Sir

In the nature of St George's Melody you beheld, what the Father had attempted, visited on his child

When my much beloved Son is a little older he will write you a letter containing certificates from his two Uncles — You will then know why 20 pages were cut out of the bundle of Dick's letters which England conveyed to you when I left Richmond — His wife desired to be buried at Suchake the promise extorted from me, I was absolved from, by Tador's death, His Mother was then made acquainted with them — I pitied Dick — I was his best friend — The order of his feelings would not have injured him had he married any other kind of woman than the remarkable one who fell to his lot — You shall hear more if you live another year — Yes you shall know all even ^{at} I am no more before that time
