Record Crowds Celebrate Tercentenary Homecoming

By Lisa Riess

Temperatures soared and fall leaves turned from ivy green to gold in a warm William and Mary welcome to the record-setting 13,000 alumni who returned to their alma mater for a special Tercentenary Homecoming.

Five days of reflection, celebration and ceremony marked the largest Homecoming—and birthday party—held in William and Mary's 300-year history. From Botetourt to Busch Gardens, academics to athletics, more than 100 events challenged the mind, memory and imagination.

"It was the mother of all Homecomings," said William Armbruster '57.

Attendance at events set new records: 3,000 lunched on the lawn; 17,616 (the second-largest football crowd in W&M history) cheered the Tribe to a 51-17 victory over Villanova; 252 took to the streets in the annual 5K run; and thousands reveled in the fun and games at Busch Gardens.

Today, two sculptures remain on campus as monumental reminders of Homecoming '93 and William and Mary history. Likenesses of College fathers Lord Botetourt and Rev. James Blair, commissioned for the Tercentenary year, were unveiled in Homecoming ceremonies.

For many, the unveilings were an opportunity to reminisce. "It's wonderful to have him back; I missed him," said Joan Worstell Carter '45 at the Lord Botetourt dedication. She joined generations of Botetourt admirers, who curtsied and tipped their duc caps to the statue resurrected in the Wren Courtyard, where the original stood for nearly 150 years before damage forced its move indoors.

Memories were a big part of Homecoming '93. Homecoming Parade floats served as a moving timeline of William and Mary's history, and some visitors returned to campus for the first time since graduation. "Many friends, many memories and many spectacular events filled every minute of the weekend with pride, joy and tears," Jacquie J. Myers '52 said in retrospect.

Over 3,000 returned to the classroom, choosing from the more than 80 educational offerings in the Academic Festival. Topics ranged from "New Perspectives on the American Civil Rights Movement" to "Why is Your Arm not Your Nose, or How Does an Embryo Become an Adult?" The intellectual pursuits stretched from shore to ship, where visitors aboard a VIMS (Virginia Institute of Marine Science) vessel charted new educational waters.

"How good it was to sit in on some professors I had the pleasure of knowing in 1969... and seeing that 24 years has only made them better," said Dr. James G. Cobb '69.

Others revisited their college days with former classmates. From '48 to '88, class reunions set new attendance records. The Order of the White Jacket luncheon honoring Virginians for community service hosted more than 350 guests; 262 sat down to the third annual 1775 mess hall breakfast; and 1,118 recent graduates showed their W&M pride at the Young Guard party.

Many marked the occasion with recognitions of achievement and donations to further their ties with the College. The class of '68 presented a $244,000 gift, marking their 25th reunion year. The Hulon Willis Association honored two College employees for supporting African-American students from W&M's early years to present. And the Leslie Cheek award was presented to fine arts emeritus professor Carl Roseberg at the alumni art exhibit.

Special guests and surprises made this year's star-studded theme appropriate. The Anheuser-Busch Clydesdales added graceful strides to the Homecoming Parade. Grammy award-winning artist and Virginia son Bruce Hornsby performed at the Tercentenary Ball. Skydivers spiraled above Zable Stadium in pre-game ceremonies and landed on the 50-yard-line with the game ball. And astronaut Kenneth Reightler came bearing out-of-this-world gifts—William and Mary memorabilia that had recently orbited in space aboard the shuttle Discovery.

The final sparks flew at a glittery Busch Gardens birthday party for the College, featuring a 12-foot birthday cake and a half-hour fireworks finale. At the celebration, President Timothy J. Sullivan '66 announced the conclusion of the Campaign for the Fourth Century, which surpassed its $150 million goal. In honor of the achievement, National Steering Committee Chair Mark H. McCormack '51 presented a portly piggy bank before a jubilant packed house in the park's Royal Palace Theatre.

The warmth of Homecoming, however, was not lost in a sea of green and gold. Old friends embraced in the crowd, timeless traditions were honored and fallen classmates remembered in a hushed Wren Courtyard ceremony. For many, the occasion was a bridge between William and Mary's past and future.

College Rector James Brinkley '59 captured the nostalgia in a Tercentenary toast at the gala ball: "The hallowed walls of a campus are only bricks and mortar until people breathe life into them. And if you listen, you will hear in the Great Hall of the Wren Building the subdued echos of the voices of Blair, Wythe, William Small, Old Tucker, The Seven Wise Men and other great teachers known by you who have brought forth ideas, questions, knowledge and understanding.

"What a saga it has been for three centuries of good minds learning from great minds."

An honor guard from Colonial Williamsburg stands on either side of the new statue of Lord Botetourt unveiled at Homecoming.

Homecoming King Walter H. Preston and Queen Reyna J. Vazquez headed the Homecoming court, which included freshmen Lisa Lipke of Burke, Va., and James Wallis of Herndon, Va.; sophomores Ashley Tupper of Yorktown, Va., and Barclay Bright of Danville, Va.; juniors Pamela Mason of Virginia Beach and Mikael Davis of Newport News, Va.

KAPPA ALPHA HOUSE

RICHMOND ROAD

Be There and Bring Your Friends

Original auction handbill, June, 1943, on closing of the KA House

1943. Amid a world at war, a house on Richmond Road closes its doors on an era. Handbills announce the fate of the Kappa Alpha House throughout Williamsburg. A little more than 24 months later the stately Bright House, as it was known before and after its stint as the KA House, opens a new era as quarters for many of the returning veterans who enrolled at William and Mary.

After a few years the 19th century farmhouse begins a new mission—faculty apartments. But the need for providing such a facility fades and by 1972 the Society secures the structure for an Alumni House.

1973. The alterations were completed wisely and lovingly. Leaders and friends stepped forward and fueled the completion of a dream first discussed nearly three decades before. In the early years of its operation, alumni visitors were reported as annually "numbering in the hundreds." Transformed into a campus centerpiece, the elegance, in part, is portrayed by plaques with the names of individuals and groups adorning placed around the house.

The James S. Kelly '51 entryway, a gift of Aubrey L. Mason '47, identifies the Society's board and key College officials who worked to make the Alumni House a reality. Adjacent to the dedication plaque is a listing of the alumni and friends who provided critical financial resources to complete the project. As visitors enter today, the Alumni House is replete with names long associated with the College and the Society.

Alumni Directors Election Results Announced

Three new members and two incumbents have been elected to the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni.

Alvin P. Anderson '70, '72 J.D. of Williamsburg, who enters his second term on the board, is treasurer of the Society and chairs the Finance Committee. In addition, he serves on the Executive, Alumni House Expansion and Strategic Planning committees. A partner in the law firm of Anderson, Franck & Davis, P.C., in Williamsburg, he serves as commissioner of accounts for the circuit court of the city of Williamsburg and James City County, and has been a lecturer in business law at the College. He has also served as a member of the Board of Directors of Crestar Bank, Peninsula and has participated in the Alumni Society's "Life After DOG Street" program. He and his wife, Betsy Calvo Anderson '70, have two daughters.

Joanna L. Ashworth '84 has served on the Board of Directors since April 1990. She currently chairs the Alumni Services Committee and works as an associate development officer for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hospital Authority Foundation in North Carolina. Ashworth was president of the Society's Metropolitan Washington D.C. Chapter when it was named Outstanding Chapter in 1988 and has served on the Board of Directors of the Greater Charlotte Chapter. She has been the Alumni Gazette reporter for her class for more than nine years and has been active in the Alumni Career Advisory Service and Career Exploration Day. Ashworth is married to David Walls.

Clyde E. Culp III '65 is president and chief executive officer of Long John Silver's Inc., a restaurant chain based in Lexington, Ky. He most recently served as president and chief executive officer of the Embassy Suites Hotel Division in Memphis, Tenn. He is a trustee emeritus of William and Mary's Endowment Association

Lucile Zollinger. Dr. Paschall was an early advocate on behalf of finding a permanent campus home for the Society and was prominent in the negotiations.

The Chandler room, named for former president Julian A.C. Chandler, Class of 1891, and presented as a gift by Roy R. Charles '32, includes a gallery of William and Mary alumni who have held the position of governor of the Commonwealth. Twenty-one names, from Thomas Jefferson 1762, 1782 LL.D., to John N. Dalton '53 are a source of pride for visiting alumni.

The foyer of the Alumni House is named after J. Wilfred Lambert '27. Alumni and friends in the New York City area provided funds to dedicate the foyer in memory of the much beloved dean.

The George Family Room was commemorated in recognition of W. Brooks George '32 and his two sons, both graduates, William B. George Jr. '62 and Henry H. George '65. Brooks not only had held the position of president of the Society, his tenacious pursuit of the Alumni House was key to it becoming a reality.

A room is named for William L. Person '24 and another honors the spirit and purpose of the Order of the White Jacket. As the Alumni Center developed into a hub of activity, The Classes of 1940, '44 and '45 dedicated a patio in memory of William and Mary alumni who gave their lives in World War II. The largest room, the John Garland Pollard Room, is named in honor of John Garland Pollard, a former governor of Virginia. Given by the Pollard family, the effort was initiated by Charles P. '25 and Elizabeth Pollard.

By the late 1980s studies revealed that more than 15,000 alumni and friends annually visit or use the Alumni House. Although plans and studies clearly articulate the need, the hope of many alumni to expand the facility is delayed. The dream becomes reality in August 1993 with the naming of James E. '60 and Barbara Berkeley '61 Ukrop to head a National Leadership Committee for the Alumni Center.

The design exceeds the imaginations of the board and staff. Some classes celebrating reunions have already committed critical funds to the effort and the expanded center will include a Class of 1965 Conference Room and a Class of 1944 Gallery. Two rooms, yet to be designated, will be named in commemoration of reunion gifts generously provided by the Classes of 1943 and 1967. A new effort to name the executive vice president's office the James S. Kelly '51 Room is receiving considerable support from many alumni and friends. A number of individuals and one alumni chapter have also committed funds in support of this project and are expected to generate increased interest for a successful campaign.

Concentric circles of friends made the Alumni House possible. An ever-expanding Circle of Friends—with designated Leadership, Gold, Silver and Green levels—will be critical to the success of the effort now underway to build an Alumni Center. It is our hope that enough support will be generated to break ground on the Alumni Center during Homecoming 1994.

This chapter in William and Mary's history will be partially told through the names of those who helped shape it. When future generations visit the new Alumni Center it will be through the generosity and thoughtfulness of hundreds of alumni who went before them and saw the need and knew of it as an investment in their College's future.

Another era ahead for the house on Richmond Road. Fortunately, as one door closes another one opens.

and is a former chair of the Development Committee as well as many other committees. He received an M.B.A. in marketing/finance from New York University Graduate Business School in 1967. He and his wife, Mary Ellen, have three children.

Pamera D. Hairston '81, '84 J.D. of Arlington, Va., serves as the chief legal branch in the field operations bureau of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C. Her FCC experience also includes positions as supervisory attorney and staff attorney with the EEO branch in the mass media bureau. She is a member of the Virginia Bar and the Greater Washington Area Chapter of the National Bar Association Women's Law Division, where she has served on several committees. A board member of the Hulon Willis Association of the Society of the Alumni, she was a recipient of the Martin Luther King scholarship in 1977 and she served as president of the Black Law Students' Association during her third year at Marshall-Wythe.

Jackie Good Legg '60, a resident of Newport News, Va., founded and owns Words Worth Eating, which publishes cookbooks and customized recipe programs for supermarkets across the country. She serves as director of creative food merchandising for Ukrop's Super Markets in Richmond and is responsible for the marketing and recipe development of their prepared food program, which ranks as one of the top three in the country. She is the editor of The William and Mary Cookbook. As a student, she was active in Pi Beta Phi sorority, provided leadership in Panhellenic activities, and served on the staff of the Colonial Echo. She presided over Kappa Delta Phi honorary educational society, held membership in Eta Sigma Phi honorary classical fraternity and was the College's nominee for the English Speaking Union scholarship. She is a founder of the William and Mary Football Parents' Club.

Charter Day Program Expanded

The College has organized a full slate of activities surrounding Charter Day 1994.

In response to the popularity of faculty symposia during Homecoming and Charter Day '93, the Thomas Jefferson Program in Public Policy is organizing four seminars on Friday, Feb. 4.

Topics that will be explored during the symposia include the Clinton administration, the savings and loan crisis, environmental policy, and assessing the world role of the United States and the United Nations.

By focusing on current issues, organizers hope to repeat the success of the 1993 Homecoming Academic Festival while also fostering closer intellectual interaction among College faculty and guests of the College.

Alumni reaction to the three days of symposia last October was overwhelmingly favorable. In a letter to the organizers, one alumna lauded one of the 78 sessions as "one of the highlights of Homecoming weekend."

In addition to the academic sessions, visiting alumni will also have the opportunity to view two new exhibitions beginning Friday at the Joseph and Margaret Muscarelle Museum of Art and the Zollinger Museum in the Earl Gregg Swem Library.

"American Drawing Biennial IV" will feature selected original representational and abstract works of art from the largest juried drawing competition in the country. The museum received nearly 350 entries from 42 states and chose 68 pieces for the exhibition.

Ann Madonia, curator of collections at the Muscarelle Museum, who will lead the tour on Friday, says this showing represents well the works of contemporary artists on "the cutting edge."

Another exhibition at the Zollinger Museum in Swem Library will feature rare books and manuscripts that alumni and other donors have contributed to the College in recent years.

Highlights of the display include items from alumni Linda Lavin and Glenn Close, correspondence by Charles Lindbergh and President John F. Kennedy, Civil War letters, private press books and pamphlets.

Margaret Cook, curator of rare books and manuscripts, says the exhibition, which continues through April 30, will allow visitors to see what alumni have donated to the College while surveying the variety of items in Special Collections.

Since space is limited at all faculty symposia and museum exhibitions, alumni must make reservations by Jan. 21 through the Office of Advancement Events to secure tickets (see registration form below).

Tickets are also required for an a capella concert at Phi Beta Kappa Auditorium on Thursday, Feb. 3. Hosted by the Student Advancement Association, the concert, billed as "Voices for the Future," will feature William and Mary student groups. Proceeds from the performance will benefit student scholarships.

A keynote speaker for the Charter Day ceremony on Saturday, Feb. 5 in William and Mary Hall has not been confirmed, but the College has approached a figure of international prominence. To accommodate the anticipated high level of interest, alumni must secure tickets for the ceremony using the registration form below. To obtain the name of the Charter Day speaker and for more information, call 804/221-3868 after Jan. 1.

Tribe Will Rely on Strength in Backcourt

By Bob Jeffrey '74

It's the changing of the guard for the William and Mary men's basketball team. Luckily, guards are in abundance.

Last year's senior quartet of Thomas Roberts, Todd Cauthorn, Brendan Connor and Derrick Peters led the Tribe to its first winning season in a decade, but now a new set of players will have to step in and take over. Coach Chuck Swenson is counting on his guards to provide most of the punch early on.

"Obviously our strength is our guards. We'll start three of them and they've all got experience. We think we've got the best group of guards in the conference, and hopefully they can carry us for a while until our big guys catch up," said Swenson.

Kurt Small, Matt Verkey and David Cox will start at guard, with Sean Duff and Christopher Jensen coming off the bench. "We can be an excellent shooting team with this group. If we shoot well and keep the turnovers down, we can beat most anybody," Swenson said.

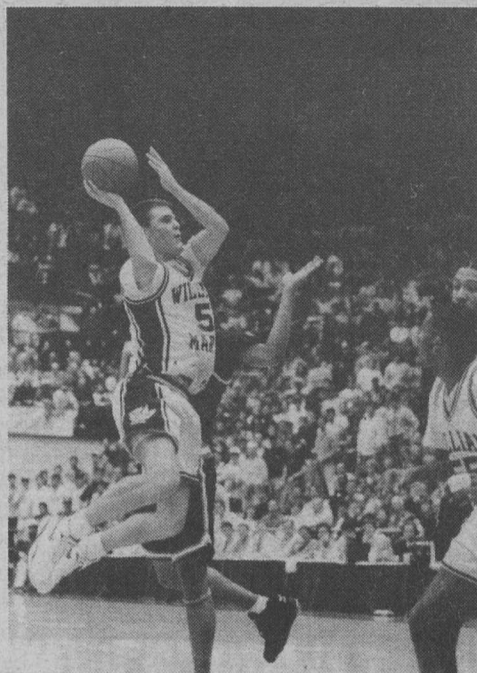

Small and Verkey both played well in a preseason exhibition win against a Russian team, Moscow Dynamo, leading the scoring parade with 24 and 23 points.

Small, the leading returning scorer (15.7 points per game), is an explosive player with ability to take over a game. He almost singlehandedly rallied the Tribe against Virginia last season, scoring 19 second-half points as W&M erased a 23-point deficit to send the contest into overtime.

"Kurt is a preseason All-CAA first team pick. We need consistency from him for us to be successful," said Swenson.

Verkey led the team with 41 percent shooting behind the three-point line and averaged over 10 per game. "Matt had an excellent freshman year, and now the rest of his game — ballhandling, defense — has begun to improve," Swenson said.

A true point guard, Cox will be expected to take more of a leadership role. "Last year he had the luxury of playing with Connor. Playing without him will be a different experience," said Swenson. Connor won't be too far away, however, as he now joins the coaching team as an assistant.

Duff, a 6'6" senior, was voted captain by his teammates. "He's always had a great attitude. His teammates are always watching his actions — on and off the floor," Swenson said.

Jensen has returned to the College after a two-year LDS church mission in Denmark. He had an excellent freshman season back in 1990-91, scoring 7.2 points a game and earning a spot on the CAA All-Rookie team.

"Chris has poise, and he's a great catalyst for competition, but his timing is a little off, not having played much in the last two years. He's missed some practice with a sprained ankle and that's hurt his conditioning and some finetuning. He'll improve as the season goes on," Swenson said.

Freshman Shaka Arnold is tall enough at 6'6" and quick enough to play point, off-guard, or small forward. "He's improved so quickly he'll probably play sometime in every game," said Swenson.

The Tribe will accentuate its strength by playing a 2-3 matchup zone defense. "It allows us to maximize the benefit of using three guards. We can help out in the low post, do some gambling and trapping, things that will help out our big guys," Swenson said.

The primary big guys will be sophomore David Cully, sophomore Carl Parker and sophomore transfer Chris Hall. None have seen extensive action, though Parker averaged 13 minutes and 3.5 points as a sub last season.

"There is some youth and inexperience among our inside players, but there's also talent. They'll improve as the season goes on, and as they get better, so will our team," said Swenson.

"We're actually taller than last year. I think we'll change more shots. We've got the potential to be a better defensive team," said Swenson.

Cully is 6'8 1/2" and Parker has great leaping and shot-blocking ability at 6'6." Hall, at 6'7," is the best inside scoring threat. Junior Steve Purpura, at 6'9," 260 lbs., redshirt freshman Hiram Finney at 6'9 1/2" and sophomore Jeremy Dean at 6'7," 230 lbs., constitute a solid lineup of inside players.

"Last year we used a three-man substitution rotation. This season I can see us using six — to keep guys fresh and to avoid foul trouble. There's just a mental adjustment that the younger, less experienced players have to make. They're all being asked to do more than they've done in the past — score more, rebound more — and there's a lot more thinking, concentration required," Swenson said.

The CAA looks wide open, according to Swenson, except that Old Dominion stands above the pack. "I think ODU is the team to beat because of the athletes they have, and the success they achieved last season [winning the CAA tournament and playing well in the NCAA's]. After that I think it'll be a crazy race with a lot of teams having a chance to finish anywhere," he said.

Many CAA fans are excited at the prospect of seeing George Mason, which has adopted new coach Paul Westhead's pro style run-and-gun offense. Westhead coached at Maryland when the squad, led by the late Hank Gathers, led the NCAA in scoring with over 110 points a game. The Patriots won 129-119 in their season opener against Troy State.

"They have some good young players, like Troy Manns, but I don't think people will try to run with them, but rather to get them into a half court game. All the same I expect we'll see some high scoring games from them," said Swenson.

W&M will make a west coast trip in December to Washington to participate in the Spokane Shootout. Swenson cautions patience as the young team develops.

"I can't say that we'll be better on day one, but I think we've got the talent to be better by the end of the season," he said.

Gridders End Season, 9-3

By Bob Jeffrey '74

With two losses in the first three games, prospects were not looking so bright for William and Mary's football team in its centennial year. Then suddenly the offense began to click, scoring an average of 44 points a game over the next two months, and the Tribe enjoyed one of the best seasons of the century.

Not even a heartbreaking 34-28 loss to McNeese State in the first round of the I-AA playoffs could dim the Tribe's accomplishments: a school record tying eight straight wins, going 9-3 overall, finishing atop the Southern Division standings in its first year in the Yankee Conference, setting an all-time school record for most points scored and making the I-AA playoffs for the third time since 1986.

So what happened after the frustrating losses to Delaware and Tulane to get things back on track?

According to coach Jimmy Laycock '70, it was more a matter of what didn't happen. "What didn't happen was that we didn't lose confidence. We didn't question what we were doing. It was more a matter of coming back, keeping on working and practicing," said Laycock.

When several key players — quarterback Shawn Knight, tailback Derek Fitzgerald and linebacker Jason Miller — recovered from injuries, the Tribe game plan paid off with lopsided wins over every opponent for the rest of the regular season.

In the course of beating Harvard, 45-17, VMI, 49-6, and Yankee Conference rivals Northeastern, 53-6, Villanova, 51-17, James Madison, 31-26, Maine, 47-23, Massachusetts, 45-28, and Richmond, 31-17, the Tribe re-wrote the record books, amassing 414 points, topping the regular season scoring mark set by the 1990 team.

Leading the surge was Knight, another in a long line of success stories at quarterback during the Laycock era at W&M. Called by some the Charlie Ward of Division I-AA, he broke the all-time I-AA record for passing efficiency. "Shawn had an outstanding season," Laycock said. "Any time you set a record like he did, that's just sensational. And you just can't measure the leadership he gave us."

Knight completed 125 of 177 passes (over 70 percent) during the regular season for 2,055 yards and 22 touchdowns. He struck for six TD passes at Maine, a school record. Knight was named the Yankee Conference Player of the Week that week and again the next week after completing 25 of 32 passes against Massachusetts.

Benefiting from Knight's banner year were an outstanding trio of wide receivers, Corey Ludwig, Mike Tomlin and Terry Hammons. Ludwig hauled in 52 aeriels for 950 yards and 9 scores. His four TD receptions at Maine tied a W&M record. Big play man Tomlin had 39 catches and seven TDs, including an 85-yarder at Maine and an incredible leaping grab at the back of the end zone at Massachusetts.

"It was the first time in a number of years that we'd had a returning quarterback and a group of returning receivers," said Laycock.

As potent as the passing game was, the Tribe offense actually gained more yardage and scored more points rushing. Fitzgerald ran for over 1,100 yards and 10 TDs, fulfilling the promise of the previous season when he was named ECAC Rookie of the Year. Sophomore Troy Keen was equally effective, rushing for over 600 yards and 13 TDs, including three in the playoff game.

The biggest question mark before the season was the inexperience of the defense. But most of the questions were answered as W&M developed into one of the better units statistically in the Yankee Conference. "Defensively I had some real concerns because of the people we lost from last year's team. But they made a lot of progress and played very well as a unit," said Laycock.

"We had some outstanding performances from Craig Staub, Eric Lambert, Mark Richards and Erin McGuire. The guys we needed to have good years had them. And they helped us out with the younger players," Laycock said.

Senior defensive tackle Staub was named the Yankee Conference Defensive Player of the Year. One of the team's honorary captains, Staub was the leading tackler among linemen with 113 stops. He also led the Tribe with nine sacks.

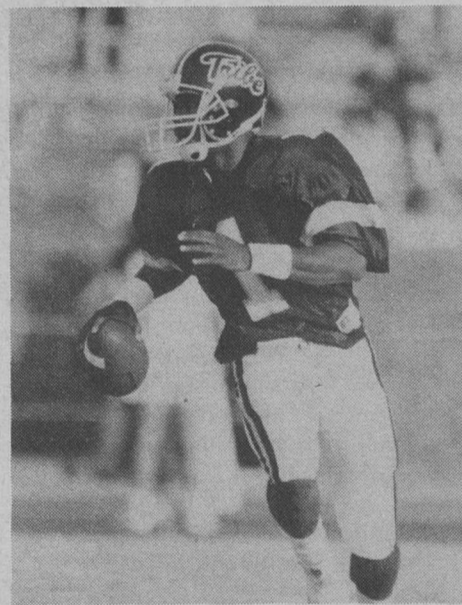

Lambert and Greg Applewhite anchored the linebacking corps, each notching more than 100 tackles for the season. The secondary, led by safety McGuire and cornerback Mark Richards, led the Conference in passing defense, holding opponents to 133 yards a game. Best of all, according to Laycock, "They didn't give up the big plays."

