

Sa one of the many Conspirators, there is the one in which Jack kneels to the Prussian Emperor whose they make like say "Angels never was so crazy" — You know he was detained in New York in consequence of serving them overruling him on the pass "know" Dr. Pratt was called in — on the next visit he asked of the Government had released him — Not was the answer — say it is too irritable — pray said the Dr. — "is it irritability of mind or body" — Jack demanded his bill in a passion — the Dr. took no notice of him, but, left the room Jack enclosed him a few dollars saying that was more than he would pay in Vir: Dr. Prockenbrough must remember his madnets at one period — I cannot think who "the demure lady is, whom you allude to"

That is baptised her Son in Style A mortal Mother, would on let the fix —

My dear Beverley

I would not even cloud my noble minded Son's memory, nor my own, on any account — When Judy went to Amelia to nurse Miss Ward — Jack, Doctor Robinson and myself attended the sick Tudor at Bygarre — Betsey Meade informed me that M^{rs}. Meade, said "M^{rs}. Brandolph, go home and nurse your own Child, I can take care of mine" However, during her absence there was too much tea used, I could not help it, Jack kept saying "the tea is too weak" well, I did as I was ordered — the day your amiable Polly sat out with Tudor for Staunton, we got along some how or other — at night the boys and myself took a long walk, they waited, for a blast from head quarters, till they slept in the chairs — at last the two came forth thundering for Candles — Jack entered with long strides. "Nancy, when do you mean to go from here, you take as many liberties as if you were in a Tavern" — However; if you have seen my answer to his "eight gazes for the honorable Gouverneur Morris" the barring out is more fully described than I have leisure for in these times — Old John Brandolph had bad blood — Judy's spirit came from the Curles breed, I always heard our Grand Mother made a trade of fermenting herself and all around her, she was old John's Sister — When Dick died, Jack said he would break Judy's spirit or her neck — he broke her down at first — but she returned the act by managing him rather more — Permit me to assure you that my heart with glowing gratitude and tender love for your noble minded Father's memory will never cease to cherish affection for you, while it throbs at all — same

I will seal and direct to you what has often been called the "infernal packet" My husband said if he had known how I was treated at Bizarre not one of the family should have entered his house - My Heart was so full of happiness and gratitude to God that I forgave them all, and truly and doubly paid Judy, before Tudor came, for every mouthful I ever ate at Bizarre -

I did not notice having began on a torn sheet - no matter. We expect to leave home in two or three weeks - When I see Mr. King I will send you Mr. Dudley's last letter to me
