The Board of Visitors, governing body of the college, experienced an unusually busy year in 1953-54. Listed among the accomplishments were the establishment of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law and the innovation of a concentration in education.

The Board is made up of ten members plus an ex officio member, the Superintendent of Public Instruction. They are appointed by the Governor of Virginia and confirmed by the General Assembly. At least six members must be alumni of the college and each member holds office for a term of four years with five new members being appointed every two years.

The group elects a chairman or rector who presides over the three regular meetings for the year and any additional meetings deemed necessary. In 1953-54, James M. Robertson served as rector and Harold W. Ramsey served as vice-rector.

The Board met with the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council to discuss a crucial topic of the year, the Eastern States Hospital situation.

ALVIN DUKE CHANDLER

The scholastic year of 1953-54 found William and Mary's twenty-second president asserting the hand of an experienced administrator. Confronted with the many problems of a college community, President Chandler met successfully every situation that threatened the continued progress of the college and in doing so inspired the confidence of the students, alumni, and all connected with our beloved school.

THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT

CARY SCATES
President of the Student Body

The 1953-54 record of extra-curricular activities showed signs of increasing interest and a desire for responsibility and recognition on the part of the students. Speaking through their government and publications, the students attempted to present their problems and solutions to the administration.

Within the student body there was a wider awareness of the necessity for responsible self-government. President Cary Scates kept their problems and aims before the college community with fiery speeches and published reports.

Certainly there were plenty of problems for the students, through their Student Assembly, to consider. The drinking regulations had not been cleared up; the social program was not amply diversified or coordinated; alumni relations needed improvement, and the constitution needed to be simplified and clarified. Student Government had to be an effective spokesman for the students.

And behind the conferences between Cary and President Chandler, the reports, the recommendations, the charges and counter-charges, the requests and refusals, the Assembly committees continued to carry through projects for the College's amusement and benefit. The four outstanding social events of the college year were all sponsored by the Student Government—Homecoming, Mid-Winters, the May Dances and the Colonial Festival. Assembly committees continued to work for the betterment of the buildings and grounds, the laundry and the cafeteria.

The Student Senate, presided over by Mel Hines, Vice-President of the student body, acted as an executive council to the Assembly, concentrating particularly on studying and recommending changes in the Student Government constitution.

The final group to discuss these mutual problems of the College, make recommendations, and act on the recommendations of the Assembly was the General Co-operative Committee. This committee, at the top of the Student Government system, was composed of representatives from the students, administration, and faculty. The chairman of the General Co-operative Committee was President Alvin D. Chandler.

JIM GRANT
Chairman of the Men's Honor Council

The Men's Honor Council, elected each Spring by the male student body, tries infractions of the Honor Code. This Honor Code based on the Honor System, which the College claims as a priority, includes four infractions: lying, stealing, cheating, and failure to report an infraction.

But the council did not just function as a court; it engaged in activities such as sitting at the polls during various student elections, counting ballots and announcing results. In the Fall, they conducted discussions for entering students. They also continued the codification of the rules of procedure which had been started the year before.

Members for 1953-54 were James Grant, chairman; Thomas Kenyon, vice-chairman; Warren Weiss, senior representative; John Marsh, secretary; Otto Lowe and Michael Jordan, junior representatives, and Ming Chang, sophomore representative.

The Women's Honor Council, which is one of the branches of the Women's Student Cooperative Government Association, has the responsibility of investigating and trying any cases violating the Honor Code, and imposing penalties.

The Men's and Women's Honor Councils held meetings during orientation week to explain the principles and function of the Honor Code to the freshmen. Before semester examinations, the members gave informal talks in the women's dormitories, reminding the students of the importance of keeping their pledges to the Honor System. Throughout the year, the Women's Honor Council also helped in conducting elections on the campus.

Members for 1953-54 were Libby Lewis, chairman; Shirley Haabestad, vice-chairman; Mary Lou Riggan, secretary; Sarah Dean Spangler, senior representative; Marguerite McLaughlin and Barbara Brown Junior representatives, and Virginia Naab, sophomore representative.

WOMEN STUDENTS' COOPERATIVE GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

"WSCGA meeting again tonight?" Yes, WSCGA was clearly one of the best known organizations on campus.

Divided into the Honor Council, the Executive Council, and the Judicial Committee, the Women Students' Co-operative Government Association continued to work toward their aims of promoting self-government, responsibility, and the best interest of the women students.

The Judicial Committee formulated and maintained the social rules of the women students at William and Mary. This committee consisted of a chairman, secretary, representatives of each class, a representative-at-large, and all the house presidents. Also part of this group were the house committees from each dormitory.

In 1953-54 this committee, under the capable leadership of Chairman Janice Ferrell, worked out the administration of the revised social rules, using a merit system. Meetings were held to discuss the new rules with the women students, house mothers, and fraternity representatives.

The Judicial Committee held two suppers for their faculty advisors and the deans, to discuss informally any business pertaining to the social rules. They also gave a tea for the house mothers and members of the administration of the College.

Those never-to-be-forgotten business meetings, which all women were required to attend, were held on the first Monday of each month. Social rules, projects and campus announcements were presented at such times.

Handling all the official business of the Association, the Executive Council conducted these monthly meetings. This branch of WSCGA was composed of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, senior and freshmen representatives and a representative-at-large. In 1953-54, President Anne LeHew conducted several successful projects. Informal meetings were held for new students during orientation week; the student directory sale was conducted, and a one hundred dollar scholarship was awarded to a sophomore woman. A reception was given following the first concert presented in the College Concert Series. Since WSCGA is part of the campus-wide Student Government, an effort was made for closer support of all Student Government plans.

Advising WSCGA during the past year were Dr. Harold L. Fowler, Dr. William H. McBurney, and Dr. Travis L. Summersgill.

The wit of the inhabitants of the WSCGA suite in Barrett and the committee meetings conducted by "Pew" in the Williamsburg Restaurant combined to make Women Students' Government increasingly popular!

PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE

If the Student Body were to have wise leadership, it was important that they have good editors of their publications. They must be well qualified before being allowed to voice the sentiments of the group.

The problem of selection lay in the hands of a standing committee of the Student Government, the Publications Committee. Every year this important group must select from the nominations made by the staffs of the student publications, their future editors and business managers. The committee carrying this responsibility in 1953-54 was composed of COLONIAL ECHO Editor, John Westberg; "Flat Hat" Editor, Arnold Lubasch; "Royalist" Editor, Carol Butters; Student Government President Cary Scates; Mr. Charles H. Anderson; Mr. Alexander Kallos, and Chairman Barbara Crosset, who was elected to that position by the Student Assembly.

The Publications Committee reviewed the qualifications and grades of the candidates for "Flat Hat" positions in December, as these positions are effective from February to February. The committee then was introduced to each candidate and afterwards selected the staff. This procedure was repeated for the COLONIAL ECHO and "Royalist" in the Spring. Editors and business managers of the publications had to have a quality point average of not less than 1.4 to be considered by the Publications Committee.

Such problems were considered by this committee as the salaries paid by the College to the chief editors and business managers, and the lowering of the scholastic requirements.

In the past year, the Publications Committee maintained the traditional policy of guiding the activities of the three student publications. However, the principle of individual freedom in editorial policy was observed, leaving this strictly to the individual publications and the feelings and opinions of the editors.

"The freedom of the press is a flaming sword, and this year's "Flat Hat" staff kept the William and Mary sword burning more brightly than ever. Here the signs of increasing student desire for responsibility and self-government were made visible. Here too, other students were chided when they failed to show signs of that desired responsibility. Apathy, interest, freedom, and coercion were words used freely by the editors, students, and faculty who voiced their opinions. And this was good, for perhaps the keynote word of the whole year was "awareness."

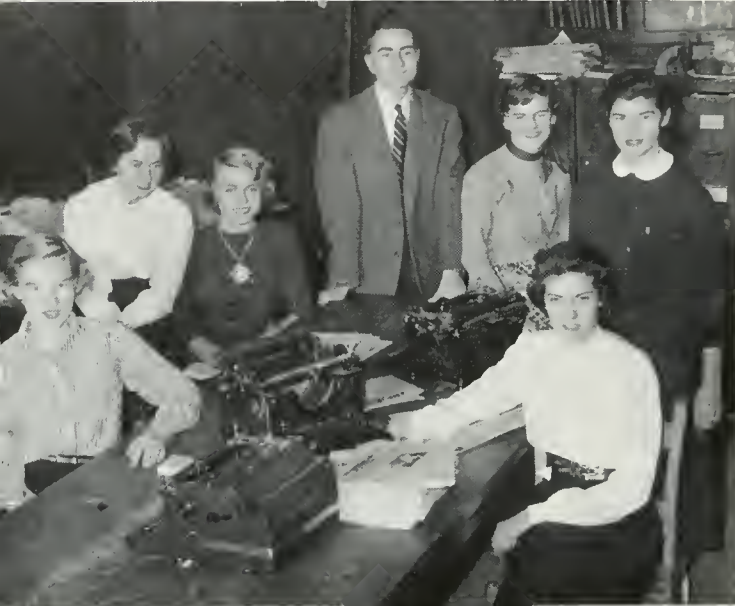

Consistent excellence throughout the year on the part of Editor-in-Chief Arnie Lubasch, Managing Editor Madge Cushing and Associate Editor Jim Todhunter brought the paper first-place honors at the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association meeting in December. At the same time, star-reporter Will Molineux was elected vice-president of the Association.

Jeanie Andrews, News Editor, and her staff kept a listening ear open and faithfully reported campus events. Sports Editor Nate Carb, with his ability and experience, turned out superior sports pages each week, and Jo Hyde's timely features gave "Flat Hat" readers the inside scope on "who's who" at William and Mary.

Headlines, in the capable hands of Alice Knight, rolled in at a fast pace on Sundays. Competent Peggy Ives calmly pulled loose ends together and always managed to stretch the budget that last little bit.

Sally Hurst made it "pay to advertise," while Circulation Manager Al Roby saw to it that the paper was addressed, sorted and sent to its readers each week.

The staff as a whole tried to make this year a step forward in the paper's history. Arnie's stinging editorials often made his readers stop short and think objectively about pertinent campus issues.

The Student Voice was kept well-modulated so that it became truly representative of the Student Body. Protests were logically presented instead of bandied about aimlessly.

The Editorial Mirror, newest addition to page two and Madge's personal property, made students realize that our problems, doubts and decisions were subjects of debate at other schools, too.

The Faculty Voice column was also a new feature this year and gave readers more reason to believe that "teachers are people."

The lighter side of the paper was an integral part of the job too, as the year is viewed in retrospect. The pampered darling of the male editors, Coed of the Week; Madge, with that desperate look, saying, "Eleven inches of 'Words' this week?" and Arnie's pseudo-sarcastic comment, "Cush, ain't you happy here?"; Jim's 100 yard dash to the bus station on Sunday with the pictures and his ever-increasing coffee breaks; Nate's impromptu lectures on punctuation to the staff at large; Alice vainly trying to write headlines without the copy; Jeanie screaming, "If there isn't any news, there just isn't any, and that's final"; the long grind at the Gazette with ice cream and coffee to shorten the wait until the paper bursts forth with its firey message; the telephone ringing crazily and the operators sympathetically supplying the correct spelling of a name or a place; the "Flat Hat" date bureau; and the Sunday night bridge games all added up to an unforgettable year.

There were laughter and tears and a crisis every week, but the end result was a newspaper the College was proud to call its own.

Another area of interest for a portion of the student body was in creative writing. The student publication which provided an opportunity for these would-be authors to see their work in print, and to receive critical comments from other students was the "Royalist." Here students with a knack or interest in writing and the English language found a publication which did not call for a journalistic style. Unfortunately, the student body as a whole did not show the enthusiasm in this field that it did in most of the student activities. Since William and Mary is a liberal arts school, it was hoped that this apparent apathy was due to shyness, and not a general lack of student literary ability and interest.

