Diary. 1861. No 3

July 28th. Saw at Pocahontas depot Mr Stephens the Vice President: he reminded me of John Randolph of Roanoke, but of lower stature: His Mr Stephens' face has no color in it: his eye dark & piercing: expression of genius: his figure decrepid: a small man, of emaciated body: dressed in black: had in his hand a black gold-headed cane & umbrella: as he had his hat on I could not judge from an opinion of his head: but was told that is very fine: his mouth denotes extraordinary decision: heard some speak of him as an insignificant looking man. The President & Vice President are both of feeble physique but Mr Stephens much the most so. Saw some Georgia Soldiers: one of their officers said that the men could kill a bird 50 yards with a rifle; that they were so accustomed to the use of the gun that they would in battle bring the gun to the mouth and take aim mechanically from habit - which was not the case with the Northern soldiers; [But the Northwestern men are probably ^{more} expert with the gun.] He also expressed the opinion that any man of every man going into battle would feel fear: the man who pretended otherwise must be either a liar or a coward. Another Georgian not a soldier declared that the black Republicans were like the Jacobins of the French Revolution.

they would murder women & children, wives, sisters, daughters: & that every man should come to the rescue against them & resist to the last extremity. Last night about 10 o'clock 800 Nth Carolinians reached Jarrett's in open cars. a beautiful moonlight night: part & then I believe were quartered in the New Market. Mr S tells me that not more than $200 in money has been contributed by Petersburg for feeding the soldiers the bulk of the provisions being paid for by the Confederate Govt. A building is now ~~at~~ The city has contributed $450 for putting up a framed building for lodgers quarters.

the soldiers at Poplar Lawn - a good place - fine spring - pleasant shade & no properties near. But the Confederate Govt has subscribed about the same sum; the timber can be bought at a moderate price of the carpenter's work or a part of it is to be done gratis. It is to be 150 by 40 feet & will perhaps lodge 500 men. I suggested the making of beds for them.
The cabin would cost 50 cts for a bed: the ladies could make them of perhaps farmers would give or sell low the thicks to fill them. I straw would probably be better for the purpose.] I suggested that a hydrant ought to be fixed at the New Market: of some $\frac{1}{4}$ dozen gas lamps in front of Jarratt's in case of arrival of troops in dark or cloudy nights: also a corps of negroes ^{always} ready with buckets of water & dippers attached by a chain to give water to the soldiers when they get out of the cars:

Mr S says the better way is to march them away at once by companies & let them get water at their quarters. As to the grog-shops; if the officers do not have the proper control over the men they will drink any how: they will fill their canteens with grog.

The Confederate Congress met at the custom House in Richmond on the 20th.
Pres. Davis' message has appeared: the flag of truce sent to Washington by Major Taylor nephew of Gen. Taylor threatened retaliation in case of the execution of the Savannah pirates at N. York.

July 21st, Sunday: this day has been a quiet Sabbath: heard during the day no noise of army or troops. Did not go down town in the afternoon: in the evening was told by a neighbor of news of a great battle near Manassas between Beaufort &

Lincolns army under McDowell.
Dispatches received here by Mr Dowell Asst. of the Telegraph.
The battle commenced at 4 A.M to-day & continued according to one dispatch till 5, according to another till 7 o'clock P.M. About 12 the battle became general the bulk of the 2 armies being engaged. Beauregard received the advancing column in a V the Washington (N.O) artillery at the angle & so closed in on them. The loss was terrific but much the greater on the enemys side: Sherman's celebrated battery of 16 guns captured: this was Ringold's during Mexican war. The enemy finally retreated in the direction of Alexandria: Beauregard remained in possession of the field of battle. ~~He~~^{He} Davis was present having started for the scene of action in an early train. It is believed that Johnston with the bulk of his force from Winchester had joined Beauregard before the battle.

Patterson leaving ^{only} 3 regts at Martinsburg had taken with him advanced and gone to Charlestown (county seat of Jefferson County.) where John Brown was hung. The 2^d regt. of Florida Mountain Col. had passed through to-day.
About 10 o'clock in the evening

