Thatcher Invested as Chancellor at Charter Day

Although Lady Margaret Thatcher is no stranger to historic moments, Charter Day at William and Mary on Feb. 5th was still a memorable milestone in her life.

After the College installed the former prime minister of Great Britain as its 21st—and first woman—chancellor, Lady Thatcher reflected on what it meant to be named to that office.

Speaking to an audience of 5,000 in William and Mary Hall, which included Governor George Allen, who received an honorary doctor of laws degree, and outgoing chancellor Warren E. Burger, Lady Thatcher said, "To be chancellor of a university is always a great honour...but to be invested as chancellor of the College of William and Mary and to be an Englishwoman is an even greater honour, for one cannot hold this office without feeling an affinity with those giants of the past who were associated with this college, and whose leadership helped to found this great country.

"It would be hard to think of a place that better exemplifies the relationship between Britain and America, not only in name but in moral purpose. It is in this spirit that I am proud to serve as your chancellor."

In her new role as chancellor, Lady Thatcher wore a new green silk damask robe with expanses of gold lace, given as a gift by the Board of Visitors. In recognition of her appointment, Rector James Brinkley '59 presented her with the badge and chain of office, consisting of a replica of the College Coat of Arms. The chain features symbols of past chancellors, including the crossed swords from the arms of the Bishop of London, the College's first chancellor; the eagle, a crest detail from the family arms of George Washington, the College's first American chancellor; and the great seal of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

In his brief remarks, Governor Allen, who was honored for "consistently exhibiting an unwavering concern for the people of the commonwealth of Virginia," characterized Lady Thatcher as the strongest, most steadfast British leader since Winston Churchill.

"Because of you, Lady Thatcher, the free world encompasses many more nations than it did before," Allen said. "Your dignity and firm understanding that one doesn't compromise honor proved that right makes might."

Allen also lauded the College's rich heritage of producing world leaders and pointed out that the economic development of the Commonwealth is linked to the high quality of its graduates.

President Sullivan picked up on that theme when he addressed the convocation, warning of the danger reduced state support of William and Mary poses to the quality of education at the College and its ability to produce "an aristocracy of the able."

"Our children are your children and they are our national treasure," he said. "To dilute the quality of their education, to abandon the pursuit of excellence or to retreat from a determination to provide education for leadership would constitute a betrayal of both our history and of the best interests of the young people who have placed their lives in our hands."

Sullivan added the College's unwavering resolve to offer "an education that will not only test the best but produce the best." He said that the College will not respond to calls to change for the sake of change.

"To those who wait with bated breath for William and Mary to retreat from the values which have shaped its soul, to those who counsel a U-turn away from all that we cherish simply to catch the crest of foolish fashion, to them I say: 'You turn if you want to. This College is not for turning; not now, not ever.'"

Before Lady Thatcher's address, outgoing chancellor Burger spoke for several minutes of the significance of Thatcher's appointment in strengthening the historic ties between the College and Great Britain and added that he would rather have Thatcher succeed him than vice versa. "She'd be a hard act to follow, as some people in London are finding out today," Burger said.

During the course of his impromptu remarks, Burger also had a humorous reminder for Governor Allen regarding the state budget. The outcome of the American Revolution, he said, first placed the responsibility for financing public universities on the Commonwealth. "Governor, we don't want you to forget that," Burger said.

Lady Thatcher later praised Burger during her address for "dropping some well chosen hints for the governor," adding that she was relieved to learn from Burger that "you don't have to be overtactful in this position."

Lady Thatcher arrived at William and Mary in time for a luncheon in the Great Hall of the Wren Building on Friday. Later that day, she spoke with students and faculty in a packed Phi Beta Kappa Hall for a 75-minute question-and-answer session on topics that ranged from her role in ending the Cold War to Bosnia. George Grayson, professor of government, and Edward P. Crapol, professor of history, constituted a panel moderated by Provost Gillian Cell.

Lady Thatcher, who is not only the first woman to hold the position of chancellor, but the first British citizen to hold the office since the American Revolution, addressed the importance of continuing the historic friendship between the U.S. and Great Britain. Pointing to the threat of tyranny and despotism, especially in the emerging democracies of Central and Eastern Europe, she stressed the need for maintaining a strong military deterrent.

"The uncertainty of relations between nations and the battles for power within nations have left us at a precarious point in world affairs," Lady Thatcher said. "The next few years, indeed the next few months, will be critical for those nations struggling with the responsibilities of their unaccustomed freedom. It is for this reason above all others that the special relationship between Britain and the United States must be nourished and nurtured."

Lady Thatcher touched on the Cold War of the early 1980s, when she last visited the

As part of her busy Charter Day weekend, Lady Thatcher answered questions for nearly an hour in a packed Phi Beta Kappa Hall auditorium on subjects ranging from the end of the Cold War to trade with China.

James C. Livingston, Walter G. Mason Professor of Religion, was honored for more than 25 years of outstanding teaching with the Thomas Jefferson Award, presented by Rector James W. Brinkley '59 (at podium) and President Sullivan. Tomoko Hamada, associate professor of anthropology, received the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award given to a young member of the faculty for distinguished teaching.

College as prime minister to attend the Summit of Industrialized Nations, and said that Britain and America must serve as a "beacon to the whole world."

She also spoke of the necessity for "eternal vigilance" to protect freedom. "There is no denying that the world without the Soviet Union and its constant threat is a very different place," Lady Thatcher said, "but the substantive evils that confronted us for so long have not vanished. Tyranny has not been extirpated but has only found new soil in which to grow."

Thatcher peppered her 28 minutes of remarks with several witticisms and jokes, including references to her "famous handbag," that prompted laughter and warm applause from the audience. Alluding to the outcome of the American Revolution, she said, "...all is forgiven; you've done such a wonderful job. No hard feelings. And may I add, had there been a woman prime minister at Downing Street at that time, it would have been handled so very much better."

William and Mary conferred its annual Thomas Jefferson awards on James C. Livingston, Mason Professor of Religion, who received the Thomas Jefferson Award in recognition of his dedication in 25 years of service to his profession, and Tomoko Hamada, associate professor of anthropology, who received the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award, which recognizes younger members of the faculty.

RINGING FAR AND NEAR

All Thumbs

By Barry Adams

Charter Day 1994 officially launched the College's Fourth Century and provides an opportunity to review initiatives, campus activities and achievements worthy of additional mention. Following the 1993 Charter Day ceremonies, my first Siskel and Ebert column was devoted exclusively to what perhaps will be the greatest College observance in our long history. The recent issue of the William and Mary Magazine was dedicated entirely to the year-long tercentenary celebration—a review worth glowing over.

This second thumbs-up perspective is a bit more eclectic.

 To the College's 21st Chancellor, Lady Margaret Thatcher, who was invested on Charter Day 1994. Her international stature, coupled with an impassioned address, a student discussion, and an honest intensity for upholding the traditions long associated with the office, promise to make her tenure enlightening as well as distinctive.

 To outgoing Chancellor Warren Burger, former Chief Justice of the United States, for his dignity and grace in performance of the duties of the chancellor, reintroduced after a 12-year absence.

 Thumbs up to Mother Nature for stalling the worst ice storm in recent memory until after Charter Day Weekend, but thumbs down for the deep freeze and hardships the February barrage caused.

 For the new University Center. Although there were a few critics among the college community when it was first proposed and skeptics as it was being built, it would be difficult to find many who would stand by their early cynicism. A visit to the facility is enough to make one wonder why it took so long to become a reality or why there was even a debate.

 On the recent selection of Thomas G. Krattenmaker, a professor at the Georgetown University Law Center, to be dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. Krattenmaker brings extraordinary energy and vision to a post requiring an abundance of both. As Marshall-Wythe continues its rise to national prominence (it was just named one of the 20 most "in demand" law schools in the country) it will demand exceptional administrative leadership. Thumbs up are in order for Dick Williamson and Paul Marcus, who both served with eminence as acting deans during the two-year search process.

 To Andrew J. Zawacki, a senior from Warren, Pa., who was named one of the nation's 32 Rhodes Scholarship winners in December. The second Rhodes Scholar in the College's history (the first was George M. DeShazo Jr. '89 in 1989), Zawacki's prestigious award has such international recognition that his excellent undergraduate education experience is closely linked to his successful candidacy. Though Zawacki certainly deserves all of the applause, I am confident he wouldn't mind if we stand in the mezzanine and feel some of the same pride he must still be experiencing.

Thumbs down to some of the Commonwealth's higher education funding proposals that could jeopardize the excellence long associated with Virginia colleges and universities. Thumbs up to the state legislators who are expressing misgivings about the scenarios being proposed. Alumni certainly need to support members of the General Assembly who care enough about the quality of higher education and how it directly relates to the economic strength of the state.

To the Board of Visitors for its approval of a resolution designating a portion of Matoaka Lake and Woods as a natural preserve. Thumbs up also to the Lake Matoaka Task Force, which spent many hours investigating the lake and woods and advancing the cause of conservation.

To President Sullivan, whose poignant remarks on Charter Day are added inspiration during these uncertain times. Sullivan closed his remarks by noting: "... To those who wait with bated breath for William and Mary to retreat from the values which have shaped its soul — to those who counsel a U-turn away from all that we cherish simply to catch the crest of foolish fashion — to them I say, you turn if you want to — this College is not for turning; not now, not ever."

For the wise appointments of Stewart Gamage '72 and Virginia Carey '71, '79 M.Ed., '93 Ed.S. Gamage, an articulate, experienced and savvy public relations counsel, will be enormous help as the new vice president for public affairs. Her work on both the Board of Visitors and the Society's Board of Directors confirms the depth of her understanding of issues and the breadth of her approach to finding answers. Thumbs up are also accorded Dean Carey, who has been formally named dean of admissions. Her commitment to excellence and professional skills are matched only by her love of this College.

Regardless of where you stand on gun control, thumbs up to former Alumni Board member Sarah Brady '64 for her tireless pursuit, along with her husband Jim Brady, in support of the passage of the Brady Bill.

To the William and Mary Endowment Association for its practical study of the recently completed Campaign for the Fourth Century. According to the Association, some 82 percent of the major donors were involved with the College prior to the start of the campaign, with an average involvement of 12 years. It speaks well to just why alumni programs are so critical to the future health of your alma mater.

George Will to be Commencement Keynote Speaker

George Will, a Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist known for his work in Newsweek, The Washington Post and on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," will be the keynote speaker at commencement exercises Sunday, May 15, at the College.

The College also will award honorary degrees to Bernard Bailyn, a Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and professor at Harvard University, and Rozanne L. Ridgway, former career diplomat and current co-chair of The Atlantic Council of The United States.

Will has been a syndicated columnist for The Washington Post since 1974, a contributing editor to Newsweek magazine since 1976, and a news analyst on ABC television since 1981. He won a Pulitzer Prize for commentary in 1977.

Among his books are Term Limits and the Recovery of Deliberate Democracy, Suddenly: The American Idea at Home and Abroad, Men at Work: The Craft of Baseball, The New Season: A Spectator's Guide to the 1988 Election, The Morning After: American Successes and Excesses 1981-1986, Suddenly: The American Idea Abroad and at Home 1986-1990 and Statecraft as Soulcraft: What Government Does.

Will studied at Trinity College in Hartford and Oxford and received a master's and doctoral degrees from Princeton University. In addition to delivering the keynote address, he will receive an honorary doctorate of humane letters.

George Will

Bailyn was educated at Williams College and holds master's and doctoral degrees from Harvard, in addition to numerous honorary degrees. He has taught at Harvard since 1949. Bailyn was editor in chief of the John Harvard Library from 1962 to 1970 and has been director of the Charles Warren Center for Studies in American History since 1983.

His books include The Ideological Origins of the American Revolution (which won both the Pulitzer and Bancroft prizes in 1968), The Origins of American Politics, The Peopling of British North America, The Press and the American Revolution and Voyagers to the West (which won the 1986 Pulitzer Prize in History). He will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters degree.

A foreign policy executive, Ridgway was president of the Atlantic Council of the United States from 1989 to 1992. She is now co-chair of the council, a non-profit public policy center that addresses the advancement of U.S. global interests among the Atlantic and Pacific communities.

Ridgway was a career diplomat with the U.S. Foreign Service from 1957 until 1989. During that time, her appointments included ambassador to Finland, ambassador to the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) and assistant secretary of state for Europe and Canada.

Her service has brought numerous awards, including two Presidential Distinguished Performance Awards, the Insignia of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Lion from Finland and the Knight Commander's Cross of the Order of Merit of the Federal Republic of Germany. She will receive an honorary doctor of public service degree.

Commencement will be held at 1 p.m. on May 15 in William and Mary Hall.

Alumni Name W&M Beneficiary of $1 Million Life Insurance Policy

By Kelley Daspit

Henry Shook '47 and Phyllis "Shu" Shook '48, two long-time friends of the College, have named William and Mary as the beneficiary of a $1 million life insurance policy to benefit the athletic department, library and business school.

"Shu and Henry Shook have been dedicated alumni and loyal friends of the College for many years," said President Timothy J. Sullivan '66. "Their generous gift will provide lasting support to future generations."

"We are happy that we could do this for our alma mater," said Mr. Shook. "We wanted to do something for the college that did so much for us."

Fifty percent of the eventual proceeds have been designated for the athletic department to support football and women's tennis. Two separate scholarship endowments will be established to provide financial aid to deserving students who excel in varsity football and varsity women's tennis.

Henry Shook came to William and Mary in 1942 on a varsity football scholarship and played for two and a half years before seriously injuring his knee. Although Shook could no longer play football, Coach Rube McCray assured him that his education would not be interrupted.

"The coach told me that I would graduate with a William and Mary degree in spite of my injury," explained Shook. "It meant a lot to me and this football scholarship is a way that I can show my gratitude."

The tennis scholarship was initiated by Mrs. Shook because of her love for the sport. Shook said she began playing tennis while at William and Mary and that it has remained an important part of her life ever since.

"Shu understands the needs of athletics and particularly recognizes the need for scholarships in tennis," said Millie West, director of special athletic projects. West said that Shook was a member of the William and Mary Athletic Educational Foundation

A $1 million commitment from Henry '47 and Phyllis Shook '48 will benefit athletics, the library and the business school at William and Mary.

(WMAEF) for many years and has also served on its board of trustees.

She has worked over the years to raise funds to endow scholarships, buy lights for the Anheuser-Busch Tennis Courts, fund a men's tennis coaching position and build the Mark H. McCormack Indoor Tennis Center, as a member of the Tennis Steering Committee.

"Shu's involvement with the committee was instrumental in accomplishing its goals," said West. "This tennis scholarship will afford William and Mary an opportunity to attract students who not only excel as students, but who are also gifted tennis players."

As a result of the increasing financial demands on the College, pressure to endow scholarships through private support is even greater, according to John Randolph '64, '68 M.Ed., athletic director. "The timing of this generous gift will have a positive impact on two of the College's showcase sports," said Randolph. "We are grateful to Henry and Shu, two of the most loyal members of the William and Mary athletic family."

The other half of the future proceeds will be divided equally between the Earl Gregg Swem Library and School of Business Administration.

"We are deeply grateful that the Shooks included the library in their gift," said Nancy Marshall, dean of university libraries. As state support diminishes, private support for the library is crucial not only for a strong library but for a strong university, she explained. "The Shooks understand that the library is central to the College's mission," Marshall said.

The library will use the income from the endowment for its most pressing needs. "We feel the library is such an important part of the College," said Mrs. Shook. "Henry still uses the library when he is here."

The School of Business Administration will use the proceeds to establish a faculty support endowment for faculty research, up-to-date classroom teaching technology, and faculty participation in academic conferences.

"This gift will allow us to continue to attract and retain top-notch faculty members who are dedicated to teaching and committed to providing high-quality educational programs at both the undergraduate and graduate levels," said Alfred Page, dean of the business school.

Previous gifts from the Shooks to the business school have included funding to assist in furnishing the Graduate School of Business located in the recently renovated Blow Memorial hall.

For many years, Henry and Shu Shook have supported the efforts of the business school, said Page. The School of Business Administration will dedicate and name a student conference room in George P. Blow Memorial Hall in honor of their generosity.

Shook is retired as president of Amy-Shu

Properties Inc., but is still an active general partner of this family-owned real estate sales, development and management company in Virginia Beach. Prior to that, he was a major stockholder and senior vice president of S.L. Nusbaum Realty Co., a real estate sales and management company in Norfolk. While there, he founded the shopping center division that has become one of the largest shopping center development and leasing firms in the southeast.

Shu Shook graduated in 1948 from William and Mary with a bachelor of science degree in home economics. She was a member of Alpha Chi Omega, YWCA, German Club, Spanish Club, Home Economics Club, Girls' Chorus, and the Singers and was a sorority intramural representative.

Mr. Shook was a member of the National Campaign Steering Committee for the Campaign for the Fourth Century, a member of the Order of the White Jacket and the Football Lettermen's Club.

Mrs. Shook was a member of the Tennis Steering Committee and co-chair of the reunion committee for the class of 1948. They have both served on the WMAEF Board of Trustees and are lifetime members of the President's Council.

The Shooks spend five months out of the year in Vero Beach, Fla., and the rest of the year at their home in Virginia Beach. They have two children. Amy Shook lives in Knoxville where she is pursuing her master's degree at the University of Tennessee. Mark Shook lives in Virginia Beach where he is president of the family business, Amy-Shu Properties Inc. He and his wife, Cindy, have two children.

After nearly three years of construction, the $12.5 million University Center, located at the east end of Zable Stadium, is open for business at William and Mary. The interior is designed to maximize space, with its contemporary architecture highlighted by a skylight and free-standing spiral staircase. The building opened in January.

Versatility Marks Career of Cabot Wade '74

By Jim Baker '51

The day after he graduated from the Peabody Demonstration High School in Nashville, Tenn., in 1966, Cabot Wade '74 found himself in Estes Park, Colo., signing up to tour the world with a musical group called "Sing Out '66."

For the next four years he traveled with the group (which became known as "Up With People"), singing and playing guitar in 12 countries on four continents (Europe, Asia, Africa, and North America). It was during that period he met and married a young singer with the group, Glenn Close '74, who later became the well-known stage and screen actress. (They were divorced four years later.)

Wade said in a recent interview that while growing up in Nashville he was interested in both music and sports. He broke his ankle in his senior year of high school, preventing him from playing basketball. With his leg in a cast, he turned his attention to music, becoming a guitarist.

It was a turning point in the young man's life. He has been deeply involved in music ever since.

Today Wade is the second name in the Smith-Wade Band, a four-man musical group that plays five nights a week at the Kingsmill Resort in the Williamsburg area and occasionally takes on gigs along the East Coast and in England.

Cabot Wade's middle name might well be "versatility." In addition to playing with the band, he is part owner of a combination movie house-restaurant called the New American Theatre in the Phoebus section of Hampton. At various times between musical stints, he has driven a taxi, served as a substitute teacher, sung table-to-table in restaurants and run a putt-putt golf course.

But he always returned to music. Today the Smith-Wade Band itself is the epitome of versatility. In recent months, the band has successfully entertained elementary school students at an assembly program with old rock songs from the '50s and '60s, senior citizens at Williamsburg Landing with folk songs, W&M undergraduates with contemporary classic rock (played extra loud), and a company group in Denver who wanted a combination of contemporary music, dance band tunes, and country music.

If pressed, Wade will describe the band's music as "rock with a country edge," but he says the band is really versatile enough to play "whatever the moment calls for," ranging from quiet ballads to high energy rock and roll. "We are not a one-trick pony," he said of the band. It is this versatility that has held the group together for so many years and made it so popular with a wide range of musical tastes.

A writer for the Daily Press of Newport News once characterized the group like this: "The band exudes an easy camaraderie, a spontaneous playfulness that allows this group of aging rockers to sing from their hearts and improvise witty repartee—the stuff of true entertainers."

The Smith-Wade Band is no stranger to the W&M campus. The group has played for faculty parties, Charter Day celebrations, and the King and Queen's Ball. For the past decade, the band has played every year except one at the annual Fourth of July ice cream social held on the front lawn of the Wren Building. The band also played at Busch Gardens at Homecoming this year, helping to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the founding of William and Mary.

Cabot Wade's friendship with Dick Smith—the Smith of the Smith-Wade Band—goes back to the days when the two young men toured the world with "Up With People," the folk-musical entertainment group that attracted thousands of young American performers with its upbeat, patriotic message. They remained friends after they returned to the United States, and in the early 1970s they sang and played together as a duo, working tables in restaurants. In 1973, people stood in line for an hour to get into the Ramada Inn to hear them sing and play.

Another turning point in Wade's life came in 1974 after he graduated from William and Mary with a degree in music. "I had to make a decision," he said. "Was I going out to face the real world and get a job, or should I continue with my music?"

He added: "I was divorced and had no kids. About that time I was contacted by an agent in Canada who was looking for a band to play club and hotel gigs in the western provinces."

Once again, Wade opted for music. He and long-time friend Dick Smith put together the first Smith-Wade Band. Wade played electric and acoustical guitar and keyboards, Smith played guitar and the harmonica, David Coppinger played base and the flute and Dale Wolcott was on drums.

The four packed up their instruments and headed north for what turned out to be a seven-month tour of western Canada.

"I thought they would want gentle, soft music, but it turned out they wanted heavy metal stuff," Wade recalls. He also recalls the violence.

Fights in bars and hotels were common.

Cabot Wade

One night the band members witnessed a man with his throat slit wandering in a hotel lobby in a daze. On another occasion, a bar customer who had been denied a beer because he was too drunk went to his car, got a shotgun, returned to the bar, and shot the bartender dead and wounded one other person.

"We were lucky to get out of there," Wade recalls.

The band returned home to find a changing musical scene in America. Country rock was giving way to the encroaching disco era. Wade had been doing a lot of song writing and he reached the point he felt he wanted to settle down. Meanwhile he met and fell in love with Bonnie Kirkwood, a teacher at Rawls Byrd School in Williamsburg. He and Bonnie were married in 1976. Today they have two boys, 15 and 11, and a girl, 5.

By 1978, Wade was feeling the responsibilities of his family and felt the time had come for him and the band to go different ways. In 1978, the original Smith-Wade Band split up. It was during the next two years, when Cabot and Bonnie began to raise a family, that Cabot took on the many odd jobs outside the field of music.

But by 1980 the magnet of music began to pull Wade back into its field. He and Dick Smith formed a partnership in 1980 and opened a recording studio called "Fresh Tracks," which they operated until 1986.

Meanwhile, he and Smith began performing as a duo. In 1982, they reassembled the Smith-Wade Band, featuring Wade and Smith plus John Shaffer on drums, and John Tracy, who plays the viola, violin, keyboards, mandolin, base and guitar. Tracy, like all members of the band, also sings. It is Tracy who draws loud applause from most all audiences when he plays "Orange Blossom Special" on the violin with ever-increasing speed.

For more than a decade the new Smith-Wade Band has been playing for area audiences with occasional out-of-state gigs.

Not long ago the band was invited to London by producer Dave Mackay to record a compact disc entitled "Too Hot For Radio." All of the songs on the recording were written by the group. The recording has received a lot of radio play in Virginia and England but so far has not been picked up by a distributor.

The Smith-Wade Band, meanwhile, continues to get solid bookings in this country. "We're kind of an oddity," Wade said. "We're not four musicians who played together and became friends. We're more like a group of friends who get together and play music."

Andrew Zawacki Named Rhodes Scholar

By Peggy Shaw

After being told that he had been chosen for a Rhodes Scholarship, William and Mary senior Andrew Zawacki felt relieved that the intensive competition was over. But attention from members of the media, and others, was just beginning.

A friend from Notre Dame called to tell Zawacki that his name was in The New York Times. Zawacki's telephone voice-mail quickly filled up with messages from friends, family and newspaper reporters on deadline. And former U.S. Poet Laureate Mark Strand, with whom Zawacki studied last summer, sent the young scholar a signed copy of rare early poems by Strand that Zawacki had been wanting for his collection.

"President Clinton could call and I wouldn't think it was as big a deal as this," said Zawacki, gingerly handling the Strand packet.

Zawacki is the second student in William and Mary's history to win one of the prestigious scholarships to study at Oxford University in England. He and 31 others were selected for the honor from a field of 1,200 applicants on qualifications that include academic excellence, integrity, leadership ability and athletic prowess.

The scholarship will provide Zawacki with tuition, room and board at Oxford for two years. He will use the academic plum to pursue a master's degree in the field of English literature from 1880 to 1980, concentrating on T.S. Eliot and the relationship between poetry and prayer.

"I hope to look at how 20th-century British and American poets have played with the idea that poetry can be a form of prayer," he explained. "Eliot calls it more than an order of words."

Zawacki, a Catholic, said he did some prayerful preparation for the three intensive interviews he underwent for the Rhodes Scholarship, but other than that, he concentrated on being himself.

"A lot of students try to impress people," he said. "The best thing is to be honest. Be yourself, try to be articulate, intelligent and polite. I psyched myself up for it but I told myself, 'Basically this is about a life's worth of learning and if you don't know the answers, tell them.'"

Some of his good fortune can be attributed to chance, Zawacki said. "All of the (competing) students are intelligent, have good grades and paperwork in top-flight order," he explained. "I really think it comes down to those 30-minute grilling sessions. Fortunately, I didn't stumble a whole lot."

Zawacki rarely stumbles. His freshman year, he was inducted into Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta freshman national honor societies, and later was invited to join the Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board national honor societies, which recognize outstanding scholarship, character, leadership and service. A member of the William and Mary varsity track and field team his first two years, Zawacki was also named a Colonial Scholar Athlete.

He won a James Monroe Scholarship for the years 1990-1994, for which he traveled to London to write an unpublished book of poetry and prose pieces, and in 1992 was awarded a Wilson Scholarship, for which he completed the research project: "The Influence of Malcolm X on America, 1965 to the Present."

Along with winning an impressive array of literary awards, including runner-up in the 1992 Academy of America Poetry Prize competition, Zawacki has also been active in a lengthy list of campus organizations: The Gentlemen of the College singing group, the service-oriented Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and The William and Mary Review, to name a few.

Zawacki, who considers himself "an athlete as much as anything," said he would have continued with sports, as well, if his interest in writing had not begun to consume so much time and energy.

"I'm a true believer that if you're meant to write, you can't stop," Zawacki explained. "So I couldn't justify being out on the track three hours a day, five days a week."

Rhodes Scholar Andrew Zawacki '94

Apparently, it was time well spent. "He's an extraordinarily bright young man," Terry Meyers, associate professor of English, told a reporter just days after the announcement. "He showed me a level of sophistication that made him stand out right away."

During the two years at Oxford, Zawacki said he plans to spend much of his time writing. He also intends to take advantage of lectures at the university that are outside his field. "All the lectures are open to everyone," Zawacki said. "Oxford is there for the taking and I won't limit myself to my own course of study."

The Oxford term begins Oct. 9, 1994, after a going-away party for Rhodes Scholars in New York City. When Zawacki completes his course of study, his degree will be a master's of philosophy in English.

After that, he's considering going on to Harvard for a doctorate. Teaching is a possibility for the future, as is writing professionally. But for now, the senior is just relieved that the exhaustive application process and suspense surrounding the Rhodes Scholarships have ended—and that he doesn't have to begin applying to graduate schools again.

Bright Spots in a Dismal Tribe Season

By Bob Jeffrey '74

A bright spot in an otherwise dismal basketball season has been the unexpected development of the team's big men. William and Mary fans could be pardoned for wondering whether they were watching the same Steve Papura, David Cully and Carl Parker that stumbled or sat the bench the previous year.

What was supposed to be one of the Tribe's weaknesses has been turned into a potential source of strength for the future.

Assistant coach Tony Traver '85, who has been working intensively with the Tribe's inside players, admitted surprise at the rapid development of the trio. "I am pleased that they grasped the concepts so quickly, but they've worked hard and sincerely made an effort," he said.

None of the three started out with all the physical gifts. "They were all very raw. Cully was long; Parker had great athletic ability; and skill-wise both of them were ahead of Papura," said Traver.

Now Papura and Parker are among the CAA leaders in field goal shooting percentage and Cully is leading the conference in rebounding and blocked shots. If Cully holds on to win both statistical crowns, he will be the first player to do so since Navy's David Robinson.

Of the three Papura's emergence has been the most striking. The last two seasons he looked confused and often didn't appear to know where he was on the court. After two and a half years of dormancy, Papura suddenly broke into the limelight in a big way, scoring 13 points and picking up 10 rebounds against Virginia Tech. He showed solid postup moves and a hard-to-defend jump hook. Where did it come from?

"Steve recommitted to basketball this season. He adjusted his attitude, really worked out in the weight room and started doing a lot of running," said Traver.

Papura also improved in the mental aspects of the game. "He really listens to what the coaches were trying to teach, and with increased opportunities on the court, he's gained a lot of confidence," Traver said.

"We took what he does well and tied to put him in the position to be successful. Instead of trying to front his man on defense, we've told him to bump the man across the lane, using his size and strength. Offensively, Steve was posting up too far under the hoop. Once he found the block, his offense fell into place," said Traver.

That confidence translated into eight double figure performances in the last 10 games, including dynamic outings against James Madison (23 points, eight rebounds) and Richmond (18 points, 10 rebounds).

"With his big body (6' 9," 260 lbs), Steve fills an important role for us. He can play in the post and hold his own, even with guys like Odell Hodge (of ODU). He feels like he can go straight up against anybody," Traver said.

As impressive as Papura's story has been,

David Cully

Cully may be even better. The slender (6' 8 1/2," 215 lbs) sophomore played only sparingly last season and was counted on for a major contribution at power forward. He has exceeded all expectations.

"With his long arms, David is very effective as a shot blocker. If he plays behind his man to have a chance to alter a shot, he'll always have inside position to go after the rebound," said Traver.

Cully has learned his lessons well, averaging over 9 rebounds per game. He has blocked 56 shots and altered many more.

Parker, a 6' 6," 210 lb. sophomore, has always been fun to watch. An explosive leaper, he specializes in monster slam dunks. The problem was that he often got lost on the court between his flashes of brilliance.

"Carl is still an infant on the court," Traver said. "He's only in his fourth year of organized basketball, so he's still learning a lot of the basics. Athletically, he is extremely gifted, and at times, he can be dominant," said Traver.

Parker has averaged nearly 10 points and six rebounds a contest, including an 18 point effort (on eight of 10 shots) against George Mason. In conference games he's making 63% of his field goal attempts.

"Carl was a one-dimensional player last year. He could only score on a dunk or a putback. Now he can drive into the lane, shoot the short jump shot. I expect to see him moving out, becoming effective to 15 feet," Traver said.

Despite the team's 4-22 mark, Traver sees plenty of hope. "When people looked at us on paper this year they could see there would be inconsistency because we had a lot of new faces. But there have been some bright moments—the great game with James Madison, the upset at UNC-Wilmington—when they have shown the right chemistry. It's been a learning experience for them, a time to stick together through adversity. No one likes to lose, but they will be stronger and better. There are brighter days ahead," Traver said.

Women's Basketball: Rising Like the Phoenix

By Bob Jeffrey '74

Like the fabled Phoenix, William and Mary's women's basketball program has risen from the ashes in the last three years. In 1990-91 a decision was made to discontinue women's basketball at the College for financial reasons. Only the threat of a lawsuit based on Title IX kept the sport alive, if just barely.

It was hardly a propitious moment for a new coach to take over. For Trina Thomas, a 1987 Virginia graduate, it was a leap of faith that paid off. "I prayed a lot and looked for four-leaf clovers," she joked.

Now the team is flying high, enjoying the best season in the history of the sport at W&M. The Tribe women are 17-6, surpassing the previous best win total of 16 compiled in 1978-79 and 1980-81. They are challenging the domination of Old Dominion in the CAA and threatening to become the first Tribe basketball team, men or women, to qualify for the NCAA tournament.

"We did it with the players that were here and with those we developed. They've been improving constantly. The most amazing part is that our three senior co-captains—Ashleigh Akens, Marilyn Gayton and Angel Stanton—were here during the cut. Their introduction to college basketball started out as a nightmare. They've taken the program under their wing and provided superior leadership," Thomas said.

The road to success has not been smooth. In Thomas's inaugural season the Tribe went 7-20. Last year they improved to 11-17, but were competitive. "The games we lost were by an average of one and a half points each, so we could've had a lot better record," she said.

Last year's squad peaked at the right time, advancing to the finals of the CAA tourney after finishing seventh in the regular season. "That gave us the shot of confidence that we needed and it came with perfect timing," said Thomas.

Thomas's own timing has been equally accurate. A star forward on two ACC champion teams at Virginia, she devised a three-year plan for turning the Tribe program around. "This was the year I had projected that we would win at least 70 per cent of our games. We set specific goals and tried to meet them. We've installed a transition game, with the idea of scoring 70 points a game without letting down on defense," she said.

Her charges have mastered the plan, averaging over 70 a game while holding their opponents to a stingy 37% field goal shooting. Three times the Tribe scored over 90, and in the season opener against Harvard, they racked up a school-record 100 points.

"We have so many weapons now," Thomas said. Akens, Gayton and sophomore three-point specialist Yolanda Settles have each been named CAA player of the week, the only school with that many different individuals honored.

Ashleigh Akens is the cornerstone of the diverse attack. The 6' senior is the leading scorer (15.6 a game), rebounder (10.3), and a legitimate candidate for CAA player of the year. "Ash is a multi-dimensional player. She has so many moves in the paint, and she's also effective 12-15 feet out," said Thomas.

The first Tribe player to be named first-team all-CAA last year, Akens is a shoo-in for similar honors after this season.

