Reception Center Welcome Climaxes Orientation Week

The two-day registration period for classes will begin tomorrow morning as the College Orientation program for the more than 576 freshmen and transfer students closes Thursday with a welcome by Colonial Williamsburg at the Reception Center.

The hour-long program, which half of the entering students will view Wednesday and the remainder Thursday, will include the showing of the colored slide film, Prelude to Independence, and the motion picture, The Colonial Printer.

The week-long introduction program was initiated last Wednesday afternoon with addresses by President Chandler, F. James Barnes, II, and Dean J. Wilfred Lambert. Following the general meeting the students and their parents attended a picnic supper in the Sunken Gardens, and later a Colonial Williamsburg candlelight reception at the Capitol.

Dean Lambert outlined the orientation program to the newcomers Thursday morning. Later in the day scholastic aptitude tests and physical examinations were given to the women, while the boys heard addresses on the R. O. T. C. program and the College intramural sport program. The day ended with a mixer dance in the Pagoda Room.

English placement tests and modern language placement examinations took most of Friday's program. In the evening a pep rally was held.

Cary Scates introduced the campus student leaders at a general meeting on Saturday. In the evening another mixer dance and a talent show were held.

On Sunday afternoon orientation groups toured the Wren Building and attended the annual President's Reception. In the evening Dean D. W. Woodbridge addressed the students on the principles of the Honor Code. Pledge cards were signed by all entering students yesterday.

Church suppers will be held tomorrow by all student religious groups at the various church centers from 5:30 to 7:00 p. m.

W&M Theatre Plans For Reception; Announces Try-outs For Coming Play

The William and Mary Theatre will present its annual open house on Saturday, September 19, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall at 7 p. m., for the incoming students.

After informal talks concerning various phases of the theatre, including a short speech by Suzanne Joerndt, president of Theta Alpha Phi, national dramatics fraternity, the staff of the theatre group will present a scene from The First Lady, The Playboy of the Western World and The Clandestine Marriage.

Immediately following there will be an exhibit in the Phi Beta Kappa Hall Foyer. The exhibit will include photographs, props, and costumes from the plays presented in past seasons.

Wings In Bryan Hall Open For Occupancy This Coming Session

The north and south wings of John Stuart Bryan Hall, William and Mary's $863,000 new men's dormitory, have been completed and are now being occupied. The contractor's schedule calls for completion of the middle section of the dormitory by December 25.

Bryan Hall will house 216 men when it is completed. It is constructed with many small corridors and sections similar to Tyler Hall. The rooms feature recessed wash basins and bureaus, a large desk with two metal and leatherette chairs, an easy chair, modern lighting fixtures, two beds and a night table. Built-in bookcases and shelves line one wall in each room.

Each hall or section of the dormitory includes four rooms with a bathroom at the end of a short hallway.

On March 3, 4 and 5 the group will present Hamlet by William Shakespeare, and the season will close with The Circle by Somerset Maugham on April 21 and 22. All plays will be directed by Miss Hunt.

Season tickets for reserved seats will be $3.00 and season tickets for general admission will be $2.00. Tickets will be on sale at registration and also at the box office in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Box office hours will be announced later.

Try-outs for You Never Can Tell will begin Wednesday, September 16, in Wren Kitchen at 7:30 p. m. All students are urged to audition.

President Asks Additional Appropriation For College Expansion, Operating Needs

President Alvin Duke Chandler asked the Virginia Budget Advisory Board last Thursday for $5,686,540 in new appropriations to construct and equip four new buildings, and an additional increase of $570,590, nearly 42 per cent more, appropriations from the State for operating costs for the next two years.

President Chandler pictured William and Mary as being unfavorably among the State-supported schools. He told Governor Battle's budget planning committee that "every square foot" of available space is badly "crowded" in the College's physical plant, which has not been effectively enlarged or improved in 20 years.

The present College plant was intended to take care of 1,200 students, he noted, and the College this year has admitted 1,600 applicants.

"Due to the large number of applications and inadequate facilities, the College has had to refuse admission to a large number of well-qualified applicants," he stated.

Among the new buildings that President Chandler has asked funds to construct is a $1,270,000 student center, which he says is needed most. Other buildings are an $827,000 women's dormitory that would eliminate Ludwell, a $1,215,250 academic building and a $1,773,290 library. The present library would then be converted into a law building.

Dean H. H. Hibbs, of the branch in Richmond, Richmond Professional Institute, requested an increase of $245,367, about 60 per cent more, for operating costs, and also submitted a building program that would require $538,901. Governor Battle and his board made the trip to Williamsburg on their biennial tour of State institutions.

Chandler Entertains Prince With Guided Tour Of Wren

Japanese Crown Prince Akihito Tsugunomiya was taken on a guided tour of the Wren Building Sunday afternoon by President Alvin Duke Chandler.

The Prince, on a 27-hour visit to Williamsburg as part of a sightseeing trip through the United States, scheduled his visit to the College at the last minute.

The State department's chief of protocol John F. Simmons, Colonial Williamsburg president Kenneth Chorley, vice-president of Colonial Williamsburg Carlisle Humelsine, and numerous Japanese officials made up the sightseeing party.

After pointing out the College's priorities, and showing the prince the Chapel and the Great Hall, the party went upstairs to view the entire campus from the front and rear balconies. President Chandler, pointed out the historic Brafferton, the President's House and Lord Botetourt's statue.

Before leaving the building Chorley explained to the prince that William and Mary is a state supported school, and told how every two years the College president has to present the governor with a budget. "Sometimes he has some difficulty," he added.

The prince and his party arrived at the Williamsburg Inn Saturday noon. From there he walked with John D. Rockefeller, III, to the King's Arms where he had fried chicken for the first time. In the afternoon he and his party took a carriage ride around the restored area stopping off at the apothecary shop, the Palace and Bruton Parish Church.

In the evening he was guest of honor at an oyster roast given by Colonial Williamsburg at the Matoaka picnic area. Undersecretary of state Walter S. Robertson and Governor John Battle were also on hand. Later the Crown Prince toured the Capitol by candlelight.

Statement Of Policy

In this, the first issue of the new school year, we feel that it is appropriate to make a formal statement of policy to the readers of the Flat Hat. It is essential for a good newspaper to have a strong policy, to state that policy frankly and to adhere to it tenaciously.

We will make every effort to present all significant campus news as completely, accurately and objectively as possible; we will strive to maintain interesting, informative and impartial features; we will print entertaining, enlightening and controversial columns.

The Flat Hat will endeavor to introduce new features from time to time to stimulate interest. The new Editorial Mirror and Coed of the Week columns will be introduced as regular features. We hope to inaugurate other innovations in the future—your suggestions and comments in this realm will be greatly appreciated.

Our editorials will always be written with complete honesty, sincerity and conviction—without fear or favor! We will make every effort to reflect student opinion on all significant College issues. Every Flat Hat editorial will bear the initials of its author and represent his own candid opinions.

All readers of the Flat Hat are urged and encouraged to express their personal views on all College issues in the Student Voice column. We welcome all letters to the editor (Box 1445) and will endeavor to print all letters of student interest that are of suitable length and not libelous. Every letter must be signed by its author, but names may be withheld by request under certain circumstances. You enjoy the power of freedom of expression, but that power—like all other power—is meaningless unless it is exercised.

The Flat Hat is YOUR newspaper! All comments, suggestions and contributions by our readers will be gratefully received. The Flat Hat will try to be a source of information, entertainment and service to the entire College Community.

Being human (like almost everyone else at William and Mary), we will make errors—both of omission and commission, but they will always be unintentional errors which we will endeavor to correct as quickly as possible.

The Flat Hat is proud of its past record, which includes four of the last five Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association first place awards, but we will continue to strive for improvement.

A. H. L.

Words Of Welcome

We would like to take this opportunity to extend a few words of welcome from the Flat Hat to all the new students entering William and Mary. We hope that you will be happy with the College and that the College will be happy with you.

It is assumed that you came to William and Mary to pursue an education—we sincerely hope that you will be successful in that pursuit. It is important to remember that it takes more than just books and classes to gain an education—although we must admit they do play their part.

There is a perennial vacuum of energy and inspiration here just waiting for you to fill it. There isn't a single worthwhile organization on campus, including the Flat Hat, that isn't in dire need of "fresh blood."

Make the most of those advantages William and Mary offers you; try to overcome those disadvantages it imposes on you; seize all your opportunities and make every effort to express yourselves as fully as possible.

