleagues to fulfill their dream. I have no doubt from their letter that they would make loving parents and would have a wealth of things to offer a child. I wish them all the best! If you know of any information that may help Greg and Martha, I have material from them that I will be glad to pass along if you will contact me at my home address.

I look forward to seeing you at Homecoming this year AND next! Send me a note for our next column!

Happy end of summer to you all! I hope this summer was enjoyable and, even though there's never a good time to take off from work, you found the time to get away — even if it was just in the backyard. As I write this, I'm not yet sure what I'll do for vacation, but may wait 'til the fall. I'll keep you posted.

There's not much news to report this time, so I'll keep it short. With my track record, it's easier to get off a short column, so all the better!

Terri Wickley Wise writes from the Lonestar State. Terri has extended an open invitation to any of "the old gang" who may be traveling to Dallas to stop in and visit her and her husband, John Wise '78. She and John were married after graduation and moved to Dallas, where John was finishing law school. Terri worked for Arthur Young & Co. (predecessor to Ernst & Young) and then, after a couple of years, left to work for an independent oil company as controller. A few years later, after John was elected to the partnership at his firm, Terri "semi-retired," and traded her office job for a home job raising their two children, Allen Walter and Mary Jean, now almost 5 and 2, respectively. I'm sure Terri's current job is just as, if not more, fulfilling, although in different ways!

Tony Crowley writes from Waterford, Va., where he and his wife, Terry, live with their two children, Nathan, going on 4, and Julia, a bit over 1. Tony graduated from MCV (Medical College of Virginia) and completed his residency at Eastern Virginia. Currently, he practices family medicine with the Leesburg/Sterling Family Practice in Loudoun County. Tony wants to know... Hunt Hall, the Vikings and the Mexico Team... where are you?

A mini-reunion was held in July 1991 at the wedding of Dave Lucas and Tracy Judd in Somerville, N.J. A quick listing of those in attendance included Mark Kehoe '82, Don Morris '82, Bud '82 and Sherri Sell Phillips '83, Mark '80 and Julie Doolittle Andino '83, Jack '81 and Marcia Seymour Horst '82, Dave Martin '82, Steve and Leslie Tang '82, Jim and Marilyn Peworcik '82 and Ed (Tyler Hall) and Drew Murphy. Phew!! The group even belted out their own rendition of the fight song! This past January, Dave was made a partner in the firm of Wolff, Helies and Duggan, in Red Bank, N.J., which specializes in insurance defense law. The most recent news from the Lucas household, however, is the arrival of twin sons, Morgan John and Kevin Francis. I think we better alert the Admissions Office to reserve two spots for the class of 2013 for Morgan and Kevin! Congratulations on all the happy occasions in the past year or so!

Tom Shannon sent a letter while between posts. This past May, he completed his tour as special assistant to the ambassador in Brasilia, Brazil, and will be heading to Johannesburg, South Africa, in the fall. Tom will be stationed at the Consulate General where he will have responsibility for regional labor affairs, and work with the trade union movements throughout the area, including Namibia, Botswana, Zimbabwe, Mozambique, Swaziland and Lesotho. Tom and his family, which includes his wife, Maria Guisela, and their two sons, Thomas Edward and John Andrew, are in the D.C. area for the summer on home leave, during which time they will visit Maria's family in Guatemala. Tom also extends an invitation to those who might be traveling to South Africa to stop in and visit!

I recently heard from one person from whom we haven't heard in years; I remember several people asking for him at the 10th year reunion. With all he's been doing, I can see why Pat Warfle has had little time to drop a line. You're forgiven this time, Pat, but don't let it be so long until the next time! (Most of the following is provided by Pat verbatim; I guess you can say I'm taking advantage of some help thrown my way!) Pat and his wife, Jane Bush '82, make their home in the Mount Vernon area. The Warfle family includes three children, ages 7, 4 and 1. Jane keeps busy getting a new shopping mall service-oriented business off the ground and managing family-owned rental property.

This past March, Pat completed a hectic yet rewarding tour as the first Defense Intelligence Agency representative to the commander-in-chief, U.S. Atlantic Command in Norfolk, Va. His Norfolk assignment involved ensuring that the best possible intelligence support was provided to the Atlantic commander and his deployed forces during a period which saw Operation Desert Storm, the dissolution of the Soviet Union, and political/military instability in the Caribbean and Latin America. Upon successful completion of the "field tour" Pat returned to Washington, where he now serves as chief of DIA's Imagery Operations, Plans and Policy Office.

Somewhere along the way, Pat has managed to complete a master's program in government and national security studies at Georgetown, serves in the Naval Reserve as an officer, and is active in scouting. Prior to his employment at the DIA, Pat was a committee research assistant on Capitol Hill, and was very active in state politics, serving as a "major party's" delegate to the Virginia nominating convention. I'm sure there is plenty more to tell, but I think we'll just have to get Pat to W&M to hear it in person!

This got to be a bit longer than anticipated. Part of the reason can be tied to all of the interesting endeavors taken by so many of our classmates. I continue to be amazed at the collective accomplishments! Anyway, please keep me in mind and drop me a note of all of the current happenings in your life — I'm running low on news! Until then, enjoy and take care.

By the time you read this column, Homecoming will be just weeks away. Frank and I are hoping to attend the big event, so I'm looking forward to seeing as many of you as possible in person to find out what you've been up to. The dates are Oct. 15-18, and this issue includes a special insert with all the details and registration form.

In the meanwhile, several classmates wrote regarding their Homecoming plans, including Pat Raymond who is making a very generous offer. Pat's inviting all her friends to visit and/or stay at her place in Norfolk. She cautions, however, that you'll likely need a sleeping bag. In July, Pat completed her specialty training in gastroenterology at Medical College of Virginia and entered a group practice in Norfolk.

Perhaps the most ambitious trip back to the Burg will be undertaken by Adriana Duynstee-Alvarez, who is presently living in Belgium. Adriana is a lawyer with the European Court of Justice in Luxembourg, and has been married since 1983.

David Oliver, who is also planning to attend the Homecoming festivities, wrote in for the first time since graduation! After W&M, David attended the Florida State University College of Law, receiving his degree in 1985. Since then, he has been practicing with an Orlando, Fla., firm and specializing in commercial litigation for corporate clients. David is looking forward to catching up with old friends, especially his fraternity brothers from Sig

Laurie Merrified Nelson is also hoping to make it back to Williamsburg this fall. Laurie and husband Tom, who were married in 1987, had their first child in April, daughter Elizabeth Rosemarie. The family lives in Chicago where Tom is an urban planner and Laurie works in the accounting department of American Eagle Airlines.