Teaming up with Akens inside is fellow senior tri-captain Marilyn Gayton. The 5'11" senior is second to Akens in scoring and rebounding, and is known for her acrobatic moves on the court. "Marilyn is our Michael Jordan. She's highlight film material," Thomas said.

During the first month of the season Gayton led the country in field goal percentage, hitting on an incredible 75% of her shots. She has since "cooled" to about 50%.

Angel Stanton, the other senior tri-captain doesn't have as many gaudy statistics, but she is just as important to the team. According to Thomas, "Angel is a great leader. She's our anchor, keeping all the players in order."

Stanton is second on the team in assists and three-pointers, and chips in seven points a game.

Sophomore sharpshooter Yolanda Settles set a school record with 56 three-pointers as a freshman. She's already topped that mark this season and thrives on W&M inside-outside offense.

Another outstanding contributor has been junior guard Aquendine Khasidis. An all-CAA tourney selection last season after a record-tying 32-point barrage against American, the 5'5" guard provides explosive scoring and tenacious defense. She is among the CAA leaders in steals with 2.6 a game. Khasidis also displays her quickness on the W&M track team.

W&M Ranked 17th in Director's Cup

William and Mary is ranked No. 17 in the USA Today/National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics all-sports competition: the Director's Cup.

Standings are based on total points, 64 for first place through one point for 64th place, in nine major Division 1 fall sports (five men's, four women's) plus one wild card sport. The academic-year competition releases standings after the fall, winter and spring seasons, with a 1993-94 champion named in June. Included in the fall competition are the following sports: men's football (Division I-A and I-AA), cross country, soccer, water polo and women's volleyball, soccer, field hockey and cross country.

The Tribe's No. 17 ranking was boosted by the performance of three of its teams: football and men's and women's soccer. All three teams advanced to their respective NCAA Championships, dropping first-round decisions. The football team boasted a 9-3 record and a No. 10 national ranking in Division I-AA. Men's soccer (12-5-3) boasted "top-10" rankings for five straight weeks and "top-25" for 10 weeks. Women's soccer finished with a 12-5-1 record, co-CAA championship honors and a No. 6 national ranking.

Society Announces Alumni Service Award

A new service award to recognize alumni volunteers whose record of involvement and leadership has been exemplary has been established by the Society of the Alumni of the College of William and Mary.

Created by the Society's board of directors, up to seven Alumni Service Awards will be presented annually to individuals who have distinguished records in support of alumni chapters, school alumni associations, constituent organizations and the Alumni Society itself. The board incorporated the award as part of its overall effort to recognize alumni volunteers whose dedication and leadership have been distinguished and has strengthened their organizations and perpetuated their effectiveness.

"Although this award will be provided by the Alumni Society, it will be presented by both the Society and the organization that successfully nominates the candidate," said W. Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society. "The board will review all nominations at its fall meeting and, once selections are made, will leave the venue for presenting the award to the organization sponsoring the candidate. This award is not a prerequisite to any other award, but is simply a way of acknowledging the remarkable commitment of many alumni volunteers in support of their alma mater," he added.

The Society is accepting nominations through July 1 for consideration by the board during its fall meeting. Individuals and organizations can nominate alumni for the award by completing the nomination form available from the Alumni Society. To obtain a form, or additional information about this award, call the Society of the Alumni, 804/221-1842.

The Bay is Back at Alumni College

While the Chesapeake Bay serves as a practical resource for the livelihood of local fishermen and shipyards, its historic waters also evoke romantic images of exploration and myth, lighthouses and quiet, coastal villages.

Learn more about the history and legend surrounding the bay in this year's Alumni College, "Exploring the Chesapeake Bay II," to be held June 23rd-26th. The program will feature some of the popular elements of 1989's award-winning Alumni College on the Chesapeake, and will chart new educational waters in the areas of science, history and literature. Distinguished members of the faculty of William and Mary and the Virginia Institute of Marine Science will share their expertise throughout the four-day program sponsored by the Society of the Alumni.

Alumni, family and friends are invited to return to campus for this exciting venture into one of the country's treasured national resources. Participants can explore the bay's inlets and coastal waterways in a personal guided boat tour and lecture, enjoy a seafood fest in a get-acquainted dinner at the Alumni House and tour the Mariners' Museum in Newport News and the Watermen's Museum in Yorktown. In addition, lecturers will offer a comprehensive view of the bay's historical and geological evolution, and examine the legal and scientific efforts to preserve the shoreline.

During your stay, you can relive College memories with lodging on campus in Jefferson Hall, or choose off-campus accommodations, if you wish, at the Williamsburg Hospitality House.

The Alumni College children's program will be available for those who wish to share their learning vacation with family members. Children enjoy educational and recreational activities and are supervised by adults throughout the program.

Enrollment for Alumni College is limited to 80 participants, and will be accepted on a first come-first served basis. Deadline for registration is May 6, so register early.

Cost is $420 per person, single occupancy, $395, double; includes all meals, lodging on campus in Jefferson Hall (recently renovated and air conditioned), tuition, fees and activities. For those who wish off-campus lodging, the cost is $335. Cost for children staying on-campus with their parents is $300 double, $330 single occupancy. Off-campus children's rate is $230.

CLASS NOTES

27 Class of '27 and Prior Years
Society of the Alumni
P.O. Box 2100
Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100

C. Alton Lindsay '25, the long-time superintendent of the Hampton, Va., city schools who retired in 1968, was recently profiled in the Newport News Daily Press. Recalling his rural childhood, Lindsay said, "I don't think there were 25 automobiles in all of Gloucester County." His high school had outdoor privies and wood stoves, and graduated 14 seniors in 1921—11 girls and three boys. Lindsay recalled that fewer social ills plagued America in his youth, but there were other problems. He had eye surgery a few years ago, which was unheard of when he was young. "You just went blind. Wasn't nothing they could do for you."

Lindsay became a teacher even before he graduated from W&M. He was later principal of Hampton's Armstrong School for 15 years and then school superintendent for 26 years, where he was known as a fiscal conservative who never took vacations. Shortly before his retirement he supervised the desegregation of the city schools. Still living in Hampton, Lindsay is in remission following cancer surgery. His biography has recently been written by Louise Todd of Hampton; she hopes it will be available to the public by his 90th birthday, June 3, 1994.

Carl Andrews '27, who has been a Class Reporter for more than 15 years, has decided to retire. Would you like to take over the reins? As a reporter, you will submit a column three times each year. The Society will send you news about your classmates (and the other classes prior to '28) whenever any is available. Past reporters feel that their job provided an excellent opportunity to stay in touch with old friends and meet new ones. If you would like to serve your alma mater in this way, contact Lisa Riess, Director of Alumni Communications, P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100; telephone 804/221-1167. We will help you get started!

Randolph Hardy McLachlan's daughter, Caroline, who attended W&M from 1958-60, has just published a delightful book, On the River ABC, for children 4 to 8 years old. It is beautifully illustrated by Anna Crum. Caroline had previously published By the Light of the Halloween Moon. Ranny lives near her daughter, who has two children, in Littleton, Colo.

Bartlett Roper Burgwyn of Jackson, N.C., wrote that he has retired but is busy taking care of his yard with 400 azaleas. He expects to come to Olde Guard Day.

Clarice Cook Gayle and her husband, Lester, were featured in an article in our newspaper recently. They live at the ocean-front in Virginia Beach. Clarice and her first husband lived in Rye, N.Y., for many years until her husband retired, when they moved to Princeton, N.J. After he died she moved back to Norfolk and married Lester. Clarice has three children and five grandchildren. She keeps busy, plays bridge, attends lectures at the Chrysler Museum and is active in beach affairs.

I asked Caroline deWitt Woodley to give me some news about herself and her family. Here is what she says:

"William Woodley and I moved from Norfolk in 1948 to 'Beechwood' in Southampton County. He had been offered an opportunity by his cousin, Colgate W. Darden Jr., to be manager of the farm. He had graduated from N.C. State in engineering and never been on a tractor — but after a year of observation and raising a large, very successful garden, he learned all about raising peanuts, corn, soy beans and pigs. I had sworn never to marry a farmer, but decided we would (together) make a success of this and farmer Bill did!

"In 1990, we retired from the farm and moved to Franklin to a retirement home, which we both have enjoyed very much (no more coal to bring in for the red-bellied laundry heater in the kitchen, no oil to take upstairs to the circulating heaters in the two bedrooms, no heavy logs to carry in for the large fireplace in the dining room).

"I was born in 1910 at 'Wittengand,' later known as 'de Witt Cottage.' My father bought the house in 1909. It was the first brick house built at Virginia Beach and now the last cottage of that vintage still standing. He and my mother moved from Norfolk with their seven children — five girls and two boys. I was eighth, Paul ninth, and Peter, 10th.

"Recently the house has been made a Virginia landmark as well as a national landmark. The Back Bay Wildfowl Guild will soon occupy the house as a museum for artists and educational activities relating to wildlife art and artifacts.

"W&M has meant a lot to my family over the years. Katrine enrolled in 1921, was there two years and received a teacher's certificate. She returned to the College in 1929 and got her degree the next year.

"Cornelius entered W&M in 1925 and stayed two years, then entered West Point, but became ill and returned home before the end of the term.

"Paul was a summer student at W&M in 1931, then went to VMI. His son, Paul Jr., spent one year at W&M, 1966-67, then transferred to the University of North Carolina. Peter's son, Webb, went 4 years and graduated in 1970.

"One of the best things that happened to my family while at W&M was having Dr. and Mrs. Earl Swem as some of our best friends. They knew my mother and Katrine and then took each one of us under their wing as we came to their College. Earl Jr. and Cornelius were staunch friends and both belonged to Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Katrine still keeps up with Earl's son, Gregg, and has sent several things to the Swem Library in memory of Dr. and Mrs. Swem."

Caroline writes that W&M has meant a great deal to her family. Five members of her family are living: Peter, Paul, Katrine, Heidi and Caroline, all at Virginia Beach except Caroline!

I hope to see some of you at Olde Guard Day, April 12. Ellen Ticer King and I plan to attend. Ellen will write the next column for the Alumni Gazette. Please give her some news.

33 Dorothy Mathews Lamons
Brandon Oaks, Apt. 252
3804 Brandon Ave., S.W.
Roanoke, VA 24018

Many thanks to those of you who returned the postcards I sent to a third of our class. I'll send cards to the others during the remainder of the year. But, all of you, please keep me up-to-date on your news; it doesn't have to be momentous.

Mary Dibrell Raleigh Amole writes that she has moved to Chambrel retirement center in Williamsburg and hopes any of you who live in Williamsburg or who visit will get in touch with her. She has two children, seven grandchildren and two greats. Four of them are W&M graduates.

Speaking of retirement centers, I have recently moved to one in Roanoke. I envy Mary living in Williamsburg, as I'm a Tidewater native and was married to a Naval officer for 32 years. However, I have a beautiful view of the mountains from my apartment, my older son and his wife live nearby, and I am making new friends. If you're in the area, give me a call.

Dr. Carlton Casey reports that he was honored to be our class representative at the Tercentenary Charter Day ceremonies in February 1993. He writes that the alumni group was first in the procession and was seated immediately in front of Prince Charles and the other dignitaries. The experience must have been quite a thrill to all of you who were there. Thank you, Carlton, for representing us.

Kitty Cubberly Beamon of Norfolk was at the Charter Day ceremony and said it was a beautiful affair. She spent the New Year in Florida with her doctor son and his family. Kitty has a granddaughter, who is a junior at W&M, four grandchildren and two great-grands altogether. She hopes that many of us will come to this year's Olde Guard Day.

Lawrence Emley lives in Chestertown, Md., on the Eastern Shore, where he used to spend a lot of time sailing on the Chesapeake Bay. Formerly he lived in Pennsylvania, where one of his activities was riding to hounds with the Pickering Hunt in Chester County. He retired from business in 1974 after serving 26 years as president of the Kiwi Polish Co.

Our classmates live all over the country. Virginia Laizure Campbell enjoys the golf in California but says they may move East, as that is where the children and grandchildren are. One of their sons is a retired Marine Corps colonel and two grandsons are Marine Corps lieutenants. Their other son is in graduate school with plans to live in New York City. They have a daughter who is a paralegal and another daughter whose husband is with Merrill Lynch on Wall Street. Virginia sends a greeting to all her Theta sisters.

Frances Gale Dalton of Belton, Texas, spent Thanksgiving with her daughter Sylvia McGehearty and family in Dallas, and Christmas with her son Warren and his family in The Woodlands, near Houston. Her son Conrad is a Navy doctor stationed in Washington, D.C. She has two granddaughters and nine grandsons.

Emily Sparks (Sparky) Dow and her husband, Wallace, live on a farm at Monkton, Md., and have horses and other animals. They enjoy reading, partying and seeing movies. Last spring they visited Panama and went through the Canal and on to Costa Rica. In June Emily entered the National Senior Olympics in Baton Rouge, La., and won a medal in tennis and a fifth place in the running long jump! In October she won four gold and two silver medals at the Maryland State Senior Olympics. Can anybody top all that!

Even if we don't accomplish as much as Emily and some of the others, Frederick Brodey of Chestnut Hill, Mass., makes us feel that's all right too. Here is what he writes: "My footprints, a life of no world-shaking events, just brotherly love and affection to family and mankind. Again, my footprints are 'the same recalcitrant wife for 49 years, participating in enjoyment of seven healthy grandchildren.' C'est la vie."

Well, we had a glorious Tercentenary Homecoming, and the Class of 1937 had a star in Anne Reynolds Wood, president of the Olde Guard. Anne presided expertly at the Olde Guard luncheon in the Virginia Room of the Williamsburg Lodge. This has proved to be a satisfactory place for this occasion. The William and Mary Choir, under the direction of Professor Frank Lendrim, again performed. They were presented with a monetary gift from the Olde Guard.

Just before the reception and luncheon, Anne had attended the dedication of the statue of James Blair, which now stands between James Blair and Tyler halls. Throughout the day and evening, various classes held receptions in their hospitality suites, including the Class of 1937 at the Heritage Inn. The day was climaxed by the Tercentenary Ball.

Friday offered a wide variety of activities. Late in the afternoon I attended the Sunset Ceremony (no sun but a good attendance) which took place behind the Wren Building. Six from our class were memorialized: Roy Carol, Charles Kirtner Johnson, Samuel Warne Robinson, William Aubrey Skillman, Emery Emil Smola and John Melville Willis.

Our hardworking president of the Olde Guard rose early on Saturday to attend the dedication of the Lord Botetourt statue at 8:30 that morning. The statue, a duplicate of the famous original, again stands in front of the Wren Building. For protection, the original continues to regard the portraits of former William and Mary luminaries at Swem Library.

We have had a report from Kitty Vaden Sparrow, who lives at 1308 Valley View Road, Martinsville, VA 24112. She writes that on Sept. 4 she and her husband celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at their home with a party for 56 family members and friends. They have two children, Pamela McCauley of Charlottesville and Dr. Charles K. Sparrow '79 of Richmond, and two granddaughters.

In February Anne Reynolds Wood and a high-school friend took a trip to Hawaii, visiting four of the islands.

A lively letter from Alice Allen Kline arrived too late to meet the last deadline, but the highlights merit inclusion here. Alice was in Tampa, Fla., at the time of the blizzard in March last year, heading for Hawaii with a friend. Because of the stormy weather, takeoff even at the Tampa airport was suspenseful, but they eventually enjoyed a pleasant cruise of the islands. Other events in Alice's year were the graduation of a granddaughter from the University of Wyoming with a degree in wildlife management, the June wedding of another granddaughter, followed by a July wedding of the Wyoming graduate. "It has taken me forever to play catch-up from all that activity. I refuse to consider that I could be aging — not in my vocabulary.... The plans on the horizon are Georgia and Florida in winter and next winter in New Zealand. I have not run out of places to see, so I must keep going."

39 Frances L. Grodecoeur
810 Howard St.
Monongahela, PA 15063

Fran Grodecoeur asked me to report to you on our big Tercentenary Homecoming last October, as she wasn't able to be there. It was an absolute smash of an affair, starting a day earlier than usual, crowded with special events and attended by 10 times the usual number of alums and friends. The details of the events have been covered elsewhere, but I must mention one thing that meant a lot to the '39ers. Lord Botetourt is back in front of the Wren Building! Replacing the original marble statue with a bronze replica was your committee's first proposal for our 50th reunion gift, but we were turned down. It was with great satisfaction, therefore, that Frank and

I attended the dedication of a handsome new statue, sculpted by Gordon Kray '73, and made possible by "friends of the College" as part of a special Tercentenary art project. The Old Campus again looks complete! (I have to tell you that, as I toured the school several years ago with a granddaughter applicant, the student guide explained that W&M now has a New Campus, an Old Campus and an Ancient Campus!)

We '39ers stayed together, as always at the Woodlands (translation: "Motor House") with our busy hospitality suite in the corner of our section. Attending and looking great were: May Carruth Berry and Cornell Berry, Helene Stein Vogt '38 and Ed Vogt, Fran Davis Metheny and Bud Metheny '40, Ray Dudley and Jackie Dudley, Lucille Eldridge Harkless, Bill Wood, John Winston and Peggy Duval Winston '41, Tom Helfrich and Leah Helfrich, Helen Bennett Clark and David Clark, Dot Spence Druckemiller, Gwen Evans Wood and Bill Wood, Martin Gracey and Marian Hinman Gracey '37, Alma Van Blarcom Walker and Lorimer Walker, Don Stetson, Dick Crane and Adele Crane, Lee Shimberg and Esther Shimberg, Betsy Popof, Hanne Sweetnam, Bob Fricke and Frances Fricke, Bill Altenburg and Claire Collins, Peggy Layman Smeltzer and Charles Smeltzer '36, Carlton Stublen, Dede Allen Bunch, Maurine Stuart Dulin and Bill Dulin, Ned Ferguson and Helen Ferguson, Tina Jordan Gravely and her daughter Kelly, Mavis Henry '43, Jean Sheridan Kinnamon, Barbara Heimerl, Brad Pulley and Louise Pulley, Bert Capps Sheeran and Bob Sheeran, Peggy Prickett Miller and Frank Miller.

I also caught a glimpse of Maxey Davis, though he didn't stay. I'm sure there were others, but these were the people who registered with us.

We held our class dinner at the Cascades on Friday evening, where we were entertained by the Gentlemen of the College, a group of student singers. On Saturday we hosted our usual lavish after-the-game cocktail buffet — a time when many friends from other classes drop by to say "hi." The hospitality suite was open and jumping throughout the long weekend, and we all parted on Sunday feeling our annual renewal of friendship and nostalgia for the happy days when we greeted Lord Botetourt as our feet trod the bricks of the Ancient Campus.

Olde Guard Day will be on April 13 with luncheon in the new University Center. Please plan to join us. Although five-year Olde Guard reunions are normally celebrated at that time, your committee has decided to hold our 55th reunion celebration at Homecoming the weekend of Nov. 3, using the same schedule of events we have found so successful during the past 35 years. Please make a special effort to be in Williamsburg at that time.

A sad note: my husband, Frank Miller, died on Dec. 17 at our home in Annandale, Va. Although he had been in failing health for several years, he never lost his love for William and Mary and his pleasure in being an adopted '39er. — Peggy Prickett Miller

41 Margaret Mollenkopf

I send each of you best wishes for a happy and healthy New Year, with the reminder that this column is by you and for you. Keep the notes and cards coming, please.

Homecoming seems a long time ago and the December issue of the Alumni Gazette gave you an opportunity to read about all the activities. However, since this is the first opportunity for a Class of '41 report, I will first say that it was a truly wonderful weekend. The Olde Guard luncheon, where our Griffin Callahan gave the invocation, the Class of '40 and '41 cocktail parties at the Wetters and the Youngs, and dinner at the Hospitality House for the two classes were lively and each was a fine time to catch up with old friends. At the risk of inadvertently leaving someone out, the following from our class were recorded or seen at various functions (any oversight is unintentional): Lillian Douglas Andrew and Wallace; Fred Arend and Marilyn; Sid Brooks and Carolyn; Griff Callahan and Libby; Kay Hoover Dew; Daphne McGavack Durant and Lloyd; Bill Edwards; Eugene Ellis and Shirley; Aura Schroeder Emery; Elizabeth Davis Hartman; Robert Hazen; Robert Hornsby and Lois; Ella Dickenson Hurt; Herb Kelly and Beverly; Arthur Kneip and Carolyn; Connie Stratton McGrath; Shirley Matthews, Waldo's widow; Margaret Mitchell Mollenkopf; Mary Moncure; Irma Luxton Nelson; Jean Cox Phillips; John Prince and Charlotte; Harriet McCarthy Purtil and Jack '40; Jean McEldowney Respass; Austin Roberts and Barbara; Mary Zarbock Stover; Ruth Rapp Thayer and Bob; Dorothy Whitfield; Bailey Wilkinson; Elizabeth Wyatt; and Herb Young and Jane. Those that were absent were missed!

Austin Roberts writes that Bailey reported that

LAW PROFESSOR WINS AWARD

An associate professor at William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe School of Law has been awarded the Virginia Women Attorneys Association Foundation Distinguished Faculty Award. Margaret Poles Spencer, whose recent scholarship focuses on alternatives to prosecution for women engaged in prenatal drug abuse, was recognized for her "significant achievements regarding legal issues of particular interest to families and women in the legal profession." Another William and Mary law professor, Susan Grover, won the same award in 1991.

Houston Ashworth had suffered a stroke last spring but was improving. Hookie's daughter Joanne Ashworth '84, who is a member of the Alumni Society's Board of Directors, recently presented him with a grandchild, which has done much to improve his morale.

Marjorie Gildner Abele writes that for the last few years her life has been busy, though she does admit to slowing down a bit. For 10 years Peg ran the Annisquam, Mass., Exchange during the summer months. She is active in her local independent, interdenominational church and has served as chairman of the church's Standing Committee. Peg's little house in Yucca Valley, Calif., survived last year's earthquake. However, a week before her grandson's wedding in Tucson, Ariz., an aftershock dislodged plumbing in the bathroom. Her daughter also lives in Arizona, so she gets out to see her western family about twice a year. Her husband, Yankee that he is, dislikes the heat, so they do not spend much time there.

Margaret Peck Latham was sorry to miss Homecoming but previous plans for the weekend interfered. She did attend last February's Charter Day activities and was enthusiastic about hearing Prince Charles as well as being able to take part in the other events. The Lathams celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in August with all of their family present. Peggy continues her poetry writing and meets monthly with a poetry group.

Ella Hurt called over the holidays to say she has had hip surgery and finds using a walker a real nuisance! At last report she was thinking of moving from Williamsburg to Richmond where she would be closer to her daughter.

A welcome letter from Nancy McCall Keim tells of their move from Syosset, N.Y., to Marietta, Ohio, where she will be closer to their sons, as Bill is ailing and in a nearby nursing home. Selling their Long Island home, buying a condo, packing and moving were monumental tasks but it all was accomplished. She is finding living on the banks of the Ohio river in historic Marietta, a college town, different from Syosset but very interesting. An article in the Cincinnati Enquirer on Dec. 19, 1993, told of 3,000 members of craft organizations around the nation having been invited to submit ornaments with the theme of angels for a White House Christmas tree. The ornaments were to hang on an 18-foot Fraser fir, which was placed in the Blue Room. One of the artists listed was Charles Stousland. Congratulations, Mike.

Although Bob Hazen, our class agent, attended W&M for only one year, he is, nevertheless, an enthusiastic member of our class. After graduating from Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., he spent 43 years in the savings and loan business, serving as president of his firm for 20 years, and using such celebrities as Pat Boone, Burl Ives, Carol Channing and Jack Benny to promote savings. He helped raise funds for and became president of the Portland, Ore., Chamber of Commerce, Rose Festival, United Way, Kiwanis and other civic organizations. He and his wife, Roberta, have been married 25 years and between them have four children and seven grandchildren scattered from Seattle to New Zealand. They leave their Oregon home for the winter, spending six months in the sun and warmth of Palm Desert, Calif.

Bob cut his teeth as our class agent serving as the '41 agent for Whitman College, where he persuaded all but one holdout to contribute. His goal for us this year is 80 percent. Can we fool him and give him the 100 percent he and the College so richly deserve?

If you have not yet sent in your contribution to the Annual Fund, Bob and I hope you will do so soon. David Forer's book mark is elegant — I am having mine framed. Bob has done and continues to do a magnificent job as our class agent and he, the College and the class need your support. LET'S DO MORE IN '94.

Greetings from the Gentle City. Our wondrous 50th reunion in May continued on into October with many events during the Tercentenary Homecoming celebration. Parade, Luncheon-on-the-Lawn in the Sunken Garden, the game without rain, our first Olde Guard Luncheon, the Tercentenary Ball, and the night at Busch Gardens with the fantastic fireworks soaring heavenward against the backdrop of Italy — especially nostalgic for Joe and me, daughter Linda '71 and grandson, Kyle McCall. What a beautiful happy ending to a gargantuan set of tasks done by the hard-working Society of the Alumni. Barry Adams and his busy bunch of elves are to be commended. We are a part of the distinguished history of our beloved College recorded in and with the stars. Thank you one and all.

ALUMNI OFFER CAREER ADVICE TO STUDENTS

Alumni from across the country came back to campus to share with students their insights on the job market at the annual Career Exploration Day program held Jan. 29. Alumni panelists from more than 20 career fields offered advice and shared their professional experiences at the event, sponsored by the Society of the Alumni and the Office of Career Services. Pictured speaking with William and Mary students are alumni panelists in the advertising/public relations field: Jon A. Hartman '87, account executive with Chiat/Day Advertising in New York; Rene A. Henry '54, executive director of university relations for Texas A&M University; and Beth Comstock, '82, vice president of news information/media relations for NBC News, New York.

With feet on the ground we go back in time to the banquet in May and continue thoughts of classmates. Bob Faulconer thought it the fulfillment of a W&M education; Edgar Pointer established relationships with classmates in ways he had not known in college. Helen Black Truesdell, Anna Zepht Stone and Jackie Fowlkes Herod thought he had aged well and were blessed to make it to the 50th. George Blandford, Jane Craig Beaver, DeWitt K. Searles, Sis Jerry Mallet and Betty Buntin Matthews liked the great memories and seeing dear good friends again. Patty Hulburt Bauer and Bob were grateful to be here and especially enjoyed reading campus memories. Dottie Dodd Lemon reminisced that she and Nancy Wescott Larsen, schoolmates from third grade on, marched into the stadium side by side in cap and gown, together again. This must be some kind of record.

Carolyn Harley Gough and George spent their week at Kingsmill celebrating the reunion with nostalgia, happy memories and shared friendships. One friend was Suzanne Zihlman Dyal, who changed her feelings about induction into the Olde Guard. We're not old, Suzanne, we're just a lot better. As Margaret Langfitt Harris so aptly put it, "Old friends are ever the best." Doris Miller Harnsberger, Fran Jarvis Smith and Libby Fisher Beville found friends from 50 years ago are a treasure to savor. Don Taylor is thankful that so many of us have survived the years and contributed so much to our College, our state and our nation. Phyllis Hantz Wolf and Charlie, and Cecil Brown found tears, lots of laughter and are looking forward to our 55th. Earle Chesson thought the weekend was the culmination of 50 years of association with the finest group of people he's ever known — both as kids and adults. Wescott Custis, Diana and son Paul '71 especially enjoyed visiting the President's House. Connie Korn Shea believes in the old theory that you are what you are because of where you were when. This because of the fun times shared with contemporaries not seen in years, but having a warm identity with them. Harry Cox remembered that William and Mary was the greatest thing that happened to him growing up; seeing old friends from 50 years ago was truly wonderful. Dear Howard Smith summed up our 50th reunion best when he said, "How very fortunate that we, the Class of 1943, are to be referred to in perpetuity as the Tercentennial 'Grads' and Olde Guard."

Now for other news. Jayne Taylor MacLean retired from the National Agricultural Library, having worked there since 1970. She was honored for her "steadfastness, professionalism, and commitment to the interrelationships among libraries, librarians and all of our users." Jayne continues her career as a consultant.

Evelyn Cosby King fulfilled a long-time dream by writing and publishing her first book: Stepping Out—From Kitchen to Capitol. It's interesting and thought-provoking. Contact Evelyn at P.O. Box 1099, Williamsburg, VA 23187. It's Evelyn's "Reflections on God, Government and Us."

Would love to hear from y'all. We've already entered the fourth century at the College. Jack Hollowell wants to see everyone at our 75th. That's quite a challenge.

Greetings from the Gulf Coast of Florida! As this letter is being written early in January, our annual invasion of "snow birds" is in full swing!

Since my last letter was written well before Homecoming, I will begin with a short report of a most memorable weekend. It was the Homecoming to end all Homecomings. It has been fully reported in a previous issue of the Gazette, but I want to say that I am sure all who attended have many pleasant memories and that the committee in charge outdid themselves. Members of '45 who attended were Dot Johnson Blom, Ginny Baureithel Leopold, Mary Ellen McLean Hall, Edie McChesney Ker, Fran Loesch Brunner, Suzy Parsons Cosgrove, Ruth Weimer Tillar, Cornelia Westerman Wolf, Martha Macklin Smith, Margie Sease Burruss, Mary Raney Begor, Bill Harrison, Taffy Taylor Delahanty, Betty Wilcox D'Agostino, Jean Boyle Herbert, Norma Bradshaw Carmines and your secretary. I hope I have not missed anyone. Ginger Prickett Cage came to Williamsburg during the weekend to have lunch with Jean Boyle Herbert but did not register for any events. One final note: Suzy Parsons Cosgrove showed one of her paintings in the alumni art exhibit held at Andrews Hall.

Some moves since my last letter: Jean Boyle Herbert to Clearwater, Fla.; Sunny Manewal Murray Connor to a beautiful condo not far from where she has been living in Bradenton, Fla.; and Marion Lang Van Dam and Ted back to Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., where they had lived for many years. The Van Dams were welcomed back with a huge party.

Some news comes from letters received before Homecoming. Our class agent, June Neff Williams, reported that '45 came in third in giving in last year's Annual Fund. Congratulations are certainly due to all of you who gave and to June as well. June also reported on a three-week trip she had made to England, Scotland and Wales, which included a visit with Nancy Keen Norman and Mike.

Jack Carter, Class of '44 reporter and former member of '45, sent a letter from Sumner Rand. Sumner lives in Orlando, Fla. He wrote that he had toured Finland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden in August. He wrote also of Charley Harrington, who had traveled to Fiji, Samoa and Tonga on one trip and had made another to Costa Rica.

Mary Jane Chamberlain Howard sent me news of one of our missing classmates, Bob Wigger, who left W&M after our freshman year. Bob served as a captain in the Air Force and graduated from USC. He worked for IBM, Litton Industries, Booz Allen Hamilton, American Express and finally founded his own company. Bob and his wife had five children. Bob developed leukemia and died in 1978. Mary Jane's information about Bob came from a daughter of his,

Robin Wigger Sternbergh, who had worked with Mary Jane's son Christopher at IBM.

Willie Anne Boschen Wright has continued to be represented in photography exhibitions. In September she was one of two artists featured in a show at the Danville, Va., Museum of Fine Arts and History. In October and November she was one of "Five Virginia Photographers" in a show of that name at the Athenaeum in Alexandria.

From Jack Carter also came a report of a get-together the Monday evening immediately after Homecoming. Jack and Joan Worstall Carter attended some lectures by the Archbishop of Canterbury at Jack's alma mater, the seminary in Alexandria, Va. He and Joan hosted a dinner that included Edie McChesney Ker, Mary Ellen McLean Hall, Nellie Greaves and Sally Snyder Vermilye '44.

During November I received an early Christmas card from Cary Hughes Opitz and Paul, who had moved from Carson City, Nev., to Sierra Vista, Ariz. Cary would enjoy any visitors from our class. Sierra Vista is the home of Fort Huachuca and is 70 miles southeast of Tucson. Cary hears from Sheila Keane Gibbons-Fly, Getta Hirsch Doyle and Lorrie Weir Gonsky.

Other cards brought the following news:

Rachel Lyne Jorgensen has been volunteer lobbying in Congress for the American Association of University Women. A lot of walking on marble floors, but she loves it.

Edie McChesney Ker was traveling again, this time after Homecoming. She and a cousin went to Argentina, Chile and Easter Island on a trip sponsored by People to People, which arranged for briefings at our embassies in Buenos Aires and Santiago.

Jean Clark Ford and Virgil '43 welcomed their first great-grandchild, a daughter born to their grandson and his wife in October.

The History and Renovation of a Historic House

by Parke Rouse Jr.

This beautiful soft-cover book records the history of The President's House on the campus of the College of William and Mary, one of the oldest buildings on a college campus in the United States. The book contains, in addition to the history, many pictures of the house, both exterior and interior views, most of them in full color.

This is the perfect book ...
for your library

The Society of the Alumni has earned two 1993 District III awards from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). District III's membership includes colleges, universities and independent secondary schools in nine southeastern states. The Society received an award of excellence for its Total Alumni Relations Program, including commitment in the areas of Alumni Communications, Alumni Affairs, Society Services and Alumni Records, as well as its service to the more than 60,000 William and Mary graduates and supporters around the world. The Summer 1993 issue of the William and Mary Magazine, published by the Society, earned a Special Merit Award in the alumni magazines category.

Ruth Weimer Tillar and Cato went to a football dance weekend at Virginia Tech after Homecoming, attended the USS Hornet reunion and visited their daughter Elizabeth in New York.

Kay Johnson Selton and Bob spent August in their condo at Beach Mountain in North Carolina. In September they flew to the West Coast, enjoyed a few days in San Francisco and then drove north along the coast up into Oregon, on to the Columbia River Gorge, around Mount Hood and back to Portland. Later Kay and Bob visited Florida.

