

Grove-brook - June 29th 1805

When Tack accused me of acting as if I were in a "Favour" it appeared necessary to hide myself from a world containing persons who were perpetually exhibiting me in an odious point of view - Under that impression I wrote you a hurried letter - My hostile destiny has excited so strong an interest in many persons that I am recalled, by the voice of friendship, to society - Tady's regard appears to have revived in consequence of the recent injustice done me - I visited at dear Prigmore, by invitation, in Tack's absence - and proposed going after his return - The enclosed note guaranteed me - My beloved friend glorify one who so truly loves him, by writing immediately - I was delighted at dear Beverley's in visiting me at Mr Johnston's - he looks extremely well - Tell Mrs Tucker she must ever possess my fondest affection - My heart is warmly attached to every one at Elm-grove - I trust Fanny has a son to care for - Thank our amiable Mil. for her goodness in giving some information respecting my darling Tador - This pen will not permit me to reply in a more direct manner - Heaven for ever bless my dearest friend - I am with unalterable gratitude and affⁿ your A. C. B.

Dear Nancy

You will perhaps be offended at my freedom, I will be candid enough to answer your question freely; I think it will be better so.
May the good God protect you

Sunday.

Your sincere

friend

J. R.