Turning to other news, I received a terrific letter from Laura Akerhielm, who has stayed in touch with several of the women who spent their freshman year in Hunt Hall. Laura's life has been a real whirlwind for the past 18 months. Between career moves from North Carolina to New Jersey to Kentucky, Laura has become engaged! She and fiancée Bernd are planning to marry in October.

Laura also writes that Debbie Hammond Middleton, husband Robert, and daughters Lauren and Morgan are leading an active life in Mississippi. Rob is a doctor for the Richard A. Williamson has been named acting dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, succeeding Timothy J. Sullivan '66 who became the College's 25th president on June 1. Williamson, vice dean and Chancellor Professor of Law, joined the faculty in 1970. He will serve until a permanent replacement is named.

U.S. Air Force, while Debbie works with educational software. The family enjoys water skiing, fishing and "cutting" (a form of calf roping, we think).

In addition, Laura informs me that Linda Lynch is doing well and living in Tampa. Finally, Laura writes that Joanne Fenity Zapicchi and husband Michael are expecting their second child. The Zapicchis, who live in New Jersey, have what Laura describes as a great house out in the country.

Another growing family is that of Carol Doub Kelly '83 and husband Brent '83. Carol gave birth to a second son, Dillon O'Brien, in April. The Kellys have returned to the Northeast from South Carolina, and are now living in Cross River, N.Y.

I heard from Leannah Harding, who recently earned a paralegal certificate from George Washington University and is now working for an FCC law firm in Washington, D.C. Leannah writes that this position also makes use of her M.S. in mass communications, since most of the work involves television and radio. Before joining the legal practice, Leannah spent five years with a company that does captioning for the hearing-impaired. She and her husband of three years, Paul Chernoff, live in Arlington.

Also enjoying a new position is Barbara Heath, who is now the director of archaeology at Poplar Forest, Thomas Jefferson's 18th-century summer home located in Bedford, Va. Prior to this assignment, Barbara served as acting director of archaeology at Monticello. She earned both master's and doctoral degrees in American civilization and historical archaeology at the University of Pennsylvania after graduating from W&M.

Kevin Doyle sends greetings from Charlottesville where he, wife Jacque, and 2-year-old son Connor are living. Kevin is currently working with Deep Run Lodge, a treatment program for the chemically addicted. On Sept. 23, the program is sponsoring a charity golf tournament at the South Wales Golf Club in Warrenton. For you golfers, participating in this event would also offer an opportunity to spend time with some fellow alumni since Jon Huddleston, Jim Riley '81, Mike Sholer '83, Joe Claytor '83 and Herb Hecht '86 J.D. are all on the tournament committee. What's more, Roy Dunn, Steve Cooley, Mike Lorch '85 and J. D. Neary '85 are expected to play. For more information, contact Kevin at 703/752-4619.

Physician Dave Haden has been living a real-life Northern Exposure. He's currently working as the only doctor on Prince of Wales Island, where he reports a challenging number of cuts to stitch from fishing hooks and saws. For the past two years, Dave has been employed by KRON Medical, a firm which places doctors in temporary assignments across the country. So far, Dave has been in 14 settings, including a Native American hospital in Oklahoma, the middle of the Arizona desert, a coal-mining town in West Virginia, logging towns in Arkansas and Maine, and a V.A. hospital in Texas.

Dave also spent three months as a missionary volunteer doctor in Taitung, China, where he met his girlfriend Mae, an interpreter who will be coming to live in the U.S. next year. Dave received his M.D. in 1987 from Washington University in St. Louis and completed his residency in internal medicine at the Washington Hospital Center in Washington, D.C.

Also doing some fascinating business travel is Bob Meybohm. Bob sent me a postcard from Singapore where the satellite business is apparently booming. He also plans to visit Thailand and the United Arab Emirates before returning home. Bob notes that Singapore is very clean and orderly, but somewhat regimented. For example, gum-chewing is forbidden! He also warns that buying a beer will set you back a costly $5.

I hope as many of you as possible are able to attend our upcoming 10-year reunion. Until then, take care.

Creative consultant for the Martin Agency during the past several months, he assisted in the acquisition of a high-profit account with Mercedes-Benz, of which he will remain part of the management group. Prior to his employment with the agency, he had worked as a copywriter at Cargill, Wilson & Acree and as chief creative officer at Earle Palmer Brown advertising agency. I hear that Washington, D.C., will never be the same after the incredible festivities that occurred on May 30 — the wedding of Henry Plaster '85 and Christi Bruns! Although I unfortunately had to work over that weekend, I heard from far and near how lovely the day was. The evening ceremony was held at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Alexandria, which is just one block from Christi and Henry's new home! The Decatur House, located across Lafayette Park from the White House, was the beautiful and most appropriate setting for the reception. As most of you know, Henry works in the Office of Legislative Affairs at the White House. A twist to the story is that they had a GREAT band, the very band that Bill Clinton played sax with recently! Despite the pouring rain all day, W&M friends came from all around to witness the nuptial vows!

Bart Edmunds '85, Mark Franko '85 and Dan Head '85 served as groomsmen. Both Bart, who is living in Roanoke, and Dan, who is living in Indianapolis, are recent new fathers — Bart's son is named Morgan Adair and Dan and J. J. Head named their new son Brian. J. D. Neary '85 and Tracy Sinnott '85 hosted a party during the day for the Tribe guests, which were many. Adam Anthony '87 and his wife, Jenny, Jeff Bishop, John and Amy Boyd '85, Jim and Karin Calpin '87, Mary Kach Chapin '85 and her husband, Doug, Gregg Crump '85, who was busy planning his own wedding to Tricia in June, Kevin and Aimee Davis '87, Mike and Chris Dingman '86, Rob and Lori Haislip, who are living in Richmond, Jeff and Mary Kushan '85, Robbie and Allison Laney '85, Lori Lovgren '87, Andy Morse, Judy Norman '83, Mike and Jane Powell '85, Dave Redmond '86, Ken Rogich '86 and his fiancée, Karen, who are also busy planning a June wedding, Alison Sellin '85, Bill Sykes '86 and Scott Ukrop '85, with his wife, Lilo, all ventured to the Capitol City to celebrate this most special day.

Henry and Christi honeymooned in Jackson Hole, Wyo., where they rented a four-wheel drive truck (in true Henry style) and spent a week traveling through the Grand Tetons and Yellowstone. They returned to their wonderful new home in Alexandria.