The keynote for the Royalist in 1953-54 was more informality, a characteristic which appeared in all phases of the publication. Glossy pages and different covers for each edition made the "Royalist" progressive in form as well as content.

Fervent pleas, prayers and threats brought forth contributions from shy campus writers. A comment by Editor Carol Butters that one need not be a literary genius expounding upon those things no one understands, increased in number contributions in the light vein, poetry as well as prose.

A section of articles on such topics as drama and music was continued in the two issues of the past year. Various members prominent in these fields at William and Mary answered the call with articles worthy of note. Faculty contributions to the "Royalist" were another innovation. Humorous anecdotes were collected from various faculty members. These were well received and thoroughly enjoyed by both those who had known all the time and also those who were just discovering that professors, after all, are only human.

The art staff working under the inspired direction of Rev Michael created illustrations for all items in the magazine. Photographic work was also continued in connection with the art staff. These served to enhance the appearance of the magazine and to carry out the theme of informality.

In 1953-54, it was decided to publish two issues, of about 50 pages each, of the "Royalist" in order that the magazine might maintain the standards which it had set for the publication. The fine standard achieved in the past was evidenced by a second place award from the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association in November, 1953.

The staff was headed by Carol Butters as editor, Bobbie Wadley as associate editor, Kay Binns as exchange editor, and Rev Michael as art editor. The "Royalist" staff contained an editorial board, a critical staff, an art staff, and a small circulation staff. The editorial board consisted of Joe Bell, Shiela Day, Jane Taylor, Arnie Lubasch and Cynthia Frye. This group assisted the editors in policy formation, and helped in setting the deadlines and handling the budget. They also had to make the final decisions concerning which entries were to be printed, which to be returned, and which rewritten. The editorial board was considered a training position for possible future editors of the "Royalist." The critical staff was composed of about 15 students who were chosen by the editors from criticisms written by the applicants. These criticisms were of a poem and a short story from a past "Royalist," and criticism of the magazine as a whole. The art staff consisted of about five members who handled all of the illustrations, photography, and cover designs for the "Royalist." Dr. W. Melville Jones of the English department was the consultant for the staff.

The editorial and critical staffs met with the editors to consider entries for the "Royalist." All entries were numbered and circulated among the staff members without the name of the contributor. The members decided whether they thought the entry should be used, and also put their criticism on an attached paper which was given to the contributor if the manuscript was returned. This process sometimes involved some violent arguments, some good laughs, and once in a while an awkward moment, when it turned out that the manuscript being opposed had been entered by another member of the staff!

The "Royalist" was highly successful in the innovations which it made, and in the fine caliber of work which it presented.

Your editors schemed for something new and different in the way of yearbooks but found the same old raw materials at every turn. We settled for the modernistic introduction and the venturesome theme that begins with the cover. The sole aim was to create a stimulant for those worthy memories that promise to grow d'im in the years to come.

Our policy was to use student talent whenever possible with the hope that we would come as close to a totally student-published annual as is possible. Bill White provided the photographs that tell the story but not without the help of non-related, Jack White, and Alice Knight added the copy that is significant of her capabilities. Gordie Vliet contributed the art work while Claire Schoener was the industrious one who compiled the facts and figures for the class sections. Mardie Pontius' efficiency and artful stagings for the orginzation section must go down as being unequalled and see if you don't think Bill Humbert's and Evie Love's sports and fraternity sections, respectively, are not the best yet. With all of her other activities, Carolyn Ash

BEAUTIES AND FAVORITES

Look

CONLEY MAGAZINES INC.

February 19, 1954

Dear Mr. Westberg:

Of the six finalists in the Colonial Echo's annual beauty contest, we have chosen Miss Lolly Eger as the girl who most nearly typifies our conception of a college girl with the American look. She has a directness of gaze, a naturalness and a fresh sunlit quality that, we believe, are attributes of enduring beauty.

We enjoyed acting as judges of the 1954 beauty contest.

Sincerely,

Mr. John A. Westberg

Back in the Spring of 1953, President Dwight D. Eisenhower visited William and Mary to be present at the inauguration of the college's 22nd president. Besides paying tribute to Alvin Duke Chandler, Eisenhower made a short speech and accepted an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Above, both Chandler and Eisenhower waited while James M. Robertson, Rector of the Board of Visitors, addressed the gathering.

B I G N A M E S V I S I T E D

Each year, the far reaching historical and academic appeal of William and Mary draws thousands of visitors to its campus. They come from all walks of life and from the far corners of the earth to see the second oldest college in the United States. They come to view the alma mater of Thomas Jefferson and walk through the oldest academic building still in use in this country. They come to make speeches, receive honorary degrees and hold conventions. They came to see the school where Phi Beta Kappa scholarship fraternity was founded and where the honor system got its start in American colleges. They come for the rich heritage that is William and Mary.

1953-54 was an especially proud year with respect to distinguished visitors for among those who came to call were the president of the United States and royalty from two foreign nations. President Eisenhower came in the Spring of 1953 for Alvin Duke Chandler's inauguration as the colleges twenty-second president. Crown Prince Akihito Tsugunomiya of Japan and King Paul and Queen Fredrika of Greece visited the campus in the Fall of 1954.

Crown Prince Akihito Tsugunomiya of Japan visited the college in September on his tour of the United States. He chatted with co-eds, June Rickard, Margo Rand, and Barbara Brown, and with President Chandler.

Grinning proudly (top), while Doctors McCary and Guy of the faculty added the new honor to his gown, President Eisenhower then sat back and explored his program.

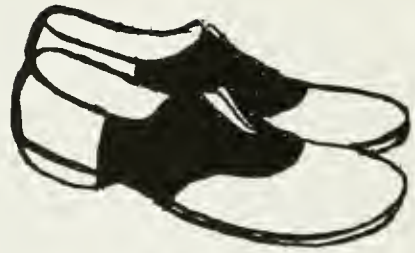

In his brief address, Eisenhower defined an institution of higher learning as, "a place where young minds are exposed to great minds."

The first chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was founded at William and Mary on December 5, 1776, and since that time the Society has come to be recognized as the foremost among existing honor societies. Its student members were tapped from among the outstanding scholars on the William and Mary campus at the Honors Convocation in November and again in the Spring.

On December 5, 1953, Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa marked its 177th anniversary with initiation ceremonies, a dinner, and speeches by eminent guests. Dr. Anne Gary Pannell, president of Sweet Briar College and a member of the Society, spoke on "The Decline of Disbelief," and John Ciardi of Rutgers University read an original poem.

During the College's Christmas vacation, when Phi Beta Kappa Hall, headquarters of the national organization, burned, several eminent Phi Beta Kappa's braved the heat and smoke to rescue the archives and documents housed in the office adjoining the auditorium.

Here was another tie between the President of William and Mary and our student leaders — the President's aides.

These outstanding students on the William and Mary campus were appointed by President and Mrs. Chandler to act as their personal aides throughout the college year. At convocations, they could be found marching behind the President, wearing the College colors and the presidential seal. The president of the student body, Cary Scates, was Chief Aide, carrying the College Mace in convocations.

Ten of the twelve Aides were selected by virtue of the office they held in the student body. Included in the group were Student Government President, Senior and Junior Class Presidents, Chairmen of the Men's and Women's Honor Councils, President of the Executive Council of WSCGA, Chairman of the Judicial Council, Presidents of Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board, "Flat Hat" Editor, and two members at large, one boy and one girl.

In 1953-54, the Aides were called upon to help entertain the King and Queen of Greece when they visited the College. At the special convocation given in honor of the "Iron Indians" of the William and Mary football team, the President's Aides acted as ushers. The duties of the twelve Aides centered around assisting the President and Mrs. Chandler entertain friends and guests of the College.

ODK —a coveted title of honor among college men everywhere.

Formally stated, the purposes of this National Leadership Honor Society for Men are to acknowledge high achievement and efficiency in collegiate activities; to bring together representative men from all phases of college life for cooperation in worthwhile endeavor; and to unite members of the faculty and the student body on the basis of mutual interests and understanding.

ODK chose for a special project of the year the establishment of a leadership school to develop more and better undergraduate leaders. Through this, the experience of recognized leaders could be used to benefit the entire college community. Also, ODK contributed $25.00 each semester to the library for the purchase of American History books. On the lighter side, they planned to play the Faculty in basketball which would consist of more fun than skill!

Mortar Board—the women's equivalent of ODK.

Here again was an active group chosen from the leaders among the women students. The members of Mortar Board, the national senior honor society for women, were tapped at the spring convocation of their junior year on the basis of leadership, scholarship and service.

The past year saw the organization engage in many activities to promote the ideals for which it stands. The orientation booklet, "Here's How at William and Mary," was revised and enlarged; a "Smarty Party" was held for girls with outstanding scholarship; and the dusty recesses of Barrett attic were braved by courageous members for the annual furniture sale. Magazines for the large dormitories, a reception for Hans Hotter after his concert, a luncheon with the members of ODK, and a sectional conference at George Washington University rounded out the year's program.

In 1953-54, the choral groups of William and Mary continued to be a tribute to the ability and talent of members of the college community. Dr. Carl A. Fehr, the director of the choir and chorus, came to William and Mary in 1946, and in seven years had produced singing groups capable of presenting inspiring and difficult selections.

The William and Mary Choir opened its concert season in October with a performance at the Mosque Theater in Richmond. In December, the sixty members gave their annual Christmas concert, which included Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," the singing of traditional Christmas carols and the one-act opera by Gian-Carlo Menotti, "Amahl and the Night Visitors." The featured singers in the opera were Lavinia Pretz, Barbara Pharo and Freddy Miller. Throughout the year, Barbara Green was accompanist, and Carol Butters was student director.

The choir was by no means resting in between their concerts. Three practices per week, singing for chapel services on Wednesday evenings and performing at convocations kept the group busy. The annual spring concert and a spring trip were projects anticipated with much enthusiasm. Plans were made for making a third album of records.

Under the direction of Dr. Fehr, better known as "Pappy," the William and Mary Chorus, composed of one hundred fifty women students, sang in many of the weekly chapel services and presented two concerts. The first concert was the Christmas carol service in Phi Beta Kappa Auditorium on December 16. At this concert, the chorus and choir together gave a magnificent rendition of the "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah" by Handel. The second concert was held on the fourth of May.

Besides furnishing music for entertainment at various functions of the College during the year, the chorus placed emphasis on working together and finding enjoyment in singing. For this reason, membership in the chorus was considered a privilege and also one of the most enjoyable extra-curricular activities at William and Mary.

The College was justly proud of Dr. Fehr and his two choral groups—the William and Mary Choir and Chorus.

Each Spring around Williamsburg, there is a series of nights echoing with laughter and applause. Where does it all come from? The Varsity Show, sponsored by the Backdrop Club of the College of William and Mary, of course. The Spring of 1954 was no exception.

The Backdrop Club began these productions in 1938, and since has become one of the most outstanding organizations on the campus. The club has a membership open to all students interested in and attracted by the stage, its lights or its sets, its dance and music, or its business and publicity. These students conduct meetings all year, hold open houses for new students, and have their fantastic annual picnic every Spring. But the big project is their one production each year—the Varsity Show. Completely student written, directed, acted and managed, the show seems always to produce the best of student imagination and responsibility.

Even the burning of its home, Phi Beta Kappa Hall, didn't stop the 1954 Varsity Show from "getting on the road." The campus was waiting eagerly, for the show seems to gain popularity like a rolling snowball and the campus is very proud of the work the club does.

"Here's How," produced this year as the seventeenth Varsity Show at the College of William and Mary, proved a little deviation from the usual variety type show that has been presented in the past. Written by co-authors George Burns and Dick Fensterer, "Here's How" was based on the "roarin' 20's" with a plausible plot worked in, making the 1954 Varsity Show more like a musical comedy than ever before. Jazz-babies, bootleggers, and gangsters filled the stage for the setting, and even the inevitable flapper was found, with her short skirts, long pearls and, of course, the Charleston.

