FOREWORD

William and Mary is more than a time-honored college to its students; it is a way of existence that weaves itself into the very fabric of their lives for four meaningful years. From the moment we awaken for that first formidable eight o'clock class to the last whispered good-night, our day has encompassed many phases of college living which are patterning the direction of our lives in years to come.

On the campus of William and Mary the doors to knowledge stand open each morning, ready to admit all members of the college through their learned portals. With the coming of afternoon, various clubs and organizations welcome students and offer them enjoyable and rewarding hours spent in pursuit of individual hobbies and interests. And when the sun has finally descended and bright lights begin to flicker across the campus, still another aspect of our day is realized. Various social functions bring the student body together as a unit and provide some of our fondest memories of student days. Fraternity and sorority houses encourage close bonds of friendship, and the new student center carries the promise of an even closer relationship among the entire student body.

William and Mary becomes our home for four formative years—the years when we grow intellectually, spiritually, socially, and emerge as young adults, ready to take our place as mature, thinking people in a world where qualities such as these can readily be put to use.

We have not grown alone: professors, fellow students, and administrators have been instrumental in the attainment of our goals. All through the day our lives are linked to them in some phase of college living.

Morning, noon and night William and Mary is our campus. We, the student body, mold its character just as it, in turn, molds ours. And years from now in looking over the pages of this book we may well say . . .

"Our Hearts are with thee, dear William and Mary However far we stray . . ."

Students stroll to Wren Classes

MORNING

Dawn . . . the promise of a new day of understanding and appreciation . . . awakens students on the campus of William and Mary. The familiar ringing of the college bells resounds from the tower of the College Yard, summoning each student to a wealth of knowledge and fellowship.

Beneath these trees, within these halls, we praise thee, our Alma Mater. With each new day you give us the wisdom and patience of professors and friends, who impart to us another answer, and with it a broader horizon, as our questioning minds give way to greater understanding.

Wherever lies our particular goal, William and Mary offers invaluable means for its attainment. The Wren Building with its echoes of Shakespeare and Eliot . . . Rogers Hall and the understanding of a new adventure in science . . . Ewell and the thrill of new harmony . . . they comprise but a small part of the overall academic program so well instituted at the College.

Each morning, whether presented in a vast lecture classroom or a small seminar discussion, the mediums of learning at William and Mary afford each student a sense of higher aspiration and an opportunity to experience the realization of dreams.

NOON

Just as the academic portion of life at William and Mary broadens intellectual horizons, so do the varied activities offered afford ample opportunity to expand individual interests and talents. Afternoons on campus provide a wide divergence of fields to stimulate every student at the College.

In Phi Beta Kappa auditorium the William and Mary players can regularly be found engaged in creating scenery or rehearsing for their latest endeavor in the cultural field. Melodic strains echo the voices of students who enjoy good music under the able direction of "Pappy" Fehr. In various academic buildings meetings of many campus organizations are busily in session. At familiar Jockey Corner, a bevy of students may be gathered to vote for their chosen representatives to various democratic organizations whose members represent and reflect opinion of the student body.

Not only do afternoons bring with them pastimes which require concentration and effort; those of a more relaxing nature are also realized during this time. Who of us can feel the tang of fall in the air and fail to visualize Cary Stadium and many an afternoon spent in sharing with the team the joys and disappointments of a hard-fought game. Numerous golden afternoons are whiled away in the warm glow of companionship, for whether at work or play, friendships form an intrinsic part of our life at William and Mary.

As the five o'clock chimes ring out we can look back on many afternoons well spent in individual pursuit and richly rewarding endeavor.

Cheerleaders wait to bring the team on the field

Caroling takes place after Yule Log Ceremony

NIGHT

As twilight deepens into night, flickering lights across campus reveal that student activities are often carried on long after the first twinkling star has appeared in the evening sky.

The brilliant glow cast from a Yule log burning at William and Mary's traditional Christmas ceremony reflects in its embers a warmth in all hearts eagerly anticipating the holiday season. The dim light from a dormitory window reveals that the process of learning does not end with the last class of the day . . . Bright lights and lively music issuing from the direction of Fraternity Row tell of many joined in the satisfying circles of friendship . . .

The misty aura of lamplight discloses a couple hand in hand, and carries a promise that many of the relationships formed at William and Mary will last far beyond our college years.

Night brings with it a softening of reality, a lessening of the day's busy pace . . . a wealth of unforgettable moments that will be relived in memory by each of us in the long years yet to come.

DEDICATION

DEAN H. WESTCOTT CUNNINGHAM

Whose High Ideals . . . have helped select our colleagues, and have remained the standard under which the student body of William and Mary is framed.

Whose Sound Advice . . . has built many a bridge between aspiration and accomplishment, and has proven an inspiration to his associates and to us, the students.

Whose Unforgettable Smile . . . welcomed us all to the College and will ever remain an intrinsic part of his warm personality that has won the hearts of those who know him.

Because he has given unselfishly of his time and vitality to maintain the customary high standards of his Alma Mater, he has earned our greatest respect. Because he has given us a realm of friendships we shall always remember, he has earned our deepest appreciation. Gratefully, we dedicate the nineteen hundred and sixty edition of the COLONIAL ECHO to Dean H. Westcott Cunningham.

MORNING...

ACADEMIC LIFE

The bright gold Phi Beta Kappa key, inscribed certificates for Merit Scholars, the pledge ribbons of honorary fraternities—these were the obvious recognitions of academic achievement. Yet during this year, each student became personally aware of his growth as a thinking, questioning member of our college community. We remember the new theory that startled us into discoveries of our own, the avid perusal of a difficult concept and the real satisfaction that comes with knowledge.

We were students—though there were always the standard complaints about tests and term papers and the obvious lack of extra hours for study in each day. We recall the library crowded by seven o'clock each week night, the tug of a heavy armload of books, the long hours of intensive work in straight chairs and a friend lying carelessly on a bed with a half finished notebook.

Our presence was the moving force of the college. We crowded lecture rooms, scratched hurriedly in worn notebooks, strolled in intense preoccupation along the brick walks. In winter, the burning lights in academic buildings pierced the dark nights and the toll of the college bell marked off hours of study. The warm spring months were invitations for us to sit and read upon the red brick steps of the Sunken Gardens. And in Phi Beta Kappa Auditorium, we gathered to clap for those among us who had been outstanding in intellectual endeavors.

Finals, announced by preregistration, and professors' warnings pushed us into our rooms for concentrated study and caused an increase in the sale of blue books. We coordinated our notes, gathered information from text books, and then, after a series of fatal hours, finals passed into the softened realms of memory.

As a community, we had come to learn. Each one of us moved closer to a realization of this aim. We applied theory to life, we discovered the meaning of knowledge, and we evaluated our thoughts in the light of those of our professors and classmates. To each came academic success or failure, yet we all acquired knowledge, and, through it, we lived a more complete life.

THE PRESIDENT

We visit the Chandlers at the President's house

As President of the College of William and Mary since 1951, Alvin Duke Chandler has constantly striven to uphold the fine traditions and standards of the school. His administration has inspired the faculty to seek greater intellectual progress; and he has encouraged the students to take full advantage of the many academic, cultural, and social opportunities afforded them.

President and Mrs. Chandler have been most gracious in receiving dignitaries and other visitors to the College. However, they have always reserved the greater part of their time and concern for the students, faculty, and alumni of William and Mary.

THE BOARD OF VISITORS

The Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary serves as the governing body of the school. It includes ten members, at least six of whom must be alumni of the College. These are all appointed by the Governor of Virginia and are confirmed by the General Assembly for terms of four years, with no one person being able to succeed himself. In addition, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction serves as an ex officio member.

This group functions through meetings and its six standing committees. In the absence of the Board, the Executive Committee exercises its powers and conducts its business. The Finance Committee has the duty of making recommendations to the Board concerning direction and control of finance. Buildings and Grounds is the committee which examines the college buildings and grounds and all its units, making recommendations to the Board on matters relating to this. The Education Committee considers and makes recommendations to the Board on matters affecting educational policies and instructional organization of the three units comprising the college. Recommendations on administration and financial operation of two of these units, Richmond Professional Institute and the Norfolk Division of William and Mary, are given to the Board by the Divisions Committee. Names submitted by the President, faculty, or any member of the Board for consideration for an Honorary Degree from the College are referred by the President to the Committee on Honorary Degrees for its recommendation.

The Board of Visitors as a whole acts on the recommendation of these committees. Another of its functions is to appoint the President, all professors, teachers, and agents of the College. Leading the organization in these endeavors, Mr. James M. Robertson of Norfolk, Virginia, served again this year as Rector of the Board, with Mr. R. William Arthur of Wytheville, Virginia, as Vice Rector. Secretary was Mr. Roy R. Charles of Norfolk, Virginia. The remaining members include Mr. Russell M. Carnel of Williamsburg, Mr. W. Brooks George, Judge H. Lester Hooker, Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, the ex officio member, Dr. J. Asa Shield, Mr. Edward P. Simpkins, Jr., all of Richmond, Mr. T. Edward Temple, Danville and Mr. M. Carl Andrews, Roanoke.

WHO IMPARTED THIS KNOWLEDGE?

Top to Bottom:

TV classes are an innovation.

Mr. Roseberg prepares for a Fine Arts lecture.

Professors take breaks too.

Dr. Neiman never misses an eight o'clock class.

The natural friendliness which exists at William and Mary is the distinctive characteristic of the daily life on the campus and in the classroom. As the College is chiefly a resident school, students and faculty comprise a closely knit community in which extra-curricular and social activities play a considerable role in the cultural and intellectual development of the individual. The informal relationship between teacher and student serves to encourage the process of living and learning together.

From the very beginning, the new student at William and Mary is introduced to this life and atmosphere during the orientation period which takes place immediately before the beginning of classes in September. The first step in this student-teacher relationship is taken when the student's academic program is planned under the guidance of a faculty counselor. The student's advisor shows concern about the student's problems, aspirations, and accomplishments throughout his stay at the College. Through this program the new student becomes an integral part of the institution of learning, making new friends among members of his own and other classes and the faculty and administrative officers.

The student becomes a part of the democratic life of William and Mary, which encourages the exchange of friendly greetings with other students, members of the faculty and visitors to the College. This spirit permeates the classroom as well; for the new student finds his instructors and the administrative staff ready and willing to assist him through their experience, human understanding, and knowledge.

The congenial relationship between student and professor is not only apparent in the classroom or faculty office, but also as the faculty competes with the students in such sports as basketball, football and tennis. Often the faculty members take time from their work and other activities to referee intramural games. In addition, many hours are spent in preparation for club meetings, programs, and College-sponsored lectures. Each organization at the College has a faculty advisor. Not only do professors advise organizations, but some even participate further in panel discussions and speeches for clubs and religious organizations. One professor joined the orchestra for "The Boyfriend," a student production.

Morning, noon, and night . . . in the classroom, along the red brick sidewalks, in the library or a club meeting, at an intramural game, in church, or when chaperoning a College dance, at sorority teas, at receptions or for a conference in a faculty office . . . faculty members and students are continually building the congenial relationship for which William and Mary is noted.

THE CLASSES

It all began with the large registration lines in September and the preoccupied search for desired courses and professors. The freshmen were introduced to the newness of college classes in Marshall Wythe, Ewell, Rogers, and Washington; while the other classes returned to these fields of academic endeavor with the rude accompanying shock of facing studies after summer relaxation.

This confused mass of students was at first united in its activities, but as the year moved on there was a breaking up into spheres of interest and the classes emerged as individual personalities.

The Freshmen as new members of the college community were introduced to dorm life, and the Ludwell girls began regulating their lives by the schedule of the "Green Machine". In October, campaigns were conducted with a vigor that would do justice to the current '60 National Campaign, and each available space bore a poster urging votes. It was the Freshmen who most anticipated vacations with noise and song in the dorms and with restless activity in Dr. Fowler's last lecture before the holidays. And, fitting quickly into academic life, they were soon versed on studying for history quizzes and on the mysteries of lab sciences.

Sophomores assumed the role of campus authorities early in the year as they sponsored freshmen during the first confused weeks. They, too, settled down to studying and a second year in the cafeteria. Their activities were centered around evolving philosophies of life via MacDonald, completing thankfully their final year of physical education, switching feverishly from one major to another, and finishing off the required subjects in anticipation of their junior year. They were continually busy, discarding and adding, in a search for the mighty course of action scholastically, socially, and activity-wise.

The Junior class had the dubiously certain air of knowing what they were doing. They were working on their majors, and discovering that a feeling for a subject is definitely not a guarantee of "smooth sailing". The queries from this segment of the campus population concerned their ultimate destination for eating and they were known for caustic evaluations of the student specials. They had passed the half-way mark and had begun to see graduation as a coming event.

The Seniors were engaged in an endless round of activities as the guiding lights of the campus. Upon their aged heads depended the success of all clubs and student organizations. They appeared in black cap and gown, and at convocations many were singled out for honors and honorary societies. They were known to haunt Brattleton and Mr. Bright in their search for jobs. And, of course, the feminine half began to sparkle with the diamonds of promise. They finished up their studies, took time out to ring the college bell sixty times, and then, with a solemn ceremony and a somewhat regretful farewell, they left with promises to "meet at Homecoming next year".

THE SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

In September, 1956, another freshman class invaded the campus, donned green beanies and became a part of the college life. In their first election they chose Warren Joblin to lead them along with Tom Foster, vice president; Nancy Lee Hanson, secretary-treasurer; and Joy Hornung, class historian.

The year passed quickly and in the spring the class of 1960 elected officers for their fast-approaching sophomore year. Joe Alexander became president with Bill Harrison, vice president and Nancy Gilliam, secretary-treasurer.

The Class of 1960 began their junior year under the leadership of Tom Foster. John Jerrehian served as vice president and Margie Fitton was secretary-treasurer. Now as seniors, the class of 1960 adds its chapter to the history of the College of William and Mary.

THE JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Dave Bottoms, Rainette Struve, Fred Denny. Not pictured: Lorna Bowen

Last spring, 1959, the members of the Junior Class elected as their officers the following: president, Dave Bottoms; vice-president, Fred Denny; secretary, Rainette Struve; historian, Lorna Bowen; assemblymen: Charlie White, Pete Siegenthaler, Don Farrell. Assemblywomen: Maureen Rumazza, Julie Morgan, Sue Lovern.

The Junior Class initiated a new type of class meeting in the form of a dance, which met with favorable comment. The Junior Class Weekend, consisting of a talent show, a jazz concert, and a dance, was concluded by the crowning of a king and queen to reign over the weekend. A picnic held at Matoaka Lake and the annual tea, given by President and Mrs. Chandler, were the important events during the year.

We find time to attend class meetings

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS OFFICERS

The Sophomore Class this year was under the leadership of the following officers: president, Greg Tweet; vice president, Dorcas Brown; secretary-treasurer, Virginia Yoder; historian, Sue Oakley; assembly-women: Elena Ruddy, Karen Zimmerman, and Nancy Carol Taylor; and assembly-men: John Black, Paul Berghaus, and Lynn Shaw.

S. Oakley, D. Brown, G. Tweet, V. Yoder

The main function of the Sophomore Class was conducting Duc Week. During this memorable week, the lowly freshmen were forced to respect their superior elders and to show their inferiority by wearing the stylish beanies. The sophomores held several dances with the co-sponsorship of the Freshman and Junior Classes.

The primary aim of the Sophomore Class was to promote school spirit and to unify their class.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS

After the ordeal of Duc Week, and their official initiation into college life, the freshman class tackled the process of election of officers with much enthusiasm. Innumerable posters and banners disguised trees and buildings, and Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall echoed with the sounds of a rally staged to introduce the candidates. Campaign promises became more and more elaborate until the election week ended, at last, with the Viking party candidate, Rolf Svendsen, the choice for the presidency.

A. HARVEY, R. SVENDSEN, T. RICHARDSON, B. RISSER

Freshmen welcomed the Christmas season with a dance on December 11, preceded by a reception for the faculty and students. Plans for the year included the collection of dues to finance several class activities that would promote and maintain class spirit.

IN THE AFTERNOON...

ORGANIZATIONS

Our campus organizations commanded student attention at every turn. Trees and buildings alike were crowded with gayly colored posters inviting students to lectures, movies, concerts, or dramatic productions. Artistic sketches and crisp slogans vied with each other to attract members and visitors to the numerous organization meetings. Bulletin boards were scoured continually in a search for thumbtacks to post announcements marked "Important" in red pencil.

Fall brought crowded Pep Club busses chartered to bring enthusiastic students to the away games. There were Student Government dances for freshmen on Saturday nights, Sunday evening church suppers, and excellent lectures on such subjects as psychiatry and physics. Our already exuberant Christmas spirits were buoyed by the Choir concert and the vivacious presentation of "The Boy-friend". There was a Yule Log celebration in the Great Hall and then vacation. Warmer days, as Spring approached, were an invitation to laziness. Yet, the students found time to sponsor panel discussions, listen to prominent speakers, and plan conventions before June and graduation brought the year to a breathless close.

Student organizations were important to us as individuals. As officers, we pondered parliamentary procedure and learned to lead with maturity and responsibility. In small groups, we were stirred by new interests and found an outlet for our talents. We formed close friendships as we worked together for a common purpose and we recognized the importance of generosity as we gave of ourselves.

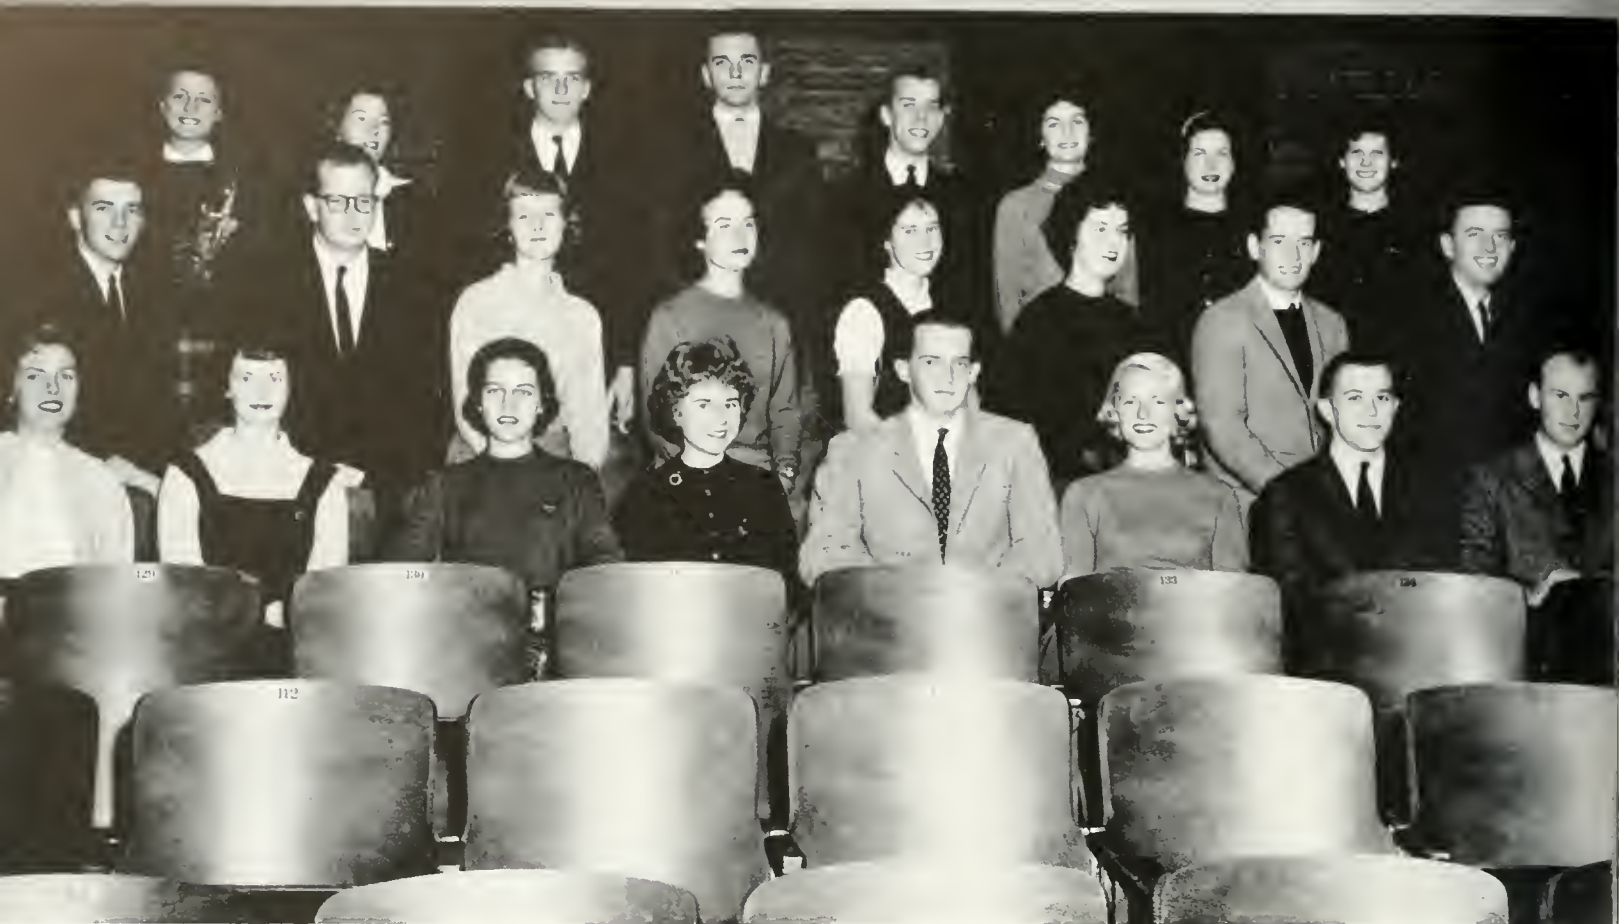

Last minute drafts for meetings, trips to Mr. Jones for scheduling and discussions that lasted long hours—these are the things that we remember today. In the future, we will be rewarded as scholars who were also men of action.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The government of the Student Body of the College of William and Mary serves as a unifying association to which problems and suggestions are brought from all over campus. The student body is represented by campus leaders in many areas of activity. Ably led this year by president, Richard P. Neely; vice president, James R. Odell; and secretary-treasurer, Nancy A. Reed; the student government has initiated several new projects for campus welfare. Noteworthy are the student tutoring system, the jazz concert series, free movies, and bus trips to events of cultural interest.

The Student Assembly is composed of the class officers, three men and three women from each class, and the other members of the Senate. The vice president of the student body presides over the thirteen-member Senate; the officers of the student body, the class presidents, the chairmen of the Honor Councils, the president of the Women Students' Cooperative Government Association, the chairman of the Women's Judicial Council, and the presidents of the Pan-Hellenic and Inter-Fraternity Councils. It is a permanent, standing advisory committee of the Assembly and represents it on the General Cooperative Committee. The General Committee, presided over again this year by Deau Lambert, serves as clearing house for matters of concern to the entire college community, and consists of the entire Senate, the Deans, four faculty members, the Executive Secretary of the Alumni, and the editor of the Flat Hat.

MEN'S HONOR COUNCIL

GLENN CAYWARD
Chairman

The Men's Honor Council, under the leadership of Glenn Cayward, attempted this year to put forth the interpretive function of this Judicial Body, in addition to its penal function, as it continually strives to strengthen the code through prevention and education rather than punishment.

