Tercentenary Class Graduates in Zable Stadium

By S. Dean Olson

More than 1,800 students—the largest graduating class in William and Mary's history—received their degrees on Sunday, May 16, before the largest commencement gathering in the College's 300 years.

For the first time, commencement was held in Zable Stadium on a sun-baked afternoon before more than 15,000 parents and friends. Commencement was moved to the stadium at the request of the graduates to accommodate the demand for tickets by the larger than usual class, which was swelled by students who scheduled their graduation to coincide with the College's tercentenary year.

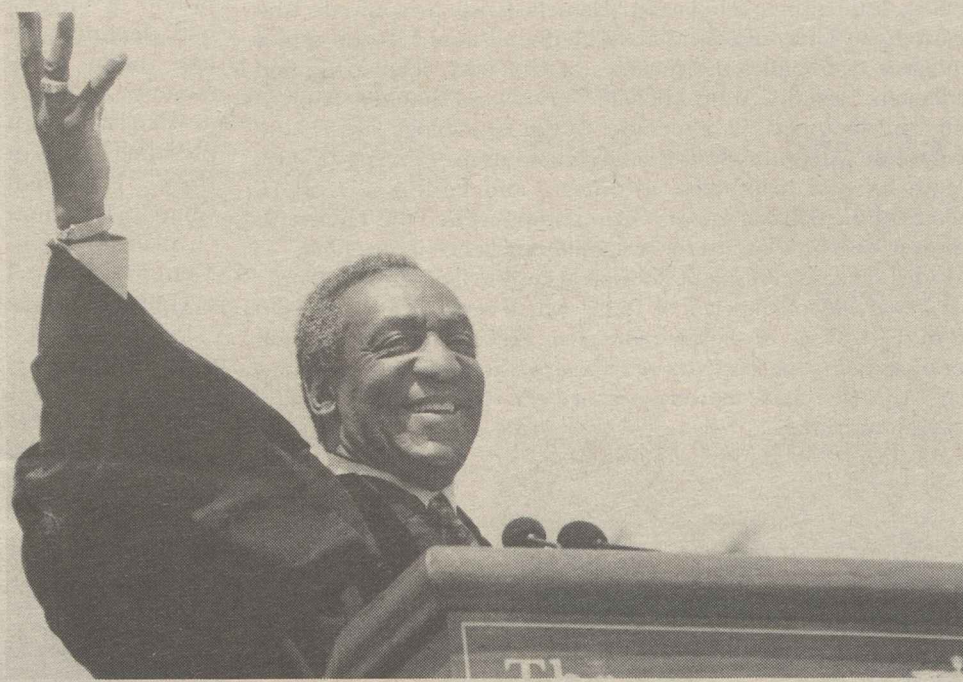

The official party included a distinguished group of individuals—Governor Wilder, author William Styron, Chancellor and former U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and commencement speaker Bill Cosby. In addition, commencement occurred on the same weekend that the College announced that former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher would succeed Burger in June as the College's 21st chancellor.

Governor Wilder, en route to Atlanta for another commencement the same afternoon, told the graduates and their families he had made a special stop at William and Mary because he wanted to be with them that afternoon. He noted that this has been quite a year for the College. "Prince Charles, Margaret Thatcher and Bill Cosby. That's heavy duty!" said the Governor.

Cosby, the indefatigable television performer, author and homespun philosopher, captured the hearts of the audience when he stepped to the podium (after jokingly accusing Governor Wilder, who preceded him, of stealing some of his best lines) and began his talk with a "Hey, Hey, Hey!" from his Fat Albert cartoon character.

Then with a mixture of funny one-liners, personal reminiscences about his own children and serious advice, Cosby urged the 1,300 undergraduates and 545 advanced degree recipients to focus on dignity and empowerment and to challenge themselves. "If you have dignity, it then explodes and it touches other people," said Cosby. "Because from dignity comes respect. From dignity comes honesty and awareness," said Cosby. "The next thing is empowerment. Sure enough unadulterated empowerment. That is what your education is all about."

Finally, Cosby urged the graduates to challenge themselves and do what they love. Recalling that two of his own children, who are recent college graduates, can hardly wait to tell their parents about their work when they visit home, he urged the graduates not to be afraid to take a chance in life. "Stop sitting around people who are stroking you and making you feel good so you can do nothing. You're worth more than that. . . It is time for you now to do something crazy. Go ahead—challenge yourself!"

Cosby said the "beauty of what is happening this afternoon is that your parents now have proof that you are educated" and suggested that they were now on their own. "Look at the people who surround you," he said. "They have supported you with their love, their money and philosophy." Now, he said, it was time for them to take charge of their lives. "Get a job, get a damn job!"

In his unique style, Cosby requested an honorary master of arts degree rather than the customary doctorate as a tribute to another son of Philadelphia, Benjamin Franklin, who received in 1756 the first honorary degree ever awarded by the College. When the College rector, Hays T. Watkins, completed the degree citation with the standard Honoris Causa (Latin for "out of respect,") Cosby corrected him. Watkins then restated it as, "Honoris Cosby!"

Another famous American, author William Styron, and a distinguished son of the College, Herbert V. Kelly '41, received honorary doctorate degrees. Styron, recipient of the Pulitzer Prize, the American Book Award and the Legion of Honor and author of such noteworthy books as Sophie's Choice and the Confessions of Nat Turner, is a Virginian of "eloquence and musical cadence" in the tradition of William Faulkner and Thomas Wolfe, his citation read. graduate of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law and former rector of the College, was honored for "consistently and effectively devot(ing) your life to building a better community and a stronger College for all of us."

Other honors went to Francis Joseph Probst II, who received the Lord Botetourt Medal as the graduating senior who attained the greatest distinction in scholarship; Danielle Cristina Sepulveda, who received the James Frederic Carr Memorial award as the senior "who best exemplifies the qualities of character, scholarship and leadership;" seniors Anne Michele Turner and Stephen Baldwin Watts and Joe Agee '52, a member of the kinesiology faculty, who received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan awards for evincing "a spirit of love for and helpfulness to others," and Professor David H. Holmes of the department of religion, who received the Thomas A. Graves Jr. Teaching Award for sustained excellence in teaching.

In his remarks, President Sullivan acknowledged the "extraordinary generosity of the class of 1993," which recently announced a gift to the College of slightly more than $110,000. The largest gift ever by a graduating class, the gift created a fund to create a walkway near Crim Dell and "thereby enhance one of the most beautiful areas of our campus."

At the ROTC commission ceremony on Saturday, President

Sullivan's name was added to the roster of distinguished cadets. Sullivan recalled that when he received his commission 24 years ago, "it was the greatest honor of my life. I could not foresee my future as you cannot foresee yours, but the privilege of serving as an officer in the U.S. Army and standing in a long line of soldiers going back 200 years, who were prepared to defend, with their lives, if necessary, the values, traditions and virtues of our country is a privilege like none other I have ever had and none that I can ever have ... and since taking off that uniform, the pride still remains and also the important lessons I learned as an Army officer. I share with you what I am sure you will always consider one of the special days of your life."

The baccalaureate speaker, the Rt. Rev. John M. Allin, former presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, told his audience to remember three alliterations: appreciation, analysis and action; reason, responsibility and relationships; and grace, God and glory.

A jovial visitor to campus, Bishop Allin opened his talk by putting himself at the bottom of the roster of suggested speakers. He said that since the Bishop of London, the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of Virginia had declined, he had been summoned.

Allin is the 23rd presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church. He is now chaplain of Christ Memorial Chapel in Hobe Sound, Fla.

David L. Holmes, professor of religion, receives the Thomas A. Graves Jr. Teaching Award for sustained excellence in teaching.

Thatcher Named Chancellor; Brinkley Rector

William and Mary made two major announcements in May in the leadership of the university.

Margaret Thatcher, former prime minister of Great Britain, has been elected to serve as the 21st chancellor of the College and James W. Brinkley '59, president and director of Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc., has been elected rector.

Lady Thatcher will succeed Warren E. Burger, retired Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, who will conclude his seven-year term in the ceremonial post on June 30, 1993. Lady Thatcher's term begins July 1, and she will be installed formally during the 1993-94 academic year. Brinkley, who is in his second four-year term on the Board of Visitors, will succeed Hays T. Watkins, retired chair of CSX Corp., July 1. Watkins, who will complete nine years on the Board of Visitors on June 30, served six years as rector.

In addition to his service on the Board of Visitors, Brinkley has an impressive list of volunteer activities at the College. He was president of the William and Mary Peninsula Chapter of the Society of the Alumni, and helped organize the Baltimore-Annapolis Chapter in 1980.

A native of Suffolk, Va., Brinkley was a member of the Society of the Alumni board from 1978 to 1984 and is a former trustee, vice chair and chair of the investment committee of the William and Mary Endowment Board. In 1987, he received the Alumni Medal for service and loyalty to his alma mater. Brinkley and his wife, Dana '60, were alumni chairs of the 1985-86 William and Mary Alumni Fund.

In announcing Thatcher's appointment, President Sullivan said: "It is truly fitting to have as the College's next chancellor an international leader like Lady Thatcher who has had a dramatic impact on the course of world events. Her selection is in the tradition of chancellors like George Washington and Warren Burger, each of whom has left a mark on the college and on the world. Without question, Lady Thatcher is one of the most important figures of the 20th century."

At the announcement, Burger echoed Sullivan's sentiments. "I think it's one of the great steps in the history of the College,"

Burger said. "This woman is one of the remarkable statesmen of the 20th century. I don't know that she is fully appreciated yet."

Although she was not able to attend the announcement, Lady Thatcher wrote to Sullivan that, "I am both honored and delighted to accept the invitation to become the 21st Chancellor of The College of William and Mary in Virginia. I very much look forward to being with you and seeing the work of this historic university."

The appointment marks the first time a woman has served as William and Mary's chancellor, and the first time a British subject has held the post since the American Revolution. During the pre-Revolutionary period, the chancellorship was held alternately by the Bishop of London and the Archbishop of Canterbury as the College's representatives to the crown. The first American chancellor was George Washington, who served from 1788 until his death in 1799.

In its resolution, the Board of Visitors said Lady Thatcher has "demonstrated by her distinguished service to her nation and humanity as Prime Minister, and by the esteem in which she is held by the nations of the world, that she is qualified in every respect" to serve as chancellor.

Lady Thatcher became Britain's first woman prime minister on May 4, 1979, following the success of the Conservative Party. When the Conservative Party subsequently won the general elections in 1983 and 1987, she became the first Prime Minister this century to contest successfully three consecutive general elections. She resigned as prime minister on Nov. 28, 1990.

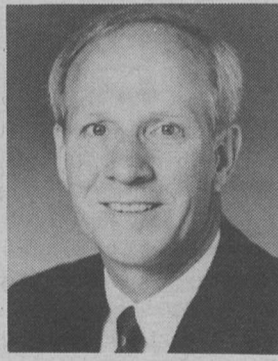

In December 1990, she was awarded the Order of Merit by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth. On June 30, 1992, she was elevated to the House of Lords to become Baroness Thatcher of Kesteven.

Margaret Thatcher was born Oct. 13, 1925, the daughter of a grocer who was active in local politics as borough councillor, alderman and Mayor of Grantham. She was educated at Kesteven and Grantham Girls' High School, and won a bursary or scholarship to Somerville College, Oxford, where she obtained a degree in Natural Science. She also holds a master of arts from Oxford University. In June 1983, she was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society.

Lady Thatcher was first elected to the House of Commons in 1959. Her first ministerial appointment came in 1961, when she became a parliamentary secretary.

Glenn Close '74 Captivates William and Mary

By Sara Piccini

Glenn Close '74, '89 D.A., one of America's most accomplished actresses, returned to campus on Thursday, April 29, for a full day of conversation with the William and Mary community. Her visit included an evening appearance in William and Mary Hall as part of the College's Tercentenary Lecture Series.

"I'm here to show my love and support of the College," she remarked to reporters Thursday morning. Close's deep affection for her alma mater was apparent throughout the day, particularly in a private afternoon meeting she held with theatre students.

Back in 1974, when Close was preparing to graduate from William and Mary, The Flat Hat ran a retrospective article on her theatre career at the College. The question was raised: will she make it as a professional?

An anonymous but prescient student reporter responded: "The 'tiger' from southern Connecticut may be one of those unusual individuals who make their own luck, who won't stop knocking on doors until she's given a chance to demonstrate the talent that overwhelmed theatre buffs in a small colonial town. It could be all she really needs."

Since 1974, as we all know, Close's talent has overwhelmed audiences far beyond Williamsburg. She is probably best known for her work in films, appearing in The World According to Garp, The Big Chill, Jagged Edge, The Natural, Fatal Attraction, Dangerous Liaisons, Reversal of Fortune and Hamlet. Due out this fall is Close's latest film, The House of the Spirits, directed by Billie August and based on the novel by Isabel Allende. Thus far, Close has received five Oscar nominations for her film work.

Close has also starred in several critically acclaimed television productions: Something About Amelia; Sarah, Plain and Tall; and Sky-lark. She co-produced the latter two films.

Despite her success in movies and television, Close says, "I feel as if the theatre is my home." She has won two Tony awards, for her roles in Death and the Maiden and The Real Thing. In December she moves temporarily to Los Angeles, where she will take on a role "that will demand new things of me": starring as Norma Desmond in the American premiere of Sunset Boulevard, Andrew Lloyd Webber's new musical. (Yes, Glenn Close does sing, and very well: her former professor, Howard Scammon, says she gave him a demonstration while they were driving "and she almost cracked my windshield!")

A LONG (AND LOVELY!) DAY'S JOURNEY INTO NIGHT

Close's visit began with a press conference in the studio theatre at Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Television and newspaper reporters (not known for keeping quiet) suddenly fell silent when Close walked in—there are few of us so jaded that we're not awed by being close to a real star. Although she was dressed simply, Close did indeed light up the room. She looked as she does on film: chin-length strawberry hair in a subdued version of the Fatal Attraction perm, flawless ivory skin, brilliant blue eyes.

Close was accompanied by her personal assistant, Kay Rouse Lark '76, and Kay's husband, Andy Lark '79, ending his term as chair of the Friends of the Library. Close will be donating her career-related papers to the Swem Library archives: together Mr. Lark and College Librarian Nancy Marshall accepted Close's first gift, the script from her December 1992 guest appearance on Saturday Night Live.

Professor Lou Catron then formally introduced "Glennie" to the press. Catron had great praise for Close's work as a student—not only as an actress, but as a playwright.

Happy to see Glenn Close '74 during her visit to William and Mary was her former professor Lou Catron, who described her not only as a great actress but also a remarkable playwright while at William and Mary.

"Her playwriting was astonishing," said Catron, noting that her student one-act play, Dry Season, is now used as a yardstick to evaluate student work. "I only wish she would write a full-length play."

Catron noted that Close had a "remarkable ability to concentrate" as a student, which probably accounts in part for her success in the theatre as well as her Phi Beta Kappa key.

Close was gracious throughout the picture-taking and questioning. When asked if she'd attend William and Mary if she had it to do over, Close replied: "I'd do it again in a second. I hope my little girl, Annie, who's now 5, will consider it. With a good liberal arts education, you'll stay curious for the rest of your life."

It was evident how seriously Close takes her work, and how difficult that work is. But there is a light side as well, as Close revealed, recalling one episode during the filming of The House of the Spirits: "Meryl Streep, Vanessa Redgrave and I were in the back of a rather elaborate cathedral in Lisbon, dressed in funereal black. There we stood—sneaking pastries and talking about men."

Following the press conference and lunch with theatre faculty and staff, Close joined about 70 very excited theatre students for what Kay Lark called "an incredible exchange of energy." Close entered the Dodge Room unobtrusively and was greeted with loud applause. Smiling broadly, she said with a laugh, "I'd like to introduce Dr. Catron." Close clearly takes tremendous pleasure in talking with students.

She showed a short clip from her new film and talked about the process of transforming herself into a dark-haired, dark-eyed, buxom spinster—of the challenge of staying on an emotional edge to keep in character. Close gave much credit to her behind-the-scenes colleagues—makeup artist, costumer, set designer—for helping her create her roles.

The students were particularly interested in the difference between theatre and movies, and the difficulty of acting when scenes are shot out of sequence. Close said, "You have to do your homework, and play in the moment. Just as in life, you don't know what's going to happen tomorrow." Close told of one particularly disorienting scene where the first floor of the house was shot in Portugal and the second floor was shot in Denmark.

Close held her audience spellbound as she read passages from the journal she had kept while filming The House of the Spirits. She is an extraordinary writer, conjuring up images that transported her listeners to the villages and beaches of Portugal.

Reluctantly ending her session at 5 p.m., Close signed autographs and chatted informally with individual students. She went on to a reception and dinner with the College's Board of Visitors.

At 8:30 p.m., Close appeared before 3,000 friends and fans in William and Mary Hall, looking as fresh as if she'd spent the day in a chaise lounge reading a novel (this must be the mark of a truly professional performer!).

The event, billed as "A Conversation With Glenn Close," turned out to be just that.

President Timothy J. Sullivan introduced the actress, thanking her for her devotion to the College: "Glenn Close is a person who has time and time again answered the call to help her alma mater." Close and English professor Robert Maccubbin (who'd interviewed her about Dangerous Liaisons three years ago as editor of the journal Eighteenth-Century Life) then proceeded to chat about her life and her work, sitting comfortably in armchairs. She answered questions from the audience until about 10 p.m.

One of the evening's most moving moments came when a young man born in Zaire stood up and praised the work of Close's father, a doctor who had spent many years in what was then the Belgian Congo and who has been lobbying the United States government to take a stand against the country's current dictator. The student asked Close to express his thanks to her father. She said, "Why don't you write to him yourself? Come backstage afterwards and I'll give you his address." And she did.

Never forgetting her roots in the William and Mary theatre, Close ended the evening by acknowledging former theatre professor Howard Scammon. (Of Close's recognition, Scammon said, "I was very surprised—I couldn't even stand up.")

In true theatre fashion, as the audience applauded Close, she applauded her mentor.

A CONVERSATION WITH GLENN CLOSE

In her many conversations throughout her visit, Glenn Close was fascinating, funny and inspiring. A few of her words:

A Close Collaboration

A handful of people in the world can claim that they have the perfect job. Kay Rouse Lark '76 is one of the lucky few.

Lark has been Glenn Close's personal assistant for eight and a half years. "Glenn and I get along so well," says Lark, explaining that the two seemed to have a special understanding right from the start of their collaboration.

For Lark, that start went so smoothly it could have been scripted.

"I was working in theatre administration in Lexington, Kentucky, and suddenly it hit me—I have to get out of here," Lark remembers.