Don't strive for empty honors; don't submit to rigid conformity; don't be too impressed or too unimpressed with our Colonial Paradise at first glance.

Above all, have fun and read the Flat Hat!

We would like to extend the Flat Hat's welcome to all the new faculty members as well as students.

A. H. L.

HALESTONES

By Jane Hale

People always assume that we are very Glad to see new students
Come pouring into William and Mary.
On the contrary.
To be terse:
It's the reverse.
Which explains why we've been running that column of Ronnie King
Since around nineteen.
Freshmen really should be
More considerate of their elders,
For it's an accomplished fact that we
Have spent a four year term
Watching Rome burn,
Barksdale
Exhale.
And we have grown wan
With M. Reboussin.
We've also been blessed
By all the rest
Because their names don't rhyme.
But you
Are new.
You have come in platoons festooned
With all of the latest fashions from recent magazines.
You have painted your rooms
And the odor of turpentine has polluted our air,
But do you care?
Retire to your lair,
Take our air;
We'll adjourn
While you learn
That Norman Berkeley Baron de Botetourt
Is not pronounced like you thought;
While you glean,
We'll sneer at your orange and kelly green;
While you orientate,
We'll inebriate;
While you concentrate on one elective
We'll be registering for service (selective),
As you rush to class with the birds of eight,
We will accumulate
A few more hours of shut-eye,
And we might not even get up at all,
So kindly step lightly in the hall.
You can go to the lodges with all the handsome men.
We've already been.
And fellows, you can have all the good looking girls in sight;
It leaves the dorm quiet at night.
So everybody go on out and have a good time.
We've memorized their line.
Freshmen, you ought to be fresh;
You just got here—
Wait'll you've been here a year.
Persevere on the college career,
Don't let us interfere.
We're old, worn out and disgusted with books;
When you pass us on campus with those cheery looks,
The warm hellos and the charming greetings,
Remember we're blinded by too much reading,
So rush onward and upward to XYZ meeting.
And remember you're eating new food at the price of our indigestion
The work has already been done
For that Thanksgiving vacation in the sun,
And may we remind you that Monday would still be sexless
Were it not for the sex we won.
You're here, so stay—but remember again—
We are the freshmen you might have been.

Many Thanks

The editors wish to thank the following people for their help with this Orientation issue of the Flat Hat: Jean Andrews, Nate Carb, Alice Knight, Will Molineux, Cynthia Frye, Cynthia Kimbrough, John Mitchell, Bill Humbert and Rene Henry.

Welcome

From The President

The College of William and Mary extends a hearty welcome to the Class of 1957, to those students who undertake their studies at the College for the first time this year, and to returning students.

Our standards of scholarship achievement and character are of a high order. Those of you who are new on the campus have selected William and Mary, and William and Mary has elected you. Each of you has been elected to a position in this College—a position which was coveted by several other students. Each one of you, therefore, has a special responsibility to yourself and to the College.

You are a part of the William and Mary community and we invite you to participate as full-fledged members. We start the year with a feeling of mutual warmth and understanding.

William and Mary is well known as a school of universal learning. We are constantly aware of the necessity for education based on reality. We want each student to think about his or her career and the basic knowledge which is essential for that career. Each student is encouraged to determine that endeavor for which he is best fitted.

We are confident that the student who has a definite goal, who knows what the program which he has planned will lead to, will approach his college career with earnestness of purpose and motivation. We feel that our students are guided by principles of honor, loyalty, and character for which William and Mary has won renown.

In conjunction with good character and good personality, it is our aim to develop imaginative, healthy minds through education. Our extra-curricular activity program has as its primary objective the broadening of the experience level, cultivation of associations, and the human relations activities of the student. These extra-curricular activities should complement his academic life, but not absorb him.

These are the factors for power and progress in the college—student life, education, and extra-curricular activities. All of these factors contribute to the proper development of the mind, body, and spirit.

It is a real privilege for me to welcome each and every one of you to the campus of the College of William and Mary for the academic year 1953-54. The challenge and opportunities are here. William and Mary is a closely-knit community of friendly people who join me in welcoming you to our campus.

A. D. Chandler

From The Dean Of Men

As the College of William and Mary begins its 261st session, it is my happy privilege to extend a warm welcome to you who are returning and to you who will become members of the William and Mary family for the first time this year.

Those of you who have studied here for one, two or three years are already familiar with the traditions of the College and the ideals which it seeks to promote. It is my earnest hope that you will share your knowledge and experience with your new classmates and help them to establish a useful position in the College community.

From time to time throughout the academic year questions will doubtless arise in the minds of many of you. When you are confronted with a problem of any nature whatever, please remember that my door is always open to you.

Joe D. Farrar

From The Dean Of Women

One of the nicest things about the start of a new academic year is the chance it affords to extend a word of welcome to the new students. All of us at the College of William and Mary are happy that you are here. We genuinely want you to feel that this is your College and that we are your friends.

The Office of the Dean of Women exists in order to assist and advise and encourage women students in all aspects of their college life and interests. Please do call on Miss Wynne-Roberts, the Assistant Dean of Women, and myself whenever you have a problem or a pleasure that needs sharing.

FACULTY VOICE

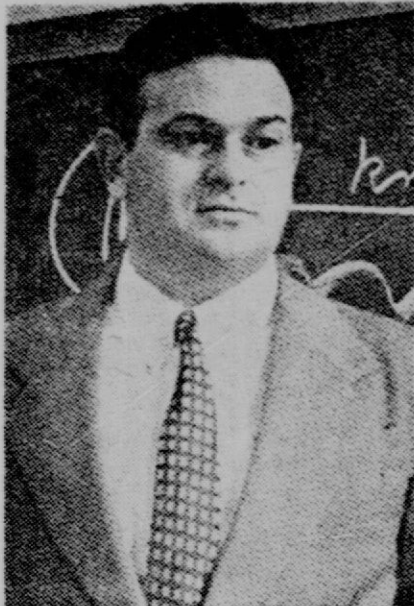

By Dr. Sydney C. Rome

You too can avoid receiving an Education: Many students, especially seniors, with whom I have discussed the problem of how to spend four years at college without getting education, tell me that this is no problem at all. Simply, they say, enroll at any good college as a freshman, say at Dartmouth, or at William and Mary, or at Swarthmore. Then just meet requirements and be graduated. If you do this you can avoid the educational process completely.

Now I disagree with these friends of mine. It is genuinely difficult, I contend, to walk out of the classes of certain distinguished figures here on campus unaffected. Can you listen to Bare, without trying homeostasis to learning theory? Or to Roseberg, without feeling a true sculptor's vision? Or to Adair, without sensing any of Madison's contributions to the philosophy of federalism? Or to Evans, without denying that the Fairie Queen is a fairy tale? Or to Reboussin, without finding in learning more than problem solving? Or to Mooney, without deploring algebraic illiteracy? Or to Mrs. Rome, without learning to savor the paradoxes of existence? Or to Hunt, without gaining insight into the management of human groups? Or to Moss or to Marsh, without granting that there is another side to any question.

No, it takes some effort to move through four years here unaffected. But let me offer some techniques for preserving educational virginity in the lecture hall.

First, avoid the vital people on the Faculty. You cannot do this completely, but your selection of courses according to some narrow subject matter can help you towards getting almost nothing out of college. With care, you need never take a course with Guy, Williams, Holland, Hirsh, Neiman, Fowler, Smith, Sherman, Ryan, Southworth, Miller, Kernodle, etc. Thus you can systematically avoid all exposure to literature, to social science, art, music, and science. You need never learn what is a differential or have the least literacy in statistics. The history of ideas can remain blank to you. Likewise the nature of religious faith, political wisdom, social organization, poetry (even English poetry), human motivation, psychological insight, comprehension of biological processes. Whenever your program, say in one of the pamphlets, "College and Career," leaves room for an elective or even two, refuse even this. Stay close to some narrow, practical specialty.

Dr. Sydney C. Rome

And settle on a program, preferably in your freshman year, that will guarantee you a moderately good job directly upon graduation. In this way you can prepare yourself for the past. You can be completely ready for the expected, for the way things will have used to have been when you will graduate.

Next, avoid any professor who welcomes the question, especially when he is trying to cover facts, namely, "What is your evidence, professor? How do you know this is so?" If you ask this question, you will learn to be critical. Nor ever confront any professor with some claim made by another, especially if the two claims fail to jibe. Doing this destroys grades, inhibits meeting requirements, leads to confusion, and breaks down the rigid compartmentalization that exists in your mind. It is a form of education to inquire and to seek to put things together into larger patterns.