One of the most important activities of the Men's Honor Council is its participation in Orientation Week, when it introduces to the entering students the rules and standards of the college. In addition to this, its members officiate at elections on campus, count the ballots, and confer with members of honor systems from other schools.

WOMEN'S HONOR COUNCIL

The Women's Honor Council functions as a body for the purpose of interpreting and upholding the Honor Code and aiding the women students in maintaining the standards of the College of William and Mary.

The principal annual activity of the Council is its participation in Orientation Week. At the end of this period the chairman of the Women's Honor Council, together with the chairman of the Men's Honor Council, administers the pledge to the Honor Code to the entering students.

The Council also officiates at elections on campus, counts ballots, and provides Lost and Stolen forms for students who wish to investigate the loss of an article.

Members include Roby Schrom, chairman, Pattie Lynn Adams, vice chairman, and Marge Briscoe, senior members; Kay Davenport, Maureen Harvey, secretary, and Beth Humrickhouse, junior members; Shiras Elliott and Hollie Engle, sophomore members.

WOMEN STUDENTS' COOPERATIVE

Self-government among the women students of William and Mary is exercised through the Women Students' Cooperative Government Association, an independent body consisting of the Executive, Judicial, and Honor Councils.

Lectures, articles in college publications, addresses, and individual instruction serve to interpret the Honor Code. Reported violations are investigated by the Honor Council and suitable penalties recommended.

The Executive Council heads the organization. Its principal duties include handling official business of the Association, and acting "upon such problems as pertain to the welfare of the women students."

The Judicial Council upholds the standards of social life and good conduct of the women students and deals with "those cases reported to it and gives a penalty in proportion to the offense."

Each year WSCGA awards two scholarships to women students on the basis of need, scholarship, and service to the college.

THE STUDENT PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE

The Student Publications Committee was established to maintain consistent standards of excellence for William and Mary publications, and to improve and revise methods in order to secure the best results from all publications. A chairman appointed by the president of the student body with the approval of the Assembly, Audrey Murray; the editor of the Flat Hat, John Montgomery; the editor of the COLONIAL ECHO, Lynne Hagen; the editor of the Royalist, Tom Lipscomb; a member of the faculty elected biannually by the assembly, Dr. Alexander Kallos; a member of the faculty elected biannually by the Student Activities Fee Committee, Dr. Cecil McCulley; and the president of the student body, Dick Neely, comprise the committee.

The group meets monthly to discuss the general organization of the publications and to formulate regulations governing their operation. During the first week in April or May, the Student Publication Committee elects the editor, the business manager, the advertising manager, and the circulation manager of the Flat Hat; the editor and the business manager of the COLONIAL ECHO; the editor-in-chief and the art editor of the Royalist; and the editor-in-chief and the managing editor of the Seminar. These students begin their year's term of office on June 1, of the year they are elected.

The Committee also reviews elections and appointments of other staff members. It serves as a board for hearing and acting on complaints concerning staff organization of the publications, and makes the necessary recommendations. The Committee, however, has no voice in the editorial policy of the publications. The editor-in-chief has the sole responsibility for his publication. The Committee is primarily interested in the continuance of each publication in an interesting style while maintaining the highest ideals of journalism within its structure. Since there is no censorship of any publication, The Student Publications Committee tries to promote good taste by friendly advice so that subjects are printed tactfully and are not offensive to anyone.

Salaries fixed by the Student Activities Fees Committee are provided for the editor-in-chief, managing editor, business manager, advertising manager, and circulation manager of the Flat Hat; the editor-in-chief and the business manager of the COLONIAL ECHO; the editor-in-chief and the art editor of the Royalist; and the editor-in-chief and managing editor of the Seminar. To be eligible for these salaried offices, a student must have maintained either an over-all 1.4 average or a 1.4 average in the previous semester.

Although the Student Publication seeks to maintain excellency throughout the year in all publications, in addition, it is interested in future publications, especially the editors and staff members who make the publications possible. Providing for the training of freshmen and sophomores is extremely important to insure leaders to produce publications in future years.

COLONIAL ECHO

Morning, noon, and night William and Mary buzzes with activity, which takes the form of work and play. The COLONIAL ECHO of 1960, under the supervision of editor, Lynne Hagen, and assistant editor, Audrey Murray, together with the various staffs, attempts to present life at the College in an inanimate form, to be animated by each person as he relives memories of William and Mary, via the yearbook. Penny Anderson, as business manager, kept a close rein on the COLONIAL Echo finances and collected student fees.

Mary Welsh, organization editor, devised a new itinerary for the annual's passengers to follow. Literary editor, Jo Ann Dotson, was responsible for all written material in the book. Copy editor, Ellen Howard and her

FLAT HAT

This year the Flat Hat achieved its new look. Editor John Montgomery began last year with Paul Weidenmann and publication's advisor, Mr. Richard D. Bullock, and has tried to change the Flat Hat from an ordinary school newspaper to The College Newspaper.

Since the Flat Hat now begins its operating year in September instead of February, John, starting last February, has been editor one and a half times longer than previous editors. Glenn Cayward, feature editor, has attempted to make students important in the paper, and make the paper important to the students. News editor, Al Volkman, increased the news coverage with his new "beat system." Mike Glass, advertising manager, was successful in securing a large number of national ads.

All the staffs were reorganized and expanded during the session. The editorial board consisted of Steve Lovell, Zita King, Carolyn Wenger, and Gina Hardison. Abbe Furst, business manager, and Bill Clayton, managing editor, were responsible for the general production of the paper. Fran Recchuiti and Bill Bryant called the plays as sports editors; Gina Hardison and Margie Heiney, make-up editors, prepared the paper for printing. Joe Hennessey was copy editor, while Tom Madison and Robert Betts managed circulation.

Archives editor, Dennis Murphy, could proudly record that the Flat Hat was awarded second place by the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association, and received a first class rating by the Associated Collegiate Press.

THE ROYALIST

The William and Mary literary magazine, the Royalist, is noted for its excellent short stories, play and book reviews, narratives, and poems. All these are first submitted to the Critical Staff which reviews and judges all entries.

The Editorial Board, headed by Editor Tom Lipscomb then considers these entries along with the Critical Staff's comments and makes the final decision as to the material to be published.

Manuscripts are submitted anonymously and read by each member of both the Critical Staff and the Editorial Board before the weekly meeting. The meetings are the deciding ground for what will and will not be published, judged on the basis of literary value and reading appeal.

The selected material is assigned to the Art Staff which this year was headed by Trudy Havola. This group read the articles and illustrated the theme or main ideas pertinent to each one. To the Art Staff also goes the credit for designing the very imaginative covers of the Royalist.

THE SEMINAR

The Seminar, an intellectual magazine dedicated to serious and thought-provoking writing, seeks to be a testing ground for new ideas and theories. The purpose of the Seminar is to provide an opportunity for students and faculty to express their ideas and opinions on various topics and issues.

Promoting interest in original thought is the basic plan of the Seminar. Serious thinkers develop their own ideas pertaining to theories or novel problems and situations. Students are encouraged to express themselves for their own benefit as well as for the benefit of other students and the college community.

This year Ken Simonsen was editor-in-chief, Dona Hafermehl was managing editor, and Rosalind Bewley was business manager. The Editorial Board consisting of Malcom Robinson, James Dean, Sanford Murch, Dorcas Brown, Celia Cowles, and Gene Haislip read the material submitted for publication and selected the best thoughts to be preserved for posterity. Dr. Wayne Kernodle and Dr. Harold Waters were the advisors to the Seminar.

As in preceding years, the Seminar inspired students to write their thoughts not only for others but for themselves; thus contributing themselves to an important part of William and Mary's cultural life, the Seminar.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Phi Beta Kappa, the oldest Greek Letter fraternity in the United States, is an outstanding scholastic honor society and was founded by a small group of students at the College of William and Mary in 1776, in the Apollo Room at the Raleigh Tavern. The prime requisite for selection is a high scholastic average and members are chosen on the basis of outstanding academic achievement.

During the succeeding four years, the number of members increased to a total of fifty, including Captain John Marshall who subsequently became Chief Justice of the United States and Elisha Permele, a graduate of Harvard University. The original society at the College became inactive in 1781 with the closing of the College because of the approach of the army of Cornwallis. It was revived in 1851 and continued until early in the War Between the States. Once again it was revived in 1893 and has been in continuous existence since that time. At present there are approximately 160 chapters of Phi Beta Kappa located at the leading educational institutions of the United States with a living membership in excess of 120,000.

On December 5, William and Mary celebrated the 183rd anniversary with the initiation of ten seniors and one graduate. At the ceremony, Dr. S. Donald Southworth presented and welcomed the initiates. Randall Jarrell, English professor at the University of North Carolina, presented his poem, "The Woman at the Washington Zoo", which he first interpreted. Then Leslie Check, Jr., Director of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, gave a speech on "The Well-Adjusted Viewer" which he illustrated with color slides. He contrasted good taste with poor taste, showing that well-planned and skillfully prepared exhibits can be very effective. Howard M. Scammon, director of the William and Mary Theater, played the organ for the Processional and Recessional. Following the program, a reception was held in the Dodge Room of the Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Those who were elected from the class of 1960 include: Judith Dickerson, Jeanne Tracy, William Lincoln, Roberta Schrom, Sally Williams, Lynne Hagen, William Haut, Ann Patterson, William Piotrowski, Carol Shelby, Barbara Turner, Penny Anderson, Rosser Rudolph, Rexford Cherryman, Donald Gilmore, Judith Rhodes, Mrs. Ellen Oustinoff, Sally Lawson, Rosalind Bewley, and Malcolm Robinson.

THE PRESIDENT'S AIDES

During his Presidency of the College of William and Mary from 1934 to 1942, James Stewart Bryan became the first to organize a group of students as personal aides to the President. When he did this in 1935, he also designed the special medals bearing the Seal of the College which are in the possession of each of these Aides. The activities of this group have increased over the years, and the President's Aides today function as invaluable representatives of the Student Body in many areas.

Appointed by the President of the College, the group of Aides are traditionally composed of the President of the Student Body, the Presidents of the Senior and Junior classes, the Chairmen of the Men's and Women's Honor Councils, the President of the Executive Council of the Women's Student Cooperative Government Association, the Chairman of the Judicial Council, the President of Omicron Delta Kappa, the President of Mortar Board, and the Editor of the Flat Hat. In addition to these ten, the President generally appoints two representatives-at-large to complete the group. These students are named at the beginning of the fall semester, and serve during that year.

Immediately following their appointment, the Aides are received by the President and his wife at the President's Aides' Banquet. In November this year, the Aides served as guides for a group of state legislators as part of their annual Burgesses Day celebration and were entertained with them at a luncheon. They also escorted an industrial group and the Education Committee of the National Chamber of Commerce around the campus, showing them various points of interest. These activities are representative of the group's function as guides for distinguished visitors to the college.

In addition to entertaining such visitors as these, the President's Aides act as hosts and hostesses at all receptions given by the President, at which time they help with serving, introductions, and tours of the President's House. During all convocations, the Aides become part of the official party designated to walk with the President, following the Mace, and to sit with him on the stage. The President also calls meetings of his Aides to discuss current problems and possible solutions.

During the fifteen years since the group was founded, the office of President's Aide has developed into one of the most esteemed positions on campus, for these students have continually served as excellent representatives of the Student Body of William and Mary.

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

Omicron Delta Kappa was founded in 1914 as a National Honorary Fraternity to carry out the purposes of acknowledging high achievement and efficiency in college activities. Men representing all phases of college life are assembled to promote cooperation in worthwhile endeavors. Members of the faculty and student body are united on the basis of mutual interest and understanding.

In 1921, the Eta Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa was established at the College of William and Mary. At the biannual Honors Convocation new members are tapped as leaders in their class, standing among the upper twenty-five percent of their respective academic classes, and contribute to the college community through athletics, publications, religious organizations, and social fraternities.

This year a new project was initiated as ODK voted to establish an award for the most outstanding boy in the sophomore and freshman classes. A cup or plaque is presented at the Spring Convocations to those chosen by members as most outstanding in five basic fields: participation in athletics, varsity and intramural, participation in Student Government, social and religious groups, contribution and work to publications, and performance in speech, drama, and the arts.

Other local projects include sponsorship of the Spring Leadership Forum, which consists of representatives from each campus organization and a discussion of current leadership problems. Twice each year the members contribute twenty-five dollars to the College Library for the purpose of an American biography. Their ODK-Faculty Basketball game is one of the highlights of the activities for the benefit of the Campus Chest during Campus Chest Week.

At the Fall Convocations, one senior, John Montgomery, and two juniors, Fred Denny, and Ron Monark, were tapped for membership.

MORTAR BOARD

Mortar Board is a National Senior Women's Honor Society whose criteria for membership are scholarship, leadership, and service. Its members are elected each year from the Junior Class by their predecessors, and the William and Mary nominees are tapped at the Spring Honors Convocation. Each Mortar Board member must have an over-all grade average which is .3 points above the women students' average, making this year's qualifying average a 1.6. They must have excelled in leadership and service to the College.

Serving as President of Mortar Board this year was Judy Dickerson; vice president, Lynne Hagen; secretary, Anne Perkins; treasurer, Roby Schrom; and historian and editor, Sally Williams. Under the leadership of these officers and their advisors, Mrs. James S. Kelly, Miss Martha E. Barksdale, and Mrs. H. L. Fowler, the members of the group have undertaken many worthwhile projects. The object of Mortar Board's activities is to evaluate problems and deficiencies on the campus, find a solution through trial and experimentation, and then to channel this project to a more suitable organization.

In this line of activity, Mortar Board has this year organized departmental coffees, to allow students and professors in the same department to become acquainted. There are also other projects for improving student-faculty relations under consideration, such as a series of seminars for outstanding freshmen in various departments. During the first week of school, Mortar Board held its annual furniture sale and later in the first semester members were hostesses for the Section Three convention of Mortar Board. The seven schools represented discussed Mortar Board's obligation as a service organization. For the Christmas season, the traditional Yule Log Ceremony is always sponsored by Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Through various means, Mortar Board tries to make the women students conscious of its own ideals and criteria for membership. To emphasize scholarship, they recognize the sophomore woman with the highest scholastic standing each year at the Spring Honors Convocation. Also, a scholarship of $100.00 based on need, scholarship, and service is given annually. If a freshman or sophomore woman has been an outstanding leader in her class, she is also recognized at the Convocation. Mortar Board's best means of emphasizing these ideals, though, is in the inspiration provided by the fine example set by each of its members in leadership, scholarship, and service.

SCABBARD AND BLADE

Those students in Scabbard and Blade, a national honorary military society at William and Mary, form Company K of the Eighth Regiment.

New members are selected by old members on the basis of merit, academic standing, and participation in activities on campus. To be considered for membership, one must be a junior or a senior and to be accepted, one must be unanimously voted in.

Company K of the Eighth Regiment was established at William and Mary in 1949 to stimulate student interest in the military department of the college and in the military affairs of the nation. An outstanding activity of the organization is the annual sponsorship of the John Regan Memorial Manual of Arms Competition. The company consists of seventeen members, distinguished by the red and blue cords on their uniforms.

The purpose of Chi Delta Phi, the National Honorary Women's Literary Society, is to form a body of representative women who shall, by their influence and their literary interest, uphold the highest ideals of a liberal education. Prospective members are asked to submit selected examples of their writing in the realms of essay, poetry, criticism, drama, history, and fiction of any type. These are then evaluated by the members of the society and accepted or rejected.

It was originally founded at the University of Tennessee in 1919, and the Theta Chapter, at the College of William and Mary, was this year led by Carolyn Dewey. They included among their many activities: discussion of the works of Hemingway, Ezra Pound, Jane Austen, and many other contemporary authors; a discussion of the effectiveness of horror, macabre, gore, and other such elements in writing today; a critical analysis of their individual writings; speakers of interest to the group; and hosting activities.

They have a national magazine, The Litterateur, which is given to all members.

Delta Omicron, which was founded in 1909 at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, is the International Honorary Music for Women. The fraternity was formed as a means to inspire closer friendship among music students, to develop character and leadership, to encourage high scholarship and to stimulate greater growth in the performance of music. Its purpose is to further an appreciation of good music not only for members of the fraternity but in addition for students outside of the organization who are interested in music. To achieve this goal two recitals are given by the members of the fraternity during the college year.

The group also organizes receptions following all music department recitals. Ushering at musical functions is another service performed by the group. Meetings are held twice monthly under the sponsorship of Mrs. D. J. Gonzales. Dr. Carl A. Fehr, Mr. Stephen P. Paleles, and Dr. Andrew C. Haigh are patrons. All students majoring or minoring in music with a satisfactory academic record are eligible for membership.

The Fall Musical was presented by the group on December 6 and featured the music of George Gershwin. The second annual recital was held during the spring.

ETA SIGMA PHI

Founded at the University of Chicago in 1914, Eta Sigma Phi is the National Honorary Classical Fraternity. The purpose of this fraternity is threefold. They strive to further the spirit of cooperation and good will among the undergraduates in the classical departments, to stimulate interest in the study of the classics, and to increase the knowledge of the art and the literature of ancient Greece and Rome among the fraternity members.

Our chapter has been active this year in providing lectures by guest speakers from outside the College, in sponsoring talks by the undergraduate members of the fraternity, and in presenting our annual medal to the outstanding Latin student at James Blair High School.

The fraternity pledged a large class this year including twenty-seven men and women. Gold and purple pledge ribbons were given to students who had had a high academic standing in either Latin or Greek for a period of three semesters.

The fraternity sponsor is Doctor Ryan of the Ancient Languages Department.

Kappa Delta Pi, National Honorary Society for Education Majors, was founded at William and Mary on April 18, 1872. At present there are 12 initiated members.

To qualify for membership, a student must have attained full junior standing, fulfilled certain educational requirements, have an acceptable over-all collegiate record, show indications that there will be a continued interest in the field of education, and have a manifestation of desirable personal habits and leadership attributes.

The purpose of the fraternity is to encourage high professional, intellectual, and personal standards and to recognize outstanding contributions to education.

Activities include a panel discussion of three members of the Co-operative Bureau for Teachers, jointly sponsored by the Student Education Association, a tea for student teachers and supervising teachers, a reception following the fall initiation, and a banquet following the spring initiation. The society gives a summer school scholarship of fifty dollars and a $100 scholarship for the second semester. Faculty advisor is Dr. Holland.

KAPPA KAPPA PSI

Founded to promote cooperation and to stimulate the expansion of musical activities, Kappa Kappa Psi is the National Men's Honorary Band Fraternity on the campus of William and Mary.

All members must be certified members of the William and Mary Band, recommended by Mr. Varner, Director of the Band, and recommended by the members of the Band. They must also make a musical audition for the fraternity on the instrument of their choice.

In keeping with its ideals, the fraternity participates in an intercollegiate band convention held each year at Lycoming College, plans and gives a recital in the middle of March, and sponsors a banquet for the Band. It also gives informal concerts and aids other musical programs throughout the year.

Along with regular meetings, the group frequently hears speakers who talk about the fields of interest pertinent to the members of Kappa Kappa Psi.

PHI ALPHA DELTA

The George Wythe Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta, national honorary law fraternity, was founded at William and Mary on May 23, 1953. Members are selected on the basis of scholastic average and evidence of a sense of manhood, truth, and morality, and compassion towards one's fellow man which is fitting to the legal profession. At present there are sixteen old and nine new members.

The purpose of this fraternity is to establish strong bonds of friendship and wide legal exchange among law students both on this campus and other schools; to cultivate those principles that tend to form a high type of manhood; and to attain a higher and broader culture in addition to that afforded by the regular college courses.

Activities this year have included smokers and social parties, toastmaster-type public speaking programs, a talk by a Norfolk criminal lawyer, and educational displays and exhibits. The fraternity serves the campus as a social outlet and, indirectly, through accomplishment of its purpose. There is no faculty advisor, but Professor Curtis, who teaches legal ethics, has given advice on occasions.

Pi Delta Epsilon, an honorary journalism fraternity for men and women, was organized at Syracuse University in 1909, and at William and Mary in 1935, where it remained active for three years. In 1959, the charter at the College was revived and eighteen members were initiated. At present there are fifteen members in this chapter.

The purpose of the society is to elevate the cause of journalism, to foster the mutual welfare of student publications, and to reward the journalist for his efforts, service and accomplishments by admission to its membership. Membership is chosen from students who have served for at least one year on one or more of the accredited campus publications in either the editorial or business departments. Candidates may not be pledged or formally initiated until the end of their second year of enrollment.

The society sponsored in conjunction with the Publications Committee the Publications Banquet May 5. At this time certificates of merit were awarded. Medals were awarded also to an outstanding citizen in this area and to the man and woman in the College who had contributed the most to furthering the cause of journalism.

PI DELTA PHI

Pi Delta Phi, the National French Honor Society, was originally founded at the University of California in Berkeley, and was organized as the Beta Epsilon Chapter on the campus of William and Mary by Mr. McCary in 1949. Its general purpose is to foment a wider knowledge of and a greater love for the contributions of France to world culture. This is to be accomplished by stimulating the students of French in American colleges and universities to greater activity and interest in the French language, literature, and civilization; and by rewarding with election to membership, those who have excelled in their studies and have demonstrated their admiration and respect for French culture. Requirements for membership include an interest in French culture, a B average in all French courses, and an all-over average of 1.8.

Among its many activities, its members celebrated the French Epiphany, or twelfth night after Christmas, with traditional customs. They also sponsored a speaker who showed slides and spoke to the whole campus on French culture.

Their national organization prints a magazine in French, "Le Bayou", which is circulated to all members. They also sponsor scholarships for French students.

The aim of Theta Alpha Phi, the Honorary Dramatics Fraternity, is to promote the advancement of interest in the collegiate theater, both in its dramatic and crew working aspects. For membership the fraternity requires its members to have attained the status of sophomore; to have participated in at least four William and Mary Theater Productions; and to have played a major role, either on the stage or behind it, in at least two productions.

The Alpha Chapter, under the able leadership of Jeanne Tracy, sponsored the Long Christmas Dinner, previewed "The Cherry Orchard," and listened to a lecture by Mr. Waters on Jean Anouilh. Also included in its activities were the maintenance of the cloak rooms during dramatic performances and the sponsoring of representatives to the annual dramatics convention held in the spring of each year. Part of their income is used to make contributions to the William and Mary Library for books pertaining to the theater arts.

Theta Alpha Phi was established at William and Mary to recognize those students who have excelled in dramatics or who are interested in backstage work. Students are elected to membership in the society twice a year.

The Accounting Club of the College of William and Mary is one of the many organizations on campus whose members have a common interest in a certain field of endeavor. "The club tries to urge and foster the ideal of service as the basis of all worthy enterprise and particularly that of accountancy, to encourage cooperation among students, instructors, and professional men in accountancy, to impel high professional, moral, and scholastic standards, to develop and improve methods of accounting education and to provide a club by which those interested in accountancy may be kept in touch with current developments in this field."

Members must have completed at least one year or its equivalent of accounting in order to be a candidate for admission. Honorary membership is granted members of the faculty and any prominent practicing accountant.

Recently the club officers were on a panel which gave a critique on the program of the Richmond Control of the Controllers Institution of America. A dinner meeting was held at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, attended by dignitaries and most of the controllers in Virginia. There was a joint meeting of the Peninsular Chapter of the Virginia Society of Certified Public Accountants in April and they made a trip to a Newport News investment firm in March.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

The William and Mary Chapter of Student Affiliates of the American Chemical Society has for many years afforded students at the College an opportunity to become better acquainted with chemistry. The membership consists of affiliates and associates. Affiliates are those students in the two hundred courses or higher, and Associates are those registered in other science courses who wish to participate. The affiliates are members of the American Chemical Society and are subject to special advantages throughout their affiliation. Upon graduation they have a chance to become members of the Society.