She wrote to everyone she knew in the profession, including Glenn Close, who was at William and Mary for Lark's first two years in college. "I was in a one-act that Glennie wrote, Dry Season," says Lark. "I was also Lou Catron's assistant for my four years, and worked in just about every part of theatre—the box office, the scene shop, the costume shop."

At the time Lark wrote to her, Close was acting in the Broadway play The Real Thing.

Soon after, Lark came home to find a message from Close on her brand-new answering machine. She was interested in having Lark work for her, but it meant moving to New York.

Within two days of accepting the job, Lark had found an affordable sublet—on Park Avenue.

"It was clearly meant to be," Lark says.

Lark's job involves a tremendous amount of organization and coordination. "I'm the point of communication—everyone knows where I am," Lark says. "I spend a lot of time talking to Glenn's publicist, agent, accountant, travel agent."

Because of her celebrity status, Close constantly receives requests to make appearances, give interviews and to work on behalf of worthy causes. "Glenn does what she can, but I'm the one who has to call in the regrets," Lark says.

Lark also did quite a bit of traveling to locations while Close worked on various movie projects. She has stayed closer to home since her marriage to Andy Lark '79, a lawyer.

Does being around so many famous faces mean that Lark doesn't get starstruck any more?

"I'd like to think so, but it's not completely true. I still remember the first time I talked to Jeremy Irons. And when Paul Newman called, I broke out into a sweat. They both have such fabulous voices.

"Most of the time, though, you approach people with the attitude that we're all just working. Everyone wants to make things happen in the best way possible."—S.P.

Virginia Hall of Fame Honors Dr. Paschall

By Bob Jeffrey '74

William and Mary's "greatest friend" received a special citation from the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame at a luncheon in the Campus Center Ballroom at William and Mary on May 19.

Dr. Davis Y. Paschall '32, president emeritus of the College, were recognized for his lifelong contribution to William and Mary athletics. He became the first university president to be so honored by VSHF.

A crowd of friends, colleagues and former Tribe athletic greats was on hand to honor the man former Virginia Gov. Colgate W. Darden Jr. called "a modern day Jefferson."

Paschall restored pride and a keen competitive spirit to Tribe sports during his tenure as president, after a period of relative neglect following the athletic scandal of 1951. Over the course of the 1960s, the number of intercollegiate sports doubled, the intramural program was developed, the debt accumulated by the athletic association was retired, and the program established on a firm financial basis.

But Paschall's achievements cannot be measured in terms of dollars and cents, or buildings constructed, but in the unique personal qualities that he displayed, and the many lives he touched.

President Timothy J. Sullivan '66 recalled his first impression of Paschall. "I can still remember the orientation speech he gave when I arrived on campus. It was the first time I ever heard that accent," he said of Paschall's inimitable Southside drawl.

"It was obvious how much he cared for each and every individual who was part of the College community. It wasn't just a job to him. It was a lifetime privilege. He is my model as president," said Sullivan.

"If you look back over William and Mary's history, in each generation you will find one person without whom you cannot imagine the College. For our generation, Dr. Paschall was that person. He is truly William and Mary's greatest friend."

Paschall's interest in minute detail extended to athletics. He remarked, "I don't know how our athletic director, H. Lester Hooker, endured me through those years. Every time he turned around he discovered that a coach had come to see me, and I had fallen for some sob story about an urgent need, and had approved it. It is a miracle how he ever got a budget to balance, and I would not blame him if he had told me to go ahead and be the athletic director, too," said Paschall.

Though an intellectual and a scholar, Paschall also possessed a strong desire for the College to excel in every activity. When addressing an athletic chapter meeting in 1970 Paschall described his own epitaph as, "He wanted to win."

The football program, which struggled for almost a decade, rebounded with three straight winning seasons, 1965-67, under coach Marv Levy, a Phi Beta Kappa with a master's degree from Harvard.

According to Hooker, athletic director from 1965-71, Paschall was attuned to the politics of selecting a football coach. "I told him about Levy's academic qualifications, and he said, 'If we hire him, the alumni can't say we're trying to de-emphasize the program; and the faculty won't complain since he's got that Phi Beta Kappa key,'" he said.

One of the athletic highlights of the Paschall era was when Levy's 1967 Indians beat Navy, the "number one team in the East," 27-16, with a four touchdown comeback in the final quarter. The game was rated one of the NCAA's top 10 upsets, and it provided an indelible memory for Paschall and Levy.

Levy wrote Dr. Paschall a letter more than 20 years after he left the College for the NFL coaching ranks. "In going through some old papers recently I came across a yellowed newspaper clipping. It was a photograph taken on the steps of Blow Gymnasium that glorious Saturday night in the autumn of 1967 when our team had just returned from Annapolis after our stunning victory over the Naval Academy. In the photo I was handing you the game ball from that historic conquest. With that picture as evidence the debate will rage for decades, I am sure, over whether your smile or mine is the most broad," wrote Levy.

"On many occasions I have reminisced about the happy years I spent at William and Mary, and foremost in my mind... are the fond memories I have of you... The qualities which allowed you to combine vigorous leadership with a deep, sincere caring about every student, every stone, every blade of grass on the campus you so unabashedly revered, provided wonderful lessons for all who knew you, including someone who at that time was a young football coach," Levy wrote.

When Levy moved on, Paschall took a chance by hiring a slender young man who had never held a head coaching job, Lou Holtz. At the Fourth and Goal banquet in 1990 Paschall gave all the credit to his wife, Agnes Winn Paschall '31. "She told me 'He has the cutest little baby face and those lovely dimples. Hire him,'" he said.

Agnes' advice proved sound. Holtz brought excitement and took the team to the Tangerine Bowl in 1970. Called "the impossible dream," Holtz turned a team that had lost six of its first nine games into W&M's first bowl entry in 20 years.

Football was not the only athletic success story of the Paschall years. Bill Chambers' basketball squads went to the finals of the Southern Conference tournament three times, more than any other school except national powerhouse West Virginia. Track, first under Harry Groves and John Randolph '64, dominated conference and state competition. Dick Besnier's wrestlers, Dudley Jensen's swimmers, and Hooker's baseball team all won Southern Conference titles.

The development of women's athletics was greatly promoted by the construction of Adair Gym, the first new facility for women's sports since the old Jefferson basement gymnasium and pool.

William and Mary Hall, dedicated in 1971, fulfilled a major part of Paschall's

Master Plan for the new campus, upgrading athletic facilities from Blow Gym and providing the College with a convocation and events center.

In 1969, Paschall, along with Hooker and physical education chair Howard Smith '43, established the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame. Soon thereafter, William and Mary's number one fan, and Paschall's all-time favorite Tribe athlete, his wife Agnes '31, was inducted. She was captain of the women's basketball team for two years, a member of the lacrosse and hockey teams, and held track records in the 100-yard dash and the discus throw.

Paschall's own opinion of the importance of athletics might be summarized by his own words at the first William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremony: "I view it as a vehicle of spirit that has knit the generations through the years—to be composed of those who ran the race and fought the fight nobly in the last ounce of devotion to strive and not to yield."

These words apply to no one so well as Dr. Paschall himself.

Outstanding Athletes Are Also Outstanding Scholars

By Kelly Daspit

College athletics have become big business, subject to ethical questions of increasing intensity. Reports on corruption and upheaval in college athletics have become virtually routine. Dozens of colleges and universities have violated NCAA regulations, and many others are changing conference affiliations in pursuit of a competitive edge and new revenues.

All of this stands in contrast to athletics at William and Mary. While it has grown in size and diversity, the College has retained a special identity as an institution where its athletic performance mirrors its renowned academic reputation. One need not look far for examples; one in eight undergraduates participates in the 25 NCAA Division I intercollegiate sports offered at William and Mary.

Anna Finley is a student with impressive athletic and academic accomplishments. She is this year's recipient of the Martha Barksdale Award for the most outstanding scholar-athlete. Finley is one of the most versatile players on the women's volleyball team and maintains a 3.79 grade point average (GPA).

Equally impressive is Frank Probst, Phi Beta Kappa member and winner of the Robert M. Usry Award for the varsity sport letter winner holding the highest GPA at the end of his or her junior year. Probst is a member of the swimming team and has a GPA of 3.97.

Their achievements are typical of the 1992-93 season, which has been a particularly outstanding one for William and Mary athletics. This year the Tribe football team ranked 13th in the nation, both men's basketball and baseball teams celebrated their first winning seasons in almost a decade, men's and women's soccer teams both reached the second round of the NCAA playoffs, and the women's basketball team advanced to the conference tournament's championship game.

According to Athletic Director John Randolph, athletes who represent William and Mary are exceptional students who meet highly selective admissions standards. "They compete eagerly in sports, and also participate with equal energy in lecture halls, laboratories, libraries and social arenas. The athletic department has set a goal of graduating 90 percent of its athletes," said Randolph.

Athletes also receive no preferential treatment, according to Bobby Dwyer, assistant director of athletics. They do not have separate dorms or dining halls. "There are no special programs for talented athletes. These young men and women are just like every other student from the time they arrive until they graduate," said Dwyer.

Randolph added that recruited athletes enter with serious academic aspirations and ability. Student-athletes, who are recruited from across the country, enrich the student body and contribute to the competitive spirit, goal-orientation, and socio-economic diversity of the College," said Randolph.

Recruited athletes entering this past fall had a median SAT of 1118, and 37 percent were in the top 10 percent of their high school classes. The first NCAA graduation report places William and Mary in the top three to four percent of the nation's universities: 96 percent of William and Mary's football players graduated, along with 100 percent of both men's and women's basketball participants.

In order to continue this success, Dwyer believes that, "We first need to meet the financial challenges that athletics currently face." Although the college is a state institution, regulations prohibit state funds to be used for athletics. Revenues to support the program may come from private contributions, student athletic fees and gate receipts.

The athletic program depends heavily on annual gifts to the William and Mary Athletic Educational Foundation (WMAEF). Money from WMAEF is used to provide scholarships for student-athletes. According to Dwyer, the College will have to significantly expand its donor base to meet scholarship costs.

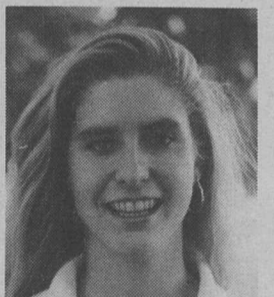

"The cost of scholarships has risen more than 20 percent for in-state and 29 percent for out-of-state students during the past three years alone. In order to continue to place competitive, talented athletes on William and Mary teams, annual funds must be increased," said Dwyer.

According to Randolph, endowed scholarships have been a focal point of the athletics component of the Colleges' Campaign for the Fourth Century. "In football alone, more than $11 million was pledged during the Fourth and Goal drive. However, less than half has been committed to a payment schedule, so the athletics' budget still relies heavily on annual gifts to the WMAEF to make ends meet," said Randolph.

The demanding connection between study and sport is not new at William and Mary. Walter J. Zable '37, founder and chairman of the board of the Cubic Corporation and recipient of the NCAA Lifetime Achievement Award, is an example of success in both athletics and academics.

At the dedication of the stadium bearing his name, Zable commented on his own experiences as a top athlete at William and Mary, "I know that in my own case the academics gave me the intellectual framework to pursue a successful career, while athletics, with its competitive nature and teamwork orientation, enabled me to gain the experience to make good decisions under pressure in the corporate world and to form lasting relationships that are so important in life."

Ten Nominated for Alumni Board Positions

A variety of leadership, communication and fund-raising skills, along with dedication to the College, characterize the qualifications of 10 alumni who have been nominated for five upcoming openings on the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. The election will be conducted by mail this fall, with new members being installed in April 1994.

Three incumbents have been nominated for second three-year terms. They are: Alvin P. Anderson '70, '72 J.D. of Williamsburg, attorney with Anderson Franck & Davis P.C.; Robert S. Andrialis '65 of New York City, principal with the Berwick Capital Group; and Joanna L. Ashworth '84 of Charlotte, associate development officer for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hospital Authority Foundation.

CALL FOR ATHLETIC HALL OF FAME NOMINATIONS

Criteria for membership in the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame:

1. It shall be open to persons who have made an outstanding contribution to the College as a superior competitor in Intercollegiate Athletics, as a teacher-coach who has compiled a distinguished record, or as an administrator who has made a long-term, exemplary contribution to the athletic program through strong leadership.
2. Additional consideration will be given for continued contributions to society through community activities, through performance in chosen fields of endeavor and through avocations, which bring credit and distinction to the College.
3. In order that proper assessment may be made of the nominee, a time period of at least 10 years must have elapsed since graduation for the competitor. A coach or administrator should be disassociated with William and Mary athletics in an official capacity for at least five years. Exceptions to the five-year period must receive a unanimous vote of the committee.
4. No more than eight persons and no more than one team will be inducted annually.

Alumni who wish to make a nomination should fill out the ballot below and return it with detailed supporting information to: Athletic Hall of Fame Committee, P.O. Box 399, Williamsburg, VA 23187, no later than Aug. 1, 1993.

Class of 1943 Looks Back with Fond Memories

It was a weekend filled with memories for members of the Class of 1943 when they returned for their 50th reunion celebration May 14-16, the same weekend that the Class of 1993 graduated in Zable Stadium. Class members joined the commencement processional and recalled their own graduation as William and Mary's "quarter millennial" class in June 1943 in the Wren Yard.

Characterizing their college days as "the best of times and the worst of times," President Sullivan saluted members of this war-years class and said, "You persisted, you endured, you now return to triumph. It's been a long and eventful journey. We are honored by your presence."

Sullivan spoke at Saturday's luncheon in Trinkle Hall where more than 80 class members from 21 states were joined by spouses and guests. In gratitude to the College, the class presented its 50th reunion gift. The nearly $129,000 gift will establish a permanent endowment for undergraduate research, fund a room in the Alumni Center expansion and provide support to the College's Annual Fund.

"The College gave us a protected place in which to grow," reminisced Elizabeth Costenbader Bellis, "and I am glad that it continues to thrive, mixing tradition with diversity." Bellis, one of many class members who returned for the reunion weekend, lives in Hamden, Conn., and is a retired associate dean of the Yale School of Public Health.

Fourth row, from left: John W. Hollowell, Doris Miller Harnsberger, Hugh F. Harnsberger, Donald Ray Taylor, William E. Corr III, Dyckman Vermilye, Philip Randolph Thomas, Milton Greenblatt, Donald Hahne, Harry Kent, Howard M. Smith, John W. Todd, Grayson Clary, Cecil Allan Brown, George L. Sisson, Robert Jamieson Faulconer, DeWitt R. Searles, Anne Korn Shea.

Classmates Edgar Pointer of Gloucester, Va., (left) and George Sisson of Bristol, R.I., are joined by Joanne Pointer in reminiscing over a scrapbook owned by Pointer.

Scotty '43 and Cecy Waddell Cunningham '46 visit with friends at Saturday's luncheon.

The Great Hall of the Wren Building provided an elegant setting for Friday evening's reception.

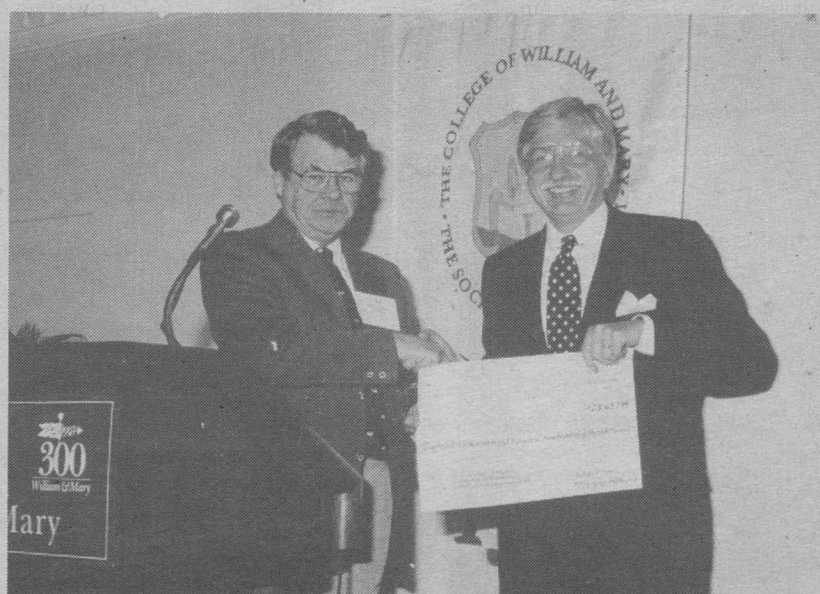

Evelyn Cosby King (left), who served as activities co-chair of the reunion with husband Hal, presents the "Roadrunner Award" to Doris Miller Harnsberger for traveling the greatest distance to the reunion. Doris and Hugh "Hutch" Harnsberger met as lab partners at William and Mary and were married shortly after graduation. They now live in San Anselmo, Calif.

Class members were inducted into the Olde Guard of the Society of the Alumni at Saturday night's dinner/dance. Barry Adams (above), executive vice president of the Society, congratulates Helen "Sis" Jerry Mallet. Cecil Harper '34, chair of the Olde Guard Council, welcomes Virginia "Gin" Curtis Patterson.

The Rev. Grayson Clary leads fellow class members in a memorial service on Sunday morning in the Wren Chapel.

Robert Faulconer, reunion gift chair, presents the class gift of $128,657 to President Timothy Sullivan.

CLASS NOTES

27 M. Carl Andrews
2814 Crystal Spring Ave., S.W.
Roanoke, VA 24014-3214

Dear Fellow Old-timers:

It's hard to believe: when you read this, the Tercentenary of the grand old College will be half gone into history. But not to worry, here we begin to savor Homecoming.

However, I cannot let the occasion slip by without a few words of reminiscing about the glories of Charter Week, Feb. 8-14.

I had prayed the Lord to spare me to help celebrate that wonderful occasion and was duly rewarded when I was named to represent my class in the Charter Day processional, something to be remembered the rest of my days, as I'm sure it was to everyone else so chosen.

As we led the processional into William and Mary Hall, there strode at our head the one man qualified to place the letters BC (Before Co-eds) after his name: Ralph James '16 of Hampton, almost as permanent as the College, who never misses an event. How wonderful to see him again!

There followed David Gardiner Tyler '20, then six others of the truly Olde Guard: Catherine Teackle Dennis '21, T. C. Clarke '22, Maude Cheatham Copeland '23, Rolfe E. Kennard '24, Mary Parker Old '25, Rosina F. Bowers '26 and Yours Truly '27. Next came four whose College days started with us: Mary Land Gill '28, Margaret Shreeves Bozarth '29, William R. Savage Jr. '30 and Ellen Ticer King '31.

As we moved along to the beautiful words of the William and Mary Hymn sounded by the William and Mary Choir and the Concert Band, the floor seemed to rumble with joy and the applause of more than 10,000 happy voices of faculty, students, alumni and many visitors.