The postseason accolades were just starting as the playoff defeat sunk in. Named to the first team All-Conference were Staub, offensive tackle Wally Vale, guard Tom Walters and punter-kicker Chris Dawson. Knight was named to the second team, as were Fitzgerald, Ludwig and Applewhite.

The ECAC all-star team included Staub and Vale, with Walters, Lambert, Knight and Richards on the second team.

Laycock thought the all-star honors were a mixed blessing. "It's nice for the players to get recognition, and I thought we had some that did receive it, while others didn't necessarily get the recognition they deserved," he said.

As far as naming Knight to the second team, Laycock said, "There's not too much more he could've done. In my book he was the best quarterback, no question."

Quarterback Shawn Knight set a national record for passing efficiency.

After the glory of the regular season, the outcome of the seesaw playoff game at McNeese State, rated number three in I-AA, was a letdown. The Tribe led early on a run by Knight, fell behind and rallied behind backup quarterback Todd Durkin after Knight was sidelined with a wrist injury.

Leading 28-20 at the half, the Tribe did not score again. Knight came back with his wrist taped and with less than two minutes remaining drove the team down to the McNeese State 20, giving W&M one last chance to win. On fourth down with 24 seconds left, a pass to Ludwig was incomplete, and the season was over.

But the pride in an outstanding effort remains. "This is a really good team," Laycock said. "I'm satisfied when we win without compromising our principles. We're recruiting within an Ivy League structure, but we're winning in a I-AA structure. There aren't too many teams doing that."

Campaign Comes to a Successful End

By Kelley Daspit

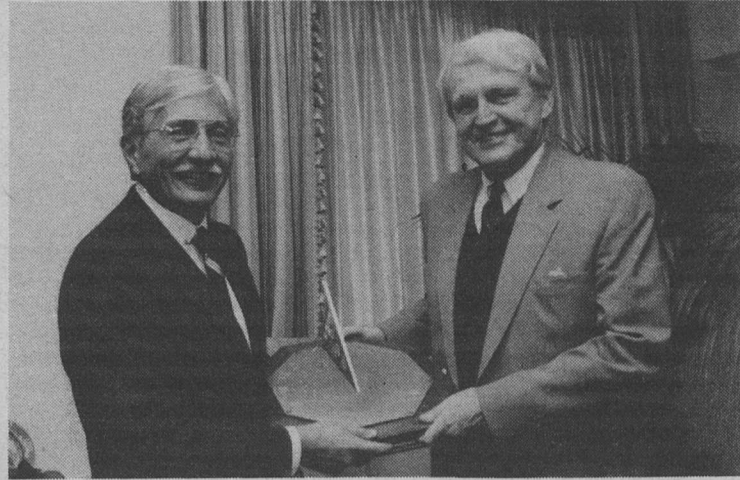

The Campaign for the Fourth Century, the largest fund-raising campaign in the College's history, came to a successful end during Homecoming weekend with more than $153 million committed.

Mark McCormack '51, chair of the National Steering Committee for the campaign, signed a ceremonial check marking the end of the seven-year fund raiser during a gala birthday celebration at Busch Gardens Williamsburg on Saturday, Oct. 23.

McCormack presented James Brinkley '59, rector of the College, with a gold piggy bank and a large check symbolizing the gift. "On behalf of the College, I gratefully accept this as a symbol of the dedication and hard work of many people who have made this ambitious goal a reality," said Brinkley.

More than 43,961 donors helped the College exceed the $150 million goal. The purpose of the campaign was to address fundamental needs in the areas of faculty support, student support, program enrichment and capital needs. Strong progress has been made in each of these areas thanks to the support and dedication of the College's alumni and friends.

"This was a good time to announce the campaign's end," said Dennis Slon, acting vice president for university advancement.

"Announcing the end of the campaign during Homecoming weekend enabled everyone to share in the success. The birthday party at Busch Gardens created the perfect venue, allowing the largest number of students, alumni, faculty and staff to participate than any other past celebration."

The birthday party was sponsored by Anheuser-Busch Inc. and enabled 15,000 of the William and Mary family to participate in a full day of entertainment at the park. Festivities included a ceremonial cake cutting and a spectacular fireworks display.

The campaign surpassed financial expectations in the areas of faculty support, unrestricted endowment and current operational needs. Strong progress has also been made in the area of student support. New professorships, faculty chairs, artists-in-residence, graduate fellowships and scholarships based on need and merit have been developed. New academic programs have also been developed in American Studies, Applied Science, International Studies and Public Policy.

During Homecoming weekend President Sullivan presented Campaign Chairman Mark McCormack with a copy of the College sundial in appreciation for his leadership in the successful $150 million Campaign for the Fourth Century.

Daily operational needs that exceed state appropriations have also been met as a result of the campaign.

At a time when state support to the College is declining, the campaign has provided a valuable source of restricted and unrestricted funding. Seven years ago when the campaign began, the goal was to triple the College's permanent endowment of $48 million. Today the College's endowment is greater than $126 million and as campaign commitments are met in the near future, endowment should well exceed expectations.

Slon said the campaign was an overwhelming success and stressed the importance of not losing the momentum developed during the campaign. "There are still some areas that will require additional funding and will continue to be at the top of the College's priorities as it moves beyond the campaign."

Among those priorities are funding for capital construction projects such as Tercentenary Hall, a new science facility and the expansion of the Alumni House. Growing academic programs and the constant increase in the number of alumni requires additional facilities. Program enrichment, which includes funding for academic programs, the library and the Muscarelle Museum is another area of continued focus.

Mark H. McCormack '51: The Campaign's Inspiration

Much of the Campaign for the Fourth Century's success is due to the tireless efforts of the National Steering Committee and its chair, Mark H. McCormack '51.

When asked to serve as chairman of the National Steering Committee, McCormack said he thought long and hard about the responsibility. "I agreed to chair the campaign because I felt the need to repay William and Mary for what I have gained from the College both professionally and personally," said McCormack.

President Timothy J. Sullivan '66 said, "He has been an inspiration to all of us who share a deep commitment to William and Mary's future."

McCormack has been a loyal supporter of William and Mary since the late 1970s when he established the first scholarships in women's tennis and in men's golf.

As part of the campaign effort, McCormack and his wife, Betsy Nagelsen, made a $3 million commitment for an indoor tennis center at the College. Nagelsen is an internationally ranked tennis player who was a regular at Wimbledon and at one point was ranked 17th in the world in women's singles.

McCormack was convinced the College was losing talented students due to inclement weather periods that restricted tennis practice and wanted to build an indoor tennis center. The tennis center will enable members of the men's and women's tennis teams to play on campus all year long. It will be the only indoor facility in the area and will serve as an athletic resource for students, faculty, staff and the Williamsburg community.

The tennis center will include between four and six courts, multiple locker rooms, lounge areas and permanent seating. It will also serve as home to the Women's National Collegiate Tennis Hall of Fame. The Men's National Collegiate Tennis Hall of Fame is housed at the University of Georgia.

McCormack said the gift was a natural for him given his love of tennis. "I feel the tennis center will prove to be a tremendous asset to William and Mary in the years to come. I'm very pleased to be able to give back to the place that has given me so much."

According to Millie West, director of special athletic projects at the College, McCormack can be credited with the success the women's tennis team has had over the years. "It was his financial support for scholarships that allowed William and Mary to break into national rankings and qualify for national championships. Over the years, his enthusiasm grew as he watched the team transform and take its place among the top 25 women's tennis teams in the nation," she said.

Construction for the Mark H. McCormack Indoor Tennis Center at the College of William and Mary is scheduled to begin early in 1994. Plans call for the center to be among the best indoor collegiate tennis facilities in the country.

While at William and Mary, he earned a bachelor's of science degree in French and was number one on the College's golf team. He earned a law degree at Yale University and practiced law for several years.

McCormack is founder and chief executive officer of the International Marketing Group (IMG), the world's leading sports marketing, management, and television firm.

Shortly after going into the athlete representation business in 1960, McCormack started IMG. He began with one client, a young golfer named Arnold Palmer. IMG's success was soon reflected with clients such as Martina Navratilova, Herschel Walker, Andre Agassi, Bjorn Borg, Scott Hamilton and Jean-Claude Killy.

Today IMG stretches beyond sports into such areas as diverse as classical music and modeling. In addition to representing athletes, IMG today is involved in licensing and merchandising programs; event management and marketing; television production and consulting; representing classical artists; and financial planning.

IMG, based in Cleveland, employees over 1,600 people in more than 143 offices in 20 countries.

McCormack is also a successful writer. He is the author of several books including, "The 110% Solution," "The Terrible Truth About Lawyers," "What They Still Don't Teach You at the Harvard Business School," "Arnie, the Man and the Legend," "Arnie, the Evolution of a Legend," and "The World of Professional Golf." —Kelley Daspit

Lisa Riess Named Alumni Communications Director

The Society of the Alumni of the College of William and Mary has announced the appointment of Lisa Riess to the position of director of alumni communications. A former Utah resident, Riess began her new assignment Oct. 4.

"We are fortunate to be able to name someone to the position who has extensive experience with alumni association publications and in the communications field," said W. Barry Adams, executive vice president for the Society. "Lisa brings polished writing and editing skills as well as strong publications and public relations management background."

As director of alumni communications, Riess will manage the Society's publications, promotions and media relations efforts. Her responsibilities include serving as the managing editor of the Alumni Gazette and associate editor of William and Mary Magazine. Published six times annually, the Gazette circulates to more than 70,000 alumni, parents and staff. The magazine, published twice yearly, is also sent to friends of the College.

Riess previously served on the publication staffs of two alumni associations—as a staff writer for Arizona State magazine and later as editorial consultant for the University of Utah alumni magazine, Continuum. Most recently, she was senior editor and media relations director for McKay-Dee Hospital Center in Ogden, Utah. The non-profit hospital is operated by Intermountain Health Care, named by the Clinton Administration as a national leader in health care reform.

Riess earned her degree in communications in 1985 from The University of Akron, Ohio. She is a member of the International Association of Business Communicators and the American Society for Health Care Marketing and Public Relations. Both organizations have awarded Riess for writing excellence. She and her husband, Jim, live in Newport News.

Revisiting the Turbulent '60s

By Lisa Riess

Twenty-five years ago, the Class of '68 left William and Mary, thrust into an era of the Vietnam War, protest marches and the sexual revolution.

More than two decades later, the children of the turbulent sixties revisited their College youth during their 25th reunion at Homecoming. On a warm October 22nd afternoon, led by a four-member panel of their peers, more than 100 classmates from 1968 filled the Campus Center Ballroom with memories, tears, sorrow and laughter.

Across the crowded room, Bette Scott Meuleners and Robin Russell Gaiser learned they shared more than the same class year.

As young graduates, both were war brides. They became war widows when their husbands didn't return from Vietnam. Both women eventually remarried and, 25 years later, both chose to share their stories of love and loss.

"It was very difficult for me then, being the wife of a deceased officer and watching protests taking place all around me," Gaiser said. "I finally came to the point in my life where I decided I hated the Vietnam War, but I loved my husband and everything he stood for."

Meuleners was pregnant when she was informed her husband was Missing in Action. "Seventeen years later I got a phone call. My husband's remains were identified through dental records and within a week we were burying him all over again.

"In the end it was a blessing," she said. "He finally received the recognition he deserved, and my mother-in-law gave him a proper burial in Arlington Cemetery." Meuleners said the ceremony provided an enduring link between her current family and the husband she had left behind.

In more than two hours of testimonials, the classmates exhausted the gamut of issuess: sexual revolution, discrimination, life and death and the Vietnam War that shadowed it all.

"Being the age I am, going through Vietnam and being gay, I've been losing men in my life since I was nineteen years old," said panel member Celia Brown, a San Francisco psychotherapist. "I know people who died in Vietnam and men who have died from AIDS. I think that has marked me and at the same time made me realize how precious life is."

"When we left here (William and Mary), whatever youth we had was taken from us," added panel member Lewis B. Puller Jr. '67, '74 J.D. The Pulitzer Prize-winning author and Vietnam veteran, who shared his experiences at Homecoming last year, was invited to return and encourage others to speak about the wounds left by war.

"The women who lost husbands in Vietnam, I hurt inside and cry for you every time I hear those kind of stories," Puller said, "but I need to keep open to others, because if I focus on my own pain I become less of a person. If I focus on others, I became a larger person and give that strength to others."

The real message of the reunion was about hope and healing, Puller said. While many challenged that a sheltered College life had not prepared them for the social change that was erupting outside, others said they drew strength from the lasting friendships that began at William and Mary.

"My friends here are what pulled me through the tough times," said Meuleners. If it hadn't had been for friends like that I would never have made it."

Student Host Program Scheduled for March 24-25

Is your son or daughter interested in following in your William and Mary footsteps? The Student Alumni Liaison Council of the Society of the Alumni is hosting the fifth annual Student Host Program for children of alumni on March 24-25. The program, open to high school juniors and seniors interested in attending William and Mary, depicts life on campus.

Participants will spend one day and one night at the College during spring semester, attending class, touring the campus and exploring university life. They will be housed with members of the Student Alumni Liaison Council.

The program, sponsored by the Society of the Alumni, is free. Participants are responsible for covering their own meals, transportation to the campus, and any incidentals.

The Student Host Program is being offered on a first-come, first-served basis. Applications will not be accepted after Feb. 28, 1994. For more information or to request an application, call 804/221-1174.

Now Accepting Nominations for 1994 Alumni Board Election

All alumni are encouraged to submit names in consideration for next year's Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. Information and supporting materials regarding each nominee should be submitted on a nomination form, available by writing Alumni Board of Directors, P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100, or by calling 804/221-1165.

Nominations must be received by March 1. Although this is the final deadline, early nominations are encouraged in order to allow ample time for contacting each nominee and compiling background information for the Nominating Committee.

The Nominating Committee, chaired by Society treasurer Alvin Anderson '70, '72 J.D. of Williamsburg, will meet in early spring to review suggested nominees. Members of the committee include Marilyn Miller Entwisle '44, Jeanne Lull Hopke '80 and Douglas J. Myers '78, '80 M.B.A., all of Williamsburg, and Thomas R. Frantz '70, '73 J.D., '81 M.L.T. of Virginia Beach.

The committee will nominate two individuals for each of the five board vacancies that will occur in 1995. The slate will be published in the June issue of the Alumni Gazette, and the election will be held next fall. Alumni who contribute to a recognized fund of the College will be eligible to vote.

Officers of the Hulon Willis Association were inducted at the association's annual meeting on Oct. 23. Matthew L. Brandon '92 was elected to the vacant office of treasurer; the other officers were re-elected. From left, Brandon; Deborah L. Parker '77, secretary; Julian L. White '83, president; and Lynn F. Briley '71, vice president.

CLASS NOTES

28 Mary Land Gill

Petersburg, VA 23803

The Tercentenary Homecoming, attended by thousands of alumni, spouses, children and guests, was a festive occasion and a wonderful success. Sorry that most of our classmates were absent. Only four of us were at the Olde Guard luncheon. However, I did gather a few items of interest. Bill Thompson and wife Mary spent four "wonderful days" this summer in Hilton Head, S.C., attending a convention of the Automobile Dealers Association. Bill was recognized as the oldest living president of the association and received a lovely gift.

Carlton Macon and wife Dotty attended the William and Mary - Harvard game, where he was recognized as the only living player of the '26-'27 football squad. He said he subscribed to the adage, "The older you get, the greater you were." Nice to look back! He reported that he continues to play golf twice a week, but that his drives get shorter and shorter. He said that Homecoming week was a real joy as he saw so many old friends.

Malvern Omohundro and wife Libbie spent the summer at their Jones Landing cabin on the Mattaponi River. He is looking forward to going to Barbados for the winter.

A nice letter from Raymond Driscoll arrived a few days after the April report was due at the Alumni Society, but his news is still of interest. He lives in Kensington, Md., is the father of three children with seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild. He feels he has no acquaintance with the College administration with the passing of Vernon Nunn '25. This is probably true for most of us.

I have heard from Carol Baker Hough, who after one year at William and Mary transferred to Westhampton, from which she graduated in '28. One special memory she has of her year at the College is her first date. There was a regulation that freshmen with dates on Sunday night could go off campus only to attend church services and must return directly to their dormitory. She, her date and another couple took a very short but longer way and, "for that wickedness we were campused for a week and letters were sent to our parents." However, she loved the atmosphere at W&M. She was married for 50 years and, without accepting a job which would interfere with her home life, she managed to do some interesting things. She wrote for two newspaper syndicates, Haskins Information Bureau and Drew Pearson's Washington Merry-go-Round, and also for a magazine, Armed Forces. She continues to live in her own home and enjoys being active in clubs and her church.

I was saddened to receive a call from the daughter of Sadie Wilkes Armstrong, who reported that her mother had died last year. I am also grieved that my very dear friend Louise Adams Steele died on the Thursday of Homecoming weekend. She attended W&M only one-and-a-half years, transferred to Randolph-Macon Women's College and graduated in '28.

Please send your reporter some news.

Recently I picked up the baton that was passed along by Ed Trice, and I now have some pretty big shoes to fill as Class Reporter.

I knew it would be fun, but I've learned it takes a bit of time to get things started. Here I am up against my first deadline for news of interest to "thirties." Hope to have more next time.

I've written cards to some of you asking to know what-all you're doing, and what you've been doing since graduation (and any recent trips, moves, visits, letters, etc.). I'm finding that squeezing my message into little postcards takes more time than one might think. And so I offer humble apologies to any I've not yet reached.

To hurry things along, I've also made a few long-distance calls, and in some cases have found that classmates were away.

But in Richmond, I reached Frances Griffin Waters, who, you'll be delighted to know, sounded exactly the same (voice, spirit, enthusiasm) as she did (good heavens!) some 63 years ago. Fran tells me she still lives in her home in Richmond, where she has remained since John's death in 1965 — she has four sons. John, as you will recall, was our class president. Fran and John were very active in youth work for years, in both Norfolk and Richmond. One of their grandsons even attended W&M—John H. Waters IV '91. Fran has often come back to Williamsburg for Olde Guard meetings, but missed this year.

What a pleasure it was for a New Englander to actually talk to an old classmate in Virginia.

The second person I reached was Truman

Welling, who, as many of you know, retired as a DuPont executive 20 years ago. He and Mrs. Welling have a 300-acre farm called "Scarlett Thicket" near Kennett Square, Pa. There they grow soybeans and wheat, and breed thoroughbred horses for sale to horse-lovers.

Truman's friendly voice also sounded the same as it did when he played lead roles in Althea Hunt's dramatic productions in the early days of the William and Mary Theatre. I was impressed because Truman Welling always reminded me of Jimmy Stewart. I'd always assumed Truman would be Hollywood- or Broadway-bound.

Instead ("It was a Depression year," he says), he found a job as a day laborer with DuPont in Richmond. One day he sought a promotion and was given an interview. Interestingly (and quite significantly, I think), the man who interviewed him was no less than Mr. Emil DuPont. Needless to say, Truman soon was on his way up the corporate ladder and became an executive in the marketing division of textile fibers at Wilmington.

One of those funny things happened when Truman and I were exchanging recollections about our Dramatic Club days under Althea Hunt, our strict but well-loved director. "By coincidence," Truman said, "today, just before you called, I happened to notice that my wife was reading Althea Hunt's book."

"What was its title?" I asked.

Truman said, "Hold the line. I'll run upstairs and see." He found the book still open on a sofa. "It was called The William and Mary Theatre," he said. "This will amuse you — when I picked it up, it lay open at 'Chapter 1, by Edward Fales.'"

We both laughed, but such coincidences shake me. Then I remembered several of us had been asked by Althea to write recollections of our theatre days—and (long forgotten) I'd even gone back for the publication party with Althea and the other writers.

P.S.: After our two talks, Truman phoned back to say, "I think you should put something in about yourself: what you did and are doing."

Suffice to say: After graduation I married Edwina Carver '32 of Alexandria. Our son Dan is now executive editor of Motor Boating and Sailing in New York.

Sadly, I lost Edwina to Alzheimer's six years ago. We lived for years in Forest Hills, N.Y., when I was an editor, first with the Associated Press in Rockefeller Center and later with McGraw Hill, and as associate managing editor of Parade, the Sunday newspaper magazine.

Then we discovered the Berkshires in Connecticut and moved here. For years I commuted to New York, writing several books, and articles for McCall's, Popular Science, Readers Digest and Parade. When Edwina became ill a dozen years ago, I had to stop traveling, which had taken much time, and care for her.

As illustrations editor for McGraw Hill's Science Illustrated, and with the Associated Press, I had worked with some top artists—art being an old love. So, while caring for Edwina, I opened my own studio here. Now I am a full-time artist, painting New England and English landscapes, and teaching my own classes, which have some wonderful students.

Except for one or two trips back to W&M with Edwina, my only major contact with the College was a request to come to Williamsburg some years ago to discuss a history of W&M that the College wanted written. It was an exciting prospect. I'd done a couple of successful regional histories and could have given 'em a real beauty. To my disappointment, someone else got the job and wrote the first major history of the College. That was 20 or 25 years ago.

What fun it was this week to actually hear the lively, unchanged voices of classmates of 63 years ago! So please don't wait for my calls or cards. For the next issue, send me news of yourself. Or—better—call and let me hear your voice, too.

Saturday, Sept. 4, was a typically hot and humid Virginia day. I was in Williamsburg to attend William and Mary's opening football game against New Hampshire. The Tribe won 51-17. We have an excellent offensive team, but we are weak on defense.

President Tim Sullivan '66 and his wife, Anne Klare Sullivan '66, were there. James Brinkley '59, College rector, described why President Sullivan was selected president of the College: "He loves people and is a good communicator."

Mark your calendar for Olde Guard Day 1994. The Olde Guard luncheon will be held Wednesday, April 13, in the new University Center. As a part of Olde Guard Day, reunions will be held for the classes of 1929, 1934 and 1939.

I recently sent out five "Keep in Touch with your Alma Mater" flyers. Henry DeJarnette, my roommate in 1930, answered. He says he graduated from U.Va. Law School in 1935, practiced law until 1943, then worked as a judge advocate for the U.S. Army until 1947. In 1947 he resumed his practice of law in Orange, Va., where he has lived ever since (with one brief intermission when he was recalled to active duty in the judge advocate corps). Thanks for your letter.

John F. Bacon also responded to my call for news. A resident of Elmer, N.J., he writes: "I still find my profession as a lawyer rewarding and interesting after 55 years. I have been fortunate to visit 50 foreign countries, including most of Europe, South America, Russia and China, and I have visited 49 states. My wife, Eleanor, and I have given up our second home, but we still live on a farm only eight miles from where I was born and raised. More travel is in our plans for '94."

John Bacon included in his letter a note he had received this year from John S. Armfield '36, who transferred to the University of North Carolina in 1933. From there he went on to the Virginia Seminary in Alexandria and became an Episcopal minister. John returned to W&M briefly during World War II as a student of the Navy chaplains school, but other than that, "my contacts with William and Mary have been few and far between, though always pleasant."

Between 1946 and 1981 he held pastorates in Florida, New York and North Carolina, and now he lives in Wilmington, N.C. Thanks for writing.

By chance I recently met Elizabeth Upshur Wilson '32. She is also a resident of Westminster-Canterbury and a very lovely lady. Both of us grew up in Northampton County on the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

Kavey Sparrow wrote to say that he and wife Kitty Vaden Sparrow '37 celebrated their 50th anniversary on Sept. 4. They invited 56 family members and friends—including children Pamela McCauley and Charles Sparrow '79—to celebrate with them.