April 25 was a big day in the city of Atlanta! Greg Park '83 married Vikki Wright and many W&M friends made the trip from far and near to join in the celebration. The reception was at the Planters, a beautiful old antebellum home that has been restored and is an incredible setting for a lovely wedding celebration. W&M friends included Mark Forde '83 and Mary Obata, who are planning a November wedding, Mike Lorch '85, who is working for Price Waterhouse in the Big Apple and Mike and Becky Rogers Voslow '83, who recently (according to Greg) bought a "mansion" in McLean.

Howie and Bonnie Horowitz ventured from Northern Virginia as well, where Howie has started his own commercial real estate brokerage and consulting firm, and Bonnie is marketing manager for Chevy Chase FSB.

Hank and Val Stiffler Suessmith are living in Conyers, Ga., where Hank is an attorney in Decatur and Val is the adult education coordinator for Rockdale County Schools and is on the faculty at Clayton State College. Mark and Anne Kirk Genshimer joined in the festivities and it was especially wonderful that they came, because they were the ones who introduced Greg and Vikki to each other! Mark and Anne have three children and are undergoing a major addition to their home, which is in the same neighborhood with Vikki and Greg!

Kevin McGahren '83 brought his fiancée, Lori Clemmons. They are planning an August wedding. Kevin is a brand manager for Kraft Foods and Lori is completing her Ph.D. in English at Northwestern. They both live in Chicago.

Kevin Doyle '82 gets the best efforts award! He drove all day on Friday from Charlottesville, Va., read at the wedding, attended the reception and then drove back to Charlottesville on Saturday night so that he could attend Father Ron's wake on Sunday. Kevin, and his wife, Jacquie, and son Connor, live in Charlottesville. Jacquie is studying toward her doctorate in business administration from the Darden School at U.Va., and Kevin

SULLIVAN NAMED TO SPORTS TASK FORCE

President Timothy J. Sullivan '66 has been named by Gov. L. Douglas Wilder to a state task force which will study college sports. College athletes, coaches and university presidents make up the Task Force on Intercollegiate Athletics, which was formed in response to an athletic loan problem at the University of Virginia. The 15-member task force will study financial control of athletic programs, academic performance of athletes and gender equality in sports. Other college presidents on the task force are Harrison Wilson, Norfolk State University; Eugene Trani, Virginia Commonwealth University; James Koch, Old Dominion University; and Belle Wheelan, Central Virginia Community College.

runs an alcohol and substance abuse clinic near Charlottesville.

Linda Cottle '83 gets the long distance award because she flew in from Hawaii and greeted both Vikki and Greg with authentic Hawaiian wedding leis! She was on her way back from a business trip to Hawaii! Congratulations, Greg and Vikki — it sounds like it was an exciting day!

News from nearby Taylors, S.C. ... Scott Chahal writes that he continues to enjoy his position as general sales manager for Reeves International. The printing products division that Scott manages has wonderful people and allows him to travel extensively throughout the U.S., Canada and Latin America. Scott just returned from a trip to Argentina and Chile.

Other '84 Indians Scott has been in touch with recently include Mark Rogers, who is slaving away at a law firm in N.Y.C. After a stint in the Navy, Mike Ard is doing his graduate work at U.Va. John Carbone continues to enjoy his work at U.Va. Scott hopes to hear from any old TKE's who come his way!

Speaking of John Carbone, John dropped me a note from his home in Charlottesville. After four years of residency at U.Va., John became board-eligible in general psychiatry. He now plans to move to Charleston, W.Va., where he will be employed at a community mental health center, with some additional teaching responsibilities through the medical school at West Virginia University. He has purchased a late 19th-century home on a hill overlooking the capitol and the Kanawha River, and he is looking forward to decorating with period furniture. John will also be doing some part-time work in forensic psychiatry (court-appointed evaluations of the criminally insane.) Sounds like John is going to be busy!

Susan Allan-Burnett sends exciting news from Arlington that she and her husband, Bob, just celebrated the birth of their first child, Thomas Childes Burnett, born on Leap Year Day! After receiving a master's of library science from the University of Maryland in 1989, Susan currently works for the Arlington County Public Schools as a library media specialist. She works alongside fellow W&Mer Mary Gibson '86 who is a first grade teacher.

Another Northern Virginia birth to report — Donald Gibson and his wife Karen are the proud parents of daughter Taylor Glenn Gibson, born on April 16, 1992. Karen and Donald report that Taylor, their first child, is a pure joy! Donald celebrated another big event this year, with the founding of his own insurance agency, Taylor, Herring & Gibson. Congratulations on both accounts!

I spoke with Lydia Bergman Joyce '87 several weeks ago. Lydia is living in Chicago and working for a small computer consulting firm. One of Lydia's work associates is moving to Charlotte and I am looking forward to meeting her.

I've visited with Alison Hawley several times — she is enjoying life in nearby Winston-Salem, where she works for Hanes Hosiery and is taking up golf. Next time we get together, maybe we'll head out to the driving range!

David and I are keeping busy with the house and the garden here in Charlotte. We traveled to Bar Harbor, Maine, to celebrate my 30th birthday and drove by an Inn named The William and Mary! Be sure to look for it next time you are up North!

Hello! Once again, summer comes to a close; hope you all found time for fun! As always, many of you have written to share the latest news with me, so without further ado, read on!

Best wishes are in order for Jennifer Wargo Sapnar '88 and husband Mike '88, who tied the knot this past May here in McLean, Va. What a beautiful wedding ceremony! The bride was beautiful, the groom amazingly calm! Attendants included Caitlin Wargo '89, Page Seckman '88 (who's in med school in Georgia), Charles Miscio '88 (he and new bride Shannon were married in early June — hope the honeymoon in Colorado was adventurous!); and Mark Sweet '88. Chip Esten '87 sang a beautiful rendition of Irving Berlin's "Always" — I saw quite a few teary eyes! — and Monique Travelstead '88 read a moving excerpt from Kahil Gibran's The Prophet.

