

June 1801

Bigorre Friday night =

Several months have elapsed since I wrote to my most beloved friend = therefore, you may form a just idea of the entire ascendancy which I have acquired over my inclinations = not an hour passes without the most affectionate and grateful review of your unequalled kindness to me = My mind cannot be so well employed on any other subject = I have learned, my dearest friend, to suppress every emotion, and am, apparently, a mass of apathy but, be assured, my heart will always beat with fond regard for you until it ceases to beat at all = Prayed as I was in the bosom of tender indulgence, and constantly urged to relate every cause of inquietude = I found myself overwhelmed by the sudden transition in my fate = the trial is passed = and, resting solely on my own powers = I frequently make exertions which astonish me = this style tho' almost equal to the medium of complaint =

After my cordial love to all the family = thank dear Beverly for his letter = if I were do attend, causing it to pass. I should probably tell him something about needles, thread etc. for I really stupidly myself by incessant application to work.

Good night my much-loved (my invaluable) friend!

May Heaven bless you! Yours unalterably