The plot centered around a gang of bootleggers led by the "Big Boss" who posed as a society leader named Clyde Van Van. Such characters as Al Cohol, the Lovable Lush, Mrs. T, Totaller and even Clyde Van Van's near-sighted wife, Ultra Van Van, helped to make the show "one of the best ever."

The guiding personalities behind "Here's How" were outstandingly creative and capable students. Besides collaborating with Dick Fensterer on writing the show, George Burns acted as the director. Giles Quarles was musical director, providing great musical talent. Mickey Mighell wrote the wonderfully original choreography seen throughout the performance. Also extremely important in such a production was the excellent technical work directed by Bill Abelow. The work of Business Manager Margaret Owens was essential. And of course, guiding this whole student enterprise was the Backdrop Club president, Ginger Hungerford.

A round of applause reechoes for the 1954 directors, actors, musicians and all the members of the Backdrop Club that showed us all how with "Here's How."

The William and Mary Players

With the burning of Phi Beta Kappa Auditorium on the night of December 29, 1953, went the scene of many seasons of fine theatrical productions. But the loss of the College's auditorium did not halt the presentations by the William and Mary Theatre.

Before the fire, two plays had been presented in the Fall of 1953 under the direction of Miss Althea Hunt. On October 21 and 22, George Bernard Shaw's "You Never Can Tell," a comedy in four acts, kept the student body well amused, thanks to the consistent good acting of such faithfuls to the theatre group as Len Schneider, Jeannie Shepard, George Burns, "Lulu" McDow, Rev Michael Nancy Williams, Dick Fensterer, Jerry Clulow and Bill Thomas. The class in stage craft, under Al Haak, constructed the Victorian sets.

The Theatre's second production on December 9 and 10 brought even more applause from the college community.

This time the audience was offered a twin bill—Strindberg's "The Stronger Woman," and William Soroyan's "The Beautiful People." The cast for Strindberg's somber one-act play consisted of Suzanne Joerndt, Marya Bednerik, and Florence Staples. Soroyan's irrespressibly joyful fantasy featured the fine performances of Martin Reymert, Clarissa Mayfield, Marjorie Mighell, Leonard Schneider, Michael Hanft, Gray Bromleigh, David Daugherty, George Burns and William Abelow. Mr. Sherman's scene design class designed the set, "a skeletonized version of a late Victorian gone-shabby house."

The originally scheduled play, "The Circle," was cancelled after the fire, and replaced by "Highland Reel," a comic opera written by John O'Keeffe. The play was directed by Mr. Howard Scammon, and, following the two performances for the students on March 10 and 11, was presented as a regular 18th century Restoration play, running through the Spring and Fall of 1954. The cast included Jeremy Clulow, William Thomas, Michael Hanft, George Burns, Ronald Jabaut, Gray Bromleigh, William Abelow, Richard Fensterer, Martin Reymert, Marjorie Mighell and Jean Shepard.

The Theatre, under the direction of Miss Hunt, presented "Hamlet" on March 31, and April 1 and 2, in Blow Gymnasium. The Shakespearian production featured George Burns as Hamlet, Howard Scammon as the King, and Diane Eckel as Ophelia. Also contributing to a fine cast were Richard Fensterer, William Thomas, Gray Bromleigh, Mary Elizabeth McDow, William Abelow, Ronald Jabaut, Billie Pyott, Dean Roberts, Lewis Saunders, Martin Reymert, Robert Stern, Jeremy Clulow, Robert Mackey, Thornton Croxton, Michael Hanft, Ronald Nemeth, Edward Watkins, David Daugherty, and Virginia Hungerford.

In 1953-54, despite the loss of stage, sets and costumes in the Phi Beta Kappa fire, the legendary spirit of the theatre shone forth in excellent dramatic work at William and Mary. The actors, directors, and technical staffs, students and faculty alike, combined to utilize all of their talent, imagination and energy for the entertainment and renown of the College.

The function of this organization throughout the year was to produce men capable of holding positions as commissioned officers in the Field Artillery.

The course of study followed by the Military Science and Tactics Department consists of two phases; each one is two years in length. The basic course presented to freshmen and sophomores develops from an introduction to the basic elements of Field Artillery. The advanced course for juniors and seniors presents a more thorough and technical study of the fundamentals of Field Artillery. Juniors and seniors who have been selected for their scholastic ability are enrolled in the advanced program.

Classes during the year were held twice weekly, with a two hour drill period on Wednesday afternoon supervised by the cadet officers under Milburn Hines, Battalion Commander. Regulation uniforms were worn both for classes and drills. Each Wednesday the cadets acquired the rudiments of drill and the cadet officers gained experience in directing men.

Under the direction of Colonel Guy L. Pace and his staff officer, the Corps was organized into an Artillery Battalion which consisted of a Headquarters Battery of drum and bugle corps and drill corps and three other Batteries, "A," "B," and "C."

An annual six week period of summer camp at Fort Sill, Oklahoma was attended by members in the advanced program of the Corps as a prerequisite for a reserve commission upon graduation. This camp, which is generally attended between the third and fourth year in the military program, served as a highly concentrated review of techniques to be mastered in the final year of training at William and Mary. It also served as a source of many humorous stories and experiences which circulated around the campus in the early Fall!

Seven students enrolled in the Reserve Officers Training Corps were honored for their high scholastic achievements at the fall Honors Convocation, each receiving a citation for their scholastic achievement. Students thus honored were Milburn L. Hines, Arthur C. Thompson, Jr., Stanley D. Ward, J. Leroy Thompson, Paul K. Hickey, and William A. Wray.

This year certain of these Distinguished Military Students were designated Distinguished Military Graduates, and from these the Department of the Army was to select those to receive the honor of a regular commission.

Plans for the college session of 1954-55 indicated that this artillery course would be converted into a general military science program, the graduates receiving either Certificates of Completion or commissions in one of the branches of the Army. The determination of which would be based on the Army's need for officers, but primarily on the desire of the student. It was hoped in planning this change that the student would benefit from a more liberal program and that this particular program would be more adaptable to the students' desires.

SCABBARD AND BLADE

The local chapter of Scabbard and Blade, a national honorary military society, was active during the year in arousing student interest in military affairs. This chapter, Company K of the Eighth Regiment, was organized at the College of William and Mary in 1949, replacing the Centurion Club, which was established by earlier members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. It represented on this campus, as did one hundred other local chapters on campuses throughout the nation, a sincere attempt to coordinate student activities with the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

Members were drawn this year, as they are every year, from the outstanding junior and senior students in the Reserve Officers' Training Program, and before its elections, the organization boasted twelve members.

Phil Brown, Captain for 1953-54, stated that Scabbard and Blade tries to increase interest among the students in military affairs on the national level. It also sought a greater understanding between civilian and military groups for cooperation toward military preparedness in time of national emergencies.

Although the group was essentially known as an honorary organization, social events and activities claimed some of the society's time. The group planned to sponsor the annual Military Ball, which in recent years has been sponsored by the ROTC Department. Traditionally, it has been attended by the members of the Corps in full dress uniform with their dates dressed in formal evening dresses. Certain girls were chosen by the Corps as sponsors and were, with their escorts, the honored guests at the gala social event. A private banquet, immediately preceding the Ball, was held by members of the society.

Honors came to Scabbard and Blade when they won first prize in the first division of the float competition in the Homecoming Day Parade. George Washington was symbolically chopping down a cherry tree on the gridiron and the caption on the sides proudly announced, "To George Washington the Cherry Tree did yield, but not the Iron Indians on Cary Field."

Elections were held in the middle of the year. Officers of Scabbard and Blade for 1953-54 were Phil Brown, Captain; Milburn Hines, First Lieutenant; Joe Weller, Second Lieutenant; and Bud Jay, First Sergeant.

First Row: Westberg, Ward, Metz, DeWalt, Shrader. Second Row: Wray, M. Hines, P. Brown, Weller, Jay, Patrick.

The spirited music and precision marching of the William and Mary Band appeared at pep rallies, football games and the Homecoming Parade in the Fall.

Under the baton of Mr. Varner, who came to William and Mary from Michigan State, the forty members of the band practiced diligently every afternoon in the Fall. Mr. Varner instigated double time marching and many new trick formations and song arrangements which highlighted the half-time performances of the band.

The band, along with the drum majorettes, led by Barbara Crosset, also had the opportunity to perform at the away games played at Annapolis, Maryland; Richmond, Virginia; and Raleigh, North Carolina.

This year the custom was established by the band of marching off the football field in formation with their hats on backward after every victorious game.

After football season, the band had as its project the formation of a concert band, with hopes of traveling to Richmond for a performance.

The college applauded as Mr. Varner led a handfull of untrained students to becoming a larger and better band than had been seen at William and Mary for many years.

CHI DELTA PHI

The Theta Chapter of Chi Delta Phi, national honorary literary society for women, had an active membership of over twenty women during the past year. Tryouts for membership and initiations were held in the Spring and Fall.

A highlight of the activities for the year was a reception for John Ciardi, well-known poet, who spoke at the Phi Beta Kappa initiation in December.

The members also published literary manuscripts in the fraternity's national magazine, The Litterateur.

ETA SIGMA PHI

The members of Eta Sigma Phi, a national classical honorary fraternity, met once a month at which time speakers presented lectures of general interest to the group.

The fraternity sponsored an open house for all ancient language students, and plans for the Spring included the presentation of excerpts from a Latin drama. Eta Sigma Phi attempted to foster the study of Greek and Latin and further the study of classical literature and the appreciation of classical culture.

The year saw the organization of a new club on campus in the formation of an active group for the discussion and study of political science. Speakers, often state and national political leaders, presented their experiences and theories on the subject at the meetings of the club.

President Earl Palmer stated the major aim of the Political Science Club as being an effort to create an atmosphere for intellectual discussion and to help bring faculty and students closer together.

The first Tuesday of every month found members of the Literature Club engaged in discussions dealing with the entire field of writing, including the adventures of "Pogo."

Members of this club were people interested in the great writings of the past and present. The guest speaker at each meeting was a member of the college faculty. The club also rented films, such as "Henry V," to be shown in the early afternoon free of charge at the Williamsburg Theater.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

WILLIAM BRINK
President

The Interfraternity Council is composed of the president and a second representative from each of the eleven fraternities on campus. Officers of the Council are elected from these second representatives for a term of one year.

The purposes of the Council are to encourage interest in scholarship, athletics, and intellectual attainment; to promote cordial relationships among the member fraternities by providing a common medium through which to act; and to provide an organized means for integrating fraternity life with the general program of student life on the campus. The Council establishes rules governing both general fraternity activities and rushing, including pledging and initiation. The rushing rules cover the dates of rushing, formal rushing regulations, eligibility, and initiation.

In order to aid all entering students in understanding and observing rushing rules, a general meeting was held during orientation week of the fall semester to explain the fraternity system.

This year, the Council sponsored a blood drive for the fraternities. For 1953-54 the president of the Interfraternity Council was Bill Brink.

PAN - HELLENIC COUNCIL

The Pan-Hellenic Council consists of two delegates from each of the nine sororities on campus and, as a representative body, is a forum for the discussion of questions of interest to the college and fraternity community. It cooperates with the National Pan-Hellenic Congress in maintaining high ideals of scholarship and promoting inter-sorority relations with the college.

The Council governs and regulates rushing, pledging, and initiation for the sorority women on campus. This year it continued the improvement instigated last year on the quota-limit system of restricting the system to freshmen only.

The Pan-Hellenic Council awards a scholarship each year to a freshman woman to be used during her sophomore year. To raise money for this scholarship, the Council sponsored a blazer sale and sold Christmas cards. It also sponsored during the second semester a talent show in which the pledges of the fraternities and sororities presented skits. This year, the Council was in charge of the booth for food for the Colonial festival.