I went down town to hear the dispatches: groups of citizens at the corner of Sycamore & Bank St. Fine clear moonlight. found crowd gathered around Express office: a dispatch arriving it was called for & read aloud.
At Jarrett's saw some 400 Floridian troops: their regt. being the first from that state that has come to Virginia. They brought with them 19 prisoners - the men captured together with Lieut.
Selden, who passed through to day. They were belonged to the U.S. Transport steamer class Massachusetts which left Boston in May: & were captured at cedar Keys in Florida by the Floridians July 2. They were confined I walked over the river & saw these prisoners at the cool spring when the troops were getting supper. The prisoners were lying on the grass hand cuffed two-together by one arm. One of them told me in answer to my inquiry that they were not put in irons before yesterday: that they had been 3 weeks in confinement at Tallahassee: had been well treated: one of them in alluding to the handcuffs said that that man had done it "meanly" that it had been brought about by their getting drunk & fighting among themselves: but it is probable they were ironed to prevent their escape en route. 2 or 3 of them they said were foreigners the rest Yankees. One of them being asked by a bystander what he thought of the war & whether he thought it right for the Northerners to invade our country answered that "he had nothing to say about that" which I said was a sensible answer. One of them enquired whether there was any way of sending a letter to the North? He was told that letters were sent by Louisville & that he would learn find out about in Richmond. It was painful to me to see these men in prisoners of war in irons: Some of the bystanders were jeering them which I regretted to hear. A few of the volunteers with guns stood or lay down around the prisoners: some of the prisoners were asleep the spectacle appeared to me touching: those men had homes of those who were dear to them. The Floridians had also in irons a man arrested on the train on suspicion of being a spy. I did not see him. I saw ^{the} 400 Floridians eating supper: they are seated along the table by companies: & begin to eat when the order is given: the eatables appeared to be ham, cabbage in wooden trays, Irish potatoes, onions (in tray) chopped up, bread & coffee in tin cups. The men appeared to enjoy the supper very much.

July 22^d Monday 1 o'clock P.M. No additional dispatch since those rec'd last night. A rainy day: fine season for corn &c. A merciful Providence appears to have favored the South from the beginning of this war. The race is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong. The Bible of history both teach us that it is in vain to rely upon numbers. A very heavy fall of rain to-day: it is now 10 o'clock P.M. Still raining hard. It must raise the water courses, inundate low grounds & make roads muddy & miry. It will have an important effect upon military operations. Heard this evening that Gen. Davis had sent a dispatch to the Congress in Richmond: a dear bought victory; complete route of the enemy; guns, stores, wagons captured: the numbers of killed on our side 400, wounded & missing 1500: numbers of the enemy killed 4000, wounded & missing 15000! These numbers appear ^{rather} too large, & as the battle was fought on yesterday & ended lasted till a late hour, the loss could hardly be ascertained or reported thus soon.

The loss of the enemy in these reports is probably greatly exaggerated as usual. It is said that Johnston with his force from Winchester commanded the left wing of the hardest fighting was there of the loss of the enemy enormous. The enemy's centre being broken they fled in confusion & were pursued as is said by Bea-regards reserve. One Gentleman told me that our army had possession of Alexandria; another said that it was believed or reported in Richmond that our people had taken Washington. It is possible that Alexandria has been retaken but that could hardly be the case without another battle there as the Lincolndites were strongly entrenched there; but that Washington has been taken is quite incredible: as the enemy command the bridges on the Potomac & at the worst could blow them up. It is also said that our people captured 20,000 stand of arms; but this requires confirmation. They say that the fugitives threw away haversacks, canteens gums &c. The defeat will probably exasperate the North to a higher pitch & they will redouble their efforts.

Call into requisition all their resources. But with ~~brave men~~, able officers, [&] ~~good~~^{the} cause & the favor of Providence the South may defy their rage & fury.

July 23 (Tuesday) The details in the papers to-day very interesting: Yesterday Congress met in Richmond at 12 o'clock.
After a prayer a dispatch from

Pres. Davis dated Manassas Sunday night was read: glorious victory: battle lasted 10 hours; enemy routed abandoning large amt. of arms, & munitions of war knapsacks of baggage: ground strewn for miles with their wounded killed: houses & grounds around filled with wounded: enemy pursued towards Leesburg in Loudoun & Centreville in Fairfax until dark.
Several field batteries & regimental standards captured of one U.S. Regt: battle mainly fought on the left,
"several miles from our field works." Our forces did not exceed 15,000; the enemy is estimated at 35,000. Congress passed resolutions offered by Mr. Memminger, rendering thanks to God for this victory; lamenting the loss of so many of our brave soldiers; appointing a committee to provide for the wounded.

The panorama of the battle here presented to the view of the spectator was magnificent beyond description. The line of fight extended seven miles.

The Washington New Orleans Artillery did great execution, playing frightful havoc among the enemy. Sergeant Joshua Reynolds was the only one killed. He was struck in the forehead while giving the word of command. Privates John Payne and Crutch-

Part of the Seventh and Eighth Louisiana Regiments were in the action, but particulars of casualties have not been ascertained.

Major Wheat was badly wounded, and his recovery is barely possible. His Battalion was badly cut up.

The enemy were commanded immediately by Gen. McDowell, who is said to have had 60,000. All of ours at the Stone Bridge were estimated at 35,000.

Gen. Scott is said by several persons to have been but a few miles off. We hear nothing of Patterson.

Our numbers immediately engaged, were but 15,000.

The enemy was totally routed, and fled in great confusion for miles.

We have captured thirty pieces of artillery, thirty wagons containing provisions, and 500 prisoners.

Among the prisoners is the celebrated Col. Corcoran, of the famous Irish Sixty-Ninth Regiment, New York.