Betty Aurell Schutz and Henry '44 visited Japan, where Betty was born. Betty wrote that her grandparents had met and married in Japan and that her parents had moved to Virginia when she was 5 months old. Betty and Henry helped celebrate Henry's mother's "first 100th" birthday with all her children and grandchildren present.

Willie Anne Boschen Wright and Jack enjoyed Thanksgiving with all of their children and grandchildren and were expecting part of the family back for Christmas. Willie Anne and Jack had been in New Orleans, Natchez and Vicksburg in November, where she had been busy with her pinhole camera.

Mary Schafhirt Barnes and Jack sent their annual Christmas epic poem detailing this year's adventures: The Barneses continued to travel, including a repeat of the previous year's cruise around South America, their third cruise of the year. The others took them to the Mediterranean in April and in August to Montreal, Quebec, Nova Scotia, Bar Harbor, Provincetown and finally New York. In between they attended a variety of reunions and meetings.

Ginger Prickett Cage keeps busy with church, travel, family (19 grandchildren and one "great") and renovating her house.

Jean Huber Nascimbene and Lee were planning to spend Christmas in New Jersey with their daughter Patricia.

Betty Willcox D'Agostino managed to do most of her Christmas shopping in Williamsburg during Homecoming weekend. Betty also visited Charlottesville and stopped at Monticello. She was planning to be in Florida in February and hoped to get together with Jean Boyle Herbert and possibly your secretary.

Timmy Timmerman Hilton and Carl have five grandchildren, two in Kansas City and three in New York.

In the middle of December I had a very enjoyable lunch and visit in North Fort Myers with Marge Retzke Gibbs, Mary Wilson Carver Sale and Betsy Yow Pearce, all '44, and Marion Smith Turner '43. This was the fourth time this group has convened, and we are looking forward to still another such occasion not too far into the new year. Betsy, Marion and I enjoyed reporting on Homecoming to the others.

At this writing I am looking forward to seeing Sunny Manewal Murray Connor for lunch up in Bradenton preceded by a tour of her new home.

Preliminary plans are being made for our next reunion. Watch this column for news. The deadline for my next letter, in the June issue, is April 8. Do keep your letters coming. You have been very good about keeping in touch, and I appreciate it very much. I hope that you are all enjoying a happy and successful 1994.

Happy New Year — make a resolution to write or call.

News, news! Flying in from Laramie, Wyo. (only 13 W&M grads in the state), where we hit a gold mine on Carol's Irish genealogy. Phone calls, letters, football games, Homecoming and the Busch Gardens Bash. What a year for our school, and what a great job by all concerned at the school — especially the Alumni Society.

Guy "Buckwheat" Moates '43 now has the 1946 W&M-VPI film (49-0). Bill Abbots '44 and John "Jeep" Bednarik '54 wrote for copies of the 1942 football plays. Old single-wing days — nice to know that youngsters like Jeep read the 1947 column. Played against his brother, Chuck of the Eagles, in the 1946 Blue-Gray game (the South won!).

Great session recently with Glen "Mutt" Knox '43 at our local barbershop. Glenn has a summer home up the road at Farnham, but he and Ann '45 spend a lot of time in Hollywood, Fla. We compared our Army Air Corp days, his coaching at W&M, and the 1942 victories at Navy, Dartmouth and Oklahoma. Think our remedial massages at the Ione Hotel in Guthrie, Okla., were with horse liniment, but they did the job.

Mentioning 1942, I called Newell "Red" Irwin '43 up in Woodstock, Va., about Homecoming. Red is busy with cattle on his 100 acres and couldn't get away from chores like milking and feeding his steers.

Carol and I took in all the home games, plus Delaware in Newark. Were on our way to an Elderhostel program in Cape May, N.J. Great W&M turnout including New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut grads. We saw the same old faithfuls at all the games except Homecoming, and that was gangbusters! Jack Freeman and I picked up Eric Tipton for the game. Eric lives in Williamsburg and looks great with all his white hair. Like all of us he is suffering the infirmities of age. Talked to Jack Yohe '58 and Phil Colclough '59 after the Delaware game. Jack played for Jack Freeman at W&M.

Saw the following at Homecoming events, including the Order of the White Jacket Luncheon, '48 class party, tennis tournament, Sunset Ceremony, football game, Preservation Hall jazz concert, Busch Gardens, etc.: Rose and Ralph Sazio '48, Jane and Jack Freeman, and Georgiana and Ray O'Connor '48; visited with Sue Hines Davis '50 and Randy '50, Jean Harrup Cogle and Dennis '49, Betty and Howard Smith '43, Earl Hillman '35, Don Ream '44, Sam Lupo '52 and new wife. Sunset Ceremony: Nancy Miller Parker '49 and Joe '50, Jeannette Keimling '50 and Lou Bailey '49, Nancy Holland Blanford '48 and George '43, Allen Sullivan, Bobby Gascoigne '48, Ann Norman '49 and Tuga Wilson Clements '49, Pat Snyder Smith and Warren '48, Eddie King '48 and his new wife. Jane Spencer Smith '48 and Bill '45, Mary Zimmermann '53, Jim Anthony '52, Wessie and Bo Chappell, Buddy '50 and Mama Lex ("Martha" was home with the flu), Carlton "Five yard" Macon '28, Sunny Williams '44, Elaine and Dickie Lewis '52, Nancy Norris Foster '44 and Dixon '44 Ann and Bill Lucas '49, Ann and Jack Garrett '40, Patsy Keene '48 and Dotsy Theadick Miles '49. Shared a table at the Tercentenary Ball with Audrey Allein Hoitsma '49 and Lou '48, Jean Canoles Bruce '49 and Jack '48, Tuga Wilson Clements and Ann Norman and Marianne Jones Canoles '49 and Buddy.

Letters from Olive-Anne Shelor '46 and Roy '49, Joe Parker '49, George Young '49 and Nonnie Fehse Zettler. Nonnie enclosed a clipping about the death of Donald "Doc" Ware '48 in South Carolina on Sept. 5, 1993. Our sympathy to Donna Lepper Ware '46 and family. Olive-Anne overheard a conversation in the lounge of a cruise ship in Scandinavia last August, and it was Joe Parker and his wife, Nancy Miller. I called Joe in Fort Worth, for I last saw him in L.A. in 1951 when we were both FBI agents. He is now a partially employed attorney in Fort Worth, and we saw each other at Homecoming — his first in 20 years, as they go on cruises in the fall. They have three grown children.

George Young is a retired school superintendent in Exmore, Va., and wanted to know if our local Dr. Bill Bangel '48 could have been an old roommate at W&M. They lived in the rotating rooms at Tyler Hall. Yes, they were!

Jim McDowell '53 was at the Harvard game and mentioned that Tex Warrenton '44 was seriously ill at Vero Beach, Fla., with cancer. Tex has since passed away; he is the 10th person from the 1942 team to pass away. Tex had to be a good marine D.I. at Parris Island.

Had a local luncheon recently with Ken Schmalenberger '49 and his wife, Helen. Ken is retired, lives in Vero Beach, Fla., and was visiting a son in the area. Ken started in '42, left for the service and returned in '48. He looks the same as when he was helping Sigma Rho win most of the intramural awards. Wonder what happened to all the plaques and trophies when Sigma Rho went Sigma Nu? Will see you in Vero, Ken, after our '94 trips to Ireland, Hong Kong and the Danube bike trip. He sent a copy of Tex's obituary.

Mentioning the 1942 team, I missed Al Vandeweghe '43 at Jimmy Seu's '53 restaurant at Homecoming. Called Al in Richmond where he is retired and unattached. Al coached at W&M after World War II, played some pro ball, ran sports at Fort Eustis for years. Just went on a pizza-less diet and lost 25 pounds. Will call you, Al, on a trip to the big city.

1942 again! Before the 1993 W&M-Richmond game, two photos of Marvin Bass '43 were in the Richmond paper mentioning how he had played at UR in the Navy. Marvin is retired from the Denver Broncos and lives in Columbia, S.C. Great article on Marvin, and it included comments by Herb Paige Poplinger '48, who also played for W&M in 1942 and the UR game in 1943. I called Zona Fairbanks Hostetler '57 was awarded the 1993 Servant of Justice Award by the Legal Aid Society of Washington, D.C., for her 25-year career in public interest law and assistance to those in need. She was recognized for overall excellence in the legal profession and for her high level of discipline and fairness. As the first director of the D.C. Bar's Public Interest Activities office, she helped create a referral service program, a landlord-tenant court assistance project, a pro bono program matching the community's volunteer lawyers with the cases of poor people needing legal help, a training program in poverty law subjects, and the District of Columbia Bar Foundation. The secretary of the D.C. Bar Foundation since 1978, Hostetler was previously named Lawyer of the Year by the Legal Aid Society. She shared the honor with former Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall and John H. Pickering, founding partner of the Washington, D.C., firm Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering.

Herb in La Jolla, Calif., sent him a copy of the newspaper article, and he responded with a two-page letter. Power of the phone! When I was in business, I said a prayer to Don Ameche for inventing the phone. Herb sold his 25-year-old Hi Fidelity business to Beatrice Foods and now does management consulting. Promised to look up Bill Saffo '48, Roger Wooley '45 and Pat Haggerty '49 in the area. Just a great letter, Herb. People like you make this high-paying job a piece of cake. Roger was the first non-athlete W&M student that I met in August 1941 on the way to football practice.

Called Henry Schutz '44 in Gloucester, Va. about the death of Garnett Tunstall '42. The three of us plus Wink Jester '46 entered the FBI together in 1947. Garnett's article is in the January ex-FBI publication. He played baseball at the college, graduated from W&M Law School in '47 and spent 30 years in the Bureau. Never knew he was shot down and escaped from Switzerland. My 15th Air Force friends considered Switzerland a paradise after flying out of southern Italy. Our sympathy to Helen Holbrook Tunstall '43. Henry has been slowed down after a stroke early last fall.

Decided to locate Tom Hardy '45, one of my pre-war roommates. My influence wasn't as good as Coach Voyles wanted — like living in a revolving door. Tom learned to knit as a Marine in the South Pacific and helped the post-war sorority house girls while smoking his pipe. I started with Marvin Graham '49, Blake Clark '45 in Greensboro, N.C., and finally located Tom in Chino, Calif. Tom is retired, unattached for 17 years and involved in politics. Tom, Pete Wilson will need all your future help.

There isn't room to mention all our W&M Northern Neckers at our picnic, entertaining the W&M Concert Band (they were great!), fall dinner and our holiday party on the Tides Inn's yacht, Miss Ann. We'll save them for next time. Carol and I attended the Richmond Alumni Chapter's holiday party with Jo Wattles Spencer '49 and Richard. Among the few white hairs, we saw Jim Sutherland '48, Russ Chambliss '50, Ann and Bill Lucas '48 and Bill Rhodes '36 along with Mickey Leef '65, Pete Stout '65 and Jim Ukrop '60.

Received 14 Christmas cards from W&Mites. To all of you, many thanks. We will see the Jack Hoeyes at Hilton Head, but space constraints limit my individual comments. David Speir and wife, who live in Sarasota, Fla., are inveterate travelers. They went from the Orient to Spain, Bermuda, Bali, Bangkok, Singapore, Hong Kong (I enjoyed the Hiltons in the last three places) and then a cruise out of Malaga, Spain. I guess Atlantic City and California wine country were dull after the above.

Another big Homecoming event was seeing Aubrey Mason at the football game. Faith, peace and a big hug and kiss for Aubrey.

Elizabeth Hayes Pratt is no longer teaching art but is devoting all of her time to painting. She and her husband now live in Eastham, Mass. When they lived in Washington, Elizabeth, along with other artists, formed the Spectrum Gallery, a well-known cooperative still in operation in Georgetown. She has become one of New England's best and best-known watercolorists, creating free-flowing, free-spirited works focusing on nature. Some of her work was recently on exhibit at the Cape Cod Conservatory of Music and Arts in West Barnstable.

Dave Henritze sent me the following news: He and Katy were in Berlin last fall where they visited with Joe Lonas and his wife. Joe has lived in Germany for the past 40 years and is known there as a distinguished teacher and sculptor. Some of his works are on exhibit at the College.

Dave and his wife attended the Tercentenary celebration at the College with Fred Kovaleski and Bill Knowles '47 and their wives. Last spring he visited Tom Restricket '48 and his wife at their winter home near Haines City, Fla. Thank you, Dave, for taking the time to write to me. I hope more of you will do the same.

Classmates of that wonderful year — 1951: We all have a rare opportunity to not only honor one of our most illustrious classmates, but to help with the expansion of the Alumni House at the College.

Let me explain. Friends and colleagues of Jim Kelly, our class president, are rallying to recognize Jim's long and dedicated service to William and Mary. Ernest Goodrich '35, a former rector of the Board of Visitors and a former member of the Society of the Alumni Board, has taken the lead in trying to raise $100,000 to name the new Executive Vice President's office in the enlarged and renovated Alumni House in honor of Jim. So far, $70,000 has been raised.

With a little help from you and me — members of Jim's class — we can push the goal over the top. I urge each of you to join me in sending a check — large or small — to the Office of Development (Attention: Sally Kellam), P.O. Box 1693, Williamsburg, VA 23187. Make your check payable to the College of William and Mary with a memo reading "Jim Kelly Fund." For more information, call Sally at 804/221-1002.

For those who don't already know, Jim Kelly has been involved with the College since he arrived as a freshman in 1947. He was (and is) president of the Class of 1951. He served as executive secretary of the Society of the Alumni from 1954 to 1971. From 1971 to the present, he has served as the assistant to three presidents of William and Mary — Thomas A. Graves Jr., Paul R. Verkuil '61 and Timothy J. Sullivan '66.

So, come on, folks. This is our chance to make history. Send in those checks today.

Meanwhile, here's news about some other classmates.

Charles P. (Chuck) Bennett and his wife, Marie, live in Sarasota, Fla., most of the time, but escape to cooler climes in the summer. They spent last summer in Steamboat Springs, Colo.

The Bennetts retired in 1989 and moved from Freehold, N.J., to Sarasota, he after 38 years in retail management, she after many years as a tax collector. Together they have 10 children and 25 grandchildren.

Since retiring, the Bennetts enjoy traveling, particularly cruising in October. Chuck plays golf most of the year, bowls in a league in fall and winter, and fishes for bass in Florida, trout in the north country.

Marie enjoys water aerobics, swimming and serving as president of their condo association. Both volunteer at their local hospital.

Suzita (Tita) Cecil Myers of Center Sandwich, N.H., and James Gordon Schneider of Kankakee, Ill., were married last Aug. 22 in a private ceremony in Center Sandwich.

Tita and James first met in 1952. Tita and the late Phyllis Schneider became close friends in Coronado, Calif., while their husbands served on naval assignments during the Korean War. Tita's husband, Clark Myers, died in 1990, and Phyllis Schneider died in 1991.

During his Navy duty, Lt. Myers and Tita lived in Japan for nearly two years. In 1958 Clark joined the Central Intelligence Agency; their foreign posts included American embassies in Munich, Bonn, Moscow, Vietnam and Copenhagen. After retirement in 1980, the couple moved to New Hampshire. There Tita became a substitute teacher in the Moultonboro schools. From 1986 to 1992 she was curator of the Sandwich Historical Society. Currently she is president of the Bearcamp Valley Garden Club. She has three grown children, Diana M. Sidman of McLean, Va., Clark Myers Jr. of Albuquerque, N.M., and Christopher R. Myers of Basalt, Colo.

Imogene Praddle wrote that she had recently made a trip to the Philippines. She went swimming at Hidden Valley Resort, where three pools in a jungle setting are fed by natural warm springs. She also visited Corregidor, observing rusted cannon dating back to World War II and the famous mile-long barracks, now overgrown by jungle and pockmarked from shelling during the war.

I received a nice letter from Bruce and Frances Thatcher Crowell, who live in Grand Junction, Colo. Frances retired from teaching English at Mesa State College in 1992, but remains active in church and community work. Bruce, who is semi-retired, still teaches part time at Mesa State, serves as assistant minister at their church (Congregational), works in community organizations and writes religious dramas. The Crowells have two children, one in Rhode Island and one in California. They have a 2-year-old grandson.

That's it for this time. I welcome your letters.

It may seem strange to you to be recalling unforgettable memories of our 40th class reunion

SWEM EXHIBIT GOES THROUGH APRIL 30

A new exhibit in the Zollinger Museum at Earl Gregg Swem Library at William and Mary features letters from Charles Lindbergh and John F. Kennedy, a script from the television program "Saturday Night Live" donated by actress Glenn Close '74 and papers from actress Linda Lavin '59. Other items include a Confederate checkbook from the Civil War; a first edition of Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations;" fine printing from the Adagio Press of Harper Woods, Mich.; and an eyewitness account of the battle between the Merrimac and the Monitor. Hours for the exhibit are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in October. Since we are an odd-numbered class, this is my first opportunity to fill you in on our fabulous five-day celebration. Ann Johnson Harris said it well for each of us: "Even if we never have another reunion, we have to know that this one was the very best!" Bouquets of roses to the Alumni Society staff, who organized details so that the 300th birthday celebration could be perfectly executed for all alumni. The first people we saw were Carol and Carmen Romeo just outside the Williamsburg Hospitality House, our headquarters. Carmen was superb in planning and following through with our class preparations. We feel grateful having him as our class president; we wish him a healthy recovery from surgery this past winter.

Others on our reunion committee obviously worked diligently to coordinate timing and long-range preparations. Al King and helpers last August began a very successful phonathon; well over one third of our class returned! Stats showed participation in reunion class events surpassing previous totals, with '53 recording 207, including spouses and friends, at our dinner dance. Scott and Caroline Young Petrequin and Dave Belew, our class historian, prepared wonderfully nostalgic photos, Flat Hat clippings and Dave's In Retrospect for us to enjoy in the hospitality suite. This was Dave's first reunion; he retired early in '92 and now enjoys volunteer work in the community and church. He and Marge love visiting their children and five grandchildren in Maryland and Michigan. Our hospitality suite was a happy gathering spot for laughter and reminiscing, thanks to planning by Gerry and Ann Johnson Harris, Page Beck Gills and others.

The Tercentenary Ball was delightful. Everyone looked positively glamorous and the mood was so festive. We enjoyed the music of Grammy-winner Bruce Hornsby playing "The Way It Is." He is related to Swanson Hornsby from our class. We still are laughing with Jack Martin and his wife, Thelma (T.J.), who sat at our table along with Bob Forrest '55 and Violet Robertson Forrest, and Skip and Yolanda Grant Harrell '55. Jack is up-to-date on everyone of our classmates! He is past president of the Association of 1775 and was an honorary coach during our football game with Villanova. T.J. sat in the press box cheering for the opposition!! We first ran into Bev Simonton Kelly and Jim '51 at the ball, and also my roommate Harriet Willimon Cabell and her husband, Ben. It was the first time I had seen "Harry" since graduation. She still is extremely active at the University of Alabama. We enjoyed touring the campus together; she also was able to enjoy a talk with one of her favorite professors, Howard Scammon '43. Mo Maddox and wife Kitty shared the shuttle bus with us back to the Hospitality House. They reserved a seat for the lovely centerpiece of flowers and curly willow which accompanied them! Those shuttle buses reminded me of unforgettable Ludwell trips to and fro.

We spotted Mary Zimmerman and Jim Anthony '52 at the ball. Mary continues her volunteer work in Williamsburg and acts as adviser for her Kappa Kappa Gamma chapter. She also saves time for Presidential house tours. Jim was major for the football game and delighted us all with his still-expert baton twirling. I was pleased to find Jimmy Anderson and his lovely wife, Barbara, at Thursday's festivities. This was his first trip back. They are settled in Santa Barbara, Calif. I think you've missed your calling, Jimmy! After retiring from flying, you should have seriously considered writing as a career. Your letter about adventurous ski trips to Mammoth Lakes and June Lake near Yosemite and then on to Hawaii was delightful. Don't wait so long for your next visit; we missed you.

We all enjoyed the programs offered at the Academic Festival and ended Friday with a beautiful cocktail party hosted by the Muscarelle Museum. Our class dinner dance was organized by Barbie Schwartz Smith, Bev Kelly, Jack Martin, Page Gills and Betty Brinkley Garrison. The invocation was given by Bill Martin, rector in Middlesex, Va. Carmen spoke to our class and Jim Kelly added the latest reports about developments and new programs at the College. Jim will receive recognition in the Alumni Center with the naming of the executive vice president's office in his honor. Our class is most fortunate having both Bev and Jim so deeply involved and dedicated to our class; we thank them both for their behind-the-scenes efforts. Others who were helpful are Connie Carhart Bohlman, Ann Rixey Boyd, Betty Brinkley Garrison and Randy Hoes.

Bebe Fisher Arbuckle mentioned that she is the new housemother of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity at the University of Kansas. She lives near her three children: one son is an attorney; another a bank president; her daughter is a sports editor. Bebe, Chuck Redding '51, Bill Furst and Russ Kidder enjoyed their golf game together.

At our dinner we sat with my Barrett roommate, Ginny Campbell Furst, and husband Bill. How good to see them again. Time passed too quickly for us but we did enjoy spending overdue time together and teasing the Fursts about sleeping through part of the Homecoming Parade! I must add that we all lost our electricity at the Hospitality House, so we excused Ginny for not being aware of the time. Also at our table were Jack Percival '52 and his wife, Marie, and Ed Wisbauer, who does such a good job reporting Class Notes for '52, and his friend Doreen Zakary.

Our vantage point for Saturday's breakfast and Homecoming Parade was at Blow Memorial Hall. Many of us cheered as we watched the parade from the balcony. Jean Madsen's and Nan Child Zimmer's plans for our participation in the parade were successful, with Carmen riding in a bright green 1953 MG roadster and Jean, Nan, Caroline and Scott Petrequin, Bill Farley, Anna Inge Jump, Graham Mitchell, Al King, Kitty Shawer Gaertner, Fred Burford and Tommy Lewis walked nearby showing off '53 mementos. Busy Jean Madsen has retired but does volunteer work. She drove to Nan Child Zimmer's in Connecticut; they then flew on to the Burg. It was a grand parade, complete with the Clydesdale horses. Lee Bradley Wakefield and Dave '52 were also watching. We heard his familiar laugh and for one moment College seemed to be exactly as it had been 40 years ago. They are living in Wilmington, Del. "Tex" Wilde and Cis '56, Bill and Evie Abdill Sweet, and Jim '51 and Barbie Schwartz Smith were nearby at the parade. We kept running into Evie and Barbie. The Smiths have been patiently waiting for their new home to be completed in Williamsburg.

We spotted my sorority roommate, Ginnie Gary Lupton, and husband Ed '52 during the celebrations. They stayed with Jim '52 and Terry Stewart Carter '54 at their home. All were at the dinner dance along with Martha Parker Stanley, Shirley Smith Whitehurst, and Bill and Betty Gayle Jeter. Ginnie and Ed positively have promised to travel east and stay with us. It was great seeing Emmy Ketterson Smith, Beth Forester Hansen and Tina Bass Menzel. Emmy had spent three weeks leading an Interhostel group to New Zealand last winter. She and husband Dan planned to sing Israel in Egypt with the local Seacoast Singers and a Boston Conservatory orchestral group in Portsmouth, N.H. Her letters tell of wonderful experiences with their children. Beth has settled in Norway since marriage and is teaching in the oldest high school there. How wonderful that she traveled the long distance to be with friends.

"T" Marston Taylor and husband Pat, and Bill and Bobby Bowman Allison escaped to have dinner at the Kings Arms on Thursday. We did like talking with Beata Swanson Mansfield and Welton, who has retired. They live in Newport Beach, Calif. Their daughter graduated from the College and also received her M.B.A. here; a son attended the University of Southern California. Welton, Tex Wilde and Willie Willingham have played golf together near Seattle. Beata added that Mary Compere Collins lives in Naperville, Ill. Thanks to Beata I received a most welcome letter from Camille Grimes Whitcomb '52 from Hobe Sound, Fla. She is happy there and is quite involved with her family, which includes twins! They see many alums; Dave and Lee Wakefield were to be in that area this winter.

Other notes of interest: Scott Petrequin, of course, swam in the relays during the reunion, and Johnny Munger ran in the 5K. We chatted with Johnny and Lee Granger Munger while waiting in a LONG line at Busch Gardens. By the way, the food was delicious in Italy there, so we really didn't mind the wait. We also saw Sommie and Bumpy Bozarth Davis; Nan Evans Scott and husband Henry, who stayed with Nan's sister Joan Swanson '55 in Williamsburg; Wayne Boyle McBriarty, who may be heading for Arizona; and Pam Hall Huth, who now works part time for People's Bank. Her husband has his own business relating to corporate international law. Pam has talked with Jo Stengel, who is employed by the Park Service in California.

It was nice seeing Tommy Lewis and his wife, Jayne Baker Lewis '54. He was married and drafted within two months! Tommy spent 29 years in the Army, with service in Germany, Korea and Vietnam. He finally retired in '82. At present he works for Annandale Consulting Firm in Virginia. He and Jayne have two sons and five grandchildren. Speaking of little people, Diane Weed Renninger and husband Hank '52 have 13 grandchildren and still find time for square dancing!

BRAY ELECTED CHAIR OF NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF GOVERNORS' SCHOOLS

James L. Bray '48, '55 M.Ed. was elected chair of the National Conference of Governors' Schools at an annual meeting in Charleston, S.C. The organization comprises approximately 100 high schools for gifted and talented students in 30 states across the country. A published playwright, Bray is professor of education emeritus at Salem College in Winston Salem, N.C., and has served as director of the North Carolina Governor's School for nearly 30 years.

Mary Ellen Romney Baude, Judy Robinson Kidder, Ginny Furst and I enjoyed a walk "downtown." Judy and I ended up at the Lodge. She and husband Russ were on their way to Arizona and Florida after the reunion. Also seen were Nan Ellis Wilson, who has 12 grandchildren and likes to sculpt; Joe '55 and Carolyn Burt Hume in her very pretty College sweatshirt; Tom and Janet Dandridge Miller; and Bettye Zepht Spoto and husband Nelson. Shirley Lyons Parker and Jack '54 were fun to chat with. They are from Stone Mountain, Ga., and have enjoyed trips to Tibet and Mongolia.

Mary Murphy Daniel and Jim (with a broken wrist) came from Boca Raton, Fla. Jim retired six years ago from IBM. Also there from Florida were Peggy Prosser Collier and Dick from Port Charlotte, Ann Alred Atwater and Gerry from Daytona Beach, Bob Hamel and Nancy from Pensacola, and June Lee Garenton Fitzgerald and Alan '51 from Fort Lauderdale. Don and Joyce Springer Darnton '54 were with us from West Virginia. Don has been associated with Mansfield College as academic vice president and interim president, with Missouri Southern State College as president and currently with West Virginia State College as chair of the business and economics department. Joyce teaches math at Dupont High School in Charleston, W.Va.

Other welcome faces spotted were Bob and Peggy Blair Hackler, both from '52; Fran Thatcher; Murray Foster and wife Betty; Peggy McCune Field and husband Jack; Connie Carhart Bohlman and husband Gene, who left the East Coast to settle in Williamsburg; Helen Barber Stabile and Jack; Bill Farley, who has played in Marvin's Room in summer stock; Nancy Lovell Dean and husband Richard; Al King and wife Fran; John Kris and wife Jo; Nancy Yowell Starr and husband Gordon; Ben Brockenbrough; "Tommy" Helfrich; Jane Guenther Williams; Jim Powell and wife Ellen; Jess Miller and Pat; "Tom" Boonard and Carol; Nancy Breneman Burgard and husband Harold; Richard Swartz; Skip Smith and wife Gerry; George Vakos and wife Nancy; George Southwell and wife Marilyn; Betty Kustrup Sheehan and husband Ed; Annie Mae Rector Antrobus and husband Link; Eloise Bryant Agee and Joe '52, who was on the Tercentenary Ball Steering Committee, as was Jim Kelly '51; and "Bebe" Hammond Brown and husband Bill. Others included Jim Sew; Joe Megale; Posie Hundley; Donnie Spotts Gilbert; Betty King Hundley; Dick Bishop and wife Jane; Barbara Alabaster Hoover and Connie; Buddy Barker and wife Dolores '56; Chiles Larson and wife Suzie; Meade Johnson and Anita; Bill Haynsworth; Barry Wilson and wife Mary; Pete Giblin and Kandy; Bart Hellmuth and wife Shirley; Danella Hewitt Pearson and husband Dick; Jack Hiller; Anne Helms Irons, whose trip was her first in 40 years; Sue Herzog Johnson and husband Dave; Chick McNally; Joe Levy; J. T. Cutler; John Harding; Mel Mercer and Lil; Kippy Kimbrough and wife Helen; "Stevie" Johnson Neal and husband Don, who came all the way from Alaska; Ann Rixey Boyd; and Carolyn Bell Hall (I still can't keep the twins straight) and husband Bernie '56. We must not forget Bernie Wittkamp '52; Hugh DeSampere; Dickie Lewis '52; June Lee Garenton Fitzgerald and husband Alan '51; Boots Crovo Wickham '54, who is just as friendly and perky as ever; Jim Sood; Wendell Haynie '52, who has seen Jane Hale Sebald from Malvern nearby our West Chester; Willie Willingham and wife Nancy; and Bob Mitchell. I did enjoy talking with Tom Hunnicutt '54, and L. Quinby Hines '54 and his wife Anne Callihan Hines '55 at our hospitality suite. We were sorry not to see Ann Hines. Bob Cattell and wife Brenda '56, Randy Hoes and Mary '55, and Don Woulfe and wife Nancy were also seen.

What a glorious 300th birthday celebration for the College and an unforgettable reunion for the Class of 1953! We had a record-breaking turnout culminating with a farewell breakfast graciously hosted by Bev and Jim Kelly at their truly picturesque home Sunday morning. On behalf of our class, Ann Johnson Harris presented Carmen with a copy of the newly issued The College of William and Mary: A History. We all shall tuck away our favorite memories of our alma mater. I especially thank each of you for my treasured plaque and its sentimental message. Tina Bass Menzel's quotation is one worth remembering: "We're not getting older; we're becoming chronologically enhanced!" P.S. It's comforting having Lord Botetourt greeting us again in front of the Wren Building.

What a year! The Tercentenary celebrations were held all over the country and were a huge success. Homecoming was the culmination of all of the events: Our class well represented, though I'm not sure a lot of us saw each other. We went to Williamsburg for a week with Helen Barber Stabile '53 and Jack '53 and combined a little golf with the rest of the activities. From the Class of 1955 sign-in sheet at the Alumni Tent I recorded the following names along with some notes: Lee Everitt Kostel and Harry (I saw them crossing Jamestown Road and they looked great), Glenn Pearce, Robert Forrest, Joan Evans Swanson, Gail Wannen Mosher, Suzanne Duis Carico, Robert N. Coco (we chatted many times: He looks just the same and was enjoying all of the festivities), Pearl Frayer Moody, Carol Petrie Wait, John Mahoney and Dee Dee '57, Henri Bert Chase, Joan Pearce Jabaut and Ron Jabaut, Scott Stone, Betty Holladay Clarke, Ira Levine, Florence Dehart Burnes, Lewis Saunders, Nancy Spigle, Cynthia Kimbrough Barlowe (saw C.K. enjoying the beautiful Tercentenary Ball), Ann Callihan Hines and Quimby, Elaine Pattie Stephens, Martha Jordan Stringer (we chatted in the bookstore when both looking for T-shirts), Don Spivey, Joann Spitzer, Bill Prince, Harold B. Gill Jr., Joe Campagna and Yolanda Grant Harrell (we talked at the Ball). Elsa Stromberg Bandi and Fred enjoyed all of the events — especially the College lectures. Sara Miller Boyd, Lillian Brooks Hall, Judith Brown Raas (seated at our table) and Darrell High Wittkamp and Bernie were all seen during the presentation of the Alumni Medallions at the Ball. I truly hope I did not miss any of you from one list or the other — let me know. We have a wonderful nucleus for our reunion in 1995!

Christmas cards and other notes followed Homecoming. Yolanda Grant Harrell sent a delightful letter recapping the festivities and news that Barbara Brown Harman and Arlie celebrated the holidays in California with their daughter, new son-in-law and youngest son. The Harrells attended the Lions Club International Convention in July in Minneapolis and found the Twin Cities to be beautiful. Skip gave Yolanda a surprise 60th birthday party in April and among the guests were Bob and Vi Forrest from Washington, Pa.

Anne Myers Steele's Christmas letter related that this will be the last year in Pittsburgh. Next year they will be settled in North Carolina enjoying retirement. The Steeles visited England for three weeks enjoying favorite old places and seeing others for the first time.

Helen Male Katze wrote that she had been promoted to assistant director of social work at the hospital and has many new challenges. Her family is well and she (like the rest of us) is enjoying grandparenting young Catherine.

Marge Willard Duer's penguin card was adorable (we're true Pittsburgh Penguin fans!). The Duers and the Carrs (Allison Sandlass Carr) met in the fall and talked about the Carrs' 14 (can you top this?) grandchildren, travels and their children's lives.

Pat Sperr Waby and Dave's card featured a beautifully decorated pine amid a forest of leafless trees. Patti Perkins Berryman enclosed a wonderful photo of herself, friend Allyn and dog Penny Scragles in front of her Vixen motor home during an extensive trip seeing the U.S.A. Patti has truly been everywhere: from Chicago to Salt Lake City, Baja California, the Sea of Cortez, Arizona, with "spectacular scenery, bumpy roads, primitive villages, sandy and vast Pacific Ocean beaches and warm azure waters" just a few of the pleasures.

