LAST GROUP OF ONE-ACT PLAYS WILL BE GIVEN

"Fool of a Man"; "Triffles"; "A Marriage Has Been Arranged" to Be Presented

TO TAKE PLACE TOMORROW

Plays By Play Production Class Will Feature Many New Actors On This Campus

The last group of one act plays by the members of the play production and play writing classes will be presented Saturday evening, May 2 in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. The first of the group of four plays will be "Fool of a Man". This play is being directed by Estelle Foreman, assisted by Carie Lucas. Idella Horsey, Martin Jurow and Robert Ash constitute the cast. It will be remembered that Idella Horsey and Martin Jurow very ably took parts last year in an original play written by Harriet Smith. Robert Ash is a newcomer to this stage. The next play will be a tragedy entitled "Triffles". This play is directed by Jean Rogers with Mary T. Pyle assisting. LeBaron Coleman, Mary Pyle, James Hable, Harry Stinnett and Donald Gordon will be included in this cast. LeBaron Coleman and Harry Stinnett have acted before on this campus. They played together in "Women Folks" and were very well received in that performance. Donald Gordon, although only a freshman, has made remarkable progress in the line of dramatics since he came here. Caroline DeWitt assisted by Elizabeth Lauder will present the third play which is: "A Marriage Has Been Arranged". Carleen Loeffler and Evan Shaw are the only characters in this play. Although neither has appeared on this campus before, both have had experience in dramatics before they came here. "Mary's Lamb," the fourth play, is a comedy. Mary Douglas Sibold is the director of this play supported by a cast including Doyle Seeman, Rhoda Pratt, Ernest DeBordenave, Wallace Hicks, Dorothy Stewart, Edgar Weigand, Harry Stinnett, and Estelle Foreman. Edgar Weigand is exceptionally good at character portrayals. His part in the "Merchant of Venice" as Lancelot Gobbo will be remembered with

May Issue Lit. Magazine Wins Praise

No doubt the May issue of the Literary Magazine far surpasses the April number, but it cannot compare favorably with the pinnacle edition of March. What is most striking in this edition is the unusually large number of poems, very few of them, however, coming up to a particularly high standard. In "Once on a Starlit Night", by Mary Pyle, we find a piece of writing with value and maturity, full of delicacy and lyricism. Willoughby Patton contributes two poems, "Envoi", a supplication for eternal security, and "Naisi", an invocation to the winds to keep a departed lover safe. Neither of these poems come up to the mark set by Miss Patton's former work. "To Rupert Brooke", by Elizabeth Hope, has the imagery and delicacy characteristic of this poetess. Among the minor poems in this issue are "I Shall Not Know", by

Charleton Leitch, and "Locked Out", by Jeanne Rose, the most outstanding. Thus we pass over the verses and turn to the general prose writings. "Edwin Arlington Robinson", by John D. Weaver, is an appreciation of the American poet. Among the interesting points made by Mr. Weaver, is the consideration of the names that Robinson uses for his characters, their aptness and picturesque tone. The essay on the whole is formal, a little too formal, we should say. Nevertheless the author has a profound knowledge of the subject and seems to know

WILLIAM AND MARY TO BE REPRESENTED AT SCIENCE MEETING

Virginia Social Science Convention to Take Place At Hampden-Sydney College

DR. R. L. MORTON TO PRESIDE

The College of William and Mary will be represented at the fifth annual meeting of the Virginia Social Science Association which will take place on Friday, May 1 and Saturday, May 2, at Hampden-Sydney College and State Teachers' College at Farmville, by R. L. Morton, president of the Association and Dr. Charles Marsh.

Friday's program will be held at the State Teacher's College, and will consist of registration in the morning and social meetings in the afternoon. Meetings will be divided into sections of Economics, Geography, Political Science, Sociology, and History. A Friday luncheon conference will take place in the college tea room. Late Friday afternoon there will be a general session, and then dinner will be served.

Saturday's program will be given at Hampden-Sydney college. In the morning there will be a business meeting and general session. There will be a luncheon at 12:30 at which an address of welcome will be given by Dr.

Freshman Debate Team Meets Randolph-Macon

The Freshman Men's Debate Team will meet the team representing Randolph-Macon Men's College tonight at Ashland. William and Mary will uphold the negative side of the question: "Resolved that the legislatures of the several states should adopt unemployment insurance". The debaters for the Freshmen will be Harry Howes, first speaker, and L. M. Bolton second speaker.

This will be the third debate of the season for the Freshmen. Previous to this time they have defeated the Freshmen women and the team from American University of Washington, and will take the floor against Randolph-Macon filled with the determination to keep their slate for the year clean.

Officers Elected For Dramatic Club

Martin Jurow was elected president of the dramatic club at a recent meeting Thursday, April 23. Mrs. Mary Thurman Pyle was chosen vice-president; Anna K. Dunlap, treasurer, and LeBaron Coleman, Secretary. These prominent members of the club will take office immediately.

The new members chosen at that time are: Mary Jane Aude, Joseph Cohran, Caroline DeWitt, Donald Gordon, Mrs. Doris Macomber, Thomas McCaskey, Charles P. McCurdy, Lucius McElrath, Jean Rogers, Mary Douglas Sibold, and Hamilton Simonds.

The new officers succeed Marshall Baggett, president; Patruchia Clarke, vice-president; Mrs. Mary Thurman Pyle, secretary, and Catherine Hasseltine, treasurer.

It was decided by the members of the club to have their annual informal party May 15. Parts of the plays given during this year will be reproduced and light refreshments will be served. Any member of the cast of any play produced during this past year will be invited. At that time the new members will be taken in.

Martin Jurow, president-elect is known for his splendid interpretations of character as well as for his clear enunciation. Mrs. Pyle and LeBaron Coleman are of prominence in three different fields of dramatics having starred as actresses, playwrights, and play-producers. Anna K. Dunlap is chiefly known for her work back-stage in art effects.