I received a note recently from Lillian Carmine Sterling. She writes: "In June I attended the crab feast and picnic at VIMS sponsored by the newly organized Botetourt Chapter of the W&M Alumni Society, serving the Middle Peninsula. In July I enjoyed a visit from a grandson, his wife and two great-grandchildren. They came from Indianapolis for our annual family reunion at Sterling Harbor. The highlight of my summer was attending Pony Running Day, July 28, on Chincoteague Island. I had always wanted to go, having shown the movie for many years to my fifth-grade classes at school. My daughter Peggy, granddaughter and two other great-grandchildren accompanied me."

I was also pleased to receive a note from Frances Spindle Harris, who has been recuperating from a bad fall she endured during President Sullivan's inauguration. She stepped into a hole under the red carpet placed beside a brick walk, falling and damaging her ankle and ribs and bruising a bone in her leg. She also suffered various bruises and scratches. The doctors were amazed she did not break a bone. Frances was thankful and pleased that another person did not step in the hole under the carpet, but she now hesitates walking one step on a red carpet! Frances also appreciated the help she received from students. She writes: "Life is eternal, and love is immortal, and death is only a horizon, and a horizon is nothing save the limit of our sight."

I have a new list of the Class of '34. Out of approximately 840 freshmen, we now have 180 still accounted for.

By mail or telephone I will soon be inviting you to "Keep in Touch with your Alma Mater." Thanks for your cooperation.

Hi, Classmates.

Homecoming for the Tercentenary celebration was fabulous!

First, the dedication of the statue of the Rev. James Blair, our first president, on Oct. 21 before the Olde Guard luncheon. At the luncheon I visited with as many from our class as possible: William Gove and his wife from Concord, N.H.; John Bunting, Virginia Beach; Mae Wright Hocutt, Newark, N.J.; Thomas Crist and wife from Monarch Beach, Calif.; Dr. Frank MacDonald and Judge Robert Armistead, Williamsburg, Va.; Margaret Van Oot Rastetter, Gloucester, Va.; and Dr. W. C. Henderson and William J. Rhodes Jr. from Richmond. I am sure there were more there, but I didn't get a chance to talk to them. I understand there were 15,000 alumni and friends at Homecoming, the largest ever.

That night was the Tercentenary Ball — I understand it was beautiful. I saw Connie Land Hardenbergh '37 who attended — she said it was magnificent.

On Saturday morning there was a breakfast hosted by the president, followed by the dedication of the statue of Norborne Berkeley, Baron de Botetourt. I am so delighted the statue is back in front of the Wren Building, as I shall always remember tipping my duc cap to it. Then it was on to the parade. The students did an outstanding job on their floats for this special day. There was an alumni luncheon and then the big football game. The game started with four sky divers dropping from the sky, bringing the football to start the game. The William and Mary Band in their new uniforms, the Alumni Band, cheerleaders, dancers and baton twirlers entertained us during the half. They closed with the Alma Mater, "America the Beautiful" and a huge banner with "Happy Birthday W&M" written on it. We all sang "Happy Birthday William and Mary." We did win the game 51-17 against Villanova. Our own Bill Rhodes was one of the honorary coaches for the game. A wonderful and inspiring weekend.

For other news:

I had such a nice letter from Mary Jane Roth Kuhn, better known as Mickey. She lives on the bank of Lake Erie, has two Scotties which she adores and goes to Cleveland to hear the wonderful orchestras and attend the ballet. Glad to hear from you, Mickey.

What a thrill I had last week when I picked up the phone and it was Martha (Maps) Connelly. She lives in Norristown, Pa. She wanted to be remembered to all her friends — she is just as jolly as ever. I have just heard that Arabelle Hubbard was in a serious accident in Charlottesville. I am thankful to hear that she is improving.

Those of you who remember Betty Johnson Mathers might like to know she is moving to Virginia Beach. She has been living in Richmond.

Please keep the calls and letters coming. Don't forget we are getting ready to enlarge the Alumni House. We need this badly — let's help when asked.

I am proud of our class record.

One hot Saturday afternoon last July I had a friendly phone call from Richard Crane. Earlier I had written to him asking whether or not he is a member of our class, since I had no card for him and yet he was listed in the Alumni Honor Roll of Giving with 1938. He called to explain that he had entered the College in February 1935 and graduated in '39, but had always felt like a '38er. Originally from Long Island, Richard came to Philadelphia in 1950 and recently retired from the sales department of Kimberly-Clark. He and his wife make their home in Ardmore, a suburb of Philadelphia, but travel a great deal. They had recently returned from Mexico and were soon to leave for California to visit his stepson. He asked especially about our own Beverly Bridge Coleman and Fran Grodecoeur '39. Welcome to class of '38, Richard!

Also last summer I had a chatty note from Annabel Hopkins Mitchell from Havre de Grace, Md., where she and Lee live during the summer months: "We have decided that we need only one car now since we pool and schedule our activities to be the same day. So we have traded our '89 and '90 Chevies for a '93 Caprice Classic which will be delivered Saturday. It's amazing how much room there will be in the garage, even with the riding mower still there! Now if I can just clean out the attic and basement as easily. Lee's cholesterol stays elevated some, so now there's a pill for that. I say we are walking pharmacies!" Amen to that, Annabel!

I'm truly sorry that I couldn't be at Homecoming, but the reports about it are glowing. Bert Capps Sheeran, our on-site reporter, gave rave reviews to the weather ("perfect"), the football game ("the W&M team showed real proficiency"), the parade ("floats better than for a decade") and the Olde Guard luncheon ("well run with a good speaker and the choir at its usual excellence").

The following are class members with whom Bert talked, not necessarily a complete list of who was there: Margaret Brett Honn, Helene Stein Vogt and Ed, Bob Simpson and Millie, Bunny Wood Walker and George, Virginia Betts Chapman, Ted McGowan and Muriel, and, of course, Bert and Bob Sheeran.

The new president of the Olde Guard is of our era. Anne Reynolds Wood '37 shared her impressions of the weekend and how very well it was planned and executed. She reported that Lord Botetourt's statue is back in place (a replica), but looking much as we remember it, only better. The numbers boggle my mind: 268 at the Olde Guard luncheon, 17,000 at the football

ROBERT BRAGG HEADS ANNUAL FUND AT ECU

Robert S. Bragg '83 M.B.A., a fund-raiser at Florida State University, has been named director of the Annual Fund at East Carolina University. While at FSU, where he was director of Annual Funds from 1991-93, he increased telemarketing and direct mail contributions by 53 percent and raised donor participation by 45 percent, both all-time records at Florida State. Other positions Bragg has held include manager of Annual Giving at Virginia Tech and campaign manager for two Virginia candidates.

BRAXTON BOOK PUBLISHED

The Collected Poetry of Paul Laurence Dunbar, edited by Joanne M. Braxton, Cummings Professor of American Studies and English at William and Mary, has been published by the University Press of Virginia. This new "most complete" edition of the collected poems of Paul Laurence Dunbar, the virtual father of African-American poetry, includes 60 poems not included in the previous—and now out of print—Complete Poems. Sixteen of these were found in manuscript form. Dunbar's work achieved wide recognition in the first part of this century as the author of six volumes of poetry, as well as novels, librettos, songs and essays.

Bert, Anne and I say: "Come back to the College at special times or any time. It is a very special place and dear to our hearts!" And let your class reporter hear from you.

In late August I received a most welcomed letter from Virginia Wilson Halliday of Hampton. She and her husband, John, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a great family party given by their son, Steve '74 J.D., and his family. She said it was a much prettier day than when they were married in Wren Chapel.

In June they went with a small group on a country house and garden tour of the southern half of England. They'd been to the U.K. several times but this was super — Hissinghurst and Haddon Hall and a dozen others.

Their daughter, Kathleen Dickinson, had just enrolled in the museum education graduate program at William and Mary. They'll enjoy having her closer than I.U., where she graduated in June.

Thank you so much for writing, Virginia, and belated congratulations on your 50th. Please keep in touch.

Homecoming this year was really special. For us it started on Thursday when we attended the Olde Guard luncheon held at the Williamsburg Lodge. We had planned to witness the unveiling of the statue of the Rev. James Blair but we didn't get away in time. It was an unexpectedly warm day, reaching 84 degrees.

The reception and luncheon were very nice, and we saw quite a number from our class. Rosa Long Ellis and her daughter, Jaqui Reilly, sat next to me. Emily Edgerton Gladstone came to the luncheon but did not stay over for other activities.

That evening Ed and Dinny Forwood Wetter hosted a fun cocktail party for the classes of '40 and '41 at their Williamsburg home. The Tercentenary Ball/Alumni Dinner followed, and we hear it was a lovely affair at William and Mary Hall.

It was pleasantly cool on Friday, and Frank and I went to Ewell (Old Phi Bete) and watched the visual history of the College produced in association with the National Geographic Society. That afternoon we heard Dr. Gerald Johnson's lecture on the Chesapeake Bay, which was outstanding. I'd be tempted to go back to college if all professors were as dynamic as he is!

At 5:45 p.m. we were shuttled by bus to Herb '41 and Jane Young's home for another fun cocktail party for '40 and '41, prior to the dinner for both classes at the Hospitality House. There were 90 present and again a lovely occasion.

Next morning, a perfectly beautiful crisp day, a great crowd attended the president's continental breakfast in the Wren Yard and also witnessed the unveiling of the marvelous new Lord Botetourt created by sculptor Gordon Kray '73. The parade followed — and unfortunately we had to take off for Richmond to watch our 7-year-old grandson play in a soccer game.

Reportedly the alumni luncheon in the Sunken Garden was an amazing occasion, spread over the entire area. The football game must've been an exciting one, with a touchdown the first 12 seconds and a final score of 51-17 over Villanova.

Jack and Ann Garrett told me that the celebration hosted by Busch Gardens was spectacular. Oh, that we were twins and could've taken advantage of more of the wonderful activities provided. The logistics of the whole weekend just boggle the mind, and from our observation it all ran like clockwork and was truly a magnificent celebration of our 300th birthday. More than one person observed, however, that they themselves felt 300!

Now, as far as my records show, the following members of our class attended, along with some faithful "hangers on":

Chester '47 and Helen Baker; Nils and Gervais Wallace Brekke; Mary and Merritt Foster; Mary Ellen '41 and Jack Geddes; Carolyn Lusardi; Shirley Matthews; Mildred and Ed Miller; Bob Newton and friend Jeanne Doyle; Eldon and Louise Nuemberger (complete with cast on her foot due to a dislocated bone); "Hatch" '41 and Jack Purtill; Marilyn and Charlie Roberts; Florence Mode Smith; Bob Taylor '41, Joseph and Sue Duncan Thomas; Dan Bradley; Anna Virginia '37 and Ralph Baker '37; Fran and Tom Crane '42; Peggy Day; Helen Lansburgh; Leah and "T" Waller; John and Betty Wood Walton; Walt '37 and Betty Zable, and of course the aforementioned. If I have overlooked anyone, my sincere apologies and do let me know so I can make amends.

No doubt many class members are unaware of the hours that Jack Garrett had spent on the plans for our enjoyment of the weekend, but let me take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for all his and Ann's efforts on our behalf.

Now don't forget that I'll need news for the next issues, so please keep me in mind and let me hear from YOU!

After a lovely month in Jaffrey, N.H., Dick and I have returned to the shorts and air conditioning of Florida. We were thrilled that the leaves peaked while we were in our beloved New England. We showed a dear friend from Tokyo a peaceful, quiet area he'd never seen in the U.S.A. It's too bad that more of our foreign visitors see only busy American cities.

Some of your notes came too late for my June deadline, so forgive me if your news is old. Just keep writing and remember that I have to send my notes to the Alumni Society about six weeks before the Gazette is printed.

Frances Poarch Holland wrote that her husband of 43 years died in 1984. In 1991 she married Morris Holland, who had lost his wife in 1988. Morris has three married daughters with a total of seven children. Frances has a married daughter and son who have five children. The Hollands live on a farm and enjoy traveling. Their last trip was a cruise to the Bahamas.

It was sad to learn that Emma Bourquin Merritt's husband died recently. Her new address is 22424 N. Birchwood Loop, Suite 240, Chugiak, AK 99567. We truly offer our sympathy.

Mildred Foster Lewis '45 wrote to request the addresses of three of her Delta Delta Delta sisters: Lee Ann Avery Merrifield '45, Betty Wilcox and Luella Fitzgerald Russell '44. Mildred is a widow who lives near the Cooper River bridge in Charleston, S.C. She says the city is recovering from the damage done by Hurricane Hugo four years ago. She has seven grandchildren nearby. Her oldest graduated from West Point in June. Two others are in college and a third may attend William and Mary next year. Mildred plays tennis, does volunteer work in her church and hospital, and loves to travel. Her last junket was to the Ozark Mountains and to some plays in Benson, Mo. Mildred would like to see any alumni traveling near Charleston. Her address is: 921 Lakeview Drive, Mt. Pleasant, SC 29464.

Emalee Ewing Durban and her husband, Sol, are still on the road. They totaled 7,330 miles from Portland, Ore., to Billings, Mont., through some of Canada and Alaska via the Al-Can Highway. Dick and I had been to some of the places they mentioned, but not in our own vehicle. They really get around in their camper, Bounder.

Keep your news coming. Since we have been away so long, we had much to do, and missed Homecoming. Write, those of you who attended. Who ever said retirement would be this busy?

TWO GRADUATE STUDENTS NAMED COMMONWEALTH FELLOWS

Two doctoral students at William and Mary have been selected 1993-94 Commonwealth Fellows by the State Council of Higher Education. The fellowships include an award of $5,000 to assist Fellows in their academic pursuits. For Bertram D. Ashe, a graduate student in American Studies, the Commonwealth Fellowship is the second major award he has received while undertaking graduate study. The other recipient is Jon L. Brudvig, a doctoral student in history, who will use his fellowship award to continue his research of the American Indian education program at Hampton University, 1878-1923, a unique educational experiment which became a model for others. Brudvig received both a bachelor's in history and philosophy and a master's in United States history from Marquette University.

tent strengthening of the whole department after he succeeded Jess Jackson as head. We stand in his debt.

More reflections on the death of Dean James Wilkinson Miller, last May 19. I remember the brilliance and depth of his lectures in the introductory history of philosophy course in that large amphitheater-type classroom in Washington Hall, the same one in which we also sat for the virtuoso performances of Harold Fowler for the intro to European history. They were two of the three finest academic lectures I ever have heard, and they set a remarkable standard for William and Mary in our day. Adding to the luster was Jim Miller. The greatness of the College rests on a never-failing succession of superb and grace-filled teachers like Jim.

First of all, a retraction. In the last installment, I used the name Henry Rosovsky '49, when I meant his older brother, Alexander Rosovsky '43. It was Alex who roomed with Jack Bellis, who very kindly corrected me; Alex went on to the School of Journalism at Columbia, and then — as Alexander Ross — to a newspaper career with The New York Times and then to Madison Avenue. Apologies both to Alex and to Henry!

The dates for our 50th class reunion will be May 13 to 15, 1994 — enter them in your date book now and plan to be with us.

Classmates who are serving on the committee for our 50th are John and Marilyn Miller Entwisle, Garland Clarke, Billy Davidson Cantley, Bill Smith, Hallie Rennie Martin, Jean Boyd Lacy, Jean Lochridge Quin, Emily Snyder Alexander, Don Ream, Lois Spratley Donald, Nancy Norris Foster and Dixon, Prickett Carter Saunders, Katie Rutherford Watson, Mary Carver Sale, Sunny Trumbo Williams and me. The Entwisles, Bill Smith, Dorothy Agurk Edmunds, Anne Dobie Peebles, Eugenia Kellogg Williams and Fran Pendleton Elliott are the committee members responsible for raising our Class Gift, so expect letters and telephone calls from them... and respond generously!

Sunny has written two fine letters to tell of her trips on College-sponsored events to Russia and to England, where she met Queen Elizabeth in London's Drapers' Hall — at the event, the W&M Choir sang and Lady Margaret Thatcher spoke. Hallie Rennie Martin and Joe were also present. Sunny and Rolf made another trip to Russia under the auspices of the Port of Norfolk. In mid-August, their house was struck by lightning and two thirds of it destroyed. Fortunately they were at their cottage in Sandbridge and were not hurt, and the antiques and valuables on the first floor were spared. In September, accompanying Gov. Wilder and other Virginia export/import specialists, Sunny and Rolf spent three weeks on a trade mission to China.

Sunny says that Ted Bailey served for several months as interim rector of her parish, Good Shepherd in Norfolk, coming down from his home in Williamsburg each weekend. She urges us all to make plans to come for our 50th in May and says that she and Rolf and Lois Spratley Donald and Doug attended the 50th of the Class of 1943 to get ideas for our gathering. See your mail and the Alumni Gazette for details at the appropriate time.

Bill Morris writes from Morgantown, W.Va.,

that he will shortly complete 50 years as a professor, most of it in the law school of West Virginia University. He continues his international work: this past year, he has been teaching in Greece, Thailand and Korea, where the University of Seoul gave special honors to Bill and Hazel for their contributions to international education. Last Sept. 26, he attended a party sponsored by the William and Mary Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter. Unfortunately, he did not attend Homecoming but stayed in Morgantown for the WVU-Pitt game.

Betsy Yow Pearce and her retired colonel husband Bob (a really sweet guy!) drove up from their Huntsville, Ala., home for lunch with us in mid-September. We had a fine time together and hope to have many repeats. After they saw all the gathered friends at Homecoming, they left for their winter home in Fort Myers, Fla., on Nov. 4, expecting to return to Huntsville at the beginning of May and then on to West Point for Bob's 50th. They have three children: the eldest son is a yacht broker on the West Coast, and then twins — the son is a major catfish farmer in Alabama, with almost 1,000 acres in production, and the daughter is a lawyer with the Mead Corp. in Atlanta.

Betsy reports that they regularly see her roommate from Chandler, Marion Smith Turner '43, who entered in the Class of 1944 but graduated a year before us. Marion and her husband, David, have been living for several years in Naples, Fla., after he had a career in the newspaper business in Towanda, N.Y., and service in the state legislature. In Naples, they are very active in charitable and civic works. The Turners, Pearces, Marge Retzke and Wayne Gibbs, Mary Wilson Carver Sale, Dinny Lee McAlinden '45 and many others meet regularly in the southwest Florida Alumni Chapter for their mutual social enjoyment.

Fran Pendleton Elliott reports from Winchester, Mass., that she attended the Charter Day observances last February and especially enjoyed a dinner which the Alumni Society had for alumni and students. Duties with her parish and a MIT, where her late husband was a professor, prevented her attending Homecoming, but she expects to return to Williamsburg for our 50th in May 1994.

Extra-special congratulations are in order for John and Marilyn Miller Entwisle. Marilyn is now serving as a member of the board of the Friends of the Williamsburg Regional Library. And, as you know, John was honored with the 1993 Alumni Medallion at Homecoming. Long before their retirement and return to Williamsburg, both served the College in many, many capacities, particularly in alumni affairs and fund-raising and the ongoing committee work connected with these. John is a past president of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Society.

A fine letter from Elaine McDowell Fuerst and Bob gives further news of their travels. This fall, they are spending five weeks in Africa (Kenya, Tanzania, Zimbabwe, Botswana, South Africa). She says they will go loaded with film and return with wonderful memories. In the last year, they have been to China, on a canyon hiking trip in Arizona, on a cruise in the southern Caribbean, and to Iceland, the Faroe Islands and Denmark. I believe she is the champion traveler of our class. In between, Bob keeps up with a large stamp

HALL OF FAME INDUCTION SET FOR APRIL

The William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame honorees for 1993-94 have been announced. The annual awards banquet will be held on April 9, 1994, at the Fort Magruder Inn at Williamsburg. The honorees are Jeri Daniels-Elder '82 (track), David Edmonds '59 (football, track, golf), Bob Foth '80 (rifle), Chris Herr '62 (swimming), Warren Joblin '60 (track), and the 1980-81 women's golf team: Mary Ellen Fedor '83, Tracy Leinbach '81, Wendy Rilling '83, Debbi Spencer '82, Mary Wilkinson '82 and Coach Ann Lambert. The Hall of Fame golf tournament will be held at Ford's Colony in conjunction with the annual awards banquet. All alumni are invited to both events. For information, call 804/221-3350.

collection, and she continues her work as a professional counselor with sexually abused women.

Garland "Buddy" Clarke, serving on the steering committee for our extravaganza in May, telephoned from Kilmarnock soliciting a pledge for our 50th class gift, which I was glad to give. He continues his practice in civil law, with emphasis on estates and trusts, and serves as the county commissioner for accounts. He and wife Jo Cornell Clarke, '45 traveled to France and Luxembourg last May, and to Britain in July.

Homecoming and the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the College came just before this deadline, with a goodly number of our classmates on hand. It was a fine joyful weekend with some 15,000 alumni, spouses and friends attending, and the highlights will no doubt be covered elsewhere in this issue. A high point for me was the unveiling, with suitable ceremony, of the new bronze replica statue of Lord Botetourt. It is a beautiful piece of sculpture and the 35-year emptiness of the front Yard now seems fully furnished and a home again. As you know, the original "Boty" had been removed in 1958 for protection from the elements. It is amazing how the new statue improves the whole ambiance of the Wren Building, the President's House and the Brafferton.

Joan and I had a wonderful automobile trip from May 21 to July 8, exploring a big slice of the continent: out to the West Coast, up to the Canadian Rockies, down to the Great Lakes, on to Baltimore, and then home. It was 10,000-plus miles of unfolding beauty and the joy of seeing many, many old friends and family.

The perfect time for a newsletter "deadline" is immediately following Homecoming — and what an occasion we all experienced this year! I want first to commend the staff at the Alumni Society for planning and executing such exciting and fun-filled days, and I believe all who attended will agree. As usual, I checked at the tent for all those '46ers who signed in and regret I was unable to see each of you: Sally Rue Justis Ranson, Ann Manson Gatling, Aloise B. Bland, Betty Cutshall Allman, James T. (Pete) Christian from St. Petersburg, Henrietta Kapler Margraf and Virginia Ratcliffe. I had the pleasure of having Henzie, Ginny and Jean Taylor Delahanty '45 as my house guests for the occasion. While awaiting the arrival of a shuttle bus, we met Victoria Jamgochian, who after graduation attended Parsons School of Design and is still engaged in the decorating business in Richmond.

En route to a concert by the William and Mary Choir (which was simply superb, as always) we saw Virginia Lee McAlinden, Martha Macklin Smith and Mary Raney Begor (all class of '45), who mentioned having seen Jerrie Healy Clay. Really sorry I missed you, Jerrie.

At the Alumni Art Exhibition reception in Andrews Hall, I enjoyed visiting with Caroline Talbot, who introduced me to Madelyn Watkinson. Madelyn is in part responsible for the many beautiful flowers around the campus. Also talked a few minutes there with Mary '49 and Harmon Hoffman '49. At the Sunset Ceremony, I was pleased to see Mary Jane Keen Williams and her daughter Carol Mathews '73. Pat and I go back a long way and it's always good to see her.

Surely there were many more '46ers in attendance — I wish I could name all of you. Please, next time — SIGN IN — so at least I'll be aware.

My trip to Germany and Poland in September with Taffy Delahanty was a rare experience — many memories to ponder over the years to come. A day trip to Charlottesville recently with Priscilla

DOLMETSCH BOOK WINS AWARD

"Our Famous Guest": Mark Twain in Vienna by Carl Dolmetsch, emeritus professor of English at William and Mary, has won the 1992 Austria Prize. This annual award, funded by the Ministry of Culture of the Federal Republic of Austria, is the equivalent in Austrian schillings of $2,000 for travel and living expenses for research projects in Austria. It is given for the best book on an Austrian or Austrian-related subject published during the year. Dolmetsch's book was published by the University of Georgia Press in December 1992. "Our Famous Guest": Mark Twain in Vienna is the first detailed account of the nearly two years, Sept. 1879 to May 1899, that Mark Twain spent in Vienna, capital of what was then the Habsburg empire known as Austria-Hungary.

Fuller Downs was a real treat — the foliage was spectacular; the Monticello house tour during the 250th anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birth was excellent; and the garden tour was an added bonus. The trip was sponsored by the Christopher Wren Association, which has manned an information center in the Wren Building during this 300th anniversary. Pris and I have served a few hours as volunteers.

Under the guidance of Anne Reese Carson '51, an alumni chapter to be known as South of the James is being formed. At the organizational meeting in mid-October, we introduced ourselves and to my complete surprise another '46er answered, Patricia Slosson Clarke. I was unaware that Pat lived so close by in Franklin and, although we had only a few minutes to talk, I look forward to meeting her at future gatherings.