Ignore any remark any professor makes concerning those parts of his field about which he lacks assurance. He may be exposing the work of his contemporaries to critical evaluation. Try instead to see whether we use textbooks and remain close to our texts. If you also criticize any text, you are on the road to some independence of thought. But independence of thought is a mark of an educated man.

And never pick us for our manner. Some of my colleagues are most notable for graciousness, some for humility, others shine forth largeness of soul, some have great analytical acuity, some synoptic minds, others visions of aesthetic utopias. Never, but never, permit yourself to select your program because of the professors who teach it, rather than by subject matter. If you value how we do things more than what we do, you might learn something no academic book-keeping could record.

Under no circumstances consult us on your personal problems, but remain blind to observing that the very way in which some of us can help you meet adversity is educational. Also, getting into difficulties and learning to live through them is too much like life. You should never consider that people can help you, who have communed with the writings of Freud or of Skinner, with Parsons, with Chaucer or Wordsworth or Goethe, or Descartes and Malebranche, or Lord Acton. Preposterous. Professors live with books, and books can open worlds of self realization.

But have I not offered too many don'ts? The positive formula is also simple. To avoid education, remain adolescent in thought, feeling and action. Always agree with anyone who controls academic credit. In a word, accept.

Dr. Rome's column has been reprinted from the May 5, 1953 issue of the Flat Hat as a special orientation issue feature.

William and Mary Go - Round

By Ronnie King

If you're looking for a "Welcome to William and Mary" from this corner, save yourself some time and hurriedly flip the page once over lightly. Here's one kid who prefers to skip that patter and let you in on the uncoated truth.

The fact is, you're not welcome. Your coming here has ruined everything. Last spring all was well. Each boy had his girl; each girl had her boys. And we had it fixed so that just about everyone held a school office of some kind (we must admit that we had a devil of a time getting volunteers for the position of sergeant-at-arms at Barrett). Yes, we were a happy little group.

Petty Disturbances

Oh, we had our petty disturbances... an indignant sophomore set fire to the auditor's books... the administration instituted several slander suits in connection with the cafeteria but withdrew them in the fact of overwhelming evidence... a potential Phi Beta clawed his English professor upon receiving a final grade of B plus... the comparative anatomy class topped down after a series of scathing reprimands from the Legion of Decency... an ambitious upperclassman amassed a mighty bank balance by selling toilet tissue which he had appropriated from various places on campus (the Men's Honor Council had to admit defeat when said student pointed out there was no precedent for establishing the fact that the principles of the Honor System applied to the places involved)... but, understand, we were getting along rather nicely, thank you.

Conditions Deplorable

And now you little monsters have descended upon us like a horde of locusts to disrupt our campus life. Already we have noted some of the consequences... housing conditions are deplorable... three of our shorter students have been assigned quarters in a discarded filing cabinet in Marshall-Wythe... the college has had to install an amplifying system for the bell in the Wren building in order that the 58 men residing in a quonset hut in Toano might have some taste of campus life... we now have a Dean of Men A-M, and a Dean of Men N-Z... the larger organizations have requested the use of the football stadium for their meetings... these are but a few of the results of your invasion.

We tremble at the thought of future consequences... the Sunken Garden will sink lower... insects in Williamsburg will be an oddity after each of the battalion of freshmen biologists has snared the required hundred... fresh supplies of oxygen will have to be piped into Washington 100 and 200 on the more humid days... and only those on the Dean's list will be in the Wigwam.

No Passionate Welcome

You must realize by now why we have failed to work up a passionate welcome for you. If any of the old guard flashes his molars in extending a greeting to you, remember... those teeth are gritting, not grinning.

As long as you're here, though, we may as well get you straight on a few matters. First, disregard that item in the Indian Handbook about ending your hazing days if we beat Richmond in football. The new rule is that you may throw away your duc caps only if the Pi Phi's win the intramural song contest in May. Next, remember to run to the bookstore immediately after the first session of each class before your professors have a chance to change the editions of your texts. Don't go near the basement of Rogers Hall. A few of the graduate assistants in the physics department are working on a nerve shattering problem... finding the mechanical advantages of the lever. Start making contacts with the midgets in your neighborhood, and work up an agreement of some sort whereby they will take your clothing after you have sent it to the College laundry.

Make Yourself Known

The most important thing you can do here at school is to make yourself known. Toss a firecracker into the mashed potatoes at the freshman orientation banquet; or get together with your roommate and butt heads for an hour or so on college corner; or sing "Marching Through Georgia" on your way to classes. There are all sorts of possibilities.

Well, you've got the general idea now. Just one parting warning—the administration frowns on manslaughter after sunset.

Editor's Note: For the seventh year running, freshmen will read this column, King's reaction to a new crop of frosh. It is becoming a tradition on page three of the first issue of each year.

Dr. Fehr Announces Choir Audition Date

Auditions for the William and Mary choir and chorus will be held in the Music Building on Monday, September 14, through Friday, September 25, Dr. Carl A. Fehr announced Saturday. The try-outs are open to all men and women of the College.

Hours for the auditions are 9 a. m. to 12 p. m. and 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. on Monday through Thursday, September 14-17. Friday, September 18, and Monday through Friday, September 21-25, auditions will be held from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. only.

The College choir presents an annual Christmas concert, and goes caroling before the vacation. During the Spring the choir goes on a concert tour throughout the State. Last year the choir sang at Waynesboro, Charlottesville, Middleburg and Petersburg.

Both the choir and the chorus present Spring campus concerts, and sing in various community and campus gatherings, including convocations and commencements and assemblies.

Words From The Managing Editor

By Madge Cushing

WHEN I WAS A FRESHMAN I WISH THAT SOMEONE HAD TOLD ME . . .

. . . not to be so conscious of the fact that I was a freshman. Although freshmen may feel small and insignificant, that doesn't alter the fact that they are some of the nicest people around. They have a new crop of ideas and a spirit that hasn't been dulled by the lethargy that has caught so many upperclassmen. Freshmen are such an important part of the College community that they should be aware of that fact from the very beginning.

. . . that sophomores are perfectly harmless. Though seeming to make the newcomers feel conspicuous and even branded, the sophomore orientation of the freshmen is done in order to get to know them. In my early days here, I must have taken the whole process much too grimly because I know I was mortally afraid of sophomores, and I was positively certain when I lost my duc cap that I would be ostracized. It turned out that I wasn't although it might just have been because I managed to find the duc. I guess that I should advise anyone who cares to listen not to take the whole program too seriously but in the spirit in which it is intended. And just always remember that sophomores were freshmen four short months ago!

. . . to study my freshman year. As it has been said many times before, a little self-discipline as far as the books are concerned goes a long way and good study habits do pay off. It is no fun to let everything slide by and then have to spend frantic days and nights with the awful knowledge that you can't possibly learn six weeks work in the time before the test.

. . . not to be afraid to stick to my own ideas and also to express them. Although a new student may feel that upperclassmen "know the ropes" and in addition know all the answers—that doesn't always prove to be true. In all the choices that have to be made—whether they concern choice of friends, activities, dating, drinking, study habits, choice of courses (when you have any choice)—have confidence in your ability to make your own decisions and that they will be the best decisions.

Flat Hat Try-Outs To Be Held On September 29th

The Flat Hat will hold try-outs for new staff members on Tuesday, September 29, it was announced by Editor-in-Chief Arnold Lubasch.

All interested students, freshmen and upperclassmen, are asked to come to Marshall-Wythe 302 at 7:30 p. m. on September 29 for the initial try-out.

Openings are available on all newspaper staffs, which include News, Sports, Features, Business and Advertising, and Circulation. Jean Andrews, news editor, also urged any students interested in doing typing to try-out.

Positions are granted on the basis of talent, demonstrated in try-out projects; no previous experience is needed to gain a position on the staff. Freshmen are particularly urged to attend try-outs and the Flat Hat needs to add a large number to its staff.

In a statement about the try-outs, Arnold Lubasch said, "We want staff members who are interested in the newspaper and willing to work."

THE EDITORIAL MIRROR

From "The Cavalier Daily" Of The University Of Virginia

"My college education was no haphazard affair. My courses were all selected with a very definite aim in view, with a serious purpose in mind—no classes before eleven in the morning or after two-thirty in the afternoon; and nothing on Saturday at all. That was my slogan. On that rock was my education built."