"ENTER MADAME" TO BE STAGED MAY 22 IN PHI BETA KAPPA

"Pat" Clarke and Marshall Baggett Have Leads In Senior Class Play

IS FOURTH ANNUAL PLAY

"Enter Madame", by the co-authors Dolly Byrne and Gilda Varesi, will be viewed in Phi Beta Kappa auditorium the evening of May 22 as the fourth annual Senior dramatic presentation in recent years. This recent popular success has been tentatively cast by Miss Althea Hunt again directing, following its selection by the Senior play committee, composed of Marshall Baggett, chairman; Patruchia Clarke, and Catherine Hasseltine.

Patruchia Clarke, of New Rochelle, New York, and Marshall Baggett, of Alexandria, lead the cast as Madame Lisa Della Robbia, the Italian prima donna, and George Fitzgerald, in whose home the action occurs; these leading characterizations have been definitely awarded to Miss Clarke and Mr. Baggett, who will climax their appearances at this time. Miss Clarke, a veteran Shakespearean player on this campus, is considered the most outstanding member of the Senior class in dramatics; she is a member of the Dramatic Club and Theta Alpha Phi. In addition to her roles in "The

Annual Men-Women Debate Will Take Place May 14

The second annual championship debate on the campus will take place Friday night, May 14, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. The subjects will be, resolved: That Divorce is Detrimental to Society. There will be two representatives from the men's team and two from the women's team. Finally the teams will be composed of one boy and one girl. The two girls will be chosen as a result of try-outs, and the two boys will be chosen by the honorary judges of the Wranglers' Club. The winning side in this debate will be chosen by the audience, and the best debater will be chosen by three judges from the faculty.

This is the last debate of the season. It is an annual affair, having been started last year. A cup has been donated by the debate societies on the campus, and will be presented to the winner.

Second Set Of Plays Are Success

The second set of one-act plays by the play production and play writing classes was presented in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, Wednesday, April 22. "The Vanishing Princess" written by John Golden was directed by Carie Lucas assisted by Estelle Foreman. The play was a fantasy, but the number of satirical comments made it border on the ridiculous. Alma Counts as Cindy gave a very excellent portrayal of her role. Especially is she to be commended on her stage presence and her voice control. She possesses very great possibilities and should get more prominent parts in the future. Robert Rodman as Danny carried the juvenile male role very well. Matinka played by Hamilton Simonds was a role which required careful characterization. He did justice to the role. The action of the play was considerably slowed up because of the inability of Lionel Weiser, the villain, to remember his lines.

The next play was "The Dreamy Kid" written by Eugene O'Neil, directed by Doris Macomber assisted by Doyle Seeman. This play was evidently one of the first plays that O'Neil wrote because it is very poorly constructed. It was however an interesting experiment to see white people take the parts of whites. In some places the dialogue was inconsistent, but this was due to the play

DWIGHT C. BROWN WILL COMPETE IN STATE CONTEST

Represents William and Mary In Oratorical Contest At Washington and Lee

THIRD CONSECUTIVE TIME

Merrill Brown and Ralph Murray Tie For Second Place In Annual Contest Here

D. C. Brown, of Vienna, was chosen to represent the college in the state-wide oratorical contest to take place at Washington and Lee University, tonight. The local contest was sponsored by the men's literary societies, April 17. The state-wide contest will be sponsored by the Virginia Intercollegiate Oratorical Association, of which William and Mary, Washington and Lee, Bridgewater, Roanoke, Hampden-Sydney, Lynchburg, Randolph-Macon, and Richmond, are members.

Among the contestants here Merrill Brown and Ralph Murray tied for second place, and Bauman and E. J. Holland, both freshmen, gave speeches. Dwight Brown spoke on "The Constitution and Its Founders", showing the direct influence of the founders of American government on the constitution as a diplomatic work, and especially emphasizing the influences of Virginia statesmen.

Since he became a member of the student body here D. C. Brown has taken an active part in literary work. During his freshman year he won the Phoenix Literary Society medal for oration, and represented William and Mary in the state finals for the Virginia Oratorical Contest. He was elected to Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic fraternity. During his sophomore year he became a member of the Men's Varsity Debate Team, Wranglers Club, Phi Delta Gamma, and the Flat Hat Circulation Staff. Again he represented the college in the state-wide oratorical contest. For this year Mr. Brown is a junior and is president of the Wranglers Club, president Tau Kappa Alpha, secretary-treasurer Phi Delta Gamma, Circulation manager for the Flat Hat, manager of debate, and president of the National Oratorical Contest Association, which is sponsored by the National Federation of Homes. Mr. Brown was tapped as a member of Omicron Delta Kappa at the service of last week.

and not to the characters in the play. Maurice Berkwitz as the Dreamy Kid gave an excellent interpretation. As usual study and thought that is evident in all of his performances was evident in the Dreamy Kid. Mary Pyle as Mammy had a very difficult part to present. She was excellent, the only criticism being in the failure of her voice to carry to the whole audience. Possibly this was due to the emotion she was trying to interpret as an old woman ninety years of age. Elizabeth Lauder as Irene played the part of a high yellow. Her diction and stage presence are to be commended. Her costume was very typical and added color to the performance. Mary Jane Aude played a different role than that which she is accustomed to play. She did very well with the small role that she had. The "Wedding", by John Kirkpatrick, was directed by Harry Stinnett, assisted by Caroline deWitt. This play was presented a short while ago at West Point, where it was a feature on a Kiwanis program. Jack Watson as the groom, is a newcomer to the William and Mary stage. He gave a very amusing portrayal of the part. Marjorie Lanston as the bride, although weak in places, gave an adequate interpretation. Garland Oliver, as Ted, supported the leading characters in such a way that he added suspense and interest to the play. His interpretation of the role was well executed. Arthur Kelly, the best-man, is to be especially commended on his diction. He was however, a little jerky on his lines. Virginia Jones, Harry Stinnett and Elizabeth Allen alby supported the cast. "The Grand Cham's Diamond" was directed by Vera Trabold, assisted by Harry Stinnett. It was the weakest play on the entire program, and its failure was due to the players' uncertainty with their lines. Jean Rogers gave a very good comedy interpretation of her part. Harry Stinnett, Preston Ellett, and Hamilton Simonds took their parts well. Virginia Hall's voice was poor, but her acting was satisfactory. The attendance at these plays have been very disappointing. More people should be interested and willing to support the efforts of a good dramatic club.