Col. Wilcox, a Captain and three privates, of the Michigan Regiment, surrendered to the Confederate Twenty Eighth Virginia Regiment.

Capt. Edward Carrington, of Washington City, a Virginian by birth, and a nephew of the late Hon. Wm. C. Preston, of South Carolina, is also a prisoner. He fought vigorously against us.

Col. Kemper's Alexandria Artillery did most effective service, mowing down entire files of the enemy.

He is recovering.

To-day went up to Fair Grounds to deliver some magazines, books &c contributed to form a sort of reading room there for such volunteers soldiers as may be quartered there. Found a ~~old~~ sentinel at the gate: only one company now there: delivered the bundles to Genl. Hinton at the company's^s head-quarters to be handed over to the ^{acting} Commissary Mr Reed.

Mr S. tells me that Genl. Patterson has been made prisoner: & that Ellsworth's Zouaves fought very hard. It cleared off this morning of the air is delightful to day.

This afternoon saw procession escorting the body of Col. Fisher of N. Carolina killed in the battle of Sunday: his regiment is said to have suffered heavy loss. Col. Fisher falling was succeeded by Lieut. Col.

Lightfoot who also fell & the Major taking his place also fell. Such is the report on the street here. In the procession were the 4 guard Light-horse, cadets & citizens.
Attended Union ~~prayer~~ meeting for prayer & thanksgiving on account of the victory.
The ^{large} congregation consisted almost entirely of females.
Rev. Mr. H. read me a dispatch from Washington showing that the Federal army was considered as demora-lized by Washington City in consternation, only 200 of the Ellsworth Zouaves escaped. 4 batteries lost 67 guns - including 2, 32 pounders. McDowell endeav-ored to rally his men at Centreville but in vain; the men exhausted fell down in the road, guns left over from Washington the entrenchments on this side of the Potomac strengthened. See See There is a rumour here that the long bridge at Washington has been burnt down; but this can hardly be so. Breckinridge has made a strong speech in the Senate denouncing the Lincoln way as in violation of the Constitution & destruc-tive of it. It is said that on Sunday a Carolina regt. was fired upon by an Alab-ama regt. by mistake & a number killed; others of our men killed in the same way. This has been apprehended; but as it occurs on both sides, like equal quantities on opposite sides of an algebraic equation they cancel each other.

Wednesday 24th of July 1861, charming day, cool clear & no dust. The Appomattox high & red-muddy. Two cars passed through yesterday with returning baggage of officers of Wade Hampton's S.C. Legion killed on Sunday. Many passengers passed on Northward this morning destined or managers relatives friends of killed & wounded.
600 prisoners reached Richmond yesterday & they say 500, to-day.
This afternoon the Richmond train brought on bodies of a Captain Wolff, & orderly sergeant Laurens both of the Carolina & nephew servant of the latter told me their names: a servant apparently of the Captain had his sword: Tents ~~for~~ N.Y. still coming in from Richmond.

It is said that the Arkansas men in the great battle after firing once, threw down their guns & fought the Zouaves with bowie knives, cutting off the heads of the "Pet Lambs". Thus was Jackson avenged: out of 1000 - 200 only escaped: some say only 50. Col.
Wolcox of the Michigan regt. who was at Alexandria is a prisoner.
John Kelley reported as killed on Sunday was not in that battle; he was in the battle of Thursday & his regt. distinguished itself by a charge on the enemy.

A good many of the wounded in the late battles have been brought to Richmond. Some of the slightly wounded have passed through Petersburg.

Watermelons are ripe. At the Norfolk depot saw a number of black "signal balls" of posts to raise them on, to be used I suppose on the sea-coast: also some green looking red non-de-scripts; perhaps they may be shells; but I always supposed that shells were round like cannon-balls.
At the Pocahontas depot saw ² negro boys rolling small cannon balls sat across the floor to the cars: they seemed to like the fun & the work made them sweat: they threw the balls backward between their legs. Met with Capt. S. on furlough from Camp book at Burnell's Bay which is 10 miles above Hampton roads. It is called Camp book after the name of the proprietor of the farm. The magazine is in the overseer's house. Capt. S. says the men have very little time for reading; they have been drilling 5 hours a day. Gen. Pemberton on learning this said it was too much it would break the men down: the time was therefore shortened. There are 1000 men at camp look under Col. Payor. Met with Mrs G. at Norfolk depot; she is of Richmond & has been on a visit to Norfolk: has a son in the Richmond Grays there; she saw my nephew C. H.

^{of the same company} there this morning: he was extremely anxious to go to Manassas. The body of a Lieut. was brought up in this train, killed in a fray of drunken soldiers.
Mrs G. had rec'd a telegram from her husband, saying that 2 of the wounded were in his house. Should our people succeed in taking Washington city they ought forthwith to blow up the capitol, white-house, Treasury, War & Navy department Navy yard & Post-office. Break up the nest & the birds will go away. But whether that should be undertaken now is a profound problem.