The officers for 1953-54 were Carolyn Ash, president; Ann Davis, vice president; Elizabeth King, secretary; and Grace Stone, treasurer.

Although affected by the lack of depth in reserve power, athletic fortunes at William and Mary improved considerably over the previous year. Rebuilding with an eye to the future, most sports experienced marginal winning seasons. Hopes for this future were strengthened with the arrival of a freshman class filled with outstanding potential.

Under the Director of Athletics, John Freeman, the coaching staff became stabilized for the first time in recent years. While Freeman guided the Tribe's pigskin powers, Bob Lawson coached cross-country. In the absence of a varsity squad Dudley Jensen held together a freshman swimming squad. Boydson Baird began his second season as basketball coach with a team characteristic of other sports; a strong first team but weak in experienced reserves.

Spring sports also benefitted by capable coaching with baseball coming under the leadership of Eric Tipton. Wayne Kernodle undertook the task of shaping a formidable tennis squad while Gil Joyner handled track. Al Stewart enjoyed success with an experienced golf team of seven veterans, all lettermen.

Dudley Jensen, as Intramural Director, coordinated a successful program that was enthusiastically supported by independent, faculty, and fraternity participants. The year's activity saw Theta Delta Chi emerge as a powerful competitor. Climaxing the ascent among traditional fraternity powers, Theta Delta challenged Sigma Nu for the Intramural trophy. Intramurals also enjoyed an increase in participation showing revived student interest in the program.

William and Mary athletic teams were given an added impetus to fight for victory with strong support from the cheerleaders. The squad, led by Mickey MacCoy, was present at all home football and basketball games to enliven student spirit and lead the Pep club members in cheers. To bolster spirit of the Big Green on the road, cheerleaders travelled to the Navy, N. C. State, Richmond, and Wake Forest football games.

Combining with the William and Mary band, the squad organized pre-game pep rallies during football season. Parades, bonfires, and speeches were featured to rouse spirit for the occasion. Supplementing the rallies, the squad sponsored send-offs when the "Iron Indians" took to the road.

Also in combination with the band the cheerleaders furnished pre-game and halftime entertainment, adding color to home football and basketball games.

Members of the squad included MacCoy, Dick Blanchard, Lolly Egger, Bud Jay, Woosie Compe, Winkie Wilde, Joanie McWilliams, Jack Parker, and Betty Bodley. Adding color to the group were Donna Melnick, Peggy Hedrick and Vern Arvin dressing in indian style.

Tryouts for squad were held early in the year and Kay Wirth, Bill Armbruster, Gordo Wilde, Jane Hutton, and Vern Arvin were selected to fill vacated positions.

Primarily for the purpose of increasing interest in inter-collegiate athletics, the Varsity Club was founded at William and Mary in 1914. Supplementing this purpose, the club has developed an athletic creed stressing character, scholarship, leadership, perseverance, and cooperation in athletic contests.

Numerous activities were sponsored by the club throughout the year. Members offered their services as ushers at home basketball games and the Mermettes' show, "Fantasia." Combining with the Pep Club, football movies of the road games were shown by the club. The group also handled the election of the Basketball Queen. Margot Ketcham was crowned during the half-time of the Richmond game after a week of close voting. The annual Varsity Club Dance after the Richmond game concluded the evening's entertainment. The group also enjoyed a successful picnic at Yorktown early in the Spring.

Under the leadership of Dick Pendleton as President, the club also nourished some ideas in the form of long-range projects. Negotiations to secure a club room were carried on with the Administration. The room would be utilized for business meetings and informal gatherings. The possibilities of erecting new score boards in Blow Gymnasium for basketball games were also discussed.

Other officers of the club included Walt Herrmann, Quinby Hines, and Chick Cornell.

How did they do it? The Saturday afternoon sports writers and the Monday morning quarterbacks tried to figure the upsets, the goal line stands, and the marginal victories made secure in the waning seconds of play. They all agreed the 24-man football squad of William and Mary made up for its lack of depth with ability, courage and a strong will to win.

But it didn't stop there; Jackie Freeman was enjoying his second year as head football coach. After spending the 1951 season as backfield coach under Marvin Bass, Freeman took over in 1952 to pilot the Tribe through a rough-and-tumble, up and down season. Learning the problems of rugged opposition in 1952, Freeman realized the necessity of experienced leadership.

And he had assistants, including Eric Tipton as backfield coach for the Indians. The 1953 campaign marked Tipton's 14th year on the William and Mary coaching staff. A former major league star with Cincinnati and Philadelphia, Tipton became head baseball coach in 1952.

While "Tip" inspired the backs, Herb Miller coached the line with able assistance from Joe Mark. Herb, a former star at Washington and Lee University, came to William and Mary as line coach in 1951. "Neepie" held this chore alone until this year when Mark returned to the Reservation after serving in the Army. The newest addition to the coaching staff, he was Co-captain of the Tribe with Vito Ragazzo. In 1950, Mark was elected All-Southern blocking back when the Indians employed the single wing formation.

Behind the scenes, Guilford Joyner kept the "Iron Indians" in fighting trim from week to week. Always on the lookout for injuries, it was through Joyner's ability that the Tribe sick list was held to a minimum. Gil, in his second year at William and Mary, began coaching the cross-country, indoor, and outdoor track teams last year.

For the freshmen, Boyds Baird and Frank Cowling guided the first-year squad. Like their varsity counterparts, the "Papooses" experienced a winning season through the efforts of able coaches. Baird came to the Reservation after three years as head coach at Davidson College. "Sonny" Cowling, a senior at William and Mary this year, saw gridiron action for the Big Green in past seasons.

The Monday morning quarterbacks may not have figured it out yet, but the Old Dominion sports writers gave credit to Freeman for his outstanding job and unanimously elected him Big Six Coach of the Year.

Things looked bad in September. Pre-season forecasters generously predicted two wins, four at the most, for the William and Mary football team. With only 24 men, Coach Jackie Freeman faced a rugged ten-game schedule that would seem to put the Big Green in the under-dog role every week. The ranks had been sadly depleted by the loss of such stars as Ed Mioduszewski, Bruce Sturgess, Tom Keller, Dick Ivanhoe, Sonny Cowling, and John Kreamcheck.

But all the Indians needed was a chance to meet their opponents on somewhat even terms. The National Collegiate Athletic Association had decided to return to the limited substitution rule. This ended the era of specialized, two platoon football. This also meant the chance for William and Mary.

While the sports world discussed the pros and cons of the NCAA decision, Freeman girded his small squad for 60-minute games with tough pre-season conditioning. As the season progressed, one upset followed another, and the Big Green became known as the "Iron Indians" and the "Fighting Two Dozen" to football fandom.

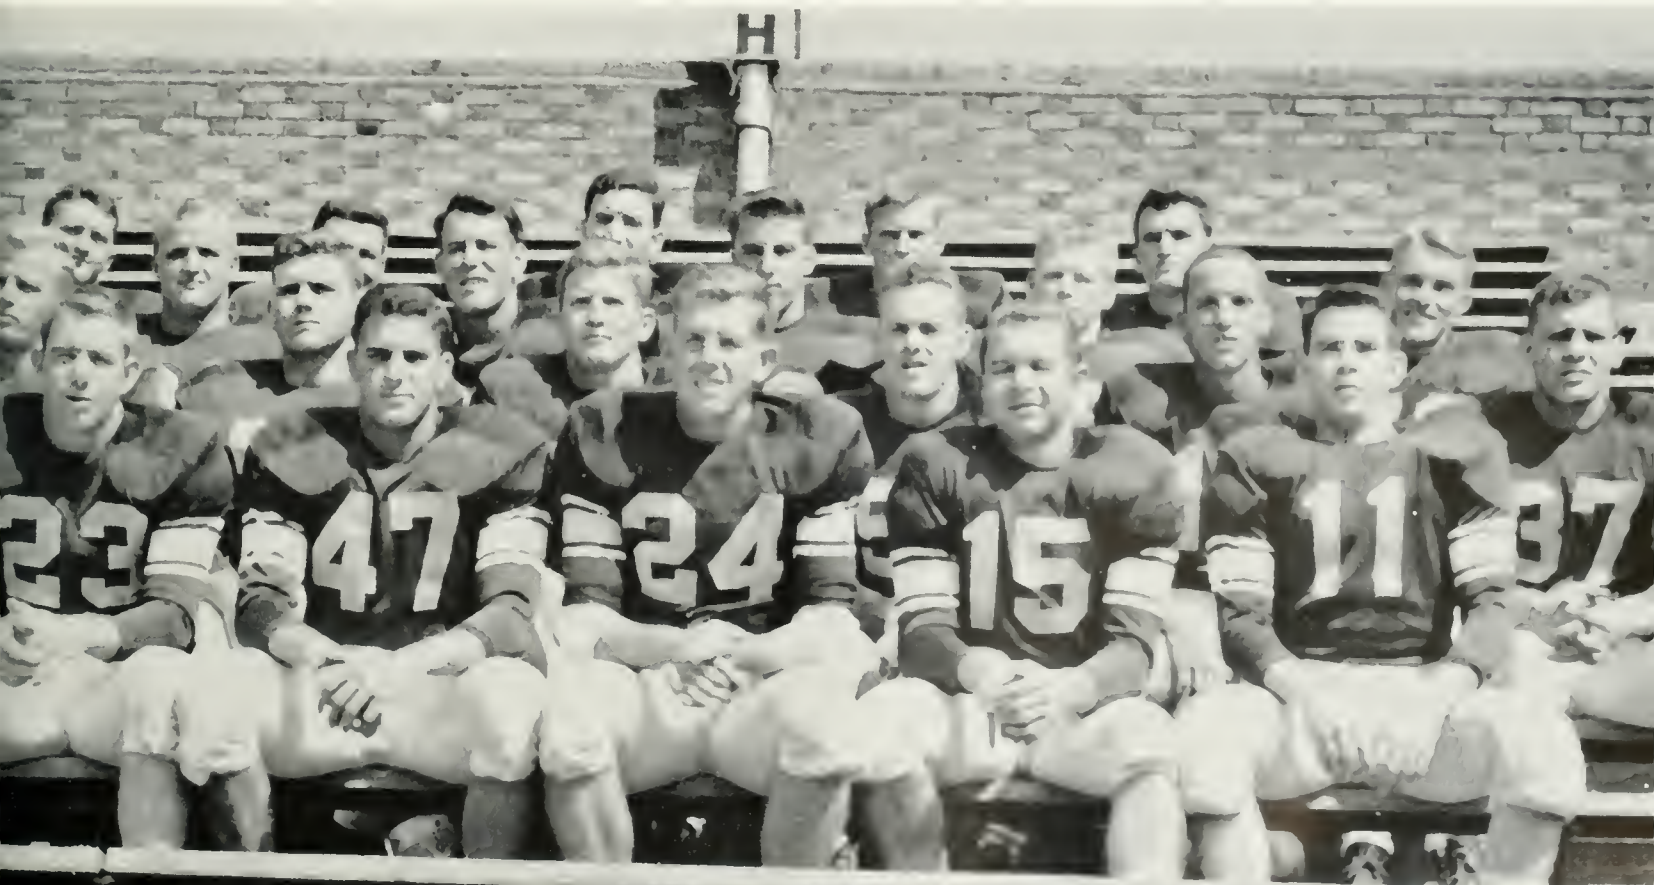

While lauded by the press and other schools, the "Iron Indians" received special recognition in December for their gridiron exploits. In a convocation honoring the achievements of the football team, representatives of the entire William and Mary family, the Administration, the Faculty, the Alumni, the Friends of the College, and the Students, expressed praise and pride in the 1953 "Iron Indians."

THE TRIBE UPSET WAKE FOREST

William and Mary 16; Wake Forest 14

Highlighting the Tobacco Bowl festivities, the Indians opened the season in typical fashion by upsetting a strong Wake Forest team.

