Morrisania December 26. 1809

Yesterday, my beloved Father, your long lost child, became the wife of one who (like yourself) personifies every generous and truly noble quality — I hope Heaven in its great goodness will one day bless me with the sight of you here — Present my affectionate regards to Mrs. Tucker — Tell Virginia I say for her happiness and that of all my family
Your truly attached A. C. Morris

Answer.

My dear Nancy,

Williamsburg Jan 5. 1810.

With heartfelt joy indeed did I yesterday receive your favor of the 26th of December, announcing to me that you had the day before become the wife of Mr. Morris. I bless God for an event which has placed you above the frowns of fortune in future. May the rest of your life be as happy & tranquil, as the preceding part of it has been otherwise. My wife & Polly join me in every good wish for your happiness.

I am, as ever have been, most truly your affectionate friend, A. C. Morris

Copy of a letter to Governor Morris Esq.

Sir,

Williamsburg January 5. 1810.

You will pardon the liberty of this address from one whom you so little know, & whom you have not seen for nearly twenty years.

I yesterday received a letter from my friend, once indeed my ward, Miss A. C. Randolph, mentioning that she had become your wife on the 26th of last month.

Suffer me to ask your permission, Sir, to announce to the world, through the medium of the public newspapers at Richmond an event which may contribute to dispel the surmises, which (it is with infinite pain I mention) have been circulated in that place, for near twelve months past.

I beg you to believe that nothing but the sincerest friendship for Mrs. Morris

Mr. Morris could possibly have induced me to obtrude myself upon you as a Correspondent.

Accept my sincere good wishes & respects - I am Sir

Primo: upon more mature consideration I declined sending this last letter.

Sir,

Williamsburg January 5. 1870.

You will pardon the liberty of this address from one whom you so little know, & whom you have not seen for nearly twenty years.

I yesterday received a letter from my friend, once indeed my ward, Miss A. C. Randolph, mentioning that she had become your wife on the 25th of last month.

Suffer me to ask your permission, Sir, to announce to the world through the medium of the public newspapers in Richmond, an event, which may contribute to dispel the surmises, which ^{it is} with infinite pain I mention I have been circulated in that place, for near twelve months past.

I beg you to believe, that nothing but the sincerest friendship for Mrs Morris could possibly have induced me thus to obtrude myself upon you as a correspondent.

Accept my sincere good wishes & respects.

Yours Sir,

Your most obed^t. Serv^t.

The only person to whom I have written in relation to the late business, is when you have been in the city since your return from Philadelphia since your return from visiting my house. Miss A. C. has had some good news on the 25th of last month.
 I have not yet heard from her, & I am