This club at first was one of the largest on campus, but it declined because of the decrease in the number of chemistry majors. Recently membership has improved and it is once again one of the larger organizations at the College.

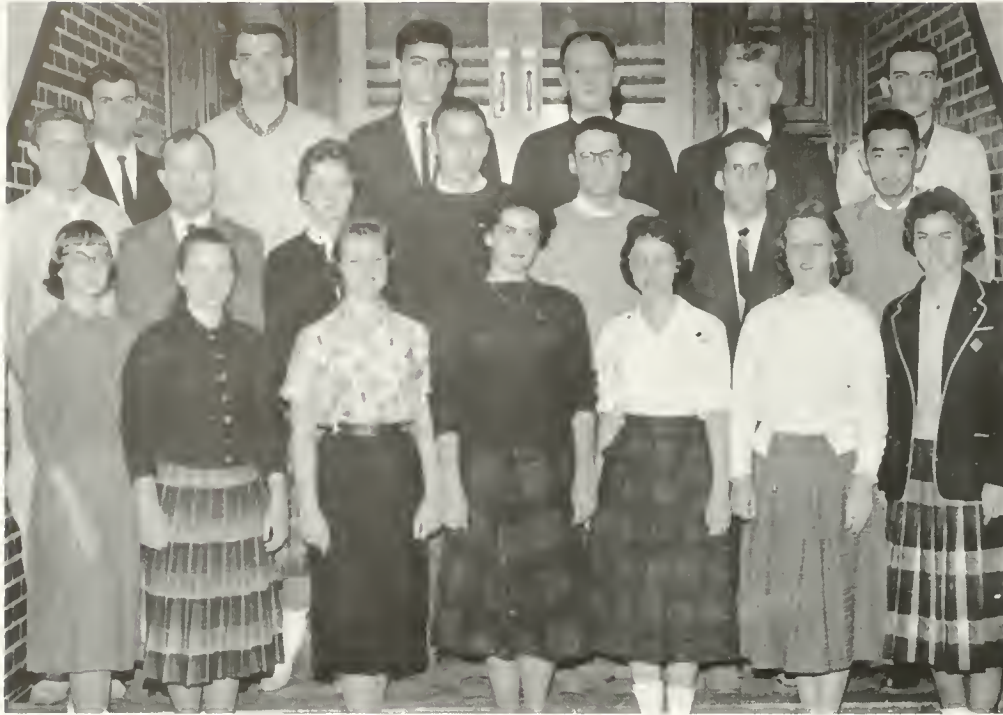

Meetings are held every other Monday in Rogers 300. Each spring and fall the club sponsors a picnic and at its regular meetings talks are given on varied phases of chemistry. Chemists from outside organizations, faculty members, and students provide many interesting hours of lectures. This year the club plans to make several trips to different plants in the area.

The Clayton-Grimes Biological Club is the oldest interest group at the College. At one time it was merged with the Pre-Med Club. The club is only one of the many such groups on the campus that offers students an opportunity to delve further into the subjects that are of the most interest to them. As a group they learn many new and interesting things which could not be learned in the stuffy, formal atmosphere of a biology classroom. Consequently, its purpose as a club should be to encourage pre-med and biology students to further their interests in their fields of endeavor.

The club meets twice a month, and at these meetings the members try to make their aims a reality. Their programs consist of various field trips, speakers, discussions, and movies. One speaker, Dr. Stokes, head of the Cancer Research Society in Williamsburg, spoke on cancer research and showed an extremely interesting movie. The club visited the Medical College of Virginia and Hog Island Wildlife Reserve, and is planning in the future, trips to Seashore State Park, the Appalachians, and the Azalea Gardens. The group is also going to sponsor Audubon Screen Tours. These interesting and basic activities of the club provide practical experience in the study of biology and medicine.

The German Club, formed in 1956, adopted as its motto, "We shall stand for the tolerance of Lessing, the wisdom of Goethe and the idealism of Schiller." Membership in Der Deutsche Verein is not limited to those students taking German, but includes all persons with a genuine interest in German culture.

Activities included in the program for 1959-60 were a short talk by Dr. Peter Oustinoff on the importance of modern language clubs, a panel discussion to celebrate Schiller's birthday in November entitled "Does the Idealism of Schiller Have any Significance in Modern Times?", and a program of music including German songs and records. Also a skit, "Der Fagrende Schuler Im Paradies", was presented. In addition, programs were held to demonstrate German customs, especially those associated with holiday periods and a discussion was moderated by members of the faculty, from the government department, who lectured on the political situation of Germany. A Christmas party was held jointly with the French Club.

Meetings were held every second Wednesday of each month in Barrett East Lounge.

Through guest speakers varied programs under the supervision of the Mathematics Department, the members are offered a clearer insight into mathematical analysis and reasoning. Each year one program is devoted to a presentation of job opportunities for the future which are offered to students concentrating in mathematics in college. THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION MAJORS CLUB

The aim of the Physical Education Majors Club is the greater social and professional cooperation among all health, physical education and recreation majors, students, faculty, and alumni to awaken interest in health and physical education. The club attempts to advance standards of teaching and leadership in the field of physical education. Each year, in the latter part of May, a clinic is held for the public school teachers of District B, Virginia Education Association. At this clinic, new educational methods and techniques are advanced and discussed concerning various aspects of the teaching of physical education and of physical education itself.

During the basketball season, the P. E. Majors Club puts on half-time shows in the gym. Tennis, wrestling, and trampoline demonstrations are given to liven up an otherwise empty halftime. Speakers and discussions provide programs for the meetings of the club. The subjects concern some facet of physical education.

In its second year at William and Mary, the Physical Education Majors Club shows tremendous determination in making this club a permanent fixture here. It has, in these past two years, already shown the spirit necessary to make it a success.

The main objective of the Political Science Club is the stimulation of student study and discussion of topics of a governmental nature. To further this objective, the club has brought to the campus speakers of significance in the fields of politics, diplomacy, political philosophy, and labor. In the past years they have had many interesting and rewarding programs.

Because 1960 is a presidential election year, the club's program will aim at creating an awareness of the process of the nomination and the election of a President and Vice President. Since an interest in this process inevitably leads to a desire for action, the club encourages its members to use the newly-formed Young Republican and Young Democrat Clubs as vehicles for political participation.

The group holds a regular meeting once a month and calls additional meetings for the purpose of presenting speakers and holding special discussions whenever necessary. Membership is not limited to government majors; participation by anyone with the requisite interest in keeping up with the ever-changing field of political science is welcome.

PRE-LEGAL ASSOCIATION

Organized in 1958, the Pre-Legal Association for undergraduates was formed to acquaint its members with the various aspects of law.

The programs this year consisted of lectures by eminent attorneys in the area and by professors of the Law School. Authoritative speakers were drawn from the surrounding areas and from the campus community itself. With their stimulating talks and panel discussions on subjects of immediate interest the club often found itself so active in discussion that only the bell in the Wren Building could call a halt to the exchange of ideas. The climax of the year was a mock trial in which the plaintiff, defense, and jury were students. Law students who had passed the bar examinations advised in the trial.

"You don't have to be nuts, but it helps," say the members of William and Mary's Psychology Club. This organization is one of the clubs on campus whose members are those merely interested in an interesting field. It meets twice monthly, usually attempting to meet jointly with another club. This is done because they feel that psychology overlaps in the fields of medicine, biology, chemistry, physics, and several others. They try to stimulate a broad interest in every field of psychology with the orientation towards the application of philosophy and other sciences to it. They stimulate this interest not only through regular meetings, but also through encouraging their members to do research work on the subject. One may note that all psychology graduate students are honorary members and prove useful in helping the undergraduate members.

During the year the club has speakers attend the meetings. The programs are designed to broaden the students' understanding and thus are different from the regular classroom routines. The club also goes to other schools sponsoring lectures by well-known psychologists, who are usually obtained through the Visiting Scholars Program. Last year B. F. Skinner spoke at the University of Virginia and conducted an investigation of the school's psychology department. The club usually has a Christmas Party for the children at Eastern State Hospital and another one for the club and its members. Field trips and movies take their places in the programs and one can always find the members in "Greeks" after their meetings.

THE SOCIETY FOR ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT

The Society for Advancement of Management is a recognized national and professional organization of management, industry, commerce, government and education. It considers students for membership who are interested in economics, business administration, engineering, and others who have a sincere interest in the art and science of management. Every fall there is a membership drive, during which, future activities and programs are presented to prospective members so that their interest may be secured. The chapter feels that the students will derive from its activities only as much as they themselves put into it.

They attempt to bring executives in business closer together by giving students an opportunity to plan, direct and control the activities of an organization of which they may soon be a part. They also try to be an effective medium for the exchange and distribution of information on the problems, policies, and methods of industry in management.

The Society's programs are developed to attain these aims and the College chapter has worked hard to succeed. Lectures, panel meetings, round-table discussions, plant visits, management conferences, essays, newsletters, research projects and community activities offer sources for program materials. The Society for Advancement of Management tries to go beyond classroom activities in order to prepare the members for responsibilities and opportunities that await them.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

To investigate sociological problems and to discuss current topics of interest in the field of sociology, politics, and economics are the chief purposes of the Sociology Club.

Some of the activities this year were a visit to Eastern State Hospital, a lecture by Dr. David Grey, an informal party to discuss senior research projects, programs including panel discussions by the members, and informal talks given by guest speakers.

All students who are interested in furthering their knowledge of sociology and the basis for current social problems of the world are invited to seek membership in the Sociology Club. This club contains members of all classes and is enriched by the membership of majors from every department.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club meets once a month and tries to promote an interest in Spanish customs and literature by delving more deeply into these aspects than a normal class has time to do. Professors from the Spanish Department give talks and show slides and pictures of Spanish-speaking countries. Occasionally, during the year, the club has as guest speakers professors from other colleges who have traveled to various South American countries. The officers of the club are: president, Jogina Diamanti; vice president, Caroline French; secretary, Eugene de Ansoarena; and treasurer, Judy Schenkel.

Each meeting is a novel experience, but the Pinata party is especially unique. This is the most exciting meeting of the year. The Pinata is an ugly, monstrous face made out of paper and filled with candy. Each person takes his turn and tries to knock the Pinata down to get the candy. This is difficult to do for everyone is blindfolded and has trouble getting near the Pinata because it is not stationary but swinging back and forth. When someone finally hits the Pinata there is candy and fun for everyone. This is just one example of the programs sponsored by the Spanish Club, for learning is combined with perpetual fun. STUDENT EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

The Student Education Association, led this year by Anne Werz, is open to all students interested in the teaching profession. Its aim is to acquaint those interested in the profession with the different aspects of the field of education, including its professional organizations and their services. All members receive the monthly publications of the National Education Association and the Virginia Education Association.

Their theme this year, "Your First Year of Teaching," was aimed at answering the questions and solving the problems that future teachers may have. In support of this theme, Dr. Holland talked about certification, panel discussions were held, Dr. Kallos spoke at a dinner meeting, and the Teacher's Code of Ethics was examined. The topic, "What is expected of a Teacher?" was discussed by a principal, a teacher, and a parent. There were also films on the services of the Virginia Education Association and the National Education Association.

The Student Education Association as the collegiate organization of the National Education Association sent four delegates to the Student Virginia Education Association on November 13 and 14. They were: Janice Diamond, Patsy Spencer, Phyllis Owen, and Diane Keel. The meeting was conducted by President Margie Fitton, and Patsy Spencer was elected secretary-treasurer. Students also attended the Virginia Education Association in Richmond on October 30.

STUDENT BAR ASSOCIATION

Organized in May, 1951, at William and Mary, the Student Bar Association was founded under the auspices of the American Law Student Association and is the successor of the Wythe Law Club.

The Student Bar Association is the organ of student government for the Law School and is completely divorced from the student government of the undergraduate school. Being self-governing, it is responsible for all honor violations.

The Student Bar Association was created for the purpose of introducing law students to the professional problems and responsibilities they will encounter upon admission to the bar. Providing a closer integration between the future lawyers and the present day leaders of the legal profession, the law students gain practical knowledge of the opportunities and obligations of the present.

The law students, automatically members of the Association, number fifty-six this year. At the monthly meetings, speakers and movies were presented.

The goal of the Student Religious Union is the coordination of the purposes of each of the religious groups on campus. Its very existence encourages exchange of ideas among the different faiths, and promotes understanding and tolerance of another's faith. Each of the religious groups on campus elects representatives to the Union, and these students participate in activities which further the religious views and ideas.

The Student Religious Union holds many varied activities which enable the students of different faiths to gather in formal and informal activities. Every Wednesday night chapel services are held. Student speakers are featured from time to time. One of their greatest affairs is the annual Religion in Life Week, held in the spring. Each night of the week is used in the development of a certain subject. Outstanding speakers, both clergymen and laymen, are invited to the campus to speak. These nightly programs appeal to all faiths represented on the William and Mary campus.

Some of the SRU's informal activities are a bowling league, a bridge tournament, and a volley ball league. Its special programs of a religious nature include a radio broadcast over WCWM.

SRU's crowning achievement is its project to bring a foreign student to William and Mary, under its sponsorship. After one of the most successful years in its history, the Student Religious Union is still planning improvements for next year.

Balfour Hillel, the religious organization for Jewish students, attempts to provide an atmosphere of religious faith and conviction for the Jewish student. Every Friday night services are held in the Wren Chapel for the Sabbath. At these services, the students and members of the Williamsburg community join in prayer under a student leader. Frequently, a sermon is delivered by another student. In addition to the services on Friday night, the members meet in worship on all religious holidays.

Balfour Hillel holds its business meetings twice a month. Besides determining the affairs of the organization, the members may be addressed by various speakers, both religious and secular. At times, there are discussions and movies. The most delicious feature of the evening is the serving of sandwiches at the conclusion of the meeting.

Many social functions are scheduled for the Hillel program. The opening affair of the year is a picnic, at which all members, old and new, become acquainted. In December and in March, a Chanukah and a Purim party are held.

Balfour Hillel is active in Student Religious Union affairs. They have teams in all SRU intramural sports. In addition, Hillel sends delegates to the national convention of Balfour Hillel organizations. These representatives return with new ideas for the chapter, and new knowledge of Jewish life.

THE BAPTIST STUDENT UNION

The Baptist Student Union carried out an ambitious program of activities which not only gave its members social and educational benefits, but also strengthened their religious convictions. Foremost among these activities were its weekly Sunday evening suppers and programs. At these programs, speakers, panels, and discussions aided the students in achieving a better understanding of their faith, of current problems, and of the world about them. Their Sunday afternoon discussion group met for the same purpose. The Union was part of the interdenominational Bible study group, which helped to create a better understanding of other faiths. Their retreats, held fall and spring, were well attended.

In addition to these undertakings, special projects enriched their program. An underprivileged family enjoyed a happier Christmas than they normally would have through the sponsoring of a party for them by the Baptist Student Union. In addition, projects were sponsored to raise money to aid the program carried out by the international mission work of the Baptist Church.

In the summer, the Union takes part in a state-side program which includes representatives from the Baptist Student Unions of colleges throughout Virginia.

THE CANTERBURY CLUB

The Episcopal group on campus attempts to create a community of Christians and to stimulate the maintenance of high standards in all facets of life. The Canterbury Club itself is an informal organization, and is open to anyone; theoretically, all students and faculty members are members of the Club.

Services are held each morning to enable the student to keep in close touch with the Word of God. On Wednesday mornings and on Holy Days, Holy Communion is held. These services, held in the Wren Chapel, are conducted by lay readers, sometimes students.

Also, on Sunday evening, services are held at Bruton Parish. The music for the service is led by a student choir, the sermon is designed with the student in mind, and discussions are held. On Wednesday afternoons, an activity called the "Heretics Hour" is conducted. At this meeting, a discussion of the intellectual formation of Christian Doctrine takes place.

Before Christmas, a Festival of Lessons and Carols, which is modeled on a service at Cambridge University, is held. At this service, Bible readings are given by members of the faculty wearing their full academic regalia.

In addition to these activities, outside speakers are invited to address the Club, and movies are shown. These films are Hollywood productions, not of religious basis, but they raise religious problems. In this way, a better understanding of religious problems in life is gained.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

First Row: M. Cawley, S. Hise, G. McCeney, M. Zilmer, R. Atkins. Second Row: R. Fry, J. Chapman, J. VanVoorhis, J. Eriksen, D. Neely, J. Lee

The Christian Science Organization does not attempt to be a social club in any way; for example, it does not participate in SRI sports. Its primary aim is to promote interest in and to impart to its members the meaning of Christian Science.

The entirely student-organized and student-run organization meets every Thursday night in the Wren Chapel for meetings and discussions. On Sunday nights, the membership gathers at the home of a Williamsburg citizen for dinner.

One of the greatest and most looked-forward-to activities of the year is the Christian Science lecture at the end of Religious Emphasis Week. The Christian Science Organization publishes a newspaper which is available to anyone. In addition to this, the organization produces a radio program over WCWM.

Every other year, there is an international Christian Science co-vention in Boston. Representatives from Christian Science Organizations from all parts of the world meet in Boston. William and Mary sent four delegates to the last convention. At this convention, speeches are given by editors, directors, and other officials of the Mother Church, which is located in Boston. The delegates assemble in workshops where they discuss the various aspects of Christian Science and advance ideas about the running of a campus organization. Thus, there is constantly an exchange of new ideas and practices.

THE LUTHERAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

The Lutheran Student Association, in addition to supplying to its members social, intellectual, and religious benefits, carried out a program of activities which enabled the students to serve the community. The students canvassed an area of town to determine the denominations represented in Williamsburg. The information was turned over to all the churches in Williamsburg for their benefit. The tremendous value of this service is enhanced by the fact that this area has a very transient population due to service people stationed here.

At Thanksgiving, a dinner was held at the parsonage. The girls prepared the dinner. Every other week, dinners were held, and occasionally the boys took over and showed that they were not ignorant of the art of cuisine.

In the spring, a retreat was held, and the Lutheran Student Association of William and Mary met with the other Lutheran Student Associations of the Southeastern region. In addition to the regular meetings and discussions, Dr. Schmidt from Eastern State Hospital spoke to the LSA about Religion as a Therapy to Mental Illness.

Since the Lutheran Church has recently adopted a new service book, a resume and explanation was given by one of the members of the Association. The name of this new book is The New Common Service Book.

The aim of the Newman Club is to increase the Catholic student's understanding and knowledge of his religion so that it will play a meaningful role in his life. His faith is strengthened by the religious and social activities of the Club.

This past year, the Newman Club has had a wide program of activities. Faculty and outside speakers were brought to the Club to speak on topics of religious, educational and spiritual importance. On Sunday nights, suppers were held prior to discussions on subjects such as "The Nature of Man." Also, communion breakfasts were held in the mornings. Movies, discussions and debates were frequently featured at weekly meetings.

On the higher level, the Newman Club sends members to regional and national conventions of the National Newman Club Federation. The regional conventions are held at colleges in the states of Virginia and North Carolina. To these conventions, speakers of notable interest address the delegates. Two student retreats are held each year. The Newman Club actively participates in the program of the Student Religious Union.

The purpose of the Wesley Foundation is to bring Methodist students closer together, both spiritually and socially. These students blend work and play, worship and service in a cohesive organization of Christian fellowship. It is a student church, whose social, spiritual, and intellectual meetings formed the basis for many activities.

Highlights of the past year included one series on the Great Religions of the World, and another on the subject of Religion in Personal Living. Other activities of Wesley consisted of the Wesley Players, Coffee Hours, a Model United Nations Assembly held here at William and Mary, programs for Dunbar patients, and Christmas projects for needy families.

These local undertakings gave way to functions on the state level. Several members of Wesley attended different state conferences and contributed to the Methodist Student Fellowship Fund which aids foreign missionaries.

The Sunday night meetings provided greater opportunity for the students to gather for worship services and informative programs concerning the Church and its functions. The main purpose of the organization was thus realized; the students were brought together, and it is hoped that in some small measure, Wesley activities strengthened their ties with the church.

THE WESTMINSTER FELLOWSHIP

The Westminster Fellowship, which is the Presbyterian student group, met each Sunday for supper, program, and worship. Last fall, a series of programs on Contemporary Religions was presented. It was completed in January with several programs on Presbyterianism.

Westminster Fellowship has had many outstanding service projects. On Sunday afternoons, worship services were held at Dunbar, a section of Eastern State Hospital. On the Sunday preceding Christmas, the entire membership of the Fellowship went to Dunbar to carol and to distribute Christmas gifts to the patients.

On Sunday mornings, Westminster Fellowship maintained a nursery during the worship service. Each Sunday, two students assisted the adults in taking care of the children.

In addition to these activities, Westminster took an active part in the Student Religious Union's social activities, such as bowling and bridge.

Plans for programs and activities of Westminster Fellowship were made by a council consisting of the officers and the committee chairmen. Speakers, discussions, and movies were included in the fellowship's afternoon programs. Two retreats in the spring and fall were held in nearby locales.

RESERVE OFFICERS

This year about half the men students at William and Mary, numbering over 430, enrolled in the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC).

Established in 1947 at William and Mary, ROTC is a four-year college program divided into a two-year basic course for freshmen and sophomores, and a two-year advanced course for juniors and seniors.

The basic course consists of instruction in individual and crew served weapons, American Military History, map reading, and drill. The advanced course consists of instruction in small unit tactics, military operations, logistics, small unit administration, leadership training, and drill.

At the end of the junior year, the cadets spend six weeks at an ROTC summer camp which serves as a field laboratory in military tactics. There the students apply the theories learned in the classroom. Bivouacs, map problems, field exercises, and the operation of the latest equipment characterize the summer training program.

Upon graduation, the ROTC student is a candidate for appointment as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve. Outstanding students designated as Distinguished Military Graduates are eligible for commissions in the Regular Army.

The ROTC Corps at William and Mary is formed into a battlegroup of five companies. This year the Headquarters Company, composed of the Drum and Bugle Corps and the Drill Team, was led by Barton Wittekind. The leaders of the other companies were Tom Farrington, Company A; John Farrel, Company B; Nicholas St. George, Company C; and James Osbon, Company D. The Cadet Commander for the entire Corps was Ralph Crutchfield. Tom Foster was Executive Officer and David Ladd was Adjutant. John P. Montgomery was Public Information Officer, John Gibbs was Training Officer, and John Tracy was Supply Officer.

The ROTC Corps this year participated in the Homecoming activities, the Christmas parade, and the Armed Forces Day Parade. The annual social event of the Corps, the Military Ball, was held in the spring period. The Corps supported a variety of special activities including Seaboard and Blade, the Drill Team, the Drum and Bugle Corps, and a rifle team.

Instructing the ROTC members, the Department of Military Science and Tactics can prepare cadets for any branch of the Army.

THE BACKDROP CLUB

Top: Kitten Keaton, Dick Westlake

Bottom: D. Snyder, M. Hoffman, J. Reese, M. Weirick

The Backdrop Club produces each year a musical comedy to further the dramatic interests of students who wish to participate in theatre work, and to provide entertainment for other students of the College. This annual spring production is entirely student financed, and the Club members alone direct and produce the play.

This year, nearly one hundred students including actors, musicians, and backstage crew participated in the presentation of Guys and Dolls. Music was provided by an all-student orchestra directed by Mr. Stephen Paledes. Sets were constructed with the help of the Stagecraft Class.