Anne Lunas Vincent was sorry that she and Jerry missed the 300th, but they were leaving for Vienna, Austria, to visit their son, Andy, who was working with the U.S. Mission for three and a half months. They made side trips to Salzburg and Berchtesgaden, Germany. Anne is teaching two Lamaze classes and attended the International Childbirth Education Association conference in Minneapolis.

Joan Mattson sent her best wishes for 1994, as did Marilyn Scheie Belford (Bunny). Bunny's workload has been very busy at the office and she has not been to Williamsburg since the "fantas-

MARSHALL-WYTHE NAMES NEW DEAN

After a search of more than a year, the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at William and Mary has named as its new dean Thomas G. Krattenmaker, professor at the Georgetown University Law Center. A specialist in antitrust law, telecommunications law and the U.S. Supreme Court, Krattenmaker is a 1965 Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Swarthmore College with a B.A. in economics and a 1968 magna cum laude graduate of Columbia University School of Law. He began his teaching career as an assistant professor at the University of Connecticut School of Law and then served one year as a law clerk to U.S. Supreme Court Justices John H. Harlan. From 1971 to 1972, he was chief of the evaluation division for the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection. He joined the Georgetown University Law Center in 1972 and served as associate dean for graduate studies from 1986 to 1989. In the summer of 1991, he was a Fulbright Professor of Law at the University of Natal in Durban, South Africa. Author of several books, Krattenmaker, who succeeds President Timothy J. Sullivan '66 as dean, will join Marshall-Wythe July 1.

tic" Alumni College focusing on Thomas Jefferson. Florence Dehart Burnes had dinner with Louis Saunders and his wife during Homecoming. Last year Florence was a delegate to the Phi Mu Leadership Conference in Richmond. Florence also plans to spend a month this winter in Tucson.

Diane Broderick Hamilton is in Oregon now. Highlights of her year were the birth of an 11th grandchild and daughter Wendy receiving her doctorate from Vanderbilt. Diane spent two weeks in Alaska with son Scott and family and hops all around the country on mini-trips to see the rest of her family.

With all of this behind us now we can look forward to the future. We have less than two years until our class celebrates its birthday. If you have any special ideas let me know and I'll pass them on. As William and Mary is special, so are we as a class. Remember ... '55 in '95 and plan ahead! P.S. Please write!

The hospitality suite at the Ramada Inn was jumping during Homecoming this past October. The Classes of '58 and '57 joined forces under the leadership of Jim and Jane Thompson Kaplan '56. An estimated 150 people were present at one time or another on Friday evening in the suite. There was food aplenty. Alice Jordan Viessman '56, a travel agent in Norfolk, was the major player in providing the food and the arrangements. Others who brought food and provided assistance were: Sheila Eddy Baker '56; Bobbie Campbell Wenger '56; Herb '54 and Ginger Portney Klapp '56; Lenore Boss Quandt; Bert Levy; Diane Oakerson Fleming; Dave Flemer and wife Alice Weir '58; Dave and Mary Tine Peckens '56; Barbara Lynn Wheeler; Pat Wells McDonnell '56; and Mary Kay Bush Devita and husband Vince. I hope I have not left anyone out.

It was good to see Harvey Lasky '56. Harvey lives in California, and this was his first visit to Williamsburg since graduation. It was also good to see Bud Leeds '56; Gary Joachim '56; Junior Duff; Chet Waksmunski '56; Wilson Sweeney '56; Bill Armbruster; Tom Eley; Sally Warner Nicholas; Rod Elliot; Mary Jane Hutton Hurst; Spider Levy and his wife, Pam; Carol Simmerman Luter and husband Tom; Dee Dee Daniels Mahoney and John '55; Mason Swann '56; Tom '55 and Betty Bloxsum Witherington '56; June Rickard Aldridge; Mary Ripley Barry; Mary Milam Rink; Joe Campagna '55; and others.

Fred (Derf) Shaffer left word that he and his wife, Ilene, thoroughly enjoyed the 300th anniversary Homecoming, especially the fantastic 51-17 football victory over Villanova. Their two youngest are still in college. Eric is at RIT and Debra is at George Washington University. Fred has his own health-care computer system business, and Ilene has a gift and chocolate business.

I received a card from Diane Oakerson Fleming with a copy of her holiday greetings letter. Diane and her husband, Bryan, live in Bowie, Md., between Washington, D.C., and Annapolis. Diane is working from her home office as a biosafety consultant. Bryan retired in January 1993 as an Air Force colonel and orthopedic surgeon, and is enjoying the leisure life. Their son, Mark, lives in Bel Air, Md., and expects to make Diane and Bryan grandparents in June 1994. They encourage W&M friends to visit them.

Charlie Morrow sent a news-filled letter. Charlie transferred from W&M to Drexel University, in Philadelphia, in September 1955, where he received his B.S. in marketing in 1958. At Drexel he played soccer, basketball and tennis. He has three sons by his first wife, and married Pat Donnelly in 1984. Pat is an attorney and has two daughters and a son. Charlie and his eldest, Chip, work as manufacturers representatives, selling pipe, valves and fittings to industrial, water and petrochemical industries. Charlie and Pat enjoy traveling and have been to Japan, Hong Kong, Hawaii and Europe. Charlie also enjoys gardening and tennis, which he plays competitively. He says he is ranked nationally in the 45, 50 and 55 age groups in both singles and doubles. In 1992, Charlie was treated with surgery and radiation for prostate cancer. Included in his letter was a three-page update on prostate cancer, which promotes the PSA blood test and other early detection measures for prostate cancer. He has mailed out about 300 of these messages to men our age, noting that our classmate Ed Jones died from prostate cancer last spring. Thanks for the letter, Charlie, and for the information.

Gil Granger made news last August in the Virginia Gazette. The Granger family set a record at a father-daughter lunch held at the Kiwanis Club of Williamsburg. Accompanying Gil at the luncheon were his two daughters, Gillinda and Grayann, daughter-in-law, Lisa, and three granddaughters.

My wife, Sue, and I had breakfast with Dick Bell and his wife Elaine; Jim '59 and Pat Clark Godfrey '58; and Ed and Dottie Bird Wilson '59 on Sunday morning at Homecoming. It was great seeing Jim and Pat, neither of whom I had seen since '59.

At the Sunset Ceremony on Friday, Oct. 22, in the Wren courtyard the following members of the Class of 1957 were included in the memorial program: Charles Raymond Daniel Jr., Anne Riddle Jones, Edward Earl Jones and Charles Johnson Tucker Jr.

Looking through a list of the Class of '59 grads, I see some exotic current addresses. Norman Dickerson is listed in Ethiopia and there are some European locations. It would be great to hear from them: I'm sure they have interesting stories to relate. If anyone is in contact with them, please have them send me some material.

I was able to contact Barclay Bell Nakhleh in Abu Dhabi, a sheikdom in my neighborhood on the Persian Gulf. Barclay writes that she is still teaching English as a foreign language at the Abu Dhabi National Oil Co. school. Her husband, Ziad, fell on some stairs this summer and broke his leg, so he was hobbling around in their 120-degree weather. Not to be outdone, Barclay stubbed and broke her toe on their swimming pool. But not even this has stopped her from almost daily training at her health club, so she says she can truly be called a "gym junky." Barclay has a son named Sam, who is a junior at Episcopal High School and is playing varsity football, and another son named William, who was married last year in Alexandria, Va., at St. Paul's Episcopal Church where Barclay's parents have been members since 1939. Barclay reports having seen Elizabeth Ann ("Betsy") Peccatiello and Larry this summer and says they keep more than a dozen horses.

Unfortunately I have not heard lately from my old roommate William J. McCuen, but speaking of horses, the last time I heard from him he was raising (among other things) Arabian stallions in Pennsylvania. I thought it was quite a coincidence that I went to Arabia and he dealt with Arabian horses.

The Sept. 13 issue of Forbes magazine had an interesting article called "Bucking the Trends" about our classmate, Raymond Adams "Chip" Mason. At a time when we are struggling over which stock or mutual fund to invest in, Chip is the chairman of his own firm, Legg Mason Inc. His conservative, value-oriented approach has been very successful over the years.

I contacted and had an interesting letter from William Corey Trench '76. Corey and I may have a common ancestor. Corey started an environmental consulting practice (Precor in Sacramento, Calif.) some 10 years ago and serves the national electric utility industry. Lately they have had the excitement of working with the Orenburg region of Russia. Corey met his wife, Suzy, at W&M and they have been married for 15 years now. They have three boys: Robert Corey, 8, Philip Shields, 6, and Collin Wood, 4.

We have suffered through a hot and humid summer here this year, tying my personal record of 120 degrees. Dhahran is on the Persian Gulf (you can see the gulf from some buildings and high tee areas on the golf course), so although it is basically a desert climate, we are subject to high humidity. I figure that if the temperature and the humidity add up to 200 we're in trouble for that day. Speaking of golf, I should explain that we do not have a grass course. The fairways have a petroleum-based material over the sand which gives us some roll, but we have to carry around a square of astroturf which we actually hit off. And the greens should be called "browns" as they are made of sand. We have groundskeepers who roll them after each group plays through.

One of the people on my list of '59 graduates is Paul-Georg Gutermuth, who lives in Bonn, Germany. I was in touch with him and he indicates that he was actually a Fulbright post-graduate scholar during the year 1956-57 and had indicated that he should be associated with the Class of 1957, as he attended some classes with them. I had to get a translation of his title and where he worked: it sounds as though he is doing very well. He is a German governmental advisor for the Ministry of Economics ("Ministerialrat Dr. Paul-Georg Gutermuth im Bundesministerium fur Wirtschaft").

The Tercentenary Homecoming celebration was absolutely wonderful! Williamsburg was at its crisp fall best. Seeing so many of you at the reunion dinner on Friday (there were 188 of us at Holiday Inn 1776) was great! Wasn't marching down Duke of Gloucester Street in the Homecoming Parade fun?

Many thanks to Ann Harvey Yonkers for coordinating everything, Gale West Parmentier for making our great signs, Mary Frances Bonner Koltes for designing our clever T-shirts, and to many, many other people for their help in making Homecoming 1993 so special for the Class of 1963!

I had a lot of fun whipping out my notepad to record as much news as I could for this column. If I missed you, I apologize. Please drop me a line with your news so that I can include you in the next column!

Carolyn Welch Morgan is an elementary school librarian. She first came to town to attend a library convention and stayed for Homecoming before returning to Hampton, Va.

Barry Grantier's son graduated in 1993. Barry is a vice president of sales for the Capitol City Ironworks, a steel paint fabricator.

Fran Newton Harwood has two children: a daughter, Elizabeth, and a son, Jay, who graduated from William and Mary in 1990. Fran teaches school. Glenn works for the Small Business Administration. They live in Annapolis, Md.

Jane Rothgeb Sears and her husband came east from California. Jane is working in real estate mortgage banking. They live in Santa Ana, Calif.

Dale Toma attended Homecoming with his wife, Nancy. They live near Daytona, Fla.

Kaye Battenfield Cragg is a docent at the Chrysler Art Museum in Norfolk. Last summer the Craggs vacationed in Maine with Betsy and George Lunger. Their daughter is getting married in the spring. They have lived in Norfolk for three years, moving from Ohio.

Judy Williams Cooter and John Cooter '61 spoke proudly of their sons. Michael has graduated from medical school and is serving his residency at the University of Connecticut. Mark graduated from Wake Forest and works for Arthur Andersen. Judy does volunteer work, and John is a senior partner in South Carolina's largest CPA firm.

MARSHALL-WYTHE NAMED MOST IN DEMAND

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law has been named one of the 20 most "in demand" law schools in the country. The Princeton Review Student Access Guide to The Best Law Schools (1994 edition) calculated a "demand index," based on the rate at which admitted applicants accept offers of admission to a given law school. On this scale, Marshall-Wythe rates 16th. Earlier this year, Marshall-Wythe was named in Arco's The Best Law Schools as the 18th best law school in the country.

Maggie Jennings Chanin came down from Maryland. She is a volunteer with something to do with books and gardens (not all my notes make complete sense!). She has three children. Her daughter was a VISTA volunteer.

Dennis O'Brian is a social worker in Baltimore, where he also owns an antiques business.

Lucy Lawler Huggett lives in nearby Seaford, Va. She teaches science in a junior high school.

Ron Williams has an import/export seafood business.

Joyce Dooley Ikenberry '64 and Richard live in Roanoke. Joyce is a guidance counselor. Richard is in sales for Abbott Labs, which sells hospital products. He is now out of the Air Force.

Tricia Lee White attended Homecoming. They had a big event in their family the preceding week when their son got married. The newlyweds were in Williamsburg also.

Homecoming was extra special for us, as we spent it with my "old" roommate, Pat Thomas Ogren. It gives one a very special feeling to pick up a friendship so easily after a lapse in time. Pat lives nearby in Hayes and teaches high school English. Her daughter, Ginger '91, was at Homecoming also. Ginger is studying for her master's in physical therapy at the Medical College of Virginia.

Pat and I pointed the way to the football stadium to Dave Berend '52 and his wife, who had flown in from New York. Dave had put his construction crew to work that morning and arrived in town as the game was beginning. He hadn't been to the College in several years — no wonder he was lost! He works for the YRC Construction Corps and for Amerina International Corp.

Rosemary Brewer Philips continues to work for the Chester County Historical Society. She has kept in touch with various Alpha Chis, visiting with Marie Lynn Hunken, who is building a home in Tucson, Ariz., and dining with Dick Cohen '61 and Dale Harris Cohen. She and Charlie escaped our icy weather for Hawaii after Christmas.

Iona Moody Salmon and John ate with us at the reunion dinner. Their daughter is married and living out West. Iona and John take many three-day weekends to travel. Iona does volunteer work and is quite a gardening expert.

Lee Williams McBride lives in Chevy Chase, Md. Their youngest daughter is spending her junior year abroad in China. Their oldest daughter is with the State Department in Washington. Lee volunteers at the Freer Gallery of Art, involved with book discussion groups.

RESEARCHER AWARDED FOR EFFORTS TO FIGHT DRUGS

Benjamin W. Smith '90 M.A. received the 1993 Virginia Governor's Award for Anti-Drug Efforts for Individual Research. The award was one of 22 presented by then-Gov. L. Douglas Wilder at an Oct. 28 ceremony in Richmond. Smith's research has resulted in detailed information on the rates and patterns of drug use among juvenile offenders. He is a program analyst with the Virginia Department of Youth and Family Services in Richmond and is an adjunct faculty member in Sociology at Longwood College in Farmville.

married recently. Congratulations!

Katherine Tucker McGinnis began the doctoral program in history at UNC Chapel Hill. She married John Brandt. They were not able to go to Homecoming but hoped to see Gayle Beverley Austen and her husband, Wick, when they drove through North Carolina.

I received a long letter from Mary Langford '77, president of the United Kingdom Alumni club. The club was well represented at Homecoming! It certainly sounded like they availed themselves of many activities and enjoyed themselves.

Mary also shared the very sad news of the death of Joan Lee Delsman on Nov. 8, 1993, in the Netherlands. Joan had recently married Keis Delsman, whom she had met in 1963 when he was a visiting scholar in Williamsburg. Joan spent her adult years abroad, especially in England, although after her marriage made her home in Holland. Joan often wrote me about the U.K. club, and her enthusiasm over its growth was apparent. The club is commemorating Joan by placing a bench in her memory in the garden of the Museum of Garden History on the River Thames next to Lambeth Palace. There are many W&M connections with this location. Two botanists, gardeners to Charles II, traveled to Williamsburg and brought back many plant specimens to be planted in England: These two men are buried in the garden. Also, the William and Mary choir has sung there, and the club has met there many times.

If anyone would like to contribute to this memorial bench, please send your check to the U.K. club treasurer, Craig Broderick '81, 2 Tina Court, 43 Edge Hill, Wimbledon, London SW19 4NP, England. It is wonderful that Joan and her husband could enjoy Williamsburg, the College, Homecoming, and friends so enthusiastically.

I received a copy of the Star-Tribune of Chatham, Va. Jerry Van Voorhis, rector of Chatham Hall, was pictured receiving a large gift to the school from a former student.

JoAnn Riddick Struck and her husband, Carl, lives in New Mexico. I hear that JoAnn's photography is beautiful.

Betsy Holland Lunger and George were at Homecoming. Their daughter, Marie, was recently married. They planned to be in Charleston, S.C., for Christmas, to see their son and his wife as John returned from a long submarine cruise. Then heading for Michigan to see Betsy's family, including her sister Margaret Holland Knutson '64.

Vi Sadler Huse and Ron continue to enjoy the art gallery they opened five years ago!

Sherry Parrish Swan is certainly an adventurous traveler. Sherry and Al were at Homecoming, and Al took Linda Neese McCormick and her family for a ride in their plane. The Swans enjoy Pensacola, Fla. They took their sailboat to the Bahamas, an 11-day sail. Sherry planned to spend a few months aboard the sailboat while Al flies down every other weekend or so!

Dale Harris Cohen and Dick '61 were at Homecoming. Their family news is the marriage of their daughter and then their son, who passed both the New York and New Jersey bar exams.

Kathy Dudley Okada and Dave went to Munich before Dave left Mattel to be a consultant. Their daughter, Lisa, was married in July.

Sally Siegenthaler Lichtenstein couldn't get away for Homecoming. She visited children and grandchildren in Reston, Va., for Thanksgiving.

Her brother, Pete Siegenthaler '61, is still in Georgia. His son, John, recently graduated from Georgia Tech.

Susy Smith Carter and Warren are enjoying retirement in Salt Lake City after Warren's 27 years in federal government service. Susy taught TESL at Westminster College to a group of Japanese students.

In December Don '61 was invited to lunch with President Clinton at Bryn Mawr College at the Entitlement Conference. The same day Don's editorial on health care reform came out in the New York Times. So Don gave the President a copy of the article for him to read.

Well! I loved visiting with so many of you at Homecoming. It was just a wonderful weekend. And it provided a great deal of news for this column. A pleasure to write. Please drop me a line with your news for future columns!

NEW BOOK ON RUSSIA BY BRUCE LINCOLN '60

W. Bruce Lincoln '60, professor of Russian history at Northern Illinois University and one of the most prolific scholars on the subject of Russia, has a new book: The Conquest of A Continent: Siberia and the Russians. Published by Random House and priced at $30, the book has received positive reviews in The Wall Street Journal and The New York Times, among other publications. According to Orlando Figes in the Times, Lincoln tells "the story of Siberia's subjugation through several hundred years, beginning at the end of the 16th century... in his very colorful narrative" in which "there is much to enjoy..." Other books by Lincoln, who was profiled in the Winter 1992 issue of the William and Mary Magazine, include The Romanovs and Red Victory: A History of the Russian Civil War.

pipes, a hungry fireplace, a useless word processor and typewriter, and a phone that takes incoming calls but cannot be used to call out. The view outside my window is beautiful.

Here is our news. The June Alumni Band Newsletter reported that Oliver Matson "Matt" Shiers has lived in Charleston, S.C., for 24 years and is the director of product safety and injury control and rabies control for the South Carolina Department of Health. He has been busy reconstructing his house in the historic area after Hugo.

William L. Wellons became a circuit court judge for the 10th Judicial District of Virginia. He graduated from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1968, worked as a claims representative for the State Farm Insurance Co. in Newport News, practiced general law in the firm of Richard E. Railey in Courtland, Va., opened his own law office in Victoria, Va., in 1971, and was later named a juvenile and domestic relations district court judge for the 10th Judicial District. He is married to Jane Copley Dickerson and they have five children: Sallie McOwen '89, a graduate of William and Mary; Jim, a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy; Lindley '93, also a graduate of William and Mary; John, a sophomore at William and Mary, and 10-year-old Mary Catherine.

K. Braxton Garriss earned an associate degree in nursing about two years ago. He has worked in a coronary care unit and currently sees patients in their homes. He is considering more school. Braxton's daughter, Elizabeth, will enter college in the fall, and John will be in high school. Fayetteville, Ark., is home, but Braxton has family in Virginia so he gets back to the College. He enjoyed seeing some Sig Ep brothers at Homecoming; he related that "many old friends, Lord Botetourt, and Tom Jefferson returned." Other travels included a trip to Haiti last summer to work in a hospital, and a public health convention in San Francisco.

Sharon Gray proudly reports that her daughter Christine graduated from medical school; on the day of graduation, Sharon's father swore Chris and a classmate into the Navy as lieutenants in the Naval Reserve. Sharon remains in Atlanta in the banking business. Her work has taken her to North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky and Texas during the past year. She has also been volunteering as a docent at a natural history museum in Atlanta.

Susan Roberts Chadd is now working full time at the Winnetka, Ill., public library. She finds her volunteer activity as a tutor to adults who are learning English as a second language to be very rewarding. Chuck and their three sons are fine and busy with career/school.

Mary Liz Smith Sadler and Sam '64, '71 M.Ed. had an opportunity to participate in the exceptional activity at the College during the past year. Mary Liz writes:

"Much of our lives this year has revolved around the College and the celebration of its Tercentenary. It began in earnest with the Charter Day observance in February, when Prince Charles was the featured speaker. It was a joyous occasion: 11,000 people in W&M Hall to watch the colorful academic procession with its representatives from many of the old schools here in the U.S. as well as several (significantly older) ones in Europe. Prince Charles was gracious, and in return received a tumultuous greeting from the students. We were pleased to be included on the guest list at a luncheon in his honor following the convocation, at which he took the time to shake everyone's hand. (Sam treasures the picture taken when he shook the Prince's hand — it's framed on the den shelf.) It was a wonderful weekend, packed with inviting activities and interesting guests and alumni and old friends.

"Following that event were other observances of a general nature — concerts, lectures, etc. — and then a grand commencement in May. Sam chaired that again, and because of the speaker (Bill Cosby) and the number of people choosing to participate in this, the 300th year, it had to be held outside in the football stadium. Typically, after a lovely, cool early spring, commencement day (May 16) dawned hot as Hades, and we roasted.

"The grand culmination was the birthday party, hosted by Anheuser Busch at Busch Gardens at Homecoming in October. The park was open during the evening for W&M folk only, and we had fun riding the rides and eating the food, seeing the shows, and missing the fireworks. Again, it was a joyous celebration, made even more special by the many old and dear friends we saw during the weekend. As grand as it has all been, I don't think there's a staff member on campus who regrets that he/she won't be around to celebrate the 400th! It has been a lot of work."

Ann Singleton Beebe and Matt write from Caldwell, Idaho. Matt is plant manager for AIMCOR; they mine and manufacture a special clay product used in the paper-making industry. Ann is still with the Southwest Idaho Private Industry Council; she has been busy putting on motivational/goal setting workshops for the council's clients. She also has public relations and marketing responsibilities. Winter racquetball, summer sailing, trips to South Carolina to see her parents, and trips to California to see their daughter and two grandchildren fill their calendar.

Jay-Louise Weldon, who does consulting in the area of large-scale data-base, recently completed a project in Spartanburg, S.C. Husband Michael Wynne is admissions officer for New York University's Stern School of Business. Jay-Louise's elder son, Brian, visited William and Mary in October and has applied for admission in the fall of 1994, and her younger son, David, has recently appeared in a high school production of The Music Man. In early November, Jay-Louise spent a week with Martha Bean, assistant professor of linguistics and language development at San Jose State University. In addition to her teaching and research at the university, Martha is heavily involved in community work with the Escuela Popular, a grass-roots Latino organization in East San Jose. (Her cat Marky has not yet been accepted at any of the local feline institutions.) During the visit, they both spoke with Trilby Busch, who teaches at Normandale Community College in Minnesota's Twin Cities. Trilby's elder daughter, Ceridwen, has just completed her freshman year at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis. Her younger daughter, Morwenna, an expert blue grass fiddler, is applying to the Minnesota High School of the Arts for her junior and senior years. Jay-Louise, Martha and Trilby reconnected at the 20th class reunion in 1985 and have been comparing notes since then while reminiscing over their freshman days at Ludwell.

Sara Shafer Hertzler and Steve are joining the ranks of the empty-nesters. Sons John and Clark are both at the University of Virginia. Sara and Steve stayed with the Sadlers for Homecoming.

I have been involved with work for our local YMCA, Theatre West Virginia, the Beckley Area Foundation, United Way, the Community Concert Association, and assorted other non-paying positions. I just returned from a wonderful trip to New Zealand, where I hiked the Milford Track and spent three weeks exploring the country. Please write. We want to hear from you.

Greetings to all of you as we embark on another year, reflecting on our individual milestones during the year past, and on a record-setting Homecoming and Tercentenary celebrations for the College. This year brings the Alumni House expansion campaign, the New York Auction in March, this summer's Alumni College and Lady Margaret Thatcher's keynote address at Charter Day.

The Nov. 10, 1993, issue of the Virginia Gazette had a great article on Richard McCluney's documentary Mister Chief Justice, a feature film documenting the life, contributions and human side of Chief Justice John Marshall. The film aired Dec. 13 on public television and is available to school children for classroom viewing. Part of Richard's intent with the film was to not "pontificate" on Marshall's legal and constitutional contributions, but to portray his humanness as an important figure in American history. Richard is director of Colonial Williamsburg's audiovisual department.

I received a note from former roommate Susan Benbow Kroupa (vowing "not to wait another 20 years to write again"). Susan is living in New Hope, Pa., with husband Ken, a vice president of human resources with Mobil Oil Co., sons Bill, 13 (their "free spirit"), and Kevin, 16 (their artist), three cats and a Saint Bernard. Susan's daughter, Kathy, is a junior at Gettysburg College, majoring in psychology, playing varsity soccer and softball, and already investigating graduate school. Ken Jr. is a freshman at Gettysburg. Susan returned to school in 1989, taught remedial writing while they were living in Connecticut, and is now back in the computer field doing technical recruiting and account management for a management consulting firm. In spare time found to visit her two oldest at Gettysburg, she sees Mary Nuernberg Mason and husband Dick. Susan writes that they love Bucks County, yet look forward to permanently landing at their place in North Carolina, still too many years ahead to count as a given.

The holidays brought news from Jim and Gayle Lewis, still in Oregon and appreciative of the majestic natural beauty and quasi-simple lifestyle of Jacksonville, where they've been since 1980. Jim is still a city councilor, is past president of the Rogue Valley Council of Governments, and continues to practice his religion of salmon and steelhead fishing in the renowned Rogue River. Their daughter Claire is a high school senior, active in theatre arts and planning to remain in Oregon for college. Gayle is pursuing a master's in nursing, working in outpatient obstetrics, and Jim continues his involvement with community service and reserve duty with the Navy Sea Bees (both he and Gayle are captains in the Naval Reserve).

Sue Ellen Bowman Anderson became director of conferences for EDUCOM last August, having spent the previous five years as conference manager. EDUCOM is a non-profit consortium of 600 colleges and universities concerned with computing and communication issues in higher education. Heywood Wigglesworth lives in Richmond and is an engineer with Henrico County. Ernie Domehower is living in Gig Harbor, Wash., and teaching in the Peninsula school district. He enjoys the summers traveling with his family. Palmer Sweet is a geologist supervisor with the Virginia Division of Mineral Resources and lives in Charlottesville. John Williams earned his Ph.D. at Stanford and is chairman of the department of geology at San Jose State University. Some other whereabouts: Allen Dobey - College Station, Texas; William Gordon - Adairville, Ky.; Gretchen Weber - Oakton, Va.

Betty Bishop Griffin and Gene '66 visited daughter Beth in Paris this past fall during her semester abroad at the Sorbonne. They also celebrated their 25th anniversary with a trip to Bermuda. Betty's Christmas photo cards are always a treat and a reminder that our lives are a continuing process, as many of our children's paths follow ours with remarkable similarities and unique individuality.

I continued to read about Lewis Puller and exercise a right in voicing my opinion that our lives are all touched in some respects by heroes. This man's journey within and search for spiritual healing and wholeness are an inspiration for this classmate.

Please send news for the next column. My deadline is April 8.

Well, it's finally here: our 25th-reunion year. I hope everyone is planning to be in Williamsburg for Homecoming this fall. I've heard from lots of people over the holidays, so here's the news...

John Mowen sent me the press release for his newest book, Judgment Calls: High Stakes Decisions in a Risky World, in what he described as a "shameful attempt to generate publicity for [his] book." His book is designed for decision-makers of all kinds, so make a decision ... go buy his book! John is a professor at Oklahoma State University. He and Maryann are currently building a house, raising two teenage daughters and writing books.

Woody Lookabill wrote that he spent two weeks in Russia, Romania and Hungary last summer on a mission trip. His group visited orphanages, a military base, a hospital and other places, and distributed 80,000 Bibles and gospel tracts. He is clerk of court in Pulaski, where his wife, Jane, is an elementary school counselor. They have three children.

Carol Garrard was in New York last fall for the publication of her latest book, co-written with her husband. They live in Tucson, Ariz., with two daughters who danced this year in The Nutcracker. And Carol ran in the Alumni 5K at Homecoming. Good for you!

I only saw a few people at Homecoming this year: Gale Gibson Kolhagen, Liz Ramsey, Dwe Eaton Yearick and Sandy Camden McDaniel. Gale has just published a book of naval history. She lives in Connecticut and travels to North Carolina to work with her collaborator. Liz has been chairman of the history department of Lexington High School for several years. She is now busy working on a new high school and designing the department, curriculum and everything. Dwe lives in Virginia Beach and is busy with volunteer work,

STEWART H. GAMAGE '72 NAMED VICE PRESIDENT

Stewart H. Gamage '72 has been named vice president for public affairs at William and Mary with responsibility for government relations at the local, state and federal levels and for the College's communication programs. An adviser to two Virginia governors and a former member of the Board of Visitors, Gamage comes to William and Mary from APCO Associates Inc., one of Washington's largest public affairs firms, where she was chief operating officer and senior consultant. Gamage served on the Board of Visitors from 1985 to 1990, including a term as vice rector. She previously served for five years on the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni. She spent seven years as director of the Virginia Liaison Office, managing Virginia's federal-state relations for Governors Charles S. Robb and Gerald L. Baliles. She joined APCO Associates in 1992 after serving three years as policy director and committee liaison for the Majority Leader of the House of Representatives. Other experience includes two years as Associate Deputy for Intergovernmental Affairs in the White House. In addition to a B.A. degree in fine arts from the College, Gamage holds a master's degree in public administration from the Washington Public Affairs Center of the University of Southern California. Her appointment was effective March 1.

and Sandy works in social services in elder abuse. Dwe and Sandy had their teenage daughters with them, so it was nice to meet some of the next generation.

Christmas mail was heavy this year. At the risk of getting nothing for the next nine months, I'll share it all now.

Janet Berglund is still traveling a lot in her job as a computer guru for the federal government. She spent much of '93 on a huge project, but she also found time to do some personal traveling.

Ron '70 and Susie Smith Stewart are busy in Williamsburg, where she teaches at Walsingham, and their children are busy with football and band. Ron was recently promoted to full colonel at Fort Monroe in Hampton. Their daughter Megan is already looking at colleges.

John Matish and Ginny '70 have two college kids and one at home. The older two are at U.Va. and East Carolina. John runs youth homes on the Peninsula and plays golf and racquetball. Ginny teaches high school math.

My old roommate Jane Morrissey Pratt and her husband, John, are also down to one child at home, with daughters at New Hampshire and Holy Cross. Jane is teaching and John owns his own business. I keep trying to get them to send a child "south to school" so that I can see them more often!

Sharon Reeder McCarthy dropped me a note as she and Burk were headed to Florida for the holidays. They had a visit from Steve and Anne Nelms McDowell for the Indy 500 this fall. Anne took a year's sabbatical in '93 and thoroughly enjoyed her time off. She's been crewing on a sailboat — the competitive kind, that is — gardening, traveling, playing more tennis and even cooking. Sounds like a great year to me! While in Virginia this summer Anne visited with Linda and Joe Trice '68. Their older daughter is in Poland teaching English. Their younger is at W&M, I think.

Ginger Graef Smith is a reading specialist and involved with two growing children. We visited the Virginia Majorette Championships in May, where her younger daughter was competing. Jake '66 is being considered for a judgeship in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court this spring, and their older daughter is busy with cheerleading, swimming and looking at colleges. They stay busy with their sailboat and some traveling — including a trip to the Florida Keys for Christmas.

Ellen Cooper Mathena writes that her son is finishing at Tech this year and her daughter is applying to W&M for next fall. Ellen works part time at Tech and does a lot of volunteer work, too.

Congratulations to Rick Spurling, our first Member of Parliament! He was elected to represent St. George's, Bermuda. He and wife Jane Youngblood have two daughters in school in Virginia and a son at home with them. Their oldest has been accepted at Tulane, and is waiting to hear from the College. They are planning to make the reunion this fall. Hear that, Sig Eps?

Congratulations to Missy Galloway Parker on her recent marriage to Jake Lohr. Her daughter Lara is at UNC and living on her own, while Missy and Beth help Jake finish building a new house to move into this spring. Jake is a pediatrician at the UNC med school. Very best wishes to all.

Carolyn Lawhorne Ethridge writes that her son has fought a hard year against cancer, but is winning the battle and doing well back in school now. Carolyn also sent me an ad for Phytess Affairs clothes that she is designing — they're great looking. Hope '94 will be a good year for Carolyn's whole family.

Toni Biordi and her husband, Charlie diGangi, stopped to see us in November. They've had a busy year with Tony traveling to Madrid, Brussels, Prague and Berlin in her job for AT&T's international public affairs division. Son Dino has two more years in college at West Virginia, where he is studying environmental protection. Toni asked me to tell the Chi O's that she sent out a pass-along newsletter in the fall. The goal is to receive it, add something and send it along. Would whoever has it please send it on!