July 25th Thursday. Another fine day.
Troops continue to pass through. A Georgia regt. enlisted for the war, or regulars that passed a few days ago highly spoken of. At Pocahontas depot saw troops in the cars for Richmond. At the ticket office they take Va. notes & S. Carolina but not N. Carolina nor Georgia nor Tennessee. But they take Va. corporation shin plasters.

The soldiers travelling on their own account complain of being charged full price on the R & P road which is not the case on some other roads. Noticed some boys who drive cattle over from Richmond & return on the cars.
The cattle are for the Petersburg butchers. The reports brought from Richmond this afternoon are that Beauregard with 30,000 men has advanced towards the entrenchments on the Potowmac : that Alexandria has been evacuated & that the Lincolnites have burnt the long-bridge.

It is thought probable that Beauregard will storm the ~~the~~ entrenchments on Arlington heights & thus command Washington at a distance of 2 miles.

At Norfolk depot saw 3 large iron magazines for holding powder: saw some days ago in the street a wagon containing 40 kegs of gunpowder: they were coming apparently from N.C. Carolina. A large quantity of powder was captured in the late great battle, also 500 wagon loads, 62 cannon, including 8 siege guns, many fine ambulances, 20,000 stand of arms ~~&c~~^{many horses, &c} - a clear sweep. officers, soldiers &c on the street.

At Jarrett's saw 300 N.C. regulars men young, Hale, well armed & drilled.
It is heard several persons say that Washington would probably be captured by Beauregard in a few days: It is also believed that the capitol & other public buildings will be destroyed - to put an end to that bone of contention.
Some doubt whether our army ought to cross the Potomac or attack Washington. It is said that a great many soldiers are en route for Virginia from the South & West: some one says not less than 30,000.

The railroads have been making money by the transportation of troops & munitions. The troops that came in this afternoon in the freight trains had as usual knocked away many boards from the sides to let in the air. Some of them on their arrival sang Dixie. They had a drum.
Mr. H^o son-in-law ~~the~~ Lieut. of artillery was struck ^{in the} late battle by a fragment of a shell lay some senseless on the field: he will resume his place in the army. There were 4 deserters at the Pocahontas depot this afternoon in charge of a police-man bound for Richmond. Saw spades &c in a car a Jarratt's which I was told were for making the junction of the rail roads.

July 26th, Friday. At Jarratt's observed a group looking at a plan of the battle-ground. Mr E - just from Richmond by afternoon train tells me that Govt Jackson of Missouri has arrived in Richmond with favorable reports from his state.
The Missouri convention being now in session, his visit may be for arranging for the secession of his state Missouri of her joining the S. Confederacy.

Honle Mr. Ely, U. S. M. C from Rochester district N. Y. a prisoner in Richmond confined with the rest ^{of the prisoners} in a tobacco factory.
He came as a spectator, saw his the U.S. troops retreating; took refuge behind a tree, where he was captured by some confederate troops. He was carried & four in which Gen. Scott was supposed to have been, it turns out brought to the neighbourhood of the battle a Mr Harris of another person.

Mr Harris was a warm Douglass man - sort of lobby member in Washington - now a prisoner in Richmond. The seat of war appears to be hermetically

Sealed against authentic news: fame with her thousand tongues multiplies rumors—that Beauregard has taken Alexandria without firing a gun; that he is advancing to storm Arlington Heights, that Gen. Scott has committed suicide, that Mr. Breckinridge has been killed murdered by a mob or assassinated.
The Star newspaper at Washington, an ultra black Republican sheet, calls the defeat of Sunday a perfect "Waterloo." The details of the great battle in the papers are very interesting.

They would fill a volume.
It is probable that the loss on both sides has been exaggerated. Saw large number of tent-poles & tent cloths on the way to Richmond.

Working Laborers are preparing the track for the junction rail-road along the East Washington St. A trestle bridge is to be built: Mr C. is sawing the timber for it. 300 Alabama troops arrived about 10 o'clock P.M. new recruits; no arms or arms.
It is rumored that 30,000 handcuffs were found among the equipage of the "grand army" of subjugation. The number must be grossly exaggerated; as 30,000 would perhaps load 30 wagons. The fact of any considerable number being brought will excite a new exasperation in the South.

Rev. B. Bolling has given up his house on East Hill for a hospital: that Hill is associated with events of the Revolutionary war.

It is reported that the 'draw' on the Long Bridge at Washington was raised to stop the flying army: also that the news produced some disastrous results in the city: the Federal troops said to have got to fighting among themselves. The French Consul at Richmond M. Paul has sent a courier to France with accounts of the battle. The incidents of the day are innumerable of it would fill volumes to relate them. Saw an a long omnibus coming over from the Cool Spring with sick soldiers. Some of them had blankets around them. The measles prevail in the hospitals. Two balloons have been sent up at Forted Monroe. The committee here request that no cucumber be contributed for the soldiers they being so indigestible.