what he is talking about. That in itself is a great enough factor to justify the essay and make it one of the best that we have read in the pages of the Literary Magazine this year. Variety seems to be the spice of this edition. This time it includes a series of sketches, thus satisfying the demand for shorter articles. "Behind the Scenes", by Robert Ehrman, is composed of three co-ordinating parts, with New York as the keynote. The force of these sketches lies in the bold contrast and in the irony woven in by the author. They are filled with excellent touches of character and color. "Seaside Encounter", by Elizabeth Hope, is marked by the strangeness of its setting and the curious meeting with a strange Mexican woman. Insight would perhaps be the best word to use in characterizing the author's power in this sketch. "Labels and Seals", by Julian Baber, an alumnus, is titled as a short short story, but technically we do not believe that it comes up to that description. The incident is not sharp enough to warrant the title; it is an experience. Obviously enough it deals with the question of prohibition. The two short stories in this number are satisfactory. In "Stripes", by Charles Hohein, a story of retribution, we have the contrast of rich and poor, the social question of a man's place in society once he has been released from prison and the sacrifices of a woman to get the man that she loves. We are tired already of the many short stories printed in The Literary Magazine with gangster and underworld motifs, but fortunately this one has enough universal appeal to evade the situation very neatly. From Thomas McCaskey we have an amusing short story, "True to the Last Word", a satire on college life. The humorous name of its hero, Abdell H. Gushe, is suggestive of the theme of the story. It is with relief that we come to a piece of writing of this type that is really spontaneously comical. "True to the Last Word" is highly recommended. "Life", despite its poor title, is a most amusing one-act play by Murray Brown, dealing with this question of seeking experience for material to write. A young author is in search of life, that is, of some dramatic incident to build up his fame, and when that bit of adventure comes to his garret he seizes it. And he writes about it. The playwright is a little of a cynic himself, and the ending sharpens the bitter point that he has been whittling for his readers' amusement. Life is like that, and Mr. Brown wants to take a few stabs at it.

The editorial, filled as it is with invigorating ideas of higher education as it is being practiced at the University of Chicago will, we fear, be like a voice in the desert to the readers of this campus publication. It is a shame that this liberal system of studies, so successfully carried out at the middle-western institution, has not yet become universal.

With each new issue of the Magazine, we turn anxiously to the frontispiece. This time it is contributed by Fred Eilers, and unfortunately it does not equal his former drawings. It lacks all semblance of reality.

It is with much anticipation that we look forward to the June edition, hoping that it will culminate this year's publications of the magazine, making the whole a most successful series.

MUD-SLINGING POLITICS

As the time approaches for the student body elections, the hour seems ripe for editorial comment on the political performances of previous years, with the hope of improving future conditions. Too frequently, the FLAT HAT feels, student politics on this campus have consisted of general mud-slinging, to the detriment of both slingers and victims. Organized cliques, frantically opposing each other, have intensified the situation and have given impetus to "dirty" means.

The purpose of student elections here is not—though the fact seems to have escaped many minds—to accord victory to any particular group, fraternity or non-fraternity, but to pick the persons most suitable to represent the campus in official capacities. So long as fraternity and non-fraternity men arraign themselves at opposite poles, and then split themselves up into smaller antagonistic groups, there seems to be little hope that the best candidates will ever be chosen for student body offices. The only solution to the problem which has so seriously confronted William and Mary men in their campus dealings is for people to think sanely, vote according to the dictates of their best judgement, and remember that the ultimate goal is something far more important than a "party" victory.

That such a Utopian condition as that supposing no cliques and no political machines will ever exist here, is, perhaps, doubtful. Development of such a situation, at any rate, will be slow. But the first step—and a step immediately necessary to the best interests of every student here—is the elimination of underhand methods, such as the too frequent mud-slinging previously mentioned. Such means betray only the most unsavory of purposes, and the FLAT HAT sincerely hopes that students will remember their dignity and honor in the coming elections to such a degree that "dirty politics" will play no part in their thinking.

For one person, or one group, to support such a measure would be futile. Each student must realize his own responsibility in the matter, and vote accordingly. It is particularly essential that every student vote. In such a manner, the FLAT HAT sincerely believes, the route to cleaner elections will be indicated.

Members of Faculty Lecture at Norfolk

Seven members of the faculty from this campus numbered among the numerous lecturers at the ninth annual meeting of the Virginia Academy of Sciences in Norfolk, Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25. In addition to the lectures and reading of papers was an opportunity to inspect the laboratories of the Bureau of Shellfish Sanitation aboard the yacht Pasteur, and visit for the ladies present to the Norfolk division of the College of William and Mary, where they were guests at bridge and tea Friday afternoon.

Dr. J. M. Stetson read two papers, one entitled "Note on Newton's Method," and the other "Transformations of Conjugate Nets". Dr. Paul A. Warren, Miss Harriet Aurelia Gill, and Dr. Donald W. Davis, of the Biology department. Dr. Warren, professor of Botany, lectured on "Miserosporegenesis in the Garden Balsam"; Miss Gill, instructor in biology and physical anatomy, talked on "Some Investigations of the Ear Apparatus in Chrysemys Cinera", while Dr. Davis, head of the department, led in the biology symposium. Dr. H. C. Krebs, and Dr. J. Paul Leonard, associate professors of education, completed the group of seven. Dr. Krebs read a paper on "A Study in Motivation"; Dr. Leonard outlined "A Proposed Program for Individualizing Instruction in English in the Junior High Schools of Norfolk".

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

Do you think it would be better to have final dances Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights instead of Friday, Saturday, and Monday nights?

Lois Stone, '31: "No, I think Sunday is needed for a slight rest cure."