Fullback Bill Bowman set the Tribe's offensive pace with spectacular ground gains through the line. Charlie Sumner, on the optional "keep play" constantly swept the ends for substantial yardage. Sumner's 33-yard run in the fourth quarter, combined with "Bullet" Bowman's 71-yard second period jaunt accounted for the Indian touchdowns.

Quinby Hines, in a repeat performance of the 1951 Tobacco Bowl game, was instrumental in defeating the Deacons. Hines booted one extra point but provided the margin of victory with a 20-yard field goal in the final quarter.

The Big Green staged a fine defensive show by repeatedly halting the vaunted Wake Forest offense. Deacon triple-threat Sonny George vainly tried the Indian line, but to no avail.

William and Mary 6; Navy 6

Leaving Richmond, the "Upset Express" rolled into Annapolis and over Navy. Again rated a two touchdown underdog, the "Iron Indians" held the Middies to a tie for the season's second upset.

Navy, with a high pre-season national rating, gave the Big Green defense its toughest test of the year. The first half found the Middies constantly deep in scoring territory only to falter because of the hard charging Indian line. Co-captain Steve Milkovich, John Bednarik and Bill Marfizo were the outstanding defensive stalwarts.

Early in the second half, the deadlock was broken when Navy tallied but missed the extra point attempt. Al Grieco relieved Sumner at quarterback and the "Fighting Two-Dozen" began to roll. Climaxing his fine passing game, Grieco hit Co-captain Tommy Martin with a 23-yard touchdown pass for the all-important score.

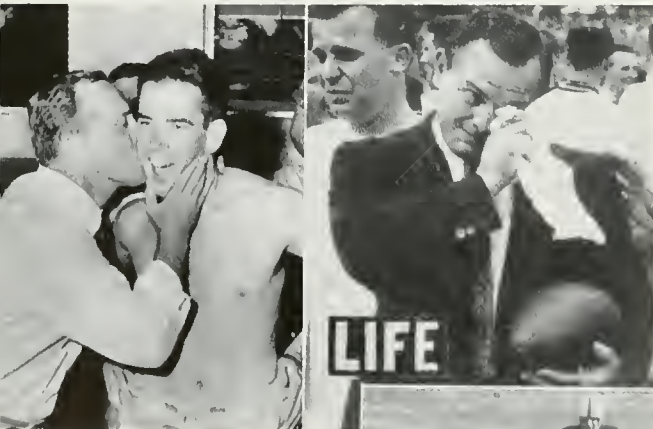

Still playing away from home, the Tribe flew to Cincinnati to face the rugged Bearcats.

night game in Ohio proved to be a football nightmare.

Playing without the services of George Parazzo, Linwood Cox, Tommy Martin, Doug Henley, Jack Place and Jerry Sazio, the Indians were completely outplayed in every department. Limping men and costly fumbles allowed the powerful Bearcats to score by every possible means.

But even against the Cincinnati aggregation the Big Green managed to score. The lone tally came in the fourth quarter when Sumner broke away on his second long run of the game. Eluding the tight Bearcat defense, Sumner ran 48 yards for the touchdown.

The "Iron Indians" needed a rest, and the vital breather came in the form of an open weekend before the V.P.I. game. Facing Tech at Cary Field, the Tribe made its first home appearance for the seemingly decisive Big Six clash.

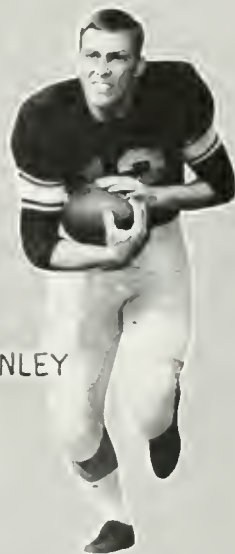

Stunned Midshipmen ran into a stubborn Tribe defense at Farragut Field in Annapolis.

William and Mary 13; V.P.I. 7

Playing before a capacity crowd of 13,000 in a press rated toss-up the "Fighting Two-Dozen" outfought V.P.I. and the clock to win. Defeating the University of Virginia earlier in the season, the spirited Gobblers were seeking victory over William and Mary. The 11 previous gridiron meetings of the two schools resulted in Tribe victories, and Tech felt vengeful.

Again it was the outstanding defensive play that proved to be the determining factor in the defeat of an apparently deeper and stronger opposition. With Parozzo and Sazio still suffering leg injuries, Freeman substituted Chet Waksmunski and Marfizo in the line. After repeated scoring attempts faltering within a few yards of the goal, time finally ran out on the Gobblers and the "Iron Indians" had held again.

Sumner, completing eight out of 13 passes for 112 yards, gave the crowd a glimpse of a superb quarterback playing under the "T" formation. He stole the show from Johnny Dean and Jackie Williams, the highly touted field general for Coach Frank Moseley's Gobblers. With Bowman, Bednarik, and "Shorty" Herrman as targets, Sumner unleashed his best air attack of the year.

With Sumner as engineer, the Big Green again took over ownership of the "Upset Express" and looked ahead to the George Washington game.

BOWMAN AGAIN

This time it was for the first quarter touchdown in the Tech encounter on a hand-off from Grieco (71).

INDIANS . . .

William and Mary 12; George Washington 7

The Indian Express, with steam up and highballing, rolled over the visiting Colonials and beat them at their own game. Becoming used to the underdog role the Tribe out-passed the third best passing team in the nation for the victory. Passing for 115 yards, the Big Green held George Washington to 97, forcing them to stay on the ground.

William and Mary had only two chances to score, and capitalized on both opportunities. Exploding with an impressive show of offensive strength, the Tribe marched 79 yards downfield to score in the first half. Sumner's passing play and Bowman's off-tackle line gains spearheaded the attack.

With the Colonials inside the Tribe five-yard line, the breath-taking victory wasn't secured until Sumner intercepted a pass in the last minute of play. Again the "Iron Indians" fought off strong opposition and relentless fatigue for the victory. Highlighting the indomitable line play, Bednarik and Marfizo constantly held the stunned Colonials to short gains.

By midway in the season, upsets, goal line stands, and marginal victories had become "Standard Operating Procedure" on the Reservation. Facing N. C. State, the Big Green climbed out of the usual underdog role.

William and Mary 7; N. C. State 6

Travelling to Raleigh for the N. C. State Homecoming, the favored Tribe spoiled festivities by edging the Wolf-pack. State, looking for its first win over William and Mary since 1945, made a fierce bid for victory by holding the Indians scoreless until the third period.

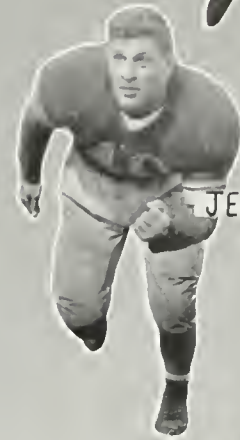

However the offense picked up steam and marched 70 yards for the touchdown, Bowman slamming over from the eight-yard line to score. Hines came in to convert and provide the winning margin for the Tribe's third consecutive victory.

State recovered to score, but lineman Marfizo and Aubrey Fitzgerald teamed up to save the game by blocking the extra point attempt. Goal line stands being the fashion of the season, the Tribe stayed in style by holding the Wolfpack on the nine-yard line and breaking up a decisive scoring drive. "Jeep" Bednarik, the defensive standout, was mainly responsible for keeping the hungry Wolfpack at bay. On defense, "Jeep" spent most of the afternoon in the State backfield breaking up plays.

Clearly favored, the Indian defense was to experience a bewildering surprise against V.M.I.

V.M.I. 20; William and Mary 19

Meeting for the second consecutive year at Roanoke in a charity game, the Keydets were out to avenge the 34-13 beating inflicted by William and Mary last year. Although the Tribe dominated first period play so completely it looked like a rout, the Keydets rebounded in the second and took the lead at half-time, 14-7.

A contributing factor to the V.M.I. upset was Dave Woolwine, triple-threat star, who overshadowed his press praised teammate Johnny Mapp. Exploiting the Tribe's weak pass defense, Woolwine connected with Mapp in the last 56 seconds of play for a touchdown pass to clinch the victory.

Sparking the Indian offense, Bowman gained 127 yards in 15 tries for one of his best showings of the season. In the up-and-down game, Sumner and Bob Elzey helped carry the brunt of the Tribe attack. Rallying for two quick touchdowns in the second half, the Big Green defense fought desperately but vainly against both V.M.I. and the clock.

While Old Dominion football fans wondered if time and injuries had caught up with William and Mary, Freeman girded his team for the tough Richmond game.

William and Mary 21; University of Richmond 0

However the Big Green staged its most impressive offensive show of the year against the jittery Spiders. Richmond, with the best heralded team in many years, suffered a severe case of fumblitis before its Homecoming crowd of 18,000.

Although Coach Merrick expected his Spiders to fumble the offensively-minded Indians forced him to change his mind about the outcome. This victory extended the Tribe's winning streak to 14 games over the Richmond club.

Bowman was leading ground gainer for the Big Green with Herrman and Billy Martin providing the "follow through" of the offensive punch. Martin made his best showing of the season against the tame Spiders. Jerry Sazio seeing action for the first time since the Navy game, made his first score of his collegiate career with an extra point after the first touchdown. Tommy Martin and Hines converted on the other two occasions.

Fumbling the opening kick-off, Richmond immediately went on the defense, but to no avail. Minutes later Bowman smashed across for the first of two touchdowns. Grieco scored the final tally in the last minute of fourth period play. Defensively, Sam Scott and Marfizo played well on the line and Waksmunski was particularly outstanding as line-backer.

The "Fighting Two-Dozen" were coming home tired but victorious to face a fired up Washington and Lee team.

Washington and Lee 33; William and Mary 7

Realizing the loss of Sumner at quarterback, the Big Green couldn't spark an offensive. Improvising, Bowman called the plays in the huddle and Elzey handled the ball as quarterback. However both men were new at their jobs and the spirited Generals seemed in no mood for mercy.

Bottling up Bowman for short gains, the Washington and Lee defense took advantage of the situation and continually forced the Tribe to kick. However "Bullet" did manage to capture the lead in total rushing in the Southern Conference against the Generals.

Sumner did get in the game in the third period to complete five out of six passes. One aerial was a 27-yard pass to Herrmann who sidestepped the Washington and Lee safety for the touchdown.

A band of battle-weary Indians took the field against Boston University for the season's finale. Deep in reserve power, Coach Buff Donelli utilized all his resources for the Tribe defeat. The charging Boston line and explosive backfield left the Big Green trailing by 14 points at the half-time.

The only two deep penetrations by the Indians resulted in touchdowns. With Grieco carrying 18 yards on the "optional keep" play, the Tribe broke into the scoring column in the fourth quarter. Later in the period Sumner passed to Bowman who eluded the Terrier safeties and ran 25 yards for the second touchdown. Tommy Martin converted the first tally and Hines booted the extra point after the second score.

Bob Elzey almost cut loose on an off tackle play but was tripped up by a stretching General lineman.

Outstanding players for the "Iron Indians" received credit from sports writers over the nation. Bill Bowman reaped in the laurels ranging from Honorable Mention All-America with "Jeep" Bednarik to Captain of the All Big Six team, in Virginia, including All-Southern Conference. Sumner, Bednarik, and Parozzo were also elected to the All-Big Six team as well as receiving Southern Conference honors.

Co-captains Steve Milkovich and Tommy Martin led the band of seven seniors hanging up uniforms for the last time at William and Mary. Freeman's perennial problem of replacements returned with the graduation of Bill Bowman, John Bednarik, Jack Place, and George Parozzo. The last great specialist at William and Mary, Quinby Hines, left the Indians without the most reliable extra-point and field goal kicker in many seasons.

The Iron Indians were honored at a special convocation after the close of the 1953 football campaign. Coach Freeman suffered a loss of words to express his pride and appreciation.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Freshmen being ineligible to participate in varsity sports, the new arrivals to William and Mary marked the revival of the "Papoose" squad. Boydson Baird, assisted by "Sonny" Cowling and Bob Taber, took over the job of whipping the freshmen into shape.