A number of deserters were taken up here yesterday. soldiers furloughed from Manassas now are sworn not to divulge any news. 1500 troops are expected here to-morrow. A collision on Southern road to-day - but no one hurt.

July 27th Saturday. At Pocahontas depot in afternoon saw a soldier with a sword, overcoat & some other articles taken from the enemy ~~one~~ in the great battle of July 21st. The Soldier said that he had captured a Zouave on that day.

Dr C - shewed me another sword taken by his brother in the cavalry from an officer. The hilt was broken perhaps by a bullet.

The sword was sent as a present to the division now at ~~Camp~~ Norfolk. The Dr means to have the hilt mended & an inscription made on the blade recording the manner of its taking. ~~Dr~~ Dr C had another brother of the Dr who lately upon the return of his ship resigned his place & came back to Virginia. The bodies of Gen. Bartow, Gen. Bee & Lieut. Col. Johnson passed through Petersburg. At Norfolk depot noticed 2, large cannon.

An engineer running line for the junction of the railroads.
The bridge it appears is to cross over to the west of Pocahontas where draymen water their horses & the road will pass near Lynch's Coal office - a very tortuous line from Washington St.
Near Pocahontas bridge a large flat boat with a pile-driver for making the bridge. In the evening saw a company of N. Carolinians at Saratoga later some 700 more of

W. N. C. says I believe of regulars i.e. enlisted for 3 years.
The men appear to be well armed: had been drilling about a month. Company of boys marching about the streets: blue jackets, white pants, red caps: some of them barefoot. 3 confederate flags perhaps 30 boys in the company.
The drummer seemed very intent on his work keeping his eye fixed on his drum.
They marched well. No news from the seat of the war: all within the lines hermetically sealed. And Mr. Newell P. — set out a day or two ago for Manassas; but at Richmond found it impossible to obtain passports & had to return. Rev D^r M^r then went to Norfolk.

July 28th Sunday heard Rev Dr P^r a very ardent patriot deliver an excellent discourse on Exodus XV.c v

The enemy said I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; my lust shall be satisfied upon them; I will draw my sword, mine hand shall destroy them.

About 400 troops arrived in town at a past 2 o'clock, Georgians & Alabamians: the latter wore red shirts: no guns. Saw a negro setting a large saw for working on the junction: I hear that they are going on with the work to-day.

The last line of battle on the 21st extended 7 miles along Bull Run a fork of the Occoquan.
Beauregard & Johnston were dressed in plain military undress. Mrs B told us this evening that she had heard that 2 officers of Lincoln's army had come into Beauregard's camp in a starving condition, & reported that several companies were nearly starved & nearly without clothes somewhere not far; upon a detachment being sent out they surrendered without firing a gun. They were Pennsylvania volunteers. Another person since in relating it makes

The number 500 & another 1000. Farm with her thousand tongues; vines acquiret ends.
It appears remarkable that the Manassas rail-road could bring 4000 troops Gen. Smith's brigade at once. It must have required about 100 cars. To-night a large number of troops arrived cheering loudly as usual, the ladies waving their handkerchiefs & gentlemen their hats to them. There was not light enough to ~~see~~ see them distinctly. It is the 4th N.C. regt. well armed. They are to proceed to Richmond about 4 o'clock. in the morning. As our people had the advantage somewhat of fighting in their entrenchments at Bull-run: so the enemy will have that advantage at Alexandria and Arlington Heights. But the impetuosity of Beauregard & his men may carry every thing before them. It is now 4^o to 11. P.M just beginning to rain. No further news from the seat of war: we do not know where Beauregard is; nor what is going on. It has been a charming day: but very warm in the sun.

Monday July 29th. 1861. Rained last night. Visited a hospital at head of Market St: of sick soldiers; 2 cases of pneumonia; one of them was blistered over his breast - had high fever, suffering from thirst: very sick: the rest are recovering from the measles. ^{Two physicians visit them.} One of them a Captain. Mr P was attending to them very kindly. He is one of 5 appointed by common council to superintend the hospitals: there is another at East-Hill where there are some sick: & they are fitting up the ^{ological} Institute on Union St. for the same purpose. There are 10 or 12 sick now at Jarrett's to be removed to the Institute as soon as the room is ready. The East-Hill being isolated is most suitable for contagious diseases. Mr D— of R.S.P.R.H. tells me that he sent over 1600 men this morning: a large part of them slept in the new market-house.

They sleep in their clothes. Frequent ablutions are essential to health especially of slaves: but it is probably but little attended to.
W.B. tells me that some of the country people ask 25cts a qt. for buttermilk for use of the sick soldiers! The Lynchburg Virginian says that instead of 30,000 handcuffs found among enemy's baggage there were only 2 boxes, which might be needed for their own men. The Pennsylvanians in a ^{July 30 Tuesday} Starving condition who surrendered lost their way during the retreat. Wade, Chandler, Wilson ^{Taylor} & Lovejoy were near the field of battle & joined in the stampede.