—Robert Benchley

There are, we suppose, some students in the University who choose their courses in the method Robert Benchley outlined in his essay "What College Did To Me." They probably take courses similar to those that Benchley found fitted into his schedule at the best times: "History and Appreciation of the Clavichord," "Exceptions to the Verb Etre," "The Social Life of the Minor Sixteenth Century Poets," "Doric Columns: Their Uses, History and Various Heights," and also courses in the history of lacemaking, Russian taxation systems before Catherine the Great, North American glacial deposits, and Early Renaissance etchers. Quite a liberal education.

There are other students who choose their curriculum as conscientiously as they can, but they have little upon which to base their selections other than the sometimes prejudiced observations of a faculty adviser, the cryptic and occasional erratic explanatory paragraph in the University catalogue, and the hearsay of a few friends.

There is, then, no concrete guide to which students whose curriculum is indefinite may refer for help in choosing the courses which would prove to be the most beneficial for them. If one stops and thinks about the matter, how many courses that he did not take would he have taken if he had been correctly informed of their content; and, conversely, how many courses would he have avoided if he had known the true nature of the course he took upon someone else's advice.

The solution to this situation, which in some individual instances could change the entire college career of a student and even affect his later life to a considerable extent, would be to establish at the University a valid and practical course evaluation program.

Under such a set-up, which has proven both workable and very successful at other universities, each student would fill out a carefully-planned questionnaire, giving his own sober evaluation of the courses he took the preceding semester. The results of these questionnaires would be tabulated and distributed to the students without charge. Each student would then have readily available a comprehensive survey of the relative values of every course which might interest him.

The need for such a program is pronounced.

New Promotions, Appointments Mark Important Changes In W&M Faculty

Several important changes in the William and Mary faculty have occurred during the past summer. Approximately 15 new appointments have been announced as replacements for faculty members who have been transferred or have been promoted.

Recent promotions include: J. Worth Banner, formerly acting chairman of Modern Languages, promoted to Associate Professor to Professor of Modern Languages; James Kenwood Clark, from Associate Professor to Professor of English; Joseph Curtis, from Associate Professor to Professor of Law; W. Melville Jones, from Associate Professor to Professor of English; R. Wayne Kernodle, from Associate Professor to Professor of Sociology and Anthropology.

Emily Eleanor Calkins, from Assistant Professor to Associate Professor of Mathematics; I-Kua Chou, from Assistant Professor to Associate Professor of Government; Anthony Sancetta, from Assistant Professor to Professor of Economics; Howard M. Smith, Jr., from Assistant Professor to Associate Professor of Physical Education.

Charles Edward Davidson, from Instructor to Assistant Professor of English; Alexander Kallos, from Instructor to Assistant Professor of Modern Languages; Beatrice K. Rome, from Instructor to Associate Professor of Philosophy and Howard M. Scammon, from Instructor to Assistant Professor of Fine Arts.

The following names are the newly appointed members to the William and Mary faculty.

William W. Abbot, Assistant Professor of History, has been teaching at Duke University, where he received his Ph.D. in June, 1953. He attended college at Davidson and the University of Georgia, from which he received his A. B. He is an M.A. from Duke.

Whitfield J. Bell, Visiting Professor of History and Acting Editor of the William and Mary Quarterly is on leave from his position as Professor of History at Dickinson College, while taking the place of Douglass G. Adair who is Visiting Professor of History at the University of Washington. He is an A.B. from Dickinson, M.A. and Ph.D. from Pennsylvania.

Gloria Bryant, Instructor of Physical Education, has a B.S. from Sargent College, Boston University and an M. S. from Smith. She has taught at the College of Wooster and Rollins College.

Donald J. Bucklin, Assistant Professor of Biology, has spent the past year as a Merck Research Fellow in Experimental Embryology at Harvard University. He holds a B.A. from Brown, M.A. from Amherst and Ph.D. from Washington University.

Fred S. Dunham, Visiting Professor of Ancient Languages, is a retired Professor of Latin Languages and Literature at the University of Michigan. He is teaching Professor Wagener's classes during the first month of the Fall term while Dr. Wagener is completing a research project in Latium, near Rome.

Catherine Edmonson, Instructor in Physical Education, is a B.S. and a candidate for the M.S. degree at Texas State College for Women.

Capt. Thomas V. Hirschberg, Artillery, Assistant Professor of Military Science and Tactics has a B.S. from West Point.

Joseph R. Lee, Associate Professor of Mathematics, is an A.B., M.A., and Ph.D. from Yale University. He has taught at Yale and Michigan.

Albert Lutz, Assistant Professor of Chemistry, is an A.B., M.A., and Ph.D. from the Johns Hopkins University where he is engaged in teaching and research.

James Maslowski, Assistant Professor of Sociology and Anthropology, holds his A.B. and M.A. from Washington State College and his Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina.

Carl G. Meeks, Assistant Professor of Physical Education, is a B.S. from East Tennessee State College, an M.A. from the University of Mississippi and a Doctor of Education from Columbia University.

Pierre C. Oustinnoff, Assistant Professor of Modern Languages, has been teaching at Columbia University since 1949. He is an A.B. from Bard College and an M. A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Col. Guy L. Pace, Artillery, Professor and Head of the Department of Military Science and Tactics. He is an A.B. from Colorado A&M.

Raymond L. Rawls, Instructor in Business Administration, received his B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from Tulane and his M.B.A. from the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania.

Gordon Vandervort, Acting Assistant Professor of Physics, is a B.S. and M.S. from the University of Wisconsin and a candidate for the Ph.D. at that institution.

Charles R. Varner, Assistant Professor of Music and Director of the William and Mary Band, holds his Bachelor of Music Education and Master of Music degrees from Northwestern University. He is a graduate of the U. S. Navy Band School.

William E. Walker, Instructor in English, has taught at the Darlington School for Boys, Rome, Georgia, and Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee. He is an A.B. from the University of South Carolina, an M.A. from Columbia University and a candidate for the Ph.D. at Vanderbilt.

Other new faculty members are: Herman Silva, Acting Associate Professor of Biology; Linville Watson, Acting Associate Professor of Sociology; Morton J. Frisch, Acting Associate Professor of Government and Margaret Hamilton, Acting Associate Professor of Government.

Rejoining the faculty this year is Richard L. B. Morfit, Assistant Professor of Modern Languages, who has just returned from Belgium as an exchange teacher for Emile W. Watrin.

Flat Hat Origin

The Flat Hat, the name of this publication, was given to the paper by its first staff on October 2, 1911.

The specific name, the Flat Hat, dates back to a club of that name founded at the college in 1750. The club was purely social in character and many believe that the Flat Hat Club led to the founding of Phi Beta Kappa in 1776.

Reestablishment Of Education Major To Begin Here With First Semester

The attention of all students preparing to teach in elementary or secondary schools is directed to the fact that concentration in Education has been re-established beginning with the first semester of the current session.

Students selecting Education as their field of concentration should see Dr. George J. Oliver, Head of the Department of Education, in Room 112, Marshall-Wythe, for advice in registering.

English 103 and Psychology 150, not included in the current catalogue, will be offered first semester 1953-54.

English 103, lectures three hours and three credits, is a course in grammar, composition and literature comparable to English 101. It is designed for students whom placement tests show to be of above average competence in this field.

Psychology 150, lectures two hours and two credits, may not be counted as part of the concentrate program in Psychology.

The following offerings differ from the current catalogue:

Embryology of Vertebrates (Biology 202) will be taught first semester instead of second semester, and Comparative Anatomy of Vertebrates (Biology 201) will be taught during second semester, not the first.

Advertising (Business 313) will be offered second semester instead of first, while Economics of Transportation (Economics 401) will be offered second semester, not first.

American Social History of the 18th Century (History 413) will be offered as two sections during the second semester, rather than as one section each semester.

Death Takes Three College Professors Here During Summer

The deaths of three William and Mary faculty members was announced recently by Dr. Charles Marsh, dean of the faculty.

Dr. Roy Philip Ash, associate professor of biology, passed away after a prolonged illness. He received his A.B. at Marietta College, and his A.M. and Ph.D. at Brown University.

Dr. Archie Garnett Ryland, professor of French Emeritus and former head of the department of modern languages, also died. Dr. Ryland received his A.B. at Richmond College and his A.M. and Ph.D. at Harvard University.

