

Dear Sir-

I am inclined to think that you called, while the Prussian Minister was here, or I was preparing, or rather dressing, to receive him. I infer this from my inquiry after his departure, when the porter, was absent, and an incompetent substituted in his place. If this was the fact,

I shall regret it, as I really <sup>wish</sup> to comply with the arrangement which we made yesterday, in regard to them, & will visit you, with them, to morrow, at 11, or the evening at 8. in an informal way, if preferred.

Yours

James Mason