You read about all that followed in the March Gazette, so I skip details except to say that Prince Charles delivered a magnificent message from the Crown that first honored the College 300 years ago. Well might Tim Sullivan '66, our 25th president, who graduated while I was still a member of the Board of Visitors, swell with pride. He and Rector Hays T. Watkins '82 LL.D. ran the show in magnificent fashion. Many others deserve mention.

Up-to-date news is lacking this time because none of you readers sent any. Interesting comments did come from Elizabeth Palmer Thompson '25 who lives in Waco, Texas. She enjoyed the March items about Dr. Joe Ellis and Charles Friend '25 and reported participating in the Dallas area celebration of the Tercentenary while still planning for Homecoming, age permitting.

Elizabeth, whose address in Waco is 2800 Mt. Carmel, was disturbed by Waco's adverse publicity over the protracted controversy created by the standoff between government and the religious cult. All of us can sympathize.

Her message came on a Wren Building postcard. Strange it reaches Waco post offices but is unavailable here!

My other news came in a note from Jean Bahr Waltrip '79 M.Ed., of Rocky Mount, N.C., daughter of a late classmate, Mary Fairfax Griffith Bahr. Fairfax and a sorority sister, Maxwell Brockenbrough, were known campus wide as "Fax and Max." Jean has a stepdaughter with a W&M degree — Deborah Snead '70, whose husband, Ben, boasts a W&M degree from 1971.

Jean and her husband moved to the Roanoke area 10 years ago. She describes this as "a small world full of William and Mary graduates."

Now, let's all be ready for Homecoming week, the grand climax of 300 marvelous years. See details elsewhere in this issue of the Gazette.

Meanwhile, try to help your reporter create some news, real and not fictitious!

The May/June issue of the Alumni Gazette will include a special Homecoming supplement. It will include a registration form, the only means of registering for Homecoming.

We are proud that Margaret Shreeves Bozarth, of Williamsburg, represented our class in the Charter Day celebration on Feb. 13th. I watched the entire ceremony on T.V. Wasn't it wonderful?

Thomas Christie sent me a newsy tape from his home in Arlington, Va. He was head of the science department in a school for over 40 years. Also, he was a Baptist minister. He has three children, one of whom is a missionary in Panama. Although he is visually impaired, his attitude toward life is great. He sends his love and best wishes to our classmates and hopes for news from many of you.

Nancy Ward wrote such a nice note. She is a retired school librarian and lives in her childhood home in Tazewell, Va. She enclosed a newspaper clipping about Mary Elizabeth Johnston

Britain, who was honored by Tazewell Community Hospital with a reception. She was presented with a lifetime service plaque. The hospital's west wing will be named for "Dr. Mary," one of the hospital's founders.

The Olde Guard luncheon on Feb. 11 at the Williamsburg Lodge was a very special occasion. Our new College president, Timothy J. Sullivan '66, was introduced, and there was special music by the William and Mary Choir. Our class was represented by Harry Paxton of Chesapeake, Bartlett Burgwyn of Jackson, N.C., Ethel Nunn Gregory of Sandston, Va., Ellen Ticer King and your reporter.

In the morning before lunch, I attended the symposium led by four faculty members who are the authors of the official history of the College to be published this year.

Of course, the exciting event of the year occurred on Saturday — The Charter Day Convocation when Prince Charles delivered his address. Ellen King from Williamsburg, Margaret Lane Toth '35 from Virginia Beach and I sat together in special seats reserved for the Olde Guard. It was thrilling to be there. Read about it in the Gazette.

Hal Lewis from Salem, Conn., wrote a nice letter saying he was unable to come to the Olde Guard luncheon, but hoped to attend Alumni College in June. He has represented the Class of 1931 for the past five years at the Alumni College and hopes to do so again this year. He keeps in touch with Ethel Blanks Irvine and says she is in good health. Hal, thank you for your good letter, and I am glad to hear you will represent our class in June.

I received the Mortar Board magazine. The last issue stated that the chapters of W&M and Mary Washington College were the only two in this section of the country to be honored for being the 1991/92 Chapters of Excellence. I believe this is a new recognition for our W&M chapter.

Ellen received nice letters from Betty Ambler Gillespie and Irma Adams Gillespie. She will include them in the next issue, as she will write the next column. Please send her any items of interest. Her address is 5700 Williamsburg Landing, Apt. 108, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

We are still looking for a class reporter to fill the shoes of Lota Spence Reid. Class reporters submit columns three times a year. The Society forwards news on classmates to the reporter whenever possible. Past reporters feel that their job provided an excellent opportunity to stay in touch with classmates. I wanted to write a long column, but I've been having some difficulties called "80-itis." Thank you to everyone who wrote — I received four or five letters. I'll recap a few of the details here and follow up with a longer column next time.

Peg Yeaman Paige wrote from Texas. Her letter reminded me of Seaside Park Days. Bill Smedel wrote from Florida where he spends his winters; he lives in New Jersey in the summer-time.

Brud Hall (not Brad as mistakenly edited in my last column) sent a note with a copy of a letter from Jack Hillier. Of course, I'm always in touch with Jack and June Smith Hillier, Dave Agnew and Dick Velz.

I wrote Bill Slocum in Arizona but have not received an answer. Please write, Bill!

One more thing: I appreciated receiving from Walt Zable '37 the annual report of Cubic Corp. He and his wife, Betty Carter Zable '40 live in the same town as my brother, Robert — La Jolla, Calif.

Please write before my next deadline of Aug. 27!

Olde Guard Day was moved this year from April to the important week in February that officially observed the Tercentenary of our College. Attendance at the luncheon on Thursday from our class was gratifyingly high. At the impressive ceremony on Saturday, when Prince Charles of Britain was the guest speaker, the Class of 1937 was represented in the procession by Harold Gouldman. Harold reported that he was deeply moved by the experience. He said he was impressed by the warm reception of the students and audience and by the precision with which the program was carried out.

Members of the class have been saddened by the death of Warne Robinson on Jan. 16. Connie Land Hardenbergh, Fay Bryant Savedge and I attended a memorial service for him in Wren Chapel. His wife, Mary Helen, will continue to live in their home in Williamsburg.

Anne Reynolds Wood is the new president of the Olde Guard Society. Anne tells us that she was nearly prevented from making a planned visit to a friend in Mount Dora, Fla., by the hurricane that struck in March. Just in time for her arrival, her hostess regained electricity. Anne also visited her two sons on this trip. The same weekend, I was caught in the blizzard in Washington, having to stay an extra day marooned in a hotel.

Ellen Latane Gouldman has been in a sunnier atmosphere, having recently returned from a trip to Hawaii. She says she spent much of her time on the beach, since she had done sightseeing on previous trips.

Please note that this issue contains a special Homecoming supplement with complete details and a registration form. Use it to register!

What a glorious celebration Charter Week, the official kickoff to our school's yearlong Tercentenary, must have been.

How I wish that I had been there to hear the tumultuous applause (including shouts and whistles) accorded Prince Charles as he entered William and Mary Hall, garbed regally in a black robe embroidered with gold thread and a mortarboard with gold tassel — not to mention the fact that he is good looking, charming and witty. (I had the pleasure of hearing him speak in Pittsburgh several years ago at an important architectural forum and seeing him close up at a luncheon — in a word, I am a Prince Charles fan and have been and always will be a faithful Anglophile (also a Francophile — please note, Claude Hartog.)

Our class was represented in the Charter Day processional by R. Bradshaw Pulley. Just about every class, starting with 1916 and ending with 1992, was in that long impressive line.

Peggy Prickett Miller gave a glowing report of the day's ceremonies, as did Phyllis Hornsby Stevens, who along with Wynne, "spent three most enjoyable days participating in all the events." And more from Phyllis: "Prince Charles was most charming and gave a darned good address."

News from Wynne and Phyllis came in reply to my request for cruise information. He even supplied the Vistaford's sailing date for a cruise which includes England, Ireland and Norway, starting and ending in Hamburg. We'll trade notes at Homecoming about the joys of the sea and/or river travel.

Speaking of which, the special Homecoming supplement in this issue should be of great help as you make your plans for the big events. The '39 class representative is Brad Pulley. Early registration is encouraged.

While the spring break students were cavorting on the beaches or wherever, Peggy Prickett Miller, on her spring break from teaching, her daughter Maile Doyle, on break from college business classes, and Miley (honorary '39 alumnus) took off for several days in southern Portugal, where they had a timeshare villa on the beach — nothing but lazy, luxurious living. They did stop off in Madrid en route, with time for a quick hour's tour of Spanish treasures in the Prado (per Peggy, time enough on those marble floors!).

It is with deep regret that I report the death of our good friend and faithful classmate, Bert Slaughter, on March 4, 1993. Bert and I danced our way through a reunion several years ago when June, his wife, decided not to attend and gave us the blessing that we be each other's "date." Bert was active in ever so many organizations and community and church services. He gave a lot of himself to his alma mater and to '39 class reunions.

So, see y'all in October — for yet another '39 reunion of fun and games.

Didn't the March Alumni Gazette make all who had been unable to attend the 300th festivities in February wish they had been there! Lucky Austin Roberts represented our class in the Charter Day processional during the convocation. For those of us who did miss out, our next big opportunity is Homecoming. This issue of the Alumni Gazette includes a special Homecoming supplement with details of activities and deadlines. The Alumni Office is planning on a record-breaking attendance, so make your plans early. Dates: Oct. 20-24, 1993.

A letter from Bob Vining brings me up-to-date on his life as well as letting us know of the death last fall of Ray Walker, who had been Bob's roommate and life long friend. Bob had visited Ray a few weeks before his death and attended Ray's funeral, which was held in his hometown of South Weare, N.H. Bob and his wife moved to St. Louis in 1949, when he joined the faculty of St. Louis University School of Law. In 1956 he joined a firm specializing in representing management in labor relations, and he has continued in that area ever since, though now at a reduced pace.

Three of the Vining's four children have ties to William and Mary. Bob Jr., was a member of the Class of '66; Kathy, the Class of '69 (though she finished her degree at the University of Missouri) and Paul, Class of '76. Mary was married and lives close to the Vining's with a family of three great kids. Bob and Ray attended their last reunion at the time of our 35th, and while it has been a few years since Bob has been back, he still maintains close contact with the College. He sends his regards to the class. In the meantime, Bob, think about coming back for Homecoming.

Good news from our class agent, Bob Hazen. While we are far from 100 percent participation in giving, the class is up to 38 percent — our best performance to date.

My next deadline is mid-August, and I expect to be at our summer cottage at that time. Address: P.O. Box 408, Springvale, ME 04083. Keep your letters coming, for in this case no news is not good news.

Greetings from the Florida Suncoast, where we are enjoying some outstanding early spring weather! Your secretary very much regrets that she was unable to attend the Charter Day celebration. Virginia Darst Pope was our class representative. Ruth Weimer Tillar was there also. Ruth wrote that the program was colorful and impressive, that Prince Charles received a terrific welcome and that his address was excellent.

The Tillars had visits in February from Fran Loesch Brunner and Bob, and from Sunny Trumbo Williams '44 and Rolf, as well as from Jeanne Schoenewolf Preston and Page, who were on their way to New Smyrna Beach, Fla., for the month of March, hoping to see Audrey Hudgins Thompson while there.

With her letter Ruth enclosed an article from the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch on March 3 reporting on the dedication of the Tyler Building, new headquarters of the State Corporation Commission in Richmond, named in honor of former President John Tyler. The Tyler Building was christened by two grandsons of President Tyler, one of whom was Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, retired history professor from the Citadel. Lyon was among 16 members of the Tyler family to attend the ceremony.

Early in March Jean Boyle Herbert called me from the east coast of Florida, where she was visiting and looking around with the thought of possibly relocating there.

Then on one of the last days of March, I had the pleasure of seeing Jean Huber Nascimbene and Lee, who were staying in Longboat Key here in Sarasota. Jean and I were classmates in grammar school and high school in Forest Hills, N.Y. Jean and Lee moved from Lake Valhalla, N.J., to Coatesville, Ind., several years ago.

Ruth Dietz Charlesworth wrote that she had retired. She is living in Tamarac, a suburb of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Ruth keeps busy serving on the main board of the Mainland Seven Maintenance Corp., a homeowner association, and was their treasurer last year.

The very efficient and helpful secretary of class reporter Jack Carter '44 sent news of Jack Fields, who left W&M for the Navy during World

Organizers of Career Exploration Day, an annual program sponsored by the Office of Career Services and the Society of the Alumni, are lining up alumni panelists to speak at next year's program on Saturday, Jan. 29, 1994. Whatever your field or interest, if you would like to share your career path and insight into the world of work with current William and Mary students, please write Bob Hunt, Associate Director of Career Services, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23187-8795 or call 804/221-3240.

War II, then went on to Columbia for an engineering degree. Jack has successfully managed the family business in Rochester, N.Y. Jack and Mary have recently bought a cluster house in Burnt Store near Punta Gorda, Fla. The Fields own two sailing yachts. One is kept in Florida and the other on Lake Ontario near Rochester. Last summer the Fields made two cruises to the Thousands Islands in their northern yacht, Blue Horizon III.

Your secretary enjoyed lunch during March once again with Marge Retzke Gibbs '44 and Marion Smith Turner '43. This time we were joined by Natalie Rogers Mabry '42, who was vacationing in Florida with her husband. Natalie and I had not seen each other since shortly before her graduation!

For those of you planning to attend Homecoming, Oct. 20 to 24 — and I sincerely hope that many of you do — please note the special Homecoming supplement which is part of this issue. You must use the form included with the supplement to register for Homecoming. It is strongly advised that you register early. As you can see, many events are planned. It will be the Homecoming weekend of a lifetime! I look forward to seeing you there.

My deadline for my next letter, which will appear in the October issue, will be Aug. 27. Please keep me in mind during the summer. Postcards are welcome!

Happy 1993! Bill Klein dropped in for an "eye opener" on New Year's Day. Bill has a lovely new home near here at White Stone, which he visits since Betty won't leave her streetlights and crowds in Richmond (and maybe grandchildren?). Bill wanted to see Knox Ramsey '48, but Knox was in Florida. Knox has had a problem with both of his "new" metal knees and hopes Johns Hopkins Hospital can correct them. Bill Murphy '48 will have a back operation there in May.

Carol and I just returned from a tennis week at Hilton Head. Had dinner with Jack Hoey '48 and Mary Jane. They will be at Homecoming!

W&M 49 - VPI O! Game was played in October 1946, and Henry Schutz found the old film. When Henry showed it to his children, he said "it was a cultural shock." Lou Hoitsma '48 thought it might have been the leather helmets or the VPI shift. Lou had 10 copies made for video. I enjoy mine. Didn't know Marvin "Big Stone" Graham '48 was so fast. You old guys can see my copy if you call or write — one wash to bribe you!

Just called "Cap" in Green Bay, Va., and he asked me to send him the tape. He is retired and has his weight up to 160 lbs. from 140. Had some serious medical problems and gives all the credit to Dr. Bob Ailsworth '45, who recently moved to our area in Irvington, Va. Bob and I were roommates in the Sigma Rho house before Uncle Sam sent his greetings in 1942. Hopefully, I can find some more of the old game films and set up a revolving film center to generate news.

Tommy Korczowski '49 ran wild in the game (as did others), and it is one of the reasons he will go into the W&M Hall of Fame this year.

Wore my W&M cap in the airport at Omaha, Neb., and a man asked me if I knew Dixie Walker '48. Both played high school ball in Danville, Va., way back.

Recent photo in the Richmond paper of the '47-'48 John Marshall basketball team. State champions with Ted Filer '52, a player, and Jim Hickey '43, the coach. Jim attended the Order of the White Jacket dinner with Jack Freeman two years ago. Jane Freeman is still teaching math at Lexington High School and hopes she'll continue forever. We hear her students love her.

I represented the Class of 1947 at the Charter Day Convocation. Nice to see and talk to Dennis Cogle '49, Roy "Dusty" Ash '48 and Ginny Darst Pope '45, among other class representatives. We had the best seats in the house as the "old folks" were up front. Earlier in the week, activities began in front of the Wren Building, where I spent some time with Hilly Wilson '51, one of the old football players. I was shocked to hear of his death about a week later. We were also saddened to hear about the death of Helen Thomson Stafford '48, who attended our class dinner with Harry Stinson.

Talked to Bette Hotopp Van Aken '48 at the luncheon on Charter Day. She lives in London, Tenn. Bette recalled dating Stan "Hobo"

Magdziak '48 while in school.

Carol and I attended the Athletic Educational Foundation's Lord Botetourt Auction in February. Some of the same 1992 crowd was there including Jean '49 and Jack Bruce '48 (our joint bids never made it).

Christmas Card Notes: Bill Abbotts' wife, Gloria, is just over a brain tumor operation and praying for a return to normalcy. Norma Fehse Zettler said the 1947 class photo was great, and we looked the best. Susie Seay Henzie is a new grandparent, and son Greg is a resident in radiology at Cedar Sinai in Los Angeles. Color photo cards from the Roy Shelors '49, Bill Bangels '48 and Tuga Wilson Clements '49, whom we saw during Charter Day weekend along with Jane Spencer Smith '48 and Bill Helen Jordan Mille '46 mentioned hearing from Helen "Sis" Welch '43. Patty Wattles Robie and Ed were off to Vero Beach, Fla., and the condo they bought in 1992. Patty Keene Williams '48 thanked us for calling.

Enjoyed dinner with Rose and Ralph Sazio '48 at the President's Council weekend. Ralph and I started in 1941. It was great to go back over the years. They visited Western Europe and Turkey in 1992 and were en route from Canada to Florida.

We attended the Sunday morning brunch part of Sweethearts Weekend. What a great job the Alumni Society staff does! They really deserve our support. The speaker was great: humorous and informative. We sat with the Hoitsmas, Red Bloxom '37 and Margie Hoskins Bloxom '39, and Jane Marshall Payne '49 and Jack '50.

Carol sang in the Community Showcase Concert in our Lower Northern Neck of Virginia. It was a mini W&M reunion including Don Gilmore '60 (who also played the French horn), Midgie (also on violin), and Shep Speight '60 and Frank Elliott '58 reminiscing about singing in the Choir under Pappy Fehr and the Common Glory. Floyd Griffith '72 played the saxophone in the Big Band portion.

Our next event is our W&M chapter dinner in May featuring Ed Allenby, Vice President of University Advancement, and the new W&M multimedia program produced in association with the National Geographic Society. Did you know that our Alumni Society has grown so that there is an event held every 12 hours somewhere?

We're off to Reno and Lake Tahoe in June along with our W&M alumni directory. Will call several of the 1945 to 1949-era graduates.

On the day of the Charter Day Convocation in February, my husband and I were seated, by chance, at breakfast with Lammert Leertouwer, Rector Magnificus of Leiden University, Netherlands. He had with him a bag, which he said never left his side. He opened it to show us a medallion with the seal of the university, which had been worn by each rector since the inception of the university in 1575. It was fun to see him later in the procession in his academic robe and wearing the medallion.