Guns captured 90, 650 wagons.
1 wagon load of Lemons, large quantity of ice.

Gen. Smith's brigade was delayed detained some hours on the rail road owing to some casualty: this appears to have been all the better since if they had come earlier, they would have been exhausted by 3 o'clock whereas they came into action fresh after a march of only 2 miles. Again Gen. Davis was detained some hours beyond the usual time; this may have been all the better too since if he had reached the field earlier he might have been killed. The Northern papers are reducing very much the number of killed & wounded & prisoners on the 2nd: it is necessary for them to explain if the loss was not great why they retreated in such haste & confusion? They may choose their horn of the dilemma.

Saw at Norfolk depot 3 more monitors very large guns, with block & tackle, posts &c for raising them: priming wires & two boxes to addressed to Capt. Ingraham of Ordnance & Hydrography.
Also large chain cables supposed to be for the Yorktown. She is now I hear at City Pt. The carpenters are at work upon the trestle bridge: also the pile-divers. Noticed another parcel of those queer-looking red projectiles: find that they are grape-shot: small-sized cannon balls firmly held around a vessel within contain / containing powder - to be exploded by means of a fuse like a shell. The length of the fuse is proportionate to the maximum range of the gun: it is shortened according to to suit any shorter distance.

They are call grape-shot because they are clustered like a bunch of grapes. It is stated by ~~John~~^{John} ~~Hughes~~^{Wright} to Batt. Sun. that Gen. Scott on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock had his carriage ready intending to go to Bull Run where he was confident of victory; but his friends would not let him go. After news of the defeat of the "Grand army" of subjugation - in a cabinet council held the Gen Scott exclaimed "I am the greatest coward in the army & ought to be cashiered for yielding to the clamors of the process of politicians & causing the army to advance contrary to my own judgment." When fort Sumter was taken it was stated that the attack had been made without contrary to the opinion & advice of Gen Scott.

It appears that the mobocratic influence of Greeley, Blair, &c &c is predominant in the administration. It is remarkable how boldly some of Northern papers denounce Lincoln's war policy: they several of them lay the blame of the defeat, on Greeley & the fast men of the Ultra rampant black republican party. Mr. Wright a member of their congress declares that the credit of the govt has failed. Strong opposition in congress to the scheme of direct taxation. In a fortnight we may hear the opinions of the English on the battle of Bull Run. A.

Pittsburg paper apprehends that Washington is in danger: & that Gen. Patterson may be cut off.
The convention of Va. in June passed an ordinance for constructing a railroad from Hagerstown to Winchester a distance of 17 miles: this would connect Winchester with the Majors Gap railroad. Greeley in the Tribune published first a flaming account of the great victory of McDowell at Bull Run.

The N.Y. Times also published a like account sent on by telegraph by Raymond: Raymond says that his postscript giving an account of the ultimate defeat was rejected by the telegraph censor. The censor forgot that the postscript is often the most important part of a letter. Greely & Raymond also forgot that the old saying that "We dont know what kind of a day it is until the sun sets." They announced the result of before the polls were closed which is not till sunset.

July 30th Tuesday. Very hot day. visited Hospital on East Hill 16 sick soldiers there: one very sick, emaciated in pain, had blisters on; could not ascertain his disease: he appeared to have been unphysically unfit for the service at when he enlisted.

several others looked so too; most of them had had the measles. one a fine pleas looking man of pleasing manners had recovered from the measles but had the mumps; he had a brother lying on a bed on the floor near him who he said was too weak constitutionally for the service. ~~so~~ I saw one stood white attending to them & one smulatto; fire in the grate & a tea-kettle. The patients in 3 rooms. In the porch were 3 or 4 convalescents: I had some conversation with one of them: he enquired how many more battles & in my opinion there would be before the war would end.

The place is very convenient for ~~the~~ a hospital, high retired: beautiful prospect: good water. The men seemed much pleased with the kind treatment they received here. On my remarking that it was a bad thing to be sick away from home: the reply was we could not have been more kindly treated at home than we have been here.

workmen driving pits for the bridge: They drive them down first & then saw them off level, just as carpenters saw off the tops of fences last.
The curve of the railroad at the bridge will have a radius of 250 yds: they can run on one of 150.
It is intended to connect the S. side road with the bridge too. Great deal of freight at the depot 300 bags of coffee: flour sheeting manufactured at Petersburg, fish, cannon balls, pipes (a wagon load) leather

A conductor says he has great trouble in making change: the small notes have vanished.
Specie: peaches 5 cts apiece.
Mr L - just from Richmond says that in ~~the~~^{each} knapsacks of some prisoners just arrived was found a rope. Qu^o? were & what were they intended for?
Heard that by the traitorous conduct of a conductor on the Manassas road Houston's was detained 8000 of Houston's division were detained & did not arrive at the junction till Monday morning. The conductor a murderer & a farmed the papers say were burned by Beauregard. The accounts in the papers of the great victory are continued to be highly interesting: many of them graphic descriptions. It is rumored that Beauregard with 10,000 men has crossed the Potomac into Maryland.