The guest list was filled with W&Mers, including Theta Delts Chad Peterson '88 (working in the political arena here in Washington); Tom Blackwood (doing SEC-related legal research here in Washington); Jeff Mosher '85 (and wife Liese Cochran Mosher '87, who tells me that they are busy sprucing up their new townhouse in Alexandria); John Reynolds '88; Doug Brinkley (we missed Ellen Thompson Brinkley, who had a prior family commitment); Jeff McQuilken; Sujit Mohanty '88 (who is in dental school and will be getting married next year); Chris Neikirk '88, Paul Moser '88 and Clem Chang. As for the women (most of whom it seemed were wearing blue and white polka-dot dresses. I wore pink, of course), guests included Christie Checkel '88 (who studied art history in Denmark this summer); Tracy Morris '88 (working in marketing); Patti Hanson Esten '87 (who tells me that former roommate Lisa Maruca is happily married and working on her graduate degree at Case Western University in Ohio); Cathy Puskar '89 (who had been accepted by a number of law schools when last we spoke and was not sure which one she'd be attending. Much luck to you!); Courtney Joyner '87; Shawn McDaniel Simms '88 (still doing a great job as a teacher in Baltimore); and Susie Brinkley Means '88 (whose husband, John Means '88, has just started a new career as a stockbroker at Legg Mason. Good luck! Hope Ellen is being nice to you!)

Rounding out the guest list were Mark Lewis '88 (an attorney at the SEC) Matt Clarke '88 (who recently proposed to Mary Ann James '89 and will tie the knot next year), and many other friends and family members. A great time was had by all, despite the rainy weather. Jen and Mike honeymooned on the island of Antigua and are now back in the Big Apple enjoying married life. Best wishes to you both! It was a wonderful wedding!

Congratulations to Scott Ukrop '85 and wife Lilo Simmons Ukrop who are expecting a baby this fall. I know you'll be great parents! Bet Jim '60 and Bobbie Berkeley Ukrop '61 are thrilled! Rob '82 and Trish Brinkley '80 have already made grandparents out of Jim '59 and Dana Brenner Brinkley '60. Daughter Mary Brenner was born this past June on Jim and Dana's anniversary! What a wonderful gift! Hard to believe the Brinkleys and Ukrops could be grandparents. You certainly don't look old enough!

Stuart Shiffman wrote from Boston where he was recently promoted to program manager at Draper Laboratory. Stuart is keeping busy working on his M.B.A. at Boston University and will be getting married next March to University of Massachusetts grad Amy Henken. Stuart tells me that best man will be Vince Marguardt, who earned his master's degree in architecture and is now putting his knowledge to use in New York City. Stuart adds that he, Jeff Snyder and Brendan Bunn '87 recently met up for a week of golf in Myrtle Beach. Many thanks for writing, Stuart!

Andrea Mardones sent me a letter all the way from Santiago, Chile, where she is teaching first grade at the American International School and loving it! She'll begin a master's program next year, and in the meantime manages to find time to ride horses every day while also competing on weekends. Andrea and fiancé Sebastian Rinto, a fellow Chilean, will tie the knot in early September. They've bought a home in Santiago, and are busy refurbishing it. It was great to hear from you, Andrea!

Congratulations to Susan Jackson who has not only been promoted in her job as a staff research associate at the University of California, Davis, but has received a Special Performance Award as well. This distinction, given to only a few of the many research staffers, is awarded for "truly meritorious service." Impressive!

When last I wrote, Sarah Bottoms and Marc Magnus-Sharpe '85 had announced their engagement. This past February, they exchanged their vows in Newport News. After a reception at the Ritz-Carlton in Amelia Island, Fla., Sarah and Marc honeymooned in Cozumel, Mexico. They're now back at home on Amelia Island, where Sarah continues to work as a news producer for NBC News in Jacksonville, and Marc is director of operations at Outward Bound. Best wishes to you both!

Vanessa Hicks is keeping busy as an attorney in Lexington, Va., where she is also on the board of the area United Way. Vanessa was recently invited to be the guest speaker at the Waynesboro NAACP's annual Black History program. Vanessa worked with me at Heron, Burchette a few summers ago — I'd been wondering what you were up to and was glad to receive news of your success!

Congratulations are in order for Sterling Ransone who earned his medical degree from the Medical College of Virginia in late May. Sterling, a third-generation physician, will begin a three-year residency this summer in family practice at Riverside Regional Medical Center in Newport News. As if that isn't exciting enough, Sterling also proposed to his fellow MCV classmate Karen Reeks. Congratulations and good luck to both of you!

Margaret Collins wrote this past spring from Richmond, where she was not only getting ready to graduate from medical school at the Medical College of Virginia, but was planning her wedding as well! Margaret and husband Steve Chaneles, a graduate of the T. C. Williams School of Law at the University of Richmond, were married in May and are now living in Miami, Fla., where she's doing a residency in radiology and he's practicing law. Margaret told me that Regina Rieger was also a May bride, and continues to work with Peterson Consulting. She also wrote that Terry Blackwood and wife Maureen are busy being parents to their son, Conor, born this past January. Terry is working in management for C&P Telephone while also studying at night for his M.B.A. at the University of Richmond. Margaret mentioned that Suzanne Robinson Trollan is enjoying motherhood and lives in Charlottesville with husband Vince and daughter Megan; she adds that Alice Bengston Brewer and husband Chip are living in Franklin, Va. Many thanks for the note, Margaret!

Henry Plaster '85 and Christie Bruns took the proverbial plunge in late May. J.D. Neary '85 tells me it was a beautiful wedding. Guests from our class included best man Mark Franko (who's working hard as the owner of his own construction company in Richmond); Doug Neil (currently living in Hawaii and working as a consultant/financial analyst for Hawaiian Airlines); Dave Redmond (working on Capitol Hill for Congressman Bob Smith of Oregon); Mike Dingman (an attorney here in Washington); and Bill Sykes (currently in training to be a stockbroker). (For more details on the wedding, see Joanna Ashworth's Class of 1984 column.) Best of luck to you, Henry and Christie!

Lee Katman sent a note to say that she's relocating to Michigan. Lee was previously working in New York City as a corporate trainer for WNET (the local public television station). Now, having received her master's in education, she's moving in order to begin a doctoral program in education and computing at the University of Michigan. Lee's fiancé, David (they're planning to tie the knot next May), is finishing his doctorate at Yale in molecular biochemistry and biophysics (yikes! That's way over my head!) and will be doing research at Michigan's medical school. Good luck to you, Lee!

The list of our classmates who have become parents continues to grow! By the time you receive this issue of the Gazette, Kitty Penney Phillips and husband Dan will be proud parents! When last I heard from Kitty, she was expecting a baby in June. Dan is working as a computer specialist with the I.R.S. here in Washington, while Kitty is working towards a master's in social work.

Kitty tells me that her sister, Nannie Penney Miller, and husband Joe (he's an FTC attorney) are still here in Washington. Nannie is on Law Review at George Mason University's law school and clerked this summer at Crowell & Moring. Very impressive!

for form and details.

Many thanks for the letter, Kitty! Please send me a baby picture!