Elliott Healy, '31: "I think you could make more money by having them on the early dates."

Marjorie Lanston, '32: "Yes. Why not take a good rest cure afterwards at home."

Rudy Zabel, '31: "It would be better because it wouldn't interfere with the senior play."

Betty Ambler, '31: "It would suit my plans better to have them early."

Harry Humphries, '32: "Yes, because you could get home sooner and have a chance to go to other finals since William and Mary is usually over early."

Mary K. Jean, '34: "Yes, the sooner the better. No use hanging around here for six days just to dance."

Tom McCaskey, '31: "I think it would be best to have them early because more students would stay for them."

Ellen Ticer, '31: "I prefer them Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday."

Ralph Murray, '33: "It would be better to have them sooner. More people would stay."

HIGH SCHOOLS HOLD TOURNAMENT HERE

College Faculty Members Act As Judges In Literary and Oratorical Contests

STAGED LAST WEEK-END

The Lee Jackson High School won the affirmative of the debate in the annual Literary and Latin Tournaments held here April 24 and 25, while Waverly won the negative. G. Walter Mapp, Jr., of Accomac and Virginia Parker, of Parksley, won the speaking contests, while Henry Fleetwood of Waverly won the reading contest.

The subject of the debate was, "Resolved: That Circuit Court Judges and Members of the Court of Appeals Be Appointed by the Governor Subject to the Confirmation of the General Assembly". Separate contests were held for the affirmative and negative sides in which the presenters of the best affirmative and negative arguments were judged the winners. Members of the William and Mary faculty served as judges.

The contestants included representatives from all the Tidewater High Schools. During the first day of the tournament the literary contests were held. Preliminaries in Rogers' Hall during the afternoon eliminated half the members of the debating, speaking, and reading groups. Finals were held the evening of the same day in Washington Hall.

The second day, April 25, was devoted entirely to the Latin Tournament which was held in Washington Hall. The contestants took written tests which were submitted to the judges. The results will be announced as soon as the papers can be read.

THIS DEPARTMENT

Just about time to start keeping track of the days. Do you realize that one calendar month from today (this happens to be April 27) that exams will be almost over, at least most of us will have enjoyed one of them, and some maybe two. But just the same that is getting beside the point, the main thing is that thirty-four (34) days from today will find many of us home.

Let's cry. All right. Boo-hoo-Meow! We have cried now. Poor seniors! Poor, poor (in both senses of the word) seniors. Some of them will be gone forever.

Understand JOBS are plentiful. Tuff, eh? Ought to have a chance to loaf for a while. But somebody ups and says that this college career stuff is like a big loaf of bread—in fact a four-year loaf. Well, we won't go into that. No. Naw. Never.

Everybody is cracking wise tonight. Just might as well let go with some of them.

Suppose you have heard that Mr. and Mrs. Long tried to get along for five years.

ANNOUNCEMENT: A Mortarboard is not a board that you mix mortar on.

And we know a girl who thinks that B. O. means the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

"Do you feel sick?"

"No, but I'd hate to yawn."

"Do you like tight skirts?"

"No, I think women should leave liquor alone."

Have you heard the anthem to the new clock in the tower of the Main Building? No? Well: "Ring Something Simple."

And here are a couple of telegrams: the first sent by an old chum and the second by her old friend here at the college:

No. 1: TWINS ARRIVED AND DOING FINE STOP MORE LATER STOP DORA.

No. 2: CANCEL THAT LAST ORDER STOP TWO'S ENOUGH STOP JEAN.

"May I", said the young lover to his lover at a dinner party, "sit on your right hand at the table?"

"I'm sorry, but I'll need it to eat with."

Campus Politics Are Criticized By "Wood B. Reformer"

Editor of The Flat Hat,

Dear Sir:

At this time of the year, the chief topic of conversation among the men of this college is the election of the Student Body President and of other officers. It is very natural that all of the students should take a deep interest in this affair, but I cannot understand why it is at all necessary to employ such underhand methods of influencing votes. It is a well known fact that in the past elections there has been quite a bit of "dirty work" going on. Since our students take these elections quite seriously, it seems to me that they should at least make an attempt to carry on these elections in the cleanest way possible.

Sometimes we laugh at the many traditions of this college, but after all, we are proud of some of the ideals it has stood for. Why not start a campaign for better and cleaner politics? Just because it seems to be generally accepted that politics are dirty, there is no reason why our students should allow our politics to be perfectly rotten—and I don't see how any other term could be applied to them. The men of this college should certainly be old enough to use their own judgement in such matters. It is to be hoped that in the coming election, they will have courage enough to stand up for their own convictions and to vote for the men that they feel are best suited for the offices; and it is certainly to be deplored that some of the men of this college are trying and even succeeding in influencing votes by giving one sided arguments and perhaps false impressions.

Do our men realize that most of our leaders are turned out by colleges?

And if our college men continue to do nothing about the present politics on this campus, can we expect them to have the highest ideals in such things when they transfer their political careers from college to the nation?

Wood B. Reformer.

"Mary" Gets A Little Support From "Ellen"

Editor of The Flat Hat,

Dear Editor:

Several weeks ago you printed a letter in your Open Forum Column signed by Mary. In this letter Mary expressed her views on several phases of college life and emphasized the need of more study and more stringent rules on social privileges for women. Well strange as it may seem, I am inclined to agree with Mary to a certain extent. I belong to one of the best sororities on the campus, in my opinion the best, and I am so sick of seeing our front porch and reception rooms full of heavy dates that I don't know what to do. There's hardly a minute in the day that there is not at least one or more handsome young gentlemen nicely settled in our comfortable chairs and davenport. How many times I've wanted to sit in one of these chairs myself and perhaps study or rest only to find them fully occupied. After all I'm helping to pay for this furniture and I think I ought to be able to use it sometimes. I might add, too, that I have dates myself quite often but there's hardly a time that when I say goodbye to him I don't go up to my room and heave a big sigh of relief that it is over—men get so utterly boring at times.

