Dance Prices Changed

Through a mistake in the last issue of the Flat Hat the prices for the sets were misquoted. The price for the sets are $4.00 for Cotillion Club members, and $5.00 for Non-Cotillion Club men. Stag prices for the set have been set at $$3.00 for Cotillion Club men, and $4.00 for non-Cotillion Club men. This set of dances marks the first time that a special and has been brought about by requests of both Cotillion and non-Cotillion Club men.

These dances are the second of the formal dance series, and follow the Co-ed dances held a week ago. This year the men's dances have been sponsored jointly by the Cotillion Club and the Board of Control. This system has proved very satisfactory, and officials of both organizations are in favor with continuing the sys-

Indian Track Stars First to Represent William and Mary in or Meet.

In the forthcoming I. C. A. A. A. A. indoor track meet to be held in New York City on March 4, William and Mary has entered two of its outstanding stars, John Bacon, and "Monk" Little. This will be the first indoor I. C. A. A. A. A. meet to which William and Mary has sent entries In "Monk" Little the Indians have entered one of the most versatile trackmen in the College existance. Last year, as a freshman, Little established Frosh records in the 220-yd dash, and the low hurdles, and also broke the existing college record in the running broad jump by laping 23'3 5-8". (old record 22' 51-2"). In the meet at New York he will be entered in the 70 yd. dash and running broad jump.

John Bacon will be entered in the running high jump, for which he holds the college record of 6' 3 3-4". Bacon, who is a Junior, still has two more seasons of college competition, and is expected to surpass his present record before hanging up his college track shoes.

Although this is the first appearance of the Indians in an indoor I. C. A. A. A. meet, they have previously sent entries to the outdoor meets in Philadlphia (1931), and Los Angeles (1932). William and Mary Joined the I. C. A. A. A. in 1930 Casey Stars in Both George Out a 27-23 victory.

Freshmen Lose to University of Richmond Frosh; Return to gation by a 43-15 score. Home Floor to Win Two The Senators complet for Frosh.

Mary Yearlings returned to their home floor to defeat John Marshall High and Wilson High quints. The John Marshall team offered little opposition for the Frosh, but the Portsmouth team gave them a tough scrap. The first few minutes of the game saw both teams scoreless, but after having made numerable attempts to store, the Frosh finally tallied twice. Then the visitors began to do a little sharpshooting themselves. They soon took the lead and held it until the end of the half. The second period saw the Freshmen jump into the lead momentarily, only to lose their four point lead shortly. The Wilson team sank several long baskets to give them a good lead. The Freshmen had to fight hard throughout the rest of the game to overcome this margin, doing so only in the last few minutes of play. With only a one point lead, Elmore sank a basket and Hannah dropped one from the foul line to give the Papooses a 35-31 game at the gun.

DOWN SPORTING LANE

It took the Indians to do the trick. After fifteen straight victories, the Emory and Henry Wasps, led by Glenn Roberts, bowed to the William and Mary basketeers 32-25. It was a close game throughout, but the vigorous second period offensive work of the Indians proved too much for Roberts and his cohorts.

Last Saturday night the tribe added another victory to their list when they defeated the Hampden-Sydney quintet. The Tigers put up a stubborn battle, but the Indians, without the services of Gallinant, managed to eke

As this goes to press, the Indians have two games remaining on their feated the Emory and Henry Wasps schedule, meeting Randolph-Macon on Tuesday night, and climaxing the season against Richmond on Thursday evening. A victory in both games will clinch the Virginia Conference Championship, and take it from me, Coach string of fifteen straight victories. Kellison's boys are out to get that coveted honor.

Instead of outlawing the Carneras of the boxing ring from heavy-weight competition, Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champion, suggests that they be forced to wear larger gloves or otherwise be handicapped.

"Bob Fitzsimmons proved many years ago," he said, "that extraordinary size is no important advantage to a fighter, when he knocked out 300-pound Ed Dunkhorst. However, it might be a good idea to handicap the big fellows in some way. My suggestion would be to make them wear larger gloves and thus minimize their weight advantage by softening the effects of their blows."

A chap out West at Otterbein College this year will get a degree for which he has waited twenty years. The man is Ray Watts, football coach since 1928 of the Baldwin Wallace College eleven, which is one of the strongest elevens in the Ohio State Conference.

Born in Michigan, Watts' family removed to Westerville, Ohio, where Otterbein College is located, and Watts went to school there. He completed two years at Otterbein, starring as quarterback on the elevens which beat Ohio Wesleyan, Denison and other teams of that calibre. Forced to drop out of college, Watts subsequently was called to act as athletic director. Later he coached high school teams in Cleveland, and youngsters from his teams went up to become college stars. Among the number are listed Mansfield and Tenhoopen of Wisconsin; Myers who became football captain at cals by a 39-29 score following which Ohio State, and Vokaty and Holten, stars at Heidelberg and Oberlin, respectively.

..... By a margin so convincing that it leaves no room for the slightest doubt, Knute Kenneth Rockne stands out as the greatest of sport leaders over the past decade, in the opinion of those who have most closely scanned the whirl of events over the period of 1923 to 1933.