A welcome note from Nancy Grube Williams, who included news about Mary DeVol Wood Bulloch. Mary was elected to the Phoenix Society in recognition of 10 years' membership in the million-dollar club of the Atlanta Board of Realtors. Congratulations, Mary. Grubie also noted Betty Jane Ralph Samuel was busy as president of her Rotary Club, just retired, and has completed two years as treasurer of the Woman's Club of Fort Worth. We were saddened to learn that her younger son, Chuck, died suddenly from a massive aneurysm.

Jinx Stephens Daniel and Dan will be in Lancaster playing in the National American Contract Bridge League in November. Hope you both come out winners!

One more nostalgic Homecoming note — our friend, Lord Botetourt, has been replaced by a replica in his original spot in front of the Wren Building. You can just imagine what I was tempted to do!

Grubie has asked me to include the following "In Memoriam":

It was with great sadness that I received a telephone call from Eddie King several months ago advising that Monie Price Burbank had passed away. I immediately called her husband, Ken, and learned that the lupus from which Monie had suffered for a number of years had just grown worse and was making Monie an invalid. She had borne the pain and suffering with amazing high spirits and good humor for many years. In doing so, she was an example and teacher to all those she knew of how to deal with adversity and turn it into a strength rather than a weakness.

Surely no one cared more about the College and our class than Monie. She was so active on campus, entering into the spirit of why we were there and lending her lovely voice to the Choir and Glee Club. She was also business manager of the Flat Hat and class editor of the Colonial Echo. But it was her cheery presence that brightened the hearts of all who knew her.

I kept in touch with her during these last several years, sending her things from events at the College. At one time she wrote to thank me and said that while she had a severe illness, God had indeed blessed her by placing her in the Class of '46 at the College, where she had so many meaningful friendships which were a sustaining strength to her.

Monie was a person we will not forget, for our class was blessed too!

The greatest class in the past three centuries celebrated its 45th reunion at Homecoming '93. Forever more the Class of '48 will be known as the Happy Huggers. Our celebration was dedicated to those who have served well our class and College over the past 45 years:

Our class reporters: Mary Minton Gregor Eitel (11 years); Pasco "Pat" Keen First (14 years); Mary Keeney Rutter (7 years), deceased; Lucy Jones Murphy (12 years); and Ann Potterfield Gregory (ad finis).

Our classmates on the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni (*also Alumni Medalion recipient): Tom Mikula, Lucy Jones Murphy, Harvey Chappell*, Howard Hyle*, Jane Spencer Smith*, and Helen Thomson Stafford*, deceased.

Our classmates on the Board of Visitors (appointment by the governor of the Commonwealth): Harvey Chappell (also Rector) and Judge Bill Murphy.

We also give a salute to Virginia Northcott Brinkley, our class agent. Our participation rate reached 40 percent, an 11 percent increase over the past period, and as expected, it was higher than the average (29 percent) for all classes.

We most certainly want to acknowledge with thanks and Happy Hugs those who have contributed in many ways over the past year in planning, providing and participating in, by all standards, a most successful reunion: Bob and Nora Spann Chandler, Lucy Buran Cornett (overview of Alumni College '93), Jack Fritz (class rep at dedication of Lord Botetourt statue), Ann Gregory, Lou Hoitsma, Bill Licas, Tom Mikula, Honorable MC Bill Murphy, Lucy Murphy, Ray O'Connor, Jane Spencer Smith, Mark Waldo (for a truly beautiful invocation) and Corky Wampler, and most certainly all our spouses in attendance. A 21-gun salute is in order for Barry Adams of the Society of the alumni and his staff of miracle workers, especially Sherri Holland '86, now, for services rendered, an honorary member of the College's greatest class. Please don't let your subscription to the Alumni Gazette expire. Ann will be back next issue with all the news of Homecoming '93. We would like to close by borrowing a few lines from Pat Keen First's lovely letter to our class. "My years at the College remain one of the highlights of my life.... Thank you for giving me the opportunity to express my appreciation to the College... and to our class... for those wonderful years."

Jana and I had a marvelous weekend in New Orleans, Sept. 17-19, with the high point being a W&M reception at the New Orleans Petroleum Club, followed by the game between Tulane and W&M at the Superdome. The reception was attended by some 200 alumni and spouses, including President Tim Sullivan '66 and his wife, Anne Klare Sullivan '66. Had a nice chat with Ben Hamel, now an investment counselor in Mobile, Ala., and formerly a longtime member of Merrill Lynch. Also spoke with Mary Ward Frohn '67 and her husband, David, of Lake Charles, La.; Carolyn Anderson Hughes '52 and her husband, Bob; and many others. John Morton '58 and his wife, Roney '59, hosted this very nice event.

The game was certainly winnable, but the offense didn't move the ball well enough, and when they did on a 60-yard pass play, it was nullified by a penalty. Despite the low score, it was a good game to watch, and we from this part of the country are always pleased when a W&M athletic event is available to see.

The night before the game, a contingent from W&M entertained a small group at Antoine's in the French Quarter. It doesn't get much better than that! Our thanks to Barry Adams and Kathy Murray, Sally Kellam '80 M.A., and Lee and Larry Foster. It was truly a great weekend.

Had another nice note from Phyllis Reardon Morrison. Her husband, Bob, was expecting to retire from Occidental Petroleum on May 1, but was asked to stay on as the new manager for

CRESTAR GIVES $75,000

The Crestar Financial Corporation of Richmond has made a gift of $75,000, payable over a five-year period, to fund the School of Business Administration at William and Mary as part of the Campaign for the Fourth Century. This is the most recent gift from Crestar, which also provides $3,000 in financial assistance every year through the Crestar Fellowship program. The program was established in 1978 to provide financial assistance to a student enrolled in the M.B.A. program. The student must be from Virginia and intend to pursue a career in commercial banking in Virginia. The Crestar Fellowship consists of a cash award, an offer of part-time employment during the final three semesters of the student's program and the possibility of full-time employment during the summer.

Seven months ago on Easter Monday, I accepted the request to give Taffy Lay a rest from the arduous task of Class Communication Hub. To relieve Taffy, a dear lady who had confided before Homecoming '92 that she was not feeling up to par, was not mine to request but only to accept if the Alumni Society could assure me that she was more than willing to pass it on. None of us knew that the next issue would announce her death on April 8, the Maundy Thursday before. I think of many of our '52 family at the altar, and had been thinking of her and her loneliness since the death of her husband. No one can take a grand lady's place. Consider me her pinch hitter. We will always remember her as a beautiful person, brilliant, gorgeous and loving.

On a lighter note, I ask you, would the Church have ever gone beyond Israel if the Lord gave directions to follow Him as Jack Percival told my date and me to follow him on the Jersey Turnpike on the way to Homecoming. How does the former, impressive, v.p. of finance for Litton get lost on a stretch of the turnpike where there are no auto exits, and he does it twice? The last words I heard Jack shout were, "Follow me." He should have added, "and I will disappear." After a fruitless search, he mysteriously reappeared. Where was he? Somewhere all by himself on a truck route. Jack and his fun-filled wife Marie joined us in the activities with the folks you'll read about below.

Kudos go to Alumni Society for a more efficient registration tent this year. Registration binders for all classes replaced the bulletin board, with easy access to notify other classes you were in town. Packet distribution of tickets went faster with more space to handle the unusually large crowd. The gift shop area was larger and efficiently run. As usual, communications from Alumni Society to stadium, parade, tent, and Sunken Gardens teams took a giant step forward with mobile phones. Everyone at the Alumni Society knew what they were doing and communication for all visitors on Saturday was handled efficiently and courteously. We should all be looking forward to the upcoming Alumni House expansion, when society staff members will have enough room to work still more effectively.

The weather was sunny throughout much of the weekend as the town grew by more than 15,000 folks for our 300th. There was excitement even among the shopkeepers, who had seen so many Homecomings before. Good reports were heard from those who attended the Academic Festival. Jack and our dates attended an outstanding presentation by Professor Mariann Jelinek, "How Real Organizations Innovate and Why It Matters."

Jim Kelly '51 and Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Alumni Society, were everywhere welcoming folks home: From class dinner parties, to the Ball, Busch Gardens, the stadium, the Alumni House and W&M Hall. On your return to campus be sure to look at the majestic statues of Lord Botetourt and our first president, the Rev. James Blair. If you are quiet in the first moments after the sun sets beyond the Sunken Garden you can hear Jefferson, Washington, Adams and the others wondering what to do with this iron-willed priest who was determined to make W&M a force in the colonies.

Folks you all remember so well staying in and about the Fort Magruder Inn were: Jackie Jones Myers and husband Averett; Mary Kay Langan Flegler and husband Don; Carol Turner Kurtz and husband Ed; Jeanne Watkins Hughes and husband Ryland; Bob Hackler and Peggy Blair Hackler; George Emerson and Margaret Ives Emerson '54; Gene Gurlitz and wife Judy; Sonny Straughn and Wendell Haynie; Ann "Abner" Huffman; B. J. Reavis Phillips; Ebbie Shelton Rice, whose husband Sonny died this past April; Alice Rice Cottingham; Nancy Alexander Driscoll and husband Red. Some of the old groups were still as affable and characteristically interlarding old roles once again. It is always fun to watch the Hackler Emerson crowd doing their thing with just a little gray added to their particular dynamic. It's deja vu with Jackie and Mary Kay, Ebbie, Abner and the Chi Omega gang.

You can still pick Gwen and Perk out of a crowd, and Gene Gurlitz still sounds the same rabbi and priest jokes. Wendall and Sonny see each other frequently, and we had an hour or more with them, Jim Hall and Jack Percival. Jeanne Mussman Marcus was able to spirit Jeep Friedman from the airport and into Williamsburg but I missed him. I heard that Jeep's presence in the Homecoming Tent and at the breakfast at Magruder organized by Gene was a time of not only laughter but reflection of the passing years. We've missed you Jeep; please return again and get here early next time. What does Broadway have that we don't! Jim Anthony said that the Preservation Hall Jazz Band Concert was not even a step removed from New Orleans. It was great, and many attended from '52.

With so many friends in the classes on either side of '52, we turned into the '53 Hospitality Room across from the stadium and met more than I'll remember at this writing; but faces that didn't change and that you could pick out of a crowd with whom we share such stimulating years were: Bobbie Mott, class reporter for '53, and Ginny Campbell, with whom we sat for their '53 dinner-dance; Emmy Ketterson; Dave Belew, who played the piano for our weekends at Phi Tau, and one of the finest persons I've ever met, aside from Dan Hocutt of course; Page Beck, with whom I shared a dance, and was pleasantly greeted by the fraternity brothers of her late husband Russ Gills; Joe Cardaci, an old pal; Eloise Bryant Agee and Joe, who never seems to age; Tom Boonard from Lambda Chi days, who is just as warm and friendly as ever; Pete Giblin, who sounds and looks the same to me — still the friendly,

CLASS OF 1944 TO CELEBRATE 50TH REUNION

Members of the Class of 1944 are reminded of a special weekend—their 50th reunion celebration—being planned for May 13-15, 1994. The weekend promises to be a perfect time to remember the past and enjoy the present. Highlights include a welcome cocktail party, special campus tours, presentation of the class gift, a candlelight dinner/dance, induction into the Olde Guard and attending commencement exercises as a group, along with plenty of time throughout the weekend to visit with friends. Class members will receive an invitation with further details in the near future.

outgoing good guy; Jim Hundley; beautiful Pam Hall who lives in Connecticut; Bill Haynesworth, who is still wearing the same glasses; Gerry Harris and his bride, Ann Johnson Harris, who began dating at W&M and are still an attractive couple; Kip Kimbrough, a swimming teammate who became my inspiration by returning to the pool after a bruising assault from polio. He will always be one of my heroes, who persevered against great odds. It was my pleasure to swim in the Alumni Swimmers Relays with Scott Petriquin, our captain on Friday. We "spotted" some other alums from the team of 20 to 23 years ago, and we finished respectfully to a chorus of cheers from the students and laughter from Jim Hall, Jack Percival and Wally Riley, who swam with us in the early '50s.

Seeing old friends like Dave and Carolyn Wakefield at each Homecoming should remind us that without folks in our class like Dave, who has always been some kind of glue for us, we would not be a class with common memories. I was happy to hear from John Munger that our teammate, Clyde Baker, former W&M star miler, ran 60 miles on his 60th birthday.

And what's a Homecoming without Bernie Wittkamp? His wife, Darrell '55, went to Washington for a family wedding after the Tercentenary Ball. Bernie stayed behind to cheer on the Indians' rout of Villanova. His comment: "Anyone who plans a wedding on a W&M home football weekend has to be crazy." Bernie, who is an internist in Richmond, and Darrell joined Jim Anthony and Mary Zimmerman '53, Jim Hall and Lillian Ann Brooks Hall '55, Jack and Marie Percival, my date Doreen Zakary and me at the Tercentenary Ball. President Timothy J. Sullivan '66, a man from whom we can all learn so much, was memorable in his non-speech remarks.

We of '52 who swam under the coaching of Howard Smith were thrilled that he was one of the Alumni Medallion recipients. Few folks know that Betty assists Howard each year in writing personal notes to close to 700 graduates reminding them of this place so formative in our pursuit of truth.

Nancy Driscoll and husband "Red" never tired of dancing as they joined hundreds of us at the ball. Noticeable there were Jack Martin and wife Thelma Jamison, Bob Barlowe and wife Cynthia '55, Marvin West and wife Millie, and most of those I've mentioned already. Wherever there is dance music you'll find Ted Filer and wife Eleana. I ran into Ted at the '53 Dinner-Dance along with Dickie Lewis and his wife as they were leaving. Many of us remembered fondly Hilly Wilson '51, who died near the end of Charter Week. His old pal and teammate Jim Smith '51, often mistaken for Hilly's brother, told me that Hilly had taken his wife home from W&M for her health and during the night Hilly became ill and died quite unexpectedly.

There were many folks that I missed just by minutes at the tent, the luncheon in the Sunken Garden, the Ball and the Hospitality Suites, which were jammed with celebrants. Here are some that I think I saw in the crowds: Hildy Beckh; Pete Brady (someone told me you were there Pete, when are you going to stop by the rectory?); Sara Hardin (are you still with the D.A.'s office?); Bobbie Lamont Redding and husband Chuck '51 in and out of crowds and at the Eucharist at

Bruton Parish — they are living in Williamsburg now; Sammy Lupo; Jack "Judge" McNally, and Chick McNally '53. I know that Joe Megale was there because I heard late on Saturday night someone singing "You've changed... the sparkle in your eyes is gone."

Jeanne Mussman Marcus dropped by to bring me up to date on the greeting for Jeep, but I missed her. Marie Newcomb (who swore I would forget her) "Chip" Ray and I had a nice long chat with Hank Renninger, who looks just great, Bill and Annie Strum, and Betty King Hundley.

We put a wrap on this by holding on to some of our Class of '52 traditions — some serious, some light. We are alumni of one of the academically highest ranked universities in the nation.

Jim Anthony has become not only our band major, but the crowds of younger alums cheer Jim just as enthusiastically at his half-time performance as we did in the late '40s.

Some of our school's most courageous alums are in our class. On my return from Homecoming, I found a letter from Irv Raskob's wife, Joan. He loved W&M, and how well all of you welcomed him as he entered last year's Hospitality Suite on crutches as he fought against cancer of the spine. He was led by Jim Anthony, who had encouraged him to return. Joan reports that Irv died with the happiest of memories and laughing at some of my remarks in this column. Joan closed her letter saying, "He was so proud to be a graduate of this fine institution. Please offer my thanks to all of the Class of 1952 who made that Saturday night such a joyous occasion for Irv."

Each of us in our own way will remember Irv, Hilly and Taffy in our prayers. W&M has a tradition of remembering greatness in the human pursuit of wisdom and prudence, excellence and courage. This column salutes another tradition... hilarity in the midst of solemn reflection and education. On the way home to Long Island, Jack Percival disappeared again.

HOLLADAY RECEIVES LITERARY FELLOWSHIP

Cary Holladay '80 has been awarded a $2,500 literary fellowship by the Tennessee Arts Commission, an independent agency of the state of Tennessee. An assistant professor of English at Rhodes College in Memphis, Holladay is the author of a collection of short stories entitled The People Down South. She has received awards from the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, Fiction Network, the O. Henry Festival and the National Society of Arts and Letters. Holladay has a master's of arts degree from Pennsylvania State University.

The Homecoming celebration was truly extra special. The weekend weather was cool but sunny. The parade was one of the best I have seen: The theme was the history of the College. The football game against Villanova was another winner. Busch Gardens gave a big Birthday Celebration on Saturday night at the theme park. From banquets to entertainment, everything was great!

The one special event that really brought back memories for anyone from the Class of '62 was the dedication of the new statue of Lord Botetourt. The new statue is in the exact location of the original one, in front of the Wren Building, and will last in the outdoors for many years to come. As I stood there taking pictures of the new statue, I could hear the people in the crowd explaining to their children how a freshman had to wear a beanie and bow to the statue everytime he/she passed the statue. Remember that!

On the Duke of Gloucester Street I saw Judy Warder Schroeder and Lyle Schroeder '68, and we stopped and talked for a while about the new statue. Judy and Lyle live in Williamsburg.

While I was trying on a pair of Nikes out at the outlet mall, I looked up and sitting next to me was Sue Griggs Braman. We were both totally surprised. Sue had been up from Florida for a few weeks: her mother had died and she was going through her home in Virginia Beach. Sue said they were going to keep the home, as they may retire there.

Dr. Dorothy Guild Tompkins and family live in Charlottesville, Va., where she is a pediatric cardiologist at the University of Virginia School of Medicine. She has been increasing her teaching responsibilities over the past six years for first- and second-year medical school students. She just received the Dean's Award for Excellence in Teaching. Her son, Bill, has received a scholarship to work toward his Ph.D. in physics at Stanford. Dot reports that they are all enjoying work and life.

Hale Almy Ament lives in Reston, Va., where she is very active in her community. She received the honor of being named the Restonian of the Year for her "tenacity, intelligence and will." Hale had chaired the Reston Community Association's Street Lighting Committee for nine years. She spearheaded the Streetlight Demonstration Project. Hale has been on the staff of historic Scully Plantation for the last nine years. Both of her two children chose U.Va. as their university. Her husband, Bill, has been with a consulting firm for 16 years in Washington, D.C.

Both Jim and I are heavy into our studies at Lynchburg College, where he is getting a master's

He has been involved in the arts for more than 25 years now, including teaching stints at the College and the University of Virginia. Hope to hear more from everyone for the next issue. Happy Holidays to you all!

Just got back from a terrific Homecoming. I was with Carole and Jerry ('59) Welborn, Barry and Peggy Clement Haines, Mike and Janet Caldwell Elling, and Ken and Judi Urian Lownes. We partook of many of the activities, but I think that the highlights were probably the unveiling of the new Lord Botetourt statue (we also saw the original in the library), the big football win, of course, and the final bash at Busch Gardens! We saw Betty and Bob Squatriglia at many of the events, but we missed the rest of you! Hope that you were there and just didn't sign in at the tent. If not, we hope you will come in two years as we celebrate our 35th!

EWALD'S LIBRETTO PERFORMED AT KENNEDY CENTER

Mary Bragg Ewald '42 recently completed a libretto titled The Birthday of the Infanta for the Russell Woolen's opera, becoming the first woman to write a libretto in the history of opera. The libretto, based upon the Velazquez painting "The Maids of Honor," premiered at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. on Nov. 22. Ewald finished as the top graduate in her class, completing in just three years. Ewald earned her Ph.D. at Harvard University and has taught at four major universities: Harvard, Wellesley, Maryland and New Hampshire. She later became Harvard's first female teaching fellow. She and her husband, William Ewald Jr., have three sons.

SWEM PURCHASES PAPERS OF BRITISH LOYALIST, TEACHER

The Earl Gregg Swem Library has acquired the papers of Jonathan Boucher (1738-1804), a loyalist, teacher and Anglican minister in Virginia. Among Boucher's students was George Washington's stepson. Boucher's papers, which date from 1759 to 1803 constitute one of the library's most important recent acquisitions from the 18th century. Numbering 200 items, the collection includes a variety of letters including many by Boucher, as well as the Rev. James Maury, who taught Thomas Jefferson. The acquisition was funded in part by Spencer Timm '66 and the Friends of the Library Endowment.

64 Ginnie Peirce Volkman 2400 Daphne Lane Alexandria, VA 22306

What a glorious Homecoming 1993! Our alma mater was at the peak of her glory for this 300th birthday gala celebration. "William and Mary, loved of old, hark upon the gale. Hear the thunder of our chorus, Alma Mater — Hail!" couldn't have been more appropriate. As President Timothy Sullivan '66 remarked at the dedication ceremony of the new statue of Lord Botetourt, "Some people call this a 'Carolina Blue' sky, but it looks green and gold to me!" Indeed, Mother Nature gave us her best, and the whole weekend was definitely green and gold!

Having arrived on Friday morning, I knew that I had already missed the alumni golf and tennis tournaments, the dedication of the James Blair statue, the unveiling of the official College history in the Great Hall of the Wren Building (a wonderful holiday gift for your spouse or children, by the way), the Tercentenary Ball in William and Mary Hall, and the Preservation Jazz Band at Phi Beta Kappa Hall, all of which were well worth the early arrival according to those who attended.

I came with my husband, Al Volkman (the Al Volkman of Valparaiso University '64, principal director for armaments cooperation at the Department of Defense, not to be confused with other Al Volkmans), and my two sons, Max and Fritz, both in high school (daughter Kate, an American studies major, was involved in mid-terms at Miami University in Ohio). And let me say something about spouses and children at this point: mine survived and confessed to having truly enjoyed the festivities, even the extra waiting time while I chatted with '64 alumni — a fine testament to the planning and organization by the Alumni Society and the beautiful day in Williamsburg. Thank you, family members who are not alumni, for your indulgence, and thank you Busch Gardens for your spectacular hospitality Saturday night! But I've gotten ahead of the schedule. Let me backtrack to the order of events.

Upon arrival we immediately went to the Homecoming Tent on the grounds of the Alumni House to pick up our tickets. Well-displayed were the Alumni Chapter Birthday cards for all to see. Al and I went on separately from there to the seminars as a part of the Academic Festival: I, as a teacher, went to a seminar on education in the 21st century, and Al attended one on international trade policy (we're both creatures of professional indulgence!).

After lunch at the Short Stop Cafe, we hadn't arranged ahead to hear the William and Mary Choir, but we got lucky with a "by popular demand" extra performance, and heard the beautiful rendition of "Shenandoah," led by our own Pappy Fehr and several hundred alumni singers — a truly tearful, memorable performance.

We followed the choir on (they had a busy weekend) to the Sunset Ceremony in the Wren Courtyard. Always an impressive ceremony, we heard the reflective words of Rev. Janice M. Rivero '75, as we mourned our classmates Thomas Walter Alley and William Barringer Baker, and Max Tongier '63 and Dale Alan Clark '65. Afterward we moved to the Wren front yard to hear the William and Mary Concert Band join the United States Continental Army Band in playing an American showcase of marches and the "1812 Overture," a perfect preview to an evening with friends.

There by the Wren Building steps was Dale Thoma '65 and wife Nancy. Dale went to the University of North Carolina Planning School and is now the planning director of Lexington-Fayette urban city government in Kentucky. His son is a sophomore at Miami University in Ohio, where my daughter is a junior. Later I ran in to Ann Jett Henderson and husband Danny in the Homecoming Tent. Ann was just promoted to district manager of Manpower in Reston, although they live in Columbia, Md.; their son is a freshman at Miami University. Maybe the three Redskins can get together.

Accompanying Ann was Cynthia Harris Cashore and her husband from La Jolla, Calif. Cynthia works for the Naval Air Force human relations Management; this was her first Homecoming in 29 years! Both Ann and Cynthia asked about Susie Plummer Palmer and her bed-and-breakfast in Williamsburg; we need some confirmation on this. I also ran in to Cort Schlichting, who is in the computer science department at Springhill College in Mobile, Ala.

We finally went to our motel room, which our sons had already christened, and went on to meet classmates, spouses and children for an evening of pleasure and reminiscence at Christina Campbell's. Joining us were Gretchen Scherer Israel, her husband, Fielder, and their grade-school-age son, Stuart. Gretchen is a community college French teacher, and Fielder is an Episcopal minister in Eden, N.C. Their oldest son, Andrew, is a sophomore at Sewanee College.