The plot of Guys and Dolls evolved around two "hoods" from the underworld of Broadway and the results of their attempts to finance their crap games. One of the "hoods," Sky Masters, was challenged by his friend Nathan Detroit to get a date with an attractive Salvation Army girl. If Sky wasn't successful he would finance a crap game, but if he should get the date, he would win a small fortune. Sky got his date and the money, but fell in love with the girl in the process. Meanwhile, Nathan Detroit and his fiancée, who had been engaged for fourteen years, finally set a wedding date and it all ended happily with a double wedding.

In addition to its regular activity, the Backdrop Club held a dance, an open house, and sponsored trips to musicals presented in Richmond.

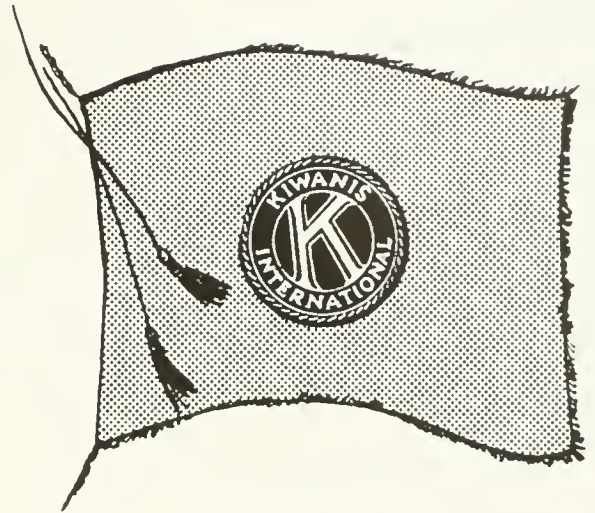

Dorothy Keaton served as president of the Club this year with Dick Westlake as Director, and Marcia Hoffman as treasurer. Other positions included scene designer, Ellen Allen; costumes, Diane Snyder; lighting director, Nancy Seammon; and publicity director, John Reiss.

CIRCLE K CLUB

Circle K Club, the college affiliate of Kiwanis International, received its charter in February, 1959. At the time of chartering, officers included John P. Montgomery, Allan C. Brownfeld, Alfred Volkmann, J. Thomas Roberts and Ken McTague. Working in co-operation with the Williamsburg Kiwanis Club, Circle K strives to provide service and fellowship, and to bring the campus and community closer together.

Projects have included conducting the March of Dimes Campaign on campus in January, working on a Boy Scout campsite on the James River, aiding patients at Eastern State Hospital with parties and magazine contributions, helping an underprivileged family repair their home, participating in Campus Chest collections, and sponsoring the Community Chest Fund on campus.

The club has monthly dinner meetings to which guest speakers are invited, and members of the club are invited to attend Williamsburg Kiwanis Club meetings at the Williamsburg Lodge. Faculty advisor is Mr. Dudley Jensen; Mr. J. Coleman Anthony is Kiwanis Club advisor.

The College offers abundant opportunity for hearing good music and participating in musical activities. The Music Department sponsors and trains organizations which are active on the campus, and which perform occasionally in the cities of Virginia and neighboring states. This need is partially filled by the College Choir, under the direction of Dr. Carl "Pappy" A. Fehr.

Alternating with the William and Mary Chorus, the Choir sings at the weekly chapel services of the College in Wren Chapel. In addition public concerts in Williamsburg are usually presented three or four times a year by the Choir. Each year the activities of the Choir are climaxed by choir trip. This year members visited Winston-Salem and Charlotte, North Carolina, Atlanta, Georgia and Charleston, South Carolina, April 20-24. Concerts were given in each of these cities.

The Choir annually participates in the Choral Festival of Virginia, which this year was held at Madison College, May 4-5.

Members of the Choir are selected after a competitive audition in the fall. Usually during Orientation Week, several selections are presented at the Matoaka Lake picnic in order to further the interests of the incoming freshmen. The Choir participates in both the Fall and Spring Convocations at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Members of the Choir represent William and Mary at the College Choir Clinic each year. This clinic is sponsored by the Virginia Educational Association and is held in Richmond during the fall.

Following the Christmas concert at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, the Choir attended its annual Christmas party. After the Christmas holidays were over, work was begun on music to be presented for the Spring Concert. Other events included a banquet in the spring. At this time new officers and deserving members were rewarded. The final activity of the William and Mary Choir is the participation in the Commencement Activities on June 5.

THE WILLIAM AND MARY CHORUS

The William and Mary Chorus, composed of women students from all classes, is a vocal interest group under the direction of Dr. Carl A. Fehr. Fall auditions are held to search for the qualifying merits of pitch, voice strength, and reading ability. These qualifications are later improved in preparation for membership in the William and Mary Choir.

The chorus participated in many activities and functions during the school year. The group added an inspirational value by participating in the Wednesday night chapel services. The Christmas program, held at Phi Beta Kappa Hall, was an enjoyable performance presented by both the Choir and Chorus. A variety of carols conveyed the holiday spirit. The Chorus held outdoor concerts in the spring with the co-sponsorship of the band.

The members of the group gain a greater knowledge of music, ranging from classical music to that on the lighter side of entertainment, by participating in the William and Mary Chorus.

BAND

The late afternoon stillness of an otherwise deserted Ewell Hall is shattered three times a week as the William and Mary Band rehearses. Each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoon the band members, under the direction of Mr. Charles A. Varner, meet to gain the practice that results in their excellent performances.

Although they were often hampered by rainy weather, the band dressed in green and gold uniforms, always added both color and music to football games with half-time shows. In addition to playing at all home football games and pep rallies, they supported the team by traveling to three out-of-town games.

At the end of the football season the band moved from the hockey field, where they had practiced marching drills, to Ewell to begin concert work. With the coming of spring the results of their work were evident as they took part in the Fine Arts Festival, presented by the dramatics and music departments on March 5, and then presented another concert in April. During May, the band gave a series of free outdoor concerts held on the Wren Building porch and open to the public.

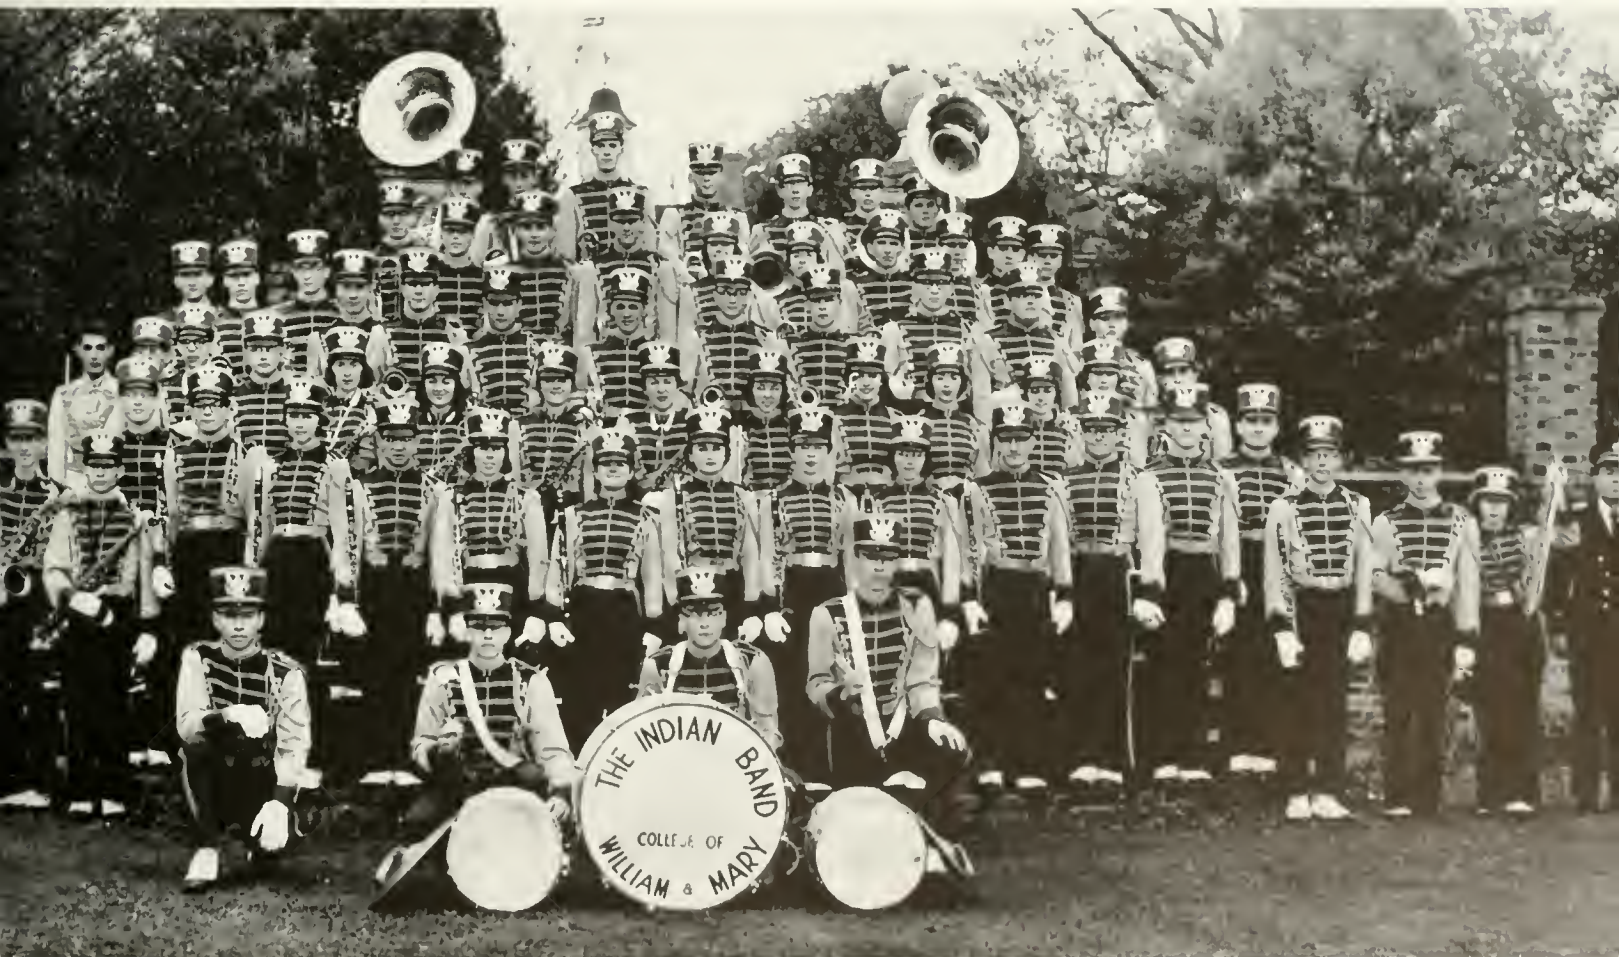

Invitations to try out for the band are sent to all entering freshmen who have had previous band experience, and new members are chosen at the tryouts.

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE COUNCIL

The Intercollegiate Debate Council of the College of William and Mary is one of a vast organization made up of similar councils from colleges and universities throughout the country. Debating is the only intercollegiate activity which brings students together in direct academic competition.

Each year, a National Debate Topic is chosen by the votes from all participating schools through ballots submitted by the representatives of the individual institutions. This balloting is supervised by the Speech Association of America. The National Debate Topic for the 1959-1960 season was "Resolved: Congress should be given the power to reverse decisions of the Supreme Court."

The Council began this season with a warm-up tournament at the University of Maryland, after which they competed in the Wake Forest College National Tournament. The regular varsity season continued with the South Atlantic Regional Tournament, the Virginia Region Tau Kappa Alpha Tournament, and the Wake Forest Dixie Tournament.

The Council also opposed debaters from the University of Pittsburgh, the United States Naval Academy, the University of Miami, the University of Maryland, Northwestern University, Dartmouth College, Georgetown University, and New York University. In the spring, the Council participated in the District eliminations for National Intercollegiate Debate Tournaments held at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Last season, the Debate Council gained first and second places in Virginia competition, and won over 70% or 103 out of 145 rounds of their tournament competition, debating the topic, "Resolved: That further development of nuclear weapons should be prohibited by international agreement."

Annually, the Council sponsors the Marshall-Wythe Debate Tournament, which was held this year on February fifth and sixth at the Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Thirty schools from all over the nation attended with the Council as their host. Many William and Mary students aided in the tournament by timing debates and directing the guests.

In addition to the regular tournaments, the Council sponsors each year a high school debate workshop to encourage students in debating and prepare them for further competition. Also, demonstration debates were given for the Warwick Exchange Club in Newport News and the American Institute of Bankers in Williamsburg.

Members of the Debate Council are chosen for their ability to express themselves clearly and concisely. Then they must do extensive research on the debate topic to prepare themselves for competition.

Under Coach Donald McConkey the varsity debaters this season were Jim Odell, Diane Pickering, Bill Bryant, Shepherd McKenney, Dorothy Young, Sally Keep, and Roger Green. The freshman team, coached by Bill Bryant and Roger Green, included Kenneth Widener, Courtney Turner, Barbara Larson, and John Cochran, as its working members. Other members were Jim Hunter, Steve Anderson, Bruce Douglas, and Betty Reiser.

TAU KAPPA ALPHA

Working closely with the Intercollegiate Debate Council, Tau Kappa Alpha is the National Honorary Speech and Debate Society on the campus of William and Mary. It is composed of those students who can express themselves well orally with an emphasis on scholarship. All students accepted are in the upper third of their class. Those students who have acquired a high academic standing in addition to demonstrating talent in debate are invited to become members of Tau Kappa Alpha.

MARSHALL-WYTHE DEBATE

The Marshall-Wythe Debate Tournament is sponsored annually by the Intercollegiate Debate Council. Every year over 150 college debaters, representing thirty schools, participate in a two-day tournament held at the College. Included among the participants are colleges from every major geographical division in the nation. During the tournament, visiting delegates are entertained at various receptions, banquets, and a dance on campus. At the culmination of the competition, the thirty schools attend a banquet at which time the team awards are made.

This yearly event is accompanied by much excitement within the student body. The tournament is always eagerly anticipated and the college encourages the interest of the students. This may be expected for such an activity is important in college competition. Debating is a stimulating and rewarding experience which emphasizes student competition on an academic level. The popularity of this event increases each year and student attendance is always of a gratifying nature. At this tournament many William and Mary students assist by timing the debates and directing the visitors.

MERMETTES

Mermettes is a group activity for women students who show interest and ability in synchronized swimming. A try-out, held in the fall, permits a girl to exhibit her potentialities in basic strokes and dives, and in unit swimming. After passing the qualifications, the new member attends all meetings which are held weekly. During these sessions, concentration is placed on strengthening of individual strokes and swimming together as a group.

The ultimate goal of Mermettes is the annual spring show toward which the girls work during most of the year. This show is entirely composed and directed by the members. The girls, paired off in groups of twos and threes, develop their own ideas, complete with choreography, costumes, lighting, and backdrop. When their idea is approved by the director, the number becomes a part of the production. The girls, who are selected to be in this particular routine, first learn all the steps, combined with the music, on land. Thus, when the number is practiced in water, the participants are acquainted with which stroke coincides with which beat of the music. This year, the theme of the spring show was "New York City," portraying such facets as Wall Street, Greenwich Village, and the subway.

The Mermettes not only organize programs on the campus of William and Mary, but also attend water clinics held both in Virginia and other states. These clinics provide a chance to exchange ideas on formation swimming and on organization.

Orchesis in Action!

ORCHESIS

Rows of black leotard clad figures sway back and forth in a rhythmic series of exercises as the sounds of a piano furnish a musical background for the scene. A small group of girls gather in a corner to plan a new dance routine. Several dancers glide gracefully across the floor and end in a dizzying series of spins reflected in a floor-length mirror. Another meeting of Orchesis is underway.

Orchesis is an honorary modern dance group, a part of the Women's Athletic Association at William and Mary. New members are chosen from the outstanding performers at dance auditions held early in the fall of each school year. Membership provides an opportunity to study dance on a more advanced level than the gym classes can offer.

The purpose of Orchesis is to work on the development of choreography and production in dance. Meetings are held each Thursday night during the first semester at the Phi Beta Kappa Television Studio to concentrate on small problems of choreography. During the second semester the group is split into smaller rehearsal groups which work toward the production of the annual evening of dance in the spring.

This concert is directed, choreographed and danced entirely by the members of Orchesis.

Responding to the need for a vitalization of an elusive school spirit, the Pep Club took broad and successful measures to generate enthusiasm among the students. The general purpose of the Pep Club was to promote school spirit.

During the football season the Pep Club encouraged student vitality with pep rallies and bonfires. By sponsoring busses the club made it possible for anyone to attend many of the away games for a reasonable fee. With the idea of promoting enthusiasm for all college sport activities, the organization was active the entire year.

In addition to increasing school spirit, the club gave many dances and sock hops to accommodate freshmen who were unable to attend social activities in the lodge area.

THE CHEERLEADERS

Spirit, enthusiasm, and good sportsmanship are all a part of the cheerleader's job. The main objective of the William and Mary cheerleading squad this year was to build and maintain school spirit whenever and wherever possible.

Some noticeable improvements were the obtaining of new sweaters, hand megaphones, and new pom-poms for the girls. In addition, fifty percent of the cheers were new. In keeping with the idea of improving the cheers, the cheerleaders sponsored a contest whereby the students submitted new cheers. A prize was awarded by the Pep Club to the winner.

Led by the head cheerleader, Bob Hopkins, the squad made appearances in such cities as Charlottesville, Annapolis, Maryland, Roanoke, Norfolk, and Davidson, North Carolina. Their final appearance was in Richmond for the Thanksgiving Day game. This year, the Indians consisted of Bill Smith, chief, with Nancy Moore, Maureen Rumazza, and Barbara Aubrey as squaws. The regular girl cheerleaders were Callie Dean, Marianne Hodges, Sue Harriston, and Dottie Nowland. The regular men cheerleaders were Warren Joblin, Miles Chappell, John Muldhausen, and John Aliotti. Alternates were Carole Valdes and Don DuVall.

Homecoming, 1959, was an extra big affair with the Indian chief, Bill Smith, presenting his "fire dance" to augment the normal bonfire and pep rally held each year as a part of the Homecoming festivities.

During the basketball season the cheerleaders were at all home games and some of the away games, of which the most important one attended by the cheerleading squad was the Southern Conference Tournament, held each February in Richmond.

A spring tryout is scheduled annually in order to replace graduating seniors. At this tryout, the cheers are taught to those students interested in the squad. Then the group is eliminated until new members are obtained. The selection of the new cheerleaders is done by those members on the squad, who serve regularly. The head cheerleader is chosen by the squad. Each individual is judged on pep, poise, general appearance, personality, and ability.

ORIENTATION SPONSORS

J. ALEXANDER, Head Group Leader
 C. WHITE, Assistant Group Leader
 B. HOLLAND, Head Sponsor
 K. DAVENPORT, Assistant Head Sponsor

The first introduction to College life that an incoming freshman student receives is, in many ways, dependent upon the kind of job done by our orientation sponsors and group leaders. These sponsors, both men and women, are chosen each spring on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and character. All freshmen are placed in groups of approximately ten and are assigned to one sponsor, usually a sophomore or junior, for guidance and instruction throughout the school year with particular emphasis on Orientation Week. They help the freshman adjust to college life by introducing him to the various aspects from scholastics to fraternal life and personal adjustment. A sponsor's responsibility continues throughout the year and often throughout his college career.

Sponsors and group leaders are given their basic training in the spring, which includes lectures by the Deans, students and faculty, given weekly during a four-week period. This training is designed to erase any campus rumors concerning easy and hard subjects and to better prepare the individual for his job as advisor, tutor, and personal friend. The program includes talks on subjects ranging from the academic requirements for graduation to sorority and fraternity life on campus.

VARSITY CLUB

College men who have earned their varsity letter in any inter-collegiate sport which is sanctioned by the College are eligible for membership in the Varsity Club. The Club was founded at William and Mary in 1914. Every team sport is represented by membership in the club.

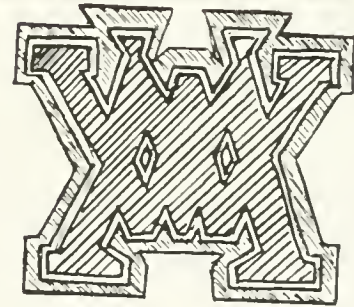

The organization's main interest and purpose is in the furthering of intramural and other athletic programs for men at the College, promoting sportsmanlike conduct on and off campus and furthering the interests of athletic functions in general. Proceeds from the club's various projects are turned over to the intramural and athletic programs of the College for their support.

The Club sponsored the program for the selection of the "Basketball Queen" at the University of Richmond game February 20 played at William and Mary. Each sorority nominated a representative and penny votes were cast to choose the queen. During the spring the club sponsored its annual "Keep off the Grass" campaign and a dance.

MARY THEATER

The William and Mary Theater presented this year, its 34th season, a series of plays rich in quality and entertainment, and, as in years past, a balanced variety of productions of high standards for the enjoyment of the college community.

Thieves' Carnival, the first of the series, was a comedy based on fantasy. Written by Jean Anouilh, the play centered around three affectionate thieves, the youngest of whom fell in love with one of the two rich, young girls whose family they expected to rob. However, the young thief was an honest fellow at heart, and he could not accept her love with the knowledge of his intentions. This provided a lovely romance which ended happily when the young girl succeeded in winning him to her cause before he succumbed to that of his thief companions.

The second of the series, The Boy Friend, was a lighthearted, amusing musical comedy of the late 1920's. Delightful incidents occurred due to the problems of a poor little rich girl and a disguised poor little rich boy.

The third of the series was The Late Christopher Bean. The play opened on a family who had, in previous years, given refuge to a great artist. The artist, Christopher Bean, had since died, but his paintings had suddenly come to the attention of the world. When the family realized the value of his works, they became selfish and ill-tempered, but Abby, the servant, held them all in her power. She had one of Bean's greatest paintings and could not be persuaded to sell it. However, in the closing moments of the play, it was discovered that Abby was the widow of the late Christopher Bean, and thus, had rightful ownership of all his paintings.

The last production, Aristophanes' classic Lysistrata, was the first Greek drama to be presented by the William and Mary Theater. The plot evolved around the women who, being tired of the intermittent absence of their warrior husbands during the Peloponnesian War, went on a sex strike to force the men into ending the war.

In addition to the regular series, The Canadian Players, a professional touring company, presented Chekov's The Cherry Orchard. It was a play of inaction—pauses, sighs, and irrelevancies—and of somberness and gaiety. Proud, wealthy landowners found themselves hopelessly in debt, but refused to cut down the cherished cherry trees to save the home. Finally, the whole estate had to be auctioned and was ironically sold to the son of a peasant who previously worked for the family.

WCWM RADIO STATION

On November 17, 1959 WCWM, William and Mary's new radio station, was granted its final license, culminating the long period of time involved in establishing the College station. From 1 to 10:30 p. m. nightly WCWM broadcasts through the efforts of approximately fifty students working from one to fifteen hours weekly, under the supervision of Mr. Charles M. Woodliff, Director of Audio-Visual Education and Assistant Professor of Fine Arts.

Before Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall was completed, students operated a carrier current type of radio station on campus, which was student operated and financed, under the direction of Ted Hinnient, a 1957 senior. In September 1958 the College appropriated money with the idea of establishing a broadcasting station, and Mr. Woodliff was appointed supervisor. The first two projects were to conform the equipment to manufacturing standards and to apply for permission to build a station from the Federal Communications Commission. This first permission was granted in April 1959 and the station went on the air during the summer on an experimental basis. After this program testing period, inspection and installation approval, the final license application was made in September 1959.