Henry Rosovsky, who is chair of the Commission on Tercentenary Observances, was the busiest member of our class during the many events of Charter Week. Among those who attended the lectures held on the day preceding the convocation were Audrey Allein Hoitsma and Lou '48, Elaine Campton Baker and Jim '51, and Lou Hostetter Winder and Gus '42. Other class members I had brief glimpses of were Tuga Wilson Clements, Jean Canoles Bruce and Jack '48 and Carol Achenbach Wright and Mel '47.

I recently received a long letter from Barbara Stoltz Swann with news of Bernie and their family. I wish more of you would write me letters like this — even a postcard (now available with picture of Wren Building on it) would be great. Bernie has retired and sold his business, Progressive Engineering Co., which he had owned for 39 years. They plan to move from their house to a condo in Richmond this spring and will be able to travel more frequently. They recently made a three-month trip to Bangkok, Thailand, with the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board. On this volunteer mission they taught English as a second language to businessmen and women and university students. They're planning to make a similar trip this fall. Barbara recalled that they met in Dean Landrum's sophomore English class

Contributions and pledges totaling more than $50,000 have been made to establish a scholarship endowment honoring Ed Jones '57, former baseball coach and physical education professor at William and Mary who passed away in May. The scholarship will be awarded annually to a baseball player, with a preference to a kinesiology (formerly known as physical education) major. Jones, who was recently inducted into the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame, collected the most wins ever in William and Mary baseball history, with 122 victories in eight seasons as head coach. A 1980 recipient of the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award, he was associated with sports and intramurals at William and Mary for more than 30 years. As an undergraduate, he played fullback on the football team and catcher for the baseball team.

when they were seated alphabetically next to each other.

I hope you're all making plans to attend the special Homecoming celebration October 20-24. Make your reservations early as there's sure to be a big crowd. See the special Homecoming insert in this issue.

Jim Casey of Winchester, Va., retired from James Wood High School in 1988 after 32 and a half years at the school. Since then he has been engaged in training thoroughbred race horses.

After leaving William and Mary, Jim served two years in the Army in Germany. From 1954 to 1966 he taught and coached football, basketball and baseball at James Wood. From 1967 to 1986 he served as director of athletics at the school.

Jim and his wife, Eleanor, have three children: Jimmy, a veterinarian; Ann, an elementary school teacher; and John, a horse trainer. Jim said he saw the W&M-James Madison University game last fall. He wrote that Tommy Walters, the star guard on the team, is from James Wood and is the son of the late George Walters, a fellow coach at James Wood and a former partner in Jim's horse operation.

Lucy V. (Keen) Bertram of Stamford, Conn., who was widowed in 1986, spends time taking care of her home and yard, and looking after a condo in San Francisco and lots in Teton Pines (a golf development) in Jackson Hole, Wyo.

Lucy wrote that she attended the Swedish Institute of Massage in New York City in 1977. She then worked as a massage therapist with a physical therapist in a private clinic until 1982. She stopped working when her husband was transferred to California in 1983. Today her hobbies are reading (mainly mysteries), and acquiring antique linens and pitchers as well as art. She has traveled to London, Copenhagen, Berlin and Zurich, and accompanied her son to Oxford to attend a conference that held its closing dinner at Blenheim Palace. Her son, David, lives and works in London. He is an asset manager and recently acquired a duplex flat in London.

Dr. John R. O. McKean of Canton, N.Y., retired in June 1992, exactly 35 years after completing his doctorate at Cornell University and accepting his first deanship at Allegheny College in Pennsylvania.

John had a career in the field of higher education. He held deanships at Hobart College in New York, Kenyon College in Ohio, and finally a 15-year stint at the State University of New York at Canton. There he served as dean of arts and sciences and, during his last year, dean of all the faculties. Early in his pre-graduate school days, he taught in private and public schools, and worked for the Mount Vernon Estate near Washington, D.C. Since retiring, John and his wife, Ruth, have traveled to Europe, the Pacific Northwest, Florida and Williamsburg, where my wife Elaine '49 and I had a nice visit with them. John said he and Ruth now are able to spend more time at their farmhouse on a lake in Pennsylvania, and that he tries to play more tennis than when he was working.

Imogene Praddle sent me a hastily written postcard from the East Mountain Hotel in Talien, China, where she had gone to explore, among other things, the Friendship Store which she said was housed in a circular tunnel about 20 yards in circumference. Thus, she wrote, a customer could enter the tunnel, walk between showcases, and emerge at the same point she had entered.

I had a good visit with Charles Craig when he came to Williamsburg to attend some Tercentenary events at the College. Charlie, who has lived in Atlanta for the past 30 years, is in the insurance business. He and his wife have two married daughters, both of whom live in Atlanta, and four grandchildren. Charlie, who sings in his church choir, said he is thinking about retiring soon.

Joan Kohler Fahey of South Bend, Ind., is the branch librarian at the River Park Branch of the library in South Bend. (She received her masters of library science degree from Western Reserve University in 1952.) Her husband, a former navy pilot, retired in 1974. She said she spent last year going to Arizona to visit their W&M graduate daughter, Nancy Fahey Smith '79, who lives in Tucson. This year they have traveled from Maine to Florida. Joan and her husband have seven children and 10 grandchildren.

Peggy Chamberlain Earhart-Bancroft of Sun

Valley, Calif., retired recently from Children's Hospital of Los Angeles where she had a "long and happy association" of 15 years. Peggy was married for a second time on July 12, 1992, to Montague Thomas Bancroft. She wrote that their latest trip was a three-week one to Australia and the Great Barrier Reef, "a beautiful place to see and I highly recommend it." Peggy reports that her hobbies include reading, traveling and sewing.

I would sure like to hear from some of you from the Class of that vintage year — 1951. Why not sit down right now and dash off a few lines about what you're doing these days? I'll appreciate it. But, more importantly, your closest friends in the class will really enjoy reading about you after all these years.

Excitement definitely was evident during our Charter Week celebration in February, with the convocation speech by Prince Charles being a special highlight. Our class was represented in the professional by our class president, Carmen Romeo. Take a few moments to read again in the March Alumni Gazette the memorable details of Charter Week. They surely will heighten your anticipation of the celebrations to come in October at our 40th reunion.

Please note the special tribute paid to Bill Chambers in the March issue. Many of us watched the recent NCAA basketball tournaments on television. Our class can say we personally know the star who holds the all-time NCAA record for rebounds in a single collegiate game! Bill's No. 32 jersey was retired by the College in February.

Ginny Campbell Furst was honored in New Orleans as one of the top 10 sales persons by Prudential Co. Last year was a $21 million sales year for her! Husband Bill is employed by Huey Co. and also has his real estate license. Ginny keeps in touch with Mary Ellen Romney Baude, whose husband works for Hewlett-Packard in Fort Collins, Colo.

Please refer to the special Homecoming supplement included with this issue for complete details about Homecoming, registration forms and preliminary schedules. This will be the only means of registering. We are expecting about 225 people, including spouses, from our class alone; so do register early and plan to be a part of our Tercentenary celebration. There is no better place than Williamsburg to renew old friendships. See you there!

The Gazette staff will be happy with me! I only have news of the Charter Day convocation ceremonies where, from a distance, I saw Bill Prince marching in the academic procession representing our Class of 1955. The entire weekend was most impressive and meaningful. If you plan to celebrate our 300th birthday this Homecoming, be sure you read this Gazette's special supplement and register early. I will be there and look forward to seeing a lot of you. If you cannot attend, drop me a line and tell me what you are up to! See you in October!

40TH REUNION

WILLIAM AND MARY PROFESSOR WINS VIRGINIA'S OUTSTANDING FACULTY AWARD

Joyce VanTassel-Baska, Jody and Layton Smith Professor of Education at William and Mary, is one of 11 winners of the Outstanding Faculty Award from the State Council of Higher Education. VanTassel-Baska, the founding director of the College's Center for Gifted Education, is a teacher-scholar-administrator of national acclaim with 20 years experience in gifted education. She was educated at the University of Toledo in Ohio and received a bachelor's of education, master's of education, master's of arts and a doctorate in education. She is also author, co-author, or editor of six scholarly books, and more than 150 monographs, journal articles, reports and curriculum publications. VanTassel-Baska was appointed to the School of Education at the College in 1987 to establish a national center for the study and teaching of gifted children. According to Hugh L. Patterson, council chair, winners were selected from a pool of 59 nominees from institutions statewide. A 15-member panel consisting of council members, business and community leaders, past recipients and representatives of Virginia's public and private colleges and universities chose the winners. Winners will receive a $5,000 prize and the Outstanding Faculty Award Crystal sculpture designed by Kent Ipsen of Virginia Commonwealth University.

800/446-9244 to reserve your room at the Ramada Inn Historic Area, and let them know you are part of the '56 and '57 reunion group. Ask to speak to Brian or Vicky. There are a limited number of rooms, so act quickly.

Members of the Class of '57 have been mailed some information about the hospitality room for both '56 and '57. If, by chance, you have not received this information, read on. Send $10 to cover the cost of mailing, the hospitality suite, set ups, snacks and Sunday brunch. What a deal! Send a check with your name, address, class and spouse's name to: Jim and Jane Kaplan, 35 Alpine Drive, Wayne, NJ 07470.

Speaking of Homecoming, check the special supplement in this issue of the Gazette. It contains the only means of registering for Homecoming. If you plan to register, do it early because of the anticipated large turnout for the College's 300th anniversary.

Sharon Daniel '91, '92 M.S. has advised the Alumni Records office of the death of her father, Charles Raymond Daniel Jr., on Dec. 10, 1992, from recurrent esophageal cancer. "Charlie" lived next door to me in Taliaferro dorm, over the old bookstore, our freshman year. On that same dorm floor that year were Dave Flemer, Marty Miller, Bob Nelson, Bob Schlatter, Norm McEvers, Mason Swann '56, Joe Cannaday '56 and "Bullet" Bill Rowman '54. Sharon reports that her father was too ill to attend the 1991 or 1992 Homecoming, but he managed to miss only one other Homecoming in 39 years. That's some record! We extend our sympathies to Sharon and to Charlie's wife, Dawn.

Dr. Wayne Adams, our class president, was invited to join U.S. foreign dignitaries on Feb. 13 in celebrating the 300th anniversary of the College of William and Mary's charter. Wayne represented us (Class of '57) at ceremonies which included His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales. Prince Charles delivered the Charter Day address. Wayne is a dentist in South Boston, Va., where his wife, Janet, is a guidance counselor at the junior high school. They have two children, Anne and Jay. Anne is a student at East Carolina, and Jay is currently pursuing studies at Virginia Tech.

I spoke with Alice Weir Flemer '58 and her husband, Dave, by phone recently. They live in Gulf Breeze, Fla., where Dave is employed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as a research ecologist. He operates out of an environmental research laboratory in Gulf Breeze and is conducting research on coastal marine and environmental toxicology. Alice is an administrator for the Mitre Corp. at present, but she has been a teacher for most of her professional life. She was a sixth-grade teacher in Henrico County, Va., while Dave was finishing his master's degree at the University of Richmond in '58-'59. She continued teaching in New Brunswick, N.J., where Dave completed his Ph.D. in biology at Rutgers University. They have three sons, all of whom got married recently within a 16-month period. Son Andrew lives in the San Francisco area, Matthew lives in a suburb of Atlanta and youngest Sam lives in Fairfax County, Va. Dave told me that he and Alice plan to see us this fall at Homecoming.

I spoke with Dick Bell (Ding Dong) and his wife, Elaine, by phone recently. They live in Flourtown, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia. Dick is still selling for Stanford Seed Co., which he has been doing for the past 36 years. Elaine is the secretary for the superintendent of the Springfield School District in Montgomery County, Pa. They are into the empty nest syndrome at this time in their lives and enjoying it. Their eldest son, Steve, is a banker in the Philadelphia area, and Dave, the youngest, works for a foundry in Oregon. Dick and Elaine enjoy playing golf and gardening. We will see them in October.

Dick said that he and Elaine shared a condo for a week last summer in Maine with Bill Overton and his wife, Norma. Bill lives in Chesapeake, Va., where he runs his own coin-operated laundry business.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of Eddie Jones. However, Eddie was present at his induction into the W&M Athletics Hall of Fame in April. A baseball scholarship has been established in his name. You will be hearing more about this if you have not already.

I hope to see you at Homecoming, Oct. 20-24. In the meantime, keep those cards, letters and phone calls coming.

Dhahran, Saudi Arabia

Surprise, a name from the past appears (Sigma Pi, Taliaferro Hall). Despite my distant location I could not let our class go unrepresented in the 300th year, so I volunteered to be our class reporter. The recent visit of Prince Charles reminds me of the visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip during our days there. Now I hope to hear from you, but to start out until I can get your news, I'll bring you up to date on my activities.

Working in data processing, usually for major oil companies, I have spent most of my career living overseas in Caracas, Venezuela and London, and I am currently with Aramco in Dhahran. This has literally given me the opportunity to travel all over the world, including such exotic spots as Tahiti, Bali, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Rio and Papua New Guinea. While in Venezuela I learned Spanish and met my wife, who hails from Spain. Our daughter now attends Baylor University in Waco, Texas (but has not joined any nearby cults), and we have a younger son. Currently I am the project manager to automate our nine dental clinics spread across the eastern province of Saudi Arabia. This involves buying computers, peripherals and software, setting up communications and training dental personnel. It still leaves plenty of time for tennis and golf.

We had an exciting time over here a couple of years ago during the Gulf War. We entertained U.S. soldiers weekly at home, where we fed them and gave them an opportunity to call home. In the early days, before their facilities improved, a chance to take a hot bath and do some laundry was also welcome. Aramco Americans organized caravans that went up north to visit and feed Marines: they were certainly surprised to see the civilians. It was very rewarding to meet and help them, many were so young, and we were able to see the new military equipment. We even saw some Russian equipment captured from the Iraqis. Between the noise of the jets taking off from the airbase next door and the air raid sirens it was hard to sleep, but the night skies were sometimes spectacular (I once saw the explosion when a Patriot intercepted a Scud), and I have an interesting paperweight from a Scud part we found on the golf course.

A few years ago I went backstage to see Linda Lavin in a Broadway play, as I had been in a play with her in the W&M Theatre. That reminds me of two long-term friends here from the Glenn Close '74 era. Chris Robbins '69 is an executive here and wife Connie Diaz Robbins '72 works with computer contracts. Both of them are very active in our local theater group. Chris acts and is a director of major productions such as the musicals A Mid Summer Night's Dream and My Fair Lady. Connie acts and sings, recently playing Dolly Parton's role in Steel Magnolias. Two of their children currently attend W&M. Their married daughter, Debbie Kendall, is getting a master's in education and son Langan Robbins '95 has started attending W&M this year as a sophomore. Mark Bowie, also '95, is another Aramco student from nearby Abqaiq, who will return here this summer after joining the W&M Choir's 300th anniversary tour to Europe.

I have started to identify other people here with W&M ties. Laurie Uhl Swanson '67 is a first-grade teacher, but no longer plays in the women's softball league where I used to announce her games without knowing she was from W&M. Mary Horsley Dill, who received her master's in reading for elementary education in '71, is also a teacher here for the Aramco schools. Our newest addition is Ayesha Khan '93, who graduated in business management and plans to enter law school in the near future.

I put a note in our weekly company paper to try to locate additional graduates, but it does not look as though there are enough for a chapter. However, I was happy to be contacted by James R. Potenza '71, who is a supervisor in our contracting department. It turns out that he is a fellow Sigma Pi who went onto get a master's in English from Columbia U. He is married and has worked overseas since 1975 with four years in Tunis, Tunisia, before coming to Saudi Arabia, where his son, now 12, was born. Keeping horses is one of his pleasures here.

Please do not be intimidated by the foreign address. I need to hear from you to get material to make the column work. You can send your mail directly to me; the cost of mailing is 50 cents per half ounce. If you'd rather, you can send correspondence directly to the Society of the Alumni. They will see that I get it.

Eventually I'll settle back in San Antonio where communications will be easier, but meanwhile please drop me a line over here. Also, you should send me information for the Vital Statistics sections. And especially, come on you fellow Texans, let's get reacquainted!

Thanks to those of you who wrote this time. From Portsmouth, Va., comes a letter from Burt Laskin, who spent some time with our class. He is a budget analyst at the Fleet Industrial Support Center and is also on the Portsmouth Municipal Finance Commission. He is married to a James Madison graduate, Harriette, and they have two children, Gary, 19, and Dorothy, 14.

Another note came from Jet Hurt, who left William and Mary and actually graduated from the University of Richmond. He is currently executive director of Bonnet House in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., which is a 35-acre estate that stretches from the ocean to the Intracoastal Waterway. Before that, he was executive director of Old Westbury Gardens on Long Island. While there, he worked with the board of trustees and the Nature Conservancy to almost double the 88-acre estate, so now 160 acres of prime meadow, forestland and formal gardens are forever preserved. Previously, his career had been divided between university teaching and the Glessner House (Frick Collection).

A word about artist Robert Miles Parker, founder of San Diego's Save Our Heritage Organization and member of the Historic Site board. He has moved to New York and has focused his passion for historic preservation and his keen eye for architectural detail on his hometown. His latest is "Sketches Along the Great White Way," in which he captures the magic of Broadway in a series of evocative line drawings.

Please keep your letters coming.

Randi Sigmund Smith wrote of one daughter's wedding and another's "impossible hours on her Ph.D. at the University of Maryland." Randi herself is still in the consulting business with much travel and demanding hours.

Pat Thomas Ogren is back in Gloucester, Va. She is the drama coach after school and is also a "facilitator" for a TV graduate course from Old Dominion University. She won a grant to go to England for 13 days this summer. Pat is working on getting a local William and Mary alumni group started. They are excited about the Tercentenary activities (as I hope we all are!). A nice surprise for Pat was Bonnie Bates Rilee, her freshman roommate, who is also on the committee.

Lillian "Boo" Bagwell Evans has been named the new literacy coordinator for the Halifax County/South Boston Continuing Education Center of the Longwood College Volunteer Literacy Program. Boo has taught in public and parochial schools. Recently she worked with Southside Virginia Community College's Cooperative Career Development Program. Boo will continue tutoring in the Volunteer Literacy Program in addition to her administrative role.

Ilona Moody Salmon, her husband, John, and son Jay '91 (who is in medical school in Richmond and planning to marry a William and Mary girl when she graduates this year) went out to Oregon to visit their daughter Lauren and her husband. Ilona has "retired" from the school board but is still very involved in the community.