Jane Butler Shuler and husband Mike '83 welcomed son James Parkman Shuler into the world this past May. I'm told the baby is adorable, and Jane is thrilled with motherhood! Congrats!

Chantal Emerson Hogge and husband Adam are new parents as well. Baby Christian Alexander was born this past February. Mike and Jennifer Medlin Bracken welcomed a new addition into their family; son Christopher Michael was born this past March. I'm also told that Maryellen Farmer Feeley '85 and husband Ed are the proud parents of new daughter Caroline. Congrats to all and good luck catching up on your sleep!

Thanks to Anne McEnerney for responding to my where-are-you-now column! Anne graduated from Washington and Lee's law school in May, spent a week in Nag's Head, then began a one-year clerkship with the Chief Judge of the U.S. Military Court of Appeals here in Washington.

Anne writes that David Saltzman '87 continues to work at Chadbourne and Park in New York City. She says that congratulations are in order for Mark Lenaugh '84 who will be tying the knot shortly. Thanks for writing, Anne!

Hope lots of you had the chance to see Chip Esten '87 in his role as Buddy in the touring production of Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story. Chip performed here at the Kennedy Center during May and June, and I truly enjoyed every minute (and found myself wondering what I'm doing with MY degree from W&M)! The show was pure fun. Chip's acting and musical talents were singularly impressive! I can assure you that it's not very often that audiences at the Kennedy Center are dancing in the aisles!

Patty Hanson Esten '87 tells me that she and Chip were thrilled to be back here in Washington for a while and welcomed the opportunity to see old friends and enjoy Chip's mom's cooking! Life on the road sounds as if it has been a great experience! As of this writing, the show is scheduled to travel to St. Paul and Chicago, and then on to Toronto. For those of you who haven't seen the show, run to the box office for tickets! You certainly won't be disappointed!

OXFORD PRESS TO PUBLISH COMMONWEALTH SERIES

Oxford University Press will publish a new series of scholarly works produced through the Commonwealth Center for the Study of American Culture at William and Mary. Known as the "Commonwealth Center Studies in American Culture," the book series is the most recent activity added to the center's ongoing programs of research fellowships, seminars, colloquia and teaching. The center's staff will identify the manuscripts for the series and present them to Oxford editors, who will then deal with the author on editing, publishing and distribution. The first book is Pillars of Salt, Monuments of Grace: New England Crime Literature and the Origins of American Popular Culture, 1674-1860 by Daniel Cohen, the center's first post-doctoral fellow. The book will be out in November.

Kathy Curtis Decker and husband Mark took their vows in late June here in Georgetown. Attendants included matron of honor Shannon Pastorino Lewis '87 and husband Mike as best man, and bridesmaid Ann McCord. Guests included Sharon Clarke Walpole '88 and husband Andrew, Pete and Elizabeth Glenshaw, Carol Holmes, Andrew Yacos, Kathy Moser, Terry Lattanze and a host of other W&Mers. A beautiful reception at the Grand Hotel followed the ceremony.

Mark and Kathy honeymooned in Quebec, Canada, after which they drove across the U.S.A. to their new home south of Portland, Ore., where Mark has accepted a financial analyst position with Hewlett-Packard. Congratulations and best wishes to you both!

Lynn Hale Riggs and husband Billy are enjoying Richmond. Lynn continues to work hard as a reference librarian, and reports that her brain hurts at the end of the day! I can just imagine! Billy continues to excel in the field of architecture.

Lynn Putnam writes that she has just accepted a position with Chase Manhattan in Florida, and will move from New York City this summer.

Elizabeth Flamm Grissom and husband Ed have built a new home in Chesapeake, Va. Elizabeth enjoys teaching and reports that Ed is working around the clock as an attorney in his own practice.

Steve Richards and Dan Weber are busy renovating their Chicago loft. Steve tells me that Drew Lovell was married recently, as were Mike Cole '87 and Andie Owen. Congrats to all!

I visited Julie Wallace Dunn and husband Tom '87 in Durham, N.C., this past June. Julie has graduated from UNC's business school, and Tom received his law degree from Duke (as did Dave Maxeell, who's headed for Atlanta to begin his job). Tom took the New York bar in July, and Julie tackled the job hunt. They'll move to New York in the fall so Tom can start his job with Cravath, Swaine & Moore. It was such fun to see you both!

Julie tells me that Mary Kosko Oates stopped by earlier this summer for a brief visit on her way through town. Mary and husband Dave continue their work as physicians in California, Mary in physical medicine, and Dave in emergency room care. Both are doing well and working hard. Julie and I are wondering why we haven't heard from Tom Noble lately. I've been told that Tom has taken up skiing and rollerblading and continues to enjoy life in Portland, Ore. By the way, Tom, Julie and I want to know where our NIKE running shoes are!

It is with great sadness that I report the death of our fellow classmate, Richard Bridges, whose Viking jet crashed into the Pacific Ocean off the coast of California during a Navy training exercise in February. Richard was a resident assistant and head resident while at W&M, and was also active in Inter-Varsity. After graduating with a B.S. in physics from W&M, he joined the Navy. Shortly thereafter, he became a Naval aviator, and then a Viking pilot. While in the Navy, he received a number of impressive awards. I know that all of you will stop and say a prayer for him and for his family. Should you wish to make a donation to W&M in his name, please send it to: Endowment Association, Alumni Memorial Fund, In Memory of Lt. Richard B. Bridges Jr., P.O. Box 1693, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

In keeping up with my traditional where-are-you-now inquiry, I'm wondering about Ann Drake, Celeste Gilbertie, Steve Hall, Bob Hope, John O'Keefe, Roy Sauberman and Susan Roberts. I'd love to hear from you! And as for those of you who still haven't responded to my inquiries (you know who you are!), please write!

Life continues to go smoothly for me here in our nation's capital. I am now half-way through my master's program, continue to work full time at Akin, Gump, and try to keep up with as many friends as possible! Do hope that all of you are where you want to be, doing what you want to do, and enjoying yourselves to the fullest. As the saying goes, Carpé Diem! So keep writing, or call if you are in the area. Until next issue, take care of yourselves! Hope to see many of you at Homecoming!

THE YOUNG GUARDE 1988-1992

88 Suzy Houbé
666 West End Ave., Apt. 17T
New York, NY 10025

Hello to everyone! I hope everyone's summer is going well. Thanks for the letters and phone calls, but we still need more news! Have you heard from anyone, or are you doing something that you think we'd like to hear about? Let me know!

Shawn Barrett was awarded an M.D. degree from Baylor College of Medicine in Houston on May 26. Shawn received the L. F. Schumacher, M.D. Award for Excellence in anesthesiology on May 19, and will be a resident in the anesthesiology department at the University of Virginia Health Sciences Center.