Bobbie Mulcahey Frasier, from Leesburg, is nearing her 30th year of teaching French in Fairfax County, Va.; her son Kippy is at Northern Virginia Community College studying broadcast journalism. Another colleague, Gretchen Chapman and husband George Chapman '61, from Raleigh, N.C., joined us with their son, George, a drama enthusiast in junior high school. They also have two daughters: Martha, a high school junior, and Jennifer, a junior at the University of North Carolina majoring in psychology and sociology. George is the director of city planning for the city of Raleigh, and Gretchen teaches high school French. Joining the Chapmans and us for dinner Saturday night at Nick's in Yorktown was Steve Lopez '62. Steve is a city planner in Fairfax County, but lives in Washington. His avocation is dramatic writing, and he is currently working on a second play for future production.

A decent night's sleep and we're up Saturday morning for the President's Continental Breakfast. It's a perfect crisp, fall morning, with clear sky and colorful fall foliage, thus prompting the comment made by President Sullivan. Following breakfast was the dedication of the statue of Lord Botetourt by sculptor Gordon S. Kray '73. The statue is a beautiful recreation of the original that Schneinert, Germany.

Harriet, of course, is no stranger to us or to the College. She is the only member of our class to have served on the College's Board of Visitors and as a president of the Society of the Alumni. Harriet continues her volunteer work still. She has been re-elected regional president of the William and Mary Athletic Educational Foundation and continues to serve as president of the William and Mary Cypher Society. She also serves as vice president of the Peninsula Fine Arts Center, secretary-treasurer of the Peninsula Legal Aid Center, secretary of the Little England Chapel Board of Directors and a member of the executive committee of the Virginia Association of Community Services Board, among other responsibilities. Her daughter Lisa Hogge '89, '92 M.Ed. is pursuing an Ed.S. degree at the College. Daughter Laura '93 is now the Tribe cheer leading coach, after serving four years on the Tribe squad.

After the parade everyone flocked to the sorority houses and open houses by fraternities and other organizations. The sorority houses were literally bulging with returning sisters. I'd appreciate news from each one for the next issue. Since I didn't get to any other open houses, I'd appreciate news about those that any of you may have attended. Among those at the Theta house were Joanne Arnett Tutschek and Philip. Joanne is still a top executive with Merrill Lynch in New York City, and Phil is a manufacturer's representative. Their daughter, Elizabeth, is active in all sports, particularly soccer; son Spencer is in law school at Tulane. They live in Mountain Lakes, N.J.

Claudy Tucker Barnes teaches art in Virginia Beach; husband Tom also teaches. Their children are Hazel, married and living in Hawaii; Katy, married and an artist in Virginia Beach was recently featured in the Boardwalk Show; Guy, a student at East Carolina University; and Beth, in the 10th grade at Colonial Heights High School and an animal rights activist.

Also at the house were Susan Griggs '62; Ann found our seats on the west side of Zable Stadium, the announcer was directing our attention to the sky over the field. As part of the pre-game activities, four skydivers spiraled down from above carrying the flags and game ball and zeroing in on the 50-yard line like putting a pin in a map. From that point on we knew the day was ours.

The game opened with an immediate fumble by Villanova, recovered by the Tribe for our first score of the day; we went on to score 51 points in all, scalping the Wildcats. It was a perfect day for football and friends.

That evening was the 300th Birthday Bash at Busch Gardens. I think the entire student body was there en masse. There was student entertainment in the Royal Palace Theater, the cutting of the gigantic birthday cake, the spectacular fireworks, and the gift of $153 million received by President Sullivan from alumni and friends of the College through the Campaign for the Fourth Century. It was a celebration not to be forgotten.

Before Homecoming I ran into Charlotte Edmonds at a Fairfax County public schools foreign language workshop. Charlotte, who used to teach English, has switched to French and Spanish and is now at Falls Church High School. Since I teach Spanish at Langley High School, we will probably see each other often. Also at Langley with me is John Slifka; he is a counselor and works with students and parents on the School Team/Substance Abuse.

One day shopping I heard familiar voices nearby: Joan Thompson Burchell and Don '63. They still live in Alexandria and continue their philanthropic endeavors; Don is still in banking. Son Jeffrey attends San Jose State in California.

News from Stephen B. Hayes, who lives in California — thank you. Steve is chief of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta Monitoring and Analysis Section with the California Department of Water Resources. Steve married Peggy Laufhutte, an elementary school teacher, in 1969. He received an M.S. in 1974 from the University still stands in Swem Library. It has regained the original statue's position in front of the Wren Building.

Then came the popular Homecoming Parade, bigger and better than ever; Duke of Gloucester Street and campus byways were packed with viewers. I ran in to Billy Jones '63 from Augusta, Ga.; Bob Joynet, who has recently moved to Richmond and a new job as credit approval manager for NationsBank; and Hugh Miller, who lives in Woodbridge and has worked for the Securities and Exchange Commission since 1976 (his wife teaches sixth grade in Prince William County). Hugh has volunteered to help organize a 30th reunion for our class in 1994. Other volunteers include Dick Goodwin, Phil Van Kirk, Vee Jones Davis and Harriet Nachman Storm.

I saw Phil from a distance at the luncheon in the Sunken Garden, but couldn't leave my place in line and later lost him in the crowd. Hope you'll be in touch, Phil. Vee came to town with her sister Carol '67, who writes for the Philadelphia Inquirer. Vee is a substitute teacher in Henrico County outside of Richmond; husband Guy is an athletic director and basketball coach as well as a government teacher. Their daughter Carla '92 married Fred Ehlers '91, now in the Army in Barden Kirkup and Tom '65; Chris Coggins Rowland and Bob '67, whose oldest daughter is a '93 graduate of the College and second daughter is a high school senior; and Sally Lyons Hardy Burke '65, who was with her family from Richmond.

Penny Sanders Buck '65, who teaches ESL at the Islamic Academy in Alexandria, came with her husband Jim, son Peter and daughter Heather, who is tackling the college application process. Judy Hall Halesky '63 and Paul '61 were back for her 30th reunion; Judy is a landscape architect. She and Paul lives in Oakton.

Gene Birdsong Tongier is a second-grade teacher in Newport News; her daughter Elizabeth is studying toward her Ph.D. in anthropology in Tennessee. Gene and Elizabeth related a rumor about Max Tongier '63 and a fraternity brother and a prank that possibly led to the demise of Lord Botetourt in 1958. Could this be true?

After the sorority open houses we all proceeded to the Sunken Garden for the Luncheon-on-the-Lawn. Lunch brought memories of Sunday dinner in Trinkle Hall... yes, chicken a la king, or was it turkey a la king? Lunch was packed, as was the football game that followed. As we of the Pacific and a Ph.D. in 1978 in aquatic ecology from the University of California, Davis. His daughters, Aimee and Melissa, go with them camping, swimming and sailing.

More news about Robert O. White: Bob has just been appointed vice president for institutional advancement at the Medical College of Hampton Roads, the governing body of Eastern Virginia Medical School. Before this, Bob served in educational administration at Dickinson College, Hood College, Rutgers University, Phillips Exeter Academy and James Madison University. Bob received a master's in educational administration from Rutgers University in 1976; his undergraduate major was philosophy.

News from Barbara Henderson '40 about Lucy Ann Garrett West: Lucy is now living in Brussels, Belgium, where husband Jack works for Tenneco.

There were many of you who attended Homecoming whom I did not have the fortune to talk with, especially those of you who signed the Class of 1964 Roster in the Homecoming Tent. Please drop me a note and let me know what you're doing; all your classmates would love to hear from you. I also hope you all will include me on your holiday card list and share your good news. Happy holidays.

LAW SCHOOL DEAN FINALISTS

Five finalists have been selected as part of the second search for a new dean at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at William and Mary. They are: Michael H. Hoeflich, dean of the Syracuse University College of Law; Thomas G. Krattenmaker, a professor of law and former associate dean at Georgetown University Law Center; Daniel J. Lathrope, a professor of law and former associate, academic and acting dean at the Hastings College of Law at the University of California; Harry N. Scheiber, the Stephen Riesenfeld Professor of Law, and former associate dean at the University of California, Berkeley, College of Law; Richard A. Williamson, chancellor professor of law and former associate, vice and acting dean at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. The law dean's position became open in the summer of 1992, when Timothy J. Sullivan '66 left the post to become president of William and Mary.

As the College turns 300 years old, the Class of 1966 begins to turn FIFTY. I hope we age as gracefully.

I am hoping to get lots of news from the Homecoming festivities, but unfortunately, my deadline is too soon after the weekend for much information to get to me. I did send SOS postcards to several class members for news: Walter Wenk, Pete Nance, Bunny Popkin Latkin, Babs Lewis Korman, Wilford Kale, Nancy Rhodenhizer Henderson, Marie Fridenstine Williams, Ron Eliasek, Margaret Conn and Pat Walsh, Gary Chocklett, Roger Burbage, Jim Armentrout and Mary Ellen Coleman Culp. I had a pre-Homecoming chat with Mary Ellen and did learn that she and Clyde '65 are now moving to Lexington, Ky., where Clyde will be the CEO of Long John Silver's, after serving on their board for the last three years. Their daughter Kelly (U.Va. '88) is with the National Federal Independent Business lobby working in Baltimore and living in the Inner Harbor. Suzanne '91 works for Gannett Corp. in Arlington, Va., and their son, Darby, is a freshman at Elon College.

We attended a William and Mary wedding in Richmond in July. Teri Geiger '91 of Richmond married John Leone '91 from Greensboro, N.C. John was a basketball player at the College. Being around the new generation of students was very uplifting, and the quality of recent graduates met all expectations. While at the wedding, we ran into Ben '67 and Debbie Thomas Pomeroy, and joined them for breakfast the following morning. Their daughter, Kristy, entered U.Va. this year where she will play on the tennis team. Son Brad (Hampden-Sydney '92) is working in a sporting goods store in Richmond, and son Scott is a junior at Hampden-Sydney. Debbie and Ben both work for Colonial Life and Accident Insurance Co.

On our last visit to Williamsburg I did catch up with Betty Bishop '67 and Gene Griffin, who will be joining their W&M daughter, Beth '95, in Paris this fall, while Beth spends the fall semester there. Like many '66ers, Gene and Betty celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary this year, with a trip to Bermuda.

We had a visit from Bill Pippin '64 this summer and spent a delightful evening rehashing days in Williamsburg. Bill continues to work in Virginia Beach as a media specialist with the city schools. Another recent guest was Bill Banner '64 and his wife, Diane, who live in Atlanta. They were in this area for the Furniture Market in High Point, N.C. Bill and Diane own five specialty shops called "Deck the Walls," featuring pictures and custom framing.

Matt Beebe and wife Ann Singleton Beebe '65 live in Caldwell, Idaho, where Matt is with AIMCOR. Matt got his M.S. at the University of South Carolina in geology and has lived in New Mexico, where he was with the uranium mining industry, then in Wyoming, and in Idaho since 1980. Matt is plant manager for a plant that mines and processes a white bentonite for paper manufacturing. He and Ann have a daughter, Maggie (University of Idaho '86), and a grandson, Max, living in California. They are avid sailboat enthusiasts.

Kathryn Davis Burchell has been teaching for 28 years and lives in Bowling Green, Va.

Jack W. Knowles has been named executive vice president and chief operating officer of Government Institute Inc. in Rockville, Md. Jack has 27 years of experience in the publishing industry including a job with the Congressional Quarterly in Washington, D.C., marketing manager at Grune and Stratton Inc. in New York City, publisher of Aspen Publications in D.C., executive vice president and chief operating officer of Raven Press in New York City and a position with Lawyers Cooperative Publishing in Rochester, N.Y. During his career, Jack has been active with the Association of American Publishers. He and wife Linda have a son, Scott, a freshman at Denison University.

The Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA) has named Richard Nylander as chief curator. Richard is responsible for exhibition development and works with other departments to develop interpretive themes at SPNEA's 44 historic properties. He is a leading authority on historic wallpaper, an author and frequent lecturer, and has served on the Committee for the Preservation of the White House since 1990. His book, Wallpaper for Historic Buildings, is a standard guide to historic house restoration. Richard attended the Cooperstown graduate program in New York and received a master's degree in museum administration. He and his wife, Jane, have one son, Tim.

Newspaperman Wilford Kale lives in Williamsburg with his new wife, Kelly Hasty. Wilford served as the Williamsburg bureau chief for the Richmond Times-Dispatch for 21 years. When the company merged the afternoon and morning papers last year, his new position was to write business and agricultural articles, and he opted to commute to Richmond, rather than move there. Each Monday his column, "On the Farm," appears in the Metro Business section.

Walter Beales has opened a law practice in his hometown of Boynton, Va., after practicing in Florida, and serving for five years as an attorney with the Virginia State Corporation Commission. Walter will have a general practice, with emphasis on real property, estate planning, business law and related fields. He graduated from Mercer University School of Law.

Put me at the top of your Christmas card list!

Our 25th reunion was a very special time to renew old friendships and make new ones. The event that everyone talked about was the Big Chill Colloquy. A special thank you goes to the panel members: Carol Bagley Amon, Bob Blair, Celia Brown and Lewis Puller Jr. '67, and to Johne Whicker Armentrout for coordinating it. Thanks also goes to you who participated from the audience. Those who could not attend may have been able to see it on CBS' "48 Hours" on Nov. 24.

Trying to get everyone into our class picture took some maneuvering. Unfortunately, due to some confusion as to time and place, not everyone was in the picture. Speaking of confusion, my head is spinning with information gained at the reunion. If I spoke with you but haven't written anything, it's not that I'm ignoring you, but I'm not sure of the facts for publication. For example, Robin Russell Gaiser is in a graduate program at Marymount of Virginia, but I don't remember which program. Her husband, a media specialist at Madison High School in Vienna, Va., will retire next year. Her son is a senior at W&M majoring in religion and her daughter is a ballerina with the ballet in Dallas or Houston. Quentin '69 and Kathy Clark Van Meter have a daughter at W&M, Kathryn '97. It was great to talk to everyone, but please write with information!

Judith Johnson Bayard Cushing came to the reunion from Olympia, Wash. She has been teaching at The Evergreen State College since 1983. She's teaching computer science. She recently finished her dissertation with David Maier in scientific data management at Oregon Graduate Institute in Portland. In 1969 Judy finished a master's degree in the philosophy of science at Brown University in Providence, R.I., and moved to Poughkeepsie, N.Y., to work for IBM's systems development division. She shared an apartment with Kerry Sawick. From July 1970 to September 1983 she worked in a variety of interesting positions in information systems, from Paris to Bordeaux and Cornell to Seattle. Judy and husband John Aikin Cushing enjoy their professional lives as "renegade computer scientists" and their private lives as hikers, skiers and gardeners.

Margaret Kieffer Cahoon has spent the majority of her professional life in advertising and public relations. In 1980 she joined Seemark Advertising in Norfolk and became a vice president of account services as well as working in financial areas. In 1987 she became the Cahoon of Cahoon & Cross Marketing Consultants Inc., located in the Greenbrier section of Chesapeake, Va. Her company researches market potential, brand awareness and market share, providing advertising and public relations for clients in several states. Marga and her husband Roger '69 live in Portsmouth, where Roger is a dentist. Twenty years ago Marga realized a lifelong dream of owning her own horse. Her newest is a Trakahner mare, which she is training for dressage competition.

Hugh Babington Smith's daughter Alexa wrote with news of her father. After leaving W&M he joined the British army. He has been stationed in Germany in Minden, Bielefeld and Mochengladbach. Before retiring in 1992 as a lieutenant colonel, he was made a member of the British Empire by the Queen at Buckingham Palace for services during the Persian Gulf crisis. Currently he is employed as a computer parts salesman and is looking into a career in wind energy. He and his wife, Marianne, have three daughters, who were born in 1975, 1977 and 1981. The family resides in Abingdon, England.

Traditions, Myths & Memories:

"A Book That Defies Description"

We wondered how good Traditions, Myths & Memories: 1693-1993 is, so we asked an alumnus for his reaction. Here is what he said:

"This book defies description. Whatever the era, you are there! And those you knew are there! Like no other, it captures the golden thread of Spirit that unites and links the generations each to each."—Davis Y. Paschall '32, President Emeritus

TWO STUDIES UNDERWAY ON COLLEGE FUTURE

Faculty, staff and students are involved in two comprehensive and cooperative planning efforts, which, when taken together, will help chart the future of the College. The 1994 Self-Study is being conducted through a Steering Committee and the work of 14 committees. Their recommendations will become a report to be reviewed by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the College's accrediting agency. The Self-Study is a comprehensive effort that will produce its first draft in the summer of 1994 and a final report by the spring of 1995. At the same time, a Strategic Planning Committee, chaired by Provost Gillian T. Cell, has been established by President Sullivan. The Strategic Planning Committee will have a draft document by the late spring. The draft will be widely discussed with the College community and revised in light of those discussions, Cell said. The report will be submitted to the president, and then to the Board of Visitors for approval in the fall of 1994.

If you see a familiar face at an outdoor art show, it may be Lynne Hobart Bjarnesen. She does six or seven such shows a year throughout Virginia and North Carolina. An artist primarily known for her restful, realistic landscapes, she is working toward becoming more abstract. After graduation she did social work at Eastern State Hospital in Williamsburg, received a master's degree from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1975 and moved to Danville in 1976. The move was due to Lynne's husband's job as a psychiatrist. In Danville, Lynne had the opportunity to leave social work and explore her artistic talents. After her husband died six years ago, Lynne found herself struggling to turn a hobby into a career. She has won awards, taught art classes, and was Reynolds Homestead's artist in residence last spring.

Adin D. Brown is general manager of Technical Sales Inc. in Mountain View, Calif., which produces components for high-technology companies.

William C. Luebke received a master's in library science from Emory University. He resides in Richmond and is a reference librarian with the Virginia State Library and Archives.

Nancy Briska Anderson is the director of the Museum of Arts and Sciences in Macon, Ga.

70 Randy Pearson Van Dam
215 Myrtle St.
Haworth, NJ 07641

Herbie Armstrong was named assistant dean of Dowling College (Oakdale, N.Y.) School of Aviation and Transportation. Since 1985, Herb had served as chairman of the department of airway science at Hampton University. In that post, he inaugurated a multidisciplinary curriculum with concentrations in aviation management, computer science, electronic systems and flight training. An innovator in the field of aviation education, Armstrong developed the first collegiate air traffic control program and secured an ongoing research agreement with NASA-Langley Research Center. A former air traffic control specialist with the Federal Aviation Administration, Herb served four years as rotary-wing aviator and infantry officer, Airborne Ranger in the U.S. Army. He is a member of the FAA's Aviation Rulemaking Advisory Committee, which is developing recommendations for the improvement of operations in the air transportation industry. Herb earned an M.B.A. from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1982 and an Ed.S. from William and Mary in 1989.

Appointed by Florida Gov. Bob Graham on May 1, 1984, Barbara Ford-Coates is the Sarasota County tax collector, having served as assistant tax collector prior to that time. Barbara is the only county official in Sarasota to attain the national designation of certified public manager through Florida State University. In 1990, she received the League of Women Voter's award for outstanding public service. Barbara's tax collector office has received several state awards for enthusiastic support of the Florida Nongame Wildlife and Save the Manatee programs. Husband Brian Ford-Coates and Barbara have three daughters, ages 16, 14 and 12.

Tim Wieboldt is associate curator of the Massey Herbarium at Virginia Tech. His first child, Elsa Claburn Wieboldt, was born March 13, 1992.

At University of Massachusetts, Chris Condit is teaching paleontology and physical geology and working summers for the U.S. Geologic Survey in Flagstaff, Ariz. He and wife Laurie have two children.

Living in Lakewood, Colo., Debbie Ostergard works for Siler Printing. She and husband Peter Turner and daughter Christine enjoy hiking.

With a master's in library science from SUNY at Albany, Jane Maloney has been employed at Basin Harbor, Vergennes, Vt.

Mike Campana is associate professor of hydrogeology at the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, working on interdisciplinary research with aquatic ecologists.

In Fairfax County, James Cole is an Engineer II, Advanced Preliminary Design Section, with the Department of Public Works. Jim and Vicki have twin daughters and live in Manassas, Va.

Patricia Wendell Fryer is associate planetary scientist at the Hawaii Institute of Geophysics. She is doing research in marine geology and is directing an NSF Young Scholars Program for 40 Hawaii high school students in the summer.

Don Gates has an M.S. in civil engineering and is employed by Texas Instruments in Dallas.

Ted Wood is vice president and fund-raising counsel for Ketchum Inc. in Pittsburgh.

Jane Ledbetter Kurlzak teaches high school English, history and public speaking for the Essex County (Virginia) schools.

In Newport News, Barbara Ann Lawson Brown teaches high school social studies.

Dick Moore is a State Farm insurance agent in Richmond. Sheila Crossen, also in Richmond, is a social worker.

Barbara Pate Glacel, president and managing partner of Pace Consulting Group Inc. in Burke, Va., and general manager of Pace West, Monterey, Calif., was elected vice president of instructional systems association (ISA). She will serve ISA as the association expands the influence of the instructional systems industry, enhances the development and success of member firms, and improves members' capability to serve their clients. Pace Consulting Group celebrated its fifth anniversary with the announcement of a name change to VIMA International, a firm specializing in executive leadership and organizational development.

Mary Vassilicou Bicouvaris teaches government and international studies at Hampton Roads Academy in Newport News.

Mr. McAdoo Bruington, father of the late Patricia Bruington Rudeseal, is trying to locate a copy of a syndicated television documentary, The Time of Their Lives, that Pat appeared in representing the College. If you have any information that could help Mr. Bruington locate the tape, please contact him at 1711 Bellevue Ave., Apt. P-14, Richmond, VA 23227; (804) 266-2661.

Captain William "Chip" Boyd, former commanding officer of the USS Thomas S. Gates, received orders to the Senior Officers in National Security Program at Harvard University. The ceremony relieving him from his duties on the guided-missile cruiser was held last April on board the ship at Norfolk Naval Base. Chip previously served as commanding officer, USS Peterson; executive officer, USS Thomas C. Hart and commanding officer, USS Salinan. Chip has also served as operations officer, USS Pharris; engineer officer, USS Chehalis; and auxiliaries and engineer officer, USS Lasalle. Captain Boyd wears the Legion of Merit, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Navy Commendation Medal and the Navy Achievement Medal.

We enjoyed a surprise visit from Pam Hilton Snow '71 the weekend after Homecoming. Her son Marcus had been visiting colleges in the Northeast. Pam and Marc have a florist business and farm (quarter horses, Chesapeake Bay retrievers, donkeys, corn and alfalfa) in Grand Island, Neb. Their second son, John, is a sophomore in high school.

As I write, fires are raging in southern California and my thoughts are of our classmates in the area... let's hope they are safe and sound.

Tom and I were disappointed to have to change our Homecoming plans. I look forward to hearing from you all about the reunions and merrymaking! My next deadline is March 4, 1994!

Hope your Thanksgiving was a nice one and that your holidays are happy and peaceful!!

Centreville, VA 22020

I hope those of you who returned to Williamsburg for the Tercentenary Homecoming enjoyed all the festivities and had a chance to catch up with a lot of friends from our college days of yesteryear.

Debbie Dougherty came for Homecoming for the second year running from Montreal, where she is a professor at McGill University teaching strategy and managing innovation. Before moving to Canada, she taught at Wharton School of Business.

It was nice to see Jane Huntington, who rather than disappearing from the face of the earth, has been in her hometown of Lynchburg. She teaches special education for emotionally disturbed children and loves it. She has three children — two boys and a girl. Vicki Volk Holpe came solo, while her husband and three sons spent time visiting with relatives. She works in the field of education, formerly teaching and now testing children for learning problems.

Elaine May Kontos has her own accounting business. She enjoys the fact that her work varies from day to day but admits it's a lot of work. She and her husband stay busy keeping up with the sports schedules of their two sons and daughter. Carol Christenson Jackson enjoys her work for a major insurance company where she deals with insurance and financial packages. She and husband Charlie have two daughters.