Don Snook '61 appeared on ABC news with Peter Jennings and CBS's Sunday Morning with Charles Kuralt in segments about the licensed practical nurse program at Presbyterian Medical Center. Don initiated this program three years ago and the results have been great.

Let's salute our 30th reunion and the College's 300th by attending Homecoming '93. Hope to see many, many of you there! Thanks, Gene Galusha, for representing our class during Charter Week! Look for the Homecoming supplement in this Gazette to register for Homecoming activities!

Martin Morris, who lives in Marietta, Ga., represented our class at the 1993 Charter Day ceremony. He deserves credit for serving us well as a class officer!

Sharon Spooner Gray's daughter Chris graduates from medical school this spring. They spent Thanksgiving vacation in Aruba and a nearby less developed island, Bonaire. Sharon spent two weeks in Egypt last year, but must devote most of her time to work with 10 banks. She lives in Atlanta, but reports directly to the head of the bank's tax department in Charlotte, N.C. Sharon spent Christmas with Priscilla Brown Holman.

Tom Ewig reports that as his family grows older, he is looking forward to keeping money in his own pocket rather than in the pockets of various schools and colleges across the country. His son Alex graduated from Ohio Wesleyan and is involved in a training program at Maersk Line, container ship operator. Shellea is finishing up at Elon College in North Carolina after a "semester-at-sea." Katie is starting her college search. Tom lives in South Plainfield, N.J., and is still "laboring away at his maritime service business in order to keep everyone in the lifestyle they are accustomed to." Tom commented that the Alumni Gazette carries news of many name events currently on campus... while we remember Peter, Paul and Mary, can you recall any others? I challenge you to write and tell me who spoke at our commencement. Tom is sure it wasn't James Baker!

Jodi Russell Horton moved from New York to Tucson, Ariz. Teddy is finishing up at Ole Miss and Kristi is an investment banker in NYC. Jodi loves their home in the foothills of the Tucson Mountains. Despite record rainfall this year, the weather is generally perfect, and they are thriving on the rodeo, Mexican food, and daily visits from roadrunners to wild pigs and coyotes. If you visit Tucson, call Jodi and ask her to take you to Sabino Canyon.

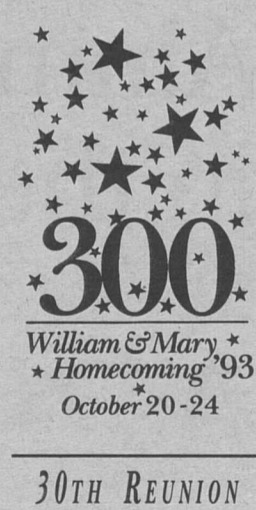

Janet Thurman Murphy's letters are always welcome additions to the catalogues that populate my mailbox. Her daughters graduate this spring, Kelly from Colgate University with a degree in economics and Maureen from Holy Cross with a degree in political science. Kelly has accepted a training position with Leo Burnett in Chicago. Maureen spent her spring break in Albany, Ky., helping to rebuild sub-standard housing. She hopes to travel in Europe after graduation and perhaps do some volunteer work in Eastern Europe. Janet's husband Bob recently liquidated his company and they are considering leaving West Hartford, Conn., for a warmer southern climate. Janet recently finished a six month's stint as acting director of a small historical society, and she is still the managing partner of Archival Consultants, a company that helps preserve manuscripts and photographs.

Janet wrote that Laurie Yingling Soleau completed her graduate degree at Smith College and was looking for a position in the field of clinical social work. Diane (Bright) and Larry Manning are back in Washington, D.C., after several years in London. Kennan Stout, daughter of Micki Leef Stout and Pete '64, graduates from Roanoke College this year. Kennan plans to work on a dude ranch near Aspen. Ashley Stout is teaching in Fredericksburg, Va. Janet Norment Findlay '64 lives in Maine and teaches school there. Her elder son Dave works at L. L. Bean, and Blake graduates from Colorado College this spring.

Ellen Rennalds Brouwer and family are fine. Katie and Susannah are juniors in high school. Katie is a varsity cheerleader and member of the National Honor Society. Susannah is interested in chemistry, painting, and Model UN.

My son Drew is planning for a summer trip to Europe with fellow students at Virginia Episcopal School in Lynchburg, Va. It is interesting that our class letters are now full of information about our children's activities and accomplishments. I'm anxious to see what we do with our empty nests.

PLEASE WRITE.

SCOTTISH UNIVERSITY GRANTS HONORARY DEGREE TO PRESIDENT OF WILLIAM AND MARY

The University of Aberdeen conferred an honorary degree on President Sullivan in April when Marischal College at the University of Aberdeen celebrated its 400th anniversary. Marischal College and William and Mary, which is celebrating its 300th anniversary, share a link in James Blair, a 1667 graduate of Marischal College and the first president of William and Mary, where he served the College for 50 years. Earlier this year, Marischal College honored William and Mary's 300th anniversary by giving the College a regal mace, a silver replica of a mace used at the University of Aberdeen's ceremonies in Scotland. The Marischal Mace was presented to William and Mary by Principal and Vice-Chancellor John Maxwell Irvine. It was carried Feb. 13 at the historic Charter Day convocation in a procession which included His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales.

Charter Day 1993 was certainly exciting! I hope a lot of you were there. Even from my vantage point in the next to the last row from the top — seriously! — of William and Mary Hall, it was the place to be. Prince Charles gave a good speech and was warmly welcomed. In some ways, though, the best part was that, except for the celebrity of the speaker and the 11,000 people who showed up to see him, it could have been any of the Charter Days I attended from '66 to '72. It was nice that we didn't change things a lot for the special occasion. (I have a couple of programs left, if anyone wants them. The price is news!)

John Keiter ably represented our class in the procession (and got a great seat, too!), but I did not get a chance to talk with him. Actually I didn't see a soul from our class, although Milton and I did have lunch with Les '65 and Anne Bradstreet Smith afterwards.

Thanks so much to Linda Brink Clough for her nice letter. She left W&M after sophomore year and transferred first to the University of Massachusetts and then to UCLA where she graduated. She worked for a time as a paraprofessional library researcher, married and had a son. She moved to Uppsala, Sweden, for three years and then to Connecticut, where she had a daughter. She later divorced, remarried and got her master's degree in library science and worked for 10 years as a law librarian. She has now graduated with honors from law school (where she was a graduation speaker) and is a litigator in New Britain. Her son is graduating from Vanderbilt in May and her stepson is graduating from William and Mary. Apparently their two daughters are still in high school. Linda asked specifically: where are Gayle Harper Davis, Gale Dehn Paisley, Betty Collins Bakun, Robert Henninger and Renee Henninger? How about it, you all? Let me know what you're doing these days. Linda also mentioned that Suzanne Borden Fisher lives in New York State and hasn't written in a while.

Toni Biordi sent me a flier from the Northern New Jersey Alumni Chapter's birthday party. She and Charlie went and helped with registration. She says they had a great time. We hope to see them this summer or at Thanksgiving.

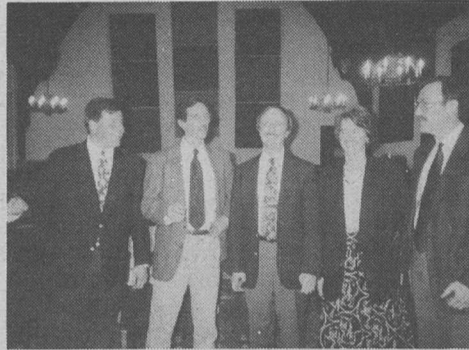

And THAT, friends, is all the news I have! So, pick up the pens and while you're enjoying an after-work drink on the deck, write me a few lines. There are still more than 500 people I haven't heard from yet. The following people are listed as "unlocated," so let me know if you have information about: James Bernard Bailey, Blaine Byron Brim, Richard Michael Davis, Susan Fern Evans Loy, Donald Gay III, Lisa Huffman Sullivan, George C. Lattimer, Carol Lynn Miller Bradley, Randall Eugene Shaeffer or Janis Karen Walker Hart.

We don't have a summer column, so my next deadline is in August. Hope to hear from you soon!

The sizable W&M alumni contingent in the Washington National Cathedral Choir has taken to launching into a chorus of the Alma Mater any time the name of the College is mentioned, so the melody has been heard far and wide during the past year. A British Embassy official who is a member of the choir has become so familiar with the tune that he was able to sing it word-for-word when he accompanied Prince Charles to the College, much to the delight of His Royal Highness. I warbled a few bars for Mary Quinn Sale when I ran into her recently in the U.S. Virgin Islands. One of the most rousing renditions was heard this spring in Brookline, Mass., during the choir's New England concert tour, when Sean Mullen '89, Jay Wilcox '75 and I were augmented by the vocal stylings of Tim and Betsy McAlister Groves.

Tim is vice principal of an excellent public school in Brookline, and I had the pleasure of following him on his morning rounds one day as he was greeted by rambunctious students. In her career as a clinical social worker, Betsy is doing research as well as shuttling between work at a city hospital and her private practice. Recently

Tim and Betsy and their two lively daughters will be spending a month in Guatemala this summer, immersing themselves in the culture and studying Spanish.

Kathy Londregan Griffin is teaching school in Delaware. Bruce Chapman is a computer systems implementation planner: "A number of nationally developed systems are to be fielded in the Pacific area for the Department of Defense, and I help make it happen." In San Antonio, Randall Boatright has been named vice president and chief financial officer of LifeQuest Medical Inc., which makes medical devices used in the treatment of AIDS and cancer.

Where Are They Now?: Barb Geddes, Joel Williamson, Marjorie Shipp, John Adkisson, Scott Davis, Les Zimmerman, Alice Kay Kirkup, Vivian Yowan, Sanders Wyatt, Kathy Hudak, John Schevchuk, Diane Paisley, Joyce Morris, Mark Wilson and W. R. C. Munsey.

I'm running low on column fodder, so please take a few minutes to write (about yourself or classmates you keep in touch with), and have a warm, sunny summer.

Alumnus Finds His Niche in the World of Art

By Terese Wilcox '94

Anderson Giles '71, an art professor at the University of Maine at Presque Isle, recently voyaged 20,000 miles in search of the subject for his most recent series of paintings.

Portrayed in these works is a synthesis of visual inspirations which originated from his documentary work in the South Pacific Islands of Tinian and Saipan in October 1988. He combines themes of island folklore, World War II history and tropical landscape with a focus on the mythic site and disappearance of advanced civilizations on the island of Tinian.

The Tinian airbase was previously the world's largest and busiest airfield, and it held a major concentration of top-ranked scientists and technological personnel. This facility also possessed the most advanced weaponry available, and from here, the first and last atomic bombs were launched in World War II combat. After the war, the 11-mile long island was abandoned, leaving millions of dollars worth of structure and

CREBBS NAMED TO CHATHAM HALL POST

Jacqueline Walford Crebbs '64 has been named director of advancement for Chatham Hall in Chatham, Va. The residential secondary school for young women was founded in 1894 and has grown to achieve national status. Crebbs will direct the school's various institutional advancement programs, including the annual and capital giving programs, and she will also oversee all media and public relations efforts as well as alumnae relations programs. Crebbs spent nine years as a development officer for the College where she served as director for annual support, with responsibility for all annual fund solicitation programs, coordination of graduate and professional school funds with central development, and direction of the President's Council. She has also appeared as a piano soloist with the William and Mary Orchestra.

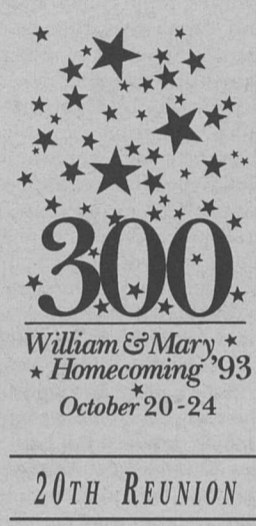

Calling all classmates. Homecoming 1993 (our 20th and the College's 300th celebration) is fast approaching. As you reminisce, a la The Big Chill, and recall the fond and not-so-fond memories of College life of yore, remember also to make your hotel reservations and get game tickets set aside so that we can prove we have overcome whatever apathy and indifference the Nixon years scarred us with. For complete details about our class events, see the Homecoming supplement included with this Gazette.

Life in Iowa is nothing if not unusual. Spring arrived but so did another three-inch snowfall, and now 36 degrees is the daily high. Needless to say, the corn farmers are getting nervous, and our city street potholes are beginning to resemble the moon's surface.

Not much to report from the classmate front.

Andy Purdy and Bob Gotke are carrying the organization torch for the Homecoming festivities, which are featured in a special supplement with this version of the Gazette. Richard Clark — our classmate, not the Bandstand host — works for Saint Mary's Hospital in Langhorne, Pa. (home of Reedman "miles & miles" of motors). He was named manager of the Indutricare Program, representing more than 25 businesses and industries and their interaction with the hospital. Rich resides with his family in nearby Woodbury, N.J.

Richard T. Gillespie was honored earlier this year by his peers when he was chosen as Loudoun County Teacher of the Year. Richard, as you may well remember from earlier clips, teaches U.S. history and economics with a flair for extracurricular excursions with his students and hands-on preservation efforts and historic events participation. Richard has taught at Loudoun Valley High School since 1973 and has been chairman of his department since 1984. As consultant to the Loudoun Museum, he gets to mix business with family life, as his wife, Tracy, works for the museum.

As I said before, this has been a sparse couple of months for news, but I'm sure you're all silently planning on attending Homecoming Oct. 20-24. Don't forget to register and be part of one of the most memorable reunions in our generation. Peace.

Hi everyone. Greetings from the great white North. Yes, I said white. Mother Nature played a cruel April Fool's trick on us and blanketed us with 6 inches of snow on a layer of ice. Wonderful! Who would want spring warmth, beautiful flowers and blossoming shrubs?

The news has been a little sparse after all the cards and letters at Christmas.

We heard that Gail Patricia Sealy was married to Patrick Stockman in the Wren Chapel on Dec. 31, 1992. Gail is an attorney at the Harbour Center in Hampton. Patrick is employed by Anheuser-Busch.

Michelle Whitehurst-Cook, graduated from the Medical College of Virginia and now lives in Richmond with her husband, Levi Cook Sr., and their son, Levi Jr.

Joan Wooten was recently honored for writing three of the top 20 sermons in this year's Small Church Preaching Awards. Joan is currently part-time pastoral counselor for the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia's Project AMEN. After graduating from W&M, she received her master's at Bryn Mawr College and earned her M.Div. at Gordon Conwell Theological Seminary. Joan is a member of the Virginia Symphony Chorus, and she loves to run, cook and play the piano. She and her husband, David, have two children, ages 4 and 7.

Payne and Marilyn Ward Midyette (both '75) announced the birth of their second child and second son, Reade Anderson, on March 19, 1993. He was born 7 pounds, 4 ounces and was 20 inches long. He is the baby brother to Payne IV, who is a precocious soon-to-be 6-year-old and a bit bewildered at all the attention that this new baby is getting.

That wraps the news delivered to us in Wisconsin. This summer already is slated to be the busiest ever. At least 100 baseball and softball games with Sarah, Chris and Jenny all playing this summer. Plus the usual routine of swimming, golf, camp, summer school, etc. Just thinking about it makes me think that the start of school equipment. Today the island is being reclaimed by forest with a mere 700 inhabitants from the once tens of thousands. Now its past is legendary.

Giles held an exhibition of his new paintings at the Cudahy Gallery in the historic Shockoe Slip area of Richmond earlier this year. The exhibition featured 32 of his Tinian paintings, including 11 large canvases. His paintings, according to art critic CeCe Bullard, express feeling and stimulate the psyche.

Over the last 10 years, Giles has held 15 one-man shows, participated in numerous group shows and has judged several important art shows. Giles has also won more than 35 awards for his work, including the $1,500 Virginia Governor's Trophy Award in 1987.

FITZGERALD NAMED SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE OF THE MICHIGAN HOUSE

Frank M. Fitzgerald '79, a state lawmaker, has been named speaker pro tempore of the Michigan House of Representatives. Elected to the legislature in 1986, Fitzgerald is the fourth generation of his family to serve in Michigan government. He has chaired the House Republican Policy Committee and authored legislation on illegal drugs, drunken driving, campaign finance reform and governmental accountability. The former Eaton County assistant prosecutor also earned a law degree from Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing after completing his undergraduate studies at the College. He resides in Grand Ledge, Mich., with his wife, Ruth, and their two children.

GEIGER ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT OF FCR GROUP

James R. Geiger '75 MBA was elected vice president of the board of directors for the FCR Group, Inc., a multifaceted real estate development, hotel, and financial services firm headquartered in Newport News, Va. Geiger will head the commercial development division. He was employed by Anheuser-Busch for 17 years where he last served as director of finance and administration for Busch Properties-Kingsmill in Williamsburg. He is also involved with the James City County Strategic Planning Committee, Junior Achievement of Greater Hampton Roads and the Williamsburg Kiwanis Club.

next fall can't come quickly enough. The summer will also bring the Larson clan to Wisconsin for a family reunion, which is a bit like a W&M Homecoming... because it includes Dave and I (both '75), Max '77 and Karen (Larson) Gillespie '76, and Sam '77 and Melissa Larson Howard '79.

We'll look forward to hearing tales of the 300th Charter Day and special get-togethers at this fall's Homecoming. If we can make it from Wisconsin, y'all from Virginia should surely be there!

I hope that you had the chance to witness the historic events of Charter Week. As luck would have it, I had to be in Nashville for a pharmacy conference. Although I enjoyed being in the audience for a live radio broadcast show from the Grand Ole Opry, it just wasn't the same as listening to the W&M Choir sing the Alma Mater in W&M Hall. Fortunately, we have a VCR, and even more fortunately, Mark knows how to program it. He captured the Richmond television coverage of the event, so I got to see some of the Charter Day Convocation festivities after all. In case you didn't know, our class was represented by Margaret Rollins Stanton. Good job Maggie!

This column will be very brief, mainly because I have received only two letters!

One classmate who was not too busy to write was Wesley Wornom. Wesley has opened his own general practice law firm in Bethesda, Md. His practice will include estate planning, taxation (including litigation), partnership and small business planning.

Kitty Dichtel Heffington also sent some news. Last fall, she was selected for Oxford's Who's Who. After several months of "taking a breather," she is returning to National Education Center-Kee Business College as contract training and services director. Kitty will be setting up a pilot public relations program of customized class and seminar design, special events and meeting planning. She and her husband, Terry, went with a group to see Prince Charles' presentation at Charter Day. Kitty and Terry are looking forward to seeing everyone at Homecoming, especially Doug and Karen Yanity Darch.

Jeff Teass, as you may remember from the March 1992 column, has been in practice as a chiropractor since 1983 and has his own clinic in Vinton, Va. After serving two terms as vice president, he is now the incoming president of the Virginia Chiropractic Association. Jeff is also a member of the American Chiropractic Association.