J. R. L. Johnson, professor of English Emeritus, also died this summer.

Tribe Opens Year Against Deacons In Tobacco Bowl

W&M Grid Eleven Composed Of Iron Men This Season; Prospects Good For Winning Team Despite Small Squad

By Rene Henry
W&M Publicity Director

Beginning his second season as head football coach, Jackie Freeman will be faced with the problem of fielding a winning team with but 14 returning lettermen and a squad of only 24 men, as compared to 45 last season and 75 in 1951. However, among that handful he will have such outstanding performers as all-America candidate fullback Bill Bowman, end John "Jeep" Bednarik, guard Linwood Cox, who was honorable mention all-America and top choice for All-Southern last season, tackles George Parozze and "Jarring Jerry" Sazio, a tackle who was inactive last year but whose aggressiveness as a linebacker made him feared by opposing backs during the 1951 season.

This quintet will form the nucleus of the 1953 William and Mary Indians. One thing in favor of the Tribe is the change to the old one-platoon rule, which will serve to offset the lack of depth because of tremendous losses in personnel. With the National Collegiate Athletic Association reverting to this limited substitution rule, once more football fans will see the sixty-minute man.

Freeman and the coaching staff should be able to field a good starting team, but after the first fifteen there is a considerable drop in the calibre of the reserves. Because of this, injuries will very definitely be a determining factor in the fate of the Indians.

The change to the one-platoon rule is highly favored by the entire Big Green coaching staff. The coaches were able to accomplish much in the way of preparing even see action at center. Holding down the center position is a reconverted guard, co-captain Steve Milkovich. He and Scott may possibly shift on occasions.

Linwood Cox, the 170 pound mighty-mite guard who has held a starting guard position for two seasons may at times see action as an end or center. Sophomore flash Bill Marfizo, who was set to break into the lineup at either an end or center-linebacker position, will be out for an indefinite period with a vertebrae injury in the lumbar region. The 195 pounder looked very promising during early drills but is currently hospitalized. His absence will be sorely missed by the Big Green.

The hardest spot to fill will be that of Ed "Meadows" Mioduszewski, the Tribe's great running quarterback. Freeman will employ both diminutive Al Grieco and Charlie Sumner at the signal calling slot. Bob Elzey, who played a lot of ball at a defensive safety position last year, will back up the former. All three can play halfback, and Grieco and Sumner may alternate at quarterback-halfback in the Big Green backfield.

Because of the shortage of offensive ends and a weak passing combination, which the coaches have been working hard to remedy, the Tribe's defenses will more often see them coming out of a running attack than taking to the air. This can also be attributed to a bulk of good running backs.

Leading the ground assault is "Bullet" Bill Bowman (Birmingham, Alabama), 205 pounds of driving fullback. An all-America candidate this Fall, the speedy Bowman last season averaged 6.1 yards per try, ranked fifth in the Southern Conference in rushing, and ripped off a 67 yard off-tackle sprint against the VMI Keydets.

Sophomore Billy Martin, a sensation in Spring drills, will operate the halfback slot. The Korean veteran, who was ineligible as a transfer student during '52, would have been the ace-in-the-hole who could have broken up William and Mary's fabulous "Lonesome Four-some" backfield.

Walter "Shorty" Herrman and Jack Place, both Korean veterans and defensive halfbacks last year, will share the other halfback slot. Sophomore Doug "Red-Head" Henley will be the only other reserve back.

The line should be strong as long as it lasts. With three men like Sazio, Parozze, and Bednarik anchoring it, it should be rugged. Tommy Martin, Cox, and Scott should not be counted out either.

Chet Wakszynski will be heavily counted on for reserve duty. A soph this fall, "Waxy" has developed more finesse and picked up added weight to go along with his experience. He can play both guard and tackle. Junior Johnny Risjord and soph Bill Nagy will also see reserve duty. Risjord, a track dash man and jumper, is a newcomer flankman. Nagy is still hindered somewhat with a knee ailment.

Pigskin Notes

The Tribe football coach, Jack Freeman, may shy from optimistic comments on what is in store for his varsity this season, but just ask him about the boys who make up that varsity and he'll talk plenty. Freeman's specialty is all-around talent and this year he has a raft of it. The good showing his ball players make in the classroom and around the Williamsburg campus is enough to make any coach proud.

Co-captains Tommy Martin of Roanoke and Steve Milkovich of Johnstown, Penn., are typical. Martin is so good on the books that he rates the Dean's List and still has enough spare time to hold down a responsible position in his fraternity. Milkovich served as treasurer for the College's Interfraternity Council and his fraternity as well. Diverse in his talents, he is an accomplished dabbler in oils and has done portraits of his fraternity brothers, something unique for a burly lineman.

Halfback Jack Place of Williamsburg is one of the top men on the scholastic totem pole. A Dean's List student (he made four A's and one B last semester) he is president of his fraternity, and an accounting major. Freeman was proud to learn of both Place and Martin being mentioned at the pre-season Academic All-America squad.

Dean's List Student

A track man who is trying his first year at football is Johnny Risjord of Kansas City, Mo. John has been on the Dean's List every semester he has been in school and very active in his fraternity as well.

L. Quinby "Hadaool" Hines, the little place kicking specialist from Suffolk, is a member of the Student Government, Interfraternity Council, secretary of the Varsity Club, and Chaplain for his fraternity. When he isn't kicking the extra points he's tending the water bucket for his team mates.

All-America candidate fullback, "Bullet" Bill Bowman is another fine example of a W&M athlete. A good student, he is majoring in accounting and finds time to be active in his fraternity, the Accounting Club, Varsity Club, and the Scabbard and Blade.

Rugged Wake Forest Squad Meets Indians At Richmond As Gridiron Opens For W-M

By Dick Rowlett
Flat Hat Sports Writer

The 1953 edition of the William and Mary gridiron Indians will inaugurate the season this Saturday afternoon in the annual Tobacco Bowl game in Richmond against a very strong Wake Forest eleven. The game is a rematch of the game of two year's ago when the Tribe upset the Demon Deacons, 7-6, on Quinby Hines' conversion in the first Tobacco game.

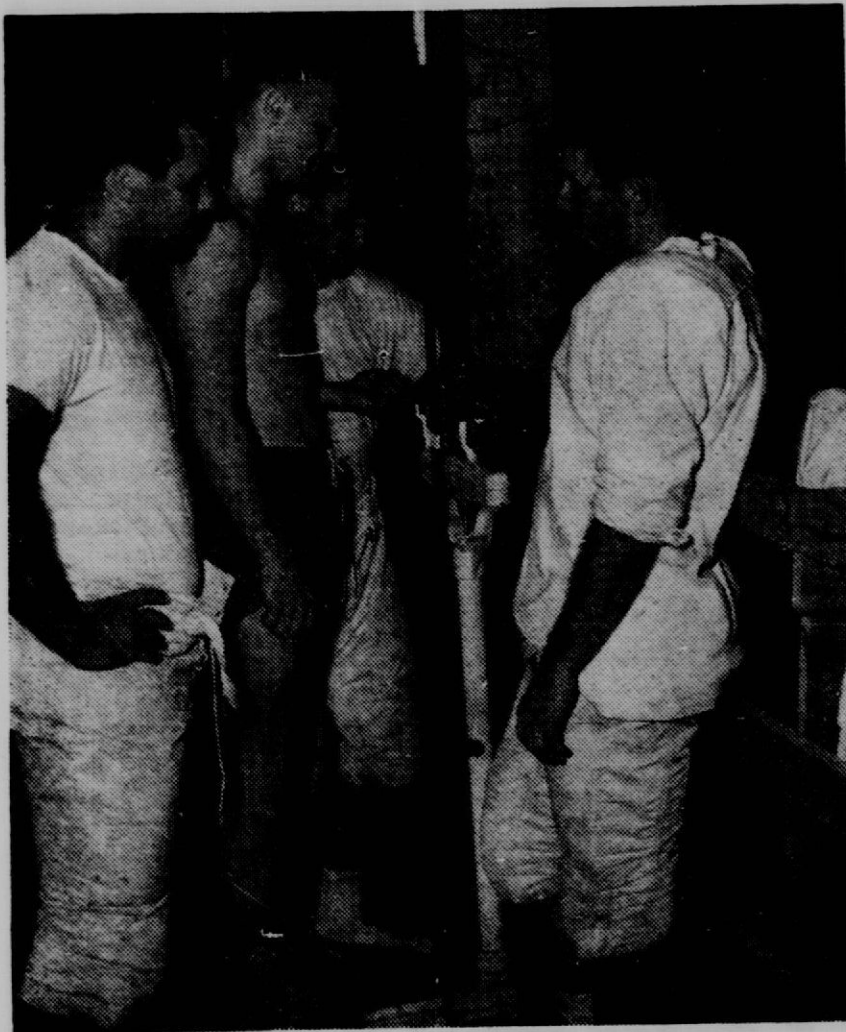

Last year the Demon Deacons nipped the W&M squad in a 28-21 thriller. This year the North Carolinas crew looks as powerful as the last time around, while the Indians, 23 strong, will in all probability be hard pressed to emulate last season's record. The Wake Forest aggregation compiled a none too gaudy 5-4-1 slate last year, but dropped only one encounter in the old Southern Conference.