News from the geology department: John Bowman is a professor at the University of Utah. Last year he traveled to Australia and New Zealand. Barry Holliday is chief in the dredging section headquarters with the Army Corps of Engineers and is married with three children. David Rohr is a professor and chairman of the geology department at Sul Ross University in Texas. He participated in a National Science Foundation faculty enhancement program last summer on San Salvador Island, Bahamas — tough assignment, Dave! Betty Schreeves is a computer systems specialist for Iowa Electric Light and Power. Rich Sills is director, systems priorities and integration directorate, at Fort Monroe. Russ and Debbie Woods Smeds are in Northern Virginia where he is chief, quality improvement office, DMA Hydro/Topo Center. He recently retired from the Corps of Engineers. They have three children. Burt Waite is a senior geologist with Moody and Associates in Pennsylvania. His daughter graduated from college and his son who starts this fall. (Do you get the feeling that the Corps of Engineers would be lost without the W&M geology department?)

Let me steal a little thunder from Chris Sherman, our food critic, and tell you that the W&M Cookbook is excellent. I'm teaching Milton to eat food like George used to serve! We've had a good year both jobwise and funwise. We see a lot of Les '65 and Anne Bradstreet Smith. Now that their girls have graduated from U.Va. and Brad is a sophomore at Radford, they have a lot more time to play. We're headed to Augusta to celebrate the recent marriage of my brother Ridge '72.

We are looking forward to '94 and the reunion. I hope many of you will be able to come. There will be plenty of information over the next few months, but if you have questions, please call or write.

"Living in Florida," says Ashby Cockrell, "has been a lifelong goal of mine." Now that he's on Disney's doorstep, he is not disappointed. "It really is like being on a constant vacation (with interludes of necessary work)." Ashby, his wife, Sharon, and their two children moved to the Sunshine State (to Longwood, near Orlando) about three years ago. Ashby writes that he had some rough sailing in the mid-'80s, but "my life has been wonderful since then." He now works for American Fidelity, implementing "Section 125 pre-tax" plans. But that still leaves time for fishing, boating, swimming and golf. While on a recent excursion to the Magic Kingdom, Ashby struck up a conversation with someone wearing intricately embroidered mouse ears. It turned out to be "a mysterious stranger" who knows Steve Wilson. (Aside to S.W.: give Ashby a call).

Brew pubs and wine bars are the rage now, and some of our classmates are getting in on the action. Skip Stiles is partner in a Washington-area microbrewery that attracts an upscale clientele and suds-sipping celebrities. Mike Savage is part-owner of the London Wine Bar in San Francisco (he invites all Class of '71 alumni to visit for a complimentary glass of Zinfandel), and Kenny King works for Whitbread Breweries in London.

Sarah Johnson is director of the minority achievement program for the Williamsburg-James City County school system. Three years ago, she won the College's Martin Luther King Jr. Achievement Award for outstanding contributions to the community. Rev. James Kauffmann is pastor of the Annunciation Catholic Church in Caroline County, Va.

School principals used to be considered bad guys, but not any more. At least that's the feeling of Linda Stagg, who now holds the top job at Battlefield Park Elementary in the Richmond area. She prefers to consider herself the "instructional leader" of the school. In an article in the Times-Dispatch, Linda said what she most liked about her job was reading with children and seeing them master new skills. "That is what's been so nice about my entire career," she adds. "I always enjoy coming to work. I guess that's because I don't consider it work. It's part of my life."

In Roanoke, Rebecca Clark is an assistant professor in the nursing education program at the College of Health Sciences. The popular calendars published by the Miles Carpenter Museum in Waverly have featured drawings done by Thomas Perry, who teaches art in the lower school at Tidewater Academy (Tom's brother George is assistant director of alumni records at the Society of the Alumni). Joel Dexter teaches world history in the Chesterfield County school system. And Greg Rubano was last spotted teaching English at a high school in Warwick, R.I., while finishing work on his Ph.D. at the University of Connecticut. He recently co-authored a book entitled Enhancing Aesthetic Reading and Response.

Where Are They Now?: Cathy Slusser, Ted Yeiser, Carol Ware Gates, Mary Campbell, Jeff Shy, G. C. Morse, Bob Jendron, Eric Scudder, Elizabeth Tarpley, Charles Ritchey, Jeff Finnegan, Raymond Delaney, Scott Davis, Karen Bedsole, John Clymer, Raymona Rawls, Shawn Coggins, Marcella Whitson, Susan Whitney, Dave Bernd, Elizabeth Dowdy Dodds, Joanne Connelly and Suzanne Streagle Haase.

Lest this list keep getting longer, please write with a quick update on yourself or any other classmate. And have an exciting spring.

Homecoming 1993 (which yours truly could not attend due to new job demands) was a huge success according to all reports. Since 243 members of the Class of '73 attended, we baby-bombers were a big part of the festivities.

Here in western New York, the snow is piling up, the temps are dropping, and the Buffalo Bills went to the Super Bowl with the help of three ex-W&Mers: Marv Levy, Steve Christie '90 and Mark Kelso '85. Four Superbowls in a row — who says "three's a charm"?

Here now the news: Christmas cards from the following alums: Pete Dowd, Steve Snyder, Ron Martin '74 and Margaret Ann Dahlman Martin, Steve Noll '74, Jim Bigger '72, Randy and Shelby Hawthorne '67, and Reggie Clark '75, soon to be working in Atlanta with the Olympic Committee.

Almost part of Homecoming, Robert Brett Chance was married in the Wren Chapel on Oct. 30, 1993, to Sheryl J. Messerschmidt. The happy couple will continue to reside in Hampton, where Robert is vice president and investment officer for Wheat First Securities and Sheryl works for the city parks and recreation department.

Two other Virginians in our class have updated their whereabouts: Donald O'Donohue is teaching at J. Sargent Reynolds Community College in the health tech division-respiratory therapy. He and his family, which includes four kids, live in Midlothian. Paul F. Supan, currently in Leesburg, received his dental degree from MCV and did post-doctoral training at Harvard, the National Institutes of Health and the University of Rochester in New York.

News from the Rock Club finds K. Renee Davis, armed with her M.S. from Miami of Ohio, as a senior geologist at Helmerich & Payne, a Tulsa, Okla., oil company. Over in Greenville, N.C., Don W. Neal, after earning his Ph.D. from West Virginia University, is now associate professor of geology at East Carolina University. Don participated in a National Science Foundation project on modern carbonates in the Bahamas this past June.

In Pennsylvania, Laurie E. Coughlan (P.O. Box 3342, Gettysburg, PA 17325), is assistant chief of interpretation and visitor services for the Gettysburg National Military Park. She recently traveled to India as part of her assignment. A survivor of King Dorm, Phil Marshall, stopped after graduation at the University of Washington to get his M.S. before he hightailed it to Alaska. Phil teaches seventh grade math and English at the North Pole school of Fairbanks. He and wife Jan traveled the Brooks Range and to South Africa this summer before returning to Polhaven, 1300 Skyline Drive, Fairbanks AK 99712.

In Cintonville, David R. Adams recently completed executive training at Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service as part of his role as advisor to the deputy secretary of state. Suzette Kimball, after earning a master's from Indiana University and a Ph.D. from U.Va., is now in the department of environmental science at U.Va. where she is program coordinator on global chronic change and coastal dynamics. Last but not least, Tom Carawan is in Indianapolis with his new family: wife Cheryl (as of December 1990), a childhood friend from Norfolk, and three daughters, the last two since May 1992. The joys and wonder of family life are still sinking in on Thomas, who spends his days as vice president with David M. Griffith & Associates Ltd. Tom and Cheryl were on their way to Homecoming when their missive arrived.

Well, since all good things must come to pass, it's time to wrap up this edition of "How we are surviving the '90s." Keep up the correspondence and send me a note to help warm the cockles of my heart here in the lakes Erie and Ontario tundra. Keep the peace.

Traditions, Myths & Memories:

"A Book That Defies Description"

We wondered how good Traditions, Myths & Memories: 1693-1993 is, so we asked an alumnus for his reaction. Here is what he said:

"This book defies description. Whatever the era, you are there! And those you knew are there! Like no other, it captures the golden thread of Spirit that unites and links the generations each to each."—Davis Y. Paschall '32, President Emeritus

Sheldon H. Short III, descendant of two distinguished alumni of the College, has given 100 green and gold rosette lapel pins to William and Mary in honor of the university's Tercentenary. Green and gold are William and Mary's colors, as well as the colors of Short's ancestral plantation home, Wheatland, in Mecklenburg County, Va. Short, who served as the William O. Goode Scholar at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1987-88, counts among his ancestors the diplomat William Short, a secretary to Thomas Jefferson, and William Osborne Goode, a member of Congress in the mid-19th century, who studied law at William and Mary in the early 1800s.

Hi, everyone!

With the holidays behind us, this would normally be a time of quiet hibernation and rejuvenation for the Larsons. Not this year. After 16 wonderful and productive years with John Deere, David has been lured to a competitor's camp. He has become vice president of operations for Snapper Power and Equipment, and we are moving to Atlanta. At this time, we have no new address, so please continue to send news to our Wisconsin address. As luck would have it, I'll be spending the winter here.

Thanks for all your cards over the holidays. Darr '76 and Susan Harrison Barshis sent a charming card with their faces superimposed on the heads of some neighborhood colonial geese in Williamsburg. They're both busy — Darr with his real estate appraisal business, and Susan working for Hermitage Automation and Controls. They report that brother Dave Barshis '76 and wife Pat have a new daughter, Jessica Louise Barshis, born on Oct. 3. They also confirmed what a great 300th celebration William and Mary had and said that they enjoyed getting reacquainted with classmates at their annual tailgate party.

Paige Auer Winck included pictures of husband Mike and sons Adam and Ryder in full fishing regalia, but Paige's likeness resembled a Rembrandt. Something fishy! Paige has two part-time jobs. She's a government lawyer and the director of women's ministries at their church. She promises to share the recipe for the family meal she prepared this year.

Now I know why I missed Shelley Nix in London in September. She was in Paris, and everywhere else. She took a sabbatical, a gift for working for Metaphor for five years, and traveled to Spain and France on a great vacation. She managed to get home for Homecoming, too. Shelley keeps busy with aikido and her jewelry-making hobby.

Jerry Johnson and wife Ann also made it to Homecoming. Jerry said the Academic Symposium was great. They also attended a dinner for Dr. Charlotte Mangum, and were able to raise $2,500 for her research. Jerry commented that the statue of Lord B. has appropriately returned to the front of the Wren Building.

The Alumni Society sent lots of notes. Susan Stancill was married to Clarence Lee Poe Jr. on July 23 in the Wren Chapel. Susan is a teacher with the Virginia Beach City Schools and lives in Williamsburg.

Patricia Ferguson was married to James Watkinson on Aug. 14. She and her husband are currently completing Ph.D.s in history at U.Va. and live in Charlottesville.

Kathryn Reynolds Duplantis was working as a dermatologist in Arkansas, but has moved to Texas with her husband, Allen Duplantis, a cardiologist. They have one daughter, Lauren, 12. Kathryn's twin sister, Katy Reynolds, is an internist with the military, doing research in Massachusetts.

Marilyn Conwell has an M.S. in geology from the University of Illinois at Chicago. She and her husband, Barry Anderson, live in Bridgeport, Conn.

David Moison is employed with Chase Manhattan Bank and lives in Glen Moore, Pa.

Jan Rivero Godwin is director of the Wesley Foundation at U.Va. She has two children and lives in Charlottesville.

James Westgate is assistant professor of geology at Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas.

Scott Barnhill has an M.S. in geotechnical engineering from Virginia Tech. Scott is vice president with Geo Environmental Resources Inc. in Virginia Beach. With three partners, he started his own consulting and engineering firm providing environmental, geotechnical, asbestos/lead-based paint and industrial engineering.

Mark Blanchard teaches earth science at his old high school, West Springfield, in Fairfax County.

Russell Ellison is UST program manager with the State Water Control Board. Russell and Mary have two children and live in Richmond.

Betty Jeanne France has an M.S. from Brown University. Betty is a geoscience computer support technician with Mobil Oil. She lives in Midland, Texas, with her two dogs and five backyard turtles.

William Hogg is an environmental consultant with the Law Environmental Group in Atlanta. He and Kimberly have two children, Laura and Stephen.

Marianne Moseley Dodge has an M.S. from the University of Texas at Austin, and has been doing some consulting work. She has two children and lives in Green Oaks, Ill.

Theodore Picard is vice president in retail sales with the Country Vintner, a fine wine distributor that takes him to vineyards around the world. He and Mary Healy '76 have three children and live in Springfield, Va.

Mark Duffner was the subject of a great article which ran in the Fairfax Journal on Aug. 23, 1993. It talks about Mark as a hard working athlete at Annandale High, his football career at W&M playing for Lou Holtz, his assistantships under Woody Hayes at Ohio State, his great record as head coach at Holy Cross, and now his leadership at the University of Maryland. Mark claims to be a better defensive coach, but his team set or tied 27 school records in '92. The article credits Mark with the enthusiasm and ability to make another great winning team.

You may have noticed that Dave and I led the Wisconsin Badgers to a Rose Bowl victory and a Big Ten Championship this year. Having accomplished that, we're going to be working very hard on sending the Atlanta Braves to the World Series. Y'all come!

The information superhighway is here; you are reading the first Alumni Gazette column submitted via electronic mail! Which gives me an idea: why not submit your news for the next column via e-mail? My Internet and Bitnet addresses are listed above. If enough classmates are interested, I would be willing to help compile a W&M Class of 1977 directory of e-mail addresses.

I have so much news to report, I don't know where to begin! I guess I'll start with the oldest news and work my way to the present. I received a letter from Carolyn Testa Rye in September. She reported that after nearly four years in northern New Jersey, Laurie Bond Mitchell joined the ranks of many former classmates who have passed through New Jersey on their corporate career paths (or in Laurie's case her husband Chris' career path!). Laurie, Chris, Katie, 4, and Max, 8 months, have transferred to the L.A. suburbs. Laurie will be completing her Ph.D. in accounting at Columbia long distance. Carolyn noted that she has faith that our former student body president will rise to the occasion! Carolyn, husband Ken, and Dana, 8, and Daniel, 4, began their annual two-week "southern wing" with a weekend at Wintergreen Resort in the Blue Ridge. Their hosts were Don '74 and Betsy Johnson Garber. Williamsburg was the final leg of the trip. Dana fit right in with all the other 8- to 12-year-old girls walking around the Burg who have read the Felicity book from the American Girls Collection! Carolyn is serving in her third year as chairman of the Parent Education Committee at Dana's school. The committee's speaker series and parent library have been very well received. Carolyn reported that she has a number of excellent articles on topics including whole language, learning styles, critical thinking and many more. She would be willing to share this information with interested classmates.

Mark and I made it to Williamsburg for Homecoming. Even though it was not a reunion year for our class, the Tercentenary Homecoming celebration was the best Homecoming ever! We didn't attend a large number of the events, but those in which we did take part were positively wonderful. We went to the Homecoming Parade (which was great, especially the Class of 1963's contingent), but skipped the football game (after all, we didn't want to deprive any reunion-year alums of seats). The free all-day pass to Busch Gardens was a vice nice consolation prize. While at Busch Gardens, we ran into Jerrold Epstein and Chris Felder while waiting to see the alchemy show (where else would you expect chemistry majors to go?) Jerrold is still practicing dentistry in Northern Virginia and has a number of classmates as patients. Chris' latest news was the arrival of a son over the summer (see the Vital Statistics section for the details). While Alexander waited outside with his mom, Lauren, 11, accompanied her dad inside the show. We didn't run into any other classmates until we were riding the shuttle to the parking lot at closing time. Peggy Schott gave us a brief run down on her news: she has left Dow and Michigan and is now working at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

John Sculley, former chief executive officer of Apple Computer, received the T.C. and Elizabeth Clarke School of Business Medallion at William and Mary in January. The school's most prestigious award, the medallion is presented annually to an individual whose distinguished career as a contributor to the profession of management represents the highest standards of professionalism and integrity. It is named in honor of T. C. and Elizabeth Clarke in recognition of their exemplary generosity and support of the School of Business Administration, whose faculty select the award recipient. Mr. Clarke is a member of the class of 1922. Sculley, a former executive of PepsiCo, most recently headed Spectrum Information Technology Inc.

Roger Danier came for Homecoming, as I found out from the letter I received from him shortly after Christmas. The letter was his first submission to the Class Notes column, so he had a lot of catching up to report! After he completed medical school, Roger joined the Navy and completed a four-year orthopedic surgical residency at the Naval Hospital in Oakland, Calif. He was then stationed in Naples, Italy, for two years before returning to Oakland, where he was on the teaching staff in the orthopedic surgery program. In 1990, he resigned his commission from the Navy and joined an orthopedic group in the Bay Area in California: his practice specialty is shoulder and knee injuries. Roger also noted that he is married and has two children.

Christmas cards are always a good source of news. I found out that Jo Ann Langley made it to Williamsburg for Homecoming and also skipped the football game in favor of Busch Gardens. Unfortunately, our paths didn't cross! Mark Stratner wrote that he decided to stay in Washington, D.C., and see the statue of Freedom returned to the Capitol dome rather than go to Homecoming.

Pam Walker's Christmas letter won the prize for most creative. Pam teaches high school French and Spanish in Northern Virginia. Her news for 1993 came in the form of a multiple-choice quiz! She had compassion for those of us who hadn't taken a test in quite some time; the answers were provided at the bottom of the page. In addition to being active with her church, Pam had a poem published in Christian Single and began her most exciting teaching adventure yet, sponsoring the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Terri Shelton was promoted to associate professor at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center and continues to enjoy her work there as a clinical psychologist. She went back to Alexandria, Va., for her 20th reunion at Saint Agnes School and made a second trip to Alexandria to give the commencement address at Saint Agnes in June. Terri noted that W&M classmate Karen Claussen Shields, who was also a classmate at Saint Agnes, attended the reunion as well. Terri also learned in November that Karen is pregnant. Karen and Mark already have three very active boys — best wishes!

Zack and Judy Sirota Perdue took their children Katherine and Michael to Japan in April. While there, they visited Kathy Eason; Kathy was still working for IBM, but should be in New York City by now. While in Japan, the Perdues visited a number of places, including Tokyo Disneyland. It isn't too hard to guess what the kids liked best!

Diane Hull Gansauer had a more exciting year than she had bargained for. Diane and Bob and daughter Grete moved to their new home in Evergreen, Colo., in March. Diane's new job didn't work out, so she embarked on a job search in the fall. She started as the executive director of the Colorado Wildlife Federation in January.

I also received a Christmas letter from Deb Habel in Portland, Ore. She is still job-sharing at Intel in the sales and marketing group for personal computer products. Deb is expecting her second child in April. Because of the low birth weight of Ian almost two years ago, Deb was told to scale back her normal active pace in mid-February, and may be on bed rest for eight to 10 weeks. By the time this column goes to print, she should be coming down home stretch. Check the Vital Statistics section of the May or June issue for the details!

The Alumni Society sent me some tidbits as well. Peggy Casterline Bowen is still with the U.S. House of Representatives. She went on a business/pleasure trip to San Antonio and El Paso in November. She and Chip have one child and live in Darnestown, Md. Walter Craig is the president of AMA Analytical Services Inc. in Lanham, Md. AMA is an environmental testing laboratory specializing in asbestos analysis. Walter and Becky have three daughters and live in Oakton, Va.

Paul Cullum recently received his J.D. cum laude from Seton Hall Law School and has begun a legal career with the law firm of Crummy, Del Deo in their corporate litigation department. Paul and Diana Dubel have three children and reside in Lincroft, N.J. Cindy Folsom Murphy is manager of the analytical services group at Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp. She has been going on business trips to such diverse places as Syracuse and Albuquerque! Cindy has two children; the Murphy family lives in Austin, Texas.

Peggy Leonard Clark is an artist; she spent last summer at the Cape School of Art in Massachusetts and has been working on pastel and oil portraiture, impressionist landscape painting and classical sculpture during the year. Jerry and Ann Markel Samford have their own company, Virginia Geotechnical Services in Richmond. They have two daughters.

Jeff Phinisey is an independent consultant and a Ph.D. candidate at Mackay School of Mines. He is doing M.S. field work in the Burns Basin disseminated gold deposit, Independence Range, Elko County, Nev. Jeff and Susan and their two children reside in Reno.

Ben Smith is an estimator at Lane Brothers Inc. in Richmond. He and Nancy Singer '78 have two sons and live in Midlothian, Va. John Stanley is vice president of ENSAT Corp., an environmental consulting company, and president of Stanley Petroleum Products. John and his family, which includes two sons, reside in Culpeper, Va.

Mary Corner received her Ph.D. in molecular genetics from UNC Chapel Hill in 1987. She is a research associate at Duke, cloning out cardiac potassium channel genes for structure-function analysis of the proteins and for studying transcriptional regulation of the genes. Mary also has a side career in sacred music.

Joe '75 and Judy Huffard Steele are the owners of Caroline Furniture Store on Richmond Road in Williamsburg. Their business has grown steadily over the years, primarily as a result of their commitment to listening to and meeting the needs of their customers. An article in an October issue of the Virginia Gazette highlighted the Steeles and their business philosophy. Last fall, Carolina Furniture hosted Market Week, a mini furniture market for customers. Joe was quoted as saying that the event was sort of like a week of furniture college or "February 101." I wonder if customers got continuing education credit or academic credit for their involvement?

Believe it or not, I am finally out of things to report! Be sure to get your news to me by April 6 so I can include it in my next column, which will appear in the June issue of the Alumni Gazette.

Happy New Year! I hope by now most of you are enjoying the beginnings of spring. As I write this in mid-January, even sunny Florida is cold, and many of you are enduring blizzards.

I received a great letter from Maj. Duane Williams, who is now stationed at Fort Hood, Texas, along with his wife, Maj. Deborah Williams. They are very glad to be together after a year of separation while he was in Korea with the 2nd Infantry Division and she attended the Command and General Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Duane is now the chief, G2 plans officer in the 1st Cavalry Division. Deborah is the assistant operations director for the Headquarters, III Corps. Duane is proud to share that his daughter, Tonya, is now attending W&M as a sophomore studying psychology. Dad sends wishes for a very "Happy New Year to Tonya.... I love her very much!"

Wedding bells rang for Mayes Marks Jr., who married Nancy McLeod Atwater in November. I told you last time about Mayes' many civic activities, which he manages in addition to his law practice in Hopewell, Va. His new bride is the owner of Atwater Dance Studio in Hopewell. Joel Roberts Branscom married Ann Gardner in Cave Spring, Va., with a reception on board the Virginia Dare on Smith Mountain Lake. Both the bride and groom are attorneys working for the City of Roanoke, assistant Commonwealth attorney's office (Anyone remember Jackson Browne's song "Lawyers in Love"?). Not only lawyers fall in love: David Black, who works for Hydro Geologic in Herndon, Va., married Trixie Lacosta last summer. The Blacks now live in Falls Church.

Several classmates have gained fame through their extracurricular activities: Jane Romanczyk McNaught returned to Williamsburg to win the division of the Lake Matoaka Trail Challenge, a 4.3-mile race. Jane ran cross-country for W&M and has competed in other area road races, but to do so well on the familiar trails of college training days must have felt great!

JEUTTER NAMED PARTNER IN LAW FIRM

Gerald A. "Jeb" Jeutter '82 has been named partner in the North Carolina law firm of Petree Stockton. Jeutter heads the firm's creditors' rights practices in Raleigh. Jeutter's professional associations include: membership in the Chapter 7 Panel of Bankruptcy Trustees for the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Eastern District of North Carolina, service on the executive committee of the Federal Bar Association's Programs Committee of its Bankruptcy Section and service on the Bankruptcy Rules Committee of the American Bankruptcy Institute. He also is active in many civic organizations. Jeutter received his LL.M. degree from the Georgetown Law Center in 1987. A Richmond native, he and his wife, Michelle, have one daughter.

Waynesboro, have landed some of the best roles in Virginia regional theatre circuits, most recently appearing in See How They Run with the Town Mountain Players in Lovington. David played Clive, and Linda was the maid, Ida. His favorite plays have been Lil Abner, Mornings at Seven and Night Witch. He has participated in productions with Wordstage Readers Theatre in Arlington and the Springfield Community Theater.

The geology department news included notes of great success for our classmates. Riley Campbell is senior operations geologist for Petromer Trend Corp. in Indonesia. Riley lived in Thailand for seven years and was married there. He and his wife now live in Jakarta. Karen Bice spent the summer working for Shell Oil in New Orleans and returned this fall to continue her Ph.D. at Penn State. She has a daughter, Marley. James Coogan earned his Ph.D. at the University of Wyoming and is now an exploration geologist with Mobil Exploration in Denver, Colo.

Douglas Cook completed his M.S. at Eastern Kentucky University. He and his wife, June, have a son and live in Fairfax, Va. Betsy Frick is a ground-water hydrologist for the U.S. Geological Survey. She and her husband, David Wallace, live in Reno, Nev. Charles Lutz earned a Ph.D. from the University of Tennessee and is a geologist with Martin Marietta Energy, Systems in Oak Ridge, Tenn. Richard Lutz (M.S., Old Dominion University) heads the underground hydrogeology department of IMS Co. of Norfolk. Steven Mittweide completed both his M.S. and Ph.D. at the University of South Carolina and is the chief geologist for McCracken Associates in Ankara, Turkey. He and his wife, Dana, and their four sons have lived in Turkey for more than a year. David Turner now works for the Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio, Texas, after earning his Ph.D. at the University of Utah.

Several geology grads have pursued other career paths with equal success. John Ryan Monroe completed his M.A. in bilingual education at the University of Maryland and now teaches with the San Francisco public schools. Susan Prince Havens is a graduate gemologist and has her own jewelry design business. She and husband Keith live in Albion, Mich., with their two sons. Cynthia Stemple is co-owner of Fox Interiors with Mark Fox '77. They decorate walls with hand-painted faux finishes to look like marble and granite. Their business is flourishing as it approaches its seventh year in Reno, Nev. Janet Hart West recently moved to Yucaipa, Calif., with her husband, Robert, and their two daughters. She began the Texas certification program to teach earth science before moving and planned to continue the process in California. Susan Williams Cutts owns and manages a pick-your-own vegetable and berry farm with her father and is co-owner of Jessie and Michael's Personalized Books in Danville. Her enterprises, along with her 1-year-old daughter, Jessie, keep her busy.

Just to show you that not only geology majors and lawyers are enjoying success and happiness, Jim Pearce (business administration) of Herndon became director of sales and marketing this past fall for Samson Financial Group, a Northern Virginia real estate investment firm. He had previously been vice president of Peoples National Bank of Warrenton and worked with Wheat, First Securities.

Thanks to the geology department and Major Williams for the news. For the next newsletter (deadline: April 5) let's hear from some other "majors."

Happy New Year! Thought I'd start the column with a big THANK YOU to the other members of our 10th reunion committee (Sue Newman, Bob Newman, Chrys Lonick-Dermody, Julian White and Elizabeth Young-Kirksey), the Dimeslots and all 501 attendees at our class party (which, by the way, was a record sell-out crowd). A good time was had by all. My only regret is that I didn't take written notes while I was catching up on everyone's news; for this column, I'm relying on mental notes, so I apologize in advance if I get anyone's story wrong.

Didn't the years just fade away... It was such fun to run into folks, like my freshmen roommate at Yates, Pamela Appleby Wright (and her family) as well as both high school and college buddy Tyler Leinbach, who recently relocated from Indianapolis back to the Tidewater area with wife Sunshine Meredith. Funny how small the world is; both Tyler's mom and my parents recently moved into the same condo complex in Wyomissing, Pa.

And didn't the conversations cover a wide variety of topics, from a chat with Caroline Ann Muller Cooley and her husband about two-career couples juggling parental responsibilities (a topic familiar to both the Cooleys and the Martins!) to a sidebar with Kim Crase Claytor about similar business/work experiences. (Kim, who with husband Joe is expecting her first child, works for MCI; I'm working on 11 years with Bell Atlantic.)

Unfortunately, some folks were unable to attend the reunion — but for very good reasons. Like Mary Ann Wood Taylor and husband Greg. The Taylors recently celebrated the birth of their first child, Joseph Francis. Since Joseph was due on Oct. 18, all Homecoming plans were canceled — even though, as things turned out, Joseph was two weeks late. Greg is still doing well as an attorney for the FDIC in Washington; Mary Ann recently left IBM and is happily staying home for a while with Joseph.

Thanks to a later due date, Lauralyn Sessoms Cooper and husband William David Cooper Jr. '79 were able to both attend Homecoming and celebrate the birth of their "tercentenary" baby on Dec. 12. Bob and Judy Spooner Carpenter also recently had a little girl, Gracie.

I don't know about your part of the country, but as I'm writing this column in the midst of yet another Bucks County ice/sleet/rain/snowstorm, I'm so ready for spring. Similarly, Rani Anne reports that she's wallowing in the snow up in Boston, and since she has another 1-1/2 years of residency left, it looks like she'll be there another winter.

Speaking of school, congratulations to Lydia Bernstein for completing her Ph.D. in Spanish literature at the University of Texas in Austin. Currently an assistant professor of Spanish at St. Mary's College of Maryland, Lydia and her 5-year-old daughter, Miriam, are happy back in the natural environment of the Tidewater region. Lydia is also preparing articles for publication based on her dissertation subject, a 16th-century Spanish poet.

News clippings from the Alumni Society included details of J. Richard Welsh's wedding to Mary Graham last August in Ithaca, N.Y., where he is a doctoral candidate at Cornell. Also married last August in the Wren Chapel were John Andre Mitrovic and Suzanne Stedler. John is a physical therapist at Williamsburg Physical Therapy. And planning a wedding next May is Dr. Matthew Alan Galumbeck, who is completing a fellowship in plastic surgery at the Medical College of Hampton Roads, to Cynthia Diane Marttala.

I really enjoyed reading an article from last summer entitled "The Metallic Menagerie," which appeared in The Virginian-Pilot and the Ledger-Star and is about fellow classmate and wildlife sculptor David Turner and his father/partner, William Turner. The Turners run Turner Sculpture Art Gallery and Bronze Foundry on the Eastern Shore, and their work is featured in places like the University of Virginia, the Philadelphia Zoo and the American Museum of Natural History in N.Y.C. I also received an article highlighting another fine-arts classmate, Charlotte Graham-Clark, who owns and operates Primavera-The Crafts Gallery in Virginia Beach. The shop offers a wide selection of hand-crafted jewelry, pottery and wood items. And yet another article spotlighted the efforts of fellow Homecoming committee members Julian White and Elizabeth Young-Kirksey. Julian (who works at United Network for Organ Sharing) and Elizabeth helped to establish the Hulton Willis Association of the Society of the Alumni, an African-American alumni group named after the first African-American student to attend the College.

That's it for now. Keep warm; take care; be good!

In my last note I asked you all to fill me in on who you saw at Homecoming. The cards and letters came pouring in. The first one I opened was from Patty Anderson, who wrote from her hotel room that weekend. (What did we do before we had laptops? This article sure took a lot longer to write!) Patty caught up with Lorac Hintz Lawton, husband Johnnie and daughter Grace, Sharon Doherty Jahn, husband Jeff and daughter Amanda, and Kevin and Chrysa Hubert Cullather

(who was 8 months pregnant). Since getting her Ph.D. in economics from Princeton in 1991, Patty has been living in Hanover, N.H., where she bought a new house and is enjoying life as a professor. Patty says that Dartmouth College is a lot like W&M, except covered in snow! Lorac is teaching a class of third- and fourth-graders in a school in Prince Georges County, Md., that is at the forefront in the mainstreaming of special ed students. The real focus of her life is her 2-year-old, Grace. The Lawtons live in Springfield. Sharon is working on her M.S. in risk management at VCU and has classes with Ted Shin. Both Sharon and Jeff are still working at Blue Cross Blue/Blue Shield of Virginia, but their main work is raising their daughter, Amanda, who just turned 2. Kevin and Chrysa gave birth to Margaret Claire (Maggie). Kevin is publishing an article in Presidential Studies Quarterly, while Chrysa has been published in a bulletin by the U.S. Geological Survey.

Some of Patty's friends were unable to make it to Homecoming. Lisa Ingrassia Fregly and her husband, Mark, have returned from working in El Paso, Texas, for two years. Lisa is a senior network engineer at Open Networks and was down there working on a major program for a client. Also unable to attend were Heather Ames Breenan and Bill Brennan, who are enjoying their baby girl Maura, born in May 1993. Wendy Rudolph and Dwayne Leo Therriault had hoped to make it down, but Wendy had to work at her job as an optometrist for Kaiser Permanente, so only Leo went. Leo is putting his master's in Asian Studies (from Yale) to good work at the State Department. They have just bought a house in Falls Church. Although Patty had to miss the Rudolph-Therriault nuptials last December, it was quite the gathering of W&M alums. Attendants included Carol Epling, Diane Desmond, Lorraine Groves '86 and Lorac Hintz Lawton while the guests included Sharon Doherty Jahn, Kevin and Chrysa Cullather, Julia Shen Farr '84, '87, J.D. and Evan Farr '87 J.D., Heather Ames Brennan and Bill Brennan, and Cara McCarthy.