I wasn't kidding when I said this would be a short column! So please send a short note or a postcard to let me know what's been going on. I may have to do some investigative reporting or even make up some stories if I don't hear from you in time for the next column! The deadline for the October issue of the Alumni Gazette is late August; please mail any information you might have by Aug. 15. Thanks — I hope to have lots of news to report next time!

Just a short column this month. In the spirit of inundating you with Homecoming 1993 news, let's start with reunion activities. I hope you recently received a memo from the 10th-year reunion committee (a.k.a. Sue Newman, Chrys Lonick-Dermody, Bob Newman, Elizabeth Young-Kirksey, Julian White and me), providing details on our Friday night class party as well as asking for some ideas for other events (i.e., parade). If you haven't received our letter yet, please drop me a line.

Now for class news...

From Andy Goldsmith: Andy lives in Atlanta, where he works as an account supervisor with the Morrison Agency. He and his wife, Laura, still see some W&M couples, like Tyler and Sunshine Meredith Leinbach during a recent trip to Indianapolis, and Rob and Lisa Zanetti Kravitz '82 during a trip to Chattanooga, Tenn.

Andy also served as best man at David Grimes' wedding last year.

Speaking of couples, the Alumni House forwarded me an inspiring article about John Whitelaw and Dr. Mary Piper. John works as an Appalachian Research and Defense Fund attorney, representing folks unable to afford to hire a lawyer. His wife, Mary, is a pediatrician at a clinic serving low-income patients. John and Mary are the proud parents of Simon and Michaela.

Mary Beth Holland Worch dropped me a quick note to say that she and husband Steve moved from Houston to Winston-Salem, N.C., last fall. Mary Beth transferred with AT&T, where she continues to be an account executive. In her off-work hours, Mary Beth enjoys their two children: Morgan, who is 4, and Katie, who is 15 months. She and Steve are also busy renovating a 70-year-old house.

Speaking of moving, Amy Young Locklear also wrote, indicating that her family will be moving to Frankfurt, Germany, this fall, where husband Shawn will serve a three-year tour in the Air Force. Rounding out her family are two children: Christina, who is 4, and Aaron, who was born in January. Amy has gone from editor to full-time mom. She is also an educational consultant for Discovery Toys Products.

Congratulations to Anne Foster, who is planning an August wedding to Charles Pfeegor. Also congratulations to William O'Toole, who recently won a newspaper's Valentine's Day contest, which challenged readers to finish a historical romance. More than 300 entries were received, and William won!

Well, it's back to reunion planning for me (along with job, house, CFA studying, and Bryan and Marissa Jo). So, until the next time, take care and be good. Once again, please provide us your input on planning our reunion. Thanks!

David Stephens married Betty Austin last September in Olympia National Park in Washington, with a reception in a clearing in the Olympia Rain Forest by the Quinault River and a honeymoon in the Southwest National Park. David and Betty live in Olympia.

Marine first lieutenant Craig Oliver recently returned from a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean as part of a Mediterranean Amphibious Ready Group. Craig visited ports in Spain, Greece, Israel, Italy, France and Morocco.

Michelle Barnes married Rick Taylor '82 at Timberline Lodge on Mount Hood in Oregon. Kevin and Beth Henry Jones; Hunter Milligan Lockett; Tom Aud '82; Peter '83 and Alice Kutteroff Hirata '83; Mark Whitney '83 and his wife, Laura; Rick Stanley '82, his wife, Susan, and daughter Lauren; and Matt '82 and Barbara Cole Thornhill '82 came from all over the States for the snowy event. Michelle and Rick honeymooned in Sante Fe, N.M., and then moved to Amsterdam in the Netherlands for two years. Michelle works for Tandem Computers in Europe.

Kevin and Beth Henry Jones are living in a "dream house" they built in Arlington, Va., a year and a half ago. They vacationed in Russia in January.

Darcy and Kelly Jackson Higgins now have a baby — Chelsea Jane, born in October. They live outside Charlottesville in Standardsville, Va.

Hunter Milligan Lockett gave birth to her second child, Patrick, last June. Sullivan, her first, will be 3 in July. Hunter's husband, Michael, is in the Navy so the couple expect to move from Norfolk this spring.

Jeff Dovon married Ann Mixon, a Furman University graduate, last July in Greenville, S.C. Participating in the wedding were Ron Bergman, Frank Edwards and Steve Flowers. Guests included Bill Sybers, Patti Cononico Sybers '84, Ansley Calhoun, Brad Hirschy, John Donohue, Caroline Baker Flowers '87 and Stephanie Baker '87 M.A. Jeff and Ann moved to Moscow, where Jeff is managing director for a U.S./Russian joint venture providing logistics services in the new republics.

Julie Garrett Vanasse and her husband, Michael, are the proud parents of twins: Anne Charette and Benjamin Landis, born in July. Strangely enough, Julie's W&M roommate Colleen Quinn Rust and her husband, Dana, also had twins: Conner Brendan and Ian Quinn, in December 1991. Julie wrote that Jennifer Gunderson is working on her Ph.D. at VIMS and Elizabeth Brown is pursuing a law degree at the University of Chicago. To cope with her twins, Julie took a six-month leave of absence from her law practice.

Laura Crigger and Christopher Cochran were married last September in Richmond. After a honeymoon in Nantucket, Laura and Christopher moved to Ellicott City, Md.

The Fedewa family, including Kirsten Eric '87 and John '89, again brought in the New Year in style (with about 750 of their friends), this year at Union Station in Washington, D.C. Nordstrom's sponsored the party with gifts for their 50-member host committee, which included such W&M grads as Beth and Kevin Jones; Mary Mitchell; Pam Ward Priester '88 and her husband, Will; Darcy Curran '87; Suzanne Lime '87; and Dan Sheehan '87. Kirsten recently joined Mary Mitchell and Ginger Baskett for five days on the French Riviera. Mary was celebrating her 30th birthday, and Ginger and Kirsten enjoyed a much-needed vacation. The three were based primarily in Nice, where they sipped wine, drove to Italy and ran into Tarek Amvuni. Ginger lives in northern France in Verdun as part of a Fulbright scholarship for teaching.

Beth Henry Jones held a baby shower for Sherry Lee Gill Hughes. Sherry and her husband, Jeff Hughes, are expecting their first child in May. The attendees included Virginia Prashch Glenn and son Zach, Karen Johnson '88, Marianne Kondracke '86, Lora Fawley Barna '83, Alicia Francis '90 and Kirsten Fedewa.

Jeff Brockman is moving from Kentucky to Southern California after graduating in May with a Master of Divinity degree. In sunny California, Jeff will be working on a Ph.D. at the School of Theology at Claremont. The program is in theology and personality and is designed for those who want to teach. Jeff is a member of the liberal/moderate Christian Church.

Rayna Lee Turner is engaged to the Rev. David Reid Brown and plans a fall wedding. Rayna works at the Virginia Department of Education, and David is with St. John's African Methodist Episcopal Church in Roanoke.

Craig Smith was awarded a Robert Bosch Foundation Fellowship for 1993-1994. The nine-month program includes work in the public and private sectors in Germany and is available to only 15 American citizens each year.

Julie Jones announced her engagement to Albert Kaehn and plans a July wedding in Lynchburg, Va. Julie works for the Mortgage Information Association in Fairfax, and Albert works for Sprint Telecommunications in Reston.

In February Margaret Harwood wed John Cowan in the Wren Chapel and held a reception at the Alumni House. After a trip to St. Lucia, Margaret and John returned to Raleigh-Durham, N.C. Margaret works for Global Asset Management-Marketing, and John is a free-lance photographer.

Kevin Meyer is now the director of marketing at Pulaski Community Hospital. After W&M, Kevin obtained a master's in health administration from the Medical College of Virginia.

Donald Samuels married Alison Eaton last June in Williamsburg. Donald is a math teacher at Bruton High School, and Alison works at Casey's Department Store. After a honeymoon in Florida, the couple now resides in Newport News.

Lisa Acker is a specialist in internal medicine at the Memorial Hospital of Danville, Va. Lisa completed a three-year residency at Duke University Medical Center after finishing her medical degree at Duke University. Lisa's husband, Jeff, is a resident in radiation oncology at Duke University Medical Center.

Julius Hines is now an associate with Buist, Moore, Smythe & McGee, a law firm based in Charleston, S.C. Julius received his law degree from the University of Virginia in 1992 and concentrates on litigation.

Carlos Ortiz '83 and his wife, Shawn, have a new baby boy, Andres Mahiew, born in March. Although he was born two months early, Andres is home and doing fine.

Dwight '83 and I are looking forward to visiting Ron and Annette Blackman Harlow in May when we vacation in Georgia. The Harlows are enjoying life in the deep South with their two children, Melissa and Austin.

Hope to see you all at Homecoming.

Homecoming is just around the corner, so please see the attached supplement for registration information. Hope to see you there!

Brennan Aileen Murphy is engaged to David Michael Peterson of South Attleboro, Mass. She is a senior investment accountant at the ICMA Retirement Corp. in Washington, D.C. John is a policeman in Norfolk, Va. They became engaged while vacationing in Germany and will be married on Jan. 8, 1994.

Mark Friedman is planning a fall wedding. He is engaged to Deborah Marie Supinski, a graduate of James Madison University. Both Deborah and Mark received degrees from W&M's Graduate School of Business recently.

Lynn and Diane Allewa have been very busy the past five years! Lynn received a master's in international studies from the University of South Carolina, Columbia in 1992. After that, she earned a fellowship offered by the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. She worked at the Institute for International Studies in Milan, Italy, where she

WILLIAM AND MARY LAW STUDENTS WIN NATIONAL MOOT COURT COMPETITION

Three students from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at the College of William and Mary took first place in the National Constitutional Law Moot Court Tournament. The three-member team competed in a field of 24 teams at Vanderbilt University on March 27. Third-year law students Joe English of Kensington, Md.; Kevin Kroner of Troy, N.Y.; and Heather Sue Ramsey of Topsfield, Mass., won the competition by presenting arguments in a fictional appeal that involved a state legislature and the conditions it could attach to governmental benefits. After graduation, English plans to pursue worker's compensation litigation with a Baltimore law firm. Ramsey wants to work in Alaska, while Kroner plans to return to New York to become a prosecutor. This was the first interscholastic tournament for the students. Their trophy will be displayed in the moot court trophy case in the law school lobby.

conducted research on Eastern European development and edited the ISPI quarterly journal until this past November. She had a great experience over in Italy and is now back in Washington, D.C.

As for Diane, she returned to W&M after graduation to get her master's in international studies. After finishing in the spring of 1989, she accepted a position in the Asia program of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C. Soon thereafter, Diane began working at the Australian Embassy in D.C. as the international project analyst for the Trade Commission. There she devoted most of her time to representing Australian companies to the World Bank and the United Nations.

Diane is now in France where she accepted a Rotary International fellowship for further graduate studies. She is currently taking courses at the Institut d'Etudes Politiques and the Sorbonne. She is there until July and invites any alumni in Paris to come by and visit.

Carol Lye Grounds and husband John are living in Gold Coast, Queensland, Australia. (Diane got a chance to visit them there.) Carol is continuing her wellness work with the Pindara Sports Club. Carol graduated with a major in physical education and later became an expert with all the top-of-the-line health testing equipment. Carol and John became parents early this spring.

Carol and John had a chance to take a five-week trip to the U.S. last fall and visited Williamsburg as well! They had a great trip and even got a chance to see old friends Tim Morton '88 and Heather Douse. Heather and her husband, Mark, just had their first baby last winter. Tim and Heather are both working in the Northern Virginia area.

I hope that you are all enjoying your summer and are making plans to attend what promises to be the biggest Homecoming ever. Thanks to those of you who sent information to me. Keep the letters coming, please!

Hi there! Greetings from beautiful RICHMOND, VIRGINIA. No, there has not been some weird time warp, we are actually back in Virginia. To alleviate the "which of the 10 addresses do I send alumni info to," my return address is now the Alumni House. I hope this will decrease the chance of your letters going to some remote California address.

Since this is the May/June edition of the Gazette, let's start with the engagement and wedding stuff.

Mary Ann James and Matt Clark '88 were married April 17 in Richmond. I know Mary Ann was a beautiful bride. Many alums attended the ceremony: Maggie Margiotta '88, Laurie Pearce, Katie Flaherty '90, Mike Savage, and Shelly and Jim Palermo '88 were just a few of the attendants. Mary Ann is working for Mount Vernon College in D.C., and Matt is employed by First American Bank in Reston.

Stella Crane is engaged to marry Darrell Alexander (a James Madison grad) in June. Stella is working for Ernst & Young, and Darrell attends Duke grad school.

Anne Lynch and David Smith were married in January at the Wren Chapel. Maureen Flaherty was the maid of honor. The couple honeymooned in the Caribbean and are residing in Williamsburg.

Kevin DiBona is engaged to Melissa Burns. Melissa is a Connecticut College grad and is a spokesperson for the Department of Justice in D.C. Kevin is a commercial real estate broker for Barnes, Morris, Pardoe & Foster of D.C. They are planning a fall '93 wedding.

Melissa Sutton and Ron Weber tied the knot on March 27. Melissa is attending grad school at William and Mary in addition to working for the Virginia Beach City schools. Ron is also attending graduate school at the College and is employed by Amusements of America.

Tom Ward married Liliana Estevez '90 on May 15 in Richmond. Tom is currently attending American University; Liliana graduated from the University of Richmond law school in 1992.

Daniel Kern supplied the following update: In 1991 he got his master's in applied mathematics from the University of Massachusetts. He then moved to the D.C. area, where he landed a job with a biomedical consulting company. However, last summer he moved to Chicago where he is going for his Ph.D. (I'm glad we're not the only ones who have toured the country.) He is living in Little Italy and is enjoying Chicago immensely. His current hobby is piano shopping. Dan has updates on these classmates: Kay Endriss recently joined the staff of a new medical journal. She and Jody Vaughan, who is at MCV, are leading busy lives in Richmond. Also in the Richmond area are Sue Rozamus, Chrissy Bryant and Ashley Dryden — although it has been hard contacting Ashley.

Mike Schroeder has been busy since our 1989 graduation. After graduation, he applied for and was accepted to Aviation Officer Candidate School in Pensacola, Fla. He attended two years of flight school where he earned his "wings of gold" and the designation as a naval flight officer. Mike is now back in his hometown and is a radar intercept officer for the Tomcat. Schroeder flies the backseat of the Tomcat, providing the pilot with a second set of eyes and a second set of hands. He works the weapons systems, does the navigation and communication tasks, and operates the systems that perform air-to-air combat. Mike is married to the former Ashley Anders. Ashley is finishing up U.Va. med school and is in Africa on some kind of rotation.

Cheryl Beatty Foley writes that she and her husband, Gene, moved to Richmond (seems like a popular place) in August 1992. Gene is a financial planner for IDS Financial Services, and Cheryl is an eighth-grade teacher in the Chesterfield County schools. In June they celebrated three happy years of marriage. Congratulations! Cheryl writes that Elizabeth Rosser lives in Italy, and teaches math and English at an Italian school. She is engaged to be married to an Italian, Daniele Boirardi, in January 1994.

My fellow high school classmate, Margaret Musa, writes that she is indeed alive and well. She has been living in San Diego for two and a half years working as the sales manager for a designer/manufacturer, Deborah Wiley. She is very busy putting together large deals with Neiman-Marcus, Saks, Bloomingdale's, Express and others. It keeps her traveling quite frequently. Margaret, do you ever get to work with May Department Stores? Her wonderful boyfriend is an artist and a gourmet of all gourmets! So they do a lot of eating and traveling. In the past year the highlights have been Los Angeles (highlight?), Mexico, New York, northern California and Joshua Tree. She even ventured as far as Paris to catch up with an old roommate. She loves California and lives in a Spanish-style condo that reminds friends of Melrose Place.

Mark Ratzlaff and Karen Jordan were married in October at the Wren Chapel. Quite a few W&M alums were there and a few took part in the wedding. Karen Framhein, Kimberly Martin and James English were members of the wedding party. Karen is still living and working in Orlando, Fla., although they are trying to talk her into a Virginia relocation. Kim will be graduating from U.Va. law school this spring and will be heading to Atlanta to begin her career. Jim continues to live in Pennsylvania, traveling extensively to Europe, Asia and across America for his job as a lumber export representative. Other alumni present at the wedding were Kathryn Surcheck '87, Mark Hurley '86, Tim Hudenburg '86, Dennis McEleney '86, Drew Gordon, Chris Hartwiger '87 and Kathy Ahern Hartwiger '88, Alicia Nulty, Corri Ulmer, Mike and Amy Brown, and Rob Vacarro.

Unfortunately, Ty Walker couldn't make it in October, but the great news from the West Coast is his very recent marriage to Kimberly Coffeen. They will be residing in Oregon.

Mark and Karen report that Scott Miller of Skeleton fame is successfully pursuing his solo musical career in Knoxville, Tenn., and touring with members of his new band. They talk with Heather Kirby every now and then. She is living in Fairfax, Va., and is working with emotionally disabled children. Although the last update on Karen and Mark had them heading to New York City to study at Columbia, their lives took a different and less expensive turn. Mark is working at Christian Children's Fund in Richmond and awaiting acceptance into Virginia Commonwealth University's master's degree program in social work for the fall. Karen is working at U.Va. and continuing to write screenplays and stage plays.

MCKITTRICK ELECTED FELLOW OF THE MAINE BAR FOUNDATION

Richard A. McKittrick '68 of Camden, Maine, has been elected a fellow of the Maine Bar Foundation. He is a partner in the law firm of Pierce, Atwood, Scribner, Allen, Smith & Lancaster in Augusta. The fellows program, established in 1990, is designed to honor members of the bar who have distinguished themselves in the profession and to support the delivery of legal services to indigent citizens. According to the president of the foundation, eligibility for the program requires that attorneys have practiced for 10 years with an uncompromised dedication to integrity and high ethical standards. All the fellows are elected for outstanding contributions to the legal profession and the public.

Hopefully her passion for play writing will lead to a career. Karen says married life is wonderful and after one five months they already have a beautiful addition to their family — a 6-month-old puppy.

Hey all you computer maniacs, don't forget to pay your fellow alum, Lee Scruggs, a visit at his store, College and University Computers in the Jamestown Center in the Burg!

Melissa Houser Boodee sends news of a number of alums. Tracy Parra Gilfillian '90 is living with her husband in Philadelphia and has just recently moved into a new townhouse. Catherine Coppola Plichta is living in San Juan, Puerto Rico, with hubby Mike. She is working as a paralegal. Her Spanish is coming along slowly, but she loves her co-workers. Kara Knickerbocker Collins and husband Charlie are still living in Somerville, Mass., while Charlie finishes his master's at MIT. Kara is debating going back to school. They eventually plan to settle in Nebraska.