David P. Platte was designated a Naval aviator in May. David was presented with the "Wings of Gold," which marked the culmination of months of flight training with the training squadron at Naval Air Station Chase Field in Beville, Texas.

Continuing on the military theme, Paul Scanlan was promoted to lieutenant j.g. in a ceremony at the Naval Air Station Chase Field in Beville as well.

Amy Pabst graduated from Southern Illinois University School of Medicine on May 16 in Springfield, Ill. Amy then entered a family practice residency at Barberton Citizens Hospital in Ohio in July. While in medical school Amy was elected to the Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Medical Society and served as a student ambassador.

Elizabeth Garrett married Charles F. Briggs at St. Martin's Episcopal Church in Williamsburg on March 7. Elizabeth earned her master's of arts degree from the University of North Carolina and is an assistant records librarian at the academic affairs library at UNC. After a summer honeymoon, the couple will settle in Chapel Hill.

Miles Powell left his career in the banking business last year, moved to Atlanta from Washington, D.C., and is currently working for Merrill Lynch in their Buckhead Office.

It was great to hear from an old Monroe Hall pal, Craig Elander, who wrote that he and Kim Colonna were married in June 1991 in Basking Ridge, N.J. The wedding party included Christina Langelier, Karen Johnson, Maggie Margiotta, Wendy Jones, Anne Newton, Kevin McNair, Mike Corro and Mike Knapp. Craig is working as a marketing representative for Armstrong World Industries, and Kim works as an account executive for AT&T in the Philadelphia area. Congratulations to the Elanders who are expecting their first CHILD in October!

Karen Kolstrom, one of the few survivors of one of my "study breaks" during W&M summer session 1986 in Monroe Hall, wrote in June to say that she is working for a contract negotiator for the U.S. Government Agency for International Development in Rosslyn, Va. Karen says she enjoys indirectly getting to use her anthropology major. The agency sends economic, food, political, etc., aid to third world countries, and Karen hopes to do some traveling in the next few years to the countries that the agency assists. Karen used to work for another W&M alumn, Karla Anderson Carroll '83 and now works for Judy David Johnson '64.

Karen's former roommate in Old Dominion 205, Talitha Taylor, got married on Tom St. Germain '89 is one of two William and Mary graduates who have taken it upon themselves to provide tourists and locals with hiking and biking guides to what is among the most visited national parks. St. Germain researched and wrote the book 'A Walkin' the Park: Acadia's Hiking Guide. Billed as "the insiders guide" to hiking the 100 trails in the park, the book contains extensive information on everything from the degree of difficulty of each trail to topographical features and the vertical change of each route. A park ranger described the book as, "Overall the most comprehensive and informative book available." In addition to the hiking guide, St. Germain has written a biking guide of the park's carriage roads, its ocean drive and fire roads. He has also published a full color trail map for quick reference to the park. Assisting St. Germain in the production of the guides, which are published by Parkman Publications in Bar Harbor, is former track and cross country teammate John (Jay) Saunders Jr. '92. He is marketing director for the publications.

March 21 to Horace Hollifield. The couple now have their hands full with their "fixer-upper" in Tennessee. Talitha got her master's in marriage and family therapy from Indiana State University and now works as a marriage and family therapist in Southwest Virginia.

Karen went on to say that she bumped into Uri Arkin in Old Town Alexandria on St. Patrick's Day. Uri graduated from law school in May and just passed the Virginia bar. Dan Sachs is also going for his law degree at George Mason University.

Laura Bosch married Brian Moore last year and they now live in Toluca Lake, Calif. Karen hopes to take advantage of the airfare wars and visit them this year. She thinks that Laura and Brian have started a desktop publishing business and are also trying to break into show business out there.

And Caroline Peterson is also California-bound. She is studying to be a chiropractor in L.A.

Mark Aldrich was up in my neck of the woods in June. He was rehearsing the Ford's Theatre production of Captains Courageous, playing "Nat the Sailor." They held rehearsals at Manhattan Theatre Club for three weeks and it was terrific having him around the office. The show will rehearse this month in New York again and then open in D.C. in September. Everyone in the area should go check it out!

Turns out there are quite a few W&M theatre department alumni in the big city. Godfrey Simmons, David Burke and Jennifer Piech '89 are all spending the summer in New York. And so am I. I am now living in Manhattan (check out the new address) and getting used to the city (although I could still lose the subway rides!). I've gotten a break from the seven-day-a-week work because MTC's season finally ended in July. I'm looking forward to next season when I'll hopefully be expanding my job at MTC beyond the development office. Stop by or call if you're in the area!

Well, that's all for now. Have a safe end of summer! Take care and KEEP IN TOUCH!

Cincinnati, OH 45255

Two years and counting! Can you believe it's been that long since we were full-time residents of the Burg? I could use a Hot Holly, bread ends and house dressing and a good dose of Sunken Gardens sun!

I don't know about you all, but it's been a steady downpour of showers in my area. Wedding, and, yes, BABY showers, that is! I'm happy (and still can't believe I'm reporting) our first confirmed post-graduation baby to Kahtra Murphy Kayton and Jack '88. They had baby Benjamin this spring and the whole family is reportedly doing fine. Congrats!

By the time this issue of the Gazette is printed, Elizabeth Winstead Gould and David '90 M.B.A. should have had their first baby as well. Moving to other classes, Melissa Houser '89 and Bart '90 J.D. also had their first this spring. Let me know who else is in the maternal mode!

Wedding news includes the marriage of classmates Claudia Bellinger and David Haworth. Claudia and David were married May 30, 1992, at Wren Chapel. Louise Suzanne Herceg and Bruce Colby Ensley are engaged. A November wedding is planned. Nan Spottwood Brunson was married to John Ford Carmack on April 25, 1992. Kim Luu '91 and Jill Marie Wagner were attendants.

Megan Heaslip dropped me a line from Arlington, Va. She's living with Liz Rucker and Lydia Bayfield '88. Megan, Liz, Jenny Rhulen, Julie Elliott and Sarah Coleman all went to Nag's Head for Memorial Day. They ran into Greg Bowman, Brian Hightower '91, Bruce Weaver and Tim May while there (is this a replacement for Beach Week?). Bruce and Brian were working in Nag's Head, Jenny is working for a non-profit firm and Liz is working for a computer consulting firm. Julie is attending W&M law school this fall and Sarah moved to Bowling Green, Va., to work for her father.