Well Mary you do not stand alone in your opinions. I'm with you and I would really like to see the Judicial Council make some laws which would help clean up our front porch. With out so many men hanging around I'd do much better in my Botany.

Ellen.

TOMORROW night sees the final presentation of one-act play programs for the current season. Though playing to small houses, the series has thus far been a great success, artistically speaking, and rehearsals predict that tomorrow night will be no exception. With the exception of "Enter Madame", the senior class play now in rehearsal with Patruchia Clarke in the lead, tomorrow night will be the last appearance of the William and Mary Players for the year.

A notable performance was that of last week when the second of the series of one act play programs was given. We had thought that because we had been astounded at the great number of students who have made their dramatic debuts here this year, and so many of them with outstanding achievement, that the great dirth of material had at last been exhausted, for the time being at least; but not so: last week introduced more newcomers with at least one very outstanding piece of acting. Of the oldsters: Mary T. Pyle gave us one of her best pieces of acting as the negro mother on her death bed; Howard Scammon, coming from more or less straight parts into the realm of character acting, gave us by far his best piece of work to date as a quaint, apathetic, old husband; Hamilton Simonds also quite outdid himself in two roles; Jean Rogers equalled her previously high standard of comedy work; Maurice Berkowitz, for the first time, failed to maintain his most capable level of acting. "The Wedding" was repeated on the program with its former success.

THETA ALPHA PHI recently initiated four Thespians into its dramatic fold. Congratulation to Players Carie Lucas, Maurice Berkowitz, Howard Scammon, and Marshall Baggett.

DRAMATIC CLUB was the guest of Mary T. Pyle at her home at its regular meeting last Sunday night. New officers elected unanimously, Martin Jurow succeeding to the presidency; new members elected; discussion of plans for season tickets for next season. By the way, any suggestions as to such a plan by the patrons of the Players is welcome.

OUTSTANDING STUDENT

CATHERINE HASSELTINE

"Teen", perhaps as she is best known for its suitability and appropriateness, comes from Washington, D. C. now, but it seems that she has lived all over the country from time to time, having received her high school education in Honolulu, New York City, and Norfolk. Just the same she came here when the present Senior class did four years ago. At first "Teen" thought she would remain here for only one year, but when the time came she changed her mind, as girls will do sometimes. After arriving here, she was pledged to Virginia Gamma of Pi Beta Phi.

Since "Teen" has been here, she has helped with the settings of almost every dramatic production staged on the campus with the possible exception of "Twelfth Night". She was art designer of "Ann Christie", Eugene O'Neil's masterpiece so successfully produced here, to the success of which the unusual settings contributed much. She appeared as the wife in "Poor Aubrey", a one act play, last fall; she has been selected for a role in the Senior play this year.

"Teen" has devoted most of her time to dramatics and art work of various kinds, being rewarded by outstanding positions in her fields. She has served as president of the Art Club, and treasurer of the Dramatic Club. She is also a member of Theta Alpha Phi, national honorary dramatic fraternity. In her Junior year she was recognized for her outstanding ability with election to Mortarboard, the women's equivalent for Omicron Delta Kappa.

"Teen", seeming somewhat athletically inclined, starred on the Pi Phi basketball team last year and this year.

"Teen" claims that it never occurred to her to work for Phi Beta Kappa until her Senior year and then received her first grade below 75 during the last month. Another confession states that she never cuts campus until after dark.

When this young lady leaves here in June, she will not only be missed by the dramatic organizations, but by the whole campus which has enjoyed her cleverness and witty personality, her readiness to make the other person laugh.

GREEN SOX PLAY
CAVALIERS

Scrapmen Seek Fifth Victory In Six Starts At Haverford Tomorrow

GREEN SOX CONTINUE WITH CAVALIER FRAY TOMORROW

Club Meets Hampden-Sydney On Monday and Jackets On Thursday

Having swung back into a winning stride with a lop-sided 13-0 defeat of the Randolph-Macon Yellowjackets, the Green Sox meet another Big Four opponent tomorrow at Charlottesville, the Cavaliers of the University of Virginia. The fray marks the first and only game of the year between the two clubs. Following the Virginia game, the outfit returns here for a game with the Hampden-Sydney Tigers and three days later, on May 6, the club journeys to Ashland for the return game with the Randolph-Macon Jackets.

Virginia took quite a beating last year at the hands of Wallace, Scott, et al, losing a game at Charlottesville by 99-3. The Cavaliers failed to put up any kind of an appearance against the Sox and prospects for another sweet victory over the highly touted Virginia men seem all to the good. It is quite likely that Lefty White, who has been given a good rest by Coach Kellison for the past week, will ascend the hill and do the hurling honors for the Indians. The remainder of the lineup for the fray will probably be the same per usual.

The previously scheduled game with Hampden-Sydney was rained out and so the tilt on next Monday will be the first between the two clubs. The Tigers have annexed an 8-2 decision over the Richmond Spiders which ought to speak pretty well for that club unless the Spiders are below form this year. The club lost a pair last year to the Indians, 3-0 and 6-3. Last Tuesday's game with the Jackets was a source of pleasure for Coach Kellison. His charges hammered out a total of 16 hits and looked ok in the fray. All the men on the squad were given a chance to perform for the home towners and they came through in good style.

LITTLE INDIANS NOSE OUT NORFOLK OUTFIT

Come From Behind In Last Two Innings to Defeat the Visitors By A 7-6 Score

The Little Indians nosed out the Norfolk Division of William and Mary last Tuesday in a tight battle, coming out on the long end of the score by 7-6. The visitors had gained an early lead, the ducs coming through in the final innings to gain the decision.

The visitors jumped off to an early lead in the opening frame, a single and a homer doing the damage. Two more counters in the fourth made it 4-0 and when the seventh frame opened for the Indians, the score was 6-2. However, a pass, a hit, an error, a two base hit by Marks pushed two big runs across the platter, and a hit by Walker and an error tied the score. The winning tally was made possible in the eighth by a single, a stolen base and a timely two-bagger by Lambeck. Whitehead started on the hill and gave way to Lefty Gallinant who finished up for the Papooses.