Mary Ann Love is still working at Barrington Consulting. Fortunately her travel schedule has slowed down enough for her to develop a pretty stable lifestyle. She is still volunteering for Kappa Delta sorority and will move up to a national director position this year. Maria Chen is finishing up med school this spring and completing a class in Connecticut. She did all kinds of interviewing up and down the East Coast this January and has been very busy!

Christiane Choate is still living in Glen Falls, N.Y., and has recently become engaged. Her wedding is set for August in her home town, Annapolis, Md. Magdalena Mandis '88 is living in Richmond and working in hospital administration. She loves her job, although the hours are sometimes lousy.

Colin and Joann Adrales Rush are currently residing in Charlottesville. Joann is the assistant branch manager for a local bank, and Colin is doing the commute to Williamsburg each week to get his M.B.A. They are really looking forward to the end of his schooling so that they can see each other more often.

Susan Spagnola has gone back to school in New York for her master's in non-profit management. She lives with some great people and seems to be enjoying school. She is, as always, volunteering throughout the community, reading for the blind and helping out at a soup kitchen.

As for Melissa, she is still working as a Kappa Delta volunteer and doing part-time accounting for a non-profit firm. She will be quitting both these positions this summer because she is expecting her SECOND baby on Homecoming!! HOLYCOW! Two babies?! Her little girl, Rebecca, is 14 months and keeps her on her toes. In two to three years they are expecting a move to the D.C. area due to her husband's job transfer. Melissa was wondering if anyone has heard from Finnie Crowe.

Jen Spurlin Bertulaitis writes that she got married in May '91 to Peter. Jen is working for a small but successful savings and loan in Gaithersburg, Md., and has been employed there since September of 1989. Peter works for Springfield Offset in Springfield, Va. They live in Frederick, Md., and

MCALLISTER NAMED GENERAL MANAGER OF CELLULAR ONE

William McAllister '71 has been promoted to general manager of Cellular One for Oregon and southwest Washington. He served as the company's director of marketing and sales for more than five years in this district and was previously with IBM for 12 years, where he was involved in sales and sales management. McAllister currently serves on the executive committee as secretary of the board of directors of Doernbecher Childrens Hospital. He sits on the board of directors of Tournament Golf Foundation Inc., which produces the annual PING/Cellular One LPGA Golf Championship, the second largest charitable fund-raiser in the state. McAllister will be responsible for managing all operations throughout his district of Cellular One, which is a wholly-owned subsidiary of McCaw Cellular Communications Inc., the nations' leading provider of cellular communications services.

TAMURA RECEIVES NATIONAL AND PEACE FELLOWSHIP

University of Iowa economist Robert F. Tamura '81 is one of 12 scholars who have been given 1993-94 National and Peace Fellowships with the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace. Tamura, who joined the faculty in 1988, is an assistant professor of economics in the College of Business Administration. As a result of his selection, Tamura will spend one year conducting research at the Hoover Institution, located at Stanford University. His research topic is "Economic Development through Regional Integration: The Role of Population, Human Capital, Physical Capital and Technology." Tamura received his doctorate in economics from the University of Chicago; his areas of interest include economic growth, labor economics and economic geography.

enjoy the city and the history that encompass it. When they are not on the go to friends and family, they are enjoying their active dog!

Leslee Fettig was in Jen's wedding, and Jen returned the favor for her in June '91 when Leslee married Tim Dirnberger. She wore a cast on her leg for the wedding because she broke it playing softball six weeks before the wedding. She is now at law school in St. Louis. Kathleen Taylor was also in Leslee's wedding. She missed out on Jen's wedding because she was returning from Desert Storm. Last Jen heard, Kathleen was working for GO-PAC in D.C. along with Laura Stotz.

Kathy King got married to her honey, Tony Goulart. They resided in Massachusetts for a while and then moved to Pittsburgh. Tony is flying for USAir and Kathy is working for American Express. Casey Murphy is working on getting her master's from U. Mass. Amherst. She is working on a research project out in California but should be back in Massachusetts shortly. She is still playing quite a bit of golf.

Alison Alten got married but has since moved to Cambridge, Mass., because Alison is attending Harvard grad school. Chris Hinders is living and working in Manassas.

Marnie Mitchell sends greetings from Coronado, Calif. She has been living there for more than one and a half years. San Diego certainly agrees with her. She has been working for Peat Marwick doing systems and operational consulting. Her main task is to develop a large client base. Right now she is implementing a manufacturing, distribution and financial system at the Upper Deck Co. In her free time she runs, bikes, sails and stays active any way she can. She is taking an interior design class at the local university, hoping to expand her creative mind.

Marnie has seen Steve Mack '90. He was in town and is going to Thunderbird in Phoenix for international business school. They went out on the town with Mike Schroeder, who was in town for Top Gun school. Although none of his friends looked like Tom Cruise, they had a great time. Marnie also saw Sean Sell when he was home from Marshall-Wythe over Christmas. They went to the Chiefs vs. Chargers playoff game. Sean is in his last year of law school and wants to move somewhere in the Midwest when he is finished.

Jeremy Blank is in San Francisco going to law school at Hastings. Marnie has seen him a couple of times and he is still as crazy as ever but is keeping very busy with law school and related activities. Bob Kuhn is living in California in the Pacific Beach area. He got out of the Peace Corps and moved there to go to med school. He is working at a local hospital doing some sort of research.

I got a letter from Leslie Martin. She is living in Philadelphia working toward an M.A. in urban studies at Temple University. She has been living with Jeff Slomba '92. Jeff has been trying out at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. Leslie has spent her time in Philly learning about community empowerment/development in low-income communities, being involved in women's issues and AIDS activism. Last year Leslie lived in San Francisco near Bill Leigh '90. She ate fabulous Mexican food, danced, walked Bill's dog, got arrested and learned to be an activist.

Tracie Mertz has got to be one of the busiest people I know! She defended her master's in April, had a final and a 15-page paper due the day after she defended, and another exam two days later! AND she is still working at the hospital. And is preparing for four days of exams from HELL for Ph.D. candidacy. And she and another woman started a new research project with HIV-positive women. Phew, I get tired just reading her letters! Trace, any time you need a vacation from Miami, you have a place in Virginia!

Tracie wrote that Bobby Knox got married in May. Congrats Nobby Box!! Keith Marino and Mark Romano attended the festivities. Mark is finishing his second year at W&M law school and has been very successful. He got a summer internship at a prestigious Baltimore law firm and has already accepted a job after graduation next year to work for a federal court judge in Roanoke. According to Keith, Alan Snoddy is marrying an opera singer/ballerina, whom he met while working for a deli in NYC.

Tracie says that David Williams '90 is breaking every record in his M.D./Ph.D. program at U.Va. He is in the lab night and day working on some project that is sure to get him a Nobel Prize. Margery Exton is finishing her master's in environmental science at George Mason University, and Sylvia Palms is working in D.C.

Congratulations are in order for Jeff and Julie Edmonds Dean. They are expecting their first baby in the winter. Juls, I hope you have a safe and healthy pregnancy! Let me know if you have any weird cravings!

I had the pleasure of dining with Brandon and Ann Waleski Black while I was interviewing in Richmond. Monty Mason was also there, as was Kerry VerStreate. Ann is working for Reynolds Metals and is keeping very busy going to business school at the University of Richmond. Brandon is still working for Signet Bank and enjoys his work very much! He is also attending M.B.A. classes at night. Monty is working down in Virginia Beach for a title company. He visits the Blacks whenever in Richmond.

Kerry was kind enough to house me while I was job hunting. She enjoys her Circuit City job. We spent a very rainy, miserable day at the Strawberry Hill races in Richmond. The first three hours of standing in the pouring rain were fun, but then we had to wonder why we were standing in the rain! Maggie Margiotta '88, Louise Herceg Ensley '90 and hubby Bruce '90 also joined us for the festivities. Bruce is very handy with a pocket knife! Louise is a manager for Circuit City. Maggie is currently employed by Mount Vernon College in D.C. She is taking classes at U.Va. in her spare time.

Sean Murray finished his last semester at U.Va.'s Darden School of Business in May. He spent his final months in Latvia. Personally, I would have picked the Caribbean or Hawaii, but Sean had to be an individual. He was helping the good people learn more about marketing tomatoes. Do you think I am making this stuff up? He was abroad for two months and was missed terribly! Welcome back. Congratulations on your M.B.A.

Laurie Pearce has moved from Massachusetts to Georgia! She is teaching school in a suburb of Atlanta and loves it! She recently went on a vacation to Florida and got that savage tan! Of course, she enjoyed her vacation immensely.

Ken and Kim Streng Collins are enjoying married life. They are active up in Alexandria. Kim keeps very busy with her gymnastics activities and her job at AMS. Ken has been working triple time at his graphics artist job. In May, Ken and Kim are going to be the proud owners of a black lab and a mutt! Thanks you guys!

If you have been following the Waggoner saga from beginning to end you are aware that we have been quite transient! I am happy to say that the end is here! I am now employed in Richmond, as an officer for Signet Bank in the collections department of the BankCard division. The job is extremely challenging, and the people I work with are fantastic! The only drawback to moving to Richmond was saying good-bye to Wags in California. Robinsons-May could not function without him, so he agreed to stay to help them through a very busy time. Then he and the dogs from hell are driving across country! Aren't you jealous? It will be nice to be a family again.

Please keep the mail coming. I can't write about the people I don't hear about!! The next deadline is August. Send your letters to the Alumni House.

Have a wonderful, HOT summer!

Hi! I'm very excited to be taking over this column for Trish, so I hope that everyone will have the opportunity to drop me a line, or track me down in D.C., and let me know all our classmates' exciting pursuits.

As a send-off to our previous class reporter, Trish Davis, I want to say that her wedding to Michael Graves was a fantastic event. The ceremony was absolutely beautiful, and the reception was a full-filled event. Michelle Beasley Williams '89 was the matron of honor, and in attendance were Lanette Shea and her fiancé, John (who are discussing their own October wedding plans), Steve '91 M.B.A. and Jennifer Sinclair Snipes, Laurie Allison (who read in the wedding), Michelle Nekoba, Dave Haug, Steve and Brenda Sinfelt Bailey, Debbie Fordyce, Tom Duetsch '90 and his wife, Jean Rasmussen, Krissy Lucido, Michelle Desmond, Susanne Stagg, Noelle Chalifoux and Stacy Young. The wedding was fabulous, with some of the best food I have ever eaten, and I want to wish Trish and Mike the best of luck in Florida.

The surprise of the year for me (so far) has been Carol Bowman's spontaneous Valentine's Day wedding. Carol's maid of honor was her sister, Nancy Bowman '89, and the wedding was held in her parents house in Richmond. Carol and her husband, Jim Kennedy, are now living back in the Burg (where they met post-graduation), as Carol works for the criminal court system in Richmond and Jim works in Newport News. Attending the wedding were Noelle Chalifoux, Stacy Young and Leslie Morton.

Noelle and Stacy are still living together in Arlington. Noelle has found her calling in the photography field, and is currently working for Uniphoto in Georgetown and taking classes in photography. Stacy is a development assistant for the Levine School of Music in Georgetown, a community music school. I guess all of those Senior Class Gift meetings really paid off for her. The highlight of her fund-raising year has been Levine's benefit, which Hammer (as in M.C.), D.C. Mayor Sharon Pratt Kelly and Tim Reid (Venus Flytrap from WKRP) attended. I'm sure that you caught us sitting with Hammer's entourage when the performance was broadcast on BET.

Leslie Morton has currently settled in D.C. after traveling cross country and living in Seattle for a summer (before it was trendy, of course). She is living in Adams Morgan and working for Program Management Associates in Silver Spring, Md., doing financial work for NOAA. Michelle Bassett is working with Leslie at Program Management Associates. Living with Leslie is Heather Hayduk, who has just landed a cushy job doing accounting with a Georgetown firm.

Megan McGovern has recently moved back to the D.C. area after spending a year and a half in Atlanta. She has been substitute teaching in Northern Virginia until she left to visit her sister, Katie '92 and Rebecca Holmes '92 in Turkey. When Megan returns, she will be attending the George Washington University for her master's in education. Also beginning GW this summer is Sara Jane Dressler. Sarah Jane will be working on her master's in special education.

Amy Yeno, Suzanne Culp and Vicky Perry are living together in Arlington. Amy has been working as an assistant program manager with Community Systems Inc. at a Fairfax home for mentally and psychologically disabled people. She is planning a five-week trip to Europe in May. Doug Muir and Mike Cheek '92 are both working with Amy at Community Systems Inc. as residential counselors. Doug is planning to begin working on his master's in social work this fall.

Suzanne has been working as a marketing analyst at USA Today for about a year now and has recently begun working with autistic teens. The program she works with takes them on horseback riding excursions. Vicky is working as a paralegal with Caplin & Drysdale in D.C. She has applied to law schools for the fall and is planning a European adventure this summer also.

Robin Seeman and John Mehlenbeck were recently engaged. Robin is currently working on her Ph.D. in clinical psychology at Memphis State University. John is planning to join Robin in Memphis in June (he's currently living in his hometown in New Jersey) and study psychiatric nursing. They are planning to get married within the year.

Zach Matzania and Ron Miles '92 are living together in Richmond. Zach is currently the manager of the loan department of a small bank in Richmond. I'm sure that everyone will be happy to know that even with these new responsibilities, Zach can still party like a real man. Ron is currently waiting tables while he works on becoming a high school teacher.

Dave Terry is living in Richmond and playing drums with On Beyond Zee. I highly recommend that everyone go see them play. (The band is composed of Dan Pitman '93, Dave Limbrick '92, Bart Shepherd '92 and J. P. Powell '93. Ron Miles is the "sound guy.") They play mainly in Virginia Beach and the Carolinas, but I'm hoping to get them up to D.C. soon.

Steve Harwitz, after traveling cross country and deciding that he hated Los Angeles, has recently gotten a job with J. P. Morgan in his hometown of Wilmington, Del.

Bill Maeglin has recently settled in D.C. after teaching English in the former Czechoslovakia for six months. Bill is currently working for the Association for Non-Profit Organizations. Dan Hall (a.k.a. Serge) taught English with Bill in Czechoslovakia, but he has remained in Europe to work and travel.

Scott Carr and Cathy Fisher are also in Europe, traveling and living with Scott's parents in Slovenia (hopefully avoiding any war-like activities in the former Yugoslavia).

Debbie Levine is living in Atlanta with her finance, Kurt. Debbie has recently finished flight attendant training for a regional airline in Atlanta. Debbie and Kurt are planning their wedding for the summer of '94.

Eric Kauders is still at U.Va. law school, where he is on Law Review. Eric plans to clerk this summer at a firm in Richmond.

Sean Armstrong, John Bell and Clete Anderson '92 are all living together in Alexandria. Sean is currently working for Pinkerton Investigation as a private detective, and Bell is selling phones for AT&T (I'm not kidding!!) Also working for AT&T is Jules Plati. She works in sales and is currently living in Annapolis, Md.

Vicki Chase is living in Barneget, N.J., and is currently studying for the FUN second section of the foreign service exam and applying to grad schools.

Mark Compher, Susanne Stagg and Michelle Desmond are living together in Arlington. Mark

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bronfman of Montreal, Quebec, Canada, have made a commitment of $250,000 to the Campaign for the Fourth Century to establish the Andrea and Charles Bronfman Distinguished Visiting Professorship in Judaic Studies. Income from the endowment will qualify for matching funds from the Commonwealth of Virginia Eminent Scholars Program. Charles Bronfman is an executive at Seagram Co., Ltd., where he is co-chair of the board and chair of the executive committee for the company. Andrea Bronfman is co-chair of Canadian Friends of Beth Hatluisloth and mother of Anthony James Cohen, a sophomore at William and Mary. The Judaic Studies Program, established in 1985 was the first program of its kind in a Virginia college or university. According to Mark Raphael, professor of religion, the program has introduced many William and Mary students to the rich history and culture of Judaism and has enabled Jewish students to understand more about their religion and heritage.

sings continually "Welcome to our world..." as he is now the manager at FAO Schwarz at Tyson's Corner. Susanne is still working for Congressman Hal Rogers (R-KY) as a legislative assistant, and Michelle is working at Columbia Bank of Maryland. They all can be seen often at the Bally's Holiday Health Club, better known as "Vanity World."

Ellen Golembe '90 wrote with news of her fiancé, Jonathan Rubin. They are currently living in Providence, R.I., while Jon works on his Ph.D. in applied mathematics. Jon received his master's in May 1992, and he recently passed his first set of exams which allow him to continue on to his doctoral research. Jon and Ellen will be getting married this August in Providence.

Jenny Koella wrote of her fun season working at a ski lodge in Winter Park, Colo. (I'm so jealous!). Jenny is currently filling out grad school applications for the fall.

Jenny also wrote of Robin Blum's December wedding to Corry Scallone. Jenny served as mistress of ceremonies at this Wren Chapel wedding, and Beth Tota Ferry '89 and Jenny Gornall '93 were members of the bridal party. Robin and Corry are living in Ashland, Va., where Robin is currently working as a high school English teacher.

Geralyn McLernon and Mike Sola, who both work in Arlington with SRA Corp., were recently engaged and are planning an August wedding in Wren Chapel. Mike has applied to business schools and the couple is planning a move, they hope to Chicago, following their wedding.

Geralyn also gave me lots of info: Getting married in the Burg in August are Denise Petraglia and Chuck Carter. Jim Gabriel and Helen Wilcox were married in April. Rachel Haight has recently started a new job in human resources at the Analytical Sciences Corp. in D.C. Kim Dietrich is in Chicago working on her Ph.D. in economics at Northwestern University. Brandon Diehm and Jami Jackson '93 are getting married in May.

More wedding and engagement news: Janet Woo is working for NationsBank of Virginia in Richmond and recently got engaged to John Stevens, a Duke graduate who is currently in grad school at Emory University.

Melinda Summerlin and Jason Hancock were married in November at Bruton Parish. Following their honeymoon in Jamaica, they will be living outside Richmond, as Melinda is working at Deloit and Touche, and Jason is working at the Trinity Episcopal School in Richmond. Nicole Woo '92, Wendy Blades, Anne Leigh Kerr, John McMicken and Zach Matzania were all in the bridal party.

Rebecca Beebout and Reggie Jones (our class prez) were also married in November. Our bride has been working at Ernst and Young, while our groom has been stationed in Germany with the U.S. Army.

Susan Lang and Charlie Larson were recently engaged. Susan is currently working for First Colony Life Insurance, while Charlie is working for Ferguson Enterprises. This happy couple is planning a September wedding in Susan's hometown of Lynchburg.

Adam Geyer was recently engaged to Shannon Ward, and they are currently planning a September wedding.