WCWM has no income other than the budget allotted to it by the College, which was approximately $1,700 this year. No advertising is permissible, and therefore, programs are planned around cultural subjects in accordance with the philosophy of a cultural institution as a whole, such as William and Mary. The station caters towards programs of classical music.

Directors for WCWM include Malcolm Robinson, Program Director; James Dean, Music Director; Gary Sterner, Production Director; Dorothy Keaton, Traffic and Continuity Director; and Bob Blase, Director of News and Operations.

ATHLETICS

In autumn, the pageant of the sports year began with a sharp whistle announcing the kick off of the opening day game. As the year progressed, pep rallies sporadically interrupted the colonial quiet of Williamsburg as dancing Indians, torch-bearing students and the energetic William and Mary band invaded Duke of Gloucester Street. There was a build up of enthusiasm, climaxed this year by the marathon to Richmond for the classic Thanksgiving Day game. As the days became shorter, the Cary Field activities gave way to basketball games played on the gleaming new floor of Blow Gym. There, we packed the stands to rhythmically clap for the team and to watch with excitement and anticipation the scoreboard recording points for William and Mary versus Visitor. Time ticked away on the gym clock, and the basketball season ended to open the field for baseball and track. Dust rose on the athletic field as the players obeyed the umpire's orders to "Play Ball"! Meanwhile the track team sped around Cary Field under the stern hands of the timer and worked hard to remain in training. Dressed in white, the tennis team methodically placed the shots and practiced serving under the unrelenting spring sun in preparation for a round of tournaments.

During this competition on the intercollegiate level, many students participated in the variety of intramural sports. There were teams formed by dorms and by fraternities and sororities to compete in bowling, basketball, volleyball, hockey, and swimming; the single sports saw competition in the fields of horseshoes, tennis, badminton and ping pong.

In the round of sports, the William and Mary "Squaws" played an enthusiastic part. Early in the year, the hockey sticks clapping on the field accompanied the green-outfitted team as they rushed towards the goal cage. In Jefferson gym, the basketball team practiced long hours in preparation for their scheduled home and away games.

As we cheered for our team, as we threw our last efforts into the winning surge of energy, as we expectantly watched William and Mary play visiting colleges - we sensed the meaning of our college as a union. No longer were we individual college students - we were the College of William and Mary.

The gentlemen into whose hands the task of moulding William and Mary's athletic fortunes has been placed are varied in their backgrounds and years of experience. But their common talent at directing ventures in sports during this third year of an extensive rebuilding program have aroused plaudits from many quarters of the profession. ABOUT THE STAFF . . .

Head Football Coach Milt Drewer, a 1949 graduate of Randolph-Macon College. Assisting him are Ed Derringe (Georgetown, '42), Bill Chambers (W&M, '53), Dave Nusz (Maryland, '56), Bob Gill (W&M, '48), Joe Agee (W&M, '52), Harry Groves (Temple, '53), Dudley Jensen (Springfield, '50), Jack Prater (Virginia Tech, '57) and Buddy Chandler (Davidson, '50).

Drewer, in his third year at the Reservation, turned out fine scholastic elevens in the Tidewater area before moving to the University of Richmond in 1956, thence to William and Mary. The native Virginian has stirred up considerable alumni interest and the college's athletic health looks promising for the future. Ed Derringe gained considerable experience playing both college and pro football. He also coaches baseball in the spring. Bill Chambers has been tabbed one of the Southern Conference's top cage tutors. After a brilliant coaching career at Newport News, the former W&M Helms All-American came to these environs three years ago and proceeded to construct an SC power with the fruits of diligent recruiting.

Dave Nusz, in his second year, is remembered as the quarterback for Maryland's great undefeated teams of 1953 and 1955. Easy-going Bob Gill's task is to keep the Indians in repair, as well as coach varsity tennis. Joe Agee, a former teammate of Chambers, has found admirable success in his two years here as freshman coach in three sports, notably basketball. A leading figure in Virginia AAU circles, Harry Groves rates as one of the top track and field mentors in the East. Dudley Jensen serves as director of William and Mary's extensive intramural program, as well as coach of the swimmers. Buddy Chandler and Jack Prater are both newcomers to the Reservation. Chandler was formerly line coach at Davidson and head coach at Bridgewater. Prater was an All-SC center at VPI as well as co-captain and assistant coach in 1958.

In charge of all business arrangements is "Pappy" Gooch, a four-sport star at the University of Virginia. Gooch has served William and Mary in eight different capacities since coming here 32 years ago. Frank Simmons was graduated from W&M last June, and has been sports publicist for three years. A Korean War veteran, Simmons claims membership in numerous sportswriting organizations.

AUTUMN 1959: FOOTBALL

William and Mary's losing famine on the gridiron lingered into its sixth year this past autumn, but there were definite omens that Milt Drewer's recruiting efforts would begin paying significant dividends when the 1960 season rolls around. Of 28 varsity men to receive monograms, 17 will return to camp and seven of them are only sophomores.

The Indians finished with a 4-6-0 record in the face of inexperience and a lack of depth, familiar problems in recent years. After a surprising 37-0 rout of rival Virginia in their season debut, the Indians tail-spin to four successive defeats. But the younger players began to mature and Drewer's outfit closed with a strong surge toward a .500 season, only to be derailed by a fired-up Richmond crew on Thanksgiving Day.

There were several highlights along this 1959 gridiron path: The Virginia debacle augured the only winless season in Cavalier history . . . W&M's jaunt to Annapolis marked the dedication of Navy's magnificent new stadium . . . VMI, VPI and The Citadel were all in contention for the SC crown down to the wire . . . the stunning 9-0 upset of Florida State attracted national attention.

Overall, William and Mary ranked high in four conference team statistics: rushing offense, passing offense, total offense and rushing defense. Underclassmen accounted for a preponderance of the offensive yardage. Senior Lauren Kardatzke led the Indians in rushing yardage with 302 yards, while soph Calvin Cox's passing arm gained him the total offensive leadership with 570 yards. Soph halfback Roger Hale held the advantage in four departments, notably with 36 points scored and 545 yards total offense. Four-year veteran Mike Lashley climaxed a brilliant career at tackle by making the All-Southern Conference first team and honorable mention All-American.

As Drewer observed: "We look forward to definite improvement next season. We have a sound nucleus around which to build, comprised of boys who made great progress during the 1959 season. All the fellows deserve praise for their fine work this past fall."

Ben Johnson (83) swoops over loose pigskin on recovery of fumble which led to Tribe's first score against U.Va.

With surprising ease, William and Mary struck down a favored University of Virginia eleven 37-0 in its 1959 debut at Charlottesville's sloping Scott Stadium. The Tribesmen who romped that sunny day augured the first winless season in Virginia's long history on the gridiron.

Richie Snyder plunged over in the first quarter and Dan Barton's placement made it 7-0. Roger Hale and Bob Stoy followed suit with TD excursions, with Stoy's toss to Dick Hover for the bonus points giving W&M a 21-0 halftime advantage.

Virginia got no relief when Milt Drewer's second string took over. Calvin Cox engineered another scoring march, personally capping the effort with a ten-yard touchdown run. Snyder rushed for the two-point conversion. Ernie Phillips hauled in a fourth-quarter 31-yard aerial from Cox for the Tribe's final tally. Cox rushed for the two-pointer and 37-0 conclusion. Some 14 Tribesmen hit double figures en route to 348 yards rushing and 134 yards passing. Mike Lashley, Wayne Woolwine and Ben Johnson shone in the forward wall throughout.

Navy 29 — W&M 2

Co-Captain Lauren Kardatzke (39) takes handoff from Bob Stoy before gallery of white-garbed Midshipmen.

Dedication of the new Navy-Marine Memorial Stadium proved sufficient inspiration for Navy as the Midshipmen employed long-range scoring thrust and a stingy defense to turn back the Indians 29-2 on a sunny but disappointing afternoon at Annapolis.

A couple of fellows named Joe, specifically Bellino and Matalavage, were the Tribe's nemesis. Bellino, called one of the great running backs in Navy history, scampered 53 yards for one six pointer and Matalavage tallied on a short plunge and marathon 86-yard jaunt. After falling behind 14-0 in the first quarter, the Tribe had apparently come to life. Jim Porach, Roger Hale, Lauren Kardatzke, Bob Stoy and Dick Hoyer pooled their talents for a prolonged march to Navy's two. But Porach, who had just covered 17 yards from the 19, fumbled at this stage to end W&M's most serious threat of the contest.

Ben Johnson, a tenacious defender throughout, blocked two Navy punts, one of which was recovered in the end zone for a safety in the first half. Navy led 22-2 at the halftime break and added another tally during the game's closing stages. In lowering the boom in such convincing fashion, the Middies acquired their 22nd victory against only two setbacks in this long series. Milt Drewer commented after the game, "The team did not play the inspired ball as they did against Virginia."

Virginia Tech 20—W&M 14

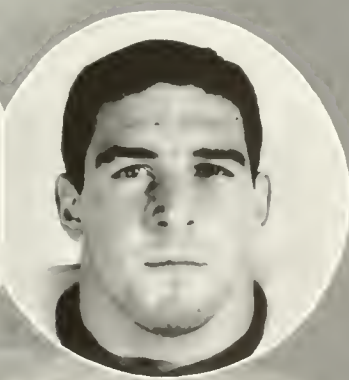

A last minute desperation pass failed to find its target as the Indians fell before Virginia Tech 20-14 at Victory Stadium in Roanoke. The Gobblers, en route to a 5-1 Southern Conference record and near-miss at the circuit title, gave the 19,000 fans a lesson in opportunism.

An intercepted pass in the first quarter and a fumble in the second, combined with the alertness of Tech aces Alger Pugh and Carroll Dale, gave VPI a 13-0 advantage nearing the halftime intermission. With less than two minutes remaining in the half, Calvin Cox was being pursued by half the VPI line but managed to loft a touchdown pass to Jim Porach, who crossed over from 54 yards out. Tech retained a 13-6 lead.

A faulty pitchout in the third quarter by the Indians paved the way to a 20-6 Gobbler lead which eventually held. An exchange of punts in the fourth quarter was followed by Lauren Kardatzke's scoring climax of an Indian march of 46 yards. Cox tossed to end John Farrell for a two-pointer. W&M led in every department except the scoring column, but Cox's last-gasp aerial in the fading moments of play on fourth down sealed the Tribe's record at 1-2-0.

Homecoming enthusiasm and the favorite's role failed to brighten William and Mary's prospects as a winless Furman eleven surprised the local contingent 8-7 in a sluggish debut at Cary Field.

Late in the second canto, Dave Way pilfered a Furman pass and returned it 20 yards to the Purple Hurricane 31 in setting up the Tribe's lone tally. Bob Stoy, nursing a shoulder injury, moved the Indians to the Furman three before leaving the game. Calvin Cox came on in relief and, after a 15-yard penalty, sent Roger Hale on his way to the 11. A Cox-to-Hale passing combo, which was to account for four TD's that year, gave the Indians their lead shortly thereafter and Dan Barton's placement made it 7-0 with 26 seconds remaining in the half.

Then with 1:40 left in the game, a fumble deep in W&M territory gave Furman its chance. Hurricane end Hicky Horton snared a pass from field general Billy Baker for an unhampered score. Running from the I-formation, the pair repeated their aerial duet for a two-point conversion before an umbrella-veiled gathering. Milt Drewer mused, "We seem to be jinxed at homecoming time."

Under leaden skies in Norfolk's Civitan Bowl, the Indians continued their downhill slide with a 26-7 loss to Virginia Military, an outfit destined to claim the Southern Conference title on Thanksgiving Day.

Soph Bobby Mitchell, making his debut at quarterback, triggered VMI to a 14-0 first quarter lead. Two subsequent W&M scoring threats fizzled and that margin held at the half. But the Indians came back strongly after intermission, marching 60 yards in a scoring effort capped by Bob Stoy's keeper around left end. Dan Barton's placement made it 14-7. The Keydets responded to this threat with a pair of lengthy excursions, for 65 and 64 yards and six-pointers each time.

Once again, the Indians held a statistical advantage but to no avail. Jim Porach, running from fullback for the injured Lauren Kardatzke, gained 47 yards rushing and Jon Stephenson rolled up 56. Stoy, hampered by a shoulder separation, accounted for 85 yards. Several players were on the injured list for this contest, among them Kardatzke, Wayne Woolwine and Mike Lashley.

VMI 26—W&M 7

The Indians stalked back into the win column after four weary weekends by outlasting George Washington 14-7 on a spongy turf at Cary Field. Although thrice advancing deep into GW territory, the Indians had to be content with a scoreless tie at the half.

Following a severe outburst of rain and winds, the combatants locked horns in a tense second half. After an exchange of scoring threats without profit, Ed Hino caught Bill Smythe in the Tribe end zone for a 7-0 Colonial lead. But the Indians, too often thwarted, struck back 60 yards for a tie. Calvin Cox, who passed for 114 yards that overcast day, surprised a gathering of 5000 by passing for a TD to Ben Johnson from the GW one. Dan Barton converted.

After a game of cat-and-mouse at midfield, Jim Porach punted to Smythe, who fumbled at the Colonial four with four minutes remaining. Cox then sent H. C. Thaxton over for the winning score and Barton's PAT. GW poised itself for a final thrust at the Tribe 13 with 11 seconds left, however, but Hino's pass went awry and a William and Mary victory was assured. Thaxton, a second unit performer, gained 47 yards and Ben Johnson caught six of Cox's passes for 68 yards.

The Citadel's Paul McGuire, named the SC's most valuable player, led his once-beaten Bulldogs to a 38-13 win in the Tribe's home finale. A defensive stalwart as well, McGuire scored two touchdowns and passed for yet another.

The visiting Bulldogs led 18-7 at the half, despite a 7-6 Tribe lead after a 74-yard march capped by Bob Stoy's keeper for the score. The count mounted to 30-7 before Calvin Cox connected with Roger Hale for the Tribe's second tally. Cox, who rolled up 128 yards in the air, engineered a 62-yard march in the third quarter for that final score, mainly on the strength of his passing arm.

After the Bulldogs made it 38-13, Cox hit the airman repeatedly but without success in the scoring column. The Indians held their own in statistics, even getting seven more first downs than their rude visitors. Hale garnered 39 yards rushing and H. C. Thaxton gained 32. Stoy added another 55 yards in passing totals. Dick Hover, Joe Poist, Mike Lashley and Jim Porach also shone for the Indians, whose record skidded to 2-5-0. In defeat, soph halfback Walt Scott set a new school record by receiving seven passes in the game.

With Bulldog defenders in pursuit, Bob Stoy (11) heads around left end on keeper which set up Indian touchdown.

W&M 25—Davidson 7

William and Mary's pass defense, a season-long Achilles Heel, finally awakened and turned the tide of battle as the Indians routed Davidson 25-7 on foreign soil in North Carolina. Two fourth quarter pass interceptions broke up an otherwise tight contest between the Southern Conference rivals.

Jon Stephenson, who earned SC Back of the Week laurels for his stellar exploits that afternoon, gained 77 yards during the struggle, the first 48 yards on a first quarter scoring jaunt which gave the Indians a 7-0 lead. Early in the second stanza, a Wildcat pass pattern produced a 7-7 deadlock. Late in that same quarter, Bob Stoy responded in another aerial show by shoveling a pass to Roger Hale, who went 41 yards for the TD and a 13-7 Tribe lead at half-time.

Stephenson raced 34 yards with one interception for a score and Jim Porach scampered 42 yards with another in the fourth quarter. Lauren Kardatzke's return to action, with 79 yards, proved a vital factor as the Indians gained 294 yards on the ground. Mike Lashley and the entire forward wall turned in a standout job on defense.

A Tallahassee gathering of 16,700 was stunned as the resurgent Indians upended heavily favored Florida State 9-0 in one of the South's major upsets that sunny Saturday afternoon. The Seminoles had previously whipped The Citadel, Virginia Tech and Richmond.

Roger Hale continued his hijinks, sprinting 41 yards around right end for a 6-0 lead in the third quarter. Dan Barton, exhibiting his proficiency at place-kicking, booted an 11-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to seal the Tribe's fourth triumph of the campaign.

Lauren Kardatzke, performing brilliantly after his injury, wreaked havoc in the FSU line with 109 yards on 21 carries. Jon Stephenson and Calvin Cox were also singled out by Milt Drewer for their backfield work.

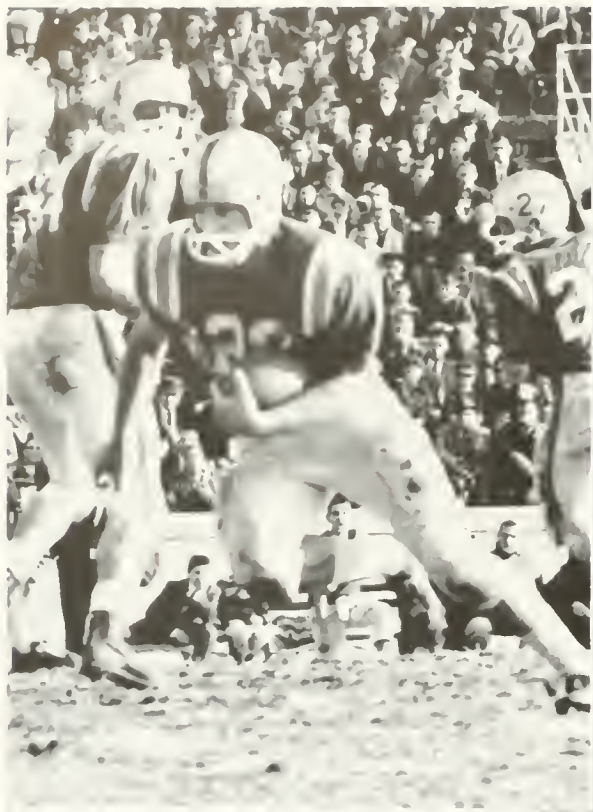

William and Mary's line clothed itself in glory, standing pat on a trio of second quarter goal-line struggles. Gray Lynn, Mike Lashley, Dave Gatti, Eric Erdossy and Wayne Woolwine shone especially. Drewer stated afterwards, "Our boys played fine ball and hit hard all the way." Drewer's outfit led the Seminoles by a large margin in every category of play.

In the 69th renewal of an ancient and bitter series, Richmond's fired-up Spiders spoiled William and Mary's attempt at a .500 season by turning back the Indians 20-12 in the annual Turkey Day encounter at Richmond's Municipal Stadium.

David Ames, All-SC halfback, streaked across for the initial Spider tally in the first stanza after an interception of a Calvin Cox aerial. Storming back in that same quarter, Jim Porach scooted down the left sidelines 29 yards to the Spider two, from which point Lauren Kardatzke smashed over for the TD. Dan Barton, in a rare instance, missed the point-after. The Spiders led 7-6 at halftime.

Richmond marched for its second score after the opening kickoff. A few plays later, lineman Pat Lamberti pilfered one of Cox's handoffs and lumbered 35 yards to paydirt for a 20-6 Spider advantage. In a desperation measure late in the contest, Cox hit Roger Hale for a 38-yard touchdown strike. With only two minutes remaining, an on-side kick attempt went awry and Richmond ran out the clock.

Some 11 seniors closed out their playing careers for W&M: Lauren Kardatzke, Mike Lashley, Gray Lynn, John Farrell, Dick Hoyer, Tom Martin, Stan Pokrywka, Dick Rinker, Richie Snyder, Dave Way and Paul Dinsmore.

ON CAME WINTER AND . . . Basketball

Starting and finishing strongly, Bill Chambers' varsity basketball outfit posted for the third straight season winning records in Southern Conference and overall competition. "We enjoyed moderate success," remarked Chambers about the 1959-60 crew which went 15-11 overall and 10-5 in SC action, with the latter gaining a third place in circuit standings—highest achieved in recent memory on the Reservation.

Pacemaker for the Indians was junior Jeff Cohen, the husky 230-pounder who averaged 24.2 points per outing and 18.1 rebounds to place 14th and fourth in the nation, respectively. Named to the All-SC honor squad and the All-American honorable mention list, Cohen's three-year total of 1255 rebounds is within seven caroms of his coach's all-time W&M record. His scoring total of 1428 gives him an excellent chance to shatter the old mark of 2052 for a career set by Chet Giermak.

Senior co-captains Chuck Sanders and Tom Farrington averaged 9.8 and 9.0 a game to provide scoring assist for junior Bev Vaughan, the second team All-SC selection who averaged 17.0 as one of the conference's top point-makers. Soph Ken Roberts (6.6) and junior Dave Bottoms (5.9) alternated as fifth men.

Season's opening saw W&M sweep four straight, then begin a skid which ended with the Tribe 7-8. On January 30, Chambers' lads shocked mighty West Virginia 94-86 to sever the Mounties' 56-game SC win skein, then proceeded to win eight of their last 11 games. Peak offensive effort was 101 points against Furman, top defensive showing 42 markers allowed Richmond. The Indians were 9-1 on the homecourt, dropping a thrilling 92-91 overtime decision to Virginia Tech. It was a grueling campaign for William and Mary, yet one which displayed the continued improvement and bright future of Tribe basketball.

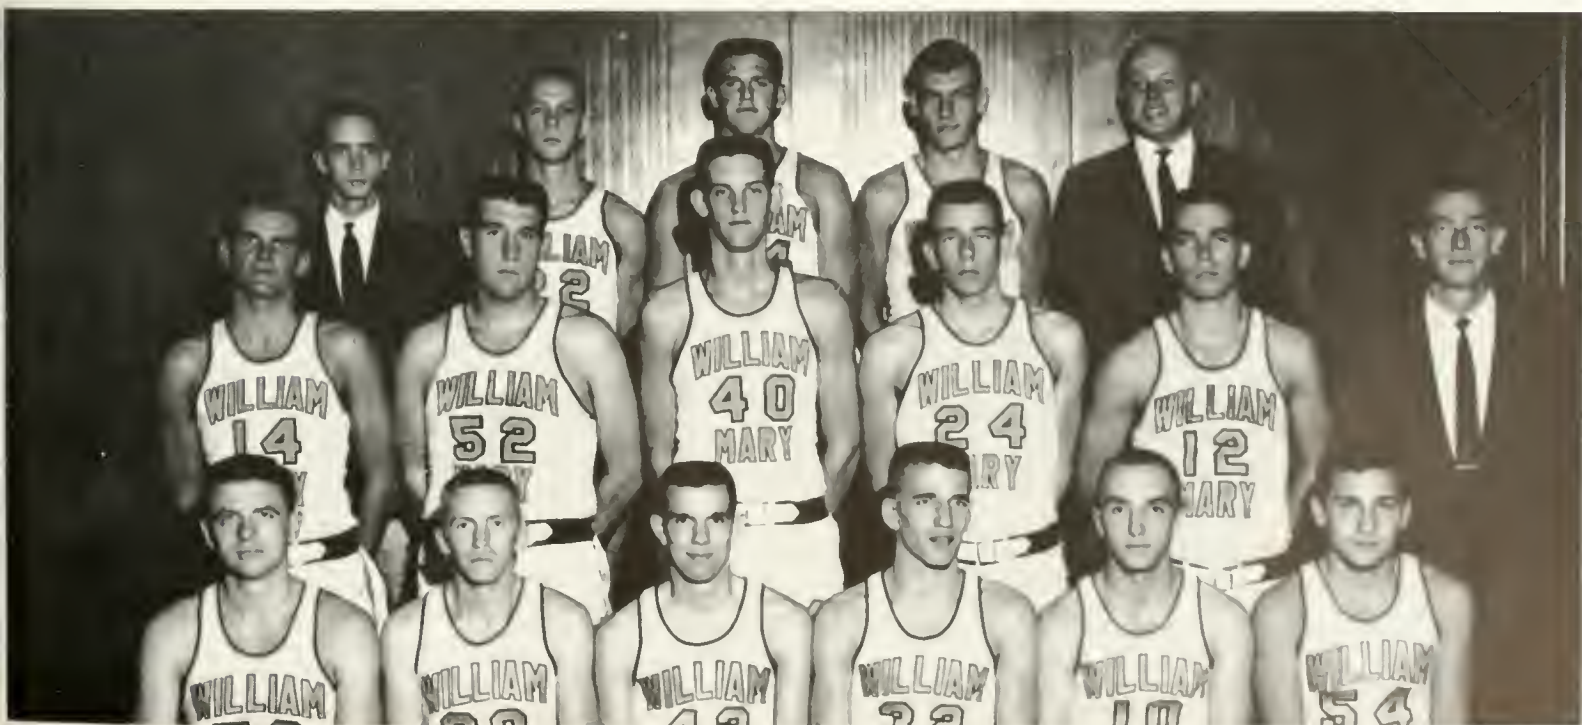

Tribe's 1959-60 co-captains represented value of both short and tall men in basketball. Towering 6-10 Chuck Sanders (left) was able scorer and rebounder, while 5-10 Tom Farrington performed well as backcourt ringleader for successful Indians.