Today the frosh meet the Jefferson High School of Richmond, and on next Wednesday, the team journeys to Norfolk to meet the South Norfolk club on the latter's.

DR. GRACE LANDRUM ATTENDS CONVENTION

Dr. Grace Warren Landrum, Dean of Women, represented the corporate membership of the College of William and Mary at the meeting of the American Association of University Women in Boston, April 9-11. Thirteen hundred delegates from all over the world attended this convention which was the fiftieth anniversary of its founding.

Experts in every field of education from the priest school age through the modern university level were present at this meeting. Foreign delegates from more than thirty different countries attended. Nearly all of these were able to greet the members in English.

Among the speakers at the Education banquet were Dorothy Canfield Fisher, and John Erskine. The President of the International Federation of University women, Dr. Winifred Cullis, of London presided at the International banquet.

Dean Landrum was at one time president of the Southern Association of University women which later amalgamated with the American Collegiate Alumni, to form the American Association of University Women.

LOCAL CLUB TO GO NATIONAL

The Art Club has petitioned the Kappa Pi National Honorary Art Fraternity for membership as the William and Mary Chapter of that society. The club expects to be installed by the first of June.

At the meeting held last Thursday night, April 21, at the Pi Beta Phi House plans were made for an art exhibit which is given each year by the society.

J. Lesslie Hall Lit. Society Makes Plans for Banquet

A special meeting of the J. Lesslie Hall Literary Society cabinet was called by Alice Miller, president, Thursday, April 23 to make definite plans for the annual banquet.

It was decided that Monday, May 4, should be the date for the banquet. Toasts will be given by Willoughby Patton, new literary critic; Betsy Hope, program chairman on the new cabinet, and Alice Burk, first president of the society. It is expected that about seventy-five members will be eligible to attend the banquet, eligibility being determined by steady attendance at the regular Friday evening meetings.

Installation of the officers of the new cabinet will take place tonight at 7:15 in Barrett Hall.

All men who intend to try out for Sigma Delta Psi, national athletic fraternity, should notify either Coach Scrap Chandler or Meb Davis. The tryouts for the fraternity will be held the week of May the fourth. Men may find a new, revised list of the requirements posted on the bulletin board in Blow Gym.

VARSITY AND FROSH OUTFITS EASILY WIN IN RICHMOND MEETS

Varsity Runs Up A 109-17 Score and The Freshmen Also Win by Large Margin Over Cubs

Richmond College offered little opposition to the Indian varsity and frosh clubs last week, the former winning by the one-sided score of 109-17 and the Little Indians coming out on top by a count of 81-36.

The senior Spiders were completely outclassed, winning but one event out of fourteen. Outside of a victory in the quarter, the opposition was able to garner but one second and nine third places.

The outstanding performer of the frosh meet was Joyce of Richmond who scored 26 points for his club. Shaw of W. & M. ran a nice 100 in 10 flat to shatter the record and Steffey and Litwin divided honors in the hurdles.

SQUAD OF TWENTY LEAVES TODAY FOR PENNSYLVANIA

GREEN SOX HELD TO 4 HITS AS EAGLES WIN CONFERENCE VICTORY

Exhibiting the poorest brand of ball of the year, the Green Sox encountered their second defeat of the year when they lost a tough ball game to the Bridgewater Eagles by a count of 7-0. The club couldn't get started and the Eagles counted heavily in three innings to overpower the locals.

A pass, a hit and a couple of errors gave the Bridgewater club a pair of tallies in the third frame, Bill Scott holding them scoreless until the seventh, when the opposition counted another tally on a pair of errors and a clean hit. A wild eighth put the ball game on the ice the Eagles scoring four times to conclude the scoring for the day.

Broad jump: Won by Joyce, Rich.; 2nd, Shaw, W&M; 3rd, Perzekow, W&M. Distance 20 ft. 9 1-2 in.

The William and Mary tennis outfit engages Maryland tomorrow on the latter's courts and on next Tuesday meets Bridgewater on local courts. Two days later, a return match with the Maryland club will be played here and on May ninth, the men conclude the season with a match with the Hampden-Sydney tennis men.

Indians Favored to Repeat The Victory of Last Year At Haverford

William and Mary tracksters take a little trip this week-end, journeying to Haverford, Pennsylvania to engage the Haverford outfit in a tilt tomorrow afternoon. The club ought to come through with their fifth victory out of six starts against the Pennsylvanians in good style but Coach Scrap Chandler is taking no chances and has been working the men out quite hard this past week.

This afternoon, the Papoose aggregation engages in its last meet of the year, meeting the Apprentice School team of Newport News on Cary Field. Little is known of the calibre of the visitors, but judging from the results of the frosh against the Navy and Richmond, the ducs ought to conclude a successful season against the Shipbuilders.

Last year, William and Mary won a rather easy meet over the Haverford gang in a driving rain by a score of 78 1-2 to 47 1-2. In the only meet this year that this writer knows of, Haverford has beaten the Johns Hopkins team by a score of 73 2-3 to 52 1-3. In doing so, however, Haverford showed nothing to let one suppose that the Indians are due a beating. In fact, the Braves ought to cop twelve out of the fourteen places. Gage of Haverford ran a 10 second 100 and Fields of the same team put the shot 44 ft. Outside of these two places, the Indians, on paper, seem due to clean up.

In field events, the distance of Haverford includes defeats in all departments with the exception of the shot. Eleven ft. in the pole vault, 5 ft. 9 in. in the high jump, 155.3 in the javelin, 117 in the discus and 20 ft. in the broad jump were all good enough for the Johns Hopkins men to win firsts. 4.58 in the mile and 2.07 in the half, 53.2 in the 440 and 22.6 in the 220 were Haverford times.

The Indians have more than a good chance to cop top honors with the Penn group and ought to come home with a good share of the honors.