Megan had two weddings to report. Kim Wells and Kenny Meitzner '89 were married in Richmond. Liz and Julie Wallace were bridesmaids.

Stephanie Suppa and Brad Herschey '90 M.B.A. were engaged in June. No plans had been made when Megan wrote, but Steph was in New Jersey living with Sarah Kapral '89.

Amy Reynolds dropped me a pretty card from Northern Virginia. Amy had moved to Lafayette, La., to be with her beau Kim, but moved back to Virginia when he was transferred to Florida. Other than missing Kim, she seems to be doing well. She's working as a reports analyst for the Federal Election Commission primarily dealing with Texas and California.

Amy has seen lots of Kappa Deltas in the area. Cameron Baker and Sara Olsen are both working in D.C. Amy attended the baby shower of Elizabeth Winstead Gould in Huntington, W.Va., along with fellow classmates Denise Hardesty Ault and Carie Guthrie. Denise finished her master's degree at Johns Hopkins and is working for the government.

JoAnne Lawson had lots of news from the Alpha Chi's. JoAnne is living in Sparks, Md., and has recently completed the executive training program at Sears. She is the women's store manager in the Hunt Valley, Md., store.

Gerard Pham, Steve Smith '89 and Andrew McCulla '86 are also at Sears with JoAnne! Gerard is the home center manager at the store in Martinsburg, W.Va., and Steve is the home fashions manager in Columbia, Md. Andrew is the home improvement sales manager at the Staithersburg, Md., sales office.

JoAnne also reports that Brad Houff and Lillian (Marmi) Margaret Jordan were married March 7, 1992, in Winston-Salem, N.C. Brad is a teacher at the Summit School and Marmi works for IV Christian Fellowship in the Winston-Salem area. Ushers included James Arritt, Gary Robertson and Brent Nelson '88. While at the wedding, JoAnne saw Laura Beth Straight and Sara Seitz. Laura works at a Montessori school and Sara is at Wachovia Bank.

JoAnne ran into Diane Dickey, Amy Stamps, Laura Thomasch and Kathy Caggiano at a party in Northern Virginia. Diane is starting law school this fall at the University of Richmond. Amy moved in with friends from work, but I'm not sure what she's doing. Laura is in Arlington with W&M roommate Amy Knox. Laura works for the Close Up Foundation in D.C., teaching high school students from across the nation about their government. Sounds pretty cool! Kathy is doing the Price Waterhouse thing (probably working tons of hours!). JoAnne says that Anne Cissel is in Texas working with the Teach for America program.

I received more news from Sarah Rankin who is living in Alexandria with the rest of our class! She is living with Jennie Reigelman and Carrie Owens. Sarah is a manager at the Bethesda, Md., Nordstroms department store and loves her job (and the discounts!). Carrie is at Partners in Old Town waitressing and bartending. Jennie is doing the same at the Outback, as well as substitute teaching. This fall she'll be entering a master's program in social work at the University of Louisville.

The crew also sees Stacy Zeman who lives in Vienna, Va., with other W&M alums. Stacy is working in Bethesda at an advertising agency. Stacy's roommate Coleen Corwell received the head coaching job for the American University women's soccer team. Congratulations, Coleen!

Sissy Estes is also living in the area. True to the Estes name, Sissy is working for a lobbying firm in D.C. News from Sissy is, "Don't buy a Volkswagen!"

Donna Newhoff visited Sarah from Louisiana where she is working with underprivileged children. Sarah mentions that Catherine Williamson also stops in. Catherine

BARBARA CASTLE KOHIN '53 ELECTED TRUSTEE CHAIR

Barbara Castle Kohin '53 has been elected chair of the trustees of Worcester State College in Worcester, Mass. A retired educator, Dr. Kohin is a former member of the Worcester City Council. She currently serves as a trustee of the Worcester Public Library and is a member of the boards of the Massachusetts Library Trustees Association and the Worcester Area League of Women Voters.

just received her master's degree in art therapy from Eastern Virginia Medical School. I knew all her great work on our KD banners would pay off!

Sisters Laura and Molly Doyle '89 are in Connecticut teaching children with learning disabilities.

Sarah also sent wedding news... Kim Lombrick '89 and Tom Robaek were married in Richmond last August. Kim is in law school and Tom is working in accounting. Thanks for all the info, Sarah!

From the German Young Guard Chapter, James Vizzar wrote from Mannheim where he is stationed with the Seventh Cavalry. He saw Adrienne Ari who is stationed in Karlsruhe. She will be spending the entire summer in the field and would love mail from W&M friends!

Ellen Gombe dropped me a note. She and her boyfriend Jon Rubin '91 have moved to Rhode Island. Ellen is working on her master's degree in agency counseling at Rhode Island College and is volunteering at Planned Parenthood.

Ellen wrote that Amy Miller and Sibhan Flarmon were both working and taking classes. Sluja Sli is working in NOVA and Julie Peterson is at North Carolina State University collecting grasshoppers!

Larisa Lomack is the lone Flat Hat staffer to communicate with me. Where are you guys?! Larisa has a real journalism job in Maryland. She is acting editor of a group of three local weeklies in Silver Springs. She's spotted Robyn Seamann at the Bethesda Cinema 'n Drafthouse where none other than Patton Oswalt was the headline comic at the midnight show! I'm still watching for Patton on Comedy Central. Rumor has it he's out in San Francisco to make it big. Knock 'em dead, Patton! Robyn, on the more serious side, is back in school for a Ph.D. in psychology.

Jay Busbee was also spotted in the D.C. area. He gave up sports to work for an environmental firm. Speaking of Jays, Jay Sherman is also in the area working for a chain of local daily newspapers. Of course, Laura saw him at an Urban Outfitters in Georgetown!

Bill Blake is a hired hand on the Full Belly Farm (I'm not making this up!) in Guinea, Calif. Bill is growing snap peas and feeding goats! Mucho thanks to Larisa for filling me in — now let's hear from the rest of the staff!

Anne F. Caruso, account executive with The Weinstein Agency, was awarded the Peninsula Women's Network Role Model Award. She was honored for outstanding personal and professional achievements.

After serving as assistant to director of annual giving at Virginia Commonwealth University, Joyce A. Coleburn has been appointed director of annual funds at Longwood College. Her new duties will include directing the phonathon, planning special events and updating the school's database.

The Mid-Atlantic Country Journal featured Brian Pattenon in a recent article. He and several friends planned a 24-hour outdoor adventure which would take them through many areas of Virginia photographing and documenting birds. "The Big Day," as it is defined by the American Birding Association, challenges bird-lovers to identify as many bird species as possible during one calendar day.