Although the Papoose were to face five of the area's toughest teams, the outlook was good and the squad was highly rated by coaches and sports writers. Living up to expectations, the team enjoyed a winning season and provided the Big Green with rugged but vital scrimmage sessions. Winding up with a won-lost record of 3-2, the freshmen gained valuable experience to apply against stronger opposition in varsity play.

University of Richmond 14; William and Mary 0

The inexperienced Papoose squad received its first taste of collegiate competition against the Baby Spiders. Scoring in the first and third quarters, the Richmond club was never in serious trouble.

However the Papoose defense proved its worth by halting the Spider rallies short of scoring. Bill Tucker and Mike Miller led the hard-charging freshman line.

The game wasn't the only William and Mary loss; quarterback Jim Smerczynski was injured and remained out for the season.

William and Mary 14; Apprentice School 0

Determined to make amends for the previous week, the team travelled to Newport News and sunk the Shipbuilders. The Papoose showed improvements in the night encounter when the offense displayed its strength with two first-half touchdowns. Mickey Simpson and Woody Traylor did the scoring while Jack Yohe provided the excitement with a 45-yard dash downfield.

Wake Forest 13; William and Mary 6

Fighting a strong Wake Forest team, the Papoose dropped its second and last game of the season. Facing the Baby Deacs, the freshmen had to fight two equally heavy lines and a reserve of speedy backs.

William and Mary scored in the second period when Alex Fakadej eluded ten little Deacs to race 56 yards before being tackled on the three-yard line. Although he fumbled, Brantley recovered in the end zone for the score.

William and Mary 13; V.M.I. 7

Playing at Cary Field, the Papoose outfought a spirited bunch of Keydets to equalize the season's record. Behind 7-0 at half-time, the freshmen bounced back in the second half to secure the victory.

Moving behind a hard-charging line, Jim Pryor and Yohe tallied for the needed touchdowns. Both scores came after sustained drives against the first-year Keydets. Good team coordination accounted for the deserved victory.

William and Mary 14; George Washington 0

In the season's finale, favored George Washington fell in muddy game played at Cary Field. Scores by Yohe with Nelson converting twice accounted for the 14 points.

Papooses defense were up to the occasion and repeatedly held the freshmen Colonials to no gain. Goal line stands characteristic of varsity play highlighted the game.

Under the coaching of Bob Lawson, the cross-country harriers of William and Mary opened a rugged eight-meet schedule against V.M.I. Captained by Bud Fisher, the under-manned but highly spirited squad of seven never once enjoyed victory. In the course of competition Tribe harriers faced runners from West Virginia, Washington and Lee, Bridgewater, Davidson, N. C. State, Maryland, Richmond, and North Carolina.

The core of the team, Fisher, Lawson, and Leo Schutte, were bolstered by the efforts of Hugh McMahon, Joe Rossi, Walt Tarver, and Gray Bromleigh. "Bullet," with a season's eligibility remaining, sparked the team with fine running and able coaching.

Brighter spots of the season's record included upsetting Richmond out of second place in a triangular meet with Maryland. William and Mary climbed out of the cellar in the Southern Conference meet by finishing fifth. Lawson, Schutte, and Fisher captured three awards of the day to climax a season of spirited competition.

Hopes for next year are bolstered with the support of freshmen Ed Schaefer, Bob McClintock, Dick Calvert, and Pete Kullavanijaya.

Varsity swimming was dropped at William and Mary due to a lack of material and interest in the sport. Another contributing factor was the Southern Conference ruling prohibiting freshmen from varsity sports.

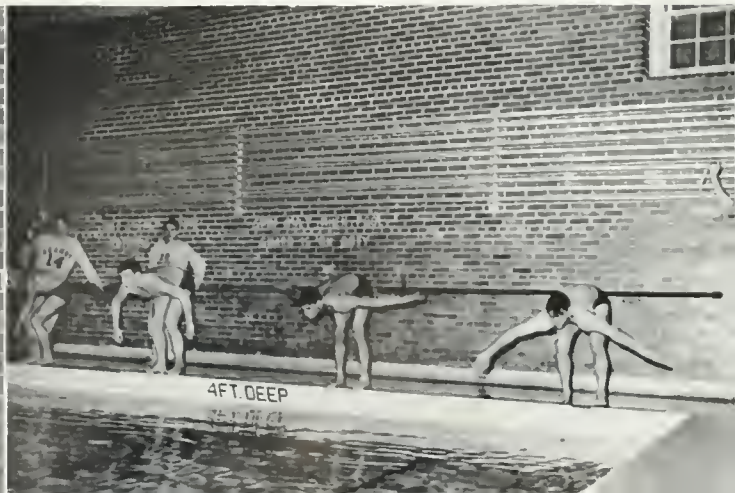

With the hope of rebuilding the team for future years, Dudley Jensen, varsity swimming coach, assumed the task of guiding a freshmen squad. Although they failed to muster a victory, the spirited squad exhibited constant improvement throughout the three-meet season. V.M.I., Granby, and the Norfolk Division all captured victories over the Papoose.

Captain Stu Sell, the only veteran from last year's team, led the squad in the first semester and assisted Jensen in coaching duties for the remainder of the season. Joco Bair and Fritz Trinler, the mainstays of the tankmen, sparked competition in the free style and breast stroke events. Representing the team in medley events were Mark Andrews, Neil Heffelfinger, and Gordo Wilde. Reserve strength in the various events was provided by Bill Brook, Thornton Croxton, Don Harris, Dave Rossel, and Rosser Rudolph.

Coach Baird with Captain Mahoney

With Captain Johnny Mahoney returning as the only letterman from the 1952-53 season, Coach Boydson Baird faced the problem of rebuilding for William and Mary's 1953-54 basketball fortunes. The return of Howie Bollerman and Chick Cornell from the 1951-52 team helped to brighten the prospects at the outset but the inexperience that was to become the keynote of the season was apparent from the start. Tam Stubbs and Alex Harper moved up from the junior varsity to add much in aggressive play-making but injuries plagued their effectiveness. Bill Kern and Bill Patton supplied added height at the forward positions while Monty Knight and Marty Mountain filled in effectively at the guard positions. Over the course of the season, the combination of Bollerman, Mahoney and Cornell playing the fore court with Stubbs and Harper in the back court most often carried the William and Mary colors on to the basketball floor.

ROLLER COASTER SEASON

The season's opener with Hampden-Sydney netted the Tribe a 78-58 victory but the next four games were a closer indication of what was to come. Maryland, U.N.C., Duke and George Washington sent the Tribe down to four consecutive defeats. Success was to come less than often but when it did come, it came spectacularly. The next time out, Baird used a new possession type offense to stun nationally ranked Seton Hall with a 77-75 New Year's Day upset. Mahoney and Cornell led the scoring with 20 and 13 points respectively, but the victory was a product of real team play.

Returning to the Reservation, the Indians opened the 1954 campaign at Blow Gym by going down to defeat at the hands of lightly regarded Clemson, 75-72. A three-game winning streak followed with Hampden-Sydney, West Virginia, and V.M.I. being the victims. The West Virginia victory was another of the sporadic successes of the Seton Hall proportion. Taking the court in the roll of the decided underdog, the Indians upset the Mountaineers with a careful and deliberate style of play. The final score read 78-76 with the deciding marker coming in the last 58 seconds of play.

Baird and Company then moved on to Benedictine Gym to play the University of Richmond Spiders. Caught in the web of a fast breaking Spider attack. The Tribe was unable to set up an effective defense and ended up absorbing their sixth defeat of the campaign, 85-73. A 73-58 victory over V.P.I. then preceded the annual thriller with N. C. State at Norfolk. For the previous three out of four seasons the Tribe had upended the touted Wolfpack and hopes ran high for another such victory. Tam Stubbs and Chick Cornell threw in 19 points apiece but the Staters methodically wore down the outclassed Indians and carried off an 80-70 victory.

In the next outing, Mahoney reached his scoring peak tallying 30 points against W&L in leading the Tribe to another win. During the game, Alex Harper suffered a sprained ankle and as a result was lost for the remainder of the season. Baird replaced Harper with Knight in the following contest against V.P.I. Knight performed favorably and the Tribe racked up a 66-52 win. The home forces then tasted the bitterness of defeat three times running at the hands of V.M.I., N. C. State and George Washington but moved back on to the winning side of the ledger by dumping W&L, 68-54. Next on the schedule for the Tribe came the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest. In a low scoring but exciting overtime contest, the Deacs managed to eke out a 57-56 victory.

Going on the road for the final trip of the season, the Tribe traveled to College Park, Maryland where they suffered another defeat before the classy play of the talented Terrapins. The Indians then returned to Blow Gym and the being held at Morgantown, West Virginia. The Indians drew the host team, the West Virginia Mountaineers, for the opening night and went down to a disheartening 84-69 defeat, despite the individual heroics of Chick Cornell who bucketed 28 points.

the way of immediate success. Inexperience proved to be too much in the face of the stiff competition scheduled. On the brighter side, the squad had gained the experience that had been lacking and this would return in the persons of Mahoney, Bollerman, Mountain, and Kern for the coming season. Though Cornell, Patton, Knight and Stubbs had hung up their gear for the last time, an abundance of freshman talent promised to fill in the gaps provided by the seniors exit. The frosh, under the tutelage of Jerry Harris and Rhea Lazarus, had chalked up nine wins as against two losses and Charlie Morrow, Ed Shefer, Jim Kaplan, Willie Ousley and Don Englekin all displayed ability that made William and Mary's basketball destinies loom brilliantly on the horizon.

Coach Eric Tipton

Baseball season, 1953, found William and Mary experiencing another disappointing year in its baseball history. Despite the seasoned leadership of Co-Captains Al Kersey and Hardy Cofer, the Tribe was able to win only five games out of nineteen. Eric Tipton, in his first year as head coach, fielded a potentially strong team that had trouble finding itself. Pitchers Jimmy Carter and Bill Twomey showed flashes of brilliance on the mound and offensive power was provided by hard hitting Bill Bowman and Don Jeffrey. Monty Knight and Dick Pendleton looked good at their infield positions but the collective efforts of these players was not enough to bring about a favorable won-lost record at the end of the year.

Pepper game in pre-season practice

When March of 1954 rolled around, Coach Tipton sent out a call for candidates for his second William and Mary baseball team. With the five won and fourteen lost season behind him, he was looking ahead to better things for 1954.

Twomey was still around to anchor the mound corps and add hitting strength too. Jim Cockerill, a transfer from Sheppard College in West Virginia, and left-handed Tom Hamilton showed up to help Twomey with the pitching chores. Tipton converted utility players, Jim Hubbard, Gene Hopkins and Dick Wall into hurlers to bolster the prospects in that department.

Knight and Pendleton returned to resume their infield duties and found much spirited competition in the persons of Al Grieco and Wayne Begor. In pre-season practice sessions, Grieco and Begor were displaying much ability both in the field and left a big gap to be filled behind the plate. Hottest prospect there was Doug Henley, who doubled as a fullback on the football team.

In the outfield, Tipton had only one returning letterman to rely on. Bill Bowman was back in the fold for his last, and what he hoped would be, his best year. Roger Groettum became a starter in left field but a lack of personnel forced Tipton to move Tommy Martin off first base to patrol the right field pastures. Hike Abdella, Sam Mitchell, Harvey Lasky and Al Clark provided the reserve strength.