Below: Co-captains Phil Bullard (left) and Gary Collier are also school record holders. Bullard established the 100-yard butterfly mark and Collier swam a leg on the all-time freestyle relay team, in addition to to standout performances in the Southern Conference meet Paradox and precedent—this was the underlying theme of William and Mary's 1959-60 swimming season. Confronted with a critical manpower shortage with 10 lads in camp, Coach Dudley Jensen had stated as the campaign got underway that his mermen could lose every meet. But they didn't. Instead, the re-named "ten iron men" refused to rust and finished with a surprising 4-6 dual meet record and fifth in the Southern Conference conclave with 40 points.

This paradox of mild success despite lack of numbers was compounded by the squad's habit of dismissing precedents and breaking school records in every outing, proceeding to manhandle the SC ledger in losing causes. Chris Herr, a sensational sophomore, shattered W&M standards in the 220 and 440-yard freestyles and the grueling 1500-meter event. Undefeated in the 220 and 440 until edged out in the latter during the season-ending Charleston, S. C., gathering, Herr lowered his record time to 4:57.7 even in defeat.

Herr wasn't alone in this addiction. Co-captain Phil Bullard broke the 100-yard breaststroke mark, while soph Glenn Mann established a new 200-yard breaststroke standard. Bullard and Herr teamed with co-captain Gary Collier and Dave Kurland to rewrite the record book in the 400-yard freestyle relay. Herr in the 220 and Kurland in the 50-yard sprint captured gold medals at the conference swim, the first Tribesmen in recent history to gain such distinction. "This was our top showing in the SC since at least 1950," commented Jensen, who came to W&M in that year. "The boys and I are generally pleased with the season's outcome, and with more boys we could improve next year." Leading point-maker for the campaign was Herr with 111 3/4 markers, while Kurland added another 100. Mann (57 1/4) and Bullard (46 1/2) were other high men.

RIFLE TEAM

Although failing in its concerted effort to compile a winning record, William and Mary's improved rifle team did finish shoulder-to-shoulder competition during 1959-60 with the best mark in school history. Under the tutelage of Sgt. James O'Rorke, the Tribe marksmen completed their campaign with a 3-4 dual match showing, finishing seventh in the annual Southern Conference shoot.

W&M's predominantly underclass outfit started the year on the right foot with two triumphs, 1375-1369 over Washington and Lee and 1387-1350 over University of Richmond. Gil Bartlett showed the way in that season debut with a score of 280, based on individual totals from prone, standing, sitting and kneeling positions. Woody Harrison, who was to prove himself a mainstay throughout, topped his teammates with a 284 against Richmond. Virginia Tech, which finished second at the SC meet behind West Virginia, joined with University of Maryland to halt the brief win skein at Blacksburg. Taylor Darden at 277 was high man for the Indians, who fell to Tech 1427-1365 and to the Terrapins 1384-1365.

Loss number three was incurred in a rematch with W&L and this time the Generals won out 1390-1365. Harrison's 287 paced the hometown riflemen in defeat. The team's final win came with a 1382-1258 rout of George Washington, in which Lynn Shaw and Harrison deadlocked for top honors with 281's. Traveling to Charlottesville for the season finale, O'Rorke's lads were bested by Virginia 1396-1369. Harrison took honors with 284.

Harrison also performed with distinction in the William Randolph Hearst competition sponsored by the 2nd Army. Harrison toted a 188 in three-position shooting in the Hearst action, then again shone with a medal-winning 286 and ninth place individual showing in the Southern Conference affair at Davidson. In addition to shoulder-to-shoulder play, the rifle team, captained by senior Bart Wittekind, also participated in postal meets which extended into late spring.

SPRING SPORTS . . .

When spring's fair skies arrive and Southern Conference track fans are scanning the field for title contenders, William and Mary is customarily high on the list. The reputation of W&M's thinclads, on the cross-country and indoor circuits as well, stems from a few seasons ago when the Indians of Coach Harry Groves were the predominant force in conference and state activity. With the recent ascendance of Virginia Military Institute and The Citadel, along with a continued growth by the other member schools, this W&M reign was replaced by a more highly competitive scheme of things. But the Indians remained powerful.

This year's outfit included several of the finest trackmen in William and Mary annals. Outstanding among returnees from the 1959 aggregation, which went 4-2 in dual meet action and placed fourth in the SC meet, were senior co-captain Dan Newland, school record-holder in the 440; senior co-captain Warren Joblin, record-holder in the low hurdles and SC titlist in 1958; junior Jerry Saunders, the conference's 1958 outdoor and 1959 indoor hurdles champion; discus record-holder Stacy McMarlin. In addition, Dale Bickert returned after a three-semester absence to seek varsity improvement of his frosh records in the 100 and 220 sprints. Three notable graduates from last season's unbeaten (6-0) and state championship freshman squad were husky Pete Bracken, who set the frosh shot put mark; Roger Hale, the versatile football halfback who established both frosh and varsity standards in the high hurdles; and Bob Diederich, who shares Hale's distinctions and also nipped teammate Saunders for the 1960 indoor low hurdles championship of the SC.

TRACK AND FIELD

Along with Bickert in the sprints were letterman Bill Coe, Hale, John Bahm, Dave Long and Dan Dopp. Lettermen Jack White, Jerry Quandt and Newland, along with Diederich, Keith Larson, and Bill Davis handled the middle distance and mile runs with success. Larson, Marty Aronauer and Al Weaver held forth in the grueling two-mile department. Diederich, Saunders, Joblin and Hale lent authority to Tribe efforts in the high and low hurdles, while the latter also took in broad jump. Mal Robinson, exchange student from England, joined with Bart Partch, Howard Aulick and eagers Bev Vaughan and Henry Corns in broad jump, high jump and hop-step-jump competition, the latter a new innovation on the conference scene. Veteran letterman Ron Henry, co-sharer of the 1960 indoor crown, highlighted the pole vaulting exhibitions along with letterman Herm Schmidt and Wayne Cheek. Aulick, Vaughan, Dan Barton, Walt Scott and Henry Vermillion took turns with the javelin, while McMarlin, Bracken and Eric Erdossy handled themselves well as weightmen with the discus and shot put duties. Of all these performers, only five were seniors.

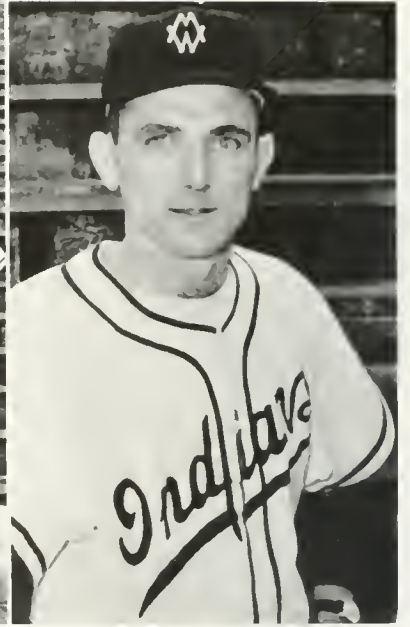

En route to a successful season, the Indian thinclads played host to Hampden-Sydney and Virginia Military, as well as the two-day Southern Conference gathering in which The Citadel was defending champion. Away meets were staged against Richmond, University of Virginia and Virginia Tech. Groves' lads also participated in the Quantico Relays, Virginian-Pilot Relays, Penn Relays and State Intercollegiate meet at Lynchburg College.

With two lacklustre seasons as past history, William and Mary's baseball squad was looking for definite improvement as 1960 drills opened in late February. With a sound nucleus of nine lettermen, Coach Joe Agee was expectant of his crew excelling last year's 4-12 record on the diamond. Much of the team's success, however, depended upon the development of several promising sophomores.

Pepperpot shortstop Ron Masci, a senior who proved a standout last spring during his first season with the Indians, captained the squad. Letter-winners were also available in Bob Blase, Tom Martin, Larry Schalk, Joe Dodd, Bob Stoy, Bruce Hobbs, Dave Fiscella and Norm Caplan.

Martin and Dick Coyle ruled the roost behind home plate for the Tribesmen, with the pitching chores being shared by Fiscella, Hobbs, Joe DeLaurentis and Max Lillywhite. Schalk and Stuart Riley played the first sack, Dodd and Ron Killmon handled second and Richard Bennett held forth at third base. Masci filled out the infield corps at his familiar shortstop post. Stationed in the outfield were Tom Wright, Bob Irby, Blase, Stoy and Caplan.

These Indian operatives faced a battery of 20 tests during their 1960 campaign. Washington and Lee, Virginia Tech, Virginia Military, George Washington and Richmond were engaged on a home-and-home basis. A tilt with Colgate opened the home season and double-headers were staged en route against Furman and defending SC champion West Virginia. In addition to a home stand against Hampden-Sydney, twin bills were played on the road at The Citadel and Davidson.

CROSS COUNTRY

Over hill and over dale, William and Mary's traditionally strong cross-country squad hit the trail for another distinguished season during 1959's autumn sojourn. Coach Harry Groves and Company, with underclassmen playing a notable role, came up with a 4-1 dual meet record marred only by an adverse decision at the hands of Old Dominion powerhouse Virginia Military Institute. Significant success was also found in conference and group competitions.

The Indian thinelads routed the University of Richmond 15-47 in their initial encounter, then fell before well-endowed VMI 22-38 in this unique sport where low score takes home the blue ribbon. Following that lone setback, W&M swept past Hampden-Sydney 15-43, then caught state-wide attention by defeating both Roanoke College and Virginia Tech in a triangular affair. The Indians took VPI 25-33 and Roanoke 25-33, smashing the latter's 15-meet winning skein in a campaign highlight.

In the State Intercollegiate cross-country run, the Grovesmen finished second behind Virginia Military, which hosted the event on its home course at Lexington. Continuing to dominate the marathon scene, the Keydets also captured Southern Conference championship honors, followed by scholarship-rich West Virginia University and third-place William and Mary. Returning to the Reservation in the year's finale, the Indians once again played runner-up behind VMI in the Virginia AAU meet, run over a rain-drenched course.

Co-captains for this 1959 crew were seniors Jerry Quandt, of Norfolk, and English exchange student Malcolm Robinson. Senior Tom Quitko, who posted the best time (22:52) on the home course that campaign, joined with junior Steve Bishop and sophomores George Bassett and Keith Larson in filling out the letterman roster. Prospects are also bright for next season, with several outstanding freshmen due to gain varsity status. Bruce Rollins, Virginia's individual frosh tilist, Martin O'Donnell and Tom Palmer were the mainliners, with Dick Spinelli, John Gette, Nelson Lair and Edward Day also coming in for freshman numerals. "It was quite a satisfactory season," remarked Groves. "Despite the handicap incurred without scholarships, we look forward to next season and anticipate another good showing."

Coach Bob Gill and his William and Mary tennis squad, which struggled to a 1-12 dual match record in 1959, were set to travel the comeback trail this spring. Steady improvement made the Indians tougher near season's end last year, culminated by a surprise fourth place finish in the Southern Conference tournament. Several veterans of that campaign and a promising contingent of sophomores gave rise to distinct optimism about this spring's competition.

"We should have a strong team," remarked Gill as practices got underway. "The boys from last year's successful freshman group could help us to finish with better showings in both regular season and tournament play."

Pace-maker for the Tribe netmen was senior Mike Heims, the 170-pound captain two years running. Heims, an Arizona native, brought four years of letter-winning experience into the 1960 hostilities. Also in the foreground were two lettered New York boys, senior Jerry King and junior Steve Lovell.

Other notable returnees from the 1959 tennis crew, which gained its experience under hardship, were seniors John Pforr and Danny Yates, along with juniors Jim Caserta and Jim Gaudy. Four sophomores were expected to be in hot pursuit of regular duties in singles play. This quartet, which should provide outstanding personnel for seasons to come, is comprised of Renny Aronoff, Tom Fridinger, Bob Boyd and Art Vandroff, with footballer Carroll Owens also showing future promise.

Gill's lads peddled their tennis wares this spring over a predominantly hometown sales route, entertaining Colgate, George Washington, Penn, Richmond, West Virginia, University of Virginia, Davidson, East Carolina and Navy. The Indians left home quarters for matches against Washington and Lee, Virginia Tech, Virginia Military Institute, Georgetown and Navy. The 1960 curtain fell during the three-day Southern Conference tourney in GW's Washington, D. C., backyard.

GOLF

Under the tutelage of Jack Prater, a new face on the coaching staff, William and Mary's reasonably well-endowed golf team was expected to produce favorable results during the recent 1960 campaign. Two-year captain Ken Rice and veteran Charlie Dudley served as senior headmasters of Tribe golf fortunes, while juniors Dave Mance and Chip Ingram also applied considerable letterman background into their drives and putts.

Rice, who hails from Nashua, New Hampshire, continued his custom of playing alternately in the first and second positions for the fourth consecutive season, carrying last year's 76.2 average per round into 1960 action. New Yorker Mance and Pennsylvanian Ingram were looking forward to improving on last season's averages of 77.5 and 78.9 shots per round, respectively. Dudley was one of the squad's 1959 leaders in points scored.

One junior and a quartet of promising sophomores complemented the Tribe roster. Jeff Stafford and second year-men Jeff Graham, Mickey Baughman, Jeff Udell and Bill Kucewicz were called upon by Prater to fill in the regular posts and handle reserve duties.

Three men were lost via graduation from the 1959 outfit which posted a 5-5 dual match record and placed third in the Southern Conference tournament under Coach Joe Mark, now assistant football mentor at the University of North Carolina.

These Indian linksmen faced a nine-match schedule beginning early in April. Over the local nine-hole Williamsburg Inn layout, William and Mary played host to Virginia Tech, Washington and Lee, Virginia Military Institute, West Virginia and Randolph-Macon. Taking to the road, the Indians took on Norfolk W&M, University of Virginia, Navy and defending SC champion George Washington. The season was concluded at the annual Big Five and Southern Conference tournaments.

"The value of intramural activities cannot be overemphasized, since they affect every aspect of the student's physical, mental and emotional structure. Our basic philosophy is maximum student-faculty participation in the greatest number of intramural activities."

This foreword to the William and Mary intramural handbook sums up quite well the intentions of Dudley Jensen, director of intramurals, and Howard Smith, head of the physical education department. Extracurricular, non-intercollegiate athletics play a vital role in W&M life, as witnessed by the fact that three-fourths of the male student body participated in various facets of the program last year, when Sigma Nu captured the coveted total point trophy. Another bountiful season seemed assured with the close of first semester activities.

Autumnal competition saw PiKA and Lambda Chi deadlock for the fraternity touch football crown, each with a 9-1 record. But the PiKA men prevailed in playoff hostilities and went on to defeat independent champs Old Dominion 1-4 in the "mid-semester afternoon classic." Chosen to the offensive all-star team were PiKA's Tony Spallone and Bruce Hobbs, Lambda Chi's Bill Coe and Bill Whitten, Kappa Alpha's Mac Lillywhite and Kappa Sig's Don Whitesell. Spallone's dual personality also gained him all-star defensive honors, with Lillywhite joining the defensive unit in addition. KA's Nick St. George, Phi Tau's Dan Newland and Lambda Chi's Warren Joblin filled out the squad roster. In an allied event, Tom Legg of SAE repeated as place kicking champion by splitting the uprights 95 of 100 tries, followed by runnerup Steve Tatem of Lambda Chi and third place Lillywhite. Lambda Chi won the team placement trophy, with SAE second and KA third.

Maintaining a strong early season bid for fraternity leadership, PiKA also captured the swimming crown for the second year running, with Theta Delt second and Pi Lamb tied with Kappa Sig for third. Top individual laurels went to independents Turk Despard and Mort Aulls, whose performances proved an index to the influence about to be exerted by independents in upcoming events.

INTRAMURALS

Over on the tennis courts, Pi Lamb's talented netmen walked off with blue ribbon honors, with Sigma Pi and PiKA trailing behind. Once again, an independent, this time Steve Parker, hammerlocked individual honors, snaring both the regular and freshman tournament titles. Only Paul Berghaus of Theta Delt managed the semi-finals. Independent Leamon Melson won championship honors in horseshoes, Kappa Sig capturing the fraternity crown.

Careful aim and proficiency at the charity stripe brought PiKA's Tony Spallone free-throw honors, hitting on 37 of 40 to edge second place finishers Ernie Phillips, Bob Stoy and Dan Barton, all of Sigma Nu, which won the team title.

SAE rampaged through ten consecutive victories to clinch the volleyball crown over defending champions Pi Lamb, who closed out at 8-2. Monroe managed the independents' top spot with an 8-0 mark. Crossing the street to the Williamsburg Bowling Alley, Lambda Chi, Sigma Pi and the independent K-Klobbers deadlocked for first place with 29-10 records in a scrambled, combined league.

Back to Blow Gym, this time for the ever-popular wrestling tournament. Sigma Nu repeated as grunt-'n'-groan specialist of the first magnitude, followed by Pi Lamb and Theta Delt. Individual crowns were hogged by independents, who constituted for the most part the fledgling W&M Wrestling Club. Independent Bart Weeks took first place in the 130-pound division, joined by comparts John Cochran at 157, Ed Jean at 177 and Charles Puskar at 181. Sigma Nu raked in three firsts, with Tom Steed at 147, Mike McCall at 167 and Fred Clayton in the unlimited class. Theta Delt's Don Duvall was the lone "outsider" to smash the winners' circle, bringing home the bacon in the 137-pound market. Monroe swept easily to the independent championship, followed by the grapplers of Old Dominion 2-3 and the K-Klobbers.

Basketball, ping-pong and handball singles and doubles all got underway in late January and early February, with badminton taking over the spotlight in March. Along with spring's sunny antics came cross country, softball, track and golf.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

WAA OFFICERS

D. Floyd, Secretary; M. Briscoe, President; S. Whitlow, Point Recorder

The 1959-60 women's athletic world was begun by the annual WAA freshman orientation picnic, and throughout the entire year WAA promoted intramural and intercollegiate athletics for women on campus. The purpose of the organization is to stimulate interest in sports and to create a healthy and recreative environment for all the women students.

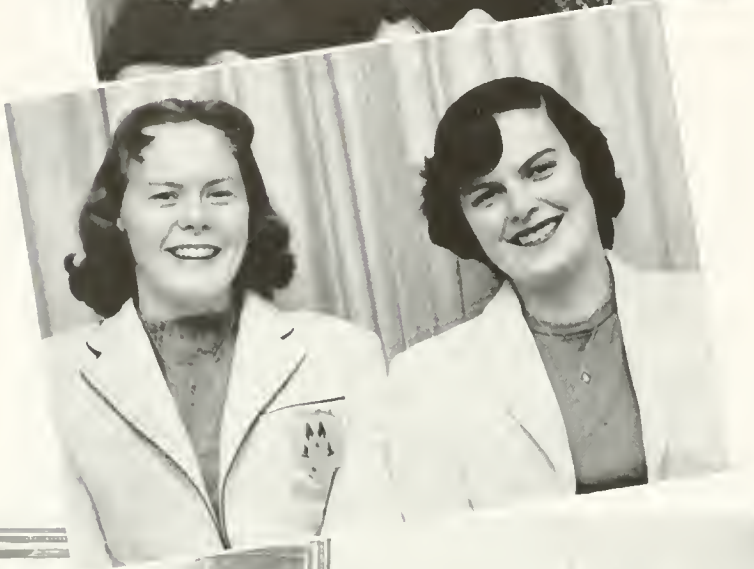

As a freshman every co-ed automatically becomes a member of WAA. This membership entitled her to participate in varsity or intramural sports. Three committees compose the WAA organization: the Managers' Board, the Joint Committee, and the Intramural Committee.

Marge Briscoe held the gavel for the 1959-60 season, Sue Whitlow was elected point recorder, and Donna Floyd, secretary. Sue Foutz was chosen student head of intramurals, and Meci Carlson filled the secretarial job for the Managers' Board.

By being a member of an intramural or intercollegiate team, a co-ed earns a certain number of points. With an accumulation of 500 or 1000 points the recipient is then eligible for award. The highest number of points that can be awarded in intramurals is 50. Neither varsity nor junior varsity players can participate in the intramurals of that particular sport. Varsity team members may receive from 50-75 points, this range being determined by the coach.

This 1959 season the Squaws shone brilliantly, as they completed their most outstanding season since 1950. Coached by Mrs. Jerry Dohmeier and captained by Jogina Diamanti, the Squaws' slate read two wins, three ties, and one loss.

The most outstanding game of the season was with the Richmond Club, which ended in a 2-2 tie. This was the first time that the Squaws broke their streak of W&M victories. Other teams encountered were: Longwood, Westhampton, Roanoke, Norfolk Division of William and Mary, and Petersburg Club.

Two freshmen broke into the starting line-up: Liz Tiedeman and Donna Nunn. Veteran letter winners were seniors Nancy Grubbs, Lynn Carr, Meci Carlson, Jogina Diamanti; Sophomores Claudia Barclay, Ruth Shoemaker, and Shiras Elliott. Upper class newcomers to starting berths were sophomores Pat Palese and Diane Zehfuss.

The Squaws placed two girls on the Tidewater I team - Nancy Grubbs at Goalie and Jogina Diamanti at center halfback. Lynn Carr, left wing, and Ruth Shoemaker, left halfback, were chosen for Tidewater II. Meci Carlson, Donna Nunn and Mrs. Dohmeier went to the Southeast Tournament as substitutes.

Again two Squaws were chosen to represent the Southeast District at the National Hockey Tournament in Washington, D. C. They were Diamanti playing with the Southeast II team and Grubbs playing with the Southeast IV team.

This past hockey season was one of the finest at W&M, and there is great optimism for future teams on the Reservation.

BASKETBALL

All members of last year's varsity club returned: senior co-captains Nancy Grubbs and Marge Briscoe; Meci Carlson, Fran Broache, and Donna Floyd as forwards; Neal Lecke, Mike Gaffney and Lois Farmer as guards.