This year the outcome of the ball game is not crucial in the sense that it counts in any Conference standings. The Wake Forest team now is a member of the new Atlantic Coast Conference, while William and Mary remains a member of the Southern Conference.

Heading the invaders' cast will be quarterback Sonny George, who

However, this is not an admission of weakness on the Black and Gold's part. Rather, it shows how surprisingly strong the Deacs are this year. The good veteran line material has been shuttled to the sidelines.

No less than four lettermen, including the widely heralded Bob Bartholomew, will watch the opening kickoff from the bench. Sophomores Donnie Garrison and Tom Swatzel at tackles, Earl Shields and Tony Trentini at guards and a fifth second-year man, Joe Dupree at center, are the team for the change during spring drills and worked hard last week to recondition the squad.

With a combined practice (instead of the offensive and defensive units practicing separately) and a small squad, the Indians' coaching staff of Freeman, Eric Tipton, Herb Miller, Boydson Baird, Joe Mark and Sonny Cowling were able to spend much more time with each individual player than they had been able to previously.

As a result, all of the squad members had very little trouble in adapting themselves to handling both offensive and defensive assignments. The starting lineup should be well balanced and equally as strong on both offense and defense.

Perhaps the most versatile individual on the team is co-captain Tommy Martin who plays both ways and has handled himself at halfback, guard, tackle, and backing up the line. This year he may be used in all, as well as at a starting end berth. At the other end position is another familiar face, John "Jeep" Bednarik. The stalwart Polish tiger has previously been employed as a fullback, center, guard, and last season as an offensive tackle.

Sam Scott, has been a starter at an offensive tackle slot the last two years and this Fall will move into the guard slot, and may runs, passes and kicks extra points. George heads a veteran backfield that includes Billy Churm, Bruce Hillenbrand, and Fullback Smokey Brand. Churm and Hillenbrand each tallied once in last year's donneybrook at Cary Field, and George scored the winning touchdown and added four straight placements.

Since this backfield ran as a unit last season, it is reasonable to expect a smooth functioning running attack. George will also probably take to the air frequently because he had a great deal of success against the Tribe's defensive secondary, as did many of the Indians' opponents last year. Sophomores Joe White, Dick Marshall, and John Parham have been the most sparkling newcomers in the Deacs practice sessions as of late, and any one could win starting berths in Saturday's fracas.

At the end posts the Wake Forest squad is blessed with three top-notch performers in offensive regulars Bob Ondilla and Wes Ledford, and defensive star Ed Stowers. Ondilla was second in pass receptions last year for the Demon Deacons. He lost out to the great Jack Lewis, who W&M fans are sure to remember for his great pass catching show last year, including one grab while lying flat on his back which greased the skids under the Indians.

Five sophomores comprise the middle remnant of the Deacon line.

listed as tentative starters.

Coach Tom Rogers of the North Carolina crew has not deviated from the early season path that all football coaches seem to pursue in that he has wielded the crying towel both vigorously and effectively. Nonetheless he expects to have evened the series standings with the Tribe at five games apiece by sun-down Saturday night.

After Saturday's contest the Indian gridders, will still not return to the Reservation for two more weeks. They will travel to Annapolis the following Saturday to test a strong Middle team that is expected to rank among the nation's powerhouses and boasts an All-American guard in Steve Eisenhauer.

Student Tickets

Student tickets for the Wake Forest-William and Mary game will be on sale only until NOON Friday, September 18. They are specially priced at $1.50, which is $3.10 below regular price.

Chartered buses will be available for students for $2.25 round trip. They will take you direct from the campus to City Stadium and back. See Mickey MacCoy, head cheerleader to sign up and purchase your bus ticket.

Women's Hockey

The beginning of the Fall season at William and Mary indicates the beginning of hockey practice for the women students. William and Mary is fortunate in being one of the few co-ed colleges participating in intercollegiate women's athletics.

The William and Mary 'squaws' as the team is fondly called, travel to Sweet Briar, Westhampton, Madison and several other colleges in the state.

It also gives the girls an opportunity to take in the social activities of neighboring colleges. The season will conclude with the State Hockey Tournament which will be held in Richmond. The tournament will be held on the 6th and 7th of November.

Hockey practice for all students interested in playing Varsity or Junior Varsity hockey will begin on Monday, September 21st at 4 p. m. Thereafter practices will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 4 p. m. until 6 p. m.

Miss Reeder and Miss Barrand, under whose expert guidance the teams will be coached, would especially like to urge the new students to come to these practices. The 'Squaws' have a lot of fun as they develop sportsmanship and many close friendships.

Intramurals Begin

The 1953-54 intramural season at William and Mary will begin on September 26, when competition in touch football, tennis singles and horseshoes will begin. Dud Jensen, Director of Intramural Activities has announced.

Jensen, who is beginning his third year in this position (although this year he has taken on the added responsibility of being O. D.'s reasonable facsimile of a house mother) has expanded and improved the program during his tenure.

Competition is usually divided into two parts, fraternity and independent, so any male on the campus who wishes to compete in any intramural sport has an opportunity to do so. Notices are posted in the basement of Blow Gym, next to Jensen's intramural office.

Cross Country

Coach Billy Joyner's William and Mary cross country squad will face an eight meet schedule that includes three dual meets, three triangular meets, and the Big-6 and Southern Conference meets.

This season the Indian Reservation will be the host site of the Southern Conference distance carnival.

Leading the returning veterans will be diminutive 5' 8" 140 pound Leo Schutte a junior from New Haven, Conn. Schutte ran the mile and half-mile distances last spring for the Big Green cinder-men.

Billy Joyner

Two outstanding soph prospects include Bud Fisher and Hugh McMahon, both from Falls Church, Va. Fisher was a letterman last fall and was an excellent two miler for the Indians.

CARB'S BARBS

By Dick Rowlett
Flat Hat Sports Writer

Not

Nate Carb
Flat Hat Sports Editor

For the first (and only week) Carb's Barbs will not be written by Carb but by Rowlett. Carb did get back on time, but suffering from a nasty case of ennui, finally despaired of doing anything creative late last night, and decided to print Dick's effort of the previous Saturday. A word to the wise is sufficient though: Enjoy yourself this week, cause next week I'll be back aboard, for better or for worse, in sickness or in health, for a whole delightful? semester of laughs, fun and frolic. Ugh!

Welcoming newcomers to the Reservation is a job usually reserved for the Editor of each department and not for lowly staff members. Indian Nate, the head man in the sports department has at this time failed to report for action and so you'll just have to accept Saturday's Substitute. A hated soph no less.

The Dodgers, Ben Hogan and the winner of the Sysonby Mile between Native Dancer and Tom Fool deserve nothing but accolades for a job well-done. The prize for the biggest disappointment of the Summer goes to the Giants almost uncontested and may they languish in the lower regions of the National league for many years to come.

However that should be enough salt for the wounds right now. After all football season is arriving and a few startling changes have come with it. In the first place it appears as if the professional athletes are slowly going to disappear from the college scene. On many of the college campuses athletes will be seen in the classrooms as well as on the athletic fields.

Big time recruiting of athletes has been tempered by the latest findings of the NCAA "purity" board. Football is once again football, as the two platoon system has vanished from the scene. The game may not be as spectacular as in the past, but it appears that it is becoming more of a college endeavor and less of an outside one.

Turning from football in general to football on the Reservation, several comments can be made. Last Friday's pep rally proved, aside from the fact that the upperclassmen didn't know the cheers any better than the frosh, that Coach Freeman and company intend to have a hustling, fighting squad—it seems that "hustle," "fight" and all the other old bromides are always used in sports commenting, but if there is anyone on campus who can write without the numerous cliches come on up to the Flat Hat office and we'll put you to work.

However the one little thing that bothers us is the tremendous amount of concern and care that this year's freshmen are receiving. Hats for only two weeks, "Mixers," protection from the lecherous fraternity menace, all were un-heard of in the old days when I first came to college . . . 1952-53.