Helen Stamper Attends E. S. P. National Convention

Helen Stamper, president-elect of Omega Chapter of Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical fraternity, left Wednesday April 29 to attend a national convention in Cincinnati. The Convention which opens May 1 will meet at the University of Cincinnati and will have headquarters at the Hotel Sinton.

The delegates will be taken on a sight-seeing tour around the city and will be entertained with teas and dinners. The Conference will end with a formal banquet at which the Mayor of the city will speak. A dance sponsored by the University will follow the banquet.

The business of the convention will include several lectures delivered to the entire group, while discussion groups will meet at various intervals throughout the week-end in order to discuss questions relating to the classics.

JUNIOR CO-ED OUTFIT BEATS FRESHMEN TO GAIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Frosh Aggregation Takes Second Place With Seniors In Third Place

Monday, the Junior Co-ed nine won the class championship by defeating the Duccesses 14-6. This game brought to a close the regular intramural baseball season leaving the Juniors undefeated, and the Frosh in second place with one defeat.

On the same day, the Seniors gained third place by virtue of their 6-4 victory over the Sophomores. At the time of publication, the Honorary Varsity has not been chosen, but formal announcement of team members will be made in the next Flat Hat.

The Junior-Frosh game brought to a close the contest which had been looked forward to all season. When these same Juniors were Frosh two years ago, they also had won the championship, and with another promising Duccess class this year, the outcome of the game had seemed all-important.

Both the Juniors and Frosh were represented by clever pitchers in Pat Lowry and Betty Sargent. Pat Lowry's curves had the Frosh swinging at fresh air. Another thing that gave the Juniors an edge was superior headwork, and tight fielding resulting in a minimum of errors. Pearl Young held onto two beautiful flies. Corrinne Troupe, Junior captain, could always be counted upon to get on base. Dot Mitchell, Duccess, aside from a little hard luck, played like a professional at first base.

Helen Clohessey has been doing splendid work on the Senior team both at the pitching and catching end of the battery. At third base, Hazel Storch has been hanging onto the ball like flypaper, and often even surprising herself. Emily Dunleavy and Captain Fries tie for starring honors on the Soph team.

SPORTS SHORTS

By Vivian Dreyer

Kitty Cubberly has been elected Manager of the tennis team to fill the vacancy left by Frances Booth. "Fran" got rash one day and in a high fever decided to give the Infirmary the pleasure of her company for a few weeks.

Class baseball ended this week. The captains elected to head their teams were: "Bambino" Winn, "Kansas" Troupe, "Red" Fries, and "Champ" Hudak. The Juniors are champs.

No, Virginia Romm is not a paid laborer. She is just the Manager of Track.

The Pi Phis have gone athletic to every one's surprise for the second time this year. A Ping Pong Table has been set up on their porch, and vigorous practice is held each noon. They say that it is a new way to amuse their boy friends. "Trust the Pi Phis to discover a new way."

"Nee" Sjostrom has at last enjoyed her first horseback ride. She has decided to return to Camels.

Ye ancient sport of archery is the Squaws latest pastime. Mary Barnes is very scientific about it all. She wears a small weather vane on her head so that she can judge all wind and other conditions before taking aim. Edith Stevens simply closes her eyes and pulls, but she seems to have practically the same score as Mary B.

Dot Mitchell, Marie Fries, and Ethel Hartman each hiked forty miles in past two days, 120 miles and three girls sound impossible, but it has been done!

BEAVER, SWARTHMORE TENNIS TEAMS MEET SQUAWS ON MAY 9 & 10

Sixty Indianettes Out For Sport. Will Be Governed By Point System This Year

The Squaw racquetters are practicing daily in preparation for matches in Philadelphia with Beaver and Swarthmore to be played May 9 and 11. No other matches for the season have been definitely announced, but there are other prospective intercollegiate tournaments.

Fifty-nine co-eds are trying to work to the top of the ladder. Each player is allowed to challenge within four rungs above her present position, and challenge must be answered within forty-eight hours under penalty of forfeiture.

The outstanding candidates for varsity arranged according to present standing on the ladder are: Pat Beale, Lee Cheuning, Elsie Hudak, Emily Dunleavy, Vivian Dreyer, Janet Simes, Aubrey Holladay, and Lois Roberts.

It is hoped that Captain Fran Booth will be able to join above list soon. Booth has been handicapped by Scarlet Fever which has kept her in the Infirmary for several weeks, but reports say that she will be released by next week.

Points will again be awarded for tennis this year. In order to gain 50 points, a minimum of 36 hours must have been played before May 18th. Winners of 75 points will be determined according to place attained on the ladder. Varsity players earn 100 points.

A program of Fall tennis is being worked out by Coach Barksdale. Next Fall, Sweet Briar will come here for a match. William and Mary is also corresponding with Drexel concerning place and time for a match this season.

Already the question of who shall be wearing college champions' crown is a matter of great conjecture. Pat Beale, last year's champ, has already recovered her old style. If Fran Booth plays this season, Pat will have some good competition. Then too, there are others who will have to be accounted for, Elsie Hudak, Emily Dunleavy, and Lee Cheuning.

COLUMN BY BUD

In the meet with Richmond a week ago, William and Mary almost lost the services for the balance of the year of a real performer, namely, Mooch Smithers. In running one of his races he pulled a muscle in his leg, but recent treatment has done a lot of good and the Mooch will be running per usual tomorrow.

See where Tony Canzoneri smacked Jackie "Kid" Berg out of the picture in the third round last week and thereby is the holder of two titles, the lightweight and junior welterweight titles. Berg had to scale down to 135 pounds and that probably caused his rather sudden defeat.

There have been mighty few men who have held two titles at the same time. Perhaps one of the most outstanding champions of the age is Mickey Walker, who has held three world titles at one time or another and is now in the scramble for another. Walker has held the welterweight, middleweight and light-heavyweight championships and when he adds a little more weight to his frame, will be a serious contender for heavy-weight honors.

Old Jim Thorpe got a real break a week or so ago when he was offered a coaching job at a Oklahoma High School. Jim was digging ditches when the item in the newspaper announcing this fact was read by the principal of the school where he is now employed.