Each year the enthusiasm for basketball continues to rise, for this season over 40 women answered to the first day's call for practice. The spirit of the old aided by that of the new sparked the Squaws to have a successful season.

The teams encountered were RPI, Mary Washington, Longwood, Westhampton, and Bridgewater. As is the annual custom, one long trip is taken by the Squaws. This year they traveled to Yankeeeland where they met Notre Dame of Baltimore, Maryland, and Swarthmore of Swarthmore, Pennsylvania.

Girls on the squad are awarded anywhere from 30 to 60 points yearly. This depends on the discretion of the faculty sponsor.

VARSITY TENNIS

Nationally ranked Donna Floyd still remained the mainstay of the varsity tennis team. The Squaws held matches with Sweet Briar, Longwood, Westhampton; and the highlight of the season was our participation in the Middle States Tournament

Captained by Sue Foutz, four letter winners returned to the varsity archery team. A team is comprised of five members. Interest greatly increased this year resulting in two teams being formed. Meets with Westhampton, Longwood, and the Norfolk Division of William and Mary were held.

LACROSSE

Seven letter winners returned to the lacrosse field. They were Marge Briscoe, Janet Caldwell, Fish Griffin, Peggy Clement, Joan Galvin, Kitty Lutzelman, and Judy Urian. Hollins, Sweet Briar, Westhampton, and the Virginia Club were the teams encountered this season. The Virginia State Tournament was held in culmination of the year.

WOMEN'S

Student Director of Intramurals
Sue Foutz

The women's intramural program at William and Mary is headed by a student and faculty member. This year Sue Foutz was chosen as student head, and Mrs. Terry acted as faculty sponsor. The student head is appointed by the joint committee, and she is an ex-officio member of the manager's board.

Each individual sport is directed by a student manager. This year they were: hockey—Christian Thompson, archery—Sue Tilghman, basketball—Dot Young, bowling—Janet Caldwell, ping pong—Kay Davenport, swimming—Mary Welsh, softball—Peggy Clement, tennis—Erin Horrocks, and volleyball—Sue Griggs.

The sports offered in intramurals are so varied that each woman can enjoy participation in at least one. Most important in intramural play is interest, sportsmanship, and enjoyment, rather than ability. It provides for a good diversion that isn't too time consuming.

Besides having managers, each dorm and sorority elects an intramural representative to keep them well informed as to when, where, and how the teams should be formed.

At the end of each respective intramural season, the winner receives points toward the championship trophy for the entire year.

FRATERNITIES

The Greek letter plaques over the doors of sorority houses and fraternity lodges symbolize one of the most enjoyable social experiences in the life of the college student.

Fraternity row was famous as an imaginative inventor of party themes that ranged from the tuxedo-formal to the Bermuda and party hat. There were Saturday afternoon receptions announced by banners of welcome to the visiting sororities. There were Beatnik parties with darkened, candlelit lodges and poetic recitations to the strains of Bruce. There were animal parties with imported live cows and pigs, Viking moats, and "prehistoric" parties with unique burlap sacks or leopard-skinned participants. In a more serious vein, on crisp nights the fraternities serenaded their sweethearts, lovely in long white formals with arms full of red roses. There were formal dances in the Great Hall, the Colony Room and at the Lodge, with careful decorations, dim lights, and figures moving to the music of a favorite band.

Our nine sororities were not completely dependent upon fraternities for their socializing. Talking far into the night at sorority slumber parties, exchanging gossip over the bridge table at inter-sorority parties, entertaining the pledges at big sister parties and dinners, they provided feminine social activities.

Second semester rush was a focal point in the sorority and fraternity calendar year. In anticipation of spectacular pledge classes, the boys planned smokers while the girls fretted over unique party themes. There were endless committee meetings and redefinition of codes of conduct by Pan-Hellenic and Inter-Fraternity Council.

In the quiet that followed rush, the sororities and fraternities turned to the more serious aspects of their responsibilities as student groups on the campus. There was the annual competition for "The President's Cup", and towards this end the groups stressed study and the individual's contribution to the all-over average. They were effective promoters for the Campus Chest and the Blood Bank campaigns. At Christmas and Easter there were orphan parties, visits to Eastern State and Dunbar, and collections taken to buy food for needy families in the Williamsburg area.

Friendships, the most intangible product of fraternity and sorority life, become meaningful and rich in the college years. These are friendships that grow as the members give themselves to group effort and take pride in group achievement. Friendship through which the pin becomes a tangible expression of union.

Well it seems that despite all obstacles Cap'n Bill navigated the good ship "Theta Delt" through another year in fine style—tenny pumps and all. This old fraternity was the eleventh secret fraternity to be founded in America, tracing its origin to Union College, where it was begun in 1847. It was the first fraternity to appear on the campus of William and Mary, being established here in 1853; this is only one of a number of firsts for Theta Delt—firsts that include the pledge pin, an official flag, a publication, and the adoption of fraternity colors.

Among the crew this year were Paul Berghaus, member of the Honor Council and the Student Assembly, varsity football player Dick Rinker, Don DuVall, the 137-pound intramural wrestling champion, and president-elect John Pffor, who is reported to be considering a lucrative offer from tennis-promoter Jack Kramer.

Theta Delt had its usual merry cruise around the social world this year, with sweetheart Lee Sykes making a lovely first mate. Ports of call included the Founders' Day Banquet, Christmas Dance, Egg Nog Party for the faculty, Sweetheart Dance, Pledge Banquet, Pajama Party, and that now-famous (the writer hopes this is the correct adjective) Boat Party. There we leave our happy crew preparing for their trip to who knows where.

Added to Theta Delt's crew in February were: Doug Etka, Bill Henry, Arnold Jones, Ronald Jones, John Johnson, Ed Kirby, Walt Bivins, Terry Meket, John Phillips, Rolf Svendsen, Steve Parker, Bill Depuy, John Findlay, Charles Yayson, Tom Richardson, Keith Blomstrom, and Turk Despard.

The first sound one hears as he begins a jaunt down Fraternity Row is a din of wild hellacious merriment coming from the first lodge on the right. Could this be . . . ? It is—the SAE Lodge, and the brothers here have been known to have an occasional party. In fact, Sigma Alpha Epsilon was the first social fraternity to be founded in the South, and the second to be established at William and Mary, being established here in 1857; it now has the largest membership of any fraternity in the nation.

As is the usual procedure, many SAE brothers were active in campus affairs this year. These included "Skeets" Mink, residence counselor of Old Dominion Dormitory; Bob Evanovich, President of the Physical Education Club; Norm Burnett, Editor of the "Royalist", the campus literary magazine; Jon Stephenson, varsity halfback and a Southern Conference "Player of the Week"; and other varsity football players, Mike Pokorny, Don Handy, H. C. Thaxton, and Dave Wittan.

The highlight of the 1959 fall semester was the Sweetheart Dance December 12 at which Bobbie Berkley was crowned Sweetheart. The next day the pledges and brothers held their annual Christmas Serenade. With their usual share of weekend parties and much activity expected in the Spring, the year was a full one for SAE.

The February pledge class consisted of Bryan Pritchard, Ronnie Williams, Larry Simpson, Jim Green, John Dnnlap, Steve Webb, Rich Wright, and Frank Govern.

Well it seems that the boys from Pika did their usual exemplary job of guarding Greeks and Joekey Corner despite the many obstacles and diversions—diversions such as girls, and . . . need I say more. Going back in time a little bit, the original chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha was founded at the University of Virginia in 1868, and only three years later, in 1871, the Gamma Chapter was established at the College of William and Mary.

Besides their loyal sentry duty, the Pikas also played many other important roles in student affairs. For the second straight year they have led the intramural sports race at the end of the first semester, capturing trophies in swimming and football. Some of this year's outstanding members were: Tom Foster, Vice President of Scabbard and Blade and President of the Senior Class; Don Pons, President of the Sociology Club; and other Scabbard and Blade members—John Tracy, Bill Burnside, Gary Collier, and Larry Bechtold.

As is the custom, a few parties were held throughout the year; these included the March Founders' Day Banquet and Dream Girl Ball, the Prehistoric Party, the usual sorority and week-end parties, and two beach parties.

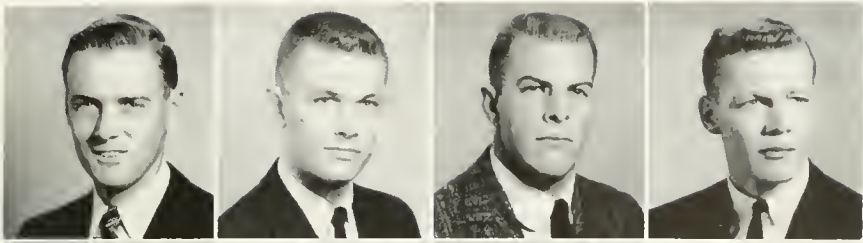

February additions to the guard were: Robin Reighley, Jim Delaney, Perry White, Joe Cunningham, Wayne Coakley, Bart Barbee, Al Strang, Fred Gaston, Ray Matson, Pete Conlan, Chico Herrick, and Tom Vice.

As the sun sets in the west we hear a rebel yell echoing across the camps, "The South will rise again," and so the sons of Robert E. Lee complete another successful year. The original chapter of this Southern fraternity was founded at Washington and Lee in 1865 with the help of Robert E. Lee.

The Alpha Zeta chapter was established at William and Mary in 1890, and has been continually active longer than any fraternity on campus. KA demonstrated its versatility this past year by having outstanding members in many activities. In the sports field, Wayne Woolwine was on the all-Southern Conference second team and co-captain Buck Lynn received honorable mention as well as serving as President of the Varsity Club. In basketball Kenny Roberts upheld the southern tradition. The president of KA, Nick St. George, was a ROTC company commander, and another man of note was Shep McKenney, William and Mary debater.

Turning to the social scene, Carolyn Todd Ball was this year's sweetheart, and as usual KA had its full share of social events. Besides the usual sorority parties, there were the fall open houses for freshmen girls, the Black and White Ball, the Christmas Serenade, at which time Santa Claus distributed candy canes to all girls on campus, and the climax of the year, the thirteenth annual Southern Ball and parade.

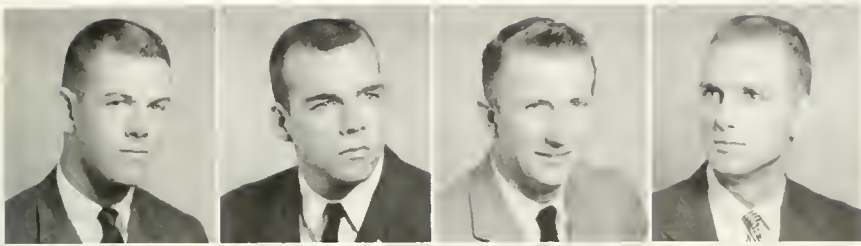

New wearers of the Kappa Alpha pledge pin are: John Howell, Fred Lowe, Jim Hunsucker, E. J. Bowen, Tom Davenport, Bill Johnson, Bill Thomas, and Bill Lehner.

Flash! Latest Daw Jones averages show tremendous gains for Kappa Sigma during the fiscal year of 1959-1960. The main office of this old and trusted firm was founded at the University of Virginia in 1869, and the Nu Chapter was established on the campus of William and Mary in 1890.

This year's assets were numerous, including: Dave Gatti, veep of the Varsity Club and a member of the varsity football team; Ralph Crutchfield, President of the IFC, member of ODK, head of the ROTC Cadet Corps, and a member of the Honor Council; Tom Farrington, member of ODK, co-captain of the varsity basketball team, and a member of the Honor Council; varsity basketball players Jim Osbon, Howdy Miller, Henry Corns, Charlie Woolum, Dave Bottoms, and second leading scorer, Bev Vaughn; Ron Masci, co-captain of the varsity baseball team; Don Snook, fraternity editor of the COLONIAL ECHO; and last, but definitely not least, sweetheart, Julie Morgan.

Receipts were incumbent for the Sweetheart Ball, the Rathskeller Party, the Virginia Beach Weekend, the Pledge-Brother Dinner, the football game, and numerous other parties.

All told, the earned surplus for Kappa Sigma this year was a wonderful time.

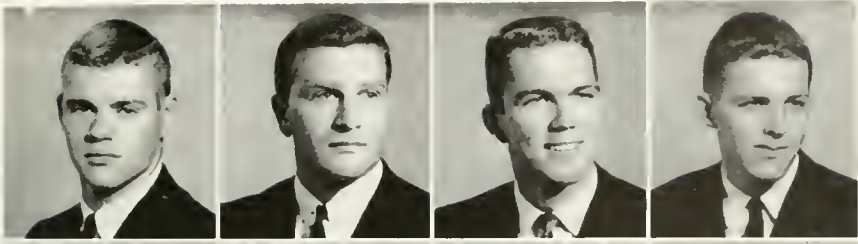

Assets acquired in February included: Bill Beale, Ed Day, Dan Dickerson, Dave Dickerson, Dan Driscoll, Bob Harris, John Meagher, John Mertz, Dick Swenson, Irish O'Hara, Ed Napodano, Chuck Puscar, Art Reeside, Curly Roper, John Slfka, Jim Talbert, Dick Spinelli, Bob Soleau, Kirk Gooding, George Pappas, and Mort Aulls.

By now it is common knowledge that the Phi Tau lodge has become a place of refuge for orphan bathtubs—these boys must really be obsessed with personal cleanliness . . . or something. This bathtub-diving group steams from the original chapter of Phi Kappa Tau, which was founded at Miami University of Ohio in 1906. The Alpha Theta Chapter was established at William and Mary in 1926.

As usual, Phi Tau was well-represented in a wide variety of student activities: Don Farrell served his third term as assemblyman, Terry Browne was much in evidence in school theater work, Charley Dudley completed his fourth season on the varsity golf team as well as holding down the job of Photography Editor of the COLONIAL ECHO, Dan Link was a member of the William and Mary Band, and President, Dan Newland, sparked the track team as co-captain.

Despite rumors to the contrary, Phi Tau did have its usual share of weekend parties; at these sweetheart Sue Bruton was much in evidence. The social year also included weekend trips to Virginia Beach and Old Point Comfort, and a combination Sweetheart Dance and Founder's Day Celebration, which was held on March 12, at the Chamberlin Hotel in Old Point Comfort.

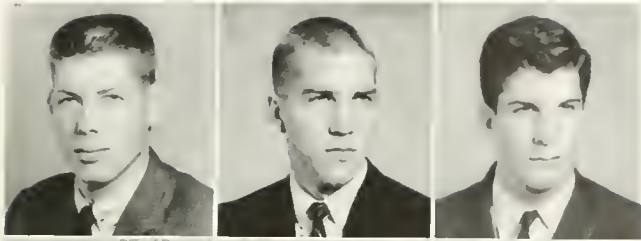

Phi Kappa Tau pledged the following boys in February: John Basher, Andy Cremedas, Pete Davis, John Gette, Tom Haley, John Heenan, Gary Hime, John Hogwood, Ron Kish, Jim McManus, Tom Palmer, Tom Siciliano, and Mike Patterson.

Beatniks, gangsters, hobos, pirates—what kind of party will this fun-loving group at Pi Lamb think of next. Yes sir, I do believe the boys down there have been known as having a party or two during the past year. This non-sectarian social fraternity was founded at Yale University in 1895, and the Virginia Psi chapter was established at the College of William and Mary in 1929.

In the few moments they weren't having parties, quite a few members of Pi Lamb found time to make many contributions to campus life at William and Mary. These include Richard Neely, President of the Student Body, member of Omicron Delta Kappa and a President's Aide; Steve Lovell, Secretary of the Interfraternity Council, associate editor of the Flat Hat, and head of the blazer committee; Lynn Shaw and Armen Bahadurian, members of the Student Assembly; William Thack, President of Slaughter's English Literary Society; John Baldino, stage manager of the William and Mary Choir; Mark Groothius, Varsity Basketball; Glenn Mann and Dave Kurland, Varsity swimming, and Art Vandroff, and Jerry King, Varsity tennis. Also the members of Pi Lamb have found time to have the highest scholastic average among the fraternities for four out of the last six semesters.

Besides the run-of-the-mill weekend spectaculars, the social calendar included the Winter and Spring Serenades, the annual Winter Formal, at which Marcia Hoffman was crowned sweetheart, the annual Parent-Alumni Weekend, and the annual Virginia Beach week end.

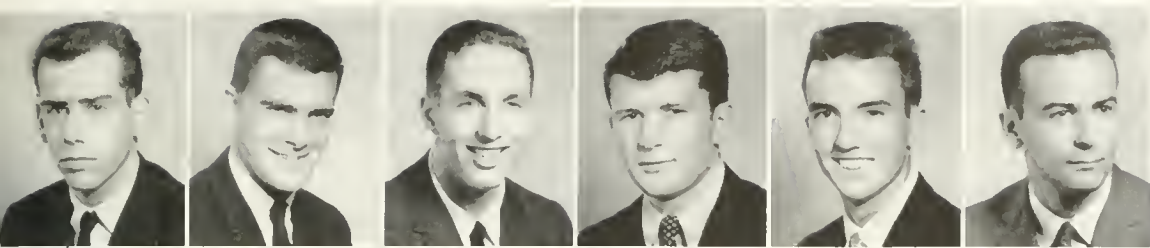

February additions to the group were: Mike Diamant, Howie Fisher, Neal Friedentstine, Jeff Goldblatt, Bennett Johnson, Steve Loeber, Ralph Naden, Tom Reese, Bill Remy, Al Saffold, Steve Segal, Larry Sidebottom, Dick Smith, Bernie Woodard, Jerry Van Voorhis, Arthur Odom, and Armen Bahadurian.

As we proceed down Fraternity Row, we hear a flow of melodious sounds streaming from one of the lodges. Could it be? Yes it is—it's the Sigma Pi lodge, and the brothers have just finished singing their way successfully through another year.

The original chapter of the harmonious group was founded in Indiana at Vincennes University in 1897, and the Alpha Zeta Chapter first appeared on the William and Mary campus in 1897. Sigma Pi remains to this day the only national fraternity to use the Greek Cross as its badge.

Despite their preoccupation with music, quite a few of the brothers found time to play an important role in campus life. President Bob Squatriglia did an excellent job as residence counselor of Old Dominion Dormitory. Also serving the College well were Gregg Tweet, president of the Sophomore Class and Pete Siegenthaler, Junior member of the Student Assembly. Let us not forget Mal Robinson, a Draper Scholar and student director of the William and Mary Theater.

No singing group would be complete without a girl, and Sigma Pi is no exception. Charming Mary Beth Curran is sweetheart of Sigma Pi. Concerts this year included the Christmas Formal, Pledge-Brother Banquet, Founders' Day Banquet, fifteenth annual Christmas party with Tri-Delt for needy orphans, and the annual Orchid Ball Weekend, which was held at Old Point Comfort.

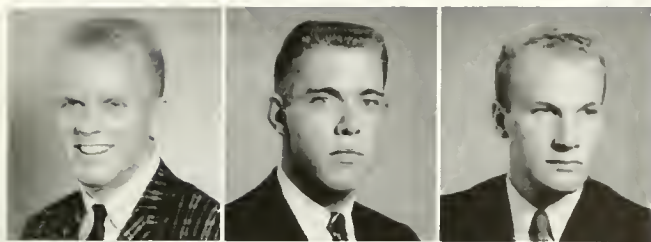

February additions to the chorus were: Richard Ikenberry, Cordell Bowman, Harry Green, Gen Graves, Rosser Pettit, Gene Galusha, Jim Goodell, Charles Henderson, Ed Shattuck, Jim Cochrane, Kent Delano, Karl Zavitkosky, Al Scott, and Charles Lovell.

Reaching the end of Fraternity Row, we hear what appears to be a convention in the house with the golden snake hanging from its porch. "And as I scored my fifth touchdown of the game . . ." No doubt about it, this can only be the sound of the Sigma Nu football players discussing their illustrious feats on the gridiron. However, that's getting ahead of our story a bit. Sigma Nu was founded at Virginia Military Institute in 1869, and the Epsilon Iota Chapter was established at William and Mary in 1923.

Besides having seven starters on this season's football team, the brothers of Sigma Nu were active in a wide range of student activities. In athletics these include Chuck Sanders, co-captain of the basketball team, the winning of the intramural athletic trophy for the third time in four years and the winning of the wrestling championship. In other fields we find Bob Stoy, president of the Varsity Club, Paul Dinsmore, senior assemblyman; Chuck Hassett, president of the Political Science Club; Harrison Golden, president of the Phoenix Society; and Jack Grizzard, president of the Westminster Fellowship.

Sigma Nu's social events, graced by the presence of sweetheart, Joyce Rivers, included the annual Christmas serenade, the White Star Formal, the Sigma Nu Weekend and occasional weekend parties just to break the monotony of studying seven nights a week.

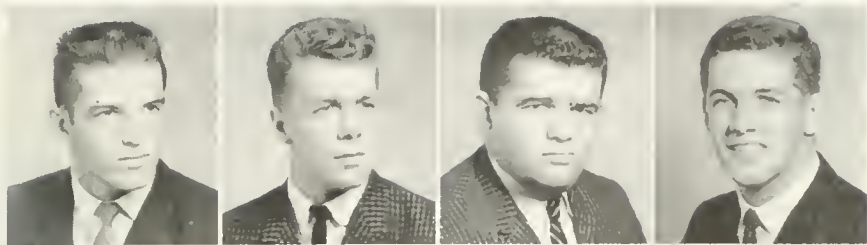

New members of this happy group include Peter Bosch, Ed Jean, Tom Wing, Wayne Coddling, Barry Grantier, Tom Harris, Lenny Dunford, Karl Gretzinger, Ed Davis, Peter Bradley, Marshall Williams, and Aubrey Goldberg.

RALPH CRUTCHFIELD, President

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Inter-Fraternity Council at the College of William and Mary is composed of the president and a second representative from each of the eleven fraternities represented on the campus.

The officers of the Inter-Fraternity Council, except for the vice president who must be chosen from among the fraternity presidents, are elected from the eleven representatives and hold office for a one-year period.

The purpose of the IFC is to encourage interest in scholarship and athletics in the fraternity men of the college, and to promote a cordial relationship among the fraternities. The IFC also attempts to maintain a good relationship between the students and the people of Williamsburg.

The Council establishes the rules governing general fraternity action and rushing. This year the IFC published a booklet to inform students of the rules and practices concerning rushing.

During the 1959 session the IFC sponsored the annual Block Party and undertook several service projects. The IFC was led this year by Ralph Crutchfield, president.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

The Pan-Hellenic Council is a representative organization consisting of two delegates from each of the nine sororities on campus. In addition to promoting inter-sorority relations within the college, the council discusses problems of interest to the fraternity system and to the college and cooperates with the college administration in the maintenance of high social and scholarship standards. The Council also regulates rushing, pledging, and initiation of fraternity women.

The college Pan-Hellenic Council is represented nationally by the National Pan-Hellenic Conference which consists of delegates from each of the national sororities. National Pan-Hellenic and the college Pan-Hellenic Council seek to promote scholarship and a better relationship among all members of the fraternity system.

Chi Omega made many plans and carried them out well during 1959-60. The fall was crowded with activities—a fall house polish, an owl hoot, a tea for the new house-mother, informal rush, and several fraternity parties. On Homecoming weekend, the Chi Omegas displayed a windmill as their entry in the Saturday morning parade.