Ken Noble has served as county administrator of Smyth County, Va., since June of this year. He held other administrative positions in the county for the previous two years and has been an administrator in the Virginia community college system for six years. Wife Nancy and daughter Rachel moved to Smyth County in 1979 from Chincoteague, Va., where Ken and his wife worked in the Accomack County school system.

The Alumni Society has passed along information on several classmates, so I'll do the same. Congratulations to Andy Evans, the recipient of a prestigious Fulbright scholarship. The Fulbright United Kingdom College and University award is competitive and only four were awarded in 1993. From June through August Andy investigated how business schools in the United States, England and other European countries compare. He was a visiting scholar at the newly created European School of Management at the University of Surrey in England. He is currently associate dean at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University.

Pam Crowson Peebles received a Ph.D. from the Virginia Institute of Marine Science. She is a district geologist for the State Department of Transportation in Colonial Heights, Va. David Huber lives in Vienna, Va., and is an environmental engineer with the Environmental Protection Agency. This year he traveled to Argentina and climbed Mount Aconcagua. He is married and has two children.

John Keahey received a master's degree from the University of Connecticut. He is a geological advisor at OXY USA Inc. and has given talks on geology and history at local schools. He and his wife, Joan, have one son, and they live in Missouri City, Texas. Carol Stein received her Ph.D. from Harvard and now works for Sandia National Laboratories. She lives in Albuquerque, N.M.

Louis Campbell is a district court judge in Fincastle, Va. He is also the co-author of a book titled Risk Management in Chiropractic. Anthony Connery is an accounting specialist for AT&T in Greensboro, N.C. David Bates is an Army chaplain living in Brandon, Fla., and Army Lt. Col. Mike Dougherty is stationed at the same base in Brandon. Mark Mathiesen is assistant counsel in the Office of the Senate Legislative Counsel.

Paul Renard lives in Vienna, Va., and is the senior principal supervisor of DP project managers for American Management Systems. Ray Smith works as a traffic manager with E. Dillen and Co. and lives in Honaker, Va. George Walls owns an insurance agency in Isle of Wight, Va.

Art Thomas is a student and adjunct professor at the Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, D.C. He is the author of "Reasonable Revivalism: Presbyterian Evangelism of Educated Virginians," which appeared in the Journal of Presbyterian History. He is also the editor of a book, Early Churches of Culpeper County, Virginia: Colonial and Antebellum Congregations.

Dianna Blair Richardson was the guest speaker at commencement ceremonies of the high school she graduated from: Fort Chiswell in Wytheville, Va. She received her M.A. and Ph.D. at Virginia Tech, and she is currently an educational consultant in the Washington, D.C. area. Before going into administrative work, Dianna taught elementary school in Pulaski County from 1972 to 74. She then became elementary supervisor and assistant superintendent for instruction for Manassas Park city schools and later an assistant professor at Averett College. She has co-authored and presented educational papers at national conferences, conducted educational workshops and serves on the National Council for Teachers of Mathematics.

Betty Lockhart Anglin has illustrated a book by Joan Gagon Netter titled Scrimshaw for Skyler. This is a picture book to introduce young people to the art of scrimshaw — the sailor's pastime of carving bone or ivory. Betty, who lives in Newport News, is a faculty member at Christopher Newport University.

Robin Chambers Hart is a research fellow in musculoskeletal biology for LifeNet Transplant Service and lives in Virginia Beach.

That's it for now folks. Happy holidays and a happy new year to you all!

KRIS LOERZEL WINS TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP

Kris Loerzel, a senior at William and Mary from Centreville, Va., has been named a 1993 Truman Scholar, while Katherine H. Koestner, a junior, was a finalist for the scholarship, which recognizes academic achievement, contributions to public service and leadership potential. Shown during a presentation ceremony in the accompanying photo are President Timothy J. Sullivan, Koestner, Loerzel, and William Morrow, government professor and Truman faculty representative.

MOWEN AUTHORS BOOK ON EFFECTIVE DECISION MAKING

John C. Mowen '69 has written a new book, Judgment Calls: High-Stakes Decisions in a Risky World, recently published by Simon & Schuster. The text reveals the strategies behind effective decision making by using real-life examples of high-stakes decisions. Mowen illustrates ways to identify, understand and evaluate the many factors essential to good judgment for decision makers from all walks of life. Mowen is a psychologist, a chaired professor at the business college of Oklahoma State University and the author of Consumer Behavior and numerous other articles on decision making.

The day could not have been more perfect for a Homecoming — a crisp and sunny 65 degrees. We saw lots of folks at the parade, in Sorority Court, and at the Luncheon-on-the-Lawn (held in the Sunken Garden this year to accommodate the 3,500 or so with tickets). Rumor had it that 15,000 people came to Homecoming this year, but who really knows?

Naturally, most of the people we saw were from the Class of '73, celebrating their 20th reunion, but there were a few '74 classmates in attendance too. Leslie Slemmer Clark and husband Rick '73 were there from New Jersey, and so were Williamsburg resident Kathy Todd Wilke and her two daughters; Richmond residents Nat '75 and Nancy Sloan Hamner with their two daughters; John and Lynn Adams Hostetler from Pennsylvania; Sandi '75 and Chip Yancey; Leslie Bell Shannon; and Jim Swanson.

Some news briefs: Leslie Bell Shannon is a hydrologist with CH2M Hill. She and Sam live in Knoxville, Tenn., with their new daughter. Neil T. Bockoven is a division reserves geologist with Exxon. Neil received his Ph.D. from the University of Texas. L. Mac Chenault lives in Aylett, Va.

He got a law degree at the University of Richmond and practices law in Aylett. Stephen P. Gooch has a consulting firm, E. O. Gooch (consulting geologists and engineers) in Troy, Va.

James R. Swanson is a software engineer at Hewlett Packard. He and his wife, Lynn Smith Swanson '75, live in Raleigh, N.C. Scott Sheely works for Marathon Oil Co. Scott received a master's degree from Bowling Green University and now lives in Sugar Land, Texas. John P. MacIntyre owns a financial consulting business that is expanding into money management services. He and Suzanne have two children, Ryan and Laura. The MacIntyre family live in Wayne, Pa. (Hey, John, I grew up in Wayne, on Sullivan Road, near the Mad Anthony Wayne house — I have never in my life run into anyone else who lived in that town!)

Charles Howard Nance is the founder and executive director of Virginians in Partnership for Housing, a non-profit housing development in Northern Virginia. He is also the rector of the Board of Visitors of George Mason University. Cindy Whitlow Shirley also lives in the Northern Virginia area. Cindy is in professional relations for the National Board for Certified Counselors. Pamela Wright is director of the student assistance program at Alternatives Inc. in Williamsburg. Theresa N. Redd received her M.A. in educational administration at W&M in '74; she was recently named assistant principal at the elementary school in West Point, Va. Theresa has been a teacher in the West Point school system for 18 years. Tish Stouffer Davidson found her degree in biology prepared her well for her career as a full-time writer for magazines, newspapers and a textbook publisher. Her daughter Helen, 11, is an actress for TV commercials, university films and radio. Also in publishing is Samuel Royall, vice president of the Williamsburg Press Inc.

Robert Custard resides in Strasburg, Va., where he is regional sanitarian for the 28 counties in the Virginia Department of Health Northern Region. In 1991 he was elected to the Board of Directors of the Virginia Environmental Health Association. Bob and his wife, Nancy, stay busy with their two children, Lauren and Neil. John Finta wrote from Vienna, Va., enclosing a photo of his worn-out sneakers, which he claims date back to the Carter administration. It was really fascinating, John, but how about some news next time?

Bill Jolly runs St. Mary's Infant Home, a private, non-profit, long-term-care facility that is home to 80 severely handicapped children. Bill has worked at the hospital for more than 14 years, but was quoted in the article I read as saying, "The thrill isn't gone. I feel like I'm making a contribution to a group of people generally forgotten by society, kids who people wish weren't around." A Petersburg native, Bill received his master's degree in hospital administration at MCV in Richmond. He has steadfastly maintained his loyalty to the Grateful Dead, lo these many years.

Jon T. Elsasser was recently named deputy managing director for the Timken Co.'s overseas operations. In his new capacity, Jon will be responsible for all corporate activities in Eastern Europe, Turkey, the Near East, the Middle East, the Indian subcontinent and Africa. Whew! I guess you are putting all you learned in French class to good use, Jon. The M.B.A. from Harvard probably didn't hurt too much either.... In case you didn't know — I didn't — the Timken Co. is a leading manufacturer of highly engineered bearings and alloy steels.

The big speaker at the Northumberland Preservation annual dinner this last summer was Douglas W. Sanford, adjunct faculty lecturer and director of archaeology at the Center for Historic Preservation at Mary Washington College. Doug is working on his Ph.D. at U.Va., studying archaeology at such sites as Monticello, Rexbury plantation in Spotsylvania County and the urban area surrounding the Fredericksburg commuter train station. He is starting a field school on landscape archaeology at Stratford Hall plantation.

The holiday season is fast approaching — put me on your Christmas card mailing list so I'll have lots of interesting news next time!

76 Robert S. Cavaliere 3807 Keith Ave. Fairfax, VA 22030

Only one letter this time around, from our former columnist George Duke. George married Lucy Neale this summer in the chapel at the University of Virginia, and the couple spent their honeymoon in England. George has an M.B.A.

from U.Va., an M.Ed., from Vanderbilt and an M.L.A. from Johns Hopkins. He is a senior vice president at Alex Brown Kleinwort Benson Realty Advisors in Baltimore, investing in real estate for public pension funds. His wife is a vice principal at a private girls school in Potomac, Md.

Following is some news gleaned from a geology department newsletter: Edgar Campbell, after spending several years flying for the Air Force and earning degrees in mechanical engineering and aeronautical science, is currently test director of the Mechanical Systems Lab at Boeing in Seattle. Steve Dick is a senior underwriter for Aetna in Englewood, Colo. Dalene Johnson Landes has taught earth science at Midlothian High School since 1979. Susan Kidwell has a Ph.D. from Yale and is an associate professor of geology at the University of Chicago.

And from a biology department newsletter we learned that Charlotte Word Rose obtained a Ph.D. in microbiology from U.Va. in 1981, did postdoc work and from 1984 to 1990 was on the faculty of the University of New Mexico School of Medicine. She currently works at Cellmark Diagnostics in Germantown, Md., doing DNA testing for paternity determination and DNA identification in criminal cases. Charlotte is married and has two children, ages 6 and 3. Bonnie Barrows is the manager of an analytical lab in Rockville, Md., that handles the analysis of materials for lead content. They also plan to expand into pesticide residue testing. She recently began work on her M.S. in environmental biology.

As always, I'll close with those famous words your parents said to you when you went away to college: "Pleeeeeease write."

Anchorage, Alaska; Brussels, Belgium; and Hertfordshire, U.K. — these are locations from which three of our classmates (Craig Cook, Storm Simenson and Shari Slocum Kelliher, respectively) traveled to attend our 15th reunion at Homecoming in October! What a great weekend it was and what a tremendous turnout we had from our class! We missed those of you who were unable to attend and hope that you will send in some news so that we can catch up on what you are doing these days.

I would like to say thank you to our reunion team for your input and help in making our class activities highlights of the weekend. Special thanks to everyone who helped decorate for Friday night's party and extra special thanks to May and Ray O'Leary and Mike and Kathy Wesson for getting me packed up on Sunday! And Greg Greenway '75, if you are reading this column, you were a hit. Anyone still interested in getting a CD or cassette of Greg's work, please contact me and I will put you in touch with Greg.

I received a real boost from all of you who expressed your appreciation for this column. It's nice to know that you are reading as well as enjoying it. I might even be able to make it another 15 years — but it's nice to know that there are some of you who would be interested in writing the column in the future. Thanks, Mary — I will keep your note and call you sometime when I run out of steam! Keep the cards and letters coming. Our next issue deadline is March 4, 1994.

Without further ado, here's the news I gathered at Homecoming:

Shari Slocum Kelliher has moved again, this time to Hitchin Hertfordshire, U.K., yet again following her job. She is used to living among packing crates and is now a regional manager looking after the telecommunication needs of National Westminster Bank PLC.

Joan Hadlock Fontes is in Plano, Texas. She spent 14 years as a commercial lender (vice president) at First National Bank of Chicago. Last year, she decided to stay at home full time to care for her two daughters, Sara (6) and Katherine (3). Mary Anne Cratsley McKernan lives in Burke, Va., with her husband, Dave, and their two children, Kevin (1) and Kelly (8). She is a performance analyst at GTE Spacenet.

John Cooper lives in Naperville, Ill., with his wife, Lisa, and daughter Sarah. He is general sales manager-retail for Chicago Metallic in Lake Zurich, Ill., a manufacturer of commercial and retail bakeware such as pizza pans and cookie sheets. John also shared news about Dan Monckton. Dan is living in Glenview, Ill., with his wife, Mary, and their three children. Dan man-

KELLY TO BE HONORED IN NEW ALUMNI CENTER

James S. Kelly '51 will receive recognition in the new Alumni Center with the naming of the executive vice president's office in his honor. Kelly was the executive secretary of the Society of the Alumni from 1954-1971, and has served in three administrations as the assistant to the president. He is well known to many alumni for his untiring efforts on behalf of the College. Under the leadership of Ernest W. Goodrich '35, former rector of the Board of Visitors and former board member of the Society of the Alumni, over $70,000 has been raised toward a $100,000 goal for the Kelly fund. The fund is part of an overall campaign for the expansion of the existing Alumni House. Contributions can be made to the Kelly Alumni House Project, Office of Development, P.O. Box 1693, Williamsburg, VA 23187 or call (804)221-1002.

ages a large painting company and still finds time to play a little basketball!

Ralph White is an attorney with the General Accounting Office in Washington, D.C. Jane Richer Miller is living in Centreville, Va., and working for the Navy. John Dobby is married and living in Rockville, Md. Denis Coakley has joined a marketing partnership in Northern Virginia and is interviewing for new associates statewide.

Sharon Suchy Lavedan is married to Christian Lavedan. They recently moved from Cherry Hill, N.J., to North Potomac, Md. She and her husband will be working at the Center for Human Genome Research at NIH. Karen Stine and Ray Jacobs '77 and their two children are living in Ashland, Ohio, where they are both teaching at Ashland University.

Sharon Simon Toedte and her husband, Ross, live in Knoxville, Tenn. Sharon has her own marketing research firm and teaches at the University of Tennessee. Bob Claude is alive and well and back in Houston, where he is practicing law with Entex, the local gas utility for Houston and diverse other parts of Texas.

Mary Grayson Segars, her husband and three sons all live in Hartsville, S.C., where Mary does free-lance artwork for individuals and business as well as volunteer work with the schools. This allows her the flexibility to stay at home with the children, tend a huge garden and enjoy their many dogs and cats (her husband is a veterinarian!).

Mark Rienerth is a vice president and investment officer at Wheat First Securities in Norfolk. He has become very politically active, still plays baseball (35-4 so far in '93!) and has an 18-month-old son.

Linda DeWitt is the supervisory pharmacologist/toxicologist for medical imaging, surgical and dental drug products in the Center for Drug Evaluation and Research at the Food and Drug Administration offices in Rockville, Md. She will be celebrating "having earned her Ph.D. 10 years ago." She has a high-maintenance house in Silver Spring, Md., and enjoys having no children or husband to maintain!

Kathy Kammerling Wesson and her husband, Mike '74, recently moved to Richmond from Charleston, S.C., where they weathered Hurricane Hugo in 1989. Kathy was allocations director of the local United Way in Charleston and now stays home with their 2-year-old daughter, Kathryn. Mike is Richmond-area president of First Union/Dominion Bank.

Will Rives and his wife, Julie, live in Cary, N.C., with two cats (who think they are children!). Will is a human resources consultant with Northern Telecom, and Julie is a journalist with the daily newspaper, News and Observer. She gets to travel a lot throughout the state and finds lots of stories at the beach! Will is a big ACC basketball fan, so living right next to UNC, Duke and NC State is a blast.

Cathy Learnard was named vice president and market analyst officer for the Grace Street office of Jefferson National Bank in Richmond. She was previously with NationsBank. She also serves as chairman of Lee Playhouse Theater Guild.

Heidi Campbell-Robinson and her husband, Ron, also made it to the Homecoming festivities along with Heidi's W&M grad siblings, Bill '83 and Karla '88. Heidi serves as president of the Greater Charlotte Alumni Chapter, so if you live in that area and need any information or want to get involved, give her a call. She had an exciting experience this summer when she met former UNC basketball coach Dean Smith and had a chance to talk with him about the basketball game in '77 when we beat Carolina by 3 points. He remembered the event, and Heidi had an opportunity to share with him the story about John Kratzer and how that game and win was for him. Heidi asked that we remember all of our classmates who have passed away — unfortunately there have been several. I hope that we will keep them alive in memory.

I would like to close the "Homecoming Section" by thanking Heidi for putting me in touch with Greg Greenway two years ago. Not only did it give us the opportunity to have Greg perform for us at our reunion, but it gave me a new friend whose talent I truly admire.

I received other news just prior to Homecoming that deserves a special place in our column as well. Jeff Berkin was recently appointed assistant inspector at the FBI. He spent the past few years as a supervisory special agent in the Intelligence Division at FBI headquarters. His wife, Stephanie Buchanan '81, is international sales manager for AT&T in Washington, D.C.

The production of Julius Caesar at this year's Virginia Shakespeare Festival held at Phi Beta Kappa Hall featured our classmate Steven Culp in the role of Brutus. His performance was highly rated by critics, including Ann Efimetz of the Virginia Gazette, who stated that she "enjoyed Culp's performance" and that he was at his "best in the second act, most notably in the dynamic scene with Cassius." Next for Steve are big screen appearances in Peter Weir's Fearless and in Jason Goes To Hell: The Final Friday ("another bloody tragedy," he says!). He has also been invited to join the Road Theatre Company in Los Angeles, where he lives with his wife, Barbara, a costume designer he met while filming Vidal's Lincoln in Richmond.

As usual, I am off on another business trip as soon as this goes into the fax machine. I have taken on a special assignment as division coordinator of our new gain sharing program. From this I was named to the National Gainsharing Design Team, on which I work with international

LAW SCHOOL RANKS AMONG TOP 20 IN NEW BOOK

William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe School of Law has been named among one of the nation's top 20 in this year's edition of The Best Law Schools. The annual guide, written by Thomas H. Martinson, ranked Marshall-Wythe as 18th in the country, based on measures of student selectivity, educational effectiveness and "placement power." "This recognition is particularly valuable to us, because it is based on actual performance measures, rather than on the law school's financial condition. Rankings based on resources always work to our disadvantage," said Paul Marcus, acting law dean. Martinson measured student selectivity by taking into account the entering class' median LSAT score and media GPA and the school's acceptance-to-applications ratio. Educational effectiveness was measured by the percent of recent graduate selected for prestigious judicial clerkships. A third criteria, "placement power," was measured by the percent of graduates reporting jobs as of graduation, together with their median starting salary.

This is my last column for 1993 and, as usual, I'm rushing to get it off in time. Most of the news I have is just tidbits, so this should be brief. I'm hoping I will have some newsier news from Homecoming next time! I hope all who went had a great time. I'm sure the festivities were spectacular. Do remember to send me a note and include all pertinent info. R. F. of San Fran — you didn't tell me the name of that special someone!

James Griffin was recently named senior vice president at Cowen Asset Management in New York, where he has responsibility for domestic institutional marketing for equity and fixed income asset management services. Previously he was employed at Alex Brown & Sons and Smith Barney et al. in a similar capacity. Earlier this year James graduated from the Babcock Graduate School of Management at Wake Forest with honors in finance.

Steve Bradshaw does some interesting travel with his job as deputy project manager with the Department of Veterans Affairs, Voice of America, in D.C. — he travels to Sri Lanka several times a year! Steve, his wife, Destine, and their two sons live in Stafford.

Brenda (Reeves) Brown lives in Rescue, Calif. Mary Beth (Leaf) Pilz lives in Albuquerque, N.M. Mike Caldwell lives in Oklahoma City, Okla. Nancy Neff lives in Pittsburgh, where she is substitute teaching. Nancy completed her M.S. at the University of Tennessee and received her teaching certification in earth science at Slippery Rock University. Pat Mulligan also received his M.S. at the University of Tennessee. Pat is program manager at Peer Consultants, where he is in charge of underground storage tank remediation. He and his wife, Gretchen, and two children make their home in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

John Rubin and his wife have returned to the States from Japan and have settled in Tallahassee, Fla. John has started his own company, Hang'em High Designs, since he's been back. Good luck! Jim Shields, his wife, Elizabeth, and their three children are living in Wantagh (Long Island), N.Y. Jim commutes to NYC (I think!) to Lehman Brothers, where he is vice president for institutional trading.

Oregon has been home to Kim Richardson for 12 years in Jordan Valley most recently. Kim's career has been made along a different path — she is mine superintendent at NERCO De Lamar

Co. Kim truly enjoys the lifestyle that part of the country affords — the small-town feeling and the recreational opportunities.

Tracy (Eanes) Skrabal and Steve '84 are the proud parents of Joseph Ryan, who is now 2 1/2. The Skrabals are living in Rehoboth Beach, Del., where Tracy is program manager for wetlands and aquatic protection with the State of Delaware. Tracy holds an M.S. from VIMS.

Mark Eversole is living in Williamsburg. Cindy Crampsey lives in Alexandria and works for the U.S. Geological Survey in publication graphics. Hal White is attending Virginia Tech, where he is in the middle of his Ph.D. in environmental sciences and engineering and hazardous waste management, while holding a part-time position as senior hydrogeologist at ES&T Inc. in Blacksburg.

Radivoje Adzemovic is an investment officer at NationsBank in Charlotte, N.C. Liz (Miller) Campbell and her husband are the proud parents of Thomas, born in September 1991. Life is a bit more hectic and tiring, but I'm sure fun nevertheless. The Campbell family resides in Charlottesville, where Liz is geologist senior with the Virginia Division of Mineral Resources. Liz holds an M.S. from Virginia Tech.

Well, I better close now and save the news from the rest of the history department for later, along with a few other notes. Remember to keep those letters coming! Happy holidays and best wishes for a healthy, happy 1994!

Greetings to you all. As New England prepares for winter, I hope this column brings a little warmth into your lives.

Several classmates living overseas were kind enough to write recently. Rick Taylor and wife Michelle Barnes '89 are living in Amsterdam, where Michelle was recently transferred. The couple is interested in hearing from other W&M alumni living in Europe.

Christian Andre and fiancée Rachel (a dentist from Dublin) recently bought a terrific house in London overlooking a private marina. This is a rare treat in the midst of a busy city! Christian is still with IBM, currently working as the storage products marketing specialist for Europe. He's also been doing a lot of vacation traveling over the past few years: three trips to Australia and the South Pacific, as well as skiing in France and Italy. Finally, Christian loves his new Alfa Romeo Spider/Graduate, in spite of the fact that England does not offer the best weather for a convertible.

Turning to warmer climes, Laura Akerhielm Druebbisch and husband Bernd (who were married last Oct. 31) are living in Guatemala. Laura is enjoying the challenges associated with learning Spanish and adapting to a new culture.

Several other weddings to report. First, Jan Howarth Mathews and husband Brian were married in June. The couple is living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they have recently bought a house.

Scott Gauthier wed Denise Wilson over the summer in a ceremony performed by Lenden Eakin '81. W&M gymnastics coach Cliff Gauthier, Gary Bruening and Pat Anthony '84 J.D. were groomsmen, whose other duties included videotaping, chicken cooking and garland making, respectively. Joel Branscom '81 performed a reading by Carlos Casteneda, then blew a mean harp as his band, Joseph K. and the Doorkeepers, played for the reception. The event was held at Scott's new country home, purchased via Mac McClure '79, who was also in attendance.

Rebecca Pagans Brooks and husband Michael were married in May at the Hollins College chapel. Rebecca is employed by Hollins as a senior accountant.

Randolph Palmore wrote in for the first time since graduation! He and his wife, Julie, welcomed their first child, son Austin Randolph, this past July. Randolph is practicing family medicine in Richmond while Julie has a practice in general dentistry. The couple maintains close contact with Brad Dolbec and wife Spring Pecham '83, who added first child Braden Kipling to their family in June. Brad continues his work with the Virginia Housing Development Authority in Richmond, and recently passed the C.P.A. exam on his first try! Spring is a teacher in the Henrico County school system.

