

To a friend Mr Gary Briggs he writes "I do not know but you were somewhat surprised at my leaving so soon I had made up my mind that it was my duty to go and serve my country and who would not think so, Could I not sacrifice some of the pleasures and luxuries of life for the sake of my country where I have ~~been~~ enjoyed permitted to enjoy so many comforts and blessings, In speaking of the Sabbath School he says "I let the lessons I learned there guide me here I find they are safe guides too" Again he says "I have not given up the idea of doing good yet, I find there is great room for it here I am learning some to spell and write and as soon as I think I have their confidence I shall point them to the Saviour," Last night I was on Sentry Duty and as I stood alone and gazed up into the starry Heavens and I saw Pleiades and Orion just as I ever used to see ^{them} at home But when I turned my eyes downward what a different aspect I could see nothing but Tents and Campfires as far as the eye could reach As I stood Musing I thought of loved ones at home and of our Sabbath School and class meetings and of the scripture saying do violence to no man neither accuse any falsely and be content with your wages (Here he speaks of risking his own life for the sake of saving the lives of two comrades who he found a sleep on guard) We sent him a letter wishing him a happy Merry Christ mas (Dec, 61) He acknowledges it the happiest one he ever spent and in turn wished us a Happy New Year and writes as follows "Go I had the opportunity of being on guard when the New Year came in I thought as I was beating my beat slowly on the beautiful night Benedict what has one short year brought forth little did I think last New Years night where I would be at the present It would take It would take quite a volume to contain the thoughts that passed through my mind that night and I wondered where I should be next New Years Eve, It was on the night of Dec 31st or Watch Night that he publicly professed his faith in Christianity each Watch Night was his religious anniversary And now where Oh where have they laid his mortal remains In my imagination

I wander among the graves of our noble dead if haply I might find that of my loved and lost one and bathe it with my tears Oh yes of him it hath been said

Spirit leave thy house of clay Singing dust resign thy breath Spirit cast thy chains away Dust be thou dissolved in death Thus the mighty Saviour speaks While the faithful Christian dies Thus the bonds of life he breaks And the ransomed captive flies Then let the worms demand their prey The greedy grave my reins consume With joy I drop my mouldring clay And rest till my redeemer come Yet not thus buried or extinct
The vital spark shall lie For one lifes wreck that spark shall ^{rise} To seek its hundred sky Then faith exalts her joyful voice And now in triumph sings O Grave where is thy victory And where O Death thy sting

I see that I have sent you a tear and a drop of blood although not intentionally done yet I would have shed both could your brother have lived I have the fatal bullet that took his life a large Minnie ball They have sent me his needle case scissors and watch Cassimer made me a present of a very nice American Silver Hunter Watch about a month before he died I have not received any of his books papers - clothes or money I have understood your brother Charles was sick and in the hospital at Suffolk Va yet so as to be about We have but one letter from Cassimer since he wrote to you he gives an account of their visit to the Rapidean River (I was on the retreat back that he was killed) he came very near being taken prisoner by stopping to milk some cows but made his escape through some woods and overtook his company with too canteens of milk I think it will fall on you to write his Biography and have it published in the Christian Advocate and Journal or some papers I think there is a strain of character that I wish you would come home and spend the winter A funeral sermon has not been preach'd yet I have been trying to get the particulars of his death but have not been able Many things I might speak to you if present that I cannot write which would give you a better understanding of your Father Your request are granted my heart has ached but has been no and glad Your sympathizing letter opened my fountain of tears afresh and I mingle them with yours O how freely they flow Your weeping Father C D Churchill