Of the fifty experienced newspaper sports writers and editors who cast votes at the request of the Associated Press, forty one put Rockne's name at the head of the list. His total number of votes was 241. Tex Rickard, late boxing promoter was second with 137 points, and Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletic Baseball Club, was third with 110 votes.

A monument to Ernie Schaaf, though it does not bear his name, already stands in the lobby of Madison Square Garden. It is the Tunney-Muldoon heavyweight championship trophy donated jointly to the boxing world by William Muldoon, veteran of the New York State Athletic Commission, and was the high scorer for the club. Gene Tunney, upon the latter's retirement as heavyweight champion four years ago.

> Schaaf posed as the model for the bronze figure of a boxer that stands atop a heavy marble base, bearing the names of heavyweight champions from John L. Sullivan down through Tunney.

> Of all the boxers available, Schaaf's perfect proportions, his massive History is repeating itself in the transfer of Dazzy Vance, the veteran hurler from the Brooklyn club to the St. Louis Cardinals. When the Dodgers obtained Dazzy in the winter of 1921, they didn't want a pitcher, but a catcher. However, they had to take him from New Orleans, because the Southern Association wouldn't sell Hank DeBerry, the catcher whom Brooklyn wanted, unless Vance went along.

Last season the Cardinals wanted a shortstop and offered Jake Flowers for Gordon Slade. Carev, manager of the Brooklyn club, said he wanted a pitcher. The Cardinals wouldn't trade a pitcher, unless they got another in

And the final result is that the 40-year-old veteran finds himself with the Cardinals because the St. Louis club wanted protection at shortstopjust as 11 years ago a young-and-coming Vance found himself with the Dodgers because they wanted a catcher.

The Indians rang up four baskets in the first three minutes of play, which gave them a lead they held until near the end of the half. The Wasps came from behind before half time to tie the score at 16 all. Then Roberts' field goal and Funk's foul gave them a three-point lead as the half ended. However, this margin was short lived, for when the Indians returned to the floor, Litwin and Franklin sank a field goal each to give the Indians a one point lead. Roberts then followed with two points which put the Wasps in the van. Then for several minutes neither team could tally. Finally the Wasps defense cracked momentarily and the Indian sharpshooters piled up enough points in a short time to assure victory. With only a few minutes left the visitors chalked up four points to cut the Indians' lead to seven points at the gun.

Happy Halligan led the scoring for both teams with ten points while Robertson took the honors for the (Continued on page 5)

The William and Mary Indians defeated the Bridgewater Eagles last Tuesday night in a rather one sided game, 51-18. The Indians' defense held the visitors to only four baskets, the other points being made from the foul line. The Indian sharpshooters soon piled up an early lead, which the Eagles played a clean, hard game, This was a great game for the second string men, since all of them had a chance to demonstrate their ability against the visitors. Burke, Stupalsky, and Manning each tallied a field goal soon after entering the game. Although completely outclassed, the Eeagles played a clean, hard game, while the Indians enjoyed their misfortune.

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION

The debate of tomorrow evening on the question of the recognition of the Soviet Government by the United States, should focus some campus attention upon one of the most pressing questions of the foreign relations policy of the incoming administration. The recognition or non-recognition of a government that is today one of the great powers of the globe, and that governs the destiny of some one hundred and sixty with the wave of the hand.

The question of recognition was one of the Constitution, and the inauguration of Washing- gress, and the most vigorous guardian of the ton, Catherine the Great was on the throne of ancient low-tariff beliefs of the Democratic the Romanoffs, and she steadfastly set her face party. Even when the party wielded to the apagainst the recognition of the new upstart repeal of Mammon in 1928, Mr. Hull stuck to his beliefs and now has the joy of seeing those beliefs vindicated by the offer that the Presidentthat attempted to set up a stable government without either a monarch or an established church. It was not until the United States had en a running affair for thirty years or more, that grudging recognition was accorded. From that time or, until American opinion was alienated by stories of the pogroms, and other cheery devices that the Russian government used to enforce its royal will, relations were most cordial between the two nations. This was particularly at during the Civil War, when Russia was wident during the Civil wal, the United States virtually the only friend that the United States had in Europe.

The situation in the Far East today, where the Soviets has been for some time a staunch up-holder of the Stimson policy, and the most ngerous potential foe of Japan in her policy of aggression, would encourage the belief that re is a strong basis for the reestablishment of the friendly relations that formerly existed. Both nations are intent on world peace, one for the sake of world stability, the other for the sake of the industrial up-building that can only be achieved in a world untroubled by war. Both nations have been consistent proponents of rad-cal disarmament. With these policies in com-nos, saide from all other considerations, there the enmity of many powerful Senators. Our guess is that they are perhaps storing up the girly nothing can be achieved in Russianminly nothing can be achie