Here's one school that is at least on the up and up if nothing else. They advertised in the paper for a girl who was a good tennis player, promising in return a liberal discount. And let's see a commission make a report on that one.

W. A. King, of Brownsville, Texas, recently received an order for 20 Mexican burros for use in carrying golfers up a 100 foot hill to the first tee of a Uniontown, Pa., golf course.

They have smart lacrosse teams at Boston University. The Army twelve barely nosed out the Beantown outfit, 35-0, a week ago.

A great number of colleges have been having night football and now the practice of having track meets after sunset is being put into effect to some extent.

The South Atlantic championships will be held this year in May and will be held at night. It won't make as much difference to the athletes as football at night does but it usually takes away a great deal of the color of the event.

Tiberius Gracchus Jones Literary Prize

Miss Gabrilla Page presented a check for $1,000 to the Board of Visitors of the College, the gift of Archer G. Jones in memory of his father, Tiberius Gracchus Jones, class 1844-45, for the following purposes:

This gift to be invested and the income therefrom to be applied each year to a prize for the best English essay submitted by any undergraduate student, male or female, in any department. By "best" is meant (1) most original and constructive in thought, and (2) most clear and forceful in expression. "It being the donor's thought that the greatest latitude be permitted in subjects chosen for the essay without fear of prejudice, so that the result may tend to the advancement of 'the eternal spirit of the unchained mind'."

The committee appointed for the awarding of this prize has drawn up the following regulations governing the contest:

- (1) Manuscripts must be submitted not later than May 10, 6 P. M.
- (2) Manuscripts to be acceptable must be submitted promptly on large paper, legibly written in ink (typewritten if preferred), but with careful attention to legibility, correctness, and originality of thought and expression.
- (3) Sources of material used must be acknowledged definitely, and quotation matter must be minimized.
- (4) Recommendations as to length are as follows: Poems, approximately fifty lines; Short Stories, approximately three thousand words; One-act plays, three thousand words; Longer Plays, five thousand words; Essays, twenty-five hundred words; Orations, twenty-five hundred words.

The amount of the prize is $30.00. Further information and suggestions may be had from one or more members of the following committee: Dr. Grace W. Landrum, Dr. E. M. Gwathmey, Dr. J. R. L. Johnson.

"ENTER MADAM" TO BE STAGED MAY 22 IN PHI BETA KAPPA

Mollusc", "The Importance of Being Earnest", the three Shakespearean productions, and numerous one-act plays, she directed her original one-act play, "Lady Fingers", last year. Mr. Boggett appeared most recently in the Player's road show, "Just Suppose". Among other plays in which he has played are "Minick", "Twelfth Night", "The House of the Dead", and "The Travellers", in addition to being stage manager of that unusually staged production of "Ann Christie" last year; he is the retiring president of the Dramatic Club, and new initiate of Theta Alpha Phi.

Carie Lucas, of Clarendon, Mary Douglas Sibold, of Pembroke, Catherine Hasseltine, of Washington, and Thomas McCaskey, of Norfolk, others members of the cast, are familiar figures upon the campus stage. Miss Lucas, a new initiate of Theta Alpha Phi, carried the lead in "Twelfth Night" as Olivia, and appeared in "Daggers and Diamonds" this past fall; she recently directed a one-act play in the Play Production class series. Mary Douglas Sibold recently appeared in "A Moment of Darkness", and in the fall in "The Rehearsal"; she was the assistant director of "The Merchant of Venice", and is presenting tomorrow night a play under her own direction. Miss Hasseltine has appeared in "Poor Aubrey" and several other one-act plays; she has been particularly active in the staging, especially the settings. Mr. McCaskey appeared in "The Merchant of Venice" and the operetta "Pirates of Penzance".

Other members of the cast include Elizabeth Whitehead, of Chatham; Frank Beard, of Newport News; C. Waldorf Johnson, of Pittsburgh; and Lawrence Slapion, of Brooklyn, New York. Each of these four is making his initial appearance on the campus. The producing staff has not yet been selected.

"Enter Madame" will be presented on the same night upon which "The Royal Family", the greatest box office success on the campus, was acclaimed by audiences and critics last year. This popular parody on the Barrymore family was preceded by Shaw's "Candida", and "Outward Bound". The Senior class has not yet decided whether they will continue the practice of repeating the play during final week, begun last year.

WYTHE LAW CLUB TRIAL

The Wythe Law Club moot trial of the Webster Murder Case which was scheduled for April 30, has been postponed until May 7, according to Charles L. Eason, prosecuting attorney. This is the last case to be tried by the club this year. The Faculty and students are cordially invited to attend the trial which will take place in the Circuit Court Room of James City County, Court House. James H. Heath, Jr., has been added as assistant prosecuting attorney.

FRESHMAN MEETING HELD MONDAY IN PHI BETA KAPPA HALL

merits of the freshman team, and urged their class-mates to show their appreciation of the players' efforts. He said that although it was necessary to ask each member of the class for a contribution of $.50 last year, an individual appropriation of $.25 would be considered adequate this year.

Dr. Hodges next spoke, and said that it had been customary since the establishment of freshman rules in athletics, for the freshman class to present each year football sweaters to the winners of numerals. Formerly, he informed the assembly, a part of the students' room reservation fee was appropriated for this purpose, but since the reservation fee is no longer returnable, it is impossible to do this.

A committee of class officers has secured coin-holders, which will be distributed throughout the men's and women's dormitories. The $.25 will be deposited in these and returned to Dr. Hodges.

Jerry Quirk, as a representative of the freshman football team, concluded the meeting with an informal talk requesting support from the class.

Immediately after the meeting a committee of 10 freshmen was appointed to plan activities for Freshman Night, when the men of the class will shed their "Duc" caps and green ties. Coach "Meb" Davis and Dr. Hodges compose an advisory board for this committee.

The attendance at these plays has been very poor. It seems as though the campus as a whole should promote campus projects more effectively. The strength that dramatics have obtained on this campus can only be maintained by the co-operation of the whole student body.