At last Saturday's "mixer" this reporter enjoyed watching the form of "police state" that exists this year. Two poor souls, drenched to the skin, stumbled in seeking refuge from the storm only to be given the heave and banished by the head powers. In fact, one noted piano-player resembled Augie Donatelli of the National League with both the gusto and frequency that he evicted people—if you don't believe me ask the eminent President of the Student Body.

We seemed to have strayed from sports in our pleasant little jaunt down memory lane and so we promise to return to the topic at hand. This fall both the football and cross-country teams will be working a little short-handed, but will be doing their best all the time. We urge the student body to remember that an ounce of enthusiasm is worth two pounds of criticism.

In "Bullet Bill" Bowman, Jerry Sazio, Linwood Cox and George Parezzo the Tribe has four boys who could play on any ball club in the country. Tommy Martin, Steve Milkovich, and "Jeep" Bednarik aren't as highly balleyhoed, but could be even better than the four previously mentioned. Bill Martin is considered by many coaches as the most dangerous man on the ball club.

The end of September also means it's nearing World Series time and once again we have a "subway" Series on tap. This year I think that the Yankee express will finally be derailed. However, even if the Yanks make it through unscathed again, it appears the day of reckoning is just around the corner. My selection for last place this year, the Boston Red Sox look like money in the bank next year or the year after. To all Red Sox fans I humbly apologize.

To the campus and its students this first issue is in the form of a greeting . . . besides three-fourths of you won't read the Flat Hat after this copy and of those who do only about 25% read the sports page. If you want to work long hours with no pay, yet have a lot of fun we'll see you when Flat Hat tryouts open.

WOMEN'S WILES

By Helen Male
Flat Hat Woman's Sports Editor

Welcome to all you new students, both freshmen and transfers, and to all you old-timers, the returning upperclassmen. It's hard for me to believe that the Summer has finally come to an end and that classes will soon be under way. With the coming of classes comes the first issue of the Flat Hat and another inimitable Women's Wiles. After a wonderful Summer of doing very little, but having a great time doing it, it's rather difficult for yours truly to get her mind working again, particularly in a wiley women sort of way.

Nevertheless, here goes an attempt to introduce you to your WAA officers. Heading the organization is Shirley Haabstad, a senior, who is active in varsity hockey, basketball and tennis, as well as most of the intramural sports.

The important job of point recorder falls to Sally Dahm, a junior. Brenda Korns, the sophomore member of the committee, holds down the job of secretary, while Peggy Orr and Barbara Brown are the student head of intramurals and secretary of the manager's board respectively.

These girls share their responsibilities with the various intramural representatives and student managers, although their work would be all in vain were it not for the cooperation of the entire women's student body.

Even though the WAA handbooks have been distributed, the point system could be discussed a bit further. Each girl is awarded a certain number of points for her participation on a varsity or intramural team. Individual sports are also worthy of points toward one of the awards that are made every spring.

Of course, now that the Fall season is upon us, hockey is the sport in the limelight. The games are always exciting and promise an interesting afternoon to both players and spectators. Let me emphasize that the spectators' bleachers are not confined to women. Men are most cordially invited.

Often, the women students feel that there is no point in supporting the women's teams. However, women are not that different from men that they will not play better if they know they have the backing of the rest of the women and some of the men, we hope.

Some of the activities that go on throughout the year, regardless of the weather or season, offer a great deal of fun to each and every girl. Plunge periods in Blow Pool are held every second and fourth Tuesday of the month, although Jefferson Pool is open all the time.

The physical education department is excellent and extremely well qualified to teach the great variety of sports offered in the curriculum. They work hard to acquaint you girls with these sports, although this is difficult to accomplish if there is no enthusiasm and spirit in the classes.

Good luck to all of you this year. All of us concerned with the physical education department and extra-curricular program hope to see you out for our activities.

Freshmen: Heed Warning: You Must Wear 'Duc Caps'

"All freshmen must wear 'duc caps' when on the campus or in Williamsburg . . ." This statement will be recognized by all freshmen men and women.

The wearing of freshmen hats, although a tradition of sorts, is certainly not one of the ancient heritages of the College. Freshmen have always been marked in some way, as newcomers anywhere usually are, but it was not until a little more than 25 years ago that 'duc caps' become the distinctive mark of William and Mary freshmen. The first mention of these green and gold caps was in the Flat Hat of September 30, 1921. The following are excerpts from the duc rules of 1921:

"A 'duc' is one who is enrolled for the first time in the College of William and Mary, and who has no sophomore standing.

"Every freshman shall wear a distinctive hat commonly known as a 'duc cap.' This rule does not apply on Sundays, while out of town, or during stormy weather.

"All freshmen are required to wear 'duc caps' during informal dances."

Today the practice of wearing 'duc caps' has become somewhat complicated. All freshmen must wear their caps on weekdays, but on week ends freshmen women must display at least one of the College colors by wearing a ribbon in her hair. Freshmen men must wear black bow ties on week ends. Offenders of this ruling will be brought before the sophomore tribunal, according to Dick Blanchard, president of the sophomore class.

It seems necessary to note here that in the majority of cases, the ostracized freshmen or, more specifically, the frosh women benefit from the measure supposedly intended to ridicule them. That is, there are those who appreciate bebies of fawning upper-class males getting cricks in their necks annually from straining to read the names on freshmen women's caps.

The class of '57 will strain its collective ingenuity and blazon forth with some revolutionary ideas on how to wear the headgear if they follow their predecessors.

Students, Musicians Visit W&M Campus Throughout Summer

An enrollment of nearly 500 summer school students, a six-week visit of 48 foreign students, a week's visit of ten French students, an invasion of nearly 90 high school musicians, and a play highlighted the William and Mary campus scene this summer.

On June 17 ten French students, five boys and five girls, spent a week here as the guests of the College and Colonial Williamsburg. The students, all 19 or 20 years old and graduates of normal schools in France, were winding up a year's visit to the United States where they had been studying at various schools. They returned to France to take up positions teaching in elementary schools.

On June 22, high school musicians from all over the state gathered on campus to attend the summer band clinic, under the co-directorship of Sidney Berg and Russell Williams. The main event of the week's encampment was an oper-air concert in front of the Wren Building by a 70-piece band. The William and Mary center for overseas students played host to 48 foreign students from 19 countries for six weeks. Dr. Warner Moss was in charge of the program which began on July 25 and ran until September 5.

Night Session Expects Gain For Semester Enrollments

The current rate of applications for admission to the 1953-54 evening session indicates that there will probably be "an appreciable increase" over last year's night school enrollment, John S. Quinn, coordinator of the session, stated.

He went on to say that a "considerable" number of applications have been received from residents of the peninsula area and from military personnel stationed in the Williamsburg area. When classes begin September 24, Quinn expects last year's enrollment of 152 to be far exceeded.

The registration for classes will be held Tuesday, September 22, from 7 to 9:30 p. m. in Marshall Wythe.

The evening session will offer courses in economics, sociology, psychology, English literature and grammar, French, German, Russian, Spanish, history, government, business, public speaking, fine arts, mathematics, education and typing. All courses, except typing will carry three semester hours credit which may be applied toward a degree at the College or be transferred to another institution.

Furniture Sale

Mortar Board is sponsoring a sale of used room furnishings, which will include such items as bookcases, lingerie chests, curtains and bed spreads. The sale will be held everyday this week from noon until 2 p. m. in Barret attic, center. It was announced by Sarah Dean Spangler, Mortar Board president.

Andrews Awarded Editorial Position

Jean Andrews has been chosen as the news editor of the Flat Hat for the current semester, it was announced by Editor-in-Chief Arnold Lubasch.

Jean moves up to her new position from the news staff and replaces former News Editor Anne Sidner who has transferred to the University of Nebraska.

She has been active in journalism for several years as a reporter and editor of her high school paper in Detroit, Michigan. Last summer Jean worked on the advertising and make-up staff of a suburban newspaper in Detroit.

Active in the Backdrop Club and the Spanish Club, Jean is publicity chairman of the Music Club and editor for Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority.

Student Body President Cary Scates Likes Girls, Parties, Simpler By-Laws

Cynthia Frye and Andrea Thunander

Introducing our next speaker, Cary Scates, President of the Student Body.

A Senior and blatantly a Kappa Alpha man, Cary is a jurisprudence major. Better known as "Scoots," he hopes to get a masters' degree in Distribution Economics at the University of Pennsylvania. Before his "grand and glorious days at ye ol' William and Mary," he went to the University of Maryland for one semester and then served for two years with the Naval Air Corps in the Pacific Zone.