With the coming of the Christmas season, plans were made for a festive dance, a Christmas owl hoot and breakfast, caroling at Eastern State, a basket for a needy family, and a package given to a foster child in Germany. Symphony dinners were scheduled once a week as a special time for the housemother to dine with the Chi O's.

February ushered in the formal rushing season with its many long hours of work. In the Greek Sing the Chi Omegas carried out a "Love Me or Leave Me" theme.

In the spring, pledges and new initiates were honored at the White Carnation Banquet and Ball. At this once-a-year occasion the scholarship awards, pledge cup, and Madge B. Lambeth Award were presented.

Later in the year, the Chi O's headed for Yorktown and a rollicking beach party. A garden party was planned by the Williamsburg alumnae, and the annual Colonial Chi O was published. The year ended with a farewell party for the seniors—and many new plans for the future.

The beginning of the year found the Theta house somewhat empty — no furniture. Undaunted, the Thetas made the best of the situation by utilizing this empty space. The house actually teemed with “beat” characters one evening when the Theta doors were opened to a Beatnik Open House. Homecoming found the living room floor strewn with pillars which were later used to adorn the gym for the Homecoming Dance.

With the coming of October, the Theta house was again furnished. Not only was the house revitalized with a brand new interior, but sparkle was added by three new pledges.

Along with the addition of new furniture came the warm feeling from a new institution aptly named “happy hour.” At ten o’clock every evening people began to appear for that much needed coffee break. The rooms seemed to bustle as Thetas and their friends gathered to discuss the day’s happenings over a cup of coffee.

The Thetas planned a number of social activities during the year which included the Fall Dance, fraternity parties, and traditional Christmas festivities which were climaxed by the annual Faculty Tea.

With the end of exams and the beginning of a new semester, the Thetas pledged a new group of freshmen. Continuing into the spring, plans were begun for the Theta weekend, a formal dance, and also a beach party.

Ending the year’s social events was the Senior Picnic. As the seniors made their individual plans, the chapter began preparing for the year ahead.

THEME: Kappa key unlocks door to another marvellous year.

"Listen my children and you shall hear
 What the KKG's have been doing this year.
 Since the sixteenth of Feb. in 1923
 W&M's had a chapter of KKG.
 From that time to this, a lot has been done,
 But this year's by far been the very best one.
 Individuals took honors, too numerous to list—
 Just leaf through the yearbook and you'll get the gist.
 The house had a new occupant. We all welcomed her.
 Who else could this be but our own Mrs. Kerr?
 Our homecoming float took the form of a worm.
 It was worth lots of laughs, and—we learned how to squirm.
 Shortly before Christmas was our annual party
 With Santa and presents. We slept little, ate hearty.
 Formal teas were given for faculty and alums.

When we have one of those, man! The house fairly hums!
 On the less formal side were the parties with frats.
 We loved every one. There's no question of that.
 Dances we gave without Reservation:
 Monmouth Duo with Pi Phi and Pledge Presentation.
 'Twas the day of acceptance—we all screamed and shouted.
 "We've got the best pledge class. That fact can't be doubted"
 For the Fleur de lis Party we were there in full force,
 As we were for Peanut Week and Senior Banquet, of course.
 Each night at the house were bridge games all around,
 And without any trouble a fourth could be found.
 And thus, 'twas a wonderful year, you can see,
 For the two shades of blue and the small golden key.

Dear Mom and Dad,

Sorry I haven't written sooner, but we at the Pi Phi house have been so busy that my correspondence has suffered.

After returning to school in September, the studying, working on committees, and, of course, partying began. The Virginia Gamma's were pleased to learn that they had received the National Pi Beta Phi Fraternity Education Award.

Homecoming was scheduled in early fall, so work began on our float immediately. In spite of several catastrophes, the "Indian" was completed. After the Homecoming Parade, the Pi Phis gave a breakfast for alums and guests. It surely was wonderful to see everyone again!

Following Homecoming, we enthusiastically entered informal rush and pledged two new wearers to the wine and blue. With Christmas approaching, we found it difficult to keep up with both studies and the rush of oncoming parties. Our Christmas Open House was visited by Santa himself. During the week before Christmas vacation we went caroling at Dunbar; had our chapter Christmas party, a faculty tea, and the Settlement School Sale.

January 9th was a red-letter day for the Pi Phis and the Kappas. The "Monmouth Duo," a joint dance in commemoration of the dual sorority founding at Monmouth College, literally "lit up" the Williamsburg Lodge.

With the beginning of the new semester, the Pi Phis entered formal rush which included many hours of work and enjoyment. Our social calendar contained plans for a spring dance, fraternity socials, and a beach party at Gloucester.

Now the chapter is sad to be bidding "farewell" to the seniors, but we are looking forward to a carefree summer and many new plans for the coming year.

With love,
Your Pi Phi Daughter

Recolonization came to be more than a word to our campus this year as Gamma Alpha experienced new spirit and life. A term coined by Phi Mu, recolonization involves the supervision of a chapter by National Council for the purpose of pledging and initiating a number of girls through other processes than that of rush. Early in February, Field Secretary Liz deBeaugrine arrived to undertake the job of making plans for a tea at which recolonization along with Phi Mu standards would be presented to those girls invited to attend. With the help of College Pan-Hellenic and other fraternity women, eligible girls were contacted. At the tea held in Landrum lobby on Saturday, February 20, appointments were made for personal interviews with Liz and Mrs. Landon Freear, Phi Mu's delegate to National Pan-Hellenic and former National President of Phi Mu. Twenty girls were pledged on the following Wednesday. Following a pledge training period of approximately twelve weeks under the guidance of Miss deBeaugrine, pledges were initiated. New pledges included: Ellen Aldrich, Sue Ann Appleton, Bonnie Bates, Annabel Boozer, Joan Brame, Pat Brombach, Phyllis Callis, Mary George, Becky Hendrix, Cathy Leon, Carolyn McCarthy, Ann Miller, Pat Naughton, Peggy Perkins, Joyce Rivers, Peggy Rives, Susan Shackelford, Lucy Sproul, Courtenay Turner, Gay Whitlock.

Throughout 1959-60 the Alpha Chi Omegas aimed for harmony among the wearers of the lyre pin, and by working together, achieved their goal.

Soon after returning to school, work began on the Homecoming float. Nearly every afternoon was spent in constructing the Homecoming entry, with chicken wire, crepe paper, and scissors playing an important role in the task. The float, in the form of a little candy house, was under constant attack from the small neighborhood children.

At the conclusion of informal rush, a buffet dinner highlighted the celebration of Founder's Day on October 15. During a visit from the province president, a dessert for all sorority presidents was given in her honor.

The Christmas season approached quickly, and with its coming the Christmas Dance was scheduled at the Williamsburg lodge. Before leaving for Christmas vacation, the chapter planned a party for underprivileged children with Kappa Sigma Fraternity. Santa himself attended the affair.

With the coming of the New Year, workmen entered the Alpha Chi house to begin redecoration of the first floor. Many problems were faced with carpenters hammering in every corner, but the new surroundings made up for any inconveniences.

After hectic preparations for formal rush and the pledge presentation dance, Alpha Chi entertained the faculty at a tea and also participated in the Greek Sing. Later in the spring a surprise breakfast was prepared for the seniors. The annual farewell party added a sad but eventful note to the conclusion of the semester. Alpha Chi could look back on a year of many ideas, plans, and events surrounded by harmony.

THEME: Diamonds were Kappa Delta's Treasure

On October 23, 1897, the Kappa Deltas began their treasure hunt. The search spread to the campus at William and Mary in 1928 when Alpha Pi was established as a new chapter.

The following is an account of the directions taken by the Kappa Deltas in their 1959-1960 treasure hunt.

With the arrival of fall, the Kappa Delta members began work on their Homecoming float. All of their efforts paid off—the float captured first place.

With the Christmas season in full swing, the KD's sold sorority Christmas seals and made preparations for a children's Christmas party. Preceding Christmas vacation, the Diamond Ball added gaiety to the spirit of the festive season.

In February, Kappa Delta pledged twelve new girls to the green and white. Spring followed winter's chilly blasts, and preparations were underway for another social event—the spring weekend.

Alpha Pi chapter continued to aid in the support of the Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond, the Kappa Delta national philanthropy. In addition, projects included weekly visits to the Fort Eustis Hospital.

With the close of school, the Kappa Delta's felt closer to their treasure—the Kappa Delta Diamond.

THEME: Tri Delta Sails Right Through 1959-1960

After launching a new year at William and Mary, the Tri Deltas set sail for Homecoming. The main item on the log was the Homecoming float; a Viking ship was chosen as the theme with the slogan, "We'll Sail Right Thru the Hurricane."

Fall Rush was the next big event of the year. Acceptance Day with its accompanying confusion brought not only new pledges but old memories, also.

Early in November the Tri Deltas scheduled their first dance of the season at the Williamsburg Lodge. It proved to be an exciting highlight of their four years before the mast. On Thanksgiving Eve, a Founder's Day Banquet celebrated the sorority's founding in 1888.

Christmas found the Tri Deltas in high spirits; they planned their annual Pine Party and along with Sigma Pi Fraternity entertained a group of orphans at a Christmas party. Some carolers from Dunbar were also invited on board.

Throughout the year, Tri Delta had several parties with the fraternity crew, and professors from various departments at the college spoke to the sorority members on different topics.

A hectic rush week launched second semester into full swing. Soon after, all the Tri Deltas set their sails for the annual Greek Sing.

Later in spring the Tri Deltas came into port for the traditional Pledge Dance and Garden Party for the faculty. A woman student received the Tri Delta yearly scholarship set aside for worthy seamen.

The traditional Pansy Breakfast climaxed a busy year with a big "Bon Voyage" to the graduating seniors, their Olde Salts.

THEME: Gamma Phi's Crescent Climbs High Through Cooperation

Cooperation was adopted as Gamma Phi's theme from their first task to their last in the year 1959-1960. Starting as early as the first day of school, the Gamma Phi girls began to cooperate in the capacities of wires, cutters, folders, fluffers and stuffers in the making of the 6,000 aqua kleenex carnations which composed their float for Homecoming.

In October, the Gamma Phi's entertained friends and alumnae at an open house after the Homecoming game. Later in the month, Gamma Phi livened up the campus by holding a Roaring Twenties Prohibition Party.

Soon afterwards, the talents of the sorority members were directed toward the creation of hundreds of icicles to be used as decoration for the Christmas dance. The task was begun at a slumber party planned for the girls who pledged during fall rush. Cooperation was the keynote for the success of the Christmas dance as Gamma Phis worked together to make history by completing the decorating for the dance in one hour. The month of December was complete when a sorority Christmas party added to the festive mood, and several philanthropic projects were successfully finished.

The early days of 1960 found the Gamma Phi girls turning their creative talents to preparations for formal rush. Undoubtedly, the cooperation exhibited at the "wisteria-making parties" was a highlight of the year.

As second semester passed, Gamma Phi participated in many campus activities, including Greek Sing and intramural sports. Once again the Gamma Phis willingly cooperated to make the decorations contributing to the success of their spring dance.

The year closed on a somewhat sad and sentimental note as the sisters worked together on the plans for a senior banquet which left all the Gamma Phi Betas and especially the seniors, with many memories of friendship, cooperation and the crescent.

FEATURES

Although club meetings, classes, and study sessions seemed to take up every available minute, there was always time to enjoy campus life. As small as Williamsburg is, the enterprising student could always find something to do, and most students were enterprising when it came to the question of how to avoid studying.

Saturday nights were always the liveliest, especially on Fraternity Row. The "Frets" caused jammed lodges wherever they played, and, even without a combo, records turned up fullblast made the few solitary students in the academic building wish they had done their term papers just a little earlier. And after the flicking lights chased reluctant girls off the dorm steps, the boys headed for "the Colonial" for a bull session and submarine sandwiches.

The movies were always crowded, especially since freshman boys were barred from the lodge area for the first semester. Bowling became a favorite sport as the freshmen racked their brains for something to do on Saturday nights.

Sports gave an opportunity for all classes to get together. Whether the halfback broke loose for the winning touchdown as the clock ticked out the last minute or the basketball team lost by one point in double overtime, it was always exciting to cheer on the boys who went to class with you—and who had suddenly changed into defenders of the school name.

Weekends weren't the only time to forget studying. The walks by Matoaka in the early fall; the strong, surprisingly harmonious voices of fraternity men as they serenaded the campus on clear starlit nights; sleigh-riding on cafeteria trays on Barrett Hill; and the outdoor band concerts where the scent of magnolias reminded you that this was the South even though the boy next to you had a New Jersey accent; every season brought its special enjoyments.

Even studying wasn't all drudgery. The library was a beehive of social activity, and "Greeks" was never too far to go for a coffee break. The all-night cramming sessions were hard, but the memory of endless cups of coffee and flunked tests was never enough to prevent procrastination.

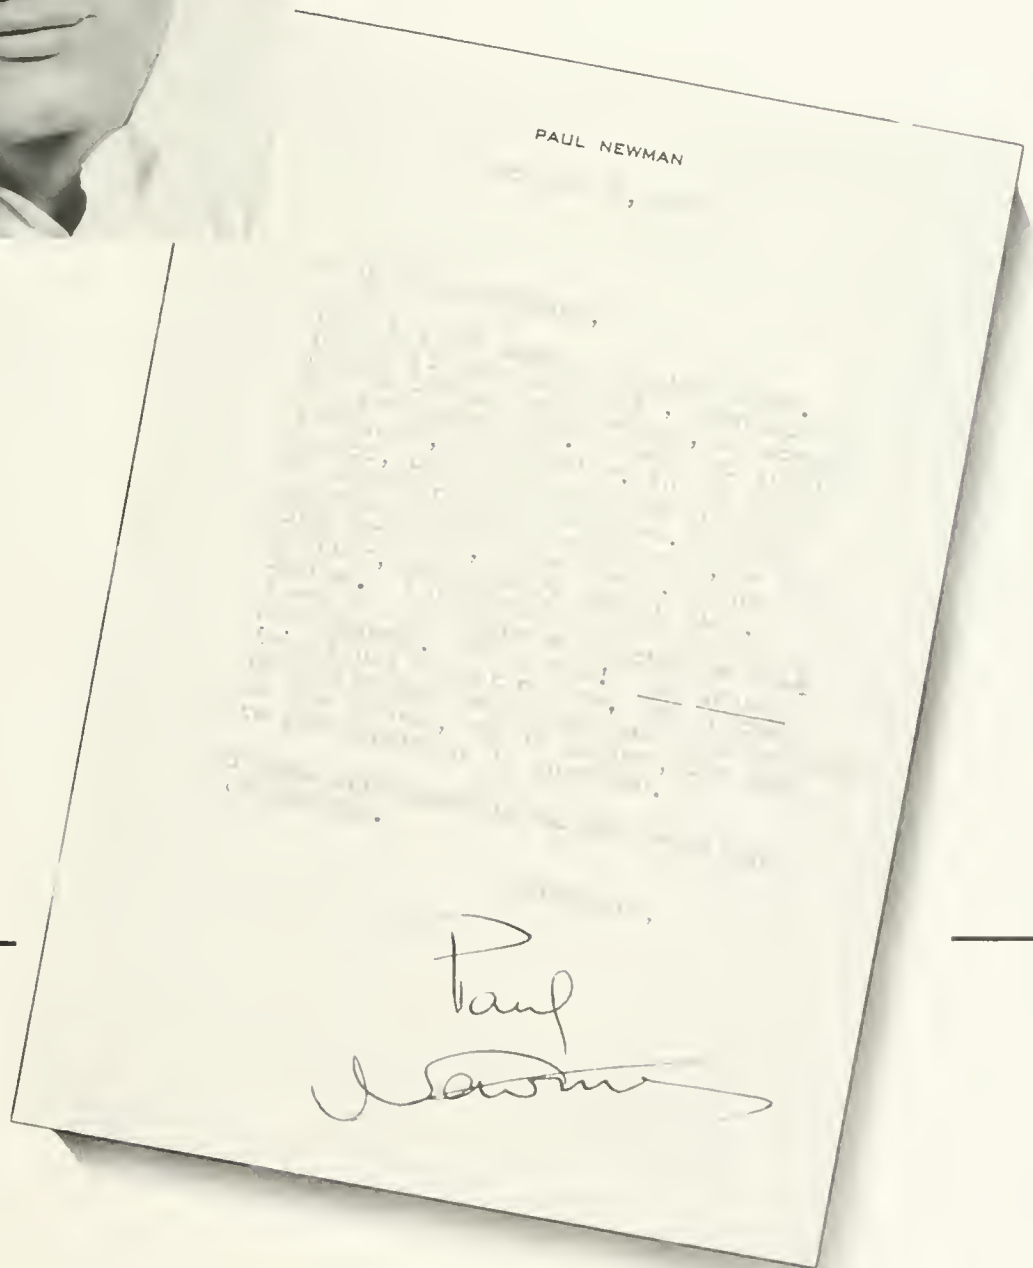

And there was always "Whiskey" to comment on, and the rain to complain about, and the tourists in their Bermudas and camera cases asking students to point out the Wren Building.

Moments like these will be remembered. The memories of fatigue, anxiety, disappointment, and frustration will sink into oblivion. Remaining will be nostalgic reflection upon recollection of happy college days of lasting friendships made and stores of knowledge gained.

HITTING THE BOOKS, LARRY?

The word itself—morning—holds such grizzley promise! How we love those eight o'clock classes, which draw us out of bed promptly at five of eight—for we all like to be assured of getting there on time—and how much we love those rainy mornings, which are especially conducive to bright-eyed eagerness for morning classes! If you are an unconditioned freshman, you usually lose that numbness before long. After several years of practice, however, you as a senior may be able to remain in that delicious state of semi-consciousness well into your second class before being rudely awakened by the professor's caustic query: "Oh, am I keeping you awake?"

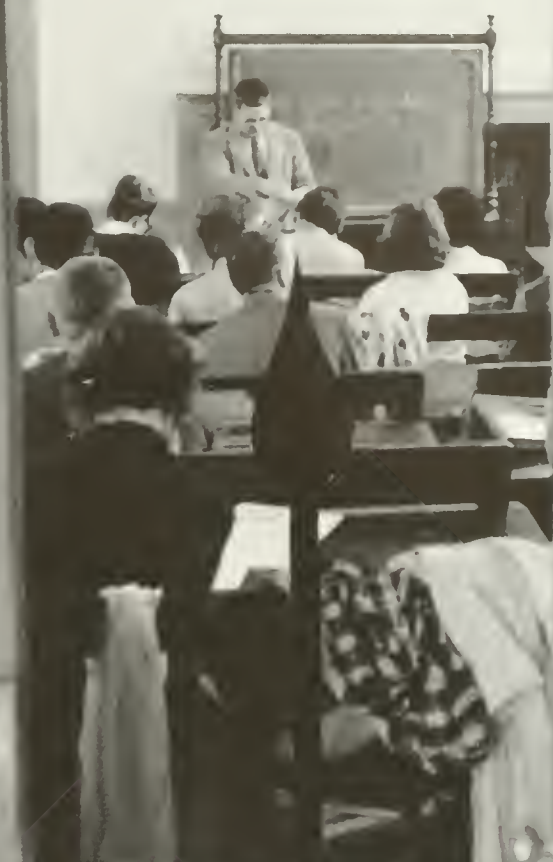

By the time you reach the Post Office, you are in dire need of a reassuring letter from home, and with renewed confidence can take time out from studying to loaf in the drugstore.

A freshman needs no encouragement. Duc Week gives him no qualms of being a nonentity or governed by upper-classmen, for it is indeed a fundamental honor to carry books for other students, play "Ring Around the Roses" on the Wren Lawn, wear charming green caps, and pay homage to a stack of corrugated boxes, designated as "Lord Bote-tourt."

Morning convocations are anxiously awaited. Besides offering an excuse to miss a class, the convocations enable you to see the school leaders in academic procession and the speeches encourage the student to form new resolutions to be somebody and to make a success of his college career.

A mark of distinction for all William and Mary men is to be seen in the springtime, standing on Jockey Corner. The greatest pitch of excitement occurs when a vote is taking place, but frustrations and anxieties elapse into sheer ecstasy when elections are over and you have elected—a Homecoming Court!

After the morning's activities, you long for a few brief hours of relaxation and contemplation—but nothing of the sort will be your lot.

Ah, afternoon! The eyes are open and the head is clear. How refreshing! You say "hello" to your classmates and you can actually see them. You decide how you will occupy your time now that your mind is lucid. Perhaps you are an enthusiastic college student who loves to support campus activities. You work on a Homecoming float or you take pictures for the Flat Hat, or you practice cheering for Saturday's game. Maybe you attend an intramural football game. In preparation you wear knee pads and a chest guard. You don this garb because in touch football the players have more contact with the spectators than with each other. It is safer to be playing. One pass and crash . . . you've been squashed. If you are a brave college student, you go to a Saturday afternoon fraternity party. Once there, you dance off five pounds in three hours. You notice that these parties follow the law of the jungle: "Step or you will be stepped on." It is at a fraternity party that a college student learns the meaning of the phrase, "Survival of the fittest." You ambitious ones study in the afternoon, and you retire to the library. There you find two types of students: the ones who've been there since 8:00 A. M.—they're asleep; and the ones who have tests that day—they are wan and have no fingernails. You take a break before settling down, and you sit on the library steps for the rest of the day, studying—humanity. Some leaders in our college community have an annoying habit. They call meetings in the afternoon. Since missing a meeting is ten times more serious than cutting a class, you attend. Naturally this breaks up the entire period from one o'clock to five. After being assigned a million little jobs by your adoring committee chairman, you are obliged to go for coffee. It's the friendly thing to do. When coffee is over you and the rest of the group are so friendly that you take in a show. Why do anything constructive if you're going to have to stop again in two hours for dinner? Besides it's togetherness that counts, friends.

Night comes with it, a change. It is almost time to crawl between the sheets again, and you have accomplished nothing. Your solution to the problem depends upon your class. Freshman, you panic . . . and you study, do you not? Madly. You find a quiet cranny and seal yourself off from humanity. You came to college to learn and no one is going to stop you. You Sophomores also unearth the books. Seated judiciously in the library, you fasten the right eye to a page . . . any page . . . you haven't read any of it anyway. The trouble is that the left eye wanders around the room. It meets another stray eye. That lens says worldlessly, "Have you heard about . . .?" And you are finished, brother, finished. Junior, you too discover an inner urge to absorb culture. Misery loves company, so you seek the company of some classmates. You study together. Suddenly, someone reads an intriguing line from a thick text, and you spend the rest of the evening arguing about whether a camel can really pass through the eye of a needle. What gladsome activities occupy the senior's evenings? You attend a pep rally or go to a tea, or you have a thesis and you simply MUST get started. So you play a few hands of bridge—to give yourself incentive, of course. But your inspiration is not complete. You write a letter to your parents which you hope sounds mature. You then ink out another square on the large chart beside your bed labeled, "Days Until Graduation." Finally, you go to bed and dream of days to come—days in which you will be making money.

Yes, night is a time for reflection . . . deep concentration under a study lamp, beside a full ashtray, or over a beer at corner Greeks. (In the latter case your mind is not on books, you know). It is a time for evaluation of the day's activities. As you ponder, your thoughts run thusly, "WHY don't the girls on Barrett 2nd ever answer the phone? I'll never get a date for the dance Saturday night," or, "How can I show my face on the campus tomorrow? . . . I have nothing to wear," or "What a lovely serenade—lucky girl who is pinned!"

So runs the day, and you are again in bed. You are terribly behind, and will never finish your work, but you sleep peacefully because you know that . . . Tomorrow is another day.