Patty ran into other old friends at Homecoming, including Chip Roberson, who is a software engineer in Raleigh, N.C. Richard Ambler '86 is teaching high school in Williamsburg, and his wife, Ginger, is in the administration at W&M. Janet Stotts Koschmeder and Mark Koschmeder have a new baby, Jamie Hunter, born last summer. Bob Seal '84 is in northern New Jersey now. Bob was with Kelly McDaniel Whitney '84 and Jimmy Whitney and their son, Tyler. Kelly is now coordinator of donor services with the Red Cross in Roanoke, and Jimmy is using his CPA as office administrator for a law firm there. Gordon Ward '86 is living in Philadelphia, and Larry Griffith '86 is working in admissions for Gonzaga in Washington, D.C. Kevin and Chrysa ran into Charles Carson '86 and daughter Chelsea. Charles works for Merrill Lynch and lives in Virginia Beach with his wife, Adrienne, Chelsea and other daughter Nicole. Rick Larrick '86 completed his Ph.D. in psychology at Michigan and is now a professor at the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business. Diana Street Tracey and her husband, Lance, are very busy with their son Ryan, 2, and were expecting a baby in January. Diana is working half time as a social worker in the adoptions division of social services of Prince Georges County, Md. They bought a home in Alexandria, Va., and hope to build a sand volleyball court in back.

After Homecoming, Patty Anderson ran into David Ribar '83 at a conference in D.C. where they were both presenting papers. David is an economics professor at Penn State. Patty saw Daphne McMurrer in Cambridge, Mass. Daphne and her husband moved there after he finished his Ph.D. in economics at Duke.

Elizabeth Wiseman Pitts and her husband, Rob, have a beautiful baby girl, Mary Rebekah, born in August. Elizabeth teaches Latin, but would much rather spend all of her time with the baby.

Julie Gedro has made a career change. After four years as a teaching tennis professional (the last two were at Salisbury Country Club in Richmond), Julie is now in MIS working for the southeast region of a medical-practice-management software firm. Julie completed her M.B.A. in information systems management at Kennesaw College in December 1992 and landed a position the following June as product specialist with Interactive Planning Systems, which provides bank accounting software. Now living in Atlanta, Julie still plays tennis and is on an AA Alta (Atlanta Lawn Tennis League) city champion team. Her USTA 5.0 team is currently in first place. She has also been cycling and traveling a great deal. And if that isn't enough to keep her busy, Julie is a volunteer for the Georgia Council on Child Abuse as a member of their speakers' bureau and is a member and former national and governmental affairs committee chair for the Atlanta Chapter of the American Society for Training and Development.

John McGee is now director of the AIDS Resource Center in his hometown of Chattanooga, Tenn., after serving as director of communications for the Church of the Good Shepard on Lookout Mountain. John attended Homecoming and watched the parade with Emily Clark Hines, who is a music teacher living in Burtonsville, Md., and Catharine Hart Liddle, who in the past year has purchased her first home (with husband Alex) in Scotch Plains, N.J. At the reception for English majors hosted by Professor John Conlee and retired Professor Davis Jenkins at the South Wren Outhouse, John saw Laurie Anne Powell, now a lawyer in Northern Virginia, as well as a number of English majors now living in London who had made the trip across the Atlantic for the 300th anniversary. John also keeps in touch with Rob Smith, who lives in Columbia, S.C., but travels the Southeast to train system managers on Microsoft programs.

After receiving her M.S. in accounting from U.Va. in January 1993, Jennifer Alcantara Shirley moved to Nashville and is working on the tax staff of Price Waterhouse. Jennifer married Captain Glenn Shirley (a Georgia Southern University graduate) last June in Nashville. Sue Easton '87 was a bridesmaid. Sue is managing editor of a cosmetic industry trade publication and lives in Chevy Chase, Md. Also making it down was Susan Umschied '86. Susan is now working for AT&T International in New Jersey and always seems to be jetting off to London. Jennifer's husband, Glenn, is stationed with the U.S. Army at Fort Rucker, Ala.

Richard Jones is engaged to Gabrielle Kesler and plans a May wedding in Williamsburg. Both Richard and Gabrielle work for Eagle Associates.

Julie Jones married Albert Kaehn last August. The happy couple honeymooned at Niagara Falls and Toronto and then returned to Manassas, Va., where Julie works for Mortgage Service America Co. and Albert works for Sprint Communications.

Anne Hiller received her M.S. at the University of Delaware and is now an environmental scientist at the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control. Last May she presented a paper on bioremediation of petroleum-contaminated soil at an International Hazardous Waste Management Conference. Then in June she married Mark Clark, who recently completed his Ph.D. in the history of technology. Anne and Mark live in Delaware.

Nancy Holley Olexa is working for ITT in Washington, D.C., and lives in Alexandria, Va. Milt Johnston received his M.A. in public administration last May and is a sanitation supervisor at the Virginia Beach Health District. Sean Kavanaugh is also in the Tidewater area living in Virginia Beach.

Victoria Martinez has an M.S. from Washington State and is working for Parametrix Inc., an environmental and civil engineering consulting firm in Kirkland, Wash. Lori Pickenpaugh Thorpe lives in Manassas and is staying home to take care of her 2-year-old son, Michael.

John Rodgers is a director of environmental services with Bissell Associates. He is studying to pass the North Carolina licensing exam for professional geologists and ran for a local SCS seat last November. Terri Watson is working on her Ph.D. at Oregon State University and took a one-year sabbatical to work for the NOLS teaching expedition, sailing around Baja and mountaineering in India, Chile and Alaska.

Lori Ball Belateche works at Dames and Moore Geotechnical Engineering Division in California. Martin Cox is an analyst with the U.S. government and lives in Reston. Keith Delong lives in Virginia Beach and is teaching earth science at Bayside Junior High School.

Karin Edwards Richardson lives in Illinois where she is a drafter with the Naperville Department of Transportation Engineering Office. David Gardner received his M.S. from the University of Wisconsin and is a senior geologist with Exxon. He and his wife, Janice, live in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Mary Gorman is a senior geologist in the Ground Water Remediation Program with the State Water Control Board in Richmond. Shirley Hilbish Green is an administrator and analyst at Karen Coltrane '87 has been promoted to the position of associate director of capital support at William and Mary after serving since 1991 as director of annual support, which included responsibility for the William and Mary Fund. Coltrane, who majored in economics at William and Mary, joined Signet Bank as a branch manager after graduation. As director of annual support, which also includes the senior class gift program and School of Education Fund, Coltrane increased alumni participation in the William and Mary Fund 65 percent and gifts from $1.3 million annually to $1.65 million. Bethany Taylor '94 has been named associate director of annual support. A search is underway for a new director of annual support.

Technology Strategies and is also working on her teaching certificate. She and her husband, Jeff, have a son and live in Reston, Va.

Michael Caughey lives in Virginia Beach and is working as an emergency room doctor, while his wife Trudy is temporarily "retired" from her graphic artist job in order to take care of their two children. Michael is also submitting pieces as a free-lance writer, including a short article in American Medical News. Although Virginia Beach is home, Michael says they miss their New York/New Jersey roots, the snow, skiing, the Giants and the "Big Apple" night life.

Jennifer Newell married James Ferris, M.D., a radiologist, in 1990. She finished her four years of combined neonatology and general pediatric practice in 1992 and then moved to Pittsburgh, where she is in private practice. Jennifer's most exciting night on call was April 13, 1993, when she assisted with the delivery of her own nephew, John Sherman Newell.

Sharon Wim McKiernan is living in Vienna, where she is attending medical school and will then be an Army doctor. Sharon spent three and a half years in Germany and three years at Fort Bragg, N.C., with the 82nd Airborne Division and XVIII Airborne Corps. In 1992 she came off active duty and chose to spend a year at home as housewife and mom. Her husband, Army Captain Brian McKiernan, and she have a wonderful daughter, Natalie Winn McKiernan, born in September 1992. Brian is still at Fort Bragg until his command is up, and then he will join Sharon in Virginia.

Sharon sees Janet Payne Papazis a bit. Janet lives in Fayetteville, N.C., with her husband, Jim. She is a captain in the N.C. National Guard, working on a physical therapy degree and working for The Limited Corp. Sharon also keeps in touch with Susan Hudgins Hood, who is living at Fort Bragg with her husband, Tommy. Susan is also a captain in the N.C. National Guard and is working full time as an emergency room nurse in Fayetteville. And she keeps up her ice skating and teaching.

John and Margie Johnson Bessler were also at Fort Bragg and are now enjoying living in Vicenza, Italy. Margie and John have two children, Andrew and Emily. Steve Johnson '84 is also at Fort Bragg.

Sharon Winn McKiernan's sister, Doreen Winn Gonzalez '84, is expecting her third child this month. Manny VII is now 3 and Amanda is 1. Doreen and her husband, Manuel, are both lawyers working in New York and New Jersey. Doreen is with the law firm of Winn, Banta, Rizzi, Hetherington and Basralian in Hackensack, N.J., and Manny is with the law offices of Joseph Ginarte in Newark, N.J.

Thomas Cook wrote from Hawaii to fill us in on what he has been up to since graduation. He graduated from medical school at the University of Virginia in 1990 and has spent the last three years in an emergency medicine residency with the Army at Fort Hood, Texas. He completed his residency last June. During the second year of residency he married Natasha Mahmood from Richmond, Va. Now Thomas and Natasha live in Oahu, where he has been assigned as a staff physician in the emergency department of Tripler Army Medical Center.

Sue Valinski Palmer is even farther from the Burg. She is living in Bangkok, Thailand, with her husband, Monty, where they both work for the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). In early October, Kevin and Kathleen Varley Leslie '87 visited Sue and Monty for a week. Kevin and Kathleen were midway through their year-long trip around the world. Also in October Sue came to the U.S. on business and visited with Tom and Christine Ferguson Myers '86 and with Tracey Wright Laws at her new house in Manassas, Va.

Dwight '83 and I saw a few old faces over the holidays. Bert Ray '82 was in the D.C. area visiting family and invited some friends for a skiing adventure at Bryce. Jeff Kane-Seitz '83, his wife, Marie, and their son, Zachary, made it down from New York. Todd Canterbury '83 and his wife, Beatrice, showed off their cross-country skiing and their dog, Orson, a bull mastiff. Bert is still living in Anchorage and practicing environmental law. At our Boxing Day party we caught up with some friends. Eric Morrison and his wife, Grace, showed off their adorable son, James Malloy (Jamie), born last May. Eric and Grace bought a house in Silver Spring, Md., and Eric is practicing dentistry while Grace is doing double duty practicing periodontics and teaching at the University of Maryland. Eric is still shooting and has shot and won in two state Olympic festivals. Dan Timberlake '84 and his wife, Paula Otto, were visiting family and stopped by on their way home. Dan and Paula built a house on a lake in Mechanicsville and moved in on Thanksgiving.

On a weekend excursion to Richmond, Dwight and I visited Bob Nicol '83, his wife, Shelly, and their two daughters, Julie and Kimberly. The Richmond gang introduced us to a great pizza joint. Joining in the fun were Scott '84 and Andrea Smelzer Brazil '87, Brad Kemp '83 and Ron Seal '83. We also caught up with Brent Greenwald '84 and his fiancée, Patti, and Linda Wray Donaldson '84 and her husband, Tom. Brent and Patti bought a house near the river in Richmond, and Linda and Tom live in Great Falls, Va.

Bruce Grant '83 and Gigi Schnepf '84 hosted a football playoff party in January, where I ran into Dave and Diane Limm Warren. They had just returned from a two-week vacation in France and England. While in London they visited Mark '83 and Bobbi Flatin '83. Mark works for Wachovia Bank in London. Diane also brought news that Janet Lawson Klingenburg '86 and her husband, Carl, have moved to Richmond. Janet passed the CPA exam on the first try.

Billy and Susan Davis Garvey have moved from Charlotte to Tampa, Fla., and are celebrating the birth of their first baby, Sarah Elizabeth, born in December. Debbie Packman has completed her Ph.D. in psychology and is planning a July wedding to Paul Priebe. Demetra Yepanis Kontos and her husband, Chris '84, have moved to North Carolina where Chris is doctoring at Duke.

Ron '84 and Annette Blackman Harlow are enjoying Atlanta. Ron completed his first semester of business school with a 4.0 (Is this the same Ron Harlow?) He was also promoted to manager of negotiations in the transportation department at Georgia-Pacific. Annette is still working part time at Kidder, Peabody and taking care of their two children, 4-year-old Melissa and 2-year-old Austin.

My next deadline is April 8. Hope to hear from you.

Marine Capt. Joe George was deployed to Somalia with the 22nd Marine Expeditionary Unit, based at Camp Lejeune, N.C., as part of the USS Guadalcanal Amphibious Ready Group in October. Joe joined the Marines in May 1987.

Susan Winiacki is a reporter for the Richmond Times-Dispatch. She received the 1993 Distinguished Service Award from the Virginia Press Women. The award recognizes professional excellence as well as service to the group. Susan is currently first vice president of the Virginia Press Women. She primarily covers Chesterfield County government, and began with the paper in 1989 in the community news department.

Karla Palmer Repke has joined the law firm of McDermott, Will & Emery as an associate in the litigation department.

Barbara L. Pederson has joined the firm of Saul, Ewing, Remick & Saul as an associate. She'll concentrate on estate planning, administration and tax issues. Barbara received her law degree from John Marshall Law School and is currently a May 1994 LL.M. candidate at Temple University School of Law. The firm is based in Philadelphia.

Deborah Frost spent two years traveling through Europe and the United States after graduation. She is currently a signal corps officer in the Army and leads a 52-person platoon. In her "spare" time, she's a volunteer firefighter, and is planning to climb Mount Ranier in August!

Janet L. Hinkley Fahey lives in Centreville, Va., where she works for ICF Inc., an environmental consulting firm.

Tom Noble is a hydrogeologist for the University of Tennessee/HAZWRAP. He is currently working on Cape Cod on the Otis Air National Guard Base clean-up project. Tom's living in Bourne, Mass.

Rob S. Young is managing a grant from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for completion of his dissertation research. Rob's proposal, "The Impact of Sea-Level Rise on the Coastal Wetlands in Pamlico and Albemarle Sounds, N.C.: A Study of Wetland Dynamics," was one of 23 recognized by the Committee on Research Grants as being of exceptionally high merit in conception and presentation. Rob led the W&M departmental spring field trip in North Carolina this year.

Jackie Daly is living in Colorado and working for the Windstar Foundation, an environmental organization funded by John Denver.

Next month will be an exciting one for John Peluso. He will marry Mary Blair Motley of Richmond. Mary Blair is a graduate of Chatham Hall and Vanderbilt University, and attended the School of Graphic Design at the University of Georgia. She is a graphic designer for Wheat, First Securities. John is vice president in the Correspondent Services Division there. He's also attending VCU.

Julia Bonham married Hugh Thomas Adair Jr. on Sept. 25, 1993, in Bristol, Va. After honeymooning in Kauai, the two returned to Newport News, Va. Hugh works for the Daily Press there.

Speaking of Wharton, Karen Griffith received an M.B.A. from Wharton in May and a master's in computer science at the University of Pennsylvania. She traveled to Brazil for a study tour and to Czechoslovakia and Belize to do some business development volunteer work. After graduation, she cycled for six weeks through France, Switzerland, Italy and Spain. Karen started a firm called Philadelphia Ventures in September. It's a venture capital firm that funds high-tech start-up companies. She'll concentrate in the areas of computers and telecommunications. She loves it so far.

Ann Darby Simpson Rush and husband Billy are expecting their first baby in June and have just bought a house in Alexandria, Va.

Sharon Myers Levine and husband Ken have moved to Charlotte, N.C., and are also new homeowners.

I got a great Christmas card from Kathy Redmond Schaum and Kent, and their Labrador, Butkus. They love California and are living in Corte Madera, within half an hour of the wineries and just three hours from Lake Tahoe. Not too many Californians have heard of W&M — they'd love to find some fellow alumni out that way!

YOUNG GUARDE

89 Colleen Waggoner
1620 Claremont Ave.
Richmond, VA 23227

Hello! and Happy 1994. For those of you who live in the Los Angeles area, our thoughts and prayers are with you.

I received a letter from Tamra Elim-Durden. She and Chris had their first baby in November! Congratulations! Chris continues to work as an area director at W&M, so the expanding family lives in a two-bedroom apartment in Munford at Dillard. In addition to their beautiful daughter, Sean Reilly, they also added a cat, Spot. Due to the hectic schedule of parenting, Tamra left her position as case manager of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Greater Williamsburg. She hopes to find part-time work in March.

Tamra writes that Homecoming was a great time for her. She was visited by her two best friends, Gina Ibarra and Tricia Miller. Gina is working as a compliance analyst for Dean Witter in Atlanta. She enjoys the job, which keeps her traveling throughout the Southeast region. Tricia continues to work for Andersen Consulting and is currently on assignment in Mexico City. Thanks for the news, Tamra. Call any time!

Marina Cofer-Wildsmith writes that she and her husband, Quentin '90, had their first child in December. Her name is Bryton. Orlando Reece '90 has agreed to be the godfather. Quentin recently took a position as a St. Louis City public defender, and Orlando is quickly climbing up the executive ladder at MTV in Los Angeles. He is a senior account executive. Marina is currently working for the American Lung Association of Eastern Missouri as the director of environmental lung health programs. She recently obtained her master's in environmental education. Good job, Marina!

Marina writes that Chris Spurling is living the high life in Bermuda. He has a job with an insurance company AND he is in love, finally. Amy Peterson passed the Montana bar and is working for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Services. Christy Less is finishing her master's degree in international marketing at Thunderbird School in Arizona. Suzy Argentine is working diligently to finish her Ph.D. in chemistry at the University of Michigan. Gina Love will be graduating from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in May and already has a job lined up in D.C.

Hello, Ashley Burt!!! It was great hearing from you! And yes, we love being back on the East Coast. Most definitely. Ashley writes that she graduated from American University in August with her M.A. in public communication. She is currently working as a publicist for Stackig, Sanderson and White, a McLean public relations and advertising firm. She is working with high-tech clients and really likes her new job.

Ash writes that Deb Failla married Andrew Tate on June 19. Ashley was a bridesmaid and Laura Brown was a reader. Laura is a first-grade teacher in Fairfax County. I bet you loved all of those snow days in January. Laura! Deb and Andrew are pursuing their master's degrees at Virginia Tech, she in health psychology and he in fisheries science. Other W&M'ers in attendance were: Jen Bracken, Laura Sheridan, Amy Underhill-Lythgoe, Mary Jo Lawrence Coiro, Dave Smithgall, and Kim and Brett Burk.

Jen received her medical degree from U.Va. and is doing her OB/GYN residency in Charlotte, N.C. Laura Sheridan got her M.A. in education from W&M and is teaching high-school English and journalism in Louisa, Va. Amy is living in Memphis with her husband and working at Kappa Delta headquarters. Mary Jo is pursuing her doctorate at U.Va. Dave is working as a systems analyst for Mobil in Fairfax. And Brett is working for Burk Associates in McLean.

Some of the old "Spotswood Penthouse" crowd recently convened at Priscilla Bevel-Walter's house for Homecoming. Priscilla is working in development for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. She and her husband, JP, bought a house in Williamsburg and love spoiling their two dachshunds.

Kristin May Coulter writes that on June 19 Stella Crane married Darrell Alexander in Richmond. The wedding was beautiful and the reception a lot of fun (held at the Country Club of Virginia). Stella and Darrell moved to Dallas right after the wedding. Darrell completed his M.B.A. at Duke University and is working at American Airlines as a financial analyst. Stella transferred and is still working with Ernst & Young. They are enjoying Dallas, although they are not in town many weekends because they are too busy taking advantage of America's flight benefits. In September they went to Costa Rica for the weekend to go white-water rafting!

On Aug. 7 Debbie Queeny married Garrick Muench in State College, Pa. The reception was held outdoors at the Nittany Lion Inn. There were many W&M alums in attendance, mostly Theta Deltas and Phi Mus. Debbie and Garrick have moved to Charlotte, N.C. Debbie is working as a tax manager in the trust department of First Union Bank. Garrick is teaching Princeton Review Courses.

As for Kristin, she is enjoying married life in Annandale. She is still working for KPMG Peat Marwick in Vienna. Lara Shisler just moved back into two after her 1.5-year stint in Memphis working for Federal Express. She is now working for United Airlines in their operations research department in Crystal City. She is living in Old Town and enjoying the proximity to King Street and its night life.

Dave Stevenson is leading a full life. After graduation he sang lead for a progressive rock band in Boston for two years and then moved to the left coast to form Artinjection. He has exhibited indoors in New York, Virginia and Massachusetts and outdoors in New Jersey and California.

Kathy McCartney Christensen has been promoted to account supervisor at Gibbs & Soell, a public relations firm. She joined the agency in 1991. Previously she was with Ogilvy & Mather PR, where she handled a variety of national marketing communications programs and special events.

Karen Whiteside writes that after Jim completed his master's in botany at the University of

Art by Dave Stevenson

AWARD HONORS MARIO ZAMORA

Liping Lo, an East Asian Studies major from Oakton, Va., has won the first Mario D. Zamora Award, which honors a student whose contributions to international understanding exemplify the ideals of the late professor of anthropology who was known as a leading proponent of education to promote international peace. The $300 award will be used to offset expenses when Lo travels to China next year to continue her studies and teach English to Chinese students. She plans to pursue a master's degree in Chinese literature. President Sullivan presented the award (right) as part of the first Mario D. Zamora Memorial Lecture in February. Professor Zamora died last August of cancer.

HELICOPTER COMMANDER EARNS COAST GUARD ACHIEVEMENT MEDAL FOR RESCUE MISSION

Lt. David M. Poulsen '83 was recognized for superior performance of duty while rescuing an offshore oil worker from an oil platform. Serving at the Coast Guard Air Station in Houston, Poulsen was awarded the U.S. Coast Guard Achievement Medal for his diligence, exceptional professional ability and devotion to duty. Poulsen made a successful night landing in marginal weather during a medical evacuation mission of a worker from an offshore oil platform. The deteriorating weather conditions did not prevent him from returning the oil worker to an ambulance waiting at an airfield and then flying to the airport. Poulsen joined the Coast Guard in 1983.

Georgia, they moved to Augusta so that Jim could start medical school at the Medical College of Georgia. Once in town, Karen got the health-care-field "bug" and quit her job at Merrill Lynch and is now in nursing school at the medical college. They never thought that they would both be back in school.... Life sure is funny sometimes! They enjoy Augusta except for the oppressive heat and human-sized bugs! Hey Karen, right now it is -1 degrees in Richmond. Heat and bugs sound pretty good to me.

Bethany Parker Freeman writes that she works for Signet Bank as a planning analyst. She completed her M.A. in economics in '92 and now teaches economics at Averett College at night.

Carol Crossman writes that after she got her M.A. in classical languages from Tulane in '91 she moved back to Virginia and is now teaching Latin at the secondary level in Manassas.

Jennifer Palmer writes that she has been working for Freddie Mac in Tysons Corner for a little over one year, after three years of working as an auditor for Ernst & Young in D.C., where Mark

Murtagh is still working. They have both obtained their CPA licenses in the state of Virginia. Jen is busy with volunteer work at a local homeless shelter and will be a tour guide on weekends for a historic tavern in Old Town Alexandria. Jen regularly sees Kim McDonald, Heidi Hanzel, Cathy Puskar and Karen Baragona at their monthly super club—sometimes joined by Caroline Pugh. They all live in Northern Virginia and were all bridesmaids for Kim in her April wedding to John Grinnell. Kim left MCI to move to Chapel Hill, where John is in the M.B.A. program. Heidi is working for MCI at Tysons where she has recently been promoted to project manager. Cathy is kept busy with law school at GWU and two part-time jobs. Karen works for a non-profit organization in D.C. Her job required her to visit Vietnam earlier this year. Caroline and Jim Pugh are proud parents of their first child, Matthew Spencer, born last spring. Thanks for the news, Jen. It was great hearing from you!

Chuck Bailey is a Ph.D. candidate at Johns Hopkins University. He was married to Valerie Weiss on July 25.

Craig Griffin is currently working in a bike shop in Richmond. Next fall he is going to NYU School of the Arts, enrolled in a program called interactive telecommunications which uses new computer, audio and video technology.

Eric Grosfils is a grad student at Brown University and working with the Magellan Analysis Team.

John Stewart is an executive officer, HHC Company, at Fort Bragg. He was promoted to 1st Lieutenant. He and his platoon deployed to Panama and built a training building for the Army for which he received an award. His platoon was also in Saudi Arabia.

Cami Amaya is working as an occupational therapist technician with Heritage Rehabilitation Center. She plans to get her master's in occupational therapy.

Kathy Bryan Larrieu was a senior environmental specialist with the State Water Control Board in Richmond. She and her husband, Theo, moved to Tennessee, where she is working for the state and he is in grad school.

Barbara Woodall Kirby is currently employed as a neurobiological researcher at the National Institute of Mental Health in D.C.

Jennifer Piech resides in N.Y.C., where she has performed with numerous companies and in such regional venues as the Walnut Street Theater, Ford's Theater, Philadelphia Area Repertory Theater and many more. Favorite credits include The Fantasticks, 42nd Street, Drood, Camelot, The Hired Man and The Comedy of Errors.

Scott Perkins is attending Washington and Lee Law School. He was employed at Coopers & Lybrand in Richmond for the past three years as a senior CPA.

I got a letter from the TUNA. Yep, Derek Turrietta writes that he moved from Richmond to Norfolk to join his wife, Kristen, in their new home. Before Derek moved, Elizabeth Forrester kept Kristen company every Thursday night. Before Liz moved to South Beach, Miami, her job frequently brought her to Norfolk. She spent the night, and she and Kristen enjoyed fine dinners and lively gossip (at Derek's expense). The Virginia Bar was given in February 1993 and Derek passed on the first attempt. Since then life has been a party interrupted only by occasional fits of actually having to work at Kellam, Pickrell, Cox and Tayloe. Working in Norfolk has been exciting, especially since he regularly sees Andy Shilling at the Tides Ballpark, and occasionally hears about Monty Mason's Lawyer's Title business. Besides Liz, other friends have cruised through—notably Bob Carpenter and Jaret Frederickson. While his fellow "idiots" have been valiantly following their own personal call of the wild, primarily in Colorado, they still have time to stop in on a "sell out" every now and then. They have been and are busy. Bob wrote and published a book, Behind the Rose Colored Curtain, and now he, Jaret and Jim Boyd are busy with an environmental land-development and construction business.

On the marriage front, Steve McCleaf married Natalie Homme in May 1993. The wedding was in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. While Derek and Kristen were driving along a major road in front of the city's cathedral, they spotted Evans Thomas and Debbie Brunnel. The wedding was in an old Mexican mission church, and was completed with a mariachi band at the reception—tequila and rum drinks complemented the tropical night.

The 10,000 Maniacs and World Party Show traveled through Richmond in June. Mike Graff threw a pre-show cookout in his posh West End pad, and Michael Souders, Rick Friedrichsen, Aaron Zebly, John Jones and Melissa Mullins Jones all showed up. While at the concert they ran into Kristin Zimmerman, Maureen Flaherty, Kim Hoge and Brian Silverberg. They all looked fantastic. Well, all the girls anyway.

Terri Snell wed Patrick Hood in August. Several W&M friends were in the wedding—Caitlin Wargo, Pam Dolan, Carrol Schaeffer, Tracy Morris.

Thanks for the scoop, Derek.

For those of you who follow football, Mike Clemons received a great write-up in the Tampa Tribune & Times. He has played with Kansas City, the Bucs, and now he plays in the Canadian Football League. He is a spokesman for spinal cord injuries, Special Olympics, Easter Seals, diabetes, United Way, cancer research and Sick Children's Hospital, and works to educate children about child abduction. Keep up the great work, Michael.

Her comes the bride....

Kevin Dibona married Melissa Burns in September in New York. Kevin is employed by Divaris Real Estate as a commercial real estate broker. They honeymooned in France and live in Virginia Beach.

Kathryn Thorson married Mark Battle in September at the Wren Chapel. They honeymooned in France and England and reside in Rhode Island, where Mark has accepted a post-doctoral position at the University of Rhode Island. Kathryn completed her master's in econ at Cornell.

John Condon married Holly Joplin in July. Holly works for the Chesapeake school system as a teacher; John works for NationsBank.

Boyd Bulloch married Susan Stumbert in September. They both are consultants for Price Waterhouse in D.C.

Kevan Vanek became engaged to Traci Meakem on July 30, 1993. The wedding will be in July in D.C.

Richard Glancy married Helen Keyser in December. Richard is employed by Technologies, Management and Analysis Corp. in Arlington.

OK, enough of that marriage stuff, not that marriage isn't wonderful.... You know what I

LOUER ELECTED TO ACADEMY'S BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Albert O. Louer '67 has been elected to the Lake Forest Academy Board of Trustees in Lake Forest, Illinois. Louer is director of corporate and foundation relations for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, and previously taught history and English at Lake Forest Academy. In addition, he is a member of the National Press Club, the Overseas Press Club and an officer of the College of Arms Foundation in London.

mean.

Jeff Ashby graduated from Eastern Virginia Medical School in May and is now a family practice resident at Roanoke Memorial Hospital. Congratulations on the wonderful accomplishment, Jeff!

Homecoming '93 was a fantastic time. Why is it that you have to travel to get together with people who live in the same town as you do? Kerry VerStreate and I crashed with Ann and Brandon Black on Friday night. Besides Brandon snoring, we had a really great time together! Carrot, carrot, pepper, pepper... Ann is working for Markel Insurance Co. in Richmond and getting her M.B.A. in the evening at the University of Richmond. Brandon is taking the banking world by storm at Signet and is currently managing the credit department. He is also working toward his M.B.A.

Kerry just bought a new home! It is a beautiful townhouse in Richmond's West End. She celebrated her purchase with a fantastic Super Bowl party! Kerry is getting into volleyball, cycling and rock climbing and is even planning a trip to Great Falls to rock climb. She is going to the University of Richmond at night to get her M.B.A.

Sue Morrison was sporting a rad new haircut and looked awesome! She is still working for Mobil Corp. in Northern Virginia.

It was wonderful seeing Tracie Mertz! Tracie is in Miami finishing her Ph.D. in psychology. She works very hard, sees patients, prepares for residency interviews and still has time for a life! Keep up the good work, Tracie; there is a light at the end of the tunnel.

Congratulations to Jeff and Julie Edmunds Dean on their beautiful baby girl, Megan. Megan was born in November, and both mom and baby are doing great! Jeff is going to school at night for his master's in math, and he works during the day at NASA. Julie has her hands full with Megan.

Sean Murray is working in Crystal City at MCI. I think that he is really working for the FBI but is afraid to tell me. He never sees the outdoors. There is a Metro in his basement that takes him to Pentagon City, where he works. He can eat in the mall, so he doesn't need to go outside then... I don't know, sounds like the existence of a mole. Congrats on the great job, Murman.

Waggs is having a great time working for Circuit City. Luckily, he didn't have to go out to L.A. after the earthquakes to inspect the damage done to the stores, although I think he would have enjoyed using his amazing sense of direction to figure out how to get from point A to point B without the use of highways.

I am still working for Signet Bank (how may I help you?) in the collections department. The job is great, the people wonderful. The most recent frustration has not been on the job but in the home. We decided to remodel... A project that was supposed to take four weeks took well over three months to complete. Just a little frustrating. But now we are partying in our new bathroom! Hubba hubba.

I am looking for someone to take my place as the next HGB (i.e., class reporters for you non-Cosmo readers). If you are interested in keeping the class informed as to the whereabouts of everyone, please drop me a line. I sure would appreciate it.

Thanks for all of the letters. It is always good to hear from you. Next deadline is in April.

Homecoming seems so long ago now, but I was really excited to see all the people, younger alums as well as older alums, who returned to Williamsburg for the huge 300th celebration. Just to give you a measurement of how many people converged on the Burg that weekend: 820 attended the Tercentenary Ball, 17,616 people were at the football game and 262 Olde Guard members (those alums who graduated 50 years ago or more) attended their annual luncheon.

I was most excited over the number of people who descended on the Young Guard tailgate — 1,118 in all! A special thank you to all the members of the Flannel Animals, who put on a great show.

Kudos to the staff at William and Mary, especially those at the Alumni Society. Tons of people have told me what a great time they had at Homecoming — the best time ever. Staff members and alumni volunteers put in countless hours to make the weekend a special celebration. I encourage everyone to let the staff at the Alumni House know how much their efforts were appreciated!

Homecoming seemed to slip into the holiday season, always a popular time to see people from the College. My two roommates and I had a holiday gathering in mid-December. A lot of William and Mary people were in attendance.

Susanne Stagg brought her fondue pot for us. Susanne left Rep. Hal Rogers' (R-Ky.) office and is working for the Pacific Institute, a motivational training organization. She also is volunteering at a halfway house and looking to go back to school to study adolescent counseling.

Beth Davis, Debbie Levine and Christine Lowry Miller, all roommates freshman year, brought some holiday cheer to the party. Debbie is planning her July wedding to Kurt Snyder, while Christine married husband Kirk last October. Beth is working toward an M.B.A. at George Mason as well as freelancing as a Russian translator. Other guests at the party were Kristen Calleja '93, Bill Snidow '92, Kim Cathey '92, Sarah Jane Dressler, Lane Schonour '90, Diana Shelles Phillips, Eric Kauders, Mary Ann Love '89 and fiancé Jay Harwood '90, and Noelle Chalifoux.

The night of our party was also a big W&M party night in D.C. Ron Wolfe, Doug Bream and Leslie Morton's houses also had holiday gatherings. Leslie just moved into a new house in Adams Morgan with Heather Hayduk, Dan Moriarty '93 and Kevin Brouwer '93.

I spent New Year's Eve in Richmond with Susanne Stagg, Noelle Chalifoux and Eric Kauder among others. We went to a fun party at Eric's sister's house then to a late-night party at the apartment of Kristen Calleja, Lisa Rein, Ann-Marie Ambrose '93 and Maria Bartini '93. The party included Ron Miles '92, Rob Chapman '93, Dave "DT" Terry, Dave Limerick '92, Zack Matzaniak, Jim Lowry '90 and many other people I am sure I just cannot recall!