This is improbable.

Wednesday July 31st 1861. A very hot day: heard soldiers arriving but do not know how many or where from.
Did not go to the depots to-day. No news from Seat of war. Miss R mentioned a report brought yesterday evening by a gentleman from Richmond that Mr Lincoln had sent to Gen. Beauregard proposition for an armistice of 90 days: she & I agreed that 90 minutes armistice should be given the subtle enemy. Saw a sick soldier lying in a cart passing up Sycamore a citizen walking behind held an umbrella over him. The soldier that I saw so ill at East Hill hospital yesterday has died since. One of the patients at the institute ^{one of the} is ~~a~~ wounded.

Richmond Friday Aug 9, 1861. Hotels all full: streets alive with officers, soldiers, congressmen &c. At the Capitol was present at opening of Congress of the Confederate States of America. Admitted into the Hall lobby at instance of Hon Mr B — saw Mr B. T — late U.S. General at Liverpool. & 85 members of Congress from 11 States: the members from Tennessee just elected, not having yet arrived yet. Prayer by Rev. Mr Henderson.
Members stood up: silent & attentive as in the best regulated ordered church congregations. No time to ~~see~~ observe the distinguished members. Mr Stevens (the Vice President,) who looks announced that Congress would go into secret session; whereupon all went out except the members. Went down to lower end of Main St. saw there in the windows some of the prisoners of war confined in 3 tobacco factories: said to be 1300. Some of them talking & laughing heartily: most of them quiet & grave: some good looking men & soldier-like: some smoking a pipe, some lying down reading: one a handsome man & well-dressed in his shirt sleeves.

Prisoners guarded by soldiers: the Buckingham Yancey guards, apparently raw recruits, then on guard.
Noticed a Zonare in one of the windows: red cap of tassell. They are not allowed to put their heads out of the windows. — Visited the Reservoir camp at old Fair Grounds near Hollywood Cemetery. 3000 men there 3 regiments of infantry mostly raw troops ^{& Alabama} from Georgia, & 2 companies of artillery, one from Maryland: the other from Fort Moultrie.

S. C. Horses hattered to long ropes stretched between trees in shade: eating hay: the hay looked musty: saw the Moultrie company taking their horses ^{a muddy pond to} to water - a man riding one horse & leading another: some boys bathing in the pond: Capt Calhoun rode down there with the company & returned leaving them in charge of the orderly sergeant ~~who~~ giving him first directions as to going back to the camp closing by saying " & then make them all dismount at once. I sat under the shade of trees & conversed with some Georgia convalescent soldiers.
They were anxious to know the probable duration of the war & whether there was any prospect of peace. Observed the soldiers drilling in hot sun.

Marching over the grass: no dust. noticed further off smoke of camp fires where they were preparing supper.
Saw men shifting their ~~and~~ tents to another field: some carrying fire wood, some bundles of straw for their beds, &c, ^{moving} like a string of industrious ants. The scene was picturesque: Met here with Wm D - a former scholar of mine now about to be commissioned as Lieut. of a Company composed of boatmen & the like from Mobile: good material but utterly undisciplined & hard to manage.
Wm told me that when he heard of the battle of Manassas Plains he ~~cried~~ from disappointment at not having been there: he was then at Norfolk belonging to the ~~Mobile~~ cadets - a well disciplined company

The Captain of which was educated for a Roman Catholic priest. Visited in the cool of the evening with Mr W. (of Committee of Entrenchment) two of the field-works constructed below Richmond near Marion Hill not far from Pocahontas Seat of the Mayos. Looked at some tombstones in the Mays Grave-yard: two of Gen. Scott's children lie buried there: no tombstone over them. The Gen. married a Miss Mays. The entrenchments are earth-works with a ditch moat: in one of them 3 heavy guns covered by wooden houses: no guard. There are 8 of these works completed or in progress extending about 4 miles: the rest of the circuit to a point on the river above the city will be 3 miles making the whole ~~the~~ cordon of entrenchments 7 miles. On the south side of the city the enemy would have to ford the James river above the city & would be exposed to batteries of artillery: the bridges of course would be destroyed. Some say that sooner than the city should have been surrendered to the enemy it would have been burnt like Moscow. 500 men now employed ~~in~~ in fortifying Richmond. Talcott by birth a Northern man the engineer. He is now in the peninsula at Wmbsg.

The evening was lovely after a very hot day: ^{rich green} the foliage green, the James in full view stretching off South for some miles; bold hills wooded or clothed in verdure around of the snowy tents of a camp visible in a neighbouring valley: The evening was hushed in sweet repose, no noise invaded the ear. Perhaps some day the noise of battle may be heard ^{near} here. This scenery is associated with the names of Smith & Braddock. And it was along here that Arnold came up to Richmond in 1781: See in his Memoirs of the War in the South remarks that Arnold could easily have been repulsed as the ground here is strong for defence.