Romantic to the end, Doug Adams proposed to Claire McGinity '92 on the Sandy white beaches of Naples, Fla., at sunset over the William and Mary spring break. Doug is midway through his graduate work in Student Personnel at Shippensburg University in Pa., and Claire is job-hunting in the Washington, D.C. area where she will live with Jen Kell '92. The wedding was held in the Wren Chapel on June 26, 1992. D.W. "Donovan" '92, Jen Kell '92, Michael Molloy '91, Eric Kauders '92 and Martha Anderson were in the wedding party along with the requisite relatives. Michele Dachtlen '92 sang at the wedding.

Thanks to everyone who dropped me a note! I apologize for the lag time on some of the briefs, but it appears the Class of '90 is doing well and making a difference in this big world of ours!

Melissa Cales

Portsmouth, VA 23703

Hi y'all! (I wouldn't want you to forget your four years of living in the South.) I still can't believe that we are finally graduates. I feel like I should still be in a hot and humid classroom in the Burg at this moment. Beach Week, graduation, the Senior Class Dance, the Connells concert... that week was so hectic and rushed that I feel like it never happened. I didn't even have the chance to let people know that they should write to me about all of their exciting adventures after graduation, so I'm really sorry that I don't have more information about our fellow classmates to share with everyone.

Everyone probably has already heard rumors about our very first celebrity, Bill Baxter. He blew away the competition on Jeopardy!, winning the 1992 College Championship. He won $26,200 and he also gets to compete in the $100,000 Tournament of Champions this fall. It wasn't safe to wear William and Mary wear during Beach Week; my roommates and I were accosted by a little old lady in a Nag's Head shopping mall with questions about Billy.

Following his victory, Billy joined Laura Flippin, Rhonda Jones, Michael May, Yvonne Michael and Nicole Wagner in Richmond this summer as a governor's fellow working in Gov. Wilder's administration for two months.

This past summer was certainly one for love. Every time I talked to someone I heard about someone else tying the knot, and I'm sure that I don't even know about half of the marriages that have taken place since graduation. Dave Miller and Emily Alder started their summer off with a bang on May 30. Class president John Graham, who was in attendance along with Chris Almond among others, dropped me a line following the wedding with tales about the new tatoos that Dave had acquired, thanks to his groomsmen. When Mr. and Mrs. Miller return from their honeymoon (I wasn't informed of the secret location), they will be living in Carrboro, NC.

John himself finally stopped counting days this summer when he married high school sweetheart Beth Purser on July 25. Upon their return from Hawaii, John prepared himself to enter the seminary aided by a $1,000 scholarship awarded to him by the Williamsburg United Methodist Men's Fellowship.

In Portsmouth, I had a front row seat at the wedding of my longtime friend, Kim Hall, to Ben Creamer. At the reception I caught a glimpse of a number of fellow alumnae including Debbie Ohlson, Lili Church, Suzanne McCoy and Gigi Etheridge. Kim's former roommates, Esther Kim and Kristen Hallwachs, stood up for her as bridesmaid and maid of honor respectively. I was eternally jealous when Kim told me that she and Ben would be spending their honeymoon in the U.S. Virgin Islands before returning to

ALUMNI INVITED TO JOIN IN SWEATER PROJECT

The Society of the Alumni invites all alumni and friends to support the Virginia Power Sweater Recycling Project on Saturday, Sept. 12. Bring old, useable sweaters to the W&M vs. VMI football game at Zable Stadium. Collection will be during the first quarter at both gates. If you are not coming to the game, deliver your sweaters to any Farm Fresh store in Hampton Roads between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Sweaters will be taken to local Salvation Army facilities for distribution to the needy in Hampton Roads through health and human services agencies, including United Way and other non-profit agencies, churches and schools. Spread some warmth by giving your sweaters for the Virginia Power Sweater Recycling Project.

ALUMNA NAMED PRESIDENTIAL ASSISTANT

Virginia Laycock McLaughlin '71, associate professor of education and former associate dean of the School of Education, has been appointed as an assistant to President Sullivan at William and Mary. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate, McLaughlin earned a doctorate at Memphis State University in curriculum and instruction and special education. She now instructs courses in how to teach students with learning and behavioral problems and special education. She fills a position formerly held by Reginald Clark '75 who joined the staff of the American Automobile Association where former president Paul R. Verkuil '61 is president.

Portsmouth where Kim began her job teaching primary children in Chesapeake, Va., this August.

Rounding out the list of newlyweds are Jeff Balinger '91 and Melissa Kolonoski, Tony Nobili and Donnamarie Tomer, Lee Scruggs '90 and Pam Reese, Melanie Murphy and David Reardon, and Matt Fowler '91 and Annette Limoges. If you know of anyone else who got married this past summer, it's not too late to let me know. I would really like details about the event, too, if possible.

There were a few graduates who chose not to walk down the aisle. Dotty Foote will be spending the next year teaching the children of Southern Baptist missionaries in Burundi. She was one of only 23 people chosen by the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board to work overseas through the International Service Corps.

When I spoke with Class of 1992 vice president Betsy Willcox in June she told me about a letter she had recently received from Courtney Snyder. Courtney is planning to spend the next two years in Puerto Rico studying monkeys in the wild. It is good to know that someone has actually found a way to put their major to some use. Betsy also told me that Deb Herring spent the summer leading a group of high school tennis players through Europe.

Heather Barton managed to snag herself an internship with the National Mental Health Association in Alexandria. It's an unpaid job but very rewarding according to Heather. She informed me that she was working with fellow alumnae Sarah Evans and Amy Heefner.

I would like to wish everyone luck who has decided to go back to school this fall. Meredith Grocott is at Boston University Law School, and housemate Christine Henry began her study of architecture this fall at Catholic University in D.C. My roommates have also chosen to go back to school. Liliana Roman is in D.C. pursuing her master's in Latin American studies at George Washington University, and Nancy Wood has moved to Harrisonburg and is studying counseling psychology at James Madison University. Paul Cummings is down in Georgia studying for his M.B.A. and Amy Alexander has decided to get her graduate business degree at U.Va. Linnea Roesch is out in Kansas pursuing her master's in Spanish. Meanwhile, Shuchi Sharma and Heather Creswick are back in the Burg to get their master's degrees in chemistry.

I know I've missed a lot of interesting information about a bunch of people. I'm a great news hound, but I need help. If you don't want to spend the next 50 years or so hearing information only about my friends and the people that I know, then you have to write me. Send me a Christmas card, drop me a short postcard, anything will do.

I hope to see everyone at Homecoming in October!