This is actually my first official column as guest class reporter. Official scribe Beth West is spending her first year of Johns Hopkins' SAIS program in Bologna, Italy. I've been keeping in touch with her, and she seems to be enjoying Italian culture and traveling. Her parents and grandmother visited for Christmas, Leslie Morton will be flying over this spring, and I will try to visit sometime this summer. I know she would love letters or visits. Her address is: Beth West, c/o Bologna Center SAIS, via Belmeloro II, 40126 Bologna, Italy.

Many other people are tasting life outside the United States. Cameron Arnold wrote that she has been living in Milan since graduation, teaching English, translating and studying in an apprentice design theater program at La Scala Opera House.

Dan Bolger is teaching English to Armenian high school students in Yerevan, Armenia, as part of a two-year volunteer commitment to the Peace Corps. Dan's group is the first Peace Corps unit in the Republic of Armenia. Chris Simpson is also working in the former Soviet Union.

Jennifer Crawford Ruble is living in China with her husband, Rod. She said it is a challenge to learn the language but they are meeting many wonderful people and getting used to the terrible bicycle traffic!

Reggie and Becky Beebout Jones are enjoying life in Mannheim, Germany. Reggie is stationed in Germany as an armor platoon leader and Becky is an accountant for ITT.

Alison Ormsby returned from the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone, West Africa, last June. She is now an environmental scientist with McCormick Taylor & Associates in Philadelphia.

Karen Jeffcoat returned from Peru last August and has been teaching high school math in North Carolina.

Cathy Fisher returned from a year traveling in Europe with Scott Carr, who is in grad school at the University of Oregon. Cathy is back in D.C. working for the Close Up Foundation and living with Katie Flaherty '90 in Arlington. Heather Swain and Ellen Saunders Bliss spent a weekend in Rehoboth Beach with Cathy in December and said Cathy was an excellent cook.

Many, many people, as you can imagine, have written about engagements and weddings. Closest to home for me is Sarah Jane Dressler and Lane Schonour's engagement. Sarah Jane is a freshman hallmate and Lane is a friend from high school. The nuptials will occur July 30 in SJ's hometown of Roanoke.

Nancy Cornell will marry her high school sweetheart, Erin Sommerfeld, on July 30. Nancy received a master's degree in education from Fordham University and teaches kindergarten in Valhalla, N.Y.

BY THE BOOK

Books have been the framework for many different art forms, from simple illustrations to elaborate jeweled bindings. The Art of the Book exhibition will run from March 19-May 1 at the Muscarelle Museum at William and Mary. Illustrating that a book is more than simply a set of written sheets bound together in a volume, this exhibition expands the traditional definition of the book. It demonstrates the multitude of art forms the book has taken and charts the changes and development that it has undergone.

The William and Mary Cookbook

Dear Friends!

I just unpacked my copy of the William and Mary Cookbook and decided to take a glance before gift-wrapping it for my daughter. At the rate I am going, I will be lucky if it's wrapped in time for her to open on Saturday. What a beautiful addition to her personal library. Indeed, I never expected to receive something so special. Not only the recipes, but the precious photos—I have been glued to the pages for the past hour! I know Lisa will be thrilled with her gift and I thank everyone for all the many hours of work involved. Happy Holidays.

Fondly,
Joan Ferrante

Tammy Compton announced her engagement to William Salindong, a mathematician for the National Security Agency in Fort Meade, Md. Tammy received a master's degree in computer science from Johns Hopkins University and is a computer scientist at NSA. They will be married on April 23.

Michele Bassett and Chris Shue '93 were engaged in December. It looks like the big day may be in October.

Liesel Smith Geiger married husband Jeff '92 last March. Jeff is in his first year at Marshall-Wythe, and Liesel is working for the purchasing department at Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Virginia.

Weddings bells were ringing last April for Keith Dyer. Keith and wife Catherine now live in Miami, where he is a management trainee for Overnite Transportation Co.

Jim and Helen Wilcox Gabriele were married last April and live in Arlington. Jim is a business consultant for Andersen Consulting and Helen is a quality facilitator for Ferguson Enterprises Inc. Eric Richardson was one of Jim's best men. He was probably taking notes, planning for his own upcoming marriage to Michelle Turman. Eric is in his first year at Wake Forest Law School.

Shawn Wilkins was also married last April. Shawn works for York County Public Schools, while husband Kevin Holt is employed by the Virginia State Police.

Karen Prien Farabaugh wrote to tell me about her wedding last June. Kate Bednarz, Carmen Jacobs '89, Ginger Miller '89, Sara Seitz '90, Liz Minor '92, April Ballard '93, Bruce Redmon and Delia Follet '92 all attended the wedding. Michael and Karen have a long-distance marriage right now. He is in his third year of Ph.D. work in organic chemistry at Michigan State University, and she is in the physical therapy program at the University of Pittsburgh. They should be reunited when Karen graduates in the spring of 1995.

Dave and Jennifer "JJ" Johns Francombe married last July in Houston. Janice Voorhees '90 was in the wedding, and Jim Hanschild '92 was best man. Janice works with reptiles and birds at a veterinary hospital in Northern Virginia. Jim is in Utah panning for gold, mastering the ski slopes and "studying the book of Raab." Other guests were Trish Griffin '92, Ron Raab '89, Larry Valentine, Barbara Bettencourt, Andrea Lolley and Noelle Willett. Jenny and Dave work in Atlanta, she in the ticket office of the Georgia Dome, and he producing international sports programs for CNN International.

Marian Peters wed Daniel Hudock July 18. Nancy Bushy '92, Marian's roommate at W&M for two years, was maid of honor. Erica Jackson '92 was a bridesmaid. Nancy is living in Chicago and working for a pro soccer team, the Power, and Erica is in her last year of a master's program at the University of Georgia. Also at the wedding were Kristin Ulrich '92, Mary Laczkovich '93 and Lynn Cheslock '93. Marian and Dan live in Pittsburgh and run a small business.

Susan Michelle Lang and Charles David Larson were married in July. The wedding party was a mix of family and W&M friends. Pauline Berko, Amy L. Padden and Katherine D. McGee were bridesmaids, and Michael Tyrone Sheridan, John McQuilken, Kevin Campbell and Eric McCann were ushers. Susan and Charlie live in Susan's hometown of Lynchburg; Charlie works for Ferguson Enterprises and Susan is employed with First Colony Life Insurance Co.

Christian Turner and Dennis Byers married Aug. 7 at Christian's parents' home. Christian and Dennis now live in Williamsburg; She is a teacher in the Henrico County school system, and he is the director of marketing and promotion for the William and Mary athletic department.

Jennifer Plunkett married Alain Loiseau at her parents' home in Waynesboro, Va., last Aug. 28. At the wedding were David Spratt, now in his third year of law school; Rachel Patterson, who is working in government research in D.C.; and Margaret Prag, who is working in Richmond. Jennifer met Alain during her junior year abroad. They live in Montpellier, France, while he completes his required military service.

On Sept. 18, Bridget Bender married Brian Burkett in Toano. Bridget works for the human resources department of Colonial Williamsburg, and Brian is vice president of Green Grass Inc., a family-owned business.

Andrea Robertson became Mrs. John Beville Whitmore III on Sept. 18 in Vinton, Va. Jay and

BOOK SAYS CAMPAIGN DROWNED IN POLITICAL TURMOIL

Emeritus professor of history Ludwell H. Johnson III recently published a second edition of Red River Campaign, a book which relates how partisan politics, economic needs and personal profits determined military policy and operations in Louisiana and Arkansas in the spring of 1864. At the time Union Gen. Nathaniel Banks' campaign to open up the Red River in Louisiana failed. The book was first published in 1958.

Andrea spent their honeymoon in Key Largo and now live in Salem.

Theodore Larrieu wed Kathy Bryan '89 last September also. Theo accepted a teaching assistantship last fall at Vanderbilt University, where he will pursue a master's degree.

Ellen Saunders Bliss gave me the scoop on her Oct. 2 marriage to Ken Bliss. Heather Swain was maid of honor and Jennifer Schulstad, now in law school at Duke, was a bridesmaid. Also at the wedding were Cathy Fisher, Mai Lan Fogal Isler, Melissa Harell, Beth Davis, Kathy Cromie, John McQuilken, Wendy Blades, Jennifer Stowe, Rob Shupp and Ginger Ogren. Everyone told Ellen they thought the throwing of the bouquet was rigged since she threw it right at Heather Swain. Heather and Rob Shupp were engaged over Thanksgiving and are planning a summer wedding.

Sue Pavey added to her bridesmaid duties by writing me from Boston about Amy Cummings and Dave Bjarnason's Oct. 9 wedding in Wren Chapel. The wedding party included Cary Morton, who is living in D.C., and Dave's brother Paul '90. Guests included John Siner, Matt Salvetti, Dave Marowitz and a host of other Theta Deltas to be sure. Amy and Dave both work in N.Y.C.

Kristye Lee Krause and William Pessaud Jr. '90 also married on Oct. 9 in Sparta, Va. Kristye, a youth counselor for United Community Ministries in Falls Church, is pursuing her master's degree in education at George Mason University. William, a supply representative for Xerox Corp. in Rosslyn, is pursuing his master's degree in business administration at Marymount University.

Peter Fashing married this past January. Peter is working on a doctorate at Columbia University, and his wife, Julie, attends Columbia University School of Nursing.

Jennifer Noble is married to classmate Mark Smith. Jennifer also attended Columbia, earning a master's degree in physical therapy in 1992, and now works in Louisa, Va. Mark is working on a Ph.D. in American history.

Fellow physical therapist Heidi Greene did her graduate work at Northern Arizona University and is interning in Seattle, where fiancé Jim Lepore lives.

A lot of our fellow graduates are moving up in their chosen professions. Sarah Blount Martin was recently promoted to senior audit staff at Arthur Andersen in North Carolina. She and husband Brian bought a new house in Cary, N.C.

Mark Toner was named assistant city editor of The Daily News Leader in Stanton. He will be part of the team that lays out the newspaper and helps supervise the reporting staff. Mark will continue to do some health care reporting himself.

Lisa Malinsky Mathis has opened her own business. Mathis Graphics is a computer graphics business which is "thriving in Raleigh." Lisa's husband, Brian '90, is working on his master's and doctoral degrees in history at North Carolina State as well as working part time as a marketing consultant to the vice president of Associated Insurers in Raleigh.

Anisha Sheth has been traveling throughout the U.S. for her job with Price Waterhouse's management consulting services. She spent four months in "The Big Easy" (New Orleans) and three months in Sarasota, Fla. She's now back home in Columbia, Md.

Jon Lever packed up and left Williamsburg two years after the majority of our class did. Jon was assistant director for chapters in W&M's Society of the Alumni. He now works for the Jessie Ball duPont Fund in Florida, handling grants to religious organizations.

Elizabeth "Beth" Lewis is a geology technician in the hydrogeology division of Maine Geological Survey in Augusta. Beth just earned her brown belt in karate and is biking. In June she went on a 180-mile, three-day trek to raise money for the American Lung Association! Makes me feel a little guilty about not going to the gym lately! Catherine "Caddy" Wood is also in the geology field, working as an assistant project geologist for Virginia Geotechnical in Richmond.

Christina Brophy is a resident assistant at Covenant House in New York City. James Dwight is with the Educational Resources Group in Solebury, Pa. Michael Ludwick is a grants specialist for the U.S. Department of Education.

Leonard Gilbert is a promotion and advertising coordinator for Addison-Wesley Publishing Co. He recently received the Carolinas Symposium on British Studies' annual award for the best undergraduate paper (1990-1991), for his article on "Lord Palmerston and The Times: Domestic Criticism of the Opium War." Way to go, Leo!

I participated in the D.C. Career Fair on Jan. 6 along with Jim Thomas '90, Jon Gregory '90, Lane Schonour, Sarah Jane Dressler, Jennifer Stowe, Ellen Saunders Bliss, Bonnie Joblin Crews '92, Rachel Haight, Dane Snowden, Maggie Margiotta '88 and many others. There was a good turnout of recent graduates and soon-to-be graduates despite the bitterly cold weather, and Jeanie Debolt Thomas '90 and Karen Calpin '87 did a fantastic job of organizing it.

Many members of the Class of '91 are entering and exiting graduate school around the country. Noelle Chalifoux is at James Madison University getting certified to teach art and English. She is doing very well in school — even made the dean's list her first semester!

Eric Kauders will graduate from U.Va. Law School in the spring. After taking the bar and planning an exotic trip (destination was undetermined as of our print date!), he will join the Richmond firm of McGuire, Woods, Battle & Booth.

Vik Chase is at Florida State University studying East Asian religion. She spent last May driving and camping through New Zealand with her cousin and her cousin's two children.

Angela Hosang is getting her M.B.A. from the University of Minnesota. Last time I talked to her, she had a terrific internship and was even getting to travel as part of her training.

Ginger Igren finished her degree in physical therapy and interned for two months in Memphis, Tenn.

Mary Ann Kelly is a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin at Madison studying sedimentology and paleontology (the branch of geology studying prehistoric life by means of fossils, according to Webster's). She received a scholarship for the Indiana University field camp the summer of 1992 and a grant for her field work in the Goosenecks, Utah, this past summer. Fellow W&M grad Kathy Bryan '92 is her field assistant.

Congratulations to David Thornton! He was awarded a Scott & Stringfellow Educational Foundation scholarship for 1993-1994. David is a third year student at U.Va. Medical School.

Megan McGovern was awarded a scholarship through Loudoun County public schools and George Washington University to pursue a master's degree in education at GW. Megan is living with sister Katie '92 in Rosslyn.

Adrienne Berney is a Hagley Fellow in a master's degree program at the University of Delaware, while Bryan Brinkley is in Pennsylvania State University's graduate program in biology.

Steve Eubank is a third-year student at T.C. Williams School of Law in Richmond and associate editor of the University of Richmond Law Review. Last summer, he clerked for J. Thompson Shrader in Amherst, Va.

Matthew Ritchie is in his second year at Duke Divinity School, and Brett Martin is planning to attend grad school in geology sometime soon.

Beth Agee, who will graduate in May from the University of Rhode Island with a master's in human development and college student personnel, wrote me a wonderfully long letter about all the people she has been in contact with. She reported that Michelle Guilliams married her high school sweetheart, Tom Firebaugh, last Memorial Day weekend. Sarah Smith greeted people at the door and Angela Ransom was a bridesmaid. Also attending were Donna Sibley, Nancy Geer, Andrea West, Kerry Wortzel and Susan Carper. Michelle and Tom are living in Richmond while Michelle finishes at MCV's physical therapy program.

Andrea and Kerry are busy planning their own June wedding. Andrea's sister Janet '94 is the maid of honor, and bridesmaids include Nancy Geer, Kathy Cromie, Jeanne Debolt Thomas '90 and Beth. Kerry is living in New Jersey working for CHUBB. Andrea is working at the General Services Administration while attending George Mason Law School at night, where she is on the Law Review.

Kathy Cromie graduated in December from George Mason with a master's in environmental science. She also has been working in a co-op program for the Department of the Interior.

After working for an oral surgeon, Nancy Geer decided to get a second bachelor's degree in nursing at Catholic University. Last October, Nancy and her Phi Mu little sister, Christine Henry '92, were bridesmaids in Gretchen Reimer (Nancy's Phi Mu big sister) and Dave Bulova's wedding. Nancy talks to Lori Moscovitz regularly and Lori is doing well in her third year of dental

GARLAND NAMED PENNSYLVANIA BOARD OF EDUCATION EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Peter H. Garland '77, '79 M.Ed. was named executive director of the Pennsylvania State Board of Education on November 17, 1993. He previously served as the assistant commissioner for postsecondary and higher education in the state department of education. Garland will work as the chief staff person for the state board, which has the responsibility to review policy and establish standards, rules and regulations governing education in Pennsylvania. Prior to joining the department in 1985, Garland held positions in student affairs at the College of William and Mary and in residential life administration at Penn State University.

school at MCV. She also reports that Melissa Aldrich moved from Arkansas, where she was the assistant women's volleyball coach, to South Carolina, where she is the new assistant coach at Clemson University.

Pauline Berko was excited about being transferred to Atlanta with Price Waterhouse. She had spent the majority of last spring and summer on a project in Russia.

Jessica Bertoldi is in her third year of law school at Suffolk University in Boston. Last summer, she attended a friend's wedding in Ecuador and had a week of adventures traveling. Jessica spent the rest of the summer in the legal department of the Midwest Stock Exchange in Chicago and had a visit from newly married Sherry Harrison Sites. Sherry and husband Jon are living in Fort Myers, Fla., where she is a flight attendant for American Airlines and he is a flight instructor.

Mary "Betsy" Neyer is enjoying life in Cincinnati where, in addition to her duties as a council assistant for city council, she was also hired as a campaign manager for her city councilman.

Lee Trezise graduated last spring from the University of Delaware with a master's degree in education in college counseling and student personnel administration. She is now a residence coordinator at the University of North Carolina in Wilmington.

Beth says Melissa Harrell is having a hard time learning how to slow down! Melissa moved to Iowa after graduation to work in a research lab. Last fall, she and roommate Marci Levi '90 decided they would tour the world for six months, backpacking and staying in youth hostels. Indonesia, Australia, Israel and Europe were just a few places they saw. Melissa is now in Richmond working at MCV doing research on liver cancer and taking a class in biochemistry during her lunch hour. Chris Kirkup '92 and Doug Mayo are also taking it.

Doug is busy himself. When he is not spending time with Kris Pelham, who is in her second year at veterinary school at Virginia Tech, he is a financial analyst for the State Corporation Commission. He is also in a one-year paramedic program at MCV and manages an apartment building.

Robin Obenchain has also relocated to Richmond from Salem, Va. She was one of 10 chosen to be in an anatomy grad program.

Mark Kulaga and Wes Farris spent the majority of last summer working in a hospital in Roanoke. Wes delivered his first baby! Mark returned to U.Va. for his third year of medical school. After two years at U.Va. Medical School, Wes has taken a year off to do research for the National Institutes of Health.

Another good pen-pal is Patricia "Trish" Davis Graves, former author of this column. Trish and husband Mike were living in Corpus Christi, Texas, while Mike earned his helicopter "wings." They have a new addition to the family — a beagle named Murphy. In January they moved to North Carolina for Mike's C-130 training. After that they will go either to Okinawa, Japan, or Santa Ana, Calif., or stay in North Carolina.

Rich Smith wrote that Steve Faberty is working on a combined J.D./M.B.A. degree at St. Louis University. Steve witnessed the destruction of last summer's floods firsthand when his National Guard unit was activated to patrol a flooded town in Illinois.

Barney Bishop is finishing his third year at UNC Chapel Hill, plugging away at his chemistry Ph.D. He is already looking for a post-doctorate position, possibly in California or at Harvard. Last July, Barney and Rich caught the Lollapalooza tour, which Steve said was the highlight of his summer.

Rob Van Niman and Jim Palmer were roommates in Falls Church at last report. Rob was working for a holding company and looking into grad school.

Rich heard through Phil Reynolds that Joe Marczyk married last July. Phil and wife Janet live in western Virginia. Joe is teaching eighth-grade math in a middle school near Rustburg and is back in school at night.

Rich reports that he is finishing law school this year at the University of Baltimore School of Law. He was captain of the Jessup International Moot Court Team which won fourth place last year and beat Marshall-Wythe. Last fall he traded his law clerk job for "a shiny new position as an intern for Carroll County's state attorney's office." Rich had to pay off his own speeding ticket before starting in order to avoid the "conflict of interest" of having to prosecute himself!

Nyla Hashmi gave me the scoop on all the W&M grads who have migrated to Charlottesville for grad school: Conor Farley '89, who is in the same graduate program as she is; Eric Kauders and Laura Flippin '92, who are at the Law School; and Jay Austin '90 at Darden School of Business.

Nyla was busy last summer attending weddings. Mai Lan Fogal married her long-time boyfriend, Matt Isler, an Air Force instructor pilot, and they are living in Lubbock, Texas, where she is finishing law school.

Nyla also attended the wedding of Susan Hilliard and Bryan Brewer '90, in which Lauren McDonald, Dawn McCashin, Kelly Hollister Duffy and Stacy Ross Allen were all bridesmaids. Lauren is working for Peat Marwick in D.C., and Dawn is in law school at George Mason. Kelly was married earlier in 1993 and lives in Atlanta, while Stacy and husband Dave are busy raising their baby boy, Shawn. Tracy Hunter, Bari Moorefield, Lisa Rein and Heather Bonin were also at the wedding.

Nyla keeps in touch with Anne Leigh Kerr, who is working in Richmond. She has seen Chris Sterling a lot: He is finishing a master's program in VCU. Anne attended the marriage of Juliet Planicka '91, '93 M.Ed. and Mike Adams '92. Kim Anglin was a bridesmaid and Heather Murphy was a guest. Heather and Angie Scott were promoted to senior staff at Arthur Andersen in D.C.

Alane Cameron Miles' letter caught me up on her life. Alane spent last year teaching German, English and Spanish at a high school in North Carolina. She and husband Scott '90 are now living in Charlottesville, where Alane is getting a master's degree in German and Scott is in law school.

Alane has watched Brian Keith Lewis on various soaps and commercials, helped Anya Galperin '92 move to and from Atlanta, and met the 9-month-old daughter of Lee Mudd '90 and his wife, Jackie.

Alane thought Paula Kelly would be leaving Portland, Ore., soon to come back to Northern Virginia and take up Russian. Alane also wanted to let Christian Powers '93 know that he owes her at least two letters.

I would like to salute three class members who have been in the public eye recently. Lora Lynn Flattum ended her reign as Miss Virginia last July after a whirlwind year of appearances. Lora's mission as Miss Virginia was to improve the quality of life for the state's elderly, and she is a passionate spokesperson for the prevention of abuse of older Virginians. She was the first person named Virginia's Ambassador for the Aging. Lora has a dual degree in music and chemistry and plans to pursue both fields. She was awarded an endowed fellowship to pursue a bachelor's in performance practice at Duke University; following that, she plans to go on to medical school to become a doctor for the elderly. I applaud Lora's efforts: Older people are our greatest treasure.

I was also excited to see articles in both Sports Illustrated and the Washington Post about Curtis Pride. He was signed to a minor league contract by the Montreal Expos and last summer played on both their AA Harrisburg and AAA Ottawa minor league teams. In the off season, he returned to his old high school in Silver Spring, Md., to assist in their special education department and coach soccer. Curtis is an immensely talented athlete judging from all the statistics I have seen and all the praise I have heard from people who know him. He has received some special attention for being a deaf athlete, but I think he should garner attention for being a fantastic all-around athlete. How many people have the ability to excel in basketball, soccer and baseball? Best of luck with your baseball career. I cannot wait to see you in the majors, Curtis!

I was a little surprised to see Chris Danish's face on the cover of the Wall Street Journal in an article about the lack of good jobs available to recent graduates. Chris was concerned the article made it seem as though young adults had given up hope. The main idea he tried to get across was our generation was raised to expect jobs with meaning, not just financial security. I believe he speaks for a lot of '91 graduates.

As for me, the past few months have been eventful to say the least! I started a new job Dec. 1: I am doing alumni relations work for Georgetown University Law Center. After months of looking for a new job, this one sort of fell in my lap and I could not be happier. My old job at the Levine School of Music is becoming a W&M stronghold: Debbie Growitz '89 had the job prior to me and Gail Hambrick '92 has just taken over for me. And none of us helped the other get the job! A

Keith S. Dalton '82 was recently honored by Sony Electronics for his high-tech efforts to assist in the search for missing children. Dalton, manager of National Government Programs for Sony, created the hardware for a computer-based Age Progression program, which simulates the changes in a child's features over the years. The system depicts what a child, who has been missing for a period of time, may look like at present. Dalton's system has contributed to the return of 31 children in the past two years, one of whom had been missing for 11 years. Dalton was one of five Sony employees nationwide recognized by the company for commitment to the community. He received the Sony Crystal Community Service Award, and a $1,000 donation was given to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) by Sony in his behalf. Dalton is a member of the NCMEC Board of Directors.

strange coincidence. I have also been busy with Young Guard duties (I am vice chair this year) and writing this column for Beth.

I wanted to share with everyone an opportunity to help W&M. As the Virginia legislature moves to cut funding to higher education even more, the students on campus have rallied to fight. W&M is part of a consortium of Virginia state schools banding together to oppose the budget cuts. But every letter and phone call is important! For a sample letter to send to your state legislators or more information, call the Student Association Office at 804/221-3302 or Lisa Goddard '94 at 804/221-5457. It is a cause I think we all can support.

I want to end with happy news from the Williamsburg front! Even though the 300th celebration is officially over, the College has not slowed down for one minute. Keep your eyes open for information about the Alumni House Expansion Project. The architectural plans I have seen so far look fantastic and will enable the Alumni House to be used for more meetings and events and bigger wedding receptions!

I have been excited about the amount of mail from fellow '91 graduates (including all the people I hounded at Homecoming!), but I want my mailbox to be full. So, as the saying goes, keep those cards and letters coming! My next deadline is April 8.

Huzzas to all those involved in the planning and preparation of Homecoming. The festivities held at Busch Gardens gave all in attendance a moment of pride, hours of recapturing youth and a lifetime of memories. It was wonderful seeing everyone again. Even though time, distance and career choices have separated us, the Burg will remain our bond.

On behalf of the Class of 1993, I have accepted many rewarding pats on the back from several alumni and, on your behalf, I thanked them for their kind words. I was told that the list of careers and graduate studies was very "impressive." For all of you afflicted with the "low man on the totem pole" syndrome (the disease of the overworked and underpaid), take a moment to be proud. What you are doing looks great in print. Keep those cards and letters rolling in; we have obviously established a terrific reputation.

As to my career, I chose not to walk a straight and narrow path and dove head-first into a maelstrom — public relations. This is a job of smoke and mirrors combined with huge amounts of glitz, glitter and fluff. If all you see is the glitz, glitter and fluff, then I have done my job properly. What you do not see is a frazzled lady who never sees the light of day, who has forgotten the meaning of weekend and who dines on Pepto-Bismol. I thought this was going to be a happy haven filled with perfect Barbie and Ken dolls. What was I thinking?

One item of news for this issue, I am sorry to say, is tragic. Our fellow classmate, William McGough, lost his hard-fought battle with a devastating sickness. For all who tried to help him through his struggle, my deepest sympathy. In tribute to Bill, I ask that you always remember him when you hear the word "perseverance."

On a happier note, I do have exciting news to report. As before, I will begin with the engagements and weddings. On Sept. 9, Ed McCormack and Katie Kelly planned a sushi picnic in Lady Byrd Johnson Park in Washington, D.C., to celebrate their first anniversary as a couple. Ed asked Katie to be his wife. The two were set up for a Tri Delta date dash after sorority rush on Sept. 9, 1992, and they have been together ever since. A Sept. 17, 1994, wedding date is planned at Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown. Congratulations, Katie and Ed!

Sean Bilby announced his engagement to Dana Cherry. On a visit to Williamsburg on Dec. 20, Sean lured Dana into the Wren Chapel, where he asked her to marry him. Best wishes for a life of happiness. Since graduation, Sean has been working for Household Finance Corp. in Virginia Beach. Thank you, Sean, for the letter.

Congratulations to Alex Bradley and Dori Smith '92, who announced their engagement in August 1993. Please keep us posted as to your wedding plans.

Scott Rohrbaugh is engaged to his hometown girlfriend, whom he dated throughout his four years at William and Mary. They plan a wedding on July 2, 1994.

Congratulations and best wishes to Christine Martin and Sean Blackman, who were married on Aug. 7, 1993, in the Wren Chapel. Following the ceremony, the bride and groom had their reception in the courtyard of the Williamsburg Hospitality House. Their wedding party included Ada Bassey as Christine's bridesmaid and usher Steve Pocalyko. The newlyweds honeymooned on Martha's Vineyard and now reside in West Hartford, Conn. Sean is studying at the University of Connecticut School of Law, and Christine works for the development office at the University of Hartford.

In the last issue, I filled you in on the marriage of Holly Hartman and John Simmons. They are doing well in Jersey City, N.J. Holly and John have enjoyed the New York holiday sights and even found the time outside of their collectively busy Wall Street lives to see The Nutcracker at Lincoln Center.

I have received so many letters from classmates describing their beginning work situations. "Crazy hours," "Exhausting," "I work and I sleep — that's it" and "I would give anything to be a kid again" are just a few of the phrases that sum up the job scenarios. As an example, Heather Russell sent me a Christmas card that she was writing in the only spare time she had — 2 a.m. Heather is still working for Andersen Consulting in D.C. and doing well, even though her hours are a little insane. Heather, along with her roommates Cystal Anderson and Stacey Moore, blew off some steam by hosting a party on Dec. 18 for friends in the area.

Karen MacNeish is also working for Andersen Consulting and reports the same busy life. She recently returned from her training in Chicago and went right back to work in D.C.

Susan "Zeke" Knox, our senior class treasurer, is another experiencing crazy work hours. After interning for Democratic Senator David Boren of Oklahoma in his D.C. office, Zeke landed a job as the senator's personal assistant, which includes numerous duties as well as 12-hour days. To escape her hectic life in Washington, Zeke got away for a three-week trip with her brother to Kenya for a safari. Although her experience in Kenya was wonderful, she was charged by a bull elephant.

Zeke's former roommates are experiencing similar busy schedules. Missy Santoro and Melanie Travers share an apartment together in Arlington, Va. Missy is enrolled in George Mason Law School and is doing well. Although her classes are tough, she still finds the time to socialize. Melanie is working for the School-Aged Child Care Program (SACC) in Fairfax County, Va. She works with mentally and emotionally disturbed children in a program that runs before and after school. Melanie plans to go back to school for a doctorate in child psychology.

In fact, many from our class have chosen careers involving children. Jakki Sorongon is living in Maryland and working at a day-care center. Before her job began, Jakki spent the summer in Colorado at the Denver Publishing Institute. While there, she got together with Anne Redd, who was working at a camp in the mountains. The two found time for a trip to the Continental Divide. Last I heard, Anne was job hunting and still hopeful. Many thanks to Anne, who filled me in on the whereabouts of class members.

Sarah Turner teaches second-graders at a school in Northern Virginia.

There are still many recent graduates who remain in or near the Burg. Brent Vukmer is working at the Trellis and saving money for graduate school.

Three Kappa Alphas also remained close to campus. Tony D'Angelo and Dave Uy room together in Williamsburg. Jake Booker lives next door.

Jane Kotapish is has become quite an expert in the art of cappuccino making while working at the Prince George Espresso and Roastery.

I heard from Andrew Comerford a couple of months ago. At the time, he was just beginning his new job and was looking forward to getting settled. He reported that Bob Baierl was working for his family's business in furniture and carpet sales. He also mentioned that last time he heard, Randy Almus and Scott "Floyd" Patterson planned to move to Atlanta.

Between phone calls, letters and brief conversations at Homecoming, I have heard from many classmates. At Homecoming, I stayed with Anne Westfall, Edie Luther and Mari Capestany and had the opportunity to catch up. Anne finished her stay in Atlanta with Circuit City in December. Last I heard, she was having a tough time decid-

Mark R. Patterson, associate professor of biological sciences at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, led a 10-person team from William and Mary and the University of California this past summer to Lake Baikal in Siberia, the largest, oldest and deepest lake in the world. During the five-week joint expedition with the Soviet Academy of Sciences, Patterson's team measured filtration and photosynthetic activity of sponges in the lake using sophisticated instruments that were deployed by scuba divers on the lake bottom. Possessing 20 percent of the planet's unfrozen freshwater, Baikal has a built-in natural filtration system: enormous numbers of sponges clean the lake's water and consume large quantities of bacteria and blue-green algae. Biologists have long noted the lake for its unique life forms, including the world's largest fresh water seal, and unusual photosynthetic sponges that blanket the shallower parts of the lake's bottom. During the expedition, graduate student Adele J. Pile discovered that sponges are extremely efficient at capturing very small particles such as bacteria. Because sponges have such an important impact on the plankton community and rates of production of new carbon in the shallow part of the lake, the information gathered will be useful in managing this fragile and pristine ecosystem.

To all of you who carry and use
the William & Mary MasterCard

Did You Know?

When you use the William and Mary MasterCard, you help to support alumni programs and services like Homecoming, chapter events, faculty and student awards — even this Alumni Gazette.

Thank you to all who carry and use the William and Mary MasterCard. For more information on how you too can support William and Mary in this unique way, contact the Office of Society Services, Society of the Alumni, P.O. Box 2100, Williamsburg, VA 23187-2100, or call 804/221-1170.

ing whether or not to remain in Atlanta. Edie is teaching a first-grade class in Tappahannock, Va.

I often see Mari since she also works in Manhattan. Recently, we both went to the Smithereens/Squeeze concert at the Beacon Theater. We had a terrible snowstorm that evening and barely made it in and out of the city.

I literally ran into a classmate in the Port Authority bus terminal while running to catch my bus home. Lost in thought and thinking of all the work that faced me the next morning, I heard someone scream "JESTER!" It was Kieran O'Shea. He is also commuting to and from New Jersey for his N.Y.C. job. In our two-second conversation (as we both were running to catch our buses), I found out that he is also working in midtown Manhattan.

I see Craig Phillips '92 often since he lives and works in Manhattan. Craig is currently working for NBC. He also hosts his own cable show with another NBC associate. Craig plans to go to graduate school in broadcasting next year.

The Class of '93 continues to heed the advice of Bill Cosby. One such example is Cindy D'Agostino. After job hunting for a while and turning down other employment offers, Cindy landed a terrific job working in the National Geographic Film Library. She works with other William and Mary graduates and is having a great time.