Sunday Aug. bear Saturday Aug. 10 went to the Governor's House to get a passport to return to Sterling rec'd one from Mr. Bassat French aid to the Govt. of was introduced to Mr. Letcher whom I had not seen before. He was smoking a pipe. The wife of a Hanoverian was applying to the Govt to release her husband from military service. which he peremptorily refused to do.

She said that some of the people would starve for want of men to make the corn crop. The Govt replied "there is no danger ^{now} of any body starving in Virginia." Heard Rev. Dr Moore Sunday Aug. preach funeral sermon of Capt James K Lee mortally wounded in the battle of Bull Run ^{while gallantly leading on his company} July 19th. An excellent patriotic discourse: some passages truly very eloquent. Very crowded congregation: very hot day: Masons: 20 others of the captain's company. Copied in the Enquirer office a plan of the battle field of the battle of the 21st, sketched by W. G. Bonner introduced to Rev. Mr. Boggs, ^{a Methodist} now a Captain who behaved gallantly in the great battle. His appear face & manner pleasing. Dr. Englebreck office copied. Met in the street the Rev. Dr. Athiason now prisoner on parole. Saw also Rev. Richard McGraw now a Lieut. just from Monterey on a short furlough.

At the Photowood Hotel saw Mr. Reagan of Texas Postmaster General of the Confederate States: he looked distressed; I was told that his wife was very ill.
Wednesday Aug. 7 Proposed to a Lithographer here to engrave the plan of the battle field which he agrees to do. He is a Frenchman named Valery & has been making more money since the commencement of the war than before by lithographing bank notes &c. Thursday Augt. 8 yesterday 1100 soldiers were supplied with an abundant break meal here by the Relief Committee.

The provisions are ~~in~~ paid for by the Confed. Govt. the cooking & serving contributed by citizens of Petersburg. 160 more volunteers passed through to-day. The junction railroad & bridge are nearly completed it is said that the limited time for completing it expired day before yesterday & that the contractors inflict $100 per diem now until it is completed which will probably be tomorrow. Rumors this afternoon that Admiral Dundas with a British fleet at Charleston has notified the U.S. Govt. that England will insist on the blockade being raised: this is impossible: for ~~England has not yet recogniz~~^{ize} but it apparently must come to this before the end of the year. Another rumor is that McGraw is about to make an attack on Fort Monroe. It is said that 2000 ^{ladders} have been sent down to Yorktown but this enormous number is quite incredible. It is reported that Hampton has been totally destroyed by fire: that the reflection of the conflagration on the houses at Norfolk could be seen from Craney Island.

They say further that the Jamestown & Yorktown war-

Steamers have gone down the James river. The Yorktown has been lying at City Point for some time; she has 160 men daily drilling & heavy guns 3 each side, one forward one astern. Capt. My mother dined with the Captain (Tucker) & several other of her officers at Shirley last week. Another on dit is that 500 wagons have moved from Manassas Junction towards the Potowmack. Heard to-day that a Plan of the battle of Manassas is about to be published in Richmond.
Took some magazines &c to the Classical Institute Hospital for the convalescents there. Saw one of the N.O. Zouaves riding in a wagon with a drum on his ~~shoulder~~ back. Troops Friday, ~~Saturday~~ Augt 9th 1861.

Troops continue to come in daily: 100 hundred this morning; 300 this afternoon and more to-night: part of these marched up to the Fair Grounds, in the dark rendered visible by lightning the finale of a violent thunderstorm.
The heat for several days has been most oppressive: hard upon soldiers marching on dusty roads. Authentic news from ^{the} ~~Dept of War~~ appears to be still hermatically sealed. Hampton is undoubtedly burnt & Newports Nuse is believed to be evacuated. The Rail road Junction is to be completed to-night. Valory the Lithographer published the sketch of the Battle-field to-day: sold by Mr A - the book agent at 25 cents. They sell readily. The R. Engineer appears to credit the rumor of Dundas raising the blockade: but it is not official & wants confirmation.

An Italian music teacher called to see me: his name is Marabito by R — He was leader of the band on board the big ship Pennsylvania. witnessed the conflagration at the Navy Yard which he describes as a magnificent spectacle. 5 guns of the Pensylvania loaded to repel an attack of the mob fired from the burning ship but the shells did no damage probably owing to the guns falling & changing their position. If the wind had not shifted Portsmouth he says would have been burnt. The Merrimac a fine large new ^{Steam}~~ship~~ has been converted into a floating battery. The other ships saved are the United States to be used as a receiving ship.

& the sloops of war Plymouth & Germantown. Besides there are some armed steamboats.

Finished copying this Aug 21. 1861.