At the start of the regular season, Coach Tipton could not anticipate with optimism the fate of his new team, for as in many of the other varsity sports on the Reservation, inexperience and a shortage of athletes threatened to take their toll. The freshman rule, back in effect, postponed the use of many first year performers who could have provided the optimism. A heavy schedule of Southern Conference, Atlantic Coast Confer-

Bright weather and bright prospects greeted Wayne Kernodle as he began his second year coaching tennis on the Reservation. Experienced lettermen and enthusias-

The Tribe enjoyed a successful start of the season by defeating Rutgers, 7-2. Other opponents of the year included Cornell, Hampden-Sydney, West Virginia, Colgate, Upsala, George Washington, Richmond, Davidson, V.M.I., V.P.I., Washington and Lee, North Carolina, N. C. State, and Wake Forest. Captain Spies also expressed hopes of a high finish in the Southern Conference meet early in May.

Golf at William and Mary was definitely on the upgrade as the '54 season opened on the Reservation. Coach Al Stewart, in his third year as mentor, welcomed a squad of seven veterans. Sustaining only one loss through graduation, Captain Paul Hickey led the returning team. Experience and ability supported hopes for a successful season and victory in the Southern Conference meet.

Bob Mitchell, last year's captain, graduated leaving Hickey to fill the number one spot on the team. Returning lettermen included Fred Aucamp, Pete Freehauf, Jim Mark, Jerry Murchison, Bruce Rumage, and Bill Wray. Participation in the annual Virginia Open and other outside tournaments increased the experience of various members.

With eight of the scheduled twelve meets played on home links, the Tribe gained an additional advantage. Bolstered by good pre-season practice, the team defeated Boston University 7-2 in the opening match. Other opponents included Dartmouth, West Virginia, V.P.I., George Washington, Maryland, Randolph-Macon, Washington and Lee, and V.M.I. Competition for both the Big Six title and the Southern Conference crown took place in May.

In 1953 an unimpressive 4-5 record was posted by the linksmen. Under the leadership of Mitchell, the Tribe enjoyed victory over Dartmouth, 7-2, in the first match. Continuing in their winning ways, the team subdued the Mountaineers of West Virginia 7-2 and the Colonials of George Washington 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ -3 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Maryland, as usual, proved to be a rugged opponent and the Tribe bowed, 6-3 in the crucial match. Following their initial defeat, the William and Mary linksmen overwhelmed V.P.I., 7-2. V.M.I. set the team back in a close 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ -3 $\frac{1}{2}$  match after which Washington and Lee, Wake Forest, and Virginia triumphed over the collapsing Tribe. The squad concluded the season with an unimpressive fifth-place finish in the Virginia Intercollegiate Golf Open at Hot Springs.

With the return of a high percentage of the 1953 lettermen, the William and Mary trackmen looked ahead to a better than average season. The only major loss from the '53 team was middle distance man, John Munger.

Coached by Gil Joyner, the trackmen pinned much of their optimism on some returning squad members. Bud Fisher carried the hopes of the squad in the mile and two mile run. Leo Schutte displayed excellent form in the mile, and Linwood Cox added balance in the shorter distances.

Coach Joyner with Bud Fisher

John Mahoney was back, showing his outstanding prowess at the javelin throw, high jump and broad jump, while Dick Blanchard was always ready to turn in his best efforts in the middle distance events.

In the field events, George Karshner appeared to be a very capable performer in the shot put, as Dave Ferriday added to the outlook with his pole vaulting. Newcomer Jim Singletary, displaying great ability in the hurdles, high jump and broad jump, plus his winning the Five Star Meet, lifted the team's fortunes tremendously.

These men were bolstered in their efforts by Larry Young at the pole vault position, Chet Waxmunski and Bill Tucker in the shot put and "Shorty" Herrman in the broad jump.

The outstanding problem of the team was a lack of adequate reserve power, but an experienced first squad boosted chances for a winning season. "Neepie" Miller assisted Joyner with the coaching duties in the field events. Co-captains of the squad were Leo Schutte and Dick Blanchard.

The 1954 schedule pitted the Tribe against Hampden-Sydney, V.M.I., Randolph-Macon, Richmond, George Washington, Washington and Lee, V.P.I., and the annual Southern Conference meet. A favored V.M.I. team proved to be the Indians' most formidable encounter.

A strong freshman turnout headed by sprinter Jack Yohe promised experience and ability for future teams. Al Stringer and Walt Fillman supported Yohe in the sprints. Bob McClintock displayed excellent running in the 440 and 880, while Mike Miller mastered the hurdles.

Meanwhile, Theta Delta Chi jumped into the intramural race early when Bob Wallace captured the placekicking contest. Wallace's victory came after a special play-off with Bill Patton of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The Theta Deltas then took an early lead in the race with victory in the swimming meet.

While Pi KA captured honors in bowling, the Theta Deltas went on to pad their lead with the volleyball championship. Again the O.D. Underdogs, representing the independent league victors, fell, as the Theta Deltas won the play-offs.

Bob Wallace continued to dominate the realm of individual contests by winning the horseshoes tournament.

Under the direction of Dudley Jensen, the William and Mary intramural program enjoyed enthusiastic support throughout the year. The program included a variety of sports to satisfy the majority of athletic interests. Keen competition was provided by the faculty as well as student participants, and awards were presented to the winner of a match between the fraternity and independent victors.

Fall activities included six-man touch football, tennis, place kicking, horseshoes, bowling and a swimming meet. In the winter months, basketball, volleyball, handball, foul shooting and ping-pong filled the intramural schedule. Softball, badminton and track rounded out the various contests on the program. Although plans for a round-robin golf tournament were discussed, the meet did not materialize.

With strong representation in most sports, Theta Delta Chi and Pi Kappa Alpha battled to the wire for the intramural trophy. Sigma Nu provided consistently powerful competition and fought off the other fraternities for their traditionally high ranking.

Little Freddy Weinman battled his way to the tennis championship, carrying on the tradition that independents generally win the tournament. Herb Goldberg of Pi Lambda Phi swished enough baskets to capture the foul shooting contest. Bob Tyson, for the second consecutive year, won the ping-pong tournament to bolster Pi KA in the intramurals race.

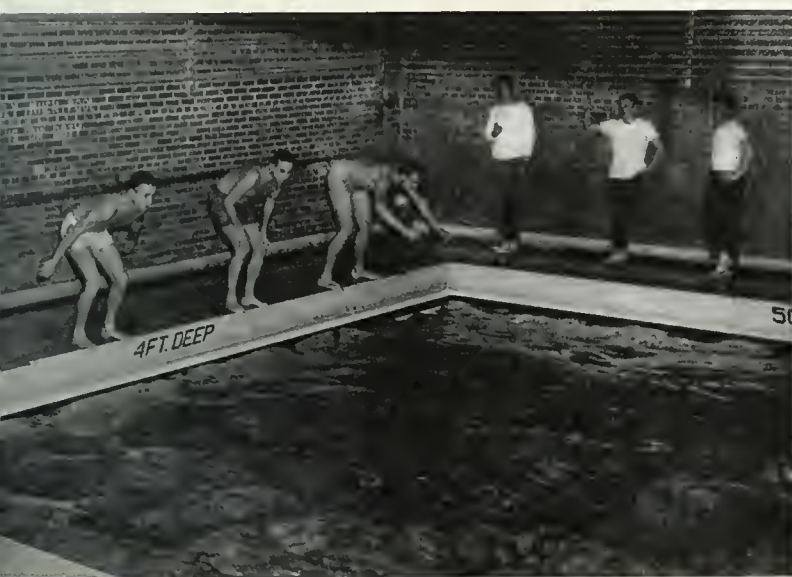

Reflecting some of their traditional intramural power, Sigma Nu emerged undefeated to win the fraternity basketball league. Theta Delt, Pi KA and Sigma Alpha Epsilon offered keen competition and finished close behind the leader. In the independent league, the Ting-A Lings and the O.D. Underdogs dominated the race.

Pi KA was well represented on the fraternity all-star team when Dick Rowlett, high scorer in the fraternity league, and Bruce Rhea were named to the squad. Theta Delt's Bill Twomey, Kappa Alpha's Charlie Carter and Pi Lambda Chi's Johnny Pires rounded out the all-star roster. In the scoring race, Rowlett finished first with 194 points in ten games, and Pires came in second with 158 points in eight games.

Concluding the intramural basketball season, the fraternity league all-stars met the Independent All-Stars in a battle of hardwood talent. Dud Jensen, Boyd Baird, Dick Leftwich, Joe Jordan and Ed Phillips represented the cream of the independent league.

An encouraging note in intramurals was the increased interest in the program throughout the year. Students and faculty alike provided strong support for this activity at William and Mary.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

The Athletic Field

Jefferson Gymnasium

A FULL YEAR OF FUN AND EXERCISE

Throughout the year, a majority of the women at William and Mary pushed aside their books for a few hours every week to participate in women's athletics. Aching muscles marked the novice and often the experienced ones as well, but being a member of an intramural or varsity team was well worth the aches and pains.

Although the coaches worked unceasingly on the development of skills, they also taught their team members a far greater lesson—that of good sportsmanship. This, perhaps, has been the outstanding characteristic of the women on all the intramural and varsity teams during the entire year. Even when the won-loss record was unfavorable, a quick smile and hearty word of congratulations was offered.

Working together with the girls from other classes, from other dormitories and sororities, new friendships were formed and new ideas and abilities were observed. Varsity squad members had chances to meet girls from several schools in Virginia, as well as those from other states such as New York and Pennsylvania.

Besides the development of skills, good sportsmanship and friendships, there was another purpose to the system of women's sports. That was fun. During the past year, there was an abundance of fun had by all Squaws. For the intramural teams, there were laughs in every game, regardless of the sport. The occasional spills, popped buttons and outlandish outfits always provided relief from tension. Varsity players looked forward to away games with their receptions, hen sessions and sometimes even movies when the snow was too deep to play the game.

Beginning with the Freshman Orientation picnic and ending with the annual Spring Awards Banquet, the women were busy working together in fields other than actual sports, although an equal amount of teamwork and cooperation was prevalent. Hostesses for receptions, crew members working backstage in the Mermette's water show and publicity committee members were but a few of the women who, although not necessarily proficient in athletics, performed valuable services to the maintenance of the strength and the smooth running of the Women's Athletic Association.

Early in the Spring, elections were held for new officers of the WAA. After hours of counting ballots, impartial "counters" emerged with the winning slate. Everyone was pleased with the results which listed Mary Lou Riggan as president, Brenda Korn as point recorder and Bobby Limont as secretary.

The Joint Committee, composed of the officers of the WAA and several faculty members, handled the business of the Association. With Miss Marguerite Wynne-Roberts as chairman, and Miss Lowndes Scott as executive secretary, the Joint Committee made the financial allotments to the various teams, approved nominations for student managers and attended to numerous other administrative matters.

Among its many accomplishments, the Committee outlined a new system for next year's intramural program. Only three teams will be allowed to participate in each sport from each sorority and dormitory; separate trophies will be awarded to winners on the three-team levels, and two small dorms or sororities will be permitted to combine their talents and work for points together for the entire year.

With the exception of the Joint Committee, students carried out most of the work of the WAA. President Shirley Haabestad spent a great deal of time running from meeting to meeting, organizing schedules and, in general, supervising all the work of the organization. The other officers were not idle, however, as Sally Dahm kept accurate count of the points accumulated by each girl during the year, and Brenda Korn was occupied with the duty of taking the minutes of meetings and other secretarial work.

These girls, together with Peggy Orr, student head of intramurals, and Barbara Brown, secretary of the manager's board, comprised the student leaders of the WAA. Each and every girl who was a member of the Association, however, played an important role in its structure. One girl was elected from each of the sororities and dormitories to serve on the Intramural Representatives Board, the group that organized and supervised all intramural sports.

A thankless job was that of the intramural representatives, for they were constantly plaguing girls in their dorms or sororities to form teams to compete in the many intramural tournaments. Once the teams were formed, there were schedules to adhere to, practice sessions to arrange, and the responsibility of keeping the squad members informed of games which they were to play.

The Manager's Board included girls selected by the Joint Committee to manage the varsity and intramural sports. Their job was to plan the schedules for their sport as well as to take charge of the games while they were being played. Oranges had to be sliced, towels provided and scores recorded.