THE HITLER CAMPAIGN

If a policy of tyranny will win an election, then the present Hitler government in Germany should emerge from the contest of March 5 with an overwhelming majority. The Chancellor has been conducting his campaign so far with the thought that if his opponents get no chance to present their case, he is bound to win. By this time nearly all the opposition newspapers have been suppressed, and one of the most recent edicts of the government decrees that during the course of the campaign, in addition to the regular police, who are already completely under all singing in a different key . . . Am Nazi control, all political meetings must be policed by the storm troops of the Nazis. These police are instructed to see that no utterances are made that are derogatory of the present government or its policy. This, of course, completely vitiates the campaign of any of the op-

The present government would certainly seem to be going the wrong way to win the allegiance of the hitherto non-voters. It would scarcely seem possible that they would be attracted by the repressive and tyrannical policy of the government. Conditions are such in Germany, however, that the ordinary rules of common sense do not seem to be able to measure the situation, and it is possible that the average voter will be attracted by the sternness of the present regime. If they are, and return the Nazis with the majority that they are asking for, they will only have themselves to blame for the kind of government that Hitler and the rest of his rattle-brained crew with dispense.

BROTHERLY LOVE

Down in the fair state of Louisiana, the Brothers Long are very busily engaged in the delightful business of washing dirty linen in public. In an investigation that a Senatorial committee has been conducting into the electoral scandals that have stirred the state, both a younger and an elder brother of the redoubtable "Kingfish" have accused that worthy of enriching himself while he was governor of the state in a manner that is not entirely in accord with the general idea of decent conduct on the part of a public servant. The delightful words "liar" and "filthy crook" have been flung among the Long brethren, to the very evident edification of the onlookers.

Thirgs like this might be the custom down in Louisiana since the Long regime, but Huey has now moved up to a higher field of action, the Senate, and since he has been there he has won

And why are so many important Naval Officers holding themselves in readiness for immediate transerence? Why does England offer

Josie, the lovely trapeze artist, stands upon a small platform. At the will of the magician she leaps twenty feet into the air to reach her trapeze. She uses no ropes, no ladder! A phenomenal leap for a woman . . . or a man!

Josie lidn't jump . . . she was sprung! The twenty-foot leap is not dependent on Josie's ability, but on a powerful spring mechanism hidden beneath the stage which propels the artist upward through the air. The force is so violent that the lady wears a light steel jacket which protects her from injury as she starts her astonishing leap.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Because Camel actually pays millions more every year for choice tobaccos, you find in Camels an appealing mildness, a better flavor.

And Camels taste cooler because the welded Humidor Pack of threeply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane keeps them fresh.

accept or dismiss, but share with his listeners the results of experiences, his own and those of young people with whom he has been associated. Dr. Currier stated that many students do not realize that this is an overwhelming world for three reasons--because they have accepted some dogmatic and ready made views from their grandparents, because they are having a good time and do not bother to find out the kind of foundation on which life is resting, or because they are afraid to find out. However, sooner or later all of these are forced to find out-science courses, social science or some social experience, a ethical experiment, an involuntary tragedy-any of these may be the

As Dr. Currier has watched, he has onment following the discovery that life is overwhelming and full of unpleasant aspects and based on what looks like a very unstable foundation. Some people seek to escape, deny it very seriously and with a morbid delight "sit in a puddle at the foot of the celler steps of the house of life repeating over the tragedy and unpleasantness of it all." This can and has become desperate and tragic despair, even resulting in suicide. The third reaction is to "tear your way furiously through the muck-call the bluff of the Universe" and find out if life truly is a base and ugly thing with no purpose or ideals. It is in this frantic struggle to work one's way through to a stable basis for living that Dr. Currier said a steel core would be found. Dr. Currier said that he has not known specifically what this core is, but that it is something in one's own experience, not a philosophy as such or something taught, but a personal experience that will establish permanent, truthful and worth-

After finding the real core, people face life to find out that they must work to create a similar evaluation and reverence in others for these essential values of theirs because the present-day world is not organized to act or run on such values.

In concluding, Dr. Currier said, "Everyone here is at one stage or another of this experience. Don't be afraid of it, but go on through it, and find the steel core." The meeting was conducted by Andy Christiansen, president of the student body. The College Choir sang the "Pilgrim's Chorus" from "Tannhauser" in addition to the processional and reces-

On Monday morning in convocation Mr. Pickett showed the dangers being presented by the present failure to meet our Social Deficit. He pointed out the necessity for a program to "peg the deficit and begin to pay it off slowly." In the bituminous coal fields where he is working today, he has found that slowly they are resstoring the initiative and creative ability of a people that have lost every means of support with the closing of the mines. Mr. Pickett said that they had started work on a community garden and production for use in industries. First a lack of trust hindered these, but at the completion of a unit of the work, distribution wared out successfully. He said these means are too small an indication for so serious a trouble as we are going through today, but that they are starters. He expressed the need for strong and trustworthy leadership and social experiments as well-scientifically conducted as scientific experiments. Mr. Pickett said, "The burden of the Social Deficit we are piling up today will rest on this coming generation and you must find out what has inherent merit and will peg this deficit."