The summer months find Cary working hard for his father in the retail furniture business in Washington, where he gains the experience that will be needed when he ultimately enters this business.

The kind of people Cary likes best? In a serious mood, he might admit he likes frank, sincere, industrious people—then, the old Scoots will shine through and add, "of course, they MUST party, too." Actually, the people he best likes can be described in five letters: GIRLS. What's that Cary, "Guess that makes you wierd?" Absolutely not! Wouldn't have you any other way.

Reinstating and elaborating on his winning platform that advocates a stronger, more active, better balanced Student Government, Cary recently called for a number of basic changes.

Cary feels that the changes in administration and subsequent revision in the past two years has created a drastic change in the student body and in the way of campus life. Using his own words. . . "It has changed from the group of older veterans to our present group . . . a rather drastic change in age, experience. Our problems stem from a much slower change in social custom, a hang-over, so to speak, from one group to another. Some of these customs are good and help to develop a student's personality; others are bad and can be damaging to young people."

Believing that both administration and students are working towards the same thing, namely, "a better educational community," he feels that it should be relatively easy for them to coincide on areas of responsibility and authority—something which has been rather nebulous in the past.

"Revised Student Government by-laws, a lot of unnecessary, antiquated parts thrown out and a few basic, simple sections added. . . actually a simplification, a reshuffling of responsibility . . . will create a smoother running, more integrated relationship; a relationship working efficiently towards a common goal."

Cary would like to have a more thorough instillation of the alumni program into William and Mary students, "a program covering four full years instead of the present two months in the senior year." He points out that this is bound to give us a bigger, stronger, happier alumni who will send us better students. "It's like sending out 300 missionaries a year."

Another project soon to be promoted by the new president is the making of Student Leaders into real student representatives and not just "administrative mouth-pieces or go-betweens." Cary believes that changing the constitution so that Student Government standing committees will include people who are not on the Student Assembly will help attain this goal.

Chairmen Of Honor Councils Welcome Incoming Students; Ask Cooperation

By Hugh DeSampier

The chairmen of the Men's and Women's Honor Councils met with the incoming student groups on Sunday night at 8 p. m. and outlined the honor system while welcoming the new students and wishing them well during their stay at William and Mary.

Smaller group meetings were held yesterday morning, and the students signed the pledge cards at 1:30 yesterday afternoon.

Depends on Students

In a statement to the Flat Hat, Jim Grant, chairman of the Men's Honor Council, said, "I wish that all will understand their obligations to the honor system and familiarize themselves with the mechanics of the system and understand that its success is totally dependent upon the students."

He went on to say, "The system works because the students want it to work. We believe that it has many advantages and hope that all students will make full use of those advantages as they realize their responsibilities."

Members of the Men's Honor Council, in addition to Grant, are Tom Kenyon, vice-chairman, John Marsh, secretary, Warren Weiss, senior representative, Otto Lowe, junior representative and Ming Chang, sophomore representative. One junior post is vacant.

In a special statement to the Flat Hat, Libby Lewis, chairman of the Women's Honor Council, made the following remarks: "The purpose of the Honor System is to provide a way of living and working together in the College community through the respect of the integrity of the individual student."

Everyone A Part

She went on to say, "Everyone is a necessary part of the system, for without the support of all, the Honor System would not work. It is up to the new students as well as the old ones to carry on the work and the spirit of the Honor System."

Members of the Women's Honor Council, in addition to Libby, are senior members Shirley Haabestad and Sarah Dean Spangler, junior members Pep McLaughlin and Mary Lou Riggan, and sophomore member Ginny Naab.

Infraction of the Honor Code at any time during student days is punishable by dishonorable dismissal from the college. Infractions include cheating, stealing, lying. All scholastic work, whether it be in the lecture room, the library, the student's room, or elsewhere is under the Honor Code.

Graduate Scholarships Now Available For Americans Wishing British Study

A new series of scholarships for American graduate students wishing to study at a British university are available for the first time for the academic year 1954-55.

Twelve scholarships will be granted annually, each for a two year period which may be extended to three. Eligible for competition are United States citizens, men or women under the age of 23, graduates of an accredited U. S. college or university. The scholarships may be acceptable at any British university.

The value of each scholarship will be £500 a year, with an extra £200 for married men. Transportation will be provided from home to the British university and back.

The scholarships will be awarded on the basis of scholastic achievement and other activities. The series is being established by the British government as a gesture of thanks for Marshall Aid. Applications for the 1954-55 scholarships must be in by November 1, 1953. Further information may be obtained from British Information Services, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20, New York.

W&M Maintenance Crews Improve Buildings, Grounds

Twenty-four College buildings had their roofs repaired and five buildings were painted during the summer vacation, Hugh H. Sisson, Jr., College Bursar, stated in reviewing the summer's list of building and ground improvements.

The new oil-burning power plant, which was started before Christmas vacation, is slated for completion by October 1, Sisson reported. The new unit will not replace the coal-burning plant, which will be kept in case of an emergency.

Automatic presses have been installed in the College laundry, along with a new shirt press.

New steam lines were installed in the cafeteria serving counters to keep food warm while being served.

Sisson said that an inter-communications system has been wired in Jefferson and Chandler dormitories. The Brafferton, the alumni building, has been redecorated.

Among purchases Sisson reported that the College has acquired two new trucks to replace two badly worn ones. Two new power lawn mowers, a power sweeper, and a television set for Trinkle Hall were also purchased.

As to grounds improvements, Sisson stated that the wire fence that surrounds the tennis courts has been renewed where it was badly worn. Shrubbery has been planted around the fraternity lodge area to aid in beautification.

The seemingly never-ending job of raising the brick walks has been continued at various spots around the campus, Sisson said, adding that this project will continue.

Entering State Students Receive 49 Scholarships; Tidewater Area Wins Largest Number Of Awards

Forty-nine entering students have been awarded scholarships by the College of William and Mary.

These scholarships, totaling $11,500, range in value from $50 to $500.

The director of the William and Mary Placement Bureau, John C. Bright, said that all scholarship holders will supplement their award with part-time employment. The Placement Bureau will assist each student in arranging a work program.

The scholarship holders are as follows: Nancy Beery, Rodney Elliott, Robert Forrest, Sara Gallimore, Yolanda Grant, Robert Owens, Dennis Rawls, and James Singletary all from Norfolk.

From Portsmouth: Richard Couture, William Gatling, Jr., Herman Jones, Betty Lowe, Ralph Morrison, James Mounie, Glen Pearce and Francis J. Riley, Jr. and Thomas Weymouth of Newport News.

Guy Allen, Edward Eanes, Paul Higm, Rosser Rudolph of Arlington; Janet Cunningham, Elizabeth Hailman, George Justusson and Stuart Wood of Fairfax; William Eley and Shirley Ross of Alexandria.

Katherine Christian, Zona Mae Fairbanks, Suzanne Tully, Jackson White and Barbara Wilson of Richmond.

Mary Jordan and June Leffel of Roanoke; Bernard Brockman of Amherst; Charles Daniel, Jr., of Naruna; Edward Greer of Rocky Mount; Joan Lemon of Eagle Rock; Mary Buford Luck of Bedford and Frances Tyree of Ridge-way.

Mary Hutton, Charlottesville; Lenore Boss of Exmore; Arthur Fisher of Parksley; Jesse Berry of Ohoman; David Flemer of Oak Grove; Donald Earman of Harrisonburg; Benjamin Madison of Part Low; Robert Schlatter, Jr., of Luray and Delman Wilson of Brooke.

Jim Barnes Directs Virginia Boys' State

F. Barnes, II, director of Alumni and Information, was director of the 1953 Old Dominion Boys' State held in Blacksburg last June.

The week-long program, held on the campus of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, was designed to school future citizens of Virginia in the mechanics, objectives and ideals of democracy.

Barnes, who has been actively associated with Boys' State for six years, has served as assistant director for the past three years.

Approximately 500 high school students from all parts of the State attended the encampment to make it the largest in the program's fourteen year history.

When you smoke Chesterfield it's so satisfying to know that you are getting the one cigarette that's low in nicotine, highest in quality.

A fact proved by chemical analyses of the country's six leading cigarette brands.

And it's so satisfying to know that a doctor reports no adverse effects to the nose, throat and sinuses from smoking Chesterfield.

The doctor's report is part of a program supervised by a responsible independent research laboratory and is based on thorough bi-monthly examinations of a group of Chesterfield smokers over a period of a year and a half.
