My dear Beverly

I was among excellent friends in Virginia - the climate disagreed so much with my beloved boy's northern constitution that we could not accept half the invitations given us - Mr. Cabell sent your bundle by a gentleman going to Williamsburg direct - I had written before, stating why, a few letters were added - when Ogden had swindled his uncle to the amount of nearly all his property, he wrote the insolent letter you have seen - I had it copied to shew the connexions here - a part was so indecent it could not be given out for that purpose until it was erased - surely, the most violent of all mental derangement is that caused by malignity and avarice - I had understood that you and Henry were both inimical to me since Sack's return for all our kindness to that base creature Tudor - the publisher of the libel on your noble minded Father has acknowledged that "a person furnished it for the press" - I had said from the first that Sparks had done it - The only copy ever taken of Sack's 8 sheets or pages was done by Ogden at my husband's direction - Mr. Mosely is so anxious to have it again that I brought it home out of his reach - it disgusts me to see my connexions so anxious and sanguine about being provided for from Sack's leavings - his death bed remorse was detailed to me by some Philadelphians - you know the particulars I presume - Our New York post master is too much of a horse jockey, letters are often missent - one addressed to Gov^r had been sent to Nashville Tennessee before it arrived at West Farms - God bless you prays your truly affectionate A. C. M.