Thomas Martin recently joined the practice

OLDFIELD NAMED AS RICHARD S. REYNOLDS JR. PROFESSOR

George Oldfield '60 has been named Richard S. Reynolds Jr. Professor at William and Mary's School of Business Administration where he is teaching finance classes this fall. Formerly the manager of PaineWebber's Risk Management Group and a member of the firm's Asset-Liability Committee, Oldfield oversaw the development of systems, analytics, and risk measures for all of PaineWebber's principal trading activities and helped monitor the firm's overall risk profile. He holds a master's degree and a doctorate in finance from the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania. Oldfield was previously a professor at the Amos Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College and Cornell University's S.C. Johnson School of Management.

ALUMNUS RECEIVES TEACHER AWARD

Jeanine Perron Terranova '92, a chemistry teacher at Meadowbrook High School in Richmond, Va., was recently awarded the Sallie Mae First-Year Teacher Award. The First-Year Teacher Award recognizes outstanding performance by new elementary and secondary school teachers. The awards program, now in its ninth year, is sponsored by Sallie Mae, a corporation that specializes in financing student loans and other education-related services. The program is administered for Sallie Mae by the American Association of School Administrators (AASA), the professional organization that represents public and private school superintendents and leaders. Superintendents nominate their most outstanding new teacher based on their district's criteria for excellent performance. Perron received a $1,000 cash reward as well as recognition in Newsweek magazine.

of Eye Physicians Inc. in Roanoke, specializing in corneal and external disease including corneal transplant surgery. Tom attended medical school at the University of Virginia, completed his residency in general ophthalmology at the University of South Carolina and served a fellowship at Wake Forest University.

Achieving success in the business world, Sarah Armbrister Beamer has been selected by the Marquis Who's Who Board of Advisors for inclusion in the 1993 edition of Who's Who in Finance and Industry. Sarah, who lives in Wytheville, is corporate audit manager for the related corporations of Virginia Tech in Blacksburg. At W&M, Sarah was a member of Beta Gamma Sigma business honorary fraternity. She became a C.P.A. in 1984 and received her M.B.A. in 1989.

Also in '89, Rob Swann received a master's degree in architecture from Harvard University. Rob has since relocated to Texas, but reports that while in the Boston area he bicycled now and then through Wrentham (where I live).

Following are "snapshots" of numerous class members compiled by their graduating departments. I thank the Alumni Communications office for making this information available.

Katherine Harding Hopkins is a real estate broker on the Outer Banks of North Carolina. Her husband, Glen, owns a commercial fishing operation. The couple has two children: Mallory, 9, and Aaron Wayne, 6.

Lisa Amaya Jackson completed her child psychiatry residency training at UCLA. She has since joined the faculty of Duke University Medical Center where she is doing research in the areas of childhood psychological trauma and pediatric health care policy. Daughter Katie is almost 3.

Jennifer Griffiths Ezell is an executive assistant working for Inter-American Dialogue in Washington. She formerly worked for the American Association of School Administrators and was a consular assistant at the American Embassy in Moscow.

Mark Kehoe is a civil trial attorney for the firm of Fitzpatrick and Tanker, practicing in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Stuart Pickell began medical school in August 1992. He is currently a respiratory therapy technician at Williamsburg Community Hospital.

Kevin Ruffner recently received his Ph.D. from George Washington University. The title of his dissertation is "Border State Warriors: Maryland's Junior Officer Corps in the Union and Confederate Armies."

David Broadwell is president of Broadwell Construction Co. in Fayetteville, N.C.

After graduation, Carol Campbell Smith received a master's degree in accounting. She is now a C.P.A., specializing in taxation, with Weinaug & Co. in Jamestown, N.Y. She and husband Bradley welcomed a baby boy in August '92.

Anthony Creech is a senior environmental scientist for Resource International Ltd. in Ashland. He performs various types of studies, including site characterizations and corrective action plans for underground storage tanks.

Karen Haley Potter is a geologist with the Virginia Water Control Board, working with the underground storage tank and leaking underground storage tank programs. She earned an M.S. from Bowling Green State University.

Ruth Lindsley Lodder received her M.S. from Syracuse University and is now a staff member at BDM Federal Inc., providing support to the U.S. Department of Energy's environmental restoration and waste management program. Ruth also continues to teach Geology 101 at Montgomery College in Rockville, Md. She married in May.

Randy Oakes graduated from Colorado University's Executive M.B.A. program and is a C.P.A. in the audit department at Price Waterhouse.

Heather Quinn earned an M.S. from the University of Florida and is working as a geologist for Earth Data Inc., an environmental consulting firm in Annapolis. She served as a volunteer for the Inaugural Ball Committee and attended the Arkansas Inaugural Ball, where President Clinton jammed on his sax with the band! Heather spent some time in March visiting with Margie Waters Ray, who is employed by an environmental consulting firm while working on her M.S. at U.Va. She and husband Chip, who is with the Water Control Board, have one son and are living in Richmond.

James Meade received an M.S. from North Carolina State University and is employed as a contract negotiator for the F/A-18 program.

Amy Schoner Wandless earned her M.S. at the University of Tennessee and is working at the Defense Mapping Agency in Washington, D.C.

John Simonson is employed by Environmental Resources Management in Exton, Pa., as a geologist, managing hydrogeologic investigations at hazardous work sites. He and wife Catherine live in Wilmington, Del. John completed his M.S. at the University of Tennessee.

William Wilsey and his wife recently welcomed a baby daughter. The family lives in Wyoming, where Bill is a geologist for Marathon Oil. He earned his M.S. from the University of Cincinnati.

I'm looking forward to receiving your Homecoming '93 stories. Don't forget to write!

I missed seeing so many of you at Homecoming, but we had a homecoming of our own! My husband, David, and I welcomed our first child, Colin Todd Walls, into the world on Sept. 27!

Kevin Gough sends news from nearby Brunswick, Ga. After serving as the assistant district attorney for the Brunswick Judicial Circuit for several years, Kevin has opened his own law offices in Brunswick, with emphasis on criminal defense, family law and personal injury. He said that he hoped to run into many classmates at Homecoming! Congratulations, Kevin!

Alison Hawley has been doing some traveling with her job in the marketing department at Hanes Hosiery in Winston-Salem, N.C. She recently stopped in El Paso, Texas, for several days and visited with Chris and Laurie Raymond Benson and their daughter, Kimberly. She said that they have a wonderful Southwestern home and they are enjoying life "Texas style." She also reported the birth of Peter Lincoln Basnight on Sept. 15, 1993. Proud parents Kord '85 and Linda Reynard Basnight and 3-year-old brother Philip are so excited about their new addition to the family. They are living in Abingdon, Md. Another happy family addition to report is the birth of Jessica Miller, second daughter of Greg and Alison Horrocks Miller, born on Sept. 7, 1993. Older sister Samantha is adjusting to her new sibling and the Miller's new home in Topsail, N.C.

Richmond is the home of Erin Sheehy Downs and her husband, Butch. She and Butch celebrated the birth of their first child, Brendan, on May 5, 1993. Brendan weighed 9 lbs., 8 oz. Erin recently began a new job as trust counsel in the legal department at Crestar Bank in Richmond. Congratulations, Erin and Butch!

I received a nine-year update from Scott McClesky, who has left the FBI and is now working as a securities fraud investigator for the parent company of NASDAQ, the National Association of Securities Dealers. Scott's work mostly involves detecting and investigating insider trading and stock manipulation. He works in Rockville, Md., and lives in Frederick. Through night school, Scott is pursuing a master's degree in international business from Johns Hopkins.

Ann Murray, mother of David Murray, dropped me a postcard with news about David and his family. David graduated from the Armed

Don't Miss Out! Order Today!

Now available from the Society of the Alumni, The College of William and Mary: A History took five scholars and three years to produce. Written in an engaging style, full of tales about people and events from the College's founding by James Blair in 1693 through the administration of Paul R. Verkuil '61, this two-volume, 1,046-page work comes in a handsome gold-stamped slip case—perfect for your bookcase to show your affection for William and Mary. Produced especially for the Tercentenary and destined to become a collector's item, only 2,000 have been printed, with 700 sales in the first month alone! Don't miss out! Order your copy and one for a friend today!

The rankings are in, and William and Mary has once again received high marks from those evaluating the College's programs and graduates. The U.S. News and World Report annual ranking placed William and Mary as fourth in the nation for offering the most financially efficient education in the country. The College came in fourth when compared with other national universities in relation to how much they spent per student on educational programs. The category measures the extent to which an institution succeeds in delivering a top quality educational program with limited resources. Overall, the College continued to rank near the top 25 in the nation. Although the College's academic reputation is high (No. 36), financial resources continue to hurt William and Mary's total placement, when compared with other universities. As a result, the College scored an overall ranking of 41. The College has also won praise for its accounting program and its chemistry graduates in separate rankings by other organizations. The undergraduate accounting program at the School of Business Administration placed No. 17 in the country, according to a survey by the Public Accounting Report, and William and Mary ranked fourth out of 601 U.S. colleges and universities for the number of chemistry graduates certified by the American Chemical Society.

Forces Medical School (USUAS) in Bethesda, Md., in May 1993 and is serving a surgical internship at the Navy Hospital in Bethesda as a lieutenant in the Medical Corps. David and his wife, Eunice, whom he met while serving in the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone, West Africa, live in Rockville, Md., and have two children: Erica, 6 years old, and Frankie, born in August 1993.

Michael Ard resigned his commission in the Navy after returning from service in the Persian Gulf during Operation Desert Storm. Currently he is enrolled in the M.A. program in foreign affairs at the University of Virginia.

John Hutcheson is an associate counsel for the Board of Veterans Appeals, U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs in Washington. Donald Lucidi is an attorney in the firm of Humphries and Nubani in Pittsburgh.

Down South, Lyle Lesesne Pritchard is a pediatrician in Birmingham, Ala.

Christine Louise Wruck is a project administrator for GTS Duratek in Columbia, Md.

William Metzner is a management consultant at Long Island Lighting Co. He lives in Fort Salonga, N.Y.

Christopher Myers is running a business in Colorado. He is living in Snowmass.

I hear that Karen Nuckols Kontopanos is a senior staff geologist with Virginia Geotechnical Services in Richmond.

Jan Pickrel is a senior environmental engineer at the State Water Control Board in the Northern Regional Office. In early June, she went to Durango, Colo., on one of the GSA "Geo-Hostels" out of Fort Lewis College. She toured Mesa Verde and the San Juan Mountains, and took the narrow-gauge railroad. She also made a trip to Ireland. She is currently living in Alexandria, Va. Susan Schecter Noll is living in nearby Herndon.

I hear that Lane Reed is living in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Stephen Skrabal is currently a graduate research assistant in the oceanography program at the University of Delaware. He was recently inducted into Sigma Xi Honor Society. Steve and Tracy '80 live in Rehoboth Beach, Del. Amy Wendt White also lives in Delaware. Amy is a hazardous-waste engineer working on soils and ground water remediation projects at Malcolm Pirnie Inc., an environmental consulting firm in Chadds Ford, Pa. She lives in Hockessin, Del.

A bit father north, Ford Cochran makes him home in New England. Ford is a Ph.D. student in the geology and geophysics department at Yale. He spent this summer in the environmental sciences division at Oak Ridge National Lab. He currently lives in Branford, Conn.

Norther still we find Walter Barnhardt, who is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Maine in the department of geological sciences. Walter spends a lot of his time working on Maine's beaches and is living in Old Town.

Lisa Clark Price is a remedial project manager with EPA Region 6. She and her husband Keith have two children, Emalie and Alexander, and live in Carrollton, Texas.

Matthew Cro is a project engineer at the U.S. Army Typographic Engineering Center at Fort Belvoir. He lives in Falls Church. Charlottesville has been the home of Scott Dougald, who was employed as a Volvo/Volkswagen mechanic. Last year, Scott spent a three-week vacation in Japan and is going to Belize this year as a volunteer on an archaeology project. This fall he became a Ph.D. candidate in archaeology at the University of Wisconsin. Reportedly, Monica Genadio is living in Washington, D.C., but I have no other details.

Tracy Glassburn is a research scientist at Imperial College in London studying gold prospecting in South Africa using light hydrocarbon gases. She is also working on her geology Ph.D. in experimental carbonates digenesis at Imperial College.

Speaking of the United Kingdom, I received a great postcard from Brian Cuthrell, who spent the summer in Dorset. Brian was lucky enough to win a three-month scholarship from the International Council on Monuments and Sites. He lived in the manor house of a 7,000-acre estate, called Kingston Lacy, near Winborn in Dorset. Brian worked with the ongoing vernacular building survey and researched estate records from the 18th century. He enjoyed a visit from Margie White '86, who teaches physical science at a middle school in Gloucester, Va. They attended a performance by the William and Mary Choir near the original Bruton Parish. In the fall, Brian returned to Columbia, S.C., where he is studying for his master's in history and archives at the University of South Carolina.

Back in the good old U.S.A., Joel Gray is the football coach and teaches earth science at Hampton High School. Joel currently lives in Poquoson.

Mark Hall received his master's from Utah State and is living in Helena, Mont.

Just around the corner from Williamsburg, Jimmy Harris is a project engineer at Newport News Shipbuilding. Danna Hickman Revis is a sanitarian for Prince William Health District in Manassas. She and her husband have a w-year-old son and a daughter named Emily. Danna and her family live in Stafford.

Christopher Kump lives in Richmond and is working for Kemper Insurance. He is going to school in the evening, working toward his M.B.A. degree. I hear that Kathleen Maybury is living in Arlington. Kathleen lived in Madrid, Spain, for a while, where she took a Spanish course at the University of Madrid. She and her friend traveled all over Europe by bike.

I received a wonderful letter from Lisa Krizan '83 and Scott Andereg. Scott is currently the vice president and corporate secretary as well as corporate counsel for the Finance Co., located in Norfolk. He commutes there from Richmond every day. Lisa is a corporate attorney for Virginia Power in Richmond. They are living in the Fan District in Richmond and are renovating a 98-year-old row house. They are enjoying the slower pace and more relaxed life in Richmond after living in Washington for seven years.

Not far away from Charlotte is Lori Etkin Small, who wrote me a nice note just this week. She was sad she couldn't make it to Homecoming, but wanted to let fellow classmates know of her news. She's living in Thomasville, N.C., and has gone back to school to explore new career opportunities in electrical engineering. She graduated with another bachelor of science from North Carolina A&T in Greensboro in May of 1992 and was valedictorian of her class. She and her husband have one child, Joshua, who is now 3 years old. She is working toward her master's and is expecting to complete it in December, and is also expecting a second child. She is doing research at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine and is completing her thesis in solid state physics. Lori's husband, Bill, is completing his Ph.D. in biochemistry from Bowman Gray this year as well. So hopefully, they will be able to job hunt together. They occasionally hear from Ben and Suzie Lowe. Ben is setting up an orthodontia practice in Burlington, N.C., and Suzie is helping while she raises their two daughter, Alex and Katie.

Teresa House is still in Atlanta and working for Crawford and Co. Fran Bennett is back in Baltimore. She works at a fertility clinic. Lori also hears that Norm '82 and Katie Guenther are expecting their third child in November and are living in Poquoson, Va. Norm works at NASA/Langley. Thanks for the news, Lori.

A new resident of North Carolina will be Greg Park '83 and his wife, Vicky, and their three children. Greg received a promotion with First Union National Bank and is relocating to Charlotte from Atlanta. We were happy to see Greg just this week and are looking forward to his being here in Charlotte.

I had a very special William and Mary experience recently. I had the chance to enjoy dinner with Jordan Sizemore '39 who called me while he was traveling through Charlotte. During this golden year in the College's history, it was heartwarming to gain insights into life at William and Mary during an earlier era.

I'll end with another special homecoming in Wilmington, Del.—that of Emily Catherine DiFrancesco, first child born to Jean Marie (Guzzo) DiFrancesco and her husband, Tony, on Oct. 20, 1993. Emily's first William and Mary outfit arrived by way of Jeanne's sister, Mary Guzzo Nelms '86, her husband, Jeff '86 and their son, Taylor, on the way home from Williamsburg. Jeanne and Tony are thrilled. They are already making plans for the Tercentenary-plus-one Homecoming next fall.

Please write and tell me about your fun times at Homecoming or at Home.

Hello again to my fellow classmates! It was a treat to catch up with so many of you at Homecoming. It's great to see everyone looking so happy! I've never seen so many strollers in one place! Did everyone brave the long lines at the Ronald Giese, professor at the School of Education at William and Mary, has received the Virginia Association of Science Teachers (VAST) President's Award for Distinguished Service. The award is the highest honor given by the Association in recognition "of unusual talent, skill, and dedication toward advancing the ideals of science education in the Commonwealth of Virginia." Giese shared the award with Julia Cothron, director of the Mathematics and Sciences Center in Richmond, and Dick Rezba, professor of science education at Virginia Commonwealth University. The three have designed a series of workshops in science education that show high-school and middle-school teachers how to conduct and analyze experiments. Their book is now in its second printing.

Bookstore and the Cheese Shop? Anyway, there is plenty of news to report this time around, so please read on!

Beth Monin wrote to say she spent last year teaching in France. She enjoyed the experience so much that she decided to pursue teaching upon her return to Nashville, and is now earning a master's in elementary education at Vanderbilt.

Cathy Patterson wrote from Harvard, where she was finishing up her Ph.D. degree in British history while teaching in Harvard's history department. Cathy tells me that she recently attended Irene Kelly Starrs' wedding. Irene received a master's degree from Steubenville University and now lives in Virginia with husband Joe. The wedding party included Robin Morris Currey (who earned a master's at Virginia Tech, and now lives in Fairfax with husband Gregg and children Isaac and Joanna) and Lisa Trimboli Gillingham (who lives in Boston with husband Dan). Guests witnessing the nuptials included George and Lesin Liskey Dippold and Steve Hall (who lives in Washington and works for the Environmental Protection Agency).

Reneen Newlett's career sounds interesting and exciting! Married and the mother of a 2-year-old, Reneen graduated from law school at UNC-Chapel Hill and has returned to her hometown of Richmond, where she is now busy prosecuting felons for the state as an assistant commonwealth's attorney.

Betsy Burr Elliott wrote from Amherst, N.Y., where she and husband Bill are enjoying parenthood. Baby Peter Gerry was born last January, and Betsy reports that she truly enjoys being a full-time mom! Nancy Fischetti Turnage '87 wrote to say that she's a mom now, too; and her husband Chip welcomed daughter Cassie Patricia into the world this past February. Nancy earned her master's this past May at Virginia Tech, and continues to work at Freddie Mac (with husband Chip and Alec Murphy).

Chad Miller sent a letter from Hong Kong, where he's an international marketing manager.

As for weddings and engagements, there is always plenty to report! Mike Olson and Jennifer Marmorino '92 took their vows this past May. After a Hawaiian honeymoon, they returned to Chapel Hill, where Jen is in her second year of a chemistry Ph.D. program. Mike is working for one of the pharmaceutical giants, and wants everyone to know that he was NOT one of the naked blue guys dancing in Chapel Hill when the Tar Heels won the NCAA finals (just in case any of you were wondering).

Beth Loudy wrote to say that Lianne Radell and Jeff Forsey tied the knot this past June. The wedding party included Beth (director of administration for NHAA); Kathy Patten (director of marketing for USAA); Shelly Cornell and Laura Martin. Guests celebrating the nuptials included Lori Pepple Yacobi (an instructional technologist at Human Technology Inc. and a part-time gymnastics instructor) and husband John '85, Amy Parker and Kathy Duvall, to name but a few. Lianne and Jeff honeymooned in Lake Tahoe and are now back in Fort Smith, Ark., where both work for Beverly Enterprises. Beth tells me that Debbie Schwager and Steve Froling were wed this past fall. Guests included Susan Umscheid, Eleanor Ketchum (who will tie the knot herself this December) and Tammy Jones. Congrats!

Katherine MacGregor, who earned a master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh, tied the knot in early September with Bucknell University grad Steven Treser.

Rob Weissman and Caitlin Namick were married this past August in Oyster Bay, Long Island. Guests at their wedding included Bill Sykes (still working here in D.C.); Heidi Reihansperger Fielding and husband John (John continues his legal career at Brown & Wood in New York while Heidi is in marketing); Liz and Ian Williams (Liz is working on her master's degree in Baltimore while Ian is finishing up his doctorate in epidemiology); and expectant parents Christine and Tom Myers. Rob and Caitlin are now living in Chicago, where Rob is in banking. Congrats and best wishes!

Ken Bradley was married this past August to JMU grad Lisa Bennett. Ken and Lisa spent their honeymoon cruising the Caribbean and are now at home in Newport News, where Ken is a sales manager at Broudy-Kantor in Norfolk.

By the time you receive this, Matthew Melkin and Aliza Katz will have taken the proverbial plunge. The two-lawyer couple (Matt is at the Department of Justice in D.C. and Aliza is at Wiley, Rein & Fielding) tied the knot in November.

UNIVERSITY CENTER UPDATE

The University Center at William and Mary is nearly complete and should be open for business early next year, said Samuel Sadler '64, vice president for student affairs. A week of opening activities is being planned for the beginning of the spring semester. The 95,000-square foot, three-story structure has been built at the southern end of Walter J. Zable Stadium at Cary Field. The $12.5 million building offers a variety of meeting, eating and shopping spaces. The upper level boasts two ballrooms, one 4,000 square feet and the other 6,000 square feet. The middle level has a food court with a dining area for 450 people, which will offer a larger variety of menu items than is now available at the Campus Center and the Commons. A two-story, 450-seat auditorium for classes, lectures or performances; 6,000 student mailboxes; a convenience store and an auxiliary bookstore are also in the final stages of construction.

Will Allison and Jillian Macartney were married this past July in Colorado. Guests included groomsmen Griffin Fernandez, Alex Iskenderian and Joe Jackson. Will earned both a master's and a J.D. from the University of Denver, and is now practicing law at Sterne, Kessler in Washington.

After marriage come babies, and it seems like just about everyone is pregnant these days! January is the due date for both Elizabeth Flamm Grissom and Debbie Zanfagna Bass, while Julie Anderson Calamita '87 is expecting in February. Susan Zanetti Harrison is expecting a baby in March, as is Christine Ferguson Myers. I saw each of the aforementioned mothers-to-be at Homecoming, and all look as though pregnancy is agreeing with them!

Alice Bengston Brewer and husband Chip were planning on welcoming a new addition into the world in November, so I imagine they're parents by now! And congratulations are in order for Suzanne Robinson Trolen, who gave birth to her second child, son James, in October.

Todd Almeida is a proud father; wife Karin gave birth to their first son, Thom Bruce, this past May. The happy family is living in The Hague (Netherlands), where Todd operates an executive recruiting firm.

Anna Grimsley Ashworth dropped me a line to let me know about her latest addition. She and husband Alan '85 added son Jonathan Campbell to the family this past May. Sister Caitlin is already 3 years old!

Congratulations to proud parents Shannon Pastorino Lewis '87 and husband Mike. Baby Robert arrived on the scene this past September, and pictures indicate that he's adorable!

Kord '85 and Linda Reynard Basnight '84 welcomed their second son, Peter, into the world this past September. Merry Whearty Thomas and husband Jon welcomed son Justin Patrick into the world this past June, while Mark and Debbie Bush Vasco had their second daughter, Lindsay, this year as well. Congrats to all!

I hear that Anne Holmberg Lauritzen is currently living in Petersburg while getting her master's in education at our alma mater, while Richard Hume is now managing Sutton Place Gourmet in Bethesda, Md.

Elizabeth Flamm Grissom tells me that Jeannie Cherundolo McPhillips is busy at Wharton getting her M.B.A. Elizabeth ran into Cathy Caputo Livingstone recently and reports that Cathy and husband Glenn are doing well.

Julie Weaver finished her medical residency at MCV in Richmond and is now associated with the Pediatric Center there. David Callahan earned his medical degree from MCV this past May and is now working at the Fairfax Family Practice. Good luck to you!

Paul Caan called to tell me he's now with First Boston in New York, where he's a vice president of investment services. Chris Lester, armed with an M.B.A. from Rutgers, is now an institutional equity and convertible bond salesman for Smith Barney Shearson in New York.