All in all, it was a very successful year from every standpoint. Fewer intramural games were forfeited than ever before, more girls participated in extra-curricular sports and—a good time was had by all.

The old saying, "the sport for the sport itself," certainly held true for the varsity hockey team this year. Although their victories were few, this was an outstanding season because of the enjoyment the members derived from playing, under the guidance of Miss Reeder and Miss Bryant. The squad was defeated by the Richmond Club, 5-0; Westhampton College, 3-1; the Williamsburg Club, 3-1, and Madison College, 5-2. In the last game of the season, however, they rose to triumph over Notre Dame of Maryland, 4-1.

The junior varsity team had a very successful season from the won-loss standpoint. With the expert coaching of Miss Barrand, the girls won five out of six games. Losing the first contest to Westhampton J.V., by a score of 5-0, the team forged ahead to victory over the rest of their opponents. They defeated Madison College, J. V., 3-2; St. Catherine's School, 4-1; the intramural hockey winners, 4-0, and the Norfolk Division, 7-0 and 3-1, in two games.

fourteen members of the varsity squad practicing for the matches with Longwood, Westhampton, Sweet Briar and the Middle States Tournament. Miss Barksdale acting as coach and Marge Willard as manager, the girls worked diligently in preparation for the matches, in hopes of equaling the 3-1 won-loss record set by their predecessors of the previous year.

Having lost only two members of the varsity line-up from last year, the team was well represented by several veterans as well as enthusiastic newcomers.

Under the capable leadership of co-captains Sally Dahm and Shirley Haabestad, the basketball squad had a full and eventful season. Ten games were scheduled by the managers, and, with most of them being home games, the girls seemed anxious to be on their best behavior for their college fans.

Of the forwards, who proved to be the mainstays of the team, perhaps the most outstanding were Shirley Haabestad, Bobbie Limont, Ro Fazon and Sylvia Beck. Shirley and Bobbie were high scorers for the season with totals of 185 and 105 points respectively.

Due credit must also be given the guards without whose excellent work the forwards could never have made their great achievements. Sally Dahm, Mary Lou Riggan and Carol Simmerman held the positions for most of the season.

The skilled varsity fencers were chosen this year from the Fencing Club by careful and extracting competition. In their intercollegiate meets, the girls showed a great deal of enthusiasm, and a high spirit of good sportsmanship prevailed.

With Miss Reeder instructing them in the fine points of the art of fencing, the girls took on several colleges from the Virginia area, besides attending meets in Baltimore and other tri-meets. Outstanding in all the matches were Margaret Owens, Barbara Jean Smith, Mab Salinger, Marleen Lauro and Connie Waite.

For the second year, Lacrosse was one of the major varsity sports. One of the most exciting events of the season was the visit made by the Great Britain-Ireland Lacrosse Team, against whom the Squaws pitted their talents. Squad members included Sally Dahm, captain, Grace Stone, Mary Knabb, June Shearer, Maclovía Rodriguez, Brenda Korn, Carol Kent, Barbara Brown and Sally Baker.

Under new leadership, the Orchesis, or modern dance group of the College, met early in the first semester. Even then, plans for the annual Spring concert were beginning to form in the girls' minds. On March 26, in Matthew Whaley Auditorium, these ideas became a reality as the Spring Concert was presented to an extremely receptive audience.

The concert was made up of suites based on various plots. One, the Newspaper Suite, depicted sections of a newspaper. It consisted of the headlines, which were demonstrated by an escaped prisoner, and the Foreign Affairs Section, interpreted by a Spanish dance. There was also the Bargain Sale from the advertisement angle of the paper, and the Comic Section, which was one of the highlights of the concert. The Theater Section completed the picture of the paper and was the final touch to an interesting display of talent.

The entire concert did not consist of the Newspaper Suite, however. Helen Walsh was the choreographer of a suite showing scenes of New Orleans, while Dottie Guthrie choreographed a dance based on a scene from "Alice in Wonderland" and Mickey Mighell planned a composition to the recording of Gordon Jenkins' "Manhattan Tower."

The whole Spring Concert seemed to exemplify the willingness and the talent of the girls participating in Orchesis.

After long hours of exhausting rehearsals, they were able and capable to express their own interpretations through dance. Orchesis was not all hard work, but proved to be relaxing and a good outlet for emotions and original ideas.

The Spring Concert was not the only activity in which Orchesis took part. At Christmas time, Helen Walsh and Pat Florence danced at a Christmas program at the Methodist Church, depicting the story of the creation in dance. Mickey Mighell danced the part of a peasant girl in "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

In February, the group journeyed to the Women's College of North Carolina to participate in a Fine Arts Forum. They presented a dance as part of the student program and later witnessed a concert by two famous dance artists.

The lights were dimmed, the audience was hushed, anxiously waiting for the mysterious silence to be broken. Suddenly, to the strains of light, happy music, eight pixies crept out from behind the trees to the edge of the swimming pool. Gaily, they dived into the water and frolicked about, doing somersaults and back dolphins.

"Fantasia in Fairyland," produced by Mermettes, the synchronized swimming club, was being put on for the first night of its three-night stand. With the addition of scenery, costumes and expert lightning, the show was a great improvement over last year's and the audience appreciated every bit of the exciting performance.

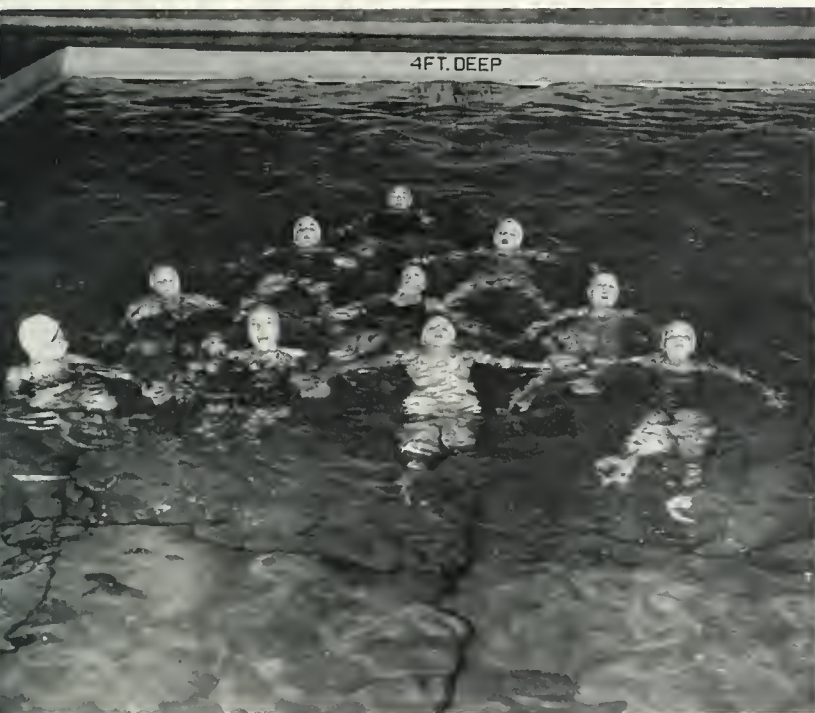

Following the scenes with the pixies came other scenes from fairy tales. Outstanding were the "Ugly Duckling," a comedy number, and "Vespers," a poem enacted with aquatic movements. "Alice in Wonderland," with the colorful pages, hoop-skirted maidens and cards, completed the first act.

For the second act of the Mermette's Water Show, various traditional rituals were portrayed. There were Indians with their war paint intensely doing a "Campfire Ritual" and daring gladiators in sparkling costumes recreating a Roman March. The skillful "Dance of the Greek Nymphs" demonstrated all of the feats open to synchronized swimmers, while the natives and witch doctor in their "Primitive Ritual" added a mystic touch to the show. Climaxing the aquacade was the Finale, which was a colorful parade including representative characters from the previous scenes.

The water show was the outstanding achievement of the Mermettes, the swimming club which broke from the swimming team to concentrate on synchronized swimming. The show, either swimming in it, helping with its production or both. There were several non-swimming members who were concerned with the staging, costuming, lighting and publicity. Under the able direction of Miss Donna Barrand, the faculty advisor of Mermettes, and Sally Cronk, president of the club who choreographed most of the show, all rehearsals were run smoothly and efficiently.

An active and exciting intramural program was carried out this year by the women students under the leadership of Peggy Orr, student head of the intramurals. Intramural points were awarded to individuals and groups competing in tennis, swimming, basketball, volleyball and softball tournaments. Teams were entered according to their ability, each sorority and dormitory having a first, second, third and fourth team.

The hockey tournament was won by the Ludwell Red and Blue teams. This was one of the open tournaments in which points were awarded to individual athletes. Top pointers were Nancy Oakes, Ann Carlson, Alice Matthews, Carla Hubbard, Vanessa Darling and Wendy Ulrich.

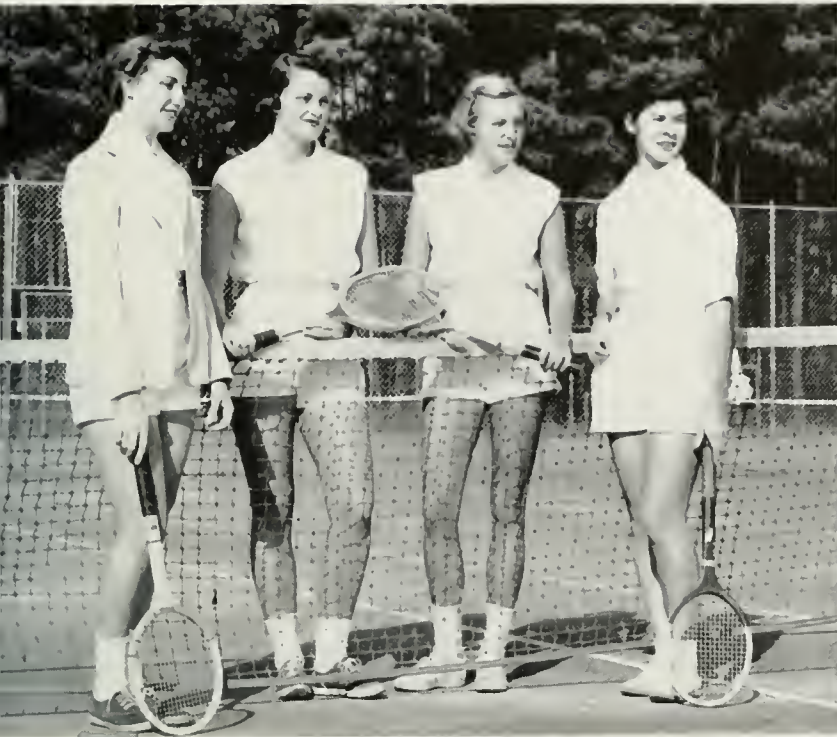

Alpha Chi Omega had the winning team in the tennis tournament, topping Kappa Kappa Gamma and Brown in the final round-robin tournament. Among the second teams there were two leagues, Pi Beta Phi won in League A and Kappa Alpha Theta was first in League B. Ludwell's and Pi Phi's third teams tied for first place, and Ludwell's fourth team was top in that category.

In the swimming tournament, Pi Phi captured top honors, followed by Tri Delt in second place. Theta came in third, with Alpha Chi fourth. Tri Delt won in the second

In basketball, Sally Ackerman, Helen Noble, Julie Holmes, Zona Mae Fairbanks, Dolores Baroffio, Peggy Hedrick and Pat Culpepper did much for their teams with individual ability and the spirit of teamwork.

High scorers and point winners in the bowling tournament were Carol Butters and Joan Welch. Margot Ketcham and Sally Jett received the greatest number of points in the badminton tournament, while volleyball stars were "Mac" Rodriguez and Joyce Outten. High scorers among the participants in the softball competition were Barbara Campbell, Margaret Graves, Barbara Diggs and Brenda Korn.