As for me, I'm not getting married or engaged, but I'm having loads of fun. I am still working at the House Foreign Affairs Committee here in D.C. Change is in store, however, as I'm deciding between grad schools for the fall. I'm about 90 percent sure that I will be matriculating at the Bologna (Italy) Center of Johns Hopkins' Paul H. Nitze School for Advanced International Studies (SAIS) for my master's in international economics and European studies. I'm very excited, and I expect everyone to come visit. I'm also trying to figure out where we should make our summer band-following road trip, so if you know of any good shows, please let me know!

Remember, please write, call or send postcards. I'd love to hear from one and all. Have a great summer, and don't forget to register for Homecoming (FREE fun at Busch Gardens is included)!

GRADUATE ARTS AND SCIENCES

Joan Detz '75 M.A.
73 Harvey Ave.
Doylestown, PA 18901

A new book from Mary Louise Clifford '78 M.A.Ed. traces its origin to Mary Louise's study of Virginia's Indian tribes during her graduate work at W&M. When a professor asked her to tell the story of the English settlements for children, she began work on a project that has now become a book, When the Great Canoes Came (Pelican, $13.95). The story begins 75 years after the founding of Jamestown and is told from the viewpoint of the Pamunkeys.

An update on Mitchell Kambis '76 M.A., the real estate developer who renovated Richmond's historic Empire Theatre back in 1977 and restored it to an architectural masterpiece: Kambis continues to work in real estate and development at his private firm, Mitchell Kambis Inc. He's also become something of an academic. He received a graduate degree in gerontology at VCU and is working on a book called Successful Aging: A Way of Life. And, on a personal note, he's pleased to say that both of his children recently earned degrees from W&M.

A delightful letter arrived from Mary Etter, who faithfully served as class reporter for this column for many years. Mary celebrated her 80th birthday this year (at a party with 159 people, no less!) and keeps involved in a host of activities. She's quite active in the Retired Teachers' Association and likes to make "guest appearances" at the elementary schools where she spent her teaching career. Mary serves as scholarship chair of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society, participates enthusiastically in church activities and enjoys conducting tours of her Victorian home in Harrisonburg, Va. — the same home, by the way, in which she was born.

Richard H. Woper '74 reports: "I am continuing to enjoy the international work and travel for RJR Reynolds Tobacco International. As director of Operations Services, I'm involved in a number of areas, with worldwide environmental programs being the most recent addition to my duties. I'm also head of a small RJR subsidiary that sells RJR technology and equipment."

Thomas M. Neale '78 reports: "Surviving MNC Financial's woes. Three consecutive profitable quarters. NationsBank invested $200 million; 15 percent of bank. Expect them to exercise remaining purchase option in 1993. 1990s motto: 'Change is good!' Wife Barbara and two girls, Barrett and Carroll, are fine. We anxiously await 15th reunion next fall."

Robert M. Cunningham '79 was promoted to general manager, Kenmore. In this new position, he will provide leadership in three core business processes: customer management, brand management, and product creation. Robert's responsibilities include sales to Sears of Kenmore brand and other branded products, and the leadership of laundry and air control product business teams.

James J. Kamandulis '79 received his CQE certification in December of 1989. He has joined a newly formed company to develop quality systems.

May Graves O'Leary '80 and Ray M. O'Leary '80 live in Quinton, Va. May is the vice president - portfolio manager at Central Fidelity Bank, and Ray is president of Employers Resource. His company is ranked 26th on the INC. 500 list for 1991; ranked third on the Richmond Metro Chamber Rising 25 list for 1991; and was the 1992 finalist for the Richmond Metro Chamber Entrepreneur of the Year. Kathleen Hickey Wallis '85 reports: "Upon graduation, I accepted a buying position with Belk Stores Services in New York City. In July 1987, I was recruited to help start up a new specialty store chain called Audrey Jones. Today Audrey Jones is successfully operating more than 50 stores across the country."

On Nov. 24, 1992, I married Jim Wallis, a New York cardiologist. Shortly after our wedding we moved to Long Beach, Calif., where Jim accepted a new position. I have been working for Universal Studio for almost two years now, developing and buying all the souvenir apparel for the Hollywood theme park. I really enjoy my job, but it keeps me very busy because it involves a lot of travel, including trips to the Far East. However, Jim and I did find time for an extended vacation in France this summer where we visited Paris, the Loire Valley and Cap Ferret. It was a wonderful trip and we can't wait to go back!

Deborah Kurata '86 reports: "My husband, Jerry, and I had a second daughter, Krysta, in August of 1992. Instead of going back to work in Silicon Valley, I have started a software consulting company. We provide services at all stages of the software life cycle, and have recently completed work on an object-oriented multi-media product for MS-Windows. With my own company, I'll finally be able to use my marketing and accounting training from W&M!"

Clyde Wayne Crews, Jr. '87 married Elizabeth Brett Gamblin on May 23, 1992. He reports: "Some of my recent articles have appeared in the Journal of Commerce, the Washington Times and the Journal of Regulation and Social Costs." Clyde appeared this year on the television shows World Business (CNBC) and Technopolitics (PBS), and on radio shows including Battleline. He was formerly an economist at the Food and Drug Administration and is currently a part-time Ph.D. student in economics at George Mason.

John J. Dodd, Jr. '87 was named vice president, acquisitions for Pizza Hut Inc., a division of PepsiCo. He and his wife, Margaret, an attorney, have a son, John Joseph Dodd III, born on Oct. 31, 1991. They expect their second child in June 1993.

BOTETOIRT SINGERS SCHEDULED FOR CBS, ABC

William and Mary's Botetourt Chamber Singers are scheduled to appear on the TV program "CBS This Morning" Tuesday, July 13, soon after the group returns from performing for Queen Elizabeth II in Great Britain with the full Choir. The singers were filmed in front of the Sir Christopher Wren Building this spring, singing the chorus to the show's theme song "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning." Eight seniors from William and Mary's tercentenary class were also filmed on the ancient campus this spring announcing the College's 300th anniversary to the audience of ABC's "Good Morning America" show. The students, wearing William and Mary sweatshirts, waved and shouted, "Good morning America," after an enthusiastic lead-in by classmate Daryl Taylor of Richmond. When the segment airs on Wednesday, Oct. 20, during Homecoming Week, the former students will be members of William and Mary's newest alumni class.

ENDOWMENT ENABLES WILLIAM AND MARY TO COLLECT STUDENT AND FACULTY ART

William and Mary has established an endowment for a new President's Collection of Faculty and Student Art to acquire, exhibit and preserve exceptional works of art from William and Mary faculty and students. Last spring, President Sullivan and his wife, Anne Klare Sullivan '66, purchased five senior student pieces which they donated to the President's Collection. These artworks now hang in the President's House along with sculpture and paintings on loan from William and Mary faculty members. As the collection grows, however, art work will be exhibited in other public spaces on campus. Enough money is currently in the endowment account to acquire several new pieces of student art. Artworks purchased for the President's Collection this year were selected from a senior art show held this spring.

OBITUARIES

DAVID GARDINER TYLER JR. '20 of Charles City, Va., died March 29, 1993. He was a retired assistant attorney general for the commonwealth of Virginia, having served from 1934 until his retirement in 1970. He was the grandson of John Tyler, the 10th president of the United States. A graduate of the University of Richmond law school, he practiced law in Richmond before being named an assistant attorney general. He was the author of Charles City County, Virginia During the Period of the Revolutionary War and A History and Pictorial Review of Charles City County, Virginia. A veteran of both World Wars, he was a retired lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army. During his William and Mary years, he belonged to Kappa Alpha fraternity, the Anthropology Club and the Literary Society. His alumni activities included active participation in the Olde Guard and, at the College's 300th anniversary celebration in February, he served as the representative for the class of 1920 at Charter Day ceremonies. He was a former chair of the Charles City County chapter of the American Red Cross, a charter member of the Charles City Ruritan Club and a former sponsor of the local troop of the Boy Scouts of America. In addition, he was a former member of the Jamestown Society, the Richmond and Virginia bar associations and the Virginia Historical Society. Surviving are his wife, Marion McWhorter Tyler '23, two sons, David Gardiner Tyler '55 and George Keese Tyler '61, a daughter, Anne Tyler Netick '67, six grandchildren, including Barbara Marcine Tyler '88, and a cousin, Lyon Gardiner Tyler '45.

WALTER JACKSON HOLLADAY JR. '24 of Virginia Beach, died March 6, 1993. He was the retired president of Holladay Peanut Company and an avid orchardist. While at the College he joined Sigma Pi fraternity and later joined the Athletic Educational Foundation and the Order of the White Jacket. He was a founding member of St. Andrew Presbyterian Church in Suffolk, where he was elder, emeritus, and where the Jack Holladay Bible Class is named in his honor. Other community involvement's included being past president of the Smithfield Rotary Club, an active member of Ruritan National, and memberships in several Masonic orders. He is survived by his wife, Mary, a daughter, two grandsons, a great-granddaughter and a number of stepchildren, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

THOMAS LESLIE JORDAN '24 of New Orleans, died March 25, 1993. He was a New Orleans businessman who made lucrative decisions in sometimes spectacular ventures, especially in the cotton market, becoming, at one point, the world's largest cotton operator. As an undergraduate, he lettered in baseball and football. Also, he was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and Theta Delta Chi fraternities. In the mid-1950s, he and his brother founded American Tidelands Inc., which designed, built and operated the deepest water, offshore drilling rig of its time. His company, Thomas Jordan Inc., also built and leased what was the largest steel-deck barge fleet in the nation. A noted connoisseur of decorative art, he was an early backer of Edward Marshall Boehm porcelains and at one time served on the board of directors of the New Orleans Museum of Art. At the time of his death, he was a member of the Petroleum Club and had been active in several social and Carnival organizations. He is survived by two sons, two daughters, eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

LAWRENCE W. SHERRITT '25 of Tuscaloosa, Ala., died Feb. 2, 1993. He was retired from Baruch School of the City University of New York. At William and Mary, he had belonged to the Order of the White Jacket. Surviving are his wife, Eileen, two daughters, six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

JOHN BRANCH GREEN '28 of Richmond, died March 3, 1993. He was a teacher at St. Christopher's School from 1929 to 1953. He later accepted a position with Franklin Federal Savings and Loan and worked there until his retirement in 1969. As a student at William and Mary, he belonged to Alpha Kappa Psi, Kappa Alpha fraternity and Omicron Delta Kappa. He also sang in the Glee Club, ran track, and worked on the Colonial Echo staff. Additionally, he was active in W&M Theatre and the YMCA. Surviving are a daughter and a son.

RUTH DAVIES EARL '29 of Erieville, N.Y., died in the summer of 1992. At one time she had been a special education teacher with the New York City Board of Education. While at the College, she was active in the W&M Theatre. In 1964, she earned a certificate in education from Hunter State College. Among survivors is a daughter.

FRANCIS BERKELEY GLENN '29 of Waynesboro, Va., died April 8, 1989. He served as superintendent of the Waynesboro city public schools from 1947 until his retirement in 1973. Seven schools were built during his 25-year tenure, among them one that bears his name—Berkeley Glenn Elementary School. He was involved in the inauguration of the Industrial Co-operative Training (ICT) program and was instrumental in bringing Distributive Education and Special Education programs to the school system. A member of the Waynesboro Lions Club, he also served on the boards of American Red Cross, Waynesboro Community Hospital and the Waynesboro Family YMCA. In 1983, he was awarded the Book of Golden Deeds from the Waynesboro Exchange Club. He earned a master's degree from the University of Tennessee in 1941. Surviving are his wife, Jean, a daughter, Jean Paxton Glenn Hickman '69, a son, a sister, seven grandchildren, including John Berkeley Glenn '95, three great-grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews.

DAVID STANLEY MOORE '29 of Chevy Chase, Md., died June 9, 1990. He was self-employed. During his college years, he worked on the Colonial Echo staff and belonged to Omicron Delta Kappa, Alpha Kappa Psi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and the Athletic Association. His wife, Virginia, survives him.

WESTON WILLIS '31 of Bluefield, W. Va., died Jan. 6, 1992. As an undergraduate, he was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha, Alpha Kappa Psi and Omicron Delta Kappa. He also played football. He is survived by his wife.

MARVIN EDWARD HORTON '32 of Newport News, died July 21, 1991. He had retired in 1980 as the operator of Horton's Garage, which had been established by his father, in Newport News. The World War II Navy veteran was a well-known businessman in the area and was nicknamed "Highpockets." In 1949, he joined the Kiwanis Club of Warwick just six months short of being a charter member and served the club for 40 years as an active member. Other memberships included the Elks Lodge, the American Legion, the Pioneers Club, and several terms as president of the Peninsula Automotive Trade Association. Among survivors are a sister and a great-niece.

DONALD SHERWOOD KING '32 of Irvington, Va., died Nov. 3, 1992. After a long career with the Federal Aviation Agency, he was associated with Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff Consulting Engineers in their airport division, retiring in 1975. At William and Mary, he played football and belonged to the YMCA. He also joined Kappa Alpha fraternity. In 1933, he earned a civil engineering degree from George Washington University. A past president of the Northern Virginia Fine Arts Association, he also served on the board of the American Daffodil Society and was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Surviving is his wife, Lucy, and a niece, Ellen King Neff '61.

LELIA MICHAUX CHEWNING RATCLIFF '32 of Richmond, died March 11, 1993. As a William and Mary student, she earned nine letters in five sports—swimming, track, field hockey, tennis and basketball—a record that is still unbroken and secured her a place in the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame in 1980. In addition to her athletic achievements, she belonged to Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, Mortar Board, the German Club, the Monogram Club, and the Panhellenic Council. She also served on the Baptist Student Union and the Women's Dorm Association. As an alumna, she was a past class agent. She was a former president of the Tuckahoe Woman's Club and was permanent chair of the club's building committee, which was responsible for fund raising and supervision of the current clubhouse. Other board involvement's included the Richmond Heart Association, the Memorial Guidance Clinic and the Cerebral Palsy Center. LAFAYETTE COLLEGE PROVOST GILLIAN T. CELL

APPOINTED AS NEW WILLIAM AND MARY PROVOST

Gillian T. Cell, provost at Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., will become the new provost at William and Mary beginning in August. Her appointment was approved April 30 by the College Board of Visitors. President Sullivan said Cell, a specialist in English history, "had the right combination of administrative experience and academic credentials to make her the best choice to help guide William and Mary as it moves into its fourth century." Cell graduated with first class honors in history from the University of Liverpool in 1959 and received her Ph.D. in history from the same university in 1964. She became an instructor at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill in 1965 and rose to become a full professor in 1978. In 1985, Cell became dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and the General College, a post she held for six years. Cell became provost of Lafayette College in 1991. She is also a history professor at the college. While at Lafayette, she chaired the college's strategic planning committee and has been secretary of the educational policy committee of the college's board of trustees. In 1991, she received the Distinguished Service Medal from the General Alumni Association at UNC. Her awards also include an honorary degree from the Memorial University of Newfoundland.

IN-STATE TUITION, FEES, ROOM AND BOARD
TO RISE 8.2 PERCENT AT WILLIAM AND MARY IN '93-94

The cost to attend William and Mary will increase 8.2 percent for in-state students and 9.6 percent for out-of-state students for the 1993-94 academic year. The total cost, which includes tuition, fees and average room and board costs, will increase from the current $7,947 to $10,920 for Virginia residents while out-of-state students, who currently pay $15,327 a year, will be charged $16,792. Looking at tuition only, the increase will go from $2,460 to $2,730 for in-state students and from $7,380 to $8,190 for out-of-state students. In both cases, the tuition will rise 11 percent. Law students pay an additional $850 in tuition, while graduate business students pay an additional $300. The tuition increases are needed to support several needs, according to Samuel Jones '75, associate provost for planning and budget. They include faculty salary increases which take effect Dec. 1; new faculty positions supporting undergraduate research programs and new freshman seminars; new support for the Applied Science Program and the Thomas Jefferson Program in Public Policy; additional support for library materials; and funds for buildings and grounds.

BARRETT AWARDED FULBRIGHT SCHOLARSHIP AT WILLIAM AND MARY

Anne Elizabeth Barrett '93, who majored in sociology and economics at William and Mary, has been awarded a Fulbright Scholarship to study in New Zealand next year. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Butler Barrett of Emporia, Va., Barrett was recently elected to membership in Alpha of Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at the College. Barrett will begin a Ph.D. program in sociology at Duke University in the fall, but plans to leave for New Zealand in February of 1994. She intends to return to graduate school in the spring of 1995 and prepare for a career in research and teaching at the university level. While at William and Mary, Barrett was vice president for scholarship for Delta Gamma sorority and a member of Omicron Delta Epsilon economics honor society, Alpha Kappa Delta sociology honor society, the Cycling Club and Outdoors Club.

Glenn Close Captivates College

• On being an actress: "I knew that I wanted to be an actress from an early age. I never considered doing anything else. I loved pretending to be different people, to have an outlet for my emotions and imagination. I wanted to run away to Walt Disney as a kid!

"As an actress, it's a great privilege being asked to reveal material in the script. You have to explore the human heart, and stay open yourself. There's no easy way."

• On advice for aspiring actors: "This is a very difficult business to give advice in. You never really know what the secret to success is—anyone who pretends to be steering people wrong. You must be motivated and resilient. And to have longevity, you have to have talent. You can make a splash, but without talent, your career won't last."

• On movies vs. theatre: "Theatre is more physically demanding—you have to come up with the goods eight times a week. It also means there's a long stretch when I can't tuck my daughter into bed at night. But theatre gives you a sense of proportion—you don't have a limo picking you up every night, you have to do your own makeup, you have to work in front of an audience. You learn your craft."

• On the difficulty women have in the movie business: "The movie industry is a male-run business—the bottom line is money. Realistically speaking, if you had women making movies that brought in as those that men do, I'd like to think women could demand and get as much in salary. In contrast, there are great roles for women in Europe—they seem to value their women more."

• On being a mother: "The best thing I can offer my girl child is to be a fulfilled woman in her eyes. My daughter has always gone with me when I work, starting from the age of 7 weeks. She sees that I love my work."

• On her current life: "It's wonderful to have time to be at home. My daughter wakes me up with her stuffed animals and blanket and our dogs. We take the dogs to school with us, and I sit in her prekindergarten class."

• Glenn Close on Howard Scammon: "I owe him a great deal. He never allowed any of us to become too self-important—he always reminded us that we were big fish in a little pond. I thank him very much for the support he's given me ever since I left William and Mary. I love him dearly."

• Howard Scammon on Glenn Close: "I still talk with her about her performances. When I went backstage after Death and the Maiden, she asked, 'What'd you think?' I told her I thought she was fine, but tell those two men with you [Gene Hackman and Richard Dreyfuss] to speak up!

"Glennie is very open, very frank. That's her greatness. I don't think she's changed at all since she was here. She's still very much herself."