As for news from those of you who were history majors, Leigh Cluff is working on a master's in education here at George Mason University, Dave Anderson works for Browning-Ferris Industries, and Tom Bianco is working in management for U.S. Golf Properties in Virginia Beach. Laura Donohoe is an indexer in Northern Virginia for the H.W. Wilson Co., and Manolita Marmol works at Joynes and Bieber in Virginia Beach, while William Pearson teaches high school social studies and history in Virginia Beach. Chad Gunnoe is doing research on Thomas Erastus as part of his Ph.D. program at U.Va. Finally, Paula Warrick is working on a doctorate in art history at the University of Delaware while also working as an instructor at the National Gallery of Art in D.C.

As for news from the geology department, David Zuber received his master's in hydrogeology and is now living with wife Tina in California and working for Dames & Moore. Susan Roberts Snyder earned her master's from Emory University and is now a RCRA inspector with the Ohio EPA. She and husband Doug are living in Rockbridge, Ohio, and recently had their first baby! Ross Steenson received a master's from Miami of Ohio and is now a senior staff hydrogeologist with Geomatrix Consultants in San Francisco. Steven Brenner is a staff geologist with EMS Environmental in Florida, while Lisa Harper has headed back to graduate school. Lynn Leonard, who earned a master's from Duke and a Ph.D. from the University of South Florida, is enjoying the Florida sunshine, while Joe McReynolds earned a master's from the University of Tennessee and works for Exxon in Texas.

Jane Masters received her M.F.A. in art from San Jose State University this past May. She earned a B.F.A. at the Kansas City Art Institute in 1990. Congrats!

Cathy Creekmore Decker visited me recently. She and husband Ted '85 have moved to Philadelphia, where Ted has taken a management position with Scott Paper. Cathy and I had dinner with Liese Cochran Mosher '87, who continues to work hard at Burson-Marsteller. Liese tells me that Ann-Darby Simpson '87 and husband Billy are expecting a baby in early 1994!

Mary Kosko Oates is not only a doctor these days, but a pig farmer, too (try to imagine that!). She and husband Dave continue to live in sunny California but bought some property out West, complete with piggies! In case you're wondering, the first two pigs have been named Bacon and Eggs. Send pictures, Mary!

Because Ellen Thompson Brinkley did not manage to give birth by this column's deadline (how inconvenient, Ellen!), I'll have to report on the birth of the newest addition to the Brinkley clan in the next issue! Suffice it to say that pregnancy looked great on Ellen, and she and Doug look forward to their new roles as parents!

As for the "where-are-you-now" question, where are you Penny Anderson, Amy Heth, Scott Gleason and Scott Covall? Write and let me know!

As always, many, many thanks to all of you who have written. Until next issue, take care of yourselves, and please keep writing to me so that I can share your news with the rest of the class! May the upcoming holidays be a time of joy for you and your families, and may the new year bring you everything you've hoped for. Hope to hear from y'all soon!

COLLEGE RECEIVES GRANT

William and Mary was one of 23 colleges and universities across the country selected recently to receive federal grant money to promote U.S.-European academic collaboration. The College will be given $70,000 in the form of a U.S. Department of Education FIPSE grant (Funds for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education) to form a network of history departments here and abroad studying the Atlantic World during the Age of Expansion (16th-19th centuries). The College will work on the project with faculty and students from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the University of Leicester in the United Kingdom, and with more than a half dozen European universities participating in Leicester's ERASMUS network in history. ERASMUS, the European Action Scheme for the Mobility of University Students, encourages greater student and staff mobility and to create a European University Network. The FIPSE program is a pilot grants program designed to foster new types of trans-Atlantic academic collaboration and student exchange.

Lutheran Theological Seminary in Gettysburg, Pa., with their master's in divinity in May 1993. On June 29, 1993, they were both ordained in Hickory, N.C., and in July, they started as co-pastors of St. Andrews Lutheran Church in Mount Airy, N.C., which, Chris says, is the prototype for Mayberry.

Brian Campbell and his brother, Scott, began running Campbell's Ceramic Supply of Henrico County in 1980. Today the company is the largest manufacturer of pottery clay, glaze and paints between Pittsburgh and South Carolina. Brian works as production manager where about 10,000 pounds of clay are made in one day. He also makes glazes, slip and acrylic paints.

Emily Deck and Paul Harrill were married in May. After their honeymoon to Nevis, they settled in Columbia, S.C. where Emily works for the U.S. District Court and Paul is an associate with a law firm.

As for me, I'm still recovering from our five-year reunion. The party Friday night was terrific, and a bit overwhelming. A personal thanks to Mike Lynch, Andy Falck, Bob Wilson and Tim Dirgins for hosting Saturday night festivities, and to Laura Cavaleri and her brother Rob for putting up with me for the weekend. Please send me your Homecoming details ASAP! Take care, and KEEP IN TOUCH!

I hope everyone had a wonderful time at Homecoming! Please write me and let me know all about it.

Lots of tidbits this time from the history department newsletter: Todd Davenport is doing research for the Washington Service Bureau. Ginny Frank teaches U.S. history in a New Jersey high school. She recently wed Scott Clay and hopes to start her master's in history at Rutgers. Jennifer Hess is working in Richmond and plans to attend law school. Andrew Kaneb is a marketing representative for Xerox in Florida. Leslie White Lanphear works as a paralegal for the firm of Archer and Greiner. She resides in Willingboro, N.J. Tim May worked briefly in Pakistan before returning to the states and settling in Washington, D.C. He is currently associate editor of a weekly publication that examines the nuclear energy industry. He entered the graduate program in journalism at Columbia in the fall of 1992. Leila Ann Meier received her M.A. in American history in December 1991 at Vanderbilt and is currently working on her Ph.D. She is examining the civil rights movement in Nashville, Tenn. Angela Russell is in the graduate program at George Washington University. Kenneth Wood is the head gymnastics coach at the Stafford Gymnastics Center in Fredericksburg.

Three '90 grads, Glenn Neilson, Heather Rennie and Birgitta Sandberg, received J.D. degrees from the Dickinson School of Law at commencement in June. Clifton Bell is a graduate student in Environmental Engineering at Virginia Tech.

Congratulations to David Howland! David and his partner, Vivienne Ramsey, perform theatrical cabaret dancing. In less than a year of competing on the world stage, they have won first place at the Yuletide Ball in Washington, second place at the Heritage Classic in Asheville, N.C., first place at the Eastern U.S. Championships in Atlantic City, and fourth place at the British Championships Open to the World in Blackpool, England—an event attended by the best ballroom dancers in the world. Best of luck and keep it up!

Liliana Estevez and Thomas Ward '89 were married in May. She is employed as a judicial clerk for the circuit court of Arlington, Va., and he works for PRC Inc. in Crystal City as a systems analyst. They honeymooned in the Virgin Islands. Carry Ownes sent news that Stacy Zeman was recently engaged. Stacy, write and let us know who your fiancé is! Carry is busy selling Virginia wine for Stonewall Vineyards.

Lots of other marriages and engagements! Mary Colpo recently married Kevin Uitz. She currently works for General Research Corporation as a programmer analyst in Vienna. Raymona Calloway married Ricky Barnes in May. Raymona is employed by Virginia Marine Resources Commission and the two reside in Norfolk. Nelson Daniel is an engineer for the U.S. Army. He and Nicole Chrisman were married last August. Nelson is focusing on grad school in geology when he gets out of the service. They enjoy rock climbing and hiking.

Ellen Firsching married Jeremy Sohn in November 1992 in the Wren Chapel. Many grads were there, including Megan Wylie and Bill Karn. Ellen graduated from the University of Richmond Law School and is currently clerking for a judge in Wheeling, W.Va. Stephen Muir Erickson proposed to Elizabeth Ann Shields in July. He currently is employed by Colonial Williamsburg as assistant manager of the King's Arms Tavern. The wedding is scheduled for Feb. 19. Audrey Warner and William Lipps are engaged to be married in June. Audrey currently attends Johannes Gutenberg Medical School in Mainz, Germany, and William is studying pharmacy at the Medical College of Virginia. And, better late than never: Kyle Waterman Ashby and Jeff Ashby '89 announce their marriage.

Chris Weesner is enrolled in the master's program in sedimentology at the University of Missouri. He and Kathy Morton wed in June. Linda Peiperl Warren is a hydrologist with the U.S. Geological Survey water resources division in Marlborough, Mass. She has started a recycling program in her office. She and her husband, Glenn, live in Boston.

Cassie Taylor wrote with some news. She's living in Milwaukee, Wis., and working for an analytics instrument company. She just bought a new motorcycle! Cheryl Weiss Moffett married Lyle Moffett in December 1992 and spent three years working toward her master's degree in physical therapy at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia. She finished in August 1993.

Tom Inge received his Ph.D./M.D. from MCV in May 1993. James Morris is working toward finishing his M.S. in entomology at the University of Georgia. He moved into a Ph.D. program in zoology and loves it.

Happy holidays, and good luck to you all! Keep in touch!

Hi y'all! Greetings from the wonderful world of law school. Things have been pretty hectic for me during this last semester. The hardest thing was remembering how to study — I tried really hard to forget after graduation and had succeeded better than I expected. Atlanta is really great, and if any of you guys ever find yourself down here, definitely look me up!

Atlanta is certainly the place to be these days for a lot of W&M alums. I was pleasantly surprised to discover that Tom Eaton and his new wife, Alison Holm Eaton '93, were in the area. They were married at the end of July and immediately moved to Atlanta so that Ali could start law school at Emory (she's in my first-year class). Tom has a job as a physical therapy aide at the Emory Sports and Spine Clinic.

Another W&M transplant to the area is Ellen Lester. Ellen left her job in New York last June to head back down South, and she really loves the area. She is getting very involved in making the alumni chapter here even more active by arranging monthly W&M happy hours around town.

I ran into Mike Roberts and Ted Normand out at the movies a while ago. Mike finishes up his graduate studies at Georgia Tech this December and even got his hair cut for all those interviews. Ted, who is in his second year in law school at U. Penn., was down interviewing for summer clerkships.

Karen Wright has moved her base from Athens to Atlanta. She is in the second year of her graduate program in sports management at the University of Georgia and is doing an internship at the Georgia Dome. She'll probably have great seats for the Super Bowl.

Mike Rodgers is also busy enjoying Atlanta during his spare time from law school. He told me that he gets to see Jimmy Wildman '93 occasionally while out in the Virginia Highlands (especially since there is convenient parking behind Jimmy's house) and runs into Brent Moody on

SPONSORS NAME UKROP, WILBURN

The School of Business Sponsors Inc. (SOBSI) recently named two new board members: Ukrop's Super Markets Inc. President James E. Ukrop '60, and Colonial Williamsburg Foundation President and Chief Executive Officer Robert C. Wilburn. Ukrop has been president of Ukrop's Super Markets Inc. since 1975. He has built the family-owned and operated business into the most successful grocery store chain in the Richmond metropolitan area. The company operates more than 20 stores. Ukrop served two terms on the College Board of Visitors. He and his wife Bobbie '61 currently head the National Leadership Committee for the Alumni Center. He has also served on the Endowment Association Board. Wilburn joined the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation in 1992, after eight years as president of the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh. He is a graduate of the U.S. Air Force Academy and holds a master's and doctoral degrees from Princeton.

To all of you who carry and use the William & Mary MasterCard

Did You Know?

When you use the William and Mary MasterCard, you help to support alumni programs and services like Homecoming, chapter events, faculty and student awards — even this Alumni Gazette.

Thank you to all who carry and use the William and Mary MasterCard. For more information on how you too can support William and Mary in this unique way, contact the Office of Society Services, Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100, or call 804/221-1170.

the Emory campus, where Brent is in his second year of med school. Brent and Mike had dinner with Scott Mayer when he hit the Atlanta area, pushing Lafayette College to unsuspecting local high-schoolers.

I have really enjoyed hearing from so many people this semester. It has been great getting something in my mailbox other than those horrible real-world bill things. Kristin Wilderotter dropped me a line early this fall from Arlington, where she is living with Rachelle Bures. Kristin has been working as a field sales rep in telecommunications since right after graduation, and Rachelle is still enjoying her job at Arthur Andersen. Kristin told me that she had run into fellow '92 alums John Deni, Brian Curran and Bruce Reynolds, who are all in graduate school at American University, as well as Chris DeBusk, who is getting his M.B.A. at the University of Maryland, at the big housewarming party Laura Barchi, Keri Shea and Anne Rottenborn '93 threw at their new place in Vienna.

I also got a note from Heidi Workman, who has spent the past few months doing an internship with Norsk-Hydro, an international corporation located in Germany. Heidi has been living out of the country for a while. She spent the year right after graduation teaching English in Russia with the Christian Students Movement.

When I heard from our ex-leader John Graham last summer, he informed me that David Burke had also decided to head off to Russia this past August. He will be working in a library over there. John was too shy to include any information about himself (probably afraid his exploits would end up in print), but Billy Baxter mentioned some of John's activities in his last letter.

Billy wrote just before leaving for his year abroad at the University of Bristol in England. He received a Rotary Ambassadorial Scholarship, which provides full funding for him to read for his master's degree in domestic politics and foreign policy. Billy gave me the lowdown on the going-away tribute that took place just before Dave Burke left for Moscow — it was apparently quite a success, with Anson Christian '89, Eric Kauders '91 and Chris Almond joining budding recording artists John, Dave and Billy performing at a karaoke bar somewhere in Maryland. I certainly hope they let us know when and where their next show will be.

John was full of information about everyone else, though, Kent Fortner is up in Alaska working as a fisherman. Chris Almond started medical school back in September at the University of Connecticut. Michael Berry moved out to Oakland, Calif., and joined a Dominican order. Dave Miller and Emily Alder Miller are still enjoying life in Chapel Hill, N.C., and have taken up a new hobby — rock climbing. John also wrote that Billy Andrews, Steve Welty and Dan Bryant have been living it up in their Richmond apartment.

Also in Richmond, Paul Vandegrift has spent his time competing in a number of international track meets. From the reports I have received, he has been quite successful — last July he finished a very close second in the 1,500 meter race in Wales and placed seventh at another meet in England.

I heard from Susan Straight over the summer, too. She sent me a quick note before she left for Japan last July where she will be spending at least a year, maybe three, teaching English as an employee of the Japanese government. Susan informed me that Sharon Boston had graduated in June from Northwestern with a master's in broadcast journalism and was working part-time for Channel 8 News while looking for a full-time position. Susan also wrote that Peter Colohan is living on Capitol Hill and working for an environmental lobbying group in D.C.

Tracy Goldsmith is among those people who will be graduating soon with an advanced degree. She returned to Florida State after spending the summer in D.C. and is scheduled to get her master's in American studies this December. Kerry Deal returned to start her second year at the Boston Conservatory this fall and Elizabeth Cooke is currently in nursing school at Johns Hopkins planning to graduate this May. Martin Balinsky is in South Carolina working toward his graduate degree. Stephanie Silverman is living up in Baltimore where she is two years through medical school at the University of Maryland.

Wendy Layman should also be finishing up with her graduate studies this December. She is in the radiation therapy program at George Washington University in D.C. and plans to work treating cancer patients with high-energy x-rays.

Ron Phillips has also been in grad school since fall 1992. He received a fellowship for graduate study in hydrogeology at Duke. This past summer he and Kary Bartenhagen '93 spent several weeks doing geological research in the Santa Cruz mountains near San Francisco.

Chad Pridgen, another geology department grad, is working on getting his master's in paleontology at the University of Southern California. He and Teresa Ward were married in August last year before leaving for the West Coast.

Kevin Gwaltney also decided to take that big marriage step while still in school. He and Elizabeth Peto are planning to be married sometime this month. Kevin got his master's in chemistry from W&M back in June and began a Ph.D. program at N.C. State this fall.

Jenni Marmorino, who is currently studying for her Ph.D. in chemistry, dropped me a line to let me know of her recent marriage to Christopher Olson '86, '92 J.D. Kathryn Cumming '93 was the maid of honor. Karin Ciano and Julie Beebe were also in the wedding party.

Diana Zombek Camaur was married during the August following graduation. She is busy juggling married life and school at the University of California-San Diego, where she is enrolled in the biology Ph.D. program. Diana also works at the Salk Institute in the infectious diseases lab on HIV research.

Katherine O'Neill is another one of those W&M grads who headed out to California after graduation. She will be working for the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, and she has been spending a lot of her free time tutoring in an adult literacy program and volunteering at a homeless shelter in San Jose. After finishing her job in March, Katherine plans to follow the harvesting season from Eastern Europe to Asia and New Zealand as an organic farm hand next year and is thinking about heading back to grad school in the fall of 1994.

Although there are a number of people who have already finished or are just about to complete their graduate studies, I have heard from a number of people who have decided to hit the books again after taking a much-deserved break.

BLACK LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

"Moving Into the 21st Century: Shaping Leaders of a New Generation," is the theme for the 8th National Black Student Leadership Development Conference, Jan. 20-22. Eight hundred students from colleges and universities throughout the nation will take part in a series of workshops to explore the challenges facing black leaders, organized by the Office of Multicultural Affairs. Speakers expected for the conference include Lani Guinier, a faculty member at the University of Pennsylvania Law School and assistant counsel for the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund from 1981 to 1988; Patricia Russell-McCloud, an attorney and professional orator; Elaine R. Jones, director counsel for the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Foundation; Marlon Smith, president and CEO of Success by Choice; and Randall Robinson, executive director of TransAfrica. The conference also gives students and corporate leaders an opportunity to meet each other at a career fair, a popular part of previous conferences. Last year's conference offered students a chance to get to know executives from the CIA, IBM, MTV, Prudential Insurance, Canon, James River Corp., General Electric and Coca-Cola Inc.

After surviving her first year of teaching middle school math, Erica Bailey returned to school at George Mason University, where she plans to get her master's degree in middle education. Erica also informed me that she made the big move from home back in August and now enjoys living with several friends in Arlington.

Adam Garretson started medical school at MCV this past August after spending a year teaching homebound students for the Virginia Beach public school system.

Heather Creswick is currently at MCV too — she is working there doing DNA research. Heather moved to Richmond after getting her master's in chemistry at W&M and is living near Ali Walsh, who decided to return to her roots.

Rebecca Billingsley headed for Charlottesville this fall to begin her graduate studies in environmental science at U.Va. She spent last summer working with Green Corps in Alexandria. Russell Anthony also started graduate school at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. He had been working for Virginia Geotechnical in Richmond.

Matthew Noriega is in grad school at Indiana University. Anita Williams is taking geology courses at George Mason University and working at AGI and volunteering at the USGS with Norrie Robbins. Nicole Scott returned to grad school at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science.

Mark Smucker is back in school but of another sort. He is currently teaching earth science at Montgomery Academy in Montgomery, Ala. Mark is working on having a record of his music pressed as a 12-inch single under the "Fault Zone Records" label in the near future.

David Mendes was only one of several W&M grads to be drawn to Philadelphia. He started a four-year doctoral program at the University of Pennsylvania in September. Chris Royer is in his second year at the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia.

Meenu Talwar is in her second year of law school at the University of Pennsylvania. She and Tom Sasser got engaged over the summer while Meenu was working at a law firm in Miami and are planning the wedding for next summer in the Wren Chapel. Tom is also a second-year law student at the University of Florida.

Traci Meakem is currently doing graduate work at U. Penn. and plans to apply to law school. She and Kevan Vanek '89 announced their engagement earlier this fall and plan to be married next June in Washington, D.C. Kevan is getting his master's in vocal performance at Catholic University, where he sang the lead in last month's performance of Don Giovanni.

Michael Kelly is also at the University of Pennsylvania in his second year of med school. He and fiancée Tracie Wirtner have already set the date for their wedding, though: Sept. 17, 1994.

Speaking of weddings and engagements, I was almost pleasantly surprised when my ex-roomie Nancy Wood gave me a call from Harrisonburg last July to tell me that she had finally said yes to long time boyfriend Rick Worford. Nancy, who is at JMU working toward her graduate degree in counseling psychology, said they were waiting a couple of years, but rumors at Homecoming led me to believe the big day might be as early as next December.

Kathy Kuhler and Andrew Skinner also announced their engagement last summer, and I believe their wedding was set for September although I have not as yet received any further details about the ceremony. Kathy had been working as an accountant with the National Farmer Cooperatives in D.C., and Andrew is stationed out in Texas at Fort Hood where he is serving as a second lieutenant in the Army.

Another engagement announcement of the summer was Sharon Atha and Matthew Williams '91. They are planning to be married this upcoming spring. And Mark Hawkins' engagement to Melanie Pacella was announced early this fall. Mark has been working at Holmes and Narver in Aberdeen, Md.

Dori Smith wrote to let me know that she and Alex Bradley '93 were finally officially engaged. They are putting the wedding off, though, until they both get their master's degrees. Dori is at Catholic University finishing up her master's program in medieval history. She also told me that Mae Fairchild and Eileen Talento stopped by to visit on their way up to Connecticut for a vacation. Mae is working for the police department in Richmond, and Eileen has a busy schedule dividing her time between teaching high school in Virginia Beach and performing with the community theater there.

The Wren Chapel has certainly seen its share of the Class of 1992 recently. Mark Katz and Beth Jakub '91 were married there on Aug. 1, 1993. On May 23, 1993, Charles Bowery and Catherine Miller '93 said their vows there. Their wedding party included fellow W&M alums Theresa Frank, Jean Stephens, Andrea McGlynn '95 and Christopher Schaft. After the wedding, Charles spent the summer in the Aviation Officer Basic Course at Fort Rucker, Ala., where he learned to fly Army helicopters, and he is now based at Fort Bragg, N.C. Catherine started law school this fall at Campbell University.

There were some couples who managed to avoid a return to campus for their wedding ceremonies. Todd Briley did stay close by though. He married Fran Shinske on July 10, 1993, in nearby Hampton. Todd and Fran are living in Hampton while Todd attends Christopher Newport University.

William Reid and Diane Nichols also avoided the Burg, preferring to tie the knot of Nov. 27, 1993, in Lynchburg. William is currently working at Milliman and Robertson, actuaries and consultants in Washington, D.C.

Dave Thompson and Andrea Farmer were married last July. The wedding party included a number of W&M grads: Adam Campillo, Kevin Mitchell, Ali Walsh and Jeri Young. Dave has a job working in Washington, D.C., at Andersen Consulting.

Joining the ranks of the married alumni, Scott Schiltz wed Melissa King last August in Richmond. Scott is working for Sentry Insurance in Richmond, where they are now living.

Donnamarie Tomer Nobili sent me a brief note to update me on how her married life with fellow grad Tony Nobili was going. They are now living in Louisville, Ky., where Tony works as a group asset manager with Sears Credit Central while taking some classes at the University of Louisville. He should be finishing up with his M.B.A. this spring. Donnamarie has been working at Roadway Express in their accounts receivable department since last January and is thinking about going back to grad school sometime next year. As it stands now, most of Donnamarie's spare time has been spent redecorating their recently purchased Cape Cod.

Well, that's all I have for now, and since my next edition isn't due out for another few months, that should give you guys just enough time to send me in all your information for the new year. You can send your news to either of my addresses, and I'll be sure to get it. Have a great holiday and a happy new year!

ALUMNI SERVEON COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS

In recent years, William and Mary has been well represented at the Council of Economic Advisers, Executive Office of the President of the U.S. The CEA provides economic analysis and advice to the President and assists in the development and implementation of national economic policies. Robert Cumby '76 is currently serving as senior economist for international finance, on leave from his professorship at the Stern School of Business, New York University. John Kitchen '79 recently completed two years as senior economist for macroeconomics and forecasting. Ralph Monaco '78 had served in the same position the previous year.

JOHN WEAVER '32 PUBLISHES CORRESPONDENCE WITH CHEEVER

"We were both born in 1912, the year the Titanic sank and the Democrats regained the White House, and in mid-December 1943 we were both wearing ill-fitting Government Issue with sergeant's stripes when we met in one of the more exotic battle stations of World War II," writes John D. Weaver '32 (right) in the introduction to his new book GLAD TIDINGS, A Friendship in Letters. Published by HarperCollins ($25.00, 357 pages), the book consists of correspondence between John Cheever, the prominent American novelist, and Weaver, author of several books including a biography of Chief Justice Earl Warren, The Brownsville Raid, The Great Experiment, and a novel, Another Such Victory. The correspondence recorded in the book spans the years between Cheever's first and last books and offer a chronological view of his life as a writer: the impecunious early years of his marriage, his devotion to his growing family, his artistic setbacks and successes, his triumph over alcohol addiction and his reports on the cancer that ended his life.