Katherine "Hooch" Vaughan is now living with Cindy and is still enjoying her job working for a day-care center. A recent letter from Hooch detailed an outing to a pumpkin farm with her students. Pumpkins, field trips and rambunctious children usually spell T-R-O-U-B-L-E, but everything worked out well. Katherine, Cindy and Kristen Faust plan on rooming together soon in an apartment in D.C. or the surrounding areas.

Lisa Filippi is an assistant manager of SANSAR Gallery in northwest Washington, D.C.

Christine Heath made the move to Newark, N.J., to teach science to inner-city school children. Her job is part of a program established by the Junior Volunteer Corps.

After graduation, Dan Polis moved to Philadelphia, where he works for a chemical company. Mark Carlson made his way back to Anoka, Minn., after graduation. He works for the family business as a car salesman in his hometown.

Lori Manganelli is another classmate who enjoys her new job. She works for a hospital as an early childhood support staff member.

Amy Corner was sent to a new location for her job with Price Waterhouse. Just when the winter weather was approaching, she was sent to sunny Tampa.

The end of 1993 and the holiday season brought many of us home from graduate studies and jobs away from Mom and Dad. Some members from the class filled me in on their exciting New Year's plans. Laura Holman, who is studying at the University of Georgia for her master's in social work, greeted 1994 at the Gator Bowl in Florida. Steve Newmark, who also attended the game, welcomed the much-needed break from a tough semester at the University of Virginia Law School.

The end of 1993 also meant the end to a semester of graduate studies for many of us. Jill Jewell finished her first semester at U.Va., where she is taking graduate English classes. Jill lives in the area with Kristin Cummings and Lindley Wellons, who last I heard was looking for a teaching position.

Sarah Pitkin took time out from her hectic exam and term-paper schedule to drop me a line about herself and others. Although her classes keep her busy, Sarah makes time to work on plaster sculptures. As a fellow student in Professor Jacks' Three-Dimensional Foundations class, I can wager a good guess that her sculptures are terrific. Thank you, Sarah, for all the news.

Cecil Martin returned to the University of Pennsylvania School of Law to begin his second semester. Although he is busy, he still finds time to keep up with friends from W&M.

Many thanks to Patrick Wilson, who filled me in on his post-William and Mary endeavors and those of his friends. Patrick has just completed his first year as a law student at the University of Minnesota Law School. He is enjoying himself in the Twin Cities and has become involved in outside activities. He was recently elected to a position on the University of Michigan Board of the Minnesota Justice Foundation, a statewide organization dedicated to the promotion of pro bono legal work and education.

Although many of us remained stateside, I continue to receive news about classmates who have traveled abroad for education or employment. Last June, Beth Koch moved to Berlin for a year to intern with Telekom, a major communications company in Germany. She loves Berlin and her job at the Fachhochschule, which is both challenging and exciting.

In the last issue, I noted several classmates who traveled abroad to teach. Since then, I was informed that Shannon Trice is teaching in Hungary with the Educational Services International Program.

Last issue, I mentioned that Rene Rodgers was studying in England. She dropped me a line to elaborate. She left England on Sept. 20 to pursue her master's in Roman archaeology at the University of Durham, where she will be a Rotary Ambassadorial Scholar to the United Kingdom. Her experiences in England have been wonderful, especially the class field trips. Recently, she visited Hadrian's Wall in northern England. Thank you, Rene, for the update.

Although not a member from our class, Scott McDaniel '92 is also doing exciting things in another country. After graduation, Scott traveled to Monterey, Calif., for graduate studies. Scott is now studying abroad in Santiago, Chile, and one of his favorite pastimes when he is not hitting the books is watching Beverly Hills 90210, dubbed in Spanish, with his Chilean family.

That's it for now; I'm down to deadline. I hope you all have a wonderful and exciting 1994. Who knows ... it just might appear in the next issue of the Alumni Gazette.

ALMA MATER OF A WEDDING

It was a wedding that would make any alumnus proud. Chris Cornell '86 and his fiancée Connie Towne shared their wedding day with many William and Mary graduates. The groom was among a long line of William and Mary graduates in the wedding party; other alumni also joined in the celebration. The surprise connection of the day was the revelation by the minister that she too graduated from William and Mary. (Front row, from left: father of the groom Harry Cornell '58, bride and groom Connie Towne and Chris Cornell '86 and usher John Hoy '87. Back row, from left: Rev. Miriam Lawrence Leupold '85, usher Troy Boroughs '86, guest David White '87, uncle Charlie "Chick" Cornell '54, guest Jeff Todd '87 and sister Nancy Cornell '91).

tant professor of history at the University of Alabama in Huntsville.

Lana Whited '81 M.A. received her Ph.D. in English from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Her dissertation, a study of recent American novels inspired by actual crimes, is entitled "Naturalism, the New Journalism and the Tradition of the Modern American Fact-Based Homicide Novel." Dr. Whited is assistant professor of English at Ferrum College in Ferrum, Va., where she is also faculty advisor to the award-winning student newspaper, The Iron Blade. In addition, she frequently reviews books for the Roanoke Times & World News, and in the spring of '94 will serve as Ferrum's representative at the Virginia Humanities Conference. On a more personal note, Lana wrote that she and a friend bought a 10-acre farm near Ferrum College. Lana said she'd like to hear from some of her classmates, and she asked the Alumni Gazette to publish her address and phone number: Rt. 2, Box 133, Ferrum, VA 24088; 703/365-6255.

Katharine Grayden '91 M.A. moved to Austin, Texas, and was hired by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, where she is an associate editor in their social studies department.

Dr. Daniel C. St. Clair '69 M.S., professor of computer science at the University of Missouri-Rolla's Engineering Education Center in St. Louis, became interim chairman of UMR's computer science department in September 1993. St. Clair joined the UMR faculty in 1978. His teaching and research interests include machine learning, intelligent diagnostic systems, information systems, graphics and software engineering with the software ADA. He is a member of the American Association for Artificial Intelligence, the Association for Computing Machinery and the IEEE Computer Society.

Lamont Myers '85 M.A., executive director of the York County, Va., Industrial Development Authority since 1986, resigned that position effective Sept. 30, 1993. Myers went into the recycling business in the recycling park adjacent to the county landfill with longtime Williamsburg friend David Hooker (of David E. Hooker Construction Co.). Myers has been a guiding force in bringing a number of important business projects to the county — including the under-construction shopping center at Kiln Creek, the Busch

Robert (Hugh) Newton Jr. '79 of Baltimore was promoted to executive vice president of MNC Financial Inc. In this position he is responsible for the Real Estate Industries Group for Maryland National Bank and American Security Bank. Newton also was named to the Management Committee of the corporation.

Linda DeWitt Gallagher '81 of Acton, Mass., and her husband, Mike, were blessed by the birth of Diana Corinne Gallagher on Oct. 2, 1993. Diana has a brother, Daniel, age 6, and a sister, Laura, age 4.

Joanne M. Krumel '84 of Santa Monica, Calif., reports: "I've moved again! We are now in Santa Monica, where Glenn is enjoying a one-year fellowship with the RAND Corp. Big News... We are thrilled to announce the birth of Gregory Scott Krumel, our first child, on Aug. 7, 1993 in Arlington, Va. We moved to California when Gregory was 3 weeks old. What fun! I'll be enjoying this one year off from work to be a full-time mommy with Gregory in California."

Bill Parker '84 of Cape Cod, Mass., wife Melinda, and children Nick, 12; Brittany, 10; and Courtney, 7, recently moved from Northern Virginia and headed north to Massachusetts, where on Aug. 6, Bill became commanding officer of the Coast Guard Cutter Campbell. The cutter will make six- to eight-week patrols every few months, enforcing fishery laws, scouting for drugs, and performing search and rescues, among other duties. Bill and family are settling on Cape Cod, their home for the next two years. Bill just completed a four-year tour at Coast Guard Headquarters in Washington, D.C., where he received the prestigious Coast Guard Meritorious Service Medal for his work in the budgeting department.

Ann Briglia '85 was recently transferred from Philadelphia to New York. She works for Prudential Securities in the taxable fixed income sales department.

Kenneth R. Krewson '86 was married this summer after a year-long engagement which began during a trip to Williamsburg. He and his wife, Barbara, now live in Allentown, N.J. Kenneth has been employed by Nicolet Instrument Corp. as a technical sales representative for the past two and a half years.

Lewis J. Wallace '86 of Danbury, Conn., is engaged to Rosemarie. They have set a wedding date of May 28, 1994. Lew was the recipient of the Connecticut Outstanding Young Adult Award, presented by the Connecticut Jaycees and TV station WVIT.

Graeme Miller '87 reports: "I joined People's Computers in March. Michelle and Marybeth (daughter) have moved to Charleston from Atlanta. Charleston is a lot like Williamsburg — historic, but on the beach. Still miss everyone in Williamsburg!"

Michael A. Matthews '88 founded a consulting engineering firm, the Structures Group, in March 1992. Following Hurricane Andrew, he established an office in Miami to practice engineering in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Paul Brian Murphy '88 reports: "I am currently employed as an elementary school teacher in the Williamsburg-James City County (WJCC) public school system. This fall (1993), I will be teaching third grade at Clara Byrd Baker Elementary School. I am delighted to be a teacher and I am also very grateful to the MBA Program for an increased recognition of the value of patience, perseverance and cooperation in our day-to-day dealings with others. Thank you."

Leanne Lemerich '89 reports: "After moving to Philly and Chicago, I've made it full circle back to my home town of Columbus, Ohio (and I didn't even have to change companies)! I'm now a territory manager (Mid-America) for Air Products and Chemicals Electronics Group. I provide specialty and industrial gases, chemicals and organometallics to semi-conductor wafer manufacturers (or any electronic device manufacturer)."

Bob McGowan '90 of Fairfield, Conn., and his wife, Ann, have a 5-month-old girl, Erin Elizabeth. Bob was recently promoted to assistant vice president and financial account executive with General Reinsurance Corporation in Stamford.

Richard Moran '91 reports: "I married Dawn DeMeola on Aug. 14, 1993, in North Haven, Conn. and we took an apartment in New Haven.

(If anyone is passing through the area, please look us up!) My father and I have an insurance firm in Orange, Conn., and despite the dismal economic climate, business has been good."

Marshall Bowden '92 of Lexington, Ky., and his wife, Martha, announce the birth of their daughter, Harrison, born Sept. 5, 1993. She joins older brother Ned, now 2 years old.

Jim Franklin '92 moved to Boulder, Colo., and accepted a position as attorney/analyst for a private holding company. Jim was named to the Board of Director of the Rockies Venture Club as well as Enforce Inc. "Let me know if you are ever in Colorado."

Lisa Pasquale Semmes '92 reports: "Ben and I bought a wonderful old house in Upper Montclair, N.J.... back to the wild and woolly Northeast! I was promoted and transferred to A. H. Robins headquarters, and product management is even better than I expected! Ben works for a pharmaceutical distributor and likes his job in information systems management."

Andy Blanton '93 and his wife, Alison, announce the birth of their second daughter, Emily McFaden, Aug. 10, 1993. "We're all enjoying Roanoke!"

Robert H. Bryan '93 of Port Royal Va., has started a new business, Robert Bryan Ltd., under the trade name PUTTOR. It's a direct marketing company for golf apparel and other high quality American casual clothing. His first catalogs will be out March 1, 1993. They are subcontracting manufacturing and will market their own label.

David Hunt '93 of Houston recently completed the consulting associate training program at American General Corp. He has accepted a position with Valic, a subsidiary of American General Corp.

Charles Hurd '93 of Norfolk announces the birth of a son, Jacob Charles, who was born on Sept. 2, 1993, and weighed 5 lbs., 4 oz. and measured 18 1/2 inches. He's a bundle of joy! Mother (Laura), father and baby Jake are fine.

Don MacQuattie '93 of Princeton, N.J., reports: "Life in the Merrill Lynch training program continues to be challenging but fun. Despite the time commitment, I've been able to publish my second book, Life In The Ghetto: The Hoboken Chronicles. I'm hoping it sells better than my first effort, entitled Dress For Success: Kilts In The Workplace. If you're in New York, give me a call."

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Alan F. Edwards Jr. '88, '93 Ed.S.
1200 S. England St.
Williamsburg, VA 23185

Greetings from your new Class Notes reporter. I finished my Ed.S. in higher education in December, but am still haunting Jones Hall as a doctoral student. I am also the editor of the higher education newsletter H.Ed. Lines (so sending news to me will get higher ed. alumni twice the coverage!). I encourage ALL School of Education graduates to send me your personal and professional news.

First, congratulations are in order. In July, Sylvia Yvonne Hazel '86 M.Ed. married Gary Brian Hunter. They reside in Newport News, where Sylvia is an elementary school counselor. In August, Dana Elizabeth Gresham '92 M.Ed. wed Kenneth Claude Hostetter. Dana works in the Henrico County public schools and resides with her husband in Louisa County, Va.

Also, belated congratulations to Ralph W. Johnson '68 M.Ed. Ralph became superintendent of the King George County school system in August. He had been the director of the New Horizons Technical Center in Newport News and Hampton. And even more-belated kudos to Jeanne F. Zeidler '76 M.A.Ed. In July, Jeanne was elected as chairwoman of the Williamsburg-James City County School Board. She is director of the Hampton University Museum.

Over the summer, Barbara Maurer Hund '87 Ed.D. was one of 12 professors participating in a five-week Fulbright Groups Project in the Czech and Slovak republics. She is a faculty member at Tidewater Community College (Va.).

Best wishes go to several people on their new jobs. First, Michelle B. Scherbenske '93 Ed.S., who is now a school psychologist with Warren County (Va.) schools. After teaching eighth-graders for 10 years, Mark D. Gates '90 M.Ed. was recently appointed as a sales associate with Life of Virginia. He will serve the Northern Neck area.

ALUMNA BENEFITS LIBRARY

Beatrice Barclay '36 has committed a gift annuity to support the most pressing needs of the Earl Gregg Swem Library at William and Mary. Her pledge will establish the Beatrice Torrence Barclay Endowment, according to Nancy Marshall, dean of university libraries. Previously, Barclay and her late husband had supported a faculty carrel in honor of her mother. It is assigned to a professor for study and research.

And also on the Northern Neck, Nancy E. Davis '79 C.A.S., '87 Ed.D. recently joined Bonner & Waple Realty as a salesperson. She is helping with people's housing needs during evenings and weekends, as she's also a teacher at Lancaster County Primary School.

Alumni are also celebrating new jobs and promotions in higher education. David L. Futrell '93 M.Ed. began the fall as assistant director of student financial aid at the University of Vermont where, he reports, he had to adjust to October snow. Kristina Anderson '93 M.Ed. is associate student services coordinator/admission counselor at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls. Paul L. Parsons '91 M.Ed. was recently appointed assistant director of the College Consortium for International Studies. Robbie L. Cordle '91 Ed.D. is the director of career services at Shepherd College on West Virginia's eastern panhandle. Barbara King Wallace '88 Ed.D. is now assistant director of development at Illinois State University in Normal, Ill. She is also an adjunct professor in the higher education program. And, right here at W&M, Bill A. Jonas '92 M.Ed. has become the associate director of operations for the new University Center.

LeAnn Stanley Binger '86 Ed.D. has been promoted to full professor of psychology at Richard Bland College in Petersburg, Va. Barbara Klingman '90 Ed.S., '91 Ed.D. was promoted to associate professor of kinesiology and recreation at Western State College of Colorado in Gunnison, Colo. And Elizabeth "Sissy" Crowther '91 Ed.S. has been promoted to director of assessment, planning and research at Rappahannock Community College in eastern Virginia.

Pam R. Evans '83 M.Ed. is a busy educational consultant. In August she conducted staff development workshops for personnel from Essex Intermediate, Essex High and Tappahannock Elementary schools in Virginia. Her sessions dealt with the organization and management of core-subject teacher teams.

In October, Alyce Anne O'Carroll '91 M.Ed. announced her engagement to Michael John Hannon; a June wedding is planned. Alyce is employed by Chesterfield County public schools (Va.).

Also in October, Ann Dinius '92 Ed.D. received the University of Michigan 1993 Outstanding Dental Hygiene Alumni Award. She was also appointed as an accreditation consultant to the American Dental Association Commission on Accreditation. Robert W. Harrell Jr. '60, '93 Ed.S. was recognized for his work in helping the Virginia Center for Innovative Technology at Tidewater Community College in Chesapeake win a second national technology transfer award. He was also reappointed to the Governor's Industrial Development Advisory Board.

Deborah J. Smith '79 M.Ed. penned a short note to inform me that she has been awarded licensure as a registered mental nurse with the United Kingdom Central Council for Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Deborah is a faculty member at the Memorial School of Nursing in Albany, N.Y.

A letter also came from C. Rick Ellis '91 Ed.D. He is now a licensed clinical psychologist, and has recently opened practices in Norfolk and Virginia Beach specializing in child and family issues. During 1993 his work took him to England and Ireland.

And finally, hats off to two very busy alumnae. Linda Burgess-Getts '91 Ed.S., '92 Ed.D. is involved in the Williamsburg community. In addition to being a management consultant with C&W Associates of Newport News, she is also vice president for public relations of Toastmasters of Williamsburg; she chairs the finance committee of the League of Women Voters; and she is public relations officer for the non-profit community coalition All of Us. Equally busy is Yvonne N. Stringfield '90 Ed.S., '93 Ed.D. In November, she had an article published in The American Journal of Nursing, as well as a book review in Nursing and Health Care. She recently submitted another article which deals with teaching re-entry registered nurses, and is beginning work on a manuscript from her dissertation. I should be so busy!

For those alumni who did not make it back for Homecoming, we who attended assure you that it was a spectacular celebration. I encourage you to share your stories with everyone through these Class Notes. I will gladly include any tidbits of information that you'd like to share with other Education alumni. My next deadline is April 8. Happy spring (break) to everyone!

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Robert G. Newman '70 of Danville, Va., was elected to the Board of Directors of the Danville Area Chamber of Commerce. He is also a graduate from the first Class of Leadership, Danville 1991, and a recipient of the Boy Scouts Silver Beaver Award in 1990.

Harry Martin Halvorsen Jr. '75 of Norristown, Pa., reports: "After 26 years with General Electric Aerospace, we were sold this year to Martin-Marietta Corp. However, all is well. Daughter Kristen graduated in 1991 from the University of Delaware and is working for the Supreme Court of Delaware. Son Erik, born in Newport News during my W&M days, is now a junior at Boston College majoring in finance and is a recipient of a National Merit Scholarship. My wife, Beverly, and I spend a lot of our free time at our summer home in Avalon, N.J., or skiing wherever there is snow."

James R. Sowers '77 of Houston reports: "Rita and I are having fun in Houston — nice house, nice kids (Stephanie, age 11, and Jessica, age 6), nice life. Rita is very busy with kids' schools, managing real estate and keeping us organized. I am working with Holland & Davis Inc., a management firm helping firms with strategic planning, managing technology, improving organizational performance, management development and training and international business development. My work has taken me this year to Kuwait, Bahrain, Egypt and Indonesia. I am also a visiting faculty member at the University of Texas School of Public Health."

Richard Chan '79 of Washington, D.C., reports: "Richard Chan's RMC Capital Market Forecast, a newsletter focusing on stock, bonds, and currency investment strategies, is now featured regularly in Barron's Market Watch, Prodigy's

BUXTON SPINS RIVER TALE IN SIXTH NOVEL

A Virginia city is once again the backdrop for novelist Mary Wakefield Buxton's '70 latest fiction. Her recently published sixth novel, The Great Rappahannock River Race, tells a story of two antagonistic college professors in Fredericksburg, Va., who face-off in a comedic "battle of the sexes." A columnist for the Southside Sentinel, Buxton is a former educator who holds an M.Ed. from George Washington University. She and her husband, Joseph, live in Urbanna, Va.

HARRISON PROFESSOR NAMED

Pulitzer Prize-winning historian David J. Garrow will be the James Pinckney Harrison Professor of History during the 1994-95 academic session. A graduate of Wesleyan University, Garrow received his Ph.D. from Duke University and has taught at Duke, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the City College of New York and the Cooper Union in New York. He has been involved in a wide variety of professional activities and was a senior advisor for the celebrated television documentary, Eyes on the Prize. His most recent book, Liberty and Sexuality: The Right to Privacy and the Making of Roe v. Wade, has just been published under the Lisa Drew imprint of the Macmillan Publishing Company. During the fall semester Garrow will teach a course on "Individual Rights and the Supreme Court in the 20th Century."

MARSHALL-WYTHE SCHOOL OF LAW

Jeffrey B. Detwiler '78 J.D. recently became a name partner in the San Francisco law firm of Springs, Rivin, Detwiler, Dudnick & Stikker. The firm, which was formed last summer, practices in the areas of business, real estate, tax and estate planning law.

Larry W. Davis '79 J.D. will be the new county attorney for Albemarle County, Va. He held the same position in Spotsylvania County, before leaving this year to become deputy county attorney in Albemarle. He will be promoted to county attorney in March, after the incumbent, George St. John, retires.

Norman A. Thomas '81 J.D. was named chief deputy commonwealth's attorney for the city of Norfolk last year. He, his wife, Sandy, and their two children, Paige and Wesley, recently moved into a new home in Norfolk.

Anne Shumadine '83 J.D. was profiled in a recent issue of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot. The article highlighted her work as president of a local organization called ACCESS, which helps students find money to go to college. In the five years since its founding, the group has helped more than 5,200 students receive $17.2 million for higher education. She practices law with the firm she founded, Shumadine & Rose.

Michael J. Garvin '84 J.D. is a new partner at the Cleveland law firm of Hahn, Loeser & Parks. He serves as a co-chair of the Business Torts Litigation Committee, Banking Subcommittee of the ABA's Litigation Section. He and his wife live in South Russell, Ohio.

Terry Kilgore '86 J.D. was elected to the Virginia State legislature as a delegate for the First District, representing the counties of Lee, Scott and Wise. He also serves as the town attorney for Gate City, Va., and on the board of the Gate City Little League. He and his wife, Debbie, live with their two children in Gate City.

Ann Dugger Mayhew '91 J.D. and John Francis Golski '93 J.D. were married in November. Ann practices with the Norfolk law firm of Kaufman & Canoles, and John works as an attorney for the Circuit Court of Virginia Beach. The couple lives in Norfolk.

SCHOOL OF MARINE SCIENCE

Mo Lynch '65 M.A., '72 Ph.D.
Virginia Institute of Marine Science
College of William and Mary
Gloucester Point, VA 23062

We added three Ph.D.s and one M.A. to our list of graduates in December 1993. Eileen D. Grogan, Kenneth R. Seeley and Christopher R. Tabit completed their Ph.D.s, and Richard Joseph Neubauer completed his M.A. Ken is with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Colorado; Chris is staying at Gloucester Point for a few months to do some work with Jack Musick; Eileen hasn't let us know where she will wind up yet; and Joe is with a consulting firm in Maryland, ICF Kaiser Engineers.

Dean Taylor and Hank Humphries, the VIMS/SMS development officer, have advanced the possibility of holding an annual fish fry for alumni and contributors. The event would serve as a sort of homecoming for the alumni and a chance to say thanks to the contributors. (Much of the impetus for including alumni came from those who attended the 50th anniversary celebration; many contributors have been getting a fish fry already.) Because of new tax laws we will probably have to charge for tickets or contributors will not be able to take appropriate tax deductions. If you think such an event would interest you, let us know. Drop a lime to the Dean, Hank or me. If you think annual events are too frequent, would you like a biennial event? What is the best time of year for such an event?

The Graduate Dean's office just developed an employment profile for graduates from 1983 to 1993, based on the information we have on you in our files. (It's important to keep your address and employment current so that surveys like this are accurate. The data is used in planning the graduate program.) I'll pick choice items from this survey and pass them on to you over the next few months. For the period '84-'88, 32 percent of M.A. and 26 percent of Ph.D. recipients took their original jobs with state, federal or local governments; 36 percent of M.A.s and 46 percent of the Ph.D.s from that period are now with state, federal or local governments. For the period '89-'93, 31 percent of the M.A.s and 20 percent of the Ph.D.s went with this category of employment. In '84-'89 we had 49 graduates and in '89-'93 we had 68.

Nineteen VIMS alumni were among the 500 William and Mary alumni recognized by the Order of the White Jacket for outstanding service to Virginia at the Tercentenary Homecoming. The honorees were Rob Hale '83 Ph.D.; Gary Anderson '82 M.A.; Tom Barnard '71 M.A.; John Boon '68 M.A., '73 Ph.D.; Bill DuPaul '68 M.A., '73 Ph.D.; Woody Hobbs '72; Mo Lynch '65 M.A., '72 Ph.D.; John Olney '78 M.A.; Jim Perry '91 Ph.D.; Linda Schaffner '81 M.A., '87 Ph.D.; Mike Unger '88 Ph.D.; Larry Haas '76 Ph.D.; Bob Croonenberghs '74 M.S., '83 Ph.D.; Peter Van Veld '80 Ph.D.; Ernie Warinner '62 M.A.; Morrie Roberts '65 M.A., '69 Ph.D.; Bob Huggett '77 Ph.D.; Sharon Broadwater '84 Ph.D.; and Fu-Lin Chu '82 Ph.D.

Last column I asked if there were any summer interns that went on to study at VIMS that I missed. Ella Mae Thompson Wulff '70 M.A. wrote to remind me that both she and Barry '68 M.A. were summer interns, he in '64 and she in '65 (when they first met). Barry took early retirement from Eastern Connecticut State University and they have returned to Oregon where he got his Ph.D. Their daughter Sabrina, who stayed with Gin and me several years ago when checking out W&M, graduated last year from Smith and is in a graduate program in economics at the University of Washington. Daughter Tasha is in her junior year at Smith, majoring in geology with a strong interest in oceanography. Tasha spent this past summer on a geology internship in the Bahamas, during which she got to take a dive in the Sea Link submersible. Her present interest is marine sediments, and she is looking at starfish fragments to determine if crown-of-thorns predation of corals is a recent or recurring phenomenon. Ella Mae and Barry hoped to be into their new house, "Base Camp," by Christmas.

Bob Mothershead '91 M.A. returned to VIMS this past fall as a research chemist. Bob had been a research chemist at the Institute for Coastal and Estuarine Research at the University of West Florida since '91.

Bob McCormack '90 M.A.Ed. (marine science emphasis) became the interpretative projects coordinator at the Weeks Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve in Alabama this past August. I met him at the November meeting of the National Estuarine Research Reserve Association Meeting in Naples, Fla., with the other VIMS alumni in the NERRS program: Betty Wenner '75 M.A., '78 Ph.D., research coordinator of South Carolina's ACE Basin NERR, and Mike De Luca '86 M.A., who is orchestrating the proposal for the Mullica River (N.J.) NERR. I manage the Chesapeake Bay NERR in Virginia.

Bob had so much to pass on to me I asked him to drop a line, which he did. During the early part of last summer, he was involved with an Earthwatch project in the Dominican Republic: excavating a 17th-century shipwreck off the north coast. Bob was there to document the excavation on video. Bob was a TV cameraman before coming to VIMS for the combined marine science/education program. (He is really the only graduate of that program who came here to take the program full time. Anne Markwith '86 M.Ed. switched to the program when it was initiated after completing all of her required course work for a marine science degree. Anne now teaches science in the Gloucester County school system.)

Back to Bob's letter. On his way from his home in New York to Alabama he stopped off for two nights and visited with Willy '89 M.A. and Karen Kelly Reav '90 M.A. in Blacksburg, Va. Both were fine. Karen is working on various wildlife information projects. (Since Bob went through, Willy finished his Ph.D. as I reported last column. He manages to get to Gloucester Point about monthly as he drills for water throughout coastal Virginia.) After Blacksburg, Bob went to Myrtle Beach, S.C., for a short visit with Paul (Sandy) Booth '89 Ph.D. Sandy is running his own wetlands consulting company and teaching part time at Coastal Carolina College in Conway, S.C.

In October Bob went to Austin, Texas, for a reunion of the Earthwatch group from the shipwreck project. To break up the trip back to Georgia, he called Hillary Neckles '90 Ph.D., George La Pointe and new son Caelan in Lafayette, La., hoping to have a visit with them. Unfortunately, they were going to be out of town the day he was going to be coming through, but they told him that Bill Rizzo '77 M.A., '86 Ph.D. and Jane Ledwin '88 M.A. were in Lafayette, so Bob called them and had a nice visit, as he said "reminiscing about life and their time in Bubba-land."

Bob also told me that after our meeting in Naples he stayed a night with Lyn Cox '88 M.A., Kevin McCarthy '89 M.A. and 2-year-old son Blake at their home on Grassy Key, Fla. He also mentioned talking to Dave Eggleston '88 M.A., '91 Ph.D., who was moving to Raleigh, N.C. (since then I've talked to Dave during a brief visit of his to VIMS and he promised me a letter filling me in on his activities).

Bob seems to keep up with a lot of school-mates because he just told me in a phone call that Rick Rheinhardt '91 Ph.D. would be moving from New Jersey to East Carolina University sometime in February '94. Bob said Rick is looking forward to the move because the job at ECU is much more in line with his research interests.

Mary Rybitski '93 M.A. and Karl Oldershaw had a son, Alaric, on Oct. 5, '93. Alaric weighed in at 7 lbs., 5 oz. Mary is continuing on for her Ph.D. at the SMS.

Bill and Jaye DuPaul; John and Molly Boon; and Gin and I had a great time this September at the wedding of Holly Lanier, daughter of Jim Lanier '72 M.A., '81 Ph.D. and wife Hope in Wilmington, N.C. It was a great time. Wilmington is a very nice spot to visit. Jim, Hope and sons Andrew and David stopped by Gloucester Point on the way to New York for Christmas.

QUICKIES: Livingston Marshall '93 Ph.D. is on the faculty at the University of Maryland, Eastern Shore. Sandy Hartenstine '91 M.A. is working as an environmental specialist for Henrico County.

Don't forget to write and let me know what's going on with VIMS alumni so that I can share it with others.

The Sale and Paddle Club at VIMS is challenging alumni to enter the spring diathlon (running/canoeing). For additional information call Chris at 804/642-4614 or Lisa at 642-4733. Any takers (and winners) will be highlighted in subsequent columns.

SWEM LIBRARY PLANS ADDITION AND RENOVATION

Preliminary plans for a major addition to, and renovation of, Earl Gregg Swem Library have been prepared and are currently under review by the state. The plans call for a two-phase project which would include a 98,600-square-foot addition and renovation of about 35 percent of the current 166,700 square feet in the library in Phase I. Total cost of Phase I is estimated at $18 million and Phase II at $8.7 million. The project has already been approved by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia, said Nancy H. Marshall (right), dean of university libraries. The need for the addition and renovation became apparent to both library administrators and users in recent years as the library's collection and services have grown. The library now houses 982,125 books and bound periodicals; another 5,576 periodical and serial subscriptions; more than 1 million units of microforms like microfiche and microfilm; 530,924 government documents; 32,300 rare books and more than 1 million manuscripts. All of these documents, plus computer-use spaces, all library services and staff, along with study and reading rooms are housed in a building constructed in 1966. While the 1987 addition helped alleviate the immediate space crunch at the time, it was not enough to meet future needs or modernize the existing building. Marshall estimates that, to meet the growing needs of an increasingly diverse university, the collection will need to grow by at least 22,000 volumes each year.

BOOK USES VASES TO RECONSTRUCT STAGES OF ANCIENT GREEK WEDDING CEREMONY

John H. Oakley, Chancellor Professor of Classical Studies, recently co-authored a book titled The Wedding in Ancient Athens with Rebecca H. Sinos '76. This is the first book to reconstruct the stages of the ancient Greek wedding ceremony using vase paintings from the sixth through fourth centuries B.C. Some of the scenes depicted on the vases are important because they are not clearly portrayed in literature, thus supplying a better understanding of each stage of the ceremony. Vases also offer insight into Athenian attitudes toward the wedding, suggesting a perspective different from that provided by Greek literature, the authors said. The book includes scenes that represent real life, scenes that are clearly mythological, and also some tableaux that blur the distinction between mortals and gods or heroes, suggesting the idealized state in which mortals appeared when engaged in rituals with divine prototypes.

CONFERENCE TO EXPLORE HISTORIC CIVIL RIGHTS CASE

"Brown vs. Board of Education After 40 Years: Confronting the Promise" is the theme for a national conference examining the past and future of racial issues in the United States that will be held May 17-18, 1994, in Williamsburg. The event is planned by William and Mary's Institute of Bill of Rights Law and the Howard University Law School. In its historic decision, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the practice of "separate but equal" racial segregation in public education. As a result, Brown vs. Board of Education became a symbol of the emerging civil rights movement. Hailed as a victory by civil rights leaders, the decision culminated a 20-year effort by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to use the courts to attack segregated education. For registration information, contact the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at 804/221-3810.

Exploring the Chesapeake Bay II

Society of the Alumni • College of William and Mary

Alumni College 1994

June 23rd - 26th

The waters of the Chesapeake Bay are rich with history and life. Discover the heritage woven into the bay's intricate inlets and shores, in the return of this popular, award-winning Alumni College. Become involved in the debate over the bay's future, and learn about the environmental efforts to protect this treasured natural resource.

- Enjoy four days of discussion and discovery alongside pre-eminent VIMS and William and Mary faculty, guest speakers, and fellow alumni.
- Explore the bay's waters in a personal guided boat tour and lecture.
- Enjoy a seafood fest in a get-acquainted dinner.
- See folklore and history brought to life in tours of local museums and sites, including the Watermen's Museum in Yorktown.
- Relive campus life, including classroom sessions and a stay in Jefferson Hall.
- Bring your family—a children's program also focusing on the bay will be available.
